

BALLENTINE'S LAW DICTIONARY

A LAW DICTIONARY WITHOUT PRONUNCIATIONS

JAMES A. BALLENTINE

THIRD EDITION

[1]

A

A. The first letter of the English alphabet, deriving from the Greek "alpha." The indefinite article. One or any one, depending upon the entire context in which it appears. State v Martin, 60 Ark 343, 30 SW 421 (holding that a constitutional provision of a constitution for "a judge" for each circuit is not a limitation upon the power of the legislature to provide for an additional judge;) First Trust Joint Stock Land Bank v Armstrong, 222 Iowa 425, 269 NW 502; Snowden v Guion, 101 NY 458, 5 NE 322 (holding that a policy insuring against loss by "a sea" covers damage to ship or cargo caused by a succession of heavy waves.)

An abbreviation, although not recommended, of acre. An algebraic symbol of a known quantity. Symbolizing, when encircled, computation at a designated rate, for example, "interest @ 6%." An abbreviation of the Welsh ap.

Latin: Used interchangeably with "ab" and abs," as the context requires, for prepositions: -from; after; in; on; of; out of; because of; with.

French: Often appearing in the form "a" in expressions having legal significance as a preposition: -to; from; at; on; in; for; with.

See an.

AAA. Abbreviation of Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Also abbreviation of American Automobile Association.

a aver et tener. To have and to hold.

Ab. The eleventh month of the year according to the Jewish lunisolar calendar.

a.b. An abbreviation of able-bodied, where used in ship's papers after the name of a sailor.

A. B. An abbreviation of Bachelor of Arts.

ABA. Abbreviation of American Bar Association.

See bar association.

abacinate. Same as abbacinate.

abaction. An abactor's theft.

ab actis. A clerk or recorder.

abactor. A cattle thief who takes in numbers.

ab aeterno. From eternity.

ab agendo. Incapacitated.

abalienare. (Civil law.) To transfer an interest or right in, or a title to, real or personal property.

abandon. To withdraw entirely from a person or a thing, putting aside all care for him or it.

To abandon a person is to withdraw from one entitled to support. A child is abandoned by his parent; a wife by her husband. Pidge v. Pidge, 44 Mass (3 Met) 257, 265. A patient may be the subject of abandonment by a physician. 41 Am J1st Phys & S § 102.

abandoned property. Property to which an owner has voluntarily relinquished all right, title, claim and possession with the intention of terminating his ownership, but without vesting it in any other person and with the intention of not reclaiming future possession or resuming ownership, possession, or enjoyment. 1 Am J2d Aband § 1.

abandonce. A person to whom property or rights are abandoned or relinquished.

abandonment for torts or wrongs. (Civil law.) The relinquishment of an animal or a slave in settlement of liability.

abandonment of attachment lien. Affirmative act or conduct of the creditor inconsistent with the continuance of the lien. 6 Am J2d Attach § 412.

abandonment of child. An actual desertion accompanied by an intention, express or implied, to sever the relation entirely and throw off the obligations growing out of the relation. 39 Am J1st P & C §§ 2, 104.

abandonment of copyright. Publication without obtaining a copyright. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 84.

abandonment of homestead. An actual relinquishment of possession of the premises and removal therefrom, coupled with an intention to abandon the use of the property as a homestead, or an intention to remain away after such removal. See 26 Am J1st Home § 193.

abandonment of invention. Voluntary declaration of a purpose to abandon or conduct inconsistent with the right to obtain patent protection. Electric Storage Battery Co. v Shimadzu, 307 US 5, 83 L Ed 1071, 59 S Ct 675.

If an inventor, after perfecting his invention and applying for a patent, and thereby irretrievably committing himself to the proposition that his invention is ripe for introduction to the public, accept the decision rejecting his application, and cast aside his invention as no longer of any value to him, he thereby makes it forever public property and forever abandons it. See Consolidated Fruit Jar Co. v Bellaire Stamping Co. (CC Ohio) 27 F 337, 381.

abandonment of patent. A defense sometimes asserted in infringement cases. 40 Am J1st P § 184.
See abandonment of invention.

abandonment of property. Intentional and absolute relinquishment of property without reference to any particular person or for any particular purpose. 1 Am J2d Aband § 1; 3 Am J2d Adv P § 77.

[2]

Abandoned property is that to which the owner has voluntarily relinquished all right, title, claim, and possession with the intention of terminating his ownership, but without vesting it in any other person, and with no intention of reclaiming possession or resuming ownership and enjoyment in the future. 1 Am J2d Aband § 1.

Abandonment is the relinquishment of a right or property with the intention of not reclaiming it or reassuming its ownership or enjoyment. Ellis v Brown (CA6 Ky) 177 F2d 677, 13 ALR2d 945.

In marine insurance, the act of the insured in notifying the insurer that owing to damage done to the subject of the insurance, he elects to take the amount of the insurance in the place of the subject thereof, the remnant of which he cedes to the insurer. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1572.

(Mining Law). "The term 'forfeiture' is often employed by miners as synonymous with abandonment." See Wiseman v McNulty, 25 Cal 230.

See derelict; dereliction; presumed dereliction; renunciation; res derelicta.

abandonment of spouse. The unjustified separation of one spouse from the other with the deliberate intention of the offender to terminate the matrimonial relation. Bennett v Bennett, 197 Md 408, 79 A2d 513, 29 ALR2d 467.

As the word is used in the state of Kentucky in a statute relative to divorce, it has been construed to include the refusal by the offending spouse to recognize and contribute to the marital relation for a period of one year, although the spouses sleep beneath the same roof. See McQuinn v McQuinn, 110 Ky 321, 328, 61 SW 360.

See desertion.

abandonment of trademark or tradename. Something more than temporary disuse; something showing not only a practical abandonment but an actual intent to abandon. 52 Am J1st Tradem § 30.

abandonment of use. A voluntary, affirmative, completed act whereby the right to resume a noncom-forming use under the zoning law is lost to the owner. 58 Am J1st Zon § 153.

abandonment to insurer. The act of the insured in notifying the insurer that owing to damage done to the subject of the insurance he elects to take the amount of the insurance in the place of the subject thereof, the remnant of which he cedes to the insurer. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1572.

See fifty percent rule, i.

abandum. A chattel confiscated or forfeited.

abannition. The punishment of banishment.

ab ante. In advance. Beforehand.

ab antecedente. In advance; beforehand.

ab antiquo. From antiquity; anciently.

See 3 Bl Comm 96.

Abarnare. To expose a concealed crime.

ab assuetis non fit injuria. The violation of a legal right is not affected by acquiescence.

abatable. Capable of abatement.

abatable nuisance. A nuisance that is not permanent, because it can be eliminated. Bischof v Merchants Nat. Bank, 75 Neb 838, 106 NW 996.

abatamenturn. The wrongful entry and taking possession of real property by a stranger, before the heir or devisee has entered.
See abatement.

abatate. To put an end to; to cut down; to reduce; to diminish.

abate. To quash, beat down, or destroy, as in the case of a nuisance or an objectionable writ.

abatement of action. The entire overthrow or destruction of an action, resulting from the fact that the defendant pleads a matter which defeats the action either for the time being or permanently. 1 Am J2d Abat & R § 1.

A suit at law, when it abates as at common law, is absolutely dead; any further enforcement of the cause of action necessitates the bringing of a new suit. But in courts of equity and also in some law courts proceeding under modern practice statutes or rules, an abatement signifies only a present sus-pension of all proceedings in the suit because of the want of proper parties capable of proceeding therein; the suit can be revived or put in motion by a bill of revivor and proceed to its regular determination. 1 Am J2d Abat & R § 1.

“Abatement” and “stay of proceedings” are in some respects similar, but are not identical; to abate a suit is to put an end to it, at least for the time. Simmons v Superior Court, 96 Cal App 2d 119, 214 P2d 844, 19 ALR2d 288.

See plea in abatement.

abatement of bequest. The process of determining the distribution of the assets left by a testator at his death among the various beneficiaries named in the will, where it appears that such assets are insufficient to pay both the debts of the testator and the expenses of administrating his estate and also all of the legacies and devices called for by the will. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1457.

abatement of cause of action. The extinguishment of a cause of action upon the death of a party, where the cause is not one which survives. 1 Am J2d Abat & R § 1.

abatement of debt. Proportionate reduction of satisfaction where the fund for payment is insufficient to meet full payment. See Brown v Brown, 79 Va 648, 650.

abatement of freehold. The extinguishment of the freehold of heir or devisee by the entry of a stranger between the death of the ancestor or testator who died seized and the entry of the heir or devisee. 3 BI Comm 167.

abatement of nuisance. The extinction or termination of a nuisance whether effected physically by or under the direction of the party injured by the nuisance, or by suit instituted by him.

See summary abatement.

abatement of tax assessment. The relief granted against an assessment for illegality or irregularity in the imposition of the tax or, under some statutes, because of the impoverishment of the taxpayer. 51 Am J1st Tax §§ 743 et seq.

abator. An occupier without color of title.

A stranger was so called if where a person died seized of an inheritance, and before the heir or devisee entered, the stranger, who had no right, made an entry and got possession of the freehold. See Brown v Burdick, 25 Ohio St 260, 268.

[3]

ab auctoritate. From authority or precedent.

abavus. A great-great-grandfather. See 2 Bl Comm 207.

The feminine form "abavia" stands for great-great-grandmother.

abbacinate. To put out the eyes.

abbacy. An abbey and its appurtenances; the jurisdiction of an abbot; the rights and privileges of an abbot.

abbatial. Pertaining to an abbey or an abbot.

abbess. The female head of a nuns' convent, corresponding to the abbot of a monastery.

abbey. A monastery of monks or a convent of nuns.

abbey-land. An estate in real property annexed to an abbey.

abbot. The head monk of a monastery; an Episcopal rector who is head clergyman of a parish.

abbreviate. Verb: to shorten. Noun: an abstract of a longer instrument or writing.

abbreviate of adjudication. Abstract of judgment.

abbreviations. Shortened forms of words obtained by omitting one or more letters or syllables, or by using various signs, symbols, and characters.

The abbreviations more commonly used in modern times consist of initial letters or syllables, the omissions of intermediate syllables, etc., usually being designated contractions. 1 Am J2d Abbr § 1.

abbreviationum, ille numerus et sensus accipiendus est, ut concessio non sit inanis. In abbreviations, that number and sense should be taken which will not avoid the grant.

abbrochment. The ancient offense of forestalling.

ABC. A game of chance, prohibited as gambling where played for a stake. Anno: 135 ALR 120.

ABC Powers. Argentina, Brazil, and Chile.

ABC transaction. A tax-law term for three-party arrangement in financing the purchase of a mineral lease.

abdicate. Entirely to renounce, throw off, disown, relinquish. People v Board of Police (NY) 26 Barb 487, 501.

abdication. The renunciation or abandonment by a person of an office, trust, or sovereignty to which he is entitled.

The word is also frequently applied to a government, as where a government is said to abdicate its taxing power.

abdicio tutelae. (Civil Law). The resignation of a guardian.

abditorium. A hiding place for the safe-keeping of valuables and relics.

abduct. To take a child from its parent or a wife from her spouse surreptitiously or by force. Doss v State, 220 Ala 30, 123 So 231, 68 ALR 712; 1 Am J2d Abduct § 2.

The word is derived from the Latin word "abducere" and means "to lead away." Anno: 68 ALR 719.

abduction. Unlawful interference with a family relationship by taking or leading a person away, for example, the taking of a child from its parent, irrespective of the consent of the person taken. 1 Am J2d Abduct § 2. Illegally leading away or carrying off a person, more especially the taking or carrying away of a wife, child, a ward, or a voter, by fraud, persuasion, or open violence.

The offense is against the family relationship rather than the person taken and may be committed irrespective of his consent to the taking. 1 Am J2d Abduct § 2.

See kidnapping; ravishment. abductor. One who abducts. See abduction.

abearance. "Recognizance with sureties for good behavior. It includes security for the peace, and somewhat more." See 4 Bl Comm 256.

ab epistolis. A subordinate in charge of correspondence.

abet. To give aid, to assist, especially in the commission of a criminal offense. To exertion of a force, physical or moral, joined with that of another in the perpetration of a criminal offense. Anno: 5 ALR 786.

Although there are some offenses which are so defined by statute or by common law that they may be committed only by certain persons or classes of persons, nevertheless a person not within the class of those by whom the crime may be directly perpetrated may, by aiding and abetting a person who is within the scope of the definition, render himself criminally liable. Anno: 131 ALR 1322.

See accessory; accomplice; aiding and abetting.

abetment. The act of abetting.

abettare. To aid or abet.

abettor. One who aids, abets or instigates; one who advises, counsels, procures, or encourages another to commit a crime. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 119.

ab extra. From without; from outside.

Extraneous evidence introduced to explain a writing is sometimes called "ab extra." Lunt v Holland, 14 Mass 149, 151.

abeyance. In expectation, remembrance, and contemplation in law.

An estate in fee is in abeyance where there is no person in esse in whom it may vest and abide, although the law considers it as always potentially existing and ready to vest when a proper person in whom it may vest appears. 28 Am J2d Est § 10.

abeyant. The state or condition of an estate or fee which is in abeyance.

abide. To dwell, to obey; to comply with; to perform; to execute; to conform to; as to abide the judgment or order of the court. Jackson v State, 30 Kan 88, 1 P 317.

See costs to abide event.

abiding conviction. An expression sometimes used in instructing juries respecting reasonable doubt and there having the signification of settled and fixed, a conviction which may follow a careful examination and comparison of the whole evidence. Hopt v Utah, 120 US 430, 30 L Ed 708, 7 S Ct 614.

abiding faith. A belief or confidence in the guilt of one accused of crime, which remains or continues in the minds of the jury. See Patzward v United States, 7 Okla 232, 54 P 458.

[4]

abiding place. A place of abode.
See domicil; residence.

abigeus. A cattle-stealer, singular of "abigei."

ability to act or perform. See capacity.

ability to pay debts. See able to pay; insolvency.

ability to support. As an element of nonsupport constituting a ground for divorce: -the capacity to work gainfully and opportunity to do so; in some jurisdictions, the possession of property or funds from which support may be provided. 24 Am J2d Divorce & S § 143.

ab impossibili. From an impossibility.

ab inconvenienti. From inconvenience.

ab initio. From the beginning.
See trespass ab initio; unlawful ab initio.

ab initio mundi. From the beginning of the world.

ab intestato. From one who left no will, that is, succession to the property of one who dies intestate.

ab intra. From within.

ab invito. Against one's will.

ab irato. In anger.

abishering. The right or privilege of being freed and exempt from forfeitures and amercements.

abjudicate. To deprive by a judgment; to adjudge to be wrong or unlawful.

abjuration of the realm. Originally a renunciation of one's country, upon oath of perpetual banishment, and the doctrine of abjuring the realm, by which a husband became civilly dead, was an incident of the right of sanctuary, which was abolished by statute under James the First. The meaning of the word has changed until it implies simply a total abandonment of the state; a departure from the state without intention of returning. Mead v Hughes' Adm. 15 Ala 141.

See expatriation.

able. Legally qualified; legally authorized. Fit for a task.

See capacity; infancy; insanity. able and willing.

See ready.

able-bodied. The absence of those palpable and visible defects, which evidently incapacitate the person from performing ordinary duties but not necessarily absence from all physical defects. Darling v Bowen, 10 Vt 148, 152.

able buyer. A purchaser who has the money at the time to make any cash payment that is required and who is in condition financially to meet any deferred payments. Reynor v Mackrill, 181 Iowa 210, 164 NW 335, 1 ALR 523. Not one who might have property upon which he could raise the necessary money. Reynor v Mackrill, 181 Iowa 210, 164 NW 335, 1 ALR 523, 528.

A purchaser is not "able" where he is depending upon third parties who are in no way bound to furnish the funds to make the purchase. Anno: 1 ALR 528.

ablegate. An envoy of the Pope.

able to pay. In a majority of the jurisdictions it is held that a promise to pay when the promisor "is able" is a conditional, and not an absolute promise to pay, and that the promisee is not entitled to recover on such a promise unless the promisor is able to pay the debt.

The minority view is that this is an absolute and not a conditional promise. 17 Am J2d Contr § 341.

ablocate. To lease; to let for hire.

abnegate. To give up; to surrender; to renounce.

abnormally dangerous. Fraught with peril not necessarily or inherently connected with the place or thing.

Employees act within their rights in quitting work on the ground that the premises have become "abnormally dangerous," where an accumulation of dust, grit, and dangerous abrasives is consequent upon the failure of a blower. NLRB v Knight Morley Corp. (CA6) 251 F2d 753, cert den 357 US 927, 2 L Ed 2d 1370, 78 S Ct 1372, reh den 358 US 858, 3 L Ed 2d 93, 79 S Ct 15.

abode. A dwelling-place; a residence. Central Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co. v Friedman, 213 Ark 9, 209 SW2d 102, 1 ALR2d 557. Sometimes, but not necessarily, synonymous with domicil. 25 Am J2d Dom § 4.

The term "abode" or "usual place of abode" is often synonymous with domicil, but it is not necessarily so, since in some instances one's domicil may be different from his abode. But the "permanent abode" prescribed by statute as necessary to qualify one to vote means nothing more than a domicil or home. 25 Am J2d Dom § 8.

ab olim. Formerly; in times past. 3 Bl Comm 96.

ab olim ordinatum. Formerly ordained. See 3 Bl Comm 96.

abolish. To repeal; to recall; to revoke; to cancel and eliminate entirely.

abolitio legis. The repeal of a law.

abolition. In the broad sense, an entire elimination or extinguishment, for example, the abolition of slavery by the Thirteenth Amendment; in a narrower sense, leave to stop a prosecution.

See letters of abolition.

aborticide. The killing of the fetus in the uterus.

abortifacient. Anything used to cause an abortion.

abortion. The expulsion of the fetus at a period of utero-gestation so early that it has not acquired the power of sustaining an independent life. 1 Am J2d Abort § 1.

The crime of "abortion" is the wilful bringing about of an abortion without justification or excuse. 1 Am J2d Abort § 1.

Although there may be a technical distinction recognized in medicine between abortion and miscarriage, the words are usually synonymous in law. Anderson v Commonwealth, 190 Va 665, 58 SE2d 72, 16 ALR2d 942; 1 Am J2d Abort § 1.

See Miscarriage.

abortionist. One who commits the crime of producing an abortion.

abortive. Anything used to produce an abortion or miscarriage.

[5]

abortive child. Such a child as by an untimely birth is either born dead, or incapable of living. Cottin v Cottin (La) 5 Mart 93, 94.

abortive trial. A trial in which no verdict is reached involving no misconduct of a party.

abortus (a-b(5r'tus). An aborted fetus.

about. In reference to time:-a word of flexible significance, denoting an approximation to exactness. 52 Am J1st Time § 30. Signifying present and not future action, as in a representation that one is "about to abandon" a business. 37 Am J2d Fraud § 65. In reference to area, quantity, dimension: -a word whose precise meaning depends upon the surrounding circumstances, frequently used as a synonym for "nearly" or "approximately" and for the purpose of giving a margin for excess or deficiency. 17 Am J2d Contr § 282. A qualifying word in the description of a boundary which is usually to be disregarded if not controlled or explained by monuments or other markers, but may be given meaning in effect when so controlled and explained. 12 Am J2d Bound § 57.

As used in a description of the subject matter in a contract for the sale of real estate, the term "about" is one of precaution or safety, being intended to cover slight and unimportant inaccuracies. 56 Am J1st V & P § 131.

As used in a conveyance in connection with area, the word is generally one of precaution and safety, intended to cover some unimportant inaccuracy, and has been held not to estop either party from setting up a deficiency, or surplus, sufficiently large to raise the presumption that there was not a meeting of the minds. But it has also been held that the obvious common sense meaning of such words is that the parties shall run the risk of gain or loss, and if the area proves greater or less than the area sold, they shall abide by their bargain. See 23 Am J2d Deeds § 247.

In contracts of sale of personalty in estimating the quantity to be delivered, the word is given practically the same meaning as the phrase "more or less," its use being only for the purpose of providing against accidental variations arising from slight and unimportant excesses or deficiencies in number, weight, or measure. See 46 Am J1st Sales § 156.

As used in Workmen's Compensation statutes to describe the locus of the industrial enterprise, it has been treated as enlarging the application of the act, and has been spoken of as an "elastic word." Thus, a workman may be employed "about" or "in," or "on" a factory, although he is on the street adjoining the factory, if the work he is performing is part of the factory business; and also where he is employed in a building adjoining the factory proper, although at some distance from it. 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 86.

about to. In ordinary grammatical construction, "about" before an infinitive means "on the point of" or "in the act of." It signifies present and not future action. For example, the words "about to abandon" are synonymous with "intended now to abandon." See Sallies v Johnson, 85 Conn 77, 81 A 974.

about to remove. An act in removing property, which will soon be performed, rather than one which will be performed within a definite period of time. 6 Am J2d Attach § 242.

above. Higher in the sense of position, as where something is described as above high-water mark; or in the sense of superiority, for example, a higher court. In a higher place; preceding, as where there is a reference in a will to "above bequests." 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 493.

See bail above.

above named. A sufficient reference in a certificate of acknowledgment to the party acknowledging. 1 Am J2d Ack § 66.

ab ovo. From the egg; that is, from the beginning.

Abp. Abbreviation of Archbishop.

abridge. To reduce; to cut down; to omit a part of a prayer or demand for relief.

To abridge within the meaning of the law of copyright is to preserve the substance, the essence, of the work in more terse language suited to the purpose. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 115.

abridgment. A shortened version. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 42.

abridgment of damages. Reduction of damages by order of court.

abroach. See broach.

abroachment. The purchase of goods wholesale and the sale of them at retail, without offering them in open market.

abroad. Beyond the seas or out of the country.

See traveling abroad.

abrogate. To repeal; to make void; to annul.

abrogatio legis. The repeal of a law.

abrogation. The repeal of a law; an avoidance; an annulment.

See implied abrogation.

abrogative. Annulling or repealing: as an abrogative statute.

abscond. To withdraw clandestinely, to hide or conceal one's self, for the purpose of avoiding legal proceedings. McMorran v Moore, 115 Mich 101, 104.

absconder. One who absconds.

absconding debtor. A person who has gone out of the state, or one who has intentionally concealed himself from his creditors, or withdrawn himself from the reach of their suits, with intent to frustrate their just demand. Fitch v Waite, 5 Conn 117, 121.

absence. The state of being away, not being present.

See effective absence.

Absence as Evidence of Death Act. One of the Uniform Laws. 1 Am J2d Absent § 2.

absence for seven years. See presumption of death.

absence from the state. Out of the state, having left the state. Montgomery v. Cleveland, 134 Miss 132, 98 So 111, 32ALR 1151.

In statutes of limitation which provide that the running of the statute is suspended during the defendant's absence from the state, mere temporary absence in another state is insufficient to stop the running of the statute. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 218. The provision found in limitation statutes that the statute is not to run when the defendant is absent from the state has been interpreted by most courts not to apply if process could be served notwithstanding such absence. Some courts, however, giving a literal construction to the statute, have held that the provision still applies. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 221.

[6]

The expressions "absent from" and "out of the state" have been employed by a majority of the states having limitation statutes with a suspensory provision, and the courts in each of those jurisdictions, with few exceptions have construed such a statute as applying to a defendant who was a nonresident when the cause of action accrued. Anno: 17 ALR2d 506.

Within the meaning of the statute of limitations a corporation's absence from the state begins when it ceases to do business therein, cancels its license, files its resolution of withdrawal and removes its officers and representatives from the state. The Secretary of State and the Commissioner of Securities, its designated attorneys for the service of process, are its agents in no such sense as to represent the continued corporate presence of the corporation in the state. City Co. of New York, Inc. v Stern (CA8 Minn) 110 F2d 601.

absence of jurisdiction. See lack of jurisdiction.

absent. The state of being away from a place; withdrawal from a place; not existing.

See absence; absence from the state.

absentee. A person who, for whatsoever reason, is missing from his residence or who has departed to parts unknown, concerning whose whereabouts no information is forthcoming. 1 Am J2d Absent § 1.

Absentees may be those of whom little or nothing may be known. They may be dead. See Re Estate of Kite, 194 Iowa 129, 187 NW 585, 24 ALR 850.

See absence; absence from the state; absence out of the state.

absenteeism. Wilful misconduct of an employee for the purposes of unemployment compensation, where persistent or chronic, without notice or excuse, and continued in the face of warnings by the employer. Kelleher v Unemployment Compensation Board of Review 175 Pa Super 261, 104 A2d 171, 41 ALR2d 1155; Anno: 41 ALR2d 1158.

Absentees' Property Act. One of the Uniform Laws. 1 Am J2d Absent § 2.

absente reo. In the absence of the defendant.

absentia. See absence; durante absentia.

absent out of the state. Beyond the boundaries of the state so that one cannot be reached by process. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 215.

absinthe. A highly aromatic but potent liquor of an opaline green color and bitter taste, prepared by steeping in alcohol or strong spirit bitter herbs, the chief of them being wormwood. Erhardt v Steinhardt, 153 US 177, 182, 38 L Ed 678, 679, 14 S Ct 715.

absoluta sententia expositore non indiget. Clear sense requires no explanation.

absolute. Free; unconditional; unrestricted; not dependent upon or appurtenant to something else. Anno: 36 ALR2d 151 (absolute gift to spouse.)

The most ordinary signification of the adjective absolute is "unrestricted" or "unconditional." Thus, an absolute estate in land is an estate in fee simple. Also, in the law of insurance, an absolute interest in property is one which is so completely vested in the individual that there could be no danger of his being deprived of it without his own consent. See Columbia Water Power Co. v Columbia Electric Street Railway Light & Power Co., 172 US 475, 491, 43 L Ed 520, 527, 19 S Ct 247.

See conditional; rule absolute.

absolute acceptance. The unqualified assent to liability by the drawee on a bill of exchange.

Words written on a bill of exchange which demonstrate the intention to accept it are sufficient for that purpose. 11 Am J2d B & N § 507.

absolute assignment. An outright transfer of title, as distinguished from a transfer by way of security.

absolute control. The term imports that the person having such control is able to direct operations as he thinks best, without let or hindrance or direction by any other person, and that he is free to do what he thinks best in directing such operations. People v Boggess 75 Cal App 499, 243 P 478.

absolute conveyance. A conveyance free from conditions.

absolute covenant. An unconditional covenant.

absolute deed. See absolute conveyance. absolute deed as mortgage. An instrument in the form of a deed which is given effect as a mortgage. 36 Am J1st Mtg §§ 125 et seq.

absolute delivery of deed. The simplest mode of delivering a deed is by manual transfer of it to the grantee, with the intention of relinquishing all control over the instrument and of passing title to the property. This delivery is defined as "absolute delivery," and undoubtedly it constitutes a consummation of the deed. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 91.

absolute divorce. A judicial dissolution or termination of the bonds of matrimony, because of marital misconduct or other statutory cause arising after the marriage ceremony, with the result that the status of the parties is changed from coverture to that of single persons. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 1.

absolute embargo. See embargo.

absolute estate. An estate in real property of which the owner has complete, unqualified and unconditional possession, control, dominion, and right of disposition, and which descends to his heirs upon his death, if his will does not otherwise direct.

See absolute owner; fee; fee simple.

The words "absolute estate" which appear in a will making bequests in trust as well as bequests of a full and complete interest has reference to the bequests other than those in trust. Hills v Hart, 136 Conn 536, 72 A2d 807.

absolute gift. So long as the condition or qualification imposed in the making of a gift is not inconsistent with the vesting of title in the donee, the gift is not invalidated for want of absolute character in the transfer. 24 Am J1st Gifts § 44.

absolute guaranty. An unconditional undertaking on the part of the guarantor that the debtor will pay the debt or perform the obligation. 24 Am J1st Guar § 16; Anno: 53 ALR2d 525.

A contract of guaranty is absolute where one absolutely guarantees the payment of money to another, where the amount of the payment is certain and definite, and where the time of payment is likewise determined certainly. Schulderberg-Kurdle Co. v Trice, 198 Va 85, 92 SE2d 374, 57 ALR2d 1204.

absolute interest. The nature of ownership of a thing objectively and lawfully appropriated by a person to his own use in exclusion of all others. Griffith v Charlotte, C & A R Co., 23 SC 25.

[7]

In the law of insurance, an absolute interest in property is one which is so completely vested in the individual that there could be no danger of his being deprived of it without his own consent. Columbia Water Power Co. v Columbia Electric Street Railway, Light & Power Co., 172 US 475, 491, 43 L Ed 520, 527, 19 S Ct 247.

See absolute estate; limited interest.

absolute liability. Liability for an injury resulting to another where no account is taken of the standard of care exercised, often called insurer's liability. 38 Am J1st Negl § 4. Criminal liability of which intent not an element. 21 Am J2d Crinn L § 91. Liability of a principal as distinguished from that of a guarantor or surety.

The word as used in a Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act providing that the liability of the insurer under the policy shall become absolute upon occurrence of the accident means that there shall be no defenses to liability of the insurer based upon any statement made by or on behalf of the insured or upon exclusions, conditions, terms, or language contained in the policy. Farm Bureau Auto. Ins. Co. v Martin, 97 NH 196, 84 A2d 823, 29 ALR2d 811 absolutely. Independently or unconditionally; wholly; positively. Collins v Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co. 178 Va 501, 17 SE2d 413, 137 ALR 1046; Anno: 36 ALR2d 151 (gift to spouse "absolutely").

absolutely privileged communications. See absolute privilege.

absolute nuisance. A distinct civil wrong arising or resulting from the invasion of a legally protected interest, and consisting of an unreasonable interference with the use and enjoyment of the property of another; the doing of anything or the permitting of anything under one's control or direction to be done without just cause or excuse, the necessary consequence of which interferes with or annoys another in the enjoyment of his legal rights; the unlawful doing of anything or the permitting of anything under one's control or direction to be done which results in injury to another; or the collecting and keeping on one's premises of anything inherently dangerous or likely to do mischief if it escapes, which, escaping, injures another in the enjoyment of his legal rights. Anno: 73 ALR2d 1395.

absolute owner. A person in whom are combined at one time the right of possession, and the right of property. Harris v Southeast Portland Lumber Co., 123 Or 549, 262 P 243.

A vendee in possession under an executory contract for the purchase of the property is an absolute owner for purposes of fire insurance. Libby Lumber Co. v Pacific States Fire Ins. Co. 79 Mont 166, 255 P 340.

Each of two persons owning in severalty respective shares of personal property insured is the absolute owner of the property, within the meaning of a question and answer as to such ownership in an application for insurance thereon. Beebe v Ohio Farmers Ins. Co., 93 Mich 514, 53 NW 818.

absolute pardon. A pardon to which no conditions are attached by the authority granting it. 39 Am J1st Pard §§ 4, 5.

absolute predestination. A doctrine of some religious denominations that God foreknew and predestined all things whatsoever that may come to pass. See Bennett v Morgan, 112 Ky 512, 519, 66 SW 289.

absolute privilege. The privilege which exists in the law of defamation when by reason of the occasion on which a defamatory communication is made or the matter in reference to which the communication is made, no remedy can be had in a civil action. Anno: 13 ALR2d 893; 33 Am J1st L & S § 125.

absolute rights. Rights incident to the ownership of property, rights growing out of contractual relations, or the right to enter or refuse to enter into contractual relations.

These rights the individual may exercise without reference to his motive as to any injury resulting therefrom directly, since the courts, apparently on the ground of expediency, have consistently held that such an injury is not a legal injury in the sense that it is actionable. On the other hand, under the guise of exercising an absolute right, it is not lawful, according to some authorities, indirectly to interfere with the business, employment, or occupation of a third person, where the exercise of the right is with the object of injuring the latter rather than primarily benefiting the person exercising such right. 30 Am J Rev ed Interf § 51.

See absolute estate; absolute owner.

absolute rule. Same as rule absolute.

absolute warrantice (Scotch). An absolute warranty, whereby the grantor warrants against every imperfection in the thing or right conveyed.

absolute warranty. A warranty of personalty, made in a sale thereof, to which no conditions are attached. 46 Am J1st Sales § 301.

The covenant of warranty in a deed of real estate is an assurance by the grantor that the grantee and his heirs and assigns shall enjoy it without interruption by virtue of a paramount title and that they shall not, by force of a paramount title, be evicted from the land or deprived of possession thereof. 20 Am J2d Cov § 50.

absolution (Civil Law). A judgment declaring a defendant to be innocent of the crime charged.

absolutism. The principle of absolute power in the sovereign.

absolutist. An advocate of the principle of absolute power in the sovereign.

absolve. To acquit; to set free; to release.

absolvitor. A judgment of absolution.

absorbed tax. Where the price designated in the contract is a composite price, made up of various unspecified elements of cost in which is included the tax, not as a separate item, but as an integral part thereof, the tax is generally regarded as "absorbed or buried" in the price. 46 Am J1st Sales § 184; Anno: 115 ALR 667, supplemented in 132 ALR 706.

absque. Without.

absque aliquo inde redendo. Without reservation of rent.

absque consideratione curiae. Without the consideration of the court.

absque damno. See injuria absque damno.

absque hoc. Without this.

See special traverse.

absque impetitione vasti. Without impeachment of waste, a clause in a deed or lease signifying that the grantee or lessee shall not be liable for waste. See 2 Bl Comm 283.

[8]

absque injuria. Without violation of a legal right.

See damnum absque injuria.

absque tali causa. Without such cause.

abstract. Verb: to take without Fight. 10 Am J2d Banks § 224. To glean and state the pith of a discussion. Noun: an abridgment.

abstracter. One who prepares abstracts of title.

See certificate of abstracter.

abstract idea. A concept which has not been put in tangible form so as to be a subject of copyright, but which may be a subject of protection by contract. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 3.

abstract instruction. An instruction to the jury, which is generally regarded as insufficient and erroneous, that does not apply the law to the facts but is merely all abstract proposition of law. 53 Am J1st Tr § 573.

abstraction. A taking; a removal, especially a wrongful taking or removal.

Under the National Bank Act, the act of one who, being an officer of a national banking association, wrongfully takes or withdraws from it any of its moneys, funds, or credits, with intent to injure or defraud it or some other person or company, and, without its knowledge or consent, or that of its board of directors, converts them to the use of himself or of some person or company other than the bank. It is not necessarily the same as embezzlement, larceny or misapplication of funds. US v Northway, 120 US 327, 39 L Ed 664, 7 S Ct 580.

abstract of a fine. An abstract of the writ of covenant and the concord, naming the parties, the parcels of land, and the agreement, in a proceeding to alienate land by levying a fine. See 2 Bl Comm 351.

abstract of article. An abridgment, a less quantity containing the virtue and force of a greater quantity. That which comprises or concentrates in itself the essential qualities of a larger thing, or of several things; a compendium, epitome, or synopsis. Hess v Draffen & Co. 99 Mo App 580, 585, 74 SW 440.

abstract of judgment. A brief transcript of the essentials of a judgment.

abstract of record on appeal. A complete history in short, abbreviated form of the case as found in the record, complete enough to show that the questions presented for review have been properly preserved in the case, and to give a full understanding of the questions presented. 4 Am J2d A & E §§ 407, 408.

abstract of title. A short account of the state of the title to real estate, or a synopsis of the instruments which show title-an epitome of the record evidence of title. 1 Am J2d Abstr T § 1.

It should contain a full summary of all grants, conveyances, wills and all records and judicial proceedings whereby the title is in any way affected, and all incumbrances and liens of record, showing whether they have been released or not. 1 Am J2d Abstr T § 1.

A proper abstract requires a certification by all abstracter. 55 Am J1st V & P § 295.

abstract on appeal. See abstract of record.

abstract question. A moot, theoretical, academic, hypothetical, or speculative question. 20 Am J2d Cts § 81; 22 Am J2d Dec J § 10.

absurdity. Not only that which is physically impossible, but also that which is morally so.

That is to be regarded as morally impossible which is contrary to reason, or in other words, which cannot be attributed to a man in his right senses. State v Hays, 81 Mo 574, 585.

Ab uno disce omnes. From one part all may be learned. Nicholas' Estate, 8 Pa Dist 725, 726.

ab urbe condita. From the founding of the city. The Roman era began with the founding of Rome in 753 B. C.

abuse. From the Latin, "ab" and "utor;" to injure; to diminish in value; to wear away by using improperly. To wrong in speech, reproach coarsely, disparage, revile, malign. Camp v State, 80 Ohio St 321, 88 NE 887.

abuse. Ill treatment by physical means or by coarse insulting speech; improper treatment or use of something such as process.

Under a statute punishing the abuse in an attempt to have carnal knowledge of a female child, the word "abuse" applies only to injuries to the genital organs in an unsuccessful attempt at rape, and does not include mere forcible or wrongful illusage. 44 Am J1st Rape § 18.

abuse of discretion. Decision by whim or caprice, arbitrarily, or from a bad motive which amounts practically to a denial of justice as a clearly erroneous conclusion, one that is clearly against logic and effect of the facts presented. 5 Am J2d A & E § 774.

Abuse of judicial discretion, within the rule that all appellate court will not disturb the discretionary action of the court below unless the discretion was abused, is an exercise of discretionary power to an end or purpose not justified by, and clearly against, reason and evidence. Re Crane's Estate, 201 Okla 354, 206 P2d 726, 9 ALR2d 524.

There is no hard and fast rule by which an abuse of discretion may be determined, but in general an exercise of discretion, not to amount to an abuse, must be legally sound; there must be an honest attempt by the court to do what is right and equitable under the circumstances and the law, without the dictates of whim or caprice. 5 Am J2d A & E § 774.

abuse of distress. Making use of a distressed animal or chattel and thereby committing a conversion of it.

abuse of privilege. See excess of privilege.

abuse of process. The malicious perversion of a regularly issued civil or criminal process, for a purpose, and to obtain a result not lawfully warranted or properly attainable thereby, and for which perversion an action will lie to recover the pecuniary loss sustained. 1 Am J2d Abuse P § 1.

Malicious use of process is the employment of process for its ostensible purpose, but without reasonable or probable cause, whereas the malicious abuse of process is the employment of a process in a manner not contemplated by law, or to effect a purpose which such a process is not intended by law to effect. 1 Am J2d Abuse P § 2.

abusive language. Cruelty amounting to a ground for divorce, where it is so intense as to cause mental suffering sufficient to impair health. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 48.

abut. To end at; to border on; to reach or touch with an end, as where a lot touches the highway. Hensler v Anacortes, 140 Wash 184, 248 P 406.

See abutting owners.

[9]

abutments. The masses of stone or solid work at the ends of a bridge by which the extreme arches or timbers are sustained.

They are as much a part of the bridge itself as are the pier, the arch, or the timbers. Freeholders of Sussex v Strader, 18 NJL 108.

abuttal. The part of a tract of land which abuts; a boundary line.

abutting. See abutting owners; fronting and abutting.

abutting owners. Those owners whose lands touch a highway or other public place. 1 Am J2d Adj L § 1; 25 Am J1st High § 153.

It is arbitrary to limit the meaning of "abutting owners" to lands bordering a highway and not to speak of lands as "adjoining" a highway, but the usefulness of a distinction in legal articles between lands that abut on a highway and adjoining lands generally, arbitrary and fanciful although it may be, is not to be denied. 1 Am J2d Adj L § 1.

academic question. A theoretical, abstract, hypothetical, or speculative question, involving no actual controversy over rights. 20 Am J2d Cis § 81; 22 Am J2d Dec J § 10.

academy. The word originally meant a garden, grove, or villa, near Athens, where Plato and his followers held their philosophical conferences; but now it is most commonly used to mean a school or seminary of learning (holding a rank between a university or college, and a common school), in which the arts and sciences in general are taught. See Academy of Fine Arts v Philadelphia County, 22 Pa 496, 498; Anno: 95 ALR 63.

ace. An abbreviation for in accord with or consonant with.

accedas ad vice comitem. A writ directed to the coroner to compel a sheriff to make return of a writ.

accede. To attain an office or dignity; to give consent; to assent to a treaty.
See accession.

acceleration clause. A clause in a note or mortgage stipulating that the whole debt secured thereby shall become due and payable upon the failure of the maker to pay the interest annually or to comply with any other condition of the contract. 11 Am J2d B & N § 181; 36 Am J1st Mtg § 385.

acceleration of estate. The shortening of the time at which a future estate is to vest, as where the precedent estate fails to come into existence, or, having come into existence, terminates prematurely. 28 Am J2d Est § 304.

The most familiar case of acceleration is that where a widow given a life estate renounces the will and elects to take her dower or statutory interest instead, whereby the remainderman takes immediately as if the widow had died. 28 Am J2d Est § 307.

acceleration of maturity. The shortening of the time for the payment of a note or the payment of money called for by a contract. 11 Am J2d B & N §§ 179 et seq; 17 Am J2d Contr § 337. Making all instrument to become due and payable prior to the maturity date stated therein by the payee's exercise of an option provided him. The operation of an automatic provision for acceleration upon default. 11 Am J2d B & N §§ 179 et seq.

acceleration of remainder. See acceleration of estate.

accept. To receive with the intent to retain; to give assent. Kidd v New Hampshire Traction Co. 74 NH 160, 171, 66 A 127.

acceptance. The actual or implied receipt and retention of thin which is tendered or offered.

A receipt alone does not amount to all acceptance, but anything done by the receptor as owner is evidence of all acceptance. Patterson & Holden v Sargent, 83 Vt 516, 77 A 338.

The acceptance of the goods constituting the subject of a sale has all important bearing upon the passing of title from the seller to the buyer where the contract is executory; it is also a material consideration in respect of the satisfaction of the statute of frauds where the contract is parol. 46 Am J1st Sales § 411. In a sale of personal property the term covers more than a mere receipt of the goods by the purchaser and implies some act done by him after he has exercised, or has had the means of exercising, his right of rejection. Patterson & Holden v Sargent, 83 Vt 516, 77 A 338.

acceptance by mail. The acceptance of all offer made by mail is complete upon depositing tire letter of acceptance in the postoffice, postage prepaid, and directed to the offeror's proper address, provided it is done in proper season and before receiving any intimation of a revocation of the offer; it is immaterial whether the letter actually reaches the offeror. 17 Am J2d Contr § 48.

acceptance for honor. The acceptance of a bill of exchange by a person other than the drawee, voluntarily and without consideration.

It is allowed for the convenience of commerce, that such a person may, after presentation, refusal, and protest, accept for the honor of the drawer, or any of the indorsers, or all of the parties, as he may see fit, but this is done supra protest and in accord with settled forms. Heenan v Nash, 8 Minn 407. Provisions for acceptance for honor have been eliminated from the Commercial Code as unnecessary in this day of rapid communications whereby notice Of dishonor is give[] so rapidly that air acceptance for honor is no longer necessary to protect the credit of the drawer. 11 Am J2d B & N § 506.

acceptance in blank. The act of the drawee of a bill of exchange in merely signing his name across the face of the bill.

acceptance of bill of exchange. The drawee's signed engagement to honor the bill as presented; the signification by the drawee of his assent to the order of the drawer and his agreement to pay the bill when it falls due. 11 Am J2d B & N § 500.

The contract of the acceptor, by his acceptance, is, that he will pay the bill, upon due presentment thereof, at its maturity, or its becoming due. 11 Am J2d B & N § 500.

acceptance of bribe. See bribery.

acceptance of charter. An act essential to the existence of a corporation when the mode of its creation is by special grant to a designated person or persons.

This act may be express, its where it appears oil the records of the corporation, or it may be presumed or inferred, as where corporate powers have been assumed or exercised after the granting of the charter. 18 Am J2d Corp § 27.

acceptance of check. The certification of a check.

The purpose and effect of procuring a check to be accepted or certified by the bank on which it is drawn is to impart strength and credit to the paper by obtaining an acknowledgment from the bank that the drawer has funds therein sufficient to cover the check, and securing the engagement of the bank that the check will be paid upon presentation. 10 Am J2d Banks § 578.

[10]

Any act on the part of the bank upon which a check is drawn which demonstrates an intention to become bound for payment will constitute an acceptance. It is nor essential that the acceptance be Written Upon the check itself. A drawee bank makes itself liable by a contract of acceptance extrinsic to the check itself whenever the plain import of the language used is that of a contract of acceptance. 10 Am J2d Banks § 581.

acceptance of dedication. An essential element of a completed dedication, which may be either express or implied, by formal action or by public use. 23 Am J2d Ded § 50.

acceptance of deed. A manifestation by act, conduct, or declaration of an intention to take the legal title to the property which the instrument purports to convey, after an antecedent delivery or tender of the deed to the knowledge of the grantee accepting. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 128.

acceptance of draft. Same as acceptance of bill of exchange.

acceptance of gift. A donee's exercise of dominion over, or the assertion of rights to, the subject of the gift. 24 Am J1st Gifts § 40.

acceptance of goods. See acceptance.

acceptance of issue. Formally to accept the tender of an issue made by the pleadings. The technical term is similiter.

acceptance of nomination. A filed approval by the candidate of a nomination as a candidate for public office, sometimes required as a condition of having the name of the candidate printed on the ballot. 25 Am J2d Elect § 133. A formal speech of acceptance by a candidate for President, following his nomination at a national convention of a political party.

acceptance of offer. A fundamental element of a binding contract; the assent of the offeree to the offer as made by the offeror, whereby the engagement is made and the parties become bound as contracting parties. 17 Am J2d Contr § 18.

The assent requisite to the creation of a contract is an objective thing manifested by intelligible conduct, act, or sign; it is not determined by secret intentions but by expressed or manifested intentions. 17 Am J2d Contr § 19.

acceptance of office. The assumption of the powers and prerogatives of an office to which one has been legally elected or appointed. Ekwall v Stadelman, 146 Or 439, 30 P2d 1037.

acceptance of performance. The waiver of perfect and complete performance of the terms of a contract by accepting performance different from that stipulated in the contract.

Such acceptance may be express or it may be implied from conduct. 17 Am J2d Contr § 393.

acceptance of plea. The reception by the court in a criminal prosecution of a plea of guilty.

There are statutory limitations upon the acceptance of a plea in a capital case and in any case where it is open to the accused to plead guilty, the court is under a duty to determine whether the plea is voluntary and to admonish the accused of the consequences of the plea. 21 Am J2d Crim L §§ 484 et seq.

acceptance of service. Dispensing with the formalities attending service of process by acknowledging the service, which acknowledgment is generally effective to confer the same jurisdiction as would have been conferred by a formal service of the process, 42 Am J1st, Proc § 33.

acceptance supra protest. See acceptance for honor.

accepter. Same as acceptor.

accepting wagers. Taking bets. Acting as the "banker" in a gambling game.

acceptor. One who accepts a bill of exchange and trust binds himself to pay it.

acceptor for honor. See acceptance for honor.

acceptor supra protest. See acceptance for honor.

access. Opportunity to come and go from premises. An easement of way, whether arising from express or implied grant, express or implied reservation. The right of a person to a designated benefice which is temporarily in abeyance. The opportunity of a husband for sexual intercourse with his wife.

See presumption of access.

accessary. Same as accessory.

accessio. See accession. The right of an owner of personal property to the personal property of another which is incorporated into or united with his property.

Sometimes the term is given a broader significance to include rights which an owner of real or personal property has to any increase thereto from any cause, natural or artificial. In any event, rights by accession include accession of other materials as well as additions by skill or labor. 1 Am J2d Access § 1. They also include the right of the mortgagee under a chattel mortgage to additions to the mortgaged chattel. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 68.

accession. A nation's assent to a treaty.

See specification.

accessio possessionis. See tacking.

accessorial. Pertaining to an accessory.

Accessorium non ducit, sed sequitur summ principale. That which is but accessory does not lead, but follows the principal thing.

"The land is the principal thing, the accretion is but an accessory." Plaintiff's brief in Banks v Ogden, US 2 Wall 57, 17 L Ed 818.

Accessorium non trahit principale. The accessory right does not control the principal.

Accessorius sequitur naturam sui principalis. The accessory follows the condition of his principal. Hence, an accessory cannot be guilty of a higher crime than his principal. See 4 Bl Comm 36.

accessory. A subordinate working part of a larger machine or instrumentality, for example, the windshield wipers on an automobile. A person who in some manner is connected with a crime, either before or after its perpetration, but who is not present at the time the crime is committed. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 115.

See accomplice.

[11]

accessory after the fact. A person who, knowing a felony to have been committed, receives, relieves, comforts, or assists the felon, or in any manner aids him to escape arrest. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 126.

accessory at the fact. Persons who were present at the commission of a crime only for the purpose of aiding, countenancing, or encouraging its perpetration, were, by the most ancient writers on the common law of England, described as accessories at the fact. Hence, they could not be brought to trial until the principal offenders had been convicted or outlawed. See note to State v Hildreth, 51 Am Dec 373. There seems to be no room for this classification under modern views.

See accessory.

accessory before the fact. One whose will contributes to a felony committed by another as principal, yet who is too far away to aid in the felonious act. There are statutes which abolish the distinction between an accessory before the fact and a principal, providing that the latter is subject to prosecution and conviction as a principal. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 124.

accessory building. An outbuilding so detached from the dwelling on the premises as not to be considered properly a component part thereof. 58 Am J1st Zon § 50 supp.

accessory contract. A contract subordinate to the main or principal one, usually made for the purpose of securing the performance of the principal contract.

See subcontract.

accessory obligation. An obligation subordinate to the main or principal one.

accessory use. A use of premises which is dependent on or pertains to the principal or main use. 58 Am J1st Zon § 46.

access to courts. The right to resort to the courts on equal terms with others for the enforcement of one's rights and the obtaining of justice on the presentation of one's defenses. 16 Am J2d Const L § 382.

accident. An occurrence by chance or not as expected. Haser v Maryland Casualty Co. 78 ND 893, 53 NW2d 508, 33 ALR2d 1018; Anno: 8 ALR2d 409. In lesser scope, an occurrence which could not have been foreseen by the exercise of reasonable prudence, one which happens unexpectedly from the uncontrollable operations of nature alone, and without human agency, 38 Am J1st Neg § 6.

The word "accident" in a bill of lading, which refers to events involving damage to the property carried for which the carrier is to be liable, includes the result of any human fault for which the carrier may be liable; it is not synonymous with "mere accident" or "purely accidental." Ullman v Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 112 Wis 150, 88 NW 41.

The word "accident" in a policy of insurance insuring against injury by accident means an event that takes place without one's foresight or expectation—an event that proceeds from an unknown cause, or is an unusual effect of a known cause, and therefore not expected. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1164.

An "accident" within the meaning of an automobile insurance policy indemnifying against loss by collision or upset includes any event which takes place without the foresight or expectation of the person acted upon or affected thereby. Riley v National Auto Ins. Co. 162 Neb 658, 77 NW2d 241, 57 ALR2d 1219.

As the word is used in an automobile liability insurance policy, it means an undesigned, unexpected happening which produces injury or damage. It does not include injuries caused intentionally. Anno: 117 ALR 1175; 18 ALR2d 456.

An "accident" within the meaning of a policy insuring against liability incident to ownership or use of premises does not include an event which has its inception in a wilful act of the insured. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1359.

As used in the phrase "injury arising by accident" in compensation statutes the term is interpreted in the popular and ordinary sense, and is generally construed as meaning an occurrence which is neither expected, designed, nor intentionally caused, by the workman. 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 196.

In the phrase "by accidents arising out of and in the course of the employment," found in Employers' Liability Acts, "accident" signifies any un-toward and unexpected event, the term being used in its popular sense. 35 Am J I st M & S § 422.

The term within the meaning of the equitable principle under which relief is granted for "accident" means an occurrence without intention on the part of the complainant and one which he was unable to see and avert. 19 Am J2d Equity § 44.

See inevitable accident; unavoidable accident.

accidental. By accident; by chance or fortuitously, without intention or design; unexpected, unusual, and unforeseen. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1164.

The word is used in its ordinary popular sense in accident policies and means happening by chance, unexpectedly taking place, not according to the usual course of things, or not as expected; so, if in the preceding act something unexpected or unusual occurred, which produced the catastrophe which caused the injury, then the injury was accidental. Anno: 105 ALR 1428; 148 ALR 611; 27 ALR2d 1013; 33 ALR2d 1027; 56 ALR2d 800; 57 ALR2d 1229; 85 ALR2d 1057.

The mere apprehension that an injury might occur does not deprive the actual occurrence of accidental character within the meaning of a workmen's compensation act. 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 196.

accidental cause. An unavoidable cause, one which cannot be avoided by the exercise of due diligence and foresight, and which reasonably prudent men would not ordinarily anticipate and avoid. Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. Co. v United States, (CA8 Neb) 194 F 342, 334.

accidental death. One that occurs unforeseen, undesigned, and unexpected. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 1166. One which occurs by accident, that is, was not designed or anticipated, albeit it may occur in consequence of a voluntary act. Anno: 26 ALR 119; 56ALR 1091; 166ALR469; 12 ALR2d 1270; 52 ALR2d 1083.

accidental injury. An injury which occurs by accident, being undesigned and not anticipated, although it may result from a voluntary act. Anno: 29 ALR 691; 39 ALR 871; 44 ALR 372; 56 ALR 1091; 90 ALR 620; 109 ALR 892; 166 ALR 469. An injury incurred in a manner and by a force that is unforeseen, undesigned, and unexpected, 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1166.

The mere apprehension that an injury such as did occur was likely to occur in some indefinite time in the future does not deprive the actual occurrence of its accidental character, 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 196.

[12]

accidentally thrown from. A hurling or catapulting of a person from a vehicle. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1243.

accidental means. Characterizing the nature of the cause of a happening by chance and without intention or design, which is unforeseen, unexpected and unusual at the time it occurs. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1165; A11110: 17 ALR 1199.

Where the death is the result of some act, but was not designed, and not anticipated by the deceased, though it be in consequence of some act voluntarily done by him, it is accidental death; but where death is caused by some act of the deceased, not designed by him, or not intentionally done by him, it is death by accidental means. See Ogilvie v Aetna Life Ins Co., 189 Cal 406, 411, 209 P 26, 26 ALR 116, 119.

An injury received by making an intentional assault on another person by striking him in the face with the fist has been held not to have been by accidental means, within the meaning of an accident policy insuring against injuries received through accidental means. See Fidelity & Casualty Co. v Carroll, (CA4 SC) 143 F 271.

For a death to occur by accidental means within the meaning of a life insurance policy, the immediate and proximate cause of the death must be accidental; a death is not by accidental means if it results as the natural and probable consequence of the voluntary act of the insured. Prudential Ins. Co. v Gutowski (Sup) 49 Del 233, 113 A2d 579, 52 ALR2d 1073.

Although the courts in the past have drawn a distinction between "accident" and "accidental means," in recent years the terms have come to be regarded as legally synonymous. 29A Am J Rev ed § 1166.

To attempt such a fine distinction is to plunge this branch of the law of insurance into a "Serbogian Bog." Dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Cardozo. in Landress v Phoenix Mot. Life Ins. Co. 291 US 491, 78 L Ed 934, 54 S Ct 461, 90 ALR 1382, which appears to have been of great weight on the side of eliminating the distinction.

accidental result. An unusual or unexpected result of an intentional act. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1166.

accident insurance. A policy or contract of insurance whereunder the insurer agrees to pay to the insured or a beneficiary named in the policy a stated sum for disability of the insured incurred by accident, for the death of the insured caused by accident, for the loss suffered by the insured through accident of a leg, arm, or other member of the body, or, in the terms of some policies, a stated sum upon the sustaining of any of such losses by accidental means.

See accident; accidental; accidental means; general accident policy.

accident report. The report of a motor vehicle accident made to a police officer or other public official by the operator of a vehicle involved therein, the giving of which is a most common statutory requirement. 8 Am 32d Auto § 959. A common requirement in industry and the transportation business, an employee being required by the terms of employment to report all accidents to the employer, the superintendent or foreman. A requirement under boating regulations. 12 Am J2d Boats § 19.

accion. A word from the Spanish law which appears to stand for what is known in American and English law as a right of action. See Welder v Lambert, 91 Tex 510, 44 SW 281.

Accipere quid ut justitiam lacias, non est tam accipere quam extorquere. The acceptance of something for doing justice is not so much an acceptance as an extortion.

acclamation. Approval. The spontaneous approval in a deliberative assembly of a resolution, measure or candidate by voice, without counting heads.

accola. A tenant farmer under the feudal law.

accollade. An award; words of praise, the word having been first used to denote the ceremony by which knighthood was conferred.

accomenda. A contract by which the master of a vessel agrees to sell the goods or the shipper for their joint account.

accommodated indorser. See accommodated party.

accommodated party. The person for whose benefit another known as the accommodation party signs a bill or note as maker, drawer, acceptor or indorser, thereby lending the credit of his name to the former. 11 Am J2d B & N § 121.

An indorser is accommodated when the maker, drawer or acceptor of a negotiable instrument makes, draws, or accepts it for his benefit, without consideration. Lucas v Swan, (CA4 W Va) 67 F2d 106, 90 ALR 210.

accommodation. An obligation assumed without consideration. A favor.

accommodation acceptance. The acceptance of a bill of exchange for the purpose of lending credit to another party. 11 Am J2d B & N § 121.

accommodation bill. A bill of exchange on which the maker, indorser, or acceptor has assumed liability, in order to lend the credit of his name to another party. 11 Am J2d B & N § 121.

accommodation indorser. A person who has indorsed a bill or note for the purpose of lending the credit of his name to another party. 11 Am J2d B & N § 121.

accommodation land. Land which a speculator or builder has built upon or improved in order to secure increased rents.

accommodation maker. The drawer of a bill, or the maker of a note, to which he has put his name for the purpose of accommodating, by a loan of his credit some other person who is to provide for the bill or note when it falls due. 11 Am J2d B & N § 121.

accommodation note. A promissory note on which the maker or indorser has assumed liability in order to lend his name to another person. 11 Am J2d B & N § 121.

accommodation paper. A bill or note which one has signed as a maker, drawer, acceptor, or indorser for the purpose of lending the credit of his name to another. 11 Am J2d B & N § 121.

accommodation party. A person who has signed a bill or note as maker, drawer, acceptor, or indorser for the purpose of lending his name to the credit of some other person. 11 Am J2d B & N § 12 1.

Under the Commercial Code, absence of consideration is not a requisite of status as an accomodation party, the essential characteristic being that he signed as a surety, not that he signed gratuitously. 11 Am J2d B & N § 121.

accommodation road. A road for access to private property; a spur track of a railroad.

accommodation train. One which is scheduled to stop at local or way stations. Gray v Chicago, Mil-waukee & St. Paul Railway Co. 189 Ill 400, 59 NE 950.

accommodation works. Structures such as bridges, ways, fences, gates, etc. which a railroad is required to build and maintain for the benefit of the owners of land adjoining the right of way.

accompanied. Attended. Going with.

The word, as used in a statute, does not necessarily mean "simultaneously," but may mean "in relation to," "connected with," or "to follow." Tucker v Kerner (CA7 Ill) 186 F2d 79, 23 ALR2d 1027. Anno: 143 ALR 1457.

accompanied by licensed driver. See riding with or accompanied by licensed driver.

accomplice. One who knowingly, voluntarily, and with a common interest with others participates in the commission of a crime as a principal, accessory, or aider and abettor.

So far as his criminal liability is concerned, the question is whether he participated as a principal or as an accessory, aider or abettor; the term "accomplice" has no legal significance in deciding the question of his own guilt. Such term becomes significant if he is called as a witness and testifies upon the trial of another person and it is contended that, since he is an accomplice, his testimony is insufficient to support a conviction. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 118; 26 Am J1st Homi § 458.

accomplish. To complete performance; to fulfil one's obligation. Anno: 38 ALR 890.

accompt. Same as account.

accord. Literally, an agreement: in law, an agreement by one party to give or perform, and by the other to accept, in settlement of an existing claim, something other than that which is claimed to be due. 1 Am J2d Accord § 1.

accordance. Agreement; harmony in purpose.

accord and satisfaction. An executed agreement of accord. 1 Am J2d Accord § 1.

In order to be a satisfaction there must be an accord or agreement to accept in extinction of the obligation something different from or less than that which the creditor is claiming or is entitled to. The acceptance of the consideration of an accord satisfies the obligation. Homewood Dairy Products Co. v Robinson, 254 Ala 197, 48 So 2d 28, 22 ALR2d 1059.

accord executory. See executory accord.

according to law. Legal.

Administering an estate according to law means to administer it according to the will of the decedent in case the estate is testate. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 127.

according to the tenor. According to the meaning or purport.

The words "according to the tenor" of a specified policy, inserted in a renewal receipt for accident insurance, import the policy and all contained therein or thereon, so that the policy and the receipt together constitute the insurance contract. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 363.

[13]

account. An unsettled demand or claim by one person against another, based upon a transaction or transactions creating a debtor and creditor relation between the parties, which is usually but not necessarily represented by an ex parte record kept by one or both of them. 1 Am J2d Acctg § 1.

The term is less frequently used in designating the action at law to obtain an accounting from the defendant and a judgment against him as for money had and received for whatever sum it appears is owing by the defendant to the plaintiff. 1 Am J2d Acctg § 44. Such action has been superseded in many jurisdictions by other actions, particularly the action in equity for an accounting.

See accounting; mutual account; open account.

accountable. Responsible. Liable to be called to account.

See responsible.

accountable receipt. A receipt in writing in which the receptor not only admits receiving the money paid or goods delivered to him, but also acknowledges his undertaking to make payment or delivery thereof, or a part thereof, to a third party.

account acknowledged. See account stated.

accountant. One who makes the keeping or examination of accounts his profession or one who is skilled in keeping or adjusting accounts; one competent to design and control the systems of accounts required for records of multifarious transactions of business, trade, and finance. 1 Am 32d Acctg § 1.

See certified public accountant; public accountant.

accountant's lien. The statutory lien of a public or certified public accountant on such books and records of his client as he has worked upon, and improved or extended. Anno: 76 ALR2d 1322.

account book. A book in which accounts are kept.

See book of account; book of original entry.

account current. Same as current account.

account for. To render an account in respect of a specific transaction or transactions; to explain.

accounting. The act or system of making up or stating accounts. Frazer v Shelton, 320 Ill 253, 150 N E 696, 43 ALR 1086, 1093. An action, usually on the equity side, to secure an adjustment of complicated accounts. 1 Am J2d Acctg § 44. Making amends or restitution.

accounting office. See general accounting office.

account number. The social security number of a person which must be used as an identifying number, not only in reference to social security benefits, but in other instances also, such as preparing a tax return.

account of whom it may concern. See on account of whom it may concern.

account receivable. An account owing on an open account. 1 Am J2d Acctg § 2.

See bills receivable.

account render. The common-law action which served the same purpose as an equity action for an accounting under modern practice. 1 Am J2d Acctg § 44.

[14]

account rendered. A statement of his charges submitted by a creditor to his debtor.

account sales. An account rendered by a factor or broker to his constituent, listing the goods sold with the prices secured and the net yield.

account stated. All agreement concerning prior transactions between the parties with respect to the correctness of the separate items composing the account and the balance, if any, in favor of one or the other of the parties. 1 Am J2d Acctg § 21. An agreement between persons who have had previous transactions of a monetary character, fixing the amount due in respect to such transactions and promising payment. State ex rel. Kaser v Leonard, 164 Or 587, 102 P2d 197, 129 ALR 1125.

accouple. To tie or join; to unite by marriage.

accredit. To receive an envoy of a foreign country and acknowledge his authority as such; to give credentials to an envoy. To recognize as worthy of merit or rank, as to accredit a college.

accredulitare. To clear a person of an accusation of crime by an oath.

accreseere. To grow.

accretion. The increase of riparian land by the gradual deposit by water of solid material, whether mud, sand, or sediment, so as to cause that to become dry land which was before covered by water. 56 Am J1st Wat §476. Accumulation. Growth in size. Increment and addition. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 68.

The meaning of the term as used in relation to shares of stock not being clearly defined in the law as comprehending either income or principal or both, may be resolved differently under varying circumstances and actual situations. Re Ferguson, 354 Pa 367, 47 A2d 245, 165 ALR 772.

accroach. An obsolete term for encroach particularly encroaching upon the authority of another. See 4 Bl Comm 75.

accrual. That which accrues; something growing or developing to be added or attached to something else, as interest to principal.

See clause of accrual.

accrual basis. A term characterizing the keeping of records and the reporting of income for taxation according to the time of the accrual of the right, to receive, rather than the actual receipt of, an item or amount. Enright's Estate v Commissioner (CA 3) 112 F2d 919.

But "accruing" within a specified period may be construed to mean received during the period for income tax purposes. Maryland Casualty Co. v United States, 251 US 342, 64 L Ed 297, 40 S Ct 155.

accrual of cause of action. The event whereby a cause of action becomes complete so that the aggrieved party can begin and maintain his cause of action.

A cause may accrue at the moment of the wrong, default, or delict by the defendant and the injury to the plaintiff, although the actual damage resulting therefrom may not be discovered until some time afterward, if the injury, however slight, is complete at the time of the act. Eising v Andrews, 66 Court 58, 1 Am J2d Actions § 88. As a general proposition, a cause of action accrues the moment it comes into existence. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 113.

accrue. To develop and be added to something else, as interest to principal. Johnson v Humboldt Ins. Co. 91 Ill 92. To become complete by development.

See accrual of cause of action.

accrued and unpaid taxes. Taxes assessed but unpaid, including those not payable until a later date. Cochran v Commonwealth, 241 Ky 656, 44 SW2d 603, 78 ALR 710.

accrued dividend. A dividend which became due and has either been paid or not paid. 19 Am J2d Corp § 809.

accrued water rights. Rights in waters which have vested prior to the adoption of enactment of a constitutional or statutory provision affecting the right of appropriation. 56 Am J1st Wat § 295.

accruer. Accrual; the fact of accruing.

acct. Abbreviation of account.

acct. curt. An abbreviation of account current, which is the same as current account.

accumulate. See accrue; accumulation.

accumulated surplus. See surplus.

accumulation. Increase by growth or addition. Rents and profits accumulating under directions in deed or will, such as prompted the enactment of statutes like the Thellusson Act. 41 Am J1st Perp § 44.

As the word appears in a community property statute which provides that the earnings and "accumulations" of the wife, while she is living separate from her husband, shall be her separate property, it means any property acquired and retained by her without regard to the means by which it was obtained. 15 Am J2d Community Prop § 37.

"When an executor or other trustee masses the rents, dividends, or other income which he receives, treats it as capital, invests it, makes new capital of the income therefrom, invests that, and so on, he is said to accumulate the fund, and the capital and accrued income procured constitute accumulations." See Webb v Webb, 340 Ill 407, 172 NE 730, 71 ALR 404.

See accretion; cumulative; rule against accumulations.

accumulative. See cumulative.

accumulative dividends. See cumulative dividends.

accumulative judgment. See cumulative judgment.

accumulative sentences. See consecutive sentences.

accuracy. Freedom from mistake or error. Globe Indemnity Co. v. Cohen (CA3 Pa) 106 F2d 687.

accurately. With accuracy.

accusare nemo se debet, nisi coram Deo. No one is bound to accuse himself, unless before God.

accusation. A declaration or statement that another person is guilty of some offense or misconduct. A formal charge of the commission of a crime, such as a complaint, information, or affidavit. Informing accused of nature and contents of charge. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 324.

accusatio suspecti tutoris. A Roman law proceeding for the removal of a suspected guardian, which anyone might institute, although it was the duty of his fellow guardian to do so.

accusator post rationabile tempus non est audiendus, nisi se bene de omissione excusaverit. After the lapse of a reasonable time, an accuser should not be heard, unless he shall have well explained his delay.

[15]

accuse. To charge a person with the commission of an offense; it may be informal, as in a conversation, or formal, as where it is by way of an indictment, information, or complaint whereby a prosecution is started.

accused. A person charged with having committed a crime or misdemeanor: a defendant in a criminal proceeding. The word is held to be inapplicable to a defendant in a civil action. Castle v Houston, 19 Kan 417.

accuser. A person who makes a formal charge of crime against another before a magistrate or judge.

accustomed. By habit or established course of conduct.

See customary.

accustomed rent. See customary rent.

acephalous. Without leadership.

acequia. A ditch.

ac etiam. Literally, "and also," but its legal significance appears in the old practice in England of adding a fictitious cause of action to enable the court to take jurisdiction, that is, the adding of a count in trespass to one for debt, where the jurisdiction of the court was limited to civil injuries by force. The fictitious cause gave jurisdiction; the real cause for debt authorized an arrest. See 2 Bl Comm 288.

achat or achate. A purchase; a bargain; a contract.

acherset. An old English corn measure, probably equivalent to about eight bushels.

acia. Same as atia.

acknowledge. To admit; to confirm to concede; to recognize; to authenticate a signature under oath. Blythe v Ayres, 96 Cal 532, 31 P 916.

acknowledged to me. The equivalent of acknowledged before me. 1 Am J2d Ack § 73.

acknowledgment. An admission, confirmation, concession, or recognition of the existence of a fact. An authentication of an instrument or writing by a declaration or statement under oath by the person whose name appears as a signer that he executed the instrument or writing; also the certificate of the officer who administered the oath under which such declaration or statement was made. 1 Am J2d Ack § 1.

An instrument is acknowledged when an acknowledgment of it is made to the proper officer in the manner and under the circumstances prescribed by law. Hayden v Moffat, 74 Tex 647.

See conditional acknowledgment, infra.

Acknowledgment Act. One of the Uniform Laws.

acknowledgment money. Money paid to the new lord by a copyhold tenant, on the death of the old lord.

acknowledgment of child born out of wedlock. See acknowledgment of paternity.

acknowledgment of debt. Any remark by a debtor to the creditor, by which the former clearly admits the debt and expressly or by clear implication shows an intention to pay it. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 297.

acknowledgment of paternity. The recognition by admission, confirmation, or concession of the putative father that the child is his, 10 Am J2d Bast § 29.

acknowledgment of will. Sometimes a formal authentication by the testator under oath, although such is required only by force of special statutory provisions; usually, all informal recognition by the testator to attesting witnesses who did not see him sign the instrument, that the signature is his. 57 Am J1st Wills § 298.

a coelo usque ad centrum. From the sky to the center of the earth.

acolyte. A person, usually an adolescent, who assists in a commonplace way in a religious service, as by carrying the wine and bread for communion.

See altar boy.

a communi observantia non est recedendum. From common usage there should be no departure.

a consihis. Of counsel.

acquaintance. A person whom one has met often enough of under such circumstances to acquire at least a fair degree of knowledge concerning him.

A mere introduction does not make one an acquaintance. Wyllis v. Hann, 47 Iowa 614, 621.

acquainted. Familiarly known; as, acquainted, with the contents of an instrument or with a person. Chauvin v Wagner, 18 Mo 531, 544.

acquest. A civil law term for property acquired by purchase.

acquets. (Civil law.) Property acquired during matrimony by either husband or wife, otherwise than by succession.

acquets and conquets. The property jointly or severally acquired by husband and wife by industry or good fortune. With respect to such property the French law is the same as the Spanish, except that the personal property, only, possessed by the parties at the time of marriage, enters into the partnership, as also acquets and conquets acquired during coverture, whether real or personal. But real property, held by either party at the time of the marriage, continues to be held separately, unless the contrary is stipulated. The result of this community or partnership, both at the Spanish and French law is this: that on the dissolution of the partnership, the surviving party and the representative of the deceased each take back what was brought on his or her side into the partnership, and what remains, being considered as gains or profits, is equally divided as between partners. See Picotte v Cooley, 10 Mo 312, 318.

acquiesce. To consent quietly. To consent without enthusiasm, even without approval. Scott v Jackson, 89 Cal 258, 26 P 898.

acquiescence. A tacit approval or at least an indication of lack of disapproval. Acceptance, perhaps without approval, as acquiescence in a decision. Stockstrom v Commissioner, 88 App DC 286, 190 F2d 283, 30 ALR2d 443, disapproved on the grounds in Automobile Club of Michigan v Commissioner, 353 US 180, 1 L Ed 2d 746, 77 S Ct 707. Conduct from which may be inferred assent with a consequent estoppel or quasi estoppel. Uccello v Gold'n Foods, 325 Mass 319, 90 NE2d 530, 16 ALR2d 459. The position of one who knows that he is entitled to impeach a transaction or to enforce a right and who neglects to do so for such a length of time that under the circumstances of the case the other party may fairly infer that he has waived or abandoned his fight. Scott v Jackson, 89 Cal 258, 26 P 899, quoting Rapalje and Lawrence's Law Dictionary. See also, Lux v Haggin, 69 Cal 255, 10 P 674.

[16]

acquiescence for detection. The lending of either active or passive assistance to a person engaged in the commission of criminal offense, either as a feigned accomplice or otherwise, for the purpose of detecting and apprehending him.

The distinction between acquiescence for detection and entrapment which is a defense to a criminal prosecution is that between merely testing a suspect by giving him opportunity to commit the offense and actually inducing him to commit a violation of law which otherwise he would not have committed. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 143.

acquiescence in custom. Essential of a custom binding upon the parties to a contract. A peaceable, unprotesting, and fairly uniform assent to a custom by those whose rights would naturally be affected by it, for such a length of time that it is safe to say that the custom must have entered into the minds of the parties at the time of their negotiations or transactions and therefore formed a part thereof, if nothing was said to the contrary. 21 Am J2d Cust § 8.

acquietandis plegiis. A writ by which a surety could compel a creditor to release him when the debt of the principal had been paid.

acquietantia. Acquittance; discharge.

acquietare. To acquit; to pay.

acquietatus. Acquitted.

acquire. To become the owner of property; to make property one's own. Wulzen v Board of Supervisors. 101 Cal 15, 35 11 353. To make property one's own for the purpose of using it, as in taking it under a lease. State ex rel. Cole v District Court, 79 Mont 1, 254 P 863.

acquired. Having purchased or otherwise obtained title, ownership, or possession, including, in the absence of a statutory restriction upon the meaning, a taking by descent, 3 Am J2d Aliens § 31. Having obtained possession under a lease. State ex rel. Cole v District Court, 79 Mont 1, 254 11 863.

The status of property as separate or community property is fixed as of the time when it is "acquired," the word contemplating the inception of the title and not its subsequent perfection. 15 Am J2d Community Prop § 22.

In a statute providing that all property acquired after marriage by either husband or wife, with specified exceptions, shall be community property, the word "acquired" was not used in an all-comprehensive sense, but in a more restricted sense embracing wages, salaries, earnings, or other property acquired through the toil, talent, or other productive faculty of either spouse, and did not include compensation for injuries to the person arising from violation of right of personal security. Nelson v American Employers' Ins. Co. 258 Wis 252, 45 NW2d 681, 22 ALR2d 1244.

acquired allegiance. The allegiance of a naturalized alien.

acquisitio hereditatis. (Roman Law.) The acquisition or vesting of an inheritance.

acquisition. That which is purchased or otherwise brought into one's ownership, literally that which is acquired.

See acquired.

acquisition by conquest. See conquest.

acquisition by discovery and occupation. See discovery and occupation.

acquisitiones civiles. The modes of the acquisition of property which were recognized by the Roman Law.

acquisitiones naturales. (Civil Law.) The modes of the acquisition of ownership of property which were peculiar to the jus gentium.

acquit. Judicially to set free or discharge from an accusation of guilt of a crime or even a civil liability. Dolloway v Turrill (NY) 26 Wend 383, 400.

acquittal. A verdict of not guilty. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 525. Not a matter of formal judgment, where the record in the case against the defendant ends with the verdict of acquittal. Arnold v State, 76 Wyo 445, 306 P2d 368, 65 ALR2d 839.

Ordinarily, in criminal jurisprudence, the word means a discharge after a trial, or an attempt to have one, upon its merits; but under statutes it may refer to a discharge for other reasons. Junction City v Keefe, 40 Kan 275, 19 P 735. Where a nolle prosequi is entered and a defendant discharged, he is acquitted of the criminal prosecution. Board of Commissioners v Johnson, 31 Ind 463, 466.

In the broad sense of the term, "acquittal" includes a discharge from civil liability.

See acquit.

acquittance. A release; a receipt.

While the word is not strictly synonymous with the word receipt, it includes receipt. A receipt is one form of acquittance; a discharge is another form. A receipt in full is an acquittance. It has been held that a receipt for part of a demand or obligation is an acquittance pro tanto, but the authorities are not unanimous on this point. State v Shelters, 51 Vt 102.

acquittance pro tanto. See acquittance.

acre. A measure of land equal to 160 square rods, or 4,840 square yards, or 43,560 square feet.

acreage. The number of acres in a tract of land. A stated number of acres constituting the subject matter of a conveyance. A term occasionally used to denote a relatively small area near a city or village.

acre-dale. A field composed of parts which are each owned by different persons.

acrefight. A duel.

acre-foot. The volume of water covering an acre to a depth of one foot.

acre right. A share in the common lands of a town.

acre-shot. A local tax on land.

acromion. Pertaining to the shoulder blade.

across. Laterally; from side to side.

ac si. As if.

act. Verb: To perform; to fulfill a function, to put forth energy; to move, as opposed to remaining at rest; to carry into effect a determination of the will. Holt v Middlebrook (CA4 Va) 214 F2d 187, 52 ALR2d 1043. To simulate: to perform on stage, screen or television.

Noun: A thing done or established; a part of a play or musical comedy; a deed or other written instrument evidencing a contract or an obligation. A statute; a bill which has been enacted by the legislature into a law, as distinguished from a bill which is in the form of a law presented to the legislature for enactment. Anne: 5 ALR 1422.

See statute and also various acts under the distinguishing or popular name, such as Safety Appliance Act; betterment acts; curative acts; occupying claimant acts.

acta. The minutes of court proceedings; the recorded proceedings of a legislative assembly.

acta diurna. Done on this day; daily records of transactions.

Acta Martyrum. Accounts of the early Christian martyrs taken from court registers or reports of witnesses, or prepared by ecclesiastical notaries.

acta publica. Matters of public concern.

Acta Sanctorum. Accounts of the Christian saints and martyrs, published by Jesuits.

act colore officii. An act done under the color of an office rather than under authority inherent in the office.

acting. Adjective: Performing as opposed to remaining inert. Substituting or taking the place of another officer temporarily, for example, an acting judge or acting treasurer. Participle: See act.

acting as agent. An allegation in pleading generally sufficient in attributing a contract made by an agent to his principal. 3 Am J2d Ag § 344.

acting within the scope of his office or employment.

Acting with authority so as to bind a principal. Acting in line of duty as a member of the Armed Forces. Anno: 1 ALR2d 226.

act in pais. An act performed out of court.

Actio. (Roman law.) A right of action by which a person who has acquired a right may prosecute and enforce it by process of law, if it is contested. See Mackeldey's Roman Law, § 17.

actio ad exhibendum. An action of Roman law origin to compel the defendant to produce personalty or evidence of title to real estate in his control.

actio adjecticiae qualitatis. A civil law action on a contract made for plaintiff by his agent.

actio ad supplendam legitimam. A civil law action brought by a person claiming a statutory share of a decedent's estate to compel the beneficiaries under the will to contribute to furnish his statutory share.

actio aedilicia. A civil law action on an implied warranty of quality.

actio arbitraria. A Roman law action in which the judex was permitted to order payment of money or to order restitution in kind, taking all the circumstances of the case into consideration.

actio auctoritatis. A civil law action for breach of warranty wherein the vendee was permitted to recover twice the amount of the purchase price.

actio bonae fidei. (Civil law.) An action in good faith; an action in which the judge was authorized to take cognizance of equitable considerations in rendering his decision.

actio calumniae. Action for or to restrain a malicious prosecution. (Civil law.)

actio certae creditae pecuniae. A Roman law action for the recovery of a certain fixed sum of money.

actio civilis. An action based upon the civil law; also a civil as distinguished from a criminal prosecution.

actio commodati contraria. (Civil law.) An action by a borrower against a lender to enforce their contract.

actio commodati directa. Civil law action by lender against borrower for reimbursement.

actio communi dividendo. A civil law action seeking the division of common property.

actio condictio indebitati. A civil law action to recover a payment made under mistake.

actio confessoria. A civil law action wherein the plaintiff sought to establish his right to a servitude as against the owner of the land or any other adverse claimant, and also to compel acknowledgment of his right.

actio contrario. Literally, an action in the opposite direction; a cross action.

actio criminalis. Criminal action; an action at law based upon a wrong of the defendant which constitutes an offense under the criminal law.

actio damni injuria. Civil law action for tort.

actio de dolo. A civil law action for deceit.

actio de eo quod certo loco. A civil law action to enforce an obligation which by its terms is to be met by the defendant at a certain place.

actio de pauperie. A civil law action for damage done by an animal.

actio de peculio. A civil law action involving the private property of a son or a slave.

actio de pecunia constituta. A civil law action on a promise to pay one's own pre-existing debt or that of another. The action would lie even in the absence of a formal engagement to pay.

actio depositi contraria. A civil law action by a depositary against a depositor to enforce their contract.

actio depositi directa. A civil law action by a depositor to recover the subject of the bailment from the depositary.

actio de posito vel suspenso. A praetorian action under Roman Law against one who had endangered a public way by suspending or placing something over it.

actio de recepto. A civil law action against a shipowner, innkeeper, or stablekeeper for the loss of a traveler's goods.

[18]

actio de statu defuncti A civil law action to determine the testamentary capacity of a decedent.

actio de tigno juncto. Civil law action to recover for material incorporated by another into his building.

actio directa. A direct action that is, an action against the person who transacted the business, whether an agent or representative; an action, the form of which is prescribed.

actio emti. A civil law action by the vendee against the vendor to recover the thing sold upon payment of the price.

actio ex conducto. A civil law action by a bailor against a bailee to recover goods hired.

actio ex contractu. A civil law action founded upon a contract.

actio ex delicto. A civil law action founded upon a tort.

actio exercitoria. A civil law action against a shipowner on a contract for freightage made by the owner's slave as captain of the ship.

actio ex interdicto. An action commenced as an ordinary civil law action, but prosecuted under "procedure extra ordinem."

actio ex locatio. Civil law action against a bailee for hire.

actio ex stipulatu. A civil law action founded upon a stipulation, which was a solemn, formal promise.

actio familiae erciscundae. A civil law action to effect the division of a common inheritance.

actio famosa. A civil law action wherein the judgment carried disgrace or infamy to the defendant.

actio ficticia. (Civil law.) A fictitious action in which the judgment was based upon assumptions of non existing facts.

actio fiduciae. A civil law action by a debtor against his creditor to recover compensation for the latter's failure to return the security after the debt had been paid. No action lay for the recovery of the pledged property.

actio finium regundorum. A civil law suit for the partition of real property.

actio furti. A civil law action to recover a penalty for stealing goods; that is, four times the value if the thief was caught in the act; otherwise twice the value.

actio honorarium. A Roman action based on the jus honorarium, that is, the praetorian law, the law made by the Roman officers, and not the civil law, which was the law made by the people.

actio in bonum et aequum concepta. A praetorian action in which the praetor directed the judge to decide according to what he conceived to be fair.

actio in factum. A civil law action similar to an action on the case at common law.

actio in factum praescriptis verbis. A civil law action in which the plaintiff demanded performance by the defendant by reason of having fully performed his own part of the contract.

actio injuriarum. A personal, penal civil law action which lay for any vexatious violation of the rights of another person.

actio in personam. A personal action under the civil law.

actio in rem. A civil law action against a thing; an action for the recovery of a thing or the establishment of a right to or in a thing independent of contract.

actio in rem hypothecaria. A praetorian action under the Roman Law whereby a creditor, with whom a debtor had agreed that certain chattels should be security for the debt, could obtain possession of the chattels.

actio institoria. A civil law action against a master on a contract made by his slave, acting as his business manager.

actio interrogatoria. (Roman law.) An action by which the defendant was obliged to make answer under oath to questions propounded. See I Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence, § 192.

actio iudicati. A civil law action to determine whether a judgment had been rendered.

actio legati. A civil law action by a legatee to enforce an obligation against the person charged by the legacy with the obligation.

actio locati. A civil law action for damages by the bailor under a bailment for hire against the bailee.

actio mandati. (Civil law.) An action by a person to whom another (the mandatory) has promised to execute a commission (mandate) for damages caused by the mandatory's negligence.

actio metus. Same as actio quod metus causa.

actio mixta. A mixed action under the civil law in the sense that the relief sought is both penal and reparatory.

actio mixtae persecutendae causa comparata. A mixed action under the civil law for the recovery of a penalty and also for the recovery of compensation.

action. A judicial proceeding, either in law or in equity, to obtain relief at the hands of a court. A judicial remedy for the enforcement or protection of a right, or a legal proceeding in which a plaintiff claims against a defendant or fund the enforcement of some obligation toward the plaintiff which is binding upon the defendant or the fund. A prosecution in a court by one party against another party for the enforcement or protection of a right, the redress or prevention of a wrong, or the punishment of a public offense, without regard to the particular form of the procedure. 1 Am J2d Actions § 4.

The term is inclusive of cause of action or right of action, as well as a pending action, in a statute providing for the survival of an action. 1 Am J2d, Abat & R § 1.

In several jurisdictions, for example, New York, an action, which is commenced by the service of summons, is distinct under statute from a proceeding which is commenced by petition and notice. In some jurisdictions it is expressly provided by statute that the word "action," as used in the statute of limitations, shall include a special proceeding of a civil nature. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 112.

[19]

A distinction has been drawn between the word "action," as importing the right or power to enforce an obligation, and the word "suit" which imports the pursuit of the remedy by which the right is enforced. 1 Am J2d Actions § 4.

The word "action" standing alone might reasonably be held not to include a criminal prosecution, but when the word "proceeding" is added, a combination is presented which is well near inclusive of all forms of litigation. United States v P. F. Collier & Son Corp. (CA7 Ind) 208 F2d 936, 40 ALR2d 1389.

The view has been taken that where the reference in a statute concerning corporate existence following dissolution is for the purpose of permitting "suits" or "actions" to be instituted or maintained against the dissolved corporation, such words are to be construed as applying only to civil litigation and not to criminal prosecutions. Anno: 40 ALR2d 1397.

In French, the term "action" includes a share of stock in a corporation or joint stock company and the certificate representing the ownership thereof.

Actionable. Remediable by an action at law or a suit in equity.

actionable defamation. See actionable per quod; actionable per se; libel; slander.

actionable negligence. See negligence.

actionable per quod. Words or epithets spoken of or concerning the plaintiff which are not so defamatory in a legal aspect that damage will be presumed from their utterance or publication, so that an action will not lie upon the words in the absence of pleading and proof of special damage. 33 Am J1st L & S § 5.

actionable per se. Words actionable as defamatory, without allegation and proof of special damage, because their character as injurious to reputation is a matter of common knowledge. 33 Am J1st L & S § 5.

According to some authorities, written or printed words may be actionable per se where, if merely spoken or uttered, they would not be actionable in the absence of pleading and proof of special damages. 33 Am J1st L&S §6.

See negligence per se.

actionable wrong. One for which an action will lie.

As to particular wrongs for which an action will lie, see specific terms, such as negligence; nuisance; etc.

actionably. In a manner which may render a person liable to be sued.

action against the state. An action which, because of the immunity of a state from suit under the 11th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and established principles of jurisprudence, can be had only with the consent of the state. 49 Am J1st States § 91.

A suit to restrain state officers from taking steps by means of a judicial proceeding in execution of a state statute to which they do not hold any special relation, is a suit against the state within the meaning of the prohibition of the 11th Amendment. State v Southern Railway Co. 145 NC 495, 59 SE 570.

action against the United States. An action which can be maintained only with the consent of the United States clearly given by an Act of Congress and subject to such restrictions as Congress may impose. Jones v Tower Production Co. (CA10 Okla) 120 F2d 779 (holding an action to remove a federal tax lien to be an action against the United States.)

actional. Pertaining to actions.

actionare. To sue; to prosecute.

action at common law. An action for the determination of legal, as distinguished from equitable, rights. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 58. An action governed by the common law rather than the civil or continental law.

action at law. An action prosecuted in a law court, as distinguished from a suit in equity. An action, the purpose of which is the recovery of a sum of money or damages, or an action wherein the only relief obtainable or appropriate is a money judgment for damages. Royal Indent. Co. v Sangor, 166 Wis 148, 164 NW 821, 9 ALR 397.

Notwithstanding the abolition of the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, it is still important to determine whether the case is at law or in equity. The method of review, the right to a jury trial, etc. may depend upon whether the case is to be regarded as at law or in equity. 1 Am J2d Actions § 7.

action brought. An action commenced. Goldenberg v Murphy, 108 US 162, 27 L Ed 686. 2 S Ct 388; Anno: 27 ALR2d 236, 253. A pending action; the status of an action wherein the defendant is subject to judicial orders tendered in the cause. 32 Am J2d Fed Prac § 424.

actio negatoria. A civil law action by a property owner against one who has disturbed his possession, to compel him to pay damages and to discontinue the disturbance.

actio negotiorum gestorum. A civil law action against one who has transacted business for the plaintiff in his absence or without his authority.

actionem constituere. To bring an action; to sue.

actionem instituere. To bring an action; to sue.

action en declaration d'hypothèque. An action by a creditor to subject real property in possession of a third party to a lien held by the plaintiff.

action en interruption. An action brought to stop the running of the statute of limitations against the plaintiff's claim.

action ex contractu. An action based upon a contract. 1 Am J2d Actions § 8.

action ex delicto. An action arising out of the violation of a duty or obligation created by positive law independent of contract. 1 Am J2d Actions § 8.

There may be a duty imposed by law by the relation of the parties, although the relation was created by contract, and when this is so, a neglect to perform this duty gives the injured person a right of action, and he may elect to sue upon the contract, or treat the wrong as a tort, and bring an action ex delicto. For example, a common carrier who wrongfully ejects a passenger who has paid his fare from a train commits a tortious act, although the relation of the parties had its origin in contract, and an action ex delicto may be maintained. 38 Am J1st Negl § 20.

action for conspiracy. See conspiracy.

action for death. See wrongful death.

action for determination of adverse claims. See determination of adverse claims.

action for divorce. See divorce.

action for mesne profits. See mesne profits.

action for partition. A suit in equity, the object of which is to enable those who own property as joint tenants, tenants in common, or coparceners to put an end to such tenancy so as to vest in each tenant a sole estate in specific property or a share of the proceeds of sale of the entire tract. 40 Am J1st Partit § 2.

action for restitution. See restitution.

action for separate maintenance. See separate maintenance.

action in equity. Same as suit in equity. 27 Am J2d Eq § 177.

action in personam. See in personam. action in rem. See in rem.

actionize. Same as actionary.

Actionnaire. A stockholder under French law.

action negatoire. An action by the owner of real property to establish the nonexistence of an easement or servitude on the property.

actionner. (French) To bring an action.

action not otherwise provided for. Air omnibus provision intended to extend the application of a statute such as a statute of limitations. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 70.

action of a local nature. An action in the federal court the subject matter of which, as appears from the allegations of the complaint, bill, or declaration, is situated wholly within the district in which the suit is brought. East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Co. v Atlanta & Florida Railroad Co. (CC Ga) 49 F 608.

action of assize. See assize.

action of book account or book debt. See book debt.

action of covenant. See covenant.

action of debt. See debt.

action of forcible entry. See forcible entry and detainer.

action of trespass. See trespass.

actio nominata. An action with a name, as distinguished from an action on the case.

actio non. A statement in a special plea that the plaintiff has no action.

Actio non accrevit infra sex annos. The plea that the action has not accrued within six years.

Actio non datur non damnificato. No action is given to a person who is not injured.

action on the case. See trespass on the case.

Actio non ulterius. A plea addressed to the further maintenance of the action.

actio noxalis. A civil law action to recover for an injury sustained from the act of the child, wife, or slave of the defendant.

action pending. The status of an action between the time of the commencement thereof and its final determination by a judgment.

An action is no longer pending after a judgment of dismissal has been made and entered, although third parties, who had secured an ex parte order permitting them to intervene, are about to do so. Minshull v McDougal, 143 Wash 599, 255 P. 655.

See plea of another action pending.

action populaire. An action brought in the public interest.

action quasi in rem. See quasi in rem action.

action sur le case. Same as action on the case.

See trespass on the case.

action to quiet title. See quieting title.

actio perpetua. A civil law action as to which there is no limitation period.

actio personalis. A personal action.

Actio personalis moritur cum persona. A personal action dies with the person. 1 Am J2d, Abat & R § 51.

Such principle of the common law is in modern times of little more than historical interest, since it has been abrogated by statute in most, if not all, American jurisdictions. 1 Am J2d Abat & R § 47.

See survival acts.

Actio personalis quae oritur ex delicto moritur cum persona. A personal action which arises out of a tort dies with the person.

actio pignoratitia. A civil law action founded upon a pledge.

actio poenalis. A civil law action brought by the injured party for the recovery of a penalty.

actio poena persecuendae causa comparata. A civil law action for the recovery of a penalty; a penal action.

actio popularis. A civil law action by the people or any one of the people to recover a penalty.

actio praejudicialis. A suit under the civil law preliminary to the principal action.

actio praescriptis verbis. A civil law action founded upon usage or precedent.

actio praetoria. An action under the Roman law brought by the praetor.

actio pro socio. A civil law action by one partner against another to compel performance of the agreement of partnership.

actio protutela. A civil law action against one who had acted as a guardian when he was not one, or who was really a guardian and acted as one without knowing it.

[21]

actio Publiciana. A Roman-law action granted by the praetor to the possessor of lost property for the protection of his rights, actio Publiciana confessoria in rem. A civil law action for the protection of servitudes not fully perfected.

actio Publiciana negatoria. A civil law action for the disturbance of one's possession.

actio quanti minoris. A civil law action by the vendee on an implied warranty of quality wherein he claimed a reduction in the price corresponding with the lower value caused by the defect.

active cause. That which produces an effect or result by active means; the efficient or proximate cause. 38 Am J1st Negl § 50.

actio quasi institoria. A civil law action which would lie in every case where, if the representative were a free person, the actio quod jussu would lie.

actio quod jusso. A civil law action by the creditor against the master on a contract made by a slave by the authority of the master.

actio quod metus causa. An action allowed by the Roman praetor whereby one might recover property with which he had parted under fear arising out of threats.

actio rationibus distrahendis. A civil law action by a ward against his guardian for converting property of the ward to his own use. The ward could recover both damages and a penalty.

actio redhibitoria. A civil law action by the vendee to rescind a sale.

actio rerum amotarum. A special compensatory action granted by the injured party if either spouse stole from the other on the eve of a divorce.

actio rescissoria. A civil law action to recover property lost by prescription.

actio re uxoriae. A civil law action on the dissolution of a marriage for the restoration of the dowry given to the couple at the time of their marriage.

actio serviana. A civil law action in rem whereby the locator of a rural estate sued a farmer to recover the property of the farmer which had been pledged to secure payment of the rent.

actio stricti juris. A civil law action in which the court followed the letter of the law.

actio temporalis. A Roman law action in respect to which the praetor had limited the time within which it could be brought.

actio tutelae. A civil law action of a ward against his guardian for failure to use that degree of care in the management of the guardianship which he was accustomed to exercise in the management of his own affairs.

actio utilis. A civil law action brought by the holder of the legal title in behalf of the person beneficially entitled.

actio venditi. A civil law action for the enforcement of a contract of sale.

actio vi bonorum raptorum. A civil law action for injury done by means of a robbery.

actio vindictam spirans. A civil law action brought by the plaintiff to secure personal satisfaction.

actio vulgaris. A Roman law term for a common action.

active bond. A bond which bears interest from its date at a fixed rate.

active cause. That which produces an effect or result by active means; the efficient or proximate cause. 38 Am J1st Negl § 50.

active commerce. Commerce carried on in ships of the country's own register and not in ships of other countries.

active concealment. Conduct whereby concealment is effected by misleading and deceptive talk, acts, or conduct.

Active concealment produces the same result in law as positive misrepresentation. 23 Am J2d Fraud § 93.

active member. One who takes part in a movement by lending his aid, supporting it by activities in its behalf. Scales v United States, 367 US 203, 6 L Ed 2d 782, 81 S Ct 1469.

active militia. An organization of armed men from the body of the militia, engaging at stated periods in military drill or other military exercises, returning to their usual vocations after such drilling and exercising, but subject to call when public exigencies demand their services. 36 Am J1st Mil § 42.

active negligence. Want of care in performing an act, as distinguished from inaction which in a proper case may be negligence, 38 Am J1st Negl § 3.

active progress, A redundancy, but nevertheless found in certain statutes.

A labor dispute in a seasonal industry may permissibly be deemed in "active progress" subsequently to the reaching of a dead line fixed for negotiating a collective bargaining agreement for the ensuing season, within the meaning of a provision of the Alaska Unemployment Compensation Act, where conferences between the union and employees continued after such date. Unemployment Com. v Aragon, 329 US 143, 91 L Ed 136, 67 S Ct 245.

active receivership. A receivership in which the receiver is charged with the duty of running a business or industry. 44 Am J1st Rec § 3.

active service. One in the Armed Forces who faces the enemy at the front and also one serving as a soldier, sailor, or airman in garrison, military camp, fort, or cantonment in support of forces at the front or in the performance of duty, even in time of peace. Anno: 4 ALR 850. Service in the Armed Forces, not necessarily in combat or in the movement of troops preparatory to an engagement. 57 Am J1st Wills § 663.

The distinguishing feature of active service is not exposure to the assaults of the enemy; it is service by one called to perform duty in contrast to readiness to serve or training for duty prior to the time that one is called from civilian life or from the reserve. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1204.

active trust. A trust which maintains the legal estate in the trustee, to enable him to perform the duties devolved on him by the donor, and gives the cestui que trust only a right in equity to enforce the performance of the trust. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 13. A trust in which active duties are to be performed by the trustee with reference to the administration of the trust property, and in which the primary use of the property is to be expressly or impliedly, by reason of such active duty, vested in the trustee. Holmes v Walter, 118 Wis 409, 95 NW 380.

[22]

active use. A use in which active duties were to be performed by the feoffee to uses with reference to the administration of the property conveyed to him. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 11.

activity. A state of movement or performance as contrasted with inertness.

See concerted activity.

act malum in se. See mala in se.

act malum prohibitum. See mala prohibita.

act of adjournal. An order of the Scotch court of judiciary, entered in its minutes; a record of a criminal sentence.

act of bankruptcy. An act for which the person who performed it may be adjudicated a bankrupt, provided timely proceedings for an adjudication are invoked and the person is not within the class of persons excepted from an involuntary adjudication. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 141.

act of commission. A positive act, as distinguished from an omission.

Act of Congress. A statute enacted by Congress. See various federal acts under popular or distinguishing name, such as Safety Appliance Act; Civil Rights Act, etc.

act of curatory. Qualifying as a curator or guardian. 25 Am J1st G & W §47.

act of dominion. An act evidencing an assumption of ownership.

act of God. An unusual, extraordinary, sudden, and unexpected manifestation of the forces of nature which man cannot resist. 32 Am J1st L & T § 795. An act beyond the intervention of man, such as a storm, a bolt of lightning, or a tempest. 1 Am J2d Act of God § 2.

An exception to the liability of a tenant from liability for injuries caused by an "act of God" will not include an injury caused by a fire set by human agency, since an act of God refers to some irresistible disaster such as results from natural causes in no sense attributable to human agency. 32 Am J1st L & T § 811.

An extraordinary flood may constitute, and is frequently treated as constituting, an "act of God." Whether it does or does not do so has been held to be a mixed question of law and fact. The defining and limitation of the term are questions of law for the court; but the existence or nonexistence of the facts on which it is predicated is a question for the jury where the evidence is such as to admit of more than one conclusion. 56 Am J1st Wat § 91.

act of grace. A grant of general pardon or amnesty by a new king or queen in honor of some important royal event.
See grace.

act of indemnity. A statute in aid of officers who have failed to qualify for their offices.

act of insolvency. An act or omissions of a debtor which justifies the filing of a petition in insolvency against him, such as making a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, failure to procure the dissolution of an attachment of his property, preferential transfers, fraudulent conveyances, etc. 29 Am J Rev ed Insolv § 14.

See act of bankruptcy.

act of law. Anything which proceeds by operation of law or under judicial authority.

act of legislature. See statute, also various acts under popular or distinguishing name, such as nonclaim statute; statute of frauds; moratory statute, etc.

act of oblivion. See oblivion.

Act of Parliament. A statute enacted by the Parliament of the United Kingdom.

Act of Settlement. The English statute 12 and 13 Wm. HL, c. 2, "whereby the crown was limited to his present majesty's illustrious house: and some new provisions were added, at the same fortunate era, for better securing our religion, laws, and liberties; which the statute declares to be 'the birthright of the people of England,' according to the ancient doctrine of the common law." See 1 BI Comm 128.

act of state doctrine. The principle which precludes American courts from inquiring into the validity of the public acts of a recognized foreign sovereign power within its own territory. Banco Nacional De Cuba v Sabbatino, 376 US 398, 11 L Ed 2d 804, 84 S Ct 923.

Act of Supremacy. An English statute establishing the supremacy of the king over the church.

Act of Uniformity. A statute establishing uniform services in the Church of England.
See uniform statutes.

Act of Union. Often referred to as the Articles of Union, being the agreement, containing twenty-five articles, which in 1707 was entered into between the kingdoms of England and Scotland, whereby these two kingdoms were united into one kingdom by the name of Great Britain. These articles were ratified and confirmed by statute 5 Anne, c. 8. See 1 BI Comm 96.

Acton Burnel. An English statute (1285) named from the place where it was passed and providing a procedure for the collection of debts.

act on petition. An English summary proceeding in admiralty cases.

actor. A performer on stage, screen, television, or radio. In the civil law, a plaintiff in an action, also one who acts for another, such as the manager of a business.

Actore non probante reus absolvitur. A defendant is exonerated by the failure of the prosecution to prove its case. Anno: 31 LRA (NS) 1169.

actores fabulae. Fictitious parties. Since common recoveries were themselves fabulous and fictitious proceedings, it was essential that there should be fictitious parties to them. See 2 BI Comm 362.

Actori incumbit onus probandi. Upon the plaintiff lies the burden of proof.

actor in rem suam. One who acts for himself, not through another.

Actor qui contra regulam quid adduxit non est audiendus. An advocate should not be heard who argues contrary to law.

[23]

Actor sequitur forum rei. The plaintiff must invoke jurisdiction in the forum in which the defendant resides or in which the property involved in the litigation is located. Fisher, Brown, & Co. v Fielding, 67 Conn 91, 34 A 714.

actrix. The feminine of actor.

acts mala in se. See mala in se.

acts mala prohibita. See mala prohibita.

acts of possession. See adverse possession.

acts of preparation. See preparation.

acts of sederunt. Certain rules of court made by judges of the Scotch court of session.

Acts of the martyrs. See Acta Martyrum.

act through. To act by another who is one's agent.

To "act through" a subordinate, may well be synonymous with "to vest" such subordinate with power to act. See United States v Chemical Foundation, 272 US 1, 71 L ed 131, 47 S Ct 1.

actual. Something real, or actually existing, as opposed to something merely possible, presumptive, implied, or constructive. Steen v Modern Woodmen of America, 296 111 104, 129 NE 546, 17 ALR 406, 412; Jones v State, 144 Miss 52, 109 So 265, 59 ALR 1146.

actual authority. Such authority as a principal intentionally confers upon his agent, or intentionally or by want of ordinary care allows the agent to believe himself to possess. McIntosh v Dakota Trust Co., 52 ND 1021, 204 NW 918, 40 ALR 1021.

Actual authority, if conferred expressly or impliedly, empowers an agent to bind his principal, even in violation of private instructions, where the person dealing with him has no notice of the limitation upon authority. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 147.

actual bias. The existence of a state of mind, on the part of a juror, which leads to a just inference in reference to the case that he will not act with entire impartiality.

Literally, it is a leaning of the mind--a prepossession, something more than sympathy which can be set aside. 31 Am J Rev ed J § 172.

actual bona fide resident. See bona fide resident.

actual cash value. The price in cash obtainable in a fair market. The fair cash value. Birmingham Fire Ins. Co. v Pulver, 126 Ill 329, 18 NE 804.

Cost of reproduction less depreciation, although important evidence of value, is not an exclusive test of "actual cash value" within the meaning of an appraisal clause of an insurance policy. Schreiber v Pacific Coast Fire Ins. Co. 195 Md 639, 75 A2d 108, 20 ALR2d 951. Neither market value nor replacement cost is an exclusive test; all facts and circumstances which tend logically to assist in arriving at a correct estimate of actual cash value are to be considered. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1545.

actual change of possession. A real, as distinguished from a scrambling, litigious, or constructive change of possession, is what is comprehended in speaking of part performance sufficient to take a case out of the statute of frauds by a change of possession. 49 Am J1st Stat of F § 439.

actual competition. See competition actual compulsion. Real compulsion, as distinguished from a presumed compulsion because of the relationship between the parties as husband and wife, parent and child, etc.

actual controversy. A justiciable controversy, one that is not merely moot or amounting merely to a difference of opinion, but involving persons adversely interested in matters as to which the determination of the court is sought. 22 Am J2d Dec J § 11.

actual damages. Damages in compensation for the loss or injury suffered rather than those allowed by way of punishment of the defendant or deterring others. 22 Am J2d Damg § 11.

actual delivery. Within the rule as to passing title under a sale, the term means a formal immediate tradition of the property to the vendee. Bridgham v Hinds, 120 Me 444, 115 A 197, 21 ALR 1024.

But an actual delivery of an insurance policy may be completed without a manual tradition of the instrument to the insured. Any disposition of the policy by the insurer which evidences an intention to put the policy out of its control and in the control of the applicant is sufficient to amount to a delivery or actual delivery of the policy. 29 Am JRev ed Ins § 216.

See actual change of possession; delivery.

actual doubt. A reasonable doubt, a doubt beyond the realm of vague apprehension. Anno: 147 ALR 1046.

actual escape. An escape which takes place when a prisoner gets out of prison or any place in which he may be confined, or from out of the authority in whose custody he is, and unlawfully regains his liberty, free from the authority and control of the power entitled to restrain him. 27 Am J2d Escape § 1.

actual eviction. A physical dispossession of a tenant as distinguished from a constructive eviction. 32 Am J1st L & T § 246.

See actual ouster.

actual force. Real force, as distinguished from mere persuasion.

In robbery, the term implies personal violence, but the degree of force is immaterial so long as it is sufficient to compel one to part with his property. It is to be distinguished from constructive force in that it includes all force inflicted directly on the person robbed, while constructive force includes all demonstrations of force, menaces, and means by which the victim is put in fear sufficient to suspend the free exercise of the will, or prevent resistance to the taking. See 46 Am J1st Rob § 15.

actual fraud. Intentional and successful employment of cunning, deception, or artifice to circumvent, cheat, or deceive another. 23 Am J1st Fraud § 4.

actual immunity. See immunity; self-incrimination. actual induction. The reception of a person into the Armed Forces of the United States which makes him a member thereof and responsible for the performance of the duties of a soldier, sailor, marine, etc.

It does not take place, under the Army and Selective Service regulations, until the selectee has taken the oath of induction, and where he refuses to take it, it is not enough that he has been accepted after physical examination, or that the oath was read to him and that he was thereupon informed that he was in the Army, to subject him to a court-martial for disobeying an order. Billings v Truesdell, 321 US 542 88 L Ed 917, 64 S Ct 737.

[24]

actual knowledge. Real knowledge as distinguished from presumed knowledge or knowledge imputed to one because of his having had information which should have put him on inquiry that would have led to real knowledge. In some cases, as where it is an element of wrongdoing, the equivalent of guilty knowledge.

Under the generally accepted doctrine that a bank director is not personally liable to a depositor of the bank for damages sustained by reason of the insolvency of the bank, unless the director had actual knowledge of the bank's insolvency, the term "actual knowledge" means a guilty knowledge, not an innocent bona fide ignorance arising from neglect on his part to inquire into the financial condition of the bank. 10 Am J2d Banks § 199.

One insured against loss by "robbery", defined by the policy to include the felonious and forcible taking of insured property . . . by any other overt felonious act committed in his presence and of which he was "actually cognizant," is not thereby covered as to a loss of money which he had in his pocket, and which he discovered to be missing after he returned to his store from the street where two men, in helping him stop a dogfight, had jostled him. Ashcraft v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (Ky) 255 SW2d 485, 37 ALR2d 1078.

actual loss. From breach of contract:- the loss of what the promisee would have made if the contract had been performed, less the proper deductions. 22 Am J2d Damg § 47.

Extent of insurer's liability under insurance on property:- the real loss is the measure of indemnity to which the insured is entitled without distinction between a total and partial loss. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1538.

See actual cash value.

actually. Really. In fact. State v Ritschel, 220 Minn 578, 20 NW2d 673, 168 ALR 274.

actually cognizant. See actual knowledge.

actually collected. Actually received in funds. In some connections, the net amount received, that is, an amount received less costs of collection. Curtin v New York, 287 NY 166, 39 NE2d 903, 142 ALR 166.

actually paid. Really paid. Paid in cash, not by the giving of a note or other obligation of the debtor. Sometimes construed as "actually payable," as in the case of an insolvent reinsured under a contract of reinsurance. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1756.

actual malice. Real as distinguished from legal or technical malice. 30 Am J Rev ed Interf § 45. Hatred, ill will, or hostility entertained by one person toward another. 34 Am J1st Mal §§ 2, 3.

Although the cases are not entirely in accord, it would appear that the better view is that wantonness may amount to actual malice. Crane v New York World Tel. Corp. 308 NY 470, 126 NE2d 753, 52 ALR2d 1169. Compare 34 Am J1st Mal § 3.

actual military service. See active service.

actual necessity. The existence of a genuine necessity, the most common use of the term being in reference to a taking of property under the power of eminent domain. See 26 Am J2d Ern D §§ 111 et seq.

actual notice. Express information of a fact, as well as circumstances from which an inference of notice is clearly justified. 39 Am J1st Notice § 4.

"However closely actual notice may in many instances approximate knowledge, there may be actual notice without knowledge." Dunlap v Gibson, 83 Kan 757, 112 P 598.

The words do not always mean in law what in metaphysical strictness they import; they more often mean knowledge of facts and circumstances sufficiently pertinent in character to enable reasonably cautious and prudent persons to investigate and ascertain as to the ultimate facts. Texas Co. v Aycock, 190 Tenn 16, 227 SW2d 41, 17 ALR2d 322.

See actual knowledge.

actual notice in the second degree. An overly-refined expression for implied or constructive notice. Texas Co. v Aycock, 190 Tenn 16, 227 SW2d 41, 17 ALR2d 322.

actual occupation. Making use of, or living upon, premises either personally or through a tenant. Cox v Richerson, 186 Miss 576, 191 So 99, 124 ALR 1138.

See actual possession.

actual occupation test. A test to determine whether there has been a change of occupation of the insured under a policy of life insurance so as to diminish the recovery under the policy in accordance with a provision in the policy. 29 Am 1 Rev ed Ins § 769.

actual ouster. The actual expulsion of a tenant from the demised premises.

If a lessee, to avoid actual expulsion, yields possession and attorris in good faith to one having a title paramount to that of his landlord, and a right to immediate possession, it is equivalent to an actual ouster, since the tenant is not bound to hold unlawfully and subject himself to an action, and is not under any duty to resist such an entry. See 32 Am J1st L & T § 111.

See actual eviction.

actual pecuniary injury. An injury, the result of which can be actually measured in money. Drury v Franke, 247 Ky 758, 57 SW2d 969, 88 ALR 917.

actual possession. Substantial possession, possession in fact, sometimes referred to as by the foot or pedis possession. The term is also used by some authorities in referring to the possession of one part of a larger tract by possession in fact of the other part, where the occupant claims the whole as of right and there is substantial evidence of the boundaries of the entire larger tract, although other authorities refer to this type of possession by actual occupancy of another part as constructive possession. 42 Am J1st Prop § 42.

Actual possession is an essential of adverse possession. As such it means possession in fact, effected by actual entry upon the premises, and actual occupancy such as to indicate his exclusive ownership. 3 Am J2d Adv P § 13.

actual residence. A person's actual place of abode, the place where he actually lives, which is not necessarily his legal residence. Fitzgerald v Arel, 63 Iowa 104. See also 25 Am J2d Dom §§ 6, 9.

actual sale. A completed sale as distinguished from a contract to sell.

actual seizin. Seizin in fact, or seizin in deed, as distinguished from seizin in law, which is merely the right of an heir to the possession of the land descended when there is no adverse possession. See 23 Am J2d Dese & D § 23.

actual seizure. A seizure which is accomplished by the manucaption of the thing intended to be seized. 6 Am J2d Attach § 296.

[25]

actual service. Personal service, as distinguished from service by publication or some other form of constructive service of process. 42 Am J1st Proc § 46.

The typical example of actual or personal service is that of reading the process to the person to be served or handing him a true copy upon his waiver of a reading.

See active service.

actual settler. As applied to settlers upon the public lands of the United States, a settlement completed by the settler and not a contemplated or possible settlement of an applicant for settlement.

The term implies an actual habitation established on some specific parcel of the land. Oregon & C. R. Co. v United States, 238 US 393, 432, 434, 59 L Ed 1360, 1395, 35 S Ct 908.

The residence required in order to qualify one as an actual settler must be continuous and personal. 42 Am J1st Pub L § 22.

actual total loss. This term as used in marine insurance means just what it implies, a total and actual loss to the insured of the subject matter of the insurance. To enable the insured to recover for a total loss, there must be a total destruction of value. It is not necessary to a total loss that there be an absolute destruction of the thing insured, so that nothing of it can be delivered at the point of destination, but there is a total loss if the thing is destroyed in specie, that is in the character or specie in which it was insured, even though some of its elements or parts may remain. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1570.

actual use. The particular and real use to which property is devoted at a particular time. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 109.

As to what constitutes an actual use of materials within the meaning of a statute providing a mechanic's lien, see Anno: 39 ALR2d 452.

See in actual use.

actual value. The actual cash value or, if that is not ascertainable for want of a market, the intrinsic value or the value to the owner. 22 Am J2d Damg § 149. Practically identical with market value, or cash value, for the purposes of a tax statute. Re Frank, 123 Or 286, 261 P 893, 57 ALR 1155; Anno: 57 ALR 1158, supplemented 83 ALR 939, and 117 ALR 143.

actual violence. Physical as distinguished from inchoate violence; the element which distinguishes a battery from an assault. 6 Am J2d Asslt & B § 7.

actual waste. Commissive waste; acts injurious to the substance of an estate in land, such as cutting down trees valuable as timber and destroying, altering, or removing buildings. 56 Am J1st Waste § 4.

actuarial solvency. The ability of an insurance company or benefit society to meet accrued obligations and the obligations represented by policies and certificates in force as such appears in funds on hand and the present worth of payments of premiums and assessments to be made in the future by those insured under policies and certificates. Jenkins v Talbot, 338 Ill 441, 170 NE 735, 80 ALR 638.

actuarious. A notary public under the civil law, but having duties of much greater variety and more significance than a notary public in common-law jurisdictions. 39 Am J1st Notary P § 3.

Other designations of the officer in civil law jurisdictions are registrarius, and scrivarius.

actuary. One engaged in the work of calculating the cost of carrying a risk, the amount of insurance premiums, the value of future interests, life estates, and annuities.

In the civil law, the word was used to signify a clerk or registrar; and in the ecclesiastical law, it denoted a clerk in the lower house of convocation.

actum. A deed.

actus. In the civil law, an act, something performed or accomplished; also a right of way.

Lord Coke, adopting the civil law, divided private ways into three kinds: a footway, called "iter;" a footway and horseway, called "actus," and a cartway, which embraced both of the other two, called "via." To these was added a "driftway," a road over which cattle could be driven. Jones v Venable, 120 Ga 1, 47 NE 549.

Actus curiae neminem gravabit. The act of the court shall prejudice no one. The maxim was applied to support the entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc, where delay was the fault of the court. See Borer v Chapman, 119 US 587, 30 L Ed 532, 7 S Ct 342.

actus Dei (ak'tus DE'i). The term is used interchangeably with "act of God," "vis major" and "Vis Divina." See act of God.

Actus Dei nemini est damnosus. The act of God does no legal damage to anyone.

Actus Dei nemini facit injuriam. An act of God does not violate the legal right of anyone. The loss from an injury caused thereby must be borne by the one who suffered it. 38 Am J1st Negl § 7.

Actus Dei vel legis nemini facit injuriam. Neither the act of God nor that of the law works legal wrong to anyone.

actus fictus in fraudem legis. A fictitious act in fraud of the law.

actus legis nemini facit injuriam. The act of the law works prejudice to no one.

Actus legitimi non recipiunt modum. Acts required by law do not admit of qualification.

Actus me invito factus, non est meus actus. An act done by me against my will is not my act.

Actus non facit reum, nisi mens sit rea. An act does not render one guilty, unless the mind is guilty. At common law, a crime had two essential elements: an act and an evil intention. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 81.

Actus repugnans non potest in esse produci. A repugnant act is of no effect.

Actus servi in iis quibus opera ejus communiter adhibita est, actus domini habetur. The act of a servant, in the sort of work in which he is generally employed, is that of the master.

[26]

acuerdo. (Spanish.) The decision of a court; the resolution of a council or other board.

acute cholecystitis. A serious infection of the gall bladder, Home Life Ins Co. v Madere (CA5 Miss) 101 F2d 292.

acute disease. The antithesis of chronic disease; one which is severe, perhaps critical, as of the moment. Home Life Ins. Co. v Madere (CA5 Miss) 101 Fed 2d 292.

acya. Hate; malice.

ad. Latin preposition: To; toward; for; until; about.

A. D. An abbreviation of Anno Domini, in the year of our Lord; since the birth of Christ.

ad abundantiore cautelam. For greater caution.

ad admittendum clericum. For admitting the clerk; a writ directing a bishop to admit and institute a clerk, that is, one of the clergy.

adaequatio. An equivalent; a making equal.

adaerere. To value in money.

ad aliud examen. To another examination or trial. See 3 Bl Comm 113.

ad alium diem. At another day.

Adam. A bailiff or jailer.

Adamson Act. A federal statute declaring that eight hours shall be deemed a day's work for the purpose of reckoning the compensation of employees of common carriers by railroad. 45 USC §§ 65, 66; 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 799.

ad annum vigesimum primum; et eo usque juvenes sub tutelam reponent. To the twenty-first year; and until then they place their young men under guardianship. See 1 Bl Comm 464.

adapted. Fit for use, sometimes after alteration or change.

ad assisas capiendas. The word "assize" is derived, according to Sir Edward Coke, from the Latin assideo, to sit together, and originally it signifies the jury who try the cause and sit together for that purpose. By a figure it is now made to signify the court or jurisdiction which summons this jury together by a commission of assize, or "ad assisas capiendas," which means, literally, at the summoning of the assizes. See 3 Bl Comm 185.

a datu. From the date.

ad audiendum considerationem curiae. To hear the decision of the court ad audiendum errores. To hear errors.

ad audiendum et determinandum. For hearing and determining.

ad audiendum iudicium. See capias ad audiendum, etc.

adavaunt. Before.

adayement. Provocation.

adayer. To provoke.

ad bancum. At the bench; to the bench.

ad barram. At the bar.

ad barram evocatus. Called to the bar, admitted to practice law.

A.D.C. Abbreviation of aide-de-camp.

ad campi partem. For a share.

ad captandum. For the purpose of catching or capturing.

ad captum vulgi. By common understanding.

ad cautelam ex superabundanti. For excessive caution.

ad colligendum. For temporary collection and preservation of assets.

ad colligendum bona defuncti. For collecting the goods of the decedent.

See letters ad colligendum bona defuncti.

ad communem legem. The name of a common-law form of writ of entry which lay for a reversioner, after the alienation and death of the particular tenant for life.

ad commune nocumentum. For the common nuisance.

ad comparendum. To appear.

ad comparendum et ad standum juri. To appear and stand to the law, to appear in court and abide by the court's decision.

ad comptum reddendum. To render an account.

ad computandum. See capias ad computandum.

ad concordiam publicam promovendam. To promote the public peace. See 4 Bl Comm 425.

ad consentiendum. In consequence of consent. See 1 Bl Comm 168.

ad consulendum. To consult.

ad consulendum, ad defendendum regem. For counselling and for defending the king. See 1 Bl Comm 227.

ad credulitare. To clear one's self of a criminal charge by denial under oath.

See purgation.

ad crumenam. To the purse.

See argumentum ad crumenam.

ad culpa. Until misconduct.

ad curiam. Before the court; to the court.

ad custagium. For the costs.

ad custantia. For costs.

ad custum. At the cost.

ad damnum. To the damage; formal claim for damages in a pleading.

ad damnum clause. That clause in a declaration or complaint which sets forth the plaintiff's demand for damages and the amount thereof.

add. Calculating a total; joining with something to increase the quantity.
See advertisement.

[27]

ad decisionem litis. By the decision in the action.

added damages. Punitive or exemplary damages, sometimes called smart money. 22 Am J2d Damg § 236.

ad defendendum. To defend; for defending.

ad deliberandum. To deliberate; a writ for the removal of a prisoner for trial to the proper jurisdiction, usually called habeas corpus ad deliberandum et recipiendum.

ad deliberandum et recipiendum. See habeas corpus ad deliberandum et recipiendum. ad delinquendum. To become delinquent.

addendum. An appendix to an instrument or other writing.

addendum circle. A circle on a gear wheel which touches the points of the teeth of the wheel.

addicere. To condemn; also to deliver.

addict. In the civil law, a commitment as a prisoner. In common usage today, one who becomes an habitual user of narcotics.

addictio. (Civil law.) A judicial award under which ownership of property was acquired. The commitment of a debtor.

addictio in diem. A civil law sale contract with a proviso that the seller shall be released if a better offer is made to him on or before a certain day.

addiction. See addict.

ad diem. At the day; at a day.

additio. Same as addition.

addition. The arithmetical process of computing a sum. A descriptio personae; that is, some title or description written after a person's name for certainty of identification; as, Jane Lewis, wife of A. V. Lewis. Commonwealth v Lewis, 42 Mass (I Met) 148, 152. Something added to an instrument which, in the case of a will, is an alteration that must be executed and attested as a will if it is to be effective, 57 Am J1st Wills § 508. A structure built on to another structure to produce an enlarged building. As used in a fire insurance policy covering buildings and additions or personal property located in buildings and additions, the terms "additions" or "additions attached" are given a liberal construction in favor of the insured consistent with the intention of the parties. Effect is to be given to them by applying the terms to any building reasonably answering the description, provided such application is not inconsistent with other terms of the policy or clearly excluded by the facts and circumstances surrounding the parties at the time of the execution of the contract. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 294.

In a lease of premises already equipped for operating an oil refinery, a provision giving the lessee the right to erect and remove "additions" was held to cover new equipment installed to increase the capacity, and meet increased demands for the product. Anno: 91 ALR 540.

See paid-up addition.

additional. Added; supplemental; coming by way of addition.

Matter which is additional is to be distinguished from that which is amendatory in a statute. Collier v Smaltz 149 Iowa 230, 128 NW 396.

additional abstract. An appellee's abstract of the record; an amendatory abstract on appeal. 4 Am J2d A & E § 410.

additional allowances. Discretionary allowances of costs, in addition to the regular statutory costs, authorized in difficult and extraordinary cases. 20 Am J2d Costs §71. Attorneys' or referee's fees, taxed as costs. 4 Am J2d A & E § 128.

additional arbitrator. See third arbitrator.

additional assessment. A redetermination of liability for a tax. A further assessment for a tax of the same character previously paid in part. Girard Trust Co. v United States, 270 US 163, 70 L Ed 524, 46 S Ct 229.

additional burden. See additional servitude.

A structure may be an "addition" within the meaning of a fire insurance policy, notwithstanding there is no physical connection between it and the main building insured by the policy. Also, a building may be considered to come within the policy as an addition, even though it is larger and more costly than the original building. The term additions is not confined to structures in existence at the time the contract of insurance was made. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 294.

additional entry. An entry made by a settler on public lands of the United States after he has made a previous entry.

additional instructions. Instructions given to the jury by the court after they have retired to deliberate.

The court may exercise a wide discretion in the matter of charging the jury, and may bring them in at any time and give them additional instructions, whether requested or not. 53 Am J1st Tr § 941.

additional insurance. See contribution between insurers; double insurance; excess insurance; other insurance clause.

additional insured. One other than the person named as the insured under an automobile liability policy, while using the motor vehicle with the permission of the named insured for the purposes for which it is insured and within the scope of the permission granted. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 110.

additional liability. See superadded liability.

additional premium. An additional payment required of a mortgagor for the privilege of paying the principal in advance, thereby stopping the accumulation of interest. Anno: 70 ALR2d 1334.

The term is also used to designate the increase in premium payable under an insurance policy when additional coverage is given, such as an additional premium where coverage for loss by hail is added to a policy otherwise insuring only against loss from fire and windstorm.

additional servitude. A use of a different character from that for which the land was originally taken under eminent domain proceedings, amounting to the imposition of a new and additional easement on the land and requiring a new condemnation to justify its taking. 26 Am J2d Em D § 207.

additional work. Work performed by the builder under a construction contract pursuant to a modification of the terms of the contract. 13 Am J2d Bldg Contr § 4.

[28]

additions. Plural of addition.

additio probat minoritatem. To add a word may indicate a lesser, as by changing "Colonel" to "Lieutenant Colonel."

additur. An increase by the court in the amount of damages awarded by the jury. 22 Am J2d Damg §§ 398 et seq.

addone. Given to.

addoubeur. A promoter; one who aids in organizing an enterprise or business.

address. Verb: To speak or to write to a person or a body; to indicate the destination of mail. Noun: The direction given on a letter or other piece of mail as to the destination. A speech or a writing. A request of an executive by a legislative body for the removal of a judge or other officer. The technical description in a bill in equity of the court to which the bill is presented, including, if desired, but not as a requirement, the name of the chancellor or judge. 27 Am J2d Equity § 180.

To call the words which one minister speaks to his congregation a "sermon," immune from regulation, and the words of another minister an "address," subject to regulation, is merely an indirect way of preferring one religion over another, in violation of the constitutional guaranties of freedom of religion. Fowler v Rhode Island, 345 US 67, 97 L Ed 828, 73 S Ct 526.

addressare. Same as adrectare.

addresser. To raise up; to hold up; to prepare.

adduce. To bring forward; to present; to offer; to introduce.

It is apparent that the word may have widely different meanings in connection with evidence adduced, for evidence offered is very different from evidence introduced. Introduced evidence is evidence received. Offered evidence may or may not be received. Tuttle v Story County, 56 Iowa 316, 317, 9 NW 292.

ad ea quae frequentius accidunt jura adaptantur. Laws are adapted to those cases which more commonly occur.

adeem. Taking away; to effect an ademption.

See ademption.

ad effectum. To the purpose.

ad effectum sequentem. To the following effect.

adeling. Same as atheling.

ad emendum et vendendum sine omnibus malis tolne tis, per antiquas et rectas consuetudines. For buying and selling without any improper tolls, according to old and proper customs.

ademptio. Same as ademption.

ademption. The extinction or satisfaction of a legacy by some act of the testator, which indicates either a revocation or an intention to revoke the bequest. American Trust & Banking Co. v Balfour, 138 Tenn 385, 198 SW 70, 57 Am J1st Wills § 1580. The practical nullification of a general legacy by the act of the testator, subsequent to the will, in paying money or transferring property to the legatee with the intent that the benefit conferred shall be applied on or substituted for the legacy. Anno: 26 ALR2d 14.

The foregoing definitions are subject to extension, since it is clear that an ademption of a testamentary bequest may occur by reason of the destruction or extinction of the subject matter without the agency of the testator, as by the death of an animal bequeathed by the will, in which case an ademption may occur without testatorial intention. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1580.

Where a legacy of stocks, bonds, or other corporate securities are not in the estate of the testator at the time of his death, the general rule is that the bequest is adeemed. Anno: 117 ALR 811.

adeo. To that point; so far.

adeo plene et integre. As fully and completely.

ad eosdem terminos. At or on the same terms.

adeprimes. First; in the first place.

adequacy. Sufficiency; sufficiency for a particular purpose, Penn. & N. Y. C. & R. Co. v Mason, 109 Pa 296.

adequacy of consideration. See adequate consideration.

adequate. Fully sufficient; equal to what is required; lawfully and reasonably sufficient. Standard Dict. See Nagle v Billings, 77 Mont 205, 250 P 445.

adequate care. The standard of reasonable care under the circumstances of the case. 38 Am J1st Neg] § 29.

adequate cause. As the term is used in the definition of manslaughter committed under sudden passion arising from an adequate cause, such cause as would commonly produce a degree of anger, rage, resentment, or terror, in a person of ordinary temper, sufficient to render the mind incapable of cool reflection. Boyett v State, 2 Tex App 93, 100.

See adequate provocation.

adequate compensation. The just and reasonable compensation to which an owner of property taken in an eminent domain proceeding is entitled. 27 Am J2d Em D § 266.

adequate consideration. A fair and reasonable price for the subject-matter of the contract; a consideration not so greatly disproportionate to the value as to offend against fair business dealing. Anno: 65 ALR 85.

adequate facilities. See adequate or reasonable facilities.

adequate legal remedy. See adequate remedy at law.

adequately safe. Sufficiently safe; sufficiently safe for a particular purpose. Pennsylvania & N. Y. C. & R. Co. v Mason, 109 Pa 296.

adequate or reasonable facilities. A relative expression, calling for such facilities as may be fairly demanded of a carrier, regard being had, among other things, to the size of the place, the extent of the demand for transportation, the cost of furnishing the additional accommodations asked for, and other circumstances which have a bearing upon convenience and cost. 13 Am J2d Car § 142.

adequate provocation. Provocation which is sufficient to reduce an intentional killing from murder to manslaughter and consisting of conduct on the part of the deceased which so excited the assailant as practically to enthrall his reason. State v Grugin, 147 Mo 39.

[29]

See reasonable provocation.

adequate remedy at law. A remedy at law which defeats by its existence the jurisdiction of equity, being a remedy which is plain, clear and certain, prompt or speedy, sufficient, full, or complete, practical, and efficient to the attainment of the ends of justice. 27 Am J12d Equity § 94. A term impossible of complete and accurate definition, but meaning generally relief as certain, prompt, practicable, and efficient as an injunction would be. 28 Am J Rev ed Inj § 39.

aderere. In arrears.

ad escambium ad valentiam. For exchange to the value.

adesouth. Underneath.

ad essendum. To be.

ad essendum coram iudicariis. To be before the justices.

ad essendum de consilio suo. To be of his counsel.

ad estimationem pretii, damni, lucri, etc. To estimate the price, damage, gain, etc. See 3 Bl Comm 397.

adeu. Without day, without appointing a future day, sine die.

adevant. Before.

ad eversionem juris nostri. To the upsetting of our rights under the law.

ad excambium. See excambium.

ad executionem decretorum judicii, ad estimationem pretii, damni, lucri, etc. To execute the decrees of the court, to estimate the price, damage, gain, etc. See 3 Bl Comm 397.

ad exhaeredationem. To disinherit; to disinherit.

ad exhaeredationem ecclesia. To the disinheritment of the church.

ad exhaeredationem ipsius. To his own disinheritance.

ad exitum. At the end of pleading; at issue.

ad extremum. At the end; finally.

ad faciendum. To do; to make; for doing; for making.

ad faciendum et recipiendum. See habeas corpus ad faciendum et recipiendum.

ad factum praestandum. A Scotch law obligation of a very binding nature.

ad facio. To strive for; to intend to accomplish.

ad fidem. Of allegiance.

ad fidem regis. Under the allegiance of the king.

ad fidem utriusque regis. Under allegiance to each king.

ad filum aquae. To the thread or center of the stream.

ad filum viae. To the middle of the way. Parker v Inhabitants of Framingham, 49 Mass (8 Met) 260, 267.

ad fin. An abbreviation of ad finem.

ad finem. To the end; at the end.

ad finem litis. At the end or to the end of the litigation.

adfines. Same as affines.

ad firmam. To farm.

See fee farm.

ad firmam ponere. To put to farm.

adfixus. Same as affixus.

ad foedi firmam. To fee farm.

See fee farm.

ad fundamen jurisdictionem. To the basic principles of jurisdiction.

ad gaolam deliberandam. For jail delivery.

ad gaolas deliberandas. To make a jail delivery.

adgisant. Adjacent.

adgisantz. Adjacent.

adgnoscerere. To admit; to accept.

ad gravamen. To the grievance or damage.

ad gravamen tenetis sui. To the grievance of his tenant.

ad grave damnum. To the great damage.

ad gustum. To the taste; to one's liking.

adherence. A Scotch action to restore marital rights. Supporting a person or a cause.

adhering. Cleaving to or supporting.

adhesion. Adherence. The uniting of tissues of the body which normally are separate, sometimes occurring as the aftermath of surgery. Acquiring relations with another nation by treaty or compact. 52 Am J1st Treat § 3.

adhesion contract. A contract that is drafted unilaterally by the dominant party and then presented on a take it or leave it basis to the weaker party, who has no real opportunity to bargain about its terms. Restatement Second, Conflict of Laws § 332a, Comment e.

adhibere deligentiam. To exercise care.

adhibere vim. To use force.

ad hoc. To this only; respecting this particularly. For this case only.

ad hoc autem creatus est et electus, ut justitiam faciat universis. He is created and chosen for the purpose of bestowing justice upon all.

Ad hoc facit. It makes to this, it goes to this effect.

ad hoc officer. An officer, such as a referee in partition. whose tenure continues only for the duration of the case or the performance of his duties therein, ending when his work in the case has been performed and approved by the court. Saxe v Shea (CA2 NY) 98 F2d 83.

[30]

ad hominem. To the man; personal, See argumentum ad hominem.

Adhuc existit. It exists even now.

Adhuc remanet. It remains at the present time.

Adhuc sub judice lis est. The cause is still before the court.

Adhuc detinet. He detains up to this time.

adhuc diem. At this day.

Adhuc possunt partes resilero. The parties may withdraw at this time.

A dicto secundum quid ad dictum simpliciter. From what has been said to that which has been said plainly. An error of logic in concluding the existence of collateral facts from a presumption. Hyde v United States, 225 US 347, 385, 56 L Ed 1114, 1133, 32 S Ct 793.

ad idem. To the same effect.
See consensus ad idem.

Ad idem facit. It goes to the same effect.

adieu. Farewell. In old English, a dismissal without opportunity for another day in court.

A digniori fieri debet denominatio. A designation should be made from the more fitting.

ad ignorantiam. To ignorance.

See argumentum ad ignorantiam.

ad illud. To that.

adimere. To take away; to remove.

Ad impossibilia lex non cogit. The law does not compel impossible things. A streetcar violates no law in failing to turn out for a truck. Commonwealth v Temple, 80 Mass (14 Gray) 69, 78.

ad indefinitum. To the indefinite; indefinitely; without end.

ad inde requisitus. From thence required.

ad infinitum. Without end; to any extent.

ad informandum conscientiam iudicis. To inform the mind of the judge.

ad inopiam. Toward poverty.

ad inquirendum. A common-law writ commanding an inquiry or investigation.

ad instantiam. At the instance.

ad instantiam partio. At the instance of a party.

Ad instructiones reparationesque itinerum et pontium, nullum genus hominum, nulliusque dignitatis ac venerationis meritis, cessare oportet. Respecting the construction and repair of roads and bridges no class of men of whatever rank or dignity ought to be exempt. See 1 Bl Comm 357.

ad int. An abbreviation of ad interim.

ad interim. In the meantime; for the time, as an officer ad interim; temporary.

ad interim alimony. Same as alimony pendente lite.

ad interim copyright. A copyright obtainable under particular circumstances and enduring for a limited time.

Where a book or periodical is first published abroad in the English language, the deposit of one complete copy of such foreign edition in the copyright office, not later than six months after its publication abroad, with a request for the reservation of the copyright and a statement of the name and nationality of the author and copyright proprietor and of the (late of publication, secures to the author or proprietor an ad interim copyright having all the force and effect given to copyright by the Federal Copyright Law, which will endure until the expiration of 5 years after the date of the first publication abroad. 17 USC § 22.

ad invidiam. To hatred or prejudice.

See argumentum ad invidiam.

adiratus. Lost; strayed.

adire in jus. To go to law.

adire in praetorem injus. To go to law.

adit. A tunnel in a mine.

ad itinerandum. For the journey; for the voyage.

aditio haereditatis. (Civil law.) The heir's formal entry upon land inherited from his ancestor.

Aditio haereditatis pro solutione cedit. (Civil law.) Entering upon an inheritance suffices for payment.

aditus. A right of entrance.

a divisione. From a division or separation into parts.

See argumentum a divisione.

adjacent. Near or close to. A somewhat relative term, sometimes meaning touching or contiguous, Clark v Coburn, 108 Me 26, 78 A 1107. But clearly not the equivalent of "abutting" in all cases. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 242.

adjacent land. A relative term, sometimes meaning adjacent land, at other times land in the neighborhood.

In a statute authorizing a special assessment oil adjacent property, the term "adjacent" includes property in the neighborhood not actually touching the improvement, at least where the improvement is such that its benefits extend to property in the vicinity which does not lie contiguous to the improvement. 48 Am J1st Spec § 119.

As it appears in a statute conferring power to condemn "land adjacent" to that occupied by a public service corporation, the term "adjacent" may in view of the context of the statute and the purpose for which the land is taken refer to neighboring land not necessarily in contact. If a strict construction of the statute is required, as it is where the statute is in derogation of private rights, the term, may be confined to lands that are adjoining or contiguous. 26 Am J2d Em D § 114.

[31]

adjacent territory. The suburbs of a city which are not within the limits of another municipality. Johnson City v Weeks, 133 Term 277, 180 SW 327, 3 ALR 1431, 1432.

As the expression is used in air application to appropriate water for municipal use in adjacent territory, it is held to refer to built-up territory outside of but immediately adjacent to, the respective incorporated cities named in the application. Rich v McClure, 78 Cal App 209, 248 P 275.

adjection. A thing added. See addition.

adjectire. To summon to court.

adjective law. Remedial law, that which prescribes how rights are presented for adjudication and enforced and defenses maintained, as distinguished from the law known as substantive law which creates rights and supports defenses. Mix v Board of County Commrs. 18 Idaho 695, 112 P 215.

adjectivus. Summoned to court.

admicere (ad-ji'se-re). To add to; to annex; to join.

adjoining. In its etymological sense, touching or contiguous. as distinguished from lying near or adjacent. Re Ward, 52 NY 395, 397. In certain contexts, close or near to. Matthews v Kimball, 70 Ark 451, 464, 69 SW 547.

So, lands separated by a public way may nevertheless adjoin. 1 Am J2d Adj L § 1.

In a lease of the fourth store in a row of six, containing a covenant by the lessor not to let any of the adjoining shops for the purpose of a specified trade in which the lessee intends to engage, the word "adjoining" is not confined to the shop on either side of the one demised, but extends to any shop in the row, although, in the absence of the use of the word "any," as modifying the word "adjoining," the latter word may be interpreted to refer only to premises next door or physically "adjoining." Anno: 90 ALR 1461.

As the word appears in a deed which describes the subject matter by reference to the properties adjoining it, the word "adjoining" does not necessarily import that the boundary of the land conveyed is coterminous with the boundary of the adjoining land, for all that the word implies is contiguity, and hence it is equally applicable where one boundary is shorter than the other. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 242.

adjoining and communicating additions. Buildings or structures having some form of physical connection. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 294.

adjoining county. A contiguous county. For some purposes, a county which is near and readily accessible, as in a statute respecting the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus. 25 Am J1st Hab C § 106.

adjoining land. See adjoining.

adjoining landowners. The owners of lands that are separated by a common boundary line. 1 Am J2d Adj L § 1.

But see adjoining.

adjoining premises. See adjoining.

adjourn. To postpone or put over to a future time: as, to adjourn a meeting.

adjournal. The proceedings of a day or session of the Scotch Court of Justiciary.

See act of adjournal; book of adjournal.

adjournamentum. Adjournment.

adjournare. To adjourn.

adjournatur. It is adjourned.

adjournatus. Adjourned.

adjourned term. A period or session of court which is merely the continuance or prolongation of a regular term, so that in reality there is no more than one term. Harris v Gest, 4 Ohio St 469, 473.

adjournment assisas. They shall adjourn the assizes.

adjourner. To adjourn.

adjournment. The suspension of business or sessions, either for a fixed time, indefinitely, or until the opening of another term.

As used in constitutional provision that a bill shall become a law if not returned by the executive within a specified time unless "adjournment" prevents its return, the word may signify either an adjournment which is temporary or one which is final in character, and resort must be had to the context to ascertain the true sense. Anno: 64 ALR 1446.

adjournment day. The day upon which a court or legislature adjourns. The day to which a session or meeting is adjourned.

adjournment in eyre. An adjournment of court by the judges on circuit to a future session or day.

adjournment sine die. An adjournment without setting a time for another meeting or session. An adjournment which closes a term of court. 20 Am J2d Cts § 47. An adjournment which closes a session of a legislative body or a convention.

adjournment subject to call. Same as adjournment sine die.

adjournment without day. Same as adjournment sine die.

adjudge. To give judgment; to decide; to sentence.

adjudgeable. Capable of being adjudicated.

adjudged. Decided. Determined by the judgment of the court. Drinkhouse v Van Ness, 202 Cal 359, 260 P 869, 874.

adjudicataire. (A Canadian term from the French language.) The purchaser at a judicial sale.

adjudicate. To give judgment; to render or award judgment.

adjudicated liability. A liability determined and fixed by judgment.

adjudicatio. An adjudication; the determination of title by means of a judgment.

adjudication. The determination of the issues in an action according to which judgment is rendered; a solemn, final, and deliberate determination of an issue by the judicial power, after a hearing in respect to the matters determined. Sans v New York, 31 NY Misc 559, 560, 64 NYS 681.

See articulate adjudication; prior adjudication.

adjudication in bankruptcy. The determination, whether by decree or by operation of law, that a person is a bankrupt. Bankruptcy Act § 1(2) (11 USC 1(2)); 9 Am J2d Bankr § 264.

adjudicative power. Judicial power; the power of a court to hear and determine a controversy. 20 Am J2d Cts 3 80.

adjudicatory. A term employed in speaking of the quasi-judicial functions of an administrative agency. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 138.

adjudicatory process. A process of courts and administrative agencies. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 15.

adjudicature. The act of making an adjudication; an adjudication.

ad judicium. To the judgment.

ad judiciurn provocare. To invoke judicial functions; to bring an action.

adjunctio. Adjunction; the acquisition of property by its annexation to other property adjunction. The uniting of one article or material with another by which the lesser thing becomes a part of the greater, A synonym of accession. 1 Am J2d Access § 1.

adjunctum. An adjunct, something united or connected with another thing.

ad jungendum auxilium. To join in aid.

ad jura legis. For the rights of the law.

adjurare. To bind one's self by oath.

ad jura regis. A writ at the suit of a person holding a living from the king directed against those seeking to deprive him of it.

adjuration. Advice most solemnly given; entreaty.

adjure. To command or require performance under oath; to entreat.

adjurnamentum. An adjournment.

adjurnare. To adjourn.

adjust. To settle or to bring to a satisfactory state, so that the parties are agreed in the result; as, to adjust accounts. State ex rel. Sayre v Moore, 40 Neb 854, 59 NW 755.

When applied to a liquidated demand, the verb "adjust" has the same meaning as the word "settle" in the same connection, and means to pay the demand. When applied to an unliquidated demand it means to ascertain the amount due or to settle. In the latter connection, to settle means to effect a mutual adjustment between the parties and to agree upon the balance. State v Staub, 61 Court 553, 569.

adjusted basis. For income tax purposes, the original cost or other original basis, adjusted for such things as casualty losses, improvements, and depreciation, when appropriate.

adjusted gross income. A tax-law term for gross income less the deductions permitted by law.

adjusted service bonds. Nontransferable bonds bestowed in recognition of military service. Marshall v Felker, 156 Fla 476, 23 So 2d 555, 161 ALR 167

adjuster. A person who makes a determination of a claim, especially a claim against an insurance company, and objections made thereto by the debtor or insurance company, for the purpose of arriving at an amount for which the claim will be settled. First National Bank v Manchester Fire Assur. Co. 64 Minn 96, 98, 66 NW 136. Sometimes acting as the agent of the insurance company or debtor, at other times as the agent of the claimant. Aetna Ins. Co. v Shryer, 85 Ind 362, 363; 7 Am J2d Attys § 86.

adjusting agency. In one sense, a collection agency; in another sense, an agency representing a debtor in making an arrangement with his creditors for the settlement of his obligations by modification of the indebtedness. 15 Am J2d Collect §§ 1, 2.

adjustment. The determination for the purposes of a settlement of the amount of a claim, particularly a claim against an insurance company, giving consideration to objections made by the debtor or insurance company, as well as the allegations of the claimant in support of his claim. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1604.

Adjustment of claims is not confined to claims against insurance companies. An allowance made by a creditor, particularly a storekeeper, in response to a complaint by the debtor respecting the accuracy of the account or other claim, or a reduction in the claim of account made to induce a prompt payment, is in a proper sense an adjustment.

See adjust.

adjustment clause. A clause in a fire insurance policy, also known as a burned and unburned clause, providing that in the event of loss or damage at any location mentioned in the policy, the amount of insurance in force at that location shall be prorated to the burned and unburned portions of the property. Indiana Lumbermen's Mutual Ins. Co. v Fair (CA5 Miss) 109 F2d 607.

adjutant general. A state officer having duties in respect of the National Guard or active militia. See 36 Am J1st Mil §§ 42 et seq.

adjutor. A helper; an assistant; a deputy.

ad largum. At large.

See ire ad largum.

ad legem. At the law.

adlegiare. To purge or an accusation of crime by means of an oath.

ad lib. An abbreviation of ad libitum; colloquially, to speak extemporaneously.

ad libitum. At pleasure; at will.

ad litem. For the purposes of the suit. During the pendency of the action or proceedings.

ad litis decisionem. To the decision of the case.

ad litis ordinationem. To the regulation of the action.

ad lucrandum vel perdendum. For profit or loss.

Adm. Abbreviation of admiral; also of admiralty. Abbreviation of administrator.

ad majoram cautelam. For greater caution.

ad majus. For the greater.

admanuensis. A person who took oath with his hand on the Bible.

ad manum. At hand.

admeasure. To measure; to parcel out shares in land.

admeasurement. A measuring; an allotment; an assignment of one's share; a division.

[33]

admeasurement of dower. Setting off to a widow the land to which she is entitled by right of dower. 25 Am J2d Dow § 156. A writ which lay against a widow to whom the heir, while under age, or his guardian, had assigned as dower more than that to which she was entitled. See 2 Bl Comm 136.

admeasurement of homestead. A preliminary to an execution sale of property of a judgment debtor who is entitled to a homestead exemption in a part of the tract sought to be subjected to execution and sale. 26 Am J1st Home § 96.

admeasurement of pasture. A writ for the proper division of rights of common.

ad medium filum aquae. To the center or thread of the stream.

ad medium filum viae. To the center or thread of the way.

ad melius inquirendum. A writ ordering a further inquest.

admensurare. To make an admeasurement.

admensuratio. Same as admeasurement.

admensuratione dotis. See de admensuratione dotis.

admensuratio nihil aliud est quam reductio admensuram. A measurement is nothing more than a reduction to measure.

adminicle. Confirmatory evidence; corroboration.

adminicular. Auxiliary; corroborative; confirmatory.

administer. To apply or enforce the law. To dispense justice. To dispense or apply medicine. To take charge; to manage, as in administering the estate of a decedent.

A board is said to administer a law while performing any ministerial act or acts which the law requires it to perform, but it does not so administer the law in the institution or defense of an action, because such latter act is done in the enforcement or resistance of the law and not in the administration of it. In re Winborne, 34 Wyo 349, 244 P 135.

administered estate. An estate of a decedent which has been completely managed and handled by executor or administrator, so that no assets remain in his possession or custody, all debts of the decedent and expenses of administration having been paid and the remaining assets distributed to the persons entitled thereto. As applied to determine the right of an administrator de bonis non to assets not "administered," goods, chattels, or credits of the decedent changed, altered, or converted by the prior executor or administrator. Chamberlin's Appeal, 70 Conn 363, 39 A 734.

administrare. To administer; to take charge of.

administratio. Same as administration.

administration. The execution of a law by putting it in effect, applying it to the affairs of men. The management, care, or control of anything; an executor's or administrator's management of the estate of a decedent; an officer's management of his office.

See administer.

administration ad colligendum. An administration for the temporary preservation of the estate of a decedent.

See temporary administrator.

administration cum testamento annexo. The administration of the estate of a decedent who left a will which did not name an executor, or which named one or more who will not or cannot qualify. Fidelity & C. Co. v Freeman (CA6 Tenn) 109 F 847.

administration de bonis non. The administration of a decedent's estate by an administrator de bonis non.

administration durante absentia. Administration upon the estate of a decedent during the absence of the person first entitled to letters of administration.

Concerning an appointment durante absentia, it has been ruled that such administration of the office is at an end the moment the absentee returns. See State ex rel. Hamilton v Guinotte, 156 Mo 513, 57 SW 281.

See administrator of absentee.

administration durante animo vitio. See administrator durante animo vitio.

administration durante minoritate administratoris. See administrator durante minoritate administratoris. administration expenses. Items such as court costs, premium for surety bond, payments made for the preservation of the property of the estate while administration is pending, insurance premiums, attorney's fees incurred in litigation necessary in the preservation of the estate, burial expenses, allowances to widow and children, etc., for which the executor or administration may claim credit in the settlement of his accounts. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 527. The expenses incurred in reducing the assets of the decedent's estate to possession, in holding them or disposing of them in accordance with the laws on succession and distribution and the decrees of the probate court. Hazard v Bliss, 43 RI 431, 113 A 469, 23 ALR 826. Rent paid by a receiver or trustee in bankruptcy for premises occupied by them during the administration of the estate in bankruptcy. In Re C. J. Rowe & Bros. (DC Pa) 18 F2d 658. Wages paid by a receiver to laborers hired by him pursuant to an order of court. Anno: 27 ALR2d 709.

administration minori aetate. The administration of a decedent's estate by an administrator appointed by the court because of the minority of the executor appointed by the will.

administration of estate. The management by a fiduciary, such as an executor, administrator, receiver, trustee, guardian, etc. of the estate which comes into his custody and possession by virtue of his office, including, as the fiduciary may be authorized by law, the collection of assets, the conservation and sale of property, instituting and defending actions on behalf of the estate, distribution of assets, and reporting to the court.

See ancillary administration; assets; auxiliary administration; cost of administration; final distribution; foreign administration; letters of administration; not administered; plene administravit; special administration; special letters of administration.

administration pendente absentia. See administration durante absentia.

[34]

administration pendente lite. The administration of a decedent's estate during the contest of the decedent's will.

administration pendente minoritate executoris. See administrator pendente minoritate executoris.

administration pro tem. See administrator pro tem.

administration suit. In English practice, an action by a creditor to subject a decedent's estate to the payment of his claim.

administration without probate. See executor de son tort; independent executor.

administrative act. A ministerial act. In another sense of the term, an act in the routine rather than one performed by one empowered to determine a course of action, for example, the act of a physician employed by a hospital, which is non-medical and for which the hospital may be held liable in damages if it results in injury to a patient. Anno: 72 ALR2d 424.

administrative agency. A functionary concerned with administrative law. 1 Am J2d, Adm L § 49. A single officer, board, commission, office, or department exercising administrative authority. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 8.

administrative appeal. An appeal from the decision or determination of an administrative board to a higher officer or authority in the administrative system, 2 Am J2d Adm L § 539; an appeal from the decision or determination of an administrative agency to a court. 2 Am J2d Adm L § 553.

administrative assistants. Personnel of National Guard units. Anno: 57 ALR2d 1455.

administrative board. See administrative agency.

administrative capacity. See administrative act; administrative discretion; administrative employee.

administrative commission. See administrative agency.

administrative discretion. The power to choose between courses of conduct in the administration of an office or a duty pertaining thereto.

From their nature, the functions, powers, and duties of administrative agencies are classified as ministerial or discretionary, that is, according to the degree of subjective choice involved in their exercise, as discretionary, judgment-passing, fact-finding, or ministerial, the four classes representing degrees of progression from a theoretically absolute subjective choice in a matter of discretion to a theoretical absence of choice in a ministerial matter. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 83.

administrative employee. An employee who performs a variety of important functions of the business but has no managerial authority. Anno: 40 ALR2d 340.

As to who is employed in "administrative capacity" within exemptions from minimum wage and maximum hours provisions of Fair Labor Standards Act, see Anno: 40 ALR2d 332.

administrative law. The law that controls, or is intended to control, the administrative operations of government. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 1.

administrative officer. An officer of the executive department of government as distinguished from a judicial officer or a member of a legislative body.

See administrative agency.

administrative offices of court. See court administrative offices.

administrative order. An order rendered by an administrative agency after a hearing and decision. 2 Am J2d Adm L §§ 434 et seq.

administrative ordinance. See executive ordinance.

administrative police. Officers of the police department whose function it is to maintain public order constantly in every part of their jurisdiction. State ex rel. Walsh v Hine, 59 Conn 50, 21 A 1024.

administrative power. The power of carrying laws into effect, giving them practical application to current affairs by way of management, oversight, investigation, regulation, and control, in accordance with and in execution of the principles prescribed by the lawmaker. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 81.

administrative practice. The practice prescribed by statute, which, in the case of a federal agency, is the Federal Administrative Procedure Act, for the presentation, hearing, and determination of issues by an administrative board or agency. 2 Am J2d Adm L §§ 340 et seq.

Administrative Procedure Act. A federal statute enacted in 1946 which provides a basic and comprehensive regulation of procedures in federal agencies. 2 Am J2d Adm L § 201. One of the uniform statutes.

administrative proceeding. A proceeding in or before an administrative body, as distinguished from a proceeding in a Court. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 158. Any proceeding before an administrative agency which is not of such specific nature as to give it a more particular designation. 2 Am J2d Adm L § 317.

administrative remedy. A remedy which an administrative agency is empowered by statutory authority to grant. A remedy granted by a court upon review of an order rendered by an administrative agency, where the court is empowered by statute to substitute such order for the one under review as in its opinion the administrative agency should have rendered. 2 Am J2d Adm L 606.

administrative reports. Published opinions or orders in the adjudication of cases before administrative agencies. 2 Am J2d Adm L § 518.

administrative review. A review of the decision or determination of an administrative agency by a higher officer or authority in the administrative system. 2 Am 32d Adm L § 539. A judicial review of the decision or determination of an administrative agency. 2 Am J2d Adin L § 553.

administrative system. A plan adopted by statute as a broad general policy or objective to be attained by an administrative agency in the exercise of its power to make binding rules and regulations. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 16.

administrative tribunal. An administrative agency having an adjudicative function. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 49.

administrator. Broadly, one who administers. In the most common usage, the personal representative of a decedent's estate. Sometimes meaning an administrative agency. 1 Am J2d Aran L § 49.

See administrator of decedent's estate.

administrator ad colligendum. One appointed by the court to act in an administration ad colligendum.

administrator ad litem. An administrator appointed for the particular proceeding, under statutory authority, by the court of probate or the court of chancery, when an estate of a deceased person must be represented, and there is no executor or administrator of such estate, or the executor or administrator is adversely interested. Clark v Knox, 70 Ala 607.

[35]

administrator C. T. A. An abbreviation of administrator cum testamento annexo.

administrator cum testamento annexo. An administrator with the will annexed, that is, the administrator of a decedent whose will named no executor, or named an executor who cannot or will not act. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v Freeman (CA6 Term) 109 F 847.

administrator d. b. n. See administrator de bonis non.

administrator de bonis non. An administrator appointed by the court upon the refusal of the executor to act, or upon the occurrence for any other reason, of a vacancy in the office of an executor or administrator. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 603.

administrator de bonis non cum testamento annexo. An administrator who succeeds an executor. 31 Am. J2d Ex & Ad § 603.

administrator durante animi vitio. An administrator of a decedent's estate, appointed for the use and benefit of the next of kin who is of unsound mind but otherwise entitled to the appointment.

administrator durante minoritate administratoris. An administrator upon the estate of a decedent during the minority of the executor or the person entitled to general letters of administration. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 649.

administrator of absentee. The administrator of the estate of a person who is presumed to be dead by reason of his absence for the statutory period. Estate of Kite, 194 Iowa 129, 187 NW 585, 24 ALR 850, 851.

See administration durante absentia.

administrator of decedent's estate. A person appointed by the probate court, in accordance with the governing statutes, to administer and settle intestate estates and such testate estates as have no competent executor designated by the testator. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 1.

Although the position which he holds is frequently referred to as an office, he is not a public officer within the commonly accepted meaning of that term. It has been better said that the position of an administrator merely resembles an office, and that more strictly speaking it is a trust. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 2.

See ancillary administrator; coadministrator; domiciliary administrator; foreign administration. general administrator; letters of administration. plene administravit; public administrator; revocation of letters testamentary; special administrator; special letters of administration; temporary administrator.

administrator pendente absentia. See administration durante absentia.

administrator pendente lite. See special administrator.

administrator pendente minoritate executoris. An administrator to whom letters were formerly granted when the executor was under seventeen years.

It is now the prevailing practice in the United States to pass over a minor and grant general letters of administration to a competent person who has the best right, or as good a right as anyone else, to be appointed.

administrator's right of retainer. See retainer.

administrator with the will annexed. See administrator cum testamento annexo.

administratress. Same as administratrix.

administratrix. A woman appointed by the court to administer the estate of a deceased person.

admiral. An officer of the Navy of the highest rank, the typical command being the entire Navy or a fleet.

See rear admiral; vice admiral.

admiralty. The law of the sea and the practice pertaining thereto. Courts with jurisdiction in admiralty cases.

See bottomry bond; court of admiralty; droits of admiralty; general average; high court of admiralty; high seas; libel; lord high admiral; maritime law; navigable, et seq.; prize court; proceeding in admiralty; proctor; respondentia bond; salvage; sea laws; towage; vice-admiralty courts.

admiralty court. A court having admiralty jurisdiction.

admiralty jurisdiction. A special jurisdiction of maritime cases vested exclusively in the federal courts.

The limits of admiralty jurisdiction are not prescribed by the Constitution or statute; they have been prescribed as the occasion arose by judicial interpretation. 2 Am J2d Adm §§ 1-8.

admiralty law. Comprehended in term admiralty.

admiralty lien. A lien on a vessel enforceable by a suit in rem in admiralty for repairs, supplies, towage, use of dry dock or marine railway, or other necessities furnished to the vessel. 2 Am J2d Adm § 124.

admissible evidence. Evidence which a court or other tribunal exercising judicial functions may properly receive and consider in a cause or matter which has been submitted to it.

admission. A statement of a party to an action inconsistent with his claim or position in the action and amounting therefore to proof against him. 29 Am J2d Ev § 597. Also, a statement in a pleading which admits an allegation in the pleading of his adversary, either expressly or impliedly by failure to deny the allegation. 41 Am J1st PI § 197.

A denial coupled with a general exception of doubtful import, or a refusal to admit without specific denial or detailed reasons why an admission or denial cannot truthfully be made, constitutes an admission. Southern R. Co. v Crosby (CA4 SC) 201 F2d 878, 36 ALR2d 1186.

admission by demurrer. An admission for the purposes of the demurrer only.

A demurrer admits the facts well pleaded in the pleading attacked, and inferences of fact arising from the facts pleaded, for the purpose of testing the legal sufficiency of the pleading, not for the purpose of evidence in the case; once the demurrer is overruled, the admission by demurrer has served its purpose and is not to be considered evidence in the case. 41 Am J1st PI §§ 238, 239.

[36]

admission of alien. A privilege granted to an alien upon terms prescribed by federal statute, the most important of which is the requirement of a visa. 3 Am J2d Aliens §§ 54, 55.

admission of new state into Union. The reception into the United States, under authority of an act of Congress for that purpose enacted, of a new state clothed with all the powers of sovereignty and jurisdiction which pertained to the original states and upon an equal footing with them. 49 Am J1st States § 9.

admissions tax. An excise tax upon the sale of a ticket or other means of admission to a theater or other place of entertainment.

admission ticket. See theater ticket.

admission to bail. The requiring of security by bond or deposit, known as bail, under which one charged with the commission of an offense or held to require the satisfaction of an indebtedness is released under the conditions of the bond or other security for his future attendance in court and his remaining within the jurisdiction of the court. 8 Am J2d Bail § 1.

admission to membership. The reception of a member by a club or society upon application made therefor and pursuant to the bylaws, rules, and regulations of the body and the conditions imposed thereby.

The granting of membership is a matter within the control of the body and the courts are without power to compel an admission to membership. 6 Am J2d Asso & C §§ 18-18.

admission to probate. A judicial determination in the form of a judgment of the court or a formal order declaring that an instrument propounded for probate is the will of the decedent who executed it.

Such determination is official evidence of the validity of the instrument until the judgment or order is reversed on appeal or revoked or set aside in a direct attack thereon. 57 Am J1st Wills § 934.

admission to the bar. The conferring of the privilege, license, or franchise to practice law within the jurisdiction by order or judgment of the court which declares the existence in the applicant of the requisite qualifications of residence, citizenship, education, and moral character. 7 Am J2d Attys § 8.

admittance. The last stage, or perfection, of copyhold assurances. And this is of three sorts: first, an admittance upon a voluntary grant from the lord; secondly, an admittance upon surrender by the former tenant; and, thirdly, an admittance upon a descent from the ancestor. See 2 Bl Comm 370.

See admission.

admitted assets. A technical term of the insurance business, meaning assets of an insurance company so approved by state regulatory agencies as to permit their being taken into account in setting forth the financial condition of the company.

admitted set-off. A setoff admitted by the plaintiff in his summons or complaint.

admittendo clerico. A writ to enforce a judgment determining the king's right of making a presentation to a benefice.

admittendo in socium. A writ associating certain persons to justices of assize.

admittere. To admit; to accept; to allow; to receive; to commit.

See admission.

admixture. A mingling. A substance formed by mixing two or more substances.

ad modum. In such a way or manner; after the manner.

admonitio trina. A warning which was given to a prisoner standing mute.

ad mordendum. To bite; a necessary averment in a civil law action for injury by a dog.

ad mordendum assuetus. Accustomed to bite.

admortization. See mortmain; mortmain statutes.

admr. An abbreviation of administrator.

admrx. An abbreviation of administratrix.

ad nauseam. To a disgusting extent.

adnepos. The son of a great -great-grandson.

adneptis. The daughter of a great-great-granddaughter.

adnichelled. Avoided; made null.

ad nigrum. See a rubro ad nigrum.

adnihilare. To annul.

ad nocumentum. To the damage or nuisance of.

ad nocumentum liberi tenementi ipsorum. To the nuisance of their own freehold.

ad nocumentum liberi tenementi sui. To the nuisance of his freehold tenement. Formal words used in an assize of nuisance. See 3 Bl Comm 221.

adnotare. To sign.

adnotatio. (Civil law.) One's subscription of his name.

adnullare. Same as adnihilare.

ad nullius sectam. At the suit of no one.

adolescence. The age between the beginning of the age of puberty and the beginning of lawful age.

adolescentia. Same as adolescence.

adopt. To approve, as to adopt a regulation. To take as one's own that which was not so before. Dallas v Beeman, 18 Tex Civ App 335, 339, 45 SW 626.

adopted child. One having by virtue of an adoption proceeding in conformity with the statutes the legal incidents of the natural relation of parent and child. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 88. Sometimes, but not always, considered a lawful heir or legal heir. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 99. Sometimes, but not always considered lawful issue of the adoptive parent. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 98.

Whether or not an adopted child is within the meaning of the word "heirs" as it appears in a deed, a trust indenture, a will or other instrument depends upon many diverse factors, especially the content and phraseology of the particular instrument involved. The express term of the statute under which the adoption took place or which fixes rights of adopted children in the distribution of intestate property or the construction placed upon the statute, may be a factor, although generally such statutes are not determinative of the right of adopted children to take under an instrument which does not expressly include adopted children as grantees or beneficiaries, but are considered merely as aids in construction. Variations in interpretation may turn upon whether the grantor or testator was, himself, the adopting parent or whether the issue involved adopted children of persons other than the testator or grantor. Fiduciary Trust Co. v Brown, 152 Me 360, 131 A2d 191.

[37]

An adopted child is not considered to be an "heir of the body" in reference to the adopting parent, within the meaning of such term in a will, deed, or indenture of trust, unless the context of the instrument, considered in its entirety demands such construction. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 92.

Adopted children, for whom adoption statutes create the same rights of heirship as children of the body, come within the meaning of the term "lineal descendants," as used in a statute providing for the non-lapse of a devise where the devisee predeceases the testator but leaves lineal descendants. Hoellinger v Molzohn, 77 ND 108, 41 NW2d 217, 19 ALR2d 1147.

adoptio. Same as adoption.

adoption. Approval, as the adoption of a statute Anno: 132 ALR 1061. Selecting and taking as one's own that which was not so before.

adoption arrogatio. An adoption in which the person adopted submits in his own right.

adoption by acknowledgment. A term used in some statutes which provide for legitimation by the acknowledgment by the father of his child born out of wedlock. There is, of course, a distinction between adoption and legitimation. 10 Am J2d Bast § 51.

adoption by deed or agreement. A statutory method whereby a child may be adopted by deed or contract duly executed, or duly executed and recorded. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 8.

adoption of child. The means by which the legal relationship of parent and child between persons who are not so related by nature is established or created; the taking into one's family of the child of another as son or daughter and heir, and conferring upon it a title to the rights and privileges of such. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 1.

Adoption signifies the means by which one may become the child and heir of another. Re Holibaugh's Will, 18 NJ 229, 113 A2d 654, 52 ALR2d 1222.

Compliance with the statutes is essential. As the term is used in inheritance tax statutes imposing a higher rate of taxation as to bequests to strangers of the blood than as to bequests to adopted children, an executory contract of adoption does not constitute the child a "child adopted as such in conformity with law," within the meaning of the statutes. Re Clark, 105 Mont 401, 74 P2d 401, 114 ALR 496.

See foreign adoption.

adoption of foreign corporation. The domestication of a foreign corporation by granting it a charter. 36 Am J2d For Corp § 382.

adoption of judgment. The waiver of the right to appeal from a judgment by some act on the part of the party who would so appeal amounting to a ratification of the judgment.

In order to effect such a waiver, there must be some intent to enjoy a benefit from, or base some interest on, the judgment. See Oatman v Hampton, 43 Idaho 675, 256 P 529. See also 5 Am J2d A & E § 709.

adoption of statute. The participation of the legislature in the making of the law, so that the law is "adopted" when it receives the approval of both branches of the legislature. Anne: 132 ALR 1061.

In other cases, the term has been construed to mean the date when the act takes effect. 50 Am J1st Stat § 503.

adoptive parent. One who adopts a child under adoption proceedings.

adoptivus. Adoptive, whether parent or child.

ad opus. For the work; for the benefit or use.

ad ordinationem litis. For the regulation of the action.

ad ostendendum. To show.

ad ostium ecelesiae. At the door of the church. That is, at one's marriage. At one time in England all marriages were solemnized at the church door. See 2 Bl Comm 132.

See dower ad ostium ecclesiae.

ad patria. To the country; to the jury.

ad perpetuam. In perpetuity; permanently.

ad perpetuam rei memoriam. In perpetual memory of the matter.

ad perpetuam remanentiam. To remain perpetually.

ad primam diem litigii. At the first day of the litigation.

ad probandum aliquid per credentiam duodecim hominum vicinorum. To prove a thing by the testimony of twelve men of the neighborhood.

adpromissor. A surety; one who binds himself to perform the same act as another.

ad propinquiorem consanguineum. To the nearest in blood relationship.

ad prosequendum. To prosecute; for prosecuting.

See habeas corpus ad prosequendum.

Ad proximum antecedens fiat relatio, nisi impediatur sententia. Reference should be made to the matter next preceding, unless the meaning is thereby destroyed.

ad publicam vindicatam. For the vindication of the public.

ad punctum temporis. At the point of time.

Ad quaestionem facti non respondent iudices. Judges do not pass upon questions of fact. First Nat. Bank v Northwestern Nat. Bank, 152 Ill 296, 38 NE 739.

ad quaestionem juris non respondent iuratores. Jurors do not pass upon questions of law. State v Barbee, 65 Vt 1, 25 A 964.

[38]

ad quaestionem legis respondent iudices. The judges answer a question of law.

ad quaestiones facti non respondent iudices; ad quaestiones legis non respondent juratores. Judges do not answer questions of fact; jurors do not answer questions of law.

ad quaestiones juris respondent iudices; ad quaestiones facti respondent juratores. Judges answer questions of law; jurors answer questions of fact.

ad quem. To which.

See a quo.

ad querimoniam. At the complaint.

adquieto. To put to rest; to satisfy by payment.

adquirere. To acquire; to gain.

adquiritur possessio. Possession is acquired.

ad quod curia concordavit. To which the court agreed.

ad quod damnum. At what loss.

ad quod non fuit responsum. To which there was no answer.

ad rationem ponere. To cite to appear.

ad recipiendum. See habeas corpus ad deliberandum et recipiendum; habeas corpus ad faciendum et recipiendum.

ad recognoscendum. To recognize.

adrectare. To correct; to make amends.

ad referendum. To be referred; to be deferred for subsequent attention.

ad rem. To the thing; to the point.

See right ad rem.

ad remanentiam. In fee.

ad reparationem et sustentationem. For repair and keeping in order.

ad respondendum. To answer.

See capias ad respondendum; habeas corpus ad respondendum.

adrift. Floating without power and not anchored.

See flotsam.

adrogation. A civil law adoption of a child who has not reached the age of puberty.

ads. An abbreviation of ad sectam.

ad satisfaciendum. In discharge or satisfaction.

See capias ad faciendum; habeas corpus ad satisfaciendum.

adscendentes. Ascendants; ancestors.

adscribere. Same as adnotare.

adscripticius. Same as adscriptus.

adscripti glebae. Plural of adscriptus glebae.

adscriptitii. (Civil law.) Serfs.

adscriptus. Added or annexed by writing; bound to.

adscriptus glebae. A term applied in the Roman law to laborer slaves who were permanently annexed to the land and went with a transfer of it.

ad sectam. At the suit of. Abbreviated, "ads."

adsecurare. To assure; to insure.

adsecuratio (ad-se-ku-ra'she-o). Assurance; insurance.

adsores. Special judges appointed to sit with or for the regular judges.

adsignare. To assign; to allot.

adsm. An abbreviation of ad sectam.

ad standum rectum. To stand for the right.

adstipulator. A co-promisee having the same right as his associate to demand performance.

ad studendum et orandum. For study and prayer.

ad subeundum legem. To submit to the law.

ad subjiciendum. See habeas corpus ad subjiciendum.

ad terminum annorum. For a term of years.

ad terminum ponere. To postpone to another term.

ad terminum qui praeteriit. For the term which has passed.

See entry ad terminum qui praeteriit.

ad terminum vel ad firmam. For a term or to farm.

ad terminum vel ad tempus. For a term or for a time.

ad terminum vitae vel annorum. For a term, for life, or for years.

ad testari. To attest; to witness.

ad testificandum. For giving testimony.

See habeas corpus ad testificandum. ad tractandum et consilium impendendum. For attending and valuable advice. Writs of summons ad tractandum et consilium impendendum were issued at the beginning of every parliament to require the judges and other high officials to attend the house of lords. See 1 Bl Comm 168.

ad tune. Then.

ad tune et ibidem. Then and there.

ad tune existens. Then existing or being.

adult. A grown person. One no longer a child.

See age of majority.

adult children. Sons or daughters who have reached the age of majority.

adulter. An adulterer; one who has carnal intercourse with the wife of another.

[39]

adultera. An adulteress; one who has carnal intercourse with the husband of another.

adulterant. An impure, debased, or cheaper substance put into or mixed with another substance.

A substance used as a preservative may be an adulterant within the prohibition of a statute or ordinance in relation to pure food. Anne: 50 ALR 76.

adulterare. To commit adultery; to adulterate; to forge; to falsify.

adulterare rationes. To falsify accounts.

adulterated. Impure; mingled with or deteriorated by a foreign substance in imitation of the genuine article.

adulterated butter. Butter with which there is mixed any substance foreign to butter with the effect of cheapening the product in cost, and any butter in the manufacture or manipulation of which any process or material is used with the intent or effect of causing the absorption of abnormal quantities of water. Schick v United States, 195 US 65, 49 L Ed 99, 24 S Ct 826.

adulterated coin. Coin made of gold or silver intermixed or "adulterated," with base metal. The term is sometimes erroneously used for "base coin." Gabe v State, 6 Ark 540, 542.

See base coin.

adulterated drug. Within the meaning of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, a drug which consists in whole or in part of any filthy, putrid, or decomposed substance; or which has been prepared, packed, or held under unsanitary conditions whereby it may have been contaminated or rendered injurious to health; or which is in a container of a poisonous substance which renders it injurious to health; or which is colored by a coal-tar preparation that has not been certified in accordance with the statute; or is represented to be a drug recognized in an official compendium and it falls below the standard of purity or quality set by the compendium; or if it is not of the quality and purity represented; or if any substance has been mixed therewith so as to reduce its quality and strength. 21 USC § 351.

adulterated food. Food that is diluted or depreciated in quality, which fails to come to the standards set by law as to ingredients, or to which any foreign substance, wholesome or unwholesome, is added. 22 Am J2d Food § 32.

adulteration. The process of putting an impure, debased, or cheaper substance into another substance.

adulteratores monetae. Plural of adulator monetae.

adulator monetae. A counterfeiter; a forger.

adulterer. A man who commits adultery.

adulteress. A woman who commits adultery.

adulterina moneta. Counterfeit money.

adulterine. (Civil law.) A child born of adulterous intercourse.

adulterine bastard. The child of a married woman by a man not her husband. 10 Am J2d Bast § 1.

adulterinum signum. a forged seal.

adulterinum testamentum. A forged will.

adulterinus. Forged; counterfeit.

adulterium. A fine imposed for adultery.

adulterous bastard. The child of a married woman by a man not her husband. 10 Am J2d Bast § 1.

adultery. At common law, sexual intercourse by a man, married or single, with a married woman not his wife. By statute in most jurisdictions, sexual intercourse by a married person with some person not his or her husband or wife. 2 Am J2d Adult § 1. As ground for divorce: -sexual intercourse between a husband and a woman other than his wife or between a wife and a man other than her husband. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 24.

See criminal conversation; incestuous adultery; living in adultery.

The term "adultery" was used in ecclesiastical law to denote intrusion into a bishopric.

ad ultimam vim terminorum. To the extreme limit of the terms.

adult owner. An owner not under the disability of infancy.

A corporate owner of land is held to be within a statute permitting adult owners to petition for the organization of a drainage district. Jordan Land Co. v Freeborn, 149 Wis 159, 135 NW 751.

ad usum et commodum. For use and benefit.

ad val. Abbreviation of ad valorem.

ad valentiam. At or of the value.

ad valentiam veri valoris. To the true value.

ad valorem. According to the value.

ad valorem contractus. To the value of the contract.

ad valorem duty. A customs duty calculated according to value of the import. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 82.

ad valorem tax. A tax of a fixed proportion of the value of the property to be charged, an appraisal being a prerequisite to the determination of the amount of the tax. 51 Am J1st Tax §26.

advance. Noun: A payment made before it is due or by way of a loan. Something supplied as an aid in the performance of a contract or an undertaking such as the growing of crops on leased premises. 32 Am J1st L & T § 578. An approach to win favor; an overture. Verb: To move ahead. To pay before the maturity of the obligation. To make a loan. To supply with goods.

To advance is to supply beforehand; to loan before the work is done or the goods made. Laffin & Rand Powder Co. v Burkhardt, 97 US 110, 24 L Ed 973; 17 Am J2d Contr § 281.

As used in statutes giving a landlord a lien on crops for supplies or money advanced to his tenant to aid him in raising the crops, an advance is anything of value for use directly or indirectly in making and saving crops, supplied in good faith to the lessee by the landlord. But generally, in order that a landlord may have a lien for supplies furnished or money advanced, under such a statute, he must furnish or advance the same himself; and if he merely becomes a surety or guarantor for money advanced or supplies furnished by a third person, he is not entitled to a lien. If, however, the supplies are furnished the tenant by a third person solely on the credit of the landlord, they are in effect furnished by the landlord and he may claim a lien therefor. To fall within the statute the advances or supplies must be of some one or more of the articles enumerated in the statute, and for some one or more of the purposes mentioned therein. Otherwise there is no lien. 32 Am J1st L & T § 578.

[40]

advance bid. A bid made after a judicial sale at an advance of at least ten per cent over the bid received at the sale, such advance bid being made as a condition of re-opening the bidding. 30A Am J Rev ed Jud S § 106.

advance-bill. Same as advance-note.

advanced age. Old age.

Advanced Research Projects Agency. A research agency of the Department of Defense, headed by a Director. Am J2d Desk, Document No. 59.

advancement. A gift by a parent to a child which the parent intends to be charged against the donee's share of the parental estate if the donor should die intestate. Clement v Blythe, 220 Ark 551, 248 SW2d 883, 31 ALR2d 1033.

Basically and subject to changes made in the elements by statute, an advancement is a perfect and irrevocable gift, not required by law, made by a parent, during his lifetime, to his child, with the intention on the part of the donor that such gift shall represent a part or the whole of the donor's estate that the donee would be entitled to on the death of the donor intestate. 3 Am J2d Advancem § 1.

The doctrine of advancements applies to a testate estate only as the will so provides and then by analogy only, since strictly speaking the doctrine has application to intestate estates only. 3 Am J2d Advancem § 10.

advance-note. A shipmaster's written order on the owner given as an advance on account of wages to a sailor upon his signing the ship's articles.

advance payment. See advance.

advances. Forward movements. Promoting acquaintanceship with the idea of obtaining favors. Payments.
See advance.

advantage, concession, and discrimination. A combination of terms which bespeaks a violation of law. These words as used in the Elkins Act of February 19, 1903 (49 USCA § 41) denouncing certain agreements between common carriers and shippers, must be construed to mean unlawful advantage, unlawful concession, unlawful discrimination. United States v P. Koenig Coal Co. 270 US 512, 70 L Ed 709, 46 S Ct 392. See also 13 Am J2d Car § 185.

advantagium. An advantage.

advena. An unnaturalized alien.

advenir. To come to; to happen.

advent. The period from the Sunday nearest November 30th until Christmas following.

adventicius. Coming from without.

adventicius pecunia. Money coming from an unusual source; not inherited or earned.

adventitius. Adventitious.

adventitious. Accidental, not inherent; coming from an external source.

ad ventrem inspiciendum. A writ for the examination of a woman to determine whether or not she is pregnant.

adventura. Same as adventure.

adventurae maris. Adventures of the sea.

adventure. An undertaking with an element of risk. A shipment of goods in charge of an agent to be sold by him for the shipper at the best price obtainable.

As the word "adventure" is used in marine policies, it is everywhere employed as synonymous with "peril." The word is often used by the writers to describe the enterprise or voyage as a "marine adventure" insured against. Moore v Louisville Underwriters (CC Tenn) 14 F 226, 233.

See gross adventure; joint adventure.

adventurer. A shareowner in a mine; a mine promoter. One who takes a risk; one who casts his lot with others in an undertaking involving risk.

ad verecundiam. To a sense of decency. See argumentum ad verecundiam.

adversa fortuna. Ill fortune.

adversary. The opposite party in a contest or an action.

adversary evidence. Evidence otherwise inadmissible which one of the parties is permitted to introduce by reason of similar or related evidence which has been tendered by his opponent. 29 Am J2d Ev § 267.

adversary proceeding. A contested action or proceeding-, one having parties, as distinguished from a proceeding on ex parte application.

adversary trial. A trial in which there are adversary parties before the court, who have had full opportunity to present and establish their opposing contentions, if any they have. Bolden v Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. 215 Ala 334, 110 So 574, 49 ALR 1206, 1214.

Adversa valetudo excusat. Bad health excuses, as, in a contract for personal services.

adverse. As an adjective, in legal signification the word involves the element of hostility under a claim or color of title. Eastern Oregon Land Co. v Cole (CA9 Or) 92 F 949, 952. The adjective also expresses the position of persons in litigation with conflicting interests, as adverse parties.

As a verb, in mining law, to file an adverse claim.

adverse claim. As respects adverse possession, a claim to possession which is hostile to the true owner. In mining law, a formal assertion of an adverse claimant made under oath and filed in the United States land office pending an application for a patent. Lightner Mining Co. v Superior Court, 14 Cal App 642, 112 P 909. A claim to property by one in possession thereof asserted against a trustee OF receiver in bankruptcy. 9 Am J2d Bankr §§ 5052.

See adverse possession; quieting title.

adverse enjoyment. The use of air easement under a claim of right. See adverse possession.

adverse interest. An interest which displaces one's own interest in whole or in part.

As used in a statute permitting a litigant to call and cross examine any person having an adverse interest in the outcome of the litigation, the term "adverse interest" is to be construed according to its common and accepted meaning, not as synonymous with "adverse testimony." 58 Am J1st Witn § 560. Under a statute which prohibits a party from testifying where the adverse party is a guardian, trustee, executor, or administrator, it is adverse interest which disqualifies a person as a witness, not merely his nominal status as plaintiff or defendant. 58 Am J1st Witn § 285.

As used in a statute providing that accounts of executors and administrators settled in the absence of any person "adversely interested" and without notice to him may be opened upon his application, the term has been defined as meaning the situation of one who has some interest in the estate, that is ' someone having such an interest as would entitle him to notice of the filing by the executor or administrator of a final report, together with a prayer for discharge. Re Holman, 216 Iowa 1186, 250 NW 498, 98 ALR 1363.

adversely interested. See adverse interest.

adverse parties. Persons who stand in relation to another person as being on the opposite side in an action or proceeding or whose interests are adverse to such person.

Within the meaning of the rule requiring a notice of appeal to be served upon all adverse parties, such parties include every party to the action or proceeding whose interest in the subject-matter of the appeal is adverse to, or will be affected by, the reversal or modification of the judgment, decree, or order from which the appeal is taken. Co-parties to an action who do not join in the appeal should, as a general rule, be served with notice of appeal where their interests are adverse to that of the appellant. 4 Am J2d A & E § 318.

adverse possession. An actual and visible appropriation of property commenced and continued under a claim of right inconsistent with and hostile to the claim of another. An open and notorious possession and occupation of real property under an evident claim or color of right; a possession in opposition to the true title and real owner- -a possession which is commenced in wrong and maintained in right. 3 Am J2d Adv P § 1.

The term applied in matters concerning title to lands as distinguished from incorporeal hereditaments. Anno: 27 ALR2d 325.

A title acquired by adverse possession is a title in fee simple, and is as perfect a title as one by deed from the original owner or by patent or grant from the government. Thornely v Andrews, 40 Wash 580, 82 P 899.

See constructive possession.

adverse use. See adverse user.

adverse user. A continuous and exclusive user as of right for as long as the prescriptive period. 25 Am J1st High § 12. A use against the owner of the servient tenement as distinguished from a use under such owner. Zolfinger v Frank, 110 Utah 514, 175 P2d 714, 170 ALR 770. One who uses property as his own under a claim of dominion or right existing in himself to the exclusion of all other claimants.

Use may be open and notorious and still not be adverse. Northern Pacific Ry. Co. v Cash, 67 Mont 585, 216 P 782. An adverse user which will ripen into an easement by prescription is an exclusive, open, visible, or notorious use without license or permission of the true owner of the premises, but with his knowledge and hostile to him, under a claim to a definite right which can be the subject of a grant, that continues without interruption for the length of the prescriptive period. 17A Am J Rev ed Ease §§ 74 et seq.

adverse witness. A witness who, in the opinion of the presiding judge, is hostile.

adverso. See adversus.

adversus. Opposed to; aligned against.

adversus bonos mores. Contrary to good morals.

advertise. To give public notice of; to announce publicly; especially by a printed notice. Montford v Allen, 111 Ga 18, 19. To make known to the public through a medium of publicity that one's goods or services are available for sale or engagement.

advertisement. A notice published in handbills or a newspaper.

The word also includes notice by posting or display on signboards. The idea underlying the word has reference not so much to the vehicle or instrumentality used for getting the notice before the public, as to the diffusion, or bringing home to the public, of the information or matter contained in the notice. People v McKean, 76 Cal App 114, 243 P 898.

advertising lottery. The statutory offense provided for in nearly all jurisdictions of advertising in any manner whatsoever, either directly or indirectly, any lottery or the place or manner of conducting the same, or any offer or proposition to insure those participating therein from loss. In many instances the statutes are applicable to all forms of advertising, whether the lottery is to be drawn or conducted within the state or not. 34 Am J1st Lot § 27.

advice. View or opinion communicated to another, for example, a lawyer's advice to his client. In commercial law, information given as to shipments of goods, delays, the drawing of paper for acceptance, etc.

advisamento consilii nostri. See de advisamento consilii nostri.

advisamentum. Advisement.

advisare. To advise; to take under advisement; to consider; to be advised.

advisare vult. See curia advisare vult.

advisari. Same as advisare.

advise. To give advice; to offer an opinion as worthy or expedient to be followed; to counsel. Long v State, 23 Neb 33, 45, 36 NW 310.

advised. Armed with the facts or knowledge.

advisedly. Acting with a prepared mind, not on the spur of the moment.

advisement. Consideration. A court takes a case under "advisement" when, following a trial or argument on a motion, it delays rendering judgment or decision until it has examined and considered the questions involved. See Clark v Read, 5 NJL 571, 573.

adviser. One who gives advice, particularly one who advises in a consultation, such as a lawyer, an investment counselor, a physician, or a marriage counselor.

advisory. Informative; by way of suggestion; not conclusive. Watt v Starke, 101 US 247, 25 L Ed 826.

See advisory instruction.

Advisory Council. A federal agency composed of one delegate from each federal reserve bank, authorized to confer with the Federal Reserve Board on general business conditions, to make oral or written representations concerning matters within the jurisdiction of the board, and to call for information and to make recommendations with regard to discount rates, rediscount business, note issues, reserve conditions in the various districts, the purchase and sale of gold and securities by reserve banks, open market operations by those banks, and the general affairs of the reserve banking system. 10 Am J2d Banks § 5.

advisory instruction. An instruction given by the court as to the law applicable in a criminal case in a jurisdiction where by constitution or statute the jury are the judges of the law as well as the facts. 53 Am J1st Trial § 847.

advisory judgment. One which decides a mere difference of opinions, settling no actual controversy. 22 Am J2d Dec J § 10.

advisory opinion. The opinion of a higher court upon a point before a lower one; an opinion rendered by a court, in some jurisdictions, at the request of the legislature.

advisory verdict. A verdict of a jury which the court may or may not regard, as a jury's verdict in certain admiralty cases. 2 Am J2d Adm § 141. Also, the verdict in an equity case upon an issue submitted to a jury. 27 Am J2d Equity 241.

ad vitam. For life.

ad vitam aut culpam. For life or until guilty of misbehavior, that is, during good behavior.

advocacy. The act of pleading for, supporting, or recommending; active espousal; advising or teaching: as, the advocacy of the doctrine of anarchy. Gitlow v People of New York, 268 US 652, 69 L Ed 1138, 45 S Ct 625. Involving active conduct, something more than adherence to an abstract doctrine. Yates v United States, 354 US 298, 1 L Ed 2d 1356, 77 S Ct 1064.

advocare. To call to; to summon counsel; to consult for legal advice. (Eccles.) To avow; to admit a clerk to a benefice.

advocassie. Advocacy; the functions of an advocate.

advocata. (Eccles.) A female patron having the right of presentation to a benefice; a patroness.

advocate. A barrister; one who may plead causes in court for another.

See judge advocate; king's advocate.

advocati. Advocates, persons who speak in behalf of a cause or a person; (Eccles.) Patrons; persons having the right of the presentation of a clerk or parson to a benefice.

advocatia. Patrons; protectors; privilege of advocacy.

See advowson.

advocati fisci. Fiscal advocates under the civil law. These advocates of the revenue somewhat resembled the king's counsel in England and could not be employed in any cause against the sovereign without special license, nor could they be employed or concerned in any private suits between subject and subject. See 3 Bl Comm 27.

advocatio. Legal advice or assistance.

advocation. A Scotch method of appeal.

See bill of advocation.

advocatione decimarum. An ecclesiastical writ for the recovery of tithes.

advocator. The warrantor of a title. In old Scotch law, an appellant.

advocatus. One who is called upon to assist in litigation either as an advocate or a witness; an advocate; a pleader; a patron.

advocatus fisci. Singular of advocati fisci.

advocatus of the church. A term applied to a king or great nobleman when land is "loaned" to him in consideration of his patronage and protection.

ad voluntatem. At will.

ad voluntatem domini. At the will of the master.

advouter. Same as adulterer.

advoutrer. Same as adulterer.

advoutress. Same as adulteress.

advoutry. Same as adultery.

advove. (French). An advocate.

advover. Same as avow.

advow. Same as avow.

advowee. The holder of an advowson; a patron.

advowee paramount. The highest in patronage, the sovereign.

advowry. Same as avowry.

advowson. The right of presentation of a clergyman to a church or ecclesiastical benefice. A right of patronage. See 2 Bl Comm 21.

See collative advowson; medietas advocacionis; patronage.

advowson appendant. An advowson annexed to the possession of a manor.

advowson collative. Same as collative advowson.

advowson donative. An advowson whereby the patron may give a church or a chapel without presentation, institution or induction.

advowson in gross. An advowson annexed to the person of the owner and not to his manor of lands.

advowson of the moiety. The right of two patrons each to present a clerk or parson to the same church.

advowson presentative. An advowson whereby the patron has a right of presentation to the bishop or ordinary.

advowterer. An adulterer.

[43]

advowtress. An adulteress.

advowtry. Adultery.

ad warectum. See warectare.

adyre. To say.

aedes. A dwelling house; a residence.

Aedes alienas combussit. He burned the dwelling of another.

aedificare. To build a house.

aedificare in tuo proprio solo non licet quod alteri noceat. It is not lawful to build on your own land that which may harm another.

aedificator. A builder.

Aedificia solo cedunt. Buildings go with the soil; that is, they pass with the title to the land.

aedificium. A building.

aedile. A Roman officer who superintended the care of public buildings, streets, weights and measures, funerals, games, and the prices of provisions.

auditus. Same as editus.

aeger. Sick in mind or body.

ael. A grandfather.

aenne. Corrupted Latin for year.

Aequior est dispositio legis quam hominis. The law's disposition of a matter is more just than that of a man.

aequitas. Equity; good conscience.

For words, phrases, clauses, and maxims beginning with the word "aequitas" or "equity" see equity and phrases which follow such word.

aequo. To make equal. To make for justice and equity.

aequo et bono. See ex aequo et bono.

aequum et bonum est lex legum. That which is just and good is the law of laws.

aequum est neminem cum alterius detrimento fieri locupletiozem. It is just that no one should be enriched by the suffering of another.

aequus. Equal; just.

aequus et bonus. Justice and right.

aera. Same as era.

aerarium. The Roman treasury.

aerer. (A vernacular of the Latin "arare.") To plough.

aerial. See antenna.

aerial navigation. See aeronaut; aeronautics.

aerial flight. A flight in an airplane. Anno: 17 ALR2d 1059.

aerial geology. A branch of the science of geology, pertaining to the making of maps of areas of the earth's surface occupied by peculiar rock formations. Lewis v Carr, 49 Nev 366, 246 P 695.

aerial photograph. A photograph taken from an airplane, usually by a camera which operates automatically or semi-automatically; admissible in evidence on the same basis as an ordinary photograph. Anno: 57 ALR2d 1352.

aerodrome. Same as airdrome.

aeronaut. One trained and skilled in the art or practice of managing and manipulating aircraft and navigating in the airspace above the earth. 8 Am J2d Avi § 2.

aeronautic expedition. An expedition by aircraft.

Something more than riding as a fare-paying passenger would seem to be required to render one a participant in an aeronautic expedition, but the term in an exception to the risk in a life or accident policy has been construed with a contrary result at times, particularly where such construction is favored by other phrases of the exception. Anno: 155 ALR 1038; 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1270.

aeronautic operation. The act of operating an aircraft thru the air. Anno: 83 ALR 389; 99 ALR 202.

Usually understood, when appearing in an exception to the risk in a life or accident policy, purporting to exclude coverage while participating in an aeronautic operation, as not applicable to a fare-paying passenger, but a contrary result has been reached in some cases where other terms of the exclusion are considered with the expression in question. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 1270.

aeronautics. The art or practice of sailing in or navigating the air. Bew v Travelers' Ins. Co. 95 NJL 533, 112 A 859, 14 ALR 983; 8 Am J2d Avi § 2.

Aeronautics Act. A uniform statute, withdrawn by the commissioners in 1943 as obsolete. Boyd v Whitem, 128 Cal App 2d 641, 276 P2d 92.

See Aircraft Financial Responsibility Act.

Aeronautics and Space Act. A federal statute which makes provision for a national space program, declaring that it is the policy of the United States that activities in space should be devoted to peaceful purposes for the benefit of all mankind; a federal statute establishing and providing for the organization and functions of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the Civilian-Military Liaison Committee. 42 USC §§ 2451-2476.

Aeronautics and Space Administration. A federal agency provided by the National Aeronautics and Space Act. 42 USC §§ 2472, 2473.

Aeronautics and Space Council. A federal agency provided by the Aeronautics and Space Act.

acroplane. See airplane.

aerostatics. A branch of physical science dealing with the support which the air gives to objects therein.

aes. Money.

aes alienum. The money of another; a debt due to another.

aesnecia. Same as esnecy. aesneciae. See jus aesneciae.

aesneti. Same as esnecy.

aes suum. His own money; a debt due from another.

aesthetic. That which is beautiful or in good taste. People v Wolf, 127 NY Misc 382, 386, 216 NYS 741, 744.

[44]

aestimare. To assess; to appraise; to value.

aestimatio capitis. The value of the head;-the fine imposed for committing a murder.

aestimatio litis. The assessment of damages in a law suit.

aetas. Age.

aetas infantiae proxima. (Civil law.) The age nearest infancy. This was that part of the period of puerita, or childhood, from the age of seven years to ten and a half. From the time of his birth to the end of this period a child could not be punished for any crime. See 4 Bl Comm 22.

aetas legitima. Lawful age under the civil law; twenty-five years.

aetas perfecta. Finished age, full age. Same as aetas legitima.

aetas prima. The first age; infancy; a child's age up to seven years under the civil law.

actas pubertati proxima. (Civil law.) The age next to, or approaching, puberty. This was that part of the period of puerita, or childhood, from the age of ten and a half years to fourteen. During this period a child was punishable for crime if found to be doli capax, that is, capable of mischief, but the punishment was with many mitigations and was not imposed with the utmost rigor. After this period minors were liable to punishment, even capitally. See 4 Bl Comm 22.

aetate probanda. See de aetate probanda.

aetheling. A noble in Saxon times.

afeer. To appraise; to assess; to assess a fine or amercement.

afeerer or afeeror. One appointed to tax an amercement. See 4 Bl Comm 380.

affair. A matter at hand; a matter of concern. State v Mitchell, 210 Wis 381, 245 NW 640, 86 ALR 1361. A word of broad meaning, including a business transaction, almost anything which engages the attention of a person, even a meretricious relation with one of the opposite sex.

The French "affaire" from which the English word derived is equally broad, including business, troubles, actions in court, etc.

See public affair

affaire. The equivalent in French of affair. affaires. See affair; charge d'affaires.

affearment. Same as affeereement.

affect. To act upon; to produce an effect. Gaunt v Alabama Bound Oil & Gas Co. (CA5) 281 F 1279, 1282; NLRB v Suburban Lumber Co. (CA3) 121 F2d 829. To weaken, debilitate, or injure a person or thing. Ryan v Carter, 112 US 78, 23 L Ed 807.

affected. Influenced, involved, changed, weakened, touched.

affected by intoxicants. In a state of intoxication, Anno: 13 ALR2d 1003. Intoxicated. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1230.

affected by plan. The status of a creditor or stockholder of a corporation in reference to the effect of a plan of reorganization upon his interest or interests.

A creditor or stockholder of a corporation in reorganization under the Bankruptcy Act is affected by a plan of reorganization only if his interest is materially affected. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1598 affected with a public interest. Something of public consequence and affecting the community at large. 16 Am J2d Const L § 317.

See business affected with a public interest.

affecting. See affect.

affecting commerce, In commerce. Burdening or obstructing commerce. Anno: 8 ALR2d 739 (involving definition in federal labor law) 29 USC § 152(7).

affection. Tender feelings. In the medical sense, an ailment or disease, such as an affection of the liver, deranging the functions of the organ involved. Conn. Mut. Life Ins. Co. v Union Trust Co. 112 US 250, 257, 28 L Ed 708, 711, 5 S Ct 119.

See alienation of affections; natural affection.

affectus. Intent; disposition; attempt.

affectus punitur, licet non sequatur effectus. The attempt is punishable although the result intended does not follow.

affeere. Same as afeer.

affer. Cattle; horses.

afferatores. Same as afeerors.

afferatus. Assessed.

affere. Same as afeer.

affermer. To let to farm; to confirm, make strong.

affiance. To pledge; to engage to marry.

affiant. A person who has made an affidavit. People ex rel Livingston v Wyatt, 186 NY 383, 79 NE 330.

affidare. To swear one's faith; to make an oath of fealty or fidelity; to take the soldier's oath.

affidata. An affianced woman.

affidatio. A pledge of fealty.

affidatio dominorum. The oath taken by the members of the House of Lords.

affidatus. An ally, under the feudal system.

affidavit. Any voluntary ex parte statement reduced to writing, and sworn to or affirmed before some person legally authorized to administer an oath or affirmation. 3 Am J2d Affi § 1.

See caption; deposition; jurat; venue; verification.

affidavit for attachment. An affidavit made by or on behalf of the plaintiff and filed by him in the action in which the attachment is sought, as a prerequisite, in most jurisdictions to the issuance of the writ of attachment. 6 Am J2d Attach § 254.

affidavit in criminal prosecution. An affidavit charging the commission of a criminal offense upon which a warrant is issued for the arrest of the accused; the equivalent of a complaint or preliminary information. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 441.

affidavit of circulation. See Newspaper Publicity Law.

affidavit of copyright claimant. An affidavit, required upon deposit of copies of book with the Register of Copyrights, that the copies were made from type set, or from plates made from type set, within the limits of the United States. If the text was produced by lithographic or photo-engraving process, the affidavit must state that the process was wholly performed within the United States and that the printing and binding have also been performed within the United States. The affidavit must also state the place where the type was set or the plates were made or the other processes performed, the place of printing and binding, the date of completion of the printing or the date of publication. The affidavit may be made by the copyright claimant, his duly authorized agent or representative residing in the United States, or the printer who printed the books deposited. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 64.

[45]

affidavit of defense. The same in most jurisdictions as an affidavit of merits. In at least one jurisdiction, however, an affidavit of defense has been the equivalent of a plea or answer. 41 Am J1st Pl § 171, note.

affidavit of good cause. An affidavit required of the government in a denaturalization proceeding. 8 USC § 1451(a).

affidavit of good faith. Requirement on appeal: -an affidavit required by statute in some jurisdictions to be made by or on behalf of an appellant, stating that the appeal is not taken for delay. Even where such an affidavit is required to properly perfect an appeal, it will not be held insufficient on technical grounds. 4 Am J2d A & E § 313. The requirement of an affidavit of good faith applies in some jurisdictions to appeals from a justice of the peace. Prerequisite to filing or recording of chattel mortgage: -a requirement by statute in some jurisdictions made as a condition of the filing or recording of a chattel mortgage is the making of an affidavit by the mortgagor or, in some jurisdictions, his agent or attorney, that the mortgage is given in good faith without design to defeat, defraud, hinder, or delay creditors, and the filing or recording of the affidavit with the mortgage. Under the Uniform Security Code, neither a security agreement nor a financing statement need be accompanied by affidavits. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 49.

affidavit of merits. (sometimes called affidavit of defense). An affidavit stating the foundation of the defendant's defense and denying the right of the plaintiff to recover in the action. 41 Am J1st Pl § 172.

Such affidavit is required on a motion to set aside a default. 30A Am J Rev ed. Judgm § 719. It is also required under the practice in some jurisdictions to avoid the taking of a summary judgment against the defendant. 41 Am J1st Pl § 171.

affidavit of no collusion. An affidavit required of the plaintiff in a bill of interpleader stating that his bill is not filed in collusion with either of the defendants named therein, but merely of his own accord, to obtain the relief sought. Under modern practice, the affidavit is not required if the plaintiff's bill of complaint, duly verified, effectively alleges the absence of collusion. 30 Am J Rev ed. Interpl § 24.

affidavit on demurrer. An affidavit required by statute or by the rules of the court in some jurisdictions to be made by the attorney filing a demurrer, stating that the demurrer is not interposed for purposes of delay and that it is in the opinion of the attorney well taken in point of law.

affidavit to hold to bail. An affidavit prerequisite to an arrest in a civil action.

affidavit upon information and belief. One which is little more than a statement of opinion and lacks the essential of a positive statement required to support a prosecution for perjury. 41 Am J1st Perj § 26.

affilare. To file.

affile. To file; to deliver for filing.

See file.

affiliate. To join or to become connected with, as to affiliate with a lodge or club. To trace connections, as in affiliation proceedings.

affiliated. Joined or connected.

Mere control of two or more corporations by the same persons, without control of substantially all of the stock, or the mere carrying on of a business unit by two or more corporations, is not enough to make them "affiliated" within the meaning of the Income Tax Law. Handy & Harmon v Burnet, 284 US 136, 76 L Ed 207, 52 S Ct 51.

For discussion of affiliated corporations, see Anno: 69 ALR 1271; 95 ALR 153.

affiliated corporations. See affiliated.

affiliated group. A tax-law term for a chain of corporations permitted to file a consolidated return because of a common parentage based upon stock ownership.

affiliation. Connection or close association. The act of joining a lodge or club.

"Affiliation" with an organization advocating the overthrow of the government by force and violence within the federal deportation statute means something more than mere co-operation with such an organization, even where the co-operation indicates a consistent course of conduct; the acts complained of must be of such quality as to indicate an adherence to or a furtherance of the purposes or objectives of the organization and a working alliance to bring them to fruition. Bridges v Wixon, 326 US 135, 89 L Ed 2103, 65 S Ct 1443.

affiliation proceedings. Judicial proceedings, otherwise known in some jurisdictions as bastardy proceedings, to establish the paternity of a child born out of wedlock and to compel the father to contribute to its support. 10 Am J2d Bast § 74.

See affiliated.

affinage. A word taken from the French which means refining, as of metals or sugar.

affiner. To refine; to finish.

affines. Relatives by marriage.

affinis. Singular of affines.

Affinis mei affinis non est mihi affinis. A relative of my relative by marriage is not my relative.

affinitas. Related by marriage.

See affinity.

affinity. The connection existing in consequence of marriage between each of the married persons and the kindred of the other. Re Bordeau's Estate, 37 Wash 2d 561, 225 132d 433, 26 ALR2d 249. The tie between one spouse and the blood relations of the other.

It is contrasted with consanguinity; it is no real kinship. Under the concept of affinity, a husband well taken in point of law. and wife are each related to the blood relations of the other spouse in the same degree as the latter, but the blood relations of one spouse are not regarded as related, by reason of the marriage, to the blood relations of the other spouse, and the husband is not related by affinity to the wife. Re Bordeau's Estate, 37 Wash 2d 561, 225 P2d 433, 26 ALR2d 249; 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 45; 26 Am J1st H & W §2; 27 Am J1st Incest § 4; 30A Am J Rev ed. Judges § 144.

[46]

Under constitutional or statutory provisions, in practically all of the states, a judge is disqualified to act in any cause wherein he may be related to one of the parties within certain specific degrees of affinity" or "consanguinity." 30A Am J Rev ed. Judges § 142.

affirm. To declare solemnly instead of making a statement under oath. 58 Am J1st Witn § 549; also, to confirm or ratify a statement, belief, opinion, decision or judgment, for example to affirm a judgment after appeal or review proceeding.

affirmance. The confirmation of a judgment or order of court. A final determination upon appeal that the proceeding under review is free from prejudicial error. 5 Am J2d A & E § 934. A positive declaration. The adoption by a person of the prior act of another which did not bind him at the time, but which was done or professed to be done on his account. 3 Am J2d Ag § 160.

affirmance-day-general. A day appointed for the general affirmance or reversal of judgments in the court of exchequer.

affirmance of judgment. A determination that the action or proceeding under review is free from prejudicial error and that the judgment appealed from shall stand. 5 Am J2d A & E § 934.

The dismissal of an appeal for want of prosecution is clearly not an affirmance of the judgment. Drummond v Husson, 14 NY 60, 61. Affirmance implies a consideration on the merits, while a dismissal may be very summary. 5 Am J2d A & E § 905

affirmant. A person who affirms in lieu of taking an oath.

Affirmanti, non neganti, incumbit probatio. The burden of proof is on the party who affirms, not on him who denies. Anno: 23 ALR2d 1254.

affirmare. To affirm; to assert.

affirmation. A positive statement. A solemn statement or declaration, made as a substitute for a sworn statement by a person whose conscience will not permit him to swear. 39 Am J1st Oath § 13.

An affirmation of fact constituting a representation is a warranty and not merely evidence of a warranty if its natural tendency is to induce the buyer to purchase the goods and the buyer thus induced does purchase them. Park v Moorman Mfg. Co. 40 Utah 273, 241 P2d 914, 40 ALR2d 273.

affirmative. An answer "yes", something beyond passive tolerance or acceptance. The side supporting a proposition; bearing the burden of proof.

affirmative action. Constructive action rather than mere negation.

As the term is used in the National Labor Relations Act in authorizing "affirmative action" by the Labor Relations Board in ordering the reinstatement of an employee who was discharged for union activities, the statute contemplates remedial, and not punitive or disciplinary action, and the order must therefore be confined to restitution for the wrong done, however widely that should be conceived. NLRB v Leviton Mfg. Co. (CA2) 111 F2d 619.

affirmative authorization. A positive declaration of authority rather than authorization by implication.

A boom in a river authorized and constructed in the manner required by statute is within the exception of a Federal act prohibiting obstructions in navigable streams except those affirmatively authorized by law. Pickens v Coal River Boom Co. 66 W Va 10, 65 SE 865.

affirmative charge. An instruction to the jury which removes an issue from consideration by the jury.

affirmative defense. A defense which amounts to something more than a mere denial of the plaintiff's allegations; a defense which sets up new matter not embraced within the ordinary scope of a denial of the material averments of the complaint.

Among such defenses are accord and satisfaction, release, estoppel, fraud when set up as a matter in avoidance, mistake, alteration of contract, excuse for nonperformance of a covenant, act of God, the statute of limitations, title by prescription, and justification of an alleged tort. 41 Am J1st Pl § 144. See also 27 Am J2d Eq § 204.

affirmative easement. An easement which entitles the owner of the dominant tenement to use the servient tenement, or which clothes him with authority to do some act on the servient tenement which would otherwise be unlawful.

Rights of way, and rights of discharge of matter over the land of another, are illustrations of affirmative easements. 17A Am J Rev ed. Ease § 13.

affirmative order. A rejected term of art. In a seemingly technical distinction between negative" and "affirmative" orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the opinion in Procter & Gamble v United States, 225 US 282, 56 L Ed 1091, 32 S Ct 761, gave authority to a doctrine which harmonizes neither with the considerations which induced it nor with the decisions which have purported to follow it. Later cases have made it clearer that "negative order" and "affirmative order are not appropriate terms of art. Thus, the Supreme Court has had occasion to find that while an order was negative in form, it was affirmative in fact. Rochester Tel. Corp. v United States, 307 US 125, 83 L Ed 1147, 59 S Ct 754.

affirmative plea. In equity: a plea which alleges new matter of defense, proceeding on the theory that, admitting the case stated in the bill to be true, the matter pleaded by the plea affords a sufficient reason why the plaintiff should be denied relief. 27 Am J2d Eq § 204. At Law: a special plea of matters not provable under the general issue. 41 Am J1st Pl § 144.

affirmative pregnant. An allegation in the affirmative form implying a negative in favor of the adverse party.

Such allegations are denounced as bad pleading because they are ambiguous. See Fields v State, 134 Ind 46, 32 NE 780.

affirmative proof. Such evidence of the truth of the matters asserted as tends to establish them, and this regardless of the character of the evidence offered. Jenkins v Hawkeye Commercial Men's Asso. 147 Iowa, 113, 124 NW 199.

affirmative proof of loss. Evidence in such form as is usual and customary in such cases, or as is recognized by law, and such as is calculated to convince or persuade the mind of the truth of the facts alleged; clearly, something more than the unverified declaration of the party in interest. 29A Am 3 Rev ed. Ins § 1404.

[47]

affirmative relief. Relief granted to a defendant In an action upon his demand therefor and proof of his right thereto.

affirmative representation. A positive allegation of a fact as presently existing. 29 Am J Rev ed. Ins § 698.

affirmative statute. A statute commanding a positive act or duty, as distinguished front a prohibition.

affirmative warranty. A warranty by all insured which asserts the existence of a fact or condition, and appears on the face of the policy, or is attached thereto and made a part thereof. 29 Am J Rev ed. Ins § 709.

affix. To attach in a degree of permanence.

affixed. Securely attached.

affixed to the freehold. So fastened to the land or to a fixture as to pass with the land; imbedded in the land, as in the case of walls; or permanently resting upon it as in the case of buildings. Miller v Waddingham, 3 Cal Unrep 375, 25 P 688.

See fixture.

affixus. Affixed to; fastened; annexed.

afflatus divinus. Divine afflatus; inspired by divinity.

affliction. A cause of pain or distress.

afforare. Same as afere.

afforatus. Assessed.

afforce. To add force; to add to; to increase.

afforcer. Same as afforciare.

afforce the assize. To compel jurors to agree to a verdict by starving them, or by adding jurors until twelve agreed.

afforciamentum. The convening of a court in extraordinary session.

afforciamentum districtionis. The afforcement or increase of pledges.

afforciamentum plegiorum. The afforcement or increase of pledges.

afforciare. To increase strengthen.

See a fortiorari.

afforer. To assess; to appraise.

afforest. To make into a forest.

afforestare. To afforest.

afforestation. Same as afforestationment.

afforestationment. The turning of land barren of trees into a forest.

affortiare. Same as afforciare.

affranchir. To enfranchise; to free.

affray. Fighting by two or more persons in a public place, to the terror of the people and the disturbance of public tranquility. Words alone do not constitute all affray is so defined, but if words uttered in a public place are accompanied by threats, drawing weapons, and attempting to use them, thus terrifying the people and disturbing the public tranquility, the offense is committed. 12 Am J2d Breach P etc § 18.

affrayer. One who in public disturber.

affreighter. The character of a ship, the party to a contract of affreightment who hires the vessel.

Such definition derives from the French and is not accepted in common-law jurisdictions without some dissent. At times, the owner of the vessel who lets it is called an "affreighter."

affreightment. A contract for the hiring of a vessel. An agreement by the owner of a vessel to employ the vessel for the carriage of specific goods belonging to one person or many persons. 48 Am J1st Ship § 296.

affretmentum. An affreightment, the hiring of a vessel.

affretement. A contract for the hiring of a vessel.

affreter. To charter a vessel under a contract of affreightment.

affreteur. (French.) One to whom a vessel is let under a contract of affreightment. The owner of a vessel who lets it to another under such a contract is a fretteur or freighter. These terms are not exactly parallel in the English translation. See affreighter.

affri carectae. Plow horses or cattle.

affri carucae. Beasts of the cart. draft horses or cattle.

affront. An insult or indignity by word or deed.

affurare. Same as afeer.

afiert. Belongs to; is a part of.

AFL., Abbreviation for American Federation of Labor, which organization is now joined with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the new title being AFL-CIO.

aforce. Same as afforce.

aforcer. Same as afforciare.

aforciamentum Same as afforciamentum.

aforesaid. Written in an earlier part of the same article or document.

aforestare. To make into a forest.

aforethought, A thought had before; premeditation; prepense.

The words "premeditated," "aforethought," and "prepense," possess etymologically the same meaning. They are the Latin and Saxon synonyms, expressing a single idea, and may possess in law precisely the same force, Sullivan v State, 100 Wis 283, 293.

See malice aforethought; prepense.

a fortiori. By the stronger reason; all the more.

African. See negro.

affri carectae. Same as affri carectae.

afri carucae. See affri carucae.

after. Behind; later in point of time. A word of futurity in a limitation of an estate in real property which in the absence of words of survivorship re lates to the time of enjoyment of the estate limited and not the time of vesting. 28 Am J2d Est § 257. A word, which, as it appears in a contract, indicates a condition of performance. 17 Am J2d Contr § 320.

[48]

Where an act is to be performed within a specified period "after" a day named, the general rule is to exclude the day designated and to include the last day of the specified period. 52 Am J1st Time § 27. But the word may have either an inclusive or an exclusive meaning, according to the subject-matter, context and purpose. See Halbert v San Saba Land & Live Stock Asso. 89 Tex 230, 34 SW 639.

after-acquired. Acquired at a time subsequent to a definite date.

after-acquired property. A term commonly employed in mortgages and for the double purpose of subjecting added security to the lien of the mortgage and of removing- in many cases -doubts which may arise as to whether improvements, repairs, and additions made since the mortgage was executed are included in it. Shaw v Bill, 95 US 10, 24 L Ed 333, 36 Am J1st Mfg § 33. Property acquired by the mortgagor after the date of a chattel mortgage. 15 Am 32d Chat Mtg § 24.

after-acquired title. The interest of estate in land which a grantor acquires after he has conveyed the same land to another person.

As a general rule, when a person conveys, by a deed which contains a warranty of title or which recites or imports that the grantor has title, land in which he has no interest at the time, but afterwards acquires a title to the same land, he will not be permitted to claim in opposition to his deed, front the grantee, or any person claiming title from the grantee. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 294.

afterbirth. The placenta and fetal membranes expelled from the womb after delivery of a child; a birth after the death of the father or after the making of a will by either parent.

after-born. Born afterward; born posthumously.

after-born child. A child born after the death of the father. A child born to a testator after the making of the will. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1367. A child born to the grantor fit a deed after the execution and delivery of the instrument. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 214.

See posthumous child.

after completion of the operation. A phrase often appearing in policies or products liability insurance in clauses which exclude coverage. 29A Am J Rev ed. Ins § 1360.

after dark. See dark.

after date. A familiar phrase in certain promissory notes employed in indicating the maturity of the instrument.

An instrument payable a certain number of days, months, or years "after date" matures on the last day of the time specified. 11Am J2d B & N § 285. A note with time of payment specified only as " after date" is payable immediately or at any rate, within a reasonable time, in the absence of a contrary intent expressed in the instrument. Where a note payable "after date" was executed with a paper attached thereto stating that the payee has agreed that she will not attempt to collect the note until the maker's death, the note was held to become due on the date of death. 11Am J2d B & N § 285.

See on demand after date.

after demand. A condition in an instrument for the payment of money which renders the same payable only upon or after the making of a demand for payment. 11Am J2d B & N § 286.

after-discovered. Discovered after a specific time or event.

after-discovered evidence. Evidence discovered after trial, Weiss v United States (CA5 La) 120 F2d 472.

A more common term is newly discovered evidence.

aftermath. A second crop of grass the same season; the right to such a crop.

after maturity. See indorsement after maturity.

after nightfall. See dark.

afternoon. The part of the day between noon and evening.

after paying the preceding legacies and bequests. An expression used in a will which is generally held to have reference to the residue for distribution under a residuary clause and not to alter the application of the principle that lapsed legacies and devises pass under such a clause. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1449.

after possibility of issue extinct. See fee tail after possibility of issue extinct.

Presentment or a bill of exchange for acceptance is required in any case where the bill is payable "after sight." 11Am J2d B & N § 730.

after sight. After presentment for acceptance.

after the death. Words of futurity in a limitation of an estate in real property, which, in the absence of words of survivorship, relate to the time of enjoyment of the estate limited and not to the time of vesting of the estate. 28 Am J2d Est § 257.

after the fact. See accessory after the fact.

after the passage of this act. Construed, as the expression appears in local option legislation which provides that liquor licenses issued "after the passage of this act" shall be void a specified time after the holding of an election at which the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be prohibited, to mean the time when the act takes effect. 30 Am J Rev ed. Intox L § 111.

afterthought. A thought had after an event.

afterward. Subsequent to a definite happening.

againbuy. To buy back; to redeem.

against. In opposition; contrary to.

See versus.

against evidence. See verdict against evidence.

against her will. Essential allegation in indictment for rape. 44 Am J1st Rape § 56.

The words "against her will" mean exactly the same thing as "without her consent," since the crime may be committed when, strictly speaking, the woman exhibits no will at all in the transaction, as where she has been drugged, or is non compos mentis. 44 Am J1st Rape § 2.

See against the will.

against interest. See declaration against interest.

against my estate. Having reference, as a direction to charge taxes, to the general or the residuary estate. Anno: 37 ALR2d 111.

against public policy. See public policy.

against the form of the statute. A technical expression, the use of which is to be approved, if not declared a necessity, in an indictment founded on a statute which creates the offense charged. 27 Am J1st Indict § 39.

[49]

against the peace and dignity of the state. The conclusion of an indictment which is deemed essential to the validity of the indictment, except as words of like import are prescribed and used. 27 Am J1st Indict § 38.

The allegation of a prior conviction in an indictment seeking enhanced punishment of the accused as an habitual criminal need not conclude with the expression "against the peace and dignity of the state."

against the weight of the evidence. See verdict against the evidence.

against the will. Element of robbery.

As the phrase is used in the definition of the crime of robbery, which includes a taking against the will, it must be construed not only as to be evidenced by resistance, but also as meaning that resistance would have been offered, but was quelled either by actual force or violence, which was of itself sufficient to prevent resistance by disabling the victim or by threat sufficient to frighten the victim or by threat sufficient to frighten the victim into compliance. 46 Am J1st Rob § 22.

Against the will of prosecutrix in rape case, see against her will.

agalma. The impress of a design or figure on a seal.

agard. Award

See nul fait agard.

agatis. See circumspecte agatis.

age. The length of time that a person has lived, a thing has existed, or a structure has stood.

The word has several connotations, some of them inconsistent. Thus, a minor comes of "age," meaning that he has acquired discretion and can transact business without a guardian, while an older person acquires "age" at the peril of having his capacity questioned.

aged. Denoting the attainment of years, as "a boy, aged five."

Denoting that a person has grown old or has been made old by events in his life.

While the term, as applied to human beings, is not for all purposes, susceptible of precise definition, and while it is not practicable arbitrarily to fix a period of life at which the condition of being "aged" can be said to have begun, it has been held in an English case that persons fifty years of age are "aged." Pomeroy v Willway, L R Ch Div 5 10, and an American case holds that a man of sixty-six, though hale and hearty maybe termed "aged." Allen v Pearce, 101 Ga 316, 28 SE 859. The span of life having been materially lengthened in the late decades, it is submitted that courts will be reluctant to accept the statements in the foregoing cases.

A statute which declares an assault aggravated when committed by a person in robust health upon one who is "aged" or decrepit, which fails to define the word "aged," does not sufficiently comply with the legal requirement that an offense be definitely defined before a conviction under it can be sustained. Anno: 83 L Ed 921.

agency. A fiduciary relationship by which a person confides to another the management of some business to be transacted in the former's name or on his account, and by which such other person assumes to do the business and render an account of it.

In its legal sense, the term always imports commercial or contractual dealings between two parties by and through the medium of another. 3 Am J2d Ag § 1.

See administrative agency; exclusive agency.

agency action. The whole or part of every administrative agency rule, order, license, sanction, relief, or the equivalent or denial thereof, or failure to act. 2 Am J2d Adm L § 204.

agency by estoppel. An agency created so far as third persons are concerned by acts and appearances which lead third persons to believe that it exists. 3 Am J2d Ag § 19.

It arises in those cases where the principal, by his culpable negligence, permits his agent to exercise powers not granted to him, even though the principal have no notice or knowledge of the conduct of the agent. It is sufficient to estop the principal from disputing the authority, in such cases, that the course of dealing in the transaction of the principal's business, between the agent and the third persons, was such as to justify them in believing that he possessed the requisite authority, and to make it the duty of the principal to know the manner in which the agent was conducting his affairs. Anno: 12 ALR 113.

agency by necessity. An agency created by necessity, that is, by an emergency arising from a particular situation making it necessary or proper for the agent to act without receiving the sanction or authorization of the principal in the matter, for example, the emergency which arises where one deserts his children, leaving them destitute. 3 Am J2d Ag § 19.

agency by operation of law. An agency which exists by force of law rather than by the mutual consent of principal and agent. 3 Am J12d Ag § 19.

agency coupled with an interest. See power coupled with an interest.

agency in fact. An agency created by the mutual consent of the principal and agent, as distinguished from an agency existing from necessity, by estoppel, or by operation of law.

agency of auctioneer. See auctioneer. agency of the United States. A body which has the power to act as, not merely for, the highest administrative authority of the governmental establishment. Anno: 3 ALR2d 1200.

The Interstate Commerce Commission and National War Labor Board are agencies of the United States within the meaning of section 9 of the Portal-to-Portal Act. Rogers Cartage Co. v Reynolds (CA6 Ky) 166 F2d 317, 3 ALR2d 1090.

See administrative agency.

agency proceeding. Any process of a federal administrative agency. 2 Am J2d Adm L § 204

agency rule on expirations. An insurance agent's right to expirations on termination of the agency. 29 Am J Rev ed. Ins § 174.

agency-shop agreement. A form of union-security agreement under which union membership remains optional with the employee in the sense that membership is neither compulsory nor unavailable, but the employee as a condition of employment is under a duty to pay the union initiation fees and regular dues.

Such an arrangement is valid as union-security, except where prohibited by state right to work laws. Anno: 11 L Ed 2d 1001.

[50]

agency to sell. Personal property: -an agency arising from express authorization, or implied from authorization to conduct another transaction for the principal where a sale is usually incidental to such transaction, usually accompanies it, or is reasonably necessary in accomplishing it. 3 Am J2d Ag § 99. See exclusive agency to sell.

Real property: -usually an agent authorized to sell real property is a special agent acting under a limited power rather than a general agent. See power of attorney; real estate broker.

agenda. Things to be done, matters to be attended to, at a meeting.

agens. A manager; a plaintiff.

agent. One of the parties to an agency relationship, the one who acts for and represents the other party who is known as the principal, being a substitute or deputy appointed by the principal with power to do certain things which the principal may or can do. 3 Am 32d Ag § 1. One employed to represent the employer in contractual negotiations. American Nat Ins Co. v Denke, 128 Tex 229, 95 SW2d 370, 107 ALR 409.

The word imports the correlative idea of a principal, and implies employment, service, delegated authority-to do something in the name or stead of the principal. Brewer v State, 83 Ala 113.

As used in embezzlement statutes, the term is construed in its popular sense as meaning a person who undertakes to transact some business or to manage some affair for another by the latter's authority and to render an account of such business or affair. It imports a principal and implies employment, service, and delegated authority to do something in the name and stead of the principal-an employment by virtue of which the money or property embezzled came into the agent's possession. 26 Am J2d Embez § 26.

agent and patient. A peculiar situation which arises where one is appointed by another to do or perform a thing for his own benefit, as where A appoints his creditor B to be his executor and A dies, whereupon B, acting in his capacity as executor, is authorized to pay the debt owing by A to him and acting in his own right, to receive it.

agent entrusted with goods. A commercial agent. 22 Am J2d Fact § 55.

agentes et consentientes pari poena plectantur. Both actors and those consenting are liable to the same punishment.

agent for. Words of descriptio personae which are not so expressive of an agency relationship in the execution as to relieve the agent of personal liability, the question being resolved according to what is added to the words or what appears upon the face of the instrument. 3 Am J2d Ag § 193.

agential. Pertaining to agency or to an agent.

agent intrusted. See agent entrusted with goods.

agent not authorized to collect. Appearing in large print on the face of an invoice of merchandise, the words constitute conclusive notice to the purchaser not to pay the agent who sold the goods. McKindly v Dunhan, 55 Wis 515, 13 NW 485.

agent of. Words of descriptio personae.

Thus, "agent of" or "president of" a designated corporation merely identifies the person by indicating a personal relationship which he has. Tucker Mfg. Co. v Fairbanks, 98 Mass 101.

See agent for.

agent of insured. See insurance agent.

agent of insurer. See insurance agent.

agent's actual authority. Such authority as a principal intentionally confers upon the agent, or intentionally or by want of ordinary care allows the agent to believe himself to possess. 3 Am J2d Ag § 69.

agent's apparent authority. That authority of an agent which, though not actually granted, the principal knowingly permits the agent to exercise, or which the principal holds him out as possessing.

In effect, an agent's apparent authority is, as to third persons dealing in good faith with the subject of his agency and entitled to rely upon such appearance, his real authority, and it may apply to a single transaction or a series of transactions. 3 Am J2d Ag § 73.

agent's express authority. An authorization by words given orally or in writing to do or perform a certain act or series of acts. 3 Am J2d Ag § 69.

agent's implied authority. Actual authority, circumstantially proved, which the principal is deemed to have actually intended the agent to possess. 3 Am J2d Ag § 71.

agent's incidental authority. Implied authority to perform those acts which are of like kind with the acts which the agent is expressly empowered to perform and from which the authority is implied. 3 Am J2d Ag § 71.

agent's lien. The lien of an agent on property or funds of the principal in his possession for necessary expenditures, advances, or liabilities incurred under the authority conferred upon him, and for his commissions or other compensation for his services. 3 Am 32d Ag § 242.

agent to receive service of process. An "agent authorized by appointment to receive service of process" is one actually and expressly appointed as an agent to receive service, not one whose appointment is by implication only. 26 ALR2d 1087.

An agent actually appointed to receive process on behalf of his principal. Anno: 26 ALR2d 1087. An agent of a foreign corporation upon whom, by force of statute, service of process may be made so as to bind the corporation. 36 Am J2d For Corp §§ 540 et seq.

age of choice. See age of discretion.

age of consent. An arbitrary age fixed by statute without reference to physical development, varying in American jurisdictions from ten to eighteen years, to denote the time of her life at which a female may consent to sexual intercourse. 44 Am J1st Rape § 19. The age which qualifies one to enter into a marriage contract. 35 Am J1st Mar § 16.

age of discretion. The age, usually fourteen, at which, under statute, a minor is entitled to choose, or at least be consulted in the selection of, a guardian. 25 Am J1st Guar § 28.

age of election. Same as age of discretion.

age of majority. The age, usually twenty-one, at which the disability of infancy terminates. 27 Am J1st Inf § 5.

age of nurture. The age of a child under seven.

[51]

age of reason. See age of discretion; Paine's Age of Reason.

age prayer. A request of an infant party to a real action for a stay of proceedings until his majority.

age prier. Same as age prayer.

ager. An old English term meaning acre, derived from the Latin for land or field.

agere injuriam. To sue for damages.

agere non potest. He cannot maintain an action.

agger. A mound; a dam; a dike; a bank; a Roman road, raised in the center to shed water.

aggravated arson. The intentional damaging by an explosive substance, or setting fire to any structure, watercraft, or movable, wherein it is foreseeable that human life may be endangered. State v Murphy, 214 La 600, 38 So 2d 254.

aggravated assault. An offense variously defined in state statutes, sometimes referring to an assault with intent to commit murder, assault with intent to commit rape, assault with intent to commit robbery etc., at other times referring to a degree of the specific crime of assault. 6 Am J2d Asslt & B § 48.

aggravated damages. See aggravation of damages.

aggravated larceny. The offense in particular forms defined by statute, such as larceny from the person, larceny from a dwelling-house, larceny from a railroad car, larceny of Federal property, larceny of commodity supplied by a public utility, etc. 32 Am J1st Larc §§ 43 et seq.

aggravated rape. The offense of rape under circumstances which render the offense more heinous, such as tender age of the victim or a blood relationship between the accused and the victim. State v Daniels, 169 Ohio St 87, 8 Ohio 56, 157 NE2d 736, 76 ALR2d 468.

aggravation. That which enhances the gravity of a criminal or tortious act; allegations in a declaration or complaint which tend to enhance damages. An enhancement of a wrong or injury.

In some jurisdictions, an offense is aggravated by the circumstance of a previous conviction of the same offense. State v Bruno, 69 Utah 444, 256 P 109.

aggravation of damages. A phrase of several connotations: (1) an increase in compensable damages because of the circumstances which surrounded the injury; (2) an increase in the damages suffered resulting from the failure of the injured party to seek medical relief or the unskilful treatment given by the physician whom he selected and employed, which category comes within the doctrine of avoidable consequences; (3) increasing the severity of a pre-existing physical or mental condition by committing a tort against the afflicted person; and (4) an increase in exemplary or punitive damages because of the high degree of malice in the acts of the defendant which injured the plaintiff. 22 Am J2d Damg § 199.

Matter of aggravation does not consist in acts of the same kind and description as those constituting the gist of the action, but in something done by the defendant, on the occasion of committing the trespass, which is, to some extent, of a different legal character from the principal act complained of.

A very graphic illustration of matter in aggravation appears where the plaintiff declares in trespass for breaking and entering his house, and alleges in addition, that the defendant also destroyed goods in the house and debauched his daughter. Hathaway v Rice, 19 Vt 102, 107.

aggregate. A mass; an assemblage of a sum of particulars, all taken together in one number. See Anno: to O'Brien v Chicago City Railway Co. 27 ALR 506.

See corporation aggregate.

aggregate damage. This term, as used in a liability insurance policy limiting the liability of the insurance company to a certain sum for each accident and to another stated sum for "aggregate damage", was meant to serve as a total limit of damage to property of different persons from a closely related series of events. Anchor Casualty Co. v McCaleb (CA5 Tex) 178 F2d 322.

aggregate liability restriction. A clause in a contract for the renewal of a bond which limits the extent of the liability of the surety. 12 Am J2d Bonds § 46.

aggregatio mentium. See meeting of the minds.

aggressor. A person who willingly or knowingly after meeting his antagonist begins and brings about an affray or deadly conflict by using threatening language or doing some act reasonably calculated to lead to such an affray or conflict. Wilkie v State, 33 Okla Crim 225, 242 P 1057.

In order to make a man guilty of murder as the "aggressor," the one "in fault," or the one who "provokes a difficulty" in which his adversary is killed, he must have provoked it with the intent to kill his adversary or do him great bodily harm, or to afford him a pretext for wreaking his malice upon his adversary. Foutch v State, 95 Tenn 711, 34 SW 423.

aggrieved. Deprived of one's legal rights or having suffered an invasion of one's legal rights. Denied one's personal or property right. Gloss v People, 259 111 332, 102 NE 763.

aggrieved party. One who is injuriously affected by the act or omission of another. Anno: 13 ALR 301. One whose personal interests are or may be affected adversely. Anno: 74 ALR 1221 (review of refusal to abate a tax.) One, within the meaning of the statute governing appeals, who has an interest recognized by law in the subject matter which is injuriously affected by the judgment, or one whose property rights or personal interests are directly affected by the operation of the judgment or decree. 4 Am J2d A & E § 183.

agild. Released or exempt from fine.

agiler. A spy; an informer.

agillarius. A cowherd.

agio. (French.) The rate of exchange between one currency and another.

agiotage. (French.) Speculation.

agisant. Lying.

agiser. To lie.

agist. To agist is to feed or pasture the cattle of another on one's land, for hire.

agistamentum. An agistment.

agistare. To agist.

agistator. An agister.

agister. A person who takes cattle for hire to pasture or to care for.

[52]

The agister's possession is that of a bailee for hire. Atwater v Lowe (NY) 39 Him 150, 152; 4 Am J2d Am § 72.

agister's lien. A lien upon an animal provided by contract or statute for the benefit of a person who has fed or cared for the animal. 4 Am J2d Am § 74.

agistment. The particular kind of bailment under which a man, for a consideration, takes cattle to graze and pasture on his land. 4 Am J2d Am § 72.

agistor. Same as agister.

agitator. One who stirs up discontent with prevailing social, economic, or political conditions.

See labor agitator; seditious agitator.

agitur. An action has been brought.

agnates. Blood relatives who trace their kinship through males.

agnati. Romans who traced their name and lineage through the male line to a common deceased ancestor.

agnatic. Deraigned through males or from a male.

agnatio. Agitation; relationship upon the father's side.

agnation. Relationship through males, or to a male.

agnats. Same as agnates.

agnise. To acknowledge; to admit.

agnize. Same as agnise.

agnomen. A popular appellation appended to a person's true name, for example, "Louie, the short."

agony. Violent pain of body or mind. Chicago v. McLean, 133 Ill 148, 24 NE 527.

agraphia. A disorder of the brain affecting the ability to write.

agrarian. Pertaining to land.

agrarianism. A socialistic plan for an equal distribution of lands; any plan for a radical change in land tenure. A movement to promote the interests of farmers as a class.

agrarian laws. Laws of ancient Rome regulating the disposition of public lands.

agrarian murder. A murder committed in a dispute over lands, boundaries or tenancy.

agrarii. The agrarians, who were the members of the Roman political party which stood for the distribution of the public lands among the people.

agrarium. A tax upon land.

a gratia. By favor; by indulgence.

agreementum. Old English term meaning agreement.

agreare. To agree.

agreavit. He agreed.

agree. To unite upon the terms of a contract or agreement; to make an agreement; to assume a harmonious relation.

The word "agree" may be read "grant", and an "agreement under seal" construed to be a grant. Bailey v Agawam Nat. Bank, 190 Mass 20, 716 NE 449. This does not mean that a defective grant is always to be considered an agreement to make a grant. Bailey v Agawam Nat. Bank, supra.

agree. (French.) A solicitor or attorney in the tribunals of commerce.

agreeance. An agreement.

agreed. Having come to an agreement; having settled by mutual assent upon a course of action.

See dismissed agreed.

agreed case. A special proceeding, the chief characteristic of which is that the parties submit to the court an agreed statement of the ultimate facts essential to a determination of the particular litigation, so that the court will not be concerned with matters of fact, but will consider and determine openly matters of law. 3 Am J2d Agr C § 1.

The term is not an exclusive designation of the proceeding but is used interchangeably with other terms such as "case stated" and "case agreed." 3 Am J2d Agr C § 1. There is a distinction, however, between an agreed case and an agreed statement of acts.

agreed order. An order of court made upon the agreement of the parties rather than after a trial.

agreed price. The price agreed upon by the parties in their contract of employment or of purchase. Fyfe v Sound Development Co. 235 NY 266, 139 NE 263, 26 ALR 1325, 1327.

agreed statement of facts. A statement agreed or stipulated by respective counsel as being the facts of the case.

It is but a substitute for the evidence of those facts and in this respect an agreed statement of fact differs from an agreed case, which may be submitted for decision without any pleadings. Towle v Sweeney, 2 Cal App 29, 83 P 74.

According to some authorities, signatures of the parties or their attorneys is unnecessary to an agreed statement of facts admitted by the parties to be true in open court. Le Barron v Harvard, 129 Neb 460, 262 NW 26, 100 ALR 767.

agreed value. A value stipulated by the parties to a contract; the value of the insured property stated in an insurance policy known as a valued policy.

In a certificate of formation of a partnership, a statement that a limited partner had contributed property of the "agreed value" of a certain sum, the words "agreed value" had the same meaning as actual value so far as concerned the rights of third parties relying upon the certificate to their detriment. Walrath v Ramsay, 335 Mich 331, 55 NW2d 853, 34 ALR2d 1449.

agreement. The union of two or more minds in a thing done or to be done; a coming together of parties in opinion or determination; the union of two or more minds in a thing done or to be done. Woodworth v State, 20 Tex App 375, 380. A contract where made upon a sufficient consideration to do, or refrain from doing, a particular lawful thing. 17 Am J2d Contr § 1.

The legal import of the word includes not only a promise, but also the consideration for which the promise was made. Hunt v Adams, 5 Mass 358.

See articles of agreement; compact; contract.

agreement against public policy. See contract against public policy.

agreement by specialty. See specialty.

agreement for arbitration. A contract between parties to a dispute involving their respective legal rights and duties that the disputed matters shall be referred to the decision of others and that the parties shall be bound by the decision reached by such persons. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 24. A contract constituting the first step in submission of a controversy to arbitration.

[53]

It may be either an agreement to submit a present controversy or part of the issues thereof or an agreement to arbitrate future controversies. In any event the rights and liabilities of the parties are controlled by the law of contracts and a valid contract is essential if a submission is to be required of a party. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 1.

agreement for insurance. A form of temporary insurance, 29 Am J Rev ed. Ins § 205; an agreement by an insurer to cover the insured pending the execution and delivery of a formal policy of insurance. Trustees of the First Baptist Church v Brooklyn Fire Ins. Co. 19 NY 305, 308.

agreement for lease. An agreement by a landowner to enter into a lease of the premises as distinguished from a lease itself, the agreement being executory, vesting no interest in the land in the other party, and creating no liability for rent as such. In determining whether an instrument is a lease or a mere agreement for one, the intention of the parties, as manifested by the writing controls. As a rule, where the agreement contemplates the execution of a formal lease at a future time, especially where its future execution is conditional, the agreement is one for a lease and not a lease itself; but where the instrument contains apt words of present demise, and the estate granted and terms of the demise are definite and explicit, it is often held to be a present lease and not a mere agreement for one, although it also contains a provision or covenant for the execution of a more formal lease at a future time. 32 Am J1st L & T § 28.

agreement for submission. An agreement for arbitration.

agreement not to be performed within a year. Within the meaning of the Statute of Frauds, the expression includes only such agreements as, fairly and reasonably interpreted, do not admit of a valid execution within the space of one year.

The expression does not refer to a natural or physical impossibility, but an impossibility by the terms of the contract itself, or by the understanding and intention of the parties as shown by the contract. 49 Am J1st Stat of F § 23.

If an agreement may consistently with its terms be entirely performed within the year, although it may not be probable or expected that it will be performed within that time, it is not within the condemnation of the statute of frauds. Kent v Kent, 62 NY 560.

agreement of conveyance. Any agreement whereby one person conveys or agrees to convey to another real property or some interest therein. Larsen v Larsen, 44 Idaho 211, 256 P 369.

See conveyance; deed.

agreement of sale. A completed sale as distinguished from an agreement to sell.

agreements main in se. See contracts mala in se.

agreements mala prohibita. See contracts mala prohibita.

agreement to receive a bribe. A statutory offense consisting of an agreement between two persons which necessarily carries with it the essential concept of a criminal and corrupt bargain to give on the one part, and to receive on the other. A meeting of the minds for such corrupt bargain. People v Coffey, 161 Cal 433, 119 P 901.

agreement to sell. An executory contract, as distinguished from a completed sale under an agreement of sale. Keogh v Peck, 316 Ill 318, 147 NE 266, 38 ALR 115.

agreement under seal. See contract under seal.

agreer. (French.) To approve; to allow; to accept. To rig or equip a ship.

agrees. See agree.

agrees to pay mortgage debt. Assumes the mortgage. tion and delivery of the formal policy of insurance. 37 Am J1st Mtg § 997.

agres. Rigging on a vessel as known under the French law of the sea.

agri. Fields; arable lands worked in common.

agricultural. Pertaining to, connected with, or engaged in agriculture. Slycord v Horn, 179 Iowa 936, 162 NW 294, 7 ALR 1285, 1290.

Agricultural Adjustment Acts. Statutes providing for direct payment of public funds to farmers in connection with the regulation by the government of the production and marketing of agricultural products. 3 Am J2d Agri § 28.

Agricultural Adjustment Administration. A federal agency under an agricultural adjustment act. 7 USC 601-659 (Act of 1933); 3 Am J2d Agri § 28.

agricultural chemistry. The application of science to assist in the production of food crops and the improvement of such crops from the standpoint of nutrition.

Agricultural Children Act. An English statute (1873) regulating child labor on farms and education for child laborers. (36 and 37 Vict c 67.)

agricultural commodities. Products produced by labor upon land in an agricultural pursuit, as distinguished from lime and commercial fertilizer which are produced for the farm.

Agricultural Commodities Act. See Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act.

agricultural compositions and extensions. Proceedings under the Bankruptcy Act, provided as a temporary measure in 1933, but continued in effect until March 1, 1949, when the statute was allowed to expire, the objective of the legislation being to enable a farm debtor to hold onto his property and keep operating under extensions of time for payment or redemption. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1625.

agricultural employment. See farm labor.

agricultural enterprises. Processes in the preparation and marketing of agricultural or horticultural commodities. Puerto Rico Tobacco Marketing Co-op. Asso. v McComb (CA1 Puerto Rico) 181 F2d 697, agricultural fair. A fair or exhibition, conducted by a state or county board of agriculture or by an agricultural society, which is intended to promote agriculture by including exhibits of livestock, agricultural products, farm machinery, and other products and items of interest to farmers and their families, as well as to provide amusement and entertainment for its patrons. 4 Am J2d Amuse § 19.

Agricultural Gangs Act. An English statute (1867) regulating child and female labor on farms. (30 and 31 Vict 130.)

[54]

agricultural labor. See farm labor.

agricultural lands. A term of variable meaning in use, meaning, on the one hand, crop or grazing lands, and on the other hand, lands outside a city or village.

agricultural leases. Leases of farm lands. Bookout v White, 123 Mont 459, 214 P2d 861, 17 ALR2d 562; Anno: 17 ALR2d 566.

agricultural liens. Liens given by statute or special contract upon agricultural property, such as crops and domestic animals, to secure farm laborers and the vendors of seed grain, stock feed, and other products furnished for agricultural purposes. 3 Am J2d Agri § 10.

agricultural occupation. See farming.

agricultural products. See farm products.

agricultural pursuit. Every process and step taken and necessary to the completion of a finished farm product. 3 Am 32d Agri § 1; 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 97.

See farming.

agricultural society. An association, which may be of a voluntary character or incorporated, organized and acting to further and advance the interests of agriculture through promoting educational activities, the holding of agricultural fairs, the collection and dissemination of information helpful directly and indirectly to farmers and stockraisers, and developing other measures intended to stimulate agriculture and promote its improvement. Downing v Indiana State Board of Agriculture, 129 Ind 443, 28 NE Rep 123; 3 Am J2d Agri § 54, agricultural workers. See farm labor.

agriculture. The science or art of cultivating the soil and its fruits, especially in large areas or fields, and the rearing, feeding, and management of livestock thereon, including every process and step necessary and incident to the completion of products therefrom for consumption or market and the incidental turning of them to account.

It is broader in meaning than "farming," since it includes activities deemed extraneous to farming, such as viticulture, dairying, poultry, bee raising, and ranching. 3 Am 32d Agri § 1; 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 97.

The word refers to the field, or farm, with all its wants, appointments, and products, as horticulture refers to the garden with its less important, though varied, products. Slycord v Horn, 179 Iowa 936, 162 NW 249, 7 ALR 1285, 1290. For some purposes, however, the word "agriculture" includes horticulture, as well as forestry, and the use of land for any purpose of husbandry, inclusive of the keeping and breeding of livestock, poultry or bees, and the growing of fruit or vegetables. 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 97.

agriculturist. A student of the science of agriculture. Downing v Indiana State Board of Agriculture, 129 Ind 443, 28 NE Rep 123. An expert in farming; a Farmer.

agri limitati. (Roman law.) The territory acquired by conquest and assigned to the veteran soldiers.

agri mensuram. To measure land.

agt. An abbreviation of agent.

ahteid. Bound by oath, aid. Verb: To support by furnishing strength or means. Anno: 22 ALR 1320. Noun: Money or substance given by way of assistance, for example, appropriations for foreign countries economically distressed.

See aids; federal aid; state aid; welfare.

aid and abet. See aiding and abetting aid and assist. Implying knowledge of the illegal transportation, where the term is used in statutory provisions authorizing the seizure and confiscation of vehicles of persons who aided and assisted in the illegal transportation of intoxicating liquors. 30 Am J Rev ed. Intox L § 481.

aid and comfort. Help; assistance; encouragement; counsel. An element of the crime of treason.

One gives aid and comfort to the enemy where he commits an overt act which, in its natural consequence, if successful, would encourage and advance the interests of the enemy. Young v United States, 97 US 39, 24 L Ed 992; 52 Am J1st Treas § 9. The term "aid and comfort" contemplates some kind of affirmative action, deed, or physical activity tending to strengthen the enemy or weaken the power to resist him, and is not satisfied by a mere mental operation. Cramer v United States, 325 US 11 89 L Ed 1441, 65 S Ct 918, Kawakita v United States, 343 US 717, 96 L Ed 1249, 72 S Ct 950.

aid bonds. County or municipal bonds issued in aid of a private enterprise, such as a railroad, in the interest of the public. People ex rel. Danville, Olney & Ohio River Railroad Co. v Granville, 104 Ill 285, 288.

See railroad aid bonds.

aide. In one sense the same as aid; in another sense an officer in the armed forces who is an assistant to a superior.

aide de camp. An officer of the armed forces serving as an assistant to an officer of higher rank.

aidér. One who aids or abets; one who advises, counsels, procures, or encourages another to commit a crime. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 119.

See aiding and abetting.

aidér by verdict. The cure of defects in a pleading by verdict, under the rule that any defect, imperfection, or omission in any pleading, whether in substance or form, is cured by verdict if the issue joined is such as necessarily requires proof on the trial of the facts so defectively or imperfectly stated or omitted, and without which it is not to be presumed that either the judge would direct the jury to give, or the jury would have given, the verdict. 41 Am J1st PI § 404.

aiding and abetting. A familiar term in criminal law, meaning the advising, counseling, procuring, or encouraging another to commit a crime.

One accused of such acts cannot be guilty thereof unless the person aided committed a crime. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 119. If guilty, the one aiding and abetting is himself liable as a principal. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 122.

aiding an escape. Offense of rescue. 27 Am J2d Escape § 3.

aidoiomania. A species of insanity in which the person afflicted longs for every woman he sees, whether she is married or not. A deed procured by a husband to be made by the aidoiomaniac to his wife, would be set aside, for it runs to the subject of his mania. Ekin v McCracken (Pa) 11 Phila 534, 539.

[55]

aid-prayer. A prayer or demand that other parties shall be joined in the action and help defend his title, which a defendant tenant may make in a real action as a preliminary step before putting in his plea. He may thus call for assistance because of the febleness of his own estate. For example, a tenant for life may pray in aid, that is, call for assistance, on the remainderman or reversioner and an incumbent parson may thus call on the patron and the ordinary. See 3 Bl Comm 300.

aidre. Same as aidér.

aids. Services or payments rendered to the lord by a tenant in chivalry on certain occasions. First there were payments called "aids;" in the theory of our earlier authors, they were offered of the tenant's free will, to meet the costs incurred by the lord on particular occasions; but they settled into a fixed custom afterwards, if they had not really done so when those authors wrote. See F. Pollock, Land Laws, iii.

See fifteenths; tenths.

aid societies. Organizations of women members of churches, having the purpose of aiding and promoting the work of the church, often engaging in money-raising activities.

See benevolent associations: mutual benefit society.

aiel. A grandfather; a writ under which a grandchild could oust a stranger who dispossessed him on the day of the death of his grandfather, who was seised. See 3 Bl Comm 186.

aiellesse. A grandmother.

aioul. French for grandfather.

aiëule. French for grandmother.

ail. Noun: a corrupted French form of aiel, meaning grandfather. Verb: to become sick or suffer failing health.

ailment. A disease; sickness, indisposition; morbid affection of the body; not ordinarily applied to acute diseases. McDermott v Modern Woodmen of America, 97 Mo App 636, 654, 71 SW 833.

See personal ailment.

ailours. Otherwise; elsewhere.

aim. Verb: To act with a purpose; to direct a blow, to bring a firearm into position on target. Noun: Intention or purpose.

ainesse. French for primogeniture.

See esnecy.

ainsi. From the French, meaning so; thus.

aio. I say. The opening words of the statement of a Roman cause of action.

air. Noun: the combination of gases with which the earth is surrounded. Appearance or impression. A melody. Verb: To make known one's thoughts or grievances. To expose to the air.

air base. A center maintained by the armed services in support of activities in aviation.

airborne radioactive material. Any radioactive material disbursed in the air in the form of dust, fumes, mess, vapors, or gases. 10 CFR Cum Supp § 20.3(a)(2).

air-brake provisions. Federal regulations of appliances on trains. 44 Am J1st RR § 274.

air carrier. Any citizen of the United States who undertakes, whether directly or indirectly or by a lease or other arrangement, to engage in air transportation. 49 USC § 1301(10).

air chamber. Equipment of a motorboat to insure buoyancy in the event of capsizing. 12 Am J2d Boats § 12.

air-condition. To clean or temper the air in a building for the purpose of making the building more comfortable for habitation or work.

air-conditioning equipment. Appliances used in cleaning or cooling the air in a building.

Whether or not the equipment is a fixture, thereby constituting a part of the real estate, is a question to be answered according to the particular circumstances involved, such as the degree of attachment to the realty and the degree to which it is especially adapted to the premises involved. Anno: 43 ALR2d 1378.

air course. A passage for ventilation of a mine, now required by statute in mining states. 36 Am J1st Min & M § 147.

aircraft. Any contrivance now known or hereafter invented which is used, or designed for navigation of or flight in the air. 49 USC § 1301(5); 8 Am J2d Avi § 20.

The term "aircraft" in an aviation exclusion clause in a life or accident policy of insurance includes a glider and a seaplane. Anno: 54 ALR2d 414.

See airplane; powered aircraft: public aircraft.

Aircraft Financial Responsibility Act. A uniform statute, prepared by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, which, by 1965, had been adopted in Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, and Connecticut. Am J2d Desk Book, Document No. 129.

airdrome. An airport.

aire. A court conducted by justices on circuit.

airer. To plow.

airline. A carrier by air, whether of persons, property, or both.

airman. Any individual who engages, as the person in command or a pilot, mechanic, or member of the crew, in the navigation of aircraft while underway; and (except to the extent that the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency may otherwise provide with respect to individuals employed outside the United States) any individual who is directly in charge of the inspection, maintenance, overhauling, or repair of aircraft, aircraft engines, propellers, or appliances, and any individual who serves in the capacity of aircraft dispatcher, or air-traffic control tower operator. 49 USC § 1301(7).

air navigation facility. Any facility used in, available for use in, or designed for use in, aid of air navigation, including landing areas, lights, any apparatus or equipment for disseminating weather information, for signalling, for radio-directional finding, or for radio or other electrical communication, and any other structure or mechanism having a similar purpose for guiding or controlling flight in the air or the landing or takeoff of aircraft. 49 USC § 401(7); Hillsborough County Aviation Authority v National Airlines, Inc. (Fla) 63 So 2d 61, 40 ALR2d 1056.

air piracy. As defined by federal statute, any seizure or exercise of control, by force or violence or by threat of force or violence and with wrongful intent, of an aircraft in flight in air commerce. 49 USC 1472(i) (2), as amended Sept. 5, 1961.

[56]

airplane. An aircraft. Not a motor-driven car or vehicle. McBoyle v United States, 283 US 25, 75 L Ed 816, 51 S Ct 340; Re Hayden's Estate, 174 Kan 140,254 P2d 813, 36 ALR2d 1278; 8 Am J2d Avi § 20.

See aircraft.

air pollution. The pollution of the air by noxious fumes produced and arising from industrial operations, the burning of waste and rubbish, the exhausts on the engines of motor vehicles, etc. Anno: 54 ALR2d 795; 26 Am J2d Electr § 264.

airport. A field with improvements for the taking off and landing of aircraft, the loading and unloading of passengers and cargo, and the accomodation of airlines and their personnel.

The maintenance of airports comes legitimately within the scope of a municipal power in much the same manner as docks and harbor facilities for marine shipping. Municipalities are studying local conditions and commercial organizations are ever pressing the importance of establishing or improving terminal airports and of providing proper fighting for landing fields and facilities such as hangars, garages, and repair shops. Wichita v Clapp, 125 Kan 100, 263 P 12, 15.

See federal airports.

airport of entry. An airport designated as one of entry for purpose of collecting customs duties. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 60.

airship. See aircraft.

air show. A business use of an insured aircraft by an insured corporation engaged in flying services. 29A Am J Rev ed. Ins § 1348.

airspace. That part of space extending upward from the surface of land which is necessary for the full use of the land and enjoyment of the incidents of its ownership. 8 Am J2d Avi § 3.

See navigable airspace.

airt and pairt. (Scotch.) Same as art and part.

air traffic rules. Statutes, rules and regulations prescribed by federal and state authority, or developed by way of application of common-law principles, which govern the operation of aircraft in the air or in landing and takeoff. 8 Am J2d Avi §§ 8 et seq.

Air Transport Adjustment Board. A federal agency for the adjustment of disputes between an employer operating an airline and its employees. 31 Am J Rev ed. Lab § 348.

air transportation. Interstate, overseas, or foreign transportation of goods, other items of personal property, or the mail by aircraft. 49 USC § 1301(10).

airway. A route for aircraft in the air, open to all qualified aircraft other than those of the enemy, but subject to regulation and control under governmental authority in the interest of public safety and welfare. 8 Am J2d Avi §§ 9 et seq.

See federal airway.

aisement. Same as easement.

aisiamentum. Same as easement,

aisne. Eldest or first born.

See aisne file; aisne fitz.

aisneesse. Rule of primogeniture in descent.

aisne file. The eldest daughter.

aisne fitz. The eldest son.

ajournement. In French law, a summons, that is process for the commencement of an action; also, adjournment or postponement.

ajourner. To adjourn.

ajuger. To adjudge.

ajutage. A tube or pipe used in waterworks.

ajutoir. Same as ajutage.

akin. Related by blood; similar.

al. An abbreviation of alius. French form of preposition "at" or "with" as in al armes; al barre.
See et al.

Alabama Claims. Claims for compensation from Great Britain for damages inflicted upon American shipping and property by the Alabama, a ship of the Confederate States, which was built in Great Britain. The claims were heard by a tribunal of arbitrators and allowed in a sum somewhat in excess of $16,000,000. The award is known as the Geneva Award and the board of arbitrators as the Geneva Convention. Similar claims for damages from depredations by the ships, Florida and Shenandoah, were also arbitrated.

al aid de Dieu. With God's help.

alae ecclesia. Architectural designation for wing aisles in a church.

Alaric. See Law of Alaric.

al armes. With arms.

alarm. Literally, to arms, but in modern usage a warning of danger from fire, water, an enemy, or other source of peril.

alarm list. A listing of persons under obligation to act as watchers.

alarm system. An apparatus consisting of wire and bell or horn constructed so as to be actuated by electricity, placed with more or less permanency at the entrance of a house or place of business, or at the door of a vault, and so set that any movement of the door of the house or vault, sometimes even any movement of a person in the immediate vicinity, will sound an alarm.
Anno: 133 ALR 428.

Alaska. The largest state of the Union, admitted as the 50th state on January 3, 1959, having an area of 586,400 square miles, which is the territory to which the United States acceded by purchase from Russia in 1867 conducted by Honorable William H. Seward, Secretary of State under President Andrew Johnson. The name "Alaska" is of Russian origin, having reference to the Aleutians, inhabitants of islands lying off the coast, who were the first natives contacted by Russian explorers.

a latere. From the side; collaterally.

alba. See firma alba.

albacea. An executor.

alba firma. Rent payable in silver.

albanagii jus. Same as albinatus jus.

albanus. A foreigner; an alien.

al barre. At the bar.

albinatus. A foreigner; an alien. The word is doubtless derived from the Latin "alibi," meaning elsewhere, and natus, meaning born. See 1 Bl Comm 372.

[57]

albinatus jus. A French law, repealed in 1790, whereby all of the property of a deceased alien escheated to the king.

albino. A person, even any animal, lacking normal coloration, appearing therefore in extreme whiteness of skin.

albinus. Same as albanus.

album. A book with blank pages for autographs or for mounting photographs or clippings from newspapers and magazines. (Roman law.) The white tablet upon which the praetor published his edicts; white; without writing; blank.

album argentum. White silver; uncoined silver.

album judicum. (Roman law.) A tablet for making up a jury list.

albus liber. A compilation of the laws of old London.

alcalde. A Spanish officer possessing judicial powers and jurisdiction similar to those of a justice of the peace. See Castillero v United States (US) 2 Black 17, 17 L Ed 360.

alcalde mayor. The chief officer of government in one of the less important jurisdictions of the Spanish empire of the Indies and southwestern America. See Strother v Lucas (US) 12 Peters 410, 443, note, 9 L Ed 1137, 1149, note.

alcaldes ordinarios. In places in which no governor resided, the regidores chose for two years, one or two persons who were not in the employ of the government as alcaldes ordinarios, or magistrates who held their courts and administered justice in all the cases in which a government could decide. They had seats and votes in the ayuntamiento or council, except when a governor or corregidor happened to be present. See Strother v Lucas (US) 12 Peters 410, 445, note, 9 L Ed H 50, note.

alcohol. A volatile, organic, limpid, colorless liquid, hot and pungent to the taste, having a slight, but not offensive scent. It has only one source, fermentation, and is extracted from its byproducts by distillation, its purity and strength depend on the degree of perfection or completeness of distillation and aging processes.

It is the intoxicating element in spiritous, vinous, malt, and other intoxicating liquors, but pure alcohol is rarely used as a beverage, and some, but not all authorities, declare that pure alcohol is not an ardent or vinous spirit, or liquor of any kind, but a distinct thing used as an intoxicating basis of strong liquors. 30 Am J Rev ed. Intox L § 12.

Alcohol Administration Act. A statute containing various provisions with respect to trade practices in connection with the marketing of intoxicating liquors. 27 USC § 205; Anno: 123 ALR 748.

alcoholic. Containing or pertaining to alcohol. One addicted to excessive use of intoxicating liquor.

alcoholic beverage. A potable liquid which contains an appreciable amount of alcohol, yet not necessarily enough of that product to be intoxicating. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 4.

See alcoholic content.

alcoholic content. The percentage of alcohol in a liquor, determined according to volume in the United States, but according to weight in some countries.

Frequently, liquor laws provide that the term "intoxicating liquors" includes liquors which contain a specified percentage of alcohol, so that liquors containing such amounts of alcohol are subject to such laws irrespective of their intoxicating qualities. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 6.

alcoholic hallucinosis. A mental derangement brought on by excessive use of alcoholic beverages. 21 Am J2d Crim L.

alcoholic liquor. Any liquor, beer, beverage or compound, whether distilled, fermented, or otherwise, by whatsoever known or called, which will produce intoxication, or which contains in excess of one per centum of alcohol and is used as a beverage. State v Glover, 133 SC 124, 125, 130 SE 213.

The latter clause of the foregoing definition is akin to the view in some jurisdictions, usually by force of statute, that "alcoholic liquors" and "intoxicating liquors" are interchangeable terms. 30 Am 3 Rev ed. Intox L § 4. Other authorities refuse to call all liquors which contain some alcohol "intoxicating liquors," without giving consideration to the percentage of alcohol contained therein. 30 Am J Rev ed. Intox L § 6.

alcoholic principle. The concept that any beverage containing alcohol will produce intoxication if a quantity sufficient for the purpose is taken. State v Fargo Bottling Works Co. 19 ND 396, 124 NW 387.

alcoholism. A state of being poisoned by alcohol or diseased from excessive use of alcoholic liquors.

al common ley. At common law. See 4 Bl Comm 327, footnote.

al contrary. To the contrary.

alcove. A recessed part of a room.

alder-best. The best of all.

alder-first. The first of all.

alderman. In the United States, a municipal officer, often called a councilman, who is a member of the common council, the legislative body of the municipality. In the older England, an alderman had significant judicial power. Purdy v People NY 4 Hill 384, 409.

aldermannus civitatis vel burgi. An alderman of a city or borough.

aldermannus comitatus. A county alderman.

aldermannus totius Angliae. Alderman of all England.

ale. A malt liquor, that is, one of the beverages produced by the fermentation of malt, being the product of a process by which grain is steeped in water to the point of germination, the starch of the grain being thus converted into saccharine matter, is kiln-dried, then mixed with hops, and, by a further process of brewing, made into a beverage.

It may be intoxicating, but is not a spirituous liquor, the latter being a product of distillation. 30 Am J Rev ed. Intox L § 9.

Ale was in common use in Germany in the time of Tacitus. It was provided for royal banquets in England in the reign of Edward the Confessor. Nevin v Ladue NY 3 Denio 43, 44.

alea. A game of chance.

aleator. A gambler.

aleatoribus. See de aleatoribus.

[58]

aleatory. Uncertain; dependent on chance; involving risk or hazard.

aleatory contract. A contract, the performance of which depends on an uncertain event, such as a fire insurance contract. Losecco v Gregory, 108 La 648, 651, 32 So 985.

Although an agreement must be certain if it is to be enforceable as a contract, an agreement can be certain notwithstanding performance depends on an uncertain event, provided the contract is certain in respect of the assumption of the risk appertaining to such event. Moore v Johnston, 8 La Ann 488, 489.

aleatory sale. A sale the consummation of which rests upon an uncertainty.

ale conner. An ale taster, -an officer whose duty it was to see to the quality of the ale used within the leet.

aleger. To redress.

a lege suae dignitatis. From the law of his dignity. This was said by the Saxons to be the source of the king's power to pardon. See 4 Bl Comm 397.

aleier. Same as adlegiare.

alenage. Same as alnage.

aler. Same as aller.

ale-silver. A tax anciently imposed upon ale sellers in London.

ale-stake. Sign for a place where ale is sold.

aletaster. A conner or taster of ale.

aleu. Same as alleu. a Pevesque. See brief a l'evesque.

alfalfa weevil. See weevil.

alfet. A container for hot water used in the ordeal by water.

Alfred's Code. A code of laws compiled under Alfred the Great, about 877 A. D.

Alfred's Dome Book. The Liber Judicialis or Dome Book which was said to have been compiled by King Alfred. See I Bl Comm 65.

algarum maris. See ligan. algo. (Spanish.) Something owned; property.

algor. (French.) Medicine.

al huis d'esglise. At the church door. This was the customary place for the marriage ceremony.

alia. Other things.

See inter alia.

alia enormia. Other wrongs. A formal, general allegation usually at the end of a declaration or complaint in an action of trespass, under which circumstances of aggravation accompanying the act complained of may be proved, without further specification in the pleading, when such acts do not afford a substantial ground of action in themselves. They give character and quality to the act complained of, and show the degree of the injury, and could not be redressed at all if not alleged to be proved as incidents of the trespass. 22 Am J2d Damg § 278.

alia generis. Another kind.

alia juris. Under the authority of another, such as parent or guardian; not acting sui juris.

aliamenia. Ways for the accommodation of a tenant.

aliance. Same as alliance.

alias. Otherwise; also known as; at another time; as formerly.

Where, in an indictment or information, the name of the accused is given, followed by "alias" and another name, "alias" stands for "alias dictus," and indicates, not that the person referred to bears both names, but that he is called by one or the other, and hence the use of either one of said names identifies the accused as the person referred to. See State v Melson, 161 La 423, 426, 108 So 794.

alias dictus. Also called.

"The true name is that which precedes an alias dictus. An alias dictus, as one of the old cases says, is only reputation, and is not the truth." Reid v Lord (NY) 4 Johns 118.

alias execution. See alias writ of execution.

alias summons. A new summons issued in the same form and to serve the same purpose as one previously issued, and usually issued where the original summons has been returned, and hence has become functus officio, without having been served on any or all of the defendants. Hill v Morgan, 9 Idaho 718, 76 P 323.

alias warrant. A second warrant, for example, a second warrant for the collection of taxes or a distratint, issued after the first one has failed to produce.

alias writ. A writ issued to take the place of a similar writ which has been lost or returned or for some other reason has not taken effect or has become functus officio. See 3 Bl Comm 283.

alias writ of execution. A second writ of execution issued in the same cause, where a former writ of the same kind has been issued without effect or without complete effect in satisfying the judgment upon which the writ was issued. 30 Am J2d Exec § 84.

alibi. A rebuttal of evidence of the prosecution by evidence that the accused was elsewhere than at the alleged scene of the offense at the time of the offense. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 136.

alibi natus. Born in another place.

alien. Noun: A person born in another country of parents who are not citizens of the United States, and who has not been naturalized here, or, one who, having been a citizen of the United States, has expatriated himself. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 1. Verb: To transfer property to another. Same as alienate.

See deportation; immigrant.

alienable. Lawfully transferable.

alienage. The state or condition of an alien. It carries some disabilities (3 Am J2d Aliens §§ 11-35), but on the whole is not an unpleasant or uncomfortable status in the United States.

alien amy. An alien whose nation is at peace with our own. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 2.

Aliena negotia exacto officio geruntur. The business of another should be carried out with particular care.

alienare. To alienate.

aliena res. The property of another.

alienate. The voluntary transfer of property to another by bargain and sale, deed, will, gift, or other method effective to pass title. Butler v Fitzgerald, 43 Neb 192.

[59]

As used in statutes imposing liability for double the value of property of decedent alienated before granting of administration of letters testamentary, the term means wrongfully to transfer property of decedent to another, and that such alienation was a wrongful conversion of the property for which an action of trover was maintainable at common law. Anno: 29 ALR2d 256.

Another meaning of significance in the law is that of estranging or making unfriendly. See alienation of affections.

alienated. Conveyed so as to transfer title. Insane; mentally unbalanced. Having been made unfriendly.

alienatio. Alienation.

Alienatio licet prohibeatur, consensu tamen omnium in quorum favorem prohibita est, potest fieri. While alienation may be restrained, yet it may be made with the consent of all those in whose favor it was restrained. The maxim is one of the common law, and the principle of it is no less applicable in equity. See Seip's Estate, 1 Pa Dist 26.

alienation. An estrangement, as in alienation of affections; also a mental derangement. A transfer of property in such manner as to transfer title. Butler v Fitzgerald, 43 Neb 192.

Within the meaning of a statute requiring the concurrence of both spouses to an alienation of homestead property, a lease has been held to be an alienation. 26 Am J1st Home § 136. Such view is consistent with the view that a lease is a conveyance. See 32 Am J1st L & T §§ 3, 4, 817.

See inverse order of alienation; restraint on alienation; rule against suspension of power of alienation.

alienation clause. The condition, stated in a policy insuring against loss of property by fire, windstorm, etc., that the policy shall become void in case of the sale or conveyance of the property, or a change in interest or title to the insured property, without the consent of the insurer. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 825.

alienation in mortmain. See mortmain.

alienation of affections. The actionable wrong committed against a husband by one who wrongfully alienates the affections of his wife, depriving him of his conjugal right to her consortium, that is, her society, affections, and assistance.

In some American jurisdictions, under Married Women's Acts, a wife is given the same cause of action for alienation of affections that a husband had at common law for the wrong stated above. The action, whether by the husband or the wife, has been modified by statute in recent years, and in some jurisdictions, such as New York, the right of action has been abrogated. 27 Am J1st H & W §§ 519 et seq.

See criminal conversation.

alienation office. The public office in London where the fees called the primer fine and the post fine were collected from those who employed the procedure of fine and recovery to effect transfers of land titles.

Alienatio rei praefertur juri accrescendi. The law prefers the alienation of property to the accumulation thereof.

alien declarant. An alien resident of the United States who has declared his intention in the manner provided by law, of becoming a citizen of the United States. Terrace v Thompson, 263 US 197, 68 L Ed 255, 44 S Ct 15; 3 Am J2d Aliens § 147.

aliene. Same as alien.

alienee. One to whom title is transferred.

aliener. To alienate.

alien friend. A citizen or subject of a nation with which the United States is at peace. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 2.

alienigena. An alien.

alieni generis. Same as alia generis.

alieni juris. Same as alia juris.

alien immigrants. Aliens arriving in the United States from foreign countries, whether or not they had been previously domiciled in the United States and had temporarily gone abroad with the intention of returning here. Lapina v Williams, 232 US 78, 86, 58 L Ed 515, 517, 34 S Ct 196.

alienism. Alienage, that is the condition of being an alien; also, the field in which an alienist practices.

alienist. A doctor of medicine who has made mental diseases, those affecting the mind intellectually, and the moral or spiritual faculties, his special study and practice. State v Reidell, 14 Del (9 Houst) 470, 474, 14 A 550. A doctor of medicine qualified by reason of experience, knowledge, and previous opportunities to examine and give his opinion as to the mental condition of a person at a particular time. People v Norton, 138 Cal App 70, 31 P2d 809.

alien ne'. One born an alien.

alien nondeclarant. An alien resident of the United States who has not declared his intention of becoming a citizen, in the manner provided by law. Terrace v Thompson, 263 US 197, 68 L Ed 255, 44 S Ct 15.

alieno loco. Another place.

alienor. The grantor in a conveyance, one who alienates, that is, transfers ownership to another.

Alien Property Custodian. An officer, appointed pursuant to the Trading with the Enemy Act of 1917 and amendments thereto, to take custody, at the direction of the President of the United States, of the property, corporeal and incorporeal, of an enemy alien not licensed to retain control of his property. 56 Am J1st War § 85.

Alien Registration Act. A federal statute constituting a part of the comprehensive scheme for the regulation of aliens, requiring the registration and fingerprinting of all aliens in the country, those over 14 years of age on their own application and those under 14 years of age on the application of parent or guardian. 8 USC §§ 1301, 1302; 3 Am J2d Aliens § 112.

alien resident. A person who is a citizen of another country but residing in the United States.

See expatriate.

alien's duty. Imposts imposed on alien merchants in England.

alien seamen. Seamen who are aliens, whether serving on foreign or American ships. United States v

[60]

New York & Cuba S. S. Co. 269 US 304, 70 L Ed 281, 46 S Ct 114.

alienus. Belonging to another; belonging to another country, an alien.

alienus homo. Another's man, a slave.

alieu. Same as alleu.

alighting. The act of a passenger in leaving the conveyance of the carrier. 14 Am J2d Car § 982.

alighting from. A familiar clause in accident insurance policies extending coverage to injuries sustained in accidents occurring in and around motor vehicles. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1247.

alignment. An arrangement in a line; technically, a plan for a highway or railroad.

alii. Others; other persons.

See et alii.

alii e contra. See et alii e contra.

aliment. (French and Scottish law.) Support, supply of necessaries; allowance for support. To support.

alimenta. Items of support and maintenance.

alimented. Having obtained a decree or order for one's support, as in the case of a divorced woman. Edgerton v Edgerton, 12 Mont 122, 29 P 966.

alimentum. Support; alimony.

alimony. An allowance for the support and maintenance of one's spouse, or divorced spouse, made as a substitute for marital support. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 514.

A suit for support of the complaining spouse is one for alimony even though an absolute divorce is not sought in the action. 27 Am J1st H & W §§ 401-403.

Although in the usual sense of the term, alimony does not include support of children, there are instances in which a statutory reference to "alimony" has been held to include the support of a child. 17A Am J Rev ed Div & S § 851. An allowance of $150 for the support of a wife and two children is alimony payable to the wife and is not to be construed as an award of $50 to her and $50 to each of the children. Miller v Miller, 74 App DC 216, 122 F2d 209.

By statute and in some jurisdictions as a matter of equity, alimony is awarded the wife as a successful plaintiff in an action for the annulment of a marriage. 4 Am J2d Annul § 102. In an annulment action, the allowance is of such a sum of money in gross or in instalments as will fairly reasonably compensate a divorced wife for the loss of her support by annulment of the marriage contract. Anno: 20 ALR2d 1412.

A husband may be entitled to alimony in some jurisdictions, but it is only by force of a statute which clearly provides for an allowance to the husband, that he is entitled to an award. 17 Am J Rev ed Div & S § 574.

See permanent alimony; suit money; temporary alimony.

alimony ad interim. Same as temporary alimony. alimony in general. An award of alimony to be satisfied by periodic payments of a definite sum for the indefinite future. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 614.

alimony in gross. An award of alimony in one definite sum, whether payable in instalments or in one payment. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 614.

alimony pendente lite. See temporary alimony.

A l' impossible nul n'est tenu. No one is bound to perform that which is impossible.

alinement. Same as alignment.

alio. Another form of the Latin alius, meaning another, other.

alio intuitu. From another point of view.

alio loco. In another place.

alios. Others.

See inter alios.

alios acta. Acts or transactions of others.

See inter alios acta.

aliqua liter. In any way.

aliquid. Something; somewhat.

aliquid conceditur. Something conceded.

aliquid possessionis et nihil juris. Somewhat of possession, but nothing of right.

aliquis. Someone; anyone.

Aliquis non potest esse judex in propria causa. One cannot be a judge in his own cause.

aliquot. Deriving from the Latin for several, and meaning in modern usage a several part of a larger number, that is, a number which divides a larger number evenly.

alis. An older Latin form of alius.

aliter. Otherwise.

aliud. The Latin neuter of alius; another thing.

Aliud est possidere, aliud esse in possessione. To possess is one thing, to be in possession another.

Aliud est tacere, aliud celare. It is one thing to keep silent, another to conceal. Stewart v Wyoming Cattle Ranch Co. 128 US 383, 32 L Ed 439, 9 S Ct 101.

Aliud est vendere, aliud vendenti consentire. It is one thing to sell and another to consent to selling or to agree to sell.

aliud examen. Another method of trial.

aliunde. From another place or source; independent of.

See evidence aliunde; extrinsic evidence.

aliunde rule. The rule that a foundation must be laid by testimony aliunde of the misconduct of a juror or jurors before testimony of the jurors themselves will be received to impeach the verdict. 53 Am J1st Trial § 1105.

alius. Another; another person; different.

alive. Having life; existing as a living person.

Although it is ordinarily said that life begins at birth, once a child is born, the law may look back to the time that he was in the mother's womb for the purpose of determining his rights. See in utero matris.

[61]

See words and phrases beginning "live."

all. Sometimes said, where it appears in a statute, to be the most comprehensive word in the language, but said in other cases involving the construction of a statute to be a general, rather than a universal term, to be understood in one sense or another according to the demands of sound reason. 50 Am J1st Stat § 286.

all aboard. A direction to prospective passengers to board a train. Anno: 31 ALR2d 963.

all actions not otherwise provided for. A common provision in limitation statutes which is usually considered to be comprehensive of every form of action, whether real or personal, but held in some jurisdictions not to include special proceedings, probate proceedings, or proceedings for the revocation of licenses. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 70.

all-addendum. See addendum circle.

all and singular. Each one and all; with no exception.

all cases at law. For the purposes of a guaranty of right to a jury trial, this term means actions and proceedings peculiarly at law, involving predominantly rights and remedies peculiarly legal in character, as distinguished from suits in equity, divorce cases, probate proceedings, admiralty cases, trials by court-martial, special and summary proceedings, whether in regular or special courts, and minor cases in minor courts. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 21.

all costs. Including, where the term appears as a condition of an appeal bond, both costs on the appeal and costs in the trial court. 5 Am J2d A & E § 1056.

all damages. The provision in an appeal bond purporting to cover "all damages caused by wrongfully suing out said injunction," the appeal being from an order dissolving an injunction, does not bind the surety for damages sustained in consequence of the injunction being kept in force by the appeal. 5 Am J2d A & E § 1058.

allegans. Alleging.

Allegans contraria non est audiendus. Contradictory statements will not be listened to. Galbraith v Tracy, 153 111 54, 38 NE 937.

allegare. To allege; to assert.

Allegari non debuit quod probatum non relevat. Matters which are not relevant, if proved, ought not to be alleged.

allegata. Pleaded matters.

allegata et probata. Matters alleged and matters proved; pleadings and proof.

allegatio contra interpretationem verborum. An allegation against the meaning of the words.

allegation. An assertion; a statement of fact in a pleading; a statement of what one can prove; the positive assertion of a fact. Merrill v Pepperdine, 9 Ind App 416, 36 NE 921.

The technical name for a pleading in an ecclesiastical court.

allegation of faculties. A wife's statement in a divorce case in ecclesiastical court in which the estate of the husband is set forth as a basis for the allowance of alimony. Lovett v Lovett, 11 Ala 763, 771.

allegations upon information and belief. Allegations in an affidavit in the form of statements to the best of the affiant's information and belief, not as of a certainty. 3 Am J2d Affi § 22.

allegation. That which is alleged.

allege. To make an allegation; to state, recite, or charge; to plead.

alleged. Charged; claimed; described; asserted; set forth.

allegiance. The obligation of fidelity and obedience which the individual owes to the government under which he lives, or to his sovereign in return for the protection he receives. 30 Am Jur Internat L § 18.

See oath of allegiance.

allegiare. To defend one's own cause; to justify one's own conduct and position by due course of law.

alleging diminution. The designation on appeal of a diminution or lack of completeness in the record. Hooper v Royster, 15 Va (1 Munf) 119, 130.

alleguer. To plead.

all elections. A phrase in a constitution or statute, sometimes referring only to elections at which officers are to be elected, at other times to elections at which officers are to be elected or at which propositions, questions, or amendments to the constitution are to be submitted. 25 Am J2d Elect § 2.

Allen charge. The charge in an instruction approved in Allen v United States, 164 US 492, 41 L Ed 528, 17 S Ct 154, that the jurors should examine the questions submitted with candor and with a proper regard and deference to the opinions of each other.

Allen v. Flood. A celebrated English case decided in 1898, and frequently cited as laying down the rule that the malicious exercise of a definite legal right is not actionable although it results in damage to another person. [1898] A. C. 1.

aller. (French.) To go.

aller a dieu. A term of dismissal.

aller a large. To go at large.

aller al eau. Let him go to the water.

See hot-water ordeal.

allergy. Sensitivity of a person in an usually high degree to certain foods, medicines, or particular elements thereof, pollens, or other minute particles carried by the air, reacting with disagreeable, even disastrous consequences.

aller sans jour. To go without day; to adjourn without day. See adjournment sine die.

alleu. An allodial estate.

all events test. The test for determining the year in which an item of deduction for income tax purposes accrues, under which a tax is held to accrue when all events have occurred which fix the amount of the tax and determines the liability of the taxpayer to pay it. United States v Consolidated Edison Co. 366 US 380, 6 L Ed 2d 356, 81 S Ct 1326.

alleviare. To redeem by the payment of a fine.

alley. A narrow way in a town or city for the convenience of the owner of property abutting thereon and of the persons who visit him. 25 Am J1st High § 8. At times, a highway. Chicago Motor Coach Co. v Chicago, 337 Ill 200, 169 NE 22, 66 ALR 834. At other times, a private way.

See bowling alley; private alley.

alleynour. Same as eloigner.

alleyway. Same as alley.

all faults. Disclaimer of warranty by making sale with "all faults."

all fours. See on all fours.

alliance. A banding together; a confederacy; an association between nations, such as The Triple Entente and the Triple Alliance, both being between European nations, which existed prior to World War 1.

Alliances between families are created by intermarriages.

allies. Nations engaged on the same side in a war. Persons united in the pursuit of a purpose or undertaking.

allieu. Same as alleu.

aligner. Same as alloigner.

all inheritance taxes. Including succession and legacy taxes, as well as inheritance taxes in the narrow sense, where the term appears in a direction in a will for payment of taxes. Anno: 37 ALR2d 85.

allision. The running of one vessel into another vessel which is not under way; technically, to be distinguished from a collision between vessels, both of which are under way.

all matters in difference. Appearing in an arbitration agreement, the phrase refers to nothing beyond matters in relation to the subject referred for arbitration. Hemingway v Stansell, 106 US 399, 27 L Ed 245, 1 S Ct 473.

all my money. A comprehensive term standing alone, which may be tempered where it appears in a will by other testamentary language.

So the results upon the question whether it 'includes bank deposits, where it appears in a will, are conflicting. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1354.

See ally.

all my property. A very comprehensive term in a will which is construed in the absence of contrary context to include after-acquired property. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1213.

A bequest in such a form is general rather than specific. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1409.

all my worldly goods. A very comprehensive term of bequest which has been construed at times to include real property. Farish v Cook, 78 Mo 212.

alloc. An abbreviation of allocatur.

allocable. Distributable. In analyzing accounts, the breaking down of a lump sum charged or credited to one account into several parts to be charged or credited to other accounts. Fleming v Commissioner (CA5) 121 F2d 7.

allocare. To allow.

allocate. To allow an appropriate proportion; to apportion; to assign; to allot.

allocatio. An allocation.

allocation. An allowance upon an account in the English exchequer; in more familiar modern usage, an allotment.

allocacione facienda. A writ by which an accountant secured an allowance due him from the English exchequer.

allocato comitatu. An old writ used in outlawry proceedings.

allocatur. Let it be allowed, -an order of a court or judge, allowing or granting something; as, an allocatur allowing a writ of certiorari. State v Vanderveer, 7 NJL 38.

allocatur exigent. A writ issued in the process of outlawry.

allocution. The traditional formal inquiry under the common law, which exists by force of statute in American jurisdictions with some variations, to be directed by the court to one convicted of a felony before sentence: -whether the one convicted has anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced against him. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 530. The reason given for the importance attached to this form in England is, that the appellate court may see that the prisoner had an opportunity of moving in arrest, or of pleading a pardon. State v Ball, 27 Mo 324, 326.

alod. Same as allodium.

alodia. Free lands, that is, lands not held in subordination to a feudal lord.

allodial. The tenure of an estate by an owner in fee simple under the state as sovereign, as opposed to feudal tenure. The dominion is absolute and direct, subject only to escheat in the event of failure of successors in ownership. Allodial tenure is characteristic of the ownership of land in the United States. 28 Am J2d Est § 4.

allodium. An allodial estate; an estate not held under a superior.

allograph. A signature or other writing made for one person by another person; contrasting with autograph.

allogn. Same as eloigne.

allonge. A paper attached to a bill or note, or so firmly affixed, as to be a part thereof, upon which an indorsement of the instrument is written. 11 Am J2d B & N § 353.

allopathic practice. The old school and still the most prominent branch of the practice of medicine. The term distinguishes physicians of this school from homeopaths, osteopaths, eclectic, and chiropractors. Bradbury v Bardin, 34 Conn 452; 41 Am Jur Phys & S § 85.

allot. To make an allotment.

all other cases not expressly provided for. A common provision in limitation statutes which is usually deemed comprehensive of every action or proceeding in a court of justice wherein a contested question may arise, but sometimes limited to actions as distinguished from special proceedings. 34 AmJ1st Lim Ac § 70.

all others not otherwise herein provided for. Not otherwise provided for in the statute of which the words are a part. 21 Am J2d Cost D § 38.

allotment. A division; a distribution.

See Indian allotments.

allotment certificate. A certificate issued to an applicant for shares in a corporation stating the number of shares allotted to him and the due dates and amounts of payments required of him.

[63]

allotment note. A written order drawn by a seaman upon his employer, accepted by the latter, and directing the payment of the seaman's wages in sums, to persons, and at times, specified in the order.

allotment of goods. The assignment by lot of the share of a ship's cargo which each purchaser is to buy.

allotment system. That system or practice under which lands are by treaty allotted to Indian tribes for use as hunting grounds and other purposes. The word allotted is not to be construed or understood in the sense of being parcelled out to the Indians as a favor, but rather in the sense of acknowledging their right to have the lands thus set out to them. Worcester v State of Georgia (US) 6 Pet 582, 8 L Ed 508.

allotment ticket. Same as allotment note.

allottee. One to whom an allotment is made.

allouer. (French law.) To allow; to grant.

allow. To approve, as to allow a cost bill or claim; to permit or acquiesce in; as to allow animals to run at large. 4 Am J2d Am § 116.

The words "allowed," "acquiesced," and "permitted" imply no inducement or enticement, and should be construed as creating a license. See Karns v Trostel, 44 Ohio App 488, 186 NE 405.

allowance. A word of broad and various meanings, ranging from the amount ordered paid to a successful litigant in addition to the stated costs, because of extraordinary difficulty in the litigation, to the amount paid by a parent to a child per week as an encouragement to good conduct and the promotion of thrift in the child. Something granted, as in the rendition of judgment. The recognition of a deduction or an exemption in the assessment of a tax. Virginia Hotel Corp. v Helvering, 319 US 523, 87 L Ed 1561, 63 S Ct 1260, 152 ALR 871.

As used typically with respect to the armed forces and veterans, the word refers to benefits of one kind or another in addition to regular pay, such as subsistence, quarters, uniforms, and pensions. Walker v United States, 86 App DC 93, 180 F2d 194, 16 ALR2d 1328.

allowance of alimony. See alimony; temporary alimony. allowance of owelty. See owelty.

allowance pendente lite. An order for payment or distribution made prior to the termination of litigation, such as an order for temporary alimony or an order for payment of the income from the sum constituting the res in the proceeding, or even a division of a part of the res itself, where it is apparent that enforcement of the judgment or order ultimately rendered will not be jeopardized by such an allowance.

allowance to member of armed forces. A benefit of one kind or another in addition to regular pay, such as subsistence, quarters, uniforms, and pensions. Waller v United States, 86 App DC 93, 180 F2d 194, 16 ALR2d 1328.

It is sometimes in the nature of compensation, sometimes akin to reimbursement, but may at other times be entirely unearned; it is affirmative in nature and has no similarity to a statutory exemption. Waller v United States, supra.

allowance to widow. See widow's allowance.

allowed by law. See fixed by law.

alloy. An inferior or cheaper metal mixed with another in the coinage of money.

alloynour. Same as eloigner.

all prior indorsements guaranteed. A phrase customarily added to the indorsement of the collecting bank.

It is questionable whether the phrase adds anything to the liability of the bank as an indorser. Some authorities limit its meaning to the fact that the payee named actually indorsed the instrument. 11 Am J2d B & N §§ 616, 624.

all property of mortgagor. A term used in defining the property covered by a chattel mortgage, which is sufficient as a description, if accompanied by a designation of the location of the property. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 56.

all-pul mill. A steel rolling mill where the strip is pulled through the rolls and where if the pulling stopped, the power exerted on the strip by the rolls alone would not be sufficient to move the strip through. Cold Metal Process Co. v McLouth Steel Corporation (D. C. Mich.) 41 F Supp 487.

all right, title, and interest. Words in a conveyance operative to express whatever title the grantor has, whether an entirety of ownership or an undivided interest. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 289.

"All the right, title, and interest" of a grantor pass under a deed granting the same, even though the phrase is followed by the expression -the same being one half undivided interest in and to the described property," because the words last quoted do not limit the extent of the previous term of conveyance or except out any interest conveyed by such previous term. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 197.

An assignment of patent rights in such terms of designation of the subject matter does not, in the absence of an express agreement or of special circumstances from which a warranty may be implied, carry with it a warranty of validity of the patent. 40 Am J1st Pat § 133.

A court may not read exceptions into a law referring to "all rights." Wailes v Curators of Cent. College, 363 Mo 932, 254 SW2d 645, 37 ALR2d 326.

All Saints Day. November 1st, when an annual festival honoring all the saints is celebrated.

all taxes. An expression comprehensive in form, but to be construed in connection with the context in which it appears. Anno: 37 ALR2d 88 et seq.

An exemption from "all taxation," has been held inapplicable to an inheritance, succession, or estate tax. Anno: 47 ALR2d 1003-1005.

all that remains. Such term in a residuary bequest of the subject matter of the bequest is presumptive of an intention of the testator that lapsed legacies and devises shall pass under the residuary bequest. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1449.

all the green, pine timber. A sufficient description of the timber, in a deed of growing timber, where the location upon land is designated. 34 Am J1st Logs § 29.

all the members. A provision of the constitution of a religious society that its affairs shall be managed by the whole congregation, that is, "all the members," does not require the assent of each member to action taken; those members who do not attend a meeting or, if attending, do not vote, must be understood to be willing to be bound by the action taken by the members who do attend and vote. 45 Am J1st Reli Soc § 22.

[64]

all the real estate. An apt descriptive phrase in a deed where connected with the grantor, e.g. "all the real estate of the grantor in" etc. Anno: 55 ALR 162.

all the rest, residue, and remainder. See residuary clause.

all the timber and growth of timber. A sufficient description of the timber, in a deed of growing timber, where location upon the land is specified. 34 Am J1st Logs § 29.

all title and interest. See all right, title, and interest.

allure. See inveigle.

allurement. An enticement; an attraction which, as in the case of an attractive nuisance, may constitute in law an implied invitation to a child to enter upon the premises. See 38 Am J1st Negl § 144.

allusion. A passing, casual, slight or incidental reference; a hint; a suggestion; an insinuation. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v Vanordstrand, 67 Kan 386, 73 P 113.

alluvio. Alluvion.

alluvio maris. Alluvion from the sea.

alluvion. The solid material which is added to land by accretion, that is, by the gradual deposit of such material by water.

Accretion denotes the gradual process which makes the deposit, while alluvion is the term applied to the deposit itself. 56 Am J1st Wat § 476. That which is added to a man's land by alluvion, belongs to him. St. Louis, 1. M. & S. Ry. Co. v Ramsey, 53 Ark 314, 56 Am J1st Wat § 477. Conversely, that which is washed or worn away by the gradual process of alluvion is lost to the owner of the washed or worn parcel or tract. 56 Am J1st Wat § 477.

ally. Verb: To associate with another person for a common purpose; to make a treaty with another nation calling for joinder in an enterprise or in defense against a common enemy. Noun: A person with whom one is associated for a common purpose; a nation with which another nation has by compact or treaty agreed to act. A nation which has joined with the United States in waging a war against another nation or nations.

ally of enemy. As it appears in the Trading with the Enemy Act, the term means nonresidents of the United States who are subjects of an enemy country. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 190.

aim. Old English for soul, apparently a contraction of the Latin anima.
See alms.

almanac. A compilation of useful data, including a calendar of days, months, and years, astronomical events, weather predictions, geographical, political, governmental, and social facts, and a variety of other useful information. The term is also used for the appendix to the common service book of a church in which the days upon which Sundays or feast days fall are noted in a convenient and readable form.

alme. Same as aim.

almesfeoh. See Peter's pence.

almner. Same as almoner.

almoign. Alms.

almoigne. Same as almoign.

almoin. Same as almoign.

almoin tenure. Same as frankalmoigne.

almoner. An officer charged with the duty of distributing alms.
See overseers of the power.

almost wholly of. A tariff statute term meaning that the essential character of the article is imparted by the named material, notwithstanding significant quantities of other material may be present. 21 Am J2d Cust, D etc. § 33.

alms. Donations to relieve the poor.
See aim.

alms fee. Same as Peter's pence.

almshouse. A house provided by a city, town, or county for the reception and support of the poor; a house appropriated for the poor. Association for Colored Orphans v City of New York, 104 NY 581, 12 NE 279, 281.

See county farm.

alnage. Ell-measure; a duty on woolen cloth.

alnager. An officer who measured woolen cloth and collected the duties thereon.

alnetum. An alder grove.

aloarius. The holder of an allodium.

alod. Same as allodium.

alodarius. Same as aloarius.

alode. Same as allodium.

alodes. Same as allodium.

alodial. Same as allodium.

alodiarius. Same as aloarius.

alodium. Same as allodium.

alodum. Same as allodium.

alone. By one's self; sole.

along a highway. A phrase of frequent appearance in descriptions of real estate.

In the absence of other words or language in a conveyance which indicate a contrary intent, a description of the subject matter of the deed as "along" a highway is sufficient to fix the boundary at the center line of the highway. 12 Am J2d Bound § 51.

alongside. A nautical term, common in charter-parties, meaning that the charterer is to bring the cargo as near the ship as practicable.

along the bank. See along the shore.

along the shore. A designation in the description of a boundary line which usually has the effect of excluding the stream itself from the tract bounded. 12 Am J2d Bound § 26.

A. L. P. Abbreviation of American Labor Party.

ALR. Abbreviation of American Law Reports.

ALR2d. Abbreviation of American Law Reports, Second Series.

See American Law Reports.

ALR3d. Abbreviation of American Law Reports, Third Series.

See American Law Reports.

already. By or before a time stated or implied. Mes sick v Powell, 314 Ky 805, 236 SW2d 897, 27 ALR2d 1341.

[65]

als. An abbreviation of alius, another, and alios, others.

See et als.

also. In addition; this too.

alt. An abbreviation of alter.

alta proditio. High treason.

altar. A raised platform or table used in religious services, especially in the portrayal of sacraments.

altarage. The profits of a priest.

altaragium. Same as altarage.

altar boy. A boy who assists the priest in a church service, especially at mass.

See acolyte.

alta via. A highway.

alta via regia. The king's highway.

alta via regina. The queen's highway.

aftenheim. The word is a German one, and means a home for old people. German Pioneer Verein v Meyer, 70 NJ Eq 192, 193, 63 A 835.

alter. Noun: Other; another; the other party. Verb: To change in some respect. Sessions v State 115 Ga 18, 20, 41 SE 259. To make different, as in changing an assessment. Adams v Shelbyville, 154 Ind 467, 57 NE 114.

The word, when applied to numbers, may well include "to increase," or "to diminish," for an increase or a diminution is certainly a change. See People v Sassovich, 29 Cal 480.

See alteration.

alteram partem. See audi alteram partem. altera parte. See ex altera parte.

alteration. A change of a thing from one form or state to another—that is, making a thing different from what it was, but without destroying its identity. 4 Am J2d Alt of Inst § 1.

The term "alterations" in a lease, which expressly prohibits alterations to be made by the tenant in the buildings demised, means a substantial change; boring a small hole in a wall to permit the passage of electrical wires is not a change within the meaning of the prohibition. 32 Am J1st L & T § 208.

alteration of brand. Changing, defacing, or obliterating the brand on an animal, a criminal offense in states in the large cattle-raising areas of the country. 4 Am J2d Ani § 8.

The statutory offense of changing the brand or mark on an animal to a different brand or mark from what it was before. It is held that altering is to be distinguished from "defacing," which is the obliteration of the mark or brand, and that putting an additional brand to the one already on the animal is an alteration, although the latter brand may not interfere with or change the figure of the first one. Linney v State, 6 Tex 1.

alteration of contract. A modification of the terms of a contract with the assent of both parties, in effect a new contract to be supported by a good consideration, except as consideration is made unnecessary by the circumstances of the case. 17 Am J2d Cont § 465.

To alter or amend a contract is to change it as between the original parties and such others only, as have been permitted, by the mutual consent of the parties, to come into the enjoyment of its benefits and privileges; not to compel one of the parties to operate in conjunction with others, and share with them the privileges and benefits of the contract. Sage v Dillard, 54 Ky (15 B Mon) 340, 360.

alteration of highway. Widening or narrowing the way or effecting a change of location or route. 25 Am J1st High §§ 106, 107. To be distinguished from a discontinuance whereby a highway is abolished altogether. 25 Am J1st High § 127.

alteration of instrument. A change in the sense or language of the instrument effected by an intentional act performed on the instrument by a party entitled to the instrument.

In the legal sense of the term "alteration of instrument" it does not include an act performed on the instrument by a stranger thereof. 4 Am J2d Alt of Inst § 1.

In order to constitute a forgery, an alteration must be such as to make the instrument speak a language different in legal effect from that which it originally spoke, or which carries with it some change in the rights, interest, or obligations of the parties to the writing. 23 Am J2d 683 Forg § 16.

As to what constitutes an alteration of a will, see Anne: 34 ALR2d 626.

See erasure; obliteration; spoilation.

altercation. A civil law term for trial by examination of witnesses; in English, a controversy, dispute, or quarrel waged in anger.

alter ego. Literally, the other I, the other self.

For example, during the voyage of a ship, the shipmaster is said to be the alter ego of his principal. See 47 L Ed 773.

alter ego doctrine. Disregarding the corporate entity in furtherance of the ends of justice and treating the corporation and the individual or individuals owning all the stock and assets of the corporation as identical. 18 Am J2d Corp § 14.

alterfoits. Same as autrefois.

alter-idem. Another the same; a counterpart.

altering. See alteration.

alternat. Rotation, as of the signatures of envoys to copies of a treaty.

alternate. A person appointed to substitute for another in a political convention. State v Young, 160 Mo 320, 323, 60 SW 1086.

alternate juror. An extra trial juror selected to attend the trial and to take the place of any one of the jury in case of the latter's illness or other disability during the trial. 31 Am J1st Jury § 128.

alternate valuation method. The valuation of the gross estate of a decedent for estate tax purposes as of a date other than that of his death, usually one year after the date of his death. IRC § 2032(c).

alternatim. Interchangeably.

alternating custody. A division of the custody of a child between divorced parents. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 799.

alternative. The choice of one of two things, courses, or propositions which is excluded by the choice of the other. Malone v Metes, (Fla) 109 So 677, 693.

alternative allegations. See disjunctive allegations.

[66]

alternative contract. A contract which by its terms may be performed by doing either of several acts at the election of the party from whom performance is due. Crane v Peer, 43 NJ Eq 553, 563, 4 A 72, 17 Am J2d Contr § 363.

alternative damages. Contractual provision permitting choice as between stipulated damages and an assessment. 22 Am J2d Damg § 233.

alternative judgment. A judgment which gives an election to the party against whom rendered in respect of the obligation imposed upon and to be satisfied by him. Such a judgment is usually deemed void for want of certainty in determination of rights of the parties. 30A Am J1st Judgm § 57. A true and valid alternative judgment is provided by statutes for replevin actions, the provision being for a judgment in the alternative for the possession of the property or the value thereof. 46 Am J1st Replev § 122.

alternative owners. See alternative payees; alternative remainders.

alternative payees. Two or more persons designated in the alternative as payees of a bill of exchange, a promissory note, or United States Savings Bond. 11 Am J2d B & N § 117.

alternative punishment. Fine or imprisonment, not both. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 536.

See alternative sentence.

alternative relief. See prayer for alternative relief.

alternative remainders. A limitation of more than one estate in remainder after a single precedent estate but under such terms that one takes effect only as the other one does not. 28 Am J2d Est § 216.

alternative remedy. A choice of remedy left open by statute where a new remedy is created by statute without supplanting a remedy previously existing.

alternative sentence. A sentence giving the defendant a choice, such as one in a traffic case giving an option to purchase a liability policy or to have license suspended; such a sentence is void for uncertainty. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 541.

See indeterminate sentence.

alternative will. One of two different wills which on the happening of a contingency provided by the testator, is the one which is to come into force as his last will and testament. 57 Am J1st Wills, § 671.

alternative writ. See alternative writ of mandamus; praecipe.

alternative writ of mandamus. A writ, issued by the court in the beginning of a mandamus proceeding under older practice, which corresponds to a common-law declaration or to a complaint or petition in an ordinary action and usually deemed to be the first pleading in the cause.

In it all the material facts on which the relator relies must be distinctly set forth, so that they may be admitted or traversed, and by the writ the defendant is called on to perform the particular act sought to be enforced, or, by a return, to deny the facts alleged therein, or to state other matters sufficient to defeat the relator's application. 35 Am J1st Mand § 348.

The more modern practice makes use of an order to show cause, permitting this to be in the alternative of performing the act sought to be commanded or showing cause why it should not be commanded. 35 Am J1st Mand § 347.

alternative writ of quo warranto. A writ used in the commencement of an action in quo warranto under the older practice, one of little use in the modern practice. 44 Am J1st Quo Warranto § 70.

alternis vicibus. Alternately.

alterum non laedere. Not to injure another.

alteruter. One of two.

alteruter et quilibet. Each and every.

altius non tollendi. (Civil law.) An easement restraining the height of one's buildings.

altius tollendi. (Civil law.) An easement by which the height of one's buildings was unlimited.

alto et basso. High and low; the whole matter.

See de alto et basso.

altum mare. The high sea.

altus. High; deep.

aluminum. A pliable metal which resists corrosion. As a commercial article, aluminum made from an ore called bauxite is little more than seventy-five years (in 1966) of age in the United States. There are also other ores in the United States from which aluminum can be made. Alunite which exists in Utah is one of them. It is said to exist elsewhere in this country. Leucite is another ore from which aluminum can be made. By a more expensive process experts say that aluminum can be made of common clay. United States v Aluminum Co. of America (DC NY) 44 F. Supp. 97.

alumna. A female graduate of a school, college, or other institution of learning.

alumnus. A male graduate of a school, college, or other institution of learning.

alunite. See aluminum.

a luy et a ses heires a tous jours. To him and to his heirs forever.

alveus. The bed of a stream or river.

alveus derelictus. (Roman law.) The bed of a stream which has dried up. The owners of the adjacent lands on such a stream divided the old bed of the stream, as in the case of a newly arisen island. See § 274 Dropsie's Mackeldey's Roman Law.

alyener. Same as alloigner.

a. m. An abbreviation of "ante meridiem," before noon.

a majori ad minus. From the greater to the less. See argumentum a majori ad minus.

amalgamation. See consolidation.

Amalphitan Code. A compilation of marine laws of countries surrounding the Mediterranean Sea, made in the eleventh century, A. D.

a manendo. From remaining.

amanuensis. One who copies a written document; one who writes a document from dictation; one who signs the name of another person who is present in the same room, at the direction of the latter. White Eagle Laundry Co. v Slowek, 296 111 240, 129 NE 753.

[67]

ambactus. A vassal; a client.

ambages. Evasions.

ambassador. An envoy; a diplomatic representative of the highest rank.

The words "ambassadors and other public ministers" describe a class existing by the law of nations, and apply to diplomatic agents, whether accredited by the United States to a foreign power or by a foreign power to the United States, and the words are so used in section 2 of art. 11 and in section 2 of art. III of the United States Constitution. These agents may be called ambassadors, envoys, ministers, commissioners, charges d'affaires, agents, or otherwise, but they possess in substance the same functions, rights and privileges as agents of their respective governments for the transaction of its diplomatic business abroad. Their designations are chiefly significant in the relation of rank, precedence or dignity. See Ex parte Baiz, 135 US 403, 34 L Ed 222, 10 S Ct 854.

amber. An old English measure equal to four bushels. A fossil resin substance which is easily polished.

ambidexter. An attorney who has received compensation from both sides; a bribed juror.

ambiguitas. Ambiguity.

Ambiguitas contra stipulatorem est. An ambiguity 'is resolved against the stipulator.

ambiguitas latens. A latent ambiguity.

ambiguitas patens. A patent ambiguity.

ambiguity. Doubtfulness or uncertainty, especially in the meaning of language arising from its admitting of more than one meaning; duplicity in meaning. Kraney v Halsey, 82 Cal 209, 22 P 1137.

A word or phrase is "ambiguous" within the meaning of the parol evidence rule only when it is of uncertain meaning and may be fairly understood in more ways than one. 30 Am J2d Ev § 1069.

See latent ambiguity; patent ambiguity.

ambiguity on the factum. An ambiguity, not upon the construction, as whether a particular clause shall have a particular effect, but an ambiguity as to the foundation of the instrument, or a particular part of it, for example, whether a testator meant a particular clause to be part of the instrument, or whether it was introduced with his knowledge, or, again, whether a codicil was meant to republish a former or a subsequent will, or whether the residuary clause, or any other passage, was accidentally omitted. 57 Am J1st Wills § 873.

ambiguus. Ambiguous.

ambit. An enclosing line or limit; a boundary line.

ambitus. A going around; an illegal canvassing for office; bribery. In the Roman law, the word signified the practice of trading in government offices.

amblotic. An abortifacient; something used to produce an abortion.

ambodexter. Same as ambidexter.

ambulance chaser. A derogatory term applied to an attorney at law who solicits business, particularly accident cases. 7 Am J2d Attys § 42, ambulatoria. Ambulatory; revocable.

ambulatoria est voluntas defuncti usque ad vitae sopremum exitum. A will is revocable until the last moment.

ambulatory. Mutable; capable of alteration; not fixed.

A will, being ambulatory, confers no right at the time of its execution, and nothing vests thereunder during the life of the testator. Until the death of the testator it is revocable. 57 Am J1st Wills § 15.

ambulatory jurisdiction. A jurisdiction which is transitory, having no fixed situs. State v Carter, 27 NJL 499.

ambush. Noun: 1st, the act of attacking an enemy unexpectedly from a concealed station; 2nd, a concealed station, where troops or enemies lie in wait to attack by surprise; an ambushade; 3rd, troops posted in a concealed place for attacking by surprise. Verb: To lie in wait; to surprise; to place in ambush. Darneal v State, 14 Okla Crim 540, 1 ALR 638, 641, 174 F 290.

Am. Dec. An abbreviation of American Decisions.

ameasurement. Same as admeasurement.

ameliorating waste. See meliorating waste.

ameliorations. Betterments; improvements.

amenable. Obedient; responsible; answerable; liable to be called to account. Miller v Commonwealth, 62 Ky (I Duv) 14, 17.
See obedient.

amend. To improve; to make better by change or modification. Sessions v State, 115 Ga 18, 20, 41 SE 259.

amendable. That which is not so defective that the law will not permit it to be amended.

amendable process. Process which is defective but amendable; voidable rather than void, that is, process which, although defective, will support a judgment, once the defect is remedied. 42 Am J1st Proc § 20.

amendatory statute. One which amends an existing statute; not to be confused with a statute which repeals an existing statute.
See amendment of statute.

amended pleading. See amendment of pleading.

amended statute. See amendment of statute.

amende honorable. An apology; also disgrace or infamy imposed by way of punishment, such as appearing in public with hair sprinkled with ashes.

amender. To amend.

amendment. A correction or revision of a writing to correct errors or better to state its intended purpose.
See modification.

amendment as of course. An amendment of a pleading made within such time, and in such compliance with conditions imposed by statute or rule of court, that leave of court is unnecessary. 41 Am J1st PI § 289.

amendment by compulsion. An amendment of a pleading compelled by the court where the original pleading is so framed as to prejudice, embarrass, or delay the trial of the action. 41 Am J1st PI § 290.

[68]

amendment of constitution. A process of proposing, passing, and ratifying amendments to the United States Constitution or a state constitution.

amendment of income tax return. Filling omissions and correcting inaccuracies in a return which evinces an honest and genuine endeavor to satisfy the law. Zellerback Paper Co. v Helvering, 293 US 172, 79 L Ed 264, 55 S Ct 127.

amendment of judgment. See modification of judgment.

amendment of pleading. Correcting errors and omissions in a pleading, changing and supplying allegations, so that the case, so far as possible, may be determined on its real facts. 41 Am J1st PI § 288.

See amendment as of course; amendment by compulsion; amendment on court's own motion; amendment to conform to proofs; departure in amended pleading.

amendment of statute. An alteration or change in an existing statute to make it more complete or perfect, or to fit it better to accomplish the object or purpose for which it was enacted, without disturbing the general framework of the statute. 50 Am J1st Stat § 3. The process of proposing and enacting a statute which effects a change or alteration of a prior act, and, if need be, the obtaining of a successful test of the change or alteration upon submission to the people through referendum.

A constitutional provision, that no bill shall be so altered or amended on its passage through either house as to change its original purpose, prohibits only changes during its passage through the legislature, and does not refer to earlier or later statutes. Anno: 158 ALR 423.

amendment on court's own motion. An amendment of a pleading permitted or required by the court without application made therefor. 41 Am J1st PI § 290.

amendment to conform to proof. An amendment of a pleading permitted where the evidence introduced on trial was not admissible under the pleading in its original form and the amendment does not substantially change the cause of action or defense, sometimes known as an amendment to prevent a variance. 41 Am J1st PI § 309.

amends. Satisfaction for an injury.

See damages.

amenity. Something on the attractive, pleasant or desirable side of life. As a legal term in particular, the location, view, access to water courses or lakes, etc. which add to the desirability of a tract of real estate. A negative easement. Chapman v Sheridan -Wyoming Coal Co. 338 US 621, 94 L Ed 393, 70 S Ct 492.

amens. A person with no mind; an idiot.

a mensa et thoro. From bed and board.

See divorce a mensa et thoro.

amensuratio. Same as admeasurement.

amerce. To fine or impose a penalty.

amercement. A money penalty in the nature of a fine imposed by statute upon a sheriff or like officer for misconduct or neglect of duty, the object of the statute being to insure promptness and fidelity to duty and to furnish the plaintiff an opportunity to collect in a speedy manner his debt, damages, and costs. 47 Am J1st Sher § 187. A pecuniary penalty prescribed by a court as a punishment for a public offense.

See 4 BI Comm 379. A fine imposed by the court upon an unsuccessful plaintiff for making a false claim. See 3 BI Comm 376.

amerciament. Same as amercement.

amerciamenta hominum. An unusual franchise whereby a lord whose men had been amerced in the king's court could petition to have the amercements paid out of the exchequer to him.

amerciamentum. Same as amercement.

American. Of the western hemisphere or, more particularly, the United States.

American Airlines. A trade name subject to misuse in unfair methods of competition. American Airlines v North American Air Lines, 351 US 79, 100 L Ed 953, 76 S Ct 600.

American and English Annotated Cases. A set of reports of cases with annotations, abbreviated "Ann. Cas."
See annotation.

American Arbitration Association. A nonprofit organization maintaining panels of qualified arbitrators and providing administrative services for the arbitration of both commercial and labor disputes.

American Bar Association. See bar association.

American clause. Double insurance clause in marine policies. 29A Am J1st Ins § 1563.

American Decisions. An older set of reports of leading cases with annotations, abbreviated "Am. D."

American Empire. The whole of the United States, composed of states and territories. Downes v Bidwell, 182 US 244, 261, 45 L Ed 1088, 1096, 21 S Ct 770.

American experience tables. See mortality tables.

American Federation of Labor. An affiliation of labor unions, now combined with the former Congress of Industrial Organizations under the abbreviated heading AF of L-CIO.

American Gold Star Mothers. See Gold Star Mothers.

American Indians. See Indians.

American Jurisprudence. A comprehensive and authoritative modern text statement of American law, state and federal, procedural as well as substantive, under approximately four-hundred-fifty titles, arranged alphabetically, now in part in a second edition, with work continuing on the remaining volumes; known to bench and bar under the familiar abbreviations "Am. Jur." and "Am. J2d.

American Labor Party. A political party organized in 1936, the activities of which were confined to the state of New York.

American Law Institute. An organization of an eleemosynary nature, its primary activity being the clarification of common-law principles, and its most celebrated projects The Restatement of the Law, and the Uniform Commercial Code prepared jointly with the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

American Law Reports. Reports of selected leading cases decided by state and federal appellate courts, cited under the familiar abbreviations "ALR," "ALR2d," and "ALR3d," beginning with cases decided in 1918, continuing with the publication of current cases through the first and second series, published at the present time as the third series, with annotations appended to the reported cases which are exhaustive of authorities on the points annotated and facets of such points.

[69]

American Lloyd's. See Lloyd's association.

American mortality tables. See mortality tables.

American plan. That plan or system for operating a hotel under which meals are provided at regular hours for its patrons, who pay a stipulated sum per day, which includes both meals and room rent. New Galt House Co. v Louisville, 129 Ky 341, 11 SW 351. A term once applied to the open shop system in industry. See Industrial Asso. of San Francisco v United States, 268 US 64, 75, 69 L Ed 849, 852, 45 S Ct 403.

American Red Cross. See Red Cross.

American Reports. An older set of reports of leading cases with annotations.

American State Reports. An earlier set of reports of leading cases with annotations, abbreviated "Am. St. Rep." Sometimes "A.S.R."

American Theory. The fundamental conception of the supreme law, expressed in written form, in accordance with which all private rights must be determined and all public authority administered.

amesnable. Same as amenable.

amesner son hoste. To lead his army.

ami. Diminutive for the Latin "amicus." A friend.

See prochein ami.

amiables compositeurs. (Canada.) Arbitrators who are so designated in their appointment and are permitted to dispense with the strict observance of those rules of law the nonobservance of which, as applied to awards, results in no more than irregularity.

amicable. Friendly.

amicable compounder. In Louisiana, -an arbitrator whose decision is binding on the parties.

amicable scire facias. The revival of a judgment with the consent of the judgment debtor and without the issuance of a writ. Lyon v Cleveland, 170 Pa 611, 33 A 143.

amicable suit. A suit in which all the facts are admitted by the parties, leaving only one or more questions of law for the court to decide. Belloc v Rogers, 9 Cal 123. A suit in which, pursuant to prior agreement between the parties, needless expense and delay are eliminated by forgoing insistence upon technicalities and by the admission of facts on the part of either party knowing them to be true. Lord v Veazie (US) 3 How 251, 12 L Ed 1067.

amicitia. Friendship between persons or states.

amicus. A friend.

amicus curiae. Friend of the court. One who gives information to the court on some matter of law in respect to which the court is doubtful, the term implying the friendly intervention of counsel to call the court's attention to a legal matter which has escaped or might escape the court's consideration. 4 Am J2d Am Cur § 1. One who interposes in a judicial proceeding to assist the court by giving information, or otherwise, or who conducts an investigation or other proceeding on request of appointment therefore by the court. Re Ohlhauser's Estate, 78 SD 319, 101 NW2d 827.

amidships. A nautical term meaning the middle of the length of the load water-line, as measured from the fore side of the stem to the aft side of the sternpost.

amission. A parting with possession; an involuntary loss rather than an abandonment. Rhodes v Whitehead, 27 Tex 304.

Amistad Case. A famous admiralty case involving the capture in 1839 by a United States brig of a Spanish vessel aboard which were a large number of negroes who had been kidnapped and enslaved in Africa by Spaniards in violation of the laws of Spain. The negroes mutinied near Cuba, killed the captain, and spared the lives of their captors on condition that the ship should return them to Africa forthwith. Their captors deceived them and brought the ship to New York where it was seized by United States naval authorities. In the libel suit which ensued, the negroes were held to be free and not to be pirates. United States v The Amistad (US) 15 Pet 518, 10 L Ed 826.

amita. A paternal aunt.

amita magna. A paternal great-aunt.

amitinus. A cousin.

amittere. To lose.

amittere curiam. To be deprived of the right of coming into court.

amittere liberam legem. To lose his free law; to lose the privilege of a court; to lose the right to testify; to become outlawed. See 3 Bl Comm 340.

amity. Friendship; peaceful relations between persons or nations.

As used in the Federal statute rendering the government liable for depredations committed by Indians whose tribe or nation has been in "amity" with the United States, the word is not a technical term, but must be given its ordinary meaning and signifies friendship, actual peace. Hostility for a single purpose only, as for example, resisting the opening of a military road, may not prevent a tribe from being in amity. See Leighton v United States, 161 US 291, 40 L Ed 703, 46 S Ct 495.

Am Jur. Abbreviation of American Jurisprudence.

Am. Jur. 2d. Abbreviation of American Jurisprudence, Second Edition.

amnesia. Loss of memory.

amnesty. An act of the sovereign power granting oblivion, or a general pardon for a past offense, which is rarely, if ever, exercised in favor of single individuals, but is usually exerted in behalf of certain classes of persons, who are subject to trial, but have not yet been convicted. 39 Am J1st Pard § 6.

See pardon; reprieve.

among. Mingled with other things. Gibbons v Ogden (US) 9 Wheat 1, 6 L Ed 1. A good indication, when the word appears in a will, of an intent that the beneficiaries shall take in equal shares. 57 Am J1st

[70]

Wills § 1296. Some evidence, in the absence of a contrary showing, that a per capita distribution was intended. Anno: 13 ALR2d 1038.

among the several states. A phrase used to distinguish between commerce which concerns more states than one and commerce confined within one state and not affecting other states. Such distinction pertains to the power of Congress to regulate commerce, it having the power under the commerce clause only as to commerce between the states. 15 Am J2d Com § 3. Commerce in the District of Columbia and the territories of the United States, although within the power of Congress to regulate by virtue of its authority over such areas, is not commerce among the several states. 15 Am J2d Com § 3.

The business of producing stage attractions, including plays, musicals, and operettas, on a multi-state basis, constitutes commerce among the several states. United States v. Shubert, 348 US 222, 99 Ed 279, 75 S Ct 277.

amortisement. Same as amortization.

amortizable premium. The premium paid for a bond debenture, note, certificate, or other evidence of indebtedness which bears interest and is issued by a corporation, government, or political subdivision, including both registered and unregistered bonds. IRC § 171(d).

Where bonds are purchased by a trustee at a premium, the amount paid as premium 'is commonly amortized by deducting from each interest or coupon payment on the bonds equal instalments sufficient in amount in the aggregate to bring the purchase price of the bonds to par at maturity, paying only the balance of each such payment to the cestui que trust. Such amortization has been held to be a proper method of accounting for trustees in Massachusetts. Old Colony Trust Co. v Comstock, 290 Mass 377, 195 NE 389, 101 ALR 1.

amortizatio. Same as amortization.

amortization. Legally, destruction, killing, or deadening, the original use of the term in the law being to place lands in mortmain.

As the term is presently used, it has reference to the gradual extinction of a liability, usually one represented by a bond issue, by regular payments from a fund provided, known as a sinking fund.

amortize. See amortization.

amotibilis. Movable.

amotion. A removal, such as the eviction of a tenant or a removal from office.

The term relates to officers of a corporation, not to members, and is the removal of such an officer from his office, still leaving him a member of the corporation. It is distinguishable from "disfranchisement" which only applies to members and which destroys or takes away their right of being a member. See Richards v Clarksburg, 30 W Va 491, 496, 4 SE 774.

See eviction; removal from office.

amount. Quantity. The sum total of two or more particular sums or quantities; the aggregate; the whole quantity; a totality. Connelly v Western Union Telegraph Company, 100 Va 51, 669, 40 SE 618. The aggregate of principal and interest.

The value of property for which stock may be issued by a corporation under a statute authorizing the issue of stock for property to "the amount of the value" of the property, is the actual or the fairly estimated value of the property exchanged for the shares of stock delivered in payment. Kelly v Fourth of July Mining Co. 21 Mont 291, 53 P 959.

amountant. Ascending.

amount in controversy. The amount or value of the subject matter in litigation according to which the jurisdiction of a court may be limited. 20 Am J2d Cts § 154. A term involved in determining the jurisdiction of a court, either from the standpoint of the minimum amount with which the court can be concerned or a maximum amount which represents the limit of an inferior court's jurisdiction.

As so used, amount in controversy, is determined according to the amount claimed by the plaintiff in his complaint, declaration, or petition, not by the amount as it later appears according to the evidence or as finally recovered by the plaintiff in the verdict, decision, or judgment. 20 Am J2d Cts § 155.

If the demand of the plaintiff is for specific property, rather than a sum of money, the amount in controversy is determined according to the value of the property involved at or near the commencement of the suit. 54 Am J1st US Cts § 105.

amount in dispute. See amount in controversy.

amount of loss. In general, the amount for which compensatory damages are awarded. 22 Am J2d Damg § 11. In insurance, the amount of loss suffered by the insured in the destruction of or injury to the insured property.

The amount of the loss is not necessarily the amount for which the insured may recover, since the coverage as to amount may be only partial.

amount of the value. See amount.

amount per unit. See rate.

amount realized. The sum of money received for property plus the fair market value of goods, merchandise, or other property received in addition to the money. Crane v Commissioner, 331 US 1, 91 L Ed 1301, 67 S Ct 1047.

amove. To remove; to take away.

amoveas manus. A writ to restore lands forfeited to the crown.

amparo. A term taken from Spanish law in some American jurisdictions, meaning a temporary patent to public lands. Trimble v Smithers, 1 Tex 790.

ampliare. See amplificatio.

ampliare jurisdictionem. To enlarge the jurisdiction.

ampliation. A deferment of the rendition of a judgment pending further consideration.

amplication. Same as ampliation.

amplificatio. An enlarging; a deferring; an adjournment.

amplifier. A device, familiar in broadcasting, whereby sound is amplified so as to be more audible.

amplius. Among the Roman lawyers, giving more time for the hearing of a case, deferring the case.

amputation. To cut off a member; by surgery.

Am St Rep. Abbreviation of American State Re ports, an earlier set of reports of selected cases with annotations.

[71]

amtrustio. A confidential vassal.

amusement. Pleasure or diversion.

See place of amusement.

amy. Same as ami.

an. The indefinite article used in place of "a" where a vowel follows.

See a.

an. (French.) Year.

anacrisis. (Civil law.) An inquiry; an investigation.

anaesthesia. See anesthesia.

anaesthetic. See anesthetic.

anaesthetist. See anesthetist.

anagram. The rearrangement of the letters of a word, thereby making another word, for example, making "pat" from "tap."

anagraph. A register or inventory.

analogous. Having relation to. Comparable in some respects.

analogous arts and uses. (Patent law.) Whether arts or uses are analogous depends upon the similarity of their elements and purposes. If the elements and purposes in one art are related and similar to those in another art, and because and by reason of that relation and similarity make an appeal to the mind of a person having mechanical skill and knowledge of the purposes of the other art, such arts are analogous, and if the converse is true, they are nonanalogous arts. A. J. Deer Co. v U.S. Slicing Machine Co. (CA6 Mich) 21 F2d 812.

analogous cases. Cases which are not in point with one another but are closely related so that the reasoning in one may be accepted in the other.

analytical jurisprudence. The school or system of jurisprudence headed by John Austin and Jeremy Bentham depending wholly on analysis, comparison and classification of existing theories rather than upon principles of right and equity.

anaphrodisiac. Something which lessens sexual power.

anarchist. A person who believes in or advocates the overthrow by force or violence of the government of the United States, or of all government or of all forms of law, or the assassination of public officials. United States ex rel. Turner v Williams, 194 US 279, 293, 48 L Ed 979, 985, 24 S Ct 719.

anarchy. The absence of government; a state of society where there is no law or supreme power. Political disorder coupled with violence. Spies v People, 122 Ill 1, 12 NE 865, 17 NE 898.

anathema. A person or thing cursed; a curse.

a nativitate. From birth.

See idiot a nativitate.

anatocism. Compound interest; the charging of such interest.

anatocismus. Compound interest.

Anatomy Act. An English statute authorizing and regulating the study of anatomy and the disposition of dead bodies.

an bellare unquam justum sit. Whether it is ever right to go to war.

ancestor. A predecessor in the family line.

In statutes which provide for descent and distribution, the term embraces both lineals and collaterals. 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 77. Also, for the purposes of an ancestral estate statute, the term "ancestor" usually embraces both lineals and collaterals, 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 77.

ancestral. Pertaining to ancestors.

ancestral action. An action to recover land based upon the seisin or possession of the plaintiff's ancestor.

ancestral estate. An estate the title to which has been acquired by descent, and which, under the common-law rule, at least the common-law rule in England, should be kept in the line of the ancestor by whom it was brought into the family, so that descent of the same is limited to descent to lineal descendants of the intestate or, upon the failure of lineal descendants, to collateral relatives who were of the blood of the first purchaser. 23 Am J2d Desc & Dist § 75.

"There are but two characters of estate known to our jurisprudence. An estate is either ancestral or non-ancestral. In some jurisdictions, the latter is termed 'new acquisition' or 'purchase.'" Gray v Chapman, 114 Okla 66, 243 P 522.

ancestral property. Property acquired by descent. Gray v Chapman, 114 Okla 66, 243 P 522.

See ancestral estate.

ancestral. Same as ancestral.

anchor. A measure equivalent to ten gallons; the instrumentality by which a ship is tied to the bottom of the sea.

anchorage. A toll paid for casting a ship's anchor in port. A place where ships may be anchored.

anchor watch. A ship's lookout comprising either one or two men designated to perform that duty while the ship is at anchor. See O'Hara v Luckenbach S.S. Co. 269 US 364, 371, 70 L Ed 313, 317, 46 S Ct 157.

ancient. In the ordinary meaning of the term, very old, something that has existed for a long time; pertaining to the ancient world, that is, the world as it existed prior to the end of the Roman Empire.

In law, the term "ancient" is not limited to what is generally regarded as very old. Thus, a judgment which is 20 years old is an ancient judgment.

ancient boundaries. Trees, stone, and other markers which have been in existence since a time beyond the memory of living man and hence must be established as boundaries by evidence of reputation. 12 Am J2d Bound § 106.

ancient deeds. See ancient documents.

ancient documents. An ancient document, within the rule which excepts ancient documents from the requirement of authentication by the testimony of subscribing witnesses or otherwise, applies to documents purporting to be 30 years or more old, which are produced from proper custody and are, on their face, free from suspicion. 20 Am J2d Evi § 932.

ancient enclosure. See ancient inclosure.

ancient fence. A fence which has stood for so many years that it is to be taken as a practical location of a boundary, the monuments of the original survey having disappeared. 12 Am J2d Bound § 71.

ancient feud. See feudum antiquum, ancient inclosure. Lands which have been inclosed from the open fields for more than twenty years.

See ancient boundaries.

ancient judgment. A judgment which is 20 or more years old, so that there is a strong presumption in favor of its regularity.
30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 38.

ancient lights. The doctrine that an owner of land acquires a right of action against an adjoining landowner for the stopping of ancient windows by the erection of a structure on his own land applies where the first owner has had an uninterrupted enjoyment of the window for 20 years. I Am J2d Adj L § 89.

ancient map. An original map, over 30 years old, found in proper custody, authorized or recognized as an official document, and free on its face of suspicion, is an ancient map admissible to prove the location of a boundary line. 12 Am J2d Bound § 115.

ancient matters. Historical facts of general or public notoriety which date so far in the past that proof thereof other than by reputation is unavailable. 20 Am J2d Evi § 467.

ancient meadow. A meadow which has not been plowed up for twenty years or more.

ancient pasture. Same as ancient meadow.

ancient readings. Essays on ancient English statutes.

ancients. The historical characters and other persons who inhabited ancient Egypt, Babylon, Assyria, Greece, Rome, etc.
English attorneys who have attained peculiar seniority at the Inns of Court.

ancient serjeant. The eldest of the queen's serjeants.

ancient survey. A survey made by competent authority, recorded or accepted as a public document, produced from proper custody, and of the age of at least 30 years is admissible in evidence as an ancient survey without further verification. 12 Am J2d Bound § 113.

ancient wall. A party wall in use for twenty years or over. 40 Am J1st Part W § 5.

ancient will. A will so old, that is 30 years or more, calculated from the death of the testator, that it is not necessary to call the attesting witnesses to prove the will. 57 Am J1st Wills § 921.

ancient windows. Same as ancient lights.

ancient writings. See ancient documents.

ancienty. Seniority.

ancilla. (Latin.) A maid servant.

ancillary. Subordinate. Complementing. Auxiliary.

ancillary action. A suit maintainable in a court of equity on the ground that it is ancillary to an action in another court and in aid of the enforcement of rights involved in such action.

The remedies of injunction, receivership, discovery, and perpetuation of testimony are examples of ancillary jurisdiction in equity. 19 Am J2d Equity § 16.

See ancillary proceeding.

ancillary administration. Administration on a decedent's estate, granted in pursuance of the laws of a government other than that of the decedent's domicil, for the due collection and disposition of property left by the decedent within the jurisdiction. Re Mitchell's Estate, 97 Ohio App 443, 56 Ohio Ops 357, 127 NE2d 39, 51 ALR2d 1020; 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 680.

There being an ancillary administration, the administration at the domicil of the decedent is called the principal administration. 21 Am J2d Ex & Adm § 850.

ancillary administrator. The administrator appointed in an ancillary administration. 21 Am 32d Ex & Ad § 850.

ancillary attachment. The ordinary remedy by attachment invoked in aid of the collection of plaintiff's demand in an action.

In some jurisdictions the execution of a writ of attachment is in effect the commencement of an action, in which case, of course, the attachment is a principal action rather than an ancillary action or proceeding. 6 Am J2d Attach § 11.

ancillary garnishment. The usual remedy of garnishment invoked in aid of the collection of plaintiff's demand in an action.

In some jurisdictions, garnishment is a principal action, the execution of the garnishment being the method by which the action is commenced. 6 Am J2d Attach § 11.

ancillary jurisdiction. The power of a court to hear, adjudicate and determine matters incidental to the exercise of its primary jurisdiction in an action. 20 Am J2d Cts § 100. A distinct department of equity jurisdiction which arose at an early day from the imperfection of the legal procedure, exercised, not to obtain any equitable remedy, nor to establish any equitable right or estate, but to aid in maintaining a legal right, and in prosecuting actions pending or to be brought in a court of law. 1 Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence, § 82.

In the federal courts it is invoked (1) to aid, enjoin, or regulate the original suit; (2) to restrain, avoid, explain, or enforce the judgment or decree therein; (3) to enforce or obtain an adjudication of liens upon, or claims to, property in the custody of the court in the original suit. Raftery v Senter (DC Pa) 41 F Supp 807.

The term "ancillary jurisdiction" is also used in referring to jurisdiction exercised by a court of bankruptcy other than that in which the main proceeding is pending. The Bankruptcy Act, expressly confers upon courts of bankruptcy ancillary jurisdiction over persons or property within their respective territorial limits in aid of a receiver or trustee appointed in any bankruptcy proceeding pending in any other court of bankruptcy. Bankruptcy Act § 2 (a) (20); 11 USC 11 (a) (20); 9 Am J2d Bankr § 77. In this connection, the term "ancillary jurisdiction", refers, not to plenary suits which follow the usual procedure of the forum, but to special proceedings in the exercise of summary jurisdiction. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 77.

ancillary letters. Letters of administration issued to an ancillary administrator.

ancillary proceeding. A proceeding which is ancillary to an action in another jurisdiction.

See ancillary jurisdiction; ancillary proceeding in bankruptcy.

ancillary proceeding in bankruptcy. A proceeding in a court of bankruptcy entertained in the exercise of the ancillary jurisdiction of such court. 9 Am J2d Bankr §77.

See ancillary jurisdiction.

[73]

ancillary receiver. A receiver who has been appointed in aid of, and in subordination to, a foreign receiver for the purpose of collecting and taking charge of the assets of the insolvent corporation in the jurisdiction where he is appointed. Re Stoddard, 242 NY 148, 151 NE 159, 45 ALR 622, 630; 45 Am J1st Rec § 420. To be distinguished from a receiver in a provisional or pendente lite receivership which is in aid of a main or principal action. United States v Kensington, S. & D. Corp. (CA3 Pa) 18'7 172d 709, 27 ALR2d 708.

ancillary receivership. A receivership in aid of another receivership, usually one in another jurisdiction. 45 Am J1st Rec § 3.

See ancillary receiver.

ancillary suit. See ancillary action.

ancipitis usus. A term familiar in the writings of Grotius in international law, meaning of uncertain use from the standpoint of promoting peaceful relations.

and. A conjunction which, taken by itself, calls for the things or matters conjoined to be considered jointly. 50 Am J1st Stat § 281. A word ordinarily to be interpreted in the copulative, rather than the disjunctive, sense, but which will be interpreted in the disjunctive when necessary to the spirit and intent of the entire contract in which it appears. 17 Am J2d Contr § 283.

In the construction of a statute, the word "and" is construed to mean "or," where such construction is required by the context or is necessary to harmonize the provisions of the statute and give effect to all provisions, to save the statute from unconstitutionality, or to effectuate the obvious intention of the legislature. 50 Am J1st Stat § 282. A similar rule prevails in the construction of municipal ordinances. 37 Am J1st Mon Corp § 187. Also, in construing a will, the court will construe "and" as "or" in order to give effect to what appears to have been the clear intent of the testator. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1154. Similarly, the word "and" in a deed will be construed as "or", where the obvious intention so requires. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 218.

When, in the listing of persons or things in a statute, the conjunction "and" is placed immediately before the last of the series, the same connective is understood to have been placed, in effect, between the persons or things previously listed in the series. 50 Am J1st Stat § 281.

The use of the word "and" or & in joining the surnames of partners in a partnership name without using their initials or Christian names does not create an assumed or fictitious name. 38 Am J1st Name § 24.

and by it. See whereby.

and company. An expression frequently appearing at the end of the name of a firm.

These words added to a surname or two or more surnames in sequence in adopting a name for a mercantile establishment or other business does not render the adopted name an assumed or fictitious name. 38 Am J1st Name § 24.

and family. Designating the wife and children of the testator where it appears in a will. 26 Am J1st H & W 74.

and his heirs. Words of limitation when used following the name of a devisee, for example, to A and his heirs. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1430.

The same is true of the words when used in a deed, although such a technical meaning will give way to a practical construction where justice and reason so require. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 215.

and/or. A concocted ambiguity. 17 Am J2d Contr § 283. Something of a monstrosity in the English language, used by draftsmen out of an over-abundance of caution. So indefinite as to render an administrative order inoperative or unenforceable for lack of certainty. 2 Am J2d Adm L § 462.

The expression "and/or" has no proper place in a judgment. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 58. Appearing in a pleading "and/or" has been characterized as an equivocal connective, being neither positively conjunctive nor positively disjunctive. 41 Am J1st PI § 43. Again, the use of the expression "and/or" in an indictment or information is condemned as destructive of the certainty, definiteness, and precision required in criminal pleading. 27 Am J1st Indic § 104. In statutes, however, the use of the expression "and/or" has been considered to have a significance, the view being that the intention of the legislature in using the expression is that the word "and" and the word "or" are to be construed as used interchangeably. 50 Am J1st Stat § 283.

Such usefulness as there is in the use of the expression in a contract lies in its self-evident equivocality. The intention is that the one word or the other may be taken according as the one or the other will best effect the purpose of the parties as gathered from the contract taken as a whole. The term is used to avoid a construction which, by the use of a disjunctive "or" alone, would exclude the combination of several of the alternatives, or, by the use of the conjunctive "and" alone, would exclude the efficacy of any of the alternatives standing alone. 17 Am J2d Contr § 283. In an insurance policy, the expression "and/or" is to receive a liberal construction in favor of the insured, as is the rule in respect to any ambiguity. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 262. A negotiable instrument payable to "A and/or B" is payable in the alternative to A, or to B, or to A and B together. 11 Am J2d B & N § 117.

androchia. A dairy woman.

androgynae. A hermaphrodite.

androgynous. Partaking of both male and female sexes.

androgynus. A hermaphrodite.

androlepsia. Same as androlepsy.

androlepsy. The practice of holding aliens as hostages in order to compel their nation to do justice.

andromania. Same as nymphomania.

androphomania. A mania for killing men; homicidal insanity.

and so forth. Other things and units of a like kind. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1335. A term obviously having reference to other things, other events, or other persons, but of so little significance in itself that construction must depend upon the context of the instrument, the enumeration and description of matters and things preceding it, and the subject matter to which it is applied. Muir v Kay, 66 Utah 550, 244 P 901.

and son. An expression frequently appearing at the end of the name of a firm.

The addition of the words "and son" to a surname in formulating a partnership name does not have the effect of creating an assumed name within the meaning of the statutes which regulate doing ane. Same as an.

anecius. The first-born; the eldest.

anesthesia. A dulling or complete loss of the sense of pain, caused occasionally by disease but normally produced by an anesthetic for the purpose of performing surgery.

anesthesiology. The science concerned with anesthetics and the producing of the state of anesthesia.

anesthetic. A drug which produces insensibility to pain, such as ether, chloroform, sodium pentothal.

anesthetist. One trained to administer anesthetics.

an et jour. A year and a day.

aneurism. A soft pulsating sac or tumor arising from the preternatural dilation or rupture of the coats of an artery. Lewis v New York Life Ins. Co. 4 Hawaii 370, 374.

anew. Over again; de novo.

anfractus iudicium. Legal intricacies.

angaria. Compulsory service for the government exacted as a punishment.

See jus angarie.

angary. Right of a belligerent to take the property of a neutral for use.

angel. An ancient English coin of the value of ten shillings.

anger. A strong passion or emotion of displeasure or antagonism, excited by a real or supposed injury or insult to one's self or others; wrath, rage, fury, passion, ire, gall, cholera, indignation, displeasure, vexation, grudge, spleen. Morris v Territory, 1 Okla Crim 617, 99 P 760, 768.

See passion.

angild. The legal estimated value of a man or a chattel.

angina pectoris. A disease of the heart, so named from a sense of suffocating contraction or tightening of the chest over the sternum, which causes anguish and fear of sudden death. The disease is marked by severe pain and fainting sensations. The paroxysms come on unexpectedly after irregular intervals. See Estate of Lee, 46 NJ Eq 193, 18 A 525, 528.

Anglescheria. The fact of being an Englishman.

Angleterre. England.

Anglia. England.

Angliae jura in omni casu libertati dant lavorem. In every case the English laws are favorable to liberty.

Anglican. Pertaining to the Church of England; a member of that church.

Anglican Church. The Church of England.

Anglice. English.

angling. Fishing; slang expression for seeking to gain a favored position, anguilde. See angild. anguish. Intense pain of body or mind. Hancock v Western Union Tel. Co. 137 NC 497, 49 SE 952.

See mental anguish.

anhote. A tax or tribute paid as a prerequisite to the right to vote.

aniens. Null; void.

anient. To make nil; to nullify.

anienter. See anient.

anientisement. Waste.

aniline. An oily liquid used in the making of dyes.

aniline dyes and colors, by whatever name known.

A designation familiar in tariff laws, meaning articles commercially known as aniline dyes and colors. Pickhardt v Merritt, 132 US 252, 33 L Ed 353, 10 S Ct 80.

anima. (Latin.) Soul.

animal. In law, all animal life other than man. An inferior or irrational sentient being, generally, though not necessarily, possessed of the power of locomotion. In etymology, comprehending all living creatures, whether brutish or human. 4 Am J2d Am § 1.

animal husbandry. The breeding, raising, feeding and the marketing of animals; a course in agricultural schools.

animalia vagantia. Roving animals.

Animal Industry Act. An act of Congress approved May 29, 1884, which prohibits the transportation from one state or territory to another of livestock suffering from contagious diseases. The act also created the United States bureau of animal industry, whose duty it is to collect data on the general subject of communicable diseases and also to adopt such rules and regulations as may be deemed necessary for the speedy and effectual suppression thereof. See 4 Am J2d Ani § 31.

animal of a base nature. A term of the law of property, deriving from the nature of certain animals, such as dogs and cats, as property of a base nature. 4 Am J2d Am §§ 6, 7.

animals domitae naturae. Those animals which are naturally tame and gentle or which by long continued association with man have become thoroughly domesticated and are now reduced to such a state of subjection to his will that they no longer possess the disposition or inclination to escape. 4 Am J2d Ani § 2.

animals ferae naturae. Such animals as are of a wild nature or disposition and so require to be reclaimed and made tame by art, industry or education, or else must be kept in confinement to be brought within the immediate power of the owner. 4 Am J2d Ani § 2.

animals mansuetae naturae. Animals such as a common house pet, once of a wild nature but since tamed. 4 Am J2d Ani § 2.

animo. With a purpose; with intent.

animo cancellandi. With intent to repudiate or cancel.

animo capiendi. With intent to take.

animo custodiendi. With intent to take care of.

[75]

animo defamandi. With intent to defame.

animo derelinquendi. With intent to abandon.

animo differendi. With intent to delay.

animo dominandi. (Roman law.) An intention to control. Rhodes v Whitehead, 27 Tex 304.

animo donandi. With intent to make a gift.

animo et acto. By intent and act.

animo et corpore. In mind and body; with mind and body.

animo et facto. The intent coupled with the fact, as in a change of domicil.

animo felonico. With felonious intent.

animo furandi. With intent to steal. The specific intent which is always an essential in larceny. 32 Am J1st Larc §§ 36 et seq.

animo lucrandi. With intent to profit.

animo manendi. With intent to remain.

animus morandi. With intent to delay.

animus non revertendi. With no intention of returning.

animus possidendi. With intent to take possession.

animus recipiendi. With intent to receive.

animus remanendi. With intent to stay away.

animus republicandi. With the intention of republishing.

animus revertendi. The intention of returning.

animus revocandi. With intent to revoke. 57 Am J1st Wills § 459.

animus testandi. With the intention of making a will; with testamentary intent. 57 Am J1st Wills §§ 8 et seq.

animus. The soul. The seat of the spiritual in man.

animus ad se omne jus dicit. Every law is addressed to the spirit of the matter.

animus quo. The intent with which an act was performed.

animus recipiendi. The intention of receiving.

animus recuperandi. The intention of recovering.

animus republicandi. The intention of republishing.

animus restituendi. The intention of restoring.

animus revertendi. The intention of returning. 17A Am J Rev ed Dom §§ 26, 27.

The owner of a dwelling house from which he and his family are temporarily absent, must have quitted the house "animus revertendi" to make unlawful breaking burglary. 13 Am J2d Burgl § 4.

A different rule prevails and a distinction is made between animals ferae naturae and such animals as have animus revertendi. As to them a temporary departure from the immediate control of their owner does not determine his property rights in them. Whether or not they possess animus revertendi depends upon whether or not they are usually in the habit of returning whence they have escaped, as carrier pigeons or hawks in pursuit of prey. 4 Am J2d Am § 19.

animus revocandi. The intention to revoke. Some courts hold that where the revocation of a will has been prevented by the fraud of a person interested therein, and the acts of the testator indicating the animus revocandi have been shown by parol, the instrument will be held to be revoked. 57 Am J1st Wills § 459.

animus signandi. Intention to sign.

animus testandi. The intention of making a will. Whether or not an instrument is testamentary in character depends upon the intention of the maker. It is the animus testandi that makes an instrument a will. When the animus testandi is established, the character of the instrument is fixed and it is a will if the other requirements as to form and execution have been complied with. 57 Am J1st Wills §§ 8 et seq.

anker. A ten gallon measure.

ann. Abbreviation for annual, sometimes for annuity; the amount of a minister's stipend due his heir upon his death.

annales. Same as annals.

annals. The year-books; writings of past events; masses conducted during a year for a person deceased.

annatto. An artificial coloring matter sometimes used in the adulteration of milk. St. Louis v Schuler, 190 Mo 524, 89 SW 621.

Ann. Cas. An abbreviation of American and English Annotated Cases.

Anne. Queen of England from 1703 to 1714; Princess Anne of England born to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, August 15, 1665; sometimes used in old works for year. See Statute of Anne.

annex. Verb: To attach to; to join on; to affix. Noun: A smaller building attached to another building.

annexation. The acquisition of territory by a nation, state, or municipal corporation; the fastening or affixing of one thing to another, the legal significance being primarily concerned with the law of fixtures. 22 Am J2d Fixt § 4.

In order to constitute a thing a fixture, there must be actual or constructive annexation, to the freehold, that is, the land, but regard must also be had to the object, the effect, and the mode of annexation; physical annexation is not alone sufficient. The extent and mode of actual annexation no longer carries much weight except insofar as they relate to the nature of the article itself, the use to which the article is applied, and other attending circumstances as indicating the intention of the party making the annexation, for which latter purpose the mode of annexation is an important factor for consideration. The fact that chattels may be removed and sold for other uses, or that they were not made for special adaptation to the building in which they are placed, is not conclusive of the question whether they have become fixtures; nor is the fact that they can be removed without injury to themselves or to the freehold conclusive of the question. 22 Am J2d Fixt § 4.

[76]

See consolidation; constructive annexation, fixture.

annexation by reference. See incorporation by reference.

annexation de facto. An annexation of territory to a municipal corporation under proceedings which are defective as distinguished from wholly unauthorized. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 32.

Even an unauthorized annexation, as one under an unconstitutional statute, may by lapse of time ripen into a de facto annexation, the right of a private citizen or taxpayer to complain having been barred by laches. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 32.

annexed to the freehold. Fastened to the land.

See annexation.

annez. Years.

anniculus. A one year old child.

anniented. Abrogated; set at naught; annulled.

Anni et Tempora. Years and terms, an old name for the Year Books.

anni nubiles. The marriageable age of a girl.

anni spatium. Space of a year.

anniversary. A day which recurs annually.

Anno Domini. In the year of our Lord; since the birth of Christ.

annona. Yearly contributions of food for a person's support.

Annotated Cases. A set of reports of American and English cases with annotations, abbreviated "Ann. Cas. "
See annotation.

annotation. A concise statement of the holding of a case, appended to a section of constitution or code of statutes, showing the application of such or a similar section in an actual case. A term sometimes applied to the several propositions of law appearing in a section of a digest of case law. A word of art and of the profession for one of the articles in an annotated series of law reports which follows the report of a case of interest and importance and treats a point or points of the case exhaustively on the case authorities.

The best illustration of the meaning of the word in the latter aspect is found in the annotations in American Law Reports.

annotatione principis. With the signature of the prince.

announcement of decision. The court's peremptory declaration that he has decided thus and so. The court's expression of his mere intention or opinion as to what the decision shall be is not an announcement of his decision within the rule that a nonsuit cannot be taken after an announcement of decision. 17 Am J Rev ed Dism § 40.

anno Urbis Condita. In the year (753 B. C.) of the founding of the city (Rome), the beginning of the Roman calendar.

annoyance. A discomfort; a nuisance.

annua. A yearly salary; a pension; an annuity.

annual. Of or pertaining to a year; returning every year; coming or happening yearly. Payne v Gypsy Oil Co. 129 Okla 18, 263 P 138, 140.

annual assay. A yearly test officially made to determine whether gold and silver coins have been kept up to standard.

annual assessment labor. See annual labor.

annual crop. A crop which requires an annual planting or sowing. 21 Am J2d Crops § 2 annual depreciation. A theoretical depreciation of public utility property based upon estimated life of the property. 43 Am J1st Public Util § 129.

annual dividend. Normally, corporate dividends are paid quarterly but in the infrequent case where they are paid annually, the dividend received is known as an annual dividend.

The expression "annual dividend" is most frequently used in reference to dividends on insurance policies. See dividend on insurance policy.

annual dividend policy. A policy of life insurance upon which there is an annual distribution of dividend. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § I 11.

annual dues. Amounts paid annually to a fraternal organization or benefit society to keep in good standing; yearly premiums collected by old-line life insurance company under name "annual dues." Filley v Illinois Life Ins. Co. 91 Kan 220, 137 P 793.

annual fee. The periodical fee paid an attorney at law under a general retainer. 7 Am J2d Attys § 230.

annual interest. Interest payable annually. 30 Am J Rev ed Int § 11.

annual labor. A term of the mining law otherwise known as annual assessment labor. Union Oil Co. v Smith, 249 US 337, 350, 63 L Ed 635, 641, 39 S Ct 308. 36 Am J1st Min & M § 115. The labor performed under a statute requiring the annual expenditure of a prescribed amount of money on each mining claim for labor and improvements. Labor and improvements within the meaning of the statute are deemed to have been had on a mining claim, whether it consists of one location or several, when the labor is performed, or improvements are made, for its development; that is, to facilitate the extraction of the metals it may contain; though in fact such labor and improvements may be on ground which originally constituted only one of the locations, as in sinking a shaft, or be at a distance from the claim itself, as where the labor is performed for the turning of a stream, or the introduction of water, or where the improvement consists in the construction of a flume to carry off the debris or waste material. De Noon v Morrison, 83 Cal 165.

annually. See per year; happening every year.

annual meeting. Meeting of stockholders of a corporation. 19 Am J2d Corp § 600.

annual pension. See pension.

annual rent. The rent payable for a year's occupancy, usually of farm lands.

annual rest. Apart from a yearly vacation, the expression "annual rest" has a meaning in the law of interest. In charging compound interest to a fiduciary who otherwise will make a profit which a court of equity will not permit, the interest is computed annually at periods designated as annual rests, at which time the fiduciary is charged with interest and credited with his commissions as well as lawful disbursements during the year. 30 Am J Rev ed Int § 60.

annual revenue. The amount produced in a year by the employment of capital without any impairment of capital. Re Tutorship of the Minors of George M. Ratcliffe, 139 La Ann 996, 72 So 713.

annual turnover. See turnover.

annual value. The net annual rental or income which the property ought reasonably to yield.

annual work. See annual labor.

annuell. A Scottish term for annual value.

annuelte. Same as annuity.

annuity. In the older sense of the term, a yearly payment of a certain sum of money granted to another in fee, for life, or for years. In the modern sense, a right, bequeathed, donated, or purchased, to receive fixed or certain periodical payments, without contingency, either perpetually or for life or a stated period of time, but not including any interest of the annuitant in the principal fund or source from which the payments derive, his interest being only in the payments themselves. Commonwealth v. Beisel, 338 Pa 519, 13 A2d 419, 128 ALR 978; 4 Am J2d Annu § 1.

Typical modern annuities are those payable by insurance companies. 4 Am J2d Annu § 1. The annuity itself is the totality of the payments to be made under the contract. Where the payments are to be made to the annuitant until his death, the annuity is a life annuity. Where the payments are terminable by the voluntary act of the annuitant, the annuity is a term annuity. Bodine v Commissioner (CA3) 103 F2d 982.

Many of the payments called for by retirement plans of businesses and industries are annuities, although referred to as pensions. Annuities payable under retirement plans are not gratuities in the same sense as pensions paid to retired members of the armed forces, since such annuities are, in part, payable by contributions made by the annuitants themselves. Even where the annuitant makes no contribution in specie, the annuity is nevertheless not a gratuity, since it is in a proper sense provided for him as consideration for his services performed. 40Am J1st Pens §3.

An annuity contract is a security within the meaning of the Federal Securities Act. Securities & Exchange Com. v Variable Annuity Life Ins. Co. 359 US 65, 3 L Ed 2d 640, 79 S Ct 618.

See simple annuity; straight annuity; refund annuity.

annuity contract. See annuity.

annuity for education. An annuity provided for the education of a particular person. 4 Am J2d Annu § 9.

annuity for maintenance. An annual charge given for the maintenance of a particular person, without more, and ceasing with the life of the person to be maintained. 4 Am J2d Annu § 8.

annuity policy. A contract of an insurance company for the payment of an annuity beginning at a certain age of the annuitant stated in the policy, in consideration of a single premium or annual premiums payable by the annuitant. 4 Am J2d Annu § 1.

annuity tax. An annual tax levied in Scotland for the support of ministers of the gospel.

annul. To nullify; to set at naught; to make void; to reduce to nothing.

"The word is not a technical word and there is nothing which prevents the idea conveyed by it from being expressed in equivalent words." Woodson v Skinner, 22 Mo 13, 24.

annulment. The act of annulling or making void.

annulment of marriage. The judicial determination of the nullity of a marriage for causes existing at the time of the marriage solemnization. 4 Am J2d Annul § 1.

Annulment differs from a divorce in that it is not a dissolution of the marriage but a judicial declaration that no marriage has ever existed. Callow v Thomas, 332 Mass 550, 78 NE2d 637, 2 ALR2d 632.

annuo reditu. A writ under old English practice for the recovery of an annuity.

annus. A year.

annus deliberandi. The year which the law of Scotland gives to the heir to determine whether or not he will take his inheritance.

annus, dies et vastum. Year, day and waste.

annus inceptus. The beginning of a year; the same as the completion in computing age.

annus inceptus pro completo habetur. The beginning of the year is considered to be the completion of it.

annus luctus. (Civil law.) The year of mourning, during which the widow could not lawfully remarry. See 1 Bl Comm 457.

annus utilis. A year of advantage.

annuum. (Roman law.) An annuity; a yearly pension or salary.

annuus reditus. An annuity; an annual rent.

anomalous. Something very unusual; something which cannot be related to anything in the ordinary course of events.

anomalous plea. Equity terminology for a plea which combines affirmative and negative elements. 27 Am J2d Eq § 204.

anon. Abbreviation of anonymous. Adverb: In a short time.

anonymous. Without a name.

anonymous case. A reported case in which the names of the parties are omitted.

another action pending. See action pending; plea of another action pending.

anoyer. To annoy.

anoysance. Same as annoyance.

ansel. See auncel weight.

ansement. Similarly; likewise.

answer. Verb: To reply; to assume liability, as to answer for the debt of another; in pleading, to make defense by negating the allegations of the plaintiff or interposing affirmative defenses. Noun: The reply to a question, as in answering interrogatories in a deposition; the pleading in response to a com plaint, declaration or petition, otherwise known in many jurisdictions as a plea, which either denies the allegations of the complaint, declaration, or petition or interposes affirmative matter intended to defeat the action or delay it. 41 Am J1st Pl § 115.

[78]

Under older concepts of equity pleading, now almost entirely abrogated by statute, an answer, in addition to being a pleading, served as a discovery and constituted evidence of the facts stated therein. 19 Am J2d Eq § 264.

In admiralty proceedings, the answer is that pleading of a defendant which corresponds with the plea in an action at common law; it must make response to the matters alleged in the libel in the same consecutive order. 4 Am Jur 2d Adm § 179.

See counterclaim; cross-action; cross-complaint; general denial; sham answer; supplemental answer. 4 Am J2d Adm § 179.

answerable. Liable to pay damages.

answer in bar. A defensive pleading interposing affirmative matter intended to defeat the action, as distinguished from a plea intended to delay the action. 41 Am J1st Pl § 115.

answering service. See telephone answering service.

answer over. See pleading over; respondeat ouster.

answer to writ. See return to writ.

antagonistic. Combating; contending, or acting against. State v Brannon, 86 Mont 200, 283 P 202, 67 ALR 1020.

antapocha. A signed acknowledgment of a debt, by which the debtor is bound.

ante. Before.

ante bellum. Before the war.

antecedens. Antecedent.

antecedent. Preceding; going before.

See words and phrases beginning "pre-existing."

antecedent debt. A debt previously contracted, whether or not due. Fletcher, Appellant, 136 Mass 340, 342. A debt once binding which has become unenforceable by operation of law, without release or discharge by the obligee. 17 Am J2d Contr § 130.

antecessor. An ancestor; a predecessor in title.

ante-date. To date an instrument as of a day prior to its actual execution; to precede in point of time.

ante exhibitionem billae. Before suit is filed.

ante-factum. Something done previously; a former act.

antejurementum. An oath required of the plaintiff that he would prosecute, and of the defendant, that he was innocent.

ante litem. Before suit.

ante litem contestatam. Before the trial of the case.

ante litem motam. Before the commencement of the suit, such being a test of admissibility of declarations on the theory that at such time the declarant had no motive to distort truth. 29 Am J2d Evid § 605.

ante meridiem. Before noon.

ante-mortem. Before death; immediately before death, as an ante-mortem statement.

antenatal. Before birth.

antenatus. A person born prior to a great event; a person born in the American colonies prior to the revolutionary war. Dawson's Lessee v Godfrey (US) 4 Cranch 321, 2 L Ed 634.

ante-Nicene. Prior to the year 325 A. D. when the first general council met at Nicea in Asia Minor and promulgated the Nicene creed.

antenna. Wires used to receive electromagnetic waves for conversion into sounds or pictures, by means of which communication by radio and television has been made practical.

While judicial notice has been taken of the custom of householders to use outside antennae for radio reception (St. Louis Park v Casey, 218 Minn 394, 16 NW2d 459, 155 ALR 1128), it should be equally well known that many radios and television sets have built-in antennae.

antenuptial. Before marriage.

antenuptial agreement. See antenuptial contract; antenuptial settlement.

antenuptial conception. Conception resulting from coition prior to marriage. 10 Am J2d Bast § 13.

See antenuptial pregnancy.

antenuptial contract. A contract made between a man and a woman in contemplation of their marriage to one another.

See antenuptial settlement; companionate marriage.

antenuptial conveyance. A conveyance made by husband or wife before marriage. 25 Am J2d Dow § 60.

antenuptial pregnancy. Pregnancy prior to marriage, a ground for annulment where the pregnancy existed at the time of the marriage and was caused by one other than the husband; also a ground for divorce in some jurisdictions. 17 Am J Rev ed Div & S § 145.

See antenuptial conception.

antenuptial settlement. A contract or agreement between a man and woman in anticipation of their marriage by which they make an arrangement as to property then owned by one or both, sometimes varying substantially property rights which otherwise would arise upon the marriage by operation of law, even superseding the effect of statutes on property rights. 26 Am J1st H & W § 275.

ante occasum solis. Before sunset.

ante omnia. Before all other things.

antestari. To subpoena a witness.

anthracnose. A deleterious fungus.

anthracosis. See pneumoconiosis.

anthrax. An infectious and usually fatal disease of animals, especially sheep and cattle, and occasionally man. Men who become its victims are usually those engaged in handling wool, hides or animals that were infected. The disease may be acquired either by inhaling the bacteria or by inoculation through an abrasion of the skin. The latter is the most usual way. Anno: 20 ALR 7.

anthropometry. Measurement of the human body, such being an important feature of anthropology and was at one time advanced as a means of identifying persons or the bodies of deceased persons. The latter aspect of the science has been largely supplanted by fingerprinting.

[79]

antichresis. A pledge of immovable property, comparable to a mortgage. 41 Am J1st Pldg & Col § 2; 36 Am J1st Mtg § 12.

anticipate. To expect; to foresee; also to forestall. In pleading, to negative matters which the pleader's adversary may set up.

anticipatio. Anticipation.

anticipation. Expectation; foreknowledge. The principle by which negligence is determined on the basis that an ordinary, careful, and prudent man would have foreseen the occurrence of injury. Bell Lumber Co. v Bayfield Transfer R. Co. 169 Wis 357, 172 NW 955, Prematurity.

anticipation of children. Anticipation of birth of child.

An essential condition of liability under the doctrine of attractive nuisance is that there must have been ground for anticipating the presence of the injured child, since, unless the presence of the child is reasonably to be anticipated, the duty of taking precautions for its safety does not arise. 38 Am J1st Negl § 145.

anticipation of defense. Allegations in the complaint, declaration, or petition of the plaintiff which are addressed to matters which it is anticipated the defendant will allege as a defense. 41 Am J1st Pl § 87.

anticipation of device. In the law of patents, the essential element of novelty of invention is lacking where the invention was anticipated. Anticipation is established where it appears that at the time of the invention in dispute there was in use a process or instrumentality which was the equivalent thereof, similar thereto, or of substantially the same character. 40 Am J1st Pat § 26. To constitute an anticipation, the prior device must be sufficiently full, clear, and exact to enable persons skilled in the art to construct or practice, without the exercise of further inventive skill or experiment, the invention described in the subsequent patent. See General Electric Co. v De Forest Radio Co. (DC Del) 17 F2d 90.

anticipation of income. Pledging income or revenue to accrue. 41 Am J1st Pldg & Col Security § 8. Certificates, bonds, or other instruments of indebtedness to be paid by appropriation of revenues and taxes to accrue in the future. 38 Am J1st Mun Corp § 441.

anticipation of injury. See anticipation; apprehension of injury.

anticipatory breach. A breach of contract committed before the time for performance has arrived, being the outcome of words or acts evincing an intention to refuse performance in the future, that is words or acts in repudiation or renunciation of the contract. 17 Am J2d Cont §§ 448, 449.

A good illustration of the application of the doctrine appears in the law of sales and contracts to sell. 46 Am J1st Sales § 194.

anticipatory nuisance. A nuisance which will necessarily result from an act or thing, although no injurious consequences are presently apparent. 39 Am J1st Nuis § 151.

anticipatory repudiation. A positive statement to the promisee or other person having a right under a contract, indicating that the promisor will not or cannot substantially perform his contractual duties. Restatement, Contracts, § 318; Hawkinson v Johnston (CA8 Mo) 122 F2d 724, 137 ALR 420.

anti-communist affidavit. An affidavit required by statute of a public officer, schoolteacher, or police officer, negating membership in the Communist Party or adherence to the principles of such party.

anticonstitutional. Unconstitutional; in violation of the constitution.

Anti-Dumping Act. A federal statute intended to prevent sale of foreign merchandise at less than fair value. 21 Am J2d Cust D etc. § 15.

antient. Same as ancient.

anti-featherbedding laws. Statutes directed against the exaction of compensation for services not to be performed. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 261.

antigraph. A copy of a written instrument.

anti-injunction acts. Statutes prohibiting injunctions in labor disputes.

anti-lapse statute. A statute intended to prevent the lapse of a legacy or devise by providing, in effect, that, in the event of the death of the legatee or devisee prior to the testator, the legacy or devise shall not lapse but shall take effect as if the death of the legatee or devisee had occurred immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1433.

anti-molestation clause. See molestation clause.

antinomia. A real or apparent contradiction in a statute.

Anti-Okie Law. A California statute which prohibited anyone from assisting non-resident indigent persons to enter the state.

The statute was held unconstitutional as imposing an unconstitutional burden upon interstate commerce. Edwards v People of State of California, 314 US 160, 86 L Ed 119, 62 S Ct 164.

Anti-polygamy Law. The Edmunds Anti-polygamy Law passed by Congress in 1882 providing for the punishment of polygamy and also the act of cohabitation with more than one woman at the same time. 10 Am J2d Big § 5.

antiqua custuma. Ancient custom; statutory duties on wool and leather.

See antiquity of custom.

antiquare. (Roman law.) To restore or preserve the old law.

Antiqua Statuta. English statutes from 1189 to 1327.

antiquation. (Roman law.) The repeal of a law.

antiquity. The remote past.

antiquity of custom. Under the English rule, a custom existing since 1189, the commencement of the reign of Richard 1, which is accepted as the beginning of time of legal memory; in the United States, the element of antiquity exists if it shall have existed from time immemorial. The element of antiquity, however is no longer essential in establishing a custom with the force and effect of law, the modern view being to accept the custom as binding if it shall have existed a sufficient length of time to have become generally known and to warrant the conclusion that the contract or other transaction in question was made in reference to the custom. 55 Am J1st Usage & C § 5.

[80]

antiquum dominicum. Ancient demesne.

Anti-racketeering Act. A statute to prevent and punish racketeering, that is protecting trade and commerce against interference by violence and threats and checking the levy of blackmail upon business, particularly upon small shops where racketeering appears under the guise of collecting pay for services rendered. 18 USC § 420a-e; Anno: 138 ALR 812.

antithetarius. A person seeking to escape punishment for a crime by charging his accuser with having committed it himself.

antitrust acts. Statutes, a prime example of which is the Federal Antitrust Act, which prohibit all contracts, combinations, and arrangements in the form of trusts, pools, or otherwise, among individuals, partnerships, and corporations, which operate to establish or maintain a monopoly in the manufacture or production, or sale of any commodity of general use in the jurisdiction, or which are in restraint of trade. 36 Am J1st Monop etc. § 119.

See Clayton Act; Sherman Antitrust Act.

antitrust affidavit. A verified statement required by statute in some states of corporations doing business in the state. Such statement must be filed annually with the secretary of state and must disclose any connection of the corporation with combinations, pools, trusts and like combinations in restraint of trade or commerce. 36 Am J1st Monop etc. § 123.

anti-vivisection society. An organization, qualifying as a charitable organization, the purpose of which is to oppose the conducting of experimental surgical operations upon living animals. 15 Am J2d Char § 88.

antrustio, A confidential vassal.

anubendo. From covering.

anuels livres. The Year Books.

anus. The opening at the lower extremity of the alimentary canal.

anute. Same as annuity.

any. A flexible word.

In its broad, distributive sense, the sense in which the word is frequently used, it may have the meaning of "all," "every," or "each one of all." Its meaning is often restrained, limited, or influenced by the subject matter or manner in which it is used. It may mean "one indefinitely out of an indefinite number." When used in a statute, it should be so construed as to make its meaning comport with the general scheme of the statute in which it is used. Anno: 143 ALR 1054.

The word has been construed by some authorities to mean an indefinite number, as in the case of a stipulation in a promissory note that an indorser shall not be released by any extension of time. 11 Am J2d B & N § 943.

The word "any", used in a will, should be given a construction in context with other words used in the bequest, rather than a precise meaning doing violence to the testator's intention. Re Scheyer's Estate, 336 Mich 645, 59 NW2d 13, 38 ALR2d 835, construing devise of "any home in which we are residing at the time of my death".

any bank, banker or trust company. A sufficient designation of a person to constitute a special indorsement on a negotiable instrument. 11 Am J2d B & N § 361.

any corporation. Either a domestic or a foreign corporation. 23 Am J2d For Corp § 189 (involving terms of statute conferring power of eminent domain).

any covenant. Either an express or an implied covenant. Cole Petroleum Co. v United States Gas & Oil Co., 121 Tex 59, 41 SW2d 414, 86 ALR 719.

any degree under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Intoxication in some substantial degree. Anno: 13 ALR2d 1003 (construction of clause in accident insurance policy.)

any election. Comprehensive of all elections, primary elections as well as general elections. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 249 (construction of statute prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors during the hours of a day when an election is being held.)

anyent. Same as anient.

anyer. Same as annoyer.

any person interested in the event of a suit. Having reference to a present, certain, and direct interest, so that the person will either gain or lose by the direct, legal operation and effect of the judgment of the court, or the record of the case be legal evidence for or against him in another action. 58 Am J1st Witn § 288.

any time. From time to time; an indefinite time; a reasonable time. On demand. 52 Am J1st Time § 32.

See at any time.

any vessel. Every description of watercraft used, or capable of being used, as a means of transportation on water. 12 Am J2d Boats § 16.

anz. Same as annez.

A. P. Abbreviation of Associated Press.

ap. A prefix used in certain ancient Welsh surnames, such as David ap Thomas (Bibithe's Case, 4 Coke, 43) signifying "son of; - sometimes abbreviated a, as in John a Gaunt, and having the same significance as "o" in certain Irish surnames, as in O'Neill.

a palatio. From palace. The word Palatine was thus derived because the owners of counties palatine had regal rights as fully as the king had in his royal court. See 1 Bl Comm 117.

apanage. Same as appenance.

apares. Peers.

apartment. A suite in an apartment house of which the occupant acquires exclusive possession. 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 8.

apartment hotel. A building which contains apartments not furnished with cooking facilities, the proprietor usually maintaining a restaurant for the convenience of his guests and furnishing other services to them. 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 8.

apartment house. A multiple dwelling, divided so as to make independent suites for occupancy by a single person, two or more persons, or even a family of some size. 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 8. A building arranged in several suites of connecting rooms, each suite designed for independent housekeeping, but with certain mechanical conveniences such as heat, light, or elevator service furnished in common to all the occupants of the building. Konick v Champneys, 108 Wash 35, 183 P 75, 6 ALR 459, 463.

apasatio. A contract.

a patre. From his father.

apeaus. Same as appeaux.

apennage. Same as appenage.

aperire. To open; to unseal.

aperta brevia. Open or unsealed writs, as distinguished from sealed writs, which were called close writs.

aperta luce. See in aperta luce.

aperte. Same as apertus.

apertment. Openly; unsealed.

apertum. See feudum apertum.

apertum factum. An overt act.

apertus. Open; patent; unsealed; not close.

apex juris. An extremity or subtlety of the law. Hinsdale v Miles, 5 Conn 331, 334.

The plural is apices juris.

apex of vein. A mining-law term for the uppermost edge of the vein, or the course thereof, in place, at or near the surface of the earth.

This edge or apex is, of course, irregular. It may be higher at one place within the boundaries than it is at another; but mere elevation of the upper edge of the vein at different points within the location is of no moment. Anno: I ALR 418.

aphasia. A mental infirmity which may exist while the mental faculties of judgment, memory and understanding remain unimpaired, and which is marked by the inability of the victim to select and use proper words to express his ideas. A person suffering from the malady is not necessarily a person of unsound mind. Re Comfort, 63 NJ Eq 377, 380.

aphonia. Loss of voice.

apices juris. Extremes; such can not be considered to be the law. State ex rel. Spillers v Johnston, 214 Mo 656, 113 SW 1083.

The extremity of justice is injustice; right too rigid hardens into wrong. Caldwell v Ryan, 210 Mo 17, 108 SW 533.

apices litigandi. Extremes of the law.

apocae. A receipt for payment.

apochae oneratoriae. Bills of lading.

apocrisarius. A messenger; an ambassador.

apocrisiarius. Same as apocrisarius.

apograph. A copy.

apographa. An inventory.

apoincter. To appoint.

apostare. To break; to violate.

apostare leges. To break the laws.

apostasy. A break with, or an abandonment of, a faith previously held, especially a religious faith, and even more particularly, the Christian faith.

apostata capiendo. A writ for the seizure of an apostate.

apostate. A person guilty of apostasy.

a posteriori. From a later or subsequent aspect or point of view.

apostil. A marginal note on a document.

apostiler. To make marginal notes.

apostille. Same as apostil.

apostle. A condensed statement of a case transmitted by a lower court to a higher one.

See apostles.

apostles. Letters granted to an appellant in admiralty stating that the record will be transmitted from the lower court to the higher one; the twelve disciples and other early, valiant, and faithful believers and teachers of Christianity; a preacher or missionary; the 12 high officials of the Mormon Church.

Apostles' Creed. The creed universally adopted by Christians about 500 A. D.

apostoli. Same as apostles.

apostolical notary. An ecclesiastical officer charged with the duty of transmitting the orders of the papal see.

apothecary. A druggist or pharmacist. 25 Am J2d Drugs § 4.

app. An abbreviation of appellate.

appanage. Same as appenage.

apparage. Rank; nobility; quality.

apparance. Same as appearance.

apparator. Same as apparitor.

apparatus. A generic word of most comprehensive signification, implying a full collection or set of implements or utensils for a given duty, but hardly extending to include complicated pieces of machinery. 31 Am J2d Exemp § 63.

See implements.

apparel. See wearing apparel.

apparent. Clear, or manifest to the understanding; plain; evident, obvious; appearing to the eye or mind. Milliken v McKenzie (Tex Civ App) 285 SW 1110, 1111.

apparent agent. One who, with or without authority, reasonably appears to third persons, as a result of statements, conduct, lack of ordinary care, or other manifestations of the principal's consent, to be acting with authority. Restatement, Agency 2d ed § 8.

apparent authority. That authority which, though not actually granted, the principal knowingly permits his agent to exercise, or which he holds him out as possessing. Ulen v Kneettle, 50 Wyo 94, 59 P2d 446, 111 ALR 565.

apparent authority of insurance agent. Authority which, although not actually granted, the insurance company knowingly permits the agent to exercise, or which it holds him out to the public as possessing. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 146.

apparent danger. A danger which is capable of being seen or otherwise comprehended through the medium of the senses; one as well known to a person injured thereby as to the owner of the premises upon which it exists. Martin v Brown, 56 Idaho 379, 54 P2d 1157.

apparent easement. An easement that is open and visible, such as a pathway or road, or one that is readily ascertainable, even though not visible, such as a drainpipe under the surface into which water is conducted from a roof. 25 Am J2d Ease § 8.

apparent error. See error apparent.

[82]

apparent good order and condition. A term in a bill of lading descriptive of the goods upon delivery to the carrier. 13 Am J2d Car § 285.

The issuance by a carrier of a bill of lading or shipping receipt which acknowledges receipt of the goods in "apparent good order" generally creates a presumption or prima facie case in favor of the shipper or consignee although the form and limits of this presumption or prima facie case are difficult to define with precision. Anno: 33 ALR2d 872.

apparent heir. See heir apparent.

apparent jeopardy. The status of the defendant in a criminal case on trial before a competent court and a jury duly empaneled and sworn.

His jeopardy is real unless it shall subsequently appear that a verdict could never have been rendered, by reason of the death or illness of the judge or a jurymen, or that after due deliberation the jury could not agree, or by reason of some other like overruling necessity which compels their discharge without the consent of the defendant. Cardenas v Superior Court of Los Angeles County, 56 Cal 2d 273, 14 Cal 657, 363 P2d 889, 100 ALR2d 371.

apparent law. See lex apparens.

apparent maturity. The time when a negotiable instrument on its face appears to be due.

apparent servitude. See apparent easement.

apparere. To appear.

appares. Peers.

apparitio. An appearance.

apparitio in iudicio. An appearance in court.

apparlement. Resemblance; probability.

apparura. Furniture; implements.

app. ct. Abbreviation of appellate court.

appeach. Same as impeach.

appeacher. An accuser.

appeachment. Same as impeachment.

appeal. Any form of appellate review other than by one of the extraordinary writs. 4 Am J2d A & E § 2. Generally regarded as a continuation of the original suit rather than as the inception of a new action, confined normally to consideration of the record which comes from the court below, with no new testimony taken or issue raised in the appellate court. 4 Am J2d A & E § 2.

To revert to a terminology arising from distinctions that are rarely recognized in modern practice, an appeal brings up questions of fact as well as of law, but upon a writ of error only questions of law apparent on the record can be considered, and there can be no inquiry whether there was error in dealing with questions of fact. Behn, Meyer, & Co. v Campbell & Go Tauco, 205 US 403, 407, 51 L Ed 858.

In the Roman law, to appeal (ap-pe-lá're) is to resort to court; to sue.

appealability. The question whether a case is procedurally apt, that is ripe, for appeal. 4 Am J2d A & E § 47.

appealable. That which may be taken before a higher court for review, as an appealable order; capable of being subjected to an appeal of felony.

"Appealable" in its proper sense denotes susceptibility to direct appeal, as distinguished (1) from "reviewable" -that is, open to consideration by the appellate court on the record as made up for appeal from the judgment-and (2) from being appealable in the discretion of the trial judge. Collins v Miller, 91 App DC 143, 198 F2d 948, 37 ALR2d 746. Anno: 37 ALR2d 753.

appealable interest. An interest in a judgment or order which is direct, immediate, pecuniary, and substantial.

More specifically, a party has an appealable interest only when his property may be diminished, his burdens increased or his rights detrimentally affected by the order sought to be reviewed. If his interest or right in and to the subject matter ceases pendente lite, by conveyance, assignment, or otherwise his appealable interest thereby expires, however prejudicial the judgment may be to another. Furthermore, the right invaded or the injury sustained must be subsisting and immediate, not one arising as some possible, remote, unforeseen consequence. Re Michigan-Ohio Building Corp. (CA7 Ill.) 117 F2d 191.

appealable judgment or order. A judgment or order subject to review in appellate proceedings.

Ordinarily, but not universally, the term refers to a judgment or order of court rather than an order rendered in chambers. 4 Am J2d A & E § 19.

appeal bond. Security furnished in perfecting an appeal for the benefit of other parties to be affected. 4 Am J2d A & E § 323.

appeal in forma pauperis. See in forma pauperis.

appeal of death. See year and a day.

appeal of felony. In older times in England, an accusation by a private subject against another, for some heinous crime, demanding punishment on account of the particular injury suffered rather than for the offense against the public. The proceeding never obtained in the United States, and was abolished by act of Parliament in England in 1819.

appeal of mayhem. An ancient common-law action which combined the injured parties private action and a criminal prosecution. 36 Am J1st May § 7.

appear. To enter a formal appearance in an action or to appear by taking some step in contesting the action. To be manifest or evident. McClurg v Powell, 77 Miss 543, 27 So 927; R. S. Oglesby Co. v Lindsey, 112 Va 767. To seem to be of a certain kind or nature.

See appearance.

appearance. An outward manifestation. The first act of a defendant in court, being the overt act by which he submits himself to the court's jurisdiction. A formal or informal, direct or implied, written or oral submission by the defendant to the jurisdiction of the court in an action. 5 Am J2d Appear § 14. In a broader sense, a coming into court and submission to jurisdiction by either plaintiff or defendant. 5 Am J2d Appear § 1.

A defendant makes his appearance by entering a formal appearance or by taking some step in response to the action against him, such as filing or serving an answer or attacking the complaint, bill, or petition of the plaintiff by demurrer or motion. 5 Am J2d Appear §§ 14 et seq.

See general appearance; special appearance.

appearance bail. See bail.

appearance day. The last day upon which a defendant served with process may plead, submit a mo tion, or, in some jurisdictions, enter his appearance, thereby avoiding a default. Cruger v McCracken, (Tex. Civ. App.) 26 SW 282, 283. Sometimes called default day, although the former practice in many jurisdictions of having all actions returnable on the second day of the next term of court is fast becoming obsolete, the common provision being for the requirement of an appearance under pain of default a prescribed period of time after service of process, irrespective of the date of the opening of the term of court.

appearance docket. A docket kept by the clerk of court wherein appearances are entered.

It is often a part of a general docket wherein the various steps in a case from the service of process to the entry of judgment and the issuance of execution are registered.

appearance fee. The fee charged by a clerk of court for entering an appearance. 15 Am J2d Clk Ct § 14.

appearance term. The term of court at which the defendant in a civil case or the accused in a criminal case is cited to appear. The term of court at which it first becomes apparent that there is for trial and determination any issue of fact.

appearand heir. (Scotch.) One who is entitled to inherit, but who has not yet made entry upon the land.

appearer. One who enters a formal appearance in court as or for a defendant.

appear generally. See general appearance.

appear gratis. To enter an appearance in an action without requiring or awaiting the service of summons or other process.

appears. See appear; appearance.

appear specially. To appear in an action without submitting to the jurisdiction of the court, as where the defendant challenges the sufficiency of the service of process. 5 Am J2d Appear § 2.

See special appearance.

appeaux. Appeals.

appel. Appeal; appealed; accused.

appelans. An appellant; the accuser in an appeal of felony.

appele. Same as appellee.

appellant. A person who appeals from the judgment of a court; the complaining party in an appeal of felony.

appellare. To appeal; to prosecute an appeal of felony. (Roman law.) To appeal to; to demand; to sue.

appellare adversus sententiam. To appeal from a sentence.

appellate. Pertaining to the taking of an appeal, as appellate court, appellate procedure; of a higher jurisdiction. In its broadest sense the word denotes nothing more than the power of one tribunal to review the proceedings of another, either as to law or fact, or both. Marbury v Madison 5 US (1 Cranch) 137, 147, 2 L Ed 60, 64.

Appellate Division Conference. An agency of the United States for the settlement of a taxpayer's case not settled with the office of the District Director of Internal Revenue.

Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. An intermediate appellate court in New York.

appellate jurisdiction. The jurisdiction of appeal or review proceedings, as distinguished from trial court or nisi prius jurisdiction, being contingent on timely compliance with constitutional or statutory methods of appeal. Barney v Platte Valley Public Power & Irrig. Dist. 144 Neb 230, 13 NW2d 120.

appellatio. An appellation; a name; an appeal.

appellation. See name.

appellative. Name.

appellator. Same as appellant.

appellee. A party against whom a cause is appealed from a lower court to a higher one.

In some jurisdictions, he is called the "respondent." The term "appellee" is also applied to the defendant in an appeal of felony. And, also, to a person who is "appealed" by an approver. See approver.

appello. I appeal, -the formal word by which an appeal was taken under the Roman law.

appellor. An appellant, a person who prosecutes an appeal from a lower court; an approver, who accuses his confederates in crime; a party who challenges a jury.

appellour. Same as appellant.

appellum. An appeal.

appenage. Under French feudal law, the portion which was given to the sons of the king for their support. It reverted to the king on failure of male heirs.

append. Pending.

appendage. An accessory of a more important thing, something connected with it, and either essential to its completion or to its advantageous and convenient operation. State Treasurer v Somerville & Easton Railroad Co. 28 NJL 21, 26, 27; Anno: 7 ALR 795.

Under a statute authorizing a school board to provide the necessary "appendages" for a schoolhouse, it may bind the district to pay for the drilling of a well in the school yard for the purpose of supplying drinking water, although no suitable water is found, and the well is on that account entirely useless. Schofield v School Dist. 105 Kan 343, 184 P 480, 7 ALR 788.

appendant. Appurtenant; belonging to another more important thing.

At common law, things incidental to a fee in land were classified as things "regardant," "appendant," and "appurtenant," marking distinctions which are now obsolete. New-Ipswich W. L. Factory v Batchelder, 3 NH 190.

appendant power. See power appendant.

appender. To append; to affix; to annex.

appenditia. Appurtenances.

appendix. An addition to a book, placed at the end of the text, for convenient reference to supplemental and explanatory material contained therein; in appeals in the House of Lords and the Privy Council, a printed volume containing the material documents or other evidence used in the courts below and referred to in the cases of the parties.

appensura. Payment in money by weight.

appent. Same as appendant.

[84]

appertaining. Relating to.

See appurtenant.

appertinances. Same as appurtenances.

appliance. A tool, an instrumentality of convenient use, especially in the use of a larger instrumentality, for example, appliances for use with a vacuum cleaner. Appliances are usually personal property, becoming real estate only as they may be so adapted to the use and enjoyment of real estate as to lose their identity as personalty. Doll v Guthrie, 233 Ky 77, 25 SW2d 947.

appliances of transportation. The roadbed, tracks, cars, engines, and all other machinery and equipment furnished by the carrier and used in connection with the conduct and management of its business, but not property belonging to the passenger which he takes into the car with him. See Burns v Pennsylvania R. Co. 233 Pa 304, 82 A 246.

applicable. Appropriate; such as can be applied.

In determining the effect of a statutory adoption of the common law so far as it may be "applicable," the word is to be construed as meaning applicable to local conditions and habits and in harmony with the genius, spirit, and objects of local institutions. Fuchs v Goe, 62 Wyo 134, 163 P2d 783, 166 ALR 1329.

applicant. One who files an application or petition; a petitioner.

applicare. To fasten; to moor a ship.

applicatio est vita regulae. The application is the life of the rule.

application. Use, as the application of a drug; devoting to a purpose, as the application of payments. A request; a seeking, usually in the form of writing; a petition.

One of the most frequent uses of the term is in the law of insurance, it referring in that connection to the first step in negotiating a contract or policy of insurance, being a signed statement by the prospective insured wherein he requests the insurance and fills in such details concerning the risk as the insurer seeks by way of information upon which it will decide whether or not to accept the risk and issue a policy. Dickinson v Bankers Life & Cas. Co. (Mo App) 283 SW2d 658.

application for incorporation. A formal application required by the statutes of some of the states to be made to some designated court for the approval of the court of the right of the applicants named therein to form a corporation. 18 Am J2d Corp § 42.

application for insurance. See application.

application of payments. The use or account to which a payment is applied or credited where a single creditor has two or more demands, and other creditors, as well as the debtor, will be affected by the particular application made. 40 Am J1st Paym §§ 108 et seq.

apply. See application.

appoint. To designate a person for a purpose, such as holding office; to fix a time.
See appointment.

appointee. A person who has been appointed to an office or trust.

appointing power. The power or authority to appoint public officers. Walker v Cincinnati, 21 Ohio St. 14.
See power of appointment.

appointment. The designation of a person to occupy a public office, including appointments under the Civil Service. 15 Am J2d Civ S § 1; 42 Am J1st Pub Of § 90. More broadly defined to include the selection of corporate officers and other officers of a private nature. Sometimes construed to include the result of a popular section. 25 Am J2d Elect § 1. An engagement to meet another at a specified time.
See power of appointment.

appointment of administrator. The issuance of letters of administration upon application therefor.
A proceeding for the appointment of an administrator is to be considered as an "action" within the meaning of that word as used in a general statute of limitations. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 84.
See letters of administration.

appointment of appraiser. An appointment of a person to act in ascertaining a specific fact, to wit: the value of a certain property, piece of property or the loss incurred in its destruction in whole or in part. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 3.
Under the arbitration clause of a fire insurance policy, the naming of a person to act as appraiser by one of the parties is not a "selection" until the other party has agreed to accept him. American Macaroni Mg. Co. v Niagara Fire Ins. Co. (DC Ala) 43 F Supp 933.

appointment of arbitrators. The selection of arbitrators under an agreement for arbitration of a dispute, the usual method being for each party to choose one and for the two thus chosen to select a third to serve with them. 5 Am J2d Arb & A §§ 86, 88.

appointment of counsel. Same as assignment of counsel.

appointment of executor. The designation of a person to act as executor appearing in a will. The issuance of letters testamentary upon application made therefor.

See letters testamentary.

appointment of shipmaster. The selection of the master of a ship by the owner or by the owners of a majority of the part interests. See 48 Am J1st Shipping § 114.

appointment of trustee. The designation of a person as trustee made by will, deed of trust, or other trust instrument, or the naming by a court of a person to act as trustee.

appointment to office. See appointment.

appointor. The person appointed by a donor, under the statute of uses, to execute a power.

apport. A tax or other tribute paid to the government. In French law, personal property or documents brought in or contributed.

See apportum.

apport en nature. (French law.) Payment in kind.

apportion. To divide and assign in proportion; to distribute among two or more a part or share to each.

See apportionment.

apportionamentum. An apportionment.

apportionment. A division of property; also a determination of the liability of co-obligors in enforcing contribution. 18 Am J2d Contrib § 19.

[85]

See partition; pro rata; also terms beginning with word prorating.

apportionment of accretion. The division of accretion between adjoining riparian proprietors along the shore of a body of water. See 56 Am J1st Wat §494.

apportionment of direct taxes. The requirement in reference to federal taxes under paragraph 4 of section 9 of Article I of the Constitution of the United States; apportionment according to the census.

apportionment of freight. See freight pro rata itineris.

apportionment of local assessment. The legislative act of determining the mode of distributing the burden of an assessment for a local improvement, designating the property out of which the tax is to be made, and establishing some certain standard of assessments. When not constitutionally restricted, the legislature may prescribe any method of apportionment which it deems equitable, unless it is palpably arbitrary and constitutes a plain abuse. See 48 Am J1st Spec A § 57.

apportionment of representatives. The determination of the number of representatives to which a state is entitled in the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States or to which a county is entitled in a state legislature; the drawing of district lines to create election units.

See reapportionment.

apportionment statutes. Statutes providing in effect that the amount of an estate tax, state or federal, shall be paid out of the state before its distribution and shall be equitably prorated among the persons interested in the estate to whom benefit accrues, except as the decedent has directed otherwise in his will. Annos: 26 ALR2d 927; 37 ALR2d 203.

See apportionment of direct taxes.

apportum. The revenue derived from a right such as an incorporeal hereditament or a pension.

apposal of sheriffs. The charging of the sheriffs with money received by them on account of the exchequer.

appose. To examine an officer with reference to his accounts.

appostille. Same as apostil.

appraisal. A determination of worth or value, as the appraisal of a dwelling house, a manuscript, or a literary product.

See appraise; appraisal.

appraise. To estimate value; to determine the amount of a loss according to the value of the property injured or destroyed. Vincent v German Ins. Co., 120 Iowa 272, 278, 94 NW 458. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1610.

appraisement. The act of appraising; the amount determined as the value by an appraisal; another meaning sometimes confused with arbitration but essentially different, being a method of determining the value of a thing, agreed upon and provided in advance for the purpose of avoiding a dispute in the future. Sanitary Farm Dairies, Inc. v Gammel (CA8 Minn) 195 F2d 106; 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 3.

appraiser. A person selected to value property, for example, an appraiser of a decedent's property for inheritance tax purposes, or an appraiser of imported goods. See customs appraiser.

appreciate. To appraise.

appreciate. To rise in value; to understand; to recognize the value in a person or a thing.

appreciation of risk. See apprehension of injury.

apprehend. To make lawful arrest; to capture; to place in custody; to seize; to have knowledge of something.

apprehendere. Same as apprehend.

apprehensio. Same as apprehension.

apprehension. The seizure, taking, or arrest of a person on a criminal charge. Hogan v Stophlet, 179 111 150, 53 NE 604. Another meaning relevant to the law is that of knowledge or perception.

apprehension of injury. The basis of a duty to avoid injury, an essential element of negligence. 38 Am J1st Negl § 24. Also, an essential of the defense of assumption of risk. Edwards v Kirk, 227 Iowa 684, 288 NW 875.

apprentice. In the broad sense, a learner; one who by labor seeks to acquire the art or mystery of the craft at which he is employed. Anno: 36 ALR 1348. In a technical and almost anachronistic sense, a minor who is bound in the form of law to a master for a specified length of time, terminable at his majority or prior thereto, to learn the art or mystery of some trade, craft, profession, or business in which his master is bound to instruct him, and to serve his master during the term of his apprenticeship.

See articles of apprenticeship.

apprentice en la ley. An apprentice at law. See apprenticii ad legem.

apprenticeship. See apprentice; articles of apprenticeship.

apprenticeship deed. Same as articles of apprenticeship.

apprenticii. Apprentices.

apprenticii ad legem. Apprentices at the law; students at the inns of court.

apprenticius. Same as apprentice.

apprenticius ad barras. A student preparing for the profession of barrister.

apprenticius ad legem. An apprentice at law; a law student.

apprentise. Same as apprentice.

apprentise en la ley. Same as apprentice en la ley.

apprentissage. Apprenticeship.

apprentitius. Same as apprentice.

apprest. Ready; prepared; preparation for war by the enlistment of soldiers.

apprester. To prepare.

apprimes. First.

appris. Informed; learned.

apprise. To teach; to give notice; to appraise.

apprises en la ley. Learned in the law.

apprising. Teaching or informing; an ancient Scotch procedure whereby a debtor's land was conveyed to the creditor to settle the debt.

approach. To come near or in proximity. Wadsworth v Marshall, 88 Me 263, 34 A 30.

[86]

See right of approach.

approach of a bridge. The passage connecting the highway with a bridge, making the bridge accessible. For a reasonable limit, the approach is regarded by law as part of the bridge itself.

approbar. To approve.

approve and reprobate. To accept one part and reject another.

approbation. Approval; a technical term in use at one time in England and France for the official approval of publication of a book.

approbator. Same as approver.

approbatory articles. See articles approbatory. approbo non reprobo. I approve what I do not disapprove.

approcher. To approach.

approper. To appropriate.

appropriare. To appropriate.

appropriare communiam. To remove a piece of land from a common by enclosing or appropriating it.

appropriare et includere communiam. To appropriate and enclose a common; to discommon.

appropriate. Adjective: Fit; adapted to; designed; suitable. Thomas v State (Okla) 244 P 816.

appropriate. A verb derived from the Latin "ad" and "proprius". To allot, assign, set apart, or apply to a particular use or purpose. State v La Grave, 23 Nev 25, 41 P 1075. To take to one's self to the exclusion of others; to set apart for a use in exclusion of all others. Newhouse v First Nat. Bank, (DC Ill) 13 F2d 887.

appropriate speed. A variable term to be resolved according to the surrounding circumstances. 8 Am J2d Auto § 687.

appropriation. A taking to the exclusion of others; a conversion of property where performed without right. 18 Am J2d Conv § 1. A taking of private property for public use under the power of eminent domain. Cushing v Gillespie, 208 Okla 359, 256 P2d 418, 36 ALR2d 1420.

appropriation bill. A proposed statute authorizing the appropriation of public funds for particular objects or purposes. 42 Am J1st Pub F § 43.

appropriation for war. The taking and use of property by the army or navy, in the course of war, not authorized by contract with the government. Filor v United States, 76 US (9 Wall) 45, 19 L Ed 549.

appropriation of fund. Legislative authority, given at the proper time and in legal form to the proper officers, to apply a distinctly specified sum from a designated fund out of the treasury, in a given year, for a specified object or demand against the appropriating body. 42 Am J1st Pub F § 43.

See appropriation bill.

appropriation of ice. Such exercise of dominion over ice on public waters, for example, cutting the ice into cakes, as will vest the exclusive right to the ice in the person so acting, provided he has the present ability and intention to proceed to a harvest of the ice. 27 Am J1st Ice § 5.

appropriation of payments. See application of payments.

appropriation of water. Application of water to some beneficial use. Farmers High Line Canal Co. v Southworth, 13 Colo 11, 21 P 1028.

See prior appropriation.

appropriation to capital. The application of net income of a corporation to an increase in the capital of the company, as by expanding the plant or making permanent improvements. Davis v Jackson, 152 Mass 58, 25 NE 21.

appropriator. See appropriation; prior appropriation.

approval. A sanction; expression of satisfaction.

In the law of agency, approval, ratification and acquiescence in an act all presuppose the existence of some actual knowledge of the act and what amounts to a purpose to abide by it. Williams v Vreeland, 250 US 295, 299, 63 L Ed 989, 992, 39 S Ct 438.

approval of performance. A determination, which, as called for by a provision in a building and construction contract, is to be made according to objective criteria. 13 Am J2d Bldg Contr § 30.

See certificate of architect or engineer.

approval sale. A sale on approval. 46 Am J1st Sales § 492.

approve. To confirm, ratify, sanction, or consent to, some act or thing done by another. Board of Education v Reno Community High School, 124 Kan 175, 257 P 957.

As used in a statute giving an officer power to "approve" an application, it is not ordinarily limited to a mere verification of the facts as stated in the application, but involves a grant of discretionary power, complete unless limited by the statute, and implies knowledge, the exercise of discretion after knowledge, and the act of passing judgment. McCarten v Sanderson, 111 Mont 407, 109 P2d 1108, 132 ALR 1229. "To approve," especially where it is a public officer who is to give sanction, is to go beyond an unexpressed mental acquiescence; his sanction should be given with certainty and by an unmistakable sign or declaration. People v Hall, 140 Cal App 745, 31 P2d 83 1. Approval by * finance committee of a municipality means that the members of the committee, acting upon their official responsibilities and having in view the public welfare, are to investigate and sanction according to their own independent judgment each separate item. It is not a ministerial function but implies active and important prudential obligations. Brown v Newburyport, 209 Mass 259, 95 NE 504.

A sense of the term much less familiar is that of accusing. A person who is indicted for crime is said to approve another person when he, the approver, before plea, confesses and accuses the other of the offense. In a sense that seems to have become obsolete; to "approve" land means to improve it by cultivation and reclamation.

approveamentum. Same as approvement.

approved bill. A bill of exchange drawn by one whose financial credit is good. Mills v Hunt, 20 Wend (NY) 431, 435.

approved note. A promissory note made or indorsed by one whose financial credit is good.

approved security. A term having particular reference to the security required of the purchaser at an auction sale, meaning such security as ought to be approved by the auctioneer. 7 Am J2d Auct § 47.

[87]

approvement. The old English practice of encouraging accomplices to become crown witnesses by holding out the hope of pardon on a full disclosure of their own guilt and that of their accomplices. The word was also used in the past, in a sense that appears now to have become obsolete, to signify an improvement; an enclosure or fencing for the improvement or cultivation of the land.

approve of. See approve; consent to.

approver. Also called a "prover" or "probator," -a person who, after having been indicted for treason or other felony and arraigned for it, confesses his guilt before pleading guilty or not guilty and accuses the persons who were his accomplices, of the same crime, in order to obtain a pardon for himself. See 4 Bl Comm 330.

approximately. A word used in describing a course or distance, which usually is disregarded where not controlled or explained by a monument or other marker, and may be given meaning and effect where so controlled and explained. 12 Am J2d Bound § 57. An inconclusive term, standing alone, where used as a designation of the quantity of goods covered by a contract of sale. Annos: 7 ALR 511-1 26 ALR2d 1120; 46 Am J1st Sales § 159.

This word has been given the same interpretation as "more or less" with respect to relief by way of rescission or adjustment of purchase price for mutual mistake as to quantity of land where the sale is in gross. Anno: 1 ALR2d 50, 96.

approximation doctrine. See cy pres; equitable approximation doctrine.

appruamentum. Same as approvement. appruare. Same as approve.

appulsus. A driving toward; an impelling.

appunctuare. To appoint.

appurtenance. A thing belonging to another or principal thing and which passes as an incident to the principal thing. Anno: 39 ALR2d 872; 23 Am J2d Deeds § 256. Such a thing as belongs to the land and is a part thereof. 55 Am J1st V & P § 124. An easement or servitude to be used or enjoyed with demised premises. 32 Am J1st L & T § 169. As the word appears in a sale of personal property:-accessories; possibly including, when fairly construed in the light of the entire context, articles and subjects not comprehended by the word as it appears in a conveyance of land. 46 Am J1st Sales § 146. As the word appears in a chattel mortgage:-personal property intimately connected with the operation of the principal thing which is mortgaged. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 77.

Of a vessel: Everything that belongs to the ship, such as sails and rigging, rudder and cordage, compasses, chronometers, lights, tackle and apparel, even though such may not be on board, and also such special equipment as may be necessary in the employment of the vessel for a particular purpose. 48 Am J1st Ship § 71.

appurtenant. Pertaining; belonging to something else.

See appurtenance.

appurtenant easement. See easement appurtenant.

appurtenant power. See power appendant.

appurtenant rights. Everything essential or reasonably necessary to the full beneficial use and enjoyment of property. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 256, An incorporeal right attached to, and belonging with, some greater or superior right; something annexed to another more worthy thing with which it passes as an incident, being incapable of existence separate and apart from the particular property to which it is annexed and to which it bears a relationship connected with the use of such property. 25 Am J2d Ease § 11.

appurtenant way. A right of way which is incident to an estate, which inheres in the land, concerns the premises, pertains to its enjoyment and passes with it. 25 Am J2d Ease § 11.

apree. Same as après.

a prendre. To take.

après. After.

See en après.

après le fait. After the deed.

après midi. Afternoon.

après que. After that.

a priori. From the past; from what has previously transpired.

To argue or reason "a priori" is to conclude by deduction that because certain facts exist, certain other facts will necessarily follow as a consequence. See 1 Bl Comm 32.

apris. Same as appris.

apris de la leie. Learned in the law.

aprovechamiento. A right in the commons where pueblo lands are involved. Hart v Burnett, 15 Cal 530, 566.

apt. Fit; suitable; proper.

apta viro. A girl of marriageable age.

apud. With; at the house of; among.

apud acta. Among the recorded acts.

apud London videlicet, in parochia Beatae Mariae de arcubus, in ward de Cheap. At London, that is to say, in the parish of St. Mary-le-bow, in the ward of Cheap. An old form for designating the venue.

See SS.

apud pares. Before his peers.

apurtenances. Same as appurtenances.

aqua. Water.

aqua aestiva. Water used only in summer.

aqua ammoniae. A solution of nitrogen and hydrogen.

Aqua cedit solo. The water goes with the land. Wholey v Caldwell, 108 Cal 95, 41 P 31.

aqua cooperta. Covered by water.

aqua currens. Running water.

Aqua currit et debere currere ut currere solebat. Water runs and ought to run as it is accustomed to run. San Gabriel Valley Country Club v Los Angeles County, 182 Cal 392, 188 P 554, 9 ALR 1200, 1207.

aqua ductus. The right to run water through the land of another.

[88]

aqua dulcis. Fresh water.

aquae. Waters; streams.

See fullum aquae; iudicium aquae.

aquae haustus. The right to draw water from the land of another.

aquae immittendae. Easement of dripping water.

aqua fontanea. Spring water.

aqua frigida. Fresh water.

aquagangium. A waterway; a trench; a ditch.

aquagauge. A water gauge; a mark on the bank to gauge the rising of the water.

aquage. A waterway; a toll paid for passage over water.

aquagium. A waterway.

aquam ducendi. See jus aquam ducendi.

A qua non deliberentur sine speciali praecepto domini regis. From which they are not to be released without a special order from the king.

aqua pluvia. Rain water.

aqua profluens. Flowing water.

aqua quotidiana. Water available at all times.

aquarum cursus. Watercourses.

aqua salsa. Salt water.

aquatic rights. Rights of fishing and navigation and in the soil under the sea and the rivers.

aquatiles. Waterfowl, such as mallards and heron.

aqua trestornata. Water or a stream turned out of its natural course.

aqua viva. Flowing water.

a quo. From which; from whom.

arabant. Holding by tenure of ploughing and tilling.

Arabant et herciabant ad curiam domini. They ploughed and harrowed at the lord's court.

arable land. Land suitable for ploughing; land other than pasture, woodland and wasteland arace. To raze; to tear out; to uproot.

aracher. To uproot.

aracine. Rooted; with growing roots.

araer. Same as arayer.

aralia. Arable land.

arare. To plough.

aratia. Same as aralia.

arationes. (Roman law.) Public lands leased at a yearly rental of one-tenth of the yield.

arator. A ploughman.

aratores. (Roman law.) Tenants of public lands.

aratrum terrae. Service rendered by a tenant by ploughing the land.

aratura terrae. The ploughing of the land; feudal service by ploughing.

araturia. Same as aralia. arayer. To array; to arrange; to fix.

arbiter. An arbitrator; formerly, a person who was governed in his decisions by law and equity, rather than by his own judgment.

arbitrable. Capable of being submitted to arbitration; a matter constituting a controversy which may be the subject of an action. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 54.

arbitrage. The computation of differences in rates of money exchange and in the market values of securities for the purpose of profiting by sales and purchases in different places. A simultaneous matched purchase and sale of identical or equivalent securities. Falco v Donner Foundation, Inc. (CA2 NY) 208 F2d 600, 40 ALR2d 1340. A transaction sometimes employed to profit by differences in the rate of exchange; sometimes to capitalize dividends and prevent their receipt as income. Falco v Donner Foundation, Inc. supra.

arbitral. Pertaining to arbitration.

arbitrament. The award of arbitrators.

Arbitramenturn aequum tribuit cuique suum. A just arbitration renders to each party what is his.

arbitranda. To be judged.

arbitrar. (Spanish.) To adjudge or award; to strike out means or expedients. Sheldon v Milmo, 90 Tex 1, 15.

arbitrarily. Acting in an unreasonable or arbitrary manner.

arbitrary. According to notion or whim rather than according to law. Despotic; without reason. Fixed or arrived at through an exercise of will or by caprice, without consideration or adjustment with reference to principles, circumstances or significance. United States v Carmack, 329 US 230, 91 L Ed 209, 67 S Ct 252.

A legislative classification of a group of persons is not arbitrary if it is based on a substantial difference between that group of persons and all other persons and such difference bears a proper relation to the purposes of the statute. Krebs v Board of Trustees, 410 111 435, 102 NE2d 321, 27 ALR2d 1434.

arbitrary decision. A decision rendered by a court, or judge, or other officer exercising judicial functions which is based upon the will of the officer alone, and not upon any course of reasoning and exercise of judgment. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co. v Welch, 71 Okla 59, 175 P 45, 49.

arbitrary discretion. Unsound discretion; deciding by whim or caprice; discretion exercised for an erroneous reason. National Ben. Life Ins. Co. v Shaw-Walker Co. 71 App DC 276, 111 F2d 497.

arbitrary government. An absolute monarchy or, as in modern times, a totalitarian government.

arbitrary punishment. A sentence that is not supported by law. Ex parte Lamar (02) 274 F 160, 24 ALR 864, affd 260 US 711, 67 L Ed 476, 43 S Ct 251.

arbitrary test. An unreasonable test; a test imposed without reference to the purpose professed to be accomplished; discrimination.

arbitrate. To submit to arbitration; to settle a controversy by arbitration.

[89]

arbitration. A mode of settling differences through the investigation and determination, by one or more persons selected for the purpose, of some disputed matter submitted to them by the contending parties for decision and award, in lieu of a judicial proceeding. Crosby v State Board of Hail Ins. 113 Mont 470, 129 P2d 99.

See board of arbitration.

Arbitration Act. A federal statute providing for the arbitration of disputes involved in maritime transactions or commerce. 9 USC §§ 1-14; Annos: 64 ALR2d 1338, §§ 2,3[a]; 100 L Ed 211. One of the uniform laws. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 10.

The federal statute on arbitration is strictly limited to maritime transactions and commerce, but it is sufficient for the application of the statute that the matter involved is either a maritime transaction or commerce; it is not necessary that it be both. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 6.

arbitration agreement. A contract to submit a dispute or disputes to arbitration, either present controversies or disputes which may arise in the future. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 11.

arbitration and award. A plea raising the defense that the matter in suit has been previously settled by an arbitration.

arbitration association. See American Arbitration Association.

arbitration board. See board of arbitration.

arbitration bond. A bond of one of the parties to an arbitration given to secure his submission to the award.

arbitration clause. A clause in a contract providing for arbitration of any controversy arising out of the contract and its performance.

Sometimes such clause is incorporated by reference to the rules of a trade association or other organization. Anno: 41 ALR2d 872.

arbitration court. The International Court of Arbitration, known as the Hague Tribunal, established by the International Peace Conference in 1899.

This tribunal was succeeded by the Permanent Court of International Justice, established in 1920 under the auspices of the League of Nations, which in turn was succeeded by the International Court of Justice, established as the judicial branch of the United Nations organization. 30 Am J Rev ed Intenat L § 54.

arbitratione facta. See de arbitratione facta.

arbitration of exchange. The payment in one country by a bill of exchange drawn upon a party in another country.

arbitration of labor dispute. The hearing, determination, decision, and award by a board of arbitrators of the issues involved in a labor dispute.

arbitrators. Private, extraordinary judges of a domestic tribunal chosen by parties by whose agreement they are invested with quasi-judicial power to decide, finally, and without appeal, matters in dispute between the parties. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 84.

See arbitrators; board of arbitration.

arbitratus. Awarded.

arbitrement. Same as arbitrament.

arbitrios. (Spanish.) The taxes which, in default of other means of revenue, a town imposes with competent authority upon certain articles of merchandise. As indicating the sources of revenue of a municipality, the words "proprios" and "arbitrios" are usually found linked together and when so connected, they are sometimes used as meaning "ways and means." Sheldon v Milmo, 90 Tex 1, 15.

arbitrium. A Roman law judgment in which the judge was governed largely by his conscience; an award of arbitrators.

arbitrium alieno. See in arbitrium alieno.

arbitrium boni viri. (Roman law.) The award or decision of a good man.

Freely translated, the decision upon the facts and circumstances of a case which would be made by a man of intelligence and high moral principle. 1 Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence, § 43.

Arbitrium est iudicium. An award is a judgment.

Arbitrium est iudicium boni viri, secundum acquum et bonum. An award is a judgment of a good man according to equity and good conscience.

arbitrium judicis. See in arbitrium judicis.

arbor. A tree; a bower; a place shaded by trees or shrubbery.

arbor civilis consanguinitatis. A family tree.

Arbor dum crescit, lignum dum crescere nescit. It is a tree while it grows, but it is wood when it is not growing. Dexter v Taber, 12 Johns (NY) 239, 241.

arbor finalis. A boundary line tree.

arca. A money chest.

area chirographica. A chest in which money lenders kept evidences of indebtedness.

arcana imperii. Imperial secrets.

arearius. A treasurer.

arcevesque. A bishop.

arcessere. (Roman law.) To summon to court; to bring before a judge.

arcevesche. An archbishop.

archabbot. The chief abbot of a monastery.

Archaionomia, sive de priscis Anglorum legis. A compilation of Saxon law published in the reign of Elizabeth, about 1600.

archbishop. A metropolitan bishop; a prelate; one in the hierarchy of the church who has supervision over the bishops in a church province.

archbishopric. The diocese or jurisdiction of an archbishop.

archdeacon. An ecclesiastical officer, with jurisdiction immediately subordinate to the bishop, throughout the whole of the diocese, or in some particular part of it.

archdeacon's court. An English ecclesiastical court with jurisdiction in probate, administration and ecclesiastical matters within the archdeanery; and, later, in the twelfth century, acquiring a customary jurisdiction. An appeal lay from the archdeacon's court to the consistory court.

[90]

archtleanery. One of the divisions or parts of a diocese, in charge of an archdeacon, under the English ecclesiastical system.

archery. The feudal service of maintaining a bow for the defense of the castle; the sport, skill, or past-time of shooting with bow and arrow.

arches. See dean of the arches.

arches court. An ecclesiastical court of appeal and of original jurisdiction. It was the court of appeal from all the diocesan courts, and its original jurisdiction, which had been universal in ecclesiastical cases, was greatly curtailed by the Statute of Citations, in 1529.

archetype. An original document.

archidiaconus. An archdeacon.

archiepiscopal. Pertaining to an archbishop.

archiepisopus. An archbishop.

Archiepiscopus Cantaur. The Archbishop of Canterbury.

Archiepiscopus Ebor. The Archbishop of York.

archievesque. An archbishop.

architect. One whose profession it is to form and devise plans and designs, and draw up specifications, for buildings or structures, and to superintend their construction. Arkansas State Board of Architects v Bank Bldg. & Equipment Corp. 225 Ark 889, 286 SW2d 323, 56 ALR2d 720. 5 Am J2d Arch § 1.

architect's certificate. See certificate of architect or engineer.

architect's lien. A statutory lien upon the real estate for compensation for preparing plans and specifications or for superintendence, or for both plans and superintendence. 5 Am J2d Arch §§ 20-22.

architectural design. A design drawn for the purpose of construction according to architectural detail, in scale, and in accordance with the principles of mathematics, aesthetics, and the physical sciences. Hecht v Commuter's Cafe, 193 Misc 170, 80 NYS2d 86L archium. Same as archives.

archives. Public records and papers required or permitted by law to be filed in public places of deposit for preservation and use as evidence of facts or because of historical interest archivum. Same as archive.

archon. An Athenian magistrate.

archpriest. (Eccles.) The dean of a cathedral.

arch-see. The see or diocese of an archbishop.

arcifinies. Those landed estates which have natural boundaries, such as rivers, mountains or woods. The right of alluvion belongs to those whose estates are arcifinies, and not to others. Smith v St. Louis Public Schools, 30 Mo 290, 303.

arcifinious. Possessing a frontier which forms a natural defense.

arcium constructio. The building of forts or defensive works. This was a part of the trinoda necessitas, to which every man's estate was subject under the ancient law of England. Butler v Perry, 240 US 328, 331, 60 L Ed 672, 674, 36 S Ct 258.

arct. Forced; compelled; constrained.

areta. Same as arct.

arctable. Forcible.

arcta et salva custodia. In close and safe custody.

arctare. To bind; to force; to constrain.

ardent spirits. Distilled liquors. Sarlls v United States, 152 US 571, 38 L Ed 556, 14 S Ct 721.

arder. To burn.

ardhel. Same as arthel.

ardour. An incendiary.

ardours de mesons. Burners of houses.

Ardours sont qui ardent cite, ville, maison, beast, on autres chateux. Ardours are those who burn a city, a village, a house, a beast or other chattels.

are. A French measure of area, being the equivalent of 119.6046 square yards.

area. An open space within a house or an adjoining inclosure.

area concept. The scheme in public housing projects whereby whole areas are selected for redevelopment, notwithstanding some of the properties may not be substandard or blighted. Berman v Parker 348 US 26, 99 L Ed 27, 75 S Ct 98.

area of production. A technical term employed in determining exemptions from the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act; a zone within which economic influences operate and outside of which they lose their force. Addison v Holly Hill Fruit Products, 322 US 607, 88 L Ed 1488, 64 S Ct 1215, 153 ALR 1007, reh den 323 US 809, 89 L Ed 645, 65 S Ct 27. A territorial area, wherein it is farm labor involved in the production of agricultural commodities, as distinguished from industrial labor required before such commodities are offered for sale to the consumer. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 690.

area-sneak. A thief who sneaks around dwellings in order to steal.

areaway. A cellar or room under the sidewalk on a street. 25 Am J1st Highways § 263.

arcister. Same as arester. arenales. Sandy beaches.

a rendre. To render.

arenes. Same as arraigned.

arenifodina. In Roman law, -a sandpit.

arentare. To rent.

areopagus. The seat of religious, political and judicial government in ancient Athens.

arer. Same as arrer.

arere. In arrear; back.

areremain. Back again.

arer et semer. To plough and sow.

[91]

arerissement. Delay; hindrance.

A rescriptio argumentum. An argument based upon original writs in the record.

aresenez. Same as arraigned.

aresnes. Same as arraigned.

arestare. Same as arrestare.

arester. To arrest; to stop.

arester. The creditor in an arrestment.

aret. Same as arret.

a retro. In arrears.

aretro. Same as a retro.

arg. An abbreviation of arguendo.

argentaria. Dealing in money.

argentarii. Money lenders.

argentarius. A money lender; a banker.

argentarius miles. A porter who carried money in the exchequer.

argenteus. A Roman coin worth about a denarius and a half.

argentifodina. A silver mine.

argentum. Silver.

argentum album. Uncoined silver; silver coin; white rent.

argentum Dei. God's money: an earnest given to bind a bargain.

argentum factum. Silver which has been wrought into some article.

argentum infectum. Silver which has not been wrought into anything.

arguendo. In argument; by way of argument.

argument. A reason offered to induce belief and convince the mind. Rahles v J. Thompson & Sons Mfg. Co. 137 Wis 506, 118 NW 350.

argumentative. Inferential; contentious.

argumentative denial. A denial in an argumentative or reasoning manner and not in direct, positive form of proper pleading. 41 Am J1st PI § 134.

argumentative instruction. An instruction given by the court in its charge to the jury which directs the jury to look to certain facts as tending toward certain conclusions.

Such an instruction is objectionable but not reversible error, unless it appears to be prejudicial. 53 Am J1st Trial § 552.

argumentative pleading. A pleading which makes its allegations in the manner of reasoning rather than by direct and positive statements. 41 Am J1st PI § 134.

argumentative traverse. An argumentative plea or answer. 41 Am J1st PI § 134.

argument of counsel. The discussion by counsel for the respective parties of their contentions on the law and the facts of the case in hand in order to aid the jury in arriving at a correct and just conclusion. 53 Am J1st Trial § 452.

See opening statement; summing up.

argument on appeal. A written or printed legal argument, sometimes supplemented by an oral presentation, intended to assist the court in arriving at a just and proper conclusion by presenting the side of a party as supported by points of law and facts in evidence. 5 Am J2d A & E § 684.

See brief.

argumentum. Argument.

Argumentum ab auctoritate. Argument based on authority.

Argumentum ab impossibili. An argument drawn from an impossibility.

Argumentum ab inconvenienti. An argument drawn from the inconvenience of a thing. Park v Candler, 114 Ga 466, 503.

Argumentum ab inconvenienti plurimum valet in lege. An argument drawn from the inconvenience of the thing is very forcible in law. See Broom's Legal Maxims, 184.

Argumentum a communiter accidentibus. An argument from ordinary occurrences.

argumentum ad crumenam. An argument addressed to the purse.

argumentum ad hominem. An argument addressed to the man, that is, a personal argument.

argumentum ad ignorantiam. An argument addressed to ignorance, that is, one based upon the ignorance of the audience.

argumentum ad invidiam. An argument resting in hatred or prejudice.

Argumentum a divisione. An argument from a division of the matter.

argumentum ad iudicium. An argument appealing to one's judgment.

argumentum ad verecundiam. An argument addressed to the sense of decency.

Argumentum a majori ad minus. An argument from the greater to the less.

Argumentum a simili. Argument from analogy.

argumentum baculinum. An argument appealing to the club, to violence.

argumentum ex concessio. An argument based upon what has been conceded or admitted.

aribannum. A feudal penalty imposed for disobedience of the king's order to take up arms.

arid lands. Lands of western states in need of reclamation by irrigation. 30 Am 3 Rev ed Irrig §§ 92112.

A district is "arid" where rainfall is insufficient for agricultural purposes. Hall v Carter, 33 Tex Civ App 230, 233, 77 SW 19.

arier ban. Same as arrier ban.

ariere. See en ariere.

[92]

arimanni. Freemen who were employed on farms.

aripenna. Same as arpennus.

aripennum. Same as arpennus.

arise. To come into being or notice, as a cause of action arising at a particular time and place. Sherman v Droubay, 27 Utah 47, 74 P 348.

arisen. Generally understood to be the equivalent of "accrued", where it pertains to a cause of action. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac §46.

arising in another state. The accrual of a cause of action in a foreign jurisdiction in which the obligation was to be paid or discharged. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 224.

arising out of and in the course of the employment. Imposing double conditions, both of which must be satisfied before liability for workmen's compensation arises. 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 209.

arising out of or in the course of the employment. Conditions imposed in the disjunctive, the fulfillment of either of which is sufficient in respect of liability for workmen's compensation. 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 209.

arising out of the employment. Implying a causal connection between an injury to an employee and the performance of work required of him. 38 Am J1st Workm Comp § 211.

aristarchy. Government by the best men of the country.

aristocracy. A government ruled by a class; an elite class; those who excel in a group, as the aristocracy of football coaches.

aristodemocracy. Government by a combination of the nobility and the common people.

arles. Money given as an earnest to bind a bargain.

arm. Noun: A limb of the human and ape body; a weapon. Verb: To furnish with weapons.

arma. Arms; weapons.

arma capere. To take arms; to assume knighthood.

arma dare. To give arms; to knight.

Arma in armatosjura sinunt. The laws permit the use of arms against those who are armed.

arma libera. Free arms; the sword and lance given to a servant upon his manumission.

armamenta navis. The paraphernalia of a ship.

arma moluta. Cutting weapons.

arma pacis et justitiae. The arms of peace and justice.

arma perturbationis pacis et injuriae. Arms of broken peace and injustice.

arma reversata. Reversed arms, an ancient punishment for treason and felony.

arma suscipere. To assume knighthood.

armata vis. Armed force; armed services.

armatura. Armor.

armature. Armor; the revolving part of a dynamo or motor.

arme. A weapon.

armed. Furnished, equipped, or carrying weapons of offense or defense. State v Lynch, 88 Me 195, 198, 33 A 978. Carrying weapons for offensive or defensive combat. 56 Am J1st Weap § 2. armed country. A nation prepared for war.

armed force. A posse of citizens called to duty to help maintain order or arrest a person charged with crime. Chapin v Ferry, 3 Wash 386, 28 P 754.

Armed Forces. The entire military establishment of the United States; Army, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard, etc.

armed neutrality. The state of a country which is neutral as to the belligerents but arms to resist attack or invasion.

armed peace. The state of a country which in time of peace is ready for war; in the terminology of the day, a cold war.

armed services. The entire body of officers, noncommissioned officers, and enlisted men which stands ready for defense of the country, whether by land, sea, or in the air, perhaps, some day in space.

armed ship. A merchantman which has been equipped for fighting.

armig. Same as armiger.

armiger. A squire; a knight's armor bearer; one entitled to bear heraldic arms.

armigeri natalitii. Armor bearers or esquires by birth. Such were the eldest sons of younger sons of peers, and their eldest sons. See 1 Bl Comm 406.

armistice. An agreed interruption of hostilities between belligerent nations; a truce.

arm of the sea. A bay or river where the tide of the sea ebbs and flows.

armor bearer. One who carried the equipment of a knight or other fighting man; a squire.

Armorum appellatione, non solum scuta et gladii et fustes et lapides continentur. Under the term "arms" are included, not only shields and swords, but also clubs and stones.

arms. See bearing arms; weapons; insignia.

arms-bearing. See bearing arms.

arm's length. See at arm's length.

arms of the United States. The armed forces and armaments of all kinds of the United States. 22 USC § 2552(a).

armum molutum. A cutting weapon.

army. A body of armed men, or a body of men part of whom are armed and part of whom bear or work with other equipment compatible with their duties, so organized and disciplined as to act together, be mutually reliant, and perform in unison the evolutions of the march and the battlefield upon command given therefor. 36 Am J1st Mil § 3.

Army. The land forces of the United States Armed Services.

[93]

arnica. A drug. State Board of Pharmacy v Matthews, 197 NY 353, 90 NE 966.

aromatarius. A grocer.

arpen. Same as arpent.

In Louisiana, the word is infrequently and incorrectly used when the word "acre" is meant. Randolph v Sentilles, 110 La 419, 34 So 587.

arpent. An ancient French land measure containing 100 perches, the equivalent of 100 square rods.

arpentator. A land surveyor.

arpentum. Same as arpent. arpine. Same as arpent.

arra. An earnest payment to bind a bargain.

arrage. Insane; demented.

arraign an assign. To sue; to arrange or prepare for an action or a trial.

arraigner. To arraign.

arraignment. The act of bringing an accused before a court to answer the charge made against him by indictment, information, or complaint. It consists of bringing the accused into court, reading the charge to him then and there, and then calling upon him to plead thereto as "guilty" or "not guilty."

arraigns. See clerk of arraigns.

arrainare. To arraign.

arrameur. A port officer who directed the proper loading and stowing of cargoes.

arranare. Same as arrainare.

arrangement. A term for what was formerly called a composition; a word with a dual meaning, one being the proceeding by which a debtor, in failing circumstances but not hopelessly insolvent, may have his financial affairs adjusted in the bankruptcy court and be rehabilitated; the other being the plan worked out in the proceeding whereby rehabilitation may be accomplished.

See deed of arrangement; family arrangement.

arrangement of music. An adaptation of a musical composition to instruments or voices other than those for which it was originally produced, such being a protected right under a copyright of the original composition. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 22.

arrangement of words. An author's intellectual production; the subject of copyright. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 4.

arras. A civil law term for property which the husband gives the wife on account of marriage. Cutter v Waddingham, 22 Mo 206, 254.

array. Noun: The list of names attached to the writ of venire which indicates the names of persons to be summoned as jurors. 31 Am J Rev ed Jury § 74. Also, the whole body of men and women summoned for jury duty. Durrah v State, 44 Miss 789, 796. An impanelled jury. Verb: To select jurors.

arrearages. Same as arrears.

arrears. Payments past-due, as arrears in alimony. Passed dividends on preferred stock. Anno: .25 ALR2d 802.

arrect. To charge or accuse; charged or accused.

arrectatus. One accused or suspected of a crime.

arreist. (Scotch.) An arrest.

arrenatus. Arraigned; accused.

arrendamiento. (Spanish.) A lease of realty.

arrent. To lease; to let at a rental.

arrentatio. Same as arrentation.

arrentation. The right or privilege of leasing; the privilege granted to a tenant of forest land to enclose it on paying rent.

arrer. To plough.

arrerages. Same as arrears.

arreragium. Arrears; the balance due on an account.

arrere. To plough.

arrer le prees. To plough the meadows.

arrest. The taking, seizing or detaining of the person of another, accomplished by (1) touching or putting hands on the person to be detained; (2) or by any act that indicates an intention to take him into custody and that subjects him to the actual control and will of the person making the arrest; or (3) by the consent of the person to be arrested. 5 Am J2d Arr § 1. In military law, the detention of a member of the armed forces resulting from the preferring of charges and the convening of a court-martial. United States v Smith, 197 US 386, 49 L Ed 801, 25 S Ct 489.

See false arrest; malicious arrest; posse comitatus; rearrest; rescue; return of warrant of arrest; warrant of arrest.

arrestandis bonis ne dissipentur. A writ which, pending litigation, prevented an irresponsible party to the action from making away with chattels involved in the action.

arrestando ipsum qui pecuniam recepit. For arresting one who received money,-a writ for the arrest of a man who had received money for enlistment in the army and had then disappeared.

arrestare. To make an arrest.

arrestari et imprisonari. To be arrested and imprisoned.

arrestatio. Same as arrestment.

arrestation. The act of arresting or of making an arrest.

arrestatio navium. The arrestment of ships.

arrestee. The person in whose possession goods are held under an arrestment; a garnishee in Scotch law.

Arrestentur corpora eorum. Their bodies shall be arrested.

arrestor. The party who sues out an arrestment.

arrest for debt. See imprisonment for debt.

arrest in civil action. See civil arrest.

arrestment. An old English and Scottish term for what is better known today as foreign attachment or garnishment, but applying only to the provisional remedy, not to any proceeding under or in aid of an execution. Wilder v InterIsland Steam Navigation Co. 211 US 239, 246, 53 L Ed 164, 167, 29 S Ct 58.

arrestment jurisdictionis fundandae causa.

[94]

An arrestment for the purpose of founding jurisdiction, a Scotch writ whereby a defendant was brought within the jurisdiction by attaching his goods.

arresto facto super bonis mercatorum alienigenorum. A writ against the goods of aliens found in England to obtain recompense for goods taken from a denizen in a foreign country.

arrest of judgment. A remedy by motion for a party against whom a verdict has been rendered. A remedy solely for the defendant under the earlier practice where a judgment non obstante veredicto was available only for a plaintiff. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 292. Preventing entry of judgment upon the verdict in a criminal case. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 520.

arrest of ship. A temporary detention, without design of depriving the owner of the vessel, but to liberate or restore the ship or goods detained, or to pay the value thereof. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1323.

arrest on mesne process. Provisional relief by an attachment of the person of the defendant in a civil action.

arrests of princes. See restraints of princes.

arrestum. An arrest.

arrest without warrant. An arrest by a peace officer, or even by a private person in some instances, which is legal, notwithstanding the absence of a warrant of arrest, because of the existence of justification under the law, as where the officer has reasonable cause to believe that a felony has been committed and that the person arrested is the person guilty of the crime, and where an arrest made by a private person was that of a person who had committed an offense in his presence. 5 Am J2d Crim L §§ 22 et seq.

arret. The decision of a court; a published decree.

arretted. Arraigned; accused.

arrha. Same as arra. arrhabo. An earnest paid to bind a bargain.

arrahae sponsalitia. (Roman law.) Betrothal gifts of either of the betrothed to the other.

arrhes. Earnest money.

arriage and carriage. Indefinite and unlawful services formerly demanded of servants.

arriere fee. A fee dependent upon a superior fee.

arriere fief. Same as arriere fee.

arriere vassal. The vassal or a vassal.

arrivagium. An arrival.

arrival of ship. A term of various meanings, depending on the context in which it appears.

An American ship does not arrive at a foreign port, so as to require the master to deposit his papers with the American consul or commercial agent, unless the ship comes in on business which requires an entry, stay, and clearance, something more than coming in to escape a storm, to receive advice about the market, or ascertain the state of the weather. 48 Am J1st Ship § 222. For the purpose of marine insurance a ship ordinarily has not arrived until she has dropped anchor or moored; in the case where a voyage policy is involved, not until she has been moored in safety for 24 hours. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 328.

Within the meaning of the Federal Tariff Act of September 21, 1922, dealing with the unlawful unloading of ships, a ship was held to have "arrived" when she cast anchor seven or eight miles off the seacoast for the purpose of there disposing of her cargo. The Cherie (CAI Me) 13 F2d 992.

arrogate. To assert a claim to, or take, something without right; to exercise authority which one does not have.

arrogatio. An adoption wherein the person adopted submits in his own right.

See arrogation.

arrogation. Claiming or taking more than is lawfully due-, taking or asserting without right.

arrogator. The adopting parent in an adoption arrogatio.

arrondissement. (French.) A department subdivision.

arroyo. (Spanish origin) A stream or watercourse; a natural channel through which surface or flood waters flow. Kroeger v Twin Buttes R. Co. 13 Ariz 348, 114 P 553.

arrura. Same as arura.

ars. Burnt; consumed by fire.

arsae et pensatae. Burnt and weighed; used of coins to be minted.

arse. A good old English word for buttocks.

arsenic. A poison used in many murders.

arser in le main. Branding by burning on the hand.

arseun. Same as arson.

arsine. Same as arson.

arsion. Same as arson.

arson. At common law, the malicious and voluntary or wilful burning of another's house, or dwelling house, or outhouse appurtenant to or a parcel of the dwelling house or within the curtilage.

By statute, the common law definition has been enlarged to make it applicable to the burning of buildings and property other than dwelling houses or other houses within the curtilage. 5 Am J2d Arson § 1.

See attempt to commit arson.

arsure in le main. Same as arser in le main.

art. A creation of form and beauty; the ability to create; cunning or craft.

'Art,' within the meaning of the law of patents, is the mode or process of treating materials so as to produce a given result. Expanded Metal Co. v Bradford, 214 US 366, 53 L Ed 1034, 29 S Ct 652.

art and part. A Scotch term for abetting or instigating a crime; that is, for "arting" or instigating and participating.

arte. Forced; compelled; constrained.

arteriosclerosis. Hardening of the arteries. A diseased condition so serious that it should be revealed in answer to an interrogatory in an application for life insurance as to consultation with a physician. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v Manley (DC Ga) 27 F2d 915, affd (CA5) 35 F2d 337.

[95]

artesian. The water contained or carried in a stratum of rock imprisoned between two impervious strata, the water-bearing stratum being inclined, and coming to the surface at some distant and higher point, called the "intake," where it receives the water, which percolates with greater or less rapidity along and through the inclined stratum, obedient to the law of gravity, until it reaches some obstruction so as to be imprisoned, in which event, if the stratum is pierced, water will rise in a tube or well by hydrostatic pressure, due to the greater height of the intake. 56 Am J1st Waters § 111.

The word "artesian" is often used to refer to underground water, notwithstanding it does not rise to the surface upon the piercing of the stratum. 56 Am J1st Waters § 112.

artesian well. A well in which water rises from a lower stratum under its own pressure and flows continuously above the surface of the ground. 56 Am J1st Waters §111.

arthe. To avouch.

article. Noun: A division of a constitution, statute, contract, charter, or of any other written or printed statement of principles, terms or conditions. A material or substance, natural artificial or manufactured in whole or in part. Junge v Hedden, 146 US 233, 238, 36 L Ed 953, 956, 13 S Ct 88. The adjective "a" or "an," known as the indefinite article. Verb: To bind by contract or agreement; to enter into a written contract containing several clauses or divisions.

articled clerk. A lawyer's clerk bound to him by a contract (articles) for his services and for his instruction in law.

articles approbatory. (Scotch.) A reply corresponding to an answer to a bill in equity.

articles improbatory. (Scotch.) A proceeding corresponding to the bill or complaint in an equity suit.

articles of agreement. A contract in writing, or a signed memorandum of a contract.

articles of apprenticeship. An instrument consisting of a contract or indenture whereby a minor was bound out to a master for a fixed period to learn a trade.

articles of association. The agreement entered into by and between the members on forming an unincorporated association. 6 Am J2d Asso & C § 5.

articles of commerce. Articles which are the subject of trade and barter, offered in the market as something having an existence and value independent of the parties to them; commodities to be shipped or forwarded from one state to another and then put up for sale.

An article becomes an article of interstate commerce when it becomes an article of trade from one state to another, and this does not occur until it begins to move, and this movement does not begin until the article is shipped, or is started for transportation from the one state to the other. Ware v Mobile County, 146 Ala 163, 41 So 153.

Articles of Confederation. The instrument forming the Confederation of the original thirteen states of the Union which was in force from March 1, 1781, to March 4, 1789. Owings v Speed, 18 US (5 Wheat) 420, 5 L Ed 124.

It formed a mere league of states, not a union of, states in a nation, as did the Constitution which superseded it.

Articles of Faith. The creed of the Church of England known as the thirty-nine articles.

articles of impeachment. The formal written charge against the defendant in an impeachment proceeding.

articles of incorporation. The instrument, otherwise known as certificate of incorporation, which states the purpose or purposes for which the corporation is being organized, the place of business, the amount of authorized capital stock and a description of the classes of shares if the shares are to be classified, the amount of paid in capital with which it will begin business, the number of directors, the names and addresses of the directors for the first year, and the names and addresses of the incorporators. 18 Am J2d Corp § 36. The charter, in other words, the organic law of a corporation. 18 Am J2d Corp § 81.

articles of partnership. The agreement signed by the members of a partnership by which they are bound together as partners.

Articles of Religion. Same as Articles of Faith.

articles of roup. (Scotch.) The memorandum of the conditions governing a public auction sale.

articles of set. (Scotch.) A leasehold agreement.

articles of the clergy. An English statute, passed in 1315, concerning clergymen. 9 Edward 11, ch 3.

articles of the navy. Statutory regulations governing the United States Navy.

articles of the peace. The complaint in a proceeding to compel a person to give bond to keep the peace.

Articles of Union. The compact of 1707 uniting the kingdoms of England and Scotland.

Articles of War. See Code of Military Justice.

articulate. To prepare a writing under separate clauses or provisions; to express one's thoughts clearly. The word is also an adjective, meaning ability to express; a clear method of expression.

articulate adjudication. (Scotch.) The practice of ascertaining the amount of each debt by itself where several different debts are due one creditor.

articulated pleading. A pleading in separate counts.

articuli. Articles.

Articuli Cleri. Articles of the clergy,---the title of the statute 9 Edward 11, C. 3, passed in 1315 concerning clergymen. See 4 Bl Comm 217.

articuli de moneta. Statutes concerning the English public currency.

Articuli Magnae Chartae. The preliminary forty-nine articles forming the basis for the Magna Charta.

Articuli Super Cartas. Same as Articuli Super Chartas.

Articuli Super Chartas. Articles upon the charters-the title of the statute 28 Edward 1, c. 3, the purpose of which was to carry out and enforce the provisions of Magna Charta and Charta de Foresta. See 3 Bl Comm 45.

articulo. To speak distinctly; sometimes loosely used for "articulus." articulo mortis. At the moment or point of death.

[96]

articulus. An article; a part of a discourse. A moment; a point of time.

artifice. Cunning; deception; a trick; a fraud. State v Hemm, 82 Iowa 609, 617, 48 NW 971.

artificer. A workman or mechanic, as distinguished from an employer of such persons.

artificial. Created by man, not by nature. Having an existence presumed in law only, as a corporation.

artificial boundary. A boundary erected by man, as distinguished from a natural boundary, such as a stream.

artificial force. Natural force captured and channeled by the ingenuity of man.

artificial gas. Gas produced for household and industrial use by the burning of coal.

artificial insemination. The means of impregnating a female other than by sexual intercourse. 10 Am J2d, Bast § 1.

artificial limb. A limb of cork, wood, or other composition fitted and attached to the body in place of an amputated arm or leg.

artificial member. An artificial limb.

artificial person. A person created by law or by authority of law, such as a corporation, as distinguished from a natural person, that is, a human being. See 18 Am J2d Corp § 20.

artificial presumption. A presumption arising by force of the law of the jurisdiction, rather than from logic or probability alone. People v Hildebrandt, 308 NY 397, Holley v Purity Baking Co. 128 W Va 531, 37 SE2d 729, 167 ALR 648.

artificial succession. See perpetual succession.

artificial teeth. See false teeth.

artificial watercourse. A watercourse made by the hand of man.

In determining the nature of an artificial watercourse, three things seem generally to be taken into consideration by the courts: first, whether it is temporary or permanent; secondly, the circumstances under which it was created; and, thirdly, the mode in which it has been enjoyed and used. Where the way is of a permanent character, and is created under circumstances indicating that it shall become permanent, and it has been used consistently with such intention for a considerable period, it is generally regarded as stamped with the character of a natural watercourse. See 56 Am J1st Waters § 151.

artisan. A mechanic. A skilled worker in a trade involving work with the hands. McErlain v Taylor, 207 Ind 240, 192 NE 260, 94 ALR 1284.

artisan's lien. A lien for services in repairing an article. 33 Am J1st Liens § 16.

artist. A person who produces art, that is something of form and beauty; a performer of ability.

art or process. A term familiar in patent law, meaning the method whereby materials are treated so as to produce a given result. Expanded Metal Co. v Bradford, 214 US 366, 53 L Ed 1034, 29 S Ct 652.

arts and uses. See analogous arts and uses.

a rubro ad nigrum. From the red to the black,-from the title of a statute in red ink, to the body of it in black ink.

arura. A ploughing; a day's ploughing.

arva. Plough lands; arable lands.

arx. A fortress or castle.

See arcium constructio.

as. For instance; to give an example; to the same amount or degree; equally.

The "as," or Roman pound, was commonly used to express any integral sum, and was divisible into twelve parts or unciae. Hence, twelve monthly payments or unciae were held to amount annually to one pound or as usurarius; and so the usurae asses were synonymous with the usurae centesimae; that is interest at the rate of one per cent per month, or twelve per cent per annum. See 2 Bl Comm 462.

as agent. An identification in signing a contract which relieves the person signing from personal liability. 3 Am 12d Contr § 190.

as a matter of course. See of course.

as a result of. A form of exception in a life or accident policy excluding injuries or death in connection with aviation or aeronautics. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1262.

asaver. That is to say; to wit.

as cash. A designation of the status in which commercial paper is taken by a bank. The equivalent of saying that title to the paper passes to the bank. 10 Am J2d Banks § 402.

ascaventer. To publish; to certify.

ascavoir. To be understood; that is; to wit.

ascend. To follow an ascending line of ancestors.

ascendent. One in the ascending line of relationship, father or mother, grandfather or grandmother, great grandfather or great grandmother, etc.

ascendentes. Aseendants.

ascendientes. Ascendants.

ascending line of descent. See direct ascending line.

ascent. Climbing; rising; the extension of a genealogical line to the past.

ascertain. To make certain; to fix; to establish with certainty; to establish judicially, that is by the finding and judgment or decree of the court. See Globe Publishing Co. v State Bank of Nebraska, 41 Neb 175, 59 NW 683.

ascerte. Certified as to the fact.

asceverer. To assert; to affirm.

as check. Indicating acceptance of commercial paper by a bank for collection only. 10 Am J2d Banks § 402.

ascient. Knowing; with knowledge; with scienter.

ascribere. Same as adscribere. ascriptitii. See glebae ascriptitii.

ascriptus. Same as adscriptus.

ascun. Someone; anyone.

ascunement. In any manner.

as designated on. Words in a deed, contract to sell, or other instrument concerning real estate, having reference to a map or plat, which, in effect, incorporate the map or plat into the description of the real estate, thereby making the description intelligible. Mitchell v Moore, 152 Fla 843, 13 So 2d 314.

[97]

aseir. To sit.

aselees. Sealed.

a sequendo. From the following.

ases. Assessed.

asexualization. Sterilization of a person; an operation performed upon a person for the purpose of preventing procreation.
See castration; vasectomy.

as his interest may appear. See as interest may appear.

aside. See set aside.

a simile. From analogy.

as interest may appear. A conventional interest in insurance policies intended to protect, not only the named insured, but a mortgagee, lienor, or other person to the extent of whatever interest such person may have in the insured property at the time of the loss.

The phrase appears most often in loss payable or mortgagee clauses of fire insurance policies. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 435.

A stipulation in an assignment of a life insurance policy that the policy is payable as the interest of the assignee may appear means the interest as of the date of the death of the insured, when the policy is to be paid. An assignment of life insurance policies as the assignee's interest in a certain company may appear includes the interest of the assignee as a creditor of such company, and the rights of the assignee are not affected by the bankruptcy of the company except as the amount of the indebtedness is reduced by dividends on the assignee's claim filed in the bankruptcy proceedings; nor are such rights affected by the bankruptcy of the company. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 682.

as is. See sale as is.

ask. To petition; to include in a prayer for relief.

asking price. The price at which a landowner lists his property for sale with a real estate broker. 12 Am J2d Brok § 111.

A societate nomen sumpserunt, reges enim tales sibi associant. They took their name from the society, for they were the associates of the king. See 1 Bl Comm 398.

as of course. As a matter of course; as a matter of right; without the interposition of the court. Stoddard v Treadwell, 29 Cal 281.

See amendment as of course; motion of course.

asoyne. Same as essoign.

as paper. Indicating acceptance of commercial paper by a bank for collection only. 10 Am J2d Banks § 402.

aspect. View; possibility.

See contingency with a double aspect.

as per. In accordance with. 17 Am J2d Contr § 281.

Thus, a merchant shipping goods in compliance with a letter of instructions to that effect, may write, "I have this day shipped goods as per instructions contained in your letter," meaning in accordance with the instructions; and one who draws bills upon another by agreement may write, "as per agreement, I have drawn," etc., meaning in accordance with, or subject to our agreement, or as by agreement authorized, I have drawn, etc. Continental Bank & Trust Co. v Times Publishing Co. 142 La 209, 76 So 612.

as per contract. In accordance with the contract. Words which destroy the negotiability of a bill or note when incorporated in the terms thereof. 11 Am J2d B & N § 143.

asperse. To defame; to slander or libel.

aspersive. Defamatory; slanderous; libellous.

asphalt. A bitumen, a constituent of a mixture used in paving streets and highways, found in a natural state or obtained by the processing of crude oil.

asphyxia. A condition of unconsciousness resulting from want of oxygen or too much carbon dioxide in the blood; a stopping of the pulse from the same cause. State v Baldwin, 36 Kan 1, 12 P 318. A condition caused as well by carbon monoxide in the blood. Davey v Turner, 55 Ga App 786, 191 SE 383; 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1279.

asphyxiation. A state of asphyxia. Suffering asphyxia.

See asphyxia.

aspirin. Acetylsalicylic acid; much used in tablet form for relieving headache.

asport. To carry away in the commission of larceny.

asportare. To carry away.

asportation. The act of carrying away.

In larceny it is the carrying away of the goods following the caption or taking possession of them; it is the very first act of removal of the property and may consist of the least removing of the thing taken ' See 32 Am J1st Larc § 17. Asportation is also an essential element of the crime of robbery. The taking of absolute control of the property, even for an instant, constitutes asportation. 46 Am J1st Rob § 6.

asportator. One who carries away stolen goods.

asportatus. Carried away.

asportavit. He carried away.

Aspris facetiis inlusus, quae ubi multum ex vero traxere, acrem sui memoriam relinquunt. Being teased with cutting jests which when they are almost true leave a bitter remembrance. 4 Bl Comm 151.

A. S. R. See Am. St. Rep.

as result of pregnancy. Resulting from pregnancy. Anno: 97 ALR2d 1068.

ass. A donkey, a dull or incompetent person; a very common and unrefined expression for buttocks. An abbreviation of assize.

assach. (Welsh) An oath made by compurgators.

assaia. Same as assay.

assaia mensurarum et ponderum. The assay of measures and weights.

assailant. A person who assails, or who assaults another; the aggressor. Scales v State, 96 Ala 69, 75, 11 So 121.

assaith. Same as assath.

assallire. To assault.

[98]

assaltus. An assault.

assart. To root up trees; to deforest land; the land so deforested.

assartare. To assart.

assartments. Same as assart rent.

assart rent. Rent paid for land which had been deforested.

assassin. One who murders, striking suddenly and without warning, often for pay, sometimes from misguided motives, and usually making an important personage a victim.

assassination. The commission of a murder treacherously, with violence, for hire or as a member of a group devoted to killing.

assassinator. An assassin.

assath. Same as assach.

assault. A demonstration of an unlawful intent by one person to inflict immediate injury on the person of another then present; an intentional attempt by a person, by force or violence, to do an injury to the person of another; an attempt to commit a battery, or any threatening gesture showing in itself or by words accompanying it an immediate intention, coupled with the present ability, to commit a battery. 6 Am J2d Asslt & B § 3. An act, other than the mere speaking of words, which directly or indirectly is the legal cause of putting another in apprehension of an immediate and harmful or offensive contact, rendering the actor civilly liable, if he intends thereby to inflict a harmful or offensive contact upon the other or a third person or to put the other or a third person in apprehension thereof, and the act is not consented to by the other, or otherwise privileged. Restatement, Torts § 21(1).

The prolonged, excessive, and emotionally distressing interrogation of a civilian by a sergeant assigned to the Army's Criminal Investigation Division, which interrogation results in the temporary insanity of the civilian, constitutes an "assault" which is expressly excepted from the coverage of the Federal Tort Claims Act. United States v Hambleton (CA9 Wash) 185 F2d 564, 23 ALR2d 568. As the term "assault" appears in an exception, in a life or accident insurance policy, which relieves the insurer from liability for injuries or death sustained in such an altercation, it imports fault on the part of the insured. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1201.

See aggravated assault; civil assault; criminal assault.

assault and battery. An assault upon a person carried into effect by striking him, throwing him down, or otherwise doing some violence to him. Rell v State, 136 Me 322, 9 A2d 129, 125 ALR 602.

assault with a dangerous or deadly weapon. An assault aggravated by the means used, a weapon inherently dangerous or capable of use in a deadly or dangerous manner. 6 Am J2d Asslt & B § 53.

assault with intent to kill. A criminal offense constituting a felony in some jurisdictions, a great, aggravated, or serious misdemeanor in others, and a mere misdemeanor in still other jurisdictions. 26 Am J1st Homi § 597.

assault with intent to rape. An aggravated assault. 6 Am J2d Asslt, & B § 55.

To constitute this crime, two essential ingredients must coexist, and must be established by the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt; first, an assault, and, second, an intent to commit rape. It must appear, not only that the defendant intended to have carnal knowledge of the woman alleged to have been assaulted, forcibly and against her will, but that he did some overt act towards the accomplishment of his purpose, which amounted in law to an assault upon her. See 44 Am J1st Rape § 2 1.

assaut. An old spelling of assault.

assay. An examination or test; a trial or test by analysis of ore, especially to determine gold or silver content; a comparison of weights or measures with the standards for them.

assaya. Same as assay.

assayator regis. The assayer of the king.

assayer of the king. A government officer of the king's mint having the duty of testing coins and bullion.

assayer of the mint. A government officer having the duty of testing coins and uncoined gold and silver.

asseal. To seal; to affix a seal.

assecurare. To make secure; to give security.

assecuratio. Assecuration.

assecuratio. Assurance; marine insurance.

assecurator. An insurer.

assembly. A meeting of several persons; the name given to the lower house of the legislature in some states. A constitutional right under the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. A constitutional guaranty cognate to the rights of free speech and free press. 16 Am J2d Const L § 354. The right of the people to meet for the purpose of petitioning the legislative body for a redress of grievances, for any purpose connected with the powers or duties of government, or for the purpose of advancing ideas and airing grievances. Bates v Little Rock, 361 US 516, 4 L Ed 2d 480, 80 S Ct 412.

See General Assembly; unlawful assembly.

assembly general. The highest Scotch ecclesiastical court.

assensu curiae. See ex assensu curiae.

assensu suo. See ex assensu suo.

assent. Consent by one person to what another person has done or what he agrees to do. An element of a contract, but objective in its manifestation, a matter of overt acts, not of inward motives, design, or interpretation of words. Sokoloff v National City Bank, 239 NY 158, 145 NE 917, 37 ALR 712, 719.

See consent; mutual assent.

assenter. To assent.

assert. To declare; to allege positively.

assertare. Same as assartare.

asserte. Same as assart.

assertory covenants. Affirmative covenants.

assertory oath. An oath which asserts a statement of fact, as in an affidavit, in distinction to an oath which pledges future conduct, as in the oath of a public officer taken in assuming the office. 39 Am J1st Oath §4.

asses. Sufficient; satisfaction.

assess. To list and value properties for the purpose of taxation. 51 Am J1st Tax § 647. To call upon the members of an association or other organization for contributions, as in the case of a mutual benefit society or beneficial order. To make an estimate.

[99]

assessed valuation. A listing and valuation of property as a basis upon which taxes are to be collected. Anno: 156 ALR 594.

assessed value. The value of property as estimated and fixed by the proper authorities for purposes of taxation. Baisden v Greenville, 215 Ala 512, 515, III So 2.

assessment. In the most common sense, the imposing of a tax by a listing of the persons and property to be taxed and a valuation of the property of each person as a basis of apportionment and levy, such acts usually being performed by administrative officers but sometimes by the legislature. State v Clement Nat. Bank, 84 Vt 167, 78 A 944. A special assessment, one imposed upon property within a limited area for the payment of a local improvement supposed to enhance the value of all property within that area. 48 Am J1st Spec A § 3. A call upon subscribers to corporate stock for payment of their subscriptions, or, if the subscriptions have been paid, a levy upon the stock for the purpose of correcting an impairment of capital. 18 Am J2d Corp § 346. Substantially, the equivalent of a premium collected by at) insurance company, being the sum specifically levied by a mutual insurance company or association operating upon a fixed and definite plan, to pay losses and expenses, the sum being the consideration for the insurance provided. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 501. The levy against a member of a mutual benefit society or a fraternal benefit society as his share of the amount to be paid for the benefits extended by the society under the terms of his contract. 38 Am J2d Frat O § 88.

The word comes from the Latin words "ad," meaning "to," and "sedere," meaning "sit," through the Middle Latin "assessare," to "fix a rate" or "impose a tax." Thus, within limitations, the word "assessment" and "tax" can be employed synonymously. 48 Am J1st Spec A § 3.

In construing the expression "all taxes levied and assessed," as used in a statute governing ad verse possession, it was held that the word "levied" referred to the act of the county board in making the levy, and that the word "assessed" referred to the act of the assessor in making the assessment. Allen v McKay & Co. 120 Cal 332, 52 P 828.

assessment association. See benevolent association; mutual benefit society.

assessment contract. See assessment plan; assessment policy.

assessment district. A unit of territory for the assessment of property for taxation; a district specially benefited by a local public improvement with the consequence that a special or local assessment is made against the property in the district to finance the improvement. 48 Am J1st Spec A § 114.

assessment for benefits. See special assessment.

assessment fund. See assessment policy.

assessment labor. See assessment work.

assessment list. A schedule of the taxable Persons and properties in a political subdivision. Wilson v Wheeler, 55 Vt 446.

assessment of corporate stock. See stock assessment.

assessment of damages. Measuring and fixing the amount of compensatory damages. 22 Am J2d Damg §§ 45 et seq.

assessment plan. A plan of insurance whereby the payment of the benefit is in some manner or degree dependent upon the collection of an assessment upon persons holding similar policies. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 501. A form of insurance, also called the "natural premium plan," wherein the insurance company limited its assessments or premiums to such a sum as was necessary to cover the actual cost of insurance from one renewal period to another. Westerman v Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, 196 Mo 670, 94 SW 470.

assessment policy. A policy issued by a mutual benefit society which contains the provision that on the death of a member, an equal or flat assessment shall be levied on all members, irrespective of age, for the purpose of creating a fund to be paid the beneficiary of a deceased member. Allin v Motorists Alliance of America, 234 Ky 714, 29 SW2d 19, 71 ALR 688.

See assessment plan.

assessment work. A mining law term, meaning work required to be performed on a mining claim each year.

See annual assessment labor.

assessments of mutual benefit society. The amounts levied against members for the purpose of the payment of benefits extended by the society under the terms of their contracts or certificates of membership. 38 Am J2d Frat O § 88.

assessor. An officer whose duty it is to make an assessment of property, usually for the purpose of levying and collecting a tax. 51 Am J1st Tax § 662.

assessores. Assessors; masters in chancery. In civil law, advisors of magistrates.

assessors in admiralty. See nautical assessors.

assessus. Assessed.

assets. The property of a natural person or a corporation, real or personal, corporeal or incorporeal, especially property which is subject to seizure under and sale under process for payment of debts.

See admitted assets; assets of a debtor; assets of a decedent's estate; marshaling assets; partnership assets.

assets entre mains. Assets in hand.

assets in futuro. See expectancy; judgment of assets in futuro.

assets of a debtor. Any property which is in the debtor's name, or the title to which would be vested in him if a fraudulent conveyance were to be set aside. Dorrington v Jacobs, 213 Wis 521, 252 NW 307, 91 ALR 737.

assets of a decedent's estate. Property subject to the payment of the debts of the decedent, including real and personal, corporeal and incorporeal, property, but not homestead and other exemptions. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 193.

The term has also been defined as being whatever property or money is lawfully recovered or received by an executor or administrator in virtue of his representative character. De Valengin's Admr. v Duffy 14 Pet (US) 282, 10 L Ed 457.

assets per descent. Property which descends to the heir and not to the executor.

asseveration. The solemn affirmation of the truth of a statement.

assewiare. To draw or drain water from marshy land.

[100]

assez. Same as asses. assidenda. To be assessed.

assidere. To assess; to make an assessment for taxation.

assidere, taxare et levare. To assess, tax, and levy.

Assiderunt et taxarunt. Assessed and taxed.

assiento. One of many contracts of the Spanish government with other countries and with traders for furnishing negro slaves to Spanish America prior to 1750.

assiete. An assignment.

assign. Verb: To transfer, set over or grant, especially choses in action; to designate or point out. Noun: One to whom a right is assigned. An assignee.

See assignee; assignment.

assignable. Capable of being lawfully assigned or transferred; capable of being specified or pointed out; as an assignable error; transferable.

assignable chose in action. A chose in action which is of such nature as to be subject to transfer to another, so as to give ownership to the latter. The assignability of things in action is now the rule and non-assignability the exception. 6 Am J2d Assign § 7.

assignable error. An error occurring at the trial of a cause capable of being pointed out or specified on appeal.

assignable lease. A lease which can be sold, transferred, and assigned by the lessee without permission from, or consent of, the lessor. Stillman v Lynch, 56 Utah 540, 192 P 272, 12 ALR 552, 560.

assignando. See dote assignando.

assignare. To assign; to seal.

assignati. Assignees; assigns.

assignatio. An assignment.

assignation. An assigning; a tryst or secret place of meeting Of lovers, particularly lovers having meretricious relations.
See house of assignation.

assignator. An assignor.

assignatus. An assignee; an assign.

Assignavimus ad itinerandum. Assigned for the circuit.
See assizes.

Assignavimus vos justitarios nostros, ad inquirendum. Assigned to make inquiry.
See assizes.

assignay, or assigney. (Scotch.) An assignee.

assigned risk plan. An arrangement, in a state where automobile liability insurance is compulsory, whereby risks, which otherwise insurers would decline, are imposed by law upon particular insurers, so that all drivers and vehicles residing or located in the state are covered.

assignee. A person to whom a right is assigned, that is, the one to whom an assignment is made. 6 Am J2d Assign § 2. A person who becomes invested with the right of another person through some voluntary act of that other person. United States v Colorado Anthracite Coal Co., 225 US 219, 56 L Ed 1063, 32 S Ct 617. More broadly defined as including all those who take either immediately or remotely from or under the assignor, whether by conveyance, devise, descent, or act of law. Hoffeld v United States, 186 US 273, 46 L Ed 1160, 22 S Ct 927.

Where there are no qualifying words, the term in its usual meaning refers to an assignee in fact and does not comprehend an assignee by mere operation of law, such as a surviving partner. Burlington Nat. Bank v Beard, 55 Kan 773, 42 P 320. The words "assignee of such deceased person" in a statute disqualifying an adverse party as a witness is limited to an assignee in fact, and does not include an assignee by mere operation of law. So construed, the word does not include a legatee, a purchaser at an execution sale, or a trustee appointed on the death of a testamentary trustee. 58 Am J1st Witn § 335.

assignee at law. A person who merely by operation of law succeeds to the right, title, or interest of another. Burlington Nat. Bank v Beard, 55 Kan 773, 42 P 320.

assignee for the benefit of creditors. The person, firm or corporation to whom or to which an assignment for creditors is made. 6 Am J2d Assign for Crs § 89.

assignee in bankruptcy. See trustee in bankruptcy.

assignee in fact. An assignee to whom his assignor makes an actual transfer of that which is assigned, as distinguished from a transfer by mere operation of law. Burlington Nat. Bank v Beard, 55 Kan 773, 42 P 320.

assignee in insolvency. The person to whom an insolvent debtor makes an assignment for the benefit of his creditors.
See trustee in bankruptcy.

assignee in law. Same as assignee at law.

assignee in trust for the benefit of creditors. An assignee in insolvency. Anno: 113 ALR 745.

assignee of patent. A person who holds, by a valid assignment in writing, the whole interest of a patent, or any undivided part of such whole interest, throughout the United States. Moore v Marsh, 74 US (7 Wall) 515, 19 L Ed 37.

assignee's fees. The compensation of an assignee under an assignment for the benefit of creditors. 6 Am J2d Assigns for Crs § 91.

assignment. A transfer or setting over of property, or of some right or interest therein, from one person to another, and unless in some way qualified, the transfer of one's whole interest in an estate, chattel, or other thing. 6 Am J2d Assign § 1.

The word is ordinarily used in reference to choses in action.

See equitable assignment; general assignment; preferential assignment; reassignment; voluntary assignment.

assignment by delivery. The transfer of title to a chose in action by handing over to the assignee the evidence or symbol of title or ownership, such as a negotiable note, warehouse receipt, etc. 6 Am J2d Assign § 92.

assignment for the benefit of creditors. An assignment and transfer by a debtor, without consideration paid by the grantee, of substantially all the assignor's property, corporeal and incorporeal, to a person in trust to collect the amounts owing on obligations due the assignor, to sell and convey the property, to distribute the net proceeds of all the collections, sales, and conveyances among the creditors of the assignor, and to return the surplus, if any, to the assignor. 6 Am J2d Assign for Crs § 1.

[101]

assignment in bankruptcy. See bankruptcy; trustee in bankruptcy.

assignment in fact. See assignee in fact.

assignment in law. See assignee in law.

assignment of contract. The transfer by a party to a contract of his right and interest therein, subject to the performance of terms and conditions to which the other party to the contract is entitled.

A provision against assignment of contract is sometimes construed as one against the assignment of money payable or due thereunder. Anno: 37 ALR2d 1260.

See assignee at law; assignment by delivery.

assignment of copyright. The transfer or setting over to another by the owner of a copyright of his entire interest or a part of his interest in the copyright. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 89.

assignment of counsel. The appointment by the court of attorneys to defend indigent persons accused of crime, who are without counsel, and without the means of employing legal assistance. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 318.

assignment of dower. The remedy for segregating from the estate of a decedent the part to which the surviving spouse is entitled to by right of dower; the actual setting off or designation of that to which the surviving spouse is entitled by right of dower. 25 Am J2d Dow §§ 178 et seq.

assignment of errors. A specification of the alleged errors committed by the lower court and designated by the party complaining of them as grounds for reversal. 5 Am J2d A & E § 648.

assignment of insurance. A transfer by the insured of an insurance policy without the consent of the insurer or with the consent of the insurer where such consent is required on account of the nature of the policy. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 652.

assignment of lease. A transaction whereby a lessee transfers his entire interest in the demised premises or a part thereof for the unexpired term of the original lease. 32 Am J1st L & T § 313. A lease by the lessee of the whole of his unexpired term. Bedford v Terhune, 30 NY 453.

assignment of patent. The transfer by a patentee to another person of the whole of his interest in a patent for an invention issued to him by the United States, or of any undivided portion of, or rights in, such patent; a similar transfer by an assignee of a patent. 40 Am J1st Pat § 133.

assignment of policy. See assignment of insurance.

assignor. A person who assigns a right, whether he be an original owner or an assignee. 6 Am J2d Assign § 1.

assigns. Assignees, particularly assignees by voluntary act, that is assignees in fact, as distinguished from assignees by operation of law. United States v Colorado Anthracite Coal Co. 225 US 219, 56 L Ed 1063, 32 S Ct 617.

The word is often used in drafting legal instruments to denote the assignable nature of the interest or right created. The use of the word "assigns" indicates the intention of the parties to a contract that the contract is assignable, although it is not conclusive upon the question of assignability. 6 Am J2d Assign § 10. Some of older authorities adhere to the strict rule that the use of the word "assigns" is essential in impressing upon a covenant the character of running with the land, but the better view seems to be that although covenants intended to charge the land may be shown by the employment of the word "assigns," such intention may be quite as strongly indicated by other language contained in the deed. 20 Am J2d Cov § 32.

assigns forever. See successors and assigns forever.

assilire. To assault.

Assimilative Crimes Act. A federal statute which provides for punishment in the federal courts of a person guilty of conduct on a federal enclave which is punishable as a crime under the law of the state in which the enclave is situated. Anno: 2 L Ed 2d 1686, § I [a].

assimilative pay. Similar compensation for officers of the army and navy of the same rank. 36 Am J1st Mil § 69.

assisa. Same as assize.

assisa armorum. An English statute ordering the keeping of arms.

assisa cadere. To be nonsuit.

See judgment of nonsuit.

assisa continuanda. A writ granting a continuance of the assize to allow the production of papers.

Assisa de Clarendon. A statute passed in 1164 staying the exile of felons for forty days within which time they might get contributions for their support.

assisa de foresta. See assize of the forest.

Assisa de Mensuris. An English statute passed in 1198, regulating weights and measures.

assisa de nocumento. A writ to abate a nuisance.

assisa de nova disseisima. Same as assize of novel disseisin.

assisa de ultima presentatione. Same as assize of darrein presentment.

assisae statutaee et juratae. Assizes established and sworn.

assisae statutaee panis. The assize and assay of bread, i. e. a governmental examination into the quality of bakers' bread.

assisa forestae. Same as Assize of the Forest.

assisa firiscae fortiae. Same as assize of fresh force.

assisa generalis. The general assize, an old name for Parliament.

assisa juris utrum. Same as assize of utrum.

assisa mortis antecessoris. Same as assize of mort d'ancestor.

assisa novae disseysinae. Same as assize of novel disseisin.

assisa panis et cerevisiae. A statute regulating measures of bread and ale.

[102]

assisa proroganda. A writ to stay proceedings where one of the parties to the action is engaged on the business of the king.

See de assisa proroganda.

assisa ultinae presentationis. Same as assize of darrien presentment.

assisa venit ad recognoscendum. The assize came to recognize.

assise. Same as assize.

assisers. (Scotch.) A body which performed similar functions to those of the modern grand jury.

assistance of counsel. The right of one accused of crime to have legal counsel for his defense as provided by the Sixth Amendment to the United States Constitution or by a state constitution. 21 Am J2d Crim L §§ 309 et seq.

assistance writ. See writ of assistance.

assistant. One who aids, helps, or assists. 37 Am J1st Mon Corp § 273.

In the absence of a statute to the contrary, his capacity is more clerical than otherwise. The word is far from being synonymous with "deputy" which is the designation of a person who is appointed to act for another. Naill v State, 59 Tex Crim 484, 129 SW 630.

assistant bishop. (Eccles.) The assistant of the bishop of a diocese; a bishop coadjutor.

assistant rector. See deacon.

assisus redditus. Fixed or certain rent.

assith. To indemnify.

assithment. A Scottish action to obtain damages for murder.

assize. A word of such meanings and nuances in the law of England, especially the earlier law, that accurate and comprehensive definition is impossible. Noun: A court; a statute; a tax; the verdict of a jury in a court of assize; a writ; a jury summoned by a writ of assize; an action to recover land of which plaintiff's ancestor had been disseised. Verb: To fix; to regulate.

Assize of Arms. The statute (27 Hen 11) requiring all freemen to furnish arms according to their wealth and station.

Assize of Clarendon. An English statute of 1166 which provides that persons of bad character should depart from the kingdom, although they had been acquitted on a trial by compurgation.

assize of fresh force. A writ to recover lands of which the demandant had been disseised within forty days.

assize of mort d'ancestor. Assize of the death of the ancestor; a writ of assize to recover land from an abator of which the demandant's father or mother, brother or sister, uncle or aunt, nephew or niece had died seised. See 3 Bl Comm 185.

assize of novel disseisin. An assize of new disseisin, -a writ of assize to recover land of which the demandant had been recently seised. See 3 Bl Comm 187.

assize of nuisance. A common-law writ for nuisance with the two-fold purpose of abatement and the recovery of damages.

At common law this writ did not lie against the alienee of a wrongdoer, for the purchaser was to take the land in the same condition it was conveyed to him, but it lay against the wrongdoer himself, who levied or did the nuisance. This was changed by the statute of Westminster 2, 13 Edw. 1, c. 24, which gave a remedy against either vendor or vendee. 39 Am J1st Nuis § 117, note.

Assize of The Forest. A statute passed under Edward I, concerning the king's forests.

assize of utrum. A writ by which a parson recovered lands which had been disposed of by his predecessor.

assizer. A member of the grand assize.

assize rent. Fixed rentals of freeholders and copyholders of a manor.

assizes. Sessions of the judges; more specifically, the sessions of the two or more judges who were sent out as commissioners of the king semiannually by the king's commission from Westminster on circuits covering the kingdom to try before a jury of the appropriate county any cases which were assigned to them.

These judges were called judges of assize or judges of assize and nisi prius.

Assizes of Jerusalem. A compilation of the feudal law made under Godfrey of Bouillon after the conquest of Jerusalem in 1099.

ass. mor. ant. Abbreviation of assize of mort d'ancestor. ass. no. diss. An abbreviation of assize of novel disseisin.

associate. One engaged in the practice of law with another attorney at law or firm of attorneys at law but not as a partner or member of the firm. A member of an association. In the broad sense, one joined with another or others in the pursuit of a common purpose or design whether such be good or bad. Weir v United States (CA7 Ind) 92 F2d 634, 114 ALR 481.

associate counsel. An attorney at law associated in the prosecution or defense of a civil action or criminal prosecution with the attorney of record.

Associated Press. A well-known private organization for the gathering and dissemination of news, serving newspapers in its membership throughout the world.

associate justice. A justice of an appellate court who sits and decides with a chief justice and one or more other associate justices.

In a case at bar, his opinion is as conclusive as that of the chief justice, although the latter is in charge of the administration of the court business.

association. A collection of persons who have joined for the pursuit of a common purpose or design.

In the absence of a statute so providing, it is not an entity, having no status distinct from the persons composing it, but is rather a body of individuals acting together for the prosecution of a common enterprise without a corporate charter but sometimes assuming to exercise methods and forms used by corporations. Hecht v Malley, 265 US 144, 157, 68 L Ed 949, 957, 44 S Ct 462; Venus Lodge No. 62 v Acme Benev. Asso. 231 NC 522, 58 SE2d 109, 15 ALR2d 1446, 6 Am J2d Asso & C § 1.

[103]

At times, nonprofit corporations are referred to as “associations.” Conversely, nonprofit associations are often regarded as so closely akin to corporate entities that the associates are not liable as partners for the debts of the body. 6 Am J2d Asso & C § 2.

In reference to the federal income tax, an association is ordinarily taxable as a corporation. Internal Revenue Code § 7701(a)(3).

See articles of association; joint stock company; partnership; voluntary association; writ of association.

association placer claim. A placer mining claim located under statute by an association of eight or more persons and including a maximum of 160 acres. 36 Am J1st Min & M § 91.

association theory. A doctrine of the law of master and servant that the master will not be excused for negligence resulting in injury to one servant which is inflicted by a fellow-servant, unless the servants are so engaged and situated as that each by carefulness and attention in the performance of his duties may protect himself from injury caused by the negligence of the person with whom he is working. Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co. v Brown, 152 Ky 479, 484, 153 SW 753.

Such doctrine, while salutary in its day, has become of little more than historical interest since the enactment of employers' liability acts which nullify the fellow-servant rule.

associe en nom. (French law.) A member of a limited liability company who is liable for the debts of the company, his name appearing in the firm name.

assoigne. Same as essoign.

assoil. (Eccles.) To forgive or discharge one from an excommunication; to acquit; to set free.

assoilzie. Same as assoil.

assoinzie. Same as essoign.

as soon as. A qualifying phrase in a contract which indicates a condition of performance. 17 Am J2d Contr § 320.

as soon as possible. Within a reasonable time, for the purposes of a condition as to time of payment of goods bought in credit. 46 Am J1st Sales § 190. Implying something other than immediacy, whether used in a contract of sale, 46Am J1st Sales § 164; or in an application made to a carrier for a car. 13 Am J2d Car § 153.

Appearing in an insurance policy provision for notice of loss, the phrase means notice within a reasonable time under the circumstances of the case. Anno: 23 ALR2d 1083; 29A Am 1 Rev ed Ins § 1379.

as soon as practicable. See notice as soon as practicable.

assoyl. Same as assoil.

assultus. An assault.

assume. In ordinary parlance, to assume means to undertake; to engage; to promise. In matters of law, to take upon one's self. Springer v De Wolf, 194 Ill 218, 62 NW 542.

See assumption of charge on land; assumption of mortgage; assumption of obligation.

assumed name. See fictitious name.

assumed risk. See assumption of risk.

assumpserunt super se. They undertook.

assumpsit. A common law action by which compensation in damages may be recovered for the nonperformance of a contract express or implied, written or verbal, but not under seal and not of record. Board of Highway Comrs. v Bloomington, 253 Ill 164, 97 NE 280; 1 Am J2d Actions § 11.

See common counts; express assumpsit; indebitatus assumpsit; money counts; money had and received; money lent; money paid; nonassumpsit; nunquam indebitatus.

assumpsit pro rata. He undertook according to the proportion.

assumption clause. A clause in a deed, lease, or other transfer of property whereby the transferee assumes some obligation of the transferrer chargeable against the property. See 37 Am J1st Mtg §§ 994, 997.

assumption of charge on land. The agreement of the transferee of property to pay obligations of the transferrer which are chargeable on it. Springer v De Wolf, 194 Ill 218, 62 NW 542.

assumption of debt. See assumption of obligation.

assumption of employer's knowledge. An assumption, arising upon employer's assurance of the safety of an operation to be undertaken by an employee, the effect of which is to overcome the defense of assumption of risk. 35 Am J1st M & S § 321.

assumption of mortgage. An agreement by the grantee of mortgaged premises to pay the debt secured by the mortgage. 37 Am J1st Mtg § 997.

There is a broad and obvious distinction in the effect there of upon the rights of the parties, between the taking of mortgaged property subject to a mortgage subsisting thereon at the time of such taking, and the assumption or agreement by the grantee to pay the debt secured by such mortgage, in that, where the purchaser or grantee of the mortgaged property takes it subject to the mortgage only, there being no express or implied agreement to assume the mortgage debt, he is bound only to the extent of the property, but if the debt be assumed by the grantee, he becomes the principal debtor, while the mortgagor becomes the Surety. Bricchetto v Raney, 76 Cal App 232, 245 P 235; 37 Am J1st Mtg § 982.

assumption of obligation. Undertaking to substitute one's self in the place and stead of the obligor; agreeing to discharge the obligation by payment. Stout v Folger, 34 Iowa 71.

assumption of risk. A defense against liability for negligence which is based upon the principle that one who knows, appreciates, and deliberately exposes himself to a danger assumes the risk thereof. 38 Am J1st Negl § 171.

An employee by his very act of entering the service of the employer-by his very contract of employment-assumes the ordinary risk of the service or such as usually are incident thereto, and accordingly has no common-law right of action against the employer for an injury sustained solely by reason of such a risk. 35 Am J1st M & S § 293. The doctrine of assumption of the risk, as applied in the master and servant cases, has been abolished as a defense in most American jurisdictions. 35 Am J1st M & S § 297. There is still scope for the application of the defense in other cases, however, since the better view is that it is not limited to cases where there was a contract relationship between the injured party and the defendant. 38 Am J1st Negl § 171.

[104]

assurable. Insurable; constituting a valid insurance risk.

assurance. Any written instrument evidencing title to real property; insurance.

See collateral assurance; common assurances; covenant for further assurance; insurance.

assurance fund. A fund provided in states which have the system of registration of land titles for the indemnification of those who lose their property through fraud or error, and who are without other means of redress. 45 Am J1st Reg L T § 8.

assure. To insure; to issue or to take out insurance.

assured. Ordinarily, synonymous with "insured." 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 239. In some contexts, the person for whose benefit a policy of life insurance was made or taken, especially where he is the person who applied for the policy and pays the premiums. Conn. Mut. Life Ins. Co. v Luchs, 108 US 498, 27 L Ed 800, 2 S Ct 949; 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 239.

See insured.

assured clear distance. The distance from which discernible objects, reasonably expected or anticipated to be upon the highway, may be observed. Snook v Long, 241 Iowa 665, 42 NW2d 76, 21 ALR2d 1; Anno: 31 ALR2d 1424.

The "assured clear distance ahead" of a motorist traveling at night, under a statute prohibiting a speed greater than will permit a motorist to stop within such distance, is the limit of his vision ahead afforded by the lights of his car, in the absence of any intermediate discernible obstruction. Erdman v Mestrovich, 155 Ohio St 85, 97 NE2d 674, 31 ALR2d 1417.

assured clear distance ahead. The limit of a motorist's vision of the highway ahead. Erdman v Mestrovich, 155 Ohio St 85, 97 NE2d 674, 31 ALR2d 1417. A variable distance, since it constantly changes as the motorist proceeds, being measured at any moment by the distance between the motorist's vehicle and the limit of his vision ahead, or by the distance between the motorist's vehicle and any intermediate discernible static or forward-moving object in the highway ahead constituting an obstruction in the motorist's lane of travel. 7 Am J2d Auto and H T § 188.

assurer. An insurer; an underwriter.

assysers. Same as assisers.

assythement. A Scotch law action for damages for murder.

astigmatism. A common impairment of eyesight; one that is easily corrected by eye glasses. Baker v State, 91 Tex Crim 521, 240 SW 924, 22 ALR 1163, 1165.

astipulate. To stipulate; to agree.

astitution. See astution.

astrarius haeres. An heir whom an ancestor has placed in the house which is to be his inheritance.

astrer. A householder.

astrict. To restrict; to bind; to impose an astriction.

astriction. A servitude which "astricts" or binds a tenant, as where it binds him to have the corn raised upon the land to be ground at a certain mill.

astrihiltet. An ancient Saxon penalty of double damages for a wrong done.

astrology. The craft whereby fortunes are told ostensibly by reference to the positions and courses of the stars and other heavenly bodies.

astronomical day. From noon of one day until noon of the next.

astrum. A house; a hearth.

as trustee. A designation made in the execution of a contract by a trustee, which, in itself, is not sufficient to save the trustee against personal liability on a contract. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 352.

as trustee but not individually. An expression used by a trustee in the execution of a contract which should protect him against individual liability on the obligation. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 352.

astuti. Cunning; crafty; acute.

astution. An arraignment.

A summo remedio ad inferiorem actionem non habetur regressus neque auxilium. A person cannot resort to an inferior remedy after having pursued a higher one.

as well as. And also.

asylum. A sanctuary; place where a person is immune from arrest; a state or country to which a person flees to escape arrest in another state or country. An institution for receiving, maintaining, and, as far as possible, ameliorating the condition of persons suffering from bodily defects, mental maladies, or other misfortunes, such as an asylum for the blind, an institution for the insane, and an orphan asylum. 26 Am J1st Hospit § 2.

Under a statute providing that no divorce shall be granted because of incurable insanity unless such person shall have been duly and regularly committed to and confined in a hospital or asylum for the insane, the words "hospital or asylum" mean an institution which under the law is authorized to accept insane persons for care and treatment. Anno: 15 ALR2d 1137 asylum state: A state to which a person has fled after having committed a crime in another state. The term is one commonly used in extradition matters. 31 Am J2d Extrad § 18.

at. A word the significance of which is usually controlled by the entire context. Johnson v Cunningham, 107 Miss 140, 65 So 115. A relative term, signifying nearness when applied to a place. Rogers v Galloway Female College, 64 Ark 627, 44 SW 454; Los Angeles County v Hannon, 159 Cal 37, 43, 112 P 878; 23 Am J2d Deeds § 243. As a designation of time, sometimes denoting a fixed and definite point of time, as where the court admonishes the jury, "be back at 2 P.M.," and, at other times, meaning from or after, as where the provision in a will is that the property of the decedent shall be sold "at the death" of the life tenant named by him. 52 Am J1st Time § 31.

atamita. A sister of a great-great-greatgrandfather.

at and from. A phrase determinative of the attachment of the risk under a marine insurance policy, the same being effective only as a specified place or port is designated. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 326.

[105]

at any bank. A phrase which, as the place of payment of a promissory note, is indefinite, so that the maker has the right to require the holder to make an election as to which bank shall be the place of payment, and, in default of such election being made by the holder, to make his own election and give notice thereof to the holder. 11 Am J2d B & N § 972.

at any time. A phrase of relative meaning to be construed according to the particular context in which it appears.

Under a statute providing that anyone claiming an interest in the litigation may "at any time" be permitted to assert his right by intervention, it has been held that intervention may be allowed while the suit is pending in court, but not after the entry of final judgment. Anno: 37 ALR2d 1327.

As used in a statute authorizing a state bond issue and providing that the bonds shall be payable in not less than ten years or more than thirty, but that at the option of the Industrial Commission they shall be payable "at any time" after five years from the date of their issue, the phrase "at any time" does not mean that the bonds may be called only at the expiration of five years or within a reasonable time thereafter, but it means any time after five years from the date of issue and before the date of their stated maturities. Catholic Order of Foresters v State, 67 ND 228, 271 NW 670, 190 ALR 979.

at arm's length. With care, to avoid being overreached or imposed upon.

atavia. The mother of a great-great-grandmother or great-great-grand father.

atavus. The father of a great-great-grandfather or great-great-grandmother.

at bar. Before the bar, before the court.

See plea at bar.

at earliest convenience. As limiting a promise to pay: -when the promisor is able to pay or has the means of doing so. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 140.

a tegendo. From covering.

a tempore cuius contrarii memoria non existet. From a time when there is no memory to the contrary.

atha. In Saxon law, an oath.

athe. Same as atha.

atheist. A person who rejects all religious belief and denies the existence of God. Hale v Everett, 53 NH 9.

atheling. A member of the royal family; a nobleman.

at his earliest possible convenience. When the promisor is able to pay or otherwise perform his obligation. Anno: 28 ALR2d 792.

athletic club. As an organization exempt from federal income tax, a club not organized for profit or for the benefit of private shareholders. Internal Revenue Code § 501(c)(7). A club which maintains a gymnasium and outdoor courts wherein and whereon the members may engage in games and sports. Often a social club one of the activities of which is the sponsorship of athletic games. Sometimes a cover for a gambling house. 24 Am J1st Gaming § 29.

athletics. Sports, games, and exercises.

atia. Hate; malice.

atilio decenti. With proper tackle.

atilium. Tackle; a ship's rigging.

atinian law. See lex atinia.

at interest. Bearing interest either at the legal rate or at the rate provided by the contract.

at issue. The status of a case at bar, in reference to the pleadings, where the issues of fact are completely drawn, so that the case can come before the trier of fact, whether court or jury.

Atlantic Charter. The statement of principles, made jointly by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, representing the United States, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill, representing the United Kingdom, on August 14, 1941, in the desire to make known to the world the national policies of the two countries in a world then beset by aggression which, if successful, would have struck a disabling blow against the great democracies of the world. Am J2d Desk Book, Document 14.

at large. An animal wandering, roving, or rambling at will and unrestrained. 4 Am J2d Am § 42.

See common at large; creditor at large; damages at large; in gross; running at large.

at law. In law. Involving the law. Involving the rules of law rather than the rules of equity. By operation of law.

at law and in equity. A phrase inclusive of jurisdiction for the exercise of powers conferred by both law and equity and by statute as well. Wisconsin River Improv. Co. v Pier, 137 Wis 325, 118 NW 857. Exclusive in certain applications of jurisdiction in criminal, penal, ecclesiastical, admiralty, or military cases and proceedings. Gaines v Fuentes, 92 US 10, 23 L Ed 524 (statute relative to removal of causes to federal courts).

at least. A phrase which, as a designation of a period of time by days running after a stated date or event, may mean so many clear days. Boring v Boring, 155 Kan 99, 122 P2d 743.

Such meaning may be negated by statute. 52 Am J1st Time § 26.

at least once a week for four successive weeks. A requirement for publication of notice of judicial sale, meaning a publication so that not more than a seven-days' interval shall occur between any two successive publications. 30A Am J Rev ed Jud S § 55.

atmatertera. The sister of a great -great -great -grandmother.

at maturity. At the due date; at the time when payment or other performance falls due.

at my death. A phrase usually testamentary in character, but subject to construction in a proper context as not precluding the passing of a present interest. Burks v Burks, 222 Ark 97, 257 SW2d 369, 38 ALR2d 589; Anno: 11 ALR 51, 88.

atomic energy. All forms of energy released in the course of nuclear fission or nuclear transformation. 42 USC § 2014(c); 6 Am J2d Atomic E § 2.

Atomic Energy Act of 1954. A comprehensive federal statute covering the very modern subject of atomic energy. 42 USC §§ 2011 et seq.

Atomic Energy Commission. The governmental agency established by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 to administer and carry out the provisions of the statute. 42 USC §§ 2031, 2032.

[106]

atomize. To separate into atoms. See atomic energy.

at once. A phrase, variable with the context in which it appears, connoting immediacy, 13 Am J2d Car § 152; reasonable haste, 46 Am J1st Sales § 163; or within a time which is reasonable under the circumstances. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1379.

atonement. The wiping out of bad conduct by subsequent sacrificial or otherwise good conduct. Allen v Allen 73 Conn 54, 46 A 242. The privilege under which, according to some authority, a defendant who has given cause for divorce, may by his subsequent conduct, deprive the other spouse of the right to a divorce for such cause. Allen v Allen, supra.

at or before. The equivalent of on or before a day specified. 52 Am J1st Time § 31.

at or upon. A designation or time in reference to a specific date, but to be construed according to the entire context. 52 Am J1st Time § 31.

at outside. A warranty in marine insurance in reference to storage of the insured watercraft; outside the shore. Macatawa Transportation Co. v Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. 168 Mich 365, 134 NW 193.

at owner's risk. Condition against liability in accepting paper for collection. 10 Am J2d Banks § 702.

at par. See par.

atramentum. Ink, for writing.

at random. At hazard. Without any settled aim, purpose, or direction; left to chance; casual, or haphazard. Commonwealth v Bynum, 20 Ky LR 1982, 50 SW 843.

atriamentum. A courtyard.

atrium. The open court in a Roman dwelling house.

atrocious assault. An assault aggravated by cruelty and brutality. 6 Am J2d Asslt & B § 48.

atropine. A drug derived from belladonna; used principally to dilate the pupil of the eye, thereby facilitating an eye examination.

ats. An abbreviation of ad sectam.

at sea. On the ocean; on the water. Slang for confused. A marine insurance term meaning absent on a voyage which was commenced within the time of the original risk, both going and returning, and although during part of the time the vessel may be necessarily in some port, in the prosecution of her voyage. Wood v New England Ins. Co., 14 Mass 31.

For the purpose of sea pay of a naval officer, a vessel is at sea where it is waterborne, even if at anchor in a bay, port, or harbor and not in condition presently to go to sea. 36 Am J1st Mil § 71.

at sight. On presentment; on being shown the instrument.

See sight draft.

atta. Same as atha.

attach. To seize property under a writ of attachment and take it into custody to await the rendition of judgment or termination of the action in which the writ issued. Buckeye Pipe Line Co. v Fee, 62 Ohio St 543, 57 NE 446. Broadly, to seize property for the purpose of bringing it into the custody of the court. Anno: 4 ALR 340.

See attachment.

attachable. Subject to attachment levy.

attache'. A member of the staff of a foreign ambassador or other diplomatic officer. 4 Am J2d Ambas § 9.

attached. Connected, for example, attached buildings; seized under a writ of attachment. Tefft v Providence Washington Ins. Co., 19 RI 185. Having become an incident of, as where dower has attached upon the marriage of a landowner, or where a homestead right in public lands has attached upon a proper filing in the land office of the government. Kansas Pacific Railway Co. v Dunmeyer, 113 US 629, 644, 28 L Ed 1122, 1127, 5 S Ct 566.

attachiamenta bonorum. An old form of attachment of chattels to recover a personal debt.

attachiamenta de spinis et boscis. The right of forest officers to appropriate thorns and brushwood to their own use.

attachiamentum. Same as attachment.

attachiamentum forestae. Same as attachment of the forest.

attachiare. To attach; to levy an attachment.

attachment. A provisional remedy for the collection of a debt, which is incidental to an action against the debtor, proceeding by a seizure, under legal process called a writ of attachment issued in the action, of property of the debtor for the purpose of having the property available in satisfaction under execution and sale upon a judgment obtained against the debtor in the action. 6 Am J2d Attach § 1. The actual attaching, that is, the seizure and disposition of the debtor's property under a writ of attachment.

See foreign attachment; pluries writs; writ of attachment; wrongful attachment.

attachment bond. A bond required of a plaintiff seeking an attachment, conditioned to pay the costs and damages which the defendant may sustain if the writ has been sued out wrongfully. 6 Am J2d Attach § 518.

attachment execution. Garnishment, or a proceeding akin thereto, in the enforcement of a judgment. Patterson v Caldwell, 124 Pa 455, 17 A 18. A proceeding for the enforcement of a judgment for the payment of money where levy and sale of property of the debtor are inadequate for the purpose of enforcement. 30 Am J2d Exec § 774.

attachment garnishment. See attachment execution.

attachment lien. The lien, or quasi lien, obtained by the levy of a writ of attachment. Desiderio v D'Agostino, 127 Fla 377, 173 So 682; Hanly v. Davis, 170 Mass 517, 49 NE 914.

The authorities differ as to whether an attachment creates a lien or a mere right to legal custody of the property seized. Whatever lien or right is obtained is obtained by virtue of statute. 6 Am J2d Attach § 454.

attachment of risk. The inception of liability under a contract of insurance to answer for any loss or damage that may result from a risk insured against during the term of the insurance in an amount not exceeding the amount stipulated in the contract.

This involves both time and subject matter; that is, the question when the risk attaches, as well as the question to what it attaches or under what circumstances

[107]

it will attach. In order that a risk insured against shall attach and become an existing obligation under which the insurer may become liable, it is first necessary, of course, that there should be a completed contract of insurance. Conditions of the policy fixing an earlier or later date for the risk to attach or purporting to cover property not yet owned or in existence at the time the contract of insurance is completed, also enter into the broad question of when the insurer's risk under a policy of insurance attaches and has its inception. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 309.

attachment of the forest. The least important of the forest courts.

It had jurisdiction to inquire into offenses against vert and venison and over attachments of the persons of the offenders. See 3 Bl Comm 71.

attachments. See attachment; court of attachments.

attack. To fall upon with force; to assault, as with force of arms; to assault. Phipps v State, 34 Tex Crim 560, 565, 31 SW 397. To question validity or sufficiency, as to attack a statute on constitutional grounds or to attack a pleading for want or insufficiency of allegations.

See collateral attack; direct attack.

attain de disseisin. Convicted of disseisin.

attainder. The state into which the offender was placed by operation of law when sentence was pronounced against him for a capital offense, by the ancient common law.

The three principal incidents of attainder were forfeiture of property, corruption of blood, and civil death. 21 Am J2d Crim § 616.

See bill of attainder; civil death; corruption of blood; forfeiture.

attainder by confession. Pleading guilty before a court or abjuring the realm before a coroner.

attainder by process of outlawry. Adjudging a person who has fled to be an outlaw.

attainder by verdict. A finding of guilty by a jury.

attaint. Verb: To pass sentence of attainder. Adjective: Under sentence of attainder. Convicted of high treason or felony; stained and degraded by conviction of a capital offense; deprived of all civil rights and capacities. Noun: An ancient writ employed to reverse a verdict.

attainted. See attaint.

attaintes pur serfs. Convicted of being villeins.

atte. Same as atha.

attempt. Any overt act done with the intent to commit a crime and which, but for the interference of some cause preventing the carrying out of the intent, would have resulted in the commission of the crime.

It consists of two important elements: first, an intent to commit the crime; and second, a direct ineffectual act done towards its commission. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 110.

No definite line can be drawn between an "attempt" and "preparations" to commit a crime; the question is one of degree. United States v Coplton, (CA2 NY) 185 F2d 629, 28 ALR2d 1041.

attempt to commit arson. An intent to commit arson and a direct, ineffectual act done toward the completion of the offense.

An intent to commit the offense, plus preparations for commission, as by gathering combustible materials for kindling a fire, is not sufficient; there must be an act directed toward completion of the offense. State v Taylor, 47 Or 455, 84 P 82; 5 Am J2d Arson § 15.

attempt to commit burglary. An act performed with the intent to effectuate a burglary, carried beyond mere preparation but falling short of the actual commission of a burglary. 13 Am 32d Burgl § 29.

attempt to commit suicide. See suicide.

attempt to evade or defeat tax. A wilful attempt by any person in any manner to evade or defeat any internal revenue tax. IRC 1954 § 7201; 26 USC § 7201.

attempt to operate. Something less than the actual putting of the vehicle in motion. 7 Am J2d Auto § 256.

attendance. Physical presence plus freedom to perform the duties of an attendant. Fidelity-Phenix Fire Ins. Co. v Pilot Freight Carriers, Inc. (CA4 NC) 193 F2d 812, 31 ALR2d 839.

attendance by physician. Care and treatment by physician for a complaint, whether at the physician's office or in his own home. White v Providence Sav. Life Assur. Soc. 163 Mass 108, 108 NE 771.

Some authorities impose the qualification that the complaint for which treatment is given be of a serious nature or of more concern than a slight illness or temporary indisposition. Brown v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. 65 Mich 306; 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 758.

A physician attends a patient to treat, prescribe for, or act for him, to prevent, palliate or cure an ailment. If the person examined is not a patient there is no physician-patient relationship and therefore no physician-patient privilege. San Francisco v Superior Court, 37 Cal2d 227, 231 P2d 26, 25 ALR2d 1418.

See medical attendance.

attendance officer. A school officer, appointed by the school board, to ascertain the reason for absences of pupils, to visit the homes of the absentees, to take reasonable steps to require attendance, and in some jurisdictions, in a proper case, to take an absentee into custody for the purpose of taking him or her to school.

attendant. A person owing a duty of service to another or in some manner dependent upon him. A person in attendance.

See attendance.

attendant term. A lease or mortgage, the term of which has really expired, whose duration has been prolonged for the purpose of protecting the inheritance from incumbrance.

attended. See attendance.

attending circumstances upon execution of will. Family status, fiscal and mental condition of the testator, and the imminence of death, as well as the testator's declarations and instructions to the draftsman. Anno: 21 ALR2d 353-359.

attending physician. See attendance by physician.

attentare. To attempt.

attentat. Any improper act done by a judge in an action, pending an appeal from his decision.

attentate. Same as attentat.

[108]

atterminare. To delay; to postpone.

atterminata,-posita ad talem terminum. Adjourned, -put over to such a term.

atterment querentes. The plaintiffs may adjourn.

atterminer. To adjourn; to extend time for payment.

attermining. Extending the time for payment.

attest. Noun: A witness. Personal acts of authentication of genuineness. First Nat. Bank v Laperle, 117 Vt 144, 86 A2d 635, 30 ALR2d 958; 17 Am 12d Contr § 281. Verb: To bear witness to; to affirm to be true or genuine. Lorch v Page, 97 Conn 66, 115 A 681, 24 ALR 1204, 1207.

attestation. The act of witnessing the actual execution of a paper and signing one's name as a witness to that fact. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 28; 57 Am J1st Wills § 283. It incurs the manual act of subscription as well as the mental act of observation. 57 Am J1st Wills § 283.

Some authority draws a fine distinction between attestation and subscription, saying that attestation is the act of the senses, subscription is the act of the hand; that one is mental, the other mechanical. Swift v Wiley, 40 Ky (1 B Mon) 114, 117.

attestation clause. A writing at the end of a will but preceding the signature of the witnesses which sets forth with more or less completeness the performance of the statutory requisites to due execution and witnessing of the instrument, the purpose of the clause being to preserve a memorandum of the facts attending the execution of the instrument, so that in the event of the death, absence, or failure of memory on the part of the attesting witnesses, the due execution of the instrument may nevertheless be proved. Re Johnson (ND) 75 NW2d 313, 55 ALR2d 1049; 57 Am J1st Wills § 296. The clause in a deed, usually at the conclusion of it, sometimes called the hiis testibus (with these witnesses) clause, denoting that the persons signing are witnesses.

Usual forms of the clause in a deed are: "signed, sealed, and delivered in the presence of," "signed and sealed in the presence of us," "in witness whereof we hereto set our hands and seals," "sealed and delivered in the presence of," or even the word "teste." 23 Am J2d Deeds § 30.

attested. See attest; attestation.

attesting witness. A person who attests; one who witnesses the signing of a document by another person and signs his own name as a witness to that fact. Jenkins v Dawes, 5 Mass 599, 600. A credible or competent person who observes the execution of a will by the testator and signs his name as a witness to that fact, normally following an attestation clause. 57 Am J1st Wills § 308.

attestor of a cautioner. (Scotch.) A guarantor of a debt.

atteynte. Same as attaint.

at the base. At the ground, when referring to a measurement of standing timber. 34 Am J1st Logs § 23.

at the courthouse door. A familiar phrase in posted and published notices of judicial sales, indicating the place where the sale is to be held and conducted. 30A Am J1st Jud S § 76.

at the date. A designation of time in reference to a specific day; subject to construction in some contexts as indicating a period of time up to the day designated. 52 Am J1st Time § 31.

at the death. Words of futurity which ordinarily have reference to the time when the devisee shall come into a right of possession, but do not prevent the vesting of title immediately upon the death of the testator. 28 Am J2d Est § 255.

at the earliest practicable moment. As soon as practicable; or as soon as possible; within a reasonable time under all the circumstances. Anne: 23 ALR2d 1083.

at the end of the will. A phrase used in stating the rule as to the place where a will must be signed, which is deceptive in the appearance of simplicity.

Is it the physical end, that is, the point most removed in space from the beginning of the instrument, or the logical end, that is, the point where the draftsman stopped writing in the consecutive order of composition? Either position has support in the authorities. 57 Am J1st Wills § 268. at the ground. See at the base; at the stump.

at the king's pleasure. As applied to a punishment, in the king's courts and by his judges.

at the market. A direction to a stockbroker which means to buy or sell immediately, irrespective of price and prospects. 12 Am J2d Brok § 125.

at the next term. A condition of a bail bond, meaning at the first term to follow the execution of the bond.

As to whether the sureties are bound for the appearance of the prisoner at a term subsequent to the first term, see 8 Am J2d Bail § 101.

at the stump. An expression peculiar to the timber business, indicating that the measurement of a tree's circumference is to be taken at the point above ground where such timber is usually cut according to the custom of the locality. 34 Am J1st Logs § 23.

at the time. As of a certain time; also, forthwith, immediately, or during. 52 Am J1st Time § 31.

attic. The loft of a dwelling house; the space next to the roof.

attilamentum. Same as attile.

attile. Tackle; the rigging of a ship.

attilium. Same as attile.

at time of passage. See passage of statute.

attincta. An attaint.

attinctus. Attainted.

attingere. To touch; to amount to.

attorn. To attorn is to make an attornment; to shift homage and fealty to a new lord; to accept and acknowledge a new landlord; to appoint an attorney or substitute.

attornamentum. Same as attornment.

attornare. To attorn.

attornare rem. To turn over a thing.

attornati et apprenticii. Attorneys and law students.

attornato recipiendo. See de attornato recipiendo.

attornatus. A person who attorned or who is substituted for another; an attorney.

[109]

attornatus vel procurator. An attorney or proctor.

attorne. An attorney.

attorney. An attorney at law or an attorney in fact.

The word, unless clearly indicated otherwise, is construed as meaning attorney at law. Re Morse, 98 Vt 85, 126 A 550, 36 ALR 527, 530.

attorney at law. One of a class of persons who are by license constituted officers of courts of justice, and who are empowered to appear and prosecute and defend, and on whom peculiar duties, responsibilities, and liabilities are devolved in consequence. 7 Am J2d Attys § 1. A quasi-judicial officer. 7 Am J2d Attys § 3.

Of course, the work of an attorney is not confined to appearances in court for prosecutions and defenses. A person acting professionally in legal formalities, negotiations, or proceedings, by the warranty or authority of his clients is an attorney at law within the usual meaning of the term. The distinction between attorneys or solicitors and counsel or barristers is practically abolished in nearly all the states. 7 Am J2d Attys § 1. While some men of the profession devote their time and talents to the trial of cases and others appear in court only rarely, the law imposes the same requirements for admission and the same standards of ethics for both classes.

See barrister; of counsel; solicitor.

attorney general. Chief law officer of the nation or a state, to whom is usually entrusted not only the duty of prosecuting all suits or proceedings wherein the government, national or state as it may be, is concerned, but also the task of advising the chief executive and other administrative heads of the government in all legal matters on which they may desire his opinion. 7 Am J2d Atty Gen § 1.

Attorney General of the United States. The head of the Department of Justice; a member of the President's Cabinet.

See attorney general.

attorney general's opinion. See opinion of the attorney general.

attorney in fact. An agent or representative authorized by a power of attorney to act for his principal in certain matters. 3 Am J2d Agency § 23. An agent, sometimes referred to as a private attorney who is authorized by his principal, either for some particular purpose, or to do a particular act, not of a legal character.

Such an agent is often designated by the word attorney" after his name. Hall v Sawyer, 47 Barb (NY) 116, 119.

attorney of record. The attorney for a party to an action who has appeared for him by a formal appearance, by pleading or making a motion for him, or by an oral statement of appearance in open court, and is in charge of the party's business and interests in the action.

It is a common practice to refer to associate attorneys as "of counsel," to distinguish them from attorneys of record in a cause.

attorney of the wards and liveries. The third officer of the duchy court.

attorney's certificate. An English revenue receipt showing the payment of the annual duty exacted of any attorney at law.

attorney's charging lien. See charging lien.

attorney's fee. An allowance made by the court as costs in addition to the ordinary statutory costs. 20 Am J2d Costs § 72. Compensation to which an attorney at law is entitled for his services and, unless restricted by a contingent fee contract, payable to the attorney without reference to benefits accruing to his client. 7 Am J2d Attys § 203.

In some instances, the amount of an attorney's fee is fixed by contract, as in the case of an attorney's fee provision in a promissory note, and in other cases, by the court, as where the client is a fiduciary and must seek credit in his account for fees paid attorneys.

See contingent fee; costs of collection.

attorney's general lien. See retaining lien.

attorney's implied authority. The authority which an attorney has, by virtue of his employment as an attorney, to do all acts necessary and proper to the regular and orderly conduct of the case; being such acts as affect the remedy only and not the cause of action. Such acts of the attorney are binding on his client, though done without consulting him. 7 Am J2d Attys § 120.

An attorney employed to conduct a transaction not involving an appearance in court also has a measure of implied authority, although not in the broad scope accorded that of a counsel in litigation. For example an attorney employed to collect a claim has no implied authority to accept anything except lawful money in payment. Anno: 66 ALR 116, S. 30 ALR2d 949, § 5.

attorney's license. The leave or license of the court which the court grants to an attorney by its judgment of admission to the bar, and without which a person cannot practice as an attorney, even in the absence of any statute on the subject of admission to practice.

Such a license may be revoked by the court whenever misconduct renders the attorney holding it unfit to be intrusted with the powers and duties of his office. 7 Am J2d Attys § 12.

attorney's lien. General or retaining lien upon money or property of his client in his possession as security for the general balance due the attorney from the client for professional services rendered the client. 7 Am J2d Attys §§ 272 et seq. A special or charging lien upon a judgment, decree, or award obtained for his client as security for payment of the compensation due him for his services in obtaining such judgment, decree or award. 7 Am J2d Attys § 281.

See charging lien; retaining lien.

attorney's oath. An oath usually required by statute as a condition precedent to an attorney's admission to practice, and sometimes to his continuance in practice.

attorney special. An attorney appointed for certain cases or a certain case; an attorney attached to some particular court.

attorney's possessory lien. See retaining lien.

attorney's privilege or immunity. The immunity or privilege of an attorney at law against being subjected to arrest or the service of process in a civil action while going to the place of trial of an action in which he appears in his professional capacity, during the trial, and while returning to his office or residence. 42 Am J1st Proc § 140.

attorney's retainer. See retainer.

[110]

attorney's retaining lien. See retaining lien.

attorney's special lien. See charging lien.

attornment. The act or agreement of a tenant accepting one person in place of another as his landlord. 32 Am J1st L & T § 99.

In feudal times, the word meant the shifting of homage and fealty to a new lord.

attorn servitium tenentis. To attorn the service of a tenant.

attractive agency. See attractive nuisance; attractive nuisance doctrine.

attractive nuisance. An unusual condition, instrumentality, machine, or other agency on premises which is dangerous to children of tender years but so interesting and luring to them as to attract them to the premises. Hayko v Colorado & Utah Coal Co., 77 Colo 143, 235 P 373, 39 ALR 482; 38 Am J1st NegI § 142.

See attractive nuisance doctrine.

attractive nuisance doctrine. The principle followed in many jurisdictions, but with some diversity of opinion as to the requisite conditions for its application, that one who maintains or permits upon his premises a condition, instrumentality, machine, or other agency which is dangerous to children of tender years by reason of their inability to appreciate the peril therein, and which may reasonably be expected to attract children of tender years to the premises, is under duty to exercise reasonable care to protect them against the dangers of the attraction.

The doctrine, within limitations, is for the benefit of the meddling, as well as of a trespassing child. Brittain v. Cubbon, 190 Kan 641, 378 P2d 141; Teagarden v. Russell, 306 Ky 528, 207 SW2d 18; Nichols v Consolidated Dairies, 125 Mont 460, 239 P2d 740, 28 ALR2d 1216; 38 Am J1st NegI § 141.

The principle is otherwise known as the turntable doctrine.

attrition. (Eccles.) Regret or penitence for the consequences of wickedness. Cf. contrition.

atturn. Same as attorn.

attorne. An attorney.

attorney. The ancient English word from which the word "attorney" has derived, signifying a person that stands in the turn, place, or stead of another. Coke's First Institute, 51b.

at wharf. Delivery by the seller to the buyer on the wharf, free from charges to the buyer for unloading, etc. 46 Am J1st Sales § 189.

at will. See estate at will.

atya. Same as atia.

au. At; in; to; until.

an aumone. For alms.

aubaine. A stranger; an unnaturalized alien.

au besoin. In case of need, -a designation in a bill of exchange of a person of whom payment may be required upon the refusal of the drawee to pay.

au bout de compte. At the end of the account; finally.

A. U. C. Anno urbis conditae; in the year (753 B. C.) of the founding of the city (Rome), the beginning of the Roman calendar.

au ceo temps. At this time.

auceps syllabarum. A snatcher of syllables; a caviler; a hairsplitter.

au ce temps. At that time.

auctio. An auction.

auction. A public sale of property to the highest bidder. 7 Am J2d Auct § 1.

See by-bidder; by-bidding; chilling bids; Dutch auction; knocked down; puffer; puffing; stifling bids; struck off; sub hastio; white-bonnet.

auctionarii, quos Angli brokers decimus. Vendors, whom we Englishmen call brokers.

auctionarius. A vendor; an auctioneer; a dealer in second-hand goods; a retailer.

auction business. The business of conducting auction sales; something more than the sale at auction by an individual or merchant of his own goods. 7 Am J2d Auct § 4.

auction by inch of candle. An auction at which the successful bidder is he who bids highest up to the time of the falling of the wick of a short candle lighted when the bidding began.

auctioneer. A person who conducts an auction sale for another on commission or for recompense, and who is deemed primarily the agent of the seller of the property, though for some purposes he is also deemed to be the agent of the purchaser.

Upon the fall of the hammer he becomes the agent of the buyer as well as the seller, and from that time to the consummation of the sale he is the agent of both for the purpose of drawing up and signing the memorandum of the transaction which takes the case out of the operation of the statute of frauds. 7 Am J2d Auct § 10.

auctioneer's lien. The lien of an auctioneer, for his charges and commissions, upon the property entrusted to him and the sums coming into his hands. 7 Am J2d Auct § 61.

auction pool. A system of placing wagers on horse races which for a time was successfully operated as an evasion of gaming laws. James v State, 63 Md 242, 248.

auction sale. See auction.

auction without reserve. See without reserve.

auctor. A plaintiff; an agent's principal; an auctioneer.

auctoritas. Authority.

Auctoritates philosophorum, medicorum, et poetarum, sunt in causis allegandae et tenendae. The opinions of philosophers, physicians and poets are to be alleged and received in causes.

auctour. Same as auctor. aucune foits. Sometimes.

aucunement. Somewhat.

Aucupia verborum sunt iudice indigna. Caviling is unworthy of a judge's dignity.

audencia. A high court of justice in the Spanish empire, which sometimes was presided over by the administrator in chief of the law and police. Strother v Lucas, 12 Pet (US) 410, 442.

[111]

an dernier. At last.

Audi alteram partem. Hear the other side. A principle of the common law. Smith v Moore, 142 NC 277, 55 SE 275.

audience. A hearing; a body of people assembled to hear.

audience court. An ecclesiastical court with jurisdiction inferior to that of the court of arches, and in which the archbishop probably exercised a considerable part of his jurisdiction.

audiendo et terminando. To hear and determine.

audit. Noun: A formal or official examination and verification of accounts, vouchers and other records; an account as adjusted by auditors. Aron v Gillman, 309 NY 157, 128 NE2d 284, 51 ALR2d 598. The word is sometimes used in the sense of a verification of figures and computations by a mere accountant, but ordinarily it implies an exercise of discretion. Etzold v Board of Comrs. 82 Ind App 655, 146 NE 842.

Verb: To adjust; to allow or reject; to ascertain; to determine; to decide; to pass upon; to settle; to hear, examine, and determine a claim by its allowance or rejection in whole or in part.

The word applies only to claims ex contractu. Shields v Durham, 118 NC 450, 24 SE 794.

audita querela. A remedy granted in favor of one against whom execution has issued or is about to issue on a judgment the enforcement of which would be contrary to justice, either because of matters arising subsequent to its rendition, or because of prior existing defenses that were not available to the judgment debtor in the original action because of the judgment creditor's fraudulent conduct or circumstances over which the judgment debtor had no control. 7 Am J2d Aud Q § 1.

audito. See ex audito.

auditor. An officer of the government, whose duty it is to examine the acts of officers who have received and disbursed public moneys by lawful authority. Fajardo SugarCo, v Holcomb (CAI Puerto Rico), 16 F2d 92. An officer of the court who examines accounts for the court, preparing a report from which the court obtains the information necessary to the rendition of a decree. Re Walter Peterson, 253 US 300, 64 L Ed 919, 40 S Ct 543. An officer of court to whom references are made.

auditorium. A commodious room for audiences at lectures, theatrical performances, and political meetings or conventions; the building which contains such a room.

auditors of the imprest. Officers who formerly audited certain accounts of the exchequer.

auditory. A judge's seat in a court.

auditu. See in auditu.

auditum. That which is heard; hearsay.

auditus. A hearing.

au fond. At the fount; substantially; essentially.

au fond en droit. Essentially in point of law.

au fond en fait. Essentially in point of fact.

augmentation. The act of increasing or making larger by addition, expansion, or dilation; the act of adding to or enlarging; the augmentation of territory is the act of adding other territory to it. Vejar v Mound City L & W. Asso, 97 Cal 659, 32 P 713.

augmentation court. A court set up by Henry VIII to increase the royal revenue by putting down monasteries.

Augusta legibus soluta non est. The queen is not exempt from the law. See 1 Bl Comm 219.

aujourd'huy. To-day.

aula. A hall; a court; a court-baron.

aula ecclesiae. The nave or body of a church.

aula regia. William the Conqueror established a constant court in his own hall (aula), thence called by Bracton and other ancient authors "aula regia" or "aula regis" (the king's bench). This court was composed of the king's great officers of state resident in the palace, and usually attendant on his person. See 3 Bl Comm 37.

aula regis. Same as aula regia.

aulnage. Same as alnage.

aumone. Alms.

auncel weight. Weighing with a balance or steelyard.

aunt. The sister crone's parent; a relative in the third degree according to the civil law method a computing degrees of kinship which prevails in most American jurisdictions. Anno: 55 ALR2d 645, § 1 [b]; 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 48.

au plus. At most.

aupres. Near; high; about.

au quel. To which; to whom.

aura. A medical term for the sensation, as of a wave of cold air hitting the head, prior to an epileptic seizure.

aures. (Saxon.) The cutting off of a thief's ears as a punishment for larceny.

auricularum scissio. The cropping or the ears.

aurum reginae. Queen gold, a royal revenue belonging to the queen consort during her marriage with the king. See 1 Bl Comm 220.

aussi. Also.

austercus. See ostercus.

Australian ballot. See Australian ballot system.

Australian ballot system. The term applied to the ballot used and the method and regulation of voting in American elections.

The system is not exactly the same as that used in Australia. It also varies between the states, but the statutes which impose the system of voting in the different states have enough in common with each other and with the Australian plan to warrant the use of the terms "Australian ballot" and Australian ballot system. The cardinal features of the statutes are: (1) an arrangement for polling by which compulsory secrecy of voting is secured, and (2) an official ballot containing the names of all candidates, printed and distributed under state or municipal authority. Allen v Glynn, 17 Colo 338, 29 P 670; State ex rel Gipe v Nelson, 358 Mo 164, 213 SW2d 905; 26 Am J2d Elect § 204.

[112]

austringer. A falconer who kept goshawks.

austurcus. A goshawk used by falconers in hunting fowl; the modern chicken hawk.

aut. Either; or.

autarchy. Same as autocracy.

au temps. At the time.

aut eo circiter. Or thereabouts.

auter. See autre.

auterfoits. Same as autrefois.

auterment. Otherwise.

authentic. Properly attested; executed according to law; genuine.

authenticate. To render authentic; to give authority to by proof, attestation, or formalities required by law; to prove authenticity.

See acknowledge; attest.

authentication. Such official attestation of a written instrument as will render it legally admissible in evidence. Mayfield v Sears, 133 Ind 86, 88, 32 NE 816. The act or mode of giving legal authority to a statute, record or other written instrument, or a certified copy thereof, so as to render it legally admissible in evidence.

See authenticate; certificate of authentication.

authentics. A collection of the novels, or new laws, of Justinian.

authenticum. (Civil law.) An original document, as distinguished from a copy.

author. One to whom anything owes its origin; an originator; a maker; one who completes a work of science or literature. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 37.

One may be an author without producing any original matter, provided he does something beyond a mere copying, such as compiling or editing. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 37.

See authorship.

authority. Judicial or legislative precedent; power; warrant; a duly constituted administrative agency, such as a port authority.

See civil authority; color of authority; public authority; scope of authority.

authority by estoppel. Essentially, authority under doctrine of apparent authority. 3 Am 32d Agency § 76.

See agency by estoppel.

authority of agent. The power of the agent to affect the legal relations of the principal by acts done in accord with the principal's manifestations of consent to him. See agent's actual authority; agent's apparent authority; agent's express authority; agent's implied authority; agent's incidental authority.

authority of law. See warrant of law.

authority of officer. The authority which inheres by force of statute or under the common law in an office, whether public or private.

authorize. To empower; to give a right to act, the connotation being permissive rather than mandatory.

While it is true that in many statutes the word may imply a command if it does so it is because other words have been used to express that intention. A mandatory construction has prevailed only in cases where the statute under consideration, when taken as a whole and viewed in the light of surrounding circumstances indicated a legislative purpose of enacting a law mandatory in its character. 121 Kan 109, 245 P 1019; 50 Am J1st Stat § 28.

The phrase as used in the Bankruptcy Act making it a condition of confirmation of a plan of composition of the indebtedness of a governmental unit on the petition of such unit that it must appear that the petitioner is "authorized by law to take all action necessary to be taken by it to carry out the plan" manifestly refers to state law. United States v Behins, 304 US 27, 82 L Ed 1137, 58 S Ct 811.

authorized. A word of permission. 17 Am J2d Contr § 281.

See authorize.

authorized by appointment to receive service of process. An actual appointment or an agent for the purpose of receiving service. Anno: 11 L Ed 2d 1038.

authorized by law. See authorized.

authorized capital stock. The maximum amount of stock which a corporation is authorized to issue under its charter or articles of incorporation. McLaren v Weld, 168 Minn 234, 237, 210 NW 29, 30; 18 Am J2d Corp § 208.

Authorized Version. Same as King James Bible.

authorship. A putting into production of something meritorious from the author's own mind, something which embodies thought of the author, perhaps the thought of others, and that would not have found existence in the form presented except for the distinctive individuality of mind from which it sprang. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 37.

au tiel forme. In such manner.

autocracy. Self-government; self-rule; a government whose monarch's power is unlimited.

auto da fe. Same as auto de fe.

auto de fe. The publication of sentences of persons tried by the courts of the Spanish Inquisition; the execution of the sentence.

autograph. A document written wholly in one's own handwriting; a person's signature.

auto livery. Taxicab service.

automatic continuance. An adjournment of a case by operation of law, as where it is not disposed of at the end of the term and necessarily must go over to the next term. 17 Am J2d Contin § 1.

automatic elevator. An elevator, particularly one for the carriage of passengers, which does not require an attendant in operation, responding to the push of its button. Anno: 6 ALR2d 391.

automatic insurance. Protection under a clause in standard automobile liability policies which extends the coverage to the operation by the insured of cars acquired during the life of the policy by replacement and purchase. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 100. Insurance provided by nonforfeiture clauses in life insurance policies. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 633.

Insurance which can be extended by a mere notice from the insured and without any new contract can be fairly called automatic insurance, though perhaps renewable insurance would be a better term. Continental Casualty Co. v Trenner (DC Pa) 35 F Supp 643.

automatic revocation of trust. The death of the beneficiary of a tentative trust of a savings deposit prior to the death of the depositor. Anno: 38 ALR2d 1246.

[113]

automatism. Action uncontrolled by thought.

automobile. A vehicle propelled by a motor, capable of standing erect when stationary, designed for carrying persons or property, and which does not run upon fixed rails or tracks. 7 Am J2d Auto § 1. The "car" to millions of Americans. Ordinarily, although not absolutely, to be distinguished from carriage, cart, or wagon. 7 Am J2d Auto § 3. In the ordinary sense of the term, something different from a farm tractor. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 43. An "effect" within the constitutional protection of the right of the people to be secure in their effects against unreasonable search and seizure. Dalton v State, 230 Ind 626, 105 NE2d 509, 31 ALR2d 107 1.

In the ordinary sense of the term, as the word is to be understood where it appears in an automobile liability policy, automobile is equivalent to motor vehicle and is inclusive of trucks and tractors. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 99.

Although the generic word "automobile" is broad enough to include all forms of self-propelling vehicles, the word is to be defined in a particular case from its association in the context and by considering the purpose of the instrument in which it is used. Modern usage assigns to the word "automobile" the restricted meaning of a motor-driven vehicle suitable and intended for conveyance of persons. Washington Nat. Ins. Co. v Burke (Ky) 258 SW2d 709, 38 ALR2d 861.

As to what is an "automobile" or a "car" within coverage of accident policy, see Anno: 38 ALR2d 867.

automobile accessories. Articles and instrumentalities placed in the mechanism or structure of an automobile for use in the operation of the vehicle either as a matter of necessity or for convenience: pleasure, and comfort, in operation.

automobile accident. See accident.

automobile association. An association or club which provides towing or emergency road service, map and touring service, bail-bond service, etc., and often engages in activities for the promotion of driver training and the enactment of statutes and ordinances in the interest of safety in driving. Anno: 89 ALR 930.

automobile club. See automobile association.

automobile collision insurance. See collision insurance.

automobile comprehensive insurance. A policy of insurance which, in addition to coverage of loss by fire, theft, collision, and upset, protects against loss from practically every other occurrence, manifestation of nature, and event causing injury to an automobile, such as windstorm, hail, lightning, malicious mischief, vandalism, pilferage, civil riot or commotion, etc. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 74.

Automobile Dealers' Day in Court Act. Another term for Federal Automobile Dealers Franchise Act which is intended to establish a balance of power as between manufacturers and dealers in the automobile industry by curtailing the economic advantages of the larger manufacturers and increasing those of the dealers. 7 Am J2d Auto § 348.

automobile fire insurance. Protection against fire given by the ordinary automobile insurance policy.

See automobile insurance.

automobile guest. One who is invited, either directly or by implication, to enjoy the hospitality of the owner or operator of an automobile, and who accepts such hospitality and takes a ride either for his own pleasure or on his own business, without making any return to or conferring any benefit upon the owner or operator of the motor vehicle other than the mere pleasure of his company. 8 Am J2d Auto § 475.

automobile indemnity insurance. A policy of insurance for the protection of an owner or operator of a motor vehicle having the same purpose in general as an automobile liability policy but distinct from the latter in the respect that the liability of the insurer under the policy does not attach until the insured has sustained an actual loss in the discharge of a liability incurred by him in the operation of the vehicle causing injury to the person or property of another. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 81.

automobile insurance. A generic term inclusive of the several kinds of contracts and policies which affords protection against risks involving the ownership and operation of automobiles, such as collision, fire, flood, theft, transportation, and, perhaps most important of all, insurance against liability for death, personal injury, or damage to property, occurring from the operation of a motor vehicle. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 1.

automobile liability insurance. A policy of insurance under which the insurer agrees to pay, on behalf of the insured and within specified limits, all sums which the insured shall become legally obligated to pay as damages because of personal injury to or the death of any person, or because of injury to or the destruction of property, caused by accident and arising out of the ownership, maintenance, and use of the vehicle or vehicles insured. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 80.

automobile lights. See clearance lights; headlights; side lights; taillight.

automobile theft insurance. Insurance against loss from the theft of a motor vehicle or articles carried therein, provided by a separate policy or, as is usually the case at the present time, in a comprehensive policy. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 46.

As to whether automobile theft insurance covers a loss where the taking of the car amounts to larceny by trick or the offense of obtaining property by false pretenses, see Anno: 48 ALR2d 20.

autonomy. Independence; self-government; the negation of a state of political influence from without or from foreign powers. Green v Obergefell, 73 App DC 298, 121 F2d 46, 138 ALR 258. A self-governed community.

autopsy. A method of discovery. 23 Am J2d Dep §§ 209, 322, 323. Opening, examination, and dissection of a dead body to determine cause of death. 22 Am J2d Dead B § 32.

autoptic preference. Real or demonstrative evidence. 29 Am J2d Evid § 769.

auto stage. A motor vehicle used for the purpose of carrying passengers, baggage, or freight on a regular schedule of time and rates. State v Ferry Line Auto Bus Co. 99 Wash 64, 168 P 893.

auto transportation company. Every corporation or person operating or managing any motor-propelled vehicle, not usually operated on or over rails, in the business of transporting persons and property over a public highway for compensation. Strickler v Schaaf, 199 Wash 372, 91 P 1007, 123 ALR 226.

autre. Other; another.

[114]

autre action pendant. Another action pending.

autre droit. The right of another.

autrefois. Formerly; hertofore; previously.

autrefois acquit. Formerly acquitted; a plea of one accused of crime setting up his previous acquittal of the same offense as a bar to further prosecution. Potter v State, 91 Fla 938, 109 So 91, 92.

See prior jeopardy.

autrefois attain. An older doctrine that a person already convicted and serving a term of imprisonment for the offense is not to be held for another offense while in confinement. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 140.

autrefois convict. Previously convicted; a plea setting up a prior conviction for the same offense as a defense.

See prior jeopardy.

autre soile. See en autre soile.

autres sages come leur semblera. Such other skilled men as to them shall seem fit.

autre vie. The life of another.

autri. Other; another.

autry. Same as autri.

auxiliary. Collateral; incidental; conducive; assisting.

See ancillary.

auxiliary administration. See ancillary administration.

auxiliary chaplain. A parish priest's assistant.

auxiliary jurisdiction. See ancillary jurisdiction.

auxiliary proceeding. See ancillary proceeding.

auxiliary to or supplemental of. An expression in the Federal Motor Carrier Act which is determinative of the relation of motor carrier service to train service in reference to the legality of acquisition of the motor carrier by the rail carrier. 13 Am J2d Car § 89.

auxilium. Aid.

auxilium curiae. An order of court citing a person, at the suit of another to appear and warrant something.

auxilium petere. To seek aid.

auxilium regis. A subsidy paid to the king.

auxilium vice comiti. An ancient duty paid to sheriffs.

auxionarii et auxionatrices panis, cervisiae, et aliarum rerum. Male and female vendors of bread, beer and other things.

auxionarius. Same as auktionarius.

auxy icy. So here.

auxy pleinment. As fully.

auxy sovent que. As often as.

A. V. Abbreviation of Authorized Version, which is the King James Bible.

availability for work. Readiness and willingness to accept suitable work at a point where there is an available labor market, which work one does not have good cause to refuse. A willingness to accept any suitable work which may be offered without attaching thereto conditions not usual and customary in the occupation but which the individual may desire because of his particular needs or circumstances. Unemployment Compensation Com. v Tomko, 192 Va 463, 65 SE2d 524, 25 ALR2d 107 1; Anno: 25 ALR2d 1077.

available market. A place where goods can be bought or sold; from the standpoint of a buyer of goods which the seller wrongfully refuses to deliver, a place where the buyer can purchase similar goods. Buyer v Mercury Technical Cloth & Felt Corp. 301 NY 74, 92 NE2d 896, 20 ALR2d 8 15.

available means. A mercantile term for anything which is readily convertible to money, such as negotiable promissory notes and bills of exchange, stocks and bonds. Brigham v Tillinghast, 13 NY 215, 218, 219.

avail of marriage. The value of the marriage; that is, the amount which the suitor would give.

avails. The proceeds of the sale of property. McNaughton v McNaughton, 34 NY 201, 205. The proceeds of an insurance policy. Le Blanc's Succession, 142 La 27, 76 So 223.

aval. A guaranty of a negotiable instrument.

avalanche. A slide of snow from the top or side of a mountain, often destructive of life and property; an Act of God. Anno: 34 ALR2d 834, § 3.

avant. See en avant.

avantagium. Advantage; profit.

avanture. An adventure; chance; misadventure; an accident causing death.

avaria. Average; loss to a ship or cargo at sea.

aveigner. Same as advenir.

avenage. A feudal tenant's payment of rent in oats.

avener. Same as advenir.

aventure. Same as adventure.

avenue. A thoroughfare in a city or populated area; usually a wide street, sometimes with trees.

aver. To allege; to plead; to assert; to state.

aver. Verb: To have. Noun: Property; substance.

average. The mean between extremes or between two or more quantities, measurements, distances, weights, etc. Feudal service performed by tenants consisting of hauling and carrying with wagons and work animals. Sometimes used as the equivalent of general average.

See free from average unless general; free from particular average; general average; particular average; petty average.

average agreement. A rule or regulation for calculating demurrage, whereby the shipper or consignee is allowed a credit for cars released prior to the expiration of the free time. 13 Am J2d Car § 488.

average bond. See general average bond.

average clause. A clause in a blanket fire insurance policy providing that in case of loss the policy shall attach on each building in such proportion as the value of each building bears to the aggregate value of the entire property insured.

[115]

Such provision is in no sense a coinsurance clause. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins 1540 .

See free from average unless general; free from particular average.

average earnings. Average over recent years; a measurement of value of lost time. 22 Am J2d Damg § 91.

In applying workmen's compensation statutes, the words "average weekly earnings" are to be taken in their common and ordinary sense. 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 309.

average profits. Net profits over a reasonable period of time dating back from time of injury to business. 22 Am J2d Damg § 329.

average-taker. An expert employed to adjust general average in a marine loss.
See general average.

average unless general. See free from average unless general.

average value. See fair average value.

average weekly earnings. See average earnings.

a verbis legis non est recedendum. From the words of the law there should be no departure.

avercorn. Rent in corn.

aver de pois. True weight; full weight.
See avoirdupois weight.

aver et tenir. To have and to hold.

averia. Plural of averium.

averia carucae. Beasts of the plough.

averia elongata. Cattle which have been taken away.

averiiis captis in withernam. A writ by which a person whose cattle had been taken away could have cattle of the taker.

averiiis retornandis. See de averiiis retornandis. averium. A work animal. See heriot. averium ponderis. True weight; full weight.

averland. Land which was subject to the feudal service of average.

averment. An allegation.

averment on information and belief. An allegation in a pleading which states that the pleader is informed and believes the facts stated to be true, instead of making a direct statement of such facts. 41 Am J1st Plead § 40.

a vero domino. From the true owner. Rhodes v Whitehead, 27 Tex 304.

averpenny. A feudal tenant's payment of money in lieu of average.

averrare. A feudal service of carrying goods in a wagon or on horses.

aver silver. A feudal tenant's payment of money in lieu of average.

aversio. Air averting or turning away; a sale or lease of property as a whole.

aversio periculi. The averting of peril or danger.

averum. Property.

avet. To abet; to aid or assist.

avia. A grandmother.

aviation. The art of flying; the management of aircraft, particularly aircraft heavier than air. Masonic Acci. Ins. Co. v Jackson, 200 Ind 472, 164 NE 628, 61 ALR 840. The science and the business of flight as practiced by man.

See aeronautics; aircraft; airport; engaged in aviation.

Aviation Act. The federal statute which provides in detail for a federal aviation program, continues the Civil Aeronautics Board as an agency of the United States, and also establishes a Federal Aviation Agency which is headed by an Administrator. 8 Am 32d Avi § 10.

Aviation Administrator. The head of the Federal Aviation Agency. 8 Am J2d Avi § 10.

Aviation Agency. An agency of the United States created by statute for the regulation of aviation, including such matters as the certification, identification, and marking of aircraft; airplane and aircraft air worthiness; the maintenance, repair, and alteration of aircraft; the transportation of dangerous articles, air-traffic rules, etc. 8 Am 12d Avi § 12.

aviation liability insurance. An insurance contract which insures the owner of an aircraft against loss sustained on account of having to pay damages for injuries to persons or property inflicted by or in the operation of such aircraft. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1348.

a villa. From a village.

a vinculo matrimonii. From the bonds of matrimony.

avis. Advice; counsel.

avisamentum. Same as avis.

avizandum. A Scotch practice of submitting a matter privately to a judge. avo. See de avo.

avocat. (French.) An advocate; a lawyer.

avocation. That which is outside a person's regular calling; a minor occupation. Anno: 11 ALR 503.

avocatory. See letters avocatory.

avoid. To annul; to make void; to declare void that which is voidable; to keep away from.

avoidable. See voidable.

avoidable consequences doctrine. Precluding recovery of damages flowing from consequences reasonably avoidable by plaintiff. 22 Am J2d Damg § 30.

avoidance. Nullifying; rendering void.

See confession and avoidance; plea in confession and avoidance.

avoidance of taxes. Permissible acts and conduct, as distinguished from the reprehensible "evasion" of taxes.

avoirdupois weight. A measure characterized by a sixteen-ounce pound, as distinguished from troy weight of twelve ounces to the pound.

avoucher. To call a warrantor of land to come in and defend the title for the warrantee.

avoue. (French.) Attorney; solicitor in Canada.

[116]

avow. To declare solemnly; to make avowry.

See avowry.

avowal. A direct statement or declaration. A formal offer of proof made to preserve an exception to a ruling of the trial court excluding evidence as inadmissible or holding the witness to be incompetent. Murphy v Phelps, 241 Ky 339, 43 SW2d 1010; Huff v Commonwealth, 248 Ky 700, 59 SW2d 985; 53 Am J1st Trial §§ 99-103.

avowant. A person who avows; a person who makes an avowry. One who makes an avowal.

avowee. An advocate of a church living.

avowry. A landlord's common-law pleading justifying the distraint of property. 32 Am J1st L & T § 647.

avowterer. An adulterer.

avowtry. Adultery.

avulsion. A sudden and perceptible loss or addition to land by the action of water, or a sudden change in the bed or course of a stream. 56 Am J1st Water § 477.

avunculus. A mother's brother; a maternal uncle. See 2 Bl Comm 230.

avunculus magnus. A grandmother's brother, a great uncle.

avus. A grandfather. See 2 Bl Comm 207.

await. To delay; to wait for an event; to waylay.

await further conveyance. A clause in a bill of lading relieving the carrier from liability other than as warehousemen respecting property at its depot or pier to be accepted by a succeeding carrier. Texas & Pacific R. Co. v Reiss, 183 US 621, 46 L Ed 358, 22 S Ct 252.

award. The decision, decree, or judgment of arbitrators determining the disputed matter submitted to them. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 124. In effect, a judgment, where workmens' compensation is awarded. 38 Am J1st Workm Comp § 484. A judgment or order for the payment of costs. 20 Am J2d Costs § 87. A judgment or decree of an admiralty court for salvage. 47 Am J1st SaIv § § 31 et seq. The amount of a judgment or verdict.

award in gross. A final property settlement between the parties which, when legally brought about, is as binding, conclusive, and final as the decree of divorce itself, its purpose being to finally adjust and determine the financial relations as well as the marital rights at one and the same time. Anno: 127 ALR 744.

See alimony in gross.

aware of. Informed or having knowledge of something.

See become aware of.

away-going crops. Annual crops which mature after the termination of a tenancy but are nevertheless removable by the tenant. 21 Am J2d Crops § 25.

awm. A wine measure.

axiom. A principle that is not disputed; a maxim.

ayant cause. (French law.) An assignee.

ayant droit. (French law.) Person entitled.

ayde. Same as aid.

ayd pryer. Same as aid prayer.

ay. Yes; an affirmative vote.

ayel. Same as aiel.

ayle. A grandfather.

ayre. (Scotch.) An eyre; a circuit.

ayuntamiento. The council or cabildo of the capital of a Spanish-American jurisdiction.

The seats of administration or capitals of provinces or other lesser divisions were generally the largest towns from which the section usually took its name. In every such capital there was an ayuntamiento. Strother v Lucas, 12 Pet (US) 410, 442, note, 9 L Ed 1137, 1149, note.

Azo. An ancient teacher of law who lived at Bologna.

B

B. A. Abbreviation for Bachelor of Arts.

baby act. Conduct in seeking sympathy. A plea of infancy as a defense to an action.

baby sitter. One who cares for a baby, or parents are otherwise engaged.

baccalaureate. The degree of bachelor of arts or science. The address given to a graduation class.

baccarat. A game of chance which is prohibited as gambling, where played for a stake. 24 Am J1st Gaming § 20.

bacheleria. Commonalty or yeomanry.

bachelor. A male unmarried, although old enough to wed; an inferior knight; a squire.

Bachelor of Arts. The first degree given in a liberal arts college; the holder of a bachelor of arts degree.

Bachelor of Civil Law. A degree held by one learned in the civil law of the European continent and of nations which have derived their legal systems from Europe.

Bachelor of Education. The degree awarded on graduation from a teachers' college.

Bachelor of Engineering. The degree awarded upon graduation from some colleges of engineering.

In other such colleges, the degree awarded is bachelor of science.

Bachelor of Finance. A degree given by some universities or colleges to a graduate of the college or school of commerce.

Bachelor of Fine Arts. A degree given upon graduation from a college or school of instruction in the aesthetic arts.

Bachelor of Forestry. The degree given upon graduation from a college of forestry.

Bachelor of Law. A degree given upon graduation from law school.

It has been supplanted to a great extent by the degree doctor of jurisprudence, but may still be given to one who has completed the law school course successfully but does not have an academic of liberal arts degree which is necessary to qualify for the doctor of jurisprudence degree.

Bachelor of Letters. A degree infrequently given to graduates of liberal arts colleges.

Bachelor of Library Science. A degree given in some colleges and universities to graduates of the school of library science.

Bachelor of Pharmacy. The degree granted to a graduate of a college of pharmacy.

Bachelor of Philosophy. The degree granted by some colleges to a graduate with a major in philosophy.

Bachelor of Science. The first degree given in a college of science; the holder of a bachelor of science degree.

Bachelor of Theology. The degree conferred upon graduation from a divinity school.

back. To support; to indorse; to reverse. See backing.

backadation. A sum paid by the seller of shares of stock to postpone the date of their delivery.

backbear. To carry away game wrongfully killed.

backberend. The carrying away of goods which he has stolen, on his back, by a thief.

back-bond. An indemnity bond; a Scotch term for a deed which had the force and effect of an English deed of declaration of trust.

back-deed. Same as back-bond.

back dues. Dues owing by a member of a labor union, fraternal order, mutual benefit society, or club for such a length of time as to render the member delinquent in status.

back fill. A term of the construction business for filling an excavation with the same material as that removed in the excavating. Leo F. Piazza Paving Co. v Montrose, 141 Cal App 2d 226, 296 P2d 369.

backgammon. A game of chance which is prohibited as gambling, where played for a stake. Anno: 135 ALR 120.

backing. Reversing in direction. The indorsement of a negotiable instrument. The indorsement of an entry or memorandum on the back of a writ, warrant, subpoena, or other process. Gondas v Gondas, 99 NJ Eq 473, 477, 134 A 615, 617. The last sheet of a pleading or motion, or of a document prepared by an attorney, usually of heavier paper than the body of the instrument, which, when the instrument is folded, appears on the outside and carries notations, such as the name of the court, the title of the cause, the kind of pleading or motion, if the paper is one connected with an action or proceeding; the kind of instrument and the names of the parties, if it is a private document; and, in any event, the name and address of the attorney who drafted or prepared the paper.

back lines. Lines established on building lots, sometimes by municipal regulation, but more often by restrictive covenants, to mark the limits of construction in the direction of the back or rear line of the lot. 20 Am J2d Cov § 240.

back pay. Unpaid or uncollected salary or wage to which an employee is entitled.

back pay orders. Orders that employees be given their back pay, such being rendered in connection with the reinstatement of the employees. 31 Am J1st Lab § 309.

backside. The buttocks. The backyard of a dwelling house.

back taxes. Those taxes on which the ordinary processes provided by law for collection have been exhausted; taxes in arrears; Commonwealth v Louisville Water Co., 132 Ky 305, 309, 116 SW 712.

backwardation. See backadation.

backwards. Moving with the back foremost; moving in the opposite of the previous course followed.
See forwards and backwards at sea.

back-water. Water backed up by an obstruction in a stream.

baco. A hog yielding bacon.

bacterial infection. An infection produced by bacteria; a term to be construed in the popular or commonly accepted meaning. Anno: 131 ALR 1063.

[118]

baculus. A divining rod; a rod used in making livery of seisin.

baculus nuntiatorius. The announcing rod or staff, -the white stick or wand which was erected on the defendant's land to give him warning or notice that he had been sued in a real action. See 3 Bl Comm 279.

bad. Immoral; unworthy; unfit; of inferior quality.

Good and bad are both terms of comparison. The same article may be called, not inaccurately, good when compared with one of the same kind of a much inferior quality; and it may, with equal correctness, be characterized as bad when spoken of with reference to the most perfect article of the kind. Tobias v Harland (NY) 4 Wend 537, 541.

bad debt. An uncollectible debt. A debt which may be deducted from gross income in determining income subject to tax. Anno: 39 ALR2d 898. A debt which is worthless because, in the exercise of sound business judgment, there is no likelihood of recovery thereon at any time in the future. O'Bryan Bros., Inc. v Commissioner (CA6) 127 F2d 645, cert den 317 US 647, 87 L Ed 521, 63 S Ct 41. A business debt which in the opinion of the Treasury is recoverable only in part at best. IRC § 166(a)(2).

A debt which results from an unpaid loan of money is a "bad debt" and therefore deductible in the computation of income taxes only where there was an expectation of repayment. Such advances made with the belief that they would not be repaid are in the nature of gifts, and are not deductible as bad debts. American Cigar Co. v Commissioner (CA2) 66 F2d 425.

bad debtor. A person who is not in the habit of paying his honest debts; a person unworthy of credit. State v Armstrong, 106 Mo 395.

bad faith. The antithesis of good faith; a state of mind affirmatively operating with a furtive design, with a motive of self interest or ill will, or for an ulterior purpose. 37 Am J2d Fraud § 1.

Though an indefinite term, it differs from and is stronger than the idea of negligence in that it contemplates a state of mind affirmatively operating with a furtive design or with some motive of self interest or ill will, or for an ulterior purpose. Warfield Natural Gas Co. v Allen, 248 Ky 646, 59 SW2d 534, 91 ALR 890.

If a man makes a statement in the honest belief of its truth, he does not make it in bad faith, even if honest ignorance of the truth is the result of the grossest carelessness. Penn. Mut. Life Ins. Co. v Mechanics Sav. Bank & Trust Co. (CA6 Tenn) 73 F 653.

badge. Something noticeable worn on the person to indicate his connection with some enterprise, person, lodge, club, society, or matter. A sign of authority, such as the star of a policeman or other law-enforcement officer.

badge of fraud. Suspicious circumstances that overhang a transaction, or appear on the face of the appurtenant papers, having evidentiary force unless the suspicion is dispelled by a satisfactory explanation. Royal Indem. Co. v McLendon, 64 NM 46, 323 P2d 1090.

There are many badges of fraud; to enumerate a few, insolvency of a grantor, lack of consideration for a conveyance, secrecy or concealment, etc. 37 Am J2d Frd Conv § 10.

badger. Noun: A hawker or huckster. A burrowing animal, the name of which has been given to residents of Wisconsin and the University of Wisconsin athletic teams, Verb: To torment.

badger game. A blackmailing trick; a method of artifice in obtaining money.

bad girl. A naughty girl, if she is of tender years; an immoral or wayward girl, if of an age to distinguish between right and wrong.

The imputation is not necessarily that of unchastity. 33 Am J1st L & S § 39.

bad law. A decision, ruling, or opinion which does not accord with law.

bad moral character. Any and every trait involving moral turpitude; lechery; habitual drunkenness. State v Scott, 332 NM 235, 58 SW2d 275, 90 ALR 860 In days gone by, even profanity coupled with Sabbath -breaking. Wieman v Mabee, 45 Mich 484.

bad weather. Rainy, stormy, or inclement weather. As the term appears in a charter party, not merely weather during which cargo cannot, by any possibility, be loaded, on a ship but such weather as is not reasonably fit and proper for loading; weather in which it is not reasonably safe to attempt loading with the appliances at hand, such as lighters.

The term has also been held to include weather unfit for loading by reason of the state of the sea as well as that of the atmosphere. Anno: 26 ALR 1440.

bag. A piece of luggage; a large purse carried by a woman; a sack or pouch for carrying dry products. A slang term of derision applied to a person, usually a woman.

baga. A bag or purse.

baggage. Articles which one usually carries with him for his personal use, convenience, instruction or amusement, 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 100. Articles which a passenger Of a carrier usually takes with him for his own personal use, comfort and convenience during the journey, taking into consideration his tastes, habits, and station in life, and having some regard for the object and length Of the journey. 14 Am J2d Car § 1223.

Baggage does not include merchandise or valuables not designed for personal use or personal convenience. 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 100. Articles carried for the purpose Of business, such as merchandise or samples, constitute baggage only as they are accepted as such by the carrier. The same is true Of articles Of extraordinary value. 14 Am J2d Car § 1223.

baggage car. The car of a passenger train in which baggage checked by passengers is carried.

baggage insurance. See tourists' policy baggage lien. The lien which a carrier of passengers has on the baggage that a passenger carries with him for pleasure of convenience for all unpaid charges for transportation which the passenger incurs during the journey.

This lien does not extend to the clothing or other personal furnishings or conveniences of the passenger in immediate use. Roberts v Koehler (CC Or) 30 F 94, 96, 97.

baggage master. An employee of a carrier in charge of the baggage room.

baggage room. The room devoted by a carrier at its station to the reception and delivery Of the baggage of its customers.

bahadum. A chest or coffer.

[119]

bail. Noun: The means of procuring the release from custody of a person charged with a criminal offense or with debt by assuring his future appearance in court and compelling him to remain within the jurisdiction. Manning v State, 190 Okla 65, 120 P2d 980. The security given for a defendant's appearance in court in cash, bond, or undertaking. Sawyer v Barbour, 142 Cal App 2d 827, 300 P2d 187. The surety on a bail bond. (French.) A lease of real estate. Verb: To deliver from custody on the security of bail. 8 Am J2d Bail § I (French.) To prepare a lease.

See bail above; bail below.

baila. Bail.

bailable. Admitting of bail, as, a bailable offense; entitled to be released on bail, as, a bailable prisoner.

bailable action. An action in which a defendant must find bail or suffer imprisonment until the plaintiff's demand is satisfied or until discharged by the court.

bailable offense. An offense a defendant charged with which may be released on bail.

bailable person. One under arrest for a bailable offense.

bailable process. Process under which an officer may take bail and release a person arrested from custody.

bail above. Bail on the mesne process of civil arrest, otherwise known as bail to the action, put into the court on the return day of the writ, wherein the undertaking of the surety, in the event of judgment against the principal, was either to pay the judgment debt and costs or surrender the principal into custody. 8 Am J2d Bail § 1.

bail below. Bail on the mesne process of civil arrest, otherwise known as special bail, for the appearance of the principal in court on the return day of the writ. 8 Am J2d Bail § 1.

bail bond. A bond given as security for the purpose of obtaining release of a person in custody.
See bail.

bail court. A court auxiliary to the queen's bench having cognizance particularly of matters of procedure.

bail de la seisine. Livery of seisin.

bailee. The person to whom a bailment is made. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 2.

bailee for hire. A person who takes personal property into his care and custody for a compensation. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 7.

bailee's lien. The lien of a bailee entitled to compensation or reimbursement as security for the payment thereof. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 227.

baillie. A Scotch alderman, bailiff, or magistrate.

bailiff. A court attendant; a sheriff's deputy; a keeper; a servant that has the administration and charge of lands, goods and chattels, to make the best benefit for the owner, against whom an action of account lies, for the profits which he has raised or made, or might by his industry or care have raised or made. Barnum v Landon, 25 Conn 137, 149.

bailiff errant. A deputy appointed by the sheriff to go about serving writs and process.

bailiffs of franchises. Officers acting as sheriffs within privileged jurisdictions where the king's writ could at that time not be executed by the sheriff.

bailiffs of hundreds. Officers appointed by sheriffs in their respective hundreds to collect fines therein, to summon juries, to attend the judges at assizes and quarter sessions and to execute writs and process. See 1 Bl Comm 345.

bailiffs of manors. Stewards who were appointed by lords of manors.

bail in error. Bail procured by a plaintiff in error as security for his prosecution of his writ of error with effect, that in case of affirmance he will pay the judgment of the lower court and all costs and damages assessed and whatever damages shall be awarded for the delay of execution of the affirmed judgment.

bailing. See bail.

bailivia. An old form of bailiwick.

bailiwick. The jurisdiction of a sheriff or bailiff; a word introduced by the princes of the Norman line, in imitation of the French, whose territory is divided into bailiwicks, as that of England into counties. See 1 Bl Comm 344.

bailleur. (French.) A lessor.

bailleur de fonds. (French; French Canadian.) An unpaid lender; an unpaid vendor.

bailli. A person to whom judicial authority is delegated.

baillie. A bailiwick.

bailment. The delivery of personal property by one person to another in trust for a specific purpose, with a contract, express or implied, that the trust shall be faithfully executed, and the property returned or duly accounted for when the special purpose is accomplished, or kept until the bailor reclaims it. 8 Am 32d Bailm § 2.

bailment for compensation. See bailment for hire.

bailment for hire. A bailment in which the bailee is compensated; a bailment for the benefit of both parties. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 7.

bailment for sale. A consignment contract. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 34.

bailment-lease. A form of contract calling for instalment payments, but without a debtor-creditor relationship expressly created. Re Robinson (DC Pa) 40 F Supp 320.

bail money. A deposit of money in lieu of a bail bond or undertaking. Sawyer v Barbour, 142 Cal App 2d 827, 300 P2d 187.

bailor. One who makes a bailment of property. Watson v State, 70 Ala 13.

He need not have in himself absolute title to the thing bailed, provided he is invested with such possessory interest as will entitle him to hold it against all the world except the rightful owner, 8 Am J2d Bailm § 44.

bailout stock. Preferred stock issued as a nontaxable stock dividend. IRC § 305.

bailpiece. A written memorial that a person has become bail; evidence of authority of the sureties on a bail bond to make an arrest of the principal. Worthen v Prescott, 60 Vt 68, 11 A 690.

bail to the action. Same as bail above.

baily. Same as baillie.

[120]

Baine's Act. An English statute passed in 1848, placing accessories before the fact and principals on equal footing and providing for separate trials for accessories after the fact.

bair-man (Scotch.) A man who has been stripped bare by his creditors; a bankrupt.

bairns. (Scotch.) Children.

bairns' part. (Scotch.) A third of a decedent's estate, if there was a widow, a half, if there was not, to go to his child or children.

bait. Noun: Something offered to entice. Verb: To harass.

baker. One who follows the occupation of baking bread and pastries in a bakery or a restaurant.

baker's dozen. Thirteen.

bakery. A place where bread and pastries are baked and sold or baked for delivery in commerce.

baking powder. A leavening agent used to raise dough before baking.

balaena. A whale.

See fish royal.

balance. A word which had its origin in the field of weights, but has a present meaning of that which remains after the taking away or deduction of a part, such as the balance of an account.

The entry of a "balance" is not an original entry within rule of admissibility of books of account. Anno: 17 ALR2d 235.

The word, when used in a residuary clause of a will, will be regarded as presumptively indicating an intention that lapsed or ineffectual gifts should pass thereunder. When used with reference to some specific fund, it is given a restricted construction and held not to pass a lapsed legacy or devise outside of such fund. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1449.

balance due. The amount owing on a debt after a partial payment or payments.

The "balance due" on a general account by a correspondent is, in mercantile language, the fund found in his hands, Parsons v Armor (US) 3 Pet 413, 430, 7 L Ed 724.

balance of convenience. The importance of granting relief by injunction to the plaintiff, measured against the injury, hardship, or inconvenience which the defendant is likely to suffer from such relief. 28 Am J Rev ed Inj § 52.

balance of power. The doctrine that there will be no great wars if the possible belligerents are kept in equal strength by armament and alliances, so that the one side seems to have no advantage over the other and therefore no good reason for starting a war.

balance sheet. As the term is uniformly used by bookkeepers and businessmen, a summation or general balance of all accounts, but not showing the particular items going to make up the several accounts. Eyre v Harmon, 92 Cal 580, 28 P 779.

balance sheet test. The test of insolvency under the bankruptcy definition of insolvency. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1065. Considering the aggregate of liability against the aggregate value of assets; the relation of the aggregate of liabilities to assets. 9 Am J2d Bankr §160.

balcony. The upper section of a conventional theater; a platform extending out from a building and enclosed by a railing.

baldio. (Spanish.) Abandoned public land.

bale. A large package or bundle; sorrow.

baleine. (French.) Whale or whalebone.

baling band. Bands upon bulky bales of cargo, necessary to keep the bales tight and in workable dimensions. 48 Am J1st Ship § 212, Wire or cord bands used in baling hay.

balise. In French maritime law, a buoy or beacon.

balius.. A tutor; a guardian; a teacher.

baliva, or balliva. A bailiwick or county.

balivo amovendo. A writ to oust a bailiff from his office.

ballast. A word somewhat analogous to "dunnage" and applied to matter such as coal, iron, ore or stone, placed in a ship's hold for trimming the ship, and bringing her down to a draft of water proper and safe for sailing. Great Western Ins. Co. v Thwing (US) 13 Wall 674, 20 L Ed 607.

ballastage. A toll imposed upon ships for the privilege of taking on as ballast soil from the bottom of a seaport.

ballistics. The science of projectiles, by the application of which, at the hands of an expert, it is possible to show that a bullet found in the body of a victim of a homicide was fired from a particular pistol or rifle. 26 Am J1st Homi § 440.

balloon. An aircraft which will rise from the earth because it is inflated with a gas which is lighter than air.

balloonist. The pilot of a balloon. 8 Am J2d Avi § 33.

ballot. Deriving from the Greek "ballo". Noun: The implement of voting, whether a paper to be marked by an elector or the face of a voting machine prepared for an election. 26 Am J2d Elect § 202.

See Australian ballot system.

ballot box. A box or receptacle for the deposit of ballots cast by electors at an election. The box in which the names of jurors on the panel for the trial term are deposited preparatory to drawing jurors for a case on trial. 31 Am J Rev ed Jury § 76.

ballottement. (French.) Balloting in an election. Tossing. A test of pregnancy by palpitation.

balnearii. (Roman law.) Thieves who stole the clothes of persons who were bathing in the public baths.

balustrade. A railing with supporting Posts.

See bannister.

ban. A public edict or proclamation; a sentence of excommunication in an ecclesiastical court. A prohibition.

See banning; banns of matrimony.

banality. A platitude. The right by which the lord made his vassals grind at his mill and bake at his oven.

banc. A bench; a meeting of all the judges of the court.

banci narratores. Pleaders at the bench. Sergeants and advocates of the law . See 1 Bl Comm 24, note.

banc le roi. The king's bench.

[121]

banco. See banc; in banco.

bancus reginae. The court of queen's bench.

bancus regis. The court of king's bench.

bancus superior. The upper bench, -at one time the name of the court of king's bench.

band. Something that binds. A company of persons; a group of musicians who play together, especially upon wind and percussion instruments. In the Scottish, a call to arms.

See Indian band.

band and tribe. See Indian band.

bandit. An outlaw.

bane. A malefactor; a slayer; the cause of harm or trouble.

baneret. Same as banneret.

bani. Same as deodand.

banishment. The removal, expulsion, or deportation of a person from a country by the political authority thereof on the ground of expediency.

The better use of the word appears to exclude its employment in the sense of transportation or exile by way of punishment for crime. Fong Yoe Ting v United States, 149 US 698, 709, 37 L Ed 905, 911, 13 S Ct 1016. It has, however, been used in the latter sense by some authority. Ex parte Scarborough, 76 Cal App 2d 648, 173 P2d 825.

banister. See bannister.

bank. An institution, usually incorporated, the business of which is primarily receiving deposits of money, the collection of commercial paper, discounting commercial paper, lending money, issuing, purchasing, and accepting bills of exchange or drafts, and issuing its own notes and certificates of deposit. Bank of Augusta v Earle (US) 13 Pet 519 593, 10 L Ed 274, 310; Oulton v German Sav. Loan Soc. (US) 7 Wall 109, 21 L Ed 618.

See banc; bank of river; commercial bank; savings bank.

bankable note. A note which will be taken by a bank as cash or subject to a discount. Pasha v Bobart, 45 Mont 76, 122 P 284. The condition that a buyer must pay by cash or a "bankable note" was at one time a familiar one in auction sales.

The courts are split as to whether a note is bankable when banks refuse to discount it because of the general stringency of the money market, and not because of the financial irresponsibility of the parties. 46 Am J1st Sales § 179.

bank account. The deposits made by a customer less his withdrawals plus the other charges which the bank is entitled to make.

The difference remains to be withdrawn; if the withdrawals and charges exceed the aggregate of the deposits, the account is in the state of an overdraft.

bank a deal. To advance money, usually by way of a loan bearing interest and secured, to one with whom the lender desires to consummate a contract, under such terms that he does not become a partner of the borrower, but a secured creditor. Cray, McFawn & Co. v Hegarty, Conroy & Co. (DC NY) 27 F Supp 93.

bank bills. See bank notes.

bank board. The directors of the bank acting as a body.

bank book. A book in which a customer of a bank keeps account of his deposits, withdrawals, and balance.

bank cashier. See cashier.

bank chairman. The chairman of the board of directors of a bank, who is in some institutions the chief executive officer, but usually exercises no functions except those of presiding at board meetings and acting with the board.

bank check. A check in the ordinary sense of the term, that is, a check drawn on a bank.

See cashier's check; check.

bank collections. A long established function of banks, the collection of commercial paper for its patrons. 10 Am J2d Banks § 694.

bank commissioner. A state officer appointed and invested with power to license banks, supervise the conduct of the banking business within the jurisdiction, and liquidate failed banks. 10 Am J2d Banks § 17.

Bank Conservation Act. A federal statute which provides for the appointment by the Comptroller of the Currency of a conservator of a national bank found by the comptroller to be in failing circumstances, not for liquidation of the bank but for conservation of assets, there being prospect that the bank later may be in position to reopen and resume its corporate functions. 12 USC §§ 201-211; Davis Trust Co. v Hardee, 66 App DC 168, 85 F2d 571, 107 ALR 1425.

bank conservator. See Bank Conservation Act.

bank credit. The rating of a borrower at a particular bank as to the maximum loan to be made to him and the maximum amount of his drawings upon the bank in the aggregate which will be accepted.

bank deposit. A contractual relationship ensuing from the delivery, by one known as the depositor, of money, funds, or even things into the possession of the bank, which receives the same upon the agreement to pay, repay, or return, upon the order or demand of the depositor, the money, funds, or equivalent amount.

This agreement on the part of the bank is usually a tacit one and implied, and it may include an implied promise to pay interest upon the deposit, depending upon the nature of the deposit and the account into which it is placed. 10 Am J2d Banks § 337.

Where the terms of the law provide for the safeguarding of deposits in banks, it extends only to such deposits as are general deposits; money or the equivalent of money must in intention and effect be placed in, or at the command of, the bank so that the relation of debtor and creditor is created. Re Farmers State Bank, 67 SD 51, 289 NW 75, 126 ALR 619.

See safe-deposit box; savings account.

bank deposits tax. A tax upon the franchise of the bank measured by the amount of deposits. 51 Am J1st Tax § 931. A tax upon a deposit as moneys or credits of the depositor.

bank directors. The members of the board of directors of a banking corporation who, acting as a board, appoint the officers and agents necessary to carry on the business of the bank and who are responsible for proper and prudent management of the bank. 10 Am J2d Banks §§ 77, 178.

banke. See en banke.

banker. A dealer in capital, that is, an intermediary between the borrower and the lender, who borrow's from one party and tends to another; every person, firm, or company having a place of business where credits are opened by the deposit or collection of money or currency, subject to be paid or remitted upon draft, check or order, or where money is advanced, or loaned on stocks, bonds, bullion, bills of exchange, or promissory notes, and commercial paper is received for discount or for sale. 10 Am J2d Banks § 2. One who accepts and holds the stake or stakes in a gambling game or wager. 24 Am J1st Gaming, etc. § 26.

bankerout. A bankrupt.

banker's acceptances. In the broad sense, acceptances of bills of exchange by banks; in the technical and peculiar sense of the banking business, extensions of credit by acceptances of bills of exchange. Atterbury v Bank of Washington Heights, 241 NY 231, 239.

bankers' blanket bond. A fidelity bond protecting a bank against loss through the fraud or dishonesty of employees. Anno: 74 ALR 284.

bankers' cash notes. Formerly called goldsmiths' notes; promissory notes issued by bankers, payable to bearer on demand and used as money.

banker's lien. The lien that a banker has on all moneys and funds of his depositor or customer in his possession for the balance of the general account; and upon all securities of the customer in his hands unless such securities have been delivered to him under a particular agreement limiting their application, or unless there are other circumstances which would make such a lien inconsistent with the actual or presumed intention of the parties. Anno: 22 ALR2d 478; 10 Am J2d Banks § 660.

banker's note. A bank note issued by a private, unincorporated bank.

bank examiner. A federal or state officer authorized to conduct an investigation of the accounts of a bank and determine the state of solvency of the institution. 10 Am J2d Banks § 18.

In some jurisdictions, examiners act on behalf of the commissioner or superintendent of banks in the liquidation of insolvent banks.

bank failure. See failed bank.

bank for co-operatives. See Central Bank; regional banks.

bank guaranty law. A statute which has for its purpose the guaranty of payment of bank deposits in whole or in a stated percentage, subject to limitations upon the amount of the deposit.

See Deposit Insurance Corporation.

bank holiday. Known to some as a day, such as Christmas, Memorial Day, or other national or state holiday, when banks are closed; known also to people of an older generation as the trying period in 1933 during which all banks in the United States were closed by the proclamation of newly inaugurated President Franklin D. Roosevelt or the orders of governors of states and banking authorities rendered and declared in keeping with the presidential proclamation.

The purpose of the holiday was to prevent the drain of currency from the banks by withdrawals by frightened depositors and give the people a chance to reassess the situation and recover from their fears of an impending collapse of the entire financial structure of the nation.

banking. Receiving deposits payable on demand; making collections; discounting commercial paper; making loans of money, often on collateral security; accepting, buying, and selling bills of exchange, negotiating loans; and dealing in negotiable securities issued by the government, state, national, or municipal, and other corporations. 10 Am J2d Banks § 3.

The safe-deposit business must be a "banking function" authorized by Congress. The obvious fact, known to all, is that national banks do and for many years have carried on a safe-deposit business. State banks quite usually are given the power to do so. Colorado Nat. Bank v Bedford, 310 US 41, 84 L Ed 1067, 60 S Ct 800.

banking business. See banking.

banking corporation. Essentially, a corporation engaged in the banking business or in some features of the banking business. For the purposes of an exception from adjudication in bankruptcy, an organization, other than a private bank, banking partnership, or other form of unincorporated association, which is engaged in the banking business or having authority to engage in such business. 9 Am J2d Bankr §§ 129, 130.

banking game. A slang expression for the banking business; gambling games, such as faro or craps, in which one person takes all the bets, and the running of slot machines. 24 Am J1st Gaming, etc. § 26.

Any game of chance is a banking game if it is a game wherein the chances are unequal and in favor of the exhibitor of the table. The advantages or chances in favor of the player or exhibitor of the table are not the same in each case, but in each case the chances are in his favor, and this is the distinctive characteristic of this class of gambling games. Territory v Jones, 14 NM 579, 99 P 338.

banking hours. The hours in which banks are open for business.

See bank night.

banking institution. See bank, banking, banking corporation.

banking powers. The powers of engaging in the ordinary banking business of receiving deposits, making collections, accepting bills of exchange, making loans, etc. and, in addition the powers in carrying on other functions, which may or may not be incidental to the business of banking, but are such as can be exercised advantageously in connection with the banking business. 10 Am J2d Banks § 270.

bank lien. See banker's lien.

bank money order. An instrument issued by an authorized officer of a bank and directed to another bank, evidencing the fact that the payee may demand and receive upon indorsement and presentation to the other bank the amount stated on the face of the instrument, liability for ultimate payment resting solely on the issuing bank. 10 Am J2d Banks § 545.

bank night. An evening upon which banks remain open for the convenience of working people; a scheme once fairly common in theaters which led to prosecutions for conducting a lottery.

The scheme usually provides for registration by the individual in a book, provided by the theater or other place conducting the scheme, which gives him a registration number. On certain specified nights numbers are drawn from among those registered entitling the one holding such number to a prize. Theoretically, at least, everyone may register free of charge and need not attend the performance, but he must be nearby at the time of the drawing in order to present himself within the short time allotted to claim the prize. Some courts hold that the scheme is not a lottery because no consideration is involved, but others hold that the free registration is only a subterfuge and that there is a consideration involved. Still others hold that whether there is a consideration or not is a question in each case for the jury. 34 Am J1st Lot § 9.

[123]

bank notes. Notes or bills issued by banks and passing as money or common currency. 10 Am J2d Banks §320.

See bank of issue.

bank of circulation. See bank of issue.

bank of discount. See discount.

bank of issue. A bank authorized to issue notes intended to circulate as money.

For many years, national banks were authorized and did issue notes which passed as currency. This power has since been withdrawn from national banks. The only banks of issue at the present time are the federal reserve banks.

bank of river. The water-washed and relatively permanent elevation or acclivity at the outer edge of the river bed which separates the bed from the adjacent upland, and serves to confine the waters within the bed and to preserve the course of the river. 56 Am J1st Wat § 448.

bank president. Normally, the chief executive officer of a bank, but in some banks, giving way in this respect to the chairman of the board, and in a few small-town banks, even to the cashier.

bank receiver. A bank acting in the capacity of a receiver. 10 Am J2d Banks § 304. A person designated by statute or appointed to take charge of the assets of an insolvent bank and conserve them for liquidation or reorganization of the bank. 10 Am J2d Banks §§ 763 et seq.

The receiver of an insolvent national bank is an officer of the United States. Pufahl v Park's Estate, 299 US 217, 81 L Ed 133, 57 S Ct 151.

bank receivership. See bank receiver.

bank reorganization. Broadly, a change in the corporate structure of a bank. In a narrower but usual sense of the term, the rehabilitation of a failing or financially embarrassed bank by freezing the assets through the suspension of payment to depositors and creditors, followed by the adoption of a plan of reorganization affecting the rights of depositors, creditors, and stockholders whereunder the bank reopens for business as a bank. 10 Am J2d Banks 8 821 bank reserve. See reserve.

Bank Robbery Act. A federal statute intended to state comprehensively criminal offenses committed against a national or federal bank, or a federal savings and loan association, in entering the institution with intent to commit a felony therein, in the taking of property of the institution with force or violence, in carrying away property of the institution with intent to steal or purloin, and the receiving of property stolen from the institution. 18 USC § 2113; Anno: 59 ALR2d 954.

bankrupt. A person, corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association which has been adjudicated bankrupt by a court of bankruptcy.

The word is derived from the terms "banque" and "rupt," which had reference to the broken bench or table of a failed trader, symbolizing his failure.

bankruptcy. A system of jurisprudence, which, while statutory, is comparable to equity or admiralty. The law whereunder an insolvent debtor may bring all his assets not exempt from execution into court and have them administered and sold for the benefit of his creditors, and be discharged from all of his debts not excepted from discharge; or bring all of his assets into court, not for their liquidation and his discharge from his debts, but for his financial rehabilitation 9 Am J2d Bankr 8 2

Bankruptcy Act. A national bankruptcy act.

There have been four of such acts in the United States, effective respectively in 1800, 1841, 1867, and 1898. The last of these is the present Bankruptcy Act, although some have regarded the Amendatory Act of 1938, known as the Chandler Act, as a new bankruptcy act because of the very extensive revision which it made of the Act of 1898. There have, of course, been amendments since 1938, but none of them so extensive by any means as the Chandler Act.

bankruptcy proceeding. See proceeding in bankruptcy.

bankruptcy trustee. See trustee in bankruptcy.

bankrupt's estate. See estate in bankruptcy.

bank stock. Stock in a banking corporation.

bank stock lien The lien which a bank has on shares of its stock to secure the payment of indebtedness due the bank from its stockholder.

Such lien exists by force of statute, by charter, by bylaw, or by contract. 10 Am J2d Banks §§ 55 et seq.

bank teller See teller

banleuca. The territory without the walls, but within the town or city limits.

banlieu. Same as banleuca.

banner. A flag; a cloth carrying the names of candidates for election, or of products for sale, sometimes hung for display to passers-by, sometimes carried on the streets, and sometimes trailed by an airplane.

banneret. A rank of knighthood

See knights banneret.

banning. Excluding; outlawing; swearing at or berating a person.

banni nuptiarum. The bans of matrimony bannister. The railing on stairs or around the well of a stairway.

bannition. Same as banning bannitus. An outlaw; a person who has been banished.

bans of matrimony. Notice given of an intended marriage, usually given by proclamation in church.

bannum. A ban; the boundaries of a manor or a town.

bannus. A proclamation.

[124]

bannus regis. A proclamation of the king forbidding interference at a trial by combat.

banque. A bench or counter of a trader.

baptismal register. A church record of baptisms.

Baptist Church. A protestant church of strength in the United States. Park v Champlin, 96 Iowa 55, 64 NW 674.

See Free Baptists.

bar. Noun: A rail inclosing the officers of a court; the place in a court occupied by a prisoner on his trial. The court itself, as where one speaks of the case at bar. The attorneys at law taken collectively in a municipality, county, state, or the nation. A defense defeating an action; a kind of answer or plea. A molded chunk or piece of metal, such as a gold bar; a lever or pry of wood or metal. A room or place where alcoholic beverages are sold and drunk, sometimes with, but more commonly without, meals. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 20. A place where coffee, tea, grapejuice, orangejuice, or other nonintoxicating beverage is sold. The counter at which beverages are served. Verb: To prevent; to keep persons or animals out of a building or area.

See barroom; integrated bar; plea in bar; state bar.

bar association. An organization of members of the bar of the United States or of a state, county, or municipality, the primary function of which is the improvement of the profession which will result in improvement in the administration of justice.

barat. To quarrel.

barator. An old form of barrator.

Baratriam committit qui propter pecuniam justitiam baractat. Barratry in selling justice for money.

barbarous. Strange, rude, and uncivilized.

barber. A tonsorial artisan; one who performs work in cutting hair, shaving, shampooing, massaging, singeing hair, and other functions intended to promote cleanliness and personal attractiveness.

In ancient times, barbers performed some of the services now performed by physicians and surgeons, such as lancing and draining boils, and stopping nosebleed, and hiccups.

barbican. A watchtower.

barbicanage. Financial support for a watchtower.

barbiturate. A drug employed as a sedative. People v Wittpen, 190 Misc 565, 75 NYS2d 670.

bare. Mere; unaccompanied; naked; nude; nothing more.

bareboat charter. A charter under which full possession and control of the stripped vessel is delivered to the charterer for a period of time, making him for most purposes the owner or, as he is generally called, owner pro hac vice. Reed v The Yaka, 373 US 410, 10 L Ed 2d 448, 83 S Ct 1349.

bare contract. The essential conditions.

bare licensee. One whose presence on premises is not invited, but not resisted, merely tolerated.

See licensee.

bare possibility. An expectancy; something that may but is riot likely to happen.

baret. A quarrelsome litigation; a fraud; a deceit.

bare trustee. A trustee whose sole function is to hold the title to the trust property.

See dry trust; passive trust.

bare wires. Uninsulated wires. New England Tel & Tel. Co. v Butler (CAI Mass) 156 F 321.

bar fee. A sheriff's fee which is due him on the acquittal of a prisoner in his custody.

bargain. An agreement of two or more persons to exchange promises or to exchange a promise for a performance. 17 Am J2d Contr § 1. As the terms upon which persons contract with one another. Salmon Falls Mfg. Co. v Goddard (US) 14 How 446, 14 L Ed 493.

bargain and sale. A deed in the form of a contract which became effective to transfer legal title by virtue of the Statute of Uses. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 13. A sale of personal property which vests title in the buyer, 46 Am J1st Sales § 2. A contract within the meaning of statutes taxing transfers by bargain and sale. Schroeder v Zink, 4 NJ 1, 71 A2d 321.

bargain and sale deed. See bargain and sale.

bargain collectively. See collective bargaining.

bargainee. The grantee or vendee in a bargain and sale.

bargaining unit. A labor union or other body participating on behalf of labor in collective bargaining.

bargain money. Money paid to bind a bargain; earnest money.

bargainor. The grantor or vendor in a bargain and sale.

barganizare. To bargain; to agree.

barganizavit et vendidit. He has bargained and sold.

barge. Noun: Watercraft; a ship or boat of state used in the transportation of rulers and dignitaries; a flat bottomed boat used in the loading and unloading of ships which cannot dock; a towed boat on rivers and canals, carrying oil, coal, grain, and various heavy cargoes. Verb: A colloquial expression meaning to enter abruptly and somewhat heavily.

bar integration. See integration of the bar.

bark. The covering of the trunk and branches of a tree; superficial appearance, as distinguished from heart or substance.

barley. A food grain; a crop.

barleycorn. A lineal measure equal to a third of an inch.

barmote courts. Courts established in the reign of Edward the Third, and held twice a year in Derbyshire, in which matters connected with mining are considered.

barn. A building, found on farms and in some villages and hamlets, for sheltering livestock and affording a storage place for livestock feed.

barnard. A swindler who acts as a decoy for other swindlers.

Barnard's Inn. One of the inns of the English chancery.

baro. A baron; a knight; a freeman.

baron. A person having the most general and universal title of the English nobility; a judge or officer of the court of exchequer; a husband; a vassal of the king.

baronage. The rank of a baron; a barony.

baron court. See court baron.

baronet. An English title of lower rank than the nobility and which is a dignity of inheritance created by letters patent and usually descendible to male issue. See 1 Bl Comm 403.

baron et feme. Husband and wife.

barons of the cinque ports. The members of parliament from the five English ports nearest France: Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover, and Sandwich. At one time, these ports were considered the most important in England.

barons of the exchequer. The judges of the court of exchequer. They are always referred to as barons and not as judges.

barony. The rank of a baron; the lands held by a baron; the tenure by the service of attending the king in his courts as a baron.

barony of land. An old term for an area of land, perhaps fifteen acres.

barra. Same as bar.

barrasterius. A barrister.

See barratry.

barrator. A person guilty of barratry. 14 Am J2d Champ § 19.

barratrous. Tainted with barratry; fraudulent.

barratry. The offense of frequently exciting or stirring up suits and quarrels between others. 14 Am J2d Champ § 19. A marine term meaning acts or conduct of master or mariners in their character as such, committed for some unlawful or fraudulent purpose, contrary to their duty to the owners of the ship or cargo, whereby the owners sustain injury. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1320; 48 Am J1st Ship § 652.

barre. Same as bar.

See en barre.

barred. See bar.

barrel. A liquid measure of thirty-six gallons. Gardner v Lane, 91 Mass (9 Allen) 492. A container for transportation or storage of liquids, grain, flour whiskey, etc., sometimes of a specific capacity, fo; example a barrel of flour, 192 pounds, the equivalent of four 48 pound bags.

barren money. A debt bearing no interest.

barrenness. Inability to bear children.

The word is in no sense a synonym of "impotency." Anonymous, 89 Ala 291, 7 So 100.

barretor. Same as barrator.

barretry. Same as barratry.

barricade. A barrier against the onslaught of enemies or rioters; a hastily-constructed fence or wall in the street to prevent travelers from driving or stepping into excavations, in which case, the word imports an obstruction, not merely a warning, but an actual impediment to travel. American WaterWorks Co. v Dougherty, 37 Neb 373, 376, 55 NW 1070.

barrier. See barricade.

barring. Closing and locking up; keeping people or animals out of a building or area; a technical term in railroading; the shifting of freight cars for short distances by means of crowbars applied to the wheels in order to make the cars more accessible for loading and unloading. Jarka Corp. v Pennsylvania R. Co. (DC Md) 42 F Supp 371.

barring the entail. Defeating an estate tail and the onerous effect of the Statute de Donis by common recovery or fine. 19 Am J1st Est § 50.

See common recovery; fine.

barrister. A person learned in the law and who is permitted to plead at the bar of the courts in England.

The nearest American term in counterpart is "trial lawyer," the most essential difference being that the barrister's professional work is confined exclusively to the trial of cases, while an American trial lawyer often performs the professional work of ordinary office practice.

barroom. A room or place where intoxicating liquors are sold and drunk, usually without meals. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox § 20.

See bar.

bar sinister. Bastardy in the family line.

bartender. A person, usually an employee rather than an owner of a bar, who draws, pours, mixes and dispenses alcoholic beverages.

barter. Noun: The exchange of one commodity or article of property for another. 30 Am J2d Exch P § 1. Verb: To negotiate for the acquisition of a thing. Homan v Board of Dental Examiners (Cal App) 254 P 907; Clark v State, 167 Ala 101, 52 So 893.

Broadly defined, "barter" includes a sale as well as a trade.

barton. The unrented lands of a manor; the demesne lands of a manor; the manor house itself.

bas. Base; humble; inferior.

bas chevaliers. Minor knights.

base. Noun: A foundation; a starting point. Adjective: Low, vile, corrupt.

base animal. See animal of a base nature.

baseball. A game played with a ball and a wooden bat by opposing teams of nine men each; a sport, amateur in origin, which has become professional to a great extent, leading to complex organization as an enterprise in entertaining people.

See professional baseball.

base coin. Coin made of base metal altogether, colored by artificial means.

Base is not to be confounded with "adulterated" coin, which is a distinct species. Gabe v State, 6 Ark 540, 542.

base court. An inferior English court, not a court of record, as the court baron.

base estate. An estate held by a base tenant.

See base fee.

base fee. An estate in real property which has the possibility of enduring forever but which may be determined and put to an end without the aid of a conveyance by some act or event circumscribing its continuance or extent. An estate limited to a person and his heirs, with a qualification annexed to it providing that such estate must determine whenever that qualification is at an end. 28 Am J2d Est § 22.

base infeftment. (Scotch.) A disposition of lands by a vassal, to be held of himself.-Black's Law Dict.

[126]

base line. An east and west line, parallel to the equator, established as a means whereby townships created in the government survey of public lands are described as such by the number of the tier of townships in which it appears north or south of such line, the description, operating with a similar description in terms of a north and south line or principal meridian, to give the location of the township. Meas v Whitener-London Realty Co. 119 Ark 301, 178 SW 390.

See range.

basement. The lowest story of a building; the story which is wholly or partially lower than the surface of the ground.

base nature. See animal of a base nature.

base of operations. A place where activities are centered; one may have more than one base of operations, working out of one in one state and out of another in another state. Re Mallia, 299 NY 232, 86 NE2d 577, 9 ALR2d 636.

base property. An older concept of the common law, which has been changed to a great extent, if not entirely, by statute or evolution in the common law, that certain things, such as dogs and cats, were property of an inferior nature, so that they were not subjects of larceny. 32 Am J1st Larc § 79. The inferior nature of the property in such animals did not prevent the maintenance of an action for their conversion. Columbus Railroad Co. v Woolfolk, 128 Ga 631, 58 SE 152; Commonwealth v Flynn, 285 Mass 136, 188 NE 627, 92 ALR 206.

See base fee.

base right. (Scotch.) A subordinate right.

base services. Services annexed to feudal tenure of villeinage; such services were of a base or servile nature.

base tenants. Tenants rendering services of a base or servile nature.

base tenure. Villenage.

basileus. A Greek word meaning king, in use in England prior to the Norman Conquest.

basilica. A rectangular building in use in ancient times as a courtroom or public hall; a church in the architectural form of a basilica.

Basilica. The Byzantine Code adopted from the Code of Justinian and published in the early part of the tenth century.

basin. A part of the sea inclosed in rocks, the area drained by a river; a bowl.

basis. The foundation of a principle; a technical term in the law of income taxes for the cost of property, or the value of investment in property, as of a certain date, upon which depreciation can be computed. Anno: 40 ALR2d 446.

basis of keeping accounts. For income tax purposes, the bookkeeping system followed by the taxpayer, not the items or entries upon his books. United States v American Can Co. 280 US 412, 74 L Ed 518.

basis of tax. The ground or foundation on which the tax is computed; the rate is the percentage fixed by the statute applied to the basis in making the calculation. The result is the amount of the tax to be paid. Pacific Mot Life Ins. Co. v Lowe, 354 111 398, 188 NE 436.

basis patent. A patent in a virgin field; a pioneer patent. A patent following a discovery in a field theretofore unknown to the discoverer, or if once known, had since become unknown, to him, which appears to the scientific world or the industry to which it pertains as a startling, unexpected, unprophesied, and unheralded innovation. Northwest Engineering Corp. v Keystone Driller Co. (CA7 Wis) 70 F2d 13.

basket tenure. Tenure by the service of basket-making.

basse justice. Low justice; the right of a feudal lord to try petty offenders.

basset. An unlawful game.

bastard. A person begotten and born out of wedlock, otherwise known in common parlance as an illegitimate child or natural child. 10 Am J2d Bast § 1.

The word "bastard" shall not be used in any local law, ordinance, or resolution, or in any public or judicial proceeding, or in any process, notice, order, decree, judgment, record, or other public document or paper, but there shall be used in place of such word the term "child born out of wedlock." NY General Construction Law § 59.

See adulterine bastard; delivery of bastard child; illegitimate child; incestuous bastard.

bastarda. A female bastard.

bastard eigne. The elder son of parents who were married to each other after his birth as a bastard. 2 Bl Comm 248.

bastardize. To prove a person to be a bastard.

Bastardus non potest habere haeredem nisi de corpore suo legitime procreatum. A bastard cannot have an heir unless he is one lawfully begotten of his own body.

Bastardus nullius est filius; aut filius populi. A bastard is the son of no one, or a son of the people.

bastardy. The state of being a bastard; a man's illicit carnal connection with a woman causing the birth of an illegitimate child. Dinkey v Commonwealth, 17 Pa 126.

bastardy bond. A bond given by the father of a bastard to insure his support and maintenance.

bastardy proceeding. A proceeding, otherwise known as a filiation proceeding, of a civil nature to compel a bastard's father to support him or her. 10 Am J2d Bast §§ 74 et seq.

bastardy process. Same as bastardy proceeding.

bastart. Same as bastard.

bastinado. The beating of the soles of a man's feet with a club as a punishment for an offense; a cudgel.

baston. A baton; a club; a servant of a warden of the Fleet Prison.

bas-ville. The suburbs of a town or city.

batable. Debatable; Questioned; disputed.

batable ground. Land the title to which is in dispute; land lying between England and Scotland, claimed by each; an area of principle subject to be questioned or disputed.

bataille. Same as battel.

batiment. (French.) A building, structure, vessel, or ship.

[127]

batonnier. (French.) The president of an organized bar of attorneys at law.

battel. A duel; a combat which was sanctioned by law in ancient times as a form of trial, under the superstition that the right would triumph. The last trial by battel on record was in 1638. See 3 Bl Comm 337 et seq.

battery. The unlawful touching or striking of the person of another by the aggressor himself, or by any substance put in motion by him, with the intention of bringing about a harmful or offensive contact or apprehension thereof which is not legally consented to by the other and not otherwise privileged. 6 Am J2d Asslt & B § 5.

As defined in the American Law Institute's Restatement of the Law of Torts, a battery is an act which, directly or indirectly, is the legal cause of a harmful contact with another's person; such act makes the actor liable to the other, if the act is done with the intention of bringing about a harmful or offensive contact or an imminent apprehension thereof to the other or a third person, and the contact is not consented to by the other or the other's consent thereto is procured by fraud or duress, and the contact is not otherwise privileged. Restatement, Torts 2d § 13.

See assault and battery.

battle. A fight between the armed forces of nations.

See battel; war.

batture. An accumulation or deposit of sand, stone, or rock mixed together on the bed of a stream or other body of water and rising toward the surface by the process of accumulation. 56 Am J1st Water § 499. When it ceases to be covered at the time of ordinary high water, it ceases to be batture and becomes the bank of the river. Boyce Cottonseed Oil Mfg. Co. v Board of Comrs. 160 La 727, 734, 107 So 506.

Baume gravity. See gravity.

bauxite. Earth that contains aluminum in sufficient quantities to make it worth working for the extraction of aluminum. Carson v Missouri P. R. Co. 212 Ark 963, 209 SW2d 97, 1 ALR2d 784.

bawd. A madam of a house of prostitution; a procuress; a prostitute. Dyer v Morris, 3 Mo 214, 216.

bawdy house. A house of prostitution, most frequently called a whorehouse. 42 Am J1st Prost § 3.

bay. An arm of the sea or of a lake; a body of water around which the land forms a curve; a recess or inlet between capes or headlands. Ocean Industries, Inc. v Superior Court, 200 Cal 235, 252 P 722.

bayley. A bailiff.

bayou. A slow-moving stream, sometimes with an imperceptible current, connecting a swamp or lagoon with a river or with the sea; in the lower Mississippi valley, streams that lead out of a main stream to swamp and marsh.

bay rum. A fragrant spirit obtained by distilling rum with leaves of the bayberry, or by mixing various oils with alcohol. Jordan v Roche, 228 US 436, 442, 57 L Ed 908, 910, 33 S Ct 573.

bay window. A window in an alcove or projection from the wall of a house; a slang term for a fat belly.

bazaar. A market or market place.

B.C. Abbreviation for "before Christ"; "bachelor of chemistry"; "bachelor of commerce"; "British Columbia."

B. C. L. An abbreviation of the law degree "bachelor of civil law."

B. E. Abbreviation for board of education; Bachelor of Engineering; Bachelor of Education; bill of exchange.

beach. Land on the margin of the sea, lake or river. 56 Am J1st Water § 448; the land lying between the lines of high water and low water, land over which, if a tidal stream or body of water is involved, the tide ebbs and flows. 12 Am J2d Bound § 13.

See shore.

beach for driftwood and timber. That line of shore to which seaweed and driftwood are usually carried in ordinary seasons by the highest winter floods, and which in fact is usually marked on the beach by a line of seadrift. Brown v Lakeman, 34 Mass (17 Pick) 444.

beaching. The voluntary stranding of a ship to save it from the greater loss from sinking. Fowler v Rathbone (US) 12 Wall 102, 20 L Ed 281.

beacon. A sign, signal, light, or other contrivance to guide or warn a traveler or ships; a lighthouse or other fixed marine signal formerly used to warn the inhabitants of the approach of an enemy, but later to indicate dangers to ships.

beaconage. Money paid as expenses to maintain beacons or signal lights.

beadle. A court crier; a parish officer whose duties resembled those of a constable; in addition to which he was required to attend and serve the vestry of the parish church.

beam. Noun: A long and sturdy piece of wood or metal; the width of a ship at its widest; a shaft of light; a radiance. Verb: To shine; to be radiant.

beam and balance. A weighing scales.

beans. Vegetables rather than seeds, for tariff purposes. Sonn v Magone, 159 US 417, 40 L Ed 203, 16 S Ct 67.

bear. Noun: A large mammal of the temperate and arctic zones, having a heavy coat of shaggy hair, varying in color, according to species, from black to brown, to gray, to white. Verb: To carry, as to bear arms.

bear arms. See right to bear arms.

bearer. One who is carrying some article, particularly a letter, message, of other writing; one who has information to impart orally; a word used in designating the payee of a negotiable instrument; the holder of a negotiable instrument not payable to a named person, for example, one payable to "Cash" to "bills payable;" or just "to bearer." 11 Am J2d B & N § 124; the holder of an instrument indorsed in blank. 11 Am J2d B & N § 106; the person in possession of an instrument, document of title, or security payable to bearer or indorsed in blank. UCC § 1-201(5). A person guilty of the offense of maintenance; an oppressor.

bearer form. A security which runs to bearer according to its terms, not by reason of any indorsement. UCC § 8-102(1).

bearer paper. Commercial paper payable to bearer or the order of bearer; to a specified person or bearer; to cash or the order of cash, or payable according to any other indication which does not purport to designate a specific payee or indorsee. UCC § 3-111 (a)(b); 11 Am J1st B & N § 106.

[128]

bearer security. A security which runs to bearer according to its terms and not by reason of any indorsement. UCC § 8-102(1)(d).

bearing. The posture or demeanor of a person; a support; the part of a machine which lends support to a moving shaft or sliding part; position; relevancy; producing.

bearing arms. See right to bear arms.

bearing child. Giving birth.

bearing date. Dated, as an instrument dated March 4, 1966.

bearing interest. Running at interest.

bearing the burden. Should mean lead to reaping the benefits. Pennington v Todd, 47 NJ Eq 569, 21 A 297.

beast. Any animal with four feet; a brutish, vile, or lecherous person.

beasts of the chase. Wild animals, especially the fox, wolf, and deer.

beasts of the forest. See beasts of the chase.

beasts of the park. An old expression meaning about the same as beasts of the chase.

beasts of the plow. Work animals.

beasts of the warren. Hares, comes and roes.
See free warren.

beat. Verb: To strike with hand or weapon, or cudgel of any description; to commit battery upon a person; Goodrum v State, 60 Ga 509, 511. To win over another in a contest; to obtain the better deal in a transaction with another person. Noun: The territory which an officer of the law is assigned to cover; a colloquial for a subdivision of a county. Williams v Pearson, 38 Ala 299, 308. Adjective: Slang for beaten or exhausted.

beaten. Having suffered blows; having been the victim of an assault and battery.

beat hand. A disease of the hands commonly contracted by steel riveters from the constant shock of the riveting hammer causing chronic soreness. Anno: 20 ALR 13.

beaupleader. A writ which prohibited the taking of a fine for ill-pleading or bad pleading.

beautician. One whose business it is to take care of and beautify a client's hair, hands, or complexion. Anno: 56 ALR2d 883.

beauty parlor. A place for the performance for women of various services in the interest of personal attractiveness, such as cutting, dressing, waving, and setting hair, shampooing, the application of refined cosmetics, etc.

beauty shop. See beauty parlor.

because. For the reason or cause that; on account of.

because of employment. As the phrase appears in a provision of a workmen's compensation statute relieving the employer from liability for injuries inflicted upon an employee by the wilful act of a third person directed against an employee "because of his employment," it means, not that the employer is relieved from liability where the employee was injured merely because he was in employment in the general sense of that term, but rather where it was apparent that the injury was inflicted because the assailant of the employee wished to prevent him from serving that particular employer. Pinkerton Nat. Detective Agency v Walker, 157 Ga 548, 122 SE 202, 35 ALR 557.

because of vicinage. See common because of vicinage.

become a member. To join a fraternal order, a church, or a service organization.

become aware of. The equivalent of actual knowledge. Anno: 23 ALR2d 1076.

become void. A term which comprehends every manner of bringing something to an end and complete nullification. Sharp v Curds, 7 Ky (4 Bibb) 547, 548.

be complied with. An expression which calls for performance in the future, having reference to subsequent, not past, performance. United States v Bank of Metropolis (US) 15 Pet 377, 10 L Ed 774.

bed. A layer, a stratum, an extended mass of anything, whether upon the earth or within it, as a bed of sulphur, a bed of sand or clay. State v Willis, 104 NC 764, 769, 10 SE 764. A foundation; a place of repose.

bed and board. See divorce a mensa et thorn.

bedding. A base or foundation; materials of any description which go to make a bed for rest or sleep.

bedel. Same as beadle.

bedelary. The jurisdiction of a beadle.

bederepe. The service binding the tenant to reap the landlord's corn.

bedeweri. Bandits.

bedlam. Great confusion with much noise; a hospital for the mentally ill.

bed of justice. The sitting of the king in the French parliament.

beef. Meat from the carcasses of cattle; an animal fit for use as beef, a steer, a heifer, an ox, or a cow. Davis v State, 40 Tex 135.

beer. A fermented beverage made from any malted grain, with hops or other bitter flavoring matter added; an alcoholic and an intoxicating beverage. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 10; any beverage obtained by alcoholic fermentation of an infusion or decoction of barley, malt and hops, or of any other similar products in drinkable water. Fletcher v Paige, 124 Mont 114,220 P2d 84, 19 ALR2d 1108.

before. A word of time meaning prior to, but subject to construction in connection with the context in which it appears. 32 Am J1st Time § 26.

Generally, where an act is required to be done a specified number of days before an event, the required number of days is to be computed by excluding the day on which the act is done and including the day on which the event is to occur. 52 Am J1st Time § 26.

Some authorities hold that such computation does not apply to a designation of time in terms of so many days before a given day. 52 Am J1st Time § 26.

before due. Before the maturity of a note, mortgage, or other instrument.

See indorsement before due.

before the fact. See accessory before the fact.

before trial. Literally, before the commencement of the step in an action where the issues of law or fact are determined. For some purposes, before final submission of the issues to court or jury for determination. Anno: 126 ALR 285.

[129]

beg. To ask for something with an appeal to charitable instincts made by words, signs, demeanor, or conduct. Re Haller (NY) 12 Hun 131, 132.

beга. A land measure of about a third of an acre.

beget. To procreate, as a father or sire; to generate; usually applied to the male, but sometimes to both male and female, and infrequently used with reference to the female only. Grainger v Grainger, 147 Ind 95, 46 NE 80.

beggars. Persons who beg or solicit alms.

begging the question. An argument which assumes as proved the very thing in issue.

begin. To start; to institute; to initiate; to commence. Bates Mfg. Co. v United States, 303 US 567, 82 L Ed 1020, 58 S Ct 694.

begin action. See commencement of action.

beginning of life. Biologically speaking, the moment of conception in the mother's womb. In law, for the purposes of inheritance or of taking under a will, the biological concept of the beginning of life in the womb. 27 Am J Rev ed Inf § 3.

The beginning of life has been more narrowly defined when the question was of the capacity of an unborn child to acquire a right of action for a personal injury, on which it could sue after birth. The authorities are divided upon the question whether a child or its personal representative may, in the absence of statute, maintain an action in damages for prenatal injury. 27 Am J Rev ed Inf § 3.

begotten. The words "begotten" and "to be begotten," "procreatis" and "procreandis" have always been held to have the same import, unless a contrary intent plainly appears. Wager v Wager (Pa) I Serg & R 374, 378.

See beget. behalf. In the name of; on account of; for the benefit, advantage, interest, profit, or vindication of. State v Eggerman & Co. 81 Tex 569, 572.

See on his behalf.

behavior. Conduct; manners.

behavior as heir. Acts or conduct indicating one's acceptance of an inheritance.

behetria. (Spanish.) Lands in districts and manors in which the inhabitants could select their own lords. -Bouvier's Law Dict.

behoof. Same as behalf.

Behring Sea Arbitration. See Bering Sea Arbitration.

being. Noun: A person; a living thing. The present participle of the verb "to be;" equivalent in a pleading to the words "which is." Porter v Ritchie, 32 Utah 381, 91 P 24, 27.

The word has been held to be sufficient as an averment of an existing fact. State v Boucher, 59 Wis 477, 18 NW 335.

See in being.

being in control of motor vehicle. Steering the vehicle under way or even while it is being towed or pushed by another vehicle. 7 Am J2d Auto § 256.

being operated. See operate.

being understood. See it being understood.

belief. The conviction of the mind, founded on evidence that a fact exists, that an act was done, that a statement is true. When one says, I believe that a fact exists, or that an act was done by another, he must be understood to assert that there is present to his mind evidence sufficient to convince him, that the fact does in reality exist, or that the act was done. Giddens v Mirk, 4 Ga 364, 369.

See information and belief; reasonable belief; religion; religious principles.

believe. To have a belief or an opinion.

bell. See curfew.

belladonna. A drug.

See atropine. belligerency. See belligerent; recognition of belligerency.

belligerent. A nation, power, or state carrying on war against another nation, power, or state; or a portion of one nation carrying on war against the nation, which has been recognized by other nations as a belligerent. 30 Am J Rev ed Internat L § 11; 56 Am J1st War § 3.

belligerent rights. Those peculiar rights recognized and sanctioned by the laws of war, which are exercised by a nation, power, or state as a means for carrying on a war. These are not unlimited under the law. It is not with the authority of law that a belligerent runs rampant in the world, killing both combatants and noncombatants, old men, women, and children. There are conventions, treaties, and unwritten principles of international law limiting the rights of belligerents by defining the laws and customs of war on land, sea, and in the air in the interest of humanity. 56 Am J1st War § 12.

bello. Waging war.

Bello parta. Spoils of war.

belium. War.

belong. The primary meaning of the verb to belong is to be the property of. The word is aptly used to express ownership and may properly be so used in a pleading. State v Fox, 80 Iowa 312.

belongings. Personal effects; a word often involved in the ejusdem generis rule of construction. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1130; under a broad construction, including personal property of every nature, even real property. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1343.

belonging to. Being the property of. Ownership under either legal or equitable title. 51 Am J1st Supp Tax § 544.

below. Inferior, as the court below; under; in a position of lower rank; physically lower.

See bail below.

belt. See maritime belt.

bench. A court; the judges of a court; the seat upon which the judges of a court are accustomed to sit while the court is in session; all the judges and justices of a state or subdivision, as in a reference to "bench and bar."

bencher. One of the senior or governing members of one of the English Inns of Court. As soon as a member has been appointed king's counsel or queen's counsel, it is customary for his fellow members to elect him as a bencher.

bench law. A term of derision for a decision against precedent.

See bench legislation.

bench legislation. Also called "judicial legislation," -a term of opprobrium applied to decisions which are criticised as being clearly contrary to law and which therefore infringe upon the legislative department of the government. State ex rel. Ragan v Junkin, 85 Neb 1, 122 NW 473.

[130]

bench warrant. A warrant issued by a judge for the apprehension of a person on a charge of contempt; a warrant for arrest issued by a judge of a court of general jurisdiction for the apprehension of a person who has been indicted for a criminal offense; a warrant for the arrest of an accused under bail who has failed to appear, the warrant being issued and signed by the judge. 5 Am J2d Arr § 78; the equivalent of a summons in a support proceeding. Commonwealth ex rel. Schaffer v Schaffer, 175 Pa Super 100, 103 A2d 430, 42 AI_R2d 761 (proceeding in case certified to a Pennsylvania court by a Florida court).

bends. Same as caisson disease.

bene. Well; properly.

beneath. A designation of a position, physical or graphical, as a stratum of limestone beneath a layer of sandstone, and a corporal beneath a sergeant. Truman v Deere Implement Co. (CC Cal) 80 F 109.

benedicta. Blessed.

bene esse. See de bene esse.

benefice. A church living or preferment. In feudal times, an estate held by the Church of Rome in feudal tenure.

benefice de discussion. (French.) A guarantor's right to have his principal's property first applied on the debt which he has guaranteed to see paid.

benefice de division. (French.) A cosurety's right to contribution.

benefice d'inventaire. Same as benefit of inventory.

beneficence. Charity; good will; kindness.

See contract of beneficence. beneficia. Estates held by feudal tenure, being originally gratuitous donations, were at one time called beneficia. See 4 Bl Comm 107.

beneficial. Of benefit; profitable; advantageous; enjoying; gaining.

beneficial association. See benevolent association.

beneficial devise. A devise which bequeaths a beneficial interest; a devise under which the devisee is intended by the testator to receive a direct interest under the will in the property of the testator. When an interest arises consequentially from a devise, as in the case of a dower right arising out of a devise to the husband, the devise is not a beneficial devise to the person thus incidentally benefited. Sullivan v Sullivan, 106 Mass 474.

beneficial enjoyment. The advantages of the ownership of property, sometimes had without possessing the legal title.

beneficial interest. An expression with variable meaning, dependent on the context in which it appears; that which remains of the estate of a decedent after the payment of debts and the expenses of administration. 28 Am 1 Rev ed Inher T § 388; such an interest as a devisee takes solely for his own use or benefit, and not as the mere holder of the title for the use of another. People v McCormick, 208 Ill 437, 70 NE 350; the right of one having a power of appointment to appoint himself. 41 Am J1st Pow § 3; the interest in a tract of land, the title to which is in the government, of one who has done everything to entitle him to a patent not yet issued by the government to him. Montana Catholic Missions v Missoula County, 200 US 118, 127, 50 L Ed 398, 402, 26 S Ct 197; an interest that will result in an appreciable gain to the holder. Cox's Appeal, 126 Me 256, 137 A 771, 53 ALR 208; an interest of value, worth, advantage, or use. Re Duffy, 228 Iowa 426, 292 NW 165, 128 ALR 943.

beneficially entitled. Having title legally or having it equitably, so as to reap the benefits of ownership. People v McCormick, 208 Ill 437, 70 NE 350.

beneficial ownership. See beneficial interest; beneficial use.

beneficial power. A power which has for its object the grantee of the power, and which is executed solely for his benefit. Tilden v Green, 130 NY 29, 28 NE 880.

beneficial society. See benevolent association; mutual benefit society.

beneficial use. See beneficial interest; use.

beneficiary. A person who receives a benefit or advantage. State v Willett, 17 Ind 296, 86 NE 68; a person receiving or entitled to receive a gift, a devise, or legacy; a cestui que trust; a person who is entitled to receive or who is receiving profit, benefit, or advantage from a contract or from an estate; one entitled by the terms of a life insurance policy to receive the proceeds of the policy upon the death of the insured. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1631; a person named by statute as entitled to the proceeds, or a share of the proceeds, of a statutory action, such as an action for wrongful death. 22 Am J2d Dth §§ 47-59.

beneficiary heir. A term of significance in Louisiana. One taking according to inventory.
See beneficium inventari.

beneficiary privileges. Patent rights; copyrights.

beneficio cedendarum actionum. The right of assigned or transferred actions, -the civil law right which a surety had, even before paying the creditor, to an assignment by the creditor to him of the claims which the creditor held against the principal debtor.

beneficio primo ecclesiastico habendo. A writ emanating from the king directing the chancellor or lord keeper to appoint a certain man to the first vacant benefice.

beneficium. A benefice; an advantage; a profit; a privilege; a right.

beneficium abstinendi. The privilege of abstaining, -the right or privilege of an heir to reject an inheritance.

beneficium cedendarum actionum. A Roman law right of subrogation by the surety to the claims of the creditor against the principal debtor.

beneficium clericale. Benefit of clergy.

beneficium competentiae. The privilege of a competency, -the civil law exemption of enough property to live upon by one making an assignment to his creditors.

beneficium divisionis. The right of division, -the civil law right of a surety who had been compelled to pay to exact pro rata contribution from his cosureties.

[131]

beneficium inventari. (Civil law.) The benefit of inventory, the limitation of an heir's liability for debts of the estate to the value of his inheritance.

beneficium non datum nisi propter officium. A benefit not conferred unless in recognition of an obligation.

beneficium ordinis. (Civil law.) The privilege of order, -the right of a surety to have all remedies against his principal first exhausted before resorting to the surety.

beneficium separationis. (Civil law.) The right of separation, -a creditor's right to have a decedent's goods separated from those of the heirs.

benefit. A contribution to prosperity; whatever adds value to property; advantage; profit; whatever promotes our prosperity, happiness, or enhances the value of our property rights, or rights as citizens, as contradistinguished from what is injurious. National Surety Co. v Jarrett, 95 W Va 420; 121 SE 291; 36 ALR 1171, 1176; the acquisition of a legal or equitable right to which one otherwise would not be entitled. 17 Am J2d Contr § 96; goods, services, the payment of a debt for another, anything which adds to the advantage or security of another. Heitfield v Benevolent & Protective Order of Keglers, 36 Wash 2d 685, 220 P2d 655, 18 ALR2d 983.

See hope of benefit.

benefit association. See benevolent associations; mutual benefit society.

benefit building society. A building and loan association.

benefit insurance. See benevolent association; mutual benefit society.

benefit of bargain rule. The rule of damages that a person who purchases in reliance upon fraudulent representations of the seller is entitled, in an action against the seller for the fraud, to recover as damages the difference between the real and the represented value of the property. Anno: 124 ALR 34.

benefit of cession. (Civil law.) Immunity from imprisonment for debt of a debtor who has assigned all his property to his creditors.

benefit of clergy. The exemption of clergymen from trial or punishment for crime in or at the hands of the secular courts.

benefit of counsel. See right to counsel.

benefit of discussion. (Civil law.) The right of a surety to have his principal's property first subjected to the payment of the obligation.

benefit of division. (Civil law.) The right of a surety to enforce contribution from his co-sureties.

benefit of inventory. (Civil law.) The limitation of an heir's liability for the debts of the estate to the value of his inheritance.

benefit of order. See ordinis beneficium.

benefit society. See mutual benefit society.

benefit theory. The principle that one who wishes to rescind a contract must place the opposite party in statu quo by restoring to him the benefits received from him. 17 Am J2d Contr § 512.

bene placitum. While it well pleases; at pleasure.

benerth. A feudal service rendered by the tenant to his lord with plough and cart.

bene se gesseret. See dum bene se gesseret.

benevolence. Acts or gifts prompted by good will or kind feelings; essentially philanthropy. 15 Am J2d Char § 4.

The term is inclusive of charity, but not limited to charity. A gift may be from benevolence, even though the recipient is in no need of charity.

benevolent. Charitable. 51 Am J1st Tax § 601; philanthropic, Anno: 115 ALR 1138; but at times something different from what such terms suggest. A word descriptive of a gift, too broad in scope for the gift to qualify as a charitable trust. 15 Am J2d Char § 9.

Acts dictated by kindness, good will, or a disposition to do good, the objects of which have no relation to the promotion of education, learning, or religion, the relief of the needy, the support of public works, or the relief of public burdens, and so cannot be deemed "charitable" in the legal sense, may nevertheless be "benevolent." 51 Am J1st Tax § 601.

Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. A fraternal order.

benevolent associations. Benevolent and beneficial associations are either purely voluntary aggregations of individuals or bodies corporate, formed and organized, not with a view to the accumulation of wealth and the making of profit, but, aside from fraternal objects, solely for the purpose of rendering financial aid or other assistance to their members, or certain designated beneficiaries of the latter, when visited by sickness, death, or other misfortunes specifically agreed upon. 38 Am J2d Frat 0 § 1.

See mutual benefit society.

benevolent corporation. A nonprofit corporation; an eleemosynary corporation; a corporation created by charitable rather than for business purposes.

benevolent insurance company. Benevolent associations, formed primarily for social and charitable purposes and for securing efficient mutual aid for their members are sometimes referred to as insurance companies, because they issue death certificates which are, in effect, policies of life insurance. Penn. Mut. L. Ins. Co. v Mechanics' Sav. Bank & T. Co. (CA6 Tenn) 72 F 413.

See mutual benefit societies.

Benigne faciendae sunt interpretationes chartarum propter simplicitatem laicorum. The construction of written instruments must be liberal because of the artlessness of laymen. Edgerly v Barker, 66 NH 434, 31 A 900.

Benigne faciendae sunt interpretationes chartarum, ut res magis valeat quam pereat. Liberal construction should be given to an instrument so that it may stand rather than fall.

Benignius leges interpretandae sunt quo voluntas earum conservetur. Laws should be construed more liberally in order that their intent may be preserved.

[132]

benzene. A highly inflammable liquid obtained by distillation of coal tar, used as a solvent in making lacquers, varnishes, and some other products.

bequeath. A legacy, that is, a disposition of personal property by will. Hoellinger v Molzhon 77 ND 108, 41 NW 2d 217, 19 ALR2d 747; often considered to include either a legacy of personalty or a devise of real estate. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1400. To make a bequest.

See bequest.

To bequeath has been judicially construed by many of the ablest courts of this country to be synonymous with "to devise," when used with reference to a testamentary gift of real estate. Gannon v Albright, 183 Mo 238, 81 SW 1162; Jacobsen v Farnham, 155 Neb 776, 53 NW2d 751, 33 ALR2d 543.

See devise; legacy; residuary bequest.

bequeathment. A bequest.

berbiage. Rental for sheep pasture.

berearia. A sheepfold.

berearius. A shepherd.

bereator. A shepherd. bereft. Deprived; especially, deprived of a loved one.

bereft of reason. mental incompetency; want of capacity to reason.

berenica. A manor; a town.

berewick. Same as barton.

berg. A plain; a field; a manor; an iceberg.

bergmote. Same as barmote.

beria. A plain; a field.

Bering Sea Arbitration. An arbitration held under a treaty between England and the United States in 1893, the award of which was later confirmed by an act of Congress and finally settled the rights of the United States in the waters of Alaska and of Bering Sea, and all questions concerning the rights of its own citizens and subjects therein, as well as those of the citizens and subjects of other countries. La Ninfa (CA9 Alaska) 75 F 513, 517.

berm. The shoulder of a highway or canal.

berme-bank. The side of a canal which has no towpath.

Berne Convention. Copyright Treaty of 1886, not ratified by the United States. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 76.

bernet. The crime of burning a dwelling house, corresponding to the modern crime of arson.

Bernstein test. A blood test devised to assist in the determination of the parentage of children, postulated upon the existence of four types of blood and the inheritability of blood type. 29 Am J2d Ev § 370.

berra. A plain, open heath.

berry. A fruit, such as a raspberry or strawberry; the dried coffee bean. An older meaning is that of a mansion house.

Bertillon System. A system for the identification of criminals by measurement and description, the employment of which in state prisons is prescribed by statute in some states. Re Molineux, 177 NY 395, 69 NE 727.

berton. A large farm; the barnyard of a large farm.

berwick. Same as barton.

bes. (Latin.) Two thirds of the Roman as or pound weight.

besayl. Derived from the French "bisaieul." A writ by which a great-grandchild secured his right to his ancestor's property; a great-grandfather.

besides. Also; furthermore; in addition to.

besoin. Need; necessity. See au besoin.

besot. To stupefy; to make dull or senseless; to make delirious, silly, or insane. Gates v Meredith, 7 Ind 440, 441.

besotted. Silly, foolish, confused by alcoholic liquor.

Bessemer. The process of making steel in a blast furnace, the name being that of the inventor of the process, Sir Henry Bessemer.

best. The superlative in quality.

best bid. In an auction, the highest bid; in the letting of a contract for public works, the lowest bid by a responsible bidder. 43 Am J1st Pub Wks § 42.

bestes. Beasts; cattle.

best evidence. The best proof obtainable under existing circumstances; the most superior, as contrasted with any other form of, proof that the party can offer. 29 Am J2d Ev § 448.

best evidence rule. The rule of evidence that the best evidence of which the case in its nature is susceptible and which is within the power of the party to produce, or is capable of being produced, must be adduced in proof of every disputed fact. Lego v Olson, 110 Colo 508, 136 P2d 277; Roddy v State, 65 Idaho 137, 139 P2d 1055.

bestiales. Beasts; cattle.

bestiality. Sexual intercourse with an animal; a criminal offense. 48 Am J1st Sod § 1.

best of his knowledge and belief. An expression somewhat less than positive statement. 3 Am J2d Affi § 21.

bestow. See bequeath, gift, grant.

bet. Verb: To hazard money or property upon an incident by which one or both parties stand to win or lose by chance. 24 Am J1st Gaming § 2. The hazard may be the result of a game or another incident of chance. 24 Am J1st Gaming § 2. Noun: The arrangement by which money or property is placed at the incident of chance. It may involve the putting up of money or property by the parties, called stakes, to be held by a third party pending the occurrence of the event which constitutes the hazard.

See gaming; gambling.

Bethlehem. The birthplace of Jesus Christ, now in Jordan, tunder the spelling Bayt Lahm; the name of an ancient lunatic asylum in London; a lunatic asylum; a bedlam.

betrayal. A breach of confidence; disloyalty to friend or country. The disclosure of a professional secret by a physician. Simonsen v Swenson, 104 Neb 224, 177 NW 831, 9 ALR 1250, 1252.

betrothal. An engagement to wed.

betrothment. Same as betrothal.

[133]

better equity. The superior or prevailing one of two equitable interests.

betterment. An improvement to realty which is more extensive than an ordinary repair, and which increases in some substantial degree the value of the property.

See occupying claimant acts.

betterment acts. See occupying claimant acts.

betting. See bet; gambling; gaming.

betting book. The book wherein a bookmaker registers the wagers which he receives from his customers.
See bookmaking.

betting on election. See election bet.

between. Intermediate, when used in designating time, implying the exclusion of both first and last terminal days.
Anno: 98 ALR2d 1369.

When predicable of persons, in a strict and correct use of the word it implies that there are but two persons, as where a division is made between A and B, but courts will notice judicially that uneducated persons frequently use the word as referring to more than two persons and as meaning "among," and when thus used, it is so construed. Rogers v Morrell, 82 SC 402,404, 64 SE 143. Similarly, while "between" calls for a per stirpes distribution in a strict and correct sense of the word, if it appears to have been used in the sense "among," a per capita distribution will be decreed. Anno: 13 ALR2d 1037; 57 Am J1st Wills § 1296.

between eight and 14 years. A period which ends upon the child's passing the anniversary of the higher age. 27 Am J1st Inf § 3.

between Scylla and Charybdis. In a grave dilemma; facing danger on either side.

beverage. A liquid which is taken by a person to satisfy thirst or for the pleasure of the taste or effect, rather than to have the advantage of medicinal qualities. Commonwealth v Sookey, 236 Mass 448, 128 NE 788, 11 ALR 1230; McLean v People, 66 Colo 486, 180 P 676. The term is inclusive of, but not confined to, a drink with alcoholic content. Tea and coffee are both beverages.

See alcoholic beverage.

beverches. Customary services rendered the lord at his request by inferior tenants.

bevo. A nonalcoholic imitation of malt liquor. State ex rel. Springer v Bliss, 199 Okla 198, 185 P2d 220.

beyond a reasonable doubt. The degree of proof required of the state in a criminal prosecution; a fair doubt based upon reason and common sense, growing out of the evidence in the case; not an imaginary, captious, or possible doubt. 20 Am J1st Ev § 1257.

beyond the four seas. Beyond the British Isles.

See beyond the seas.

beyond the jurisdiction. Beyond the reach of the process of the court. New York Cent. R. Co. v Stevens, 126 Ohio St 395, 185 NE 542, 87 ALR 884.

beyond the seas. Beyond the limits of the United States. For the purposes of a statute of limitation, beyond the limits of the state. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 215.

See beyond the four seas.

b. f. An abbreviation of "bonum factum," meaning, a good deed; a valid decree; also an abbreviation for the printing term "boldface."

B. F. Abbreviation for the bookkeeping term "brought forward"; also for Bachelor of Finance and Bachelor of Forestry.

B. F. A. An abbreviation for Bachelor of Fine Arts.

bias. Propension; something that turns the mind and sways the judgment, Anno: 16 ALR2d 19. A hostile feeling or spirit of ill will toward one of the litigants, or undue friendship or favoritism toward one; involving a mental attitude toward a litigant, not toward the subject matter of the litigation. 30A Am J Rev ed Judges § 170.

bias of juror. A propensity or prepossession which does not leave the mind indifferent; it may be actual or implied-that is, bias in fact or bias presumed as a matter of law, as where the juror is a close relative of a party. 31 Am J Rev ed Jury § 172.

Among the various matters which, at common law, were held to be principal cause for challenge, -that is, cause from which bias or partiality would be inferred as a legal conclusion, -were these: Consanguinity or affinity of the juror with either of the parties within the ninth degree; that the juror was godfather to the child of either of the parties; that the juror was of the same society or corporation with either party; or was tenant or "within the distress" of either party; or had an action implying malice between him and either party; or was master, servant, counselor, steward, or attorney for either party; or, after he was returned, he ate and drank at the expense of either party, or had been chosen as arbitrator by either party. Most authorities also held it to be ground for principal challenge that the juror had formed and declared his opinion touching the matter in controversy. Coughlin v People, 144 Ill 140, 33 NE 1.

bias of witness. A ground of impeachment; near relationship, sympathy, hostility or prejudice. Bessemer Land & Improv. Co. v Jenkins 111 Ala 135, 18 So 565.

biathanatoi. Persons dying by violence or suicide.

Bible. A book of Divine instruction as to the creation of man, his relation to, dependence on, and accountability to God. People ex rel. Ring v Board of Education, 245 Ill 334, 92 NE 251.

Bible reading. See sectarian purpose.

bicameral. Two-chambered, the term having reference to the usual division of a legislature into two houses.

bicycle. A two-wheeled vehicle, self-propelled by pushing pedals, the movement of which actuates a gear; a vehicle within the meaning of regulations concerning the use of highways. 7 Am J2d Auto § 4; a vehicle within the meaning of an accident insurance policy. 29A Arn J Rev ed Ins § 1237; a vehicle but not a wagon within the meaning of an exemption statute. 31 Am J2d Exemp § 64.

bicycle paths. Paths which are set apart and maintained by cities and towns under statutory authority for the exclusive use of bicyclists.

bicyclist's stop. Riding in a circle instead of coming to a full stop as required by stop signals or by law.

bid. Verb: To invite; to make an offer, particularly, at a contract letting, an auction or judicial sale, by the spoken or written word, by a sign, such as a lifting of the hand, sometimes only a nod or a wink, anything by which the bidder signifies his willingness and intention to pay a particular price. 7 Am J2d Auct § 25; 30A Am J1st Jud S § 9 1. Noun: An offer, especially an offer made at a contract letting, an auction sale, or a judicial sale.

[134]

See by-bidding; opening the biddings.

bid bond. A bond required of one who bids in the letting of a contract for the construction of a public improvement, the purpose of the bond being to indemnify the public body against loss resulting from the withdrawal of the bid or the refusal of the bidder, upon the award of the contract to him, to enter into a contract. 43 Am J1st Pub Wks §§ 62, 63.

See responsible bidder.

bidder. A person who makes an offer at auction, judicial sale, contract letting; an offeror.

bid in. The act of the owner of property put up at an auction sale in taking the property out of the auction by a protective bid, that is, a bid made to prevent a sacrifice of the property at a sale less than its real value; the act of a mortgagee or lienholder in purchasing the property covered by the mortgage or lien at an auction sale.

bidoff. To purchase by bid at auction or judicial sale.

bid security. The expression is not a phrase of art having a precise meaning in the law of contracts, but its natural meaning in a proposal for public work is that a deposit is required of the bidder in order to assure the government of the seriousness of the bid, the deposit to be forfeited if the bidder should withdraw his bid before the government had accepted it. United States v Conti (CA1 Mass) 119 F2d 652.

bielbrief. A particular and detailed description of a ship, furnished by the builder.

bien. Well; lawfully.

bienes gananciales. See ganancial property; ganancias.

biennial. The word is derived from the Latin word "bis," twice, and "annus," year, meaning the happening or taking place of anything once in two years. State v Smith, 42 Mo 506, 507.

biennium. A period of two years.

biens. A term of the French law covering all kinds of property, real and personal. Biens are divided into biens ineubles, movable property, and biens immeubles, immovable property. Lindsay v Wilson, 103 Md 252, 63 A 566.

biens meubles et immeubles. Movable and immovable goods.

bifurcated trial. Separate trial of a particular issue, such as insanity in a criminal case. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 47.

biga. A two-horse chariot.

bigamia. Bigamy.

bigamist. A person who has committed the crime of bigamy; a man who, having contracted a bigamous marriage, and become the husband, at one time, of two wives, continues to maintain that relation and status. Murphy v Ramsey, 114 US 16, 29 L Ed 16, 5 S Ct 747.

bigamus. A bigamist.

bigamy. The crime committed by the act of marrying while the spouse of a former marriage is still alive and former marriage is still in force. 10 Am J2d Big § 1. In some jurisdictions, the act of cohabitation with the second spouse is made an offense. See 10 Am J2d Big § 1.

bigotry. Intolerance; an intrusion upon our traditional concept of religious liberty. United States Nat. Bank v Snodgrass, 202 Or 530, 275 P2d 860, 50 ALR2d 725.

big with child. Pregnant.

bilagae. Bylaws; ordinances.

bilagines. Bylaws; ordinances.

bilan. A balance sheet. Dauphin v Soulie (La) 3 Mart NS 446.

bilanciae. Balances; weighing scales.

bilanciis deferendis. An ancient writ commanding a corporation to carry weights to a given place to weigh wool, the transportation of which had been licensed.

bilateral agreement. See bilateral contract.

bilateral contract. A contract under which each party promises or undertakes performance, the promise or the undertaking by the one furnishing the consideration for the promise or undertaking of the other, Christensen v Pugh, 84 Utah 440, 36 P2d 100, 95 ALR 608; a transaction in which each party promises performance, each party thereby binding himself to the other and each party reciprocally acquiring a right to what is promised by the other. 17 Am J2d Contr § 1.

bilboes. A contrivance for the discipline and punishment of unruly sailors on shipboard, consisting of a board with holes in it through which the man's feet and arms protruded.

bilge. Bulge; the lower part of a ship, barge, or other watercraft, in which water accumulates; the dirty water that collects at the bottom of a ship; slang for nonsensical talk, wild rumors, or scandal.

bilge ventilator. Required equipment under Motor Boat Act of 1940. 46 USC § 526j.

bilging. As applied to a ship, to constitute "bilging" there must be a breach in the vessel, though the authorities differ as to the particular place which must be fractured. There is no bilging because a plank is almost worn through, if there is no actual breach. Nor will a bad straining which opens seams and lets in water constitute a bilging, although water thus injures the cargo. Ellery v Merchant's Ins. Co. 20 Mass (3 Pick) 46, 48.

billine. Collateral relatives.

bilingual. Double-tongued, speaking two languages.

bilinguis. Bilingual.

bill. A complaint in suit in equity; a document in the form of a law, presented to the legislature for enactment; a denomination of paper money; a bank note; a handbill given to pedestrians on the street or passed out door-to-door in residential sections, advertising goods, giving notice of a coming event, or extolling a candidate for office; a listing of things offered to patrons or customers, as at a theater or in a restaurant; the amount owing on an account; the charge for a purchase; an indictment or the charge made against the accused in an indictment; the statement of an account presented to the debtor for payment. Verb: To present an account for payment, usually by mail; to advertise by posters or handbills.

[135]

billā. A bill.

billā cassetur. That the bill may be quashed, made void or abated. See 3 Bl Comm 303.

billā excambii. A bill of exchange.

billā exonerationis. A bill of lading.

bill and note broker. A broker who negotiates the purchase and sale of bills of exchange and promissory notes. Little Rock v Barton, 33 Ark 436, 446.

bill a vera. Same as true bill.

billboard. A signboard; a building within the meaning of building line regulations. 13 Am J2d Bldgs § 2.

bill-book. An account book in which bills and notes are entered, showing their dates, due dates and the names of the parties.

bill chamber. A department of the Scotch court of session.

billet. A place of lodging, especially of military personnel.

billeta. A bill or petition exhibited in parliament.

billet de change. (French.) A contract to furnish a bill of exchange; a bill of exchange.

bill for a new trial. A bill in equity to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment of a court of law where such enforcement would be against conscience by reason of facts of which the party seeking relief could not have availed himself in the law court, or could have done so but was prevented by fraud or unavoidable accident, with no fault or negligence on his part. Spokane Co-operative Mining Co. v Pearson, 28 Wash 118, 68 P 165.

bill for appropriation. See appropriation bill.

bill for cancellation. A bill in equity for the cancellation of a written instrument.

bill for foreclosure. A bill in equity in a suit to foreclose a lien, a mortgage or a pledge.

bill for raising revenue. See revenue bill.

bill for reformation. A bill in equity in a suit for the correction of an error in a deed or other written instrument.

bill for revenue. See bill for raising revenue.

bill for specific performance. A bill in equity to compel the actual accomplishment of a contract by the party bound to fulfil it, a means of compelling the party to do precisely what he ought to have done without being coerced by a court. See 49 Am J1st Spec Per §§ 2, 159.

bill-head. A sheet of paper with name and address of a place of business, sometimes ruled, being used in billing a customer.

billiards. A refinement upon the game of pool, being played on a pool table but with only three balls. In broad usage, any game of pool.

bill in chancery. Same as bill in equity.

bill in equity. The declaration or complaint of the plaintiff where the relief demanded is such as is granted by a court of equity; a petition for relief addressed to a court of equity which states the facts on which the claim for relief is based. 27 Am J2d Eq § 179.

See complaint; original bill.

bill in perpetuam rei memoriam. See bill to perpetuate testimony.

bill in the nature of a bill of review. Where a decree is final, the bill of review is not regarded as a part of the cause in which the decree was rendered, but as a new suit, having for its object the correction of the decree in the former suit. But where a decree is only interlocutory, but liable to the same objection, the party injured must seek his redress, not by a bill of review, as such, but by petition or supplemental bill in the nature of a bill of review. Such petition or supplemental bill is regarded as a part of the very cause the decree in which is sought to be corrected, and any order or decree of the court on the petition or bill is only interlocutory. Zegura v United States (CA5 La) 104 F2d 34.

bill in the nature of interpleader. A bill seeking affirmative relief independent of the conflicting claims of the several defendants, which a party may often be allowed to file when he asserts a substantial interest in the fund or property in controversy and hence cannot file a bill to compel other claimants to interplead concerning the same. 30 Am J Rev ed Interpl § 16.

bill in trade. A tradesman's bill; an itemized account of goods sold or services rendered, or both.

bill not original. A bill in equity relating to some matter already litigated in the court by the same parties, and depending on the prior suit, that is, supplementing or continuing the former suit, or seeking relief in respect to some matter growing out of that suit and connected with it. 27 Am J2d Eq § 179.

bill obligatory. A bond without a condition; differing from a promissory note in nothing but the seal which is affixed to it. Farmers' & Mechanics' Bank & Greiner (Pa) 2 Serg & R 114, 115. Often called a single bill. A written acknowledgment of indebtedness in a certain sum to be paid on a certain day, and having a seal affixed to it. Osborne & Co. v Hubbard, 20 Or 318, 25 P 1021.

bill of adventure. A statement signed by a shipper declaring that the goods shipped are those of another person and that they are shipped at the owner's risk.

bill of advocacy. (Scotch.) A petition praying the supreme court to transfer to itself a cause pending in a lower court.

bill of appeal. A writ of appeal; the complaint in an appeal of felony.

bill of attainder. A legislative act which inflicts punishment without a judicial trial. Inland Steel Co. v NLRB (CA7) 170 F2d 247, 12 ALR2d 240. Congress is prohibited from passing such an act by Art I § 9, clause 3, of the United States Constitution. The same prohibition applies to the states. Art I § 10, of the Constitution of the United States.

bill of certiorari. A bill in equity for the removal of a suit to a higher court.

bill of conformity. A bill in equity by which an executor or administrator seeks to secure the aid of the court in the administration of an involved estate.

bill of costs. An itemized statement of costs and disbursements to be filed by the party entitled to costs and a copy thereof served upon the adverse party. 20 Am J1st Costs § 91.

[136]

bill of credit. A paper issued by a state, intended to circulate as money or to answer the ordinary purposes of money. 36 Am J1st Money § 17.

bill of debt. An old term including promissory notes and bonds for the payment of money. It was also called a "bill obligatory" and was both sealed and unsealed.

bill of discovery. A bill filed for the sole purpose of compelling the defendant to answer its allegations and interrogatories, and thereby to disclose facts within his own knowledge, information, or belief, or to disclose and produce documents, books and other things within his possession, custody or control, and it is usually employed to enable a party to prosecute or defend an action. Peyton v Werhane, 126 Conn 382, 11 A2d 800.

bill of divorcement. Under the Mosaic law, a husband could divorce his wife by giving her a "bill of divorcement" and sending her out of his house.

bill of entry. A written description of imported goods filed with the customs officials.

bill of evidence. A transcript of testimony.

bill of exceptions. The means provided by law for importing into the judgment roll or decision matters dehors the record which are dependent for their authenticity on the signature of the trial court or on a prescribed procedure.

It is intended to complete the record to be filed in the appellate court. Its function is to present to the appellate court exceptions taken during the progress of the trial to rulings and decisions of the trial court in matters which otherwise would remain in Pais, and to provide for the appellate court a succinct and intelligible statement of the errors about which complaint is made on the appeal. 4 Am J2d A & E §§ 417, 418.

bill of exchange. A written order of one party upon another for absolute payment of money to a third or designated person, or to his order or to bearer, upon demand or at a specified or determinable future time. 11 Am J2d B & N § 13. The term is equated with "draft" by the Uniform Commercial Code and is completely synonymous with "draft" even apart from the Code. 11 Am J2d B & N § 13.

See check.

bill of goods. A list of articles purchased; a slang expression of one who feels that he has suffered some imposition or been induced to take some action that he regrets, and says accordingly, "he sold me a bill of goods."

See bill of parcels; bill of sale.

bill of gross adventure. (French.) A written contract of bottomry, respondentia, or other maritime loan.

bill of health. A statement of a proper official certifying the healthful condition of a ship, its cargo and crew; a physician's statement certifying to the good health of a person.

bill of indemnity. A statute relieving officers from their failure to take their official oaths.

bill of indictment. The name properly applied to that paper which contains a criminal charge, before the paper is handed out to the grand jury. After it is found and all the blanks are filled in, it is called an "indictment." When it is thus made perfect, it must be decided to be valid or invalid, according to the requirements of the law. State v Ray, 24 SCL (Rice L) 1.

bill of information. An information.

See information.

bill of interpleader. See interpleader.

bill of lading. A written acknowledgment by a carrier of the receipt of goods described therein and an agreement to transport them to the place specified therein and deliver them there to the person named therein or his order. Griggs v Stoker Service Co. 229 NC 572, 50 SE2d 914, 15 ALR2d 798; a written acknowledgment, signed by the master of a vessel, that he has received the goods therein described, from the shipper, to be transported on the terms therein expressed, to the described place of destination, and there to be delivered to the consignee or parties therein designated. 48 Am J1st Ship § 386.

See clean bill of lading; order bill of lading; straight bill of lading.

bill of lading with draft attached. See document bill.

bill of Middlesex. An old form of writ by which actions in the king's bench were commenced. The name was adopted because the court out of which it was issued usually sat in Middlesex.

bill of mortality. A copy of a public record of deaths in a given community.

bill of pains and penalties. A form of legislative sentence for crime, in all respects identical with a bill of attainder, except that it prescribes the infliction of a punishment less than capital. Cummings v Missouri (US) 4 Wall 277, 18 L Ed 356. It is within the constitutional prohibition of bills of attainder.

See bill of attainder.

bill of parcels. An informal memorandum of the items of a sale of goods, given to the buyer by the seller, not purporting to state the terms of the contract of sale, and hence not of sufficient dignity to constitute a written contract which cannot be varied by parol. Leavitt v Fiberloid Co. 196 Mass 440, 445, 82 NE 682. But regarded by some courts as a bill of sale. Anne: 33 ALR2d 364, 367, 393.

bill of particulars. In civil actions: An amplification or more particular specification of the matter set forth in a pleading, which may be ordered on motion therefor by the adverse party, the purpose of which is to inform the adverse party of the precise nature of the cause of action or defense which the pleader has attempted to set forth and thereby to guide his adversary in his preparations for trial, and reasonably to protect him against surprise at the trial. 41 Am J1st Tr § 268. Criminal prosecutions: A more specific and detailed statement of the offense charged in an indictment or information which is generally good but does not allege the nature and extent of the offense charged so precisely as to enable the defendant properly to prepare his defense. 27 Am J1st Indict § 111.

See motion for more specific statement.

bill of peace. A bill filed to procure repose from repeated litigation and one of the earliest instances in which chancery courts entertained jurisdiction on the ground of preventing a multiplicity of suits. 19 Am J1st Eq § 81.

See quieting title.

bill of privilege. A special form of action employed at common law when suing an attorney, clerk or other person attending a court of justice. This special form of procedure was deemed necessary because these persons were not liable to arrest by the ordinary process of the court. Greenleaf v People's Bank, 133 NC 292, 45 SE 638.

[137]

bill of proof. A claim asserted by a third party to the subject-matter of a suit.

See intervention.

bill of review. A bill in equity for the purpose causing the court to review and reverse or revise its own decree. 19 Am J1st Eq § 423.

See bill in the nature of a bill of review.

bill of review for error apparent. A bill in equity which sets up no new facts or newly discovered matter, the sole purpose being to obtain a review and reversal of the decree for some error or defect on the face of the proceedings. 19 Am J1st Eq § 429.

bill of revivor. A special form of bill in equity for reviving a suit where the defect supervening on the proceeding is of such a nature as to cause an abatement, as where a plaintiff or defendant, suing or being sued in his own right, dies pending the suit. 19 Am J1st Eq § 355.

bill of revivor and supplement. A bill in equity to revive an abated suit and to introduce and plead new matters which could not be supplied by amendment. Westcott v Cady (NY) 5 Johns Ch 334.

bill of rights. A guaranty of rights by constitution -that portion of the Federal Constitution and the constitution of each state which consists of the guaranties of such rights as are to a large extent declaratory of fundamental principles and the foundation of citizenship, such as those providing against the exaction of excessive fines or the infliction of cruel and unusual punishments. The first ten amendments comprise the bill of rights of the United States Constitution. 16 Am J2d Const L §§ 329, 332.

bill of sale. A written instrument evidencing the transfer of title to personal property described therein from a seller to a purchaser. State v Blizzard, 70 Md 385.

See grand bill of sale; invoice.

bill of sight. A custom-house entry of goods by an importer who, for want of knowledge of the quality or quantity of the merchandise, must report according to his best information and belief.

bill of store. A custom-house license exempting a ship's stores and supplies from the payment of duties.

bill of sufferance. A license exempting from the payment of duties a merchant trading between English ports.

bill of supply. An appropriation bill to provide for the expenses of the government.

bill original. A bill or complaint in equity which begins an independent suit unconnected with any other previous or pending suit in the same court. 19 Am J1st Eq § 212.

bill penal. A written promise to pay a larger sum than the promisor owes.

bill pro confesso. See pro confesso.

bill quia timet. Literally, an application for equitable relief because the plaintiff fears, such relief being intended to prevent the harassment of a plaintiff by repeated suits brought by the defendant concerning a subject matter of such nature that equity can for once and for all determine conclusively and finally the rights of the plaintiff and the defendant thereto.

See bill of peace; quieting title.

bill rendered. A statement of account.

bills and notes. Commercial paper; negotiable and nonnegotiable instruments.

See bill of exchange; drafts; promissory notes.

bills in a set. A bill of lading drawn in a set of parts, each of which is numbered and expressed to be valid only if the goods have not been delivered against any other part, the whole of the parts constituting one bill. 13 Am J2d Car § 268. One bill of exchange, usually a foreign bill, drawn in a set of identical instruments, each one duly executed by the drawer, and numbered, and containing a direction to pay it, with the notation that number 2, number 3, or whatever other numbers are in the set, are unpaid.

The purpose is to prevent delays and inconveniences resulting from the loss of a bill in transmission to the drawee, the separate but identical instruments being transmitted in different mails. 11 Am J2d B & N § 59.

There is nothing in the purpose or effect of such practice which should render it inapplicable, under all circumstances, to checks. 11 Am J2d B & N § 59.

bill single. A written promise to pay, executed under the sea] of the maker. 11 Am J2d B & N § 38.

bills in parts. See bills in a set.

Bills of Exchange Act. A Canadian statute passed in 1882 and modified in 1906, which in all essential particulars is an adoption of the negotiable instruments law adopted by most of the states of the Union.

Bills of Lading Act. A federal statute, which became effective on January 1, 1917, following closely the provisions of the Uniform Bills of Lading Act, but with a number of important changes evidently designed to adapt the latter Act to interstate commerce. 49 USC §§ 81-124.

bills payable. An accounting term used in financial statements to indicate the obligations of a business remaining unpaid; a form of designation of payee which renders the instrument a bearer instrument. 11 Am J2d B & N § 124.

An ordinary promissory note is a "bill payable" within a statute prohibiting bank cashiers from issuing "bills payable" without consent of the directors. W. J. Howey Co. v Cole, 219 Mo App 34, 269 SW 955.

See payable to bills payable.

bills receivable. An accounting term used in financial statements, promissory notes, bills of exchange or other written instruments for the payment of money at a future date. Miami Coal Co. v Fox, 203 Ind 99, 176 NE 11, 79 ALR 333; demands generally. State use of Dittman v Robinson, 57 Md 486, 501.

See accounts receivable.

bill to carry a decree into execution. A bill in equity which a party may maintain in aid of the execution of a decree which has been rendered in his favor. 19 Am J1st Eq § 213.

bill to examine witnesses de bene esse. Same as bill to take testimony de bene esse.

bill to marshal assets. See marshaling assets.

[138]

bill to perpetuate testimony. A bill in equity. Whenever there is reasonable cause to apprehend future litigation in regard to a particular subject or matter and the person threatened with or exposed to suit is himself unable to bring the issue to an immediate judicial determination, or when he himself proposes or intends to institute an action for the purpose of establishing his rights with respect to a particular matter or subject, but is unable, by reason of some legal impediment, to do so immediately, a court of equity will entertain a bill or petition to perpetuate, by the taking and filing of their depositions, the testimony of witnesses for the plaintiff in the bill or petition, who, because of his peculiar position, cannot avail himself of such testimony in an immediate judicial trial and decision of such controversy. 23 Am J2d Dep § 8.

bill to remove cloud on title. See cloud on title.

bill to suspend a decree. A bill in equity in a suit to set aside or suspend a decree.

bill to take testimony de bene esse. A bill in equity which a party may maintain to secure the testimony for use in a pending action of a witness whose testimony cannot be taken in court. 23 Am J2d Dep § 6.

billy. A term used to denote masculine gender, as in billy goat; a club carried by a policeman.

billy-club. See billy.

bimetallism. A word made commonplace for the earlier part of the political career of the Honorable William Jennings Bryan, being the doctrine which favored the use of both gold and silver as monetary standards.

bind. To create a definite legal obligation upon one's self or upon another. Such an obligation may be created by contract, by statute, by common law, by a judgment or decree, by the act of an agent, wife, child, etc.

binder. Said to be synonymous with insurance policy. Red Cab Co. v St. Paul Mercury Indem. Co. (CA7 Ind) 98 F2d 189; but better defined as a written instrument, sometimes called a binding slip or interim receipt, used when an insurance policy cannot be issued immediately; to evidence that the insurance coverage attaches at a specified time and continues until the policy is issued or the risk is declined and notice thereof given; a written memorandum of the most important terms of a preliminary contract of insurance intended to give temporary protection to the owner pending the investigation by the company or until the issuance of a formal policy. Sherri v National Surety Co. 243 NY 266, 270, 153 NE 70.

Life, health, and accident insurance companies have devised and used a form of binder, called a binding receipt or conditional receipt, which actually does not bind the insurance company absolutely to protect the risk pending the issuance of a policy, but is conditioned upon the approval of the application, the issuance and delivery of a policy, or similar condition. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 208.

binding instruction. An instruction which the jury are bound to follow by virtue of the rule that it is their duty to take the law from the court and apply it to the facts as they find the facts to be. 53 Am J1st Tr § 845.

binding over. Accepting bail from accused binding him to appear for trial. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 450; or other subsequent proceeding in the case, putting a person under a peace bond, a recognizance conditioned upon the keeping of the peace by the principal. 12 Am J2d Breach P § 41.

See affidavit to hold to bail.

binding slip. See binder.

bind out. To apprentice, bingo. A game of chance which is played by each player buying from the keeper at a fixed price one or more checkered cards, 15 of the checkered spaces on each card bearing numbers, the keeper or his agent drawing a number from a bag or other receptacle, which is announced, and each player covering that number on his card if he has it, and the game proceeding until some player first gets all the numbers on a card or in a row of a card, according to the rule adopted, whereupon he calls, "bingo," and, on verification, the stakes of all the players less the keepers percentage go to him as a winner. Anno: 96 L Ed 315.

binocular. Seeing with both eyes at the same time.

binoculars. Field glasses.

bipartisan board. A municipal board composed of an even number of officers selected equally from the two leading political parties. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 86. Such boards are not confined to municipalities. Boards or commissions of the state or national government may be created by statutes which provide for equal representation of the two leading political parties in the personnel of the board in order to prevent the evil of partisan politics in the performance of the functions of the board.

bipartite. In two parts; in duplicate.

birretum. The cap or coif of a judge or a sergeant-at-law.

birth. Delivery from the womb; a beginning, as a birth of a nation.

See abortion; born; Caesarean operation; deadborn; en ventre sa mere; foetus; possibility of issue extinct; still-born; vital statistics.

birth certificate. A certification of the date and place of a person's birth, with a notation of his parentage, according to the facts as registered in the record of vital statistics kept in the county, municipality, town, or township of birth.

birth control. The prevention of conception by chemical or mechanical means, sometimes called planned parenthood. 12 Am J2d Birth C § 1.

bis. Twice.

bisaile. See besayl.

bi-scot. A fine imposed for neglect to keep banks, ditches and causeways in repair.

bis dat qui cito dat. He gives twice who gives quickly.

bishop. The chief ecclesiastical officer of a diocese in the Church of England and the Roman Catholic Church in the United States; a high-ranking clergyman in other American denominations. A sole corporation in his character as the embodiment of the Church in transacting business and holding property. 18 Am J2d Corp § 7.

bishopric. The jurisdiction of a bishop; a bishop's diocese.

bishop's court. An ecclesiastical court in a diocese.

bis petitum. Twice demanded.

bissextile. Containing the extra day-the bissextile day, February 29th-added in leap years in the Julian calendar. Anno: 5 ALR2d 1146.

[139]

bissextus. February 29th, the day added in leap years in the Julian calendar.

bitch. A female dog; a coarse word of derision or contempt applied to an older girl or woman; not synonymous with "whore." Schurick v Kollman, 50 Ind 336, 337.

Biting rule. The principle that a provision in a deed or will to be inoperative where it attempts to cut down, modify, or qualify an apparent fee theretofore granted in the instrument. Hanks v McDanell, 307 Ky 243, 210 SW2d 784, 17 ALR2d 1.

bitters. A preparation of alcohol and other ingredients, principally herbs, sometimes used as medicine, but far more often in mixing alcoholic beverages, especially cocktails. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 16.

bitulithic. See asphalt; bitumen.

bitumen. Asphalt; a residual material obtained in the distillation of crude oil.

bituminous coal. Soft coal; coal which burns readily on account of the content of pitch.

bituminous macadam. See macadam.

bk. An abbreviation of "bank," "block," and "book."

bkpt. Abbreviation of bankrupt.

bl. Abbreviation of bale and barrel, for both singular and plural.

B. L. An abbreviation of the law school degree of "bachelor of laws" and of the degree in liberal arts, called Bachelor of Letters; also of bill of lading.

B. L. A. An abbreviation of the degree Bachelor of Liberal Arts.

black. -A negro. People v Hall, 4 Cal 397, 400. Adjective: Without light; dark-complexioned.

Blackacre. The name of a suppositious parcel or tract of land, often used in moot cases or in argument.

Black Act. An English statute passed in 1722 to suppress bands known as "the blacks," who were ruffians who went about committing outrages with their faces blackened.

black acts. Scotch statutes enacted in the sixteenth century and written in black-letter.

Black Bass Act. A federal statute making it a criminal offense to deliver black bass or other fish for transportation from a state, if such transportation is contrary to the law of the state. 16 USC § 852.

Black Book of the Admiralty. The title of an ancient English commentary on admiralty law.

Black Book of the Exchequer. A book in the English exchequer containing treaties, conventions, and charters.

black cap. A cap worn by the judge in England when passing a death sentence; a cap or bag pulled down over the head of a convict about to be hanged.

black code. The laws providing for the segregation of the races in public places.

black damp. A noxious gas encountered in coal mines, commonly known as carbonic acid gas, or dead air, with the properties of oxygen exhausted, and causing suffocation by excluding oxygen from the lungs. Jellico Coal Mining Co. v Walls, 160 Ky 730, 732, 170 SW 19.

black game. Heath fowl, as distinguished from red game, such as the grouse.

blackjack. A weapon made by covering a piece of lead or other metal with leather and extending the leather covering over a handle that is flexible; used by thugs and sometimes by police officers. People v Brown, 253 Mich 537, 235 NW 245, 82 ALR 341. A card game, often played for money.

blackleg. A disease of cattle; a term of opprobrium applied to a dishonest gambler, a strikebreaker, and sometimes to any man who is untrustworthy. United Mine Workers v Cromer, 159 Ky 605, 608, 167 SW 891.

black-letter. The name given to the Old English or Gothic letter which was used in the old English manuscripts and in the first printed books; sometimes used by persons not familiar with printing in speaking of boldface.

black liquor. A trade term of the paper pulp industry; the residual liquor coming from the digesters in which wood in the form of chips is cooked under heat and pressure in a solution of chemicals. The organic matter binding the cellulose fibers in the wood is dissolved out. After the cooking is completed, the wood pulp is removed from the solution and goes to the pulp treating section of the plant. Babcock & Wilcox v North Carolina Pulp Co. (DC Del) 35 F Supp 215.

blacklist. A generic term that may be defined as a list of persons marked out for special avoidance on the part of those among whom the list is intended to circulate, but which, as the term is now most generally understood, refers to lists of discharged employees sent by the discharging employer to other employers. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 83; and to the listing of names with information transmitted by a union member or agent to others with the intention that the result will be to prevent or terminate the employment of the workmen against whom the information is directed, and to make it impossible for them to obtain other employment within the jurisdiction of the union. Anno: 46 ALR2d 1125.

blacklisting. Putting a person's name upon a blacklist.

See blacklist.

blackmail. A criminal offense as a form of extortion; usually, extortion by threat of exposure of a criminal offense by, or of some conduct or act of, the victim which, if made public, will operate to his disadvantage; occasionally applied to extortion by threat of violence to the victim or members of his family. 31 Am J2d Extor § 18.

Another meaning of the term is black rents.

Black Maria. A covered vehicle, commonly black, used to transfer prisoners to and from a prison or jail.

blackout. An incident of modern warfare and drilling for civil defense, consisting in an enforced extinguishment at night of all street and highway lights and the obscuring of all lights in business places, offices, and dwelling houses against being seen from outside the building, such precautions being deemed necessary in time of war to prevent bombing of a city by airmen who otherwise would be aided in navigation by city lights; a temporary loss of consciousness.

[140]

black rents. Rents, also called "reditus nigri" and "blackmail," payable in work, grain, or money baser than silver, as distinguished from white rent, which was payable in silver or white money. See 2 Bl Comm 42.

black rod. An official messenger in the English house of lords.

blacksmith. An artisan who shapes iron by heating and pounding it, and shoes horses.

black ward. A feudal subvassal who held ward or the king's vassal.

blada. Corn; grain; crops.

blada a solo separata. Grain severed from the soil.

blada crescentia. Growing corn, grain, or other crop.

blada nondum a solo separata. Grain not yet severed from the soil.

bladarius. A corn dealer; a grain dealer.

blada vel alia catalla. Grain or other chattels.

blade. A sword or knife. See blada.

blanc. White; plain; bearing no marks or writing.

blanc bar. Same as blank bar.

blanch. To whiten.

blanche. See carte blanche.

blanch-farms. White-rents, also called "reditus albi," which were rents payable in silver or white money. See 2 Bl Comm 42.

blanch-holding. An ancient Scotch land tenure.

blanc seing. Same as blank seing.

blancus. Same as blanc.

blank. Plain; bearing no marks or writing; a space in a document intended to be filled to complete the meaning.
See acceptance in blank; indorsement in blank.

blank bar. A plea in an action of trespass quare clausum fregit, the object of which was to compel the plaintiff to name the place of the alleged trespass.

blank bonds. (Scotch.) Securities made payable to any payee who wrote his name in the blank space provided for it. They were declared void by statute in 1696.

blank deed. A blank paper signed, sealed, and delivered, the operative effect of which when finally filled in depends upon authorization by the grantor. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 138.

blanket ballot. A ballot for use at an election on which appear all of the names of the candidates for all the offices to be filled at the election.

blanket patent. Letters patent covering several devices each of which would be patentable separately .

blanket policy. The name given to a contract of insurance because of the manner in which the subject matter, that is the insured property or the risk 'is described, typically illustrated by a policy covering a stock of merchandise, which, because of the changing character of the property insured from day to day as articles are sold and replaced in the course of business, can be described only in general terms describing the nature of the stock and its location.

Another typical illustration is that of a policy covering a warehouse risk, which, of course, varies from day to day as new customers bring in their property and old customers remove their property from the warehouse. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 306.

Blanket or float policies are sometimes issued to factors or to warehousemen, intended only to cover margins uninsured by other policies, or to cover nothing more than the limited interest which the factor or warehouseman may have in the property which he has in charge. Home Ins. Co. v Baltimore Warehouse Co. 93 US 527, 541, 23 L Ed 868, 869.

blanket rate. See blanket territory.

blanket search warrant. A single warrant which describes two or more separate premises to be searched. Williams v State, 95 Okla Crim 131, 240 P2d 1132, 31 ALR2d 851.

blanket territory. A term employed in rate-making for carriers, so called because a "blanket" rate on logs and lumber is made from all shipping points within the territory to points beyond. That is, the rate is the same regardless of the distance hauled within the territory.

blanket vein. (Mining.) A horizontal vein or deposit of mineral. Iron Silver Mining Co. v Mike & Starr Gold & Silver Mining Co. 143 US 394, 400, 36 L Ed 201, 203, 12 S Ct 543.

blank indorsement. An indorsement of a negotiable instrument by the payee or subsequent holder which specifies no indorsee. 11 Am J2d B & N § 360; an indorsement of a security in registered form which specifies no one as indorsee, the effect being an indorsement to bearer. 15 Am J2d Corn C § 32.

blank seing (blank sang). A paper signed at the bottom by him who intends to bind himself, give acquittance, or compromise, at the discretion of the person whom he intrusts with such paper, giving him power to fill it with what he may think proper, according to agreement. Musson v Bank of United States (La) 6 Mart 707, 718.

blasarius. An incendiary.

blasphemous libel. A libel of God or Christianity published with intent to insult or subvert religious belief.
See Paine's Age of Reason.

blasphemy. A crime in maliciously reviling God or religion, or maliciously reviling the founder of Christianity. 12 Am J2d Bias § 2.

See blasphemous libel; Paine's Age of Reason; profane; profanity.

blast furnace. A furnace which takes its name from the feeding of a blast of air to produce intense heat; used to burn out the impurities in ore.

blasting. Tearing apart the layers of earth and rock by the use of high explosives; destroying; blighting.

bleachers. Uncovered seats in a grandstand or stadium.

blees. Grain.

blees scies. Grain which has been cut.

blench holding (blench). Same as blanch-holding.

[141]

blended fund. A fund consisting of the proceeds of an executor's sale of all his testator's real and personal estate under the will.

bleta. An old name for peat, a dried earth used for fuel.

blighted area. An unaesthetic and uneconomic section; an area of such kind that razing all the buildings will serve a public purpose, even though a few of them may not be substandard or blighted. Velishka v Nashua, 99 NH 161, 106 A2d 571, 44 ALR2d 1406.

blind. See blindness.

blind alley. A way from which exit can be made only by retreat to the place of entrance; a dilemma; a position from which no progress can be made.

blind corner. An intersection of streets or roads at which a driver's view of vehicles approaching on the intersecting highway is obscured by natural formations or artificial structures.

blindcraft. Useful and artistic articles produced by blind persons.

blind head. A bed or seam or soft rock which would prevent an upward explosion from blasting operations and would cause the gases to spread laterally. Anno: 20 ALR2d 1396.

blinding lights. Any lights which blind a person beyond the possibility of good vision but applied mostly to the headlights of motor vehicles.

blindness. Without sight in whole or in part.

See color blindness.

blind station. A railroad station at which there is no station house, agent, or telegraph operator. Mobile & Ohio Railroad Co. v Massey, 52 111 App 556, 557.

blind tiger. A term, of frequent use during the period of national prohibition, meaning a place where intoxicating liquor is sold in violation of law. State v Tabler, 34 Ind App 393, 72 NE 1039.

blinks. Broken boughs thrown where deer are likely to pass.

bloc. A group of persons who support a legislative measure as a body, even though they are of different political persuasions, as the "farm bloc" in Congress.

See en bloc.

block. A square or rectangular, sometimes an irregular, portion of a city or village which is enclosed by streets. Anno: 6 ALR 1167; the portion of a street, including both sides, measured from one intersecting street to the next intersecting street. Chamberlain v Roberts, 81 Colo 23, 253 P 27; a section of a railroad line set up in the installation of automatic signals regulating traffic, the purpose being to prevent the presence of more than one train in one block at one time.

blockade. An interdiction of commerce with a nation or people in that nation. 30 Am J Rev ed Internat L § 53. Blockades are maritime blockades, or blockades by both sea and land; and they may be either military or commercial, or may partake of the nature of both. A blockade of either kind is a sort of circumvallation round a place, by which all foreign connection and correspondence are, so far as human force can effect it, to be entirely cut off. Vattel says: "All commerce is entirely prohibited with a besieged town. If I lay siege to a place, or only form a blockade, I have a right to hinder any one from entering, and to treat as an enemy whoever attempts to enter the place, or carry anything to the besieged, without my leave." 56 Am J1st War § 171.

See commercial blockade; effective blockade; paper blockade; simple blockade; violation of blockade.

blockade de facto. See de facto blockade.

blockage rule. A recognition of the principle that a large block of corporate stock is not as readily marketable, or marketable as advantageously, as a few shares. Phipps v Commissioner (CA10) 127 F2d 214.

block and tackle. Rope and pulley used in lifting weights.

block booking. The booking of moving pictures in a theater by the job lot, without selection of particular pictures by the proprietor of the theater.

blocked frog. A term of railroad parlance which signifies that the space between the rails of a track, at the point where a car or a train is switched from one track to another, is filled with wood or other material, so as to prevent the catching and holding of a person's foot. Southern Pacific Railroad Co. v Seley, 152 US 145, 150, 38 L Ed 391, 14 S Ct 530.

block to block rule. A rule which purports to carry out the principle of special assessment according to benefit by assessing against the property in a city block the cost and expenses of the acquisition of land for opening a street which runs through the block.

blodwita. Same as bloodwit.

blood. The sustenance of life that flows through the body of a person and of many animals; the relationship between persons derived from having the blood of a common ancestor.

See consanguinity; corruption of blood; full blood; half blood; heirs by blood; inheritable blood; nearest of blood; whole blood.

blood brother. A brother by birth.

blood clot. See pulmonary embolism.

blood feud. A state of hostility between families, leading to a series of attacks and counterattacks by arms.

blood-frenzy. An irresistible impulse for bloodshed.

blood heirs. See heirs by blood.

bloodhound. A dog adaptable by breeding and care to training and successful performance in the tracking of a man.

bloodhound trailing. Evidence in the identification of an accused. 13 Am J2d Burgl § 44.

blood kin. See relatives by blood.

blood money. The price paid for causing a person's death.

blood poisoning. A toxic condition of the blood caused either from or through a surface wound or some internal lesion, or from the breaking down of tissue incident to an existent or precedent disease, and thereby producing suppuration; not a primary or idiopathic disease. Jones v Pennsylvania Casualty Co. 140 NC 262, 52 SE 578.

blood pressure. See systolic pressure.

blood relationship. See relatives by blood.

blood relatives. See relatives by blood.

blood stains. Evidence of homicide where found on the accused and properly identified. People v Gonzalez, 35 NY 49, 60.

[142]

blood test. A test to determine physical condition. A test of paternity; a test of special value in a case of disputed paternity because, although it cannot indicate with precision that a particular person is the father of the child whose paternity is in issue, in many instances it can establish that an alleged father could not have been the sire. Anno: 46 ALR2d 1003 § I(b).

See microspectroscopic blood test.

bloodwit. An amercement for bloodshed; (Scotch.) A bloody riot.

bloody hand. A hand stained with deer's blood, evidence of poaching.

blotter. A police record, kept at the station, of arrests.

See rough minutes.

blown upon. A metaphor, with little to recommend its use, meaning doubted or cast in doubt. Lockett v Delpark, 270 US 496, 504, 70 L Ed 703, 706, 46 S Ct 397.

blowout. A sudden rupture of the tube of an automobile tire.

B. L. S. Abbreviation for Bachelor of Library Science.

bludgeon. Noun: A weapon; a stick or club that is heavy by nature or loaded with metal. Verb: To strike with a club. State v Phillips 104 NC 786, 789.

blue book. A publication listing the value of used automobiles by make, type, and year; a register of the socially prominent; a listing of public officers.

blue chips. A term characterizing first-class investments.

See first-class investments.

Blue Cross. A comprehensive plan or system of providing hospital service and care for participants in consideration of regular payments, often called premiums, by the participants. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 12.

Blue Cross contract. A contract issued under a Blue Cross plan for providing payment of the expense of hospitalization of members participating in the plan and members of their families. Michigan Hospital Service v Sharpe, 339 Mich 357, 63 NW2d 638, 43 ALR2d 1167.

blue discharge. A discharge from military service which is neither honorable nor dishonorable. Longernecker v Highley, 97 App DC 144, 229 F2d 27.

blue laws. Strict statutes or ordinances, particularly those which affected observance of the Sabbath.

blue nose. A colloquial expression for one who is illiberal in his views as to activities which most persons regard as joys of living, such as dancing, card-playing, drinking alcoholic beverages, attending theatrical performances, etc.

blue note. A promissory note given for the initial premium on a life insurance policy. A melancholy air in music.

blue ribbon jury. A jury made up of particularly qualified persons; a jury selected by a sifting procedure which reduces the general panel to one of a much lesser number of persons. 31 J Rev ed Am Jur § 72.

Blue Shield. A comprehensive plan or system for providing surgical and medical services for participants in consideration of regular payments, often called premiums, by the participants. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 12.

blue sky laws. An appellation for a type of statutes, which apparently originated in the expression concerning the credulous as "dumb enough to buy blue sky, if it is offered to him"; statutes intended, by the requirements which they impose, to prevent fraud in the sale of securities. Hall v Geiger-Jones Co. 242 US 538, 61 L Ed 480, 37 S Ct 217.

See securities acts.

bluff. A steep bank of considerable height; a bold front assumed for the purpose of misleading another.

blunderbus. An old time firearm good only at short range, since its effectiveness depended upon the scattering of the shot, rather than marksmanship; a derisory term applied to a complaint or petition in many counts, also to an argument of counsel which covers the case too minutely to be effective.

blunt instrument. An instrument which, when used as a weapon, injures by pounding rather than by piercing or slashing; stick, butt of a gun, gas pipe, hammer, or something similar. People v Lukoszus, 242 111 101, 89 NE 749.

b.n. Abbreviation of bank note.

B/O. Abbreviation of brought over; used in bookkeeping.

boar. A male hog; a sire.

board. A convenient term in referring to the board of directors of a corporation, the reference being in the individual as well as the collective sense. State ex rel. Keller v Grimes, 65 W Va 451, 64 SE 728.

The term implies agency-a committee of managers,-official servants charged with executive duties, and acting for and in the interest of others. See People v North River Sugar Refining Co. 121 NY 582, 24 NE 834. An organization, although called a board, may be an association. 6 Am J2d Asso & C § 1.

Meals, usually in the sense of all, or nearly all, the meals for the period, as board by the day or week. While the word is sometimes given a meaning sufficiently broad to include both lodgings and meals, Heron v Webber, 103 Me 178, 68 A 744, where it is used in a statute, the context may show that it was intended to apply to meals alone. Pacific Coal Co. v Silver Bow County, 79 Mont 323, 256 P 386. Verb: To supply with meals; to take in a boarder or boarders.

boarder. One who takes his meals regularly at a single, definite place, the term sometimes carrying with it the idea of residence. 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 12. He usually pays by the week, occasionally, by the month.

board foot. A unit of measure in the lumber trade, meaning a board one foot square and one inch thick.

See board measure.

boarding. The act of a prospective passenger in getting on a conveyance of the carrier. 14 Am J2d Car § 982; furnishing board; taking board.

boardinghouse. A quasi-public house, where boarders are generally and habitually kept, and which is held out and known as a place of refreshment of that kind. Anno: 19 ALR 538; 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 11.

[143]

boardinghouse keeper's lien. The statutory lien of the keeper of a boarding house upon the goods of a boarder or lodger brought upon the premises for the former's charges against the latter for services and things furnished for the accommodation, comfort, and entertainment of the boarder or lodger, the lien sometimes being extended by statute to goods of a third person brought upon the premises by the boarder or lodger. 29 Am J Rev ed Innk §§ 145 et seq.

board measure. The number of feet of board which a log will produce when sawed. Destrehan v Louisiana Cypress Lumber Co. 45 La Ann 920.

See board foot.

boarding school. An educational institution, lower than college rank, wherein the students are boarded and lodged.

board of aldermen. The common council of a city or other municipality.

board of arbitration. A quasi-court, appointed to act in a judicial and impartial manner, under the rules of arbitration, in hearing the parties to a dispute and settling the controversy by an award. Anno: 104 ALR 563.

board of audit. A board authorized to audit or pass upon the accounts of a public officer. 43 Am J1st Pub Of § 324.

board of directors. The directors of a corporation acting as a unit in representing the corporate body and conducting the business of the corporation. 19 Am J2d Corp § 1145.

See bank directors; directors.

board of education. A public corporation created by statute for the purposes of public education; the directors or trustees of a municipality or school district, who, acting as a body, administer the law governing the public schools in the municipality or school district. 47 Am J1st Sch § 29.

board of equalization. A board having a function or functions in reference to taxation, such as spreading the tax burden evenly over all the taxable property in a tax district, so that, taking account of difference in values of the assessed properties, one part of the district is neither unduly burdened nor unduly favored; equalizing the burden of taxes as between tax districts or as between the counties or towns of a state; and even the reducing or increasing of assessments on individual properties. 51 Am J1st Tax § 742.

board of examiners. A state board vested with the power to examine an applicant for a license to practice a profession or an occupation in which special learning is required.

board of fire underwriters. A board composed exclusively of fire insurers; that is, of persons engaged in the business of insuring others, on property, against loss by fire.

Prior to any legislation on the subject, associations called boards of underwriters (either fire or marine) existed in various cities. These were voluntary associations, composed exclusively of those engaged in that particular line of business. Their general object was to consult and co-operate in matters affecting their business and they often established salvage corps at their own expense. These associations were the forerunners of incorporated associations or boards formed under statutory authority and clothed with power to exercise these and similar functions. Childs, ex rel. Smith v Firemen's Ins. Co. 66 Minn 393, 69 NW 141.

See underwriters' association.

board of health. A public body, municipal or state, in charge of the sanitary and hygienic affairs of a community or the state. An administrative agency created by legislative act, acting as an arm of the state or municipal government, according to the authority vested in it upon its creation or thereafter conferred, for the essential purpose of protecting the public health. 25 Am J1st Hlth § 5.

board of pardons. A state board composed of several persons, of which the governor is usually a member, a majority of whom are generally authorized to grant pardons and to grant clemency to convicted prisoners as a branch of the executive department of the state government. 39 Am J1st Pard § 20.

board of parole. A state board authorized and directed to consider the cases of inmates of state prisons and reformatories in reference to the parole of such prisoners, and to release prisoners on parole under such conditions as may be prescribed by law or, as the board, acting under powers vested in the board, may prescribe.

board of regents. See regents.

board of review. A board authorized to hear complaints alleging errors in assessing property for taxation; in a few cities, a board authorized to hear complaints as to brutality or excessive force exercised by police in making an arrest or interrogating a prisoner.

board of supervisors. The county board, sometimes called the county court; the governing body of a county.

board of tax appeals. See tax court.

board of trade. A body of men organized for the advancement and protection of business interests, Retailers Credit Asso. v Commissioner, 90 F2d 47, 111 ALR 152. Sometimes business interests in one particular line of commercial activity, even in one particular line in a specific municipality or other geographical location. Retailers Credit Asso. v Commissioner, 90 F2d 47, 111 ALR 152; narrowly defined as any exchange or association, whether incorporated or unincorporated, of persons who shall be engaged in the business of buying or selling grain or receiving the same for sale on consignment. Trusler v Crooks, 269 US 475, 479, 70 L Ed 365, 366, 46 S Ct 165.

board of works. A public body having charge of public works.

boards of underwriters. Organizations of insurance companies or insurance agents which have the purpose of promoting the insurance business and securing uniformity in the business. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 109.

See board of fire underwriters; rating bureaus.

boardwalk. A sidewalk constructed of boards; the promenade at a seaside resort.

boast. To brag; a brag; a braggart.

boat. Preferably a watercraft, small in size but, as used in common parlance, it is a generic term for watercraft of different sizes, sometimes inclusive, but erroneously, according to mariners, of ships. Sometimes regarded in the more limited sense of watercraft for use upon inland waters. State v Hutchins, 79 NH 132, 105 A 519, 2 ALR 1685, 1691.

[144]

boatable waters. Waters within a state which are of common passage, as highways; that is, waters which can be used in their ordinary condition as highways for commerce conducted in the customary mode of trade and travel on water. New England Trout & Salmon Club v Mather, 68 Vt 338, 35 A 323. But waters which are private property are not boatable, notwithstanding otherwise they are boatable in fact. 56 Am J1st Wat § 3.

See navigable waters.

boating. A conveyance of persons or freight by boat and also the use of a boat for amusement. 12 Am J2d Boats § 1.

Boating Act. A federal statute governing the operation of pleasure craft upon navigable waters. 46 USC § 527.

boat livery. A business or enterprise having boats for rent. 12 Am J2d Boats § 81 boatswain. A petty officer in charge of the deck crew on watch, including operations in loading or unloading cargo. Larson v Alaska S. S. Co. 96 Wash 665, 165 P 880.

bobtail. A horse having a docked or shortened tail.

boc. A book; a written instrument; a charter.

boc horde. Same as book hoard.

bock hord. Same as book hoard.

bock land. Same as book land.

hoc land. Same as book land.

boddemerey. Bottomry.

bodemerie. Bottomry.

bodily. Pertaining to or concerning the body; of or belonging to the body or to the physical constitution; not mental, but corporeal. Terre Haute Electric Railway Co. v Lauer, 21 Ind App 466, 475, 52 NE 703.

bodily harm. Physical injury to the person, especially injury by violent, hostile, and aggressive means. People v Moore (NY) 50 Hun 356, 358.

bodily heirs. Heirs of the body. Watson v WolffGoldman Realty Co. 95 Ark 18, 128 SW 581; children. 28 Am J Rev ed Est § 42; heirs of the body as distinguished from heirs by adoption. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 98.

See heirs of the body.

bodily hurt. Personal injury. Murray v Allen, 103 Vt 373, 154 A 678.

See bodily harm; bodily injuries.

bodily infirmity. Something of a permanent, established, or settled character, that materially impairs, weakens, or undermines the constitution of a person, tends to reduce his powers of resistance, and thereby enhances the risk of death in case of injury. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1211.

See physical infirmity.

bodily injuries. Personal injuries. Cormier v Hudson, 284 Mass 231, 187 NE 625, in various degrees of harm, Anno: 37 ALR2d 1087, resulting from an external cause, 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1168; but including, according to some authority, distress from a cause other than one involving force for example, injury by seduction or malpractice, 3~Arn J1st Lim Ac § 105, sunstroke; freezing, causing death; ulcerations upon the insured's fingers, caused by exposure to an X-ray used in his business; and contact, resulting in death of a professional nurse, with germs of a communicable disease while attending a patient, 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1168, but excluding, according to other authority, anything not resulting from force or violence, such as loss of consortium, 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 212, or disease. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1168.

See personal injury.

bodily issue. Ordinarily words of limitation in a grant or devise, but they may be words of purchase, as where the grantor or testator had children living at the time of the grant and the context shows that the words were not used in a technical sense, but referred especially to children. 28 Am J Rev ed Est § 42.

bodmerie. Bottomry.

body. The corporeal or physical person or being; the trunk, as distinguished from the head and limbs, that part of the human being between the upper part of his thighs or hips and his neck, excluding his arms. Walker v State, 34 Fla 167, 173; the substantial part, as the body of a building in distinction to the accessory or auxiliary parts; the hull of vessel. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 304; a corporation; an unincorporated association; a board; a code of laws.

body corporate. A corporation.

body execution. An execution against the person; a writ of execution for the satisfaction of a judgment to be served by arresting the judgment debtor. 30 Am J2d Exec § 865.

See execution against the person.

body heirs. See bodily heirs.

body of a county. The county as a whole.

body of an instrument. The meat or substance of the instrument.

body of ship. The hull. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 304.

body of the crime. See corpus delicti.

body politic. A social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by laws for the common good. Munn v Illinois, 94 US 113, 124, 24 L Ed 77, 84.

body politic and corporate. A term often applied to a municipal corporation. A county is such a body. Waterbury v Board of Comrs. 10 Mont 515, 26 P 1002.

body snatching. Stealing a corpse. The taking of a corpse from the grave secretly and without authority; a criminal offense, as violation of sepulture. 22 Am J2d Dead B § 50.

body stealing. See body snatching.

bog grass. A kind of hay but constituting a part of the freehold, so that it is waste for a life tenant to take it as fodder. Sarles v Sarles (NY) 3 Sandf Ch 601.

bogus. Spurious; fictitious; sham. Williams v Territory, 13 Ariz 27, 108 P 243.

bogus check. A check given by a person upon a bank in which he has no funds, or funds less than the amount of the check, which he has no reason to suppose will be honored, and which is not honored. Williams v Territory, 13 Ariz 27, 108 P 243.

Bohemian oats. A characterization of a contract whereby seed grain of a variety of oats known as Bohemian oats is sold at a very high price under representation that the seller will sell for the purchaser a much larger quantity of the grain at an equally exorbitant price. A characterization of similar contracts involving other grains. 46 Am J1sf Sales § 122.

[145]

boil. A swelling on the skin, pus-filled and very painful. Beck v State, 29 Ala App 410, 197 So 42. Verb: To come to the boiling point, e.g., water at 212 degrees Fahrenheit; a slang expression for becoming angry.

boilary. Salt water taken from a well belonging to a person who does not own the land.

boiler. A metal container in which food, such as potatoes or ears of sweet corn, may be heated and boiled; a large and tight container of heavy metal in which water may be turned into steam for commercial or household use for the purposes of power or heating.

Boiler Inspection Act. A federal statute intended for the protection of railroad employees, perhaps also of passengers and the public at large, from injury due to industrial accident. Urie v Thompson, 327 US 163, 93 L Ed 1282, 69 S Ct 1018, 11 ALR2d 252. A statute regulating railroads in respect of the safety of certain equipment. 44 Am J1st RR § 274.

boiler insurance. A type of casualty insurance covering damage to property of the insured or of others for which the insured may be liable, including damage to the boiler itself, as well as loss to the insured for damages on account of the death or personal injury of any person caused by the explosion or collapse of a boiler. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1365.

boiler plate material. A term of the trade for stereotype matter in a newspaper. 39 Am J1st Newsp § 8.

bois. A wood.

boldagium. Same as bolhagium.

Bold Buccleugh. See The Bold Buccleugh. bolhagium. A small dwelling house.

boll of land. (Scotch.) About an acre.

boll weevil. A beetle, the larvae of which are destructive to cotton plants; an agricultural pest. 3 Am J2d Agri §§ 38 et seq.

bolter. Bran; a horse that breaks away and runs uncontrolled by rider or driver; a person who leaves his political party, or supports a candidate of another party, usually for a single election.

bolt. A roll of cloth, such as a bolt of silk; a metal rod or pin, usually threaded to permit staying by a nut.
See bolter; bolting.

bolting. The holding of moot arguments at the inns of court; sifting ground wheat to remove the chaff from the edible flour.

bomb scare. The criminal offense of conveying or causing to be conveyed, false information that a bomb or other explosive has been or is to be planted in an airplane, bus, other vehicle, building, or the like. Smith v United States (CA6 Ohio) 283 F2d 16, 87 ALR2d 394, cert den 365 US 847, 5 L Ed 2d 811, 81 S Ct 908.

bon. Good.

bona. Adjective: Good. Noun; Goods and chattels.

bona confiscata. Property confiscated by, or forfeited to, the crown.

bona dea. The good goddess.

bonae fidei. Of good faith.

bonae fidei emptor. A purchaser in good faith.

bonae fidei possessor. A possessor in good faith, -one who believes his right of possession to be better than that of anyone else.

bona felonum. The goods of felons.

bona fide. Acting in good faith.
See good faith.

bona fide debt. A debt incurred without fraud or deceit. Ware v Jones (US) 3 Dall 199, 241, 1 L Ed 568, 586.

bona fide holder. See holder in due course.

bona fide holder for value without notice. A holder in due course. 11 Am J2d B & N § 397.
See holder in due course.

bona fide operation. Real and substantial operation, not something of pretense or sham. 13 Am J2d Car § 95.

bona fide possessor. A person who is in possession of property and is ignorant of all the facts and circumstances relating to his adversary's title. Henderson v Pickett's Heirs, 20 Ky (4 T13 Mon) 54, 60; actual rather than potential or simulated service, and substantial as distinguished from incidental, sporadic, or infrequent service. Anno: 4 ALR2d 705. (Civil law.) A possessor who believes that no other person has a better right to the possession than himself. See Mackeldey's Roman Law § 243.

bona fide purchaser. One who purchases a chattel for value, without notice of a defect in the title of the person from whom he purchased or of the right of a seller in the chain of title to avoid or rescind the sale which he made. 46 Am J1st Sales § 465. One who purchases real estate with an honest purpose and for a valuable consideration, without knowledge or notice of outstanding interests or of facts or circumstances from which his knowledge of outstanding interests should be implied. 55 Am J1st V & P § 687.

Possession of realty by one other than the grantor is sufficient to require the purchaser to make inquiry as to the rights of such other person in possession. Holgerson v Gard, 257 Ala 579, 60 So 2d 427, 33 ALR2d 1315.

To constitute one a bona fide purchaser entitled to priority over one claiming under a prior equity or conveyance, he must be the purchaser of the legal title, as distinguished from the equitable title, in good faith, for value, without notice, at or before the time of parting with the consideration of such other's equity or conveyance. Larkins v Howard, 252 Ala 9, 39 So 2d 224, 7 ALR2d 541.

See holder in due course.

bona fide residence. A residence which amounts to a domicil, that is, a place where a person lives or has his home, to which, when absent, he intends to return and from which he has no present purpose to depart permanently. 17 Am J2d Div & S § 247.

bona fides. Good faith.

bona forisfacta. Same as bona confiscata.

bona fugitivorum. The goods of fugitives.

bona gestura. Good behavior.

bona gratia. With good grace; freely; with full consent.

[146]

Bona gratia matrimonium dissolvitur. Full consent to the dissolution of a marriage.

bona immobilia. (Civil law.) Immovable property; land; buildings; any corporeal real property.

bona memoria. With good memory.

bona mobilia. Chattels; personal property; articles which move under their own power or are moved by external force applied to them. 42 Am J1st Prop § 24.

bona notabilia. Goods and chattels of some value, of sufficient value to require administration of the estate of a deceased owner.

bonanza. A term originally applied to a rich vein of ore or a highly productive mine, especially a gold or silver mine, and now applied to any business or commercial activity which is very rewarding financially, particularly a new enterprise which produces a big profit quickly.

bona patria. (Scotch.) A jury of countrymen or good neighbors.

bona peritura. Perishable goods.

bona utlagatorum. The goods of outlaws.

bona vacantia. Property without an owner. Personal property which went to the Crown, under the common law, for want of an owner. 27 Am J2d Esch § 1.

bona waviata. Goods stolen, and waived or thrown away by the thief in his flight, for fear of being apprehended.

bond. Noun: The obligation secured by a mortgage or deed of trust; a corporate obligation. 19 Am J2d Corp § 1059; at common law, a sealed instrument or specialty. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 82; an obligation in writing which binds a signatory to pay a sum certain upon the happening of an event and carries a seal, except where controlled by a statute which dispenses with the necessity of a seal. 12 Am J2d Bonds § 1. So defined, the term is generic, embracing investment bonds, penal bonds, indemnity, fidelity, and surety bonds. 12 Am J2d Bonds § 1. Less frequently, the term is used for a bail or a surety. Verb: To give a bond as security.

See undertaking.

bonda. A boundary.

bondage. Involuntary personal servitude; slavery.

bond and disposition in security. (Scotch.) A mortgage of real property.

bond broker. See broker; underwriting contract.

bond-creditor. A creditor who has taken a bond to secure his debt.

bonded debt. An indebtedness secured by a bond issue; written obligations contracted for corporate purposes pursuant to law and to be paid out of taxes to be levied upon all property within the corporate boundaries. Bolton v Wharton, 163 SC 242, 161 SE 454, 86 ALR 1101.

bonded goods. Goods in respect to which a bond has been given to secure the payment of the excise or duty on them.

bonded indebtedness. See bonded debt.

bonded liquor. See bonded goods.

bonded warehouse. A building or part of a building, usually at a port of entry, designated by the Secretary of the Treasury as a bonded warehouse for the storage of imported merchandise entered for warehousing, for the manufacture of merchandise in bond, or for the repacking, sorting, or cleaning of imported merchandise.

The owner or lessee of such premises is required to give bond in such sum and with such sureties as may be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, to secure the government against loss or expense connected with or arising from the deposit, storage, or manipulation of merchandise in such warehouse. 19 USC § 1555.

See private bonded warehouse; public bonded warehouse.

bond for costs. See security for costs.

bond for support. A bond conditioned upon furnishing support for a child, furnished in a prosecution for abandonment or nonsupport of the child. 23 Am J2d Desert § 118.

bond for title. See title bond.

bondholder. A person who is the holder or owner of a government bond, mortgage bond, debenture, or other investment bond.

bond issue. The entire process of executing and delivering the instruments, known as bonds, and having the effect of obligations of indebtedness of the corporation or public body which issues them, to the purchasers, holders, or owners, Vans Agnew v Ft. Myers Drainage Dist. (CA5 Fla) 69 F2d 244; Turner v Roseberry Irrig Dist. 33 Idaho 746, 198 P 465; Joint School Dist. v Dabney, 127 Okla 234, 260 P 486; the aggregate of bonds issued by a corporation or public body under one authorization.

bondman. A slave; a person bound to serve without pay; a bond-tenant.

bond on appeal. Security furnished in perfecting an appeal for the benefit of other parties to be affected. 4 Am J2d A & E § 323.

bond post obit. Bond after he has died, -a bond given to secure the performance of Some act or acts after a certain person shall have died . A kind of bond whereby the obligor agrees that in consideration of the payment to him of a sum of money by the obligee, he, the obligor, will upon receipt thereof from the estate of a person now living from whom he expects to inherit, pay a larger sum, exceeding the legal rate of interest. Boynton v Hubbard, 7 Mass 112, 120.

bond premium. The amount paid for a bond by the holder thereof in excess of the face value of the instrument.

bond single. A bond without a condition; in effect, a promissory note under seal.

bondsman. A surety on a bond, especially a bail.

bond-tenants. Copyhold tenants; customary tenants.
See bondman.

bond to keep the peace. A bond or undertaking required by a magistrate to be given by a person who has threatened to commit a breach of the peace. A bond or undertaking given as security against the commission of a breach of peace by the obligor. 12 Am J2d Breach P etc. §§ 41-51.

[147]

bone boiling plant. A place where bones are reduced to constituents by boiling.

bone marrow biopsy. A part of a physical examination to which the plaintiff in a personal injury action may be required to submit. 23 Am J2d Dep § 216.

bones gents. Good men; competent or qualified persons.

boni et legales homines. Good and lawful men; qualified jurors.

bonification of tax. The remission of taxes, particularly taxes on goods to be exported. United States v Passavant, 169 US 16, 42 L Ed 644, 18 S Ct 219.

boni homines. Good men.

Boni judicis est ampliari justitiam. The duty of a good judge to make precedents in the amplification of justice. Koerber v Patek, 123 Wis 453, 102 NW 40.

boni iudicis est litis dirimere; et interest reipublicae ut sint fines litium. A good judge should end litigation; and it is of interest to the state that litigation should end.

bonis. See in bonis; in bonis defuncti.

bonis maternis. See ex bonis maternis.

bonis non amovendis. For not removing the goods, -a writ to restrain a judgment debtor from removing his goods pending a writ of error.

bonne. Good.

bonne foy. See en bonne foy.

bono et malo. See de bono et malo.

bono gestu. See de bono gestu.

bonorum. See cessio bonorum; collatio bonorum.

bonorum possessio. (Civil law.) The possession of goods.

bonos mores. See contra bonos mores.

bonum. Goodness; welfare; advantage; benefit.

bonum vacans. Singular of bona vacantia.

bonus. A payment made by a borrower in advance, sometimes called a commission. 55 Am J1st Usury § 41; a sum paid by a mortgagor as a condition of prepayment of the mortgage debt. Anno: 70 ALR2d 1334; a payment of something extra, Kenicott v Supervisors of Wayne County (US) 16 Wall 452, 21 L Ed 319; something paid an employee above stipulated wages. Anne: 28 ALR 332; 35 Am J1st M & S § 71; an extra dividend; a payment made for expeditious service; a payment in appreciation of a privilege granted. Kenicott v Supervisors of Wayne County (US) 16 Wall 452, 21 L Ed 319; the payment of a share of earnings required of a public utility in consideration of the grant of a charter. Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co. v Maryland (US) 21 Wall 456, 22 L Ed 678; a reward for military services. 40 Am J1st Pens § 3; a drawback of taxes. United States v Passavant, 169 US 161, 42 L Ed 644, 18 S Ct 219.

An adjective in the Latin; good; advantageous; profitable.

bonus homo. A good man.

bonus iudex. Good judge.

bonus plan. An established plan, followed by a corporation, for the remuneration of officers and employees, in addition to regular salaries or wages, as an incentive to additional effort and use of skill on behalf of the company. See 19 Am J2d Corp § 1413.

bonus stock. Corporate stock issued without payment made therefor or issued for property or services at an inflated and unrealistic value. 19 Am J2d Corp § 764.

bony. Adjective: Thin; having bones with prominent protrusions; having many bones, as applied to fish in reference to serving them as food. Noun: Refuse, especially refuse from a mine.

boodle. Money given or received as a bribe. 33 Am J1st L & S § 22; money or property gained in an illegal enterprise, theft, or fraudulent scheme. Money fraudulently obtained in public service; especially, money given to or received by officials in bribery, or gained by collusive contracts, appointments, etc.; by extension, gain from public cheating of any kind; often used attributively. Boehmer v Detroit Free Press, 94 Mich 7.

book. A generic term inclusive of a bound volume, even a very loosely bound volume, sometimes sheets held together by a ring or loop of wire, of such a variety of content as to embrace a body of blank pages on the one hand or the world's greatest literary masterpiece on the other. Any species of publication which an author selects to embody his literary product and for which he seeks the protection of a copyright. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 38. In the ancient concept, a term including any volume, whether of paper, of parchment, or of some other material.

book account. An account based upon transactions creating a debtor and creditor relation, evidenced by entries made in a book regularly kept and used for that purpose. Plunkett-Jarrell Grocery Co. v Terry, 222 Ark 784,263 SW2d 229, 44 ALR2d 917.

See book of account.

book-case. A set of shelves for books.

book cases. Published reports of cases which have been decided.

book debt. A common-law form of action to recover for such items as are the proper subjects of book charge, that is, proper for entry or charge in a book of account. Newton v Higgins, 2 Vt 366, 369.

See book of account.

booked. See booking.

booker. See bookmaker; booking agency; motion picture booker.

book hoard. A place where books or written instruments were kept.

bookie. See bookmaker.

booking. Entering an event or a transaction in a book; a police-station term for the entry of an arrest and the charge for which the arrest was made; the engagement of talent for a theater, a night club or other place of entertainment. The system or practice of steamship companies in making specific engagements with shippers for a reservation of space for commodities to be shipped on a particular vessel in advance of its sailing day. Any certain commodity for which space has been thus arranged is referred to as "booked." Ocean Co. v Savannah Locomotive S.S. Works & Supply Co. 131 Ga 831, 63 SE 577.

See freight booking.

[148]

booking agency. An agency, otherwise known as a theatrical agency, which represents actors, or other entertainers, and lecturers, in obtaining engagements for them.

booking contract. A contract for the employment of an actor or other entertainer. Hart v B. F. Keith Vaudeville Exchange (CA2 NY) 12 F2d 341.

bookkeeper. See bookkeeping; bookmaking.

bookkeeping. Keeping the accounts of an individual or a business, in other words, accounting. 1 Am J2d Accts § 2. The art of recording, in a systematic manner, the transactions of merchants, traders and other persons engaged in pursuits connected with money; the art of keeping accounts. In the commercial world, bookkeeping is a distinct profession requiring peculiar adaptation and thorough training. Western Assur. Co. v Altheimer, 58 Ark 565, 573.

book-land. Land which was held by deed under certain rents and free services, otherwise known as charterland, and which, in effect, did not differ from the free socage-lands. See 2 Bl Comm 90.

bookmaker. A binder of books; a person who is engaged in bookmaking. Anno: 153 ALR 464.

See bookmaking.

bookmaking. The receiving from several persons of wagers on the same sporting event, more often than not a horse race, the odds having been calculated beforehand by the bookmaker, and the total sum received by way of the wagers to be given to the winner, subject to a deduction of the bookmaker's commission. Anno: 96 L Ed 317.

Tickets are given the persons who make the wagers in evidence of their selections and of their interest in the total sum or pool received from all persons betting on the particular event, according to whether they win or lose. 24 Am J1st Gaming § 24. Bookmaking is a form of gambling and, as such, illegal under the statutes of most jurisdictions, except as legalized in reference to particular events, such as horse racing and dog racing.

book-oath. An oath made by swearing on the Bible.

book of account. Otherwise known as a shop-book a book of original entry of transactions with customers in a store or shop, which is admissible in evidence in an action by the storekeeper or shopkeeper to recover on the account of a customer, where properly authenticated as to the person or persons who made the entries, the time, the occasion, and accuracy of the entries. 30 Am J2d Ev § 918.

See book of original entry; journal; shop-book rule; waste-book.

book of acts. The records of a surrogate court.

book of adjournal. (Scotch.) The book of the records of the court of judiciary.

Book of Fiefs or Feuds. A compilation of the feudal law made in Lombardy in the 12th century.

See liber feudorum.

book of original entry. The first permanent record of a transaction made by a shopkeeper or storekeeper, as a creditor of a customer, in the usual course of business and within a reasonably short time after the transaction itself, although the items may have been first entered as a temporary assistance to the memory upon some slate, book, paper, or other substance; it is of no consequence what the latter material was, or the size or shape, so long as the notation thereon was a mere minute, not intended to be preserved as evidence, but to be used in the preparation of a book of account to be preserved. 30 Am J2d Ev § 941.

An original entry within rule admitting in evidence books of account consisting of such entries must have been made in the regular course of business; must, as a rule, have been a part of the series; must be fairly contemporaneous with the items entered; and must be the first permanent record of a transaction recorded. Anno: 17 ALR2d 239.

book of rates. A list of duties and tariffs authorized by the English Parliament.

book of responses. An account book kept by the director of the Scotch exchequer.

Book of The Assizes. The fourth volume of decisions reported in the reign of Edward the Third.

books of account. See book of account.

books of exact science. A term in the law of evidence for books admitted in evidence, subject to authentication, as publications containing statements of ascertained scientific facts rather than of opinions, or which, by long use in the practical affairs of life, have come to be accepted as standard and unvarying authority in determining the acts of persons who use them, eg. mortality tables, almanacs, tables of weights and measures, and similar compilations. 29 Am J2d Ev § 889.

book value. A value, which, in its application to corporate stock, is theoretical only, unless there is stated with it the accounting procedure and formula by which it is determined. Anno: 51 ALR2d 606. By a mere rule of thumb, the book value of corporate stock is the figure obtained upon dividing the amount of the difference between assets and liabilities by the total number of outstanding shares, in other words, the value shown by the balance sheets of the company. Early v Moor, 249 Mass 223, 144 NE 108; 33 ALR 362. The term contemplates a theoretical value resulting from depreciation or appreciation as computed upon an originally determined base, which is supplied by some form of stipulation or acquiescence or through acceptance of particular accounting procedures previously applied. 18 Am J2d Corp § 219.

The book value of a partner's interest is the money value of that interest arrived at by taking the total value of the assets of the partnership, as shown on the general ledger and other books of account, and deducting therefrom the total liabilities of the partnership. Rubel v Rubel, 221 Miss 848, 75 So 2d 59, 47 ALR2d 1410.

An expression used in the automobile used car market, meaning an established, arbitrary value for every make, model, and year. 8 Am J2d Auto § 1042.

book warranty. A warranty in an insurance policy covering a stock of goods and merchandise against loss by fire, windstorm, burglary, or theft, that the insured shall make and keep inventories and books of account, which shall be kept in a fireproof safe or other secure place, and that the insured shall, upon demand, produce such books and inventories for the inspection of the insurer. 29A Am 3 Rev ed Ins § 939. Such a provision is often referred to as an iron safe clause. Anno: 33 ALR2d 619; 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 939.

boom. A structure erected in a stream or river for the purpose of catching and collecting logs floating down stream and forming an artificial harbor for the logs, of which harbor one side is furnished ordinarily by the natural bank of the stream, and the other is provided by piers and the timber or other obstruction to the passage of logs which connect the piers together. 34 Am J1st Logs § 78.

[149]

boomage. A charge imposed by the proprietor of a canal for the use of a terminal as an anchorage. Watts v Savannah & O. Canal Co. 64 Ga 88 ; a charge made by a booming company for collecting and distributing logs which have accumulated at its boom. 34 Am J1st Logs § 89.

boom company. A company formed for the purpose of constructing and maintaining booms and for running, driving, booming, and rafting logs. Watts v Tittabawassee Boom Co. 52 Mich 203, 206.

boom value. Speculative or fanciful value, as distinguished from reasonable market, salable value. Blincoe v Choctaw, Oklahoma & Western Railroad Co. 16 Okla 286, 83 P 903.

boon days. Days appointed for base services of copyhold tenants.

boosted fire. A fire rendered impossible of extinguishment because of inflammables or combustibles stored or kept in the building. Anderson v Miller, 96 Tenn 35, 33 SW 615.

boot. A covering for the foot; a patch for an automobile tire. Something paid by one of the parties to a trade or exchange to the other.

bootblacking stand. A place for obtaining a shoeshine, which, according to some but not all authority, is a place of public accommodation. 15 Am J2d Civ R § 20.

booth. A small structure, usually for occupancy by one or two persons, open at one end, except for railing, bar, or counter, in use for the most part in selling admission tickets or soliciting business at exhibitions, fairs, markets, games, etc. Also, a partial enclosure in a lobby of a place of entertainment for the sale of tickets. Also, a house or shed built of boards or other slight materials for temporary occupation. People v Hagen, 60 Hun 577, 14 NYS 233.

boothage. Money paid for the privilege of maintaining a market booth or stall.

booting-corn. Rent paid in corn.

bootlegger. One who sells alcoholic beverages in violation of law; one who keeps alcoholic beverages for the purpose of making sales in violation of law. State v Vanderpool, 195 Iowa 43, 44, 191 NW 357.

bootleg whisky. Whisky manufactured, sold, or kept for sale, in violation of law. State v Tillery, 243 NC 706, 92 SE 2d 65.

bootstrap sale. A tax-saving device whereby the seller in effect converts ordinary income from his business into capital gain from the sale of corporate stock. Commissioner v Brown, 380 US 563, 14 L Ed 2d 75, 85 S Ct 1162.

booty. Goods captured in war on land by land forces. Property taken by theft, robbery, or larceny.

See boodle.

booze. Verb: To drink heavily of alcoholic beverages. Noun: Alcoholic beverages.

bord. (Saxon.) A dwelling house; a cottage.

bordage. A feudal tenure under the Norman kings by which the tenant held his cot in return for menial service. Such a tenant was called a bordar.

bordagium. Bordage.

bordar. See bordage.

bordaria. A cottage.

bordarii. Tenants in bordage; bordars; cottagers.

bord-brigeh. Same as borghbrech.

border-crossing. An identification card given to a Canadian crossing the border into the United States. 8 USC § 1303(a).

bordereau. (French.) A note or memorandum; a list of documents or contracts more or less in detail. An account.

border warrant. (Scotchb.) A warrant for the arrest of a debtor on the English side of the border between England and Scotland.

bord-halfpenny. Money paid for the liberty of setting up and maintaining a market stall at fairs and markets.

bord-land. Land held by a tenant in bordage.

bordlode. Rent service rendered by hotdarii.

bord-service. Bordage.

borel. Pertaining to the laity.

borel folk. Laymen, as distinguished from the clergy; country people.

borg. Same as borgh.

borgesmon. (Saxon.) The head of a family.

borgh. A suretyship; a pledge; a surety.

borghbrech. Pledge-breach; the breach of a pledge or suretyship; the violation of the pledge given by every inhabitant of a tithing to keep the peace.

born. Brought forth, delivered, or expelled from the womb; contrasted with adopted within the meaning of provisions in wills intended to confine legacies and devices to relatives by blood. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1174.

See birth.

born alive. Completely delivered from the womb, and breathing or attempting to breath, without reference to the fact that the child is dead before the umbilical cord is severed. Goff v Anderson, 91 Ky 303, 15 SW 866. Some authority insists that "not to have breathed is not to have lived." State v Winthrop, 43 Iowa 519.

born dead. See dead-born.

born deaf, dumb and blind. See deaf, dumb and blind.

borne. Carried.

born out of wedlock. Born to an unmarried female; born to a married female but begotten during the continuance of the marriage status by one other than her husband. State v Coliton, 73 ND 582, 17 NW2d 546, 156 ALR 1403. Anno: 156 ALR 1411.

borough. In the American sense of the term, a unit of a large city, as the borough of Brooklyn in New York City; an incorporated town or township with powers of self-government, sometimes including a village within its limits. In England, there is the additional meaning of a town which sends a member to Parliament. Atherton v Essex Junction, 83 Vt 218, 74 A 1118.

See burgess; rotten boroughs.

[150]

borough council. The managing board elected by the voters of the borough.

borough courts. Courts of limited jurisdiction held within boroughs by prescription, by charter or by act of parliament. See 3 Bl Comm 81.

borough-English. A custom attached to burgage tenure whereby the youngest and not the eldest son succeeded to the tenement on the death of his father. It was so named in contradistinction to the Norman rule of primogeniture.

borough-head. The head man or chief of an English borough, tithing or frank-pledge.

borough-holder. Same as boroughhead.

borough reeve. The governor of a borough.

borough sessions. The sessions of a borough court.

borrow. To obtain upon loan from the owner or other person having the right of disposition; to engage the use of money by contract. State ex rel. Kimball v School Dist. 13 Neb 82, 88.

The renewal of an existing indebtedness is not "borrowing money" or "effecting a loan." State v Love, 170 Miss 666, 150 So 196, 90 ALR 506.

See loan.

borrowe. (Scotch.) A pledge.

One who borrows.

See usury.

borrowing member. A member of a building and loan association who has borrowed from the association. 13 Am J2d B & L Assoc § 19.

borrowing money. See borrow; borrower; loan.

borrowings. A local banking term for overdrafts.

borrow pit. A term familiar in cases pertaining to the construction of highways and railroads, meaning land used for excavation to obtain dirt for making fills. Arkansas Valley & Western Railway Co. v Witt, 19 Okla 262, 91 P 897. Often it is necessary to condemn land in order to obtain a borrow pit.

borsholder. Same as borough-head.

boscage. Tree leaves and bushes used as cattle feed.

boscaria. Cattle-sheds.

boscus. Growing wood.

bosom of the country. See in the bosom of the country.

bosom of the court. See breast of the court.

botable waters. Waters that are of common passage as highways for business or pleasure. 56 Am J1st Wat § 3.

bote. Estovers; compensation; satisfaction.

boteless. Without a remedy; without relief.

botellaria. A wine or liquor cellar.

both. The two of them, whether persons or things; taking two together; as well.

botha. A market stall or booth.

bothagium. Same as boothage.

both legal and equitable. A phrase elaborating the sole and unconditional ownership clause of a fire insurance policy, meaning, according to some authorities, a vested legal, as well as an equitable, title, but, according to other authorities, no more than an equitable title with the right to the conveyance of the legal title. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 791.

bothna. (Scotch.) A pasture.

both-to-blame. The admiralty doctrine whereby the full burden of losses sustained by both ships in a collision should be shared equally. 2 Am J2d Adm § 187.

See contributory negligence.

botiler of the king. A king's officer whose duty it was to select one cask before the mast and one behind it from every ship freighted with wine which was to be sold.

boting corn. Same as booting corn.

botless. Same as boteless.

bottled gas. Gas for household use, furnished, not in the conventional manner by mains and service pipes but by supplying the product in containers, called bottles, which have outlets for connection with the pipes of the house.

See liquid gas.

bottom. The national registry of a vessel.

bottomage. Same as bottomry.

bottom land. Land in the flood plain of a river; land which is over flown by a river unless protected by flood control constructions.

bottomry. A contract, usually executed in a foreign port by the master of a vessel, for repayment of advances made to supply the necessities of the ship, together with such interest as may be agreed upon, the performance whereof is secured by a pledge of the keel or bottom of the ship, which, of course, is actually a pledge of the ship itself, but under the characteristic provision that payment of principal and interest are at the risk of the lender during the voyage, so that repayment depends upon its successful termination. 48 Am J1st Ship § 593.

bottomry bond. An instrument which sets forth a contract of bottomry.

See bottomry bond.

bottomry lien. The lien upon a vessel created by a bottomry bond. See 48 Am J1st Ship § 605.

bottoms. Keels or the parts of vessels below water; a term of the shipping business, used at times for freighters; for instance, the expression, "50 bottoms available," meaning 50 ships in port and ready to take on cargo; a slang term used by persons who deal in forged notes to denote paper for making the notes. Rex v Dade (Eng) 1 Moody CC 307.

botulism. A form of food poisoning which results from imperfect canning or preserving.

bouche. A feudal allowance for food supplies during active military service; mouth.

bouche of court. The king's allowance to his knights and personal servants for food supply during active military service.

bought. Purchased, either for cash or upon terms of credit.

bought and sold notes. Two memoranda of a transaction by a broker, one going to the purchaser and the other to the seller, the former being the bought note and the latter the sold note.

boulder. A rock, as known to geologists, but not necessarily to all persons, so that where the term appears in a contract, it is to be construed with the entire context, perhaps contrary to geology.

[151]

Chicago v Duffy, 117 Ill App 261, affd 218 Ill 242, 75 NE 912.

Boulder Canyon Project Act. The federal statute providing for the construction of the Boulder Dam, otherwise known as the President Hoover Dam, in the canyon of the Colorado River known as Boulder Canyon. 43 USC § 617.

boulevard. A street or highway more elaborate than the ordinary highway or street in respect both of width, style, and manner of construction. 25 Am J Rev ed High § 6. It may be given a park like appearance by reserving spaces at the sides or center for shade trees, flowers, seats, and the like, and be set apart for pleasure driving rather than the general purposes of traffic. Haller Sign Works v Physical Culture Training School, 249 Ill 436, 94 NE 920.

boulter. Same as bulter.

bouncer. A man, often an ex-pugilist, employed in a restaurant or other place of public entertainment to maintain order and eject riotous or quarrelsome persons.

bouncing check. See bogus check, bound. Noun: A boundary.

In an indorser's waiver of protest of a note, in which he stipulates to be bound as if protest had been made, the word bound has been held to amount to a waiver of both demand and notice, since otherwise the stipulation would be without effect. Union Bank v Hyde (US) 6 Wheat 572, 5 L Ed 333.

Adjective: Tied, fastened securely to something else; deprived of movement by cord or fetters; under contract, obligated.

boundary. The marking or dividing line between two parcels of real estate. 12 Am J2d Bound § 1.

boundary action or suit. An action at law or a suit in equity, sometimes a special statutory proceeding, for the determination of a boundary as between adjoining landowners. 12 Am J2d Bound § 91.

boundary point. The extremity of a boundary line, being indicated by a monument or marker, a course or a distance as it appears on a map or plat, the adjoining land, or by a combination of such things. 12 Am J2d Bound § 1.

boundary trees. Trees, standing on the boundary between adjoining tracts of land in different ownership, so that the boundary line passes through them. The trees are the common property of the proprietors of the adjoining tracts as tenants 'in common. 1 Am J2d Adj L § 22.

See bounded tree.

boundary waters. Rivers, lakes, or other bodies of water which delimit a nation, state, or political subdivision.

bound-bailiff. Also known as hound-bailiff, -a deputy sheriff who was under bond for the faithful performance of his duties and was employed only on account of his adroitness and dexterity in hunting. 1 Bl Comm 345.

bounded by a highway. A designation in the description of a boundary that will carry title to the center of the highway, in the absence of other words in the conveyance which indicates a contrary intent. 12 Am J2d Bound § 51.

bounded tree. A tree marking a corner of a tract of land.

See boundary trees.

bounden. Same as bound.

bounders. Visible marks showing courses and distances in a land survey; rude, ill-mannered, or unprincipled persons.

bounds. Boundaries.

See metes and bounds.

bounty. In common parlance, a gift or favor bestowed as an expression of liberality or kindness; in a narrower and more precise legal sense, it is money paid, or a premium offered, to encourage or promote an object, or to procure a particular act or thing to be done. 12 Am J2d Bount § 1; an amount offered for services performed or to be performed. 46 Am J1st Rew § 2; a payment made to induce enlistments in the armed forces or as a reward for industrial activities in the national defense. 12 Am J2d Bount § 2.

bounty lands. Lands donated by the government as a bounty.

Bounty of Queen Anne. A fund provided by statute to aid the smaller church livings.

bourbon. Adjective: Reactionary. Noun: Whisky made from corn.

Bourdon tube. A well-known pressure-responsive device, commonly used in pressure gauges of steam boilers. James P. Marsh Corp. v United States Gauge Co. (DC 111) 42 F Supp 998.

bourg. A fortified town.

bourgeois. An inhabitant of a town; a burgess; one of a middle class, usually having at least some property or value. Adjective: Smug; conservative.

bourgeoisie. Plural of bourgeois.

bourse. A stock exchange.

boussole. (French). A compass for use in navigation.

bout. A butt; an end; an end boundary; a contest, such as a boxing bout.

bouter. To put or place.

bouter avant. To place or put before; to exhibit.

bouts et cotes. Butts and bounds; metes and bounds; end and side boundaries.

bouwerie. (Dutch.) A farm.

bouwmeester. (Dutch.) A farmer.

bovarius. An ox-team driver.

bovata terrac. A parcel of land which could be tilled by one ox.

bovettus. A young steer.

bovicula. A heifer.

Bovill's Act. An English statute (1865) whereby one was not liable as a partner simply because he shared in the profits of the business; an English statute regulating procedure in petitions of right.

bovine. Pertaining to the cow or ox; patient, slow, and stupid.

bow-bearer. A kind of forest police with the duty of enforcing the forest laws.

bowery. Same as bouwerie.

bowie-knife. A knife with a strong blade from ten to fifteen inches long, double edged near the point; used as a hunting knife and formerly as a weapon in the southwestern part of the United

[152]

States. Phoenix v State, 103 Tex Crim 441, 444, 281 SW 567; a deadly weapon. 56 Am J1st Weap § 3.

bowling alley. A lane, having a smooth, wooden floor, used in the game of bowling, pins being set up at one end and the player, called a bowler, throwing a heavy ball, with underhand motion, from the other end, his purpose being to strike down the pins or as many of them as possible; a building having bowling alleys in it. Williams v Vincent, 70 Kan 595, 79 P 121.

bow window. See bay window.

bowyers. Makers of archery supplies.

box. See ballot-box; jury box.

box car. A railroad freight car which is inclosed. State v Green, 15 Mont 424, 39 P 322.

boxed weight. A mercantile term, of special significance in the meat business, meaning weight after the necessary packaging.

boxing. A sport, often called fighting, in which the participants, wearing so-called boxing gloves, which are padded, seek to deliver blows by the hand, left or right, to the face and the upper part of the torso of his opponent. The sport is both amateur and professional.

boxing match. A boxing contest, a mere exhibition of skill in sparring with gloves, not calculated to do great bodily injury. State v Olympic Club, 46 La Ann 935, 15 So 190.

box-step. A step on a railroad passenger car by which a passenger moves from the station platform to the vestibule of the car or vice versa.

box strap. A strip of leather, plastic, or thin metal used to reinforce the ends, sometimes the tops and bottoms, of shipping cases made of wood or card board.

boy. A male under the age of puberty. Central of Georgia Railroad Co. v Robins, 209 Ala 6, 95 So 367, 36 ALR 10, 13.

boycott. A species of ostracism, a combination in refusing to have business dealings with another until he removes or ameliorates conditions deemed inimical to the members of the combination, or some of them, or grants concessions which are deemed to make for the removal or amelioration of such conditions. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 461. The word is derived from the name of Captain Boycott who, in 1880, as an Irish land agent gave offense to the populace and was treated to this sort of social interdiction. As applied to labor unions, a boycott is an attempt, by arousing a fear of loss, to coerce others, against their will, to withhold, from one denominated "unfriendly to labor," their beneficial business intercourse. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 461.

As defined above, the influence brought is persuasion by causing fear of loss of business; at times, boycotts have been accompanied by intimidation and threats causing fear of bodily injury. Gray v Building Trades Council, 91 Minn 171, 97 NW 663.

See primary boycott; secondary boycott.

boys. Males under the age of puberty; a wood.

Boy Scouts. A worldwide organization for training in leadership, patriotism, and good citizenship, which qualifies easily as having a charitable purpose. 15 Am J2d Char § 68.

bozero. (Spanish.) An advocate.

bozo. A slang term applied to a man in derision or contempt, especially to a strikebreaker in a labor dispute; occasionally used without rancor in speaking familiarly and humorously to persons on one's own level. State v Christie, 97 Vt 461, 123 A 849, 34 ALR 577, 579.

b.p. Abbreviation for boiling point.

B. P. Abbreviation for Bachelor of Philosophy and for Bachelor of Pharmacy.

B/P. Abbreviation for bills payable.

B. P. O. E. Abbreviation for the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

B.R. Abbreviation for bills receivable; an abbreviation of "bancus regis" and also "bancus reginae," -king's bench and queen's bench. K. B. and Q. B. are also used.

brabant. An English coin current in the thirteenth century.

brace de la mer. An arm of the sea.

bracelets. Undersized hounds or beagles.

bracery. The name of an offense created by the statute 32 of Henry the Eighth directed against the evil of buying and selling of titles and pretended rights of persons not being in possession. Webb v Camp, 26 Ga 354, 357; Cain v Monroe, 23 Ga 82, 94.

See embracery.

bracetus. A hound.

brachium maris. An arm of the sea.

bracket. Marks used to set off a parenthetical clause or expression.

See parenthesis; tax bracket.

Bradlaugh's Case. A celebrated case involving the form of oath required of members of the English house of commons.

Brahmin. A Hindu priest; an ultra-conservative person; a snob.

brain. The seat of physical control of the body and also of intelligence; a slang term applied by students to a superior student.

See water on the brain.

brake. A mechanical device for stopping or slowing a vehicle in motion or a moving part of a machine.

braking distance. The distance traveled by a motor vehicle from the time that brake pressure is applied until the vehicle comes to a full stop.

For a chart of braking distance in terms of percentages of braking efficiency with formulas and separate chart of reaction time distance, see Am J2d Desk Book, Document 175.

branch. A line of descent from a common ancestor; one of the divisions of a legislative body; a creek or small stream tributary to a larger stream or river; a subordinate part.

A will establishing a trust and providing "If, at the time of the termination of said trust, any of the three branches of my family as represented by my three children, should have become extinct, then the branches of my family represented by issue or descendants shall take the said estate in equal proportions" will be interpreted to mean direct branches or surviving issue or descendants of his children, rather than collateral branches not mentioned in the will, where such provision appears to have been inserted merely to amplify and reaffirm such an intention clearly disclosed by prior privi-

[153]

sions. Dennis v Omaha Nat. Bank, 153 Neb 865, 46 NW2d 606, 27 ALR2d 674.

branch bank. A bank established by another bank, known as the principal or main bank, at a location in a city, village, or town other than that in which the main bank is located, for transacting a banking business; sometimes to be regarded as a separate institution, at other times as an agent of the main bank. 10 Am J2d Bks § 326. There is a distinction between a branch bank and an additional office of a bank for the receipt of deposits and the payment of checks. Marvin v Kentucky Title & Trust Co. 218 Ky 135, 291 SW 17, 50 ALR 1337.

branch postoffice. A place established, usually in a store or other place of business, for the transaction of postal business or a part of the functions of a postoffice.

The term includes every place within such a branch office where letters are kept in the regular course of business, for reception, stamping, assorting, or delivery. Goode v United States, 159 US 663, 671, 40 L Ed 297, 301, 16 S Ct 136.

branch railroad. See lateral.

brand. Noun: A kind of commodity, usually designated by name given by the producer, as "twenty mule team borax";- an identifying label on merchandise; a mark on the hide of a cow or steer made with a hot iron; a stick on fire at one end, carried for the purpose of setting fire. Verb: To mark with a brand; to bring a person into disgrace by speech or writing.

See label.

branding. See brand.

branding-helmet. A helmet used for branding on the cheek a person who pleaded benefit of clergy as a defense in a criminal prosecution.

brandy. A spirituous and intoxicating liquor, generally distilled from wine, although the name is sometimes given to distillations from other liquors. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 12.

brank. Buckwheat was so called in Essex.

branks. A bridle which was used as a punishment for a common scold.

brasiator. A brewer.

brasium. Malt.

brass knuckles. A weapon used for offense and defense, worn upon the hand to strike with as if striking with the fist. When first known and used, the weapon was commonly made of brass, but it is now made of steel, platinum or other heavy metal, as well as of brass, but it retains the name of brass knuckles, no matter of what material it is made. Harris v State, 22 Tex App 677, 38 SW 477.

brawl. A noisy quarrel.

brawling. The offense of quarreling noisily in or about a church, which was punished under a statute of Edw. VI.

breach. A break; a breaking; a violation; the violation of an obligation, engagement or duty; a hernia.

breach of arrestment. (Scotch.) The unlawful delivery of arrested or seized goods to the debtor.

breach of close. A trespass, that is, wrongful entry on the soil of another.

breach of contract. A failure without legal excuse to perform any promise which forms a whole or a part of a contract, including the refusal of a party to recognize the existence of the contract or the doing of something inconsistent with its existence. National City Bank v Erskine & Sons, 158 Ohio St 450, 49 Ohio Ops 395, 110 NE2d 598; a nonperformance of any contractual duty of immediate performance; the breach may be total or partial, and may take place by failure to perform acts promised, by prevention, or hindrance, or by repudiation. Restatement, Contracts § 312.

breach of covenant. The violation of a covenant by an act or omission, depending upon whether the duty prescribed by the covenant is one of action or refraining from an act.

breach of duty. The failure or omission to do that which a person is bound by law to do, or the doing of it in an unlawful manner.

See breach of contract; breach of covenant; negligence.

breach of peace. Such a violation of the public order as amounts to a disturbance of the public tranquility, by act or conduct either directly having this effect, or by inciting or tending to incite such a disturbance of the public tranquility. 12 Am J2d Breach P § 4.

breach of pound. The breaking of a pound by the owner of goods or animals placed in the pound under a warrant of distraint and the removal or release by him of such goods or animals from the pound.

breach of prison or jail. See prison breaking; jail breaking.

breach of privilege. An excess or abuse of the privilege of a member of the legislature, as determined by the legislature; excess or abuse of the privilege of communication, whereby the privilege is lost and liability for defamation ensues, as by violent and intemperate language. 33 Am J1st L & S § 186.

breach of promise. Literally the failure to perform a promise, but known to the law and also to laymen as breach of promise of marriage. 12 Am J2d Breach P § 1.

breach of trust. A term susceptible of wide application, comprehending derelictions by persons in all confidential and fiduciary relationships, but applicable particularly to a violation of duty by a trustee, whether it be willful or fraudulent, occurring by negligence, or arising from mere oversight or forgetfulness. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 300.

breach of warranty. The violation of an express or implied contract of warranty.

See breach of covenant.

breachy animal. A colloquial term for a domestic animal in the habit of escaping from the place of confinement, particularly by breaking through or jumping over a fence.

bread. The staff of life, baked from flour, usually wheat flour, but may be flour from almost any food grain.

bread and cheese. Food which is not to be abhorred by any means, but which has little significance in the law beyond its use in the earlier period of English history as a morsel of execration.

bread and water. A diet constituting a special condition of imprisonment for crime. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 615.

break. To separate; to divide; to violate; a breach; a breaking.

As applied to machinery, in a limited sense, the word signifies a separation into parts or fragments as a result of stress or force. In a broader sense, it indicates a weakness, impairment, or destruction of parts, however caused. American Locomotive Co. v National Wholesale Grocery Co. 226 Mass 314, 115 NE 404.

[154]

breakage. An item of loss or damages, as breakage in transit; an inevitable loss over a period of time in some lines of business, such as hotels, restaurants, electric companies, etc. As the word is used in a bill of lading exempting the carrier for loss by breaking, it refers to the breakage of goods, wares, and merchandise, other than living animals, and does not include the breaking of a horse's leg. Coupland v Housatonic Railroad Co. 61 Conn 531, 23 A 870.

As the term is used in connection with pari-mutuel betting, it means the odd cents of all redistributions exceeding a sum equal to the next lowest multiple of five. Wise v Delaware Steeplechase & Race Assn. 28 Del Ch 532, 45 A2d 547, 165 ALR 830.

See broken.

breakdown. A cogent analysis; a deterioration in the health of a person amounting to a collapse; a machine out of condition so as to be inoperable.

See breakdown clause breakdown clause. A clause in a charter party, providing for a deduction from the hire of the vessel for delay and expense caused by accidents or eventualities named in such clause; such as deficiency of men or stores, fire, breaking down of hull, machinery, detention by accidents to cargo, etc., Dampskibs Aktieselskabet Jeannette Skinner v Munson Steamship Line (CA2 NY) 20 F2d 345; a term for a condition in the substituted automobile provision of an automobile liability policy, whereunder, in order for the provision to apply, it must appear that the vehicle described in the policy had been withdrawn from normal use because of its "breakdown". Anno: 34 ALR2d 949.

breakdown service. The maintenance of a hook-tip between a public utility furnishing electricity and a manufacturing plant for service only in the emergency which results when the power plant of the manufacturing plant fails.

breakers. Machinery employed in breaking chunks of coal to small pieces; the waves of lake or sea as they conic upon rock or shore with such force as to be broken in part into foam.

breaking. A breakage; the removal of any protection against intrusion for the purpose of effecting an unlawful entry; a substantial and forcible act within the meaning of the offense of burglary, 13 Am J2d Burgl § 8, although pushing open a door entirely closed will suffice. Anno: 23 ALR 112. What would be a breaking in burglary, it has been held, is equally a breaking by the sheriff to serve process and the right even to lift a door latch has been denied. Other cases hold that the door may be opened in the ordinary or usual manner, as by lifting the latch, turning the knob or turning a key left in the lock. See 42 Am J1st Proc § 44.

See constructive breaking; forcibly; housebreaking; jail breaking; prison breaking.

breaking a case. The informal expressions of opinion between judges prior to their formal decision of the case before them; detectives, police, and other law enforcement officers coming to the point of solving the question of who committed a particular crime.

breaking a close. A trespass upon real estate.

breaking and entry. Elements of the offense of burglary. 13 Am J2d Burgl §§ 8 et seq. Some courts take the view that the use of the conjunctive "or" in a statute eliminates the necessity for both a breaking and an entering. Others, however, take the view that the word "or" must be read as the equivalent of "and", thus requiring both a breaking and an entering to constitute burglary. Anno: 23 ALR 288, 290.

See breaking; entry.

breaking a will. Rendering a judgment against the validity of a will upon a contest thereof.

breaking bulk. The division or separation of the contents of a package or container. Lord Coke says, "if a bale or pack of merchandise be delivered to carry to one at a certain place, and he goeth away with the whole pack, this is no felony; but if he open the pack and take anything out aninio furandi, this is larceny." State v Fairclough, 29 Conn 47. The reasons given in the cases for this settled doctrine of the common law are not satisfactory nor in accord and Kelyng at page 83 of his reports observes, possibly with sly humor: "But I marvel at the case put, 13 Edw. IV, 9 (1473): That if a carrier have a tun of wine delivered to him to carry to such a place, and he never carry it, but sell it all, this is no felony, but if he draw part of it out above the value of twelvecence, this is felony. I do not see why the disposing of the whole should not be felony also." Such refinements in the offense of larceny disappear with the enactment or statutes which pro vide that conversion of the bailed property by the bailee is larceny. 32 Am J1st Larc § 32.

breaking ground. The beginning of a voyage by a vessel. See 48 Am J1st Ship § 425; the commencement of work upon a building or other structure; the act of taking a shovelful of dirt from the ground, symbolizing the commencement of work upon a building, in the construction of which, the public is interested, such as a church, a postoffice, a memorial building, a courthouse, etc.

breaking land. Plowing virgin soil. Not an improvement for the purposes of a mechanic's lien. Brown v Wyman, 56 Iowa 452, 9 NW 344.

breaking of arrestment. Same as breach of arrestment. breaking of breakable goods and machines. See breakage; breakdown; breakdown clause.

breaking out. A rash on the skin; criminal offense in breaking out of a building after entry with intent to commit a felony. 13 Am J2d Burgl. § 14.

See prison breaking; jail breaking.

breaking point. Colloquially, an emotional state; technically, the Mississippi River which marks a material line in the establishment of joint rates for carriers. Beaumont, S. L. & W. R. Co. v United States, 282 US 74, 75 L Ed 221, 51 S Ct 1.

breaking prison or jail. See prison breaking; jail breaking.

break or enter.

See breaking and entering.

breast of the court. The judgment or mind of the court. A decision in a case that has been tried and submitted to the court is in the breast or bosom of the court until it is handed down.

breathing test. Part of a physical examination sometimes sought to be required of a plaintiff in a personal injury action. 23 Am J2d Dep § 216.

[155]

breath test. A test of the alcoholic content of the breath, employed in determining intoxication or degree of intoxication of a motor vehicle driver. 7 Am J2d Auto § 259.

brebis. Sheep; flock of sheep.

bredwite. (Saxon.) An amercement, fine, or penalty.

brehon. (Irish.) A judge.

brehon law. An old system of Irish law.

brenagium. Same as brennage.

brennage. A kind of land tenure by the service of furnishing bran for the lord's hounds.

brephotrophi. (Roman law.) Caretakers of foundling asylums.

brethren. An older word for brothers, used presently in speaking of fellow members of a religious society or fraternal order.

brethwalda. An Anglo-Saxon king.

Bretts and Scotts. See Laws of the Bretts and Scotts.

breva. Same as breve.

breve. A writ; a brief.

See brief; writ.

breve de recto. A writ of right.

breve domini regis non currit. The king's writ does not run.

breve innominatum. A writ reciting the cause of action in general terms.

Breve ita dicitur, quia rem de qua agitur, et intentionem petentis, paucis verbis breviter enarrat. A writ is so called, because it states the controversy and the purpose of the plaintiff briefly in a few words.

Breve judiciale debet sequi suum originale, et ac essorium suum principale. A judicial writ ought to follow its original, and an accessory its principal.

Breve judiciale non cadit pro defectu formae. A judicial writ does not fall by reason of a defect of form.

breve nominatum. A writ which recites the cause of action of the plaintiff with particularity.

breve originale. An original writ, breve perquirere. To purchase a writ,-to purchase a writ of license of trial in the king's court by the plaintiff.

brevet. Letters patent; a term of the military meaning higher rank without higher pay, sometimes without a higher command. United States v Hunt (US) 14 Wall 550, 20 L Ed 739.

breve testatum. See the plural brevia testata.

brevia. Writs, plural of breve.

brevia adversaria. Adversary writs to recover land.

brevia amicabilia. Writs obtained by the consent of the opposing party in the action.

brevia anticipantia. Writs of prevention.

brevia de cursu. Writs of course, -writs issued as a matter of right without showing cause.

brevia formata. Writs of established form.

brevia judicialia. Judicial writs.

brevia magistralia. Writs drawn by masters in chancery.

Breviarium Alaricianum. The abridgment or breviary of Alaric,-a code of Roman law compiled under Alaric II, king of the Visigoths, published in 506 A. D.

brevia selecta. Selected writs.

Brevia, tam originalia quam judicialia, patiuntur Anglica nomina. Some original, as well as judicial writs, bear English names.

breviate. An abstract or synopsis.

brevia testata. Written memorandums or attestations introduced in feudal times to perpetuate the tenor of the conveyance and investiture, when grants by parol became subjects of dispute and uncertainty. The witnesses did not sign their names, but after they had heard it read, the clerk or scribe inserted their names as witnesses to its execution in the memorandum which was registered in the deed. See 2 Bl Comm 307.

brevis et rotulis liberandis. A writ ordering a sheriff to turn over all the paraphernalia of his office to his successor.

brew. See ale; beer; small brew.

brewer. One who follows the occupation of brewing ale or beer.

bribe. Noun: To influence official action by bribery. Verb: The payment or gift made or promised in accomplishing bribery. Randall v Evening News Asso., 97 Mich 136, 143, 56 NW 361.

See boodle; bribery.

bribery. A crime; the voluntary giving or receiving of anything of value in corrupt payment for an official act done or to be done or with the corrupt intent to influence the action of a public official or of any other person professionally concerned with the administration of public affairs, whether that public official or other person be in the legislative, executive, or judicial department of government. 12 Am J2d Brib § 2. For comparable definition by federal statute, see 18 USC § 201. The offense has been extended by state statute beyond corrupt influence upon public officials to include the corrupting of candidates for office, jurors, witnesses, voters, labor representatives, agents, even participants in sport. Glickfield v State, 203 Md 400, 101 A2d 229.

See commercial bribery; receiving a bribe; soliciting a bribe.

bribery at election. The purchase of a vote by corrupting the voter in paying him money or giving him goods or merchandise, often alcoholic beverages, to obtain his vote for a certain candidate or candidates. 26 Am J2d Elect § 377.

bribour. A thief; a robber.

[156]

brick. Building material, made from clay and shale, molded and baked in a kiln in oblong blocks, 4 inches wide, 8 inches long, and 2-1/2 inches high.

brick kiln. A plant for the manufacture of brick and tile. Windfall Mg. Co. v Patterson, 148 Ind 414, 47 NE 2.

brick mason. See mason.

bridewell. A house of correction.

bridge. A structure, formerly constructed of wood, iron, brick, or stone, but, in modern times, usually built of concrete and steel, which carries pedestrians, vehicles, or both, over a river, creek, or smaller stream of water, a bay, a lake, arm of the sea, a valley, a railroad, even a highway; false work made by a dentist and anchored to sound teeth; a connection, as in the words of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, "a bridge of ships between the United States and the United Kingdom."

bridge-masters. Officers in charge of public bridges.

bridle. An instrument of punishment for common scolds; the harness placed on the head of a horse for guiding and controlling him while he is being driven or ridden.

bridle road. A road used by riders on horseback, but not necessarily confined to that kind of traffic.

brief. A concise and brief statement of authorities in various forms suitable to the purpose of counsel or the court, but, in a case on appeal, a more formal and conventional, but nevertheless concise presentation, in printing, typewriting, or writing, as the rules of the court require or permit, of the points and questions involved, as they appear from the pleadings, brief abstracts of which are included, and the record of the case, together with the authorities relied upon, all for the assistance of the court, and the edification of opposing counsel, in arriving at a just and proper decision in the case. 5 Am J2d A & E § 684. The form of briefs on appeal is by no means uniform throughout the United States. In some jurisdictions there is appended to the brief proper an argument of counsel expounding on the legal issues and the authorities cited by him as well as those cited by the opposing counsel.

briefe de recto claus. Writ of right close; a writ which lay for the king's tenants in ancient demesne, and others of a similar nature, to try the right of their lands and tenements in the court of the lord exclusively. See 3 Bl Comm 195.

brief of title. Same as abstract of title.

brief on appeal. See brief.

briefe. (Scotch.) A writ.

briefe of richt. (Scotch.) A writ of right.

briga. Strife; contention; litigation.

brigbote. (Saxon.) A contribution for the repair of a bridge.

brine. A solution of salt; the sea.

bring about. To accomplish.

See commit.

bringing action. See action brought; commencement of an action.

bringing action to trial. Serving note of issue or taking any other step necessary and proper for the purpose of placing the case on the trial calendar and having it tried before court or jury, as the case may be.

bringing money into court. See payment into court.

bringing up. Rearing a child; referring to something by way of starting a discussion.

bris. A wreck; wreckage.

Bristol bargain. A contract by which A lends B  $\equiv$ '1000, on good security, and it is agreed that  $\equiv$ '500, together with interest, shall be paid at a time stated, and, as to the other  $\equiv$ '500, that B, in consideration thereof, shall pay to A  $\equiv$ '100 per annum for seven years.-Wharton.

British. The people of the United Kingdom, or, as the term is sometimes used, the people of the British Commonwealth of Nations; pertaining to the United Kingdom or the British Commonwealth of Nations.

British Commonwealth. See Commonwealth.

British Constitution. See British Theory of Constitutional Law.

British Commonwealth of Nations. Often called shortly, the British Commonwealth; a political aggregate comprising the United Kingdom, that is, Great Britain and Northern Ireland; the Dominions beyond the seas; and such colonies, protectorates, dependencies, or independent nations, as remain attached by political ties to Great Britain.

British Ruling Cases. A set of annotated reports of cases from the United Kingdom and countries of the British Empire.

British sovereigns. See regnal years of British sovereigns.

British Theory of Constitutional Law. The existence of an absolute power in the British Parliament, which is at once a legislative and a constitutional convention, with power so transcended that it is not to be confined within any bounds either for causes or persons. 16 Am J2d Const L § 9.

British Thermal Unit. The heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water from 62 degrees Fahrenheit to 63 degrees Fahrenheit.

Brit. Rul. Cas. An abbreviation of "British Ruling Cases. "

bro. Abbreviation for brother.

broach. To tap a keg or barrel.

broad. Spacious; liberal, tolerant; a vulgar term for woman or girl.

broadcasting. The dissemination of radio communications intended to be received by the public, directly or by the intermediary of relay stations. 47 USC § 153; a kind of wireless telephony, in the operation of which the microphone is the transmitter and the "radio set" the receiver. Dunbar v Spratt-Snyder Co. 208 Iowa 490, 226 NW 22, 63 ALR 1016; a public performance of a musical composition, even though there is no audience at the place where the music is made audible, so that it can be picked up and broadcast. 18 Am J2d Copyr § III.

Broadcasting is distinct from televising. Norman v Century Athletic Club, 193 Md 584, 69 A2d 466, 15 ALR2d 777. The communications are by sound only, but available to bring music and speech to persons who have appropriate receivers.

broad construction. An interpretation which, brushing aside minor objections and trivial technicalities, effectuates the intent of the statute or other writing involved. Re Senate Resolution No. 2, 94 Colo 101, 31 P2d 325.

[157]

See liberal construction.

broad evidence rule. A term peculiar to the law of insurance, under which the trier of facts may consider any evidence logically tending to the formation of a correct estimate of the value of the insured property at the time of loss. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1545.

broad-halfpenny. Same as bord-halfpenny.

broadside objection. An objection to evidence on the general grounds of incompetency, immateriality, and irrelevancy, without specifying the grounds particularly. 23 Am J2d Dep § 136.

brocage. Brokerage.

brocard. A legal maxim.

brocarius. A broker.

brocator. A broker.

brocella. A copse; a thicket.

brode-halfpenny. Same as bord-halfpenny.

broken. Separated forcibly into parts; fractured; shattered; ruptured; as broken reeds; a broken limb; broken skin; broken waves.

See breakage.

broken financially. See bankrupt.

broken stowage. Room on shipboard for more cargo; space for cargo other than the hold.

broker. A person whose business is to bring buyer and seller together. Moore v Turner, 137 W Va 299 71 SE2d 342, 32 ALR2d 713. More precisely defined as an agent who, for a commission or brokerage fee, bargains or carries on negotiations in behalf of his principal as an intermediary between the latter and third persons in transacting business relative to the acquisition of contractual rights, or to the sale or purchase of any form of property, real or personal, the custody of which is not entrusted to him for the purpose of discharging his agency. 12 Am J2d Brok § 1. Other definitions differentiate between real estate broker and stockbroker.

See bill and note broker; exchange broker; grain broker; insurance broker; investment broker; marriage brokerage; pawnbroker; ship broker; stockbroker.

brokerage. The business of a broker; the compensation or commission of a broker. Little Rock v Barton, 33 Ark 436, 447. The very essence of a brokerage commission is its dependence upon success, and its independence of the amount of work done by the broker. It is earned if the broker, without devoting much or any time to finding a customer, succeeds in procuring one. No commission is earned if a broker is not successful, and he is not entitled to any compensation, no matter how much time he has spent in finding a customer, if no customer is found. Cadigan v Crabtree, 179 Mass 474, 61 NE 37.

brokerage contract. A contract of agency whereby the broker is employed to make contracts of the kind agreed upon in the name and on behalf of his principal and for which he is paid an agreed commission. Nolen's Adm. v Robinson, 213 Ky 752, 755, 281 SW 1034.

brokers' blanket bond. A fidelity bond protecting a broker against loss through the fraud or dishonesty of employees. Anno: 74 ALR 284.

broker's lien. The lien of a broker upon the proceeds of a sale made by him, or upon property purchased by him, for a customer, for his commissions or for an advance made by him to complete the purchase. 12 Am J2d Brok § 241.

See custom broker's lien; insurance broker's lien; real estate broker's lien.

bronchitis. As the word appears in an application for life insurance, it means chronic disease which will not readily yield to treatment, not an acute attack followed quickly by complete recovery. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 747.

bronze. An alloy of copper and tin.

Bros. Abbreviation for brothers. Anno: 42 ALR2d 564.

brossus. Wounded or bruised, brothel. A bawdyhouse; a house of prostitution; a house of ill fame, kept for the resort and convenience of lewd people of both sexes.

brothel house. Same as brothel.

brother. A male related collaterally to one by common parentage, that is, a person having the same parent or parents as another; one who may take as heir or next of kin, where a direct heir is wanting. 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 58.

brother-in-law. The brother of one's spouse or the husband of one's sister; sometimes, the husband of a wife's sister or the husband of a husband's sister, but this is not common usage throughout the United States.

brothers and sisters. In most, although not all, statutes of descent "brothers and sisters" include brothers and sisters of the half, as well as the full, blood. 23 Am J2d Dese & D § 58. In a number of cases, the courts, in construing the will to arrive at the testator's intention, have held that a gift to brothers and sisters, in the absence of any indication of intent to the contrary, included brothers and sisters of the half blood. Anno: 49 ALR2d 1373.

See brothers; sisters.

Brougham's Act. See Lord Brougham's Act.

brought. Fetched; carried; produced.

See action brought.

bruarium. A place where heath grows.

brudhote. Same as brigbote.

brugbote. Same as brigbote.

bruillus. A thicket or copse.

bruise. An injury on the surface with effect confined to discoloration of the skin and pain no deeper or little deeper than the skin; an injury, which, in contrast with a wound, includes no breaking or cutting of the skin. Montgomery v Lansing City Electric Co. 103 Mich 46, 61 NW 543.

brukbarn. (Swedish.) A legitimized child conceived in rape.

brush. Noun: A thicket. Verb: To smooth; to clear the dust from an article, especially an article of clothing.

brush discharge. A charge of electricity, also called a "disruptive discharge" which is sometimes thrown off by uninsulated wires in sufficient force to cause the death of a person in close proximity thereto, without his actual contact with the wire. The fact is well known to electricians and those familiar with this generally unknown, powerful, and destructive agency. Hoppe v Winona, 113 Minn 252, 129 NW 577.

[158]

brutum fulmen. Empty or harmless thunder.

"That the national will, thus declared, may not be a mere brutum fulmen, the last section of the amendment (the Fourteenth) invests Congress with power to enforce it by appropriate legislation." See Civil Rights Cases, 109 US 3, 11, 27 L Ed 835, 839, 3 S Ct 18.

b. s. Abbreviation for balance sheet, also for bill of sale, bags, and bales.

B. S. Abbreviation for the degree Bachelor of Science; a basic substance known by these initials, consisting of the impurities in crude oil, which accumulates in the bottom of storage tanks and which it becomes necessary at times to remove. Crude Oil Contracting Co. v Insurance Co. of North America (CA 10 Okla) 118 F2d 476.

B. S. Ed. Abbreviation for Bachelor of Science in Education.

Bs/L. Abbreviation for bills of lading.

B. Th. Abbreviation for Bachelor of Theology.

B. T. U. Abbreviation for British Thermal Unit.

bubble. A dishonest investment or speculation scheme projected by dishonest persons to defraud the investors.

Bubble Act. An English statute passed to prevent corporate frauds such as the South Sea Bubble.

See South Sea Bubble.

An early English statute which provided that any company formed without authority of Parliament and asserting powers and privileges not possessed by individuals or partnerships should be deemed a public nuisance. 6 Geo I Ch 18.

bubonic plague. A disease, accompanied by intermittent chills and fever, which easily becomes of epidemic proportions and in fear of which sanitary regulations are imposed. 13 Am J2d Bldgs § 29.

Buck Act. A statute which relieves an instrumentality of the United States from taxation by a state. Maynard & Child v Shearer (Ky) 290 SW2d 790.

bucketing. Running a bucket shop.

See bucket shop.

bucket shop. An establishment conducted ostensibly for conducting, as brokers, transactions in securities listed on a stock, produce, or grain exchange, but really for the registration of bets or wagers, usually for small amounts, on the rise or fall of the prices of stocks, grain, oil, etc.; there being no transfer or delivery of the stocks or commodities nominally dealt in. Western Union Tel. Co. v State, 165 Ind 492, 76 NE 100.

Buck's extension. A surgical term meaning some uniform continuous force or pull applied to the leg or foot below the break to overcome the natural contraction of the muscles of the thigh, which have a strong tendency to pull the broken ends together and cause them to slip by each other and overlap, especially when the break is oblique in its course across the bone. Sweet v Douge, 145 Wash 142, 259 P 25.

buckstall. A net used to trap deer.

buddy. A term employed by coal miners to designate a miner who is working with a fellow miner. Continental Coal Corp. v York's Adm. 159 Ky 334, 335 The term is also applied by a railroad section hand to the one who works with him, and by a soldier to a comrade with whom he is particularly friendly and closely associated.

budge of court. Same as bouche of court.

budget. A plan officially laid out showing how much money will be required to meet the various departments of the national government, a state, county, city or other government for the year ensuing.

Budget Bureau. A bureau, headed by a Director, to assist the President in planning the budget to be submitted to Congress.

budget planning. The preparation of a budget for the national government, a state, a county, a town, a city, or other municipality; a part of the functions of personal debt adjusting. 15 Am Jur 2d Collect § 2.

Buenos Aires Convention. A copyright treaty to which the United States became a party. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 76.

buffer. A polisher of metal or wood; a stiff brush for polishing metal or wood; shock absorbers, called dead woods, in use at one time on railroad freight cars to take up and arrest the force of the blow resulting from the coupling of cars, but eliminated apparently as a safety measure, since they rendered the job of coupling dangerous, resulting in many injuries to the hands and fingers of brakemen. Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. v Boland, 96 Ala 626, It So 667.

buffet. Verb: To belabor with blows. Noun: Blows, sometimes figuratively, as the buffets of fate.

buffet. Refreshment or even a meal at which the guests, whether social or business, serve themselves from a table or counter.

bug. An insect that crawls; a slang term for a defect in a machine, also for a sending device in telegraphy which makes use of a movable, horizontal bar instead of the conventional Morse key. Verb: A slang term for torment, irritate, or worry.

buggery. Another term for the criminal offense of sodomy, also including the offense of bestiality. Ausman v Veal, 10 Ind 355.

See bestiality; sodomy.

buggy. A one-seated, light, four-wheeled vehicle, drawn by one or two horses, now, a relic of past generations; a small carriage for a baby, usually one to be pushed rather than pulled.

build. To construct something, literally, as erecting an office building, or, symbolically, as building a fortune or building respect.

builder. The party to a building and construction contract who undertakes to perform the work required by the contract; one who builds, or whose occupation is that of building; specifically, one who controls or directs the work of construction in any capacity. In the practice of civil architecture, the builder comes between the architect who designs the work and the artisans who execute it. Wortman v Kleinschmidt, 12 Mont 316, 345, 30 P 280, 290.

builder's risk insurance. A policy of fire or other property insurance covering the interest of a contractor, as such, in a building under construction by him; a liability policy insuring a contractor against liability for damages or injuries occurring in connection with the performance of his contracts. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1349.

[159]

building. A structure designed and suitable for habitation or sheltering human beings and animals, sheltering or storing property, or for use and occupation for private and public business, trade, or manufacture. 13 Am J2d Bldgs § 1; 13 Am J2d Burgl § 6; in the broad sense, any structure erected and fixed upon or in the soil, composed of different pieces connected together and designed for permanent use in the position in which it is so fixed, provided the purpose of use is that of habitation, trade, manufacture, religion, education, entertainment, or ornament. 20 Am J2d Cov § 194 . Still more broadly defined as any structure with walls and a roof. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 293.

In contracts, the term "building" is variable, depending for interpretation upon the purpose and context of the contract. So, an incomplete structure is a "building" within the meaning of an insurance contract. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 293; and a foundation without more is a building within the meaning of a mechanic's lien law, where the failure to complete the building was due to the owner of the premises. 36 Am J1st Mech L § 42. A wall, or even a fence, is sometimes deemed a building for the purposes of a restrictive covenant. Anno: 23 ALR2d 946.

Of course, the foundation is a part of a building. Davison v Walla Walla, 52 Wash 453, 100 P 981.

building and loan association. An organization of people entitled to equal privileges, Cooperating by established periodic and equal payments per share in the creation of a common fund which may be loaned to any member for the purpose of building on property purchased therewith or on other property on which the association obtains a lien, and sharing the profits and losses of the association according to their respective interest. 13 Am J2d B & L Assoc § 1.

Building and loan associations are not commercial banks, and, in most jurisdictions, they are not classed as either savings banks or savings institutions. In a few states, they are permitted to perform functions in the nature of banking. 13 Am J2d B & L Assoc § 3.

See savings and loan association.

building association. Same as building and loan association.

building contract. See construction contract.

building inspector. A municipal officer charged with the duty of inspecting buildings as to construction and maintenance in reference to safety and sanitation.

building is covered. A phrase in a binder or contract of temporary insurance which means that the building is covered pending the issuance of a complete policy of insurance, or the rejection of the application for insurance, as it would be by an insurance policy in the standard form. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 205.

building lease. A lease of land wherein the lessee undertakes to erect buildings on the land.

building lien. See mechanic's lien.

building lines. Otherwise known as setback lines or front lines; lines established by statute or ordinance in the interest of public health, public safety, and aesthetics, and sometimes designated by restrictive covenants, which, for the purpose of providing an open space between the buildings on a street and the street, prohibit the building of any structure between the line as established or designated and the street. 13 Am J2d Bldgs § 14; 20 Am J2d Cov § 237; 58 Am J1st Zon § 51.

See back lines; side lines.

building loan agreement. An agreement for a loan to be used in making payments to a contractor engaged in the construction of a building or other structure for the borrower, or to materialmen who furnish supplies for the construction of a building or other structure for the borrower, the arrangement normally providing for the security of the lender, in the form of a mortgage on the property under improvement, which covers both present advances and advances to be made in the future during the course of the work and its completion by the contractor.

building loan mortgage. A mortgage on premises under improvement or to be improved, covering advances made or to be made to or on behalf of the borrower for payment of contractor or materialmen rendering services or furnishing materials in the construction of a building or other structure for the borrower.

building material. Material used in the construction of a building or other structure. In order to be lienable under the mechanics' lien law, the material must be such, both as to quantity and quality, and of a kind, that would induce a careful, prudent, and skilful man, acquainted with the building or other structure, to believe that it could be used in its erection, unless the material is furnished upon the order of the owner of the property under improvement, since he, of course, may pledge his own property for any kind of material. 36 Am J1st Mech L § 60.

building permit. A permit for the construction of a building granted by a municipal officer or board, which is required by statute or municipal ordinance of any person who proposes to erect a building within the limits of a municipality. 13 Am J2d Bldgs § 8.

building regulation. A restriction or regulation upon the manner in which a property owner may use his property in respect of constructing a building or other structure thereon. 13 Am 32d Bldgs § 2. Such a regulation or restriction is created by statute or municipal regulation under the police power and also by contractual stipulations in the form of restrictive covenants.

See planning; restrictive covenants; zoning.

building site. A lot or tract of land suitable for the erection of a dwelling house or other building; the term, at least in reference to a lot in a city, means the whole of the lot, not just the part upon which the structure is to rest.

building society. Synonymous with building and loan association and used principally in England.

building standard. A standard prescribed by law as one to be followed in the construction of a building, particularly in reference to features involving health and safety.

building-type restriction. See type restriction.

built-up district. A zoning term which refers to an area having few, if any, vacant lots. 58 Am J1st Zon § 36.

bulk. The main mass of the body; the largest or principal portion; the majority, as the bulk of a debt. When we speak of the bulk of anything, the other two words are an appositional genitive of the word bulk and mean the same thing. For example,

[160]

"the bulk of the goods sold," means the goods themselves. F. A. D. Andrea, Inc. v Dodge (CA3 Pa) 15 F2d 1003.

See breaking bulk; laden in bulk; open bulk.

bulkhead. A partition in the hold of a ship, airplane, or freight car, separating the cargo space, and in some instances, cargo space from passenger space.

bulk mortgage. Literally, a chattel mortgage on property in bulk, that is, articles, goods, or merchandise in a job lot, not counted, measured, or listed by specific articles, but described merely in the terms of the building or container which holds the property; in legal significance, a chattel mortgage on stock of goods or merchandise in a store, shop, or other place of business. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 76. In many jurisdictions, a chattel mortgage on a stock of goods is void where the mortgagor retains possession with the power to sell the property. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 130.

bulk sale. Literally, any sale of articles, goods, or merchandise in a job lot, without count or measure, but, in legal significance, the sale of all or any portion of a stock of merchandise other than in the ordinary course of trade. 37 Am J2d Fed Conv § 238.

Bulk Sales Acts. Statutes intended for the protection of creditors of merchants, providing that the sale of all or any portion of a stock of merchandise otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade shall be fraudulent and void against creditors of the seller, unless the seller delivers to the purchaser a list of his creditors and the purchaser in turn notifies such creditors of the proposed sale a stipulated time in advance. Under some statutes, the seller is required to furnish the purchaser with an inventory of the goods in the stock. 37 Am J2d Fed Conv § 238.

bulk sales station. A place wherein gasoline and oil is stored pending distribution to retail dealers. Louisiana Oil Co. v Renno, 173 Miss 609, 157 So 705, 98 ALR 1296.

bulky property. Personal property of such a bulky or cumbersome nature that seizure and removal thereof under a levy of an attachment will be attended with great expense OF difficulty. 6 Am J2d Attach § 298.

bull. A male bovine, also the male of certain other large animals, such as elephants, walrus, and whale; a papal edict; a sealed proclamation or mandate of either the pope or the bishop of Rome.

bullae. Seals used by the Roman emperors.

bulldozer. A self-propelled heavy vehicle with blade used for pushing dirt or debris; for some purposes, a motor vehicle. Anno: 77 ALR2d 946.

bullet. The shot or lethal part of the discharge of a pistol, rifle, or even heavier arm; the shot and the propellant of powder encased in a cartridge.

bulletin. A published official report of a matter or fact of public interest; sometimes a short statement from a private source concerning an occurrence of public interest.

bulletin des lois. (French.) The official notice of a law or decree.

bullheaded. Very stubborn, not inclined to listen to argument or reason.

bullion. Uncoined gold or silver.

bullio salis. A salt measure of twelve gallons.

bull pen. A name given at some of the state penitentiaries to that part of the prison where prisoners are kept in close confinement. State v Kelley, 118 Or 397, 247 P 146. The name is also given facetiously to the common room in a men's dormitory, the student room in a law school, and other various places where men gather socially.

bulter. Bran.

bum-bailiff. A bailiff's deputy.

Bumboat Act. An English statute passed in 1761 for the suppression of harbor thieves.

bummaree bond. Same as bottomry bond.

bunching. An accumulation of freight cars due to the carrier's fault and operating to relieve a shipper from liability for demurrage. 13 Am J2d Car § 487.

bunco. A swindle or fraud.

bunda. A boundary.

bundae et metae et rationabiles divisae. Metes and bounds and rational limits.

bundle. Noun: A pack of articles, usually tied with string or cord. Verb: To make a pack of articles. The word has another meaning in the peculiar sense of a courting couple being in bed together without undressing, thus accomplishing rest, sleep, or no more than pleasant companionship, without a blemish upon virtue, especially where the mother of the female has guarded virtue by good, solid stitches in her clothing. This is doubtless the practice referred to in Sengar v Slingerland (NY) 2 Cames 219, where the court says: "We lay out of view the custom which it is agreed prevails in that part of the country, for young people, who are courting, to sleep together."

bungalow. A residential structure, usually consisting of not more than one and a half stores.

bungalow court. A motel.

bunk car. A railroad car, often an old passenger or Pullman car, placed on a siding, and used by railroad employees who work in gangs for lodging and sometimes for boarding. 35 Am J1st M & S § 440.

buoy. A navigation marker which floats, indicating the channel to be followed and warning of shoals or rocks; a float which is an aid to one learning to swim and also a life preserver for one who is not a swimmer for want of learning to swim or from temporary disablement.

bur. A dental instrument. Anno: 83 ALR2d 163; a pest among plants, the cocklebur.

burden. A weight to be carried literally; or figuratively, as a burden of sorrow or sin.

burdened vessel. Of two vessels approaching each other the "burdened vessel" is the one which is required by the rules of navigation to keep out of the way of the other vessel. The Knoxville City (CA 9 Cal) 112 F2d 223.

burden of evidence. The duty of a party to proceed with evidence at the beginning, or at any subsequent stage, of the trial, in order to make or meet a prima facie case. 29 Am J2d Ev § 123.

This duty, otherwise, and perhaps more appropriately, called the burden of producing evidence, may arise at different stages of the trial, even be borne successfully once, only to arise again at a later stage, thereby being distinguished from the "burden of proof, which is one to be carried during the entire trial, that is, ultimately.

[161]

The term "burden of evidence" has been defined as meaning the burden of "getting by" the judge to the jury, by making a prima facie showing as to each factual ingredient necessary to establish a prima facie case. Having done this, a plaintiff has discharged his burden of evidence, and the burden shifts to the defendant to produce, if he desires, competent controverting evidence, which, if believed, will offset the plaintiff's prima facie case. If the defendant has thus met the burden of evidence and made a prima facie defense the burden thereupon swings back to the plaintiff to bring forward evidence in rebuttal, and so on. McCloskey v Koplak, 329 Mo 527, 46 SW2d 557, 92 ALR 641.

See burden of proof.

burden of going forward with evidence. See burden of evidence.

burden of persuasion. The burden of convincing the jury or the court as the trier of the issue or issues of fact; the ultimate burden of proof.

See burden of proof.

burden of producing evidence. See burden of evidence.

burden of proof. The duty of establishing ultimately in the trial the truth of a given proposition or issue by such a quantum of evidence as the law demands in the case in which the issue arises. 29 Am J2d Ev § 123.

See burden of evidence.

burden on interstate commerce. Interference with interstate commerce.

See interstate commerce.

bureau. A department of a municipal or state government; in the federal government, usually a department within a department, a subdivision of a department.

Note that many particular bureaus are to be found herein under the specific designating term, such as Census Bureau; Internal Revenue Bureau etc.

bureaucracy. A government by bureaus or departments.

Bureau of Investigation. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, popularly known as the FBI, the investigative arm of the Department of Justice, elaborately organized for the detection of crimes, particularly federal offenses; maintaining an identification division and a clearinghouse for identification data, particularly fingerprints; collaborating with state and local law-enforcement agencies; and carrying out the duty delegated to it of protecting the internal security of the United States.

burg. In origin, a fortified place on a hilltop; a borough; a slang term for municipality.

burgage-holding. A Scotch tenure under which land was held of the crown by the service of watch and ward burgage-tenement. A tenement held by burgage tenure.

burgage tenure. A form of socage tenure wherein the king or other person was lord of an ancient borough in which the tenements were held by a rent certain. See 2 Bl Comm 82.

burgator. A burglar.

burgbote. Contributions for the maintenance of town walls and their defenses.

burgenses. Inhabitants of a borough; burgesses.

burgess. An inhabitant of a borough or town; a borough magistrate; a representative of a town, borough, or university in the Parliament of Great Britain; A member of the colonial Virginia House of Burgesses, the lower house of the colonial legislature which, after the Revolution was called the House of Delegates.

burgh. A borough; slang for a municipality; the Saxon word for house.
See burg.

burgh-brech. The offense of violating the pledge given by every inhabitant of a tithing to keep the peace.

burgh-English. Same as borough-English.

burgh-Engloys. Same as borough-English.

burgh-halfpenny. Same as bord-halfpenny.

burglar. One guilty of the offense of burglary.
See burglary.

burglar alarm. See alarm system.

burglariously. With intent to commit burglary. 13 Am J2d Burgl § 69.

burglarized. The condition of premises upon which the offense of burglary has been committed. Having committed burglary upon certain premises. State v Mares, 61 NM 46, 294 P2d 287.

burglars' tools. Tools or implements of such design and construction as to be adaptable for use in cutting through, or breaking open any building, room, vault safe or other depository. 13 Am J2d Burgl § 74.
See possession of burglars' tools.

burglary. A compound of the Saxon word "burgh, a house, and "laron," theft, meaning, at common law, the breaking and entering, in the nighttime, of the dwelling of another with intent to commit a felony therein. Clum v New Amsterdam Casualty Co. 281 Pa 464, 126 A 810; 36 ALR 1122.

The offense of burglary has been materially broadened by statute to include the acts of breaking and entering structures other than a dwelling. 13 Am J2d Burgl §§ 3 et seq. retaining, however the element of intent to commit a felony.

See second degree burglary.

burgle. An ancient word meaning to burglarize; to commit burglary. Wulward of Wadebridge was burgled. Rex v Hay, Selden Soc Select Pleas of the Crown Vol 1 p 5.

burgmote. A court of a borough.

burgomaster. The chief magistrate of a German or Dutch town.

burgwharl. A burgess; a citizen.

burh. Same as burgh.

burial. Disposition of dead body by interment.
See interference with burial; right of burial.

burial at sea. Interment at sea under exigency or at direction of person having right of burial. 22 Am J2d Dead B § 13.

burial expenses. See funeral expenses.

[162]

burial ground. See cemetery.

burial insurance. A contract for the payment of burial or funeral expenses at the death of the holder, usually an older person of limited, financial means. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 8. In its ordinary form, it is a contract issued by an association whose declared object is to secure, or make certain, by a system of mutual contribution, to each member of the association, at death, the specific benefit of a specified sum of money for application to his burial service. State v Willett, 171 Ind 296, 303, 86 NE 68.

burial lot. A place of burial. A lot in a cemetery, the purchaser of which acquires a right of burial therein. 14 Am J2d Cem § 25.

burial place. See burial; burial lot; cemetery.

buried in price. Absorbed in the purchase price, for example a sales tax included in the general purchase price. 46 Am J1st Sales § 184.

burke. To murder by smothering; to murder for the purpose of selling the corpse for purposes of dissection.

burkism. The crime of committing murder by smothering the victim; the crime of killing a person for the purpose of selling his corpse for dissection.

burlaw. An old Scotch system of the appointment of judges by neighbors.

burlaw courts. Scotch courts in which the judges were appointed by neighbors.

burlaw-men. The judges in burlaw courts.

burlesque. Descriptive of two very different kinds of shows:-(1) a series of unrelated episodes and dances making up a show that is completely sex-centered; and (2) a type of show characterized by broad humor and slapstick comedy and consisting of songs, ballet dancing, and caricatures of well known actors and plays. Adams Theater Co. v Keenan, 12 NJ 267, 96 A2d 519. A parody of a literary or dramatic work, usually presented as a comedy. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 105.

burn. Verb: To consume something by fire. For the purposes of the law of arson, it is usually deemed synonymous with "set fire to," both expressions meaning that there must be some actual consumption by fire. 5 Am J2d Arson § 8. Noun: A mark made by burning or branding; a little stream; slang for death by electrocution.

burned and unburned clause. See adjustment clause.

burned out of sight. Completely destroyed or reduced to ashes.

Burnel. See Acton Burnel.

burning. See burn.

burning fluid. A highly combustible liquid used in cigarette lighters and in igniting charcoal or other fuel in outdoor cookers.

burning in the hand. The practice of burning with a hot iron in the brawn of the left thumb all laymen admitted to the benefit of clergy to guard against their admission thereto a second time. The statute directed that no person once admitted should be entitled to be admitted to benefit of clergy a second time, unless he produced his credentials as a clergyman. See 4 Bl Comm 267.

burning to defraud insurer. The criminal offense of burning with intent to injure or defraud an insurer. An offense related to arson but distinct in the fact that the property destroyed is that of the accused. 5 Am J2d Arson § 2.

burro. A donkey; a game of chance popular among Filipinos. Anno: 135 ALR 126.

burrochium. A dam or a fish-trap weir.

Burr's Case. The prosecution of Aaron Burr for treason against the United States.

bursa A purse or bag.

bursar. A purser; the treasurer of a college.

bursarum scissores. Cutpurses, thieves who made a practice of cutting purses to steal the contents.

bursary. The treasury of a college.

burse. A bourse; a purse.

bury. Noun: A borough; a castle; a manor house. Verb: To cover; to place in the ground and cover with dirt; to inter a dead body.

burying alive. An ancient punishment for sodomy and also for dealing with Jews.

burying-ground. See cemetery.

bus. A self-propelled vehicle for carrying passengers in number exceeding the capacity of an ordinary automobile, most often in use as the vehicle of a common carrier transporting passengers on prescribed routes, but also in use in carrying employees, pupils of public and parochial schools, servicemen, etc. A bus is usually a motor vehicle. Northern Indiana Transit, Inc. v Burk, 228 Ind 162, 89 NE2d 905, 17 ALR2d 572. At times, called trolley busses, they are electrically propelled, receiving power through overhead electric lines.

bushel. A unit of dry measure, consisting of 4 pecks or 32 quarts and having volume of 2150.42 cubic inches.

bushelman. A tailor.

bushwhacker. A term applied to a class of persons who are not a part of any regular army, and are not answerable to any military discipline, but who are mere lawless banditti, engaged in plundering, robbery, murder, and all conceivable crimes while a war is being waged. Curry v Collins, 37 Mo 324, 329.

business. The work in which one is regularly or usually engaged, the activity in which he spends the major portion of his time, and from which he makes a living. La Belle v Hennepin County Bar Asso. 206 Minn 290, 288 NW 788, 125 ALR 1023; a commercial enterprise, conducted for monetary reward, as distinguished from a religious or charitable enterprise. Anno: 42 ALR2d 538. As used in the immigration laws, intercourse of a commercial character, not including temporary visits for the purpose of performing labor for hire. Karnuth v United States, 279 US 231, 73 L Ed 677, 49 S Ct 274. That which occupies one's time and engages his efforts in fulfilling his responsibilities; commerce and trade; an establishment where trade or commerce is conducted; commercial policy; activities in a dramatic production which round out the representation by supplementing the reading of the lines by the actors.

The term "business" means "busyness"; it implies that one is kept more or less busy, that the activity is an occupation. Generally, carrying on a business implies an occupational undertaking to which one habitually devotes time, attention, and effort, with substantial regularity. Anno: 46 ALR2d 656.

[163]

The practice of law is included within a statute granting cities authority to raise revenue by levying a license fee or tax "on any business" within the limits of the city, notwithstanding previous construction of the statute not to include the practice of law because of another statute enumerating the businesses subject to municipal license, tax, and regulation and not including in its enumeration the practice of law, and because of the repeal of another statute permitting cities to license and tax lawyers, where a subsequent amendment provides that no enumeration of municipal power shall be deemed to limit or restrict the general grant of authority. Davis v Ogden City, 117 Utah 315, 215 P2d 616, 223 P2d 412, 16 ALR2d 1208.

A restrictive covenant against the use of property for any "business purpose" is not violated by the erection of a church building. Wiggins v Young, 206 Ga 440, 57 SE2d 486, 13 ALR2d 1237.

business affected with a public interest. A phrase difficult, if not incapable, of exact definition, but most broadly defined by Mr. Justice Roberts of the United States Supreme Court, in reference to the constitutionality of statutes regulating a business, as an industry which, for adequate reason, is subject to public control. Nebbia v New York, 291 US 502, 78 L Ed 940, 54 S Ct 505, 89 ALR 1469. Otherwise defined, of the public demands that it be reasonably regulated to conserve the rights of the public. 16 Am J2d Const L § 317. As a business, which may be regulated by statute, because it has reached such proportions that the interest of the public demands that it be reasonably regulated to conserve the rights of the public; a business which, in operation, affects the health, safety, and welfare of the people, so that reasonable regulation is permissible. 16 Am J2d Const L § 317. Tyson & Bro. -United Theatre Ticket Offices v Banton 273 US 418, 71 L Ed 718, 47 S Ct 426, 58 ALR 1236.

See corporation affected with a public interest.

business agent. A representative of a labor union; an agent managing the business of his principal. Denver & R.G.R. Co. v Roller (CA9 Cal) 100 F 738.

business and closely built-up. See business section.

Business and Defense Services Administration. A federal administrative agency in the Department of Commerce.

business broker. One engaged in selling going concerns for clients, where not only the physical property, including the real estate, is sold, but personal property, such as machinery, stock in trade, and sometimes the good will of the business. 12 Am J2d Brok § 15.

business capacity. A city or other municipal corporation is said to act in its business capacity, as distinguished from its governmental capacity when it engages in the operation of a business which is distinct from the government of the city or other municipal corporation. The operation of a municipally owned gas plant is an instance. Baily v Philadelphia, 184 Pa 594, 39 A 494.

business club. See commercial club; social club.

business compulsion. Duress, clothed in modern dress, arising from business necessity or economic compulsion, as where the owner of a business to an unlawful demand out of fear of a serious loss of trade, unless he complies. 25 Am J2d Dur §§ 6, 7 .

One cannot be said to be intimidated or coerced, in the sense of unlawful compulsion, by being induced to forego business relations with A, rather than lose the benefit of more profitable relations with B. Ex parte Lyons, 27 Cal App 2d 293, 81 P2d 190.

business contract. A contract made between businessmen in the regular course of business. 17 Am J2d Contr § 287.

business corporation. The ordinary corporation, a commercial corporation; a corporation organized to engage in some business for profit; as the term is used in the Bankruptcy Act, a corporation the sole motive of which is pecuniary gain and the chief purpose of which is to carry on trade or commerce in an established field and to do this primarily for the financial benefit of those who have joined in its organization and in the conduct of its affairs. Wisconsin Coop. Milk Pool (CA7 Wis) 119 F2d 999.

When a corporation is doing the very things it was organized to do, and it is not a charitable, benevolent, or social corporation, it is a business corporation within the meaning of the state and Federal franchise tax statutes. Union Oil Associates v Johnson, 2 Cal 2d 727, 43 P2d 291, 98 ALR 1499.

Business Corporation Model Act. A statute, prepared as a model act by the National Conference of Commissioners of Uniform State Laws, which has been adopted in Alaska, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Tennessee, and Washington. Am J2d Desk Book, Document 129.

business day. A day other than Sunday. A day for the transaction of business generally. State v Duncan, 118 La 702, 43 So 283.

business district. See business section.

business enterprise. Adaptability, skill, and zeal in engaging in business; a commercial enterprise, as distinguished from a charitable enterprise.

Although an employee uses his automobile for the purpose of returning two of his employer's trailers to their station by attaching one to his automobile and loading the second trailer onto the first one, he is not engaged in a "business enterprise" within the meaning of a clause in an automobile liability insurance policy exempting from coverage the towing of a trailer used to transport goods or materials "in any business enterprise," where the employee engages in the undertaking on a trip made on his day off solely for his own pleasure and he acts of his own volition without authorization by the employer, neither expecting nor receiving any compensation therefor. Lintern v Zentz, 327 Mich 595, 42 NW2d 753, 18 ALR2d 713.

business entries. See book of original entry; shop book rule.

business entry statute. A federal statute governing the admissibility of business entries in evidence. 28 USC § 1732.
See Business Records Act.

business expense. As a deduction in income tax return, any of the various expenses incurred in carrying on a trade or business, provided it is both ordinary and necessary in relation to the trade or business. IRC § 162(a).

business guest. Same as business visitor.

business hours. That period or portion of the day during which the business of the community generally is ordinarily transacted. Casalduc v Diaz (CA 1 Puerto Rico) 117 172d 915.

[164]

See banking hours; usual business hours.

business indemnity insurance. See business interruption insurance.

business insurance. Life insurance through which a corporation or firm protects itself from the loss of human assets by taking out policies on the lives of the officers and key men in management and production.

business interruption insurance. Insurance protecting against loss from the interruption of business as a whole, as distinguished from coverage upon the merchandise or other property owned, held, or used in the business. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1366.

business invitee. See business visitor.

business league. An association or club of businessmen; a commercial club organized for purposes similar to those of a chamber of commerce. Northwestern Municipal Assn. v United States (CA8 Minn) 99 F2d 460.

business month. A month of thirty days, as distinguished from the calendar month.

business name. The name under which a business is operated. In the case of an individual, it may be his real name or an assumed or fictitious name. In the case of a partnership, the business name may be a combination of the names of the partners or an assumed or business name. In the case of a business corporation, the name is provided by the articles of incorporation.

See trade name. business of banking, See banking.

business or closely built-up sections. See business section.

business or commercial corporation. See business corporation.

business purpose. See business.

business records. See back of original entry; business entry statute; Business Records Act; shop-book rule.

Business Records Act. A federal statute creating an exception to the hearsay rule in respect of business records. 28 USC § 1732; Matthews v United States (CA5 Ga) 217 F2d 409, 50 ALR2d 1187; a statute, drafted by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, which has been adopted in 26 states. Am J2d Desk Book, Document 129.

business requirements. See requirements of the business.

business section. That part of a city which is occupied by places of retail business, shops, and offices, to the exclusion generally of residences and factories.

The phrase "business and closely built-up" sections has been held to apply only to sections which are both "business" and "closely built-up"; whereas the phrase "business or closely built-up" has been held to apply to closely built-up sections which are not necessarily "business". Anno: 50 ALR2d 348.

business situs. A term of application in the law of taxation of intangibles, meaning a situs in a place other than the domicil of the owner, where such owner, through an agent, manager, or the like, is conducting a business out of which credits or open accounts grow and are used as a part of the business of the agency. 51 Am J1st Tax § 469.

business time. See loss of business time.

business trust. Otherwise known as a Massachusetts trust or common-law trust. A form of business organization consisting essentially of an arrangement whereby property is conveyed to trustees, in accordance with the terms of an instrument of trust, to be held and managed for the benefit of such persons as may from time to time be the holders of transferable certificates issued by the trustees showing the shares into which the beneficial interest in the property is divided. Hecht v Malley, 265 US 144, 68 L Ed 949, 44 S Ct 462; an unincorporated business organization created by an instrument, by which property is to be held and managed by trustees for the benefit and profit of such persons as may be or may become the holders of transferable certificates evidencing the beneficial interests in the trust estate. 13 Am J2d Bus Tr § 1; a convenient method by which persons become associated for dealings in real estate, the development of tracts of land, the construction of improvements and the purchase, management and sale of properties. Morrissey v Commissioner, 296 US 344, 80 L Ed 263, 56 S Ct 289.

An organization within the meaning of the Uniform Commercial Code; an association, for the purpose of taxation under the Internal Revenue Code, where created for the transaction of business. 13 Am J2d Bus Tr § 89.

business use. The use of real property for the purpose of obtaining profit or additional income therefrom. Anno: 14 ALR2d 1428, See business.

business visitor. One who comes upon premises for the purpose of trade, commerce, or a business or commercial transaction, with one who keeps open upon the premises a store, shop, or office for the transaction of business with the public generally. 38 Am J1st Negl § 98; a person who is invited or permitted to enter or remain on land in the possession of another for a purpose directly or indirectly connected with business dealings between them. Yeager v Chapman, 233 Minn 1, 45 NW2d 776, 22 ALR2d 1260; a person who comes upon premises; not as an invited or uninvited guest, a volunteer, licensee, or employee of the occupant, or as anyone so connected with the occupant, that he must be deemed to accept the premises, dangers and all, as he finds them, but as one who has business to transact with the occupant, and upon the invitation of the occupant, express or implied. Indermaur v Dames (Eng) LR I CP 274. The status of an invitee on business premises may arise from a visit by one not on the premises for the purpose of the proprietor's business, but for the convenience of others on the premises for such purpose. Murphy v Kelly, 15 NJ 608, 105 A2d 841, 44 ALR2d 1316.

bussa. (Old English.) A ship of large size and clumsy construction.-Spelman.

bus station. See bus terminal.

bus terminal. The end of a bus line; a bus depot; a place on the line of a motor carrier where passengers may board or leave the busses and where some goods may be accepted for shipment or delivered to consignees.

but. A word, originally a conjunction, which has developed into additional use as a preposition and an adverb: yet, still, however, except, provided, merely.

[165]

butane. A gaseous hydrocarbon, which, in the liquid form, is adaptable for, and is used in, the engines of motor vehicles, as fuel, particularly truck engines.

butcher. A person who kills or slaughters animals to procure their meat. A person who buys the carcasses of animals that have been slaughtered (by a butcher) for meat, and cuts them up and retails them, without more, is neither a butcher nor engaged in the butcher business. Henback v State, 53 Ala 523; more broadly defined, in accord with modern usage, one who keeps a shop for the sale of meat, but hardly a mere clerk in the meat department of a supermarket.

butcher knife. A knife with a long blade for cutting meat; a domestic and household instrument but nevertheless a deadly weapon. 56 Am J1st Weap § 3.

butcher shop. A place for the sale of meat at retail.

but-for rule. A name which has sometimes been applied to the generally discarded rule for determining the proximate cause of an accident as being that act or omission "but for" which the accident would not have occurred. So many elements, however, may enter into the determination of what is the efficient cause, and so long a train of antecedents may come under consideration, "but for" the happening of any one of which the result complained of would not have occurred, that we may still be involved in the difficulties of selecting from the train of antecedents the one to which should attach the legal liability sought to be imposed. Causes of injury which are mere incidents of the operating cause, while in a sense factors, are so insignificant that the law cannot fasten responsibility upon one who may have set them in motion. 38 Am J1st Negli § 54.

butler. The head of the servants in a household; the man in charge of the pantry and wine cellar.
See botiler of the king.

butt. A ridge left in ploughing; an archery target; a liquid measure of one hundred and ten gallons; a barrel; the thicker end, as the butt of a log.

buttals. End boundary lines.

butte. A term used in the western part of the United States for a hill, usually a hill which is prominent because it is surrounded by a plain.

butted and bounded. Abutting and bounded; bounded.

butter. A dairy product used in cooking and as a spread for bread.
See adulterated butter.

butterfat. The fat in milk from which butter is made and by the amount of which milk is graded.

butts. See butt.

butts and bounds. Boundaries.

butty. A coal mining contractor.

buy. Verb: To purchase; to acquire a right or title to property by paying money or some other consideration for it.
Noun: A purchase.

buy and sell. A constitutional right under the guaranty of life, liberty, and property. 16 Am J2d Const L § 357.

buyer. One who makes a purchase.

See able buyer; ready, able, and willing buyer; purchaser; vendee.

buyer's option. Literally, any option which a purchaser may be entitled to under the contract of purchase; technically, the right of the buyer of securities on margin to pay or tender the amount owing to the broker and receive the securities. 12 Am J2d Brok § 133.

buyer's risk. In sales, the risk follows the title and if the title to the goods vests in the buyer at the moment of the sale or upon delivery to the carrier, then the risk of loss or damage to the goods during transportation is upon the buyer. 46 Am J1st Sales § 279.

See caveat emptor; resale at purchaser's risk.

buy in. To become a partner in a firm by purchasing an interest.

See bid in.

buying and selling dormant titles. A particular form of maintenance which was prohibited by an English statute in 1541. In some jurisdictions such transactions are prohibited by the common law. In others, statutes forbid the transfer to a stranger of the title to land in adverse possession of another. 14 Am J2d Champ § 11.

buying long. A stock market term for one who is a purchaser rather than a seller of stocks. The term is redundant, since every buyer becomes long, at least for the moment.

See long.

buying of pleas. An inept term for purchase of a chose in action, a form of maintenance at common law. 14 Am J2d Champ § 10.

buying titles. See buying and selling dormant titles; bracer.

by. At or near a designated place; at the hand of; through the means, act, or instrumentality of. Thus, "an injury by accident" is synonymous with "an injury caused by accident." Carroll v Industrial Com. 69 Colo 473, 195 P 1097; 19 ALR 107, 109. Executing a bill, note, or contract in the name of the principal, followed by that of the agent, separated by the word "by," is a method of executing an agency so as to impose liability upon the principal and, conversely, no personal liability upon the agent. 3 Am J2d Agency § 190; 11 Am J2d B & N § 559.

In designating a terminal point of time, the word is variously construed as meaning "as soon as," "as early as" "before," "on or before," or "not later than," but in some cases as exclusive of the day named. 52 Am J1st Time § 29.

by a moiety and not by all. A phrase descriptive of the nature of possession of tenant in common. 20 Am J2d Coten § 26.

by-bidder. See by-bidding.

by-bidding. The making of sham or fictitious bids at an auction sale for the purpose of inflating the ultimate and highest bid. Osborn v Apperson Lodge, 213 Ky 533, 281 SW 500, 46 ALR 117, 121.

See puffing.

by bill. By original bill. Some suits were commenced by original bill, others by original writ.

by bill without writ. Same as by bill.

by color of office. See colore officii.

by due course of law. An open court and an available remedy under the law for all injuries or wrongs. 16 Am J2d Const L § 384.

by due process of law. According to the settled course of judicial proceedings or in accordance with natural, inherent, and fundamental principles of justice, enforceable in the usual modes established in the administration of government with respect to kindred matters. 16 Am J2d Const L § 546.

See due process of law.

bye. See by the bye.

by estimation. An expression used in conveyancing, signifying "more or less."

by God and my country. The most formal answer of a defendant upon arraignment in reply to a question as to how he will be tried.

by her own labor. The avails of manual labor and the proceeds of a business conducted through agents. 27 Am J1st H & W § 466.

by inch of candle. See auction by inch of candle; sale by the candle.

by law. In accord with law, whether the common law, a constitution, or a statute or ordinance which is constitutional.

by-laws. Rules and regulations adopted for their government by corporations, unincorporated associations, business trusts, fraternal orders and benefit societies, and benevolent associations, clubs, and societies, which, if not in violation of statute or the charter of the body, must be applied within the body in determining the manner of conduct of the business and the rights and liabilities of members.

See municipal by-law.

by my estate. A common phrase in a direction for the payment of estate tax, having reference to the general estate or residuary estate. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 515.

by operation of law. See operation of law.

by-pass. Noun: A way that misses or avoids something in or along a highway, applied most frequently at the present to alternate ways which miss the congested part of cities. Verb: To detour; to avoid.

by-product. A secondary or additional product of value; something produced in the course of an industry in addition to the principal product. It is well known that packing houses, oil refineries, and some other kinds of manufactories, make byproducts amounting in value to a material part of their gross income. The right so to do is a private property right which should be encouraged rather than prohibited. Bishop v Tulsa, 21 Okla Crim 457, 209 P 228, 27 ALR 1008, 1012.

by-product material. Radioactive material, with the exception of special nuclear material, yielded in or made radioactive by exposure to radiation incident to the process or producing or utilizing special nuclear material. 42 USC § 2014(e).

by reason of. By virtue of. See United States v William Cramp & Sons Ship & E. Bldg. Co. 206 US 118, 511, Ed 983, 27 S Ct 676.

See proximate cause.

byrlaw. Same as burlaw.

by-road. A public road, but not heavily traveled; a road out of the main stream of traffic. Wood v Hurd, 34 NJ L 87 89.

bystander. A person who stands near; a person who has no concern with the business which is being transacted. State v Jones, 102 Mo 305, 307. A person present in court but not participating in or connected with the proceedings. A witness, being a participant in the proceedings, is not a bystander. McConnell v McCord, 170 Ark 839, 840, 281 SW 384, A person close by when an accident occurs.

See talesmen.

by the acre. See sale by the acre.

by the bye. Declaring against a defendant without the issuance of process to secure his appearance. This was permitted when the defendant was already before the court as defendant in some other action.

by the candle. See sale by the candle.

by the law of the land. By due process of law; by a law that gives a man an opportunity to be heard, before depriving him of his life, liberty, or property; by a law which hears before it condemns; which proceeds upon inquiry, and renders judgment only after trial.

See by due course of law; by due process of law.

by the moiety or half and by the whole. A phrase descriptive of the nature of possession of joint tenant. 20 Am J2d Coten § 7.

by the shore. A phrase in the description of a boundary, meaning to low-water mark. Stevens v King, 76 Me 197.

by various courses. The expression is sometimes employed in descriptions of land bounded by a stream or river, as "extending down Potomack river by various courses 3152 po.," and implies that the grant described follows the line of the stream. Such meaning is held not to be changed by the words "including several small creeks or inlets." Marine Railway & Coal Co. v United States, 257 US 47, 63, 66 L Ed 124, 130, 42 S Ct 32.

by virtue of. The term means literally by force of, or by authority of; but it is not too great a stretch to make it equivalent to "by reason of." The two expressions were regarded as equivalents in a certain connection in United States v Wm. Cramp & Sons Co. 206 US 118, 51 L Ed 983, 27 S Ct 676. Phillips v Houston Nat. Bank (CA5 Tex) 108 F2d 934.

by warrant of law. See warrant of law.

Byzantine Code. See Basilica.

C

C. Roman numeral for 100.

At one time, the letter "C" was branded on the forehead as a punishment for counterfeiting, in Rhode Island.

c. Abbreviation for cent or cents; capacity; centimeter; century; chapter; chancellor; cubic; hundredweight; and, in rare instances, court; a symbol for "copyright," in a notice of copyright, where inclosed within a circle, thus © . 18 Am J2d Copyr § 58; a brand mark placed upon chattels belonging to the United States, previously branded US, where they are offered for sale, which is usually after they have been inspected and condemned for government use. 46 Am J1st Sales § 311.

C. An abbreviation, infrequently used, for Corps; Court; or Chancellor.

ca. An abbreviation of the Latin word "circa," meaning "about." It is often used with dates, as circa 1492, or ca. 1492.

C.A. Abbreviation for Court of Appeals.

C/A. Abbreviation for current account.

CAA. Abbreviation for Civil Aeronautics Authority.

cab. See taxicab.

cabal. A junto; a small political faction.

caballeria. A Mexican term for the measure of a tract containing 105.75 acres. Ainsa v United States, 161 US 219, 40 L Ed 677, 16 S Ct 544.

caballero. Gentleman.

cabaret. A restaurant wherein alcoholic beverages are served; a restaurant with instrumental music and singing.

cabinet. A body of officials forming all advisory council, the most illustrious of which is the Cabinet of the President of the United States, consisting of the heads of the Departments of Government.

cabinet council. A council of cabinet members held privately to consider public matters.

cable. Noun: A heavy rope, often made of wire; an underground or underseas bundle of wires in insulation used for the transmission of messages by telegraph or telephone. Verb: To send a message by underseas cable.

Cable Act. A federal statute of Sept. 22, 1922, repealing the rule by which the naturalization of a female was effected by her marriage to a citizen.

telegram. A message transmitted by underseas cable.

cable system. A system of operating street railway cars by means of an underground cable set in motion by a stationary engine at the power house of the system. Hooper v Baltimore City Passenger Railway Co. 85 Md 509, 37 A 359.

cable transfer of exchange. An arrangement whereby the person contracting to deliver exchange contracts that he will make available by cable to the person contracting to take such exchange, a credit of the amount specified, at the point specified, and at the time specified. In such an agreement there is no guaranty or necessary implication that the contractor has any credit which he is selling, or agreeing to sell, or that he will place the credit through a third party as correspondent. Equitable Trust Co. v Keene, 232 NY 290, 133 N E 894, 19 ALR 1137, 1139.

cablish. Brushwood; wood or brush blown down by the wind.

caboose car. A car which is coupled at the rear end of a freight train and which is intended primarily for the accommodation of the men connected with the train. Shoemaker v Kingsbury (US) 12 Wall 369, 20 L Ed 432. It is, however, the car in which drovers accompanying shipments of livestock are accommodated. 14 Am J2d Car § 756. Occasionally, passengers for hire are carried on freight trains, in which case, they ride in the caboose. 14 Am J2d Car § 860-cache. A place, usually in wilderness or an unfrequented region, where supplies are stored. The word implies concealment. Lane v Washington Daily News, 66 App DC 245, 85 F2d 822.

cachepolus. A catchpoll; a bailiff; a constable.

cacicazgos. Lands held in entail by the caciques in Indian villages in Spanish-America. --Bouvier's Law Dict.

cadaster. Same as cadastre.

cadastral survey. An original survey of a large area of public lands made by the government.

cadastre. An official statement of the quantity and value of real property in any district, made for the purpose of justly apportioning the taxes payable on such property. Strother v Lucas (US) 12 Pet 410, 428 note, 9 1, Ed It 37, 1144 note.

Cadat a causa sua. He shall fail in, or lose, his case.

cadaver. A corpse.

See dead body.

cadere. To fail; to fail; to end; to abate.

cadere assisa. To be nonsuit.

cadere causa. To fail or lose it cause or case.

cadet. A youth under tuition and drill with a view to his becoming an army or navy officer.

cadi. A Turkish civil magistrate.

Cadat a causa. He loses his case.

Cadit actio. The actions fails.

Cadit warrantia. The warranty fails.

caduca. That which is inherited; also a testamentary gift which lapses and an escheat.

caducary. Relating to or subject to escheat or forfeiture of property.

caducus. Falling.

caedua. Preserved for cutting, as wood.

Caesarean operation. The delivery of a child by surgery, the term deriving from the fact or legend respecting the birth of Julius Caesar.

Caesarean section. A more professional term for Caesarean operation.

Caetera desunt. Other things are wanting or lacking.

[168]

caeteris paribus. Other things being equal.

caeteris tacentibus. The others being silent, not voting, not expressing opinions.

caeteros. See inter caeteros.

caetorum. Of the rest or residue, --a term applied to the residuum of an estate.

c. a. f. An abbreviation for "cost, freight and assurance," sometimes used in mercantile transactions, especially in England. The letters in such form have also been used in mercantile transactions as an abbreviation of "cost and freight." 46 Am J1st Sales § 136.

See cost and freight; cost, insurance, and freight.

cafe. A restaurant. 29 Am J Rev ed look § 9. As used in a Sunday law, either by way of prohibition or of exception to a prohibition, the terms cafe, restaurant and victualing house, seem to have the same meaning, and to intend an establishment where food is sold to the public for consumption on the premises. Anno: 9 ALR 428.

A cafe is not an inn. 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 9.

cahier. A memorial; a petition; a report; a section of a book.

caisson disease. Caisson disease, or "the bends," as the most prevalent and dangerous ailment of divers or men who work in a compressed-air atmosphere is known, results when a diver who has been working under great pressure is too quickly brought to the surface and normal pressures. Nitrogen in the air goes into and out of solution in the blood slowly. When pressure is too quickly reduced, this slow change causes bubbles in the blood and the attacks are frequently fatal.

calaboose. A jail.

calami diversitas vel atramenti. A difference in penmanship or ink.

calamity. A cause of general distress in the nation, a state, or a subdivision of the state, which arises from natural forces and also from adversities such as widespread unemployment. Muskegon Heights v Danigelis, 253 Mich 260, 235 NW 83, 73 ALR 696. The devastation of a country by hurricanes or earthquakes, and the desolation of its inhabitants by famine or plague, are great calamities. Jones v Williams, 121 Tex 94, 45 SW2d 130, 79 ALR 983.

calamus. A writing pen made of a reed; handwriting with a pen.

calangium. A disputed claim.

calcea. A causeway.

calceto reparando. See de calceto reparando.

calcetum. A causeway calculated. Computed; reckoned; intended. State v Wyman, 56 Mont 600, 186 P 1; fitted, adapted, or suited by design. Smallwood v Commonwealth (Ky) 40 SW 248; Gerrish v Norris, 63 Mass (9 Cush) 167, 170.

calefagium. The right to take fuel annually.

calendar. The mode of adjusting the natural divisions of time with respect to each other for the purposes of civil life. 52 Am J1st Time § 9; a tabulation of time by days and weeks in the succession of the months; a system of measuring time as in years, months and days.

See court calendar; Gregorian calendar; intercalary month; judge's calendar; Julian calendar; tax calendar.

Calendar Amendment Act. An English statute passed in 1751, adopting the Gregorian calendar.

calendar call. The reading of the trial calendar, that is, the list of cases for trial during the term or a week of the term, ordinarily on it stated day of the week, for which attorneys attend and respond, when their cases are called, to indicate whether a case is ready for trial.

calendar days. Consecutive days, including Sundays and holidays. Okanogan Indians v United States, 279 US 671, 73 L Ed 894, 49 S Ct 463, 64 ALR 1434.

calendar month. A month by the calendar, that is, a month computed, not by counting the days intervening, but by referring to the calendar for a month as it appears therein, without regard to the number of days it may contain. 11 Am J2d B & N § 291; a month according to the calendar rather than a lunar month. Simmons v Hanne, 50 Fla 267, 39 So 77.

calendar of causes. See court calendar.

calendar of prisoners. A sheriff's list of prisoners with their sentences or commitments.

calendar week. A period of seven days, usually reckoned from one Sabbath or Sunday to the next. 52 Am J1st Time § 12.

calendar year. The period from January 1st to December 31st, inclusive, of any year.

calends. The first day of the month in the Roman calendar.

calf. The offspring of a cow, so called until it has shed its two front milk teeth; a colloquial term for an awkward youth, also for a person who complains unduly.

call. A reference made in a description of real estate to a course, distance, marker, monument, or a natural object such as a tree, stream, rock, etc., by which a boundary is to be determined; stopping at a place for a social visit, or, in the case of a physician, a professional visit; a notice by an obligor that its securities are being redeemed; a notice of a meeting to be held by the stockholders or board of directors of a corporation; an assessment made upon the members of an association, club, or society; it demand on a subscriber to stock in a corporation for an additional contribution to the capital of the corporation; an option to purchase property, particularly corporate stock, securities, or commodities, at a stipulated price, on or before a specific future date or within a specified future period of time, say, 30, 60, or 90 days.

See on call; port of call.

callable bonds. See redeemable bonds.

call-board contract. A contract between members of a stock exchange representing a specified quantity of a commodity, which a seller might produce and deliver to the buyer instead of the commodity itself. Berry v Kowalsky, 95 Cal 134, 30 P 202.

called meeting. A special meeting of an organized group held upon notice.

called upon to pay. Compelled or required to pay by law. H. Koehler & Co. v Reinheimer, 20 Misc 62, 45 NYS 337.

call girl. A prostitute whose appointments are made by telephone.

[169]

calling. Business, occupation, profession, trade, or vocation.

calling the plaintiff. An old and abandoned procedure followed in a strategem by a losing plaintiff to avoid an adjudication. Blackstone has stated that before a verdict is delivered by the jury, if the plaintiff is not present or represented by counsel, it is the common-law practice for the crier to call the plaintiff, after which the plaintiff is nonsuited if he or his counsel stay away. The plaintiff adopts this course if it appears that the verdict will be against him, in order to avoid an adverse verdict which would be a bar to a renewal of the same litigation, while a nonsuit would not be such a bar. See 3 Bl Comm 376.

calling to the bar. Admitting a law Student to the privilege of practicing law before the Courts.

call of nature. The prompting of a visit to the bathroom, toilet, or lavatory.

call patent. A land patent in which the corners in the description of the land are all stakes, or all but one, or whose lines were not run out and marked at the time of the issuance of the patent. Hall v Pratt, 142 Ky 561, 563, 134 SW 900.

calls. See call.

call to arms. An ancient expression. meaning to call on a man to put on his armor and take up his weapons.

calpe. Tribute paid by a clansman to his chief for personal protection.

calumnia. A false charge; a calumny; a claim; a demand.

calumniae juramentum. The oath against calumny; an oath of good faith.

calumniare. To claim; to calumniate.

calumniators. Persons who make false accusations maliciously.

calumniatrix. A female slanderer.

calumny. Libel; slander; defamation.

"There was a word called 'calumny' in the civil law, which signified an unjust prosecution or defense of a suit, and the phrase is still said to be used in the courts of Scotland and the ecclesiastical and admiralty courts of England, though we do not find cases of the kind in the reports." See Lanning v Christy, 30 Ohio St 115, 117.

See oath of calumny.

Calvinism. The theological doctrine of the Presbyterian church, of which doctrine John Calvin was the first expounder. Its polity consists in self-government through chosen representatives, rejecting alike the rule of one man, and the rule of the extemporized and irresponsible assembly. Ramsey v Hicks, 174 Ind 428, 91 NE 344.

Calvin's Case. An action in which it was held that Calvin, though born in Scotland after the English crown descended to James the First, who was also king of Scotland, was entitled to hold land.

camara. A chamber; a vault; a treasury.

camarage. Rent paid for storage.

cambellanus. A chamberlain.

cambiator. A cambist.

cambio. An exchange; a bourse.

cambipartia. Champerty.

cambiparticeps. A person who is a party to the offense of champerty.

cambist. A dealer in negotiable paper.

cambium. (Civil law.) An exchange; an exchange of lands.

camera. Same as camara.

See in camera.

cameralistics. The science of finance.

camera regis. A harbor.

camerarius. A treasurer; a chamberlain.

camera scaccarii. The exchequer chamber.

camera stellata. The star-chamber.

camino. A highway.

camorra. An Italian secret society.

camouflage. The art of disguising or concealing the nature of objects. Palmer v Commonwealth, 240 Ky 175, 41 SW2d 936; deception, particularly by concealing ultimate purpose.

campana. A church-bell; a bell.

campana bajula. A hand-bell used by court criers.

campanile. A bell tower.

campartum. A part of a field.

Campbell's Act. An English statute giving a remedy for death by wrongful act, 9 & 10 Victoria c 93.

campers. A share, particularly a share by a champertous division.

campertum. A grain or corn field.

campfight. A duel; a battle.

camphor. See spirits of camphor.

campias in withernam. A writ to seize other goods of equal value when the plaintiff's goods have been taken out of the county.

campi-partitio. A champertous division of the land.

campus. A field; the grounds of a school, college, or university.

campus maii. May day -- a Saxon anniversary.

can. Verb: To have ability or power to accomplish. Sometimes confused with "may." As used in an oil lease for a stated number of years and as much longer as oil and gas "can" be found in paying quantities, the word has the same meaning as "is". Lowther Oil Co. v Miller-Sibley Oil Co. 53 W Va 501, 44 SE 433.

Noun: A container, especially for liquids and soft substances. A slang term for jail, also for lavatory.

Canada. The great nation, an independent nation of the British Commonwealth of Nations, on the northern boundary of the United States.

Canadian money. Legal currency in Canada. Thompson v Sloan (NY) 23 Wend 71.

The words "Canada money" in which a note is expressed to be payable may be shown to mean Canadian bank bills and not specie, by proof of a custom. Thompson v Sloan (NY) 23 Wend 71.

canal. An artificial waterway, public or private in character, which is usually, although not necessarily, used for navigation. If a canal is navigable and its situation is such as to form a continuous waterway for interstate or foreign commerce, it constitutes navigable water of the United States to which the admiralty jurisdiction of the Federal courts attaches. 13 Am J2d Can § 3.

canalized river. A natural stream which is a part of a canal or system of canals, for example the Genesee river in New York. In the language of engineers, rivers are "canalized" when dams or locks are so constructed and operated in them as to raise their water level along certain stretches by means of backwater, so as to render them, to the extent of the raising, artificial canals instead of natural waterways. United States v Cress, 243 US 316, 61 L Ed 746, 37 S Ct 380.

Canal Zone. A reservation of the United States Government on the Isthmus of Panama, under a treaty with the Republic of Panama, consisting of a strip of land which contains the Panama Canal cancel. To annul or strike out; to set aside. Otterbein v Babor & C. Co. 272 NY 149, 5 NE2d 71, 107 ALR 510. As applied to a contract, the words cancel and terminate are not synonymous, but the infinitive "to cancel" is embraced by the infinitive "to terminate." A contract cannot be cancelled without being terminated, although it may be terminated in any of several methods, one of which is by cancellation. A claim that a contract has been cancelled is an admission that it was terminated. Acme Mills v Tanner-Brice Co. (CA5 Ga) 112 F2d 910.

See cancellation.

cancellaria. Chancery. The high court of chancery, says Blackstone, has its name from the judge, the lord chancellor or cancellarius who presides there and who was so termed from cancelling the king's letters patent when granted contrary to law, which is the highest point of his jurisdiction. See 3 Bl Comm 46.

cancellarius. A chancellor.

cancellation. An erasure, blotting out, striking out, or crossing out of some portion of a written instrument. Dowling v Gilliland, 286 111 530, 122 NE 70, 3 A T,R 829; the nullification of a contract by agreement of the parties or by one of the parties under a cancellation clause contained in the contract; a remedy whereby a court of equity in exceptional cases exercises its jurisdiction to decree the surrender and cancellation of written instruments 13 Am J2d Cane Inst § 2.

See rescission.

cancellation clause. The provision in a contract for the termination thereof by one of the parties, as illustrated in contracts of insurance; a clause in a charter-party whereby the charterer reserves the right to cancel the charter-party if the ship shall fail to arrive on a specified day at a named port ready for cargo. Disney v Furness, Withy & Co. (DC Md) 78 F 810, 814.

cancellation of insurance. The rescission or nullification of a contract of insurance under statutory provisions or stipulations of the insurance contract itself, including provisions for cancellation upon notice or request; by the mutual consent or acquiescence of the parties; or because of fraud, misrepresentation, mistake, an adjudication of insolvency of the insurer, or the making of an assignment for the benefit of creditors by the insurer. Otterbein v Babor & C. Co. 272 NY 149, 5 NE2d 71, 107 ALR 1510.

cancellatura. A cancellation.

cancelled check. A check paid by the bank upon which it is drawn and delivered to the drawer with his monthly statement.

cancelli. The railing inclosing the bar of a court; cancellation marks.

candidate. A person who seeks office and who, in the case of a public office to be filled by election, has taken the steps required by the election law to have his name presented at the election so that the voters may vote for him. 25 Am J2d Elect §§

128 et seq. A person who, after having been nominated as a candidate, is presented in that capacity to the voters at an election. State v Hirsch, 125 Ind 207, 24 NE 1062. A person who seeks a nomination for public office at a primary election.

A man is a candidate for an office when he is seeking such office. It is begging the question to say that he is only a candidate after nomination, for many persons have been elected to office who were never nominated at all. Leonard v Commonwealth, 112 Pa 607, 624, 4a 220.

See independent candidate; party candidate.

Another meaning of the term "candidate" is that of a person proposed for an award or for initiation into a fraternal order.

candle. See auction by inch of candle; sale by the candle.

Candlemas Day. February second.

cane. The plant from the stalk of which juice is taken for the manufacture of sugar or molasses; the stem of a plant; (Scotch.) a tax; rent paid in produce.

canem et lupum. See inter canem et lupum.

cannabis. A narcotic drug derived from the marijuana plant. People v Yeargin, 3 Ill 2d 25, 119 NE2d 753. As defined in the Uniform Narcotic Drug Act, it includes (a) The dried flowering or fruiting tops of the pistillate plant Cannabis Sativa Linne from which the resin has not been extracted, (b) the resin extracted from such tops, and (c) every compound, manufacture, salt, derivative, mixture, or preparation of such resin, or of such tops from which the resin has not been extracted. Anno: 119 ALR 1402.

canning barge. A fishing vessel equipped for canning the catch.

cannot. A word so mandatory in a statute as to preclude a choice. Burnett v King, 33 Cal 2d 805, 205 P2d 657, 12 ALR2d 333.

canon. A law; a church officer who took revenue for conducting service.

canonic. Pertaining to a canon or church law.

canonical. Same as canonic.

canonical impediments. The personal relationships or defects which under the ecclesiastical law rendered voidable a marriage of one who possessed them. Among these impediments were consanguinity, affinity and impotence, while the so-called civil disabilities, such as want of age, idiocy, lunacy, and the like, made a marriage void ab initio. 35 Am J1st Mar § 85.

canonical purgation. An ancient proceeding wherein a defendant charged with crime was permitted to clear himself by denying the charge under oath. See 4 Bl Comm 342.

[171]

canonicate. The office of a canon.

canonicus. A canon.

canon law. A body of Roman ecclesiastical law, relative to such matters as the church of Rome either had, or pretended to have jurisdiction over. See 1 Bl Comm 82.

canon law of England. A kind of national canon law composed of legatine and provincial constitutions, and adapted only to the exigencies of the church and kingdom of England. See 1 Bl Comm 82.

canonry. The office or benefice of a canon.

canons of descent. The rules of descent; the English rules of descent during the feudal period. 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 7.

canons of inheritance. Same as canons of descent.

Canons of Judicial Ethics. A concise statement, in numbered canons of paragraphs, by the American Bar Association, of its views in reference to the principles and ethical standards which should govern the personal practice of members of the judiciary in the administration of their office, offered as a proper guide and reminder for judges, and as indicating what the people have a right to expect from them. Am J2d Desk Book, Document 67.

Canons of Professional Ethics. The rules and principles adopted by the American Bar Association for the guidance of lawyers in reference to their duties and standard of conduct in litigation and all the relations of professional life. Am J2d Desk Book, Document 91; rules and principles prescribing ethical standards for lawyers adopted by local or state bar associations.

cant. Jargon; insincerity. (Civil law.) Also called "licitation," --a mode of dividing property held in common by two or more persons; which may be avoided by the consent of all those who are interested, in the same manner that any other contract may be avoided, which is entered into by consent of the parties. Hayes v Cuny (La) 9 Mart 87, 89.

Cantaur. Latin for "Canterbury."

cantel. The excess over full measure.

canton. A hundred; district.

cantred. (Welsh.) A district; a hundred.

canum. A Scotch duty paid in produce.

canvass. Air examination. The solicitation of votes, orders for goods, etc., by going from house to house or from place of business to place of business; the tabulation prior to an election of probable votes for the Purpose of predicting the outcome of the election; the opening and examination of election returns and the compiling of a summarized statement of the several returns, showing the result of the election within the territorial unit composed of the smaller units from which the returns are made. 26 Am J2d Elect § 298. "To canvass the votes" cast at an election is an expression used in the election statutes which frequently has the same meaning as "to canvass the returns" of the election, and does not necessarily include the counting of the ballots cast at the election. People v Sausalito, 106 Cal 500, 40 P 11.

canvasser. One of a class of persons who, in a given town or city or county, go from house to house in their efforts to take orders for goods. They are not to be confused with "traveling salesmen." Price Co. v Atlanta, 105 Ga 358, 367. One who goes from house to house seeking votes, signatures on a petition, contributions, or support for a religious society.

See canvass.

canvass of election returns.

See canvass.

CAP. Abbreviation of Civil Air Patrol.

cap. See black cap.

capable. Susceptible; competent; qualified; fitting; possessing legal power or capacity. United States v Sischo (DC Wash) 262 F 1001.

capable of being used as a beverage. A term familiar in liquor legislation which includes within its scope those liquids which, although not generally considered as beverages, are yet capable of being so used, such as fruits preserved in alcohol, but not liquors which are so compounded with other substances or ingredients as to lose their character as intoxicating liquors. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 7.

capable of producing intoxication. A beverage having intoxicating quality. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 5.

capacity. Holding space, as the capacity of a ship or freight car; ability; legal competency; a person's ability to understand the nature and effect of the act in which he is engaged and the business which he is transacting. Tiger v Lozier, 124 Okla 260, 267, 256 P 727; the status in which one acts, for example, as an agent or an attorney.

See business capacity; competency; criminal capacity; legal capacity; mental capacity; representative capacity; testamentary capacity.

capacity of corporation. The capacity to act, akin to that of the capacity of a person, not the authority to perform an act. 19 Am J2d Corp § 952.

capacity of testator. See testamentary capacity.

capacity to labor. See physical inability to work.

capacity to sue or be sued. The status of a person which permits him to be a party to an action.

capax. A holder, capable.

capax doli. Capable of committing crime.

capax negotii. Capable of transacting business; capable of contracting.

cape. A judicial writ to recover land on the tenant's default.

Capehart Act. A federal Statute designed to provide urgently needed housing for military personnel on government property. 42 USC § 1594.

cape magnum. A judicial writ which lay to recover the possession of land when the tenant defaulted in a real action.

cape parvum. A judicial writ to recover the possession of the land in a real action in which the defendant had appeared.

caper. A Dutch privateer.

capias. A writ to be executed by seizing, in some instances, the property, in other instances, the person of the defendant.

capias ad audiendum judicium. A writ issued to bring a defendant found guilty of a misdemeanor before the court to receive sentence. See 4 Bl Comm 375.

[172]

capias ad computandum. A writ commanding a defendant to account, upon his refusal to do so.

capias ad respondendum. A writ directing the arrest of the defendant in a civil action and his production in court on a day certain. 5 Am J2d Arr § 52.

capias ad satisfaciendum. A writ for the arrest and imprisonment of a judgment debtor until the claim against him shall be satisfied or otherwise discharged according to law. 30 Am J2d Exec § 28.

capias in withernam. A writ which issued against the goods or beasts of a distrainer who had eloigned-unlawfully removed out of the county, or concealed -the goods or beasts which he had distrained. Thus, there was a distress against a distress by way of reprisal for the eloignment, and the goods or beasts seized under the writ could not be replevied by their owner until the original distress was forthcoming. See 3 Bl Comm 148.

capias nomine districtionis. "If an accountant failed to render his accounts, a process was issued, termed a capias nomine districtionis, against the body, goods, and lands of the accountant." Murray v Hoboken Land Co. (US) 18 How 272, 15 L Ed 372.

capias pro fine. A writ for the arrest of a person who had not paid a fine which had been imposed upon him.

capias utlagatum. A writ which issued in a civil action for the arrest of a defendant who had absconded and had been outlawed and under which he could be committed until the outlawry was reversed. The purpose of the process being to secure the appearance of the defendant, such a reversal was usually secured as a mere formality. See 3 Bl Comm 284.

capita. Heads; persons; persons regarded as individuals and not as belonging to an ancestral root or stock. See 2 Bl Comm 218. The word is the plural of "caput."

See in capita; per capita; per stirpes or per capita.

capital. In economics, money or property used for the production of wealth; used broadly, the entire assets of a corporation; ordinarily, that portion of the assets of the corporation, regardless of their source, which is utilized for the conduct of the corporate business and for the purpose of deriving therefrom gains and profits. Sohland v Baker, 15 Del Ch 431, 141 A 277, 58 ALR 693; Parkinson v State Bank, 84 Utah 278, 35 P2d 814, 94 ALR 1112; a fund so set apart and devoted to the corporate uses and the security of creditors that the law jealously guards it from the encroachment of directors in the declaration of dividends; it is in no way open to the directors to return it to the stockholders. 33 Am J1st Life Est § 405.

See floating capital; invested capital; moneyed capital; nominal capital.

capital asset. For income tax purposes, all the assets held by the taxpayer, whether or not connected with his trade or business except for certain assets listed in the statute. IRC § 1221.

capital crime. Same as capital offense.

capital expenditures. An unlawful encroachment upon the capital of a corporation by declaring a distribution or dividend of capital to stockholders; an income tax term for certain unusual expenditures, not deductible as ordinary and necessary business expenses, such as expenditures by a lessee for permanent improvements. 34 Am J2d Fed Tax ¶ 6061.

capitale. A thing which is stolen, or its value. -Blount.

Expenditures made in defense of title to property, or to remove claims of others against property, or to perfect title to property are capital expenditures and not deductible, for income tax purposes, from gross income as expenses. Addison v Commissioner (CA8) 177 F2d 521, 23 ALR2d 897.

For income tax purposes, amounts paid out for new buildings, permanent improvements, or betterments, made to increase the value of property, or an amount spent to restore property or to make good the exhaustion of the property for which a deduction is or has been made for depreciation, amortization or depletion. IRC § 263.

capital gain. For income tax purposes, a gain realized only from sale or exchange of capital assets.

A taxable gain is conditioned upon the presence of a claim of right to the alleged gain and the absence of definite obligation to repay or return that which would otherwise constitute a gain, and does not accrue from the mere receipt of property or money which one is obliged to return or repay to the rightful owner. Commissioner v Wilcox, 327 US 404, 90 L Ed 752, 66 S Ct 546, 166 ALR 884, 887.

See capital asset; gain derived from capital.

capital improvement. An expense to be charged against principal, not income, of a trust. NY EPTL § 11-2.1, 1 (4)(B).

capitalis. Capital.

capitalis baro. Chief baron.

capitalis custos. Chief magistrate or warden.

capitalis debitor. The principal debtor.

capitalis dominus. The chief lord.

capitalis justiciarius. The chief justice.

capitalis justiciarius banci. Chief justice of the bench.

capitalis justiciarius totius Angliae. The chief justiciar of all England, a special magistrate who presided over the aula regia, was the principal minister of state and guardian of the realm in the absence of the king. His great power was considerably weakened by Magna Charta and was further curtailed under Henry III. See 3 Bl Comm 39.

capitalis plegius. A chief surety.

capitalis redditus. Chief rent.

capitalization. The structure of a corporation in reference to the stock and bonds issued by it; the term is often applied in corporate reorganization cases, one aspect being the fairness of the allocation of securities under a plan of reorganization, the other being the feasibility of the new capital structure. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1590.

capitalize. To compute periodical payments by reckoning their value as a sum in hand, as where earnings are capitalized for the purpose of ascertaining value for inheritance tax purposes. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher Tax § 373.

[173]

capital loss. For income tax purposes, a loss resulting only from a sale or exchange of capital assets.

See capital assets.

capital of a corporation. See capital.

capital offense. An offense which may be punished capitally, that is, by the execution of the death penalty. The test of a "capital crime" is not the punishment which is imposed, but that which may be imposed. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 18.

capital punishment. A punishment for crime by the infliction of the death penalty. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 595.

capital stock. In common parlance, the shares of stock issued by a corporation and outstanding. Precisely, the amount of money, property or other means authorized by the charter of the corporation and contributed, or agreed to be contributed, by the shareholders as the financial basis for the prosecution of the business of the corporation, such contribution being made either directly through stock subscription or indirectly through the declaration of stock dividends. Dodge v Ford Motor Co. 204 Mich 459, 170 NW 668, 3 ALR 413; the total of all the corporate wealth, subject to all corporate liabilities and obligations. Anno: 45 ALR 1505; 51 Am J1st Tax § 826.

See authorized capital stock; net capital stock; stock.

capital stock tax. A term applied to two taxes of different kinds: one a tax on the property represented by stock in the hands of an individual stockholder, the other a tax on the privilege of existing or doing business in the corporate form which is measured for the purpose of the exaction by the amount of capital stock. 51 Am J1st Tax § 825.

capitaneus. One holding land in capite.

capitas diminutio. Civil death.

capitatum. By heads; per head.

capitation grant. A grant of a certain quantity of land per head or person.

capitation tax. A poll tax; a direct tax imposed without regard to property, profession, or any other external circumstance of the taxpayer. 51 Am J1st Tax § 412.

capite. See in capite.

capite doli. See ex capite doli. capite fraudis. See ex capite fraudis.

capite minutus. A person who is undergoing civil death.

capitis diminutio maxima. A complete loss of civil status.

capitis diminutio media. A partial loss of civil status.

capitis diminutio minima. A slight loss of civil status.

capitula. Laws and ordinances collected under appropriate headings or divisions.

capitula coronis. Detailed schedules.

Capitula de Judaeis. An embodiment of political decrees concerning the Jews which was compiled during the reign of Richard I, and a copy of which was preserved by Roger of Hoveden. See 2 Bl Comm 342.

capitular. A law or canon passed by in ecclesiastical chapter; a chapter member.

capitulary. Same as capitular.

capitulate. To make heads for divisions of an article; to give brief sketches of a discussion; to surrender to an enemy under terms.

capitulum. A chapter or section of a book.

capitur pro fine. Same as capias pro fine.

capper. A person employed by an attorney to solicit business for him; a sham bidder at an auction sale. McMillan v Harris, 110 Ga 72, 35 SE 334.

Capper-Volstead Act. A federal statute which authorizes producers or agricultural products to act together in collectively processing, preparing for market, handling, and marketing their products in interstate commerce, to have marketing agencies in common, and to make the necessary contracts and agreements to effect such purposes, and gives to the Secretary of Agriculture the powers of regulation and visitation where he has reason to believe that any such enterprise in co-operation has monopolized or restrained trade to the extent that the price of an agricultural commodity has been unduly enhanced. 7 USC §§ 291 et seq.

caprice. A turn of mind without substantial cause, implying wilfulness or wantonness in some degree. Waller v Skelton, 186 Term 433, 211 SW2d 445.

capricious. Changeable in purpose or view; freakish; whimsical. United States v Carmack, 329 US 245, 91 L Ed 209, 67 S Ct 252.

capsizing. Overturning, especially the overturning of watercraft.

captain. The officer in command of a company or troop of soldiers; a naval officer who commands a ship; the chief in command of a merchant vessel.

captation. A term adopted in the laws of Louisiana from the Code Napoleon and having a meaning practically synonymous with "undue influence." Zerega v Percival, 46 La Ann 590, 606, 15 So 476.

captator. A person who exercises undue influence over another.

capitio. A caption.

caption. A taking; a seizure; literally, a heading, but of variable meaning in the law of practice. In some jurisdictions, the title of the court and the style of the cause as formed from the names of the plaintiff and defendant, their relation on the record being indicated by the familiar "vs." or the equivalent "against." Jackson v Ashton (US) 8 Pet 148, 8 L Ed 898; in other jurisdictions, all that appears at the head of a pleading or order of court, including the title of the court, the names of the parties, the docket number, and such other entries respecting the nature of the suit and the process under which it is maintained as may be required by statute or rule of court; in still other jurisdictions, the phrasing at the head of an order showing how, when, and where the cause arose came on for trial or hearing, the name of the judge or justice presiding, and the presence of the officers of the court, the statement of venue in a certificate of acknowledgment. 1 Am J2d Ack § 46; the heading of all affidavit which states the title of the court and the cause in which it is to be used and the names of the parties. 3 Am J2d Affi § 13; the heading of a deposition which usually contains the authority under which the deposition is taken, the name and description of the supervising officer, the court in the case in which it is intended to be used, the name of the deponent and the fact that he was sworn, the time and place of the taking, and the names of the parties and attorneys present, such being the matters to which the supervising officer must certify. 23 Am J2d Dep § 69; the history or record of a criminal case up to the finding of an indictment, appearing as a preamble to the indictment. 27 Am J1st Indict § 36; the designation of court and parties in an assignment of errors. 5 Am J2d A & E § 659; in a deed, the part of the instrument, otherwise known as "the premises," which precedes the habendum clause, in effect, the part of the instrument in which the property is really granted. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 33.

[174]

captive mine. A mine in which coal rights are held under lease and the coal is extracted directly by the lessee. Powell v Gray (CA4) 114 F2d 752.

captor. One who takes or seizes property in time of war; in a stricter sense, the one who takes a prize at sea. Oakes v United States, 174 US 778, 43 L Ed 1169, 19 S Ct 864.

capture. A taking; that which is taken; booty; the seizure of property or soldiers of an enemy in time of war; a prize of war where the taking meets the condition imposed by law. Manila Prize Cases, 188 US 254, 47 L Ed 463, 23 S Ct 415; the seizure of an enemy vessel accompanied by acts indicative of an intention to seize and to retain her as a prize. The Grotius, 9 Cranch 368, 3 L Ed 762; a taking by the enemy of a vessel or cargo as prize in time of war or by way of reprisal with intent to deprive the owner of it, also the taking of a neutral ship and cargo by a belligerent, and also the taking forcibly by a friendly power in time of peace, and even by the government itself to which the insured belongs. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1327.

In Texas, according to conventional doctrine, the holder of an oil lease "owns" the oil in place beneath the surface. But equally recognized is the "rule of capture" which subjects the lessee's interest to his neighbors' power to drain his oil away. Therefore, to speak of ownership in its relation to oil, is to imply a contingency of control not applicable to ordinary interests in realty. Railroad Corn. v Rowan & Nichols Oil Co. 310 US 573, 84 L Ed 1368, 60 S Ct 1021.

capus lupus. A wolf's head; -an outlaw.

caput. A head; a chief; a principal. Latin: Life; existence. Top; summit.
Strangely enough, this word has become slang for finished or dead.

caputagium. Head, money.

caput baroniae. A nobleman's mansion-house.

caput genere lupinum. To bear the head of a wolf. The expression was anciently applied to an outlaw, and its meaning was that anyone might knock him on the head as a wolf, in case he would not peaceably surrender himself when taken. Drew v Drew, 37 Me 389, 391.

caputium. A headland.

caput lupinum. Same as callus lupus.

caput mortuum. A deadhead; a nullity.

caput portus. The chief town of a port, from which the port takes its name.

caput, principium, et finis. The head, the beginning, and the end. The king was said to bear this relation toward the body politic of the kingdom. See 1 Bl Comm 153.

CAR. Abbreviation of Civil Air Regulations.

car Any vehicle adapted to the rails of a railroad or railway, including freight cars, passenger cars, locomotives, construction cars, terminal cars, hand cars, and street cars. 44 Am J1st RR § 272.

The Federal Safety Appliance Act (45 USC § 11) requiring "all cars" to be equipped with efficient hand brakes uses the term in its generic sense to mean all kinds of cars running on the rails and applies to a track motorcar used by railroad maintenance employees, even though such car is not attached to a train or used as a part of a train movement. Martin v Johnston (Fla) 79 So 2d 419, 49 ALR2d 1297.

In modern times, the word "car" is correctly and most frequently used for "automobile." So used, it is a generic term embracing a number of different types of vehicles with certain basic similarities. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1239.

See cars.

carack. A bulky ship for both commerce and war.

carat. A weight of four grains.

caravan. A motor vehicle in tow of another motor vehicle, usually for transporting the towed vehicle to a place where it is to be sold or offered for sale. 7 Am J2d Auto § 134.

See trailer.

caravaning. A technical term in many modern statutes, meaning the transportation of any motor vehicle operating on its own wheels, or in tow of another motor vehicle, for the purpose of selling the same or offering the same for sale. 7 Am J2d Auto § 134,

A typical statute provides that caravaning shall mean the transportation from without the state of any motor vehicle operating on its own wheels, or in tow of another motor vehicle, for the purpose of selling or offering the same for sale to or by any agent, dealer, manufacturer, representative, purchaser, or prospective purchaser, whether such agent, etc., be located within or without the state. Wallace v Pfost, 57 Idaho 279, 65 P2d 725, 110 ALR 613.

carbolic acid. A poisonous acid, obtained from coal tar, and used as an antiseptic, although not as much as formerly.

carbon copy. A copy of a letter, document, or other paper made at the same time as the original by impression upon carbon paper.

carbon monoxide. A gas which is highly dangerous to life because of its asphyxiating quality; the type of gas which comes from the exhaust of an automobile engine. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1279.

[175]

carcan. A kind of collar worn as a punishment for crime.

carcare. To load.

carcata. Freighted or loaded.

carcelage. Prison fees.

carcer. A jail.

Career ad homines custodiendos, non ad puniendos, dari debet. A jail ought to be devoted to the custody of men, and not to their punishment.

card. A token of membership in a labor union, political party, fraternal order, or a credit-guaranty organization.

card games. Games, such as bridge, poker, pitch, pinochle, etc., played with a deck, or part of a deck, of cards, and which come within the prohibition of statutes which penalize gambling, where the play is for a stake. 24 Am J1st Gaming § 20.

cardinal. A high officer in the church of Rome.

card-playing. See card games.

care. A word of most variable meaning, but usually to be interpreted easily in the context. Noun: Custody; safekeeping, charge, Ker v People, 110 Ill 627, 649; support and maintenance, Kelly v Jefferis Del (3 Penn) 286, 50 A 215; professional attendance, as by a physician or in a hospital, Re Swinson's Estate, 167 Pa Super 293, 74 A2d 485, 18 ALR2cI 1231; caution; heed; watchfulness. Verb: To have a liking or affection for something or someone; to furnish support and maintenance; to be watchful and diligent for protection and well-being of one's self or another.

See degrees of care; maintenance and cure.

carecta. A cart.

careless. A word of broad significance, including negligence, wantonness, and recklessness. The word is synonymous with the word "negligent," but "negligent" is probably the preferable word when used in legal pleadings and proceedings. Delmore v Kansas City Hardwood Flooring Co. 90 Kan 29, 133 P 151.

careless driving. Negligent driving. 7 Am J2d Auto § 272.

See reckless driving.

carelessly and wantonly. Without that degree of care an ordinarily prudent person would use under like and similar circumstances, and in reckless disregard of the consequences thereof, or of the effect of the act done upon the person or life of another. Hollingsworth v Warnock, 112 Ky 96, 104, 65 SW 163.

carelessness. See careless; negligence.

carena. A quarantine.

care of physician or surgeon. Charge, oversight, watchful regard, and attention. Lustenberger v Boston Casualty Co. 300 Mass 130, 14 NE2d 148, 115 ALR 1055.

ca. resp. An abbreviation of capias ad respondendum. careta. A cart.

Carey Act. The popular name for the Federal Desert Lands Act which sets forth a plan for aiding the reclamation of and lands in the public land states. 30 Am J Rev ed Irrig § 101.

car float. A vessel for transporting railroad cars, used its an adjunct to railroad transportation. 2 Am J2d Adm § 33.

cargo. The load or lading of a ship or other vessel, having no more than a transitory connection with the vessel, the intent being to unload it at the destination or port of call of the vessel. 48 Am J1st Ship § 2. In marine insurance, the word cargo signifies the "contained," whereas the word body or hull signifies the "container." Therefore, insurance upon cargo does not insure the ship, and conversely, insurance upon a vessel does not cover its cargo. In America, separate forms of marine policies usually are provided for ship arid cargo. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 304.

cargo lien. A lien on account of salvage, demurrage, general average, freight, or other maritime service or obligation.

While the lien on cargo is frequently spoken of as a maritime lien, the prevailing view is that it has not such quality but is no different from a common law lien, continuing only while the goods are in the possession of the person having the demand or performing the service. 48 Am J1st Ship § 562.

See carrier's lien; demurrage lien; salvage lien.

carl. Same as churl.

car lease. See drive-it-yourself system; freight line company.

Carlisle tables. Tables of life expectancy compiled at Carlisle, England, in 1870.

Carmack Amendment. An amendment to the Interstate Commerce Act, applicable to railroad carriers arid other common carriers, including motor carriers and freight forwarders, which prescribes the liability of the carrier for loss, damage, or injury caused to the property carried, where the shipment is interstate, to the District of Columbia, or to an adjacent foreign country. 14 Am 32d Car § 518.

carnal. Sensual; lustful.

carnal abuse. The term has been held to be synonymous with "carnal knowledge." State v Sebastian, 81 Conn 1, 69 A 1054. Other authority draws a distinction between the two terms, saying "carnal abuse" is an act which does not amount to penetration, while "carnal knowledge" constitutes penetration, the offense commonly called statutory rape consisting of "carnal abuse" and not of "carnal knowledge." State v Huggins, 84 NJL 254, 87 A 630.

carnaliter. Carnally; sensually; lustfully.

carnaliter cognovit. He carnally knew; he had sexual intercourse with.

carnal knowledge. Sexual intercourse, Noble v State, 22 Ohio St 541, 545; synonymous with "carnal abuse," according to some authority, State v Sebastian, 81 Conn 1, 69 A 1054; but distinguished from that term by other authority on the ground that while penetration is an essential element of "carnal knowledge," "carnal abuse" may be inflicted without penetration. State v Huggins, 84 NJL 254, 87 A 630.

carnet. A notebook. A check book. A book containing memorandums authenticating the ownership of an automobile and the existence of insurance thereon which may be used severally at international borders by the owner or driver of the automobile in obtaining permission to enter a country.

[176]

carno. An immunity or privilege.

Carn's Act. An English statute authorizing the award of damages in equity suits.

carpenter. An artisan who works in wood, constructing and repairing buildings and wooden articles.

carpenter's lien. An artisan's lien. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 229; a maritime lien. 12 Am J2d Boars § 30.

car pool. An arrangement whereby two or more persons ride to work in a single car, usually rotating from the car of one to the car of another, but on a share-the-expense agreement if only the car of one is used.

car port. A structure attached to a dwelling house, often consisting of no more than a roof and supports therefor, wherein an automobile or automobiles may be sheltered. 20 Am J2d Cov § 222.

carriage. A horse drawn vehicle, normally for four passengers; but the term, appearing in a statute, is sufficiently elastic to cover an automobile so as to give to the Statute the meaning which its context demands. Anno: 37 ALR2d 717, 726; 7 Am J2d Auto § 3. Transportation of freight or passengers; the service of a horse and cart. The posture of a person, even of a horse in movement. A term peculiar to equity, meaning the right to condition or control a suit where other persons are involved on the same side.

Carriage of Goods by Sea Act. A federal statute relieving an owner of a vessel of liability for loss or damage to merchandise on board the vessel by means of a fire not due to the design or neglect of the owner. 46 USC § 1406.

carrier. A transporter of passengers or freight; one who undertakes to transport persons or property from place to place. 13 Am J2d Car § 1.

See common carrier; express company; ferry; forwarder; motor carrier; pick-up service; private carrier; railroad; sleeping car company; shipping; street railway.

carrier by air. One who engages, whether directly or indirectly by a lease or any other arrangement, in air transportation. 49 USC § 1301(3).

carrier by railroad. A railroad company acting as a common carrier. Chicago, M.Y. & 13. Refrigerator Co. v Interstate Commerce Com. 265 US 425, 68 L Ed 1087, 44 S Ct 560.

See railroad.

carrier for hire. Either a private or a common carrier receiving or charging compensation in some form for transportation. Huron Portland Cement Co. v Woodworth (DC Mich) 19 F2d 530. Under an exclusion clause in an automobile liability policy prohibiting the carrying of passengers for a consideration, a few cases have held that the word "Passenger as so used includes only passengers transported by a public carrier, but more cases have held to the contrary. Myers v Ocean Acci. & Guarantee Corp. (CA4 NC) 99 F2d 485. Where the arrangement for compensation under which the person is carrying his passengers is more than a reimbursement for the gas and oil used by all in common on the trip, but goes to the additional extent of compensating him for the use of the car, he is carrying passengers for hire. Gross v Kubel, 315 Pa 396, 172 A 649, 95 ALR 146.

carrier of goods. A common carrier engaged in transporting commodities, as distinguished from one carrying livestock or passengers.

carrier of livestock. A common carrier of goods which transports livestock is as to the latter property also a common carrier, but in some states carriers of livestock are not regarded as common carriers unless they have expressly assumed the responsibilities of common carriers by special contract. 13 Am J2d Car § 346.

carrier of passengers. See carrier; carrier for hire.

carrier's acceptance. See delivery to carrier.

carrier's demurrage lien. See demurrage lien.

carrier's lien. The lien of a carrier upon the goods in a shipment for the charges of transportation and such storage charges as it may be entitled to collect. 13 Am J2d Car § 497. The lien of a carrier by water upon the cargo for freight and all lawful charges, whether the vessel is operated under charter of affreightment or a general ship. 48 Am J1st Ship § 436.

See baggage lien; common carrier's lien; demurrage lien.

carrier's receipt. A bill of lading for goods to be transported by land. Dodge v Meyer, 61 Cal 405, 418.

See delivery to carrier.

carry. To transport, as to carry a passenger; to hold or possess, as to carry insurance, Metropolitan Life Iris. Co. v Dimick, 69 NJL 384, 55 A 291; to extend credit; to extend one's credit to another. State v Capital City Bank, 32 NM 369, 257 P 993, carryback. An income tax law term for applying a net operating loss for one year in the recomputation of tax for an earlier year. 9 ALR2d 352, Later Case Service.

carryers. Men who "in ancient times of corrupt politics" undertook for money to get titles and honors for those who agreed to pay them for their influence. Montefiore v Menday Co. (Eng) 2 KB 241.

carrying a debtor. Extending credit; liberality in extensions of time for payment.

carrying away. The asportation or complete removal of goods.

carrying capacity. The number of passengers who may be carried in a particular automobile without crowding; sitting capacity. 7 Am J2d Auto § 66.

carrying charges. Charges for interest, insurance, filing fee, and attorney's fee included in a conditional sale or instalment sale contract, chattel mortgage, or trust receipt.

carrying concealed weapon. See carrying weapon; concealed weapon.

carrying costs. Awarding costs, a judgment which includes the costs as a part thereof.
See carrying charges.

carrying goods. See carrier; carrier of goods.

carrying on business. A term with a meaning variable according to the context within which it appears and the circumstances under which it is used, but in any event it is something more than isolated transactions. Kirkwood v Gadd (Eng) [1910] A.C. 422, 432. It is the pursuing of business as an enterprise embracing many transactions and to which one usually devotes both time and skill. 27 Am J1st H & W § 474. The carrying on of a liquor business invokes transactions extending over a considerable period of time, except where one has made all preparations, holds himself out as a dealer, and has solicited trade. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 217.

[177]

See doing business; doing business in state.

carrying on liquor business. See carrying on business.

carrying passengers. See carrier; carrier for hire.

carrying passengers for a consideration. See carrier for hire.

carrying sail. See under sail.

carrying weapon. Any method of carrying which renders the weapon readily accessible and available for use, irrespective of whether the person moves from place to place while having the weapon in possession. 56 Am J1st Weap § 10. A statute against carrying a pistol was held not to be violated if one finds or buys a pistol and takes it home or to his place of business, or if he takes it to and from a shop for repairs, whether loaded or not, and even though he fires it off on the way. Pressler v State, 19 Tex Crim 52.

See concealed weapon.

carryover. An income tax term for using a loss occurring in one year as a deduction in a later year. An item of an inventory, or of the accounts of a business for one year which is transferred to the inventory or accounts of the following year.

carry the iron. To carry a piece of red-hot iron of from one to three pounds weight in the hand, in a trial by fire-ordeal. See 4 Bl Comm 342.

cars. A generic term for some purposes, including even locomotives. Baltimore & Ohio R. Co. v Jackson, 353 US 325, 1 L Ed 2d 862, 77 S Ct 842.

See car.

car service. The use, control, supply, movement, distribution, exchange, interchange, and return of locomotives, cars, and other vehicles used in the transportation of property, including special types of equipment, and the supply of trains. 49 USC § 1(10). The term imports the instrumentalities of the service of transportation, not transportation itself. Cars and locomotives, like tracks and terminals, are the instrumentalities. The Esch car service act made these instrumentalities available in emergencies to a carrier other than the owner, making provision for the movement, distribution, exchange, interchange, and return of locomotives, cars, and other vehicles used in the transportation of property. Peoria & Pekin Union Railway Co. v United States, 263 US 528, 533, 68 L Ed 427, 430, 44 S Ct 194.

Car Service Act. See car service.

car service association. An association of railroad companies formed to facilitate the collection of charges for demurrage and to make such charges uniform throughout the United States. 13 Am J2d Car § 48 1.

car spotting. See "spotting service."

cart. A small horse drawn vehicle, carrying not more than two passengers; the term is also applied to a two-wheeled, horse-drawn vehicle suitable for carrying no person other than the driver; sometimes construed to include a four-wheeled vehicle. Favers v Glass, 22 Ala 621; even a motor vehicle. Anno: 37 ALR2d 717; a small vehicle, two-wheeled or four-wheeled, to be pushed or pulled by manpower.

carta. A deed or charter.

carta de foresta. Laws of the forest.

cartage. Services in transporting property by truck; the charges for transportation of property.

cart-bote. The right of a tenant to take from the premises in amount of wood reasonably necessary for the making and repair of his farming tools. See 2 Bl Comm 35.

carte blanche. A blank card; a signed blank instrument intended by the signer to be filled in and used by another person, without restriction; freedom to act in a situation as one thinks best.

cartel. An association of industrialists or financiers for a purpose, usually secret, and sometimes ulterior. Such as fixing prices, creating a monopoly, or cornering the market; a challenge to combat.

carter. One who hauls or transports property for another.

cartis reddendis. See de cartis reddendis.

cartman. See carter; drayman.

carton. A container for cigarettes and other merchandise.

cartoon. A caricature, often uncomplimentary, sometimes derogatory, and occasionally libelous. 33 Am J1st L & S § 55.

car trust. A partnership association formed by a number of persons for the purpose of buying, selling and leasing railroad rolling stock to be leased to a railroad company. Ricker v American Loan & Trust Co. 140 Mass 346, 347.

cartway. A way for the free passage of all persons on foot or horseback, carts and wagons. Cozad v Kanawha Hardwood Co. 139 NC 283, 51 SE 932.

See iter.

caruca. A plough.

carticae. See affri carucae; averia carucae.

carucage. A tax on land ploughable with one plough.

carucata. A plough.

carve. To carve is to segregate; to cut out, as a smaller estate or parcel from a larger one. As used in criminal cases involving former conviction or acquittal, the verb to carve seems to import the selection from the facts of the transaction any one or more of such facts as may, taken singly or together, constitute a criminal offense, for the purpose of embodying such fact or facts in an indictment or information. "Although, when a man has done a criminal act, the prosecutor may carve as large an offense out of the transaction as he can, yet he is not at liberty to cut but once." People v Stephens, 79 Cal 428, 21 P 856.

cas. An abbreviation of "case; also of cas fortuits.

ca. sa. An abbreviation of capias ad satisfaciendum.

case. A contested question in a Court of justice. See 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 64; an action variously known as "case," "action on the case" and "trespass on the case," 52 Am J1st Tresp § 2; a controversy presented according to the regular course of judicial proceedings, so that the judicial power is capable of acting upon it to determine and decide the issues presented by the allegations of the parties. Muskrat v United States, 219 US 346, 356, 357, 55 L Ed 246, 250, 31 S Ct 250. The term includes a habeas corpus proceeding. King v

[178]

McLean Asylum of the Massachusetts General Hospital (CA1 Mass) 64 F 331; but, as used in a statute respecting the right to a jury trial, not a special proceeding. Anno: 21 Ann Cas 670.

case agreed. See agreed case.

case and controversy. See case; case or controversy; controversy.

case certified. A distinct point or question of law certified by a lower court and submitted to a higher court for decision. Fire Assur. Asso. v Wickham, 128 US 426, 32 L Ed 563, 9 S Ct 113.

case in law or equity. A judicial proceeding at law or in equity presenting a question in such form that relief at the hands of the court is obtainable. 1 Am J2d Actions § 4; but not embracing a case within the jurisdiction of admiralty. 2 Am J2d Adm § 5.

case in point. A precedent.

case law. The law as laid down in the decisions of the courts; that is, in the cases which have been decided.

case made. See bill of exceptions; case reserved.

case of first impression. See first impression.

case of novel impression. See res integra.

Case of the Seven Bishops. An English case decided in 1688, wherein the primate and six bishops were charged with libel for petitioning against the king's order that "his declarations for liberty of conscience" be read in the churches.

case or controversy. AD actual controversy over an issue, not merely a desire for an abstract declaration of the law. Re Summers, 325 US 561, 89 L Ed 1795, 65 S Ct 1307.

A "case" was defined by Chief Justice Marshall to be a suit instituted according to the regular course of judicial procedure and in the jurisdiction clause of the Federal Constitution the word "controversy" is held to have the same meaning. If the two words as there used are distinguishable at all, it is possibly because "Controversies" are confined to suits of a civil nature. Muskrat v United States, 219 US 346, 55 L Ed 246, 31 S Ct 250.

case primae impressionis. A case of first impression; a case for the determination of which no precedent can be found. Vaughan v Menlove, 3 Bingham's New Cases 468.

case reserved. A decision rendered pro forma for the purpose of obtaining the opinion of the same court in bank or that of a higher court.

cases. See case; case in law or equity; case or controversy.

case stated. Another term for agreed case. 3 Am J2d Agr C § 1.

case system. The method of the study of law, now prevailing in the United States, by the analysis of actual cases in court and the opinions rendered therein by the justices.

case to move for a new trial. The losing party's statement of the case prepared for use on his motion for a new trial.

cas fortuit. A fortuitous event; an event caused by a force that one cannot resist; an unforeseen accident; an irresistible force; an inevitable accident. Viterbo v Friedlander, 120 US 707, 30 1, Ed 776, 7 S Ct 962.

cash. Coin; money; ready money or money in hand, either in current coin or other legal tender, or in bank bills paid and received as money. Palliser v United States, 136 US 257, 34 L Ed 514, 10 S Ct 1034; the antonym or credit; it includes coins, currency, a cashier's check, and a certified check. Greenberg v Alter Co. 255 Iowa 899, 124 NW2d 438. Under provision, of statutes or corporation charters requiring stock subscriptions to be paid in cash or in money, the general American rule is that payment cannot be made in services or property. Whether a check constitutes cash payment under such provisions is disputed, although a certified check is generally considered cash. 18 Am J2d Corp §§ 257, 265.

cash account. An account in it bank subject to draft or check.

cash basis. Reporting income for taxation when cash or property is actually or constructively received and taking deductions in the year cash or property is paid or transferred. IRC § 451(a).

cash-book. A book of account of money received and paid out.

cash customer. A Customer who pays when the purchase is made, so is not billed; a customer of a broker who has paid the full price for identifiable Securities left in the hands or the broker but to which the customer is entitled upon the bankruptcy or the broker. 9 Am J2d l3ankr § 1099.

cash dividend. A distribution to the stockholders of a corporation, its the reward of the corporate enterprise, of the profits or surplus assets of the corporation, usually, but not necessarily in cash; it may be in other property, in which event, the terminology is appropriate nevertheless to indicate it distinction from a stock dividend. 19 Am J2d Corp § 801).

See dividends; stock dividend.

cash flow. A modern term in accounting, being the aggregate of net income plus the amounts allowed for depreciation of plant and equipment and amortization of patents and licenses for the use of patents.

cashier. An employee or a restaurant, store, or other place of business, whose duty it is to have charge of the cash register and take payments front the customers, ordinarily at a position near the exit from the place of business; the chief executive officer of a bank, who transacts the bank's business under the orders and supervision of its board of directors. Martin v Webb, 110 US 7, 28 L Ed 49, 3 S Ct 429. The cashier of a bank is at least an executive officer rather than a mere employee. Blanc v Paymaster Mining Co. 95 Cal 524, 531, 30 P 765; of course, the authority actually exercised by a bank cashier depends upon the plan of operation of the particular bank. In some banks, the cashier follows closely the directions of the president or chairman of the board, looking to one or the other for advice in important transactions.

cashier's check. A bill of exchange, drawn by a bank upon itself, and accepted by the act of issuance.

The bank is the debtor and its obligation to pay the check is like that of the maker of any other negotiable instrument payable on demand. 10 Am J2d Banks §308.

cash note. A promissory note payable in cash.

cash on hand. Money on hand or a deposit in a solvent bank subject to check. Re Banfield, 137 Or 282, 3 P 116.

cash or its equivalent. Money or that which is convertible into money on presentation for payment, such as a check; but not the promissory note of the debtor himself given in payment of an obligation. Eckert v Commissioner, 283 US 140, 75 L Ed 911. 51 S Ct 374.

[179]

cash or order. See pay cash or order.

cash sale. A sale by the terms of which payment of the purchase price and delivery of the goods sold are to be concurrent. Western Seed Marketing Co. v Pfost, 45 Idaho 340, 262 P 514; a sale for the money in hand.

Upon such a sale the owner is not bound to deliver the goods until the price is paid. If the price cannot be ascertained until the goods are weighed or measured, ordinarily no property passes to the purchaser until that is done. Steward v Scudder, 24 NJL 96, 101.

cash surrender value. The cash value of a life insurance policy as ascertainable by established rules, where the policy has been abandoned and given up for cancellation to the insurer by the person having a contractual right to do so. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 620; the reserve, less a surrender charge. And in case of a single-premium policy, the reserve is the face amount of the contract discounted at a specified rate of interest on the basis of the insured's expected life. Guggenheim v Rasquin, 312 US 254, 85 L Ed 813, 61 S Ct 507.

A life insurance policy having a cash surrender value is property within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act provision that title to property of the bankrupt vests in the trustee in bankruptcy. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 914. In bankruptcy proceedings the term "cash surrender value" has been regarded as covering any and every insurance policy under which the insured, by his own efforts and unassisted by any beneficiary or assignee, can obtain a sum from the insurer in cash, on cancellation of the policy at the date of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, the amount being determined in accordance with a fixed and definite method of compensation, uniform in all cases; and it is immaterial whether the amount which the insured can obtain is secured to him by statute or rests upon the mere willingness of the insurance company to purchase the policy at the particular time, the material and important fact being that at the time of the adjudication the policy has a value which the company is willing to pay and which the bankrupt by his own act can obtain. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 916.

cash value. The amount for which an article or piece of property may be sold at a sale which is not forced or compelled upon the seller where the terms of sale call for cash, no credit being extended to the purchaser; market value, fair market value, or clear market value. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 359.

See actual cash value; fair cash value; full cash value; true cash value.

casing head gas. Natural gas from an oil well. The term does not include gasoline or gas manufactured artificially from the natural product of the well. See Wilson v King-Smith Refining Co. 119 Okla 256, 250 P 90.

cassare. To nullify; to annul; to dismiss.

cassation. Annulment; abatement; dismissal.

See court of cassation.

cassetur billa. That the bill quashed. See 3 Bl Comm 303.

See judgment of cassetur billa.

cassetur breve. Same as cassetur billa.

cast. Verb: To decide against; to convict; to allege; to proffer: to deposit, as a ballot; to form a solid piece, such as iron, from molten metal; to devolve by operation of law, as in the descent of an estate to the heirs. Estate of Donahue, 36 Cal 332. Noun: A solid piece, such as iron, made from molten metal in a form; a covering of a limb which has been fractured, applied, for the purpose of keeping the severed bone pieces of the broken bone in proper alignment, in a soft plaster which hardens after application.

castaway. A shipwrecked person; a thing thrown away; a person abandoned; an outcast.

cast away. To throw away; to abandon.

castellan. The governor of a castle.

castellarium. Same as castlewick.

castellorum operatio. The maintenance of castles.

castigation. Chastisement.

castigatory. A contrivance for punishing common scolds.

See cucking-stool.

casting descent. See descent case.

casting lots. Determining something by chance, as by a throw of dice or the drawing of straws.

casting vote. Literally, the act of depositing a paper ballot or voting upon a voting machine, but in modern usage, the term means the expression of a choice in any election to choose officers or determine policies and by any means appropriate for the occasion. By the common law, the term sometimes signifies the single vote of a person who never votes, as where the presiding officer is given the casting vote; but in the case of an equality, sometimes the double vote of a person who first votes with the rest, and their, upon an equality, creates a majority by giving a second vote. People v Rector, etc., of Church of the Atonement (NY) 48 Barb 603, 606.

castle. A fortified building; a fortress; the dwelling place of a king, prince, or nobleman.

castleguard. Feudal services or payments toward the maintenance of the lord's castle.

castlery. The government or tenure of a castle.

castleward. Same as castleguard.

castlewick. The district under the jurisdiction of a castle.

castration. The severance of the testicles by accident or surgery; a necessary operation in animal husbandry but constituting cruelty where performed unnecessarily or with unnecessary cruelty. 4 Am J2d Am § 28.

casual. Occasional; irregular, or incidental, in contradistinction from stated or regular. Anno: 33 ALR 1452.

casual ejector. A fiction whereby the old common law action of ejectment was utilized for the purpose of determining title to real estate. 25 Am J2d Eject § 2.

casual employee. A person employed temporarily, occasionally, intermittently, seasonally, not regularly. Mitchell v Main Feldspar Co. 121 Me 455, 118 A 287, 33 ALR 1447; Anno: 33 ALR 1452.

For sonic purposes, particularly that of the application of a workmen's compensation act, a "casual employee" is one working for an employer but not in the usual and normal course of the business or industry regularly pursued by the employer. This distinct meaning of the term in compensation cases is based upon definitions of "casual employment" in compensation acts.

[180]

See casual employment.

casual employment. Literally, employment which is temporary, seasonal, sometimes fortuitous, in any event, not employment which is to continue for a fixed period of time of considerable duration. Blake v Wilson, 268 Pa 468, 112 A 126, 15 ALR 726. The meaning of the term in workmen's compensation statutes is variable because of the variance in statutory definitions. Under some statutes, casual employment is employment for something other than trade or business. Thompson v Twiss, 90 Conn 444, 97 A 328; under other statutes, it is employment not in the usual course of the employer's trade or business. Cardillo v Mockabee, 70 App DC 16, 102 F2d 620; Oliphant v Hawkinson, 192 Iowa 1259, 183 NW 805, 33 ALR 1433, 1436; and under still other statutes, it is employment at work of a duration of not more than a specified number of days, such as ten, fifteen, or twenty days, or at work, the cost of which is not more than a specified amount, such as one hundred, two hundred, or even five hundred dollars. Moody v Industrial Ace. Corn. (Cal App) 260 P 967, 969.

casual fence. A temporary fence.

casualis. Casual.

casualiter. Casually; accidentally.

casualiter et per infortuniam, et contra voluntatem suam. Accidentally and involuntarily. Stanley v Powell (Eng) LR 1 QB Div 86.

casual negligence. Slight negligence or, at most, no more than ordinary negligence.

casual pauper. A pauper who receives aid outside the jurisdiction of his domicile or residence.

casualties. Sums due from a vassal to his superior on the happening of certain events, the plural of "casualty."
See casualty.

casualty. A disastrous occurrence by chance or accident; a serious mishap or misfortune; an accidental death or disablement. Morris & Co. v Industrial Board of Illinois, 284 Ill 67, 119 NE 944. For the purpose of the Federal Hours of Service Act, an occurrence which proceeds from an unknown cause, or is an unusual effect of a known cause. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 803. For the purpose of a deduction in computing net income subject to federal income tax, a complete or partial destruction of property resulting from an identifiable event of a sudden, unexpected, or unusual nature. 34 Am J2d Fed Tax 116605.

See inevitable casualty; unavoidable casualty.

casualty insurance. Literally, this term is inclusive of insurance of all kinds except life insurance. In the insurance business, however, it has been a trade term applied with considerable variation as between insurance companies, often as a catch-all for new types of insurance as they are developed, such as plate glass insurance, hail insurance, boiler insurance, and insurance on domestic animals, Employers' Liability Assur. Corp. v Merrill, 155 Mass 404, 29 NE 529; and in more recent years to various forms of liability or indemnity insurance.

casualty loss. A deduction in an income tax return for a loss arising from fire, storm, shipwreck or other casualty to property owned by the taxpayer. IRC § 165(c)(3).

casualty of war. One killed or wounded in combat, or taken as a prisoner of war. As the term was used in a life insurance policy exempting the insurer from liability for death caused by the casualties or consequences of war or rebellion, such exemption included only death from casualties or consequences of war or rebellion, carried on or waged by authority of some government which was at least de facto. Welts v Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. 48 NY 34.

casual worker. See casual employee.

casu consimili. In a similar case; a writ of entry to recover a reversion in land alienated by the tenant.
See in casu consimili.

casu proviso. A writ of entry to recover a reversion against a tenant in dower.
See in casu proviso.

casus. A case; an event; a happening.

casus belli. An occasion of war.

casus foederis. A case falling within the provisions of a treaty.

casus fortuitus. Same as cas fortuit.

Casus fortuitus non est sperandus, et nemo tenetur divinare. A chance happening is not to be expected, and no one is held to foresee it.

Casus fortuitus non est supponendus. A chance happening is not to be expected.

casus major. An unusual event.

See vis major.

casus omissi. plural of casus omissus. See 4 Bl Comm 85.

casus omissus. A case omitted. Where a statute attempts to cover a subject and a case arises which the statute should have provided for, the case is sometimes spoken of as it "casus omissus." See 2 Bl Comm 260.

Casus omissus et oblivioni datus dispositioni communis juris relinquitur. An omitted and forgotten case is left to the disposal of the common law. See Broom's Legal Maxims 40.

cat. A small domesticated animal with soft fur, white, black, gray, colored, striped or multi-colored, which is a household or barnyard pet, any of the carnivorous mammals related to the household cat, such as lion, tiger, leopard, or puma: a sharp-tongued or gossip-peddling woman; a whip, otherwise known as a cat-o-nine tails. Slang for a caterpillar tractor. Teenage slang for a clever person. In the slang of an older day, a woman who makes trouble.

A cat is a domestic animal which if kept as a household pet is a thing of value which ministers to the pleasure of its owner. As such it is the proper subject of a civil action, such as trover; it is property subject to taxation and is such an animal as is included in statutes against cruelty, although it was not the subject of larceny at common law. Thurston v Carter, 112 Me 361, 92 A 295.

[181]

catalla. Chattels.

Catalla juste possessa amitti non possunt. Chattels lawfully possessed cannot be lost.

catalla otiosa. Idle cattle or beasts.

Catalla reputantur inter minima in lege. Chattels are regarded in law among things of lesser importance (than land).

catallis captis nomine districtionis. A writ to distrain doors, windows or gates of a house for rent.

catallis reddendis. For the return of the chattels.

catallum. A chattel.

catalog. A list of the articles to be offered for sale at auction, including representations as to the character of particular articles. 7 Am J2d Auct § 16. A listing of merchandise for sale, sometimes with a secret code or system of letters, figures, and characters which show the cost and selling price. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 16.

cataneus. A tenant in capite, that is, on holding directly under the king.

catchall. A clause in a contract, will, or statute, intended to broaden the application of the instrument or statute; a provision in a statute, following an enumeration of various things and contingencies, intended to broaden the application of the statute beyond dispute, such as a provision in a statute fixing venue, following an enumeration of specific cases, that in all other cases the action shall be tried in the county in which the defendant, the defendants, or any of them reside.

catching bargain. A bargain or agreement of an expectant heir, remainderman or reversioner for the sale of his expectancy at a grossly inadequate price and under circumstances rendering the transaction an unconscionable one. 41 Am Rep 713, note.

catchland. Land, the tithes from which went as a right to the first of two parsons who claimed them.

catch point. A derailing switch on a railroad siding used to prevent cars on the siding from running downgrade into the main line. See McDowall v Great Western Railway Co. (Eng) [1903] 2 KB 331.

catchpole or catchpoll. A bailiff; a constable.

catch time charter. A term which relates simply to the amount of compensation to be paid by the charterer of a boat. Ordinarily, when a boat is hired, the rent is so much a day. When "catch time" is followed, it is paid for when and as actually used, accounting being at some subsequent period. Under such a charter, however, the custody of the charterer commences at once whether the boat is actually being used by him or not, and the owner ceases to have any control over it. Schoonmaker-Conners Co. v New York Cent. R. Co. (DC NY) 12 F2d 314.

catena. A chain; a connected series; as, a catena of authorities cited to sustain a point of law.

cater-cornered. From corner to corner; diagonal.

cater-cousin. A fourth cousin.

cathedral. The church of a bishop; in common parlance, any large and imposing church.

catheter. A tube used to withdraw fluid from a cavity of the body, especially urine from the bladder, by way of relieving a stoppage of flow or of obtaining a sample for analysis in conducting a physical examination. O'Brien v La Crosse, 99 Wis 421, 75 NW 81.

catholic. Universal; broad-minded and liberal in understanding and sympathies.

See Roman Catholic.

Catholic Bible. The Bible of the Roman Catholic Church.

See Douay Bible.

catholic creditor. A creditor whose debt is secured by more than one property of the debtor.

Catholic Emancipation Act. An English statute, enacted in 1829, by which Roman Catholics were assured of all civil rights with the exception of appointment to ecclesiastical offices and certain high public offices.

Catoniana regula. A Roman law rule that lapse of time will not cure that which was invalid at the outset.

cats. See cat; custos horrei regii.

cattery. A place for the care or homeless animals. Re Graves, 242 Ill 23, 89 NE 672.

cattle. Domestic bovine animals; cows, bulls, steers or oxen, including heifers and in the generic sense of the term even calves; farm animals collectively, that is livestock, although even in this broad sense not including poultry. First Nat. Bank v Home Sav. Bank, 88 US (21 Wall) 294, 22 L Ed 560. Some authority, especially older authority, confines the term to neat cattle, that is, cattle of the bovine species, thereby excluding horses, mules, etc. Brown v Bailey, 4 Ala 413.

See neat cattle.

cattle-gate. A right to pasture animals on the land of another.

cattle guard. Such an appliance as will prevent cattle and other farm animals from going from a highway or private way crossed by a railroad track onto the track or right of way of the railroad. Ford v Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. 91 Iowa 179, 59 NW 5.

cattle range. A large area where cattle may roam and pasture; a large stretch of country, consisting generally of many square miles, which is usually uninclosed, and has no definite or fixed boundaries, on which cattle are permitted to run at large during the entire year. Big Butte Horse & Cattle Asso. v Anderson, 133 Or 171, 289 P 503, 70 ALR 399.

Caucasian. A person of the white race; the white race.

caucus. A local political meeting; a meeting of persons of the same political party or of the same views in general, called and conducted for the purpose of determining a course of action which the participants should follow as a group in a larger meeting to be held later.

causa. A cause; an action; a reason; a consideration.

[182]

causa adulteri. By reason of adultery.

causa belli. A cause of war.

causa causae est causa causati. A cause of a cause is the cause of the effect.

causa causans. The causing cause; the efficient cause.

causa causantis causa est causati. The cause of the thing causing is the cause of the effect; a maxim which obviously leads to "a labyrinth of refined and bewildering speculation." Gilman v Noyes, 57 NH 627.

causa data et non secuta. Consideration given and not followed.

Causa ecclesiae publicis aequiparatur; et summa et ratio quae pro religione facit. The cause of the church is equal to that of the public; and most important of all is the reason which makes for religion.

Causae dotis, vitae, libertatis, fisci sunt inter favorabilia in lege. The cases of dower, life, liberty and public moneys are among those favored in law.

Causa et origo est materia negotii. The cause and its origin are the gist of the transaction.

causa honoris. See honoris causa.

causa hospitandi. For the purpose of being received as a guest.

causa impotentiae. By reason of impotence.

causa jactationis matrimonii. An action which a person might maintain in the ecclesiastical court to enjoin another of opposite sex from continuing to boast or give out that he or she is married to the plaintiff, contrary to the fact. See 3 Bl Comm 93.

causal relation. See compensable injury; proximate cause.

causa lucrativa. See ex causa lucrativa.

causa matrimonii praelocuti. An ancient writ which a woman had when she had given land in fee or for life to her affianced suitor who refused to marry her. See 3 Bl Comm 183, note.

causam nobis significes quare. A writ against a town mayor directing him to give seisin to a grantee of the king.

causa mortis. In expectation of death.

See gift causa mortis.

causa patet. The cause or reason is apparent.

causa pracallegata. For the aforesaid reasons.

Causa propinqua, non remota spectatur. The proximate, and not the remote, cause is regarded. Wood v New England Ins. Co. 14 Mass 31.

causa proxima. The proximate cause.

causa proxima, non remota spectatur. The proximate, and not the remote cause, is regarded.

No court is bound to "stick in the bark" of the maxim. Proximate cause should be determined upon mixed considerations of logic, common sense, policy, and precedent. 38 Am J1st Neg] § 53.

causa qua supra. For the reason above stated.

causare. To litigate.

causa rei. The accessions, appurtenances, or fruits of a thing.

causa remota. A remote cause.

See causa proxima, non remota spectator.

causa scientiae patet. The reason of the knowledge is apparent.

causa sine qua non. A cause without which the thing would not have happened; a cause which if it had not existed, the injury would not have been sustained. 38 Am J1st Negl §§ 53, 166.

causation. A matter of being the cause of an occurrence, the producing of a result. Derosier v New England Tel. & Tel. Co. 81 NEI 451, 130 A 145, 61 ALR 1178.

See chain of causation; proximate cause.

causator. A party to an action.

causa turpis. For a base or evil cause or reason.

Causa vaga et incerta non est causa rationabilis. A vague and uncertain cause is not a reasonable one.

cause. An action or suit. 1 Am J2d Actions § 4; including a criminal prosecution. Anno: 20 ALR 606; a cause of action; a consideration; motive; origin; that which produces or effects a result, even though unintended. United States v Weisman, (CA2 NY) 83 F2d 470, 107 ALR 293; that from which anything proceeds, and without which it would not exist; that which supplies a motive; that which decides action or constitutes the reason why anything is done.

The word "cause" and the word "case" are frequently used synonymously. Ward v Town Tavern, 191 Or 1, 228 P2d 216, 42 ALR2d 662. In any legal sense, "action," "suit," and "cause" are convertible terms. Ex parte Milligan (US) 4 Wall 2, 112, 18 L Ed 281, 293. Even an ex parte proceeding constitutes a cause for some purposes, as in the case of a statute disqualifying a judge from sitting in any "cause," under circumstances specified in the statute. 30A Am J Rev ed Judges § 93.

See good cause; procuring cause; proximate cause; reasonable cause.

cause celebre. (French.) A celebrated case. cause list. A Court calendar or docket.

cause list. A court calendar or docket.

cause of a cause. See causa causantis causa est causati.

cause of action. A term difficult of precise definition, perhaps best defined as the fact or facts which establish or give rise to a right of action, in other words, give to a person a right to judicial relief. Fielder v Ohio Edison Co. 158 Ohio St 375, 109 NE2d 855, 35 ALR2d 1365. More summarily defined, a cause of action is the right which a party has to institute a judicial proceeding. 1 Am J2d Actions § 1. A cause of action is to be distinguished from right of action. A right of action is the right to enforce presently a cause of action, that is, a remedial right; a cause of action, on the other hand, is the operative fact or facts which give rise to a right of action. 1 Am J2d Actions § 2. A cause of action is a matter of substance concerned with the violation of a right, not a matter of remedy. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 45. But "cause of action" is synonymous with "action" in the sense that the survival of an "action" is the survival of a "cause of action." 1 Am J2d Abat & R § 1.

[183]

See accrual of cause of action; identity of causes of action; joinder of causes of action; misjoinder of causes of action; separate cause of action; splitting a cause of action.

cause of loss. See proximate cause; risks and causes of loss.

causeway. Webster defines the word as a way raised above the natural level of the ground by stones, earth, timber, fascines, etc., serving as a dry passage over wet or marshy ground, or as a mole to confine water to a pond or restrain it from overflowing lower ground. O. & R. V. R. Co. v Severin, 30 Neb 318, 322.

causidical. Relating to pleading.

causidicus. An advocate; a pleader.

cautela. Caution; vigilance.

cauti juratoria. Caution juratory.

cautio. Caution; care; security.

cautio fidejussoria. Security by way of a surety bond.

caution. Care; prudence; regard for danger; a written notice filed in the office of the registrar of land titles warning against dealing with the land without giving notice to the person filing the caution.

cautionary. By way of pledge or security; admonishing or warning.

cautionary instruction. An instruction to the jury in which the court admonishes the jury to be vigilant against external influence; to refrain from conversing with anyone about the case while the trial is in progress; etc.

cautionary judgment. A judgment entered against a defendant as a lien against his property, in order to secure the plaintiff for the amount which may become due him on the final disposition of the case, where it appears that the defendant is about to remove or fraudulently transfer his property. Seisner v Blake, 13 Pa 333.

cautione admittenda. See de cautione admittenda.

cautioner. A surety.

caution juratory, Security by means of an oath.

caution-money. Money paid as security for the performance of an obligation or contract.

cautionry. Suretyship; becoming surety.

cautio pignoratitia. Security by way of pledge.

cautio pro expensis. Security for expenses.

cautious. Prudent; in a secondary sense, the term, standing without the qualification of "reasonably," implies, to some people at least, the idea of being fearful, timorous, or overly prudent. Jenkins v Gilligan, 131 Iowa 176, 108 NW 237.

There may be an infinitesimal shade of difference between "cautious" and "prudent," but a reasonably prudent person and a reasonably cautious person are substantially the same, and possess identical significance for all practical purposes. Certainly the words "cautious" and "prudent" are used interchangeably in defining negligence. Malcolm v Mooresville Cotton Mills, 191 NC 727, 730, 133 SE 7.

cautio usufructuaria. Security against a tenant's waste.

cav. An abbreviation of cavalry.

c. a. v. An abbreviation of "curia advisare vult," the court wishes to deliberate.

cavalry. Soldiers mounted on horses or, in modern times, on motorized vehicles.

caveat. Literally, a notice to beware; a notice given or placed on file to prevent action until the caveator can be heard; a statement of opposition to the probate of a will, or against its probate in a particular form, filed at any time prior to the hearing of proof of the will. 57 Am J1st Wills § 842. A notice filed by an inventor in the United States patent office, describing the invention and praying the protection of his right to a patent until he shall have matured his invention. The purpose of a caveat is to secure an opportunity to have questions of priority between rival inventors determined before the issue of a patent. Electric Railway Co. v Jamaica & Brooklyn Railroad Co. (CC NY) 61 F 655, 671.

(Ecclesiastical law) A notice usually entered with the bishop by a party of his intended opposition to prevent the institution of his antagonist's clerk in a living. By the ecclesiastical law, an institution after a caveat entered is void. See 3 Bl Comm 246.

Caveat actor. Let the doer beware.

caveatee. The person propounding an instrument for probate as a will. 57 Am J1st Wills § 793; more broadly defined as a person bound by the caveat of another.

Caveat emptor. Let the buyer beware; a maxim of the common law expressing the rule that the buyer purchases at his peril. Implied warranties in the sale of personal property are exceptions to the rule thus expressed. 46 Am J1st Sales § 337. The maxim is applicable to sales of real estate in respect of conditions of the premises open to observation. 55 Am J1st V & P § 79. The doctrine of the maxim applies in its utmost vigor and strictness to judicial sales, so that the purchaser takes upon himself the risk of finding outstanding rights that could have been asserted against the parties to the proceedings and which necessarily affect the title conveyed to him. 30A Am J Rev ed Jud S § 180.

Caveat emptor; qui ignorare non debuit quod jus alienum emit. Let the buyer beware; he who should not ignore the fact that he is purchasing the right of another.

caveator. (Patent law.) A person who files a caveat; a person who opposes the probate of an instrument propounded for probate as a will. 57 Am J1st Wills § 793.

Caveat venditor. Let the seller beware, Caveat venditor is not the law if by it is intended anything more than that it is the seller's duty to do what the ordinary man would do in a similar situation. Pantebakos v Rockingham Light

[184]

& Power Co. 81 NH 441, 128 A 534, 38 ALR 1063, 1065.

Caveat viator. Let the traveler beware.

Cavendum est a fragmentis. Beware of fragments.

caver. In Derbyshire, a thief who stole ore from a mine.

cavere. To beware; to take care; to be cautious.

cay. A quay or wharf; a sandbank or reef off a shore.

cayagium. Wharfage duties.

C. B. An abbreviation of "common bench"; "chief baron."

cc. Abbreviation for cubic centimeters.

C. C. An abbreviation of "county commissioner, "county court," "cepi corpus," "civil code, "criminal cases," "civil cases," "crown cases," "circuit court."

C. C. A. Abbreviation for Circuit Court of Appeals.

CCC. Abbreviation for Commodity Credit Corporation, also for Civilian Conservation Corps.

ccm. Abbreviation for centimeter.

C. C. P. An abbreviation of "court of common pleas;" "code of civil procedure."

c.d. Abbreviation of discount for cash.

ce. See en ce.

ceapgild. The payment of an animal.

cease. To stop; to discontinue; to go out of existence. Oakland Paving Co. v Hilton, 69 Cal 479, 11 P 3.

cease and desist order. An order by an administrative agency which requires that certain practices specified be stopped. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 467. Thus, an order of a National Labor Relations Board restraining an employer from an unfair labor practice. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 301.

cede. The precise meaning of the word depends somewhat on the subject matter with which it is connected. In some instances, it is used in the sense of "grant," but ordinarily it means to yield; to surrender; to give up. Mayor & City Council v Turnpike Road, 80 Md 535, 542. Thus, a person grants, conveys, or deeds land, whereas a nation transfers territory by "ceding it." The word is also familiar in the law of reinsurance, expressing the act whereby an insurer, by contract known as a "treaty," transfers its risks or some of its risks to, or reinsures them with, another insurer.

See cession.

cedent. An assignor.

cedo. The word of grant in a Mexican conveyance. Mulford v Le Franc, 26 Cal 88, 108.

cedula. (Spanish.) A promissory note.

Cedunt arma togae. Let arms yield to the toga, that is, let war yield to peace.

ceiling. The top part of a room, opposite the floor. A top or limit, as a ceiling on the price of a specific article.

celation. The concealment by a woman of her pregnancy.

celebrate. To solemnize; to give due publicity to an event.

celebration of marriage. The performance of the ritual of a marriage publicly and solemnly; in the modern terminology of the law, the taking of the marriage vows before a person authorized to perform marriage ceremonies; the performance of the formal act or ceremony by which a man and woman contract marriage and assume the status of husband and wife. 35 Am J1st Mar § 25; giving utterance to and public evidence of the contract of marriage. Howard v Kelly, 111 Miss 285, 71 So 391.

celibacy. The state of being unmarried, particularly of one under vow to remain unmarried.

cellar. A storeroom; an underground space, usually but not necessarily below a building.

cemetery. A place or area set apart, either by governmental authority or private enterprise, for the interment of the dead. 14 Am J2d Cem § 1. The term is used interchangeably with "graveyard", "burial ground", and "place of burial". Anno: 50 ALR2d 907. It includes not only lots for depositing the bodies of the dead, but also avenues, walks, and grounds for shrubbery and ornamental purposes. The controlling circumstance in the creation of a cemetery is not the burial of the dead, but the act of setting the ground apart for burial and distinguishing it from the surrounding territory as a place of burial. Villa Park v Wanderer's Rest Cemetery Co. 316 Ill 226, 147 NE 104.

cemetery lot. See burial lot.

cemetery purposes. Use for a cemetery in the conventional sense, also use for a crematory for the reduction of dead bodies to ashes and a columbarium for the preservation of the ashes. Moore v United States Cremation Co. 275 NY 105, 544, 9 NE2d 795, 11 NE2d 743, 113 ALR 1124.

cenegild. A fine paid by a murderer to his victim's relatives.

cenninga. A notice given by a vendee to his vendor that the goods sold have been claimed by a third person.

cens. An annual payment to a superior lord made as a tribute to his superiority.

censaria. A farm, or house and land, let at a standing rent. -Cowell.

censarii. Farmers.

cense. An assessment; a tax; a census.

censitaire. A tenant who paid "cens."

censive. The land the tenant of which paid a " cens."

censo. Spanish for ground rent. Trevino v Fernandez, 13 Tex 630, 655.

ensor. Noun: A high Roman officer who with his co-censor kept the census, attended to matters involving public manners and morals, and administered public finances; in modern usage, a person authorized to view a picture, read a book or article, or see a musical play or dramatic production, and determine whether or not such picture, book, article, or production is objectionable as indecent, obscene, or immoral; also, an officer of the armed forces authorized to read letters written by servicemen for the purpose of deleting portions from which the enemy might gain intelligence. Verb: To strike out as objectionable.

censo reservativo. In Spanish-American grants,-the right to receive from another an annual pension by virtue of having transferred land to him by full and perfect title. Trevino v Fernandez, 13 Tex 630, 656.

[185]

ensorship. An examination of a picture, article, book, motion picture, or play for the purpose of appraising its decency and prohibiting publication or production where the same is found objectionable as indecent, obscene, or immoral; striking from letters of men in the armed services portions which might give intelligence to the enemy.

censuere. A judgment or decree of the Roman senate.

censumethidus. In the dead hand.

See mortmain.

censure. Severe criticism; condemnation; obloquy. Bettner v Holt, 70 Cal 270, 275, 11 P 713.

census. An official enumeration of the population of inhabitants of a country, state, county, city, or other political subdivision or administrative district. 14 Am J2d Census § 1; a decennial official count by the government of the United States of the inhabitants and wealth of the country and the taking of other statistics.

Census Bureau. An agency within, and under, the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce, having the function of administering the federal census laws. 14 Am J2d Census § 3.

census regalis. The royal revenue, including forfeitures to the Crown.

cent. A penny; an abbreviation of "centum," one hundred; centime, centigrade.

cental. An English weight measure of one hundred pounds.

centena. A hundred.

centenarii. Plural of centenarius.

centenarius. A term of early France, later introduced to England, meaning the head of it "hundred," that is, a military force of one hundred freemen.

centeni. The principal inhabitants of a district composed of different villages, originally in number a hundred, but afterwards only called by that name; and who probably gave the same denomination to the district out of which they were chosen. See 3 Bl Comm 34.

center of gravity theory. A theory in the subject of conflict of laws, that the execution, validity, construction, and performance of a contract should be governed by the law of the place with which the matter in dispute has the most significant contacts, instead of looking to the place of execution or of performance, or to the intention of the parties, to determine which law shall govern. 16 Am J2d Confl L § 42.

center of intersection. The point where the center line of one street or road meets the center line of the other, both lines being drawn parallel to and halfway between the curbs and projected to the point of meeting. Stewart v Olson, 188 Wis 487, 206 NW 909, 44 ALR 1292.

center of road. A point in the middle of the road equidistant from the termini. If the road has not been surveyed it is impossible to locate the point with exactness. Rice v Douglas County, 93 Or 551, 183 P 768.

centesima. One one-hundredth part; one per cent.

centime. A coin representing the one hundredth part of a franc.

centimeter. A linear measure of the metric system, equivalent to 0.3937 inches.

centner. A hundredweight.

Central Bank. A bank in a foreign country which is the fiscal agent of the foreign country. Bank of China v Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust Co. (Two Cases) (CA9 Cal) 209 F2d 467, 48 ALR2d 172; a bank established by statute in 1933. with 12 regional banks to provide a source of credit for farm co-operatives, operating under the Farm Credit Administration. 12 USC §§ 1134 et seq.

See International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

Central Intelligence Agency. A federal agency operating to coordinate all intelligence activities of the United States, to obtain information vital to the security of the country from military and diplomatic sources, and also from its own field agents, to sift and analyze the reports obtained from the various sources, draw conclusions therefrom, and present such conclusions to the National Security Council.

centralization of schools. A modern movement in the interest of economy, more efficient administration, and improvement in education, whereby all the schools of an entire area, such as a township, a part of a county, two or more townships, or part of one township and part of another township, sometimes part of one county and part of another county, are brought together into one centralized district, in which one or more, usually several, public schools shall be maintained, the most common system being to have one high school and a number of separate schools, each of which is equipped for the education of one or two grades, from kindergarten or first grade through the eighth grade, transportation of pupils in busses being provided all pupils.

centralized district. A school district established in the centralization of schools.

See centralization of schools.

central time. See standard time.

centum. One hundred.

centumviri. The one hundred and five Roman judges who were appointed to decide common causes among the people. See 3 Bl Comm 515.

century. The Roman hundred; a period of one hundred years; the twentieth century.

ceorius. A churl.

cepi. I have taken.

Cepi corpus. I have taken the body; a form of return of a warrant for the arrest of a debtor.

Cepi corpus et est in custodia. I have taken the body and it is in custody;-a form of return of an officer upon executing a writ for the seizure of a person.

Cepi corpus et paratum habeo. I have the body and I have it ready; formal words used in the return on a writ for the arrest of a person.

Cepit. He took.

[186]

Cepit et abduxit. He took and led away.

Cepit et asportavit. He took and carried away.

Cepit in alio loco. He took in another place; a form of plea in a replevin action.

ceppagium. The stumps of felled trees.

ceps. The stocks in which offenders were confined.

cere. Wax; a wax seal.

cerebral embolism. A blood clot in a blood vessel of the brain. Anno: 20 ALR 81.

cerebral hemorrhage. A flooding of the brain by blood, resulting from the breaking of a blood vessel.

cerebral palsy. A most pitiful affliction, suffered at birth usually, arising from an injury to the brain, and causing paralysis.

cerebral vascular disability. See cerebral hemorrhage.

ceremony. See celebration of marriage.

Certa debet esse intentio, et narratio et certum fundamentum, et certa res quae deducitur in iudicium. The intention, declaration, foundation, and matter brought to judgment ought to be certain.

certain. Free from doubt.

certain information that a felony has been committed. Information of circumstances sufficiently strong to warrant a cautious man in the belief that the person arrested has committed a felony were held sufficient. Burton v McNeill, 196 SC 250, 13 SE2d 10, 133 ALR 603.

certain is that which can be rendered certain. Leaving no scope for application of rule of construction against the grantor. Elterich v Leicht, Real Estate Co. 130 Va 224, 107 SE 735, 18 ALR 441.

certain services. Base services, stinted in quantity and not to be exceeded. See 2 Bl Comm 61.

certainty. Clarity; accuracy; precision; particularity.

See definiteness.

certainty of allegation. Precision and particularity, as opposed to ambiguity and generality, but reasonable certainty is all that can be demanded of the pleader. David v David's Admr. 66 Ala 139, 148.

certainty of damages. Having a basis for a reasoned conclusion; a reasonable basis for computation; absolute exactness of calculation is not a requisite. Palmer v Connecticut Railway & Lighting Co. 311 US 544, 85 L Ed 336, 61 S Ct 379.

certa res. A certain matter or thing.

certa scientia. See ex certa scientia.

certifiable questions. Single or particular questions, as to distinct propositions of law actually presented in the case, and which are material, and will aid the lower court in determining the case before it. 5 Am J2d A & E § 1026.

certificando. See de certificando.

certificate. A formal statement intended as an authentication of the fact asserted and set forth, usually under seal where made by a public officer.

See license.

certificate into chancery. The decision of a court of law on a matter submitted for such decision by a court of chancery.

certificate of abstracter. A statement appended by an abstracter of titles at the end of an abstract prepared by him, showing the records of title covered by the search, and, in addition, the date from which the search made by him ran and the day and hour at which it terminated. 1 Am J2d Abstr T § 5.

certificate of accountant. An accountant's license to practice as a certified public accountant. 1 Am J2d Accts § 2; the statement by a certified public accountant, or other accountant, employed to examine the books of a corporation, partnership, or individual engaged in business, or of a charitable corporation, appended to the financial statement of the corporation, partnership, or individual, that he has examined the books and accounts of the corporation, partnership, or individual, and that the financial statement is a true representation of the financial condition of the business conducted or the charity administered.

certificate of acknowledgment. The written evidence of an acknowledgment by the officer who takes the acknowledgment, which states in substance that the person named therein was known to and appeared before him and acknowledged the instrument to be his act and deed. 1 Am J2d Ack § 1. The certificate is to be signed by the officer taking the acknowledgment. 1 Am J2d Ack §48. Whether or not a seal is required depends upon the provisions of local statute. If the statute does not in express terms or by clear implication require a seal, the want of a seal does not invalidate the certificate, even when it is executed by a notary public or commissioner of deeds. But if the attributable statute requires that the certificate bear the seal of the officer or requires that the officer taking the acknowledgment authenticate his acts by the use of his seal, the omission of the seal from the certificate is fatal. 1 Am J2d Ack § 50.

certificate of architect or engineer. A formal approval in writing by architect or engineer of the performance by the contractor under a building contract, usually required under the terms of a building or construction contract as a condition of the contractor's right to compensation. 13 Am J2d Bldg Contr § 32. The certificate is either one of completion or of progress, the latter being one given during the progress of the work, certifying as to the extent or value of the work done or materials furnished, its purpose being to enable the contractor to collect, under the terms of the contract, the portion or instalment of the contract price for work performed or materials furnished to date. 13 Am J2d Bldg Contr §§ 32 et seq.

certificate of arrival. A certificate which, under a former statute, was required of an alien seeking citizenship, the requirement being that the certificate be filed with the petition for citizenship. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 148.

certificate of assize. A writ under which a second trial of the same cause by the same jury was had because of a failure of justice through an error of the court. See 3 Bl Comm 389.

certificate of authentication. The certificate of an officer of a court of record, or like official, to the effect that the officer taking an acknowledgment or proof by affidavit was, at the date thereof, such officer as he claimed to be, and authorized to take the acknowledgment or proof, and that signature appended to the acknowledgment or proof is the genuine signature of the officer. Such certificate is sometimes known as a county clerk's certificate. 1 Am J2d Ack § 78; the authentication of a document or copy by the officer, such as a clerk of court, who has custody of the document. 30 Am J2d Ev § 997.

[187]

certificate of birth. See birth certificate.

certificate of citizenship. A certificate issued by a court of naturalization that a person has been admitted to citizenship on application made and proceedings had thereon; a certificate by the Attorney General of the United States that a person has acquired citizenship by the naturalization of his parents, or circumstances other than by application and proceedings for naturalization, and the taking of an oath of allegiance. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 156.

certificate of completion. See certificate of architect or engineer.

certificate of conformity. A certificate by an officer of a court, usually the clerk of court, or other proper officer, that an acknowledgment or proof by affidavit is in conformity with law. Such certificate is often combined with a certificate of authenticity. 1 Am J2d Ack § 78. certificate of corporate stock. See stock certificate.

certificate of costs. A certificate of the trial judge in an action of trespass attesting the fact that the trespass complained of was wilful and malicious. When such a certificate was made, the plaintiff became entitled to full costs, whether they exceeded his damages or not. See 3 Bl Comm 214.

certificate of death. See death certificate.

certificate of deposit. A written acknowledgment by a bank or banker on the receipt of a sum of money on deposit which the bank or banker promises to pay to the depositor, to the order of the depositor, or to some other person or to his order, whereby the relation of debtor and creditor between the bank and the depositor is created. 10 Am J2d Banks § 455: a writing having the requisites of negotiability and consisting of an acknowledgment by a bank of receipt of money with an engagement to repay it. UCC § 3-104(2).

Certificates of deposit are divided into two classes as regards time of payment, that is, demand certificates and time certificates. 10 Am J2d Banks § 455.

certificate of engineer. See certificate of architect or engineer.

certificate of entry. A certificate issued by the government upon the making of an entry of public land. 42 Am J1st Pub L § 34.

certificate of graduation. A certificate given upon graduation from a school.

certificate of identity. A certificate, otherwise known as a certificate of alien registration, which a alien obtains upon registration. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 112.

certificate of incorporation. Same as articles of incorporation.

certificate of indebtedness. An instrument issued by a building and loan association for borrowed money. 13 Am J2d B & L Assoc § 10: an obligation issued by a receiver, trustee, or debtor in possession, for money borrowed for the purpose of continuing the operation of the bankrupt's or debtor's business while bankruptcy proceedings or reorganization proceedings continue. 9 Am J2d Bankr §§ 1308, 1357, 1555; one of an issue of instruments by a public body to obtain funds for carrying on the administration of government, being similar to a bond in the respect that both are promises to pay a sum certain at a definite time or times. 43 Am J1st Pub See § 12. For many years the form of obligation used to raise money for municipal improvements when the loan was for a large sum and intended to cover a long term of years was an instrument under seal known as a "certificate of loan," with certificates of interest attached, payable to the bearer at particular times within the year, at some particular place, being a part of the contract from which they must be cut off to be presented for payment. These certificates of loan are now known as coupon bonds. Amey v Allegheny City (US) 24 How 364, 16 L Ed 614.

certificate of loan. See certificate of indebtedness.

certificate of membership. Sometimes called a benefit certificate, issued to a member of a mutual benefit society, constituting the contract between him and the corporation, but construed and governed by its charter constitution, and bylaws.

The certificate is in effect a policy of life insurance, albeit of a distinctive character. Supreme Council Catholic Knights of America v Densford, 21 Ky LR 1574, 56 SW 172. Certificates are also used to represent membership in fraternal orders, social clubs, and various societies organized for charitable purposes.

certificate of mutual benefit society. See certificate of membership.

certificate of naturalization. See certificate of citizenship.

certificate of notary public. See notary's certificate.

certificate of partnership. A certificate showing the names of all of the members of the partnership, the filing of which is required by law in a number of states, under penalty of not being entitled to maintain or defend actions in the courts unless the statutes are complied with. See 40 Am J1st Partri § 431.

Certificate of progress. See certificate of architect or engineer.

certificate of protest. See protest.

certificate of public convenience and necessity. A certificate from a public service commission as a prerequisite to the construction or extension of a public utility plant or system. 43 Am J1st Pub Util § 198; a certificate, issued by the appropriate regulatory commission to a common carrier by motor vehicle, which confers the privilege of operating upon the public highway, sometimes regarded as a rebuttable license, but in other states deemed to be a definite economic asset, and a franchise. 13 Am J2d Car § 78; a certificate issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission evidencing its permission to the holder thereof to operate as a common carrier between named points in different states upon the conditions and in the manner set forth in the certificate. Inland Motor Freight v United States (DC Idaho) 36 F Supp 885.

certificate of qualification. See license.

certificate of receiver. See certificate of indebtedness.

certificate of registration. The certificate obtained by an alien upon registration. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 112; an authorization, otherwise known as a license, to use a designated motor vehicle upon the highways of the state. 7 Am J2d Auto § 53.

[188]

certificate of sale. A certificate given by the sheriff or other officer conducting a sale under execution, in a jurisdiction where such a sale is subject to redemption by the owner or execution defendant for a fixed period of time, which declares the making of a sale to a designated purchaser and the right of the purchaser to receive a deed from the sheriff or other officer upon presentation of the certificate after the expiration of the redemption period. 30 Am J2d Exec § 393 et seq. certificate of sale for taxes.

See tax certificate of sale.

certificate of stock. See stock certificate.

certificate of teacher. See teacher's certificate.

certificate of title. An instrument, issued by a registrar or other public officer, intended to show who is the owner of the motor vehicle described in the instrument. 7 Am J2d Auto § 24; the certificate issued by the registrar of titles, in a jurisdiction where titles to real estate are registered under the Torrens or a similar system, after a proceeding for registration or, in a case of the transfer of a registered title, upon the filing of a transfer of title by a grantee or purchaser.

certificate of trustee. See certificate of indebtedness.

certification. The return of a writ; a formal attestation of a matter of fact, that is, the making of a certificate of any kind.

certification of bond. The identification of a bond by a mortgage trustee as one of the series of bonds mentioned and described in the mortgage. Bauernschmidt v Maryland Trust Co. 89 Md 507, 43 A 790.

certification of check. See certified check.

certification of question. A practice, based on a procedure first developed in the federal courts, under which an entire case or a specific question of law involved in a case, may be sent from a lower to a higher court for decision. 5 Am J2d A & E § 1025.

certification of record on appeal. The signature by the judge to the bill of exceptions and attestation by the clerk of court, under the seal of the court, to the signature. 4 Am J2d A & E §§ 466, 467.

certification proceeding. A proceeding of a nonadversary, fact-finding character in which the National Labor Relations Board acts the part of disinterested investigator seeking merely to ascertain the desires of the employees as to their representation. Southern S. S. Co. v NLRB (CA3) 120 F2d 505.

certified case. See case certified; certification of question.

certified check. A check upon which the drawee bank has stamped or written the words "certified," "good," "accepted," or an equivalent expression, with the signature of the certifying officer, the effect of which stamp is equivalent to an acceptance of a bill of exchange by the drawee. 10 Am J2d Banks § 587.

The certification of a check by a bank that it is good, is similar to the accepting of a bill, for the banker thereby admits assets, and makes himself liable to pay. By the law merchant such certification is equivalent to acceptance. It implies that the check is drawn upon sufficient funds in the hand of the drawee, that they have been set apart for its satisfaction, and that they shall be so applied whenever the check is presented for payment. It is an undertaking that the check is good then, and shall continue good; and this agreement is as binding on the bank as its notes of circulation, a certificate of deposit payable to the order of the depositor, or any other obligation it can assume. First Nat. Bank v Currie, 147 Mich 72, 110 NW 499.

certified copy. A copy certified as true by the officer to whose custody the original is entrusted. 29 Am J2d Ev § 910.

See certificate of authentication.

certified public accountant. One who has received from a commission, board, or proper officer a certificate qualifying him to practice as a certified public accountant. Frazer v Shelton, 320 111 253, 150 NE 696, 43 ALR 1086.

certified question. See certification of question.

certify. To authenticate by a certificate; to vouch for a thing in writing; a certificate is an authoritative attestation, and any form which affirms the fact in writing is sufficient. Re Kostohris' Estate, 96 Mont 226, 29 P2d 829; to assert in writing the correctness of identity of an instrument. Sawyer v Lorenzen, 149 Iowa 87, 127 NW 1091.

certiorando. See de certiorando.

certiorari. A method of review of the action taken by an administrative agency. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 625; a writ issued by a superior to an inferior court of record, or to some other tribunal or officer exercising a judicial function, requiring the certification and return of the record and proceedings in order that the record may be revised and corrected in matters of law. It is a common law writ, but usually provided for by statute. 14 Am J2d Cert § 1.

cert money. Yearly payments made to the lord of the manor for the keeping of the leet.

Certum est quod certum reddi potest. That is certain which is capable of being rendered certain. Wells v Alexandre, 130 NY 642, 29 NE 142.

cervisia. Beer.

cervus. A stag.

cesionario. An assignee.

cess. To neglect a legal duty; a tax.

Cessante causa, cessat effectus. The cause ceasing, the effect ceases.

Cessante ratione cessat, et ipsa lex. The reason for the law having ceased, the law itself ceases.

Cessante ratione legis cessat, et ipsa lex. Where the reason for the existence of a law ceases, the law itself should also cease. The maxim means that no common-law rule can survive the reasons on which it is founded. It needs no statute to change it; it abrogates itself. If the reasons on which a law rests are overborne by opposing reasons, which, in the progress of society, gain controlling force, the old law, though still good as an abstract principle, and good in its application to some circumstances, must cease to apply or to be a controlling principle to the new circumstances. Beardsley v Hartford, 50 Conn 542.

Cessante statu primitivo, cessat derivatus. The primary state ceasing, the derivative ceases also.

cessare. To cease; to stop.

[189]

Cessa regnare, si non vis judicare. Cease to rule, if you do not wish to judge.

cessavit per biennium. He ceased for two years,-a writ, also called a "cessavit" which lay by statute for a landlord to recover land from his tenant after two years of failure to pay rent or to render the prescribed services. The writ also lay for the donor of land to a religious house on condition of performing some religious service, after neglect of such service for two years. See 3 Bl Comm 232.

cesse. Same as cess.

cesser. A ceasing or stopping.

cesser clause. A stipulation in a charter party that the charterer's liability thereunder shall cease when the vessel is loaded and the bills of lading are signed, the owner agreeing to settle with the consignees of the cargo all questions regarding freight, demurrage, and other liabilities, under the protection of his lien for charges. It is intended to free the charter, on his furnishing a full cargo, from possible liabilities cast upon him by the terms of the charter party, which, by its terms, he might otherwise personally be called on to discharge after the full cargo had been shipped on board. 48 Am J1st Ship § 325.

cesset executio. An order directing a stay of execution.

cesset processus. An order directing a stay of proceedings in the action.

cessio. A cession.

cessio bonorum. (Roman law.) The right of an impoverished debtor to anticipate his creditors by voluntarily ceding his estate to them and thereby exempt himself from imprisonment and from infamy. It was doubtless the ancestor of our modern bankruptcy law. Sturges v Crowninshield (US) 4 Wheat 122, 4 L Ed 529.

cession. A surrender; a giving up; a relinquishment of jurisdiction by a board in favor of another agency. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 213; the transfer of territory by one nation to another.

See cede.

cessionary. An assignee.

cessionary bankrupt. An assignor for the benefit of his creditors.

cession des biens. An assignment for the benefit of one's creditors.

cessment. An assessment or tax.

cessor. A tenant who by neglect to pay rent was liable to a writ of cessavit.

cessure. Same as cesser.

c'est ascavoir. (French.) That is to say.

C'est le crime qui fait la honte, et non pas l'échafaud. It is the crime which brings disgrace, not the scaffold.

cestui. A short form for cest in que trust; the beneficiary of a trust.

cestui que trust. The beneficiary of a trust; the person for whose benefit property is held in trust by a trustee. See 54 Am J1st Trusts § 136.

cestui que use. Also spelled cestuy que use. -A person for whose use land was granted to another. See 2 BL Comm 328.

cestui que vie. A person for the duration of whose lifetime an estate has been granted.

cestuis que trustent. Plural of cestui que trust.

cestuy. Same as cestui.

Cestuy, que doit inheriter al pere, doit inheriter al fils. He who should inherit from the father, should inherit from the son.

cet. That.

cetera. See et cetera.

ceux. Those.

cf. An abbreviation of "confer," "compare."

c/f. Bookkeeping abbreviation for carried forward.

C. F. Abbreviation for cost and freight.

C. F. I. Abbreviation for cost, freight, and insurance.

CFR. Abbreviation of Code of Federal Regulations.

eg. Abbreviation for centigram.

C. G. Abbreviation of Coast Guard, also of Consul General.

c.h. Abbreviation for custom house.

Ch. Abbreviation for chapter.

c. h. An abbreviation of "courthouse."

chace. A chase; a hunting preserve.

chacea. A chase; a hunting preserve.

chaceable. Subject to the sport of hunting, as chaceable animals.

chacea est ad communem legem. A chase exists by the common law.

chafewax. A chancery officer who attended to the wax used in sealing writs.

chaffer. Goods; wares; merchandise.

chain. A series of metal links or rings, connected or fitted into one another, used as a hitch or as a secure binding of a load otherwise not stable, for example, the binding of a truckload of logs; a watch chain; a gold or silver chain on a locket; a linear measure of 100 links, each 7.92 inches long, or 66 feet in all. This, known as Gunter's chain, is in common use and is used in public land surveys. Another much less common chain is the engineer's chain of 100 links each one foot long.

chain-gang. A number of convicts chained together, usually for labor; a work gang of convicts or jail prisoners working on a highway, canal, or other public improvement.

chain of causation. Such a succession of events as link an act or legal cause with a result or damage; an element of proximate cause. 38 Am J1st Negl § 56.

chain of title. The successive conveyances and devolutions of title, commencing with the patent from the government or some other source and ending with the conveyance or devolution to the person claiming title presently. Capper v Poulsen, 321 Ill 480, 482, 152 NE 587, 588.

chain reaction. A series of events, each of which is productive of or influential upon the succeeding event; a term applied especially to nuclear reaction.

chairman. The presiding officer of a deliberative body.

[190]

chairman of the board. The person in the chair, that is, the person who presides at the meeting of the board of a corporation of any kind. Although the nature and the duties of this office varies as between corporations, usually the top executive is the president rather than the chairman of the board.

chaldron. A coal measure of thirty-six bushels.

challenge. Noun: An objection; an exception. Verb: To object; to take exception to.

challenge for actual bias. Same as challenge to the favor.

challenge for cause. An objection to a juror, made on voir dire for cause stated, that is, pointing out the ground upon which the juror is disqualified.

See challenge for principal cause; challenge to the favor.

challenge for favor. Same as challenge to the favor.

challenge for principal cause. An objection lodged against a juror on voir dire on the ground of an absolute disqualification, such as consanguinity or relationship within the prohibited degree, leaving nothing to the discretion of the court in reference to the determination of the likelihood of actual bias. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 147.

challenge of judge. See rescusation.

challenge propter affectum. A challenge to a juror on the ground of bias or partiality. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 157.

challenge propter defectum. A challenge to a juror for cause on account of some deficiency in the man himself, as that he is an alien or an ex-convict. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 157.

challenge propter delictum. The challenge to a juror on the ground of infamous crime. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 157.

challenge propter honoris respectum. A challenge to a lord of Parliament on the jury panel. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 157.

challenge to duel. See challenge to fight.

challenge to fight. To confront a person, either directly or through another known as a second, with writing, spoken words, or conduct which conveys the intention, at least somewhat formally, to duel or fight with him. 25 Am J2d Duel § 2.

Challenge to juror. An objection to a juror made on voir dire.

See challenge for cause; peremptory challenge.

challenge to the array. See challenge to the panel.

challenge to the favor. An objection lodged against an individual juror for bias, such to be determined by the trial court acting in the exercise of a sound discretion. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 147.

challenge to the panel. An objection lodged against the entire panel from which the trial jury in a particular case is to be selected, based on some legal defect, partiality, or other misconduct of an officer in summoning the panel. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 147.

challenge to the poll. A challenge to an individual juror. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 147.

chamber. See bill chamber; coal chamber.

chamber business. A term applied to all such judicial business as may properly be transacted by a judge in his chambers or elsewhere, as distinguished from such as must be done by the court in session; all business done out of court by the judge. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v Long, 122 Okla 86, 251 P 486.

chamber-counselor. A lawyer who counsels and advises, but does not appear in court.

chamberlain. A treasurer.

chamberlaria. A chamberlain.

chamber of accounts. A French court corresponding to the English court of exchequer.

chamber of commerce. A board of trade; an association of business men or industrialists of a city and its environs, organized and operating to promote and safeguard the commercial interests of the city and surrounding territory.

Chamber of Commerce Arbitration Court. See Court of Arbitration of the Chamber of Commerce.

chamber of deputies. The popular house of the English parliament; the assembly, in France, Italy and Spain.

chambers. The place, other than the courtroom, where a judge transacts the business of the court. 30A Am J Rev ed Judges § 35; a judge's private office, usually near, but not a part of, the courtroom; the private room or office of a judge where, for the convenience of parties, he hears such matters and transacts such business as a judge in vacation is authorized to hear, and which do not require a hearing by the judge sitting as a court; the office or private rooms of a judge, where parties are heard and orders made in matters not required to be brought before the full court. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v Long, 122 Okla 86, 251 P 486.

chambers decision. A decision rendered by a judge acting in vacation. Floyd v Smith, 63 Ga App 524, 11 SE2d 719.

chambers judgment. A judgment rendered by a judge in a proceeding at chambers. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 53.

The proceedings of a session are properly part of the record on appeal, although the session was held in chambers. Gibson v Southern Pacific Co. 137 Cal App 2d 337, 290 P2d 347, 63 ALR2d 1205 (motion for directed verdict, heard outside presence of jury).

chambers of the king. The harbors of England.

chambers order. An order rendered by a judge sitting in chambers.

champart. A French law term signifying a division of profits, being a part of the crop annually due the landlord by bargain or custom. See 4 Bl Comm 135.

champarty. Same as champerty.

champertia. See de champertia.

champertor. A person who commits champerty; the person who makes champertous agreement with a plaintiff or defendant. 14 Am J2d Champ § 3.

champertous. Partaking of or tainted with champerty.

champertous assignment. An assignment of a chose in action with the sole intent and purpose of having the assignee bring a suit thereon. 14 Am J2d Champ § 10.

champertous contract. A contract having a tendency to foment or protract litigation, or transferring the control and management of a suit to one having no right or interest in the subject of the action other than such as was derived from the litigious agreement, especially a contract by an attorney at law for a contingent fee in the proceeds of an action, whereby the attorney agreed to save the client harmless from costs and expenses of the proposed litigation. 14 Am J2d Champ § 4.

champerty. A species of maintenance, being a bargain made by one called the champertor with a plaintiff or defendant for a portion of the matter involved in a suit in case of a successful termination of the action, which the champertor undertakes to maintain or carry on at his own expense. 14 Am J2d Champ § 3.

chance. Hazard, risk, or the result or issue of uncertain and unknown conditions or forces, Dixon v Plans, 98 Cal 384, 33 P 268; the possibility of something occurring without design or effort to make it occur. 34 Am J1st Lot § 6.

See game of chance.

chancellor. A judge of a court of chancery; in Scotland, the foreman of a jury.

chancellor of a diocese. An ecclesiastical officer appointed by a bishop to hold his courts for him and to assist him in matters of ecclesiastical law. See 1 Bl Comm 382.

chancellor of the exchequer. The chief financial minister of England.

chance-medley. A casual affray; such killing as happens in self-defense upon a sudden encounter. See 4 Bl Comm 184.

chancery. See court of chancery; equity; master in chancery.

chance verdict. A verdict reached by tossing a coin, drawing lots, or any method wherein the reasoning and understanding of the individual jurors plays no part in determining the result. 53 Am J1st Trial § 1029.

chandler. A retailer of groceries and other merchandise.

Chandler Act. An amendatory act approved by the President on June 22, 1938 and effective September 22, 1938, intended to modernize the law of bankruptcy, especially by adding provisions whereby debtors might be rehabilitated in their fortunes without the necessity of a complete liquidation of their assets. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 2.

change. Noun: Coin; another term for "exchange," a place for the transaction of business. Verb: To mean to put one thing in the place of another; to exchange; to alter or make different; to cause to pass from one state or place to another. Territory ex rel. Smith v Scott, 3 Dak 357, 432.

See exchange; vary.

changed conditions. Appearing in a contract for the construction of a public improvement, the term means conditions differing materially from those stated in the contract, and also unknown conditions of an unusual nature not ordinarily encountered in the kind of work provided for in the contract. Anno: 85 ALR2d 213.

change in title. See change of title.

change of abode. See change of domicil.

change of beneficiary. A clause in a life insurance policy which changes the interest of the beneficiary named from a vested to a contingent interest by reserving to the insured the right to change the beneficiary in accordance with requirements prescribed in the policy. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1675; the effecting of a change of beneficiary of a life insurance policy, such being dependent upon the capacity of the insured and the observance of the conditions for a change prescribed by statute or terms of the policy. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins §§ 1677-1689.

change of county seat. The transfer of the seat of government of a county from one place to another in the county, usually after an election on the question of change.

change of domicil. The physical abandonment of a domicil together with an intent not to return to it as a domicil, and the acquisition of a new domicil in another place by actual residence in such place with the intention of making it a permanent home. 25 Am J2d Dom § 16.

change of grade. The lowering or elevating of the degree in which a highway inclines or declines by excavating, filling, or grading. 25 Am J1st High § 39; a change in the inclination or declination of an area, such as a city lot, by excavating or filling, often made for purpose of drainage, sometimes resulting in controversies with adjoining owners in reference to the obstruction of the flow of surface waters. 56 Am J1st Wat §§ 67 et seq.

change of identity. An intermingling or intermixture of goods owned by different persons so that the property of each can no longer be distinguished; a change made in the form of an article, a transmutation in the species; the combining or uniting of materials into one single, joint product. 1 Am J2d Access § 1.

change of interest. See change of title.

change of name. The taking and adoption of a new name by a person or a business, which, in either case is usually regulated rather closely by statute. 38 Am J1st Name §§ 28-35. A change of name of a corporation requires resort to formal proceedings. 18 Am J2d Corp § 145.

change of occupation. A familiar condition in a life or accident insurance policy, normally being a condition against a change in insured's occupation to one of more hazards to life or limb, the condition having reference to the nature of duties performed, not the precise designation given to an employment. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 766.

change of possession. A conventional clause or condition of a contract for the sale of real estate. 55 Am J1st V & P § 323; a clause, in a policy insuring property against loss by fire, windstorm, etc., which provides that the policy shall become void in the event of a change in the possession of the property without the consent of the insurer. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 825.

See change of title; delivery.

change of residence. See change of domicil.

change of title. That which takes place where there is a change in ownership which carries the legal right of possession and property. 42 Am J1st Prop § 37; an instrument, filed by requirement of law, by a personal representative of a decedent's estate upon the completion of the administration, for the purpose, among other things, to show the new ownership of the estate property resulting from the death of the former owner and the devolution of the property under his will or by the laws of descent, so that the new ownership will appear in the tax records; a clause, usually appearing in policies of fire insurance or the other insurance on property to the effect that the policy shall become void in case of a sale, conveyance, or a change in the interest, title, or possession of the property insured, without the insurer's consent. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 825; a breach of the foregoing clause or condition, that is, a change of title or interest by sale or conveyance which places the risk of loss of the property upon the buyer or grantee, creates a motive for the destruction of the property, or lessens the interest of the insured in protecting it. Mackintosh v Agricultural Fire Ins. Co. 150 Cal 440; 89 P 102.

[192]

change of venue. The removal of a cause for trial from one county to another county. See 56 Am J1st Ven § 42.

change of voyage. A common term in marine insurance policies, meaning a voluntary departure, without necessity or justifiable cause, from the regular and usual course of the voyage. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1000.

channel. The bed of a stream, with well defined banks, cut through the turf and into the soil by the flowing of water, presenting on a casual glance the evidences of the frequent action of running water, and not a mere depression. 56 Am J1st Wat § 76; the part of a navigable waterway which is traversed by the traffic thereon. The Arlington (CA2 NY) 19 F2d 285.

chantry. A church endowed with land for the support of priests who prayed and sang for the welfare of the soul of the person named in the gift.

chapel. A small church.

chapel of ease. A secondary church for the use of parishioners living at a distance from the principal one.

chapelry. The legal precincts of a chapel.

chapitre. The summary of matters to be inquired of by, or presented before, justices in Byre, justices of assize, or justices of the peace; articles delivered orally or in writing by the justice to the inquest.-Wharton.

chaplain. The person who officiated in a chapel.

chaplaincy. The office of a chaplain.

In the Roman Catholic Church it is an institution founded by an individual for the purpose of celebrating or causing to be celebrated annually a certain number of masses conforming to the will of the founder. They are commonly divided into two classes-lay and ecclesiastical. Gonzalez v Roman Catholic Archbishop, 280 US 1, 74 L Ed 131, 50 S Ct 5.

chapman. An itinerant merchant.

See petty chapmen.

chap-money. Money repaid by a seller to a buyer upon full payment of the purchase price.

chappelage. The vicinity or precinct of a chapel.

chapter. A bishop's council.

See dean and chapter.

chap-woman. A female trader.

char. To reduce wood to coal by burning. Anna: 1 ALR 1169, note.

character. That which a person is as demonstrated by his acts and utterances, whether good or bad from the standpoint of morals; reputation. Michelson v United States, 335 US 469, 93 L Ed 168, 69 S Ct 213.

Character consists of the qualities which constitute the individual, while reputation is the aura of opinions entertained concerning him. The former is interior; the latter external. The one is the substance; the other the shadow. Character is what a person is. Reputation is what people say of him. But notwithstanding this distinction which is everywhere agreed upon, the two words are sometimes used, even by judges, as synonymous. United States v Hrasky, 240 Ill 560, 88 NE 1031.

"Character" is frequently used interchangeably with "reputation." In a legal sense, it means reputation as distinguished from "disposition." Character grows out of particular acts, but is not proved by them, since a person may, under the stress of special circumstances, do a thing which is contrary to his ordinary disposition and practice. The method of proving character is by showing the general reputation of the person in the neighborhood in which he lives. What is thus proved, therefore, is not a person's real character, but his character as reputed among his neighbors, or what the consensus of opinion of the neighbors is as to his character. Anna: 10 ALR 9.

Another and distinct meaning of the term "character" is that of a recommendation given an employee upon his leaving service. 35 Am J1st M & S § 39.

character evidence. Testimony relating and confined to the general reputation which the person who is subject of the inquiry sustains in the community or neighborhood in which he lives or has lived. 29 Am J2d Ev § 347.

characterization. A statement of the distinguishing characteristics of a person by way of representing him to others. A technical term for determining the nature of the question before the court, as one of tort, contract, etc. in order to determine the law applicable as between the laws of two or more jurisdictions. 16 Am J2d Contr § 3.

charbon. Another name for the disease of anthrax. Stedman v United States Mut. Acci. Asso. 123 NY 304, 25 NE 399.

charge. Noun: An obligation or indebtedness to be paid, as a charge for merchandise or services. Merchants Exchange Nat. Bank v Commercial Warehouse Co. 49 NY 635, 639; a form under which interest taken in advance. 55 Am J1st Supp Usury § 41; Houchard v Berman, 79 Ariz 381, 290 P2d 735, 57 ALR2d 627; an expense incurred in an enterprise; an item of costs or expenses in litigation; an accusation of the commission of a crime or offense, as in an information or indictment. Hale v Henkel, 201 US 43, 59, 50 L Ed 652, 659, 26 S CI 370; Rhodes v McWilson, 202 Ala 68, 79 So 462, 1 ALR 568, 577; People v Ross, 235 Mich 433, 444, 209 NW 663, 666; the technical term for the mere statement of the offense for which one is brought before a court-martial for trial, as distinguished from the "specifications" which set forth the specific acts or omissions of the accused constituting the offense. 36 Am J1st Mil § 98; a pleading in an administrative proceeding corresponding to the complaint in an action. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 371; a provision in a will which subjects real estate of the testator to the payment of debts, of the testator or of legacies under the will. 57 Am J1st Wills §§ 1470, 1484; sometimes to the payment of annuities. 4 Am J2d Annu § 12: sometimes to the payment of taxes. Anna: 37 ALR2d 135; a lien or encumbrance upon land. First Nat. Bank v Elliott, 125 Ala 646, 27 So 7; an instruction to the jury to aid them in their deliberations and assist them in arriving at a proper verdict. Gardner v State, 27 Wyo 316, 196 P 750, 15 ALR 1040, 1046; an admonition directing the jury in respect of proper conduct in their deliberations. Verb: To impose an obligation; to enter the charge made for goods or services in an account book or by any method used in keeping the accounts of customers; to accuse one of the commission of a crime or offense; to impose against a devise the obligation of paying debts of the testator or legacies provided by his will. To instruct or advise, particularly to instruct the jury.

[193]

chargeable. Capable of being charged, subject to be charged, liable to be charged, proper to be charged, or legally liable to be charged. Walbridge v Walbridge, 46 Vt 617, 625.

charge and discharge. The complainant's delivery of his account to the master in chancery and the defendant's filing of his defense thereto.

charge and specifications. The general allegation of the commission of the crime by the defendant, and the detailed facts thereof; the statement of the offense for which one is brought before a courtmartial for trial, followed by a statement of the specific acts or omissions constituting the offense. 36 Am J1st Mil § 98.

charge-back. A setting off of one debt against another.

charge d'affaires. A diplomatic representative, either a charge d'affaires ad hoc, an officer originally sent by his government, or a charge d'affaires per interim, an officer substituted in the place of the ambassador or minister to represent the nation during the latter's absence. 4 Am J2d Ambass § 1.

A consul may be appointed charge d'affaires and thus occupy a double political capacity. Ex parte Baiz, 135 US 403, 34 L Ed 222, 10 S Ct 854.

charge d'affaires ad hoc. A diplomatic representative originally sent in such status by his government. 4 Am J2d Ambass § 1.

charge d'affaires ad interim. See charge d'affaires.

charged with crime. Accused of the commission of a crime, either formally, as by indictment, information, or affidavit, or informally, as by the statement in writing or by word of mouth that a person is guilty of a specified crime. In an extradition proceeding, the question, whether an accused is "charged with crime" in the demanding state or country, is one of law and open to judicial inquiry. 31 Am J2d Extrad § 54. As the expression is used in the Federal extradition statutes, a person is charged with crime when an affidavit is filed, alleging the commission of the offense, and a warrant is issued for his arrest; and this is true whether a final trial may or may not be had upon such charge. Re Strauss, 197 US 324, 331, 49 L Ed 774, 778.

charged with notice. The condition of a person who has information which should have put him upon inquiry, if, by following up such information, with diligence and understanding, the truth could have been ascertained. 39 Am J1st Notice § 6.

charge off. An accounting term for the elimination from assets of an item of corporeal property or of an account receivable, because of loss of value rendering the corporeal property worthless or the insolvency of the person indebted upon the account rendering it uncollectible. Rubinkam v Commissioner (CA7 Ill) 118 F2d 149; a bad debt deduction for income tax purposes. 34 Am J2d Fed Tax 6450.

charge of indictment. That part of an indictment which states the facts constituting the offense of which the defendant is accused. See 27 Am J1st Indict § 54.

charge on. An income tax term, applying in accrual accounting for taxpayer's business to accrued tax exempt interest, such interest not being permitted to be accrued for any taxing purpose. District Bond Co. v Commissioner (CA9 Cal) 113 F2d 347.

charges. See charge.

charge-sheet. A police station blotter upon which are entered the names of and charges against prisoners, and the names of their accusers; a day book upon which charges are entered, later to be entered in journal or ledger.

charges upon land. See charge.

charge to enter heir. (Scotch.) A writ summoning an heir to take possession of his inheritance upon the death of his ancestor.

charge to jury. See instructions to jury.

charging lien. The lien of an attorney at law, upon a judgment, decree, or award obtained for his client in an action or proceeding, to secure the attorney for his disbursements, and his compensation for services on behalf of the client, in the action or proceeding. 7 Am J2d Attys § 281.

An attorney's special or charging lien is one which arises in favor of the attorney for his bill of costs as compensation for his services for procuring judgment, decree, or award to which it attaches. Norrell v Chasan, 125 NJ Eq 230, 4 A2d 88, 120 ALR 1238.

charging order. A term of the English practice for a court order subjecting the stock or funds in a public company, belonging to the judgment debtor, to the satisfaction of the judgment.

charging part. The part of a bill in equity following the confederating clause, under the old chancery practice, in which is a statement of all matters of evidence in regard to which discovery is desired. 27 Am J2d Eq § 181.

chariot. A half coach with four wheels, used for convenience and pleasure. Cincinnati, Lebanon, & Springfield Turnpike Co. v Neil, 9 Ohio 11, 13; a vehicle of the ancients used in war, in races, and in parades.

charitable. Having the inclination to relieve others from the burden of pain, poverty, or ignorance, and to promote the betterment of the public.

See charity.

charitable corporation. A corporation not for profit; a corporation organized for a charitable purpose, such as the relief of the poor, the care of the sick, maimed or injured, and the education of children, and adults as well, who do not have the means to educate themselves. 18 Am J2d Corp § 10.

charitable gift. A gift for a charitable purpose; something given from the love of God or of fellowmen, free from consideration of self or of gain or profit to self. Hoeffler v Clogan, 63 Am St Rep 249 and note; in its broadest meaning, something done or given for the benefit of fellowmen or the public. Taylor v Hoag, 273 Pa 194, 116 A 826, 21 ALR 946.

[194]

charitable immunity doctrine. The principle that relieves a charitable organization or trust from tort liability. 15 Am J2d Char § 152.

charitable institution. An institution organized for benevolent and charitable purposes, free from any element of private or corporate gain, and which devotes its entire revenue to the payment of current expenses and the relief of the poor and needy, albeit it may confine its benefits primarily to its own needy members and their families. Hibernian Benevolent Soc. v Kelly, 28 Or 173, 192, 42 P 3.

See charitable corporation; charity.

charitable purpose. A purpose in making a gift which comes within the definition of the term "charity"; a purpose evidenced by concrete, practical, objective charity, manifested in things actually done for the relief of the unfortunate and the alleviation of suffering, or in some work of practical philanthropy, as contrasted with the sentimental or ethical viewpoint. Scottish Rite Bldg. Co. v Lancaster County, 106 Neb 95, 182 NW 574, 17 ALR 1020, 1023.

See charity.

charitable trust. A trust for the benefit of an indefinite class of persons constituting some portion or class of the public or, more broadly defined, a trust limiting property to some public use; a gift in some manner dedicated to the ultimate benefit or betterment of the public, or some significant portion thereof, not necessarily involving illegal activities or a use contrary to public policy, for promotion of something within a recognized field of general welfare. 15 Am J2d Char § 5; a gift for the benefit of persons, either by bringing their hearts and minds under the influence of education or religion, by relieving their bodies of disease, suffering, or constraint, by assisting to establish them for life, by erecting or maintaining public buildings, or in other ways lessening the burdens or making better the condition of the general public, or some class of the general public, indefinite as to names and numbers, or, in short, a gift to a general public purpose. State ex rel. Emmert v Union Trust Co. 227 Ind 571, 86 NE2d 450, 12 ALR2d 836.

charitable trusts acts. Statutes regulating the administration of charities by the trustees thereof.

charitable use. A use for the benevolent, educational, or religious purposes or for the ultimate benefit or betterment of the public or some significant portion thereof. 15 Am J2d Char §§ 5, 6.

The Statute of Uses, 43 Elizabeth, Chapter 4, in its preamble, names twenty-one distinct charitable uses, "but upon examining the earlier English statutes and decisions, Mr. Justice Baldwin found forty-six, including all that are enumerated in the statute." A list of the twenty-one uses and also of the forty-six is to be found in note to Hoeffler v Clogan, 63 Am St Rep 252, 253.

See charitable trust.

Charitable Uses Act. An English statute of 1861, favoring conveyances for charitable uses. Am J2d Desk Book, Document 113.

charity. One of the three great virtues preached by the Apostle Paul. In law, a gift, to be applied consistently with existing laws, for the benefit of an indefinite number of persons, by bringing their hearts under the influence of education or religion, by relieving their bodies from disease, suffering, or constraint, by assisting them to establish themselves for life, or by erecting or maintaining public buildings or works, or otherwise lessening the burdens of government. 13 Am J2d Char § 3.

The scope of the word "charity" changes and enlarges with the needs of men and must advance with the progress of civilization so as to encompass varying wants of humanity properly coming within its spirit. Re Tarrant, 38 Cal 2d 42. 237 P2d 505, 28 ALR2d 419.

See works of charity.

charity child. A child reared by a charity.

charity school. A school operating on a charitable basis in giving instruction in the useful branches of learning by methods common to schools and institutions of learning, as distinguished from schools conducted primarily for teaching dancing, riding, deportment, etc. Anno: 95 ALR 63.

charivari. A mock serenade in which the "musicians" play on tin pans and kettles, old buckets, and the like for the purpose of calling persons out from their homes, particularly young married couples. Cherryvale v Hawman, 80 Kan 170, 101 P 994.

charlatan. A cheat; an impostor; a quack.

charnel. A charnel-house --a place where dead bodies are deposited.

charnel-house. See charnel.

chart. A map used by mariners, showing the seas, lakes, or rivers to be traversed on a voyage, the harbors, shoals, courses, and distances; a representation by lines and figures of developments in production and prices.

charta. A charter; a deed; a writing.

charts communis. A common deed, -an indenture.

charts cyrographata. A deed executed in two parts and divided in the middle.

Charts de feoffamento. A deed or charter of feoffment. See 2 Bl Comm 313.

Charts de Foresta. One of the two famous charters of English liberties--the other of which was Magna Charta--to which King John, and afterward his son, Henry the Third, consented. Its purpose was to redress many grievances and encroachments of the crown in the enforcement of the forest laws. See 4 Bl Comm 423.

Charts de non ente non valet. A deed of a thing not in being is void.

chartae libertatum. The charters of liberties,-the Magna Charts and the Charts de Forests. See 4 Bl Comm 423.

charta partita. A charter-party.

Chartarum super fidem, mortuis testibus, ad patriam de necessitudine, recurrendum est. If the witnesses are dead, the credibility of deeds must of necessity be referred to the country.

chartel. A challenge to single combat.

charte partie. (French.) A charterparty.

charter. A grant of power to act as a corporation under a special act of the legislature, Humphrey v Pegues, (US) 16 Wall 244, 21 L Ed 326; a grant of power to act as a corporation given by Congress; articles of incorporation, considered together with the statutes and laws respecting corporate powers. 18 Am J2d Corp §§ 26 et seq; the organic law of a mutual or fraternal benefit society; the organic law of a city or town, and representing a portion of the statute law of the state, C. J. Kubach Co . v McGuire, 199 Cal 215, 248 P 676. The demise of a vessel. 48 Am J1st Ship § 296.

[195]

See charter of affreightment; charter party.

chartered by law. Corporations organized under either a general or special law. 34 Am J1st Logs § 114.

charterer. A person who in his own right, is entitled to possess, use, and have the benefits resulting from the use of the thing hired or chartered, and those rights must be acquired by contract with persons having such dominion over the thing hired or chartered as enables them to confer on the hirer or charterer the right to use the thing hired or chartered, and to have the benefits resulting therefrom. Turner v Cross, 83 Tex 218, 18 SW 578.

A person who by contract acquires the right to use a vessel belonging to another person, in other words the lessee or grantee of a vessel under a charter or charter party of the vessel.

See charter party.

charter governments. English colonial governments in the nature of civil corporations, having power to make by-laws for their own internal regulation, not contrary to the laws of England and with such rights and authority as are specially granted to them by their charters of incorporation. Their form of government was generally borrowed from that of England. See 1 Bl Comm 108.

charter-land. Also called "book land," -land which was held by deed under certain rents and free services and which in effect did not differ from the free socage-lands. See 2 Bl Comm 90.

charter-master. A coal mining contractor.

charter money. The compensation to be paid for the use of a vessel which is generally specified in the charter party and which may be a fixed sum, or made ascertainable by a defined rule of calculation, or it may be left dependent on the profits of the adventure. 48 Am J1st Ship § 320.

charter of affreightment. An agreement, contract, lease or commitment by which the possession or services of a vessel are secured for a period of time, or for one or more voyages, whether or not a demise of the vessel. 48 Am J1st Ship § 296. Contracts of affreightment are of two kinds which differ widely in their nature and legal effect. Charterers or freighters may become the owners for the voyage without any sale or purchase of the ship, as in cases where they hire the ship and have by the terms of the contract, and assume in fact, the exclusive possession, command and navigation of the ship, and contracts for a specified voyage, as, for example to carry a cargo from one port to another, the arrangement in contemplation of law is a mere affreightment sounding in contract, and not a demise of the vessel, and the charterer or freighter is not clothed with the character or legal responsibility of ownership. Reed v United States (US) 11 Wall 591, 20 L Ed 220.

charter of bank. The general laws under which banks are created, taken together with their articles of incorporation or, where a former general practice still prevails, a special charter which authorizes the bank to do business, prescribes its powers, and regulates the manner of doing business. 10 Am J2d Banks § 20.

charter of demise. The charter of a vessel wherein the vessel is hired or rented out for a specific period or voyage without a crew, or with a crew paid by and responsible to the charterer. A demise charter is often called a "bare boat charter," notwithstanding the fact that the demised vessel may be hired with a complete staff of servants and employees on board. The Steel Inventor (DC Md) 35 F Supp 986.

Charter of Liberties. See Magna Charta.

charter of pardon. A charter granting a pardon to a person convicted of a criminal offense. Such a charter has been likened to a deed, in the sense that it is of no force and effect until it has been delivered and accepted. See 39 Am J1st Par § 13.

Charter of the Forest. See Charta de Foresta.

charter party. A maritime contract within admiralty jurisdiction. 2 Am J2d Adm § 67; a contract by which an entire ship, or some principal part thereof, is let by the owner to another person for a specified time or use. 48 Am J1st Ship § 296.

See charter of affreightment; charter of demise.

charter party representation. A stipulation in a charter party which does not go to the whole consideration on either side and is not such an essential condition that nonperformance thereof will permit the other party to declare the contract at an end. See 48 Am J1st Ship § 303.

charter party warranty. A covenant in a charter party that goes to the whole consideration on either side, on the failure or nonperformance of which the party aggrieved may repudiate the whole contract, and the plaintiff must perform the condition before he can maintain an action to enforce the liability of the other party. 48 Am J1st Ship § 303.

charter rolls. Old records of charters.

chartis reddendis. A writ to secure the return of deeds.

chartophlyax. A keeper of records or public instruments.-Spelman.

chase. Verb: To pursue. Noun: The pursuit of beasts of the chase; a hunting ground.
See beasts of the chase.

chase women. See woman chaser.

chasm. A gorge; an abyss; as a figure of speech, an omission, an event or condition which has been omitted or left unprovided for in a contract or statute.

chaste. One in a state of chastity.
See chastity.

chaste character. Actual virtue, not mere reputation for virtue. 47 Am J1st Seduc § 12.
See chastity.

chaste female. See chaste.

chastise. To punish corporally, as by whipping. People v Kehoe, 123 Cal 224, 229, 55 P 911.

chastisement. See corporal punishment.

chastity. As applied to an unmarried person, undefiled, which, in the case of a female, means one who has retained her virginity. State v Dacke, 59 Wash 238, 109 P 1050. Purity of body in the sense of never having had meretricious relations. State v Holter, 32 SD 43, 142 NW 657. Some authority applies the additional condition in respect of the unmarried female that she never have indulged in obscenity of language, indecency of conduct, or undue familiarity with men. 47 Am J1st Seduc § 13. Other authority takes the contrary view that so long as the unmarried female is a virgin, she is to be considered chaste, notwithstanding her conduct, permitting familiarities and liberties to be taken with her by men, at the thought of which, some women blush.

[196]

Married persons are chaste where faithful to the marriage vows. State v Carron, 18 Iowa 372, 375. So, a widow or divorcee may be chaste, notwithstanding she is no virgin. 47 Am J1st Seduc § 14.

chattel. See chattels.

chattel fixture. A chattel affixed to land with no express or implied intention on the part of the annexor that the chattel is to become a part of the land.

chattel interest. Any interest in land of less dignity than a freehold estate.

chattel mortgage. An instrument whereby an owner transfers title to, or creates a lien upon, personal property as security for the performance of an act, which is usually the payment of money, with the title or lien subject to defeasance upon performance. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 1; more summarily defined, with accuracy, under the law of some jurisdictions, as a bill of sale with a defeasance clause. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 1. Constituting an interest in the mortgaged property. Moody v Shuffleton, 203 Cal 100, 262 P 1095.

chattel paper. A writing or writings which evidence both a monetary obligation and a security interest in or a lease of specific goods. UCC § 9-105(1)(b).

chattels. Property which is movable and not so connected with the ground as to become a part of the real estate. State v Donahue, 75 Or 409, 144 P 755, 147 P 548, 5 ALR 1121; visible, tangible, movable, personal property. 42 Am J1st Prop § 24.

chattels personal. Things which have no concern with land, such as mere movables and rights connected with them, the term being used in distinction to "chattels real." 42 Am J1st Prop § 24.

chattels real. Interests in real estate less than freehold, such as estates for years, at will and by sufferance, which are personalty except as modified by statute. 42 Am J1st Prop § 25.

A lease of real estate for a term of years constituting an estate less than a freehold estate is a chattel real which passes a present interest in real property. Abraham v Fioramonte, 158 Ohio St 213, 107 NE2d 321, 33 ALR2d 1267.

chaud-medley. An affray in the heat of blood or passion. See 4 Bl Comm 184.

chauffeur. A person whose business or calling it is to operate and propel an automobile along the public highway. Christy v Elliott, 216 111 31, 74 NE 1035; State v Swagerty, 203 Mo 517, 603, 102 SW 483. Better defined, according to modern usage, as a person who drives a motor vehicle for another as an occupation. 7 Am J2d Auto § 103.

chantry. Same as chantry.

Chausse'e. A levee of earth, which is made along the stream to retain the water of a river or pond; a levee which is made in low, wet and swampy places to serve as a road or way. De Armas v Mayor, etc. of New Orleans, 5 La 132, 152.

Chautauqua. Meetings of an educational and entertaining character, from a sophisticated viewpoint, conducted by a literary and scientific circle or assembly at Chautauqua Lake in the southwestern part of New York State; meetings conducted elsewhere in the United States in imitation of the meetings at Chautauqua Lake. Radcliffe v Query, 153 SC 76, 150 SE 352.

cheat. See cheating; cheating or swindling.

cheating. Defrauding; obtaining an advantage by deception; a common law offense, otherwise known as "cheat," less than a felony, effected by means of some token or device having the semblance of public authenticity, such as spurious money of the realm or bank notes circulating throughout the country as a medium of exchange, fake weights and measures, or false impersonation, to the injury of one in some pecuniary interest. 22 Am J2d § 3; a slang term for being unfaithful to the marriage vows in reference to fidelity.

cheating or swindling. As the words are ordinarily used, they relate to the fraudulent causing of pecuniary or property loss. United States v Cohn, 270 US 339, 346, 70 L Ed 606, 619, 46 S Ct 251.

check. An order directed to a bank in writing for the payment of money to a person named in the instrument. Brown v Eastman Nat. Bank (Okla) 291 P2d 828, 55 ALR2d 971; a draft drawn on a bank and payable on demand. UCC § 3-104(2)(b); 10 Am J2d Banks § 538. A simple contract in writing. 34 Am J1st Lim Ac § 84.

As between the drawer and the payee, it is an evidence of indebtedness. Usually a check is given for money borrowed or a debt contracted, and, in commercial transactions, as well as in law, it is equivalent to the drawer's promise to pay, and an action may be brought against him thereon as on a promissory note. Camas Prairie State Bank v Newman, 15 Idaho 719, 99 P 833.

The verb "check means to examine for accuracy for example, the addition in an account, or for defects in a manufactured article; to draw on funds in a bank.

See cashier's check.

checkbook. A book of blank bank checks.

check cashing exchange. A business, usually located near a large industrial plant, which cashes checks for a fee.

checker. Exchequer; an American term for one whose duty it is to examine a manufactured article for possible defects.

See plant checker.

checking out. Termination of the status of a person as guest in a hotel. 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 25; the operation in a supermarket whereby the customer's purchases are totaled, payment made by him, and the merchandise placed in bags for convenience in transporting it.

checkoff. The deduction of union dues and assessments by the employer from the wages of the employee and the turning over of the amounts so deducted to the labor union. Anno: 14 ALR2d 177.

check-out. See checking out.

checkroom. A place in a hotel, restaurant, depot or other place of public accommodation where patrons may leave their luggage, articles of wearing apparel, or small items of personalty for safekeeping.

[197]

chef. A head or chief; a cook.

chemical test. A term of general application but most significant in the law respecting the method of determining intoxication. 7 Am 12d Auto § 259.

chemin. A road; a highway.

See en chemin.

chemin de fer. Railway; railroad; a game of chance which is prohibited as gambling where played for a stake. 24 Am J2d Gaming § 20.

cheque. A check; a bank check.

cherif. A sheriff.

Cherokee. The name of an Indian nation or tribe; a member of the Cherokee nation or tribe. Ephraim v Garlick, 10 Kan 280.

Chesterfield. See Lord Chesterfield's Act.

chevage. Same as chiefage.

chevaliers. See bas chevaliers.

chevantia. A loan of money.

chevisance. An agreement; an unlawful or usurious contract.

chicane. Trickery; fraud.

chicanery. Trickery; fraud of which the law takes cognizance where damage caused thereby to another.

Chickasaw. The name of an Indian nation or tribe; a member of the Chickasaw nation or tribe.

chicken hawk. A species of hawk which preys on chickens.

chicory. A plant noted for the root which is dried and ground to produce a substance, also known as "chicory," which is sometimes, particularly in some of the southern states, mixed with coffee; sometimes used as a substitute for coffee, and occasionally as an adulteration of coffee. Arthur v Herold, 100 US (10 Otto) 104, 25 L Ed 568.

chief. Noun: An officer of the highest rank or authority; a principal; a head; a leader of an Indian nation or tribe. Adjective: Primary; main; most important.

chiefage. An annual payment by villeins to their lord; a poll tax.

chief baron. The presiding judicial officer of the court of exchequer. See 3 Bl Comm 44.

chiefe. See en chiefe.

chief judge. The judge who directs the work of the court in assigning cases, instructing the officers of the court, and making the physical arrangements necessary for holding court, in a district or circuit where there is more than one judge.

See chief justice; chief magistrate.

chief justice. The presiding justice of a court with three or more justices or judges who sit together.

chief justiciar. A special magistrate or justice who presided over the Norman aula regis, being the principal minister of state and the second man in the kingdom. See 3 Bl Comm 38.

chief lord. The highest lord of the fee in the feudal system.

chief magistrate. As an executive officer, the highest officer, as the President of the United States or the governor of a state. State ex rel. McNichols v Justus, 84 Minn 237, 87 NW 770; as a judicial officer, the chief judge among police court judges.

chief petty officer. A noncommissioned officer of the Navy, ranking immediately above petty officer, 1st class, and immediately below senior chief petty officer.

chief place of business. As the term is used in a statute providing for the service of process on a corporation at its chief place of business, it means that service can be made either where the office of the corporation is located, or in the county where the corporation is located and has its being. Loraine v Pittsburg, Johnstown, Ebensburg & Eastern Railroad Co. 205 Pa 132, 54 A 580.

See principal place of business.

chief pledge. The borsholder or chief of the borough. -Spelman.

chief rents. Rent which was paid by a freeholder to his landlord in full discharge of all service. See 2 Bl Comm 42.

chiefry. Rent paid to the lord paramount.

child. A juvenile subject to parental control or guardianship. State v Gonzales, 241 La 619, 129 So 2d 796, 84 ALR2d 1248; one under the age of puberty, or not old enough to dispense with parental aid or care. Central of Georgia R. Co. v Robins, 209 Ala 6, 95 So 367, 36 ALR 10; a person of tender years, as distinguished from a youth, who, although legally an infant, possesses the size and strength of a man. 27 Am J1st Inf § 112; a son or daughter of a person, whether infant or adult. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 11; 39 Am J1st P & C § 2; a natural child, as distinguished from a child by adoption, unless the context of an instrument in question indicates an intention to include an adopted child or to use the term child in a more extensive sense than its natural import, or such intention is to be inferred from the attendant circumstances, or such a construction is required by a statutory definition. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 96; a word which is not a technical legal term having a fixed and definite meaning, but one which is flexible and subject to construction to give effect to the intention of the maker of the instrument in which it appears. Conner v Gardner, 230 Ill 258, 82 NE 640.

See children; emancipation; grandchild; infant; in loco parentis; minor; parent.

childbirth. See birth.

Childermas. Holy Innocents' Day, December twenty-eighth.

childishness. A mark of senility; a mature person acting in the manner of a child.

child labor. The employment of children, the legal significance of which is the prohibition of such employment in dangerous occupations, in places where they may be corrupted by the surroundings, at work which is of such nature as to tax the strength of the child and undermine his health, and for hours so long as to tire a child to the point of exhaustion and sickness.

Child Labor Amendment. A proposed amendment to the United States Constitution, granting to Congress the power to limit, regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age; submitted to the states for ratification by Congress in 1924, but failing of ratification, being ratified by only 28 states.

[198]

childnit. The customary fine paid by a bastard's reputed father to the lord.-Cowell.

child of fourteen. The criterion at common law of presumptive capacity for the commission of a crime. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 27.

child of tender years. A child whose imprudences are usually due to the play of childish instincts, unenlightened by experience, and unrestrained by reason; hence, a child too young to be chargeable with contributory negligence. Central of Georgia Railroad Co. v Robins, 209 Ala 6, 95 So 367, 36 ALR 10, 12.

Even a child of tender years is held to liability in tort. 27 Am J1st Inf § 90.

See minor of tender years.

children. Persons of tender years; the sons or daughters of one, whether adults or infants; a word which is not a technical legal term having a fixed and definite meaning, but one which is flexible and subject to construction to give effect to the intention of the maker of the instrument in which it appears. Conner v Gardner, 230 Ill 258, 82 NE 640.

Not being the equivalent of "heirs," "children" usually is a word of purchase rather than a word of limitation in a deed, but becoming a word of limitation where the limitation in the instrument is to children of the grantee, and the grantee has no children in being at the time of the execution of the deed. 28 Am J2d Est § 43. It is also a word of purchase in a will, except as the context of the instrument or the force of surrounding circumstances, such as there being no children in existence at the death of the testator, may make it a word of limitation. 19 Am J1st Est § 44; 57 Am J1st Wills § 1364.

The word "children" appearing in a deed, trust indenture, or will, may, but does not necessarily, include an adopted child, the question being one of construction. 2 Am J2d Adopt §§ 92 et seq. It means, prima facie, legitimate offspring. Anno: 34 ALR2d 19; 10 Am J2d Bast § 137.

It has been held that an illegitimate child is a "child" within the provisions of inheritance, succession, or estate tax statutes respecting exempt- I lion and tax rates. Whorff v Johnson, 143 Me 198, 58 A2d 553, 3 ALR2d 160. But it has also been held to the contrary under some of such statutes. Anno: 3 ALR2d 166.

As a designation of beneficiaries in an insurance policy, the term "children" ordinarily means descendants of the first degree, not including grandchildren, but including an after-born child, even an adopted child. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1658.

See after-born child; child; grandchild; wife and children.

children of full blood. See full blood.

children of her body. Words of purchase rather than of limitation, except as the entire context of the instrument applied to the circumstances of the case, makes it a word of limitation. 28 Am J2d Est § 43.

children's courts. Same as juvenile courts.

chilling bids. Any word or act preventing free competition among bidders at an auction sale. 7 Am J2d Auct § 25; controlling competition in bidding at an execution sale. 30 Am J2d Exec § 365; any act or word which stifles the bidding at a judicial sale, thereby preventing a free, fair and open sale. 30A Am Rev ed Jud S § 98. Chiltern hundreds. See steward of Chiltern hundreds.

chiltern hundreds. See steward of children hundreds.

chimin. Same as chemin.

chiminage. A toll paid on a forest road.

chimino. See de chimino.

chiminus. A private or other road over which the king, his subjects and persons who were under his protection might pass.

chimney-corner survey. A survey made by a land surveyor in his office, without planting his instrument or stretching a chain upon the ground. Smith v Chapman, 51 Va (10 Graff) 445, 457.

chimney-money. An ancient English tax which was laid on chimneys.

China Trade Corporation. A corporation chartered under the provisions of Chapter 4 of Title 15 of the United States Code. 15 USC § 142(c).

Chinese Exclusion Act. A former statute, enacted in 1882, amended in 1884, in pursuance of a policy since abandoned of forbidding the emigration of Chinese to the United States, except as the purpose of their coming, such as education, might provide a reason for relaxing the prohibition.

Chinese tong. See highbinder.

chippingavel. A toll paid for the privilege of buying and selling.

chirgemote. An ecclesiastical court.

chirograph. An instrument in pen; an indenture; a deed in two parts, cut from one parchment, the corresponding edges of which must fit.

Formerly, when deeds were more concise, it was usual to write both parts on the same piece of parchment, with some word or letters of the alphabet written between them, through which the parchment was cut, either in a straight line or an indented one, so as to leave half of the word or letters on one part and half on the other. Such deeds were called "syngrapha" by the canonists and by lawyers "chirographa" or handwritings, the word "cirographum" or "cyrographum" being the word customarily written and divided as above described. See 2 Bl Comm 295.

See indenture.

chirographa. See chirograph.

chirographer of fines. An officer in the court of common pleas who engrossed fines of land.

chirographum. A writing evidencing an indebtedness; a written obligation.

Chirographum apud debitorem repertum presumitur solutum. A written obligation found in the hands of the debtor is presumed to have been paid.

Chirographum non extans presumitur solutum. A written obligation which does not exist is presumed to have been paid.

chirography. See handwriting.

chiropodist. One who treats diseases or malformations of the hands or feet, especially a surgeon for the feet, hands, or nails--a cutter or extractor of corns and callosities. State v Armstrong, 38 Idaho 493, 255 P 491, 33 ALR 835.

chiropody. A limited branch of medicine or surgery; medicine or surgery as practiced by a chiropodist. American Policyholders Ins. Co. v Michota, 156 Ohio St 578, 103 NE2d 817, 35 ALR2d 448.

See chiropodist.

[199]

chiropractic. Derived from the Greek; manipulation by hand; a drugless method of treating human ailments. State v Hopkins, 54 Mont 52, 166 P 304; a system of healing that treats disease by manipulation of a spinal column. State v Gallagher, 101 Ark 593, 143 SW 98. It is the practice of medicine in a restricted form. Lowman v Kuecher, 246 Iowa 1227, 71 NW2d 586, 52 ALR2d 1380; the practice of medicine in the very broad aspect of the term "medicine." State v Johnson, 84 Kan 411, 114 P 390; not the practice of medicine in the more limited sense of prescribing and administering drugs. State v Gallagher, 101 Ark 593, 143 SW 98.

chiropractor. A person engaged in chiropractic.

chirurgion. A surgeon.

chit. A promissory note; a voucher for a small sum of money, for example, the charge for a drink at a bar; a short letter or memorandum.

chivalry. Knight service; the medieval system of knighthood.

chloroform. An oily liquid of an aromatic ethereal odor, consisting of carbon, hydrogen and chlorine; formerly much used as an anesthetic in surgery; not an intoxicant. Anno: 13 ALR2d 998.

In common parlance it is classed among the poisons and statutes have been passed requiring it to be labeled as poison. State v Baldwin, 36 Kan 1, 12 P 318.

Choctaw. An Indian tribe or nation; a member of the Choctaw nation or tribe.

choice. Noun: The opportunity or power to determine or select between alternatives. People v Mosher, 45 App Div 68, 61 NYS 452. Adjective: Meriting preference; of exceptional grade; fine. Brophy v Idaho Produce & Provision Co. 31 Mont 279, 78 P 493. A term applied to beef cattle of superior quality.

See domicil of choice; election.

choke-bail. Nonbailable. cholecystitis. See acute cholieystitis. choose. To make a choice as between alternatives.

See choice; elect.

choosing-stick. A divining rod.

chop. Noun: A slice of pork, mutton, or veal; an oriental term for a license or permit; a shift in the wind. Verb: To cut into pieces; to shift or veer.

chop-church. A derogatory term for a person who sold his benefice or exchanged it for another.

chops. The mouth and cheeks of a person; the mouth of a harbor.

See chop.

chorepiscopi. Bishops whose powers were limited or restricted.

chose. A thing; a chattel; a personal right; a chose in action; a cause of action.

chose ex delicto. A right or cause of action arising out of the commission of a tort.

chose in action. An incorporeal right; the right of a creditor to be paid; a right not reduced to possession but recoverable by bringing and maintaining an action. 42 Am J1st Prop § 26.

chose in possession. A thing which a person has the right to enjoy or occupy and of which he has also the actual enjoyment or occupation. See 2 Bl Comm 396, 408, 443.

chose local. A chattel which is in a fixed location, annexed to a place. such as a mill.

chosen freeholders. A local term for a county or township board.

chose transitory. A movable chattel which may be taken or carried from one place to another.

Christian. A person who believes in the teachings of Christ.

Christian calendar. Another name for the Gregorian calendar, now in use in the United States and most of the world, which numbers the years from the birth of Christ, either before, by B. C., or after, by A. D.

Christian Era. The period from the birth of Christ to the present.

Christianitatis curia. A court Christian; an ecclesiastical court.

Christianity. The religion of those who believe that Jesus Christ is the true Messiah and the Savior of men, and who receive the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments as the word of God. Hale v Everett, 53 NH 9.

Christian name. The name given a person at his birth or formal christening, sometimes referred to as a first name in distinction from the surname or family name which comes last. 38 Am J1st Name § 4.

Christian Science. A comparatively new religion, best known to the world for the system of healing which is a part of the faith, the great principle of the religion being that all cause and effect in sickness, as well as sin, is mental, Eggleston v Landrum, 210 Miss 645, 50 So 2d 364, 23 ALR2d 696; that disease will disappear and physical perfection be attained as a result of prayer, or that humanity will be brought into harmony with God by right thinking and a fixed determination to look on the bright side of life. State v Mylod, 20 RI 632, 637.

Christian Science healer. One who treats disease by prayer. Re First Church of Christ, 205 Pa 543, 55 A 536; one who treats disease by prayer and mental suggestion, perhaps better stated as mental adaption, pursuant to the principles of the Christian Science religion. 41 Am J1st Phys & S § 30.

Some authorities hold that such a healer practices medicine within the meaning of statutes which provide for the licensing of such practicing physicians, but other authorities hold that the practice of medicine is not involved in healing or endeavoring to heal by Christian Science. 41 Am J1st Phys & S§30.

Christian Scientists. Believers in Christian Science.

Christmas. The birthday of Christ, December 25th.

Christmas club deposit. A type of bank deposit made in accordance with a plan which provides for the making of regular deposits during the year and withdrawal of the money for use at Christmas.

chronic. Long continued.

Chronic dementia. A type of insanity, usually of slow progress, marked in its early stages by general impairment and enfeeblement of the intellectual faculties, and ending in mental decay and idiocy. Re Will of Blakely, 48 Wis 294, 297.

chronic disease. A disease of long standing, deep rooted, obstinate, persistent, and unyielding to treatment. State Medical Board v McCrary, 95 Ark 511, 130 SW 544. A disease is not to be held chrotuc for the fact alone that it continued for a period of four months immediately preceding the death of the afflicted. Williams v Southern Surety Co. 211 Mich 444, 179 NW 272, 15 ALR 1239.

chronic hemiplegy. See hemiplegy.

church. A religious society; an organization consisting of an indefinite number of persons, of one or both sexes, who have made a public confession of religion, and who are associated together by a covenant of church fellowship, for the purpose of celebrating the sacrament, and watching over the spiritual welfare of each other, 45 Am J11st Reli Soc § 2; a society of persons who unite in the profession of the Christian faith, Josey v Union Loan & Trust Co. 106 Ga 608, 611, 32 SE 628; Wiggins v Young, 206 Ga 440, 57 SE2d 486, 13 ALR2d 1237; any structure used principally for religious worship or bible study. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 267; a building for religious worship and related activities, such as men's and women's social groups, religious teaching, boy and girl scouts, Sunday school, sleeping quarters for retreatants, and parking accommodations. Anno: 74 ALR2d 403.

See religious society.

church building acts. English statutes enacted for the promotion and extension of the Church of England.

church court. See church judicatory.

church door. See ostium ecclesiae.

churcheset. A certain measure of grain paid to the church on St. Martin's day.

church judicatory. An ecclesiastical court with judicial powers. A court of a church or religious society for the adjudication of questions relating to the faith and practice of the church over which legal or temporal tribunals do not have jurisdiction. 45 Am J1st Reli Soc § 40.

church land. Land belonging to the church or to an ecclesiastical corporation or body; more narrowly defined, for the purpose of a statutory exemption from taxation, as land upon which a church building stands and such land around the building as is required reasonably for convenient ingress and egress, light, air, parking for vehicles, and appropriate and decent ornamentation, but not lots adjacent to the church building, not reasonably needed for the convenient enjoyment of the building as a church, and leased for other purposes, or not used for any purpose. 51 Am J1st Tax § 615.

See church property.

church living. A benefice in an established church.

church meeting. The annual or other periodical meeting of a religious society for consideration of, and action upon, the affairs of the society and the church which it maintains; a special meeting called for the consideration of business of the church. 45 Am J1st Reli Soc § 20.

Church of England. The national church of England; the Episcopal Church in England.

church property. Property which is primarily-that is, principally and generally-used for religious purposes. It will not lose its character as church property by some part of it being incidentally used for some secular purpose connected with the church. Ramsey County v Church of the Good Shepherd, 45 Minn 229, 47 NW 783.

See church land.

church rate. A tax imposed upon a parish by a vote of a majority of the parishioners for the upkeep and maintenance of the parish church.

church reeve. A church warden.

church-scot. Customary obligations paid to the parson of a parish; services rendered by a tenant of church lands.

church society. A religious society; a society within an individual church, such as a ladies aid society or a sodality.
See religious society.

church tribunal. See church judicatory.

church wardens. The guardians or keepers of a church who are also the representatives of the body of the parish. Sometimes they are appointed by the minister, and sometimes by the parish, or by both. For some purposes they are the growth and efficiency of the work of corporation; they may by that name have property in goods and chattels, and sue for the use and profit of the parish. See 1 Bl Comm 394.

church-writ. A writ which issued out of an ecclesiastical court.

churl. A freeman of one of the lowest classes.
See karl.

chute. A conveyor using the force of gravity, such as a coal-chute from surface of the ground to basement or a hay chute from mow of a barn to the manger below; a device in amusement parks upon which children slide. 4 Am J2d Amuse § 93.

ci. So; as.

CIA. Abbreviation for Central Intelligence Agency.

cibaria. (Civil law.) Food.

ci bien. As well.

cider. The expressed juice of apples, either fermented or unfermented, that is, graphically stated, either hard or sweet. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 17.

ci devant. Formerly.

C. I. F. An abbreviation for cost, insurance and freight. 1 Am J2d Abbr § 7.
See cost, insurance, and freight.

cigarette. A small cylinder of tobacco wrapped in paper. Some authorities regard fine tobacco rolled in tobacco leaves as cigarettes but there is a difference of opinion on such classification. Such creations are sometimes classed as little cigars, rather than cigarettes. Goodrich v State, 133 Wis 242, 246, note.

cigarette tax. An excise tax on cigarettes, one that seems to be ever-increasing both in the scope of its application and in amount.

cigar factory. A place where cigars are made. Ludloff v United States, 108 US 176, 27 L Ed 693.

cinerary urn. A receptacle for the ashes from a cremation.

cinque ports. The five seaports on the southern coast of England, which were formerly the most important. They were those of Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover and Sandwich.

CIO. An abbreviation for Congress of Industrial Organizations, an affiliation of labor unions. Such affiliation is now joined to the American Federa tion of Labor, the abbreviation for the consolidated group being AFL-CIO.

[201]

cippi. The stocks, a contrivance for discipline and punishment.

See stocks.

circa. About; around; concerning; in respect to; in the neighborhood of.

circa ardua regni. In respect to the arduous affairs of the kingdom. See 1 Bl Comm 219.

circle. See traffic circle.

circuit. The area within the jurisdiction of a particular court, the word deriving from the route or journey which a judge makes in holding court at the several places within his jurisdiction wherein court is held; any one of the eleven judicial circuits in which the United States is divided and in which there is a United States Court of Appeals. 20 Am J2d Cts § 10.

circuit breaker. A device, operating automatically, to cut off the electric current flowing through a line or wire when the current becomes excessive for the line or wire; a mechanical device for cutting an electric current intermittently by means of a movable contact moving to and from a stationary contact for such time as the machine which utilizes the device is being operated. Re Frank, 29 Cust & Pat App (Pat) 713, 123 F2d 820.

circuit court. A court presided over by a judge or by judges at different places in the same district; a name given to certain courts of general jurisdiction by constitution or statute. 20 Am J2d Cts § 16.

Circuit Courts of Appeals. The former designation of the intermediate federal appellate courts, such name having been changed to the present designation, Courts of Appeals. 20 Am J2d Cts § 6.

Circuitus est evitandus. Circuity is to be avoided.

circuity of action. Indirectness of remedy to be attained by unnecessary litigation.

circuity of liens. A legal situation difficult of analysis, often presented in the examination of law students to puzzle and harass them, illustrated by the following: the lien of A has priority over the lien of B; the lien of B has priority over the lien of C; but the lien of C is prior, or at least equal in priority, to the lien of A. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 529.

circular. A printed sheet used for the purpose of advertising or for the advocacy of political principles; a listing of articles to be offered for sale at auction, with representations as to the character and worth of the respective articles. 7 Am J2d Auct § 16.

circular notes. Letters of credit.

circulating notes. The terms "circulating notes," "notes used in circulation," and "circulation," as they are used in relation to the instrumentalities of banking operations, are equivalent and synonymous terms. The word "circulation" in this connection is defined by the lexicographers as "currency; or circulating notes or bills current for coin." United States v White (CC NY) 19 F 723, 724.

circulation affidavit. See newspaper publicity law.

circulation of bank. Certified checks and all notes and other obligations calculated or intended to circulate or to be used as money, but not including such money or other items as are in the vault of the bank or redeemed and on deposit for the bank. 26 USC § 4881(a)(1).

See circulating notes.

circulation of newspaper. See newspaper of general circulation.

circumduct. To make void; to nullify.

circumduction. Annulment; avoidance; cancellation.

Circumspecte Agatis. An English statute of an early period which conferred jurisdiction of suits for breach of faith upon the ecclesiastical courts. See 3 Bl Comm 52, note.

circumstantial evidence. Facts and circumstances surrounding a transaction from which the jury or trier of the fact may infer other connected facts which reasonably follow, according to the common experience of mankind. 29 Am J2d Ev § 264.

circumstantibus. Bystanders, present in the courtroom. circumvention. Trickery; outwitting; fraud or deceit.

cirliscus. A churl; a lout.

cirographum. See chirograph.

citacion. (Spanish.) An order of the court commanding the defendant in an action to appear and defend.

citatio. A citation.

citatio ad reassumendam causam. A citation directed to the heir of a plaintiff who has died pending the action.

citatio est de jure naturali. A summons or citation is of natural right.

citation. A writ commanding a person to appear for some purpose specified. Sheldon v Sheldon, 100 NJ Eq 24, 30, 134 A 904, 907; a notice of a proceeding, especially a proceeding in a probate or surrogate's court; process in admiralty whereby notice is given of the institution of a suit in personam. 2 Am J2d Adm § 153; specifying a particular authority for a point of law, as a case by title, volume, and page of the report or reports in which the opinion appears, or an encyclopedic work, such as American Jurisprudence, by volume, title and section of article.

Citationes non concedantur priusquam exprimat super qua re fieri debet citatio. Citations are not to be granted until it is shown concerning what matter the citation ought to be made.

cite. To summon or notify to appear in court, often by means of a citation served upon the party cited; to refer to as an authority or precedent, or case in point; to quote.

citizen. One who has acquired citizenship by birth, naturalization, or other lawful means; in a popular but nonetheless appropriate sense of the term, one, who by birth, naturalization, or other means, is a member of an independent political society. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 1.

See corporate citizenship; denizen; expatriation; natural-born citizen; naturalization; naturalized citizen; oath of abjuration; United States citizen.

[202]

citizen by naturalization. See naturalized citizen.

citizen of a state. A citizen of the United States, residing in any state of the Union; Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

See citizens resident in the state.

citizen of the United States. A person born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 116.

See corporate citizenship; United States citizen.

citizen's appeal. An appeal taken by a citizen which will be heard, not because of his status merely as a citizen, but because he shows a direct pecuniary interest in the proceeding. 4 Am J2d A & E § 202.

citizenship. The privilege of membership in a political society, implying a duty of allegiance on the part of the member and a duty of protection on the part of the society; the status of a citizen with its respective rights and duties. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 115.

citizens of different states. See diversity of citizenship.

citizens resident in the state. Natural persons who are citizens and residents and corporations chartered in the state. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 126.

city. A municipal corporation of the largest and highest class, usually under a government in three branches, one the executive, headed by a mayor, the second a legislative body called a council or board of aldermen, and a third called the municipal court or city court, operating under a charter which gives it at least a measure of home rule, sometimes almost complete home rule, such organization having been altered in some instances under constitutional provision or statute to provide a city manager or commission form of government. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 5.

A city is a town in the broad sense and popular sense of the latter term. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 5.

See municipal corporation and other expressions beginning municipal.

city block. See block.

city court. A court the jurisdiction of which is confined to the limits of the city.

city directory. See directory.

city election. An election wherein officers of a city are elected; an election held in a city. Wing v Ryan, 255 App Div 163, 6 NYS2d 825.

city employee. An employee of a city; a person employed in city service, such as a person working on a municipal subway. Colbert v Delaney, 249 App Div 209, 291 NYS 801.

city lot. See lot.

city manager. The chief administrative officer of a city under a comparatively modern form of municipal government known as the city manager plan. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp §§ 72 et seq. city officer. See municipal officer.

city purpose. A familiar expression in contracts between a city and a public utility which means a purpose primarily for the benefit, use, or convenience of the city as distinguished from that of the public outside the city. 43 Am J1st Pub Util § 184.

city service. See city employee.

civic. Pertaining to the city or body politic, or to the citizen, or to citizenship. Cleveland Grand Opera Co. v Cleveland Civic Opera Asso. 22 Ohio St 400, 405, 154 NE 352, 353.

civics. A course of study better known at present as "political science" or "government."

civil. Pertaining to the citizen or to the community, for example, civil responsibility; pertaining to the ordinary status of an ordinary citizen, as distinguished from one in military service; pertaining to the remedies for enforcement of private rights, as distinguished from criminal prosecutions. Brown & Allen v Jacobs Pharmacy Co. 115 Ga 429, 41 SE 553.

civil action. An action brought to enforce a civil right; an ordinary action as distinguished from a criminal action, or a special proceeding. Wurth v Affeldt, 265 Wis 119, 60 NW2d 708, 40 ALR2d 1376; the ordinary proceeding in a court of justice by one party against another for the redress or prevention of a legal wrong or for the enforcement or protection of a private right. 1 Am J2d Actions § 43; more broadly defined as any proceeding in a court of justice by which an individual pursues that remedy which the law affords him. Stoll v Hawkeye Casualty Co. (CA8 SD) 185 F2d 96, 22 ALR2d 899; comprehending every conceivable cause of action, whether legal or equitable, except such as are criminal in the usual sense that the judgment against the defendant may be a fine or imprisonment, or both. 1 Am J2d Actions § 44.

Civil Aeronautics Act. A statute which preceded the Federal Aviation Act of 1958. 8 Am J2d Avi § 10.

Civil Aeronautics Authority. A federal agency with administrative functions respecting the operation of aircraft, since replaced by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Civil Aeronautics Board. The federal agency with administrative functions respecting the operation of aircraft. 49 USC § 1321(a)(1).

civil aircraft. As defined by the Federal aviation Act, any aircraft other than a public aircraft. 49 USC § 1301(14).
See public aircraft.

civil aircraft of the United States. Any aircraft registered as provided in the Federal Aviation Act. 49 USC § 1301(15).

Civil Air Patrol. A corporation created by federal statute, the purposes of which are encouragement and aid to citizens in the contribution of their efforts, services, and resources in the development of aviation and the maintenance of air supremacy, and the making of provision for aviation education and training of senior and cadet members. 36 USC §§ 201, 202.

Civil Air Regulations. The detailed regulations for civil aviation adopted, written, and published by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

civil airway. See airway.

civil and criminal business arising in a county. All civil and criminal matters arising in a county which occupy the attention of men engaged in legal affairs. Sherman v Droubay, 27 Utah 47, 74 P 348.

civil arrest. A provisional or auxiliary remedy intended to secure the presence of the defendant in a civil action until final judgment. 5 Am J2d Arr § 52.

civil assault. An assault for which the assailant is liable in a civil action; an assault for which an action for damages may be maintained.

[203]

civil authority. The authority vested in civil, as distinguished from military, officers. As used in a fire policy exempting the insurer from liability for loss or damage by fire caused by order of any civil authority, the term includes civil officers in whom a portion of the sovereignty is vested and in whom the enforcement of municipal regulations or the control of the general interest of society is confided for the prevention of destruction by fire. Policemen and firemen are civil authorities within the meaning of the term thus employed. Princess Garment Co. v Fireman's Fund Ins.Co. (CA6 Ohio) 115 F2d 380.

civil bail. A bond or deposit given or made to secure the release of a person under civil arrest, the purpose of which is either directly or indirectly to secure the payment of a debt or the performance of some other civil duty. 8 Am J2d Bail § 3.

civil bill court. An Irish court the jurisdiction of which is similar to that of the county courts in England.

civil case. The legal means by which the rights and remedies of private individuals are enforced or protected, in contradistinction to the expression "criminal case" which refers to public wrongs and their punishment. State ex rel. Kochtitzky v Riley, 203 Mo 175, 101 SW 567

See civil action; civil suit.

civil commitment. The jailing of a person for debt or nonpayment of alimony; the confinement of an insane person, alcoholic, or drug addict for treatment or protection; the commitment of a person under civil arrest.

civil commotion. An uprising of citizens; an insurrection; interference with the powers of government by violent action. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1368.

civil conspiracy. A combination of two or more persons by concerted action to accomplish an unlawful purpose, or a lawful purpose by criminal or unlawful means, to the injury of another. 16 Am J2d Consp § 43. To sustain an action, damage must have resulted from the combination. To warrant an injunction, damage must be threatened. National Fireproofing Co. v Mason Builders' Asso. (CA2 NY) 169 F 259.

civil contempt. The dividing line between civil and criminal contempt is indistinct. It can be said with some assurance, however, that where the primary purpose of a contempt proceeding is to provide a remedy for an injured suitor and to coerce compliance with an order, the contempt is civil. 17 Am J2d Contpt § 4. A civil contempt differs from a criminal contempt, the sentence for which is punitive in the public interest to vindicate the authority of the court and to deter other like derelictions. Ex parse Grossman, 267 US 87, 69 L Ed 527, 45 S Ct 332, 38 ALR 131.

civil contempt proceeding. A proceeding, summary in nature and sui generis in character, by which a party to an action is enabled to compel obedience to orders, judgments, and decrees rendered in the action which declare the rights to which he is entitled. In some jurisdictions, such proceeding is regarded as an independent proceeding, in others, it operates as a part of the suit in which the judgment, decree, or order to be enforced by the proceeding was rendered. 17 Am J Rev ed Contpt § 77.

civil corporation. A public corporation, such as a county, township, school district, or road district, otherwise known as a quasi corporation, of an involuntary character, being created by the state without the intervention of the people within its boundaries as an arm and instrumentality of the state for the administration of government locally. Dunn v Brown County Agricultural Soc. 46 Ohio St 93, 18 NE 496; Herald v Board of Education, 65 W Va 765, 65 SE 102.

Civil Damage Acts. Statutes which grant a right of action to persons injured in person, property, or means of support, by an intoxicated person, or in consequence of the intoxication of any person, against the person selling or furnishing the liquor which caused the intoxication in whole or in part. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 525.

civil day. A period of twenty-four consecutive hours, beginning at midnight. Re Ten-Hour Law for Street Railway Corporations, 24 RI 603, 54 A 602.

civil death. The extinction of all civil rights, such as occurred at common law upon a person being banished, abjuring the realm, or entering a religious order, and to a certain extent upon conviction of any felony.

It has been held in the United States that the doctrine of civil death does not apply unless provided for by statute, but has also been held that the common-law consequences of a conviction, including civil death, continue until abrogated by statute. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 626.

civil defense. Concerted activities for the protection of civilians in time of war, particularly nuclear war, and emergencies fraught with danger to human life.

civil disability. See disability.

civil embargo. See embargo.

civilian. A scholar who is versed in the Roman law and the civil law; a person who is not in the armed forces. Discharged military prisoners, discharged enlisted men, and rejected applicants for enlistment in the army, all have the status of the civilian. United States v Union Pacific Railroad Co. 249 US 354, 358, 63 L Ed 643, 645.

civil injury. The infringement or privation of the civil rights which belong to the individual, considered merely as an individual. Anno: 23 ALR 529; in the broader sense of the term, a wrong for which redress may be had by a civil action.

civil interruption. Under the civil law--an interruption of a period of prescription by making a lawful claim of right thereto in a court of justice. Innerarity v Heirs of Mims, 1 Ala 660, 674.

civilis. Civil.

civilis possessio. See possessio civilis.

civiliter. Civilly, in a civil aspect.

civiliter mortuus. Civilly dead.

See civil death.

civil law. The body of law, sometimes called municipal law, adopted in a country or a state, as distinguished from the so-called natural law and international law; the body of law which determines private rights and liabilities, as distinguished from criminal law; a rule of civil conduct prescribed by the supreme power of a state. Merchants' Exchange v Knots, 212 Mo 616, 111 SW 565; the civil or municipal law of the Roman empire, as comprised in the institutes, the code and the digest of the Emperor Justinian, and the novel constitutions of himself and some of his successors. These form the body of Roman law, the corpus juris civilis (the body of civil law), as published about the time of

[204]

Justinian. It was under his auspices that the present body of civil law was compiled and finished by Tribonian and other lawyers, about 533 A. D. See 1 Bl Comm 80, 81.

civil liability. Liability to be sued in a civil action, as distinguished from criminal liability which is the liability to a criminal prosecution.

Civil Liability for Support Act. One of the uniform laws. 23 Am J2d Desert § 125.

civil liberties. Political liberties; the liberties of a member of society; the natural liberties of a person so far restrained by human laws as is necessary and expedient for the general welfare. Dennis v Moses, 18 Wash 537, 52 P 333; civil liberties, as guaranteed by the Constitution, imply the existence of an organized society maintaining public order without which liberty itself would be lost in the excesses of unrestrained abuses. Cox v New Hampshire, 312 US 569, 85 L Ed 1049, 61 S Ct 762. The concept of personal rights of liberty, equality etc., protected from abridgment by constitutional guaranties. 28 Am J Rev ed Inj § 80.

civil list. In England it is the fiscal appropriation for the maintenance and support of the royal family. In the United States, it is general governmental expense, not including the army and navy.

civil maintenance. An action for damages for maintenance. Such an action lies at common law at the instance of the party aggrieved, but such actions have rarely been brought and few modern examples are to be found. 14 Am J2d Champ § 17.

See maintenance.

civil nature. See suits of a civil nature.

See all expressions beginning civil.

civil obligation. An obligation which is enforceable through the means of a civil action.

civil office. A public office as distinguished from an office in the armed services; State ex ref. Barney v Hawkins, 79 Mont 506, 257 P 411, 53 ALR 583; any kind of a public office, whether legislative, executive, or judicial. 42 Am J1st Pub Of § 22.

civil officer. The incumbent of a civil office; any officer in the administration of government, except an officer of the armed forces.

See civil office.

civil officers of the United States. All officers of the United States, with the exception of officers in the armed services are civil officers. State ex ref. Summerfield v Clarke, 21 Nev 333, 31 P 545.

civil or municipal law. See civil law.

civil possession. A Roman law term for the possession under a claim of ownership which is requisite to the acquisition of title by prescription.

civil proceeding. See civil action; special proceeding.

civil remedy. A remedy sought in the prosecution of a suit or action by or at the instance of a private person for the assertion of a private right. People ex ref. Raster v Healy, 230 Ill 280, 82 NE 599.

civil responsibility. Same as civil liability.

civil rights. Broadly defined, such rights as the law will enforce, or as all those rights which the law gives a person. In the more restricted sense, however, in which the term is used most often, "civil rights" means the enjoyment of the guaranties contained in constitutional or statutory provisions designed to prevent discrimination in the treatment of a person by reason of his race, color, religion, or previous condition of servitude. 15 Am J2d Civ R § 1.

Civil Rights Acts. Statutes adopted by Congress in the aftermath of the Civil War and in the more recent years of 1957 and 1964, primarily intended to implement the constitutional guaranties against denial of due process and equal protection of the laws to all persons irrespective of race or color. 15 Am J2d Civ R §§ 11 et seq. Guaranties in constitutions and statutes against denial of the rights of a person by reason of his or her race, color, religion, or previous condition of servitude. 15 Am J2d Civ R §§ 3, 4; statutes which prohibit discrimination against a person by reason of his race or color in denying him access to places of public accommodation, such as hotels, restaurants, and lunch counters; places of amusement and recreation, such as parks, theaters, and public resorts; the cars and vehicles of common carriers; and educational facilities maintained by public funds; and provide an aggrieved party the right to recover a penalty for violations. 15 Am J2d Civ R §§ 18 et seq.

civil rights amendments. The Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments to the United States Constitution are often so referred to, because they constitute a substantial departure in the character of the constitutional protection accorded fundamental rights.

Civil Rights Bill. An act of Congress passed at the close of the Civil War in 1866, granting citizenship to persons born in the United States, including those who had been slaves.

See Civil Rights Acts.

Civil Rights Cases. These were five cases which originated in Federal Courts in Kansas, District of Columbia, Missouri, New York, and Tennessee, respectively, and which were heard and disposed of together in the Supreme Court, since each of them involved the rights of freedmen under the Civil Rights Act of March 1, 1875, providing for full and equal accommodations for all persons at hotels, theaters, public conveyances and places of amusement, without regard to race, color, or previous condition of servitude. The court held the statute to be unconstitutional and not to be within the scope of either the Thirteenth or the Fourteenth Amendment. See Civil Rights Cases, 109 US 3, 27 L Ed 836, 3 S Ct 18.

To the foregoing, there is to be added Brown v Board of Education, 347 US 483, 98 L Ed 873, 74 S Ct 686, 38 ALR2d 1180, supp op 349 US 294, 99 L Ed 1093, 75 S Ct 753, which, in holding that the denial to negro children of admission to public schools attended by white children, under state laws requiring or permitting segregation according to race, deprives them of the equal protection of the laws guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, established a precedent for numerous later cases involving segregation of the races.

Civil Rights Commission. A commission in the nature of a fact finding agency established by federal statute. 42 USC §§ 1975-1975e; Hannah v Larche, 363 US 420, 4 L Ed 2d 1307, 80 S Ct 1502, reh den 364 US 855, 5 L Ed 2d 79, 81 S Ct 33.

Civil Rights Division of Department of Justice. A division of the justice department headed by an Assistant Attorney General. 5 USC § 295--1.

civil service. In the broad sense, civil service includes all civilian officers and personnel in the employment of the state or federal government. The term, in a practical parlance, means the civil service system under which appointments to and tenure of, public office are determined by the merit system instead of the spoils system formerly operative under which appointment to public office was usually gained as a reward for political work, with the resulting evils of inefficiency, extravagance, interruption of public business by job hunters, corruption of the electoral franchise, and political assessments. 15 Am J2d Civ S § 1.

[205]

Civil Service Act. The act of Congress approved January 16, 1883, providing for the creation of the Civil Service Commission of the United States.

Civil Service Commission. A federal or state commission empowered to administer the rules and regulations embraced in the civil service system. 15 Am J2d Civ S § 6. The United States Civil Service Commission composed of three members appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. 15 Am J2d Civ S § 4.

civil service examination. An examination to fill a civil service position which, in some instances, may be open, and, in other instances, promotional, as where persons already in the service compete with one another for promotion to a more desirable office. 15 Am J2d Civ S § 10.

See competitive examination.

civil side. The civil department or calendar of a court having also a criminal department or calendar.

civil suit. A civil action; for the purposes of a venue statute, proceeding, action, or suit by which private rights are protected or enforced or their violation redressed. 56 Am J1st Ven § 52.

civil war. An armed struggle between opposing and contending forces of the same nation for the control of the government. 56 Am J1st War § 2. While protection of the law of war is not accorded to those engaging in an insurrection or rebellion against the constituted authority, unless a state of belligerency is recognized by the existing government, when hostilities attain dimensions which interfere with the exercise of the jurisdiction of the existing government in some of its territorial districts, a state of war exists. The War between the Federal government of the United States and the seceding Confederate States, although referred to as the "Civil War," sometimes as the "War of Rebellion" or "The Great Rebellion," was accompanied by the general incidents of an international war, and the rules of war, as recognized by the public law of civilized nations, were applied, even though the general principles and purposes of the Federal government were the re-establishment of national authority and the ultimate restoration of the seceding states and their citizens to their national relations without any view of subjugation by conquest. 56 Am J1st War § 3.

Civil War Claims. Claims arising under the captured and abandoned property act of 1863, which provided that property when captured should be sold and the proceeds paid into the United States treasury, and that any person claiming to be the owner of property thus captured and sold might at any time within two years after the close of the civil war bring suit in the court of claims for the proceeds and on satisfactory proof of certain facts recover its value, less some specified deductions. 54 Am J1st US § 109.

civil year. Same as solar year.

civis. (Roman law.) A citizen.

civitas. A state or government.

civitatus. See defensor civitatus.

C. J. An abbreviation of chief justice; also of Corpus Juris.

claim. A demand for money or property; the assertion of a demand, or the challenge of something, as a matter of right; a demand of some matter, as of right, made by one person upon another to do or to forbear to do some act or thing, as a matter of duty, Vulcan Iron Works v Edwards, 27 Or 563, 36 P 22; a challenge by a man of the propriety or ownership of a thing, which he has not in his possession, but which is wrongfully detained from him, Prigg v Commonwealth of Pennsylvania (US) 16 Pet 539, 10 L Ed 1060; a demand made by the owner, or on behalf of the owner, of a vessel for its return after a seizure of the vessel by way of perfecting a forfeiture thereof by a proceeding in admiralty. 48 Am J1st Ship § 30; a demand against an insurance company for payment of a loss; a writing which uses words showing an intention to claim benefits under veteran's insurance. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1989; an assertion of ownership to a portion of the unappropriated soil of the public domain, protected by an entry in accordance with the federal statutes. 42 Am J1st Pub L § 19; a precise assertion of rights by an inventor respecting his discovery or invention. 40 Am J1st Pat § 92; a cause of action for some purposes. As used in a statute concerning claims against the state and providing for their enforcement by suit, the term is equivalent to "cause of action." Northwestern & Pacific Hypotheek Bank v State of Washington, 18 Wash 73 50 P 586.

The term does not include causes of action purely equitable and in which purely equitable relief is sought. Ashbauth v Davis. 71 Idaho 150, 227 P2d 954, 32 ALR2d 361.

See adverse claim; mining claim.

claim adjuster. See adjuster; claimant adjuster.

claim against decedent's estate. A debt or demand of a pecuniary nature which could have been enforced in law or equity against the decedent in his lifetime and could have been reduced to a simple money judgment. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 276.

Most courts have held that the term as used in a statute relating to the competency of interested witnesses in the prosecution of a "claim or demand" against an estate, refers to the assertion of any right against an estate. According to this view the words are not restricted to a money claim, but apply also to any other demand which would tend to deplete the estate. Other courts have limited these terms to such claims as can give rise to a suit calling for a money judgment. Anno: 41 ALR 1044.

claim against the United States. A right to demand money from the United States. 54 Am J1st US § 102.

claim agent. An employee of a railroad company, a business, or an industry, whose duty it is to investigate claims made against his employer and report to the employer whether a claim should be paid, denied, or adjusted.

claim and delivery. A statutory action in some jurisdictions, partaking of the nature of common-law replevin in contemplating the recovery of the specific property claimed, where such is possible, but resembling trover in permitting the recovery of the value where delivery of the specific property is impossible. 46 Am J1st Replev § 6.

[206]

claimant. One who claims; a voluntary applicant for justice; the libellant in a proceeding in rem in admiralty or one who appears in such a proceeding to claim the res or an interest therein. 2 Am J2d Adm § 142.

See claim.

claim check. A receipt for goods bailed, especially for baggage delivered by a passenger to a carrier.

claim in arrangement proceeding under the Bankruptcy Act. A proof of claim against the debtor or a claim scheduled by the debtor. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1310.

claim in a service. A petition by an heir to be served as heir of the decedent.

claim in bankruptcy. A proof of claim against the bankrupt.

See proof of claim; provable debt.

claim in corporate reorganization. A claim of whatever character against a debtor or its property, except stock, whether or not such claim is provable in an ordinary bankruptcy proceeding and whether secured or unsecured, liquidated or unliquidated, fixed or contingent. Bankr Act § 106(1); 11 USC § 506(1).

claim in proceeding for readjustment of public debt under the Bankruptcy Act. The claim of a creditor holding securities in the technical or nontechnical sense, even a holder of an unliquidated claim against the municipality or other public body. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1423.

claim in proceeding for wage earner's plan. A claim of whatever character against the debtor or his property, whether or not provable as a debt in ordinary bankruptcy, and whether secured or unsecured, liquidated or unliquidated, fixed or contingent, but not a claim secured by an estate in real property or chattels real. Bankr Act § 606(1); 11 USC § 1006(1).

claim in real property arrangement. A claim of whatever character against the debtor or his property, whether or not such is provable in ordinary bankruptcy and whether secured or unsecured, liquidated or unliquidated, fixed or contingent. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1359.

claim jumping. Taking advantage of the failure of one, who has settled on public lands or has begun a mining operation on such lands, to perfect his claim in the manner required by law, by locating a claim to the same area in the manner required by law, for the purpose of obtaining the same area irrespective of the work performed by the first occupant or claimant or of any right he may have by virtue of prior possession or occupation. Nelson v Smith, 42 Nev 302, 176 P 261, 178 P 625.

claim-notice. A notice posted on his mining claim by a miner or prospector setting forth his claim to mining rights in the land.

claim of cognizance. A claim of the right or privilege of taking jurisdiction of a cause. See 2 Bl Comm 298.

claim of consuance. Same as claim of cognizance.

claim of exemption. The assertion of a right given by law to a debtor to retain a portion of his personal property free from seizure and sale by his creditors under judicial process. 31 Am J2d Exemp § 1.

See notice of exemption.

claim of liberty. A suit or petition to the crown, in the court of exchequer, to have liberties and franchises confirmed there by the attorney general. Wharton's Law Dict.

claim of lien. The assertion of the existence of alien in claimant's favor; the filing of a verified statement of a mechanic's lien for record, required in perfecting such a lien. 36 Am J1st Mech L § 131.

claim of ownership. See claim of right.

claim of right. An entry upon land with the intent to claim the land and to hold it; the intention of a disseisor to appropriate and use land as his own to the exclusion of all others, irrespective of any semblance or shadow of actual title or right. Guaranty Title & Trust Corp v United States, 264 US 200, 204, 68 L Ed 636, 638, 44 S Ct 252.

claim of title. The entry and occupation of land with the intent to hold it as the claimant's own against the world, irrespective of any shadow or color or right or title as a foundation of his claim. Anno: 2 ALR 1457.

See claim of right.

claim or demand. See claim; claim against decedent's estate.

claims and controversies. See controversy.

claim to property within jurisdiction. A prerequisite to jurisdiction. Kohagen v Harwood (CA7 Wis) 185 F2d 276, 30 ALR2d 201.

claim, vi, furto aut precario. A claim accompanied by force, stealth or supplication.

clairvoyance. Keen perception; the ability to perceive occurrences out of sight.

clam. Noun: A bivalve mollusk, the soft part of which in some species is edible. Adverb: Secretly; furtively. Verb: A slang term of the underworld for remaining silent.

See shellfish.

clam bed. An area along the shore of the sea between high and low watermark from which clams are dug. Allen v Allen, 19 RI 114, 32 A 166. The bed may be a work of nature or of artificial cultivation, and subject to limitations, property rights may be acquired therein. 35 Am J2d Fish § 13.

clam delinquentes magis puniuntur quam palam. Those who offend in secret should be more severely punished than those who do so openly.

clamea admittenda in itinere per attornatum. A writ commanding the admission of an attorney to represent a claimant who was abroad.

clamor. A complaint; an outcry; a claim.

clandestine. Surreptitious; hidden or, at least, unpublicized, usually for an illegal or unworthy purpose.

clandestine introduction. An offense also known as smuggling and embracing all unlawful acts of concealment or other illegal conduct tending to show a fixed intent to evade the customs duty by subsequently passing the goods through the jurisdiction of the customs officials without paying the duties imposed thereon by law. Keck v United States, 172 US 434, 43 L Ed 505, 509, 19 S Ct 254.

clandestine marriage. A form of marriage, valid at common law, entered into before witnesses, usually with an irregular ceremony, -without the publication of banns, and lacking other requisites of the ecclesiastical law. Sharon v Sharon, 75 Cal 1, 16 P 345.

clap-stick. A watchman's alarm rattle.

clare constat. It clearly appears.

claremethen. A warranty of the title of goods which had been stolen.

Clarendon. See Constitutions of Clarendon.

Clarification Act. A federal statute pertaining to the rights and remedies of a seaman injured in the service of the ship. 50 USC Appx § 1291.

class. A large number of persons who may be designated collectively, irrespective of geographical limitation, political division, place of abode, or any similar restriction. Anno: 97 ALR 281.

class action. An action brought by one or more nominal plaintiffs on behalf of a class of persons. An action maintained in the Federal courts by authority of Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Procedure where several persons jointly act to the injury of many persons so numerous that their voluntarily, unanimously joining in a suit is concededly improbable and impracticable. In such situation the injured parties who are so minded may sue on behalf of all, and the remaining members of the class may join as they see fit. Weeks v Bareco Oil Co. (CA 7 Ill) 125 F2d 84.

See class suit.

class gift. See gift to a class.

classification. Dividing into class; in a more sophisticated statement, the grouping of things in speculation or practice because they "agree with one another in certain particulars and differ from other things in those same particulars." Billings v Illinois, 188 US 97, 47 L Ed 400, 23 S Ct 272. "Classification is the most inveterate of our reasoning processes. We can scarcely think or speak without consciously or unconsciously exercising it. It must therefore obtain in and determine legislation; but it must regard real resemblances and real differences between things and persons, and class them in accordance with their pertinence to the purpose in hand." Truax v Corrigan, 257 US 312, 66 L Ed 254, 42 S Ct 124, 27 ALR 375, 388.

"Classification" is a technical term for the practice in the English chancery courts of assigning litigants having similar interests in the same cause to one solicitor, to save expense.

classification of cities. The classification of cities within a state usually on the basis of population, so as to make possible and legal difference in charter, powers, and form of municipal government as between the several or many cities of the state. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 98.

classification of counties. The practice of grouping or classifying counties by population, authorized in some states, for the purpose of fixing the compensation of county officers, the purpose of regulating the registration of voters and the conduct of elections, or the selection and impanelment of jurors, or in relation to the establishment, jurisdiction, and procedure of courts.

classified service. Classified and graded positions in the civil service. 15 Am J2d Civ S § 16.

classis. A synod. See 45 Am J1st Reli Soc § 29.

class legislation. All legislation involves classification. Prohibited class legislation, which is what the term implies, is nothing more than the other side of the shield of the guaranty of equal protection of the laws; it is legislation which discriminates against some and favors others. 16 Am J2d Const L § 494; legislation which denies to one rights which are accorded to others, or inflicts upon one individual a more severe penalty than is imposed upon another in like case offending. People v Bellet, 99 Mich 151, 57 NW 1094.

class of creditors. A class created by the Bankruptcy Act for the purpose of priority in distribution of a bankrupt's assets. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1080.

class rate. A freight rate applying to a number of articles of the same general character.

class suit. An invention of equity to enable it to proceed to a decree in suits where the number of those interested in the subject of the litigation is so great that their joinder as parties in conformity with the usual rules of procedure is impracticable. Hansberry v Lee, 311 US 32, 85 L Ed 22, 61 S Ct 115. A salvage suit in admiralty brought by the master on behalf of himself and the members of his crew. 2 Am J2d Adm § 152.

See class action.

clause. As a grammatical form, a division of a compound or complex sentence, with a subject and a verb; in the language of the law, a sentence, a part of a sentence, sometimes a clause in the grammatical form, or a paragraph, such as in a will where division of the instrument into parts is made according to the kind of property or class of beneficiaries. Eschbach v Collins, 61 Md 478, 499.

clause irritant. A clause in a deed which limited the right of an absolute proprietor in entails.

clause of accrual. A clause in a will or deed directing to whom the property shall go in the event of the death of the devisee or grantee.

clause of accruer. Same as clause of accrual.

clause of ac etiam. See ac etiam.

clause of devolution. A clause imposing some obligation contingent upon an event.

clause of hiis testibus. See hiis testibus clause.

clause of return. A clause in a deed providing that a right shall upon certain specified contingencies revert to the grantor.

clause rolls. Same as close rolls.

clausula. A clause or distinct part of a sentence.

clausula derogatoria. A derogatory clause a clause which impinges upon authority not to be denied.

Clausulae inconsuetae semper inducunt suspicionem. Unaccustomed or unusual clauses always arouse suspicion.

Clausula generalis de residuo non ea complectitur quae non ejusdem sint generis cum iis quae speciatim dicta fuerant. A general clause of remainder does not include matters not of the same kind with those specially mentioned.

Clausula generalis non refertur ad expressa. A general clause does not refer to matters expressly mentioned.

Clausula quae abrogationem excludit ab initio non valet. A clause which forbids repeal is void from the beginning.

Clausula vet dispositio inutilis per praesumptionem remotam vet causam, ex post facto non fulcitur. A useless clause or disposition is not supported by a remote presumption or by a fact which occurs subsequently.

clausum. A close; a piece of land enclosed by a visible, material fence, or by an ideal, invisible boundary.

clausum fregit. He broke the close by a literal or figurative trespass, breaking a fence or walking across a boundary line.

clausura. An inclosure; a close.

claves curiae. The keys of the court.

clayme. An old form of the word "claim."

Clayton Act. A federal statute, approved by the President on October 15, 1914. having the purpose of protecting the public against the evils resulting from a lessening of competition, and forbidding certain practices in business which reduce competition and price discriminations. 15 USC §§ 12-27; 36 Am J1st Monop etc §§ 141, 142.

clean bill of lading. A bill of lading which contains nothing in the margin qualifying the words in the bill itself. 13 Am J2d Car § 265; a bill of lading for carriage by vessel which imports stowage below deck. 48 Am J1st Ship § 382.

clean hands doctrine. The equitable principle which requires a denial of relief to a complainant who is himself guilty of inequitable conduct in reference to the matter in controversy. 27 Am J2d Eq § 136; 28 Am J Rev ed Inj § 33.

Within the meaning of the maxim of equity requiring one who comes to it for relief to come with clean hands and an apparently clear conscience, the term unclean hands is a figurative description of a class of suitors to whom a court of equity as a court of conscience will not even listen, because the conduct of such suitors is itself unconscionable, that is, morally reprehensible as to known facts. 27 Am J2d Eq § 137.

See improper use doctrine.

clean paper. A banking term which is applied to such documents as bills, drafts and promissory notes, as distinguished from special paper such as bills of lading with sight drafts attached. Bunge v First Nat. Bank (DC Pa) 34 F Supp 119.

clear. Verb: To acquit; to justify; to excuse; to exonerate; to depart from port. Adjective: Certain; not clouded or obscured; not impinged upon. Ford v Ruxton, 1 Colly Ch Cas 403, 63 Eng Reprint 474.

clearance. A certificate which evidences the right of the vessel to depart the port on a voyage, operating as a permission to sail; the act of departing from a port. 48 Am J1st Ship § 19; the space permitted by the physical circumstances for a movement, as the distance between a turning car and a parked car, or the distance between a railroad car in movement on one track and a building or other railroad car, the latter distance being important in reference to the question whether a brakeman is in peril in a position on the moving car. Anno: 50 ALR2d 699; a term used in the motion picture business, meaning the interval of time which must elapse under the contract after the conclusion of the exhibition of a picture at one theater before it can be exhibited in any other theater in which it has not been exhibited. Waxmann v Columbia Pictures Corp. (DC Pa) 40 F Supp 108.

clearance card. A letter given an employee upon his leaving service, setting forth the nature and duration of the services rendered and the cause of leaving, not necessarily so complimentary of the services as to constitute a recommendation. Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway Co. v Jenkins, 174 Ill 398, 402, 51 NE 811.

clearance lights. Side lights on a motor vehicle. 8 Am J2d Auto § 712.

See side lights.

clear and convincing evidence. A degree of proof higher than that of preponderance of the evidence. 20 Am J2d Ev § 1253.

clear and present danger. The test of whether words spoken or written are capable of producing such a substantial evil that they are not within the protection of the constitutional guaranty of freedom of speech and press. 16 Am J2d Const L § 347.

clear days. Entire days; intervening days of which the first and last are excluded. Thus, the clear days between the first and the fourth, would be the second and the third.

clear distance ahead. See assured clear distance ahead.

clear, distinct, and unequivocal possession. A characterization of adverse possession. 3 Am J2d Adv P § 34.

clearinghouse. A voluntary association composed of banks, the purpose of which is to effect at one place in a city a daily exchange of checks, drafts, and other evidences of indebtedness held by one member and due from another. 10 Am J2d Banks § 838; an organization within a stock or commodity exchange which acts as a universal go-between or clearinghouse, for the debits and credits of its members with one another. At the close of each day's business all of these transactions are reported to the association, which then becomes the opposite party to the transactions of each member for the purpose of offsetting the same. 50 Am J1st Stock Ex § 20.

clearinghouse association. An association between banks or members of a stock or commodity exchange for maintaining a clearinghouse.

clearing land. Removing bushes, sprouts, and trees; an act of ownership. 3 Am J2d Adv P § 21.

clearly erroneous rule. A standard followed in reviewing a determination of an administrative agency. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 619.

clearly reflecting income. An income tax law term applied to a method of accounting, meaning a method which is plain, honest, straightforward, and frank, but not necessarily accurate and precise, without error or defect. Huntington Secur. Corp. v Busey (CA6 Ohio) 112 F2d 368.

clear market value. The sum which property will bring on a fair sale when sold by willing seller not obliged to sell to a willing buyer not obliged to buy. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 359.

[209]

clear of all deductions. A clause intended to indicate a gift or legacy of a sum which shall remain in the complete amount in which it is designated, without deduction for expenses, inheritance taxes, or estate taxes. Marris v Burton, 11 Sim 161, 59 Eng Reprint 836.

clear proof. That which may be seen; that which is discernible; that which may be appreciated and understood. In such sense, it may not really mean any more than a fair preponderance. It may, however, under emphasis, convey the idea of certainty, and it probably would to the common mind. Aubin v Duluth Street Railway Co. 169 Minn 342, 348, 211 NW 580.

clear, strong, and convincing. A degree of proof higher than that of preponderance of the evidence. 30 Am J2d Ev § 1167.

clear title. Good title; a legal and equitable title to land free from litigation, grave doubts, and palpable defects. Veselka v Forres (Tex Civ App) 283 SW 303, 306; a title free from material defects; a merchantable or marketable title. 30 Am J2d Exch § 23.

clear value. Net value after deductions. Bouse v Hutzler, 180 Md 682, 26 A2d 767, 141 ALR 843.

See clear market value.

clemency. Mildness; a disposition to forgive or to be lenient in punishment; the granting of a pardon or commutation of sentence.

Clementines. The collections of canon law made by Pope Clement in 1311.

cleofan (Anglo-Saxon.) Uniting to divide. Merion Cricket Club v United States (CA3) 119 F2d 578, affd 315 US 42, 86 L Ed 656, 62 S Ct 430; a term expressive of the theory of association in club or society.

Graphically expressed, the glutton and toper eat and drink at the expense of their more abstemious brethren and the more athletic or more enthusiastic golfer lives off his weaker or less zealous colleagues. Merion Cricket Club v United States, supra.

cleptomania. Same as kleptomania.

cleremonia. The clergy.

clergy. In olden times, a word for a clerk or educated man; in modern times, the pastors or priests of churches and the persons above them in the organization or hierarchy of the church, clergyable. Entitled to benefit of clergy, as a clerk or clergyman. The adjective was also applied to those felonies and misdemeanors in respect to which benefit of clergy could be claimed.

See benefit of clergy.

clergyman. One of the clergy.

See clergy.

clerical. Pertaining to a clerk or to the functions of a clerk.

clericale privilegium. Benefit of clergy.

clerical error. An error in technique rather than in substance of thought; the misprision of a clerk or other officer of the court, causing a defect or omission in the record. As the phrase applies to the record of a judgment, it means the failure to preserve or correctly represent in the record, in all respects, the actual decision of the court. Annos: 10 ALR 589, s. 67 ALR 842 and 126 ALR 977; 14 ALR2d 234. An error of a judge is a clerical error where it is one which cannot reasonably be attributed to exercise of judicial consideration or discretion. Anno: 14 ALR2d 234.

clerici de cancellaria. Clerks of the court of chancery.

clerici praenotarii. The six clerks in chancery. They were the clerks who filed pleadings and other papers.

clerico admittendo. A writ commanding a bishop to admit a clergyman to a living.

clerico capto, etc. See de clerico capto, etc.

clerico convicto, etc. See de clerico convicto, etc.

clericus. A clergyman; a clerk.

See clergy.

Clericus et agricola et mercator, tempore belli, ut oret, colat, et commutet pace fruuntur. Clergymen, farmers and merchants enjoy peace in time of war, so that they may preach, cultivate the soil, and trade.

clericus mercati. Clerk of the market.

Clericus non connumeretur in duabus ecclesiis. A clergyman should not be appointed by two churches.

clericus parochialis. A parish clerk.

clerigos. (Spanish.) Clergymen.

clerk. In the earlier days of the common law, a word for an educated person, that is to say, as of that period, a clergyman, one of the clergy who for want of education of other classes, became judicial officers and were known to be such from their status as clerks or clergymen; in modern times, one who keeps accounts for another; an accountant; a scribe; a public officer who keeps the accounts of the political subdivision which he serves; also one employed in a store to sell goods and transact other business of a perfunctory character for the owner, but not to act only as a cashier. Miller v State, 88 Tex Crim 69, 225 SW 379, 12 ALR 597, 601.

See law clerk; law office clerk.

clerk of arraigns. The clerk of the central criminal court in England; a deputy of the clerk of assize.

clerk of assize. The clerk who attended the justices of assize in their circuits.

clerk of court. Primarily a ministerial officer, the assistant or official scribe of the court, whose principal duty is to make a correct memorial of the proceedings of the court, and who has custody of the court's records and seal, with authority to certify to the correctness of transcripts from such records, and to perform certain acts of a judicial nature incidental to his ministerial duties. 15 Am J2d Cl C § 1. In some jurisdictions, by force of statute, the clerk of court has the function of a county recorder of instruments affecting title to real estate.

clerk of enrollments. At one time the chief officer of the English enrollment office.

Clerk of the House of Commons. An officer appointed by the crown who has the custody of the memorials and journals of the acts of the house of commons.

clerk of the peace. An officer whose function was to assist the justices of the peace in their quarter sessions.

clerk of the petty bag. An officer of the English chancery court who enrolled the admission of solicitors and other officers of the court.

clerk of the privy seal. An officer who formerly attended the lord privy seal.

clerk of the signet. An officer who attends the principal secretary of the king.

clerkship. The service of an attorney's clerk during his preparation for admission to the bar.

clerks of indictments. Clerks in the English central criminal court whose chief duty was to prepare indictments.

clerks of seats. Officers who attend to the clerical work in the principal registry of the probate division of the English high court.

clerks of the general sessions of the peace. Clerks of the courts of common pleas, known as county clerks, in England and in the American colonies, who were also ex-officio clerks of the general sessions of the peace and registers of deeds in their respective counties.

clerus. The clergy.

client. A person who applies to a lawyer or counsellor for advice and direction on a question of law, or commits his cause to his management in prosecuting a claim or defending against a suit, in a court of justice. McCreary v Hoopes, 25 Miss 428, 429; a patron or employer of an attorney or solicitor; a person who applies to an advocate for counsel and defense; one who retains an attorney, who is responsible to him for his fees, and to whom the attorney is responsible for his management of the suit. McFarland v Crary (NY) 6 Wend 297, 312.

In recent times, the term has been extended to cover the employer or customer of persons engaged in activities other than the practice of law. So, a broker in stocks, insurance, or real estate, speaks of his "clients," as does a dressmaker, even a barber.

Clifford's Inn. One of the inns of the English court of chancery.

climacteric insanity. A form of temporary insanity arising from some peculiar transitional condition of the system. Leache v State, 22 Tex Crim 279.

climbing spurs. See spurs.

clinic. The outpatient department of a hospital; a place wherein physicians practice in close association with one another, particularly physicians with specialities in the practice.

clinical. Pertaining to a clinic; study or practice in medicine by full and complete observation.

clinical examination. The acts of a physician in examining a patient for objective symptoms, interviewing the patient to obtain at least a partial history of the case, and supplementing the history thus obtained from other possible sources. Peterson v Widule, 157 Wis 641, 147 NW 966.

clocking. Ascertaining the rate of speed, particularly of motor vehicles. 7 Am J2d Auto §§ 326-329.

clogging. Cheating with clogged or loaded dice.

clogging equity of redemption. Imposing upon a mortgage an agreement whereby the mortgagor forfeits, clogs, or fetters his equity of redemption. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg § 241; 36 Am J1st Mtg § 184.

close. Noun: A tract or parcel of land enclosed by a fence or an invisible boundary; the end. Verb: To finish, as to close one's argument or case; to make an enclosure. Adjective: Wrapped up; sealed.

close. Attached by bonds of affection and regard; near together.

close clearance. See clearance.

close confinement. Such custody of a prisoner as will safely secure him. Rooney v North Dakota, 196 US 319, 49 L Ed 494, 25 S Ct 264.

See solitary confinement.

close copies. Copies which may be written with any number of words on a sheet.

close corporation. A corporation in which the officers and directors have the power to fill vacancies in office without submitting the choice to the stockholders; another term for a "family corporation," in which the most of the stock is held by members of one family. 18 Am J2d Corp § 13.

closed. Terminated; being at an end. The term is of somewhat variable meaning as relating to a business transaction, one meaning being that of reaching an agreement, the other being that of putting an agreement into effect, as where the parties to a real estate contract say the deal is "closed" when the parties meet and perform their engagements, the one delivering a deed and the other making payment of the consideration promised. Tahir Erk v Glenn L. Martin Co. (DC Md) 32 F Supp 722.

closed bank. Literally a bank not open for business at the time, but for most purposes, such as the necessity for presentment at a bank of an instrument payable at the bank, a closed bank is a failed bank, an insolvent bank, or a bank which has ceased to exist. 11 Am J2d B & N § 760.

See failed bank.

closed car. A private car on a railroad. 14 Am J2d Car § 860; an automobile with body and top for the protection of driver and passengers.

closed investigations. Private investigations. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 258; completed or terminated investigations by detectives or police officers.

closed season. A restriction or absolute prohibition imposed by law upon fishing or hunting during a specified period of the year. 35 Am J2d Fish § 46. The restriction, which is imposed by statute or administrative regulation in the interest of conservation of fish and wild life, may apply to all kinds of fish and all species of game birds and animals during the specified period or, as it usually does, to designated kinds of fish and particular game birds and animals, with variations from season to season in the scope of the coverage.

closed shop. A place of employment in which all employees are required by contract between the employer and a labor union to be members of the union. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 95; more broadly defined, a place of employment where either unionism or nonunionism excludes an applicant from employment. Anno: 95 ALR 11.

closed shop basis. An arrangement wherein an employer agrees to employ no workmen who do not belong to a union. Fenske Bros. v Upholsterers'

[211]

International Union, 358 Ill 239, 193 NE 112, 97 ALR 1318.

See closed shop.

closed trial or hearing. A trial conducted in private, not in open court. 53 Am J1st Trial § 36; an investigation by an administrative body which is closed to the public. 2 Am J2d Admin L §§ 258, 412.

closed union. A labor union whose membership is limited in number. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 57.

closed venire. A list of names of persons to be summoned for jury duty which is complete in the sense that the names of the prospective jurors are listed and there shall be no further selection for such venire. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 91.

close letters. See close writs; literae clausae.

closely built up. A term for a heavily populated area. 7 Am J2d Auto § 191.

closely related occupation. See directly essential to production.

close port. An inland port, situated on a river.

close rolls. English public records of close writs. See 2 Bl Comm 346.

close-time. Same as closed season.

close writs. Letters or grants from the king, sealed with his great seal, but directed to particular persons, and for particular purposes, and which, not being proper for public inspection, were closed up and sealed on the outside. They were also called literae clausae. See 2 Bl Comm 346.

closing. Making the final argument; summing up. Completing a transaction, particularly a contract for the sale of real estate, in execution of the contract.

See rest.

closing agreement. The rarely used formal agreement for determining liability for federal taxes with a degree of finality otherwise achieved only through a court decision; in effect, a mutual release which binds both parties. IRC § 7121; Proctor v White [DC Mass] 28 F Supp 161.

closing statement. The closing argument or summation by counsel in a trial.

cloth. The clergy; woven material used primarily for wearing apparel.

clothed with a public interest. Something of public consequence and affecting the community at large. 16 Am J2d Const L § 317.

A business is clothed with a public interest where the circumstances are such as to create a close relation between the public and the persons engaged in the business and raise implications of an affirmative obligation on the latter to be reasonable in dealing with the public. Charles Wolfe Packing Co. v Court of Industrial Relations, 262 US 522, 67 L Ed 1103, 43 S Ct 630, 27 ALR 1280.

clothing. See wearing apparel.

cloud on title. An outstanding instrument, record, claim unreleased encumbrance, or defectively executed deed in the chain of title, which superficially renders the title doubtful but is actually illegal or unenforceable for want of equity in enforcement and of which equity will take cognizance in a suit for cancellation of the offending instrument or the quieting of the title against the defect or imperfection. 13 Am J2d Cane Inst § 50; 44 Am J1st Quiet T § 11; a semblance of title, either legal or equitable, or a claim of a right in lands, appearing in some legal form, but which is, in fact, invalid, or which it would be inequitable to enforce. 44 Am J1st Quiet T § 11.

cloud seeding. An attempt to control natural phenomena by artificial means, that is, by scattering certain chemical substances in a cloud from an airplane.

The purpose is usually to promote rainfall, but, at times, to suppress hail and lightning. 1 Am J2d Adj L § 40; 3 Am J2d Agri § 6.

clough. A valley.

cloven hoof. See neat cattle.

club. An organization or association of persons who meet together for the purpose of social intercourse or some common object such as the pursuit of literature, science, politics, art, and athletic pursuits or sports, such as swimming, tennis, and golf. United Cerebral Palsy Asso. v Zoning Board of Adjustment, 382 Pa 67, 114 A2d 331, 52 ALR2d 1093.

clubhouse. A building, plain or elaborate, used for the indoor activities, entertainment, and refreshment of the members of a club and their guests. Anno: 52 ALR2d 1098.

Co. Abbreviation for company, also for county.

C. O. Abbreviation for commanding officer, also for conscientious objector.

c/o. Abbreviation for care of, also for carried over.

coach. A word of variable meaning, applied originally to a commodious horse-drawn vehicle, now applied to some motor vehicles particularly large vehicles which carry passengers for hire; a car on a passenger train where passengers paying regular fare are accommodated; an airplane, or section of an airplane, operated by an airline for the accommodation of passengers carried at an economy rate.

See coaching.

coaching. Instructing a witness before he takes the stand, an unobjectionable practice so long as it is confined to instruction calculated to lessen the ordeal of testifying, explaining what is expected in the demeanor of a witness, but becoming highly objectionable when it comes to the point of telling the witness what his testimony shall be; whispering or signaling to a witness on the stand for the purpose of influencing his testimony.

coadjutor. An assistant, particularly the assistant of a bishop or other prelate of the church of England.

coadministrator. One of two or more administrators appointed by the court to act jointly in the administration of the estate of a decedent.

coadunatio. A conspiracy.

coadventure. See joint adventure.

coafforest. To convert clear land into a forest, or to increase a forest.

coagent. An agent acting jointly with another agent; an accomplice.

coal and minerals. A broad term, sometimes held to include oil and gas, where appearing in a deed or reservation in a deed. Gibson v Sellars (Ky) 252 SW2d 911, 37 ALR2d 1435.

For practical purposes, the right to coal consists in the right to mine it. What makes the right to mine coal valuable is that it can be exercised with profit. A statute making it commercially impracticable to mine certain coal has very nearly the same effect for constitutional purposes as appropriating or destroying it. Pennsylvania Coal Co. v Mahon, 260 US 393, 67 L Ed 322, 43 S Ct 158, 28 ALR 1321.

[212]

coal chamber. An underground space or room created in mining coal. 36 Am J1st Min & M § 181.

coal hole. An aperture in a sidewalk, close to a building, through which, coal or other dry product in grains or chunks may be shoveled so as to reach the basement of the building.

coal mine. See mine.

coal mining. See mining.

coal mining lease. See mining lease.

coal note. A kind of promissory note used at the port of London.

coal oil. See kerosene.

coal tar colors. Food coloring made from coal tar, the use of which in food renders the food adulterated within the meaning of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, unless the coloring is from a batch duly certified and listed as a product harmless and suitable for use in food. 21 USC § 342(c).

coal tipple. A device whereby railroad cars loaded with coal are unloaded by shaking them; an elevated structure in railroad yards or in coal mines to which coal is elevated and stored temporarily, to be released into railroad cars, aided by the force of gravity.

coassignee. One of two or more persons to whom an assignment has been made.

coast. The seaboard. Pacific Milling & Elevator Co. v Portland, 65 Or 349, 133 P 72.

See coasting.

coast and geodetic survey. An operation of the Department of Commerce for the benefit of mariners, pilots, aircraft pilots, land surveyors, radio engineers, scientists, and others, its major activities being the surveying and charting of the coasts of the United States and its possessions to insure the safe navigation of coastal and intracoastal waters; the surveying of lakes, rivers, and other inland waters by hydrographic and topographic methods; the fixing of geographical positions and elevations in the interior of the country, thereby providing a framework for mapping and other engineering work studying tides and currents and making tables thereof; compiling aeronautical charts, making seismological, gravitational, and astronomical observations and compiling the data obtained thereby to assist in designing structures resistant to earthquakes and providing data for scientific investigation of the crust of the earth.

coaster. A vehicle without power used by children in riding on a hill; a sled.

See coasting vessel.

coasting. Operating a motor vehicle on a grade with the motor disengaged. 8 Am J2d Auto § 687; the sport of traveling downhill on snow in a sled; engaging in the coasting trade.

See coasting trade.

coasting license. The license of a ship or vessel to engage in the coasting trade. See 48 Am J1st Ship § 48.

coasting trade. Domestic trade as distinguished from foreign trade; commerce between ports of the United States, including trade on interior rivers or lakes, along the coasts, Alaska and with the outlying territories and insular possessions of the United States. 48 Am J1st Ship § 50.

coasting vessel. A ship often called a "coaster," plying exclusively between domestic ports; a ship engaged in coasting or domestic trade, as distinguished from foreign trade. 48 Am J1st Ship § 50; a vessel on a course near to and following the coast. 12 Am J2d Boats § 1.

The fact that an ocean going steamer may touch at some other port of the United States, after leaving her port of departure does not make her a coaster. See Belden v Chase, 150 US 674, 696, 37 1, Ed 1218, 1226, 14 S Ct 264.

See coasting trade.

coat of arms. See arms; insignia.

cobelligerent. Allied in war.

coca leaves. A material containing the substance of a narcotic drug. 25 Am J2d Drugs § 34.

cocket. A custom house seal; a certificate issued by a customs officer showing the payment of duties.

cockfight. A contest, usually to the death of a participant, in which gamecocks are pitted in combat. Anna: 82 ALR2d 821 § 6.

cock-loft. A nickname for the English Court of the Vice-Chancellor.

cockpit. The meeting-room of the English privy council at Westminster, the place from which small watercraft and small airplanes are controlled; a region where many battles have been fought; the space in which cockfights are held.

cocktail. A drink, strong, stimulating, and cold, made of spirits, bitters, and a little sugar, with various aromatic or stimulating additions or substitutions. The two most popular cocktails are the martini and the manhattan, the basis of which respectively is gin and whiskey. The daiquiri, which is made from rum, is also a popular drink. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 15.

cocoa leaves. See coca leaves.

C. O. D. Abbreviation for collect on delivery. 1 Am J2d Abbr § 7.

See collect on delivery.

code. The published statutes of a jurisdiction, arranged in a systematic form by chapters and sections; a part of the statutes of a jurisdiction, such as a Commercial Code, or practice Code; the official or authenticated book or books of statutes; a systematic and complete body of law, Johnson v Harrison, 47 Minn 575, 578; a codification of the entire body of law, or of the entire body of law on a distinct subject, compiled by a selective process, including some modifications of, and additions to, pre-existing law, and made official through legislative adoption, Central of Georgia Railway Co. v State, 104 Ga 831, 31 SE 531; Litchfield v Roper 192 NC 202, 205, 134 SE 651; a set of signs or symbols used in sending messages for the purpose of secrecy.

Code Civil. Same as Code Napoleon.

Code Napoleon. A codification of French law made during the reign of Napoleon I and at his direction.

Code of Federal Regulations. An orderly arrangement of the general and permanent rules promulgated by the executive departments and agencies of the United States and published in the Federal Reg ister, the code itself being published as a special edition of the register.

[213]

Code of Military Justice. A code which embraces, unifies, consolidates, and codifies the disciplinary laws governing the Armed Forces of the United States, replacing the Articles of War. 10 USC §§ 801-940.

codex. A code.

codicil. Some addition to or qualification of one's last will and testament. Codicils were formerly actually attached to the will, but now if the codicil is a separate document referring to and ratifying the will it may be said to incorporate the will by reference. 57 Am J1st Wills § 605.

codification. A code; the process of making a code covering the whole law or particular subject of the law.

See code.

Coe Case. An important decision by the United States Supreme Court on the effect of a foreign judgment of divorce as res judicata on the issue of jurisdiction where the defendant, a nonresident, appeared in the action but did not raise the issue of jurisdiction. Coe v Coe, 334 US 378, 92 L Ed 1451, 68 S Ct 1094, 1 ALR2d 1376.

coemployee. A fellow servant. Shank v Edison Electric Illuminating Co. 225 Pa 393, 74 A 210.

coemptio. A fictitious sale of an estate to relieve it of sacrificial duties attached to it; a marriage ceremony depicting the sale of bride and groom to one another.

See the derivative term coemption.

coemption. The buying up of a commodity for the purpose of obtaining a monopoly and controlling the price; under the Roman law, a civil marriage contract in which both parties contributed money.

coercion. Compulsion by the application of physical or mental force or persuasion. A word descriptive of the result of an act rather than a designation of an act. NLRB v Grower-Shipper Vegetable Asso. (CA9) 122 F2d 368. A form of abuse of process. 1 Am J2d Abuse P § 9. The compulsion, presumed by some, especially older, authorities, to have been exercised by a husband upon the wife for the commission of a crime which was committed by her in his presence. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 102; As a defense to an action upon a written instrument:-importunity which destroys the free agency of person subjected and substitutes the will of another in place of his own, Gomillion v Forsythe, 218 SC 211, 62 SE2d 297, 53 ALR2d 169; As an unfair labor practice:-physical or mental persuasion by affirmative conduct. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 226; As an excuse for the commission of an act, otherwise criminal a present, imminent, and impending physical or mental force of such a nature as to induce a well-grounded apprehension of death or serious bodily injury if the act is not done. State v St. Clair (Mo) 262 SW2d 25, 40 ALR2d 903.

See duress.

coercion in fact. That duress of person or goods, where the present liberty of person or immediate possession of goods is so needful and desirable, as that an action or proceedings at law to recover them will not at all answer the pressing purpose. Adrico Realty Corp. v New York, 250 NY 29, 164 NE 732, 64 ALR 1.

coexecutors. Two or more persons appointed to act jointly in the administration of a testator's estate.

coffee agreement. See Inter-American Coffee Agreement.

coffee break. A short rest period, now generally accepted as a condition of employment. Mitchell v Greinetz (CA 10 Colo) 235 F2d 621, 61 ALR2d 956.

cofferer of the queen's household. A principal officer of the royal court, being a paymaster.

cogger. Slang for a cheat or swindler.

cogging. Slang for cheating by means of clogged or loaded dice.

Cogitationis poenam nemo patitur. No one suffers punishment for mere intent. State v Taylor, 47 Or 455, 84 P 82.

Cogito ergo sum. I think, therefore I am. The fundamental maxim of the philosophy of Descartes.

cognac. A brandy named for a region of France. Benson v United States (CA5 Tex) 10 F2d 309.

cognates. Relatives on the mother's side or by females. See 2 Bl Comm 235.

cognati. Blood relatives traced through the mother or other females. See 2 Bl Comm 235.

cognatio. (Roman law.) Relationship; blood relationship.

cognition. Relationship by ties of blood or family.

cognisance. Same as cognizance.

cognitio. Same as cognizance.

cognitionibus admittendis. A writ requiring an officer to certify to the court of common pleas a list of the fines which had been paid, the payment of which had not been reported.

cognizable. Within the jurisdiction of a specific court or tribunal.

cognizance. Acknowledgment; recognition; jurisdiction. Precisely, the assumption of jurisdiction. Kendall v United States (US) 12 Pet 524, 622, 9 L Ed 1181, 1220.

cognizance of pleas. The exclusive right or franchise of trying cases within a particular limited jurisdiction. See 3 Bl Comm 298.

cognizance of the cause. A term often invoked in determining priority of jurisdiction as between courts having concurrent jurisdiction, signifying that some step has been taken in a court in reference to a cause, such as the issuance of process, entertaining a motion, etc., so that the cause is pending. 20 Am J2d Cts § 136.

cognizant. Legally qualified to take jurisdiction.

cognizee. The person to whom a fine of land was levied. See 2 Bl Comm 351.

cognizor. A party levying a fine of land. He was thus designated from his acknowledgment or recognition of the right of the complainant to recover the land in question. See 2 Bl Comm 350.

cognomen. A name, especially the family name of a person; a nickname.

[214]

cognosce. To give judgment; to adjudge; to adjudicate.

cognoscere. To acknowledge.

cognovit. See cognovit actionem; cognovit note.

cognovit actionem. Confession of judgment after service of process; instead of entering a plea, acknowledging and confessing that the plaintiff's cause of action is just and right. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 156.

Cognovit actionem relicta verificatione. The defendant's abandonment of his defense or plea which he has interposed in the action. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 156.

cognovit note. A promissory note which contains a provision authorizing an attorney, agent, or other representative to confess judgment on the instrument and direct entry of such judgment. 11 Am J2d B & N § 199.

cognustre. To acknowledge.

coguardian. One of two or more joint guardians.

cohabit. To live together as man and wife; to live together as though the conjugal relation existed. 2 Am J2d Adult § 1; to have sexual intercourse illegally. Martin v Commonwealth, 195 Va 1107, 87 SE2d 574.

cohabitation. A dwelling together of man and woman in the same place in the manner of husband and wife. 2 Am J2d Adult § 1. The word does not necessarily imply sexual intercourse but may mean simply that a man holds out to the world as his wife more than one woman, and that he provides homes for them, supports them, and acknowledges them as his wives. 10 Am J2d Big § 5.

See matrimonial cohabitation.

cohabiting. See cohabit; cohabitation.

cohaeredes. Coheirs; joint heirs.

Cohaeredes una persona censentur, propter unitatem juris quod habent. Coheirs are regarded as one person because they hold under unity of right.

cohaeres. Same as coheir.

coheir. A joint heir; a person who succeeds or inherits jointly with another, or with other, heirs; an heir who takes as joint tenant with another, or with other, heirs.

coif. A cap worn by sergeants-at-law in the English courts.

See Order of the Coif.

coin. Noun: A piece of metal, made, stamped as of a certain value, and declared by law to be money; the die used in stamping money. Verb: To stamp metal and convert it to a piece of money. Boric v Trott (Pa) 5 Phila 366, 403. To coin money means to mould into form a metallic substance of intrinsic value, and stamp on it its legal value, so as to encourage and facilitate its free circulation and assure stability in the currency. Griswold v Hepburn, 63 Ky (2 Duv) 20 29. To coin money means to make money out of coin and nothing else. To coin money cannot mean to coin it out of paper. Thayer v Hedges, 22 Ind 282, 306.

See adulterated coin; base coin; counterfeit coin; current coin; gold coinage; hard money; imbasing of money; money; silver coinage; specie.

coinage. The process of coining money; the system and the principles regulating and governing the production of the metal currency of the country.

coiner. One who coins money; a counterfeiter.

coinheritance. A joint inheritance.

coin money. See coin.

coin operated amusement or gaming device. A slot machine. United States v Korpan, 345 US 271, 1 L Ed 2d 1337. 77 S Ct 1099.

See silver coinage.

coinsurance. Literally, two or more policies of insurance issued by different insurers covering the same risk; in modern insurance parlance, a relative division of the risk between insurer and the insured, dependent upon the relative amount of the policy and the actual value of the property insured thereby. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1548.

See coinsurance clause.

coinsurance clause. A clause in a contract of insurance which in substance requires the insured to maintain insurance on the property covered by the policy in a certain amount, and stipulates that upon his failure to do so, the insured shall be a coinsurer and bear his proportionate part of the loss on the deficit in the coverage. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1548.

coinsurer. One of two or more insurers who have issued policies covering the same risk, and who contribute ratably in case of loss. Chesbrough v Home Ins. Co. 61 Mich 333, 335; the position or status of the insured under a coinsurance clause.

See coinsurance clause.

coition. Copulation; sexual intercourse; the consummation of marriage. Anonymous, 89 Ala 291, 7 So 100.

coitus. Copulation; sexual intercourse.

coitus interruptus. Withdrawal before emission. 4 Am J2d Annul § 6.

cojudices. Associate judges.

Coke. A renowned English jurist who served as Lord Chief Justice of England and contributed notably in opinions and legal articles to the development of the common law.

See Institutes of Coke; Littleton.

col. An abbreviation of the word "colored," used with reference to a person. Collins v Oklahoma State Hospital, 76 Okla 229, 184 P 946, 7 ALR 895, 899.

cold storage. The preservation of food by storage in a room where the temperature is kept at a low degree, sometimes in a refrigerating vault or chamber, yet not necessarily at a temperature below freezing for all foods in the place. Allen v Somers, 73 Conn 355, 47 A 653.

cold-wall method. A term descriptive of a method of handling milk in the dairyman's barn. Southside Co-op. Milk, etc. Asso. 198 Va 108, 92 SE2d 353.

cold-water ordeal. A trial by ordeal in which the defendant was thrown into cold water; if he sank, he was deemed innocent; if he floated, he was found guilty.

colessee. One of two or more joint lessees.

colessor. One of two or more joint lessors.

colibertus. A tenant in free socage who was nevertheless under a duty of rendering some service to the lord.

[215]

Co. Litt. An abbreviation of Coke's Littleton.

See Institutes of Coke; Littleton.

collapse. Falling in or falling together; shrinking so that sides meet; the antithesis of "explosion." Louisville Underwriters v Durland, 123 Ind 544, 24 NE 221.

collapse of building. A falling in, loss of shape, or flattening of a building, or some other disastrous occurrence which causes a building to lose its distinctive character as a building. Central Mut. Ins. Co. v Royal, 269 Ala 372, 113 So 2d 680, 72 ALR2d 1283.

collapsible corporation. A corporation organized under a prearranged plan for its liquidation before there is opportunity for it to realize any or any substantial taxable income. IRC § 341.

collat. Abbreviation for collateral.

collateral. Noun: Stocks or bonds accompanying an obligation as security therefor; a collateral relative. Adjective: Accompanying in the sense of going side by side, as security accompanying the principal obligation.

collateral act. An act the performance of which is secured by a bond.

collateral agreement. See collateral contract.

collateral ancestors. A paradoxical term, since ancestors are those persons from whom one is lineally or directly descended, but occasionally used for aunts, uncles, and other collateral relatives of older generations. Banks v Walker (NY) 3 Barb Ch 438, 446.

collateral assurance. A deed or conveyance made subsequently to the original one for the purpose of perfecting the grantee's title.

See covenant for further assurance.

collateral attack. Attempting to impeach or challenging the integrity of a judgment, decree, or order in an action or proceeding other than that in which the judgment, decree, or order was rendered, other than by appeal from, or review of, the judgment, decree, or order, and other than an action or proceeding instituted for the express purpose of annulling, correcting, or modifying the judgment, decree, or order, or enjoining its execution. Morrill v Morrill, 20 Or 96, 25 P 362; an attack upon a judgment, decree, or order offered, in an action or proceeding other than that in which it was obtained, in support of the allegations or contentions of an adversary in the action or proceeding, as where the judgment is offered in support of a title or as a foundation for applying the doctrine of res judicata. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 851.

An attack is collateral if made upon a judgment in an action that has an independent purpose other than impeaching a judgment, even though impeaching the particular judgment may be essential to the success of the action. Hoverstad v First Nat. Bank & Trust Co. 76 SD 119, 74 NW2d 48, 56 ALR2d 938.

collateral attack on judgment. See collateral attack.

collateral consanguinity. A blood relationship between persons under a descent from a common ancestor but by different lines; the relationship between persons who descend from the same stirps or root but who do not lineally descend from each other. One's brothers and cousins are his collateral relatives, that is, in collateral consanguinity with him. 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 42.

collateral contract. A contract prior to, or contemporaneous with, a deed, which, if not incorporated in the deed, is not effective to limit the estate conveyed or bind directly the use of the property included in the grant, but may be given effect as a personal covenant binding upon the parties and persons in privity of estate and having notice. 28 Am J2d Est § 137.

See collateral contract doctrine.

collateral contract doctrine. An exception to the parol evidence rule, similar in many respects to the doctrine of partial integration, which permits proof by parol of a separate and independent verbal contract between the parties to a written contract under the principle that the parol evidence rule does not affect a purely collateral contract distinct from, and independent of, the written agreement. 36 Am J2d Ev § 1016.

collateral covenant. A covenant in a deed which does not relate to the grant.

See collateral contract.

collateral descent. Descent to collateral relatives, as from brother to brother, cousin to cousin, etc. Anno: 54 ALR2d 1009.

collaterales et socii. Masters in chancery.

collateral estoppel. Another expression for the doctrine of estoppel by judgment or, as used in some instances, for the doctrine of res judicata. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 328; the doctrine of res judicata in relation to administrative agencies. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 324.

See estoppel by judgment; res judicata.

collateral facts. Facts which are inadmissible in evidence because they are incapable of affording any reasonable presumption or inference as to the principal fact or matter in dispute. Darling v Westmoreland, 52 NH 401.

collateral fraud. Same as extrinsic fraud.

collateral guaranty. An anomalous expression, since a guaranty is inherently collateral, being collateral to the principal obligation, but used by way of emphasizing the existence of a guaranty in the strict sense of the term, in which the obligation of the guarantor is to pay if the principal shall fail to pay or perform, as distinguished from a suretyship, in which the surety is obligated under a direct promise or undertaking to pay or perform. Nading v McGregor, 121 Ind 465, 23 NE 283.

collateral heir. An heir by collateral descent, such as a brother or cousin. Anno: 54 ALR2d 1009.

collateral impeachment. A collateral attack. Racey v Racey, 12 Okla 650, 73 P 305.

See collateral attack.

collateral inheritance tax. An inheritance or succession tax on the devolution of property under the laws of descent or under a will to the collateral relatives of the decedent or persons other than the spouse, descendants, or parents of the decedent. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 11.

collateral issues. Issues arising in a case which do not involve the merits of the controversy.

See collateral facts.

collateral kinsmen. Blood relatives of a person other than his lineal relatives.

See collateral consanguinity.

collateral limitation. A limitation provided for in a conveyance which gives an interest for a prescribed period, but makes the right to possess or enjoy the thing conveyed to depend upon some collateral event. Templeman v Gibbs, 86 Tex 358, 362, 24 SW 792.

[216]

collateral matter. See collateral facts.

collateral power. A power, otherwise known as a "naked power" or "power without interest," to dispose of property, given to a stranger, that is, one having no interest or estate in the property. Columbia Trust Co. v Christopher, 133 Ky 335, 344, 117 SW 943.

collateral proceeding. An action or proceeding wherein a judgment is attacked collaterally, that is, without seeking directly the overturning of the judgment. Alford v Guffy (Ky) 115 SW 216, 217.

See collateral attack.

collateral promise to answer for the debt of another. An undertaking which renders the promisor a guarantor or surety upon a debt owing by a third person who is primarily liable; a promise to pay the debt of another person made under such circumstances that, as between the debtor and the promisor, the former should pay. 49 Am J1st Stat of F § 61; an undertaking by a person not before liable for the purpose of securing or performing the same duties for which the party for whom the undertaking is made continues liable. Goldsmith v Erwin (CA4 NC) 183 F2d 432, 20 ALR2d 240.

collateral relative. See collateral consanguinity.

collateral security. An additional security, in the form of an article of value or an evidence of indebtedness, for the payment of a debt, or the performance of an obligation, whether the debt or obligation be antecedent or newly created, designed to increase the means of the creditor or obligee to realize upon the debt or obligation, and given to the creditor or obligee to be held by him as subsidiary to the principal debt or obligation and as running parallel with such debt or obligation, so that when it is collected by the creditor or obligee, the proceeds are to go to the credit of the principal debt or obligation, or, if the principal debt or obligation be paid, satisfied, or performed without realizing upon the collateral, the latter shall be returned to the debtor or obligor. Seanor & Bierer v McLaughlin, 165 P 150, 30 A 717.

collateral source rule. The rule of damages that benefits received by the plaintiff from a source wholly independent of and collateral to the wrongdoer will not diminish the damages otherwise recoverable. 22 Am J2d Damg § 206.

collateral succession tax. See collateral inheritance tax.

collateral undertaking. See collateral contract; collateral promise to answer for the debt of another.

collateral warranty. A warranty of a title made by a person who is a stranger to the title. As a general rule, the covenant of a stranger to the title is personal to the covenantee and is incapable of transmission by a mere conveyance of the land. 20 Am J2d Cov § 36.

collatio bonorum. Collation of advancements or hotchpot.

collation. The comparison of a copy with the original document.

See collation of advancements; collation of seals; collation to a benefice.

collatione facta uni post mortem alterius. A writ commanding the justices to issue their writ to the bishop to admit a clerk instead of one who has died since he was appointed by the king.

collation of advancements. the grouping with the assets of a decedent's estate of an intestate's estate of the value of property given by him by way of advancement to heirs or distributees during his lifetime, so that the whole may be divided so far as possible in accordance with the statutes of descent and distribution, each share being charged with what has already been received.

collation of seals. A comparison of seals.

collation to a benefice. The conferring of a benefice by a bishop who holds the patronage.

collatio signorum. A comparison of seals.

collect. To receive payment; to do that which may be lawfully done by the holder of the obligation to secure its payment or liquidation after its maturity. Hutson v Rankin, 36 Idaho 169, 213 P 345, 33 ALR 91, 95. As used in a statute allowing an employer of an injured employee to "collect" indemnity from the wrongdoer, the word imports an act of payment without reference to the legal grounds on which payment may be demanded. The word is not usually employed in a statute creating legal liability. Walters v Eagle Indem. Co. 166 Tern 383, 61 SW2d 666, 88 ALR 654.

collecting agent. An agent of an insurance company who is authorized to accept payment of the premium. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 560.

collect in the ordinary way. A direction which authorizes the employment of a bank as a subagent for the purpose of collecting. 3 Am J2d Agency § 1 37.

collection. A group of things assembled, as a collection of rocks; an item of business of a collection agency or, as the term is sometimes used, of a lawyer in the commercial line; the act of receiving payment of a debt, whether payment be voluntary or compelled by legal action or process.

See costs of collection; deposit for collection.

collection agency. A person or firm engaged in the business of collecting or receiving for payment claims of all kinds on behalf of others. 15 Am J2d Collect § 1.

See collection service.

collection district. One of the districts into which the United States is divided for the purpose of the collection of customs duties. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 60.

collection service. A collection agency; a business, otherwise known as a skip-tracing agency, which provides creditors with mailing materials and other services to assist them in the collection of accounts by helping them locate delinquent debtors and by uncovering financial and other information about such debtors. 15 Am J2d Collect § 1.

collective bargaining. A course of conduct or process calculated to insure freedom of negotiation in the settlement of issues involved in labor disputes and to facilitate an arrival at equitable understandings respecting hours of employment, wages, working conditions, and other matters of concern in employer-employee relationships. The negotiation of terms and conditions of employment between an organization acting on behalf of the employed, and an employer, or association of employers, in contradis

[217]

inction to bargaining between an employer and an individual employee. Anno: 95 ALR 11. The right of a labor union to bargain collectively on behalf of its members, including by implication that which is reasonably necessary to protect that right. Art Metals Constr. Co. v NLRB (CA2) 110 F2d 148. Whatever may have been the law of earlier times, it is now crystal clear that the rights of working men to organize and to designate their representatives for purposes of collective bargaining are clearly recognized both by the courts and statutes. No longer can there be doubt that a labor union when authorized by its members may make contracts in their behalf. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 86. As contemplated by the National Labor Relations Act, collective bargaining is a procedure looking toward the making of a collective agreement between the employer and the accredited representative of his employees concerning wages, hours and other conditions of employment. It requires that the parties involved deal with each other with an open and fair mind and sincerely endeavor to overcome obstacles or difficulties existing between the employer and the employees to the end that employment relations may be stabilized and obstruction to the free flow of commerce prevented. NLRB v Boss Mfg. Co. (CA7) 118 F2d 187.

collective bargaining agreement. See collective labor agreement.

collective bargaining unit. As defined by statute, the term means all of the employees of one employer except where a majority of such employees engaged in a single craft, division, department, or plant, shall have voted to constitute such group a separate bargaining unit. Re International Asso. of Machinists, 249 Wis 112, 23 NW2d 489; 174 ALR 1267.

collective examination. A form of examination of jurors whereby questions are put to the jurors in the box collectively, each juror answering as answers are required. Ordinarily, this form of examination is used for statutory or routine questions, after which counsel interrogates each juror individually. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 137.

collective facts rule. See composite facts rule.

collective labor agreement. An agreement, sometimes known as a "collective bargaining agreement" or "trade agreement," reached by bargaining as to wages and conditions of work, entered into by groups of employees, usually organized into a union or brotherhood, on one side, and an employer or groups of employers on the other side. Anno: 88 L Ed 776; 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 90. A contract between the employer and the employees acting through the agency of the representative organization or group. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 91.

It is not the equivalent of an individual contract of employment between the employer and each employee, but an agreement between the representative organization and employer laying down certain conditions of employment which, it is contemplated, are to be incorporated in the separate contracts of hiring with each employee. MacKay v Loew's, Inc. (CA9 Cal) 182 F2d 170, 18 ALR2d 348.

Such an agreement may be a brief statement of labor and wages, or, on the other hand, it may take the form of a book or an exhaustive pamphlet regulating, in greatest minuteness, every condition under which labor is to be performed, and touching upon such subjects as strikes, lockouts, walkouts, seniority, apprentices, shop conditions, safety devices, and group insurance. Rentschler N Missouri Pacific R. R. Co. 126 Neb 493, 253 NW 694, 95 ALR 1.

collective naturalization. The admission to citizenship of considerable bodies of persons by treaty or by act of Congress. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 131.

collective trademark. A device, mark, label, or symbol used to identify a fraternal benefit society, insurance company, or trade association. R. M. Hollingshead Corp. v Davics-Young Soap Co. 28 Cust & Pat App (Pat) 1286, 121 F2d 500.

collect on delivery. A provision, usually abbreviated to c.o.d., in a contract of shipment, whereby the carrier undertakes to collect from the consignee, upon delivery, a specified amount for and on behalf of the consignor, in addition to the carrier's own charges. 13 Am J2d Car § 454.

collector. A special administrator appointed by the court to collect and preserve a decedent's estate pending the appointment of an executor or administrator; one who collects accounts receivable for another person or business; one who collects taxes or duties due tire United States, a state, or public body, such as a collector of customs or tax collector.

collector of births and burials. An English officer whose duty it is to make weekly reports of the births and burials to the magistrates.

collector of customs. An officer of the United States for the collection of customs duties and the performance of such other duties as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. 5 USC § 281; 21 Am J2d Cust D § 64.

For some purposes, the term "collector" means collector of customs and includes assistant collector of customs, deputy collector of customs, and any person authorized by law or by regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury to perform the duties of a collector of customs. 19 USC § 1401(h).

collector of the port. A collector of customs.

See collector of customs.

collega. A co-officer or appointee.

collegatarius. A co-legatee, a beneficiary named with another or with others in a will.

college. An institution of learning, having corporate powers, and possessing the right to confer degrees, and which, with reference to its educational work, consists of the trustees, teachers, and scholars or students, all of whom make up the membership of the college and represent its active work. 15 Am J2d Colleges § 1; an institution of higher learning, usually incorporated, admitting graduates of approved high schools and preparatory schools, and offering them instruction in arts, letters, and sciences, leading to a bachelor's degree; a building or group of buildings in which students are housed, fed, instructed, and governed while qualifying for university degrees, whether the university includes a number of colleges or a single college. Yale University v New Haven, 71 Conn 316, 42 A 87.

See electoral college.

college education. The education attained by attending college. The term "completion of a college education" ordinarily means the completion of the four-year undergraduate course culminating in a bachelor of arts degree, but not post graduate work. Epstein v Juvin, 25 NJ Super 210, 95 A2d 753, 36 ALR2d 1320. The term "college education," ap pearing in a decree requiring a parent to provide for the education of a child includes maintenance of the child for four years in college and the incidents thereto, such as board, lodging and laundry, for the full twelve months of each of the four years, but to be confined to a four-year undergraduate course leading to a bachelor's degree, and not to include post graduate work. Anno: 36 ALR2d 1325-1329.

[218]

college fraternities. See fraternities.

college graduate. See graduate.

collegia. Corporations.

collegialiter. As a corporation.

collegiate church. An English church which has a chapter consisting of a dean, canons and prebends, but which has no bishop's see.

collegium. A corporation; to college; an ecclesiastical body which is not controlled by the state. See 1 Bl Comm 469.

See universitas.

Collegium est societas plurium corporum simul habitantium. A college is a society composed of many persons living together.

collide. To strike or dash against each other; to come into collision. Carey v Pacific Gas & Electric Co. 75 Cal App 129, 242 P 97.

See collision.

colliery. A coal mine.

colligendum bona defuncti. The collection of the goods of a decedent.

See collector.

collision. The act of striking or dashing together of two bodies, the meeting and mutual striking or clashing of two or more moving bodies or of as moving body with a stationary body. Great American Mot. Indem. Co. v Jones, 111 Ohio St 84, 144 NE 596, 35 ALR 1023. A risk of loss covered by an automobile insurance policy. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 57.

See collision of aircraft; collision of automobiles; collision of vessels.

collision insurance. A kind of automobile insurance which, under customary practices of the business of insurance, appears as one of the risks covered by a more comprehensive policy. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 57. The coverage of collision insurance naturally depends upon the meaning attributable to the term "collision."

See collision; collision of automobiles.

collision of aircraft. Mid air collisions and ground collisions between aircraft; a collision between an aircraft and another vehicle. 8 Am J2d Avi § 92.

collision of automobiles. The impact of two or more motor vehicles. If unlimited by other provisions of the policy, the term "collision," in an automobile insurance policy covering the risk of collision, means coming in contact with anything that could be described as an object, irrespective of whether it is moving or stationary or whether it is on the same plane or level as the motor vehicle which hit it. Anno: 23 ALR2d 398; 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 59. The term "collision" in a motor carrier liability policy has been held to include contact between the load on a truck with an object, such as an overhead bridge, but it is not to be said under the present state of the authorities, that this is a view which is certain to be followed in all jurisdictions. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1357.

collision of motor vehicles. See collision of automobiles.

collision of vessels. The conning together with force of two navigating vessels. 2 Am J2d Adm § 56; the impact of a vessel with another vessel or other floating object. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1317; ; a peril of the sea within the meaning of at marine insurance policy. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1316.

Within the meaning of a marine insurance policy, a ship is in collision when the circumstances can be fairly described, within the ordinary use of language, its amounting to is collision. An impairment of seaworthiness or a vessel caused by contact with another is not essential to the collision, and vessels may be in collision, although one is temporarily aground, at anchor, or at her dock. In this country the term has in time and by common usage been extended to include the impact of the vessel with other floating objects. But the English cases hold that the term applies only to the striking together of two navigable vessels, and that it does not apply to to case where a vessel runs into a sunken object, or a stationary or permanent obstruction; and in the United States it has been held no collision where a vessel strikes some sunken obstruction in the water. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1317.

collistrigium. The pillory.

collitigant. A person who litigates with another or against another.

collocation. A classification of the creditors of an estate made for the purpose of paying them off in proper order.

colloquium. The allegations in a complaint, declaration, or petition in an action for libel or slander which point to the plaintiff its the person defamed, allegations of specific facts being required by the common law, general allegations that the defamatory matter was published or spoken of the plaintiff being sufficient under life statutes of many jurisdictions. 33 Am J1st L & S § 240.

collude. To enter into a collusion.

collusion. An agreement between two or more persons to defraud another of his rights by the forms of law or to secure an object forbidden by law. Warren v Union Bank, 157 NY 259, 51 NE 1056. An agreement, between persons interested in bidding in the letting of a contract for construction of a public improvement, which has for its purpose the suppression or diminishing of competition between bidders. 43 Am J1st Pub Wks § 15. As a defense in a divorce case: an agreement between a husband and wife to obtain or facilitate the obtaining of a divorce by having the accused spouse commit, or appear to commit, or be falsely represented in court as having committed, an act which constitutes a ground for divorce, or to suppress or refrain from presenting evidence which would prove or tend to prove a defense to an action for divorce. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 190.

collusive. Resulting from or tainted with collusion.

See collusion.

collusive action. See collusive suit.

collusive bids. See collusion.

collusive divorce. A divorce obtained by collusion between the parties.

See collusion.

collusive spoliation. The damaging of a vessel, which is a tort within admiralty jurisdiction. 2 Am J2d Adm § 78.

[219]

collusive suit. An action brought by collusion, without any real controversy to adjudicate. Haley v Eureka County Bank, 21 Nev 127, 26 P 64; an action intended to obtain a judicial opinion rather than to decide and determine an actual and existing controversy. 1 Am J2d Actions § 56.

collybist. A money changer.

collybum. (Civil law.) Exchange; the rate of exchange.

Colonel. An officer of the army, usually in command of a regiment, and ranking just below a brigadier general, an honorary title conferred formally or informally upon a person worthy of respect.

colonial. Pertaining to the colonies of the English government, known as the American colonies; pertaining to colonies; subservient rather than free and independent.

colonial court. Any of the courts held in the colonies before Independence.

colonial laws. The laws enacted by the legislatures of the American colonies of England, prior to the Revolutionary War; laws enacted in the colonies of Great Britain.

colonna. See di colonna.

colonus. A serf; a husbandman.

colony. A body of emigrants who settle abroad, but who remain loyal to their mother country; a dependency; territory attached to a nation known as the mother country, by ties of allegiance and usually by economic and political compacts or arrangements.

color. Mere semblance of a legal right. State ex rel. West v Des Moines, 96 Iowa 521, 65 NW 818; a characteristic of some races of men, but of primary legal significance in reference to Negroes; a personal characteristic of vivid quality, usually with some measure of flamboyance.

See colored; colored person; color of title.

colorable case. See colorable cause.

colorable cause. A case which upon the facts stated in a complaint or accusation is sufficient to invoke the jurisdiction of an inferior court to issue process. Broom v Douglass, 175 Ala 268, 57 So 860.

colorable claim. A claim which superficially is proper and well-founded, but may actually be invalid; a claim to property by a person in possession against the demand of a trustee in bankruptcy for possession, made in bad faith and without legal justification or so lacking in substance and merit as to amount to a mere pretense. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 52.

colorable imitation. An imitation calculated to deceive.

colorable invocation of jurisdiction. See colorable cause.

colorable transaction. A transaction which presents an appearance which does not correspond with the reality and is intended to conceal or to deceive. Osborn v Osborn, 102 Kan 890, 172 P 23.

See fraudulent conveyance.

color blindness. An absence or great weakness of the sensations upon which the power of distinguishing colors must be founded. It is not a mere incapacity for distinguishing colors, for this might be due to lack of training. Kane v Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co. 90 Neb 112, 114, 132 NW 920.

colore. See ex colore.

colored. As applied to a person, one of a colored race, which ordinarily means a Negro. Collins v Oklahoma State Hospital, 76 Okla 229, 184 P 946, 7 ALR 895, 899.

colored person. Literally, one of a race other than the white race, but generally understood, in the absence of a statutory definition to the contrary, to mean persons of Negro blood, the black people of Africa, known as Negroes, and their descendants of mixed or unmixed blood, at least those with a predominance of Negro blood. 35 Am J1st Mar § 146; 47 Am J1st Sch § 216.

See Negro.

colore officii. Color of office.

color of authority. Authority derived from an election or appointment, however irregular or informal, so that the incumbent is not a mere volunteer. State ex rel. Brockmeier v Ely, 16 ND 569, 113 NW 711.

color of law. Mere semblance of a legal right. State ex rel. West v Des Moines, 96 Iowa 521, 65 NW 818.

color of office. An expression for acts performed by an officer which are entirely outside of or beyond the authority conferred by the office. Haffner v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. 35 Idaho 517, 207 P 716; Wilson v Fowler, 88 Md 601, 42 A 201.

color of title. The appearance but not the reality in title. 27 Am J1st Improv § 11; that which gives the semblance or appearance of title, but is not title in fact--that which, on its face, professes to pass title, but fails to do so because of a want of title in the person from whom it comes or the employment of an ineffective means of conveyance. 3 Am J2d Adv P § 96.

colorogal. A liquid used in taking an X-ray picture of an organ of the body by injecting it so as to render the organ opaque. United States Fidelity & G. Co. v Wickline, 103 Neb 681, 173 NW 689.

colportage. The sending forth of persons to labor for the spread of the Gospel by distributing religious books and tracts. Anno: 17 ALR 1052.

colporteur. A person who travels for the sale and distribution of religious tracts and books; a hawker and peddler, especially, in modern usage, a peddler of religious books. Will of Fuller, 75 Wis 431, 436.

colt. An animal of the horse family, not more than three years old, or even younger, depending upon local terminology; a young person with little experience.

columbarium. A building containing niches in which are placed urns containing the ashes of the deceased after cremation. 14 Am J2d Cem § 1.

comaker. A joint maker.

See joint maker.

combat. Noun: A fight or battle. Verb: To fight; to engage in battle. As the word appears in a clause excepting injuries received in combat, the term imports causation, aggression or fault on the part of the insured. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1201.

See mutual combat.

combe. A narrow valley.

[220]

combination. An object produced by uniting two or more objects; a combine in the sense of something creating a monopoly; an invention, that is, an instrument created by bringing elements in composition. 40 Am J1st Pat § 19.

See combine.

combine. An agreement or arrangement which is illegal under anti-trust statutes or statutes intended to prevent monopolies in that it tends to create a monopoly or is in restraint of trade, or involves a delegation of corporate powers and is inimical to the public welfare. 36 Am J1st Monop etc § 132; a farm implement by which the cutting and threshing of grain is performed in one operation.

combined bill. A bill in equity combining a supplemental bill and a bill of revivor. See 27 Am J 2d Eq § 179.

comburgess. An inhabitant of the same borough as another.

combustio. A burning.

combustio domorum. The burning of houses,-arson.

combustio pecuniae. The testing of money by melting it.

come. To appear in court.

comes. An introductory word in a formalized pleading, indicating an appearance to plead, for example, "Now comes the defendant, and answering the complaint of the plaintiff, states as follows," etc. (Latin). A comrade or associate.

come semble. As it seems.

comes stabuli. Count of the stable; a constable. See 1 Bl Comm 355.

comfort. Consolation; freedom from want; pleasure; satisfaction; reasonable physical, spiritual, and mental enjoyment. Everett v Paschall, 61 Wash 47, 111 P 879; National Surety Co. v Jarrett, 95 W Va 420, 121 SE 291, 36 ALR 1171, 1176.

comfortable enjoyment. Mental quiet and physical comfort. Everett v Paschall, 61 Wash 47, 111 P 879.

coming to a nuisance. The doctrine, which is now against the weight of authority, that one who moves into the neighborhood of an existing nuisance cannot complain of it. 39 Am J1st Nuis § 197.

coming to rest. A doctrine, applied to the loading and unloading clause of a truck liability policy, which limits the coverage in unloading to the period of the actual removing or lifting of the article from the motor vehicle, which is deemed to terminate the moment when the article which was taken off the vehicle has actually come to rest and every connection of the motor vehicle with the process of unloading has ceased. Stammer v Kitzmiller, 226 Wis 348, 276 N W 629.

cominus. Hand to hand; in close combat.

comitas. Comity; courtesy.

comitas inter communitates. Comity between states. Re Perkins, 2 Cal 424, 448.

comitate. Comity; courtesy.

comitatus. A county. The word is probably derived from the Frankish word "count," meaning an earl or alderman of a shire, to whom the government of it was intrusted. This he usually exercised by his deputy, still called in Latin "vicecomes," and in English, the "sheriff," "shrieve," or "shire-reeve," signifying the officer of the shire upon whom, in course of time, the civil administration of it totally devolved. See 1 Bl Comm 116.

See posse comitatus.

comites. Plural of comes; attendants; companions.

comitia. (Roman law.) Assemblies of the people.

comitia centuriata. An assembly of the Romans in which they voted by centuries or hundreds.

comitia curiata. A Roman assembly which was composed of thirty patricians.

comitia tributa. An assembly of the Romans in which they voted by tribes or neighborhoods.

comitissa. A countess.

comitiva. The office of an earl or count.

comity. Literally, courtesy or civility, to which the law adds some refinements in defining the term for the purposes of conflicts of laws and international law:-Neither a matter of absolute obligation on the one hand nor a mere courtesy and good will on the other, but the recognition which one nation or state allows within its territory to the legislative, executive, or judicial acts of another nation or state, having due regard both to international duty and convenience and to the rights of its own citizens or of other persons who are under the protection of its laws. 16 Am J2d Confl L § 4; 30 Am J Rev ed Internat L § 6.

comity inter gentes. The comity of or between nations.

comity of nations. The extent to which the law of one state or nation is allowed to operate within the dominion of another. 16 Am J2d Confl L § 4.

See comity.

comma. A punctuation mark. The comma and semicolon are both used for the same purpose, namely, to divide sentences and parts of sentences, the only difference being that the semicolon makes the division a little more pronounced than the comma; but at the last it is the sense of the words, taken together, that dictates where the punctuation marks are to be placed, and what they shall be. Holmes v Phenix Ins. Co. (CA8 Mo) 98 F 240.

command. See request; require; required.

commander-in-chief. See President of the United States.

commanditaire. A silent partner.

commandite. A special partnership.

commandment. An ancient English offense consisting of directing or commanding a person to do an unlawful act.

commark. A frontier; a boundary.

comme. (French.) As, since, because; whereas.

commencement of action. Demanding something by the institution of process in a court of justice. Cohen v Virginia (US) 6 Wheat 408, 5 L Ed 257. In some jurisdictions, the issuance of process is the commencement of an action; in other jurisdictions an action is not commenced until the process is delivered to the sheriff or other officer for the purpose of having him serve it upon the defendant; in still other jurisdictions, an action is not commenced until the process is actually served. 1 Am J2d Ac tions § 86. An attempt to commence an action is sometimes deemed the equivalent of the commencement of an action. Goldenberg v Murphy, 108 US 162. 27 L Ed 686, 2 S Ct 388.

commencement of action at law. At common law, an action was commenced and pending from the first moment of the day on which the writ was issued and bore teste. Newman v Chapman, 23 Va (2 Rand) 93.

For definition in accord with modern practice, see commencement of action.

commencement of a prosecution. See commencement of criminal proceeding.

commencement of criminal proceeding. A phrase variously defined, some authorities saying that a criminal proceeding is commenced on the filing of a complaint, preliminary information, or affidavit, others saying that the issuance of a warrant for arrest and the placing of it in the hands of an officer for service is the commencement of a criminal proceeding, and still others insisting that the arrest is the commencement of such a proceeding.

There is, moreover, authority for the view that a prosecution for a felony is not commenced before the return of an indictment or information, notwithstanding the prior arrest of the accused and his commitment, such view being that all proceedings prior to indictment or information are only preliminary to a prosecution. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 3.

commencement of suit in equity. The filing of a bill or complaint in the office of the clerk of the court. 27 Am J2d Eq § 177.

For more modern view as to the commencement of an action, see commencement of action.

commencement of risk. See inception of risk.

commencement of work. According to some authority, the time at which a mechanic's lien, at least an inchoate lien, attaches to the property under improvement. 36 Am J1st Mech L § 167. The term means some work and labor on the ground, the effects of which are apparent-easily seen by everybody-such as beginning to dig the foundation, or work of like description, which everyone can readily see and recognize as the commencement of a building. English v Olympic Auditorium, 217 Cal 631, 20 P2d 946, 87 ALR 1281.

commend. To praise; to recommend; to place under the care of another.

commenda. An association in which the management of the property of the association was entrusted to individuals. The delivery of a benefice to one not of a status to permit him to hold legal title.

commendam. The appointment of a temporary clergyman to hold a living pending the appointment of a regular parson.

commenda recipere. To receive a commended living.

commenda retinere. To retain a commended living.

commendatio. A recommendation; praise.

commendation. Praise; recommendation; the voluntary subjection of a freeman to a lord in order that he might secure the lord's protection.

commendator. A person holding a benefice in commendam, that is, pending the appointment of a regular parson.

commendatory letters. Letters of recommendation; letters of credence from a hishop in behalf of travelers from his diocese.

commendatus. Voluntary service rendered to a superior.

comment. Remarks, observation, or criticism; gossip, discourse, talk; a note or observation intended to explain, illustrate, or criticise the meaning of a writing, book, etc.; explanation; annotation; exposition. United States v Dorr (Philippine Sup Ct) Appx, 47 L Ed 1187, 23 S Ct 859.

See fair comment; unfair comment.

commentary. Comment on one's observations in the form of notes; annotations or notes appended to the literary product of another. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 12.

Coke's commentaries on Littleton. See Institutes of Coke.

commerce. A term of broader significance than trade. 36 Am J1st Monop etc. § 157; buying and selling, traffic, intercourse for the purpose of trade, comprising every species of commercial intercourse. 15 Am J2d Com § 2; including the purchase, sale, exchanging, leasing, and distribution of commodities. Bindcrup v Pathe Exchange, 263 US 291, 68 L Ed 308, 44 S Ct 96; navigation and the transit of persons and property into the ports of the United States, navigation and the transit of persons and property. Mobile County v Kimball, 102 US 702, 26 I. Ed 241; the transportation of persons and property as a business. Guinness v King County, 32 Wash 2d 503, 202 P2d 737, 6 ALR2d 1361; as the term appears in the Fair Labor Standards Act: -trade, commerce, transportation, transmission, or communication among the several states or between any state and any place outside thereof. 29 USC § 203(6); 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 642.

The original definition of commerce connoting the exchange of merchandise on a large scale between different places or communities has been greatly enlarged, but the term still suggests that the transaction must be something other than trivial or incidental to a person's real purpose. Chauncey v Kinnaird (Ky) 279 SW2d 27, 51 ALR2d 1190.

See foreign commerce; interstate commerce.

commerce among the several states. See among the several states; interstate commerce.

commerce and trade. Business enterprises, not necessarily involving trading in merchandise. Frick v Webb, 263 US 326, 68 1. Ed 323. 44 S Ct 115.

See commerce.

commerce clause. The third clause of the eighth section of the first article of the United States Constitution providing that Congress shall have power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes.

Commerce Court. A court established by act of Congress of June 18, 1910, part of which was superseded by chapter 9 of the Judicial Code, and was abolished by act of October 3, 1913. Its jurisdiction embraced only complaints of affirmative action by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

commerce with foreign nations. See commerce; foreign commerce.

commerce with the Indian tribes. Commerce with the Indian tribes and with the Indians of the Indian tribes. 27 Am J1st Indians § 54.

[222]

commercii belli. Contracts between citizens of belligerent countries.

commercial. Pertaining to the purchase and sale or exchange of goods and commodities and connoting as well forms of, and occupations in, business enterprises not involved in trading in merchandise; in a broad sense, embracing every phase of commercial and business activity and intercourse. Jordan v Tashiro, 278 US 123, 73 L Ed 214, 49 S Ct 47.

commercial agency. Literally, the agency of a commercial agent; a collection agency; in a more refined sense, an agency for the collection of past due accounts arising out of commercial transactions, that is, transactions not involving consumers. 15 Am J2d Collect § 1; a person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of collecting information relating to the financial standing, credit, character, responsibility, and general reputation of persons, firms, and corporations engaged in business, and furnishing this information to subscribers for a consideration. 15 Am J2d Collect § 3.

commercial agent. Another term for a broker in merchandise; one who sells merchandise by sample, catalogue, or otherwise, without having possession of the goods. Re Orville S. Wilson (Dist Col) 8 Mackey 341. The term is also used to designate a consular officer in charge of the commercial interests of his country at a foreign port.

See commercial agency.

commercial airline. A carrier of freight and passengers by air. 8 Am J2d Avi § 38.

commercial bank. The ordinary bank of deposit and discount, with checking accounts, as distinguished from a savings bank operating on the mutual system in which the depositors are entitled to receive the profits of the business as dividends and in which withdrawal of a deposit is made only by presentation of the customer's passbook by him at the bank, no provision being made for checking against an account. 10 Am J2d Banks § 4.

commercial blockade. An instrumentality of naval warfare by which the forces of one belligerent interdict commerce between the other belligerent and neutral nations by investing the ports of the other belligerent with such forces as effectively to prevent ingress and egress. 56 Am J1st War § 171.

commercial bribery. Giving or receiving a gift for the purpose of influencing any agent to discharge improperly a duty entrusted to him by a private individual or corporation. 12 Am J2d Brib § 17. As an unfair trade practice this vice of commercial bribery is the advantage which one competitor secures over his fellow competitors by his secret and corrupt dealing with employees or agents of prospective purchasers. American Distilling Co. v Wisconsin Liquor Co. (CA7 Wis) 104 F2d 582, 123 ALR 739.

commercial broker. A broker in merchandise who negotiates sales without having possession or control of the goods. Adkins v Richmond, 98 Va 91, 34 SE 967.

See commission merchant.

commercial club. An organization of merchants and other businessmen of a village or small city which performs on a lesser scale the functions of a chamber of commerce in a larger city, promoting business in general, lending encouragement to new businesses, seeking new industries, working for improvement in highway traffic, better schools, more efficient public offices, and a fair tax structure, and sometimes promoting social relations between the members, at least to the extent of having semi-weekly luncheons.

Commercial Code. One of the uniform laws; a compilation of principles formulated through the joint efforts of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and the American Law Institute dealing with most aspects of commercial transactions. 15 Am J2d Coin C § 1.

Commercial commodity. Any commodity which may be transported and which is an article which may be bought and sold in the markets of the country. Gas in the earth may not be a commercial commodity, but when brought to the surface and placed in pipes for transportation it must assume that character as completely as coal in the cars. State of Indiana ex rel. Corwin v Indiana & Ohio, Oil, Gas & Mining Co. 120 Ind 575, 22 NE 778.

commercial corporation. A corporation engaged in a business, the business which it is chartered to conduct and which it pursues for profit, not for charitable, benevolent, or social purposes. Union Oil Associates v Johnson, 2 Cal 2d 727, 43 P2d 291, 98 ALR 1499.

commercial domicil. A domicil acquired by residence in a country for the purposes of trading. 25 Am J2d Dour § 12.

A corporation is domiciled and has its residence in the state of its creation, although it engages in business elsewhere under local authority and has a "business situs" or "commercial domicil" there for taxation and other purposes. State v Garford Trucking, 4 NJ 346, 72 A 2d 851, 16 ALR2d 1407.

commercial fertilizer. See fertilizer.

commercial frustration. An event which excuses nonperformance of a contract because it substantially frustrates the objects contemplated by the parties when they made the contract; an event which robs the contract of a foundation. 17 Am J2d Contr § 401. A prime example of commercial frustration is the situation where the subject matter of an executory contract is, because of wartime conditions, put under government control or requisitioned. 17 Am J2d Contr § 435.

commercial impracticable. Words which depict a situation involved in the performance of a contract which could not have been within the contemplation of the parties at the time the contract was made. Naylor, B. & Co. v Krainische Industrie Gesellschaft (Eng) 118 LT NS 442.

See commercial frustration.

commercial law. The law which relates to shipping, insurance, exchange of money, brokerage, bills of exchange, promissory notes, and other matters of concern to merchants and traders throughout the world, being, on account of the world wide extent of the operations which it governs, the least localized of legal systems with the exception only of international law. Brooklyn City & Newton R. R. Co. v National Bank of the Republic, 102 US (12 Otto) 14, 55, 26 L Ed 61, 76.

commercial letter of credit. See letter of credit.

commercially marketable mineral product. The salable product of a mine, not necessarily salable at a profit. United States v Cannelton Sewer Pipe Co. 364 US 76, 4 L Ed 2d 1581, 80 S Ct 1581.

commercial paper. Negotiable instruments, drafts, checks, certificates of deposit, and promissory notes. The term also includes bearer bonds where such are not specifically excluded from the classification by statute. 11 Am J2d B & N § 8.

[223]

The Uniform Commercial Code classifies paper in commercial transactions as "money paper," which is "commercial paper," "investment paper," and "commodity paper." Comment to UCC §§ 3-104, 7-104, 8-101.

See bills of exchange; checks; promissory notes.

commercial partnerships. Partnerships organized for the purpose of conducting trade or commerce; a more refined classification, made by statute in some jurisdictions, of partnerships formed for the purchase and sale of personal property as principals, or as factors or brokers, or for the carriage of personal property for hire in ships or other vessels. 40 Am J1st Partn § 11.

commercial railroad. A term applied to the former "interurbans " which operated between cities but ran part of their tracks on the streets or used the tracks of street car lines, carrying both passengers and freight. Anhalt v Waterloo, C. F. & N. Ry. Co. 166 Iowa 479, 147 NW 928; McClintock v RichIands Brick Corp. 152 Va 1, 145 SE 425, 61 ALR 1033.

commercial services by railroads. Services furnished by railroads not essential to the actual transportation of the goods. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v United States (DC NY) 20 F Supp 273.

commercial situs. See business situs.

commercial traveler. See traveling salesmen.

commercial use. Use in a business in which one is engaged for profit. Lintern v Zentz, 327 Mich 595, 42 NW2d 753, 18 ALR2d 713 (defining term as used in exception from coverage of an automobile liability policy); not necessarily exclusive of "use for business or pleasure." Anno: 18 ALR2d 721.

See business use.

commercial vehicle. A motor vehicle used other than for pleasure or private convenience of the owner. 7 Am J2d Auto § 69.

commercium. Commerce.

Commercium jure gentium commune esse debet et non in monopolium et privatum paucorum quaestum convertendum. By the law of nations, commerce ought to be common and not converted into a monopoly and the private profit of a few persons.

comminatorium. An admonition inserted in a writ, cautioning the sheriff to exercise diligence.

comminatory. Threatening; coercive.

commingling of funds. A term often applied to the act of an agent, broker, attorney at law, or trustee in mingling the funds of his client, customer, or cestui with his own funds; the act of a fiduciary in mingling funds of different trusts. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 320; the act of a trustee in combining a trust fund with other funds in making an investment. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 396; the act of a guardian in mingling the funds of the ward with his own funds. 25 Am J1st G & W § 94.

commingling of goods. Confusion of goods. 1 Am J2d Access § 1.

comminute. To macerate; to tear up; to reduce to minute particles; to crush or pulverize. Nordell v International Filter Co. (CA7 Ill) 119 F2d 948.

commis. (French.) An agent.

commissari lex. (Roman law.) The right of a seller who extends credit to rescind the sale upon the buyer's default in payment.

commissariat. The branch of the service in an army responsible for furnishing food and supplies. The jurisdiction of a commissary.

commissary. An ecclesiastical officer whose functions were similar to those of all archdeacon. An older title for the officer of an army in command of the commissariat.

See commissariat.

commissary court. A supreme court having a jurisdiction which was formerly exercised by the bishop's commissaries.

commission. A word of various meanings, one of the most common of which is that of a public board, usually an administrative body, such as a tax commission or civil service commission. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 8; an authority; a writ; an authorization; a written authority from a competent source given to a public officer as the warrant for the exercise of the powers and duties of the office which he occupies. 42 Am J1st Pub Of § 115; the authority under which a deposition is taken. 23 Am J2d Dep § 22; a fee or compensation calculated on a percentage basis, particularly the compensation of a sales agent; a form under which interest is charged in advance. Anno: 57 ALR2d 649-651.

commission-agent. An agent who buys or sells on commission.

See commission merchant.

commission day. The opening day of the assizes.

commission del credere. See del credere commission.

commission de lunatico inquirendo. Same as commission of lunacy.

commissioned officer. One who holds as evidence of right to office a commission signed by the president. Stephens v Civil Service Comm. 101 NJL 192, 127 A 808; any civil officer who has a written commission as evidence of his authority to hold and execute the authority of an office; one who holds rank in the military service under a commission issued by the proper authority.

commissioner. A person having a commission, letters patent, or other lawful warrant, to examine any matters, or to execute any public office such as a commissioner of public safety in a city. Morris Canal & Banking Co. v State, 14 NJL 411, 428; one of the members of an administrative board or commission, 2 Am J2d Admin L § 8.

commissioner of banks. See bank commissioner.

commissioner of court. An officer of an admiralty court to whom certain matters in controversy are referred. 2 Am J2d Adm § 195; a person appointed to conduct a judicial sale. 30A Am J Rev ed Jud S § 37; a lawyer appointed to act as a court in hearing cases in order to clear a congested calendar.

See commission of appeals.

commissioner of deeds. An officer authorized to take acknowledgments and to perform other acts of the same nature as those performed by a notary public; an officer authorized to take outside the state air acknowledgment of a deed or other instrument to be used within the state.

[224]

Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The head of the Internal Revenue Service, provision for the office being made by the Internal Revenue Code. 26 USC § 7801.

commissioner of jury. See jury commissioner.

Commissioner of Patents. The head of the bureau operating under the Secretary of the Interior, known as the Patent Office, whose primary duty is that of passing upon the merit of applications for letters patent. 40 Am J1st Pats §§ 10, 11.

Commissioner of United States. See United States Commissioner.

commissioners in partition. See partition commissioners. commissioners of bail. Officers appointed by the court to take bail in cases of arrest on civil process.

commissioners of bankrupt. Persons who were appointed by the lord chancellor to act as a body to inquire and examine into the affairs of a bankrupt. 2 Bl Comm 480.

commissioners of highways. Local officers clothed with the duty of laying out and maintaining the public highways within their districts.

State highway commissioners. See Highway Commission.

commissioners of municipality. Officers forming the commission of a municipality, usually with the mayor, under the commission form of government. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp §§ 72 et seq.

commissioners of oyer and terminer. See oyer and terminer.

commissioners of sewers. Members of a sewer commission in a city having such a commission separate from a street commission; a one-time temporary tribunal in England having jurisdiction over repairs of sea banks and sea walls, the cleansing of rivers, public streams, ditches and other conduits by which any waters are carried off. This jurisdiction was limited to the particular county or district specified in the appointment of the body. 3 Bl Comm 73.

commission form of government. A system of municipal government, the details of which differ in different states but whose characteristic feature is the delegation of all executive and legislative powers to a single board consisting of a mayor and a very limited number of other officers, generally not more than four, known as commissioners. See 37 Am J 1st Mun Corp § 72.

commission merchant. A term nearly, if not exactly, synonymous to factor, the term "factor" being more common in the language of the law, and the term "commission merchant" more familiar in the language of commerce. I. J. Cooper Rubber Co. v Johnson, 133 Tenn 562, 182 SW 593.

Some authorities, however, distinguish between commission merchants and factors in defining the former on the point of possession of the goods or merchandise sold, stating that a commission merchant is a person who sells goods in his own name at his own store, and on commission, although from samples, not having the goods in his possession, but obtaining possession as soon as sales are made, and delivering or shipping them to his customers. Slack v Tucker (US) 23 Wall 321, 23 L Ed 143. A commission merchant differs from a broker in that he may buy and sell in his own name without disclosing his principal, while, broker can only buy and sell in the name of his principal.

commission of appeals. A tribunal appointed to relieve an appellate court the calendar of which is overcrowded.

commission of array. A royal command for the drafting of soldiers for the army. See 1 Bl Comm 411.

commission of assize. A commission or authority appointing the justices and serjeants named therein to sit as judges of assize in those years when the justices in eyre did not. See 3 Bl Comm 59.

commission of delegates. Same as court of delegates.

commission of gaol delivery. A commission appointed by the court to try all of the prisoners who are confined in a jail.

commission of lunacy. A commission, usually having at least one physician in its membership, appointed to determine whether a person charged with lunacy is in fact a lunatic or of unsound mind, so that provision should be made for safeguarding his person and such property as he may have. Misselwitz's Lunacy, 177 Pa 359, 362, 35 A 722.

commission of nisi prius. An authority or commission which was a consequence of the commission of assize, since it was annexed to the office of the justices of assize by the statute which authorized the commissioners to try all questions of fact issuing out of the courts of Westminster by a jury from the county where the action arose, unless before the day appointed the judges of assize should come into the county in question. See 3 Bl Comm 59.

commission of oyer and terminer. See oyer and terminer.

commission of partition. A commission appointed by the court in a suit for the partition of real estate, usually after an interlocutory judgment or decree of partition, to examine the premises, make a preliminary partition thereof, and report back to the court. 40 Am J1st Partit § 76.

commission of rebellion. A commission appointing four commissioners to find and seize the person of a defendant in equity who was in contempt for his failure to appear and plead as required by the subpoena which had been served upon him, and after the sheriff had failed to find him. Matters of equity were at one time determined by the king in person and the contempt in question was in the nature of a rebellion against the king's command. See 3 Bl Comm 444.

commission of review. A commission sometimes granted in extraordinary ecclesiastical cases to revise the sentence of the court of delegates, when it is believed that they have been led into a material error. See 3 Bl Comm 67.

commission of the peace. A commission which issued under the king's great seal appointing justices of the peace. See 1 Bl Comm 351.

Commission of Uniform Laws. See uniform statutes.

commission pro aetate prohanda. A commission appointed to determine whether one who was a tenant of the king and who held in chief by chivalry was of full age to receive his lands.

[225]

commission rogatoire. Letters rogatory.

commissions. See commission.

commission to examine witnesses. See commission to take testimony.

commission to take testimony. The authority under which a deposition is taken. 23 Am J2d Dep § 22.

commissive waste. Voluntary waste, often called actual waste, consisting in such acts as destroying, altering, or removing buildings, or cutting trees. 56 Am J1st Waste § 4. The term contemplates participation, at least to some extent, by the tenant or occupant of the premises. Anno: 84 ALR 394.

commit. To make a commitment; to perpetrate, as to commit burglary.

Under the statute making it an offense to conspire to "commit" an offense against the United States, the word means no more than "bring about." It is not necessary that the conspiracy contemplate that the conspirators or some of them shall themselves directly break the law. It is quite sufficient if the conspiracy contemplates that that shall be done which does violate the law. United States v Hipsch (DC Mo) 34 F Supp 270.

See commitment.

commitment. A warrant of authority, otherwise known as a mittimus, for confining a person to prison or jail; the delivery to jail, for want of bail, for detention pending action by the grand jury or trial, of one accused of crime. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 450; the delivery of a person under sentence of confinement to a jail or prison to the institution and the placing of him under confinement therein. People v Rutan, 3 Mich 42, 49; the confinement of an insane person. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins Per § 34.

commitment by lawful warrant in deed. A commitment by a warrant in writing. State v Shaw, 73 Vt 149, 168, 50 A 863.

commitment by lawful warrant in law. A commitment by lawful warrant in writing or by authority of law without a writing. State v Shaw, 73 Vt 149, 50 A 863.

committed in his presence. See presence.

committee. A body of persons who have been selected and appointed with authority to perform some public service or duty; the guardian of the person or the property of an insane person.

See political committee.

Committee for Industrial Organization. A combination of labor unions, succeeded by the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Committee of Arbitration. A body created by the Chamber of Commerce in New York City for the arbitration of disputes between merchants and other persons in business and industry, still in existence but inactive for the most part, its field of activity having been taken over by the American Arbitration Association.

committing magistrate. A justice of the peace, mayor, police judge, or other judicial officer authorized to commit a person arrested for crime pending preliminary examination and trial, sometimes trial by a higher court. State v Rogers, 31 NM 485, 247 P 828.

committitur. A record entry of a defendant's commitment.

committitur piece. An instrument in writing, charging on execution under a judgment the person of one already in prison. Bouvier's Law Dict.

commixtion. The mingling of dry or solid substances belonging to different owners.

commodate. Same its commodatum.

commodato. (Spanish.) An agreement for the gratuitous loan of a chattel.

commodatum. The gratuitous loaning of personal property to be used by the bailee and returned in specie. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 5.

commodatum bailment. The gratuitous loaning of personal property to be used by the bailee and returned in specie. Lowney v Knott, 85 RI 505, 120 A2d 552, 57 ALR2d 1036.

commodities clause. An important provision of the Hepburn Act of June 29, 1906, regulating interstate commerce, intended to prohibit the transportation in interstate commerce by any railroad company of commodities produced or mined by such company or under its authority, or which it may own in whole or in part, or in which it may have an interest, direct or indirect, except timber and products manufactured from timber and such articles or commodities as may be necessary and intended for use in the business of the railroad company. United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v Delaware & Hudson Co. 213 US 366, 53 L Ed 836, 29 S Ct 527.

commodity. A useful thing; an article of commerce; a moveable and tangible thing produced or used as the subject of barter or sale. State ex rel. Moose v Frank, 114 Ark 47, 169 SW 333.

See commercial commodity.

Commodity Credit Corporation. An agency of the United States operating under its federal charter in supporting prices of agricultural commodities through loans, purchases, and payments; disposing of surplus agricultural commodities; promoting the marketing of agricultural commodities in both domestic and foreign markets; and procuring agricultural commodities in the country for sale to foreign governments, relief agencies, and other government agencies.

commodity rate. A freight rate which applies to one specific commodity alone, as distinguished from a class rate which applies to a number of articles of the same general character. Norfolk Southern Railroad Co. 145 Va 207, 133 SE 817.

commodum. Profit; gain; advantage.

Commodum ejus esse debet cujus periculum est. He who takes the risk should have the profit.

Commodum ex injuria non oritur. An advantage or profit cannot arise from the violation of a legal right. Bird v Holbrook (Eng) 4 Bing 628.

Commodum ex injuria sua non habere debet. One ought not to profit by his own wrong.

common. A right, otherwise known as a "profit a prendre," to be exercised in the land of another, accompanied with participation in the profits of the soil, or a right to take a part of the soil or produce of the land. 25 Am J2d Eas § 4; better known in the popular sense as an area left open for common and public use, for the convenience, accommodation and pleasure of the inhabitants of a municipality. 39 Am J Rev ed Pks & S § 2. In earlier days of this country, the common was a place of pasturage for the benefit of the inhabitants of the town or municipality.

[226]

commonable beasts. Beasts of the plough or such as manure the ground. See 2 Bl Comm 33.

commonage. The use of a thing by one person in common with other persons.

commonalty. The common people, as distinguished from the peers. See 1 Bl Comm 403.

commonance. Persons who have the right of common in an open field.

common ancestor. The same ancestor of two or more persons.

common ancestry. One to whom the ancestry of two or more persons is traced.

common appendant. The prescriptive right of a tenant to feed cattle on land which he does not hold, but which is situate in the same manor.

common appurtenant. The right of a land owner to feed cattle on the land of another.

common assurances. Title deeds.

See covenant for further assurance.

common at large. Same as common in gross.

common bail. An old form of "bail" given by a defendant in a civil action, intended to serve as an appearance in the action, the sureties being fictitious.

common bar. Also called "blank bar," -a plea interposed in an action of trespass to compel the plaintiff to specify the place of the alleged trespass.

common barrator. See common barratry.

common barratry. The offense of frequently exciting or stirring up quarrels between others, several, at least three, acts being required to constitute the offense. 14 Am J2d Champ § 19.

common barretor. See common barratry.

common because of vicinage. The mutual licenses of adjoining landowners whereby each of them might feed cattle on the land of the other.

common belief. An opinion of which the legislature may take cognizance, because it is entertained by most of the people of the community, notwithstanding it is not universally accepted and actually may ultimately be shown to be wrong by scientific observations and developments. Jacobson v Massachusetts, 197 US 11, 49 L Ed 643, 25 S Ct 358.

common bench. The English court of common pleas.

common carrier. One who holds himself out to the public as engaged in the business of transporting persons or property from place to place, for compensation, offering his services to the public generally. 13 Am J2d Car § 2. A status dependent upon the activities of the person alleged to be a common carrier and the circumstances under which his services were rendered. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1251. The dominant and controlling factor in determining the status of one as a common carrier is his public profession or holding out by words or by a course of conduct, as to the service offered or performed. Ace-High Dresses v J. C. Trucking Co. 122 Conn 578, 191 A 536, 112 ALR 86. For the purposes of the Federal Powers of Service Act, the status of a company as a common carrier depends upon what it does, not upon the purpose declared by the charter of the company, or how the company is regarded in the state of incorporation. United States v Brooklyn Eastern Dist. Terminal. 249 US 296, 63 L Ed 613, 39 S Ct 283, 16 ALR 527. The determination of the question, whether one engaged in furnishing transportation, or the means of transportation, is to be considered a "common carrier" within the meaning of an insurance contract providing for indemnity or increased payments where injury or death results from an accident while on a conveyance operated by a common carrier, depends upon the activities of the one alleged to be the common carrier and upon the circumstances under which his services were rendered to the insured. Anno: 149 ALR 1293.

common carrier by air. An airplane company or operator of airplanes, catering to the public generally, and undertaking to transport for hire all persons and goods of persons indifferently who apply for passage or transportation. 8 Am J2d .Avi § 38.

common carrier by motor vehicle. A carrier having the status of a common carrier who uses busses, taxicabs, trucks, or other motor vehicles as the means of transportation. 13 Am J2d Car §§ 14, 17. As defined by section 303(a) of the Motor Carrier Act of 1935, "any person who or which undertakes, whether directly or by a lease or any other arrangement, to transport passengers or property, or any class or classes of property, for the general public in interstate or foreign commerce by motor vehicle for compensation, whether over regular or irregular routes, including such motor vehicle operations of carriers by rail or water, and of express or forwarding companies, except to the extent that these operations are subject to the provisions of chapter 1 of this title." Interstate Commerce Com v A. W. Suckle & Co. (DC Okla) 41 F Supp 268.

See common carrier.

common carrier by railroad. One who operates a railroad as a means of carrying for the public. Thornhill v Davis, 121 SC 49, 113 SE 370, 24 ALR 617.

See common carrier.

common carrier of livestock. A common carrier of goods, which transports livestock, is as to the livestock also a common carrier. Central of Georgia Railway Co. v Hall, 124 Ga 322, 32 SE 679.

common carrier of passengers. See common carrier.

common carrier of property. See common carrier.

common carrier's lien. A lien existing independently of contract on goods delivered to a common carrier for carriage, which attaches as soon as the carrier's liability as such begins, and continues until the freight charges, including storage charges, are paid. 13 Am J2d Car § 497.

common chase. A place where all persons might lawfully hunt wild game.

common conspiracy clause. Same as confederating clause.

common council. The legislative body of a city or other municipal corporation, except in jurisdictions where the traditional form of municipal government has given way under statute to its commission or manager form. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 46.

common counts. The various forms of an action of assumpsit. 1 Am J2d Actions § 13.

See assumpsit; indebitatus assumpsit; insimul computassent; money counts; money had and re ceived; money lent; money paid; quantum meruit; quantum valebant.

[227]

common day. The period of time elapsing between midnight of one day and that of the next.

common debtor. (Scotch.) A debtor whose chattels have been seized by several creditors.

common disaster. A calamitous occurrence causing the death of two or more persons allied in interest as husband and wife, heirs of a common ancestor, or devisees of a common testator, the pertinency of the term in the law involving the succession to property where it is impossible to determine which of the two or more persons who suffered death survived the longest. The disaster which results in the death of two or more persons whose relationship to one another by contract, such as an insurance contract in which one is named as the beneficiary of a policy upon the life of the other, makes the time of death material. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1653.

common drunkard. A person who drinks intoxicating liquors to excess, with habitual frequency. State ex rel. Atty. Gen. v Savage, 89 Ala 1, 7 So 183.

common enemy doctrine. The name applied to the rule of some jurisdictions that there is no wrong in any act undertaken by a landowner for the purpose of repelling surface water. 56 Am J1st Wat § 69.

common enterprise. See joint enterprise.

commoner. A member of the house of commons, the lower house of the British parliament; a person belonging to the "commonalty;" a person owing a right of common in the lands of another. See 3 Bl Comm 238.

common error makes law. A maxim to be applied with caution where there has been a long-continued and general error in the observance, construction, or interpretation of the law, and injurious consequences will flow from a contrary construction, interpretation, or method of observance, but not to be applied so as to, in effect, repeal a positive statute. O'Donnell v Glenn, 9 Mont 452, 23 P 1018.

common field. A term of American invention adopted by Congress to designate small tracts of land of a peculiar shape usually from one to three arpents in front by forty arpents in depth, used by the occupants of the French villages for the purposes of cultivation, and protected from the inroads of cattle by a common fence. The peculiar shape of the lot, its contiguity to others of similar shape, and the purposes to which it was applied, constituted it a common field lot. It could not be confounded with lots or tracts of land of any other character. Glasgow v Hortiz, (US) 1 Black 595, 600, 17 L Ed 110, 113.

common fine. A fine imposed upon all the inhabitants of a district.

common fishery. A fishery open to a number of persons, sometimes to the public; a free fishery and a common fishery are usually and properly considered equivalent rights. 35 Am J2d Fish § 6.

common form of probate. See probate in common form.

common gambler. One who supports himself chiefly by gaming or who frequently or habitually engages in gambling in violation of law. 24 Am J1st Gaming § 46.

common gaming house. A house kept for the purpose of permitting persons to resort to it and gamble therein in violation of law. 24 Am J2d Disord H § 3.

common highway. A public highway on land or navigable water. As used in Art 9 § 1, of the Constitution that navigable waters "shall be common highways and forever free" the term does not refer to physical obstructions of the waters, but refers to political regulations which would hamper the freedom of commerce. Re Southern Wisconsin Power Co. 140 Wis 245, 122 NW 801.

common humanity rule. See humanitarian rule.

commonia turbariae. Same as common of turbary.

common informer. Another term for "informer." See informer.

common in gross. An easement in gross, that is, a right not supported by a dominant estate but attached to, and vested in, the person to whom it is granted.

See easement in gross.

common injunction. A term of the early English practice for an injunction in aid of or as secondary to another equity, as in the case of an injunction to restrain proceedings at law, in order to protect and enforce an equity which could not be pleaded in the action at law. 28 Am J Rev ed Inj § 10.

common injury. An injury of the same kind and character, and such as naturally and necessarily arises from a given cause, but not necessarily similar in degree or equal in amount. If the injury is the same in kind to all, it is a common injury, although one may actually be injured or damaged more than another. Anthony Wilkinson Live Stock Co. v Mcllyuhttm, 14 Wyo 209, 83 P 364.

common intendment. According to the ordinary meaning.

common intent. The intent of two or more persons acting in concert to commit a specific crime, or to commit acts from which the law will infer a community of intention. Regina v Doddridge (Eng) 8 Cox CC 335. The corrupt intent existing in the minds of the parties to a conspiracy. 16 Am J2d Consp § 9.

common in the soil. The right of a person to mine or quarry on the land of another.

common jail. The building provided by a county or municipality for the custody of persons committed by legal process. 41 Am J1st Pris & P § 2.

common jury. An ordinary trial jury, as distinguished from a grand jury, a special jury, or a coroner's jury; a petit jury.

common labor. As the term is used in statutes prohibiting common labor on Sunday, it cannot in the nature of things be given an exact definition. Courts can only determine whether each case, as it arises, falls within the legislative intention. The term is not restricted to mere manual labor. The execution of ordinary contracts and the transactions to which they relate are within the meaning of the term. Such transactions belong to the ordinary business affairs of life and are as well within the meaning of the term as the work of the farmer in his field, of the mechanic in his shop, or the common laborer upon a public improvement, but the making of a subscription toward a charitable enterprise, such as a church debt, is not common labor. Bryan v Watson, 127 Ind 42, 26 NE 666. Neither holding courts nor transacting public business is common labor. State v Thomas, 61 Ohio St 444, 56 NE 276.

[228]

common knowledge. A matter is of common knowledge where it is so generally, even if not universally, accepted by the public without qualification or contention, that the courts will accept it without proof. 29 Am J2d Ev § 22.

common law. Those principles, usages and rules of action applicable to the government and security of persons and property which do not rest for their authority upon any express or positive statute or other written declaration, but upon statements of principles found in the decisions of the courts. 15 Am J2d Com L § 1. In a broader sense the common law is the system of rules and declarations of principles from which our judicial ideas and legal definitions are derived, and which are continually expanding; the system being capable of growth and development at the hands of judges. Linkins v Protestant Episcopal Cathedral, 87 App DC 351, 187 F2d 357, 28 ALR2d 521; Ney v Yellow Cab Co. 2 Ill 2d 74, 117 NE2d 74, 51 ALR2d 624.

In its broadest aspect, the common law may be said to be the general Anglo-American system of legal concepts and the traditional technique which forms the basis of the law of the states which have adopted it. 15 Am J2d Com L § 1. The common law of England, in its broadest significance, is the basic component of the common law as adopted by American courts. 15 Am J2d Com L § 6. English statutes enacted before the emigration of the American colonists constituted a part of the common law on its adoption in this country, so far as they were not merely local in character or inapplicable to American institutions and conditions; if such statutes are so far removed in point of time that one must be hesitant in declaring that they are a part of the common law for the purposes of the present, they are nevertheless part of our judicial heritage and should be interpreted and applied accordingly. 15 Am J2d Com L § 7.

As the words are used in the seventh amendment to the United States Constitution providing that "no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law," the common law referred to is not the common law of any individual state (for it probably differs in all), but it is the common law of England, the grand reservoir of all our jurisprudence. Under that law, the facts once tried by a jury are never re-examined, unless a new trial is granted; or unless the judgment of the trial court is reversed by a superior tribunal, on a writ of error, and a venire facias de novo is awarded. Capital Traction Co. v Hof, 174 US 1, 8, 43 L Ed 873, 876, 18 S Ct 580.

See federal common law; proceeding according to the course of the common law; unwritten law.

common-law action. See action at common law.

common-law actionable negligence. The failure of one owing a duty to another to do what a reasonable and prudent person would ordinarily have done under the circumstances, or doing what such a person would not have done. Pratt v Daly, 55 Ariz 535, 104 P2d 147, 130 ALR 341.

See negligence.

common-law actions. Forms of actions as they existed under the common law, being the ex contractu forms of account, assumpsit, covenant, and debt, and the ex delicto forms of detinue, replevin, trover, trespass on the case, ejectment, forcible entry, and trespass. There are also the common-law actions of dower, waste, the writ of right, and the writ of entry. 1 Am J2d Actions § 10.

common-law arbitration. A matter of the law of remedies, rather than of the substantive law; arbitration by agreement which designates a specific issue to be decided and includes a provision binding the parties to abide by the award. Corey v Herrick, 146 Wash 283, 263 P 190, 193.

See arbitration.

common-law bond. An obligation in writing and under seal. 12 Am J2d Bonds § 1; a bond voluntarily executed by a public officer in the absence of any constitutional or statutory provision requiring him to furnish a bond. 43 Am J1st Pub Of § 411.

common-law jurisdiction. Jurisdiction to try and decide cases which were cognizable by the courts of law under what is known as the common law of England. Re Dean, 83 Me 489, 22 A 385.

common-law jury. A jury of 12 persons, no more and no less, summoned from the vicinity, duly examined, and sworn to try the case on the facts presented by the evidence introduced at the trial. State v James, 96 NJL 132, 114 A 553, 16 ALR 1141.

common-law lien. A lien arising by implication of law, not by contract, which entitles the lienor to retain possession of an article in his possession which belongs to another until certain demands against such other person are satisfied. 33 Am J1st Liens § 16.

common-law marriage. A marriage entered into without ceremony, the parties assuming the relationship of husband and wife inter se by agreement in words of the present tense to be husband and wife, followed, as required in some, but not all jurisdictions, by cohabitation and reputation or repute of marriage. 35 Am J1st Mar § 28.

A common-law marriage depends upon facts and circumstances evidencing a mutual agreement to live together as husband and wife, and not in concubinage. Rodgers v Herron, 226 SC 317, 85 SE2d 104, 48 ALR2d 1241.

common-law meaning. The meaning of a word or expression as known and understood by the common law.

If the legislature makes use of a term without defining it, and it has by the common law received a settled meaning, it will be presumed that it is used in the common-law sense. Hillhouse v Chester (Coon) 3 Day 166.

common-law mortgage. A feoffment on the condition that the feoffer might re-enter if he performed the condition of paying a certain sum of money on a certain date to the feoffee, the transaction also being known as dead pledge, because, upon nonperformance of the condition, the land was lost to the feoffer forever. Anno: 27 L Ed 910.

common law of England. The system of law, which prevails in England, and in the United States by adoption, as distinguished from the Roman or civil law system. 15 Am J2d Com L § 1.

See common law.

common-law procedure acts. English statutes enacted in 1852, 1854, and 1860, simplifying the forms of pleading and practice.

common-law receiver. A receiver appointed by a court of equity without reference to statutory authority. 45 Am J1st Rec § 3.

[229]

common-law trademark. A right, recognized by the common law in the absence of statute, as existing in a trademark by virtue of prior appropriation and use. 52 Am J1st Tradem § 26.

common-law trust. See business trust.

common lawyer. A lawyer who is learned in the common law.

commonly. In a manner that is common; usually; generally; ordinarily; frequently; for the most part; familiarly. Webb v New Mexico Pub. Co. 47 NM 279, 141 P2d 333, 148 ALR 1002.

common nightwalker. A person having the habit of being abroad at night for the purpose of committing some crime, of disturbing the peace, or of doing some wrongful or wicked act. State v Dowers, 45 NH 543, 544.

common nuisance. A public nuisance, that is a condition of things which is prejudicial to the health, comfort, safety, property, sense of decency or morals of the citizens at large, resulting either from an act not warranted by law, or from neglect of a duty imposed by law. Nuchols v Commonwealth, 312 Ky 171, 226 SW2d 796, 13 ALR2d 1478; Powell v Bentley & Gerwig Furniture Co. 34 W Va 804, 12 SE 1085.

See public nuisance.

common occupant. Where land was granted to a man for the life of another, and the grantee died before the cestui que vie, the land belonged to nobody during the remainder of the life of the cestm que vie, and any man who entered and occupied the land for that period was called common occupant. See 2 Bl Comm 259.

common of estovers. The right a tenant has of taking necessary wood and timber from the woods of the landlord, for fuel, fencing, etc. See 32 Am J1st L & T § 219.

common of fishery. The right that a tenant has of taking fish in the water of the landlord. Van Rensselaer v Radcliffe (NY) 10 Wend 639.

See common fishery.

common of pasture. A right of feeding the beasts of one person on the lands of another. Van Rensselaer v Radcliffe (NY) 10 Wend 639.

common of piscary. The right that a tenant has of taking fish in the waters of the landlord. Van Rensselaer v Radcliffe (NY) 10 Wend 639.

See common fishery.

common of turbary. The right that a tenant has of cutting turf in the grounds of his landlord. See Van Rensselaer v Radcliffe (NY) 10 Wend 639.

common order. The usual order under the practice of some jurisdictions, in the nature of a conditional judgment, directed to a defendant in default for want of an appearance and threatening him with the rendition of an actual judgment against him unless he appear and plead. Mahoney v New South Bldg. & Loan Asso. (CC Va) 70 F 513.

common passageway. A hall or stairway in an apartment house which is open to use and used by all tenants, or all tenants on one floor or in one section of the building.

common people. See commonalty.

common pleas. A term for civil actions as distinguished from criminal prosecutions.

See Court of Common Pleas.

common pleas court. See Court of Common Pleas.

common probate. See probate in common form.

common prostitute. A female who submits indiscriminately to sexual intercourse, irrespective of financial gain. People v Ward, 95 Misc 508, 160 NYS 763.

common pur cause de vicinage. Same as common because of vicinage.

common purgation. See judicium Dei.

common purpose. See common intent; prosecution of a common purpose.

common recovery. A fictitious suit brought by a third person against the holder of an estate in tail with the ultimate object of barring the estate in tail and giving the tenant in tail the power of disposing of the property in fee simple. Dutton v Donahue, 44 Wyo 52, 8 112d 90, 79 ALR 1355.

See Fine and Recoveries Act.

common return days. Fixed days for appearance of defendants in court.

common right. A right supported by common law; for some purposes, the common law itself. Coral Gables v Christopher, 108 Vf 414, 189 A 147, 109 ALR 474; a right that is not absolute in the sense that an absolute right is not to be denied, but is nevertheless entitled to protection against malicious interference. 30 Am J Rev ed Interf § 44; a qualified right which may be exercised only where there is justification therefor, as distinguished from an absolute right which may be exercised without reference to one's motive or to any injury directly resulting therefrom. 30 Am J Rev ed Interf § 51.

common river boundary. See river boundary.

common rule. See entering the common rule.

commons. In reference to land, the plural of common; the House of Commons, the popular and more powerful body of the British Parliament; freeholders not of the peerage; commoners, that is persons of the commonalty.

common sans nombre. Common without number.

common schools. The public schools as established in the United States: grade schools, grammar schools, and high schools. 47 Am J1st Sch § 3.

common-school system. The system of public schools in the United States that is, the graded, grammar, and high schools. 47 Am J1st Sch § 3.

common scold. A troublesome and angry woman who, by brawling and wrangling among her neighbors, commits a breach of the public peace, increases discord, and becomes a nuisance in the neighborhood. 15 Am J2d Com S § 2.

common seal. The seal of a corporation.

common serjeant. An assistant to the recorder of the City of London.

common socage. Same as free socage.

common stock. The kind of stock ordinarily and usually issued by a corporation, without extraordinary rights or privileges, and the kind of stock which, in the absence of other classes of stock having superior rights, represents the complete interest in a corporation. 18 Am J2d Corp § 212.

[230]

common thief. A person who persists in the offense of larceny.

common trust fund. A trust fund, held by a bank or trust company as trustee, which is actually a combination of several, sometimes many, trust funds in limited amounts, the funds being mingled for the purpose of efficiency and economy in administration and investment by the trustee.

commonalty. The commonalty; land which is owned in common and which usually is subject to certain servitudes.

common vouchee. The fictitious party in an action of common recovery who was named by the tenant as his warrantor and grantor. It was the common practice in such a proceeding to name the crier of the court as the common vouchee. 2 Bl Comm 358.

common wall. See party wall.

commonweal. Common welfare; the public welfare.

commonwealth. The public; the state the body politic; the English government under Cromwell.

Commonwealth. The association, sometimes called the British Commonwealth, of the United Kingdom with independent nations, dominions, dependencies, protectorates, and trust territories beyond the seas.

common without stint. A frequently used, but erroneous name for the unmeasured right of common; that is a right of common which has not yet been admeasured or apportioned. See 3 Bl Comm 239. It was also called "common sans nombre."

commorancy. In American law, residence for a short time; temporary residence; in English law, dwelling as an inhabitant of a place, which means usually lying there. 4 Bl Comm 273.

commorant. See commorancy. commorientes. Persons who die at the same time.

commote. (Welsh.) Half a hundred.

commotion. A disturbance; turmoil.

See civil commotion.

common. See droit common.

commune. Verb: To engage in intimate conversation; to take communion. (French.) Noun: A cony munity; the common people; a small administrative unit of government the name given to revolutionary governments; (Latin.) common.

commune bonum. Common good, public welfare.

commune concilium regni. The common council of the realm, an ancient name of the general assembly which came to be known as parliament. See 1 Bl Comm 148.

commune placitum. A common plea; a civil action.

commune socagium. Common socage. Same as free socage.

commune vinculum. The common bond or tie. The common stock of consanguinity. See 2 Bl Comm 250.

communia. Common; ordinary.

communia pasturae. Same as common of pasture.

communia piscariae. Same as common of piscary.

communia plaeita. Same as common pleas.

Communia placita non sequantur curiam regis, sed teneantur in aliquo loco certo. The court of common pleas shall not follow the king's court, but shall be held in some fixed place. 3 Bl Comm 38.

communia turbariae. Common of turbary.

communibus annis. In common or ordinary years; one year with another; upon an average. See 2 Bl Comm 322.

communicable diseases. Infectious diseases.

communicare. To commune.

communicate. To make known; to impart information to give by way of information. Messages of the Senate were communicated to the president. Prevost v Morgenthau, 70 App DC 306, 106 F2d 330.

See communication.

communicating additions. An expression, common in fire insurance policies for the purpose of extending the coverage beyond the house or main building to other buildings on the premises used by the household, even though not physically attached to the main building. Frohlich v National Fire Ins. Co. 327 Mich 653, 42 NW2d 657, 19 ALR2d 604.

communication. A statement made in writing or by word of mouth by one person to another; the transfer of information by speech and by acts, signs, and appearances. People v Daghita, 299 NY 194, 86 NE2d 172, 10 ALR2d 1385.

See privileged communications.

Communications Act. The federal statute which provides the Federal Communications Commission and prescribes its powers and duties. 44 Am J1st Rad § 6.

By the Communications Act of 1934, jurisdiction over telephone and telegraph companies was transferred from the Interstate Commerce Commission to the Federal Communications Commission. 52 Am J1st Teleg & T § 42.

Communications Commission. The federal regulatory agency for radio and television, 44 Am J1st Radio § 6, also for telegraphs and telephones. 52 Am J1st Teleg & T § 42.

comunidad. (Spanish.) A partnership for the purposes of the Bankruptcy Act. Benitez v Bank of Nova Scotia (CA) Puerto Rico 125 F2d 523.

communi dividendo. A Roman law action for the partition of property held in common.

communings. Offers to deal with or contract.

communio bonorum. A community of goods.

Communi observantia non est recedendum. There must not be a departure from common or general observation or practice. The probable origin of this maxim is traced in O'Donnell v Glenn, 9 Mont 452, 23 P 1018.

[231]

communis. Common.

communis bancus. The common bench, the English court of common pleas.

Communis error tacit jus. See common error makes law.

Communis et recta sententia est, in rebus immobilibus servandum esse jus loci in quo bona cant sita. It is common sense and proper that the law of the place in which the property is situated should control immovable property. Suydam v Williamson (US) 24 How 427, 434, 16 L Ed 742, 745.

communism. In the pristine sense, the ownership of the means of production by the community, each member of the community participating in production according to his ability and sharing in the products according to his need; in common usage of the present day, suggestive of the theories of Marx and Lenin and the politics and authoritarian rule of Stalin and his successors in Russia and the leaders in China since the People's Republic was proclaimed in 1949.

communis opinio. The common opinion. In Coke upon Littleton, the learned author often prefaces the announcement of a legal principle with the words: "It is commonly said." By these words is meant: "It is commonly the legal opinion." To the expression cited, Littleton adds: "That is, it is the common opinion, and communis opinio is good authority in law." O'Donnell v Glenn, 5 Mont 452, 23 P 1018.

communis pacis perturbatrix. A common disturber of the peace.

communis paries. A common wall, a party wall.

communis pugnatix. A common brawler.

communis rixatrix. Same as common scold.

communis scriptura. A common writing; a deed.

communis stirpes. People of a common stock; a stock of a common ancestry.

Communist. One who believes in communism; a member of the Communist Party.

See communism.

communistic tenure. The ten ure in which land is held by a religious or other incorporated or unincorporated society, where the members have surrendered to it their property to be held in common for the benefit of all. See 45 Am J1st Reli Soc § 52.

Communist Party. A political party, often the only political party, in various countries, supporting communism in theory, although not absolutely in practice, and upholding authoritarian forms of government; a political party in the United States, numerically weak, but now operating with legality.

See communism.

Communist Sympathizer. Essentially the same in the common mind as "Communist." Anno: 33 ALR2d 1212.

communitas regni Angliae. The community of the realm of England,--one of the ancient names of the general council which finally became parliament. See 1 Bl Comm 148.

communter usitata et approbata. Things which have been commonly used and approved.

community. A town; a municipality; a district; a neighborhood; an entity composed of a husband and his wife, which is quite distinct from that of either, considered separately and individually. As a community they hold property by a different title from that by which they hold title to their separate property. Stanton v Everett Trust & Sav. bank, 145 Wash 165, 259 P 10.

See community estate; community property.

community center. A place where the people may meet in the pursuit of social, cultural, or recreational activities.

See recreational center.

community chest. A fund collected in a city for various charities maintained in the city, the purpose being to avoid the expenses and efforts otherwise required to solicit separately for each of the charities; the organization maintained to administer the collection of the fund and the disbursement thereof to the organizations entitled.

community church. One of the earliest manifestations of the ecumenical movement. The term does not signify a religious association which has distinctive doctrines and beliefs, but rather a federation of two or more churches, all retaining their separate identity and their distinctive doctrines. Christian Church of Vacaville v Crystal, 78 Cal App 1, 247 P 605.

community debt. See community obligation.

Community estate. A marital estate, incapable of existing except between husband and wife during coverture. 15 Am J2d Community Prop § 6. The estate left by a decedent is called a community estate when it consists wholly of community property. Gump v Commissioner (CA9) 124 F2d 540.

See community property.

community house. See community center; tenement house.

community income. The income from community property and also the earnings of husband or wife or profits or rents realized by either one from his or her business transactions, or property, which become community property. 15 Am J2d Community Prop §§ 35-37, community obligation. A liability incurred for the benefit, or arising out of the management, of the community. 15 Am J2d Community Prop § 82.

community of intention. See common intent.

community of interest. A joint or common interest.

community property. A system, derived by several states through adoption or succession from the Spanish, Mexican, or French law, relative to property rights of husband and wife, the essential principle of which is that the earnings of either spouse by his or her toil and the exercise of his or her productive faculties belong, not to the earning or producing spouse as his or her property, but to the "community," the entity of husband and wife. 15 Am J2d Community Prop §§ 1, 3; property acquired by either spouse during a marriage, otherwise than by gift, devise, legacy, or descent; whatever is gained, during coverture, by the toil, talent, or other productive faculty of either spouse. 15 Am J2d Community Prop § 3.

[232]

The foregoing definition is not inclusive of all property rights. For example, the right to practice a profession although not acquired by gift, devise, legacy, or descent, is not to be classed as community property. 15 Am J2d Community Prop § 3.

community recreational center. See recreational center.

commutation. A money compensation paid by the government to military officers when it cannot furnish them with quarters at stations. 36 Am J1st Mil § 79.

commutation of homestead entry. A cash payment by a homestead settler on public lands, in lieu of remaining in possession of the land for five years, made to obtain a patent for the land from the government. 42 Am J1st Pub Land § 28.

commutation of punishment. See commutation of sentence.

commutation of sentence. The changing of a sentence imposed for crime to less severe punishment; the substitution of a lesser punishment for a greater by authority of law. 39 Am J1st Pard § 8.

commutation of tax. An abatement of a tax; the payment of a designated sum for the privilege of exemption from taxation, or the selection in advance of a specific sum in lieu of an ad valorem tax. It has been held that either of these methods of commutation works an exemption pro tanto from taxation. Hogg v Mackay, 23 Or 339, 31 P 779.

See abatement of taxes.

commutation of tithes. The payment of tithes in money, instead of produce.

commutation of toll. The reduction or exoneration of payment of tolls for the use of a toll road. 54 Am J1st Turn & T R § 14.

commutation ticket. A ticket issued by a carrier of passengers, at a reduced rate per trip, for a specified number of trips between named stations or points. Pennsylvania R. Co. v Towers, 245 US 6, 62 L Ed 117, 38 S Ct 2.

commutative contract. A contract which involves mutual and reciprocal obligations, and wherein the acts to be done and performed on one side form the consideration for those to be done and performed on the other. Hyde & Gleises v Booraem & Co. 16 Pet 169, 10 L Ed 928. The use of the term appears to be confined to Louisiana.

commutative justice. Mutual justice; justice on the one side equal to that on the other.

commutator. See dynamo. commuted value. The value of a gift of a future interest reduced to present worth. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher Tax §§ 619, 620.

See present worth.

commuting expense. The expense of transportation between residence and place of work located within the area of the residence, that is, near enough to be reached within a reasonable time, considering the nature of the work to be done.

compact. Noun: A contract Green v Biddle (US) 8 Wheat 1, 92, 5 L Ed 547, 570; particularly, a contract of an important and serious nature, as a contract between states settling a boundary dispute. State of Virginia v State of Tennessee, 148 US 503, 509, 37 L Ed 537, 543, 13 S Ct 728. Adjective: Closely united. Anno: 2 ALR 1356.

compact territory. A district whereof the divisions not only touch each other but are closely united. Anno: 2 ALR 11356.

Companies Act. An English statute passed in 1862, regulating non-partnership companies.

companionate marriage. Either an illicit relationship or a relationship based upon a marriage which the parties have, by antenuptial contract or arrangement, sought to control so as to render the marriage terminable at pleasure, with consent, or at some future time. 35 Am J1st Marr § 39

company. Usually, but not necessarily, a corporation, since the word is inclusive of natural persons. 18 Am J2d Corp § 4; a union of two or more persons for the carrying on of a joint enterprise or business; a partnership; a corporation; an association a joint stock company. An association of individuals operating under a declaration of trust, by the terms of which the capital contributed by them to a common enterprise is divided into units or interests, is a "company" within the meaning of the word as it is used in the blue sky law of California. Barrett v Gore, 88 Cal App 372, 263 P 564.

company car. A motor vehicle owned by an employing company and driven by an officer or employee.

company housing. Dwelling houses owned by an employer and rented to employees, usually under an arrangement for deducting the rent from wages.

company union. A labor union whose membership is confined to the employees of a single company or the employees of a company and its subsidiaries.

comparatio literarum. A comparison of letters; that is, of handwritings.

comparative injury. A doctrine of equity which denies relief where the inconvenience and the injury to the plaintiff are not of a pressing character and the result of equitable relief by injunction will be to cause a large loss to the defendant. 28 Am J Rev ed Inj § 52; 39 Am J1st Nuis § 161.

comparative negligence. the negligence of the defendant in an action to recover damages for negligence as compared with that of the plaintiff, the comparison being made for the purpose of applying the rule of admiralty, which has been adopted by statute for negligence cases generally in some jurisdictions. That the more gross the negligence of the defendant appears, the less degree of care is required of the plaintiff to permit a recovery by him; that the negligence of the plaintiff operates, not to relieve the defendant entirely from liability, but merely to diminish the damages recoverable. 38 Am J1st Negl §§ 231-233.

comparative rectitude. The name given to the principle that where both parties to a marriage are guilty of misconduct for which a divorce may be granted, the court will grant a divorce to the one who is less at fault. 24 Am J2d Divorce § 228.

comparere. To appear, to submit to the jurisdiction of the court.

comparison. The act of bringing together for the purpose of observing not only likenesses, but differences as well. Succession of Baker, 129 La 74, 82, 55 So 714.

See evidence by comparison.

[233]

comparison of handwriting. The now generally accepted practice of determining the genuineness of a disputed writing or signature by comparison thereof with it specimen of the person's writing that is proved or admitted to be genuine. 29 Am J2d Ev § 806.

compartner. Same as copartner.

compascuum. Same as common of pasture.

compass. Noun: An instrument for showing direction, particularly an instrument with a magnetic needle which swings freely and points to the north. Verb: To accomplish; to plot, scheme, or contrive harm to another.

compaternity. The relation of a godparent toward his godchild.

compatibility. Such an absence of conflict in two or more offices that one person may with propriety fill each of them at the same time; a harmonious relationship between persons living together, especially husband and wife.

compear. (Scotch.) To enter an appearance in an action, either in person or by attorney.

compearance. (Scotch.) An appearance in an action or proceeding.

compelled. Moved by force, which, in the law, may mean an unavoidable force. A witness is not "compelled" to testify if he makes no claim of privilege upon the ground that his testimony might incriminate him or upon any other ground. State v Whalen, 108 Wash 287, 183 P 130.

Compendia sunt dispendia. Short cuts are wasteful.

compensable injury. A personal injury to an employee for which he is entitled to compensation under a workmen's compensation act, which means that there is a causal relation between the employment and the injury. Trudenich v Marshall (DC Wash) 34 F Supp 486.

compensacion. (Spanish.) A set-off or counterclaim.

compensate. To counterbalance; to make up for; to make amends for; to pay. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v Henneford, 195 Wash 553, 81 P2d 786.

compensated surety. See corporate surety.

compensating tax. A state tax the primary purpose of which is to protect merchants of the state from discrimination resulting from the inability of the state, under Federal Law, to impose a tax upon sales made to residents of the state by competitive merchants in other states. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v Henneford, 195 Wash 553, 81 P2d 786.

See use tax.

compensatio. The set-off of the Roman law. See 3 Bl Comm 305.

compensatio criminum. Recrimination, a defense in an action for divorce. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 226.

See recrimination.

compensation. A return for a benefit conferred or promised, that is, a consideration. Searcy v Grow, 15 Cal 117; a remuneration for services, whether in the form of a fixed salary, fees, commissions, or perquisites of whatever character. 43 Am J1st Pub Of § 340; redress for property taken or injury caused by the taking of property under the power of eminent domain. Symonds v Cincinnati, 14 Ohio 147. A set-off in the Scottish law; redress in damages for injuries generally; the payment made to an injured employee by the employer under a workmen's compensation act. As the term is used in workmen's compensation acts, it means the money relief afforded according to the scale established and for the persons designated by the act, and it does not refer to the compensatory damages which may be recovered in an action at law for a wrong done or a contract broken. Mosely v Empire Gas & Fuel Co. 313 Mo 225, 281 SW 762, 45 ALR 1223, 1232.

A civil law term meaning the extinction of debts of which two persons are reciprocally debtors to one another, by the credits by which they are reciprocally creditors to one another. 20 Am J2d Countcl etc. § 5.

Sec compensatory damages; unemployment compensation; workmen's compensation.

compensation court. A workmen's compensation commission. 58 Am J1st Workm Comp §370.

compensation, wages, or hire. As the term is used in a statute requiring a driver's license, the term means something more than the operation of a motor vehicle as a mere incident of the business of one's employer. Matthews v State, 85 Tex Crim 469. 214 SW 339.

compensatory damages. The damages recoverable in satisfaction of, or in recompense for, loss or injury sustained, including all damages except nominal damages, punitive or exemplary damages. 22 Am J2d Damg § 11. Damages awarded not only as a recompense for actual injury to the person or property, including expenses, loss of time, bodily suffering, etc., occasioned by the defendant's wrongful act, but also such additional sum as in the opinion of the jury is warranted by the circumstances of contumely, anguish or oppression, including mental suffering and wounded sensibilities. Murphy v Hobbs, 7 Colo 541, 5 P 119.

compensatory fine. A fine which the court may impose in a civil contempt action as a remedial punishment, payable to an aggrieved litigant as compensation for the special damages which he may have sustained by reason of the contumacious conduct of the offender. Parker v United States (CA1 Mass) 126 F2d 370.

comperendinatio. (Roman law.) The postponement of a trial to the third day.

compertorium. (Civil law.) A judicial inquest by delegates or commissioners to find out and relate the truth of a cause.

comperuit ad diem. He appeared at the day.

compester. To apply manure to the soil.

competency. Capability; capacity; qualification for the performance of an act.

competency of evidence. The admissibility of evidence under the established rules of evidence. 29 Am J2d Ev §§ 257, 260.

competency of person. See competent person.

competency of testator. See testamentary capacity.

competency of witness. See competent attesting witness; competent witness.

competent attesting witness. One legally competent, as of the time of the attestation and as determined by the substantive law of wills, to testify in a court of justice the facts which he attests by signing his name to the will as a subscribing witness, not being disqualified by mental incapacity, crime, or other cause such as interest. Gillis v Gillis, 143 Ga 1, 23 SE 107.

[234]

competent and omitted. The term is applied to a plea which might have been interposed, but was not.

competent arbitrator. Any disinterested person, whatever his or her legal status may be, except as qualifications are prescribed in the agreement for arbitration in which case only persons who meet the prescribed qualifications are competent. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 97. As used in insurance policy providing for the appointment of "competent arbitrators," the term means persons who are disinterested, and have the requisite ability to act in the matter. Aetna Ins. Co. v Stevens, 48 Ill 31.

competent court. A tribunal having jurisdiction. State ex ref. Degen v Freeman, 168 Minn 374, 375, 210 NW 14. A court legally constituted; a court the judgments and proceedings of which are not open to collateral attack. A court created without color of authority, or a mere usurper is not within the definition, but a de facto court is a competent court. State ex ref. Bales v Bailey, 106 Minn 138, 118 NW 676.

See court of competent jurisdiction.

competent evidence. Evidence which is legally admissible.

See competency of evidence.

competent jurisdiction. The power and authority of law, at the time of acting, to do the particular act. Re Justus, 3 Okla Crim 111, 104 P 933.

competent person. A capable person; a person legally qualified by age and mental capacity.

See competent attesting witness; competent witness.

competent tribunal. See competent court.

competent witness. A person qualified to testify under oath; a person who meets the test of age, mental power, religious belief, and capacity to understand the nature and obligation of an oath. Lemer v Bryan, 184 NC 282, 114 SE 6, 26 ALR 1488. A credible witness; that is, such a person as is not legally disqualified from testifying in courts of justice by reason of mental incapacity, interest, or the commission of a crime, or other cause excluding him from testifying generally, or rendering him incompetent in respect of the particular subject matter, or in the particular suit. Blythe v Ayres, 96 Cal 532, 586, 31 P 915. A person is competent to testify as a witness if he has sufficient understanding to receive, remember, and narrate impressions and is sensible of the obligation of an oath. 66 Va (25 Gratt) 865.

See competent attesting witness.

competere. To be available.

competing. In a state of competition; two or more businesses or industries producing or selling the same or essentially the same products or services without restraint of any kind upon their efforts to sell any or all of their products or services to any and all customers within practicable territorial limits.

competing lines. See competing railroads.

competing railroads. Two railroads which have each a through and separate line of communication between two given points, for which line each seeks the traffic between such points. As a general rule, whether lines of railroad are competitive depends upon the business of the companies, the conduct of the roads by their authorities, their channels of traffic, and generally upon whether the roads extend for transportation from and to the same points along their routes. See 44 Am J1st RR § 323.

competing unions. See rival unions.

competit assisa. An assize lies, an action lies.

competition. The activities of persons conducting a business, following a profession, or engaging in a sport, in an effort to succeed. The act of seeking or endeavoring to gain what another is endeavoring to gain at the same time; common contest or striving for the same object; strife for superiority; rivalry. The status of persons dealing in or furnishing goods or services of the same kind and soliciting trade or patronage from the same customers or class of customers in the same territory at the same time. 52 Am J1st Traders § 94. (Scotch.) The contest between the creditors of a bankrupt to establish their respective ranks and preferences.

See competing; unfair competition.

competition with mails. The Federal offense of carrying mail in competition with the Post Office Department, so as to deprive the department of its monopoly in the business of receiving, transporting and delivering mail matter. 41 Am J1st P O § 106.

competitive examination. A test by objective standards or measures. Where the standard or measure is wholly subjective, it differs, in effect, in no respect from an uncontrolled opinion of the examiners and cannot be termed "competitive." Fink v Finegan, 270 NY 356, 1 NE2d 462.

complain. To file a complaint; to make a formal charge or accusation of crime against a person; to make a charge.

complainant. The petitioner in a writ in a court of equity; a plaintiff; a prosecuting witness in a criminal proceeding; a person who files a formal charge or accusation of crime.

complaining witness. See prosecuting witness.

complaint. A bill in equity. 27 Am J2d Eq § 179; a pleading by which the plaintiff in a civil action, whether of a legal or equitable nature, sets out the cause of action and invokes the jurisdiction of the court. 41 Am J1st Pl § 73. In some instances and under some statutes, it comprehends oral as well as written allegations. Asbell v Edwards, 63 Kim 610, 66 P 641.

The formal charge, made under oath, of the commission of a crime or offense. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 441. If the offense charged is a minor one, the complaint, otherwise known as an affidavit or preliminary information, will stand as the pleading upon which the accused will be tried; if the offense is a felony, the accused is not put to trial upon the complaint, since he can be charged with felony only by an indictment or an information filed by the state's attorney. State v Hamilton, 133 W Va 394, 56 SE2d 544, 12 ALR2d 573.

See bill; declaration; outcry; petition.

complete. Finished; ready for the use or purpose for which it was intended. See Maxey v Oshkosh, 144 Wis 238, 128 NW 899.

completed. Finished; the last operation on a job per formed. Re Mt. Washington S. S. Co. (DC NH) 43 F Supp 176.

[235]

completed railroad. Fitted for use as a railroad; a railroad ready and in proper condition for the placing and running of regular trains upon it, or for operation as it is usually termed. Some authorities, however, take the view that the term means that the road is in condition to be operated for regular passenger and freight traffic and is actually in use. 44 Am J1st RR § 3.

complete enjoyment rule. A principle of the law of implied easements that the extent of the grantee's private right of user in streets and alleys shown on a map or plat, by reference to which his conveyance was made, is limited to such streets and alleys as are reasonably or materially beneficial to the grantee and of which the deprivation will reduce the value of his lot by preventing his complete enjoyment of the premises. Anno: 7 ALR2d 633; 25 Am J2d Ease § 26.

complete immunity. Immunity granted a defendant as a matter of law by virtue of the charitable nature of the defendant, irrespective of the status of the person damaged or injured in relation to the defendant and regardless of the negligence of the defendant in employing or retaining an incompetent employee. 13 Am J2d Char § 156.

complete jurisdiction. The power to hear and determine the cause, and the power to enforce the judgment. Cooper v Reynolds (US) 10 Wall 308, 19 L Ed 931.

complete loss of sight. The absence of sight for practical purposes, even though there is sufficient response in the eyes to distinguish between light and dark. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 151 3.

complete manufacture. The ultimate product of prior successive manufactures or an intermediate product which may be used for different purposes. 21 Am J2d Cost D § 44.

complete operation doctrine. A principle, applied in reference to the loading and unloading clause of an automobile liability insurance policy, that the clause covers the entire process involved in the movement of goods from the moment when they are given into the insured's possession until they are turned over at the place of destination to the party to whom delivery is to be made. According to this doctrine, loading and unloading includes more than the mere placing of the goods on the truck or the removal of the goods from the truck, so that when they are taken directly from the truck and in one continuous operation, are carried into the customer's place of business, they are still in the process of being unloaded when set down therein. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 88.

complete remedy at law. See adequate remedy at law.

completing an abstract. The work of abstracters of title and title insurers. Anno: 80 ALR 772.

completion of public improvement. The finishing of the last work, not the acceptance of the work by the public body. Dickey v United States Fidelity & G. Co. 107 Kan 605, 193 P 346. The right of the surety on a contractor's bond. 17 Am J2d Cont Bond §§ 57, 111-113.

completion of record. The clerical function of a clerk of court in filling in blanks left by a judge in rendering a judgment. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 105.

completion of the work. See completion of public improvement.

complicated accounts. A basis for seeking the remedy of an accounting. Scott v Caldwell, 160 Fla 861, 37 Sold 85. Accounts involving several issues for determination or requiring a discovery in determining the rights of the parties. 1 Am J2d Acctg § 53.

complice. An accomplice.

complicity. The state or condition of a person who is involved as an accomplice.

complot. To plot with another or others; to conspire.

comply. To perfect or carry into effect; to complete; to perform or execute in accord with a previous contract or, arrangement. Cleland v Waters, 16 Ga 496, 503.

composite facts rule. The rule of evidence which supports the admissibility of testimony, which is literally in the form of a conclusion of the witness, but actually is testimony to what the witness knows or has observed concerning circumstances of such nature that practicably they are best presented in the form of a composite rather than in detail, as where a witness is permitted to testify that he is dependent upon another for support, notwithstanding the superficial element of conclusion. See 31 Am J2d Ev § 6.

compositeurs. See amiables compositeurs.

Compositio Mensurarum. The regulation of measures, --the name of the earliest English statute which established a standard of weight. This was originally taken from corns or grains of wheat, thirty-two of which, by the statute, made a pennyweight, twenty of these an ounce, and twelve ounces a pound. See 1 Bl Comm 275.

composition agreement. See composition with creditors. composition in bankruptcy. See composition with creditors.

composition of tithes. An agreement made between a landowner and the parson of the parish whereby the former's land is discharged from liability for tithes.

See real composition.

composition with creditors. An agreement between an insolvent or embarrassed debtor and two or more of his creditors whereby the creditors, for some consideration, such as an immediate payment, agree to the discharge of their respective claims on the receipt of payment which is in a lesser amount than that actually owing on the claim. 15 Am J2d Comp Cred § 1. An agreement by a debtor made with his creditors which fixes a basis or plan whereby the debts may be paid, he being favored by a reduction of the claims, and extension of time for payment, or both; proceedings in the bankruptcy court for debt readjustment. 9 Am J2d Bankr §§ 1279 et seq.

compositio ulnarum et perticarum. The regulation of yards and perches,--an ancient English statute establishing a standard of linear measure. It provided that an inch should be the length of three grains of a barley, a foot should equal twelve inches, a yard, three feet, and five and a half yards, a perch. See 1 Bl Comm 275.

compos mentis. Of sound mind; sane.

[236]

compos sui. Possessing the control of one's self.

compotus. An account.

compound. Noun: That which is compounded or formed by the union or mixture of elements, ingredients or parts. United States v Brunett (DC Mo) 53 F2d 219. Verb: To create a product by mixing several products; the putting together by human agency of two or more substances, previously separated, to form a substance by union. Rutan v Johnson & Johnson (CA3 NJ) 231 F 369; to compromise; to effect a composition with a creditor; to obtain discharge from a debt by the payment of a smaller sum. First Nat. Bank v Malheur County, 30 Or 420, 45 P 781.

compounder. One who compounds.

See amicable compounder.

compounding a crime. The making by one directly injured by the commission of a crime of an agreement not to inform against or prosecute the offender in return for a reward, bribe, or reparation for the injury. 15 Am J2d Comp Cri § 1.

compounding elements. See compound.

compounding for differences. A form of gambling in stocks, securities, and commodities, wherein a fictitious sale is made for delivery at a future time with no intention to deliver and settlement is to be made on the difference between the contract price and the market price at such future time. 24 Am J1st Gaming §§ 66, 67.

compound interest. Interest charged on interest by adding accrued interest to principal and computing interest for the next interest period upon the new principal. 30 Am J Rev ed Int § 57.

compound larceny. The offense of larceny aggravated by the taking from one's house or person. State v Chambers, 22 W Va 779.

comprehensive insurance. A policy of insurance which provides coverage for various risks, each of which might form the subject matter of a policy.

compromise. An agreement to terminate, by means of mutual concessions, a controversy over a claim which is disputed in good faith or unliquidated. 15 Am J2d Compr § 1.

compromise and settlement. A compromise agreement followed by the performance of the promises contained in the agreement. 15 Am J2d Compr § 1.

compromise verdict. A verdict which is reached only by the surrender of conscientious convictions as to a material issue by some members of the jury in return for a relinquishment by other members of their like settled opinion on another issue, the result not commanding the approval of the whole panel. Such verdict is improper and should be set aside as subversive of trial by jury. 53 Am J1st Trial § 1033.

compte arrêté. An account acknowledged; that is, an account stated in writing and acknowledged to be correct on its face by the party against whom it is stated. Chevalier v Hyams, 9 La Ann 484, 485.

compter. To calculate; to intend; to expect.

comptroller. A corporate or public officer in charge of the financial affairs of the corporation or public body.

compulsion. The application of physical or mental force to compel the performance or the omission of performance, of an act. The word is frequently used as synonymous with the word "duress." Joannin v Ogilvie, 49 Minn 564, 52 NW 217.

See coercion; commercial frustration; compulsion of wife; constraint.

compulsory. Under compulsion; forced physically or morally.

compulsory arbitration. An arbitration proceeding to which the consent of at least one of the parties is enforced by statutory provisions. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 9. Compulsory arbitration has attracted the most attention in labor disputes. Arbitration of such disputes may be compelled by statute where the industry is one affected by a public interest and the statute provides adequate standards for the guidance of the arbitrators. Anno: 55 ALR2d 447.

compulsory assignment. An assignment for the benefit of creditors made by operation of law or under legal compulsion. 6 Am J2d Assign for Crs § 3.

compulsory counterclaim. A demand of the defendant which must be pleaded in response to plaintiff's suit or be barred. 20 Am J2d Councl § 13; any claim which, at the time of serving the pleading, the pleader has against any opposing party, growing out of the occurrence or transaction that is the subject matter of the opposing party's action, unless the counterclaim is already the subject of a pending action. Rule 13(a), Fed Rules of Civ Proc; 20 Am J2d Councl § 4.

compulsory education. Such education as a parent or guardian of a child is required by law to provide for the child. 47 Am J1st Sch § 156.

compulsory insurance. Automobile liability insurance which is required as a condition of the right to operate an automobile. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 4.

compulsory integration. See compulsory pooling; integration.

compulsory liability insurance. See compulsory insurance.

compulsory military training. Required military training of students in universities accepting the benefits of the Federal Land-Grant Act. 15 Am J2d Colleges § 24; training compelled under the selective draft.

See Selective Draft Law.

compulsory nonsuit. See nonsuit.

compulsory novation. An unusual term for garnishment. Cole v Randall Park Holding Co. 201 Md 616, 95 A2d 273, 41 ALR2d 1084.

compulsory payment. A payment compelled by force of law either directly through process or by suasion through threat of process which is not to be resisted. Blanchard v Blanchard, 201 NY 134, 94 NE 630. To constitute a compulsory payment, it is not essential that the demand be made by an officer who is prepared to enforce it by process. There may be compulsion which justifies and virtually requires payment to be made of the illegal demands of a private person who has it in his power seriously to prejudice the property rights of another, and to impose upon the latter the risk of suffering great loss if there be no compliance with the demand. Slate ex ref. McCarty v Nelson, 41 Minn 25, 42 N W 548. To constitute "compulsion" which will be regarded as sufficient to make a payment involuntary, there must be some actual or threatened exercise of power possessed, or believed to be possessed, by the party exacting or receiving the payment over the person or property of another, for which the latter has no means of immediate relief other than making the payment. 40 Am J1st Payrn § 162.

[237]

See involuntary payment.

compulsory pilotage. The requirement imposed by law, in states with harbors, upon a vessel approaching or leaving a harbor, that it take on a pilot duly licensed under the local law, who shall conduct the vessel into or out of the harbor as the case may be. 48 Am J1st Ship § 204.

compulsory pooling. The combining of small or irregularly shaped tracks owned by different persons to develop their lands as a single oil drilling or gas drilling unit, the purpose being conservation. Superior Oil Co. v Foote, 214 Miss 857, 59 So 2d 85, 37 ALR2d 415.

compulsory process. Compulsory process for a witness signifies and means a process that will compel the attendance of such witness; a process that will bring a witness into court who refuses to come without it. Ex parte Marmaduke, 91 Mo 228, 238.

See subpoena.

compulsory sale. See eminent domain; involuntary alienation.

compulsory service. See peonage; Selective Draft Act.

compulsory unitization. A term, sometimes used interchangeably with "compulsory pooling," although it refers to joint operations on a large scale, comprehending a measure in the interest of conservation for combining oil drilling or gas drilling operations into single units. Superior Oil Co. v Foote, 214 Miss 857, 59 So 2d 85, 37 ALR2d 415.

compurgation. An ancient form of trial, which was also known as "wager of law," wherein the defendant could call eleven compurgators to swear to their belief in his innocence. 3 Bl Comm 343.

compurgator. One of a defendant's eleven neighbors who accompanied him at a trial by wager of law and avowed under oath that they believed in their consciences that he had spoken the truth in giving his testimony. 3 Bl Comm 343.

computation. Calculation.

See interest; time.

computo. See de computo.

Comstock Act. The federal statute relative to the use of the mails for the delivery of contraceptives or of written or printed matter advertising contraceptives or giving information concerning methods of preventing conception. 18 USC § 334; 41 Am J1st P O § 114.

comte. A count.

con. Slang: to swindle; to trick; to deceive.

conacre. A kind of tenancy under which wages are in whole or in part applied to rental.

conatus. A bare attempt to commit an act, as distinguished from a complete accomplishment. 44 Am J1st Rape § 3.

conceal. To keep facts secret or withhold them from the knowledge of another; to hide or secrete physical objects from sight or observation. Gerry v Dunham, 57 Me 334, 339. As the word appears in a statute prescribing a ground for attachment, to "conceal" property is to hide it or put it where an officer of the law will be unable to find it. 6 Am J2d Attach § 236. As used in a statute against concealing stolen goods, knowing them to have been stolen, to "conceal" means to secrete with intent to deprive the owner of his property. Bailey v State, 115 Neb 77, 80, 211 NW 200. For the purposes of the Bankruptcy Act, to "conceal" means to secrete, falsify, and mutilate. Bankr Act § 1(7); 11 USC § 1(7). The criminal offense of concealment of property belonging to the estate of a bankrupt is not limited to physical secretion, but includes the preventing of discovery by the withholding of knowledge through refusing to divulge information as to the location of the property. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1715. For some purposes, as in the case of executing process in a claim and delivery action, to refuse the demand of an officer holding process for the property in suit is to "conceal" it. State v Pope, 4 Wash 2d 394, 103 P2d 1089, 129 ALR 240.

See concealment; secrete; treasure trove.

concealed. See conceal; concealed weapon; concealment.

concealed weapon. A weapon so placed that it cannot be readily seen under ordinary observation, even though not absolutely invisible to other persons. 56 Am J1st Weap § 10.

concealer. A person who was employed to discover lands which had been secretly kept from the king.

concealment. A suppression of or neglect to disclose facts which a person knows and which he ought to communicate; the nondisclosure of a fact which should be revealed. 37 Am J2d Fraud § 2; the designed and intentional withholding of any fact material to the risk which the insured in honesty and good faith ought to communicate to the insurer. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 689.

See conceal; concealed weapon.

concedere. To grant.

conception. An idea, as an idea for a patentable invention, which must include every essential attribute of the complete and practical invention. If anything remains to be completed or devised in order to enable the instrument or art to perform its functions in the manner proposed by the inventor, his conception of the invention is not finished, nor has he brought into existence any true idea of means. Zublin v Pickin, 21 Cust & Pat App (Pat) 1097, 70 F2d 732. Fertilization of the female ovum by the male germ cell. Am Jur Proof of Facts, Medical Glossary.

See antenuptial conception.

concerted action. See concerted activity.

concerted activity. Group action by several or more employees for the furtherance of their common interests as such. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 189; an element of a secondary boycott which constitutes an unfair labor practice. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 253.

A single spontaneous brief work stoppage by nonunion employees to present wage grievances to the employer is a "concerted activity" of a "labor organization" so as to protect participants therein from discharge under provisions of the National Labor Relations Act making it an unfair labor practice for an employer to discourage membership in any "labor organization" by discrimination in regard to tenure of employment, or to interfere with employees in the exercise of the right to engage in "concerted activities" for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection. NLRB v Kennametal, Inc. (CA3) 182 F2d 817, 19 ALR2d 562.

[238]

concessi. I have granted. The word is a technical one which was used in conveyancing. It had the same meaning and use as the word "demisi," I have demised, and if a grantor used it in a lease for years, it implied a covenant that if the assignee of the lessee be evicted, he should have a writ of covenant. Wiggins v Pender, 132 NC 628, 44 SE 362.

concessimus. We have granted.

concessio. A grant; a concession.

concession. An acknowledgment of a point made by another; a rebate given by a carrier. 13 Am J2d Car § 203; the right to do business upon the premises of another, such right normally being granted to one for the sale of candy, drinks, programs, and merchandise at exhibitions and amusement places. Anno: 14 ALR 627. As the word is used in Spanish American grants, it means "whatsoever is granted as favor or reward, as the privileges granted by the prince." De Haro v United States (US) 5 Wall 599, 18 L Ed 681, 688.

See advantage, concession, and discrimination.

concessionarie. A person holding a concession.

concessione. See ex concessione.

Concessio per regem fieri debet de certitudine. A grant from the king ought to be of that which can be ascertained.

Concessio versus concedentem latam interpretationem habere debet. A grant ought to have a broad construction against the grantor.

concessis. See ex concessis.

concessor. A grantor.

conciliation. The adjustment of disputes in a friendly manner, or, if not in a friendly manner, at least without violence. One of the primary examples of conciliation is the adjustment of labor disputes without a strike or an extended strike. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 371.

conciliation board. A body established for the purpose of encouraging amicable adjustment of small claims. 20 Am J2d Courts § 31; an agency for the adjustment of labor disputes. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 371.

See council of conciliation.

conciliation commissioner. An officer of a court of bankruptcy under the now obsolescent § 75 of the Bankruptcy Act on agricultural compositions and extensions, his duties partaking of the nature of those of a referee but confined to proceedings under such section. Federal Land Bank v Castanien (CA6 Ohio) 116 F2d 589.

concilium. A council.

concisely. Comprehensively, but succinctly. Bertolet's Election, 13 Pa C 353, 355.

concise statement of decision. The conclusion without the reasoning. Schmid v Thorsen, 89 Or 575, 175 P 74.

conclude. To form a final judgment after consideration, consultation or advice. Dunbar v Fant, 170 SC 414, 170 SE 460, 90 ALR 1412. To come to an end, whether of a story or an argument.

concluding argument. See closing argument.

conclusion. A deduction; the result of reasoning; the end or last part of a discourse; matter in a declaration or complaint, following the statement of the plaintiff's cause of action; the formal closing of a plea, usually, under modern practice merely a demand for judgment. Pierson v Wallace, 7 Ark 282.

conclusion of fact. A finding of fact; an ultimate fact, Caywood v Farrell, 175 Ill 480, 482; the result of reasoning from the evidentiary facts. Greenberg v Lee, 196 Or 157, 248 P2d 324, 35 ALR2d 567.

See finding of fact.

conclusion of indictment. The concluding words, "against the peace and dignity of the state," or other formula, often one prescribed by constitution or statute. 27 Am J1st Indict § 38.

conclusions of law. The conclusions drawn by the court, in a trial to the court, in the exercise of its legal judgment from the facts found by it, which, in connection with the findings of fact, constitute the basis of the decision in the case. 53 Am J1st Trial § 1132. The court's statement of what the law on a controverted point is, as distinguished from an order or judgment. 4 Am J2d A & E § 76. Statements in a pleading which depart from the objective of pleading the facts. 41 Am J1st Pl § 16.

conclusion to the contrary. The formal closing of a plea, tendering an issue of fact for the jury to decide.

conclusive. Final; decisive or, at least, convincing.

conclusive evidence. Facts in evidence which are, as a matter of law, determinative of the issue; facts in evidence which are so convincing as to support verdict or findings, but are not absolutely beyond contradiction. New York L. Ins. Co. v Kuhlenschmidt, 218 Ind 404, 33 NE2d 340, 135 ALR 397; Hoadley v Hammond, 63 Iowa 599, 602.

conclusiveness. A word of variable meaning, depending to a great extent on the context in which it appears. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 483; sometimes meaning finality, 2 Am J2d Admin L § 483; in other connections, as in its relation to evidence, meaning convincing, but not necessarily beyond contradiction.

See conclusive evidence.

conclusiveness of judgment. Verity, finality, and binding effect. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 311. A judgment or an equivalent order is final and conclusive when it terminates a matter in such a way as to end it and to preclude all further inquiry concerning the truth thereof. Re Enger, 225 Minn 229, 30 NW2d 694, 1 ALR2d 1048. The conclusiveness of a judgment is an effect limited to collateral attack; a judgment does not import absolute verity, and is not regarded as conclusive, where it is being subjected to a direct attack by motion to vacate or an appeal. Capos v Clalsop County, 144 Or 510, 25 P2d 903, 90 ALR 289.

conclusive presumption. A presumption so peremptorily drawn from specific facts in evidence that the law will not permit it to be rebutted, Brandt v Morning Journal Asso. 81 App Div 183, 185, 80 NYS 1002; in effect, a rule of substantive law, to be applied by the court in its evaluation of the issues the same as any other fixed rule of law. Farnsworth v Hazelett, 197 Iowa 1367, 199 NW 410, 38 ALR 814; 29 Am J2d Ev § 164.

concord. A settlement; a compromise; peaceful relations.

[239]

The term "concord" was used to designate the third step in the levying of a fine to convey land. It was the agreement of the parties made with leave of court, consisting usually of an acknowledgment from the deforciant who were keeping the other out of possession that the lands in question were the right of the complainant. See 2 Bl Comm 350.

Concordare leges legibus est optimus interpretandi modus. To reconcile laws with other laws constitutes the best method of interpreting them.

concordat. An agreement; a covenant. In the civil law, a composition deed.

Concordia Discordantium Canonum. The orderly arrangement of the confused canons the title of a compilation made about 1151 by Gratian, an Italian monk, whereby he reduced the Roman ecclesiastical constitutions into three books, after the manner of Justinian's pandects. See 1 Bl Comm 82.

concourse. An open space. The space in an airport or railroad station between waiting room and place for boarding planes or cars. A concert of activity; co-operation.

concourse of actions. The maintenance of a civil action and a criminal prosecution for the same alleged wrong, at the same time.

concrimination. The accusation of two or more persons for the same criminal offense.

concubaria. A cattle-pen.

concubeant. Lying together.

concubina. A concubine.

concubinage. Cohabitation of a man and a concubine; the state of a woman who sustains a relation involving continuous and regular illicit intercourse with a man to whom she is not a wife. Such a relation need not exist for any considerable period of time to constitute concubinage, but the relation which gives rise to the disreputable state of a woman indicated by the term, may like that of marriage, be contracted or assumed in a day as easily as in a year. Henderson v People, 124 Ill 607, 17 NE 68.

See concubine.

concubinatus. A legalized concubinage under the Roman law.

concubine. A woman who habitually assumes and exercises toward a man not her husband the rights and privileges which belong to the matrimonial relation. Anon v Anon, 172 Ind 134.

The concubine must not be confounded with the courtesan, or even with what is ordinarily called a mistress. Concubinage is the act or practice of cohabiting in sexual intercourse without the authority of law or legal marriage. Gauff v Johnson, 161 La 975, 977, 109 So 782.

concubinus. A man living in a state of concubinage.

concubitu prohibere vago. To forbid promiscuous copulation. One of the ends of society and government. See 1 Bl Comm 438.

Conculcavit et consumpsit. He trampled upon and destroyed.

concur. To agree with; to join with other creditors in making claim against the estate of their insolvent debtor; to happen at the same time.

concurrent causes. Two or more causes which run together and act contemporaneously to produce a given result or inflict an injury. Stacy v Williams, 253 Ky 353, 60 SW2d 697; Herr v Lebanon, 149 Pa 222, 24 A 207.

See concurring cause.

concurrent conditions. The conditions in a contract whereof performance by one party of his promises is conditioned upon performance by the other party of his promises; in other words, concurrent conditions are mutual conditions precedent to be performed simultaneously in the sense that when one party is ready to perform and offers to perform, the other party must perform or be in default. 17 Am J2d Contr § 321.

concurrent consideration. An act or a promise which a party to a contract does or makes as a consideration therefor, simultaneously with an act or a promise on the part of the other party which furnishes the consideration running from hire; mutual promises mutually binding. 17 Am J2d Contr § 105.

concurrent covenants. Covenants in a bond, deed, or contract whereof performance by one party of his undertaking is conditioned upon performance by the other party of his undertakings, so that, performance on the two sides shall be simultaneous in the sense that when one party is ready to perform, and offers to perform, the other party must perform or be in default. Snow v Johnson, 1 Minn 48, 52; 20 Am J2d Cov § 8.

concurrent insurance. A term, according to some authority, which does not have a definite, precise, meaning in the law of insurance. Globe & Rutgers Fire Ins. Co. v Alaska-Portland Packers' Asso. (CA9 Or) 205 F 32; obviously, meaning "other insurance" on the same risk, in a "concurrent insurance permitted" clause. L'Engle v Scottish Union & Nat. Ins. Co. 48 Fla 82, 37 So 462.

See coinsurance; other insurance.

concurrent insurance permitted clause. See concurrent insurance.

concurrent jurisdiction. The jurisdiction conferred upon and existing in two, possibly more, courts over the same class of cases or matters. 20 Am J2d Cts § 106. Jurisdiction existing in a court and in an administrative agency over the same matter. 20 Am J2d Cts § 128. That jurisdiction which entitles one government to as much power --legislative, judicial, and executive--as that possessed by another government. Wedding v Meyler, 192 US 573, 48 L Ed 570, 24 S Ct 322. That authority commonly exercised concurrently upon water divided by the boundary line between two countries. It relates to matters at least in some way connected with the use of water for navigable purposes, to things afloat, or in some legitimate sense on the water--things difficult to deal with if it were necessary to determine in each instance of the exercise of jurisdiction the precise location of the particular act involved as regards the boundary line. 30 Am J Rev ed Internet L § 28.

concurrent lease. A second lease made by the owner of the reversion to a person other than the tenant under the first lease, covering all or part of the same premises as the first lease, the terms of the two leases including at least some time in common. 32 Am J1st L & T § 93.

[240]

concurrent liens. Liens which arise simultaneously, in consequence of their creation at the same time or by the same instrument and which are therefore of equal dignity and are entitled to equal rank in priority. 33 Am J1st Liens § 33.

concurrent negligence. The contributory negligence of the plaintiff in an action for negligence, it and the negligence of the defendant both contributing to produce the injury for which damages are claimed. Dyerson v Union Pacific Railroad Co. 74 Kan 528, 87 P 680. The negligence of a third person concurring with that of the defendant in an action for negligence. Alabama Power Co. v Bass, 218 Ala 586, 119 So 625, 63 ALR 1.

See concurrent causes.

concurrent powers. A term familiar in constitutional law, having reference to the class of powers, under a classification of the United States Supreme Court, which may be exercised concurrently and independently by both federal and state governments. 16 Am J2d Const L § 198.

concurrent promises. Mutual promises by the parties to a contract to be performed simultaneously in the sense that when one party is ready to perform, and offers to perform, his promises, the other party must perform his promises or be in default. Dermott v Jones, (US) 23 How 220, 16 L Ed 442, 447; 17 Am J2d Contr § 321.

concurrent remedies. Two or more actions or proceedings available to a person in obtaining redress for a wrong inflicted upon him, although not necessarily co-extensive in respect of the relief obtainable. Sinnott v Feiock, 165 NY 444, 59 NE 265.

concurrent resolution. See joint resolution.

concurrent sentences. Sentences of imprisonment for crime in which the time of each is to run concurrently with the others, and not seriatim.

concurrent stipulations. See concurrent conditions; concurrent covenants, concurrent promises.

concurrent writs. Writs issued for the same purpose to be used or served in different places or in respect to different persons.

concurring cause. A cause which operates contemporaneously with the primary cause to produce the injury, so that the injury would not have happened in the absence of either. The phrase is contrasted with an intervening cause, a cause which succeeds or follows the primary cause. Horne v Southern R. Co. 186 SC 525, 197 SE 31, 116 ALR 745.

See concurrent cause.

concurso. A remedy provided by the laws of Louisiana, to enable creditors to enforce their claims against a debtor. Schroeder's Syndics v Nicholson, 2 La 350, 355.

concursum. A special remedy under Louisiana statute afforded a certain class of creditors for the concurrent enforcement of their claims and to regulate their rights as between themselves and against a contractor doing public work, and the surety on his bond. Seal v Gano, 160 La. 636, 107 So 473.

concuss. To use threats; to exercise duress.

concussio. Concussion; extortion.

concussion. A Civil Law term: - extortion; compulsion by threats and without force, as by threatening to expose a person to disgrace.

condemn. To declare a building unfit for use and order its destruction as a peril to health and public safety; to order the slaughter of diseased animals. 4 Am J2d Am § 35. To adjudge guilty; to pass sentence upon a person convicted of crime. To appropriate property for public use. Wulzen v Board of Supervisors, 101 Cal 15. 35 P 353; Wescott v State Highway Com. 262 NC 522, 138 SE2d 133.

condemnation. The taking of private property for public use through the exercise of the power of eminent domain. Venable v Wabash Western Railroad Co. 112 Mo 103, 20 SW 493. A forfeiture of goods, as for the nonpayment of customs duties. The passing of sentence upon a person convicted of crime; an order made by competent authority adjudging a building or a ship unfit for use; an order for the slaughter of diseased animals. 4 Am J2d Am § 35.

See inspected and condemned.

condemnation of felony. Conviction of felony. Davis v Davis, 102 Ky 440, 43 SW 168.

condemnation suit. A judicial proceeding for the purpose of having property taken by eminent domain for public use upon the payment of just compensation for such taking. 27 Am J2d Em D § 375.

condemnator. See decree condemnator.

condemned. See condemn; condemnation.

condere. To make; to establish; to found.

condescendence. A plaintiff's written statement of his cause of action.

condictio. An action; a summons.

conditio. A condition.

Conditio beneficialis, quae statum construit, benigne, secundum verborum intentionem est interpretanda; odiosa autem, quae statum destruit, stricte, secundum verborum proprietatem, accipienda. A beneficial condition which creates an estate, ought to be interpreted favorably, according to the intent of the language; but an odious condition which destroys an estate, should be construed strictly according to the letter.

Conditio dicitur, cum quid in casum incertum qui potest tendere ad esse aut non esse, confertur. It is called a condition when something is given on an uncertain event which may or may not happen.

Conditio illicita habetur pro non adjicta. An unlawful condition is held not to be binding.

condition. Verb: To put in shape, as a horse for a race, a pugilist for a match. Noun: A provision in a contract creating no right or duty of and in itself but merely limiting or modifying rights and duties under the contract. 17 Am J2d Contr § 320; a clause in a contract or agreement which has for its object the suspension, rescission or modification of the principal obligation, or, in case of a will, to suspend, revoke or modify the devise or bequest. Pedro v Poffer, 197 Cal 751, 759, 212 P 926, 42 ALR 1165, 1169. A qualification or restriction an-nexed to a conveyance of lands, whereby it is provided that in case a particular event does or does not happen, or in case the grantor or grantees do or omit to do a particular act, an estate shall commence, be enlarged, or be defeated. Pedro v Potter, 197 Cal 751, 759, 242 P 926, 42 ALR 1165, 1169; a provision in a grant or devise, under which an estate is made to vest, to be enlarged, or to be defeated, upon the happening or not happening of some event described therein. Raley v County of Umatilla, 15 Or 172, 13 P 890. The distinction between a condition and a covenant lies in the effect of a breach. Upon a breach of the condition upon which an estate is granted, the estate is forthwith forfeited, whereas a breach of covenant gives rise to an action at law to recover damages or a suit in equity for equitable relief. In the construction of deeds, courts will always incline to interpret the language as a covenant rather than a condition. See note to Woodruff v Woodruff, 1 LRA 381.

[241]

The expression "on condition" has frequently been used in written instruments so as to give to the word "condition" a looser and broader meaning than the law attaches to it. And it is often manifest from a perusal of the whole instrument that that which is called a condition is really but a covenant or agreement to be performed independently of the counter obligation with which it is associated, and in such case, the courts will give it that construction. Green County v Quinlan, 211 US 582, 594, 52 L Ed 335, 341, 29 S Ct 162.

The state of one's health, of his physical or mental being; the physical state of an animal.

See concurrent conditions; condition precedent; condition subsequent; estate on condition; express condition; implied condition; negative condition; on condition.

conditional. Subject to condition; contingent; not absolute. Loventhal v Home Ins. Co. 112 Ala 108, 20 So 419.

conditional acceptance. An acceptance of a bill of exchange containing some qualification, limitation, or condition, different from what is expressed on the face of the bill, or from what the law implies, upon a general acceptance. Todd v Bank of Kentucky, 66 Ky (3 Bush) 626, 628. It would appear, however, that a bill of exchange is dishonored by a conditional acceptance, since an acceptance is the drawee's engagement to honor the bill of exchange as presented to him. 11 Am J2d B & N § 500.

conditional acknowledgment. An acknowledgment by one alleged to be indebted to another which signifies his willingness to admit liability if the creditor will comply with conditions imposed upon him in the acknowledgment by the debtor, or if a certain condition which does not then exist thereafter comes into existence. Stone v Smoot, 191 Okla 512, 131 P2d 85, 143 ALR 1426.

conditional affirmance. An affirmance of the judgment rendered by the lower court, subject to remittitur or additur, depending upon whether the damages are found excessive or inadequate. 5 Am J2d A & E § 933.

conditional bequest. See conditional legacy or devise.

conditional binding receipt. A term familiar in the law of life insurance, which means temporary coverage upon condition of the ultimate approval of the application. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins §§ 208, 209.

conditional contract. Not just a contract with conditions, but a contract, the very existence of which depends upon the fulfillment or occurrence of a condition or contingency. Nashville & Northwestern Railroad Co. v Jones & Baker, 42 Tenn (2 Coldw) 574, 584.

conditional conveyance. A deed with a provision for a reconveyance or a defeasance of the estate on the performance of certain conditions; a mortgage. 36 Am J1st Mtg § 164.

conditional dedication. A dedication of land to the public whereunder the dedicator imposes reasonable terms and conditions which are not inconsistent with the terms of the grant or against public policy. 23 Am J2d Ded § 37.

conditional delivery. The delivery of an instrument for the payment of money, such as a promissory note, on a condition, such condition being binding as between the immediate parties and as regards a remote party other than a holder in due course, even though the condition is an oral one, if it is a condition precedent. 11 Am J2d B & N § 279; the delivery of a deed on a condition of effectiveness, such as one that the instrument is not effective until it has been signed by all grantors. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 84; the delivery of an insurance policy to the insured upon some condition affecting the commencement of the risk, such as the condition that the policy shall not take effect until the insurer has approved and accepted the risk. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 217.

conditional devise. See conditional legacy or devise.

conditional discharge. A probationary discharge of a person confined in a state hospital or asylum for the insane. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins Per § 50.

conditional dismissal. A dismissal on condition, for example, the dismissal of a suit for foreclosure of a mortgage on condition of payment of the amount of a tender which induced the dismissal. Thompson v Crams, 294 Ill 270, 128 NE 508, 12 ALR 931.

conditional dividend. A dividend declared by an insurance company but made conditional upon some such event as the payment of the next annual premium so as to continue the policy in force after its first anniversary. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 649.

conditional endorsement. See conditional endorsement.

conditional estate. See conditional fee; conditional limitation; estate on condition.

conditional fee. A common-law estate in land, otherwise known as a fee conditional or fee simple conditional, distinctive by reason of the limitation to particular heirs, exclusive of others, as a grant to a named person and "the heirs of his body," or, in the case of a special conditional fee, to a named person and "the male heirs of his body." 28 Am J2d Est § 38.

If the donee had no heirs of his body, or no male heirs of the body, as the case might be, the estate reverted to the donor; but if the condition as to heirs was fulfilled by birth of issue, this was such performance as rendered the estate of the donee absolute; at least he could alien, he might forfeit, he might charge the land with rents or other encumbrances which would bind the issue. To prevent a reversion to the donor it was usual for such tenants, as soon as they had performed the condition by having heirs, to alien the land and then repurchase, taking an absolute estate which would descend to their heirs general. It was to defeat this practice that the Statute de Donis Conditionalibus was passed. 28 Am J2d Est § 38.

[242]

See de donis.

conditional gift. A gift accompanied by a condition or qualification not inconsistent with the vesting of title in the donee. 24 Am J1st Gifts § 44.

conditional guaranty. A guaranty which imposes as a condition of the guarantor's liability, the happening of some contingent event other than the default of the principal debtor or the performance of some act on the part of the obligee. 24 Am J1st Guar § 16.

conditional indorsement. An indorsement of a negotiable instrument to which there is added to the signature of the indorser the words "without recourse," or words of similar import. Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law § 38; Anno: 91 ALR 399; 11 Am J2d B & N § 363.

conditional instruction. An erroneous form of instruction to a jury by which the court directly or in effect instructs the jury that a charge is to be considered by them if evidence has been given to sustain it, and otherwise to disregard it. 53 Am J1st Trial § 553.

conditional judgment. A judgment to which a condition upon which it is rendered is annexed. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 120.

conditional legacy or devise. A legacy or devise, the operative effect of which, by the terms of the will, is made dependent or contingent upon the occurrence of some uncertain event. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1503.

See conditional limitation; conditional will; estate on condition; contingent bequest.

conditional limitation. An executory interest in real estate, created by conveyance, which divests and succeeds a preceding interest upon the happening of a particular contingency or stated event; an executory interest in real estate characterized by a condition and a limitation over, the former stating the effect of a breach in terminating an estate and the latter providing a succeeding estate in the holder of the text expectant interest, without any act on his part. 28 Am J2d Est § 335; a provision in a lease by virtue of which the lease terminates ipso facto upon a certain event happening or not happening or the performance or nonperformance of an act, irrespective of re-entry by the landlord or other act. 32 Am J1st L & T § 825.

conditionally necessary party. A person who should be a party to an action, so that complete relief may be obtained, but who is not an indispensable party. Anno: 28 ALR2d 417.

conditionally privileged communication. A communication made in good faith on a subject in which the person communicating has an interest, or in reference to which he has a duty, to a person having a corresponding interest or duty, even though it contains matter which, without privilege, would be actionable as defamatory, and even though the duty is not a legal one, but only a moral or social duty. Richardson v Gunby, 88 Kan 520, 127 P 533, quoting Townshend, Slander & Libel § 209; Mullens v Davidson, 133 W Va 557, 57 SE2d 1, 13 ALR2d 887.

A publication is conditionally or qualifiedly privileged where circumstances exist, or are reasonably believed by the defendant to exist, which cast on him the duty of making communications with certain other person to whom he makes such Communication in the performance of such duty, or where the person is so situated that it becomes right in the interest of society that he should tell third persons certain facts, which he in good faith proceeds to do. Faber v Byrle, 171 Kan 38, 229 P2d 718, 25 ALR2d 1379.

This type of a communication is a defamatory communication made on what is called an occasion of privilege without actual malice and as to such Communications there is no civil liability. Mullens v Davidson, 133 W Va 557, 57 SE2d 1, 13 ALR2d 887.

conditional obligation. An obligation which becomes binding only upon the fulfilment of a condition.

See conditional contract.

conditional pardon. A pardon granted either on a condition precedent, becoming operative when, and not until, the grantee has performed the designated act, or on a condition subsequent, in such case the pardon will take effect when it is delivered and accepted, but will become null and void upon the violation by the grantee of any of the specified terms or conditions. Anno: 60 ALR 1410.

conditional receipt. See conditional binding receipt.

conditional reversal. A reversal with conditions imposed upon the successful appellant, as where he is required to enter his assent that the original judgment shall stand as security for whatever damages may be found against him upon a second trial. 5 Am J2d A & E § 954.

conditional revocation. See dependent relative revocation.

conditional sale. A sale in which the vendee receives the possession and right of use of the goods or articles sold, but transfer of complete title to the vendee is made dependent upon the performance of some condition or the happening of some contingency, usually the full payment of the purchase price. 47 Am J1st Sales § 828.

A chattel mortgage is, in effect, a conditional style of the mortgaged property. State Ins. Co. v Schreck, 27 Neb 527, 43 NW 340; Reinstein v Roberts, 34 Or 87, 55 P 90.

conditional sale contract. A contract for the sale of goods by the terms of which the goods are to be delivered to the buyer, but the seller is to retain or reserve the right of possession or property in the goods until certain conditions specified in the contract have been fulfilled. John Deere Plow Co. v Hamilton (CA7 Ill) 19 F2d 965.

See conditional sale.

Conditional Sales Act. A uniform act specifically repealed by the Uniform Commercial Code. 15 Am J2d Com C § 6.

conditional stipulation. A stipulation which is dependent upon a condition.

conditional subscription. A subscription in which the liability of the subscriber is dependent upon the performance of some act by the beneficiary or other person. 50 Am J1st Subscr § 19.

conditional will. A will which is dependent for its operation upon the happening of a specified condition or contingency. If the condition fails, the will is inoperative and void thereafter, unless it is republished. Kimmels Estate, 278 Pa 435, 123 A 405, 31 ALR 678.

conditioned. Subject to one or more conditions; made dependent on one or more conditions; good physical condition; ready for exertion; inured to the climate and one's surroundings.

Conditionem testium tunc inspicere debemus cum signarent, non mortis tempore. We ought to consider the condition of witnesses as of the time when they signed, not at the time of the testator's death.

Conditiones quaelibet odiosae; maxime autem contra matrimonium et commercium. Any conditions are odious, especially those in restraint of marriage and trade.

condition implied in law. See implied condition.

condition in law. See implied condition.

condition in restraint of marriage. See in terrorem; restraint of marriage.

condition meritorious. A condition which exists where the event upon which an obligation becomes payable is in the power of the obligee, and is to be brought about by his doing or not doing a certain thing. Sterling v Sinnickson, 5 NJL 885, 892.

condition precedent. A condition which is precedent either to the existence of a contract (17 Am J2d Contr § 24) or to the inception of an obligation immediately to perform a contract previously made. 17 Am J2d Contr § 321; in the law of estates, a condition which must take place before an estate can vest or be enlarged. 28 Am J2d Est § 132. In the law of insurance, a condition without the performance of which a contract of insurance, although in form executed by the parties and delivered, does not spring into life. Chambers v Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. 64 Minn 495, 67 NW 367; in a lease, a condition that must occur or be performed before the lease becomes binding and the tenancy comes into existence. 32 Am J1st L & T § 825.

condition resolatory. Same as condition subsequent.

conditions in terrorem. See in terrorem.

condition subsequent. A condition in a contract which follows liability upon the contract and operates to defeat or annul such liability upon the subsequent failure of the other party to comply with its terms. 17 Am J2d Contr § 323; in the law of estates, a condition which operates on an estate conveyed or devised so as to render it liable to be defeated for breach of the condition; the title passes to the grantee or devisee, subject to divestiture on failure of performance of the condition. 28 Am J2d Est § 132; in the law of insurance, a condition which presupposes an absolute obligation under the policy, and provides that the policy shall become void, or its operation be defeated or suspended, upon the happening of some event or the doing or omission of some act. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 718. In a lease, a condition which has no relation to the inception of the lease and the commencement of the tenancy, but, instead, gives the landlord, on its happening or not happening or its performance or nonperformance, a right to re-enter and terminate the lease. 32 Am J1st L & T § 825.

See interest upon condition subsequent.

condition suspensive. Same as condition precedent.

Conditio praecedens adimpleri debet priusquam, sequatur effectus. A condition precedent is to be fulfilled before the effect can follow.

conditio sine qua non. A condition without which not, -an indispensable condition.

condom. A contraceptive and a prophylactic. State v Tracy, 29 NJ Super 145, 102 A2d 52.

condominium. Joint ownership; a multiunit dwelling, each of whose residents, known as unit owners, enjoys exclusive ownership of his individual apartment or unit, holding a fee simple title thereto, while retaining an undivided interest, as a tenant in common, in the common facilities and areas of the building and grounds which are used by all the residents. 15 Am J2d Cond Apt § 1.

condonable offense. A single act or series of acts of misconduct constituting a ground for divorce which in theory may be forgotten or forgiven, or a species of misconduct which considerate and affectionate treatment might serve to obliterate. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 204.

condonacion. The forgiveness or discharge of a debt.

condonation. The forgiveness, either express or implied, by a husband of his wife, or by a wife of her husband, of a breach of marital duty, with an implied condition that the offense shall not be repeated. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 204.

See condonable offense.

conduct. Noun: Behavior, as portrayed by that which one does or omits to do. Church of Christ v McDonald, 180 Tenn 86, 171 SW2d 817, 146 ALR 1173. Verb: To carry on, to manage; to regulate, to guide, as to conduct a group on tour. Harvey v Vandegrift, 89 Pa 346, 352.

conductio. A hiring.

conduction. A transmitting or conveying; the flow of electricity through the medium of the earth, from one wire to another without actual contact. Phillippy v Pacific Power & Light Co. 120 Wash 581, 207 P 957, 211 P 872, 23 ALR 1251.

conduct-money. Money paid to a witness to reimburse him for expenses.

conductor. A railroad employee in charge of a train or, at least, such part of the operations as are not within the province of the engineer.

conduit. A channel or structure by which flowing water can be conducted from one point to another. Sefton v Prentice, 103 Cal 670, 37 P 641. A tube or trough in which telegraph, telephone, or electric wires may be strung.

See underground conduit.

cone and key. Accounts and keys, a symbol of the fitness of a woman to assume the care of a house.

confarreatio. An ancient Roman marriage ceremony.

confectio. A Civil Law term for the execution of a written instrument.

confectionary. Candy, and other sweets; a place where sweets are sold.

confederacy. A union of people, groups of people, even nations, for a common purpose; a union of people for an unlawful purpose, a conspiracy. State v Crowley, 41 Wis 271, 284.

[244]

Confederacy. See Confederate States of America.

Confederate States. The eleven southern states which seceded from the Union in 1860 and 1861 and formed the Confederate States of America.

Confederate States of America. The confederacy formed by the eleven seceding southern states in 1861, which waged a war for four years against the United States, but never acquired the status of a government de jure or de facto as those terms are known and used in the law of nations. Thorington v Smith (US) 8 Wall 1, 19 L Ed 361.

confederating clause. A clause, also known as the common conspiracy clause, of a bill in equity under the old chancery practice, consisting of all allegation to the effect that the grievance complained of by the plaintiff was brought about by a conspiracy among the several defendants and others not made parties to the bill, and that they had all conspired to injure the plaintiff and co-operated in the perpetration of the wrong. 19 Am J2d Eq § 222.

confederation. An agreement or compact between two or more governments.

See Articles of Confederation; Confederate States of America.

conference. See Judicial Conference.

Confessio facta in judicio omni probatione major est. A confession made in court is more important than all proof.

confession. A voluntary admission, declaration or acknowledgment by one who has committed a felony or a misdemeanor that he committed the crime or offense or participated in its commission; a voluntary admission or declaration of one's agency or participation in a crime. 29 Am J2d Ev § 523.

A confession is voluntary when made of the free will and accord of the accused, without fear or threat of harm and without hope or promise of benefit, reward, or immunity. 29 Am J2d Ev § 529.

See judicial confession; plea in confession and avoidance; third degree.

confession and avoidance. See plea in confession and avoidance.

confession in open court. A plea of guilty in a criminal prosecution. State v Willis, 71 Conn 293, 308, 41 A 820.

confession of error. A party's admission, express or implied, made on appeal, that the court below committed an error in his favor, or prejudicial to the rights of all adverse party. Burgen v State, 32 Ariz 111 256 P 111; Halpin v Scotti, 415 Ill 104, 112 NE2d 91.

confession of judgment. The entry of a judgment upon the admission or confession of the debtor, without the formality, time, or extent involved in all ordinary action or proceeding. Cuikendall v Doe, 129 Iowa 453, 105 NW 698.

See cognovit actionem; cognovit note; confession relicta verificatione.

confession relicta verificatione. Confession of judgment after pleading and before trial, the defendant confessing the plaintiff's cause of action and withdrawing or abandoning his defense or other procedures taken by him. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 156.

confessor. A priest who hears confessions; one who confesses.

Confessus in judicio pro judicato habetur et quodammodo sua sententia damnatur. One who confesses in court is held to have been adjudged and in a manner is condemned by his own sentence.

confidence. Assurance; trust in one's own abilities; assurance of secrecy; reliance upon another. An obsolete technical term for all interest by way of trust or use. Jones v Jones, 223 Mo 424, 123 SW 29.

See faith.

confidence game. Essentially, a swindling operation in which advantage is taken of the confidence reposed by the victim in the swindler. State v Theriot, 139 La 741, 72 So 191.

confidence man. A swindler; a trickster.

See confidence game.

confidential communications. Communications made in confidence; communication made to such persons that the law regards them as privileged beyond forcing a disclosure thereof.

See privileged communications.

confidential position. A position in civil service involving secrecy, integrity, trust, confidence, skill, and competence. Klan v Akers, 232 Iowa 1312, 5 NW2d 605, 146 ALR 808.

confidential relation. A technical fiduciary relation, such as trustee and beneficiary, and any informal relation between parties wherein one of them is in duty bound to act with the utmost good faith for the benefit of the other party, 57 Am J1st Wills 390; a relation between two persons as a result of which there is confidence reposed on one side and a resulting superiority in position and influence on the other, 37 Am J2d Fraud §§ 15, 16; a relation in which confidence is reposed, and in which dominion and influence resulting from such confidence may be exercised by one person over another, Burgdorfer v Thielemann, 153 Or 354, 55 P2d 1122, 104 ALR 1407; State v Russell (Mo) 265 SW2d 379, 45 ALR2d 617; a peculiar relation which exists between attorney and client, principal and agent, principal and surety, landlord and tenant, parent and child, guardian and ward, ancestor and heir, husband and wife, trustee and cestui que trust, executor or administrator and creditors and in many other cases. Robins v Hope, 57 Cal 493.

Some courts, in dealing with the question of fraud, indiscriminately use the terms "fiducial relation" and "confidential relation." as being synonymous insofar as they affect the good-faith dealings between the parties to the relation. There is, however, a technical distinction between the two terms, the former being more correctly applicable to legal relationships between the parties, such as guardian and ward etc., while the latter includes them and also every other relationship wherein confidence is rightfully reposed and is exercised, among which is a situation involving superiority of knowledge on the part of the one seeking to uphold the contract and confidence reposed in him by the other. Rohcrts v Parsons. 195 Ky 274, 242 SW 594.

confine. Verb: To deprive one of his liberty; to place in prison or jail; to keep a person in bed; to require a person to remain at home; to keep animals within an enclosure. Walker v McAfee. 82 Kan 1212, 107 P 637. Noun: A limit, end, or boundary.

[245]

confined. Imprisoned; required to remain in one place. As the word is used in a sick benefit insurance policy, a person is "confined," when his illness keeps him at home and totally disables him from following his vocation. The word does not import that he shall be confined to his bed. Home Protective Assn. v Williams, 150 Ky 134, 136, 150 SW 11.

See close confinement; solitary confinement.

confined to bed. A familiar term in the law of health and accident insurance, as to which there is divergence of opinion in interpretation, some cases holding that the term is satisfied only by an actual confinement to bed, while other cases hold that the term is intended to express a required degree of disability, not necessarily an actual confinement to bed. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1531.

confined to house. See house confinement clause.

confined to institution. A term appearing in some statutes which prescribe grounds for divorce based on insanity of the defendant requiring his confinement for a specified continuous period. Under statutory provisions requiring that the insane spouse shall have been confined within an institution for a specified continuous period as a necessary condition to the granting of a divorce on the ground of insanity, there are conflicting decisions as to whether "confined" is to be taken in its literal sense, or merely in the sense of supervision by the authorities, so its to permit periods of absence, not amounting to discharges from the institution, to be considered as a part of a period of continuous confinement, rather than interruptions thereof. Anno: 24 ALR2d 878.

confinement. State of being confined; lying in for childbirth.

See confined; confined to bed; confined to institution; house confinement clause.

confinio comitatus. See in confinio comitatus. confirm. To strengthen; to approve; to make certain, as to "confirm" a hotel reservation.

Confirmare est id quod prius infirmum fuit simul firmare. To confirm is to make firm that which was previously infirm.

Confirmare nemo potest priusquam jus ei acciderit. No one can confirm a right before it has fallen to him.

confirmatio. A confirmation.

Confirmatio Cartarum. A famous statute enacted in the twentyfifth year of the reign of Edward I, providing that Magna Charts should thereafter be taken as common law, that all judgments contrary to Magna Charts should be void, that copies should be sent to all cathedral churches and read to the people twice each year, and that any person who should offend against it should be excommunicated. 1 Bl Comm 128.

Confirmatio Chartarum. Same as Confirmatio Cartarum, confirmatio crescens. A confirmation increasing a rightful estate.

confirmatio diminuens. A confirmation the effect of which was to release a part of the services supporting a tenure.

Confirmatio est nulla, ubi donum praecedens est invalidum. A confirmation is a nullity, where the preceding gift is invalid.

confirmation. The affirmance or making certain of that which before was not certain; the removal of a doubt, Riddle Boggs v Merced Mining Co. 14 Cal 279, 306; an approval which gives purpose, effect, and finality, for example, the confirmation of an award by arbitrators. 5 Am J2d Arb & A § 152. A religious service in which boys and girls, having reached a certain age and having attained a desired proficiency in the catechism or other statement of principles of the church, are formally received into full membership.

Confirmation of Charter. See Confirmatio Chartarum.

confirmation of estate. The conveyance of an estate, or right, that one has in land, to another who has possession of it, or some estate in it, making valid a voidable estate, or increasing and enlarging a particular estate. Langdeau v Hanes, 21 Wall 521, 22 L Ed 606. Confirmation may make good a voidable or defensible estate, but it cannot operate upon or aid an estate which is void in law. As to such an estate, a confirmation only confirms its infirmity. Branham v Mayor & Common Council of San Jose, 24 Cal 585, 605.

confirmation of executor. The formal clothing of the executor with title.

confirmation of sale. The formal approval of our executor's or administrator's sale of property of the estate of his decedent by the probate court, which, in some jurisdictions is made a condition precedent to the passing of a valid title to the property. Norton v Jack, 115 Cal 29, 46 P 920. The approval by the court of a judicial sale upon report thereof made by the officer conducting the sale. 30A Am J Rev ed Jud S § 114. A court's approval of the report made by an officer, usually a commissioner, of his sale on foreclosure. See 37 Am J1st Mtg § 637.

See decree of confirmation.

Confirmatio omnes supplet defectus, licet id quod actum est ab initio non valuit. Confirmation supplies all defects, though what has been done was not valid at the beginning.

confirmatio perficiens. A confirmation which makes valid a defensible title.

Confirmat usum qui tollit abusum. He confirms a use who removes an abuse.

confirmavi. I have confirmed or ratified.

confirmee. A person to whom a right is confirmed.

confirmor. A person who makes a confirmation.

confiscare. To confiscate.

confiscata. See bona confiscata.

confiscate. To take property from a private person for the state; to appropriate property for the state as forfeited. Ware v Hylton (US) 3 Dall 199, 234, 1 L Ed 568, 583; to take property belonging to the enemy in time of war. 56 Am J1st War § 154.

[246]

confiscation. See confiscate; incaucion.

Confiscation Acts. The acts of Congress of August 6, 1861, and July 17, 1862, providing for the seizure and sale of property used to abet the Confederate cause. 56 Am J1st War § 78.

Confiscation Cases. Cases arising under the act of Congress of August 6, 1861, authorizing the confiscation of property used in aiding, abetting or promoting insurrection against the government of the United States. Confiscation Cases (US) 7 Wall 454, 19 L Ed 196; United States v Clarke (US) 20 Wall 92, 22 L Ed 320.

confiscation loss. A loss, deductible in an income tax return, resulting from the confiscation or nationalization of the taxpayer's property. Elek v Commissioner, 30 T CT 731(A).

confiscatory order or regulation. A rate order or regulation fixing the rate or rates of a common carrier or public utility so low that the carrier or utility is deprived of a fair return on its investment, or providing rates so low that they tend toward depriving the carrier or utility of a fair return. Pennsylvania Railroad Co. v Philadelphia County. 220 Pa 100, 68 A 676; Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railroad Co. v Railroad Com. of Wisconsin, 136 Wis 146, 116 NW 905.

confisk. To confiscate.

confitens reus. A person who confesses after being charged with the commission of a crime.

conflicting evidence. Evidence from different sources which cannot be reconciled; evidence for the plaintiff and evidence for the defendant, considered together and presenting at least a fair and reasonable ground for difference of view as to which should prevail. Lefrooth v Prentice, 202 Cal 215, 259 P 947.

conflicting grants. Deeds by the same grantor covering the same premises but running to different grantees.

conflicting interest. A term, the legal significance of which is confined to representation of the interest, as where a real estate broker is representing both buyer and seller, and an attorney at law attempts to act both for his client and for one whose interest is adverse to or conflicting with that of his client in the same general matter. 7 Am J2d Attys § 154.

conflicting presumptions. Presumptions arising from the same facts which are so opposed in the fact presumed that one of them must give way, to the other and stronger of the two, for example, the presumption of identity of person from identity of name gives way to the presumption of regularity of official acts and proceedings. 29 Am J2d Ev § 167.

conflict of laws. A subject otherwise known as private international law, which is that part of the law of each state or nation which determines whether, in dealing with a legal situation, the law of some other state or nation will be recognized, be given effect, or be applied. 16 Am J2d Confl L § 1.

conflicts in administration. Conflicts between administrative agencies. 2 Am J2d Admin L §§ 209 et seq.

conformably to the laws. In accordance with a recognized long established system of laws existing in states adopting constitutions, as well as in the prior political organizations from which the states were formed. McCoy v Kenosha County, 195 Wis 273, 218 NW 348, 57 ALR 412.

conformity. Correspondence in form and manner, resemblance, agreement, harmony. Westlake Mercantile Finance Corp. v Merrill (Cal App) 262 P 815, 817. (Ecclesiastical.) Adherence to the Church of England.

Conformity Act. The act of Congress of June 1, 1872, providing that the practice, pleadings, and forms and modes of proceeding in civil causes, other than equity and admiralty causes, in the Federal circuit and district courts, shall conform, as near as may be to the practice, pleadings, and forms and mode of proceeding existing at the time in like causes in courts of record of the state within which such circuit or district courts are held, any rule of court to the contrary notwithstanding.

conform to proofs. See amendment to conform to proofs.

confrairie. A brotherhood.

confront. To come face to face with a person.

confrontation of witness. A constitutional right of an accused to face a witness in court so that the accused may make any objection he has to the witness, be present when the witness is examined, and have opportunity for cross-examination. Garcia v State, 151 Tex Crim 593, 210 SW2d 574. The act of placing an accused in such proximity to the witness that he may see him and hear his testimony. People v Elliott, 172 NY 146, 64 NE 837.

confrontment. A confrontation. See confrontation of witness.

confusio. Same as confusion.

confusion of debts. Same as confusion of rights and obligations.

confusion of goods. An intermingling or intermixture of goods owned by different persons to such extent that the property of each person can no longer be distinguished. 1 Am J2d Access § 1. A confusion may be the result of a wilful and fraudulent intermixture, but may arise also from a mixture made by the consent of the owners, or by mistake, inevitable accident, or vis major. 1 Am J2d Access § 1.

The doctrine of confusion is that where an owner of goods wilfully and tortiously mixes and confuses his goods with the goods of another so that they are indistinguishable and not susceptible of division according to the rights of each owner, the one who mixed the goods must bear the whole loss, and the innocent party will take the whole property. 1 Am J2d Access § 15.

confusion of rights and obligations. A merger of the obligor and the obligee in one person; the concurrence of two adverse rights to the same thing in one and the same person; the concurrence of the character of the sole debtor and the sole creditor in the same person, thereby extinguishing the debt. Woods v Ridley, 30 Tenn (11 Humph) 195, 198.

congé. Leave or permission.

congeable. Lawful.

congé d'accorder. The licentia concordandi, or leave to agree the suit. This was the second step in the levying of a fine to convey land. As soon as the action was brought, the defendant, knowing himself to be in the wrong, was supposed to make overtures of peace to the plaintiff. The plaintiff then applied to the court for leave to accord or agree, lest he might lose the pledges he had given to prosecute the action. 2 Bl Comm 350.

[247]

congé d'appel. (Civil law.) Leave to appeal.

congé de default. The dismissal of an action by reason of the default of the plaintiff.

congé d'emparer. The licentia loquendi, or leave to imparl, which was the leave of court which a defendant might demand before putting in his plea, for time in which to talk with the plaintiff for the purpose of ascertaining whether the action might be settled amicably. 3 Bl Comm 299.

congé d'eslire. Leave to elect or choose. The term was applied to the king's leave or license to a dean and chapter to proceed to elect a bishop. If the king refused such leave, the electors could proceed without it. 1 Bl Comm 379.

congested district. A district in which there is very heavy traffic upon the streets and highways. Craft v Stone, 74 Ind App 71, 124 NE 473.

congius. An old Roman liquid measure equal approximately to the modern gallon.

congregation. A collective word signifying the electors of a religious corporation and embracing the stated hearers or attendants on divine worship who are competent to vote for trustees. Robertson v Bullions (NY) 9 Barb 64, 93; an assemblage or union of persons in society for some religious purpose, to unite in the public worship of their God, in such manner as they deem most acceptable to Him. Runkel v Winemiller (Md) 4 Harr & McH 429, 452; the body of worshipers in attendance at a religious service.

congress. A formal gathering of delegates or representatives.

Congress. The national legislature of the United States, consisting of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

congressional authentication. A method of authentication of a public act, proceeding, or record for use as evidence in another state, provided by Act of Congress, the effect of which is to create a uniform method of authentication which all the courts in the United States are bound to respect. 30 Am J2d Ev § 989.

Congressional Cemetery. A burial ground or premises of Christ Church in Washington, D. C., established by the Vestry in the early days of the country, frequently used for some years as a place for the burial of Senators, Representatives, and Executive Officers who died in the city and whose homes were at a distance, and recognized as having a semi-official status by an appropriation made by Congress in 1816 in order to make certain the reservation of part of the ground for the burial of officials of the government.

congressional court. Any federal court established by act of Congress under Section 1 of Article III of the Constitution of the United States.

congressional districts. The divisions of a state for representation in the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, each district being separately represented by a member of the House. 54 Am J1st US § 21.

congressional grant. A grant of public land of the United States made by an act of Congress. Such an act is both a law and a grant, and the intent of Congress when ascertained is to control in the interpretation of the law. 42 Am J1st Pub L § 32.

congressional investigations. Investigations conducted by Congress though through committees into matters of concern to Congress in the exercise of its function of legislation. 54 Am J1st US § 32.

Congressional Library. See Library of Congress.

Congressional Record. The printed record of the proceedings of the Congress of the United States.

Congressional Survey. The method of survey first established by Congress for the lands in the Northwest Territory, since extended to public lands in the western and many other states of the Union, whereby the lands are surveyed and platted into square or rectangular tracts, known as townships, sections, and fractional parts of sections. 42 Am J1st Pub L § 40.

congressional township. An area six miles square under the survey of public lands made by the government. 52 Am J1st Towns § 2.

See Congressional Survey.

Congressman. Literally, a member of Congress, whether of the House of Representatives or the Senate, but usually confined to members of the House.

Congress of Industrial Organizations. An affiliation of labor unions established in 1938, since combined with the American Federation of Labor under the abbreviated heading CIO-AF of L.

congruere. (Civil law.) To agree.

conjectio causae. A statement of the case.

conjectural evidence. Evidence not of a character to permit a reasoned conclusion; evidence so slight as to permit nothing better than a guess in respect of its application to an issue. 29 Am J2d Ev §§ 251-253, 256.

conjecture. A guess or, at best, a very slight inference; a vast field into which no jury is permitted to roam. Meidel v Anthis, 71 Ill 241, 245.

conjoins. Persons owning property jointly; the term is sometimes applied to husband and wife.

joint will. A joint will bequeathing or devising property which the testators own in common. Anno: 169 ALR 12.
See joint will.

conjugal. Pertaining to the marital relation.

conjugal duties. Marital duties; the duties of husband and wife as such. 26 Am J1st H & W § 5.

conjugal fellowship. See consortium.

conjugal kindness. The treatment which one spouse has the right to expect from the other; a condition of condonation of a ground of divorce. Anno: 32 ALR2d 163.

conjugal rights. Marital rights; the rights of husband and wife, as such. 26 Am J1st H & W §5.

conjugal seducer. One who accomplishes a seduction under promise of marriage. Cropp v Tilney (Eng) 3 Salk 225.

conjuges. See inter conjuges.

[248]

conjugium. Marriage.

conjunct. Concurrent; joint.

conjuncta. Joined; united.

conjunctim. Jointly.

conjunctim et divisim. Jointly and severally.

Conjunctio mariti et feminae est de jure naturae. The union of husband and wife is according to the law of nature.

conjunction. A union; in grammar as a connective.
See conjunctive.

conjunctive. Together; jointly; connecting the elements of a sentence, thereby imparting a meaning.

conjunct persons. Persons related to one another in some degree.

conjuratio. A conspiracy.

conjunction. Appealing to supernatural forces in the spirit world for the accomplishment of extraordinary feats in allaying storms and healing sickness; the pretension of ability to secure the aid of supernatural and superior powers. Cooper v Livingston, 19 Fla 684, 694.

conjurator. A conspirator; a person combining with another or with others in a conjuration.
See conjunction.

conjurer . See conjunction.

conjuror. See conjunction.

Connally Act. A federal statute having the purpose of aiding the enforcement of state laws limiting the production of oil, in certain fields, by prohibiting the shipment in interstate commerce of oil, known as hot oil, produced in excess of the limit set by state statute. 15 USC §§ 715 et seq.; Bolting v Bowen (CA4 Va) 118 F2d 59.

connecting carrier. Any one of several common carriers whose lines or parts thereof together constitute the entire route over which a shipment of goods is transported. 14 Am J2d Car § 662.

connecting carrier's lien. The lien of a connecting carrier on the goods in the shipment for its charges, including the charges of preceding carriers in the succession of carriers paid by it, such lien being for the amount due it under the legal and fixed rate, notwithstanding the amount may be in excess of a through rate guaranteed by the initial carrier, the connecting carrier, however, not being entitled to a lien if it has accepted the shipment with knowledge that a through contract of shipment has been made with the initial carrier and the entire charge paid in advance. 14 Am J2d Car § 666.

conner. See ale conner.

connivance. A secret cooperation in an illegal or wrongful act. As a defense in an action for divorce on the ground of adultery: -a corrupt consent by one spouse that the other shall commit adultery. Giddings v Giddings, 167 Or 504, 114 P2d 1009.

A wife is guilty of connivance where, with corrupt intention, she behaves in such a way as to promote or encourage the continuation of an adulterous intercourse started by the husband without any fault on the part of the wife. Woodbury v Woodbury, [1949] Prob 154, [ 1948] 2 All Eng 684, 17 ALR2d 334.

connoissement. (French.) A bill of lading.

connubial. Pertaining to the married state; conjugal; marital.

connubium. Marriage.

conocimiento. (Spanish.) A bill of lading.

conpossessio. A joint possession.

conquereur. The first purchaser of an estate.
See first purchaser.

conqueror. William the Conqueror, king of England from 1066 to 1087; a purchaser.

conquest. A method by which a nation may acquire territory in the absence of treaties or conventions to the contrary. 30 Am J Rev ed Internat L. § 41; 54 Am J1st US § 78. The acquisition of property otherwise than by inheritance or conveyance in manner permitted by law.

The Norman Conquest is open referred to as "The Conquest."

An island is "acquired" by the United States, so as to bring it within the scope of a workmen's compensation act covering employees at a military or air base acquired after a certain date, upon its capture from an enemy force. Anno: 2 L Ed 2d 1980.

conquestus. Acquisition.

conquets. (Civil law.) Same as conquest.

See acquets and conquets.

conquisitio. Acquisition.

conquisitor. A conqueror; a purchaser.

consanguineos. Blood relations, persons who have in their veins a portion of the blood of a common ancestor. 2 Bl Comm 205.

See de consanguineo.

consanguineus. Related by blood

See frater consanguineus.

Consanguineus est quasi eodem sanguine natus. A person related by consanguinity is, as it were, one born of the same blood.

consanguineus frater. A brother by the father's side, that is, a brother born of the same father. 2 Bl Connn 212.

consanguinity. Relationship by blood. Re Bordeaux Estate, 37 Wash 2d 561, 225 P2d 433, 26 ALR2d 249. The having of the blood of some common ancestor. Biodget v Brinsmaid, 9 Vt 27, 30.

See collateral consanguinity; kin; kindred; lineal consanguinity. conscience. A person's natural judgment of right and wrong. "Principle" the result of judgment, is tested by reason, defended by argument, and yields to the decision of an intelligent mind. "Conscience" springs from some internal source of self-knowledge, which acknowledges no superior, bows to no authority, yields to no demonstration, and is governed by no law; it ignores reason, defies argument, and is unaccountable and irresponsible to all human tests and standards; it is a law unto itself, and its scruples and its teachings are not amenable to human tribunals, but rest alone with its possessor and his God. People v Stewart, 7 Cal 140. An element of equitable jurisdiction, not the private opinion of an individual court, but rather to be regarded as a metaphorical term designating the common standard of civil right and expediency combined, based upon general principles and limited by established doctrines, to which the court appeals and by which it tests the conduct and rights of suitors. National City Bank v Gelfert, 284 NY 13, 29 NE2d 449, 130 ALR 1472.

[249]

conscience money. Money paid in settlement of an obligation which the person paying has previously evaded or concealed.

Conscientia dicitur a con et scio, quasi scire cum Deo. Conscience is so called from "con" (meaning "with") and "scio" (meaning "I know"), as it were, I know with God.

conscientiae detrimentum. Shipwreck of conscience.

conscientia rei alieni. Knowledge of another person's ownership.

conscientious objector. One seeking exemption from required military service as opposed on religious grounds to participation in war. United States v Seeger, 380 US 163, 13 L Ed 2d 733, 85 S Ct 850.

conscionable. According to honesty.

conscious. Possessing sufficient power of mind to understand the real nature and true character of one's acts. Brown v Commonwealth, 78 Pa 122, 128.

conscription. Requiring the performance of military service. 36 Am J1st Mil § 22. Enforcing the employment of capital or labor in military service.

See selective draft.

Consecratio est periodus electionis; electio est praeambula consecrationis. Consecration is the termination of election; election is the preamble of consecration.

consecration. The act of devoting to religious use or making sacred.

See parish church.

consecutive sentences. Sentences succeeding one another in a regular order, with an uninterrupted course or succession, and without interval or break, State v Rider, 201 La 733, 10 So 2d 601; the opposite of concurrent sentences, Subas v Hudspeth (CA 10 Kan) 122 F2d 85; sometimes called accumulative or cumulative sentences. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 547.

concedo. Same as cedo.

Conseil. (French.) Counsel; advice; sanction.

Conseil de famille. (French.) The consent of the family.

Conseil judiciaire. (French.) A kind of guardian appointed by the court to protect the estate of a spendthrift.

consensual. Depending upon consent; existing by consent.

consensual contract. (Civil law.) An agreement which was enforceable merely because the parties consented to it.

consensu regio. By royal command. 3 Bl Comm 95.

consensus. Agreement, especially in a matter of opinion; a general opinion.

consensus ad idem. An agreement for the same thing; a meeting of the minds without which no contract can arise. Wheat v Cross, 31 Md 99.

Consensus est voluntas plurium ad quos res pertinet, simul juncta. Consent is the joint will of many persons to whom the thing belongs.

Consensus tacit jus. Consent makes law. The parties make their own law by their agreement. Shields v Ohio, 95 US 319, 326, 24 L Ed 357, 359. The maxim probably means that it is the consent of the governed which causes law to come into being, and conversely that without such consent we would have no law. St. Louis & San Francisco R. Co. v Gill, 54 Ark 101, 15 SW 18. Taking account of the oft repeated axiom that "there is no law in a settlement," perhaps the real meaning of the maxim is that consent takes the place of law.

Consensus, non concubitus, facit matrimonium. A meeting of the minds, and not cohabitation, constitutes a marriage. This was a maxim of the common law, the civil law and of the ecclesiastical law as well, and the sounder rule established by express decisions on the question is that mutual consent only is necessary. 35 Am J1st Mar § 29.

Consensus, non concubitus, tacit nuptias vet matrimonium et consentire non possunt ante annos nubiles. Consent, not cohabitation, makes nuptials or marriage, and those under marriageable age cannot consent.

Consensus tollit errorem. Consent permits error. A person cannot object to that to which he has consented. Fuller v State, 100 Miss 811, 57 So 806.

Consensus voluntas multorum ad quos res pertinet, simul juncta. Consent is the will of several persons joining simultaneously in one transaction.

consent. Verb: To agree or to give assent to something proposed or requested. Noun: Agreement; approval; acquiescence. Unity of opinion -accord of minds -to thinking alike -being of one mind. Consent involves the presence of two or more persons, for without at least two persons there cannot be a unity of opinion, or an accord of minds, or any thinking alike. Huntley v Holt, 58 Conn 445, 449. As a defense in a prosecution for rape: -an exercise of the intelligence, based upon knowledge of the significance of the act and the question of morality involved therein, in making a choice between resistance and assent. People v Palvino, 216 App Div 319, 321, 214 NY 577, 578.

consent decree. A decree entered in an equity suit on consent of the parties. Such a decree, when entered, is binding on the consenting parties, and it cannot be heard or reviewed except on a showing that consent was obtained by fraud or that the decree was based on mutual error. 27 Am J2d Eq § 246.

[250]

Consentientes et agentes pari poena plectentur. Persons who consent and those who act are subject to the same penalties.

Consentire matrimonio non possunt infra annos nubiles. Persons who are under marriageable age cannot consent to marriage.

Consentire videtur qui facit. Those who are silent are deemed to have consented. Silence gives consent.

consent judgment. A judgment entered by consent of the parties for the purpose of executing a compromise and settlement of an action; in effect, an agreement or contract of the parties acknowledged in court, and ordered to be recorded, with the sanction of the court. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 144.

A consent judgment is a determination by the parties, rather than by the court, but it is equally immune to collateral attack as a judgment rendered after a determination by the court. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 847.

consent of insured. An expression in the omnibus clause of an automobile liability insurance policy, meaning the permission of the insured owner for the use of the automobile by another. Didlake v Standard Ins. Co. (CA10 Okla) 195 F2d 247, 33 ALR2d 941.

consent reference. See reference on consent.

consent rule. A rule employed to facilitate the legal fiction whereby an ejectment suit is employed as a remedy for determination of title, the rule requiring the defendant to confess the fictitious lease, entry, and ouster, and to plead not guilty. 25 Am J2d Eject § 2.

consent to. The words "consent to" and "approve of" do not, singly or combined, express the idea of wilful contribution to or procurement of a felonious act, which is essential to guilt. A person may be present and heartily approve of an act after its commission, without being at all willing or capable of advising, aiding or procuring the act; or he may consent in the sense of offering no resistance, without the slightest contribution to it by his own will. True v Commonwealth, 90 Ky 651, 654, 14 SW 1 685.

consequence. That which follows as the result or effect of a cause. Tierney v Occidental L. Ins. Co. 89 Cal App 779, 265 P 400. When an event is followed in natural sequence by a result which it is adapted to produce, or aid in producing, that result is a consequence of the event. Landstrom v Thorpe (CA8 SD) 189 F2d 46, 26 ALR2d 1170.

See natural and probable consequences; natural consequences; probable consequence.

consequantiae non est consequentia. A consequence is not the result of a consequence.

consequential damages. An equivocal expression, meaning both damages which are so remote as not to be actionable, and damages which are actionable, Eaton v Boston C. & M. R. Co. 51 NH 504; in one sense, the direct or proximate damages, 22 Am J2d Damg § 20; in another sense, indirect damages; damages which are not produced without the concurrence of some other event attributable to the same origin or cause. Loiseau v Arp, 21 SD 566, 114 NW 701.

A provision, in a contract for the installation of elevators, against liability of the elevator company for "consequential damages," provides against liability for damages that do not arise according to the usual course of things from the breach of the contract itself, that is, against liability for damages that are the consequence of special circumstances. Boylston Housing Corp. v O'Toole, 321 Mass 528, 74 NE2d 288, 172 ALR 1251.

See compensatory damages.

conservancy districts. Essentially the same as drainage districts, being organized under statutes enacted for the purpose of controlling floods and protecting life and property against their ravages. Re Proposed Middle Rio Grande Conservancy Dist. 31 NM 188, 242 P 683.

conservation. The protection of property against loss, misuse, or waste, particularly, in the modern sense of the term, natural resources, wildlife, and natural settings in mountains, rivers, lakes, prairies, etc., in which the people may find recreation.

conservator. One placed in charge of property by a court as a temporary guardian or custodian. Re Guardianship of Hampson's Estate. 190 Or 279, 223 P2d 1039, 21 ALR2d 873; one appointed to take custody of the property or estate of a missing person, 1 Am J2d Absent § 2; a person appointed for the custody and protection of property of an insane person. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins Per § 62.

conservatores pacis. Keepers of the peace, peculiar officers appointed by the common law for the maintenance of the public peace. 1 Bl Comm 349.

conservatorship. The holding of property by a conservator.
See conservator.

conservators of the peace. Same as conservatores pacis.

conservators of truce and safe-conduct. Officers who were appointed in every port in England and who were empowered to hear and determine breaches of truce and safe-conduct. 4 Bl Comm 69.

conservatrix. A female conservator.

consessimus. We have granted or given.

considerable provocation. A term of reference in the law only to express an element reducing a homicide from murder to manslaughter, and so elusive of accurate definition that the most that can be said is that it means "legal provocation" or "adequate provocation," such being matters for determination by the court. McClurg v Commonwealth (Ky) 36 SW 14, 15.

consideratio curiae. The consideration of the court.

consideration. An essential of a valid and enforceable contract. 17 Am J2d Contr § 86; a matter of contract, something within the contemplation of the parties to the contract. Van Houten v Van Houten, 202 Iowa 1085, 209 NW 293; the price bargained and paid for a promise, in other words, something given in exchange for the promise. 17 Am J2d Contr § 85; a benefit to the promisor or a loss or detriment to the promisee. Test v Heaberlin, 254 Iowa 521, 118 NW2d 73; 11 Am J2d B & N § 216; some right, interest, profit, or benefit accruing to one party to a contract, or some forbearance, detriment, loss, or responsibility given, suffered or undertaken by the other. 17 Am J2d

[251]

Contr § 85; 11 Am J2d B & N § 216; an act or a forbearance, the creation, modification, or destruction of a legal relation, or a return promise bargained for and given in exchange for a promise. 17 Am J2d Contr § 85.

See good consideration; failure of consideration; moral consideration; past consideration; valuable consideration.

consideratione legis. See in consideratione legis. consideratione praemissorum. See in consideratione praemissorum. consideration of a sale. The amount paid or to be paid for the articles furnished. See 46 Am J1st Sales § 60.

consideratum est per curiam. It is considered by the court. A judgment takes this form to show that it is the act of the law as interpreted by the court and so declared after due deliberation; for if a judgment recited "it is decreed, or resolved," by the court, it might appear to be the act of the court rather than the act of the law. 3 Bl Comm 396.

consideratur. It is considered.

considered. Thought about, brought into a process of reasoning, but not necessarily determining a decision. Schreiber v Pacific Coast Fire Ins. Co. 195 Md 639, 75 A2d 108, 20 ALR2d 951. In some connections, the word has been construed as meaning "reasonably regarded." Polsgrove v Moss, 154 Ky 408, 413, 157 SW 1133.

considered as a unit. As the phrase appears in an inheritance statute, it refers to the total of all transfers to one beneficiary. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 298.

considered dictum. An expression of opinion on a point deliberately passed upon by the court, although not necessary to the disposition of the case. Scovill Mfg. Co. v Cassidy, 275 Ill 462, 114 NE 181.

consign. To commit or entrust goods to a person for care or sale by such person. Sturm v Boker, 150 US 319, 37 L Ed 1099, 14 S Ct 99; to send or transfer goods to a merchant or factor for sale. Wasey v Whitcomb, 167 Mich 58, 132 NW 572; to place goods in the hands of a carrier for transportation and delivery to a designated person.

consignatio. A consignment.

consignation. A deposit under French law, which a debtor makes by authority of the court of the thing or sum which he owes, in the hands of a third person. Weld v Hadley, 1 NH 295, 304.

consignee. The person to whom a carrier is to deliver a shipment of goods; the person named in a bill of lading to whom or to whose order the bill promises delivery. 15 Am J2d Com C § 13; a factor or other person to whom goods are consigned, shipped, or otherwise transmitted, either for sale or for safekeeping. Powell v Wallace, 44 Kan 656, 25 P 42; Sturm v Boker, 150 US 319, 37 L Ed 1099, 14 S Ct 99; Anno: 53 ALR 364. The term itself implies an agency. Wasey v Whitcomb, 167 Mich 58, 132 NW 572.

consignment. The entrusting of goods to another, to a carrier for delivery to a consignee designated or to one who is to sell the goods for the consignor. A consignment is nothing more than a bailment for sale. Re Sachs (DC Md) 21 F2d 984, 986.

consignment contract. A consignment of goods to another with the understanding that the consignee shall either sell the property for the consignor and remit to him the price, or if he does not sell the property, return the goods to the consignor. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 34. Such a transaction is a bailment for sale. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 34.

consignor. A person who sends goods to another on consignment; a shipper or transmitter of goods; the person named in a bill of lading as the person from whom the goods have been received for shipment. UCC § 7-102(1)(b)(c).

Consilia multorum requiruntur in magnis. The advice of many is required in affairs of magnitude.

consiliarius. A counselor.

consilium. A day set for an argument or hearing.

consimili casu. A writ by which a reversioner might recover land from the alienee of a life tenant or tenant by the curtesy. See 3 Bl Comm 183, note.

consistory. An ecclesiastical court.

consistory court. Also called the bishop's court, -a court of every diocesan bishop which was held in their several cathedrals, for the trial of all ecclesiastical causes arising within their respective dioceses. The bishop's chancellor, or his commissary was the judge and from the sentence of this court an appeal lay to the archbishop of the province. 3 Bl Comm 64.

consolato del mare. A maritime code which was at one time in effect on the Mediterranean Sea. It was compiled about 1000 A. D.

consolidate. To unite into one mass or body, as to consolidate the forces of an army, or various funds. In parliamentary usage, to consolidate two bills is to unite them into one. In law, to consolidate benefices is to combine them into one. Independent Dist. of Fairview v Durland, 45 Iowa 53, 56.

consolidated corporation. The single corporation that exists after a consolidation of two or more corporations. State ex rel. Nolan v Montana Railway Co. 21 Mont 221, 53 P 623.

consolidated fund. The combined revenue of Great Britain and Ireland.

consolidated income tax return. A return by the parent company for all the members of an affiliated group of corporations in place of a separate corporate income tax return by each member. IRC §§ 1501-1505.

Consolidated Orders. A compilation of the orders which regulated practice in the English chancery court, made in 1860.

consolidation. A bringing together of separate things to make one thing; uniting or bringing together the parts of a thing to make it more firm.

consolidation of actions. The joining of separate pending suits for trial as one suit, in the interest of justice or procedural convenience. 2 Am J2d Adm § 197; 53 Am J1st Tr § 66; the fusing by order of court of several pending actions which might have been brought as a single action or suit; the stay of some actions or proceedings pending before a court until it can be determined whether the disposition of another case may not dispose of all of them. 1 Am J2d Actions § 156.

[252]

consolidation of appeals. The joinder on motion to the reviewing court, or on the court's own motion, of appeals from a single judgment or from identical judgments, and from judgments which involve the same question and the same parties. 5 Am J2d A & E § 681; Joining numerous appeals to the court from a single legislative order by an administrative agency, pursuant to an order of the court, thereby permitting the several appeals to be maintained as one appeal. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 730. Reviewing courts may, and frequently do, without formally consolidating cases, hear and determine two or more of them together for reasons of convenience or because of the similarity of the facts or questions involved. 5 Am J2d A & E § 681.

consolidation of corporations. A union, blending, or coalescence of two or more corporations in one corporate body whereby, in general, their properties, powers, rights, and privileges inure to, and their duties and obligations devolve upon, a new organization thus called into being; and whereby they cease to exist except constructively in certain cases, as, for example, where the jurisdiction of the courts and the power of the state to tax and regulate are concerned. 19 Am J2d Corp § 1491.

There can never be a consolidation of corporations except where all the constituent companies cease to exist as separate corporations and a new corporation, the consolidated corporation, comes into being. Anno: 27 ALR2d 777.

"Amalgamation" is the older English word for consolidation. State ex rel. Nolan v Montana R. Co. 21 Mont 221, 53 P 623.

For distinction between "consolidation" and "merger," see merger of corporations.

consolidation of hearings. A practice within the discretion usually reposed in an administrative agency. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 408.

consolidation of municipal corporations. The joining of existing municipal corporations, usually by creating a new corporation, whereby the original corporations cease to exist. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 21.

consolidation of railroads. In the most simple sense of the term, a consolidation of two or more railroad corporations, but in actual practice, a long and involved process, the success of which depends upon the approval of the consolidation by the Interstate Commerce Commission and sometimes by state regulatory commissions, the business of railroads touching the public interest so closely that the regulatory commissions are alert to the possibility that a proposed consolidation will eliminate competition, thereby resulting in higher rates, or be adverse to the public interest in point of service. State ex rel. Nolan v Montana Railway Co. 21 Mont 221, 63 P 926; 44 Am J1st RR §§ 319 et seq.

consolidation of school districts. The uniting of two or more school districts into one district. 47 Am J1st Sch § 22. The annexing of one school district to another is indistinguishable from the consolidation of one district with the other. Evans v Hurlburt, 117 Or 274, 243 P 553.

See centralization of schools.

consolidation of schools. See centralization of schools.

consolidation rule. A rule or order of court for the consolidation of two or more actions into one. Dunning v Bank of Auburn (NY) 19 Wend 23.

See consolidation of actions.

consuls. A word used for certain state bonds, but better known as annuities issued at one time by Great Britain in funding public debt. English consuls are but annuities; the interest only is paid, the principal is never reimbursed, and the government can only redeem them by buying them in the market. Henry v Henderson, 81 Miss 743, 33 So 960.

consort. A husband or wife.

See prince consort; queen consort.

Consortio malorum me quoque malum tacit. The companionship of the wicked makes me wicked also.

consortium. At earlier common law, the status and rights of the husband arising from the marriage relationship, while "coverture" denoted the status and rights of the wife arising therefrom.

But "consortium" has now come to mean the rights and duties of both husband and wife, resulting from the marriage, in other words, the marital rights and duties of the spouses inter se, the reciprocal rights and duties of society, companionship love, affection, aid, services, co-operation, sexual relations, and comfort, such being special rights and duties growing out of the marriage covenants. Hitaffer v Argonne Co. 87 App DC 57, 183 172d 811, 23 ALR2d 1366. Loss of consortium is not a bodily injury. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 212.

consortium vicinorum. The society of one's neighbors.

conspectu ejus. See in conspectu ejus.

conspicuous. Clearly visible; easily seen. In the case of a posted notice the place must be conspicuous and the notice must be conspicuous in the sense that it may be easily read. R. S. Oglesby Co. v Lindsey, 112 Va 767, 72 SE 672. In reference to a term or clause in an instrument, the words must be so written that a reasonable person against whom they are to operate ought to have noted them. 15 Am J2d Com C § 7.

conspiracy. An agreement between two or more persons to accomplish together a criminal or unlawful act or to achieve by criminal or unlawful means an act not in itself criminal or unlawful. 16 Am J2d Consp § 1. Conspiracy is a criminal offense, a misdemeanor in some jurisdictions, a felony in others. 16 Am J2d Consp §§ 2, 3. Conspiracy is also a wrong which will constitute at cause for a civil action. 16 Am J2d Consp § 43. The cause of action is the damage suffered. It is the civil wrong resulting in damage, and not the conspiracy which constitutes the cause of action. Mox, Inc. v Woods. 202 Cal 675, 262 P 302.

conspiracy clause. The clause of a bill in equity under the older practice, consisting of an allegation that the wrong complained of was brought about by a conspiracy between the several defendants, that they had all conspired to injure the plaintiff, and had co-operated in the perpetration of the wrong. 19 Am J 2d Eq § 181.

conspiracione. See de conspiracione.

conspirators. Persons who participate in a conspiracy.

[253]

constable. A public officer, a peace officer, of a county or a town, whose special duty is the execution of process in and of the courts of justices of the peace. Formerly, the office was important in both England and France, a constable in those earlier days being one of the high officers of the crown, having military as well as judicial duties. 47 Am J1st Sher § 2.

constable of England. The lord high constable of England, -an officer of great and numerous functions and powers, both military and civil, which originated with the Normans and diminished to an ornamental rank for state occasions only during the reign of Henry the Eighth. See 1 Bl Comm 355.

constabulary. The jurisdiction of a constable.

constablewick. The jurisdiction of a constable.

constabulary. A collective word denoting the constables of a district.

constant watch. A term, in a provision of a fire insurance policy relative to insured's duty in protection of the premises, construed as a representation rather than a warranty, imposing upon the insured the duty to use all reasonable care and to take all reasonable means to see that a constant watch was kept. King Brick Mfg. Co. v Phoenix Ins. Co. 164 Mass 291, 41 NE 277.

constat. It is clear; a certificate that certain matters appear of record.

See clare constat.

constat de persona. There is proof as to the person; certainty as to the person is established; the formal identification of the defendant in a criminal prosecution, by his holding up his hand upon his arraignment and thus acknowledging himself to be the person charged in the indictment. See 4 Bl Comm 323.

constate. To verify or prove.

constating instruments. The charter, the organic law of a corporation, or the grant of powers to it. Ackerman v Halsey, 37 NJ Eq 356, 363.

constipation. Infrequency in movement of waste matter from the bowels. United States v Ridgeway (CC Ga) 31 F 144, 147.

constituent. A person represented by another, as the principal in the relation of principal and agent, and an inhabitant of a state or district represented by a United States Senator, a Congressman, or a member of the state legislature; one of the corporations joining in a consolidation.

constituere. To appoint; to establish; to ordain.

constitute. To set up or establish, for example, a government or a body of law; to form the elements of something; to ordain or appoint a person to an office or position.

constituted authorities. The existing and lawfully appointed officers of the government constitutio. A constitution; a statute.

constitutio dotis. The establishment of dower.

constitution. A system of fundamental laws or principles for the government of a nation, state, society, corporation, or other aggregation of individuals. 16 Am J2d Const L § 1.

Although a constitution, in the broad sense of the term, may be written or unwritten, in the United States, the word as applied to the organization of the federal and state governments, always implies a writing. 16 Am J2d Const L § 1.

"A written constitution is not only the direct and basic expression of the sovereign will, but is the absolute rule of action and decision for all departments and offices of government in respect to all matters covered by it, and must control as it is written until it shall be changed by the authority that established it." Wright v Hart, 182 NY 330, 75 NE 404.

A constitution differs from a statute in that a statute must provide at least to a certain degree, the details of the subject of which it treats, whereas a constitution usually states general principles and builds the substantial foundation and general framework of the law and government. 16 Am J2d Const L § 3

See state constitution; United States Constitution.

constitutional. Pertaining to a constitution; in accordance with, agreeably to, consonant with, not in conflict with, the constitution.

constitutional convention. A representative body meeting to form and adopt a constitution, such as the Federal Convention of 1787, meeting in Philadelphia to form and adopt the Constitution of the United States, or meeting to form, consider, and adopt amendments to an existing constitution.

constitutional courts. Courts which are directly established by the constitution, and therefore beyond the power of the legislature to abolish or alter. 20 Am J2d Cts § 17; Federal courts established by Congress pursuant to Article 3, section 1 of the Constitution of the United States. 20 Am J2d Cts § 8.

constitutional disease. A disease which has, at least, some bearing upon the general health. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 748.

constitutionality. The matter of being in accord with, or in conflict with, and opposed to, the provisions and principles of a constitution.

See constitutional.

constitutional law. A body of principles which apply in the interpretation and construction of constitutions and the application of the law of constitutions, that is, fundamental law, to statutes and other public acts. 16 Am J2d Const L § 1. In the form which it has taken in the United States, "constitutional law" is an American graft on English jurisprudence. Its principles and rules are mainly the outgrowth of the development of this country and the states. They rest upon the fundamental conception of a supreme law, expressed in written form, in accord with which all private rights must be determined and all public authority administered. State v Main, 69 Conn 123, 37 A 80.

constitutional liberty. The liberty guaranteed under the American system of constitutional government; a very broad and extensive concept, embracing not only freedom from physical restraint, but the right of man to be free in the enjoyment of the faculties with which he is endowed by the Creator, subject only to such restraints as are necessary for the common welfare. 16 Am J2d Const L §§ 358, 359.

constitutional limitations. Those provisions of a constitution which restrict or confine the power of the legislature to pass laws. 16 Am J2d Const L §§ 228 et seq.

[254]

constitutional office. A public office created by the United States Constitution or by a state constitution, as distinguished from an office created by statute, or from an office which, like that of notary public, has existed in nearly all countries for centuries. Opinion of Justices, 165 Mass 599, 43 NE 927.

constitutional right. A right guaranteed to a person by the Constitution of the United States or a state constitution, and so guaranteed as to prevent legislative interference with that right. 16 Am J2d Const L § 328.

constitutiones. The laws of the Roman emperors.

Constitutiones tempore posteriores potiores sunt his quae ipsas praecesserunt. (Civil law.) Later laws prevail over those which preceded them.

Constitution of the United States. The Constitution as it was adopted in the Convention of 1787, was ratified by the states, and went into effect on March 4, 1789, together with the Amendments to that constitution, duly adopted and ratified.

Constitutions of Clarendon. English statutes enacted in 1164, limiting the powers of the Church of England.

constitutor. (Civil law.) A person who promised to pay the debt of another.

constitutum. (Civil law.) An agreement to pay a pre-existing debt.

Constitution esse cam domum unicuique nostrum debere existimari, ubi quisque sedes et tabulas haberet, suarumque rerum constitutionem fecisset. (Civil law.) It is established that the home of each of us is considered to be the place where he has his abode and his books and where he may have made an establishment of his business.

constraint. Duress; restraint; compulsion. Gates v Hester, 81 Ala 357, 360; an abridgment of liberty or hindrance of the will. Edmondson v Harris, 2 Tenn Ch 427, 433.

construct. To build; to erect; sometimes used in the sense of "to provide." Seymour v Tacoma, 6 Wash 138, 32 P 1077.

constructed value. A technical term in the law of customs duties which refers for calculation to cost of materials, expenses and profit, and cost of containers and packaging. 19 USC § 1401a(d).

constructio arcium. See arcium constructio.

Constructio legis non tacit injuriam. The interpretation of the law works no injury. See Broom's Legal Maxims 603.

construction. The erection of buildings; the creation of structures; something constructed; ascertaining the meaning of a constitution, statute, charter of a corporation, bylaws of a mutual benefit society, contract, will, or any other instrument in litigation or having a bearing upon litigation. There is an abstract distinction between "construction" and "interpretation," in that "construction" is the drawing of conclusions from elements known from, given in, and indicated by, the language used, while "interpretation" is the art of finding the true sense of the language itself, or of any form of words or symbols. In other words, "interpretation" is used with respect to language or symbols themselves, while "construction" is used to determine, not the sense of the words or symbols but the legal meaning of the entire contract. But, on the whole, it is doubtful whether anything is to be gained by attempting the difficult and unrewarding task of making a distinction between the two terms. 17 Am J2d Contr § 240.

See broad construction; equitable construction; interpretation; liberal construction; narrow construction; original construction; practical construction; rational interpretation; strict construction.

construction car. A car used in work on a railroad, carrying equipment, materials, even laborers.

construction contract. A contract for the construction of a building or other structure, the distinguishing characteristics of which are the plans and specifications, according to which the work is to be performed by the builder or contractor; the performance of a part, sometimes all the work required to be performed by subcontractors, and public regulation of the contracting business, which, of course, by imposing licensing requirements determines who are competent to contract as builders.

construction interest. That sum of money estimated for payment of interest accruing on special assessment warrants, sold to defray the cost of an improvement, from the time of such sale until special assessments become due and payable and begin to draw interest, such sum being added to the cost of the improvement and included in the total amount of the special assessment warrants issued and sold. Hoffman v Minot (ND) 77 NW2d 850, 58 ALR2d 1338.

construction work. Work in erecting buildings, providing other structures, such as bridges and viaducts, improving harbors, digging canals, making and repairing highways, etc. As used in workmen's compensation acts to describe a particular type of employment, the term includes reconstruction, and applies to the strengthening, by the addition of stays and supports, of a completed building found to be faulty. 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 98.

construction workers. Persons engaged in the construction work.

See construction work.

constructive. Informative; helpful; inferred, deduced, or presumed from circumstances, sometimes by forced or strained conclusions.

constructive acceptance. An element of an implied relation of bailor and bailee, where the latter has acquired possession by chance, as by finding the property, or where wearing apparel or other article has been left in a store, office, or other place of business by a customer, client, or patient. 8 Am J2d Bailor § 60.

constructive admission. The effect of failure to respond, or a bad response, to a request for an admission under the federal rule which supports such request. 23 Am J2d Dep §§ 303, 306.

constructive adverse possession. See constructive possession.

constructive annexation. The assumption of the character of realty by movable things which have been fitted and adapted to realty, such as doors, mantels, casings, columns, etc., although not affixed to the realty. 35 Am J2d Fixt § 11.

[255]

constructive assignment. An assignment for the benefit of creditors arising by operation of law, as where a preferential or fraudulent transfer is converted by statute into an assignment for the benefit of creditors. 6 Am J2d Assign for Crs § 47.

constructive attachment. An attempt to perfect an attachment without seizure and removal of personal property. 6 Am J2d Attach §§ 296, 297.

constructive bailment. The holding of a chattel under such circumstances that the law imposes upon the person in possession the obligation to deliver the chattel to another. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 8.

constructive breaking. In the law of burglary, such a breaking as is effected where the entry is accomplished by means of fraud or threats, or by confederacy with the servants in the house. 13 Am J2d Burgl § 13.

constructive contempt. A contempt of court committed, not in the presence of the court, but at some distance away from it, usually consisting in disobeying or resisting process, intimidating a witness, or giving a false report of judicial proceeding while the same is pending before the court. 7 Am J2d Contpt § 6. Often referred to as indirect contempt.

See indirect contempt.

constructive contract. Same as quasi contract.

constructive conversion. A conversion which takes place when a person does such acts in reference to the goods of another as amount in law to appropriation of the property to himself. Laverty v Snethen, 68 NY 522, 524.

See equitable conversion.

constructive delivery. A symbolic delivery whereby the party to whom delivery is made is clothed with all the usual muniments of title and indicia of ownership, as in the case of the deposit of a warehouse receipt or bill of lading for goods in store or in transit. 46 Am J1st Sales §434. By carrier: -the disposition of a shipment where the carrier agrees with the consignee or some person entitled under the latter to hold the goods for some purpose other than that of carriage to and delivery at the destination directed by the shipper. State v Intoxicating Liquors, 104 Me 463, 72 A 331. Of life insurance policy: -an unconditional acceptance of the terms of the contract by the insured, coupled with both insurer and insured treating the policy as in force, although the policy remains in the possession of the agent of the insurer. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 215.

constructive desertion. Misconduct by a spouse so serious as to compel the other spouse to leave or remain away from it. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 112.

constructive dividend. A division of profits of a corporation among the stockholders without a formal declaration of a dividend or an intent by the directors to declare a dividend. Morgan v Wisconsin Tax Com. 195 Wis 405, 217 NW 407 218 NW 810 61 ALR 357, error dismd 278 US 583, 73 L Ed 519, 49 S Ct 186, cert den 279 US 835, 73 L Ed 983, 49 S Ct 250.

constructive escape. The obtaining by a prisoner of more liberty than the law allows him, although he still remains confined. 27 Am J2d Escape § 23.

constructive eviction. As a breach of a covenant of title: it yielding by the grantee to the hostile assertion of an adverse paramount title. 20 Am J2d Cov § 101. Any disturbance of a tenant's possession by the landlord, or someone acting under his authority, or an omission by the landlord to act or perform where it is his duty to act or perform, which renders the premises unfit for occupancy for the purposes for which they were demised or which deprives the tenant of the beneficial enjoyment of the premises, causing him to abandon them, amounts to a "constructive eviction," provided the tenant abandons the premises within a reasonable time. 32 Am J1st L & T §§ 246-248.

constructive flight. A fiction which has been adopted to secure the return, from a sister state as a fugitive from justice, of a person who has by his constructive presence committed a crime in the demanding state. 31 Am J2d Extrad § 5.

constructive force. In robbery, such force consists of any demonstration of force, menace, or means by which the person robbed is put in fear sufficient to suspend the free exercise of his will, or to prevent resistance to the taking. See 46 Am J1st Rob § 16.

constructive fraud. Legal fraud as distinguished from actual fraud, being presumed from the relation of the parties to a transaction or from the circumstances under which it takes place, not necessarily a matter of conscious wrongdoing. 37 Am J2d Fraud § 4.

In its generic sense, "constructive fraud" comprises all acts, omissions, and concealments involving a breach of legal or equitable duty, trust or confidence which result in damage to another. Constructive fraud exists in cases in which conduct, although not actually fraudulent, ought to be so treated—that is, in which such conduct is a constructive or quasi fraud which has all the actual consequences and legal effects of actual fraud. Re Arbuckle's Estate 98 Cal App 2d 562, 220 P2d 950, 23 ALR2cl 372.

constructive levy. The act of an officer armed with a writ of attachment or execution in reference to property of the defendant which would render the officer liable for conversion or trespass if it were not for the protection given him by the writ. 6 Am J2d Attach § 296. A paper levy upon real estate, that is, a levy accomplished by the officer without actual entry upon the land. 6 Am J2d Attach § 312.

constructively received. For income tax purposes: -a dividend which, although not actually received by the stockholder, has been made unqualifiedly subject to his demand. Anno: 120 ALR 1282.

See constructive delivery.

constructive mortgage. An instrument in the form of an absolute deed of real estate but intended as a mortgage, being given as security for the payment of a debt. Plummer v Isle, 41 Wash 5, 82 P 1009.

constructive notice. Not actual notice; such circumstances as the law deems the equivalent of actual notice since they are such as, under the law, put a party upon inquiry. 55 Am J1st V & P § 697. The substitute in law for actual notice, being based upon a presumption of notice which is so strong that the law does not permit it to be controverted. 39 Am J1st Notice § 7. Sometimes confused with "implied notice" which is a matter of actual notice rather than legal inference. 39 Am J1st Notice § 6.

A recorded deed is an instance of notice. It is of no consequence whether the second purchaser has actual notice of the prior deed or not. He is bound to take, and is presumed to have the requisite notice. Legal notice is the same as constructive notice, and cannot be controverted by proof. Cooper v Flesner, 24 Okla 47, 103 P 1016. Recording statutes are intended ordinarily to make a recorded instrument effective to give constructive notice to all with whom the person in possession may undertake to deal. But the protection is not entirely one-sided or absolute. The statute has another function, namely, to provide an opportunity for investigation of the title. The opportunity to investigate is the foundation of constructive notice. But the statute is a bulwark, not a trap, and such notice may be negated by the fraud or misrepresentations of the party recording the instrument. Fogle v General Credit, 74 App DC 208, 122 F2d 45, 136 ALR 814.

[256]

See implied notice.

constructive placement of cars. An assumed placement where a carrier is prevented from making an actual placement by reason of conditions for which the shipper or consignee is responsible, and it is necessary under the rules and regulations of the carrier to have a point of time from which the period of detention of the cars for the purpose of imposing demurrage charges can be calculated. 13 Am 12d Car § 485.

constructive possession. That possession which the law annexes to the title; sometimes called legal possession, or possession in law, to distinguish it from possession in deed or in fact, which actual occupancy gives. 42 Am J1st Prop § 42. As applied to a dissessor: -a claim of ownership under color of title to a tract of land of which only a part is in the actual possession of the claimant. 3 Am J2d Adv P § 18.

By force a statute, payment of taxes, under color of title, is constructive possession of unimproved and uninclosed land. Such possession is constructive adverse possession as distinguished from actual adverse possession. Canaday v Miller, 102 Kan 577, 171 P 651.

constructive presence. A fiction of criminal law whereby a person who is physically elsewhere at the time of the commission of the crime, is regarded as being present at the scene of the crime committed through agencies set in motion by that person. Hyde v United States, 225 US 347, 362, 56 L Ed 1114, 1124, 32 S Ct 793.

In the eyes of the law a person may be present, although he is absent. If a person keeps away from the place where a crime is being committed for the purpose of facilitating the commission of the offense, he is considered as being constructively present as a principal to the crime, although he is not sufficiently near to give assistance if required. State v Poynier, 36 La Ann 572.

constructive repeal. See implied repeal.

constructive seizure. See constructive levy.

constructive service doctrine. The doctrine that an employee unlawfully dismissed from employment who holds himself ready and willing to perform the work for which he was employed shall be regarded in law as having actually performed it -that is, that readiness to perform is for all purposes equivalent to performance. 35 Am J1st M & S § 53. The doctrine that the right of a father to the services of his unmarried infant daughter is sufficient to support an action for her seduction, although it does not appear that she rendered any actual services for him. 47 Am J1st Seduc § 75.

constructive service of process. Service of process by publication, posting, mail, or any method of service other than personal. 42 Am J1st Proc § 57. The term is also applied in some jurisdictions to service by leaving a copy of the process at the usual place of abode of the person to be served, but in other jurisdictions such service is regarded as personal service. 42 Am J1st Proc § 60.

constructive taking. A taking by fraud, trick, or deception. 32 Am J1st Larc § 12.

constructive total loss. A loss of such a character as to authorize the insured to abandon the property and recover as for a total loss, although there is not an absolute extinction of the subject of the insurance. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1571.

constructive trust. A trust by operation of law which arises contrary to intention and against the will, declared against one who, by fraud, actual or constructive, by duress or abuse of confidence, by commission of wrong, or by any form of unconscionable conduct, artifice, concealment, or questionable means, either has obtained or holds the legal right to property which he ought not, in equity and good conscience, hold and enjoy. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 218.

construe. To interpret; to read for the purpose of ascertaining the meaning of a writing or a statute. O'Donnell v Glenn, 9 Mont 452, 23 P 1018.

See construction.

constuprate. To violate; to debauch; to defile.

consuetudinary law. The law which is established by custom.

consuetudines. Usages. See 1 Bl Comm 314.

consuetudinibus et servitiis. See de consuetudinibus et servitiis.

consuetudo. A custom or usage.

Consuetudo contra rationem introducta, potius usurpatio quam consuetudo appellari debet. A custom introduced which is contrary to reason ought rather to be called a usurpation than a custom.

consuetudo curiae. The custom or usage of the court.

Consuetudo debet esse certa. A custom ought to be certain.

Consuetudo debet esse certa; nam incerta pro nullis habentur. A custom should be certain, for uncertain things are held as nothing.

Consuetudo est altera lex. Custom is another kind of law.

Consuetudo est optimus interpretis legum. Custom is the best interpreter of the law. Boyd v United States, 116 US 616, 622, 29 L Ed 746, 748, 6 S Ct 524.

Consuetudo et communis assuetudo vincit legem non scriptam, si sit specialis, et interpretatur legem scriptam, si lex sit generalis. Custom and common usage override the unwritten law, if it is special, and they explain the written law, if the law is general.

[257]

Consuetudo ex certa causa rationabili usitata privat communem legem. Custom adopted from certain reasonable cause, supersedes the common law. See Broom's Legal Maxims 919.

Consuetudo licet sit magnae auctoritatis, nunquam tamen praejudicat manifestae veritati. Custom, although it may be high authority, should never be prejudicial to plain truth.

Consuetudo loci observanda est. The custom of the locality should be observed.

Consuetudo manerii et loci observanda est. The custom of the manor and the locality should be observed.

consuetudo mercatorum. The custom of merchants.

Consuetudo neque injuria oriti, neque tolli potest. A custom can neither spring from, nor be overcome by, a wrongful act.

Consuetudo non habitur in consequentiam. A custom should not be turned into a consequence.

Consuetudo non trahitur in consequentiam. Custom should not be drawn into consequence.

Consuetudo praescripta et legitima vincit legem. A prescriptive and lawful custom prevails over law.

Consuetudo regni Angliae est lex Angliae. The Custom of the English kingdom is the law of England.

Consuetudo semel reprobata non potest amplius induci. A custom once denied cannot be further invoked.

Consuetudo tollit communem legem. Custom supersedes the common law.

Consuetudo vincit communem legem. Custom supersedes the common law.

Consuetudo volentes ducit; lex nolentes trahit. Custom leads those who are willing; the law drags those who are unwilling.

consul. An officer commissioned by a government to hold office and to represent it at a particular place in a foreign country for the purpose of promoting and protecting its interests and those of its citizens or subjects. He is not a diplomatic officer and as a rule he has no diplomatic powers. 4 Am J2d Ambss § 11.

consular agent. An officer whose functions are similar to those of a consul, but whose authority is more limited.

consular court. A court held by a consul, that is, a representative of a country other than that in which the court sits.

consolatory response. Same as consultative opinion.

consoles a consulendo; reges enim tales sibi associant ad consulendum. Advisors for consultation; for such the kings gather around them for consultation.

consult. To seek advice, as to consult a lawyer.

consultation. The deliberation of two or more persons on some matter; a council or conference to consider a special case. Dunbar v Lant, 170 SC 414, 170 SE 460, 90 ALR 1412; a writ awarded by the superior court upon its refusal to issue a writ of prohibition for the removal of a cause from the ecclesiastical court to the superior court. See 3 Bl Comm 114.

consultation with physician. An application by a person concerning some disease or ailment to a physician, for diagnosis, treatment, advice, or prescription: a term in an application for a policy of life insurance which has been construed as requiring the disclosure of a consultation with reference to even a slight and temporary illness, while to other cases the seriousness of the ailment is considered material. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 758.

consultative opinion. The opinion of a court on a point of law rendered, not in an actual case or controversy before the court, but at the request of a public officer or body.

See advisory opinion.

consulto. See ex consulto.

consume. To use up; to eat; to destroy, as by fire.

consumer. Literally, one who consumes; in economics and also in law, one of the great class affected by rising and falling prices, good and poor quality of merchandise, and public regulation of producers and middlemen.

consumer cooperative. A cooperative association of consumers of merchandise, dry goods, shoes, clothing, groceries and food products, for the purpose of obtaining such goods and articles at a reasonable price and of good quality, the function usually being carried out by the establishment and operation of a store. 18 Am J2d Co-op Asso § 1.

consumer goods. Articles used or bought for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes. UCC § 9-- 109(1) consummate. To complete; to carry out, as, to consummate an agreement for the exchange of property. Connor v Riggins, 21 Cal App 756, 760, 132 P 849.

consummate dower. See dower consummate.

consummation of marriage. Cohabitation of the spouses. 4 Am J2d Annul § 1. The usual meaning of the term, in a common-law sense, is sexual intercourse between the parties after the marriage has been formally solemnized, or consent given, but statute has given the term a wider meaning in some jurisdictions. Sharon v Sharon, 75 Cal 1, 16 P 345.

consummation of offense. The completion of a criminal offense by the performance of acts requisite to the offense.

consumption. A consuming; destruction by use. Revzan v Nutelman, 370 Ill 180, 18 NE2d 219; use of a thing, sometimes, but not necessarily, to the complete extermination of the thing. 47 Am J1st Sales T § 25. The disease of tuberculosis.

consumption tax. See use tax.

[258]

contagious. Communicable; spreading by contact.

contagious abortion. A disease of cows, generally contracted through the digestive tract from infected food, which causes the premature birth of calves. Gesme v Potter, 118 Or 621, 247 P 765.

contagious disease. A disease communicable by contact, or by bodily exhalation. Grayson v Lynch 163 US 468, 477, 41 L Ed 230, 233, 16 S Ct 1064.

See infectious disease.

container. A box can, or jug; a wrapper. People v Harris, 135 Mich 136, 97 NW 402.

containing. A technical term of the law of customs duties, meaning that the imported article contains a significant quantity of the named material. 19 USC § 1202, headnote 9(f).

contamination. A condition of impurity resulting from mixture or contact with a foreign substance. Anno: 80 ALR2d 1289.

contango. A broker's charge for carrying over the account of a customer to the next settlement day.

contek. Strife; contention; contestation.

contemner. A person who commits a contempt.

contemnor. A person guilty of contempt of court.

contemplated. In expectation.

contemplated suicide. As the term appears in a statute relative to the defense of suicide in an action on a life insurance policy, it means an insured who intended or had resolved to commit suicide at the time he applied for the policy. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v Florida (CA8 Mo) 69 F 932, cert den 163 US 675, 41 L Ed 311, 16 S Ct 1198.

contemplation of bankruptcy. A phrase of some pertinence under former bankruptcy acts, having reference to an assignment, conveyance, or transfer made or given with bankruptcy proceedings, voluntary or involuntary in mind, and with the intent of removing the thing assigned or property conveyed from administration and distribution in bankruptcy.

It is to be observed that under the present Bankruptcy Act, actual intent is not an element of a voidable preference. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1082; neither is it an element of a fraudulent preference under the Act. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1115.

contemplation of death. That expectancy of death which actuates the mind of the person on doing the act in question. Anno: 4 ALR 1523; something more than the general expectation of death which all persons entertain; an apprehension of death arising from some existing infirmity or impending peril. Anno: 21 ALR 1336.

Within the meaning of the inheritance tax statutes, for a transfer of property to be "in contemplation of death," it is not necessary that the transferor be in fear of immediate death from an existing malady, as a gift causa mortis, but, on the contrary it is conceivable that a person of comparative youth, enjoying perfect health and vigor, may, nevertheless, make a transfer of his property in contemplation of death. Chambers v Larronde, 196 Cal 100, 235 P 1024, 41 ALR 980, 989.

As the words are used in succession tax statutes dealing with gifts made "in contemplation of death," they refer to an expectation of death which arises from such a bodily or mental condition as prompts persons to dispose of their property, and bestow it on those whom they regard as entitled to their bounty. Re Dessert, 154 Wis 320, 142 NW 647.

contemplation of insolvency. The attitude of the officers of a bank when it becomes known, or reasonably should be apparent, to them that the bank presently will be unable to meet its obligations and will be obliged to suspend its ordinary operations. Smith v Baldwin, 63 App DC 72, 69 F2d 390.

See contemplation of bankruptcy.

contemplation of parties rule. The rule of damages applied in actions for breach of contract that the damages recoverable for the breach are such as may fairly and reasonably be considered as arising naturally -that is, according to the usual course of things from the breach of contract itself, or such as reasonably may be supposed to have been in the contemplation of both parties at the time they made the contract, as the probable result of the breach. 22 Am J2d Damg § 56. In the great majority of cases the courts have refused to apply this rule in tort actions. Anno: 48 ALR 318.

Contemporanea expositio est fortissima in lege. A contemporaneous interpretation is best in law. State v George, 134 La 177, 63 So 866.

Contemporanea expositio est optima et fortissima in lege. A contemporaneous construction is best and most powerful in law. Boyd v United States, 116 US 616, 622, 29 L Ed 746, 748, 6 S Ct 524.

contemporaneous. Occurring at the same time as another occurrence or event; occurring at a time within a period during which another occurrence or event is occurring. Hilton Lumber Co. v Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. 141 NC 171, 53 SE 823.

contemporaneous construction. The doctrine of statutory interpretation that a statute under construction, because of ambiguity, should be viewed in the light of conditions surrounding at the time of the passage of the statute. Houghton v Payne, 194 US 88, 48 L Ed 888.

contemporaneously. In a statute prohibiting discrimination in freight rates, the word does not mean that the shipment must have been made the exact day and hour, or necessarily in the same month; but it means a period of time through which the shipments of goods or freight are made by the complaining party at one rate and by other shippers at another rate. Hilton Lumber Co. v Atlantic Coastline Railroad Co. 141 NC 171, 53 SE 823.

contemporaneous services. As the term is used in a statute forbidding discrimination by a carrier, it means services within a period of time through which shipments of goods are made by one shipper at one rate and by other shippers at another rate. Hilton Lumber Co. v Atlantic Coastline R. Co. 141 NC 171, 53 SE 823.

contempt. An exhibition of scorn or disrespect toward a court or legislative body.

contemptiliter. Contemptuously; with intent to commit a contempt.

contempt of Congress. Conduct against the dignity or in disrespect of Congress in its proceedings of a legislative character, or in the course of an inquiry within the legitimate scope of the legislative functions of Congress, where such conduct has the effect of obstructing the proceedings or inquiry. 17 Am J2d Contpt § 125.

[259]

contempt of court. Conduct tending to bring the authority and administration of the law into disrespect or disregard, interfering with or prejudicing parties or their witnesses during the litigation, or otherwise tending to impede, embarrass, or obstruct the court in the discharge of its duties. 17 Am J2d Contpt § 3.

See civil contempt; criminal contempt.

contempt of legislature. Conduct exhibiting such disrespect for a legislative body as to impair its usefulness or conduct impeding the body or a committee thereof in performing legislative functions. 17 Am J2d Contpt § 119.

See contempt of Congress.

contenement. Countenance; appearance; that which is necessarily appurtenant to a tenement. Lord Coke says "contenement signifieth his countenance, as the armour of a soldier is his countenance, the books of a scholar his countenance, and the like." See 4 Bl Comm 379.

contention. That for which one contends; that which one claims, or asserts, or argues in support of.

contentious jurisdiction. That jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical courts which is concerned with administering redress to injuries, that is in the litigation of controversies between adverse parties. The term is employed in contradistinction to voluntary jurisdiction, which merely administers those routine affairs connected with the church in which there is no opposition, such as the granting of dispensations, which Blackstone refers to as "remnants of papal extortions." See 3 Bl Comm 66.

contents. All articles and things contained in a designated holder or place; a word of comprehensive meaning in the context of a will, except as a consideration of the will in its entire context reveals the testator's intent to use the word in a special and restricted sense. Old Colony Trust Co. v Hale, 302 Mass 68, 80 NE2d 432, 120 ALR 1207.

contents of a chose in action. The rights created by the chose in action in favor of the party in whose behalf stipulations are made in it which he has a right to enforce in a suit founded on the contract; and a suit to enforce such stipulations is a suit to recover such contents. Austin Corbin v Black Hawk County, 105 US 659, 26 L Ed 1136.

contents unknown. An expression used in filling out bills of lading importing that the carrier has received certain packages described as containing, or purporting to contain, certain specified articles, the actual contents of which were unknown to the carrier. A qualifying phrase in a bill of lading which permits the shipper to show that a quantity of goods greater than that shown by the bill of lading was delivered by him to the carrier. 13 Am J2d Car § 283.

conterminous. Adjoining; a common boundary, contest. Noun: An attempt to defeat the probate of an instrument offered as a will, being inclusive of resistance to probate and an action or proceeding to set aside probate. 57 Am J1st Wills § 743; a technical term for a proceeding to cancel or defeat an entry of public lands. 42 Am J1st Pub L § 31; within the meaning of an incontestable clause in an insurance policy: -some affirmative or defensive action taken in court to cancel the policy or prevent its enforcement, to which the insurer and the insured, or his representatives or beneficiaries, are parties. Anno: 36 AL.K 1245, 64 ALR 959, 101 ALR 868; a proceeding by which a disagreement as to the result of an election of a public officer may be determined. 26 Am J2d Elect § 316.

The phrase "contested election" has no technical or legally defined meaning, but an election may be said to be contested whenever an objection is formally urged against it which, if found to be true in fact, would invalidate it. This must be true both as to objections founded upon some constitutional provision as well as upon any mere statutory enactment. Robertson v State ex rel. Smith, 109 Ind 79, 116.

Verb: To make a subject of dispute, contention, or litigation; to call in question; to controvert; to oppose; to dispute; to defend, as a suit or other judicial proceeding; to dispute or resist, as a claim, by course of law; to litigate. Robertson v State ex rel. Smith, 109 Ind 79, 116; Moran v Moran, 144 Iowa 451, 123 NW 202.

contestatio litis. (Civil law.) The general assertion of the defendant in an action that the plaintiff has no ground of action, which assertion is afterwards extended and maintained in the defendant's plea. Sec 3 Bl Comm 296.

Contestatio litis eget terminos contradictorios. An issue requires contradictory conclusions.

contested. Opposed; resisted; attacked through legal proceedings.

See contest.

contest of election. See contest.

contest of land entry. See contest.

contest of life insurance policy. See contest. contest of will. See contest.

context. The words or language of a written instrument or a statute which accompany the part of the instrument or statute which is under construction.

contiguous. Literally, in actual contact, an actual touching. One parcel of land is "contiguous" to another parcel of land when the two parcels are not separated by outside land. See Vestal v Little Rock, 54 Ark 321, 15 SW 891. Appearing in statutes, the term is construed at times somewhat differently, depending upon the context and subject matter of the entire statute. 50 Am J1st Stat § 288. In its popular sense, and as used in local improvement acts, the word means in actual or close contact; touching; adjacent; or near. 48 Am J1st Spec A § 119. Within the meaning of homestead statutes, whether lands touching at a common corner only are contiguous is a question upon which the decisions are in conflict. Some decisions hold that they are. Others hold that the homestead law may not be invoked in respect to two parcels which only corner with each other. The view has also been expressed that under the strict definition of the term "contiguous," as meaning touching sides, adjoining, or adjacent, two tracts of land which touch only at one point are not contiguous. 26 Am J1st Home § 37. A building 25 feet from another building is not "contiguous" to it within the meaning of the provision in a fire insurance policy as to the erection of the building contiguous to that insured. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 878.

See adjacent.

[260]

contiguous territory. Touching, adjoining, and connecting territory, as distinguished from territory separated by other territory. 25 Am J2d Elect § 18.

continens. (Roman law.) Joined together.

Continental Shelf. See Outer Continental Shelf.

continenti. See ex continenti.

contingency. That which possesses the quality of being contingent or casual; the possibility of coming to pass; an event which may occur; a possibility. Anno: 41 ALR 146. A technical term in an inheritance tax statute which has reference to a contingent interest which might affect the duration of the interest to be enjoyed by the person receiving the transfer or succession. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 561.

contingency on which the claim is founded. A term appearing in limitation provisions in a federal statute on veterans' insurance which means, in the case of death benefits, the death of the insured, and, in the case of disability benefits, the inception of total disability. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1995.

contingency with a double aspect. See remainders on a contingency with a double aspect.

contingent. Possible, or liable, but not certain, to occur; incidental; casual; dependent on that which is undetermined or unknown; dependent for effect on something that may or may not occur. All anticipated future events which are not certain to occur are contingent events, and may be properly denominated mere possibilities, more or less remote, while anticipated events which are certain to occur, or must necessarily occur, are in no degree contingent. Anno: 41 ALR 146.

See expressions commencing "conditional."

contingent beneficial interest. See contingent interest.

contingent bequest. A legacy which is intended by the testator to vest only in the event and upon condition of the happening of a contingency named therein. If the time of payment merely be postponed, and it appears to be the intention of the testator that his bounty should immediately attach, the legacy is of the vested kind; but if the time be annexed to the substance of the gift, as a condition precedent, it is contingent, and not transmissible. Furness v Fox, 55 Mass 1 Cush 134; Magoffin v Patton (Pa) 4 Rawle 113, 116.

See conditional legacy or devise.

contingent claim. A liability which depends upon some future event which may or may not happen, and which, therefore, makes it wholly uncertain whether ultimately there ever will be a liability. Re Ayeres, 123 Neb 453, 243 NE 274. A claim against an insolvent contingent upon the happening of some occurrence which has not happened at the time when claim is made. 29 Am J Rev ed Insolv § 35.

contingent delivery. Same as conditional delivery.

contingent estate. An estate limited so that the person to whom or the event upon which it is to take effect remains uncertain. 33 Am J1st Life Est § 97.

contingent fee. A fee of an attorney the amount of which or the payment of which depends upon the outcome of the litigation. 7 Am J2d Attys § 214.

contingent fee contract. A contract between an attorney at law and a client wherein the former agrees to represent the latter as the latter's attorney at law in the commencement and prosecution of a suit on behalf of the latter for a fee amounting to a certain percent of the amount of the judgment obtained in the action for the client, no charge to be made by the attorney against the client in the event the action is not successful in behalf of the client. In general, such contracts are valid, but they are made invalid by the inclusion of a condition whereby the attorney obligates himself to save the client harmless from costs and expenses of the litigation. 7 Am J2d Attys §§ 214 et seq.

contingent intent. An intent to act, subject to a contingency, as where one proposes to inflict violence upon the person of another, provided the latter does not comply with an order. 6 Am J2d Asslt & B § 30.

contingent interest. An interest which is uncertain either as to the person who will enjoy it in possession or as to the event on which it will arise. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1217. A future interest is contingent where the person to whom or the event upon which it is limited to take effect in possession or become a vested estate is uncertain. Caine v Payne, 86 App DC 404, 182 F2d 246, 20 ALR2d 823. If the condition upon which a future interest depends is precedent, the interest is contingent; if the condition is subsequent, the interest is vested, subject to defeasance. Anno: 131 ALR 712.

contingent legacy. See contingent bequest.

contingent liability. A liability arising out of contract, the duty to perform which is dependent as to when or whether the obligation shall become absolute, upon the occurrence of an event the happening of which is a matter of some uncertainty. Haywood v Shreve, 44 NJL 94, 104.

contingent remainder. An estate in remainder under a limitation which is uncertain as to the person who is to take or as to the event upon which the preceding estate is to terminate, so that the preceding estate may terminate and yet the remainder never take effect. Re Youngs Will, 248 Iowa 309, 79 NW2d 376.

A contingent remainder is only the possibility or prospect of an estate, which exists when what would otherwise be a vested remainder is subject to a condition precedent, or is created in favor of an uncertain person or persons. Sands v Fly, 200 Penn 414, 292 SW2d 706, 57 ALR2d 188.

See remainders on a contingency with a double aspect.

contingent right. A right which depends on the performance of some condition or the happening of some event before some other event or condition happens or is performed. 16 Am J2d Const L § 421.

See contingent interest.

contingent use. A use, the vesting of which is conditioned upon the happening of some uncertain event. Haywood v Shreve, 44 NJL 94, 104.

contingent will. Same as conditional will.

continual claim. A formal claim of right to the possession of land made by a person entitled thereto who does not dare enter through fear of his life or bodily harm. The claimant thus effects a livery in law, if he makes such claim during the lilt of the feoffor. 2 Bl Comm 316.

continuance. An adjournment of a cause from one day to another, in the same or in a later term, or to a later hour of the same day. 17 Am 12d Contin § 1.

A continuance is usually thought of as an adjournment granted on an application by one of the parties, but it may result by the agreement of both parties, by an order made by the court on its own motion, or by operation of law, the latter result occurring where cases noted for trial are not disposed of at the end of a term of court; such cases necessarily must be continued to the next term and are so continued without any special order of court. 17 Am J2d Contin § 2.

continuance in good health. A condition in a life insurance policy construed by some authorities to mean that there have been no changes in the condition of the insured's health following the making of the application for insurance, but other authorities hold that the condition requires that the applicant be in good health at the time the policy is issued or delivered, irrespective of whether or not the condition was the same at delivery as it was at the application for the policy. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 224.

continuando. In trespasses of a permanent nature, where the injury is continually renewed -as by spoiling or consuming the herbage with the defendant's cattle, -the declaration may allege the injury to have been committed by continuation from one given day to another -which is called laying the action with a "continuando" and the plaintiff shall not be compelled to bring separate actions for every day's separate offense. But where the trespass is by one or several acts, each of which terminates in itself, and being once done cannot be done again, it cannot be laid with a "continuando;" yet if there be repeated acts of trespass committed, as cutting down a certain number of trees, they may be said to be done, not continually, but at divers days and times within a given period. 3 Bl Comm 212.

continuando assisam. See de continuando assisam.

continue. To endure; to remain, as to remain in office. State ex rep. Robert v Murphy, 32 Fla 138, 197. To grant a continuance.

See continuance.

continued drunkenness. Gross and confirmed habits of intoxication. Gourlay v Gourlay, 16 RI 705, 19 A 142.

continuing bail. A form of statutory bail which extends the obligation of the surety from term to term, until the accused is discharged or surrendered to the proper official. 8 Am J2d Bail § 99.

continuing consideration. A consideration partly executed and partly executory. Hargroves v Cooke, 15 Ga 321, 326.

continuing contempt. A failure or refusal to comply with the order of the court to deliver or pay money, or the like, or to purge the contempt. Tindall v Westcott, 113 Ga 1114, 39 SE 450.

continuing contract. An executory, as distinguished from an executed contract. 17 Am J2d Contr § 6. A contract calling for performance in several units over a period of time. Spaeth v Beckett, 150 Or 111, 41 P2d 1064, 97 ALR 771.

continuing crime. Same as continuing offense.

continuing damages. Intermittent or occasional damages, sometimes called temporary damages, for the recovery of which successive actions may be required. 22 Am J2d Damg § 28.

continuing guaranty. A guaranty which covers a series of transactions or a succession of credits extended to the principal debtor, its purpose being to give him standing credit usable from time to time. 24 Am J1st Guar § 18.

continuing jurisdiction. An expression of variable meaning: --(1) the jurisdiction of a court, once invoked by the commencement of an action, from that time to the final termination of the action; (2) jurisdiction for relief after final judgment; (3) and the jurisdiction of a court to which a case has been sent in granting a motion for change of venue.

continuing offense. A continuous unlawful act or a series of acts set on foot by a single impulse and operated by an unintermittent force, however long a time it may occupy; a continuing offense is of such nature that it may be committed partly in one county or district and partly in another, or continuously in several. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 392.

continuing offer. An offer which is to be kept open for a certain time, or a proposal made to be accepted within a specified time. 17 Am J2d Contr § 32. If it is supported by a consideration, it is usually called an "option."

See option.

continuing recognizance. See continuing bail.

continuing trespass. A wrongful act involving a course of action which is a direct invasion of the rights of another. 52 Am J1st Tresp § 18. A trespass in the taking of goods, although without intent to appropriate them, followed by an appropriation, the original trespass being deemed to continue to the time of the appropriation, so that the subsequent appropriation is larceny. State v Coombs, 55 Me 477. But see People v Laurence, 137 NY 517, 33 NE 547.

continuing wrong. See continuing trespass.

continuous account. See open account; running account.

continuous adverse possession. See continuous possession.

continuous and uninterrupted use. A term of the law of prescription, meaning a use that is not interrupted by the act of the owner of the servient premises or by voluntary abandonment by the person claiming the easement. 25 Am J2d Ease §§ 56, 57.

continuous disability. A disability which continues without interruption. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1528.

continuous easement. An easement, the enjoyment of which may continue without the necessity of any actual interference by man; an easement depending upon some artificial structure upon, or natural formation of, the servient tenement, obvious and permanent, and constituting a means of enjoying the easement, such as the bed of a running stream, an overhanging roof, a drain, or a sewer. 25 Am J2d Ease § 10.

continuous employment. See continuously employed.

continuously. Uninterruptedly, in an unbroken sequence, without intermission or cessation, without intervening time. Rocci v Massachusetts Acci. Co. 222 Mass 336, 10 NE 972. Regularly, protracted, enduringly, and without substantial interruption of sequence, as distinguished from irregularly, spasmodically, intermittently, or occasionally. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1528.

continuously employed. As used in a provision of a group insurance policy requiring, as a condition of disability benefits, that claimants shall have been "continuously employed" for two full years, the term refers to employment that has not been terminated or interrupted during the prescribed period; a layoff does not, of itself, interrupt or terminate the employment. Transky v Metropolitan L. Ins. Co. 232 Wis 474, 287 NW 731, 124 ALR 1489; Anno: 124 ALR 1494.

[262]

continuously resided. Remaining in a place without a change of legal residence, which does not mean that there has not been a temporary absence, or even somewhat of an extended period of absence, so long as the intent to change residence was not present. Allan v Allan, 132 Conn 1, 42 A2d 347, 159 ALR 493. Under an immigration act providing for exemption from exclusion in cases of five years of continuous residence, such continuous residence cannot be made up by tacking together two or more visits to this country, each of which was less than five years, although continuous residence in a place does not always mean continually remaining in that place, "residence" not being synonymous with "immovability." See United States v Curran (CA2 NY) 11 F2d 468.

continuous possession. An element of adverse possession, being such continuity of possession as will furnish a cause of action for everyday during the whole period required to perfect title by adverse possession, 3 Am J2d Adv P § 54; that possession of a claimant from which, his acts and conduct, it is apparent to men of ordinary prudence that he is asserting and exercising ownership over the property, taking into consideration the nature, character and location of the property and the uses for which it is fitted or to which it has been put. 3 Am J2d Adv P § 54.

continuous quotations. Market reports on prices of commodities or stocks bought and sold which are collected and circulated at intervals of less than 10 or 15 minutes. 50 Am J1st Stock Ex § 16. The modern instrumentalities in brokers' offices give quotations almost immediately after the transactions from which they are taken.

continuous residence. See continuously resided.

continuous retraction of agreement. This can mean no more than breach of agreement. Hotel & Restaurant Employees & Bartenders Union v Boca Raton Club, Inc. (Fla) 73 So 2d 867, 48 ALR2d 986.

continuous service. As a condition of a right to holiday pay under a collective bargaining agreement, "continuous service" is service without deliberate stoppage of work for several days but not without breaks for personal reasons which would appeal to reasonable men to be excusable under the circumstances. Kennedy v Westinghouse Elec. Corp. 16 NJ 280, 108 A2d 409, 47 ALR2d 1025.

continuous servitude. See continuous and uninterrupted use; continuous easement.

contra. Otherwise; the other way; disagreeing with; contrary to.
See a contra.

contraband. Intoxicating liquor kept or transported in violation of law. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 475; intoxicating liquors imported into the state without the certificate prescribed by law. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 204.

contraband of war. All such articles as may serve a belligerent in the direct prosecution of his hostile purposes. 56 Am J1st War § 157. The term is applicable to goods only, not to persons. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 989.

contra bonos mores. Contrary to good morals, having mischievous or pernicious consequences. Exchange Nat. Bank v Henderson, 139 Ga 260, 77 SE 36; against true principles of morality. State v Smith, 24 NC 402.

contra-causator. A person who has committed a crime.

contraceptive. A drug or device used to prevent the fertilization of human ovum.

contraceptive method. A means or method of preventing pregnancy and the ultimate result, birth. 12 Am J2d Birth C § 1.

contract. Noun: A term which is simple in its superficial aspect but actually difficult of succinct definition, since nothing less than the whole body of applicable precedent will suffice for the purpose of definition. Williston, Contracts 3rd ed § 1; summarily defined as an agreement upon sufficient consideration to do, or refrain from doing, a particular lawful thing. 17 Am J2d Contr § 1. For the purposes of the Uniform Commercial Code, "contract" means the total legal obligation which results from the parties' agreement as affected by the code and other applicable rules of law. UCC § 1-201(1 1). In popular speech, the word "contract" is frequently used as meaning the work done under a contract. Independent Bridge Co. v Aetna Casualty & S. Co. 316 Pa 266, 175 A 644, 96 ALR 549; a work or improvement for the prosecution of which public authorities have entered into a contract. Independent Bridge Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. 316 Pa 266, 175 A 644, 96 ALR 549. Within the meaning of the obligation of contract clause of the Federal Constitution, the term "contract" includes not only contracts as the word is ordinarily understood, but all instruments, ordinances and measures, by whatever name known, which embody the inherent qualities or purposes of valid contracts and carry like them their reciprocal obligations of good faith. 16 Am J2d Const L §§ 438et seq. Verb: To enter into a binding obligation of contract.

See consideration; executed contract; executory contract; implied contract; parol contract; quasi contract.

contract against public policy. See public policy.

contract by parol. See parol contract.

contract by specialty. See specialty.

contract carrier. A private carrier; a carrier which does not undertake to carry for all persons indiscriminately but transport only for those with whom they see fit to contract. 13 Am J2d Car § 8.

See contract hauler; private carrier.

contract carrier by motor vehicle. A private carrier by motor vehicle; a carrier which does not carry for all persons indiscriminately but only under individual contracts with the various customers whom it chooses to serve. Interstate Commerce Com. v A. W. Stickle & Co. (DC Okla) 41 F Supp 268 Motor Haulage Co. v Maltbie, 293 NY 338, 57 NE2d 41, 161 ALR 401. The question of who are contract carriers by motor vehicle under statutes relating to the use of highways by such carriers depends upon the particular operations of the carrier, as well as the individual statutory provisions, involved. Anno: 175 ALR 1342.

contract clause. That clause contained in the first paragraph of the tenth section of the first article of the Federal Constitution, providing that no state shall pass any law impairing the obligation of contract. Trustees of Dartmouth College v Woodward (US) 4 Wheat 518, 4 L Ed 629.

[263]

contract for hire. See contract of hire.

contract hauler. As defined by a state statute regulating motor carriers, the term means every person hauling, controlling or operating, or managing any motor vehicle used in the business of transporting property for compensation. State ex rel. Scott v Superior Court, 173 Wash 547, 24 P2d 87.

See contract carrier.

contract implied in fact or in law. See implied contract; quasi contract.

contract in restraint of trade. See restraint of trade.

Contractions. The shortening of a word or phrase, Eg. "don't" for do not; abbreviations.

Contractio rei alienae animo furandi, est furtum. Larceny is the taking and carrying away of a thing with intent to steal.

contract laborers. Emigrants who, without sufficient means in their own hands or in those of their friends, agree in consideration of the payment of their passage, to accept designated employment in the United States at stated wages, usually the lowest possible rate. Church of Holy Trinity v United States, 143 US 457, 36 L Ed 226, 12 S Ct 511.

See convict labor.

Contract Labor Law. The federal statute regulating and restricting the practice of inducing immigration by paying the expenses of travel to the United States for the purpose of obtaining cheap manual labor. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 62.

See convict labor.

contract lien. A security, charge, or claim in the nature of a lien on real or personal property whereof a party is the owner or in possession, which he may, by manifest intent and agreement create and which a court of equity will enforce against him, his heirs and personal representatives, and volunteers or claimants under him with notice of the agreement. See 33 Am J1st Liens § 19.

contract malam in se. See contracts mala in se.

contract mala prohibita. See contracts mala prohibita.

contract not to be performed within a year. See agreement not to be performed within a year.

contract of adhesion. See adhesion contract.

contract of affreightment. See charter of affreightment.

contract of agency. A contract between principal and agent which ordinarily is the basis of the relation between them. 3 Am J2d Agency §§ 2, 17, 18. The agency relationship is not necessarily based upon contract, since the relationship may be created by operation of law or by the agent's assuming his position gratuitously. 3 Am J2d Agency § 2.

contract of beneficence. A contract for the benefit of one of the parties only.

contract of carriage. The undertaking of a common carrier to transport goods to a particular destination, including the obligation of a safe delivery of them, within a reasonable time, to the consignee. Alabama Great Southern Railroad Co. v Con turie, 145 Ala 436, 40 So 120.

See bill of lading; contract carrier; ticket.

contract of employment. See contract of hire; employment contract.

contract of guaranty. See guaranty.

contract of hire. A contract whereby the use of a thing, or the services or labor of a person are stipulated to be given for a certain reward. Wingate v Wingate, 11 Tex 430, 437. As used in a state unemployment compensation law, the term means an agreement whereby one undertakes or obligates himself to render personal service for another for a remuneration to be paid because the service was rendered, regardless of the element of profit or loss resulting from the work. Fuller Brush Co. v Industrial Com. 99 Utah 97, 104 P2d 201, 129 ALR 511.

contract of indemnity. See indemnity.

contract of indorsement. See indorsement.

contract of insurance. See insurance; insurance contract.

contract of marriage. A contract between a man and a woman whereby they mutually agree to enter into a matrimonial relationship, and which becomes executed by their act of marriage. Lewis v Tapman, 90 Md 294, 45 A 459.

See marriage articles.

contract of mateship. A contract called "mating" entered into between the masters of two whaling ships, whereby they enter into a species of partnership in the business of taking whales and procuring oil; so that if the ships cruise together, they divide equally the oil procured by both, before they separate; or, if they cruise separately, upon their first meeting afterward, they make an equal division of their oil. If they are not then full, they proceed independently or enter into a new contract of mateship. If, after agreeing to mate, they accidentally separate and do not meet again until after the completion of the voyage, neither can claim of the other if either returns filled with oil. But when they do meet abroad after such mateship, the settlement and division of oil take place immediately, unless one has filled. Baxter v Rodman, 20 Mass (3 Pick) 435.

contract of record. A contract recorded pursuant to recording statutes, for example, a contract for the sale of real estate. 45 Am J1st Records § 38.

While a judgment is in no proper sense a contract, judgments have sometimes been classed as "contracts of record." O'Brien v Young, 95 NY 428, 436.

contract of sale. See contract to sell; executed contract of sale; executory contract of sale; land contract.

contract of sale or return. See sale or return.

contract of suretyship. See suretyship.

contractor. Literally, a person who has assumed obligations as a party to a contract, but in common usage, a person who pursues an occupation or business, wherein he contracts to render services for others, including public bodies, in building, painting, excavating, etc., the most significant feature of which is that while he may have an "employer" in the broad sense of that term, he is not under direction in respect of the means by which his work is accomplished. Storm v Thompson, 185 Iowa 309, 170 NW 403, 20 ALR 658, 660; Smith v Milwaukee Builders & Traders' Exchange, 91 Wis 360, 367. As used in a mechanic's lien statute, a "contractor" is a person who furnishes labor and appliances necessary for the work, and who pays therefor, but who does not work or labor personally. Little Rock, H. S. & T. Railway v Spencer & Maney, 65 Ark 183, 47 SW 196. The word in a statutory provision giving his employee a right to claim compensation, under the Workmen's Compensation Act, from the principal where specific conditions are met, has the same significance as "independent contractor," and the test in determining whether the employer is a "contractor" is the same as that which determines whether a person who is himself claiming compensation is an employee or an independent contractor. United States Fidelity & G. Co. v Spring Brook, 135 Conn 294, 64 A2d 39, 13 ALR2d 769.

[264]

See independent contractor; subcontractor.

contractors' bonds. Bonds of two types: -(1) a performance bond which guarantees that the contractor will perform the contract and if he defaults and fails to complete the contract, the surety will complete the work or pay damages up to the limit of the bond; (2) a labor and materials payment bond which guarantees the owner that all bills for labor and materials contracted for and used by the contractor will be paid by the surety if the contractor defaults. 17 Am J2d Cent Bonds § 1.

contractor's lien. A lien which arises by operation of law, independently of the express terms of any contract, which a contractor has upon the premises upon which he has erected improvements. This lien springs out of the obligation of the owner to pay for the stipulated labor and the promised materials, when furnished, provided the contractor shall give the notice required by statute. Richmond & Irvine Constr. Co. v Richmond, N. I. & B. Railroad Co. (CA6 Ky) 68 F 105.

See mechanic's lien.

contract price. Literally, the amount to be paid under a contract of sale, a contract to render services, or a construction contract. In a contract for the construction of a building, the words "contract price" were held to mean not the abstract price or amount agreed to be paid by the owner to the builder, but the sum which the builder was actually entitled to receive for the whole of the work done by him. Doll v Young, 149 Ky 347, 350, 149 SW 854.

See total contract price.

contract right. Any right to payment under a contract not yet earned by performance and not evidenced by an instrument or chattel paper. 15 Am J2d Com C § 52.

contracts mala in se. Contracts which are absolutely void because the acts to be performed thereunder are immoral, iniquitous, and contrary to a sound public policy, as well as in violation of statute. 17 Am J2d Contr § 167.

contracts mala prohibita. Contracts which are not absolutely void in all instances because the acts to be performed thereunder are prohibited by statute, but are void or voidable according to the nature and effect of the act prohibited. 17 Am J2d Contr § 167. It is to be noted, however, that substantial authority supports the elimination of distinction based upon theories playing upon the terms "mala in se" and "mala prohibita. 17 Am J2d Contr § 167.

contract system. The system in vogue in the management of the prisons whereby the labor of prisoners is sold or farmed out by contract. People v Hawkins, 157 NY 1, 51 NE 257.

contract to adopt. A contract to adopt another as a child of the latter which is usually ineffective to complete a legal adoption in itself, but, even if not consummated and given legal effect by adoption proceedings during the lifetime of the adopting parent, may, upon the latter's death be enforced by declaring a right of inheritance in favor of the child. 2 Am J2d Adopt § 8.

contract to contract. A contract, upon a valid consideration, that the parties will at some specified time in the future, at the election of one of them, enter into a particular contract, specifying its terms. 17 Am J2d Contr § 26.

contract to repair. See repair.

contract to sell. A contract whereby the seller agrees to transfer the property in goods to the buyer for a consideration called the price. 46 Am J1st Sales § 2.

See executed contract of sale; executory contract of sale; land contract; sale.

contractu. See ex contractu.

contractual. Pertaining to a contract or to a relation between persons created by a contract, express or implied. A term often applied to the older concept of the assumption by an employee of the risks and dangers covered by the contract of employment. Ashton v Boston & Maine Railroad Co. 222 Mass 65, 109 NE 820.

contractual consideration. Literally, the consideration for a contract, but in a more technical sense, a consideration to be determined as to amount, manner, and means of payment according to a provision or provisions of the contract, such being distinguished from a consideration merely recited in the contract, as to which parol evidence in explanation is admissible.

contractual obligation. An obligation arising out of a contract, express or implied. Halsey v Minnesota-South Carolina Land & Timber Co. 174 SC 97, 177 SE 29, 100 ALR 1.

contract uberrimae fidei. A contract which calls for the utmost of good faith and fair dealing between the parties, of which an insurance contract is a good example. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 689.

See uberrima fides.

contract under seal. A specialty; a written promise signed by the promisor and sealed with his seal. Such obligations derived their force from their form and were enforceable before the evolution of the doctrine of consideration as applicable to simple contracts. 17 Am J2d Contr § 85.

See specialty.

contractus. A contract See forum contractus.

contractus bonae fidei. A Roman law contract which was subject to an equitable defense.

Contractus est quasi actus contra actum. A contract is, as it were, "actus" (an act) "contra" (for) "actum" (an act).

Contractus ex turpi causa, vel contra bonus mores nullus est. A contract with an evil consideration or one against good morals is void.

Contractus legem ex conventionem accipiunt.

[265]

(Civil law.) Contracts take their law from the agreement.

contradict. To say the contrary; to give evidence to disprove testimony which has been received.

contradiction in terms. An expression which contradicts itself.

contradiction of witness. The introduction of evidence contrary to the testimony of the witness. A method of impeachment where confined to matters material to the issue. 58 Am J1st Witn §§ 782, 783.

contradictory defenses. See inconsistent defenses.

contradictory instructions. Instructions given to the jury containing contradictory and conflicting rule without explanation, so that following one of them will lead to a result different from that which will obtain if another is followed. 53 Am J1st Trial § 557.

contraescriptura. An instrument executed secretly by parties to a public contract, the effect of which is intended to change or modify the terms of the contract.

contrafactio. Counterfeiting.

Contra fictionem non admittitur probatio. Proof is not received to contradict a fiction of the law. See 3 Bl Comm 43, note.

contra formam collationis. Against the form of the collation, -a writ by which a donor of lands to be held by religious service, could recover the lands after they had been wrongfully alienated.

contra formam doni. Against the form of the gift or grant.

contra formam feoffamenti. Against the form of the feoffment, -a writ whereby a tenant could resist the demanded performance of more services than the charter of his ancestor required.

contra formam statuti. Against the form of the statute.

contra formam statuti in hoc casu nuper edict et provis. Against the form of the statute in such case lately made and provided.

contra hostem. See expeditio contra hostem.

contrainte par corps. An arrest of the body; an imprisonment for debt.

contra jus belli. Against the laws of war.

contra jus commune. Against common right.

Contra legem facit qui id facit quod lex prohibet; in fraudem vero qui, salvis verbis legis, sententiam ejus circumvenit. He who does what the law prohibits acts contrary to law; he who acts in fraud of it, the letter of the law being inviolate, cheats the spirit of it.

contra legem terrae. Against the law of the land.

contra leges et statuta. Against the laws and the statutes.

contraligatio. A counter-obligation.

contramandatio placiti. An extension of the time to plead.

Contra negantem principia non est disputandum. It is useless to dispute with one who denies principles.

Contra non valentem agere non currit praescriptio. Prescription does not run against a person who is under a legal disability to sue. The maxim is from the civil law, which held as does our law, that there must not only be a right of action to support a cause of action, but also there must be some person in existence who may sue. Tynan v Walker, 35 Cal 634, 637.

Contra non valentem agere nulls currit praescriptio. No prescription runs against a person who is unable to act. See Broom's Legal Maxims 903.

contra omnes gentes. Against all the people.

Contra omnes homines fidelitatem fecit. He took oath of fealty against all men. See 1 Bl Comm 367.

contra pacem. Against the peace.

contra pacem ballivorum. Against the peace of the bailiffs. By the ancient law, in all peculiar jurisdictions, offenses were said to be committed against the peace of the court in which they were tried and if they were tried in the court of a corporation they were "contra pacem ballivorum." See 1 Bl Comm 117.

contra pacem domini. Against the peace of the king. At common law all crimes were treated as being against the king's peace. See 1 Bl Comm 166.

contra pacem regis. Against the peace of the king. Any public offense which was committed within the kingdom of England was said to be committed against the king's peace. Commonwealth v Macloon, 101 Mass 1.

contra pacem vice-comitis. Against the peace of the sheriff. That is, against the peace of the sheriff's court in which the offense was tried. See 1 Bl Comm 117.

contraplacitum. A counter plea.

contrapositio. A plea.

contra proferentem. Against the offeror; against the party offering the evidence.

contra regiam proclamationem. Against the royal proclamation. See Proclamations, 12 Coke's Rep. (Eng) 74.

Contrariorum contraria est ratio. The reason for contrary things is contrary.

contrarotulator. (French.) A controller.

contrary to good morals. Immoral; having mischievous or pernicious consequences. Exchange Nat. Bank v Henderson, 139 Ga 260. 77 SE 36.

contrary to law. Illegal; contrary to any law. General Motors Acceptance Corp. v United States, 286 US 49, 76 L Ed 971, 52 S Ct 468, 82 ALR 600. If the term is used in a later statute dealing with the same subject, it may refer to an infraction of the earlier statute. Callahan v United States, 285 US 515, 76 L Ed 914, 52 S Ct 454.

[266]

See verdict contrary to law.

contrat. (French.) A contract.

contra tabulas. (Civil law.) Contrary to the instrument.

contrat aléatoire. Same as aleatory contract.

contrat de vente. (Civil law.) A contract of sale.

contratenere. To hold against; to withhold.

contravene. To go against; to violate: as, to contravene the constitution.

contravention. Violation; infraction.

Contra veritatem lex nunquam aliquid permittit. The law never allows anything contrary to the truth.

contra voluntatem suam. Against his own will; involuntarily.

contrectare. To take; to deal with; to meddle with.

Contrectatio rei alienae animo furando, est furtum. The taking of the goods of another with intent to steal, is larceny.

contrefacon. (French.) An infraction or infringement of a copyright.

contribute. To make a gift with others, as to a community chest; to help to cause, or to furnish some aid in causing, the result. Broschart v Tuttle, 59 Conn 1, 21 A 925. In the ordinary signification of the word, one thing is understood "to contribute" to a given result when such thing has some share or agency in producing such result, and is not understood to convey the idea that such thing was the efficient cause of such result in the sense that without it such result would not have occurred; for it is possible that such result may have occurred, even in the absence of the thing which is supposed to have had some share or agency in producing such result. Wragge v South Carolina & Georgia Railroad Co. 47 SC 105, 25 SE 76.

contributing to delinquency. An act or omission causing or tending to cause juvenile delinquency. 31 Am J Rev ed Juv Ct § 95.

contribution. A gift made with others, as to the Cancer Fund; the money, property, skill, knowledge, or services, which a party to a joint enterprise puts into the venture. 30 Am J Rev ed Jnt Adv § 9. An aid in following an objective or reaching a result. As used in the law of negligence, the word necessarily connotes a share in causation. Snyder v Bicking, 115 NJL 549, 181 A 161, 102 ALR 409. A payment made by each person, or by any of several persons, having a common interest or liability, of his share in the loss suffered or in the money necessarily paid by one of the parties in behalf of the others. 18 Am J2d Contrib § 1. A joint tortfeasor's right of contribution, where it exists under the law of a particular jurisdiction, is a quasi-contractual right arising by reason of an implied engagement of each tortfeasor to help bear the common burden. Builders Supply Co. v McCabe, 366 Pa 322, 77 A2d 368, 24 ALR2d 319.

See general average.

contribution between beneficiaries. The right of a devisee or legatee, whose devise or legacy has been impaired by the payment of debts of the testator, by the payment of charges imposed against the devise or legacy, or by the exercise of the election of the surviving spouse in respect of the will, to have ether devisees and legatees contribute in defraying the loss caused by such impairment. 57 Am J1st Wills §§ 1408, 1502, 1551.

contribution between cotenants. The principle that where one cotenant has paid a debt or obligation for the benefit of the common property, has discharged a lien or assessment imposed against it, or has purchased an outstanding title, with his own money, he is entitled to have his cotenant or cotenants refund to him their proportionate shares of the amount paid by him or else abandon their interests in the property. Sec 20 Am J2d Coten §§ 76, 77.

contribution between insurers. The obligation of an insurer who has issued a policy covering the same risk and loss as that insured by one or more other insurers to contribute ratably to the other insurer, or one of the other insurers, who has paid the entire loss. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1717.

contributione facienda. See de contributione facienda.

contributory. Additional; added to; supplementary; acting with something else. As a noun the word is applied to a person who is liable as a member of a company to contribute to the assets on the winding up of the company.

contributory cause. A cause aiding in the production of a result. Broschart v Tuttle, 59 Conn 1, 21 A 925.

contributory infringement. Any act or acts whereby one who is not himself in strict parlance an infringer of a patent may yet be held accountable for having aided or encouraged others to infringe. 40 Am J1st Pat § 151.

contributory negligence. A breach of duty on the part of the plaintiff in an action to recover damages for negligence to exercise the standard of care, which is ordinary care, the care that a reasonably prudent person would exercise, for his own safety, such breach constituting a defense, in the absence of legislation to the contrary, where it was a legally contributing cause of the accident. Brakensiek v Nickles, 216 Ark 889, 227 SW2d 948, 34 ALR2d 94, 28 NCCA NS 275; Wertz v Lincoln Liberty L. Ins. Co. 152 Neb 451, 41 NW2d 740, 17 ALR2d 629, 30 NCCA NS 133; Heinis v Lawrence, 160 Neb 652, 71 NW2d 127, 52 ALR2d 1428; 38 Am J1st Negl § 181.

Mutual contributory or co-operative negligence exists when the injury would not have happened but for the negligence or wrong of both parties. See Alexander v Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad Co. (Tex Civ App) 287 SW 153, 155.

The use of the expression "contributory negligence" is restricted to cases in which it appears that both of the parties to the injurious occurrence are responsible therefor. An employer having been negligent, it is appropriate to say that the employee was guilty of contributory negligence, provided, of course, his conduct is subject to such evaluation. 35Am J1st M & S § 243.

contrition. (Eccles.) Regret or penitence for wickedness.

contrivance. Something contrived or arranged, often to deceive; a device; a disguise. Matey v Heichemer,

[267]

81 Colo 379, 256 P 4. A tool, instrument, or other article, made with more or less ingenuity, to accomplish some mechanical purpose, perhaps the twirling of a wheel upon which wagers may be placed. 24 Am J1st Gaming § 57.

contrivance used for gambling. Any instrument whereby money or things of value are won or lost. Gilley v Commonwealth, 312 Ky 584, 229 SW2d 60, 19 ALR2d 1224.

control. Verb: To check, restrain, govern, have under command, and authority. Wolffe v Loeb, 98 Ala 426, 432. Noun: A position of authority in direction and management.

control group. The officers and agents of a corporation authorized to make decisions. Anno: 98 ALR2d 245.

controller. An officer who has charge of the financial affairs of a public or private corporation; a state officer in some states.

controlling interest. A majority of the shares of stock of a corporation. 18 Am J2d Corp § 496.

controlment. The auditing or checking of an account. control of bidding. See chilling bids.

control of car. See control of vehicle.

control of child. The exercise of guardianship, whether that existing by nature, as in the case of a parent, or by operation of law, as in the case of a guardian, over a child, directing him and imposing discipline as direction and discipline are required. A person to whom the control of a child is intrusted ordinarily has the care and the custody of the child, but the word may be so used as to convey the idea that the person may be intrusted with a legal power to direct and dispose of the child without having actual physical care and custody. Cowley v People, 83 NY 464.

control of corporation. Power to dictate the action of the corporation, not the mere management of a department of the operations. 36 Am J1st Monop etc § 132; the ownership or control of the stock of a corporation which has power to dominate the business, together with the voting strength to make that domination effective. Commissioner v Shillito Realty Co. (CA6) 39 F2d 830, 69 ALR 1266; ultimately, the control exercised by the owners of a majority of the shares of stock. 18 Am J2d Corp § 496.

In a legal sense, one corporation cannot be said to "control" another corporation because nearly all of the stock of the latter corporation is owned by the former. Under such circumstances, the corporation owning the shares can elect the board of directors, but there its power of management stops and the control is lodged in the board of directors. Pullman's Palace Car Co. v Missouri Pacific Railway Co. 115 US 587, 596, 29 L Ed 499, 6 S Ct 194.

control of prices. See price control.

control of vehicle. A term of variable meaning: operating with due care; being ready to stop quickly; being attentive in anticipation of the necessity of a sudden turn or stop; having the ability to avoid collision with one using the highway and exercising proper caution on his own part. 7 Am J2d Auto § 354.

See assured clear distance.

control test. A criterion applied in determining whether an organization in the form of a business trust is, in legal effect, a true trust or a partnership. 13 Am J2d Bus Tr § 11.

See loaned servant doctrine.

control tower. A structure built and equipped for the management of air space, the guiding or controlling of aircraft in the air or landing and taking off at airports. 8 Am J2d Avi § 92.

controver. A person who invents false news.

controversy. A word used in delimiting judicial power meaning an issue appropriate for judicial determination, being definite and concrete, concerning legal relations among parties with adverse interests, and being so real and substantial as to be capable of a decision granting or denying specific relief. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v Haworth, 300 US 227, 81 L Ed 617, 57 S Ct 461, 108 ALR 1000, reh den 300 US 687, 81 L Ed 889, 57 S Ct 667. As used in Article III, Section 2, of the Constitution of the United States, the term "controversy" refers to the claims or contentions of litigants brought before the courts for adjudication by regular proceedings established for the protection or enforcement of rights, or the prevention, redress, or punishment of wrongs. Interstate Commerce Com. v Brimson, 154 US 447, 475, 38 L Ed 1047, 1057, 14 S Ct 1125. A "controversy" under the Civil Practice Act provision for bringing in other parties where a complete determination of the controversy cannot be had without their presence, is not confined to the claim originally asserted by the plaintiff against the defendant; it is sufficient that the controversy as delimited by the complaint and counterclaim relates to a single occurrence and presents common questions of law and fact. Johnson v Moon, 3 Ill 2d 561, 121 NE2d 774, 46 ALR2d 1246.

See case; case or controversy.

controverted facts. Facts in issue; a ground for trial and, conversely, for the denial of summary judgment. Associated Press v United States, 326 US 1, 89 L Ed 2013, 65 S Ct 1416.

contubernium. A marriage of slaves.

contumace capiendo. See de contumace capiendo.

contumacious. Stubborn; disobedient.

See contempt.

contumacious witness. A witness who testifies in such a manner as to render him guilty of contempt of court. Re Blim, 5 F Supp 678; a witness who refuses to testify or testifies falsely. 17 Am J2d Contpt §§ 28-33.

contumacy. The contemptuous disobedience of an order of the court; refusal to submit to authority.

See contempt.

contumax. An outlaw.

contumely. Rudeness; indignity; in some jurisdictions, a ground for divorce. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 159.

contusion. A bruise; an injury without a breaking of the skin.

See visible contusion.

contutor. A joint guardian.

conus. Known.

[268]

conusance. Same as cognizance.

conusance of pleas. Exclusive jurisdiction.

conusant. Knowing; having notice or knowledge of anything.

conusee. A person to whom a recognizance is made.

conusor. A person who enters into a recognizance; an ancient form of the word cognizor.

convalescent. Recovering health.

convalescent home. See nursing home.

convalescere. To become valid.

convenable. Suitable; proper.

convene. To assemble; to meet as a body; to call a meeting. (Civil law.) To file an action; to sue.

convenience. Whatever conduces to freedom from difficulty, from trouble, or from annoyance; whatever promotes one's ease or advantage or is fit for one's use or suitable for one's wants. Boston Safe Deposit & T. Co. v Stebbins, 309 Mass 282 34 NE2d 616, 148 ALR 1036; Anno: 2 ALR2d 1390. An opportunity to purchase a thousand-mile ticket for less than the standard rate is not a "convenience," within the rule that the legislature may make regulations of the business of carriers to provide for the safety, health and convenience of the public. Lake Shore & M.S.R. Co. v Smith, 173 US 684, 43 1, Ed 858, 19 S Ct 565.

convenience of employer rule. The rule that excludes the value of meals and lodging furnished an employee in calculating the gross income of the latter. Anno: 84 ALR2d 1217, 1219.

convenience of the maker. An expression used in a note in reference to the time of payment, which, in no event, entitles the maker to more than a reasonable time. 11 Am J2d B & N § 288.

convenient. Fit or adapted to an end; suitable; becoming; appropriate. Grand Island v Oberschulle, 36 Neb 696, 699.

See payable as convenient.

convenient place of business. A suitable or proper place. Susquehanna Fertilizer Co. v Malone, 73 Md 268, 20 A 900.

convening order. A term, otherwise known as the placita, for the statement, usually appearing in the caption of an order of court, that the court was regularly held at a certain time and place.

See placita.

convenire. To covenant; to sue.

convenit. It is agreed.

conventicle. A prayer meeting of dissenters.

conventio. An agreement; a covenant; a writ for breach of covenant.

Conventio facit legem. An agreement makes law. A maxim meaning that the law binds the parties to that to which they have consented. Newcomb v Wood. 97 US 581, 24 L Ed 1085.

convention. An organized assemblage of delegates representing a political party or a political principle. 18 Am J1st Elect § 135; a meeting of delegates or representatives of subordinate bodies of a national or state fraternal, social, or religious body; an agreement, particularly an agreement between nations.

"The governors of North Carolina and Virginia then entered into a 'convention' upon the subject of the boundary between the two provinces. The king and council approved it." Virginia v Tennessee, 148 US 503, 507, 37 F, Ed 537, 539, 13 S Ct 728.

See treaty.

conventional. Formal; conforming to rules; based or founded upon a contract or agreement; expressly created by acts of the parties. See 2 Bl Comm 120.

conventional estate. An estate in land created by agreement rather than by operation of law.

conventional heir. See heir conventional.

conventional interest. A charge, made pursuant to agreement between lender and borrower, by way of rental or compensation for the use of money. 30 Am J Rev ed Int § 2.

conventional life estate. A life estate created by the act of the parties, by deed, will, or contract. 28 Am J2d Est § 56. Conventional life estates are also frequently created, not by express words, but by general grant, not defining or limiting any specific estate. They are then truly created by the act of the parties, but recognized through construction or implication. They are not to be deemed as arising by operation of law, as do "legal life estates." 28 Am J2d Est § 56.

conventional obligation. An obligation arising out of a contract.

conventional subrogation. A contract right of subrogation; subrogation founded upon some understanding or agreement, express or implied, and not arising merely from the equities of the situation. New York Ins. Co. v Tice, 159 Kan 176, 152 P 2d 836, 157 ALR 1233; a subrogation whereby the party paying does so at the request of either the debtor or the lienor, with the understanding that he, the party paying, shall be subrogated. Kocher v Kocher, 56 NJ Eq 547, 548, 39 A 536; a subrogation depending upon a lawful contract which occurs where one having no interest in or relation to the matter pays the debt of another, and by agreement is entitled to the securities and rights of the creditor so paid. 50 Am J1st Subro § 3.

convention candidate. A candidate at a primary election nominated at a preprimary convention.

convention. See de convention.

convention in unum. An agreement on one thing; a meeting of the minds.

Conventio privatorum nun potent publico juri derogare. An agreement of private parties cannot derogate from public right.

Conventio vincit Iegem. The contract controls the law. Winkley v Salisbury Mfg. Co. 80 Mass (14 Gray) 443, 446.

conventual church. A church which is attached to a convent.

conventus. A contract; an agreement.

conventus juridicus. A Roman civil court.

conventus magnatum vel procerum. An assembly of the great men or the nobles, -an ancient name of the general council from which the British parliament was eventually developed. See 1 Bl Comm 148.

[269]

conversantes. Persons who are conversant with or informed upon or versed in. converse trusts. See reciprocal trusts.

conversion. A distinct act of dominion wrongfully exerted over another's personal property in denial of or inconsistent with his title or rights therein, or in derogation, exclusion, or defiance of such title or rights. 18 Am J2d Conversion § 1. It is an essentially tortious act, an unlawful act, an act which cannot be justified or excused in law. 18 Am J2d Conversion § 1; the act of placing absolute faith in a religion.

See equitable conversion.

conversion by bailee. Acts in derogation of the bailor's title or his possessory rights by a destruction of the property or some unlawful interference with his use and enjoyment of it, or dominion over it an appropriation of it by the bailee to his own use, or to the use of a third person, in disregard of or defiance of the owner's right, or a withholding of possession under a claim of title inconsistent with the title of the bailor. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 106.

conversion by bailor. The act of the bailor in taking possession of the bailed property from the bailee in contravention of the latter's rights, or having received possession for a special purpose, after such purpose has been answered and before termination of the bailee's right to possession under the bailment, to refuse to restore possession to the bailee. 8 Am J2d Bailm § 102.

conversion insurance. See theft insurance.

conversion of insurance policy. The surrender of a life insurance policy to the insurer in exchange for another policy pursuant to a right or privilege provided the insured in the original policy. 29 Am J2d Ins § 367.

See exchange of policy.

converso. See a converso.

convert. To change or transform, as by making soap out of grease; to appropriate the property of another, thereby committing the tort of conversion.

converted term insurance. Term life insurance which has been changed to a policy providing surrender and paid-up values by virtue of a provision in the term policy.

convertible. An automobile with a top that can be withdrawn so as to have an open car; anything that can be changed to something else.

convertible bonds or debentures. Bonds or debentures issued with the privilege of converting them into other securities, usually the common stock of the issuing corporation. 19 Am J2d Corp § 1070.

convertible stock. Corporate stock which the stockholder is entitled to surrender for another class of stock or for other obligations of the corporation. 18 Am J2d Corp § 217.

convertible term insurance. Term insurance with a conversion privilege under which the insured may convert the policy to ordinary life, endowment, or other form of life insurance written by the insurer, without an additional medical examination.

convey. To carry; to transfer the title to property from one person to another by deed. When used in a deed the word shows an intent to transfer title presently by the instrument, as distinguished from a writing which contemplates transfer of title by a subsequent instrument. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 35.

To lease is not to "convey," and although the word is sometimes used with reference to a leasing, the preferable word in that connection is the word "transfer." Duff v Keaton, 33 Okla 92, 124 P 291.

conveyance. A means of transportation; in most common usage, a deed transferring the title to land from one person to another, both the term "deed" in the restricted sense and the term "conveyance" being an abbreviated form of the expression "deed of conveyance." 23 Am J2d Deeds § 2. The term "conveyance", however, is susceptible of a broader meaning. As used in some recording acts, a conveyance is a written paper or instrument signed and delivered by one person to another, transferring the title to or creating a lien on property, or giving a right to a debt or duty. Warnock v Harlow, 96 Cal 298, 31 P 166.

Some authority regards a contract or lease creating a term for years as a "conveyance." 32 Am J1st L & T § 3. In its broadest aspect, the term "conveyance" includes a transfer of personal property. As used in the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act, the word "conveyance" includes every payment of money, assignment, release, transfer, lease, mortgage, or pledge of tangible or intangible property, and also the creation of any lien or incumbrance. Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act § I.

See deed.

conveyance by lease and release. See lease and release.

conveyance by record. A conveyance evidenced by the order, judgment or decree of a court of record.

conveyance in fraud of dower. The conveying away of his real estate by a husband to be, before his marriage, without consideration, and without the consent or knowledge of his betrothed, with the purpose and result of unfairly depriving her of dower. 25 Am J2d Dow § 98.

conveyancer. A person who makes a business of conveyancing.

See conveyancing; scrivener.

conveyance to uses. A conveyance creating an executory interest known as a shifting or springing use. 28 Am J2d Est § 333.

See shifting uses.

conveyancing. Preparing documents for the transfer of real property, and investigating the title to such property.

convey and warrant. Words in a conveyance sufficient to convey a fee in some jurisdictions. Palmer v Cook, 159 Ill 300, 42 NE 796.

conveyor belt. An endless belt, sometimes constructed of steel webbing moving under power capable of carrying somewhat of a load, and put to a variety of uses, such as carrying grain into an elevator, loading cargo upon ships or freight cars, and especially in factories to carry parts for assembly or completed articles for inspection.

Convicia si irascaris tua divulgas; spreta exolescunt. If you are angered by insults, you publish them; if despised they disappear.

convicium. An insult; a slander.

convict. Noun: A person who by reason of having been convicted of a crime has forfeited for a certain time his liberty or right of locomotion and who is by law subject to confinement and labor for a specified time. 41 Am J1st Pris & P § 2. One who is under sentence as the result of a conviction for crime is a "convict" within the meaning of a statute requiring photographs for identification purposes, although an appeal from the conviction is pending. 41 Am J1st Prs & P § 2. Verb: To find a person guilty of a crime with which he is charged, upon either the verdict of a jury or a plea of guilty.

[270]

See conviction.

convicted. See conviction.

conviction. An adjudication that a person is guilty of a crime based upon a verdict or, in a proper case, the ascertainment of guilt by a plea of guilty or polo contender;. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 617. Such is the primary and usual meaning of the term "conviction," but "it is possible that it may be used in such a connection and under such circumstances as to have a secondary or unusual meaning, which would include the final judgment of the court." United States v Watkins (CC Or) 6 F 152, 158, 159; 39 Am J1st Pard § 38. There is no conviction, within the meaning of constitutional or statutory provisions disfranchising one convicted of crime, unless there is something in the nature of a final judgment upon the verdict of guilt declared by the jury; suspension of sentence or granting of probation is insufficient. Truchon v Toomey, 116 Cal App 2d 736, 254 P2d 638, 36 ALR2d 1230; Anno: 36 ALR2d 1238. The weight of authority is to the effect that the word "conviction" as used in statutes providing for increased punishment for persons formerly convicted of crime necessitates the pronouncement of sentence upon the verdict or plea of guilty in order to obtain a judgment that is final, so far as the trial court is concerned. Anno: 5 ALR2d 1104. In a few instances the view has been taken that a "conviction" results within the meaning of a habitual criminal statute even though no sentence was imposed. Anna: 5 ALR2d 1107.

convict labor. The performance of services by convicts hired out to employers of labor. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 615.

A statutory provision which forbids the hiring out of convicts, except under order of the court, embodied in the sentence, applies only to farming out convicts to individuals and corporations, and does not extend to labor employed upon public works, and under the supervision and control of public agents. State v Yandle, 119 NC 874, 25 SE 796.

See convict labor contract.

convict labor contract. A contract, such as the statutes of some states have authorized, under which convicts or persons imprisoned in jails under conviction of crime are hired out. 41 Am J1st Pris & P §30.

convict lease. Another term for convict labor contract.

convincing evidence. Satisfactory and sufficient evidence. 30 Am J Rev ed Ev § 1080. To "convince" is primarily to overcome or subdue, and, in logic, to satisfy the mind by proof. If evidence is convincing, in any case it is sufficient, and to say it ought to be more convincing in one case than in another, is giving the word degrees of comparison which it does not possess, the word itself being superlative. Evans v Rogers, 57 Wis 623, 626.

convivium. A kind of land tenure by the service of providing food and drink for the lord.

convocation. An assembly of the English clergy.

See court of convocation.

convoy. An escort for a merchant ship, composed of one or more naval vessels.

cony. A rabbit, a beast of the warren.

co-obligor. See joint obligor.

Ck. One who cooks; One who pursues the occupation of cooking; an employee whose services are maritime services within admiralty jurisdiction, where employed on a vessel. 2 Am J2d Adm § 72.

cooling system. The radiator with connecting hose and pipes through which water circulates for the purpose of preventing a motor vehicle engine from overheating; the system of pipes and ducts in a building whereby the structure is kept cool by the circulation of air cooled by water.

cooling time. A relative term, as it applies to a period for reflection between the provoking act or circumstance and the infliction of the fatal stroke by one charged therefor with homicide, depending for its meaning upon the nature of man and the laws of the human mind, as well as art the nature and circumstances of the provocation, the extent to which the passions have been aroused, and the nature of the act causing the provocation. 26 Am J1st Homi § 24; a familiar expression in labor cases, meaning a period provided by statute or collective labor agreements during which differences between labor and management may be composed. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab §§ 392, 510; a period provided by law, otherwise known as a "waiting period," between the commencement of an action for divorce and the trial of the case. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 331.

co-op. Abbreviation for co-operative.

cooper. A maker of barrels.

cooperage. The work or workshop of a cooper; a term applied in the brewing business to bottles, cases, and other containers. Falstaff Brewing Corp. v Iowa Fruit & Produce Co. (CA8 Neb) 112 F2d 101.

co-operation. See co-operation and assistance clause.

co-operation and assistance clause. Essentially the same as co-operation clause.

See co-operation clause.

co-operation clause. A clause in an automobile liability policy which provides in substance that the insured shall cooperate with the insurer, and, upon the insurer's request, shall attend hearings and trials and shall assist in effecting settlements, securing and giving evidence, obtaining the attendance of witnesses, and in the conduct of suits. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 176; 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1471. When persons "co-operate." they act jointly and concurrently toward a common end. In an insurance case they are governed by the contract. The common end is not that the assured, regardless of truth, shall establish nonliability for himself or for the company, but in this connection "co-operation" means that there shall be a fair and frank disclosure of information reasonably demanded by the insurer to enable it to determine whether there is a genuine defense. Ocean Acci. & Guaranty Corp. v Lucas (CA6 Ohio) 74 F2d 115, 98 ALR 1461.

co-operative. Noun: A co-operative association; a word, the use of which is restricted by law. 18 Am J2d Co-op Assn § 5. Adjective: Co-operating or ready to co-operate.

[271]

See co-operation clause; co-operative association.

co-operative apartment house. A multiunit dwelling in which each resident has (1) an interest in the entity owning the building and (2) a lease entitling him to occupy a particular apartment within the building. 15 Am J2d Con Apt § 2.

co-operative association. Any combination of the efforts of two or more persons for the achievement of a common purpose; a corporation created by a banding together of persons for their common advantage or advancement, financial or otherwise, and organized for the mutual benefit of its members. 18 Am J2d Co-op Asso § 1. A co-operation association organized and acting in furnishing gas or electricity to its members becomes a public utility where it serves or is willing to serve the Public. 43 Am J1st Pub Util § 6.

co-operative business corporation. A corporation which is authorized to divide its profits with persons who hold no stock in the corporation.

The word "co-operative" has been used in the names of ordinary business corporations. Such use is now restricted by statute in many jurisdictions. 18 Am J2d Co-op Asso § 5.

co-operative marketing association. A co-operative association of producers, particularly farmers, organized to secure for their members the advantages of co-operative bargaining in selling their products, and to perform certain functions at a lower cost per unit than can the individual acting alone. An additional feature of great importance is a marketing contract between members and the association which requires each member to sell all of his product to or through the association. 18 Am J2d Co-op Asso §§ 2-4.

co-operative negligence. See contributory negligence.

co-operative store. A store operated by a co-operative association.

See Rochdale store.

co-operative utility. A utility which supplies service such as is furnished by a public utility but on a co-operative basis, not for profit. Anno: 172 ALR 1022.

co-opertus. Covered; covert.

co-ownership. Ownership by more than one person; ownership in which there is a plurality of tenants.

See cotenancy; joint tenancy.

cop. Slang for policeman.

coparcenary. An estate arising in any case where the ownership is in heirs who take from the same ancestor, such heirs being regarded as one heir joined together by unity of interest, unity of title, and unity of possession.

The estate is of little importance at the present time, since statutes have converted the estate to a tenancy in common. 20 Am J2d Coten § I.

coparcener. One who, with others, holds an estate in coparcenary. Gibson v Johnson, 331 Mo 1198, 88 ALK 369, 56 SW2d 783.

coparticeps. A coparcener. See coparcenary.

coparties. See joint parties.

copartner. One of two or more members of a partnership; a partner.

copartnership. A partnership.

See partnership.

copartnery. A partnership.

cope. A duty on lead exported from the mines of Derbyshire.

copcman. A chapman; a peddler.

copesmate. A merchant.

copia. (Latin.) Abundance; opportunity.

copie. (French.) Copy.

copia libelli deliberanda. An ecclesiastical writ commanding the defendant to furnish the plaintiff with a copy of the complaint.

copia vera. A true copy.

coppa. Crops which have been stacked for the reckoning of tithes.

copper. A base metal which has been known from the most ancient periods of which we have any historical account. Bronze which is made of copper with an alloy of tin is the first metallic compound which history records. It was known 3500 years before the time of Christ. United States v Aluminum Co. of America (DC NY) 144 F Supp 97.

coppice. Same as copse.

copy. An abbreviation of copyright.

copse. A thicket; a hedge.

copula. Sexual intercourse; the term is sometimes spoken of as referring to the consummation of a marriage. Sharon v Sharon, 75 Cal 1, 16 P 345.

copulation. Coition; sexual intercourse.

Copulatio verborum indicat quod accipiantur in eodem sensu. The coupling of words together shows that they are to be taken in the same sense. Saltonstall v Sanders, 93 Mass (11 Allen) 446, 470.

When the meaning of any particular word is doubtful or obscure, or when the expression taken singly is inoperative, the intention of the parties using it may frequently be ascertained and carried into effect by looking at the adjoining words, or at expressions occurring in other parts of the same instrument. Breasted v Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 8 NY 299.

copulative condition. A condition which depends upon the happening of each one of several events.

copy. Noun: A reproduction of an original work. 18 Am Jur 2d Copyr § 1: Anno; 23 ALR2d 337; a reproduction or transcript of a writing; secondary evidence of a written instrument. 29 Am J2d Ev § 486.

See certified copy; close copies; duplicate; examined copy; exemplified copy; facsimile; model; office copy; sworn copy; tracing; transcript.

copy fee. The fee allowed an attorney in some jurisdictions for preparing the copy of a pleading for the adverse party or the attorney of the adverse party; the expense incurred in obtaining a copy of a document for use in a case. 20 Am J2d Costs § 60.

copyhold. See copyhold estate.

copyholder. A tenant who held his estate by copyhold; the holder of a copyhold estate; one who reads manuscript to a proofreader.

copyhold estate. A form of English land tenure, unknown in this country, being an estate at will which was enrolled, thereby establishing the rights of the tenant and giving more permanency to his estate than an ordinary estate at will. Anno: 114 ALR 626.

[272]

copyhold tenure. See copyhold estate.

copyright. The exclusive privilege, by force of statute, of an author or proprietor to print or otherwise multiply, publish, and vend copies of his literary, artistic, or intellectual productions, and to license their production and sale by others during the term of its existence. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 1.

See literary property; notice of copyright.

copyright after publication. The right to multiply copies secured by statute. 18 Am J2d Copyr § 1.

copyright before publication. A term of loose usage for the common law right of first publication.

See first publication.

copyrighted. Protecting a publication by a copyright. Solis Cigar Co. v Pozo, 16 Colo 388, 26 P 556.

See copyright.

copyright notice. See notice of copyright.

cor. An abbreviation of the word "corner," used in descriptions of real property, also of "coroner."

coram. Before; in the presence of.

coram domino rege ubicunque tunc fuerit Angliae. Before our lord the king wherever he may then be in England.

coram ipso rege. In the presence of the king himself. This was the style given to the court of king's bench from the fact that the king formerly sat there in person. See 3 Bl Comm 41.

coram iudice. Within the jurisdiction of the court. The United States v Arredondo (US) 6 Pet 691, 8 L Ed 547, 554.

coram me vel iudiciariis meis. Before me or my justices.

coram nobis. In our presence; before us. A writ used to obtain review of a judgment for the purpose of correcting errors of fact in criminal as well as in civil proceedings. 18 Am J2d Coram Nobis § 1.

For fine distinction between "coram nobis" and "coram vobis," see coram vobis.

coram non iudice. Before one who is not the judge. That is, before a court which has not jurisdiction of the matter. A proceeding had and determined by a court without such jurisdiction is said to be "coram non iudice," the situation being the same as if there were no court. Grunion v Raymond, 1 Conn 40.

coram paribus. In the presence of his peers. As was the custom with all other solemn transactions, the attestation of a deed was always coram paribus, and this was often done when they were assembled in the court-baron, hundred, or county court. See 2 Bl Comm 307.

coram paribus de vicineto. In the presence of the peers or freeholders of the neighborhood.

coram rege. In the presence of the king. "For at first the words nisi per legatē iudicium parium (unless by the lawful judgment of his peers) had no reference to a jury: they applied only to the pares regni (the peers of the realm), who were the constitutional judges in the court of exchequer and coram rege. Hurtado v California, 110 U.S. 516, 529, 28 L Ed 232, 236, 4 S Ct 111, 292.

coram sectatoribus. Before or in the presence of the suitors.

coram vobis. Before you; in your presence. A writ for the correction of error which is essentially the same as a writ of coram nobis, the only distinction being that where the writ is directed by the reviewing court to another arm of the same court, it is called "coram nobis," while if it is directed by the reviewing to the trial court it is called "coram vobis." 18 Am J2d Coram Nobis § 1.

cord. A unit of wood-measure applied to wood cut for fuel, being a pile of wood eight feet long, four feet high and four feet wide, containing one hundred and twenty-eight cubic feet. Kennedy v Oswego & Syracuse Railroad Co. (NY) 67 Barb 169, 178.

See umbilical cord.

cordial. Noun: A liqueur. Adjective: Hearty; friendly with warmth of feeling exhibited.

corespondent. The third party in the triangle of persons presented in an action for divorce on the ground of adultery. The person who is accused by the plaintiff in a suit for divorce of having committed adultery with the defendant.

corf. A box for carrying coal, used in coal mining.

corium forficere. The forfeiture of skin, a punishment for crime which was administered by flogging.

corn. In the very broad sense of the term, "corn" is grain, but in this country, "corn" means the grain or the plant of maize, often called Indian corn. A coarse spot on a toe caused by a thickening of the skin produced by pressure of ill-fitting shoes. A slang term for corn whiskey, also for banal or overly sentimental expressions.

carnage. Same as carnage tenure.

carnage tenure. A tenure by the service of blowing a horn when the Scots or other enemies entered the land, in order to warn the king's subjects. Like other services of the same nature, it was a species of grand serjeanty. See 2 Bl Comm 74.

Carnelian law. See lex Cornelia, et seq.

corner. The point at which converging lines meet: a point established by a survey and located by calls in a description of the boundaries of a tract of land. 12 Am J2d Bound § 72. The northeast, southeast, southwest, and northwest extremities of sections, quarter sections, and one-sixteenth sections of land as laid out by the government survey. The situation which exists where a person or a number of persons acting jointly have entered into contracts for future purchases of a given commodity in excess in the aggregate of the supply of such commodity in the market. Anno: 83 ALR 587. Acquiring control of all or a dominant quantity of a commodity with the purpose of artificially enhancing the price, executed by purchases and sales of the commodity and of options and futures therein, in such a way as to depress the market price, whereby the participants are enabled to purchase the commodity at satisfactory prices and withhold it from the market for a time, thereby inflating the price. United States v Patters, 226 US 525, 57 L Ed 333, 33 S Ct 141.

corner lot. A lot at a corner of intersecting streets.

See frontage.

[273]

cornice. A projecting top on the wall of a building. 1 Am J2d Adj L § 123.

corn laws. English statutes which regulated commerce in grain.

corn-rent. See grain rent.

corodium. Same as corody.

corody. An incorporeal hereditament which allowed a means of sustenance to the holder.

corona. The crown.

coronare. To crown; to make of a person a priest.

coronare filium. To make one's son a priest.

coronary. Pertaining to an artery which supplies blood to the tissues of the heart.

coronary occlusion. A blocking of the coronary artery, resulting in unconsciousness and death, unless medical aid is available and availing. Heart trouble within the meaning of a policy excepting from coverage disability caused by "heart trouble." Frank v United Ben. Life Ins. Co. (Mo App) 231 SW2d 234.

coronator. See coroner.

coronatore eligendo. See de coronatore eligendo. coronatore exonerando. See de coronatore exonerando.

coroner. A judicial and ministerial officer of great importance in the middle ages and an office of great dignity under the earlier common law, but whose functions have gradually been diminished in importance by legislation, until today, where the office exists at all, the coroner has little, if anything to do except to serve some process in the absence of the sheriff and, in some jurisdictions, conduct an inquiry, sometimes with the aid of a jury, into the cause of death of persons who appear to have come to an end from other than natural causes. 18 Am J2d Corn § 1.

coroner's court. An English court of record presided over by the coroner of the county. Cox v Royal Tribe, 42 Or 365, 71 P 73.

coroner's inquest. See inquest.

coroner's jury. A jury summoned by a coroner to make an inquiry into the cause of the death of a person. 18 Am J2d Corn § 12.

corporal. Noun: A noncommissioned officer of the army. Adjective: Pertaining to the body; as a corporal injury.

corporale sacramentum. Same as corporal oath.

Corporalis injuria non recipit aestimationem de futuro. Bodily injury does not look to future proceedings for compensation. See Broom's Legal Maxims 278.

corporal oath. An oath in which the affiant lifts an arm or touches the Holy Bible with his hand. 39 Am J1st Oath § 3.

corporal punishment. Physical punishment; any kind of punishment inflicted on the body, such as whipping or slapping, but not the execution of the death penalty itself. Imprisonment may come within the term "corporal punishment," where such is construed with the context of the statute.

Within the meaning of the statute prohibiting "corporal punishment" aboard a vessel, the term implies that the punishment must have been inflicted by virtue of an authority to which the person punished was subject. Fights resulting from private differences and personal quarrels between officers and seamen have nothing to do with their employment on the vessel and do not come within the purview of the statute. Fowler v American Line (CA9 Cal) 69 Fed 905.

corporate. Pertaining to corporations, sometimes indicating a private as distinguished from a public body. Trustees of Academy v City Council of Augusta, 90 Ga 634, 17 SE 61.

In other uses, the term "corporate" is not limited to private corporations, for example, the "corporate limits" and "corporate authorities" of a municipality.

corporate act. The act of a corporation. The act of a municipal corporation in performance of a proprietary, as distinguished from a governmental, function. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 114.

corporate agents. The officers and employees of a corporation who have the authority to act for the corporation at least in some capacity. Literally, persons authorized to act for a corporation in one or more matters; technically, persons under employment in an agency created by officers of a corporation. 19 Am J2d Corp § 1090.

corporate authorities. Those officers of cities and villages to whom is given the ordinance-making power; the legislative branch of a city government. State ex rel. Gerry v Edwards, 42 Mont 135, 111 P 734. The term has also been defined as referring to those municipal officers who are either directly elected by the people of the municipality, or appointed in some mode to which the people have given their assent. Boolen v Pinson, 27 W Va 412, 89 SE 985; 51 Am J1st Tax § 137.

corporate body. See body corporate.

corporate bond. A bond which is issued by and becomes the obligation of a corporation.

See bonds.

corporate bylaws. See bylaws.

corporate charter. See charter.

corporate citizenship. Citizenship attributed to a corporation for some specific purpose, such as the obtaining of a liquor license. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 126:

A corporation of a state is a "citizen of the United States," within the meaning of the Act of Congress providing for the adjudication of claims of citizens of the United States for property taken or destroyed by Indians. United States v Northwestern Express, Stage & Transp. Co. 164 US 686, 41 L Ed 599, 17 S Ct 206.

corporate conduct. The conduct of a corporation; that is, a corporation's act or omission, formal or informal, done or omitted by any agency through which the corporation is authorized to act. People v North River Sugar Refining Co. 121 NY 582, 24 NE 834.

corporate directors. See directors.

corporate domicil. The situs or residence of a corporation belonging exclusively to the state or sovereignty under whose laws it is created. 18 Am J2d Corp § 159. A corporation is domiciled and has its residence in the state of its creation, although it engages in business elsewhere under local authority and has a "business situs" or "commercial domi cil" there for taxation and other purposes. Unlike a natural person a corporate entity cannot change its domicil at will. State v Garford Trucking, 4 NJ 346, 72 A2d 851, 16 ALR2d 1407. The domicil of a corporation within the state is the town or city in which the principal office or place of business of the corporation is located, and not where the principal labor of its employees is carried on. 51 Am J1st Tax § 805.

[274]

corporate entity. The status of a corporation distinct from its individual members or stockholders, who, for the purpose of the existence of the corporation are merged in the corporate identity. 18 Am J2d Corp § 13.

See disregarding corporate entity.

corporate excess. In the language of a Massachusetts statute, "corporate excess employed within the commonwealth by a foreign corporation (shall mean) such proportion of the fair cash value of all the shares constituting the capital stock on the first day of April, when the return called for by the statute is due, as the value of the assets, both real and personal, employed in any business within the commonwealth on that date, bears to the value of the total assets of the corporation on that date." Alpha Portland Cement Co. v Massachusetts, 268 US 203, 208, 69 L Ed 916, 920, 45 S Ct 477.

corporate franchise. See franchise.

corporate function. See corporate act.

corporate limits. The territorial limits of a municipal corporation. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 16.

corporate name. The name of a corporation, as fixed by its charter or the statute by which the corporation was created, such being an essential of existence as a corporation and a part of the franchise to be a corporation. 18 Am J2d Corp § 141.

corporate office. See principal place of business.

corporate officers. The officers of corporations, such as president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer or comptroller, and often a manager or general manager; technically, the persons filling offices created by the charter or bylaws of the corporation. 19 Am J2d Corp § 1080.

corporate pocketbook. A graphic expression of tax lawyers for the personal holding company.

corporate powers. The powers granted to a corporation in its charter, or by the statutes under which it is created, or such powers as are necessary for the purpose of carrying out its express powers and the object of its incorporation. 19 Am J2d Corp § 952.

See capacity of corporation.

corporate practice of law, medicine, etc. See professional corporation.

corporate purpose of a municipal corporation. See municipal purposes.

corporate purposes. The purposes for which corporations may be organized, as declared by statute, it now being usual for the general corporation laws of a state to provide for the formation of corporations for any lawful purpose, business purpose or purposes, other than the practice of a profession or the conducting of specified classes of business for the conduct of which corporations are to be formed under other statutory provisions. Uniform Business Corporation Act § 2; 18 Am J2d Corp § 31.

The word "unlawful", as it pertains to purposes for which a corporation may be organized, is not used exclusively in the sense of malum in se or malum prohibitum; it is also used to designate powers which corporations are not authorized to exercise, or contracts which they are not authorized to make, or acts which they are not authorized to do; or in other words, such acts, powers, and contracts as are ultra vires. People ex rel. Peabody v Chicago Gas Trust Co. 130 Ill 268, 22 NE 798.

See ultra vires.

corporate records. The transcript of charter and bylaws, the minutes of meetings of directors and stockholders, the books containing the accounts of official doings of the corporation, and the written evidence of its contracts and business transactions. United States v Louisville & N. R. Co. 236 US 318, 59 L Ed 598, 35 S Ct 363.

corporate reorganization. The act or process of organizing again or anew to effect a corporate readjustment of existing interests, almost invariably involving a corporation in financial distress or in a condition of inability to compete in the commercial world. 19 Am J2d Corp §§ 1515 et seq. A means whereby those variously interested financially in a distressed corporation seek, through continuance of the business as a going concern, to work out of the difficulty for themselves and thus gain more than they could by a sale of the assets or of the business to others. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v Lawton-Byrne-Bruner Ins. Agency Co. (CA8 Mo) 79 F2d 804. Often accomplished by a judicial sale of the corporate property and franchises and the formation by the purchasers of a new corporation in which the property and franchises are thereupon vested, and the stock and bonds of which are divided among such of the parties interested in the old company as are parties to the plan of reorganization. 19 Am J2d Corp § 1515. A proceeding in the bankruptcy court to obtain a change in the capital structure, a reduction of indebtedness, and other permissible changes to rehabilitate a failing corporation and promote the prospects of creditors to obtain a full realization of their claims or a better realization than would occur through immediate realization. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1496.

corporate report. See report.

corporate rights. See rights.

corporate seal. The seal of a corporation, no longer necessary to validate an act or a contract of a corporation which would not require a seal if it were the act or contract of a natural person, or which does not require the corporate seal by virtue of charter or statutory provision, and consisting of a seal of any character, even a variety of seals for different occasions. 18 Am J2d Corp § 154. A scroll, a printed impression, or the letters "L. S." inclosed in brackets is sufficient. Cannon v Gorham, 136 Ga 167, 71 SE 142.

corporate securities. Stock, bonds, debentures, certificates of indebtedness, notes, and other evidences of indebtedness issued by a corporation for the purpose of obtaining funds to use in the business of the corporation. Wilkinson v Mutual Bldg. & Sav. Assn. (CA7 Wis ) 13 F2d 997; United States v American Trust & Banking Co. (CA6 Tenn) 125 F2d 113. Anno: 36 ALR2d 975.

See securities.

corporate stock. See stock.

corporate stockholder. See stockholder.

corporate stock rights. See rights.

corporate surety. Literally, a surety which is a corporation, but, in common usage, a corporation engaged in the business of acting as surety for a compensation. 12 Am J2d Bonds § 22; 50 Am J1st Suret § 312.

See fidelity company; surety company.

corporate trustee. An incorporated trustee, such as a bank or trust company empowered to act in the capacity of a trustee.

corporation. An artificial being, invisible, intangible, and existing only in contemplation of law; an association of persons to whom the sovereign has offered a franchise to become an artificial juridical person, with a name of its own, under which they can act and contract and sue and be sued, and who have either accepted the offer and effected a corporation in substantial conformity with its terms (in which case a corporation de jure has been constituted) or have done acts indicating a purpose to accept such offer and effected an organization designed to be, but, in fact not, in substantial conformity with its terms (in which case a corporation de jure de facto has been constituted). 18 Am J2d Corp § 1. For some purposes, as in a venue statute, the term "corporation" includes unincorporated associations or at least special forms of them, such as joint stock companies. 56 Am J1st Ven § 7. For the purposes of the Federal income tax, the term "corporation" includes associations, joint-stock companies, and insurance companies. 33 Am J2d Fed Tax ¶ 2005. As defined by the Bankruptcy Act the term "corporation" includes all bodies having any of the powers and privileges of private corporations not possessed by individuals or partnership and further includes partnership associations organized under laws making the capital subscribed alone responsible for the debts of the association, joint stock companies, unincorporated companies and associations, and any business conducted by a trustee or trustees wherein beneficial interest or ownership is evidenced by certificate or other written instrument. Bankr Act § 1(8); 11 USC § 1(8). Business trusts have frequently been held to be subject to statutory regulations of corporations and to provisions aimed primarily at corporations. Hernphill v Orloff, 277 US 537, 72 L Ed 978, 48 S Ct 577.

See incorporation; municipal corporation; person; public corporation.

corporation affected with a public interest. A public service corporation, otherwise known as a quasi public corporation. 18 Am J2d Corp § 9.

See public service corporation.

corporation aggregate. A collection of individuals united in one body under a special denomination, and vested by the policy of the law with the capacity of acting in several respects as an individual; a legal institution devised to confer upon the individuals of which it is composed powers, privileges, and immunities which they would not otherwise possess, the most important of which are continuous legal identity, and perpetual or indefinite succession under the corporate name, notwithstanding successive changes by death or otherwise in the corporation or members of the corporation. 18 Am J2d Corp § 1. An artificial body of men, composed of divers constituent members ad instar corporis humanis (after the manner of the human body), the ligaments of which body politic, or artificial body, are the franchises and liberties thereof, which bind and unite all its members together; and in which the whole frame and essence of the corporation consist. Louisville, Cincinnati & Charleston Railroad Co. v Letson (US) 2 How 497, 552, 11 L Ed 353, 375.

corporation de facto. See de facto corporation.

corporation de jure. See de jure corporation.

corporation excise tax. A tax on the conduct of business in a corporate capacity, sometimes measured by the income of the corporation, but not becoming an income tax because of such feature. 34 Am J2d Fed Tax 1; 8860 et seq.

corporation for profit. See profit corporation.

corporation franchise tax. See franchise tax.

corporation not for profit. A charitable corporation; a membership; corporation; an eleemosynary corporation.

A proposed corporation is not entitled to incorporation as a "corporation not for profit" where its clear purpose is to confer direct and indirect benefits on its members consisting of a saving of expense or obtaining a service at a cost lower than that which otherwise would be paid therefor, notwithstanding a provision of the articles of incorporation that each member agrees not to accept pecuniary gain or profit from any corporate surplus. The character of a proposed corporation warranting its incorporation as a "corporation not for profit" is determined, not by the authority that probably will actually be exercised by the corporation, but rather by the authority it actually possesses and may exercise under the articles recorded. State ex rel. Russell v Sweeney, 153 Ohio St 66, 91 NE2d 13, 16 ALR2d 1337.

corporation officers. See corporate officers.

corporation president. See president of corporation.

corporation sole. A corporation consisting of one person only and his successors. An older concept of the status of a king or a bishop as incorporated in order to give to them and their successors legal capacities and advantages, particularly that of perpetuity, which they could not have in their natural capacities. 18 Am J2d Corp § 7.

corporator. A person who joins in the formation of a corporation; a promoter; a stockholder; a shareholder; a member. 18 Am J2d Corp § 35.

See promoter.

corporeal. Possessing physical substance; tangible; perceptible to the senses.

corporeal hereditaments. Property and things of substance capable of being inherited.

corporeal property. Property which has corporeal tangible substance. See 42 Am J1st Prop § 12.

corpore comitatus. See de corpore comitatus.

corpore et animo. In body and mind.

corps diplomatique. The diplomatic corps.

corpse. The dead body of a human being.

corpus. The body or substance of anything; the capital or res of an estate or fund, as distinguished from the income thereof.

corpus comitatus. The body of a county, the inhabitants of a county considered collectively.

[276]

corpus incorporatum. An incorporated body, a corporation.

corpus cum causa. See habeas corpus cum causa.

corpus delicti. The body of the crime the fact that a crime has actually been committed, that someone is criminally responsible. Hilyard v State, 90 Okla Crim 435, 214 P2d 953, 28 ALR2d 961; 29 Am J2d Ev § 149. In homicide cases, the facts of death and the criminal agency of another person as the cause thereof. 26 Am J1st Homi § 6. In larceny cases, the facts that the owner of property was deprived thereof and that he was deprived by a felonious taking. 32 Am J1st Larc § 121.

Corpus humanum non recipit estimationem. A human body is not susceptible of valuation. Griffith v Charlotte, Columbia & Augusta Railroad Co. 23 SC 25.

corpus juris. The body of the law.

Corpus Juris. The title of an encyclopedic work on the law.

corpus juris canonici. The decrees of the Roman church. See 1 Bl Comm 82.

Corpus Juris Civilis. The whole body of the Roman law, being the Digest, the Institutes, and the Novellae of Justinian.

Corpus Juris Secundum. A successor of the encyclopedic work on the law published under the title "Corpus Juris."

correct. To eliminate error; to amend; to make to conform to law. Hutcheson v Storrie, 92 Tex 685, 51 SW 848.

correction. See amendment.

correctional institutions. See house of correction; industrial school; reformatory.

corregidor. The chief magistrate of a town.

Corregidor. A small island at the entrance to Manila Bay in the Philippines, most vividly brought to the attention of the American people by the valiant stand made there by American and Philippine troops against much larger Japanese forces.

correi credendi. (Civil law.) Joint creditors.

correi debendi. (Civil law.) Joint debtors.

correlative rights. Another term for the reasonable use doctrine in reference to percolating waters. 56 Am J1st Wat § 114.
See reasonable use doctrine.

correspondence course. See correspondence school.

correspondence school. A school in which the contact between teacher and student is by mail, the lessons being mailed to the student with written tests to be accomplished and returned to the teacher for grading.

corroborate. To state facts tending to produce confidence in the truth of a statement made by another person. People v Ranney, 153 Mich 293, 116 NW 999.

corroborating circumstances. Facts which tend to support the testimony of a witness, especially circumstances which tend to fix the transaction in the mind of the witness. 58 Am J1st Witn §§ 807, 808.

corroborating evidence. Additional evidence of a different character to the same point. People v Sternberg, 111 Cal 11, 43 P 201. Such evidence as tends to confirm and strengthen the testimony of the witness sought to be corroborated; that is, such as tends to show its truth, or the probability of its truth. Rosinski v Whiteford, 87 App DC 313, 184 F2d 700, 21 ALR2d 1009.
See corroborating circumstances.

corroboration. Producing corroborating evidence. As a requirement in a divorce action: evidence of such substantial facts and circumstances as will produce in a sound and prudently cautious mind a confident conclusion that the testimony of the complainant is true in all essentials. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 382. Corroboration is somewhat less than confirmation; evidence of corroboration need not be of such weight as is required to prove the alleged ground for divorce. Carter v Carter, 191 Kan 80, 379 P2d 311.

corroborative. Confirmatory; tending to support or uphold.

corroborative evidence. See corroborating evidence.

corrupt. Contaminated; spoiled; subverting the instrumentalities of government to personal profit; impeding justice and obstructing the administration of justice. United States v Polakoff (CA2 NY) 121 F2d 333.

corruption. A hard word, not always accurately understood; covering a multitude of official delinquencies, great and little; but it is strictly accurate to apply it to any color of influence, of mere relation of any kind, on the administration of justice. Wight v Rindskopf, 43 Wis 344, 351.

See corrupt.

corruption fund. A fund in hand to be used for the purpose of corruption.

corruption of blood. A doctrine, arising in feudal times but generally abrogated expressly by state constitutions, whereunder one was disqualified to inherit by conviction of a felony. 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 91.

Corruptio optimi est pessima. The corruption of the best is worst. So, the worst form of argument is that which draws erroneous conclusions from sound principles or premises. Jacobs v Beecham, 221 US 263, 55 L Ed 729, 31 S Ct 555.

corruptly. Wrongfully; acting with the intent to obtain an improper advantage for self or someone else, inconsistent with official duty and the rights of others. State v Lehman, 182 Mo 424, 81 SW 1118; State v Johnson, 77 Ohio St 461, 83 NE 702.

corrupt practices acts. Statutes found in the laws of practically every state in the union and in federal legislation, featured by provisions regulating the expenditures of candidates for election by requiring the filing of statements of expenses, in some instances by limiting the amount of money that may be spent, and sometimes including regulations respecting the solicitation of campaign contributions, the treating of voters, and the making of charges against, and attacks on, candidates. 26 Am J2d Elect § 287.

corse. A corpse.

[277]

curse-present. A mortuary, which was a customary gift claimed by and due to the minister in many parishes on the death of a parishioner, was called a curse-present when it was brought to the church along with the corpse at the burial of the deceased parishioner. At an earlier time, a curse-present had probably been, as its name would indicate, a voluntary donation. See 2 Bl Comm 425.

corsned. A form of trial by purgation which consisted in feeding the accused person a small piece of consecrated bread or cheese and at the same time praying for his ability to swallow it if innocent and for his choking if guilty. The term was also applied to the bread or cheese itself, the morsel of execration. See 4 Bl Comm 345.

cortes. The national legislature of Portugal.

corvée. (French.) An exaction of labor imposed upon the inhabitants of a district for the upkeep and repair of public roads and bridges.

Corwin Amendment. A proposed amendment to the United States Constitution, providing against any amendment to the Constitution granting to Congress the power to abolish or interfere with the domestic institution of slavery; submitted by Congress for ratification in 1861, but failing of ratification by the requisite number of states.

cosa juzgada. (Spanish.) Res adjudicata.

cosalvor. In admiralty law, a salvor who contributes with another salvor or with other salvors to the result. 47 Am J1st Salv § 26.

cosbering. The ancient right of the lord of the manor to sleep and eat in the house of his tenant.

cosduna. A custom; a tribute.

cosen. Same as cozen.

cosenage. Same as cousinage. cosening. Same as cozening.

co-servants. Same as fellow servants.

coshering. A word of Irish origin for pampering.
See cosbering.

cosinage. Same as cousinage.

cosmetologist. A person who follows the occupation of hairdressing and beautifying the human skin. 10 Am J2d Barbers § 2.

cost. The amount of money, services, or property required to obtain a thing or to build a structure.
See costs; original cost.

cost and freight. A mercantile term which, when used in connection with a contract for the sale of goods shows that the price quoted to the purchaser includes the cost of the goods and freight charges to the place of destination. Pepper v Western Union Tel. Co. 87 Tern 554, 11 SW 783.

cost depletion. A deduction for federal income tax allowed an owner of mineral or timber property. IRC § 612.

coste. See en coste.

cost, insurance, and freight. A mercantile term, abbreviated "c. i. f." or "c. a. f." which, when used in connection with a contract for the sale of goods, indicates that the price quoted to the purchaser includes the cost of the goods, the cost of insurance thereon, and freight charges to the place of destination. 46 Am J1st Sales § 136.

Under a c.i.f. contract the seller receives a purchase price payable as the parties agree and for that consideration is bound to arrange for the carriage of the goods to their agreed destination, for insurance upon them for the benefit of the buyer, and either to pay the cost of the carriage and insurance or allow it or the purchase price. When this has been done the seller has fully performed and is entitled to be paid upon delivery of the documents to the seller regardless of whether the goods themselves have arrived at their destination or ever will. It has been said that a c.i.l. contract is one for the sale of documents relating to goods rather than a sale of the goods but it seems more realistic to treat such a contract as one under which the title to the goods passes to the buyer upon delivery of the documents alone. Warner Bros. & Co. v Israel (CA2 NY) 101 F2d 59.

costipulator. A joint promisor.

cost of construction. The cost of labor and materials which have been combined to make the materials apart of the building. Washington Constr. Co. v Spinella, 8 NJ 212, 84 A2d 617, 28 ALR2d 863. The term also includes incidentals, such as premiums paid for workmen's compensation insurance.

cost plus contract. A building or construction contract under which the contractor is entitled to recover the cost of the work to him plus an agreed upon percentage. 13 Am J2d Bldg Contr § 20.

cost price. A mercantile term, the meaning of which is relative, depending upon the circumstances under which it is used and the situation of the parties, but which ordinarily would appear to mean merely that amount paid or promised to be paid for an article. As applied to a stock of merchandise, it ordinarily will mean the wholesale price. Sylvester v Ammons, 126 Iowa 140, 101 NW 782.

cost restrictions. Provisions in a restrictive covenant which limit the dwellings to be constructed to buildings costing not less than a stated amount. 20 Am J2d Cov § 260.

cost rule of damages. A rule of damages for breach of a building contract by failure to complete performance, under which reconstruction cost is the measure of damages. Shell v Schmidt, 164 Cal App 2d 350, 330 P2d 817, 76 ALR2d 792, cert den 359 US 959, 3 L Ed 2d 766, 79 S Ct 799.

costs. Allowances made to a party to an action for his expenses incurred in the action; otherwise defined, "costs" are the sums prescribed by law as charges for the services enumerated in the fee bill. 20 Am J2d Costs § 1. The word "costs" is normally used in referring to those items which may be included in the taxable bill of costs established by applicable statute or court rule. Anno: 9 ALR2d 1146. Statutory authorization of recovery of "costs" against the losing party does not include attorneys' fees. Turner v Zip Motors, 245 Iowa 1091, 65 NW2d 427, 45 ALR2d 1174. With few exceptions, the courts in the cases in which the question has arisen have construed condemnation statutes which provided for payment of "costs," "expenses," "just compensation," and the like, without making any express stipulation as regards attorneys' fees, as not intending to provide for the payment of such fees, these not being part of the costs, expenses, or just compensation. Anno: 26 ALR2d 1296.

costs and disbursements. Full costs. 5 Am J2d Appeal § 23.

[278]

costs bill. See bill of costs.

costs bond. See security for costs.

costs de incremento. Costs awarded by the court and added to the damages assessed by the jury. At first, by the common law, no costs were awarded to either party eo nomine. If the plaintiff failed to recover he was amerced pro falso clamore. If he recovered judgment, the defendant was in misericordia for his unjust detention of the plaintiff's debt, and was not therefore punished with the expensa litis under that title. But this being considered a great hardship, the Statute of Gloucester (6 Edw L, c 1) was passed, which gave costs in all cases when the plaintiff recovered damages. This was the origin of costs de incremento; for when the damages were found by the jury, the judges held themselves obliged to tax the moderate fees of counsel and attorneys that attended the cause. Day v Woodworth (US) 13 How 362, 14 L Ed 181.

costs of administration. The "costs of administration" which have priority of payment over claims of general creditors in receivership proceedings include not only compensation for the receiver but also all other obligations incurred by him in the discharge of his duties. Parks v Central Door & Lumber Co. 164 Or 363, 102 P2d 706, 128 ALR 375.

costs of collection. A provision in a promissory note which has reference to an attorney's fee for plaintiff's attorney in case the note is not paid at maturity and suit is instituted thereon and maintained successfully. 11 Am J2d B & N § 163.

costs of prosecution. The costs incurred by the plaintiff in an action.

A statute authorizing an award for "costs of prosecution" does not support an award of attorneys' fees. State v Raible (Ohio App) 117 NE2d 480, 40 ALR2d 950.

costs of the day. Costs which are taxed against a party to an action in a proceeding which is incidental to the main action; costs incurred in preparing for trial set for a day certain.

costs to abide the event. A term for a provision as to costs made by an appellate court in reversing a judgment and sending the case back for new trial, meaning that the costs in the appellate court shall be paid by the party who is unsuccessful in the further litigation on new trial. First Nat. Bank v Fourth Nat. Bank, 84 NY 469. The term does not necessarily import that the party finally prevailing must recover costs for all the proceedings in the cause. Full effect is given to the words by giving to the party finally prevailing his costs in the appellate court. Colgan v Dunne, 50 Hun 441, 443, 3 NYS 297.

cosureties. Joint sureties; two or more sureties on the same obligation. 50 Am J1st Surety § 4.

cota. A cottage.

cotarius. A cottager holding at the will of the lord.

cotenancy. The ownership of property by two or more persons in such manner that they have an undivided possession or right to possession, but several freeholds, the term including joint tenancies, tenancies in common, and tenancies by the entirety. 20 Am J2d Coten § 1.

cotenant. One of the owners in cotenancy.

See cotenancy.

coterellus. Same as cotarius.

cotes. See bouts et cotes.

coteswold. A place here of wood.

cotland. Land appendant to a cottage.

co-tortfeasors. See joint tortfeasors.

cotrespanders. See joint trespassers.

cotrustees. Two or more persons in whom the administration of a trust is vested, forming but one collective trustee and exercising jointly all the powers that call for their discretion and judgment. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 296.

cotset. A householder or tenant under an ancient service tenure of rendering personal labor.

cotsethland. Same as cotland.

cotsetus. Same as cotset.

Cots-wold. A breed of sheep, characterized by the long wool borne by them.

cottage. The service to which a cotset was bound; a little house. A grant of a "cottage" will pass a little dwelling house that has no land belonging to it. Gibson v Brockway, 8 NH 465.

cottage residence. A restrictive term in a covenant in a deed which precludes the erection of a building such as a rooming house upon the premises, and, according to some, but not all, authorities, excludes multiple dwellings. Rosenblatt v Levin, 127 NJ Eq 207, 12 A2d 727.

cottagium. Same as cottage.

cotton gin. The machine for separating the fiber of cotton from the seeds.

couchant. Lying down.

See levant et couchant.

coucher. A banker; a factor.

coucher de soel. The setting of the sun; sunset.

could and should test. A test applied in determining the scope and extent of judicial review of an action of an administrative agency: -(1) whether the particular type of act was within the authority of the particular type of agency which acted and (2) whether the act should have been performed -that is, whether the conclusions of the agency were correct, whether its act was proper or justified, and whether the facts or evidence warranted it. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 611.

council. Broadly, an assembly, the derivation being from the Latin "consilium," but, in modern usage, the legislative department of a city or other municipal corporation. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 46.

council of censors. The name given in some states to a body elected or appointed to examine into the conduct of state officers and alleged violations of the constitution.

council of conciliation. An agency for the adjustment and settlement of labor disputes. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 371.

council of the north. A court established under Henry the Eighth in the northern counties of England.

counsel. A counselor; an attorney at law; one or more attorneys representing parties in an action. Ludlam v Broderick, 15 NJL 269, 270.

See attorney at law; of counsel.

counseling. Advising; deliberating with another to aid him in coming to a conclusion.

[279]

counselor. See counselor at law; chamber-counselor.

counselor at law. An attorney who has been duly, admitted to the bar and presently qualified to practice law; an advising lawyer. 7 Am J2d Attys § 1.

See chamber-counselor; of counsel; practicing law.

count. The tally of votes cast at an election. 26 Am J2d Elect § 291; a division of a complaint, declaration, bill, or petition, wherein a separate cause of action is stated. 41 Am J1st Plead § 106; a separate part of an indictment or information wherein a separate and distinct offense is stated, division into counts being necessary where two or more distinct offenses are charged in a single indictment under one caption. 27 Am J1st Indict § 124.

See common counts; election of counts; money counts; narratio; omnibus count; paragraph; tale.

countee. An earl.

countenance. Face; credit; credibility; approval.

counter. Noun: A pleader; an attorney-at law employed to defend in litigation. Verb: To oppose or defend against attack.

See countors.

counter-affidavit. An affidavit responding to and contradicting the affidavit produced by an adversary.

counter-appeal. See cross-appeal.

counter-bond. A bond given to indemnify a surety.

See redelivery bond.

counterbranding. Branding domestic animals for identification. 4 Am J2d Am § 8.

counterclaim. A claim which, if established, will defeat or in some way qualify the judgment or relief to which the plaintiff is otherwise entitled. 20 Am J2d Countcl § 3; a counter demand or a cause of action existing in favor of the defendant against the plaintiff, on which the defendant might have secured affirmative relief had he sued the plaintiff in a separate action. 20 Am J2d Countcl § 3. The statement, in a separate division of an answer, of defendant's cause of action against plaintiff is a counterclaim. Linscott v Linscott. 243 Iowa 335, 51 NW2d 428, 30 ALR2d 789.

See cross-demand; recoupment; reconvention; setoff.

counter demand. See cross-demand; setoff.

counterfeasance. Counterfeiting.

counterfeit. Verb: To make a copy without authority or right and with the view to deceive or defraud by passing the copy as original or genuine; to fabricate a false image or representation. But as ordinarily understood in law, the term is confined to the making and uttering of false money, postage stamps, revenue stamps, bonds, etc. 20 Am J2d Counterf § 1. Noun: Something made in imitation of something else with a purpose to deceive. Adjective: Spurious; sham.

counterfeit coin. See counterfeit money.

counterfeiting. Making a counterfeit, especially counterfeit money; the federal offense of making counterfeit money. 20 Am J2d Counterf § 1.

counterfeit money. An imitation of real money, produced with the intent that it shall pass as money and be accepted in trade as money. 20 Am J2d Counterf § 2. As the term is used in the Federal statutes dealing with the crime of counterfeiting, the coin to be "counterfeit" must be in the resemblance or similitude of a genuine United States coin. It is not necessary that the resemblance should be exact in all respects. The resemblance is sufficient if the coins are so near alike that the counterfeit coin is calculated to deceive a person exercising ordinary caution and observation in the usual transactions of business. United States v Gellman (DC Minn) 44 F Supp 360.

counterfoil. A part of a document, torn off and retained by the maker of the document as a memorandum; as, a check stub.

counter-injunction. An injunction restraining the enforcement of an injunction. State v Nortoni, 331 Mo 764, 55 SW2d 272, 85 ALR 1345.

counter-letter. A separate instrument, executed simultaneously with a deed absolute on its face, whereby the grantee named in the deed undertakes to reconvey the property to the grantor, upon the fulfilment of the terms and conditions stated in the counter-letter. Livingston's Exr. v Story (US) 11 Pet 351, 9 L Ed 746.

countermand. To revoke an order previously given.

countermanding payment. See stopping payment.

countermotion. A motion, made after a motion for change of venue to the proper county, to retain the case in the county where it was commenced on the ground of the convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice. Anno: 74 ALR2d 50.

counteroffer. An offer made by one of two negotiating parties in response to an offer by the other party. Where an acceptance of an offer is conditional, or introduces a new term, or varies substantially in any way from the terms of the offer, it may be treated as a counteroffer. 17 Am J2d Contr § 40.

counterpart. A person or thing closely resembling another person or thing; an obsolete term for copy. 2 Bl Comm 296.

counterplea. A replication; a plea interposed in reply to another plea.

counterplead. To interpose a counter-plea; to plead against; to plead the contrary; to deny.

counterroll. A duplicate record.

countersecurity. Security given to a surety to indemnify him against loss.

counter service. Service at a counter, a method of serving meals or lunches in a public eating place. 29 Am J Rev ed Innk § 9.

countersignature. A signature, often that of a subordinate, added to the signature of an officer or superior, by way of authentication; an additional signature required by the terms of a written contract, as in the case of the requirement for the signature of a particular officer or agent of an insurance company in addition to the regular signature appended upon the issuance of a policy. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 214.

See countersign.

counterwills. Another term for reciprocal wills in which the testators name each other as beneficiaries under similar testamentary plans. 57 Am J1st Wills § 681.

See mutual wills; reciprocal wills.

countez. A word by which, when the jury are all sworn, the officer bids the court crier to number them. Blackstone facetiously remarks, "we now hear it pronounced in very good English 'count these'." See 4 Bl Comm 340, note.

[280]

counties. See county.

counties palatine. Certain counties of England, the owners of which enjoyed powers and privileges which were practically those of a king in his palace. Originally, there were three of these counties, Chester, owned by the earl of Chester, Durham, by the bishop of Durham, and Lancaster, by the duke of Lancaster. These privileges were probably extended to Chester and Durham because their counties bordered on Wales and Scotland which were hostile to England, and thus it was considered more feasible to protect them by a home government. See 1 Bl Comm 117.

counting upon a statute. In pleading, -making express reference to a statute; as by the words, against the form of the statute, or by force of the statute, in such case made and provided. Hart v Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. 6 W Va 336, 348.

countors. Persons who prepared counts or declarations at common law. See 1 Bl Comm 24, note.

country. A nation or land, also the people of a nation or state; any place out of court; the persons living in the district available for jury duty; a jury. A settlement in pais (in the country) is a settlement out of court.

As the word "country" is used in the revenue laws of the United States, it has always been construed to embrace all the possessions of a nation, however widely separated, which are subject to the same supreme executive and legislative control. Stairs v Peeslee (US) 18 How 521, 15 L Ed 474, 476. Adopting this definition, the Philippine Islands were held to be neither a foreign country nor another country within the meaning of the Cuban treaty. Faber v United States, 221 US 649, 659, 55 L Ed 897, 899, 31 S Ct 659.

See jury of the country; trial by the country.

country club. A social club, ordinarily located in the outskirts of a metropolitan area, and usually having spacious grounds surrounding a clubhouse, a golf course, and swimming pool, sometimes stables for riding horses, and a ring for exhibitions of horsemanship.

See club.

country road. Literally, a road outside a metropolitan area; sometimes defined in the bucolic aspect of a way unimproved by the hand of man beyond the traveled lane or path. Nelson v Spokane, 45 Wash 31, 87 P 1048.

county. A political subdivision of the state; a public or municipal corporation, established for the more convenient administration of government, its powers and importance varying throughout the nation, depending upon whether it or the town has been adopted by statute as the more important arm of government; an agency of the state. 6 Am J2d Attach § 80; a circuit or portion of the state established for the better government thereof. State ex ref. Milton v Dickenson, 44 Fla 623, 33 So 514.

county attorney. An attorney at law employed by a county to represent it in civil matters; in some jurisdictions, the prosecuting attorney.

county board. The body in which the government of a county, particularly the administrative part of the government, is vested; otherwise known its board of supervisors or board of commissioners.

county clerk. The clerk of court, the title having survived from the time when the colonial court of common pleas was known as a county court and the clerk thereof as a county clerk.

See clerk of court.

county clerk's certificate. See certificate of authenticity; certificate of conformity.

county commissioners. The members of the county board, the primary administrative board of a county often called supervisors.

See county board.

county coroner. See coroner.

county corporate. A term applied to certain cities and towns in England, including London, York, Bristol, Norwich and Coventry, and the territory annexed to them, to which out of special favor, the kings granted the privilege to be counties of themselves and not to be included in any other county, and to be governed by their own sheriffs and other officers, so that no officers of the county at large had any power to act therein. See 1 Bl Comm 120.

county court. A state court, sometimes of limited jurisdiction, sitting in one particular county, but in some states having the power to issue process effective in any part of the state. 20 Am J2d Cts § 17; in a few states, a fiscal court, that is, a court vested with responsibility for the conduct of fiscal affairs of the county, being an administrative body rather than a court in the ordinary sense of the term. Mitchell v Henry County, 124 Ky 833, 100 SW 220.

county court judge. The judge of a county court, having the status of a state officer where the court is granted general jurisdiction by constitution or statute. 30A Am J Rev ed Judges § 5.

county election. An election wherein county officers are elected.

See votes polled.

county engineer. A county officer, usually holding by appointment, qualified as a civil engineer, whose primary duties are making surveys preparatory to the construction of public improvements and the laying out of highways or in determination of boundaries of lands privately owned.

county farm. An institution located on a tract of farmland, in some states for the care of indigent, in other states for the detention of prisoners under sentence for crime, and in either case, ordinarily using the services of such inmates as are physically able to perform farm labor.

county home. See almshouse; county farm.

county manager. The chief administrative officer of a county under a comparatively modern form of county government.

county officer. One of several officers by whom a county performs its political or governmental functions, the sheriff, county clerk, county treasurer, coroner, etc.

county palatine. See counties palatine; courts of the counties palatine.

county prison. The building provided by the county for the custody of persons committed by legal process. 41 Am J1st Pris & P § 2.

county property. Public property held by a county in a governmental capacity as an agent of the state; any property acquired, owned, and held by a county under and pursuant to authority vested in it. State v Brown, 73 Mont 371, 230 P 548.

[281]

county rate. A tax levy for county purposes.

county seat. The place in a county where the principal county offices are located, where the primary affairs and business of the county are conducted, and where court is held. 20 Am J2d Cts §§ 37 et seq.

county seat de facto. Same as de facto county seat.

county sessions. The general quarter sessions of the peace.

See court of quarter sessions of the peace.

county site. The term is used interchangeably, in some jurisdictions, with the term county seat. Watts v State, 22 Tex App 572, 578.

See county seat.

county warrants. Instruments, generally in the form of bills of exchange or orders, drawn by an officer of the county upon its treasurer, directing him to pay an amount of money specified to the person named therein, to the order of such person or to bearer.

county where the cause arose. The county where the act or omission creating the right to bring an action occurred; not the same as "county where the transaction in question occurred." 56 Am J1st Ven § 34.

county where the parties live. A venue provision applicable in actions for divorce, construed to mean the county in which the aggrieved party lives at the time of commencement of suit. Harteau v Harteau, 31 Mass (14 Pick) 181.

coupled with an interest. See power coupled with an interest.

coupon. An instrument payable in money or redeemable in merchandise; an instrument attached to another instrument but detachable for use by itself, as in the case of an interest coupon which evidences the interest payable on the instrument to which it is attached. 30 Am J Rev ed Int § 64. Coupons of such type are usually regarded as negotiable and as having all the qualities of commercial paper. 43 Am J1st Pub Sec § 14.

coupon bond. A bond in which the interest payable separately from the principal is represented by detachable coupons. Amey v Allegheny City (US) 24 How 364, 16 L Ed 614; Tennessee Bond Cases, 114 US 663, 29 L Ed 281, 5 S Ct 1098.

See coupon.

coupon note. A promissory note with coupons attached, the coupons being notes for the interest, written at the bottom of the note and designed to be cut off when the notes are presented for payment or paid. Williams v Moody, 95 Ga 8, 11.

See coupon; coupon bond; coupon note; interest coupons.

coupon ticket. A ticket for transportation in one trip over the lines of different carriers, made up of detachable portions or coupons, each one of which represents the part of the trip to be made over the line of one of the respective carriers. Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. v Klyman, 108 Tenn 304, 67 SW 472.

cour de cassation. Same as court of cassanon.

course. The direction of a line run with a compass or transit and with reference to a meridian. 12 Am J2d Bound § 10. Progression in order; a way in which something moves, as a race course.

See holder in due course.

course of descent. The course of intestate property to the heirs and distributees who take and the proportion in which they take. 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 41.

course of employment. See in the course of the employment.

course of trade. The trend of business; that which is customary among merchants.

course of vessel. The direction taken by a vessel under way; her apparent course rather than her heading at a given moment. The Eastern Glade (CA2 NY) 101 F2d 4. The course of a vessel referred to in the International Regulations to Prevent Collisions is her actual course, and not the compass direction, of the heading of the vessel at the time the other vessel is sighted. Liverpool, Brazil & River Plate Steam Navigation Co. v United States (DC NY) 12 172d 128.

courses and distances. See course.

court. An organ of the government, consisting of one person, or of several persons, called upon and authorized to administer justice; a place where justice is judicially administered. 20 Am J2d Cts § 1; judge and jury combined. Welch v Welch (Tex Civ App) 369 SW2d 434.

The three elements essential to the conception of a court are: (1) a time when judicial functions may be exercised, (2) a place for the exercise of judicial functions, and (3) a person or persons exercising judicial functions. Hamblin v Superior Court, 195 Cal 364, 233 P 337, 43 ALR 1509. In many cases, the words "court" and "judge" are used interchangeably. 30A Am J Rev ed Judges § 4.

See jurisdiction; see also words and phrases beginning court which follow.

court administrative offices. Nonjudicial offices created to perform administrative functions and details necessary to the performance of the duty of courts to administer justice, thereby relieving the judges or justices of such details and permitting them to concentrate on the purely judicial phases of court work. Am J2d Desk Book, Document 75.

court-baron. A court within a manor in which the tenants litigated and were tried.

court calendar. A list of the cases for trial by the term, the week, or even the day, at which a particular case will come on for trial.

There may be separate calendars for various steps in a proceeding, such as a motion calendar or a pretrial conference calendar. An appellate court calendar is a register of the actions and proceedings in the court, such usually determining the order in which the appeals will be heard. 5 Am J2d A & E § 678.

See docket.

court commissioner. See commissioner of court.

court costs. See costs.

court days. Time of holding court. 20 Am J2d Cts § 42.

court en banc. See full bench.

court decision. See decision.

court docket. See docket.

courtesy. Polite and gracious behavior; consideration for others.
See curtesy.

courtesy card. A card passed out by bus driver, motorman, or conductor to passengers for the purpose of obtaining their names and addresses after the State of New York and of some other states; an occurrence of an accident causing injury to person or property.

[282]

See credit card.

courtezan. See concubine.

court for crown cases reserved. Same as court of criminal appeal.

court for divorce and matrimonial causes. An English court established under the statute 20 & 21 Victoria, c. 85, having jurisdiction in suits for divorce and annulments of marriage.

court for the relief of insolvent debtors. A London bankruptcy court.

court hand. The style of handwriting which is peculiar to English court records.

courthouse. The place provided for holding court; a building occupied and appropriated according to law for the holding of the courts. Harris v State, 72 Miss 960, 18 S 387.

courthouse door. A designation as the place for conducting a judicial sale of real estate at auction. 30A Am J Rev ed Jud S § 76.

court interpreter. See interpreter.

court-lands. Lands which were retained by the lord for the use of his family.

court-leet. An ancient English court presided over by the steward of the leet, with jurisdiction to try petty offenders and to hold preliminary examinations in felony cases.

court-martial. A court of the military, of one of the Armed Services, for the trial of offenses under the Code of Military Justice, which may be in the order of rank a general court-martial, a special court martial, or a summary court-martial; a prosecution before one of such courts-martial.

court not of record. An inferior court, or court of limited or special jurisdiction, such as the court held by a justice of the peace, a mayor, or other magistrate, and some city courts. The term "court not of record" is inexact and indifferent, so that in the absence of a statute declaring a court as one of record or not of record, difficulty is experienced in classification. A justice of the peace does keep a record of his judicial acts and of judgments rendered by him, even though he does not enroll them in an extended form. 20 Am J2d Cts § 26. Usually, the term "court not of record" has reference to a court of limited jurisdiction, negating the idea that the court so described is one of general jurisdiction. 20 Am J2d Cts § 103.

See court of general jurisdiction; court of limited jurisdiction.

court of admiralty. A court entitled to exercise admiralty jurisdiction, which is a federal district court, state courts having no admiralty jurisdiction. 2 Am J2d Adm § 10.

court of ancient demesne. A court held by the king's bailiff for tenants of the king's demesne. Some tenants in ancient demesne had special immunities and favors granted to them, such as to try the right of their property in the court of ancient demesne, by a peculiar process called the writ of right close. See 2 Bl Comm 99.

court of appeals. A court in which appeals from a lower court are heard and disposed of.

Court of Appeals. The highest appellate court of the intermediate federal appellate court.

The United States is divided into eleven judicial circuits. In each circuit there is a United States Court of Appeals for the circuit, having appellate jurisdiction as set forth in the United States Code. 28 US §§ 1271-1294.

Court of Arbitration of the Chamber of Commerce. A court in New York City for the settlement by arbitration of disputes between merchants, created by special act of the legislature (Laws 1874 Ch 278, amended Laws 1875 Ch 495) but not continuing in existence after 1879.

court of archdeacon. See archdeacon's court.

court of arches. See arches court.

court of assize. A court of nisi prius was also called a court of assize and nisi prius.

See assize; nisi prius.

court of attachments. An ancient English forest court for inquiry into offenses against vert and venison, that is, against unlawfully killing deer or stealing wood in the king's forests, or preparing to do so. It was called the court of attachments because persons thus offending could be attached in their bodies if taken in the act, or else attached by their goods. See 3 Bl Comm 71.

court of augmentation. An old English court for the control of the funds and property of monasteries.

court of bankruptcy. A court having jurisdiction of proceedings in bankruptcy, which, in the terms of the Bankruptcy Act, is a United States District Court and a District Court of the territories and possessions to which the Act is or may hereafter be applicable. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 25. Unless the context of the Bankruptcy Act requires otherwise, the term "court," as used in the Act, means the judge or the referee of the court of bankruptcy in which the proceedings are pending. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 92.

court of cassation. The highest court of appeal in France.

court of chancery. A court of equity, in England and some of the United States.

See High Court of Chancery.

court of chivalry. A court known also as the marshal court which was formerly held before the lord high constable and earl marshal of England jointly; but, since the extinguishment of the office of lord high constable, it has usually, with respect to civil matters been held before the earl marshal only, and takes cognizance of contracts and other matters touching deeds of arms and war, as well out of the realm as in it. The court had grown almost obsolete in Blackstone's time. See 3 Bl Comm 68.

Court of Claims. The federal court, created by statute, and vested with jurisdiction of claims against the United States. 28 USC §§ 1491 et seq.; United States v Sherwood, 312 US 584, 85 L Ed 1058, 61 S Ct 767; the designation given in some of the states to the court vested with jurisdiction of claims against the state. 20 Am J2d Cts § 33.

court of commerce. See Commerce Court.

court of common pleas. A nisi prius court of general jurisdiction, at least over civil cases. American colonial courts of common pleas were courts of justice presided over by judges appointed by the king and were known as county courts. "The court of common pleas is the general fountain of justice; and where the rights of a citizen, either derived from the common law or the statutes, are invaded, and the power to protect is conferred on no special jurisdiction, he may seek redress in that court. Moore v Barry, 30 SC 530, 9 SE 589.

[283]

Court of Common Pleas. The name given in several states to a court of general jurisdiction; the trial court of several states.

court of competent jurisdiction. See competent jurisdiction.

court of conscience. An English court for the collection of small debts; a court of equity. Harper v Clayton, 84 Md 346, 35 A 1083. A court of equity is a court of conscience, and whatever, therefore, is unconscionable is odious in its sight. Fraud is more odious than force, and one of the peculiar provinces of a court of equity is to relieve against wilful misrepresentation and fraud. Dowell v Goodwin, 22 RI 287, 47 A 693.

court of convocation. An ecclesiastical court having jurisdiction of the trial of offenses against the ecclesiastical law.

court of criminal appeal. A court composed of judges of the English superior courts which decided questions of law referred to it in pending criminal cases.

Court of Criminal Appeals. The name given in several states to an appellate court with jurisdiction of appeals in criminal cases.

Court of Customs and Patent Appeals. A court with jurisdictions of customs and patent matters created by federal statute. 28 USC § 211.

court of delegates. The great court of appeal in all ecclesiastical cases. The judices delegati or judges of the court were appointed by the king's commission issuing out of chancery to represent his royal person, and hear all appeals in ecclesiastical matters. The jurisdiction of this court was removed to the judicial committee of the privy council by statute in the reign of William the Fourth. 3 Bl Comm 66.

court of equity. A court having jurisdiction of suits in equity and in which equitable remedies are administered.

See court of conscience; equity.

court of exchequer. An English superior court with jurisdiction of matters of law and matters involving government revenue.

court of exchequer chamber. An English court of appeals for the correction of the errors of other jurisdictions. It also heard important matters of great difficulty which were suspended and submitted to it before any judgment was rendered in the court below. See 3 Bl Comm 56.

court of faculties. An English ecclesiastical court which had the granting of ecclesiastical licenses, pew rights and the like.

court of general jurisdiction. A term sometimes equated with "court of record"; a court of extensive, although not necessarily of unlimited, jurisdiction. 20 Am J2d Cts § 103; a superior court. Hahn v Kelly, 34 Cal 391 a court which is competent by its constitution to decide on its own jurisdiction, and to exercise it to a final judgment, without setting forth in its proceedings the facts and evidence on which it is rendered, whose record is absolute verity and behind which there can be no judicial inspection save by appellate power. Lessee of Grignon v Astor (US) 2 How 319, 341, 11 L Ed 283, 292.

Court of General Sessions. A local court of the Borough of Manhattan in New York City having a general criminal jurisdiction.

court of greatest convenience. A term involved in the transfer of cases in bankruptcy, meaning of greatest convenience from the standpoint of proximity to the bankrupt, creditors, and witnesses, the location of assets, and the economic and efficient administration of the estate. Re Triton Chemical Corp. (DC Del) 46 F Supp 326.

court of hustings. See hustings court.

court of industrial relations. See industrial relations court.

court of inquiry. A court convened by the President of the United States for a preliminary investigation of charges preferred against a soldier or an officer of the armed services. 36 Am J1st Mil § 90.

court of justiciary. The supreme criminal court of Scotland.

court of king's bench. A court which was formerly the supreme English common-law court, but later became a department of the high court of justice.

In a reign of a queen, the same court is called the court of queen's bench.

court of last resort. The highest court to which a case may be taken; a court from the judgments of which no appeal can be taken.

court of limited jurisdiction. A term which lacks precision as a description of a court, since there may be limitations upon the jurisdiction of a court properly classed as a court of general jurisdiction; a term sometimes used for an inferior court, a court not of record, one whose judgments do not carry the verity of those of a court of general jurisdiction and may be questioned unless jurisdiction appears upon the face of the proceedings. Lessee of Grignon v Astor (US) 2 How 319, 341, 11 L Ed 283, 292; Hahn v Kelly, 34 Cal 391; 20 Am J2d Courts § 103; a court of special jurisdiction, such as a juvenile court. 31 Am J Rev ed Juv Ct § 5.

court of magistrates and freeholders. A court formerly existing in North Carolina for the trial of colored persons on criminal charges.

Court of Military Appeals. A court with jurisdiction to hear appeals from the judgment in a court-martial, being established by federal statute. 10 USC § 867.

court of nisi prius. See nisi prius.

court of orphans. See orphans' court.

court of oyer and terminer. Old courts presided over by commissioners of oyer and terminer appointed by the king. among these commissioners were usually two common-law judges of the courts at Westminster. These courts were held twice each year in most of the counties of England and eight times in London and Middlesex. They had jurisdiction to hear and determine all cases of treason, felony and misdemeanor. See 4 Bl Comm 269. In the United States the higher criminal courts of some states have been given this name.

court of oyer and terminer and general gaol delivery. A nisi prius court of criminal jurisdiction in England.

court of passage. An inferior court of record held at Liverpool.

court of peculiars. An ecclesiastical court which was a branch of the court of arches to which it was annexed. It had jurisdiction over those parishes in the province of Canterbury which were situated in dioceses exempt from the ordinary's jurisdiction. All ecclesiastical causes arising within these "peculiar" or exempt jurisdictions were originally cognizable by this court. See 3 Bl Comm 65.

[284]

court of piepoudre. See pie-powder court.

court of policies of insurance. An English court with jurisdiction in insurance cases, established about 1550 and abolished about 1863.

court of probate. See probate court.

court of quarter sessions of the peace. A minor English court held quarterly in each county and presided over therein by two justices of the peace.

court of queen's bench. See king's bench.

court of record. A term which seems to have originated in the practice of superior courts in extending the record of their proceedings, orders, and judgments, at length and as perpetual memorials, on sheets of parchment, but, in more recent times, to have been used as a designation of courts of general jurisdiction, the judgments of which import verity. 20 Am J2d Cts §§ 26, 103.

A court of record is a court presided over by a man of experience and learned in the law, assisted by counsel also of experience and learning who act as advisers of the court. Its proceedings are conducted with solemnity and deliberation, and in strict conformity with established modes, and they are taken down and made a matter of record at or about the time they transpire. Hahn v Kelly, 34 Cal 391.

court of regard. A forest court held triennially for the lawing or expeditation of mastiffs, that is, by cutting off the claws and ball of each fore-foot to prevent the dog from attacking deer. See 3 Bl Comm 72.

court of requests. Same as court of conscience.

court of sessions. The supreme civil court of Scotland.

See Court of General Sessions.

court of special jurisdiction. Same as court of limited jurisdiction.

court of star-chamber. A court which tried certain high crimes without the intervention of a jury. The court was abolished in the reign of Charles the First.

court of survey. An English and Welsh court held under the Merchants' Shipping Act of 1894.

court of sweinmote. A forest court held three times in each year before the verderors of the forest as judges and with sweins or freeholders of the forest as jurors, to inquire into grievances commuted by forest officers and to try presentments certified from the court of attachments. See 3 Bl Comm 72.

court reporter. A stenographer who takes down in shorthand during the trial of a case the testimony of witnesses by question and answer and the colloquy between counsel and between counsel and the court, and later prepares transcripts from such record as such may be needed and ordered for appeal or review proceedings; sometimes having the status of an officer of the court. 20 Am J2d Cts § 4; an officer of court in charge of the publication of the opinions of the court.

See stenographically reported.

court of the clerk of the market. A court which was held at the place and time of a fair or market in England.

court of the coroner. A coroner's inquest.

court of the Duchy of Lancaster. A court of equity of special jurisdiction in cases relating to lands held of the king in right of the Duchy of Lancaster. It appears not to have been a court of record. See 3 Bl Comm 78.

court of the judiciary. A court of the state with supervisory powers over the administration of all the courts in the state, sometimes having jurisdiction of proceedings for removal of judges or disbarment of attorneys.

court of the lord high steward. A court where peers of England were tried for felony and certain other high crimes.

court of the lord high steward of the universities. A court for the trial of indictments of scholars and officers of the universities of Oxford and Cambridge.

court of the marshalsea. An English court with jurisdiction of cases involving royal servants.

court of the ordinary. An English ecclesiastical court which was presided over by a bishop.

court of the steward and marshal. An English court for the trial of cases arising within twelve miles of the king's actual residence.

Court of the steward of the king's household. An English court which tried persons for certain crimes committed near the king's residence.

court of upper bench. The court of king's bench, as it was called during the interregnum, 1649-1660.

court of wards and liveries. A court which was erected in the reign of Henry the Eighth for the conducting of inquiries into relicts, wardships, primer seisins and other profits which accrued to the king. The court was abolished by statute in the reign of Charles the Second. See 2 Bl Comm 69, 77.

court opinion. See opinion of court.

court order. See order of court.

court receiver. A receiver appointed by a court under statutory authority or by virtue of its equity jurisdiction. 44 Am J1st Rec § 3.

court record. An official writeup or memorandum of what happened or occurred in court during the proceedings in a particular case. 20 Am J2d Cts § 52; any part of the record of a case in court, including pleadings, exhibits, examinations, writs and levies, etc. 20 Am J1st Ev §§ 994 et seq.

In a criminal case, after the caption stating the time and place of holding the court, the record should consist of the indictment properly indorsed, as found by the grand jury; the arraignment of the accused, his plea, the impaneling of the traverse jury, their verdict, and the judgment of the court. This, in general, is all that the record need state. United States v Taylor, 147 US 695, 37 L Ed 335, 13 S Ct 475.

Nothing which is not properly matter of record can be made such by inserting it therein. United States v Taylor, 147 US 695, 37 L Ed 335, 13 S Ct 475.

See court of record.

[285]

court reports. Official or unofficial reports of cases decided by a court or by one or more courts, giving in full the opinions rendered in the cases, usually including concurring and dissenting opinions, and having headnotes or syllabi prepared officially by the court reporter or unofficially by an editor of the publisher's staff. 20 Am J2d Cts §§ 76, 77.

court-rolls. The rolls or records of a court.

court rules. See rules of court.

courts Christian. Ecclesiastical courts. Anderson v Commonwealth, 26 Va (5 Rand) 627.

court seal. See seal of court.

courts-martial. Plural of court-martial.

courts of the cinque ports. Courts which were established at the cinque ports, which were the five most important havens on the English coast, to wit: Dover, Sandwich, Romney, Hastings and Hythe. To these five Winchelsea and Rye were added later. See 3 Bl Comm 79.

courts of the counties palatine. Courts which were held in counties palatine.

See counties palatine.

courts of the principality of Wales. Courts which were established in Wales during the reign of Henry the Eighth in which all pleas of real and personal actions were held in the same manner as in the court of common pleas at Westminster. They were courts of record and appeals lay from them to the court of king's bench. These courts were abolished in the reign of George the Fourth. See 3 Bl Comm 77.

courts of the two universities. Courts of local jurisdiction held at the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. See 3 Bl Comm 83.

courts of the United States. See United States Courts.

court's presence. See presence of the court.

court stenographer. See court reporter.

court vacation. See vacation.

cousin. The child of one's uncle or aunt; a relative in the fourth degree according to the method of computing kinship used in most jurisdictions. 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 48.

The children of brothers, sisters, or a brother and sister, respectively, are related as first cousins. Re O'Mara's Estate, 106 NJ Eq 311, 151 A 67; Re Oatley, 83 Misc 655, 146 NYS 796. The general rule is that a devise to "cousins", in the absence of testamentary qualification, express or implied, includes only first cousins. Bishop v Russell, 241 Mass 29, 134 NE 233, 19 ALR 1408.

In England, any peer of the degree or station of an earl or better is often addressed by king or queen as cousin.

See cater-cousin; quater cousin; second cousin.

cousinage. The relationship of cousins; collateral relationship.

cousin german. A first cousin, that is, a child of an uncle or an aunt. Anno: 99 ALR 672.

coustum. A toll; a tribute.

couthutlaugh. A person who harbored an outlaw.

cove. A nook, a small bay; a concave molding. Keller Products, Inc. v Rubber Linings Corp. (CA7 Ill) 213 F2d 382, 47 ALR2d 1108.

covenant. Words used in a deed whereby the grantor, the grantee, or each of them, binds himself to the other for the performance or nonperformance of a particular act or thing, or for the existence or nonexistence of a particular state of facts, and for the breach of which obligation the party bound should be answerable in damages. Mackenzie v Trustees of Presbytery, 67 NJ Eq 652, 61 A 1027; a term now used principally in connection with promises in conveyances or other instruments pertaining to real estate, although in the broadest sense of the term it indicates a contract. In a more specific application of the term, it imports an agreement reduced to writing and duly executed whereby one or more of the parties named therein engages that a named act is to be performed or is to be performed sometime in the future. 20 Am J2d Cov § 1. In a lease, the term usually means no more than a promise or agreement. 32 Am J1st L & T § 140. A seal was a requisite of a covenant at common law, but with the elimination of the requirement of a seal upon written contracts, as such has occurred in most jurisdictions, a mere written agreement may suffice as a covenant. 20 Am J2d Cov § 1.

A breach of covenant gives rise to an action at law to recover damages or an action for equitable relief, whereas, the breach of a condition upon which an estate is granted is a forfeiture of the estate forthwith.

The term "covenant" is the name of the common-law remedy for breach of a contract under seal. 1 Am J2d Actions § 19. It was the remedy at common law for the recovery of rent upon a lease under seal. 32 Am J1st L & T § 523.

See restrictive covenants; title covenants.

covenant against encumbrances. A title covenant in the form of a stipulation by the covenantor that there are no outstanding rights or interest to the estate conveyed or any part thereof which will diminish the value of the estate, but which are consistent with the passing of the estate. 20 Am J2d Cov § 81.

covenant appurtenant. Same as covenant running with the land.

covenant collateral. A covenant in a deed which does not relate to the grant.

covenantee. The person to whom the performance of the terms of a covenant is due.

covenanter. Same as covenantor.

covenant for further assurance. A covenant of title binding the grantor to perform all acts, deeds, conveyances and assurances which may be wanting to the confirmation of the grantee's title, or to secure the execution of such other deeds or instruments as shall be necessary to perfect or confirm the title. 20 Am J2d Cov § 108.

covenant for possession. Same as covenant of quiet enjoyment.

covenant for quiet enjoyment. See covenant of quiet enjoyment.

covenant for title. See title covenants.

covenant inherent. See inherent covenant.

covenant in law. A covenant which the law implies or intends from the nature of the transaction, although it is not expressed by words in the instrument which contains it. It is a rule that such a covenant is operative only when the parties have omitted to insert covenants in the instrument. 20 Am J2d Cov § 12.

See implied covenant.

[286]

covenant not to sue. A device most familiar in the law of torts, being used to prevent the release of a tortfeasor upon settling with his joint tortfeasor. 1 Am J2d Accord § 9.

A covenant not to sue recognizes that the obligation or liability continues but the injured party agrees not to assert any rights grounded thereon against a particular covenantee. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v Boone (Fla) 85 So 2d 834, 57 ALR2d 1189. Indicia of such a covenant are: No intention on the part of the injured person to give a discharge of the cause of action, or any part thereof, but merely to treat in respect of not suing thereon, and this seems to be the prime differentiating attribute; full compensation for his injuries not received, but only partial satisfaction; and a reservation of the right to sue the other wrongdoer. Smith v Dixie Park Co. 128 Tenn 112, 120 SW 900.

covenant of good right to convey. A synonym of covenant of seisin.

See covenant of seisin.

covenant of quiet enjoyment. A title covenant, an assurance that the grantee shall have legal, quiet, and peaceful possession. 20 Am J2d Cov § 97; an express or implied covenant in a lease that the lessee shall not be evicted or disturbed in his possession of the demised premises or any part thereof. 32 Am J1st L & T § 268.

The covenant of quiet enjoyment extends only to the possession, not to the title of the property transferred, and is sometimes referred to as a "covenant for possession." 20 Am J2d Cov § 97.

covenant of seisin. A covenant of title, otherwise known as a covenant of good right to convey, is a general covenant that the grantor is lawfully seised and has the right to convey the property at the time of the execution of the conveyance, extending to the land itself and to whatever is properly appurtenant to, and passing by, the conveyance of the land. 20 Am J2d Cov § 73.

See seisin.

covenant of special warranty. See special warranty.

covenant of title. See title covenants.

covenant of warranty. The principal title covenant, being an agreement by the grantor or warrantor that upon the failure of the title which the deed purports to convey, either for the whole estate or part only, he will make compensation in money for the loss sustained. It is an assurance or guaranty of title, or an agreement or assurance by the grantor of an estate that the grantee and his heirs and assigns shall enjoy it without interruption by virtue of a paramount title, and that they shall not, by force of a paramount title, be evicted from the land or deprived of its possession. 20 Am J2d Cov § 50.

covenantor. A person who covenants; the maker of a covenant.

covenant performed. A form of plea in actions of covenant, which admits the execution of the covenants, but pleads the performance of them. Roth v Miller (Pa) 15 Serg & R 100, 105.

covenant real. See real covenant.

covenant running with the land. A real covenant, a covenant under which either the liability for performance or the right to performance passes to a vendee or assignee. 20 Am J2d Cov § 29; a covenant of a lease, the burdens, as well as the benefits of which, are upon the assignee. 32 Am J1st L & T § 157.

See real covenant.

covenant to convey. A covenant by which the covenantor agrees to convey certain described property.

covenant to rebuild. A covenant by the lessor to rebuild the structures upon the demised premises after their destruction by fire or the elements. 32 Am J1st L & T § 709.

covenant to redeliver. An implied obligation or covenant on the part of a lessee to redeliver possession of the demised premises on the expiration of the lease. 32 Am J1st L & T § 841.

covenant to repair. An express agreement in a lease binding the lessee to surrender the premises upon the expiration of the lease in a designated condition of repair. 32 Am J1st L & T § 803; a covenant by the lessor to repair the premises after injury thereto by fire or the elements. 32 Am J1st L & T § 709.

covenant to stand seised to uses. A covenant by which a man, seised of land, covenants in consideration of blood or marriage that he will stand seised of the same to the use of his child, wife, or kinsman, for life, in tail, or in fee. In such case, the statute of uses executed the estate at once for the beneficiary having thus acquired the use, the statute clothed him with possession, "by a kind of parliamentary magic." See 2 Bl Comm 338.

Coventry Act. An Act of Parliament, passed in 1683, making an assault with intent to maim or disfigure a person a felony.

cover. To overspread; as applied to insurance, it means to protect by means of insurance. A. Perley Fitch Co. v Phenix Ins. Co. 82 NH 318, 320, 133 A 340, 342.

coverage. The risk of loss covered by an insurance policy.

See risks and causes of loss.

covered wagon. A vehicle well known in history and romantic legends. The vehicle by which the pioneers traveled west. A large wagon having a canvas cover.

A covered wagon traveling from place to place, in which prostitution is carried on, may constitute a house of ill fame, within the meaning of the statute. State v Chauvet, 111 Iowa 687, 83 NW 717.

covert. Covered; protected; as, a feme covert, a married women.

covert-baron. A married woman.

coverture. The status and rights of the wife arising from the marriage relationship. 26 Am J1st H & W § 5.

covin. Fraud; deceit; collusion; a contrivance between two to cheat a third. Mix v Muzzy, 28 Conn 186, 191.

covinous. Collusive; deceitful; fraudulent.

cow. The mature female of the ox family, also of elephants and whales, sometimes and for some purposes including the immature female of the ox family known as a heifer. Carruth v Grassie, 77 Mass (11 Gray) 211.

cowitch. A plant whose spines cause violent itching in contact with the skin of a person. Commonwealth v Cramer (Pa) 2 Pearson 441, 444.

Cox v Hickman. A celebrated English case (8 H. L. Cas. 268) in which the court established the principle, which has since become general, that persons who are not in fact partners are not liable to third persons as such merely because they have shared in the profits of a business unless there has been an estoppel or a holding out of such persons as partners.

[287]

cozen. To cheat.

cozening. Cheating or defrauding a person by some deceitful practice, whether in a matter of business or not, as by a counterfeit letter, cogged dice or other false token. See 4 Bl Comm 158.

CPA. Abbreviation of certified public account. 1 Am J2d Accts § 1.

c. r. An abbreviation of curia regis.

crabs. A kind of shellfish; a sour-tempered person.

cracking. Breaking or splitting without complete separation of parts. A process in refining crude oil into useful constituents, such as lubricating oil and gasoline. Universal Oil Products Co. v Globe Oil & Refining Co. (DC Ill) 40 F Supp 575.

craft. Trickery or deception; an occupation requiring skill; the members of a skilled trade. Re International Asso. of Machinists, 249 Wis 112, 23 NW2d 489, 174 ALR 126 7. The members of a secret fraternal order which simulates a skilled trade in instructing its members in the principles of the order. Watercraft, especially small vessels. Owners of Steamboat Wenonah v Bragdon, 62 Va (21 Gratt) 685, 697.

craft union. A labor union, the membership of which is confined to persons of a single craft or closely related crafts. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 13.

cranage. A license to use a wharf crane. The charge made for such license.

crane. A device with a movable arm for lifting heavy weights. A large bird with long legs, frequenting swamps.
See mail crane.

Cranworth. See Lord Cranworth's Act.

crap. Buckwheat. The throw which loses in a game of craps. A slang term for something worthless, especially idle talk.
See craps.

craps. A game played with dice.
See dice.

crassa. Gross.

crassa negligentia. Gross negligence, a gross breach of duty. See Briggs v Spaulding, 141 US 132, 171, 35 L Ed 662, 677, 11 S Ct 924.

crastinum or crastino. Tomorrow; the next day.

cratering. The creation of a bowlshaped depression around or in an oil well by the collapse of the earth's structure beneath the drilling unit or the eruption of oil, gas, water, or other material from the well. Midwestern Ins. Co. v Rapp (Okla) 296 P2d 770.

cravant. Same as craven.

crave. To demand; to dun; to desire.

craven. Cowardly; a coward. A word employed in trial by battle which when uttered by either champion ended the combat with disgrace and defeat for him, and the punishment of infamy besides. See 3 Bl Comm 340.
See recreant.

cravent. Same as craven.

crave oyer. See oyer.

crazy. Insane or mentally deranged. Shaver v McCarthy, 110 Pa 339, 345; Thompson v State, 104 Tex Crim 637, 645, 285 SW 826, 830. A state of great enthusiasm for a person, a thing, or an idea; a thing or an idea that is fitting for a crazy person to have.

creamus. We create.

Creamus, erigimus, fundamus, incorporamus. We create, we erect, we found, we incorporate. See 1 Bl Comm 473.

creance. A collateral security; a pledge.

creancer. A creditor.

creansor. Same as creancer.

create. To bring into being; to cause to exist; to produce; to make, for example, a machine or a corporation. Bank of Commerce v Wiltsie, 153 Ind 460, 53 NE 950, 952.

creation. The act of producing or making. The universe and everything contained therein.

creature of reason. Man. Slate v Jones, 1 Miss (Walk) 83, 85.

credence. Belief in the statements of another.

See letter of credence.

credentials. Documents or evidences of a person's authority. Something which entitles a person to be believed. The letter of credence given to an ambassador or other foreign representative. 4 Am J2d Ambss § 2.

credere. See del credere.

credibility. Capacity for being believed or credited.

credible person. See credibility; credible witness.

credible witness. A competent witness who is worthy of belief. Hawes v Humphrey, 26 Mass (9 Pick) 481; Wilson v State, 27 Tex App 47, 10 SW 749.

See competent witness.

credit. Noun: The quality that attracts trust, particularly trust in one's disposition and capacity to pay. Dry Dock Bank v American Life Ins. & Trust Co.. 3 NY 344, 356. The antonym of cash on delivery; the trust or confidence which is reposed by the seller in the buyer when the time of payment is extended without security. Parrish v American Ry. Employees' Pub. Corp. 83 Cal App 298, 256 P 590. An accounting term for what appears to be owing by one person to another upon an accounting between the two. Propper v Clark, 337 US 472, 93 L Ed 1480, 69 S Ct 1333, reh den 338 US 841, 94 L, Ed 514, 70 S Ct 33. Most broadly defined as the obligation owing by the debtor to his creditor, including a promissory note. Davis v Mitchell, 34 Cal 81. But not a share of corporate stock. In some jurisdictions, for the purpose of garnishment, something belonging to the defendant but in the possession and under the control of the garnishee. 6 Am J2d Attach § 449.

As the term "credits" is defined by an Ohio tax statute, it means the excess of the sum of all legal claims and demands, whether for money or other valuable thing, or for labor or service due or to become due to the person liable to pay taxes thereon, over and above the sum of the legal bona fide debts owing by such person. Fayette County v People's & Drover's Bank, 47 Ohio St 503, 25 NE 697. The term "credit" also stands for the certification earned by a student upon the successful completion of a subject or course of study. Again, it represents a reward to a prisoner for good conduct, the ultimate effect of which may be the shortening of the time of his imprisonment. 41 Am J1st Pris & P § 44. Verb: To acknowledge a payment of or upon an obligation. To give credence to a statement.

[288]

See letter of credit; tax credit.

credit agency. See commercial agency; mercantile agency.

credit at bank. An arrangement or understanding with the bank upon which a check is drawn for the payment of such check. Berry v State, 153 Ga 169 111 SE 669, 35 ALR 370.

credit foncier. An associatio which is engaged in lending money on real estate security.

credit insurance. A policy of insurance which protects the insured against loss resulting from the insolvency or inability of his customers to pay their accounts. Such policies usually provide that the insured shall bear an initial loss of an agreed upon amount before the insurer's liability shall attach. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1367.

credit card. A card or plate issued by a department store to a person whose credit is acceptable to the merchant, to be used in making purchases at the store on credit, without further identification or investigation as to credit standing; a card or plate issued by an oil company for the purpose of enabling the holder to purchase gasoline, oil, and automobile accessories at stations of the company wherever the latter may be in the country or, under some cards, even abroad; a card or plate issued by a bank or guaranty company for the purpose of enabling the holder to obtain on credit hotel or motel accommodations, meals, and airline tickets at home, in this country, and even abroad. Anno: 158 ALR 762.

credit limit. See margin of credit.

creditor. An obligee, a person, natural or artificial, public or private, in whose favor an obligation exists by reason of which he is or may become entitled to the payment of money, at least if the obligation is one on a liquidated demand based upon an agreement. Henley v Myers, 76 Kan 723, 93 P 168; Lindstrom v Spicher, 53 ND 195, 205 NW 231, 41 ALR 968, 971. A general creditor, a secured creditor, a lien creditor, and any representative of creditors, including an assignee for the benefit of creditors, a trustee in bankruptcy, a receiver in equity, and an executor or administrator of an insolvent debtor's or assignor's estate. 15 Am J2d Com C § 7. As the term appears in an assignment for the benefit of creditors, "creditor" means one who has a definite demand against the assignor, or a cause of action capable of adjustment and liquidation at trial. 6 Am J2d Assign for Crs § 109. As the term appears in the Bankruptcy Act, unless inconsistent with the context, "creditor" includes anyone who owns a debt, demand or claim provable in bankruptcy, and may include his duly authorized agent, attorney, or proxy. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 389 Under the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act, a creditor is a person having any claim, whether matured or unmatured, liquidated or unliquidated, absolute, fixed, or contingent. Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act § 1, applied in American Surety Co. v Conner, 251 NY 1, 166 NE 783, 65 ALR 244.

See debtor and creditor relationship.

creditor at large. Same as general creditor.

creditor-beneficiary. A third person designated to receive the benefit of performance by one of two contracting parties under the terms of the agreement with the other, who is to receive the benefit of performance because of a specific obligation owing to him by the promisee. Northern Nat. Bank v Northern Minnesota Nat. Bank, 244 Minn 202, 70 NW2d 118; Breaux v Banker (Tex Civ App) 107 SW2d 382.

creditor of decedent. A person to whom the decedent was indebted personally or a person who, by operation of law, becomes the legal owner of a claim against the decedent, as, for example, the adminstrator of a creditor. See 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 57, See claim against decedent's estate.

creditors' bill. An action or suit brought by a creditor to enforce the payment of a debt out of property or an interest of his debtor which cannot be reached by ordinary legal process. 21 Am J2d Cred B § 1. The term is also used broadly to refer to certain other actions brought by creditors, such as a suit brought by the creditors of a decedent to obtain administration of his estate, a suit by junior lien creditors to secure a marshaling of a debtor's assets, and suits to set aside fraudulent conveyances.

See marshaling assets; fraudulent conveyances.

creditor's claim. See claim.

creditors in solido. Joint creditors.

creditors' meeting. A meeting of creditors of a bankrupt required to activate the administration of an estate in bankruptcy. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 579. Also a meeting of the creditors of a debtor in the bankruptcy court for the purpose of obtaining an arrangement or reorganization which shall rehabilitate the business.

creditor's suit. See creditors' bill.

Creditorum appellatione non hi tantum accipiuntur qui pecuniam crediderunt, sed omnes quibus ex qualibet causa debetur. By the term "creditors" is understood not only those who have lent money, but all to whom a debt is owing from any cause.

credit plate. See credit card.

credit rating. An opinion as to the reliability of a person, natural or artificial, concerning ability and promptness in the payment of debts.

The opinion may be one merely of reputation in the community but is usually one given by a professional credit-rating agency.

credit report. A report made by a commercial or mercantile agency concerning the financial standing, credit, character, responsibility, and general reputation of a particular person, firm, or corporation engaged in business. 15 Ann J2d Collect § 3.

credit-reporting agency. Another term for a commercial or mercantile agency.

credits. See credit.

credit standing. One's rating in respect of his trustworthiness and capacity to pay his bills as they become due.

See credit rating.

[289]

credit statement. A written and signed statement of assets, liabilities, and other personal information, given by a borrower to a bank or other money lending institution in obtaining a loan.

credit the drawer. Words which, when appearing on the face of a promissory note, signify that the note is for the maker's accommodation, and that the proceeds thereof are his, notwithstanding it is drawn payable to another. Merchants Nat. Bank v Raesly, 288 Pa 374, 136 A 238, 56 ALR 230. Written on the face of a promissory note, the words imply no promise or undertaking on the part of him who uses them, but are a direction to all persons to whom the note may be presented, to treat with the drawer as the owner, notwithstanding the apparent title of the indorsee. Temple v Baker, 125 Pa 634, 643, 17 A 517.

credit union. A corporation organized under special statutory provisions to promote thrift among, and provide credit for, its members. 13 Am J2d B & L ASSO § 4. A cooperative association organized under the Federal Credit Union Act for the purpose of promoting thrift among its members and creating a source of credit for provident or productive purposes. 12 USC 1752.

Credit Union Act. An act of Congress providing for federal credit unions and the supervision thereof. 12 USC §§ 1751 et seq.

credo. I believe.

creed. A formal declaration of religious belief. The word has no reference, in its ordinary meaning, to benevolent, philanthropic, or fraternal organizations, secret or otherwise, even though of a moral character. Hammer v State, 173 Ind 199, 89 NE 850.

See Apostles' Creed.

creek. In its most common usage, a small river; occasionally it signifies a small bay, inlet, or cove. French v Carhart, 1 NY 96, 107. A small seacoast town having no customs office.

Creek. The name of an Indian tribe; a member of the Creek tribe.

See five civilized tribes.

cremation. The disposal of a dead body by burning it.

crematory. A place equipped and operated for the disposal of dead bodies by cremation.

creme de menthe. A liqueur, usually served after dinner.

crementum comitatus. The increase of the county.

crepare oculum. To put out an eye.

crepusculum. (French.) Twilight, that is, the partial light of day which precedes sunrise and follows sunset.

Crescente malitia crescere debet et poena. Punishment ought to be increased as malice increases.

cressant. Growing.

cresser. To grow.

credo. The period immediately following the death of the ancestor during which the heir might decide whether to take or to reject his inheritance.

crew. The seamen manning a ship, including, for some purposes, the officers, even the master. 48 Am J1st Ship § 111. The word has a varying legal significance. In a general sense, it is equivalent to ship's company, which would embrace all of the officers as well as the common seamen. It is sometimes used to comprehend all persons composing the ship's company, including the master; sometimes to comprehend the officers and common seamen, excluding the master; and sometimes to comprehend the common seamen only. When, therefore, the word is used in a statute it is necessary to consider the context of the particular use of the term and the object to be accomplished by the enactment under consideration. South Chicago Coal & Dock Co. v Bassett, 303 US 251, 84 L Ed 732, 60 S Ct 544.

crew of aircraft. This term does not have an absolutely unvarying legal significance, but must always be considered in its context, whether used in connection with watercraft or aircraft. Le Breton v Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. 223 La 984, 67 So 2d 565, 45 ALR2d 446. It may include the air crew assisting in the operation of the craft while in the air, and a landing or ground crew assisting in the handling of the plane on the ground; but the word has no unvarying significance and may consist of only one person. 8 Am J2d Avi § 33. The operator of an airport, complying with the request of the owner and operator of an airplane, stored on the former's grounds, when asked to assist the latter in pushing the plane from the hangar and in starting the plane by cranking the propeller, is a member of the crew within the coverage of an aviation accident policy. Miner v Western Casualty & Surety Co. 241 Iowa 530, 41 NW2d 557, 14 ALR2d 1358. As the term appears in an aviation exception clause of a life or accident insurance policy, the "crew" is not limited to persons who actually operate an airplane in flight, but is inclusive of attendants or stewards aboard a passenger plane in the regular course of their employment. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1266. On the other hand, a provision of a life insurance policy excluding from full coverage an aircraft pilot, instructor, officer, or other member of the crew, appears from the context not to apply to all occupants notwithstanding permissible use of the term "crew" in its largest sense as a "company of people associated together." Le Breton v Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. 223 La 984, 67 So 2d 565, 45 ALR2d 446.

crew of train. Conductor, engineer, fireman, Bagmen, or brakemen.

See Full Crew Law.

cribler. To argue.

cribs. Buildings or parts of a barn used for the storage of grain, especially corn. Small rooms in a house. Pon v Wittman, 147 Cal 280, 284, 81 P 984.

cricket. A game played by teams of 11 men each, with a ball, bat, and wicket, popular in England and becoming more popular in the United States; fair play, good sportsmanship, and good conduct in general.

crie de pays. Hue and cry.

crier. An auctioneer or a person employed by an auctioneer to make the outcry, at an auction sale, under his personal supervision and direction. 7 Am J2d Auct § 4. A person employed to announce sales of property at auction such person going about the streets ringing a bell for the purpose of attracting attention, and then making proclamation of the place where and of the kind of goods or property to be sold at auction. Rochester v Close (NY) 35 Hun 208, 210. Verb: To proclaim. (French.)

[290]

criez la peez. (French.) Rehearse the concord, -one of the formalities in the levying of a fine.

crim. con. An abbreviation of "criminal conversation," q. v.

crime. An offense against sovereignty an act committed, or omitted, in violation of the public law which forbids or commands it. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 1. In some contexts, the term "crime" means any offense against the law, not excluding msideameanors. 22 Am J2d Extrad § 21. On the other hand, the word is sometimes used in a more limited sense to embrace only the more serious offenses. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 1.

See capital offense; continuing offense; convict; felony; misdemeanor; mala in se; mala prohibita; moral turpitude.

crime against nature. Sodomy; sexual relations with a person of the same sex or with a beast; unnatural sexual relations between persons of the same sex. 48 Am J1st Sod § 1.

crime against spouse. For the purposes of rendering the wife competent as a witness, an offense amounting to personal violence, or a physical assault, upon an innocent spouse. 58 Am J1st Witn § 193.

See uxoricide.

crime involving moral turpitude. See moral turpitude.

crimen. A crime.

crimen falsi. See falsi crimen.

Crimep falsi dicitur, cum quis illicitur, cui non fuerit ad haec data auctoritas, de sigillo regis raptio vel invento brevia, cartasve consignaverit. The crime of falsifying applies to one to whom authority has not been given who has signed writs or charters with the king's seal, stolen or found.

crimen furti. Larceny. See furti crimen.

crimen incendii. See incendi crimen.

crimen laesae majestatis. The crime of injuring majesty,--high treason. See 4 Bl Comm 75.

Crimen laesae majestatis omnia alia crimina excedit quoad poenam. The punishment for high treason exceeds that for all other crimes.

crimen majestatis. Treason.

Crimen omnia ex se nata vitiat. Crime vitiates everything which springs from it. Parker v Hughes, 64 Kan 216, 67 P 537.

crimen raptus. Rape.

crimen roberiae. Robbery

Crimen trahit personam. A crime draws the person with it. That is, if a criminal act has been committed within the territorial jurisdiction of the court, so that the court has jurisdiction of the crime, it follows that the court also has jurisdiction over the criminal. People v Adams (NY) 3 Denio 190.

crime of moral turpitude. See moral turpitude.

crime of omission. An offense in the form of failor to perform a required act, rather than the doing of a prohibited act. 21 Am J2d Crim L, § 6.

crime of reputation. A crime predicated by statute on reputation, such as the offense of keeping, frequenting, or being an inmate of premises reputedly used for designated unlawful purposes. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 5.

crime of status. A crime, such as vagrancy, living in adultery, or living in fornication, predicated on a status, condition, or mode of life. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 5.

criminal. Adjective: Relating to or having the character of crime. People v Bradley, 60 Ill 390, 402. Noun: A person who has committed a crime, especially, if he is a recidivist or the crime is a serious or violent one. In the eyes of the law, a person is a criminal who has been adjudged guilty of a crime, and he continues to be a criminal so long as the judgment remains in force. Re Molineux, 177 NY 395, 69 NE 727.

criminal act. Any act which is punishable as a crime.

criminal action. An action by the sovereign, that is the state or the United States, or instituted on behalf of the sovereign, against one charged with the commission of a criminal act, for the enforcement of the penalty or punishment prescribed by law. 1 Am J2d Actions § 43.

criminal anarchy. The doctrine that organized government should be overthrown by force, violence, assassination of the executive head, or of other executives of the government, or by any unlawful means. 47 Am J1st Sedit etc. § 3.

criminal appeals. Appeals from judgments in criminal cases. 4 Am J2d A & E § 159.

criminal assault. An assault for which the assailant may be criminally prosecuted. 6 Am J2d Asslt & B § 8.

A statute which provides that whoever unlawfully attempts to strike, hit, touch, or do any violence to another, however small, in a wanton, wilful, angry, or insulting manner, having an intention and existing ability to do some violence to such person, is guilty of an assault, and that if such attempt is carried into effect, he is guilty of assault and battery, and upon conviction shall be subject to a penalty within maximum limits, and when the offense is of a high and aggravated nature, shall be subject to a greater penalty, is merely declaratory of the common law. Bell v State, 136 Me 322, 9 A2d 129, 125 ALR 602.

criminal attempt. See attempt.

criminal bail. Bail given in a criminal case.

See bail.

criminal business. For the purposes of a venue statute, the term "criminal business" means the criminal matters occupying the attention and labor of men engaged in legal affairs, coming into being or notice in any county. Sherman v Drouhay, 27 Utah 47, 74 P 348.

criminal capacity. The capacity to commit a crime, that is, legal mental capacity, whereunder responsibility for the commission of an act prohibited by law and susceptibility to punishment provided by law attaches to the wrongdoer. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 26. Substantial capacity either to appreciate the criminality of one's act and to conform to the re quirements of the law. American Law Institute's Model Penal Code.

[291]

See right and wrong test.

criminal case. The prosecution of a person for a criminal offense. Re Carter, 166 Mo 604, 57 LRA 654, 655, 66 SW 540. Criminal cases are those which refer to public wrongs and their punishment, as distinguished from civil cases and suits which refer to the legal means by which rights and remedies of private individuals are enforced or protected. State ex rel. Kochtitzky v Riley, 203 Mo 175, 101 SW 567.

criminal charge. An affidavit, complaint, indictment, or information which accuses the defendant or accused with the commission of a specified crime or offense and states the crime or offense in sufficient particulars to advise the defendant or accused of the acts or omissions for which he is being brought into court; a count in an indictment or information charging two or more crimes or offense. The popular understanding of the term "criminal charge" is "accusation," and it is freely so used in conversation and in the newspapers, but in legal phraseology it is properly limited to such accusations as have taken shape in a prosecution. In the eye of the law, a person is charged with crime only when he is called upon in a legal proceeding to answer to such a charge. United States v Patterson, 150 US 65, 68, 37 L Ed 999, 1000, 14 S Ct 20.

criminal conspiracy. See conspiracy.

criminal contempt. Some authorities are critical of the use of this expression, saying that it is as redundant as "criminal crime." It can be said with some assurance, however, that where the primary purpose of a contempt proceeding is to preserve the court's authority and to punish for disobedience of its orders, the contempt is criminal. 17 Am 32d Contpt § 4. A charge of procuring false testimony in a civil action is a charge of criminal contempt, as distinguished from civil contempt. Osborne v Purdome (Mo) 244 SW2d 1005, 29 ALR2d 1141. Courts have power to punish such contempts and, in such instance, the proceeding is punitive and the punishment operates in terrorem and by that means has a tendency to prevent the repetition of the offense. State v Shepherd. 177 Mo 205, 76 SW 79.

Criminal contempts are "offenses against the United States" within the meaning of the Constitutional provision which gives to the President power to grant pardons for offenses against the United States. Ex parte Grossman, 267 US 87, 69 L Ed 527, 45 S Ct 332.

criminal conversation. The tortious invasion of the rights of husband and wife which occurs when a third person has adulterous intercourse with one of them and for which the innocent and offended spouse has a cause of action against the adulterer. At common law no action lay on behalf of a wife for the seduction of her husband, but statute has changed this rule in the great majority of American jurisdictions. 27 Am J1st H & W § 535.

criminal court. A court having jurisdiction of prosecutions for crimes. A juvenile court specially created by a statute providing for the disposition to be made of delinquent children is not a criminal court. 31 Am J Rev ed Juv Ct § 5.

Criminal Extradition Act. One of the uniform laws.

criminal homicide. The unlawful taking by one human being of the life of another in such a manner that he dies within a year and a day from the time of the giving of the mortal wound. If committed with malice, express or implied by law, it is murder; if without malice, it is manslaughter. No personal injury, however grave, which does not destroy life, will constitute either of these crimes. The injury must continue to affect the body of the victim until his death. If it ceases to operate, and death ensues from another cause, no murder or manslaughter has been committed. Commonwealth v Macloon, 101 Mass 1.

See manslaughter; murder.

criminal information. See information.

criminal insanity. A want of mental capacity and moral freedom to do or abstain from doing a particular act. State v Schafer, 156 Wash 240, 286 P 833.

See insanity; right and wrong test.

criminal intent. A state of mind which operates jointly with an act or omission in the commission of a crime; a guilty or evil intent in performing an act prohibited by law and penalized as a crime. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 81.

See mens rea.

criminaliter. Criminally.

criminal law. That branch of jurisprudence which teaches of the nature, extent and degree of every crime and adjusts to it its adequate and necessary penalty. United States v Reisinger, 128 US 398, 32 L Ed 480, 9 S Ct 99.

criminal letters. A prosecution for crime by a procedure similar to that followed in a prosecution by information.

criminal liability. The penalty or forfeiture imposed as punishment for crime.

criminal libel. A libel punishable as a crime. 32 Am J1st L & S § 308.

See libel.

criminally intimate. See intimate.

criminal negligence. Negligence which is proscribed by law and for which punishment is provided as constituting a crime. 38 Am J1st Negl § 9.

See negligent homicide.

criminal offense. A crime by force of statute or the common law, whether a felony or misdemeanor, and including, according to some, but not all the authorities, the violation of a municipal ordinance. 5 Am J2d Crim L § 38.

As the term is used in statutes permitting the introduction of evidence of his commission of a criminal offense to affect the credibility of a witness, the term is usually held to include both felonies and misdemeanors, but not to include the violation of a municipal ordinance. Koch v State, 126 Wis 470, 106 NW 531.

Under a constitutional provision for the prosecution of all criminal offenses by presentment or indictment of a grand jury, acts of a militiaman which merely constituted a violation of the military code do not amount to a criminal offense. State ex rel. Madigan v Wagener, 74 Minn 518, 77 NW 424.

criminal procedure. Court practice connected with criminal prosecutions.

criminal proceeding. A proceeding in court in the prosecution of a person charged or to be charged with the commission of a crime, contemplating the conviction and punishment of the person charged or to be charged. State ex rel. Sweezcr v Green, 360

[292]

Mo 1249, 232 SW2d 897, 24 ALR2d 340. A proceeding against a juvenile offender is in no sense a criminal proceeding, where it does not contemplate punishment for an offense, but prevention of an erring minor from becoming a criminal. State v Freeman, 81 Mont 132, 262 P 168, 171.

See criminal prosecution.

criminal process. Process which issues to compel a person to answer for a crime or misdemeanor. Mowlan v State, 197 Ind 517, 520, 151 NE 416, 417.

criminal prosecution. The use of the processes of the law to accuse or charge a person with the commission of a crime, to bring him before a court, to convict him of the offense, and to impose upon him such punishment as is provided by law for the offense. Although sometimes instituted by an individual, a criminal prosecution is not in any sense an action between the person instituting it and the prisoner. Anno: 46 ALR 463. A preliminary investigation is not a criminal prosecution within the Sixth Amendment to the Federal Constitution. Anno: 93 L Ed 992.

criminal registration act. A statute or municipal ordinance which requires a person previously convicted of crime to register with a designated official. Anno: 82 ALR2d 398.

criminal responsibility. See criminal capacity.

criminal statute. A statute providing that an act or omission described therein shall constitute a criminal offense. Langenberg v Decker, 131 Ind 471, 31 NE 190. Statutes creating courts having jurisdiction of juvenile offenders, are not intended to provide punishment, but to save the child from becoming a criminal, and are in no sense criminal statutes. 31 Am J Rev ed Juv Ct § 5.

criminal syndicalism. Any doctrine or precept advocating, teaching, or aiding and abetting the commission of crime, sabotage, or unlawful acts of force and violence or unlawful methods of terrorism, as a means of accomplishing a change in industrial ownership or control, or effecting any political change. 47 Am J1st Sedit etc. § 3.

Crimina morte extinguuntur. Crimes are extinguished by death.

criminate. To incriminate; to involve a person in the commission of a crime; to give evidence against a defendant in a criminal prosecution against him.

crimp. To kidnap or decoy a person aboard a ship for service as a sailor; a person who crimps.

criterion. A sole or controlling test; as a criterion of value. Kennebec Water Dist. v Waterville, 97 Me 185, 54 A 6.

criticism. A discussion, or, as applicable in libel cases, a censure, of the conduct or character, or utterances of the person criticized. Belknap v Ball, 83 Mich 583, 47 NW 674.

See fair comment.

cro. A compensation paid to one person for causing the death of another.

croft. A small farm.

croise. A crusader.

Cromwell. See interregnum.

crop. Noun: A product of the soil, anything produced from the earth by planting, cultivation and labor; either a gathered or a growing crop. 21 Am J2d Crops § 1; goods within the definition of the Uniform Commercial Code. UCC § 2-105(1).

The term "crop" has been defined as including fruit grown on trees, although the tree, themselves are not included in that term. Story v Christin, 14 Cal 2d 592, 95 P2d 925, 125 ALR 1402. Even grass used for pasturage, not for hay or seed crop, is a crop. Superior Oil Co. v Griffin (Okla) 357 P2d 897, 87 ALR2d 224. Verb: To cut off; to reap.

See away-going crops.

crop dusting. See dusting.

crop insurance. A policy covering growing crops against loss from the elements, particularly hail; insurance on agricultural commodities against loss due to unavoidable causes, such as flood, hail, wind, hurricane, plant disease, etc., but not extending beyond the period that the insured crop is in the field, except in the case of tobacco. 7 USC § 1508(a).

Crop Insurance Act. A federal statute to promote the national welfare by improving the economic stability of agriculture through a sound system of crop insurance and providing the means for the research and experience helpful in devising and establishing such insurance. 7 USC § 1502; Anno: 175 ALR 1081.

Crop Insurance Corporation. A corporation created in carrying out the purposes of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, with capital stocks subscribed by the United States, the management vested in a board of directors, and having power to insure agricultural commodities against loss due to unavoidable causes, including drought, flood, hail, wind, tornado, insect infestation, plant disease, and such other unavoidable causes as may be determined by the board of directors of the corporation, but except, for tobacco, not extending beyond the period that the insured crop is in the field. 7 USC § 1508(a).

crop lien of landlord. See landlord's lien.

crop mortgage. A chattel mortgage upon growing crops or upon crops to be planted. 15 Am J2d Chat Mtg §§ 30, 31.

cropper. See sharecropper.

cropper's contract. Technically, the contract between an owner and a cropper or sharecropper, under which the latter agrees to farm the land and receive for his services a share of the grown crops, creating a relationship different from that of the conventional relationship of landlord and tenant. The term, loosely used, has been applied to a contract or lease of a farm, for rent payable in a share of the crops raised on the premises, which does create the relationship of landlord and tenant. 32 Am J1st L & T §46R.

See sharecropper.

crop rent. Rent payable in a share of the crops raised on the demised premise. 32 Am J1st L & T § 468.

crops. See crop.

croppy. An old word applied to a person punished for treason by having his ears cut off.

crop spray. See spraying crops.

crop-time. The period of the year during which the ground is prepared for a crop, the crop planted, and the ground cultivated, such period terminating when the crop, having reached the stage of maturity when no further work is required to produce it, is in the terminology of farmers, "laid by." Martin v Chapman (Ala) 6 Port 344, 351.

[293]

cross. The symbol of the Christian Faith; the mark which a voter uses in expressing his choice of a candidate whose name appears upon a written ballot, any kind of a cross being sufficient for this purpose, the only requirement being that two lines cross one another at a common center. Winn v Blackman, 229 Ill 198, 82 NE 215.

crossaction. An action under a cross complaint or cross bill; an independent action brought by a defendant in an action against the plaintiff or another defendant therein.

crossappeal. An appeal filed by the appellee or defendant in error as an incident of review proceedings instituted by the opposing party. 4 Am J2d A & E § 177.

crossing courses. The established rule in the second circuit of the Federal courts that in a crossing situation the privileged vessel may "cross" the signal of the burdened vessel and hold her course and speed until it becomes evident that the burdened vessel either cannot or will not keep out of the way. The Eastern Glade (CA2 NY) 101 F2d 4.

See course of vessel; burdened vessel; privileged vessel.

crossing sign. A sign erected and maintained by a railroad company to warn travelers on the highway that they are approaching a railroad crossing. 44 Am J1st RR § 399.

cross-interrogatories. Interrogatories propounded in the cross-examination of a deponent.

cross libel. The pleading in admiralty whereby a defendant or respondent seeks an affirmative recovery. 2 Am J2d Adm § 182.

crossover. A way between the two parts of a divided highway where a motorist may reverse directions by crossing from the one part to the other. 7 Am J2d Auto § 218.

See open primary.

cross-assignment of error. A procedure by which an appellee obtains a review of errors prejudicial to him, without filing a separate or cross appeal. 5 Am J2d A & E § 653.

cross bill. A bill of complaint by a defendant against a complainant, against a codefendant or codefendants, or against both a complainant and codefendant, upon a subject appearing in the complainant's bill. The pleading by cross bill is auxiliary to the original suit and dependent thereon, and the result of filing or serving a cross bill is that from this juncture and the suit comprises two interrelated and consolidated actions. 19 Am J2d Eq § 211.

crossclaim. See crossdemand.

cross complaint. A pleading by the defendant in an action wherein he seeks affirmative relief, relating to or depending upon the transaction on which the action is based or affecting property to which it relates, against the plaintiff or any other party to the action. 41 Am J1st Pl § 256.

crossdemand. A cause of action in favor of the defendant against the plaintiff, whether on contract or tort, and pleadable whether the plaintiff's cause of action pleaded be on contract or tort. Musselman v Galligher, 32 Iowa 383, 389.

See counterclaim; recoupment; reconvention; setoff.

cross easements. Reciprocal easements created by contract, the one being granted in favor of premises of one party in consideration of a grant by such party in favor of premises of the other party.

crossed check. A name given to a system long recognized as valid in England whereby there is stamped across a check the name of a certain banker through whom it must be presented for payment, and if presented by anyone else, payment must be refused. Farmers' Bank v Johnson, 134 Ga 486, 68 SE 85.

crosserrors. See cross-assignment of error.

cross-examination. The most effective art of the skilled trial lawyer; the interrogation of a witness for the opposing party by questions framed to test the accuracy and truthfulness of his testimony on direct examination and to bring out the truth of the matter in issue; an absolute right in actions and proceedings. 58 Am J1st Witn §§ 609 et seq.

crossing. The act of going over something, e. g., the Atlantic Ocean or the State of Iowa; a way for a pedestrian across a street or highway; the intersection of two ways.

See farm crossing; grade crossing; intersection; railroad crossing.

cross-question. To cross-examine.

See cross-examination.

cross remainders. Remainders limited after particular estates to two or more persons in several parcels of land, or in several undivided shares in the same parcel of land, in such way that on the determination of the particular estates in any of the several parcels or undivided shares, they remain over to the other grantees, and the reversioner or ulterior remainderman is not let in till the determination of all the particular estates. 33 Am J1st Life Est § 82. The ulterior estates are called cross remainders because each of the grantees has reciprocally a remainder in the share of the other.

cross rules. Rules nisi entered on behalf of both the plaintiff and the defendant.

See rule nisi.

cross the fall. A term used in stevedoring, meaning that one layer of the rope on the drum would be put across and on top of another so that the strain would jamb it against the drum, making the winch more safe to operate. It is customary to cross the fall, without regard to how the end of the rope is secured to the drum. Glover v Compagnie Generale Transatlantique (CA5 Tex) 103 F2d 557.

cross trade. The offsetting by a broker of the orders of one customer to purchase with the orders of another customer to sell. 12 Am J2d Brok § 127.

cross trusts. Reciprocal trusts between husband and wife or close members of the same family. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 118.

crown. A term for the ruler or sovereign under a monarchist form of government, absolute or limited.

crown cases. English criminal cases.

crown cases reserved. Criminal cases reserved for the opinion of all the judges of the court on questions of law.

See court for crown cases reserved.

crown colony. A colony under the sole control of the crown, as distinguished from one having a government of its own.

crown debt. A debt owing to the crown.

[294]

crown demise. See demise of the crown.

crowner. Same as coroner.

crowner's quest. A coroner's inquest.

crown grant. The grant by letters patent from the sovereign of rights or property which the sovereign held as proprietor and not including any right or property which the sovereign held as Sovereign. Lewis Blue Point Oyster Cultivation Co. v Briggs, 198 NY 287, 91 NE 846.

crown lands. Lands which belong to the sovereign.

crown law. The common law applicable to crimes.

crown lawyer. A criminal lawyer; a lawyer who defends criminal prosecutions.

crown office. A department of the court of king's bench which had jurisdiction of all criminal cases. On the crown side, or crown office, the king's bench court took cognizance of all criminal cases, from high treason down to the most trivial misdemeanor or breach of the peace. See 4 Bl Comm 265.

crown side. See crown office.

crown solicitor. An English court officer who prepares the case for the prosecution of a crime.

cruce signati. Signed with the cross.

crude. The word usually means raw or unfinished, and is applied to products other than those which have been manufactured. Nortmann-Duffke Co. v Federal Crushed Stone Co. 167 Minn 333, 334, 209 NW 17, 18.

crude oil. The product of an oil well in the form in which it comes from the well.

An interesting and instructive dissertation on natural gasolene, straight-run gasolene, wet gas, natural gas, dry gas, and their relation to crude petroleum is to be found in Phillips Pipe Line Co. v United States, 94 Ct Cl 462, 40 F Supp 981.

crude petroleum. See crude oil.

cruel and inhuman treatment. A ground for divorce.

See cruelty; inhuman treatment.

cruel and unusual punishment. Excessive, inhuman, or barbarous penalties. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 611.

As the words "unusual punishment" are used in the United States constitution, they include that class of punishments which never existed in the state, and any punishment which if ever employed at all, has become altogether obsolete. But they do not include fine or imprisonment. Hobbs v State, 133 Ind 404, 32 NE 1019.

cruel treatment. See cruel and inhuman treatment; cruel and unusual punishment; cruelty; cruelty to animals.

cruelty. The infliction of physical or mental pain or distress.

As a ground for divorce, "cruelty" means physical violence intentionally inflicted, threats of physical violence, or wilfully causing mental distress, which renders it impossible for the complaining party to continue in the marital relation. Mere austerity of temper, petulance of manners, rudeness of language, want of civil attention and accommodation, even occasional sallies of passion, if they do not threaten bodily harm, do not amount to cruelty which constitutes a ground for divorce. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 37. But as a ground for divorce, cruel and inhuman treatment may consist wholly of abusive and insulting words. Ekerson v Ekerson, 121 Or 405, 255 P 480.

cruelty to animals. Every act, omission, or neglect whereby unjustifiable pain or suffering, and, under some statutes, death, is caused an animal. 4 Am J2d Am § 28.

See fox hunt; pigeon shooting; societies for the prevention of cruelty; spaying.

cruise. A naval expedition in search of ships of an enemy; the voyage of a commercial vessel.

cruising. In addition to the usual meaning of a ship under way, the term applies to a taxi driver seeking passengers by driving around the streets and police vehicles covering territory assigned to them.

cry. To make oral and public proclamation; to notify or advertise by outcry, especially things lost or found, goods to be sold; public advertisement by outcry, as by hawkers of their wares. Rochester v Close (NY) 35 Hun 208, 210. To weep; to sound the voice in pain or sorrow.

See hue and cry.

cry de pays or cry de pals. Same as hue and cry.

cryer. Same as crier.

crypt. A vault or chamber which is either wholly or partly beneath the surface of the earth and set apart for the interment of a dead body. 14 Am J2d Cem § 1.

ct. An abbreviation of "cent" or "cents."

c. t. a. An abbreviation of "cum testamento annexo," that is, with the will annexed.

cts. An abbreviation of "cents."

cocking-stool. A contrivance, also called the trebucket or castigatory, formerly provided in England for the "correction" of common scolds. The word was said to have come from the Saxon language in which it signified a scolding stool. It was finally corrupted into "ducking" stool, because part of the punishment consisted in plunging the scold into water while fastened in the stool or chair. See 4 Bl Comm 168.

See common scold.

cuckold. A husband whose wife is unfaithful; the husband of an adulteress. To make a cuckold of a man is to seduce his wife. Hall v Huffman, 159 Ky 72, 73, 166 SW 770.

cui ante divortium. Whom before the divorce; --a writ of entry which a woman who was divorced had to recover lands which belonged to her and which her husband had aliened during their marriage. See 3 Bl Comm 183, note.

See entry cui ante divortium.

cui bono. For whose benefit or welfare.

Cuicumque aliquis quid concedit concedere videtur et id, sine quo res ipsa esse non potuit. One who grants something to another is held to grant also that without which the thing is worthless. See Broom's Legal Maxims 479.

cui in vita. Whom in his lifetime; --a writ of entry which a widow had to recover lands which belonged to her and which had been aliened by her husband during his lifetime. See 3 Bl Comm 183, note.

cui in vita sua, vel cui ante divortium, ipsa contradicere non potuit.

[295]

Whom she herself could not, in his lifetime nor before a divorce, contradict. See 3 Bl Comm 183, note.

Cui ipsa ante divortium contradicere non potuit. Whom before the divorce she could not deny. See cui ante divortium.

Cui jurisdictio data est, ea quoque concessa esse videntur sine quibus jurisdictio explicari non potest. Those things without which jurisdiction could not be exercised are held to be given to him to whom jurisdiction has been granted.

Cui jus est donandi, eidem et vendendi et concedendi jus est. One who has a right to give has also a right to sell and to grant.

Cuilibet in arte sua perito est credendum. Any expert in his own art is credible therein.

Cuilibet in sua arts credendum est. Each man is to be believed or credited in reference to his own art or profession. See 1 Bl Comm 75.

Cuilibet licet juri pro se introducto renunciare. One may waive a legal right existing in his favor.

Cui licet quod majus non debet quod minus est non licere. One who has a greater power ought not to be denied a less one. See Broom's Legal Maxims 176.

Cui pater est populus non habet ille patrem. One whose father is "the people," has no father.

Cuique enim in proprio fundo quamlibet feram quoque modo venari permissum. For it is permissible to everyone to hunt any wild animals upon his own estate in whatever manner. See 2 Bl Comm 415.

Cuique in sua arte credendum est. Anyone is entitled to credence in matters pertaining to his own craft. Winans v New York & E. R. Co. (US) 21 How 88, 16 L Ed 68.

Cujus est commodum ejus debet esse incommodum. One who enjoys a benefit should take the burden with it.

Cujus est commodum, ejus est onus. He who enjoys the benefit must carry the burden. Oliver v Newburyport Ins. Co. 3 Mass 53.

Cujus est dare, ejus est disponere. He who has the gift of anything has the right to dispose of it. The law's protection of a spendthrift trust rests upon the principle of the maxim. It allows the donor to condition his bounty as he will, so long as he violates no law in so doing. Re Morgan, 223 Pa 228, 72 A 498.

Cujus est divisio, alterius est electio. She who makes the division has the last choice. This was one of the common law rules in the partition of an estate held in coparcenary. See Bl Comm 189.

Cujus est dominium ejus est periculum. He who has the ownership should have the risk.

Cujus est instituere ejus est abrogare. Whoever may institute may abrogate. See Broom's Legal Maxims 878, note.

Cujus est solum ejus est usque ad coelum. The owner of the soil owns to the sky. It has been held that this maxim is not strictly and absolutely applicable to all of the relations of the proprietors of adjoining lands. To apply it strictly in all cases would be to infringe upon that other maxim of the common law, "Sic utcre tuo ut alienum non laedas." Stillwater Water Co. v Farmer, 89 Minn 58, 93 NW 907.

Cujus est solum, ejus est usque ad coelum et ad inferos. The owner of the soil owns to the heavens and also to the lowest depths.

Cujus est solum, ejus est usque ad inferos. The owner of the soil owns to the lowest depths. This maxim of the common law is said to furnish a rule of easy application and to save a world of judicial worry in many cases, and one which is perhaps always applicable in England and in the eastern states of the Union, but it is one which would work great injustice if applied to percolating waters in the arid districts of the west where much irrigating water is pumped from wells. Katz v Walkinshaw, 141 Cal 116, 70 P 663, 74 P 766.

Cujus juris est principale, ejusdem juris erit accessorium. He who has jurisdiction of the principal thing has jurisdiction of the accessory also.

Cujus per errorem dati repetitio est, ejus consulto dati, donatio est. He who gives a thing by mistake may recover it, but if he gives deliberately, the gift is complete.

Cujusque rei potissima pars principium est. The most important part of anything is the first part of it.

cul. Guilty; probably a contraction of "culpable."

cul de sac. A way, street or alley open only at one end.

culpa. Guilt; fault; negligence.

See diligentia; lata culpa.

culpabilis. Guilty.

culpable. Criminal; censurable.

Where the term is applied to the omission of a person to preserve the means of enforcing his own rights, "censurable" is more nearly an equivalent. Waltham Bank v Wright, 90 Mass (8 Allen) 121, 122.

culpable neglect. The neglect which exists where the loss or damage can fairly be ascribed to carelessness, improvidence or folly. Waltham Bank v Wright, 90 Mass (8 Allen) 121, 122. Under ordinary circumstances, the failure of the creditor to discover the death of his debtor is "culpable neglect" as a matter of law. Mulligan v Hilton, 305 Mass 5, 24 NE2d 676, 133 ALR 376.

[296]

culpable negligence. A term sometimes defined in a manner similar to definitions of ordinary negligence, it being said that "culpable negligence" is the omission to do something which a reasonable, prudent and honest man would do, or doing some thing which such a man would not do under all the circumstances surrounding each particular case. State v Emery, 78 Mo 77; Kent v State, 8 Okla Crim 188, 126 P 1040. Other authorities consider "culpable negligence" as something beyond ordinary negligence, defining it as the conscious and wanton disregard of the probabilities of fatal consequences to others as the result of the wilful creation of an unreasonable risk thereof; or a wanton disregard of, or indifference to, the safety of human life. Smith v State, 197 Miss 802, 20 So2d 701, 161 ALR 1. The term, as used in workmen's compensation acts excepting employees guilty of such negligence from the right to compensation, does not have the same meaning as the word "blamable," but means practically the same as "wilful and serious misconduct" which in turn means improper conduct of grave and aggravated character, either intentional misconduct, or misconduct of such a character as to evince a reckless disregard of consequences to the one who is guilty of it. Fulls v Swenson, 58 Wyo 393, 131 P2d 333; 58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 200. In most of the jurisdictions the term, as used in a manslaughter statute, has been construed as meaning negligence of a higher degree than ordinary negligence which suffices as a basis for liability in a civil action. However, in a few jurisdictions the term has been construed as denoting merely ordinary negligence when used in such a statute. Anno: 161 ALR 10.

See negligent homicide.

Culpa caret, qui scit sed prohibere non potest. (Civil law.) One who knows (the danger), but is unable to avert it, is without fault.

Culpa poena par esto. Let the punishment fit the crime.

Culpa est immiscere se rei ad se non pertinenti. A person is at fault who intermeddles in things which do not concern him.

Culpa lata dolo aequiparatur. Gross negligence is equivalent to malice.

culpa levissima. See ex culpa levissima.

Culpa tenet suos auctores. Guilt binds only its own originators.

Culpa tenet suos auctores tantum. Guilt binds its own originator most.

cul. prit. See culprit.

culprit. A person brought into court as accused of crime. A formal word announced by the clerk of assize or clerk of arraigns as a replication viva voce on behalf of the king when a prisoner had pleaded not guilty, thus replying to this plea in the two syllables "cal" and "grit," the first one signifying "culpable," that is that the prisoner was guilty and the second, "prit" (derived from the Latin "paratus"), that the king was ready to prove him guilty. See 4 Bl Comm 339.

cultivate. To cultivate means to till, or husband the ground; to forward the product of the earth, by general industry. State v Allen, 35 NC (13 Ired L) 36, 37. To prepare land for grazing only is not to "cultivate" it within the meaning of the homestead law. United States v Niemeyer (DC Ark) 94 F 147.

cultivation. See cultivate; fit for cultivation.

culvert. An enclosed drain for carrying water under a road or railroad. Oursler v Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. 60 Md 358, 367.

culvertage. A person's forfeiture of his status as a freeman.

cum. With; together with. The word is also used for the word "quum." meaning "when"; "whereas."

Cum actio fuerit mere criminalis, institui poterit ab initio criminaliter vet civiliter. When an action is merely criminal, it can be instituted either criminally or civilly at the beginning.

Cum adsunt testimonia rerum, quid opus est verbis. When there is evidence of the facts, what need is there of words?

Cum aliquis renunciaverit societati, solvitur societas. When any one of the partners shall have renounced the partnership, it is dissolved.

cumbersome property. See bulky property.

cum causa. See habeas corpus cum causa.

cum certum est an et quantum debeatur. When it is certain whether (anything, is due) and how much is due. Roberts v Prior, 20 Ga 561, 562.

Cum confitente sponte mitius est agendum. When a person makes a voluntary confession, he should be treated the more gently.

Cum de lucro duorum quaeritur melior est causa possidentis. (Civil law.) When two persons are striving over gain, the cause of the one in possession of it is the better.

Cum duo inter se repugnantia reperiuntur in testamento, ultimum ratum est. When two repugnant matters are found in a will, the latter one will be confirmed. Jackson ex dem. Livingston v Robins (NY) 16 Johns 537, 547.

Cum duo jura concurrunt in una persona aequum est ac si essent in duobus. When two rights come together in one person, it is the same as if they were in two persons.

cum grano salis. With a grain of salt; that is, with reservations.

Cum in corpore dissentitur, apparet nullam esse acceptionem. When there is a disagreement as to the substance of the thing, it appears that there is no acceptance. The maxim is one of the civil law, but holds good in the modern law of sales. Gardner v lane, 94 Mass (12 Allen) 39, 44.

Cum in testamento ambiguitate aut etiam perperam scriptum, est benigne interpretari, et secundum id quod credibile est cogitatum credendum est.

[297]

When an ambiguous, or even an incorrectly written, clause is found in a will, it should be interpreted liberally and according to what is believed to be the intention (of the testator). Broom's Legal Maxims 568.

Cum legitimae nuptiae factae sunt patrem liberi sequuntur. The children of lawful wedlock inherit from their father.

Cum lex abrogatur, illud ipsum abrogatur, quo non eam abrogari oporteat. When a law is repealed the very part is repealed by which it is sought to prevent its repeal. See 1 Bl Comm 91.

Cummins Amendments. Amendments to the Interstate Commerce Act respecting a carrier's limitation of liability. 14 Am J2d Car § 539.

cum onere. With the burden; that is, with whatever disadvantages or incumbrances that may be connected with the enjoyment of the right. See Dugan v Bridge Co. 27 Pa 303.

Cum par delictum est duorum, semper oneratur petitor, et melior habetur possessoris causa. (Civil law.) When two parties are equally at fault, the claimant always has the burden, and the one in possession has the better cause.

cum pertinentiis. With the appurtenances. Morgan v Mason, 20 Ohio 401.

cum potestate regis et legis. By the power of the king and the law.

Cum quod ago non valet ut ago, valeat quantum valere potest. When what I do is void as I do it, it shall be as effective as it can (otherwise) be made.

cum quolibet et qualibet eorum. Taken in one sense or another.

cum testamento annexo. With the will annexed.

See administration cum testamento annexo; administrator cum testamento annexo; administrator de bonis non cum testamento annexo.

cumulative. Adding to or added to something else; by way of increase.

cumulative bequest. Same as cumulative legacy.

cumulative dividends. Dividends on preferred stock which accumulate under contract, charter, or bylaw provision, where a dividend or dividends are passed because of want of the requisite net earnings to permit the payment of a dividend, and which must be paid before any dividend whatever for any later year is paid to common stockholders or to preferred stockholders of a class not entitled to cumulation of dividends. See 19 Am J2d Corp § 878 et seq.

cumulative errors. Errors of the lower court, of such minor consequence that no single one is a ground for reversal in itself, operating in cumulation as such ground only as prejudice therefrom accumulates. 5 Am J2d A & E § 789.

cumulative evidence. Additional evidence of the same kind to the same point. 39 Am J1st New Tr § 173.

See corroborating evidence.

cumulative judgment. A second judgment to take effect after the expiration of the first one.

See consecutive sentences.

cumulative legacy. A legacy in addition to another legacy to the same person in the same will. Where the same beneficiary is given two monetary legacies of the same amount in different clauses of the same will, the presumption is that the testator intended the later bequest to be substitutional rather than cumulative, and the legatee is accordingly entitled to take only it. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1164.

cumulative offense. An offense which can be committed only by a repetition of acts of the same kind, which acts may be on different days. An apt illustration is the offense of being a common gambler. 24 Am J1st Gaming §46.

cumulative penalties. Successive or continuing penalties for delay in payment of claims, or performance of a contract or violation of statute. 36 Am J2d Forf & P §§ 55, 65.

See cumulative punishment.

cumulative punishment. The greater punishment imposed on an habitual or second offender; consecutive sentences rather than concurrent sentences.

See habitual criminals; consecutive sentences.

cumulative remedy. A new or further remedy in addition to a remedy or remedies already existing. Chicago & Northwestern Railway Co. v Chicago, 148 Ill 141, 35 NE 881, 886. An administrative remedy in addition to a judicial remedy. 2 Am J2d Admin L §§ 784, 785.

cumulative sentences. Sentences for different crimes to run consecutively.

See consecutive sentences.

cumulative voting. A system of voting at an election whereby an elector entitled to vote for several candidates for the same office may cast more than one vote for the same candidate, distributing among the candidates, as he chooses, a number of votes equal to the number of persons to be elected. 26 Am J2d Elect § 274. In corporate elections, the method of voting for corporate directors whereby each shareholder is entitled to cast a number of votes equal to the number of his shares multiplied by the number of directors, or the number of directors to be elected, with the option of giving all his votes to a single candidate or of distributing them among two or more as he sees fit. Wolfson v Avery, 6 Ill 2d 78, 126 NE2d 701. The right of cumulative voting in electing directors is, by its nature, exercisable only where more than one director is to be elected. Bridgers v Staton, 150 NC 216, 63 SE 892.

cuneator. The custodian of the dies of a mint.

cunnilingus. An act committed with the mouth and female sex organ or an oral-genital contact.

cur. An abbreviation of curia.

cura. Care; custody; charge; diligence.

cura animorum. The care of souls.

curacy. See perpetual curacy.

cur. ad. vult. An abbreviation of curia advisare vult.

curagulos. A caretaker.

[298]

curate. An assistant to the rector of a parish or to a vicar. A curate is the lowest degree in the church, being in the same state that a vicar was formerly, an officiating temporary minister, instead of the proper incumbent. See 1 Bl Comm 393.

curatio. A guardian.

curative act. A form of retrospective legislation reaching back on past events to correct errors or irregularities and to render valid and effective attempted acts which otherwise would be ineffective for the purpose the parties intended, particularly irregularities in conveyancing; operating to complete a transaction which the parties intended to accomplish but carried out imperfectly. 16 Am J2d Const L § 430. A validation by statute of an imperfect or irregular deed. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 141.

curative medicine. A substance or preparation administered internally for the cure, removal, or healing of some disease or condition demanding medical treatment. State v Stoddard, 215 Iowa 534, 245 NW 273, 86 ALR 616.

See internal medicine.

curator. The person in charge of a museum, art gallery, or library. A guardian. The guardian, at common law, performs the office of both the tutor and the "curator" of the Roman civil law, the former of whom had charge of the maintenance and education of the minor, and the latter the care of his fortune. Mercer v Watson (Pa) 1 Watts 330, 348.

curator ad hoc. (Civil law.) A curator appointed by the court to act for a minor in the absence of his under-tutor, or subrogated tutor, as he was formerly called. Welch v Baxter, 45 La Ann 1062, 1064, 13 So 629.

curator ad litem. Same as guardian ad litem.

curator bonis. The guardian of an estate.

curatores viarum. Keepers of ways. Under the Roman law, curatores viarum were officers whose duty it was to superintend the making and mending of the roads. See 1 Bl Comm 357, footnote.

curatorship. A guardianship.

curatrix. A female guardian.

curatus non habet titulum. A curate has no title.

curb. Verb: To restrain. Noun: A strap attached to each end of the bit of a horse's bridle and passing around the half circle of his lower jaw. The raised edge of the pavement of a street or highway, next to sidewalk, shoulder of highway, or park strip. A term sometimes applied to the park strip itself.

curb market. An exchange wherein the transactions in stocks, bonds, or commodities are completed in whole or in part upon the street. A market in securities not listed on an exchange.

curb service. Selling merchandise, lunches, cigarettes, cigars, etc. to persons on the street in vehicles.

The use of the public streets by a person, firm or corporation engaged in business in any store, temporary or permanent stand or box, building, structure or the like, for the sale or solicitation of goods, wares or merchandise. People v Dmytro, 280 Mich 82, 273 NW 400, 111 ALR 128.

curb teller. A booth erected on the sidewalk in front of a bank close enough to the paved portion of the street to permit a customer to transact his business with a bank employee in the booth, without alighting from his automobile. Adams v Merchants & Planters Bank & Trust Co. 226 Ark 88, 288 SW2d 35.

cure by judgment, verdict, or findings. Error rendered harmless by subsequent proceedings in the case, as where the party against whom error was committed prevails by the verdict. 5 Am J2d A & 1: § 792. A verdict for a party will cure defects in his pleading where the substantial rights of the adverse party are not affected. 5 Am J2d A & E § 795.

cure of souls. The pastoral charge of a parish.

curfew. A fixed point of time in the evening, after which persons not having duties to perform on the streets, particularly children, shall not be abroad. A restriction established by order against all persons of Japanese ancestry residing in the West Coast Military Area during the war between the United States and Japan. 56 Am J1st War § 29.

In England during the Middle Ages, the ringing of a bell at eight o'clock each night, in every city and town, as a signal that all company must disperse, and all fires and lights must be extinguished. These curfew regulations were established by the Normans following the Conquest. 4 Bl Comm 419.

curia. A court.

curia admiraltatis. A court of admiralty.

curia advisare vult. The court wishes to consider. Judgments are not required to be entered immediately, and it is common in all courts to delay for the purpose of examination and advisement. Clark v Read, 5 NJL 571, 573.

curia baronis. A court-baron.

Curia cancellariae est officina justitiae. The court of chancery is the workshop of justice.

curia claudenda. An old English writ requiring a landowner to fence his land.

curia comitatus. The county court.

curia consentiente. See et curia consentiente.

curia domini. The lord's court.

curiae Christianitatis. Courts Christian. The courts of the archbishops and bishops and their derivative officers. See 1 Bl Comm 83.

curiality. Same as curtesy.

curia magna. The great court, the English Parliament.

curia majoris. The mayor's court.

curia palatii. The palace court.

Curia parlamenti sive propriis legibus subsistit. Parliament is governed by its own laws.

curia pedis pulverizati. The court of dusty foot; that is the court of piepoudre. It was instituted to administer justice at fairs and markets and was a court of record. Sec 3 Bl Comm 32.

curia regis. The king's court.

[299]

curing error. Affidavits explaining discrepancies appearing in an abstract of title. Attebery v Blair, 244 Ill 363, 91 NE 475. Supplying an acknowledgment or correcting a defective acknowledgment. 1 Am J2d Ack § 107. Developments in a case which eliminate the prejudicial effect of an error by the court.

See cure by judgment, verdict, or findings.

Curiosa et captiosa interpretatio in lege reprobatur. A curious and captious interpretation is disapproved in the law.

currency. Paper money which passes at par as a circulating medium in the business community; money, whether in coin or paper. 36 Am J1st Money § 8.

Currens test. A test of insanity which will constitute a defense in a criminal prosecution, requiring no more than that the jury must be satisfied that at the time of committing the prohibited act, the accused, as a result of mental disease or defect, lacked substantial capacity to conform his conduct to the requirements of the law which he is alleged to have violated. United States v Currens (CA3 Pa) 290 F2d 751.

current. Noun: The flow of a stream; the flow or rate of flow of an electric force. Adjective: Running, moving, flowing, passing; passing from one to another, especially widely circulated; publicly known; general; prevalent, as, the current ideas of the day; now passing; present in its course: as, the current month of the year. Shaffer v George, 64 Colo 47, 171 P 881; State v Bartley, 39 Neb 353, 360.

current account. An open account, a running account. Anno: 51 ALR2d 334. An account based upon running or concurrent dealing between the parties which has not been closed, settled, or stated, and which is kept unclosed with the expectation of further transactions. 1 Am J2d Acctg § 4.

current bank notes or bills. Bank notes or bills which pass as currency at their par value.

current coin. Coin which is in general circulation.

current coin of the realm. Money; legal tender. 52 Am J1st Ten § 2.

current cost rate. See step rate method.

current earnings. Present earnings; earnings of a corporation for the period during which a dividend normally is paid.

current funds. Money circulating without discount; whatever is receivable and current by law as money, whether in the form of notes or coins. 36 Am J1st Money § 8.

See currency.

current income. For income tax purposes, income for the current tax year. See Supplee v Magruder (DC Md) 36 F Supp 722.

current maintenance. The expense incurred in keeping a physical property in the condition required for continued use during the service life. Lindenheimer v Illinois Bell Tel. Co. 292 US 151, 78 L Ed 1182, 54 S Ct 658.

current market price. A commercial term, familiar in contracts for the sale of goods, meaning that the contract price shall run or flow with the market, following its fluctuations. Ford v Norton, 32 NM 518, 260 P 411, 55 ALR 261.

current money. Money which is in general circulation; currency.

See currency.

current salary. See current wages.

current wages. The present rate of wages for specific work or employment. Compensation for services continuing for some time and payable periodically as it accrues for a wage period, that is, a week, two weeks, or a month, or by the day as the work is performed. First Nat. Bank v Graham (Tex Crim App) 22 SW 1101.

The term "current wages" has the same meaning as current salary, and where wages are payable monthly, the term refers to wages for the current or present month. See Bell v Indian Live Stock Co. (Tex) 11 SW 344.

See current yearly pay.

current year. Ordinarily, the calendar year in progress. Sometimes construed, as in an exemption statute, as meaning from harvest to harvest, and not a calendar year. 31 Am J2d Exemp § 114.

current yearly pay. As used in a statute respecting the compensation of army officers, the term "current yearly pay" means the regular, ordinary pay which an officer may be entitled to for a year's service under the facts of his case. United States v Mills, 196 US 223, 49 L Ed 732, 25 S Ct 434.

currere. To run.

Currit quatuor pedibus. It runs on four feet. That is, it is on all fours, in precise accord.

Currit tempus contra desides et sui juris contemptores. Time runs against the slothful and those who ignore their rights.

cursing. Profane swearing, sometimes a criminal offense. 12 Am J2d Blas § 10. A public or common nuisance where the profane words are uttered in a public place. 12 Am J2d Blas § 11.

cursitor. A chancery clerk.

cursitor baron. An officer who had authority to administer oaths.

Cursus curiae est lex curiae. The practice of the court is the law of the court.

curtesy. The common-law right of a husband in his wife's property which arises from the marriage. An estate by the curtesy is either curtesy initiate or curtesy consummate. 25 Am J2d Dow § 2.

See  curtesy consummate; curtesy initiate.

curtesy consummate. A common law estate for life of a surviving husband in all of the lands of his wife, subject to the same conditions requisite to the existence of curtesy initiate and the additional condition of the death of the wife.

In other words, an estate by the curtesy initiate becomes an estate by the curtesy consummate upon the death of the wife. 25 Am J2d Dow § 2.

curtesy initiate. At common law, a life estate of the husband in the real property of which his wife is seised of an estate of inheritance during the duration of the marriage, the conditions under which such an estate arises being the marriage, scisin by the wife, and birth of issue capable of inheriting. 25 Am J2d Dow § 2.

As soon as a child was born, the father began to have a permanent interest in those lands of his wife in which she was seised of an estate of inheritance; he became one of the vassals of the lord's court, did homage to the lord, and was called tenant by the curtesy initiate; and this estate being once vested in him by the birth of the child, was not suffered to determine by the subsequent death or coming of age of the child. See 2 Bl Comm 127.

[300]

curtilage. The open space situated within a common enclosure belonging to a dwelling house. Anno: 38 ALR2d 848; 13 Am J2d Burgl § 5. Such space as is necessary and convenient, and is habitually used, for family purposes and the carrying on of domestic employments, including a yard, a garden, or even a nearby field used in connection with the dwelling. 5 Am J2d Arson § 1. For the purpose of determining the existence of a right of self defense, the "curtilage" of the home will ordinarily be construed to include at least the yard around the dwelling house, as well as the area occupied by barns, cribs, and other outbuildings. State v Frizzelle, 243 NC 49, 89 SE2d 725, 52 ALR2d 1455.

curtilum. Same as  curtilage.

curtis. A court; a yard; a curtilage. Black stone refers to the word as a sample of law-Latin which "may raise a smile in the student as a flaming modern Anglicism." See 3 Bl Comm 320.

costa. Costs.

custagium. Costs.

custantia. Costs.

custode admittendo. See de custode admittendo.

custode amovendo. See de custode amovendo.

custodes. Custodians; keepers; guardians; wardens.

custodes pacis. Guardians of the peace; -conservators of the peace; -peculiar officers who anciently were appointed by the common law for the maintenance of the public peace. See 1 Bl Comm 349.

custodia. Also called ward, or guard, one of the two chief duties of constables. It was a duty performed mainly in the daytime and looked chiefly to the apprehension of rioters and highway robbers. See 1 Bl Comm 356.

See arca et salva custodia.

custodia comitatus. The custody of the county. This was committed to the sheriff by the king's letters patent. See 1 Bl Comm 339.

custodia legis. The custody of the law. Gilman v Williams, 7 Wis 329, 334.

See custody of the law.

custodiam comitatus. The custody of the county. See 1 Bl Comm 339.

custodian. A person whose duty it is to watch, guard, and account for that which is committed to his custody. State v Taylor, 7 SD 533, 544, 64 NW 548.

custodia terrae et haereditis. See de custodia terrae et haereditis.

custody. As applied to property, "custody" means control or care, not possession; the mere putting of one's property in the custody of another does not divest the possession of the owner. 42 Am J1st Prop § 42; 32 Am J1st Larc § 56. As applied to a person, "custody" means physical control of the person sometimes by his imprisonment. For the purpose of habeas corpus: -such restraint of a person by another that the latter can produce the body of the former at a hearing as directed by writ or order. Palmer v State, 170 Ala 102, 54 So 271. There is no such thing as custody of a person physically at large. State v Freautf, 117 Or 214, 243 P 87.

See in custody.

custody of child. The control, care, and maintenance of a child, whether at one's own expense or under an award, providing compensation to be paid by another.

See guardianship; ward of the court.

custody of the law. A lawful seizure and holding of property by an officer of the law acting pursuant to a lawful writ or process. Buck v Colbath (US) 3 Wall 334, 18 L Ed 257; 46 Am J1st Replev § 37. The custody of a depository of property delivered to it pursuant to an order of court, subject to the further order of the court. Bradley v Roe, 282 NY 525, 27 NE2d 35, 129 ALK 633.

custom. A practice which has by its universality and antiquity acquired the force and effect of law in a particular place or country, in respect of the subject matter to which it relates. 21 Am J2d Cust & U § 1.

customarily. Usually, habitually, according to the customs, general practice or usual order of things, regularly. Fuller Brush Co. v Industrial Corn. 99 Utah 97, 104 P 201, 129 ALR 511.

customary acre. As much land as an ox team could plow in a day.

customary court. A court held within the manor by the lord or his steward.

customary court-baron. A customary court which appertained entirely to copyholders and in which their estates were transferred by surrender and admittance, and other matters transacted relative to their tenures only. See 3 Bl Conun 33.

customary despatch. As employed in a charter party requiring the loading of the ship with customary despatch, the words do not relate to the average or usual conditions surrounding such a loading, but they are to be read and understood in relation to the circumstances, ordinary or extraordinary which existed at the time when the loading was done. Parrish v Lederer (DC Del) 14 F2d 985.

customary estates. Lands of certain copyholders of free and privileged tenure, which were derived from the ancient tenants in villein-socage who did not hold at the will of the lord, but only according to the custom of the manor. The law did not regard the freehold of such lands as resting in the lord of whom the tenants held, but in the tenants themselves, who were sometimes called customary freeholders, being allowed to have a freehold interest, though not a freehold tenure. Sec 2 Bl Comm 149.

customary freehold. A tenancy by copyhold, not at the will of the lord of the manor. See 2 Bl Comm 149.

customary freeholders. See customary estates.

customary home occupation. An occupation carried on in a dwelling house by an occupant thereof without assistance other than such as may be rendered by other members of the family who are occupants of the same dwelling. Anno: 73 ALR2d 442.

customary interest. The rate of interest which is general and usual by custom, at a given time, in a given place. Fowler v Smith, 2 Cal 568, 570.

See legal interest.

customary rent. The amount payable according to old custom.

[301]

customary services. Definite and certain services due from the tenant according to the custom of the manor. See 2 Bl Comm 147.

customary tenants. Tenants holding customary estates. See customary estates.

customer. In common usage, a person who buys the merchandise or engages the services of another person. In some contexts, the term has the more extensive connotation of a person who comes to the place of business of another for any purpose of concern to the latter, such as a person who comes to perform mechanical services for the proprietor. Anno: 33 ALR 181; 43 ALR 866; 46 ALR 1111.

The term "customers of a stockbroker," as defined by the Bankruptcy Act, includes persons who have claims on account of securities received, acquired, or held by the stockbroker from or for the account of such persons (a) for safekeeping, or (b) with a view to sale, or (c) to cover consummated sales, or (d) pursuant to purchases, or (e) as collateral security, or (f) by way of loans or securities by such persons to the stockbroker, and it also includes persons who have claims against the stockbroker arising out of sales or conversions of such securities. Bankruptcy Act § 60(e) (1); 11 USC § 96(e)(1).

One obtaining jewelry from a jeweler on the pretext of showing it to certain persons for their approval with a view to a purchase by them is not a "customer" within an exception in a theft insurance policy of a loss by customers of goods entrusted to them by the insured. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1333.

See able customer; cash customer; invitee.

customer's man. An agent or representative of a brokerage firm with limited authority, his primary duty being to solicit and take orders from customers. 12 Am J2d Brok § 117.

Customeserra prise stricte. A custom or usage should be strictly interpreted.

custom-house. An office where customs duties are paid and where clearance is given to ships.

custom-house bushel. See bushel.

custom of London. The rule that where a married woman follows any craft in the city of London on her sole account, the husband having nothing to do with her trade, she shall be charged as a feme sole concerning everything that touches the craft. 27 Am J1st H & W §464.

custom of merchants. The customary practices of merchants in respect to mercantile contracts; the law merchant. Adams v Pittsburgh Insurance Co. 95 Pa 348.

See law merchant.

custom of officers. The rule for construction of the statute in line with administrative interpretation. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 54.

custom of York. The rule of descent peculiar to the province of York, whereby the estate of an intestate was divided into thirds, one third to the widow, one to the children and one to the administrator. See 2 Bl Comm 518.

customs. The custom-house; the duties payable on imports.

See collector of customs; custom; customs duties.

Customs and Patent Appeals. See Court of Customs and Patent Appeals.

customs appraiser. A revenue officer whose duty it is to examine and estimate the true value of imported goods subject to customs duties. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 86.

customs broker. A person to whom goods coming from abroad are consigned for the purpose of having him obtain clearance.

customs broker's lien. The lien of a customs broker for an advance made to procure the release of goods from the customs house for a customer. 12 Am J2d Brok § 241.

Customs Court. A federal court sitting at the port of New York with jurisdiction for review of decisions and findings of any collector of customs. 21 Am J2d Cost D §§ 96, 97.

customs districts. Collection districts established by dividing the United States for convenience in collecting customs duties and the administration of the customs laws. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 60.

customs duties. The tariff payable on imported merchandise; the levy or tax applied by the government on the importation of commodities into the country. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 1. Not merely a duty on the act of importation, but a duty on the thing imported; not confined to a duty levied while the article is entering the country, but extending to a duty levied after it has entered the country. Brown v Maryland (US) 12 Wheat 419, 6 L Ed 678.

customs entry. See entry.

customs inspection. See inspection by customs.

customs lien. The lien of the government for unpaid duties which attaches to imported articles from the moment of their importation. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 104.

customs officers. The collectors and other officers engaged in the collection of customs duties. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 64.

customs of London. A term applied to the many particular customs or usages within the city of London, with regard to trade, apprentices, widows, orphans, and a variety of other matters. All these are contrary to the general law of the land, and are good only by special usage, although they are also confirmed by act of parliament. See 1 Bl Comm 75.

customs territory of the United States. The states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. 19 USC § 120.

customs waters. A term of application particularly to a foreign vessel subject to a treaty or other arrangement between the nation of registry and the United States, signifying the waters within such distance of the coast of the United States as the customs authorities are enabled or permitted by such treaty or arrangement to board and examine the vessel. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 2.

custos. A custodian; a keeper; a guardian; a warden.

custos brevium. The clerk of the old English court of common pleas.

custos ferarum. A game warden.

custos horrei regii. The guard of cats at the royal granary. See 2 Bl Comm 394.

custos morum. The guardian of morals. The court of king's bench is frequently thus described. See 4 Bl Comm 310.

[302]

custos placitorum coronae. The keeper of pleas of the crown; -the keeper of the criminal records.

custos rotulorum. The keeper of the rolls or records of the county, who was the principal justice of the peace. See 1 Bl Comm 349. He was nominated by the king's sign manual and was the principal civil officer in the county. See 4 Id 272.

custos sigilli. The keeper of the seal.

custos spiritualium. An ecclesiastical officer who was appointed to officiate during the vacancy of a see.

Custos statum haeredis in custodia existentis meliorem non deteriorem, facere potest. A guardian can make the estate of an heir which is in his custody better, but not worse.

custos temporalium. An ecclesiastical officer who was appointed to officiate in temporal matters during the vacancy of a see.

custos terrae. A warden or keeper of the land.

custum. Cost.

custuma. The law-Latin word for customs for duties. This word has no connection with the word "customs," meaning usages, which was derived from the Latin word "consuetudo." See 1 Bl Comm 314.

custuma antiqua sive magna. Ancient or great customs. These were the duties on wool, sheep-skins, or woollens, and leather, exported, and were payable by all merchants, both native and strangers; but the aliens paid as duties half as much again as the native merchants. See 1 Bl Comm 314.

custuma parva et nova. Small and new customs. These were an impost of three pence per pound due from alien merchants only, for all commodities exported or imported and were usually called the "alien's duty." See 1 Bl Comm 314.

cut. Noun: A wound with an instrument having an edge. State v Patza 3 La Ann 512, 514. A lowering of the surface of the ground at one point to bring a highway or railroad line to a level. Verb: To sever with an edged instrument; to divide money or property, especially the loot of a crime; to reduce the strength of a substance by adding something, e. g. water to alcohol.

cuth. Customary.

cutoff date. The end of the period within which certain action may be taken, e.g. the period during which the holder of securities issued by a corporation presently undergoing reorganization in a proceeding in a court of bankruptcy may surrender such securities in exchange for securities of the reorganized corporation. Anno: 41 ALR2d 1008.

cutoff drainage. The drainage of seepy hillsides by tiles placed along the hillside to intercept the seep water and prevent its reaching the bottom land. United States v Warm Springs Irrig. Dist. (DC Or) 38 F Supp 239.

cut out. See muffler.

cutpurse. A thief who cut purses in order to secure their contents; hence, a pickpocket.

cutting back. The operation in driving a motor vehicle wherein the driver, after passing another vehicle, turns back onto the right hand side. 7 Am J2d Auto § 221.

cutting corners. A violation of a statute or ordinance requiring vehicles turning at street intersections to keep to the right of the center of the intersection. 8 Am J2d Auto § 802.

cutting out. Dividing a herd of cattle into separate herds according to the individual ownership of the animals; dividing a herd of cattle according to animals ready for market and animals requiring further growth or feeding to make them marketable most advantageously.

cwt. An abbreviation of "hundredweight."

cy-apres. (French.) Hereafter.

cyclone. A rotary storm or whirlwind of extended circuit. Queen Ins. Co. v Hudnut Co. 8 Ind App 22, 26, 35 NE 397. An atmospheric disturbance one of the characteristics of which is a circular or gyratory motion, evidenced by a twisting effect; sometimes becoming a tornado. Maryland Casualty Co. v Finch (CA8 Minn) 147 F 388. A risk insured against under a form of property insurance. 29A Am J1st Ins § 1329.

See hurricane; tornado; windstorm.

cyclotron. An instrumentality of the atomic age, a unique device for giving extremely high energy to particles known as protons and deuterons, causing them to move with increasing energy in a spiral path until they collide with an arranged target.

cy-devant. (French.) Heretofore.

cy gist. Here lies.

cynebote. Same as kinebot.

cyphonism. An ancient form of punishment by smearing the body of the person with honey and exposing him to the attacks of insects.

cy pres. As near as practicable; so near. The doctrine which permits a gift for a charitable purpose to be applied as nearly as may be to the fulfilment of the underlying charitable intent, where, for one reason or another, it cannot be carried out as directed by the donor. 15 Am J2d Char § 131.

cyrce. A church.

cyricbryce. Breaking into a church; church-breaking.

cyrographata. See charta cyrographata.

cyrographum. Same as chirograph.

cystoma. A disease common to both sexes, involving calcium formations in the bladder. Anno: 23 ALR2d 1023.

cystoscopic examination. An examination of the bladder made with a cystoscope; sometimes sought to be had as part of an involuntary physical examination. 23 Am J2d Dep § 216.

D

D. Roman numeral for 500.

D. A. Abbreviation for district attorney.

d'accroissement. See droit d'accroissement.

dacion. (Spanish.) A delivery made in accordance with the terms of a contract.

dacker. A dispute.

dacoity. (India.) A robbery committed by a band composed of five or more persons.

dactylography. The scientific study of fingerprints as a means of identification. State v Steffens, 210 Iowa 196, 230 NW 536, 78 ALR 748; State v Kuhl, 42 Nev 185, 175 P 190, 36 ALR 1694.

daemon. See voluntarius daemon.

dagger. A straight knife; a weapon for stabbing; a generic term covering the dirk, stiletto, and poniard. People v Ruiz, 88 Cal App 502, 263 P 836.

dagger-money. Payments of money which were made to the justices of assize on the northern circuit of England as a defense fund against robbers.

daily. On every day; each day.

daily balance. An expression of moment in reference to an interest-bearing bank account, meaning the balance standing in favor of the depositor at the close of business on any day of the interest period, an average being taken of the daily balances for the period in computing the amount upon which interest is to be paid.

daily newspaper. A newspaper published customarily on every day of the week except one, for instance, Sunday or Monday; a newspaper published every day in the week except both Sunday and Monday. 39 Am 1Newsp § 4.

d'ainesse. See droit d'ainesse.

daker. Same as dacker.

dam. A structure, composed of wood, earth, or other material, erected in and usually extending across the entire channel of a stream at right angles to the thread of the stream, and intended to retard or retain the flow of water. Morton v Oregon Short Line Railway Co. 48 Or 444, 87 P 151; the female parent of an equine.

damage. The loss, hurt or harm which results from the injury consequent upon the illegal invasion of a legal right. 22 Am J2d Damg § 1.

Although the words, "damage," "damages," and "injury," are sometimes treated loosely as synonyms, there is a material distinction between them. Injury is the illegal invasion of a legal right; damages is the loss, hurt, or harm which results from the injury; and damages are the recompense or compensation awarded for the damage suffered. 22 Am J2d Damg § 1.

damage by rust. See rust.

damage by the elements. Such injuries as result from the operation of the most common destructive forces of nature against which property needs to be protected, the clause being exclusive of direct human agency. Pope v Farmers Union & Milling Co. 130 Cal 139, 62 P 384; injuries resulting from sudden, unusual, or unexpected action, as distinguished from gradual changes and decay. O'Neal v Bainbridge, 94 Kan 518, 146 P 1165 (damage by fire); Kirby v Wilie, 108 Md 501, 70 A 213. Some authorities construe the term as sufficiently broad to include all damage caused by the action of nature, including damage by gradual decay. 32 Am J1st L & T § 795.

damage-cleer. A fee paid into court on the recovery of damages.

damaged. Injured; the equivalent of "taken" under most eminent domain statutes. 26 Am J2d Em D § 158. As applied to property, the word "damaged" imports some disturbance to its intrinsic value; some damage to the property considered as property, and it does not include damages consequential from a wrong done in taking away property and thus rendering its owner unable to realize the real value of property not taken or damaged. Price v United States, 174 US 373, 378, 43 L Ed 1011, 1014, 19 S Ct 765. The insertion of the word "damaged," or a similar word in a constitutional provision for compensation has generally been considered necessary to justify an award of damages for the obstruction or diversion of, or other interference with, surface water by a public improvement. But in some cases the word "taking" alone has been construed to require the payment of compensation for damages resulting from such obstruction or interference. Anno: 128 ALR 1196.

damage feasant. Doing damage; the damage caused by trespassing animals.

See distress damage feasant.

damage in taking by eminent domain. Physical injury to property not taken caused by any act in the course of the construction of a public improvement which if done by a private individual would give rise to an action at law. Farnandis v Great Northern Railway Co. 41 Wash 486, 84 P 18, 21.

damages. The sum of money which the law awards or imposes as pecuniary compensation, recompense, or satisfaction for an injury done or a wrong sustained as a consequence either of a breach of a contractual obligation or a tortious act. 22 Am Rd Damg § 1. The pecuniary compensation or indemnity which may be recovered in the courts by any person who has suffered loss, detriment, or injury, whether to his person, property, or rights, through the unlawful act or omission or negligence of another. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Hanna (CA5 Fla) 224 F2d 499, 53 ALR2d 1125.

See actual damages; compensatory damages; damage; double damages; exemplary damages; liquidated damages; mitigation of damages; nominal damages; punitive damages; speculative damages.

damages and costs. As the phrase appears in an appeal bond, it binds the appellant to answer for the judgment, including interest. 5 Am J2d A & E § 1060.

damages at large. An award for which there is no monetary standard of computation, such as damages for pain and suffering. Broughel v Southern New England Tel. Co. 73 Conn 614, 621.

damages for delay. As the term appears in a supersedeas bond, such damages arising from the delay caused by the appeal as may properly constitute legal damages to the party delayed. 5 Am J2d A & E § 1058; the damages recoverable for a carrier's delay in transporting and delivering goods. 13 Am J2d Car § 377; the damages recoverable for a contractor's delay in performance. 13 Am J2d Bldg Contr § 76; 22 Am J2d Damg § 49; interest allowed for delay in payment of compensation for property taken under power of eminent domain. 27 Am J2d Em D § 297.

damages for loss of use. See usable value.

damage to the person. Personal injury. There is a difference of opinion on the question whether a statute providing for the survival of an action for injury to the person, after the death of the injured person, includes an action for an injury to the feelings or sensibilities. 1 Am J2d Abat & R § 68.

damage without wrong. Loss or harm resulting to a person which is not the result of the violation of a legal duty. 22 Am J2d Damg § 1. The practical sense of the expression is that there is no cause of action. 1 Am J2d Actions § 70.

dame. The wife of a baronet.

damn. To condemn; to deem, think or judge anyone to be guilty or to be criminal; to give judgment, or sentence, or doom of guilt; to adjudge, or declare the penalty or punishment. Blaufus v People, 69 NY 107, 111.

damna. Damages.

damnatus. Condemned; sentenced; declared to be guilty; illegal.

damned rascal. See rascal.

damnify. To injure; to cause loss or damage.

damni injuriae actio. (Roman law.) An action for intentional injury to the beast of another.

damno. See in damno.

damnosa haereditas. An encumbered inheritance.

damnum. A species of loss.

See ad quod damnum; damage.

damnum absque injuria. Damage without wrong, the sense of the expression being that there is no cause of action. 1 Am J2d Actions § 78.

The phrase applies where an accident occurs and no fault or negligence is chargeable to either of the parties to the occurrence, as where the accident was inevitable or is properly characterized as an act of God. 38 Am J1st Negl § 4. A legal right must be violated in order that an action of tort may be maintained. The mere fact that a complainant may have suffered damage of the kind which the law recognizes is not enough. There must also have been a violation of a duty recognized by law. "Damnum" is not enough; there must also be "injuria." The maxim comes from the civil law. West Virginia Transp. Co. v Standard Oil Co. 50 W Va 611, 40 SE 591.

Damnum absque injuria esse potest. There can be loss or damage without the violation of a legal right. One cannot always look to others to make compensation for injuries received, since many accidents occur, the consequences of which the sufferer must bear alone. To warrant the recovery of damages in any case, there must be a right of action for a wrong inflicted by the defendant, and damage resulting to the plaintiff therefrom. 1 Am J2d Actions § 70; 22 Am J2d Damg § 1.

damnum et injuria. Loss and wrong, the two elements which must exist in combination as essentials of a cause of action. 1 Am J2d Actions § 70.

damnum fatale. By the Roman law, an innkeeper was accountable for the value of property intrusted to his charge, though the loss occurred or the thing perished without his fault unless it happened damno fatale, or by the act of God. Under the term damnum fatale, the civilians included all those accidents which are summed up in the common-law expressions "act of God," or "public enemies," though perhaps it embraced some more which would not now be admitted as occurring from an irresistible force. Thickstun v Howard (Ind) 8 Blackford 535, 536.

damnum infection. Threatened damage or loss.

damnum rei amissae. A loss suffered through making a payment by mistake of law.

damnum sine injuria. Loss or damage without the violation or infringement of a legal right. Such damage or loss can impose no liability on a defendant. Kingsley v Delaware, Lackawanna & Western R. Co. 81 NJL 536, 80 A 327.

See damage without wrong; damnum absque injuria.

Damnum sine injuria esse potest. There can be loss or damage without the violation of a legal right.

damp. See black damp.

dance. A recreation, also an art, in which the body, particularly the feet, sometimes the hands, move in rhythm and to music; a party at which the guests dance; a display of emotion, particularly of joy, sometimes of pain.

dance hall. A place for public dancing, that is a place to which the public is admitted for dancing. Bungalow Amusement Co. v Seattle, 148 Wash 485, 269 P 1043, 60 ALR 166; a public hall primarily and predominantly, although not necessarily, exclusively devoted to dancing. Anno: 48 ALR 147, s. 60 ALR 173.

Construed in accordance with ordinary usage of the term, a "dance hall" is a place maintained for promiscuous and public dancing, admission to which is not based upon personal selection or invitation. 4 Am J2d Amuse § 3.

dance house. Same as dance hall.

dancing school. A place for instruction in dancing and etiquette, particularly the etiquette of the dance.

dandy-note. An English customs permit authorizing the removal of goods from a warehouse.

danegelt. Dane-gold,—an ancient annual tax levied in England to provide funds for warfare with the Danes.

danelage. Also written Dane-lage. The Danish law which was one of the three principal systems of laws at the beginning of the eleventh century. It was principally maintained in certain of the midland counties of England and also on the eastern coast, the part most exposed to the visits of pirates. See 1 Bl Comm 65.

[305]

danelaw. Same as danelage.

danger. Peril; a likelihood of injury; a relative term, since all life is to some extent a surmounting of peril. In the general law of negligence it includes such contingent harm or injury as reasonable prudence ought to foresee and provide against, as probably in prospect. Drennen Co. v Jordan, 181 Ala 570, 983, 61 So 938, 23 ALR 981; an ancient duty which the tenant paid for leave to till the soil at certain seasons.

dangerous. Unsafe; perilous; having at least some element of danger.

See imminently dangerous; inherently dangerous.

dangerous agency. See dangerous instrumentality. dangerous instrumentality. A basis for liability without fault in respect of injury to adjoining property or to persons upon adjoining property. 1 Am J2d Adj L § 11; a term of moment in reference to liability of an owner or possessor for negligence. 38 Am J1st Negl § 85; also, a term of practical application in considering the absolute liability of an employer for an injury inflicted upon a third person by an instrumentality in the hands of an employee. The term has reference to appliances or things dangerous in themselves, inherently dangerous. 35 Am J1st M & S § 547; 38 Am J1st Negl § 85. Only where a "dangerous agency" amounts to a nuisance, and is unnecessary under the existing social conditions, may the employer be held absolutely liable for injuries resulting from its use by an employee. 35 Am J1st M & S § 547.

dangerous per se. Instrumentality is "dangerous per se" if it may inflict injury without the immediate application of human aid. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v Anderson, 80 Fla 441, 86 So 629, 16 ALR 255.

dangerous premises. Grounds upon which there are pitfalls or hidden sources of danger to a pedestrian. 38 Am J1st Negl § 96.

dangerous weapon. An instrument which, when used in the ordinary manner contemplated by its design and construction, will, or is likely to, cause death or great bodily harm. Barboursville ex rel. Bates v Taylor, 115 W Va 4, 174 SE 485, 92 ALR 1093.

Whether an unloaded firearm is to be considered a dangerous weapon depends ordinarily upon the manner in which the instrument is used or attempted to be used, whether as a firearm or as a bludgeon. 56 Am J1st Weap § 4.

dangers of lake navigation. All the ordinary perils which attend navigation on the Great Lakes, and among such perils, that which arises from shallowness of the waters at the entrance of harbors formed from them. Tyler v Defrees (US) 11 Wall 129, 20 L Ed 160.

dangers of navigation. Those perils incident to a lawful course of navigation conforming to public regulations of which the vessel must take notice; natural accidents, peculiar to the sea, which do not happen by the intervention of man and are not preventable or avoidable by human prudence. The term is broader than acts of God and includes many accidents peculiar to navigation on the sea which would not come within that term. 48 Am J1st Ship § 454.

See dangers of the sea; perils of the sea.

dangers of the river. A term analogous to and of like import with "perils of the sea," including risks arising from natural accidents peculiar to the river, canal or lake, which do not happen by the intervention of man and are not to be prevented by human prudence, and has been extended to cover losses arising from some irresistible force or overwhelming power which no ordinary skill could anticipate or evade. 48 Am J1st Ship § 455.

dangers of the sea. Perils of the sea, denoting natural accidents peculiar to the sea which do not happen by the intervention of man and are not to be prevented by the prudence of man. 48 Am J1st Ship § 454. Capture and plundering by pirates have been deemed included within the term as an exception to the general limitation to natural occurrences. Jones v Pitcher (Ala) 3 Stew & P 135.

See perils of the sea.

danger trees. Trees standing adjacent to the right of way of an electric power transmission line which, by reason of their size or condition involve a concrete threat of injury to the line. 26 Am J2d Electr § 146.

danism. A usurious loan.

dano. (Spanish.) Damage.

dans. In; within.

dans et retinens, nihil dat. A person who gives and retains possession, gives nothing.

dapifer. A court officer whose functions were those of a steward.

darbies. Handcuffs.

dare. To give; to transfer; to convey; to risk; to hazard.

dare ad remanentiam. To convey in fee simple.

dareyne. Same as darrein.

dark. Noun: The period of time after nightfall. Adjective: An absence or deficiency of light, as in the nighttime or after nightfall. Wichita Falls & NW Ry. Co. v Woodman, 64 Okla 326, 168 P 209.

Darnell's Case. A celebrated English case, decided in 1627, which sustained the refusal of the defendant to subscribe to a forced loan.

darraign. Same as deraign.

darrein. Last.

darrein continuance. The last continuance.

See puis darrein continuance.

darrein presentment. Last presentation; this was a writ or assize which lay when a man, or his ancestor, under whom he claimed, had presented a clerk to a benefice, who was instituted, and later a stranger presented a clerk, and thereby disturbed the real patron. The writ directed the sheriff to summon an assize or jury to determine who was the last patron, and upon their finding, a writ issued to the bishop to institute the clerk of the proper patron. See 3 Bl Comm 245.

darrein seisin. The name of a form of plea which might be interposed by the tenant in his defense against a writ of right, and whereby the tenant alleged title and seisin to be in himself as against the demandant. Hunt v Hunt, 44 Mass (3 Met) 184.

Dartmouth College Case. A very celebrated case—Dartmouth College v Woodward (US) 4 Wheat 518, 4 L Ed 629, decided by the United States Supreme Court in 1819, announcing the doctrine that a grant of corporate powers by the sovereign to an association of individuals for public use constitutes a contract within the meaning of the Federal Constitution prohibiting state legislatures from passing laws impairing obligations of contract. 36 Am J2d Franch § 6.

data. Collected information; known facts. Plural of datum.

date. The time of an occurrence or happening; an indication of time, as upon a coin or an instrument. The date of a written instrument means the year, month, and day of its execution. Estate of Carpenter, 172 Cal 268, 156 P 464. The word is frequently used to designate the actual time when an event takes place; but as applied to written instruments, its primary signification is the time specified therein. This is the meaning which its derivation from the Latin "datus," meaning "given," most naturally suggests. This primary meaning is not time in the abstract, nor time taken absolutely, but, as its derivation indicates, it is the time given or specified—time in some way ascertained or fixed. The date of a deed is not the time when it was actually executed, but the time of its execution, as given or stated in the deed itself; the date of a charge in an account not necessarily the time when the article charged was actually furnished, but the time given or set down in the account in connection with such charge. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v Hurni Packing Co. 263 US 167, 174, 68 L Ed 235, 44 S Ct 90, 31 ALR 102, 107.

date certaine. (French.). The date of the recording of an instrument.

date of adjudication in bankruptcy. The date of the filing of any petition which operates as an adjudication, or the date of entry of a decree of adjudication, or, if such decree is appealed from, then the date when such decree is finally confirmed or the appeal is dismissed. Bankr Act § 1(12); 11 USC 1(12); 9 Am J2d Bankr § 264.

date of issue. An arbitrary date fixed, as the beginning of the term for which notes and bonds of a series are to run, without reference to the precise time when convenience or the state of the market may permit of their sale or delivery. Yesler v Seattle, 1 Wash 308, 322, 25 P 1014, 1019; an arbitrary date noted in an insurance policy, rather than the date of execution or delivery. 29 Am J1st Ins § 518.

date of judgment. The date of rendition of the judgment which is the day when the judgment is signed by the judge and filed with the clerk of court. Bell v McDermoth, 198 Cal 594, 246 P 805. Such is the date of the judgment from the standpoint of the judicial act in the rendition of a judgment. Clerical acts in entry, docketing, and spreading the judgment upon the records of the court, requisite in giving a judgment full effect, are subsequent to the rendition. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm §§ 91 et seq.

date of publication. For the purpose of determining the duration and expiration of a copyright, the "date of publication" is the earliest date when copies of the first authorized publication are placed on sale, sold, or publicly distributed by the proprietor of the copyright or under his authority. 17 USC § 26.

See publication date.

date wanted—as desired. A usual stipulation in mercantile agreements, the equivalent of on demand. Tampa Shipbuilding & Engineering Co. v General Constr. Co. (CA5 Fla) 43 F2d 309, 85 ALR 1178.

datio. Same as datation.

datio in adoptionem. (Roman law.) Given in adoption. Adoption is either arrogatio, when a man in his own right (homo sui juris) is adopted or datio in adoptionem, when a filius familias of him who has such person in his power is given to another for adoption. See Mackeldey's Roman Law § 592.

datio in solutum. An accord and satisfaction under the civil law, wherein the payment was made in property and not in money.

datation. A giving or transfer in the fulfillment of a duty; an appointment, as to an office.

datation en paiement. A proceeding under the law of Louisiana whereby a debtor conveys property to his creditor, and the creditor accepts the conveyance as payment of the debt. Bradley v Claflin, 132 US 379, 385, 33 L Ed 367, 370, 10 S Ct 125.

datative. That which a person may give or appoint to at will, as an office; given or appointed.
See decree datative.

datative curatorship. See datative tutorship.

datative tutorship. Also called "datative curatorship," –a tutorship or curatorship which is conferred by a family meeting on a person having charge of a minor, or of an interdict. Interdiction of Bothick, 43 La Ann 547, 9 So 477.

Da tua dum tua sunt, post mortem tunc tua non sunt. Give that which is yours while it is yours; after death it is not yours.

datum. That which is delivered; executed; a date.

datur digniori. It is given to the more worthy.

d'aubaine. See droit d'aubaine.

daughter. A girl or woman who is the child in a parent and child relationship; a word which is not a technical legal term having a fixed and definite meaning, but one which is flexible and subject to construction to give effect to the intention of the maker of the instrument in which it appears. Conner v Gardner, 230 Ill 258, 82 NE 640. The designation "daughter" appearing in a will may serve to indicate the inclusion of an illegitimate child of the testator among his beneficiaries. 10 Am J2d Bast § 141.

dauphin. The eldest son of the king of France was so called.

Davies v Mann. A celebrated English case reported in 10 Mees & W 546, 152 Eng Reprint 588, 19 ERC 190, to which the origin of the rule of last clear chance is traced. The case is often referred to as the Donkey Case because it was a donkey which was injured by the defendant's act.

Davis-Bacon Act. A federal statute with minimum wage provisions in reference to employees of contractors engaged in federal public works. 40 USC § 276a.

Davis Case. A leading case in reference to the validity of a foreign divorce. Davis v Davis, 305 US 32, 83 L Ed 26, 59 S Ct 3, 118 ALR 158.

day. A manifestation of the natural phenomena of the rotation of the earth. 29 Am J2d Ev § 100; a division of time, consisting of twenty-four hours, the period which elapses while the earth makes a complete revolution on its axis, running from midnight to midnight. State ex rel. State Pharmaceutical Association v Michel, 52 La Ann 936, 27 So 566.

[307]

See calendar day; fraction of a day.

day-book. An account-book of original entry in which transactions are set down as they occur.

daybreak. The dawn or first appearance of light in the morning. Sullivan v Chicago City R. Co. 167 Ill App 152.

day burglary. A statutory offense sometimes called daytime burglary, the distinctive element being the commission of the offense in the daytime. 13 Am J2d Burgl § 23.

day in court. A phrase meaning nothing less than due process, that is the right to, and opportunity for, a hearing. 16 Am J2d Const L § 569. A "day in court" means an opportunity to be heard after notice to appear, and is denied a corporation where no officer or agent bearing the duty to defend actions is given notice of the pending action until after judgment. Townsend v Carolina Coach Co. 231 NC 81, 56 SE2d 39, 20 ALR2d 1174.

It is sufficient if the record shows that the parties might have had their controversies determined according to their respective rights if they had presented all their evidence and the court had applied the law. Olsen v Muskegon Piston Ring Co. (CA6 Mich) 117 F2d 163.

day laborer. A person employed by the day to perform manual labor. Briscoe v Montgomery & Co. 93 Ga 602.

daylight. The natural light of daytime; dawn; daylight.

See de die claro.

daylight saving time. Time advanced for the purpose of taking advantage of the longer periods of daylight during the summer months. 52 Am J1st Time § 4; achieved by advancing clock or other timepiece one hour; prevailing from the last Sunday of April at 2 A. M. to the last Sunday of October at 2 A. M. under Act of Congress, for all states, the District of Columbia, and possessions of the United States, except as any state may exempt itself by statute from using such time.

day of 24 hours. A period designated for the purpose of expressing with certainty and precision the exact period during which the capacity of a distillery for production is to be ascertained or fixed for tax purposes. Chicago Distilling Co. v Stone, 140 US 647, 35 L Ed 532, 11 S Ct 862.

day-rule. An order of court permitting a prisoner to spend a day out of prison.

days in bank. Days set by law for the return of writs or for the appearance in court of the parties served; default day.

daysman. An arbiter.

days of grace. An additional three days following the date specified for payment in a negotiable instrument, allowed the obligor under the rule of law merchant and perhaps in a very few states, although not in respect of checks. Bull v First Nat. Bank, 123 US 105, 31 L Ed 97, 8 S Ct 62; an allowance of three days to the debtor to make payment, beyond the time at which by the terms of the contract, it becomes due and payable. Bell v First Nat. Bank, 115 US 373, 29 L Ed 409, 6 S Ct 105; an extended period, usually 30 days, under statute or contractual provision, for the payment of premiums under a life insurance policy. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 519; additional opportunity to obey appellate court order. 4 Am J2d A & E § 238.

day's work. The number of hours, as prescribed by statute, constituting a lawful day's work, unless otherwise agreed by the parties. 31 Am J Rev ed Lab § 780.

Such statutes are to be distinguished from those which limit absolutely the length of a working day.

In underground metal mining, the workday starts when the miner reports for duty as required at or near the collar of the mine, and ends when he reaches the collar at the end of the shift. It also includes the aggregate of the time spent on the surface in obtaining and returning lamps, carbide and tools and in checking in and out, but it does not include any fixed lunch period of one-half hour or more during which the miner is relieved of all duties, even though the lunch period is spent underground. MeWhirter v Otis Elevator Co. (DC SC) 40 F Supp 11.

See hours of labor; Portal to Portal Pay Act.

daytime. The period of daylight, commencing before sunrise and continuing a while after sunset, during which it is possible to discern the face of a person or object by natural light. 13 Am J2d Burgl §§ 23, 24.

daytime burglary. See day burglary.

daywere. A quantity of land which could be ploughed in one day.

day-writ. Same as day-rule.

dazzling light. In reference to automobile headlights, high, as opposed to low, headlight beams. People v Meola, 7 NY2d 391, 198 NYS2d 276, 165 NE2d 851.

D. B. Abbreviation of Domesday Book.

d. b. e. An abbreviation of de bene esse.

d. b. n. An abbreviation of de bonis non.
See administrator d. b. n.

D. C. Abbreviation of district court also of District of Columbia, and of Doctor of Chiropractic.

D. C. L. Letters representing the university degree of "doctor of civil law."

dd. Abbreviation of delivered.

d. d. An abbreviation of "days after date."

D. D. Abbreviation of demand draft and of Doctor of Divinity.

D. D. S. Abbreviation of Doctor of Dental Science.

D. E. Abbreviation of Doctor of Engineering.

de. (French and Latin.) From; of; concerning; among.

deacon. The assistant of a priest or other clergyman. In some Protestant denominations, a member of the governing board of a church or congregation.

de acquirendo rerum dominio. Of acquiring the control of things.

dead. Without life; of no effect.

dead animal. A carcass which in some way endangers the public health or contributes to the discomfort of the populace. Anno: 121 ALR 743, 747.

dead beat. (Slang.) Noun: A person who does not pay his bills and has no property out of which the bills can be collected under process. Adjective: Exhausted.

dead body. The corpse of a human being. A dead animal.

dead-born. Born dead; stillborn.

dead freight. A shipping term used to denote the compensation payable to a shipowner when the charterer under a contract of affreightment has failed to ship a full cargo; that is, compensation for the loss sustained by the shipowner by reason of the charterer's failure to deliver the agreed quantity of cargo. California & Eastern S.S. Co. v 138,000 Feet of Lumber (DC Md) 23 F2d 95, 97.

dead hand. Control from the grave by a blind observance of principles and practices enunciated and developed by persons long since dead; holding property out of the channels of commerce and industry.

See in mortua manu; mortmain.

deadhead. A term applied to persons other than the president, directors, officers, agents or employees of a railroad company, who are permitted by the company to travel on the road without paying any fare therefor. Gardner v Hall, 61 NC 21, 22.

deadhead message. A telegram which is usually marked "d. h.," and is sent without charge. Connelly v Western Union Tel. Co. 100 Va 51, 40 SE 618.

dead letter. A law which is not enforced; an undelivered letter which has been sent to the dead letter office by the post office department to be destroyed.

deadline. A point of time, day, hour, or minute, as of which an act shall be performed, such as filing a claim or producing an article for publication in a specific issue of a newspaper or periodical; a line which a prisoner may not cross without exposing himself to gunfire.

See midnight deadline.

deadlock. An even division of the directors of a corporation in voting. 19 Am J2d Corp § 1129; an even division of members of an administrative agency on a particular question. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 198.

See equally divided court.

deadly. See mortal.

deadly weapon. An instrument which is likely to or which will cause or produce death or great bodily harm when used in the manner contemplated by its design and construction. Barboursville ex rel. Bates v Taylor, 115 W Va 4, 174 SE 485, 92 ALR 1093; 26 Am J1st Homi § 7; 56 Am J1st Weap § 2.

Whether an unloaded firearm is to be considered a deadly weapon depends ordinarily upon whether the manner in which the instrument is used or attempted to be used, whether as a firearm or a bludgeon. 56 Am J1st Weap § 4.

dead man's part. That portion of the personal property of a married man of which he could lawfully dispose by will to the exclusion of his widow and his children.

de admeasurement. For admeasurement; for adjustment or settlement.

de admeasurement dotis. A writ for the admeasurement of dower, which lay where more land had been assigned to a widow as dower than she ought legally to have. This might occur where a minor heir or his guardian had made the excessive assignment. See 2 Bl Comm 136.

de admittendo clerico. A writ commanding a bishop to admit to a living a clergyman who had been regularly appointed thereto.

dead pay. The pay or wages of dead soldiers and sailors which have been wrongfully collected from the government after their death.

dead pledge. A mortgage; the property mortgaged.

It was called a "dead" pledge because the rents and profits of it did not go toward the discharge or payment of it. Hence, it yielded nothing to the mortgagee and was, in that sense, dead.

dead rent. A rent reserved in the lease of mining property in addition to royalties.

dead's part. Same as dead man's part.

dead storage. The storage of goods wherein they come to rest for safekeeping. Tipp v District of Columbia, 69 App DC 400, 102 F2d 264. In "dead storage" of a motor vehicle, the battery is removed, so that the vehicle can not be moved under its own power.

dead use. A future use.

dead vessel. A ship permanently withdrawn from use for navigation purposes. 2 Am J2d Adm § 31.

de advisamento consilii nostri. By the advice of our counsel.

dead wall. A term common to building regulations, meaning a solid wall, that is a wall without openings. 13 Am J2d Bldgs § 28.

deadwoods. See buffers.

de aequitate. In equity.

de aetate probanda. For proving age,—a writ which lay to determine the time of the majority of the infant heir of a tenant in capite.

deaf, dumb, and blind. The common law regarded a man who was born deaf, dumb and blind as being in the same state with an idiot, because being deemed incapable of understanding, he was supposed to be lacking in all those senses which furnish the human mind with ideas. See 1 Bl Comm 304. Such concept is negated absolutely by the remarkable achievements which have been accomplished in modern times by persons working under the handicap of the combination of such infirmities. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins Per § 4. One of our finest minds is that of Helen Keller.

deafforest. To take from a forest its character as a forest, and thus to remove it from the operation of the forest laws.

deaf mute. A person who can neither hear nor speak.

See deaf, dumb, and blind.

deal. Verb: To transact business; to be concerned with a person or a thing. State v Morrow, 313 Mo 114, 125, 280 SW 697; to buy or to sell. Commonwealth v Silverman, 220 Mass 552, 108 NE 358; to distribute the cards to the players in a card game; Noun: A transaction; a bargain; an arrangement to attain a desired result. Reynolds v Pray, 148 Iowa 213, 127 NW 50; a secret arrangement, especially in politics, whereby support is given on promise of future favors. Oregon Home Builders v Montgomery Invest. Co. 94 Or 349, 184 P 487; the playing of one hand of cards around in a card game.

de aleatoribus. Concerning gamblers.

[309]

dealer. One who buys and sells any commodity, such as grain, sugar, wheat etc. Gibson v Bolner, 165 Ohio St 357, 59 Ohio Ops 467, 135 NE2d 353; a person who buys and sells at a place of business rather than from house to house as a peddler. 40 Am J1st Ped § 3; one who sells goods substantially in the form in which they are bought, and who has not converted them into another form of property by his own skill and labor. 51 Am J1st Tax § 320.

dealer in lands. See land jobber.

dealer in liquor. A person who buys and sells liquor or buys it with the intention of selling it. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 217.

dealer in narcotics. One who sells narcotics promiscuously, and who is ready or willing to sell to anyone who applies to purchase. Taylor v United States (CA8 Mo) 19 F2d 813.

dealer in securities. A merchant of securities with an established place of business, regularly engaged in the purchase of securities and their resale to customers. Internal Revenue Code § 1236(c); Helvering v Fried, 299 US 175, 81 L Ed 104, 57 S Ct 150; one who engages in repeated and continuous transactions in securities, as distinguished from a person who buys or sells only occasionally. 47 Am J1st Secur A § 21.

dealer's policy. An automobile insurance policy which covers the risk or risks of an automobile dealer. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins §§ 43, 73, 96, 97.

dealer's talk. See puffing.

dealing. Buying and selling. The word is often used as equivalent in meaning to the word "trading." Fleckner v Bank of United States (US) 8 Wheat 338, 352, 5 L Ed 631, 634; acting as dealer in a card game.

See dealer; trading.

dealing in futures. See futures.

dealing off the cuff. A slang term for acting without sufficient forethought.

de allocatione facienda. For making an allowance,—an old English writ to compel the lord treasurer and barons of the exchequer to make allowances to certain government officers for payments made by them.

de alto et basso. From top to bottom; fully; completely; in all particulars. The phrase may be compared with the nautical expressions "from stem to stern," "from stem to gudgeon."

de ambitu. Concerning bribery. Under the Julian law a person convicted of corruption at an election was fined and adjudged infamous, but if he thereafter convicted another offender, his credit was restored. See 1 Bl Comm 179, footnote.

dean. The title of an ecclesiastical officer; the president of a bar association; an honorary title given to the oldest member of a profession or trade in a particular place.

dean and chapter. The council of a bishop, to assist him with their advice in religious matters, and also in the temporal affairs of his see. See 1 Bl Comm 382.

deanery. See Archdeanery.

de annua pensione. Of annual pension,—an old English writ to compel an abbot or prior to make payment of pension money due the king from the abbey or priory.

de annuo redditu. An old English writ which lay to recover an annuity.

dean of the arches. The chief judicial officer of the archbishop of Canterbury.

de apostata capiendo. For taking an apostate,—an old English writ for the arrest of a religious officer who had abandoned his post.

de arbitracione facta. For making an arbitration,—an old English writ to restrain an action based on a claim which had been submitted to arbitration.

de arrestandis bonis ne dissipentur. For the seizure of goods lest they disappear,—an old English writ for the seizure of goods taken by a person who might leave the owner without a remedy.

de arrestando ipsum qui pecuniam recepit. For arresting him who had received money,—an old English writ for the arrest of a deserting soldier who had received his pay.

de arte et parte. Of art and part.

De Asportatis Religiosorum. Concerning the asportations of religious persons,—the title of a statute of 35 Edward the First, the purpose of which was to curb the acquisitions of the church.

de assissa mortis antecessoris. Concerning the assize of the death of an ancestor.

de assissa proroganda. For postponing the assize,—a writ to postpone the issue of an assize during the absence in war of one of the parties to the action.

death. The end of life; the state of being dead.

See civil death.

death acts. Statutes permitting civil actions for death caused by wrongful act. 22 Am J2d Dth § 2.

See wrongful death.

deathbed expenses. The expenses of a person's last illness.

death by accident. See accident.

death by accidental means. See accidental means.

death by his own hand. A synonym of suicide. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1145. The expression does not include death by accident; there must be an intent to commit suicide. Such an intent, however, may be present even while the assured is in a state of intoxication. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v Paterson, 41 Ga 338.

death by natural cause. See natural death.

death by poison. See poison; poisoning.

death by wrongful act. See wrongful death.

death certificate. The official proof of death, issued on the showing made by an official registry kept pursuant to law. 22 Am J2d Dth § 302.

death duties. Another term for inheritance or estates taxes. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 3; duties which are not a tax upon property eo nomine, but upon its passage by will or by descent in cases of intestacy, as distinguished from taxes imposed on property real or personal, as such, because of its ownership or possession. In other words, the public contribution which death duties exact is predicated on the passing of property as the result of death, as distinct from a tax on property disassociated from its transmission or receipt by will, or as the result of intestacy. Knowlton v Moore, 178 US 41, 44 L Ed 969, 20 S Ct 747.

[310]

See estate taxes; inheritance taxes.

death from. See phrases beginning death by.

Death on High Seas Act. A federal statute which applies to death caused by wrongful act, including neglect or default, on the high seas more than a marine league from the United States, and authorizes suit for damages in an admiralty court, by the personal representatives of the decedent and for the personal benefit of the decedent's wife, husband, parent, child, or dependent relative. 46 USC § 761; 2 Am J2d Adm § 130.

death penalty. The extreme penalty for the commission of a crime, to be executed within the manner provided by statute, such as hanging, electrocution, or asphyxiation by gas. There is a definite legislative trend toward the abolition of the death penalty, either absolutely or subject to few exceptions.

death sentence. See death penalty.

deathsman. An executioner; a person who executes the death penalty for a capital offense.

death's part. Same as dead man's part.

death taxes. Another term for inheritance or estate taxes. 28 Am J Rev ed Inher T § 3.

See death duties.

deathwarrant. The warrant or order of a court commanding the execution of a sentence to death.

death without issue. See die without issue.

deathwound. A fatal wound.

de attornato recipiendo. For receiving an attorney,—a writ to compel the judges to receive an attorney of a party to an action pending before them.

de audiendo et terminando. To hear and determine; a writ directing commissioners to try and decide certain cases assigned to them.

de averiis captis in withernam. Same as averiis captis in withernam.

de averiis retornandis. For returning cattle,—a writ for the seizure of the cattle of a person in the place of other cattle which he has wrongfully driven away.

de avo. From the grandfather, —a writ whereby an heir secured land entered by a stranger on the day of the death of the heir's grandfather, who had died seized of it. See 3 Bl Comm 186.

deawarren. To break up and discontinue or abandon a warren.

debar. To cut off from entrance; to preclude; to hinder from approach, entry or enjoyment; to shut out or exclude. Printup v Alexander & Wright, 69 Ga 553, 556.

debas. Below.

debase. To adulterate.

debasement coin. Reducing the standard of quality by increasing the percentage of alloy.

debatable land. Land lying near the boundary between England and Scotland which at one time was claimed by each of them.

debauched. Carnally known. 47 Am J1st Seduc § 6.

debauchery. An excessive indulgence of the body; licentiousness; drunkenness; corruption of innocence; taking up vicious habits; sometimes defined as sexual immorality, where appearing in a statute. Athanasaw v United States, 227 US 326, 57 L Ed 528.

debauchery and immoral purpose. As these terms are used in the White Slave Traffic Act, by association with the term prostitution, they have been restricted in meaning to immorality consisting of sexual debauchery, and as thus limited by judicial decisions the language of the statute furnishes a sufficiently definite description of the condemned conduct. United States v Lewis (CA7 Ind) 110 F2d 460.

debauchment. A debauching or being debauched; sometimes defined as seduction. Reutkemeier v Nolte, 179 Iowa 342, 161 NW 290.

de bene esse. Of present, temporary validity; for what it is worth; conditionally; provisionally; subject to a defeasance of condition subsequent.

See deposition de bene esse.

debent. They owe.

debenture. A voucher for an indebtedness; a corporate bond, often unsecured, in other instances secured by a pledge of income only.

See mortgage debentures.

debet. He owes; he ought.

debet esse finis litium. There ought to be an end of a litigation.

debet et detinet. He is indebted and he withholds. A writ of debet was said to be brought in the debet and detinet, or in the detinet only; that is it alleged that the defendant owed the debt and withheld it, or simply that he withheld or detained it. If the original creditor sued the original debtor, or sued the original debtor's heirs upon an obligation binding on them, the writ was brought in debet and detinet, but otherwise only in detinet, for the reason that a simple duty to pay a debt was purely personal and died with the debtor unless his heirs were bound. See 3 Bl Comm 155.

debet et solet. He ought and has been accustomed.

Debet quis juri subjacere ubi delinquit. A person ought to be subject to the law of the place where he commits an offense.

Debet sua cuique domus esse perfugium tutissimum. Each man's home should be a very safe refuge. "The law has a tender regard for the asylum of a private dwelling." Clason v Shotwell (NY) 12 Johns 31, 54.

de bien et de mal. For good and evil.

See de bono et malo.

de biens le mort. Of the goods of the deceased.

De Bigamis. An English statute passed in 1276, declaring what should be the force and effect of certain words in a deed.

Debile fundamentum, fallit opus. When the foundation is weak, the structure falls. "Justice does not allow one to profit by his own iniquity." Anderson & Co. v Stapel, 80 Mo App 115, 122.

[311]

debit. Verb: To charge. Noun: Whatever is charged as due or owing.

debita. Debts.

debita fundi. Debts which were secured by real property.

debita laicorum. Debts of the laity, as distinguished from debts of the clergy which were not recoverable in the civil courts.

Debita sequuntur personam debitoris. Debts follow the person of the debtor.

debito. See de debito.

debito justitiae. See ex debito justitiae.

debito naturali. See ex debito naturali.

debitor. One who owes; a debtor.

Debitor creditoris est debitor creditori creditoris. The debtor of the creditor is also the debtor of the creditor's creditor. "This process of attachment went not only against those in the actual possession of himself, his factors or agents, but also against those in the hands of his debtors, since the maxim taken from the Justinian code was 'Debitor creditoris,' " etc. Atkins v Fiber Disintegrating Co. (US) 18 Wall 272, 21 L Ed 841, 845.

debitores in solido. Joint debtors.

Debitor non praesumitur donare. A debtor is not presumed to make gifts.

Debitorum pactionibus, creditorum petitio nee minui potest. The rights of creditors to sue cannot be prejudiced by agreements between their debtors.

debitrix. A woman who owes money.

debitum. A debt.

debitum et contractus sunt nullius loci. Debt and contract are of no place,—expressing a rule of the common law that actions arising out of contract are transitory in character regardless of the place where the contract was executed or was to be performed. 56 Am J1st Ven § 19.

debitum fundi. A debt secured by real property.

debitum in presenti, solvendum in futuro. A present indebtedness to be paid at a future time. "Although the duties thus accrue to the government as a personal debt of the importer, upon the arrival of the goods at the proper port of entry, yet it is but a debitum in presenti, solvendum in future, according to the Revenue Collection Act." Meredith & Ellicott v United States (US) 13 Pet 486, 493, 10 L Ed 258, 262.

debitum sine brevi. He owes without declaration filed. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 156; an action of debt brought without a writ.

See judgment debitum sine brevi.

de bone memorie. Of good memory; of sound mind.

de bonis asportatis. For carrying away goods.

See trespass de bonis asportatis.

de bonis defuncti. From the goods of the deceased. See 2 Bl Comm 512.

de bonis ecclesiasticis. Of ecclesiastical goods,—the name of a species of writ of execution which was only used against ecclesiastics. The writ was given after the sheriff had made his return upon a common writ of execution stating that the defendant was a beneficed clerk, not having any lay fee. See 3 Bl Comm 418.

de bonis intestati. Out of or from the goods of the intestate.

See judgment de bonis intestati.

de bonis non. See de bonis non administratis.

de bonis non administratis. Of goods not administered.

See administration de bonis non; administrator de bonis non; administrator de bonis non cum testamento annexo.

de bonis non amovendis. For the nonremoval of goods,—a writ to prevent the removal of goods pending the court's decision on the defendant's writ of error.

de bonis propriis. Out of, from, or concerning the property of a person who is an executor or administrator, belonging to himself, personally.

de bonis testatoris. Out of, from, or concerning the property of the testator.

de bonis testatoris ac si. Out of or from the goods of the testator, if there are any.

de bono et main. For good and evil,—a formal expression of an appellee who was appealed for felony, when he rested his case with the jury; the name given to special writs of gaol delivery which it was anciently the course to issue for each particular prisoner. These writs being found inconvenient and oppressive, a general commission for all the prisoners was long ago established in their stead. See 4 Bl Comm 270.

de bono gestu. For or during good behavior.

debruser. To break; to break up.

debt. A common-law action for the recovery of a fixed and definite sum of money or for a sum of money which can be ascertained from fixed data by computation or is capable of being readily reduced to certainty. 1 Am J2d Actions § 20; that which is owing to a person under any form of obligation or promise, including obligations arising under contract, obligations imposed by law without contract, even judgments. Anno: 12 ALR2d 799. In the broad sense of the term, "debt" includes a claim for unliquidated damages. Anno: 69 L Ed 380.

In the ordinary sense, "debt" is not merely a promise to pay money but is an unconditional and legally enforceable obligation for the payment of money; it involves the relationship of debtor and creditor, or of borrower and lender. Evans v Kroh (Ky) 284 SW2d 329, 58 ALR2d 1446. In a narrower sense, a "debt" is an obligation arising out of contract, express or implied, which entitles the creditor unconditionally to receive from the debtor a sum of money which the debtor is under legal, equitable, or moral obligation to pay without regard to any future contingency. Evans v Kroh (Ky) 284 SW2d 329, 58 ALR2d 1446.

[312]

An action is one for a "debt," sufficient for the issuance of a writ of garnishment, where it is based on rescission of a contract because of fraud of the seller, and seeks recovery back of a specified sum paid under the contract, even though actual rescission of the contract before institution of the suit was prevented by absence of the defendant, and recovery of damages for fraud and deceit is requested in the alternative. Cleveland v San Antonio Bldg. & L. Asso. 148 Tex 211, 223 SW2d 226, 12 ALR2d 781.

The word "debt," appearing in a constitution or statute fixing a debt limit for municipalities, does not have a fixed legal signification but is used in different statutes and constitutions in senses varying from a very restricted to a very general signification. Its meaning, therefore, in any particular statute or constitution is to be determined by construction. 38 Am J1st Mun Corp § 410. Unless absolutely required, the words "debt" or "liability" in debt limitation provisions should not be so interpreted as to paralyze the legal functioning of municipal corporations which have reached or exceeded their existing debt limits. Moore v Springfield, 144 Me 54, 64 A2d 569, 16 ALR2d 502.

A sum of money which is payable is a debt, without regard to whether it be payable presently or at a future time. Hence, a debt may be a debt due or a debt not due. State ex rel. Rice v Wilkinson, 82 Mont 15, 264 P 679, 683.

debt by special contract. Same as debt by specialty.

debt by specialty. Also called a debt by special contract. It is a debt or contract whereby a sum of money becomes, or is acknowledged to be, due by deed or by an instrument under seal. Kerr v Lydecker, 51 Ohio St 240, 37 NE 267.

See specialty.

debt due. Literally, an obligation which is due, that is, mature. Within the meaning of a garnishment statute, a debt is "due" and therefore subject to a garnishment when there is an existing obligation to pay in the present or in the future. That is, the debt need not be presently payable, nor need it be liquidated. Calechman v Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. 120 Conn 265, 180 A 450, 100 ALR 302.

debtee. One to whom a debt is due; a creditor.

debt limit. See limitation of indebtedness.

debt not due. See debt due; maturity.

debt of another. See promise to pay the debt of another.

debt of record. A sum of money which appears to be due by the evidence of a court of record; a debt evidenced by the judgment of a court of record. 2 Bl Comm 465; a debt or contract created of record, such as a statute staple, or statute merchant, and not one whose previous existence is only admitted of record. Bowie v Henderson (US) 6 Wheat 514, 518, 5 L Ed 319, 320.

debt of specialty. Same as debt by specialty.

debtor. A person who owes another anything, or who is under obligation, arising from express agreement or implication of law, to render and pay a sum of money to another. Stanly v Ogden (Conn) 2 Root 258, 262; the person obligated by a debt.

See debt.

debtor and creditor adjustment. See balance.

debtor and creditor relation. The relationship which exists between two persons when one of them, the debtor, owes money to the other, the creditor. Kansas City, St. L. & C. R. Co. v Alton R. Co. (CA7 Ill) 124 F2d 780. The relationship of debtor and creditor arises in tort cases the moment the cause of action accrued, within the meaning of a statute relating to conveyances fraudulent as to "creditors," so as to entitle one securing a judgment against the grantor to have set aside a fraudulent conveyance executed pending the action. Hansen v Cramer, 39 Cal 2d 321, 245 P2d 1059, 30 ALR2d 1204.

debtor in possession. The term applied to a debtor who continues in possession while proceedings are had in the bankruptcy court to perfect a reorganization or arrangement whereby his financial affairs may be rehabilitated.

debtor relief. The term applied to provisions of the Bankruptcy Act for compositions, debt readjustments, and reorganizations.

Debtors' Act of 1869. An English statute which abolished imprisonment for debt.

debtor's oath. See poor debtor's oath.

debtor's summons. A summons which issued out of an English Bankruptcy court, giving notice to a debtor to pay his creditor or become subject to bankruptcy proceedings.

debt owing. A debt which is unpaid. Such a debt is a debt owing, whether it is past due, presently due or due at a future time. State ex rel. Rice v Wilkinson, 82 Mont 15, 264 P 679, 683.

debts. See debt; debts of decedent; debts of the United States.

debts of decedent. All claims of creditors enforceable in law or equity. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 276. As it appears in a will, the term means obligations of the decedent due or expected to become due in his lifetime. Nolte v Nolte, 247 Iowa 868, 76 NW2d 881, 56 ALR2d 854. Some authority has construed the term as including expenses of administration. Re Dickey, 87 Ohio App 255, 94 NE2d 223, 20 ALR2d 1220 (term appearing in a will). Some authority construes a widow's allowance as a "debt of the decedent." 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 324. But unanimity upon such construction is not to be expected.

debts of the United States. As these words are used in Art. 1, § 8 of the Constitution conferring upon Congress the power to pay debts of the United States, the debts are not limited to those which are evidenced by some written obligation, or to those which are otherwise of a strictly legal character. The term "debts" includes those debts or claims which rest upon a merely equitable or honorary obligation, and which would not be recoverable in a court of law if existing against an individual. The nation, speaking broadly, owes a "debt" to an individual when his claim grows out of general principles of right and justice,—when, in other words, it is based upon considerations of a moral or merely honorary nature, such as are binding upon the conscience or the honor of an individual, although the debt could gain no recognition in a court of law. The power of Congress extends at least as far as the recognition and payment of claims against the government which are thus founded. Cincinnati Soap

[313]

Co. v United States, 301 US 308, 81 L Ed 1122, 57 S Ct 764.

debut. He owed; he ought.

debut repare. He ought to repair.

de caetero. In future; henceforth; hereafter.

de calceto reparando. A writ for the repair of a causeway.

decatalogue. The ten commandments.

decanatus. A deanery; the jurisdiction of a dean.

decania. Same as decanatus.

decanus. A dean, an ecclesiastical officer who originally was probably appointed to superintend ten (decem) canons or prebendaries. See 1 Bl Comm 382.

de capitalibus dominis feodi. Of the chief lords of the fee. Ancient charters recited that the tenements granted should be so held. See 2 Bl Comm 299.

decapitation. Severing the head from the body, at one time a method of capital punishment in England.

de capite minutis. Of those persons who have suffered loss of citizenship.

de cartis reddendis. An old English writ for the recovery of deeds.

de catallis reddendis. An old English writ for the recovery of chattels.

de cautione admittenda. For admitting caution,—an old English writ to compel a bishop to admit an ecclesiastical prisoner to bail or caution.

decease. Death. As a verb, to die; to cease living; to depart this life.

deceased. A decedent; a dead person; a person who has died.

deceased person. A decedent; a person who has died. An absentee who has been absent for the statutory period and not heard from is neither a deceased person nor a decedent in the eyes of the law, although absentee administration has been had upon his estate. Estate of Kite, 194 Iowa 129, 187 NW 585, 24 ALR 850, 853.

See estate of deceased person; personal representatives.

Deceased Wife's Sister Bill. An English statute forbidding a widower's marriage with the sister of his deceased wife.

decedens. A deceased person.

decedent. See deceased person.

decedent's estate. See estate of deceased person.

deceit. A species of fraud; any false representation or contrivance whereby one person overreaches and misleads another to the hurt of the latter. Walter v State, 208 Ind 231, 195 NE 268, 98 ALR 607.

decent tales. A tales of ten. A writ of decem tales or octo tales (a tales of eight) was issued to the sheriff directing him to summon an additional number (eight or ten) of talesmen to make up a trial jury, when there was a deficiency. See 3 Bl Comm 364.

decemviri litibus judicandis. (Roman law.) Ten persons or ten judges who were appointed to aid the praetor in deciding questions of law.

decenna. A tithing; a decennary.

decennarius. One of the ten freeholders of a decennary or tithing.

See decennary.

decennary. A tithing, consisting of ten freeholders of the neighborhood and their families.

See frank pledges.

decennial census. The United States census which is regularly taken every 10 years. 14 Am J2d Census § 1.

decent burial. A relative term, varying with the financial and social standing of the deceased and his relatives, and often affected by the community and the rules of religious, social, or political organizations with which the deceased was affiliated, as a member or otherwise.

What would be regarded as proper and appropriate by one might be regarded as wholly inadequate and unsuitable by another, and no rule or definition can well be formulated, but by common consent, a determination of these matters is left exclusively to the relatives or friends of the deceased. Seaton v Commonwealth, 149 Ky 498, 149 SW 871.

de ceo se mettent en le pays. See et de ceo se mettent en le pays.

deceptione. See de deceptione.

Deceptis non decipientibus, jura subveniunt. The laws aid those who have been deceived, but not the deceivers.

decern. To decree.

de certificando. A writ which lay to compel the certification of a document.

de certiorando. A writ which lay to compel a sheriff to give his certificate of a fact.

decessus. Decease; death.

decet. It is fitting; it is proper; it is becoming.

de cetero. In future; hereafter; henceforth.

Decet tamen principem, servare leges, quibus ipse solutus est. Yet it becomes a prince to protect those laws from which he himself is exempt. This was a rule of the Roman law which "is at once laying down the principle of despotic power, and at the same time acknowledging its absurdity." See 1 Bl Comm 239.

de champertia. An old writ which issued for the enforcement of the statutes against champerty.

de char et de sank. Of flesh and blood.

de chimino. A writ to secure or enforce a right of way.

De Cibariis Utendis. Concerning things useful as food,—the title of a sumptuary law passed in the reign of Edward the Third.

decide. To determine an issue or issues. To "decide" includes the power and right to deliberate, to weigh the reasons for and against, to see which preponderate, and to be governed by that preponderance. Commonwealth v Anthes, 71 Mass (5 Gray) 185, 253.

[314]

decies tantum. Ten times as much,—an ancient writ or proceeding under which a juror who had been bribed was made to pay ten times the amount received by him for his vote.

decimae. Tenths; tithes; the tenth part of the annual profit of each clergyman's living. Originally these tithes went to the pope, but with the end of papal authority in the reign of Henry the Eighth, they were transferred to the king as the head of the church. See 1 Bl Comm 284.

Decimae debentur parochio. Tithes are due the parish parson.

Decimae de decimatis solvi non debent. Tithes are not due from that which is paid as tithes.

Decimae non debent solvi, ubi non est annua renovatio, et ex annuatis renovantibus simul semel. Tithes ought not be paid where there is not an annual renovation, and only once from annual renovations.

decimation. Selection by lot and the killing of every tenth one; the killing of a large part. A tithing.

deciner. Same as decennarius.

Decipi quam fallere est tutius. It is safer to be deceived than to mislead.

de circumstantibus. From the bystanders. Whenever the general panel was exhausted and additional jurors were required to complete a trial jury, they were formerly summoned (de circumstantibus) from the bystanders by the sheriff. 31 Am J Rev ed Jury § 91.

decision. The report of a conclusion reached, especially the conclusion of a court in the adjudication of a case or the conclusion reached in an arbitration. Pierre Water-Works Co. v Hughes County, 5 Dak 145, 163, 37 NW 733; an adjudication by the court without formulating the result in a judgment. Anno: 73 ALR2d 288-291; 20 Am J2d Cts § 70; sometimes synonymous with judgment, as where both words are used in a statute requiring a liberal construction. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm § 14; the application, by a court of competent jurisdiction, of the law to a state of facts proved, or admitted to be true, and a declaration of the consequences which follow. Le Blanc v Illinois Cent. Railroad Co. 73 Miss 463, 468, 19 So 211.

See opinion of court.

decision at chambers. See chambers decision.

decision on appeal. The conclusion of an appellate court; an affirmance, reversal, modification, dismissal, remanding for further proceedings, a direction to the trial court to enter a particular judgment, or the entry of a final judgment. 5 Am J2d A & E § 897.

decisis. See stare decisis.

decisive oath. See oath decisory.

decisory oath. See oath decisory.

decitizenize. To deprive of citizenship.

de clamia admittenda in itinere per attornatum. A writ to compel the justices to allow a person who was engaged in the service of the king to appear by attorney.

declarant. A person who makes a statement which may thereafter be offered as evidence.

declaration. The pleading, better known in modern practice as a complaint or petition, wherein the plaintiff sets forth his cause of action. 41 Am J1st Pl § 73; the listing by a person entering the United States of merchandise or other articles brought into the country by him. 21 Am J2d Cust D § 74; a written or oral statement, the significance of which in the law of evidence is connected with its hearsay character, that is, its effect as a statement of one other than a witness upon the stand. 29 Am J2d Ev § 597.

declaration against interest. Simply, as the term implies, a statement against the interest of the declarant. 29 Am J2d Ev § 617.

declaration of abandonment of homestead. A formal declaration of abandonment of a homestead, executed and acknowledged as required by statute and recorded in the office in which the homestead was recorded.

declaration of dividend. Action taken by the board of directors of a corporation which creates a dividend to be paid by the corporation and the right of a stockholder to demand and receive it. 19 Am J2d Corp § 839; involving the creation of a debt owing by the corporation to each stockholder and an appropriation of surplus to the payment of such debt. Maloney v Western Cooperage Co. (CA9 Or) 103 F2d 992.

declaration of homestead. A statement of the fact of claiming a homestead exemption describing the property selected and filed with the county recorder for the purpose of showing the world that the occupants claim their homestead exemption rights in the property. 26 Am J1st Home § 90.

Declaration of Independence. The formal public announcement by the Continental Congress on July 4, 1776, reciting the grievances of the American colonies against the British Government and declaring them to be free and independent states. While the statements in the document do not have the force of organic law, it is always safe to read the Constitution in the light of it. 16 Am J2d Const L§15.

declaration of intention. A declaration by an alien of his intention to become a citizen. The filing of such a declaration is permissive under the present law. United States v Menasche, 348 US 529, 99 L Ed 615, 75 S Ct 513. Under the former law, the filing of a declaration of intention was a condition precedent to the filing of a petition for naturalization. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 147.

Declaration of London. A statement by the powers assembled at the London Naval Conference of 1909, concerning the laws of naval warfare.

Declaration of Paris. An international declaration on important points of maritime law made at Paris in 1856.

declaration of rights. That part of a state constitution containing a formal declaration enumerating somewhat in detail the rights of the citizen which the state government must respect; "not a mere enunciation of abstract principles, but a solemn enactment by the people themselves, guarded by a sufficient sanction." McMasters v West Chester Normal School, 13 Pa Co 481, 487.

See bill of rights.

Declaration of Taking Act. A federal statute in respect of the taking of private property for public use upon a formal declaration of taking, the same to be followed by proceedings for the determination of the compensation to be paid for the property. United States v Miller, 317 US 369, 87 L Ed 336, 63 S Ct 276, 147 ALR 55, reh den 318 US 798, 87 L Ed 1162, 63 S Ct 557.

[315]

declaration of trust. A means whereby an owner of property may create a trust therein, consisting of his voluntary statement indicating or manifesting his intention to create a trust, which equity will regard as a transfer of title, notwithstanding there is no transfer of the subject matter, subject to the requirement of a writing where the nature of the property and the conditions of the transaction bring it within the statute of frauds. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 61; a judgment or decree declaring the existence of a trust. 54 Am J1st Trusts § 628.

declaration of uses. See declaring a use; declaration of trust.

declaration of war. A formal statement by a nation through its executive or legislative department announcing that a state of war exists with another nation. 56 Am J1st War § 5.

declarations. See declaration and terms beginning declaration.

declarative remedies. Those remedies in equity whose main and direct object is to declare, confirm, and establish the right, title, property, or estate of the plaintiff, whether it be legal or equitable. See 1 Pomeroy's Equity Jurisdiction § 112.

See declaratory judgment.

declaratory. Explanatory; affirmative; tending to remove doubt.

declaratory judgment. A judgment which declares conclusively the rights and duties, or the status, of the parties but involves no executory or coercive relief following as of course. Clem v Kaplan, 201 Ga 396, 40 SE2d 133; Brindley v Meara, 209 Ind 144, 198 NE 301, 101 ALR 682; Savage v Howell, 45 NM 527, 118 P2d 1113.

An action for a declaratory judgment is the appropriate remedy for the determination of a justiciable controversy where the plaintiff is in doubt as to his legal rights and wishes to avoid the hazard of taking steps in advance of the determination of such rights. 22 Am J2d Dec J § 1.

Declaratory Judgment Act. A federal statute, enacted in 1934, providing that in cases of actual controversy the courts of the United States shall have power, upon petition, declaration, complaint, or other appropriate pleadings, to declare rights and other legal relations of any interested party petitioning for such declaration whether or not further relief is or could be prayed, and that such declaration shall have the force and effect of a final judgment or decree and be reviewable as such. 28 USC §§ 2201, 2202; the Uniform Declaratory Judgments Act, first proposed in 1922, which has been adopted by the great majority of states, in some instances with slight modifications. See 9A Uniform Laws Annotated, Declaratory Judgments.

declaratory part of a statute. That part which declares or states the need or requirement which the statute was framed to fulfil, often introduced by the word "whereas." 50 Am J1st Stat § 152.

declaratory relief. See declaratory judgment; declaratory remedies.

declaratory statute. A statute which is declaratory or expressive of the common law, Gray v Bennett, 44 Mass (3 Metcalf) 522, 527; a statute, the purpose of which is to declare or settle the law where its correct interpretation has been doubtful or uncertain.

declare. In common parlance, to state; to assert; to publish; to utter; to announce; to announce clearly some opinion or resolution. Knecht v Mutual Life Ins. Co. 90 Pa 118, 121; in pleading, to allege or set forth in a declaration or other affirmative pleading.

declared dividend. See dividend declared.

declared value capital stock tax. A former federal excise tax. Helvering v Lerner Stores Corp. 314 US 463, 86 L Ed 343, 62 S Ct 341.

declared war. A status which continues during the actual hostilities and thereafter during the postwar period where no treaty of peace has been signed and, according to the political branch of the government, a state of war still exists. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 183.

declaring a use. Making a deed to show the object or use after a fine or recovery. If fines or recoveries were levied or suffered without any good consideration, and without any uses declared, they enured only to the use of him who levied or suffered them, unless their force and effect were directed by other deeds expressing particular uses. If such deeds were made before the fine or recovery, they were called deeds to lead the uses. If they were made subsequently, they were called deeds to declare the uses. See 2 Bl Comm 363.

See declaration of trust.

de claro die. By the light of day.

de clauso fracto. Of breach of close.

de clerico admittendo. For admitting the clerk. A writ of execution which was directed to the bishop or archbishop, not to the sheriff, requiring the admission and institution of the clerk presented by the patron who had recovered in a quare impedit, or assize of darrien presentment. See 3 Bl Comm 412.

de clerico capto per statutum mercatorium deliberando. A writ for the liberation of a clerk who was arrested or imprisoned for the violation of a statute merchant.

de clerico convicto commisso gaolae in defectu ordinarii deliberando. A writ for the liberation of a clergyman convicted and committed to jail in the absence of the ordinary.

De Clero. Concerning the clergy,—the title of the statute 25 Edward III, st. 3, c. 4 (1350), providing benefit of clergy for clerks convicted of any "treasons or felonies touching other persons than the king himself or his royal majesty. See 4 Bl Comm 373.

declination. A plea to the jurisdiction.

declinatory plea. A plea which was at one time interposed before trial or conviction setting up the defendant's right to benefit of clergy. But later, when a defendant was allowed his clergy even after conviction, the plea was not used, for the reason that the prisoner had a chance of acquittal without using it and could pray for benefit of clergy after conviction and before judgment. A plea of sanctuary was also called a declinatory plea. See 4 Bl Comm 333.

[316]

declinature. Same as declination.

decline. To refuse in polite terms, as to decline appointment to an office or nomination as a candidate for office.

declined. Refused.

decollatio. Same as decapitation.

decollation. Same as decapitation.

de combustione domorum. An appeal of felony charging the crime of arson.

de common droit. Of common right.

de commorientibus. Concerning those dying together.

de communi consilio super negotiis quibusdam arduis et urgentibus, regem, statum, et defensionem regni Angliae et ecclesiae Anglicanae concernentibus. Concerning the common council upon certain difficult and urgent affairs relating to the king, the state, the defense of the kingdom of England and of the English church. See 1 Bl Comm 159.

de communi dividendo. A writ for the partition of property held by tenants in common.

de comon droit. Same as de common droit.

decompose. To rot; to come apart by deterioration. Anno: 45 ALR2d 873 (food).

de computo. A writ of account, to compel a person to render an account.

de concilio curiae. By the advice of the court.

de conflictu legum. Of or concerning the conflict of laws.

De Conjunctim Feoffatis. Of or concerning joint feoffees,—the title of a statute passed in the reign of Edward the First.

de consanguineo. A writ of cosinage.

See cosinage.

de consilio. Of counsel.

de consilio curiae. By the advice of the court.

de conspiratione. A writ of conspiracy.

De Conspiratoribus. Concerning conspirators,—a famous statute of 33 Edw. I, often credited with originating the crime of conspiracy, but erroneously so, because the offense previously existed at common law. Commonwealth v Donoghue, 250 Ky 343, 63 SW2d 3, 89 ALR 819.

de consuetudine Angliae. By the custom of England. See 3 Bl Comm 95.

de consuetudinibus et servitiis. Of customs and services,—the name of a writ which lay for the lord against his tenant who withheld rents and services due the landlord by custom or tenure. See 3 Bl Comm 232.

de continuando assisam. A writ to continue the assize.

de contributione facienda. A writ for making contribution,—a writ to compel coparceners or cotenants to contribute for services rendered.

de contumace capiendo. A chancery writ for the arrest of a person who had committed a contempt.

de conventione. A writ of covenant.

de copia libelli deliberanda. A writ for the delivery of a copy of a libel.

Decoration Day. See Memorial Day.

de cornes et de bouche. With hue and cry.

de coronatore eligendo. For the election of a coroner,—a writ for the election of a coroner which was originally an elective office. After election, the writ was returned in chancery and was a judicial act of record. The office did not cease with the king's death, but continued until the coroner was removed.

de coronatore exonerando. For discharging a coroner,—a writ which lay for the removal of a coroner from his office for neglect of duty.

de corpore. Of the body.

de corpore comitatus. From the body of the county. Since the statute 24 George II, c. 18 (1750), juries have been summoned from the county at large, and not de vicineto, from the particular neighborhood, as formerly. See 3 Bl Comm 360.

de corpore suo. Of his body. 28 Am J2d Est § 49.

de coste. On the side; from the side; collateral.

decoy. Verb: To entice; to tempt; to lure or allure. Eberling v State, 136 Ind 117, 120. Noun: A person or a thing which allures. The use of the police decoy is not necessarily an entrapment. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 144.

decoy duck. A sham bidder at an auction sale. 7 Am J2d Auct § 26.

decoying. A possible method of kidnapping. 1 Am J2d Abduct § 13.

See decoy.

decoy letter. An imitation of a genuine letter, usually marked and directed to a fictitious person, placed in the mails by postal inspectors or officers of the Department of Justice for the purpose of detecting a post office employee who is suspected of appropriating letters or their contents; or a letter sent through the mails by such officers to a person suspected of sending prohibited matter through the mails, for the purpose of detecting him in such violation of the law. Montgomery v United States, 162 US 410, 40 L Ed 1020, 16 S Ct 797; Goode v United States, 159 US 663, 40 L Ed 297, 16 S Ct 136.

decrease. Diminution.

de credulitate. Upon belief, the form of oath made by compurgators in a wager of law. See 3 Bl Comm 343.

[317]

decree. The judgment of a court of chancery or equity. 27 Am J2d Eq § 245. A final determination of the rights of the parties in an action in equity.

In many states which have adopted code procedure or operate under a comprehensive set of rules of practice, the distinction between decrees and judgments are abolished for all practical purposes, relief in all actions and suits, whether of a legal or equitable character, being obtained by a judgment in a civil action. 30a am J Rev ed Judgm § 10.

While formerly there was a strict distinction between the terms "judgment" and "decree," the term "judgment" being applied to decisions in actions at law, and "decree" being applied to decisions in cases in equity, the modern tendency is to construe constitutional and statutory provisions dealing with appealability of "judgments" as also including "decrees." Jelm v Jelm, 155 Ohio St 226, 44 Ohio Ops 246, 98 NE2d 401, 22 ALR2d 1300.

decree absolvitor. A decree acquitting a defendant.

decree a mensa et thoro. See divorce a mensa et thoro.

decree a vinculo matrimonii. See divorce a vinculo matrimonii.

decree by consent. See consent decree.

decree condemnator. A decree in favor of a plaintiff.

decree dative. A decree which appointed as executor a person who was not nominated in the will.

decree in absence. A decree rendered against a party by reason of his default.

decree nisi. A provisional judgment to be made absolute on motion unless cause is shown against it, the distinguishing characteristic being that further order is required to complete the rendition of a final judgment. 30A Am J1st Judgm § 119. The interlocutory judgment or decree in a divorce action. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 427.

decree nunc pro tunc. See nunc pro tunc order.

decree of confirmation. A judgment or decree of court confirming a sale by an administrator, executor, guardian, committee, receiver or other officer of court, usually a prerequisite to the passing of title.

decree of distribution. See order for distribution.

decree of divorce. A judgment which grants a divorce, not to be distinguished from judgments rendered in cases other than divorce actions, in the absence of statutory provisions creating such distinction. Jelm v Jelm, 155 Ohio St 226, 98 NE2d 401, 22 ALR2d 1300.

See divorce.

decree of foreclosure. See foreclosure.

decree of interpleader. A decree in favor of the plaintiff in interpleader, discharging him and leaving the claimants interpleaded by him to litigate between themselves for the stake brought by him into court. 30 Am J Rev ed Interpl § 266.

decree of nullity. A judgment or decree annulling a marriage. 4 Am J2d Annul § 92.

decree pro confesso. A judgment or decree in a suit in equity taken against a defendant in default. 27 Am J2d Eq § 221.

The method in equity of taking a bill pro confesso is consonant with the rule and practice of the courts of law, where, if the defendant makes default, judgment is given for the plaintiff. To take a bill pro confesso is to order it to stand as if its statements were confessed to be true. Thompson v Wooster, 114 US 104, 111, 29 L Ed 104, 107, 5 S Ct 788.

decree quasi in rem. See proceeding quasi in rem. decreet. Same as decree.

decrementum maris. Reliction; the receding of the sea.

decrepit. Worn out by illness, age, or hard work. A person may be decrepit without being old. Hall v State, 16 Tex App 6.

decreta. Decrees, plural of decretum.

Decreta conciliorum non ligant reges nostros. The decrees of councils do not bind our kings.

Decretalia Gregorii Noni. The decretals of Pope Gregory the Ninth published about 1230. See 1 Bl Comm 82.

decretal order. An order in equity preliminary to the final decree or judgment in the case. See interlocutory decree.

decretals. Canonical opinions of the popes.

decretum. A decree; a law.

Decretum Gratiani. A compilation of canon law made by the Italian monk, Gratian, about 1151. See 1 Bl Comm 82.

decry. To discredit; to cry down. Blackstone said that the king of England might at any time decry, or cry down, any coin of the kingdom, and thus make it no longer current. See 1 Bl Comm 278.

de curia claudenda. A writ which lay at common law for the tenant of an adjoining close, whereby he could compel his neighbor to erect a fence and pay him damages, if he could show a prescriptive right to have the fence erected and maintained by the defendant. Rust v Low, 6 Mass (6 Tyng) 90, 94.

decurio. An ancient Roman city manager; a Roman commander of ten soldiers.

de cursu. Of course; as a matter of right.

de custode admittendo. A writ for the admission of a guardian.

de custode amovendo. A writ which lay for the removal of a guardian.

de custodia terrae et haeredis. For the custody of land and heir, writ whereby the guardian of a minor recovered possession and custody of the lands and person of his ward. See 3 Bl Comm 141.

de cy en avant. From the present henceforth.

dedbaba. Homicide; the killing of a human being.

de debito. A writ of debt.

de debitore in partes secando. For cutting a debtor into pieces. The ancient law of the twelve tables has been interpreted to mean that creditors might lawfully desiccate their debtor's body and divide the pieces proportionately to their claims. See 2 Bl Comm 472.

de deceptione. A writ of deceit.

de defaute de droit. For failure of right.

[318]

de deoneranda pro rata portionis. A writ which lay for a tenant whose goods had been distrained for rent to enforce contribution against others who were jointly liable with him.

de déshdrénce. See droit de d6sherence. dedi. I have given. An apt word of conveyance used in ancient deeds. 2 Bl Comm 310.

dedicate. To make a dedication.

See dedication.

dedication. The setting aside of land for a public use, in other words, the intentional appropriation or donation of land, or of an easement or interest therein, by its owner for some proper public use. Sioux City v Tott, 244 Iowa 1285, 60 NW2d 510.

dedication by deed. A common form of dedication, being a dedication made by a deed setting forth the exact purpose for which the land is conveyed, either with or without the use of the word "dedicate," and the recording of the instrument, together with a plat of the property. 23 Am J2d Ded § 22.

dedication by plat. A common method of dedicating property for streets, sidewalks, public parks, and squares by selling and conveying lots described with reference to a map or plat upon which areas are designated as used or to be used for streets, sidewalks, etc. 23 Am J2d Ded § 25. The making, signing and acknowledgment of a map or plat of land upon which areas appear as devoted to public use as streets, sidewalks, parks, and squares, at least if followed by a recording of the map or plat. 23 Am J2d Ded §§ 23, 24.

dedication of literary property. Publication without a copyright notice or without any step taken toward obtaining protection of the work by a copyright. Deward & Rich v Bristol Sav. & Loan Corp. (CA4 Va) 120 F2d 537.

dedication to public. Any dedication of property. The essence of dedication is that it shall be for the use of the public at large. 23 Am J2d Ded § 3.

dedicator. One who dedicates land to public use. Such a dedication must be made by the owner or with his consent. 23 Am J2d Ded § 8.

de die claro. By the light of day; by daylight.

de die in diem. From day to day.

dedi et concessi. I have given and granted. Words of conveyance used in ancient deeds.

dedimus. We have given.

dedimus et concessimus. We have given and granted.

dedimus potestatem. A commission directed to a judicial officer or an individual by name, authorizing him to take the deposition of the witness named therein. 23 Am J2d Dep § 22.

dedimus potestatem de attornno faciendo. We have given the power of receiving an attorney,—a king's writ authorizing a court to permit a party to appear by attorney.

dedit et concessit. He has given and granted.

dedititi. Subjects of Rome who had no rights or had surrendered unconditionally.

de diversis regulis juris antiqui. From divers rules of ancient law.

de dolo main. From evil or wicked design; of or concerning fraud.

de domo reparanda. An old writ to compel a person to repair a house because it was dangerous to the community.

De Donis. See Statute de Donis.

De Donis Conditionalibus. See Statute de Donis.

de dote assignanda. For the assignment of dower,—a writ under which the widow of a tenant in capite compelled the assignment of her dower.

de dote unde nihil habet. Of dower whereof she has nothing,—a writ under which a tenant was compelled to assign to a widow her dower. See 3 Bl Comm 183.

de droit. Of right.

deductible clause. A clause in an insurance policy, social security statute, or state plan for payment of medical or hospital expenses, expenses first incurred in a moderate amount are withdrawn from the protection of the policy or statute. A clause in an automobile collision policy whereby a stated sum, usually $50 or $100, is deductible from the amount for which the insurer would otherwise be liable. Under such a clause, a deduction for "each collision or upset" contemplates one deduction for each accident giving rise to a cause of action on the policy. 7 Am J2d Auto Ins § 192.

deductible losses. Losses resulting when a taxpayer's property is destroyed, damaged, confiscated, stolen, abandoned, taken by foreclosure, becomes entirely worthless or suffers other special losses, which a taxpayer is permitted to deduct in computing his net income for tax purposes providing the losses are not fully compensated for by insurance or otherwise. 34 Am J2d Fed Tax ¶ 6500.

deduction. Reasoning from a known principle; subtraction. An amount allowed a taxpayer in reduction of gross income to determine taxable income. An item to be deducted from the gross estate of a decedent in computing the taxable estate.

deduction for new. A deduction of one third from the whole amount of the cost of repairing a ship, in computing the amount to be paid the insured under a marine insurance policy. Orrok v Commonwealth Ins. Co. 38 Mass (21 Pick) 456, 469; 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1567.

deduction of a claim. The proof of a right by showing its origin either in law or in equity.

deed. Broadly defined, a writing sealed and delivered by the parties; in the modern sense, an instrument conveying real property or an interest therein. 23 Am J2d Deeds § 1.

See absolute deed; bargain and sale; quitclaim deed; release and quitclaim; release deed; warranty deed.

deed absolute. Same as absolute deed.

deeded. Conveyed by deed.

deed indented. Same as deed of indenture.

deed inter partes. A deed executed by grantor and grantee. Smith v Emery, 12 NJL 53, 60. A deed executed by the persons named therein as grantor and grantee, as distinguished from a deed executed by the agent or attorney of one of the parties or by the agent of each of them, acting in their behalf. Abbey v Chase, 60 Mass (6 Cush) 54.

[319]

deed of arrangement. An assignment for the benefit of creditors.

deed of bargain and sale. See deed of purchase.

deed of gift. A voluntary deed, as distinguished from a conveyance of property based upon a consideration. See McWillie v Van Vacter, 35 Miss 428.

deed of indenture. See indenture.

deed of partition. A deed to one joint tenant from the others or to one tenant in common from his cotenants, whereby an estate in severalty is created in the grantee.

deed of purchase. A bargain and sale deed.

See bargain and sale.

deed of quitclaim. See quitclaim deed.

deed of release. Formerly, the term seems to have been applied only to deeds conveying all the right, title, and interest of the grantor to a grantee who already had some estate in possession in the land released, but in modern usage it is not one of the essentials of a release deed that the grantee shall already have some right, title, or interest in the property released. The term is therefore now synonymous with the term quitclaim deed. Anno: 44 ALR 1269.

See quitclaim deed.

deed of separation. A separation agreement and conveyance between husband and wife whereby their respective properties are disposed of between themselves.

deed of trust. A conveyance creating a trust in real estate; a conveyance given as security for the performance of an obligation, which is generally regarded as containing the elements of a valid mortgage. 36 Am J1st Mtg § 16. A species of deed which is in the nature of a mortgage and is a conveyance in trust for the purpose of securing a debt, subject to a defeasance.

It differs from an assignment for creditors, which is more than a security for the payment of debts, being an absolute appropriation of money for their payment. Union Nat. Bank v Bank of Kansas City, 136 US 223, 232, 34 L Ed 341, 344, 10 S Ct 1013.

The difference between a deed of trust and a mortgage is essentially one of form, the former being executed in favor of a disinterested third person as trustee, while the latter is executed directly to the creditor to be secured.

deed poll. A deed made in one part and signed only by the grantor. It took its name from the fact that the edges were smooth and polled or shaven, as distinguished from a deed which was indented and in two parts. When such a deed is accepted by the grantee, it becomes the mutual act of the parties and therefore the grantee is bound by any covenants in it which are to be performed by him. Midland Railway Co. v Fisher, 125 Ind 19, 24 NE 756.

deed to declare uses. See declaring a use; leading a use.

deed to lead uses. See declaring a use.

deed to support. A deed made in consideration of the grantor's future support. 50 Am J1st Sup of Per § 2.

deed to timber land. A conveyance of forest land.

de ejectione custodiae. For the ejectment of a ward,—a writ which lay for a guardian to secure the person or land of his ward.

de ejectione firmae. The writ of ejectment of farm. This writ lay to recover restitution and damages for ouster of possession from a term for years of the tenant against the lessor, reversioner, remainder-man, or any stranger who had turned him out during the continuance of his term. See 3 Bl Comm 199.

deem. To judge; to determine or conclude upon consideration; to form a judgment.

The word "deem," as used in the federal statutes, providing that personal property of a serviceman shall not be "deemed" to have a situs for taxation in a state in which he is required to be present by virtue of his service, does not imply a rebuttable presumption so as to permit taxation by the state of temporary presence in some cases. Dameron v Brodhead, 345 US 322, 97 L Ed 1041, 73 S Ct 721, 32 ALR2d 612.

deem advisable. Words which confer a discretion upon a trustee. 33 Am J1st Life Est § 287.

deemster. One of the two chief justices of the Isle of Man.

deeply indebted. The financial state of a person whose property is inadequate or barely sufficient for the payment of his debts. Winchester v Charter, 102 Mass 272, 274.

deer-fald. An inclosed tract or park for deer, sometimes referred to as a deer-fold.

deer-fold. See deer-fald.

de escambio monetae. A writ to secure authority for drawing a bill of exchange.

de eschaeta. A writ for escheat, which lay for a lord to recover the land where the tenant died without heirs.

de esse in peregrinatione. Of being on a journey,—an excuse for not appearing at court.

de essendo quietum de thelonio. Of being quit of toll,—a writ to secure an exemption from payment of toll.

de essonio de malo lecti. A writ to examine into an excuse of being sick in bed for failing to appear at court.

de estoveriis habendis. A writ for having estovers. The writ lay for a wife divorced a mensa et thorn, whose husband refused to pay her estovers or alimony which the court had allowed her out of her husband's estate for her support. See 1 Bl Comm 441.

de estrepamento. A writ to restrain waste during the pendency of an action concerning the land.

de et super praemissis. Of and upon the premises.

de eve et de treve. From his grandfather and remote ancestors.

de excommunicato capiendo. An English chancery writ which issued to aid in carrying into effect a sentence of excommunication.

The writ has been said by some to be a writ grantable ex debito justitiae, and by others ex gratia. Smith v Nelson, 18 Vt 511, 555.

de excommunicato deliberando. A writ which issued out of chancery to release a prisoner from the county jail after the bishop had certified the prisoner's reconciliation with the church, following his arrest and imprisonment under a writ de excommunicato capiendo. See 3 Bl Comm 102.

[320]

de excommunicato recapiendo. A writ for the retaking of a person who had been excommunicated from the church and who had failed to comply with the conditions of his reconciliation with the church after having been released from imprisonment.

de executione facienda in withernam. A writ of execution in withernam; that is in retaliation or by way of reprisal.

de executione judicii. A writ ordering the sheriff to execute a judgment; a writ of execution.

de exemplificatione. A writ for the exemplification of an original document.

See exemplification.

de exitibus terrae. From the issues or profits of the land.

de exoneratione sectae. For exemption from suit,—a writ for the exemption of a ward of the king from being sued.

de expensis civium et burgensium. A writ for the levy of the expenses of citizens and burgesses of parliament.

defacing brand. The obliteration of the brand on an animal. 4 Am J2d Am § 8.

de facto. In fact, as distinguished from "de jure," by right.

de facto annexation. See annexation de facto.

de facto blockade. A blockade, which may be established by a naval officer acting upon his own discretion or under direction of superiors, without governmental notification, as an adjunct to naval operations, merely by giving notice on the spot to ships coming from a distance. 56 Am J1st War § 172.

de facto contract of sale. A contract of sale which purports to pass the property from the owner to another person. Farmers & Merchants' Nat. Bank v Logan, 74 NY 568, 575.

de facto corporate officer. An officer of a corporation in possession of, and exercising the powers of, the office under the claim and color of an election or appointment, although he is not an officer de jure and may be removed by proper proceedings. 19 Am J2d Corp § 1100.

de facto corporation. A corporation in fact, an apparent corporate organization, asserted to be a corporation by its members, and actually acting as such, but lacking the creative fiat of the law—an organization with color of law, exercising corporate rights and franchises, the right of which to corporate functions and attributes is complete as against all the world, except the sovereign. 18 Am J2d Corp § 49.

See de facto director.

de facto county seat. A place occupied and recognized as the county seat under color and authority of law; that is, under color of its having been selected and established as such county seat in the mode provided by law. Watts v State, 22 Tex App 572, 578.

de facto court. A paradoxical expression, since the power to create courts is an attribute of sovereignty that can only be exercised by constitutional or statutory provisions. 20 Am J2d Cts § 19.

A de facto court is a competent court, or a "legally constituted court," because its judgments and proceedings are not open to collateral attack. This, of course, does not apply to a court created without color of authority, or to a mere usurper. State ex rel. Bales v Bailey, 106 Minn 138, 118 NW 676.

de facto custody. The custody by a divorced parent of a child, where custody has not been granted by the court to such parent, but he or she has assumed custody because of the abandonment of the child by the parent awarded custody or by the relinquishment of custody of the child by the other parent. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 872.

de facto director. A person who usurps the office of a member of a board of directors of a corporation, and exercises the functions of a member of the board, under color of an election or appointment in itself not legal. Hulings v Hulings Lumber Co. 38 W Va 351, 361, 18 SE 620.

de facto dissolution. That dissolution of a corporation which takes place, in substance and in fact, in the case of corporations organized for pecuniary gain, when the corporation, by reason of insolvency or for other reason, suspends all its operations and goes into liquidation. Youree v Home Town Mut. Ins. Co. 180 Mo 153, 164, 79 SW 175.

de facto government. A new government which exercises undisputed sway over the entire country, the former established government having been nullified by successful rebellion or having lost the support of the people.

A de facto government arises where the established government has been subverted by rebellion, so that the new government exercises undisputed sway for the time being over the entire country, or where the people of any portion of a country subject to the same government throw off their allegiance to that government and establish one of their own, and show not only that they have established a government, but also their ability to maintain it. 30 Am J Rev ed Internat L § 12.

de facto grand juror. A person who sits on a grand jury and acts under color of law in joining in the return of an indictment, although subject to removal upon direct attack by reason of a legal impediment, such as having once refused to qualify for such grand jury and having paid a fine imposed for such refusal. 24 Am J1st Grand J § 23.

de facto grand jury. A grand jury sitting under color of law and recognized by the court as lawful, although subject to a direct attack against the exercise of functions by it by reason of a legal impediment, as where it was impaneled for a term of court that has terminated and is holding over into the next succeeding term. 24 Am J1st Grand J§6.

de facto guardian. One who intercedes to assume the management of the person and property of an infant left unprotected by the death of its parents, without waiting for a formal appointment as guardian, although so related to the infant as to be entitled to appointment. Maish v Valenzuela, 71 Ariz 426, 229 P2d 248, 25 ALR2d 747.

[321]

de facto judge. One who exercises the duties of the judicial office under color of an appointment or election thereto; one who exercises such duties, first, without a known appointment or election, but under such circumstances of reputation or acquiescence as are calculated to induce people, without inquiry, to submit to or invoke his action, supposing him to be the judge he assumed to be; or, second, under color of a known and valid appointment or election, but where the person appointed or elected judge has failed to conform to some precedent, requirement, or condition, such as to take an oath, give a bond, or the like; or, third, under color of a known election or appointment, void because the person appointed or elected judge was not eligible or because there was a want of power in the electing or appointing body or by reason of some defect or irregularity in its exercise, such ineligibility, want of power, or defect being unknown to the public; or, fourth, under color of an election or appointment by or pursuant to a public, unconstitutional law, before the same is adjudged to be unconstitutional. 30A Am J Rev ed Judges § 229.

de facto justice of the peace. An officer who has the possession of the office of justice of the peace and performs the duties of such office under color of right, without being actually qualified in law so to act, but is not in fact a mere usurper. 31 Am J Rev edJP§6.

de facto king. A usurper who has secured possession of the throne. Temporary allegiance is due such a king, for his administration of the government, and the temporary protection of the public. "Treasons committed against Henry the Sixth were punished under Edward the Fourth, though all the line of Lancaster had been previously declared usurpers by Act of Parliament." See 4 Bl Comm 77.

de facto municipal corporation. See municipal corporation de facto.

de facto officer. See de facto corporate officer; de facto public officer.

de facto official newspaper. A newspaper which has acted as an official newspaper without having been legally and regularly designated as such. 39 Am J1st Newsp § 12.

de facto public officer. Summarily defined as one who has the reputation of being the officer he assumes to be, and yet is not a good officer in point of law. Comprehensively defined as a person exercising the duties of the office (1) without a known appointment or election, but under such circumstances of reputation or acquiescence as were calculated to induce people, without inquiry, to submit to or invoke his action, supposing him to be the officer he assumed to be; (2) under color of a known and valid appointment or election, but where the officer had failed to conform to some precedent, requirement, or condition, as to take an oath, give a bond, or the like; (3) under color of a known election or appointment, void, because the one elected or appointed was not eligible, or because there was a want of power in the electing or appointing body, or by reason of some defector irregularity in its exercise, such ineligibility, want of power, or defect being unknown to the public; (4) under color of an election or appointment by or pursuant to a public, unconstitutional law, before the same is adjudged to be such. 43 Am J1st Pub Of § 471.

de facto road. A road actually used by the public. Locke v First Div. St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Co. 15 Minn 350.

de facto school district. A school district acting under color of law. 47 Am J1st Sch § 24.

de facto segregation. Racial imbalance in the public schools resulting, not from a qualification of color, but from the concentration of persons of one race in the area of school attendance. 15 Am J2d Civ R § 39.

de faire echelle. A clause commonly contained in French marine insurance policies which is the equivalent of a license to touch and trade at intermediate ports. American Insurance Co. v Griswold (NY) 14 Wend 399, 491.

defalcation. Including embezzlement and misappropriation but a broader term than either. Re Butts (DC NY) 120 F 966, 970. As used in the provision of the bankruptcy act excepting debts created by defalcation from the effect of a discharge, "defalcation" was intended to include defaults other than malversations implied by fraud, embezzlement and misappropriation, and does not necessarily denote moral deliction. First Citizens Bank v Parker, 225 NC 480, 35 SE 489, 163 ALR 1003.

Used in an unusual but proper sense, the term "defalcation" is synonymous with recoupment and counterclaim. 21 Am J2d Countcl § 12.

See without defalcation.

De Falso moneta. Of false money, the title of a statute passed in the reign of Edward the First, making the importation of certain foreign coins a capital offense.

defalta. Default.

defamation. Libel or slander. The publication of anything which is injurious to the good name or reputation of another person, or which tends to bring him into disrepute. Hollenbeck v Hall, 103 Iowa 214, 72 NW 518. Words which produce any perceptible injury to the reputation of another; a false publication likely to bring another in disrepute. Mosnat v Snyder, 105 Iowa 500, 504, 75 NW 356.

See defamatory; libel; malice; privileged communications; slander; unfair comment.

defamatory. Slanderous; libelous; injurious to reputation. Hollenbeck v Hall, 103 Iowa 214, 72 NW 518. A publication is "defamatory" when it tends to injure one's reputation in the community and to expose him to hatred, ridicule, and contempt. Muchnick v Post Publishing Co. 332 Mass 304, 125 NE2d 137, 51 ALR2d 547.

See defamation.

defamatory advertising. An advertisement which is libelous or disparaging of a product. 3 Am J2d Advertg § 2.

defamatory per se. See libelous per se; slanderous per se.

defamer. A person who has published a defamation concerning another.

See defamation; defamatory.

default. Fault; neglect; omission; the failure to perform a duty or obligation; the failure of a person to pay money when due or when lawfully demanded. Docking v National Surety Co. 122 Kan 235, 252 P 201. The failure of a party to an action to appear in the action where he is under duty to appear, as where a defendant has been served with timely and legal process or to plead in an action where he is required to plead. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm §§ 198 et seq.

[322]

In the law of mandamus a "default" is a failure of a public officer or a group of officers to perform a legal duty. Anno: 175 ALR 650.

See default judgment; wilful default.

default day. Same as appearance day,—the last day upon which a defendant may appear in order to avoid a default and the taking of a default judgment. Cruger v McCracken (Tex Civ App) 26 SW 282, 283. In an older day and under a practice which has been eliminated in most jurisdictions, a particular day of the term of court, usually the second day, was the "default day" for all actions commenced for the term irrespective of the time that had intervened between the service of process and the beginning of the term. Consequently "default day" was an occasion at which most of the lawyers of the county and many of the circuit outside the county gathered to take or prevent defaults. Liberality on the part of some judges, even at times in conflict with statute, permitted an appearance to be entered on behalf of a defendant when the case was called in the reading of the judge's calendar.

default final. See judgment by default final.

default inquiry. See judgment by default and inquiry.

default judgment. A judgment rendered upon an omission by the defendant to take a necessary step in the action within the proper time, for example, a failure to appear or a failure to plead, such omission being a default entitling the plaintiff to have judgment rendered in his favor, usually, but not invariably, without proof of his claim except as evidence is required to establish damages. 30A Am J Rev ed Judgm §§ 198 et seq.

defeasance. The clause of a mortgage intended to define the terms and conditions upon which the mortgage shall be satisfied, cease to be security for a debt, and become void. First Nat. Bank v Bain, 237 Ala 580, 188 So 64. More generally defined as a clause in a deed, lease, or other written instrument the legal effect of which is to defeat, cancel, or annul the instrument in whole or in part and thus wholly or partly to release the parties from obligations arising under it upon the happening or not happening of a condition subsequent. Escambia Land & Mfg. Co. v Ferry Pass Inspectors & Shippers Asso. 59 Fla 239, 52 So 715.

defeasible. Subject to defeasance.

See defeasance. defeasible fee. See determinable fee.

defeat. To make void; to annul; to overcome.

defect. An insufficiency; an absence of something necessary for completeness or perfection. Bolds v Budwig, 19 Neb 739, 741.

See hidden defect; physical defect.

defect in ways, works, or machinery. Imperfections which render the ways, works or machinery less fit for the use for which they were intended, subsisting in some inherent condition of a permanent nature; some weakness of construction with reference to the proposed uses; some inadaptation to its purposes; some break or misplacement of the parts, or absence of some part;

some innate abnormal quality of the thing which renders its use dangerous; some obstacle in the way of use or obstruction to use which is part of the thing itself, or of the condition of the thing itself. Hubbard v Central of Georgia Railway Co. 131 Ga 658, 63 SE 19.

defective. Having defect or flaw of any kind; imperfect; incomplete; lacking; faulty.

The word is not the antonym of the word efficient and yet there are cases in which it has been held to be synonymous with inefficient. Thayer v Denver & R. G. R. Co. 25 NM 559, 185 Y 542.

See mental defect; physical defect.

defective highway. A highway which is not in such physical condition as to render it reasonably safe for travel by one exercising ordinary care, due to inadequacy of original construction or repairs, subsequent deterioration, obstacles in the way, structures extending or hanging above the way, even wires stretched across the way. 25 Am J1st High § 476.

defective or broken fixtures. An ordinance prohibiting the installation of "defective or broken plumbing fixtures" is invalid inasmuch as its ambiguous language is subject to application to defects not impairing the operating efficiency of the fixtures and therefore not endangering the public health. Thrift Hardware & Supply Co. v Phoenix, 71 Ariz 21, 222 P2d 994, 22 ALR2d 810.

defective record. A record of an instrument so defective for want of index or inaccuracy in copying that constructive notice of the instrument is not imputed to a third person. 45 Am J1st Reeds § 113.

defective street. Same as defective highway.

defective title to instrument. The title of a person negotiating a negotiable instrument is defective when he obtained the instrument, or any signature thereto, by fraud, duress, force, fear, or for other unlawful means, or for an illegal consideration, or when he negotiates it in breach of faith or under such circumstances as to amount to a fraud. Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law § 55; Vincennes Sav. & Loan ASSO. v Robinson, 107 Ind App 558, 23 NE2d 431, 24 NE2d 558.

defective title to real estate. A title which is not marketable.

See marketable title.

defect of form or substance. If the right of the party pleading sufficiently appears to the court, although the pleading does not conform to the established method of procedure, the pleading is said to be defective in matter of form. But if the right does not sufficiently appear to the court, the pleading is defective in matter of substance. Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway Co. v Kurtz, 10Ind App 60, 75, 37 NE 303.

defect of heirs. The want of inheritable blood which, upon the death of the tenant, was one of the causes of escheat under feudal tenure. See 2 Bl Comm 245.

defect of parties. A matter of too few, not too many. The failure to join as plaintiffs or defendants persons whose presence in the action is necessary to the determination of the action. Baird v Meyer, 55 ND 930, 215 NW 542, 56 ALR 175.

defect of substance. See defect of form or substance.

defectu juris. See ex defectu juris.

defectum. A defect; an insufficiency.

defectu natalium. See ex defectu natalium.

defectu sanguinis. See ex defectu sanguinis.

defectus sanguinis. The absence of blood-relationship; the lack or failure of heirs capable of inheriting.

[323]

defend. To oppose an attack; to oppose force by force; to oppose a claim or an action; to plead in defense of an action; to contest an action suit or proceeding; to deny. To fence in and shut against common use; as the banks of a river are said to be defended when they are thus closed to the public as a place to fish. Arnold v Mundy (NJ) 1 Halsted 1.

defendant. The person against whom an action or proceeding is brought. The respondent in an action in admiralty. 2 Am J2d Adm § 142. Any natural or artificial person who is sued or who is joined with another party or other parties who are sued. 39 Am J1st Parties § 23.

A party who appears in an action as an intervener, who prays to be made a party defendant, and whose prayer is allowed by the court, is a party defendant in the action. Real Estate Loan Co. v Brown (DC Ga) 23 F2d 331.

See respondent.

defendant in error. An appellee; a person in whose favor a judgment was rendered and who is named by the appellant or plaintiff in error as a party to an appeal or error proceeding. 4 Am J2d A & E § 278.

defendemus. We will defend,—a formal word used in covenants of warranty.

defendendo. See homicide se defendendo.

defender. A defendant in an action, particularly in Scotland; a champion.

See public defender.

defendere. To defend; to deny.

defendere se per corpus suum. To defend himself with his body,—to wage battle.

defendere se unica manu. To defend himself with one hand, probably by raising it to make oath; to wage his law.

See compurgation.

defender of the faith. One of the several titles of the King or Queen of England.

defendit vim et injuriam. He defends or denies the force and injury.

defendour. A defender; a champion.

defendre. To defend; to deny.

defendress. A female defender.

defeneration. Lending of money at a usurious rate of interest defensa. An inclosure; a place which is fenced; a park.

defense. Protection against attack; a matter pleaded by a defendant in an action either to delay the action without destroying the cause or right of action or to defeat the action for all time. 41 Am J1st Pl § 115.

See national defense; plea; self-defense.

defense au fond en droit. A denial of the foundation of the (plaintiff's) right,—a denial that the plaintiff has a cause of action,—a general demurrer.

defense au fond en fait. A denial of the foundation of the (plaintiff's) facts,—a general denial.

Defense Bases Compensation Act. A federal statute which, subject to certain exceptions, renders the workmen's compensation benefits of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act available to any employee who is injured while employed outside the United States under a public work contract or while doing work which is preparatory and ancillary thereto. Anno: 2 L Ed 1979.

defense counsel. A trial lawyer; a lawyer conducting or assisting in conducting the defense in a civil action or criminal prosecution; the counsel for the accused in a general or special court-martial.

Defense Department. An executive department of the United States government created by National Security Act Amendments of 1949, inclusive of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, and the Department of the Air Force, since reorganized by the Department of Defense Reorganization Act of 1958. 5 USC §§ 171 et seq.

defense en droit. Same as defense au fond en droit.

defense on the merits. See meritorious defense.

defensio. A defense; a prohibition.

defensive allegation. A kind of pleading in which a defendant in an ecclesiastical cause must propound any circumstances he had to offer in his defense. Thereupon the defendant was entitled to the plaintiff's sworn answer to this defensive allegation, and thence the parties proceeded with their proofs. See 3 Bl Comm 100.

defensive negative averments. See negating defenses.

defensor. A defendant; a guardian; a warrantor of title.

defensor civitatus. A Roman city officer who had charge of the public safety.

defensum. A place fenced in; a park; an inclosure.

de feodo. In fee.

deferment. Putting off to a future time; postponement of vesting or enjoyment of an estate; the action of a selective service draft board in postponing the call of a person within the draft to service in the armed service.

deferred dividend policy. A policy of life insurance wherein it is stipulated that the insured is not entitled to any part of the surplus or dividend, otherwise accruing upon the policy annually, until the expiration of a dividend period, which may be 5 years, 10 years, 15 years, even 20 years, depending upon the stipulation, and if he dies, and his policy shall be paid within the period, the dividends accumulated on his policy are lost and go to augment the dividend fund to be applied to other policies of the same class which survive the dividend period. Maddox v Mutual Life Ins. Co. 193 Ky 38, 234 SW 949, 22 ALR 1276. Benefiting survivors, as it does, the stipulation has a tontine element.

See tontine policy.

deficiency. A characteristic term under tax laws for an additional amount owing by a taxpayer. The amount by which the federal estate tax imposed exceeds the amount shown as the tax by the executor upon his return. United States v Kelley (DC Cal) 24 F2d 234, 236; the amount by which the federal income tax owing by a taxpayer exceeds the amount shown to be owing by the return filed by him. Moore v Cleveland Ry. Co. (CA6 Ohio) 108 F2d 656.

[324]

deficiency assessment. An assessment of an additional income tax to cover a deficiency in income revealed upon an audit of the return made by the taxpayer. 34 Am J2d Fed Tax ¶¶ 9042, 9125.

deficiency judgment. A personal judgment, rendered against any person liable for the mortgage debt, in the event of a deficiency on foreclosure, for the amount of such deficiency. 37 Am J1st Mtg § 858. There are judicial, as well as legislative restrictions upon the rendition of such judgments, some of the latter constituting prohibitions in effect. 37 Am J1st Mtg § 864.

deficiency on foreclosure. The amount remaining due the creditor after the foreclosure of a mortgage or other security. 37 Am J1st Mtg § 857.

Deficiente uno sanguine non potest esse haeres. Devoid of the same blood (as the alleged ancestor), he cannot be an heir (of that alleged ancestor).

De fide et officio judicis non recipitur quaestio sed de scientia, sive sit error juris, sive facti. The good faith and honesty of a judge are not questioned, but his knowledge, whether it be in error of law or fact, may be.

de fidei laesione. The form of oath made by the defendant in a wager of law. See 3 Bl Comm 343.

defile. To pollute; to corrupt the chastity; to debauch; to violate. State v Montgomery, 79 Iowa 737, 738, 45 NW 292.

See forcibly to defile.

de filio vet filia rapta vel abducta. A writ for damages for the ravishment or abduction of a son or daughter. See 3 Bl Comm 141.

define. To state the meaning; to describe with exactness. When spoken of space, the word means to set or establish its boundaries authoritatively. Redlands Foothill Groves v Jacobs (DC Cal) 30 F Supp 995.

de fine capiendo pro terris. Of taking a fine in lieu of the land,—a writ to secure the release of an attainted juror and his goods on his payment of a fine.

de fine force. Of pure necessity; of absolute necessity.

de fine non capiendo pro pulchre placitando. A writ to prevent the taking of a fine for beaupleader or ill pleading; that is, for not pleading fairly or aptly.

de fine pro redisseisina capiendo. A writ to secure tire release of a disseisor who had made a second disseisin of the same premises.

De Finibus Levatis. Of the fines levied, the title of a statute of the reign of Edward the First providing that the levy of every fine should be read in court.

definienda. To be declared.

definite and permanent source of supply of water. A term familiar in irrigation law, which simply means that a stream carries sufficient water at such intervals as to make irrigation from the stream practicable. 30 Am J Rev ed Irrig § 2.

definite failure of issue. A technical term of the law of estates in real property which applies where a precise time is fixed for the failure of issue, not in express terms, but inferable with reference to any particular time or event, as in the case of a devise to a designated person, but if he dies without lawful issue living at the time of his death, then over. McWilliams v Havelly, 214 Ky 320, 283 SW 103.

See die without issue.

definitive. Complete and accurate; final; conclusive; effecting a termination of a controversy or a litigation.

definitive sentence. The final judgment of an ecclesiastical court.

deflation. An economic condition wherein money acquires more value, with the consequence that prices are lowered; a condition which more than once in the history of the United States has been followed by a grievous economic depression.

deflected lights. Motor vehicle headlights, the beams of which are deflected downward so as to avoid casting a glare into the eyes of an approaching driver. 8 Am J2d Auto § 707.

defloration. Seduction; the deprivation of a woman's virginity.

deforce. After having lawfully entered and taken possession of land, to withhold it from the true owner or from any other person who has a right to the possession of it. See 3 Bl Comm 172.

See deforcement.

deforcement. An abatement, an intrusion, a disseisin, a discontinuance, or any other kind of wrong by which a person who has a right to the freehold is kept out of possession. Sec 3 Bl Comm 172; detention of dower from a widow. 25 Am J2d Dow § 1860.

deforceor. Same as deforciant.

deforcians. Same as deforciant.

deforciant. In levying a fine of lands, the person against whom the fictitious action is brought upon a supposed breach of covenant, is called the deforciant. See 3 Bl Comm 174. See also 2 Bl Comm 350.

deforciare. To deforce.

de forisfactura maritagii. A writ of forfeiture of marriage.

deformity. Any malformation of a person's body. As the word appears in an application for life insurance: an infirmity of a substantial character which in a material degree impairs the physical condition and health of the applicant, and increases the chance of death, sickness, or accident against which the insurance company is asked to issue a policy. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 749.

defossion. An ancient punishment for crime by burying the person alive.

De Frangentibus Prisonam. Concerning those who break prison,—a statute (1 Edw. II, 2) providing that no one should suffer life or limb for prison breach unless committed for a capital offense. See 4 Bl Comm 130.

defraud. To commit acts, omissions or concealments, which involve a breach of legal or equitable duty, trust, or confidence justly reposed, and are injurious to another, or by which an undue and unconscionable advantage is taken of another. Petrovitzky v Brigham, 14 Utah 472, 47 P 666. In other words, to defraud is to commit a fraud.

[325]

See fraud.

defraudacion. (Spanish.) The fraudulent evasion of payment of taxes.

defunct. Dead; a deceased person; a decedent.

de furto. Of larceny; an appeal of felony for larceny.

de futuro. In the future; for the future; hereafter.

degaster. To commit waste.

de gestu et fama. Of behavior and reputation,—a writ for the redress of an attack upon a person's conduct or reputation.

degradation. A state of disrepute; to the geologist, a process of erosion by the nibbling of a stream at its banks.

de gratia. By favor; by grace.

De gratia speciali certa scientia et mero motu, talis clausula non valet in his in quibus praesumitur principem esse ignorantem. The clauses "of special favor," "of certain knowledge" and "of mere motion" are worthless (in those royal grants) in respect to which the prince is presumed to be ignorant.

degree. Estate or rank in life; an abstract measure of importance or seriousness, as the degree of a crime; an award of rank in having completed a course of study; a distance, as shown on a chart, of 60 nautical miles. Steamboat Co. v Fessenden, 79 Me 140.

degree of care. A relative standard by which conduct is tested to determine whether it constitutes negligence. 38 Am J1st Negl § 29.

See due care; extraordinary care; great care; ordinary care; prudence; reasonable care; slight care; utmost care.

degree of crime. The grade of a crime according to the gravity of the offense and the culpability of the guilty person, considered, from the practical standpoint, in determining the punishment. 21 Am J2d CrimL§18.

degree of evidence. See degree of proof.

degree of proof. The measure of the evidence required in an action, suit, or proceeding, for the establishment of the truth of an allegation pleaded by verdict of the jury or the finding by the court in a trial to the court. In civil actions, the measure is ordinarily preponderance of the evidence. In criminal prosecutions, proof beyond a reasonable doubt is required to convict. 29 Am J2d Ev §§ 1163 et seq.

degrees of kinship. A classification necessitated where descent is to "next of kin" or "nearest of kin," degrees being determined by counting the generations upward from the intestate to the nearest common ancestor, then downward to the claimant, each generation representing one degree. Anno: 54 ALR2d 1012, § 1.

Such is the so-called civil-law method which prevails in most American jurisdictions. There is another method of computing degrees of kinship, known as the common-law or canon-law method. According to this method, degrees are determined by the number of generations from the nearest common ancestor to the intestate or to the claimant, taking the longer of the two lines where they are unequal. Anno: 54 ALR2d 1013, § 1[b].

degrees of negligence. The classes or grades of negligence into which it has been divided by statutes and judicial decisions, ranging from slight negligence to that which is gross, wilful, or wanton.

The majority of common-law authorities have disapproved the concept of dividing negligence according to degrees, but legislative action and even some judicial opinions have injected into the law of negligence the classification of negligence in cases involving certain acts and instrumentalities according to whether it is slight, simple, or gross or whether it amounts to wilful or wanton misconduct. 38 Am J1st Negl §43.

degrees of offenses. See degree of crime.

degrees of relationship. See degrees of kinship.

De grossis arboribus decimae non dabuntur sed de sylvia caedua decimae dabuntur. Tithes are not given from entire trees, but they are given from cut wood.

de haerede deliberando alteri qui habet custodiam terrae. A writ for the delivery of the heir to another person who has the custody of the land.

de haerede deliberando illi qui habet custodiam terrae. A writ to deliver the heir to the custodian of the land.

de haerede rapto et abducto. For seizing and abducting the heir,—a writ whereby a guardian recovered the custody of his female ward who had been abducted.

de haeretico comburendo. For burning a heretic,—a writ issuing only by special direction of the king for causing one convicted of heresy to be burned to death. See 4 Bl Comm 46.

de haut en bas. Of high and low.

deherison. Disinheritance.

de hoc ponit se super patriam. See et de hoc ponit se super patriam.

de homagio respectuando. A writ for the postponement of homage.

de homine capto in withernam. For taking a man in withernam,—a writ for taking, by way of reprisal or retaliation, a person who had himself taken a bondman out of the country.

de homine replegiando. The writ for trying title to a feudal slave or to restore a slave to his master. Williamson's Case, 26 Pa 9.

dehors. Outside of; disconnected with; unrelated to; extrinsic.

dehors the record. Outside the record; matters outside the transcript of evidence produced at a hearing by an administrative agency. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 445; matters outside the records of title to realty. 1 Am J2d Abstr T § 6.

[326]

Dei. See Dei gratia; iudicium Dei.

de identitate nominis. Of identical name,—a writ to cause the release of a person of the same name as that of the true defendant.

de idiota inquirendo. Of inquisition concerning an idiot; an ancient common-law writ for inquiring whether or not a man was an idiot. See 1 Bl Comm 303.

d'eignesse. See droit d'eignesse.

Del gratia. By the grace of God.

De Iis Qui ponendi Sunt in Assisis. Of those who are to be placed on the assizes,—the title of a statute of the reign of Edward the First.

Dei iudicium. The judgment of God. The ancient trial by ordeal was so called.

de incremento. Of increase; added.

de infirmitate. Of infirmity,—an essoin or excuse for failure to appear at court.

de ingressu. A writ of entry, which lay for a tenant who had been wrongfully, dispossessed of his land.

de injuria. An abbreviation of de injuria sua propria absque tali causa.

de injuria sua, absque residuo causae. By his own fault, without the rest of the alleged cause.

de injuria sua propria absque tali causa. By his own fault, without such cause; a formal common-law introduction for a defendant's plea in excuse.

de injuriis. Concerning personal injuries. See 3 Bl Comm 120.

de integro. Anew; over again.

de intrusione. A writ of intrusion to oust a person who entered unoccupied premises without color of right.

deists. Persons who entertain a religion which admits no divine revelation as its foundation. Hale v Everett, 53 NH 9.

deit. He owes; he is indebted.

dejacion. (Spanish.) An insolvent's surrender of his property to his creditors.

de jactura evitanda. For the sake of avoiding loss; the position of a defendant in an action who is seeking no affirmative relief but merely seeks to bar the plaintiff's recovery. Jones v Sevier, 11 Ky (1 Litt) 50.

dejeration. An oath.

De Judaeis. See Capitula de Judaeis.

De Judaismo. Of Judaism,—the title of a usury law of the reign of Edward the First.

de judicato solvendo. For the payment of the sum adjudged.

de judiciis. Of or concerning judicial proceedings.

de judicio sisti. For appearing in court.

de jure. By right; by lawful right; rightfully; complying with the law in all respects; valid in law.

de jure communi. At common law.

de jure corporation. A corporation which has been regularly created in compliance with all legal requirements, so that its right to exist as a corporation and exercise its franchise is invulnerable against attack by the state in quo warranto proceedings. 18 Am J2d Corp § 49.

De jure decimarum, originem ducens de jure patronatus, tunc cognitio spectat ad legem civilem, i.e., communem. As to the right of tithes, taking its origin from the right of the patron, then the civil law has jurisdiction of it, that is, the common law.

de jure director. A director of a corporation who has been duly elected or appointed in compliance with law and the charter and bylaws of the corporation. Hulings v Hulings Lumber Co. 38 W Va 351, 361, 18 SE 620.

de jure government. A government legally established and legally exercising its authority.

De jure judices, de facto juratores, respondent. The judges decide questions of law, the jurors, questions of fact.

de jure justice of the peace. An officer who has the lawful right or title to the office of justice of the peace, with or without the possession of the office. 31 Am J Rev ed J P § 6.

de jure king. A king by right, one who is the rightful heir of the crown. See 4 Bl Comm 77.

de jure officer. A public officer who is in all respects legally appointed and qualified to exercise the office. 43 Am J1st Pub O § 472; a person who has a lawful right to the office, but who has either been ousted from or has never actually taken possession of the office. Hamlin v Kassafer, 15 Or 456, 15 P 778.

De jure respondent judices, de facto juratores. The judges decide questions of law, the jurors, questions of fact. Piles v Bouldin (US) 11 Wheat 325, 330, 6 L Ed 486, 487.

de la plus belle. Of the fairest part,—a species of dower which was abolished along with the military tenures, of which it was a consequence. See 2 Bl Comm 132.

delate. To charge with crime; to accuse.

de latere. Collaterally.

delatio. An accusation; a charge of crime.

delator. An accuser; a spy; an informer.

delatura. A charge of accusation of crime; a reward for giving information concerning the commission of a crime.

delay. Verb: To obstruct movement; to detain; to put off to a time in the future; to postpone. Noun: An interference with performance; a detention.

See laches; postponement; unavoidable delay.

delay days. See lay-days.

delaying creditors. Building obstructions to hold creditors where they cannot obtain their lawful demands from assets of the debtor. 37 Am J2d Frd Conv §§ 5 et seq; interposing something unjustifiably, before creditors can realize what is due them out of the debtor's property. Petrovitzky v Brigham, 14 Utah 472 47 P 666.

[327]

delay rentals. Rentals charged on leased gas wells pending delay in production during drilling and development operations. United Fuel & Gas Co. v Railroad Com. 278 US 300, 73 L Ed 390, 49 S Ct 150.

del bien estre. Same as de bene esse.

del credere. A term of Italian origin signifying guaranty or warranty.

del credere agent. An agent who guarantees his principal against the default of those with whom contracts are made.

See del credere factor.

del credere commission. An additional compensation paid to a factor for undertaking, in case of a sale, to guaranty to his principal the payment of the debt due from the buyer. Duguid v Edwards (NY) 50 Barb 288, 296.

del credere factor. A factor who for an additional commission guaranties the solvency of the purchaser and his performance of the contract. Pocohontas Guano Co. v Smith, 122 Va 318, 94 SE 769.

delectus personae. A choice or selection of the person. Kingman v Spurr, 24 Mass (7 Pick) 235, 238. The doctrine of delectus personae applies to the selection of a natural person in whose integrity and confidence the donor of a power confides and has no application to a corporation which has been appointed as trustee. Adams v St. Clair, 185 Miss 416, 188 So 559.

delectus personarum. A selection or choice of persons.

See delectus personae.

delegare. To delegate.

delegate. Noun: A representative; an agent; a person who is substituted for another. Verb: To appoint; to depute; to relegate; to authorize.

delegated legislation. Rules or regulations made and promulgated by an administrative agency. 1 Am J2d Admin L § 93.

delegated power. Authority which has been delegated or bestowed upon a person or body by a superior or higher person or body.

delegates. Representatives; persons authorized to act for others, especially in political conventions and state or national conventions held by religious, fraternal, or social bodies.

See court of delegates.

delegatio. (Civil law.) A substitution of debtors.

delegation. The act of conferring authority upon another; the body of delegates or representatives from a particular state or political subdivision, e. g. the delegation from New York in Congress or in the National Convention of the Democratic Party. A novation; a substitution of debtors. Adams v Power, 48 Miss 450, 454.

See imperfect delegation.

delegation of authority. See delegation of power.

delegation of legislative power. An attempt by a legislature to amplicate its legislative power by delegating to another the power to enact a law, whether in form or effect, or to bestow upon another the power to determine the effectiveness of a specific act. 16 Am J2d Const L § 240. There is, of course, a sense of the term "delegation of legislative power," as to which there is no impropriety, that is, the delegation of power made to a legislature by a constitution. 16 Am J2d Const L § 211. It is also well settled that it is within the power of the legislature to delegate to a municipal corporation for municipal purposes, to be exercised within the municipal limits, the three most essential powers of the state, namely, the police power, the power of taxation, and the power of eminent domain. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 111.

delegation of powers. An essential in the creation of an agency. 3 Am J2d Agency § 2; the appointment of a subagent by an agent. 3 Am J2d Agency § 152; a vesting of authority in an administrative agency, as to which meticulous precision of language is neither expected nor required. Russell Motorcar Co. v United States, 261 US 514, 67 L Ed 778, 43 S Ct 428.

See delegation of legislative power.

Delegatus debitor est odiosus in lege. A substituted debtor is obnoxious to the law.

Delegatus non potest delegate. A representative cannot delegate his authority. Jamesville & Washington R. Co. v Fisher, 109 NC 1, 13 SE 698. The principle is that where personal trust or confidence is reposed in an agency of the government and especially where the exercise and application of the power is made subject to the judgment or discretion of the agency, the authority is purely personal and cannot be delegated to another unless there is a special power of substitution either expressly or necessarily implied. 2 Am J2d Admin L § 222. The maxim is not applicable to a general agent of an insurance company, since the business of such an agent, either in issuing policies or in soliciting insurance, is not of such a discretionary or personal nature that it cannot be delegated. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 148.

de leproso amovendo. A writ for the removal of a leper.

delete. To expunge; to erase; to blot out.

deletion. The obliteration, expunging, or crossing out of words or letters of an instrument, such as a will. 57 Am J1st Wills § 508.

Deliberandum est din quod statuendum est semel. That which is to be settled once and for all should be deliberated at length.

de libera piscaria. A writ of free fishery to enforce a person's exclusive right to fish.

deliberate. Verb: To consider with care; to plan beforehand; to premeditate. Adjective: By plan or design; considered action; avoiding hasty or ill-conceived acts.

By the use of the word "deliberate" in describing a crime, the idea is conveyed that the perpetrator weighs the motives for the act and its consequences, the nature of the crime, or other things connected with his intentions, with a view to a decision thereon; that he carefully considers all these, and that the act is not suddenly committed. State v Boyle, 28 Iowa 522, 524.

[328]

deliberate and premeditated. Connoting careful consideration and examination of the reasons for and against a choice or measure; some plan thought out before the commission of the act and a decision to act according to a plan. People v Bender, 27 Cal 2d 164, 163 P2d 8; People v Gonzales, 87 Cal App 2d 867, 198 P2d 81.

deliberately. Carefully, designedly, unhurriedly.

As used in defining murder, the word means in a cool state of the blood. It does not mean brooded over, considered, reflected upon for a week, a day, or an hour, but it means an intent to kill, executed by a party not under the influence of a violent passion suddenly aroused by some just or lawful cause of provocation to passion, but in the furtherance of a formed design to gratify a feeling of revenge or to accomplish some other unlawful act. State v Forsha, 190 Mo 296, 88 SW 505. See also Commonwealth v Tucker, 189 Mass 457, 76 NE 127.

deliberate speed in desegregation of schools. A concept enunciated by the United States Supreme Court several years ago after having declared that state laws requiring or permitting segregation of pupils in public schools, that is, denying Negro children admission to public schools attended by white children, were unconstitutional. Brown v Board of Education, 349 US 294, 99 L Ed 1083, 75 S Ct 753. The concept has never countenanced indefinite delay, although it was once recognized that a court properly might conclude that the relevant facts in a particular case justified school authorities in not attempting immediate nonsegregated admission of all qualified Negro children. Cooper v Aaron, 358 US 1, 20, 3 L Ed 2d 5, 19, 78 S Ct 1401. But much time has passed since the issue first arose, and it is to be said now that delays in the segregation of public school systems are no longer tolerable. Bradley v School Board of Education, 382 US 103, 15 L Ed 2d 187, 86 S Ct 224.

deliberate violation. An unexcused or wilful violation. 8 Am J2d Auto § 705.

deliberation. A careful and thoughtful consideration; slowness in action; thinking and reflecting, having volition to make a choice and refrain from doing the homicidal act. No particular period of time is essential to "deliberation" as an element of murder in the first degree. A very brief period will suffice, provided the formed intent to kill was consciously conceived in the mind of the slayer before the homicidal act was committed. 26 Am J1st Homi § 42.

See premeditation.

de libero passagio. A writ of free passage, which lay to enforce a right to pass over private water.

de libertate probanda. For proving freedom,—a writ whereby a villein might establish his status as a freeman.

de libertatibus allocandis. A writ to enforce certain liberties of burgesses and citizens.

Delicatus debitor est odiosus in lege. A luxurious debtor is detestable to the law.

de licentia transfretandi. A writ for leave to cross the sea.

delict. A tort; a wrong; a criminal offense; a misdemeanor.

delicti. See corpus delicti.

delicto. See ex delicto; flagrante delicto; in delicto.

delictum. A wrongful act; a tortious act; a criminal act; a misdemeanor. See 3 Bl Comm 117.

See actions ex delicto; ex delicto.

delictus. See delictum; locus delicti.

delimit. To limit; to mark with a boundary line.

delineate. To picture or describe by drawn lines, as by lines made on a map.

delinquency. A failure or omission of duty, a fault, a misdeed, an offense, a misdemeanor, a crime. People's Sav. Bank v Retail Merchants Mot. Fire Ins. Co. 146 Iowa 536, 123 NW 198.

See delinquent children.

delinquency proceeding. A proceeding in juvenile court, usually civil in nature for the purpose of placing a delinquent child under the control of the court; a proceeding in juvenile court for an adjudication of the status of a child in the nature of a guardianship imposed by the state as parents patriae to provide the care and guidance that under normal circumstances would be furnished by the child's parents. 31 Am J Rev ed Juv Ct § 53; within the meaning of the Uniform Insurers Liquidation Act, a proceeding for the rehabilitation of an insurance company in financial difficulties. Anno: 46 ALR2d 1186.

Delinquens per iram provocatus puniri debet mitius. A wrongdoer who has been provoked to anger ought to be punished less severely.

delinquent. Noun: A person failing in duty; a person offending by neglect of duty. Peoples Sav. Bank v Retail Merchants' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. 146 Iowa 536, 123 NW 198; a person whose acts do not measure up to the proper standard of conduct expected of civilized people. Adjective: Guilty of improper conduct; behind in payment of an obligation.

See delinquent children.

delinquent children. A generic term. Children who have committed offenses against the law, or who are found to be falling into bad habits, or who knowingly associate with vicious or immoral persons, or who are growing up in idleness and crime. 31 Am J Rev ed Juv Ct § 36; children who have committed acts which but for the ages of the perpetrators would be criminal offenses punishable as such. State v Dubray, 121 Kan 886, 250 P 316.

As used in juvenile laws the terms "incurability" and "delinquency" are two different offenses. The former has in it the element of continuous disobedience of parental commands, viciousness, and general bad conduct. The latter may be, and often is, a single offense-violation of any law of the state or any city or borough ordinance. Anno: 45 ALR 1533, s. 85 ALR 1099.

delirious. See delirium.

delirium. A state of mind in which a person is wholly unconscious of surrounding objects or conceives them to be different from what they really are; a state of mind in which the mind acts without being directed by the power of volition which is partially or entirely suspended. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins Per § 3.

delirium febrile. A fever accompanied with delirium.

delirium tremens. A mental disease brought on by the use of intoxicants, 21 Am J2d Crim L § 44; a form of insanity resulting from the collapse of the human system as a result of habitual drunkenness, immediately produced by sudden abstinence from liquor. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins Per § 3; known as "mania a potu" in the extreme stage where the victim is virtually a madman, deprived of all reason for intermittent periods during which he sustains attacks or so-called fits. State v Reidell, 14 Del (9 Houst) 470, 473, 14 A 550.

[329]

delito. (Spanish.) A crime.

deliver. To hand over; to surrender possession to another. Marcus v Pennsylvania Trust Co. (CA3 Pa) 23 F2d 303; to give forth, as a speech; to assist in the birth of a child.

deliverance. A delivery; the verdict of a jury.

delivered. Delivery completed.

A child is delivered only when it is born alive. State v Joiner, 11 NC (4 Hawks) 350, 353. The fact that a bastard child was born dead before institution of a proceeding to recover the expenses incident to its mother's confinement precludes the maintenance of the proceeding where the statute which authorizes it contemplates that the child be born alive in providing for the making of a provision for the child's support, and that it may be instituted by a woman if "pregnant with child which, if born alive, may be a bastard child" and that "before proceeding to trial the complainant must file a declaration stating that she has been delivered of a bastard child begotten by the accused." Inman v Willinski, 144 Me 116, 65 A2d 1, 7 ALR2d 1390.

delivering carrier. The carrier performing the line-haul service nearest to a point of destination, not a carrier performing merely a switching service at the point of destination. 49 USC § 20 (11).

delivery. A handing over; the surrender of possession to another; a release from imprisonment.

As used in a statute against fraudulent conveyances, the word implies the surrender of the control of the property by the vendor and the assumption of possession by the vendee, and mere words will not constitute such a delivery. O. W. Perry CO. v Mullen, 81 Mont 482, 263 P 976, 56 ALR 514.

For some purposes, a delivery is accomplished by nothing more than making a thing available to another, placing it within his reach, notwithstanding there is no actual handing of the thing from one person to another. Ross v Pan American Airways, 299 NY 88, 85 NE2d 880, 13 ALR2d 319 (airline ticket).

See claim and delivery; conditional delivery; constructive delivery; jail delivery; writ of delivery; also terms and expressions beginning delivery which follow.

delivery as an escrow. A delivery on some collateral condition, which must be consistent with the contract, on the happening of which condition alone the contract is to take effect. 28 Am J2d Escr § 1.

delivery bond. A bond, otherwise known as a forthcoming bond or a redelivery bond, given by the defendant in an action aided by attachment, in obtaining the release of the attached property from the custody of the officer who seized it under the writ of attachment, although not from the lien of the attachment, the condition of the bond being that if judgment in the action is rendered against the defendant, the property shall be forthcoming to satisfy the execution on such judgment, otherwise that the sureties will be bound to the extent of the value of the property, in some instances, and to the amount of the indebtedness in other instances. 6 Am J2d Attach § 523; a bond containing comparable conditions given in obtaining the release of property seized under a writ of execution. 30 Am J2d Exec § 277; a bond furnished by the defendant in a replevin action in having the property replevied returned to him. 46 Am J1st Replev § 86.

delivery by carrier. The surrender of the goods by the carrier to the right person, in a proper manner, and at a proper place and time. 13 Am J2d Car § 406.

delivery of bastard child. The birth of a child to parents not husband and wife; for some purposes the birth of a live child. Inman v Willinski, 144 Me 116, 65 A2d 1, 7 ALR2d 1390.

delivery of bill or note. A voluntary transfer of possession of the instrument. 15 Am J2d Com C § 7.

delivery of deed. A condition of the operative effect of the instrument. A transfer of the instrument from the grantor to the grantee or his agent or to a third person for the grantee's use, in such manner as to deprive the grantor of the right to recall it at his option, and with intent to convey title. Marshall v Marshall, 140 Cal App 2d 475, 259 P2d 131. A transfer of possession, either actual or constructive, from one person to another. Uniform Negotiable Instruments Act § 191.

delivery of gift. An actual, symbolical, or constructive transfer of possession of the subject matter to the donee personally or to some person acting as his agent, trustee, guardian, or bailee, the operation of physically handing over giving way at times, as where the subject matter is bulky, to such acts and declarations as the situation reasonably permits, it being essential, however, whatever the act employed may be, that it manifest the donor's intention to divest himself of title and possession. 24 Am J1st Gifts §§ 24 et seq.

To make a valid gift of corporate stock by assignment on a separate document, the Uniform Stock Transfer Act requires delivery of both the separate document and the stock certificate. Lyons v Freshman, 124 Mont 485, 226 P2d 775, 23 ALR2d 1165.

delivery of insurance policy. An insurance policy becomes effective as by the delivery of the instrument where it appears that there is an intention to part with the control of the instrument and to place it in the possession or control of the insured, or some person acting for him, and an act evincing such a purpose. 29 Am J Rev ed Ins § 216. Mailing or otherwise delivering a policy to the agent of the insurer with unconditional instructions to deliver the instrument to the insured is generally deemed sufficient to constitute a delivery of the policy. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v Otto, 153 Md 179, 138 A 16, 53 ALR 487.

delivery of ship. As with other unwieldy property, the delivery may be purely constructive, and may be effected by delivery of the vessel's documents of title, which supplies not merely a symbol, but the mode of enabling the buyer to take actual possession as soon as circumstances permit. 48 Am J1st Ship § 67. The transfer of a ship at sea by the delivery of a bona fide bill of sale, mortgage, or assignment in trust is valid, even as against the vendor's creditors, although possession is not given at once, provided the vendee takes prompt possession when the property comes within his reach. 48 Am J1st Ship § 69.

[330]

delivery of warehouse receipt. The voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another. Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act § 58.

delivery order. An order drawn by the owner of goods on the bailee of them, directing their delivery to a third party.

delivery service. The delivery of small packages by messenger or delivery boy, which, under some circumstances, puts the proprietor in a classification of a common carrier. Portland v Western Union Tel. Co. 75 Or 37, 146 P 148.

delivery table. The table upon which a woman is placed for delivery in giving birth. Anno: 37 ALR2d 1291.

delivery to carrier. The placing of a shipment in the exclusive possession, custody, and control of the carrier for the purpose of immediate transportation, and an acceptance by the carrier. 13 Am J2d Car § 256. It is a well-established general rule that when goods are to be shipped to the buyer, a delivery by the seller to a carrier designated by the buyer is a delivery to the buyer, on the theory that the carrier is made the agent of the buyer to accept the delivery. 46 Am J1st Sales § 172.

de lucro captando. For the sake of taking a profit. The position of a plaintiff in an action who seeks to gain a profit by maintaining his suit. Jones v Sevier, 11 Ky (1 Litt) 50.

de lunatico inquirendo. A writ for an inquisition of lunacy. Hart v Deamer (NY) 6 Wend 497, 498.

See commission of lunacy.

delusion. A belief based upon a concept for which there is no reasonable foundation and which is ordinarily incredible to a sane person. Kimberly's Appeal, 68 Conn 428, 36 A 847. An extreme misconception; partial insanity, sometimes called delusional insanity. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 41.

See insane delusion.

delusional insanity. See delusion; insane delusion; paranoia.

dem. An abbreviation of demise.

See ex dem.

Dem. Abbreviation of Democrat, also of Democratic.

de magna assisa eligenda. Of choosing the grand assize; a writ for choosing the grand assize. See 3 Bl Comm 351.

demain. To-morrow. Also, same as demesne.

De majori et minori non variant jura. Whether the matter is great or small, the laws do not vary.

de mal de lit. See essoin de mal de lit.

de mal de venue. See essoin de mal de venue.

De Malefactoribus in Parcibus. Of wrongdoers in the forests,—the title of the statute of 21 Edward I, st. 2 (1293). Under this statute if trespassers in forests, parks, or warrens refused to surrender themselves to the keepers, the keepers might kill them. See 4 Bl Comm 180.

de malo. Of sickness.

de malo lecti. See essoin de malo lecti.

de malo veniendi. See essoin de malo veniendi.

demand. A claim; a legal obligation; a request to perform an alleged obligation; a written statement of a claim, Brennan v Swasey, 16 Cal 141; a requisition or request under a claim of right, Brackenridge v Texas, 27 Tex App 513, 11 SW 630; the assertion of a right to recover a sum of money from the person upon whom the demand is made. Mack v Hugger Bros. Constr. Co. 153 Tenn 260, 283 SW 448, 46 ALR 389, 392.

See claim; cross demand; payable on demand; reciprocal demands; statement of demand.

demanda. A demand.

demand against a decedent. Any debt or claim enforceable in law or equity against a person since deceased which must be presented to his executor or administrator in order to obtain allowance and payment. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 276.

demandant. A person who makes a demand; a plaintiff.

demand certificate of deposit. See certificate of deposit.

demand deposit. A bank deposit payable on demand or within a specified number of days after demand. 10 Am J2d Banks § 356.

demand for change of venue. A formal application for change of venue, presenting the ground upon which a change is demanded, and supported by affidavit. 56 Am J1st Ven § 60.

demand for exemption. See notice of exemption.

demand for jury trial. A prerequisite in many jurisdictions to a right to a jury trial. The demand is made by filing a formal demand or notice that a jury trial is desired, even by merely placing the case upon the list or calendar of jury cases. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 40.

demand for rent on the due date. The ancient common-law rule, as reported by Coke, was "that the landlord must ask for the precise sum due, at a convenient time before sunset upon the day when the rent is due, upon the land, at the most notorious place of it, though there be no person on the land to pay." The details must be strictly observed by the landlord; thus, Coke says "he cannot demand it at the back door of the house but at the fore door." In rejecting the rule as absurdly impractical in modern times, Circuit Judge Frank has delved deeply into a well of medieval lore, concluding convincingly that our ancestors were the slaves of form and that judicial discretion is a product of a later and better world. United States v Forness (CA2 NY) 125 F2d 928.

demand for struck jury. A demand for a jury from a panel that is struck or chosen for a particular case, not from the regular panel for the term of court. 31 Am J Rev ed Jur § 90.

demand in attachment. The debt or obligation upon which the remedy of attachment is available. 6 Am J2d Attach §§ 40 et seq. The statutory liability of a stockholder of a corporation arising out of the obligation of the corporation to pay an assessment, is contractual and constitutes a "demand" or "debt" which will support an attachment. Caldwell v Morfa (DC Tex) 24 F2d 106.

demand in embezzlement. A demand as a prerequisite to a prosecution for embezzlement must be an actual demand. In civil actions constructive demands may be and are recognized, but not so in the criminal prosecution of a defendant for an offense having as one of its statutory ingredients a refusal to pay on demand. Shoener v Pennsylvania, 207 US 188, 191, 52 L Ed 163, 165, 28 S Ct 110.

[331]

demand in reconvention. The civil-law equivalent of counterclaim. 20 Am J2d Countcl § 5.

demand note. A promissory note payable on demand. 11 Am J2d B & N § 167.

demand oyer. See oyer.

demand paper. Commercial paper payable upon demand. 11 Am J2d B & N § 167.

The term "payable on demand" imports that the debt evidenced by the note is already due. The obligation is absolute and present; the only element not fixed with certainty is the time of payment; and as that is at the option of the creditor, and the debtor must be prepared eo instante, the time of payment, and with it the statute of limitations, begins to run at once. Cook v Carpenter, 212 Pa 165, 61 A 799.

demandress. A female plaintiff.

demands. See demand, also terms and expressions following that word, which begin demand.

de manucaptione. A writ to compel the sheriff to release a prisoner and take mainpernors or sureties as bail. See 3 Bl Comm 128.

de manutenendo. A writ of maintenance which lay against a person who had committed maintenance.

de me. From me.

demease. Death; demise.

de medietate linguae. Of divided tongue or language. The characterization of a jury composed one-half of English speaking persons and one-half of persons speaking the language of the accused. Respublica v Mesta (Pa) 1 Dow 73, 1 L Ed 42.

de medio. Of mesne,—an ancient writ which lay for the tenant against the mesne lord, when the lord paramount had distrained the tenant for the rent due to him—the lord paramount—from the mesne lord. See 3 Bl Comm 234.

de melioribus damnis. For better damages the plaintiff's election to proceed against one defendant after having dismissed the action as to the others.

demembration. The criminal offense of severing a limb from a person's body.

demens. A person who is demented; a person who has lost his mind.

dementenant en avant. From the present time henceforth.

dementia. An impaired state of the mental powers, feebleness of mind. Dennett v Dennett, 44 NH 531.

dementia precox paranoid. That form of dementia in which the patient exhibits ideas of persecution and has delusions; mental disorder occurring in early life; sometimes called schizophrenia. Rasmussen v George Benz & Sons, 168 Minn 319, 321, 210 NW 75, 76.

De Mercatoribus. The statute 13 Edward I (1285) allowing the charging of lands of a merchant with debts contracted in trade. The statute was also called Acton Burnel. See 2 Bl Comm 160; 4 Bl Comm 426.

demesne. Own; his own; lands of the lord himself which were not held by him of a superior. A manor was a district of land which was held by a lord or great personage, who kept in his own hands as much land as he required for his household. Such lands were called demesne lands. See 2 Bl Comm 90.

demesne, as of fee. There is a distinction between a corporeal inheritance, of which a man is said to be wised in his demesne as of fee, and an incorporeal inheritance, of which he is said merely to be wised as of fee, and not in his demesne, because incorporeal hereditaments are by nature merely collateral to lands and houses, as a rent issuing out of those lands or houses, and the owner has no property, dominicum, or demesne in the thing itself. See 2 Bl Comm 106.

demesne lands. See demesne.

demesne lands of the crown. The share of land which was reserved to the crown at the original distribution of landed property, or such as came to it afterwards by forfeitures or other means. These lands were anciently very large and extensive, comprising many manors, honors and lordships, the tenants of which had very peculiar privileges. See 1 Bl Comm 286.

demesnial. Pertaining to a demesne.

demeure. See en demeure.

demeyne. See en demeyne.

demeyne come de fee. See en son demeyne come de fee.

demi. One-half.

demidietas. One-half.

De Militibus. The statute of 1 Edward II (1307) whereby vassals of the king were compelled to be knighted, or to pay a fine. This practice "was exerted as an expedient for raising money by many of our best princes, particularly by Edward the Sixth and Queen Elizabeth." See 2 Bl Comm 69.

demi-mark. A sum of money tendered and paid into court in certain cases in the trial of a writ of right by the grand assize. The amount tendered was six shillings and eightpence. See 3 Bl Comm appendix V.

de minimis. Concerning trifles. NLRB v Suburban Lumber Co. (CA3) 121 F2d 829.

de minimis non carat lex. The law is not concerned with trifles. Loeffler v Roe (Fla) 69 So 2d 331, 47 ALR2d 319. A maxim leading to the rule that accepts substantial performance as a sufficient performance of a contract, 17 Am J2d Contr § 370; sometimes applied to exclude the recovery of nominal damages, where no unlawful intent or disturbance of a right or possession is shown and where all possible damage is expressly disproved, 22 Am J2d Damg § 2; and applied at other times to preclude reversal on appeal, 5 Am J2d A & E § 790. The maxim has no application to money demands. Kennedy v Gramling, 33 SC 367. It will not prevent the recovery of nominal damages for an invasion of one's rights, as by a trespass upon his lands, especially where the invasion, if not penalized, may result in obtaining a prescriptive right. 22 Am J2d Damg § 5.

De minimis non carat praetor. (Roman law.) The praetor does not concern himself with trifles.

[332]

de minis. A writ against threats; that is, a writ to keep the peace.

De minoribus rebus principes consultant, de majoribus omnes. In matters of less importance, rulers take counsel, in those of greater import, the people. See 1 Bl Comm 147, footnote.

Deminutio. Diminution; subtraction; deprivation.

Demisable. Capable of being demised.

demi-sanguie. Half blood.

demise. Noun: A deed, lease, conveyance of the fee or of a life estate; a grant of land. Chandler v Hart, 161 Cal 405, 119 P 516; Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad Co. v Atlantic & North Carolina Co. 147 NC 368, 61 SE 185. The transfer of property by will. The word, appearing in a lease, implies a covenant on the part of the lessor of good right and title to make the lease. 32 Am J1st L & T § 268. The word also means death, this meaning having originated in the reluctance of people in an earlier time to speak of the possibility of the king's death, preferring to cloak the disaster of his dissolution by referring to it in the less harsh term "demise," the passing of the crown to his heir. Verb: To grant; to lease; to bequeath; to pass on the death of the owner by bequest or inheritance.

demise and re-demise. A kind of agreement which in effect is a mutual leasing of the same land, under which the owner pays only a nominal rental.

demise charter. See charter of demise.

demise of the crown. The transfer of the kingdom to a dead king's successor. When we say the demise of the crown, we mean only that, in consequence of the disunion of the king's natural body from his body politic, the kingdom is transferred or demised to his successor; and so the royal dignity remains perpetual. See 1 Bl Comm 249.

demisi. I have demised; I have let.

demissione. See ex demissione.

demissio regis, vel coronae. The demise of the king or the crown. See 1 Bl Comm 249.

de mittendo tenorem recordi. A writ to send the tenor of a record, or to exemplify the record.

demi-vill. One-half of a vill or tithing. A tithing comprised ten freemen and their families.

demo. See damage.

democracy. Popular government; rule by the people. Not to be confused with the Democratic Party or the policies of such party.

See pure democracy; representative democracy.

de moderata misericordia capienda. A writ for taking a moderate amercement, which lay to reduce an excessive amercement.

de modo decimandi. Of the manner of tithing. A discharge by custom or prescription is where, time out of mind, certain persons or lands have been discharged from the payment of tithes. This immemorial usage is either de modo decimandi or de non decimando. A modus decimandi, often called a "modus," is any means whereby the general law of tithing is altered, and a new method of taking them is introduced. A prescription de non decimando is a claim to be entirely discharged of tithes, and pay no compensation in lieu of them. See 2 Bl Comm 29, 31.

De molendino de novo erecto non facit prohibitio. Prohibition does not lie against a newly erected mill.

demolition loss. A deduction in an income tax return for loss suffered by the taxpayer on the demolition of a building. Commissioner v Estate of Appleby (CAI) 23 172d 700.

de moneta. Concerning the currency.

demonstrate To prove indubitably, as, to demonstrate a proposition of geometry; to teach by exhibition of examples, as, anatomy is demonstrated by exhibition of the dissected parts of the body. Espenhain v Barker, 121 Or 621, 625, 256 P 766.

demonstratio. A description; a designation; a denomination.

demonstration. A designation; a manifestation; a showing.

None but mathematical truth is susceptible of that high degree of evidence, called demonstration, which excludes all possibility of error, and which, therefore, may reasonably be required in support of every mathematical deduction. People v Risley, 214 NY 75, 108 NE 200.

See false demonstration.

demonstrative evidence. Usually the equivalent of real evidence. 29 Am J2d Ev § 769. Narrowly, evidence which has no probative value in itself, serving merely as a visual aid to jury or trier of the fact in comprehending the verbal testimony. Smith v Ohio Oil Co. 10 111 App 2d 67, 134 NE2d 526, 58 ALR2d 680.

See real evidence.

demonstrative legacy. A legacy which differs from a general legacy in that it refers to a particular fund or particular property as a primary source of payment, the two essentials of such a legacy being an unconditional gift in the nature of a general legacy and a designation of a particular fund or particular property as a primary source of payment but not such a designation as evinces an intent to relieve the general estate from liability if the particular fund or particular property fails as a source of payment. Nusly v Curbs, 36 Colo 464, 85 P 846; Rogers v Rogers, 67 SC 168, 45 SE 176.

demonstrator. An automobile used by an automobile salesman to demonstrate the particular model and type and the operation of the vehicle to a prospective buyer. Anything used to show the operation of a thing of its kind, particularly for the purpose of making a sale. A person who demonstrates things or processes, e.g. a person who makes coffee in a grocery store for the purpose of advertising the brand of coffee used.

De Monticolis Walliae. Of the Welsh mountaineers,—the name given to an ancient statute of the time of King Ethelred, whereby Welshmen, who at that time were aliens, might demand a trial by a jury composed of six Welshmen and six Englishmen. See 3 Bl Comm 360.

demorage. Same as demurrage.

Demorari. To demur.

De morte hominis nulls est cunctatio longa. With respect to a man's death no delay is regarded as long.

[333]

de mot en mot. From word to word; word for word.

demotion. The lowering of the grade of a civil service officer or employee. 15 Am J2d Civ S § 33.

dempster. Same as deemster.

demur. To interpose a demurrer; to hesitate; to object.

demurrable. Subject to attack by demurrer.

See demurrer.

demurrage. A sum of money due by way of compensation for the loss of earnings of a vessel by an improper delay or detention of the vessel. 48 Am J1st Ship § 606. A word derived from the maritime law but applied to railroad cars, meaning, in this respect, the charges imposed by a carrier by rail for the detention of the cars beyond the time reasonably required for the loading or unloading thereof. 13 Am J2d Car § 480.

demurrage lien. The lien of a carrier by rail upon a shipment for unpaid demurrage charges. 13 Am J2d Carriers § 501. The lien of a shipowner upon cargo for demurrage charges unpaid, enforceable in admiralty by an action in rem. 48 Am J1st Ship § 615.

demurrant. A party to an action who interposes a demurrer to a pleading of an adverse party.

demurrer. A method of raising an objection to the sufficiency in law of a pleading. 27 Am J2d Eq § 299; 41 Am J1st Pl § 204.

While demurrers are abolished in many jurisdictions by statute, the abolition is superficial, being essentially one of terminology, the office of the demurrer being performed under the new and simplified systems of pleading by motion or answer. 41 Am J1st Pl § 204.

demurrer book. A transcript of the pleadings in an action leading up to an issue of law.

demurrer ore tenus. A demurrer made orally at the time of argument in support of a demurrer of record, pointing out the defect in the pleading to which it is addressed. Wetherell v Eberle, 123 Ill 666, 14 NE 675. A demurrer in the form of an objection to evidence on the ground that the complaint, declaration, or petition fails to state a cause of action. Cleveland v Bateman, 21 NM 675, 158 P 648.

demurrer to evidence. A method of taking a case from the jury, being an objection made by the defendant to the plaintiff's evidence as a whole, which concedes the truth of all that the evidence tends to establish in favor of the plaintiff, but that the facts thus conceded do not establish in law a right to recover. The use of a demurrer to evidence is rare in modern practice; it has been supplanted by a motion for a directed verdict or the equivalent of such motion. 53 Am J1st Trial §§ 427, 428.

demurrer to form. A special objection to a pleading on grounds of form rather than substance. 41 Am J1st Pl § 206.

See demurrer.

demurrer to indictment. A pleading attacking the sufficiency of an indictment for a defect which appears on the face of the indictment, the failure to state an offense, or the failure to state an offense with the clearness and precision required in an indictment. 27 Am J1st Indict § 144.

demurrer to interrogatory. A reason offered by a witness for refusing to answer a question.

demurrer to plea. A method by which the plaintiff tests the sufficiency of the answer or plea of the defendant; such a demurrer calls into question the sufficiency in law of the plaintiff's own pleadings, and all the facts and attendant circumstances revealed in all the pleadings must be taken into consideration in determining the demurrer. 41 Am J1st Pl § 234. A method of objecting to the sufficiency in law of a special plea by the defendant in a criminal case. 21 Am J2d Crim L § 465.

demurrer to plea in abatement. A method by which the plaintiff tests the legal sufficiency of the defendant's plea in abatement. 41 Am J1st Pl § 211.

demurrer to substance. A demurrer testing the sufficiency of a pleading in respect of a matter of substance. 41 Am J1st Pl § 211.

demurrer to the jurisdiction. A demurrer to plaintiff's pleading which raises the objection of a want of jurisdiction over the person of the defendant or the subject matter of the suit apparent on the face of the pleading. 41 Am J1st Pl § 213.

demurrer to the person. A demurrer raising the question of the competency of the plaintiff to maintain the suit. 39 Am J1st Parties § 105.

demy sangue. Same as demi sangue.

demy sanke. Same as demi sangue.

denarii. Plural of denarius.

denarius. A Roman silver coin equivalent to about fourteen cents. Also, the English pence.

denarius Dei. God's penny,—earnest money given to bind a bargain.

denarius Petrii. Peter's penny or Peter's pence,—an annual general contribution to the Pope.

de nativo habendo. A writ which lay for the lord of the manor to secure the return of a fugitive villein.

denaturalize. To deprive a person of his citizenship, whether acquired by naturalization or not.

denatured. Deprived of natural qualities; changed in nature.

See denatured alcohol.

denatured alcohol. Alcohol which has been so adulterated with poisonous or other chemicals as to render it fatally dangerous or otherwise unfit for use as a beverage.

denaturized. Same as denatured.

denial. A contradiction; a traverse; a withholding; a refusal to grant; a refusal. In pleading, a controverting of affirmative allegations in the pleading of an adversary.

Under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, a denial of statements made in a plaintiff's demand for admissions is not made by a denial of "the accuracy" of statements made in the demand, or by a refusal "to admit the truth" of such statements. Southern R. Co. v Crosby (CA4 SC) 201 F2d 878, 36 ALR2d 1186.

See general denial; negative pregnant; specific denial.

denier. A penny.

denier a Dieu. Same as denarius Dei.

De nihilo, nil. Nothing out of nothing. A void contract can no more give rise to a right of action than a void deed can create title in the grantee. West Maryland R. R. Co. v Blue Ridge Hotel Co. 102 Md 307, 62 A 351.

[334]

denization. A proceeding known to the English by which an alien acquires the status of a denizen. McClenaghan v McClenaghan, 32 SCL (1 Strobb) 295.

See denizen.

denize. To effect a denization.

See denization.

denizen. One in a middle state between an alien and a natural born citizen, and who, though subject to some of the disabilities of the former, is entitled to many of the privileges of the latter. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 1.

Denman's Act. See Lord Denman's Act.

denominatio. A denomination.

See denomination.

Denominatio est a digniore. Denomination is from the more worthy.

Denominatio fieri debet a dignioribus. Denomination should be made from the more worthy.

denomination. Name; the act of naming. A coin of a stated value. A religious society of a particular faith, the name usually being carried in some form by members in professing the faith, e. g. "Methodists," "Presbyterians," "Baptists," etc.

De nomine proprio non est curandum cum in substantia non erretur; quia nomina mutabilia sunt, res autem immobiles. As to the proper name, it is not to be regarded when there is no substantial error, because names are changeable; but things, that is, facts, are not.

De non apparentibus et de non existentibus eadem est ratio. The same reasoning applies to those things which are not proved as to those which have no existence. United States v Wilkinson (US) 12 How 246, 253, 13 L Ed 974, 977.

De non apparentibus, et non existentibus, eadem est lex. As to matters which are not proved and as to those which do not exist, the law is the same. State ex rel. Lasserre v Michel, 105 La 741, 30 So 122.

de non decimando. See de modo decimando.

de non desidentia clerici regis. A writ to exonerate a clergyman abroad in the service of the king for his non-residence.

de non procedendo ad assisam. A writ to prohibit the judges of the assize from proceeding with the cause.

de non sane memorie. Of unsound memory,—of unsound mind.

denouncement. Same as denuncia. A denunciation. The reporting of a mine to the authorities as unoccupied or abandoned; the claiming of the right to work a mine; the reporting of the discovery and pre-emption of a mine; the claiming of a mine as a new one. Stewart v King, 85 Or 14, 166 P 55.

See denunciation.

de novo. Anew; over again; a second time. See 1 Bl Comm 186.

See trial de novo.

de novo trial. See trial de novo.

dense smoke. Dark smoke as it comes from the smokestack or where common chimney soft or bituminous coal is used for fuel in any considerable quantities. St. Paul v Haugbro, 93 Minn 59, 100 NW 470. Also the smoke created by the burning of certain types of heating oil.

dentist. One whose profession is to clean and extract teeth, repair them when diseased, and replace them, when necessary by artificial ones; one sometimes said to be a surgeon practicing upon teeth. 41 Am J1st Phys & S § 2.

dentistry. The profession of the dentist; a medical science concerned with the teeth and the care of teeth.

See dentist.

dentists' liability insurance. A form of liability insurance which protects a dentist against loss resulting from his liability for acts or omissions in the treatment of a patient. 29A Am J Rev ed Ins § 1358.

Dent operam consoles ne quid respublica detrimenti capiat. Let the consuls take heed lest the state suffer harm. See 1 Bl Comm 136.

Dentur omnes decimae primariae ecclesiae ad quam parochia pertinet. Let all tithes be given to the head church to which the parish belongs. See 1 Bl Comm 112.

De nullo, quod est sua natura indivisibile, et divisionem non patitur nullam partem labebit vidua, sed satisfaciat ei ad valentiam. A widow shall have no part of that which is in its own nature indivisible, and will not suffer division, but she shall be satisfied with its value.

De nullo tenemento, quod tenetur ad terminum, fit homagii, fit tamen inde fidelitatis sacramentum. There is no homage in a tenement for a term of years, but in such case there is the oath of fealty (to the lord).

denumeration. A payment down at the present time.

denuncia. A judicial proceeding under Spanish-American law to establish a claim to real property which had been acquired by another without observing the requirements of the law. In its substantive characteristics, the denouncement or denuncia was equivalent to the inquest of office found of the common law. De Merle v Mathews, 26 Cal 455, 477.

denunciatio. The condemning of a person, a practice, or an idea as evil; the reporting of a person to the authorities as one to be prosecuted.

See denouncement; denuncia.

denuntiatio. A public notice; a bulletin.

deny. To deny means to withhold, to refuse to grant. To contradict. Beck v Allen, 58 Miss 143, 162.

[335]

See denial.

deodand. Any chattel which caused a person's death, and which was in consequence, under the old common law, forfeited to the crown. Goldsmith-Grant Co. v United States, 254 US 505, 65 L Ed 376, 41 S Ct 189. See also Fields v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. 147 Tenn 464, 249 SW 798, 36 ALR 1250, 1251.

deodand for pious uses. See pious uses.

de odio et atia. For hatred and ill will,—an ancient writ which was directed to the sheriff, commanding him to inquire whether a prisoner charged with murder was committed upon just cause of suspicion, or merely propter odium et atiam, for hatred and ill will. If the inquisition showed the latter cause, another writ issued for the sheriff to admit the prisoner to bail. See 3 Bl Comm 128.

de office. Of office; officially.

De Officio Coronatoris. Of the office of coroner,—the statute of 4 Edward the First (1276) prescribing the principal functions and duties of the coroner, and specifically, his duties in holding inquests. See 1 Bl Comm 348.

de onerando pro rata portione. A writ which lay for a tenant in common or a joint tenant to compel his cotenant to contribute rent.

de outre mere. See essoin de outre mere.

de pace et imprisonmento. A writ in the nature of an appeal of crime for breach of the peace and imprisonment.

de pace et legalitate tuenda. A writ for keeping the peace and good conduct.

de pace et plagis. A writ for breach of the peace and wounding.

de pace et roberia. A writ for breach of the peace and robbery.

de pace infracta. A writ for breach of the peace.

de palabra. By parol; oral.

de parco fracto. For breaking into a pound. When goods had been distrained and had been actually impounded, and had been taken out of the pound by force, the distrainor had his remedy by the writ of pound-breach, or de parco fracto. See 3 Bl Comm 146.

depart. To go away; to part; to partition; to divide; to separate; to change the cause of action or defense in amending a pleading or in pleading further by way of reply or other subsequent pleading. 41 Am J1st Pl §§ 184, 185.

See departure.

de partitione facienda. For making partition,—a writ for the partition of lands of coparceners.

department. A division of the executive department of the national or state government.

departmental doctrine. A limitation of the fellow servant rule to employees engaged in the same department of the employer's business or establishment. 35 Am J1st M & S § 382.

department head. See head of a department.

department of government. One of the three great divisions of government between which the powers of the United States Government are separated, namely the legislative, executive, and judicial departments. A comparable division in a state. A part or division of the executive branch of the government of the United States, such as the Justice Department, State Department, etc. 54 Am J1st US § 39. A division of the executive branch of a state government, even of a municipal government.

See cabinet; head of a department.

department rule. An administrative regulation or order. 2 Am J2d Admin L §§ 277 et seq.

See departmental doctrine.

department store. A big merchandising establishment, divided into departments according to the kind of merchandise handled, such as men's wear, ladies' wear, groceries, shoes, hardware, etc., often having branches established and operating in suburban locations.

department store index. An index of department store prices, grouped according to the various categories of goods, such as infant's wear, women's underwear, men's furnishings, notions, etc., prepared by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

departure. A leaving, such as the departure of a bus from the station; a turning aside from a usual route. A changing of the cause of action or defense alleged in a pleading, either in substance or the law upon which it is founded, in an amendment to the pleading, a reply, rejoinder, or other subsequent pleading. 41 Am J1st Pl §§ 184, 185.

The test whether new matter introduced by the way of an amendment is a departure is whether a different character of evidence is required for its support than would be required for proof of the antecedent pleading and whether proof of additional facts will be required to sustain the later pleading. Gerstel v William Curry's Sons Co. 155 Fla 471, 20 So 2d 802.

See deviation.

departure in amended pleading. A change in the cause of action or defense pleaded in the original complaint or answer by an amendment thereto. 41 Am J1st Pl § 306.

departure in despite of court. The failure of a tenant to appear in court in a real action against him on being summoned, although he had appeared previously.

depasture. To pasture; to graze; to denude of grass or feed; to strip.

depeculation. The embezzlement of public moneys.

depend. To be subject to a contingency; to hang upon a condition. To look to another for support.

dependency. A colony of a country; a territory which is subordinated to the authority and laws of a mother country. 29 Am J Rev ed States § 7. The status of a dependent person.

See dependent.

dependent. The status of one in need of aid or support because he entirely or partially lacks the means of supporting himself, Utah Fuel Co. v Industrial Com. 80 Utah 105, 15 P2d 297, 86 ALR 858; one who looks to another for support and maintenance.

[336]

58 Am J1st Workm Comp § 162. One who is sustained by, or who relies for support upon, the aid of another. Royal League v Shields, 251 Ill 250, 96 NE 45. One entitled to support as a wife or child, even an illegitimate child entitled to support. 30 Am J Rev ed Intox L § 534. One in such relationship to the taxpayer that the latter is granted an exemption for him in making return for income tax. IRC § 151(e).

See, dependent child; partial dependent; support; total dependent.

dependent bill. A bill in equity, otherwise known as a "bill not original," being a pleading relating to some matter already litigated in the court by the same parties and depending on the prior suit; that is, it supplements or continues the former suit or seeks relief in respect of some matter growing out of that suit and connected with it. 27 Am J2d Eq § 179.

dependent child. A term applied to a normal child without means for self-support who must be supported by someone other than the person to whom he naturally could look for support, that is, a parent or guardian. Re Souers, 135 Misc 521, 238 NYS 738. Dependency on the part of a child is something different from the right of the child to have support, or the duty of a parent to support his children. The mere fact that the father is legally and morally bound to support his children does not necessarily establish that they are either partly or wholly dependent upon him. Dependency connotes the need of aid or support by one who entirely or partially lacks the means of supporting himself. 39 Am J1st P & C § 2.

As used in statutes providing for the care of dependent, neglected and delinquent children, the term means dependent upon the public for support. State ex rel. Steams County v Klasen, 123 Minn 382, 143 NW 984; any child under the age of 18 who is destitute, or whose home by reason of neglect by the parents or either of them is an unfit place for such child, or whose father, mother, guardian, or custodian, does not properly provide for such child. Re Hudson, 13 Wash 2d 673, 126 P2d 765. The statutes on dependent children usually define what is meant by the expression "dependent child." It is said that a legislative classification of dependent children as distinguished from delinquent children is not unreasonable. Under some statutes, however, the terms "dependent child" and "delinquent child" are largely synonymous. 31 Am J Rev ed Juv Ct § 38.

See delinquent children; neglected children.

dependent contract. A contract the performance of which depends upon the performance of another contract.

See dependent covenants.

dependent covenants. Covenants made by the parties to a deed or agreement which are of such character that the act covenanted to be performed enters into the whole consideration for the covenant or promise on the other part, or where the acts or covenants of the parties are concurrent and are to be performed at the same time, so that neither party can maintain an action against the other without first proving full performance on his part. 20 Am J2d Cov § 8. A "dependent covenant" in a contract for the sale of land is one which depends upon the prior performance of some act or condition or, as otherwise defined, an agreement to do or omit to do something with reference to a thing on which it depends and to which it relates. 55 Am J1st V & P § 102.

dependent jurisdiction. Another term for ancillary jurisdiction.

See ancillary jurisdiction.

dependent person. See dependent; dependent child.

dependent proceeding. An action or proceeding in which the court exercises dependent or ancillary jurisdiction.

See ancillary jurisdiction; ancillary proceeding.

dependent promises. Promises in a bilateral contract which are mutually dependent, that is, the one promise is the condition of the enforcement of the other. 17 Am J2d Come § 322; 55 Am J1st V & P § 102.

See dependent covenants.

dependent relative revocation. The doctrine that if a testator revoke a will with a present intention to make a new will as a substitute for the old, and the new will is not made, or if made fails of effect for some reason, it will be presumed that the testator preferred the old will to intestacy, and this testament will be given effect. 57 J1st Wills § 514. The doctrine is also known as that of "conditional" or "provisional" revocation.

dependents. See dependent.

dependent stipulations. Mutual agreements which go to the whole of the consideration on both sides of a contract. 55 Am J1st V & P § 102.

See dependent covenants; dependent promises.

depending. Relying on; being conditional or contingent on something. Ancient usage seems to have included the meaning of "pending," so that a "depending action" was a "pending action." 3 Bl Comm 450.

See words and phrases beginning dependent.

de perambulatione facienda. A writ for the establishment of a boundary line.

de persona. See constat de persona.

depesas. A word found in Spanish-American grants signifying spaces of ground reserved in the vicinity of a town, when it was being laid out, for commons or public pasturage. Strother v Lucas (US) 12 Pet 410, 442, footnote, 9 L Ed 1137, 1150, footnote.

de pignore surrepto furti, actio. (Roman law.) An action to recover a stolen pledge.

de placito. Of a plea.

de plagis et mahemio. A criminal appeal for wounding and mayhem.

de piano. Clearly; immediately.

de plegiis acquietandis. A writ under which a surety could compel his principal to reimburse him for loss.

de pleine age. Of full age.

depletion deduction. A deduction allowed in an income tax return to the owner of an economic interest in mineral deposits or standing timber. IRC § 613(a).

de pone. A writ to remove a cause to superior court.

depone. To depose; to give a deposition.

[337]

de ponendo sigillum ad exceptionem. A writ to place the court seal on an exception taken to a ruling of the court.

deponent. One whose deposition is given. 23 Am J2d Dep § 1; a witness; an affiant; a person who gives testimony under oath or affirmation, whether by deposition, affidavit, or otherwise. Bliss v Shuman, 47 Me 248, 252.

deponer. A deponent.

depopulatio agrorum. Laying waste the fields, the crime of destroying or ravaging a country, bordering upon treason. See 4 Bl Comm 373.

deportation. The expulsion of an alien from the country. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 71; a maritime tort, if illegal. 2 Am J2d Adm § 78.

Under the Federal statute providing that an alien's deportation must take place within three years after his entry, the time is not determined by the date of his actual deportation but by the date of his arrest for that purpose. United States ex rel. Filippini v Day (DC NY) 18 F2d 781.

See to the country whence they came.

deportation proceeding. An administrative proceeding conducted by immigration officers to determine by hearing whether or not an alien should be deported, and, if the finding is in the affirmative, to issue an order and warrant for deportation. 3 Am J2d Aliens §§ 82 et seq.

depose. To state or affirm a fact by affidavit or deposition; in a broader sense, to testify as a witness; to remove from an office, or position of authority, particularly a king.

deposit. Verb: To put down, as a deposit of earnest money; to put money or things in a place for storage or safekeeping; to put money in a bank at interest or on checking account. Noun: An accumulation; money or an article deposited.

See bank deposit; certificate of deposit; depository; deposit for collection; deposit in court; depositor; depositors' guaranty fund; general deposit; joint deposit; special deposit.

depository. A person, firm or corporation receiving a deposit for safekeeping; a depository.

See depository.

deposit box. See safe deposit box.

deposit company. See safe deposit company.

deposited for record. See filed for record.

deposit for collection. A transaction wherein a customer delivers commercial paper to a bank and the bank undertakes as agent for the customer the duty of making the collection. 10 Am J2d Banks § 403.

deposit in court. A payment or delivery into court, pursuant to court order, of money or anything capable of delivery. 24 Am J1st Funds & D §§ 1-3.

See payment into court.

Deposit Insurance Corporation. An agency of the United States established for the purpose of insuring bank deposits by setting up a permanent insurance fund for that purpose and the payment of deposits upon the closing of any insured bank, to preserve the solvency of insured banks, and to keep open the channels of trade and commercial exchange. 10 Am J2d Banks § 427.

deposit in trust. See trust deposit.

deposition. The written testimony of a witness given under oath in the course of a judicial proceeding, either at law or in equity, in advance of the trial or hearing, upon oral examination or in response to written interrogatories and where an opportunity is given for cross-examination; in a less refined sense, an affidavit, an oath; a statement under oath. 23 Am J2d Dep § 1.

See deposition de bene esse; in perpetuum rei memoriam; letter rogatory.

deposition de bene esse. A deposition taken during the pendency of an action for use as evidence therein, provided the personal attendance of the witness for oral examination cannot be secured. 23 Am J2d Dep § 2.

deposito. (Spanish.) A bailment of goods which is determinable at the will of the bailor.

deposit of earnest money. See earnest money.

depositor. One who makes a deposit, particularly one who makes a deposit in a bank whether on open account, special account, or at interest, the term including the holder of a certificate of deposit, but according to some definitions, not the holder of a cashier's check or certified check. Re Citizen's State Bank, 44 Idaho 33, 255 P 300 (statutory definition).

A depositor is not the owner of any specific money in the bank. He is simply the owner of a right and credit against the bank. Wright v Holmes, 100 Me 508, 62 A 507. But as used in bank guaranty laws, the word depositor should be taken in its commonly understood sense, and not so as to include creditors generally, who would not in common parlance, be regarded as depositors in a bank. Anno: 111 ALR 229.

depositors' guaranty fund. A fund to which the banks of a state contribute according to the amount of their deposits, established for the protection of depositors, that is, to make the currency of checks secure and also to protect the depositors in respect of their deposits. 10 Am J2d Banks § 424.

See permanent insurance fund.

depository. A storehouse; a place where money or valuable articles are put for safekeeping; a depositary; an official custodian of monies or other property paid into court under order of court. 23 Am J2d Deposit In Ct § 4; a banking institution designated by the judge of a bankruptcy court as the place of deposit of the funds of estates in bankruptcy. 9 Am J2d Bankr § 1240.

As used in a criminal statute forbidding the possession of tools and implements adapted and designed for forcing or breaking open a building, room, vault, safe, or other depository, the term is not confined to depositories substantially similar to vaults or safes, but extends to whatever is commonly used for the safekeeping of money or other personal property. Commonwealth v Tilley, 306 Mass 412, 28 NE2d 245, 129 ALR 381.

deposit slip. A slip of paper containing entries made by the person making a bank deposit, showing his name, the amount of cash deposited, and a listing of the checks deposited by the name of the bank upon which drawn or the use of numbers representing the drawee bank, the amount of each character of items deposited, and the total deposit. The rules of the bank in respect of deposits are often printed on the slip. 11 Am J2d B & N § 341.

deposits tax. See bank deposits tax.

[338]

deposit subject to final payment. See subject to final payment.

depositum. (Civil law.) A naked bailment, without reward, of goods to be kept for the bailor, by one who is usually called a depositary. Anne: 4 ALR 1196.

de post disseisina. A writ of post disseisin.

depot. A stopping place for trains or motorbuses where there is a building more or less permanent for the accommodation of passengers and freight.

A railroad depot includes not only a stopping place for railroad trains, but also a building for the accommodation of passengers and freight, together with all passageways, or platforms prepared for passengers in boarding and leaving trains. 44 Am J1st RR § 254.

A place where military stores or supplies are kept or troops assembled. United States v Caldwell (US) 19 Wall 264, 22 L Ed 114. A storehouse.

See railroad station; union station.

depot grounds. The grounds or land upon which a railroad station or depot stands, together with such surrounding territory as may be required to satisfy the reasonable convenience and necessity of the public while engaged in transacting business with the railroad company, and which is actually used for such purpose. 44 Am J1st RR § 169.

De Praerogativa Regis. Of the king's prerogative,—the title of the statute 17 Edw. II, c. 11, by which many of the prerogatives of the king were confirmed by parliament. See 2 Stephen's Commentaries 509. This statute affirmed the king's ancient right of committing waste and taking the profits of an attainted felon's land for a year and a day. See 4 Bl Comm 386.

de praesenti. For the present.

depreciated book value—As used in a statute requiring "depreciated book value" of personal property to be considered for purposes of taxation, the term means the cost price of the personal property, including the cost of installation, entered on the books of the company in ordinary course of business, less the depreciation set up on the books in a regular and consistent manner for reflecting such depreciation, including reasonable allowance for obsolescence. Wheeling Steel Corp. v Evatt, 143 Ohio St 71, 54 Ne 132.

depreciated value. Cost less depreciation. Brennan v Brennan, 164 Ohio St 29, 57 Ohio Ops 71, 128 NE2d 89, 50 ALR2d 1259.

depreciation. The lessening in worth of any property caused by weather, time, and use, including obsolescence and inadequacy. 43 Am J1st Pub Util § 145. A deduction allowed in an income tax return for the gradual loss of usefulness of tangible property used in business or in the production of income. IRC § 167(x).

"Depreciation" for which allowance is to be made in fixing the rate base for a public utility is the loss, not restored by current maintenance, which is due to all the factors causing the ultimate retirement of the property, embracing wear and tear, decay, inadequacy, and obsolescence. Lindheimer v Illinois Bell Tel. Co. 292 US 151, 78 L Ed 1182, 54 S Ct 658.

depreciation recapture. An income tax rule whereby a gain on the sale of property is treated as ordinary income, or partly as ordinary income, to the extent of depreciation taken on the property. Internal Revenue Code §§ 1245, 1250.

depredation. The act of plundering; a robbing; a pillaging. Deal v United States, 274 US 277, 71 L Ed 1045, 47 S Ct 613. An informal, illegitimate war. 56 Am J1st War § 5.

depressing bids. Stifling or chilling bids at a judicial sale. 30A Am J Rev ed Jud S § 98.

depression. A natural way or means for the drainage of surface water. 56 Am J1st Wat § 76. A disastrous condition of the economy, characterized by unemployment, forced sales of property, and falling prices.

See Great Depression. deprivation. A taking of property, rights, or privileges from a person. An ecclesiastical term applied to one of the several ways in which a parson or vicar may cease to be so. Deprivation may be effected by the sentence of the ecclesiastical court or pursuant to certain penal statutes which declare the benefice void either by reason of the incumbent's omission of duty or his active commission of some forbidden act or crime. See 1 Bl Comm 393.

deprivation without due process. Wherever the operation and effect of any general regulation is to extinguish or destroy that which by the law of the land is the property of any person, so far as it has that effect, it is unconstitutional and void as being a deprivation of property without due process of law. Brown v Grant, 116 US 207, 29 L Ed 598, 6 S Ct 357.

deprive. To take from one some property, right, or privilege which he enjoys and which he is entitled to enjoy; to cause a deprivation.

See deprivation.

de proavo. Of the great grandfather,—a writ whereby an heir secured land entered upon by a stranger upon the death of the heir's great grandfather who had died wised. See 3 Bl Comm 186.

de probioribus et potentioribus comitatus sui in custodes pacis. From the most excellent and powerful of their county as keepers of the peace. See 1 Bl Comm 350.

de proprietate probanda. For proving ownership,—a writ which lay for a plaintiff who had replevined goods from the possession of a distrainor who thereupon claimed the goods, to try by an inquest before the sheriff and determine in whom the property subsisted prior to the distress. See 3 Bl Comm 148.

depuis. Since.

deputy. One appointed to act for another, a substitute, a delegate, an agent. 37 Am J1st Mun Corp § 273; 43 Am J1st Pub Of § 218. A person who is a subordinate of a public officer, performing the duties of the office under powers conferred for that purpose, but only in the name of the officer, except in jurisdictions where he is recognized as an independent public officer. 43 Am J1st Pub Of §§ 460 et seq.

deputy clerk of court. In some jurisdictions, a mere agent of the principal clerk performing as of right only ministerial acts, but in other jurisdictions, an independent public officer vested with authority to discharge any of the official duties of his principal save that of appointing x deputy. 15 Am J2d Clk Ct §§ 38, 41.

[339]

deputy judge. A paradox; there can be no delegation of judicial authority, hence no deputy judge. State ex rel. Hovey v Noble, 118 Ind 350, 21 NE 244.

deputy sheriff. An officer who acts for the sheriff, in some jurisdictions his powers being limited to the performance of ministerial acts, but in other jurisdictions, being given authority equivalent to that of the sheriff, even authority for the execution of conveyances of lands sold under execution. 47 Am J1st Sher § 154.

de quarentina habenda. For securing her quarantine,—a common law writ whereby a widow might secure her right of quarantine, that is, to continue to occupy the mansion house or other dowable residence of her husband for forty days after his death. Aikin v Aikin, 12 Or 203, 6 P 682.

de ques en òa. From which time until the present.

de quibus. Of which things or persons.

de quibus sur disseisin. A kind of writ of entry.

de quo. Of which; of whom.

de quodam ignoto. From a certain person unknown.

de quota litis. (Civil law.) An agreement for a contingent fee.

de quoy. Of which.

deraign. To prove; to prove in detail; to vindicate; to prove by disproving the allegations of an adversary.

derainment of title. A statute requiring the complainant to set forth the "derainment of his title" means that he must show (a) title in himself from the government, (b) title in himself by adverse possession, (c) title in himself from the defendant, or a better title than that of the defendant, tracing both his title and that of the defendant to a common source. Smith v Overstreet, 205 Miss 488, 38 So 2d 923.

deranged. Disordered in mind; insane. Hiett v Shull, 36 W Va 563, 565.

See insane.

de raptu haeredis. A writ whereby a guardian might secure the custody of his ward after she had been abducted.

de raptu virginum. An appeal of felony for the rape of a maiden.

de rationabili parte. A writ of right which lay for a person against his cotenant who had assumed exclusive possession.

de rationabili parte bonorum. Of a reasonable share of the goods,—a writ for the recovery of that part of a decedent's personal property which he had, in his lifetime, alienated against the rights of the wife and children. The shares of the wife and children were called their reasonable parts. See 2 Bl Comm 492.

de rationalibus divisis. A writ for the establishment of boundaries.

de rebus. Concerning things,—the title of the third part of the Digests or Pandects.

de rebus dubiis. In doubtful matters.

derecho. (Spanish.) A right; a lawful claim.

de recordo et processu mittendis. A writ in the nature of a writ of error to send the record and process of an action to a higher court.

de recto. A writ of right, which lay to recover a person's full rights to property.

de recto clause. See briefe de recto claus.

de recto de advocacione. A writ of right of advowson.

de recto de dote. A writ of right of dower.

de recto deficere. To fail of right; to fall short of justice.

de recto patens. A writ of right patent.

de redisseisina. A writ of redisseisin,—a writ which lay for one who had been disseised and who was disseised again by the same disseisor after he had recovered possession.

dereine. Same as deraign.

derelict. A vagrant; a person who is without substance, means, or an apparent purpose in life. A vessel abandoned without hope of recovery and without intention of returning to it, whether the abandonment arises from accident, necessity, or a purely voluntary measure. Mengel Box Co. v Joest, 127 Miss 461, 90 So 161. In the maritime sense, a vessel, cargo, or other property is derelict when it is abandoned without hope of recovery or without intention of returning thereto. 48 Am J1st Ship § 647.

dereliction. Failure in performance of duty; neglect of duty. Abandonment of property; abandoned property. A reliction, that is land made by the withdrawal of the waters by which it was previously covered. 56 Am J1st Wat § 476.

See reliction; renunciation.

de religiosis. Concerning religious persons.

de reparatione. Of repair,—an ancient writ now practically obsolete, which was brought by one tenant in common to recover of his cotenant a due proportion of the expense of making necessary repairs. Ballou v Ballou, 94 Va 350, 26 SE 840.

de reparatione facienda. Of making repairs,—an old writ seldom used whereby one joint tenant or tenant in common could compel the others to unite in the expenses of the necessary reparation of a house or mill owned by them, but which did not apply to fences enclosing wood or arable land.

de replegiare. A writ of replevin.

de rescussu. A writ of rescue, which lay to recover a person who had been rescued from an arrest or cattle which had been rescued from a distress.

de retorno habendo. A writ whereby a defendant who has prevailed in an action of replevin might have goods which were distrained and then replevied returned again into his custody, to be sold or disposed of as if no replevin had been made. See 3 Bl Comm 149.

dereyn. Same as deraign.

de rien culpable. Guilty of nothing,—not guilty.

[340]

de rigore juris. According to strict law.

de rigueur. (French.) By indispensable rule.

Derivativa postestas non potest esse major primitiva. Delegated authority cannot be greater than that which was originally given.

derivative. Something not original; something derived from another thing.

derivative action. An action brought by one or more stockholders of a corporation to enforce a corporate right or to prevent or remedy a wrong to the corporation in cases where the corporation, because it is controlled by the wrongdoers or for other reasons, fails and refuses to take appropriate action for its own protection. Price v Gurney, 324 US 100, 89 L Ed 776, 65 S Ct 513.

derivative conveyances. Conveyances of a secondary sort, which presuppose some other conveyance precedent, and only serve to enlarge, confirm, alter, restrain, restore, or transfer the interest granted by an original conveyance. See 2 Bl Comm 324. Derivative conveyances are releases, confirmations, surrenders, assignments, and defeasances. See 2 Bl Comm 310.

derivative fee. See feudum improprium.

derivative feud. Same as feudum improprium.

derivative jurisdiction. The jurisdiction of a certain court derived from another court, the term being best illustrated by jurisdiction on appeal, where the appellate court has jurisdiction of the cause on appeal only as the lower court had jurisdiction. 20 Am J2d Cts § 99.

derivative liability. See vicarious liability.

derivative suit. Same as derivative action.

derive. To receive as from a source or origin; to originate or acquire characteristics from a source which is traceable.

dernier. See au dernier.

dernier resort. The last resort.

derogation. Nullification, avoidance or abrogation, in whole or in part, as a statute nullifying common-law rights. 1 Am J2d Adm L § 43.

derogatory clause. A clause which a testator has secretly inserted in his will, the will containing a provision that any will thereafter made by him without the precise clause is to be void. The provision is anomalous to the same extent that an irrevocable will is anomalous. 57 Am J1st Wills § 15.

Derogatur legi, cum pars detrahitur; abrogatur legi, cum prorsus tollitur. A law is derogated when part of it is taken away; a law is abrogated when it is wholly abolished.

derrick barges. Vessels carrying derricks. 2 Am J2d Adm § 33.

de salva guardia. A writ of safeguard for the license and protection of strangers.

de salvo conductu. A writ of safe conduct.

de sa vie. For his own life; for his own lifetime.

De Scaccario. Of or concerning the exchequer,—the title of a statute enacted in the reign of Henry the Third.

descend. To come down; to pass by inheritance; to vest in a descendant or heir by operation of law on the death of the ancestor. 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 2.

descendant. A descendant is an individual proceeding from an ancestor in any degree; a child, a grandchild, a great grandchild, anyone, near or remote, in the line from the ancestor. Turner v Monteiro, 127 Va 537, 103 SE 572, 13 ALR 383, 387. Issue of any degree. Soper v Brown, 136 NY 244, 32 NE 768.

See lineal descendant; posterity.

descender. To descend.

descending from airplane. The phrase "descending from", in a life insurance policy excluding accidental death benefit for death resulting from "operating riding in or descending from" an airplane, includes things different from those included in the phrase

"riding in," such as a voluntary descent by parachute, or leaving the plane after it has landed. Willingham v Life & Casualty Ins. Co. (CA5 Ga) 216 F2d 226, 47 ALR2d 1017.

descending line of descent. See direct descending line.

Descensus tollit intrationem. A descent tolls or removes the right of entry.

descent. Hereditary succession. Freeman v Allen, 17 Ohio St 527. Technically, the transmission of real estate, or, some interest in real estate, on the death of its owner intestate; to be distinguished from the transmission of personal property, the title to which, on the death of the owner intestate, passes to the personal representative and, after the payment of all debts and claims against the estate, is governed by the rules of distribution. But often used loosely to refer to succession to either real or personal property. 23 Am J2d Desc & D § 1.

As the term is used in the Federal estate tax law, the time of the acquisition of the property of a decedent is the date of his death and not the date of distribution. See Hopkins v Commissioner (CA7) 69 F2d 11, 96 ALR 1358.

See canons of descent; collateral descent; establishment of heirship; heirs; immediate descent; inherit; inheritance; intestate; issue; next of kin; per capita; per stirpes; presumptive heir; primogeniture; prospective heir; shifting descents doctrine; statute of distribution; stirps; stock of descent; succession; title by descent; vacant succession.

descent cast. Literally, the devolving of title to real estate upon the heir upon the death of his ancestor intestate. A term used for the most part in designation of the acquisition of color of title by heirs where the ancestor, although possibly a trespasser originally, died in possession under claim of right. 3 Am J2d Adv P § 122.

describe. To define by properties or characteristics; to represent by words or other signs; to give an account; to relate; to give the boundaries of real estate.

description. A portrayal of a subject by reference to its features and incidents; a representation in words. As it applies to property, a delineation in a mortgage, deed, contract, or other instrument affecting the title to property, by means of which the property involved in the transaction may be identified. Ehret v Price 122 Okla 277, 254 P 748.

[341]

See description of real estate; sufficient description, description of real estate. A statement of the boundaries by monuments, courses, distances and quantity or by reference to maps, plats, or surveys. 12 Am J2d Bound §§ 3 et seq.

description of timber. See now standing; when cut.

descriptio personae. Description of the person; a word or phrase used for the purpose of identifying or pointing out a person. Milam v Settle, 127 W Va 271, 32 SE2d 269. Words descriptive of the person, such as "president," "manager," "agent," etc.

descriptive calls. Courses and distances referred to in describing a surveyed boundary of land, as distinguished from landmarks, monuments, and other physical objects which are known as locative calls. Holmes v Trout (US) 7 Pet 171, 8 L Ed 646.

de scutagio habendo. A writ to recover escuage.

de se bene gerendo. For or during his good behavior.

desecration of burial place. An unnecessary disturbance or wanton violation of a burial place. 14 Am J2d Cem § 39.

de secta ad molendinum. Of suit at the mill,—a writ to compel a person to grind his corn at the plaintiff's mill. See 3 Bl Comm 235.

desegregation. The elimination of the color of a person as a test or qualification of his or her right to be present at a school, a place of employment, a place of entertainment or refreshment, a place of commerce, or the depots and conveyances of a common carrier. See 15 Am J2d Civ R §§ 18 et seq.

desert. Verb: To abandon or forsake, although not beyond the possibility of returning. People v Board of Police (NY) 26 Barb 481, 501.

See desertion.

desert. Noun: Arid land.

desertion. The act of forsaking or abandoning a person, a cause or a post of duty. A continued abandonment of a ship by a seaman, during the term of service provided by his contract, with intention not to return, and without sufficient cause. 48 Am J1st Ship § 190. The criminal offense under the Uniform Code of Military Justice committed by any member of the armed forces where (1) without authority he goes or remains absent from his unit, organization, or place of duty with intent to remain away therefrom permanently; (2) quits his unit, organization, or place of duty to avoid hazardous duty or to shirk important service; or (3) without being permanently separated from one of the armed forces, enlists or accepts an appointment in the same or another one of the armed forces without fully disclosing the fact that he has not been regularly separated, or enters any foreign armed service except when authorized by the United States; also committed by any commissioned officer of the armed forces where, after tender of his resignation and before notice of its acceptance, quits his post or proper duties without leave and with intent to remain away therefrom permanently. 10 USC § 885.

The abandonment of a child in neglect of the duty of support. 39 Am J1st P & C § 104. The abandonment of wife or child penalized by the statutes of most of the states, including the Uniform Desertion and Nonsupport Act. 23 Am J2d Desert § 1. Quitting the society of wife and children and renouncing the duties owed them as a husband and father. Kelley v State, 218 Miss 459, 67 So 2d 459, 44 ALR2d 881.

As a ground for divorce, "desertion" is a voluntary separation of one of the parties to a marriage from the other or the voluntary refusal to renew a suspended cohabitation, without justification either in the consent or the wrongful conduct of the second party; a wilful absence by one spouse from the society of the other with the intention to live apart in spite of the wishes of the other and without any intention to return to cohabitation. 24 Am J2d Div & S § 96.

See constructive desertion; wilful desertion.

Desertion and Nonsupport Act. One of the uniform laws. 23 Am J2d Desert § 125.

desertion by seaman. See desertion.

desertion by soldier or other person in armed services. See desertion.

Desert Lands Act. A federal statute, commonly called the Carey Act, which sets forth a scheme for aiding the reclamation of arid lands in the public land states. 30 Am J1st Irrig § 101.

deserving. Worthy of assistance or of reward. Nichols v Allen, 130 Mass 211, 218.

de servitio regis. See essoin de servitio regis.

des gens. See droit des gens.

desideratum. That which is desired or called for.

design. A purpose, usually combined with a plan, of action; an intent or aim. State v Grant, 86 Iowa 216, 222. A sketch, plan, or pattern. To form a plan. To make a sketch or plan.

See architectural design; formed design.

designate. To mark out and make known; to point out; to name; to indicate. State v Madison State Bank, 77 Mont 498, 251 P 548. To locate definitely, as on a map. Southern Pacific Railroad Co. v United States, 168 US 1, 54, 42 L Ed 355, 378, 18 S Ct 18. To appoint a person to a position to be filled. County of Santa Barbara v Janssens, 177 Cal 114, 169 P 1025.

designation. A marking out; a pointing out; a selection; a naming, e. g. a naming of candidates by a county committee of a political party.

As used in an election law providing that the ballots shall be of plain, white paper, without ornaments, "designation," symbol, or mark, unless there is something in the statute to prevent it, the word must be construed as meaning only such a designation as is in the nature of a mark. State v Saxon, 30 Fla 668, 12 So 218.

designation of beneficiary. The naming by the insured under a life insurance policy of a third person as the one to receive the proceeds of the insurance upon the death of the insured. The clause in a life insurance policy wherein the person to receive the proceeds upon insured's death is named.

designation of homestead. The selection by formal declaration of the land which one desires to stand as his homestead, exempt from a forced sale, required under some statutes as a condition of a homestead right. 26 Am J1st Home § 88.

[342]

designatio personae. A description of the person.

See descriptio personae.

Designatio unius est exclusio alterius, et expressum facit cessare tacitum. The designation of one is the exclusion of the other, and that which is expressed chokes that which is silent.

designed. Planned. Jacobs v Danziger, 328 Mo 458, 41 SW2d 389, 77 ALR 1237, cert den 284 US 675, 76 L Ed 571, 52 S Ct 130.

See design.

design patent. A patent of a design giving a new and pleasing appearance to an article of manufacture, whereby its sale is enhanced. Smith v Whitman Saddle Co. 148 US 674, 37 L Ed 606, 13 S Ct 768; Viehmann v D. F. H. Novelty Furniture Co. (DC NY) 27 F Supp 566.

design to kill. An intent to kill held for an appreciable, even if very brief, period of time. 26 Am J1st Homi § 42.

De similibus ad similia eadem ratione procedendum est. Proceeding in similar matters is by the same rule.

De similibus idem est iudicium. The same judgment is rendered in similar cases.

desire. To wish; to express a wish. A precatory term, but in the proper context, a word of disposition or gift in a will. 57 Am J1st Wills § 1328. A mandatory direction as it appears in a will providing for the payment of inheritance taxes from the residue of the estate. 28 Am J1st Inher T § 488.

desire to improve the premises. A clause in a cancellation provision of a lease, the connotation of which is a desire accompanied by a definite intention of execution and attainment. Woods v Posto Telegraph-Cable Co. 205 Ala 236, 87 So 681, 27 ALR 834.

desmaintenant. From the present time; henceforth.

desmemoriados. (Spanish). A person who is bereft of memory.

de son done. By his own gift.

de son fee. See hors de son fee.

de son gree. Of his own accord.

de son tort. By his own tort or wrong.

See executor de son tort; guardian de son tort; trustee de son tort.

de son tort demesne sans tiel cause. By his own wrong without such cause.

desormes. From the present time, henceforth.

desoubs. Same as dessous.

despatch. Same as dispatch.

desperate chose in action. See desperate debt.

desperate debt. An obligation as to which there is no hope of collection. Schultz v Pulver (NY) 11 Wend 363, 365.

despitus. A despised person.

despoil. To deprive a person of property of which he is in possession by violence or by some clandestine means. Sunol v Hepburn, 1 Cal 255, 268.

desponsation. A betrothal.

desponsorio. (Spanish.) Mutual promises to marry.

despot. An absolute ruler; a tyrant.

despotism. The rule of a tyrant.

desrenable. Unreasonable.

dessication. See de debitore in partes secando.

dessous. Under; underneath; below.

dessus. Above.

de statuto mercatori. A writ of statute merchant.

de statuto stapulae. A writ of statute staple.

destination. The place to which something is sent. The place at which the trip of a passenger, or a shipment of goods, by carrier is to end, which, in the case of a through shipment over two or more lines, is the final or last termination. Home Furniture Co. v United States, 271 US 456, 460, 70 L Ed 1033, 1035, 46 S Ct 545.

The term is not limited to the premises of the carrier where the shipment is unloaded, but means the town or city to which the shipment is sent. Anno: 1 ALR 912.

A succession of beneficiaries provided for in a will.

See port of destination.

destine. To set, ordain, or appoint to a use, purpose, estate or place; to appoint unalterably. United States v Philadelphia & New Orleans (US) 11 How 609, 659, 13 L Ed 834, 855.

destitute. Poor, indigent. 41 Am J1st Poor L § 4. Without means of support either in property or in a person legally bound to furnish support. Supreme Council Catholic Benev. Legion v Grove, 176 Ind 356, 96 NE 159.

See destitute circumstances.

destitute child. See destitute circumstances; destitute person.

destitute circumstances. A relative term. A wife or child is in "destitute circumstances" when in need of the necessities of life, meaning not only primitive physical needs, things absolutely indispensable to human existence and decency, but also things which are in fact necessary to him or her as an individual. State v Waller, 90 Kan 829, 136 P 215.

destitute person. A poor or indigent person. 41 Am J1st Poor L § 4.

See destitute circumstances.

destitute wife. See destitute circumstances; destitute person.

destroy. To tear down; to cause to perish; to break into pieces; to burn up; to make useless for service, beyond hope of recovery of value, as by wrecking a ship through casting her upon rocks or shoals. United States v Johns (US) 4 Dall 412, 417, 1 L Ed 888, 890. But a thing may lose its value without being destroyed, as where a hotel or inn in the country is taken out of the main stream of traffic by a relocation of highway. Jones v Erie & Wyoming Valley Railroad Co. 151 Pa 30, 25 A 134.

destroyed by fire. Total destruction or such damage as renders the property unfit or incapable of being used without rebuilding, not simply repairing. 32 Am J1st L & T § 506.

[343]

See total destruction; total loss; wholly destroyed.

destruction. A wrecking, tearing down, breaking up, or burning up. Sometimes synonymous with "loss." Electric Reduction Co. v Lewellyn (CA3 Pa) 11 F 493. Sometimes accomplished indirectly, without touching the property physically, as where the property is rendered useless. Jones v Erie & Wyoming Valley Railroad Co. 151 Pa 30, 46. But a thing can lose its value without being destroyed. Jones v Erie & Wyoming Railroad Co. 151 Pa 30.

See destroyed by fire; total destruction; wholly destroyed.

destruction of subject matter. The destruction of a thing, the continued existence of which is essential to the performance of a contract. 17 Am J2d Contr § 411.

De sturgione observetur, quod rex illum habebit integrum; de balena veto sufficit, si rex habeat caput, et regina caudam. As to the sturgeon, it is to be noted, that the king shall have the whole of it, but as to the whale, it sufficeth if the king have the head, and the queen the tail. See 1 Bl Comm 222.

desuetude. Disuse.

de suit. See droit de suit.

de superoneratione pasturae. A writ of surcharge of the common of pasture. See 3 Bl Comm 238.

de supersedendo. A writ of supersedeas, which, directed to an officer, commands him to desist from the execution of another writ which he is about to execute, or which may come into his hands.

desus. Same as dessus.

detached dwelling. A term familiar in restrictive covenants limiting construction to "detached dwellings," the courts disagreeing as to whether a covenant in such terms precludes the construction of apartment houses. Anno: 14 ALR2d 1403, § 8.

detachiare. To seize.

detail. A small part or item; an account of a happening which deals minutely with it. A term of the military for a small detachment put to special duty or special tasks, but subject to recall to the ordinary line of duty. State ex rel. Dawson, 39 Ala 367, 379.

detailmen. Employees of an industry whose duties are to travel and discuss and explain the products of the industry, not to wholesalers, but to persons interested as prospective purchasers and users. Eli Lilly & Co. v Sav On Drugs Inc. 366 US 276, 6 L Ed 2d 288, 81 S Ct 1316.

detain. To hold; to keep in custody; to keep.

To detain goods as amounting to a conversion of them means wrongfully to hold them and keep them in one's custody. Wails v Farrington, 27 Okla 754, 116 P 428.

detainer. The act of withholding land from the rightful owner; the restraint of a person without his consent.

See forcible detainer; unlawful detainer.

detainment of kings. See restraints of kings.

detainment of princes. See restraints of princes.

detainment of vessel. Holding in possession or custody, something more than a blockade, since the master is in control of a blockaded vessel. Olivera v Union Ins. Co. (US) 3 Wheat 183, 189, 4 L Ed 365, 366.

de tarris. See judgment de tarris.

detection. Bringing to light; finding out, particularly the person who committed a crime.

detective. One engaged in the detection of crime as a member of a police force or privately.

de tempore cujus contrarium memoria hominum non existat. From the time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

de tempore in tempos, et ad omnia tempora. From time to time, and at all times.

de temps dont memorie ne court. From the time when memory runneth not to the contrary.

detention. Holding one arrested on a charge of crime. Wong Wing v United States, 163 US 228, 235, 41 L Ed 140, 142, 16 S Ct 977.

See commitment; detainment of vessel; restraints of kings; restraints of princes.

deter. To stop one from acting by frightening him; to discourage the performance of an act. Printup v Alexander & Wright, 69 Ga 553, 556.

detergent. A cleansing substance, other than soap, used in washing clothes, dishes, etc., and sometimes added to lubricating oil.

determinable. That which may be determined, found out, definitely decided upon, or settled; as the date of an instrument which, to be negotiable, must, under the Negotiable Instruments Law, be payable at a "determinable" future time. McCornick & Co. v Gem State Oil & Products Co. 38 Idaho 470, 222 P 286, 34 ALR 867, 872.

determinable fee. An estate limited to a person and his heirs, with a qualification annexed by which it is provided that the estate must determine whenever that qualification is at an end; otherwise known as a base fee, qualified fee, or a defeasible fee. Staack v Detterding, 182 Iowa 582, 161 NW 44; King County v Henson Invest. Co. 34 Wash 2d 112, 208 P2d 113.

Upon the grant of a determinable fee there remains in the grantor a possibility of reverter. Donehue v Nilges (Me) 266 SW2d 553, 45 ALR2d 1150.

determinable future time. A fixed period after the occurrence of a specified event, which is certain to happen, though the time of happening is uncertain. Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law § 4(3); 11 Am J2d B & N § 171.

determinate. Ascertained; made certain; definite; having fixed limits.

determination. Firm intention; a conclusion; a cessation; an ending; a termination. A technical term applied to an allowance or disallowance in correcting an error in taxation. See 34 Am J2d Fed Tax ¶ 9172.

determination letter. A written statement issued by the district director of internal revenue in response to a taxpayer's inquiry as to the tax treatment of a particular transaction, primarily with respect to a completed transaction.

determination of adverse claims. A statutory remedy for the determination of adverse claims to real property which is an enlargement upon the equitable remedies of quieting title and removing a cloud on title; designed to afford an easy and expeditious mode of quieting title to real estate. 44 Am J1st Quiet T § 5.

determination of will. Firm intention. The manifestation of the termination of that intention or state of mind which keeps alive an estate at will, by some appropriate act or omission on the part of the lessor or lessee. See 2 Bl Comm 146.

determinative powers. A term more useful than exact, the aim of which is to describe powers and functions involving the decision or determination by an administrative agency of the rights, duties, and obligations of specific individuals and persons, as contrasted with powers of administrative agencies which, while they may involve decisions or determinations in the broadest sense, involve persons generally rather than specially and usually operate only prospectively. 1 Am J2d Admin L § 138.

determine. To terminate; to cease; to end. To put an end to controversy by deciding the issue or issues, by making a settlement, or by adjustment. Field v Auditor, 83 Va 882, 887. Same as "hear and determine" when used by statute with reference to court action, but meaning merely "ascertain," where used in matters not pertaining to judicial process. Ex parte Anderson, 191 Or 409, 229 P2d 633, 230 P2d 770, 29 ALR2d 1051.

See hear and determine.

de terra sancta. Of the holy land.

See essoin de terra sancta.

de terre seynte. See essoin de terre seynte.

de testamentis. Of testaments or wills,—the title of the fifth part of the Digests or Pandects.

de thelonio. A writ for the recovery of tolls.

detinet. He detains.

See debet et detinet.

detinue. A common-law remedy for the recovery in specie of chattels wrongfully withheld from the plaintiff.

See non detinet; writ of detinue.

detinuit. A plaintiff is said to be "in the detinuit" when he is in possession of the goods under a writ of replevin.

detractare. To draw; to drag along.

detractio. Disparagement. A taking away.

See duties of detractio.

de transgressione. A writ of trespass.

detriment. As consideration for a contract, some forbearance, loss, or responsibility, given, suffered, or undertaken by the party; any prejudice suffered or agreed to be suffered by a contracting party other than such as he is at the time of contracting lawfully bound to suffer. 17 Am J2d Contr § 96. Loss or harm suffered in person or in property. Moberg v Scott, 38 SD 422, 161 NW 998; Brown v Brown, 42 Okla 124, 140 P 1022.

detunicari. To discover; to uncover.

Detur digniori. Let it be given to the more deserving one.

de ultra mare. Of beyond the sea,—a kind of essoin.

See essoin de ultra mare.

de una parte. Of one side; unilateral; binding upon but one of the parties.

Deus solus haeredem facere potest, non homo. God alone can make an heir, man cannot.

deuterogamy. The marriage of a person after the death of that person's former spouse. Some authorities confine the definition to the remarriage of a widower.

de uxore abducto. See trespass de uxore abducto.

de uxore rapta et abducta. Of the rape and abduction of a wife,—a writ which lay for a husband to recover damages for the abduction of his wife, whether the act was by force, fraud or persuasion. See 3 Bl Comm 139.

devadiatus. A person charged with crime who was at large without bail or sureties.

devant. Before.

devant le roy. Before the king.

devastation. A state of destruction. Waste. See 2 Bl Comm 508.

devastaverunt. They have committed waste.

devastavit. Mismanagement of the estate and effects of a decedent, or a misapplication or waste of the assets, in violation of the duty imposed upon an executor or administrator. 31 Am J2d Ex & Ad § 265.

de vasto. A writ of waste.

developed water. Such subterranean or underground water as is discovered and brought to the surface by the exploitation of man, and which otherwise would run to waste. Rock Creek Ditch & Flume Co. v Miller, 93 Mont 248, 17 P2d 1074, 89 ALR 200.

developing land. See land development.

development of mine. See mine development.

devenerunt. A writ directing the escheator to ascertain what lands which were held by a tenant in capite should, upon his death, escheat to the king.

Devenio vester homo. I become your man,—formal words which were used by the vassal in the ceremony of homagium, or manhood, whereby the tenant or vassal, after having made oath of fealty, became bound to the lord, under the feudal system. See 2 Bl Comm 54.

devenit. He comes; he comes into.

de ventre inspiciendo. A writ to ascertain whether a woman convicted of a capital crime was quick with child, which was allowed by the common law, in order to guard against the taking of the life of an unborn child for the crime of the mother. The writ was also used in civil cases to protect the rightful succession to the property of a decedent against fraudulent claims of bastards, when a widow was suspected of feigning pregnancy in order to produce a supposititious heir to the estate, in which case the heir or devisee might have this writ to examine whether the woman was pregnant or not, and if she was, to keep her under proper restraint until she was delivered. Union Pacific Rv. Co. v Botsford, 141 US 250, 253, 35 I, Ed 734, 738, 11 S Ct 1000.

[345]

de verbo in verbum. From word to word,—word for word.

de verborum significatione. Of or concerning the meaning of words,—the title of that part of the Digests or Pandects which defined words and phrases of the Roman law.

devest. To deprive.

deviation. A departure by the owner of an easement of way from the path or road over the servient tenement which he is entitled to use. 25 Am J2d Ease § 70.

See deviation from route.

deviation by carrier. See deviation from route.

deviation by ship. See deviation from route.

deviation doctrine. A doctrine involving the liability of the master for the negligence of his servant in driving the master's car, that if the use to which the automobile is being put is only a slight deviation from the use for which permission was originally granted, the permission is not vitiated. Johnson v Maryland Casualty Co. (CA 7 Wis) 125 F2d 337.

deviation from route. A change from the usual or customary route, a term usually employed in the law in reference to a carrier or other bailee entrusted with property for transportation. 4 Am J2d Ani § 7. A technical term in the law of carriers, of maritime origin but extended to include land transportation, meaning a change of route from the customary route, such being actionable only where it was voluntary and without necessity or reasonable cause. 13 Am J2d Car § 324. A voluntary variation constituting an abandonment of the voyage insured by marine policy. Wilkins v Tobacco Ins. Co. 30 Ohio St 317.

