

PRESSURE IN MY EARS WOKE ME UP WHEN WE WERE COMING IN FOR A LANDING.

I WOKE UP IN PAIN, DISORIENTED.

I HELDMY NOSTRILS SHUT WITH MY FINGERS, BLEW HARD UNTIL MY EARS POPPEDOUT AND THE PAIN STARTED TO GO AWAY.

SOMEHOW, WHEN I WOKE, I WAS EXPECTING TO SEE MY MOM IN THE SEAT BY THE WINDOW.

I WAS GOING TO TELL HER THE DREAM I JUST HAD. IT WAS ABOUT THE OLD DAYS IN FLORIDA WITH HAL AND CHANTAL AND GILBERT AND EVERYONE.

INSTEAD OF MOM, THERE'S A GUY BY THE WINDOW AS BIG AS GILBERT WAS

GILBERT SMELLED LIKE CINNAMON AND LICORICE A LITTLE LIKE THANKSGIVING, OR CHRISTMAS. THIS GUY SMELLS SOUR AND UNWASHED. HOW DO YOU READ THE SAME PORN MAG FOR TWELVE HOURS?

> HE DOESN'T EVEN LOOK OUT OF THE WINDOW AS WE COME DOWN.

HE'S SITTING READING THE SAME LITTLE PORN MAG HE PULLED OUT OF HIS BAG WHEN WE TOOK OFF.

CREEP.

GATWICK AIRPORT HASN'T CHANGED FROM HOW I REMEMBER. THIS TIME I GET GRABBED BY A CUSTOMS GUY. HE'S GOING THROUGH MY VALISE WHEN I SMELL THE SAME SOUR SMELL AGAIN.

THE CREEP'S TRUNDLING HIS TROLLEY PAST ME. I REALIZE HE'S SEEN MY MAYBE-I'LL-GET-LUCKY LACY PANTIES. AND I FEEL SUDDENLY KIND OF EXPOSEDAND STUPID.

THE SANDMAN 62. August, 1994. Published monthly by DC Comics, 1325 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10019, POSTMASTER: Send address chall Subscriptions, PO. Box 0528, Baldwin, NY 11510. Annual subscription rate $23.40. Canadian subscribers must add $8.00 for postage and GST. GST # is R125921072 add $12.00 for postage, funds only. Subscriptions to this title are offered only to readers who attest they are 18 years of age or ofder, or with written parential appear. Copyright o 1994 DC Comics. All Rights Reserved. VERTIGG and all characters featured in this issue, the distinctive likenesses thereof, and all related indicts as stories, characters and incidents mentioned in this magazine are entirely fictional. For advertising space contact: Tom Ballou, (212) 636-5520. Printed on recyclable pape Printed in Canada.

Canada. s. A division of Warner Bros.-A Time Warner Entertainment Company

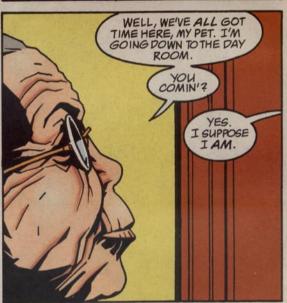

IT WAS MORE THAN KISS HER HE

ell, the way me mam told it, there was a man who loved the ladies. He was always carrying on with one pretty face after another. Loved 'em, and forgot 'em as he went from town to town.

So one day he spied a gal washing herself in the river, mothernaked and all in her birthday suit. So he hides her clothes. And when she comes out of the river, she sees him.

The says he'll give her back her clothes if she'll be his lady-love, but she won't be his lady unless he swears he'll make her his wife—and in the first church they come to, at that.

I swear if I set foot in a church, it'll be to marry you, he said (and the devil he'd step into a church ever again, he swore under his breath).

f I don't marry you, he said, may that worms shall eat me (for they'll do that anyway, he thought, when my time's over and up), and if I don't marry you, I wish our children might growwings and fly away (and no great matter if they do, he thought).

So they kissed then and there, and did other things besides, and when they were all done, he gave her her clothes back, and she followed him down the road.

They passed the first church. Let's get married here, she says. Oh, he says, we can't get married here, for the vicar's a sick man, and besides, he's off a hunting.

She said nothing but she looked at him as if her heart would break. When they came to the next church, her belly was already beginning to swell.

Let's be married here, she says.

I'm not going into that church, he says, for the vicar's a drunkard, and no better than he should be, and the sexton's no partic'lar friend of mine, neither.

But you SWORE, she said.

I'm not going in the church, he tells her, and he knocks her down.

Derface is bleeding when she gets up.

50 Chac's how it is, she says. That's how it is, he tells her.

ell, she says, my belly's big with child. And I want to stop for a while.

I can't keep on the road. Isn't there a place where I can rest?

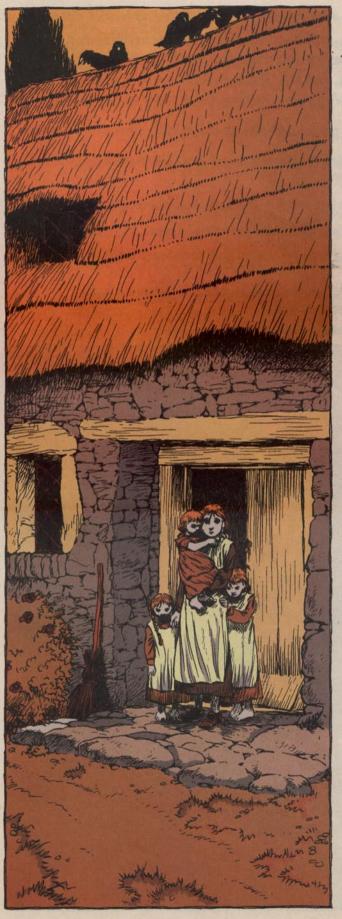

So he has her stop there and sit, at the side of the road, and he goes on ahead.

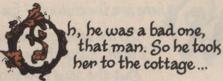

be gets to a cottage, and he goes into the cottage, for the door's just on the lateh, not locked, and in the cottage he sees an old woman fast asleep on the bed.

Now, sometimes the way me man would tell it, the woman was a witch, and sometimes when she told it, she wasn't. But whichever, she was old and weak, and he held her mouth shut, and held his fingers over her nose until she couldn't breathe no more, and he took her out the back, and buried her in the midden heap.

He went back to his wife, and he says It's a good thing we passed by here, as my old aunt has just died and left us her cottage.

The was a man. They're all bad.

Not my Danny, he wasn't, God rest him.

So he took her to the cottage ...?

es, dear, and there he left her. He'd come back every few weeks to make sure she was still there, and to see his children, for she had three lovely girls over the next few years. But he was only home for a day here or there, and then he'd be off tomcatting over the whole countryside again.

It was a deserted part of the country, but there were vegetables in the garden, and now and then he'd bring her back a hen or a pig, so she never starved, and neither did the children.

Only, one day he comes home, and the children are nowhere to be seen. And the little girls are the apples of his eye...

Gathering berries, she says. here are the children? He asks his wife.

In the spring? He says. (There aren't any berries in the spring, dear. I don't know if they have spring where you come from.)

But she says nothing, and the children don't come home.

So when night comes, he says to her Where's the children? Off fishing, she tells him. The baby too? he asks her. But she pretended she couldn't hear him.

In the morning he woke her up: Where are the children? WHERE ARE MY GIRLS? They've flown away, she told him.

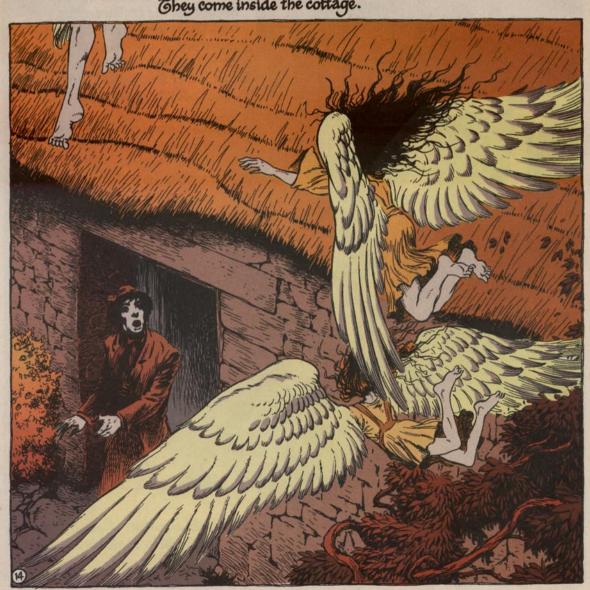

Flown away? He shakes her to make her tell him the truth, but she won't change her tale.

So he fetches the axe in from outside, and he chops her up into bits.

There's a noise from outside, so he pushes the lumps and limbs and lights of her under their bed.

and it's his daughters, the oldest, the middle, and the little wee baby, coming down from the sky, each on wings.

They come inside the cottage.

here's our mam? they asked him.

She's out, picking berries, he tells them.

and what's all this blood on your hands and on the floor?

Iwas killing a pig, he says.

But the youngest girl she looks under the bed, and she sees her mother's dead face, staring out at them.

And they let out a wail deep and long and sad. Then they fell on him, all three of them, teeth and claw, and they killed him. They left his body there on the floor.

and they flew off into the sky, and nobody saw them again.

And as soon as he was sure that he was dead, he got up and shook himself, and looked around, and there waiting for him on the bed was his wife, with long claws out, and her eyes blazing like a green cat ready to spring.

And naturally the man got up and ran away, but he could feel her cold breath on the back of his neck.

d he called out to the thunder, Strike me dead, but the thunder wouldn't, for he was dead already.

and he ran to the fire, and begged the fire to burn him up.

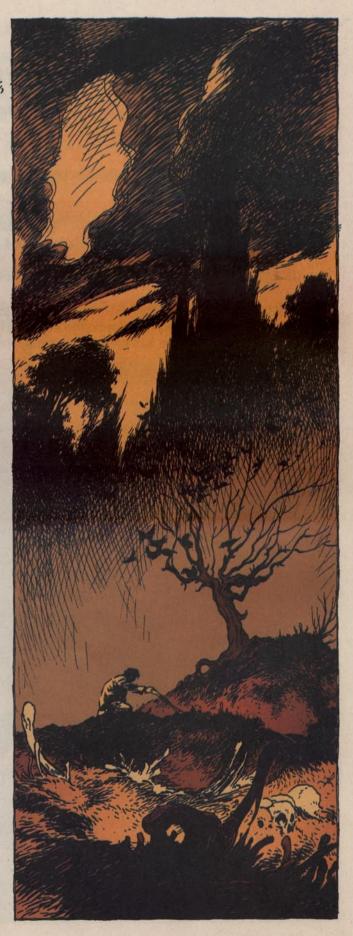

But the fire couldn't burn him, for the chill of death put it out...

And he threw himself in the water, and he screamed, Drown me blue, but the water wouldn't, for the death-color was coming into his face already, and the water tossed him out.

And last of all, he throws himself onto the ground, onto the midden-heap, and prays for the worms to come and eat him, so he could rest in his grave, and be quit of the woman.

be puts out one hand and he finds himself touching the skeleton hand of the old woman he'd killed for the cottage.

and he lies on the mud, his hand holding tight to that skeleton hand, waiting for his wife...

À

nd by and by along crept a great worm, and a strange thing it was, with his wife's face on the end of its long slimy body, and it crept up beside him and over him and all around him, and it druv all the other worms away. Her teeth were sharp and long.

and she wrapped her slimy worm body around his, and she whispered his name into his ear.

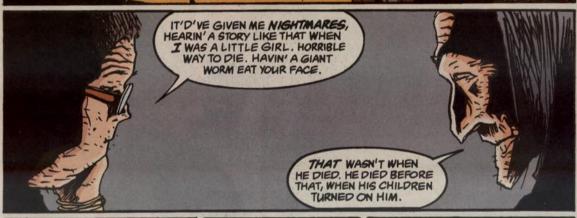

And he screams, Kill me, for god's sake, just get it over with. But she licks her lips with a long worm tongue, and she shakes her head.

A meal this good must never be hurried, she says. Just hold still, boy, and let me enjoy myself.

and she takes her first, gentle bite from his cheek with her sharp sharp teeth...

And that's the stopy, as my mother used to tell it.

HE WAS LEANIN'OUT

ACTS OF REVENGE ARE SANCTIFIED.

I HAVE ALSO DONE IT. I SPENT TWO DECADES LOOKING FOR THE MAN WHO HAD KILLED A PERSON I LOVED. I HOUNDED HIM FOR YEAR AFTER YEAR AFTER YEAR, ACROSS THE WORLD...

I FOUND HIM, AT THE LAST, IN BRIGHTON, IN ENGLAND IN THE WINTER: A GRAY, SAD TOWN. IT IS A COLD PLACE, ENGLAND.

> REALLY? WHAT DID YOU DO WHEN YOU FOUND HIM?

EVENTUALLY, I KILLED HIM. FIRST, THOUGH,

YOU'RE KIDDING RIGHT?

JOKING WITH YOU? OF COURSE: IF I HAD REALLY KILLED A MAN, WOULD I TELL ANYONE ?

WELL, YEAH, EXACTLY WHAT I THOUGHT.

YOU ARE SO WISE, GIRL.

AFTER MY TASK WAS OVER THE LIFE WENT OUT OF ME, AND I CAME HERE

> KNOW MY GRAND-MOTHER 2 DID YOU EVER TALK TO > > HER?

REMEMBER HER. SHE WAS ASLEEP.

A WOMAN SHOULDN'T HAVE TO SLEEP HER LIFE AWAY, WOMEN AREN'T ABOUT DREAMING, WE'RE ABOUT THE REAL WORLD.

EVEN YOUR GRANDMA WOKE BEFORE SHE DIED.

> WOMEN ARE ABOUT WAKING, ROSE

AS MOTHERS WE WAKE THEM FROM NOTHINGNESS TO EXISTENCE.

AS MAIDENS WE WAKE THEM TO THE JOYS AND MISERIES OF ADULTHOOD, WAKE THEM TO THE WORLDS OF LUST AND RESPONSIBILITY.

AND WHEN THEIR TIME'S UP, IT'S ALWAYS US HAS TO WASH THEM FOR THE LAST TIME, AND WE LAY THEM OUT FOR THE WAKE.

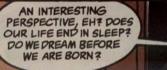

ИН ...

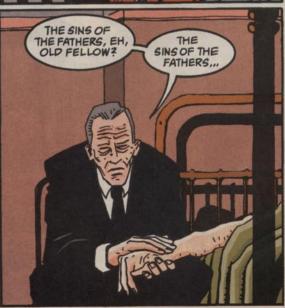

TO BE CONTINUED.