ASHWAUBENON -- Andrea Rabinovitz lost her mother in 1999 -- but she's determined that her mother's stories about the Holocaust not be lost.

[...]

She told about 265 Parkview Middle School students that the descendants of Holocaust survivors have a responsibility to pick up stories where their parents left off so the world won't forget.

[...]

Her uncle Erwin was sent to the Dachau concentration camp in the early '30s and was shot for stepping on the grass -- after a guard had told him he could no longer step on the concrete.

He died in a Munich, Germany, hospital.
