2.—ΦΑΙΔΙΜΟΥ

Τρίμετρον

Καλλίστρατός σοι, Ζηνὸς ὦ διάκτορε, ἔθηκε μορφῆς ξυρὸν ἤλικος τύπον·
Κηφισιεύς ὁ κοῦρος· ὦ χαρεῖς, ἄναξ,
Ἄπολλοδώρου παῖδα καὶ πύτραν σάω.

3.—ΘΕΟΚΡΙΤΟΥ

Χωλὸν τρίμετρον

Ὁ μουσοποιὸς ἐνθάδ' Ἰππῶναξ κεῖται.
εἰ μὲν ποιηρὸς, μὴ ποτέρχεν τῷ τύμβῳ· εἰ δ' ἐσσι κρήγνός τε καὶ παρὰ χρηστῶν, θαρσέων καθίζεν, κῆν θέλης, ἀπὸ βριξον.

BOOK XIII

EPIGRAMS IN VARIOUS METRES

1.—PHILIPPUS

(Pentameters only)

HAIL, Paphian goddess! For all mortals, creatures of the day, ever honour by all fair words and works thy power and immortal beauty and loveable majesty; for ever and to all dost thou manifest thy dignity.

2.—PHAEDIMUS

(Iambic trimeters)

CALLISTRATUS dedicated to thee, Hermes, messenger of Zeus, this statue of a youth of like age with himself, the common image of thee and him. The young man is of the deme of Cephissia. Rejoicing in his gift, O Lord, protect the son of Apollodorus and his native place.

3.—THEOCRITUS

(Seazon iambic trimeters)

HERE lies Hipponax, the maker of verse. If thou art wicked, approach not the tomb, but if thou art good and comest of a good stock, sit thee down fearlessly, and if thou be so minded, fall asleep.

GREEK ANTHOLOGY

4.—ΑΝΑΚΡΕΟΝΤΟΣ

Τετράμετρον

Ἄλκίμων σ', ὦ ῥιστοκλείδη, πρῶτον οἰκτείρω φίλων ᾠλεσας δ' ἦβην, ἀμύνων πατρίδος δουληίην.

5.—ΦΑΛΛΙΚΟΥ

Τρίμετρον μείουρον ἢ κύλουρον

Νικῶ δίαυλον. Ἄλλ' ἐγὼ παλαίωιν.

Ἐγὼ δὲ πεντάεθλον. Ἄλλ' ἐγὼ πύξ.—

Καὶ τίς τύ;—Τιμόδημος. Ἄλλ' ἐγὼ Κρής.

Ἐγὼ δὲ Κρηθεύς. Ἄλλ' ἐγὼ Διοκλῆς.—

Καὶ τίς πατήρ τοι;—Κλεῖνος. Ὡσπερ ἄμμιν.— 5

Ἐμπερ δὲ νικῆς;—Ἴσθμοί.—Τὺ δ' ἔμπερ;—

Νέμειον ἂν λειμῶνα, καὶ παρ' Ἡρα.

6.—ΤΟΥ ΑΥΤΟΥ

Ἐνδεκασυλλάβιον τρίμετρον οὕτω καλούμενον

Τοῦτ' ἐγὼ τὸ περισσὸν εἰκόμισμα τοῦ κωμωδογέλωτος, εἰς θρίαμβον κισσῶ καὶ στεφάνοισιν ἀμπυκασθέν, ἔστασ', ᾠφρα Λύκωιν σᾶμ' ἐπέιη.
ὅσσα γὰρ †καθύπερθε λαμπρὸς ἀνὴρ· 5
μνῆμα τοῦ χαρίεντος ἐν τε λέσχα ἐν τ' οἴνῳ τόδε κάτι τοῖς ἔπειτα ἄγκειται, παράδειγμα τᾶς ὀπωπᾶς.

4.—ANACREON

(Trochaic tetrameters)

I PITY thee, Aristocledes, first among all my valiant friends. Thou didst lose thy young life, defending thy country from enslavement.

5.—PHALAEUS

(Iambic trimeters with the last syllable missing)

(1) I CONQUERED in the stadion. (2) And I in wrestling. (3) And I in the pentathlon. (4) And I in boxing. And who art thou? (1) Timodemus. (2) And I Cres. (3) And I Crethus. (4) And I Diocles. And who was thy father? (1) Cleinus. (2), (3), and (4) And ours too. And where didst thou win? (1) At Isthmus. And thou where? (2) In the Nemean grove and by the home of Hera.¹

6.—BY THE SAME

(Hendecasyllable trimeters)

THIS admirable portrait of the comedian, crowned for a triumph with ivy and garlands, I set up that it might stand as a monument on Lycon's grave. For this memorial of him who was so charming in familiar talk and over the wine, this presentment of his features, is offered by me to preserve the memory among posterity also of how the glorious man entertained us. (?)

¹ i.e. in the Heraea at Argos. The dialogue is between a passer-by and the statues of four brother athletes. There seems to be something missing at the end.

GREEK ANTHOLOGY

7.—ΚΑΛΛΙΜΑΧΟΥ

Κωμικὸν τετράμετρον

Ὁ Λύκτιος Μενοίτας τὰ τόξα ταῦτ' ἐπειπὼν ἔθηκε· “ Ἐῆ, κέρας τοῖ δίδωμι καὶ φαρέτρην, Σάραπι· τοὺς δ' οἴστους ἔχουσιν Ἐσπερίται.”

8.—ΘΕΟΔΩΡΙΔΑ

Τετράμετρον Ἀρχιλόχειον

Ἐκ δολιχοῦ τόνδε¹ σφυρήλατον, ὡς τάχει κρατήσας, παῖς Ἀριστομάχειος ἀνείλετο χάλκεον λέβητα.

9.—ΚΑΛΛΙΜΑΧΟΥ

Πεντίμετρον βακχικόν. ἔστι δ' οὐ τέλειον τὸ ἐπίγραμμα

Ἐρχεται πολὺς μὲν Λίγαϊον διατμήξας ὑπ' οἰνηρῆς Χίου
ἀμφορεύς, πολὺς δὲ Λεσβίης ἄωτον νέκταρ οἰνάνθης ἄγων.

10.—ΤΟΥ ΑΥΤΟΥ

Τετράμετρον ἑκκαίδεκα σινλλαβῶν. οὐ δὲ τοῦτο τέλειον

Ἄραυς, ἠ τὸ μόνου φέγγος ἐμὴν τὸ γλυκὺ τῆς ζωῆς ἄρπαξας, ποτὶ τὲ Ζανὸς ἰκνεῦμαι λιμενοσκόπῳ . . .

¹ He had taken part in an expedition against Cyrene, in the territory of which was Hesperis or Berenice (now Benghazi).

EPIGRAMS IN VARIOUS METRES

7.—CALLIMACHUS

(Comic tetrameter)

MENOETAS of Lyctus dedicated his bow with these words: "Here, Serapis, I give thee the horn bow and quiver, but the men of Hesperis have the arrows."¹

8.—THEODORIDAS

*(Archilochian tetrameter)*²

FROM the long race did the son of Aristomachus, having conquered by fleetness of foot, win this tripod of beaten brass.

9.—CALLIMACHUS

*(Bacchic pentameter.*³ The epigram is not complete)

FROM Chios, rich in wine, ploughing the Aegean comes many a jar, and many a one that brings us nectar, flower of the Lesbian vine.

10.—BY THE SAME

*(Tetrameters of sixteen syllables.*⁴ This also is imperfect)

O SHIP, who hast carried off the only sweet light of my life, I beseech thee by Zeus, the watcher of the harbour

² Metre of Horace, Od. i. 4.

³ "Trochaic pentameter" would be more correct.

⁴ Metre of Horace, Od. i. 18.

EPIGRAMS IN VARIOUS METRES

11.—SIMONIDES

(Hyporchematic pentameters)

A. WHO dedicated this portrait? B. Dorieus of Thurii. A. Was he not a Rhodian by descent? B. Yea, before he was exiled from his country. Many deeds of might he had done by his terrible hand.¹

12.—HEGESIPPUS

(Hexameters followed by iambic trimeters)

Woe worth that day and that fatal moonless night, that dreadful roaring of the wind-beaten sea, that cast ashore the ship on which Abderion, so sweet a soul, was making ineffectual vows to the gods. For she, an utter wreck, was carried by the waves on to the rugged rocks of Seriphus, whence he, having got him fire from the hands of his city's reverend hosts, came to his home Abdera, lapped in a brazen urn.

13.—ANONYMOUS

(Hexameter followed by a pentameter and afterwards by an iambic trimeter)

THIS did Pyres, the dear son of Polymnestus, dedicate, having vowed the tithe to Triton-born Pallas; Cresilas of Cydonia wrought it.

14.—SIMONIDES

(Hexameter followed by a pentameter, two iambic trimeters, and a hexameter)

HERE lies Dandes of Argos, the stadion racer, who gained honour by his victories for his fatherland, rich in pasture for horses. Twice did he conquer at Olympia, thrice at Delphi, twice at the Isthmus, and fifteen times at Nemea, and it is not easy to count his other victories.

15.—ANONYMOUS

(Two hexameters followed by a pentameter)

I AM Dicon, the son of Callimbrotus; but I was victor four times at Nemea, twice in the Olympian games, five times in the Pythian, and thrice in the Isthmian. I crown the city of Syracuse.¹

16.—ANONYMOUS

(Three hexameters followed by a pentameter)

KINGS of Sparta were my fathers and brothers, and I, Cynisca,² winning the race with my chariot of swift-footed horses, erected this statue. I assert that I am the only woman in all Greece who won this crown.

17.—ANONYMOUS

(Hexameter followed by iambic dimeter)

IPHION, whom water from Pirene once fed,³ painted me with his own hand.

19.—SIMONIDES

(Hexameters followed by verses of nine syllables)

THIS statue is the offering of Nicoladas of Corinth, who conquered at Delphi in the foot-race, and at the Panathenaea gained prizes, jars of oil, in five contests one after another; and in holy Isthmus the shore of the Sea-lord witnessed him win the prize thrice in succession; and in Nemea he gained three victories, another four in Pellene, and two in the precinct of Zeus Lycaeus; and likewise in Tegea, and in mighty Epidaurus, and in Thebes, and the land of Megara; and in Phlius, winning the stadion and pentathlon, he made great Corinth rejoice.

20.—BY THE SAME

(Hexameters followed alternately by a comic tetrameter wanting two syllables and an Archilochian scazon trimeter)

(Complete iambic trimeters followed by dimeters from the hyporchematic pentameter)¹

THIS is the tomb of Mnasalcas of Plataeae,² the writer of elegies. His Muse was a fragment torn from Simonides' page, loud-voiced but empty, a bombastic spout of dithyrambs. He is dead; let us not cast stones at him; but if he were alive, he would be blowing as loud as a drum beats.

22.—PHAEDIMUS

(Complete trimeters followed by epodes—shorter verses—consisting of heroic tetrameters scazon in the penultimate syllable)

O KING, Far-shooter, curb the force of thy bow with which thou didst lay low the Giant's³ might. Open not thy wolf-slaying quiver, but aim at these young men the arrow of Love, that strong in the friendship of their youthful peers, they may defend their country; for it sets courage afire, and He is ever of all gods the strongest to exalt the hearts of the foremost in the fight.⁴ But do thou, whom the Schoenians⁵ reverence as their ancestral god, accept the gifts Melistion proffers.

(The same tetrameter followed by a tetrameter similar to $\approx - \cup - \approx - \cup - \approx - \cup - \cup - \approx$, but with an extra syllable: in the fourth foot it has not an iambus but an anapaest¹)

OFTEN in truth, in the choruses of the tribe Aca-mantis, did the Hours, the companions of Dionysus, shout in triumph at the ivy-crowned dithyrambs, and overshadow the bright locks of skilled poets with fillets and rose blossoms. The chorus now hath set up this tripod as a witness of their Bacchic contest. Antigenes was the poet who trained those men to sing his verses,² and Ariston of Argos, clearly pouring dulcet breath into the Doric flute, nursed well the sweet voice of the singers. The leader of their honey-voiced circle was Hipponicus, son of Struthon, riding in the chariot of the Graces, who established for him among men a name renowned, and the fame of glorious victory, for the sake of the violet-crowned Muses.

29.—NICAENETUS

(An iambic trimeter following a hexameter)

This Cratinus said,³ Dionysus, and breathed the perfume not of one bottle but of all the cask; therefore was he great, loaded with crowns, and his forehead, like thine, was yellow with the ivy.

¹ This account of the metre of the second verse is wrong, the metre being $\approx - \cup - \approx | - \cup \cup - \cup \cup - \cup - \approx$, i.e. the second half is a dactylic logaoedic.

² The epigram is most probably the work of the poet Antigenes himself. ³ cp. Hor. Ep. i. 19, 1.

ARITHMETICAL PROBLEMS, RIDDLES, ORACLES

NOT only Nos. 116-146, but the rest of the arithmetical problems in this book may be put down to Metrodorus, if we may judge by the style. This Metrodorus was probably a grammarian of the time of Constantine the Great.

The problems, which are all of the same nature, can be easily solved by algebra. The Scholiast gives somewhat cumbrous arithmetical solutions.

1.—SOCRATES

PROBLEM

Polycrates Speaks

BLESSED Pythagoras, Heliconian scion of the Muses, answer my question: How many in thy house are engaged in the contest for wisdom performing excellently?

Pythagoras Answers

I will tell thee then, Polycrates. Half of them are occupied with belles lettres; a quarter apply themselves to studying immortal nature; a seventh are all intent on silence and the eternal discourse of their hearts. There are also three women, and above the rest is Theano. That is the number of interpreters of the Muses I gather round me.

Solution : 28 ($14 + 7 + 4 + 3$).

2.—PROBLEM

I, PALLAS, am of beaten gold, but the gold is the gift of lusty poets. Charisius gave half the gold, Thespis one-eighth, Solon one-tenth, and Themison one-twentieth, but the remaining nine talents and the workmanship are the gift of Aristodicus.

3.—PROBLEM

CYPRIS thus addressed Love, who was looking down-cast : “ How, my child, hath sorrow fallen on thee ? ” And he answered : “ The Muses stole and divided among themselves, in different proportions, the apples I was bringing from Helicon, snatching them from my bosom. Clio got the fifth part, and Euterpe the twelfth, but divine Thalia the eighth. Melpomene carried off the twentieth part, and Terpsichore the fourth, and Erato the seventh ; Polyhymnia robbed me of thirty apples, and Urania of a hundred and twenty, and Calliope went off with a load of three hundred apples. So I come to thee with lighter hands, bringing these fifty apples that the goddesses left me.

Solution : $3360 (672 + 280 + 420 + 168 + 840 + 480 + 30 + 120 + 300 + 50)$.

4.—PROBLEM

On the Dung of Augeas

Solution : $240 (120 + 30 + 20 + 12 + 8 + 50)$.

SIX feet in so many positions make the metre of an iambus, the spondee, the tribrachys (∪ ∪ ∪), the dactyl, the anapaest, the pyrrhie (∪ ∪), and the iambus ; and each has its proper habitation. The pyrrhic's is the end ; those feet whose first syllable is long are admitted to the first, third, and fifth place. The others walk in every road alike ; the king, the iambus, alone is admitted to any place he wishes.

16.—CHARADE

MY whole is an island ; my first the lowing of a cow, and my second what a creditor says.

Answer : Rhodes (dos = give).

A MAN Diomedes called Ajax, slew Hector, son of Priam, fighting with his spear for the Trojans.

19.—ENIGMA

I ONCE saw a beast running straight on its back through a wood cut by the steel, and its feet touched not the earth.

Answer : A louse.

20.—ENIGMA

If you put one hundred in the middle of a burning fire, you will find the son and slayer of a virgin.

Answer : Pyrrhus, son of Deidamia, and slayer of Polyxena. If ρ, the sign for 100, is inserted into the middle of the word πυρός (fire), it becomes πυρρός.

22.—ENIGMA

SPEAK not and thou shalt speak my name. But must thou speak? Thus again, a great marvel, in speaking thou shalt speak my name.

Answer : Silence.

23.—ENIGMA

A SON of earth bears me, the child of Nereus, bathed in the pleasant waters of Styx.

Answer : A fish in its juice (called Styx because the fish is dead) contained in an earthen vessel.

THOU seest me . . . Dionysus. A double womb bore me, and my father presides over memory. He first generated me, a merciless creature carrying a beast, and having slain the dear son of my sister, the fawn, I no longer carry a beast, but the sky, and sea, and earth, and the holy company of the gods ever imperishable.

Answer: Obscure, but there is in the last lines evidently a reference to a "panther," which, on losing its last syllable (ther = beast), becomes pan (the universe).

25.—ENIGMA

I MISS the eyes of Scylla, which the Sun himself and the Moon extinguished. My father feared me when I was a girl, and now dead I am washed by two perennial rivers which my head sends forth on the rugged hill.

Answer: Niobe. By the eyes she means her twelve children slain by Apollo (the Sun) and Artemis (the Moon). They are called the eyes of Scylla because Scylla was supposed to have six heads.

26.—ENIGMA

I WAS once yellow, but when cut I become whiter than white snow. I rejoice in a sweet and fishy bath, coming first to the company of the banqueters.

Answer: A linen towel. Line 4 alludes to the practice of washing and wiping the hands at table before beginning to eat.

27.—ENIGMA

SEEKING in the sea the maiden who was once a lion, thou shalt find the mother-in-law of Hecuba, the murderer of her children.

Answer : Thetis, who was transformed into a lion in her attempt to escape from Peleus. Hecuba was a name given to Medea, whom, according to late tradition, Achilles is said to have married in the islands of the blessed.

28.—ENIGMA

FROM the sea I have a fishy parentage, and one contest can bring me to the games of Dionysus. In the stadion, after anointing my body with oil, I slew by my hands the son of Demeter. In the second place, I send out from both sides of me a mass of giants, pulled by many hands.

The answer has not been guessed.

29.—ENIGMA

I ALONE delight in intercourse with women at their husbands' own request.

Answer : A clyster; cp. No. 55.

30.—ENIGMA

31.—ENIGMA

WRITE the second mother of wine and add an article to the article: you see him whose fatherland was her father's wife.

Answer: Homer. μηρός = the thigh (of Zeus), from which Dionysus was born a second time. Smyrna, Homer's city, is identified with Myrrha (both the forms mean "myrrh"), who committed incest with her father Cinyras.

32.—ENIGMA

SLAIN, I slew the slayer, but even so he went not to Hades; but I died.

Answer (to this and the following): Nessus the centaur, with whose blood the robe that slew Heracles was poisoned.

33.—ENIGMA

I SLEW him who slew me, but it was no pleasure to me, for death made the slain man immortal.

34.—ORACLE ON TYBE GIVEN TO THE BYZANTINES¹

THERE is a certain city which is an island having blood named from a plant, holding both an isthmus and a strait over against the continent. There is blood from my land and blood of Cecrops together with it. There Hephaestus enjoys the possession of grey-eyed Athena. Thither I bid you send a sacrifice to Heracles.

36.—ENIGMA

BITTER is my life, my death is sweet, and both are water. I die pierced by bloodless spears ; but if anyone will cover me when dead in a living tomb, I am first moistened by the blood of my relations.

Answer : A fish. The last line alludes to a pickle made with blood.

37.—ENIGMA

I AM the friend of Pallas and give birth to countless children, which men throw under stones ; and when they perish there is light for Pelides, medicine for men, protection in contests.

Answer : The olive-tree. By Pelides is meant the lamp, because made of clay (pelos).

38.—ENIGMA

Let him place his right foot in the water and hold it in the surge, while he plants his left on land, and touching with one hand the sea and with the other the dry land, let him swear by Heaven, by the vast Earth, by the harbours of the sea, and by the life-giving Lord of the heavenly fire. ⁵ From Herodotus iii. 57, where see the explanation. The prophecy, delivered at an early date, was fulfilled as follows: The prytaneion and agora of Siphnos were now built of white marble. A Samian squadron came to Siphnos and sent in a ship an embassy requesting a loan of money. On this being refused, the Samians landed and defeated the Siphnians, exacting ten times the sum. The wooden ambush and red herald is the ship, all ships being then painted red.

PALLAS may not appease the wrath of Olympian Zeus, beseeching him with many words and subtle counsel. And this word I will tell thee again, setting it in adamant. For when all else is taken that the boundary of Cecrops and the dell of divine Cithaeron contain, a wooden wall doth far-seeing Zeus give to Athena the Triton-born, to remain alone unstormed, and that shall profit thee and thy children. Abide not in quiet the horsemen and the great host of footmen that cometh from the land, but turn thy back and give way: yet there shall come a day when thou shalt stand and meet them. O divine Salamis, thou shalt be the death of the children of women, either when Demeter is cast abroad or when she is gathered in.

¹ Oracle given to the Argives, from Herodotus vii. 148. They had asked if they should join the rest of the Greeks against the Persians. The oracle distinctly discountenances it.

² Oracle to the Cretans, from Herodotus vii. 169. This also dis-nade from taking part in the war against the barbarians. They are told that they were punished by Minos for doing so on a previous occasion—the war against Troy.

PROBLEMS, RIDDLES, ORACLES

94.—*An Oracle of the Pythia*¹

HATED by thy neighbours, but dear to the immortal gods, sit guarded with thy defence inside thee and look to thy head; it is the head that shall save the body.

95.—*Oracle*²

YE fools, ye complain of all the tears that Minos sent you in his wrath for avenging Menelaus, for that the Greeks did not join you in exacting vengeance for his death in Camiceus, but ye helped them to take vengeance for the woman who was carried off from Sparta by a barbarian.

96.—*Another*³

YE inhabitants of Sparta with broad dancing-floors, either your great and renowned city is sacked by the Persians, or this befalls not, but the guard of Lacedaemon shall mourn the death of a king of the house of Heracles. For him, the Persian, neither the might of bulls nor of lions shall arrest, for he hath the strength of Zeus, and I tell you he will not give in before he rend and devour one or the other of these.

98.—*The Oracle of Bacis touching the Victory of the Greeks at Salamis*¹

BUT when in mad hope they bridge with ships the holy shore of Artemis of the golden bow and sea-washed Cynosura, after sacking splendid Athens, divine Justice shall quench the light of strong Excess, the son of Insolence, terrible in his lust, deeming that all things would be subject to him. For brass shall clash against brass, and Ares shall redden the sea with blood. Then shall the far-seeing son of Cronos and mighty Victory bring on the day of freedom for Hellas.

WHY do ye two Kings, one King of the Trojans, the other of the Achaeans, ascend to my house, not thinking of the same matter, one seeking to find offspring for a filly and the other to carry off a filly? What, then, will thy counsel be, great Zeus?

101.—AN ENIGMA OF CLEOBULUS

A GIRL (or pupil of the eye) died in her sleep by fire; she was betrayed by wine, and the instrument by which she died was a trunk of Pallas. He who slew her was a ship-captain, and in a living tomb she lies, finding fault with the gift of Bacchus.

Answer : The eye of Polyphemus. The trunk of Pallas is the olive-trunk used to put it out.

109A

PALLAS, Bacchus, and famous Hephaestus, all three destroyed one girl.

Answer : The same as the last.

INO and Semele once divided apples among twelve girl friends who begged for them. Semele gave them each an even number and her sister an odd number, but the latter had more apples. Ino gave to three of her friends three-sevenths, and to two of them one-fifth of the whole number. Astynome took eleven away from her and left her only two apples to take to the sisters. Semele gave two quarters of the apples to four girls, and to the fifth one sixth part, to Eurychore she made a gift of four; she remained herself rejoicing in the possession of the four other apples.

Solution : Ino distributed 35 ($15 + 7 + 11 + 2$) and Semele 24 ($12 + 4 + 4 + 4$).

THE walnut-tree was loaded with many nuts, but now someone has suddenly stripped it. But what does he say? "Parthenopea had from me the fifth part of the nuts, to Philinna fell the eighth part, Aganippe had the fourth, and Orithyia rejoices in the seventh, while Eurynome plucked the sixth part of the nuts. The three Graces divided a hundred and six, and the Muses got nine times nine from me. The remaining seven you will find still attached to the farthest branches."

Solution : There were 1680 nuts.

FROM Cadiz to the city of the seven hills the sixth of the road is to the banks of Bactis, loud with the lowing of herds, and hence a fifth to the Phocian soil of Pylades—the land is Vaccaean, its name derived from the abundance of cows. Thence to the precipitous Pyrenees is one-eighth and the twelfth part of one-tenth. Between the Pyrenees and the lofty Alps lies one-fourth of the road. Now begins Italy and straight after one-twelfth appears the amber of the Po. O blessed am I who have accomplished two thousand and five hundred stades journeying from thence! For the Palace on the Tarpeian rock is my journey's object.

Solution : The total distance is 15,000 stades (say 1,500 miles); from Cadiz to the Guadalquivir, i.e. to its upper waters, 2,500, thence to the Vaccaei (south of the Ebro) 3,000, thence to the Pyrenees 2,000, thence to the Alps 3,750, thence to the Po 1,250, thence to Rome 2,500.

TAKE, my son, the fifth part of my inheritance, and thou, wife, receive the twelfth; and ye four sons of my departed son and my two brothers, and thou my grieving mother, take each an eleventh part of the property. But ye, my cousins, receive twelve talents, and let my friend Eubulus have five talents. To my most faithful servants I give their freedom and these recompenses in payment of their service. Let them receive as follows. Let Onesimus have twenty-five minae and Davus twenty minae, Syrus fifty, Synete ten and Tibius eight, and I give seven minae to the son of Syrus, Synetus. Spend thirty talents on adorning my tomb and sacrifice to Infernal Zeus. From two talents let the expense be met of my funeral pyre, the funeral cakes, and grave-clothes, and from two let my corpse receive a gift.¹

Solution : The whole sum is 660 talents ($132 + 55 + 420 + 12 + 5 + 2 + 34$).

THE sun, the moon, and the planets of the revolving zodiac spun such a nativity for thee; for a sixth part of thy life to remain an orphan with thy dear mother, for an eighth part to perform forced labour for thy enemies. For a third part the gods shall grant thee home-coming, and likewise a wife and a late-born son by her. Then thy son and wife shall perish by the spears of the Scythians, and then having shed tears for them thou shalt reach the end of thy life in twenty-seven years.

Solution : He lived 72 years ($12 + 9 + 24 + 27$).

I AM a tomb and I cover the lamented children of Philinna, containing fruit of her vainly-travailing womb such as I describe. Philinna gave me my fifth portion of young men, my third of maidens, and three newly married daughters; the other four descended to Hades from her womb without participating at all in the sunlight and in speech.

Solution : She had 15 children ($3 + 5 + 3 + 4$).

MISCELLANEA

WE may consider that the miscellaneous epigrams (some of them from inscriptions) Nos. 1-20 were collected by Cephalas, as it has been pointed out that Constantinus of Rhodes, to whom we owe Nos. 14-17 and who no doubt also transcribed No. 11, was a contemporary of Cephalas, both holding ecclesiastical offices at the Court of Constantine Porphyrogenitus (A. D. 911-959). Nos. 21, 22, 24-27 consist of the so-called Technopaegnia, included also in some MSS. of the Bucolic Poets. They are poems written in enigmatic language, and each formed so as to represent the shape of some object. Nos. 28-40 are chiefly Christian poems, probably again collected by Cephalas, as two are by his contemporary, Arethas, Bishop of Caesarea, and Cometas, the author of 36-38 and 40, seems also to belong to the same period.

THE painter ventured to picture what may not be pictured, and eloquence completed the counterfeited nature of the world, yea and near the truth; but the painting invented all.¹

MISCELLANEA

4.—Sepulchral Inscription at Nicaea, near the Lake, on the Obelisk

VAUNT, Nicaea, the tomb that mounts to the sky, the pyramid that is nigh to the sun, which contains buried in the vast monument the hierophant celebrated among the living. Of Sacerdos¹ is this great sepulchre; Severa's is this monument whose neighbour is not Hell, but Heaven.

5.—On the Same

CELESTIAL is this monument, with its point of beaten gold, of a man who has been given a tomb equal to his life, approaching the stars; and the tomb holds a man, like to none other, the ministrant of the heavenly rites, him who upraised from the ground his city in ruins, whose were the highest gifts of intellect and speech, him for whom there was strife between Attica, that laid his corpse on the pyre, and his country that received his bones in her bosom.

6.—On the Same

IT was built for the great Sacerdos, this great and all-resplendent tomb, the terrestrial star of Lake Ascania, flashing back the rays of the sun, and within it lies in peace the spirit, who both stretched out his right hand to his fallen country and bound about his brows the holy crown that, received from the father, bloomed again for the son; him whose dear corpse his country received, whom Attica purified by fire, and whom every city of Greece venerates.

¹ This priest, Sacerdos, upon whose tomb Nos. 4-8 were inscribed, was evidently a pagan, not a Christian.

MISCELLANEA

7.—On the Same

My country was Nicaea, my father the hierophant of heaven, and I the inheritor of the holy rite. I am he who also saved from hell, by the generosity of Roman Zeus,¹ my country cast down by earthquake. I died far away from Ascania, and in the Attic land, the mother of my race, I mounted on the pyre. My son, who bears his grandsire's name, designed this magnificent monument for me, and virtue looks on both.

8.—On the Same

ONE wedlock was theirs, a common life; nor in death, ever mindful of each other, were they divorced. Thee, Sacerdos, thy holy rites and thy manly works shall proclaim all the days of man's life, but I, Severa, shall grow more renowned than Penelope of old through my husband, my son, my virtue, and my beauty.

9.—CYRUS

In Praise of the Emperor Theodosius

ALL the renowned deeds of Achilles are thine, except his secret love; thou drawest the bow like Teucer, but art no bastard; thou hast the illustrious beauty of Agamemnon, but wine does not disturb thy mind. In prudence I liken thee in every way to Odysseus, but thine is without evil fraud, and thou dost distil, O King, honeyed accents like those of the old man of Pylos,² before thou seest Time touching the third generation.

11.—*In the Castle of Lindos*²

WIDE is the glory of ancient Lindos which received Atrytone on the heavenly slopes of its citadel, and greater yet on earth waxed the city's lovely renown, when filled with the dark-green gifts of the virgin goddess. For now to those who look on the rocks that bear fruit the spot cries aloud that it is the flourishing home of Athena. For her priest Aglochartus made to her this sweet offering, giving to her of his own possessions, a man more skilled than Celeus and Icarus in causing through all the land increase of the holy olive.³

³ This priest of Athena, who had a famous temple at Lindos, boasts in this and other inscriptions of having planted olive-trees. Atrytone is a name of the goddess. Celeus and Iearus were introducers respectively of corn and the vine.

On the Crucifix he Dedicated at Lindos

CONSTANTINUS, the son of Joannes and Eudocia, made me, this noble cross; he whom proud Lindos bore, the foremost man of the former generation, and the faithful servant of the Emperor Leo, associated with whom his brother Alexander and his son Constantine bore the God-supported sceptres of the kingdom.

Paraphrase: The wife of Ulysses and mother of Telemachus (Pan was, according to one legend, said to have been the son of Penelope either by Hermes or by all the suitors) gave birth to the swift shepherd of the goat, the nurse of Zeus (in whose place a stone was given to Cronos), not Comatas (see Theocritus, Id. vii. 78; κέρασ "horn" may be used for κόμη "hair," him whom bees nourished, but him with whom Pitys (who becomes, if you take away the P, ίγς, the rim of a shield) was once in love, Pan by name, half goat, half man, who felt desire for Echo, the maiden who divides the voice, who is the child of the voice and like to the wind; he who made for the Muse the shrill pipe (Syrinx has the two meanings of the Latin

21.—THE PIPE OF THEOCRITUS

THE bed-fellow of nobody and mother of the fighter gave birth to the swift director of the nurse of him whose place a stone took, not Cerastas, whom the child of the bull once reared, but him whose heart once was burnt by the edge of a shield lacking a Pi, whole by name, a double animal who felt desire for the Meropian girl born of a voice and like to the wind, who put together for the violet-crowned Muse a shrill wound, the monument of fiery love; he who quenched the bravery that had the same name as the slayer of his grandfather and freed the Tyrian maiden from it; he to whom Paris Simichidas offered this beloved possession of the blind-bearers; rejoicing in thy soul at which, O treader of flocks, tormentor of the Saettian woman, son of a thief, without a father, box-footed, mayst thou sweetly play to the mute girl, Calliope the invisible.

fistula), the monument of Syrinx, the object of his ardent love; he who (at Marathon, where Pan is said to have personally helped the Athenians) quenched the valour of the Persians (who bear the same name as Perseus, the slayer of his grandfather Acrisius) and freed Europe from them. To him Theocritus (he plays on his name, taking Theocritus as meaning "judge of gods"), also called Simichidas, offered the beloved possession of the wallet-bearing pastoral poets (περός, "blind"; πήρα, "wallet"). Taking joy in this pipe, O Pan, goat-mounter, hoof-footed, beloved of Lydian Omphale, son of the thief Hermes with no known father (since Penelope lay with all the suitors), play sweetly on it to the dumb maiden, the invisible Muse, Echo.

PHOCIAN Epeius, in gratitude for her strong device, gave to the virile goddess Athena the axe with which of old he laid in ruin the high, god-built towers, then when he burnt to ashes with fire-breathing doom the holy city of the Dardanidae and dashed down from their seats the gilded kings, a man who was not reckoned among the chieftains of the Achaeans, but one of low degree who carried water from the pure fountains. But now he has entered on the path of Homer, thanks to thee, holy Pallas of many counsels. Thrice blessed he whom with a gracious mind thou watchest over. This blessedness ever lives and breathes.

23.—*On the Book of Marcus*¹

24.—SIMIAS. WINGS OF LOVE

Look on me, the lord of broad-bosomed Earth, who stablished the Heaven¹ elsewhere, and tremble not if, little though I be, my cheeks are heavy with bushy hair. For I was born when Necessity was ruler, and all creeping things and those that move through the sky yielded to the dire decrees of Earth. But I am called the swift-flying son of Chaos, not of Cypris or of Ares, for in no wise did I rule by force, but by gentle-voiced persuasion, and earth and the depths of the sea and the brazen heaven yielded to me. I robbed them of their ancient sceptre and gave laws to the gods.²

¹ Uranus was son of Aemon.

² This is the Eros of the old cosmogonics and of early speculation, the ordering and unifying power which succeeded to Chaos, here called actually the son of Chaos, elsewhere the son of Night (Arist. Birds, 695) always one of the oldest of the gods. See Plato, Symp. 178 b.

MISCELLANEA

25.—BESANTINUS. THE ALTAR¹

THE black cloud of victims does not, like purple, dye me with its reddening stream, and the knives sharpened on the Naxian stone spare the flocks of Pan; the sweet-scented juice of the Arabian trees² does not blacken me with its curling smoke. Thou seest in me an altar not composed of golden bricks or the clods of Alybe,³ nor let that altar be like to me which the two gods born in Cynthus built, taking the horns of the goats that feed about the smooth ridges of Cynthus.⁴ For together with the children of Heaven⁵ did the earth-born Nine rear me, the Muses to whose art the King of the gods granted immortality. And mayest thou,⁶ who drinkest of the spring that the Gorgon's son⁷ opened with a blow of his hoof, sacrifice and pour on me libations in abundance sweeter than the honey of Hymettus' bees. Come to meet me with a confident heart, for I am pure of the venomous monsters which lay hid on that altar in Neae of Thrace that the thief of the purple ram⁸ dedicated to thee. Triton-born, hard by Myrina.⁹

⁴ The altar of horns on the hill Cynthus, in Delos, was said to have been built by Apollo and Artemis themselves when children. See Callimachus' Hymn to Apollo, v. 60.

⁵ Not, it would seem, the Græces, but the three Heliconian Muses, Mneme, Melite, Aoede.

⁶ i.e. Hadrian, himself a poet.

⁷ Pegasus, who set the fountain of Hippocrene running with a blow of his hoof.

⁸ Jason, who was said to have built the altar in the island of Neae, from which issued the snake that bit Philoctetes. On this altar the following poem, "The Altar of Dosiadas," is supposed to have been inscribed. Besantinus, of course, is alluding to Dosiadas' poem.

⁹ Not the town in Æolis, but another name for Lemnos.

28.—ANASTASIUS THE LISPER

On Christ Crucified

CHRIST once was nailed naked on the cross, in the midst, with robbers crucified on either side. And His Mother, grieving sore, bewailed Him loudly, standing by and sobbing, and another, His virgin companion.¹ And the wayfarers mocked and reviled Him in His misery, calling Him a man of no account or courage. And the wicked and bloodthirsty people of the Jews offered Him, when He thirsted, an abominable drink, filling a bitter cup with vinegar, the potion of death. But Christ, outstretched there, was silent and resisted not, Christ, the Son of Mary and an immortal Father. A proud man shall be as an infant when he reflects on this in his heart and sees it in pictures; for God is better than men, but man in no way better than God.²

EVEN if swift fate has put out the lamp of my life, depriving my torch of its light, yet did my evil demon satisfy the fury of his spite in making all my life wretched. He made me a widow early just as my breasts were swelling, nor did I look on a fair child at play, the sweet jewel in a parent's arms. Therefore did mourning overcome me by the cruel torch of decline. In my twenty-third year did this tomb, the hospice of my race, receive me. There did my aged parents weave for all a dirge, tearing their grey hair, and the company of Anna's noble brothers groaned as they bethought them fondly of the brilliance of her beauty.

THE tomb shall not have power to obscure the austere virtue of Anna, the grace of her kindness, her submissive ways towards her parents (for modesty was with her like a great teacher and guided her), the brilliant characteristics of her race, her resistance, owing to love of her husband, to nature which tried to shake her unsupported widowhood by force, but was overcome by her clinging to the Higher Powers (whence the bright crowns shining forth in testimony of her worth in refusing to re-wed), and finally her frankness. For the mouths of all can by no means forget her who gave so good an admonition by her life. But if they do, this inscription placed beside her tomb shall speak more than all.

On the Nun Febronia

FEBRONIA must surely have given some token of her sympathy to the spirits below likewise, if there, too, the poor have need of the wealthy; for not even there do the souls of the generous forget entirely their beneficence. But in any case the space of our life¹ would suffice to send her forth to the holy bridal chamber of Christ, whom she took as the bridegroom of her chastity, keeping bright her lamp with the oil of love for the poor. Learn that this is the monument of her long, long sleep.

WHEN the good Son of the Almighty, chiefest of men, who rules over all mortals and immortals, said to the wise fishermen, His disciples, "Lazarus our friend has not left yet the light of the sun, while the vast earth covers him these four days," yet speechless Lazarus lay, his lips closed in silence, his body and bones and goodly flesh decaying; and his soul, taking flight from his limbs, went to Hades. Unspeakable sorrow did he cause to his friends, and most of all to Martha and Mary, his own sisters; for from their hearts they loved their brother, who lay without hurt, thus lifeless in the midst of the dead. His fate they lamented with wailing and dirges, remaining outside the grave and seated by the tomb. Till the sun made the third day on earth, so long was Lazarus decaying lifeless among the dead. But when the fourth rosy dawn came then did the Son of great God thus speak to His noble friends who were born of God, who were superior in wisdom to all men, whom He loved marvellously as if they were the Sons of God, from whose tongues flowed speech sweeter than honey and words like to winter snow-flakes: "O my noble-hearted friends and all who have God within them, list to me, since God is with us, that I may say what my heart within my breast bids me. Come, let us haste with all speed to Bethany, where Lazarus' soul left him, that I may have eternal renown, for I go to raise my friend even from Hell." And those excellent and noble-hearted men thus answered him back: "Let us go as Thou biddest, O like to Thy Father." They spoke, and He himself went on leading His disciples, and they in haste followed the steps of the Almighty: as the tribes of the multitudinous bees go forth, ever continuing to issue from the hollow of the rock, so did the disciples follow great God. But when they reached the tomb much bewept; then his sisters and friends, casting themselves at His feet, besought Almighty Christ: "We clasp Thy knees, O King who dwellest in the highest mansions; the Lazarus Thou didst love is gone to the bowels of Hell. If Thou hadst been here, Hades, the King of the dead, had never dared to abide, for Thou art far more puissant. But even so if Thou wilt, Thou canst raise him up again." And then the Most High answered, "Where lieth he?" Then swiftly they went close to the tomb. When then they showed him and the doleful tomb to God He said, "Haste ye and take off the cover of the tomb." But when the doleful tomb of the dead man lay open, then He who was both great God and man called out aloud, "Lazarus, come hither, hearken to me and come out." But when Lazarus heard the voice of God the Word, he came forth with decaying limbs bound in grave-clothes, breathing, and stinking. The multitudes, when they saw him, marvelled in their hearts, and straight they glorified the good God who ruleth on high, and the great Father of the good Son got Him great glory.¹

EPIGRAMS IN THE HIPPODROME AT CONSTANTINOPE²

41.—ANONYMOUS

On the Statue of the Charioteer Constantinus

THOU didst not stand in bronze while still alive, Constantinus, for envy prevailed against fame. But now on thy death the whole city honours thee as it can; but what is worthy of thy horsemanship?

42.—On the Same

SINCE Constantinus entered the house of Hades all the glory of charioteering is gone with him.

43.—On the Same

CONSTANTINUS deserved a golden gift for his merit, for his art has produced none like to him. While humped back these verses full of filth." From a literary point of view, indeed, there is nothing to be said for the production, chiefly made up of Homeric reminiscences.

² Many others on charioteers will be found at the end of

κουρίζων νίκησει ἀειδομένους ἐλατῆρας·

yet a youth he overcame the celebrated drivers, and in his old age showed that the young were his inferiors. The people and the Emperor, reverencing him even after his death, set up his statue by a decree that will ever be remembered.

44.—On Porphyrius the Charioteer

HERE they set up again in brass and silver Porphyrius, who formerly, too, stood here in brass owing to his merit, when he had ceased from his labours and unbuckled his belt. Old man, after receiving honours from abroad, thou didst at the loud request of the people take up thy whip again and dost rage furiously on the course, as if in a second youth.

45.—On Julianus the Charioteer

THE Emperor himself, the whole People, and the reverend Senate, by a common vote erected this statue of Julianus, whose mother and nurse was Tyre, a charioteer who had won many crowns. For in his old age he had retired from the course, leaving regret even to all in whom love of his rivals was strong.

46.—On Porphyrius the Charioteer

THIS Porphyrius was an African, and he alone on his victorious chariot gained crowns of all varieties. For Queen Victory, divided among the factions¹ of the people, changed fortune altogether with colour and robe. But it suited the Blues most to have him, and his statue was erected by them of gold because of his merit, of brass because of his pains.

¹ For the factions of the circus, see Gibbon, ch. xl. Porphyrius had originally driven for one of the other factions. Ever since he began to drive for the Blues, they were victorious.

47.—On the Same

THIS Porphyrius was born in Africa, but brought up in Constantinople. Victory crowned him by turns, and he wore the highest tokens of conquest on his head, from driving sometimes in one colour and sometimes in another. For often he changed factions and often horses. Being sometimes first, sometimes last, and sometimes between the two, he overcame both all his partisans and all his adversaries.

48.—On Uranius the Charioteer

THE Emperor, regarding him as the equal of the famous charioteers, the son of Faustinus¹ and Faustinus himself, erected beside both the statue of Uranius, to whom the people, owing to his countless victories, gave the name of lordly Pelops. Someone looking on these will say truly, "How doth God ever lead like to like!"²

49.—On the Same

To thee alone, both during thy racing days and after thou hadst ceased to contend, did Victory give this reward thrice, Uranius, from each faction. For formerly among the Blues thou didst wear the crown for twenty illustrious years. But then thou didst cease from horsemanship, and the faction of the Greens sought thee. To them thou didst give victory, and they to thee this reward.

MISCELLANEA

50.— On the Same

THOU shouldst have borne arms and not these robes, as being a driver and also a champion in war. For when the tyrant-slaying sword of the emperor went forth thou didst take up arms, too, and join in the battle of the ships, and, master of many counsels, thou didst skilfully seize on a double victory, that of the charioteer and that of the tyrannicide.¹

51.—ARCHIAS

On the Calydonian Boar

It is of bronze, but see what strength he contrived to show, the sculptor of the boar, moulding a living beast with the bristles standing up on its neck, with sharpened tusks, grunting and darting terrible light from its eyes, all its lips wet with foam. No longer do we marvel that it destroyed a chosen host of demi-gods.

EPIGRAMS OF THE PLANUDEAN ANTHOLOGY NOT IN THE PALATINE MANUSCRIPT

THE Anthology of Planudes is in seven Books, the contents of which are as follows: I. Declamatory and Descriptive Epigrams; II. Satirical Epigrams; III. Sepulchral Epigrams; IV. Epigrams on monuments, statues, etc.; V. Christodorus' description of the statues in the gymnasium of the Zeuxippus (= Anth. Pal., Book II.), and a collection of Epigrams from the Hippodrome in Constantinople; VI. Dedicatory Epigrams; VII. Amatory Epigrams. As will be seen, while the other Books contain only a small number of Epigrams not included in the Palatine MS., almost the whole of Book IV. is absent from the latter, and we can only conclude that a Book of the Anthology of Cephalas was missing in the MS. of which the Palatine MS. is a transcript.

On Nicolaus, Patriarch of Alexandria

HE who subdued kings and put an end to the arrogance of the enemy, defending the orthodoxy of the Fathers, Nicolaus, the high-priest of Christ, lies under this little monument. But his most rich virtue took wing to the ends of the world, and his spirit dwells in the chambers of the blest. For such a blessed life he desired while yet on earth, afflicting his comely body by glorious labours.

THE Green Faction erected, because of his merits, the statue of Nicetas the great in war, the fearless leader.

48.—ANONYMOUS

I AM Prochus, the son of Paul, a Byzantine whom the Imperial Court stole from the Courts of Law where I flourished, to be the faithful mouth of our mighty Emperor.¹ This bronze announces what reward my labours had. Son and father held all the same offices, but the son surpassed the father by his consular fasces.

49.—APOLLONIDES

THE olden time admired Cinyras or both the Phrygians,² but we, Leo, will sing thy beauty, O renowned son of Cereaphus.³ Most blessed of islands, then, is Rhodes, on which such a sun shines.

50.—BY THE SAME

IF such a Leo (lion) had chanced to face Heracles, this would not have been his twelfth labour.

51.—MACEDONIUS THE CONSUL

WE honour the boy Thyonichus with this statue, not that thou mayst see by the beauty of this monument how comely he was, but, good Sir, that thou mayst learn his achievement, and be emulous of such enthusiasm. This is he whose legs never gave way owing to fatigue, and who vanquished every adversary, him of his own age, the younger one, and the elder one.

³ Legendary first colonist of Rhodes.

52.—PHILIPPUS

PERHAPS, O stranger, seeing me thus with a belly like a bull and with solidly built limbs, like a second Atlas, thou marvellest, doubting if I am of mortal nature. But know that I am Heras of Laodicea, the all-round fighter, crowned by Smyrna and the oak of Pergamus, by Delphi, Corinth, Elis,¹ Argos, and Actium. But if thou enquirest as to my victories in other contests thou shalt number also the sands of Libya.

53.—ANONYMOUS

WHETHER Ladas jumped the Stadion or flew over it, his fleetness was portentous and not easy to express in words.

54.—ANONYMOUS

JUST as thou wert in life, Ladas, flying before wind-footed Thymus, just touching the ground with the tips of thy toes,² so did Myron mould thee in bronze, stamping on all thy body thy expectation of the Olympian crown.

54A.—ANONYMOUS

FULL of hope is he, and he shows that the breath on the tip of his lips comes from deep within the hollow of his sides. The bronze is ready to leap forth to gain the crown, and the base shall not hold it back. O Art, swifter than the wind!³

¹ Olympia.

² This is the sense required, but no satisfactory emendation has been proposed.

³ The statue looks as if it could run swifter than the wind.

BYZANTINE Rome set up this statue, in addition to two others, to Eusebius for his horsemanship. For he was crowned after gaining no disputed victory, but far excelling in fleetness of foot¹ and valour. Therefore he quenched the light of his adversaries' rivalry; but also he put a stop to the former dissensions of the people.

61.—CRINAGORAS

EAST and West are the limits of the world, and through both ends of the earth passed the exploits of Nero.¹ The Sun as he rose saw Armenia subdued by his hands and Germany as he went down the sky. Let us sing his double victory in war; Araxes knows it and Rhine, drunk now by enslaved peoples.

62.—ANONYMOUS

On the Statue of Justinian in the Hippodrome

THESE gifts, O King, slayer of the Persians, are brought to thee by Eustathius, the father and son of thy Rome:² a horse for thy victory, another laurelled Victory, and thyself seated on the horse swift as the wind. Thy might, Justinian, is set on high,³ but may the champions of the Persians and Scythians⁴ lie ever in chains on the ground.

³ Alluding to the height of the base on which the statue stood. ⁴ i.e. Goths.

On the Picture of Ajax by Timomachus²

AJAX, more the son of Timomachus than thine own father's, Art seized on thee as thou really wert; the painter saw thee in thy frenzy; his hand grew mad as the madman, and the tears he mixed on his palette were a compound of all the griefs that made up thy sorrow.

BEWARE from afar off of the guardian set up in the kitchen-garden. I am such as thou seest me, O thou who goest past me, made of fig-wood, not polished with shagreen, nor earved by rule and measure, but by a shepherd's self-taught chisel. Laugh foolishly at me, but take care not to damage Eucles' property or you may have to laugh grimly too.

THE flame that gives life to Art was my gift, and now from Art and fire I get the semblance of ceaseless pain. Ungrateful of a truth is the race of mankind, since in return for his benefit to them this is what Prometheus gets from workers in bronze.

HOMER's book calls brass a metal that is unconsumable by age, but the sculptor has visibly confuted it. For come here and look at Prometheus groaning; look at the torments of the brass consumed from its inmost vitals. Wax wrath, O Heracles, that after the deed of thy quiver¹ the son of Iapetus suffers ceaseless pain.

HE who once sat at the table of the gods, he who often filled his belly with nectar, now lusts for a mortal liquor, but the envious brew is ever lower than his lips.¹ "Drink," says the carving, "and learn the secret of silence; thus are we punished who are loose of tongue."

The Labours of Heracles

FIRST, in Nemea he slew the mighty lion. Secondly, in Lerna he destroyed the many-necked hydra. Thirdly, after this he killed the Erymanthian boar. Next, in the fourth place, he captured the hind with the golden horns. Fifthly, he chased away the Stymphalian birds. Sixthly, he won the Amazon's bright girdle. Seventhly, he cleaned out the abundant dung of Augeas. Eighthly, he drove away from Crete the fire-breathing bull. Ninthly, he carried off from Thrace the horses of Diomedes. Tenthly, he brought from Erythea the oxen of Geryon. Eleventhly, he led up from Hades the dog Cerberus. Twelfthly, he brought to Greece the golden apples. In the thirteenth place he had this terrible labour: in one night he lay with fifty maidens.

94.—ARCHIAS

YE rustic ploughmen of Nemea, tremble no more at the deep roaring of the lion, slayer of bulls. It has fallen by the hands of Heracles, the supreme achiever of emprises, its throat strangled by his death-dealing hands. Drive out your flocks to pasture; let Echo, the denizen of the lonely glen, again hear the sound of bleating. And do thou, clothed in the lion-skin,¹ again arm thee with the pelt, appeasing the spite of Hera who hateth her lord's bastards.

THE lion is from Nemea, but the stranger is of Argive blood; the one far the most valiant of beasts, the other of demi-gods. They come to the conflict glaring askance at each other, each about to fight for his life. Father Zeus, may the victory be the Argive man's, that Nemea be again accessible.

On a Picture of Heracles

As Heracles was when Theiodamas met him of old, even so did the artist portray the son of Zeus dragging off the ox from the plough and lifting up his club on high, but he did not paint the wicked murder of the ox.¹ Yea, perchance he drew Theiodamas with a plaintive cry on his lips, hearing which Heracles spares the steer's life.²

¹ Heracles in Rhodes killed the labouring ox of Theiodamas to cook and eat it.

² i.e. possibly the artist wished to convey the impression that Heracles spared the ox.

HERACLES, where is thy great club, where thy Nemean cloak and thy quiver full of arrows, where is thy stern glower? On a Statue of Theseus and the Bull of Marathon MARVELLOUS is the art of the bull and man: he, the man, his limbs all tense, forces down by his might the savage beast. To bend back the sinews of its neck he grasps with his left hand its nostrils, with his right its horn, and shakes up the neck-bones. The beast, its neck subdued by his strong hands, sinks down on its hindquarters. One may fancy that in this bronze Art makes the beast breathe and bathes the man in sweat.

I know Philoctetes when I look on him, for he makes manifest his pain to all, even to those who gaze on him from a distance. He is all shaggy like a wild man; look at the locks of his head, squalid and harsh-coloured. His skin is parched and shrunk to look at, and perchance feels dry even to the finger's touch. Beneath his dry eyes the tears stand frozen, the sign of sleepless agony.

THE hands that dealt death to the Medes were hewn off by axes as they rested on the curved stern of the ship which was hastening away, then, Cynaegirus, when that flying vessel was held by thy hand as if by a cable. But even so, gripping tight the ship's timber, they accompanied the Persians, a lifeless terror to them. Some barbarian took the hands, but their victory remained with the inhabitants of Mopsopia.¹

Loose the fillet of thy hair; thy male children, alas! thou didst bear but to fall by the woe-working arrows of Phoebus. Thy boys are no more. But what is this other thing? What do I see? Alack! alack! the flood of blood has overtaken the maidens. One clasps her mother's knees, one rests on her lap, one on the ground, and the head of one has fallen on her breast. Another is smitten with terror at the shaft flying straight to her, and one stoops before the arrows, while the rest still live and see the light. And the mother, who erst took pleasure in her tongue's chatter, now for horror stands like a rock built of flesh.

WHEN the hand of Timomachus painted baleful Medea, pulled in diverse directions by jealousy and love of her children, he undertook vast labour in trying to draw her two characters, the one inclined to wrath, the other to pity. But he showed both to the full; look at the picture: in her threat dwell tears, and wrath dwells in her pity. The intention is enough,¹ as the sage said. The blood of the children befitted Medea, not the hand of Timomachus.

THE PLANUDEAN APPENDIX

150.—POLLIANUS

This is the Polyxena of Polycleitus, and no other hand touched this divine picture. It is a twin sister of his Hera.¹ See how, her robe being torn, she covers her nakedness with her modest hand. The unhappy maiden is supplicating for her life, and in her eyes lies all the Trojan war.

151.—ANONYMOUS

On a Painting of Dido

THOU seest, O stranger, the exact likeness of far-famed Dido, a portrait shining with divine beauty. Even so I was, but had not such a character as thou hearest, having gained glory rather for reputable things. For neither did I ever set eyes on Aeneas nor did I reach Libya at the time of the sack of Troy, but to escape a forced marriage with Iarbas I plunged the two-edged sword into my heart. Ye Muses, why did ye arm chaste Virgil against me to slander thus falsely my virtue?

152.—GAURADAS

DEAR Echo, grant me somewhat.—What? I love a girl, but do not think she loves.—She loves. But ¹ The writer very absurdly attributes to the sculptor Polycleitus a work of the painter Polygnotus. The "Hera" of Polycleitus was famous.

YOU will say, when you look on Cypris in rocky Cnidus, that she, though of stone, may set a stone on fire; but when you see the sweet Love in Thespiae you will say that he will not only set fire to a stone, but to cold adamant. 203.—JULIANUS, PREFECT OF EGYPT

On the Eros of Praxiteles

PRAXITELES, who stooped his proud neck for my sandals to tread on, wrought me with his captive hands. For, working me in bronze,² he gave me, that very Love that was hidden within him, to Phryne, an offering of friendship. But she again brought it to give to Love; for it is lawful for lovers to bring Love himself as a gift to Love.

204.—PRAXITELES

On the Same

PRAXITELES perfectly portrayed that Love he suffered, taking the model from his own heart, giving me to Phryne in payment for myself. But I give birth to passion no longer by shooting arrows, but by darting glances.

¹ Heliopolis, near the Lebanon, was a very gay city.

² This is an error. Both Praxiteles' statues of Love were of marble.

On Statues of Loves

Look how the Loves delight in their spoils; look how, in childish triumph, they wear the weapons of the gods on their sturdy shoulders: the tambourine and thyrsus of Bacchus, the thunderbolt of Zeus, the shield of Ares and his plumed helmet, the quiver of Phoebus well stocked with arrows, the trident of the sea-god, and the club from the strong hands of Heracles. What shall men's strength avail when Love has stormed heaven and Cypris has despoiled the immortals of their arms!

215.—PHILIPPUS

On the Same

Look how the Loves, having plundered Olympus, deck themselves in the arms of the immortals, exulting in their spoils. They bear the bow of Phoebus, the thunderbolt of Zeus, the shield and helmet of Ares, the club of Heracles, the three-pronged spear of the sea-god, the thyrsus of Bacchus, Hermes' winged sandals, and Artemis' torches. Mortals need not grieve that they must yield to the arrows of the Loves, if the gods have given them their arms wherewith to busk themselves.

220.—ANTIPATER OF SIDON

On Statues of the Muses

THREE are we, the Muses who stand here; one bears in her hands a flute, another a harp, and the third a lyre. She who is the work of Aristocles holds the lyre, Ageladas' Muse the harp, and Canachas'¹ the musical reeds. The first is she who rules tone, the second makes melody of colour, and the third invented skilled harmony.²

221.—THEAETETUS SCHOLASTICUS

*On the Nemesis of the Athenians*³

I AM a white stone which the Median sculptor quarried with his stone-cutter's tools from the mountain where the rocks grow again,⁴ and he bore me across the sea to make of me images, tokens of victory over the Athenians. But when Marathon resounded with the Persian rout, and the ships voyaged on bloody waves, Athens, the mother of beautiful works, carved of me Adrasteia, the goddess who is the foe of arrogant men. I counter-balance vain hopes, and I am still a Victory to the Athenians, a Nemesis to the Assyrians.

¹ Canachus is the usual form. Aristocles was his brother, and all three artists were of the sixth century B.C.

² They presided respectively over the diatonic, chromatic, and enharmonic tetrachords. For these see "tetrachord" in Century Dictionary.

³ The Nemesis of Rhamnus was said to have been carved by Phidias from a block of marble brought by the Persians to use for a trophy. ⁴ This was a prevalent belief.

I, NEMESIS, hold a cubit-rule. "Why?" you will say. I proclaim to all men, "Nothing beyond due measure."

225.—ARABIUS SCHOLASTICUS

On a Statue of Pan

WE might, perhaps, have clearly heard Pan piping, for the sculptor infused breath into the statue, but left resourceless when he saw fickle Echo flying, the god renounced the unavailing¹ voice of the pipe.

On the Same

O PAN, who walkest on the mountains, breathe music with thy sweet lips, delighted with thy shepherd's reed, pouring forth melody from the sweet-toned pipe, and bring its shrill notes into tune with the words it accompanies, and round thee to the beat of the rhythm let the inspired feet of these water-nymphs move in the dance.

227.—ANONYMOUS

On a Statue of Hermes

THROW thyself down here, wayfarer, on the green meadow, and rest thy languid limbs from painful toil; here where the pine also, tossed by the western breeze, shall soothe thee as thou listenest to the song of the cicadas, and the shepherd likewise on the hills, piping at mid-day by the fountain under the leafy plane-tree. Thus, having escaped the burning heat of the autumnal dog-star, thou shalt in good time cross the hill. Take this counsel that Hermes gives thee.

228.—ANYTE

STRANGER, rest thy weary legs under the elm; hark how sweetly the breeze murmurs in the green leaves; and drink a cold draught from the fountain; for this is indeed a resting-place dear to travellers in the burning heat.

TRAVELLER, drink not here in the solitude this warm water so full of mud from the torrent, but go a little farther over this hill whereon the heifers are grazing, and by the shepherds' pine there thou wilt find a fountain bubbling up through the generous rock, colder than the snow from the north.

On the Statue of Pan erected by Miltiades

MILTIADES erected me, goat-footed Pan, the Arcadian, the foe of the Medes, the friend of the Athenians.

¹ This mention of a nimbus, such as was afterwards given by painters to Christ and His saints, is curious.

² Though στάχυες seems to be universally used as equivalent to "ears of corn," it cannot here surely mean that. It means, evidently, any tall herbage, such as wild oats.

THE walker in the woods, the lover of the trees, the spouse of Echo who dwells on the hills, I, Pan, the scout, the keeper of the horned flock of sheep, Pan with the shaggy legs, the fruitful god, I who, leaving my home, ran to meet the warlike Assyrians¹ in battle, stand here set up by Miltiades, as his fellow-soldier and pursuer of the Persians, in return for my unsummoned succour. Let others stand on citadels, but Marathon, which slew the Medes, is the common portion of myself and the men who fought at Marathon.

234.—PHILODEMUS

THE stone has place for three immortals; for the head clearly shows me to be goat-horned Pan, the breast and belly tell I am Heracles, the rest of the thighs and the legs are the portion of wing-footed Hermes. I BEHAVE like Priapus to everyone, even be he Cronos, so little distinction do I make between thieves here beside this kitchen-garden. Someone will tell me it is not meet for me to say this for the sake of greens and pumpkins. It is not meet, but I say it.

On the Same

EUTYCHIDES set me, Priapus, here in vain, for the sake of convention, to guard his dried-up vines; and there is a high cliff all round me. Whoever attacks me has nothing to steal but myself, the guardian.

¹ This and other epigrams (we have a large Latin collection of them) refer to statues of the garden god Priapus, who was represented with an erect membrum virile to avert the evil eye. The joke that he threatens thieves with it is always the same. There is no use glossing over it in rendering.

On a Picture of a Female Lyrist in Constantinople

THE painting does not justly show thy beauty, and would it had had the power to portray the sweet tones of thy melodious mouth, so that our eyes and ears might have been equally entranced by thy face and thy lyre-playing.

278.—BY THE SAME

On the Picture of Maria the Singer and Lyrist

SHE has the plectrum of the lyre, she has also the plectrum of love, and she beats with one the heart, with the other the lyre. Pitiabie are they to whom her mind does not unbend, but he whom she favours is a second Anchises, a second Adonis.¹ And if, O stranger, it is thy wish to hear her celebrated name and her country, she is Maria of Alexandria.

On the Lyre-playing Stone at Megara

As thou passest by Nisaea remember me, the musical stone; for when Alcahous was building his towered wall, then Phoebus lifted on his shoulder the building stone, laying down his Delphian lyre in me.² Hence I am a lyrist; strike me with a small pebble and get evidence of what I boast.

¹ Both beloved by Venus.

² This implies that the stone was in some way hollow. According to Pausanias (I. xlii.), Apollo, when helping Alcahous to build the wall, laid down his lyre on the stone. See, too, Ovid, Met. viii. 14.

On a Bath at Praenetus in Bithynia

On another Picture of a Dancing Girl in the Sosthenion

I AM Helladia of Byzantium, and here I stand where the people in spring celebrate the dance, here where the land is divided by the strait; for both continents praised my dancing.

285.—BY THE SAME

On the Gilded Picture of a Female Lyrist

No one put gold on Anthusa, but the son of Cronos poured himself on her, as once on Danae. But he did not come near her body, for his mind was seized with shame, lest against his will he should consort with one of the Muses.

286.—BY THE SAME

On the Dancer Helladia

THE feminine nature excels in dancing: give way, ye young men! The Muse and Helladia laid down this law, the one because she first invented the rhythm of movement, the other because she reached perfection in the art.

287.—BY THE SAME

On the Same

SOMEONE sung the lay of Hector, a new tune, and Helladia, donning a chlamys, accompanied the melody. In the dancing of this goddess of war there was both desire and terror, for with virile strength she mingled feminine grace.

On a Picture of the Dancer Libania

MAIDEN, thou hast thy name from frankincense, thy body is the Graces', thy spirit is Peitho's, the cestus of Aphrodite flows from thy waist, but in the dance thou dost frolic like light Eros, attracting all by thy beauty and art.

On the Dancer Xenophon of Smyrna

WE thought we were looking on Bacchus himself when the old man¹ lustily led the Maenads in their furious dance, and played Cadmus tripping it in the fall of his years, and the messenger coming from the forest where he had spied on the rout of the Bacchantes, and frenzied Agave exulting in the blood of her son. Heavens! how divine was the man's acting!

On the Dancer Pylades

PYLADES put on the divinity of the frenzied god himself, when from Thebes he led the Bacchantes to the Italian stage, a delight and a terror to men, so full by his dancing did he fill all the city with the untempered fury of the demon. Thebes knows but of Euripides. Xenophon had played the four different parts mentioned.

On a Statue of Anacreon

Look at old Anacreon, loaded profusely with wine, in a distorted attitude on the rounded basis. See how the greybeard, with a swimming leer in his amorous eyes, trails the robe that descends to his ankles. As one stricken by wine he has lost one of his two shoes, but in the other his wrinkled foot is fast. He is singing either of lovely Bathyllus or of Megisteus, holding uplifted in his hand his love-lorn lyre. But, father Dionysus, guard him; it is not meet that the servant of Bacchus fall by the hand of Bacchus.

FROM BOOK I

EPIGRAMS ON THE STATUES OF ATHLETES IN THE
HIPPODROME AT CONSTANTINOPLE¹

335.—On Porphyrius

THE Emperor and the faction erected the statue of Porphyrius, son of Calchas, loaded with many crowns won by skilled toil, the youngest of all the drivers as well as the best, and winner of as many victories as any. This man's statue should have been of gold, not of bronze like the others.

336.—On the Same

Four times before did the people shout distinctly, desiring Porphyrius, the son of Calchas;² but he, taking up the reins and his driving belt at the right of the Emperor's seat,³ drives, starting from there, urging on his team, and in the middle of his racing

¹ A certain number of these found their way into the Palatine MS. (Book XV.).

² This apparently means that the people had clamoured for him during previous races in which he took no part.

³ Here stood the porch of the Blues, for which faction Porphyrius drove.

career his bronze statue was erected with the first down on his cheeks. If this honour came to him quicker than years, yet it came late after victories won by much labour, after many crowns.

337.—On the Same

CYTHEREA was in love with Anchises and Selene with Endymion, and now it seems that Victory is in love with Porphyrius, who, ever changing his own team for that of another driver of his faction,¹ was often crowned in the races that lasted all day without labour on his part, his companion only following him.

338.—On the Same

VICTORY gave to thee, Porphyrius, while still young, this honour which time has given to others late in life and grudgingly; for, having counted the performances that won thee many crowns, she found them superior to those of old drivers. Why! did not the rival faction, in admiration of thy glory, applaud thee loudly? Blessed is the most free people of the Blues, to whom our great Emperor granted thee as a gift.²

339.—On the Same

THE valiant to the valiant; the wise to the wise; the sons of victory, the Blues, to the son of victory, Porphyrius, erected this statue; for he glories in the two victories he gained by the interchanged teams, the team he gave and the team he received.³

² It appears from this that the Emperor sometimes apportioned the drivers between the factions.

THE PLANUDEAN APPENDIX

340.—On the Same

To others when they have retired, but to Porphyrius alone while still racing, did the Emperor give this honour. For often he drove his own horses to victory and then took in hand the team of his adversary, and was again crowned. Hence arose a keen rivalry on the part of the Greens, hence a shout of applause for him, O King, who will give joy both to Blues and to Greens.

341.—On the Same

THE votes of all erected near to Victory the statue of me, Porphyrius, while still driving. For my own faction demanded the honour, and the opposite one desired to have me again, renouncing their hostility. I got the best of the other drivers by my cleverness, giving them in exchange for their own better horses, and then showing them to be my inferiors.

342.—On the Same

THE sculptor exactly portrayed in bronze Porphyrius himself, fashioning him as if alive. But who shall mould his grace, his races, the inspired tricks of his craft, and victory that never varied?

343.—On the Same

IN a brazen image the Lord of the Latins set up the victorious driver, strong himself as brass, as being skilled and dear to the Blues; but we shall see many statues yet of Porphyrius erected because of his victories.

THE PLANUDEAN APPENDIX

349.—On the Same

OUR Sovereign Lord, who grants this favour to the Greens, gave to Porphyrius after the races an honour worthy of his performances. For often the people, their attention turned to exploits more than usually brilliant, praised Calliopas¹ and again Porphyrius, the two names that belonged to this brazen hero, who won the meed of valour in the chariot-races.

350.—On the Same

NOT only did divine Victory crown thee on the race-course, but in war, too, she showed thee to be victorious, then when the Emperor, with the Greens to assist him, warred with the furiously raging enemy of the throne; when the savage tyrant² fell, as Rome was on the point of perishing, and the light of Latin liberty came back. Therefore the Monarch gave to the Greens the privileges they formerly had, and the artist wrought and polished thy image, Porphyrius.

351.—On the Same

THE crowns from the hostile faction too, Porphyrius, are unimpeachable witnesses of thy exploits. For ever in the race thou conquerest one after the other all the rival charioteers, a mere toy for thy skilled hands. Therefore hast thou alone gained an unwonted mark of honour, a bronze statue in the grounds of each faction.

She swore it with truthful lips, for to Porphyrius first and alone she gave all her gifts.

IF envy could be at rest and chose¹ to judge the contests, all men testify to the achievements of Porphyrius. TIME is the cause of the honours of others, and those who are judged worthy of them, owing to their victories, do not lack grey hairs, but lack that virtue on which glory depends. WHEN a youth thou didst conquer thy elders, and now, in thy later years, thou conquerest the young drivers of racing four-horse chariots. Having accomplished thy six decades of years, thou hast won, Calliopus, a statue for thy victories, by command of the Emperor, so that thy renown may abide for future ages. Would that thy body were as immortal as thy renown.

VICTORY, the charioteer, dedicated to thee, Calliopas, this brazen image of thy divine form, because in thy old age thou didst conquer men in the prime of youth by thy force in subduing horses, and in thy youth didst conquer thy elders by skill. Hence the faction of the Blues, the children of liberty, erected two prizes for thee, one for thy art and the other for thy force.

THY old age has surpassed thy youth in victories, and thou didst ever overcome all, Calliopas. Therefore do the Emperor and this free faction again raise this honour for thee, a monument of thy skill and valour.

361.—On the Same

O CALLIOPAS, thou who raisest applause in the theatre, this is thy portrait which a swarm of much-envied crowns raises to thee. For neither did any charioteer cozen thee, nor did any hard-mouthed horse's jaws refuse to obey thy reins. Alone hast thou gained the reward of victory; verily the opinion of all is that by contending thou leavest prizes for others.¹

362.—On the Same

O CALLIOPAS, celebrated for thy achievements, what does it profit thee that thy labours are rewarded with a bronze statue by the Emperor, by this myriad-throated faction, by the whole city, considering that even the hands of the hostile faction applauded thy exploits?

THE PLANUDEAN APPENDIX

363.—On Faustinus

WITS are the mothers of a winner's honours, not the force of youth, nor swift driving, nor favourable occasion. May thy mind, Faustinus, be propitious, which takes precedence of all these things, and whose companion is immortal Victory.

364.—On the Same

FORMERLY in thy youth, Faustinus, the minds of the old men feared thee, and now the strength of the young men trembles before thine in thy advanced years. The first place was ever gained for thee by thy toil, which brings honour to thee, an old man among the youths, a youth among the old men.

365.—On Constantinus

SINCE Constantinus entered the house of Hades the race-course is full of despondency, and pleasure has abandoned the spectators, nor even in the streets does one see the old friendly strife.¹

366.—On the Same

THE citizens, mourning thee, erected thy image, Constantinus, to be a delight to thy departed spirit. When the people confirmed thy fame on thy death, the Emperor, too, was mindful of thy exertions after thy decease, because the abusive² art of driving has perished, ceasing finally with thee as it began with thee.

THE PLANUDEAN APPENDIX

367.—On the Same

WHILE Constantinus yet lived, the city deemed a bronze statue a small reward for him, for the whole people knew how many crowns in his long racing career he had set on his head because of glorious Victory. But when he died, in regret for him, it erected this his dear form, so that posterity, too, should be kept mindful of his achievements.

368.—On the Same

THE Blues and Greens, always at variance, shouted aloud one concordant decision, that thou, Constantinus, shouldst have on thy tomb this ornament, acclaimed by all, pleasing to all.

369.—On the Same

IMMORTAL Constantinus, thy course, high in the light, has traversed the boundaries of east, west, south, and north. Let none say thou art dead, for even Hades cannot lay his hand on the invincible.

370.—On the Same

THUS, his statue, has been placed near those of his own family, for it was proper that they should stand in one place, the three who won equal glory for their skill in the race, gaining equal swarms of innumerable crowns.

371.—On the Same

HERE the city erected Constantinus, son of Faustinus, next his own family, the best of all charioteers. For through all the long time he raced he never failed, but ended by a victory, as he had formerly begun by a victory. When he was a young man the older drivers who had won crowns on the course appointed him president of the races.

372.—On the Same

THIS is a gift for thee, Constantinus, from thy nurse, Victory, who hath followed thee from thy childhood all through thy life. For in the five times ten years thou didst pass on the race-course thou didst never light on thy equal, or even on one a little inferior to thee; but while yet a lad and beardless thou didst conquer men, when grown up thou didst conquer those of thine age, and in thine old age the young men.

373.—On the Same

THE city wished Constantinus to wield the reins for ever; she wished it, but Nature refused to grant her desire. Therefore she bethought her of erecting this statue to console her for her lost love, that time and oblivion should not envelop him, but that he might remain, the desire of his lovers, the envy of charioteers, an ornament to the course, and a tale for future generations to tell; and that one in time to come, looking on inferior drivers, should bless the former age that looked on him.

374.—On the Same

CONSTANTINUS having won five-and-twenty races on one morning, changed his team with his rival's, and taking the same horses that he had formerly beaten, won twenty-one times with them. Often there was a great strife between the two factions as to which was to have him, and they gave him two robes to choose from.¹

375.—On the Same

AWAKE, Constantinus! Why dost thou sleep the brazen sleep? The people long to see thy team on the course, and the charioteers, lacking thy instruction, sit just like orphaned children.

376.—On Uranius

URANIUS, who had distinguished himself in the service of both the factions, gained glory from both while still driving. His first reward came from the Greens, and stands near their stand. They also, when he had retired from racing, brought him back again to the chariots, mindful of his former victory.

377.—On the Same

THE Emperor, when Uranius had retired from the race-course after gaining splendid victories, made him mount again his victorious chariot, doing a favour to all the factions; for the city has no desire for the races without Uranius. Therefore, admiring him for his first victories and his last, the city erected his statue during the second period of his career.

THE PLANUDEAN APPENDIX

378.—On the Same

URANIUS has Nicea and New Rome¹ near him, being a native of one and having gained glory in the other. He wins from both sides, because he was very clever at dashing forward and getting past on both sides of the course. Therefore did they portray him in golden metal, the precious charioteer in the most precious of possessions.

379.—THOMAS

On Anastasius

BENEATH this earth lies Anastasius the bold driver, mindful no more of the chariot-race, he who of old set on his head as many crowns as were the racing days that other charioteers saw.

380.—*On Porphyrius, of the faction of the Blues*²

PORPHYRIUS, the wonder of the Blues, having conquered every charioteer on earth, does well to rise and race towards heaven. For he, victorious over every driver here below, mounts to join the sun on its course.

381.—On the Same

Thus Porphyrius, son of Calchas, with the first down on his cheeks, held the reins for the faction of the Blues. I marvel how some artist's hand has painted his horses as if alive. Really, if he whips them again, I think he will be carried again to victory.

² This and the following iambic epigrams were, as a scholiast tells us, not on statues of the charioteers, but on pictures on the roof of the Emperor's throne-room (πρόκυψις), which I take to mean here not a room in the palace but the Emperor's box on the race-course.

THE PLANUDEAN APPENDIX

382.—On Faustinus, of the faction of the Greens

Look on the work of the architect of this house. For if it had not been covered by a strong roof Faustinus, the ancient glory of the Greens, would have mounted racing to heaven, so like the life are he and his team. Take the roof off and he will reach the sky.

383.—On the Same

Thus is Faustinus, the former charioteer, after engaging whom the faction of the Greens never knew what defeat was in the race. He was old, as you see, but in his strength he was as a young man, and was never once vanquished.

384.—On Constantinus, the Charioteer of the Whites

CONSTANTINUS, wielding the reins of the White faction, were he not restrained by the solidity of the house, would conquer those three, getting to heaven first. You would see him mount the heavens without breath. The artist persuades me that I see him alive.

385.—On the Same

CONSTANTINUS was his name, but in the old days he skilfully drove the four-horse chariot of the Whites. Since Charon carried him off, it is set, the light of horse-racing and all the delight and art of the theatre.

THE PLANUDEAN APPENDIX

386.—On Julianus, the Charioteer of the Reds

THE hand of man knows how to give birth to men long ago dead, for Julianus is as strong here as of old, guiding this way and that the reins of the Red faction. Now he stands painted here on high, himself and his chariot; his hand awaits the signal. Give him a winning-post.¹

387.—On the Same

Thus Julianus, with his car of the Red faction, conquered his adversaries in the race. But if the painter had endued him with breath he is ready again to drive his chariot and come in first, and even take the crown.

FROM BOOK VII

388.—JULIANUS, PREFECT OF EGYPT

ONCE, weaving a garland, I found Love among the roses, and catching him by the wings dipped him in wine. I took and drank him, and now within me he tickles with his wings.
