17 absurd conclusion to reach that is completely inconsistent with law, but that is what you have to believe if you believe their
18 specious and deceptive arguments. In effect, what they are trying to do is dishonestly remove the territorial jurisdiction and 19 requirement for a situs to impose the tax so that everything one receives becomes "gross income" which is taxable. This 20 simply isn't true, however, because 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C)(i) specifically says that monies earned by a "nonresident
21 alien" not derived from a "trade or business in the [federal] United States" is not classified as "gross income" and therefore 22 is not taxable. That is the position that this book, as a matter of fact, tries to get you to take.

24 Sec. 861. - Income from sources within the [federal] United States

25 (a) Gross income from sources within United States

26 (3) Personal services

27 Compensation for labor or personal services performed in the United States; except that compensation for 28 labor or services performed in the United States shall not be deemed to be income
29 from sources within the United States if-

30 (A) the labor or services are performed by a nonresident alien individual temporarily present in the United 31 States for a period or periods not exceeding a total of 90 days during the taxable year,

32 (B) such compensation does not exceed $3,000 in the aggregate, and

33 (C) the compensation is for labor or services performed as an employee of or under a contract with -

34 (i) a nonresident alien, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within 35 the United States, or

36 When you read double-speak of liars and deceivers like the above cite from the Supreme Court, you therefore need to be
37 very clear what type of "source" they are talking about. Taxable "sources" of income for legal "persons" are found in 26
38 U.S.C. §61, and taxable "sources" of revenue for the government with a situs requirement are found in 26 U.S.C. §861 and 39 862. What the Supreme Court is talking about in the Glenshaw case are taxable sources of income for persons and the 40 ruling simply expands I.R.C. section 61, but does NOT invalidate or render ineffective any part of the situs to tax
41 established in 26 U.S.C. Sections 861 through 865 and the supporting regulations. We talk about this devious deceit and 42 show you the error in the governments deception later in section 5.7.5.11.7. We strongly encourage you to read that section
43 if you are going to use the 861 position, because we can virtually guarantee that the deceitful feds or your state government
44 will try to bring up this case when you try to use 861 in an effort to confuse and dissuade you from using the 861 position,
45 which stands up quite well against this U.S. Supreme Court case.

1 With that out of the way, we'll spend the remainder of this section talking about government "sources" and situs of income,
 2 so let's review: the "income tax" is imposed on "taxable income," which means "gross income" minus deductions. "Gross
 3 income" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §61 as "all income from whatever source derived." The phrase "from whatever source
 4 derived" may initially appear all-encompassing, but for the specifics about "income from sources," the reader of the law is
 5 repeatedly referred to Section 861 and following (of the statutes) and the related regulations. For example, in the full
 6 version of Title 26 (with all notes and amendments) which appears on Congress' own website, Section 61 itself has the 7 following cross-reference:

8 "Income from sources -
 9 Within the United States, see section 861 of this title.
 10 Without the United States, see section 862 of this title."

11 So the section which generally defines "gross income" specifically refers to 26 U.S.C. §861 regarding income from 12 "sources" within the United States (the federal zone). A similar reference is also found in the indexes of the United 13 States Code, which (although they vary somewhat in the exact wording) have entries such as:

14 "Income tax
 15 Sources of income
 16 Determination, 26 § 861 et seq.
 17 Within the U.S., 26 § 861"

18 Again, income from "sources" within the United States (the federal zone) is specifically dealt with by Section 861, and 19 "determination" of sources of income is also dealt with by Section 861 and the following sections. In addition, Sections 79,
 20 105, 410, 414 and 505 each identify Section 861 as the section which determines what constitutes "income from sources
 21 within the United States," and Section 306 even uses the phrase "part I of subchapter N (sec. 861 and following, relating to 22 determination of sources of income)."

23 As shown, 26 U.S.C. §861 and following (which make up Part I of Subchapter N of the Code) are very relevant to 24 determining what is considered a "source of income," and Section 861 in particular deals with income from "sources"
 25 within the United States (the federal zone). Not surprisingly, Section 861 is entitled "Income from sources within the 26 United States," and the first two subsections of Section 861 are entitled "Gross income from sources within the United 27 States" and "Taxable income from sources within the United States." Section 861 is also the first section of Subchapter N
 28 of the Code, which is entitled "Tax based on income from sources within or without the United States." Clearly this is 29 relevant to a tax on "income from whatever source derived."

30 As mentioned before, the statutes passed by Congress are interpreted and implemented by regulations published in the 31 Code of Federal Regulations ("CFR") by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Index of the CFR, under "Income taxes," has 32 an entry that reads "Income from sources inside or outside U.S., determination of sources of income, 26 CFR §1 (1.861-1--

34 This is the only entry in the Index relating to income from sources within the United States (the federal 35 zone), and the regulations listed (26 CFR §1.861-1 and following) correspond to Section 861 of the statutes. (The "26"
 36 refers to Title 26, the "I" after "CFR" refers to Part 1 of the regulations ("Income Taxes"), and the ".861" refers to Section 37 861 of the statutes.) These regulations fall under the heading "Determination of sources of income." The following is how these regulations begin:

 39 (a) Categories of income. Part I (section 861 and following), subchapter N, chapter 1 of the Code, and the 40 regulations thereunder determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax." [26 CFR §1.861-1]

41 The meaning of this is unmistakable. The "income tax" is imposed on "income from whatever source derived," and 42 Section 861 and following, and the related regulations, determine what is considered a "source" of income "for purposes of 43 the income tax." The first sentence of the regulations under 26 U.S.C. §861 has stated this since 1954, when Section 861
 44 first came into existence. Note that these define "the" sources of income subject to the tax, meaning there are no others.
 45 Therefore, the meaning of "income from whatever source derived" (the definition of "gross income" in Section 61) is 46 limited by Section 861 (and following sections) and the related regulations. The meaning of the phrase "whatever source"
 47 depends completely on the meaning of the word "source." The word "whatever" does not expand the meaning of "source"
 48 any more than the phrase "all firearms" (in the example above) expands the legal meaning of the word "firearm."

1 The above section of regulations also refutes the common but incorrect position that the “items” of income listed in Section
2 61 are “sources,” since Section 61 is obviously not the section which determines the “sources” of income for purposes of 3 the income tax.

4 (There is a chart at the end of this report showing the outline of Part I of Subchapter N and related regulations, and showing 5 many of the citations used in this report.)

6 While the significance of Section 861 and the related regulations may be obvious, the point needs to be thoroughly proven,
7 since most tax professionals concede that Section 861 and its regulations are not about the income of United States citizens
8 living and working exclusively within the 50 Union states of the United States. (Below it will be shown why it is so 9 significant that “section 861 and following... and the regulations thereunder, determine the sources of income for purposes
10 of the income tax.”). The IRS’s own publications clarify the issue of “source” for us. In IRS Publication 54 (for the year 11 2000, on page 4), we read the following:

12 Source of Earned Income

13 The source of your earned income is the place where you perform the services for which you received the 14 income. Foreign earned income is income you receive for performing personal services in a foreign country.
15 Where or how you are paid has no effect on the source of the income. For example, income you receive for 16 work done in France is income from a foreign source even if the income is paid directly to your bank ac-count
17 in the United States and your employer is located in New York City.

18 If you receive a specific amount for work done in the United States, you must report that amount as U.S. source
19 income. If you cannot determine how much is for work done in the United States, or for work done partly in the 20 United States and partly in a foreign country, determine the amount of U.S. source income using the method
21 that most correctly shows the proper source of your income.

22 In most cases you can make this determination on a time basis. U.S. source income is the amount that results 23 from multiplying your total pay (including allowances, re-imbursments other than for foreign moves, and 24 noncash fringe benefits) by a fraction. The numerator (top number) is the number of days you worked within 25 the United States. The denominator is the total number of days of work for which you were paid.

26 IMPORTANT NOTE: The term “United States” in the Internal Revenue Code by default actually means the “federal 27 zone” and not the 50 Union states of the United States. That is because of the definition of the terms “United States” and 28 “State” found in 26 U.S.C. section 7701(a)(9) and 7701(a)(10) respectively. There are two exceptions to this rule found in 29 I.R.C. sections 3121 and 4612, which have to do with taxes other than personal income taxes. This finding is also
30 consistent with Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution, which both forbid
31 direct taxes on natural persons without using apportionment.

32 This is also suggested by the title of Part I of Subchapter N (of which 861 is the first section), “Source rules and other
33 general rules relating to foreign income.” Under the usual overly-broad (and incorrect) interpretation of the legal scope of 34 the term “gross income,” this would appear as a contradiction, since “Income from sources within the United States” (the 35 title of Section 861) would at first glance seem to be the opposite of “foreign income.” The specific taxable sources shown
36 *later demonstrate that income from within the United States (the federal zone) can be taxable only if received by certain* 37 individuals outside of the United States (the federal zone), thus making the income foreign income. For the purposes of 38 the income tax, as we discussed in section 5.3, income earned from within the 50 Union states is counted as “foreign

40 While the title of a part of the statutes may indicate what that part is about, it should be mentioned that 26 U.S.C. §7806(b) 41 states that such titles do not change the actual meaning of the law (“nor shall any... descriptive matter relating to the 42 contents of this title be given any legal effect”). The above explanation for the title of Part I, Subchapter N is therefore not 43 crucial, but does give a possible explanation of why the title is as it is.

44 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Does Part I (Section 861 and following) of Subchapter N, and related regulations, 45 determine what is considered a “source” of income for purposes of the federal income tax?

46 5.7.6.5 Determining Taxable Income from U.S. Sources

1 In addition to the fact that Section 861 and following, and related regulations, determine what is considered a “source” of
 2 income subject to the income tax, the regulations also repeatedly state that these are also the specific sections to be used to 3 determine “gross income” and “taxable income” from sources within and/or without the United States (the federal zone).

4 “Rules are prescribed for determination of gross income and taxable income derived from sources within and
 5 without the United States, and for the allocation of income derived partly from sources within the United States
 6 and partly without the United States or within United States possessions. §§ 1.861-1 through 1.864. (Secs.
 7 861-864; ‘54 Code.)” [Treasury Decision 6258]

8 The sections which are specifically for determining taxable income from sources within the United States (the federal
 9 zone) are 26 U.S.C. §861(b) of the statutes, and the corresponding regulations found at 26 CFR §1.861-8. (The regulations
 10 under Section 63, the section defining “taxable income,” do not explain how to determine taxable income.) While the 11 relevance of these sections may quickly become obvious, the repeated documentation is important since most tax
 12 professionals are already aware that these sections are not about the income of most Americans.

13 Section 861(b) (as mentioned above) is entitled “Taxable income from sources within the United States.” This section
 14 states that taxable income from sources within the United States (the federal zone) is the gross income described in 15 861(a) minus allowable deductions. The regulations under Section 861 state (in the first paragraph):

 17 (1) Within the United States. The gross income from sources within the United States... See Secs. 1.861-2 to 18 1.861-7, inclusive, and Sec. 1.863-1. The taxable income from sources within the United States... shall be 19 determined by deducting therefrom, in accordance with sections 861(b) and 863(a), [allowable deductions]. See 20 Secs. 1.861-8 and 1.863-1.”
 21 [26 CFR §1.861-1(a)(1)]

22 (The other two categories of income are income from “without” (outside of) the United States (the federal zone), dealt 23 with by Section 862 and related regulations, and income from sources partly within and partly without the U.S., dealt with 24 by Section 863 and related regulations.)

25 As the above citation states, items of “gross income” from sources within the U.S. are dealt with by 861(a) of the statutes
 26 and 1.861-2 through 1.861-7 of the regulations. Taxable income is determined by 861(b) of the statutes, and the 27 corresponding regulations in 1.861-8. These regulations are predictably entitled “Computation of taxable income from 28 sources within the United States and from other sources and activities,” and reiterate the point:

29 “Sections 861(b) and 863(a) state in general terms how to determine taxable income of a taxpayer from 30 sources within the United States after gross income from sources within the United States has been 31 determined.”
 32 [26 CFR §1.861-8]

33 In the regulations under Section 863 (concerning income from sources inside and outside the U.S.), the following is stated:

34 “Determination of taxable income. The taxpayer's taxable income from sources within or without the United 35 States will be determined under the rules of Secs. 1.861-8 through 1.861-14T for determining taxable income
 36 from sources within the United States.”
 37 [26 CFR §1.863-1(c)]

38 (The vast majority of tax professionals do not use these sections to determine taxable income from sources within the 39 United States of America. At this point, the average American reading this report may guess that there must be some 40 “context,” or some other section, or something somewhere which would justify the tax professionals blatantly disregarding
 41 and disobeying the clear language used in the citations shown above. There is not.)

42 Note how sections 1.861-8 and following of the regulations are identified as the sections “for determining taxable income
 43 from sources within the United States,” as well as being the sections to be used whether the income is from sources within 44 or without the United States (the federal zone). A similar structure occurs in the regulations under Section 862 (dealing 45 with income from outside of the United States):

46 “(b) Taxable income. The taxable income from sources without the United States... shall be determined on the 47 same basis as that used in Sec. 1.861-8 for determining the taxable income from sources within the United

1 [26 CFR §1.862-1]

2 Section 1.863-6 of the regulations (dealing with income from within a foreign country or federal possession) also identifies
3 sections 1.861-1 through 1.863-5 as applying “[t]he principles... for determining the gross and the taxable income from
4 sources within and without the United States.” Over and over again it is shown that 26 U.S.C. §861(b) of the statutes and 5 26 CFR §1.861-8 of the regulations are to be used to determine the taxable income from sources within the United States
6 (the federal zone).

7 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Are 26 U.S.C. §861(b) and 26 CFR §1.861-8 the sections to be used to determine taxable
8 income from government sources of tax revenue within the United States?

9 After all the preceding discussion on taxable sources of income for the government, let us summarize with a picture/table,
10 exactly what we mean. The table on the following page was constructed directly from the Internal Revenue Code and the 11 underlying Treasury regulations to clearly show what is and is not subject to federal tax. In order for income received by an 12 American to be taxable, it must fit into at least one category in each of the three vertical columns appearing in the table. If 13 it does not, then the income cannot be lawfully taxed.

Accordingly, in this case, the statutory grouping is foreign source income (including, for example, interest received from a domestic corporation which meets the tests of section 861(a)(1)(B), dividends received from a domestic corporation which has an election in effect under section 936, and other types of income specified in section 862). NOTES:

1. This table is used for determining the portion of a "person's" income that is subject to tax. Each "item" of gross income received by a "person" (which is a corporation or partnership involved in foreign commerce) must fall into a category found in each of the three columns, 1 through 3.
2. We will now give you some simplified examples of how to apply this table:
 - 2.1. Let's say you are an U.S. citizen who has profit from an investment within the U.S. (also called the federal zone, which is federal property only).
 - 2.1.1. Your income does not meet the description of "income" subject to tax under the U.S. Supreme Court in Column 1, and is therefore not taxable on this basis alone.
 - 2.1.2. Your income meets the definition of gross income under 26 CFR § 1.61(a) above.
 - 2.1.3. Your income cannot be allocated to a taxable source within the United States as identified in Column 3 and within 26 CFR §1.861-8(f). Therefore, it is not subject to federal tax and the recipient cannot be liable for federal tax on the amount based on this exclusion alone.
 - 2.2. You are a nonresident alien not involved in a "trade or business in the U.S." (holding political office) in receipt of wage income as a federal employee.
 - 2.2.1. Your income does not meet the definition of "income" found in Column 1 per the Supreme Court because it is not profit from a corporation involved in foreign commerce.
 - 2.2.2. Your income meets the definition of "gross income" found in Column 2 and 26 CFR § 1.61(a) above.
 - 2.2.3. Your income also cannot be allocated to a taxable source of income "within the United States" under Column 3 and 26 CFR §1.861-8(f). Because the income cannot be allocated to something found in all three columns, then it is not taxable and the recipient cannot be liable for tax.

- 1 2.3. You are a U.S. Congressman who is a nonresident alien and who is in receipt of wages connected with political office.
- 2 2.3.1. Your income does not meet the definition of "income" found in Column 1 as defined by the Supreme Court, and is not taxable on that basis alone.
- 3 2.3.2. Your income meets the definition of "gross income" found in Column 2 and 26 CFR § 1.61(a).
- 4 2.3.3. Your income does fall in a taxable source from within the U.S.* as found in Column 3 above and 26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) (entitled Effectively
- 5 Connected Income).

1 5.7.6.6 Specific Taxable Sources

2 Source rules for purposes of gross income that is the subject of taxation are identified in 26 U.S.C. Sections 861 through
3 863. Section 861 covers sources “within” the “United States”, meaning income derived or effectively connected with a
4 trade or business within the only the District of Columbia. Section 862 covers sources “without” the “United States”,
5 which is to say income received from within or between the 50 Union states of the United States of America. We will now
6 cover the requirements relating to these sources independently.

7 5.7.6.6.1 Sources “within” the United States: Income originating inside The District of Columbia

8 Section 861 of the statutes uses general language that at first seems to apply to all income coming from within the United 9 States of America, by saying

10 “The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources within the United States.”

11 However, as we emphasized in section 4.8 (entitled “The Federal Zone”) we need to keep reminding ourselves of the 12 definition of the term “United States” as we read this section and all the implementing regulations. Once again, the “United 13 States”, as defined in Section 7701 of the IRC, actually consists of only the “District of Columbia” and does not include the 14 50 Union states! The main reason for going through the mental exercise in this section of identifying specific sources in the 15 implementing regulations is to confirm this limited jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code and that Congress stays
16 within its Constitutional constraints in Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 through 3 and 1:9:4. As we will see, the statutes and 17 the regulations are indeed completely consistent with these Constitutional constraints and the definition of the term “United 18 States” as only the “federal zone” and not the 50 Union states.

19 Following the introductory statement indicated above, section 861 then lists similar “items” of income to those listed in 20 Section 61 (while specifying that they are coming from within the United States). As with Section 61, it is easy to 21 misconstrue this list of “items” as being a list of “sources,” which it is not. The regulations related to Section 861
22 contradict this possible misinterpretation. (And, as will be shown later, the older regulations and statutes make the correct 23 application of the law crystal clear.)

24 The regulations in Section 1.861-8 begins by saying that Section 861(b) of the statutes describes “in general terms” how to 25 determine taxable income from sources within the United States (the federal zone). These same regulations later specify
26 that Section 861 is about items of income derived from “specific sources.”

27 “(ii) Relationship of sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b). Sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b) are the four
29 [26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(3)(ii)]

30 In the first paragraph of Section 1.861-8 of the regulations (the section “for determining taxable income from sources
31 within the United States”), it is again made clear that the section applies only to the listed “items” of income when derived 32 from “specific sources.”

33 “The rules contained in this section apply in determining taxable income of the taxpayer from specific sources 34 and activities...”
35 [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)]

36 Again, a few paragraphs later, in defining the term “statutory grouping,” these regulations again state that taxable income
37 must come from a “specific source.”

40 [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)(4)]

41 In 26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1) it is again made clear that Section 1.861-8 (the section “for determining taxable income from 42 sources within the United States”) is applicable only to income derived from “specific sources.”

1 “...the determination of taxable income of the taxpayer from specific sources or activities and which gives rise
3 [26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1)]

4 From these it is clear that the term “source” as used in Sections 61 and 861 does not simply mean any activity from which 5 income is derived. If it did, there would be no need for Section 861 and following, and related regulations, to “determine
6 the sources of income for purposes of the income tax.” The following citations show that Section 1.861-8(f)(1) lists the 7 “specific sources” of income subject to the income tax.

8 Again, the first paragraph of 26 CFR §1.861-8 states the following (the meaning of “operative section” will be explained

11 and activities under other sections of the Code, referred to in this section as operative sections. See paragraph
13 [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)(1)]

14 The definition of “statutory grouping” (mentioned above) also refers to “paragraph (f)(1)” as the list of “specific sources.”

17 section. (See paragraph (f)(1) of this section.)” [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)(4)]

18 The regulations twice identify “paragraph (f)(1) of this section” (26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1)) as the list of specific sources.
19 Paragraph (f)(1) itself confirms this again, and then lists the “specific sources” subject to the income tax:

20 “The operative sections of the Code which require the determination of taxable income of the taxpayer from 21 specific sources or activities and which gives rise to statutory groupings to which this section is applicable
22 include the sections described below.
23 (i) Overall limitation to the foreign tax credit...
24 (ii) [Reserved]
25 (iii) DISC and FSC taxable income... [international and foreign sales corporations]
26 (iv) Effectively connected taxable income. Nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations engaged 27 in trade or business within the United States...
28 (v) Foreign base company income...
29 (vi) Other operative sections. The rules provided in this section also apply in determining--
30 (A) The amount of foreign source items...
31 (B) The amount of foreign mineral income...
32 (C) [Reserved]
33 (D) The amount of foreign oil and gas extraction income...
34 (E) (deals with Puerto Rico tax credits)
35 (F) (deals with Puerto Rico tax credits)
36 (G) (deals with Virgin Islands tax credits)
37 (H) The income derived from Guam by an individual...
38 (I) (deals with China Trade Act corporations)
39 (J) (deals with foreign corporations)
40 (K) (deals with insurance income of foreign corporations)
41 (L) (deals with countries subject to international boycott)
42 (M) (deals with the Merchant Marine Act of 1936)” [26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1)]

43 None of these “sources” apply to natural persons (people rather than artificial “person”) who live and work exclusively 44 within the 50 Union states of the United States of America. (Federal “possessions,” such as Guam, Puerto Rico, etc., are 45 considered “foreign” under the law.) This is the only list of “sources” in Part I of Subchapter N, or the regulations
46 thereunder, which (as the regulations say) “determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax.” We can see
47 quite clearly that all of these taxable sources are part of the “federal zone”, which includes the District of Columbia and all 48 federal possessions, or pertain to foreign commerce as allowed under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the constitution.

49 The next subsection (1.861-8(g)) gives examples about how 26 CFR §1.861-8 works, and states that “[i]n each example,
50 unless otherwise specified, the operative section which is applied and gives rise to the statutory grouping of gross income is 51 the overall limitation to the foreign tax credit under section 904(a),” again showing that there must be some “operative 52 section” in order for the section to apply, and in order for there to be taxable income.

1 So, to review, the sections which “determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax” (namely, 861 and
2 following and related regulations) apply only to income from the “specific sources” listed in 26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1). Most 3 people do not receive income from these “sources of income for purposes of the income tax,” and most people do not,
4 therefore, receive “income from whatever source derived” (the general definition of “gross income”) subject to the income 5 tax.

6 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Under 26 U.S.C. §861 and 26 CFR §1.861-8, is income taxable only if derived from 7 “specific sources” related to international and foreign commerce (including federal possessions)?

8 5.7.6.6.2 Sources “without” the United States: Income originating inside the 50 Union states, territories and 9 possessions, and foreign nations

10 This section deals with income from sources “without” the [federal] United States (the federal zone). Because the term
11 “United States” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701 to include only the District of Columbia, then income from “without” the 12 “United States” includes all income earned in the 50 Union states and in any foreign nation. The states of the Union are 13 also considered “foreign countries” and “foreign nations” for the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code, which is 14 considered municipal (private or special) law that applies only to the federal zone:

15 “The state governments, in their separate powers and independent sovereignties, in their reserved powers, are 16 just as much beyond the jurisdiction and control of the National Government as the National Government in its 17 sovereignty is beyond the control and jurisdiction of the state government.”

18 “...a State has the same undeniable and unlimited jurisdiction over all persons and things within its 19 territorial limits, as any foreign nation...” [Mayer, etc. of the City of New York v. Miln., 36 U.S. 102, 11 Pet.
20 102, 9 L.Ed. 648 (1837)]

22 “The States between each other are sovereign and independent. They are distinct and separate sovereignties,
23 except so far as they have parted with some of the attributes of sovereignty by the Constitution. They continue
24 to be nations, with all their rights, and under all their national obligations, and with all the rights of nations in 25 every particular; except in the surrender by each to the common purposes and objects of the Union, under the 26 Constitution. The rights of each State, when not so yielded up, remain absolute.” [Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 38
27 U.S. (13 Pet.) 519, 10 L.Ed. 274 (1839)]

28 By implication, any income derived from “without” the “United States” is “foreign income” connected with a “foreign 29 business” and a “foreign corporation” (see 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(5)). The only exception to this is if you work for a
30 corporation that is registered in the District of Columbia and recognized by the U.S. Government, in which case you work
31 for a “domestic corporation” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(4). Keep in mind also that corporations within a state can be 32 “U.S. citizens” at law, which is how the extortionists in Congress and the IRS get their jurisdiction to tax them.

33 IRS publication 54 refers to areas where you receive “foreign income” as a “foreign country”. Interestingly, if you occupy
34 one of the 50 Union states of the United States, you do indeed occupy a “foreign country” per the IRS’ own “word of art”
35 definitions found in publication 54. We explain and justify this in both section 5.2.12 entitled “The definition of ‘foreign 36 income’ relative to the Internal Revenue Code” and in section 5.3.2 entitled “What’s Your Proper Federal Income Tax
37 Filing Status?”. This all sounds rather confusing, we’ll admit, but then again, that’s the way the IRS and our Congress likes
38 to keep things so they have plenty of wiggle room to manipulate and abuse ignorant Americans into paying an unlawfully 39 enforced income tax.

40 Section 862 of the I.R.C. describes income from sources “without” the United States as follows:

41 Sec. 862. Income from sources without the United States

42 (a) Gross income from sources without United States

43 The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources without the United States:

44 (1) interest other than that derived from sources within the United States as provided in section

(2) dividends other than those derived from sources within the United States as provided in section 861(a)(2);

(3) compensation for labor or personal services performed without the United States;

(4) rentals or royalties from property located without the United States or from any interest in such property, including rentals or royalties for the use of or for the privilege of using without the United States patents, copyrights, secret processes and formulas, good will, trade-marks, trade brands, franchises, and other like properties;

(5) gains, profits, and income from the sale or exchange of real property located without the United States;

(6) gains, profits, and income derived from the purchase of inventory property (within the meaning of section 865(i)(1)) within the United States and its sale or exchange without the United States;

(7) underwriting income other than that derived from sources within the United States as provided in section 861(a)(7); and

(8) gains, profits, and income from the disposition of a United States real property interest (as defined in section 897(c)) when the real property is located in the Virgin Islands.

(b) Taxable income from sources without United States

From the items of gross income specified in subsection (a) there shall be deducted the expenses, losses, and other deductions properly apportioned or allocated thereto, and a ratable part of any expenses, losses, or other deductions which cannot definitely be allocated to some item or class of gross income. The remainder, if any, shall be treated in full as taxable income from sources without the United States. In the case of an individual who does not itemize deductions, an amount equal to the standard deduction shall be considered a deduction which cannot definitely be allocated to some item or class of gross income.

On the surface, it would appear that everything without the U.S. (the federal zone) fits into the category of “gross income”. But examining the regulations further, we find a completely different story! In 26 CFR §1.864-2(b)(i), we can see that income from personal services derived from “without” the United States and received by a nonresident alien individual is not subject to tax. Keep in mind that the definition of “foreign” in the below case is anything outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, which includes only the federal zone:

Sec. 1.864-2 Trade or business within the United States.

(b) Performance of personal services for foreign employer--(1) Excepted services. For purposes of paragraph (a) of this section, the term “engaged in trade or business within the United States” does not include the performance of personal services--

(i) For a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States at any time during the taxable year, or

(ii) For an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States by an individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States or by a domestic partnership or a domestic corporation, by a nonresident alien individual who is temporarily present in the United States for a period or periods not exceeding a total of 90 days during the taxable year and whose compensation for such services does not exceed in the aggregate gross amount of $3,000.

You will note that most of us fit in the above category, because we do not inhabit the U.S./federal zone and are nonresident alien, natural born Sovereign Citizens and “nationals” of the U.S./U.S. (U.S. the country and the 50 Union states, but not the federal zone). We will explain why shortly. Even more enlightening is that the graduated income tax that most of us have needlessly paid all these years applies ONLY to income effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States:

“(2) DETERMINATION OF TAXABLE INCOME.—In determining taxable income, gross income includes ONLY gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a TRADE OR BUSINESS within the United States.”

1 26 U.S.C §7701(a)(26) makes it clear that public officers are engaged in a “trade or business”. Residents and Citizens of 2 the 50 Union states (which is most of us) are American Citizens who are NOT performing any of the functions of a public
 3 office and, therefore, we are not engaged in, and have earned no income effectively connected to a “trade or business”
 4 within the United States (federal zone) or the U.S. Government.

5 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) Definitions. Trade or Business. The term “trade or business” includes [only] the 6 performance of the functions of a public office.”

7 Following is a definition of “public office”:

8 Public Office, pursuant to Black’s Law Dictionary, Abridged Sixth Edition, means:

9 “Essential characteristics of a ‘public office’ are:

10 (11) Authority conferred by law,

11 (12) Fixed tenure of office, and

13 (14) Key element of such test is that “officer is carrying out a sovereign function’.

14 (15) Essential elements to establish public position as ‘public office’ are:

15 (a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by 16 legislature.

17 (b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,

18 (c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through

20 (d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than 21 law, and

22 (e) Position must have some permanency.”

23 For the purposes of the income tax, “Trade or Business” 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26), is a “term” or “word of art” defined by 24 Congress. Pursuant to Congressional rules of statutory construction a “term” may have a limited definition which is 25 different than the common understanding or the dictionary definition of the same word(s). Such term must be clearly and 26 specifically defined by Congress within the Code utilizing it.

27 Term: “An expression or word especially one that has a particular meaning in a particular profession.”
 28 i.e.- term of art. –Ballentine’s Law Dictionary.

29 “Words of Art”—These are “words that have a particular meaning in a particular area of study and have 30 either no meaning or a different meaning outside of that field”.-Barron’s Dictionary.

31 In statutes levying taxes, the word “includes” is a word of limitation. It limits the definition of the term to include only the 32 specific elements or words following the word “includes”. However, granting a Congressional intent to make “includes”, a 33 word of enlargement, pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(c), it could only be enlarged to introduce other words, which are 34 synonymous to, or in the precise same category or genus of, the other words used in the meaning.

35 The term ‘trade or business’ includes the performance of the functions of a ‘public office’, cannot, therefore, be expanded
 36 by implication, to also include the functions of private, independent, non-governmental occupations of common right, or 37 occupations of common right within the government:

38 “(1) To comprise, comprehend, or embrace...(2) To enclose within; contain; confine...But granting that the 39 word ‘including’ is a term of enlargement, it is clear that it only performs that office by introducing the specific
 40 elements constituting the enlargement. It thus, and thus only, enlarges the otherwise more limited, preceding
 41 general language...The word ‘including’ is obviously used in the sense of its synonyms, comprising;
 42 comprehending; embracing.”

44 “Includes is a word of limitation. Where a general term in Statute is followed by the word, ‘including’ the 45 primary import of the specific words following the quoted words is to indicate restriction rather than

47 [Definitions-Words and Phrases pages 156-156, Words and Phrases under ‘limitations’]

48 “In the interpretation of statutes levying taxes, it is the established rule not to extend their provisions by
 49 implication beyond the clear import of the language used, or to enlarge their operations so as to embrace
 50 matters not specifically pointed out. In case of doubt they are construed most strongly against the government
 51 and in favor of the citizen.”

52 [Gould v. Gould, 245 U.S. 151, at 153]

1 Because residents and Citizens of the 50 Union states are not engaged in a “trade or business” within the United States,
 2 pursuant to 26 CFR §1.871-1(b)(1)(i), for the purposes of the income tax, they are in a class of “non-resident alien
 3 individuals”, defined as follows:

5 “...(b) Classes of non-resident aliens-

6 In general. For purposes of the income tax, nonresident alien individuals are divided into the following classes:

7 Nonresident alien individuals who at no time during the taxable year engaged in a trade or business in the 8 United States...”

9 Therefore, pursuant to 26 CFR §1.871-7, state Citizens and “nationals” and residents of the 50 Union states, are not 10 subject to the graduated income tax imposed by 26 U.S.C. Section 1.

12 Taxation of nonresident alien individuals not engaged in trade or U.S. business.—

13 Imposition of tax. (1) “...a nonresident alien individual...is NOT subject to the tax imposed by Section 1”
 14 [Subtitle A, Chapter 1]

15 5.7.6.7 Operative Sections

16 The earlier sections of Title 26 (26 U.S.C. §61 and following) deal with types of income that may be taxable (such as 17 compensation for services). However, these sections do not specify where the transaction is taking place, or who is 18 receiving the income. Obviously not everyone on earth who receives “compensation for services” is taxable under U.S.
 19 law. A separate part of the law, found in Subchapter N, deals with what types of commerce generate taxable income.

20 Subchapter N is entitled “Tax based on income from sources within or without the United States.” As the title suggests,
 21 this subchapter explains when income from within or without the United States (the federal zone) is subject to the 22 income tax. But on examining Subchapter N, it is readily apparent that it relates only to international and foreign 23 commerce, but not to citizens who receive all of their income from within the 50 Union states. This can be seen by the 24 titles of the five “Parts” of Subchapter N, which are “Source rules and other general rules relating to foreign income” (Part 25 I), “Nonresident aliens and foreign corporations” (Part II), “Income from sources without [outside of] the United States”
 26 (Part III), “Domestic international sales corporations” (Part IV), and “International boycott determinations” (Part V).

27 The statutes of Part I of Subchapter N (beginning with 26 U.S.C. §861) give general rules about “within” and “without,”
 28 but the regulations thereunder make it quite clear that these rules apply only to the taxable activities described throughout 29 the other “Parts” of Subchapter N.

30 “(ii) Relationship of sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b). Sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b) are the four
 32 [26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(3)(ii)]

33 This term “specific sources” is used in three other places in the regulations, every one of which specifically refers to taxable 34 activities described in the “operative sections” of the statutes throughout Subchapter N (which are listed in 1.861-8(f)(1) of 35 the regulations). In other words, while the regulations list the taxable activities all in one place (26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1), the 36 statutes describe those taxable activities in numerous sections throughout all of Subchapter N. The “specific sources” listed 37 in the regulations each refer specifically to sections of the statutes (called “operative sections”) describing those activities.
 38 For example, item “(iv)” on the list in 1.861-8(f)(1) specifically refers to sections 871(b)(1) and 882(a)(1) of the statutes,
 39 which state the following:

40 “A nonresident alien individual engaged in trade or business within the United States... shall be taxable as 41 provided in section 1...”
 42 [26 U.S.C. §871(b)(1)]

1 "A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States... shall be taxable as provided in
 2 section 11..."
 3 [26 U.S.C. §882(a)(1) (Section 11 imposes the income tax on corporations, while Section 1 imposes it on 4 individuals)]

5 Here the statutes state that these specific activities (or "sources") may produce taxable income. If an "item" of income
 6 (such as compensation for services) derives from the activity described in this "operative section," that income is subject to 7 the income tax. The "shall be taxable" phrase would be entirely unnecessary if "from whatever source derived" had the 8 broad meaning that the usual (and incorrect) interpretation of the law gives it.

9 There is no such "shall be taxable" phrase, nor any "operative section" describing an activity in which a United States
 10 Citizen living and working exclusively within the 50 Union states receives income from within the 50 Union states. The 11 regulations under Section 861 make it clear that the "items" of income must derive from a taxable source or activity
 12 described in an "operative section" of the statutes in order to be taxable. Other income does not legally constitute "income 13 from whatever source derived."

14 The following analogy may help to clarify the matter of "items" of income and "sources" of income. Suppose that there
 15 was a law imposing a tax on "Zonkos," and that the law defined "Zonkos" as "all toys from whatever store derived,
 16 including the following toys: plastic cars, dolls, yoyos," etc. Then the law stated that another section "determines the 17 stores for purposes of the Zonko tax," and that section listed "Bob's Toys," "Toy City," and "ToyWorld" as "toy stores."

18 In this example, there would be two distinct aspects of the term "Zonko": whether an item is a taxable "toy," and whether it
 19 comes from a taxable "store." Both criteria would have to be met for it to legally constitute a "Zonko." For example, a
 20 baby bottle bought at ToyWorld would not be a "Zonko" (even though it came from a "store"), if baby bottles are not
 21 within the legal definition of "toys." Also, a doll bought from "Chuck's Bargain Basement" also would not be a "Zonko"
 22 (even though it is a "toy"), as it did not come from something within the legal meaning of "store." A yoyo from Toyworld
 23 would be a "Zonko" as it is both a "toy" and comes from a "store."

24 Similarly, if an "item" of income (such as dividends) does not come from a taxable "source" or activity (such as a foreign 25 corporation doing business within the United States), it does not constitute "gross income." While the law goes to great 26 length to specify which "items" of income may be included in "gross income," the other condition must still be met in order
 27 for those items to be taxable: they must derive from a taxable "source" or activity under an "operative section" of 28 Subchapter N (as explained in Section 1.861-8(f)(1) of the regulations). (Note that the definition of "gross income" 29 includes both criteria: "all income from whatever source derived.")

30 5.7.6.8 Summary of the 861 position

31 The current statutes and regulations show the correct, limited application of the "income tax" imposed by 26 U.S.C. §1, 32 which is in conflict with what the public generally believes regarding the matter.

33 TO SUMMARIZE:

- 34 1. A direct tax is one levied directly upon citizens. The federal income tax under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue
 35 Code is in actuality an indirect excise tax upon federal corporate privileges as ruled by the Supreme Court, but the 36 IRS attempts to illegally enforce it as though it were an direct tax on live people. Direct taxes were best explained 37 in the Supreme Court case of Knowlton v. Moore (178 U.S. 41) in 1900, which stated that:

38 "Direct taxes bear immediately upon persons, upon the possession and enjoyment of rights; indirect taxes are 39 levied upon the happening of an event as an exchange."

- 40 2. Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution states that "Representatives and direct taxes shall be 41 apportioned among the several States..."
- 42 3. Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 of the U.S. Constitution states that "No Capitation or other direct tax shall be laid 43 unless in proportion to the Census or Enumeration herein before directed to be taken."
- 44 4. There can be no unapportioned direct tax, or it would violate the above constitutional limitations. This means that 45 direct taxes must be requested NOT from citizens, but requested from the individual states by the Federal 46 Government. Therefore, a Citizen CANNOT be made liable for the payment of federal income taxes.

- 1 5. The 16th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which allegedly authorized the imposition of federal taxes on 2 “income”, did not change the Constitution in such a way as to eliminate the constitutional distinction between 3 direct and indirect taxes. The Supreme Court in the case of Stanton v. Baltic Mining, as a matter of fact, said the 4 following:

5 “... [the 16th Amendment] conferred no new power of taxation... [and]... prohibited the ... power of income
 6 taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category of indirect [e.g. excise 7 taxes] taxation to which it inherently belonged...”.

8 [United States Supreme Court in Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)]

9 The 16th Amendment therefore did not authorize the imposition of direct, unapportioned Federal Income Taxes
 10 upon citizens of the United States of America, in spite of the lies that you hear from Congressmen and the IRS just 11 about every day on this subject. Instead, it authorized the taxation of income as an indirect excise tax, which is to 12 say that it is a business tax levied on federal corporate or business income, and not directly on individuals.

- 13 6. As we thoroughly covered earlier in section 5.6.5, the Supreme Court has ruled in the case of Eisner v. Macomber, 14 252 U.S. 189, 207, 40 S.Ct. 189, 9 A.L.R. 1570 (1920) that Congress cannot by legislation define the word
 15 “income”. They also ruled that for the purposes of the income tax, “income” means corporate profit from foreign 16 commerce of either federal or state corporations:

17 “We must reject in this case, as we have rejected in cases arising under the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 18 1909 (Doyle, Collector, v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 38 Sup. Ct. 467, 62 L. Ed.--), the broad 19 contention submitted on behalf of the government that all receipts—everything that comes in—are income 20 within the proper definition of the term ‘gross income,’ and that the entire proceeds of a conversion of 21 capital assets, in whatever form and under whatever circumstances accomplished, should be treated as gross
 22 income. Certainly the term “income” has no broader meaning in the 1913 act than in that of 1909 (see 23 Stratton’s Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 416, 417 S., 34 Sup. Ct. 136), and for the present purpose 24 we assume there is not difference in its meaning as used in the two acts.”

25 [Southern Pacific Co., v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335, 38 S.Ct. 540 (1918)]

 27 “...Whatever difficulty there may be about a precise scientific definition of ‘income,’ it imports, as used here,
 28 something entirely distinct from principal or capital either as a subject of taxation or as a measure of the tax;

29 conveying rather the idea of gain or increase arising from 30 corporate activities.”

31 [Doyle v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185, 38 S.Ct. 467 (1918)] [emphasis added]

 33 “Income has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (36 Stat.
 34 112) in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed.”

35 [Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., 271 U.S. 170, 174 (1926)]

- 36 7. From a legal standpoint, and as interpreted by the federal courts, income to be treated as taxable MUST meet all of 37 the following three criteria
- 38 a. Must be “income”, which means it must be “corporate profit”.
 - 39 b. Must be a “class of gross income” found in 26 U.S.C. §61 and 26 CFR §1.861-8(a)(3).
 - 40 c. Must be an “item of income” (identified in 26 U.S.C. §861) that is taxable (e.g. profit, sales tax, etc),
 41 AND
 - 42 d. Must derive from a taxable source or activity identified in 26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1). Income that meets
 43 ALL FOUR of these criteria is called “gross income”. There are many taxable types or items of income
 44 but very few taxable sources as far as the federal government is concerned. All of these sources are 45 identified only in 26 CFR §1.861-8, and all other types are excluded by implication. A favorite IRS trick 46 is to talk about every type of conceivable income as taxable and say nothing about taxable source.
- 47 8. Federal income taxes under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code are indirect excise taxes, and the 48 Congressional Research Service report 97-59A entitled “Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the Federal 49 Income Tax”. Indirect excise taxes are on corporations involved in foreign commerce only and apply only to 50 specific taxable activities or sources. It is ludicrous to attempt to lay an indirect excise tax and then not specify
 51 which activities or sources are taxable anywhere in the statutes, and to do so is a blatant attempt to unlawfully
 52 extend federal jurisdiction to tax beyond the clear intent of the Constitution. The IRS and Congress have 53 attempted over the years since the 16th Amendment was introduced to abuse their power to broaden the definition of "income" and eliminate the use of taxable activities and sources from the Internal Revenue Code so as to try to apply indirect excise taxes in Subtitle A to individuals and thereby transform the indirect excise taxes under Subtitle A into direct taxes. The Constitution, however, does not authorize them to do this and the Supreme Court on repeated occasions has pointed this out.

9. There has been a concerted effort over the years by the federal government, and more importantly by the IRS and the Congress, to disguise or hide the simple facts contained in section 5.6.11 and subsections. We have traced the history of changes to the law that they made to show that there is an intent to confuse and deceive the average American into thinking that all of their income is "gross income", which simply is not true. Chapter 6 of this book also reveals the extent of collusion and conspiracy over the years between the various branches of government to enlarge and extend the perceived, but not actual, jurisdiction of the federal government to levy federal income taxes on private individuals domiciled in the 50 Union states outside of the federal zone. An examination of older versions of the Internal Revenue Code clearly shows to whom the tax applies and what types of sources are taxed, while the laws available today have been deliberately obfuscated and confused to hide the truth. Manipulation of the media by the IRS and the relative legal ignorance of the average American have prevented the word from getting out about the fraud and obfuscation involved with the federal government's attempts to hide and obfuscate the truth and illegally broaden the federal income tax beyond its clear Constitutional limits.

The following sections of the U.S. Code conclusively demonstrate that they are all collectively consistent in their entirety with the above constitutional limitations on the federal government's ability to tax:

1. 26 U.S.C. §1 imposes the income tax on "taxable income."

2. 26 U.S.C. §61 defines "gross income" generally as income "from whatever source derived.". The Supreme Court has ruled in Wright v. U.S., 302 U.S. 583 (1938) that "from whatever source derived" does not mean that the source is irrelevant:

*"The Court has hitherto consistently held that a literal reading of a provision of the Constitution which defeats a purpose evident when the instrument is read as a whole, is not to be favored... [and one of the examples they give is...]'From whatever source derived,' as it is written in the Sixteenth Amendment, does not mean from whatever source derived. Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245, 40 S.Ct. 550, 11 A.L.R. 519. See, also, Robertson v. Baldwin, 165 U.S. 275, 281, 282 S., 17 S.Ct. 326; Gompers v. United States, 233 U.S. 604, 610, 34 S.Ct. 693, Ann.Cas.1915D, 1044; Bain Peanut Co. v. Pinson, 282 U.S. 499, 501, 51 S.Ct. 228, 229; United States v. Lefkowitz, 285 U.S. 452, 467, 52 S.Ct. 420, 424, 82 A.L.R. 775."*

3. 26 U.S.C. §§ 861 - 865, and related regulations, determine the taxable "sources of income."

4. 26 CFR §1.861-8(f), which is the implementing regulation for 26 U.S.C. §861, shows that the taxable "sources of income" apply only to those engaged in international or foreign commerce (including commerce within federal possessions) or who hold public office. More precisely, it shows that the only thing taxable is federal corporate profit, which in that section of the regulation is identified as Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISC) and Foreign Sales Corporations (FSC's).

The income tax is therefore a "voluntary" tax and amounts to a "stupidity tax" on those individuals who are residents of the 50 Union states and who have only domestic income but who have allowed themselves to be deceived by the IRS into thinking they are "liable" for tax on all income from all "sources".

5.7.6.9 Why Hasn't The 861 Issue Been Challenged in Court Already?

After reading the essence of the evidence up to this point, skeptics often ask us the question:

"Why Hasn't The 861 Issue Been Challenged in Court Already? After all, the issue seems pretty straightforward and easy to understand?"

1 What follows is our answer to that question. We have searched Supreme Court Cases going back to 1900 and Federal
 2 Appellate cases going back to 1930 using both the FindLaw index (<http://www.findlaw.com>) and the Versus Law index
 3 (<http://www.versuslaw.com>). We have found absolutely no references to the 26 U.S.C. §861 issue. The fact is that the 861
 4 loophole may already have been used and successfully litigated in the courts, but that there are no records of cases dealing
 5 with the issue in any of the Federal Reporters or online databases we could find. We are then left to ourselves to try to 6 explain and understand how this might have happened. Let us offer three possible and even probable explanations:

- 7 1. IRS Doesn't Argue The 861 Issue or Impose Taxes on People Who Use It. The law on this issue is so clear it doesn't 8 need to be litigated so it never gets into court and is settled by the IRS before it gets to court. They may be content in 9 this case to just keep the truth out of the courts so the whole system doesn't collapse when everyone finds out about 10 this undiscovered/unpublished loophole.
- 11 2. IRS Obfuscation. The IRS keeps coming up with lame excuses why section IRC section 861 doesn't apply, for 12 instance, by raising doubt about the meaning of "foreign". They also misinterpret the 16th Amendment phrase "from 13 whatever source derived", to mean that the source of income is irrelevant, which we clearly know is false.
- 14 3. Federal judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax. We have extensively documented the existence of a federal 15 judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax in chapter 6. This has lead the federal courts hearing cases dealing with 16 the 861 issue to ensure that the findings are "unpublished". Going unpublished means the judge seals the court record
 17 for that case and won't allow the court's findings to be put in the Federal Reporter or any online case database so that 18 others may read the findings and use them as precedents that must be respected later by the courts as part of "stare
 19 decisis." They will do this if the case would be an embarrassment to either the judge personally (because of a conflict
 20 of interest by the judge, for instance) or the government generally. As an example, if a federal district or appellate 21 court judge is ruling against the U.S. Supreme Court and violating precedent, and doesn't want to have to explain why
 22 or be questioned by the Supreme Court or his supervisors, then he will seal the case record and make the case
 23 unpublished. This conspiratorial tactic, for instance, was quite common among the several Fifth Amendment cases
 24 litigated by the famous tax freedom fighter Bill Conklin in the federal district courts (see section 6.9.7).

25 We think the most likely of the three explanations above is number 3. You will understand why after you read chapter 6
 26 completely, and especially section 6.6, which talks about the judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax. If the federal 27 courts are doing what we believe they are doing, then the cases dealing with 26 U.S.C. §861 aren't being published and are 28 being kept secret by the judges, who after all have a conflict of interest in wanting to perpetuate the flow of revenue that
 29 pays their salaries. However, in the process of sealing the court record for cases dealing with section 861, the courts are 30 demonstrating involvement in extortion, racketeering, and First Amendment and censorship and rights violation, for which 31 these judges should have been prosecuted for a "conspiracy against rights" under 18 U.S.C. §241.

32 Even for unpublished cases, there are still ways to overcome this conspiracy by the courts. If you know the case number 33 and the court for an unpublished case, you can go directly to the court where the case was heard and request the transcripts
 34 and the court's judgment. This will bypass the conspiracy and allow us to gather evidence that will implicate judges in the 35 conspiracy so that we can pursue a class action criminal lawsuit against them. All we need are at least 40 citizens who have 36 been injured by the IRS to put together a class action lawsuit. This leads to the following request we'd like to impose on 37 everyone reading this book:

38 If you litigate the 26 U.S.C. Section 861 issue, we request that you send us your case number and the court and date
 39 your case was heard in so that we can post the case judgment and transcripts, and this is especially true if the judge has
 40 sealed the record of your case or made it unpublished! We promise to post a record of it on our website and submit it to 41 the website at <http://iresist.com/ice/welcome.htm> (Investigation of Curious Evidence, e.g. ICE) for use as legal evidence
 42 by other tax freedom fighters. Better yet, please send us a copy of the court's findings as well. Call us up to get the 43 address to mail it to and we will scan it in and put it on our website. Let's work together against this conspiracy, folks!

44 5.7.6.10 Why the 861 argument is not good to use in court

45 In closing our treatment of the 861 Position, we want to provide valuable insight crafted by one of our more informed
 46 readers. His insights are very revealing in showing why it is probably not a good idea to use the 861 Position in court, and 47 why it is better to focus on jurisdictional issues. His comments will become even clearer after you read section 5.3.1
 48 entitled "Taxpayer" v. "Nontaxpayer". His comments follow this paragraph and occupy the remainder of the section.

1 Long ago, when I knew far less than I do right now, like many folks, I readily grasped the 861 Position that has been so
2 eloquently explained by Larken Rose. And, I feel, Larken is a genuine American Hero for his noble efforts over the years.
3 He has educated countless Americans and for that, he is a great man. However, that said, upon further reflection and after 4 much self-study, I came to the conclusion a long time ago, that the 861 thesis is wholly subordinate to the Jurisdictional
5 Argument. At bottom, it is as simple as this.

6 The IRC is special law, not positive law, as revealed in the legislative notes under 1 U.S.C. §204, and it applies to a small
7 number of predefined people located in predefined locales. Since I am an American Citizen, I am not one of those 8 predefined people. And since I am not located inside Washington, DC, or any other federal enclave, I am not located in the 9 IRC's predefined locality. Therefore, since the IRC does not apply to me, it simply makes no sense to use and apply the 10 IRS' IRC, in an effort to attempt to prove that it does not apply to me, excepting those applicable sections that reveal the 11 IRC's limited geographic and territorial jurisdiction. One can readily rely upon U.S. Supreme Court cases and the Organic
12 Laws to prove the same facts. A lot of well-meaning folks in the Tax Honesty Movement are going to a U.S. Government-
13 controlled territorial court, and attempting to defend themselves by citing the municipal code that is the IRC. I think such 14 an approach is a BIG mistake.

15 The fact is, the IRC is written to ensnare "taxpayers", and, quite appropriately, its provisions are therefore designed to 16 extract income tax from "taxpayers" while also setting forth the payment procedures and IRS practices of collection, etc.
17 But one must always keep in mind how the IRC defines the term, "taxpayer." According to the IRC, a "taxpayer" is one
18 who is subject to or liable for an income tax. So any section of the IRC or tax regulations that uses the term "taxpayer",
19 should set off an ALARM!!! I do not believe that one who believes themselves to be a "nontaxpayer", should be relying 20 upon a regulation that uses the term "taxpayer", within the actual regulation. The impact of this all-encompassing 21 definition of "taxpayer" is sweeping in its effect and it literally "sweeps-up" everything in its path.

22 Here is one example of what I mean. This reveals the danger of relying solely upon 861 without buttressing it with the more 23 powerful jurisdictional thesis. At 26 CFR §1.863-1(c) it says:

24 "The taxpayer's taxable income from sources within or without the United States will be determined under the 25 rules of Secs.1.861-8 through 1.861-14T for determining taxable income from sources within the United States."

26 DANGER!! DANGER!! WILL ROBINSON!! Notice how the regulation asserts "The taxpayers taxable income. . .blah, 27 blah" So, right up front they are saying if you use this section to determine taxable income, then ergo, you must be a 28 "taxpayer" who HAS taxable income.

29 Look, an 'alleged' taxpayer who uses 861 to demonstrate that they DO NOT have any taxable income, is arguing against 30 themselves and running in place. Why? Because they do not meet the definition of "taxpayer" as defined at 26 U.S.C.
31 §7701(a)(14). If one is truly a "non-taxpayer", then it makes no sense to use regulations written only for "taxpayers", in 32 order to try and prove that one is NOT a taxpayer!!!

33 The tax regulations are for the benefit (chuckle) of "taxpayers" and apply only to them. ONLY "taxpayers" can have 34 taxable income. The quoted section above is ONLY applicable to "taxpayers". And taxpayers are those who have taxable 35 income. The section is craftily written and applies circular logic to keep one within the jurisdiction of the IRC and the IRS.

36 What I am saying is very careful, because the 861 regulations are a trap and a ruse. Especially inside a courtroom. The 861
37 regulations are specifically designed to ensnare those poor souls who can't see the dangerous word-games that are being
38 used to trap them in a house of mirrors. And rest assured, judges continually take silent judicial notice of the ensnaring
39 nature of the 861 regulations, without ever recognizing evidence that refutes or disproves the 861 regs. 861 Regs apply a 40 series of circular logic strategems to en-snare folks and keep them arguing within the scope (and the jurisdiction) of the

42 5.7.6.11 Common IRS and tax professional objections to the 861/source issue with rebuttal

43 In this subsection, we play the devil's advocate and document all of the deceiving, obfuscating, ill-informed criticisms,
44 complaints, and downright lies you are likely to hear from the IRS in responding to the issues raised in this chapter. The 45 IRS will take these approaches because they will do anything to hold on to your money (remember 1 Tim. 6:10 "The love
46 of money is the root of all evil."?), even if you aren't liable for tax. Their deceitful and unethical lawyers have no scruples
47 and will say whatever they have to, including lying to you in order to keep you paying taxes you aren't liable for. Why not

1 lie?: The regulations and the courts say they can't be held legally liable for the advice they give you! But if you give them
2 bad numbers based on your misunderstanding of the proper application of the Internal Revenue Code, they fine and
3 penalize you. Hypocrisy!!

4 We are including these arguments so you can take the offensive with the IRS by being proactive in anticipating the
5 problems they will try to create and having answers for them. We have to keep the Internal Revenue Service (I.R.S.) on the 6 defensive at all times. Don't ever let yourself be on the defensive or be unprepared with them, because they will try to 7 carve you up by intimidating you with your own ignorance and fear as their best offensive weapon! Don't hand them that 8 card to play with. Knowledge is power, and you can have the lion's share of the power just by reading and studying this 9 book and our website!

10 5.7.6.11.1 "We are all taxpayers. You can't get out of paying income tax because the law says you are liable."

11 IRS OBJECTION: "We're all taxpayers. You can't get out of paying income tax because the law says you are liable."

12 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: "Show me the law that makes me liable as a Citizen of the 50 Union states with income
13 from the 50 Union states and don't refer in your answer to the fraudulent IRS Publications, but instead to the 14 Internal Revenue Code and your Regulations themselves. The fact is, there is no law and I vehemently deny any 15 liability for tax. Until such time as you can show me proof with the law itself that I am a 'taxpayer', I don't want
16 you referring to me as such, but instead using the term 'National'. You are only using the term 'taxpayer' to keep 17 me on the defensive and to shift the burden of proof onto me, but you are the person who has the burden of proof 18 at this point until you demonstrate otherwise."

19 5.7.6.11.2 "Section 861 says that all income is taxable."

20 IRS OBJECTION: "26 U.S.C. §861 says that income of most people is taxable."

21 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE:

22 This is a common erroneous "interpretation" which the IRS and tax professionals have regarding Section 861,
23 which is that it is relevant to everyone, but that it does show the income of most people to be taxable. This is due
24 in large part to the general language used in Section 861, which reads:

25 "Sec. 861. Income from sources within the United States
26 (a) Gross income from sources within United States
27 The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources within the United States: (1)
28 Interest - Interest from the United States... (2) Dividends... (3) Personal services - Compensation for labor..."
29 [26 U.S.C. §861]

30 (Interestingly, most tax professionals are aware that the application of this section is not as broad as it appears to 31 be at first glance.)

33 which are all related to international and foreign commerce. The history of the regulations and statutes, as shown 34 above, make this point clear. However, certain sections of the regulations (taken out of context) are used to try to 35 support the claim that the tax is not limited to the "specific sources."

36 (The entire issue of "residual groupings" mentioned below is settled easily using the older regulations, but for the 37 sake of completeness it will also be dealt with using the current regulations. The following explanation deals with 38 an issue intended to be confusing; it is included for the purpose of being thorough in documenting and refuting 39 anything likely to be used to try to refute the conclusions of this report.)

40 The regulations define a "statutory grouping" of gross income as income from a specific source, while "residual

42 "...the term 'statutory grouping of gross income' or 'statutory grouping' means the gross income from a 43 specific source or activity... (See paragraph (f)(1) of this section.) Gross income from other sources or 44 activities is referred to as the 'residual grouping of gross income' or 'residual grouping.'"
45 [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)(4)]

The argument is that income from somewhere other than the “specific sources” may also be taxable. The idea is that “gross income” must constitute “taxable income” (after deductions are subtracted), since the definition of “taxable income” is “gross income” minus deductions. However, the regulations often use the term “gross income” in a more general way, meaning any income, whether taxable or not. In fact, the regulations specifically state that the “residual grouping” may be excluded from federal taxation.

“...the residual grouping may include, or consist entirely of, excluded income. See paragraph (d)(2) of this section with respect to the allocation and apportionment of deductions to excluded income.”

A clear example of tax-exempt income being referred to as “gross income” in a “residual grouping” is shown below. As stated in 26 U.S.C. §882(a)(2), foreign corporations are only taxable on “gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.” The following example therefore shows that any regulation which discusses “gross income” (not “taxable income”) from the “residual grouping” in no way shows that the residual grouping must be taxable.

“(iii) Apportionment Since X is a foreign corporation, the statutory grouping is gross income effectively connected with X’s trade of business in the United States, namely gross income from sources within the United States, and the residual grouping is gross income not effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States, namely gross income from countries A and B.”
[26 CFR §1.861-8(g), Example 21]

The fact that the regulations refer to income as “gross income” does not mean it is taxable. In discussing an item of income, the regulations state the following:

“Gross income from sources within the United States includes compensation for labor or personal services performed in the United States...”
[26 CFR §1.861-4]

In the generic sense, compensation for labor within the United States (the federal zone) is "gross income." However, as the current regulations repeatedly explain, it can only be “taxable income” if it comes from a “specific source.” The older regulations dealt with this “item” of income in a very similar way, and the context of the surrounding regulations made it perfectly clear in what situations this “item” could be taxable.

Nonresident alien individuals, foreign corporations, and citizens of the United States or domestic corporations entitled to the benefits of section 251 are taxable only upon income from sources within the United States...”

The Internal Revenue Code divides the income of such taxpayer into three classes:

- (1) Income which is derived in full from sources within the United States;
- (2) Income which is derived in full from sources without the United States;
- (3) Income which is derived partly from sources within and partly from sources without the United States...

Sec. 29.119-2. Interest...

Sec. 29.119-3. Dividends...

Sec. 29.119-4. Compensation for labor or personal services. - Except as provided in section 119(a)(3), gross income from sources within the United States includes compensation for labor or personal services performed within the United States...

Sec. 29.119-5. Rentals and royalties...

Sec. 29.119-6. Sale of real property...

Sec. 29.119-10. Apportionment of deductions.

From the items specified in sections 29.119-1 to 29.119-6, inclusive, as being derived specifically from sources within the United States there shall, in the case of nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations engaged in trade or business within the United States, be deducted [allowable deductions]. The remainder shall be included in full as net income from sources within the United States...”

The fact that income is referred to in the regulations as “gross income” certainly doesn’t mean it is taxable. In fact, after stating that the “residual grouping of gross income” may or may not be taxable, the regulations refer the reader to “paragraph (d)(2)” regarding “excluded income.” As shown above, the only types of income listed as not exempt are:

1 “(A) In the case of a foreign taxpayer...
 2 (B) In computing the combined taxable income of a DISC or FSC...
 3 (C) For all purposes under subchapter N of the Code... the gross income of a possessions corporation...
 4 (D) Foreign earned income as defined in section 911 and the regulations thereunder...”
 5 [26 CFR §1.861-8T(d)(2)(iii)]

6 Deductions must be divided between the “statutory grouping” (income from a specific source) and the “residual 7 grouping” (income from anywhere else). This does not mean that the “residual grouping” is taxable. The 8 regulations show in several places that there must be an “operative section” which applies in order to determine 9 taxable income.

10 “A taxpayer to which this section applies is required to allocate deductions to a class of gross income and,
 11 then, if necessary to make the determination required by the operative section of the Code, to apportion
 12 deductions within the class of gross income between the statutory grouping of gross income (or among the 13 statutory groupings) and the residual grouping of gross income.”
 14 [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)(2)]

15 The regulation which states that the “residual grouping” may be exempt from taxation also shows that there must 16 be an “operative section” applicable.

17 “In some instances, where the operative section so requires, the statutory grouping or the residual grouping
 18 may include, or consist entirely of, excluded income.” [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)(4)]

19 This is only logical, based on the simple fact that the section “for determining taxable income from sources within 20 the United States” (26 CFR §1.861-8) states over and over again that it is for determining taxable income from 21 “specific sources,” not the “residual groupings.”

 24 [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)(1)]

25 “The operative sections of the Code which require the determination of taxable income of the taxpayer from 26 specific sources or activities and which give rise to statutory groupings to which this section is applicable
 28 [26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1)]

29 “A taxpayer to which this section applies is required to allocate deductions to a class of gross income and,
 30 then, if necessary to make the determination required by the operative section of the Code, to apportion 31 deductions...”
 32 [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)(2)]

33 The regulations (and statutes) are not about determining taxable income from anywhere other than the “specific 34 sources.” Part of the confusion is from the fact that, in stating that the “residual grouping” may consist of 35 excluded income, the regulations imply that it also may be taxable. This is correct, but deceptive. The possibility 36 of the “residual grouping” being taxable could easily lead to the erroneous conclusion that income from 37 somewhere other than the “specific sources” might be taxable. The assumption is that the “residual grouping”
 38 cannot be from one of the listed “specific sources.” This is not the case.

39 If person ‘A’ gets taxable income from two “specific sources” (taxable activities described in “operative 40 sections”), the regulations state that all the calculations must be done for each “specific source” separately.
 41 Paragraph (f)(1) lists the “specific sources” under the “operative sections,” and then the next paragraph states the 42 following:

43 “(i) Where more than one operative section applies, it may be necessary for the taxpayer to apply this section 44 separately for each applicable operative section.”
 45 [26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(2)]

46 While person ‘A’ is calculating all the deductions, etc. for the first “specific source,” his income from the second
 47 “specific source” falls in the category of “residual grouping.” Likewise, when he is doing the calculations for the
 49 temporary regulations at 26 CFR §1.861-8T demonstrate this.

1 "Thus, in determining the separate limitations on the foreign tax credit imposed by section 904(d)(1) or by
 2 section 907, the income within a separate limitation category constitutes a statutory grouping of income and
 3 all other income not within that separate limitation category (whether domestic or within a different separate 4 limitation category) constitutes the residual grouping."
 5 [26 CFR §1.861-8T(c)(1)]

6 (The same thing is said again in 26 CFR §1.861-8T(f)(1)(ii).)

7 Even an example in the regulations showing that the "residual grouping" may be taxable therefore does not imply
 8 that income from somewhere other than the "specific sources" may be taxable. The "operative sections" involving 9 individuals receiving income from within federal possessions also makes it possible for an American to have 10 "taxable income" from within and without the United States (the federal zone).

11 The "residual grouping" argument relies on making assumptions based on something that complex deduction 12 allocation examples might seem to suggest, but do not state (that income not from the "specific sources" can be 13 taxable), while at the same time ignoring several sections of regulations which contradict this theory. The over-
 14 complexity of these regulations seems designed to cause confusion and uncertainty. But even if the current 15 complicated regulations by themselves, combined with some "creative interpretation," allowed for the "residual

17 The 1945 regulations made no mention of "operative sections," "specific sources," "statutory groupings" or 18 "residual groupings," and didn't take dozens of pages to create a jumbled, confusing mess. Since there was 19 nothing about "residual groupings" back then to base an argument on, to use the argument now would require the 20 claim that since 1945 there must have been a massive expansion of what income is taxable, from international and 21 foreign commerce to all commerce, and that the Secretary decided to inform the public of this by innuendos
 22 hidden in confusing examples about deduction allocation related to the per-country limitation on the foreign tax
 23 credit. (And, as shown before, Congress stated that "no substantive change" was made anyway.)

24 The common "interpretation" of the Internal Revenue Code relies on multiple assumptions, as well as simply 25 ignoring various sections which contradict those assumptions. Some may wish to imagine that some other
 26 "sources" of income which the law does not mention must also be taxable. Some may like to assume that 27 everything is taxable unless the law specifically says it is not. And some may say that if there is some uncertainty
 28 about what the law requires, then the government by default "wins." All of these are in direct conflict with a basic 29 principle of tax law, which has been explained on numerous occasions by the Supreme Court.

30 *"In the interpretation of statutes levying taxes it is the established rule not to extend their provisions, by
 31 implication, beyond the clear import of the language used, or to enlarge their operations so as to embrace*
 32 matters not specifically pointed out. In case of doubt they are construed most strongly against the government,
 33 and in favor of the citizen."
 34 [Gould v. Gould, 245 U.S. 151 (1917)]

35 *"Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by
 36 clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be
 37 resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid."*
 38 [Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

39 The extensive evidence of the correct, limited application of the income tax leaves little room for doubt. But even 40 if the IRS, or others who would challenge the conclusions of this report, could obfuscate and confuse matters to 41 the point where "it could go either way," the Supreme Court makes it clear that such a disagreement is to be settled
 42 in favor of the Citizen, not the government.

43 5.7.6.11.3 "IRC Section 861 falls under Subchapter N, Part I, which deals only with FOREIGN Income"

44 IRS OBJECTION: "26 U.S.C. Section 861 only deals with Foreign income and falls under Subchapter N ('Subchapter N -
 45 Tax Based on Income From Sources Within or Without'), Part I of the code, which is entitled 'SOURCE RULES
 46 AND OTHER GENERAL RULES RELATING TO FOREIGN INCOME'. You shouldn't be looking in this 47 section to identify taxable sources because it doesn't pertain to most Americans, who don't have foreign income."

YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: “First of all, 26 U.S.C. §7806 makes your comment irrelevant, because it says that the titles, table of contents, and organization of the code mean nothing and have no force and effect. Since the word “Foreign” is only used in the title, then it is irrelevant to the discussion:

United States Code
 TITLE 26 - INTERNAL REVENUE CODE
 Subtitle F - Procedure and Administration
 CHAPTER 80 - GENERAL RULES
 Subchapter A - Application of Internal Revenue Laws
 Sec. 7806. Construction of title

(b) Arrangement and classification

No inference, implication, or presumption of legislative construction shall be drawn or made by reason of the location or grouping of any particular section or provision or portion of this title, nor shall any table of contents, table of cross references, or similar outline, analysis, or descriptive matter relating to the contents of this title be given any legal effect. The preceding sentence also applies to the sidenotes and ancillary tables contained in the various prints of this Act before its enactment into law.

Second, as we analyze in detail in section 6.5.8 of this document, the title of Part I used to be “Determination of sources of income” and was obfuscated by Congress in 1988 to instead read “Source rules and other general rules relating to foreign income”. The underlying procedures and source rules were not substantially changed. Only the title was changed to further confuse people about source rules and cover up the truth.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: What other conclusion explains why this change was made other than to confuse and further conceal the truth? We can see none.

Even entertaining the notion that your argument about “foreign” is relevant, please answer the question of why does IRC section 861 deal with sources both ‘within and without’ the United States? Doesn’t “foreign income” only come from without the United States (the federal zone) by the definition of “foreign” found in the collegiate dictionary? Let’s not forget the definition of the term “United States”, which really only means the District of Columbia and the “federal zone”. Furthermore, why does neither the Internal Revenue Code or 26 CFR define the word “foreign” anywhere unless there was an intent to conceal the true jurisdiction of the U.S. government? Here are a few examples of the correct meaning of this word from commercial law dictionaries:

 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition]

 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 647]

Foreign States: “Nations outside of the United States...Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state. The term ‘foreign nations’, ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the action is brought; and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense.”
 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 648]

Why is the word ‘within’ also included in the title to Part I and section 861? As we discussed in section 5.2.12 “The definition of ‘foreign income’ relative to the Internal Revenue Code”, all income earned from outside the District of Columbia and other parts of the “federal zone” is counted as “foreign income” as far as Congress is concerned. If I am a natural person and a “national” but not a “U.S. citizen” domiciled in one of the 50 sovereign states of the United States of America outside of the federal zone, then as far as the U.S. Government is concerned, all of my income comes from a foreign “source” and therefore section 861 absolutely DOES apply to my tax situation and 26 CFR §1.1441-1 does define me as a “nonresident alien”!

Also, how do you explain the changes made to section 61 of the tax code in approximately 1982 where references pointing to section 861 were deliberately removed by Congress? These references had previously been part of the code since 1921 and indicated that section 861 of the code was to be used for determining valid sources of income! What new law or court case permitted or requires this ‘hiding of evidence’ and further obfuscation of the tax code? Instead, we think Congress just changed the title of the subsection to confuse people into not looking in this

1 section and to hide the fact that this applies to everyone! Earlier versions of the law made it much clearer that
 2 citizens with income from the 50 Union states weren't liable for federal income tax. Under the original tax code,
 3 most "persons" outside of the "federal zone" were nonresident citizens of the U.S. paying taxes on income from a
 4 "foreign source". Why has this been progressively hidden in the tax code over the years for no disclosed reason?
 5 The IRS is trying to blow smoke and confuse people with the law instead of telling the truth directly to 6 people...that if they are state citizens domiciled in the 50 Union states with income from the 50 Union states, then
 7 they don't owe tax. Please show me a positive law federal statute somewhere that contradicts this conclusion
 8 about tax liability and is consistent with 1:2:3 (apportionment requirement for direct taxes), 1:9:4 (constraints on 9 direct taxes) and 1:8:1-3 (taxing authority) of the Constitution and the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Thirteenth
 10 Amendments to the Constitution. Direct taxes based on income violate so many provisions of the U.S.
 11 Constitution it isn't funny, and the Sixteenth Amendment, even if you count it as a validly ratified law, didn't 12 change that situation or amend these sections to make an exception.

13 If you aren't going to refer to section 861 for taxable sources within and without the United States (the federal 14 zone), then what section in the code ARE you going to use to specify specific taxable sources? There are at least 15 two Supreme Court cases that state that a tax on income is NOT a tax on its "source", including James v. United 16 States, 366 U.S. 213 and United States v. Burke, 504 U.S. 229. You must tie the income tax somewhere in the 17 code to a specific geographic area and/or taxable event (excise), which are collectively called a "situs", or the IRC
 18 would be invalid and would apply to everyone in the world! This would violate the Sixth Amendment and the 19 'void for vagueness' criteria we define in sections 3.11.11 and 5.10. The Supreme Court has ruled repeatedly that 20 the income tax is an excise/indirect tax and is unconstitutional as a direct tax (Stanton v. Baltic Mining, 240 U.S.
 21 103; Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245), and excises always apply to geographic areas and events. I assume the event is 22 the receipt of income, but where is the section that identifies the geographic area if it isn't 861?"

23 5.7.6.11.4 "The Sixteenth Amendment says 'from whatever source derived'...this means the source doesn't 24 matter!"

25 IRS OBJECTION: "The Sixteenth Amendment says "The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes,
 26 from whatever source derived". This means that the source doesn't matter. Why all the big deal about something 27 that is irrelevant?"

28 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: "The Treasury regulations on taxable source make it very clear that specific sources must 29 be identified as taxable in order for the income to be taxable. See 26 CFR §1.861-1 thru 1.861-14, which identify 30 specific taxable sources. If sources don't matter, why do these regulations even exist? For instance, 26 CFR
 31 §1.861-8(a) says:

 33 and activities under other sections of the Code referred to in this section as operative sections. See paragraph
 35 [26 CFR §1.861-8(a)]

36 And what about 26 CFR Sec, 1.861-8(a)(4)?:

 38 For purposes of this section, the term "statutory grouping of gross income" or "statutory grouping" means the 39 gross income from a specific source or activity which must first be determined in order to arrive at "taxable
 40 income" from which specific source or activity under an operative section. (See paragraph (f)(1) of this 41 section.)...

42 This approach by the IRS rests on the misreading of "from whatever source derived" (as used in 26 U.S.C. §61) to 43 mean "no matter where it comes from." This interpretation requires the reader to ignore all of the evidence 44 presented in section 5.7.5.4 ("Sources of Income") and section 5.7.5.5 ("Determining Taxable Income from U.S.
 45 Sources") of this document; most notably, the sections of regulations which state that Section 861 and following,
 46 and the regulations thereunder, "determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax," and the sections
 47 which state that "determining taxable income from sources within the United States" is to be done using 26 U.S.C.
 48 §861(b) and 26 CFR §1.861-8. It is a frivolous position because it is in disagreement with the U.S. Supreme Court 49 also:

1 “The Court has hitherto consistently held that a literal reading of a provision of the Constitution which defeats
2 a purpose evident when the instrument is read as a whole, is not to be favored... [and one of the examples they
3 give is...]'From whatever source derived,' as it is written in the Sixteenth Amendment, does not mean from
5 Baldwin, 165 U.S. 275, 281, 282 S., 17 S.Ct. 326; Gompers v. United States, 233 U.S. 604, 610, 34 S.Ct. 693,
8 [Wright v. U.S., 302 U.S. 583 (1938)]

9 How's that for an amazing admission? For support, the court cites another case (Evans v. Gore), and here are 10 some quotes from that case (emphasis added):

11 “[T]o enable Congress to reach all TAXABLE income more conveniently and effectively than would be possible
12 as to much of it if an apportionment among the states were essential, the Sixteenth Amendment was proposed 13 and ratified. In other words, the purpose of the amendment was to eliminate all occasion for such an 14 apportionment because of the source from which the income came, A CHANGE IN NO WISE AFFECTING 15 THE POWER TO TAX but only the mode of EXERCISING it.”
16 [Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920)]

17 The court mentions that the governor of New York “expressed some apprehension lest [the 16th Amendment]
18 might be construed as EXTENDING THE TAXING POWER TO INCOME NOT TAXABLE BEFORE,” but that 19 those who proposed the amendment described its purpose proving that was not the case. Back to Evans v. Gore, 20 the court went on...

21 “Thus the genesis and words of the amendment unite in showing that it DOES NOT EXTEND THE TAXING
22 POWER TO NEW OR EXCEPTED SUBJECTS, but merely removes all occasion otherwise existing for an
24 [Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920)]

25 We're not sure why they beat this point to death like they did, but we're glad they did.

26 “It is not, in view of recent decisions, contended that [the 16th Amendment] rendered anything taxable as 27 *income that was NOT so taxable before.”
28 [Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920)]

29 This frivolous position by the IRS is therefore the result of backwards logic. Tax professionals start with the 30 incorrect assumption that most people receive taxable income. Therefore, when they discover that (for example)
31 26 CFR §1.861-8 does not show most income to be taxable income, they incorrectly conclude (based on a false 32 premise) that that section should not be used by most people, even though the regulations clearly state otherwise.
33 This is usually stated as “that section doesn't apply to you.” The following analogy demonstrates the logical flaw
34 with this half-truth.

36 the Secretary shall maintain a central registry of “all firearms.” But a separate section defines the term “firearm,”
37 and the legal meaning is far more restrictive than the meaning of the word in common English. For example, a 38 basic hunting rifle is obviously a “firearm” in common English, but is not considered a “firearm” for purposes of 39 Section 5841. An individual who owns one hunting rifle could, therefore, correctly state that Section 5841 does 40 not impose any obligation on him.

41 Now imagine someone arguing to him the following: “The definition of ‘firearms’ doesn't apply to your firearm,
42 so you should just ignore the definition in Section 5845. Just look at Section 5841, where it says ‘all firearms.’
43 That includes your rifle.” Such an argument would be ludicrous, and yet this is precisely the logic (or lack of 44 logic) used by the tax professionals regarding 26 U.S.C. §861.

45 Section 61 defines “gross income” generally as “all income from whatever source derived,” and Part I of 46 Subchapter N (Section 861 and following) and related regulations “determine the sources of income for purposes
47 of the income tax.” Many tax professionals will argue that Section 861 “doesn't apply” to most people, and 48 therefore most readers should ignore the sections which “determine the sources of income for purposes of the 49 income tax.” This is entirely illogical, but it is the only way for the tax professionals to avoid coming face-to-face

1 with their monumental error. Contrary to the evidence, they continue to claim that most citizens receive taxable

3 The main citation used in an attempt to justify this misinterpretation is found in the regulations related to Section 1
4 of the statutes (which imposes the income tax).

6 (a) General rule. (1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a
7 citizen or resident of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of 8 a nonresident alien individual... The tax imposed is upon taxable income (determined by subtracting the 9 allowable deductions from gross income).

10 (b) Citizens or residents of the United States liable to tax. In general, all citizens of the United States,
11 wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Code
12 whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States." [26 CFR §1.1-1]

13 This section is a masterpiece of deception. While being literally correct (as the law must be), it is likely to give the 14 wrong impression. Stating that a tax is imposed "on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident" of 15 the U.S. gives the impression that all income of these individuals is taxable. But anyone even slightly familiar
16 with Internal Revenue Code knows this is not the case. The section goes on to specify that the tax is not on all
17 income, but on "taxable income" (which is "gross income" minus deductions). As shown above, 26 CFR §1.861-8
18 is the section for determining "taxable income" from within the United States (the federal zone). The language
19 could just as easily (and just as correctly) stated that "everyone on earth, no matter where he is and no matter
20 where his income comes from, is taxable upon his taxable income." The meaning of the statement is, of course,

22 Subsection "(b)" also gives a false impression at first glance, while being literally correct. It doesn't matter where 23 someone lives, provided that he receives income from "sources" within or without the United States (the federal 24 zone). And Part I of Subchapter N and related regulations "determine the sources of income for purposes of the 25 income tax."

26 It is a word game, where what may be inferred differs from what is actually stated. If someone does not have 27 "taxable income," and if someone does not receive "income from sources" (as defined by law), then 26 CFR §1.1-
28 1 becomes irrelevant. Nothing in the section has any effect on the legal meaning of "taxable income" or "sources 29 of income." Instead, the section uses these terms in a context which makes them sound less restricted.

30 (As a reminder, the only form ever approved for use with the above regulations under the Paperwork Reduction
31 Act was Form 2555, "Foreign Earned Income.")

33 "19.11-1 Income tax on individuals

34 Chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code []... imposes an income tax on individuals, including a normal tax*
35 (section 11), a surtax (section 12), and a defense tax []... The tax is upon net income which is determined by* 36 subtracting the allowable deductions from the gross income. (See generally 21 to 24, inclusive.)"

37 [* - Words omitted related only to which years the law was applicable.]

38 "19.11-2 Citizens or residents of the United States liable to tax

39 In general, citizens of the United States, wherever resident, are liable to the tax, and it makes no difference
40 that they may own no assets within the United States and may receive no income from sources within the 41 United States. Every resident alien individual is liable to the tax, even though his income is wholly from 42 sources outside the United States."

43 The wording of these regulations (from 1945), while deceptive, does not give quite as persuasive a deception as 44 the current regulations. The only solid conclusion which can be inferred from these older regulations is that 45 income from outside of the United States (the federal zone) can be taxable to United States citizens and

47 5.7.6.11.5 "The courts have consistently ruled against the 861 issue"

2 frivolous.”

3 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: “Oh really? We haven’t found a single case since 1930 in any of the federal district or 4 appellate courts or since 1900 in the U.S. Supreme Court that mentions the 861/source issue. Can you please
5 quote me the specific case numbers and names so I can research it for myself to validate your specific assertions?”
6 Furthermore, your own Internal Revenue Manual says in section 4.10.7.2.9.8 that you can’t quote cases below the 7 Supreme Court to apply to more than the person who was the subject of the suit, so please give me a Supreme 8 Court cite that proves your contention.

9 LIKELY IRS RESPONSE TO YOUR RESPONSE: “I don’t have time to deal with this and I’m not here to give legal 10 advice. You need to get a lawyer who understands the laws because you certainly don’t. You’re walking on thin 11 ice and headed for trouble, buddy.”

12 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: “IRS Publication 1 says about the rights of ‘taxpayers’:

13 “I. IRS employees will explain and protect your rights as a taxpayer throughout your contact with us.”

14 [QUESTION: What about my right to not be taxed directly per the constitution 1:9:4? What about my Fifth Amendment
15 right not to be compelled to testify against myself? What about my First Amendment right to NOT be compelled or 16 penalized NOT communicating with my government on a tax return? What about my right to understand the law and what 17 is specifically prohibited as required by the Sixth Amendment?]

18 “IRS Mission Statement: ‘Provide Americas taxpayers top quality service by helping them understand and meet their 19 tax responsibilities and by applying the tax law with integrity and fairness to all.’”

20 [QUESTION: What about ‘citizens’ who technically aren’t ‘taxpayers’ but are being deceived into thinking they are and 21 want to know the law that makes them liable? Do they get equal treatment under the law and a proper explanation of their
22 non-liability to pay income taxes and the legal foundation for it? How can I properly apply the tax laws if IRS employees
23 won’t interpret it for me or help or show me where I can read and interpret it myself? Why aren’t employees at the IRS
24 held liable for the advice they give, especially if following it causes me to end up paying a fine? Why have them helping 25 me at all on your 800 number if they can’t be held legally responsible for the advice they give me and refuse to describe
26 my legal obligations without referring to the IRS Publications, which we have said repeatedly are a fraud and do not have 27 the force of law?]

28 “You are responsible for paying only the correct amount of tax due under the law—no more, no less.”

29 [QUESTION: How can a Citizen know the correct amount of tax due if IRS support people won’t refer to the tax law and 30 insist on using IRS Publications, which are clearly in error and which the courts have consistently ruled do not have the 31 force of law?]

32 Did you notice that the IRS consistently called ALL PEOPLE “taxpayers” above? Does that mean that if you don’t pay tax,
33 you have NO rights and that you are fair game for the predators and extortionists at the IRS? We have found personally
34 that you can easily answer this question for yourself by calling their 800 number for help. Call them and assert that you
35 have no income tax liability, correct them when they refer to you as a “taxpayer” and insist instead that they refer to you as 36 an American and that it is their responsibility under the law to demonstrate your liability and meet the burden of proof
37 imposed upon them under the Administrative Procedures Act, 5 U.S.C. §556(d) before you will refer to yourself otherwise.
38 You will find out, as we did, that they will put you on hold forever, get rude and belligerent, refuse to talk to you, and won’t 39 show you the law that makes you liable because there is none, and will then refuse to talk about anything but the fraudulent
40 IRS Publications! This ought to be a big red flag that it’s all a big fraud! Why do they do this? Because if they listen to 41 you and learn the truth, someone might drag them into court and prosecute them for conspiracy to violate rights and 42 misapplication of the law and breach of fiduciary duty. This is also the reason why they won’t give you their full name or 43 direct phone number or email or mail address—they don’t want to be held legally liable in any way because they know they 44 don’t have a legal leg to stand on.

45 This last response by the IRS is a scare/intimidation tactic to keep you afraid and ignorant but avoid the law or liability for 46 communicating the law to you correctly and completely in order to protect themselves from culpability for improperly
47 implementing it (this is called “plausible deniability”, and they use it as a self-defense mechanism). Instead, the IRS wants
48 to force another expensive attorney to wear you out financially and abuse you in hopes that you will exhaust and wear out

1 quickly and no longer be a bother to them. This same attorney they want you to get will let you die on the vine in front of
 2 the judge because he is an "officer of the court" who can only practice law in court with the permission and approval of a
 3 federal judge who receives bribes every month in his paycheck that are derived from tax dollars extorted illegally from you.

4 5.7.6.11.6 "You are misunderstanding and misapplying the law and you're asking for trouble"

5 IRS OBJECTION: "You are misunderstanding and misapplying the law and you're asking for trouble."

6 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: "Then why aren't you helping me interpret the law correctly? Why is it that you can make 7 me afraid of misapplying the law but won't tell me how to correctly apply it to either define or meet my alleged 8 tax liabilities as your mission statement obligates you to do? Could it be that you want to use my own fear and 9 ignorance to make me compliant and paying the largest amount of tax and penalties instead of empowering me
 10 with the knowledge of the law needed to pay the minimum tax and penalties? Prove to me that I am wrong and 11 prove to me that I am liable to pay tax, because I am convinced I'm not liable and would like to give you the 12 benefit of the doubt!"

13 5.7.6.11.7 "Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co. case makes the source of income irrelevant and taxes all 14 'sources'"

15 IRS OBJECTION: "The U.S. Supreme Court has already dealt with the frivolous 861 'source' issue in the case of 16 Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co., 348 U.S. 426, 429 (1955). That ruling makes the source of income
 17 irrelevant. See IRS Notice 2001-40. The IRS stated the following in their Notice 2001-40, available from 18 <http://ftp.fedworld.gov/pub/irs-drop/n-01-40.pdf>. The Notice 2001-40 was issued on 07-Jun-01 00:30 and the 20 The proponents of this position misread the Code and the Treasury Regulations. Although the proponents 21 acknowledge that section 1 imposes income tax on "taxable income," that taxable income" consists of "gross 22 income" minus deductions (section 63) and that "gross income" is income "from whatever source derived"

 23 (section 61), they assert that sections 861 through 865 of the Code and the regulations thereunder (in 24 particular, Treasury regulation section 1.861-8) limit taxable "sources" of income to certain foreign-based 25 activities.

26 That assertion is refuted by the express and unambiguous terms of the Code. Section 61 includes in gross
 28 Glenshaw Glass Co., 348 U.S. 426, 429 (1955), "Congress applied no limitations as to the source of taxable
 29 receipts . . . @. Nothing in sections 861 to 865 of the Code limits the gross income subject to United States
 30 taxation to foreign-source income. The rules of sections 861 through 865 have significance in determining 31 whether income is considered from sources within the United States or without the United States, which is 32 relevant, for example, in determining whether a U.S. citizen or resident may claim a credit for foreign taxes
 33 *paid. See Great-West Life Assurance Co. v. United States, 678 F.2d 180, 183 (Ct. Cl. 1982) (stating that "[t]he*
 34 determination of where income is derived or 'sourced' is generally of no moment to either United States citizens
 35 or United States corporations, for such persons are subject to tax under I.R.C. § 1 and I.R.C. §. 11,
 36 respectively, on their worldwide income" and that "[l]ikewise, the income of a resident alien individual is taxed
 37 under I.R.C. § 1 without regard to source"). The source rules do not operate to exclude from U.S. taxation
 38 *income earned by United States persons from sources within the United States. Williams v. Commissioner, 114*
 39 T.C. 136 (2000) (rejecting the claim that income was not subject to tax because it was not from any of the 40 *sources listed in Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861-8(a)); Aiello v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1995-40 (1995) 2(rejecting* 41 the claim that section 861 lists the only sources of income relevant for purposes of section 61).

43 First of all, did you notice that the IRS committed a deliberate typo in their quote from Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass
 44 Co., whereby you put an @ sign where there should have been a close quote. The IRS, in that Notice, was trying to deceive
 45 the reader that their own assertions were actually quoted from the Supreme Court. You want me to believe that the 46 following statement came from the Supreme Court, when in fact it does not because we looked up the case:

47 Nothing in sections 861 to 865 of the Code limits the gross income subject to United States taxation to foreign-
 48 source income. The rules of sections 861 through 865 have significance in determining whether income is 49 considered from sources within the United States or without the United States, which is relevant, for example, in 50 determining whether a U.S. citizen or resident may claim a credit for foreign taxes paid.

1 More IRS deception. The close quote should appear where the @ sign was based on reading the case. Secondly, the 2 Glenshaw case was about the following issue quoted directly from that case:

3 The common question is whether money received as exemplary damages for fraud or as the punitive two-thirds
4 portion of a treble-damage antitrust recovery must be reported by a taxpayer as gross income under 22 (a) of 5 the Internal Revenue Code of 1939.

6 The party to that case was not arguing the 861 position, and as a matter of fact, the case dealt with an older version of the 7 code with different section numbers.

8 Next, we note that the most authoritative cite they have at the end of the article is from T.C. Memos, which may NOT be 9 cited to apply generally to all Americans as per their own Internal Revenue Manual, Section 4.10.7.2.9.8:

10 "Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may 11 be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

12 Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court
13 becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue
14 Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same 15 weight as the Code.

16 Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the 17 Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not 18 require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers."
19 [IRM 4.10.7.2.9.8 (05/14/99)]

20 More IRS deception. So clearly, the only thing we can rely on in everything they cited above is the Supreme Court
21 Glenshaw case. In that case, the court did not mention whether the party involved was a citizen or a nonresident alien. As 22 we repeatedly suggest throughout this book, it's important to correct government records describing your citizenship status
23 because they create false presumptions that misrepresent your true status as a "nonresident alien" under 26 U.S.C.
24 §7701(b)(1)(B) and a "national under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) but not "citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §401 to escape the reach of 25 the tax "imposed" in 26 U.S.C. §1. Based on the way they treated this party, we have to assume that he was a "U.S.
26 citizen" who therefore had no Constitutional rights.

27 Moving on, the Glenshaw court stated:

28 The sweeping scope of the controverted statute is readily apparent:

30 "(a) GENERAL DEFINITION. - 'Gross income' includes gains, profits, and income
31 derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service . . . of whatever kind 32 and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, 33 or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership
34 or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the 35 transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income
36 derived from any source whatever. . . ." (Emphasis added.) 4

37 This Court has frequently stated that this language was used by Congress to exert in this field "the full measure
38 of its taxing power." Helvering v. Clifford, 309 U.S. 331, 334; Helvering v. Midland Mutual Life Ins. Co., 300
39 U.S. 216, 223; Douglas v. Willcuts, 296 U.S. 1, 9; Irwin v. Gavit, 268 U.S. 161, 166. Respondents contend
40 that punitive damages, characterized as "windfalls" flowing from the culpable conduct of third parties, are not 41 within the scope of the section. But Congress applied no limitations as to the 42 source of taxable receipts, nor restrictive [348 U.S. 426, 430]
43 labels as to their nature. And the Court has given a liberal construction to this broad
45 Commissioner v. Jacobson, 336 U.S. 28, 49; Helvering v. Stockholms Enskilda Bank, 293 U.S. 84, 87-91.
47 rented property was taxed in Helvering v. Bruun, 309 U.S. 461. Cf. Robertson v. United States, 343 U.S. 711;
48 Rutkin v. United States, 343 U.S. 130; United States v. Kirby Lumber Co., 284 U.S. 1. Such decisions
49 demonstrate that we cannot but ascribe content to the catchall provision of 22 (a), "gains or profits and income

1 derived from any source whatever." The importance of that phrase has been too frequently recognized since its
 2 first appearance in the Revenue Act of 1913 5 to say now that it adds nothing to the meaning of "gross income."

3 The key to deciphering what was said here lies in the definition of "source" and in what context it is used. The question is:

4 Does the word "source" used here by the U.S. Supreme Court mean:

- 5 1. The "source" (or taxable activities within specific identified jurisdictions, which is also called the situs for
- 6 taxation) of income for the government as per 26 U.S.C. 861 and 862, or...
- 7 2. The "source" of income for the subject of the tax, who is the "tax payer"?
- 8

9 BIG DIFFERENCE!

10 If the Glenshaw case above refers to the tax payer, which we believe it does, then what the court really meant is that if you
 11 admit to being a "taxpayer" (meaning a person who mistakenly admits liability for tax) and if you have income, from 12 wherever you get it ("whatever tax payer source derived"), then you have to pay income tax on it, and we would agree with 13 that conclusion! However, that is not the assertion we are making with the 861 argument or the context we are talking
 14 about in the context of the word "source"! We are not referring to "sources" of income for the tax payer, but the proper 15 situs of taxation (the lawful and constitutional sources of income) for the excise tax called the income tax assessed by the 16 government, which is completely different, and which the court did not address in the Glenshaw case cited. 26 U.S.C.
 17 Sections 861 and 862 do NOT talk about "sources" of income for the tax payer, but "sources" of income (taxation situs) for 18 the government. More IRS and government lies and deception.

19 Concluding that the Supreme Court in the Glenshaw case was referring to the situs for taxation or sources of income for the 20 government leads to some rather absurd and irrational conclusions. For instance it leads us to conclude that:

- 21 1. There is no reason for sections 861 (sources within the United States) and 862 (Sources without the United States) to
- 22 even exist in the tax code, because the "source" (or situs) of government income doesn't matter and all sources of
- 23 "income" are liable to taxation. Lets get rid of these two sections then, OK? Why to they appear in the code and under
- 24 what circumstances are they used, then?
- 25 2. That all "sources" of government income from anywhere in the world are taxable, including sources in China (try
- 26 explaining that to the Chinese!). This would expand the situs for taxation by the U.S. government to everyone in every
- 27 country anywhere in the world, which is clearly an irrational conclusion.

28 Therefore, the only rational way to interpret the code is to leave sections 861 and 862 intact and to treat them as applying to 29 all government sources of income (situs for taxation), and to ensure that the table found in section 5.7.5.5 entitled
 30 "Determining Taxable Income from U.S. Sources" is applied to every type of income received to determine whether or 31 not the person in receipt of it is liable for tax. That is exactly what 26 CFR §1.861-8 does: is it tells Americans how to 32 apply the source rules for government income to every item of gross income he is in receipt of in order to determine 33 whether or not it is taxable and consequently, whether he is a "taxpayer".

34 5.7.6.11.8 Frivolous Return Penalty Assessed by IRS for those Using the 861 Position¹⁴¹

35 The IRS occasionally blatantly lies to you about your rights, in an attempt to avoid "due process." You ought to be told the 36 truth. The IRS does not want to directly address the 861/"source" issue. They occasionally will try to avoid the issue by 37 threatening to impose a $500 "frivolous return" penalty, supposedly under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §6702, on some who 38 use the 861/"source" issue to file claims for refund. The IRS' letter states that the courts, including the Supreme Court, have 39 ruled such a position to be "frivolous." This is an outright lie. (They are using a form letter which has nothing to do with 40 the 861/"issue.") Feel free to ask them for a citation of such a ruling, but don't hold your breath waiting to actually get one.

41 The letter also states that the penalty must be paid in full, before the matter can be appealed. Again, this is an outright lie.
 42 According to the Treasury regulations, appeals consideration applies to questions regarding "[I]iability for additions to the 43 tax, additional amounts, and assessable penalties provided under Chapter 68 of the Code [which includes 26 U.S.C.

1 §6702]" (26 CFR §601.106(a)(1)(ii)(c)). And the Internal Revenue Manual agrees, and shows that Appeals consideration
2 can occur before any payment is made.

18 *3.Assessed penalties may be appealed before or after payment.

19 As you can also see in the citations above, in a meeting regarding a penalty under 26 U.S.C. §6702, they have the burden of 20 proof (see also 26 U.S.C. §6703). (Since there are no regulations promulgated under 26 U.S.C. §6702, you might also want 21 to ask to see a delegation order allowing them to impose the penalty at all.) It would be interesting (just as one example) to 22 watch them try to prove that it is "frivolous" to use 26 CFR §1.861-8 for determining taxable income from sources within
23 the United States, when the Treasury regulations specifically and repeatedly state that you should use 26 CFR §1.861-8
24 "for determining taxable income from sources within the United States" (26 CFR §1.863-1(c)).

25 Probably the main goal of the IRS is to come up with an excuse to avoid due process altogether, including in-person
26 meetings (which you have the right to record under 26 U.S.C. §7521). They don't want an administrative record showing 27 that they have no substantive rebuttal. However, their manual shows that the return is to be processed regardless of the 28 penalty, so they should not be allowed to get away with ignoring the return, whether they impose the penalty or not. (And 29 this would defeat the whole purpose of their letter, which is to "stonewall" any discussion of the issue.)

30 Internal Revenue Manual
31 120.1.10.9 (08-12-1998)
32 IRC section 6702

33 1.IRC section 6702 provides for an immediate assessment of a $500 civil penalty against individuals who file
34 *frivolous income tax returns or frivolous amended income tax returns... A frivolous return:... Does constitute a 35 valid return when the Service is able to process the return.

36 For any return, if the Service challenges it, you have a right to an Examination meeting, a meeting with the examiner's
37 supervisor, and if you can't reach an agreement, Appeals consideration (see 26 CFR §§601.105, 601.106).

38 The IRS has a lot to lose if they address the issue, and not much to lose by making these stupid threats, false accusations,
39 evasions, etc. They are relying on these tactics to scare or intimidate people. Anyone approaching the IRS, expecting them
40 to act like reasonable, honest people, is in for a rude awakening. If they have nothing to lose, they will most likely ignore
41 the law, ignore your rights, and ignore their own published procedures. Basically, the message from the IRS is this:

42 "It is frivolous for you to believe that the federal regulations mean what they say. If you ask us to explain what 43 they mean, or ask us to answer any questions, we will accuse you of breaking the law, threaten to punish you,
44 and then we will refuse to discuss the matter ever again. That is how we 'serve' you."

45 If this isn't exactly what you would call "due process of law," you might want to tell that to your "representative" or the 46 "Taxpayer Advocate" (although you may find that neither of those terms is accurate).

5.7.6.11.9 The income tax is a direct, unapportioned tax on income, not an excise tax, so you still are liable for it

IRS OBJECTION: "The income tax is a direct, unapportioned tax on income, not an excise tax. See United States v. Collins, 920 F.2d 619, (10th Cir. 11/27/1990)."

YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: "First of all, this conclusion is in direct conflict with all the rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court related to income taxes. The Supreme Court has consistently ruled that the income tax is an indirect excise tax. See Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895); Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916); Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920), etc. Secondly, lets just fallaciously assume for the sake of argument that the income tax is a direct, unapportioned tax on income. Under such circumstances, it would have to be an ad valorem tax on intangible assets (income or profit received). If it is an ad valorem tax on intangibles, then the income taxed must be beneficially received within the territorial jurisdiction of the 'United States'. The case of Wheeling Steel Corp. v. Fox, 298 U.S. 193 (1936) clearly establishes this requirement:

"We have held that it is essential to the validity of such a tax, under the due process clause, that the property shall be within the territorial jurisdiction of the taxing state.... When we deal with intangible property, such as credits and choses in action generally, we encounter the difficulty that by reason of the absence of physical characteristics they have no situs in the physical sense, but have the situs attributable to them in legal conception. Accordingly we have held that a state may properly apply the rule mobilis sequuntur personam and treat them as localized at the owner's domicile for purposes of taxation. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Minnesota, 280 U.S. 204, 211, 50 S.Ct. 98, 65 A. L.R. 1000. And having thus determined 'that in general intangibles may be properly taxed at the domicile of their owner,' we have found 'no sufficient reason for saying that they are not entitled to enjoy an immunity against taxation at more than one place similar to that accorded to tangibles.' Id., 280 U.S. 204, at page 212, 50 S.Ct. 98, 100, 65 A.L.R. 1000. The principle thus announced in Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Minnesota has had progressive application. Baldwin v. Missouri, 281 U.S. 586, 50 S.Ct. 436, 72 A.L.R. 1303; Beidler v. South Carolina Tax Commission, 282 U.S. 1, 51 S.Ct. 54; First National Bank v. Maine, 284 U.S. 312, 328, 329 S., 52 S.Ct. 174, 177, 77 A.L.R. 1401. But despite the wide application of the principle, an important exception has been recognized."

The territorial jurisdiction of the United States is limited to areas over which the sovereignty (exclusive territorial jurisdiction under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution) of the government of the United States extends, to include the District of Columbia, federal enclaves within the states, and the territorial waters as per 26 CFR §301.7701:

(ii) UNITED STATES. For purposes of section 7701(b) and the regulations thereunder, the term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes the states and the District of Columbia. It also includes the territorial waters of the United States and the seabed and subsoil of those submarine areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters of the United States and over which the United States has exclusive rights, in accordance with international law, with respect to the exploration and exploitation of natural resources. It does not include the possessions and territories of the United States or the air space over the United States.

IRS Publication 54 for year 2000, entitled Tax Guide for U.S. Citizens and Aliens Abroad (which you can download from our website), further helps to clarify the meaning of the territorial jurisdiction of the United States:

"A foreign country usually is any territory (including the air space and territorial waters) under the sovereignty of a government other than that of the United States.... The term 'foreign country' does not include Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, or U.S. possessions such as American Samoa."

1 Consequently, Americans residing on nonfederal land (outside the federal zone) within the borders of the 2 sovereign states are domiciled in a "foreign country" and outside of the territorial jurisdiction of the United States
 3 because they are located on land outside the sovereignty of the United States government. Therefore, they cannot 4 be the proper subject of a federal ad valorem direct property tax.

5 5.7.6.11.10 "Source" issues only apply to expenses, and not income

7 <http://www.taxableincome.net/extortion/thugs/transcript.html>

8 This deposition devolved into a debate and Larken really carved them up, and by doing so averted being indicted for 26
 9 U.S.C. §6700 Abusive Tax Shelter criminal charges which were simultaneously levied against three other individuals,
 10 including Thurston Bell of Hanover PA, Dave Bossett of FL, and Harold E. Hearn of Atlanta. You can read an article that

12 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/News/11120TXE.PDF>

13 IRS OBJECTION: "The vast majority of the regulations under 861 deal strictly with allocating expenses, deductions and 14 credits, but NOT income. The code sections referenced in 26 CFR §1.861-8(f) are not specifically sources of 15 income, but instead are deductions and allocations."

16 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: "The regulations under 26 U.S.C. §861 and 26 U.S.C. §862 specifically contradict that 17 assertion by saying you must use 26 CFR §1.861-8(f) to determine taxable income both from sources within the 18 federal United States and from sources without the federal United States. They don't say you only use this 19 regulation to allocate deductions or expenses. The regulations also don't say you only use those sections if you're 20 involved in one of these activities. They say you use those sections, 'for determining taxable income from sources
 21 within the United States'. And they say it over and over and over again. You're fishing around in other sections so
 22 you can retroactively back into saying 'well you just use it for this and don't look at it otherwise.' Section 861
 23 does deal with allocating expenses, but it is also used for allocating income to specific taxable sources and 24 activities, and the regulations clearly say that. Both expenses and income must be allocated to the same source,
 25 either within or without, in order to derive taxable income for that source, and 26 U.S.C. §863 does most of that
 26 allocation. Total taxable income equals the taxable income from sources within the federal United States plus
 27 taxable income from sources without the federal United States. If you are going to assert that the only thing that 28 26 U.S.C. §861 does is allocate expenses, then why don't you show me a regulation or statute that says 861 and 29 862 are only used for allocating expenses, instead of both expenses and income. You won't be able to find one
 30 because there isn't one! You're trying to confuse the legal issues because your paycheck relies on people not 31 understanding the law."

32 5.8 Considerations Involving Government Employment Income

33 Do you receive a check from City, County, State or Federal Government? Then on that amount the recommendations in 34 this document do apply in most cases but require further explanation. In Article 1, Section 8, Clause 13, of the Constitution
 35 of the United States, Congress was delegated the authority "to make Rules for the Government." The truth is that the 36 Internal Revenue Code as well as other U.S. Government Codes are merely special Codes created to regulate the U.S.
 37 Government's own employees. IBM has a "Dress Code" that their employees must either adhere to or not work for IBM.
 38 In the same manner, the Government has a Code that demands that "public officers", contractors, and instrumentalities
 39 either pay what is referred to as an official privilege tax (known as "The Income Tax") or not work for, or contract with, the 40 U.S. Government. Citizens engaged in occupations of common right in the American states of the Union are not required
 41 by law to file a 1040 Form or to pay income tax! You have also already learned throughout the preceding sections in this 42 chapter and by examining 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) that when the government is managing its own employees, it doesn't have 43 to write regulations or publish them in the Federal Register like it does for laws that apply to private citizens. That is why 44 most of the enforcement provisions of the Internal Revenue Code that accomplish liens, levies, assessments, etc do not have 45 implementing regulations.

1 Following are some definitions of "employee" and "employer" defined at 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) and "employer" at § 3401(d),

3 *26 U.S.C. §3401(c) Employee. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes an officer, employee,
4 or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia,
5 or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an 6 officer of a corporation.*

7 *26 CFR §31.3401(c)-1. Employee "(a) the term 'employee', includes officers and employees, whether elected
8 or appointed of the United States, a State, Territory, Puerto Rico, or any political subdivision thereof, ...*

9 *c) Generally, physicians, lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, contractors, public stenographers, auctioneers, and 10 others who follow an independent trade, business, or profession, in which they offer their services to the 11 public, are not employees.

12 26 U.S.C. §3401 (d) Employer. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" means the person for whom 13 an individual performs or performed any service, of whatever nature, as the employee of such person.

15 U.S.C. §3401(a) and section 5.6.7 earlier:

16 "For purposes of this chapter, the term 'wages' means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public 17 official) for services performed by an employee for his employer..."

18 This is circular logic designed to deliberately confuse. The term "employee" is defined in 26 CFR §31.3401(c) to mean
19 only elected or appointed officials of the U.S. government, but then the above statutes says that all "employees" other than 20 these are the only ones who receives "wages". Technically then, NO ONE receives "wages" as legally defined! But if we 21 look at the ONLY persons who can have their pay levied in 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) in order to pay off a tax debt, we find once
22 again that it is ONLY public officers and federal instrumentalities, which implies that these are the only persons who are 23 really the subject of Subtitle A income taxes!:

24 TITLE 26 > Subtitle E > CHAPTER 64 > Subchapter D > PART II > Sec. 6331.
25 Sec. 6331. - Levy and distraint

26 (a) Authority of Secretary

27 *If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand,
28 it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the
29 expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under 30 section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of
31 such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of
32 the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the
33 District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such
34 officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in
35 jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon
36 failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period
37 provided in this section.*

38 But why would these people's pay be subject to levy if there is no statute making anyone liable for Subtitle A income
39 taxes? The question confounds us.

40 Some people might say that the definition of federal "employee" is rather restrictive, as demonstrated in 5 U.S.C. §2105.
41 Take the cite below, for instance, from 26 U.S.C. Chapter 24: "Collection of Income Taxes at the Source" (Federal 42 employment tax withholding):

43 Title 5

45 (a) For the purpose of this title, "employee", except as otherwise provided by this section 46 or when specifically modified, means an officer and an individual who is - 47 (1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity -

- 1 (A) the President;
 2 (B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;
 3 (C) a member of a uniformed service;
 4 (D) an individual who is an employee under this section;
 5 (E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or 6 (F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709(c) of 7 title 32;
 8 (2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an 9 Executive act; and
 10 (3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection 11 while engaged in the performance of the duties of his position.

12 [...skipped a few entries since irrelevant...]

13 (d) A Reserve of the armed forces who is not on active duty or who is on active duty for training is deemed not 14 an employee or an individual holding an office of trust or profit or discharging an official function under or in 15 connection with the United States because of his appointment, oath, or status, or any duties or functions
 16 performed or pay or allowances received in that capacity.

17 We have heard people claim that all federal employees meet the definitions above, because they were appointed to federal 18 civil service when they and another government official signed their SF-50 form. They will say that the other government
 19 official who signs the SF-50 form was given the authority to sign their form because the power they had was delegated
 20 to them through a chain of authority that ultimately derives from the president and/or the U.S. Congress. However, we don't 21 support this view because anyone else who is not elected or appointed by the President, Congress, etc. as above was hired
 22 in effect to perform a trade or skill as an occupation of "common right" as we will see shortly. Employees performing an 23 occupation of "common right" do not depend chiefly on the privileges granted to them as an elected or appointed federal 24 employee in order to perform their job. Instead, they are exercising skills they could just as productively employ outside 25 the federal government, probably for greater pay.

26 The Public Salary Tax Act of 1939, was codified in 4 U.S.C. §111. Below is an excerpt from that law which clearly 27 authorizes taxation of federal employees:

28 (a) General Rule. - The United States consents to the taxation of pay or compensation for personal service as an 29 officer or employee of the United States, a territory or possession or political subdivision thereof, the 30 government of the District of Columbia, or an agency or instrumentality of one or more of the foregoing, by a 31 duly constituted taxing authority having jurisdiction, if the taxation does not discriminate against the officer
 32 or employee because of the source of the pay or compensation.

33 What they are saying here is that the U.S. will honor whatever state or local taxes are imposed. It is very important in the 34 above cite to remember, however, that last phrase "if the taxation does not discriminate against the officer or employee
 35 because of the source of pay or compensation." Why is this important? Because 26 U.S.C. §861 and the underlying 36 regulation found in 26 CFR §1.861-8 defines the only authorized "sources" of income that may be taxed by the federal 37 government for the purposes of internal revenue, and we believe they are trying to say here that the taxable "sources" of 38 income are unchanged by virtue of being a federal "employee", and that such employees are to be treated no differently
 39 than private sector employees for the purposes of the graduated federal income tax.

40 Each Federal department and agency is responsible for designating a withholding agent, and the General Accounting Office
 41 has responsibility for making determinations as to whether or not someone is liable for additional obligations ... see 5
 42 U.S.C. §5512, 26 U.S.C. §7401 & 31 U.S.C. §3702, and attending regulations.

43 The income tax for federal "employees" does not rely on the definition of "gross income" at I.R.C. § 61 for the purposes of 44 computing the amount of withholding, which is different than the payment or liability for income taxes. Instead, it defines 45 all remuneration received as wages for the purpose of income tax withholding, which is clearly different from the way
 46 private employers and employees are treated. However, like private employees, (which incidentally are not "employees" 47 within 26 U.S.C.) the withholding still cannot occur without an IRS Form W-4 being completed and signed by the 48 employee giving the government permission to withhold. Why can they legally withhold on all wages, rather than relying
 49 directly on the definition of "gross income" found in I.R.C. section 61? The IRS will tell you that the wages received are a
 50 direct result of the "privileges" granted to federal "employees" who we allege are ONLY elected or appointed to office.
 51 Note that this does NOT apply to employees who are not elected or appointed directly by the Congress or the President, but

1 instead are practicing a trade profession that is of "common right", which we will explain further later. You will also note
 2 that "employees" as defined in 26 CFR §31.3401(c) all work in the District of Columbia, which isn't subject to the same
 3 tax and withholding rules as the rest of the 50 Union states. This face, incidentally, is why they had to define "employees"
 4 the way they did. (Rather twisted, isn't all of this! That's the way lawyers like it because that's where they get their job
 5 security from....COMPLEX LAWS!)

6 The distinction between the Chapter 1 income tax and wages, i.e., two different taxes, or tax sources, is recognized in 7 several court cases, with Commissioner v. Kowalski, 434 U.S. 77 (1977) among them:

8 The income tax is imposed on taxable income, 26 U.S.C. § 1. Generally, this is gross income minus allowable
 9 deductions. 26 U.S.C. § 63(a). Section 61(a) defines as gross income "all income from whatever source
 10 derived" including, under § 61(a)(1), "[c]ompensation for services." The withholding tax, in some contrast, is 11 confined to wages, § 3402(a), and § 3401(a) defines as "wages," all remuneration (other than fees paid to a 12 public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all 13 remuneration paid in any medium other than cash.

14 The two concepts -- income and wages -- obviously are not necessarily the same. All wages of federal "employees" are 15 reported as income by the United States (the federal zone), but remember that the same source rules (e.g. 26 U.S.C. §861)
 16 still apply to federal employees as to private employees as found in the Internal Revenue Code. This means that federal 17 employees can still ask for all the earnings back that they received because it did not derive from a taxable "source".

18 The Department of the Treasury has been helpful in unraveling the long standing income tax scam. Possibly the greatest 19 treasure posted on the Department of the Treasury Internet network is the Treasury Financial Manual, produced by the
 20 Financial Management Service. Volume I, Part 3, Chapter 4000 prescribes the process by which Federal employee taxes are 21 to be collected by the agency, then transferred to IRS:

22 Section 4010 - SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY

23 This chapter prescribes procedures for (1) withholding and depositing Federal income, social security, and 24 Medicare taxes on wages paid to civilian and military employees; (2) for filing tax returns with the Internal 25 Revenue Service (IRS); and (3) for filing income tax statements with the Social Security Administration (SSA).

26 For information beyond the scope of this chapter, refer to IRS Publication 15, Circular E, Employer's Tax
 27 Guide, or an IRS office. Circular E describes employer tax responsibilities; explains withholding, depositing,
 28 and reporting requirements; and paying taxes. It explains the forms your employees must use and those you
 29 must send to the IRS and SSA.

30 Withheld Federal taxes will be transferred to the IRS using the FEDTAX application of the Government-On-line
 31 Accounting Link System (GOALS). Any Federal agency that has not been established on FEDTAX should 32 contact GOALS Marketing, Financial Management Service (FMS), on FTS 874-8788 or 202-874-8788.

33 Withholding of qualified State, county and local taxes, in accordance with 31 CFR § 215, is then prescribed in

35 Section 5010 - SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY

36 This chapter provides instructions for withholding State, city, or county income taxes when an agreement has 37 been reached between a State, city, or county and the Secretary of the Treasury. Agreements between the 38 Secretary of the Treasury and States, cities, or counties prescribe how Federal agencies withhold State, city, or 39 county income or employment taxes from the compensation of Federal employees and Armed Forces members.

41 All of the above leads to another interesting question, however. If the income tax was an indirect excise tax which can only 42 occur on businesses as a tax on sales relating to foreign commerce, then one might well ask:

43 "Why do I get involved at all in paying an income tax or keeping track of liability or payment, if this is 44 supposed to be a tax on my employer and not directly on me? Why do I have to list it in my income tax return at 45 all if it is a tax on my employer and not me? Why isn't the tax invisible to the point where it doesn't affect or 46 reduce my compensation directly at all? Wouldn't it be a 'direct tax' within the meaning of the constitution if it
 47 negatively impacted my compensation as a private employer residing in a state of the Union? Likewise, if it is 48 an excise tax on my employer, then why do I the employee need to sign a W-4 to give my permission to withhold 49 or get directly involved at all in authorizing or deduction of the tax from my pay?"

1 The answer is that the sneaky Congress calls it an indirect excise tax (see Congressional Research Service Report 97-59A
 2 on our website) but lets federal employees treat it like a direct tax, so the government doesn't need to increase your
 3 compensation to adjust for its impact as the direct tax that it really is. Recall that direct taxes are prohibited by the 4 Constitution, as explained in detail in section 3.10.6 and in Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3
 5 of the Constitution. Being a federal employee doesn't change this situation at all, unless the person being paid is an elected
 6 or appointed (by the President) public officer, whose job depends primarily on the authority (and the privileges they 7 contract to obtain by becoming a political officer) they get from their elected office to do their job.

8 Understanding the nature as well as the "source" of the income tax is important. On p. 2580 of the 1943 edition of the 9 Congressional Record-House (March 27), we find the following (which is NOT a law, but is helpful for explanation):

10 "The income tax is, therefore, not a tax on income as such. It is an excise tax with respect to certain activities
 11 and privileges which is measured by reference to the income which they produce. The income is not the subject
 12 of the tax; it is the basis for determining the amount of tax."

13 The term "income tax" is a general classification heading for excise taxes, all of which fall into the indirect tax category.
 14 Even the Federal employee tax is not a tax on the wage, but the wage simply provides a "measure" for the tax. The income
 15 tax on government "employees" is a tax on "privileges" attending Federal employment. However, this leads us to 16 question the meaning of "privilege," since we saw from section 3.18.4 in the case of Sims v. Ahrens, 271 S.W. 720
 17 (1925) that:

18 "An income tax is neither a property tax nor a tax on occupations of common right, but is an EXCISE tax...The 19 legislature may declare as 'privileged' and tax as such for state revenue, those pursuits not matters of common
 20 right, but it has no power to declare as a 'privilege' and tax for revenue purposes, occupations that are of 21 common right."

22 What does "occupations that are of common right" mean? Our understanding is that it includes any profession you can 23 choose to do or undertake in private industry in any field or trade and which do not depend on the authority granted you as 24 part of a political office. Occupations that are not of common right are things you can only do as an elected or appointed
 25 officer or politician working for a government agency by virtue of the rights and privileges and delegated authority granted
 26 to you as a consequence of your election or appointment to that political office. That is why the definition of "employee" in 27 5 U.S.C. §2105 quoted above is so very restrictive: because it has to define "occupations that are not of common right and 28 which depend on the privileges associated with government service alone".

29 Following is an example of the rambling verbiage of "terms" the Internal Revenue Code drafters created to try to hide the 30 fact that the earnings of private Citizens are not taxable under the law. They could have just as easily summed up the 31 following in one regulation that read, "Only elected or appointed government officials are liable for the graduated income 32 tax imposed in Section 1 of Subtitle A of Title 26".

33 26 U.S.C. §871(b)(2)-GRADUATED RATE OF TAX

34 "...(2) DETERMINATION OF TAXABLE INCOME.—In determining taxable income...gross income includes 35 ONLY gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a 'trade or business,' within the United 36 States."

37 _____
 38 26 U.S.C. §864(b) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.— (b) Trade or business within the United States

39 For purposes of this part, part II, and chapter 3, the term "trade or business within the United States" includes 40 the performance of personal services within the United States at any time within the taxable year, but does not* 41 include –

42 _____
 43 26 CFR Sec. 1.469-9 Rules for certain rental real estate activities.

44 (b)(4) PERSONAL SERVICES. Personal services means any work performed by an individual in connection
 45 with a trade or business. However, personal services do not include any work performed by an individual in 46 the individual's capacity as an investor as described in section 1.469-5T(f)(2)(ii).

26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) TRADE OR BUSINESS.—“Includes [only] the performance of functions of a public office.”

Following is the definition of Public Office, pursuant to Black's Law Dictionary, Abridged Sixth Edition, means:

“Essential characteristics of a ‘public office’ are: (1) authority conferred by law, (2) fixed tenure of office, and (3) power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government; key element of such test is that ‘officer is carrying out sovereign function’. Essential elements to establish public position as ‘public office’ are: Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislation, portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position, duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority, duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and position must have some permanency.”

Therefore, to be involved in a “trade or business”, as defined for the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code, an American must hold a public office.

Administration of Internal Revenue Code (I.R.C.) Chapter 24 "employment taxes" , qualified State, county and local taxes, and other Federal personnel obligations (not related to federal income taxes), is under authority of 5 U.S.C. §§5512-5520a, not Subtitle F of the Internal Revenue Code generally. However, these sections only apply to parties who are either subject to State or local income tax or are in arrears to the U.S. Government for overpayment of wages or legal judgments, and DO NOT relate to the collection of income taxes that come under Title 26, the Internal Revenue Code.

1. Elected or appointed federal "employees" as defined legally in 5 U.S.C. §2105, are the only ones subject to graduated income tax withholding under the I.R.C. Chapter 24, and the withholding is on all compensation or wages received, regardless of source.
2. All income tax withholding, including that on federal “employees” (meaning elected or appointed officers of the U.S. government) is entirely voluntary and cannot be coerced because of limitations imposed by the Fifth Amendment that require that no person can be deprived of their property without due process of law or just compensation, unless they volunteer to give it away, in which case it is a donation and not a tax.
3. The fact that Subtitle C employment taxes are withheld for federal employees doesn't necessarily make them “liable” to pay income taxes under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. As a matter of fact, Subtitle C employment taxes, as we discussed in section 5.6.8, Subtitle C employment withholding taxes are classified legally as “gifts” to the U.S. government! Federal employees can and should ask for all their employment withholding taxes back at the end of the year just like a private Citizen can, and they can still claim the same 26 U.S.C. §861 “source” issues and other issues in this chapter as their basis just like private citizens and everyone else.
4. The reason the federal withholding tax rules for federal "employees" can be different from private sector employees in the 50 Union states is that all income of these "employees" is incident exclusively on the privileges of the elected political office they hold and are not a matter of "common right" nor are they associated with a commercial trade or profession. (see Sims v. Ahrens 271 SW 720 and others for more details).
5. Federal employees have a statutory obligation to pay social security taxes because of the retirement system they fall under. The statutory authority for this requirement comes from 5 U.S.C. §8422. This statute creates a “presumption” that they consent to contribute to the Social Security Program but they can rebut that presumption by providing a written, notarized affidavit to their federal employer. Technically and legally, this should be all the notification needed for federal or other government employers to stop contributing to the Social Security Program. Doing this does not terminate your right to collect benefits based on what you contributed up to that point. As long as you have 10 years or 40 quarters of participation, you qualify for full benefits without contributing further under the SSA program.
6. There are no references anywhere in Title 26 that indicate that the code DOES NOT apply to federal employees.
7. Federal employees can and should ask for all their employment withholding taxes back at the end of the year just like a private Citizen can, and they can still claim the same 26 U.S.C. §861 “source” issues and other issues raised in this chapter as their basis just like private Citizens and everyone else.

5.9 So What Would Have to be Done to the Constitution to Make Direct Income Taxes Legal?

1 A question that often arises is the question about what it would take to allow Congress to constitutionally impose the tax
2 that the American public believes already exists? Could they not "fix" the law somehow, to make it apply to all Americans?

3 (One obstacle to this would be accomplishing it without anyone noticing, since an admission of the true purpose of such an
4 endeavor would also be an admission that some in the federal government have already committed several trillion dollars'
5 worth of fraud and extortion. Even if they could impose such a tax in the future, they could not retroactively undo the 6 fraud of the past.)

7 If the Sixteenth Amendment didn't authorize Congress to directly tax the income of all Americans, what would it take to 8 amend the Constitution to allow it? In short, it could not be done without repealing most of the Constitution. Because such a
9 tax would necessarily constitute a massive regulation of behavior, behavior that is not under federal jurisdiction, the Tenth
10 Amendment would first need to be repealed.

11 After that, Article I would have to be amended (and in effect, destroyed) by saying that Congress can regulate any behavior
12 it wants within the 50 Union states, as long as it does it through "tax" legislation. To do this would, in the words of the 13 Supreme Court, "break down all constitutional limitation of the powers of Congress and completely wipe out the 14 sovereignty of the states." It would mean the end of the Constitution, the end of the Union, the end of the 50 Union states,
15 and the institution of a centralized police power. It cannot be done.

16 (Incidentally, for the same reasons, the entire debate over a flat income tax, a national sales tax, or any similar 17 "replacement" for the current tax Code, is entirely pointless, as the limits on Congress' taxing power would limit all of 18 these (and anything similar) to commerce under federal jurisdiction, i.e. international and foreign commerce.)

19 5.10 Abuse of Legal Ignorance and Presumption: Weapon of tyrants

20 5.10.1 Application of "innocent until proven guilty" maxim of American Law

21 A well-known and universal rule of American Jurisprudence throughout the states and federal government that nearly 22 everyone is aware of is the following, elucidated by the Supreme Court:

24 in his opinion for the Court in Estelle v. Williams, 425 U.S. 501 (1976): [507 U.S. 284]:

25 The presumption of innocence, although not articulated in the Constitution, is a basic component of 26 a fair trial under our system of criminal justice. Long ago this Court stated:

27 The principle that there is a presumption of innocence in favor of the accused is the undoubted law, 28 axiomatic and elementary, and its enforcement lies at the foundation of the administration of our

30 To implement the presumption, courts must be alert to factors that may undermine the fairness of the factfinding
31 process. In the administration of criminal justice, courts must carefully guard against dilution of the principle
32 that guilt is to be established by probative evidence and beyond a reasonable doubt. In re Winship, 397 U.S.
33 358, 364 (1970). [425 U.S. 501, 504]
34 [Delo v. Lashely, 507 U.S. 272 (1993)]

35 The implication of this rule to the interpretation of law is that the law must state clearly and unambiguously what conduct is 36 prohibited and what specific conduct is required.

37 "The purpose of law cannot be to compel confusion. The reason for this is that the purpose of law is to protect 38 by defining for the person of average intelligence exactly what behavior is required in order to sustain an 39 orderly society free from crime, injury, and duress."
40 [Family Guardian Fellowship]

41 The Supreme Court defined why laws must be written specifically for the audience of ordinary Americans when it stated:

42 "whether right or wrong, the premise underlying the constitutional method for determining guilt or innocence in 43 federal courts is that laymen are better than specialists [such as judges and lawyers] to perform this task."
44 [United States ex rel. Toth v. Quarles, 350 U.S. 11, 18 (1955)]

The innocent until proven guilty rule is a “rule of presumption”. It requires that a jury must presume the Defendant is not guilty until evidence is produced which clearly and unambiguously demonstrates otherwise. Any presumption to the contrary will prejudice the rights of the Defendant and is a violation of due process:

(1) [8:4993] Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests: A conclusive presumption may be defeated where its application would impair a party's constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party's due process and equal protection rights. [Vlandis v. Kline (1973) 412 US 441, 449, 93 S.Ct 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. LaFleur (1974) 414 US 632, 639-640, 94 S.Ct. 1208, 1215-presumption under Illinois law that unmarried fathers are unfit violates process]
[Rutter Group Practice Guide-Federal Civil Trials and Evidence, paragraph 8:4993, page 8K-34]

5.10.2 Role of Law and Presumption in Proving Guilt

Among the types of evidence that may be introduced in a court setting to establish guilt include quoting the enacted law itself. Evidence based upon “law” only becomes admissible when the law cited is “positive law”.

“Positive law. Law actually and specifically enacted or adopted by proper authority for the government of an organized jural society. See also Legislation.”
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1162]

Evidence that is NOT positive law, becomes “prima facie” evidence, which means that it is “presumed” to be evidence unless challenged or rebutted:

§ 204. Codes and Supplements as evidence of the laws of United States and District of Columbia; citation of Codes and Supplements

In all courts, tribunals, and public offices of the United States, at home or abroad, of the District of Columbia, and of each State, Territory, or insular possession of the United States—

(a) United States Code.— The matter set forth in the edition of the Code of Laws of the United States current at any time shall, together with the then current supplement, if any, establish prima facie the laws of the United States, general and permanent in their nature, in force on the day preceding the commencement of the session following the last session the legislation of which is included: Provided, however, That whenever titles of such Code shall have been enacted into positive law the text thereof shall be legal evidence of the laws therein contained, in all the courts of the United States, the several States, and the Territories and insular possessions of the United States.

The above statute, which is “positive law”, establishes what is called a “statutory presumption” that courts are obligated to observe. The statute above creates the notion of “prima facie” evidence. “Prima facie evidence” is defined below:

“Prima facie evidence. Evidence good and sufficient on its face. Such evidence as, in the judgment of the law, is sufficient to establish a given fact, or the group or chain of facts constituting the party's claim or defense, and which if not rebutted or contradicted, will remain sufficient. Evidence which, if unexplained or uncontradicted, is sufficient to sustain a judgment in favor of the issue which it supports, but which may be contradicted by other evidence. State v. Haremza, 213 Kan. 201, 515 P.2d 1217, 1222.

That quantum of evidence that suffices for proof of a particular fact until the fact is contradicted by other evidence; once a trier of fact is faced with conflicting evidence, it must weigh the prima facie evidence with all the other probative evidence presented. Godesky v. Provo City Corp., Utah, 690 P.2d 541, 547. Evidence which, standing alone and unexplained, would maintain the proposition and warrant the conclusion to support which it is introduced. An inference or presumption of law, affirmative or negative of a fact, in the absence of proof, or until proof can be obtained or produced to overcome the inference. See also Presumptive evidence.”
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1190]

“presumption. An inference in favor of a particular fact. A presumption is a rule of law, statutory or judicial, by which finding of a basic fact gives rise to existence of presumed fact, until presumption is rebutted. Van Wart v. Cook, Okl.App., 557 P.2d 1161, 1163. A legal device which operates in the absence of other proof to require that certain inferences be drawn from the available evidence. Port Terminal & Warehousing Co. v. John S. James Co., D.C.Ga., 92 F.R.D. 100, 106.

1 A presumption is an assumption of fact that the law requires to be made from another fact or group of facts
 2 found or otherwise established in the action. A presumption is not evidence. A presumption is either conclusive
 3 or rebuttable. Every rebuttable presumption is either (a) a presumption affecting the burden of producing 4 evidence or (b) a presumption affecting the burden of proof. Calif.Evid.Code, §600.

5 In all civil actions and proceedings not otherwise provided for by Act of Congress or by the Federal Rules of 6 Evidence, a presumption imposes on the party against whom it is directed the burden of going forward with 7 evidence to rebut or meet the presumption, but does not shift to such party the burden of proof in the sense of 8 the risk of nonpersuasion, which remains throughout the trial upon the party on whom it was originally cast.
 9 Federal Evidence Rule 301.

10 See also Disputable presumption; inference; Juris et de jure; Presumptive evidence; Prima facie; Raise a 11 presumption."
 12 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1185]

13 A "statutory presumption" is one that occurs in a court of law because it is mandated by a positive law statute. The U.S.
 14 Supreme Court has said that "statutory presumptions" which prejudice constitution rights are forbidden:

15 "A rebuttable presumption clearly is a rule of evidence which has the effect of shifting the burden of proof, 16 Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Turnipseed, 219 U.S. 35, 43, 31 S. Ct. 136, 32 L. R. A. (N. S.) 226, Ann. Cas.
 17 1912A, 463; and it is hard to see how a statutory rebuttable presumptions is turned from a rule of evidence
 18 into a rule of substantive law as the result of a later statute making it conclusive. In both cases it is a 19 substitute for proof; in the one open to challenge and disproof, and in the other conclusive. However,
 20 whether the latter presumption be treated as a rule of evidence or of substantive law, it constitutes an 21 attempt, by legislative fiat, to enact into existence a fact which here does not, and cannot be made to, exist in 22 actuality, and the result is the same, unless we are ready to overrule the Schlesinger Case, as we are not; for 23 that case dealt with a conclusive presumption, and the court held it invalid without regard to the question of its 24 technical characterization. This court has held more than once that a statute creating a presumption which 25 operates to deny a fair opportunity to rebut it violates the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.
 26 For example, Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U.S. 219, 238, et seq., 31 S. Ct. 145; Manley v. Georgia, 279 U.S. 1, 5-6,
 27 49 S. Ct. 215.

28 'It is apparent,' this court said in the Bailey Case (219 U.S. 239, 31 S. Ct. 145, 151) 'that a 29 constitutional prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory 30 presumption any more than it can be violated by direct enactment. The power to create 31 presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions.'

32 "If a legislative body is without power to enact as a rule of evidence a statute denying a litigant the right to 33 prove the facts of his case, certainly the power cannot be made to emerge by putting the enactment in the guise 34 of a rule of substantive law."
 35 [Heiner v. Donnan, 285 U.S. 312 (1932)]

37 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 76 > Subchapter E > § 7491
 38 § 7491. Burden of proof

39 (a) Burden shifts where taxpayer produces credible evidence

40 (1) General rule

41 If, in any court proceeding, a taxpayer introduces credible evidence with respect to any factual issue relevant to
 42 ascertaining the liability of the taxpayer for any tax imposed by subtitle A or B, the Secretary shall have the 43 burden of proof with respect to such issue.

44 (2) Limitations

45 Paragraph (1) shall apply with respect to an issue only if—

46 (A) the taxpayer has complied with the requirements under this title to substantiate any item;

47 (B) the taxpayer has maintained all records required under this title and has cooperated with reasonable
 48 requests by the Secretary for witnesses, information, documents, meetings, and interviews; and

49 (C) in the case of a partnership, corporation, or trust, the taxpayer is described in section 7430 \(c\)\(4\)\(A\)\(ii\).

Subparagraph (C) shall not apply to any qualified revocable trust (as defined in section 645 (b)(1)) with respect to liability for tax for any taxable year ending after the date of the decedent's death and before the applicable date (as defined in section 645 (b)(2)).

(3) Coordination

Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any issue if any other provision of this title provides for a specific burden of proof with respect to such issue.

5.10.3 Statutory Presumptions that Injure Rights are Unconstitutional

The terms 'include' and 'including' when used in a definition contained in this title shall not be deemed to exclude other things otherwise within the meaning of the term defined."

"Any definition which uses the word 'includes' shall be construed to imply not only what is shown in the statute and the code itself, but also what is commonly understood for the term to mean or whatever any government employee deems is necessary to fulfill what he believes is the intent of the code."

We know that the above presumption is unconstitutional and if applied as intended, would violate the Void for Vagueness Doctrine described later in section 5.10.6 and following. It would also violate the rules of statutory construction described earlier in section 3.8 that say:

1. The purpose for defining a word within a statute is so that its ordinary (dictionary) meaning is not implied or assumed by the reader.
2. When a term is defined within a statute, that definition is provided usually to supersede and not enlarge other definitions of the word found elsewhere, such as in other Titles or Codes.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled many times that statutory presumptions which prejudice or threaten constitutional rights are unconstitutional. Below are a few of its rulings on this subject to make the meaning perfectly clear:

"Legislation declaring that proof of one fact of group of facts shall constitute prima facie evidence of an ultimate fact in issue is valid if there is a rational connection between what is proved and what is to be inferred. A prima facie presumption casts upon the person against whom it is applied the duty of going forward with his evidence on the particular point to which the presumption relates. A statute creating a presumption that is arbitrary, or that operates to deny a fair opportunity to repel it, violates the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Legislative fiat may not take the place of fact in the judicial determination of issues involving life, liberty, or property. Manley v. Georgia, 279 U.S. 1, 49 S. Ct. 215, 73 L. Ed. -, and cases cited."

"[I]t is unconstitutional for a legislature to remove from the jury the assessment of facts that increase the prescribed range of penalties to which a criminal defendant is exposed. It is equally clear that such facts must be established by proof beyond a reasonable doubt."
[McMillan v. Pennsylvania, 477 U.S. 79 (1986)]

It has always been recognized that the guaranty of trial by jury in criminal cases means that the jury is to be the factfinder. This is the only way in which a jury can perform its basic constitutional function of determining the guilt or innocence of a defendant. See, e. g., United States ex rel. Toth v. Quarles, 350 U.S. 11, 15 -19; Reid v. Covert, 354 U.S. 1, 5 -10 (opinion announcing judgment). And of course this constitutionally established power of a jury to determine guilt or innocence of a defendant charged with crime cannot be taken away by Congress, directly or indirectly, in whole or in part. Obviously, a necessary part of this power, vested by the Constitution in juries (or in judges when juries are waived), is the exclusive right to decide whether evidence presented at trial is sufficient to convict. I think it flaunts the constitutional power of courts and juries for Congress to tell

1 them what "shall be deemed sufficient evidence to authorize conviction." And if Congress could not thus directly
 2 encroach upon the judge's or jury's exclusive right to declare what evidence is sufficient to prove the facts
 3 necessary for conviction, it should not be allowed to do so merely by labeling its encroachment a
 4 "presumption." Neither Tot v. United States, 319 U.S. 463, relied [380 U.S. 63, 78] on by the Court as 5 supporting this presumption, nor any case cited in Tot approved such an encroachment on the power of judges
 6 or juries. In fact, so far as I can tell, the problem of whether Congress can so restrict the power of court and 7 jury in a criminal case in a federal court has never been squarely presented to or considered by this Court,
 8 perhaps because challenges to presumptions have arisen in many crucially different contexts but 9 nevertheless have generally failed to distinguish between presumptions used in different ways, treating them
 10 as if they are either all valid or all invalid, regardless of the rights on which their use may impinge. Because 11 the Court also fails to differentiate among the different circumstances in which presumptions may be utilized
 12 and the different consequences which will follow, I feel it necessary to say a few words on that subject before 13 considering specifically the validity of the use of these presumptions in the light of the circumstances and 14 consequences of their use.

15 In its simplest form a presumption is an inference permitted or required by law of the existence of one fact,
 16 which is unknown or which cannot be proved, from another fact which has been proved. The fact presumed 17 may be based on a very strong probability, a weak supposition or an arbitrary assumption. The burden on the 18 party seeking to prove the fact may be slight, as in a civil suit, or very heavy - proof beyond a reasonable doubt
 19 - as in a criminal prosecution. This points up the fact that statutes creating presumptions cannot be treated as 20 fungible, that is, as interchangeable for all uses and all purposes. The validity of each presumption must be 21 determined in the light of the particular consequences that flow from its use. When matters of trifling
 22 moment are involved, presumptions may be more freely accepted, but when consequences of vital importance
 23 to litigants and to the administration of justice are at stake, a more careful scrutiny is necessary. [380 U.S.
 24 63, 79]

25 In judging the constitutionality of legislatively created presumptions this Court has evolved an initial 26 criterion which applies alike to all kinds of presumptions: that before a presumption may be relied on, there
 27 must be a rational connection between the facts inferred and the facts which have been proved by competent 28 evidence, that is, the facts proved must be evidence which is relevant, tending to prove (though not 29 necessarily conclusively) the existence of the fact presumed. And courts have undoubtedly shown an 30 inclination to be less strict about the logical strength of presumptive inferences they will permit in civil cases
 31 than about those which affect the trial of crimes. The stricter scrutiny in the latter situation follows from the 32 fact that the burden of proof in a civil lawsuit is ordinarily merely a preponderance of the evidence, while in 33 a criminal case where a man's life, liberty, or property is at stake, the prosecution must prove his guilt
 34 beyond a reasonable doubt. See Morrison v. California, 291 U.S. 82, 96-97. The case of Bailey v. Alabama,
 35 219 U.S. 219, is a good illustration of this principle. There Bailey was accused of violating an Alabama statute
 36 which made it a crime to fail to perform personal services after obtaining money by contracting to perform
 37 them, with an intent to defraud the employer. The statute also provided that refusal or failure to perform the 38 services, or to refund money paid for them, without just cause, constituted "prima facie evidence" (i. e., gave 39 rise to a presumption) of the intent to injure or defraud. This Court, after calling attention to prior cases 40 dealing with the requirement of rationality, passed over the test of rationality and held the statute invalid on 41 another ground. Looking beyond the rational-relationship doctrine the Court held that the use of this 42 presumption by Alabama against a man accused of crime would amount to a violation of the Thirteenth
 43 Amendment to the Constitution, which forbids "involuntary [380 U.S. 63, 80] servitude, except as a 44 punishment for crime." In so deciding the Court made it crystal clear that rationality is only the first hurdle 45 which a legislatively created presumption must clear - that a presumption, even if rational, cannot be used to 46 convict a man of crime if the effect of using the presumption is to deprive the accused of a constitutional 47 right.
 48 [United States v. Gainly, 380 U.S. 63 (1965)]

49 The reason a statutory presumption that injures rights is unconstitutional was also revealed in the Federalist Papers, which 50 say on the subject:

51 "No legislative act [including a statutory presumption] contrary to the Constitution can be valid. To deny this 52 would be to affirm that the deputy (agent) is greater than his principal; that the servant is above the master;
 53 that the representatives of the people are superior to the people; that men, acting by virtue of powers may do
 54 not only what their powers do not authorize, but what they forbid...[text omitted] It is not otherwise to be 55 supposed that the Constitution could intend to enable the representatives of the people to substitute their will 56 to that of their constituents. It is far more rational to suppose, that the courts were designed to be an 57 intermediate body between the people and the legislature, in order, among other things, to keep the latter within 58 the limits assigned to their authority. The interpretation of the laws is the proper and peculiar province of the 59 courts. A Constitution is, in fact, and must be regarded by judges, as fundamental law. If there should 60 happen to be an irreconcilable variance between the two, the Constitution is to be preferred to the statute."
 61 [Alexander Hamilton, Federalist Paper # 78]

62 The implication of the prohibition against statutory presumptions is that:

- 1 1. No natural person who is domiciled within a state of the Union and protected by the Bill of Rights may be victimized
- 2 or injured in any way by any kind of statutory presumption.
- 3 2. Statutory presumptions may only be applied against legal “persons” who do not have Constitutional rights, which
- 4 means corporations or those natural persons who are domiciled in the federal zone, meaning on land within exclusive
- 5 federal jurisdiction that is not protected by the First Ten Amendments to the United States Constitution. See Downes
- 6 v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901).
- 7 3. Any court which uses “judge made law” to do any of the following in the case of a natural person protected by the Bill
- 8 of Rights is involved in a conspiracy against rights:
 - 9 3.1. Imposes a statutory presumption.
 - 10 3.2. Extends or enlarges any definition in the Internal Revenue Code based on any arbitrary criteria.
 - 11 3.3. Invokes an interpretation of a definition within a code which may not be deduced directly from language in the
 - 12 code itself.

13 The above inferences help establish who the only proper audience for the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A is, which is 14 federal corporations, payments from the federal government, and those domiciled within the federal zone but not within 15 states of the Union. The reason is that those domiciled in the federal zone are not protected by the Bill of Rights. The only
 16 exception to this rule is that any natural person who is domiciled in a state of the Union but who is exercising agency of a
 17 federal corporation or legal “person” which has a domicile within the federal zone also may become the lawful subject of 18 statutory presumptions, but only in the context of the agency he is exercising. For instance, we demonstrate in the 19 following:

20 Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee
 21 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/SSTrustIndenture.pdf>

22 . . .that those participating in the Social Security program are deemed to be “agents”, “employees”, and “fiduciaries” of the 23 federal corporation called the United States, which has a “domicile” in the federal zone (District of Columbia) under 4
 24 U.S.C. §72. Therefore, unless and until they eliminate said agency using the above document, statutory presumptions may 25 be used against them without an unconstitutional result, but only in the context of the agency they are exercising.

26 5.10.4 Purpose of Due Process: To completely remove “presumption” from legal proceedings

27 All presumption which prejudices a right guaranteed by the Constitution represents a violation of Constitutional Due 28 Process. The only exception to this rule is if the Defendant is not covered by the Constitution because:

29 Domiciled in areas not covered by the Bill of Rights, such as federal territories, possessions, and the federal areas within 30 the states. These areas are called the “federal zone” in this book.
 31 Exercising agency of a corporation that is domiciled in the federal zone.

32 The above is also confirmed by reading Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 17(b) , which says that the law to be applied
 33 in a civil case must derive either from the law of the parties’ domicile or from the domicile of the corporation they are 34 acting as an agent for.

35 According to the Bible, “presumption” also happens to be a Biblical sin in violation of God’s law as well, which should 36 result in the banishment of a person from his society:

37 “But the person who does anything presumptuously, whether he is native-born or a stranger, that one brings 38 reproach on the LORD, and he shall be cut off from among his people.”
 39 [Numbers 15:30, Bible, NKJV]

41 “Keep back Your servant also from presumptuous sins; Let them not have dominion over me. Then I shall be 42 blameless, And I shall be innocent of great transgression.”
 43 [Psalms 19:13, Bible, NKJV]

 45 “Now the man who acts presumptuously and will not heed the priest who stands to minister there before the 46 LORD your God, or the judge, that man shall die. So you shall put away the evil from Israel. 13 And all the 47 people shall hear and fear, and no longer act presumptuously.”

1 [\[Deut. 17:12-13, Bible, NKJV\]](#)

2 We have therefore established that “presumption” is something we should try very hard to avoid, because it is a violation of 3 both man’s law AND God’s law. As a matter of fact, a whole book has been written about how “presumption” is 4 systematically promoted and exploited by your public servants to destroy the separation of powers and unlawfully enlarge
5 federal jurisdiction:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6 The chief purpose of Constitutional “due process” is therefore to completely remove bias and the presumption that produces
7 it from every legal proceeding in a court of law. This is done by:

- 8 1. Preventing the application of any “statutory presumptions” that might prejudice the rights of the Defendant.
- 9 2. Insisting that every conclusion is based on physical and non-presumptive (not “prima facie”) evidence.
- 10 3. To apply the same rules of evidence equally against both parties.
- 11 4. Choosing jurists who are free from bias or prejudice during the voir dire (jury selection) process.
- 12 5. Choosing judges who are free from bias or prejudice during the voir dire process.
- 13 6. Counsel on both sides ensuring that all presumptions made by the opposing party are challenged in a timely manner at 14 all phases of the litigation.

15 You can tell when presumptions are being prejudicially used in a legal proceeding in federal court, for instance, when:

- 16 1. The judge or either party uses any of the following phrases:
 - 17 1.1. “Everyone knows. . .”
 - 18 1.2. “You knew or should have known...”
 - 19 1.3. “A reasonable [presumptuous] person would have concluded otherwise...”
- 20 2. The judge does not exclude the I.R.C. from evidence in the case involving a person who:
 - 21 2.1. Is not domiciled in the federal zone.
 - 22 2.2. Has no employment, contracts, or agency with the federal government.
 - 23 2.3. Who has provided evidence of the same above.
- 24 3. The judge allows the Prosecutor to throw accusations at the Defendant in front of the jury without insisting on evidence 25 to back it up.
- 26 4. The judge admits into evidence or cites a statutory presumption that prejudices your rights.

27 “It is apparent, this court said in the Bailey Case (219 U.S. 239, 31 S. Ct. 145, 151) ‘that a constitutional 28 prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory presumption any more than it can be 29 violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional 30 restrictions.”

31 *[Heiner v. Donnan, 285 U.S. 312 (1932); Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U.S. 219, 238, et seq., 31 S. Ct. 145; Manley
32 v. Georgia, 279 U.S. 1, 5-6, 49 S. Ct. 215.]*

- 33 5. A judge challenges your choice of domicile and/or citizenship. In such a case, the court is illegally involving itself in 34 what actually are strictly political matters and what is called “political questions”. One’s choice of domicile is a 35 political matter that may not be coerced or presumed to be anything other than what the subject himself has clearly and 36 unambiguously stated, both orally and on government forms. See our free memorandum of law below:

Political Jurisdiction, Form #05.004
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

38 case as follows:

- 39 1. They will choose a jury that is misinformed or under-informed about the law and legal process. This makes them into 40 sheep who will follow anyone.
- 41 2. They will use the ignorance and prejudices and the presumptions of the jury as a weapon to manipulate them into 42 becoming an angry “lynch mob” with a vendetta against the Defendant. This was the same thing that they did to Jesus.

1 See the Section 5.4.3.5 entitled "Modern Tax Trials are religious 'inquisitions' and not valid legal processes" available
 2 at: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/GreatIRSHoax/GreatIRSHoax.htm>.

- 3 3. They will make frequent use of "words of art" to deceive the jury into making false presumptions that will prejudice
 4 the rights of the defendant.

 6 [New York Times v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964)]
 7

8 Most of these Some of these "words of art" are identified in the sections 3.9.1 through 3.9.1.27 of this book.

- 9 4. They will:

10 4.1. Avoid defining the words they are using.

11 4.2. Prevent evidence of the meaning of the words they are using from entering the court record or the deliberations.

12 Federal judges will help them with this process by insisting that "law" may not be discussed in the courtroom.

13 A good judge will ensure that the above prejudice does not happen, because it is primary duty to defend and protect the 14 Constitutional rights of the parties. He must especially do so where the matter involves taxation and where there is no jury
 15 or where any one in the jury is either a "taxpayer" or a recipient of government benefits. He will do so in order to avoid 16 violation of 18 U.S.C. §597, which forbids bribing of voters, since jurists are a type of voter. However, in practice we have 17 observed that there are not have many good judges who will be this honorable in the context of a tax trial because their pay
 18 and retirement, they think, depends on a vigorous illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code in violation of 28
 19 U.S.C. §455.

20 TITLE 28 > PART I > CHAPTER 21 > § 455
 21 § 455. Disqualification of justice, judge, or magistrate judge

22 (a) Any justice, judge, or magistrate judge of the United States shall disqualify himself in any proceeding in 23 which his impartiality might reasonably be questioned.

24 (b) He shall also disqualify himself in the following circumstances:

26 (4) He knows that he, individually or as a fiduciary, or his spouse or minor child residing in his household, has 27 a financial interest in the subject matter in controversy or in a party to the proceeding, or any other interest
 28 that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding;

29 Most of the injustice that occurs in federal courtrooms across the country relating to income taxation occurs primarily 30 because the above statute is violated. This statute wasn't always violated. It was only in the 1930's that federal judges
 31 became "taxpayers". Before that, they were completely independent, which is why most people were not "taxpayers"
 32 before that. For details on this corruption of our judiciary, see sections 6.5.15, 6.5.18, 6.8.2 through 6.9.12:

33 <http://famguardian.org/Publications/GreatIRSHoax/GreatIRSHoax.htm>

34 The U.S. Supreme Court has declared that judges must be alert to prevent such unconstitutional encroachments upon the 35 sacred Constitutional Rights of those domiciled in the states of the Union, when it gave the following warning, which has 36 gone largely unheeded by federal circuit and district courts since then:

37 "It may be that it...is the obnoxious thing in its mildest and least repulsive form; but illegitimate and
 38 unconstitutional practices get their first footing in that way; namely, by silent approaches and slight
 39 deviations from legal modes of procedure. This can only be obviated by adhering to the rule that 40 constitutional provisions for the security of person and property should be liberally construed. A close and 41 literal construction deprives them of half their efficacy, and leads to gradual depreciation of the right, as if it
 42 consisted more in sound than in substance. It is the duty of the courts to be watchful for the constitutional
 43 rights of the citizens, and against any stealthy encroachments thereon. Their motto should be obsta
 44 principalis," [Mr. Justice Brewer, dissenting, quoting Mr. Justice Bradley in Boyd v. United States, 116 U.S.
 46 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

47 If you would like to read more authorities on the subject of "presumption", see:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/presumption.htm>

Another very important point needs to be made about the subject of “presumption”, which is that “presumption”, when it is left to operate unchecked in a federal court proceeding:

1. Has all the attributes of religious “faith”. Religious faith is simply a belief in anything that can’t be demonstrated with physical evidence absent presumption.
2. Turns the courtroom into a federal “church”, and the judge into a “priest”.
3. Produces a “political religion” when exercised in the courtroom.
4. Corrupts the court and makes it essentially into a political, and not a legal tribunal.
5. Violates the separation of powers doctrine, which was put in place to protect our rights from such encroachments.

If you would like to investigate the fascinating matter further of how the abuse of presumption in federal courtrooms has the affect of creating a state-sponsored religion in violation of the First Amendment Establishment Clause, please consult sections 5.4 through 5.4.6.6 earlier.

5.10.5 Application of “Expressio unius est exclusio alterius” rule

[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

The above important rule establishes that what is not enumerated in law can safely be ignored. The Supreme court has said about the above rule:

1. That it is a rule of statutory construction and interpretation, and not a substantive law. See U.S. v. Barnes, 222 U.S. 513 (1912).
2. That the rule can never override clear and contrary evidences of Congressional intent. See Neuberger v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 311 U.S. 83 (1940).
3. A few exceptions to the Exclusio Rule were made in the following cases:
 - 3.1. Springer v. Government of the Philippine Islands, 277 U.S. 189 (1928)
 - 3.2. U.S. v. Barnes, 222 U.S. 513 (1912)
 - 3.3. Neuberger v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 311 U.S. 83 (1940)

5.10.6 Scams with the Word “includes”

One very frequently used trick the IRS likes to pull on uninformed Americans is to abuse the word “includes” to confuse people and illegally expand their jurisdiction. They will attempt to do this using essentially statutory presumptions, which we showed earlier were unconstitutional. Their false argument is based on the definition of “includes” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(c\) :

Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(c) Includes and including

The terms “includes” and “including” when used in a definition contained in this title shall not be deemed to exclude other things otherwise within the meaning of the term defined.

They will point to this definition, and then say that any word whose definition uses this word essentially isn’t bounded or defined by that definition and can be arbitrarily expanded to include other things not listed. They will then try to apply this false concept to the several places that “includes” is used in the Internal Revenue Code, most importantly in the definitions of the following words:

- 1 • “State” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(10\) and 4 U.S.C. §110
- 2 • “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\)
- 3 • “employee” found in 26 U.S.C. §3401\(c\) and 26 CFR §31.3401\(c\) Employee
- 4 • “person” found in 26 CFR §301.6671-1 (which governs who is liable for penalties under Internal Revenue Code)

5 If you are using the nonresident alien position, they will point to the definition of the term “United States” found in 26
 6 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and say that it can mean anyplace in the country, because the definition uses the word “includes” and 7 therefore can be “expansive” and apply anywhere. Ridiculous nonsense! You must first realize that this flagrant abuse of 8 our language and of the meaning of the word “includes” is part of an obfuscation approach designed by Congress and the 9 IRS to illegally expand the jurisdiction of the federal government to assess I.R.C. Subtitle A income taxes beyond their 10 clear constitutional limits and beyond federal property or territories and into the 50 sovereign states. It violates common
 11 sense, and every other use of the word “includes” in the English language we ever learned throughout our lifetime. It also 12 violates the government’s own definition of the word “includes” published in the Federal Register, :

13 Treasury Decision 3980, Vol. 29, January-December, 1927, pgs. 64 and 65 defines the words includes and 14 including as:

15 “(1) To comprise, comprehend, or embrace...(2) To enclose within; contain; confine...But granting that the
 16 word ‘including’ is a term of enlargement, it is clear that it only performs that office by introducing the specific
 17 elements constituting the enlargement. It thus, and thus only, enlarges the otherwise more limited, preceding
 18 general language...The word ‘including’ is obviously used in the sense of its synonyms, comprising;
 19 comprehending; embracing.”

21 “Includes is a word of limitation. Where a general term in Statute is followed by the word, ‘including’ the
 24 [Definitions-Words and Phrases pages 156-156, Words and Phrases under ‘limitations’.]

25 As you may know, Black’s Law Dictionary is the Bible of legal definitions. Let’s see what it says about the definition of 26 “includes” from the Sixth Edition on p. 763:

27 “Include. (Lat. Includere, to shut in. keep within.) To confine within, hold as an inclosure. Take in, attain, shut
 28 up, contain, inclose, comprise, comprehend, embrace, involve. Term may, according to context, express an 29 enlargement and have the meaning of and or in addition to, or merely specify a particular thing already 30 included within general words theretofore used. “Including” within statute is interpreted as a word of 31 enlargement or of illustrative application as well as a word of limitation. Premier Products Co. v. Cameron,
 32 240 Or. 123, 400 P.2d 227, 228.”
 33 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 763]

34 In other words, according to Black’s, when the word “include” is used, it expands to take in all of the items stipulated or 35 listed, but is then limited to them.

36 Abuses of the word includes by the Congress and the IRS is a clear assault on our liberty, as it undermines our very 37 language and our means of comprehending precisely and exclusively not only what the law requires of us, but what it
 38 doesn’t require. Here is what Confucius said about this kind of conspiracy:

39 “When words lose their meaning, people will lose their liberty.”
 40 [Confucius, circa 500 B.C.]

41 Such an approach also amounts to a clear violation of due process under the Fourth and Sixth Amendment , in that it causes
 42 the law to not specifically define what is or is not required of the citizen:

43 “A statute which either forbids or requires the doing of an act in terms so vague that men and women of 44 common intelligence must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application, violates the first 45 essential of due process of law.”
 46 [Connally v. General Construction Co., 269 U.S. 385 (1926)]

The above finding gives rise to a doctrine known as the “void for vagueness doctrine”, that was advocated by the U.S. supreme Court. This doctrine is deeply rooted in our right to due process (under the Fifth Amendment) and our right to know the nature and cause of any criminal accusation (under the Sixth Amendment). The latter right goes far beyond the contents of any criminal indictment. The right to know the nature and cause of any accusation starts with the statute which a defendant is accused of violating. A statute must be sufficiently specific and unambiguous in all its terms, in order to define and give adequate notice of the kind of conduct which it forbids.

The essential purpose of the "void for vagueness doctrine" with respect to interpretation of a criminal statute, is to warn individuals of the criminal consequences of their conduct. ... Criminal statutes which fail to give due notice that an act has been made criminal before it is done are unconstitutional deprivations of due process of law.

If it fails to indicate with reasonable certainty just what conduct the legislature prohibits, a statute is necessarily void for uncertainty, or "void for vagueness" as the doctrine is called. In the De Cadena case, the U.S. District Court listed a number of excellent authorities for the origin of this doctrine (see Lanzetta v. New Jersey, 306 U.S. 451) and for the development of the doctrine (see Screws v. United States, 325 U.S. 91, Williams v. United States, 341 U.S. 97, and Jordan v. De George, 341 U.S. 223). Any prosecution which is based upon a vague statute or a vague (or expansive) definition must fail, together with the statute itself. A vague criminal statute is unconstitutional for violating the 5th and 6th Amendments.

IMPORTANT: We should remember that without the Bill of Rights (including the 4th, 5th, and 6th Amendments), our federal government can define “includes” any way they want because absent a Bill of Rights, the Void for Vagueness Doctrine is irrelevant and inapplicable! As we clarified earlier, the Bill of Rights do not apply inside the federal zone as per Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) and so the expansive use of “includes” is lawful there! That is why we must never claim to be “U.S. persons” or “U.S. citizens” who reside inside the federal zone: because then the Internal Revenue Code really can mean whatever the judge says it means, and this is especially true in an Article 1 court! See section 2.5.5.9 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 for further details on the distinction between an Article 1 and Article III court. Note that the U.S. Tax Court is an Article I legislative court that can only address matters affecting citizens and residents of the federal zone. You’re playing with fire and a hazard to yourself if you litigate in this court and claim to be a U.S. citizen!

The abuse of the word “includes” or its expansive use also violates the rules of statutory construction, which are founded on the Fourth Amendment right of due process of law:

“Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid.”

[Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

This fact only underscores our duty to refrain from reading a phrase into the statute when Congress has left it out. “ [W]here Congress includes particular language in one section of a statute but omits it in another ..., it is generally presumed that Congress acts intentionally and purposely in the disparate inclusion or exclusion.”

[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

1 "Ejusdem generis. Of the same kind, class, or nature. In the construction of laws, wills, and other instruments,
 2 the "ejusdem generis rule" is, that where general words follow an enumeration of persons or things, by words
 3 of a particular and specific meaning, such general words are not to be construed in their widest extent, but are
 4 to be held as applying only to persons or things of the same general kind or class as those specifically
 5 mentioned. U.S. v. LaBrecque, D.C. N.J., 419 F.Supp. 430, 432. The rule, however, does not necessarily
 6 require that the general provision be limited in its scope to the identical things specifically named. Nor does it
 7 apply when the context manifests a contrary intention.

8 Under "ejusdem generis" canon of statutory construction, where general words follow the enumeration of 9 particular classes of things, the general words will be construed as applying only to things of the same general
 10 class as those enumerated. Campbell v. Board of Dental Examiners, 53 Cal.App.3d 283, 125 Cal.Rptr. 694, 11 696."
 12 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 517]

13 So when the word "includes" is used, then anything not specified is presumed excluded by the first rule of statutory 14 construction above "Expressio Unius est exclusio alterius". The second rule of statutory construction above says that when 15 the word "includes" introduces a list of items, then the list must be presumed to be of the same kind or class. For instance,
 16 the definition of "United States" found in Title 8 of the U.S. Code says:

17 8 U.S.C. Sec. 1101\(a\)\(36\): State [Aliens and Nationality]

18 The term "State" includes the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands of the United

20 The above list of items introduced with the word "includes" in Title 8 of the U.S. Code are federal States or territories, and 21 so this is the "general class" that they all fall into. This definition of "State" is the basis for determining whether a person is 22 born in the "United States" for the purposes of citizenship, as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38) and 8 CFR §215.1(f).

23 If the act doesn't specifically identify what is forbidden or "included" and we have to rely not on the law, but some judge
 24 or lawyer or politician or a guess to describe what is "included", then our due process has been violated and our 25 government has thereby instantly been transformed from a government of laws into a government of men. And in this case, 26 it only took the abuse of one word in the English language to do so!

27 The concept of "due process of law" as it is embodied in Fifth Amendment demands that a law shall not be 28 unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious and that the means selected shall have a reasonable and substantial 29 relation to the object being sought.
 30 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 500, under the definition of "due process of law"]

31 If the word "includes" can be lawlessly abused to mean other things not specifically identified or at least classified in the 32 statute, then the whole of the Internal Revenue Code essentially defines NOTHING, because it all hinges on jurisdiction,
 33 and 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\), which establishes jurisdiction uses the word "includes". How can the code define ANYTHING

35 definition: A description of a thing by its properties; an explanation of the meaning of a word or term. The 36 process of stating the exact meaning of a word by means of other words. Such a description of the thing
 37 defined, including all essential elements and excluding all nonessential, as to distinguish it from all other things 38 and classes."
 39 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 423]

40 Is the word "United States" defined exactly, if "includes" can mean that you can add whatever you arbitrarily want to be 41 "included" in the definition?

42 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9)

43 United States

44 The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of 45 Columbia.

46 This clear and flagrant disregard for due process of law strikes at the heart of our liberty and freedom and we ought to 47 boycott the income tax based on this clever ruse by the shysters in Congress and the IRS who invented it. If the word

1 “includes” is used in its expansive sense, we have, in effect, subjected ourselves to the arbitrary whims of however the
 2 currently elected politician or judge wants to describe what is “included”. That leads to massive chaos, injustice, and
 3 unconstitutional behavior by our courts and our elected representatives, which is exactly what we have today. To put it
 4 bluntly, such deceptive actions are treasonable. The abuse also promotes unnecessary litigation over the meaning of the tax
 5 code, to the benefit of lawyers, lawmakers, and the American Bar Association, which is a clear conflict of interest. See
 6 section 3.20.1 for details on how the legal profession has exploited this uncertainty to their advantage in maximizing
 7 litigation. Here is what the U.S. Supreme Court says about the confusion created by the expansive use of the word 8 “includes”:

9 “In the interpretation of statutes levying taxes, it is THE ESTABLISHED RULE NOT TO EXTEND their
 10 provisions, by implication, BEYOND THE CLEAR IMPORT OF THE LANGUAGE USED, OR TO ENLARGE 11 their operations SO AS TO EMBRACE MATTERS NOT SPECIFICALLY POINTED OUT”.
 12 [Gould v. Gould, 245 U.S.151 (1917)]

13 If this ridiculous and abusive interpretation of the word “includes” by the IRS is allowed to stand by the courts and this 14 assault on our liberty by Congress is allowed to continue, then below is the essence of what the government has done to us,
 15 represented as a satirical press release by the U.S. supreme Court:

16 NEW RULES FOR LAW

1 If you would like a more detailed treatment of why the word “includes” is used as a word of limitation within the Internal
 2 Revenue Code, we have prepared a pamphlet on the subject specifically for this purpose with an exhaustive analysis of 3 several of the subjects covered in the last few sections:

4 Meaning of the Words “includes” and “including”

6 5.10.7 Guilty Until Proven Innocent: False Presumptions of Liability Based on Treacherous Definitions¹⁴²

7 We described earlier in section 5.3.1 the definition of the term “taxpayer” and the monumentally important distinction
 8 between the word “taxpayer” and other words like “nontaxpayer” and “Citizen”. Recall from that section that a “taxpayer”
 9 is someone who is “liable for” or “subject to” an imputed Internal Revenue tax and that the IRS calls everyone “taxpayers”,
 10 even though in most cases they are committing fraud in doing so. Many Americans have been systematically misinformed
 11 about the proper application of the Internal Revenue Code by their government and a corrupted legal and tax preparation
 12 profession to such an extent that they falsely believe or “presume” they are “taxpayers”. This brainwashing usually occurs
 13 because of a naïve reading of the Internal Revenue Service’s deceptive at best and downright fraudulent at worst
 14 publications, which consistently use the term “taxpayer” to describe everyone. To further bias this presumption in the 15 government’s favor, our deceitful government even created another name for your Social Security Number, by calling it a
 16 “Taxpayer Identification Number” and requiring you to use it on every return under 26 U.S.C. §6109, but only if you are 17 required to file, and there is no such requirement under Subtitle A because there is no liability statute. We also know that 18 the courts do not have the power to turn a “nontaxpayer” into a “taxpayer” because only you, as the sovereign, can do that 19 to yourself voluntarily:

20 “And by statutory definition the term ‘taxpayer’ includes any person, trust or estate subject to a tax imposed by 21 the revenue act... Since the statutory definition of ‘taxpayer’ is exclusive, the federal courts do not have the 22 power to create nonstatutory taxpayers for the purpose of applying the provisions of the Revenue Act.”
 23 [C.I.R. v. Trustees of L. Inv. Ass’n., 100 F.2d 18 (1939)]

24 When an IRS bureaucrat is then asked about whether most Americans are “liable” to pay the tax, they will stack the deck in

26 “A taxpayer has never won on that in court.”

27 and they literally won’t be telling a lie on that because a “taxpayer” is someone who is “liable” or has made himself or 28 herself “liable” by volunteering. We have a scene from an evening news clip in the “How to Keep 100% of Your Earnings 29 Video” online on our website (<http://nontaxpayer.info/Media/movie.htm>) where an IRS representative does exactly that on 30 the evening news in response to a question about liability. What no IRS employee will tell you is that NO ONE in the 31 context of the Subtitle A personal income tax is “liable” or is a “taxpayer” unless they volunteer because their boss would 32 probably fire them for telling the truth! The disastrously false presumption that you are a “taxpayer” gets you into all kinds
 33 of due process traps and Constitutional rights violations with the IRS that are very difficult to get out of without a much 34 clearer understanding of the law and the facts than most people have:

35 “The significant problems we face cannot be solved at the same level of thinking we were at when we created 36 them.”
 37 [Albert Einstein]

38 This section examines one such due process violation arising out of this mistaken presumption that we are all “taxpayers”
 39 by examining the issue of burden of proof. If we falsely presume we are “taxpayers”, then statutory and case law clearly 40 establishes that the burden of proof falls squarely on us as the alleged “taxpayer” to prove our lack of liability. This is 41 exactly the bargaining position our covetous and deceitful government wants us in so they can get the upper hand most of 42 the time, and we’ll explain just how deep a hole you will fall into when the government succeeds in tricking you with this
 43 subtle but very effective word trap. Because of this word trap, when we fall for it, we basically end up with no
 44 constitutional protections, no due process rights, and big legal bills trying to prove the government wrong. Just by the ¹⁴² Adapted from a paper by the Institute for Policy Innovation, Policy Report #165 entitled A Monument of Deficient Wisdom: The Constitutional Conflict in Federal Income Tax Law Enforcement.

1 words they used to describe us, they prejudiced our rights and the only thing that allowed them to get away with it was our 2 own ignorance of the law and imprecise language.

3 Before we launch further into some rather disturbing revelations about the burden of proof requirements applying to
4 “taxpayers”, we’d like to remind you again that it is a violation of due process of law for the government as a moving party
5 to call you a “taxpayer” absent your voluntary consent and cooperation without first meeting the burden of proving that you
6 indeed are a “taxpayer” with evidence. Remember what Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, says under the definition of 7 “due process of law” on page 500:

8 Due process of law. Law in its regular course of administration through courts of justice. Due process of law
9 in each particular case means such an exercise of the powers of the government as the settled maxims of law
10 permit and sanction, and under such safeguards for the protection of individual rights as those maxims
11 prescribe for the class of cases to which the one in question belongs. A course of legal proceedings according 12 to those rules and principles which have been established in our systems of jurisprudence for the enforcement
13 and protection of private rights. To give such proceedings any validity, there must be a tribunal competent by 14 its constitution—that is, by the law of the creation—to pass upon the subject-matter of the suit; and, if that 15 involves merely a determination of the personal liability of the defendant, he must be brought within its 16 jurisdiction by service of process within the state, or his voluntary appearance. Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 733,
17 24 L.Ed. 565. Due process of law implies the right of the person affected thereby to be present before the 18 tribunal which pronounces judgment upon the question of life, liberty, or property, in its most comprehensive 19 sense; to be heard, by testimony or otherwise, and to have the right of controverting, by proof, every material
20 *fact which bears on the question of right in the matter involved. If any question of fact or liability be

21 conclusively be presumed [rather than proven] against him, this is NOT due process of law.

22 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 500]

23 So if there are any assumptions or presumptions about you that are unproven, including your identity as a “taxpayer”, your 24 due process rights have been violated, and any judge with integrity wouldn’t allow that in his courtroom. However, if the 25 government uses the word “taxpayer” to describe you and you don’t object, then you are a “taxpayer” by presumption
26 under the Law of Presumptions, which we discuss more fully in sections 3.4.4 and 3.4.6 of the Tax Fraud Prevention 27 Manual, Form #06.008. Watch out! Incidentally, we show you in these two sections how to use the same devious tactic in 28 reverse against the IRS.

29 You therefore need to keep reminding yourself that the legal discussion in this section only pertain to “taxpayers” and not
30 to all Americans, and that the government must produce a statute making you liable for a tax and show taxable income,
31 which in all cases under Subtitle A means corporate profit (see section 5.6.5 earlier), before you become a “taxpayer”. This 32 is the only way you can successfully challenge their jurisdiction and play the cards right that they will try to deal you.
33 Since there is no statute under Subtitle A making private natural persons “liable” for the income tax imposed in 26 U.S.C.
34 §1, this is a burden of proof that they simply can’t meet in most cases, unless a tyrannical and corrupt judge steers the jury
35 and the case away from talking about this subject, thus violating your First Amendment right of free speech to 36 communicate with your government in the way that you see fit and in defense of your liberties.

37 The original article upon which this section was derived mistakenly used the terms “citizen” and “taxpayer”
38 interchangeably, so we had to edit it to clarify the subtle distinctions in order to avoid being deceived and to make the truth
39 plain. More than anything, the battle to empty your pocket is a war of words but it is still a war and amounts to treason
40 against the Constitution, and we must be vigilant to note guerilla warfare tactics such as the “taxpayer” trap appearing in 41 this section.

42 The idea of placing the burden of proof upon the accuser derives from English common law. The common law was deeply
43 entrenched in the colonies during the time of the founding and continues as the basis of American law. The common law
44 itself derives from the Great Charter of Liberties, Magna Charta. Magna Charta was the declaration of the liberties of 45 English freemen signed by King John in 1215 AD. It was extracted from the King at the point of a sword as the price for 46 retaining his throne. Magna Charta was reconfirmed numerous times by English monarchs over the ensuing centuries to the 47 point where its principles became engrained in the fabric of English—and by extension, American—jurisprudence.

48 Chapter 39 of the Great Charter sets forth many of the fundamental rights of citizens in the judicial process. It established
49 the concepts of both due process of law and the burden of proof as we know them today. Chapter 39 (chapter 29 in the 1225 50 version) reads:

1 No freeman shall be seized, or imprisoned, or dispossessed, or outlawed, or in any way destroyed; nor will we
 2 condemn him, nor will we commit him to prison, excepting by the legal judgment of his peers, or by the laws of 3 the land.

4 By this declaration, citizens were not to be considered guilty at any level in the judicial process until after a trial. In the 5 Notes on the Great Charters, English jurists declared that the protections afforded by Magna Charta chapter 39/29 are so
 6 important that they alone “would alone have procured for it the title of the Great Charter.”⁶² In practice, this principle
 7 created the axiom of law holding that the accuser, whether in the criminal or civil context, was solely responsible to prove 8 the verity of his claims against the accused before any punishment could apply.

9 Income tax codes and regulations heap upon the shoulders of “taxpayers” innumerable requirements to carry out affirmative
 10 duties under the pain of imprisonment, civil penalties, additional tax and interest assessments. Moreover, the code allows
 11 the IRS to make determinations with respect to a taxpayer’s filing status, annual income, deductible expenses, dependent
 12 exemptions, etc. In all but a few exceptions, the IRS never has to prove that its actions or determinations are correct. The 13 Supreme Court, in the 1933 case of Welch v. Helvering, 290 U.S. 111 (1933) declared that the IRS is entitled to the 14 “presumption of correctness” with regard to its determinations. As such, the “taxpayer” “has the burden of proving” such 15 actions to be wrong. In a very real way, the consequence of this is that the “taxpayer” is essentially guilty until proven 16 innocent, a reversal of the fundamental rule of law regarding the burden of proof. The Supreme Court, in the case of Bull v.
 17 United States, 295 U.S. 247 (1935) used this explanation to describe how the litigation process is fundamentally altered in 18 tax cases:

19 Thus, the usual procedure for the recovery of debts is reversed in the field of taxation. Payment precedes 20 defense, and the burden of proof, normally on the claimant, is shifted to the taxpayer.

21 The [tax] assessment supersedes the pleading, proof, and judgment necessary in an action at law, and has the 22 force of such a judgment. The ordinary defendant stands in judgment only after a hearing. The taxpayer often is 23 afforded his hearing after judgment and after payment, and his only redress for unjust administrative action is
 24 *the right to claim restitution.*¹⁴³

25 The shift in the burden of proof does not apply to the various criminal provisions of the tax code. To place the burden of 26 proof on the accused in a criminal matter is a clear deprivation of due process and flatly unconstitutional. However, the 27 vast majority of the penalty provisions of the tax code are civil in nature and it naturally follows that the overwhelming
 28 number of penalty assessments are likewise civil in nature. As a result, the courts seem content to dissolve the historic 29 protection in most civil cases. But despite the fact that the imposition of civil penalties does not carry the risk of loss of 30 liberty, such imposition, as well as civil collection in general, most certainly does imply the loss of property, a condition
 31 Magna Charta referred to as being “dispossessed.” As the evidence presented above clearly shows, the Founders put the 32 importance of property and the protection thereof on par with that of personal liberty. The due process clauses of both the 33 Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments speak clearly to the protection of life, liberty and property.

34 What could justify a departure from the settled principles of due process such that the burden of proof is shifted from the 35 government to the citizen? The answer is found in a statement by the Bull court that has become a common thread woven 36 into the fabric of tax litigation for more than six decades. That statement is:

37 *“But taxes are the lifeblood of government, and their prompt and certain availability an imperious need.”*¹⁴⁴

38 Thus, in the mind of the Supreme Court, the government’s “imperious need” for money justifies the abandonment of one of 39 the most important elements of American liberty. The concept of “need” was reiterated in the case of Carson v. United 40 States, where the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals more pointedly declared that such departure is justified based upon “the 41 government’s strong need to accomplish swift collection of revenues and in the need to encourage taxpayer
 42 recordkeeping.”¹⁴⁵

43 This reasoning presents a recurring theme: government’s need for money is, by itself, sufficient to override settled
 44 constitutional protections. This notion is antithetical to liberty and to the notion of a government with limited, narrowly

¹⁴⁵ F.2d 693 (5th Cir. 1977)

1 prescribed powers. If the courts are able to set aside specific constitutional protections on the mere assertion by the 2 government of a “compelling need,” all the rights declared sacrosanct in the Constitution are but empty vessels.

3 This shift in the burden of proof is responsible for innumerable abuses by the IRS. Many of these were brought to light
4 during the 1997 Senate Finance Committee hearings into IRS abuse. Specifically, the practice of placing the burden on 5 “taxpayers” has the effect of allowing the IRS to issue penalty assessments at will, without regard to the specific facts of a
6 case and in violation of its own stated policy on penalty assessments. A good share of the more than thirty million penalties
7 issued every year are issued through automatic computer assessments. In this way, the IRS does not even make an effort to 8 determine whether the facts of a case justify imposition of the penalty. The “taxpayer” is left to assert defenses if he is able 9 to navigate the procedural quagmire.

10 This is equally true of the millions of computer notices issued by the IRS annually. Many such notices claim to correct
11 errors allegedly made by “taxpayers” in their tax returns. And while the law provides a means for a “taxpayer” to challenge
12 these notices, the burden is on the “taxpayer” to correctly respond to the notice in a timely fashion, craft a response
13 sufficient to apprise the IRS of the objection and prosecute the objection through the system while carrying the burden of 14 proving not only that the IRS’ determination is incorrect, but what the correct determination should be.

15 The unfortunate reality is that the vast majority of citizens embrangled with the IRS do not understand their rights or legal 16 remedies under the Internal Revenue Code. As such, people fail to realize that they are in fact “prosecutors” when it comes 17 to correcting errant IRS action. That is to say, the citizen must instigate appeal actions, both administrative and judicial, in 18 order to challenge a tax audit determination. The citizen must instigate proper challenges to collection actions in order to 19 prevent the loss of property in the collection process. The citizen must instigate administrative or judicial challenges to the 20 IRS’ investigative powers in the hope of maintaining any right of privacy. In the context of all such challenges (with rare 21 and narrow exceptions), the citizen must carry the burden of proving IRS error, with respect to both the law and facts of the 22 case.

23 The extensive focus on the burden of proof issue led Congress to enact code section 7491 as part of the Internal Revenue
24 Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998. This provision received much attention because it purports to shift the burden of 25 proof to the IRS, thereby curing the problems set forth above. On careful inspection, however, it can be said that that law
26 cannot possibly attain that goal. Section 7491(a)(1) states as follows:

27 If, in any court proceeding, a taxpayer introduces credible evidence with respect to any factual issue relevant to
28 ascertaining the liability of the taxpayer for any tax imposed by subtitle A or B, the Secretary shall have the
29 burden of proof with respect to such issue.

30 The statute indeed purports to shift the burden to the IRS but only if the citizen first “introduces credible evidence”
31 concerning the issue. In other words, the citizen bears the burden of proof necessary to shift the burden of proof. What 32 constitutes “credible evidence” is undefined by statute and promises to be the subject of ongoing litigation. Thus, the 33 “taxpayer” retains the duty to present initial evidence to show the IRS is wrong with regard to a “factual issue.”

34 Even if he is successful in this first task, the burden shifts only in “any court proceeding.” The fact is, 97 percent of all IRS
35 actions are carried out, not in a judicial context, but rather, in the administrative context. For example, virtually all penalty
36 assessments and computer tax assessments are administrative in nature. The initial determination of tax liability by the IRS
37 is administrative in nature. Likewise, the vast majority of IRS’ collection actions are administrative in nature. And while 38 some courts have limited jurisdiction to review collection actions, the taxpayer must instigate the review. Moreover, as the 39 statute declares, the taxpayer bears the initial burden to introduce “credible evidence” with regard to the “factual issues.”

40 In the larger sense, as examined in more detail later in this report, federal laws expressly prohibit the courts from taking 41 jurisdiction over the IRS in collection cases. This is because of the Anti-injunction Act, I.R.C. Section 7421. It expressly 42 denies jurisdiction to the federal courts to enjoin or restrain the ascertainment, computation, assessment or collection of any 43 internal revenue tax.

44 Moreover, subsection (a)(2)(A) of code section 7491 places two serious limitations on the supposed shift. The first is that
45 the “taxpayer” must have “complied with the requirements under this title to substantiate any item.” This language vitiates
46 all the foregoing language to the extent that such could have been read to shift the burden to the IRS. In countless places in 47 the tax code, the law places the burden on the “taxpayer” to “substantiate” a given claim. The substantiation requirement is

1 in practical effect, a burden of proof. Without providing evidence to support one's claim under a particular code section, he
2 has failed to "substantiate" his entitlement to the relief or benefit provided by that section.

3 Consider further the language of subsection (a)(2)(B). It provides that the burden shifts only if "the taxpayer has maintained
4 all records required under this title and has cooperated with the reasonable requests of the Secretary for witnesses,
5 information, documents and interviews." The terms "reasonable requests" and "cooperated" are undefined. The practical
6 effect of this is for the IRS to assert a laundry list of demands for documents, evidence, exhibits, witnesses, etc., and for the 7 IRS to allege "lack of cooperation" in order to prevent the burden from shifting.⁶⁸

8 This is standard procedure for the IRS and is precisely what happened in the Tax Court case of Higbee v. Commissioner,
9 the first case in which the Tax Court addressed the new burden of proof statute. Higbee asserted that the burden shifted to 10 the IRS under the new law. IRS argued that because Higbee "failed to meet the requirements of code section 7491(a)(1) and 11 (2)," the taxpayer and not the IRS should retain the burden of proof. As to each of the three issues presented by Higbee, the 12 court ruled against Higbee, claiming:

13 Again, we reiterate that petitioners have failed to provide this Court with credible evidence for us to allow 14 petitioners' claims with respect to the disallowed deductions. We therefore reject all of petitioners' contentions
15 *as to these issues.*¹⁴⁶

16 In the final analysis, the burden of proof was in no way shifted to the IRS. Two other Restructuring Act amendments are 17 claimed to positively impact the burden of proof for citizens. The first is code section 6751. The second is section 7491(c).
18 Subsection 6751(a) states that with respect to an assessment:

19 The Secretary shall include with each notice of penalty under this title information with respect to the name of 20 the penalty, the section of this title under which the penalty is imposed, and a computation of the penalty.

21 Code section 7491(c) provides that the "burden of production" is upon the IRS with respect to any penalty assessment that 22 is the subject of a court proceeding.

23 Neither the language of code section 6751 nor section 7491(c) operates to shift the burden of proof to the IRS. Section 6751
24 is merely a notification provision. It says nothing whatsoever regarding a burden of proof.

25 The impact of section 7491(c) is clearly addressed by the Higbee Court. Analyzing the statute and the legislative history, 26 Higbee concludes:

27 Congress' use of the phrase "burden of production" and not the more general phrase "burden of proof" as 28 used in section 7491(a) [discussed in detail above] indicates to us that Congress did not desire that the burden
29 *of proof be placed upon the Commissioner with regard to penalties.*¹⁴⁷

30 In the overall scheme of the tax code, these laws do little to place the burden of proof upon the shoulders of the IRS. In 31 sum, both the IRS and "taxpayers" rest in essentially the same position now as they did before these provisions were 32 enacted.

33 If the reader of this section didn't know the subtle meaning of the term "taxpayer" and that there is no liability statute under 34 Subtitle A, then this section, without the warnings we placed here, could easily discourage anyone into thinking that the 35 Constitution is being violated because of the "burden of proof" games described. To the extent that the laws are applied as 36 described only within the federal zone, that would be an erroneous conclusion because that area, for the most part, isn't 37 covered by the Bill of Rights as we describe repeatedly. However, to the extent that the rules in this section for burden of 38 proof are applied outside of the federal zone and inside the 50 Union states, it would be valid to conclude that the 39 constitution is indeed being violated. We must always remember that Subtitle A income taxes, however, can only be made 40 mandatory to persons domiciled in the federal zone or working in the government, wherever located. For everyone else, its 41 not a tax, but a donation!

1 5.10.8 Purpose of Vague Laws is to Chain you to IRS Control¹⁴⁸

2 Vague laws are deliberately passed by Congress to aid governmental agencies to control natural persons through
3 administrative process. Forcing the making and delivery of the "U.S. Individual Income Tax Returns" based on false belief
4 occurs because of such laws. It is the duty of the judge to prevent the use of vague laws as a vehicle to deprive persons of 5 their rights or their property. It is also the function of the court to see that separation of powers exists so justice is served.

6 The system to serve justice in this country is adversarial. This means that lawyers in the private sector must attack
7 vagueness in the law. Justice Department lawyers are also duty bound not to misuse any law, vague ones notwithstanding.
8 If they do, judges must admonish and not permit any lawyer to proceed if he or she does not vigorously take exception to 9 the vague law.

10 It will be argued that the accused must shoulder the responsibility if he hires an ineffective lawyer (one who refuses to be 11 an advocate) because he exercised his free choice in selecting that attorney. In other words, one has the right to prejudice
12 himself by his selection of an attorney. But, the duty of a judge is to see that justice prevails and overrides such a prejudice.
13 Currently, however, free choice in legal counsel is not readily available to the average American because attorneys are not 14 trained to take exception to vague laws.

15 Justice is not a person, but a condition. It is the duty of the judge to recognize and stop the use of the courtroom before
16 injustice occurs. Injustice does not occur when the burden to prove innocence has been forced upon the accused by the 17 vagueness of a law which prevents the accused from implementing any possible defense.

18 There is intent to commit injustice in the courtroom when a U.S. Justice Department lawyer uses vague laws to control the 19 person accused in what is deemed a prosecution. Injustice also manifests itself when the lawyer for the accused cooperates
20 with the Justice Department by not defending against a prosecution under a vague law. If the U.S. judge permits such 21 conduct to occur, the rights of the accused are not protected by the court and justice is not served. Only the Justice
22 Department and the lawyer in the private sector are served. What results is malicious prosecution—an action in a 23 courtroom that is not a fair trial but a trial by ordeal.

24 Finding a lawyer who will defend a client and not merely represent him is very difficult. The client must literally know the 25 law himself and dictate to the lawyer what he wants done. The matter of time becomes a factor since one does get a speedy 26 trial. The matter of cost becomes a factor since the old saying "money talks" seems to apply in the courtroom. There is 27 also a matter of understanding what to look for in a lawyer.

28 The Sixth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution guarantees certain rights to the accused. It says:

29 "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall...be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; ... and 30 to have the assistance of counsel for his defense."

31 One is not informed of the nature and cause of a criminal accusation, or of the requirements on a civil basis, when he is 32 accused or confronted in either a criminal or civil situation under laws that are vague. Proper notice is not available.
33 Further, in any situation where the assistance of counsel for his defense is required, the U.S. Constitution guarantees that 34 one shall have counsel who is concerned with defending your life, liberty, and property, not one who is partial to vague
35 laws which lead to malicious prosecution in order to enhance the counsel's livelihood. When such attorneys do not attempt 36 to destroy vague laws, they violate the Sixth Amendment rights of the accused and make a record of their ineffectiveness.
37 The end result is to unduly convict a person. This violates the Sixth, Eighth and Thirteenth Amendments of the U.S.
38 Constitution.

39 The burden to provide an adversarial process is upon the lawyer in the private sector, and the judge should demand that it
40 exist in the U.S. courtroom.¹⁴⁹ In the process of serving justice, a U.S. judge must be ever diligent with regard to vague
41 laws so as not to impair the rights of the accused. This is the duty of the court, not the duty of the accused. When vague 42 laws are used, the accused is forced to defend against an unfair system and not against a violation of the law.

¹⁴⁹ The need for attorneys to be adversaries is brought out by Justice O'Connor in her opinion in Strickland v. Washington, 104 S.Ct. 2052 (1984).

1 A U.S. judge actually cooperates in seeing that injustice is perpetuated in his or her courtroom when vague laws are
 2 permitted to be used for the purpose of enforcing the intentions of a government agency. In this process, the person and his
 3 rights are controlled to his prejudice. Such conduct impairs the integrity of the court and raises the question of whether or 4 not the Federal Government employees involved are in contempt of the court as well as being involved in concealment of 5 violations of due process of law.

6 The vague laws of the I.R. Code are intended to control property of the general public that is not authorized under law.
 7 Competent attorneys would attempt to destroy these vague laws.

8 The story of the alleged conviction of Frank Kowalik described in his book IRS Humbug reveals how lawyers cooperated to 9 send him to prison, and how vague law made it possible. In place of an adversarial process, it was a malicious prosecution
 10 with intent to force him to cooperate with the lawyers and the IRS, and return him to a condition of peonage and slavery.

11 Vague laws along with lawyers cooperating with one another make the use of the U.S. courtroom for undue convictions
 12 possible. Any person targeted by the IRS or other Federal Government agency can be unduly punished for doing what he 13 or she has the right to do under the law, simply because vague laws make possible a violation of his rights and liberties and 14 are used to create a false appearance of government jurisdiction where none actually exists.

15 5.10.9 Why the “Void for Vagueness Doctrine” Should be Invoked By The Courts to Render the Internal Revenue 16 Code Unconstitutional in Total

17 “Fundamental fairness requires that a person cannot be sent to jail for a crime he could not with reasonable
 18 certainty know he was committing; reasonable certainty in that respect is all the more essential when vagueness
 19 might induce individuals to forgo their rights of speech, press, and association for fear of violating an unclear
 20 law.”
 21 [Scull v. Commonwealth of Virginia, 359 U.S. 344, 79 S.Ct. 838, 3 L.Ed.2d 865 (1959)]

22 As we stated clearly earlier in section 3.20.1 entitled “Uncertainty of the Federal Tax Laws”, it is quite evident that there is 23 a lot of disagreement and a complete lack of consistency (or “stare decisis”, or adherence to precedent) about how to 24 interpret and apply the Internal Revenue Code at every level of the federal judiciary, including the Federal District and 25 Appellate Courts as well as the U.S. Supreme Court, not to mention the state courts. This ought to be more than ample 26 evidence that the IRC lacks clarity.

27 We would argue that the Internal Revenue Code is deliberately vague, because if the code told the complete truth
 28 clearly, then citizens of the 50 Union states with income from the 50 Union states would not pay direct income taxes and 29 could successfully use as their justification Article I, Section 9, clause 4 of the U.S. Constitution., which is still in force
 30 and was not changed by the Sixteenth Amendment.

31 The most effective way to discover where the truth is being hidden by the greedy lawyer-conspirators in Congress is to look
 32 in the Internal Revenue Code for either undefined terms or for terms, confusing definitions, or particular parts of the code
 33 over which the most litigation has occurred. Most of the controversy and illegal taxation would end if Congress would 34 accurately define the following terms. Note that we have included the proper definition for each of these terms:

35 “employee”: This term means an elected or appointed officer of the federal United States government in receipt of excise 36 taxable privileges.

37 “source”: This term defines the geographical or territorial boundaries that this Title shall apply to.

38 “State” and “States”: Within this Title, the term State refers to a federal possession or territory, to include Guam, Puerto 39 Rico, American Samoa, etc. State DOES NOT include the 50 states of the Union, but does apply to federal 40 possessions and facilities within those states. Note that the District of Columbia is not a “State”, but instead is 41 described in Title 4 as the seat of government.

42 “United States”: The term “United States” is defined as any federal territory or land over which the federal government
 43 has exclusive control and jurisdiction, including District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, and federal reservations

1 within the 50 states of the Union. It does NOT include the 50 States of the Union. The term “federal zone” shall 2 also be synonymous with the term “United States” as used in this title.

3 “foreign income”: Income from outside of the “United States” or the “federal zone”. Income from within one of the 50
4 Union states is counted as foreign income.

5 Do you think there might be a conflict of interest by the lawyers in Congress who write the laws to not define these terms 6 accurately because:

- 7 1. They would destroy income taxes on individuals and make the country financially insolvent.
- 8 2. They would undermine their livelihood after they left Congress, because they 9 are only in office temporarily. Remember that lawyers make most of their money litigating, or fighting in court. If the 10 tax code was clear, litigation over taxes would end, and they would be without jobs because there would be no more
11 people victimized by an unjust or obfuscated tax system. The law would be so clear that we wouldn't need to hire 12 lawyers to act as “high priests” to interpret the confusing laws for us.

13 For these and many other reasons, conflict of interest on the part of the U.S. Congress and the legal profession in general
14 (American Bar Association, or ABA) to keep the tax system the way it is will guarantee that the system will never improve 15 until the citizens relentlessly apply heat to their representatives to fix things and speak with one very clear voice on the 16 issue. That is why we wrote this book: to make the issues sufficiently clear that we can all speak with one loud and 17 unanimous voice to the IRS and Congress, and all simultaneously use the same processes in dealing with both of them.

18 The vagueness of the IRC, in turn, represents a violation of our due process protections guaranteed by the Sixth
19 Amendment and described in section 3.11.8.4 entitled “6th Amendment: Rights of Accused in Criminal Prosecutions”. We 20 will demonstrate how this is the case in this section.

21 There is a concept called the “void for vagueness” doctrine that was advocated by the U.S. Supreme Court. This doctrine is 22 deeply rooted in our right to due process (under the Fifth Amendment) and our right to know the nature and cause of any 23 criminal accusation (under the Sixth Amendment). The latter right goes far beyond the contents of any criminal indictment.
24 The right to know the nature and cause of any accusation starts with the statute which a defendant is accused of violating.
25 A statute must be sufficiently specific and unambiguous in all its terms, in order to define and give adequate notice of the 26 kind of conduct which it forbids.

27 The essential purpose of the “void for vagueness doctrine” with respect to interpretation of a criminal statute,
28 is to warn individuals of the criminal consequences of their conduct. ... Criminal statutes which fail to give
29 due notice that an act has been made criminal before it is done are unconstitutional deprivations of due process
30 of law.
31 [U.S. v. De Cadena, 105 F.Supp. 202, 204 (1952), emphasis added]

32 If it fails to indicate with reasonable certainty just what conduct the legislature prohibits, a statute is necessarily void for 33 uncertainty, or “void for vagueness” as the doctrine is called. In the De Cadena case, the U.S. District Court listed a 34 number of excellent authorities for the origin of this doctrine (see Lanzetta v. New Jersey, 306 U.S. 451) and for the 35 development of the doctrine (see Screws v. United States, 325 U.S. 91, Williams v. United States, 341 U.S. 97, and Jordan
36 v. De George, 341 U.S. 223). Any prosecution which is based upon a vague statute must fail, together with the statute 37 itself. A vague criminal statute is unconstitutional for violating the 5th and 6th Amendments. The U.S. Supreme Court has 38 emphatically agreed:

39 “That the terms of a penal statute creating a new offense must be sufficiently explicit to inform those who are 40 subject to it what conduct on their part will render them liable to its penalties is a well-recognized requirement,
41 consonant alike with ordinary notions of fair play and the settled rules of law; and a statute which either
42 forbids or requires the doing of an act in terms so vague that men of common intelligence must necessarily 43 guess at its meaning and differ as to its application violates the first essential of due process of law.”
44 [Connally et al. v. General Construction Co., 269 U.S. 385, 391 (1926), emphasis added]

45 The debate that is currently raging over the correct scope and proper application of the IRC is obvious, empirical proof that 46 men of common intelligence are differing with each other. Section 3.20.1 on “Uncertainty of the Federal Tax Laws” is 47 proof of the extent of the conflicts in interpreting the Internal Revenue Code by the federal appellate courts. For example,

1 some people advocate definitions of "includes" and "including" which are expansive, not restrictive. The matter could be
2 easily decided if the IRC would instead exhibit sound principles of statutory construction, state clearly and directly that
3 "includes" and "including" are meant to be used in the expansive sense, and itemize those specific persons, places, and/or
4 things that are "otherwise within the meaning of the terms defined". If the terms "includes" and "including" must be used in
5 the restrictive sense, the IRC should explain, clearly and directly, that expressions like "includes only" and "including only"
6 must be used, to eliminate vagueness completely. Instead, they currently define the term "includes" and "including" using 7 the expansive sense and then contradict their own definition in IRC section 61 by adding the phrase "(but not limited to)".

8 Alternatively, the IRC could exhibit sound principles of statutory construction by explaining clearly and directly that 9 "includes" and "including" are always meant to be used in the restrictive sense.

10 Better yet, abandon the word "include" entirely, together with all of its grammatical variations, and use instead the word
11 "means" (which does not suffer from a long history of semantic confusion). It would also help a lot if the 50 Union states
12 were consistently capitalized and the federal states were not. The reverse of this convention can be observed in the 13 regulations for Title 31 (see 31 CFR Sections 51.2 and 52.2). Section 2.9 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions
14 Manual, Form #10.005 entitled "What would it take for the IRS and the U.S. Congress to 'come clean'" talks about how to 15 rewrite the tax code in Title 26 of the U.S.C. in s.

16 These, again, are excellent grounds for deciding that the IRC is vague and therefore null and void. Of course, if the real
17 intent is to unconstitutionally expand federal jurisdiction in order to subjugate the 50 Union states under the dominion of 18 federal government (defined along something like ZIP code boundaries a la the Buck Act, codified in Title 4), and to 19 replace the sovereign Republics with a monolithic totalitarian socialist dictatorship, carved up into arbitrary administrative 20 "districts", that is another problem altogether. Believe it or not, the case law which has interpreted the Buck Act admits to 21 the existence of a "State within a state"! So, which State within a state are you in? Or should we be asking this question:
22 "In the State within which state are you?" (Remember: a preposition is a word you should never end a sentence with!)

23 The absurd results which obtain from expanding the term "State" to mean the 50 Union states, however, are problems
24 which will not go away, no matter how much we clarify the definitions of "includes" and "including" in the IRC. There are 25 49 other U.S. Codes which have the exact same problem. Moreover, the mountain of material evidence impugning the 26 ratification of the so-called 16th Amendment should leave no doubt in anybody's mind that Congress must still 27 apportion all direct taxes levied inside the sovereign borders of the 50 Union states. The apportionment restrictions 28 have never been repealed.

29 Likewise, Congress is not empowered to delegate unilateral authority to the President to subdivide or to join any of the 50
30 Union states. There are many other constitutional violations which result from expanding the term "State" to mean the 50
31 States of the Union. In this context, the mandates and prohibitions found in the Bill of Rights are immediately obvious, 32 particularly as they apply to Union state Citizens (as distinct from United States citizens a/k/a federal citizens).
33 Clarifying the definitions of "includes" and "including" in the IRC is one thing; clarifying the exact extent of sovereign
34 jurisdiction is quite another. Congress is just not sovereign within the borders of the 50 Union states.

35 Sorry, all you Senators and Representatives. When you took office, you did not take an oath to uphold and defend the Ten 36 Commandments. You did not take an oath to uphold and defend the Uniform Commercial Code. You did not take an oath
37 to uphold and defend the Communist Manifesto. You did take an oath to uphold and defend the Constitution for the United 38 States of America.

39 It should be obvious, at this point, that capable authors do agree that the 50 Union states do not belong in the standard
40 definition of "State" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(10) of the IRC because they are in a class that is different from the class
41 known as federal states. Within the borders of the 50 Union states, the "geographical" extent of exclusive federal 42 jurisdiction is strictly confined to the federal enclaves; this extent does not encompass the 50 Union states themselves. See 43 40 U.S.C. §3112, which clearly shows that the jurisdiction of the federal courts only extend onto federal property.

44 This ruling was significant, because it divides the United States of America into what we call the "federal zone", which 45 includes the District of Columbia, U.S. Possessions, and Territories on the one hand, and the 50 Union states on the other 46 hand. This issue is very important and explains the definitions of "State" and "United States" found in sections 3.12.1.19 47 and 3.12.1.23 respectively.

1 We cannot blame the average American for failing to appreciate this subtlety. However, we can blame all of the federal
2 courts for failing to resolve these controversies to the benefit of the Citizen, as the U.S. Supreme Court has clearly said they 3 are obligated to do in the following case:

4 *“Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by
5 clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be
6 resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid.”
7 [Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]*

8 The confusion that results from the vagueness we observe is inherent in the Code and evidently intentional, which raises
9 some very serious questions concerning the real intent of that Code in the first place. Could money have anything to do
10 with it? That question answers itself. An even more interesting question was raised by one of our readers, who wrote:

11 Family Guardian,

12 Greetings... The more that I mull this issue over, the more that I believe that the weak point of the tax laws are 13 that they do not meet nor surpass the "Void for Vagueness" criteria. If it is up to the individual to determine
14 their liability then, to ascertain that they must, at the very least, read and understand all of title 26. If they do
15 not then they cannot sign certifying that they are in compliance and that they are legally liable. If this is 16 actually the burden placed upon the American public then I believe that this should be the focus or at least one
17 of the main focuses of the issues and questions raised with the government and the Congress.

20 In the meantime, the IRC should have been thrown out by the courts long ago because it violates the Sixth Amendment by 21 not being sufficiently specific as to clearly define who specifically is liable for paying federal income tax. But if the courts
22 did this, then judges would have to shut off what they think is the source of their paycheck, and you know that kind of 23 honesty and integrity is nowhere to be found in our corrupt government, much less anywhere in the legal profession.

24 5.11 Other Clues and Hints At the Correct Application of the IRC

25 There are numerous other bits of information that hint at the correct application of the law, a few of which are included here 26 as supporting evidence.

27 5.11.1 On the Record

28 As the Supreme Court and the Secretary of the Treasury have repeatedly stated, the federal income tax is (and has always 29 been) an indirect excise tax. Excises, generally speaking, are taxes imposed on certain activities or privileges. In light of 30 this, there are some interesting comments in the Congressional Record from March 27, 1943 (p. 2580). A statement is 31 included by a “Mr. F. Morse Hubbard, formerly of the legislative drafting research fund of Columbia University, and a 32 former legislative draftsman in the Treasury Department” (clearly someone whose job would require a comprehensive 33 understanding of the proper application of the law). His comments include the following:

34 *“The income tax is, therefore, not a tax on income as such. It is an excise tax with respect to certain activities
35 and privileges which is measured by reference to the income which they produce. The income is not the subject 36 of the tax: it is the basis for determining the amount of the tax.”*

37 The income tax is imposed on “income from whatever source derived” (minus deductions). The mere receipt of income,
38 by itself, is not (and could not be) the subject of this excise tax. It is the “source” which is the subject of the tax, and the 39 amount of income received from that “source” is what is used to determine the amount of tax due. All “sources” are 40 taxable activities and as we explained earlier in section 5.6.11 earlier, there are only two taxable activities under Subtitle A
41 of the Internal Revenue Code: 1. Foreign commerce; 2. Public office in the United States Government. The above
42 citations coincide well with the fact that the section of regulations for determining taxable income (26 CFR §1.861-8) states
43 that it applies only to income “from specific sources and activities.” And the statutes and regulations under the part which 44 “determine[s] the sources of income for purposes of the income tax” all apply only to these same “specific sources and 45 activities,” which are all related to international or foreign commerce.

5.11.2 Section 306

Section 306 of the statutes deals with individuals receiving income from selling certain stocks. After dealing with the income itself, the section discusses the “source” of income.

“Sec. 306. Dispositions of certain stock
 (a) General rule
 If a shareholder sells or otherwise disposes of section 306 stock...
 (1) Dispositions other than redemptions -
 (A) The amount realized shall be treated as ordinary income...
 (f) Source of gain - The amount treated under subsection (a)(1)(A) as ordinary income shall, for purposes of part I of subchapter N (sec. 861 and following, relating to determination of sources of income), be treated as derived from the same source as would have been the source if money had been received from the corporation as a dividend at the time of the distribution of such stock. If under the preceding sentence such amount is determined to be derived from sources within the United States, such amount shall be considered to be fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits, and income within the meaning of section 871(a) or section 881(a), as the case may be.”

The section states that if the income comes from “sources within the United States,” then it constitutes “gains, profits, and income” under Section 871(a) or 881(a). Sections 871 and 881 deal exclusively with nonresident aliens and foreign corporations, respectively (both are found in Part II of Subchapter N, “Nonresident aliens and foreign corporations”). The wording of Section 306 implies that if the income in question comes from “sources within the United States,” then it must apply to one of these sections. If a statutory “U.S. citizen” domiciled in the United States (the federal zone) receives the type of income dealt with in Section 306, and believes it constitutes “income from sources within the United States,” halfway through the last sentence the reader is left in limbo. The sentence structure is “if A, then B.” Using the usual overly-broad interpretation of the Code, if a citizen receives income from the type of stock mentioned from “sources within the United States,” then that income “shall be considered to be” taxable for nonresident aliens or foreign corporations. A contradiction exists, unless one realizes that the term “sources of income” has a restricted meaning, which in this case would apply only to foreigners.

5.11.3 Strange Links

In various sections of the statutes, Section 911 is referenced where it does not seem to fit in (if one accepts the common, overly-broad interpretation of the Code). One example exists in Section 1 itself (the section imposing the income tax on individuals). Subsection (g) of Section 1 deals with certain income of children being treated as income of that child’s parents, and shows that the term “earned income” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(2).

“(g) Certain unearned income of minor children taxed as if parent's income...
 (4) Net unearned income
 For purposes of this subsection--
 (A) In general
 The term “net unearned income” means the excess of--
 (i) the portion of the adjusted gross income for the taxable year which is not attributable to earned income (as defined in section 911(d)(2))...”
 [26 U.S.C. §1(g)]

This section (26 U.S.C. §1(g)) is referred to later in Section 59(j), and Section 911(d)(2) is again mentioned as the section which defines “earned income.” Other sections, such as 26 U.S.C. § 66(d) and 26 U.S.C. § 469(e), also refer to Section 911(d)(2) for the definition of “earned income.” There is nothing peculiar about the definition in 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(2) itself, which states:

“(d) Definitions and special rules
 For purposes of this section--
 (2) Earned income
 (A) In general
 The term “earned income” means wages, salaries, or professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include...”
 [26 U.S.C. §911(d)]

What is interesting is the location of the definition:

1 Subchapter N -- Tax based on income from sources within or without the United States
 2 Part III -- Income from sources without the United States
 3 Subpart B -- Earned income of citizens or residents of United States
 4 Sec. 911. Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad

5 While it is true that the location of such a definition does not legally change the meaning of the definition, it is still
 6 somewhat telling that the definition is found in Subchapter N, rather than in Subchapters A and B (which impose the tax,
 7 and define “gross income” and “taxable income”). It is also telling that the definition itself (even though the definition is 8 also “borrowed” by other sections) says that the definition is “for purposes of this section,” meaning Section 911, which 9 deals exclusively with the “foreign earned income” of United States citizens.

10 Another strange connection occurs in the section regarding “community income,” which comes shortly after Section 63
 11 defining “taxable income.”

12 “Sec. 66. Treatment of community income
 13 (a) Treatment of community income where spouses live apart
 14 If: (1) 2 individuals are married to each other...;
 15 (2) such individuals-- (A) live apart... (B) do not file a joint return...;
 16 (3) one or both of such individuals have earned income for the calendar year which is community income;
 17 and
 18 (4) no portion of such earned income is transferred (directly or indirectly) between such individuals before 19 the close of the calendar year,
 20 then, for purposes of this title, any community income of such individuals for the calendar year shall be 21 treated in accordance with the rules provided by section 879(a).”
 22 [26 U.S.C. §66]

23 Note that this is giving the rules applicable to all of Title 26 regarding “community income.” But the section it refers to for 24 such rules reads:

25 “Sec. 879. Tax treatment of certain community income in the case of nonresident alien individuals
 26 (a) General rule - In the case of a married couple 1 or both of whom are nonresident alien individuals and 27 who have community income for the taxable year, such community income shall be treated as follows:...”
 28 [26 U.S.C. §879(a)]

29 The text here specifically states that it applies only where one or both are nonresident aliens. To use the same rules for two 30 citizens of the United States, Section 66 would have to say something similar to “shall be treated in accordance with the 31 rules provided by 879(a) regarding nonresident aliens, notwithstanding the fact that the individuals may be citizens or 32 residents of the United States.” But it says no such thing, implying that “community income” applies only if at least one 33 partner is a nonresident alien.

34 5.11.4 Following Instructions

35 Form 1040 is divided into several categories, such as personal information, “Filing Status,” “Exemptions,” “Income,” etc.
 36 In the instruction booklet for that form, there is a section that gives line-by-line instructions. The general category of 37 “Income” begins:

38 “Foreign-Source Income
 39
 40 You must report unearned income, such as interest, dividends, and pensions, from sources outside the United 41 States unless exempt by law or a tax treaty. You must also report earned income, such as wages and tips, from 42 sources outside the United States.
 43
 44 If you worked abroad, you may be able to exclude part or all of your earned income. For details, see Pub. 54,
 45 Tax Guide for U.S. Citizens and Resident Aliens Abroad, and Form 2555, Foreign Earned Income, or Form 46 2555-EZ, Foreign Earned Income Exclusion.
 47
 48 Community Property States... *
 49
 50 Rounding Off to Whole Dollars...”
 51 [1996 Instruction Booklet for Form 1040]

52 (* - This concerns “community income,” which is dealt with above. This would apply only to a United States citizen 53 married to a nonresident alien.)

1 That is all it has to say about the general subject of income. The booklet then tells where the listed “items” (interest,
2 dividends, wages, etc.) should be entered on Form 1040. While there is a statement specifically saying that “you must
3 report” these items if from sources outside the United States (the federal zone), there is no statement that these items
4 must be reported if they come from within the United States (the federal zone).

5 This admission in the booklet is very easy for most readers to simply disregard as irrelevant to them. If there was the need
6 to say that foreign-source income must be reported, why was there no need to say that any other income must be reported?
7 Why did the statement not say that foreign source income “as well as domestic income” must be reported? One is left free
8 to make the incorrect assumption that all income must be reported, when this is not the case.

9 A similar situation exists with IRS Publication 525, “Taxable and Nontaxable Income.” The first thing this publication says 10 concerning taxes, which appears on the cover, is:

11 “Important Reminder

12 Foreign Source Income

13 If you are a U.S. citizen, you must report income from sources outside the United States (foreign income) on 14 your tax return unless it is exempt by U.S. law.”

15 Then, in the introduction (which follows the above “reminder”), the publication states that the publication “discusses many 16 kinds of income and explains whether they are taxable or nontaxable.” Other than the “foreign source income” reminder,
17 the publication deals only with “items” of income, not “sources.” Again, one is left free to assume that income from within 18 the United States (the federal zone) is taxable to U.S. citizens, but it is not stated.

19 5.11.5 Treasury Decision 2313

20 The Supreme Court’s decision in the Brushaber case in 1916 (240 U.S. 1) is often cited by the IRS as demonstrating that 21 the income tax is Constitutional (which it is, because of its very limited legal application). What the IRS fails to mention, 22 and what is not apparent from looking at the court’s ruling in the case, is that the case concerned income from within the 23 United States (the federal zone) accruing to a nonresident alien, which is subject to the income tax. Treasury Decision 24 2313 makes this apparent.

25 “Under the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Brushaber v. Union Pacific
26 Railway Co., decided January 24, 1916, it is hereby held that income accruing to nonresident aliens in the form
27 of interest from the bonds and dividends on the stock of domestic corporations is subject to the income tax
28 imposed by the act of October 3, 1913.”
29 [Treasury Decision 2313]

30 Note how in this case an “item” of income (interest) is subject to the income tax when paid to nonresident aliens, because 31 that is one of the legal “sources” of taxable income. The decision also states a proper use of Form 1040.

32 “The responsible heads, agents, or representatives of nonresident aliens, who are in charge of the property
33 *owned or business carried on within the United States, shall make a full and complete return of the income
34 therefrom on Form 1040, revised, and shall pay any and all tax, normal and additional, assessed upon the 35 income received by them in behalf of their nonresident alien principals.” [Treasury Decision 2313]

36 While this in itself does not prove that Form 1040 should not be used in any other situation, something telling appears later
37 in the decision. Speaking of the responsibility of fiduciaries of domestic entities, it states:

38 “[W]hen there are two or more beneficiaries, one or all of whom are nonresident aliens, the fiduciary shall 39 *render a return on Form 1041, revised, and a personal return on Form 1040, revised, for each nonresident
40 alien beneficiary.”

41 This both implies that a Form 1041 is not required if there are no nonresident alien beneficiaries (only citizens and 42 residents), as well as implying that a Form 1040 is not to be issued for the citizen and resident beneficiaries.

43 5.11.6 Other Clues

44 As mentioned above, the only form ever approved for use with section 26 CFR §1.1-1 of the regulations (under the 45 Paperwork Reduction Act) was Form 2555, “Foreign Earned Income.” In addition, the only form approved by the Office

1 of Management and Budget for 26 CFR §1.861-2 and -3 (which deal with interest and dividends from within the United
2 States) is Form 1040NR, “U.S. Nonresident Alien Income Tax Return.” Similarly, the only form approved under 26 CFR
3 §1.861-8 itself is Form 1120-F, “U.S. Income Tax Return of a Foreign Corporation.”

4 Below each section of regulations in the CFR there is a citation of the legal authority under which the regulations are made.
5 The statutory authority for 26 CFR §1.861-8 is listed as 26 U.S.C. §7805 (which is the general rule-making authority for the 6 Secretary, as shown in the first citation of this report), as well as 26 U.S.C. §882(c), which reads:

7 “Tax on income of foreign corporations connected with United States business...
8 (c) Allowance of deductions and credits
9 (1) Allocation of deductions
10 (A) General rule... the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions for this purpose shall be 11 determined as provided in regulations prescribed by the Secretary.” [26 U.S.C. §882(c)]

12 This matches the fact that only the income tax return for a foreign corporation has been approved for use with this section
13 of regulations by the OMB. The newer, temporary regulations in 26 CFR §1.861-8T cite no statutory authority, but instead 14 cite Treasury Decision 8228, which states that the authors of the regulation both work in the “Office of the Associated Chief
15 Counsel (International).” The scope of the regulations is identified in the first paragraph of Treasury Decision 8228:

16 “Summary: This document provides temporary Income Tax Regulations relating to the allocation and 17 apportionment of interest expense and certain other expenses for purposes of the foreign tax credit rules and 18 certain other international tax provisions.”
19 [Treasury Decision 8228]

20 So the authorities cited as the legal basis for the regulations for “determining taxable income from sources within the 21 United States” (temporary and final) show that the regulations are about international commerce.

22 Another legal resource which demonstrates the true applicability of the “income tax” is the annotated index of the United 23 States Code. While there are different versions which vary somewhat in exact wording, under “Income tax, citizens,” only 24 things such as citizens “living abroad” or “about to depart from U.S.” are listed.

25 Both the indexes and the contents of “Internal Revenue Bulletins” (which contain rulings and decisions by the IRS
26 regarding interpretation of the law) reinforce the conclusions of this report. For example, the 1957-1960 cumulative 27 bulletin has nine listings under “Citizens,” every one of which deals with citizens being outside of the United States (the 28 federal zone). This same bulletin, under “Income - Source,” has 35 listings, all of which deal with specific issues related to 29 international commerce, with one exception; and that exception again reinforces the significance of Part I of Subchapter N,
30 and the related regulations:

31 “Within and without United States; determination. - Rules are prescribed for determination of gross income
32 and taxable income derived from sources within and without the United States... §§ 1.861-1 through 1.864.
33 (Secs. 861-864; '54 Code) T.D. 6258, C. B. 1957-2, 368.”

34 The bulletins show similar patterns year after year, from 1913 (when the basis of the current federal income tax was 35 written) to the present.

36 Another resource which indicates the true nature of the “income tax” is the Internal Revenue Manual, which is the 37 instruction manual for all divisions of the Internal Revenue Service. The Criminal Investigation Division of the IRS is the 38 division which deals with criminal violations of the federal “income tax” laws, including tax evasion and failure to file a
39 return. Section 1132.55 of the Internal Revenue Manual (entitled “Criminal Investigation Division”) begins as follows:

40 “The Criminal Investigation Division enforces the criminal statutes applicable to income, estate, gift,
41 employment, and excise tax laws... involving United States citizens residing in foreign countries and 42 nonresident aliens subject to Federal income tax filing requirements...”
43 [IRM Section 1132.55 (1991 Ed.)]

44 Similarly, the federal regulations found in 26 CFR §601.101(a) describe in general the functions of the Internal Revenue
45 Service. The only specific mention in these regulations of who or what is subject to taxes administered by the Internal 46 Revenue Service reads as follows:

1 “The Director, Foreign Operations District, administers the internal revenue laws applicable to taxpayers
 2 residing or doing business abroad, foreign taxpayers deriving income from sources within the United States,
 3 and taxpayers who are required to withhold tax on certain payments to nonresident aliens and foreign 4 corporations...”
 5 [26 CFR §601.101(a)]

6 In keeping with the deceptive structure used throughout the statutes and regulations, the reader is left to assume that some 7 other matters are also under IRS jurisdiction, but nothing else is specifically mentioned.

8 5.11.7 5 U.S.C., Section 8422: Deductions of OASDI for Federal Employees

9 Personnel who are employed by the Federal Government and who fall under the Federal Employee Retirement System fall
 10 under 5 U.S.C. Section 8422. This law sets forth the requirement to withhold OASDI for such employees. Here is the text
 11 of the law (which you can view for yourself at http://uscode.house.gov/title_05.htm). Please note the section which has a 12 box around it, which was highlighted for emphasis:

13 (a)(2) The percentage to be deducted and withheld from basic pay for 14 any pay period shall be equal to -
 15 (A) the applicable percentage under paragraph (3), minus
 16 (B) the percentage then in effect under section 3101(a) of the 17 Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to rate of tax for 18 old-age, survivors, and disability insurance).

(b) Each employee or Member is deemed to consent and agree to the deductions under subsection (a). Notwithstanding any law or regulation affecting the pay of an employee or Member, payment less such deductions is a full and complete discharge and acquittance of all claims and demands for regular services during the period covered by the payment, except the right to any benefits under this subchapter, or under subchapter IV or V of this chapter, based on the service of the employee or Member.

20 Now isn't that interesting? The tyrants in Washington, D.C. who you elected to office just decided to in effect make 21 contributions to Social Security "a precondition of employment" for federal "employees". They in effect have told federal

We know that if you were out in private industry, you wouldn't need to pay Social Security, so if you want to come to work for us, then you'll have to agree to allow us to take it out of your paycheck. And by the way, when we do, don't count on being able to take us to court for reducing your take home pay and depriving you of your property without due process, because by coming to work for us, you become indentured servants who agree implicitly that they are not being taken advantage of unfairly.

28 I'll bet the vast majority of federal employees don't even know that they are involuntarily consenting in this way to 29 subsidize a bankrupt system such as Social Security by hiring on with the Federal Government. If contributing to social 30 security were mandatory, do you think they would need a statute like this? Absolutely NOT!

31 All is not lost, however, because the "employee" they are talking about is that defined in 5 U.S.C. §2105, and does not 32 include ordinary workers, but only public officers.

33 5.12 How Can I Know When I've Discovered the Truth About Income Taxes?

34 "Income tax has made more liars out of the American people than golf." -- Will Rogers

35 One of the important questions people ask us about the contents of this book goes something like this:

QUESTION: Since there is a big government and legal profession cover-up and I therefore can't get the government or the IRS to even discuss with me or admit the truths that I've discovered about income taxes by virtue of reading this book, then how can I know that my conclusions are correct? The same argument applies to finding a legal coach, because most lawyers enjoy keeping their clients as ignorant as possible since that is how they can extort the most legal fees.

41 Good question! This is one of the first questions we asked ourselves when we started writing this book because we wanted
 42 to make sure everything in it was correct and obtain evidence supporting every aspect of our position right from the 43 government's own mouth. In addition to answering the above question, we also wanted to answer the following even more 44 important questions in the writing of this book, and we believe we have succeeded in answering all the questions posed in 45 this section in this book. The reason for these additional questions is that if we can't answer them, then we don't have the 46 basis for a sound "reliance defense" that we can use in court, should we ever be indicted for a tax crime and want to show
 47 the jury that there is no way we could have a "willful" intent to evade a know legal duty:

- 48 1. How can we establish a sound basis for understanding our tax liabilities if all the sources available from the 49 government are not trustworthy? What exactly IS a trustworthy source? None of the following are trustworthy sources
 50 for a good-faith belief for a person who doesn't reside in the federal zone and isn't a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8
 51 U.S.C. §1401, so what exactly are the trustworthy sources of good faith belief?:

- 1.1. The IRS and the federal courts say you can't rely on any of its forms and publications as a basis for belief about liability. See section 3.19 earlier for details on this scam.
- 1.2. The Internal Revenue Code is not positive law, according to the legislative notes under 1 U.S.C. §204, so you can't rely on it. It is "prima facie evidence" of law, but that simply means it is "presumptive evidence". Anything involving presumption is a violation of due process and it is a sin for Christians to presume anything. Therefore, the I.R.C. is not a sound basis for belief. See section 5.4.2.4 and following earlier for details on this scam.
- 1.3. All of the legal and accounting professionals who handle tax issues are government-licensed and therefore have a conflict of interest, so you can't trust them. See section 1.11.5 earlier for details on this scam.
- 1.4. Federal judges who either receive benefits from the income tax, or who pay income taxes and are subject to IRS extortion cannot be objective in ruling on income tax issues. Our original constitutional model called for them to be paid from taxes on imports by people over which they have no jurisdiction to ensure no conflict of interest. Since the advent of unconstitutional federal taxation within the states of the Union by the IRS starting in 1942, the system has been totally corrupt. Therefore, all federal judges who participate in Subtitle A income taxation are biased and have a conflict of interest in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208. See 28 U.S.C. §960 and the following link for details on this scam: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Discovery/Deposition/WhyCourtsCantAddressQuestions.htm>
- 1.5. Juries who try the issue in a federal court are not authorized by law to do so in most cases, because they don't live on federal property and are not statutory "citizens of the United States" (under 8 U.S.C. §1401) as required by 28 U.S.C. §1865. Therefore their findings are a violation of due process and not admissible as evidence of liability.
- 1.6. The rulings of federal district and circuit courts are irrelevant to people who are "nationals" and "nonresident aliens" and who do not live on federal property or within federal jurisdiction. Only the Supreme Court can rule on Constitutional issues anyway, and there aren't any Supreme Court rulings that contradict the content of this book. Why then should American nationals who are not connected to federal jurisdiction be expected to rely on irrelevant sources of law such as district and circuit courts?
2. How can we explain the irrational and inconsistent behavior of the federal judiciary towards the income tax issue? The constitutionality of the income tax has been continually debated in the federal district and circuit courts since the passage of the Sixteenth Amendment in 1913. These courts have had over 90 years to reach a sound and consistent policy and approach and yet there is still wide variations between the circuit courts on the constitutionality and authority of the federal income tax? The Fourteenth Amendment guarantees us equal protection of the laws, and yet the protection is NOT equal between circuit courts. Why is this? See section 3.20.1 earlier for detailed coverage of this area of "cognitive dissonance" in relation to income taxation.
3. Who are the specific key individuals chiefly responsible throughout history for erecting and maintaining this fraud and usury by our government called income tax? We answer that question in detail in the next chapter and put everything into historical context so you can see exactly how the "scheme" was created and who was responsible for it.
4. How has the legislative intent of the founding fathers been violated in erecting the fraudulent system of taxation we have now? What elements of the legislative intent have been violated? We answer that question in the next chapter, in section 6.1.
5. What efforts has the federal judiciary and the legal profession taken to conceal or hide the truth about these issues? What is the detailed history on this subject? We answer this question in the next chapter. We believe that the most reliable source of truth is to observe the things that people hide or avoid, and this tendency is confirmed by John 3:18-21 in the Bible.

To get to the answer to your question and the above additional equally important questions, you must take into consideration the following factors:

1. The IRS doesn't want you to know the truth. They won't respond to or acknowledge any of your good arguments. Usually, they will instead pick the weakest argument that won't stand up in court and assess you with a $500 frivolous return penalty for it using a meaningless form letter that doesn't teach you anything about the truth.
2. The legal profession doesn't want you to know the truth. That ought to be very clear from reading this chapter and section 6.10 of this book. The legal profession also has a monopoly of influence over all three branches of the federal government, because most of the people at the top are or have been lawyers, so they have a vested interest to preserve and enhance their power by keeping the general populace ignorant.
3. The courts don't want you to know the truth about income taxes. If they let the truth out, it would destroy the income tax system and eliminate the main source of pay for most federal judges, which amounts to a conflict of interest. Most federal judges probably also think you would destabilize our country economically if they entertained your valid arguments and the truth about income taxes. We know this isn't necessarily the case by reading section 1.10.9, but that

1 is what they think. You can use the data in that section to convince them otherwise. Section 6.9 also clearly
 2 documents a judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax and how it is being implemented. Nevertheless, there are 3 therefore strong incentives for judges to nix any and all arguments and to do everything they can to keep you from 4 getting your evidence admitted and in keeping the jury, if there is one, from hearing the truth.

5 4. Your Congressman doesn't want you to know the truth. If he let the public hear the truth, he would probably:

6 4.1. Reduce his benefits and fat retirement because of funding shortfalls in the government.

7 4.2. Destroy his chances of being elected President.

8 4.3. See a reduction of his power and influence by virtue of controlling half of your income to be spend on his favorite 9 pet project.

10 If you look through the list above, the one that stands out and which provides the clearest evidence of conspiracy and 11 actually allows you to research the cover-up and expose it is item 3 above: the federal courts. The courts are required to 12 keep everything on the record, so when there is a cover-up, it's easier to spot and document. The key elements of the 13 arguments we raise in this book have to do with the following issues:

14 1. No liability statutes in section 5.4.15.

15 2. The 861 source position in section 5.6.11.

16 3. The Nonresident alien position in section 5.6.14, which hinges mainly on the definition of "State" and "United States".

17 4. Deceiving definitions found in section 3.12.1.

18 What we are trying to expose is a large-scale federal court cover-up of approaches that are successful in litigating against 19 the income tax in court, so what we are looking for is the absence of discussion about the above subjects in the court
 20 records, and the avoidance of publishment of cases that deal with them. When we say "court" here, we don't mean "Tax 21 Court", because Tax Court is a Kangaroo court that isn't even a court, which is why we recommend staying away from it!
 22 Instead, we mean Article III federal courts at the District and Circuit level, as well as the Supreme Courts. We are also 23 looking for information from persons who have litigated any of these issues where judges have deliberately chosen to not
 24 publish their case and have sealed the court record (a violation of the First Amendment, we might add!). For such cases, we 25 then want to go to the particular court where it was tried and request the findings of the court directly, because they would 26 not be published in any electronic case databases we could search.

27 The above tactics describe exactly what we have done and the most convincing evidence we have of the truthfulness of the 28 conclusions in this book is the conspicuous absence in any of the federal case databases of cases dealing with any of the 29 four issues above. We searched over 200 years of case databases for the Supreme Court, Circuit courts, and District courts
 30 and found nothing that talks about any of these issues. Certainly, none of the issues we raise in this book are novel or new,
 31 and as a person who isn't a lawyer and who wrote this book, we would expect that there would have been at least one
 32 lawyer out there smarter than us who had used our arguments, but we found no record of any. The reason is because 33 federal judges won't allow anything about those issues, which are guaranteed to be successful, to end up in any court
 34 record, for obvious reasons related to their continued employment and pay and in what appears to be a clear conflict of 35 interest in violation of 28 U.S.C. 455. Section 6.9.7 (an ominous number!) talks about a positive act by a specific federal 36 judge of covering up several cases litigated by William Conklin on issues of the Fifth Amendment relative to the income
 37 tax. The case of Lloyd Long found in section 9.2.6 is another example where a person was successful in defeating the 38 income tax in court and which therefore went unpublished by the court. That is why we posted the court's findings for this 39 case on our website at:

40 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/CaseStudies/LloydLong/long1.htm>

41 The case of Loren C. Troescher is another example of someone who was successful against the income tax in federal court 42 and whose judgment went unpublished. We have the judgment posted at:

43 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/CaseStudies/LTroescher/LorenTroescher.htm>

44 We are sure there are other concrete examples of federal court cover-ups like Lloyd Long, William Conklin, and Loren C.
 45 Troescher. We therefore welcome your anecdotes, and especially those with specific information about cases you litigated
 46 that were unpublished. We would like to get the transcripts from a few such cases to post on our website, so please send us 47 information about your cases, including hearing date(s), case numbers, and the court they were litigated in.

1 One more thing you will discover as you use the knowledge you have learned in this book against the IRS and your state
 2 taxing authorities is that as your skills improve and your arguments become clearer and better, the amount of time required
 3 for them to respond to your correspondence and income tax filings will go up dramatically. Our first tax refund filing was
 4 rejected in less than a couple months when we were still learning and had some flawed ideas. After we fixed all of the 5 misconceptions in our logic, expanded this book considerably, and re-filed during a down season when few people were
 6 filing, we have been waiting over six months for a response from the California Franchise Tax Board. Sticking to the main
 7 arguments listed above and avoiding spurious arguments or weaker arguments clearly makes it very difficult for the IRS
 8 and state taxing authorities to respond to refund requests and zero income tax return filings (no income). Why? Remember
 9 that whenever you file a tax refund request or a zero tax return, the IRS and the state taxing authorities like to respond by 10 citing the corrupt federal courts as their justification or precedent, which by the way are irrelevant if you don't reside in the 11 federal zone. They will seldom respond by quoting taxing statutes or regulations to justify their position, because then you
 12 can hold them accountable for incorrectly applying the law and they can no longer claim "plausible deniability" as a
 13 defense. If you use successful arguments in your tax return filing that the courts have tried to cover up and won't publish,
 14 then you leave the IRS and your state taxing authorities with nothing to cite except the law in their response, and the law
 15 clearly shows that no one is liable! They are speechless and have no way to respond! For such a case, they will assign 16 your return to some junior lawyer or clerk, who then gets stuck with "high maintenance" returns that no one wants to deal
 17 with, and these people are even less equipped to respond, so it takes forever.

18 The failure of the IRS or your state taxing authorities to respond to you is what we call a "Fifth Amendment" response.
 19 The Fifth Amendment, by the way, does not apply collectively to organizations like the IRS and only applies to natural
 20 persons (people). Therefore, they can't legally use it while representing the IRS, so they instead will just refuse to respond
 21 so they can keep you in fear and guessing. Likewise, if you call them on the carpet about assessing penalties against you
 22 and they recognize their error and eliminate the penalties or the invalid assessment, then they aren't likely to call you or
 23 send a letter letting you know they did this because they would then have to admit they were wrong and who they were, and 24 that would subject them to personal liability. Therefore, if they drop penalties or assessments because you prove them
 25 wrong, don't expect any confirmation. If you want to find out who dropped the penalty or assessment and why they did it,
 26 you will most often have to call them back and demand information about who did it and why they did it. Or you will have 27 to do a Freedom of Information Act request to get the documents showing what they did, and in some cases, they will 28 redact the identity of the specific agent by blacking out the employee number so he isn't culpable. These people are 29 criminals and weasels and they know it! It is very rare that you will get anything in writing about their mistakes, because 30 then you could use it as evidence to sue them! They will therefore wait for you to call back and ask, and you ought to get it
 31 on tape for use as evidence in court. Under such circumstances, get the name and number of the incompetent employee and 32 sue him for malfeasance using the information he provides about himself.

33 The principles revealed in this section are the Achilles Heel of the government's fraudulent and corrupt tax system and the 34 secret to DESTROYING it. If you stick to good, sound arguments, stay on point, insist on your due process rights, and 35 submit correspondence and returns that are MASSIVE, flawless, and so difficult and time consuming to deal with that they 36 can't automate it and must hand it to an expensive IRS attorney to deal with, then the whole corrupt system will come
 37 crashing and burning down just like the statue of Lenin and the Berlin Wall did when communism fell in the Soviet Union!
 38 Make no mistake about it: communism and socialism are the SAME evil monsters we are fighting in this country in the 39 case of the income tax, but our fight is a little bit different and mostly on an economic, political, and legal scale rather than 40 by military means. Here is what the U.S. supreme Court said about the communism we are fighting, and these words are 41 very profound:

42 "... the maxim that the King can do no wrong has no place in our system of government; yet it is also true, in 43 respect to the State itself, that whatever wrong is attempted in its name is imputable to its government and not 44 to the State, for, as it can speak and act only by law, whatever it does say and do must be lawful. That which 45 therefore is unlawful because made so by the supreme law, the Constitution of the United States, is not the 46 word or deed of the State, but is the mere wrong and trespass of those individual persons who falsely spread 47 and act in its name."

48 "This distinction is essential to the idea of constitutional government. To deny it or blot it out obliterates the 49 line of demarcation that separates constitutional government from absolutism, free self- government based on 50 the sovereignty of the people from that despotism, whether of the one or the many, which enables the agent of 51 the state to declare and decree that he is the state; to say 'L'Etat, c'est moi.' Of what avail are written 52 constitutions, whose bills of right, for the security of individual liberty, have been written too often with the 53 blood of martyrs shed upon the battle-field and the scaffold, if their limitations and restraints upon power
 54 may be overpassed with impunity by the very agencies created and appointed to guard, defend, and enforce

1 them; and that, too, with the sacred authority of law, not only compelling obedience, but entitled to respect?
 2 And how else can these principles of individual liberty and right be maintained, if, when violated, the judicial 3 tribunals are forbidden to visit penalties upon individual offenders, who are the instruments of wrong,
 4 whenever they interpose the shield of the state? The doctrine is not to be tolerated.
 5 The whole frame and scheme of the political institutions of 6 this country, state and federal, protest against it. Their
 7 continued existence is not compatible with it. It is the doctrine
 8 of absolutism, pure, simple, and naked, and of communism
 9 which is its twin, the double progeny of the same evil birth."
 10 [Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U.S. 270, 5 S.Ct. 903 (1885)]

11 5.13 How the Government exploits our weaknesses to manufacture "taxpayers"

12 The federal government uses a very methodical and sophisticated process to convert sovereign American Nationals into 13 "taxpayers" who are subject to their laws and to illegal IRS extortion. Before you could understand all the nuances of this 14 approach, you had to read nearly this entire chapter, which is why we waited until the end of this chapter to explain it. The 15 process exploits the many human weaknesses and sins we talked about earlier in section 2.8 in order to expand the 16 operation of the income tax to every person in society, including: Deception, presumption, fear, and ignorance.

17 "Objections to its [the income tax] renewal are long, loud, and general throughout the country. Those who pay
 18 are the exception, those who do not pay are millions; the whole moral force of the law is a dead letter. The

27 In order to retain and protect your sovereignty as a "nontaxpayer" and a "national" or "state national", you must understand
 28 exactly how their "matrix" functions so they won't be able to connect you up to it and so that you can disconnect yourself
 29 from it completely if you are already connected. Hence, this section. We have taken the time to break the "Government
 30 Matrix" into a detailed sequence of process steps that are employed against the average American so you can see how you 31 progress from a free person to a government serf with no rights or privacy. At each step, we show you:

- 32 1. The event that denigrates or undermines your sovereign status as a "nontaxpayer" and a "non-citizen national"
- 33 2. How your legal status, or at least your "presumed" status, changes at the conclusion of each significant event.
- 34 3. How the government uses the event to perform the abuse.
- 35 4. The legal authorities and references elsewhere in this book where you can learn more about the technique described in
- 36 the step.
- 37 5. A few things you can do to fight their tactics at each stage.

 39 born in a state of the Union, from the time he his born until the time that he reaches full adulthood.

1 Table 5-68: How the federal government manufactures "taxpayers" from Americans born in states of the Union

#	Event	Your status	What the federal government does	Legal reference(s) and evidence	Tactics to counter the government's fraud and coercion
1	Born in any American Hospital	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. "citizen of the United States" under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment 2. "nontaxpayer" 3. Not a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 4. No SSN if your parents refused to give you a number under the Enumeration at Birth Program of the SSA. 	Social Security Administration "Enumeration at Birth Program" causes hospital to give your child an SSN before his feet even touch the ground. They will pre-assign the number and then tell you that you can't refuse it.	See section 2.8.7.1: Social Security Enumeration at Birth Program	Don't name your baby until AFTER you leave the hospital. Make your own birth certificate using witnesses who were present at the birth. That way the government doesn't know what name to assign to the SSN they will try to force on you.
2	Pre-natal healthcare		If mother gets under Medical or any other state or federal aid, she must provide SSN and must show her tax returns as evidence of income and the fact that she is "paying her fair share" to the welfare worker.	Unofficial agency policy. Their forms will state that you can be denied the benefit if you refuse to disclose.	Get a business name from the county that uses your all caps name. Then apply for several numbers using the business name and an IRS Form W-7 or W-9. After they accept your application, cancel the business and the number.
3	Mother filing income tax forms	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. A presumed statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401. Your mother's or father's tax return says so. 2. Mother gets an SSN so she can claim you as a dependent. 	IRS says on 1040 form that if you want a deduction for your child, you must claim them as "U.S. citizens" and list their Socialist Security Number. That means 8 U.S.C. §1401 citizens and NOT 14 th Amendment citizens! In fact, there is no law requiring an SSN in order to claim a child as a dependent. It's IRS policy but there is no law.	See the IRS form 1040 at: http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/ Forms/IncomeTaxRtn/Federal/IRSFom1040Instr.pdf .	Don't file the 1040 form. It's the WRONG form. If you file anything, it should be the 1040NR, and even then, most people born in states of the Union don't have any taxable income.
4	Your child needs to attend classes at grammar school	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Must get an SSN. 2. Linked to global federal databases because of SSN. 	The school will demand a Social Security Number form the child or they won't allow them to register for classes.	Unofficial school policy. They won't be able to show you a law that says you have to provide an SSN, but they will effectively discriminate against your child if he doesn't provide one because they will say that their computer system is not equipped to keep track of him without a number. Baloney!	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Refuse to provide a number and demand that they show you the law that requires your child to have a number in the first place.; 2. Tell them to make up a number and bogus name that no other student has, and then correct the printouts after they are printed. No big deal. 3. If worst comes to worst, sue the school for discrimination against your child because he fails to obtain or use the mark of the beast.
5	Your child reaches his teens and might be working on the side soon	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Child brainwashed to falsely believe that income taxes are required by law. 2. Officially put on notice that they will be government "serfs" when they reach 18 by government goons. 	Public/government school invites the IRS and the American Bar Association in to terrorize teenage students in the public school classroom by warning them that "the law" says they have to pay "taxes" when they get a job. They refuse to answer any questions about the law itself or teach the students about the Constitutional limitations on the taxing power of the government. Likewise, the history teacher never taught the students about the Constitution limits on the government, and since the teacher and the school endorsed the	See section 1.11.3, where we show an actual announcement by the IRS Tax Practitioner Newsletter showing their school mentorship program.	Remind your child that if a teacher or school attempts this, then you want to know about it. Call your school and find out if they have such a program. Then demand equal time and tell the students the "rest of the story" BEFORE the IRS agent and lawyer show up. They will be booted out. Show them the evidence. 			visitors, the class full of teenagers believes them. Anyone else from the outside who insists on being present when the IRS and ABA are there to balance the story is told they aren't welcome, because the government that runs the school wants to "own" and control the sheep. The guests will base their visit on the deceptive IRS publications but will say nothing about the actual law.
5	Your child reaches his/her teens and wants a summer job.	1. Fills out a W-4 and submits to private employer. Ends up in IRS databases with his/her name connected to SSN.	His summer employer, who has been terrorized by the state and federal authorities to obey presumed "law" that in fact doesn't even exist, will be risk averse. He will do everything to transfer all the risks associated with noncompliance to the child by forcing him/her to provide an SSN and fill out a W-4 form so that he can begin withholding. If he fails to comply, he will be terminated and/or not hired for his summer job. Since kids are a dime a dozen and employers have little patience with them, the kid caves in.	1. 26 U.S.C. §6109 2. 26 CFR §301.6109-1(d)(3) 3. W-4 form 4. 6	The child receives his first W-2 from his private employer	1. IRS assumes they elected or volunteered to become federal serfs and treats SSN as a TIN, even though TINs can only be issued to "aliens" under 26 CFR §301.6109-1(d)(3). 2. Child is now a "taxpayer" because he provided an SSN that IRS will illegally treat as a "TIN" in their system.	The IRS now has the kid's name in their computer connected with a number. 26 USC 6109 says the only type of number that is mandatory is a TIN, and an SSN is not a TIN. The IRS will try to match the SSN with an existing TIN in their system. When they find no match, they "assume" that the child volunteered to allow the IRS to treat the SSN on the W-2 form as a TIN. They won't tell the child that they made this presumption, but they have to make the presumption in order to collect anything from him or justify keeping the withheld funds. Otherwise, they are in receipt of monies wrongfully paid and must return them.	W-2 Form reports "wages". The only people who earn "wages" under 26 CFR §31.3401(a)-3 are "public officers" of the federal government engaged in a "trade or business" under 26 U.S.C. 7701(a)(26) and 26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) who have volunteered to participate in the tax system. Participation is not mandatory.	The child can send to the IRS a form 4852 which zeros out all reported wages and therefore nullifies the false W-2. Make sure to include an attached letter indicating that the SSN/TIN reported by your employer was provided under duress, is wrong, and that the person responsible for the fact that it is wrong is the person instituting the duress, which is the payroll clerk at the private employer.
7	Your child needs to travel with you overseas and needs a passport	1. Child's/persons' name is now connected with an SSN in the Department of State databases, and this information is shared with the IRS. 2. If child/person already owes taxes or any kind of child support, the federal government will not issue him a passport or let him leave the country until he/she "pays up".	The child fills out a DS-11 Passport form to get a passport. The form asks for a Social Security Number and warns that failure to disclose one can result in a $500 penalty by the IRS. This is a bogus warning, as we point out, because it has no implementing regulations, violates the Constitution because it is a Bill of Attainder. The form also creates a false presumption that the child is a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, because the only option it gives is that of statutory "U.S. citizen" for both you or your parents. If you fill out the form the way the government wants, you get an SSN and declare yourself under federal jurisdiction by being a statutory "U.S. citizen". Wrong idea!	1. Department of State DS-11 Passport Application Form. 2. 8 U.S.C. §1401 3. 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B)	Have the child fill out the DS-11 form using the instructions we provide at: http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Instructions/3.13ChangeUSCitizenshipStatus.htm This will cause you to be a "national of the United States" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) and will keep him out of federal jurisdiction by making him a "nonresident alien" under the Internal Revenue Code. It will also protect his privacy, because it shows how to get a passport without a Slave Surveillance Number.

8	The child decides to get a drivers license	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. State government now has connected them to the state revenue agencies databases. 2. Driver license information shared with state revenue agency so they know where to go after people who don't pay their state income taxes. 	The state demands that he or she provide a Slave Surveillance Number in order to get the license.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Driver's license application for your state. 2. 42 U.S.C. §408 makes it a federal offense to demand a number if you don't want to provide one, or to discriminate if you won't provide one. Don't use this unless the discrimination occurs on federal property. 	Don't provide the one that is for the child. Instead, go to the County Business office and file a "Doing Business As" name in the name of your child in all capital letters. Then apply for a Slave Surveillance Number for the business entity. Then use that number to get the license. After they issue the license, cancel the business and the number and tell the state that it is cancelled. Ask for an updated license that has the number removed. If they refuse, then prosecute them for falsifying numbers and for discrimination.
9	When your son or daughter reaches 18, he or she will try to register to vote	Voter registration form creates a false presumption that submitter is a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 who is subject to federal jurisdiction.	Most state voter registration forms have as a prerequisite that you are a statutory "U.S. CITIZEN" without defining the term. If you indicate yes and sign the form without clarifying what you mean, then the courts will assume that you are a statutory 8 U.S.C. §1401 citizen subject to federal law.	8 U.S.C. §1401	Instead of filling out the form the way the state wants you to, modify it according to our instructions in step 3.13 of our Income Tax Freedom Forms and Instructions at: http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Instructions/3.13ChangeUSCitizenshipStatus.htm This will ensure that you remain a "national but not citizen of the United States" under federal law and do not fall under federal jurisdiction. Some states will even try to interfere with your free speech on their forms by preventing you from attaching anything to the voter application form, defining any of the words on the form, or clarifying the citizenship you are describing on the form, in a clear attempt to try to restrain you from leaving the "federal slave plantation", as we call it. When this happens you have a tort and you can sue the Registrar of Voters for violation of your First Amendment rights.

His name is connected to a "Taxpayer Identification Number" 2. Child is officially and formally a "taxpayer" and will be relentlessly harassed and terrorized indefinitely if he refuses to comply with the tax code, which isn't even a law. Corrupted federal courts will facilitate this process. 	Because the child had a poor public school education, because the government never taught him about how it tries to deceive him and how it tries to deceive him, then he is ill-equipped to circumvent the guile of the silver-tongued government lawyers who set up the bogus tax scheme. He was never taught that the Internal Revenue Code was repealed in 1939, that there is no liability statute creating a legal duty, and that only federal employees who elect to participate in the tax system are the ones who can be forced to pay. Consequently, he picks up a commercial tax guide written by Ernst and Young, which has repeatedly been persecuted by the IRS for not putting what the government wants the public to hear about the tax code in their commercial	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. This kind of godless relationship will eventually end up in divorce court, and then you will have to divulge all your income and asset information in a public record that anyone can read, in which an SSN is connected with your name as well. This kind of public disclosure of your private financial affairs makes you into a further IRS target. The next guy you piss off can march down and look at your record, find an error in your tax information, and snitch on you to the IRS. Bye bye privacy, dignity, and autonomy. 5.14 Federal Income Taxes Within Territories and Possessions of the United States

This section summarizes liability for federal taxes within possessions and territories of the United States. The territories and possessions of the United States are enumerated in Title 48 of the United States Code. Throughout this book, we have said that these territories and possessions, the District of Columbia, and enclaves within states of the Union collectively comprise the entire “United States” that is the proper subject of Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. Each of these areas, however, has its own unique constraints that are prescribed by the Internal Revenue Code.

We will now enumerate the major territories and possessions and summarize the constraints applicable to each. We'll also provide the applicable statutes and regulations that describe the requirements for each. The table below contains a list of the territories and possessions of the United States and the liability for payroll and income taxes within those areas:

Table 5-69: Federal Income Taxes Within Territories and Possessions of the United States

#	Name of place	Legal Status	Governing codes and regulation(s)	Tax liability
1	Virgin Islands	Territory	26 U.S.C. §932 48 U.S.C. §1397	Tax treaty in effect between U.S. and Virgin Islands. Federal gross income includes all income from sources within V.I. for nonresidents. Taxes between V.I. and Federal are split based on percentage of income “effectively connected to a trade or business” (public office) derived from each source.
2	Puerto Rico	Territory	26 U.S.C. §933(1) 26 CFR §31.3401(a)(8)(C)-1(a)	Earnings in Puerto Rico by residents are not “gross income”. No payroll tax withholding for “citizens of the United States”
3	Guam	Territory	26 U.S.C. §931(a)	Earnings in possessions are not “gross income”.
4	American Samoa	Possession	26 U.S.C. §931(a) 26 CFR §31.3401(a)(8)(B)-1(a)	Earnings in possessions are not “gross income”. No payroll tax withholding for “citizens of the United States”
5	Swain's Island	Possession	26 CFR §31.3401(a)(8)(B)-1(a)	No payroll tax withholding for “citizens of the United States”

The interesting thing about the statutes and regulations listed above is the use of the term “citizen of the United States”. That “citizen of the United States” is an 8 U.S.C. §1401 citizen born in a territory of the United States. If he/she was not born in a territory or was born in a state of the Union, then he/she is a “national of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1408 and 8 U.S.C. §1452. Several federal publications we have read, which are mentioned in section 4.11.7.5 identify the only “nationals of the United States” under federal law as those persons born in American Samoa and Swain's Island. The other type of “national of the United States”, the one born in a state of the Union, is not specifically mentioned but also included in that category by implication.

To summarize the above table, the only territory or possession that is subject to income tax under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code is the Virgin Islands. 48 U.S.C. §1397 says that all revenues collected from income taxes within the Virgin Islands shall be given to the government of the Virgin Islands instead of the United States government. All the other territories and possessions don't have to participate in the tax system or get involved with payroll withholding. Earlier versions of IRS internal manuals relating to IMF decoding reveal that the people domiciled in the Virgin Islands are the only parties who for which a Transaction Code 150 is appropriate within the Individual Master File (IMF). The Individual Master File, recall, is the electronic record that the IRS uses to maintain the tax account of “individuals”. Individuals, in turn, consist of only “aliens” and “nonresident aliens” under 26 CFR §1.1441-1(c)(3).

5.15 Congress has made you a Political “tax prisoner” and a “feudal tax serf” in your own country!

1 The U.S. Congress wants to obfuscate and abuse the law and your rights to make you a political tax prisoner and a “feudal
2 tax serf” in your own country.

3 “Shall the [throne of iniquity \[the U.S. Congress and the federal judiciary\]](#), which devises evil
4 by [obfuscating the] law [to expand their jurisdiction and consolidate all economic power in their hands by 5 taking it away from the states], have fellowship with You? They gather together against the life of the 6 righteous, and condemn innocent blood of “nontaxpayers” and [persons outside their jurisdiction,
7 which is an act of extortion and racketeering]. But the Lord has been my defense, and my God the rock of my 8 refuge. He has brought on them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; the Lord our 9 God and those who obey Him and [His word] shall cut them off [from power and from receiving illegal
10 bribes cleverly disguised by an obfuscated “code” as legitimate “taxes”].”
11 [Psalms 94:20-23, Bible, NKJV.]

12 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Who else BUT Congress and the judiciary can devise “evil by law”?

13 They want the slaves to stay in “tax prison” and live on the federal plantation so they can harvest the loot from them.
14 You’re a host organism for the federal parasite and you better learn to like it, boy. You’re part of the matrix! 26 U.S.C.
15 §877, entitled “Expatriation to avoid tax” compels people domiciled inside the federal zone to continue paying extortion
16 money for up to ten years after they expatriate their “national” status if they did so in order to avoid “taxes”. Here is an 17 excerpt from that statute, which by the way isn’t a “law”:

18 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART II > Subpart A > Sec. 877.
19 Sec. 877. - Expatriation to avoid tax

20 (a) Treatment of expatriates

21 (1) In general

22 Every nonresident alien individual who, within the 10-year period immediately preceding the close of the 23 taxable year, lost United States citizenship, unless such loss did not have for one of its principal purposes the 24 avoidance of taxes under this subtitle or subtitle B, shall be taxable for such taxable year in the manner 25 provided in subsection (b) if the tax imposed pursuant to such subsection (after any reduction in such tax under 26 the last sentence of such subsection) exceeds the tax which, without regard to this section, is imposed pursuant 27 to section 871.

28 (2) Certain individuals treated as having tax avoidance purpose

29 For purposes of paragraph (1), an individual shall be treated as having a principal purpose to avoid such taxes 30 if -

31 (A) the average annual net income tax (as defined in section 38(c)(1)) of such individual for the period of 5
32 taxable years ending before the date of the loss of United States citizenship is greater than $100,000, or 33 (B) the net worth of the individual as of such date is $500,000 or more.

34 In the case of the loss of United States citizenship in any calendar year after 1996, such $100,000 and $500,000
35 amounts shall be increased by an amount equal to such dollar amount multiplied by the cost-of-living 36 adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3) for such calendar year by substituting “1994” for “1992” in 37 subparagraph (B) thereof. Any increase under the preceding sentence shall be rounded to the nearest multiple 38 of $1,000.

39 Note one very important aspect of the above!: That a person who is a “nonresident alien” and who is expatriating their 40 “nationality”, is the proper subject of this law. This confirms the main hypothesis of this book, which is that you can 41 indeed be a “nonresident alien” and a “national” and still not be a statutory “U.S. citizen”, because a “nonresident alien” is 42 defined in 26 U.S.C. §7791(b)(1)(B) as a person who is neither a “citizen nor a resident of the United States”.

43 Based on the above, if you have property inside the federal zone and attempt to abandon your “national” status by 44 expatriating and do it for the specific and main purpose of avoiding federal “taxes”, then you are punished by having to pay
45 taxes for the next ten years on any earnings you declare on a tax return! Don’t let this law scare you though, because if you
46 are an “alien” or a “nonresident” with respect to the federal zone, then you don’t come under the jurisdiction of this law
47 because Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code is internal to the federal zone only. The IRS may try to misuse this law,

1 however, to jeopardize or attach property that you have inside the federal zone if you refuse to pay extortion they will
 2 mistakenly say you owe under this provision. In other words, the IRS may try to use this as a source for "in rem"
 3 jurisdiction over your real property within the federal United States.

4 The U.S. Congress said long ago that the ability to expatriate is a right fundamental in protecting our liberties and must not
 5 be hindered or interfered with by government, and yet that same Congress is now contradicting itself by punishing those 6 who expatriate because they want to pick their pockets before they leave the federal slave plantation!:

7 "Almost a century ago, Congress declared that "the right of expatriation [including expatriation from the 8 District of Columbia or "U.S. Inc", the corporation] is a natural and inherent right of all people, indispensable
 9 to the enjoyment of the rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," and decreed that "any declaration,
 10 instruction, opinion, order, or decision of any officers of this government which denies, restricts, impairs, or 11 questions the right of expatriation, is hereby declared inconsistent with the fundamental principles of this 12 government." 15 Stat. 223-224 (1868), R.S. § 1999, 8 U.S.C. § 800 (1940).¹⁵⁰ Although designed to apply
 13 especially to the rights of immigrants to shed their foreign nationalities, that Act of Congress "is also broad 14 enough to cover, and does cover, the corresponding natural and inherent right of American citizens to
 16 Ed. 287.¹⁵¹ The Supreme Court has held that the Citizenship Act of 1907 and the Nationality Act of 1940 "are to 17 be read in the light of the declaration of policy favoring freedom of expatriation which stands unrepealed." Id.,

 20 [Walter Briehl v. John Foster Dulles, 248 F2d 561, 583 (1957)]

21 On the other hand, when states of the Union have attempted to do almost exactly the same thing in their statutes by trying 22 tax and thereby punish those who try to physically leave the state or travel outside it and thereby escape its jurisdiction, the 23 U.S. Supreme Court hypocritically struck down the law that did this. Here is an example:

24 "It was so decided in 1867 by Crandall v. Nevada, 6 Wall. 35, 39. In that case this Court struck down a
 25 Nevada tax 'upon every person leaving the State' by common carrier. Mr. Justice Miller writing for the Court
 26 held that the right to move freely throughout the nation was a right of national citizenship. That the right was 27 implied did not make it any the less 'guaranteed' by the Constitution. Id., 6 Wall. page 47. To be sure, he 28 emphasized that the Nevada statute would obstruct the right of a citizen to travel to the seat of his national 29 government or its offices throughout the country. And see United States v. Wheeler, 254 U.S. 281, 299, 41 S.Ct.
 30 133, 136. But there is not a shred of evidence in the record of the Crandall case that the persons there involved
 31 were en route on any such mission any more than it appears in this case that Duncan entered California to 32 interview some federal agency. The point which Mr. Justice Miller made was merely in illustration of the 33 damage and havoc which would ensue if the States had the power to prevent the free movement of citizens
 34 from one State to another. [314 U.S. 160, 179] This is emphasized by his quotation from Chief Justice
 35 Taney's dissenting opinion in the Passenger Cases, 7 How. 283, 492: 'We are all citizens of the United States,
 36 and as members of the same community must have the right to pass and repass through every part of it without 37 interruption, as freely as in our own States.' Hence the dictum in United States v. Wheeler, supra, 254 U.S. page
 38 299, 41 S.Ct. page 136, which attempts to limit the Crandall case to a holding that the statute in question
 39 directly burdened 'the performance by the United States of its governmental functions' and limited the 'rights of 40 the citizens growing out of such functions,' does not bear analysis.

41 [...]

42 "The conclusion that the right of free movement is a right of national citizenship stands on firm historical 43 ground. If a state tax on that movement, as in the Crandall case, is invalid, a fortiori a state statute which 44 obstructs or in substance prevents that movement must fall. That result necessarily follows unless perchance a
 45 State can curtail the right of free movement of those who are poor or destitute. But to allow such an exception 46 to be engrafted on the rights of national citizenship would be to contravene every conception of national unity.
 47 It would also introduce a caste system utterly incompatible with the spirit of our system of government. It would 48 permit those who were stigmatized by a State as indigents, paupers, or vagabonds to be relegated to an inferior
 49 class of citizenship. It would prevent a citizen because he was poor from seeking new horizons in other States. It
 50 might thus withhold from large segments of our people that mobility which is basic to any guarantee of freedom
 51 of opportunity. The result would be a substantial dilution of the rights of national citizenship, a serious
 52 impairment of the principles of equality. Since the state statute here challenged involves such consequences, it
 53 runs afoul of the privileges and immunities clause of the Fourteenth Amendment."

1 In effect, the state of Nevada in Crandall was trying to punish people for leaving the state by taxing them, so they would
 2 stay in the state. "Expatriation" has the equivalent affect of removing one's "res in public trust" from the jurisdiction and
 3 purview of the federal corporation called the "United States" government. In effect, people who expatriate are "divorcing"
 4 themselves from the corporate state and become political dissidents and "stateless persons" who refuse to subsidize what
 5 they may often view as unethical, immoral, and evil activities of that state. The federal government has no more right to 6 obstruct, punish, or interfere with your ability to choose your citizenship or to leave the "federal corporation" (slave
 7 plantation) than the states have a right to tax citizens who choose to physically leave them. On that basis, the above
 8 punishment for those expatriating their nationality and allegiance is an unconstitutional deprivation of due process of law,
 9 not to mention unspeakably hypocritical on the part of the federal government. This kind of hypocrisy also amounts to an
 10 unconstitutional Bill of Attainder, which is a penalty imposed absent a court judgment, if the tax is imposed or collected 11 without a court judgment in each specific instance of attempted collection.

12 5.16 The government's REAL approach to tax law

13 "The more corrupt the state, the more numerous the laws."
 14 [Tacitus, Roman historian 55-117 A.D.]

15 "Sometimes the law defends plunder and participates in it. Thus the beneficiaries are spared the shame and 16 danger that their acts would otherwise involve... But how is this legal plunder to be identified? Quite simply.
 17 See if the law takes from some persons what belongs to them and gives it to the other persons to whom it doesn't
 18 belong. See if the law benefits one citizen at the expense of another by doing what the citizen himself cannot do
 19 without committing a crime. Then abolish that law without delay ... No legal plunder; this is the principle of 20 justice, peace, order, stability, harmony and logic"
 21 [The Law, Frederic Bastiat]

22 "It's a game. We [tax lawyers] teach the rich how to play it so they can stay rich-- and the IRS keeps changing 23 the rules so we can keep getting rich teaching them."
 24 [John Grisham]

25 "The prestige of government has undoubtedly been lowered considerably by the prohibition law. For nothing is 26 more destructive of respect for the government and the law of the land than passing laws which cannot be 27 enforced. It is an open secret that the dangerous increase of crime in this country is closely connected with 28 this."
 29 [Albert Einstein, "My First Impression of the U.S.A.", 1921]

30 One of the most fascinating and informative books we've read about the subject of government and politics in general is 31 Atlas Shrugged by Ayn Rand. This book changed my life when I read it for the first time at age 19. Here is how Ayn Rand
 32 describes government's approach to writing laws. We provide it here as intriguing food for thought and a nice dog biscuit
 33 (thanks!) for all of you with the diligence to read this far. It fits in very nicely with the previous section about the "void for 34 vagueness" doctrine. The excerpt from Atlas Shrugged which follows describes a situation where the government
 35 [represented by Dr. Ferris] has cornered an honest and good man [Rearden] with bad laws into trying to make him believe 36 that he has committed a crime so they can get what they want to STEAL from him, which is a valuable invention of his, the 37 Rearden Metal:

38 Dr. Ferris smiled. . . . "We've waited a long time to get something on you. You honest men are such a 39 problem and such a headache. But we knew you'd slip sooner or later - and this is just what we wanted."

40 "You seem to be pleased about it."

41 "Don't I have good reason to be?"

42 "But, after all, I did break one of your laws."

43 "Well, what do you think they're for?"

44 Dr. Ferris did not notice the sudden look on Rearden's face, the look of a man hit by the first vision of that 45 which he had sought to see. Dr. Ferris was past the stage of seeing; he was intent upon delivering the last blows
 46 to an animal caught in a trap.

47 "Did you really think that we want those laws to be observed?" said Dr. Ferris. "We want them broken. You'd 48 better get it straight that it's not a bunch of boy scouts you're up against - then you'll know that this is not the 49 age for beautiful gestures. We're after power and we mean it. You fellows were pikers, but we know the real

1 trick, and you'd better get wise to it. There's no way to rule innocent men. The only power any government
2 has is the power to crack down on criminals. Well, when there aren't enough criminals, one makes them.
3 One declares so many things to be a crime that it becomes impossible for men to live without breaking laws.
4 Who wants a nation of law-abiding citizens? What's there in that for anyone? But just pass the kind of laws
5 that can neither be observed nor enforced nor objectively interpreted - and you create a nation of law-
6 breakers - and then you cash in on guilt. Now, that's the system, Mr. Rearden, that's the game, and once you 7 understand it, you'll be much easier to deal with."

7 familiar to his victims, and he wears their face and their garments, and he appeals to the baseness that lies deep
8 in the hearts of all men. He rots the soul of a nation, he works secretly and unknown in the night to undermine 9 the pillars of a city, he infects the body politic so that it can no longer resist. A murderer is less to be feared"
10 [Marcus Tullius Cicero 42 BC]

11 "Americans have the government officials they deserve. Our society openly castigates the Almighty, thus 12 making tolerable judicial pronouncements like that of today (6-26-02, Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals declared
13 the national pledge unconstitutional because it used the phrase "one nation under God") which banished God
14 from our national pledge. The darkness of night follows the light of day, and similarly when any nation shakes

18 [Larry Becraft, Attorney]

19 "A nation which does not remember what it was yesterday, does not know what it is today, nor what it is trying

30 "There is no pillow so soft as a clear conscience."
31 [French Proverb]

32 After having diligently read Chapter 5 of this book, which documents extensively using current case law, statutes, and 33 regulations why most Americans, and especially those who do not consent, are not liable to either file returns or pay income
34 taxes under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code, you most likely are thinking something like the following:

35 "The conclusions you reached and thoroughly documented in Chapter 5 of this book are totally incredible! I
36 am simply stunned and rendered speechless by them and still have trouble believing them because they sound
37 too good to be true. Surely our federal government wouldn't lie to us on that large a scale and get away with it,
38 would they? Wouldn't the courts have blown the whistle on this a long time ago? Why doesn't my lawyer know
39 this and if he does, why won't he tell me? I would feel much more thoroughly convinced of your arguments if 40 you could analyze the issues and assertions you are making from a historical perspective to show how our 41 nation evolved to the allegedly lawless state it currently finds itself in with regard to federal income taxes. If 42 what you are saying is true, and so far I have no reason to doubt that it isn't, then there is a historical 43 explanation for all of this that is completely consistent with your conclusions. Being the perpetual skeptic that I
44 am [GOOD!..KEEP IT UP!], I therefore demand to see historical evidence that is consistent with your 45 conclusions to make the picture completely clear for me and remove all remaining doubt."

46 Answering the above concerns is therefore the main focus of this chapter. We will show how corrupt lawyers and 47 politicians over the years have conspired to deceive you into volunteering for a tax that didn't apply to you and which they
48 had no jurisdiction to make you liable for paying. We will show how they cleverly weaved and perfected the deceptive
49 spider web that snares you into their system and makes you into an unwilling slave of a federal government that has turned 50 from the chief protector of your rights to the worst possible violator of your rights. Other additional but very valid reasons
51 for documenting the history of this alleged conspiracy to defraud Americans of their income include the following:

- 52 1. There are two main statutory crimes involving federal income taxes that could possibly affect those who choose not to 53 "volunteer" to pay federal income taxes:

- 1 1.1. Tax Evasion, 26 U.S.C. §7201
 2 1.2. Willful Failure to File, 26 U.S.C. §7203
 3 2. Both of the above statutory crimes are most often proved or demonstrated conclusively in court by the government by 4 showing the jury that there was a willful attempt to conceal “taxable” income by the defendant. This requires the 5 government to prove that:
 6 2.1. The defendant is completely familiar with the Internal Revenue Code and the implementing regulations found in
 7 26 CFR.
 8 2.2. The defendant had income that was “taxable”, which means that Internal Revenue Code (somewhere in the code)
 9 made you liable (you had a legal duty) for paying the tax.
 10 2.3. Because the defendant was liable to pay a tax, then he was also liable to file a return under the tax imposed in 26
 11 U.S.C. §1.
 12 2.4. The defendant knew that that the law made him liable to pay the tax but he still refused to pay it and tried to 13 circumvent it or the collection of it (Tax Evasion, 26 U.S.C. §7201)
 14 2.5. He violated a legal duty he knew he had by refusing to file the return showing his liability (26 U.S.C. §7203).
 15 3. The motive for the act of concealment is extremely important in establishing the basis for the charge of “willfulness”.
 16 If the motive for the concealment did not involve hiding taxable income or violating a known legal duty, but simply a
 17 desire to protect one’s constitutional rights, one’s property, obey the law, and guarantee that the government also obeys 18 the law, then the act of concealment cannot be “willful”.
 19 4. There are more motives or reasons to conceal “income” from the government than simply just to evade taxes. One
 20 major additional reason might be because the government is quite frankly corrupt and lawless and simply can’t be 21 trusted to obey the laws on federal income taxes, which clearly show that there is no liability to either file a return or 22 pay a tax. The act of concealing income under such circumstances is simply an exercise of liberty and pursuit of 23 justice in conformance with laws designed to protect oneself from unlawful government abuse which essentially
 24 amounts to organized extortion and fraud.
 25 5. The contents of this chapter will therefore trace the history of our country to convincingly and clearly show the basis 26 for the conclusion and good faith belief that:
 27 5.1. We have a criminal and abusive federal government that tramples our Constitutional rights and which is 28 downright dishonest in its dealings with most Americans with regard to federal income taxes. The main motive 29 for that dishonesty is a love and lust for money and power, which the Bible says in 1 Tim. 6:10 is “the root of all
 31 5.2. The criminal nature of our federal government and its widespread violation of our Constitutional rights and tax
 32 statutes found in the Internal Revenue Code and regulations undermines its credibility and violates the public trust
 33 and fiduciary relationship that it clearly has with Americans as document in Section 2.1 of this book.
 34 5.3. This tyrannical violation of law and public trust causes Americans to distrust their government, creates civil 35 unrest, undermines our prosperity, and makes most people want to run and hide from the government to protect 36 their privacy and liberty rather than risk being harmed by it. For instance, it makes people want to conceal private 37 information from the federal government because of a fear that the information they provide will be misused to 38 illegally single them out or prosecute them wrongfully using fabricated evidence and misquoted or falsified or 39 misleading statements about their lawful tax responsibilities. This type of treatment is called blackmail and 40 extortion when anyone other than the government does it, but the government seldom prosecutes or enforces such 41 criminal laws when its own officers undertake such abuses.
 42 5.4. Running and hiding from our government because of our mistrust and its lawless behavior is a legitimate and 43 honorable motivation for concealing income, and that this motivation has nothing to do with defying a known
 44 legal duty or with the notion of “willfulness”. To the contrary, it is the only cost-effective way, in the absence of 45 a government that obeys its own taxing statutes and the presence of a corrupt legal profession, to ensure that the 46 outcome in our case is more consistent with the requirements of the law in the presence of a criminal government.

47 “When the wicked arise, men hide themselves;
 48 But when they perish, the righteous increase.”
 49 [Prov. 28:28, Bible, NKJV]

50
 51 “A prudent man foresees evil and hides himself [and his assets from plunder and harm], 52 But the simple pass on and are punished.”
 53 [Prov. 22:3, Bible, NKJV]

54
 55 “A prudent man foresees evil and hides himself; The simple pass on and are punished.”
 56 [Prov. 27:12, Bible, NKJV]

57
 58 “The simple believes every word,
 59 But the prudent man considers well his steps.

A wise man fears and departs from evil.
 [Prov. 14:15, Bible,NKJV]

- 5.5. Because there is no such thing as taxable income under Subtitle A for Americans who refuse to volunteer for the tax, it constitutes a fraud for our government to claim or imply otherwise, whether it be in the IRS Publications, the Internal Revenue Code, or 26 Code of Federal Regulations. In spite of this fact, we will show how the government has committed a constructive fraud by obfuscating the tax code over the years to further violate the public trust and illegally and fraudulently broaden public perception of their otherwise very limited jurisdiction to tax incomes only within the federal United States.
- 5.6. Fear created in the reader by a knowledge and complete understanding of this chapter will hopefully provide a sufficient basis to forever avoid the charge of “willfulness” in the act of concealment because we can show a valid and honorable and lawful motive for concealment related to other than criminal intent or defiance of a known legal duty.

Before we begin our first section within the chapter, we’d like to give you the big picture, or 20,000 foot view, of why you should believe that history confirms what we said in Chapter 5. All you have to do is consider the scenario below to realize that there is something seriously wrong going on here with our federal government.

1. The Supreme Court in 1895, in the case of Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895), declared that the first income tax imposed on Americans as unconstitutional.
2. The Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America,, fraudulently ratified in 1913, is what most federal politicians and tax lawyers erroneously say overcame the Pollock decision in 1895 and authorized the imposition of direct income taxes on sovereign Americans.
3. The Supreme Court declared in 1916, after the passage of the Sixteenth Amendment , the following in a case that has never been overruled:

“..by the previous ruling it was settled that the provisions of the Sixteenth Amendment conferred no new power of taxation but simply prohibited the previous complete and plenary power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation to which it inherently belonged and being placed in the category of direct taxation subject to apportionment by a consideration of the sources from which the income was derived, that is by testing the tax not by what it was -- a tax on income, but by a mistaken theory deduced from the origin or source of the income taxed. ”
 [Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)]

4. No changes to the Constitution that would affect income taxation have been made that would authorize the ruling in Pollock v. Farmer’s Loan and Trust, 158 U.S. 601 (1895) to be invalidated or superseded.
5. In spite of all of the above, to this day, the federal government, and especially our dishonest Congressmen and the IRS, still continues to commit fraud and deceive the public by insisting that:
 - 5.1. The Sixteenth Amendment authorized Subtitle A income taxes on natural persons.
 - 5.2. The Sixteenth Amendment was properly ratified and therefore valid.
 - 5.3. Income taxes are legal and lawful for natural persons.
 - 5.4. Income taxes do not violate our constitutional rights.
 - 5.5. All Americans are “taxpayers” (persons liable for the payment of income taxes under Subtitle A), even though there is not statute or regulation creating such a liability.
 - 5.6. All Americans are statutory “U.S. citizens” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, which means they are domiciled federal territory subject to the sovereignty of the U.S. government. This is a fraud, because they are in most cases “nationals” but not statutory “citizens” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and 8 U.S.C. §1452 who are effectively “nonresident aliens” as far as the Internal Revenue Code is concerned. “U.S. citizens” are defined in 26 CFR §31.3121(e)-1 to mean

“... a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, and, effective January 1, 1961, a citizen of Guam or American Samoa.”

- 5.7. That being a statutory “U.S. citizen” is what makes a person liable for income taxes, and that it is a patriotic duty to “pay our fair share.”
- 5.8. That the “individual” described at the top of the income tax form means statutory “U.S. citizen”, when in fact it really means “U.S. resident alien” or “nonresident alien” as per 26 CFR §1.1441-1(c)(3).

5.9. That the IRS publications are to be trusted to establish a good faith belief about our legal liabilities, even though the courts and even the IRS claim that they can't be relied upon for such purposes and that only the law is useful in establishing good faith belief.

Do you smell something REALLY FISHY going on here? We hope we have at least made you curious enough to finish reading this chapter and see for yourself that what we are saying is truthful and completely consistent with the law and with our country's history.

George Washington, in his Farewell Address to our country, said that religion and morality are indispensable aspects of our government. We believe this chapter painfully and forcefully confirms what happens when they cease to be priorities of our government and our courts:

Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness—these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens. The mere politician, equally with the pious man, ought to respect and to cherish them. A volume could not trace all their connections with private and public felicity. Let it simply be asked, "where is the security for property, for reputation, for life, if the sense of religious obligation desert the oaths which are the instruments of investigation in courts of justice?" And let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion. Whatever may be conceded to the influence of refined education on minds of peculiar structure, reason and experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

It is substantially true that virtue or morality is a necessary spring of popular government. The rule indeed extends with more or less force to every species of free government. Who that is a sincere friend to it can look with indifference upon attempts to shake the foundation of the fabric?

Promote, then, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. In proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion, it is essential that public opinion should be enlightened.

"Propitious smiles of heaven can never be expected on a nation that disregards the eternal rules of order and right which heaven itself has ordained." - George Washington (1732-1799)

"One's god dictates the kind of law one implements and also controls the application and development of that law over time. Given enough time, all non-Christian systems of law self-destruct in a fit of tyranny."

The history of our country is ripe with examples of noble statesmen like George Washington, who were wise statesmen of faith and character. Contemporary liberal media, liberal politicians, and a liberal education system have conspired to hide the deeds and beliefs of these noble men from the view of our young ones, and corrupted them to believe that there is no God, no absolute source of truth, and no right and wrong and everything is relative. The new god of the 21st century has become science and evolutionism, which together have robbed our children of religion and faith and mocked the Bible and God and our marvelous national birthright.

In the process of promoting their selfish agenda in our educational system, licentious and corrupt individuals in the legal, education, and media professions have made us into a carnal, licentious, and idolatrous society where the government robs us of our income using the ignorance it created in us as a weapon and thereby forces us to therefore depend on and trust it instead of God or our own initiative. In effect, they have outlawed personal responsibility by forcing us to participate in a Social Security Ponzi Scheme and income tax system. This violates the first commandment of the Bible.

[Exodus 20:3, Bible, NKJV]*

Now we have a whole generation of conceited and idolatrous people (the "ME generation") who have known nothing but this selfish lie and deception and who do not know any other reality or even the way things used to be in our country because our public school history books have been censored to remove our spiritual heritage. See the following website created by David Barton for more information on this liberal censorship scam:

1 <http://www.wallbuilders.com/>

2 To make things even worse, public distaste for lawyers has caused few men of character to be attracted to public service or
3 political office, thus leaving our government and our courts in the hands of selfish rogue lawyers and arrogant thieves. As 4 our leaders, these losers set the standard for our society and are dragging it down with them:

5 "Our government is the potent, the omnipresent teacher. For good or of for ill, it teaches the whole people by its
6 example. Crime is contagious. If the government becomes a lawbreaker, it breeds contempt for the law; it
7 invites every man to become a law unto himself; it invites anarchy. To declare that in the administration of the 8 criminal law the end justifies the means...would bring terrible retribution. Against that pernicious doctrine this 9 Court should resolutely set its face."
10 [Justice Brandeis, Olmstead v. United States, 277 U.S. 438, 485 (1928)]

11 Is it therefore any surprise to see the extent of corruption in our government with these types of selfish and lawless
12 individuals writing our laws and enforcing them? We think not.

14 The heart is deceitful above all things,
15 And desperately wicked;
16 Who can know it?
17 I, the Lord, search the heart,
18 I test the mind,
19 Even to give every man according to his ways,
20 According to the fruit of his doings
21 As a partridge that broods but does not hatch,
22 So is he who gets riches, but not by right;
23 It will leave him in the midst of his days,
24 And at his end he will be a fool.
25 [Jeremiah 17:9-11, Bible, NKJV]

26 In the meantime while we are waiting for Divine Justice and doing justice ourselves at every turn as Micah 6:8 requires, the 27 Bible warns us what to expect and how we should behave in Micah 7:2-10:

28 The faithful man has perished from the earth,
29 And there is no one upright among men,
30 They all lie in wait for blood;
31 Every man hunts his brother with a net.
32
33 That they may successfully do evil with both hands—
34 The prince asks for gifts,
35 The judge seeks a bribe,
36 And the great man utters his evil desire;
37 So they scheme together.
38 The best of them is like a brier;
39 The most upright is sharper than a thorn edge;
40 The day of your watchman and your punishment comes;
41 Now shall be their perplexity.
42
43 Do not trust in a friend;
44 Do not put your confidence in a companion;
45 Guard the doors of your mouth
46 From her who lies in your bosom.
47 For son dishonors father,
48 Daughter rises against her mother,
49 Daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law;
50 A man's enemies are the men of his own household.
51 Therefore I will look to the Lord;
52 I will wait for the God of my salvation;
53 My God will hear me.
54
55 Do not rejoice over me, my enemy;
56 When I fall, I will arise;
57 When I sit in darkness,
58 The Lord will be a light to me.

1 I will bear the indignation of the Lord,
 2 Because I have sinned against Him,
 3 Until He pleads my case
 4 And executes justice for me.
 5 He will bring me forth to the light;
 6 I will see His righteousness.
 7 Then she who is my enemy will see,
 8 And shame will cover her who said to me,
 9 "Where is the Lord your God?"
 10 My eyes will see her;
 11 Now she will be trampled down
 12 Like mud in the streets."
 13 [Micah 7:2-10, Bible, NKJV]

14 Finally, if you find that the contents of the chapter leave questions unanswered about the history of the income tax fraud
 15 and the moral decay in this country and you would like a clearer or more complete picture, we refer you to another excellent
 16 book that is very thoroughly researched and authoritative by David Barton:

20 If you also happen to be interested generally in the subject of freedom and would like a much broader and more complete
 21 view of the history of freedom in our country that focuses on all aspects of freedom, including taxation, then we refer you
 22 to the CD-ROM entitled Highlights of American Legal and Political History: The Conquering of the American Republic by 23 the U.S. Democracy. This CD is jam-packed with 640 Mbytes of evidence from the government's own original
 24 publications and documents showing how our freedoms and liberties have been systematically, maliciously, and willfully
 25 destroyed and undermined in violation of the Constitution from the very foundation of this country. Over three years and 26 2,000 man-hours went into assembling the CD that will save you thousands of hours of research on your own. This

29 6.1 How Scoundrels Corrupted Our Republican Form of Government

30 "All systems of government suppose they are to be administered by men of common sense and common
 31 honesty. In our country, as all ultimately depends on the voice of the people, they have it in their power, and it
 32 is to be presumed they generally will choose men of this description: but if they will not, the case, to be sure,
 33 is without remedy. If they choose fools, they will have foolish laws. If they choose knaves, they will have 34 knavish ones. But this can never be the case until they are generally fools or knaves themselves, which, thank 35 God, is not likely ever to become the character of the American people." [Justice Iredell] (Fries's Case (CC) F
 36 Cas No 5126, supra.)
 37 [Ludecke v. Watkins, 335 U.S. 160, 92 L.Ed 1881, 1890, 68 S.Ct. 1429 (1948)]

38 We very thoroughly covered the foundations of our republican form of government earlier in chapter 4. We showed you in 39 section 4.1 the hierarchy of sovereignty and where you fit personally in that hierarchy. We showed you in section 4.5 that 40 Article 4, Section 4 of the U.S. Constitution guarantees to all Americans a "republican form of government". Then in 41 section 5.1.1 we showed you the order that our state and federal governments were created and the distinct sovereignties
 42 that comprise all the elements of our republican (not democratic) political system. Now we are going to tie the whole
 43 picture together and show you graphically the tools and techniques that specific covetous government servants have used 44 over the years to corrupt and debase that system for their own personal financial and political benefit.

45 "The king establishes the land by justice; but he who receives bribes overthrows it."
 46 [Prov. 29:4, Bible, NKJV]

47 After you have learned these techniques by which corruption was introduced, we will spend the rest of the chapter showing 48 exactly how these techniques have been specifically applied over the years to corrupt and debase and destroy our political 49 system and undermine our personal liberties, rights, and freedoms. This will train your perception to be on the lookout for

1 any future attempts by our covetous politicians to further corrupt our system so that you can act swiftly at a political level to
2 oppose and prevent it.

3 First of all, the foundation of our republican form of government is the concept of separation of powers. This concept is 4 called the "Separation of Powers Doctrine":

5 "Separation of powers. The governments of the states and the United States are divided into three departments
6 or branches: the legislative, which is empowered to make laws, the executive which is required to carry out the 7 laws, and the judicial which is charged with interpreting the laws and adjudicating disputes under the laws.
8 Under this constitutional doctrine of "separation of powers," one branch is not permitted to encroach on the 9 domain or exercise the powers of another branch. See U.S. Constitution, Articles I-III. See also Power
10 (Constitutional Powers)."
11 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1365]

12 Here is how no less than the U.S. Supreme Court described the purpose of this separation of powers:

14 Const., Art. I, 8. As James Madison wrote, "[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal 15 government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and 16 *indefinite." The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally 17 mandated division of authority "was adopted by the Framers
18 to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v. Ashcroft,* 19 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and independence of 20 the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in 21 any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the 22 risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Ibid.*
23 [U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

24 The founding fathers believed that men were inherently corrupt. They believed that absolute power corrupts absolutely so 25 they avoided concentrating too much power into any single individual.

26 "When all government, domestic and foreign, in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the 27 center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become 28 as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated."
29 [Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:332]

30 "Our government is now taking so steady a course as to show by what road it will pass to destruction; to wit: by 31 consolidation first and then corruption, its necessary consequence. The engine of consolidation will be the 32 Federal judiciary; the two other branches the corrupting and corrupted instruments."
33 [Thomas Jefferson to Nathaniel Macon, 1821. ME 15:341]

34 "The [federal] judiciary branch is the instrument which, working like gravity, without intermission, is to press 35 us at last into one consolidated mass."
36 [Thomas Jefferson to Archibald Thweat, 1821. ME 15:307]

37 "There is no danger I apprehend so much as the consolidation of our government by the noiseless and therefore 38 unalarming instrumentality of the Supreme Court."
39 [Thomas Jefferson to William Johnson, 1823. ME 15:421]

40 "I wish... to see maintained that wholesome distribution of powers established by the Constitution for the 41 limitation of both [the State and General governments], and never to see all offices transferred to Washington
42 where, further withdrawn from the eyes of the people, they may more secretly be bought and sold as at market."
43 [Thomas Jefferson to William Johnson, 1823. ME 15:450]

44 "What an augmentation of the field for jobbing, speculating, plundering, office-building and office-hunting
45 would be produced by an assumption of all the State powers into the hands of the General Government!"
46 [Thomas Jefferson to Gideon Granger, 1800. ME 10:168]

47 "I see... and with the deepest affliction, the rapid strides with which the federal branch of our government is 48 advancing towards the usurpation of all the rights reserved to the States, and the consolidation in itself of all
49 powers, foreign and domestic; and that, too, by constructions which, if legitimate, leave no limits to their
50 power... It is but too evident that the three ruling branches of [the Federal government] are in combination to 51 strip their colleagues, the State authorities, of the powers reserved by them, and to exercise themselves all 52 functions foreign and domestic."

1 [Thomas Jefferson to William Branch Giles, 1825. ME 16:146]

2 "We already see the [judiciary] power, installed for life, responsible to no authority (for impeachment is not
3 even a scare-crow), advancing with a noiseless and steady pace to the great object of consolidation. The 4 foundations are already deeply laid by their decisions for the annihilation of constitutional State rights and the 5 removal of every check, every counterpoise to the engulfing power of which themselves are to make a sovereign 6 part."
7

[Thomas Jefferson to William T. Barry, 1822. ME 15:388]

8 For further quotes supporting the above, see:

9 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Politics/ThomasJefferson/jeff1060.htm>

10 They instead wanted an egalitarian and utopian society. They loathed the idea of a king because they had seen how corrupt
11 the monarchies of Europe had become by reading the history books. They loathed it so much that they specifically
12 prohibited titles of nobility in Article 1, Section 9, Clause 8:

13 U.S. Constitution; Article 1, Section 9, Clause 8

14 No Title of Nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust
15 under them, shall, without the Consent of the Congress, accept of any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of 16 any kind whatever, from any King, Prince or foreign State.

17 So the founders instead distributed and dispersed political power into several independent branches of government that 18 have sovereign power over a finite sphere and prohibited the branches from assuming each others duties. This, they 19 believed, would prevent collusion against their rights and liberties. They therefore divided the government into the 20 Executive, Legislative, and Judicial branches and made them independent of each other, and assigned very specific duties
21 to each. In effect, these three branches became "foreign" to each other and in constant competition with each other for 22 power and control.

23 The founders further dispersed political power by dividing power between the several states and the federal government and 24 gave most of the power to the states. They gave each state their own seats in Congress, in the Senate. They made the states
25 just like "foreign countries" and independent nations so that there would be the greatest separation of powers possible
26 between the federal government and the states:

27 "The States between each other are sovereign and independent. They are distinct and separate sovereignties,
28 *except so far as they have parted with some of the attributes of sovereignty by the Constitution. They 29 continue to be nations, with all their rights, and under all their national 30 obligations, and with all the rights of nations in every particular; except in 31 the surrender by each to the common purposes and objects of the Union, under the Constitution. The rights of 32 each State, when not so yielded up, remain absolute."
33 [Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 38 U.S. (13 Pet.) 519, 10 L.Ed. 274 (1839)]

34 Then the founders created multiple states so that the states would be in competition with each other for citizens and for 35 commerce. When one state got too oppressive or taxed people too much, the people could then move to an economically
36 more attractive state and climate. This kept the states from oppressing their citizens and it gave the people a means to keep 37 their state and their government in check. Then they put the federal government in charge of regulating commerce among 38 and between the states, and the intention of this was to maximize, not obstruct, commerce between the states so that we 39 would act as a unified economic union and like a country. Even so, they didn't want our country to be a "nation" under the 40 law of nations, because they didn't want a national government with unlimited powers. They wanted a "federation", so 41 they called our central government the "federal government" instead of a "national government". To give us a "national 42 government" would be a recipe for tyranny:

43 "By that law the several States and Governments spread over
44 our globe, are considered as forming a society, not a
45 NATION. It has only been by a very few comprehensive minds, such as those of Elizabeth and the 46 Fourth Henry, that this last great idea has been even contemplated. 3rdly. and chiefly, I shall examine the

1 important question before us, by the Constitution of the United States, and the legitimate result of that valuable
2 instrument. "
3 [Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793)]

4 The ingenious founders also made the people the sovereigns in charge of both the state and federal governments by giving
5 them a Bill of Rights and mandating frequent elections. Frequent elections:

- 6 1. Ensured that rulers would not be in office long enough to learn enough to get sneaky with the people or abuse their 7 power.
- 8 2. Kept the rulers accountable to the people and provided a prompt feedback mechanism to make sure politicians and 9 rulers were incentivized to listen to the people.
- 10 3. Created a stable political system that would automatically converge onto the will of the majority so that the country
11 would be at peace instead of at war within itself.

12 The founders even gave the people their own house in Congress called the House of Representatives, so that the power
13 between the states, in the Senate, and the People, in the House, would be well-balanced. They also made sure that these 14 sovereign electors and citizens were well armed with a good education, so they could keep their government in check and 15 capably defend their freedom, property, and liberty by themselves. When things got rough and governments became 16 corrupt, these rugged and self-sufficient citizens were also guaranteed the right to defend their property using arms that the 17 U.S. Constitution said in the Second Amendment that they had a right to keep and use. This ensured that citizens wouldn't 18 need to depend on the government for a handout or socialist benefits and wouldn't have to worry about having a 19 government that would plunder their property or their liberty.

20 The founding fathers created the institution of trial by jury, so that if government got totally corrupt and passed unjust laws
21 that violated God's laws, the people could put themselves back in control through jury nullification. This also effectively 22 dealt with the problem of corrupt judges, because both the jury and the grand jury could override the judge as well when 23 they detected a conflict of interest by judging both the facts and the law. Here is how Thomas Jefferson described the duty
24 of the jury in such a circumstance:

25 "It is left... to the juries, if they think the permanent judges are under any bias whatever in any cause, to take
26 on themselves to judge the law as well as the fact. They never exercise this power but when they suspect
27 partiality in the judges; and by the exercise of this power they have been the firmest bulwarks of English 28 liberty."
29 [Thomas Jefferson to Abbe Arnoux, 1789. ME 7:423, Papers 15:283]

30 Then the founders separated church and state and put the state and the church in competition with each other to protect and 31 nurture the people. We talked about this church/state separation and dual sovereignty earlier in section 4.3.6.

32 The design that our founding fathers had for our political system was elegant, unique, unprecedented, ingenious, perfectly
33 balanced, and inherently just. It was founded on the concept of Natural Order and Natural Law, which as we explained in 34 section 4.1 are based on the sequence that things were created. This concept made sense, even to people who didn't believe
35 in God, so it had wide support among a very diverse country of immigrants from all over the world and of many different 36 religious faiths. Natural Law and Natural Order unified our country because it was just and fair and righteous. That is the 37 basis for the phrase on our currency, which says:

38 "E Pluribus Unum"

39 ...which means: "From many, one." Our system of Natural Law and Natural Order also happened to be based on God's 40 sovereign design for self-government, as we explained throughout chapter 4. The founders also recognized that liberty
41 without God and morality are impossible:

42 "We have no government armed with the power capable of contending with human passions unbridled by 43 morality and religion. Avarice [greed], ambition, revenge, or gallantry [debauchery], would break the 44 strongest cords of our Constitution as a whale goes through a net. Our Constitution was made only for a 45 moral and religious people. It is wholly inadequate to the government of any other."
46 [John Adams, 2nd President.]

1 So the founders included the requirement for BOTH God and Liberty on all of our currency. They put the phrase “In God
2 We Trust” and the phrase “Liberty” side by side, and they were probably thinking of the following scripture when they did 3 that!:

4 “Now the Lord is the Spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.”
5 [2 Cor. 3:17, Bible, NKJV]

6 By creating such distinct separation of powers among all the forces of government, the founders ensured that the only way
7 anything would get done within government was exclusively by informed consent and not by force or terror. The 8 Declaration of Independence identifies the source of ALL “just” government power as “consent”. Anything not consensual
9 is therefore unjust and tyrannical. An informed and sovereign People will only do things voluntarily and consensually
10 when it is in their absolute best interests. This would ensure that government would never engage in anything that wasn’t in 11 the best interests of everyone as a whole, because people, at least theoretically, would never consent to anything that would 12 either hurt them or injure their Constitutional rights. The Supreme Court described this kind of government by consent as 13 “government by compact”:

14 “In Europe, the executive is synonymous with the sovereign power of a state...where it is too commonly 15 acquired by force or fraud, or both...In America, however the case is widely different. Our government is 16 founded upon compact [consent expressed in a written contract called a Constitution or in positive law].
17 Sovereignty was, and is, in the people.”
18 [The Betsy, 3 (U.S.) Dall 6]

19 Here is the legal definition of “compact” to prove our point that the Constitution and all federal law written in furtherance 20 of it are indeed a “compact”:

21 “Compact, n. An agreement or contract between persons, nations, or states. Commonly applied to working 22 agreements between and among states concerning matters of mutual concern. A contract between parties, 23 which creates obligations and rights capable of being enforced and contemplated as such between the parties,
24 in their distinct and independent characters. A mutual consent of parties concerned respecting some property
25 or right that is the object of the stipulation, or something that is to be done or forborne. See also Compact 26 clause; Confederacy; Interstate compact; Treaty.”
27 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 281]

28 Enacting a mutual agreement into positive law then, becomes the vehicle for expressing the fact that the People collectively
29 agreed and consented to the law and to accept any adverse impact that law might have on their liberty. Public servants
30 then, are just the apparatus that the sovereign People use for governing themselves through the operation of positive law.
31 As the definition above shows, the apparatus and machinery of government is simply the “rudder” that steers the ship, but 32 the “Captain” of the ship is the People both individually and collectively. In a true Republican Form of Government, the 33 REAL government is the people individually and collectively, and not their “public servants”. That is the true meaning of 34 the phrase “a government of the people, by the people, and for the people” used by Abraham Lincoln in the Gettysburg
35 Address.

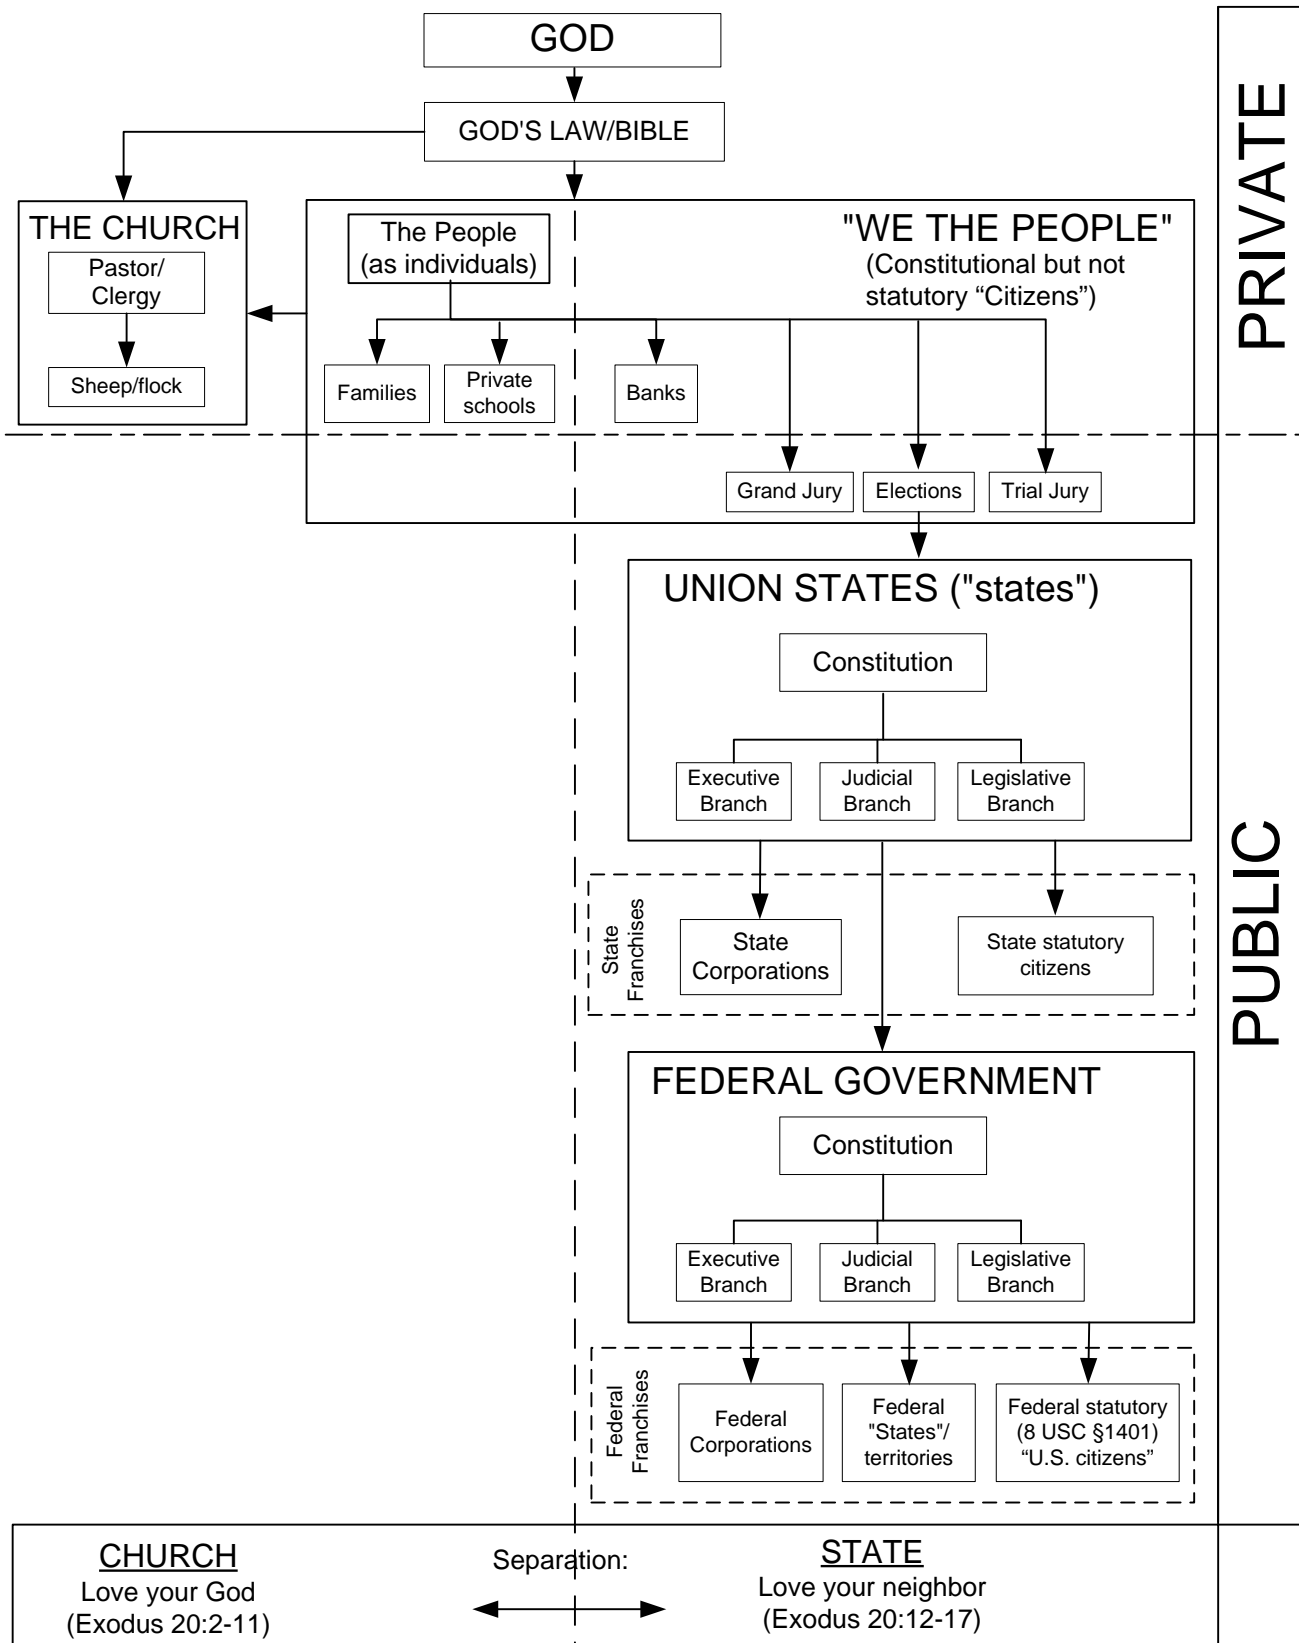

36 Our de jure Constitutional Republic started out as a perfectly balanced and just system indeed. But somewhere along the 37 way, it was deliberately corrupted by evil men for personal gain. Just like Cain (in the Bible) destroyed the tranquility and 38 peace of an idyllic world and divided the family of Adam by first introducing murder into the world, greedy politicians who 39 wanted to line their pockets corrupted our wonderful system and brought evil into our government. How did it happen?
40 They did it with a combination of force, fraud, and the corrupting influence of money. This process can be shown
41 graphically and described in scientific terms over a period of years to show precisely how it was done. We will now
42 attempt to do this so that the process is crystal clear in your mind. What we are trying to show are the following elements 43 in our diagram:

- 44 1. The distinct sovereignties between governments:
 - 45 1.1. States
 - 46 1.2. The federal government
- 47 2. The sovereignties within governments:
 - 48 2.1. Executive branch
 - 49 2.2. Legislative branch
 - 50 2.3. Judicial branch
- 51 3. The hierarchy of sovereignty between all the sovereignties based on their sequence of creation.

1 4. The corrupting influence of force, fraud, and money, including the branch that initiated it, the date it was initiated, and
2 the object it was initiated against.

3 To meet the above objectives, we will start off with the diagram found in section 5.1.1 and expand it with some of the 4 added elements found in the Natural Order diagram found earlier in section 4.1. To the bottom of the diagram, we add the 5 Ten Commandments, which establishes the “Separation of Church v. State”. The first four commandments in Exodus 20:2-
6 11 establish the church and the last six commandments found in Exodus 20:12-17 define how we should relate to other
7 people, who Jesus later called our “neighbor” in Matt. 22:39. The main and only purpose of government is to love and 8 protect and serve its inhabitants and citizens, who collectively are "neighbors". What results is a schematic diagram of the 9 initial political system that the founders gave us absent all corruption. This is called the “De jure U.S. Government”. It is 10 the only lawful government we have and its organization is defined by our Constitution. It’s organization is also defined by 11 the Bible, which we also call "Natural Law" throughout this document.

1 Each box in the above diagram represents a sovereignty or sovereign entity that helps distribute power throughout our
2 system of government to prevent corruption or tyranny. The arrows with dark ends indicate an act of creation by the
3 sovereign above. That act of creation carries with it an implied delegation of authority to do specific tasks and establishes a
4 fiduciary relationship between the Creator, and his subordinate creation. The above system as shown functions properly
5 and fully and provides the best defense for our liberties only when there is complete separation between each sovereignty,
6 which is to say that all actions performed and all choices made by any one sovereign:

- 7 1. Are completely free of fraud, force, conflict of interest, or duress.
- 8 2. Are accomplished completely voluntarily, which is to say that they are done for the mutual benefit of all parties 9 involved rather than any one single party exercising undue influence.
- 10 3. Involve fully informed consent made with a full awareness by all parties to the agreement of all rights which are being 11 surrendered to procure any imputed benefits.
- 12 4. Are done mainly or exclusively for the benefit of the Sovereign above the agent who is the actor.
- 13 5. Are done for righteous reasons and noble intent, meaning that they are accomplished for the benefit of someone else
14 rather than one's own personal or financial benefit. This requirement is the foundation of what a fiduciary relationship
15 means and also the only way that conflicts of interest and the corruption they can cause can be eliminated.

16 With the above in mind, we will now add all of the corrupting influences accomplished to our system of government over 17 the years. These are shown with dashed lines representing the application of unlawful or immoral force or fraud. The 18 hollow end of each line indicates the sovereign against which the force or fraud is applied. The number above or next to 19 the dotted line indicates the item in the table that follows the diagram which explains each incidence of force or fraud.

1 Table 6-1: Specific instances of force, fraud, and conflict of interest that corrupted our political system

(on diagram above)	Year(s)	Acting Sovereignty/agent	Law(s) violated	Explanation
1	1868	State legislatures State judges Federal legislature Federal judges	18 U.S.C. §241 (conspiracy against rights) Thirteenth Amendment (slavery and peonage) 42 U.S.C. §1994 (peonage) 18 U.S.C. §1581 (peonage/slavery) 18 U.S.C. §2381 (treason)	After the civil war, the 14 th Amendment was passed in 1868. That amendment along with "words of art" were used as a means to deceive constitutional citizens to falsely believe that they were also privileged statutory "U.S. citizens" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, and thus to unconstitutionally extent federal jurisdiction and enforce federal franchises within states of the Union. The citizenship status described in that amendment was only supposed to apply to emancipated slaves but the federal government in concert with the states confused the law and the interpretation of the law enough that everyone thought they were statutory federal citizens rather than the "non-citizen nationals" immune from federal jurisdiction, which is foreign with respect to states of the Union. This put Americans in the states in a privileged federal status and put them under the jurisdiction of the federal government. At the point that Americans voluntarily and unknowingly accept privileged federal citizenship, they lose their sovereignty and go to the bottom of the sovereignty hierarchy. State courts and state legislatures cooperated in this conspiracy against rights by requiring electors and jurists to be presumed statutory "U.S. citizens" in order to serve. At the same time, they didn't define the term "U.S. citizen" in their election laws or voter registration, creating a "presumption" in favor of people believing that they are statutory "citizens of the United States", even though technically they are not.
2	1913	Corporations/ businesses/and special interests	18 U.S.C. §201 (bribery of public officials) Const. Art. 1, Sect. 2, Clause 3 (direct taxes) Const. Art. 1, Sect. 9, Clause 4 (direct taxes) 18 U.S.C. §219 (government employees acting as agents of foreign principals- Federal Reserve)	Around the turn of the century, the gilded age created a lot of very wealthy people and big corporations. The corrupting influence of the money they had lead them to dominate the U.S. senate and the Republican party., which was the majority party at the time. The people became restless because they were paying most of the taxes indirectly via tariffs on imported goods while the big corporations were paying very little. This lead to a vote by Congress to send the new Sixteenth Amendment to the states for ratification. Corporations heavily influenced this legislation so that it would favor taxing individuals instead of corporations, which lead the Republicans in the Senate to word the Amendment ambiguously so that it could or would be misconstrued to apply to natural persons instead of the corporations it was really intended to apply to by the American people. This created much subsequent litigation and confusion on the part of the Average American about exactly what the taxing powers of Congress are, and gave Congressman a lot of wiggle room to misrepresent the purpose of the Sixteenth Amendment to their constituents. Today, Congressmen use the ambiguity of the Amendment to regularly lie to their Constituents by saying that the "Sixteenth Amendment" authorizes Congress to tax the income of every American. This is an absolute lie and is completely inconsistent with the rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court. Courts below the Supreme Court have also used the same ambiguity mechanism to expand the operation of the income tax beyond its clearly limited application to the federal zone. During the same year as the Sixteenth Amendment was ratified, in 1913, the Congress also passed the Federal Reserve Act immediately after the Sixteenth Amendment. By doing this, they surrendered their control over the money system to a consortium of private banks. The Sixteenth Amendment was passed first in February of 1913 because it was the lender-security for the Non-Federal Reserve that would be needed to create a "credit line" and collateral. The Federal Reserve Act was passed in December of that same year. At that point, the Congress had an unlimited private credit line from commercial banks and a means to print as much money as they wanted in order to fund socialist expansion of the government. But remember that the bible says: "The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower [is] servant to the lender." [Prov. 22:7]

3	1911- 1939	Federal legislature	28 U.S.C. §144 (conflict of interest of federal judges) 28 U.S.C. §455 (conflict of interest of federal judges)	In 1911, the U.S. Congress passed the Judicial Code of 1911 and thereby made all District and Circuit courts into entirely administrative courts which had jurisdiction over only the federal zone. All the federal courts except the U.S. Supreme Court changed character from being Article III courts to Article IV territorial courts only. All the district courts were renamed from “District Court of the United States” to “United States District Court”. The Supreme Court said in Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922) that the “United States District Court” is an Article IV territorial court, not an Article III constitutional court. Consequently, all the federal courts excepting the Supreme Court became administrative courts that were part of the Executive rather than the Judicial Branch of the government and all the judges became Executive Branch employees. See our article “Authorities on Jurisdiction of Federal Courts” for further details. The Revenue Act of 1932 then tried to apply income taxes against federal judges. The purpose was to put them under complete control of the Executive Branch through terrorism and extortion by the IRS. This was litigated by the Supreme Court in 1932 in the case of O’Malley v. Woodrough, 309 U.S. 277 (1939) just before the war started. The court ruled that the Executive Branch couldn’t unilaterally modify the terms of their employment contracts, so they rewrote the tax code to go around it subsequent to that by only taxing NEW federal judges and leaving the existing ones alone so as not to violate the Constitutional prohibition against reducing judges salaries. Since that time, federal judges have been beholden to the greed and malice of the Legislative branch because they are under IRS control. This occurred at a time when we had a very popular socialist President who threatened the Supreme Court if they didn’t go along with his plan to replace capitalism with socialism, starting with Social Security. President Roosevelt tried to retire all the U.S. Supreme Court justices and then double the size of the court and pack the court with all of his own socialist cronies in a famous coup called “The Roosevelt Supreme Court Packing Plan”.
4	1939- Present	Federal executive branch	28 U.S.C. §144 (conflict of interest of federal judges) 28 U.S.C. §455 (conflict of interest of federal judges) Separation of powers Doctrine	Right after the Supreme Court case of O’Malley v. Woodrough in 1939, the U.S. Congress wasted no time in passing a new Revenue Act that skirted the findings of the Supreme Court’s that declared income taxes levied against them to be unconstitutional. In effect, they made the payment of income taxes by federal judges an implied part of their employment agreement as “appointed officers” of the United States government in receipt of federal privileges. Once the judges were under control of the IRS, they could be terrorized and plundered if they did not cooperate with the enforcement of federal income taxes. This also endowed all federal judges with an implied conflict of interest in violation of 28 U.S.C. §455 and 28 U.S.C. §144
5	1939- Present	Federal legislative branch	Const. Art. 1, Sect. 2, Clause 3 Const. Art. 1, Sect. 9, Clause 4 18 U.S.C. §1589(3) (forced labor)	The Revenue Act of 1939 passed by the U.S. Congress instituted a very oppressive income tax to fund the upcoming World War II effort. It was called the “Victory Tax” and it was a voluntary withholding effort, but after the war and after people on a large scale got used to sending their money to Washington, D.C. every month through payroll withholding, the politicians cleverly decided not to tell them the truth that it was voluntary. The politicians then began rewriting the tax code to further confuse and deceive people and hide the truth about the voluntary nature of the income tax. This included the Internal Revenue Codes of 1954 and 1986, which were major updates of the IRC that further hid the truth from the legal profession and added so much complexity to the tax code that no one even understands them anymore.

6	1950- Present	Federal executive branch	18 U.S.C. §597 (expenditures to influence voting) 18 U.S.C. §872 (extortion) 18 U.S.C. §880 (receiving the proceeds of extortion) 18 U.S.C. §1957 (Engaging in monetary transactions in property derived from specified unlawful activity)	Federal government uses income tax revenues after World War II to begin socialist subsidies, starting with Lyndon Johnson's "Great Society" plan. Instead of paying off the war debt and ending the income tax like we did after the Civil war in 1872, the government adopted socialism and borrowed itself into a deep hole, following the illustrious example of Franklin Roosevelt's "New Deal" program. This socialist expansion was facilitated by the enactment of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913, which gave the government unlimited borrowing power. The income tax, however, had to continue because it was the "lender security" for the PRIVATE Federal Reserve banking trust that was creating all this debt and fake money. The income tax had the effect of making all Americans into surety for government debts they never authorized. The Civil Rights movement of the 1960's accelerated the growth of the socialist cancer to cause voters to abuse their power to elect politicians who would subsidize and expand the welfare-state concept. "Democracy has never been and never can be so desirable as aristocracy or monarchy, but while it lasts, is more bloody than either. Remember, democracy never lasts long. It soon wastes, exhausts, and murders itself. There never was a democracy that never did commit suicide." John Adams, 1815.
7	1939- Present	Trial jury	18 U.S.C. §2111 (robbery)	Trial juries filled with people receiving government socialist handouts (money STOLEN from hard-working Americans) vote against tax protesters to illegally enforce the Internal Revenue Code, and especially in the case of the wealthy. Trial by jury becomes MOB RULE and a means to mug and rob the producers of society. The jurists are also under duress by the judge, who does not allow evidence to be admitted that would be prejudicial to government (or his retirement check) and who makes cases unpublished where the government lost on income tax issues. Because these same jurists were also educated in public schools, they are easily lead like sheep to do the government's dirty work of plundering their fellow citizens by upholding a tax that is actually voluntary. The result is slavery of wage earners and the rich to the IRS. The war of the "have-nots" and the "haves" using the taxing authority of the government continues on and expands.
8	1960- Present	Federal government	18 U.S.C. §873 (blackmail) 18 U.S.C. §208 (acts affecting a personal financial interest 18 U.S.C. §872 (extortion)	The federal government begins using income tax revenues and socialist welfare programs to manipulate the states. For instance: 1. They made it mandatory for states to require people getting drivers licenses to provide a Socialist Security Number or their welfare subsidies would be cut off. 2. They encourage states to require voters and jurists to be "U.S. citizens" in order to serve these functions so that they would also be put under federal jurisdiction. 3. They mandate that all persons receiving welfare benefits or unemployment benefits that include federal subsidies to have Socialist Security Numbers.
9	1980's- Present	Federal executive branch	18 U.S.C. §208 (conflict of interest) 18 U.S.C. §872 (extortion) 18 U.S.C. §876 (mailing threatening communications)	IRS abuses its power to manipulate and silence churches that speak out about government abuses or are politically active. This has the effect of making the churches politically irrelevant forces in our society so that the government would have no competition for the affections and the allegiance of the people.
10	1960- Present	Federal judicial branch	God's laws (bible)	Federal judiciary eliminates God and prayer in the schools. This leaves kids in a spiritual vacuum. Drugs, sex, teenage pregnancy run rampant. Families begin breaking apart. God is blasphemed. Single parents raise an increasing number of kids and these children don't have the balance they need in the family to have proper sex roles. Gender identity crisis and psychology problems result, causing homosexuality to run rampant. This further accelerates the breakdown of the family because these dysfunctional kids have dysfunctional families of their own. Because God is not in the schools, eventually the people begin to reject God as well. This expands the power of government because when the people aren't governed by God, they are ruled by tyrants and become peasants and serfs eventually. That is how the Israelites ended up in bondage to the Egyptians: because they would not serve God or trust him for their security. They wanted a big powerful Egyptian government to take care of them and be comfortable and safe, which was idolatry toward government.

11	2000- Present	State executive branch	18 U.S.C. §208 (acts affecting a personal financial interest)	The state executive branches abuse their power to set very high licensing requirements for home schools and private schools, backed by teacher's unions and contributions of these unions to their political campaigns. Licensing requirements become so high that only public schools have the capital to comply, virtually eliminating private and home schooling. Teachers and inferior environment in public schools further contributes to bad education and liberal socialist values, further eroding sovereignty of the people and making them easy prey for sly politicians who want to enslave them with more unjust laws and expand their fiefdom. Government continues to grow in power and rights and liberties simultaneously erode further.

1 After our corrupt politicians are finished socially re-engineering our system of government using the tax code and a
2 corrupted federal judiciary, below is what happens to our original republican government system. This is what we refer to
3 as the "De facto U.S. Government". It has replaced our "De jure U.S. Government" not through operation of law, but 4 through fraud, force, and corruption. One of our readers calls this new architecture for social organization "The New Civil 5 Religion of Socialism", where the collective will of the majority or whatever the judge says is sovereign, not God, and is 6 the object of worship and servitude in courtrooms all over the country, who are run by devil-worshipping modern-day
7 monarchs called "judges". These tyrants wear black-ropes and chant in Latin and perform exorcism on hand-cuffed
8 subjects to remove imaginary "demons" from the people that are defined by majority vote among a population of criminals
9 (by God's law), homosexuals, drug abusers, adulterers, and atheists. The vilification of these demons are legislated into 10 existence with "judge-made law", which is engineered to maximize litigation and profits to the legal industry. The legal 11 industry, in turn, has been made into a part of the government because it is licensed and regulated by government. This 12 profession "worships" the judge as an idol and is comprised of golf and law school buddies and fellow members of the 13 American Bar Association (ABA), who hobnob with the judge and do whatever he says or risk having their attorney license
14 pulled. In this totalitarian socialist democracy/oligarchy shown below, the people have no inalienable or God-given 15 individual rights, but only statutory "privileges" and franchises granted by the will of the majority that are excise taxable.
16 After all, when God and Truth are demoted to being a selfish creation of man and a politically correct vain fantasy, then the 17 concept of "divine right" vanishes entirely from our political system.
18

1 Figure 6-3: Result of Corrupting Our Republican Form of Government

2
 3 In the above diagram, all people in receipt of federal funds stolen through illegally collected or involuntarily paid federal
 4 income taxes effectively become federal “employees” or “public officers”. They identified themselves as such when they
 5 filed their W-4 payroll withholding form, which is a contract that says on the top “Employee Withholding Allowance
 6 Certificate”. The Internal Revenue Code identifies “employee” to mean someone who works for the federal government in 7 26 U.S.C. §3401(c). These federal “employees” are moral and spiritual “whores” and “harlots”. They are just like Judas

1 or Essau...they exchanged the Truth for a lie and liberty for slavery and they did it mainly for money and personal security.
2 They are:

- 3 1. So concerned about avoiding being terrorized by their government or the IRS for "making waves".
- 4 2. So immobilized by their own fear and ignorance that they don't dare do anything.
- 5 3. So addicted to sin and other unhealthy distractions that they don't have the time to do justice.
- 6 4. So poor that they can't afford a expensive lawyer to be able to right the many wrongs imposed on them by a corrupted
7 government. Justice is a luxury that only the rich can afford in our society.
- 8 5. So legally ignorant, thanks to our public "fool", I mean "school" system that they aren't able to right their wrongs on 9 their own in court without a lawyer.
- 10 6. So afraid of corrupt judges and lawyers who are bought and paid for with money that they stole from hardworking
11 Americans in illegally enforcing what is actually a voluntary Subtitle A income against those who in fact and indeed 12 can only be described per the law as "nontaxpayers".
- 13 7. So unable to take care of their own needs because:
 - 14 7.1. Most of their money has been plundered by a government unable and unwilling to control its spending.
 - 15 7.2. They have allowed themselves to depend too much on government and allowed too much of their own hard-16 earned money to be stolen from them.
 - 17 7.3. They spent everything they had and went deep in debt to buy things they didn't need.
- 18 8. So covetous of that government welfare or socialist security or unemployment check or paycheck that comes in the 19 mail every month.

20 ...that they wouldn't dare upset the apple cart or try to right the many wrongs that maintain the status quo by doing justice
21 as a voter or jurist. As long as they get their socialist handout and they live comfortably on the "loot" their "Parens
22 Patriae", or "Big Brother" sends them, they don't care that massive injustice is occurring in courtrooms and at the IRS
23 every day and that they are sanctioning, aiding, and abetting that injustice as voters and jurists with a financial conflict of 24 interest in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §§201 and 208. In effect, they are bribed to look the other way while their own 25 government loots and oppresses their neighbor and then uses that loot to buy votes and influence.

26 "Thou shalt not steal."
27 [Exodus 20:15]

28 For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."
29 [Gal 5:14, Bible, NKJV]

30 Would you rob your neighbor? No you say? Well then, would you look the other way while someone else robs him in 31 your name? Government is YOUR AGENT. If government robs your neighbor, God will hold you, not the agent who did
32 it for you, personally responsible, because government is your agent. God put you in charge of your government and you
33 are the steward. Frederic Bastiat described the nature of this horrible corruption of the system in the following book on our 34 website:

The Law, by Frederic Bastiat
<http://famguardian.org/Publications/TheLaw/TheLaw.htm>

35 If you want to know what the above type of government is like spiritually, economically, and politically, read the first-hand
36 accounts in the book of Judges found in the Bible. Corruption, sin, servitude, violence, and wars characterize this notable 37 and most ignominious period and "social experiment" as documented in the Bible. Now do you understand why God's law
38 mandates that we serve ONLY Him and not be slaves of man or government? When we don't, the above totalitarian 39 socialist democracy/tyranny is the result, where politicians and judges in government become the only sovereign and the 40 people are there to bow down to and "worship" and serve an evil and corrupt government as slaves.

41 Below is the way God himself describes the corrupted dilemma we find ourselves in because we have abandoned the path
42 laid by our founding fathers, as described in Isaiah 1:1-26:

43 Alas, sinful nation,
44 A people laden with iniquity
45 A brood of evildoers
46 Children who are corrupters!

They have forsaken the Lord

They have provoked to anger

The Holy One of Israel,

They have turned away backward.

Why should you be stricken again?

You will revolt more and more.

The whole head is sick [they are out of their minds!: insane or STUPID or both].

And the whole heart faints....

Wash yourselves, make yourselves clean;

Put away the evil of your doings from before My eyes.

Cease to do evil.

Learn to do good;

Seek justice.

Rebuke the oppressor [the IRS and the Federal Reserve and a corrupted judicial system];

Defend the fatherless.

Plead for the widow [and the "nontaxpayer"]....

How the faithful city has become a harlot!

It [the Constitutional Republic] was full of justice;

But now murderers [and abortionists, and socialists, and democrats, and liars and corrupted judges].

Your silver has become dross,

Your princes [President, Congressmen, Judges] are rebellious.

Everyone loves bribes.

And follows after rewards.

They do not defend the fatherless.

nor does the cause of the widow [or the "nontaxpayer"] come before them.

Therefore the Lord says,

The Lord of hosts, the Mighty One of Israel,

"Ah, I will rid Myself of My adversaries,

And take vengeance on My enemies.

I will turn My hand against you.

And thoroughly purge away your dross.

And take away your alloy.

I will restore your judges [eliminate the BAD judges] as at the first.

And your counselors [eliminate the BAD lawyers] as at the beginning.

[Isaiah 1:1-26, Bible, NKJV]

So according to the Bible, the real problem is corrupted lawyers and judges and people who are after money and rewards, and God says the way to fix the corruption and graft is to eliminate the bad judges and lawyers. Whose job is that? It is the even more corrupted Congress! (see 28 U.S.C. §134\(a\) and 28 U.S.C. §44\(b\))

"O My people! Those who lead you cause you to err,

And destroy the way of your paths."

[Isaiah 3:12, Bible, NKJV]

[Prov. 29:4, Bible, NKJV]

Can thieves and corrupted judges and lawyers and jurors, who are all bribed with unlawfully collected money they lust after in the pursuit of socialist benefits, reform themselves if left to their own devices?

"When you [the jury] saw a thief [the corrupted judges and lawyers paid with extorted and stolen tax money], you consented with him, And have been a partaker with adulterers."

[Psalm 50:18, Bible, NKJV]

"The people will be oppressed.

Every one by another and every one by his [socialist] neighbor [sitting on a jury who was indoctrinated and brainwashed in a government school to trust government];

The child will be insolent toward the elder,

[Isaiah 3:5, Bible, NKJV]

"It must be conceded that there are rights [and property] in every free government beyond the control of the State [or any judge or jury]. A government which recognized no such rights, which held the lives, liberty and property of its citizens, subject at all times to the disposition and unlimited control of even the most democratic depository of power, is after all a despotism. It is true that it is a despotism of the many--of the majority, if you choose to call it so--but it is not the less a despotism."

The answer is an emphatic no. It is up to We The People as the sovereigns in charge of our lawless government to right this massive injustice because a corrupted legislature and judiciary and the passive socialist voters in charge of our government today simply cannot remedy their own addiction to the money that was stolen from their neighbor by the criminals they elected into office. These elected representatives were supposed to be elected to serve and protect the people, but they have become the worst abusers of the people because they only got into politics and government for selfish reasons. Notice we didn't say they got into "public service", because we would be lying to call it that. It would be more accurate to call what they do "self service" instead of "public service". One of our readers has a name for these kinds of people. He calls them SLAT: Scum, Liars, and Thieves. If you add up all the drug money, all the stolen property, all the white collar crime together, it would all pale in comparison to the "extortion under the color of law" that our own de facto government and the totally corrupted people who work for it are instituting against its own people. If we solve no crime problem other than that one problem, then the government will have done the most important thing it can do to solve our crime problem and probably significantly reduce the prison population at the same time. There are lots of people in jail who were put there wrongfully for income tax crimes that aren't technically even crimes. These people were maliciously prosecuted by a corrupted satan worshipping DOJ with the complicity of a corrupted judiciary and they MUST be freed because they have become slaves and political prisoners of a corrupted state for the sake of statutes that operate as the equivalent of a "civil religion" and which are not and cannot be law in their case. That's right: the corrupted state has erected a counterfeit church and religion that is a cheap imitation of God's design complete with churches, prayers, priests, deacons, tithes, and even its own "Bible" (franchise) and they have done so in violation of the First Amendment. The nature of that civil religion is exhaustively described below:

We will now close this section with a tabular summary that compares our original "de jure" government to the "de facto" government that we presently suffer under. This corrupted "de facto" government only continues to exist because of our passive and tolerant approach towards the illegal activities of our government servants. We can fix this if we really want to, folks. Let's do it!

1	Separation of Church and State	Government has no power to control or regulate the political activities of churches	IRS 501(c) designation allows government to remove tax exemption from churches if they get politically involved
2	Separation of Money and State	Only lawful money is gold and the value of the dollar is tied to gold. Government can't manufacture more gold so they can't abuse their power to coin money to enrich themselves.	Fiat currency is Federal Reserve Notes (FRNs). Government can print any amount of these it wants and thereby enrich itself and steal from the those who hold dollars by lowering the value of the dollars in circulation (inflation)
3	Separation of Marriage and State	People getting married did not have marriage licenses from the state. Instead, the ceremony was exclusively ecclesiastical and it was recorded only in the family Bible and church records.	Pastor acts as an agent of both God and the state. He performs the ceremony and is also licensed by the state to sign the state marriage license. Churches force members getting married to obtain state marriage license by saying they won't marry them without a state-issued marriage license.
4	Separation of School and State	Schools were rural and remote and most were private or religious. There were very few public schools and a large percentage of the population was home-schooled.	Most student go to public schools. They are dumbed-down by the state to be good serfs/sheep by being told they are "taxpayers" and being shown in high school how to fill out a tax return without even being shown how to balance a check book. They are taught that government is the sovereign and not the people, and that people should obey the government.

5	Separation of State and Federal government	States control the Senate and all legislation and taxation internal to a state. Federal government controls only foreign commerce in the form of imposts, excises, and duties under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution.	Federal government receives lions share of income taxes over both internal and external trade. It redistributes the proceeds from these taxes to the socialist states, who are coerced to modify their laws in compliance with federal dictates in order to get their fair share of this stolen "loot".
6	Separation between branches of government: Executive, Legislative, Judicial	Three branches of government are entirely independent and not controlled by other branches.	Judges are "employees" of the executive branch and have a conflict of interest because they are beholden to IRS extortion. Executive controls the illegal tax collection activities of the IRS and dictates to other branches it's tax policy through illegal IRS extortion. Using the IRS, Executive becomes the "Gestapo" that controls everything and everyone. Congress and the courts refuse to reform this extortion because they benefit most financially by it.
7	Separation of Commerce and State	Federal government regulates only foreign commerce of corporations. States regulate all internal commerce. Private individuals have complete privacy and are not regulated because they don't have Socialist Security Numbers and are not monitored by the IRS Gestapo. Banks are independent and do not have to participate in a national banking system so they don't coerce their depositors to bet government-issued numbers nor do they snoop/spy on their depositors as an agent of the IRS Gestapo. Private employers are not regulated or monitored by federal Gestapo and their contracts with their employees are private and sacred.	All credit issued by a central, private Federal Reserve consortium. Federal Reserve rules coerce private banks to illegally enforce federal laws in states of the Union that only apply in the federal zone. Namely, they force depositors to have Socialist Security Numbers and they report all currency transactions over $3,000 to the Dept of the Treasury (CTR's). "Spying" on financial affairs citizens by government makes citizens afraid of IRS and government and coerces them to illegally pay income taxes by government. Employers are coerced to enslave their employees to IRS through wage reporting and withholding, often against the will of employees.
8	Separation of Media and State	Press was free to report as they saw fit under the First Amendment. Most newspapers were small-town newspapers and were private and independent.	Television, radio, the internet, and corporations have taken over the media and concentrated control of it to the hands of a very few huge and "privileged" corporations that are in bed with the federal and state governments. Media is no longer independent, and broadcasters don't dare cross the government for fear of either losing their FCC license, being subjected to an IRS audit, or having their government sponsorship revoked.
9	Separation of Family and State	Families were completely separate from the state. Private individuals were not subject to direct taxation or regulation by either state or federal government. No Socialist Security Numbers and no government surveillance of private commerce by individuals. Women stayed home and out of the workforce. Men dominated the political and commercial landscape and also defended their family from encroachments by government. Children were home-schooled and worked on the farm. They inherited the republican values of their parents. Morality was taught by the churches and there was an emphasis on personal responsibility, modesty, manners, respect, and humility.	Using income taxes, mom was removed from the home to enter the workforce so she could replace the income stolen from dad by the IRS through illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code. Conflict over money breaks families down and divorce rate reaches epidemic proportions. Children are neglected by their parents because parents both have to work full-time and duke it out with each other in divorce court. Majority of children raised in single parent homes. Television and a liberal media dominates and distorts the thoughts and minds of the children. Public schools filled with homosexuals and liberals, many of whom have no children of their own, teach our children to be selfish, rebellious, sexually promiscuous, homosexual drug-abusers. Pornography invades the home through the internet, cable-TV, and video rentals, creating a negative fixation on sex. Television interferes with family communication so that children are alienated from their parents so that they do not inherit good morals or respect for authority from their parents.. Crime rate and prison population reaches unprecedented levels. Citizens therefore lose their ability to govern themselves and the legal field and government come in and take over their lives.

10	Separation of Charity and State	Churches and families were responsible for charity. When a person was old or became unemployed, members of the church or family would take them. Personal responsibility and morality within churches and families would encourage them to improve their lives.	Monolithic, huge, and terribly inefficient government bureaucracies replace families and churches as major source of charity. These bureaucracies have no idea what personal responsibility is and are not allowed to talk about morality because they are not allowed to talk about God. Generations of people grow up under this welfare umbrella without every having to take responsibility for themselves, and these people abuse their voting power to perpetuate it. Supremacy of families and churches is eliminated and government becomes the new "god" for everyone to worship. See Jeremiah 2:26-28.

6.2 General Evolution

If the average American is not legally liable to pay taxes on his earned income, then how did we evolve to the point where we have to pay income taxes in violation of our constitutional rights? We've scoured every tax book and government publication we could find totaling thousands of pages to compile a chronological sequence for how the fraud was perpetrated over the last century. Because this process involves essentially criminal activity, there has been a concerted effort by the government to cover it up, which we will describe in detail later. The most glaring evidence of that cover-up is found in the testimony of Shelley Davis, the IRS' only historian, who testified in front of Congress during the IRS Restructuring hearings in 1998 and whose testimony we captured for you to read later in section 6.6.9.1. She also wrote a book documenting the secret culture within the IRS entitled Unbridled Power which we highly recommend. Criminals, you will recall, don't want any historical information maintained about their misdeeds, and the IRS is one of the few organizations associated with the federal government that has no historical records, no current historian, and a concerted effort to provide as little information about their activities in their FOIA responses as possible. In most cases, you actually have to litigate against the IRS in federal court to get the information you want because they are so tight-lipped in their cover-up of their wrongdoing.

The most fruitful single source for information about the history of the Internal Revenue Service is found in a publication written by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in 1948 entitled The Work and Jurisdiction of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, 1948, which we have published electronically and made freely available on our website at the below address:

You will DEFINITELY want to download this large book (10.8 Mbytes) and read the history of the IRS right out of the horse's mouth. Below is a brief chronology of w the fraud was perpetrated over the years, as compiled from the many government publications at our disposal:

1. 1776: Declaration of Independence Signed.

2. 1818: U.S. v. Bevens, 16 U.S. 336 (1818)

The U.S. supreme Court ruled that there are two separate and distinct jurisdictions within the United States of America:

"The exclusive jurisdiction which the United States have in forts and dock-yards ceded to them, is derived from the express assent of the states by whom the cessions are made. It could be derived in no other manner; because without it, the authority of the state would be supreme and exclusive therein," 3 Wheat., at 350, 351.
[U.S. v. Bevens, 16 U.S. 336 (1818)]

This case is very significant, because it has never been overruled and when we read laws in the U.S. Codes, it is very important for us to establish which of these two jurisdictions apply. If it is the latter jurisdiction, the 50 union states, then the law applies to us. If it is the former jurisdiction, also called the "federal zone", then the law doesn't apply to the vast majority of citizens domiciled in the 50 union states. The Internal Revenue Code, incidentally, ONLY applies to the "federal zone"...not to you!

3. 1861-1865: Civil War

4. January 1, 1863: Emancipation Proclamation signed by President Lincoln

5. 1862: The Nation's First Income Tax

- 5.1 President Lincoln introduced the first income tax to pay for the Civil War. Congress eliminated the tax in 1872.
- 5.2 The Tax Act of 1862 was passed and signed by President Lincoln July 1 1862. The rates were 3% on income above $600 and 5% on income above $10,000. The rent or rental value of your home could be deducted from income in determining the tax liability. The Commissioner of Revenue stated "The people of this country have accepted it with cheerfulness, to meet a temporary exigency, and it has excited no serious complaint in its administration." This acceptance was primarily due to the need for revenue to finance the Civil War.
- 5.3 Although the people cheerfully accepted the tax, compliance was not high. Figures released after the Civil War indicated that 276,661 people actually filed tax returns in 1870 (the year of the highest returns filed) when the country's population was approximately 38 million.
- 5.4 With the end of the Civil War the public's accepted cheerfulness waned. The Tax Act of 1864 was modified after the war. The rates were changed to a flat 5 percent with the exemption amount raised to $1,000. Several attempts to make the tax permanent were tried but by 1869 "no businessman could pass the day without suffering from those burdens" From 1870 to 1872 the rate was a flat 2.5 percent and the exemption amount was raised to $2,000.

6. 1868: States Ratify the 14th Amendment

- 6.1 A new class of citizenship is created called "U.S. citizens" that did not exist before. These citizens were created in order to protect blacks, because southern states would give them no rights under the law.
- 6.2 Legislatures of the Southern States under gun point were forced to ratify the 14th Amendment.
- 6.3 "U.S. Inc", the body corporate, was created. Commercial/equity law began to replace constitutional law in the federal courts.
- 6.4 Just before the passage of the 14th Amendment, Congress passed a revision to the Statutes at Large which gave people a way out of being "U.S.  citizens", 15 Stat. 223-224 (1868), R.S. § 1999, which stated that:

"the right of expatriation is a natural and inherent right of all people, indispensable to the enjoyment of the rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," and decreed that "any declaration, instruction, opinion, order, or decision of any officers of this government which denies, restricts, impairs, or questions the right of expatriation, is hereby declared inconsistent with the fundamental principles of this government."

7. 1872: Nation's First Income Tax was Repealed

The Internal Revenue Act of 1862 was repealed, ending the nation's first income tax. The civil war was over and paid for and there was no longer any reason for the tax.

8. 1872: Office of the Assessor of Internal Revenue Eliminated

Functions of Assessor delegated to the Collector of Internal Revenue. See: 17 Statutes at Large, p. 401, 42nd Congress, Session III Chapter XIII (December 24, 1872).

9. 1875: U.S. v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1875). Supreme Court Confirms that there are Two Types of Citizens: federal and state

"We have in our political system a Government of the United States and a government of each of the several States. Each of these governments is distinct from the others, and each has citizens of its own

"Both before and after the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal Constitution, it has not been necessary for a person to be a citizen of the United States in order to be a citizen of his state."
[Citing U.S. v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1875)]

10. 1894: Caha v. United States, 152 U.S. 211 (1894)

The U.S. supreme Court ruled that Congress can only make laws that apply to areas over which it has exclusive jurisdiction, which is the "federal zone", including the District of Columbia and other federal territories. It cannot make laws affecting activity within the states unless the Constitution explicitly grants that authority:

"The law of Congress in respect to those matters do not extend into the territorial limits of the states, but have force only in the District of Columbia, and other places that are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government."
[Caha v. United States, 152 U.S. 211 (1894)]

11. 1895: Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895)

11.1 U.S. Supreme court ruled that direct taxes on the income of individuals are unconstitutional and are forbidden.

"Nothing can be clearer than that what the constitution intended to guard against was the exercise by the general government of the power of directly taxing persons and property within any state through a majority made up from the other states. It is true that the effect of requiring direct taxes to be apportioned among the states in proportion to their population is necessarily that the amount of taxes on the individual [157 U.S. 429, 583] taxpayer in a state having the taxable subject-matter to a larger extent in proportion to its population than another state has, would be less than in such other state; but this inequality must be held to have been contemplated, and was manifestly designed to operate to restrain the exercise of the power of direct taxation to extraordinary emergencies, and to prevent an attack upon accumulated property by mere force of numbers.

It is the duty of the court in this case simply to determine whether the income tax now before it does or does not belong to the class of direct taxes, and if it does, to decide the constitutional question which follows . . .

First. That the law in question, in imposing a tax on the income or rents of real estate, imposes a tax upon the real estate itself; and in imposing a tax on the interest or other income of bonds or other personal property, held for the purposes of income or ordinarily yielding income, imposes a tax upon the personal estate itself; that such tax is a direct tax, and void because imposed without regard to the rule of apportionment; and that by reason thereof the whole law is invalidated.

Second. That the law is invalid, because imposing indirect taxes in violation of the constitutional requirement of uniformity, and therein also in violation of the implied limitation upon taxation that all tax laws must apply equally, impartially, and uniformly to all similarly situated. Under the second head, it is contended that the rule of uniformity is violated, in that the law taxes the income of certain corporations, companies, and associations, no matter how created or organized, at a higher rate than the incomes of individuals or partnerships derived from precisely similar property or business; in that it exempts from the operation of the act and from the burden of taxation numerous corporations, companies, and associations having similar property and carrying on similar business to those expressly taxed; in that it denies to individuals deriving their income from shares in certain corporations, companies, and associations the benefit of the exemption of $ 4,000 granted to other persons interested in similar property and business; in the exemption of $4,000; in the exemption of building and loan associations, savings banks, mutual life, fire, marine, and accident insurance companies, existing solely for the pecuniary profit of their members, these and other exemptions being alleged to be purely arbitrary and capricious, justified by no public purpose, and of such magnitude as to invalidate the entire enactment; and in other particulars. "

12. 1900: Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U.S. 41 (1900)

The U.S. supreme Court defined the difference between direct taxes [income taxes on persons] and excise taxes:

[Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U.S. 41 (1900)]

13. 1901: Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901): Corruption of our Tax System

13.1 The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that people domiciled in federal territories such as Puerto Rico, Guam, the District of Columbia, and the Virgin Islands, are NOT protected by the U.S. Constitution. Therefore, these people could be subjected to direct taxes on income because they were classified as citizens of the U.S.

"CONSTITUTIONAL RESTRICTIONS AND LIMITATIONS [Bill of Rights] WERE NOT APPLICABLE to the areas of lands, enclaves, territories, and possessions over which Congress had EXCLUSIVE LEGISLATIVE JURISDICTION"

[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

13.3 This lead subsequently to the imposition of direct taxes on the income of individuals who were U.S. Citizens following the fraudulent ratification of the 16th Amendment in 1913.

13.4 This ruling was also behind why income tax returns after this case ask you: "Are you a U.S. Citizen?". Once you answer yes, you give up your constitutional rights! See sections 4.6 and 4.8 for further details on this.

14. 1909: Congress proposed the 16th Amendment and sent to states for ratification

14.1 The Senate approved it by an astounding vote of 77 to zero and the House followed suit with a roll call of 318 to 14.

14.2 The measure then went to the states for ratification.

15. 1909: Corporate Excise Tax of 1909 was passed, 36 Stat 112.

15.1 This was the country's first income tax, where "income" was defined as corporate profit.

15.2 All subsequent income tax laws and the Internal Revenue Code itself were based on this.

15.3 The Supreme Court ruled in Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., 271 U.S. 170, 174 (1926) that:

"Income has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (36 Stat. 112) in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed."
Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., [271 U.S. 170, 174 (1926)]

16. 1911: Judicial Code of 1911:

This act abolished the existing circuit courts and replaced them with Circuit Courts of Appeals. The District Courts of the United States became "United States District Courts". This left no Article III courts to hear cases involving constitutional rights. All district and circuit courts became, at that point, Article II courts which may only have jurisdiction within territories of the United States Government. These courts are part of the executive branch, not the judicial branch, of the U.S. government. The judges in these Art. II courts are civil service employees of the Office of Personnel Management, which is part of the Executive Branch. The judges are not judicial officers as required under Art. III of the Constitution, but federal employees.

17. Feb. 12, 1913: 42nd state "allegedly" voted for approval of 16th Amendment, and the following words became a part of the United States Constitution:

"The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration."

Of course, we all know that the claim that the 16th amendment was ratified by the then secretary of state Philander Knox this was indeed one of the biggest "frauds" in history that has not to this day ever been questioned or investigated by a Congress that wants YOUR money. It ought to be quite obvious why the Supreme court won't touch this and the Congress has refused to investigate this fraud from the beginning. You can read about this fraud in a book called "Law That Never Was" by ordering the book from the following website:

18. Oct. 3, 1913: Tariff Act

The Tariff Act of October 3, 1913, IIE, 38 Stat. 170 was passed, and it contained, perhaps somewhat surprisingly, a fairly expansive withholding provision. It was later repealed and replaced with the 1954 Code, 26 U.S.C. §6041 et seq.

19. 1913: Congress creates the Federal Reserve System with the Federal Reserve Act of 1913

19.1 Congress creates the FRS; permits the emission of FRNs, redeemable in "lawful money"; and declares FRNs to be "obligations of the United States", but not "legal tender". In practice, the Federal Reserve Banks and the United States Treasury redeem FRNs for gold coin on demand. FRNs are a fiduciary currency.

19.2 Note that the Federal Reserve and the income tax were enacted at the same time because they cannot function without each other. If we are going to put our money supply in the hands of private bankers, then we need a way to sop up excess printed dollars with an income tax, or the economy will go out of control and inflation will spiral. Since both the income tax and the Federal Reserve are evil, we must eliminate both of them at the same time as well.

20. 1913-1917: Media heralded coming of the 16th Amendment

20.1 Announced after its alleged ratification that it was the basis for the new income tax which only the wealthy would pay. The camel now had its nose under the tent and all Congress had to do was raise the tax rates over time and let the camel all the way in.

- 1 20.2 Who controlled the printed media in 1913? John D. Rockefeller and his bankers, through stock ownership.
 2 20.3 Most of the papers parroted what they were instructed to tell the people.
 3 20.4 To this day, a nationwide chorus of politicians, TV economists and Law school professors alike all repeat that the 4 16th Amendment authorized the imposition of an income tax on U.S. citizens. They are all mistaken.

5 21. 1916: Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)

- 6 21.1 The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the 16th Amendment conferred "no new powers of taxation"!
 7 21.2 Here are some excerpts. The 16th Amendment...:

8 "...prohibited the ... power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out
 9 of the category of indirect taxation to which it inherently belonged..."
 10 [Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)]

- 11 21.3 This was a big blow to the IRS. Shortly after that case Treasury Decision 2313 was issued as a form of "damage 12 control".

13 22. March 21, 1916: Treasury Decision 2313

- 14 22.1 Thwarted by the Brushaber and Stanton decisions, the Department of Treasury issued Treasury Decision Number 15 2313. Here are a few excerpted quotes from T.D. 2313 in reference to the Brushaber decision:

16 "...it is hereby held that income accruing to nonresident aliens in the form of interest...and dividends...is subject
 17 to the income tax imposed by the act of October 3, 1913. The responsible heads, agents, or representatives of 18 nonresident aliens...shall make a full and complete return of the income therefrom on ...Form 1040..."

- 19 22.2 So there you have it. The Treasury Department has stated that you are to file Form 1040 on behalf of your 20 "nonresident alien principal." So don't forget to do that next April 15th! Of course, since you'll be signing Form
 21 1040 under penalties of perjury and stating that every material fact is 100% correct to the best of your knowledge,
 22 and since the commission of perjury is a felony that attaches criminal fines and penalties, be sure you really are
 23 filing Form 1040 on behalf of your "nonresident alien principal!"
 24 22.3 By reading Internal Revenue Code section 871(a), we see that it imposes a tax of 30% on the amount received by 25 non-resident aliens from sources within the United States. Code section 871(b) states that the nonresident alien 26 shall be taxable under code section 1, thus authorizing the use of the charts in section 1 to compute and reduce his 27 tax, so he can get a tax refund from the 30% which is withheld under the provisions of section 1441.
 28 22.4 Also, under section 874(a), the nonresident alien is entitled to the benefit of deductions and credits filing or 29 having his agent file, a 1040, as stated in TD 2313.

30 22.5 *Of course, this whole fiasco has nothing whatsoever to do with most Americans, who aren't liable for federal 31 income taxes at all unless they make themselves liable by "volunteering"!

32 23. 1920: Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920); Supreme Court Declares Direct Taxes on Federal Judges to Not be 33 Authorized by the 16th Amendment and Unconstitutional

- 34 23.1 In this case, the Supreme Court addressed the issue of whether a tax on salary was authorized:

35 "After further consideration, we adhere to that view and accordingly hold that the Sixteenth Amendment does
 36 not authorize or support the tax in question. " [A direct tax on salary income of a federal judge]

37 [Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920)]

- 38 23.2 This case has a very thorough treatment of the 16th Amendment taxing issues, and discusses nearly all of the 39 issues critical to the income tax, and by the way, fully supports the entire position advocated in this document
 40 with regards to the 26 U.S.C. §861 issues and taxable source issues.

41 24. 1922: Supreme Court Rules Against Socialism in the Case of Bailey v. Drexel Furniture Co., 259 U.S. 20 (1922)

- 42 24.1 This case was about the validity of Child Labor Tax law imposed by Congress. The Drexel Furniture Company
 43 filed suite because it didn't want to be forced to pay the Child Labor Tax to the IRS. The Supreme Court ruled
 44 that the Child Labor Tax Law was unconstitutional because it amounted to social engineering and exceeded the 45 powers conferred by the Constitution on the federal government. In effect, they called it socialism and an abuse
 46 of the taxing and legal authority of Congress conferred by the Constitution and amounted to legislating socialism
 47 by legislatively plundering the employer profits for the benefit of the employees. The findings in this case are similar to the case of Railroad Retirement Board v. Alton Railroad Co., 295 U.S. 330 (1935). The arguments used here apply equally well to the federal income tax, as we pointed out in the preface to this document.

“Out of a proper respect for the acts of a co-ordinate branch of the government, this court has gone far to sustain taxing acts as such, even though there has been ground for suspecting, from the weight of the tax, it was intended to destroy its subject. But in the act before [259 U.S. 20, 38] us the presumption of validity cannot prevail, because the proof of the contrary is found on the very face of its provisions. Grant the validity of this law, and all that Congress would need to do, hereafter, in seeking to take over to its control any one of the great number of subjects of public interest, jurisdiction of which the states have never parted with, and which are reserved to them by the Tenth Amendment, would be to enact a detailed measure of complete regulation of the subject and enforce it by a so-called tax upon departures from it. To give such magic to the word 'tax' would be to break down all constitutional limitation of the powers of Congress and completely wipe out the sovereignty of the states.”

24.2 Keep in mind the historical context of this ruling. The Federal Reserve had just been created by Congress AND the 16th Amendment had just been claimed fraudulently to have been ratified by Philander Knox, also in 1913. The tax code of 1921 had just been passed by 1922, which was a major rewrite of the code designed to conceal the unconstitutionality of income taxes on individuals. Now Congress was trying to expand its power even further by abusing its legislative authority to force employers to increase benefits to their workers!

25. 1925: Certiorari Act of 1925 Passed

25.1 Former President William H. Taft, then acting as Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, helped author a bill called the Certiorari Act of 1925. Recall that William Taft had been the President who introduced the Sixteenth Amendment to the U.S. Congress in 1909 (see section 3.11.11.1 for further details on this). This Act authorized the U.S. Supreme Court to have discretion to deny the hearing of appeals from lower federal appeal courts. By refusing to hear an appeal, the Supreme Court in effect had the right to deny Constitutional rights of the appellants from the circuit courts if such rights had been violated by the lower courts or the then Bureau of Internal Revenue (now called the IRS). Justices of the Supreme Court take an oath to support and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic, and by denying appeals, they could in effect violate their oath and condone extortion by the BIR. This kind of scandal is called a sin of omission and its commonplace in the Supreme Court now.

25.2 When you think about it, the Certiorari Act of 1925 violates the separation of powers doctrine because the Judiciary and the Congress are supposed to be separate and sovereign powers within the federal government. How can one branch of government, the Congress in this case, authorize another supposedly independent branch of federal government, the Supreme Court in this Case, to violate the Constitutional rights of Americans by denying their appeals? They can't, because if the appeal involves constitutional issues, then they would not be upholding the constitution as their oath of office requires them to do!

25.3 As we explain subsequently in section 6.4.1, this bill was an important new tool that our corrupt government could use to uphold the federal income tax, because it allows the federal district and circuit courts to uphold and expand federal income taxes while allowing the U.S. Supreme Court to deny appeals from such cases, even if the findings of the lower court disagreed with numerous precedents set on previous Supreme Court cases that invalidate direct federal income taxes. It creates a schizophrenic, split personality federal government which, out of one side of its mouth, the Supreme Court, says income taxes are indirect excise taxes that are not authorized on natural persons as direct taxes, but then out of the other side of its mouth in the federal district and circuit courts, says direct income taxes are authorized by the Sixteenth Amendment. This represents not only hypocrisy of the highest order but also a violation of our fundamental right to due process under the Fourth, Fifth, and Seventh Amendments! How can you know what the Internal Revenue Code requires of you if the Supreme Court and the federal circuit courts can't even consistently agree and the Supreme Court refuses to hear appeals that contradict its own precedents?

26. 1933: FDR Amends the Trading with the Enemy Act of 1917 to Confiscate all Gold and Declare Emergency

26.1 Trading with the Enemy Act invoked to criminalize holding of gold. Penalty was $10,000 and imprisonment for 10 years. Act only applied on federal territories and possessions but not inside nonfederal areas of the 50 union states. However, FDR make it “appear” that it applied to EVERYONE.

26.2 Congress repudiates redemption of FRNs in gold for United States citizens, and declares that FRNs shall be "legal tender". The government continues to redeem FRNs in gold for foreigners; and United States citizens can redeem

FRNs for "lawful money" (such as United States Treasury Notes and silver certificates), which is redeemable in silver coins. Therefore, FRNs remain a fiduciary currency, redeemable directly in gold internationally and indirectly in silver domestically.

27. 1935: FDR Proposes and Congress Passes the Social Security Act of 1935

27.1 FDR gave a pep talk to congress on January 17, 1935 trying to sell Social Security.

27.2 Congress passed FDR's Social Security Act of 1935 on August 14, 1935.

27.3 Once passed, socialism is officially "institutionalized" within our republican government. This marks the beginning of the end of "rugged individualism" in America. The tumor is planted and begins to grow. Eventually, this cancer will destroy the country.

27.4 Voluntary Social Security tax deductions begin.

28. 1935: Supreme Court Rules Against Socialism AGAIN in the Case of Railroad Retirement Board v. Alton Railroad Co., 295 U.S. 330 (1935)

28.1 After the Great Wall Street Crash in 1929, daily newspaper photographs of mile-long soup and bread lines persuaded a frightened public to eagerly embrace the introduction of the European style socialism in the form of Social Security, written and contrived in smoke-filled rooms by the same politician-puppets of the bankers who had engineered both the crash and the depression.

28.2 A public eager to exchange liberty for benefits would vote for those politicians who would promise to provide them with the greatest "fair share" of the public trough. Congress made its first attempt at socialist wealth redistribution when it passed legislation in 1934 to provide for the retirement of railroad workers. Here's what the Supreme Court had to say when they shot this act down as unconstitutional in their decision in Railroad Retirement Board v. Alton Railroad Company decided May 6, 1935:

"The catalog of means and actions which might be imposed upon an employer in any business, tending to the comfort and satisfaction of his employees, seems endless.

Provisions for free medical attendance and nursing, for clothing, for food, for housing, for the education of children, and a hundred other matters might with equal propriety be proposed as tending to relieve the employee of mental strain and worry.

Can it fairly be said that the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce extends to the prescription of any or all of these things?

Is it not apparent that they are really and essentially related solely to social welfare of the worker, and therefore remote from any regulation of commerce as such? We think the answer is plain. These matters obviously lie outside the orbit of Congressional power."

28.3 There you have it--the high court informing Congress that it has no constitutional authority whatsoever to legislate for the social welfare of the worker. The result was that when Social Security was instituted, it had to be treated as strictly voluntary.

29. 1937: President Franklin D. Roosevelt "Stacks" the Supreme Court to Ramrod His Socialist Programs Down Our Throats!!!

Thwarted by resistance to his socialist programs, including Social Security, in 1937, President Franklin D. Roosevelt announced he was going to "stack" the Supreme Court (see <http://www.hpol.org/fdr/chat/>). This was called "the court packing plan". The Supreme court originally had 6 justices, and he doubled its size by adding several of his own "cronies" who would uphold and defend his socialist programs, including Social Security and the Victory Tax. He also proposed to replace all the justices over 70, which included 5 of the 6 justices then in office.

30. 1939: Congress Obfuscates the Tax Code by Removing References to Nonresident Aliens from the Definition of "Gross Income"

30.1 In particular, they removed the phrase "in the case of a nonresident alien individual or of a citizen entitled to the benefits of section 262" from the 1921 code, which was the predecessor to 26 U.S.C. §861 we have today. There was not fundamental change in the constitution or the law. They made these changes to further conceal the truth.

30.2 See section 6.3.7 “Cover-Up of 1939: Removed References to Nonresident Aliens from the Definition of ‘Gross Income’” for details of how Congress obfuscated the tax code in this case.

31. Victory Tax Act of 1942, imposed by the Revenue Act of 1942, 172, 56 Stat. 884. Part of the 1939 Tax Code.

31.1 This act was a voluntary employer payroll deduction of income taxes required in order to fight World War II. It represented the start of employer withholding, but note that it was entirely voluntary.

31.2 As a part of the Victory Tax Act, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt created the Voluntary W-4 Withholding System, making income tax withholding mandatory for all citizens of the Union. This was a two year tax, and as expected, both the Victory Tax and the Voluntary W-4 Withholding were repealed by Congress in 1944. Unfortunately, they forgot to tell America.

31.3 Under the guise of the 1913 Internal Income tax, the machinery of the Victory tax remained in operation. Voluntary compliance with the Federal internal income tax jumped from an anemic 5 percent to a robust 60 percent in a matter of a couple years via the repealed Victory tax system of tax collection. By using two illegitimate tax systems, Congress created the beast we have today, taxing us under rates and conditions exceeding those which prompted the Boston Tea Party and the Declaration of Independence.

31.4 The Victory Tax was replaced by the Current Tax Payment Act of 1943, 57 Stat. 126, and was repealed by the Individual Income Tax Act of 1944, 6 (a), 58 Stat. 234.

32. 1943: President Franklin Delano Roosevelt’s Executive Order 9397 made Social Security Numbers a standard tracking mechanism across all federal agencies. Bye-bye privacy and Fourth Amendment!

32.1 Read Presidential Executive Order 9397 at:

http://resource.lawlinks.com/Content/Legal_Research/Executive_Orders/1940-1960/executive_order_9397.htm

33. 1947: U.S. v. Silk, 331 U.S. 704 (1947) Declares Social Security Taxes are Legitimate Excise Taxes On Businesses

33.1 FDR’s stacking of the Supreme Court finally pays off!

33.2 The cancer of socialism begins to spread further with encouragement by the state.

33.3 Thomas Jefferson’s warnings and predictions are realized:

“In every government on earth is some trace of human weakness, some germ of corruption and degeneracy, which cunning will discover, and wickedness insensibly open, cultivate and improve.”
[Thomas Jefferson: Notes on Virginia Q.XIV, 1782. ME 2:207]

34. 1952: IRS Reorganization and elimination of the Office of Collector of Internal Revenue

<http://www4.law.cornell.edu/uscode/26/7804.notes.html>

34.2 As part of this reorganization, the government manufactured a scandal concerning the collectors. The real reason, however, was to make the code voluntary.

34.3 This office of the Collector of Internal Revenue made possible to protest a tax. Without a Collector of Internal Revenue, it is impossible to protest a tax because it has to be voluntary without a collector. If you don't make a demand in the law, then no one has to do anything. This reorganization made the process of tax collection into an administrative process, which allowed all U.S. District courts into administrative courts in regards to federal taxes. The only people who should go to these courts at this point are “taxpayers”, which are people who volunteered to pay the tax.

34.4 Section 29 of the 1894 Revenue Act was the last federal law that imposed a legal duty to pay upon citizens and residents of the United States. The duty to pay the tax was subsequently eliminated by Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1895) and does not appear in any Revenue Law after that date.

35. 1954: Congress Rewrites the Tax Code Again to Hide Constitutional Limitations on The Right To Tax

35.1 Deleted any phrases referring to income that is, under the Constitution or fundamental law, not taxable by the government. This was done by changing the definition of gross income from “unless exempt from tax by law” to “unless excluded by law”. There were no changes to the law or the Constitution that would necessitate deleting

1 the reference to the Constitution; it was done for no other credible reason than to obscure the Constitutionally-
2 limited application of the income tax, but without making the regulation technically incorrect - only deceiving
3 and misleading.

4 35.2 They obfuscated locating taxable sources by adding double-negatives "list of sources that are NOT considered tax
5 exempt". Why not just state what IS taxable, which is foreign income?

6 35.3 Removed from the regulations the phrase "in the case of nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations
7 engaged in trade or business within the United States" from the regulations in section 1.861-8. This made it
8 appear that the applicability of the income tax was expanded. As Congress stated, the application of the law did 9 not change in 1954, but some key phrases in the regulations were removed so as to make the truth less obvious.

10 35.4 The admission of the limited application vanished from the regulations defining "gross income," but remained in
11 the regulations under 26 U.S.C. §861, and (to maintain literal accuracy) the regulations began to say that 861 and
12 following and related regulations "determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax." This 13 change removed any chance of the regulations under Section 61 raising suspicions.

14 35.5 See section 6.5.12 "Cover-Up of 1954: Hiding Constitutional Limitations on the Right To Tax" for details of 15 how Congress obfuscated the tax code in this case.

16 36. 1968: Congress Repudiates Redemption of All Forms of "lawful money" in silver

17 36.1 This turned FRNs into a fiat currency domestically for the first time.

18 37. 1971: President Nixon Repudiates Redemption of FRNs in Gold

19 37.1 This turned FRNs into a fiat currency internationally for the first time.

20 38. 1978: Congress Rewrites the Tax Code Again to Confuse the IRS Regulations on "Sources"

21 38.1 In 1978, the wording of 26 CFR §1.861-8 was changed significantly, and the title was changed from 22 "Computation of Taxable Income from Sources Within the United States" to "Computation of taxable income 23 from sources within the United States and from other sources and activities." Some have suggested that the 24 current title implies that one should not be using this section unless he has income both from within the United 25 States and from "other sources and activities." The older title, as well as the text of the current regulations, shows 26 that this is not the case.

27 38.2 See section 6.5.11 "Cover-Up of 1978: Confused IRS Regulations on 'Sources'" for details of how Congress
28 obfuscated the tax code in this case.

29 39. 1979: The Zaritsky Report

30 39.1 Congressional Research Service report #79-131, written in 1979 by Howard Zaritsky and titled Some 31 Constitutional Questions Regarding the Income Tax Laws agreed in stating:

32 "...therefore it is clear that the income tax is an 'indirect' tax...subject to the rule of uniformity, rather than the 33 rule of apportionment."

34 39.2 So the so-called "income tax amendment" that everybody and their uncle believe authorized the income tax and 35 that many patriotic Americans object to since there is overwhelming evidence that it was never properly ratified
36 by the States...changed absolutely nothing!

37 39.3 The 16th Amendment was constitutional window dressing and might as well have never been written. Why? In 38 the original draft of the 16th Amendment, Senate Joint Resolution 39, as per page 3138 of the June 11, 1909
39 Congressional Record, included the word "direct." Fearing that the Supreme Court would again strike it down, 40 Senator Nelson Aldrich, Chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, and as you will recall, the host of 41 the Jekyll Island conference, presented Senate Joint Resolution No. 40, entered on page 3900 of the 42 Congressional Record of June 28, 1909, in which the word "direct" is omitted.

43 39.4 By deliberately omitting the word "direct" and then ending with the phrase, "...without apportionment among the 44 several States", the language of the 16th was cleverly crafted to create the illusion that some new type of 45 presumably direct, yet unapportioned tax was being imposed on "income."

46 39.5 But here's the problem. Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3, and Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 requiring the 47 apportionment of direct taxes, and Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 requiring that indirect taxes be uniform had 48 never been repealed and, at the time the 16th was drafted, they were still standing law. As the Supreme Court 49 ruled in the famous Marbury v. Madison case in 1803, the Constitution cannot conflict with itself! An unapportioned income tax, as the 16th called for, would by very definition, have to be an indirect tax, because direct taxes still had to be apportioned.

39.6 The Supreme Court was alert to this ruse and chided Congress by deciding in Stanton that the inclusion of the phrase "without apportionment" could only mean that Congress intended to clarify that the income tax is indeed an indirect tax. The 16th Amendment to the United States Constitution did not repeal or alter Congress' power, or obligation, to impose the emergency direct tax should a deficit arise.

39.7 The power of Congress to impose a direct tax still exists, and direct taxes are still required to be apportioned among the states.

The fact that the 16th Amendment did not change one word or phrase in the Constitution has, for years, been one of the U.S. government's best kept secrets!

Many college professors in our country's most prestigious institutions still teach that the income tax is neither a direct nor an indirect tax, but is a hybrid tax that falls somewhere between the two. Such a gross lack of understanding by those charged with teaching the Law to future lawyers is, in my opinion, unpardonable. It also explains many of the unexplained controversies and inconsistencies in the application of the Internal Revenue Code in the various circuit and district courts in section 3.20.1.

40. 1982: Congress Rewrites 26 U.S.C. to Remove Footnotes from IRC Section 61 Pointing to Section 861

40.1 The Code contains many footnotes and references to allow readers to search back and trace the origins and evolution of laws and regulations, since this often clarifies intent. IRC 61(a) on gross income used to have a footnote informing readers that it came from Section 22(a) of the 1939 Code and that the law hadn't been changed. The footnote said, "Source: Sec. 22(a), 1939 Code, substantially unchanged." That footnote was in the 1954 version of the Internal Revenue Code at least up to the 1982 edition, but then it vanished, making it difficult for tax professionals to understand how the wording has been deceptively altered, leading to misapplication of the law. Constitutional limitations discussed above were thus hidden.

40.2 Deletion of the footnote has also made it much more difficult to notice and understand the close connection between IRC 61 and IRC 861 (or 26 CFR § 1.61 and 26 CFR §1.861), especially as 26 CFR §1.861 is now thousands of pages distant from CFR 1.61, and in the earlier versions, the section was not numbered 861, but 119.

40.3 See section 6.5.10 "Cover-Up of 1982: Footnotes Removed from IRC Section 61 Pointing to Section 861" for details of how Congress obfuscated the tax code.

41. 1986: U.S. v. Stahl, 792 F.2d 1438 (1986), Federal District Court Refused to Hear Arguments on the Fraudulent Passage of the 16th Amendment, which Allegedly Authorized Income Taxes

This case was a major scandal for the Federal appellate court. The defendant Stahl presented credible evidence that the 16th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was fraudulently claimed to have been ratified by the Secretary of State, Philander Knox, in 1913. The court refused to deal with the issue and ignored all the evidence presented. Instead, they said it wasn't their business to deal with the issue. Congress said the same thing. This leads to the conclusion that there is a federal judicial (as well as a Congressional) conspiracy to protect the income tax!

"[Defendant] Stahl's claim that ratification of the 16th Amendment was fraudulently certified constitutes a political question because we could not undertake independent resolution of this issue without expressing lack of respect due coordinate branches of government...."

42. 1988: Congress Obfuscates the 26 U.S.C./IRC Further to Change the title of Part I, Subchapter N to Make it Refer Only to Foreign Income

42.1 Prior to 1988, the title of Part I of Subchapter N (which begins with Section 861) was "Determination of sources of income" (which is still the heading of the related regulations). In 1988, this title was changed to "Source rules and other general rules relating to foreign income."

42.2 It should be mentioned that while the titles of parts may give an indication of what the part is about, the title has no effect on the actual legal application.

2 relating to the contents of this title be given any legal effect.”
3 [26 U.S.C. §7806(b)]

- 4 42.3 So when the title was changed (but the text of the law was not), the application of the law did not change. What
5 changed was the appearance of the table of contents.
6 42.4 When the title of Part I was changed, and the new title stated that the part was about “foreign income,” it no
7 longer appeared to be an obvious place for most people to look when determining their taxable income. This 8 would certainly have the effect of drawing attention away from Section 861.
9 42.5 See section 6.5.8 “Cover-Up of 1988: Changed Title of Part I, Subchapter N to Make it Refer Only to Foreign

11 43. 1993: IRS Removes References in IRS Publication 515 to Citizens Not Being Liable for Income Tax and 12 Confused New Language.

- 13 43.1 Here's what was . Inside Publication 515, there appears a statement the IRS hopes you never see. Under the 14 main heading "Withholding Exemptions and Reductions" and within the paragraph titled "Evidence of 15 Residence", the IRS states in speaking to the payer of income:

16 "If an individual gives you a written statement stating that he or she is a citizen or resident of the United States,
17 and you do not know otherwise, you do not have to withhold tax."

- 18 43.2 The 1994 version of Publication 515 varied somewhat. Instead of ending with "...you do not have to withhold 19 tax", it continues:

20 "...you do not have to withhold tax under the rules discussed in this publication. Instead, get Publication 15,
21 Circular E, Employer's Tax Guide."

- 22 43.3 This change was in response to tax protester groups, who at the time were citing this publication as proof that 23 they weren't liable to pay taxes as citizens of the 50 union states with income from domestic sources!
24 43.4 See section 6.6.18 “Cover-Up of 1993: IRS Removed References in IRS Publication 515 to Citizens Not Being

26 44. 1995: IRS Modifies Regulations to Remove Pointers to Form 2555 for IRC Section 1 Liability for Federal 27 Income Tax Under the Paperwork Reduction Act

- 28 44.1 The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980 requires that every form used by the federal government to collect
29 information from the public first be approved by the Office of Management and Budget (“OMB”). The 30 regulations at 26 CFR §602.101 contain a table listing the OMB-approved forms for each section of regulations.
31 The regulations 26 CFR §1.1-1 are entitled “Income tax on individuals,” and correspond to 26 U.S.C. §1 (which 32 imposes the “income tax”). Up until 1995, the first line in this table identified Form 2555, “Foreign Earned 33 Income,” as the only approved form under 26 CFR §1.1-1.
34 44.2 In 1995, after many “tax resistance” groups had become aware of this, the listing for “1.1-1” was removed from 35 the list, in order to avoid “confusion,” according to the Department of the Treasury. The process of applying for,
36 and receiving OMB approval for a form makes the possibility of an error extremely remote. The Department of 37 the Treasury requested that Form 2555 be approved for 1.1-1, and the Office of Management and Budget
38 approved it. When the entry drew too much attention, it was removed. At present no forms are approved for use
39 with 26 CFR §1.1-1.
40 44.3 See section 6.6.17 “Cover-Up of 1995: Modified Regulations to Remove Pointers to Form 2555 for IRC Section 41 1 Liability for Federal Income Tax” for details of how IRS obfuscated the regulations in this case.

42 45. 1998: IRS Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998

- 43 45.1 Because of widespread abuse of due process rights of Americans, the U.S. Congress passed the IRS Restructuring
44 and Reform Act of 1998 (<http://www.irs.gov/irs/display/0..i1%3D46%26genericId%3D23294.00.html>). It was 45 designed to remedy many of the abuses of the IRS, including:
46 45.1.1 A shifting of the burden of proof from the Citizen to the IRS for certain circumstances. This eliminated
47 the widespread perception by citizens that with regard to tax matters, citizens were “guilty until proven 48 innocent”.
49 45.1.2 Illegal liens, levies, and seizures of the property of citizens.
50 45.1.3 The labeling of Citizens as “illegal tax protesters”.

- 1 45.1.4 Creation of the Taxpayer Advocate office to resolve complaints of citizens.
 2 45.1.5 Prohibition of the IRS contacting third parties of the citizen without prior notice.
 3 45.1.6 Refunds of overpayments prior to final determination.
 4 45.1.7 Allowance for accountant-client privilege.
 5 45.1.8 Prohibition of threat of audit to coerce TRAC agreements.
 6 45.1.9 Severe penalties ranging between $100,000 and $1,000,000 for wrongful collection of taxes by revenue
 7 agents.
 8 45.1.10 Citizens allowed to quash 3rd party summons by IRS.
 9 45.2 During the hearings prior to the enactment of this legislation, there was unbelievable publicized testimony of 10 many different individuals who had been abused illegally by the IRS. The witnesses were so afraid of the IRS
 11 that they had to have their voices and identities concealed to avoid retribution. This was a clear indication that 12 the IRS had way too much power.
 13 45.3 You will note by examining the statistics in section 2.12 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008 that 14 IRS abusive behavior toward citizens was significantly curbed following the passage of this act. This act did 15 exactly what it was supposed to do, which points to the fact that if we want real reforms of the tax system and the 16 IRS, then ultimately it is up to us as citizens to vote and to be politically involved enough to make sure that our 17 elected representatives know what we expect from them and from our tax system.

18 6.3 The Laws of Tyranny

19 This section contains a description of what is called The Laws of Tyranny. These laws describe the major techniques by 20 which governments are systematically corrupted. As you read through the rest of this chapter, try to deduce for yourself
 21 how these laws apply to the specific instance of corruption described in each section. Nearly every section within this 22 chapter can be associated with one of these laws.

23 The Laws of Tyranny

- 24 1. Any power that can be abused will be abused.
 25 1.1. The main mechanism for abusing law is through obfuscation of the law to turn it into a mechanism for terrorizing
 26 the ignorant and uninformed.
 27 1.2. Any law the electorate sees as being open to being perverted from its original intent will be perverted in a manner
 28 that exceeds the manner of perversion seen at the time.
 29 1.3. Any law that is so difficult to pass it requires the citizens be assured it will not be a stepping stone to worse laws, 30 will in fact be a stepping stone to worse laws.
 31 1.4. Any law that requires the citizens be assured the law does not mean what the citizens fear, means exactly what the 32 citizens fear.
 33 1.5. Any law passed in a good cause will be interpreted to apply to causes against the wishes of the people.
 34 1.6. Any law enacted to help any one group will be applied to harm people not in that group.
 35 1.7. Everything the government says will never happen, will happen.
 36 1.8. What the government says it could not foresee, the government has planned for.
 37 1.9. When there is a budget shortfall to cover non-essential government services, the citizens will be given the choice
 38 between higher taxes or the loss of essential government services.
 39 1.10. Should the citizens mount a successful effort to stop a piece of legislation, the same legislation will be passed
 40 under a different name or as a rider to a more popular measure.
 41 2. All deprivations of freedom and choice will be increased rather than reversed. Abuse and tyranny will always expand
 42 to fill the limits of resistance to them.
 43 3. If people don't resist the abuses of others, they will have no one to resist the abuses of themselves, and tyranny will 44 prevail.

45 Frederick Douglas, an early American Civil Rights advocate, summed up these laws with the following statement:

46 Find out just what the people will submit to and you have found out the exact amount of injustice and wrong
 47 which will be imposed upon them; and these will continue until they are resisted with either words or blows, or

1 with both. The limits of tyrants are prescribed by the endurance of those whom they oppress.

11 6.4.1 1925: William H. Taft's Certiorari Act of 1925

12 As we have stated repeatedly throughout this book, there is a judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax (see sections 6.9
13 and 1.7). The basic problem is that the federal district and circuit courts are acting as a protection racket for the IRS while 14 the U.S. Supreme Court has been looking the other way by denying appeals to correct such abuses. How did we arrive at 15 the point where the Supreme Court even had the discretion to deny such appeals? That is a scandal all by itself, as you will 16 find out.

17 President Howard Taft is the single person most responsible for the federal income tax that we have today. He was a
18 brilliant man and the only person who had all the qualifications necessary to engineer an overthrow of our de jure
19 government and the replacement of it with the de facto criminal government we have today. For instance, he is the only 20 person who ever did all of the following:

- 21 • Served as the President of the United States
- 22 • Served as the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court
- 23 • Served as a Collector of Internal Revenue in Michigan
- 24 • Was able to get the Sixteenth Amendment into the hands of the states for ratification in 1909.
- 25 • Was still in office when the Sixteenth Amendment was declared ratified and the Federal Reserve Act was 26 passed.

27 Nearly all the financial corruption that exists in our country's money and tax systems was introduced during his tour of 28 office as President and this corruption was later perfected and expanded during his nine year tenure as Chief Justice of the 29 Supreme Court starting in 1921. If you would like to learn more about this man, we recommend The Complete Book of 30 U.S. Presidents, by William A Degregorio, ISBN 0-517-18353-6.

31 In section 3.11.11.1 we revealed the legislative intent of the Sixteenth Amendment by showing you the Presidential Speech
32 that introduced the Sixteenth Amendment for the first time, given by William H. Taft before Congress in 1909. That 33 speech showed clearly that then President Taft understood that federal income taxes were excise taxes that could not be 34 instituted against other than federal corporations. He introduced the Sixteenth Amendment to Congress in 1909 as a way to 35 circumvent this restriction and broaden the application of federal income taxes to authorize a supposed direct income tax on 36 private persons. Subsequent to the introduction of the Sixteenth Amendment for state ratification in 1909, Secretary of 37 State Philander Knox committed fraud in 1913 by claiming that the Sixteenth Amendment had been properly ratified by ¾
38 of the states. Knox was Taft's hand-picked Secretary of State.

39 During his presidency, Taft made six appointments to the Supreme Court -- more than any other one-term President. Many 40 think that when Taft named Edward White Chief Justice rather than the other obvious choice, Charles Evans Hughes, there
41 was a political agenda to pave a way for his own later appointment as Chief Justice. Taft appointed White because White
42 was twelve years older than Hughes. Naming White gave Taft a better shot at being Chief Justice one day himself -- in spite
43 of Thomas Jefferson's famous complaint that "few [Justices] die and none resign.". You can read more about Taft's history
44 from the speech given by Chief Justice Rehnquist on April 13, 2002, and which is posted on the Supreme Court website at:

45 http://www.supremecourtus.gov/publicinfo/speeches/sp_04-13-02.html

1 We know by reading excerpts from Stanton v. Baltic Mining, 240 U.S. 103 (1916) in section 3.17.11, that the Supreme
 2 Court, subsequent to the ratification of the Sixteenth Amendment in 1913, disagreed with President Taft about the affect of
 3 the Sixteenth Amendment by saying that it conferred “no new power of taxation” upon Congress. Here is what the U.S.
 4 Supreme Court said in 1916, three years after the ratification of the Sixteenth Amendment:

5 “..by the previous ruling it was settled that the provisions of the Sixteenth Amendment conferred no new
 6 power of taxation but simply prohibited the previous complete and plenary power of income taxation
 7 possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation to which
 8 it inherently belonged and being placed in the category of direct taxation subject to apportionment by a
 9 consideration of the sources from which the income was derived, that is by testing the tax not by what it was -- a
 10 tax on income, but by a mistaken theory deduced from the origin or source of the income taxed.”

11 President Taft, who would later leave office in 1913 to be appointed by President Harding to become Chief Justice of the 12 Supreme Court in 1921, must have known this was going to happen when he introduced the Sixteenth Amendment in 1909.
 13 So how did he skirt this declaration by the Supreme Court that nullified the 16th Amendment to allow the fraud of federal 14 income taxes to perpetuate anyway? The answer is quite interesting.

15 As Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, President Taft sponsored a bill called the Certiorari Act of 1925. In the year
 16 that Taft was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in 1921, the docket of the Supreme Court was reportedly 5
 17 years behind, according to Chief Justice Rehnquist, so when Taft became Chief Justice, he complained to Congress and the 18 President that the Supreme Court was hopelessly backed up in hearing appeals from lower courts and that the court needed
 19 the discretion to be able to deny appeals from lower courts. What sort of appeals might those be? How about federal 20 income tax trials to begin with! Here is the way Chief Justice Rehnquist described this situation:

21 “When he was appointed Chief Justice in 1921, the Court had fallen nearly five years behind in its docket. He 22 resolved this caseload congestion in the Court by convincing Congress to pass the Judiciary Act of 1925 -- also 23 known as the Certiorari Act -- which gave the Court discretion as to which cases to hear. Some members of 24 Congress were doubtful -- why shouldn't every litigant have a right to get a decision on his case from the 25 Supreme Court? Taft responded that in each case, there had already been one trial and one appeal. “Two 26 courts are enough for justice,” he said. To obtain still a third hearing in the Supreme Court, there should be 27 some question involved more important than just who wins this lawsuit.”

28 He must have figured that if the appeals courts below the Supreme Court would uphold the income tax and if the Supreme 29 Court could deny appeals, then in spite of the Supreme Court precedents established earlier which nullified the Sixteenth
 30 Amendment, we could have a schizophrenic and split personality federal judicial system that on the one hand, would 31 declare at the Supreme Court level that direct income taxes were unconstitutional, but at courts below the Supreme Court
 32 would declare them constitutional. As long as the Supreme Court under the Certiorari Act of 1925 could deny appeals, it
 33 wouldn't have to correct the abuses of the lower courts and the split personalities could continue. This sin of omission by 34 the Supreme court which was authorized and even encouraged by Taft's unconstitutional Certiorari Act would then serve to 35 perpetuate the income tax fraud. This would open the doors for the U.S. Congress to perpetuate the myth of income tax
 36 liability by lying to their constituents and telling them that they “must pay federal income taxes because the Sixteenth 37 Amendment authorizes it”. This, in a nutshell, is exactly the legacy and the heritage that we live with to this day, and we 38 have President Taft in large part, to thank for it. The obscenely dishonest people in Congress who know the truth and yet
 39 continue to perpetuate this fraud are simply maintaining the system that Taft setup through his skullduggery.

40 Former President Taft served only four years as Chief Justice after the passage of the Certiorari Act of 1925, resigning from 41 office in February 1930 because of illness and dying a month later. He must have figured he had accomplished the job he 42 set out to do. E.B. White, his predecessor Chief Justice, served almost 10 years and Justice Fuller before him served 21 43 years.

44 To summarize the big picture, Chief Justice Taft must have known that the federal income tax fraud could not continue if 45 the Supreme Court lacked the discretion to deny appeals, or Writs of Certiorari as they are called, from lower courts. If the 46 Bureau of Internal Revenue, or BIR (now called the IRS) kept trying at the time to extort money from people and the 47 Supreme Court consistently was saying that the Sixteenth Amendment didn't authorize them to do this, then people could 48 eventually appeal all the way up to the Supreme Court and stop the unlawful assessment and collection, which would 49 destroy federal revenues and keep the BIR in check. Allow the Supreme Court to deny appeals, however, and the situation
 50 would be very different. With his Certiorari Act passed by Congress in 1925 in place, President William Howard Taft had 51 all the pieces in place needed to perpetuate and enlarge the federal income tax fraud:

1. A brand new Supreme Court building. Previously, the Supreme Court had been meeting in other government buildings and justices were operating out of their homes up until that time.
2. A Supreme Court stacked with six of his own hand-picked justices during his term as President from 1909-1913.
3. The Sixteenth Amendment that Taft himself had introduced in 1909.
4. A fraudulent ratification of the Sixteenth Amendment by Philander Knox in 1913. Philander Knox was his own hand-picked Secretary of State.
5. The Federal Reserve Act of 1913, scandalously passed by just four members of Congress during a Christmas recess immediately after the Sixteenth Amendment was ratified and during Taft's administration.
6. The Certiorari Act of 1925 that authorized the Supreme Court to deny justice to people who had been defrauded of federal income taxes they didn't owe by the then Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR).
7. Control of the Supreme Court for five years following the passage of the Certiorari Act, so he could get in place several circuit court rulings favorable to the income tax that the Supreme Court would deny writs to. Taft served as Chief Justice from 1921 to 1929 until his death in 1930.
8. At the end of Taft's term as Chief Justice, our country plunged into the Great Depression, which most knowledgeable people say was caused by a deliberate and systematic contraction of the money supply by the Federal Reserve in order to engineer the socialist reforms that FDR would later propose in the form of Socialist Security. Our purely capitalist economic system had to be made to look like it was failing by the bankers before most rugged individualist Americans would willingly accept anything as radical as Socialist Security or a government handout.

The fundamental defect in the Certiorari Act was the fact that the Supreme Court could:

1. Deny appeals without explaining why (and evade accountability for its decision). If the people are the sovereigns and the government is their servant, what gives the servant the right to tell the sovereign what to do with its appeal?
2. Deny appeals even though decisions of lower courts clearly conflicted with its precedents. This amounts to condoning government wrongs.
3. Deny appeals of parties whose constitutional rights were claimed to be injured. The ability to deny justice to parties whose constitutional rights had been violated clearly violates the oath that the justices take to "support and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic".

If the above three defects in the unconstitutional Certiorari Act of 1925 were remedied, we wouldn't have the split personality court system we have today and the fraud of the income tax, because they would be impossible to maintain with an accountable Supreme Court that was obligated to:

1. Correct rulings below it that violated or contradicted its precedents.
2. Correct rulings which violated constitutional rights without exception.
3. Explain why it would not hear the case or defend the constitutional rights of the injured party (be accountable).

Now do you see how the pieces of the puzzle were cleverly and invisibly weaved together by conspiracies involving all three branches of the federal government over several years to create the totally unjust and extortionary slavery tax system we have now? Now do you understand why Thomas Jefferson said:

"Single acts of tyranny may be ascribed to the accidental opinion of a day. But a series of oppressions, pursued unalterably through every change of ministers, too plainly proves a deliberate systematic plan of reducing us to slavery".
[Thomas Jefferson]

Do you also now understand why Franklin Delano Roosevelt said?:

"In politics, nothing happens by accident. If it happens, it was planned that way."
[Franklin D. Roosevelt]

6.4.2 1933: FDR's Great American Gold Robbery

6.4.2.1 Money Background

Genuine money must have the following three qualities:

- 1 1. It must be a storehouse of intrinsic value.
- 2 2. It must be a universal, portable medium of exchange.
- 3 3. It must have a common unit of account.
- 4 4. It must be immune to attempts by the government to lower its value by printing more and thereby use inflationary
- 5 forces to “tax” all money in circulation. This ensures what we called earlier in section 2.8.9.2 “separation of
- 6 money and state”.

7 Black’s Law Dictionary, 5th Edition, defines “money” as:

8 “In its usual and ordinary explanation it means coins and paper currency used as circulating medium of 9 exchange, and does not embrace notes, bonds, evidences of debt or other personal or real estate.”

10 Gold and silver coins and the previous gold and silver certificates were a storehouse of “intrinsic” value. They actually 11 increased in value with inflation. Therefore, they were a hedge against inflation.

12 LAWFUL MONEY is defined in Black’s Law Dictionary, 2nd Ed., as:

14 The responsibility of coining gold and silver money was ceded to Congress in our Constitution; Article I; §8, Clause 5:

15 “The Congress shall have the power...To coin money and regulate the value thereof...”

16 Because the Constitution is the Supreme Law of the Land, nothing but gold or silver coin is “lawful” money for the 50
 17 union states. Because of heaviness of gold and silver coins, “Gold and Silver Certificates” were created by the Department
 18 of Treasury of the United States. These certificates were representative of actual gold and silver coins which were owned
 19 by the People holding the Certificates and maintained in the vaults of the banks and Fort Knox. These Gold and Silver
 20 Certificates were convertible to gold and silver coin, “PAYABLE ON DEMAND.” It is important to understand that this 21 gold and silver, represented by the Certificates, belonged to the People or Certificate Holders and NOT the banks or the 22 government.

23 At one time, reference to the laws that made money “lawful” were printed directly on the face of our currency. The laws
 24 printed on the bills were enacted on March 14, 1900 and December 24, 1919.

25 66th Congress Sess. II Chapter 15, (December 24, 1919)-Public Law No. 103

26 CHAP. 15-An Act to make gold certificates of the United States payable to bearer on demand legal tender.

27 “Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that 28 gold certificates of the United States payable to bearer on demand shall be and are hereby made legal tender in payment of 29 all debts and dues, public and private.

30 §2 That all acts or parts of Acts which are inconsistent with this Act are hereby repealed.”

31 Approved, December 24, 1919

32 The above law has NEVER been and CANNOT be repealed, as it is applicable to the 50 sovereign states, without amending
 33 the Constitution. Note that the Act, says “gold certificates payable to the bearer on demand “shall be and are.” This means 34 not only when the Act was passed, but also into the future!

35 §2 of the Act, repealing Acts or parts of Acts inconsistent with the above Public Law 103, would, therefore, not only be 36 applicable to past Acts which were inconsistent with its intent but also future inconsistent Acts. It also says to be legal 37 tender, the certificates MUST be payable to bearer on demand. Our current ‘Federal Reserve Notes’ do not meet either 38 of these lawful requirements for legal tender for the Citizens of the several states.

1 Perhaps Federal Reserve Notes are “legal tender” for the Territorial (federal zone) United States, under the EXCLUSIVE
2 jurisdiction and not under Constitutional restrictions and protections. However, both the Constitution and the Law lead
3 only to one inescapable conclusion, which is that:

4 Federal Reserve Notes certainly are NOT Constitutional tender or lawful money for the Citizens of the 50
5 sovereign states in these united states of America!

6 Because the Constitution prohibited the states from coining gold and silver (which would logically extend to the gold and 7 silver certificates which were representative of the ownership of these coins) and because We the People specifically
8 delegated monetary powers to Congress, it was not within the Congressional authority to transfer the issuing of gold and 9 silver certificates and ultimately federal reserve notes to the private Federal Reserve.

10 Remember:

11 “Congress may not abdicate [‘to give up.. renounce or relinquish...authorities, duties...powers, or 12 responsibility] to transfer to others its legitimate [delegated] functions”
13 [Schechter Poultry v. U.S., 29 U.S., 495 U.S. 837, 842 (1935)]

14 Gold Reserve Act of March 14, 1900. “Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of 15 America in Congress assembled, that the dollar consisting of twenty-five and eight tenths grains of gold, nine-tenths fine as 16 established by section thirty-five hundred and eleven [§3511] of the Revised Statutes of the United States, shall be the 17 standard unit of value, and all forms of money issued or coined by the United States, shall be the standard unit of value, and 18 all forms of money issued or coined by the United States, shall be the standard unit of value, and all forms of money issued
19 or coined by the United States shall be maintained at the parity of value with this standard, and it shall be the duty of the 20 Secretary of the Treasury to maintain such parity.

21 Sec. 2. That United States notes, and Treasury notes issued under the Act of July 14, 1890, when presented to the Treasury
22 for redemption, shall be redeemed in gold coin of the standard fixed in the first section of this Act...”

23 So where is our gold?...you ask. Where’s our gold certificates?

24 Gold certificates were originally the idea of goldsmiths who would hold the gold of Citizens and issue much less bulky
25 certificates as evidence of gold on deposit. The Certificate Holders could redeem their Certificates for their gold at any 26 time. Greedy goldsmiths soon began to realize that the majority of the gold in their vaults just sat there because the 27 Certificate Holders were using their certificates as a medium of exchange instead of the gold. Realizing this, the goldsmiths
28 made up extra gold certificates and starting making loans, at interest, using OTHER Citizen’s gold as backing. These loans
29 were then repaid to the goldsmith in GOLD COIN! As long as all the gold owners didn’t show up at once, the goldsmiths
30 got away with their scheme. When the lawful owners of the gold got wise and demanded their gold back, the goldsmiths 31 who couldn’t produce it were hung from the nearest tree!

32 6.4.2.2 The Trading With the Enemy Act: Day the President Declared War on His Own People and 33 Confiscated all the Gold!

34 Many of the legal cites used in this section are taken from the tremendous research efforts of Dr. Eugene Schroder, who has 35 authored a book called, Constitution: Fact or Fiction, published by Buffalo Creek Press, PO Box 2424 Cleburne, Texas
36 76033. Supporting documents and a video are also available from Dr. Schroder, c/o PO Box 89, Campo Colorado (81029).
37 Dr. Schroder’s research exposes Government corruption of insidious magnitude.

38 Senate Report 93-549 (1973) states:

39 “Since March 9, 1933, the United States has been in a state of national emergency. A majority of the people of the United 40 States have lived their lives under emergency rule. For 40 years freedoms and government procedures, guaranteed by the 41 constitution have, in varying degrees, been abridged by laws brought forth by states of national emergency...”

1 “These hundreds of statutes delegate to the President extraordinary powers, ordinarily exercised by Congress, which affect
2 the lives of American Citizens in a host of all-encompassing manners. This vast range of powers, taken together, confer
3 enough authority to rule this country without reference to normal constitutional process.”

4 “Under the powers delegated by these statutes the President may: seize property, organize and control the means of 5 production; seize commodities [i.e. the People’s gold, silver, and currency] assign military forces abroad; institute martial
6 law; seize and control all transportation and communication; regulate the operation of private enterprise, restrict travel; and,
7 in a plethora of ways, control the lives of all American citizens.”

8 Franklin D. Roosevelt was a shrewd banker, himself. In the 1920’s, he made a considerable amount of money by floating
9 millions of dollars in worthless German bonds. The artificially engineered Great Depression and a desperate country,
10 paved the way for acceptance of the new unconstitutional socialistically oriented governmental policies of FDR. Families,
11 desperate to survive, lost touch with the Constitution.

12 This section will provide powerful and unrefutable evidence that on March 9, 1933, the United States declared war on its 13 own citizen subjects through Franklin D. Roosevelt, by amending the war powers, “Trading With The Enemy Act” of 14 December 6, 1917, to include, as an enemy of the United States:

15 “any person within the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof”!!! [This was the 16 Territorial United States or the federal zone, but the People were not told this.]

17 The above trick is exactly the same trick our government is STILL playing on us with the whole of Subtitle A income
18 taxes...fooling us into believing that the jurisdiction of the Subtitle A income tax extends into the borders of the sovereign
19 50 union states when it actually does NOT, according to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)9-(a)10!

20 The purpose of this unconscionable and treasonous Act was to justify the theft and seizure of the People’s gold by the 21 Government and to cancel the contractual obligation of the bankers to redeem the People’s Gold Certificates! This Act, if 22 applicable to the Citizens of these united States, would have been a direct violation of Public Law 103 of Dec. 24, 1919,
23 previously quoted, which stated, that only

24 “gold certificates of the United States payable to bearer on demand shall be and are legal tender in payment of 25 all debts and dues, public and private.”

26 The amended Act also blatantly violated the Constitutional prohibition against making anything other than gold and silver 27 legal tender for the payment of debts in the several states!

28 The Trading with the Enemy Act, called upon the extraordinary dictatorial war powers. These powers were only to be used
29 in life-threatening circumstances and ONLY against the declared enemy of the United States. Obviously, the intent of the 30 law was NEVER to seize the assets of American Citizens in the time of peace or war! These powers have been grossly
31 abused to turn America from a free constitutional Republic into an enslaved statutory presidential dictatorship! We warned
32 you this kind of scam would be used to rob you of your liberty in section 2.8.12 entitled “Surrendering Freedoms in the 33 Name of ‘Government Induced Crises’.

34 In other countries, emergency powers can suspend the Constitution. Adolf Hitler used the Emergency Powers to 35 suspend the German Constitution and institute an unfathomable dictatorial reign of terror! The German Emergency
36 Power Law was merely titled Article 48 and stated:

37 “If the public safety and order in the German Reich are seriously disturbed or endangered, the President of the 38 Reich may...suspend in whole or in part the fundamental rights established [including] inviolability of person, 39 inviolability of domicile, freedom of opinion and expression, freedom of assembly and association, secrecy in 40 communication and inviolability of property.”

41 Even with the broad war powers, in America, where the Constitution is the supreme law of the land and ANY law contrary
42 to it NULL and VOID, it is not within the power of the President, the Congress or the Judiciary to create a law or an 43 emergency which suspends the Constitution and unalienable rights of the Sovereign People! Not even war can alienate the 44 rights of the People in relationship to the government!

1 THE AMERICAN CONSTITUTION IS NON-SUSPENDIBLE!

2 "No emergency justifies the violation of any of the provisions of the United States Constitution."¹⁵² An 3 emergency, however, while it cannot create power, increase granted power, or remove or diminish the 4 restrictions imposed upon the power granted or reserved, may allow the exercise of power already in existence,
 5 but not exercised except during an emergency.¹⁵³

6 The circumstances in which the executive branch may exercise extraordinary powers under the Constitution are 7 *very narrow.*¹⁵⁴ The danger must be immediate and impending, or the necessity urgent for the public service,
 8 such as will not admit of delay, and where the action of the civil authority would be too late in providing the
 9 *means which the occasion calls for.*¹⁵⁵ For example, there is no basis in the Constitution for the seizure of 10 steel mills during a wartime labor dispute, despite the President's claim that the war effort would be crippled if
 11 *the mills were shut down.*¹⁵⁶
 12 [16 Am.Jur.2d, Constitutional Law, §52]

13 Contrary to what the People were fraudulently mislead into believing, the Trading With the Enemy Act could not be, and 14 therefore was not, applicable to the Citizens of the several states. In fact, in a section of the Trading With the Enemy Act,
 15 that was never amended, or repealed, the Citizens of these United States were specifically and logically exempted from 16 being defined as the enemy. Therefore, the regulations and punishments of the Trading With the Enemy Act were not and 17 could not later become applicable to the Citizens of the United States.

18 SIXTY FIFTH CONGRESS Sess. 1 Chapter 106, Page 411, October 6, 1917

19 CHAP. 106—An Act To Define, regulate, and punish trading with the enemy, and for other purposes.

20 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress
 21 assembled, That this Act shall be known as the "Trading With the Enemy Act."

22 ...SEC. 2. That the word "enemy" as used herein shall be deemed to mean, for the purposes of trading and of 23 this Act—

24 "...(c) Such other individuals or body or class of individuals, as may be natives, citizens, or subjects of any 25 nation with which the United States is at war, other than citizens of the United States..."

26 Again, it was the "persons" born in Territories over which the United States is exclusively sovereign and NOT the 27 Citizens of the Sovereign states, who were the purported "Enemy" targets of the Trading with the Enemy Act. Even though
 28 the Citizens were specifically excluded from the Emergency War Powers Act, in the most heinous act of Government and 29 Banker Fraud ever perpetrated, American Citizens were coerced by fear and defrauded into turning over all of their gold to 30 the banks. They were threatened [coerced by fear] through the national media, with a $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison, 31 if they refused to comply.

32 It is important to remember that the gold in the banks was the property of the Citizens, holding the gold certificates. The 33 gold did NOT belong to the Government or the Banks. The Federal Reserve is a PRIVATE CORPORATION and 34 gold certificates represented a legitimate contractual obligation to convert the certificates to an equivalent amount of 35 gold, payable on demand of the bearer, whenever that demand might be! The Federal Reserve was required by law to

1 maintain a 40% gold reserve and enough other liquid assets to meet the demands of all citizens who wanted to convert their 2 certificates into gold.

3 Under normal circumstances, only a small percentage of Citizens would exchange their certificates for their gold.
4 However, because of the depression, and well-founded rumors circulating that the private Federal Reserve was taking large
5 amounts of gold belonging to the Citizens out of the country, people lined up at the bank to redeem their gold certificates
6 for gold. This was the lawful prerogative of the People. The Citizens were merely demanding what was lawfully theirs.
7 They had lawfully earned the gold certificates and gold which they represented and it was not within the power of the 8 Government or the Bankers to take the Sovereign Citizen's property and substance, emergency or no emergency!

9 When FDR took office, he declared a national emergency. In Proclamation 2039, using the very words the Federal Reserve
10 had written for him, He stated:

11 "Whereas there have been heavy and unwarranted withdrawals of gold and currency from our banking 12 institutions for the purposes of hoarding..."

13 "Hoarding???" Doesn't that mean "saving?" It was the People's gold and not the bankers and, of course, it was their
14 absolute prerogative to spend it or save it. Most were spending it on SURVIVAL during a time of depression, which 15 incidentally some informed economists blame as the cause a money supply that was deliberately contracted by the Federal 16 Reserve! The President was certainly not delegated the power to ORDER the People not to "save" their own gold! When 17 the smoke screen was removed, the real emergency was that the private federal reserve had breached its contract with 18 American Citizens. They were repudiating their contractual obligation to redeem the People's gold Certificates and were 19 removing the People's gold from the country. The Bankers were like the goldsmiths who had their corrupt scheme
20 exposed. The emergency was that the People were ready to hang the bankers from the nearest tree! Demanding the return
21 of the People's gold to the bankrupt private bankers was like having Americans return their cars if General Motors went 22 bankrupt!

23 6.4.2.3 FDR Defends the Federal Damn Reserve

24 As representatives of the Citizens, the President's first duty was to the People who were the victims of banking fraud.
25 Emergency legislation should have been passed, demanding an immediate and complete audit of the federal reserve (which 26 has NEVER been audited). The 40% gold reserve should have been turned over to the People holding the gold Certificates
27 and all of the bankers remaining assets should have been liquidated and converted to gold. This gold should have been 28 returned to the holders of the gold certificates. If the audit found evidence of self-dealing and embezzlement of the 29 People's gold, those involved should have been criminally prosecuted and their assets should have been seized. If an 30 emergency currency needed to be issued, it should have been debt free currency, issued by the Treasury of these United 31 States and People should have been compensated for their loss of gold. This is how a good President would have protected
32 the People. Instead, FDR was in the pocket of the Bankers!

33 Lets go back to March 6-9, 1933 and find out what FDR did do. Instead of formulating a plan demanding that the Federal 34 Reserve honor their contractual obligations to the People he instead consulted the Federal Reserve as to how they believed 35 the crisis should be solved! Remember the REAL emergency was that the bankers did not want to honor their contractual 36 obligation to convert the People's gold certificates to gold. The cats were consulted about what their punishment should be 37 for eating mice. Of course, the cats ruled that they should be fed more mice! What did the private federal reserve conclude 38 that their punishment should be for embezzling the People's gold and dishonoring their fiduciary responsibilities and 39 legitimate contractual obligations? The cats at the FED decided that they should be fed more mice and the President was 40 instructed to pass a law demanding that the People return ALL of their gold to the bankers or be subjected to a stiff fine and 41 jail time. Roosevelt's Proclamations were taken word for word from the Resolution adopted by Federal Reserve.

42 Resolution Adopted by the Federal Reserve Board of New York.

43 "Whereas, in the opinion of the Board of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the continued and 44 increasing withdrawal of currency and gold from the banks of the country has now created a national 45 emergency..."

1 Remember, the controllers of the Federal Reserve were extremely well educated in law. History has shown them to be the
 2 brains behind all major Wars throughout the world. They create a conflict and then fund all sides. War is big business for
 3 banks. The fed understood how Congress can legislate for its Territorial subject “persons” through Art. I, Sec, 8, Clause
 4 17, without regards to the Constitution (see also Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)). These same scoundrels
 5 probably created the loophole! They also knew the difference between the Citizen of these united States and the 14th
 6 Amendment “person” and they were well aware of the War Powers. Following is the original October 6, 1917 combined

3 “The Trading With the Enemy Act, originally and as amended is strictly a war measure, and finds its sanction
4 in the provision empowering Congress ‘to declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal and make rules
5 concerning captures on land and water.’ Const. Art. I, Sec. 8, Cl. 11

6 How did FDR and the Federal Reserve get away with this treasonous robbery of the American People’s substance?
7 Probably for the same reason Congress is currently passing a multitude of unAmerican bills and Acts. Congress just does
8 not read them! In the words of Congressman McFadden:

9 Congressman McFadden: “Mr. Speaker, I regret that the membership of the House has had no opportunity to 10 consider or even read this bill. The first opportunity I had to know what this legislation is, was when it was 11 read from the clerk’s desk. It is an important banking bill. It is a dictatorship over finance in the United States,
12 it is complete control over the banking system in the United States...It is difficult under the circumstances to 13 discuss this bill. The first section of the bill, as I grasped it is the War Powers that were given back in 1917.”

14 In spite of warnings of McFadden, the amended Trading With the Enemy Act was immediately passed by a trusting, 15 uneducated and ignorant Congress.

16 What were the banking institutions as defined by the President?

17 TITLE II

18 Sec. 202. As used in this title, the term “bank” means (1) any national bank. [Because this is federal 19 legislation this would mean a U.S. national ie. U.S. Territorial bank, not a sovereign state bank.] (2) any bank
20 or trust company located in the District of Columbia and operating under the supervision of the Comptroller of 21 the Currency...”

22 What is the collateral for federal reserve notes? To add insult to injury, it became the People’s own property!

23 Congressman McGugin: “This money will...represent a mortgage on all the homes and other property of the 24 people in the Nation.”

25 Senate Document No. 43, 73rd Congress, 1st Session: “The ownership of all property is in the State
26 [Remember, what the term “in the State” means?]; individual so called ‘ownership’ is only by virtue of 27 Government, ie. Law, amounting to mere user; and use must be in accordance with law and subordinate to the 28 necessities of the State.”

30 6.4.3.1 FDR’s Pep-Talk to Congress, January 17, 1935

31 Below is a speech given January 17, 1935 by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt to Congress on the issue of advocating a 32 proposed new program he called “Social Security”. This speech resulted in the eventual passage of the Social Security Act
33 of 1935 on August 14, 1935:

34 In addressing you on June 8, 1934, I summarized the main objectives of our American program. Among these 35 was, and is, the security of the men, women, and children of the Nation against certain hazards and vicissitudes
36 of life. This purpose is an essential part of our task. In my annual message to you I promised to submit a definite
37 program of action. This I do in the form of a report to me by a Committee on Economic Security, appointed by 38 me for the purpose of surveying the field and of recommending the basis of legislation.

39 I am gratified with the work of this Committee and of those who have helped it: The Technical Board on 40 Economic Security drawn from various departments of the Government, the Advisory Council on Economic 41 Security, consisting of informed and public - spirited private citizens and a number of other advisory groups,
42 including a committee on actuarial consultants, a medical advisory board, a dental advisory committee, a

2 committee on employment relief. All of those who participated in this notable task of planning this major
3 legislative proposal are ready and willing, at any time, to consult with and assist in any way the appropriate
4 Congressional committees and members, with respect to detailed aspects.

5 It is my best judgment that this legislation should be brought forward with a minimum of delay. Federal action
6 is necessary to, and conditioned upon, the action of States. Forty - four legislatures are meeting or will meet
7 soon. In order that the necessary State action may be taken promptly it is important that the Federal 8 Government proceed speedily.

9 The detailed report of the Committee sets forth a series of proposals that will appeal to the sound sense of the 10 American people. It has not attempted the impossible, nor has it failed to exercise sound caution and 11 consideration of all of the factors concerned: the national credit, the rights and responsibilities of States, the 12 capacity of industry to assume financial responsibilities and the fundamental necessity of proceeding in a 13 manner that will merit the enthusiastic support of citizens of all sorts.

14 It is overwhelmingly important to avoid any danger of permanently discrediting the sound and necessary policy
15 of Federal legislation for economic security by attempting to apply it on too ambitious a scale before actual 16 experience has provided guidance for the permanently safe direction of such efforts. The place of such a
17 fundamental in our future civilization is too precious to be jeopardized now by extravagant action. It is a sound
18 idea - a sound ideal. Most of the other advanced countries of the world have already adopted it and their 19 experience affords the knowledge that social insurance can be made a sound and workable project.

20 Three principles should be observed in legislation on this subject. First, the system adopted, except for the 21 money necessary to initiate it, should be self-sustaining in the sense that funds for the payment of insurance
22 benefits should not come from the proceeds of general taxation. Second, excepting in old-age insurance, actual 23 management should be left to the States subject to standards established by the Federal Government. Third,
24 sound financial management of the funds and the reserves, and protection of the credit structure of the Nation
25 should be assured by retaining Federal control over all funds through trustees in the Treasury of the United 26 States.

27 At this time, I recommend the following types of legislation looking to economic security:

28 1. Unemployment compensation.

30 3. Federal aid to dependent children through grants to States for the support of existing mothers' pension
31 systems and for services for the protection and care of homeless, neglected, dependent, and crippled children.

32 4. Additional Federal aid to State and local public-health agencies and the strengthening of the Federal Public
33 Health Service. I am not at this time recommending the adoption of so-called "health insurance," although 34 groups representing the medical profession are cooperating with the Federal Government in the further study 35 of the subject and definite progress is being made.

36 With respect to unemployment compensation, I have concluded that the most practical proposal is the levy of a
37 uniform Federal payroll tax, 90 percent of which should be allowed as an offset to employers contributing 38 under a compulsory State unemployment compensation act. The purpose of this is to afford a requirement of a
39 reasonably uniform character for all States cooperating with the Federal Government and to promote and 40 encourage the passage of unemployment compensation laws in the States. The 10 percent not thus offset should 41 be used to cover the costs of Federal and State administration of this broad system. Thus, States will largely 42 administer unemployment compensation, assisted and guided by the Federal Government. An unemployment
43 compensation system should be constructed in such a way as to afford every practicable aid and incentive
44 toward the larger purpose of employment stabilization. This can be helped by the intelligent planning of both 45 public and private employment. It also can be helped by correlating the system with public employment so that 46 a person who has exhausted his benefits may be eligible for some form of public work as is recommended in this 47 report. Moreover, in order to encourage the stabilization of private employment, Federal legislation should not 48 foreclose the States from establishing means for inducing industries to afford an even greater stabilization of 49 employment.

50 In the important field of security for our old people, it seems necessary to adopt three principles: First,
51 noncontributory old-age pensions for those who are now too old to build up their own insurance. It is, of 52 course, clear that for perhaps 30 years to come funds will have to be provided by the States and the Federal 53 Government to meet these pensions. Second, compulsory contributory annuities which in time will establish a
54 self-supporting system for those now young and for future generations. Third, voluntary contributory annuities
55 by which individual initiative can increase the annual amounts received in old age. It is proposed that the 56 Federal Government assume one-half of the cost of the old-age pension plan, which ought ultimately to be 57 supplanted by self-supporting annuity plans.

1 The amount necessary at this time for the initiation of unemployment compensation, old-age security, children's 2 aid, and the promotion of public health, as outlined in the report of the Committee on Economic Security, is 3 approximately $100,000,000.

4 The establishment of sound means toward a greater future economic security of the American people is dictated
5 by a prudent consideration of the hazards involved in our national life. No one can guarantee this country
6 against the dangers of future depressions but we can reduce these dangers. We can eliminate many of the 7 factors that cause economic depressions, and we can provide the means of mitigating their results. This plan for 8 economic security is at once a measure of prevention and a method of alleviation.

9 We pay now for the dreadful consequence of economic insecurity - and dearly. This plan presents a more
10 equitable and infinitely less expensive means of meeting these costs. We cannot afford to neglect the plain duty
11 before us. I strongly recommend action to attain the objectives sought in this report.

12 You can read this speech for yourself at the New Deal Network:

13 <http://newdeal.feri.org/index.htm>

14 A revolution was made when Social Security was enacted in 1935 and it radically changed our country. After remarkably 15 little public and Congressional debate, Franklin Delano Roosevelt signed the Social Security Act into law on August 14,
16 1935. FDR knew that the welfare state wouldn't end with Social Security. Many of his disappointed allies had wanted much
17 more. But FDR assured them this was just the beginning.¹⁵⁸

18 FDR said, on signing the bill into law, that Social Security "represents a cornerstone in a structure which is being built but 19 is by no means complete."¹⁵⁹ The federal government through programs such as Social Security would create its own
20 business cycle, it would "flatten out the peaks and valleys of deflation and inflation,"¹⁶⁰ Roosevelt promised. Social 21 Security was representative of national planning schemes – some of which had been tried during World War I – and which 22 became popular again with intellectuals. Many of them believed that the government could wage war on poverty; that, by 23 using the techniques of wartime planning so popular with progressives during World War I, the government could generate
24 and control the business cycle.¹⁶¹

25 Social Security was a Keynesian device to ensure that buying power would remain strong in times of high unemployment.
26 By Keynesian, I mean a kind of thinking that pre-dated Keynes by centuries, which held that injecting inflation into a weak
27 economy would work miracles. Keynes, in the 1920s, 30s and 40s, was merely one member of this inflationist school. But 28 his thought was influential in America in the 1930s. One of the founding fathers of Social Security has said that the 29 contribution of Keynes was not appreciated.¹⁶² Keynes' philosophy helped justify a massive welfare state.

30 The original Social Security package, for instance, was a lot more than so-called old age insurance. The program initially 31 contained 10 programs and included 11 titles. Besides, pensions, the federal government was initiating vocational 32 rehabilitation, unemployment insurance, aid to dependent children and public health programs, among others. Myriad 33 additional programs would follow over the years because of the initial triumph of Social Security. It would help bring about ¹⁵⁸ Although the Social Security system initially covered a relatively small part of the working force, FDR assured his allies it was just the beginning: "I see no reason why everybody in the United States should not be covered," FDR privately told Francis Perkins. "Cradle to the grave – from the cradle to the grave they ought to be in a social insurance system." See Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.'s The Coming of the New Deal, p308, (Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston, 1959).

¹⁵⁹ See Policymaking for Social Security, Martha Derthick, p5, (Villard Books, New York, 1991)

¹⁶¹ Some socialists said FDR was going in the direction of planning and economic nationalism. Said Stuart Chase: "National Planning and economic nationalism must go together or not at all. President Roosevelt has accepted the general philosophy of planning." He added that the nation could confidently move toward autarchy. Also see George Soule's comments in Walter Lippmann's The Good Society, p 91, (Grosset & Dunlap, New York, 1936). "It is nonsense to say that there is any physical impossibility of doing for peace purposes the sort of thing we did for war purposes."

¹⁶² Madam Secretary: Frances Perkins, by George Martin, p346, (Houghton Mifflin, Boston, 1976)

1 a signal change in American culture and government: The federal government would take on many new powers and
2 radically change our economy.¹⁶³

3 But, most important of all, Social Security changed our culture in ways the authors of the original Social Security Act may
4 or may not have realized: It would, among other things, also discourage savings, expand the state's reach into the family,
5 redistribute income in ways no one imagined (quite often from the working poor and the lower middle-class to the upper
6 middle-class because the latter group tended to have more political clout as exercised through organizations such as the 7 AARP) and create a huge unprecedented peacetime bureaucracy, a bureaucracy that frequently pushed for more expansion
8 under the guise of serving the people.¹⁶⁴

9 The program also had a much more profound effect on American life: It invented the concept of a passive retirement in 10 which individuals would stop working, stop making more than a few dollars a year, or what a Social Security advocate
11 called "pin money"¹⁶⁵. To make more than pin money would mean Social Security penalties, an idea added to the original 12 bill by the labor unions.

13 Social Security advocates implicitly convinced tens of millions of Americans that their golden years meant "taking it easy,"
14 withdrawing from the most challenging parts of their lives. That would free up millions of jobs, an important consideration
15 in the midst of the Great Depression, an economic calamity in which FDR's policies failed even after six years of huge
16 spending.¹⁶⁶ By 1940, an FDR historian would implicitly concede that the New Deal had failed to restore a strong
17 economy. "The America over which Roosevelt presided in 1940 was in its eleventh year of depression. No decline in 18 American history had been so deep, so lasting, so far reaching."¹⁶⁷ Clearly, America's recovery from the Great Depression
19 did not begin until the buildup for World War II and the war itself. That's when FDR discovered his affinity for a military
20 Keynesianism.¹⁶⁸

21 Many changes triggered by Social Security. The changes triggered debates over basic social and economic issues such as 22 personal responsibility vs. the general welfare, and who defines the nature of retirement, the individual or the government, 23 as well as who should control the retirement assets of millions of people.

24 "Why, then was America so far behind? The first reason was out of the cherished ideal of rugged 25 *individualism."*¹⁶⁹

26 6.4.3.2 FDR and the Birth of Social Security: Destroying Rugged Individuality

¹⁶⁵ Barbara Armstrong, executive director of the Committee on Economic Security (CES), which wrote the Social Security plan said that retirement would mean "that you've stopped working for pay." See The History of Retirement: The Meaning and Functioning of an American Institution, 1885-1978, by William Graebner, p185, (Yale University Press, New Haven, Conn., 1980)

¹⁶⁶ By 1938, in the midst of a brutal recession, it was clear to many of FDR's advisers that the New Deal was failing. One of his political advisers, vice president John Nance Garner said that "I don't think the Boss has any definite programs to meet the business. I don't think much of the spending program. You can't keep spending forever. Some day you have to meet the bills." See Jim Farley's Story: The Roosevelt Years, P138, (McGraw Hill, New York, 1948). Roosevelt also complained when Secretary of Commerce Dan Roper told him that the economy was slipping into recession. "Dan, you've got to stop issuing these Hooverish statements all the time." Ibid, p101.

¹⁶⁹ Social Security in America by William Lloyd Mitchell, p6, (Robert B. Luce, Washington, D.C., 1964)

1 Social Security has become the crown jewel of a welfare state, which is why its defenders are today so ardent in fighting
 2 any move to privatize any part of it. The welfare state will always be safe as long as Social Security survives. Social
 3 Security has continued to expand in good times and bad, under Democrats and Republicans, even though a few of the latter
 4 actually claimed that they would bring Social Security under control. Those who thought they would tame this huge
 5 program lost time and again. These politicians who once criticized Social Security, usually ended up praising it¹⁷⁰ or kept 6 their criticisms to themselves.¹⁷¹ And this was FDR's goal in designing the program: Insuring that no succeeding group of 7 politicians could ever undo his work.¹⁷²

8 Today those who would privatize or even reform Social Security¹⁷³ face a formidable task, a task as difficult as dismantling
 9 the military-industrial complex or selling off Amtrak. That's because decrepit government bureaucracies – as opposed to 10 rotten private bureaucracies – have the power to tax and to preserve their existence. And the first rule of any bureaucracy is 11 survival at any cost. The second rule is always try to expand.

12 The welfare state took much longer to take hold in the United States than in Europe, where socialism had a better name and 13 a longer tradition.

14 By the early 1930s, Germany had a Social Security program for nearly a half century. Britain had a government pension
 15 scheme since before the World War I, when the Liberal/Labour government of Herbert Henry Asquith in 1911¹⁷⁴ laid the 16 foundations of a welfare state that would be later carried out by the Labor and Conservative parties over the next two 17 generations. Germany under Bismarck had passed a Social Security plan as part of an alliance with Social Democrats.
 18 Bismarck was ready for socialism¹⁷⁵. Dozens of European countries had put Social Security schemes by the outbreak of 19 World War I.

20 But in America, there was a tradition of "rugged individualism" that resisted most forms of collectivism. Even labor leaders
 21 like Samuel Gompers,¹⁷⁶ who had called for many other government initiatives, opposed a mandatory social insurance
 22 program, a concept that stressed an insurance that was not for profit, but was run for the benefit of society. But Gompers
 23 was wary of that idea. To him, it smacked of German socialism. "Compulsory social insurance," he complained, "is in 24 essence undemocratic."¹⁷⁷ Foreshadowing the objections of those who would later complain that the government would 25 mismanage the assets of a program, Gompers wanted workers to depend on themselves, private institutions, their unions –
 26 anything but the government.

27 The opposition to social insurance was owing to an American individualist tradition whose adherents held that individuals,
 28 families and community groups should take care of people in old age, not the government. And, most importantly, it was a
 29 voluntaryist tradition that resisted compulsory government programs.¹⁷⁸

¹⁷¹ Any presidential candidate who proposed to tamper with Social Security was "a candidate for a frontal lobotomy," said Jack Kemp during the 1988 campaign. From Social Insecurity, by Dorcas Hardy, p16, (Villard Books, New York, 1991)

¹⁷⁸ "Voluntaryism, the right of citizens to define and pursue their goals, resulted in limited government and maximum liberty." See The Struggle for Social Security, 1900-1935, by Roy Lubove, p5 (University of Pittsburgh Press, 1986).

1 FDR, who was credited as the first major American politician to support a social security system, nevertheless had
 2 campaigned in 1932 in favor of limited government. He bitterly criticized Herbert Hoover's huge deficits. On the campaign
 3 trial he promised to roll back, not expand, the size of the federal government. "For three long years I have been going up
 4 and down this country preaching that government – federal government, state and local – costs too much. I shall not stop
 5 that preaching."¹⁷⁹

6 FDR gave not the slightest indication that was he committed to a massive expansion of the power of the federal 7 government. Later, as we will see, FDR would say that circumstances had changed. His supporters would argue that the 8 Great Depression, and the more radical social insurance proposals of men like Huey Long, Upton Sinclair and Frances 9 Townsend,¹⁸⁰ had led him to back this "moderate" program called Social Security.

10 Yet even before he took office, FDR was quietly committed to a social insurance program¹⁸¹ as part of a program of 11 counter-cyclical measures he believed would cure the problems of the business cycle. These initiatives were failures if one 12 is to measure by unemployment numbers and traditional economic indices¹⁸². They did not restore prosperity, FDR was told
 13 by advisers six years into the New Deal.¹⁸³

14 Social Security was a key part of his revolutionary corporatist economic policies. It was a revolution that shifted the 15 responsibility for income maintenance from the private to the public sector, from the family to the state and from voluntary
 16 organizations to public bureaucracies. And it was a revolution carried out by elite groups of welfare workers, Social
 17 Democrats and other who believed European socialism could be imported to the United States on a step-by-step basis.¹⁸⁴
 18 They believed in a "new liberalism." Classical liberalism would die in the United States in the 1930s through programs
 19 such as Social Security just as it had died in Britain some four decades before. A new liberalism celebrated the expanded
 20 powers of the federal government. The old American individualist tradition was distrustful of distant central governments 21 and the bureaucracies they spawned.

22 "Americans assumed that their country was unique in assigning to private voluntary institutions a wide range of 23 responsibilities which in other nations were relegated to governments or elite groups," writes one historian of Social
 24 Security.¹⁸⁵

25 Almost everyone, FDR critics as well as admirers, agree that Social Security was a watershed event in our history. FDR
 26 said of the legislation that, if it was the only bill passed in the 1935-36 congressional session, Congress would have 27 accomplished a lot.¹⁸⁶ Why was it so important to those such as FDR who scorned the individualist tradition? Social 28 Security was the centerpiece of a revolution that one historian has said meant that "big government, modern government"
 29 was here to stay.¹⁸⁷

¹⁸³ FDR conceded there were problems in talks with Farley but blamed a conspiracy against him: "I know that the present situation is the result of a concerted effort by big business and concentrated wealth to drive the market down and just to create a situation unfavorable to me." See Jim Farley's Story, p101.

¹⁸⁴ "The vast expansion of public assistance functions and expenditures beginning in the 1930s was superimposed upon a long tradition of disdain totally incongruous with the political and economic power assumed by the public welfare sector." See The Professional Altruist: The Emergence of Social Work as a Career, 1880-1930, p54, (New York, Atheneum, 1969)

1 When Social Security survived – and, in its earlier years, it was a dicey question if it would or not, requiring the most
 2 effective political skills that FDR and his allies could summon – Americans implicitly accepted the most essential part of a
 3 new social policy. Washington, not individuals, would now have huge powers over the individual citizen's retirement
 4 planning, unemployment insurance and welfare payments. When FDR signed the Social Security Act, the United States, for 5 the first time in her history, would have "a significant, permanent social welfare bureaucracy."¹⁸⁸

6 FDR assured his social democratic allies that the Social Security was just the beginning of an expanded role for the federal
 7 government. But it wasn't until toward the end of his life, in the Economic Bill of Rights speech that so "thrilled" his social 8 democratic supporters¹⁸⁹, that he was ready to publicly walk away from the campaign promises of 1932 and the American 9 individualist tradition.

10 Some four years after its creation, the structure of this landmark program was expanding. Some 12,000 employees would 11 be working in the Social Security administration, which would become bigger and bigger . Once in place, there were calls
 12 for sister bureaucracies. American Socialists were disappointed that more people were not included in the 1935 act (such as 13 servants and farm workers); that disability insurance wasn't initially covered, that health insurance had not been included.
 14 But many of those leftist critics, who had at the time claimed that it was too little, later would concede that Social Security's
 15 establishment, no matter how modest, opened the door for the government to do many other things.¹⁹⁰ All the measures left 16 out of the original bill would be included within 30 years.

17 That is why even many of those socialists who scorned FDR, who said that he was a bumbling savior of capitalism, could 18 still summon up some grudging praise for FDR. Socialism would be quietly achieved over generations as part of a mixed 19 economy that seemed, on the surface, to be a traditional laissez-faire American economy.

20 Social Security, whether it was called social insurance or government pensions, was the first vital step on the road to the 21 welfare state. How it finally happened in the United States, after decades of frustrating unsuccessful efforts by social 22 democrats and professional bureaucrats, is a fascinating story. FDR went around Congress, which was too unpredictable
 23 and whose review process might not have given him what he wanted. FDR found his own experts that he knew would give 24 him what he wanted, then would unveil a Social Security proposal that he expected to be adopted whole. Congress, 25 generally intimidated by the experts, went along with few objections.

26 This process, this masterful strategy of building a welfare state in a country with a historic commitment to individualism,
 27 will be discussed in the next report.

28 6.4.4 1937: FDR's Stacking of the Supreme Court

29 President Franklin D. Roosevelt, during his long 12-year tenure in office in the 1930's, tried to ram his socialist programs
 30 down our throat. To name a few of these programs he tried to institute:

- 31 1. Social Security (1935).
- 32 2. Outlawing of the holding of gold by private individuals and forcing citizens to use paper currency.
- 33 3. Direct income taxes on individuals. These taxes were struck down by the following Supreme Court rulings:
 - 34 3.1. 1920: Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920) (struck down direct income taxes on federal judges).
 - 35 3.2. 1922: Bailey v. Drexel Furniture Co., 259 U.S. 20 (1922). The Supreme Court ruled that a federal income tax 36 on child labor was unconstitutional.
 - 37 3.3. 1924: Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924) (ruled that direct taxes on individuals cannot be sustained based on 38 income).

¹⁹⁰ One Democrat who noticed the transformation was FDR's fellow Democrat Al Smith. By the mid 1930s he was complaining that the "Brain Trusters caught the Socialists swimming and ran away with their clothes." See Al Smith, Hero of the Cities, by Matthew and Hannah Josephson, p459, (Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston, 1969). That's a good comparison given that the American Socialist Party of 1928 had called for a mandatory government pension system.

- 1 3.4. 1938: *Hassett v. Welch, 303 U.S. 303 (1938). The Supreme Court ruled that all doubts about the construction of 2 tax statutes, codes, and laws should be resolved in favor of taxpayers, not the government.
 3 4. Social security numbers.
 4 5. Railroad retirement (struck down in 1935 in the Supreme Court Case of Railroad Retirement Board v. Alton Railroad
 5 Co., 295 U.S. 330 (1935)).

6 Because of these rulings against his socialist programs, FDR was feeling thwarted by the Supreme Court. Therefore, on 7 March 9, 1937, he announced his intention via radio to the entire country that he was going to “stack” the Supreme Court
 8 (see <http://www.hpol.org/fdr/chat/>). This was called “the court packing plan”. The Supreme court originally had 6 justices,
 9 and he doubled its size by adding several of his own “cronies” who would uphold and defend his socialist programs,
 10 including Social Security and the Victory Tax. He also proposed to replace all the justices over 70, which included 5 of the 11 6 justices then in office. Here are some of FDR’s own words, given during a radio address on March 9, 1937:

12 “But since the rise of the modern movement for social and economic progress through legislation, the Court
 13 has more and more often and more and more boldly asserted a power to veto laws passed by the Congress and 14 by state legislatures in complete disregard of this original limitation which I have just read.

15 [...]

16 The Court in addition to the proper use of its judicial functions has improperly set itself up as a third house of 17 the Congress - a super-legislature, as one of the justices has called it - reading into the Constitution words and 18 implications which are not there, and which were never intended to be there.

19 We have, therefore, reached the point as a nation where we must take action to save the Constitution from the 20 Court and the Court from itself. We must find a way to take an appeal from the Supreme Court to the 21 Constitution itself. We want a Supreme Court which will do justice under the Constitution and not over it. In 22 our courts we want a government of laws and not of men.

23 [...]

24 What is my proposal? It is simply this: whenever a judge or justice of any federal court has reached the age of 25 seventy and does not avail himself of the opportunity to retire on a pension, a new member shall be appointed
 26 by the president then in office, with the approval, as required by the Constitution, of the Senate of the United
 27 States.

28 That plan has two chief purposes. By bringing into the judicial system a steady and continuing stream of new 29 and younger blood, I hope, first, to make the administration of all federal justice, from the bottom to the top,
 30 speedier and, therefore, less costly; secondly, to bring to the decision of social and economic problems younger
 31 men who have had personal experience and contact with modern facts and circumstances under which average
 32 men have to live and work. This plan will save our national Constitution from hardening of the judicial arteries.

33 [...]

34 Those opposing this plan have sought to arouse prejudice and fear by crying that I am seeking to “pack” the 35 Supreme Court and that a baneful precedent will be established.

36 What do they mean by the words “packing the Supreme Court?” Let me answer this question with a bluntness
 37 that will end all honest misunderstanding of my purposes.

38 If by that phrase “packing the Court” it is charged that I wish to place on the bench spineless puppets who 39 would disregard the law and would decide specific cases as I wished them to be decided, I make this answer:
 40 that no president fit for his office would appoint, and no Senate of honorable men fit for their office would 41 confirm, that kind of appointees to the Supreme Court.

42 [...]

43 But if by that phrase the charge is made that I would appoint and the Senate would confirm justices worthy to 44 sit beside present members of the Court, who understand modern conditions, that I will appoint justices who
 45 will not undertake to override the judgment of the Congress on legislative policy, that I will appoint justices 46 who will act as justices and not as legislators - if the appointment of such justices can be called “packing the 47 Courts,” then I say that I and with me the vast majority of the American people favor doing just that thing - 48 now.

1 Is it a dangerous precedent for the Congress to change the number of the justices? The Congress has always
 2 had, and will have, that power. The number of justices has been changed several times before, in the 3 administrations of John Adams and Thomas Jefferson - both of them signers of the Declaration of Independence

5 [...]

6 Like all lawyers, like all Americans, I regret the necessity of this controversy. But the welfare of the United
 7 States, and indeed of the Constitution itself, is what we all must think about first. Our difficulty with the Court
 8 today rises not from the Court as an institution but from human beings within it. But we cannot yield our 9 constitutional destiny to the personal judgment of a few men who, being fearful of the future, would deny us the 10 necessary means of dealing with the present.

11 Could it be any clearer, after reading this and looking at the history of the Supreme Court rulings at that time following his 12 “packing plan” that he was trying to stack the deck and ramrod his socialist programs down our throats?

13 Below is what the U.S. Senate Report 711 said about the packing plan, which they had a very dim view of:

16 6.4.5 1943: FDR's Executive Order 9397: Bye-Bye Privacy and Fourth Amendment!

17 Below is a presidential Executive Order issued by our socialist President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, in which the 18 infamous Social Security Number became the standard number for monitoring all transactions of every citizen. This was 19 the day we lost our privacy and gutted the Fourth Amendment. This infamous day marked the start of socialism in America
 20 and it was accomplished in a time of national crisis (World War II) and in the name of the public “good”.

21 EXECUTIVE ORDER 9397

22 WHEREAS certain Federal agencies from time to time require in the administration of their activities a system
 23 of numerical identification of accounts of individual persons; and

24 WHEREAS some seventy million persons have heretofore been assigned account numbers pursuant to the 25 Social Security Act; and

26 WHEREAS a large percentage of Federal employees have already been assigned account numbers pursuant to 27 the Social Security Act; and

28 WHEREAS it is desirable in the interest of economy and orderly administration that the Federal Government 29 move towards the use of a single unduplicated numerical identification system of accounts and avoid the 30 unnecessary establishment of additional systems:

31 NOW THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States, it is hereby 32 ordered as follows:

33 1. Hereafter any Federal department establishment, or agency shall, whenever the head thereof finds it
 34 advisable to establish a new system of permanent account numbers pertaining to individual persons, utilize
 35 exclusively the Social Security Act account numbers assigned pursuant to Title 26, section 402.502 of the 1940
 36 Supplement to the Code of Federal Regulations and pursuant to paragraph 2 of this order.

37 2. The Social Security Board shall provide for the assignment of an account number to each person who is 38 required by any Federal agency to have such a number but who has not previously been assigned such number
 39 by the Board. The Board may accomplish this purpose by

40 (a) assigning such numbers to individual persons,

41 (b) assigning blocks of numbers to Federal agencies for reassignment to individual persons, or

42 (c) making such other arrangements for the assignment of numbers as it may deem appropriate.

1 3. The Social Security Board shall furnish, upon request of any Federal agency utilizing the numerical 2 identification system of accounts provided for in this order, the account number pertaining to any person with 3 whom such agency has an account or the name and other identifying data pertaining to any account number of 4 any such person.

5 4. The Social Security Board and each Federal agency shall maintain the confidential character of information
 6 relating to individual persons obtained pursuant to the provisions of this order.

7 5. There shall be transferred to the Social Security Board, from time to time, such amounts as the Director of 8 the Bureau of the Budget shall determine to be required for reimbursement by any Federal agency for the 9 services rendered by the Board pursuant to the provisions of this order.

10 6. This order shall be published in the Federal Register.

18 6.5 Congressional Cover-Ups, Scandals, and Tax Code Obfuscation

19 "I, _____, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States
 20 against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this
 21 obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; and that I will well and faithfully
 22 discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter. So help me God."
 23 [Congressional Oath of Office]
 24 _____

25 "Suppose you were an idiot, and suppose you were in Congress, But I repeat myself."
 26 [Mark Twain]
 27 _____

28 "If 'pro' is the opposite of 'con', a wise man once said, then 'progress' must be the antonym of 'Congress'."
 29 _____

30 Late one night in the capitol city a mugger wearing a ski mask jumped into the path of a well-dressed man and 31 stuck a gun in his ribs. "Give me your money!" he demanded.

33 "In that case," replied the robber, "give me MY money!"

34 This section shall show conclusively the history of increasing obfuscation, confusion, and deception of our income tax laws
 35 from 1921 to the present. We will show that Congress has, with each successive revision of the U.S. Code and the Code of 36 Federal Regulations, deliberately tried to make the law more confusing and deceptive by:

- 37 1. Removing focus of the law on "sources" or "taxable activities", by removing pointers to legitimate "sources" whenever 38 discussing income in the Internal Revenue Code. This can lead to the mistaken assumption by the Citizen that all 39 sources of income are taxable instead of just specific sources. But we know that Congress doesn't have the authority to 40 tax people in China, so wherever there is an income, there must be an associated source.
- 41 2. Remove references to the fact that "foreign corporations" and only withholding agents for "nonresident aliens" are 42 liable for income taxes and replace "foreigners" with "taxpayers". Thus, if American citizens (most of whom are NOT 43 "U.S. citizens") can erroneously be convinced that they are "taxpayers", then they will think that the section applies to 44 them.
- 45 3. Add more indirection by using new terms whose definition is not referred to where they are used. These terms include:

- 1 3.1. "items of income"
- 2 3.2. "statutory groupings"
- 3 3.3. "operative sections"
- 4 4. Adding double negatives (in 26 CFR §1.861-8T, for instance) instead of just referring to the positive of what can and
- 5 cannot be taxed.
- 6 5. Changing the definitions of certain words to make them appear universal and yet in actuality they aren't. For instance,
- 7 below are some confusing words in the tax code and their REAL definitions:
- 8 5.1. "Employer": The Federal government as an employer of federal workers. There are repeated references to how
- 9 employers are liable for taxes they don't withhold but little is said about the fact that the only people by the code
- 10 who are liable for the deductions are Federal government agencies!
- 11 5.2. "Taxpayer": A nonresident alien domiciled in the U.S. or a citizen living overseas.
- 12 5.3. "The States": The District of Columbia and all federal States but not one of the Union states or several states.
- 13 5.4. "trade or business in the United States": functions involving the holding of public office with the United States
- 14 government (e.g. congressional office or presidential appointment).

15 We will argue that such an obfuscating evolution of the tax code as directed by lawyers (does anyone like lawyers?) in 16 Congress would point to the fact that there is a conspiracy by the lawyers in Congress to defraud the citizens (notice we 17 didn't say "taxpayers") illegally of their come by abusing the law and the tax code. This also points to the fact that we need 18 better configuration management of the laws so that there is traceability for each modification of the law to a specific
 19 individual in Congress so that person can be prosecuted (and defamed and fired from office) appropriately when they either
 20 demonstrate a conflict of interest or try to obfuscate the code. We believe that a petition (under the First Amendment) and 21 conviction of the government for the following crimes is inevitable based on current law and that it is only a matter of time
 22 before this issue ends up in front of the Supreme Court. Below are just a few of the crimes you will likely see the IRS and 23 members of Congress convicted of based on the evidence presented here:

- 24 1. "Conspiracy against rights" (18 U.S.C. §241).
- 25 2. "Federally protected rights being violated" (18 U.S.C. §245).
- 26 3. "Illegally taking more money than is required by law" (26 U.S.C. §7214).
- 27 4. "Illegal extortion of taxes" (18 U.S.C. §872).
- 28 5. "Receiving the proceeds of extortion" (18 U.S.C. §880).
- 29 6. "Mailing threatening communications" (18 U.S.C. §876).
- 30 7. "Blackmail" (18 U.S.C. §873).
- 31 8. "Retaliating against a witness, victim, or an informant" (18 U.S.C. §1513).
- 32 9. "False writings" (18 U.S.C. §1018).
- 33 10. "Taking of property that is not based on law" (26 CFR §601.106(f)(1)
- 34 11. "Retaliating against or harassing taxpayer" (Section 1203, IRS Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998).
- 35 12. "Unauthorized collection actions" (26 U.S.C. §7433).
- 36 13. "Fraud" (18 U.S.C. §1018).
- 37 14. "Fraud and swindling" (18 U.S.C. §1341).
- 38 15. "Sale or receipt of stolen goods" (18 U.S.C. §2315).
- 39 16. Running of a "continuing financial crimes enterprise" (18 U.S.C. §225).

41 6.5.1 No taxation without representation!

42 No taxation without representation!

43 This was one of the rallying cries before the American revolution. We have all heard it in high school and read it in the 44 history books, and perhaps felt some sense of pride in it. But do we REALLY know what it means and if we still have it?
 45 The answer is, unfortunately, probably not. Because the Constitution SPECIFICALLY STATES that if anyone imposes a 46 tax and tries to collect it, it must be Congress!!

47 This is what REPRESENTATION with TAXATION means. If you don't like a tax, you can vote against the people who 48 passed it and who enforce it. When was the last time you voted for an agent of the Internal Revenue Service? Instead, our 49 corrupt Congress as created a new executive agency, given it no delegated authority in the Internal Revenue Code, allowed

1 it to write its own regulations to enforce the tax (a conflict of interest, I might add) and then hypocritically and habitually
2 complained that it has overstepped its bounds, as if they had no responsibility for its existence! Here is the way Irwin
3 Schiff insightfully describes this situation:

4 The government has done a masterful job at subterfuge. The same Congress that created the IRS is the one that
5 complains about it. They complain about it like it is some evil and independent agency of the federal 6 government with a life of its own and as though they have no control over it because it is outside the legislative
7 branch, but it was created through the legislation of Congress in 26 U.S.C. §7805! Congress complaining
8 about the abuses of the IRS is like people saying about me:

9 “You know Irwin Schiff is a really nice guy, but Oh.....HIS FIST. It really hurts and its such an evil
10 thing when it goes around hitting people all the time!”

11 Don't let your Congressman suck you into his pity party! Tell him to get off his ass and fix the lawless behavior
12 of the IRS!

13 Congress and the Courts have, by allowing the current situation with the IRS to exist, failed to live up to their oath of office
14 to support and defend the Constitution, and thereby abdicated their powers to another branch of government. Congress has 15 abdicated their responsibility to collect taxes by delegating it to another branch of the government: The Department of the 16 Treasury and the IRS are in the EXECUTIVE BRANCH! The Constitution does not allow the Congress to delegate or 17 abdicate their duty to collect taxes! Punish the bastards by penalizing them for 2/3 of their salary until they fix this 18 problem! Or better yet, cancel their retirement until they fix it. If we had a national referendum process, this would have 19 happened hundreds of years ago!

20 “The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive and judiciary, in the same hands ... may justly be 21 pronounced the very definition of tyranny.” - James Madison (1751-1863)

22 “Taxation WITH representation ain't so hot either.” -- Gerald Barzan

23 6.5.2 The Corruption of Our Tax System by the Courts and the Congress: Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)

24 Recall that the Supreme Court in Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) fracturing the United States into the equivalent
25 of two countries: One with constitutional protections in the 50 union states, and the other one in the federal zone with no
26 constitutional protections. We describe these two countries as:

27 “One nation [the 50 union states] under God. The other nation [the federal zone] under fraud.”

28 In discussing the supreme Court case of Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), Judge Harlan, in the most eloquently
29 expressed dissenting opinion, supported equal Constitutional protections for all territories and possessions of the United 30 States, in the same manner that the 50 union states are protected. Following are excerpts from that opinion, along with 31 Harlan's accurate predictions of the consequences of that decision:

32 “The idea prevails with some, indeed it has found expression in arguments at the bar, that we have in this 33 country substantially two national governments; one to be maintained under the Constitution, with all of its 34 restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside the independently of that instrument, by exercising
35 such powers [of absolutism] as other nations of the earth are accustomed to.. I take leave to say that, if the 36 principles thus announced should ever receive the sanction of a majority of this court, a radical and
37 mischievous change in our system of government will result. We will, in that event, pass from the era of 38 constitutional liberty guarded and protected by a written constitution into an era of legislative absolutism.. It
39 will be an evil day for American liberty if the theory of a government outside the supreme law of the land finds
40 lodgment in our constitutional jurisprudence. No higher duty rests upon this court than to exert its full 41 authority to prevent all violation of the principles of the Constitution.”
42 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

43 Judge Harlan's extremely prudent advice was ignored and his prediction of a “radical and mischievous change in our 44 system” because of this ruling was right on target! This dual United States ruling is the root of the evil of the Internal 45 Revenue Service, the Federal Reserve System, with its subsequent robbery of our gold and silver, and the many other unjust
46 federal agencies that have abused American Right, confiscated their property, and strangled them with red-tape. A
47 government established to protect the happiness of American people has become the root of their misery and the worst
48 abusers of the Rights it was established to protect! Because of this ruling, Congress has been able to circumvent the 49 Constitution for the united States of America, as follows:

1. The United States Government legally creates legislation, which may be unconstitutional for the 50 union states, under the authority and guise of legislating for the citizens and residents of the territories and possessions “belonging to” the United States, over which the United States has exclusive authority.
2. Such federal legislation is made applicable only to the citizens born and residing in Territories, possessions, instrumentalities and enclaves under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States. These “individuals” are called “U.S. citizens” or “citizens of the United states, subject to its jurisdiction” in such legislation. The average American, of course, believes he or she is such a citizen (because it was never disclosed to them that our Congress legislates for two different types of citizens). Because that American has respect for the law, he or she voluntarily consents to obey this legislation that is contrary to the Constitution.

6.5.3 The Anti-Injunction Act statute, 26 U.S.C. §7421

This statute states:

Sec. 7421. Prohibition of suits to restrain assessment or collection

(a) Tax

Except as provided in sections 6015(e), 6212(a) and (c), 6213(a), 6225(b), 6246(b), 6331(i), 6672(b), 6694(c), and 7426(a) and (b)(1), 7429(b), and 7436, no suit for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection of any tax shall be maintained in any court by any person, whether or not such person is the person against whom such tax was assessed.

(b) Liability of transferee or fiduciary

No suit shall be maintained in any court for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection (pursuant to the provisions of chapter 71) of -

(1) the amount of the liability, at law or in equity, of a transferee of property of a taxpayer in respect of any internal revenue tax, or

(2) the amount of the liability of a fiduciary under section 3713(b) of title 31, United States Code [1] in respect of any such tax.

The problem with this statute is that it is also commonly used as an excuse by our federal courts to NOT stop illegal assessment and collection of taxes for the government, which means that the IRS can act lawlessly and violate due process of Americans without a court order and cannot be restrained from illegally assessing and collecting the tax. The only recourse in any court above Tax Court is to pay the illegally assessed or collected tax and then sue the federal government. By that time, the plundered Citizen usually has so little property and cash left that he can't afford to defend his rights and an expensive lawyer will try to victimize and extort unreasonable fees from him to get him out of the predicament that this unconstitutional law put him in to begin with.

If you would like to know what the federal courts think about the Anti-Injunction Act, read the following cases:

- Willits v. Richardson, 497 F.2d 240, 5th Circuit, (1974)
- Laing v. U.S., 423 U.S. 161 \(1976\): Upheld the Anti-Injunction Act.
- Enochs v. Williams Packing, 370 U.S. 1 \(1961\): Upheld the Anti-Injunction Act.

The state of California has enacted two laws that are similar to the Federal Anti-Injunction Act as follows:

- California Constitution: Section 32.

No legal or equitable process shall issue in any proceeding in any court against this State or any officer thereof to prevent or enjoin the collection of any tax. After payment of a tax claimed to be illegal, an action may be maintained to recover the tax paid, with interest, in such a manner as may be provided by the Legislature. [New section adopted November 5, 1974].

- California Revenue and Taxation Code, Section 19081: Legal or equitable processes to enjoin assessment or collection of tax prohibited; Exception in residence cases.

No injunction or writ of mandate or other legal or equitable process shall issue in any suit, action, or proceeding in any court against this State or against any officer of this State to prevent or enjoin the assessment or collection of any tax under this part; provided, however, that any individual after protesting a notice or notices of deficiency assessment issues because of his alleged residence in this State and after appealing from the action of the Franchise Tax Board to the State Board of Equalization becomes final commence an action, on the grounds set forth in his protest, in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, in the County of Los Angeles or in the City and County of San Francisco against the Franchise Tax Board to determine the fact of his residence in this State during the year or years set forth in the notice or notices of deficiency assessment. No tax under this part based solely upon the residence of such an individual shall be collected from such individual until 60 days after the action of the State Board of Equalization becomes final and, if he commences an action pursuant to this section, during the pendency of such action, other than by way of or under the jeopardy assessment provisions of this part.

The thing to notice about the California version of the Anti-Injunction Act is the use of the term “this State” repeatedly throughout both the California Constitution and R&TC §19081. The important thing to remember is the meaning of the term “this State”, which means federal enclaves within California. Recall that we said in section 5.2.6 that “State” is really just the federal enclaves within California as per California Revenue and Taxation Code Section 17018:

 [which don't include the 50 sovereign states but do include federal areas within those states]

Also recall that California Revenue and Taxation Code section 6017 further defines the term “this State” explicitly to mean:

6017. "In this State" or "in the State" means within the exterior [outside] limits of the [Sovereign] state of California and includes [only] all territory within these limits owned by or ceded to the United States

So what they are saying here is that California’s version of the Anti-Injunction act only applies in federal enclaves that are within California.

With respect to the comments in this section, the provisions of the Anti-Injunction Act may be easily circumvented if you know what you are doing. We describe how to do this in section 1.4.1 of the following:

6.5.4 Why the Lawyers in Congress Just Love the Tax Code

"All the Congress, all the accountants and tax lawyers, all the judges, and a convention of wizards all cannot tell for sure what the income tax law says." -- Walter B. Wriston

Merriam Webster's New International Dictionary (unabridged, 2d ed.), defines the term "sentence" as follows:

"sentence: 5. A series of connected words extending from one period or full stop to another. See sense 8, below."

"8. Gram. According to the degrees of complication in their structure, sentences are described as simple, complex, compound, and compound-complex."

1 A full, completed sentence ends with a period. The entire text of section 3121(b) of the federal Internal Revenue Code
2 (IRC) contains only two completed sentences that end with a period. Printed below is the full text of section 3121(b)of the 3 IRC. Inspection of the 1994, CCH Incorporated edition (volume 2) of the IRC reveals that the entire text of section 3121(b)
4 required five pages to print in size 10 font. (This does not include the five additional pages that reference the "amendments"
5 to section 3121(b).) A computer count of the entire text of section 3121(b) totaled some 19,098 characters, comprising
6 some 3,834 words. The first completed sentence alone contained 18,880 characters or 3,788 words. According to Merriam
7 Webster's ranking of the various degrees of complication that a sentence may take, those 3,788 words must surely classify
8 that first sentence in section 3121(b) as a compound-complex sentence.

9 Below is printed the entire text of section 3121(b) comprised of 3,834 words which, properly and grammatically speaking,
10 comprise only two completed sentences. Who said you can't have fun with the tax code!

11 "(b) Employment For purposes of this chapter, the term "employment" means any service, of whatever nature,
12 performed (A) by an employee for the person employing him, irrespective of the citizenship or residence of 13 either, (i) within the United States, or (ii) on or in connection with an American vessel or American aircraft

38 vessel, or on or in connection with an aircraft not an American aircraft, if (A) the individual is employed on and 39 in connection with such vessel or aircraft, when outside the United States and (B)(i) such individual is not a
40 citizen of the United States or (ii) the employer is not an American employer; (5) service performed in the 41 employ of the United States or any instrumentality of the United States, if such service - (A) would be excluded
42 from the term "employment" for purposes of this title if the provisions of paragraphs (5) and (6) of this
43 subsection as in effect in January 1983 had remained in effect, and (B) is performed by an individual who - (i)
44 has been continuously performing service described in subparagraph (A) since December 31, 1983, and for 45 purposes of this clause - (I) if an individual performing service described in subparagraph (A) returns to the 46 performance of such service after being separated therefrom for a period of less than 366 consecutive days,
47 regardless of whether the period began before, on, or after December 31, 1983, then such service shall be
48 considered continuous, (II) if an individual performing service described in subparagraph (A) returns to the 49 performance of such service after being detailed or transferred to an international organization as described
50 under section 3343 of subchapter III of chapter 33 of title 5, United States Code, or under section 3581 of 51 chapter 35 of such title, then the service performed for that organization shall be considered service described

65 service as an employee) under another retirement system established by a law of the United States for 66 employees of the Federal Government (other than for members of the uniformed service); except that this paragraph shall not apply with respect to any such service performed on or after any date on which such individual performs - (C) service performed as the President or Vice President of the United States, (D) service performed - (i) in a position placed in the Executive Schedule under sections 5312 through 5317 of title 5, United States Code, (ii) as a noncareer appointee in the Senior Executive Service or a noncareer member of the Senior Foreign Service, or (iii) in a position to which the individual is appointed by the President (or his designee) or the Vice President under section 105(a)(1), 106(a)(1), or 107 (a)(1) or (b)(1) of title 3, United States Code, if the maximum rate of basic pay for such position is at or above the rate for level V of the Executive Schedule, (E) service performed as the Chief Justice of the United States, an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, a judge of a United States court of appeals, a judge of a United States district court (including the district court of a territory), a judge of the United States Court of Federal Claims, a judge of the United States Court of International Trade, a judge of the United States Tax Court, a United States magistrate, or a referee in bankruptcy or United States bankruptcy judge, (F) service performed as a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner of or to the Congress, (G) any other service in the legislative branch of the Federal Government if such service - (i) is performed by an individual who was not subject to subchapter III of chapter 83 of title 5, United States Code, or to another retirement system established by a law of the United States for employees of the Federal Government (other than for members of the uniformed services), on December 31, 1983, or (ii) is performed by an individual who has, at any time after December 31, 1983, received a lump-sum payment under section 8342(a) of title 5, United States Code, or under the corresponding provision of the law establishing the other retirement system described in clause (i), or (iii) is performed by an individual after such individual has otherwise ceased to be subject to subchapter III of chapter 83 of title 5, United States Code (without having an application pending for coverage under such subchapter), while performing service in the legislative branch (determined without regard to the provisions of subparagraph (B) relating to continuity of employment), for any period of time after December 31, 1983, and for purposes of this subparagraph (G) an individual is subject to such subchapter III or to any such other retirement system at any time only if (a) such individual's pay is subject to deductions, contributions, or similar payments (concurrent with the service being performed at that time) under section 8334(a) of such title 5 or the corresponding provision of the law establishing such other system, or (in a case to which section 8332(k)(1) of such title applies) such individual is making payments of amounts equivalent to such deductions, contributions, or similar payments while on leave without pay, or (b) such individual is receiving an annuity from the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund, or is receiving benefits (for service as an employee) under another retirement system established by a law of the United States for employees of the Federal Government (other than for members of the uniformed services), or (H) service performed by an individual - (i) on or after the effective date of an election by such individual, under section 301 of the Federal Employees' Retirement System Act of 1986, section 307 of the Central Intelligence Agency Retirement Act (50 U.S.C. 2157), or the Federal Employees' Retirement System Open Enrollment Act of 1997 to become subject to the Federal Employees' Retirement System provided in chapter 84 of title 5, United States Code, or (ii) on or after the effective date of an election by such individual, under regulations issued under section 860 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, to become subject to the Foreign Service Pension System provided in subchapter II of chapter 8 of title I of such Act; (6) service performed in the employ of the United States or any instrumentality of the United States if such service is performed - (A) in a penal institution of the United States by an inmate thereof; (B) by any individual as an employee included under section 5351(2) of title 5, United States Code (relating to certain interns, student nurses, and other student employees of hospitals of the Federal Government), other than as a medical or dental intern or a medical or dental resident in training; or (C) by any individual as an employee serving on a temporary basis in case of fire, storm, earthquake, flood, or other similar emergency; (7) service performed in the employ of a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing which is wholly owned thereby, except that this paragraph shall not apply in the case of - (A) service which, under subsection (j), constitutes covered transportation service, (B) service in the employ of the Government of Guam or the Government of American Samoa or any political subdivision thereof, or of any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing which is wholly owned thereby, performed by an officer or employee thereof (including a member of the legislature of any such Government or political subdivision), and, for purposes of this title with respect to the taxes imposed by this chapter - (i) any person whose service as such an officer or employee is not covered by a retirement system established by a law of the United States shall not, with respect to such service, be regarded as an employee of the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof, and (ii) the remuneration for service described in clause (i) (including fees paid to a public official) shall be deemed to have been paid by the Government of Guam or the Government of American Samoa or by a political subdivision thereof or an instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing which is wholly owned thereby, whichever is appropriate, (C) service performed in the employ of the District of Columbia or any instrumentality which is wholly owned thereby, if such service is not covered by a retirement system established by a law of the United States (other than the Federal Employees Retirement System provided in chapter 84 of title 5, United States Code); except that the provisions of this subparagraph shall not be applicable to service performed - (i) in a hospital or penal institution by a patient or inmate thereof; (ii) by any individual as an employee included under section 5351(2) of title 5, United States Code (relating to certain interns, student nurses, and other student employees of hospitals of the District of Columbia Government), other than as a medical or dental intern or as a medical or dental resident in training; (iii) by any individual as an employee serving on a temporary basis in case of fire, storm, snow, earthquake, flood or other similar emergency; or (iv) by a member of a board, committee, or council of the District of Columbia, paid on a per diem, meeting, or other fee basis, (D) service performed in the employ of the Government of Guam (or any instrumentality which is wholly owned by such Government) by an employee properly classified as a temporary or intermittent employee, if such service is not covered by a retirement system established by a law of Guam; except that (i) the provisions of this subparagraph shall not be applicable to services performed by an elected official or a member of the legislature or in a hospital or penal institution by a patient or inmate thereof, and (ii) for purposes of this subparagraph, clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (B) shall apply, (E) service included under

1 an agreement entered into pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act, or (F) service in the employ of a
 2 State (other than the District of Columbia, Guam, or American Samoa), of any political subdivision thereof, or 3 of any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing which is wholly owned thereby, by an individual who
 4 is not a member of a retirement system of such State, political subdivision, or instrumentality, except that the 5 provisions of this subparagraph shall not be applicable to service performed - (i) by an individual who is 6 employed to relieve such individual from unemployment; (ii) in a hospital, home, or other institution by a
 7 patient or inmate thereof; (iii) by any individual as an employee serving on a temporary basis in case of fire,
 8 storm, snow, earthquake, flood, or other similar emergency; (iv) by an election official or election worker if the 9 remuneration paid in a calendar year for such service is less than $1,000 with respect to service performed
 10 during any calendar year commencing on or after January 1, 1995, ending on or before December 31, 1999,
 11 and the adjusted amount determined under section 218(c)(8)(B) of the Social Security Act for any calendar year
 12 commencing on or after January 1, 2000, with respect to service performed during such calendar year; or (v)
 13 by an employee in a position compensated solely on a fee basis which is treated pursuant to section
 14 1402(c)(2)(E) as a trade or business for purposes of inclusion of such fees in net earnings from self-
 15 employment; for purposes of this subparagraph, except as provided in regulations prescribed by the Secretary,
 16 the term "retirement system" has the meaning given such term by section 218(b)(4) of the Social Security Act;
 17 (8)(A) service performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the exercise of 18 his ministry or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order, except that this
 19 subparagraph shall not apply to service performed by a member of such an order in the exercise of such duties, 20 if an election of coverage under subsection (r) is in effect with respect to such order, or with respect to the 21 autonomous subdivision thereof to which such member belongs; (B) service performed in the employ of a
 22 church or qualified church-controlled organization if such church or organization has in effect an election
 23 under subsection (w), other than service in an unrelated trade or business (within the meaning of section 24 513(a)); (9) service performed by an individual as an employee or employee representative as defined in section
 25 3231; (10) service performed in the employ of - (A) a school, college, or university, or (B) an organization
 26 described in section 509(a)(3) if the organization is organized, and at all times thereafter is operated,
 27 exclusively for the benefit of, to perform the functions of, or to carry out the purposes of a school, college, or 28 university and is operated, supervised, or controlled by or in connection with such school, college, or 29 university, unless it is a school, college, or university of a State or a political subdivision thereof and the 30 services performed in its employ by a student referred to in section 218(c)(5) of the Social Security Act are 31 covered under the agreement between the Commissioner of Social Security and such State entered into pursuant 32 to section 218 of such Act; if such service is performed by a student who is enrolled and regularly attending
 33 classes at such school, college, or university; (11) service performed in the employ of a foreign government
 34 (including service as a consular or other officer or employee or a nondiplomatic representative); (12) service
 35 performed in the employ of an instrumentality wholly owned by a foreign government - (A) if the service is of a
 36 character similar to that performed in foreign countries by employees of the United States Government or of an 37 instrumentality thereof; and (B) if the Secretary of State shall certify to the Secretary of the Treasury that the 38 foreign government, with respect to whose instrumentality and employees thereof exemption is claimed, grants 39 an equivalent exemption with respect to similar service performed in the foreign country by employees of the 40 United States Government and of instrumentalities thereof; (13) service performed as a student nurse in the 41 employ of a hospital or a nurses' training school by an individual who is enrolled and is regularly attending
 42 classes in a nurses' training school chartered or approved pursuant to State law; (14)(A) service performed by 43 an individual under the age of 18 in the delivery or distribution of newspapers or shopping news, not including 44 delivery or distribution to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution; (B) service performed by an 45 individual in, and at the time of, the sale of newspapers or magazines to ultimate consumers, under an 46 arrangement under which the newspapers or magazines are to be sold by him at a fixed price, his compensation
 47 being based on the retention of the excess of such price over the amount at which the newspapers or magazines
 48 are charged to him, whether or not he is guaranteed a minimum amount of compensation for such service, or is 49 entitled to be credited with the unsold newspapers or magazines turned back; (15) service performed in the 50 employ of an international organization, except service which constitutes "employment" under subsection (y);
 51 (16) service performed by an individual under an arrangement with the owner or tenant of land pursuant to 52 which - (A) such individual undertakes to produce agricultural or horticultural commodities (including 53 livestock, bees, poultry, and fur-bearing animals and wildlife) on such land, (B) the agricultural or horticultural 54 commodities produced by such individual, or the proceeds therefrom, are to be divided between such individual
 55 and such owner or tenant, and (C) the amount of such individual's share depends on the amount of the 56 agricultural or horticultural commodities produced; (17) service in the employ of any organization which is 57 performed (A) in any year during any part of which such organization is registered, or there is in effect a final 58 order of the Subversive Activities Control Board requiring such organization to register, under the Internal 59 Security Act of 1950, as amended, as a Communist-action organization, a Communist-front organization, or a
 60 Communist-infiltrated organization, and (B) after June 30, 1956; (18) service performed in Guam by a resident
 61 of the Republic of the Philippines while in Guam on a temporary basis as a nonimmigrant alien admitted to 62 Guam pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C.
 63 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)); (19) Service which is performed by a nonresident alien individual for the period he is 64 temporarily present in the United States as a nonimmigrant under subparagraph (F), (J), (M), or (Q) of section
 65 101(a)(15) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended, and which is performed to carry out the 66 purpose specified in subparagraph (F), (J), (M), or (Q), as the case may be; (20) service (other than service 67 described in paragraph (3)(A)) performed by an individual on a boat engaged in catching fish or other forms of 68 aquatic animal life under an arrangement with the owner or operator of such boat pursuant to which - (A) such 69 individual does not receive any cash remuneration other than as provided in subparagraph (B) and other than 70 cash remuneration - (i) which does not exceed $100 per trip; (ii) which is contingent on a minimum catch; and 71 (iii) which is paid solely for additional duties (such as mate, engineer, or cook) for which additional cash
 72 remuneration is traditional in the industry, (B) such individual receives a share of the boat's (or the boats' in

1 the case of a fishing operation involving more than one boat) catch of fish or other forms of aquatic animal life
 2 or a share of the proceeds from the sale of such catch, and (C) the amount of such individual's share depends
 3 on the amount of the boat's (or the boats' in the case of a fishing operation involving more than one boat) catch
 4 of fish or other forms of aquatic animal life, but only if the operating crew of such boat (or each boat from 5 which the individual receives a share in the case of a fishing operation involving more than one boat) is 6 normally made up of fewer than 10 individuals; or (21) domestic service in a private home of the employer
 7 which - (A) is performed in any year by an individual under the age of 18 during any portion of such year; and 8 (B) is not the principal occupation of such employee. For purposes of paragraph (20), the operating crew of a 9 boat shall be treated as normally made up of fewer than 10 individuals if the average size of the operating crew
 10 on trips made during the preceding 4 calendar quarters consisted of fewer than 10 individuals."

11 The ridiculous, complex text of section 3121(b) leaves small wonder why Philadelphian, Orwellian type lawyers are able to 12 spend their lifetimes arguing the federal tax code at the expense of "We the people."

13 It's no wonder they call it "code"...because like the lawyers in Congress and like the safes in most banks, you need to be a 14 thief to crack it and thereby extract the truth! Doesn't this kind of ruse amount to a violation of the Sixth Amendment 15 right to due process of law?

16 Isn't it one of the first and foremost principles of due process that the law must be written simply and clearly enough that 17 the defendant can read and understand it himself/herself without the aid of a lawyer and thereby know what behavior is
 18 prohibited by the law? However, who but some judge or lawyer with four or more years of college and three years of law
 19 school and several years practicing law can understand the above? We believe the lawyers in Congress have deliberately 20 used legalese to hide the truth and thereby create a new (upper) class of society and an order of "priests and priestcraft" (in 21 this case witchcraft!) that is the only one within our society qualified or allowed by law to read and interpret the laws. This 22 is how they stole our birthright, our freedoms, and have systematically violated our fundamental due process rights!
 23 This is how they have nullified the value of serving as a juror...by ensuring that people like you and I serving on jury
 24 duty can't read and understand the law for ourselves and have to rely on the judge, who is a government employee and
 25 has the government's best interests in mind whenever he rules on cases or advises jurors. Jesus warned about this kind
 26 of insidious "lawyer abuse" and evil at the beginning of chapter 3, where we quoted from Luke 11:52 in the Bible. We also 27 talk about this in section 6.9, where we discuss the judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax.

28 Its time for Citizens everywhere to remove this kind of pernicious evil trash and the unscrupulous lawyers who peddle it
 29 from our society once and for all, starting with throwing out every one of the bastards in Congress every election until they 30 start paying attention to this issue. We should communicate this intent to them consistently and repeatedly and prevalently 31 until they simplify the laws to give us our right to due process back.

- 32 1. I suggest that every person reading this document forward a web pointer to it (by snail mail) to his or her two senators 33 and representative in the Congress and ask if they understand this tax statute, viz., 3121(b).
- 34 2. Ask them to explain to you what it means - if they know what it means.
- 35 3. If they admit that they don't know what it means, ask them to please rewrite it and all other laws that they don't know 36 the meaning of until they themselves - the legislators - know the meanings of the laws they vote on.

37 6.5.5 Congressional Propaganda and Lies

38 "When Congress talks about simplification, taxpayers may well be reminded of Emerson's comments regarding 39 an acquaintance, 'the louder he talked of his honor, the faster we counted our spoons.' -- Michael J. Graetz

40 Congressmen frequently get correspondence from constituents about the illegality of the income tax. In response to these 41 requests, they commissioned the Congressional Research Service to prepare a report entitled "Frequently Asked Questions 42 Concerning the Federal Income Tax", CRS Report number 97-59A. The report is 29 pages and you can buy a copy of it for 43 yourself from <http://pennyhill.com> for $29.95. Another way you can get this report is to write you Congressman with a
 44 question or an issue about income taxes. Oftentimes, they will write a short, one-page letter and attach the report. This 45 document was recently updated on May 7, 2001. It is filled with lies, obfuscation, and deception. We got a copy of it,
 46 scanned it in and converted it to text, and then proceeded to write a rebuttal as part of the document itself. The rebutted
 47 version is a whopping 75 pages, more than twice the size of the original report. You can read this document yourself at:

Rebutted Version of Congressional Research Service Report 97-59A: Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the Federal Income Tax

We encourage you to download the complete version and look at it. We have posted it on the Taxes area of our website at:

under the Main heading of “False Government Propaganda With Rebuttal”, and the subheading “Congressional Research Report 97-59A: Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the Federal Income Tax.” Reading the rebutted version of this report is very enlightening in explaining how Congressmen like to deceive their constituents. It is also useful in preparing for a confrontation with the IRS, for instance, during a summons or deposition. We strongly encourage you to download and read this report, and to send it to your Congressman to ask him to rebut any part of it. You probably won’t get an answer. It’s just too hot to touch! 6.5.6 Whistleblower Retaliation, Indifference, and Censorship

6.5.6.1 We The People Truth In Taxation Hearing, February 27-28, 2002

On February 27 and 28, 2002, the We the People Foundation for Constitutional Education held a Truth In Taxation Hearing. The hearing was a result of a hunger strike staged back in July 2001 by its founder, Bob Shulz, who indicated that he would starve himself to death on the steps of the U.S. Capitol unless Congress would have the Department of Justice and the IRS appear in a public hearing to answer questions they were legally obligated to answer under the petition clause of the First Amendment. Congressman Roscoe Bartlett of Maryland came to the aid of Bob Shulz a couple weeks into the fast and by July 20, had negotiated an agreement in writing with the DOJ and IRS to appear to answer the questions proposed by Bob Shulz. The hearing would be scheduled for September 27, 2001.

Bob Shulz then went immediately off his fast and assembled a group of tax researchers to put together the questions he was going to ask. They met initially in Las Vegas in August 2001 to coordinate and organize their research into questions that could be asked. At least 40 of the top researchers from around the country appeared at that meeting. The group began assembling their evidence and questions and had a complete package. However, because of the terrorist attack on September 11, 2001, the hearings were postponed until February 27-28 at the request of Bob Shulz. Subsequent to the postponement, Congressman Bartlett was contacted in November 2001 by the DOJ and IRS and told that the DOJ and IRS would not be participating in the hearing rescheduled for 27-28 Feb. 2002. Congressman Bartlett did not relay this fact to Bob Shulz until late January 2002. Apparently, he was waiting for Bob to commit some kind of faux pas that would justify the government pulling out without losing face.

Bob Shulz then launched his campaign called “Operation Wait and File Until The Trial” on January 12, 2002, where he encouraged Americans to wait to file their tax returns until after the Truth in Taxation Hearing on 27-28 Feb. This, he believed, would put pressure on the government to appear at the hearings. He posted a flyer on his website about it and sent that article to his mailing list. The article included the flyer to be published in newspapers and a letter to be direct mailed to about 300,000 individuals. Then he mailed or faxed the flier to:

- Members of the American Judges Association
- Judges of The Federal Circuit
- Mayors of Largest U.S. Cities
- Federal Tax Court Judges
- Supreme Court Justices
- Radio Station General Managers
- Radio Talk Show Hosts
- 550 Partners of the Big Five Accounting Firms
- Executive Cabinet Members and Cabinet Legal Advisors

- 1 • Members of the Association of Copy Editors

2 Subsequently on January 17, 2002, Congressman Roscoe Bartlett notified Bob that the government had pulled out of the
3 hearings. Congressman Roscoe Bartlett's assistant Lisa Wright stated that the Congressman was "canceling the forum,"
4 and that he was "dismayed" by the "rhetoric" of the "Wait to File" ad and that he would not be party to any movement that
5 tells people not to pay their federal income taxes. This, of course, was not what Bob Shulz was advocating. He never told
6 people not to PAY income taxes, only to delay filing their returns until after the hearing, which they were perfectly and 7 legally entitled to do. Bob tried to reason with her, but it was late and she was in no mood to listen.

8 Bob then decided to go ahead with the hearing anyway. He invited several expert witnesses to appear as a substitute for the 9 government's witnesses. Subsequently, on February 10, 2002, he put a full page add in the New York Times regarding a 10 Constitutional Crisis. Here is an excerpt from the add off his website at <http://www.givemeliberty.org>:

(BEGINNING OF ADD)

IRS & Department of Justice: Why Won't You Answer Our Questions?

On July 20, 2001, IRS Commissioner Charles Rossotti and U.S. Assistant Attorney General Dan Bryant formally agreed to have IRS and DOJ participate in a recorded, public hearing on Capital Hill to officially answer questions under oath in response to a Petition For Redress Of Grievances from the American People. Our Citizen's Petition directly challenges:

- The jurisdiction and legal authority for the IRS
- The unlawful enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code against American citizens
- The pervasive abuse of the People's constitutional rights in the daily operations of the IRS

After agreeing in writing to publicly answer questions related to the unconstitutional origin of the IRS, and the devastating harm caused by the income tax system to the working men and women of our country, The Department of Justice and IRS on January 17, 2002, without explanation, canceled the hearing.

WE NOW HAVE A CONSTITUTIONAL CRISIS

What must a free People do when their government repeatedly refuses to honor its legal and moral obligation to respond to a proper Petition for Redress of Grievance as guaranteed by the 1st Amendment to the United States Constitution?

We ask the People: Is Alan Dershowitz Correct?

- We have NO unalienable rights?
- The Constitution is merely a piece of paper?
- Government should not be restrained because it can do good things for people?

9/27/00 debate at Franklin & Marshall

Can We The People simply accept that our Constitution has become a dead letter?

Must we resort to the same desperate measures that our Founders did to defend their unalienable rights to life, liberty and justice?

Do We Have a Constitution or Not?

For decades, the government has steadfastly refused to honor the petitions of a growing number of honorable, well-educated, professional legal researchers whose work has raised significant and legitimate questions about the Constitutional and statutory authority of the income tax system. These issues are of the utmost importance to the American People and to our Republic.

Our respectful petitions to our servant government have fallen on deaf ears, have been arbitrarily and unjustly thrown out of the courts, and have been used as grounds for criminal prosecution, asset seizure and other unlawful abuse by the IRS and DOJ.

Three years ago, We The People Foundation began a series of formal, public initiatives to convince the U.S. government to answer our questions regarding the jurisdiction and legal authority of the IRS and the personal income tax system. As the chronology of events outlined below demonstrates, we have worked diligently to show the American People the truth about the unconstitutional origin, abusive history and criminal conduct of the IRS, and the un-American nature of the personal income tax system.

1 Bob Shulz then held the hearings and webcasted the event to 2,100 Americans throughout the country. There were about
 2 100 people in the live audience as well. Although the mainstream media was informed of the event, only one
 3 representative, David Kay Johnston, appeared from the New York Times, and even he ducked out after the morning of the 4 first day because he couldn't find anything to slander We The People with! There were two solid days of hearings, and
 5 representatives from around the country from various groups appeared in the audience, including J.A.I.L. For Judges, the 6 Fully Informed Jury Association, the Libertarian party, and several other activists groups. The tax researcher group he had 7 assembled had put together 540 questions to ask the government. 440 of these questions were asked at the hearings, which 8 included about 130 questions assembled by the author relating to the Fourth Amendment and the First Amendment. All of 9 the questions and the evidence used at the hearings and those that were not asked are posted on our website at:

10 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Discovery/Deposition/Deposition.htm>

11 Each question included the evidence to back it up, and as each question was asked, the evidence was displayed on two large
 12 projection panels on either side of the meeting room. The evidence and complete text of the questions were also made
 13 available via the live webcast to the large audience so they could browse and examine it for themselves in digital form. It
 14 was a watershed and unprecedented event. Bob Shulz and the author, Family Guardian Fellowship, took turns asking the 15 questions of a panel of various experts. These questions and the answers provided by experts stunned the audience and 16 provided irrefutable proof of government fraud, extortion, and conspiracy to deprive sovereign Americans of their rights.
 17 Among the experts testifying included (some names not listed):

- 18 • Paul Rooney, a tax attorney with over 30 years experience and who served as a Tax Court clerk for several years 19 before going into private practice.
- 20 • Bill Benson, the person who investigated the Sixteenth Amendment and gathered overwhelming evidence
 21 supporting the conclusion that it was fraudulently ratified by a lame duck Secretary of State, Philander Knox.
 22 (<http://www.thelawthatneverwas.com/>)
- 23 • Joe Banister, X IRS agent from the IRS' Criminal Investigation Division (CID), who served there 5 years before 24 resigning after finding out the truth (<http://www.freedomabovefortune.com/>).
- 25 • John Turner, former IRS Collection agent with 8 years experience.
- 26 • Sherry Jackson, former IRS Examiner with three years experience.
- 27 • Irwin Schiff, America's most famous de-taxing expert. (<http://www.paynoincometax.com/>)
- 28 • Larry Becraft, famous patriot Constitutional Attorney. (<http://fly.hiwaay.net/~becraft/>)
- 29 • Noel Spade, San Diego tax attorney.
- 30 • Vicky Osborne, a forensic CPA who had uncovered evidence of massive fraud in the administration of taxpayer
 31 IMF files

32 Subsequent to the event in March 2002, the IRS delivered a threatening CP-518 notice (Willful Failure to File) to the 33 person who had handled the webcasting of the event, who shall remain nameless to protect his identity. This person was 34 responsible for making the videotapes and CD's containing the evidence available for sale to the public. Apparently, they 35 were trying to get some legal leverage on that person so they could blackmail him to suppress the release of the questions
 36 and evidence. Can you believe the kind of games the government played to suppress the truth from being heard?!

37 6.5.6.2 We The People Efforts: April 5, 2001 Senate Finance Committee Hearing

38 During the month of March 2001, We The People Foundation (<http://www.givemeliberty.org/>), a tax freedom and liberty
 39 advocacy, placed full page anti-income-tax ads in the USA Today Newspaper on March 2, and March 23, of 2001. The 40 March 2, 2001 add featured a pointer to this book on our website. It talked about five employers who had stopped
 41 withholding federal income taxes from the pay of their employees. The March 23, 2001 add featured information about 42 how income taxes violated the constitution. Subsequent to these adds, 60 Minutes (CBS) decided to do a story on the anti-
 43 income tax movement on April 3, 2001, and featured a 20 minute segment on the activities of the employers featured in the 44 March 2, 2001 add. The story was rather skewed, because they put a lot of credible people on the show from the opposing 45 side, but wouldn't let spokespeople from We The People talk. They opened the story with a picture of a We The People
 46 meeting and even showed a picture of the We The People add, but didn't allow anyone from We The People to talk.

1 Shortly after the 60 Minutes story, our website started going crazy. In the following two days, we had about 500
2 downloads of this book. Then the U.S. Senate Finance Committee announced that it was going to have a hearing on April
3 5, 2001 at 10am. The subject of the hearing was "Tax Scams". We The People was one of the organizations they were 4 going to talk about, and yet they denied a request by that organization to speak at the session! Bob Schulz, the leader of We
5 The People, had the following to say about this situation:

6 *A New York Times reporter, David Cay Johnston, telephoned us after 5 p.m. on Friday, March 30, 2001, to 7 inform us of the fact that the Senate Finance Committee has scheduled a formal hearing for 10 a.m. on 8 Thursday, April 5, 2001. Mr. Johnston said the subject of the hearing would be the full-page ads we have 9 published in USA TODAY and that the Committee intended to have the ads on display during the hearing.
10 Johnston said that our side of the story needs to be told, that we should try to get on the witness list and that all
11 the major media outlets would attend any press conference we were to hold in the hallway outside the hearing
12 room, if we were not allowed to testify before the Committee.*

13 Early Monday morning, April 2, 2001, we telephoned the Senate Finance Committee to request that we be 14 added to the witness list. We were told that the witness list was closed before the Committee scheduled and 15 publicly announced the hearing, but that we could fax a letter to the Committee Chairman to request that we be 16 added to the list.

17 On Monday morning we faxed our letter to Senator Grassley, requesting to be added to the witness list.

18 *Late Monday afternoon we received by fax a letter from Senator Grassley which reads: "Dear Mr. Schulz:
19 Thank you for your letter requesting to be added to the witness list for the Senate Finance Committee Hearing
20 on April 5, 2001. We will be unable to add you to our witness list. However, should your organization chose to 21 submit a written statement regarding our hearing, 'Taxpayer Beware: Schemes, Scams and Fraud,' we will 22 consider including it in the hearing record. Sincerely, Charles E. Grassley, Chairman Senate Finance 23 Committee."*

24 *It seems incongruous that the Senate would hold a hearing featuring our full-page ads and not invite us to 25 testify. They apparently have a message that they want to convey, which is inapposite to our message. They 26 apparently want to divert attention away from questions of whether the IRS is collecting taxes without legal 27 authority by trying to portray those who raise such questions as scammers. In fact, those in the tax honesty
28 movement see the IRS as the scammers! The question is not who is putting their money in an offshore trust, or 29 who is not filing their tax return or which employers have stopped withholding from the paychecks of their 30 employees. The primary question is: "What legal authority requires most Americans to file an income tax return
31 and pay the income tax? There ought to be a moratorium on the IRS' enforcement activities, and all those 32 people who are sitting in prison for not paying the income tax should be released, pending the determination of 33 this fundamental question.*

34 Our government leaders apparently want to label anyone and everyone, including this Foundation, who are 35 questioning the legal authority of the IRS to collect the individual income tax as schemers, scammers and 36 frauds, while they continue to conduct their tax enforcement activities as usual, without addressing the 37 compelling allegations of fraud and the illegal operations of the income tax system and without justifying their 38 behavior.

39 *We have decided that we will hold a press conference in the hallway outside the Senate hearing room at 9:30
40 a.m. on Thursday. We will have press kits available which will include copies of letters inviting Commissioner
41 Rossotti and the leaders of the executive and legislative branches of the government to identify their most 42 knowledgeable people and have them participate with the experts in the tax honesty movement in the four 43 symposiums and conferences we sponsored at the National Press Club to debate and discuss the issues. We will 44 highlight the major allegations regarding the fraudulent ratification of the 16th Amendment, the demonstrable
45 lack of evidence of any law that requires most citizens to file or pay the income tax, and the problems relating to 46 routine violations by the IRS of the People's rights under the 4th, 5th, 6th and 13th Amendments in their day-to-
47 day administrative procedures. We will point out that the government chose to evade the public forums and 48 chose not to even acknowledge receipt of the invitations! We will also include a copy of the video tape of the 49 April 13, 2000 meetings in the White House and in the Capitol with President Clinton's economic advisor Jason
50 Furman, Speaker Hastert's policy advisor, Dr. William Koetzle and the Senate Majority Leader's policy
51 director, Keith Hennessey. The tape shows these gentlemen meeting with Joe Banister and Bob Schulz and 52 accepting a REMONSTRANCE for Clinton, Hastert and Lott. The tapes also show these men promising to have 53 their experts review the research reports authored by Bill Benson, Joe Banister and William Conklin and to 54 participate in our fourth attempt to get the two sides to meet on June 29, 2000, in a public forum, to debate the 55 allegations of the fraudulent and illegal operations of the income tax system -- promises which were broken on 56 June 2, 2000, when Jason Furman told Schulz; "The legality of the income tax is not a high priority matter for 57 the White House and we will not be participating in any conference on the subject." The press kits will also 58 include a copy of each ad we decided to publish in the wake of the government's reversal of its decision to 59 review and then meet to discuss the research reports by Benson, Banister and Conklin.*

1 Our message will be a simple one: We want the government to answer the serious questions that have been
 2 raised by numerous tax researchers who say that the IRS is collecting the individual income tax without legal
 3 authority and that the IRS operates illegally when it tries to force citizens to pay taxes they do not owe. Instead
 4 of the Senate and House encouraging the IRS to increase enforcement of laws that apparently do not exist,
 5 wouldn't it be easier and better for them to have their experts meet with the tax researchers in a public forum,
 6 show them where they are wrong, embarrass them, and put it all to rest? Why is the government so averse to 7 doing so? Are they worried that they can't show the researchers to be in error? When does evasion become 8 admission?

9 The government's dual actions of evading the public discussion of the issues while strengthening its steel-fisted,
 10 heavy-handed enforcement campaign of fear and terror only serves to strengthen the resolve and determination
 11 of a People who see themselves as free and sovereign, and who see all of government limited by a written 12 constitution.

13 6.5.6.3 Cover-Up of Jan. 20, 2002: Congress/DOJ/IRS/ Renege on a Written Agreement to Hold a Truth in 14 Taxation Hearing with We The People Under First Amendment

15 The We the People foundation (<http://www.givemeliberty.org/>), which was founded to fight government corruption, has 16 been protesting the federal income tax for years. During July 2001, the leader of that organization, Bob Shulz, went on a 21
 17 day hunger strike, telling the press and the government that he would die of starvation if the government would not grant
 18 him a hearing under the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution to Petition the U.S. Government for Redress of 19 Grievances related to the illegal enforcement of the federal income tax. On July 20, 2001, Congressman Rosco Bartlett
 20 negotiated a signed written agreement between the Department of Justice, the IRS, and Mr. Shulz to hold the requested
 21 hearing to address his concerns and questions. Prior to signing the written agreement, the DOJ and IRS insisted that the 22 hearings be private (do you smell a cover-up here?), but Mr. Shulz said that this was a public matter of great concern to 23 millions of Americans and that it must be open and the press must also be able to attend. The press was also invited. The 24 hearing were to be in late Sept. 2001, but the terrorist attacks disrupted the meeting and it was postponed until Feb. 27,
 25 2002 by Mr. Shulz.

26 Subsequent to the new hearing being scheduled, on January 20, 2002, Mr. Shulz launched a media campaign called “Wait
 27 and File Until the Trial”, informing Americans that they should wait to file their tax returns until the Truth in Taxation
 28 hearing was over, because the income tax was on trial. He mailed out hundreds of thousands of fliers and emails to federal 29 judges, congressmen, the IRS, and citizens. Immediately after the fliers went out, our website went crazy and we had five 30 times the normal daily volume we usually have. Immediately after the start of the “Wait and File Until the Trial”
 31 campaign, Roscoe Bartlett cancelled the hearings, saying that he could not sponsor or support them because they were 32 “encouraging Americans to not pay their income taxes”, which was clearly not the case, as explained in Mr. Shulz’ letter
 33 shown below. Later investigation by We the People revealed that in Nov. 2001, the IRS and DOJ both told Congressman
 34 Bartlett that they would not attend the hearings ever. Congressman Bartlett withheld this information, hoping that Bob 35 Shulz would unilaterally cancel the hearings himself or commit a political faux pas that would eliminate the need to have 36 them. When the Wait and File campaign started in earnest, Congressman Bartlett apparently thought he had enough excuse
 37 to terminate the meeting, but as Mr. Shulz’ letter clearly explains, he was not justified in doing so and the comments about
 38 the Wait and File campaign were really just more deceptive and fraudulent government propaganda to discredit Mr. Shulz
 39 and further expand the government cover-up of the illegal operations of the IRS. Read the letter yourself below for 40 enlightening information. Keep in mind that all Mr. Shulz has ever expected was for the government to honor his 41 Constitutional, First Amendment right to a Petition for Redress of Grievance with the federal government.

Hon. Roscoe G. Bartlett
Member of Congress
2412 Rayburn Building
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Congressman Bartlett:

On behalf of myself and the We The People Foundation for Constitutional Education, I want to thank you for all that you have done to support the People's Petition for Redress of our grievances related to the fraudulent origin of the IRS and unlawful operations of the income tax system. I thank you for your wisdom, your courage and your independence. Your steadfast and heroic efforts in defense of the American People's guaranteed constitutional right to have our government answer this historic petition are deeply appreciated by all of us who placed our trust in your integrity and leadership.

I know that you have tried your best in our behalf, and for that I am most thankful. I continue to hold you in high esteem. No matter what the future may hold, I will always remember your courageous defense of our Constitution.

Neither of us has shared with the general public the details of your actions and what happened behind the scenes in the days leading up to July 20, 2001. This was the day Assistant Attorney General Dan Bryant and IRS Commissioner Rossotti, as a result of your personal intervention and persuasion, contracted with the American people to have experts from their departments appear in a recorded, congressional-style, public meeting to answer the people's questions regarding the federal income tax system.

We also have not shared with the public the details of what has been happening behind the scenes since July 20, 2001. Under the present circumstances, it is appropriate that these details be made available to the American people. Following is a chronology of the facts related to our Petition for Redress of Grievances.

- On June 11, 2001, I personally delivered a letter to President Bush at the White House. Copies of the letter were also hand-delivered to Speaker of the House Hastert and Senate Majority Leader Daschle at the Capitol. The letter recited the numerous requests made by We The People Foundation For Constitutional Education to the Executive and Legislative Branches since May 1999 to answer our Petition For Redress of Grievances related to the income tax system. The letter also provided a factual account of the government's evasive and unresponsive behavior, which ultimately led to my decision to embark on a hunger strike until either I died or the federal government agreed to meet in a public forum to answer the people's questions regarding the fraudulent origin of the IRS and the unlawful operations of the income tax system.
- On July 1, 2001, I delivered a follow-up letter to President Bush, with copies to Speaker Hastert and Senator Daschle.
- On July 18, 2001, Lawrence B. Lindsey, Assistant to the President for Economic Policy and head of the National Economic Council, sent a letter to me which read, "The President has asked me to thank you for your letters of June 11 and July 1 regarding the income tax system. I understand your concerns and the arguments you make. Your letter of June 11 outlines extensively the concerns of the We The People Foundation for Constitutional Education, Inc. with regard to the efficacy of the current income tax system. While I believe the best way to address your concerns is through the court system, I have taken the liberty of sharing your letters with the Internal Revenue Service for their review. A more substantive response will be forthcoming from this office once the IRS has had the opportunity to assess your grievances. I would be remiss if I did not suggest that you end your fast. Whether or not federal tax experts attend a meeting your organization

1 has scheduled for September 18 will be determined based upon their substantive assessment of your
2 arguments. While your personal commitment to the cause of tax reform is dramatic, I hope that you will not
3 endanger yourself physically in this cause. Please be assured that your letters will receive careful attention
4 at the IRS.

5
6 Note: In reviewing my file and the events of last summer, I must now assume that when Commissioner Rossotti
7 spoke with you by telephone on July 19th, and agreed to have his experts meet with our experts in a recorded
8 public forum to answer our questions, he was responding to Mr. Lindsey's directive.

- 9 • On July 9, 2001, I delivered an updated version of the People's Petition for Redress of Grievances to one of 10 President Bush's aides at the White House. I also met with you and three members of your staff, where we first 11 discussed the issues related to the fraudulent origin and unlawful operations of the IRS, and you made the 12 decision to help the American People in their quest for a response to this historic Petition.
- 13
14 • On July 17, 2001, you held a press conference on the House Triangle to announce the fact that you had placed top
15 priority on getting the appropriate people in the government to agree to respond to our Petition. Rep. Ron Paul
16 also strongly supported the fundamental right to be answered.
- 17 • It is now known that between July 9th and July 18th, 2001, management level personnel at DOJ and IRS were 18 steadfast in their refusal to have their experts meet with representatives of the American People in a recorded
19 public forum. For instance, Floyd Williams, the IRS Director of the Office of Congressional Affairs, stated the IRS
20 would only agree to a private, unrecorded meeting between myself and the IRS Chief Counsel. Karen Wilson (Mr.
21 Williams' counterpart at DOJ) suggested we submit our questions to DOJ and IRS in writing and wait for a
22 response. She said she was otherwise in support of IRS' proposal for a private, unrecorded meeting. You replied 23 that the proposal for a private, unrecorded meeting was totally unacceptable and that the questions had to be 24 answered in a public forum. You emphasized the importance of allowing the public to see and hear the people
25 asking the questions and those answering them. You strongly and effectively argued that to submit the questions in 26 writing to DOJ and IRS would allow for delay, obfuscation and confusion, and would bring to ruin what you 27 considered to be a proper, Constitutional Petition For a Redress of Grievances.
- 28 • From July 18th through July 20th you negotiated on the People's behalf, by telephone, with IRS Commissioner
29 Rossotti and with DOJ's Assistant Attorney General Daniel Bryant. They expressed concerns about the security of 30 a public meeting and wanted to know who would be "on the gavel" to control the meeting and keep it professional 31 and orderly. After speaking with me about their concerns, you contacted Dan Bryant and Charles Rossotti and 32 offered to hold the meeting on Capitol Hill and to personally gavel the meeting if Henry Hyde was not available.
- 33 • On or about July 19th, in a telephone conversation between you and Commissioner Rossotti, Rossotti agreed to 34 have his experts participate in a recorded, public, congressional-style hearing on Capitol Hill, with appropriate
35 controls. You telephoned me and asked to see me in your office. When I arrived, you told me of Commissioner 36 Rossotti's agreement.
- 37 • On July 20th, Assistant Attorney General Dan Bryant also agreed, but told you he needed a formal request from 38 you. He asked that you put your request for the meeting in writing. You telephoned me and asked to see me in 39 your office. When I arrived, you prepared a hand-written letter to Dan Bryant. You then telephoned Mr. Bryant to 40 tell him you had the formal request in hand and asked how soon he could meet with us. Bryant said he would see 41 us right away in his office at the Department of Justice building. We met with Dan Bryant that afternoon. We fully 42 discussed our written Petition for Redress of Grievances (he had previously received a copy of the Petition that 43 was hand-delivered to the White House on April 13, 2000 and again on July 9, 2001). We also reviewed the terms
44 and conditions of your offer to preside over the proposed congressional-style hearing on Capitol Hill. He penned a 45 note at the bottom of your written request, agreeing to "do everything within my power to ensure that the Dept.
46 of Justice will provide appropriate representatives to participate in a congressional briefing hosted by 47 Congressman Bartlett in connection with the above referenced matter." Roland Croteau and Burr Deitz (a 48 Director of the WTP Foundation) were also in attendance.
- 49 • Later that day, Friday, July 20, 2001, my office issued a press release and posted it on our web site, announcing 50 the details of the agreement. Apparently, the news quickly found its way around the Internet.

- 1 • Between Friday, July 20th and Monday, July 23rd, as I would later learn from you, Dan Bryant apparently received
2 a phone call or two from “higher ups,” protesting his July 20th commitment to have DOJ answer our questions in a 3 public forum.
- 4 • On July 23, 2001, I received an e-mail from your aide, Lisa Wright, which read: {“Congressman Bartlett asked me
5 to contact you to inform you must take URGENT action in order to preserve the agreement as a result of your 7/20
6 meeting with Dan Bryant at USDOJ.1) Immediately pull down from the website the previous presentation of the 7 meeting that begins with the subject – “The fast is over”. 2) Replace it with a corrected version ASAP and 8 distribute this to your list. Reference to Bryant must be limited explicitly to quoting only his handwritten 9 comments. "I will do everything within my power. . ."Reference to Hyde -- that he will be invited -- NOT 10 EXPECTED. Reference to a date -- to be determined, hopefully in mid to late September. 3) You must call Dan
11 Bryant ASAP and apologize for the inaccuracies in the e-mail. This is his personal number -- 202-514-2141.”}

12 NOTE: On or about July 25th, I placed a call to Dan Bryant. He did not return the call.

- 13 • On July 30th, I issued a revised press release and posted it on our web site.
- 14 • On July 30th Lisa Wright of your office sent an e-mail to Dan Bryant at DOJ and Floyd Williams at IRS. It read:
15 “Mr. Bryant and Mr. Williams: Attached is a 7/30/01 news release from We the People Foundation for 16 Constitutional Education which follows up a meeting Congressman Bartlett had on July 20 at DOJ w/ Asst.
17 Atty. Gen. Dan Bryant and Bob Schulz concerning Mr. Schulz’s Petition for Redress concerning the tax
18 code and IRS enforcement of the tax code. Congressman Bartlett personally affirmed that this release is an 19 accurate reflection of the July 20 meeting. Congressman Bartlett discussed the request for a public forum at 20 which appropriate IRS representatives would participate in an earlier meeting with Floyd Williams of IRS
21 and Karen Wilson of DOJ and subsequently in a phone conversation with IRS Commissioner Rossotti.
22 Congressman Bartlett hopes that DOJ and IRS officials will contact Mr. Schulz directly concerning 23 coordinating and ironing out the details for the public forum on Capitol Hill. Please feel free to contact 24 Congressman Bartlett if you have any questions and so that we may procure the necessary space for the 25 meeting.”
- 26 • On July 30th Lisa Wright forwarded to me a message from IRS’ Floyd Williams. It read: “Treasury/IRS has not 27 agreed (either verbally or in writing) to participate in a public forum with Bob Schulz.”
- 28 • On August 13, 2001, Tax Notes published an article under the heading, “Backroom Deals, Fleeting Promises Put 29 Income Tax Hearing in Jeopardy,” by Warren Rojas. In the article, IRS spokesman Frank Keith is quoted as 30 saying, “As of right now, no final agreements have been made.”
- 31 • On August 29, 2001, your office issued the following statement; “Congressman Bartlett is continuing to actively 32 pursue and secure participation by representatives of both the Department of Justice and the Internal Revenue
33 Service at the September 25-26 forum organized by We the People,” said Lisa Wright, a spokesman for 34 Congressman Roscoe Bartlett. “He expects Dan Bryant, Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Legislative 35 Affairs at the Department of Justice, and IRS Chairman Charles Rossotti to fulfill their personal commitments to 36 him.”(my emphasis).
- 37 • In early September, I met in your office with you and three of your aides, including Sallie Taylor and Lisa Wright.
38 You said DOJ and IRS were trying to “wiggle off the hook” and that Sallie and Lisa had an “alternative proposal.”
39 Sallie and Lisa proceeded to describe their alternative proposal, which, instead of having the agree-upon public
40 forum, would have me submit the Peoples’ questions to you in writing. You would then post the questions on your 41 web site and send them to DOJ and IRS for an answer. The answers would also be posted on your web site. I told
42 Sallie and Lisa that their proposal was unacceptable to me and that you had already argued with DOJ and IRS
43 (successfully) the futility of such an approach. Upon hearing my response you turned to an aide and asked him to 44 call Dick Armey, the House Majority Leader, to request an immediate meeting with him. We were told to proceed
45 to Mr. Armey’s office. You, I, Sallie Taylor, and another of your aides (I don’t remember his name) met with Dick 46 Armey and one of his aides, who took extensive notes during the meeting. You told Mr. Armey that DOJ and 47 IRS were trying to wiggle off the hook and break their commitment to answer the People’s questions in a 48 public forum. Mr. Armey said it was important to have the hearing proceed as planned and that DOJ and 49 IRS had to be “locked down.” Armey said the way to do that would be to show DOJ and IRS that they were 50 running the risk of offending many more Congressman than you if they broke their commitment. Mr.
51 Armey then suggested that you prepare a letter to Attorney General Ashcroft and to Treasury Secretary
52 O’Neil, which would thank them for their commitment to have the appropriate personnel from their 53 departments participate in the income tax hearing and which would be signed by numerous members of the 54

1 House of Representatives. Mr. Arney and you discussed a list of House members that both of you believed 2 would sign the letter.

- 3 • On September 12, 2001, I communicated my request to you that the tax hearing be postponed due to the events of 4 September 11th. I posted that message on our web site.
- 5 • On October 12, 2001, you delivered a letter and video message to me in which you announced that the event had 6 been rescheduled for February 27 and 28, 2002. Your letter stated “A letter of support and confirmation signed
7 by myself and other members of Congress has been drafted, circulated, and will be sent to officials at the 8 Department of Justice, Treasury and the IRS, informing them of the dates and times and requiring their 9 attendance. I will personally chair the event and have invited other members of Congress to attend and sit
10 on the panel...You have my word as an elected member of the United States Congress that I will do all
11 within my power that this event go forward, the IRS and DOJ attend as they have promised to do, and are 12 compelled to do by the Constitution.”(My emphasis).
- 13 • On January 7, 2002, Tax Notes published an article under the heading, “Schulz Hopes to Bury Tax Code at 14 February Hearing,” by Warren Rojas. In the article, Mr. Rojas wrote, “While the IRS has yet to officially confirm 15 or deny its participation in the hearing, a Bartlett press aide acknowledged receiving a letter from Justice
16 around Thanksgiving stating plainly that the DOJ would not attend any Schulz-related events.” (my 17 emphasis). Note: I was never told about the “Thanksgiving letter.” This was the first time any of the three 18 government officials who were parties to the July 20th contract with the American People had put in writing that 19 they were reneging on their agreement.
- 20 • On or about January 8, 2002, I telephoned Lisa Wright to tell her that I had read the Tax Notes article and was 21 very concerned about the Thanksgiving letter from DOJ which informed you that DOJ would not attend the 22 income tax hearing. I called to inform Ms. Wright that it was my intention to bring the February hearing to the 23 attention of tens of millions of Americans, and ask them to wait to file their tax returns until they heard all of the 24 questions and answers at the February hearing. I felt it was now time, as Mr. Arney had previously suggested, to 25 do all I could to “lock the DOJ and IRS down” and demand that they keep their commitment to the American
26 People. It was time to demand that they respond to our questions regarding the fraudulent origin of the IRS and 27 the unlawful operation of the personal income tax system. I informed Ms. Wright that many thousands of 28 Americans were already aware of the February hearing and were waiting for the answers to the questions before
29 deciding how to file their tax returns. I explained that if DOJ and IRS were going to renege on their commitments,
30 they were going to have to answer to a very large number of Americans. My call was passed through to Lisa’s 31 voice message system where I left a message. I asked her to call me.
- 32 • On January 11, 2002, Lisa returned my call. We discussed “Operation Wait to File Until the Trial.” After we 33 completed the call Lisa called back to say that if your name was mentioned in the “Wait to File” flyer/ad, she 34 would like to approve the wording. I told her your name, together with those of Dan Bryant and IRS
35 Commissioner Rossotti were mentioned in the first paragraph, which I then read to her. She said my use of the 36 phrase “public hearing” was wrong, that the word “hearing” had a technical meaning on the Hill and that I should 37 use the phrase “public forum.” She also said that you did not have the power to force DOJ and IRS to attend the 38 meeting. I replied that I understood that you had no more power at that time than you did on July 20, 2001, when 39 you merely requested that Commissioner Rossotti and Assistant Attorney General Dan Bryant have appropriate 40 personnel from their departments participate in the “public, recorded congressional-style briefing- hearing” on 41 Capitol Hill to answer questions “concerning the legal jurisdiction and authority of the IRS.” At the July 20
42 meeting both Mr. Rossotti and Mr. Bryant agreed to your request and formally entered into a contract with 43 the American people to have their “appropriate representatives participate in a congressional briefing 44 hosted by Congressman Bartlett.”
- 45 • On January 12, 2002, in response to Lisa’s one concern, I changed the phrase “public hearing” in the first 46 paragraph of the Wait to File flyer/ad to “congressional-style hearing”. We then launched “Operation Wait to File
47 Until the Trial” by posting an article on our web site and by sending that article to our mailing list. The article 48 included the flyer to be published in newspapers and a letter to be direct mailed to about 300,000 individuals.
- 49 • On Monday, January 14th I was in Milwaukee working with one of our attorneys on the questions for the hearing. I
50 received word that Lisa had called my office and asked me to return the call. I tried several times on Monday and 51 Tuesday to reach her by phone. I left voice messages on her machine, informing her that I would be returning to 52 my office that afternoon at approximately 3 p.m. While en route from Milwaukee to Albany on Tuesday, January
53 15th I tried unsuccessfully to reach you by phone. I did manage to speak to Sallie Taylor. I told her to let Lisa and 54 you know that I would be back in my office at 3 p.m. should either of you need to speak to me. I would not hear 55 from anyone in your office until 8:20 p.m. Thursday evening, January 17th.

- On Monday, January 14th, Kim Herb, Legislative Assistant to Congressman John Linder sent an e-mail to “District Directors” which read, “Recently, it has been stated that there will be a Congressional hearing on the IRS. I wanted to dispel this rumor. There will be NO hearing. I repeat, there will be no Congressional hearing on the IRS in February. In response to a hunger strike by Mr. Robert Schulz, Congressman Roscoe Bartlett agreed to facilitate a meeting on IRS and tax topics. Accordingly, Mr. Bartlett arranged for "We the People" to have a public forum on the IRS, at which time "We the People" will debate such questions as the legality of the Sixteenth Amendment and the ratification process. However, no officials from the IRS or Justice Department will attend. Again, for emphasis, NO officials from either the IRS or Justice Department will be in attendance. The administration believes that these questions have been sufficiently addressed, and there is a fair amount of judicial precedence on this issue to confirm that assertion. Congressman Bartlett will likely give an opening statement, however, I understand that his comments will be limited to acknowledging that the "We the People" organization has a right to free speech and to voice their opinion. I recognize and support the Bush Administration's position. We have no interest in pursuing the ratification of the Sixteenth Amendment as a viable and legitimate argument in the fundamental tax reform movement. As such, I do not anticipate that Congressman Linder, as the official sponsor of the FairTax, will have any role in the February public forum organized by "We the People."

- At 3 p.m. Thursday, January 17th, as part of Operation Wait to File Until the Trial, I delivered several thousand letters and flyers to the personal fax machines of the following individuals:

- Members of the American Judges Association
- Judges of The Federal Circuit
- Mayors of Largest U.S. Cities
- Federal Tax Court Judges
- Supreme Court Justices
- Radio Station General Managers
- Radio Talk Show Hosts
- 550 Partners of the Big Five Accounting Firms
- Executive Cabinet Members and Cabinet Legal Advisors
- Members of the Association of Copy Editors

- At 8:20 p.m. on Thursday, January 17th I received a call from Lisa Wright. She stated that she had just forwarded via FedEx your letter informing me that you were “canceling the forum,” and that you were “dismayed” by the “rhetoric” of the “Wait to File” ad and that you would not be party to any movement that tells people not to pay their federal income taxes. I tried to reason with her, but it was late and she was in no mood to listen.

I hope that you can understand how very disappointed I am with your actions. From the beginning of our discussions, I expected you to encounter great difficulty in holding both Mr. Rossotti and Mr. Bryant to their word regarding the February hearing. At this point, it is clear that neither DOJ nor IRS ever intended to keep their commitment to you or the American People. Their refusal to answer these substantive questions regarding the fraudulent origin of the IRS and unlawful operation of the income tax system demonstrates the federal government’s pervasive and arrogant disregard for the constitutional rights of the American People. It is now clear, that on July 20, 2001, their objective was to stop the hunger strike and temporarily mollify the outrage of thousands of Americans who were demanding that our government agree to publicly answer the People’s Petition For Redress of Grievances.

However, I shared your faith in our Constitution and your belief that at the top of our government were trustworthy men and women of moral integrity. Like you, I believed that no matter the practical difficulty, there were enough people of honor at the highest levels of our government, that the People’s Constitutional Petition For Redress of Grievances would be heard. I did not believe that those who we have trusted to lead our country would turn their backs on the American People, disregard our Constitution and Bill of Rights, and hold in such low esteem the personal liberty so many of our countrymen have sacrificed and died to defend over the past 225 years. I believed that our highest government officials would honor their oaths of office to defend the United States Constitution, and its guarantee of every American’s right to petition our government for a redress of grievances.

1 Congressman Bartlett, I wish you had told me sooner about the Thanksgiving letter from DOJ, and your apparent decision
2 (if Kim Herb is to be believed) to merely give an opening statement at the February hearing, “limited to acknowledging that
3 the ‘We the People’ organization has a right to free speech and to voice their opinion.” I wish that you had told me then that 4 our Petition was not going to be publicly and officially answered by the government.

5 You say in your letter to me dated January 17 that the newspaper ad is “misleading” and “has made it impossible for the 6 forum to take place because the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and the Department of Justice (DOJ) will not participate.”

7 This is most offensive to me. There was no need to misrepresent the facts. As the paragraphs above demonstrate, the ad had 8 nothing to do with the reluctance of DOJ and IRS to participate in the February income tax hearing. We now know that 9 their decision not to participate was put in writing to you last Thanksgiving, nearly two months before the “Wait to File”
10 campaign idea occurred to us. In fact, the Wait to File campaign is a direct result of learning from the January 7th edition of 11 Tax Notes that you had received DOJ’s Thanksgiving letter of withdrawal.

12 In your press release you say, “I will not be a party to advocating the non-payment of federal income taxes.” This statement
13 is also highly offensive, for it is nothing more than an unjustifiable, aggressive attack on my reputation and character. Your 14 statement is also a misrepresentation of the facts and reflects a deliberate attempt to paint me and the Foundation as 15 irresponsible law-breakers. In fact, the ad does not advocate the non-payment of federal income taxes. It suggests people do
16 what the law allows them to do-- wait until February 27th to file their tax returns.

17 Neither I nor the Foundation have ever advocated, supported or encouraged anyone not to pay a tax they lawfully owe or 18 not to file any tax return documents they are required by law to file. Ever. As we both know, the purpose of these important
19 hearings is to have the government show us the law so that all Americans may be guided by specific requirements for filing.

20 In your letter and press release you say that you “remain[s] committed to ensuring the right of Bob Schulz and other
21 citizens to exercise their constitutional rights under the First Amendment to get answers about federal tax policy from the 22 government,” and you propose, as an alternative to the public forum, that you deliver our questions to DOJ and IRS and 23 that you post our questions and the answers on your web site. In fact, as you yourself argued so effectively last July, this 24 would be tantamount to our agreeing not to have our questions answered. To use your own words, this approach “would 25 allow for delay, obfuscation, confusion and to otherwise bring to ruin” what we have so patiently, intelligently,
26 professionally and rationally developed into a proper petition for a remedy of the people’s grievances.

27 I now fear for the future of our Constitutional Republic. A constitutional crisis has now developed. Whether we have a
28 written Constitution that protects our unalienable rights as Americans is now a question. Whether the Constitution is any 29 more than a piece of paper is now a question. Whether we have a federal government limited by a Constitution and Bill of 30 Rights is now a question.

31 Here is what I have decided must now be done in response to the decision by DOJ and IRS not to participate in the public,
32 recorded truth-in-taxation hearing on February 27-28, and also your decision last Thursday to withdraw your commitment 33 to support this public forum.

34 First: Last week I spoke to your aide, Sallie Taylor, to request a meeting with you as soon as possible. She said your 35 calendar would not allow such a meeting before Wednesday, January 23rd, and that she would have to speak with you to see 36 if that is what you wanted to do. My purpose is to respectfully request that you reconsider your decision to cancel the 37 February meeting.

38 Second: We plan to proceed with a recorded, public forum on February 27 and 28 in Washington DC. Because of the 39 importance of this issue to the American People, we hope that you will decide to help us hold this event as planned in the 40 secure location of the Science and Technology Committee Hearing Room. However, in the alternative, we have booked the 41 Marriott Hotel for the two days.

42 Third: I am attaching to this letter our initial set of questions relating to the fraudulent origin of the IRS and the unlawful 43 operation of the income tax system. These are the preliminary questions that we intend to present to the IRS and DOJ at 44 the February meeting. We are releasing these questions several weeks earlier than planned. We have a number of additional 45 questions currently being prepared that will be released upon completion. By copy of this letter to Attorney General

1 Ashcroft, Treasury Secretary O'Neil and Mr. Lawrence B. Lindsey, we are demanding that experts from DOJ and IRS be
2 present on February 27 and 28 to answer the questions in a public forum. As you previously stated, the written exchange of 3 questions and answers with DOJ and IRS would be utterly futile.

4 Fourth: We are posting the questions on our web site along with an invitation for all learned persons to answer these
5 questions and participate in the February 27 and 28 hearing. We will request that interested parties contact us by e-mail
6 using a prepared form.

7 Fifth: We will extend an invitation to the February 27 and 28 event to every organization, large or small, that is concerned
8 about the protection, preservation and enhancement of human liberty in America, and that is interested in limiting the size,
9 scope and costs of the federal government to the enumerated powers of the Constitution.

10 It is now imperative to summon all patriots in this cause for liberty and justice. It is time to ask all right thinking
11 Americans to stand united and put a collective foot down against this arrogant disregard for our liberties, rights and
12 freedoms, whether it be an erosion of our right to petition the government for a redress of grievances, our right to
13 privacy, our right to property, our right to firearms, our right to fully-informed juries, our right to honest
14 representation and voting, our right to a truly independent judiciary, our freedom from the influence of the "same
15 hands" in all three branches, our right to honest checks and balances, our right to the fruits of our labor, our right
16 not to have the government waste the fruits of our labor under the pretense of caring for us, our right to laws that 17 do not favor public over private education, our right to home school our children, our right to have the war powers
18 clauses adhered to, our right to have all treaties approved by the Senate, et al.

19 If the DOJ and the IRS do attend the event and provide honest, forthright answers to the people's questions relating to the 20 authority of the IRS to force employers to withhold the income tax from the paychecks of their employees and to force
21 most Americans to file a tax return and to pay the tax, we believe the probable outcome will be a more limited federal 22 government, a cleansing of our political system and a restoration of power to the states and the people.

23 Sixth: We are calling on all patriotic Americans to help reveal the truth regarding the true limits to the federal taxing
24 powers by standing up for our Country and its founding principles. In light of the decision by DOJ and IRS to ignore the 25 People's fundamental, Constitutional right to petition our government for a redress of these grievances, we are respectfully
26 requesting all Americans to:

- 27 1) Demand that the IRS and DOJ attend the February hearing and publicly answer the questions, as they 28 committed to do last July.
- 29 2) Wait to file their tax returns at least until February 27th. If IRS and DOJ fail to appear at the citizens'
30 hearing to answer the People's questions, we will then respectfully request every American citizen and 31 business to defer filing of their tax returns and suspend employee withholding. The American People 32 should not be obligated to pay a tax that the federal government will not, and cannot, publicly defend on 33 lawful or moral grounds.
- 34 3) Stand together on the mall in Washington DC on Sunday, ~~March 31~~ April 14, 2002, and peacefully 35 protest the unlawful income tax by filing their blank 1040 forms in metal waste drums.

36 Congressman Bartlett, do we still have a written Constitution in America? Do we still have a Bill of Rights? Do those 37 documents still memorialize in writing what we believe most deeply in our hearts as Americans? Or have they become 38 mere abstract concepts that have no real bearing on our moral conduct as country? What good is our Constitution and Bill
39 of Rights if we do not treasure them and protect them?

40 It has been said that the limits of tyrants are prescribed by the tolerance of those whom they oppress.

41 I, for one, will not accept the decision by the DOJ and the IRS (our servant government) not to answer the People's
42 questions in a recorded public forum---a decision that continues a longstanding history of unlawful, abusive and 43 unaccountable conduct by our government. The refusal of DOJ and IRS to answer these questions in a public forum can 44 only be interpreted as a glaring admission of guilt.

45 Congressman Bartlett, you gave your word to the American People. I respectfully ask that you keep your word to protect 46 and defend our Constitution at this critical moment in America's history.

1 Wholeheartedly,

2

For over three years, this book made frequent reference to the original 40 U.S.C §255 to point out that there is no federal jurisdiction inside states of the Union. This section of the codes had remained intact and unchanged for over 62 years. Eventually, the Congress caught onto the fact that this section of code plainly showed the limits on their jurisdiction so in August 2002, they tried to hide the truth by splitting the section into two sections found in 40 U.S.C. §3111 and §3112 and by complicating the language in these two sections.

When the statute was broken up and restated, the notes section had the relevant quotes from the Supreme Court removed so that the implications of no federal jurisdiction within states of the Union would be less obvious and harder to find.

6.5.8 Cover-Up of 1988: Changed Title of Part I, Subchapter N to Make it Refer Only to Foreign Income

Prior to 1988, the title of Part I of Subchapter N (which begins with Section 861) was “Determination of sources of income” (which is still the heading of the related regulations). In 1988, this title was changed to “Source rules and other general rules relating to foreign income.” It should be mentioned that while titles of parts may give an indication of what the part is about, the title has no effect on the actual legal application.

“...nor shall any table of contents, table of cross references, or similar outline, analysis, or descriptive matter relating to the contents of this title be given any legal effect.”
[26 U.S.C. §7806(b)]

So when the title was changed (but the text of the law was not), the application of the law did not change. What changed was the appearance of the table of contents. Prior to the change, in light of the fact that the income tax applies to “income from whatever source derived,” the table of contents made the relevance of 26 U.S.C. §861 obvious:

Subtitle A, “Income taxes”
Chapter I, “Normal taxes and surtaxes”
Subchapter N, “Tax based on income from sources within or without the United States”
Part I, “Determination of sources of income”
Section 861, “Income from sources within the United States”
(a) “Gross income from sources within the United States”
(b) “Taxable income from sources within the United States”

When the title of Part I was changed, and the new title stated that the part was about “foreign income,” it no longer appeared to be an obvious place for most people to look when determining their taxable income. This would certainly have the effect of drawing attention away from Section 861. Many tax professionals concede that Section 861 and the related regulations show income to be taxable only when it comes from certain activities related to international and foreign commerce. The new title gives the appearance that the part has no relevance to most people, and should not even be examined.

But this change resulted in a curious situation: a part whose title says it is about “foreign income” is identified as the part which (along with the related regulations) “determine[s] the sources of income for purposes of the income tax.”

6.5.9 Cover-Up of 1986: Obfuscation of IRC Section 931

Since 26 U.S.C. §61 does not indicate the fact that "gross income" is restricted to specific property the I.R. Code had to detail this fact elsewhere. This is accomplished in section 931.

Prior to 1986, section 931 of the 1954 I.R. Code provided the exact terms as to what income is deemed to be "gross income" in the I.R. Code in this manner:

Sec. 931. INCOME FROM SOURCES WITHIN POSSESSIONS OF THE UNITED STATES [provided in part]

(a) General rule.

In the case of individual citizens of the United States, gross income means only gross income from sources within the United States if the conditions of both paragraph (1) and paragraph (2) are satisfied:

(1) 3-year period. If 80 percent or more of the gross income of such citizen...was derived from sources within a possession of the United States; and

(2) Trade or business. If 50 percent or more of his gross income was derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession of the United States either on his own account or as an employee or agent of another.

(h) Employees of the United States

For purposes of this section, amounts paid for services performed by a citizen of the United States as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof shall be deemed to be derived from sources within the United States.

Chapters 4 and 5 laid the foundation for understanding that "within" and "without" in conjunction with the "United States" means within or without the United States Government. This section 931 confirms this by saying that "gross income" MEANS ONLY gross income from sources within a possession of the United States and from the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession of the United States. The 50 States of the United States of America are not possessions of the United States. But, Federal areas within the 50 States are deemed to be possessions (definition in chapter 14). The U.S. Congress can only pass laws for United States possessions and laws with regard to income only when the U.S. Government is the source of the income within its possession. This is the reason for having to state that the pay of employees of the United States is deemed to be derived from sources within the United States.

The old section 931 is provided to demonstrate the difference between it and the current section 931. In the 1954 I.R. Code, the source was emphasized, whereas in the 1986 I.R. Code the place is emphasized and the source of one's income is concealed. By adding vagueness, the intent could only be to mislead. This is part of the IRS humbug.

The 1986 I.R. Code section 931 reads in part:

Sec. 931. INCOME FROM SOURCES WITHIN GUAM, AMERICAN SAMOA, OR THE NORTHERN MARIANA ISLANDS

(a) GENERAL RULE.--In the case of an individual who is a bona fide resident of a specified possession during the entire taxable year, gross income shall not include--

(1) income derived from sources within any specified possession, and

(2) income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business by such individual within any specified possession.

(c) SPECIFIC POSSESSIONS.--For purposes of this section, the term "specific possession" means Guam, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands.

(d) SPECIAL RULES.--For purposes of this section--

(1) EMPLOYEE OF THE UNITED STATES.--Amounts paid for services performed as an employee of the United States (or any agency thereof) shall be treated as not described in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a).

Inverse construction similar to that used in section 6012 is used here. Unlike the old section 931 (which made a definite statement restricting the meaning of gross income) section 931 in the 1986 I.R. Code excludes certain income from "gross income" and then, pursuant to section 931(d), excludes amounts paid to Federal Government employees from the exclusion. This accomplished the same result as section 931(h) of the 1954 I.R. Code where amounts paid to anyone for performance of personal services as an employee of the United States was deemed to be "gross income" without regard to any formulas put forth in section 931(a) of the 1954 I.R. Code for "individuals" employed by the U.S. Government by virtue of a trade or business effectively connected within the United States. Again showing that the term "within the United States" means within the U.S. Government and that income from sources other than the U.S. Treasury is foreign to the jurisdiction of the IRS.¹⁹¹

¹⁹¹ 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) defines that other sources of income are part of a "foreign estate and trust".

1 With section 931(a) and (d) of the 1986 I.R. Code, Congress is saying that "gross income" does not include income
 2 received by an individual (Federal Government employee) who is a bona fide resident of a specified possession when that
 3 income was derived from sources within the specified possession or if the income was effectively connected with the
 4 conduct of a trade or business by such individual (Federal Government employee) within any specified possession unless
 5 the U.S. Government was the source of the income. Since there is equal treatment under the laws of the United States of 6 America, this cannot be limited to persons who are bona fide residents of these specified possessions. The fact that "gross
 7 income" does not include what anyone receives from a source other than the U.S. Government applies to anyone. But, by 8 emphasizing specified possessions, there is enough vagueness injected to cloud the fact the source of the income, not the 9 place, is the controlling factor. The fact that the term "gross income" in the I.R. Code includes only income derived from 10 the U.S. Government as compensation "for services performed as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof"
 11 is demonstrated here (also see section 3401(a) in chapter 6). You cannot enter into an employment agreement with a place,
 12 the employer must be the source. Again confirming it is legal kickback pursuant to employment agreements which control
 13 whether income is "gross income" subject to the I.R. Code laws.

14 6.5.10 Cover-Up of 1982: Footnotes Removed from IRC Section 61 Pointing to Section 861

15 The Code contains many footnotes and references to allow readers to search back and trace the origins and evolution of 16 laws and regulations, since this often clarifies intent. IRC 61(a) on gross income used to have a footnote informing readers
 17 that it came from Section 22(a) of the 1939 Code and that the law hadn't been changed. The footnote said, "Source: Sec.
 18 22(a), 1939 Code, substantially unchanged." That footnote was in the 1954 version of the Internal Revenue Code at least 19 up to the 1982 edition, but then it vanished, making it difficult for tax professionals to understand how the wording has 20 been deceptively altered, leading to misapplication of the law. Constitutional limitations discussed above were thus 21 hidden.

22 Deletion of the footnote has also made it much more difficult to notice and understand the close connection between IRC
 23 61 and IRC 861 (or CFR 1.61 and CFR 1.861), especially as 26 CFR §1.861 is now thousands of pages distant from 26
 24 CFR § 1.61, and in the earlier versions, the section was not numbered 861, but 119. In pre-1954 versions, the "gross
 25 income" regulations under Section 22(a) mentioned the taxable sources as income of nonresident aliens and foreign
 26 corporations doing business in the U.S. and its possessions and profits of citizens, residents, and domestic corporations
 27 derived from foreign commerce. The same sources were described in the regulations under IRC 119 "Income from sources
 28 within the United States."

29 The 1921 version was even more clear (and the law hasn't materially changed since then). It said explicitly "that in the case
 30 of a nonresident alien individual or of a citizen entitled to the benefits of section 262, the following items of gross income
 31 shall be treated as income from sources within the United States." (IRC 262 applied if at least 80% of a citizen's gross
 32 income was from a U.S. possession.)

33 In 1954, while the law still hadn't materially changed, the regulations were changed so that the "foreign" sources were 34 omitted from the "gross income" description in CFR 1.61(a), but remained in the regulations as CFR 1.861 (renumbered 35 from the regulations previously under IRC 119). Wording was put in those regulations stating that they "determine the 36 sources of income for purposes of the income tax," and they stated that it was the foreign sources noted below that were the 37 sources. These sources today are the ones listed in 26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(1).

38 6.5.11 Cover-Up of 1978: Confused IRS Regulations on "Sources"

39 In 1978, the wording of 26 CFR §1.861-8 was changed significantly, and the title was changed from "Computation of 40 Taxable Income from Sources Within the United States" to "Computation of taxable income from sources within the 41 United States and from other sources and activities." Some have suggested that the current title implies that one should 42 not be using this section unless he has income both from within the United States and from "other sources and activities."
 43 The older title, as well as the text of the current regulations, shows that this is not the case.

44 Another change regarding 26 CFR §1.861 that can only be seen as an intent to deceive occurred in 1978. 26 CFR §1.861-8,
 45 which contains the key list of sources, went from less than one page before 1978 to more than forty pages. There was no
 46 underlying change in the law or even in the substance of the regulation, but the regulation became a maze of new phrases,
 47 such as "statutory groupings," or "operative sections," or "specific sources" that require much more effort to sort out, but

1 lead to the same conclusion as before. There can no other explanation for such a masterpiece of regulatory obfuscation but
 2 the intent to confuse, obscure, deceive and defraud. Those who claim that IRC 861 is not relevant to citizens should explain
 3 why officials would go to such great lengths to obfuscate what would otherwise be a relatively little-used part of the Code.
 4 If it didn't apply to most citizens, such a masterful job of creating confusion would be a waste of lawyerly talent.

5 It's well worth the government's while to have the cleverest lawyers and officials try to keep playing with the wording of 6 the income tax Code and regulations to further disguise the true meaning of the law without actually changing it, in order to 7 make it appear that most citizens are required to file and pay even if they aren't. The payoff to the government is enormous 8 - several hundred billion dollars a year.

9 6.5.12 Cover-Up of 1954: Hiding of Constitutional Limitations in IRC On Congress' Right To Tax

10 Here is a brief summary of what we will discuss in this section below, as far as what congress changed in the law:

- 11 1. Deleted any phrases referring to income that is, under the Constitution or fundamental law, not taxable by the 12 government. This was done by changing the definition of gross income from "unless exempt from tax by law" to 13 "unless excluded by law". There were no changes to the law or the Constitution that would necessitate deleting the 14 reference to the Constitution; it was done for no other credible reason than to obscure the Constitutionally-limited 15 application of the income tax, but without making the regulation technically incorrect - only deceiving and misleading.
- 16 2. Obfuscated locating taxable sources by adding double-negatives "list of sources that are NOT considered tax exempt".
 17 Why not just state what IS taxable, which is foreign income?
- 18 3. Removed from the regulations the phrase "in the case of nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations
 19 engaged in trade or business within the United States" from the regulations in section 1.861-8. This made it appear that 20 the applicability of the income tax was expanded. ." As Congress stated, the application of the law did not change in 21 1954, but some key phrases in the regulations were removed so as to make the truth less obvious.
- 22 4. The admission of the limited application vanished from the regulations defining "gross income," but remained in the 23 regulations under 26 U.S.C. §861, and (to maintain literal accuracy) the regulations began to say that 861 and
 24 following and related regulations "determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax." This change
 25 removed any chance of the regulations under Section 61 raising suspicions.

26 In 1954, the Code underwent a major rearranging and renumbering (and to some extent, rewording). This change-over did
 27 not substantially change the law itself, but simply rearranged it. While there have been several amendments, the current 28 Code retains the same general structure, numbering and content of the 1954 Code. At the time of the 1954
 29 "transformation" of the Code, several changes helped to conceal the truth about the limited application of the federal 30 income tax.

31 As shown above, the regulations in 1945 specifically stated (twice) that some income not exempt by statute was 32 nonetheless exempt from federal taxation because of the Constitution. The 1945 regulations under the definition of "gross 33 income" began as follows:

34 "Sec. 29.22(a)-1. What included in gross income.
 35 Gross income includes in general [items of income listed] derived from any source whatever, unless exempt
 36 from tax by law." [1945 regulations]

37 Those regulations then went on to explain that this refers to income exempt by statute or "fundamental law," meaning the 38 Constitution. The current corresponding regulations begin in a similar manner:

39 "Sec. 1.61-1 Gross income. (a) General definition. Gross income means all income from whatever source 40 derived, unless excluded by law."
 41 [26 CFR §1.61-1]

42 However, no mention of the Constitution remains. The phrase "unless excluded by law" is now read as being synonymous
 43 with "unless excluded by statute." The Constitutional limitations still apply (there have been no subsequent constitutional 44 amendments relative to the taxing power), but the present regulations under 26 U.S.C. §61 do not explicitly say that this is 45 part of the "law" which exempts certain income. Instead, they use the general wording that leaves the reader free to assume 46 that only income specifically exempted by statute is exempt from taxation.

1 But this was only one part of a major shift in the structure of the Great Deception that occurred in 1954. Prior to 1954, the
 2 regulations stated that “gross income” included everything not exempt, and then made clear that some types of income were 3 not taxable by the federal government because of the Constitution. The regulations regarding “What included in gross
 4 income” then went on to say the following:

5 “Profits of citizens, residents, or domestic corporations derived from sales in foreign commerce must be
 6 included in their gross income; but special provisions are made for nonresident aliens and foreign
 7 corporations... and, in certain cases... for citizens and domestic corporations deriving income from sources
 8 within possessions of the United States.”

9 This list of taxable activities is absent from the current regulations under 26 U.S.C. §61. However, something very similar 10 is found in the current regulations under Section 861. The regulations under Section 861 twice define the term “class of 11 gross income,” saying that a “class of gross income” “may consist of one or more items... of gross income enumerated in
 12 section 61.” The regulations then refer the reader to “paragraph (d)(2) of this section which provides that a class of gross
 13 income may include excluded income.” In other words, the “items” of income listed in Section 61 are not necessarily 14 taxable, but may be “exempt” or “excluded” from the federal income tax. Paragraph (d)(2) states only “[Reserved]”
 15 (meaning there is no current regulation) but refers the reader to paragraph (d)(2) of the temporary regulations at 26 CFR
 16 §1.861-8T. This section describes what is meant by exempt income.

17 “(ii) Exempt income and exempt asset defined--(A) In general. For purposes of this section, the term exempt
 18 income means any income that is, in whole or in part, exempt, excluded, or eliminated for federal income tax 19 purposes.”
 20 [26 CFR §1.861-8T(d)(2)(ii)]

21 The section then goes on to specify what is not exempt. The following should be read carefully, since it starts with a 22 double negative. If a certain kind of income is not exempt, it means it is subject to the federal income tax. Therefore, after 23 being told that “items” of income (which make up “classes of gross income”) may not be taxable, a list is given of the types
 24 of income which are subject to the federal income tax:

25 “(iii) Income that is not considered tax exempt. The following items are not considered to be exempt, 26 eliminated, or excluded income and, thus, may have expenses, losses, or other deductions allocated and 27 apportioned to them:
 28 (A) In the case of a foreign taxpayer...
 29 (B) In computing the combined taxable income of a DISC or FSC...
 30 (C) For all purposes under subchapter N of the Code... the gross income of a possessions corporation...
 31 (D) Foreign earned income as defined in section 911 and the regulations thereunder...”
 32 [26 CFR §1.861-8T(d)(2)(iii)]

33 This is the entire list of non-exempt (taxable) income. The idea that other types of income are also taxable (not exempt), 34 despite not being listed, is contradicted by the regulations stating that paragraph (d)(2) “provides that a class of gross
 35 income [consisting of the “items” of income listed in 26 U.S.C. §61] may include excluded income.” Unless those types of 36 income not listed are exempt, paragraph (d)(2) does not show that the “items” of income listed in Section 61 may be 37 exempt. (A basic principle of law is that such a list is assumed to be exclusive and complete, unless a phrase such as 38 “including, but not limited to...” is used.)

39 While it is arranged and worded differently, this list of non-exempt income is essentially the same as the regulations under 40 the old statute defining “gross income.” It lists foreign earned income of citizens, income from within possessions, and 41 income of foreigners. But while the 1945 regulations listed these “non-exempt” activities under the regulations defining 42 “gross income,” they are currently buried in dozens of pages of less prominent regulations under 26 U.S.C. §861. So while 43 the 1945 statute and regulation defining “gross income” by themselves indicated the limited application of the law, the trail
 44 to find the truth in the current law is more involved (though the end conclusion is the same).

45 The basic shift in the Great Deception (in 1954) can be summed up as this: While the older version showed the limitations
 46 of the law in “step one” (the definition of “gross income”), the current statute and regulation defining “gross income” use
 47 the word “source” without further explanation, and additional steps must be followed to discover that the meaning of that 48 term (“source”) is determined by 26 U.S.C. §861 and following, and related regulations.

49 Prior to 1954, the regulations did not say that Section 119 (predecessor to the current 861) and its regulations “determined
 50 the sources of income for purposes of the income tax.” Instead, the regulations under 22(a) (defining “gross income”) list

1 the exact same activities as Section 119 when discussing income from within the United States. In effect, both the
 2 regulations defining “gross income,” and Section 119 and related regulations “determined the sources of income for 3 purposes of the income tax.”

4 (The regulations defining “gross income” mention “nonresident aliens and foreign corporations by sections 211 to 237,
 5 inclusive, and, in certain cases, by section 251 for citizens and domestic corporations deriving income from sources within
 6 possessions of the United States.” At the same time the regulations under 119 mention “nonresident alien individuals,
 7 foreign corporations, and citizens of the United States or domestic corporations entitled to the benefits of section 251.”)

8 In 1954, the admission of the limited application vanished from the regulations defining “gross income,” but remained in
 9 the regulations under 26 U.S.C. §861, and (to maintain literal accuracy) the regulations began to say that 861 and following
 10 and related regulations “determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax.” This change removed any 11 chance of the regulations under Section 61 raising suspicions.

12 (The way federal law works, there is no requirement that a section which uses a term point to where the definition or 13 explanation of that term can be found. As ludicrous as it seems, it would be perfectly legal for Section 1 of some law to 14 impose a tax “on the transfer of each automobile,” and then have Section 14523(g)(4)(iii) say that “for the purposes of 15 Section 1, the term ‘automobile’ means a blue Corvette owned by a foreigner.” That is in essence how the Great Deception 16 has been structured since 1954.)

17 While this makes the truth more difficult (but certainly not impossible) to demonstrate with the current statutes and 18 regulations alone, in retrospect it strongly confirms the limited nature of the tax, by showing that while the structure of 19 deception has changed, the conclusion remains the same.

20 But the regulations defining “gross income” were not the only place where the truth became less clear during the 1954
 21 “transformation.” When the statutes were being rearranged and renumbered, Section 119 of the 1939 Code became all of 22 Part I of Subchapter N. The Senate report on the 1954 Code states the following:

23 “SUBCHAPTER N - TAX BASED ON INCOME FROM SOURCES
 24 WITHIN OR WITHOUT THE UNITED STATES

25 PART I - Determination of Sources of Income

26 § 861. Income from sources within the United States

27 § 862. Income from sources without the United States

28 § 863. Items not specified in section 861 or 862

29 § 864. Definitions

30 These sections, which are identical with sections 861-864 of the House bill, correspond to section 119 of the 1939 Code.
 31 No substantive change is made, except that section 861(a)(3) would extend the existing 90-day $3,000 rule in the case of a 32 nonresident alien employee of a foreign employer to a nonresident alien employee of a foreign branch of a domestic 33 employer.”

34 Congress here states that the application of the law did not change (except for the specific detail mentioned). As would be 35 expected, the statutes are nearly identical.

36 Sec. 119. [1939 Code] Income from sources within the United States

37 (a) Gross Income from Sources in United States.

38 The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources within the United States:...

39 Sec. 861 [current Code]. Income from sources within the United States

40 (a) Gross income from sources within United States

42 Section 119 of the old statutes and Section 861 of the current statutes use general terms that could easily be misread as 43 applying to any income from within the United States. But while the statutes did not change, the honesty of the regulations
 44 corresponding to these sections changed dramatically. The older regulations admitted the truth so plainly and so often that 45 no step-by-step explanation is needed. The following is the equivalent of the current 26 CFR §1.861-1, in its entirety.

 2 Nonresident alien individuals, foreign corporations, and citizens of the United States or domestic corporations
 3 entitled to the benefits of section 251 [this applies only to those who receive a large percentage of their income
 4 from within federal possessions] are taxable only upon income from sources within the United States. Citizens
 5 of the United States and domestic corporations entitled to the benefits of section 251 are, however, taxable upon
 6 income received within the United States, whether derived from sources within or without the United States.
 7 (See sections 212(a), 231(c), and 251.)

8 The Internal Revenue Code divides the income of such taxpayers into three classes:
 9 (1) Income which is derived in full from sources within the United States;
 10 (2) Income which is derived in full from sources without the United States;
 11 (3) Income which is derived partly from sources within and partly from sources without the United States.

12 The taxable income from sources within the United States includes that derived in full from sources within the 13 United States and that portion of the income which is derived partly from sources within and partly from 14 sources without the United States which is allocated or apportioned to sources within the United States.”

15 Note that the second paragraph in the old regulations under Section 119 states that the Code (specifically Section 119) is for 16 determining taxable income of “such taxpayers,” meaning those deriving income from specific taxable activities or 17 sources. The general language of the statutes is applicable only to those involved in certain types of international and 18 foreign commerce.

19 The subsequent sections of the older regulations (like the current regulations) then deal with specific “items” of income.
 20 The sections of regulations following that (which correspond to the current 26 CFR §1.861-8) then deal with determining 21 taxable income from sources within the United States. Again, the regulations clearly show the limited application of the 22 law.

 24 The deductions provided for in chapter 1 shall be allowed to nonresident alien individuals and foreign
 25 corporations engaged in trade or business within the United States, and to citizens of the United States and 26 domestic corporations entitled to the benefits of section 251, only if and to the extent provided in sections 213,
 27 215, 232, 233, and 251.

 29 From the items specified in sections 29.119-1 to 29.119-6, inclusive, as being derived specifically from sources
 30 within the United States there shall, in the case of nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations
 31 engaged in trade or business within the United States, be deducted [allowable deductions]. The remainder 32 shall be included in full as net income from sources within the United States...”

33 Regarding income from within the United States, the older regulations defining “gross income” describe the exact same 34 taxable activities as the regulations of that time related to “income from sources within the United States” (namely,
 35 nonresident aliens and foreign corporations getting income from within the United States, and citizens and domestic 36 corporations who receive much of their income from within federal possessions). “No substantive change” was made when 37 Section 119 became Sections 861 and following, which implies that Section 119 and its regulations “determine[d] the 38 sources of income for purposes of the income tax” (as the current regulations state). The older regulations did not need to 39 say this, since the regulations defining “gross income” also specifically listed what activities could generate taxable income.
 40 So in 1945, the regulations defining “gross income” and the regulations under the old Section 119 “determine[d] the 41 sources of income for purposes of the income tax.” Today only the regulations under Section 861 list the taxable activities.

42 (There is a chart in section 3.15.5 of this document showing the outline and excerpts from Part I of Subchapter N and 43 related regulations, and another chart showing the outline and excerpts from the corresponding statutes and regulations 44 from before 1954.)

 46 citizens living and working within the 50 union states as taxable?

47 Can it be considered an accident that the current regulations are so overly-complex and confusing, while the older
 48 regulations blurted out the truth in plain English in the very first sentence? The fact that the statutes apply only to income 49 from certain “specific sources” (relating to international and foreign commerce) is still stated in the current regulations, but 50 rather than being in first sentence, it is buried deep in the jumbled mess:

1 “(ii) Relationship of sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b). Sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b) are the four
2 provisions applicable in determining taxable income from specific sources.”
3 [26 CFR §1.861-8(f)(3)(ii)]

4 In fact, even here it does not specify to which “specific sources” it is referring; the meaning of that term has to be
5 discovered by searching elsewhere in the regulations. (Three other sections of the regulations say that “specific sources”
6 means the taxable activities described in the “operative sections” throughout Subchapter N.) The regulations prior to 1954
7 were short, plain, and very clear about who they applied to. (While many tax professionals are now aware of the correct
8 application of Section 861 and its regulations, it certainly is not evident at first glance.)

9 When the regulations changed in 1954, they did not change directly into what the regulations are today. The current maze
10 of “statutory groupings,” “specific sources,” “operative sections,” etc. did not come about until 1978. Of particular note is 11 how the regulations in 26 CFR §1.861-8 appeared just after the change in 1954, and how the corresponding regulations
12 appeared prior to 1954. The wording was only very slightly changed, but gives one of the most obvious examples of intent 13 to deceive.

15 The wording is nearly identical, except for two changes. The phrase stating that the whole section applies only to
16 nonresident aliens and foreign corporations simply vanished! In addition, while the specifics of the example in the 17 regulation remained identical, the phrase “a nonresident alien individual” was replaced with “a taxpayer.” As Congress

1 stated, the application of the law did not change in 1954, but some key phrases in the regulations were removed so as to
 2 make the truth less obvious. A similar disappearance of a phrase occurred at the same time in the section of regulations
 3 dealing with the “item” of interest. The wording remained identical except for the disappearing phrase.

7 6.5.13 1952: Office of Collector of Internal Revenue Eliminated

8 The Office of the Collector of Internal Revenue abolished. See Reorganization Plans No. 26 of 1950 and No. 1 of 1952, 9 and Notes under 26 U.S.C. §7804, “Amendments” at:

10 <http://www4.law.cornell.edu/uscode/26/7804.notes.html>

11 As part of this reorganization, the government manufactured a scandal concerning the collectors. The real reason, however,
 12 was to make the code voluntary.

13 This office of the Collector of Internal Revenue made it possible to protest a tax. Without a Collector of Internal Revenue, 14 it is impossible to protest a tax because it has to be voluntary without a collector. Recall that earlier in section 5.4.5.6, we 15 pointed out that a free people can only be free if they consent to their taxation. There are two ways to consent:

- 16 1. Indirectly consent by electing a Collector of Internal Revenue or have him appointed by a person who was elected.
- 17 2. Directly consent by sending a donation form called a “tax return”, which gives the authority to the government to 18 take your money by virtue of the liability that you assessed against yourself.

19 If you don't make a liability to pay a tax in the law, then no one has an obligation to do anything. This reorganization of the 20 IRS made the process of tax collection into an administrative process which could only touch “volunteers” called 21 “taxpayers”. This made the U.S. District courts into administrative courts in regards to federal taxes. Administrative courts
 22 are “non-judicial” and are only there to hear cases where all parties appear by consent and confer jurisdiction on the court to
 23 resolve the matter by virtue of them appearing. The only people who should go to these courts are “taxpayers”, which are 24 people who volunteered to pay the tax. If you are a “nontaxpayer” or choose not to participate in income taxation, then you
 25 shouldn't appear in these courts and if you don't appear or are forced to appear involuntarily because you were extradited,
 26 simply refuse to plead and refuse to accept a public defender. That ends the jurisdiction of the court and they will 27 eventually have to let you go because of the requirement for habeus corpus.

1 Recall that the original office of the Collector was in the House of Representatives, which is part of the Legislative Branch.
2 The office of the Collector was created at 1 Stat. 65 of the Statutes at Large, before the Treasury Department even existed,
3 so he was in the Legislative branch. From the founding of this country, tax Collectors were private parties who were
4 bonded and who had to put their house up for surety with a federal lien while they were Collectors. If they collected
5 unlawfully, then they could lose their house and would have to forfeit their bond in order to compensate those they hurt.
6 The Collector was moved from the Legislative Branch to the Executive Branch in 1862, when the income tax was 7 restructured during the Civil War and without explanation or fanfare. This was a violation of the legislative intent of the 8 Constitution, which requires that taxation and representation must coexist with the same person, which could only be your 9 Representative in the House of Representatives: Taxation WITH representation. Once the taxation and representation 10 functions were separated to two separate branches of the government, then all of the corruption began because the 11 separation of powers doctrine had been violated.

12 Section 29 of the Revenue Act of 1894 was the last federal law that imposed a legal duty to pay upon citizens and residents
13 of the United States. The duty to pay the tax was subsequently eliminated by Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157
14 U.S. 429 (1895) and does not appear in any Revenue Law after that date.

15 6.5.14 Cover-Up of 1939: Removed References to Nonresident Aliens from the Definition of "Gross Income"

16 As shown above, some very telling phrases simply vanished from the regulations in 1954. But it was not only the 17 regulations that lost some honesty along the way. The statutes found in the Revenue Act of 1921 show why the regulations
18 said what they said up until 1954. But just as happened with the regulations, a telling phrase that existed in 1921 is no
19 longer found in the statutes. The current Section 861 and its predecessors have remained basically the same for more than 20 70 years. The text begins "The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources within the United 21 States:" The section then lists "items" of income (interest, dividends, compensation for labor, rents and royalties, etc.). In 22 1921 the section was very similar, but it began "That in the case of a nonresident alien individual or of a citizen entitled 23 to the benefits of section 262, the following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources within the
24 United States:..."

25 (While Section 217 itself mentions only individuals, Section 232 of the Act states that "[i]n the case of a foreign
26 corporation or of a corporation entitled to the benefits of section 262 the computation shall also be made in the manner
27 provided in section 217." As the current regulations and historical regulations state, the section is applicable to nonresident
28 aliens, foreign corporations, and citizen or domestic corporations which receive much of their income from within federal 29 possessions.)

1 Although it is obvious to whom this section applied in 1921, some may question whether this is at all relevant to current
2 law. Treasury Decision 8687, in discussing what the regulations under the current 26 U.S.C. §863 should say (regarding 3 sales of natural resources), specifically refer to Section 217 of the 1921 Code in trying to determine the “legislative intent”
4 of Congress.

5 “The legislative history to section 863’s predecessor, section 217(e) of the Revenue Act of 1921, also reflects 6 an intention that...”
7 [Treasury Decision 8687]

8 This Treasury Decision, passed in late 1996, confirms that Section 217 of the Revenue Act of 1921 is the predecessor of the 9 current Part I of Subchapter N, and shows that the IRS still refers to the 1921 Code to determine the proper application of 10 the current Code. The Internal Revenue Manual shows that the courts, as well as the IRS, considers legislative history 11 when determining the correct application of the law.

12 “The courts give great importance to the literal language of the Code but the language does not solve every tax
13 controversy. Courts also consider the history of a particular code section...”
14 [Internal Revenue Manual, (4.2)7.2.1.1]

15 When the phrase disappeared from the statutes after 1921, the application of the law did not change. What changed was 16 how easily the truth could be found.

17 6.5.15 1932: Revenue Act of 1932 imposes first excise income tax on federal judges and public officers

18 Congress knew from past court actions that Federal judges already in office would not permit impairment of their existing 19 contracts. By changes in the wording in the Revenue Act of 1932, c. 209, to read:

20 Sec. 22...In the case of Presidents of the United States and judges of courts of the United States taking office
21 *after June 6, 1932, the compensation received as such shall be included in gross income; and all Acts fixing
22 the compensation of such Presidents and judges are hereby amended accordingly.

23 Congress managed to get the cooperation of Federal judges taking office after June 6, 1932. Cooperation is evidenced by 24 acceptance of the job.

25 Note that this change in wording accomplished two things. First, by specifying that it applied to judges taking office after 26 June 6, 1932 it did not affect existing employment contracts. Hence existing judges could not say it diminished their 27 compensation. Secondly, the working of "all Acts are hereby amended accordingly" means that new judges are informed
28 up front that their employment contract includes a kickback in the compensation. Just like other Federal Government
29 employees, their compensation for labor was the amount arranged for under law by Congress less the kickback, which 30 varies depending on the deduction benefits available to each judge.¹⁹² Judges could have challenged the lawfulness based 31 on unequal pay for like work, but then that argument would hold true for all other Federal Government employees as well.

32 The effect of this Act upon the compensation of judges who enter into a new employment agreement is brought out by the 33 court cases after 1932. For example, in O’Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277 (1939), Judge Woodrough brought action
34 when his compensation as an Appeals Court judge was assessed. He had been a U.S. District Court judge prior to accepting 35 his new position with the Appellate Court in 1933. The Supreme Court Justices decided that judges of courts of the United 36 States taking office after June 6, 1932, had agreed to allow their salary to be deemed "gross income" and subject to a legal 37 kickback. In other words, they agreed that, as a condition of employment, the salary of judges as set by Congress--as with 38 all other Federal Government employees--includes their remuneration for personal service (income) and a kickback (gain)
39 to the U.S. Government.¹⁹³ In essence, the Supreme Court said to Judge Woodrough--tough cookies, when you accepted a 40 higher position, you agreed to a new employment contract and accepted the employment condition of kickback that all
41 judges taking office after June 6, 1932 accepted.

¹⁹² The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals clarified this issue in Baker et al. v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 149 F.2d 342 (1945) with the statement:
"The necessary effect of the Woodrough case seems to us to be that a judge who takes office under an established Congressional policy of taxing his salary becomes entitled only to the salary prescribed by statute less income taxes, and that in consequence his salary is not diminished by the tax."

¹⁹³ The kickback is some part of the gain portion of "gross income" or "wages." The amount depends upon the deduction benefits claimed by the Federal Government employee upon a "U.S. Individual Income Tax Return."

1 As for periodic changes, it is no known if U.S. judges actually do agree and permit Congressional unilateral changes in
2 their employment contracts through the varying rates and deduction benefits. It they do, it certainly is contrary to their
3 tradition. To prove whether or not U.S. judges use current rates and deduction benefits or that which was in existence when 4 they first took office would require review of their "U.S. Individual Income Tax Returns," which is a violation of their 5 personal rights to privacy. So, it is something the public will never know, but the question is there.

6 6.5.16 1923: Classification Act, 42 Stat. 1488¹⁹⁴

7 This act was passed on March 4, 1923 as H.R. 8928. Chapter 265 created several custom terms and definitions to be used
8 throughout the government from that point on, including in subsequent Revenue Acts as well as the Internal Revenue Code,
9 first codified in the U.S. Code in the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. Among the important terms defined and subsequently 10 used in the I.R.C. include:

- 11 1. "department": "the term 'department' means an executive department of the United States Government, a 12 governmental establishment in the executive branch of the United States Government which is not a part of an 13 executive department, the municipal government of the District of Columbia, the Botanic garden, Library of Congress, 14 Library Building and Grounds, Government Printing Office, and the Smithsonian Institution."
- 15 2. "position": "means a specific civilian office or employment, whether occupied or vacant, in a department other than 16 the following: Offices or employments in the Postal Service; teachers, librarians, school attendance officers, and 17 employees of the community center department under the Board of Education of the District of Columbia; officers and 18 members of the Metropolitan police, the fire department of the District of Columbia, and the United States park police;
19 and the commissioned personnel of the Coast Guard, the public Health Service, and the Coast and Geodetic Survey."
- 20 3. "employee": "means any person temporarily or permanently in a position."
- 21 4. "service": "means the broadest division of related offices and employments."
- 22 5. "compensation": "means any salary, wage, fee, allowance, or other emolument paid to an employee for service in a 23 position."

24 Nearly all of the above definitions would be very carefully used to deceive the American public in subsequent acts of 25 Congress, because they would be misconstrued by the general public to have their common definition, rather than the very 26 specific legal definition above. This act much better concealed the nature of the I.R.C. Subtitle A income tax as an excise
27 tax upon the privileges incident to public office (e.g. "trade or business", see 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) by disguising hidden
28 meanings within the terms "compensation" and "services" and "employee", all of which, by the above act, can ONLY be 29 incident to service in the United States government as a public officer, whether elected or appointed.

30 The affect of this act carried over into the IRC's of 1954 and 1986 insofar as they merely restate relevant elements
31 incorporated in the 1939 version. It is particularly important in the modern I.R.C. Section 61 , "Gross Income Defined",
32 wherein "compensation for services" is listed as a specific "item of income" and its misleadingly ambiguous distinction
33 from "income derived", seen in the 1921 Revenue Act, is restored. The restoration was accompanied by a notation to the 34 effect that the reconstruction of the 1928 language (which the 1939 code section duplicated) represented no substantial
35 change in its meaning. Below is the content of 26 U.S.C. §61, "Gross Income Defined" so you can now apply the above
36 definitions properly. We have boldfaced and underlined the words from the above definitions contained in the 37 Classification Act and added bracketed material so you can clearly see the meanings:

38 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter B > PART 1 > § 61
39 § 61. Gross income defined

40
41 (a) General definition Except as otherwise provided in this subtitle, gross income means all income from 42 whatever source derived, including (but not limited to) the following items:

- 43 (1) Compensation for services [as a public official], including fees, commissions, fringe benefits, and similar 44 items;
- 45 (2) Gross income derived from [a trade or] business;
- 46 (3) Gains derived from dealings in property [within the District of Columbia, see 26 U.S.C. 871];
- 47 (4) Interest;
- 48 (5) Rents;
- 49 (6) Royalties;
- 50 (7) Dividends;
- 51 (8) Alimony and separate maintenance payments;

¹⁹⁴ Adapted from Cracking the Code, Pet Hendrickson, ISBN 0-9743936-0-6, pp. 52-53.

- 1 (9) Annuities;
- 2 (10) Income from life insurance and endowment contracts;
- 3 (11) Pensions;
- 4 (12) Income from discharge of indebtedness;
- 5 (13) Distributive share of partnership gross income;
- 6 (14) Income in respect of a decedent; and
- 7 (15) Income from an interest in an estate or trust [in the District of Columbia].

8 6.5.17 1918: “Gross income” first defined in the Revenue Act of 1918¹⁹⁵

9 The Revenue Act of 1918, c. 18, 40 Stat. 1057, enacted by Congress on February 24, 1919, specifically placed the 10 compensation for personal services of Federal judges and the U.S. President under the definition of "gross income" in an 11 attempt to bring them into the existing kickback program. That statute reads:

12 Sec. 213. That for the purposes of this title...the term "gross income"-

13 (a) Includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service
14 (including the case of the President of the United States, the judges of the Supreme and inferior courts of 15 the United States, and all other officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States,
16 Alaska, Hawaii, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, the compensation received as 17 such), of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses,
18 commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of 19 or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business
20 carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income derived from any source whatever....[emphasis
21 added]

22 You will note that Congress is making reference to gross income where the U.S. Government is the source of that income.
23 Again making it clear that ONLY the compensation for personal services for the labor of Federal Government employees is 24 includible in "gross income." The compensation of a person working in the private sector or for a state or local 25 government, which includes state judges, is not included. Therefore, the subject matter "gross income" in the I.R. Code
26 only applies to Federal Government employees. Income not derived from the U.S. Government is not subject to the I.R.
27 Code Laws. The sections of the current I.R. Code that provide this notice will be discussed in detail later.

28 The U.S. Government, like any other employer, can establish the terms of its own employment agreement. Legally the U.S
29 Government cannot unilaterally impose new conditions or terms to existing employment agreements with Federal 30 Government employees, which is confirmed by the stand the judges have taken and expressed in court opinions. Also,
31 Congress cannot legally establish the terms of an employment agreement in the private sector or make the U.S. Government 32 a party to such agreements.

33 6.5.18 1911: Judicial Code of 1911

34 This act abolished the existing circuit courts and replaced them with Circuit Courts of Appeals. The District Courts of the 35 United States became "United States District Courts". This left no Article III courts to hear cases involving constitutional
36 rights. All district and circuit courts became, at that point, Article II courts which may only have jurisdiction within 37 territories of the United States Government. These courts are part of the executive branch, not the judicial branch, of the 38 U.S. government. The judges in these Art. II courts are civil service employees of the Office of Personnel Management, 39 which is part of the Executive Branch. The judges are not judicial officers as required under Art. III of the Constitution, but 40 federal employees.

SEC. 289. The circuit courts of the United States, upon the taking effect of this Act, shall be, and hereby are, abolished; and thereupon, on said date, the clerks of said courts shall deliver to the clerks of the district courts of the United States for their respective districts all the journals, dockets, books, files, records, and other books and papers of or belonging to or in any manner connected with said circuit courts; and shall also on said date deliver to the clerks of said district courts all moneys, from whatever source received, then remaining in their hands or under their control as clerks of said circuit courts, or received by them by virtue of their said offices. The journals, dockets, books, files, records, and other books and papers so delivered to the clerks of the several district courts shall be and remain a part of the official records of said district courts, and copies thereof, when certified under the hand and seal of the clerk of the district court, shall be received as evidence equally with the originals thereof; and the clerks of the several district courts shall have the same authority to exercise all the powers and to perform all the duties with respect thereto as the clerks of the several circuit courts had prior to the taking effect of this Act.

SEC. 290. All suits and proceedings pending in said circuit courts on the date of the taking effect of this Act, whether originally brought therein or certified thereto from the district courts, shall thereupon and thereafter be proceeded with and disposed of in the district courts in the same manner and with the same effect as if originally begun therein, the record thereof being entered in the records of the circuit courts so transferred as above provided.

SEC. 291. Wherever, in any law not embraced within this Act, any reference is made to, or any power or duty is conferred or imposed upon, the circuit courts, such reference shall, upon the taking effect of this Act, be deemed and held to refer to, and to confer such power and impose such duty upon, the district courts.

SEC. 292. Wherever, in any law not contained within this Act, a reference is made to any law revised or embraced herein, such reference, upon the taking effect hereof, shall be construed to refer to the section of this Act into which has been carried or revised the provision of law to which reference is so made.

SEC. 293. The provisions of sections one to five, both inclusive, of the Revised Statutes, shall apply to and govern the construction of the provisions of this Act. The words "this title," wherever they occur herein, shall be construed to mean this Act.

SEC. 294. The provisions of this Act, so far as they are substantially the same as existing statutes, shall be construed as continuations thereof, and not as new enactments, and there shall be no implication of a change of intent by reason of a change of words in such statute, unless such change of intent shall be clearly manifest.

SEC. 295. The arrangement and classification of the several sections of this Act have been made for the purpose of a more convenient and orderly arrangement of the same, and therefore no inference or presumption of a legislative construction is to be drawn by reason of the chapter under which any particular section is placed.

SEC. 296. This Act may be designated and cited as "The Judicial Code."

6.5.19 1909: Corporate Excise Tax of 1909

Country's first income tax. The U.S. Supreme Court would later rule in Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920) that the word "income" may not be defined by Congress, and that it can only be defined by the Constitution. It also ruled in the case of Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., 271 U.S. 170, 174 (1926) that:

"Income has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (36 Stat. 112) in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed."
[Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., 271 U.S. 170, 174 (1926)]

All income tax acts under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code are based on the above, and are classified by the Supreme Court in Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916) as indirect taxes, which means they can only be excise taxes on privileges and may only fall on businesses and not directly on citizens:

"... [the 16th Amendment] conferred no new power of taxation... [and]... prohibited the ... power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the be ginning from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation to which it inherently belonged..."
[Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)]

6.5.20 1872: Office of the Assessor of Internal Revenue Eliminated

Functions of Assessor delegated to the Collector of Internal Revenue. See: 17 Statutes at Large 401, 42nd Congress, Session III Chapter XIII (December 24, 1872).

1 6.5.21 1862: First Tax on “Officers” of the U.S. Government¹⁹⁶

2 The impairment of the Federal Government employee employment contracts began with the kickback program that
3 Congress promulgated as law in the year 1862. Once the Federal Government kickback program was well established by 4 forced acceptance, employees and employers in the private sector were forced to believe that the terms of the Federal 5 Government employment agreements applied to them. Here is how it all happened.

6 Up until year 1862, Federal Government employees worked under the same kind of employment agreement as anyone who
7 agrees to exchange their time and talent for the personal property of an employer. Then, in 1862, the Thirty-seventh
8 Congress passed Ch. 119, 12 Stat. 472. Section 86 of that Public Law reads as follows:

9 SALARIES AND PAY OF OFFICERS AND PERSONS IN THE SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES, AND
10 PASSPORTS

11 Sec. 86. And be it further enacted, That on and after the first day of August, eighteen hundred and sixty-two,
12 there shall be levied, collected, and paid on all salaries of officers, or payments to persons in the civil, military,
13 naval, or other employment or service of the United States, including senators and representatives and 14 delegates in Congress, when exceeding the rate of six hundred dollars per annum, a duty of three per centum on 15 the excess above the said six hundred dollars; and it shall be the duty of all paymasters and all disbursing
16 officers, under the government of the United States, or in the employ thereof, when making any payments to 17 officers and persons as aforesaid, or upon settling and adjusting the accounts of such officers and persons, to 18 deduct and withhold the aforesaid duty of three per centum, and shall, at the same time, make a certificate 19 stating the name of the officer or person from whom such deduction was made, and the amount thereof, which 20 shall be transmitted to the office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and entered as part of the internal 21 duties; and the pay-roll, receipts, or account of officers or persons paying such duty, as aforesaid, shall be
22 made to exhibit the fact of such payment. ...[Balance of section 86 applied to passports]

23 First, you will note that it only applied to persons who received compensation for their services as an employee of the 24 United States. Secondly, although Congress placed this into a Tax Act, and implies it is an indirect tax by the use of the 25 word "duty," it cannot be a tax. A tax on labor would necessarily fall into the class of a direct tax that needs apportionment 26 to be constitutional.

27 Note also that the only persons required to make an accounting of the kickback in section 86 were the officers who made
28 the deductions and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, not the Federal Government employee. As you continue to 29 read, you will see that this is also true today.

30 The effect of section 86 identifies what it really is--a kickback of part of the property agreed under contract to be paid for 31 labor of Federal Government employees [see chapter 1, footnote 3]. With this Act, the amount of compensation agreed to 32 be paid was diminished by one party to the agreement (Congress) without the consent of the other (the Federal Government 33 employee). A unilateral change in the employment contract of all persons then employed by the Federal Government was 34 not legal just because Congress promulgated it as a law, and the conduct of U.S. judges proved this. The result of arranging 35 for the withholding of 3 percent of the compensation due Federal Government employees under existing contracts was 36 deprivation of liberty and property without due process of law, which is violative of the Fifth Amendment to the U.S.
37 Constitution.

38 The facts presented above were expressed by the Supreme Court in Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429
39 (1895), where they said:

40 Subsequently, in 1869, and during the administration of President Grant, when Mr. Boutwell was Secretary of 41 the Treasury and Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, was Attorney General, there were in several of the statutes of the 42 United States, for the assessment and collection of internal revenue, provisions for taxing the salaries of all
43 civil officers of the United States, which included, in their literal application, the salaries of the President and 44 of the judges of the United States. The question arose whether the law which imposes such a tax upon them was 45 constitutional. The opinion of the Attorney General thereon was requested by the Secretary of the Treasury.
46 *The Attorney General, in reply, gave an elaborate opinion advising the Secretary of the Treasury that no
47 income tax could be lawfully assessed and collected upon the salaries of those officers who were in office
48 at the time the statute imposing the tax was passed, holding on this subject the views expressed by Chief
49 Justice Taney. His opinion is published in volume XIII of the Opinions of the Attorneys General, at page 161. I

1 am informed that it has been followed ever since without question by the department supervising or directing
2 the collection of the public revenue. [emphasis added]

3 This "kickback" program illegally forced a 3 percent debt obligation upon Federal Government employees working under 4 an existing employment agreement in 1862. However, the "kickback program" established by section 86 was legal when
5 applied to the salary of persons who took employment with the Federal Government after that Act was passed because they
6 were on notice that a 3 percent kickback was part of their employment agreement. Thus illegal and legal kickbacks existed
7 then and, though they have changed in form, they exist today.

8 "Kickback" is defined in Webster's Dictionary as "a return of a part of a sum received often because of confidential
9 agreement or coercion." Was not a "kickback" coerced from Federal Government employees when Congress promulgated
10 a change in their employment agreement as if it were a tax when, in essence, it was, and is, a kickback program?

11 By presenting the "kickback" program in the form of "law," Congress (the legislative branch of government) provided the 12 implied authority of law needed to get Federal Government employees in the executive branch of government (the IRS) to 13 act illegally in depriving other Federal Government employees of property rightfully due them under existing contracts.

14 U.S. Supreme Court Judges understood this, and were legally and morally obligated to correct any illegal action of 15 Congress or the IRS for all Federal government employees. The primary function of the Supreme Court is to provide 16 opinions of public importance. Instead they chose, by misdirection and silence, to cooperate with Congress in the 17 implementation of this kickback which forced a debt obligation upon all Federal Government employees except U.S. judges
18 and the U.S. President. This was accomplished when Federal judges allowed the contracts of fellow Federal Government
19 employees to be illegally impaired while seeing to it that their employment contracts remained intact. Does not such 20 conduct demonstrate that the U.S. judges were partial to assuring that the illegal kickback scheme was implemented? Does
21 not such indifference and cooperation violate their duty? Does their conduct not raise the question of concealment?¹⁹⁷

33 As we established in section 5.4.19, the Treasury Secretary, for whom the IRS Commissioner works, has NO lawful 34 delegated authority to collect income taxes in the 50 union states. Below are some examples of illegal and unethical acts of 35 extortion committed in the name of the Treasury Secretary in the absence of any legal authority to impose or enforce such 36 income taxes.

¹⁹⁷ The U.S. Supreme Court said in Boyd v. U.S., 116 U.S. 616 (1885) "...it is the duty of the courts to be watchful for the constitutional rights of the citizens, and against stealthy encroachment thereon."

6.6.1 Elements of the IRS Cover-Up/Conspiracy to Watch For

Here are a few things to watch out for as you see history being made by legislators and the IRS in the future relative to the income tax issue. These are the kinds of things that should clearly evidence to you that the IRS is part of a massive conspiracy to defraud U.S. citizens of their income by fooling them into thinking that income taxes are mandatory for citizens domiciled in the 50 union states with domestic income:

1. IRS will refuse to answer questions about the following:
 - 1.1 "What specific statute in either the U.S. Code (Internal Revenue Code), or the Code of Federal Regulations, makes me as a U.S. Citizen domiciled in the 50 union states and receiving nothing but income from within the 50 union states liable for paying taxes on that income?"
 - 1.2 "Please define what you mean by voluntary compliance?"
 - 1.3 IRS will not respond to invitations by tax freedom groups to discuss the legality of the income tax. This happened recently at a very public meeting where congress, the president, and the IRS were invited to attend. ALL declined! This was documented on the following website of a group called "We the People": <http://www.givemeliberty.org/>
 - 1.4 The IRS will refuse to define the term "United States" because then they would have to admit that the Internal Revenue Code doesn't apply in the 50 contiguous states to your average citizen who is by default NOT a federal/U.S. citizen or government employee.
2. IRS will try to manipulate the litigation of cases involving the issues raised in this document, including the 861/source issue by:

- 1 2.1 Keeping these cases in the U.S. Tax Court, where there is only one judge and no jury. It is easier to bribe or 2 influence one judge rather than a whole jury.
- 3 2.2 Keeping these cases out of Federal Circuit courts where there might be juries, to avoid the risk of losing. They 4 will do this by either fining individuals who raise the issue (violating the First Amendment right to free speech), 5 or by encouraging the court to dismiss the case (motion to dismiss).
- 6 2.3 Keeping these cases out of the Supreme Court, because litigating them could shut down income taxes
7 permanently and deprive the government of revenues. They will do this by either fining individuals who raise the 8 issue (violating the First Amendment right to free speech), or by encouraging the court to dismiss the case, or by 9 litigating so fiercely that the average Citizen can't afford the legal fees required to get their case to the Supreme 10 Court level.
- 11 2.4 Abusing due process of litigants to the maximum extent possible by depriving them early on in their fight of 12 financial resources needed to litigate the case to the Supreme Court. They will do this by seizing or levying the 13 wages of tax freedom fighters as quickly as possible, rather than waiting till the end of litigation.
- 14 2.5 Doing complete tax background checks of any persons who act as jurors in these tax trials, to ensure that they
15 choose only jurors who are ignorant of the Internal Revenue Code, have faithfully paid their "voluntary taxes",
16 and who have contempt for people who don't. They need social security numbers to do this, so if you are acting
17 as a juror in one of these trials, we strongly suggest that you NOT provide your social security number to anyone,
18 because it is strictly voluntary. See section 2.9.19.1 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008 entitled 19 "Stacking the Deck During Jury Selection".
- 20 3. Discovery Abuses. Discovery is the process during tax litigation in which information is requested by a party to a 21 legal action from the other side. Here are some of the ways you can expect the IRS to execute discovery abuse to cover
22 up the conspiratorial nature of hiding the truth about the fact that income taxes are voluntary:
23 3.1 Covering up truths about the voluntary nature of tax cases by requesting "protective orders" to oppress plaintiff
24 citizens as part of the discover process who are serving requests for admissions and interrogatories on the IRS.
25 3.2 Requesting that evidence related to the voluntary nature of income taxes be sealed and kept secret and only 26 available to the court but not other individuals or citizens. This will prevent the truth from getting out about the 27 voluntary nature of income taxes.
- 28 4. IRS will try to get tax freedom organizations and individuals in trouble by:
29 4.1 Subsidizing "Tax Freedom" organizations to act as their operatives in attracting individuals and then giving them
30 bad advice to get them into trouble. Remember that the IRS collects interest and penalties on back taxes if it can 31 catch people "cheating" on taxes. Of course, we all now know that most citizens don't owe income taxes, but that 32 never stopped the IRS from demagoguery, grand-standing, and avoiding legal issues in the presentation of their 33 case in front of juries. CAVEAT EMPTOR!
34 4.2 Paying their operative cronies to publish bogus books that tell tax freedom fighters the wrong methods to get out
35 of income taxes as an inexpensive and ineffective way to have more people to make into examples to scare the 36 rest of us into "voluntary compliance".
- 37 5. IRS will try to confuse tax freedom groups who are focusing on the issues raised in this document. For example,
38 <http://www.egroups.com/> has a group called "legality-of-income-tax" that is enlightening for people who are looking 39 for tools and information to end their income tax. IRS agents regularly join into these groups anonymously and try to 40 criticize and obfuscate the participants to keep themselves out of trouble.
- 41 6. IRS will subsidize newspapers to slander individuals who legally stop paying income taxes. For instance, read the 42 article in section 9.3.1 by the New York Times. It was completely biased and didn't talk about the law at all. Even if 43 the IRS didn't pay for this add, the secretive bankers at the Federal Reserve have more than enough reason to subsidize 44 this in order to keep their interest payments on the national debt coming in.
- 45 7. They will not maintain a historian position or will fire or retaliate against any historians who become 46 whistleblowers to expose past cover-ups.
- 47 8. They will post confusing, misleading, and incomplete information on their website at <http://www.irs.gov/> about 48 the voluntary nature of income taxes for citizens living and working in the 50 union states. For instance, look up the 49 term "voluntary compliance" if you want some lawyer weasel words to obfuscate yourself with. Below is their 50 definition of "voluntary compliance" from <http://www.irs.gov/prod/taxi/taxterms.html> - V:

51 "Your mom might order you to clean up your room. Well, the IRS doesn't have time to tell every single taxpayer
52 to file taxes correctly and on time . . . there are millions of taxpayers in this country after all. This system relies
53 on citizens to report their income, calculate tax liability and file tax returns on time. Everyone's gotta grow up
54 sometime. Check out It's Payday! "

1 9. There have been cover-ups over the years as the Internal Revenue Codes have been craftily modified to maximize
2 their "confusion factor" and legalese content so that only legislators can understand them. As these laws have been
3 "obfuscated" over the years, the IRS has systematically tried to cover its tracks by concealing the older laws, which are 4 written much more clearly to state that income taxes are voluntary. Consequently, you can be sure that the IRS:

5 9.1 Would not want to keep any records of the old laws that citizens could use to show that they indeed don't owe 6 income tax.

7 9.2 Would not want to make the older laws computer searchable.

8 9.3 Would not want to designate anyone to be a historian for the organization who could compile these old laws and 9 publications. As a matter of fact, the IRS fired the only historian they had! Did she uncover the truth when she 10 was compiling the archives to post on the website and tried to get the word out? Was she regarded as a 11 "whistleblower"?

12 If you have heard of any of the above types of tactics by the IRS, please let us know so we can get the word out 13 immediately and post the information on our website!

14 6.6.2 26 CFR 1.0-1: Publication of Internal Revenue Code WITHOUT Index

15 The Dept. of the Treasury is responsible for writing most implementing regulations relating to federal income taxes. The 16 first thing you notice about the Internal Revenue Code (I.R.C.) in the very first section is the information contained in its 17 implementing regulation in 26 CFR §1.0-1. This implementing regulation describes how the Internal Revenue Code is to 18 be published by the government for consumption by the general public.

19 Sec. 1.0-1 Internal Revenue Code of 1954 and regulations.

21 This Act shall be published as volume 68A of the United States Statutes at Large, with a comprehensive table of 22 contents and an appendix; but without an index or marginal references. The date of enactment, bill number, 23 public law number, and chapter number, shall be printed as a headnote.*

24 The Internal Revenue Code itself is 9,500 pages, and publishment of anything that large without an index would
25 deliberately create a situation for the public and the legal profession where it would be very difficult to find anything
26 relevant to any subject of inquiry. This means that you can't order the code from the U.S. government printing office that 27 has an index. How many commercial book vendors do you think would publish ANY book that large without an index?
28 Their book wouldn't sell very many copies! If you want an index, then you have to order the publication from a private 29 third party.

30 We would argue that devious act deliberately obfuscates the tax code and makes it much more difficult for most Americans
31 to either read or understand the law. The lawyers in Congress want it that way because that is how they perpetuate the legal 32 "priesthood" that maintains their power. They want to make it so people need special research tools and published sources
33 for the code available only to legal professionals in order to locate information relevant to their inquiry. That way, ordinary 34 citizens will be encouraged to read third party publications like the IRS' fraudulent publications in order to understand the 35 tax code, and as we point out in section 3.19, these publications contain deliberate fraud. We expose this legal priesthood
36 later in section 6.9 where we talk about the judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax and section 6.10, where we talk
37 about legal profession scandals to protect the income tax.

38 The above regulation, by the way, violates an Act of Congress, which states in the Statutes at Large, 42nd Congress, 39 Volume 17, Ch. 315, p. 258, Section 45. Unless the below act was repealed, the Secretary of the Treasury exceeded his 40 authority to specify that the Internal Revenue Code should be published without an index:

41 "That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to revise and prepare for publication the 42 internal-revenue laws in force after the passage of this act, with amendments incorporated in their proper 43 places, conveniently arranged for reference, and with a proper index..." [Statutes at Large, 42nd Congress, 44 Volume 17, Ch. 315, p. 258, Section 45]

45 If you want a version of the code that includes an index, you can order a very nice one with an index and colored tabs for 46 use in an audit or due process hearing from Irwin Schiff's website at:

<http://www.paynoincometax.com/>:

The cost is $38. Irwin sells the I.R.C. published by:

Research Institute of America (RIA)
800-950-1216
<http://www.riahome.com>

If you buy the latest edition of the above commercial version of the Internal Revenue Code and you examine the extensive index under “liability for tax”, which is almost one page long by itself, you will see LOTS of entries. The January 2001 version of the code has this portion on page 201. Guess what? If you look up “income taxes” or “citizen” or “American”, you will not find a single entry. Now do you understand why the Treasury directed that the I.R.C. not be published with an index? This is a very powerful argument to use in court, and the court and the Treasury sometimes will respond to this argument by making such excuses as:

“Well, this commercial publisher is not a trusted source of information so your evidence isn’t credible. Only government sources are credible.”

And of course, there IS no government source that would ever publish such information because it is simply too incriminating! Wow!

6.6.3 Official/Qualified Immunity and Anonymity

“Counsel for the claimant, ...makes a very ingenious argument... That the maxim of English constitutional law, that the king can do no wrong, is one which the courts must apply to the government of the United States, and that therefore there can be no tort committed by the government....”

It is not easy to see how the first proposition can not have any place in our system of government.

We have no king to whom it can be applied. The President, in the exercise of the executive functions, bears a nearer resemblance to the limited monarch of the English government than any other branch of our government, and is the only individual to whom it could possibly have any relation. It cannot apply to him, because the Constitution admits that he may do wrong, and has provided a means for his trial for wrongdoing.... by the proceeding of impeachment.

It is to be observed that the English maxim does not declare that the government, or those who administer it, can do no wrong; for it is a part of the principle itself that wrong may be done by the government power, for which the ministry, for the time being, is held responsible; and the ministers personally, like our President, may be impeached; or, if the wrong amounts to a crime, they may be indicted and tried at law for the offense.

We do not understand that either in reference to the government of the United States, or to the several States, or of any of their officers, the English maxim has an existence in this country.”

Why do IRS agents get away with so many violations of due process with immunity? The answer is that they are protected from prosecution by our federal courts under the contemporary doctrine of “sovereign immunity”. As you can tell by the quote above from the U.S. Supreme Court back in 1879, support for sovereign immunity was not always endorsed by the courts. As these courts have become corrupted over the years in the process of expanding and upholding the income very tax that pays their salaries, the corrupt black-robed lawyers in these courts have had to contradict historical precedent by protecting especially those who enforce and administer the income tax from personal liability for criminal wrongdoing and lawlessness. Below is an explanation of how agents of the government are insulated and protected from legal liability for wrongdoing:

1. According to one IRS revenue agent we spoke with IRS agents are told by their management that they are not allowed to reveal their first name, only their employee number. Without the full name and identifying information about the employee, it is more difficult to figure out who to serve with legal papers if you want to prosecute individual agents.
2. The IRS service bureaus for specific regions are usually located outside of the jurisdiction of the state they serve. For instance, Ogden Utah services large parts of California. Why isn’t the service bureau for California inside of

1 California? We would argue it is because that makes it much more difficult to personally serve agents who have
2 broken the law or to prosecute them under the laws of your state, because they don't live in your state. Citizens who
3 want to sue IRS agents or criminally prosecute them have to go outside of their state to serve the agent, which is much
4 more difficult to coordinate, costly, and expensive.

5 3. The U.S. supreme Court has upheld the notion that persons acting as agents for the U.S. government have at least a
6 limited immunity from prosecution because of illegal, unethical, or questionable acts they commit while on duty. This
7 is called official immunity. As we talked about in section 5.12 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.006
8 entitled "How the Federal Judiciary Stole the Right to Petition: Judicial Arrogance and Bias Against the Right to 9 Petition", the federal judiciary has also for all intents and purposes destroyed our right to petition the government for 10 redress of grievances and wrongs committed either by agents working for the government or by the government itself.
11 One also cannot sue the U.S. government without their consent, and this is called judicial immunity or sovereign
12 immunity. Why would they give their consent if you sued them for wrongful taking of federal income taxes? All of 13 these factors conspire to make it very difficult if not impossible for the average sovereign Citizen of the several states
14 to protect his/her constitutional rights.

16 Hicks, No. 99-1994 (U.S. 06/25/2001):

17 "The doctrines of official immunity, see, e.g., Westfall v. Erwin, 484 U. S. 292, 296-300 (1988), and qualified
18 immunity, see, e.g., Harlow v. Fitzgerald, 457 U. S. 800, 813-819 (1982), are designed to protect state and 19 federal officials from civil liability for conduct that was within the scope of their duties or conduct that did not 20 violate clearly established law. These doctrines short circuit civil litigation for officials who meet these 21 standards so that these officials are not subjected to the costs of trial or the burdens of discovery. 457 U. S., at 22 817-818. For example, the Federal Employees Liability Reform and Tort Compensation Act of 1988, commonly 23 known as the Westfall Act, allows the United States to substitute itself for a federal employee as defendant upon
24 certifying that the employee was acting within the scope of his duties. 28 U. S. C. §2679(d). Nevada law
25 contains analogous provisions. See Nev. Rev. Stat. §§41.032, 41.0335-41.0339 (1996 and Supp. 1999). The 26 employee who successfully claims official immunity therefore invokes the immunity of the sovereign. When a 27 state or federal official asserts qualified immunity, he claims that his actions were reasonable in light of clearly 28 established law. Anderson v. Creighton, 483 U. S. 635 (1987). In those cases, we allow that official to take an 29 immediate interlocutory appeal from an adverse ruling to ensure that the civil proceedings do not continue if 30 immunity should be granted. Mitchell v. Forsyth, 472 U. S. 511, 524-530 (1985)."

31 [Nevada v. Hicks, No. 99-1994] (U.S. 06/25/2001)

32 Below is a quote from the U.S. supreme Court on the subject of official immunity in the case of " Westfall Et Al. v. Erwin
33 Et Ux.,484 U.S. 292 (1988):

34 "In Barr v. Matteo, 360 U.S. 564 (1959), and Howard v. Lyons, 360 U.S. 593 (1959), this Court held that the 35 scope of absolute official immunity afforded federal employees is a matter of federal law, "to be formulated by 36 the courts in the absence of legislative action by Congress." Id., at 597. The purpose of such official immunity is 37 not to protect an erring official, but to insulate the decisionmaking process from the harassment of prospective
38 litigation. The provision of immunity rests on the view that the threat of liability will make federal officials 39 unduly timid in carrying out their official duties, and that effective government will be promoted if officials are 40 freed of the costs of vexatious and often frivolous damages suits. See Barr v. Matteo, supra, at 571; Doe v.
41 McMillan, 412 U.S. 306, 319 (1973). This Court always has recognized, however, that official immunity comes 42 at a great cost. An injured party with an otherwise meritorious tort claim is denied compensation simply 43 because he had the misfortune to be injured by a federal official. Moreover, absolute immunity contravenes the 44 basic tenet that individuals be held accountable for their wrongful conduct. We therefore have held that 45 absolute immunity for federal officials is justified only when "the contributions of immunity to effective 46 government in particular contexts outweigh the perhaps recurring harm to individual citizens." Doe v.
47 McMillan, supra, at 320.

49 Fitzgerald, 457 U.S. 800 (1982):

50 "Government officials whose special functions or constitutional status requires complete protection from suits
51 for damages -- including certain officials of the Executive Branch, such as prosecutors and similar officials, see 52 Butz v. Economou, 438 U.S. 478, and the President, Nixon v. Fitzgerald, ante, p. 731 -- are entitled to the 53 defense of absolute immunity. However, executive officials in general are usually entitled to only qualified or 54 good-faith immunity. The recognition of a qualified immunity defense for high executives reflects an attempt to 55 balance competing values: not only the importance of a damages remedy to protect the rights of citizens, but

1 also the need to protect officials who are required to exercise discretion and the related public interest in
2 encouraging the vigorous exercise of official authority. Scheuer v. Rhodes, 416 U.S. 232. Federal officials
3 seeking absolute immunity from personal liability for unconstitutional conduct must bear the burden of showing
4 that public policy requires an exemption of that scope. Pp. 806-808.”

5 6.6.4 Church Censorship, Manipulation, and Castration by the IRS

6 Churches are moral and social organizations. A big component of morality is social responsibility. However, the IRS has 7 twisted the arms of churches by being empowered to pull their 501(c) tax exemption if they engage in socially responsible
8 activities, such as eliminating bad laws, changing the laws, or advocating or opposing specific candidates for political
9 office. This effectively neutralizes any negative impact churches might have on the IRS, for instance, by advocating 10 elimination of income taxes, like Jesus did (see section 1.10.1 entitled “Jesus Christ, The Son of God, was a Tax Protester!).
11 It also eliminates the possibility that churches will either sponsor or endorse godly men of principle for public office. Is it
12 any wonder then why our politicians are so corrupt? This is a travesty and a disgrace. What good does it do to have free
13 speech if you can’t exercise it in the most important realm, which is the political and legislative realm? We would argue 14 that under such circumstances, churches really don’t have free speech.

15 IRS Publication 557, Tax Exempt Status for Your Organization, discusses the conditions under which churches can be tax-
16 exempt. The Internal Revenue Manual (IRM) section 7.25.3, entitled “Religious, Charitable, Educational, Etc.
17 Organizations” discusses how to qualify as an exempt church organization. The website below is where you can read this 18 section:

19 <http://www.irs.gov/irm/part7/ch10s03.html>

20 The below excerpt from the IRM establishes a federal tax exemption for religious organizations:

21 [7.25.3] 3.6 (02-23-1999)
22 Religion or Advancement of Religion

23 IRC 501(c)(3) provides for the exemption of organizations organized and operated exclusively for "religious"
24 purposes. Because activities often serve more than one purpose, an organization that is "advancing religion"
25 within the meaning of Reg. 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(2) may also qualify under IRC 501(c)(3) as charitable or 26 educational organization.

27 Below is an excerpt from the IRM that determines the conditions under which a church will LOSE its tax exemption:

28 Internal Revenue Manual
29 [7.25.3] 3.3.4 (02-23-1999)
30 Express Powers that Cause Failure of Organizational Test

- 31 1. An organization does not meet the organizational test if its articles expressly empower it:
- 32 A. To devote more than an insubstantial part of its activities to influence legislation by propaganda or 33 otherwise (Reg. 1.501(c)(3)-1(b)(3)(i));
- 34 B. Directly or indirectly to participate in, or intervene in (including the publishing or distributing of 35 statements), any political campaign on behalf of or in opposition to any candidate for public office
36 (Reg. 1.501(c)(3)-1 (b)(3)(ii));
- 37 C. To have objectives and to engage in activities which characterize it as an "action" organization (Reg.
38 1.501(c)(3)-1 (b)(3)(iii));
- 39 D. To carry on any other activities (unless they are insubstantial) which are not in furtherance of one or 40 more exempt purposes (Reg. 1.501(c)(3)-1(b)(1)(i)(a)).

41 In the IRS Regulations, 26 CFR §1.501(c) (3)(ii), churches are prohibited from being action organizations:

42 (3) Action organizations. (i) An organization is not operated exclusively for one or more exempt purposes if it
43 is an action organization as defined in subdivisions (ii), (iii), or (iv) of this subparagraph.

(ii) An organization is an action organization if a substantial part of its activities is attempting to influence legislation by propaganda or otherwise. For this purpose, an organization will be regarded as attempting to influence legislation if the organization:

(a) Contacts, or urges the public to contact, members of a legislative body for the purpose of proposing, supporting, or opposing legislation; or

(b) Advocates the adoption or rejection of legislation.

The implications of the above amount to silencing the churches in the political and legislative realm. This in effect completely neutralizes them and violates their First Amendment Right of Free speech. The federal courts, according to the IRS in their IRM, said this was not the case, which has made a travesty of justice, as indicated in the below excerpt from the IRM:

[7.25.3] 3.6.2 (02-23-1999)
Compliance with Statutory Requirements

1. Any religious organization, including a church, must satisfy the statutory requirements to be exempt under IRC 501(c)(3). As explained by the court in Christian Echos National Ministry, Inc. v. United States, 470 F.2d 849 (10th Cir. 1972), cert. den., 414 U.S. 864 (1973), in which the court upheld denial of tax exemption to a religious organization engaged in substantial legislative activity, "in light of the fact that tax exemption is a matter of grace rather than right, we hold that the limitations contained in Section 501(c)(3) withholding exemption from nonprofit corporations [that engage in substantial lobbying] do not deprive Christian Echoes of its constitutionally guaranteed right of free speech. The taxpayer may engage in all such activities without restraint, subject, however, to withholding of the exemption, or, in the alternative, the taxpayer may refrain from such activities and obtain the privilege of exemption."
2. Exemption from state or local taxation is neither conclusive nor relevant to the determination whether an organization is operated exclusively for religious purposes under federal tax law. Universal Life Church v. U.S., 721 USTC 9467 (E.D. Cal. 1972).

Did you notice the above statement: "in light of the fact that tax exemption is a matter of grace rather than right, we hold that the limitations contained in Section 501(c)(3) withholding exemption from nonprofit corporations [that engage in substantial lobbying] do not deprive Christian Echoes of its constitutionally guaranteed right of free speech." This is a devious tactic to make First Amendment religious rights into government privileges. They are a privilege if they can be taken away arbitrarily by a government bureaucrat. We discuss this in section 4.3.12 "Government-instituted slavery using 'privileges'." We will repeat what we have said before in section 4.2.2 about rights in the Supreme Court case of Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S 528 at 540, 85 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965):

"It has long been established that a State may not impose a penalty upon those who exercise a right guaranteed by the Constitution." Frost & Frost Trucking Co. v. Railroad Comm'n of California, 271 U.S. 583. "Constitutional rights would be of little value if they could be indirectly denied," Smith v. Allwright, 321 U.S. 649, 644, or manipulated out of existence,' Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339, 345."

The above situation also applies to the federal government. We assert that removing a tax exemption as a penalty for exercising exercise a First Amendment right is unconstitutional because transforms freedom of religion from being a right into a government-granted privilege. The supreme Court has in effect legislated making a First Amendment right into a government privilege that can be taken away with their ruling, which courts are not supposed to be doing. Removal of tax exemptions because of political views or activities amounts to political persecution and censorship of the freedom of religious rights and speech of people attending churches and the churches themselves. Is it any wonder why churches have become silent on government abuses and violations of laws and the reforming of our laws? This kind of tyranny must end!

If you have done your homework and read Chapter 5, you know enough to explain how the Supreme Court and the IRS can get away with this kind of tyranny. We concluded in that chapter that Subtitle A income taxes are voluntary for natural persons. The only people who are "taxpayers" liable for tax are those who volunteer. Since they volunteered, then technically, the IRS isn't interfering with the exercise of First Amendment rights because the consequence of volunteering to become "taxpayers" is that they have no rights. It's their own fault for not knowing this, and do you think the Supreme Court would share this subtle fact with anyone? In effect what the Supreme Court said in Christian Echos National Ministry, Inc. v. United States, 470 F.2d 849 (10th Cir. 1972), cert. den., 414 U.S. 864 (1973) is similar to the following:

1 “You volunteered to marry your spouse, so don’t come whining to us that she is infringing on your First
2 Amendment free speech rights by telling you she wants a divorce because you told her she is fat!”

3 Funny! Because of the above type of censorship being imposed by the IRS and the Supreme Court against churches and
4 other charitable organizations, if reform is going to come of our income tax system, then it will need to come either from
5 outside the churches and based on volunteer efforts, or it we will need to educate the churches about this book so that they
6 understand that they don’t have to pay taxes and therefore need not worry about losing their tax exemption. Those churches
7 who can’t be convinced of their nonliability to pay income taxes but who still wish to politically protest income taxes will
8 need to take a different approach as shown below:

9 Church officers should pursue political activity as individuals during their own off-duty time and when they are not acting 10 as an officer or agent of the church.

- 11 1. Church facilities or computers should not be used to do solicitation or political lobbying. Instead, members of the 12 church should donate their own time and computers for the purpose instead.
- 13 2. If officers or agents of the church get up on the pulpit during a meeting, the pastor should say that he has no position on 14 what the party is saying and does not necessarily advocate what he/she is saying, but wanted to offer that person an 15 opportunity to speak about an issue he isn’t familiar with.
- 16 3. Churches can offer to their congregations a section in their handouts for public announcements and then disclaim any 17 association or affiliation with the people making the announcements. These announcements can list times to 18 coordinate political activities or educational or fund-raising events to take political action.

19 6.6.5 Illegal Treasury Regulation 26 CFR §301.6331-1

20 Treasury regulation 26 CFR §301.6331 implements 26 U.S.C. §6331. Recall that the scope of a regulation may not exceed 21 that of the statute it implements. Recall that 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) states:

22 (a) Authority of Secretary

23 If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand,
24 it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the
25 expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under
26 section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of
27 such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of
28 the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the
29 District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such
30 officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in
31 jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon
32 failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period
33 provided in this section.

34 The purpose for this regulation is clear. It allows federal government employers to request that the agency employing a 35 federal employee may withhold their wages for nonpayment of income taxes without the need for a court order. This also 36 explains why under 26 U.S.C. §6331(e) allows for continuous levies upon federal wages without a court order even though
37 this would otherwise violate the Fifth Amendment due process rights of the person levied upon. The process described in 38 26 U.S.C. §6331 is usually implemented using the IRS Form 668-A “Notice of Levy”. However, the Notice of Levy may 39 not be used against private employers or those who are not federal employers and instead requires a legal action and a
40 corresponding court order before the levy may be instituted. The IRS very commonly and illegally misuses the “Notice of 41 Levy form” against private employers, in part because the implementing regulation illegally expands the scope of the 42 statute in 26 CFR §301.6331-1 as follows:

43 “Levy may be made by serving a notice of levy on any person in possession of, or obligated with respect to,
44 property or rights to property subject to levy, including receivables, bank accounts, evidences of debt,
45 securities, and salaries, wages, commissions, or other compensation.”

46 The regulation should say that it only applies to federal employers, since the persons to be levied upon under 26 U.S.C.
47 §6331(a) are only federal employees. Private employers who are not part of the federal government can safely disregard
48 both the IRS Form 668A and 668B forms and only surrender property of their employees when they receive a valid court
49 order. This is confirmed by the IRS’ own Legal Reference Guide for Revenue Officers [MT 58[10][0]-14, which states in 50 pertinent part:

332 (10-29-79)

Constitutional Limitations

(1) During the course of administratively collecting a tax, an occasion may arise where service of a levy or notice of levy is not adequate to seize property of the taxpayer. However, it cannot be emphasized too strongly that constitutional guarantees and individual rights must not be violated. Property should not be forcibly removed from the person of a taxpayer. Such conduct may expose a revenue officer to an action in trespass, assault and battery, conversion, etc. Larson v. Domestic and Foreign Commerce Corp., 337 U.S. 682 (1949), rehearing denied, 337 U.S. 682 (1949). Maule Industries v. Tomlinson, 224 F.2d 897, (5th Cir. 1949). If there is reason to suspect a failure to honor a notice of levy or an interference with levy, the matter should be referred for proper legal action against the offending party. Remedies available to the Government, as contained in the Code and other statutes, are more than adequate to cope with the problem.

The IRS also conveniently removes 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) from the back of the IRS Form 668-A\(c\)DO to hide the fact from private employers that they have no authority to demand property. It is only the ignorance of third party private employers and financial institutions that allows the IRS to seize assets through force using the “Notice of Levy” that they otherwise could not have gotten.

6.6.6 IRS Trickery on the 1040 Form to Get Us Inside the Federal Zone

For the purposes of the federal income tax we can lawfully be treated by the national government as though we were a “resident” (which is an alien) of the federal zone by actually being domiciled in the federal zone or by electing to be treated as though we do as a “person” married to a “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h). When we file a 1040 income tax form without attaching an IRS Form 2555, for instance, we are fraudulently telling the federal government that we are an alien domiciled in the federal zone, insofar as the Internal Revenue Code is concerned, because we are claiming to be a “resident” of the U.S., which is to say from 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) that we live in the District of Columbia or some other federal territory or part of the “federal zone” and that we are an “alien” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). Why would we want to elect to be treated as an alien domiciled in the District of Columbia (federal zone) when there is absolutely no advantage to doing so on our tax forms? The only reason is because we have been tricked by our own government because of our own ignorance of the law into using the legally incorrect words and definitions they put in the IRS publications and on the 1040 form itself, which prominently says “U.S. Individual income tax return”, which means we live in the U.S. (the District of Columbia). This fraud is encouraged and allowed to propagate because the IRS in its publications and especially in the 1040 booklet, never clarifies the three definitions of United States (see Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945), where we learned the three definitions of “United States”) or which of the three we are using when we prepare the tax return.

Technically, as people domiciled outside the federal zone and inside the 50 union states, we live in the U.S.A. but NOT in the [federal] U.S. for the purposes of the income tax, so we are already committing a fraud when we file the 1040 form and sign it under penalty of perjury. Do you think our own dishonest government would ever point that out when it advantages them financially in such a significant way? Pitman Buck, Jr. has written an entire book about this subject called The Colossal Fraud of “Involuntary Perjury”.

An interesting way to view this fraud is that it is an enticement into (financial) slavery, which violates 18 U.S.C. §1583, entitled “Enticement into slavery”. 18 U.S.C. §1581 also prohibits arresting or apprehending anyone into slavery, which is exactly what the federal marshal does when they arrest someone who is convicted of a federal tax crime for cases in which they technically are not in actuality liable for any tax, but for which the court refuses to apply the law correctly. Such cases might occur, for instance, when the judge knows the accused is not liable for tax and knows the correct application of the Internal Revenue Code but because the accused did not address it or express his understanding of the law correctly, the judge sides with the government so that the tax system would not be undermined and so that his judgeship would not be terminated by the irate President or Congress who appointed him for “bad behavior”.

6.6.7 IRS Form 1040: Irrational Conspiracy to Violate Rights

Many of the same arguments that as we present below in section 6.6.8 about the violations of our Constitutional rights with the W-4 form apply to the IRS Form 1040 as well. We won’t repeat those arguments here, except to say that being compelled in any way to either submit or to sign a 1040 form violates our First Amendment right to NOT communicate

1 with our government, our Fourth Amendment right to the privacy of our personal papers and effects (of which we could
 2 classify our tax returns and financial records as falling into the category of personal papers and effects), and our Fifth
 3 Amendment right to due process in the taking of our property and to not incriminate ourselves. All we have to prove in 4 order to justify the conclusion that there are violations of rights is to demonstrate that there is any kind of penalty,
 5 compulsion, or punishment by the government for exercising these rights. Below are some of the possible statutory
 6 penalties imposed for exercising our right not to file a tax return, and these penalties are imposed as a result of statutes
 7 developed by the U.S. Congress and prosecuted by the Department of Justice.

8 Table 6-3: Unconstitutional IRS/Treasury Regulations Relating to form 1040

Statute	Condition when 5th Amendment is violated	Notes
26 U.S.C. §6702	Frivolous Income Tax Return	If the First and Fifth Amendments say you can't be compelled submit a return or testify against yourself in the return, then why can they criminally prosecute you for filling out a frivolous return, including one with no signature, a modified jurat statement above the signature, or incomplete or inaccurate information?
26 U.S.C. §7203	Willful failure to file return, supply information, or pay tax	If the First and Fifth Amendments say you can't be compelled to submit a return or to testify against yourself in the return, then why can the DOJ criminally prosecute you for not filing one and throw you in jail?
26 U.S.C. §7206	Fraud and false statements	If the First and Fifth Amendments say you can't be compelled submit a return or testify against yourself in the return, then why can they criminally prosecute you for what you do choose to say on the form without compulsion, as long as you don't represent that it is true or accurate by signing it?

9 The fact that the U.S. Congress wrote these statutes and the fact that they were debated, discussed, and voted on before they 10 were passed makes these statutes a "conspiracy against rights" under 18 U.S.C. Sec. 241, punishable by a fine or 11 imprisonment not more than ten years, or both!

12 Consider the purpose of § 6702 of the Internal Revenue Code as stated by the appellate court in Gary Holder v. Secretary of 13 the Treasury, 791 F.2d 68, 72 (7th Cir. 1986), when an individual is penalized $500 under § 6702 for failing or refusing —
 14 based upon his belief that he is not liable for income taxes — to sign the Form 1040 jurat. The jurat reads:

15 "Under penalties of perjury, I declare that I have examined this return and accompanying schedules and 16 statements, and to the best of my knowledge and belief, they are true, correct, and complete."

17 Here is what the court in Holder said was the purpose of imposing a penalty under § 6702:

18 "The purpose of §§ 6673 and 6702, like the purpose of Rules 11 and 38 and of § 1927, is to induce litigants to 19 conform their behavior to the governing rules regardless of their subjective beliefs."

20 But hold on there, your honors! One of the governing rules is §7206 of the Internal Revenue Code, a rule whose purpose is 21 to affect or regulate behavior by prohibiting perjury. Section 7206 reads:

22 "Any person who- ... Willfully makes and subscribes any return, statement, or other document, which contains 23 or is verified by a written declaration that it is made under the penalties of perjury, and which he does not
 24 believe to be true and correct as to every material matter ... shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction
 25 thereof, shall be fined not more than $100,000 ($500,000 in the case of a corporation) or imprisoned not more
 26 than 3 years, or both, together with the costs of prosecution." See also 18 U.S.C. § 1621 for definition of 27 perjury.

28 Belief is defined in Black's Law Dictionary (Sixth Edition, p. 155) as:

1 "A conviction of the truth of a proposition, existing subjectively in the mind, and induced by argument,
2 persuasion, or proof addressed to the judgment."
3 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 155]

4 The Holder court's explanation of the purpose of § 6702 is ridiculous when applied to regulate the behavior of individuals
5 with regard to their decision to sign or not to sign the jurat of Form 1040. The Holder explanation about the purpose of § 6 6702 is not applicable to the purpose of the governing rule § 7206 because the obvious purpose of § 7206 is to induce 7 people to base their behavior upon their subjective belief. Thus, the purpose of § 7206 is the exact opposite of § 6702 as 8 stated in Holder.

9 It must be obvious to all but the most obtuse of minds that an interpretation of law or the application of an interpretation of 10 law that induces people to complete and sign the government's prescribed Form 1040 and its prescribed jurat regardless of 11 their beliefs is absolutely irrational and preposterous! The stated purpose of § 6702 is to induce people to disregard their
12 beliefs whereas § 7206 makes the act (behavior) of signing the Form 1040 jurat dependent upon the potential affiant's
13 knowledge and belief. Under the First Amendment rights to freedom of belief and the expression thereof, no individual
14 who believes he is not liable for income taxes is obligated to intentionally change his belief — if that were possible — so
15 that, with his new belief that he is liable for income taxes, he could honestly fill in the blanks of the prescribed IRS Form
16 1040 and conscientiously sign its prescribed jurat. Plainly, the imposition of a $500 penalty under color of § 6702 in order
17 to induce people to sign the Form 1040 regardless of their beliefs conflicts with the tax code rule that defines and punishes
18 perjury, i.e., § 7206. Any attempt or coercion under color of law to induce individuals to take an oath or sign a jurat that is 19 contrary to their knowledge and/or belief is nothing less than official oppression and intellectual tyranny. Welcome to 20 George Orwell's 1984!

21 The Supreme Court in Cheek v. United States, 498 U.S. 192, 111 S.Ct. 604 (1991), ruled that where one's belief is a relevant
22 question to a situation or case, the question must be judged by a jury using the subjective standard. It is abundantly clear
23 that a person's belief about whether he owes the federal government any income taxes is relevant to his conscientious
24 ability to make and sign, under penalties of perjury, a Form 1040 tax return. By penalizing people under color of § 6702
25 when they fail or refuse to sign the Form 1040 jurat because of their belief (for example, the belief that they are not liable
26 for income taxes), the IRS is presumptively making judgments about individuals' beliefs using the Cheek-discredited
27 objective standard and without benefit of a jury. The signing of the government's prescribed Form 1040 jurat or a decision
28 not to sign it is dependent upon one's knowledge and belief about the Internal Revenue Code. Section 7206 makes it so.

29 Clearly, an individual cannot make an honest and intelligent decision to sign or not to sign a document without recourse to 30 his or her state of mind. The issue of penalizing individuals under 26 U.S.C. §6702 for failing or refusing to sign the Form
31 1040 jurat (based on their belief that they are not liable for income taxes) can never be properly settled as long as the IRS
32 and courts, using twisted logic, rule that individuals must declare their knowledge and belief on the government's 33 prescribed Form 1040 jurat while also ruling that under § 6702 — the statute under color of which individuals are penalized
34 for not signing the jurat — their state of mind and good faith belief are irrelevant.

35 Belief is at once both subjective and a legal fact to be judged by a jury when it is relevant to behavior and in dispute. But 36 the IRS, being the arbitrary, despotic, Gestapo-like agency that it is, and with the indulgence of the lower courts, insists on 37 judging the subjective and factual question of one's belief using the objective standard and has yet to listen to reason. The 38 obvious lesson taught by the IRS and the lower courts in this matter is, to say the least, extraordinary and quite remarkable:
39 in order for individuals to escape the $500 penalty imposed under color of § 6702 for their failure or refusal to sign the jurat
40 based upon their study and conscientious belief that they are not liable for income taxes, they should complete the 41 government's prescribed Form 1040 and sign its prescribed jurat regardless of their beliefs and despite the perjury statutes!

42 6.6.8 IRS Form W-4 Scandals

43 This section discusses the fraud and the illegal or unconstitutional regulations and practices that the IRS and the Treasury
44 have developed and used in the administration of the W-4 income tax forms, which are called the "Withholding Allowance
45 Certificate". The purpose of these forms is for the Citizen to give permission to their employer to institute "voluntary"
46 withholding of federal income taxes from their paychecks.

47 We'd like to remind you that throughout this book, we have used the 26 U.S.C. §861/source issues and other issues to 48 prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the federal income tax system is truly voluntary for most of us and that citizens

1 domiciled in the 50 union states with domestic rather than foreign income are not liable to pay these taxes. Because of this,
2 the IRS and the Treasury basically has to commit fraud on the W-4 application to trick or deceive citizens into believing
3 that they can be held criminally liable for the payment of income taxes. How do they do it? We'll explain here, and we'll 4 show that they had to violate the law and the constitution to do it.

5 6.6.8.1 Fraud on the W-4 Form

6 The first fraud of the Treasury/IRS is in the naming of the W-4 form itself. Instead of "Withholding Allowance
7 Certificate" the form really should be called a "Voluntary Monthly Donation Certificate" form, to remind people that the 8 paying of federal income taxes is voluntary and cannot be coerced or compelled. This is in keeping with the Supreme 9 Court Ruling in Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960):

10 "Our tax system is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint".

11 For those of you who don't know, "distraint" means force or coercion. Such a name for the form would also reinforce that 12 the for is NOT for the withholding of TAX, because taxes are something that citizens are assessed or made liable for, and 13 most of us aren't liable for paying ANYTHING in federal income taxes. The few that are have foreign income or are 14 nonresident aliens, and for those people, their permission isn't required, so you don't NEED an allowance form!

15 The second lie on the form is the definition of "employee", which they conveniently don't tell you on the W-4 form, which 16 we covered in section 3.12.1.4 and which also appears in 26 U.S.C. §3401(c):

17 "the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a
18 State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any 19 one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation."

20 Do you think anyone would complete this form if they were familiar with the proper legal definition of the term
21 "employee"? Instead, the IRS publications expand the definition of employee well beyond this definition (see table 3-10 in 22 section 3.5.12) without any constitutional authority whatsoever to do so! Why aren't they being prosecuted for exceeding 23 the constitutional bounds of their authority? Remember that the IRS regulations that expand the definition of "employee"
24 (see 26 CFR §31.3401(d)-1) can be no more expansive than the U.S. Codes they are based on because these definitions
25 must implement the codes!

26 If you look at the W-4 form itself, there are a number of questionable and misleading things on the form. Below is the first 27 one we'd like to discuss that appears at the top of the form. You can view this form at:

28 http://www.irs.gov/forms_pubs/forms.html

29 "Routine uses of this form include giving it to the Department of Justice for civil and criminal litigation
30 [AGAINST YOU!!!], to cities and states, and the District of Columbia for use in administering their tax laws".

31 This statement is there for a reason! They are putting you on notice, rather blandly and innocuously, that you are waiving
32 your 5th Amendment rights to not be compelled to incriminate yourself, which can only be done voluntarily and without 33 coercion! Of course, as a "resident" of the federal zone, you don't have fifth amendment rights, which is why they can 34 make the warning so bland. This warning means that if you are a nonresident of the federal zone, you DON'T have to fill 35 out this form and can't be compelled to do so! Remember that the main purpose of the Department of Justice is to 36 PROSECUTE CRIMES, and the 5th Amendment says you can't be compelled to incriminate yourself. Don't let your 37 employer incriminate you either by filling in any part of the form in for you! There's no law that says your employer has to 38 do anything with the form or fill it out if you won't fill it out! The IRS, however, lies to you or doesn't tell you the whole
39 truth because they don't tell you on the form that you don't have to fill out this form and can't be penalized in any way
40 because of your failure to fill it out or submit it. Instead, they tell you on their website at:

41 <http://www.irs.gov/faqs/display/0,,i1%3D54%26genericId%3D16275,00.html>

42 That:

1 “You should inform your employees of the importance of submitting an accurate Form W-4. An employee may 2 be subject to a $500 penalty if he or she submits, with no reasonable basis, a Form W-4 that results in 3 less tax being withheld than is required. There is no penalty if your employee doesn't claim enough
4 withholding allowances and has too much withheld.”

5 It is obvious that the IRS is trying here to coerce your employer into coercing you to surrender your 5th Amendment rights
6 on your behalf, which is a violation of several laws. Remember that the exercise of rights can't be fined or penalized, or 7 they aren't rights (see section 4.2.2, “Fundamental Rights: Granted by God and Cannot be Regulated by the 8 Government”)! Remember the court ruling we quoted in that section for Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S 528 at 540, 85
9 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965):

10 "It has long been established that a State may not impose a penalty upon those who exercise a right guaranteed
11 by the Constitution." Frost & Frost Trucking Co. v. Railroad Comm'n of California, 271 U.S. 583.
12 "Constitutional rights would be of little value if they could be indirectly denied,' Smith v. Allwright, 321 U.S.
13 649, 644, or manipulated out of existence,' Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339, 345."
14 [Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S 528 at 540, 85 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965)]

15 And yet, the IRS also coerces you again on the back of the W-4 form by saying:

16 "Failure to provide a properly completed form will result in your being treated as a single person who claims 17 no withholding allowances; providing fraudulent information may also subject you to penalties."

18 The “penalty” here for exercising your Fifth Amendment right is being compelled to give away your property against your 19 will and without your consent, which is in effect THEFT! Then because they stole your property, they compel you later to 20 fill out a ton of forms to “qualify” to get tax money back that you were never liable for to begin with, during which time
21 you have to surrender your Fifth Amendment right AGAIN by signing a 1040 form AGAIN under penalty of perjury, and 22 in effect becoming a compelled witness against yourself! The violation of the right the first time lead to a compelled 23 SECOND violation of the same right! And then what about the violation of your 4th Amendment right to privacy because 24 completing the 1040 form coerces you to reveal intimate details not only about your own financial life, but that of your
25 loved ones as well when you complete the form, and the law says the IRS can use your tax form to criminally prosecute
26 your spouse! This kind of tyranny has to stop! It could destroy your marriage and it is compelled!

27 Here are only a few of the laws and rights violated by the IRS during this process:

- 28 1. Your First Amendment Right NOT to speak to your government or to be compelled to speak (or write) to your 29 government. The right of free speech includes the right NOT to speak if you don't want to!
- 30 2. Violation of your Fourth Amendment right to privacy (which you can petition the government to correct under the First 31 Amendment to the Constitution, called the Petition clause).
- 32 3. Violating you Fifth Amendment rights (which you can petition the government to correct under the First Amendment 33 to the Constitution, called the Petition clause).
- 34 4. 18 USC §242 provides that “whoever, under color of any law, statute, ordinance, regulation, or custom, willfully
35 subjects any person in any State, Territory, Commonwealth, Possession, or District to the deprivation of any rights,
36 privileges, or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States ... shall be fined under 37 this title or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.”
- 38 5. 18 USC §245 “Violation of rights” provides that “Whoever, whether or not acting under color of law, intimidates or 39 interferes with any person from participating in or enjoying any benefit, service, privilege, program, facility, or activity
40 provided or administered by the United States; [or] applying for or enjoying employment, or any perquisite thereof, by 41 any agency of the United States; shall be fined under this title, or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.”
- 42 6. 42 USC §1983 provides that “every person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of 43 any State or Territory or the District of Columbia, subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States
44 or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the 45 Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured in an action at law, suit in equity, or other proper proceeding 46 for redress.”

47 6.6.8.2 Unconstitutional IRS/Treasury Regulations Relating to the W-4

1 To keep this corrupt tax system we have alive and well, in addition to committing fraud on the W-4 form documented
2 above, the IRS/Treasury also have had to pass regulations that are clearly unconstitutional to administer the program. As
3 we have emphasized before in section 3.15, the CFR's are the official regulations of the Treasury and the Commissioner of 4 the IRS that implement Title 26 of the U.S. Codes. The bounds of authority of the IRS are explicitly and clearly defined in 5 the U.S. Codes, and the implementing regulations in the CFR's may not exceed the strictly limited definitions and authority
6 granted explicitly in these codes.

7 The right that is violated by the IRS/Treasury implementing regulations in 26 CFR is once again the Fifth Amendment,
8 which says in part:

9 No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or 10 indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual 11 service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in 12 jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be 13 deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public 14 use, without just compensation.

15 Now we will put the IRS implementing regulations to the test. Below are a few regulations that will really get you
16 steaming and which quite clearly penalize the exercise of one's Fifth Amendment right to not incriminate oneself and one's 17 right to not be deprived of property without one's consent or a due process (court hearing). Remember, that in ALL of the 18 IRS/Treasury regulations cited below:

- 19 1. The IRS is NOT required to obtain your consent or even consult or notify you before taking your property.
- 20 2. The IRS has no obligation to demonstrate a liability to pay federal income tax before it STOLE YOUR MONEY!!
- 21 3. The IRS is NOT a part of the federal judiciary, and that no jury trial is being held by the IRS before it orders/tells your 22 employer to extort your property/money and give it to them without a trial.

23 You can read these regulations for yourself at:

1 Table 6-4: Unconstitutional IRS/Treasury Regulations Relating to Form W-4

Regulation	Condition when 5th Amendment is violated
31.3402(f)(2)-1(a)	a) On commencement of employment. On or before the date on which an individual commences employment with an employer, the individual shall furnish the employer with a signed withholding exemption certificate relating to his marital status and the number of withholding exemptions which he claims, which number shall in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled, or, if the statements described in Sec. 31.3402(n)-1 are true with respect to an individual, he may furnish his employer with a signed withholding exemption certificate which contains such statements.
31.3402(f)(2)-1(a)	“The employer is required to request a withholding exemption certificate from each employee, but if the employee fails to furnish such certificate, such employee shall be considered as a single person claiming no withholding exemptions.”
31.3402(f)(2)-1(e)	If an employer receives an invalid withholding exemption certificate, he shall consider it a nullity for purposes of computing withholding; he shall inform the employee who submitted the certificate that it is invalid, and shall request another withholding exemption certificate from the employee. If the employee who submitted the invalid certificate fails to comply with the employer's request, the employer shall withhold from the employee as from a single person claiming no exemptions (see Sec. 31.3402 (f)(2)-1(a))
31.3402(f)(2)-1(g)(v)	(v) The employer shall promptly furnish the employee who filed the defective certificate, if still in his employ, with a copy of the written notice of the Internal Revenue Service with respect to the certificate and may request another withholding exemption certificate from the employee. The employer shall withhold amounts from the employee on the basis of the maximum number specified in the written notice received from the Service. (vi) If and when the employee does file any new certificate (after an earlier certificate of the employee was considered to be defective), the employer shall withhold on the basis of that new certificate (whenever filed) as currently effective only if the new certificate does not make a claim of exempt status or of a number of withholding exemptions which claim is inconsistent with the advice earlier furnished by the Internal Revenue Service in its written notice to the employer. If any new certificate does make a claim which is inconsistent with the advice contained in the Service's written notice to the employer, then the employer shall disregard the new certificate, shall not submit that new certificate to the Service, and shall continue to withhold amounts from the employee on the basis of the maximum number specified in the written notice received from the Service.
31.3402(f)(2)-1(g)(vii)	(vii) If the employee makes a claim on any new certificate that is inconsistent with the advice in the Service's written notice to the employer, the employee may specify on such new certificate, or by a written statement attached to that certificate, any circumstances of the employee which have changed since the date of the Service's earlier written notice, or any other circumstances or reasons, as justification or support for the claims made by the employee on the new certificate. The employee may then submit that new certificate and written statement either to (A) the Internal Revenue Service office specified in the notice earlier furnished to the employer under this paragraph (g)(5), or to (B) the employer, who must then submit a copy of that new certificate and the employee's written statement (if any) to the Internal Revenue Service office specified in the notice earlier furnished to the employer. The employer shall continue to disregard that new certificate and shall continue to withhold amounts from the employee on the basis of the maximum number specified in the written notice received from the Service unless and until the Internal Revenue Service by written notice (under paragraph (g)(5)(iii) of this section) advises the employer to withhold on the basis of that new certificate and revokes its earlier written notice.

1 We didn't mention above, the hundreds of different types of penalties the IRS assesses against individuals who don't pay
2 their taxes, which in most cases they don't owe anyway based on the 861/source argument. If you factor in these penalties,
3 there are even greater reasons to believe that a massive "conspiracy to deprive of rights" (in this case 5th Amendment
4 Rights) exists, in violation of 18 U.S.C. 241.

5 With this kind of background, can you see not why our prudent founding fathers prohibited direct taxes on citizens? There
6 are so many constitutional conflicts that result when we violate the prohibition on direct taxes without apportionment
7 specified in Article I, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution!

8 6.6.8.3 Line 3a of W-4 modifies and obfuscates 26 U.S.C. §3402 (n)

9 26 U.S.C. §3402(n) is the section that determines the conditions under which persons may declare on their W-4 that they 10 are exempt and have no tax liability. It states:

11 (n) Employees incurring no income tax liability—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, an employee
12 shall not be required to deduct and withhold any tax under this chapter upon a payment of wages to an 13 employee if there is in effect with respect to such payment a withholding exemption certificate (in such form and 14 containing such other information as the Secretary may prescribe) furnished to the employer by the employee
15 certifying that the employee—

- 16 (1) incurred no liability for income tax imposed under subtitle A for his preceding taxable year, 17 and
18 (2) anticipates that he will incur no liability for income tax imposed under subtitle A for his current 19 taxable year.

20 The Secretary shall by regulations provide for the coordination of the provisions of this subsection with the 21 provision of subsection (f)

22 However, on the W-4, it states on line 3:

- 23 3 I claim exemption from withholding because (see instructions and check boxes below that apply):
24 a. ___Last year I did not owe any Federal Income tax and had a right to a full refund of ALL
25 income tax withheld, AND
26 b. ___This year I do not expect to owe any Federal income tax and expect to have a right to a full 27 refund of ALL income tax withheld. If both a and b apply, enter "EXEMPT" here.

28 You should notice that a different word is used on line 3a of the W-4 than is used in the code. Why did the IRS deviate
29 from the wording in the statute when there is clearly no need for it? The law says nothing about tax refunds, and it speaks
30 ONLY of tax "liability", not "owing" the tax. There can be no doubt that the W-4 was worded to conflict with the code in 31 order to frustrate its proper application. If the IRS used the word "liable" instead of "owe" on the W-4 form, they would 32 draw attention to that word and people would start looking for it in the tax code and find that it isn't used anywhere in the 33 context of any of the Subtitles A through C income taxes! They would virtually guarantee losing a court case over the use
34 of this word if someone sued them, so they replace the word with "owe" to confuse things and so the word can't be 35 interpreted literally in the code itself. In any case, natural persons who understand that there is not statute within Internal 36 Revenue Code (26 U.S.C.) subtitles A through C making anyone liable for the payment of these voluntary donations
37 (taxes), then they can safely write "EXEMPT" in the box and check boxes 3a and 3b. And since the tax was collected 38 illegally on the basis of fraud and intimidation, all employees certainly have the "right" to a full refund—regardless of 39 whether the federal mafia recognizes that right.

40 6.6.9 Whistleblower Retaliation

41 6.6.9.1 1998: IRS Historian Quits-Then Gets Audited¹⁹⁸

¹⁹⁸ Losing Your Illusions, Gordon Phillips, p. 20.

1 Former official historian for the Internal Revenue Service, Shelley Davis, quit her post in protest over how the agency is 2 systematically destroying its historical documents, presumably to break the trail of any possible investigation into the
3 numerous ways that the internal revenue laws are being violated.

4 The IRS has also stated in 1999 (?) that it is abolishing the position of historian. The IRS has announced it wanted to audit
5 Ms. Davis' tax returns, who was a former IRS historian. Yes, the IRS will turn on anyone, including one of its own.

6 In the 1998 senate hearings that resulted in the approval of the IRS Restructuring and Reform Act (RRA) during which IRS
7 abuses were exposed, the IRS agents who were blowing the whistle on the agency repeated over and over that they felt they
8 were doing a service by testifying against the agency, but that their biggest concern was now becoming targets of retaliation
9 by the IRS or Department of Justice.

10 Sure, and if they close their eyes and wish real hard, Tinkerbell will appear. As you may have surmised, if you've been 11 paying attention, I personally do not have the "highest confidence in the integrity" of the Internal Revenue Service. Yet, in 12 spite of Ms. Richardson's (the former IRS commissioner who quit over compliance issues) heartwarming sentiment and 13 Publication 1's reassuring rhetoric about the "voluntary" nature of the income tax, just like the creature in the movie "Alien"
14 that won't stop until it has located and devoured your property--assuming you own property titled in your own name, of 15 course--and has totally destroyed you, both financially and personally. Remember, like the Alien, the government is 16 hungry. It must eat to survive and it will destroy you to feed itself if it has to, in blatant violation of your constitutionally 17 protected rights as an American.

18 Below is the text of Ms. Davis' prepared testimony in front of the Congressional Committee that investigated the IRS in 19 1998. We downloaded this speech off the About.com website under "Police Conduct: Internal Revenue Service" at 20 <http://civilliberty.about.com/cs/irs/>:

21 PREPARED STATEMENT OF
22 SHELLEY L. DAVIS
23 BEFORE THE SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE
24 OVERSIGHT HEARING ON THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE
25 TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1997

26 Mr. Chairman and Members of the Senate Finance Committee, I am pleased to be able to share a few of my 27 thoughts and experiences with you today as you explore specific issues of IRS abuse of those the tax agency
28 likes to call its "customers" -- American taxpayers.

29 For 16 years I worked as an historian for the federal government. Nine of those years were with the Department
30 of Defense and the final seven were spent as the first and unfortunately, the last, official historian for the 31 Internal Revenue Service. At the end of 1995, I resigned from my federal career in protest over the 32 unwillingness of the IRS, or the Treasury Department Inspector General, to investigate my complaint of illegal
33 document destruction by the IRS. I learned that the same federal investigator to whom I originally reported my 34 concerns regarding this, had turned around and opened an investigation of me on unfounded and false charges
35 of "wrongful release of confidential information." Later, I learned that this is a common tactic used against IRS
36 employees who dare to speak up against management. I knew then that I had no alternative but to resign and 37 try to raise awareness of the intransigence, arrogance, and abusive patterns of behavior that I found all too
38 common inside the headquarters of the IRS. I decided to write a book which was published earlier this year
39 entitled, "Unbridled Power."

40 My testimony today will touch briefly on three areas:

- 41 1.) The cultural climate of the IRS;
- 42 2.) List keeping at the IRS;
- 43 3.) The IRS definition of "tax protester."

44 My introduction to the culture of the IRS came during my earliest days with the tax agency, in the fall of 1988.
45 Although I had been hired as the first historian for the IRS, I found little interest or support for my efforts. I
46 found even less history. By history I mean both an awareness of the heritage of the IRS as well as the raw
47 material (the documentation) from which narrative history is distilled. Neither the documents nor the heritage
48 were to be found. Initially, I found this curious. Later, I found it alarming. At the IRS National Headquarters,
49 there seemed little connection between the work of employees and actual tax collection--what I presumed to be
50 the mission of the IRS. Rather than possessing any basic curiosity about the past, the IRS employees I

1 encountered exhibited a wariness, a suspicion--assuming that anyone looking for records must have some 2 definite agenda. An agenda presumed to be negative.

3 This reluctance to think about the past translated into routine day-to-day operations, meaning that all
4 documents were tossed, shredded, whatever, when a program was completed--or shut down, as in the case of 5 many IRS computer projects. No records. No paper trail. No history.

6 As time went on, I realized that this not only made my job as historian virtually impossible, but that it
7 guaranteed that the IRS could never be held accountable for its actions. With a sense of historical development,
8 I came up with my own interpretation of this phenomenon. One could easily pass off the reluctance of the IRS to 9 acknowledge its past as a reaction to a constant barrage of criticism. But the IRS is certainly not the only 10 federal agency subjected to criticism from the press, Congress, or the public.

11 Instead of reflecting on positive actions in response to criticism, the IRS proclaims that any criticism of the 12 agency is "IRS bashing" and "will only lead to more tax protesters." Rather than respond with solid
13 information, historical examples, and analysis, the IRS jumps around skittishly, telling Congress that this 14 reorganization, or that new position, or another new task force will remedy the current problem. The IRS has 15 learned that its most effective response to inquiring questions from Congress, from the press, or from the 16 American people is to hide behind the privacy laws. These are the laws meant to protect taxpayers. But by 17 endlessly citing restrictions on its authority to comment on taxpayer cases, the IRS deflects criticism for any and 18 all actions. In essence, the response of the IRS to question about anything and everything is, "Trust us. We're 19 doing the right thing. We just can't tell you what that is because we're protecting American taxpayers."

20 A corollary to this defensive shield is the penchant of the IRS to destroy its paper trail. There were virtually no
21 records of IRS actions throughout the twentieth century in any of the repositories where one would normally 22 find federal records: the IRS itself, the National Archives (including the permanent archives in Washington, 23 D.C., the 10 records centers around the country, or the Presidential libraries.)

24 In my early years with the IRS, a good question to ask was, "Where are the records?" What I learned was 25 shocking. The records had been destroyed. Gone. Shredded. Tossed. They no longer exist due to a lack of 26 attention to, or concern for, the law which requires all federal agencies to preserve records of what they do. It
27 is as though the IRS assumed that laws which apply to the FBI, to the CIA, to every other part of the federal 28 establishment can be ignored.

29 No other agency of our government could get away with this. I questioned the reason why it had taken so long
30 for anyone to realize that the records were not just missing, but destroyed. I believe the answer is based on fear.
31 As taxpayers, why would we ever question the one agency that can truly bite back? Our fear of suffering a
32 personal attack from the IRS generally keeps most of us in check. Our fear of being audited has allowed the IRS
33 to theoretically eliminate any potential smoking guns by trashing its own records. This ensures that it can never 34 be held accountable for its actions. How can you prove any wrongdoing when the evidence is already 35 destroyed?

36 The IRS has learned that the privacy protections are its best weapon in its war against its "customers." There is 37 an "us against them" mentality which is far too common among IRS employees. I witnessed and experienced 38 this attitude firsthand for over seven years working at the IRS headquarters. When I questioned the lack of 39 record keeping by the IRS, it was made clear to me that I was a "lone ranger," a "loose cannon," and "not a 40 team player." Is it any wonder they investigated me?

41 I'll conclude this section with a stark example from my personal experience. After my protest resignation at the 42 end of 1995, admittedly I was not on the "most favored" list of IRS. But when I went to the IRS National Office
43 on Monday, April 15, 1996, to meet a friend who had invited me for lunch to celebrate my birthday, I did not 44 expect to be threatened with arrest. But that is what happened.

45 While waiting for my friend to meet me at the entrance of the building, I was pulled aside by an IRS internal 46 security agent who told me to leave immediately because I was officially "banned" from the building.

47 I thought this was odd as I was standing in the front entrance, a public space. When I asked for an explanation,
48 I was told that I was "banned" because I "did not turn in my official identification badge when I resigned four 49 months earlier."

50 This was untrue.

51 When the agent detaining me prepared to call for Federal Protective Service agents to carry out her threat to 52 arrest me, I knew I had to make a quick decision: let them carry through with this absurd threat, or turn and 53 leave. I left. To this day, I wish I had stayed and made them carry through with their threat. The IRS brought 54 false charges against me, used government resources to pursue a false investigation of me, and continued to 55 harass me even after I had resigned. With the IRS, as I am sure you will hear from others today, retaliation is 56 prompt, swift and catastrophic.

1 My years with the IRS were spent exclusively in the National Office, the headquarters of the tax agency.
2 Throughout my tenure at the IRS, I often heard stories that different types of codes were used to identify 3 taxpayers and returns.

4 I have specific knowledge of one type of list maintained inside the IRS. It is a product of a secretive, cloistered
5 unit of the IRS which existed from 1969 through 1973, known by the name "Special Services Staff," or SSS.

6 The SSS list had approximately 11,000 individuals and organizations designated as possible audit targets by the 7 IRS. Who were these people and organizations? Some were names you will recognize: Shirley MacLaine, Joan 8 Baez, John Lindsay, the Black Panthers, and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee(SNCC).

9 But most of those who made it onto the list were not household names but were individuals the SSS determined
10 were of questionable character as determined by the SSS.

11 Ten employees of the SSS dutifully clipped newspaper articles each day. The FBI willingly sent over its own
12 files on political dissidents and protesters, and subscriptions were taken to radical publications which were 13 perused for names and other leads. All in all, the SSS targeted individuals with no known tax problems for audit
14 simply because of their political activities.

15 The commissioner who abolished the SSS, Donald Alexander, actually testified before Congress in 1975 that he
16 believed the SSS records should be taken "out on the mall and burned."

17 Yet, despite the fact that the SSS files remain intact at the IRS (at least through my resignation at the end of 18 1995), the IRS steadfastly refuses to release the files to researchers or even to the National Archives for 19 safekeeping. Why? Because they contain "taxpayer information." Who is protecting whom, one has to wonder?
20 What has all this got to do with the present? Today I believe there exist thousands of names of American
21 taxpayers whose Master Files are coded as TC-148, which brands them as "Illegal Tax Protesters." Whether 22 this is a list, or compilation of files which bear that designation, is semantics. Just how many Americans bear 23 this designation?

24 At the very least, we need to know if we are on that list, We reserve that right. The IRS says we can't know and 25 don't have a right to know while simultaneously claiming Congress wants it this way.

26 The only thing being protected in this scenario is the IRS. Just what is a tax protester? Your definition, like 27 mine, is probably different from the IRS definition. I learned that while inside the IRS.

28 A tax protester, in my definition, is not someone who may oppose our system of taxation, but pays his taxes
29 nonetheless. A tax protester is not someone who says that our tax system is broken and must be dismantled, but 30 still files a Form 1040. A tax protester is not someone who merely criticizes the IRS. A tax protester is not 31 someone who challenges an IRS assessment. But in the mind of the IRS, all of the above ideas fit the unofficial 32 IRS profile of a tax protester. In the cloistered environment of the IRS, criticism of the IRS, or the income tax,
33 equals tax protester. Anyone who has the misfortune of bearing that title is most likely going to witness first 34 hand just what "taxpayer abuse" really means.

35 Don't get me wrong. I am not in any way condoning the actions of those who, by one manner or another,
36 attempt to cheat or not live up to their financial responsibilities as a U.S. citizen. But I do recognize the use of 37 the label of "Illegal Tax Protestor" as another powerful weapon of the most powerful agency in America. It is 38 time for Congress to compel the IRS to be more forthcoming about its audit procedures, even though the IRS
39 would like us to believe that our system of taxation will collapse if the American people know how their tax 40 collector goes about his or her business.

41 The IRS gains too much benefit from the privacy laws to come clean on its own. The culture of the IRS, built
42 over decades of learning to hide behind the privacy laws, will not change on its own. Without intervention from 43 Congress, it will not happen. Last year, a top career IRS executive testified before Congress that, "There is the 44 general view that the more mysterious tax enforcement is, the more likely taxpayers will voluntarily comply."
45 Mystery breeds distrust and contempt. It also breeds fear, which compels many taxpayers to comply with the tax 46 laws because they are afraid of the consequences, but it does not breed voluntary compliance or trust.

47 The arrogance of the IRS is outrageous and harmful. We lose more than we gain by allowing the IRS to operate
48 in this manner. Congress must demand accountability from the IRS. Congress must shine the spotlight on the 49 IRS and never switch the power off.

50 Thank you.

1 6.6.9.2 1993: IRS Raided the Save-A-Patriot Fellowship¹⁹⁹

2 Unlike many so-called "tax groups" which are nothing more than boiler room operations, often moving from State to State
3 to avoid detection, the Save-A-Patriot Fellowship has been at the same physical location at 12 Carroll Street, Westminster,
4 Maryland, and at the same telephone number (410) 857-4441, since opening their doors in 1984.

5 Fellowship Fiduciary, John Kotmair, has employed individuals for thirteen years without applying for an employer
6 identification number, and therefore has not withheld taxes of any kind from those within the employ of the Fellowship in 7 all of this time.

8 The IRS raided the Fellowship in 1993, and one of the allegations was that he had no employer identification number and 9 was not withholding taxes. After requesting the requirement to do so in court, the IRS dropped the allegation.

10 Eventually they were ordered to return the property taken, which they did, and the federal court ruled on December 18,
11 1996, against the IRS's allegation that the Fellowship could not exist without being regulated by the government. Judge 12 Garbis of the United States district Court for the District of Maryland ruled on December 18, 1996 that the Fellowship is in 13 fact:

14 "...an unincorporated association and, as such, is legally capable of owning property",

15 needing no permission to exist and independent of government regulation. This ruling amounts to being given the "Good 16 Housekeeping Seal of Approval" by a federal court.

17 So why does the IRS "allow" the Fellowship to stay in business? Why haven't we been shut down? It wasn't for lack of 18 trying.

19 On December 10, 1993, the Internal Revenue Service conducted a raid on our national offices at 12 Carroll Street,
20 Westminster, Maryland. The Fellowship had suspected for some time that there were many misperceptions within the IRS
21 as to the purpose and goals of the Fellowship, and that under the circumstances it would be appropriate to explain their 22 position in order to ensure that it was not misrepresented either in the public forum or certain branches of the IRS. To 23 accomplish this, the Fellowship wrote to the Acting Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Michael Dolan, on July 19, 1993,
24 expressing their concern. In that letter they extended an invitation to the Commissioner or any of his designates to visit the 25 Fellowship's national headquarters and observe firsthand their activities.

26 The same invitation was extended to all of the federal judges and magistrates in this district, and public notice of the 27 invitation was printed in the Carroll County Times, a local Maryland newspaper, on three consecutive Mondays. The 28 Fellowship was glad to see local Federal Magistrate Paul M. Rosenberg respond to our invitation and comment that we 29 were doing "an admirable job."

30 So on October 27, 1993, the Fellowship wrote to the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Margaret Milner Richardson,
31 and repeated their invitation. This time, because of their growth and national prominence, they even suggested a permanent 32 IRS liaison for the office, but instead of any spirit of cooperation, the IRS response was to notify them that the matter was 33 turned over to the Criminal Investigation Division in Baltimore. Magistrate Rosenberg, who was fully aware of the 34 Fellowship's intent, knew of the invitation. Therefore, he also knew that the Fellowship was not "concealing" anything.

35 Nevertheless, on December 8, 1993, Magistrate Rosenberg signed a search warrant stating:

36 "...property is now concealed on the premises.. and if the ...property be found there to seize same."

37 After making every effort to communicate their purpose and extending the above invitation, the Fellowship was accused of 38 "concealing" something, of what they are not sure. The fact is, it is believed that the IRS had ulterior motives.

¹⁹⁹ Portions from Losing Your Illusions, Gordon Phillips, pp. 138-141.

1 Since the Fellowship documents the systematic denial of due process in the various assessment and collection procedures
2 and the fraudulent practice of various IRS agents, it is entirely possible that the seizure of such documents was intended to 3 thwart the association's investigations into such affairs, in other words, to cover up corruption at the highest levels.

4 The public should call for an investigation by the Justice Department into the circumstances surrounding the warrant and 5 subsequent raid, rather than to tacitly assume that the individuals responsible for this "raid" are above reproach.

6 The events leading up to the raid would further seem to support this hypothesis. They began on December 1, 1993, when
7 John B. Kotmair, Jr. the fiduciary of The Save-A-Patriot Fellowship, was subpoenaed to appear at a grand jury
8 investigation in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. The affidavit supporting the subpoena contained false statements made by an 9 IRS Special Agent, so Mr. Kotmair naturally notified the Court to inform them of the defect.

10 Nevertheless, the Federal District Court of South Dakota insisted that he appear in Sioux Falls on December 9, 1993, to 11 testify. During his testimony, John provided the Grand Jury with copies of the documentation showing the perjurious
12 statements of the IRS Special Agent.

13 The US Attorney conspired with the perjurious Special Agent in an obvious attempt to obtain the indictment against Mr.
14 Kotmair.

15 Also during the proceedings, the U.S. Attorney asked Mr. Kotmair:

16 "..isn't it true that anyone who disagrees with an IRS assessment can pay the tax and then sue for a refund in 17 court?"

18 The implication was that Mr. Kotmair was "selling" the public a false information in the form of a "non-existent legal 19 remedy."

20 Mr. Kotmair responded by explaining to the jury that suing for a refund was only one option. He said:

21 "If the IRS claimed you owed a million dollars, could you afford to pay the tax then sue for a refund?"

22 "What about $25,000?"

23 "Could you afford to pay $25,000 and then sue for a refund?"

24 He then gave them a brief history lesson and explained that during the War Between the States, Congress passed the Anti-
25 Injunction Act that prevented the courts from enjoining (stopping) the collection of a tax. He told them that because of this 26 Anti-Injunction Act, a bureaucrat could literally pluck a figure out of thin air, (like a million dollars), claim you owe it, and 27 there would be no judicial remedy because the courts no longer had jurisdiction over such matters.

28 Then he explained why the U.S. Attorney was wrong and cited "the other option under the IR Code", section 6404, the 29 section that the IRS does not like to talk about! He explained that people with errant assessments have an administrative 30 remedy that the IRS was ignoring and/or denying in violation of due process requirements, and then he explained that he 31 assisted people in pursuing this administrative remedy and in requesting abatements if and when they believed an 32 assessment had been made in error.

33 There was no need to go through the expensive and often prohibitive process of appealing to a tax court. He added that he 34 had helped thousands of people and that at the present time he was helping a 72 year-old man in Alaska who had never 35 even paid him a dime!

36 The grand jury evidently agreed with the information about the Save-A-Patriot Fellowship! Mr. Kotmair was able to take a 37 late flight home and arrived just in time for the scheduled raid at the Fellowship shortly after 9AM the next day, December 38 10, 1993.

1 The whole affair reeks of shame, and the alleged liability of Mr. Kotmair appears to be nothing more than a ploy designed
2 to make the IRS's actions palatable to an increasingly suspicious public. They no doubt hoped to make a public spectacle
3 out of the indictment and subsequent raid.

4 As to what actually happened--one of the Fellowship's caseworkers had already arrived at the office and was busily
5 working at his computer. Hearing a noise from behind, he turned around only to find four 9-millimeter semi-automatic
6 handguns pointed at his head. In a calm, quizzical voice he asked, "What seems to be the problem?"

7 As luck would have it, this particular staff member was a former treasury agent himself, and by the purest of coincidences,
8 he was wearing his personalized "treasury" jacket.

9 The swat team was intimately familiar with the apparel and immediately asked him where he had obtained it. The staff
10 member replied, "I used to be one of you boys until I learned the truth!"

11 He was promptly ordered out of the building with his hands on his head. Federal agents then began to sort through the 12 Fellowship's property and loaded it onto trucks. To show just how ridiculous the raid was, the computers stored only 13 information pertaining to correspondence that had already been sent to the IRS as the Fellowship maintains no membership
14 lists on the premises.

15 Considering that the IRS already had copies of these documents, and considering the costs involved with performing the 16 raid, not a mention how much the subsequent litigation is going to cost the IRS in terms of money and embarrassment, we 17 just cannot fathom why some IRS special agent would be dumb enough to cause the IRS all of the problems that this raid is 18 going to cause for them.

19 It may be that the raid was to be the "icing on the cake" to the indictment that never came down, and that someone forgot to 20 inform the Baltimore IRS to call off the raid. But regardless, it should be pointed out that the warrant only authorized the 21 seizure of property belonging to Mr. Kotmair, and not to the Fellowship. But Mr. Kotmair is only the fiduciary for the 22 association. He does not own the property.

23 Therefore, since the warrant specified only property belonging to John Kotmair, the Save-A-Patriot property that was taken, 24 was taken illegally, regardless of whether the warrant was justified or not.

25 Unfortunately, the travesty of justice doesn't stop there. At the same time as the raid on the office, agents forcibly entered
26 Mr. Kotmair's home with weapons drawn. His wife, Nancy, was in her nightgown and turned to get her bathrobe to open 27 the door after she heard the knocks, but agents immediately smashed the front door in with a sledge hammer before she 28 could get her bathrobe on. His son was asleep and awoke to find a shotgun close to his head.

29 Mrs. Kotmair was not even allowed to change clothes to put on something warmer. Instead, she was confined to a chair
30 near the broken front door with cold winter air coming in on her. After about an hour she was allowed to put on her
31 bathrobe. When she needed to use the bathroom a female agent would go with her and refused to leave for "her own 32 protection" they told her. She observed agents quarreling over what property they would take but was not allowed to be 33 involved in their determination of what was applicable property to be seized pursuant to the warrant.

34 Witnesses reported that the rude, arrogant, confrontation attitude of the fifty gun-waving IRS agents turned to confusion
35 when they were not met with angry or hostile "opponents". They were apparently given false information of what to 36 expect, quite possibly, to provoke an "incident" which could be used to justify the raid in the mind of the public.

37 A few of Mr. Kotmairs perfectly legal handguns were laid out on the ground and photographed as though to suggest that he 38 was some sort of drug king pin. Considering that John spent nearly a decade in the 1950's as a police officer in Baltimore, 39 Maryland, it would not be unusual for him to have a legal gun collection.

40 This was all part of the public spectacle to justify this travesty of justice, resulting from a faulty warrant and subsequent 41 raid that should have been called off, all because the IRS doesn't want John Kotmair helping innocent people whom the IRS 42 wants to destroy.

1 Both "raids" were certainly unnecessary expense that, by the time the matter is litigated, will cost the people of this country
2 millions of dollars. But the saddest part of this story is how innocent people are subjected to the threat of harm or even 3 death at the hands of uniformed bureaucrats whose mercenary employees justify their actions by saying, without any
4 personal conscience, "...we're just following orders."

5 The failure of the IRS to publicly defend their actions establishes the presumption that their activities are either unlawful or 6 that the agency incorrectly believes itself to be above the Law and under no obligation to the public.

7 The people certainly have the right to the truth and the government has the duty to respond to all inquiries regarding the 8 truth, as required in IRS Publication 1.

9 During the raid, the IRS broke federal laws by opening and reading sealed correspondence between the Fellowship and our 10 members, and took numerous computers, copy machines, fax machines, laser printers, file cabinets, etc. The IRS failed
11 completely in their effort to discredit the Fellowship and demoralize the staff.

12 A national alert for help went out and within days, money, new computers and other office equipment streamed into 13 headquarters. Ten days after the raid, the Fellowship was back in full operation, and membership swelled as a result of 14 solidarity on the part of patriotic Americans nationwide.

15 About nine months later, the IRS returned unannounced in a rental truck, dressed in plain clothes, and returned all of the 16 Fellowship's property with the exception of $60,000 stolen from a safe. Needless to say, the Fellowship has filed numerous 17 lawsuits against the IRS which are ongoing. That was in 1993.

18 Since that time enrollment has soared with members pouring in from across the country. One of our member, nationally
19 known talk radio personality Zoh Hieronimus, hosts her own ten-thousand watt radio talk show on Baltimore AM radio
20 station WCBM every weekday morning from 9AM to Noon.

21 Zoh covered the raid live on the air. Among numerous other guests, she has on many occasions interviews Fellowship
22 founder John Kotmair and other staffers on the air, beaming 10,000 watts of truth about the proper limited application of 23 the income and employment sections of the Internal Revenue Code directly into the beltway inside Washington, D.C.

24 We have knowledge that the IRS and other State and federal government officials are tuning in to Zoh. And for good
25 reason! She is ruthless at uncovering the truth about any issue she covers, and is an unusually gifted speaker. The 26 Fellowship has researched and developed legal defenses to protect the liberty and property of its members from those 27 within the government who would ignore the law, violate due process, and rob honest Americans.

28 I hate to use so strong a word as rob when speaking of the actions of a government I was raised to love and respect, but the 29 extortion of property from U.S. citizens through decades of deception and misinformation in clear violation of the written 30 Law can only be called what it really is--robbery.

31 Apparently the Supreme Court aggress. In the 1874 case, Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874), they said:

32 "To lay with one hand the power of government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it on 33 favored individuals.. is none the less robbery because it is.. called taxation."

34 The "bottom line" is that the Save-A-Patriot Fellowship successfully withstood an IRS raid and then prevailed against the 35 IRS in Federal District Court's Judgment to t the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit, Case No. 97-1303, 36 and on March 13th, 1997, filed with that Court a Motion for Dismissal of Appeal--with prejudice.

37 Since the day the Fellowship opened its doors on February 24, 1984, John B. Kotmair, Jr., Founder and Fiduciary, has 38 never withheld a dime in income or employment taxes from any of the approximately two dozen staffers who work at the 39 Fellowship's Maryland headquarters.

1 The IRS knows full well that there is no law that requires the withholding of such taxes from a U.S. citizen working and
2 living within the 50 union states. Furthermore, the IRS has never in nearly fourteen years made any attempt to levy on the 3 pay of any of the above staffers. If you want to be free, you have to live free.

4 Liberty works! End of Story!!

5 6.6.10 IRS has NO Delegated Authority to Impose Penalties or Levies or Seizures for Nonpayment of Subtitle A 6 Personal Income Taxes!

7 6.6.10.1 What Particular Type of Tax is Part 301 of Treasury Regulations?

8 Part 301 of the Regulations (26 CFR) warrants a detailed explanation, because it is these Regulations that the IRS
9 fraudulently misapplies to Citizens of the 50 [nonfederal] states as their purported authority to charge interest and penalties
10 and seize property and levy compensation. All 301 Policies and Procedures cannot be and are not applicable to ALL 11 subject matters of taxes.

12 Note: A “cross reference” and the word “see,” in statutory construction, are used as a means of clarification only and have 13 no legal applicability.

14 IMPORTANT!: A Part 301 Regulation, by itself, has no legal force to promulgate or implement Part 1, “Income Tax”
15 provisions. A Part 301 Regulation is merely a cross reference added, in the interest of completeness, not as the lawful 16 “authority.”

17 The 1939 and 1954 Title 26 Internal Revenue Codes for Income Taxes, which were never repealed and are the basis and 18 nucleus of our current system of taxation , did not contain a Part 301! From 1939 until 1961, there was NO Part 301
19 “Procedure and Administration” outlining procedures for interest, penalties, property seizures, and levies! The preface to 20 the 54 Regulations (February 16, 1954) states:

21 “This book [1954 Internal Revenue Code] contains rules and regulations constituting Parts 1 to 79 of Title 26...”

22 Following is a sample excerpt from the Table of Contents for the 1954 Regulations [26 CFR]:

23 Table of Contents

24 Title 26:
25 Chapter I –Internal Revenue Service, Department of the Treasury
26 (Parts 1-79).....3

27 [Note the conspicuous absence of Part 301!]

28 So where did Part 301 come from? Where was Part 301 in the 1954 Regs? The first time Part 301 mysteriously appeared 29 was in a specially published 1961 edition of CFR Title 26. The Preface to these Regulations solved the mystery of the 30 origin of Part 301, stating:

31 “Title 27 (Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms), formerly included..Part 300 to the end...”

32 What Particular Types of Taxes were these “Procedures and Administrations” applicable to? Alcohol, Tobacco, and 33 Firearms! Part 301 was NOT written for Title 26 Voluntary Income Taxes! These Part 300+ provisions carry severe
34 penalties for noncompliance, because Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Tax is a “regulated” revenue taxable industry
35 imposing a Mandatory Tax upon which criminal sanctions and property seizures could be imposed!

36 The “Publisher’s Note,” which was added to the first page of the 1954 microfiche of the CFR, after its publication, makes a 37 reference to this suspicious alteration, stating:

38 “No Federal Register citation covering this change was discoverable.”

1 Again, the IRS cannot lawfully impose civil and criminal penalties on a voluntary tax because noncompliance is one of the 2 options! That is why there is nowhere in the Regulations that a Part 1 Voluntary Tax cross references to a 301 Regulation
 3 applicable to penalties, interest, levies, seizure, or summons!

4 Any attempted enforcement by the IRS of a Code relating to voluntary tax, without a Part 1 Implementing Regulation, is a
 5 denial of due process for the American Citizen in violation of 26 CFR §601.106!

7 The following is taken from the Parallel Table of Authorities in the back of the Title 26 Code of Federal Regulations
 8 [CFR]. It is a list of the ONLY Part 301 Regulations that derive their Authority for implementation from Title 26 USCS or 9 26 IRC [Income Taxes]. Note the conspicuous absence of any penalty, interest, levy or seizure for the Title 26 Voluntary
 10 Income Tax. Again, it is inconceivable that the Congress would legislate penalties for the individual income tax, since the 11 supreme Court and the IRS have both substantiated that such a Tax is voluntary and NOT based upon distraint. It would be 12 absurd to impose penalties for non-compliance, when such an option is what made the tax voluntary to begin with!

6.6.11 Service of Illegal Summons

It is quite common for the IRS to send out illegal summons in order to go on “fishing expeditions” in trying to uncover mud to sling at a law-abiding Citizen. 26 U.S.C. §7603 governs the issuance of summons. The vast majority of IRS summons are illegal and do not comply with the requirements of this section because:

- The summons did not identify the code section establishing a tax liability. It MUST do so to be enforceable. Since there is no section in the I.R.C. that established a tax liability for Subtitles A through C, if the summons relates to these taxes, it cannot be validly issued. You might want to ask the agent the following:

“In referring to an unspecified and alleged ‘tax liability’, does this refer to the tobacco tax liability contained in Section 5703 (yes or no)?”

Ask the same question about sections 5005, 4374, and 4401(c) of the I.R.C. and then if the answer is no, ask:

“Then what section of the Internal Revenue Code establishes the liability for which this summons is being issued?”

- The agent did not personally serve the person being summoned
- The agent did not specify the precise books and records being requested.
- The agent who issued them does not have a “Delegation Order” which allows him to issue the summons form.
- The wrong form or not form at all was used.
- The summons was not signed by the agent, or in most cases anyone.

If you receive a summons from an IRS that contains any of the above defects, then you have been illegally served and need not appear at the summons, but should notify the IRS of the defect in their notice promptly (usually within 10 days). For more information about summons, see:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Evidence/Discovery/IRSSummons.pdf>

IRS Publication 1, entitled Your Rights as a Taxpayer, is supposed to tell you what your rights are, but why doesn't the IRS title it “Your rights as an American regarding taxes?” Have you ever thought of that? Is the implication here that you have to pay money to the government to have rights? Under such circumstances, doesn't the government really just become a big mafia protection racket, where we pay money to keep them off our back and keep IRS computers from sending us automated anonymous and harassing letters? This is what we meant earlier in section 4.3.12 entitled “Government-instituted slavery using privileges”, where we said that the government has illegally tried to turn rights into taxable privileges, and here that very reality is staring you right in the face if you are paying attention!

Think hard about this: If you are a “taxpayer”, then by definition, you are liable for tax and we already know that you don't have any rights under those circumstances! We pointed this out earlier in section 3.12.1.21. The only reason you have any liberties at all as a “taxpayer” is because the government didn't take ALL of your income so you had enough left over after being raped to go out and have some fun. Lets face it: The whole bill of rights goes straight down the toilet when you are liable for any income taxes. The attitude of most passive “taxpayers”, the people we call “sheeple”, is:

“Go ahead and take [steal] whatever money you want, but please don't hit me!”

If the IRS replaced “Taxpayer” with “American” in their Publication 1, however, they would have to explain what law makes the average American liable for income tax and why you owe it to begin with. This question is a question the IRS knows they can't answer because there aren't any statutes in all of Subtitles A and C that make natural persons liable for income taxes. We even have a letter from a Congressman on Congressional letterhead stating this! Click here to view it. So instead the IRS deceptively names their publication using the word “Taxpayer” to keep attention off the real issues, which are jurisdiction and liability! Therefore, the audience this publication is written for are those people who already mistakenly believe they are liable. However, the only way you as a natural person can have rights is to not pay income taxes and not be liable for income taxes. The name of this publication is therefore an oxymoron if we every saw one. It's like saying any of the following similarly self-contradictory oxymorons:

- Military intelligence
- Government organization
- Honest politician

Next time you call the IRS, ask them if they have a publication that tells people who don't believe they are liable what their rights are. You will probably be discarded like a hot potato by the agent once he finds out what you are up to!

Ironically, the State of California pulls the same trick with the word "taxpayer". Their Publication 70 "Your Rights as a Taxpayer" uses the same kind of sneaky word play to deceive and evade the truth.

6.6.13 Cover-Up of March 2004: IRS Removed List of Return Types Authorized for SFR from IRM Section 5.1.11.6.8

The We The People Truth in Taxation Hearing held 27-28 February 2002 in Washington, D.C. had an area of inquiry, section 13, entitled: 26 U.S.C. §6020(b) Substitute for Returns. You can view that area of inquiry at:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Discovery/Deposition/Section%2013.htm>

That area focused on IRS efforts at performing illegal Substitute for Returns against people who technically are not "taxpayers". Prior to that hearing, a group of 40 researchers, including former IRS agents, assembled evidence to be used at the hearing. Among that evidence compiled for the hearing was an excerpt from section 5.1.11.6.8 of the IRS Internal Revenue Manual, which is the manual that describes proper procedures for doing assessments within the IRS. You can view that evidence at:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Discovery/Deposition/Evidence/Q13.009c.pdf>

Below is what that section said, as demonstrated during the hearing:

*5.1.11.6.8 (05-27-1999)
IRC 6020(b) Authority*

1. The following returns may be prepared, signed and assessed under the authority of IRC 6020(b):

- A. Form 940, Employer's Annual Federal Unemployment Tax Return*
- B. Form 941, Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return*
- C. Form 943, Employer's Annual Tax Return for Agricultural Employees*
- D. Form 720, Quarterly Federal Excise Tax Return*
- E. Form 2290, Heavy Vehicle Use Tax Return*
- F. Form CT-1, Employer's Annual Railroad Retirement Tax Return*
- G. Form 1065, U.S. Return of Partnership Income.*

2. Pursuant to IRM 1.2.2.97, Delegations of Authority, Order Number 182 (rev. 7), dated 5/5/1997, revenue officers GS-09 and above, and Collection Support Function managers GS-09 and above, have the authority to prepare and execute returns under IRC 6020(b).

We showed earlier in section 5.4.14 that the IRS has no legal authority to assess natural persons with a tax liability under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. The above section of the Internal Revenue Manual clearly proves that conclusion. Notice that the form 1040 is NOT listed as one of the forms that the IRS can do a Substitute for Return (SFR) on.

Following the hearings, the IRS apparently read these materials and starting in March 2004, they removed the above content from section 5.1.11.6.8 of their Internal Revenue Manual. This evidence was so damning that the IRS apparently decided to remove it from their website after we made a big public spectacle about it. Now that section is empty! Apparently, they don't want to be held accountable for obeying 26 U.S.C. §6020(b) and want to encourage their employees to improperly administer that very important part of the Internal Revenue Code that allows the illegal flow of money to continue.

6.6.14 Cover-Up of Jan. 2002: IRS Removed the Internal Revenue Manual (IRM) from their Website Search Engine

1 Apparently frustrated by our website and dedicated patriots everywhere who have been reading the law and the IRS
2 publications to defend their legal and Constitutional rights to not pay direct taxes, the IRS completed redesigning their
3 website (<http://www.irs.gov>) to remove key portions from their search engine, thereby making it more difficult for patriots
4 to find help on important subjects and understand their responsibilities using the IRS website.

5 The most valuable portion of their website, the Internal Revenue Manual (IRM), was moved from the Tax Professional's
6 Corner to the FOIA area of their website and conspicuously removed from their search engine. The FOIA area of most 7 government websites is reserved for things the government doesn't want to disclose to people but has to anyway under the 8 Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). The IRM is several thousand pages long and removing it from the website search 9 engine makes it extremely difficult and inconvenient for patriots and freedom advocates to locate relevant information and 10 properly comply with the Internal Revenue Code. We would be willing to bet that their internal intranet accessible only to 11 IRS employees has the document added to their search engine for more convenient use by its own employees. We'd 12 recommend doing an FOIA request to find this out to gather evidence to document this hypocritical scam. Please send us a 13 copy of your FOIA response from the IRS if you do so.

14 The IRS also deleted the area below telling where to file FOIA requests, as though they no longer want any!:

<http://www.irs.gov/prod/preview/foia/offices.html>

15 IRS: Is THIS what you call improving customer service and satisfaction and better meeting your mission statement, which 16 says(?):

17 *"Provide America's taxpayers top quality service by helping them understand and meet their tax 18 responsibilities and by applying the tax law with integrity and fairness to all."

19 We'd say this strategic move conflicts with your mission statement and makes it more, not less difficult for people to 20 understand and meet their legal tax responsibilities! Instead, it simply makes them more dependent on your fraudulent IRS
21 publications and less able to understand the law.

22 Nice try, IRS, but we were ready for you when you pulled this stunt! Don't fret, patriots! If you want an indexed,
23 searchable version of the IRM as of Sept. 2001, you can go to our site below:

24 <http://famguardian.org/Publications/IRM-020311/0,,i1=5&genericId=21023.00.html>

25 The search box is at the end of the table of contents. However, the search function only works on our home site and not on 26 our mirror sites.

27 6.6.15 Cover-Up of 2002: W-8 Certificate of Foreign Status Form Removed from the IRS Website December 2000
28 and replaced with W-8BEN

29 The IRS website, up until December of 2000, contained a copy of the form W-8 available for download. The form was 30 simple to use and could exempt you from both employment withholding and tax withholding of banks on accounts. After 31 that date, the form was removed, presumably because so many people were using the simple nonresident alien approach
32 advocated in this book and by other authors. Remember that nonresident aliens have no requirement to pay any income tax
33 or file returns if they have no income from inside the federal United States, which includes the District of Columbia, the 34 federal territories, and federal enclaves within states of the Union. Without a tax liability, nonresident aliens domiciled in 35 the 50 Union states don't have to file a tax return or provide any information about themselves to the IRS! How then does 36 the IRS track these people and find out about them so they can use their computers to harass them and extort money out of 37 them? They deceive them into thinking that they are required to file returns and pay tax, and that they are required to get a 38 Taxpayer ID Number or T.I.N. (as a substitute for a Social Security Number).

39 After December 2000, the IRS replaced the W-8 form with the W-8BEN form, and they did so, it would appear, to once
40 again to create a false presumption in the minds of most Americans, using the form itself, that even nonresident aliens are 41 "liable" to pay income tax and to file a return, which wasn't previously the case with the W-8 form. They did this at a time
42 when there were no changes in the laws that would add this new requirement and when a lot of people were using the W-8

1 forms. Apparently, the IRS wanted to try, without legal authority we might add, to close the nonresident alien loophole
2 being used by so many patriots to exit the income tax system by modifying the IRS Forms. Once again, they did their dirty
3 work using sneaky definitions just like they did with the Internal Revenue Code. The instructions for the form define
4 “beneficial owner” as follows:

5 “Beneficial owner. For payments other than those for which a reduced rate of withholding is claimed under an
6 *income tax treaty, the beneficial owner of income is generally the person who is required under U.S. tax
7 principles to include the income in gross income on a tax return...”*

8 The W-8BEN form clearly implies that even the nonresident alien in this case:

- 9 1. “Is required” to file a tax return;
10 2. “Is required” to show even foreign income on the tax return

11 We know from section 5.6.15.2 earlier (entitled “Tax Liability and Responsibilities of Nonresident Aliens”) that these 12 assertions aren’t true and that nonresident aliens with no U.S./federal zone source income clearly aren’t liable for income
13 tax, nor do they have “gross income”, and they also aren’t required to file a tax return. This fact is abundantly confirmed
14 by examining 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C)(i). The insidious and misleading changes in the W-8BEN form, however, creates a 15 false presumption that advantages the IRS! We must continually remember from our discussion in section 3.19 (entitled 16 “IRS Publications and Internal Revenue Manual (IRM)), however, that the IRS publications are NOT to be relied upon to 17 sustain a position and you are wasting your time to rely on them.

18 Not only are the instructions for the W-8 insidious and damaging to the freedoms of nonresident alien Sovereign Natural 19 Born Citizens, but the W-8BEN form itself is also misleading and creates a false presumption. The title is “Certificate of 20 Foreign Status of Beneficial Owner for United States Tax Withholding”. This creates the impression that the withholding
21 is occurring in the “United States”/federal zone, which clearly isn’t the case in the 50 union states! Also be careful when 22 filling in block 6, because it says “U.S. taxpayer identification number”. If you put ANYTHING in this box, then you are 23 claiming you are a taxpayer, which you are not as a nonresident alien domiciled in the 50 union states.

24 6.6.16 Cover-Up of 1999: IRS CID Agent Joe Banister Terminated by IRS For Discovering The Truth About
25 Voluntary Nature of Income Taxes!

26 The story below was taken from the personal testimony of Joe Banister given to me at the Freedom Rally held April 7, 27 2001 in Irvine hosted by the Freedom Law School (<http://www.livefreenow.com>). Joe also maintains his own website at:

28 <http://freedomabovefortune.com/>

29 Joe Banister has a BS degree in accounting and spent three years at KPMG Peat Marwick on their professional staff as a 30 senior tax specialist and staff auditor. He went to work for the IRS in 1993 and was a licensed Certified Public Accountant.
31 He enforced tax codes for the IRS, and quickly achieved high status and many awards within the government during his 32 five year career with the IRS. Joe was an agent of the IRS Criminal Investigative Division in San Jose, CA for five years.
33 In December 1996, he heard a talk show radio program with Geoff Metcalf in San Jose, and overheard Devvy Kidd being 34 interviewed. She was claiming that the federal income tax was voluntary. Since Joe made his domiciled investigating
35 criminal violations of the taxing statutes, he listened intently to the radio program. His life has never been the same since 36 then!

37 Subsequently, Joe wrote Devvy and asked for some materials. He received a package in January 1997 from Devvy
38 containing two books approximately 50 pages in length. The books were entitled Why a Bankrupt America and Blind
39 Loyalty. The books were filled with very shocking claims about the United Nations, the federal income tax system, and the 40 federal banking and monetary systems, among other topics. He read the books thoroughly and found a more detailed 41 explanation of the allegations she made on the radio. There were three allegations that he found the most profound and 42 unbelievable:

- 43 1. Allegation 1: Due to Limitations Imposed By The U.S. Constitution, Filing of Federal Income Tax Returns and 44 Payment of Federal Income Tax Is Voluntary, Not Mandatory.

- 1 2. Allegation 2: The 16th Amendment To The U.S. Constitution, The Amendment Which Precipitated The Federal 2 Income Tax, Was Never Legally Ratified.
- 3 3. Allegation 3: The U.S. Government Finances Its Operations Form the Unconstitutional Creation of Fiat Money, not 4 with Revenue From Income Taxes.

5 Kidd's allegations were so shocking to Mr. Banister and contrary to everything he had been taught that he spent many 6 months simply thinking and meditating about what he had read. In the latter part of 1997, he read the book, The Creature
7 From Jekyll Island, authored by G. Edward Griffin. Griffin's book shared some of the same subject matter as Kidd's
8 books, which prompted Joe to pick Devvy's books up a second time. During this second review, he noticed an unusual
9 aspect about Kidd's books that he had paid little attention to the first time through. Kidd had a practice of including 10 telephone numbers of the people responsible for the evidence she provided. It was at this point that Joe realized he could 11 simply telephone these men and make direct inquiries about the evidence supporting their allegations. In December 1997,
12 Joe decided to contact them personally in order to determine the truth.

13 During the ensuing two years, Joe did his own research on his private time to try to verify the truth of the three allegations.
14 Eventually, he convinced himself that Devvy's claims were entirely true, and after two years of research, he submitted a 15 preliminary report of his findings to his supervisor at the IRS. That supervisor forwarded the report up the chain. Joe

18 asked him to either desist or tender his resignation. Joe Banister decided to leave the IRS and quit on the 19 anniversary of the signing of the 16th Amendment, February 25, 1999. He eventually joined the tax freedom
20 movement! He also joined the We The People Foundation (<http://www.givermeliberty.org>) soon after his resignation and 21 supported the efforts of employers to stop withholding. Part of his story was featured on a 60 Minutes II episode aired on 22 CBS on April 2, 2001 in connection with a story entitled "Tax Revolt". He was described as helping employers to legally
23 stop income tax withholding of their employees. Joe defended the legal position of the employer during the 60 Minutes
24 interview. He was very convincing. He has also been exposed to this book and I have personally met with him and 25 obtained an autographed copy of his book about the illegality of the federal income tax. He is also a frequent speaker with 26 the Freedom Law School and appears at their annual Freedom Rallies, usually held in April of each year in Irvine, CA

30 6.6.17 Cover-Up of 1995: Modified Regulations to Remove Pointers to Form 2555 for IRC Section 1 Liability for
31 Federal Income Tax

32 The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980 requires that every form used by the federal government to collect information from 33 the public first be approved by the Office of Management and Budget ("OMB"). The regulations at 26 CFR §602.101
34 contain a table listing the OMB-approved forms for each section of regulations. The regulations at 26 CFR §1.1-1 are 35 entitled "Income tax on individuals," and correspond to 26 U.S.C. §1 (which imposes the "income tax"). Up until 1995, the 36 first line in this table identified Form 2555, "Foreign Earned Income," as the only approved form under 26 CFR §1.1-1.
37 In 1995, after many "tax resistance" groups had become aware of this, the listing for "1.1-1" was removed from the list, in 38 order to avoid "confusion," according to the Department of the Treasury. The process of applying for, and receiving OMB
39 approval for a form makes the possibility of an error extremely remote. The Department of the Treasury requested that 40 Form 2555 be approved for 1.1-1, and the Office of Management and Budget approved it. When the entry drew too much 41 attention, it was removed. At present no forms are approved for use with 26 CFR §1.1-1.

42 6.6.18 Cover-Up of 1993--HOT!/: IRS Removed References in IRS Publication 515 to Citizens Not Being Liable
43 for Tax and Confused New Language

44 A key piece of the puzzle that unraveled the IRS' Great Deception was formerly found in 26 CFR §1.1441 and in IRS
45 Publication 515. Recall that we have been saying all along that foreign earned income is the only thing to be counted as 46 "gross income" for the purposes of 26 U.S.C. §861?

1 Call 1-800-TAX-FORM and request a copy of IRS Publication 515, titled "Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and
2 Foreign Corporations". Now, you might look this up and ask yourself, "what on Earth does that have to do with me?"

3 Here's what. Inside Publication 515, there appears a statement the IRS hopes you never see. Under the main heading
4 "Withholding Exemptions and Reductions" and within the paragraph titled "Evidence of Residence", the IRS states in 5 speaking to the payer of income:

6 *"If an individual gives you a written statement stating that he or she is a citizen or resident of the United States,
7 and you do not know otherwise, you do not have to withhold tax."*

8 The 1994 version of Publication 515 varied somewhat. Instead of ending with "...you do not have to withhold tax", it 9 continues:

10 *"...you do not have to withhold tax under the rules discussed in this publication. Instead, get Publication 15,
11 Circular E, Employer's Tax Guide."*

12 Of course our friends at the IRS fail to clarify that Circular E, Employer's Tax Guide has to do with employment taxes
13 under subtitle C, and has nothing whatsoever to do with the withholding of income tax under subtitle A, the subject of 14 Publication 515. Isn't that interesting?

15 Considering the deluge of recent requests from Patriotic Americans for a copy of Publication 515, do you suppose that 16 this creative suggestion to go get Circular E instead and read about employment taxes could have been added to 17 misdirect or confuse anyone?

18 Remember, the "S" in IRS stands for "Service"!

19 And what is the statement of citizenship? It's simply an affidavit, notarized and signed under penalties of perjury stating 20 that "I, John Doe, am a Citizen of the United States." It's that simple. So, the bottom line is that, according to the IRS, if 21 you agree a "Citizen or resident of the United States", the payer of your income does not have to withhold tax. Imagine 22 that!

23 Now ask yourself this question: If a United States citizen every really were liable for tax withholding, why would the IRS
24 ever have printed this statement anywhere? Why would it even exist in writing?

25 It exists because the Law behind the Statement of Citizenship is 26 CFR §1.1441-5 "Claiming to be a person not subject to 26 withholding", paragraph (a) of which states:

27 "For purposes of Chapter 3 of the Code, an individual's written statement that he or she is a citizen or resident 28 of the United States may be relied upon by the payer of the income as proof that such individual is a citizen or 29 resident of the United States."

30 And where is Chapter 3 of the Code? In Subtitle A, income tax. 1.1441-5, paragraph (c) states:

31 "The duplicate copy of each statement and form filed pursuant to this section shall be forwarded with a letter of 32 transmittal to Internal Revenue Service Center, Philadelphia PA 19255. The original statement shall be 33 retained by the withholding agent."

34 And why must the Statement of Citizenship be sent to Philadelphia, and not the local IRS office or regional service center?
35 Because Philadelphia is the IRS' international service center--the foreign service center, which makes perfect sense since 36 the income tax is a tax on foreign activity only!

37 The IRS Philadelphia office has never been known to reject a Statement of Citizenship from a withholding agent. It also 38 does not acknowledge receipt of the Statement of Citizenship, which confuses some people. The reason for this is simple.
39 If the statement were inaccurate or off-point, there would be a rebuttal from Philadelphia. Silence, in this case, is 40 acceptance.

8 6.6.19 Obfuscation of 2004: IRS Publication 519 added deceptive reference to “United States” to deceive and 9 confuse readers

10 IRS Publication 519, Starting in year 2004, introduced the following language to infer that the term “United States” as used
11 in the Internal Revenue Code, includes the 50 states of the Union for the purposes of jurisdiction to tax under Subtitle A of 12 the Internal Revenue Code:

13 Substantial Presence Test

14 Example. You were physically present in the United States on 120 days in each of the years 2003, 2004, and 15 2006. To determine if you meet the substantial presence test for 2005, count the full 120 days of presence in 16 2006, 40 days in 2004 (1/3 of 130), and 20 days in 2003 (1/6 of 120). Because the total for the 30 year period is 17 180 days, you are not considered a resident under the substantial presence test for 2005.

18 "The term United States includes the following areas.

- 19 • "All 50 states and the District of Columbia."
- 20 • "The territorial waters of the United States"

21 [...]

22 "The term does not include U.S. possessions and territories or U.S. airspace."

23 [IRS Publication 519, Year 2005, p. 4

24 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSPub519-2005.pdf>]

25 We have several points to make about the above reference:

- 26 1. The above cite was added to the publication in about 2004 in an apparent response to the content of this book, as a way 27 to deceive the readers and stop the spread of the nonresident alien position.
- 28 2. The definition comes from an IRS Publication, which the IRS Internal Revenue Manual admits is 29 UNTRUSTWORTHY and not guaranteed to be accurate:

30 "IRS Publications, issued by the National Office, explain the law in plain language for taxpayers and their 31 advisors... While a good source of general information, publications should not be cited to sustain a position."
32 [I.R.M. 4.10.7.2.8 (05-14-1999)]

Federal Courts and the IRS' Own IRM Say IRS is NOT RESPONSIBLE for Its Actions or its Words or For Following Its Own Written Procedures

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm>

- 34 3. The text above is an EXAMPLE which does not infer or imply or specify the context in which it may suitably be used.
35 There are actually THREE and not ONE context in which the term “United States” could be referring to or implied and 36 only one of them is used in the above example, which is the third one listed below:
37 3.1. The meaning of the term “United States” within the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.
38 3.2. The meaning of the term “United States” within ordinary speech, which most people associate with the 39 COUNTRY to include states of the Union.
40 3.3. The meaning of “United States” in the context of jurisdiction over aliens (not “citizens” or “nationals”)
41 temporarily present in the country “United States”, which in this context includes all 50 states and the District of 42 Columbia.

1 In the context of item 3.3 above, the U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly affirmed the plenary power of Congress over aliens
2 in this country, wherever they are located to include areas within the exclusive jurisdiction of states of the Union:

3 In accord with ancient principles of the international law of nation-states, the Court in The Chinese Exclusion
4 Case, 130 U.S. 581, 609 (1889), and in Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893), held broadly, as 5 the Government describes it, Brief for Appellants 20, that the power to exclude aliens is "inherent in 6 sovereignty, necessary for maintaining normal international relations and defending the country against 7 foreign encroachments and dangers - a power to be exercised exclusively by the political branches of 8 government" Since that time, the Court's general reaffirmations of this principle have [408 U.S. 753, 9 766] been legion. 6 The Court without exception has sustained Congress' "plenary power to make rules for 10 the admission of aliens and to exclude those who possess those characteristics which Congress has 11 forbidden." Boutilier v. Immigration and Naturalization Service, 387 U.S. 118, 123 (1967). "[O]ver no
12 conceivable subject is the legislative power of Congress more complete than it is over" the admission of
14 [Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753 (1972)]

16 While under our constitution and form of government the great mass of local matters is controlled by local 17 authorities, the United States, in their relation to foreign countries and their subjects or citizens, are one 18 nation, invested with powers which belong to independent nations, the exercise of which can be invoked for 19 the maintenance of its absolute independence and security throughout its entire territory. The powers to 20 declare war, make treaties, suppress insurrection, repel invasion, regulate foreign commerce, secure
21 republican governments to the states, and admit subjects of other nations to citizenship, are all sovereign
22 powers, restricted in their exercise only by the constitution itself and considerations of public policy and justice
23 which control, more or less, the conduct of all civilized nations. As said by this court in the case of Cohens v.
24 Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 413, speaking by the same great chief justice: That the United States form, for many,
25 and for most important purposes, a single nation, has not yet been denied. In war, we are one people. In 26 making peace, we are one people. In all commercial regulations, we are one and the same people. In many 27 other respects, the American people are one; and the government which is alone capable of controlling and 28 managing their interests in all these respects is the government of the Union. It is their government, and in 29 that character they have no other. America has chosen to [130 U.S. 581, 605] be in many respects, and to many 30 purposes, a nation; and for all these purposes her government is complete; to all these objects, it is competent.
31 The people have declared that in the exercise of all powers given for these objects it is supreme. It can, then,
32 in effecting these objects, legitimately control all individuals or governments within the American territory."

34 [. . .]

36 "The power of exclusion of foreigners being an incident of sovereignty belonging to the government of the 37 United States as a part of those sovereign powers delegated by the constitution, the right to its exercise at any 38 time when, in the judgment of the government, the interests of the country require it, cannot be granted away or 39 restrained on behalf of any one. The powers of government are delegated in trust to the United States, and are 40 incapable of transfer to any other parties. They cannot be abandoned or surrendered. Nor can their exercise
41 be hampered, when needed for the public good, by any considerations of private interest. The exercise of 42 these public trusts is not the subject of barter or contract."
43 [Chae Chan Ping v. U.S., 130 U.S. 581 (1889)]

44 Therefore, in regard to control over aliens present anywhere within the American confederation, the general government
45 legislates over all the territory of the American Union, including those of the states. Consequently, for the purposes of 46 determining "permanent residence" of aliens ONLY, the term "United States" as used in item 3 above must be interpreted 47 to include the 50 states of the Union as the IRS indicates above. HOWEVER:

- 48 1. The Presence Test indicated does not refer to "citizens" or "nationals". The Presence Test is found in 26 U.S.C.
49 §7701\(b\)\(3\) and references ONLY "aliens" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\) and not "nonresident aliens"
50 defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) or "citizens" defined in 26 CFR §1.1-1(c). Therefore, an alien domiciled in a
51 state of the Union could be a "resident" within the meaning of the presence test while neither a "citizen" nor a
52 "national" would be considered a "resident" under the SAME test when located in the SAME place. Under the I.R.C., 53 one cannot be a "resident" (which is an alien with a domicile) and either a "citizen" or a "national" at the same time.
54 This is confirmed by the Law of Nations, which the Founding Fathers used to write the Constitution:

55 "Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the 56 country. Being bound to the society by reason of their dwelling in it, they are subject to its law so long as they 57 remain there, and being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizens.
58 They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who 59 have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizens of a less privileged character, and 60 are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the 61 right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children."

[Law of Nations, Vattel, p. 87
SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Resident-LawOfNations.pdf>]

2. Remember that the only context in which “residence” is defined or described anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code is in the context of “aliens”, and not in the context of either “citizens” or “nationals”. See 26 CFR §1.871-2 and section 4 of the article below:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Therefore, a person who is a “national” but not a “citizen” and a “nonresident alien” can NOT have a “residence” as defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code.

3. For the purposes of determining tax liability and not residency of all persons, we must defer to the definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), which is limited to the District of Columbia and nowhere expanded in the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A to include any other place.

Based on the foregoing, we must conclude that the IRS’ statement above is a deception and a ruse intended to compel false presumption under the influence of CONSTRUCTIVE FRAUD that will maximize the illegal flow of PLUNDER to the federal government. It is provided as an example and cannot mean the legal definition of “United States” used in the Internal Revenue Code. If they wish to imply that ALL THREE of the contexts in which the term “United States” could be used are the same, then they should say so and provide statutory and regulatory authority for saying so. Until then, we must defer to the definition of “United States” found within 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10). This is a consequence of the following doctrine of the Supreme Court:

“Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid.”
[Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 297 (1904)]

6.7 Department of State (DOS) Scandals Related to Income Taxes

We say earlier in section 2.8.13 that the federal courts commonly but erroneously “presume” that all people are “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 in order to illegally expand federal jurisdiction. Here is an example:

“Unless the defendant can prove he is not a citizen of the United States, the IRS has the right to inquire and determine a tax liability.”
[U.S. v. Slater, 545 Fed. Supp. 179,182 (1982).]

Therefore, it is very important to establish proof that you are not a “citizen of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401. Consequently, the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 in section 2.5.3.13 suggests that readers obtain what is called a “Certificate of non-citizen National Status” as certified proof that they are not “U.S. citizens”, and we recommend using this as proof in any judicial proceeding. We also recommend getting certified proof of your “non-citizen national status” into your IRS administrative record long before you involve yourself in any judicial proceeding, so that the jury may not keep it out of evidence or out of view of the jury to prejudice your case.

Well, the government is catching on to this and obstructing justice by the following devious means. A number of our readers have contacted us to report that they have attempted to obtain a “Certificate of non-citizen National Status” under the authority of 8 U.S.C. §1452 as suggested in sections 2.5.3.13 and 3.6.12 in the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 and that the Secretary of State of the United States positively refuses his duty under this statute to issue the requested certificate. The person we talked to indicated that now the Secretary of the State has posted a notice on their website indicating that they have changed their policy and are no longer issuing such certificates, although they did not explain why. Here is the notice:

There’s obviously a cover-up going on here folks. The slaves have figured out how to remove their legal chains and leave the federal plantation, so our crooked government is blocking their exit by depriving them of the evidence needed to prove that they are not “U.S. citizens” under the Internal Revenue Code. There is still a way to force the Secretary of State to do his duty under 8 U.S.C. §1452 by providing the requested certificate, but it takes a separate lawsuit in a federal court to do

1 so, and that lawsuit is called a “writ of mandamus”. A writ of mandamus is simply a request that the court compel a public
2 servant to perform his duty under the law. Not only that, but the conspiracy against rights surrounding the citizenship issue
3 gets MUCH worse.

4 If you read the above link to the Department of State website, you will find out that the Department of State recommends
5 that for those people who want a “Certificate of non-Citizen National Status” under 8 U.S.C. §1452, they should get a U.S.
6 Passport instead. There is a big problem with that, because the passport simply says “citizen/national” rather than 7 identifying which of the two types of citizens that you are. That doesn’t provide the requisite proof that you are a
8 “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B). It’s certified, but it doesn’t distinguish in the way you need at a tax trial.

9 To find a way around this political roadblock to emancipation, we applied for a U.S. Passport as they recommended.
10 However, before we did, we amended the DS-11 application form electronically so as to indicate that both of our parents
11 and our spouse are “nationals” rather than “U.S. citizens” in blocks 14, 15, and 16. This removes the incorrect presumption
12 on the form. We also filled out the form without a Slave Surveillance Number and turned it in. The clerk didn’t even 13 pause, but processed the application and gave us a passport a few hours later. When we came to pick up the passport, we 14 asked the clerk if we could have a copy of the approved DS-11 application form and we asked to have it certified. We 15 wanted it certified so that we could use it as evidence admissible in court of our true status as a “non-citizen nationals”
16 under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). Guess what? Here is what the clerk told us, which is more foot dragging and really surprised
17 us:

18 “It is our policy NOT to provide copies of the application form. If you want a certified copy, then the only way
19 you can get it is through a Privacy Act request.”

20 To make things worse, we asked WHY they have this requirement and from what legal authority it derives, and we got 21 evasive comments back. Therefore, we have written a Privacy Act request that you can reuse which demands a copy of the 22 approved DS-11 Passport Application form from the Department of State, along with several other key documents. You
23 can find that document either in section 3.6.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005. That 24 form is also available online below:

25 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/DOSFOIA-Non-CertDS11.htm>

26 One of our readers who attempted to procure the Certificate of “non-citizen National Status” by mail using the form
27 provided in section 3.6.12 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 also received the following 28 letter back from the Department of State in response to his correspondence:

29 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Evidence/Citizenship/dos-AmCitizenResponse.pdf>

30 Based on the crooked behavior of the Department of State in this instance, the government obviously doesn’t want to 31 cooperate with people in obtaining proof of their true citizenship status. They know that if the word gets out that this 32 works, and everyone does it, we will have a country of “nontaxpayers” and “nonresident aliens” as we clearly show in 33 section 5.6.15 and following! He.. he...he! Scumbags!

34 6.8 Department of Justice (DOJ) Scandals Related to Income Taxes

35 “Evil men do not understand justice,
36 But those who seek the Lord understand all.”
37 [Prov. 28:5, Bible, NKJV]

38
39 “He who justifies the wicked, and he who condemns the just,
40 Both of them alike are an abomination to the Lord.”
41 [Prov. 17:15, Bible, NKJV]

42 As we established in section 5.4.20, the Department of Justice has NO delegated authority to prosecute IRC Subtitle A 43 Income Tax Crimes. Below are some examples of some of the illegal and unethical things they have done in the absence of 44 that authority.

45 6.8.1 Prosecution of Dr. Phil Roberts: “Political Tax Prisoner”

1 In the opening of this book, section 1.9 entitled “Political ‘Tax’ Prisoners” talked about an unfortunate victim of legal abuse
2 by the Department of Justice (DOJ) named Dr. Phil Roberts. Phil is a respected member of the community, a physician,
3 and an intelligent and principled man. We have summarized his case (Federal District Court in Fort Smith, Arkansas, case
4 # 00-20018-001) in that section using information provided by his attorney and relatives. We also have the entire transcript
5 (over 700 pages!) of his criminal tax trial posted on our website for you to read (<http://famguardian.org>, look in Tax
6 Freedom and then under the heading “Case Studies”). The transcript and the Trial Notes are instructive educational aids for 7 you to learn how many different constitutional rights of Dr. Roberts were arrogantly and illegally violated by the 8 Department of Justice conspiring with the judge of that court. It is obvious that many laws were violated, and below are 9 just a few of the violations:

10 1. Department of Justice:

- 11 1.1. Taking of property not based on law (26 CFR §601.106(f)(1).
12 1.2. Retaliating against a witness, victim, or informant (18 U.S.C. §1513)
13 1.3. Blackmail (18 U.S.C. §873).
14 1.4. Extortion (18 U.S.C. §872)

15 2. Judge:

- 16 2.1. Federally protected rights being violated (18 U.S.C. §245)
17 2.2. Conspiracy against rights (18 U.S.C. §241).
18 2.3. Conflict of interest (28 U.S.C. §455).

19 In the year 2000, Dr. Phil Roberts was prosecuted and eventually imprisoned for willful failure to file under 26 U.S.C.
20 §7203, after he took the IRS to court on three different occasions because they kept harassing him about filing his tax return
21 but refused to produce any evidence or a legal basis why they thought he had any tax liability whatsoever. Among the 22 incredible treachery foisted upon him by the judge, we are told, was the following, reported directly to us by his attorney,
23 Oscar Stilley and appearing in the trial transcript itself:

- 24 1. Tried to deny Dr. Roberts the right to counsel of his choice because the judge didn’t like his attorney.
25 2. Would not allow his attorney to cross-examine prospective jurists during voir dire (his attorney told us this on the 26 phone).
27 3. Slipped three pre-selected jurists into the courtroom at the last minute.
28 4. Rigged the drawing box for selecting jurists.
29 5. Judge kept the instructions he gave to the jury OFF THE RECORD (so he couldn’t be prosecuted for jury tampering).
30 See items 69 and 247.
31 6. At his arraignment, the court allowed Dr. Roberts to be forced by the DOJ in front of the jury, to sign his tax return
32 (like making Jesus carry his cross before they nailed him to it). All along, they knew he had refused to sign his return,
33 but not to submit it, because he wanted to be made aware what specific law made him liable to pay income tax! How 34 can you prosecute someone for wanting an answer to that question and being stonewalled all the way up to trial by the 35 IRS, who refused to answer the question?
36 7. Judge would not allow any laws to be discussed in front of the jury. (item 35).
37 8. Would not allow Dr. Roberts to demand or expect the DOJ to produce the law he violated.
38 9. Told his attorney that his license would be revoked if he tried to discuss the law because the ability to practice law was 39 a “privilege” granted by the court (see item 232).
40 10. Refused to allow Dr. Roberts to discuss the legal basis for his reasonable cause belief that he had no income tax
41 liability. Ignored repeated requests from his counsel throughout the trial to discuss the Internal revenue Code (a 42 violation of his Sixth Amendment rights).
43 11. Overruled most of the defense’s objections and almost none of the Department of Justice’s.
44 12. Insisted that the defense tell him the questions he wanted to ask of witnesses in a sidebar BEFORE he actually asked
45 them.
46 13. Ignored Dr. Robert’s Fifth Amendment right to not incriminate himself by filing a tax return.

47 And the punishment for exercising his First Amendment right to not talk to his government, his Fifth Amendment right to 48 not incriminate himself by not filing a tax return was a prison sentence of about 1 year and a half. Remember that we said
49 that what makes something a right is that the exercise of the right cannot be penalized, regulated, or punished in any way
50 when one freely chooses to exercise the right. Do we really have any rights with such a prejudicial and conspiratorial court
51 system and a Department of Justice that instead of defending criminals, makes us ALL into criminals for exercising our

1 constitutional rights? Below are some of the ridiculous statements made by the judge during the trial, all of which you can
2 read yourself on our website in the actual trial transcript. The following Trial Notes were prepared by Dr. Roberts' brother,
3 Robert Roberts, to summarize the over 700 pages of transcript on the case. This transcript is very effective at showing that
4 there is indeed a judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax, and that the judge was conspiring with the DOJ to make an
5 example out of Dr. Roberts. They wanted to get him into jail so they could use the fear factor to continue intimidating
6 other citizens to continue "volunteering" to pay taxes for which they weren't liable. The numbers in the left margin come
7 from the Trial Notes, and are there so we can refer to specific comments afterward:

- 8 35 Court informs the potential jurors that he will tell them the law and that they must follow his instructions whether 9 they agree or not. P59, 21-25 & P60, 1
- 10 49. Judge implies to potential jurors that everyone must pay the correct amount of Federal Income Tax. P78, 5-10
- 11 69. Jury instructions given but not entered into the transcript. P120, 18
- 12 78. Statement objected to by prosecution, "Yeah" agrees the court, and court states "Let's not argue the law." P131, 13 1-7
- 14 80. Court tells defense "You know, don't argue the law." P131, 22-23
- 15 83. Court states "Let's not argue the law..." "Don't argue the law!" P133, 12-14
- 16 88. Defenses' opening statement is again objected to and the court calls for a barside conference where the counsel is 17 directed to change his opening statement to the jury. Objection sustained. P137, 17-25, P138 - P143 (all)
- 18 89. Defense tells jury that the prosecution must show the statute of law requiring a person to make and file and income 19 tax return. P143, 9-15
- 20 90. Defense tells jury that defendant wrote a letter to the IRS requesting that they show him the law...P143, 24-25 &
21 P144, 1-2
- 22 91. Defense objects to the introduction of previous tax returns as evidence of knowledge by the prosecution., P147, 1-23 7
- 24 92. Objection overruled. P147, 8-9
- 25 93. Court states "In this matter, you know, if you're making similar objection, I'm probably going to overrule 26 those, too." P147, 16-18
- 27 95. Prosecution moves to enter exhibit (previously filed tax return). Court states: "Same objection Mr. Stilley? It 28 will be admitted over your objection." P149, 5-6
- 29 102. Defense counsel cross examines asking if the witness can "... tell us what law required Dr. Roberts to file a tax 30 return?"
31 OBJECTED to and sustained by the court.P156, 1-6
- 32 103. Sidebar called for by the court. P156, 9-10
- 33 104. Court asks the prosecution if they have already been over this, prosecution gives a thorough argument why it feels 34 that the court should not allow this line of questioning and the court agrees. P156, 15-23
- 35 112. Defense asks witness on cross if he perhaps knows the law that requires the defendant to file... Objected to and 36 sustained by the court. P191, 10-13
- 37 113. Defense asks if the terms "make" and "file" meant the same thing... OBJECTED TO AND SUSTAINED BY 38 THE COURT. P193, 14-18
- 39 116. Court states "Let's not get into the definition of income." Orders defense off of the question. P219, 18-23
- 40 120. Defense asks that prosecution witness, Tom Bryan be excluded from the court room while Magistrate Jones-Stites 41 is questioned. Court refuses stating that Bryan "... is the representative of the government and he's not going to 42 be excluded." P278, 17-22
- 43 122. Court sustains prosecutions objection to Jones-Stites being required to testify in court for the defense stating: "I'm 44 going to sustain the objection to it. You've made your offer of proof and that will be a part of the record
45 available to the Eighth Circuit when you appeal this matter." P289, 10-14
- 46 124. Defense asks the court if the witness admits to selective prosecution against the defendant and the court interjects
47 that "I'm not going to let you put her up there to ask that. What else are you going to put her up there and 48 ask her?" P292, 4-6
- 49 131. Under cross examination, the defense asks her, Jefferee Bolen, if she has ever seen the law that requires you to file
50 a tax return.
51 OBJECTED TO AND SUSTAINED by the court as an improper question. P332, 14 -17
- 52 132. Court tells the defense counsel that "We're not going to have any questions, you know, about laws and tax 53 returns and whatever." P332, 19-21
- 54 138. Witness, Brian Miller (IRS Agent), states that "... nobody's an expert on all the tax law, but I'm pretty 55 familiar with certain parts of it." P346, 22-23

- 1 139. In cross examination of the witness, Brian Miller, he states that the requirement to file can be found in the IRC,
2 section 6012 and section(s) 61,63, and P349, 10-25 & P350, 1-8
- 3 140. Defense then asks the witness if the IRC, when opened to Section 6012, will show the law that requires a person to 4 file a tax return.
5 OBJECTED to by the prosecution and sustained by the court. P350, 9-13
- 6 141. Defense asks the courts permission to approach the witness and the court states, “No, you may not approach the 7 witness. You can approach the Bench. I want to see you up here right now...”P350, 15-19
- 8 142. Court tells defense counsel “... I don’t want you to go there...” “... you’re not to go there on this.”P351, 8-11
- 9 146. Court answers by telling the defense that if it asks an improper question, “... I’m going to clear this courtroom.”
10 P352, 22-23
- 11 149. The defense asks the expert witness that if the jury wanted to see the law, how would they see it. P355, 18-19
12 Court interrupts saying “... let’s not go there, sir.” P355, 20
- 13 151. Defense asks the court if he can read part of the IRC Section 6012 to the witness and the court says “No, Sir, you 14 may not.” “No, sir. You cannot. You cannot. You can’t read a snippet, can’t read a word...” P357, 9-14
- 15 152. Court again asks the defense if it is attempting to cause a mistrial (jury is out of the room). Court then tells the 16 defense counsel “If you have an objection to it and if you think the Court’s wrong, when this trial is over, it
17 can be appealed...” P358, 11-18
- 18 153. Court tells the defense counsel “... You may not be permitted to ask any more questions, ever, if you’re not 19 careful in this case...” P361, 4-5
- 20 154. Court demands that the defense present its questions to the court prior to asking them in open court. P361, 21 16-24
- 22 155. Court again tells the defense counsel to approach the bench prior to asking any additional questions of the witness,
23 Brian Miller, IRS agent. P363, 8-11
- 24 156. Court admonishes the defense counsel for asking to approach the bench. Court states, “... I also need to advise 25 you that you don’t need to make comments like that in front of the jury.” P370, 5-7
- 26 157. Court tells defense that it can ask any question that it wants to. Defense states that he wants to ask what law would 27 be needed... . The prosecution objects and the court sustains the objection. P373, 18-24
- 28 158. Court orders the defense counsel to tell the court what other questions he is going to ask (at sidebar). P374, 10-12
- 29 159. Court authorizes the defense to ask two questions. P371, 15
- 30 160. Court refuses to allow the defense to ask a question regarding the penalties of perjury clause and tells the defense
31 counsel “... Your cross examination is over, sir, you may be seated.” P379, 8-18
- 32 166. Court tells the defense counsel, at sidebar, that the “... difference between making and filing I think is a matter 33 of semantics that I’m not going to let you go into with this witness.” P440, 9-12
- 34 170. Court tells defense counsel “I don’t want to hear the word “LAW” mentioned again from this witness. Do 35 you understand me?” P444, 15-17
- 36 171. Expert witness, Tom Bryan (IRS Agent), states that he doesn’t “... really like to respond to a lot of things in 37 writing.” “... I don’t want to get into a letter writing campaign such as this.” Regarding letters written to him by 38 the defendant. P449, 9-14
- 39 172. (Sidebar) Court demands that the defense counsel disclose his questions to the court at sidebar. “Tell me what 40 questions you’re going to ask.” P452, 18
- 41 173. Court threatens to end the defenses’ cross examination and demands to know what questions counsel will pose to 42 this witness. P452, 22-24
- 43 174. Court again admonishes the defense not to discuss the law. P453, 19-20
- 44 180. Regarding the testimony of defense witness, Brenda Gray, the court tells the defense, “I don’t doubt you’re 45 trying to lay a foundation. I just wonder if we hadn’t already removed that foundation...” P486, 5-7
- 46 186. Defendant is asked to whom else he had presented his questions regarding his requirement to file and he asks if he 47 must divulge the name of the US Magistrate. (Magistrate Jones-Stites). The prosecution objects and the court
48 sustains the objection telling the defendant “... you’ll not be permitted to answer that. Ask your next
49 question.” P528,13-22
- 50 187. At sidebar, the court tells the defense counsel, concerning Magistrate Jones-Stites testimony before a jury less 51 court room the day before, “I ain’t going to let you - - we ain’t going there.” “...It’s prejudicial, and we’re not 52 going there.” “I don’t want any conversations with the US Magistrate, we’re not going there. That’s 53 improper.” P528, 9-22
- 54 188. Court continues to demand that the defense counsel present its questions for the witness to the court at sidebar for 55 approval or disapproval without the jury hearing any of it. P530, 4-11
- 56 189. Prosecutor threatens the defense counsel, “You want to go for sanctions, you just keep it up.” P531, 11-12

- 1 190. Court tells the attorneys that, “We’re not going to introduce anything on the Internal Revenue Code.” P531,
2 23-24
- 3 191. Court tells the defense counsel, “... you’re not functioning just exactly right. I don’t know if you’re not 4 hearing or you’re not comprehending...” P532, 10-12
- 5 192. Still at sidebar, the court tells the defense in response to the defense counsel’s question about how to get the 6 defendants’ understanding of the law from his head to the jury, “I don’t know, but you’re not going to do it with 7 the Magistrate. You’re not going to do it with reading the law to him either.” P532, 14-20
- 8 193. Speaking of the defendant, the court states, “Let’s try to get rid of this witness. After he finishes, what other 9 witness do you have?” P533, 16-18
- 10 194. Defense informs the judge that this is the defendant and the court responds, “Let’s finish it then today.” P533, 11 21-22
- 12 198. At sidebar again, the court threatens to clear the jury from the room because the defense counsel is talking too
13 loudly. P540, 11-13
- 14 199. Court continues to insist, at sidebar, that the defense must present all of its Exhibit list for approval/ disapproval by 15 the court before it can be offered in open court before the jury. P541, 14-20
- 16 200. Court continues to disallow defense Exhibits at the sidebar. Court states that. “... we’re not going to talk about 17 statutes to the jury ...” P544, 11-13
- 18 201. Court restates to the defense that “... you’re not going to be permitted to talk about any statutes, any acts, any 19 law...” P545, 7-8
- 20 202. Court dismisses the jury for the day and asks the defense if some of its Exhibits weren’t developed after the years
21 93/94. P548, 20-22
- 22 220. Court reminds the defense counsel, “... And I’m taking you at your word as an 23 officer of this court that you’re not going to ask something that we’ve 24 already discussed time and time again, Sir.” P628, 10-12
- 25 221. Defense questions to the witness (defendant) with regards to discussions he had with a Magistrate judge are 26 interrupted by the court and the court tells the defense counsel three (3) times “... and we’re not going there, Mr.
27 Stilley. ...” P629, 22-23
- 28 “... You’re not to go there, Mr. Stilley.” P630, 1
- 29
- 30 “... You’re not to go there, Mr. Stilley. Ask another question, sir, if you have another
31 question.” P630, 3-4
- 32 222. Defense counsel asks the defendant (witness) if he has ever filed a lawsuit in order to get a declaratory judgment
33 as to his rights and duties under the law. Objected to and sustained by the court. The court then instructs the 34 defense counsel, “Don’t argue with me in front of the jury, Mr. Stilley. If you need to argue, come forward,
35 but we’ve already resolved that.” P622, 22-25 & P633, 7-9
- 36 223. Court states that if it hadn’t ruled previously, with regard to bringing up the lawsuits filed by the defendant, that, 37 “Well, if I didn’t, I am now. I am telling you it is sustained on nothing concerning any civil lawsuits he may 38 have filed. That’s improper. And I’m going to prohibit you from asking any question about it, and your 39 record is about as clear as it can be. ...” P634, 18-23
- 40 224. Court asks the defense counsel, “... Are you getting -- making any progress in getting him off the stand?” He 41 is referring to the defendant who is testifying in his own behalf. P635, 6-7
- 42 225. When the defense responds that he hasn’t gotten there yet, the court responds, “Well, you may not ever get there 43 if you keep asking questions about that have already been -- you know, about issues that have already been 44 resolved.” P635, 10-12
- 45 226. The prosecution’s cross examination of the defendant appear to be irrelevant and most of the questions concern the 46 years outside of the years in question, 1993 and 1994. Defense objections are overruled by the court. P643 - P675 47 (all)
- 48 229. Court interrupts the defendants testimony in order to limit it. The prosecution had raised no objection. P682, 49 15-17
- 50 230. Court tells the defense counsel, “Mr. Stilley, don’t argue with me.” P683, 6
- 51 232. At sidebar, the Court tells the defense counsel, “... This is the most improper-- this is the worst conduct I’ve 52 ever seen of a lawyer, Mr. Stilley. ...” “... (W)e’re going to visit this further at length, Mr. Stilley. The 53 practice of law, sir, is a privilege, especially in Federal Court. You’re close to 54 losing that privilege in this court, Mr. Stilley.” P685, 5-11

- 1 234. At sidebar, the defense counsel asks again if he can ask questions regarding the defendants attempts to get a
2 declaratory judgment to ascertain his responsibilities and is told by the Court, “Absolutely not, N O T, period.”
3
4 The defense states that he objects highly and the court responds, “Fine. I want you to object as highly as you
5 need to be, but what else do you have?” P687, 1-6
6 235. Court demands, at sidebar, that the defense tell the court where else it’s going. P688, 3-4
7 236. At sidebar, the defense explains that many people disagree about matters of tax law without being kooks. The 8 Court responds, “Mr. Stilley, you have -- you’re not going there, sir. What else?” P688, 18-22
9 237. At sidebar still, the court asks the defense if that is going to be its last question. The defense answers no and the 10 court responds, “Well, it very well could be, unless you tell me what they are. Now, the jury has been waiting
11 over there for about five minutes and they’re getting impatient and so am I, Mr. Stilley.” P699, 19-25
12 238. Court continues to deny the defense’s proposed questions at the sidebar stating, “That’s improper. He’s not to do
13 that.” “I’m not going to permit it. What else you got?” P690,6 &12-13
14 240. Court states that it believes that the jury has been abused. P700, 12
15 241. Defense tells the Court that it objects to any instruction to the jury with regard to income until it is defined. Court
16 notes the objection and overrules it. P706, 21-25
17 242. Court states, absent the jury, that regarding willfulness, “... I don’t know what the law is. I’m going to go look 18 it up.” P716, 20-21
19 243. Court states that closing arguments are just that, arguments. Court states, “... I don’t ever like to interrupt
20 closing arguments...” P718, 2-7
21 244. Defense is giving its closing argument and asks if there is a law that requires a single person under the age of 65 to 22 make a Federal income tax return for 1994. Prosecution objects and the court sustains the objection stating, **“...
23 You are not to argue the law, Mr. Stilley.” P739, 14-19
24 245. When the prosecution makes its closing argument and the defense objects to statements made by the prosecution,
25 the Court overrules the objection stating, “It’s overruled. This is closing arguments. Be seated, sir.” P748,
26 9-15
27 246. Defense objects again and the court overrules the objection stating, “You’re overruled. Sit down, sir.” P748,
28 22-24
29 247. JURY INSTRUCTIONS FROM THE COURT ARE NOT TRANSCRIBED INTO THE TRIAL TRANSCRIPT.
30 P752, 6-7
31 248. Jury gives its verdict to the two charges of the Indictment. Guilty on both counts. P753 (all) & P754 (all)
32 249. Court instructs the jury saying, “... We have a rule in the Western District of Arkansas that you’re -- that 33 jurors cannot be contacted, and that rule is going to remain in effect. I would say if you are contacted by 34 anybody in connection with this case, you need to notify the Court immediately. ...” P755, 8-12
35 250. Prosecuting attorney, Blackorby, tells the Court regarding the defendant, *“He doesn’t have a Fifth Amendment
36 privilege now. It’s been waived by the conviction.”* P756, 7-8
37 251. Court states, “I’m going to continue the bond at present through sentencing. ...” P756, 9-10

38 After reading item 232, I wonder why ANYONE would want to hire an attorney to represent them in a trial in Federal 39 Court! What a farce!! That’s why this document places such an emphasis on helping to develop in you the skills to 40 masterfully litigate your own case—so you can tell the tax emperor he has no clothes without having your livelihood and 41 your ability to earn a living threatened by a covetous so –called judge with a criminal conflict of interest in violation of 18
42 U.S.C. §208, 28 U.S.C. §144, and 28 U.S.C. §455!

43 Throughout the trial, the judge emphasized that they couldn’t talk about the law. What the hell else are courts and the 44 lawyers in them supposed to talk about...hearsay and what we think the law says?(!) All that’s left if the judge manipulates
45 and abuses the jury and the law isn’t discussed is a kangaroo court that’s on a witch hunt to convict and burn the defendant,
46 which is precisely what they did in this case! What a miscarriage and abuse of justice if I ever saw one! The judge, by 47 refusing to discuss the law, has violated the Sixth Amendment because he has made it impossible for a defendant to clearly 48 know what the law says and what the charges against him are—instead, the court devolved into a subjective exercise of 49 whatever the judge thinks the law says or wants the law to say! We are supposed to be a society of laws and not of men but 50 this judge has made sure it is the other way around. This kind of tyranny MUST be stopped!

51 The court stated in item 240 that the “jury has been abused”. That’s right, and you know who abused them?.. THE JUDGE!
52 And his abuse of them led to an involuntary abuse of Dr. Phil Roberts by the jury! Do we live in a mobocracy, I mean 53 democracy, or a republic? Fire the bastard and strip him of his federal retirement and benefits for plundering the citizenry!

1 THIEF! Now we know why judges wear black robes,.. because they are the executioner in most federal tax trials. When
2 you go into federal court as the defendant, you have TWO prosecutors: The Judge and the U.S. attorney. The deck is 3 stacked against you.

4 6.8.2 Fraud On The Court: Demjanuk v. Petrovsky, 10 F.3d 338

5 If any reader doubts that officials of the United States government, even U.S. attorneys in the United States Department of
6 Justice, are capable of perpetrating "fraud on the court" by engaging in "misconduct," the case of Demjanuk v. Petrovsky, 7 10 F.3d 338 (6th Cir.1993) should remove that doubt. Mr. Demjanuk was wrongly identified as "Ivan the Terrible" and 8 charged with murdering thousands of Jews during WW2. The appellate court found that some U. S. attorneys committed 9 "fraud on the court" and "engaged in prosecutorial misconduct by failing to disclose to the courts and to the petitioner
10 [Demjanuk] exculpatory information in their possession during litigation culminating in extradition proceedings, which led 11 to the petitioner's forced departure from the United States and trial on capital charges in the State of Israel." The record
12 shows that "no fewer than eight government attorneys worked on the Demjanuk denaturalization case...." The "exculpatory
13 information" that U. S. attorneys possessed but failed to reveal to the courts (that heard and ruled on Demjanuk's 14 denaturalization and extradition proceedings) and to Demjanuk's attorneys was reasonable evidence that Demjanuk was 15 not the man that the U. S. attorneys claimed him to be, "Ivan the Terrible."

16 As readers may recall, Mr. Demjanuk was extradited to Israel where he was found guilty of the "mass murder of Jews" and 17 sentenced to hang. But the persistent search for truth and justice by Mr. Demjanuk's attorneys and his son-in-law through 18 discovery requests and Freedom of Information Act requests and litigation finally paid off. Fortunately for Mr. Demjanuk, 19 upon appeal of his death sentence the Supreme Court of Israel learned from the withheld documents and statements of 20 guards at Treblinka that "clearly identified" Ivan Marchenko--not John Demjanuk--as "Ivan the Terrible." It is significant 21 that it was the Supreme Court of Israel and not an American court that ultimately saved the life of John Demjanuk. The 22 Demjanuk case proves that some U. S. attorneys had little interest in learning the true identity of a man they were 23 prosecuting for mass murder or the attainment of justice when Demjanuk's life was assumed to be at risk. Shamefully, such 24 attorneys' apparent, chief interest is in obtaining convictions and "winning" cases. It would be interesting to know if the U.
25 S. attorneys who perpetrated fraud on the court in the Demjanuk case were punished and if the U. S. Department of Justice
26 still employs any of them. With such grave, egregious and unethical misconduct as was practiced in Demjanuk by U. S.
27 attorneys who swore to uphold the law, there is small wonder why so many Americans have come to have so little faith in 28 this country's judiciary system.

44 "And you shalt take no bribe, for a bribe blinds the discerning and perverts the words of the righteous."
45 [Exodus 23:8, Bible, NKJV]

46 "Under a government which imprisons any unjustly, the true place for a just man is also a prison."
47 [Henry David Thoreau]

48 In 1789 Thomas Jefferson warned that the federal judiciary, if given too much power, might ruin our REPUBLIC, and 49 destroy our RIGHTS! Based on the content of the following subsections and the behavior of the IRS, we believe the very 50 tyrannical situation that Thomas Jefferson warned us about below has come true!

51 "The new Constitution has secured these [individual rights] in the Executive and Legislative departments: but 52 not in the Judiciary. It should have established trials by the people themselves, that is to say, by jury."

1 "The Judiciary of the United States is the subtle corps of sappers and miners constantly working under ground
2 to undermine the foundations of our confederated fabric." (1820)

3 "...the Federal Judiciary; an irresponsible body (for impeachment is scarcely a scarecrow), working like
4 gravity by night and by day, gaining a little today and a little tomorrow, and advancing its noiseless step like a
5 thief, over the field of jurisdiction, until all shall be usurped from the States, and the government of all be 6 consolidated into one....when all government ... in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the 7 center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become
8 as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated." (1821)

9 "The opinion which gives to the judges the right to decide what laws are constitutional and what not, not only 10 for themselves in their own sphere of action, but for the legislative and executive also in their spheres, would 11 make the judiciary a despotic branch.

12 "...judges should be withdrawn from the bench whose erroneous biases are leading to dissolution. It may,
13 indeed, injure them in fame or fortune; but it saves the Republic..."

14 The U.S. Supreme Court described succinctly how the government most often acts unconstitutionally and illegally, and we 15 should heed and learn from their description below:

16 "It may be that it...is the obnoxious thing in its mildest and least repulsive form; but illegitimate and
17 unconstitutional practices get their first footing in that way; namely, by silent approaches and slight deviations
18 from legal modes of procedure. This can only be obviated by adhering to the rule that constitutional provisions
19 for the security of person and property should be liberally construed. A close and literal construction deprives 20 them of half their efficacy, and leads to gradual depreciation of the right, as if it consisted more in sound than 21 in substance. It is the duty of the courts to be watchful for the constitutional rights of the citizens, and against 22 any stealthy encroachments thereon. Their motto should be obsta principalis." [Mr. Justice Brewer, 23 dissenting, quoting Mr. Justice Bradley in Boyd v. United States, 116 U.S. 616, 29 L.Ed. 746, 6 Sup.Ct.Rep.
25 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

26 It is therefore the job of the courts to be watchful over our liberties and to act as a check and balance against 27 unconstitutional acts by either the Executive or Legislative branches of government. This is a fiduciary duty they have for 28 the citizens and inhabitants they serve within their jurisdiction. We'll let you be the judge in this section of how well they 29 have fulfilled that duty.

30 Whole books have been written just about judicial conspiracy and tyranny. We have tried to narrow the scope of this 31 section to summarize the picture for you only within the context of the income tax. If you would like to dig deeper into this 32 subject of judicial tyranny, the best book we have found is:

36 6.9.1 Abuse of "Case Law"²⁰⁰

37 In any court of law, an understanding of the legal relationship between statutory law and case law (i.e. court decisions) is 38 crucial. The following U.S. Supreme Court case of Consumer Products Safety v. GTE Sylvania, 447 U.S. 102, establishes 39 that the statute takes precedence over the case law backing the statute:

40 "We begin with the familiar canon of statutory construction that the starting point for interpreting a statute is 41 the language of the statute itself. Absent a clearly expressed legislative intention to the contrary, the language 42 must ordinarily be regarded as conclusive.

43 So if and only if there is doubt about the meaning of the statute is there a need to refer to case law to resolve the 44 controversy. This is especially true of the Supreme Law of the Land, which is the Constitution. In actual practice, 45 however, corrupt judges and the federal courts where they occupy the bench commonly subvert this requirement in order to
46 expand federal fiscal and monetary power, and in the process, conspire against the rights of Americans in illegally
47 enforcing a voluntary tax, the Subtitles A through C personal income tax. To give you an example, take the case of Griffith

²⁰⁰ Paraphrased from The Federal Mafia, 2000 edition, ISBN 0-939374-09-6, Irwin Schiff, pp. 124-125.

1 v. C.I.R., 598 F. Supp. 405, where one Charles Griffith attempted to prevent the IRS from illegally seizing his assets
2 without due process in order to collect a $500 penalty that had been assessed against him for allegedly filing a false W-4.
3 As stated in that court decision:

4 “According to plaintiff’s complaint, on September 3, 1982, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) sent plaintiff a
5 letter claiming that his W-4 did not meet the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code Sec. 3402 and
6 informing him that his employer be directed to disregard [notice the court did not say “ordered” to] the W-4
7 form and withhold monies from his paycheck as if he were single and claiming one (1) withholding allowance.
8 By letter dated September 14, 1982, plaintiff informed the IRS of his reasons for completing the W-4 in alleged 9 illegal manner. However, the IRS notified his employer to proceed withholding as if plaintiff were single...and 10 was assessed a penalty of five hundred dollars ($500) under 26 U.S.C. §6682(a).

11 Note that the court suggests that Griffith completed his W-4 in an “allegedly illegal manner.” How exactly does one
12 complete a W-4 in an “illegal manner”? Did Griffith hit the personnel clerk over the head with a hammer, strip the clothes
13 off and then complete his W-4 on her naked body? And if it were completed in an “allegedly illegal manner,” why wasn’t 14 he arrested? It is clear that Griffith’s W-4 did “meet the requirements of Section 3402.” Griffith obviously knew (as you 15 also know) that he was not liable for income taxes, and so probably claimed “exempt” in accordance with 26 U.S.C.
16 §3402(n). Note that the court states that the “plaintiff informed the IRS of his reasons for completing the form.” So why
17 didn’t the court state those reasons in its decision, since Section 6682 only applies when such reasons are not “reasonable”?
18 But not only did the court refuse to consider whether Griffith’s reasons were “reasonable,” it refused to even mention them!
19 I wonder why? Who, therefore, decided that Griffith “reasons” were not “reasonable”? An IRS cleaning lady?

20 In finding against Griffith the DIShonorably Judge White wrote:

21 Plaintiff’s claim that the manner of collection of the penalty violates his Fifth Amendment rights is without 22 merit. He has attempted to show that the government cannot prevail in the collection of the penalty because to 23 do so prior to a hearing would deprive him of his Fifth Amendment constitutional rights. Case law dictates
24 otherwise...The power of the government to levy is essential to the self assessment tax system because it 25 encourages voluntary compliance.

26 So the court, in deciding to allow the IRS to seize Griffith’s property without any hearing whatsoever, admits that it does so
27 on the basis of what “case law dictates”—never mind what the statute itself “dictates” or what the Constitution “dictates”,
28 which the judge took an oath “to support and defend”! Section 6682 only allows the penalty if there is no “reasonable 29 basis” for the claim, which the court here refuses to even consider!

30 It should also be pointed out in this case that Griffith represented himself against the government as a pro per. He 31 undoubtedly believed he could do so, since he was convinced (and rightly so) that he had several statutes, the Constitution,
32 and logic all on his side. But he learned (as we all do sooner or later), that these often do not count much in federal court
33 because of the massive corruption and outright tyranny that exists there. Incidentally, did you happen to get the feeling 34 when you read the above, that you were reading right out of Alice in Wonderland?

35 Clearly, Griffith’s argument is not only “not without merit”; it is legally correct. But federal judges can easily dispatch
36 such arguments by labeling them “frivolous” or stating they are “without merit” and not explaining the basis for that 37 determination. This leaves the average pro per litigant, not to mention most attorneys, without any recourse except to shake 38 their head and file a lawsuit for breach of fiduciary duty and corruption against the judge.

39 6.9.2 The Federal Mafia Courts Stole Your Seventh Amendment Right to Trial by Jury!

40 The Federal Mafia Courts stole your Seventh Amendment right to trial by jury. Here is what the Seventh Amendment says
41 about the right of trial by jury:

42 In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury
43 shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United 44 States, than according to the rules of the common law.

45 And here is what the U.S. Constitution, Article 3, Section 2, Clause 3 says about the right of trial by jury:

46 “The Trial of all Crimes, except in Cases of Impeachment, shall be by Jury; and such Trial shall be held in the 47 State where the said Crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State, the Trial

1 shall be at such Place or Places as the Congress may by Law have directed." [Article III, Section 2, Clause 3, 2 U.S. Constitution]

3 Here is what the tyrants in the Fifth Circuit court of federal appeals said about your Seventh Amendment right to jury trial
4 in the case of Mathes v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 576 F.2d 70 (1978) in relation to a civil tax trial held in Tax
5 Court:

6 Taxpayers also assert they were denied their Seventh Amendment right to trial by jury before the Tax Court.
7 The Seventh Amendment preserves the right to jury trial "in suits at common law." Since there was no right
8 of action at common law against a sovereign, enforceable by jury trial or otherwise, there is no constitutional
9 right to a jury trial in a suit against the United States. See 9 C. Wright & A. Miller, Federal Practice &
10 Procedure § 2314, at 68-69 (1971). Thus, there is a right to a jury trial in actions against the United States only 11 if a statute so provides. Congress has not so provided when the taxpayer elects not to pay the assessment and 12 sue for a redetermination in the Tax Court. For a taxpayer to obtain a trial by jury, he must pay the tax
13 allegedly owed and sue for a refund in district court. 28 U.S.C. §§ 2402 and 1346(a)(1). The law is therefore 14 clear that a taxpayer who elects to bring his suit in the Tax Court has no right, statutory or constitutional, to a 15 trial by jury. Phillips v. Commissioner, 283 U.S. 589, 599 n. 9, 51 S. Ct. 608, 75 L. Ed. 1289 (1931); Wickwire
16 v. Reinecke, 275 U.S. 101, 105-106, 48 S. Ct. 43, 72 L. Ed. 184 (1927); Dorl v. Commissioner, 507 F.2d 406, 17 407 (2d Cir. 1974) (holding it "elementary that there is no right to a jury trial in the Tax Court."
18 [Mathes v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 576 F.2d 70 (1978)]

19 Therefore, we only get a trial by jury when litigating against the U.S. government for wrongful taking of taxes if 20 Congress gives its permission by statute! Do you think they will ever do that? Fat chance! The Constitution no
21 longer guarantees a trial by jury if the matter being litigated is taxes and the litigant is suing the federal government. We 22 have the wranglings of corrupt judges like the one above to thank for that. Such abuses directly contradict the U.S.
23 Constitution, which states:

24 Article 1, Section 9, Clause 8: "No Title of Nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no Person
25 holding any Office of Profit or Trust under them, shall, without the Consent of the Congress, except of any 26 present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever, from any King, Prince or foreign State."

27 In this case, the Title of Nobility is "Sovereign"! Here's what the definition of Nobility is, right from Black's Law
28 Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1047:

29 "In English law, a division of the people, comprehending dukes, marquises, earls, viscounts, and barons. These 30 had anciently duties annexed to their respective honors. They are created either by writ, i.e., by royal 31 summons to attend the house of peers, or by letters patent, i.e., by royal grant of any dignity and degree of 32 peerage; and they enjoy many privileges exclusive of their senatorial capacity. Since 1963 no new hereditary 33 ennoblements have been created."
34 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1047]

35 In the above case, the "royal decree" creating the "Title of Nobility" is a judgment by the courts, and the "exclusive 36 privilege" granted to the government (by itself, which by the way is a conflict of interest) is that of:

- 37 1. Not being directly accountable to a jury or the people it is elected to represent like everyone else for its wrongdoing
38 2. Not being able to be sued by the real sovereigns (the people) without its own consent.

39 "While sovereign powers are delegated to ... the government, sovereignty itself remains with the people."
40 [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, page 370]

41 Hypocrisy and lawlessness! With the above startling realizations in mind, do you think it is EVER possible to guarantee a 42 fair trial or a balance of power if you are litigating against the IRS or the federal government in their own federal court?
43 Absolute power corrupts absolutely, and there is no better example of that philosophy in action than in the federal courts.
44 The deck in federal court is obviously stacked, which explains why so many irrational and unconstitutional rulings occur in 45 the context of income tax litigation in the federal courts. Another thing that this section ought to convince you of is that it
46 is more productive in a federal court to go after the individual government officials involved for corruption, fraud, and 47 extortion under the color of office than it is to go after the government. If they violate the law, they can be held personally
48 liable, and because you are not suing a sovereign, the United States Government, you can be assured your right to a Trial
49 by Jury.

1 Do you STILL think we live in a free country? Our government is no different than having a monarch with absolute power
2 to do whatever it wants with sovereign immunity from prosecution for wrongdoing granted by our corrupt federal courts!

3 6.9.3 You Cannot Obtain Declaratory Judgments in Federal Income Tax Trials Held in Federal Courts

4 Your wonderful Congress legislated away your right to obtain a Declaratory judgment in a federal income tax trial. A
5 declaratory judgment is one where there are no disputes over fact and the only relief sought is a declaration of status or
6 rights of the plaintiff under law. No jury trial occurs and the court (judge) makes the declaration of status or right by 7 motion and without a trial. An example might be a declaration of your status by the court as a nonresident alien, a person
8 not liable for federal income tax, etc.

9 Congress knows that people don't like to pay taxes and that they will be likely to litigate to protect their Constitutional
10 rights, so they put a statutory roadblock in front of patriots who use Constitutional rights to avoid paying taxes and who
11 want to litigate to get a declaratory judgment identifying them as persons not liable for income taxes. This roadblock 12 guarantees that those who don't know what they are doing will lose in federal court, especially in cases where issues of 13 status as a nonresident alien or personal liability for tax are asserted. That roadblock is 28 U.S.C. §2201 as follows, and it 14 prevents federal courts from declaring the rights or status of a plaintiff to remedy a wrong related to taxes or illegal taking 15 of taxes by the federal government in a federal court:

16 United States Code
17 TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
18 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
19 CHAPTER 151 - DECLARATORY JUDGMENTS
20 Sec. 2201. Creation of remedy

21 (a) In a case of actual controversy within its jurisdiction, except with respect to Federal 22 taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, a proceeding
23 under section 505 or 1146 of title 11, or in any civil action involving an antidumping or countervailing duty
24 proceeding regarding a class or kind of merchandise of a free trade area country (as defined in section 25 516A(f)(10) of the Tariff Act of 1930), as determined by the administering authority, any court of the United 26 States, upon the filing of an appropriate pleading, may declare the rights and other legal relations of any 27 interested party seeking such declaration, whether or not further relief is or could be sought. Any such 28 declaration shall have the force and effect of a final judgment or decree and shall be reviewable as such.

29 (b) For limitations on actions brought with respect to drug patents see section 505 or 512 of the Federal Food,
30 Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

31 What this means is that a federal court can't issue a declaratory judgment relating to federal taxes or declare your rights or 32 status (e.g. the Bill of Rights, and the first ten Amendments to the U.S. Constitution) or the status of its own jurisdiction to 33 hear your case with respect to federal income taxes. So in other words, declaratory judgments based on lack of jurisdiction
34 or based on citizenship or assertion of constitutional rights cannot be decided in federal court solely by a judge! Such cases 35 must be heard in state court or a common law court!

36 When you think about this statute, it actually makes sense. The statute doesn't allow a federal judge to solely decide rights
37 or jurisdiction or citizenship status on a federal income issue because it would present a conflict of interest that would not
38 serve the interests of justice and would violate 28 U.S.C. 455. Why? Because the judge's paycheck comes from the matter
39 he is deciding on! Do you think he is going to rule in favor of the Citizen by saying he doesn't have to pay income taxes?
40 The Congress therefore required an outside entity, such as a state court, to decide on issues of status. Don't be discouraged
41 by the above, however. There is a way around this statutory trap. Below is the way around the roadblock:

42 While income tax arguments are barred under this rule - actions proving lack of citizenship, domicile, and residence are 43 specifically allowed. The issue is not income tax but jurisdiction over the person. Lack of jurisdiction is proved by FRCP
44 Rule 44 and 44.1 - You go to the proper jurisdiction to resolve the matter by taking the following steps:

- 45 1. Acquire domicile and residence in a common law jurisdiction.
- 46 2. File notice in the clerks office in state and federal courts.
- 47 3. Argue this in Federal court using as evidence the filings filed at common law, state court and federal courts.

1 4. Appeal at common law under FRCP Rule 60 last line "by independent action".

2 You are then not arguing jurisdiction in front of that court - you are using evidence to prove that jurisdiction already exists
3 in another court. Read 28 U.S.C. §2201 and it states that it must be argued in the proper manner - and that is by not letting 4 the US court decide that issue - go to common law and plead condition precedent under FRCP rule 8.(The citizenship was 5 already decided before the action began).

6 This argument is in agreement with all of the cites herein and the argument that dual citizenship can exist. State law tells 7 you the procedure for noticing the state courts that you have acquired a new residence and domicile.

8 6.9.4 The Changing Definition of "Direct, Indirect, and Excise Taxes"

9 "Dishonest scales are an abomination to the Lord, but a just weight is His delight."
10 [Prov. 11:1, Bible, NKJV]

11 "Judicial verbicide is calculated to convert the Constitution into a worthless scrap of paper and to replace our 12 government of laws with a judicial oligarchy."
13 [Senator Sam Ervin, during Watergate hearing]

14 "By mercy and truth iniquity is purged: and by the fear of the LORD men depart from evil."
15 [Prov. 16:6, Bible, NKJV]

16 "Thus says the Lord: 'Execute judgment in the morning; and deliver him who is plundered illegally by the 17 IRS out of the hand of the oppressor, lest my fury go forth like fire and burn so that no one can quench it,
18 because of the evil of your doings.'
19 [Jeremiah 21:12, Bible, NKJV]

20 The purpose of this section is to provide evidence to support the conclusion that there is a conspiracy of massive 21 proportions by the federal judiciary to defend and uphold federal income taxes. We hinted at the existence of this 22 conspiracy in section 5.6.11.9 entitled "Why Hasn't the 861 Issue Been Challenged in Court Already?". Now we will 23 prove the existence of this conspiracy by researching actual cases and by reading from judgments of the federal courts at 24 various levels over the years.

25 Because the judiciary is authorized by the Constitution to "legislate", federal judges and the legal profession have crafted a 26 different approach to support and expand the operation of the federal income tax. It's called "redefining the meaning of 27 words". Over time, they have redefined such words as "direct tax", "excise tax", and "indirect tax" to expand the 28 applicability of federal taxes and, by implication, the jurisdiction of the federal government to tax its citizens. Our own
29 ignorance of the concept of "stare decisis", also called "precedent", and our lack of attentiveness to their transgressions
30 through the political process has allowed them to get away with this devious fraud. We will therefore take a look at how 31 the definitions of these terms have evolved and have been "optimized" over the years by federal judges as a way to 32 maximize illegal government revenues from income taxes. This notion of changing the definition of words is not new.
33 Instead, it is just another devious trick that covetous lawyers use to enslave us by hiding and obfuscating the truth over
34 time. Instead of using language as a way to empower and free people and respect their liberties, lawyers abuse words as a 35 way to trick, enslave, confuse, and control people. We talked about this devious approach in section 2.11.3, entitled "How 36 to Teach Your Child About Politics", when we said:

37 "When your child has matured sufficiently to understand how the judicial system works, set a bedtime for him
38 and then send him to bed an hour early. When he tearfully accuses you of breaking the rules, explain that you
39 made the rules and you can interpret them in any way that seems appropriate to you, according to changing
40 conditions. This will prepare him for the Supreme Court's concept of the U.S. Constitution as a "living 41 document."

42 [...]

43 This brings me to the most important child-rearing technique of all: lying. Lie to your child constantly. Teach 44 him that words mean nothing - or rather that the meanings of words are continually 'evolving', and may be 45 tomorrow the opposite of what they are today.

46 Some readers may object that this is a poor way to raise a child. A few may even call it child abuse. But that's 47 the whole point: Child abuse is the best preparation for adult life under our form of GOVERNMENT."

1 If the above quote doesn't make the judicial conspiracy, I don't know what does! The below humorous anecdote carries
2 this violation of due process to its extreme, and isn't too far from the truth!:

3 NEW RULES FOR LAW

4 SMUCKWAP NEWSSERVICE, Washington: The Supreme Court ruled today that judges can do whatever the 5 hell they want. In a landmark case, Black-Robed Lawyers vs. Everyone Else, the justices handed down their 6 inestimable judgment that since lawyers in general and judges in particular are such fine examples of humanity,
7 not to mention smart enough to get through law school, judges can do whatever they please.

8 "The Rule of Law has ended," proclaimed Supreme Court Justice Arrogant B. Astart, "and the Rule of Judges 9 begins!"

10 Turning their shiny black backs on the rest of America, the justices decided to toss out two hundred years of 11 Constitutional law and indeed, to rid themselves completely of having to heed the Constitution.

12 "The law is what we say it is," said Justice Whiney I. Diot. "It has been this way for some time now, but with 13 Black-Robed Lawyers vs. Everyone Else, we are coming out of our judicial closet. No more arguments will be 14 allowed from anyone, and we don't want to hear any more of your complaining about your rights. In fact, any 15 mention of so-called rights will guarantee you 100 years, hard labor."

16 Justice K. Rupt Assin concurred in his opinion that "judicial oligarchy has now fully come into its place in 17 American history and will be fully enforced by an iron rule of law, and remember, law is whatever we say it is."

18 The Center for People Who Want to Leave This Country Because It Is Beginning to Look Too Much Like Nazi 19 Germany analyzed the justices' decision.

20 "Judges now legally can put anyone in prison for any reason they want, for as long as they want," states the 21 analysis. "Judges can also put jurors in prison for 'obstructing justice' and for anything else, including not 22 handing the judge whatever money they may have on them at the time. Jurors who don't behave exactly as the 23 judge desired have been persecuted in the past, but "now they can receive prison terms much longer than their 24 own lifespan added to the lifespan(s) of the defendant(s) in any trial.

25 The report also mentioned the justices' decision that anyone who says anything disagreeable in their courtroom
26 can be immediately arrested and jailed, their property confiscated, and their spouses and children taken as

28 The concept of separation of powers was addressed in the Center's report on the decision.

29 "There is no separation of powers," it reads, "when not only all the justices are lawyers, so are all
30 Congressmen and the President, his wife, his cabinet, the entire Department of Justice, most lobbyists and 31 almost everyone else in Washington, D.C."

32 When questioned about what effect the decision would have on all Americans, the spokesman for the Center
33 said, "I can't be certain. I suspect that emigration rather than immigration will become a major concern. Those 34 Americans who are lawyers will be fine, for the most part. No one will ever again show up for jury duty. But if 35 *we thought we had an overcrowded prison problem before, we're in for a major shock!"*

36 Another way the federal judiciary has conspired with Congress to usurp such arbitrary and unconstitutional authority over
37 time has been for Congress to write the laws in a deliberately vague way in order to leave a lot of undue discretion to the 38 courts to interpret and misapply and broaden the applicability of these laws. Here are the two main ways this has 39 deliberately been done in the case of the tax codes:

- 40 1. Title 26 of the U.S. Codes, which are written by Congress, don't clearly define "income." Does it mean "profit"?
41 Does it mean "wage"? What about "sources" of income? If it means profit, then we must deduct from our wages the 42 cost of sustaining our life, which includes food, clothing, housing, insurance, etc., since we must view ourselves as 43 producers of labor for sale, which is not free but involves a cost to sustain and maintain the ability to provide that labor.
- 44 2. The purpose of the laws is to clearly define or to limit the authority of the government and to define precisely and 45 unambiguously which actions are criminal. Congress has written the tax codes in such a way that they do not satisfy 46 this requirement, but instead expand and enlarge the authority of the federal government to tax in a way that can't be 47 completely defined or even understood by the common man. They have done this by deliberately monkeying with the 48 definition of the word "includes" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(c). This word in normal usage is a term of limitation, but 49 as we showed in section 3.12.1.8, Congress has used it as a term of enlargement, as if to say:

1 "The Internal Revenue Code laws aren't a limiting factor and do not bound or define the authority of Congress
2 to tax. Instead, these laws mean whatever the judge says they mean at the time, which can arbitrarily change
3 over time without explanation or justification. Our powers to tax are unlimited and beyond your ability to 4 comprehend or understand and beyond our obligation to explain to you. We don't care if this violates the Fifth, 5 Sixth, and Tenth Amendments and your due process rights. Always remember that WE'RE the government and 6 WE are in complete control and the ONLY ones who are sovereign or empowered or who know what the laws
7 that we write really say! We don't work for you, YOU are OUR financial slaves and YOU will do exactly and 8 only what you are told to do by our chief priests in the federal courts, who are the only ones qualified to 9 interpret the law, who we appoint, and who can only hold office as long as they do exactly what we tell them to 10 do by keeping tax dollars they extort from you under duress flowing into our Treasury.

11 And by the way, your lawyer can't help you in challenging our sovereign authority to tax because we license
12 him to practice law both in this state and in this court and if he in any way questions or threatens our authority
13 to tax or our jurisdiction, we will simply pull his license and blacklist him with the IRS, and he will therefore 14 cease to be able to earn a living and be subject to the same kind of financial terrorism, harassment, and 15 intimidation that you are undergoing. You can't win this war, my friend, because our power is absolute and we 16 will squash you like a bug if you don't 'voluntarily comply'! Nevertheless, you can do whatever you want 17 because we live in a 'free' country and you are a free man, and we are here to benevolently protect that 18 freedom. The minute you start complaining about losing that freedom, then we'll turn your 'rights' into 19 government 'privileges' and charge you an additional tax to have these privileges upheld and respected in our 20 courts."

21 You will note that a remedy is suggested for this kind of government arrogance, legal abuse, and terrorism in section 2.5, of 22 the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 when we talk about "What would it take for the IRS and the 23 US Congress to 'come clean'" by saying that Congress needs to reform their definition of the word "includes", which even 24 they don't use in a consistent fashion in the case of 26 U.S.C. §61, which says in part:

25 (a) General definition - ... gross income means all income from whatever source derived, including 26 (but not limited to) the following items:

27 [...]

28 Isn't that interesting? If 26 U.S.C. §7701 (c) indeed says the word "includes" is not a limiting term, then why do the 29 shyster lawyers in Congress and the IRS need to use the phrase "including (but not limited to)"? I'll tell you why, because 30 they don't want you to understand what the law really means or know what you are expected to do, but would rather see
31 you terrorized into submission to whatever it is their arbitrary whims dictate. This legal terrorism and the fear it generates
32 is foisted upon us with our own extorted tax dollars by lawyers in the Department of (In)Justice and the courts in the 33 process of illegally enforcing (no Delegation of Authority orders to the DOJ to support litigation of voluntary income taxes)
34 laws that are so vague that they violate the "void for vagueness" criteria we described in section 5.12.3, entitled "Why the 35 'Void for Vagueness Doctrine' Should be Invoked By The Courts to Render the Internal Revenue Code Unconstitutional in 36 Total". This has to be one of the biggest frauds and scams in history and the tyranny won't end until We The People
37 remedy this most basic violation of our right to due process guaranteed by the Fifth and Sixth Amendments. We must do 38 this first at the ballot box, then the jury box, and finally with the cartridge box (guns) if need be to coerce the government to 39 respect our Constitutional rights!

40 6.9.4.1 Definition of terms and legal framework

41 Recall from Chapters 3 and 5 that we spent a lot of time talking about "direct taxes" and "excise taxes" and the relationship
42 between the two. Another synonym for an excise tax is "privilege tax". In particular, we compared and contrasted these 43 two types of taxes in section 5.1.2, which we will not repeat here. Understanding the relationship between these two types
44 of taxes is foundational to understanding why income taxes are unconstitutional as they are implemented by the IRS, and 45 why they are upheld by the federal district/circuit courts in some cases. We also talked about the five types of 46 constitutional taxes in section 5.1

47 Much of the deliberately-induced confusion created in the courts results from the rather basic misunderstanding in most 48 people's minds over the term "United States". We talked this issue in sections 4.7 entitled "The Three 'United States'" and 49 section 3.12.1.23 entitled "'United States' (in 26 U.S.C. §7701)". You have to remember that the judicial conspiracy to 50 protect the income tax can only be upheld and spread if the courts avoid discussing the true definition of this term within 51 the meaning of 26 Title U.S.C. and the nature of the limited application of the income tax to federal/U.S. (federal zone)

citizens). Within the I.R.C, the term “United States” actually means the “federal zone”, which includes the District of Columbia and the federal territories and possessions within the contiguous 50 union states, but not the 50 sovereign states themselves. The courts, however, don’t want your average sovereign natural born Citizen of the 50 union states knowing that the federal income tax only applies within the federal zone to people who claim to be U.S. citizens, so they have done things in their rulings such as:

1. Not mention or confuse the U.S. citizenship or residency status of the defendant. The most famous case of this was the case of Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1 (1916), in which Frank Brushaber claimed to be a Sovereign naturalized citizen of the New York Republic (state) and NOT a U.S./federal citizen. The government tried to confuse his status as a nonresident alien for tax purposes by claiming that he was a French immigrant who never obtained state citizenship.
2. Avoid discussing jurisdictional issues. For instance, ignoring claims by a Citizen that the U.S. government lacks jurisdiction to prosecute a Citizen for not paying income taxes.
3. Make cases won by the Citizen rather than the IRS unpublished so other Citizens don’t find out the most effective tactics to litigate the income tax issues.

In this section, we will trace several U.S. supreme and appellate court cases to show that primarily the federal appellate and district the courts have established a new and changing definition for these terms that conflicts both with the original definition of the terms used by the founding fathers, the rulings of the Supreme Court, and with the modern-day definition that the “common man” understands of these terms. We will show how they have done this on their own accord and without any authority derived from the Constitution, congress, the rulings of the supreme Court, or the law itself. We will show that the definitions of the terms ”direct” and “excise” taxes over time has been slowly modified by the courts in such a way that revenues from income taxes for the federal government have not only been increased, but MAXIMIZED. We will show that this approach violates the important concept of “stare decisis” that is foundational to our republic and our whole legal system. We will show that this behavior by the courts is consistent with their alleged role as part of the “federal mafia”, whose mission is to expand the plunder and extortion of the property of private citizens in disregard of the U.S. Constitution. Simply by changing the definitions and interpretation of these two terms in their judgments, the federal courts have, in effect, “legislated” by setting new precedents, to uphold and expand the federal income tax system.

STARE DECISIS: Lat: to abide by, or adhere to, decided cases. Policy of courts to stand by precedent and not to disturb settled point. Neff v. George, 364 Ill. 306, 4 N.E.2d 388, 390, 391. Doctrine that, when court has once laid down a principle of law as applicable to a certain state of facts, it will adhere to that principle, and apply it to all future cases, where facts are substantially the same; regardless of whether the parties and property are the same. Horne v. Moody, Tex.Civ.App., 146 S.W.2d 505, 509, 510. Under doctrine a deliberate or solemn decision of court made after argument on question of law fairly arising in the case, and necessary to its determination, is an authority, or binding precedent in the same court, or in other courts of equal or lower rank in subsequent cases where the very point is again in controversy. State v. Mellenberger, 163 Or. 233, 95 P.2d 709, 719, 720. Doctrine is one of policy, grounded on theory that security and certainty require that accepted and established legal principle, under which rights may accrue, be recognized and followed, though later found to be not legally sound, but whether previous holding of court shall be adhered to, modified, or overruled is within court’s discretion under circumstances of case before it. Otter Tail Power Co. v. Von Bank, 72 N.D. 497, 8 N.W.2d 599, 607. Under doctrine, when point of law has been settled by decision, it forms precedent which is not afterwards to be departed from, and, while it should ordinarily be strictly adhered to, there are occasions when departure is rendered necessary to vindicate plain, obvious principles of law and remedy continued injustice. The doctrine is not ordinarily departed from where decision is of long-standing and rights have been acquired under it, unless considerations of public policy demand it. Colonial Trust Co. v. Flanagan, 344 Pa. 556, 25 A.2d 728, 729. The doctrine is limited to actual determinations in respect to litigated and necessarily decided questions, and is not applicable to dicta or obiter dicta. See also Precedent; Res (Res judicata)
[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1406]

PRECEDENT: An adjudged case or decision of a court, considered as furnishing an example or authority for an identical or similar case afterwards arising or a similar question of law. Courts attempt to decide cases on the basis of principles established in prior cases. Prior cases which are close in facts or legal principles to the case under consideration are called precedents. A rule of law established for the first time by a court for a particular type of case and thereafter referred to in deciding similar cases. See also Stare decisis.

1 A course of conduct once followed which may serve as a guide for future conduct. See Custom and usage;
2 Habit. .
3 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1176]

4 From these definitions, we can see that stare decisis and precedent are very important aspects of law that constrain what
5 the federal courts can do. Together, they establish that cases must follow precedents unless there is a compelling reason not
6 to, and that the reasons for overruling past precedents ought to be clearly explained so that the lower courts will understand
7 how to apply the new paradigm.

8 Now lets move to the words themselves. We'll start off by examining the definition of "excise tax" found in Merriam
9 Webster's Dictionary of Law²⁰¹:

10 [ˈɛk-ˈsɪz, -ˈsɪs]
11 1: a tax levied on the manufacture, sale, or consumption of a commodity
12 (compare income tax, property tax)
13 2: any of various taxes on privileges often assessed in the form of a license or other fee
14 (see also Article I of the Constitution)
15 (compare direct tax)
16
17 [emphasis added]

18 Similarly, Barron's Law dictionary defines "excise" as follows:

19 "Broadly, "any kind of tax which is not directly on property or the rents or incomes from real estate." 4A. 2d
20 861, 862. "An inland impost upon articles of manufacture or sale and also upon licenses to pursue certain 21 trades, or to deal in certain commodities." 184 U.S. 608, 617. It is imposed directly and without assessment
22 and is measured by amount of business done and other means. 161 So. 735, 738. See tax [EXCISE TAX]²⁰²

23 "a federal tax imposed upon the purchase of certain items. See excise."

24 Excise taxes are commonly referred to as "indirect" taxes within the meaning of the U.S. Constitution (see section 5.1 for 25 further details). From the preceding discussion, it ought to be clear that excise taxes apply to businesses involved in trade
26 and the amount of tax is to be determined by any measure related to activity that the legislature determines. For instance,
27 the (fraudulently ratified) 16th Amendment allows excise taxes to be measured by income, but does NOT allow for direct
28 taxes without apportionment as ruled in the case of Stanton v. Baltic Mining (240 U.S. 103), 1916. In particular, the court
29 said in that case that the 16th Amendment merely:

30 "...prohibited the ... power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out
31 of the category of indirect taxation to which it inherently belonged..."

32 A good definition of "excise taxes" is found in the Supreme Court case of Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911):

33 "Excises are taxes laid upon the manufacture, sale or consumption of commodities within the country, upon 34 licenses to pursue certain occupations and upon corporate privileges; the requirement to pay such taxes
35 involves the exercise of the privilege and if business is not done in the manner described no tax is payable...it is 36 the privilege which is the subject of the tax and not the mere buying, selling or handling of goods." [Flint v.
37 Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911)]

38 The Supreme Court case of Bromley v. McCaughn, 280 U.S. 124 (1929) provides another good definition of the operation 39 of "excise taxes":

40 "While taxes levied upon or collected from persons because of their general ownership of property may be 41 taken to be direct, Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 15 S. Ct. 673; Id., 158 U.S. 601, 15 S.
42 Ct. 912, this court has consistently held, almost from the foundation of the government, that a tax imposed upon
43 a particular use of property or the exercise of a single power over property incidental to ownership, is an excise
44 which need not be apportioned, and it is enough for present purposes that this tax is of the latter class. Hylton v.
45 United States, supra; cf. Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533; Thomas v. United States, 192 U.S. 363, 370, 24 S.

Ct. 305; Billings v. United States, 232 U.S. 261, 34 S. Ct. 421; Nicol v. Ames, supra; Patton v. Brady, 184 U.S. 608, 22 S. Ct. 493; McCray v. United States, 195 U.S. 27, 24 S. Ct. 769, 1 Ann. Cas. 561; Scholey v. Rew, 23 Wall. 331; Knowlton v. Moore, supra. See, also, Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107, 31 S. Ct. 342, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1312; Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397, 24 S. Ct. 376; Stratton's Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 34 S. Ct. 136; Doyle v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 183, 38 S. Ct. 467; Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103, 114, 36 S. Ct. 278.

It is a tax laid only upon the exercise of a single one of those powers incident to ownership, the power to give the property owned to another. Under this statute all the other rights and powers which collectively constitute [280 U.S. 124, 137] property or ownership may be fully enjoyed free of the tax. So far as the constitutional power to tax is concerned, it would be difficult to state any intelligible distinction, founded either in reason or upon practical considerations of weight, between a tax upon the exercise of the power to give property inter vivos and the disposition of it by legacy, upheld in Knowlton v. Moore, supra, the succession tax in Scholey v. Rew, supra, the tax upon the manufacture and sale of colored oleomargarine in McCray v. United States, supra, the tax upon sales of grain upon an exchange in Nicol v. Ames, supra, the tax upon sales of shares of stock in Thomas v. United States, supra, the tax upon the use of foreign built yachts in Billings v. United States, supra, the tax upon the use of carriages in Hylton v. United States, supra; compare Veazie Bank v. Fenno, supra, 545 of 8 Wall.; Thomas v. United States, supra, 370 of 192 U. S., 24 S. Ct. 305.

It is true that in each of these cases the tax was imposed upon the exercise of one of the numerous rights of property, but each is clearly distinguishable from a tax which falls upon the owner merely because he is owner, regardless of the use of disposition made of his property. See Billings v. United States, supra; cf. Pierce v. United States, 232 U.S. 290, 34 S. Ct. 427. The persistence of this distinction and the justification for it rest upon the historic fact that taxes of this type were not understood to be direct taxes when the Constitution was adopted and, as well, upon the reluctance of this court to enlarge by construction, limitations upon the sovereign power of taxation by article I, 8, so vital to the maintenance of the national government. Nicol v. Ames, supra, 514, 515 of 173 U. S., 19, S. Ct. 522."

Merriam Webster's Dictionary of Law defines "direct tax" as follows²⁰³:

"a tax imposed on a taxpayer himself or herself or on his or her property (compare excise)"

The Supreme Court did a good job describing "direct taxes" in the case of Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 75 U.S. 533 (1869):

"This review shows that personal property, contracts, occupations, and the like, have never been regarded by Congress as proper subjects of direct tax.

It may be rightly affirmed, therefore, that in the practical construction of the Constitution by Congress, direct taxes have been limited to taxes on land and appurtenances, and taxes on polls, or capitation taxes."

We believe that these are good definitions that are consistent with the wishes of the founding fathers.

6.9.4.2 The Early Supreme Court View of Direct vs. Indirect/Excise Taxes Prior to Passage of the 16th Amendment 1913

With the legal definitions complete, lets examine the historical background for the subject of direct and indirect/excise taxes by the Supreme Court prior to the (fraudulent) passage of the 16th Amendment. We'll start off with the case of Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 74 U.S. 433 (1868), which is a very good reference on the definition of "direct taxes" and "indirect taxes":

The ordinary test of the difference between direct and indirect taxes, is whether the tax falls ultimately on the tax-payer, or whether, through the tax-payer, it falls ultimately on the consumer. If it falls ultimately on the tax-payer, then it is direct in its nature, as in the case of poll taxes and land taxes. If, on the contrary, it falls ultimately on the consumer, then it is an indirect tax.

Such is the test, as laid down by all writers on the subject. Adam Smith, who was the great and universally received authority on political economy, in the day when the Federal Constitution was framed, sets forth a tax on a person's revenue to be a direct tax. 5 Mill,6 Say,7 J. R. McCulloch,8 Lieber,9 among political economists, do the same in specific [74 U.S. 433, 438] language. Mr. Justice Bouvier, in his learned Law Dictionary, ²⁰³ Merriam-Webster's Dictionary of Law ©1996.

1 defines a capitation tax, 'A poll tax; an imposition which is yearly laid on each person according to his estate
2 and ability.'

3 Indeed, it is obvious that an income tax, levied on the profits of any business, does not fall ultimately on the 4 consumer or patron of that business, in any other sense than that in which a poll tax or land tax may be said
5 ultimately to fall, or be charged over by the payer of those taxes upon the persons with whom and for whom 6 they do business, or to whom they rent their lands. The refinement which would argue otherwise, abolishes the 7 whole distinction, and under it all taxes may be regarded as direct or indirect, at pleasure.

8 But, if the distinction is recognized (and it must be, for the Constitution makes it), then it follows, that an 9 income tax is, and always heretofore has been, regarded as being a direct tax, as much so as a poll tax or as 10 a land tax. If it be a direct tax, then the Constitution is imperative that it shall be apportioned.

11 If it be argued that an income tax cannot be apportioned, then, it cannot be levied; for only such direct taxes
12 can be levied as can be apportioned.

13 But an income tax can be apportioned as easily as any other direct tax: first, by determining the amount to be 14 raised from incomes throughout the United States, and then by ascertaining the proportion to be paid by the 15 people of each State. An income tax, in the matter of its apportionment, is not embarrassed by any other 16 difficulties than those which grow out of apportionment, in the admitted cases of poll taxes and land taxes."

17 According to the Supreme Court, there can be only these type types of taxes: direct or indirect/excises:

18 "And although there may have been from time to time intimations that there might be some tax which was not a 19 direct tax nor included under the words "duties, imposts and excises," such a tax has yet remained 20 undiscovered, not withstanding the stress of particular circumstances has invited thorough investigation into 21 sources of revenue."
22 [Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895), 557, Thomas v. United States
23 (1903) 192 u.s. 363, 370]

24 6.9.4.3 Common Manifestations of the Judicial Conspiracy

25 This section summarizes the common elements of the judicial conspiracy to uphold the federal income tax. Below are a list
26 of some of the more common tactics used by the courts following the passage of the 16th Amendment to prejudice any 27 litigation that would undermine the income tax. These are things that you should be watching vigilantly for and loudly
28 blowing the whistle when you see them:

29 1. Political moves:

- 30 1.1. Congress making federal judgeships into political appointees instead of elected offices. This causes the judges to 31 be more partial toward their political benefactors than they are in favor of citizens or the law.
- 32 1.2. Congress or presidents appointing judges who will participate actively in the judicial conspiracy to uphold the 33 federal income tax.
- 34 1.3. Congress or presidents appointing judges who aren't confrontational (YES men) and who are unlikely to make 35 any rulings that would have big political implications, like overthrowing illegal and fraudulent income taxes.

36 2. Counsel:

- 37 2.1. Refusing to allow the counsel of the Citizen to represent him in the court because of his views about taxes, but at 38 the same time, pretending like it is due to his lack of a license to practice law in a particular federal court or 39 jurisdiction.
- 40 2.2. Only granting pro-tem (temporary) judgeships (during the absence of the normal judge, during vacation, for 41 instance) to lawyers who are in favor of the income tax, so that they have more authority and leverage against 42 lawyers who are against in any case.

43 3. Jury selection:

- 44 3.1. Including a "mole" or planted individual (perhaps a lawyer who is a tax advocate) on the jury who is outspoken
45 and biased against the Citizen and biased in favor of income taxes. This most often happens when the 46 government or judge "slips" new candidates of the government's choosing into the courtroom at the last minute
47 during jury selection or voir dire. This is what happened to Dr. Phil Roberts failure to file case, for instance, and 48 it biased his case and led to a unfair criminal prosecution. Visit our website if you like, to learn about this 49 despicable miscarriage of justice that happened in his case.
- 50 3.2. When it comes time to draw names out of a box to select jurists, the box will be populated (rigged) outside the 51 courtroom by the government and the judge will not allow either the defense or prosecution to examine the

1 contents of the box prior to drawing names. For all they know, the unbiased or better-informed jurists or the ones
2 who have been convicted of tax crimes, are removed from the box. Dr. Phil Robert's attorney, Oscar Stilley,
3 thinks this is what happened in Dr. Phil Robert's case.

4 3.3. Not allowing the counsel (threatening with contempt) of the Citizen who is contesting the taxes to interview or 5 question the prospective jurors or the government's lawyers. Cross-examination allows biases to be uncovered.
6 This is what happened in Dr. Phil Robert's case.

7 3.4. Asking the prospective jurists to reveal their social security number prior to jury selection and investigating their 8 tax payment history. Then, only choosing jurists who have a history of paying taxes and who would be more
9 likely to get indignant about people who either don't file or don't pay income taxes, even if they aren't obligated
10 to. Having the jurists social security numbers also affords the IRS an opportunity to harass and audit them if they 11 don't rule in the government's favor.

12 4. During Trial:

13 4.1. Hiding the nature of the citizenship and residency of the accused. Remember that according to Downes v.
14 Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), citizens of the District of Columbia or the Federal Zone have no constitutional
15 rights. The court won't make it clear what the citizenship and residency of the accused is so that they can make it
16 appear that all citizens are liable to pay income taxes on all income. Go back to section 4.11 for a clarification of 17 citizenship issues

18 4.2. Fining or punishing litigants who raise issues about which the court doesn't want to address, such as:

19 4.2.1. Fraudulent ratification of the 16th Amendment ($5,000 fine currently in some federal courts for filing claims 20 regarding this issue).

21 4.2.2. Fifth Amendment issues related to taxes (putting litigants in jail for failure to file).

22 4.2.3. Government conspiracy claims related to taxation filed by citizens.

23 4.2.4. Claiming a case deals with frivolous issues when it fact it doesn't and then forcing the litigant to pay the 24 attorney fees of the government to defend against this.

25 4.2.5. Assessing the fines or fees without a due process hearing, which violates the Fifth and 14th Amendments.

26 4.3. Judges granting the IRS' frequent motion in most tax cases to dismiss a valid filing by a tax protester. This has 27 the affect of censoring the litigant and violating his First Amendment rights.

28 4.4. Not allowing (threatening with contempt) the Citizen or his counsel to discuss or reveal the law regarding income
29 taxes. Instead, trying to convince them that they must follow the judge's orders and interpretation of the law,
30 rather than revealing the actual law and letting the jurists decide both the facts and the law for themselves. This 31 gives the judge far more power than he should have.

32 4.5. Holding pro per litigants to the same standards as attorneys, which is illegal.

33 4.6. Delaying the judgment for controversial issues. For instance, in the case of William T. Conklin vs. IRS, case no.
34 89 N 1514 in the Tenth Circuit, a famous tax protester sued the government because he thought his fifth
35 amendment rights were being violated by being compelled to file and sign a tax return under penalty of perjury
36 and thereby be a witness against himself. The judge (Judge Nottingham) took SEVEN YEARS to reach a 37 decision, because he had such a difficult time reconciling the constitutional issues involved! He was probably 38 hoping he could put it off so he would retire first! The judge deviously chose to censor this judgment by making
39 it unpublished so the truth wouldn't leak out. Nevertheless, the judge also sanctioned Mr. Conklin $6,000 by 40 making him pay the IRS' legal fees, and without the ability to even litigate or challenge the fees. This he may 41 have done to discourage him from litigating further.

42 5. After trial:

43 5.1. Making cases dealing with controversial aspects of federal income taxes "unpublished". This means that after 44 there is a judgment on a controversial tax case that exposes fraud or wrongdoing of the government, the federal 45 judge ensures that the findings aren't available in most federal case databases or indexes and copies can only be 46 obtained by writing directly to the clerk of the specific court where the case was heard, and the reproduction is 47 costly and long delays in obtaining the documents are commonplace. This amounts to censorship, in violation of 48 the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which says that we have a right to speak freely and to petition the 49 government for redress of grievances. This would also imply that we have a right not to have our court case
50 regarding income taxes be censored or discriminated against from publication based on our views or the tax
51 issues we are litigating. For instance, a notable tax freedom fighter, William Conklin, filed at least six different 52 federal cases against the IRS and won several of them. The focus of his cases was related to the 53 unconstitutionality of being compelled in the process of filing income tax returns to be a witness against oneself
54 in violation of the 5th amendment. In the majority of his cases, the judges refused to publish his cases. For

1 instance, the case of Conklin vs. United States of America, No. 94-1213 in the Tenth circuit, was unpublished.
2 This kind of censorship is unconscionable!

3 6.9.4.4 Judicial Conspiracy Following Passage of 16th Amendment in 1913

4 With the definitions and historical legal background prior to the passage of the 16th Amendment (in 1913) fresh in our 5 minds, we'll now try to start answering some questions:

- 6 1. How did taxes on businesses as excise/indirect taxes which fall on the consumer evolve into direct taxes on the labor of 7 individuals (which are property) after the passage of the 16th Amendment?
- 8 2. How does the court justify a deviation from precedents already established by the U.S. Supreme Court in a way that is 9 consistent with the U.S. Constitution?
- 10 3. How did the courts distort the interpretation of the law to expand the reach of the income tax to become direct taxes on 11 citizens living outside of the federal zone (how did they "get away with it?")?

12 To answer these questions, we have to look at later cases and see how the courts redefined "excise taxes" or "indirect 13 taxes", since the following case firmly established that taxes on income allowed under the 16th Amendment are limited to 14 indirect or excise taxes:

15 "..[The 16th Amendment] .prohibited the ... power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being 16 *taken out of the category of indirect taxation to which it inherently belonged..." [in describing Brushaber v. Union Pacific
17 Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1 (1916), 17-19]

18 [Stanton v. Baltic Mining, 240 U.S. 103]

19 Most of error and distortion in the meaning of the Internal Revenue Code, and the judicial conspiracy to protect and expand
20 the income tax, it turns out, comes not from the U.S. Supreme Court, but from the federal appellate/circuit courts
21 immediately below the Supreme Court. Indirectly, the Supreme Court has contributed to the misdirected verdicts of the 22 circuit courts by refusing to hear (not granting a "writ of certiorari") to cases which relate to direct income taxes on 23 individuals. Most of that distortion, we argue, came after the passage of the 16th Amendment, and results from a
24 misapplication and misunderstanding of the Internal Revenue Code by the circuit courts. It also results indirectly from 25 voters adopting the socialist policies instituted by President Franklin D. Roosevelt during his long term in office.

26 We'll start the exposition by examining the case of Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920):

27 "After further consideration, we adhere to that view and accordingly hold that the Sixteenth Amendment does
28 not authorize or support the tax in question." [A direct tax on salary income of a federal judge]

29 This case quite clearly shows that a direct tax on the income of a federal judge is unconstitutional. The case was then 30 subsequently overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court in O'Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277 (1939). However, the 31 Supreme Court in that case declined to address whether the tax on income of federal judges was a "direct" or an "indirect"
32 tax or the nature of its constitutionality relative to the 16th Amendment, and therefore they skirted entirely the issue of 33 whether taxes on income of citizens could or should be included in "gross income". Instead, by fiat, the justices simply said
34 without any real legal analysis of facts, that the tax was constitutional because everyone regarded it as "unpopular". This,
35 of course was a cop-out and there was a long dissenting opinion that advocated a more rational view that is more consistent
36 with this document. Here's an excerpt from the findings of the court in that O'Malley case:

37 "However, the meaning which Evans v. Gore, supra, imputed to the history which explains Article III, I was 38 contrary to the way in which it was read by other English-speaking courts.²⁰⁴ The decision met wide and 39 steadily growing disfavor from legal scholarship and professional opinion. Evans v. Gore, supra, itself was 40 rejected by most of the courts before whom the matter came after that decision²⁰⁵"

41 This decision, it is to be noted, occurred during a period of depression and recovery from depression, in which Franklin
42 Roosevelt was pushing his socialist "Social Security" agenda. President Roosevelt held office for three terms, or 12 years.

²⁰⁴ The opinion is set forth in a footnote at page 160 et seq., of 3 Cranch.

1 During that time, FDR wanted to ramrod his socialist agenda (Social Security, the Federal Reserve, Income Taxes,
2 outlawing of ownership of gold coin, forced use of paper money) through Congress and the courts and get it firmly
3 entrenched in our system of government before he left office. Therefore, FDR had to “stack” the Supreme Court by 4 doubling its size from six to twelve justices. We talked about this in section 6.1 and even quoted FDR’s own words about
5 the “supreme court packing plan” in our analysis. This was unprecedented in American history and he was able to do it
6 successfully because the Constitution didn’t specify the size of the Supreme Court! The court that made the ruling above
7 was therefore a “rigged” court. This ruling was the beginning of a long string of unfavorable rulings at the federal appellate
8 level that would eventually mean the spread of the unconstitutional fraud we know today as the income tax. We’ll now
9 examine some of these circuit court cases. If you examine Supreme Court cases following Evens vs. Gore and search for 10 the word “direct tax” and “excise tax”, you will find nothing that relates to income taxes on citizens domiciled in the 50
11 union states. Consequently, when the IRS wants to defend the validity of the income tax, it usually cites Brushaber v.
12 Union Pacific Railroad as its precedent.

13 It is very important to note a fact that in the Brushaber decision, the person subject to tax was a nonresident alien principal,
14 who was receiving income from a railroad through a trustee, rather than directly. Treasury decision 2313, which was 15 published just after this decision was rendered, reveals this:

16 “..it is hereby held that income accruing to nonresident aliens in the form of interest...and dividends ..is subject
17 to the income tax imposed by the act of October 3, 1913. The responsible heads, agents, or representatives of 18 nonresident aliens...shall make a full and complete return of the income therefrom on...Form 1040...”

19 So there you have it. The Treasury Department stated that you are to file Form 1040 on behalf of your "nonresident alien 20 principal". So don't forget to do that next April 15th! This is a fact the IRS doesn't like to discuss, for obvious reasons!

21 6.9.4.5 The Federal District/Circuit Court Conspiracy to Protect the Income Tax

22 Recall that the Supreme Court declared in Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916) that the only constitutional
23 income taxes were excise taxes. The federal circuit/appellate courts, following the passage of the 16th Amendment in 1913,
24 and the Supreme Court decisions that followed, suddenly got very creative in their definitions of “excise tax” in order to fit
25 a square peg into a round hole made by the 16th Amendment. This was encouraged by the fact that the Supreme Court
26 refused to hear cases involving direct taxes on income (looked the other way). Such cases are referred to as “cert denied”.
27 However, it is an important principal of law that the fact that a cert was denied is NOT necessarily an affirmation of a
28 particular federal circuit court ruling by the Supreme Court. This lack of attentiveness by the Supreme Court in not 29 correcting errors by the circuit courts gave the circuit and district courts carte blanche authority to do anything they wanted
30 and to ignore the constitution entirely relative to income taxes. The result was a broadened application of income taxes to 31 what should have been excepted subjects, like Americans living outside the federal United States but inside the United 32 States of America. We’ll examine some of these cases to show you how the courts “legislated” the income tax by 33 redefining the word “excise”, and in some cases also boldly claiming, quite wrongfully, that the 16th Amendment
34 authorized “direct income taxes without apportionment” (see the case of U.S. v. Collins, 920 F.2d 619, 1990, mentioned in 35 section 6.4.5). In all cases, we emphasize that the devious tactics mentioned in section 6.9.4.3 “Common Manifestations of 36 the Judicial Conspiracy” apply.

37 The first case we want to look at is Simmons v. United States, 308 F.2d 160, 8/28/1962:

38 A direct tax is a tax on real or personal property, imposed solely by reason of its being owned by the taxpayer.
39 A tax on the income from such property, such as a tax on rents or the interest on bonds, is also considered a
40 direct tax, being basically a tax upon the ownership of property.²⁰⁶ Yet, from the early days of the Republic, a
41 tax upon the exercise of only some of the rights adhering to ownership, such as upon the use of property²⁰⁷ or 42 upon its transfer,²⁰⁸ has been considered an indirect tax, not subject to the requirement of apportionment. The 43 present tax falls into this latter category, being a tax upon the receipt of money and not upon its ownership.

²⁰⁶ Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 15 S. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759, on rehearing, 158 U.S. 601, 627-628, 15 S. Ct. 912, 39 L. Ed. 1108 (1895).

²⁰⁸ Fernandez v. Wiener, 326 U.S. 340, 352-355, 361-362, 66 S. Ct. 178, 90 L. Ed. 116 (1945) (estate tax on community property at death of one spouse).

1 This tax is similar to others held to be indirect. In the case which on its facts most nearly resembles the present
 2 one, Scholey v. Rew, 90 U.S. (23 Wall.) 331, 346-348, 23 L. Ed. 99 (1875), the Supreme Court upheld a federal 3 death tax, placed upon persons receiving real property from a deceased under a will or by intestate succession,
 4 against the claim that the tax was an unapportioned direct tax on property. In that case, as in the present,
 5 the tax was borne directly by the recipient, but was held to be merely upon the transfer of property. The Scholey
 6 case was by name reaffirmed in Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U.S. 41, 78-83, 20 S. Ct. 742, 44 L. Ed. 969 (1900),
 7 and by implication in New York Trust Co. v. Eisner, 256 U.S. 345, 349, 41 S. Ct. 506, 75 L. Ed. 963 (1921),
 8 both cases upholding federal estate taxes imposed, not upon the beneficiary but upon the decedent's estate. A
 9 tax upon the donor of an inter vivos gift was held to be an indirect tax in Bromley v. McCaughn, 280 U.S. 124,
 10 135-138, 50 S. Ct. 46, 74 L. Ed. 226 (1929). If a tax on giving property is indirect, so would be a tax on 11 receiving it, regardless of its source. That no distinction may be drawn between giving and receiving was 12 pointed out in Fernandez v. Wiener, 326 U.S. 340, 352-355, 361-362, 66 S. Ct. 178, 90 L. Ed. 116 (1945), 13 where the Supreme Court upheld as an indirect tax the federal estate tax on community property at the death of 14 one spouse: "If the gift of property may be taxed, we cannot say that there is any want of constitutional power to 15 tax the receipt of it, whether as a result of inheritance [citation omitted] or otherwise, whatever name may be 16 given to the tax * * *. Receipt in possession and enjoyment is as much a taxable occasion within the reach of 17 the federal taxing power as the enjoyment of any other incident of property."²⁰⁹

18 While the distinctions drawn in these cases may seem artificial, the necessity for making them stems from the 19 structure of the Constitution itself, which distinguishes between direct and indirect taxes. The Supreme Court
 20 has restricted the definition of direct taxes to the above-enumerated well-defined categories, and we have no
 21 warrant to expand them to others.

22 Even if we were to assume that the tax upon Simmons is direct, it comes within the Sixteenth Amendment, which 23 relieved direct taxes upon income from the apportionment requirement. We need look no further than the two 24 most recent Supreme Court cases in this area. In Commissioner of Internal Revenue v. Glenshaw Glass Co.,
 25 348 U.S. 426, 75 S. Ct. 473, 99 L. Ed. 483 (1955), the Court upheld the inclusion in gross income of money
 26 received by the taxpayers as punitive damages, stating that "[here] we have instances of undeniable accessions 27 to wealth, clearly realized, and over which the taxpayers have complete dominion." 348 U.S. at 431, 75 S. Ct. at 28 477. This test was specifically reaffirmed in James v. United States, 366 U.S. 213, 81 S. Ct. 1052, 6 L. Ed. 2d
 29 246 (1961), where the Court considered the taxability of embezzled money. The plunder was held to be income
 30 solely because it came into the taxpayer's possession and control and despite the fact that he had no right to it
 31 and indeed was under a legal obligation to return it to its rightful owner. This obligation to repay was deemed 32 irrelevant, for a gain "constitutes taxable income when its recipient has such control over it that, as a practical 33 matter, he derives readily realizable economic value from it."²¹⁰ As is apparent from the quoted statements, 34 and as illustrated by the diverse factual situations in these cases, it is the status in the recipient's hands of the 35 money being taxed which is the crucial factor, while the source of the money is not relevant.

36 The above case of Simmons v. United States taxed receipt of income (which in this case was a gift) by a citizen not related
 37 to the conduct of a business or trade, as an occasion for an excise/indirect tax. But we know that this violates the definition
 38 of an excise tax in Flint v. Stone Tracy (220 U.S. 107) and the other definitions of excise tax stated earlier. Interestingly,
 39 they didn't label the tax on the gift as an excise tax, but that is the only way it can be classified, based on our discussion in 40 section 5.1, where we talked about the legal types of federal taxes. Why didn't the court label the tax an excise? Because 41 then they would have to talk about Flint v. Stone Tracy and relate the event being taxed to a business transaction involving 42 sale and manufacture of commodities. Since this case didn't involve the sale or manufacture of commodities, then the court 43 couldn't uphold the tax! The case also ignores the following other issues and considerations, which are very relevant to the 44 issue of taxation:

- 45 1. Whether the income received was a result of interstate commerce or foreign commerce, as per Article I, Sections
 46 8, Clauses 1 and 3 of the Constitution, which constrain Congress' power to taxing foreign and interstate 47 commerce. These are the only taxable "sources" allowed by the Constitution. It would appear that the income in 48 question in this case here didn't cross state boundaries, and yet the issue was never addressed, because if it was,
 49 the government's ability to impose the tax would be eliminated.
- 50 2. Whether the tax was on a Citizen of the 50 union states from income earned within the state. If it was, then 26
 51 U.S.C. §862 and the source become relevant to whether the income received was taxable. If the court had 52 addressed this issue, then once again the court would not have been able to uphold the tax.

²⁰⁹ 326 U.S. at 353, 66 S. Ct. at 185. Analogous too are cases holding that a tax on the gross receipts of a business is an indirect tax, but, being a tax on business, this is more like the traditional excise tax, expressly treated by the Constitution as not direct. Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S.
 397, 410-413, 24 S. Ct. 376, 48 L. Ed. 496 (1904); Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103, 114, 36 S. Ct. 278, 60 L. Ed. 546 (1916) (alternate holding); Penn Mut. Indem. Co. v. Commissioner, 277 F.2d 16, 18-20 (3d Cir. 1960), affirming 32 T.C. 653 (1959).

²¹⁰ Rutkin v. United States, 343 U.S. 130, 137, 72 S. Ct. 571, 96 L. Ed. 833 (1952), quoted in James v. United States, 366 U.S. 213, 219, 81 S. Ct. 1052, 6

3. What "privilege" was being taxed that related to the indirect or excise tax upheld by the court. (see Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911)). According to Flint, "...it is the privilege which is the subject of the tax and not the mere buying, selling or handling of goods". Once again, if this issue was considered, the court would not have been able to uphold the tax.
4. Whether income beneficially received by Simmons was related to "the manufacture, sale, or consumption of commodities within the country" as per Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911)). This issue is clearly very relevant to the imposition of an alleged excise tax, and yet is was ignored by the court. If the court had addressed this issue, it also would not be able to sustain the indirect/excise tax being imposed.

Next, we look at the case of United States v. Collins, 920 F.2d 619, (10th Cir. 11/27/1990):

Dickstein's motion to dismiss advanced the hackneyed tax protester refrain that federal criminal jurisdiction only extends to the District of Columbia, United States territorial possessions and ceded territories. Dickstein's memorandum blithely ignored 18 U.S.C. § 3231 which explicitly vests federal district courts with jurisdiction over "all offenses against the laws of the United States." Dickstein also conveniently ignored article I, section 8 of the United States Constitution which empowers Congress to create, define and punish crimes, irrespective of where they are committed. See United States v. Worrall, 2 U.S. (2 Dall.) 384, 393, 1 L. Ed. 426, 28 F. Cas. 774 (1798) (Chase, J.). Article I, section 8 and the sixteenth amendment also empower Congress to create and provide for the administration of an income tax; the statute under which defendant was charged and convicted, 28 U.S.C. § 7201, plainly falls within that authority. Efforts to argue that federal jurisdiction does not encompass prosecutions for federal tax evasion have been rejected as either "silly" or "frivolous" by a myriad of courts throughout the nation. See, e.g., United States v. Dawes, 874 F.2d 746, 750 (10th Cir.), cert. denied, 493 U.S. 920, 107 L. Ed. 2d 264, 110 S. Ct. 284 (1989), overruled on other grounds, 895 F.2d 1581 (10th Cir. 1990); United States v. Tedder, 787 F.2d 540, 542 (10th Cir. 1986); United States v. Amon, 669 F.2d 1351, 1355 (10th Cir. 1981); United States v. Brown, 600 F.2d 248, 259 (10th Cir.), cert. denied, 444 U.S. 917, 100 S. Ct. 233, 62 L. Ed. 2d 172 (1979); Cheek, 882 F.2d at 1270; United States v. Ward, 833 F.2d 1538, 1539 (11th Cir. 1987), cert. denied, 485 U.S. 1022, 108 S. Ct. 1576, 99 L. Ed. 2d 891 (1988); United States v. Koliboski, 732 F.2d 1328, 1329-30 (7th Cir. 1984); United States v. Evans, 717 F.2d 1334, 1334 (11th Cir. 1983); United States v. Drefke, 707 F.2d 978, 981 (8th Cir.), cert. denied, 464 U.S. 942, 78 L. Ed. 2d 321, 104 S. Ct. 359 (1983); United States v. Spurgeon, 671 F.2d 1198, 1199 (8th Cir. 1982); O'Brien v. United States, 51 F.2d 193, 196, 10 A.F.T.R. (P-H) 223 (7th Cir.), cert. denied, 284 U.S. 673, 52 S. Ct. 129, 76 L. Ed. 569 (1931). In the face of this uniform authority, it defies credulity to argue that the district court lacked jurisdiction to adjudicate the government's case against defendant.

*Dickstein's argument that the sixteenth amendment does not authorize a direct, non-apportioned tax on United States citizens similarly is devoid of any arguable basis in law. Indeed, the Ninth Circuit recently noted "the patent absurdity and frivolity of such a proposition." In re Becraft, 885 F.2d 547, 548 (9th Cir. 1989). For seventy-five years, the Supreme Court has recognized that the sixteenth amendment authorizes a direct non-apportioned tax upon United States citizens throughout the nation, not just in federal enclaves, see Brushaber v. Union Pac. R.R., 240 U.S. 1, 12-19, 60 L. Ed. 493, 36 S. Ct. 236 (1916); efforts to argue otherwise have been sanctioned as frivolous, see, e.g., Becraft, 885 F.2d at 549 (Fed. R. App. P. 38 sanctions for raising frivolous sixteenth amendment argument in petition for rehearing); Lovell v. United States, 755 F.2d 517, 519-20 (7th Cir. 1984) (Fed. R. App. P. 38 sanctions imposed on pro se litigants raising frivolous sixteenth amendment contentions). Dickstein's contention that defendant was not an "individual" under the Internal Revenue Code also is frivolous. See Dawes, 874 F.2d at 750-51; United States v. Studley, 783 F.2d 934, 937 (9th Cir. 1986); United States v. Rice, 659 F.2d 524, 528 (5th Cir. Unit A 1981). His disregard of governing legal precedent is further portrayed by his reference to the "alleged ratification" of the sixteenth amendment in the face of uniform contrary authority. See, e.g., Miller v. United States, 868 F.2d 236, 241 (7th Cir. 1989); United States v. Sitka, 845 F.2d 43, 46-47 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 488 U.S. 827, 102 L. Ed. 2d 54, 109 S. Ct. 77 (1988); United States v. Stahl, 792 F.2d 1438, 1440-41 (9th Cir. 1986), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1036, 93 L. Ed. 2d 840, 107 S. Ct. 888 (1987); Sisk v. Commissioner, 791 F.2d 58, 60-61 (6th Cir. 1986); see generally United States v. Stillhammer, 706 F.2d 1072, 1077-78 (10th Cir. 1983). Argument reflecting such contemptuous disregard for established legal authority has no place within this circuit. [United States v. Collins, 920 F.2d 619, (10th Cir. 11/27/1990)]*

This case is quoted by the IRS as a reference in our Tax Protester Rebuttal on our website at <http://famguardian.org/>. This ruling has the following MAJOR and BLATANT defects:

1. It ignores the ruling of Stanton v. Baltic Mining, in referring to the Brushaber v. Union Pacific R.R., case, that income taxes are only constitutional as excise taxes, and not direct taxes:

"that the provisions of the Sixteenth Amendment conferred no new power of taxation but simply prohibited the previous complete and plenary power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation to which it inherently belonged and being placed in the category of direct taxation"

1 Instead, the U.S. v. Collins ruling says that:

2 "...the Supreme Court has recognized that the sixteenth amendment authorizes a direct non-apportioned tax
3 upon United States citizens throughout the nation, not just in federal enclaves"

4 and yet only cites ONE Supreme Court case, Brushaber, which clearly doesn't sustain their position. This is a
5 very bad precedent and bad law indeed! Brushaber claims that income taxes are constitutional as "excise
6 taxes" only, not "direct taxes". Where did the court get such nonsense? I contend that in this case they were 7 just mad at the attorney, Dickinstein, and were behaving irrationally. That was why they sanctioned him and 8 dismissed him from the court.

- 9 2. Completely ignores the fact that in the Brushaber case, the appellant was acting as an agent for a nonresident alien,
10 and NOT a citizen! But in the case of U.S. v. Collins, the appellant was a citizen, not a nonresident alien. This is a 11 completely different situation.
- 12 3. In addition, it ignores all the issues, errors, and omissions we raised in the above case of Simmons v. United States,
13 308 F.2d 160, 8/28/1962.

14 The last case we want to look at is U.S. v. Melton, 86 F.3d 1153, ruling on May 22, 1996. This case dealt with brothers
15 who owned a painting business and who evaded payment of income taxes by various highly creative means, including use
16 of cash and avoiding banks, using gold coins, and setting up foreign corporations. It's a fascinating case that has just about 17 every major tax evasion and protester element in it. We'd highly recommend reading it. Below is an excerpt from the 18 court's ruling:

19 "While courts may have offered differing views of the income tax over time, the United States Supreme Court
20 has consistently interpreted the federal income tax for 80 years. Since 1916, the Court has construed the tax as 21 an indirect tax authorized under Article I, Section 8, Clause 1 of the U.S. Constitution, as amended by the 22 Sixteenth Amendment. See Brushaber v. Union Pacific R.R. Co., 240 U.S. 1, 11, 16-19, 60 L. Ed. 493, 36 S. Ct.
23 236 (1916). Federal courts have all agreed that wages or compensation for services constitute income and that
24 individuals receiving income are subject to the federal income tax--regardless of its nature. See, e.g.,
25 Brushaber, 240 U.S. at 17; United States v. Sloan, 939 F.2d 499, 500-01 (7th Cir. 1991), cert. denied, 502 U.S.
26 1060, 117 L. Ed. 2d 110, 112 S. Ct. 940 (1992); Simmons v. United States, 308 F.2d 160, 167-68 (4th Cir.
27 1962). In short, the debate over whether the income tax is an excise tax or a direct tax is irrelevant to the 28 obligation of citizens to pay taxes and file returns. Simmons, 308 F.2d at 166 n.21 (stating that "it has been 29 clearly established that the labels used do not determine the extent of the taxing power").

30 Furthermore, the duty to file returns and pay income taxes is clear. Section 1 of the Internal Revenue Code
31 imposes a federal tax on the taxable income of every individual. 26 U.S.C. §1. Section 63 defines "taxable
32 income" as gross income minus allowable deductions. 26 U.S.C. §63. Section 61 states that "gross income
33 means all income from whatever source derived," including compensation for services. 26 U.S.C. §61. Sections 34 6001 and 6011 provide that a person must keep records and file a tax return for any tax for which he is liable.
35 26 U.S.C. §§ 6001 & 6011. Finally, section 6012 provides that every individual having gross income that 36 equals or exceeds the exemption amount in a taxable year shall file an income tax return. 26 U.S.C. §6012. The 37 duty to pay federal income taxes therefore is "manifest on the face of the statutes, without any resort to IRS
38 rules, forms or regulations." United States v. Bowers, 920 F.2d 220, 222 (4th Cir. 1990). The rarely recognized 39 proposition that, "where the law is vague or highly debatable, a defendant--actually or imputedly--lacks the 40 requisite intent to violate it," Mallas, 762 F.2d at 363 (quoting United States v. Critzer, 498 F.2d 1160, 1162 41 (4th Cir. 1974)), simply does not apply here.

42 Once again, this Appellate court ruling ignores all the same issues referenced earlier in Simmons v. United States. It
43 ignores constitutional issues such as Article I, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3, which constrain the Congress' taxing power to 44 foreign and interstate commerce, and their relation to 26 U.S.C. §861 and the 26 CFR §1.861-1 through 26 CFR §1.861-14.
45 It does not attempt to identify whether the income derives from a taxable "source". It doesn't relate the income to an 46 occasion that is appropriate to an excise, such as the sale or manufacture of commodities involving interstate or foreign 47 commerce. This is clearly a glaring error in logic and legal analysis, and yet it is allowed to stand because of a federal 48 judicial conspiracy to uphold the income tax!

49 There are many, many other cases we could discuss, but they all follow the same pattern of the two indicated above. In the 50 interest of conserving space, we won't show any others here.

51 Following the expansion of the definition of "excise taxes" by the circuit courts documented above, a number of cases were 52 heard by the federal appellate courts dealing directly with the constitutionality of the income taxes and the nature of being a
53 "direct tax". In each case, the court unfavorably "rubber stamped" the result without dealing with the constitutional issues

1 of direct vs. indirect taxes. They also failed to address the nature of the parties allegedly subject to the tax, such as whether
2 they were citizens domiciled in the 50 union states, nonresident aliens, or citizens living overseas. This simply clouded the 3 application of the income taxes even further for the average Citizen, which we believe was clearly their intent. Here are 4 two examples of such abuse by the federal appellate courts:

- 5 1. Ficalora v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 751 F.2d 85 (12/13/1984).
- 6 2. Charczuk v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 771 F.2d 471 (8/29/1985).

7 We'll first provide the ruling in the case of Charczuk v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue (771 F.2d 471), because the 8 arguments of the "taxpayer" not only were rejected by the court, but the court also sanction of attorney fees against the 9 appellant. Below is an excerpt from that case:

10 Paul E. Charczuk and Victoria Charczuk jointly filed a Form 1040 for the taxable year 1977 reflecting income 11 of $4,763.00. This amount was entered on the line for "business income" rather than on the line for "wages, 12 salaries, tips and other employee compensation." Attached to the taxpayers' return were seven Form W-2 Wage
13 and Tax Statements showing that the taxpayers received wages during 1977 totaling $12,276.00. Also attached
14 was a Schedule C for each taxpayer claiming a "net profit" of $2,668.00 for Paul Charczuk and $2,095.00 for 15 Victoria Charczuk.²¹¹ On June 9, 1980, the Commissioner sent taxpayers a notice of deficiency informing them
16 that they owed $1,148.00 in taxes for 1977 based on disallowance of all expenses claimed on Schedule C for 17 lack of verification. Subsequently, the taxpayers petitioned the Tax Court for a redetermination of the 18 deficiency. In those proceedings the taxpayers did not attempt to challenge the Commissioner's determination 19 by presenting evidence in support of their claimed deductions, but rather argued that the income tax itself was 20 invalid as a matter of law. The Tax Court granted summary judgment in favor of the Commissioner. T.C. Memo.
21 1983-433. Taxpayers appeal from this judgment claiming the Tax Court misconstrued their arguments against 22 the income tax and that its decision was contrary to law and "illogical." We affirm.

23 [...]

24 It takes little consideration to determine that the arguments presented by taxpayers with respect to these issues
25 are meritless and unreasonable. However, to forestall taxpayers' patently false claim that "the issues in this 26 case have never been addressed and answered by any Federal Article III Court" we will quote at length from 27 *the opinion of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in *Ficalora v. Commissioner of 28 Internal Revenue, 751 F.2d 85 (1984), cert. denied 471 U.S. 1005, 105 S. Ct. 1869, 85 L. Ed. 2d 162 (1985), 29 which involved taxpayers who were represented by the same Thomas J. Carley who represents the taxpayers in 30 *the instant appeal. The quoted text which follows reveals that the Second Circuit in Ficalora was responding to* 31 arguments substantially identical to those taxpayers advance in this case.

32 I. Constitutional Authority to Impose An Income Tax on Individuals

33 We first address ourselves to the appellant's contention that neither the United States Congress nor the United 34 States Tax Court possess the constitutional authority to impose on him an income tax for the taxable year 1980.
35 Appellant argues that an income tax is a "direct" tax and that Congress does not possess the constitutional
36 authority to impose a "direct" tax on him, since such a tax has not been apportioned among the several States of 37 the Union. In support of his argument, appellant cites Article 1, Section 9, clause 4 of the United States
38 Constitution which provides that:

39 "No Capitation, or other direct, Tax shall be laid, unless in Proportion to the Census or Enumeration herein 40 before directed to be taken."

41 *He also relies on the case of Pollock v. Farmers' Loan and Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 15 S. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759*
42 (initial decision), 158 U.S. 601, 15 S. Ct. 912, 39 L. Ed. 1108 (decision on rehearing) (1895), wherein the 43 United States Supreme Court held that a tax upon income from real and personal property is invalid in the 44 absence of apportionment.

45 In making his argument that Congress lacks constitutional authority to impose a tax on wages without 46 *apportionment among the States, the appellant has chosen to ignore the precise holding of the Court in Pollock,*
47 as well as the development of constitutional law in this area over the last ninety years. While ruling that a tax
48 upon income from real and personal property is invalid in the absence of apportionment, the Supreme Court
49 explicitly stated that taxes on income from one's employment are not direct taxes and are not subject to the necessity of apportionment. Pollock v. Farmer's Loan and Trust Co., 158 U.S. at 635, 15 S. Ct. at 919. Furthermore, the Sixteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, enacted in 1913, provides that:

²¹¹ Each Schedule C (entitled Profit or (Loss) from Business or Profession (Sole Proprietorship)) gave the taxpayers' name, address, social security number and the amount claimed as "net profit." To the right of the area for deductions on both schedules was the instruction "See Form-21." A "Form-21" was attached for Paul Charczuk which detailed various "subtractions" for taxes, rent, subsistence, interest, auto, telephone, utilities, supplies, dues and subscriptions from "receipts" of $6,676.00. No "Form-21" or similar explanation of calculations was attached for Victoria Charczuk.

"The Congress shall have the power to lay and collect taxes on income, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration."

Finally, in the case of New York, ex rel. Cohn v. Graves, 300 U.S. 308, 57 S. Ct. 466, 81 L. Ed. 666 (1937), the Supreme Court in effect overruled Pollock, and in so doing rendered the Sixteenth Amendment unnecessary, when it sustained New York's income tax on income derived from real property :n New Jersey. Id. at 314-15, 57 S. Ct. at 468-69. Hence, there is no question but that Congress has the constitutional authority to impose an income tax upon the appellant.

II. Statutory Authority to Impose an Income Tax on Individuals and Definition of Taxable Income

The appellant contends that "[n]owhere in any of the Statutes of the United States is there any section of law making any individual liable to pay a tax or excise on 'taxable income.'" . . . The essence of the appellant's argument is that 26 U.S.C. §1 does not impose a tax on any individual for any stated period of time; rather, it imposes a tax on an undefined: "taxable income".

Section 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (26 U.S.C.) (hereinafter the Code) provides in plain, clear and precise language that "there is hereby imposed on the taxable income or every individual . . . a tax determined in accordance with" tables set-out later in the statute. In equally clear language, Section 63 of the Code defines taxable income as "gross income, minus the deductions allowed by this chapter . . .", gross income, in turn, is defined in Section 61 of the Code as "all income from whatever source derived, including (but not limited to) . . . : (1) Compensation for services . . .". Despite the appellant's attempted contorted construction of the statutory scheme, we find that it coherently and forthrightly imposes upon the appellant a tax upon his income for the year 1980.

This appeal is frivolous. Pursuant to Rule 38 of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure, we impose on the appellants double the costs of the Commissioner.

When the costs incurred by this Court and respondent are taken into consideration, the maximum damages authorized by the statute ($500) do not begin to indemnify the United States for the expenses which petitioner's frivolous action has occasioned. Considering the waste of limited judicial and administrative resources caused by petitioner's action, even the maximum damages authorized by Congress are wholly inadequate to compensate the United States and its other taxpayers. These costs must eventually be borne by all of the citizens who honestly and fairly participate in our tax collection system. * * * (Sydnes v. Commissioner, [74 T.C. 864, 872-873 (1980), affd. 647 F.2d 813 (8th Cir. 1981)].)

Courts are in no way obligated to tolerate arguments that thoroughly defy common sense. Such conduct is permissible in our society for the very young, those attempting to make a joke or, occasionally, philosophers, but it cannot be allowed of one engaged in the serious work of a practicing attorney appearing before a court of law. Mr. Carley's conduct in this suit has been a paradigm of unreasonable behavior, and it has been exceedingly vexatious as that term is understood by the Supreme Court. See Christiansburg Garment Co. v. EEOC, 434 U.S. 412, 421, 54 L. Ed. 2d 648, 98 S. Ct. 694 (1978). (In a case arising under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Court stipulated that "the term 'vexatious' in no way implies that the plaintiff's subjective bad faith is a necessary prerequisite to a fee award against him."). Given the continued character of Mr. Carley's intransigence, justice requires that he and his clients bear the full weight of the sanctions allowed by law so that the government, and ultimately all law abiding taxpayers, will not be taxed with the expense of opposing meritless contentions such as his.

Accordingly, the decision of the Tax Court is affirmed and Paul E. Charczuk and Victoria Charczuk are ordered to pay the government double its costs on appeal. In addition, the government is ordered to submit within twenty (20) days to the court clerk, and to Thomas J. Carley, an appropriate accounting of all expenses (other than costs of the appeal) and attorneys' fees it has reasonably incurred as a result of this appeal. Thomas J. Carley may file with the court clerk a challenge to the government's accounting within ten (10) days of the government's filing only with regard to whether the expenses and fees were in fact incurred on this appeal. Upon approval of the government's accounting or any part of it by the court, Thomas J. Carley will be ordered to personally pay to the government the entire amount approved.²¹²

²¹² Courts imposing sanctions on an attorney under § 1927 must "afford the attorney all appropriate protections of due process available under the law." House Conf. Rep. No. 96-1234, 96th Cong., 2d Sess. 8, reprinted in 1980 U. S. Code Cong. & Ad. News 2781, 2783. At oral argument :n this case, Mr.

1 You will note that the court ignored all of the same issues we raised with the cases of Simmons v. United States, 308 F.2d
2 160, and U.S. v. Melton, 86 F.3d 1153. They readily identified the receipt of income as other than a “direct tax”, which
3 means that it must be an “indirect tax”. The only legitimate and constitutional type of indirect tax that it could be, as
4 authorized by the 16th Amendment, is an “excise tax”. But guess what, the court didn’t mention a word about excise taxes
5 or their applicability only to businesses. The subject of this case, however, was not a business, but a natural person. We 6 refer you again to section 5.1 and following entitled “Introduction to Federal Taxation”.

7 We hope that this section has served to emphasize the basic problem with the Internal Revenue Code that Congress is not
8 willing to address:

- 9 1. The laws are unnecessarily complex, mainly because they have to be so carefully crafted to conceal the real truth 10 that most citizens domiciled in the 50 union states with only domestic income DON’T owe tax.
- 11 2. Even most judges don’t really understand the Internal Revenue Code and don’t agree with each other on their 12 interpretation. See section 3.20.1 “Uncertainty of the Federal Tax Laws” for more interesting reading on this 13 subject.
- 14 3. The complexity and uncertainty of the Internal Revenue Code contributes significantly to a violation of “due 15 process” discussed in this and section 3.20.1 “Uncertainty of the Federal Tax Laws”. The first principle of due
16 process is that the laws are written to be clear and unambiguous enough that they can consistently be interpreted 17 and applied by citizens and the courts. An unclear law also violates the Sixth Amendment to the Constitution.

18 6.9.4.6 State Court Rulings

19 The State courts have held that the income tax is a direct property tax. This is revealed by the following cases:

20 See Eliasberg Bros. Mercantile Co. v. Grimes, 204 Ala. 492, 86 So. 56, 58 (1920); State v. Pinder, 108 A. 43, 45
21 (Del. 1919); Bachrach v. Nelson, 349 Ill. 579, 182 N.E. 909 (1932); Opinion of the Justices, 220 Mass. 613, 22 108 N.E. 570 (1915); Trefry v. Putnam, 227 Mass. 522, 116 N.E. 904 (1917); Maguire v. Tax Comm. of
23 Commonwealth, 230 Mass. 503, 120 N.E. 162, 166 (1918); Hart v. Tax Comm., 240 Mass. 37, 132 N.E. 621
24 (1921); In re Ponzi, 6 F.2d 324 (D.Mass. 1925); Kennedy v. Comm. of Corps. & Taxation, 256 Mass. 426, 152
25 N.E. 747 (1926); In re Opinion of the Justices, 266 Mass. 583, 165 N.E. 900, 902 (1929); Hutchins v. Comm. of 26 Corps. & Taxation, 272 Mass. 422, 172 N.E. 605, 608 (1930); Bryant v. Comm. of Corps. & Tax’n., 291 Mass.
27 498, 197 N.E. 509 (1935); Culliton v. Chase, 174 Wash. 363, 25 P.2d 81, 82 (1933); Jensen v. Henneford, 185
28 Wash. 209, 53 P.2d 607 (1936); State ex rel Manitowoc Gas Co. v. Wisconsin Tax Comm., 161 Wis. 111, 152
29 N.W. 848, 850 (1915); and State ex rel Sallie F. Moon Co. v. Wisconsin Tax Comm., 166 Wis. 287, 163 N.W.
30 639, 640 (1917).

31 There appears to be no dispute about the plain requirements of the Constitution that direct taxes must be apportioned and 32 that indirect/excise taxes must be uniform. Likewise as shown above, there is a line of decisional authority regarding the 33 generally accepted proposition that income is property.

34 6.9.5 2003: Federal Court Bans Irwin Schiff’s Federal Mafia Tax Book

35 Below is an article about a ban on the this country’s most famous anti-tax book published by the most famous tax protester
36 at the time, Irwin Schiff. The article was published by the We the People Foundation for Constitutional Education and 37 distributed via email on June 30, 2003.

Carley was offered an opportunity to explain why sanctions should not be imposed against him personally. This satisfies any right he may have had to a hearing on the matter. Cf. McConnell v. Critchlow, 661 F.2d 116, 119 (9th Cir. 1981).

1 On Monday, June 16, Federal District Court Judge Lloyd D. George issued a preliminary injunction banning the sale and
2 distribution of Irwin Schiff's book about the income tax titled, "*The Federal Mafia: How The Government Illegally Imposes
3 And Unlawfully Collects Income Taxes And How Americans Can Fight Back.*"

4

5 Schiff's book, which is a personal and legal examination of the income tax fraud, and includes extensive, and specific
6 quotations and analyses of Internal Revenue Code and Supreme Court rulings on the tax, was banned even though the 7 Department of Justice (which bears the burden of proof) presented no evidence and no witnesses at the April 11th
8 preliminary injunction hearing. Click Here to read the first portion of the censored book (.pdf).

9 In short, Judge George banned Schiff's book as "false commercial speech" without any specific analysis or any in-court
10 evidentiary examination establishing the "falsity" of Schiff's actual speech and by blithely ignoring the substantial body of 11 established Supreme Court constitutional law protecting free expression and publication.

12 With only an unsubstantiated claim of criminal speech asserted by a government witness (via a written declaration), Judge
13 George summarily dismissed the content of Schiff's book as "largely autobiographical, containing in large part Schiff's anti-14 tax and anti-government diatribes and theories." Of course, it appears to be lost on the court that this is the exact type of 15 speech protected by the First Amendment and -- even when intertwined with "commercial" speech -- requires the highest 16 level of examination and legal justification to censor.

17 Allen Lichtenstein, general counsel of the American Civil Liberties Union in Nevada, said he looked forward to arguing the 18 case before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. Schiff said he had done nothing wrong and would appeal. "We argued that 19 the book is not commercial speech, cannot be banned as false commercial speech and does not meet any other criteria for 20 censorship," Lichtenstein said.

21 On Tuesday June 17, The New York Times ran an article authored by David Cay Johnston about the Schiff injunction.
22 According to Schiff, Johnston makes two knowingly false statements distorting the perceived nature of the proceedings.
23 Schiff has demanded a formal retraction from the New York Times.

24 Johnston wrote, "At the court hearing, Mr. Schiff fired his lawyer after she said that she could not argue his tax claims
25 because they lacked merit." In his demand letter to the Times, Schiff points out that the transcript from the hearing makes it
26 explicitly clear that Schiff's attorney was not characterizing Schiff's legal assertions as false or lacking in any way, but 27 instead that she was effectively prohibited by the court from even raising the issues in defense of Schiff under fear and 28 threat of court sanction.

29 Analysis of the Order

30 To reach his contorted legal conclusions and to issue the preliminary injunction in favor of the IRS, Judge George ruled,
31 without any evidentiary examination or cross-examination, to conclude that Schiff's speech is false.

32 With this in mind, please note on page 4 of the Order there are five distinct, separate legal elements listed for the 33 government to successfully assert a claim for an injunction related to an "abusive tax shelter."

34 In his order however, the judge conveniently "combines" his analysis of the critical second and third statutory elements,
35 (i.e., relating to making actual "false and fraudulent statements" and the defendant's "reason to know" about their falsity)

1 together within section "B" of the Order, thereby clouding the court's grossly inadequate treatment in establishing the truth
2 or falsity of Schiff's actual speech.

3 While Section "B" contains much ado concerning Irwin's past criminal tax convictions, his failed federal appeals and 4 Schiff's extensive knowledge and expertise in Internal revenue Code, precious few words are wasted establishing the actual
5 falsity of Schiff's speech. In fact, most of the relevant language concerning the court's finding of falsity merely lists District
6 Court decisions of other victims of the IRS's nationwide attack on speech. The Court is in effect stating, "All these other
7 people had false speech concerning abusive tax shelters so Schiff's speech is too."

8 In short, to enable the government's full and unfettered dismissal of the very significant First Amendment issues raised
9 subsequently by the ACLU, Judge George quickly reaches the judicial conclusion of the "falsity" of Schiff's speech
10 (relative to abusive tax shelters) by grossly mischaracterizing Schiff's legal assertions within the context of several Supreme 11 Court cases cited that are only tangentially related to the core legal issues raised in Schiff's actual speech.

12 Example: The Court cites the 1916 Brushaber case which addressed the "right of Congress to impose income tax" [sic]. In 13 fact, Brushaber was acting as a withholding agent for a foreign corporate entity operating inside the US and was in fact,
14 under US law, liable in that capacity. This issue is not the issue raised by Schiff in the Federal Mafia.

15 According to Schiff's Federal Mafia material - if Brushaber was a natural citizen of living and working in the 50 states, his 16 personal wages would in fact be non-taxable because they don't meet the constitutional definition of "income" as defined by 17 the Supreme Court (i.e., a corporate profit or gain). It is Supreme Court decisions such as these cited in Schiff's Mafia (and 18 therefore, his alleged tax "scheme") that the Court has blindly ignored in its legal analysis.

19 The bottom line: Nowhere is there a direct rebuttal or examination of the specific legal assertions advanced by Schiff
20 in either his speech or his book. Every subsequent aspect contained in the Court's injunction is rationalized, and squarely
21 erected, upon this defective judicial premise.

22 In reality, Schiff's "abusive tax scam" is merely a detailed discussion and analysis of Internal Revenue Code, the 23 Constitution, and US Supreme Court decisions, coupled with detailed instructions on how average Americans can 24 implement the logical conclusions and reasonable inferences of those legal facts to protect their property and their rights.

25 The IRS, DOJ and now the US District Court, have failed to provide ANY specific, substantive rebuttal to ANY of the 26 specific elements of Schiff's speech - even though these elements contain the nexus of the falsity or truth of his speech, and 27 thereby are at the heart of determining the legality or criminality of the alleged "abusive tax scheme". To fail to directly 28 address the content and alleged falsity of the speech is a clear violation of due process.

29 Armed with this defective and patently self-serving judicial conclusion, the Court then begins to rebut the 1st Amendment
30 free speech issues raised in the ACLU's amicus briefs.

31 (Note: The 1st Amendment discussion begins on page 13 of the order)

32 Commercial Speech

33 Judge George summarily concludes not only that The Federal Mafia is non-protected "false" commercial speech because 34 the book is sold for money and it contains false information that might be of "selfish" economic benefit to the audience (or 35 Schiff) -- but that it should be banned because it advertises other Schiff products that naturally lead to the same alleged tax 36 "scam." I.e., as false commercial advertising, the book should be banned.

37 The judge, citing the 9th Circuit Estate Preservation case, makes the implicit point that Schiff, outside this injunction, is free 38 to continue to give tax planning advice as long as it is "legitimate" as (quote) "every honest and qualified tax consultant 39 knows."

40 Judge George, having concluded that the book constitutes "core commercial speech," (i.e. "advertising, plain and simple")
41 dismisses the tightly interwoven political content and far reaching political implications of Schiff's work and instead

1 focuses on establishing that Schiff's book is simply a contrived "soup" of false advertising and an embedded "abusive tax
2 scheme," which, of course, enjoy no protection.

3 Incitement of Imminent Lawless Acts

4 At the beginning of the section dealing with the "Incitement of Imminent Lawless Acts" (page 26) Judge George cites the 5 Brandenburg v. Ohio Supreme Court case where the court upheld that even speech advocating the violation of law was 6 protected, as long as the speech did not "incite imminent unlawful acts".

7 The Brandenburg case is the modern day constitutional litmus test for the legal banning of speech. Below is the definition
8 of the word "imminent".

9 Imminent \Im"mi*neŋt\, Imminent: it is the strongest -- it denotes that something is ready to fall or happen on 10 the instant; as, in imminent danger of one's life.*

11 1. Threatening to occur immediately; near at hand; impending; -- said especially of misfortune or peril. ``In 12 danger imminent." (Source: Webster's Revised Unabridged Dictionary, © 1996, 1998 MICRA, 13 Inc.)

14 Having already sidestepped the issue of whether filing a "zero return" constitutes an unlawful act, Judge George
15 haphazardly, and improperly, dismisses the crucial Brandenburg "test" as inappropriate in Schiff's case because the speech
16 in Schiff's book "incorporates the (tax) scheme" thereby implying that Schiff's speech is the actual crime and therefore that 17 this test need not be applied.

18 The entire nature of the Supreme Court's Brandenburg litmus test revolves around the direct incitement of "imminent"
19 lawless behavior - i.e., in the case of Brandenburg (and its supporting case citations) imminent VIOLENT behavior.
20 (Brandenburg was a Klansman engaged in inflammatory, racist speech. His speech was upheld as constitutional because he 21 merely advocated the breaking of the law.)

22 Judge George takes license in citing several sympathetic Court decisions, while choosing to ignore the direct guidance of 23 the Supreme Court regarding this crucial legal test necessary to ban speech.

24 In short, the Court makes no attempt to establish how reading a book containing a legal analysis and instructions on how to 25 file a tax return could result in anything resembling "imminent" activity of ANY type - whether lawful or not. The judge
26 seems content - as the other District tax case judges seem to be - of tolerating a mere logical relationship between this 27 "unlawful" speech and a subsequent "criminal act." With that linkage established, the "imminence" element to banning 28 speech is cleanly dismissed out of hand.

29 By this court's logic, anyone who wrote a "how-to" book containing any information that was subsequently used in a crime
30 - no matter how far removed from the alleged proximate cause -- and regardless of whether the speech was false or not - 31 could be held liable for his/her speech or writings.

32 Illegal Acts

33 In the last section of the injunction order, the judge cements his previous conclusion of the false, (and thereby criminal),
34 nature of Schiff's speech by citing a handful of free speech cases involving bomb makers, illegal drug manufacturers and 35 "hit-men" that purport to, by example and association, show how speech that leads directly to and induces specific criminal 36 conduct is not protected.

37 Of course unlike exploding a bomb or killing another human being -- which are reasonably understood to be plainly
38 criminal acts - the filing of a tax return per instructions and legal advice of a court-acknowledged tax expert that 39 specifically and plainly cites decisions of the Supreme Court and the Internal Revenue Code itself is much harder to 40 comprehend as an overt criminal act.

41 Conclusion

1 The legal arguments and carefully selected lower level court cases cited by Judge George throughout the Order clearly
2 appear strained in their effort to support a justifiable ban of Schiff's book and appear to set the stage for the Ninth Circuit to
3 deny an appeal from Schiff. The clearly protected political content of the book is outright ignored. It is obvious that the 4 government has found Schiff's speech (and many other tax "protestors") intolerable simply because the speech conveys
5 details of the income tax fraud and that they have provided methods on how to effectively contravene its effects.

6 To be sure, the banning of speech through restraining orders and like vehicles are extraordinary remedies that can be
7 implemented without a trial by jury, were designed to temporarily protect rights, property and the public tranquility at risk
8 until other legal remedies could be effected. They were never intended for the purposes of suppressing, or otherwise
9 circumventing, rightful, lawful public debates and discussions about the tax codes or the abuses of government power.

10 The extraordinary remedy of enjoining speech was never intended to replace the proper processes of due process and the 11 enforcement of laws as executed via indictments, prosecution and the judicial appeal process. The delegated and strictly 12 limited legal authority of our government to collect taxes DOES NOT, and CANNOT, ever trump the sovereign People's 13 right to free speech.

14 That the judiciary would openly sanction the use of these extraordinary legal remedies and affirmatively deny Schiff his 15 constitutionally protected right to speech while the government - for 13 years - has had the ability and resources to openly
16 pursue Schiff with full, public criminal charges for his allegedly unlawful acts - AND HAS NOT -- should not be tolerated.
17 That our media would ignore -- and even unquestioningly facilitate -- this carnage on our Constitution is deplorable.

18 In the pivotal case New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964), Justice Brandeis, is cited from his concurring opinion in 19 Whitney v. California, 274 U.S. 357, 375-376 restating the rationale behind free speech:

20 "Those who won our independence believed . . . that public discussion is a political duty, and that this should be 21 a fundamental principle of the American government. They recognized the risks to which all human institutions
22 are subject. But they knew that order cannot be secured merely through fear of punishment for its infraction;
23 that it is hazardous to discourage thought, hope and imagination; that fear breeds repression; that repression
24 breeds hate; that hate menaces stable government; that the path of safety lies in the opportunity to discuss 25 freely supposed grievances and proposed remedies, and that the fitting remedy for evil counsels is good ones.
26 Believing in the power of reason as applied through public discussion, they eschewed silence coerced by law--
27 the argument of force in its worst form. Recognizing the occasional tyrannies of governing majorities, they 28 amended the Constitution so that free speech and assembly should be guaranteed." [emphasis added]

29 Will the People silently endure these abuses? We shall see.

30 "The liberties of a people never were, nor ever will be, secure, when the transactions of their rulers may be 31 concealed from them."
32 [Patrick Henry]

33 "We are not afraid to entrust the American people with unpleasant facts, foreign ideas, alien philosophies, and 34 competitive values. For a nation that is afraid to let its people judge the truth and falsehood in an open market 35 is a nation that is afraid of its people."
36 [John F. Kennedy]

37 6.9.6 2002: Definition for "Acts of Congress" removed from Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure

38 The definition of the term "acts of Congress" was formerly an especially good means to demonstrate the very limited
39 territorial jurisdiction of the United States Courts. One place to look for that definition was in Rule 54(c) of the Federal 40 Rules of Criminal Procedure. We quoted this rule in chapters 4 and 11 of this book as a means to demonstrate the very 41 limited jurisdiction of the federal government starting in mid 2002.

42 Rule 54\(c\) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure (prior to Dec. 2002)

43 "Act of Congress" includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of 44 Columbia, in Puerto Rico, in a territory or in an insular possession."

1 Subsequently in Dec. 2002, the Federal Judiciary rewrote the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure and took the contents of 2 Rule 54 and moved it to Rule 1 of the Rules. They then removed the definition of "acts of Congress" from the definitions.
3 Below is the explanation of what they did, from the notes under Rule 1:

4 NOTES OF ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON RULES - 2002 AMENDMENT

5 Rule 1 is entirely revised and expanded to incorporate Rule 54, which deals with the application of the rules.
6 Consistent with the title of the existing rule, the Committee believed that a statement of the scope of the rules
7 should be placed at the beginning to show readers which proceedings are governed by these rules. The 8 Committee also revised the rule to incorporate the definitions found in Rule 54(c) as a new Rule 1(b).

9 ...
10 Rule 1(b) is composed of material currently located in Rule 54(c), with several exceptions. First, the reference
11 to an "Act of Congress" has been deleted from the restyled rules; instead the rules use the self-explanatory term
12 "federal statute." Second, the language concerning demurrers, pleas in abatement, etc., has been deleted as 13 being anachronistic. Third, the definitions of "civil action" and "district court" have been deleted. Fourth, the 14 term "attorney for the government" has been expanded to include reference to those attorneys who may serve as 15 special or independent counsel under applicable federal statutes. The term "attorney for the government"
16 contemplates an attorney of record in the case.

17 [See <http://www.law.cornell.edu/rules/frcrmp/NRule1.htm>]

18 Black's Law Dictionary doesn't define the term nor could we find any other definition that was as clear as the one above,
19 but now, like all the other good leads that freedom fighters have discovered, the truth has once again been covered up and
20 obscured by your deceitful public "servants" in order to perpetuate the illusion that they have more authority than the 21 Constitution gives them. Write both your Congressman and the United States Committee on the Judiciary to complain at:

23 6.9.7 1992: William Conklin v. United States

24 In this section, we'll discuss some of the incredible chicanery and legal trickery that was pulled by the federal courts in 25 conspiring with the IRS in misapplying the Internal Revenue Code to extort and oppress of the rights of a specific Citizen, 26 William Conklin. Bill is a famous tax resistance advocate who wrote a fascinating book called Why No One is Required to 27 *File Tax Returns: Reforming Tax Laws Using Our Fifth Amendment Rights.*²¹³ He runs a great website found at:

28 <http://www.anti-irs.com/>

29 Bill used his Fifth Amendment rights exclusively to litigate not having to file federal income tax returns. On his website
30 and in his book, he largely ignores the 861/source issue that is one of the two themes of this document. He has a lot of very
31 good and persuasive arguments about the Fifth Amendment, and he deadlocked the federal district courts on the income tax
32 issue for over five years because of some of the very serious constitutional questions he raised that the courts refused to deal
33 with and delayed ruling on! On his website, he states that he has won against the IRS seven times! Here are some of his 34 cases:

- 35 1. Church of World Peace, Inc. v IRS, 715 F.2d 492
- 36 2. United States v. Church of World Peace, 775 F.2d 265
- 37 3. United States v Church of World Peace, 878 F2d 1281
- 38 4. Conklin v. United States, 812 F.2d 1318
- 39 5. Conklin v. C.I.R., 897 F.2d 1032
- 40 6. Tavery v. United States, 897 F.2d 1027
- 41 7. Tavery v. United States, 897 F.2d 1027, Civ. No. 87-Z-180 (1987), USDC Colorado

42 For at least the past ten years, Bill has challenged everyone by offering at least $50,000 to the first person who can show
43 him how he can file an income tax return without violating his Fifth Amendment right to not incriminate himself! Every ²¹³ Why No One is Required to File Tax Returns, by William Conklin, 1996, Davidson Press, ISBN 189183391X.

1 time he publishes a new version of his book, he ups the ante! To date, no one, including famous Hollywood criminal
2 lawyers like Melvin Belli, has been able to satisfy his challenge! He has more than adequately made his point that direct
3 income taxes violate the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution on this basis alone! But this wasn't enough, he took the issue
4 all the way up to the Supreme Court. It was a hot potato for the Supreme Court so they denied his right to litigate the issue
5 there (violation of the First Amendment right of free speech and of ability to petition the government for redress of 6 grievances), which was another way of saying:

7 "We don't want to argue with you and we know you are right, and if people hear the truth about, we're in 8 trouble!"

9 He had to appeal to the Supreme Court because the federal district court, after a 5-year delay reaching a verdict (!), ruled
10 against him on the surface, but proved his point indirectly!

11 We don't have room here to discuss all of his cases, but here is a quote from Judge Nottingham in Bill's case of Conklin v.
12 United States, 812 F.2d 1318, which he said in open court on August 27, 1992. Remember, the issue was Bill Conklin
13 litigating to defend his right not to be compelled to incriminate himself by filing or signing an income tax return, and he 14 filed a tax return he wouldn't sign and then litigated his right not to have to pay the $500 frivolous return penalty assessed
15 by the IRS:

16 "And one of the fatal things that I—or things that you are overlooking—I will not say it is fatal, although it
17 appears to me it may be fatal—is when you do not sign a return, the reason that the tax collection system is 18 frustrated is because you are not signing under the penalty of perjury. I mean, if everybody could do what you
19 did, the tax collection system would collapse, which you know I am sure some people would argue is not a bad
20 *result. But it is not one that I am in a position to bring about."*²¹⁴

21 Are you starting to see the picture? Judge Nottingham knows it is unconstitutional but his bigger concern is that he doesn't 22 want to undermine the tax system because his job would be threatened! According to 28 U.S.C. §134(a), federal judges
23 must be on "good behavior" in order to hold office, and can be removed from office on bad behavior. Could it be that in 24 this case, declaring income taxes unconstitutional might be described by the Congress, who would impeach him, as being 25 "bad behavior"? WE THINK SO!!!

26 We'd also like to repeat some of Bill's own words from his book:

27 Notice that the judge basically told me that I could not possibly win because I would overturn the federal tax
28 system. Of course, that was the point of my lawsuit to begin with!

29 After thinking about the case for five years(!), he decided to rule against me. He took the position that the Fifth
30 Amendment does not apply to tax returns because the Fifth Amendment applies only to "compelled testimony."
31 In other words, the Fifth Amendment only applies to information that individuals are required to give to the 32 government.

33 Since I had argued that the Fifth Amendment applies to tax returns because I felt that their filing was compelled
34 by the penal provisions of the law, it is clear that Judge Nottingham took the position that individuals are not 35 required to give information to the government on the 1040 returns (or, in other words, he was talking like the 36 IRS talks by saying that filing is "voluntary"), and that is why the Fifth Amendment cannot be applied.

37 The Court Rules in Opposition to the U.S. Supreme Court

38 Judge Nottingham had to rule directly against the position of the Supreme Court in Garner vs. U.S., supra.
39 Remember, the Garner Court took the position that information on tax returns is "compelled testimony" for 40 purposes of the Fifth Amendment.

41 Furthermore, Judge Nottingham also accused me of taking a blanket Fifth Amendment position, even though I
42 certainly had not done that. In fact, I had completely filled out the return and provided supporting 43 documentation and paid the tax that I voluntarily self-assessed. The Supreme Court took the position that if an 44 individual so much as even admits to having books and records, he waives the Fifth Amendment protections of 45 *his rights because the Fifth Amendment does not apply to documents, it only applies to testimony.*²¹⁵ Judge

²¹⁴ Why No One is Required to File Tax Returns, by William Conklin, 1996, Davidson Press, ISBN 189183391X, p 36.

²¹⁵ See U.S. vs. Doe, 104 S.Ct 1237(1984).

1 Nottingham also ruled that "Plaintiff has wholly failed to persuade me that truthful completion of the IRS Form
2 1040 or any related forms would tend to incriminate him."

3 The Judge Answers a Question I Did Not Ask

4 The judge answered a question that I did not ask. How could the judge know if a piece of information would
5 incriminate me? There is no way either of us could know that! But I was not arguing that I might incriminate
6 myself. I was arguing that I could not be required to waive my Fifth Amendment protections of my rights. As a 7 layman, there is no way I could be presumed to know if a piece of information would be incriminating or not.
8 His opinion duly impressed me again as to how tricky the courts can be in their "Alice in Wonderland"
9 language.

10 I appealed the case to the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals. The Tenth Circuit upheld the lower Court and thus 11 also took a position exactly opposite to the position taken by the Supreme Court in the Garner case. The circuit
12 court judges held that information on a tax return is not compelled, and the judges also accused me of taking a 13 blanket Fifth Amendment position even though I had answered all the questions.

14 I could not believe it! It was as if the court had not even looked at my return! Then the Tenth Circuit Court
15 sent the case back to the lower court for any further recommendations by Judge Nottingham. The government
16 seized the opportunity to ask Judge Nottingham to order me to pay the amount it estimated it had cost the IRS in 17 attorney time to respond so my complaint. I was amazed when the attorneys for the IRS submitted a $6,000 bill
18 for their time! I was really flabbergasted when Judge Nottingham assessed me the entire amount—this for 19 raising the "frivolous" argument of law that individuals are required to waive their Fifth Amendment rights 20 when they file tax returns!

21 For me, the judge's actions underscored the unfair bias of the courts against someone who is challenging the 22 incongruities of our income tax laws. Think about the contradictions in this scenario: The judge was saying
23 that this was an obviously frivolous issue—an issue that even I, a layman, would immediately realize could 24 quickly be defeated. Yet when the government submitted a $6,000 bill for the time that it required for two 25 professional attorneys to defeat my position, the judge accepted their bill and the many hours it represented 26 without question, and considered it appropriate to pass it along to me in its entirety!

27 I Appeal to the Supreme Court

28 I guess I should have been grateful that the judge did not add his time to my bill, too. It took him five years to 29 evaluate my "easily understood as frivolous even by the layman" argument! Of course, I appealed once again, 30 this time on the issue of the newly-imposed $6,000 worth of sanctions. Unfortunately, the Supreme Court was 31 too busy with other far more important issues. It decided to not even consider my objection to the $6,000 32 sanction.

33 Putting aside my outrageous $6,000 fine, do you now understand why the IRS continually refers to the filing of 34 tax returns as voluntary? The IRS knows that if it stated that an individual is required to file tax returns, a
35 Fifth Amendment confrontation would be created, so the IRS enforces the idea that tax returns are indirectly
36 required. The IRS requires you to volunteer, and then punishes you if you chose not to volunteer. (Did I just 37 hear you say that you feel like Alice in Wonderland, trying to tie the Queen down to fixed definitions of words?)

38 His book is really fascinating and we highly recommend it! You can order it from his website. After you read his book,
39 you will probably be as mad as I was at the IRS. Reading his book was one of many reasons I became so committed to 40 writing this book! His book didn't tell enough of the story and I felt people needed to hear "the rest of the story", as Paul 41 Harvey likes to say.

- 42 Among some of the many unethical, immoral, and frivolous tactics the IRS and the courts used against Bill in litigating his 43 case were:
- 44 1. The judge hearing the case had a conflict of interest with eliminating the income tax and refused to recuse himself or 45 address the issue of recusing himself for cause.
 - 46 2. The IRS requested and the court agreed to sanction Mr. Conklin with significant legal fees for defending his rights (a 47 violation of his First Amendment right of free speech and his right to petition the government for redress of 48 grievances). This, in effect, amounts to penalizing someone for the exercise of a right, which we said and the Supreme 49 Court has also said, is unconstitutional.
 - 50 3. The federal court refused to publish his cases, which is to say that they wouldn't allow his cases to go into the case law
51 databases so other people could read about them. This is another First Amendment violation.
 - 52 4. The court delayed ruling on the case for five years without explanation!

1 5. They accused Mr. Conklin of litigating frivolous issues. Unbelievable!
2 6. They overruled the Supreme Court!
3 7. The Supreme Court refused to hear the appeal (denied his writ), which was a death sentence for him.

4 Now do you understand the “judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax” that we are talking about? It’s pathetic and
5 disgusting!! Judge Nottingham should have been criminally prosecuted for his conduct (and his obvious conflict of 6 interest) in this case with all the claims listed in section 5.8 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008 (entitled 7 “Basis for Claims/Redress Against the Government Involving Wrongful Taking of Taxes”)!

8 6.9.8 1986: 16th Amendment: U.S. v. Stahl, 792 F.2d 1438 (1986)

9 [Defendant] Stahl's claim that ratification of the 16th Amendment was fraudulently certified constitutes a 10 political question because we could not undertake independent resolution of this issue without expressing lack 11 of respect due coordinate branches of government...."
12 [U.S. v. Stahl, 792 F.2d 1438 (1986)]

13 This case was a major scandal for the Federal appellate court. The defendant Stahl presented credible evidence that the 16th
14 Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was fraudulently claimed to have been ratified by the Secretary of State, Philander
15 Knox, in 1913. The court refused to deal with the issue and ignored all the evidence presented. Instead, they said it wasn't 16 their business to deal with the issue. Congress said the same thing. This leads to the conclusion that there is a federal 17 judicial (as well as a Congressional) conspiracy to protect the income tax.

18 6.9.9 1938: O'Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277²¹⁶

19 The judges' actions with regard to their own salaries provide the evidence that they cooperated with those in the legislative 20 and executive branches of government. Their conduct is evidence of concealing the illegal kickback program. The 21 executive and legislative branches of government must now depend on Federal judges to keep the illegal kickback
22 programs as a source of income to the U.S. Treasury.

23 Had the Federal judges fought the legal issue of their basic rights as an employee the Act of 1862 would have fallen and the 24 "individual income tax" as enforced today would not exist. There is no lawful way it can be deemed that a Federal 25 Government employee agrees in advance to an employment agreement where the conditions of the kickback changes at the 26 discretion of Congress or anyone else. Treaties cannot be broken. This results in the kickback being legal in part, and in 27 part illegal. The kickback a Federal Government employee agrees to when he/she first takes a job with the Federal 28 Government is legal, but, when changes unilaterally made by Congress create a higher kickback the portion which 29 constitutes the change is illegal. The illegal portion is a debt obligation which the Federal Government employee is forced 30 to discharge. Being forced to pay a debt obligation constitutes involuntary servitude. You cannot agree in advance to 31 involuntarily serve the Federal Government (or anyone else). To force someone to do so is to ignore the laws under the 32 First, Fifth, and Thirteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

33 To show that the Federal Supreme Court Justices actually cooperated with the legislative and executive branches of 34 government in bringing the President and judges taking office after June 6, 1932, under the Federal kickback program, even 35 though they avoided impairment of their own employment contracts, let's look at what they said in 1938 when they used
36 Supreme Court Chief Justice Taney's 1863 letter to the Secretary of the Treasury. Following are several excerpts from the 37 Taney letter as used in O'Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277 (1939):

38 At page 288. The Act in question, as you interpret it, diminishes the compensation of every judge three percent,
39 and if it can be diminished to that extent by the name of a tax, it may in the same way be reduced from time to 40 time at the pleasure of the legislature.

41 The justices know the law requires equal treatment. They know the U.S. Constitution prohibits the diminishment of 42 everyone's compensation for services by any means other than an agreement entered into on a voluntary basis prior to 43 employment. They also know Art. III, Sec. 1, which prohibits the diminishment of compensation of Federal judges, was 44 placed into the Constitution of the United States to keep the employment agreements of Federal judges separate from other

²¹⁶ Adapted from IRS Humbug, Frank Kowalik, 1991, pp. 27-33.

1 Federal Government employment agreements so that all Federal judges could answer any legal question regarding labor
2 contracts other than their own with objectivity in mind. They are no longer capable of reviewing violations of Federal
3 employment agreements or any issue with regard to the Federal kickback program as a disinterested third party, making
4 their participation divisive and their opinions, extended as case law, oppressive upon persons who are not Federal 5 Government employees.

6 Though those who constructed the U.S. Constitution probably did not anticipate a Federal kickback program, the Supreme
7 Court Justices in 1862 understood section 86 for what it was and chose to act only to prevent their own employment
8 agreement from being impaired. They could have made their contracts "from time to time at the pleasure of the 9 legislation." BY the statement of Justice Taney in 1863, it also can be assumed justifiably that the Justices knew of the plan
10 of Congress to force it on the balance of society by belief. For this belief to be established and sustained, the cooperation of 11 Federal judges was required and gained. This is documented by their conduct and recorded opinions.

12 The "income" kickback program changes at the pleasure of Congress. And, as we now know, all persons (whether working 13 in the private sector or for a government entity) have been forced into the Federal Government's illegal kickback program.

14 O'Mally opinion at pg. 288:

16 Constitution. Its duties and powers are specifically set forth, and are of a character that requires it to be 17 perfectly independent of the two other departments, and in order to place it beyond the reach and above even 18 the suspicion of any such influence, the power to reduce their compensation is expressly withheld from 19 Congress, and excepted from their powers of legislation.

20 Note that they avoided using the term "powers of taxation." The justices knew the legislation they were discussing was not 21 a "tax" (direct or indirect).

22 The Judiciary's independence would have been secured had they objected to the law on the legal issue of civil rights that 23 apply to all in society, namely the violation of the Fifth Amendment by illegal, unilateral impairment of existing 24 employment contracts through a forced debt obligation which results in the deprivation of property without due process of 25 law. Also, the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution is violated when no choice is provided--when a person is deprived 26 of freedom of expression as to the changes in his employment agreement.

27 Congressmen, most being lawyers, knew they had no lawful right to use the power of their elected position to arrange for 28 the deprivation of property under the pretense of law; and the IRS and all other Federal Government employees are on 29 notice as to what is includible and what is not includible in "gross income" by the I.R. Code and Regulations. To control 30 the property of natural persons not includible in "gross income" through the force of undue influence not only violates the 31 Constitution and laws of the United States but those of the states as well. The enforcement of the debt obligation created in 32 this fashion is prohibited by civil rights laws and brings up questions of conspiracy with intent to defraud (subjects that will 33 be discussed later). For now, back to Justice Taney's letter discussed in the O'Malley opinion.

34 At pg. 288. "Language could not be more plain than that used in the Constitution. It is moreover one of its 35 most important and essential provisions. For the articles which limit the powers of the legislative and executive 36 branches of the government, and those which provide safeguards for the protection of the citizen in his person
37 and property would be of little value without a judiciary to uphold and maintain them, which was free from 38 every influence, direct or indirect, that might be possibility in times of political excitement warp their 39 judgments."

40 Here the Chief Justice Taney admitted, and subsequent Justices concur, that they knew their duty was to protect the citizen
41 in his person and property. Still, they chose to ignore that duty and protect only their own person and property. By choice, 42 they indirectly stated that they person and property of all other Federal Government employees was not entitled to 43 protection from such deprivation.

44 When the Justices did not fight the 1862 law on the primary civil rights legal issue, they permitted illegal impairment of all
45 other Federal Government employment contracts and permitted debt obligations to be forced upon all Federal Government
46 employees but themselves. These Supreme Court Justices proved their judgment could be influenced and controlled by 47 people in the other branches of government, and they paved the way for the cooperation between all Federal judges and

1 employees of the IRS, the Justice Department, and members of Congress. By the continued conduct of cooperation in
2 concealing the illegal nature of the kickback program, U.S. judges provide evidence that they chose NOT to uphold their 3 duty as the branch of government created as a check and balance on the executive and legislative branches of government.
4 Their duty is to assume that government under the law exists.

5 Getting back to the O'Malley opinion, pages 288-289, we see Justice Taney's letter said:

6 Having been honored with the highest judicial station under the Constitution, I feel it to be more especially
7 my duty to uphold and maintain the constitutional rights of that department of the government, and not
8 by any act or word of mine, leave it to be supposed that I acquiesce in a measure that displaces it from the 9 independent position assigned it by the statesmen who framed the Constitution; and in order to guard against
10 any such inference, I present to you this respectful but firm and decided remonstrance against the authority you
11 have exercised under this act of Congress, and requires you to place this protest upon the public files of your 12 office as the evidence that I have done everything in my power to preserve and maintain the Judicial 13 Department in the position and rank in the government which the Constitution has assigned to it.
14 [emphasis added]

15 Here the Federal Judges state they are concerned with upholding the Constitutional "rights" of the Judicial Department. A 16 government entity does not have rights--it has duties. Hence, to protect such rights is a subjective position which violates 17 the judges' duty to be objective.

18 Those who accept jobs with the government have the duty to uphold the rights of all under the laws of the Constitution of 19 the United States. Federal judges would have complied with their duty if they had fought for their contractual rights on the 20 general civil rights that all persons have, rather than claim a special privilege status, they would have upheld their personal 21 rights and secured the rights of all others at the same time. Hence, they did not do everything in their power to maintain the 22 independence of the Judicial branch of government. Indeed, they did everything in their power to ultimately make the other 23 branches of government dependent on them.

24 These Justices set the standard for all Federal judges. To this day Federal judges compromise their independence when 25 they permit the use of U.S. courtrooms for the illegal enforcement of the IRS service (the imposition of illegal kickback 26 programs upon persons in society).

27 Continuing with what the O'Malley Court said at pg. 289:

28 The letter of the Chief Justice was not answered and, at his request, the Court, May 10, 1863, ordered the letter
29 entered on its records. In 1869, the Secretary of the Treasury requested the opinion of Attorney General
30 Ebenezer Rockwood Hoar as to the constitutionality of the Act construed to extend to judges' salaries. He 31 rendered an opinion in substantial accord with the views expressed in Chief Justice Taney's protest. 13
32 Op.A.G. 161. Accordingly, the tax on the compensation of the President and or judges was discontinued and 33 the amounts therefore collected from them were refunded--some through administrative channels; others
34 through action of the court of claims and ensuing appropriations of Congress. See Wayne v. U.S., 26 C.Cl.
35 274, 290; 27 Stat. 306.

36 The U.S. judges' compensation for the performance of personal services, just like all other employees, is not subject to a
37 law which impairs the obligation of the agreement of employment. However, as a result of Justice Taney's letter, you can 38 see that the U.S. judges were placed in a class, among citizens, above all others. Their right not to be forced to accept an 39 obligation that does not exist in law, or by employment agreement, was observed. Violation of the civil rights of all other
40 Federal Government employees was permitted to stand, and the U.S. judges actively participated in these violations by 41 concealment.

42 By claiming and receiving special status, Federal judges provided power that was implied and used by the IRS that does not
43 exist under law. The limit of IRS power is to administer to the return of income disbursed to Federal Government 44 employees as a result of their employment agreement.

45 Only through false belief can IRS employees continue to force their will upon all natural persons (Federal Government 46 employees as well as persons working in the private sector and for other governmental entities) by imposing conditions
47 based upon vague laws passed by Congress. Vague laws are enacted because lawyers in our society permit their use by not 48 challenging them.

1 At pages 289, 290 the O'Malley court went on to say:

2 In 1889, Mr. Justice Miller, a member of the Court since 1862 said:

3 "The constitution of the United States has placed several limitations upon the general power [of taxation],
4 and...some of them are implied. One of its provisions is that neither the President of the United States (Art. II,
5 Sec. 1), nor a judge of the Supreme or inferior courts (Art. III, Sec. 1), shall have his salary diminished during 6 the period for which he shall have been elected, or during his continuance in office. It is very clear that when
7 Congress, during the late [Civil] war, levied an income tax, and placed it as well upon the salaries of the 8 President and the judges of the courts as those of other people, that it was a diminution of them to just 9 that extent." [emphasis added]

10 These judges had a duty to declare the law unconstitutional instead of arranging for special privileges. Constitutional
11 restrictions made it equally unlawful for the compensation of all Federal Government employees to be diminished under the 12 pretense of law when it was in fact a unilateral employment agreement change. The conduct of the Federal judges was 13 taken by Congress and the IRS to imply they had power to pave the way for the illegal Federal kickback programs
14 manifested through the filing of a "U.S. Individual Income Tax Returns." The O'Malley case was decided by the Supreme 15 Court in 1938, four years before the enactment of the Victory Tax which was used to infer that an "income tax" had been 16 imposed upon the compensation everyone receives in exchange for their labor.

17 The intent of the Federal judges to cooperate with the legislative and executive branches of government in 1862 to start the 18 Federal kickback programs was just as clear by their conduct as is the conduct of Federal judges today. Today, the intent of 19 the Federal judges is to cooperate in perpetuating the false belief that the IRS has uninhibited power over a person's liberty
20 and property. Though maliciously unlawful, the results of that power is real. The evidence is in the fear of the IRS which 21 exists among the U.S. public.

22 The I.R. Code provides the full extent of the IRS power. It is notice to IRS employees and judges of just what is and what
23 is not includible in "gross income" under Subtitle A of the I.R. Code, and will be revealed to you. While most IRS
24 employees hold jobs so limited in scope they would not be cognizant of their illegal activities, Federal judges and lawyers
25 have no excuse. U.S. judges have placed themselves in a "Catch 22" situation. If they allow a Federal Court to be misused
26 in order to force an illegal kickback on property not includible in "gross income" or aid in depriving persons of their liberty
27 by misuse of laws, they are acting illegally. If they claim ignorance of who is subject to the I.R. Code laws and what 28 property is includible in "gross income," they are admitting they do not know the law. Either way they confess they are not 29 competent to retain their jobs.

30 6.9.10 1924: Miles v. Graham, 268 U.S. 501²¹⁷

31 When Congress passed section 213 of the Revenue Act of 1918, Federal judges were not willing to be made a party to the 32 Federal Government's kickback schemes and avoided impairment of their employment contracts by using their judicial 33 power see Evans v. Gore, [253 U.S. 245 (1920) and Miles v. Graham, 268 U.S. 501 (1924)], expressed in opinions. In the 34 Miles v. Graham, at page 509, the Justices said of the 1918 Act:

35 ...No judge is required to pay a definite percentage of his salary, but all are commanded to return, as a part
36 of "gross income", the compensation received as such" from the United States. From the "gross income"
37 various deductions and credits are allowed, as for interest paid, contributions or gifts made, personal
38 exemptions varying with family relations, etc., and upon the net result assessment is made. The plain purpose
39 was to require all judges to return their compensation as an item of "gross income," and to tax this as 40 other salaries. This is forbidden by the Constitution.

41 In this opinion, the Justices were describing the return of income, or kickback, and its enforcement with regard to existing 42 employment agreements. The statement made that this is forbidden by the Constitution was certainly correct, the Justices
43 just neglected to say in positive, direct and clear language that it actually applied to all Federal government employees.
44 Treating all salaries in this manner, including that of the judges, is "forbidden by the Constitution."

45 The Justices again claimed only the exemption of their salaries from this statute because of special status during their term
46 of office. In stating the kickback is not a fixed amount, but an amount that depends upon the deductions and credits

²¹⁷ Adapted from IRS Humbug, Frank Kowalik, 1991, pp. 23-24.

1 allowed, they confirmed the prediction of Justice Taney in his letter of 1863 that the compensation agreed to "may in the 2 same way" [under the pretence of law] "be reduced from time to time at the pleasure of the legislature..."

3 6.9.11 1915: Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad, 240 U.S. 1²¹⁸

4 The power of the IRS is restricted to the U.S. Government's income that is from within the employment agreement between 5 the Federal Government and its employee. People NOT employed by the Federal Government are not required to include
6 the gross income they earn for personal services in "gross income" under the I.R. Code. Doing so on a "U.S. Individual
7 Income Tax Return" does not make income not includible in gross income under subtitle A of the I.R. Code includible in 8 the legal kickback program. The U.S. Government is powerless to lawfully lay and collect a kickback on such income in 9 the name of "tax." You have the right to surrender control of your personal income, but no IRS scheme can lawfully collect 10 it without your cooperation.

11 By section 7701(a)(31), Congress placed the burden upon the IRS, the Justice Department, and the U.S. judges not to 12 include income that is not includible in gross income under subtitle "A". All Federal Government employees are on notice
13 that property which is foreign to the U.S. Government is not includible in "gross income" under the I.R. Code. This notice
14 places a duty on the Federal Government employees to be certain only income belonging to the U.S. Government is 15 returned.

16 Sec. 7701(a)(31). Foreign estate or trust. The terms "foreign estate" and "foreign trust" mean an estate or 17 trust, as the case may be, the income of which from sources without the United States which is not effectively
18 connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income
19 under subtitle A." [emphasis added]

20 One's conduct produces income when employed with a source of income. The material element is the identity of the 21 employer. In the U.S. Codes the term, "without the United States" means without the U.S. Government, and "within the 22 United States" means within the U.S. Government. One's conduct cannot be effectively connected with the performance of 23 personal services with a place, only a source of income can pay one. The place or geography is immaterial. The U.S.
24 Codes identify geographical boundaries with the term "outside" or "inside" the United States. Congress shows intent to 25 control us by use of vagueness when such similar phrases are used to express entirely different meanings.

26 By virtue of the definition of "foreign estate or trust," the burden, the duty, is upon Federal Government employees not to 27 include income that is not includible. However, the conduct of the Federal Government employees causes the burden to be 28 switched to each person to defend life, liberty, and property (including labor). Only with knowledge can one place the 29 burden where it belongs--on the Federal Government employees.

30 The point being made now is that only when one has entered into an employment agreement within the U.S. Government is 31 remuneration for personal services "effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States."

32 Any income not effectively connected with a trade or business within the U.S. Government contains no kickback due to the 33 U.S. Government because it is not includible in "gross income" under subtitle A of the I.R. Code. To force a kickback on 34 income that is not includible in "gross income" is to tax such income directly, making it mandatory for the U.S.
35 Government to observe the constitutional restrictions on direct taxation.

36 In 1915 the Supreme Court recognized the effect enforcement would have in converting what is called "income tax" into a 37 direct tax when they said:

38 Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1, 16, 17 (1915)

39 Moreover, in addition, the conclusion reached in the Pollock Case did not in any degree involve holding that 40 income taxes generically and necessarily came within the class of direct taxes on property, but, on the contrary,
41 *recognized the fact that taxation on income was in its nature an excise entitled to be enforced as such unless 42 and until it was concluded that to enforce it would amount to accomplishing the result which the 43 requirement as to apportionment of direct taxation was adopted to prevent, in which case the duty would 44 arise to disregard form and consider substance alone,..." [emphasis added]

²¹⁸ Adapted from IRS Humbug, Frank Kowalik, 1991, pp. 53-55.

1 The justices in the Brushaber case basically agreed with the justices in the 1895 Pollock case that generically the "taxation
2 on income was in its nature an excise," meaning all excise taxes are in their nature a tax on income. This is exactly what I
3 was getting at earlier when describing the power of everyone to tax income and that a tax is only direct when there is no
4 choice with regard to becoming effected by it. The justices of both the Pollock and Brushaber cases knew taxation was not
5 the true issue of the "income tax" enacted by Congress. The true issue being the effect on a person's labor when to enforce 6 income tax on property "would amount to accomplishing the result which the requirement as to apportionment of direct
7 taxation was adopted to prevent, in which case the duty would arise to disregard the form and consider substance." This
8 statement indicates that if the issue were properly presented, the U.S. Courts would have to acknowledge that the kickback
9 in the name of Federal "income tax" is legally enforceable only on income received as a result of an employment agreement
10 within the U.S. Government as the U.S. Government has the right to enforce the return of its own income. All other
11 income is NOT INCLUDIBLE IN GROSS INCOME UNDER SUBTITLE A OF THE I.R. CODE and the IRS has no
12 jurisdiction over such property. With the IRS jurisdiction restricted to U.S. Government property it is legally impossible 13 for them to sustain any action in court (civil or criminal) with regard to any other property.

14 6.9.12 Conclusions

15 For all the above reasons and using the examples cited in this section, it is clear that there has been a significant 16 contribution of the judiciary to protecting and expanding the operation of the income tax and make it apply to subjects it
17 was never intended, in violation of the U.S. Constitution and of the several rights of citizens. That makes federal judges 18 who participate candidates for prosecution under the following criminal laws, all of which carry heavy penalties:

- 19 1. They are part of a "continuing financial crimes enterprise" (18 U.S.C. §225)
- 20 2. Extortionists who "entice citizens into peonage" to the IRS (see 18 U.S.C. §1581; Thirteenth Amendment; 197 U.S.
21 207, 215 (slavery for indebtedness).
- 22 3. Are the subject of a massive conflict of interest (see 28 U.S.C. §455).
- 23 4. Are perpetrators of fraud (see 18 U.S.C. §1018).
- 24 5. Are committing blackmail by threatening prison time and fines (see 18 U.S.C. §873).
- 25 6. Are criminally encouraging the IRS to mail threatening communications (see 18 U.S.C. §876).
- 26 7. Are involved in extortion (see 18 U.S.C. §872)
- 27 8. Are encroaching on federally and constitutionally protected rights to property and liberty and the pursuit of 28 happiness (see 18 U.S.C. §245)
- 29 9. Are involved in "a conspiracy against rights" (see 18 U.S.C. §241)
- 30 10. Are "Engaging in monetary transactions in property derived from specified unlawful activity" (see 18 U.S.C.
31 §1957)

46 6.10.1 Legal Dictionary Definitions for "United States"

1 We looked at five different legal dictionaries and a Collegiate dictionary for the term “United States”. Here is a list of the 2 legal dictionaries we examined:

- 3 1. Bouvier’s Law Dictionary, Revised Sixth Edition, 1856.
- 4 2. Law Dictionary, Barron’s, Copyright 1996, ISBN 0-8120-3096-6.
- 5 3. Merriam-Webster’s Dictionary of Law, Copyright 1996. (<http://dictionary.lp.findlaw.com/>)
- 6 4. Black’s Law Dictionary, Seventh Edition, Copyright 1999, ISBN 0-314-24130-2.
- 7 5. Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, Copyright 1990, ISBN 0-314-76271-X.

8 Interestingly, only ONE of these dictionaries identified the definition of the legal term “United States”, and this edition was 9 out of print after 1999! Recall that we said in section 3.12.1.23 that the definition of “United States” is a very important
10 key to understanding the trick that Congress has played on the American people with the income tax. Even more
11 interesting is that the Sixth Edition of Black’s Law Dictionary was the only one of the above which properly and 12 completely defined the term “United States”, and even that definition was removed from the Seventh Edition of the same
13 dictionary by the publisher, in an apparent effort to further conceal the truth about the limited jurisdiction of our federal 14 government. If the average American understood that there are actually THREE independent definitions for the term
15 “United States” as ruled by the united states supreme Court in Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945), then a 16 lot more people we believe would better understand the very limited application of the federal and state income tax statutes.
17 If they understood that the term used in the Internal Revenue Code for “United States” actually means the District of 18 Columbia, then they would understand that they are NOT residents of the [federal] United States, but instead are 19 residents of the United States of America. This is the foundation of the idea that the IRC is “special law”. As we pointed 20 out in section 1.11.3 entitled “How Come my Accountant or Tax Attorney Doesn’t Know This”, it seems quite clear to us
21 that there are very good reasons why your attorney would claim he didn’t know this. Here is a summary of just a few of 22 those reasons:

- 23 1. Lawyers make money by litigating rather than settling.
- 24 2. The way to encourage litigation is to put the most assets and property possible at legal risk, or at least to fool people 25 into thinking they are at risk.
- 26 3. There are two main ways to get the average person to put their assets at legal risk:
 - 27 3.1. Getting a marriage license from the state. Notice we didn’t say getting married, because you can get married 28 without a marriage license from the state, and instead have a prenuptial agreement and a private wedding where 29 the priest doesn’t sign any kind of marriage license.
 - 30 3.2. Owing taxes to the government, who incidentally own the courts and love to use their own home turf to steal and 31 extort tax money out of the average citizen.
- 32 4. Lawyers therefore have a financial interest to make you believe that your assets are at risk by making you think that 33 you owe income taxes.
- 34 5. If no one owed income taxes, we would need probably 1/2 as many lawyers (and accountants) as we have now and the 35 few that remained would charge less for their services because they would be in far less demand. The following fields 36 of law would see drastic cuts:
 - 37 5.1. Probate attorneys.
 - 38 5.2. Tax attorneys.
 - 39 5.3. Legislators and legislative analysts.
- 40 6. Can you see why the American Bar Association and most lawyers wouldn’t want to put the definition of “United 41 States” in any of the legal dictionaries?

42 We would venture to say that probably 70% of attorneys, after you tell them the correct definition of “United States”,
43 would claim that they didn’t know the proper legal definition or even what the supreme Court said was the definition.
44 Lawyers are just as fallible as the rest of us. We would also venture to say that even the ones who do know the correct
45 definition and who are familiar with the supreme Court’s definition of the term would never admit to it because it would 46 undermine their profession! Furthermore, about the same percentage of attorneys don’t know that most Americans actually 47 have dual citizenship (federal and state), and what the rights are of each type of citizen.

48 After we examined four contemporary legal dictionaries in vain for a definition of the term “United States”, then we went 49 to Webster’s Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, 1983, Merriam-Webster, p. 1291 and found the following definition:

1 "United States (1617) a federation of states esp. when forming a nation in a usu. specified territory (advocating
2 a United States of Europe)."

3 Even the non-legal college dictionary doesn't properly define the term "United States"! Is it any wonder that most 4 Americans don't even know what it means and are deceived into paying income taxes because of their ignorance(?) ...they
5 couldn't look up the definition of the term even if they really wanted to know, which most of them don't anyway! The only
6 way to eliminate this kind of ignorance is to either read this book or to look up the definition on the Internet by reading 26
7 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9). We encourage you to do both, or you will be victimized because of your own ignorance.

8 6.10.2 The Taxability of Wages and Income Derived from "Labor" Rather than "Profit" as Described in CLE 9 Materials

10 We looked through ten different student manuals and reference books addressing Federal Taxation at several law 11 bookstores and a law university bookstore for clarification and explanation of the taxability of the following:

- 12 1. Wages.
- 13 2. Labor.
- 14 3. Compensation for "personal services."
- 15 4. Salaries.

16 Interestingly, NONE of the over ten federal taxation books and dictionaries and other Continuing Legal Education (CLE)
17 materials addressed ANY of the following:

- 18 1. Wages as "property".
- 19 2. Income taxes only applying to "profit" and the nature of profit in the context of exchanging labor for wages.
- 20 3. The right to labor as a "common right" that cannot be infringed, regulated, or penalized by the government.
- 21 4. The relationship between graduated taxes on wages and slavery, or how such taxes might infringe on rights.

22 Several of the books had examples of how to apply the Internal Revenue Code to specific situations, but NONE of the 23 examples used receipt of wages as a taxable event. We can only conclude that this omission was a deliberate decision by 24 educators in the legal profession to conceal the dastardly truth about income taxes. We also have to assume that the most 25 popular way to conceal the truth is to NOT mention what is NOT taxable, and only to mention what IS taxable. Is it any 26 surprise then that we have a whole generation of tax attorneys out there who haven't heard the truth because the very 27 curricula they rely on for their legal education excludes the whole truth? In such an environment, does the oath a lawyer
28 would take if he went on the witness stand mean anything?:

29 "I promise to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help me God."

30 If you researched the background of most lawyers, you'd find that they, like most doctors, overwhelmingly got into the 31 profession because of greed and that disproportionately few of them believe in "God". They are too egotistical and self-
32 sufficient to believe in God or to have to depend on Him for anything. How can a lawyer tell the "whole truth" and not lie
33 taking the oath if he was never taught the "whole truth" to begin with and doesn't believe in God anyway? Let's face it,
34 like Satan, a majority of the members of the legal profession have misused the gifts that a Creator they don't believe in has 35 given them, and never bothered to question the laws beyond what they were taught because it was so profitable to not
36 question authority. Perhaps this explains why early law schools in the late 17th Century in this country required a strong 37 theological background as a prerequisite to studying law. Very few, if any, universities have the same requirements for the 38 study of law these days.

39 6.11 Social Security Chronology²¹⁹

40 When the Social Security Administration first began assigning social security numbers in 1935, SSN cards included the 41 statement "NOT FOR IDENTIFICATION" printed upon their face.

²¹⁹ Courtesy http://www.informamerica.com/SSN_Chronology.html.

1 The card issued in 1964 contained that very statement while all cards issued today no longer do. Over the years a multitude
2 of new, unintended uses for SSNs have evolved. The result is that SSNs are now widely and routinely demanded for 3 purposes of routine identification. As a result, the SSN has now become a de facto National Identification Number.

4 The following will give you some idea of what the free Citizen who never applied for and therefore never received a social 5 security number is up against when dealing with state and federal bureaucrats.

6 It is obtained from a table prepared on January 13, 1998 by Sandy Cerato of the Social Security Administration's Office of 7 Legislation And Congressional Affairs and chronicles the implementation of the social security number for identification 8 purposes, although it was never originally intended as such.

9 Nowhere within the report does it breathe mention of the fact that an SSN is not required by law of a Citizen because 10 nowhere does any law require the Citizen to apply.

11 Table prepared (1/13/98) by Sandy Cerato of SSA's Office of Legislation &
12 Congressional Affairs

13 1935 The Social Security Act (P.L. 74-271) is enacted. It did not expressly mention the 14 use of SSNs, but it authorized the creation of some type of record keeping scheme.
15 Treasury Decision 4704, a Treasury regulation in 1936 which required the issuance of an 16 account number to each employee covered by the Social Security program. The Social 17 Security Board considered various numbering systems and ways (such as metal tags, etc.)
18 by which employees could indicate they had been issued a number

19 1936-1937 Approximately 30 million applications for SSNs were processed between 20 November 1936 and June 30, 1937.

21 1943 Executive Order 9397 (3 CFR (1943-1948 Comp.) 283-284) required: All Federal 22 components to use the SSN "exclusively" whenever the component found it advisable to 23 set up a new identification system for individuals. The Social Security Board to cooperate 24 with Federal uses of the number by issuing and verifying numbers for other Federal 25 agencies

26 1961 The Civil Service Commission adopted the SSN as an official Federal employee 27 identifier. Internal Revenue Code Amendments (P.L. 87-397) required each taxpayer to 28 furnish identifying number for tax reporting.

29 1962 The Internal Revenue Service adopted the SSN as its official taxpayer identification 30 number.

31 1964 Treasury Department, via internal policy, required buyers of Series H savings bonds
32 to provide their SSNs.

33 1965 Internal Revenue Amendments (P.L. 89-384) enacted Medicare. It became 34 necessary for most individuals age 65 and older to have an SSN.

35 1966 The Veterans Administration began to use the SSN as the hospital admissions 36 number and for patient record keeping.

37 1967 The Department of Defense adopted the SSN in lieu of the military service number 38 for identifying Armed Forces personnel.

39 1970 Bank Records and Foreign Transactions Act (P.L. 91-508) required all banks, 40 savings and loan associations, credit unions and brokers/dealers in securities to obtain the 41 SSNs of all of their customers. Also, financial institutions were required to file a report

1 with the IRS, including the SSN of the customer, for any transaction involving more than 2 $10,000.

3 1971 SSA task force report published which proposed that SSA take a "cautious and 4 conservative" position toward SSN use and do nothing to promote the use of the SSN as 5 an identifier. The report recommended that SSA use mass SSN enumeration in schools as 6 a long-range, cost-effective approach to tightening up the SSN system, and consider 7 cooperating with specific health, education and welfare uses of the SSN by State, local,
8 and other nonprofit organizations.

9 1972 Social Security Amendments of 1972 (P.L. 92-603): Required SSA to issue SSNs to 10 all legally admitted aliens at entry and of anyone receiving or applying for any benefit
11 paid for by Federal funds; Required SSA to obtain evidence to establish age, citizenship, 12 or alien status and identity. Authorized SSA to enumerate children at the time they first 13 entered school.

14 1973 Buyers of series E savings bonds are required by the Treasury Department to 15 provide their SSNs. Report of the HEW Secretary's Advisory Committee on Automated
16 Personal Data System concluded that the adoption of a universal identifier by this country
17 was not desirable; also found that the SSN was not suitable for such a purpose as it does 18 not meet the criteria of a universal identifier that distinguishes a person from all others.

19 1974 Privacy Act (P.L. 93-579) enacted effective September 27, 1975 to limit
20 governmental use of the SSN: Provided that no State or local government agency may 21 withhold a benefit from a person simply because the individual refuses to furnish his or 22 her SSN. Required that Federal, State and local agencies which request an individual to 23 disclose his/her SSN inform the individual if disclosure was mandatory or voluntary.
24 (This was the first mention of SSN use by local governments.)

25 1975 Social Services Amendments of 1974 (P.L. 93-647) provided that: disclosure of an 26 individual's SSN is a condition of eligibility for AFDC benefits; and Office of Child
27 Support enforcement Parent Locator Service may require disclosure of limited
28 information (including SSN and whereabouts) contained in SSA records.

29 1976 Tax Reform Act of 1976 (P.L. 94-455) included the following amendments to the 30 Social Security Act: To allow use by the States of the SSN in the administration of any 31 tax, general public assistance, driver's license or motor vehicle registration law within 32 their jurisdiction and to authorize the States to require individuals affected by such laws
33 to furnish their SSNs to the States; To make misuse of the SSN for any purpose a 34 violation of the Social Security Act; To make disclosure or compelling disclosure of the 35 SSN of any person a violation of the Social Security Act. To amend section 6109 of the 36 Internal Revenue Code to provide that the SSN be used as the tax identification number 37 (TIN) for all tax purposes. While the Treasury Department had been using the SSN as the 38 TIN by regulation since 1962, this law codified that requirement. Federal Advisory 39 Committee on False Identification recommended that penalties for misuse should be 40 increased and evidence requirements tightened; rejected the idea of national identifier and 41 did not even consider the SSN for such a purpose.

42 1977 Food Stamp Act of 1977 (P.L. 96-58) required disclosure of SSNs of all household
43 members as a condition of eligibility for participation in the food stamp program. Privacy
44 Protection Study Commission recommended that: No steps be taken towards developing 45 standard, universal label for individuals until safeguards and policies regarding 46 permissible uses and disclosures were proven effective; and Executive Order 9397 be 47 amended so that Federal agencies could no longer use it as legal authority to require 48 disclosure of an individual's SSN. (No action taken.) The Carter Administration proposed

1 that the Social Security card be one of the authorized documents by which an employer
2 could be assured that a job applicant could work in this country but also stated that the 3 SSN card should not become a national identity document.

4 1978 SSA required evidence of age, citizenship, and identity of all SSN applicants.

5 1981 Reagan Administration stated that it "is explicitly opposed to the creation of a 6 national identity card" but recognized the need for a means for employers to comply with 7 the employer sanctions provisions of its immigration reform legislation. Omnibus Budget
8 Reconciliation Act of 1981 (P.L. 97-35) required the disclosure of the SSNs of all adult
9 members in the household of children applying to the school lunch program. Social 10 Security Benefits Act (P.L. 97-123) Section 4 added alteration and forgery of a Social 11 Security card to the list of prohibited acts and increased the penalties for such acts.
12 Section 6 required any Federal, State or local government agency to furnish the name and 13 SSN of prisoners convicted of a felony to the Secretary of HHS, to enforce suspension of 14 disability benefits to certain imprisoned felons. Department of Defense Authorization Act
15 (P.L. 97-86) required disclosure of the SSNs to the Selective Service System of all 16 individuals required to register for the draft.

17 1982 Debt Collection Act (P.L. 97-365) required that all applicants for loans under any 18 Federal loan program furnish their SSNs to the agency supplying the loan. All Social 19 Security cards issued to legal aliens not authorized to work within the United States were 20 annotated "NOT VALID FOR EMPLOYMENT" beginning in May.

21 1983 The Social Security Amendments of 1983 (P.L. 98-21) required that new and 22 replacement Social Security cards issued after October 30 be made of banknote paper and 23 (to the maximum extent practicable) not be subject to counterfeiting. The Interest and 24 Dividend Tax Compliance Act (P.L. 98-67) requires SSNs for all interest-bearing 25 accounts and provides a penalty of $50 for all individuals who fail to furnish a correct
26 TIN (usually the SSN).

27 1984 Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 (P.L. 98-369) Amended the Social Security Act to 28 establish an income and eligibility verification system involving State agencies
29 administering the AFDC, Medicaid, unemployment compensation, the food stamp
30 programs, and State programs under a plan approved under title I, X, XIV, or XVI of the 31 Act. States were permitted to require the SSN as a condition of eligibility for benefits
32 under any of these programs. Amended Section 6050I of the IRC to require that persons
33 engaged in a trade or business file a report (including SSNs) with the IRS for cash 34 transactions over $10,000. Amended Section 215 of the IRC to authorize the Secretary of 35 HHS to publish regulations that require a spouse paying alimony to furnish IRS with the 36 taxpayer identification number (i.e., the SSN) of the spouse receiving alimony payments.

37 1986 The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-603): Required the 38 Comptroller General to investigate technological changes that could reduce the potential
39 for counterfeiting Social Security cards; Provides that the Social Security card may be 40 used to establish the eligibility of a prospective employee for employment; and Required
41 the Secretary of HHS to undertake a study of the feasibility and costs of establishing an 42 SSN verification system Tax Reform Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-514) requires individuals
43 filing a tax return due after December 31, 1987, to include the taxpayer identification
44 number--usually the SSN--of each dependent age 5 or older. Commercial Motor Vehicle
45 Safety Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-750) authorized the Secretary of Transportation to require 46 the use of the SSN on commercial motor vehicle operators' licenses. Higher Education 47 Amendments of 1986 (P.L. 99-498) required that student loan applicants submit their 48 SSN as a condition of eligibility.

1 1987 SSA initiated a demonstration project on August 17 in the state of New Mexico
2 enabling parents to obtain Social Security numbers for their newborn infants
3 automatically when the infant's birth is registered by the State. The program was 4 expanded nationwide in 1989. Currently, all 50 union states participate in the program, as 5 well as New York City, Washington, D.C., and Puerto Rico.

6 1988 Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 (P.L. 100-242) authorized the 7 Secretary of HUD to require disclosure of a person's SSN as a condition of eligibility for 8 any HUD program. The Family Support Act of 1988 (P.L. 100-485): Section 125
9 required, beginning November 1, 1990, a State to obtain the SSNs of the parents when 10 issuing a birth certificate. Section 704(a) required individuals filing a tax return due after 11 December 31, 1989, to include the taxpayer identification number--usually the SSN--of 12 each dependent age 2 or older. The Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988
13 (P.L. 100-647): Authorized a State and/or any blood donation facility to use SSNs to 14 identify blood donors (205(c)(2)(F)). Required that all title II beneficiaries either have or 15 have applied for an SSN in order to receive benefits. This provision became effective
16 with dates of initial entitlement of June 1989 or later. Beneficiaries who refused 17 enumeration were entitled but placed in suspense. Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988 (P.L.
18 100-690) deleted the $5,000 and $25,000 upper limits on fines that can be imposed for 19 violations of section 208 of the Social Security Act. The general limit of $250,000 for 20 felonies in the U.S. Code now applied to SSN violations under section 208 of the Social 21 Security Act. Also, penalties for misuse of SSNs apply as well in cases where the number 22 is referred to by any other name (e.g., taxpayer identification number (TIN)).

23 1989 Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (P.L. 101-239) required that the 24 National Student Loan Data System include, among other things, the names and SSNs of 25 borrowers. Child Nutrition and WIC Reauthorization Act of 1989 (P.L. 101-147) requires 26 the member of the household who applies for the school lunch program to provide the 27 SSN of the parent of the child for whom the application is made.

28 1990 Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (P.L. 101-508): Section 7201
29 (Computer Matching and Privacy Protection Amendments of 1990) provided that no
30 adverse action may be taken against an individual receiving benefits as a result of a
31 matching program without verification of the information or notification of the individual
32 regarding the findings with time to contest. Section 8053, required an SSN for eligibility
33 for benefits from the Department of Veterans Affairs (DVA). Section 11112, required
34 that individuals filing a tax return due after December 31, 1991, include the taxpayer
35 identification number--usually the SSN--of each dependent age 1 or older. Food and 36 Agricultural Resources Act of 1990 (P.L. 101-624), Section 1735: Required an SSN for 37 the officers of food and retail stores that redeem Food Stamps. Provided that SSNs
38 maintained as a result of any law enacted on or after October 1, 1990, will be confidential
39 and may not be disclosed.

40 1994 Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994 (P.L. 103-41 296): Section 304, authorized the use of the SSN for jury selection. Section 314, 42 authorized cross-matching of SSNs and Employer Identification Numbers maintained by 43 the Department of Agriculture with other Federal agencies for the purpose of 44 investigating both food stamp fraud and violations of other Federal laws. Section 318, 45 authorized the use of the SSN by the Department of Labor in administration of Federal 46 workers' compensation laws.

47 1996 Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (P.L.
48 104-193) (Welfare Reform): Section 111 required the Commissioner of Social Security
49 to develop and submit to Congress a prototype of a counterfeit-resistant Social Security 50 card that: is made of durable, tamper-resistant material (e.g., plastic); employs

1 technologies that provide security features (e.g., magnetic stripe); and provides
2 individuals with reliable proof of citizenship or legal resident alien status. Section 111
3 also required the Commissioner of Social Security to study and report to Congress on 4 different methods of improving the Social Security card application process, including 5 evaluation of the cost and workload implications of issuing a counterfeit-resistant Social 6 Security card for all individuals and evaluation of the feasibility and cost implications of 7 imposing a user fee for replacement cards. Section 316 required HHS to transmit to SSA,
8 for verification purposes, certain information about individuals and employers maintained
9 under the Federal Parent Locator Service in an automated directory. SSA is required to 10 verify the accuracy of, correct, or supply to the extent possible, and report to HHS the 11 name, SSN, and birth date of individuals and the employer identification number of 12 employers. SSA is to be reimbursed by HHS for the cost of this verification service. This 13 section also required all Federal agencies (including SSA) to report quarterly the name
14 and SSN of each employee and the wages paid to the employee during the previous 15 quarter. Section 317 provides that State child support enforcement procedures require the 16 SSN of any applicant for a professional license, commercial driver's license, occupational 17 license, or marriage license be recorded on the application. The SSN of any person 18 subject to a divorce decree, support order, or paternity determination or 19 acknowledgement would have to be placed in the pertinent records. SSNs are required on 20 death certificates. Section 451 provides that, in order to be eligible for the Earned Income
21 Tax Credit, an individual must include on his or her tax return an SSN which was not
22 assigned solely for non-work purposes. Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1997
23 (P.L. 104-208) (Division C (Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility 24 Act of 1996) (Immigration Reform): Sections 401-404 provide for 3 specific employment
25 verification pilot programs in which employers would voluntarily participate. In general, 26 the pilot programs would allow an employer to confirm the identity and employment
27 eligibility of the individual. SSA and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS)
28 would provide a secondary verification process to confirm the validity of the information
29 provided. SSA would compare the name and SSN provided and advise whether the name
30 and number match SSA records and whether the SSN is valid for employment. Section 31 414 requires the Commissioner to report to Congress every year, the aggregate number of 32 SSNs issued to non-citizens not authorized to work, but under which earnings were 33 reported. Also requires the Commissioner to transmit to the Attorney General a report on 34 the extent to which SSNs and Social Security cards are used by non-citizens for 35 fraudulent purposes. Section 415 authorizes the Attorney General to require any non-36 citizen to provide his or her SSN for purposes of inclusion in any record maintained by 37 the Attorney General or INS. Section 656 provide for improvements in identification-
38 related documents; i.e., birth certificates and driver's licenses. These sections require 39 publication of regulations which set standards, including security features and, in the case 40 of driver's licenses, require that an SSN appear on the license. Federal agencies are 41 precluded from accepting as proof of identity, documents which do not meet the 42 regulatory standards. Section 657 provides for the development of a prototype Social 43 Security card. The requirements are the same as in Section 111 of the Welfare reform
44 legislation (described above) with the exception that the Comptroller General is also to 45 study and report to Congress on different methods of improving the Social Security card 46 application process.

47 1997 Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1997 (P.L. 104-208) (Division C--
48 Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996) (Immigration
49 Reform): Sections 401-404 provide for 3 specific employment verification pilot programs
50 in which employers would voluntarily participate. In general, the pilot programs would 51 allow an employer to confirm the identity and employment eligibility of the individual.
52 SSA and INS would provide a secondary verification process to confirm the validity of 53 the information provided. SSA would compare the name and SSN provided and advise 54 whether the name and number match SSA records and whether the SSN is valid for

1 employment. Section 414 required the Commissioner of Social Security to report to 2 Congress every year the aggregate number of SSNs issued to non-citizens not authorized
3 to work, but under which earnings were reported. Also required the Commissioner of 4 Social Security to transmit to the Attorney General a report on the extent to which SSNs
5 and Social Security cards are used by non-citizens for fraudulent purposes. Section 415
6 authorized the Attorney General to require any non-citizen to provide his or her SSN for 7 purposes of inclusion in any record maintained by the Attorney General or INS. Section 8 656 provided for improvements in identification-related documents; i.e., birth certificates
9 and drivers licenses. These sections require publication of regulations which set uniform 10 standards, including security features, and, in the case of drivers licenses, require that an 11 SSN appear on the license. Federal agencies are precluded from accepting as proof of 12 identity documents which do not meet the regulatory standards. Section 657 provided for 13 the development of a prototype Social Security card. The requirements are the same as in 14 Section 111 of the Welfare reform legislation (described above) with the exception that 15 the Comptroller General is also to study and report to Congress on different methods of 16 improving the Social Security card application process. 1997 Taxpayer Relief Act of 17 1997 (P.L. 105-34) Section 1090 requires an applicant for an SSN under age 18 to 18 provide evidence of his or her parents' names and SSNs in addition to required evidence 19 of age, identity, and citizenship. Report to Congress on "Options for Enhancing the 20 Social Security Card" released on September 22, 1997.

21 Keep in mind that there is no authority under the Constitution for the government to require that a free Citizen number
22 himself or withhold services if he does not. Certainly the Citizen who chooses not to obtain and use a number or who later
23 revokes the application for the number as some have done faces a future of self-reliance and individual responsibility, with 24 no help from Uncle Sam.

25 6.12 Conclusion: The Duck Test

26 What can one make of this pattern of alterations that disguise the truth behind the law and this pattern of behavior
27 throughout the U.S. Government, including the Congress, the courts, the Treasury, and the IRS to misrepresent it? Is the 28 income tax operating as a hoax? Let's apply the "duck test":

29 "If it looks like a duck, waddles like a duck, and quacks like a duck, it must BE a duck!"

30 Thomas Jefferson said it better:

31 "Single acts of tyranny may be ascribed to the accidental opinion of a day; but a series of oppressions, begun at 32 a distinguished period, and pursued unalterably through every change in ministers [administrations], too
33 plainly proves a deliberate systematic plan of reducing us to slavery."

34 We assert that the evidence presented in this document is more than adequate proof that the income tax does not apply not 35 only to most Americans, but it doesn't apply to most "U.S. citizens" either! Has our detailed exposition raised doubt in 36 your mind about what the law says? Here is what the Supreme Court has said about doubt.

37 "In the interpretation of statutes levying taxes it is the established rule not to...enlarge their operations so as to 38 embrace matters not specifically pointed out. In case of doubt they are construed most strongly against the 39 government, and in favor of the citizen."
40 [Gould v. Gould, 245 U.S. 151 (1917)]

41 *"Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by
42 clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be
43 resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid."
44 [Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

45 Shouldn't these court rulings be applied to the income tax?

46 Because of Article 1, Section 8 of the Constitution, Congress could not impose a tax on all income earned in the United 47 States of America. What Congress did instead was to impose a municipal tax within only the District of Columbia on

1 matters which they could tax (international and foreign commerce), and write the law in such a way that it would give the
2 impression that it also applied to the income of most Americans outside that jurisdiction and in the 50 union states. The 3 Secretary of the Treasury wrote corresponding regulations with a similar goal: to tell a truth while implying a lie. Despite a
4 longstanding and ongoing effort by some in government to confuse and obfuscate, the literal truth has remained in the law.
5 Though it is a complex process, the current statutes and regulations by themselves do reveal the limited application of the 6 Internal Revenue Code. The older statutes and regulations then add extensive reinforcement and clarity to the conclusions
7 reached by deciphering the current law. The historical documents also give ample evidence to justify an accusation, against 8 the legislators in Congress and the authors of the regulations at the Department of the Treasury, of intent to defraud the 9 American people of money not legally owed.

10 Aside from arguments about specific details, there is one giant hurdle for those who would still insist that most Americans
11 receive taxable income: what is the alternate conclusion that accounts for every citation in this document? There is 12 extensive documentation, not only in the current statutes and regulations, but throughout 87 years of statutory and 13 regulatory history, which supports the conclusions of this document. It would be absurd to claim that a tax was imposed on 14 the income of most Americans, and that by mistake or coincidence Congress and the Secretary put into the statutes and 15 regulations such an enormous amount of information, spanning nearly a century, which indicates that the tax applies only to 16 those engaged in international or foreign commerce. Quite simply, there is no conclusion other than the conclusion of this 17 document which explains all of the evidence.

18 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Is there some other “interpretation” of the statutes and regulations which would show
19 domestic income of United States citizens as taxable, and also explain the meaning of all of the citations in this document?

14 7.1 An Epidemic of Non-Filers

15 This phenomenon, which began in the early 1980's, has become so epidemic that former IRS Commissioner Roscoe Egger
16 resigned in April 1986 after admitting that 35 million Americans no longer filed personal income tax returns.

17 Shirley Peterson, the 1993 IRS Commissioner, stated in a speech delivered on August 26, 1993 before the National 18 Association of Enrolled Agents that 1 in 5 Americans had stopped filing returns altogether and the situation is out of 19 control.

20 The most recent IRS commissioner, Margaret Milner Richardson, has recently resigned, allegedly over non-compliance.

21 The "tax gap," meaning what the IRS can actually collect, is growing wider every day as more and more Americans "wake 22 up", which is why many believe that it's the IRS itself that is lobbying vigorously from behind the scenes through the 23 mouths of political candidates and others to create the illusion of the elimination of their own agency.

24 Why? So that a public "dialogue" can be manipulated towards a new taxing scheme, such as a "flat tax" or a national sales
25 tax, that will still push us towards a cashless society of debit and credit cards and ATM's where all financial transactions
26 can be instantaneously and remotely monitored, and will still include the sacred "cash cow" known as tax withholding.

27 Many overlook that one of the most important jobs of the Department of the Treasury, regardless of the tax system used, is 28 now and always has been, surveillance and control.

30 7.2.1 Joseph Banister: Former IRS Criminal Investigative Division (CID) Agent

31 Devvy Kidd
32 April 12, 2000

33 As readers of this document know, Joseph Banister is a former IRS Criminal Investigator. After thoroughly researching the 34 tax code, Joe came to the indisputable conclusion that most Americans are not required to file tax returns. Joe resigned his 35 high-paying position with the IRS in 1999 because he could not reconcile his oath of office with the fraud being perpetrated
36 against the American people by the very organization he worked for. I ask Joe if he would share with the people what his 37 plans were for this tax year as relates to whether or not he would be filing an income tax return or the paying of "income"
38 taxes. Below are my questions to Joe and his responses:

39 Q: April 15, 2000 is just around the corner. People are wondering whether or not, you, as a former IRS, CID agent will file
40 an income tax return on what is traditionally known in the tax movement as "April Fools Day"?

1 A: I know it would be easier to answer your question with a simple yes or no. Unfortunately, due to the complexity of the
2 issues involved, the implications of my answer for all of those who will read it, and my desire to be very truthful and honest
3 in conducting my affairs, I must include a detailed explanation with my answer. I will also try to be as specific as possible
4 so that my intentions will be very clear.

5 First, please allow me to introduce myself for the benefit of those who don't know about me. After graduating from college,
6 earning my certified public accountant certificate, and spending approximately 7 years in the private sector, I accepted an
7 appointment as a Special Agent for the Internal Revenue Service, Criminal Investigation Division and was sworn in as such 8 on November 15, 1993. In December of 1996, I heard you speaking on the radio and making what, at the time, seemed to 9 be incredible and outrageous claims.

10 You claimed, among other things, that filing of federal income tax returns and the payment of federal income taxes was 11 voluntary for most Americans. You claimed that the 16th Amendment (income tax amendment) to the U.S. Constitution was 12 never ratified. You claimed that federal income tax money is not even used to pay the government's operating expenses. I
13 set out to disprove your claims, because I believed at the time that you could not possibly be correct. I wondered how you
14 could possibly be correct in claiming that the federal income tax was not compulsory for most Americans when the IRS had 15 issued me a badge, gun, handcuffs, and other enforcement equipment to ensure that all Americans did comply.

16 After spending many evenings and weekends over a 2 year period carefully researching your claims, I concluded that you
17 were telling the truth. The information you provided, and my subsequent research, led me to conclude that in order for the 18 federal income tax to be administered within the confines of our federal Constitution, the Internal Revenue Code and 19 regulations were written in such a way that comparatively few Americans are legally and constitutionally required to pay it.
20 I also verified your claim that the 16th Amendment was never ratified and that the U.S. Government largely finances its 21 operations with debt currency/funds rather than federal income tax revenues. These were obviously not the conclusions I 22 expected to reach.

23 Nonetheless, when I reached these conclusions, I knew I had a duty to discuss them with my supervisors in the Internal 24 Revenue Service. I gathered some of the more compelling facts and evidence supporting my conclusions about your claims
25 and submitted them to IRS officials in the form of a report. In keeping with my oath of office, I informed IRS officials of 26 my sincere concern that the rights of Americans were very likely being violated and I asked them to show me the error of 27 my analysis, if any. They rebuffed my concerns and encouraged my resignation. I resigned on February 25, 1999.

28 With that history in mind, I can now address your question. The last time I recall being asked to provide a public answer to 29 the question about my own filing was on July 2, 1999 at a tax symposium held in Washington, D.C. at the National Press
30 Club. I gave a necessarily long-winded answer on that day. I think this would be an appropriate venue to repeat my answer
31 plus offer some additional explanations.

32 As you know, the IRS, the Clinton Administration, the U.S. House of Representatives, the U.S. Senate, the U.S. Treasury
33 Department, the U.S. Justice Department, and other federal agencies were formally invited to the July 2nd symposium,
34 televised nationally on C-SPAN2, to debate the conclusions of the report I submitted to the IRS as well as the conclusions
35 of other learned researchers such as Larry Becraft, Bill Benson, Bill Conklin, and yourself. (www.givemeliberty.org).

36 As you also know, not a single government official came to discuss, debate, or argue against our conclusions. To date, the 37 IRS has refused to meet with me or with any of the afore-mentioned researchers or to debate the mountains of evidence 38 pointing to the voluntary nature of the federal income tax.

39 Having held a C.P.A. certificate since 1991 and having worked for the IRS Criminal Investigation Division for over five 40 years, I know the agency's expectation is that everyone should file an income tax return. Having done over three years of 41 research into the requirements for filing federal income tax returns and paying the federal income tax, I have concluded that 42 the statutes and regulations do not require most Americans to file federal income tax returns or pay federal income tax.

43 I have spent many sleepless nights wondering whether fulfilling the agency's expectation is the proper course or whether 44 obeying the statutes and regulations is the proper course (since my findings indicate that the agency's expectation appears to 45 me to be in conflict with the statutes and regulations). Since I have found a conflict between the agency's expectation and

1 my good faith reading of the statutes and regulations, I must choose between them. I must choose to obey the statutes and 2 regulations.

3 The statutes and regulations indicate to me that I have no federal income tax return filing requirement and no requirement
4 to pay the federal income tax. Until I can resolve the conflict between the agency's expectation and the plain language of 5 the statutes and regulations, I can not in good conscience file a federal income tax return. I believe that for me to file such a
6 return without resolving this conflict, I would be committing perjury upon signing the document. My position will continue
7 to be that I may file a federal income tax return in the future, but only if my research shows me that I am required by law to 8 file such a return and/or the IRS helps me to understand what law requires me to file or how I can file a return without 9 waiving any of my rights.

10 It is important to note that the statutory and regulatory reasons I have researched do not even take into consideration the 5th
11 Amendment implications to the filing of federal income tax returns developed by Bill Conklin and others, the evidence of 12 the lack of ratification of the 16th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution investigated by Bill Benson and Red Beckman, and 13 the opinions of all of the professionals I have consulted with who have confirmed my conclusions.

14 Q: The biggest fear (a mind set brutally beat into the America people by the IRS) an individual has in making the decision
15 as to whether or not they will file, is: Will I be prosecuted and thrown in jail? Second to losing their freedom, Americans'
16 greatly fear, as they should, the IRS simply coming in and stealing their money and other assets.

17 Since you have decided not to volunteer this April 15, 2000, could you please tell us what your first step was to protect 18 your assets and deal with the IRS' first goal: getting your money? (The check you sent in- getting the money issue off the 19 table.)

20 A: In order to answer your question more completely, I'd like to provide some background information. First, Americans
21 need to understand that there is a difference between filing a federal income tax return and paying federal income tax. The 22 two are related but they are not necessarily dependent on each other. Paying the federal income tax is done primarily 23 through withholding out of your paycheck throughout the year or through estimated payments made every three months.
24 Filing a federal income tax return is something that is done only once per year, and the return is used to report taxable
25 income and to compute an income tax on that taxable income and compare the computed income tax to the amount of 26 withholding or estimated payments. The result of the comparison is either an "amount you owe" or a "refund."

27 Once a person learns this information, they will likely find themselves torn between what they know to be the truth (that 28 they are not required to file a federal income tax return or pay the federal income tax) and the fact that the truth has not
29 prevented people from ending up in prison or losing all of their property. In my experience, the truth may not be an absolute
30 shield against the IRS for a number of reasons. The primary reason for this is that the IRS frames the payment of income
31 taxes in terms of paying one's "fair share" rather whether or not one has a legal duty to pay it. In a criminal prosecution for 32 not paying taxes, the government often uses jealousy and envy to convince a jury that the accused should be convicted. The 33 prosecutor will generally try to convince the jury that the defendant did not pay his "fair share" rather than try to convince 34 the jury that the defendant "broke the law." The prosecutor wouldn't dream of discussing what law required the defendant to 35 file a federal income tax return or pay the federal income tax.

36 Why discuss such things when the raw emotions of 12 jurors who have been stuck paying their "fair share" will obtain a 37 guilty verdict quite nicely. In my opinion, this is the reality of income tax enforcement and for this reason, people should 38 educate themselves and exercise extreme caution if they decide to take any action on any of this information.

39 As to the IRS "getting your money," I am personally less concerned with the IRS getting my money than I am concerned
40 with the deceitful way they administer the income tax and the suspicious silence on their part when asked to clarify these 41 issues. Based on my knowledge of the government's administrative and enforcement tactics, I realized I had to formulate a
42 way to inform the American people about the fraudulent way the income tax is administered without having my message
43 diluted by a government accusing me of not wanting to pay my "fair share."

44 I wanted to ensure that everyone understood that my opposition to the IRS isn't about opposition to taxation as much as it is 45 about opposition to collecting taxes through fear, intimidation, deceit, and color of law. In order to accomplish this, I have
46 written, in good faith, a check to the U.S. Treasury as a bond to cover more than the "fair share" I would have paid had I

1 been required to file a federal income tax return, even though my research of the statutes and regulations has shown me
2 that no payment is required. I will subsequently demand that the IRS adhere to every administrative procedure (including,
3 but not limited to, an examination hearing and collection hearing) to determine whether or not the money I have paid to the 4 IRS is legally theirs to keep.

5 After exhausting my rights to administrative due process of law and civil suit, if necessary, I will hopefully have
6 determined once and for all whether or not I am required to file a federal income tax return and/or am liable to pay the 7 federal income tax. If I am required to pay the federal income tax, then the IRS already has my money. If I learn during this 8 process that I am required by law to file a federal income tax return, I will file one immediately in order to comply with the 9 law.

10 Q: Last November 13, 1999, you were one of the panel members at the National Press Club in Washington, DC for 11 Symposium II. A man named David Bosset was there and he covered his long battle with the IRS to force them to adhere to 12 the law as it's written. The thrust of Mr. Bosset's argument is the Section 861 "source income" argument. I understand that 13 this is the foundation for the process you have undertaken in not filing a 1040 "income" tax return. Could you please give 14 the readers an explanation, something readable in this century! - about this 861 argument? I say something readable in this 15 century, because as you know, Title 26 alone can take years to read.

16 A: One of the most concise explanations about the "861 Argument" (outside of www.taxgate.com and www.nite.org) that I
17 have seen was authored by F. Tupper Saussy in the January 2000 issue of Media Bypass magazine. Mr. Saussy said, in 18 pertinent part:

19 "No income tax is imposed upon incomes derived by United States citizens from sources within the United 20 States. The only persons liable for a tax on income derived from sources within the United States are 21 nonresident aliens and foreign corporations"

22 "There is no provision in the [Internal Revenue] Code for a tax upon the income of United States citizens living 23 and domiciled in the United States if the income is derived from sources within the United States"

24 I have interviewed Mr. Bosset at length and I find him to be a very credible and honest man. He has proven to my 25 satisfaction that he presented aspects of the "861 Argument" to the Internal Revenue Service as a basis for amending forms
26 previously filed with the agency. He requested and received a refund for taxes previously paid in. It is my understanding 27 that others have received refunds based on the "861 Argument" also. People can learn more about the subject at 28 www.taxgate.com and www.nite.org .

29 Q: To get this straight: You will not file a 1040. You have already sent the IRS a check, which they have cashed. You will
30 be preparing a document to submit to them prior to April 15, 2000 requesting a.....hearing and working your way through 31 the administrative process, demonstrating good will and an honest attempt to follow the law as it's written. Is this correct?

32 A: Yes, I can not repeat enough times that I am an honest American who has, in good faith, simply tried to determine what 33 the mandatory tax paying obligations of the average American are. I have concluded that many of the federal income tax
34 obligations that I previously believed to be mandatory are actually voluntary, if one can navigate the incredible maze of the 35 Internal Revenue Code and Code of Federal Regulations. The IRS has been suspiciously silent on the matter and has 36 refused to meet with me to discuss my obligations. In light of the Internal Revenue Service's refusal to assist me, I am left
37 to make my decisions based on my own training, experience, and research. What else can I do? I also intend to utilize all of 38 my rights to due process of law to get an answer to my questions, even if I have to pay for the privilege (with a check to the 39 U.S. Treasury).

40 Q: I personally know the great burden and challenge your resignation from a secure government career has had on your 41 family. However, I must say that not once have I ever regretted the fact that you heard me on Geoff Metcalf's radio show
42 and as a result of listening to what I had to say about the 16th Amendment and the voluntary nature of the income tax, you
43 made a horrendous life changing decision. I believe with all my heart that this was your destiny, this is what our Lord
44 wanted you to do and while it has been hell for you at times over the past few years, millions of Americans are truly 45 thankful for your sacrifices.

1 Each day more and more Americans become aware of your courage and commitment to the truth. Many would like to know
2 what you've been doing since your resignation 15 months ago and what you'd like to do in the future - perhaps open your
3 own consulting firm, re-enter law enforcement in some capacity?

4 A: The remainder of 1999 was very difficult for my family and me but because of the thoughts, prayers, and support of so
5 many people and our faith in God's grace and goodness, we have much to be thankful for. I am confident that the truth will 6 prevail and other honest government officials will learn about the deceitful administration of the federal income tax and 7 speak out as I have done.

8 * * * *

9 The deadline for this forced extortion exercise by the IRS is April 17, 2000. Each and every individual in this country must 10 determine their own course and act according to their conscience. The IRS exists only to feed the magical money machine
11 called the "Federal" Reserve Banking System. They are married and this country doesn't need either one. The Unseen Hand,
12 the power cartel behind the scenes - they are the ones who need these two mechanisms to continue funding their global 13 games. It must come to a halt before the system reaches the point of collapse and it will. Despite all the lies about "a 14 prosperous economy," the day will come when the debt load can no longer be met and then the banksters will pull the plug.

15 This thievery must stop or America's people will never be free. Our children and grand children will remain in bondage as 16 slaves on their knees to people who remain in the shadows, stripping our country blind while lying politicians chant, "I'm 17 for lower taxes" or "more money for education!" What drivel. If you haven't become a sponsor of The Wallace Institute, 18 please consider doing so today.

19 We want to fight these battles but court challenges require big bucks and the pooling of dollars will make this possible.
20 Remember: It isn't just once a year (April 15th) that we're being fleeced, it's the forced "voluntary" withholding that also 21 must be exposed for the deceptive, theft device that it is, right along with the "voluntary" social security tax. The Wallace
22 Institute can take these issues to court but we need your support. We need no direct taxation (no flat tax, no VAT, none of 23 these substitutes to feed the "Fed") to run a limited form of Republican government. Agencies such as the EPA and the 24 Federal Department of Education must go and you can help make history with your sponsorship of our institute.

25 Thank you.

26 7.2.2 Gaylon Harrell

27 Logan County Jury Acquits Harrell 5/26/00

28 LINCOLN - Gaylon "Whitey" Harrell of rural Latham was acquitted by a 12 person jury of the four count criminal felony
29 charges of willful failure to file an Illinois State Income Tax form. The actual trial began on Wednesday May 24th in the 30 Logan County Circuit Court room, presided over by Senior Judge David "Slick" Coogan ("Slick is how the judge identifies 31 himself) and closed on Friday after four hours of deliberation when the jury returned with four consecutive "not guilty" 32 verdicts.

33 "We were in a heated debate" reported one unnamed juror, "but when the court refused, after our specific written request, to 34 furnish us copies of the actual statutes, (that imposed the obligation on the defendant,) it didn't take long for all of us to see
35 that something was wrong with the State's case.

36 "That was not all the court refused to let the jury see," added Jerry Barringer, Harrell's attorney. "The court, at the request of 37 the Illinois State's attorney, denied the jury access to evidence that already had been introduced and accepted."
38 "Astoundingly, even the Bill of Indictment was denied to the jury," chimed in Barringer's legal assistant Lindsey Springer,
39 "Also denied were jury instructions sanctioned by the Supreme Court and even a VCR recorder to play the video tape that 40 Whitey had made of his meeting with the CID agent." "I've seen a lot of tyranny in the courts, but never anything so blatant 41 as what I saw here over the last two days," added Bob Minark, an Indiana friend of Harrell's.

1 The four criminal felony charges had been brought against Harrell in 1997 and just came to trial this past week. Harrell had
2 submitted numerous motions in a case that saw both assigned judges and assigned state's attorneys resign or recuse
3 themselves. All of Harrell's motions were denied.

4 The case started back in early 1997 when Harrell was approached by Illinois Dept. of Revenue Criminal Investigation
5 Division (CID) agent Robert Craner, who asked him for an interview. The testimony was that Harrell refused until he had 6 witnesses present and a video camera set up at the local library where he later video taped a 45 minute meeting with Craner.
7 On the video, which was shown to the jury at the trial, Harrell specifically pointed out that he could find no section of the 8 Illinois statutes that obligated him to file an Illinois income tax return. He presented Craner with numerous documents
9 which he identified as outlines of statutes and regulations and "administrative code" which he said he searched to no avail
10 in finding any obligation that would apply to him. Craner accepted the documents. The tape showed that Craner promised 11 Harrell at least five different times, to produce the statutes that made Harrell liable and get answers to Harrell's questions.

12 The testimony later showed that Craner didn't do that and instead went back to the Grand Jury to testify that Harrell was a 13 resident of Logan County who failed to file Illinois state income tax forms. Unbeknownst to Harrell, at the time of the 14 interview, Craner was also acting as a Grand Jury investigator. "He never told me," said Harrell, "He never read me a 15 Miranda warning. He just promised to get me the information, but instead went back to the Grand Jury to get an 16 Indictment." Grand Jury Transcripts show that Craner testified that Harrell, at the library meeting, had nothing to offer in 17 his defense of why he didn't file a tax return, but the video tape brought Craner's credibility into serious question.

18 Harrell testified in his own defense and verified his many efforts to obtain the law that made him liable for the income tax
19 or how his activity was privileged. The prosecution brought out on cross examination that Harrell had filed many law suits
20 in the past and that those suits were dismissed in both the state and federal courts. In an attempt to prove knowledge, the 21 state also elicited that Harrell had filed tax returns previously. Harrell's Attorney Barringer likened that to believing in 22 Santa Claus when you were a child and then gaining knowledge of the fact that Santa Claus is a fantasy as you got older
23 and wiser. Barringer's questioning of Agent Craner as to his belief in Santa Claus brought an objection from the State's 24 attorney which was sustained by the judge without any recognition of humor. Harrell, 62, had worked for the United States
25 Post Office as a rural mail carrier and also received a pension from Caterpillar from where he retired in 1990.

26 Asked if his case will set a precedent, Harrell said, "Legally, No, but I certainly hope it sets the precedent that more people
27 question the loss of their rights and property whenever government claims it's the law. I feel sure this jury will be thinking 28 twice."

29 Interestingly, even after the specific request of the jury, neither the state nor the court ever did produce any statute showing
30 Harrell had any obligation. "We don't have anything to say at this time other than Mr. Harrell was very lucky and we will 31 be watching his activities carefully," stated an assistant State's Attorney who asked not to be identified.

32 Harrell plans to keep up his efforts to expose what he says is the one of the largest frauds ever committed on the people of 33 Illinois. "Al Capone couldn't hold a candle to these guys," Harrell commented when talking about the State's claim of a 34 requirement for wage earners and independent contractors to file a state income tax form.

35 Harrell's bail bond has been released and the funds obtained from Harrell to guarantee the bond will be returned. No further
36 court actions are pending against Harrell at this time, but Harrell anticipates further actions by himself against both the state
37 Department of Revenue and the federal Internal Revenue Service.

38 7.2.3 Fred Allnut¹

39 The June 3, 1996 issue of the Spotlight states:

40 On March 28, 1996, Fred W. Allnut Sr. and his son Christopher were acquitted in federal district court in Baltimore,
41 Maryland of tax crimes alleged by the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS had charged Allnut and his son with criminal 42 conspiracy and criminally attempting to prevent the IRS from carrying out its mandated duty to assess and collect taxes.

1 According to published reports, Allnutt's defense team convinced the jury the Allnutts believed they were not liable for
2 paying the federal income tax. Allnutt's lawyers explained their client's victory as the inability of the government to 3 convince the jury the defendants did anything they themselves believed was illegal.

4 "The prosecution simply did not prove its case," said defense attorney James Lupinek. "There was no conspiracy and no
5 willful evasion of income taxes. There was plenty of reasonable doubt about every element of the government's case."

6 Allnutt said he is certain the IRS, the U.S. attorney's office and the courts "colluded together to stop me from telling the 7 truth about the IR Code, IRS terrorism and the lawlessness that exists in our judicial system." He is known as an outspoken
8 critic of the IRS, the application of tax laws and what Allnutt calls "their oppressive intrusion into our lives."

9 After an emotionally charged two week trial, the jury deliberated for three days before returning not guilty verdicts on all
10 charges. Lead defense attorney Jeffrey Dickstein of Tulsa, Oklahoma, viewed the case as a tax season compliance
11 promoting ploy. "This was an IRS 'show trial' before tax season," Dickstein added. With a 98 percent conviction rate in 12 tax trials, a conviction would be splashed around by the media to scare the American people and to promote voluntary
13 compliance, "but the IRS lost".

14 Allnutts confrontations with the IRS began back in 1982 when he determined that he was required to file and informed the 15 agency that he did not intend to file federal income tax forms for 1981. He got no answer. For three years, nothing
16 happened. Then in 1986, a correspondence between Allnutt and the IRS began. In 1987, he received a summons from the 17 IRS demanding his appearance on December 4 for a hearing.

18 He sent a letter asking the revenueurs to tell him why, along with the Freedom of Information Act request related to 19 applicable laws. The hearing was postponed until early 1988. It never took place.

20 On February 7, 1989, Allnutt received a "Notice of Deficiency," but "no indication of what kind of tax," he told the 21 Spotlight. He petitioned the Tax Court, which affirmed the notice and added a 75 percent penalty for "fraud." The charge
22 against Christopher and me were vindictive and contrived by the IRS to silence me for speaking out about the illegal 23 actions of this infamous agency," Allnutt said.

24 The truth is, I have always been open about my beliefs on the income tax and have expressed them in writing to the IRS on 25 many occasions."

26 Following notices of deficiency and correspondence back and forth, in which Allnutt asserts the IRS never explained why
27 he should be required to file an income tax return, and a ruling against him in the Tax Court, the IRS raided him.

28 On October 5, 1992, approximately 60 armed IRS agents and others, with bullet-proof vests and guns drawn entered and 29 seized the family business, JFC Excavating. Subsequently, Allnutt filed bankruptcy. An attorney told Allnutt the IRS
30 would have to release the business to him under the automatic stay statute of the bankruptcy code. However, the IRS
31 refused to release the property and the bankruptcy court would not order them to return it. Since filing bankruptcy, I have 32 submitted evidence to the bankruptcy court showing that there never was a lawfully assessed tax, but the court has ignored
33 this evidence," he told the Spotlight.

34 During the summer of 1994, Allnutt was told by several people that they had received grand jury subpoenas seeking 35 financial information about JFC Excavating. On September 12, Allnutt sent letters to both the grand jury foreman and to 36 Assistant U.S. Attorney Ethan Bauman who served the subpoenas, to advise them that "I was in on-going civil litigation
37 with the IRS and that it was my belief that the IRS was wrongfully seeking to persuade the grand jury that I had committed 38 some "income" tax crimes under the IR Code," he said.

39 Allnutt asked to be invited to testify. In May of 1995, having not received a response to his letters, Allnutt called Bauman
40 and asked for an opportunity to speak before the grand jury. A date of June 6 was arranged. Allnutt brought a written 41 presentation with what he describes as "exculpatory evidence" and had it placed in the record. But Allnutt was not allowed 42 to discuss his evidence. He was ordered to answer Bauman's questions instead.

1 On March 11, 1996, Allnutt and his son went on trial in Baltimore. On March 28, they were acquitted of all charges.
2 Allnutt described the scene in the courtroom:

3 "I heard the judge mumble the word "unbelievable" when he looked at the verdict. I saw the prosecutors heads fall. I saw
4 the crows of the IRS people, the prosecutors and other quickly exit the courtroom after the verdict was read. I saw the 5 judge quickly dismiss the jury without the usual comments and abruptly leave the bench without telling us we were free to 6 leave."

7 According to expert observers, there are two possible lessons to be learned from this case. The first is that the IRS always 8 makes a mistake when it seeks to criminally prosecute a "true believer", that is, someone who truly believes he is not, for 9 various reasons, subject to the income tax. That is because the prosecutors must prove that the defendant "willfully" defied
10 the law, which they could not have done if they did not believe the Law applied to them in the first place.

11 The second is that juries may look with more sympathy on so-called tax protesters, whose arguments, which are many and 12 various, are nonetheless reflective of a growing public dislike for the IRS specifically and income taxes in general.

13 Fred Allnutt, a member of the Save-A-Patriot Fellowship and owner of an excavation company in Baltimore Maryland,
14 stood for the truth and won. Fred continues to operate his excavation firm to this day and still has no SSN, requires none of 15 his workers to have one unless they want one and requires none of his workers to fill out W-4's or 1099's, etc.

16 To this day he does not collect the voluntary Maryland State Sales Tax on material he sells because collecting sales tax is 17 voluntary in the state of Maryland! Fred won in this trial not because the jury felt for him, but rather because Fred did not 18 break the Law and the jury ruled on the Law and not the intimidation of the government.

19 Fred did not break the Law because there is no Law requiring a citizen or resident alien to file a 1040 or pay a tax on 20 income earned within the United States.

21 7.2.4 Lloyd Long²

22 A mechanical engineer by the name of Lloyd Long was prosecuted by the IRS in 1994 in Tennessee District Court. Mr.
23 Long's studies over several years, including numerous long drives to a regional Law library, had led him to sincerely
24 believe that he was not required to file income tax returns and he in fact did not file returns for 1989 and 1990.

25 In an amazing court case involving the "income tax," a Chattanooga jury agreed with the argument by the defendant
26 that the "income tax" is actually an excise tax and only applies to certain classes of people.

27 Nationally prominent attorney Lowell Becraft of Huntsville, Alabama, assisted by attorney Russell J. Leonard of Sewanee, 28 Tennessee, who defended Lloyd R. Long of Decherd, Tennessee, who was charged by the Internal Revenue Service with 29 "willful failure to file income tax returns" for the years 1989 and 1990.

30 In presenting the case for the IRS, assistant U.S. Attorney Curtis Collier, assisted by Special Agent Michael Geasley of the 31 IRS, declared that Mr. Long had gross income in excess of $49,000 for each of the years 1989 and 1990, and that he had 32 "willfully" failed to file income tax returns for those years as "required by law."

33 The defense admitted that Mr. Long did in fact have income in excess of $49,000 for each of the years in question and that 34 he did not file a return. He then proceeded to prove to the jury beyond a reasonable doubt that he was not "liable" for an 35 income tax, nor was he "required by law" to file.

36 Defense testimony presented a case titled Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad, 240 U.S. 1, wherein it was the unanimous
37 decision of the U.S. Supreme Court that the Sixteenth Amendment did not give Congress any new power to tax any new 38 subjects. It merely tried to simplify the way in which the tax was imposed. It also showed that the income tax was in fact 39 an excise tax on corporate privileges and privileged occupations.

1 The defense then brought out a case entitled Flint v. Stone Tracy, 220 U.S. 107, wherein an excise tax was defined as a tax
2 being laid upon the manufacture, sale and consumption of commodities within the country upon licenses to pursue certain
3 occupations and upon corporate privileges.

4 Mr. Long's attorneys also brought out a case entitled Simms v. Arehns, cite omitted, wherein the court ruled that the 5 income tax was neither a property tax nor a tax upon occupations of common right, but was an excise tax.

6 The defense then brought out a case entitled Redfield v. Fisher, cite omitted, wherein the court ruled that the individual,
7 unlike the corporation, cannot be taxed for the mere privilege of existing but that the individual's right to live and
8 own property was a natural right upon which an excise tax cannot be imposed. Defense also pointed to a couple of 9 studies done by the Congressional Research Service that shows the income tax is an excise tax.

10 Next, defense pointed out that in the Tennessee Supreme Court Case Jack Cole v. Commissioner, cite omitted, the court
11 ruled that citizens are entitled by right to income or earnings and that could not be taxed as a privilege. And, in another 12 Tennessee Supreme Court Case, Corn v. Fort, cite omitted, the court ruled that individuals have a right to combine their 13 activities as partnerships and that this is a natural right, independent and antecedent of government.

14 The prosecution did not challenge or attempt to refute any of the cases cited or the conclusions of the courts.

15 Defense brought out in testimony the fact that nowhere in the Internal Revenue Code was anyone actually made liable for 16 the income tax. They showed that in the IRS' own privacy act notice only three sections were cited and that none of these 17 sections made anyone liable for the tax. They also proved that this was not an oversight by showing that the alcohol tax was 18 worded so clearly that no one could misinterpret who was made liable for the alcohol tax.

19 [Editorial note: Why do you think the Internal Revenue Code is over 9,000 pages? How many decent, desperate Americans
20 can (1) afford to buy Title 26 - both volumes? And (2) Once they open up this labyrinth of deceptive mish-mash, they give 21 up, take a gun to their head and pull the trigger. Yes, this has happened too many times. Keep passing more and more and 22 more laws so no one can find the one sentence which makes us liable and in this case, it doesn't exist!]

23 Prosecution did not challenge or attempt to refute this point, nor were they able to show a statute that made anyone 24 liable for the income tax.

25 Defense then presented the mission statement of the IRS stating that the income tax relied upon "voluntary compliance" and 26 a statement from the head of alcohol and tobacco tax division of the IRS which in essence showed that the income tax is 27 100% voluntary, as opposed to the alcohol tax which is 100% enforced.

28 [Editorial note: I have a copy of the February 3, 1953 hearings before A Subcommittee Of The Committee On Ways and 29 Means, House of Representatives, Eighty-Third Congress: Administration of the Internal Revenue Laws, Part A, page 13
30 and I quote Dwight D. Avis, Head of Alcohol, Tobacco Tax Division:

31 "Let me point this out now: Your income tax is 100 percent VOLUNTARY tax and your liquor tax is 100 enforced tax.
32 Now, the situation is as different as day and night. Consequently, your same rules just will not apply and therefore the 33 alcohol and tobacco tax has been handled here in this reorganization a little differently because of the very nature of it, than 34 the rest of the over all tax problem."

35 Try not filing and you will end up just like Mr. Long because 90% of the judges in this country at the federal level are 36 rotten to the core. You think they can't read the law? Please.]

37 Mr. Long stated that in 1988 he knew that the income tax was in fact an excise tax and that he was not enjoying any 38 corporate privileges nor engaged in any privileged occupation, that income or earnings from the exercise of common right
39 could not be taxed as an excise or otherwise, that nowhere in the IR Code was he made liable for the tax and that the 40 income tax was voluntary. But, Mr. Long was still so intimidated by the IRS that he filed and paid his voluntary 41 assessment.

1 He then began a series of letters to the IRS explaining that he had no licenses or privileges issued to him by the federal
2 government. He asked for direct answers to simple questions such as "Am I required to file federal income tax returns?"
3 and "Am I liable for federal income taxes?" The IRS never gave a direct answer to any of his questions. Instead, they
4 inferred and insinuated and extrapolated and beat around the bush and generally avoided answering. As a result, Mr. Long
5 testified that he decided to stop "volunteering."

6 The IRS brought two "expert" witnesses. Both were actually IRS employees who had received training as professional
7 witnesses. Upon cross-examination by Mr. Becraft, one witness stated that a secret code known only to the IRS and 8 encoded on Mr. Long's permanent record [Note: This is the IMF, Individual Master File], showed that the IRS knew he
9 was not required to mail or file a return. The witness made every effort to avoid this admission, to the point that she was 10 beginning to frustrate the jury. The other witness, upon cross-examination by Mr. Becraft, gave testimony that conflicted 11 with the privacy act notice.

12 The government also attempted to insinuate "guilt by association" in that they claimed Mr. Long had known and replied
13 upon persons of questionable character. The argued that the writers of some of the books he read and people he knew had 14 been convicted of tax-related charges in the past and were, in fact, criminals.

15 Mr. Long responded that just because a person had been convicted of a crime by a court, this did not invalidate everything
16 he said. To illustrate, he pointed out that the Apostle Paul was a murderer but that by the Grace of God, he became the 17 greatest of the Apostles. He added that he, Mr. Long, did not rely on anything that he did not personally check out 18 thoroughly.

19 In summation, Mr. Becraft reminded the jury that Galileo was imprisoned for holding a belief that conflicted with what 20 everyone else knew as a "fact" and that Columbus, acting on a belief which conflicted with what everyone else knew was a 21 "fact," discovered something no one else thought existed.

22 The government had screened the jury pool for their favorite type of juror. But these twelve local Tennessee citizens, after 23 listening carefully to the evidence and arguments presented in the courtroom and after studying Mr. Long's information in 24 the jury room , found him 100% "No Guilty!" on all counts. They have ventured into hitherto uncharted territory in their 25 monumental decision. with this case.

26 A Chattanooga TV station quoted a government spokesman as saying that this case will change the way the IRS will handle
27 such cases in the future. They indicated that they (the government) will be less likely to prosecute if a jury wasn't going to 28 decide in their favor.

29 Mr. Long's spirit was best expressed when he was asked for a final statement by a reporter as he was leaving the courtroom.
30 His words, "Glory be to God." End of article.

31 This case is CR-1-93-1, United States of America v. Lloyd Long filed in the U.S. District Court, Eastern District of 32 Tennessee and was decided on October 15, 1993. Naturally, one heard not a peep from Gunga Din Dan Blather, Tom 33 Brokenjaw or any of the other "news" mouthpieces for the government.

34 One of our readers further investigated this story and below is his report confirming its accuracy:

1 9. DEFINITIONS

2 alien: A person born in a foreign country, who owes his allegiance to that country; one not a citizen or national of the country
3 in which he is living. A RESIDENT ALIEN is a person admitted to permanent resident status in the country by the 4 immigration authorities but who has not been granted citizenship.

5 An alien is a “person” within the meaning of the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. 347 U.S. 522,
6 530. And alienage is treated as a “suspect” classification for purposes of equal protection analysis. For example, the 7 Supreme Court has invalidated statuses that prevent aliens from entering a state’s civil service and from receiving
8 educational benefits. But where a job is “bound up with the operation of the State as a governmental entity”—
9 policemen and public school teachers, for example—states may exclude aliens. 441 U.S. 68, 73.³

10 burden of proof: A rule of evidence that makes a person prove a certain thing or the contrary will be assumed by the court. For 11 example, in criminal trials, the prosecution has the burden of proving the accused guilt because innocence is 12 presumed.

13 citizen of the United States: — defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401. In the context of federal statutes: Means a person born or 14 naturalized in the federal United States (federal zone) and a subject citizen of Congress. Typically, the U.S.
15 government allows “nationals”, who are persons born outside the federal zone and inside the 50 states to declare that
16 they are “U.S. citizens” so that they can volunteer to become completely subject to the jurisdiction of the federal 17 courts and become the proper subjects of the Internal Revenue Code, but technically, they are not “U.S. citizens” in 18 the context of federal statutes as legally defined. “U.S. citizens” are possessors of statutory ‘civil’ rights and 19 privileges granted by Congress and stipulated by statute, code or regulation, found mostly in 48 U.S.C. §1421b. In 20 the context of the Constitution and the rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court: A “national of the United States” born in 21 any one of the states of the Union and not on federal territory and defined under 8 U.S.C. §1408 .

22 claim: the assertion of a right to money or property; the aggregate of operative facts giving rise to a right enforceable in the 23 courts. A claim must show the existence of a right, an injury, and a prayer for damages. In tax cases, this means that 24 the petitioner who is litigating against wrongful taking of taxes must show a law or Constitutional right that has been 25 violated in the process of illegally taking taxes, a harm or injury that is quantifiable because of that taking, such that 26 the court can award damages against the IRS. Otherwise, the tax case will be dismissed without prejudice because it
27 lacks merit. Naïve and inexperienced tax freedom advocates who represent themselves in court as pro se litigants
28 quite commonly do not specify a claim upon which they can base their case and usually end up being assessed
29 attorney fees and having their case dismissed by the courts.

30 coercion: “Compulsion; constraint; compelling by force or arms or threat. General Motors v. Belvins, D.C.Colo., 144 F.Supp.
31 381, 384. It may be actual, direct, or positive, as where physical force is used to compel act against one’s will, or 32 implied, legal or constructive, as where one party is constrained by subjugation to another to do what his free will 33 would refuse. As used in testamentary law, any pressure by which testator’s action is restrained against his free will 34 in the execution of his testament. “Coercion” that vitiates confession can be mental as well as physical, and question
35 is whether accused was deprived of his free choice to admit, deny, or refuse to answer. Garrity v. State of N.J., 36 U.S.N.J., 385 U.S. 493, 87 S.Ct. 616, 618, 17 L.Ed.2d 562.

37 A person is guilty of criminal coercion if, with purpose to unlawfully restrict another’s freedom of action to his 38 detriment, he threatens to: (a) commit any criminal offense; or (b) accuse anyone of a criminal offense; or (c) expose
39 any secret tending to subject any person to hatred, contempt or ridicule, or to impair his credit or business repute; or 40 (d) take or withhold action as an official, or cause an official to take or withhold action. Model Penal Code, §212.5.

41 See also Duress; Extortion; Threat; Undue influence.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 258]

color: “Pretense of official right to do an act made by one who has no such right. An act under color of office is an act of any officer who claims authority to do the act by reason of his own office when the office does not confer on him any such authority.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition]

color of office: “A claim or assumption of right to do an act by virtue of an office, made by a person who is legally destitute of such right.” Feller v. Gates, 40 Or. 543, 67 P. 416, 56 L.R.S. 630, 91 Am.St.Rep. 492. [Black’s Law Dictionary, 4th Edition]

common right: Right derivative from common law. Strother v. Lucas, 37 U.S. (12 Pet.) 410, 437, 9 L.Ed. 1137. Right peculiar to certain people is not a common right. Perdue v. Zoning Bd. Of Appeals of the City of Norwalk, 118 Conn. 174, 171 A. 26, 28. [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition]

compel: The following definitions are offered for the word compel. These definitions bear directly on any arguments having to do with the exercise of 5th Amendment rights as it pertains to the filing of income tax returns :

“To urge forcefully, under extreme pressure. The word ‘compel’ as used in constitutional right to be free from being compelled in a criminal case to be a witness against one’s self means to be subjected to some coercion, fear, terror, inducement, trickery or threat—either physically or psychologically, blatantly or subtly; the hallmark of compulsion is the presence of some operative force producing an involuntary response. U.S. v. Escandar, C.A. Fla., 465 F.2d 438, 442”

The Random House Dictionary of the English Language defines “compel” as follows:

“1. To force, drive, esp. to a course of action. 2. To secure or bring about by force. 3. To force to submit; subdue. 4. To overpower.”

definition: A description of a thing by its properties; an explanation of the meaning of a word or term. The process of stating the exact meaning of a word by means of other words. Such a description of the thing defined, including all essential elements and excluding all nonessential, as to distinguish it from all other things and classes." [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 423] discovery: The term used to describe various methods for obtaining evidence in advance of trial, including such things as interrogatories, depositions and various motions to permit the inspection of documents etc.

distrain: the act or process of distraint, whereby a person (the DISTRAINOR), without prior court approval, seizes the personal property of another located upon the distrainer's land in satisfaction of a claim, as a pledge for the performance of a duty, or in reparation of an injury. Where goods are seized in satisfaction of a claim, the distrainer can hold the goods until the claim is paid and, failing payment, may sell them in satisfaction. Originally, distress was a landlord's remedy (see lien [LANDORD'S LIEN], 324 A.2d 102, 104) and was distinguishable from attachment, which is a court-ordered seizure of goods or property. The persons whose goods are distrained upon has recourse against the wrongful distrainer in replevin.

Distrain has been superseded in most states of the United States by statutory provisions for debt collection, the enforcement of security interests, and landlord-tenant relations.

donation: A gift. A transfer of the title of property to one who receives it without paying for it. The act by which the owner of a thing voluntarily transfers the title and possession of the same from himself to another person, without any consideration. [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 487]

due process: administering of law through courts of justice in accordance with established and sanctioned legal principles and procedures, and with safeguards for the protection of individual rights. As determined by custom and law, due process has become a guarantee of civil as well as criminal rights. In the United States, the phrase due process first appears in the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, ratified in 1791. Because the amendment refers specifically to federal and not state actions, another amendment was necessary to include the states. This was accomplished by the 14th Amendment, ratified in 1868. Thus was established at both federal and state levels that no person "shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law." The guarantee of due process requires that no person be deprived of life, liberty, or property without a fair and adequate process. In criminal proceedings this guarantee includes the fundamental aspects of a fair trial, including the right to adequate notice in advance of the trial, the right to counsel, the right to confront and cross-examine witnesses, the right to refuse self-incriminating testimony, and the right to have all elements of the crime proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

duress: "Any unlawful threat or coercion used by a person to induce another to act (or to refrain from acting) in a manner he or she otherwise would not (or would). Subjecting person to improper pressure which overcomes his will and coerces him to comply with demand to which he would not yield if acting as free agent. Head v. Gadsden Civil Service Bd., Ala.Civ.App., 389 So.2d 516, 519. Application of such pressure or constraint as compels man to go against his will, and takes away his free agency, destroying power of refusing to comply with unjust demands of another. Haumont v. Security State Bank, 220 Neb. 809, 374 N.W.2d 2,6.

A contract entered into under duress by physical compulsion is void. Also, if a party's manifestation of assent to a contract is induced by an improper threat by the other party that leaves the victim no reasonable alternative, the contract is voidable by the victim. Restatement, Second, Contracts §§174, 175.

As a defense to a civil action, it must be pleaded affirmatively. Fed.R.Civil P. 8(c).

As an affirmative defense in criminal law, one who, under the pressure of an unlawful threat from another human being to harm him (or to harm a third person), commits what would otherwise be a crime may, under some circumstances, be justified in doing what he did and thus not be guilty of the crime in question. See Model Penal Code §2.09. See also Coercion; Economic duress; Extortion; Undue influence."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 504]

employee: (see 26 U.S.C. §3401(c)) For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation. Refer to section 3.6.1.1 for further explanation.

employer: (see 26 U.S.C. §3401(d)). For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" means the person for whom an individual performs or performed any service, of whatever nature, as the employee of such person, except that -

(1) if the person for whom the individual performs or performed the services does not have control of the payment of the wages for such services, the term "employer" (except for purposes of subsection (a)) means the person having control of the payment of such wages, and

(2) in the case of a person paying wages on behalf of a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States, the term "employer" (except for purposes of subsection (a)) means such person.

FOIA: The Freedom Of Information Act. FOIA is the secret key to unlock a vast amount of information, especially information about you. Thanks to this act, everyday citizens have access to records, files, and other information just for the asking. Of course you are required to use the proper format in your request, but extremely valuable information can be obtained by using this simple procedure that very few use. The IRS, for instance, keeps literally countless secret files on citizens (law-abiding or not) of the United States. Most folks would be interested in knowing

1 what kind of information is being kept on them by the government. By using FOIA, you can find out what they know
2 what they don't.... in addition to protecting yourself and building your case against them.

3 foreign country: IRS Pub 54, Year 2000, page 12, defines this term as follows:

4 “A foreign country usually is any territory (including the air space and territorial waters) under the sovereignty of a
5 government other than that of the United States.... The term ‘foreign country’ does not include Puerto Rico, Guam,
6 the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, or U.S. possessions such as American 7 Samoa.”

8 You will note that this definition is consistent with 26 U.S.C. §7701, which defines “United States” as the District of 9 Columbia and the States” and “State” as the District of Columbia. Another way of stating this is that the “U.S.”
10 includes only the “federal zone” as used in the tax code and as described in section 4.7. With this definition in mind,
11 the 50 states of the United States of America are considered as foreign countries while any federal possession or 12 territory is considered part of the “federal zone”.

13 Foreign government: “The government of the United States of America, as distinguished from the government of the several 14 states.” (Black’s Law Dictionary, 5th Edition; removed from the Sixth and Seventh Editions by a legal profession that 15 wants to hide the truth and sell you into slavery to the U.S. government by unlawfully extending the jurisdiction for 16 personal income taxes outside the federal zone.)

17 Foreign Laws: “The laws of a foreign country or sister state.” (Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition)

18 Foreign States: “Nations outside of the United States...Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state. The term
19 ‘foreign nations’, ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the action is brought;
20 and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense.” (Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition)

21 forum: Lat. A court of justice, or judicial tribunal; a place of jurisdiction; a place of litigation; an administrative body.
22 Particular place where judicial or administrative remedy is pursued. See also Venue. (Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth 23 Edition). The federal district, circuit, and Supreme courts and the “federal zone” constitute the forum within which 24 the government of the United States operates and exercises exclusive jurisdiction. In more limited cases, it also has 25 jurisdiction in criminal matters that involve multiple states.

26 income: Below is the definition, taken from the Supreme Court case of Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920) and the 27 definition found in Bouvier’s Law Dictionary:

28 ‘Income may be defined as the gain derived from capital, from labor, or from both combined,’ provided it be 29 understood to include profit gained through a sale or conversion of capital assets, to which it was applied in the

31 Internal Revenue Service: The current name of the “Bureau of Internal Revenue” (BIR) of Puerto Rico. The “Federal Alcohol
32 Administration” created on 8-29-1935, 49 Stat. 977; 27 U.S.C. § 201, was abolished and absorbed in the BIR on 4-2-
33 1940 by Reorganization Plan No. III of 1940, 5 F.R. (Federal Register) 2107, 54 Stat. 1232, set out in the Appendix
34 to Title 5, Government Organization and Employees. Department of the Treasury Order (TDO) 221 of July 1, 1972,
35 established the BATF and transferred to it the alcohol and functions of the Internal Revenue Service. Public law 97-
36 258 §5(b), Sept 13, 1982, 96 Stat. 1068, 1085 repealed §2 of the 1940 Reorganization Plan No III and the first
37 section of which enacted Title 31, Money and Finance. Reference: US Statues at Large and 27 U.S.C. §201

38 levy, n: A seizure. The obtaining of money by legal process through seizure and sale of property; the raising of the money for 39 which an execution has been issued.

40 The process whereby a sheriff or other state official empowered by writ or other judicial directive actually seizes, or 41 otherwise brings within her control, a judgment debtor's property which is taken to secure or satisfy the judgment.

42 In reference to taxation, the word may mean the legislative function and declaration of the subject and rate or 43 amount of taxation. People v. Mahoney, 13 Cal.2d 729, 91 P.2d 1029; or the rate of taxation rather than the physical 44 act of applying the rate to the property, Lowden v. Texas County Excise Board, 187 Okl. 365 103 P.2d 98, 100; or the

1 formal order, by proper authority declaring property subject to taxation at fixed rate at its assessed valuation, State v.
 2 Davis, 335 Mo. 159, 73 S.W.2d 406, 407; or the ministerial function of assessing, listing and extending taxes, City of
 3 Plankinton v. Kieffer, 70 S.D. 329, 17 N.W.2d 494, 495, 496; or the extension of the tax, Day v. Inland Steel Co., 185
 4 Minn. 53, 239 N.W. 776, 777; or the doing of whatever is necessary in order to authorize the collector to collect the 5 tax, Syracuse Trust Co. v. Board of Sup'rs of Oneida County, 13 N.Y.S.2d 390, 394. When used in connection with 6 authority to tax, denotes exercise of legislative function, whether state or local, determining that a tax shall be imposed
 7 and fixing amount, purpose and subject of the exaction. Carkonen v. Williams, 76 Wash.2d 617, 458 P.2d 280, 286.

11 lien: A claim, encumbrance, or charge on property for payment of some debt, obligation or duty. Sullins v. Sullins, 6
 12 Wash.2d 283, 396 P.2d 886, 888. Qualified right of property which a creditor has in or over specific property of his 13 debtor, as security for the debt or charge or for performance of some act. Right or claim against some interest in 14 property created by law as an incident of contract. Right to enforce charge upon property of another for payment or 15 satisfaction of debt or claim. Vaughan v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co., Tex.Civ.App., 61 S.W.2d 189, 190.
 16 Right to retain property for payment of debt or demand. Bell v. Dennis, 43 N.M. 350, 93 P.2d 1003, 1006. Security
 17 for a debt, duty or other obligation. Hurley v. Boston R. Holding Co., 315 Mass. 591, 54 N.E.2d 183, 193. Tie that 18 binds property to a debt or claim for its satisfaction. United States v. 1364.76875 Wine Gallons, More or Less, of 19 Spirituous Liquors, D.C.Mo., 60 F.Supp. 389, 392. Liens are "property rights". In re Pennsylvania Central Brewing
 20 Co., C.C.A.Pa., 114 F.2d 1010, 1013. The word "lien" is a generic term and, standing alone, includes liens acquired 21 by contract or by operation of law. Egyptian Supply Co. v. Boyd, C.C.A.Ky., 117 F.2d 608, 612.

22 A charge against or interest in property to secure payment of a debt or performance of an obligation. Bankruptcy
 23 Code §101.

24 Lien by operation of law. Where the law itself, without the stipulation of the parties, raises a lien, as an implication
 25 or legal consequence from the relation of the parties or the circumstances of their dealings. Liens of this species may 26 arise either under the rules of common law or of equity or under a statute. In the first case they are called "common - 27 law liens;" in the second, "equitable liens;" in the third, "statutory liens."

28 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 922]

29 national: means a person born or naturalized outside the federal United States (federal zone) but inside the country United 30 States and who is subject to the political but not legislative jurisdiction of the federal government at the time of birth
 31 as the Fourteenth Amendment (illegally ratified) requires. Synonymous with "American Citizen", "American 32 National", "Natural Born Sovereign Citizen", or "nonresident alien". Typically, the U.S. government allows and even 33 encourages "nationals" to incorrectly declare that they are "U.S. citizens" so that they can volunteer to become 34 completely subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts and become the proper subjects of the Internal 35 Revenue Code, but technically, they are not "U.S. citizens" as legally defined. 8 U.S.C. §1452, and 8 U.S.C.
 36 §1101\(a\)\(22\)\(B\) define who are "nationals". The following code section from 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(22\)\(B\) defines the 37 type of "national" that most Americans born in the 50 union states outside of the federal zone qualify as. It is 38 highlighted to bring attention to it:

39 TITLE 8 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER 1 > Sec. 1101.
 40 Sec. 1101. - Definitions

41 (a) As used in this chapter -

42 (22) The term "national of the United States" means

43 (A) a citizen of the United States, or

44 (B) a person who, though not a citizen of the United States, owes permanent allegiance to the United States.

45 Note that the "United States" term as used in the above section refers to the federal United States, also called the 46 "federal zone". 8 U.S.C. §1401 indicates that all "citizens and nationals of the United States" are also "nationals of the United States". 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22) indicates that not all "nationals" are also "U.S. citizens". Throughout this book, when we use the term "national", we mean either a "citizen, but not a national, of the United States" as described in 8 U.S.C. §1452 and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B).

occupations of "common right": Any profession you can choose to do or undertake in private industry in any field or trade (even if its for the government) and which do not depend on the authority granted you as part of a political office, being either elected or appointed. Occupations that are not of common right are things you can only do as an officer or politician working for a government agency by virtue of the rights and privileges granted to you as a consequence of your election or appointment to that political office and the authority delegated to you by the law itself. See the case of Simms. v. Ahrens (271 SW 720) for further details.

prima facie: On its face; not requiring further support to establish existence, validity, credibility, etc. An example of this would be an allegation or assertion made by the IRS against a citizen that is never refuted. Therefore, when any kind of assertion or allegation is made that is incorrect, it is important to deny the assertion or it will often be accepted as undisputed fact by the court.

illegal tax protester: A person who resists illegally the paying of appropriate taxes. As of January 1, 1999, the U.S. Congress has eliminated the ability of the IRS to designate a taxpayer as an "illegal tax protester". Here is a part of the IRS Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998 that talks about this (form the website at <http://www.irs.gov/>):

Background: The IRS designates individuals who meet certain criteria as "illegal tax protestors" in the IRS Master File. Congress was concerned that taxpayers may be unfairly stigmatized by a designation as an illegal tax protester.

C. Change(s):

1. The IRS shall not designate any more taxpayers as "illegal tax protesters." Removal of existing "illegal tax protester" designations from the individual master file is not required to begin before January 1, 1999.
2. IRS personnel must disregard any designation in a taxpayer's file (i.e., revenue agents report or other paper records) as of the date of enactment.
3. As of the date of enactment, IRS personnel should not describe taxpayers in written documents as "illegal tax protesters."
4. The IRS may designate appropriate taxpayers as nonfilers. The IRS must remove the nonfiler designation once the taxpayer has filed valid tax returns for two consecutive years and paid all taxes shown on these returns.

D. Impact: The provision requires reprogramming master file databases.

Law: that which is laid down, ordained, or established. A rule or method according to which phenomenon or actions co-exist or follow each other. Law, in its generic sense, is a body of rules of action or conduct prescribed by the sovereign within a jurisdiction, and having binding legal force. United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co. v. Guenther, 281 U.S. 34, 50 S.Ct. 165, 74 L.Ed. 683. That which must be obeyed and followed by citizens subject to sanctions or legal consequences is a law. Law is a solemn expression of the will of the supreme power, which is the ultimate "sovereign", of the State. Calif.Civil Code, §22. The "law" of a state is to be found in its statutory and constitutional enactments, as interpreted by its courts, and, in absence of statute law, in rulings of its courts. Dauer's Estate v. Zabel, 9 Mich.App. 176, 156 N.W.2d 34, 37.

In the United States of America, the People, both collectively and individually are the "sovereigns" , according to the Supreme Court:

- Chisholm, Ex'r. v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419, 1 L.ed. 454, 457, 471, 472) (1794): "From the differences existing between feudal sovereignties and Government founded on compacts, it necessarily follows that their respective prerogatives must differ. Sovereignty is the right to govern; a nation or State-sovereign is the person or persons in whom that resides. In Europe the sovereignty is generally ascribed to the Prince; here it rests with the people; there, the sovereign actually administers the Government; here, never in a single instance; our Governors are the agents of the people, and at most stand in the same relation to their sovereign, in which regents in Europe stand to their sovereigns. Their Princes have personal powers, dignities, and pre-eminences, our rulers have none but official; nor do they partake in the sovereignty otherwise, or in any other capacity, than as private citizens."

- 1 • Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884): “There is no such thing as a power of inherent sovereignty in the 2 government of the United States...In this country sovereignty resides in the people, and Congress can exercise
3 no power which they have not, by their Constitution entrusted [delegated] to it. All else is withheld.”
- 4 • Perry v. U.S., 294 U.S. 330 (1935): “In the United States, sovereignty resides in the people...the Congress
5 cannot invoke sovereign power of the People to override their will as thus declared.”
- 6 • Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886): “Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law, for it is the 7 author and source of law...While sovereign powers are delegated to...the government, sovereignty itself
8 remains with the people.”

9 Therefore, the People are the authors of the law as the “sovereign” or supreme power of the state. The law constitutes 10 essentially a binding written legal agreement or contract among the sovereigns to conduct their affairs according to 11 some standard of conduct. The sovereign is never the proper subject or object of most laws, unless he violates the 12 contract and thereby injures the equal rights of other fellow sovereigns. Instead, the servants of the sovereign People
13 working in government are the main object and subject of most civil laws, and laws are enacted mainly with the 14 purpose to delegate and confine the authority of public servants so that they do not injure or undermine the rights of 15 the true sovereigns, the People. Furthermore, only statutes which have been enacted into “positive law” are 16 considered binding upon all persons within the jurisdiction of the law. The legislative notes under 1 U.S.C. §204
17 indicate that the Internal Revenue Code is not “positive law”, and therefore it can only be described as “special law”
18 or “private international law” (contractual law) applying to specific persons. Subtitle A of the I.R.C., in fact, is limited
19 mainly to those engaged in a “trade or business” and who work for the U.S. government as Trustees. The Internal 20 Revenue Code cannot be described either as “law” or “positive law” unless and until:

- 21 1. The IRC is first enacted into “positive law” by a majority of the representatives of the sovereign People. This 22 provides evidence that they voluntarily consented to enforcement actions required to implement the law.
23 Without such consent, no enforcement actions may be attempted, because according to the Declaration of 24 Independence, all just powers of government derive from the consent of the governed.
- 25 2. Regulations must be written by the Treasury for the enforcement provisions of the enacted positive law, and 26 these regulations must be published in the Federal Register. This puts the public on notice of the enforcement
27 actions that will be attempted against them in enforcing the law, as required by the Fifth Amendment due 28 process clauses.
- 29 3. The enforcement regulations are then incorporated into the Code of Federal Regulations, Title 26.
- 30 4. Delegation of authority orders are written for all the enforcement agents within the Internal Revenue Service 31 authorizing them to conduct enforcement actions.
- 32 5. The enforcement agents must be designated as enforcement agents by receiving a black enforcement Pocket
33 Commission and being specially trained and commissioned as “public trust” employees.

34 Unless and until all of the above have occurred, the Internal Revenue Code, according to 1 U.S.C. §204 cannot be 35 described as “law” and can only be described as “prima facie evidence of law”, which is simply “presumptive”
36 evidence of law. That means that it may be rebutted. Since “presumption” causes prejudice and prejudice is anathema
37 to any legal proceeding and violates due process of law, then the Internal Revenue Code is not admissible as evidence
38 of “law”, which means that it does not furnish any evidence that the people ever consented to its enforcement against 39 them. Consequently, it is unenforceable. Until it becomes “positive law”, it can only be described as a “code”, or a 40 “statute”, but not as “law”.

41 pseudotaxes — a term identifying revenues to the U.S. government derived from Subtitles A and C of the Internal Revenue
42 Code and collected from nonresident aliens who are not in fact and indeed: 1. Engaged in the excise taxable activity 43 called a “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”; 2. Have 44 no income from the District of Columbia; 3. Do not have a domicile in the District of Columbia. For everyone
45 meeting this criteria, the revenues collected under the authority of I.R.C. Subtitles A and C are not “taxes” as legally 46 defined, but an unconstitutional abuse of federal taxing power. Public servants in the government love to call such 47 revenues “taxes” in order to deceive the people and lend undeserved dignity to the THEFT that enforcing such a 48 system against improper parties amounts to. This is covered in Great IRS Hoax sections 5.1.2 earlier.

49 resident: under the Internal Revenue Code, an “alien” who is domiciled within either the District of Columbia or the territories
50 of the United States. This “individual” has a “res” that is “identified” within federal jurisdiction, which is limited
51 under the Internal Revenue Code to the District of Columbia and territories or possessions of the United States

1 identified in Title 48 of the U.S. Code. Federal territories are generally identified with the term “State” in the U.S.
 2 Code, while states of the Union are identified with a lower case “state” in the U.S. Code and are treated as “foreign
 3 states”. “Residents” live exclusively in federal “States” but not in “states” of the Union and therefore are not
 4 protected by the Bill of Rights within the Constitution as per Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901). Pursuant to 5 26 CFR §1.1441(c)(3)(i), an alien can be neither a “citizen” nor a “national” of the United States. The terms “alien”,
 6 “resident”, and “resident alien” are all synonymous in the Internal Revenue Code, as confirmed by 26 CFR §1.1-
 7 1(a)(2)(ii) and 26 CFR §1.1441-1(c)(3). “citizens of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 cannot legally be
 8 classified as “residents” under the Internal Revenue Code and are not authorized by the code to “elect” to be treated
 9 as one either. The reason is because the purpose of law is to protect, and a person cannot elect to lose their 10 constitutional rights and protection, even if they want to! However, by filing an IRS form 1040 or 1040A, they in 11 effect make this illegal election anyway, and the IRS looks the other way and does not prosecute such unintentional
 12 fraud because they benefit financially from it. The only way to avoid this election is to instead either file nothing or 13 to file a 1040NR form instead of a 1040 or 1040A form. The rules for electing to be treated as a resident are found in 14 IRS Publication 54: Tax Guide for U.S. citizens and Resident Aliens Abroad. See Great IRS Hoax, Section 4.10 for 15 further definition of this term and the following sections for amplification: 5.5.2, 5.5.3, and 5.4.12.

16 special law:

17 “One relating to particular persons or things; one made for individual cases or for particular places or districts; one
 18 operating upon a selected class, rather than upon the public generally. A private law. A law is “special” when it is 19 different from others of the same general kind or designed for a particular purpose, or limited in range or confined to 20 a prescribed field of action or operation. A “special law” relates to either particular persons, places, or things or to 21 persons, places, or things which, though not particularized, are separated by any method of selection from the whole
 22 class to which the law might, but not such legislation, be applied. Utah Farm Bureau Ins. Co. v. Utah Ins. Guaranty
 23 Ass’n, Utah, 564 P.2d 751, 754. A special law applies only to an individual or a number of individuals out of a 24 single class similarly situated and affected, or to a special locality. Board of County Comm’rs of Lemhi County v.
 25 Swensen, Idaho, 80 Idaho 198, 327 P.2d 361, 362. See also Private bill; Private law. Compare General law; Public
 26 Law.”

27 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1398]

28 The Internal Revenue Code, 26 U.S.C., Subtitle A, Income Taxes, for instance, is special law that applies ONLY
 29 to the District of Columbia and federal territories over which the United States government exercises exclusive
 30 legislative jurisdiction, but not including nonfederal areas within the borders of the several states. The U.S.
 31 Government, however, has done a fine job making the tax code LOOK like it is general law. Most Congressmen
 32 know this, of course, and if you write them to ask if the I.R.C. is special law, they have been known to try to avoid 33 answering or have given weasel-worded answers. See <http://www.supremelaw.org> and the case of People v. Boxer
 34 for more details on an example of this.

35 source of income: “Place where, or circumstances from which, income at issue is produced. Union Electric Co. v. Coale, 347
 36 Mo. 175, 146 S.W.2d 631, 635.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 1395]

37 State: in the context of federal statutes, federal court rulings, and this book means a federal State of the United States, the 38 District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Northern Marina Islands, and includes areas within the 39 external boundaries of a state owned by or ceded to the United States of America. Federal “States” are defined in 4
 40 U.S.C. §110(d) and 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(10). In the context of the U.S. Constitution only, “State” means a sovereign
 41 “state” as indicated below. The reason the constitution is different is because of who wrote it. The states wrote it so
 42 they are capitalized. Federal statutes are not written by the sovereign states so they use the lower case “state” to 43 describe the sovereign 50 states, which are foreign and outside the territorial jurisdiction of the U.S. government.

44 “It is to be noted that the statute differentiates between States of the United States and foreign states by the use of a 45 capital S for the word when applied to a State of the United States”
 46 [Eisenberg v. Commercial Union Assurance Company, 189 F.Supp. 500 (1960)]

47 state: in the context of federal statutes, federal court rulings, and this book means a sovereign state of the Union of America
 48 under the Constitution for the United States of America 1789-1791. In the context of the U.S. Constitution only,
 49 “State” means a sovereign “state” as defined here. Below is a further clarification of the meaning of “states” as

1 defined by the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of O'Donoghue v. United States, 289 U.S. 516 (1933), where they
2 define what is not a “state”:

3 After an exhaustive review of the prior decisions of this court relating to the matter, the following propositions,
4 among others, were stated as being established:

5 '1. That the District of Columbia and the territories are not states within the judicial clause of the Constitution
6 giving jurisdiction in cases between citizens of different states;

7 '2. That territories are not states within the meaning of Rev. St. 709, permitting writs of error from this court in 8 cases where the validity of a state statute is drawn in question;

9 '3. That the District of Columbia and the territories are states as that word is used in treaties with foreign powers,
10 with respect to the ownership, disposition, and inheritance of property:

11 '4. That the territories are not within the clause of the Constitution providing for the creation of a supreme court and 12 such inferior courts as Congress may see fit to establish.'

13 Below is a summary of the meanings of “state” and “State” in the context of both federal and state laws:

14 Table 9-1: Summary of meaning of "state" and "State"

Law	Federal constitution	Federal statutes	Federal regulations	State constitutions	State statutes	State regulations
Author	Union States/ "We The People"	Federal Government		"We The People"	State Government
"state"	Foreign country	Union state	Union state	Other Union state or federal government	Other Union state or federal government	Other Union state or federal government
"State"	Union state	Federal state	Federal state	Union state	Union state	Union state
"in this State" or "in the State" ⁴	NA	NA	NA	NA	Federal enclave within state	Federal enclave within state
"State" ⁵ (State Revenue and taxation code only)	NA	NA	NA	NA	Federal enclave within state	Federal enclave within state

15 So what the above table clearly shows is that the word “State” in the context of federal statutes and regulations
16 means (not includes!) federal States only under Title 48 of the U.S. Code⁶, and these areas do not include any of the 17 50 Union States. The word “state” in the context of federal statutes and regulations means one of the 50 union states, 18 which are “foreign sovereigns”, “foreign states”, and “foreign countries” with respect to the federal government as 19 clearly explained later in section 5.2.11 of this book. In the context of the above, a “Union State” means one of the 20 50 states of the United States* (the country, not the federal United States).

6 government and the laws and that state. He is also treated as a “national of the United States” or a “non-citizen U.S.
7 national”. “State nationals” are defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B), 8 U.S.C. §1452, 8
8 U.S.C. §1408(2), and are indirectly referenced under The Law of Nations, Book I, section 215.

9 Tax: A charge by the government on the income of an individual, corporation, or trust, as well as the value of an estate or

28 “taxes”, as legally defined, are a mandatory payment to the government exacted by operation of law which is not 29 voluntary and which support only the government. If the monies paid can be used for wealth transfer or supporting 30 private persons or organizations, then they do not qualify as “taxes”, according to the U.S. Supreme Court

31 To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it

38 Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John’s Church, 13 Pa. St., 104 says, very forcibly, ‘I think the common mind
39 has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the government
40 for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are imposed for a

45 “Taxes” which are paid voluntarily and/or which are spent on wealth transfer or to support private purposes are 46 referred to as “donations”, and when their payment is enforced, they are called “extortion”.

47 Tax Class: A one digit number indicating the type of tax that a tax falls under. This number appears in the Individual Master
48 File (IMF) maintained by the taxpayer. This number or digit is the third digit of the DLN, or Document Locator
49 Number, assigned to each document that is entered in an Individual Master File. The Tax Class codes are as follows:

1	0 = IRAF
2	1 = Withholding and Social Security
3	2 = Individual Income Tax
4	3 = Corporate Income Tax
5	4 = Excise Tax
6	5 = Estate and Gift Tax
7	7 = CT-1
8	8 = FUTA

9 This number appears throughout the IRS' IMF file maintained on each individual, and it is also associated with 10 specific forms of the Internal Revenue Service. Use of this code within the individual's IMF is described in IRS
 11 Publication 6209. Section 2 of Publication 6209 describes the association of specific IRS forms with Tax Class
 12 codes. You can order a copy of IRS Pub. 6209 from Freedom Law School at <http://www.livefreenow.com/>.
 13 Interestingly, NOWHERE in Publication 6209 are the simple Tax Class codes defined, even though they are used
 14 extensively in that document, and furthermore, at the bottom of every page, it says "FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY".
 15 This is double speak that really says the IRS doesn't want this book getting into the hands of tax freedom fighters,
 16 which is why they keep the "secret decoder ring" (the Tax Class Codes) separated from the code listing and in other 17 innocuous publications no one seems to be able to get ahold of!

18 Below is a summary of the Tax Class codes for specific forms, derived directly from Section 2 of IRS Publication
 19 6209. It ought to be clear examining the codes below that your employment tax authorized by the W-4 form is 20 actually a gift or estate tax, and NOT an income tax, because it uses Tax Class 5!

Form	Title	Tax Class
W-2	Wage and Tax Statement	5
W-4	Employee's Withholding Certificate	5
W-4E	Exemption from Withholding Allowance Certificate	5
W-4V	Voluntary Withholding Request	5

21 Taxpayer: The term "taxpayer" means any person who is either liable to pay an any internal revenue tax or who isn't liable but 22 "volunteers" to pay anyway. Read section 3.6.1.15 for further explanation.

23 United States:

24 "This term has several meanings. It may be merely the name of a sovereign occupying the position analogous to that 25 of other sovereigns in family of nations, it may designate territory over which sovereignty of the United States
 26 extends, or it may be collective name of the states which are united by and under the Constitution. Hooven & Allison
 27 Co. v. Evatt, U.S. v. Ohio, 324 U.S. 652, 65 S.Ct. 870, 880, 89 L.Ed. 1252."
 28 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1533]

29 The term was conveniently removed from Black's Law Dictionary Seventh Edition by a legal profession that wants
 30 to hide the truth and sell you into slavery to the U.S. government by unlawfully extending the jurisdiction for 31 personal income taxes outside the federal zone. Look on the IRS website for this definition...you won't find it 32 because they don't want you to know.)

33 United States: A term which has many meanings in the context of law. Below are a few examples quoted from the Internal 34 Revenue Code (26 U.S.C.):

1 §168. Accelerated cost recovery system

21 performance of personal services) with respect to mines, oil and gas wells, and other natural deposits -

22 (1) the term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes the seabed and subsoil of those submarine
23 areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters of the United States and over which the United States has 24 exclusive rights, in accordance with international law, with respect to the exploration and exploitation of natural 25 resources; and

26 (2) the terms "foreign country" and "possession of the United States" when used in a geographical sense include the 27 seabed and subsoil of those submarine areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters of the foreign country or 28 such possession and over which the foreign country (or the United States in case of such possession) has exclusive
29 rights, in accordance with international law, with respect to the exploration and exploitation of natural resources,
30 but this paragraph shall apply in the case of a foreign country only if it exercises, directly or indirectly, taxing
31 jurisdiction with respect to such exploration or exploitation. No foreign country shall, by reason of the application
32 of this section, be treated as a country contiguous to the United States.

U.S. citizen: defined in 26 CFR §1.1-1 and 8 U.S.C. §1401. In the context of federal statutes: Means a person born or naturalized in the federal United States (federal zone) and a subject citizen of Congress. Typically, the U.S. government allows "U.S. nationals", who are persons born outside the federal zone and inside the 50 states to declare that they are "U.S. citizens" so that they can volunteer to become completely subject to the jurisdiction of the federal courts and become the proper subjects of the Internal Revenue Code, but technically, they are not "U.S. citizens" as legally defined within nearly all federal legislation and statutes. "U.S. citizens" are possessors of statutory 'civil' rights and privileges granted by Congress and stipulated by statute, code or regulation, found mostly in 48 U.S.C. §1421b.

U.S. person: this term is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) as follows:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.

Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a)(30) United States person

The term "United States person" means -

- 1 (A) a citizen or resident of the United States,
2 (B) a domestic partnership,
3 (C) a domestic corporation,
4 (D) any estate (other than a foreign estate, within the meaning of paragraph (31)), and 5 (E) any trust if -
6 (i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the trust, and 7 (ii) one or more United States persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust.

9 “Unconstrained by interference; unimpelled by another’s influence; spontaneous; acting of oneself. Coker v. State,
10 199 Ga. 20, 33 S.E.2d 171, 174. Done by design or intention. Proceeding from the free and unrestrained will of the 11 person. Produced in or by an act of choice. Resulting from free choice, without compulsion or solicitation. The 12 word, especially in statutes, often implies knowledge of essential facts. Without valuable consideration; gratuitous, 13 as a voluntary conveyance. Also, having a merely nominal consideration; as, a voluntary deed.”
14 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1575]

15 voluntary compliance: An oxymoron meant to confuse taxpayers. Voluntary implies that it is not compelled and that there is 16 no punishment for not doing it. They add the word compliance as a way to confuse the citizens into thinking that 17 they have to do it and will be punished for not doing it. However, when used in the context of income taxes, what it 18 means is that you don't have to comply and don't have to volunteer to pay income taxes.
