

PRESS RELEASE: Unmasking Irving

Immediate release:

In 1992, outrage greeted the decision of the Sunday Times to employ the services of David Irving in translating the Goebbels diaries. In July of that year, its editor, the normally cynical Andrew Neil, told its sister paper the Times: "I don't believe David Irving would mistranslate to suit his own purposes."

Neil's naïvete was already long out of date, because four years earlier Irving perjured himself when he climbed into the witness box at the trial of Zundel trial in Toronto, Canada to authenticate The Leuchter Report, the pamphlet which "proves" that the Auschwitz gas chambers did not exist. And this was far from the first time Irving has lied until he was blue in the face, as this book proves.

For someone as "controversial" as Irving, he's certainly had more than his fair share of lucky breaks. The hidden hand which he claims is trying to destroy the career of (in his eyes) Britain's premier historian, hasn't treated him too badly at all. The reason for this is that, rather than persecuting Irving, the hidden hand has been quietly assisting him at every turn.

Now, the biographer of "Nazi mole" Ray Hill, exposes another phony. In Unmasking Irving, Alexander Baron documents:

Irving's lies in Canada.

How he deceived audiences in Australia.

Why he bought the mailing list of the Conservative student organisation.

The shocking, true story of his bizarre sexual practices.

The identities of Irving's friends in high places, how they protect him and what he does for them.

The result of three years' research, this book reveals an entirely different side to David Irving from any you have seen or even suspected before. This is the book David Irving will want to ban. Read it before he does.
