

The Holocaust Historiography Project

Remarkable Nonsense about the Holocaust

Spared from non-existent 'gas chambers'

Spielberg's Holocaust foundation using survivors' films to educate

RYAN LENZ

Associated Press

September 17, 2005

<http://www.kentucky.com/mld/kentucky/news/local/12673449.htm>

EVANSVILLE, Ind. - A collection of Holocaust survivors' testimonies, filmed as a memorial to the millions who lost their lives in the Nazi-run death camps of World War II, has become an educational resource to teach cultural acceptance.

[...]

Ernie Marx, 79, of Louisville, who was spared from the gas chambers at Dachau and later escaped from a prison camp in France with the help of a Roman Catholic priest, recorded his story for the archives to ensure the human survivors of the Holocaust remain part of history.

[...]

Marx, who gives lectures on his Holocaust experiences and has taken 50 groups of schoolchildren to the Holocaust museum, said testimonies such as his are meant to be timeless lessons in a world that easily forgets the wrongs of history.

"Unfortunately there is too much ignorance floating around," Marx said. [...]

Send all questions and comments to webmaster@historiography-project.org.