INTRODUCTION

(FOR THE STUDENT)

Bagus sekali!

Bagus sekali! 3 is the third level of a three-stage Indonesian course, following on from Bagus sekali! 1 and 2. It provides you with challenges to extend your learning and make your language use more sophisticated, as well as providing you with lots of opportunity to practise and use the Indonesian you already know!

You will get to know Nurita, Yeyen, Hadi, Imam and Hendri, Indonesian teenagers from Yogyakarta, and see what their lives are really like. Bagus sekali! 3 is a great opportunity to get close to real life in Java, Indonesia, without actually getting on a plane!

Each chapter (langkah) starts with a photo-story that gives you a quick insight into the life of a teenager in Yogyakarta. Through the photo-stories you will learn about the friendships, troubles and day-to-day experiences of Nurita, Yeyen, Hadi, Imam and Hendri, and later get to meet two other friends, Wahyu and Ipu.

All the new things you will learn in each langkah are in the photo-story, and you can come back to it as often as you like. If you look at the list of words at the end of the photo-story (Kata-kata baru), and the hints on grammar (Tidak begitu susah!) before you read and listen to the photo-stories, you will have a good handle on any new language. You might like to look at the photos and skim-read them first as well, to get the gist of what's happening before you cover it in class.

Speaking drills: Cobalah ini!

Speaking in another language is often tricky – so all the new sentences and phrases you will need are taken out of the photo-stories and practised in small, bite-sized pieces in this section called Cobalah ini! This will let you ask and answer questions in bahasa Indonesia until you feel comfortable with the new language.

The trick to these sections is to change the bits in bold. This means that you practise the same sentence structures, but with lots of different examples. Another hint is to take note of the bullets and triangles – they'll tell you when a different person should be speaking. Here is an example from page 6:

A Ask about someone's personality.

● Bagaimana sifat Imam?

(Here you change the name.)

▲ Imam/Dia ramah dan lucu.

(Here your partner changes the adjective.)

They can use Imam or Dia in the sentence.)

Extended speaking activities: Bicara bebas!

Once you do a drill a few times, you'll have it to use in any situation, so you can try it out in your next percakapan (conversation). This section, called Bicara bebas! (Talk freely!), deliberately uses the phrases and sentences you have just been practising in the drills, and gives you a chance to have a real conversation. The situation might be on the phone, doing a survey, making up a role-play, presenting a TV segment etc. It's where you and your friends get to put together questions and answers, opinions, thoughts, feelings and so on, and really get to use your Indonesian!

Pair, group or whole class activity?

These buttons which are usually displayed next to a Bicara bebas! activity, give you a quick idea of how many people you'll need to work with. Some activities can work well in a variety of different group sizes. In these cases there's no button – it's up to you and your teacher.

Refer to:

Refer to: p 14 Pe-nouns and Occupations

This is another helpful tip which you will see connected to activities, especially Bicara bebas!, where you are using the Indonesian phrases you've just learnt. These reference points will give you more information about the language points being practised.

Extension: Berani coba?

The heading Berani coba? offers you a challenge, which you can accept if you are berani coba (brave enough to try)! This section will give you ideas on other things you can do with the new language you're learning and it's great to do if you're already finished your activity. So, challenge yourself – see how far you can go!

Grammar and language explanations: Tidak begitu susah!

This section explains what is really going on 'behind the scenes' with the language you are learning. It shows you how things are put together, how they work, and how you can be in control. There are always examples to show you how it's done, tips on what to look out for, and reminders of things you've already learnt. It's deliberately designed to be tidak begitu susah! (not too hard!) so jangan kuatir! (don't worry!).

Reading segments: Bacalah ini!

There are lots of opportunities to read different pieces of information in Bahasa Indonesia, taken from real situations, to help your comprehension skills. You'll read from text types such as:

- recipes
- quizzes
- horoscopes
- magazine articles
- diary entries
- tourist brochures
- emails
- photo-stories
- poems
- role-plays
- songs
- catalogue entries
- packaging
- letters
- advertising
- signs

Footnotes are provided to help you out with unfamiliar words. You don't have to learn these – so they're not included in the Kata-kata baru of the langkah or in the Kosa kata at the back of the textbook. They will just help you to understand the text type you are reading.

New words: Kata-kata baru, Useful phrases and Kosa kata

Each langkah has a list of the new words that have just been introduced. As each langkah progresses the new words introduced will build on your knowledge from the previous langkah. It's a great idea to keep your own progressive wordlist as you work with each langkah, perhaps in a Word document or Excel spreadsheet.

Look out for the section called Useful phrases. They will help you become familiar with the new things you are learning to say. The Kosa kata (vocabulary list) in the back of the book has a full list of all new words that have been introduced. This is a great spot to check any time that you are searching for words yourself! Note that the sections marked Footnotes have not been included in the Kosa kata.

Cultural sections: Indonesia asyik!

As the name suggests, Indonesia has a lot of fantastic and interesting things to learn about. In these sections you'll find information about these, as well as hints for good etiquette when you're in Indonesia. You'll get information that will really give you insights into a country so close to, but so different from, Australia. And you'll develop an understanding of Indonesia which will really help you use your language skills with confidence!

Maps: Peta Indonesia and Peta Jawa

There are two main maps in this Textbook. One is of Indonesia, while the other is of the island of Java, where Nurita, Yeyen, Hadi, Imam and Hendri live! These maps will help you locate the places talked about in each langkah as well as give you extra information and geographical features.

Workbook: Buku catatan

Your personal Workbook gives you opportunities to practise writing the new expressions you are learning. It also provides you with loads of fun listening activities, puzzles and extra activities to do when you're not busy speaking and listening!

Teacher's Electronic Resource (TER)

When you see the TER symbol in the textbook it means that there are materials in the Teacher's Electronic Resource to support the activity you are doing. There are also tips on how the activities can be used, changed or extended to suit your classroom. Also extra game cards, worksheets and printable copymasters which can't fit into the textbook will be found in the TER – so it can save you and your teacher a lot of time!

Audio CDs

Listening to real Indonesian speakers is the only way to properly train your ear to the authentic sounds of bahasa Indonesia. The Audio CDs let you experience being immersed in the language while you are sitting in the classroom. You'll be listening to the CDs for the photo-stories, listening activities, songs and some reading sections, and to practise making your pronunciation sound really accurate!

Now that the sections of your Bagus sekali! 3 course have been explained...Mudah-mudahan semua jelas? Jadi, jangan malu, ya! Langsung belajar bahasa Indonesia dan semoga sukses!

good luck!

*Hopefully that makes it all clear? So don't hold back! Get straight into learning Indonesian, and BAHASA INDONESIA: WHICH SPELLING?

Capai, cape or capek? Don't worry, they all mean the same thing!

Bahasa Indonesia has considerable variation in spelling and usage of the language, as it is continually in a process of change. (It is similar to English in this respect, for example 'shop' is no longer spelt 'shoppe'.) Bahasa Indonesia is also influenced not only by the Western world, but also by its many regional dialects.

So don't worry if you see Indonesian words which are slightly different to the ones you use, often they are both correct! A good example of this is the word for 'friend'. Both teman and kawan are equally acceptable, and for simplicity this book has used teman only. However kawan can be used instead any time you like.

Here is a list of words and the variation we have used, to make things a bit clearer.

Standard Indonesian	Popular variation	Meaning	Variation used in Bagus sekali!
cokelat	coklat	chocolate	coklat
capai	cape, capek	tired	cape
cabai	cabe	chilli	cabe
negara	negeri	country	negara
Inggris	Inggeris	English	Inggris
kari	kare	curry	kari
cecah	cicak	gecko	cicak
bus	bis	bus	bis
khawatir	kuatir, kawatir	to worry	kuatir
keraton	kraton	palace	keraton
musik rock	musik rock	rock music	musik rock
musik jaz	musik jazz	jazz music	musik jazz
menelepon	menelpon	to telephone/call	menelepon
Australia	Australi	Australia	Australia
Italia	Itali	Italy	Italia

Usually the popular usage is more common in conversation and is less formal. This is worth bearing in mind as it is wise to choose standard Indonesian when writing more formal, extended pieces!

The language used in this textbook is standard formal and informal Indonesian, with some examples of slang in Langkah 6 and 8. The latest Kamus Besar (2nd edition) is the source used for accuracy. The aim of Bagus sekali! is to help you communicate effectively in Indonesian, so less formal language, which is appropriate between friends, is used in the dialogue of the photo-stories which begin every langkah. More formal language is used in the captions.

Hati-hati! In more casual speech, Indonesians often drop the first part of the verb. Here are some examples from the second photo-story in Langkah 4:

- ...Saya mau beli CD yang ini...
- ...I want to buy this CD...
- ...saya punya banyak sekali koleksi Mozart di rumah.
- ...I've got a really big collection of Mozart at home.

Beli and punya are examples of ber- and me-verbs that have been shortened to make them sound really casual.

The main point to remember is that it is fine to use popular usage and even sometimes some slang when you are around your friends, but try to stick with standard Indonesian when you are writing formal letters, doing assignments, or addressing people you don't know.

Which 'you'?

Don't forget to pay special attention to this rule when you use the word 'you'.

anda	formal and necessary when addressing someone older or someone you don't know. You may also use Ibu or Bapak here too kamu engkau	fine with friends and brothers/sisters (but not with your Bu or Pak !) only okay with very close friends or younger children

Me-verbs table

Just for your reference!

Prefix word	Base word begins with...	Example	Meaning	Base me-	l	melihat	to see	lihat
	m	memandikan	to wash someone	mandi
	n	menyanyi	to sing	nyanyi
	r	merusak	to destroy	rusak
	w	merwarnai	to colour in	warna
mem-	b	membantu	to help	bantu
	p → , p'	memotong	to cut	potong
men-	d	mendengar	to hear	dengar
	j	menjemput	to pick up someone (from airport etc.)	jemput
	c	mencari	to look for	cari
	y	meyakinkan	to convince someone	yakin
	t → , t'	menulis	to write	tulis
meng-	h	menghapus	to erase	hapus
	g	menggosok	to brush	gosok
	a	mengambil	to fetch	ambil
	e	mengeja	to spell	eja
	i	mengisi	to fill up	isi
	o	mengobrol	to chat	obrol
	u	mengukir	to carve	ukir
	k → , k'	mengirim	to send	kirim
meny-	s → , s'	menyebut	to mention	sebut

It is important when using these rules not to get too worried about remembering all of them at once – the trick is just to remember one word in each category that sticks with you. For example: membaca or membawa. You will then have automatically remembered the rule for all base words starting with b-, and so on.

HAI! KENALKAN, KAMI DARI YOGYA!

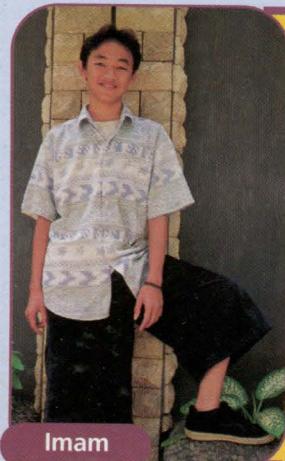

Do you know where Yogyakarta is? It's the cultural capital of Indonesia, on the island of Java – and it's our home!

HATI-HATI!

It is common in Indonesia to shorten words for convenience. For example favorit becomes fav. Note that this is only used in casual situations like conversations or in magazines.

KENALKAN

YOGYAKARTA

Indonesia's cultural capital city!

Ayo ikut kita ke tempat-tempat yang sangat menarik di kota Yogyakarta!

Jalan Malioboro

Yogyakarta

Jalan Malioboro – Malioboro Street

Jalan Malioboro is one of the main tourist destinations in Yogyakarta, as it is always alive and bustling. The cultural focus of the city attracts a lot of tourists to Yogyakarta, and Jalan Malioboro is famous for being crammed with stalls – selling everything you can imagine, and usually for a good price! It is now Yogyakarta's prime commercial area for all kinds of business people from wealthy tycoons to streetsellers who use its footpaths to sell a few small items.

Modern music in Yogyakarta

Yogyakarta is also famous for its vibrant music industry and great nightlife. In the last five years the music industry in Yogyakarta has really expanded. Yogyakarta is now only second to Bandung and Jakarta, the two centres of modern Indonesian music. There's a real variety of music here from pop, rock, ska, funk and dance music. Lots of bands play to all hours of the morning in pubs, cafés and clubs. Often musicians start playing in school bands, and then go on to form their own groups. While there are heaps of cover bands, there are also lots of bands who write their own original music, such as Sheila on 7.

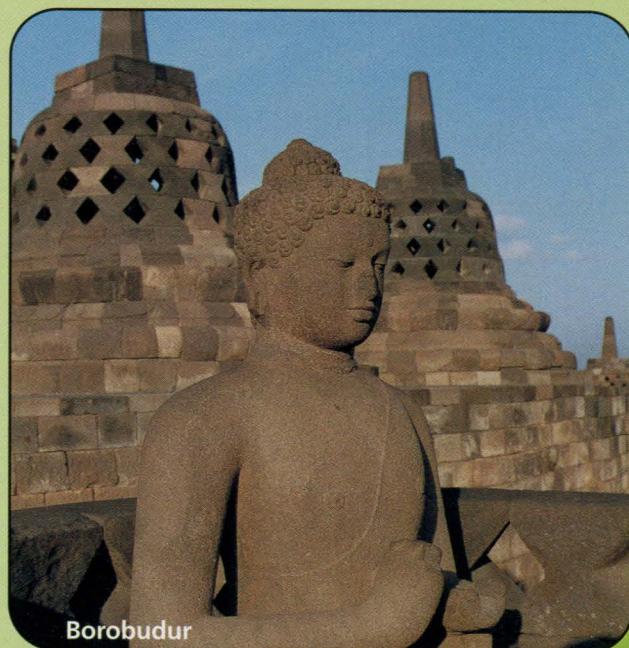

Candi Borobudur and Candi Prambanan

On the plain of Kedu, near Yogyakarta, stand the largest examples of sacred architecture in Java. Here stands the beautiful Hindu temple complex of Prambanan, as well as the world-famous Hindu-Buddhist temple of Borobudur.

Candi Borobudur

Borobudur is one of the greatest Buddhist temples in the world. However, the initial construction was planned and started by Hindu builders around 775 AD. It was later finished by the Sailendra kings during the Buddhist Sailendra dynasty from 790 to 850 AD. Soon after this, the Sailendra kings moved their court to East Java and for centuries the site lay forgotten, buried under layers of volcanic ash and jungle growth. It wasn't until 1815 that it was re-discovered by the then British Lieutenant Governor of Java, Sir Stamford Raffles. In the early 1900s the Dutch rulers of Indonesia began the first restoration of Borobudur. In 1973 another restoration project was started on the monument. It took 10 years and US$21 million to complete it!

Walking around Borobudur's circular series of terraces, with their elaborate carvings, you symbolically spiral upward from the everyday world to a state of absolute nothingness or, as Buddhists call it, Nirvana (heaven). Near the top there are 72 small stupas (bell shapes), each containing a beautiful, large statue of the Buddha. It is said that if you reach through the spaces in the stone bell-shape and touch the Buddha with your hand it will bring you good luck and what you wish for will come true!

Borobudur

Candi Prambanan

Prambanan Temple was constructed in the middle of the 9th century, about 50 years after Candi Borobudur was finished. It is easily the most outstanding example of Hindu architecture in Indonesia. It is actually a complex of temples called Candi Loro Jonggrang, but is better known Prambanan. The temple gets its name from the village of Prambanan where it is located.

Candi Prambanan Yogyakarta

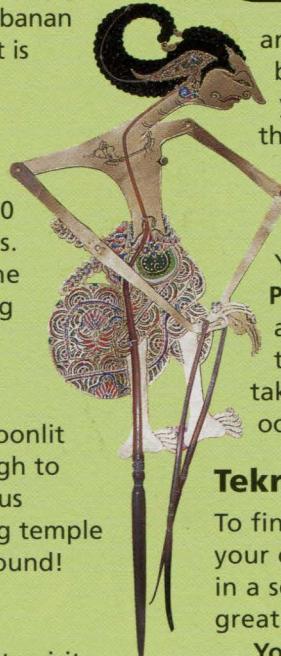

Prambanan contains more than 250 temples, most of which are in ruins. There are eight main temples in the central courtyard, the largest being the temple to the Hindu Goddess Shiva.

If you visit the temple on a clear moonlit night you might just be lucky enough to see a live performance of the famous Ramayana Ballet, with this haunting temple structure silhouetted in the background!

There's so much more!

Yogya has so many fantastic places to visit, from the sultan's palace called the Keraton to all the fascinating batik factories, silversmith's shops and wayang kulit makers – you will have to bring an extra bag for all the shopping! If you've got time you can stay and study these arts yourself, since Yogya has heaps of cultural schools and art courses.

Nah! Kita sedang di Keraton, menunggu pertunjukan gamelan, tapi ada banyak tempat lain yang bagus sekali! Ayo, datanglah ke Yogyakarta!

Keren, ya?

You can also visit the beautiful beach of Parangtritis, not far away, and find out more about the local legend of Nyai Roro Kidul, the queen of the south seas who likes to take swimmers wearing green under the ocean to keep for herself!

Tekno tips!

To find out more about Yogyakarta you can do your own Internet research. Use these key words in a search for loads more information and great images:

You are a film star who has just been shown a great script for the latest blockbuster multi-million dollar movie. But another actor (your partner) desperately wants to get the same part. (You can choose whatever kind of film you want.)

Argue with your partner about why you should be the star of the film. Talk them out of auditioning by pointing out all your good qualities. Really rub it in by listing their bad points!

Celebrity heads – class activity

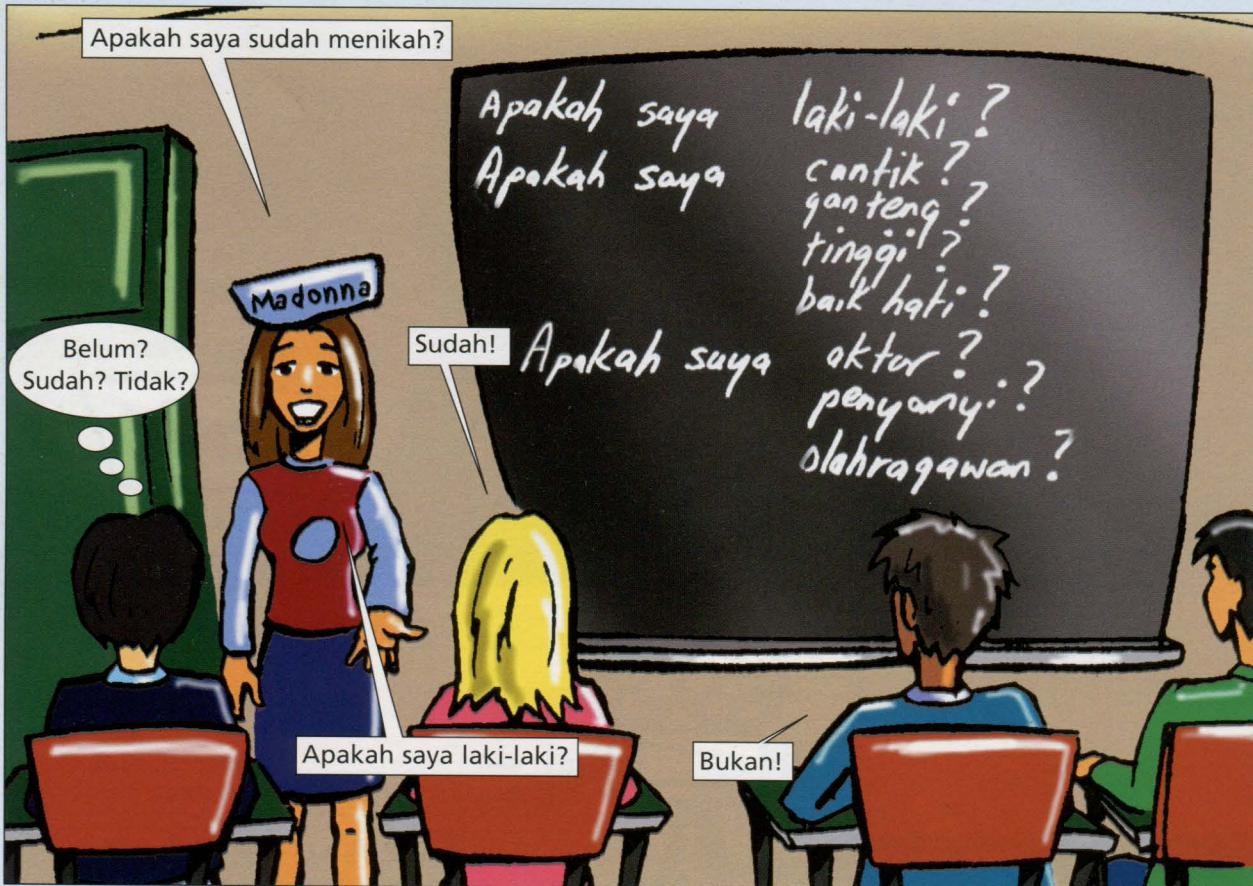

As a class, brainstorm all the typical questions you need to use for finding out about a person – their physical characteristics, personality traits, star sign, occupation etc. Have all these questions on a whiteboard in Indonesian so everyone can see them. The questions must be answered with a yes/no response.

Using some masking tape or sticky labels, and a Texta, write the name of a well-known film star, sporting hero or musician, who is still alive, on each strip. Stick your label on a classmate's forehead, without them seeing who their celebrity is.

The person wearing the label needs to find out who their famous person is, using Apakah...? questions, e.g.: Apakah saya tinggi? (Am I tall?), Apakah saya sudah menikah? (Am I married?). The class answers with: ya, tidak, bukan, or belum and sudah.

Hint! Ask your teacher for examples of questions if you get stuck!

BERANI COBA?

Have more 'celebrities' out the front of the class, or work in small groups.

Yang penting cewek harus berani dan ramah. Kalau terlalu diam dia membosankan.

Nurita

Saya suka cowok yang ramah dan sportif, tapi dia juga harus sopan di depan keluarga saya!

Hendri

3 Pe-nouns

As with lots of Indonesian words a prefix can be added to the front of a base word to change its meaning slightly.

pe- The pe-prefix usually gives us the person (or thing) who performs the action of the base word.

base word	verb	pe-noun
nyanyi	sing	menyanyi
masak	cook	memasak
tulis	write	menulis
main	play	bermain

HATi-HATi!

It sometimes helps to think that pe = person.

Pe-nouns generally follow the same rules as me-verbs do when they join a base word. Some exceptions are: pekerja, petenis, pejalan kaki and pedagang, because they don't change the first letter of their base word.

The pe-prefix also applies when you look at personality traits. For example:

base word	pe-noun
berani	a brave person
malu	a shy person
diam	a quiet person

It's important to understand the difference between an adjective like diam and a personality trait like pendiam.

Ibu saya diam.

My mother is quiet (right now) or Mum didn't say anything, she was just quiet, but Ibu saya pendiam.

My mother is a quiet person.

Because pendiam is a noun, it has to be negated with bukan.

Imam bukan pendiam.

Imam is not a quiet person.

4 Occupations: When I grow up I want to be an astronaut!

To talk about what job you want to do when you are older, use:

Kalau saya sudah besar, saya mau menjadi...

Kalau saya sudah besar, saya mau menjadi astronaut!
When I grow up I want to be an astronaut!

Kalau kamu sudah besar, kamu mau menjadi apa?
What do you want to be when you grow up?

Kalau saya sudah besar,
saya mau menjadi milioner!

5 Occupations: Tukang, juru atau ahli?

Another handy set of words to know, especially when you are talking about occupations, is:

tukang	tradesperson, skilled labourer	tukang becak	becak driver
juru	professional, skilled worker	juru tulis	writer (= penulis)
ahli	highly trained expert	ahli komputer	computer expert

6 Occupations: -wan, -wati

You will notice some words in Indonesian end in -wan or -wati. This usually only applies to occupations, and tells you whether the person is male (-wan) or female (-wati). Here's an example:

peragawati	female model	peragawan	male model
------------	--------------	-----------	------------

Sometimes the ending -wan can be used for both males and females, just as the ending '-man' (chairman, spokesman) was used in English. The most common ones are:

olahragawan	athlete, sportsperson
pustakawan	librarian
wartawan	journalist

7 How to agree and disagree: saya (tidak) setuju!

To agree with someone, you simply use saya setuju. To disagree, you use saya tidak setuju, but don't forget to do it calmly, Indonesian-style.

Yeyen: Saya tidak setuju! Suara kamu jelek!

I don't agree! Your voice is awful!

8 Terms of address: adik-adik

Adik is a polite term of address for speaking to a younger person in an everyday situation. It comes from the family term meaning younger brother or sister. You can use adik-adik to speak to a group of younger people, just as the waitress does in the photo-story when she speaks to Nurita and her friends:

Mau minum apa, adik-adik?

What would you like to drink, guys?

Apakah Hendri sportif?

Ya, Hendri sportif sekali!

JANGAN LUPA!

When you want to ask a question that has a yes/no answer we use Apakah? Think of Apakah? as a '?', which changes a normal statement into a question.

Dia pemalu.

He is shy.

Apakah dia pemalu?

Is he shy?

This is very useful for finding out lots of information about someone new, or for playing celebrity heads!

KUIS: Kamu mau menjadi apa?

Pair work. Quiz your partner to find out what career they are suited to. Circle the letter in the appropriate column. At the end of the quiz, count up to see which letter (o, k, a, s) occurs most frequently. This will show you which box you should read.

Pertanyaan	selalu	biasanya	kadang-kadang	jarang
1 Kamu suka bercakap-cakap.	o	k	a	s
2 Kamu suka bermain dengan binatang.	k	o	s	a

Maaf – sepatunya harus dibuka, ya!

Oh! Maaf, ya!

Tidak apa apa.

Maaf, Mick, Bapak sedang tidur siang. Ini adik Hadi.

Selamat siang, Mick. Nama saya Bu Lelly.

Orang
Australia aneh, ya? Dia

Dia tidak sisakan nasi goreng sedikitpun!

Mick hampir menghabiskan semua nasi goreng itu.

Tinggal dua sendok lagi!...harus terus sampai habis...

Sudah kenyang? Tambah lagi, Mick?

Anu...

Apakah saya kurang sopan kalau bilang 'Tidak, terima kasih' sekarang?

Mmm, enak sekali, Bu! Pasti Ibu pemasak yang terbaik! Terima kasih untuk nasi gorengnya, Bu!

GROUP ACTIVITY

Refer to: p 31 Show some respect! and Visiting others at home
pp 19–20 Photo-story

1 Silakan masuk!

Please come in! – small group activity

In small groups, role-play the photo-story from this chapter. This time, the visitor from overseas should do and say all the right things! Perform it for the class when everyone is ready. Of course you can add in your own names if you want to!

For example,
instead of this:

You would now say:

BERANI COBA?

Using the photo-story as well as Cobalah ini! 1, 2 and 3 in this chapter, write and perform your own role-play about visiting a friend's house in Indonesia.

Remember to include all the do's and don'ts, as well as small talk and compliments. Don't forget to correct any mistakes the characters make! Be as creative as you like. Use your real names or make up new characters.

BICARA BEBAS!

GROUP ACTIVITY

Refer to: p 30 What's up?
p 31 Please, please, please or please?
p 32 Leaving politely

2 Siapa kamu?

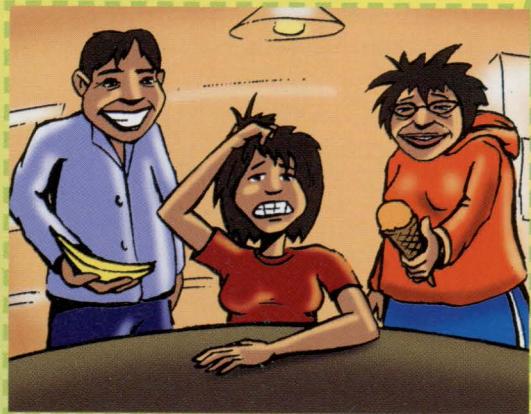

Who are you? Mini role-plays – small groups (up to 6 people)

Roll a dice (or think of a number between 1 and 6) to find out which character you are.

Characters

	Nama	Umur	Sifat
1	Bu Sulis	32 tahun	Sabar & cerdas
2	Pak Tono	41 tahun	Lucu & ramah
3	Nenek Siti	60 tahun	Trendi & sombang
4	Kakek Ali	63 tahun	Baik hati & pemalu
5	Ani	17 tahun	Pe-de & cerewet
6	Mark	15 tahun (dari Australia)	Santai & ramah

Now someone from your group should roll a dice to choose a place (where your role-play will be set), and a challenge to try to include in the role-play.

Places

- 1 Di rumah makan
- 2 Di rumah keluarga
- 3 Di pasar
- 4 Di rumah teman
- 5 Di jalan saja
- 6 Di taman

Challenges

- 1 Hari ulang tahun
- 2 Mau makan malam
- 3 Mau bercakap-cakap
- 4 Mau membaca majalah
- 5 Mau makan mangga
- 6 Mau ke bioskop

For example:

Characters: Nenek Siti, Ani, Bapak (Pak Tono)

Place: Di rumah keluarga

Challenge: Mau makan mangga

Bapak: Selamat sore, Ani.

Ani: Selamat sore, Pak. Boleh minta mangganya, Pak?

Bapak: Silakan.

Ani: Pak! Ini bukan mangga, ini pisang! Bapak lucu!

Bapak: Oh, maaf, ya!

Ani: Selamat sore, Nenek.

Nenek: He!! Selamat sore, Ani. Mau ikut bersilancar dengan saya?

Ani: Oh, maaf – saya mau makan di rumah saja!

Nenek: Wah, kamu tidak begitu keren! Mau ikut makan di McDonald's?

Ani: Tidak, Nenek, saya mau makan mangga saja.

Nenek: Silakan! Ini. Selamat makan!

Ani: Nenek, ini es krim mangga, ini bukan mangga! Waduh!

Make up a small role-play using the information you have. Remember to pay attention to the polite way of doing things and using the words silakan, selamat, tolong, boleh minta, sayang, boleh as much as you can.

Perform the role-play for the class, or video-tape it!

MARI BERMAIN!

CLASS ACTIVITY

Refer to: p 31 Don't do it!

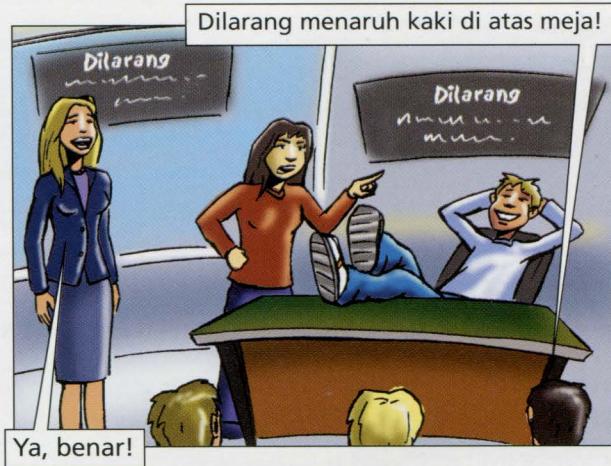

Dilarang!

You can't do that! – whole class activity

The class is divided into equal teams. Each team takes it in turns to mime a 'forbidden' activity. The other teams compete to tell the mime artist that what he or she is doing is dilarang. The information must be relayed in a full Indonesian sentence. Only one person from each team may try to answer – but the team members can ask each other for help!

Teams score one point for each correct answer. The first team to score 5 points wins.

For variation you can use tidak boleh or jangan which make the instruction a little more polite!

BERANI COBA?

Schools are full of rules! Think of all the things that are dilarang in your classroom and make signs and posters in Indonesian showing them.

Your teacher has more examples in the Teacher's Electronic Resource if you run out of ideas.

TIDAK BEGiTU SUSAH!

1 What's up? Ada apa?

The phrase ada apa? is often used in casual conversations and on the telephone. It means 'what's up?' or 'what's going on?'. Ada apa? can be used in either positive or negative situations, when the person asking needs a bit more information.

2 Thanks for that! Terima kasih atas...!/Terima kasih untuk...!

When you want to thank someone for something formally you'll need to use either terima kasih untuk... or terima kasih atas...

terima kasih untuk... This is used to thank someone for an object such as a gift or food.

Terima kasih untuk nasi gorengnya, Bu.

Thanks for the nasi goreng, Bu.

Terima kasih untuk hadiah ini!

Thanks for the present.

terima kasih atas... This is used to thank someone for something abstract, such as their kindness, help, advice, friendship or an invitation to do something.

Terima kasih atas nasihat anda.

Thank you for your good advice.

Terima kasih atas kebaikan anda.

Thank you for your kindness.

Terima kasih atas bantuan anda.

Thank you for your help.

Jangan lupa! You'll need to use anda in formal situations, kamu with your friends.

3 Well...you see...it's like this! Begini, begitu

Begini and begitu are used frequently in Indonesian and are two handy words to be aware of. They may start or end a sentence to emphasise the point and say 'it's like this/that'. It's no accident that the words ini (this) and itu (that) are part of these words.

begini	like this
begitu	like that

Here are some examples of how begini and begitu are used:

Mick: Oh, begitu, ya! Terima kasih atas nasihat kamu!

Oh, really! Thanks for your advice!

Begini, saya ke rumah teman, lalu...

It was like this, I went to my friend's house, then...

You have also seen begitu used before an adjective, which emphasises the adjective.

Tidak begitu cocok.

It's not that suitable.

Tidak begitu susah!

It's not that difficult!

Mengapa dia begitu nakal?

Why was he so naughty?

4 Please, please, please or please??? Boleh, boleh minta, tolong atau silakan

There isn't just one word for 'please' in Indonesian, so you have to think about what situation you're using it in. These words all mean 'please', and are used when you want to be very polite.

boleh	Am I allowed to, please?
boleh minta	Could I have that, please?
tolong	Will you help me, please? (by doing something for me)
silakan	Would you like to do this, please? or Please, be my guest.

There are even a few more words for 'please', but these should cover most situations for you! Here are some examples of how they are used:

Boleh saya ke bioskop, Bu? Am I allowed to go to the cinema, Mum?

Boleh minta air? Could I please have some water?

Tolong, bukakan pintu. Could you please open the door.

Silakan duduk. Please have a seat.

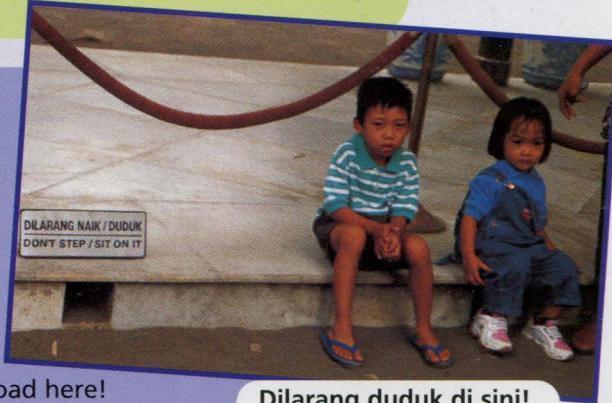

5 Don't do it! Dilarang!

As with a lot of public places in Australia, Indonesia also has signs telling you if you are not allowed to do something. It is therefore important that you know the word dilarang so you don't do the wrong thing!

Here are some examples of dilarang signs:

Dilarang masuk! No entry!

Dilarang menyeberang jalan di sini! Don't cross the road here!

Dilarang duduk di sini!

6 Where do you come from? Kamu berasal dari mana?

It is very typical in Indonesia to ask lots of questions of a person when you are getting to know them – it isn't considered an invasion of privacy. Questions like Berapa umurmu? or Berapa orang di keluargamu? usually follow Siapa namamu? You will then probably hear Kamu berasal dari mana? to ask where you come from. To answer, here's some variations:

Kamu berasal dari negara mana?	What country are you from?
Saya berasal dari negara Australia.	I'm from Australia.
Kamu berasal dari negara bagian mana?	What state are you from?
Saya berasal dari negara bagian NSW.	I'm from NSW.
Kamu berasal dari kota mana?	What city are you from?
Saya berasal dari kota Sydney.	I'm from Sydney.
Kamu orang apa?	What nationality are you?
Saya orang Australia.	I'm Australian.

7 Use of -pun! Sedikitpun!

There are many uses of the particle -pun in Indonesian. Sometimes it is used like juga to mean 'also', sometimes it is used to link two sentences together, or sometimes it is used to give emphasis to a word or phrase.

In this chapter we are using -pun for emphasis. Look at this example from the photo-story when Hadi's sister complains:

Dia tidak sisakan nasi goreng sedikitpun!

He didn't even leave a little bit of nasi goreng!

You'll notice that -pun is attached to the base word sedikit to form sedikitpun meaning 'even a little bit'. It emphasises the nasi goreng in this sentence by immediately following it.

8 Back-to-front sentences: Passive sentences

In the photo-story of this chapter you might have noticed strange things happening to some of the sentences. Did you think that some of them seemed a bit back-to-front?

Have a look at these ones:

Sepatunya harus dibuka!

(The) shoes must be taken off.

Semua nasi goreng itu dihabiskan dia.

All that nasi goreng was finished off by him.

You'll notice that in each sentence the object ('shoes' or 'nasi goreng') comes at the beginning of the sentence.

These are called object-focused sentences – or passive sentences. This is because the thing or object is the focus and comes first in the sentence, while the person acting in the sentence comes later (or is even left out completely).

Passive sentences are often used in Indonesian, especially when you are trying to be polite. They take the focus away from the person. In the sentence Sepatunya harus dibuka the person isn't even mentioned. When Hadi is telling Mick to take his shoes off he avoids making Mick feel uncomfortable by using a passive sentence to focus on the shoes!

You will learn special rules about writing these sentences in Langkah 3, 4, and 8, but for now just look out for sentences that seem a bit backwards!

9 Leaving politely: Permisi dulu

When you want to leave a social gathering in Indonesia, you should always excuse yourself politely. You should use expressions like these:

Permisi dulu, ya?

Excuse me/Sorry, I've got to go now.

Permisi, saya harus pulang dulu.

Excuse me/Sorry, I've got to go home now.

INDONESIA ASYIK!

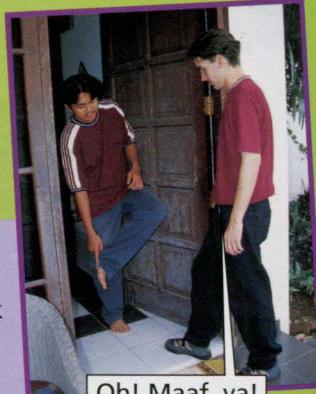

1 Show some respect!

In Indonesian it is often important to soften what you are saying so that it doesn't come out sounding abrupt or rude, particularly when you are speaking to people older than yourself, or to authority figures like police officers, customs officials, bank managers etc.

Think about how you respond to other people in your school. Have you noticed that when you speak politely to people that they respond better? It's the same in Indonesian.

To make sure you don't offend anyone in Indonesia, here are some hints:

- Make sure your tone of voice is calm and soft. Don't use demands or aggression, even when things aren't working out.
- Try to use some passive sentences so you don't sound too bossy or self-centred by starting all your sentences with Saya...
- Smile, and remember to use the 'please' words!
- If things really go wrong just say Minta maaf as politely as possible and hope you'll be forgiven!!

Oh! Maaf, ya!

2 Visiting others at home

A good time to visit Indonesian families is around dusk between 4 and 6 pm – the sore part of the day. Avoiding the tidur siang (afternoon nap) time between 2 and 4 pm is usually wise. Calling out Permisii as you approach rather than just knocking is more common. It lets the host know you are coming and you will probably hear the response Silakan masuk before you get to the door.

Ruang tamu

Most houses have a ruang tamu, or guest room, at the front of the house, specifically for entertaining. It is quite usual to remove your shoes at the door before entering, helping keep the house free from dirt and mud from the streets. In less formal situations, especially with teenagers, it is often common to sit on the verandah when friends drop around!

Makanan kecil

Whenever you visit a friend at home in Indonesia, you will almost always be offered a snack and a drink. Things like hot, sweet tea – served in a glass with a silver lid, and little cakes – sometimes with unusual combinations of toppings like grated cheese on chocolate icing – are quite common!

It is considered polite to accept an invitation to eat if your host insists on bringing out snacks and a drink when visiting, as a refusal will usually offend.

Kue-kue Indonesia

That would be almost like saying the food or drinks aren't good enough!

It is important to remember that even if you are not hungry or thirsty you should still show your host you are grateful by having a sip of the drink and a nibble of the snack. It is OK not to finish it all, in fact if you do your host will try to offer more as a polite gesture to make sure you are satisfied. But it's not OK to simply refuse food or drink that is put in front of you. Sometimes it's OK to refuse the first offer of food, if you are merely passing by, or have called in unexpectedly and it seems like a bad time, in which case your host is being polite but probably hopes you don't stay for tea and won't keep insisting!

It would be impolite to bring your own snacks to eat when visiting, although bringing small regional specialities or treats as presents is fine.

Hai, Mick,

Terima kasih untuk e-mail kamu! It's great to hear from you. How was your trip home? Do you miss Indonesia yet?

I know what you mean about school and all the homework! Things here are still pretty much the same. Everyone says Hai.

About your assignment for Indonesian: I found the pictures of my cousin Ririen's wedding in Bandung and got them scanned in for you. I hope all the pictures come through all right with the email and they help with your Indo assignment!

Let me know if you need foto lagi.

I'll explain the ceremony as I go along. It was a traditional Sundanese (West Javanese) wedding ceremony, because Ririen was born in West Java and was marrying a Sundanese guy. (If I went to a Javanese wedding here in Yogyakarta, it'd be similar but the couple would be wearing different clothes and have different music and so on.)

Because we had to go to Bandung, where my cousins and aunty and uncle live, for the wedding, I had to take a few days off school! Sayang!

Before I went I had to buy a new batik shirt to wear - weddings are so formal here! But hey, at least we don't have to wear ties and jackets!

This was a really serious part of the ceremony - Ririen and Enu had to ask each set of parents and grandparents for their permission and blessing to get married. It's called sungkeman and everyone was so quiet you could have heard a tikus squeak.

I went around to my aunty's place a bit early to see if they needed a hand setting up, but they had nearly finished getting the food ready. I would have helped but I had to take some photos instead! Everything else was ready - they'd been preparing for days.

Check out my cousin Ririen - she got right into the beauty preparations. I'm not sure what Enu, her calon suami (fiancé), would have said if he had seen her with that face mask on! He might have changed his mind!

This is the room in my aunty's house that had been especially decorated for the wedding. It was so glittery, it was almost blinding! The snacks were all laid out. Kelihatannya enak, but for once I held back...

These are my other cousins - they were Ririen's bridesmaids. I hadn't seen them in ages and they looked so different. I couldn't believe they were the same girls I used to chase through the rice paddies when we were little!

The official part of the wedding is known as akad nikah. Ririen and Enu had to say their vows in front of his parents and my aunty and uncle, their grandparents and the celebrant. Then they all gave Enu and Ririen their blessings. This part took ages! After this though, they were legally married, but there was still heaps of the ceremony to go. Aduh!

Then Enu gave Ririen banyak hadiah. This is called maskawin. The husband usually has to include the wedding ring, some money, a copy of the Koran, some prayer clothes and a prayer mat. It must have cost Enu a fortune!

Here's Ririen and Enu in costume No. 2 - they had to get changed 3 times that day. It was 35 degrees! Can you believe they had to wear such heavy clothing in the heat? Waduh! Panas sekali!

Now check out this bit of the ceremony: Ririen put an egg under Enu's bare foot and then he squashed it. She then washed his foot so it was clean again. This is called injak telur and cuci kaki, and it symbolises the bride and groom's mutual respect and trust.

This was another 'romantic moment' where the bride and groom fed each other satay. It was to show that they'll look after and care for one another. This has a Sundanese name, huap-lingkung.

Next Ririen and Enu had to sit in the bridal chairs and wait for every guest to come up and say congratulations. Ririen said her cheeks were sore for days just from all the smiling! To wish someone happiness in these sort of situations we say Selamat berbahagia! When I went up though, I told Ririen a joke to try and make her laugh!

When all the official congratulations were over, we could finally eat. Saya lapar sekali! We'd been at the wedding for hours.

Makanannya enak sekali - I had been hanging out for some of my aunty's famous kari for ages! There was everything you could dream of: nasi goreng, mie goreng, sate, krupuk, kari, rendang, soto...Mmm...I was definitely kenyang after that!

I checked out all the wedding presents Ririen and Enu got. Maybe getting married isn't so bad after all!!

At the end of the wedding, Ririen and Enu sat outside under an umbrella so that the older relatives could throw rice, lollies and coins over them to bring them good luck. This is called sawer. The guests are allowed to catch them - I didn't do too badly!

The very last stage was one more costume change (costume no. 3!) for Ririen and Enu to show they were now a new couple. They had to sit on display again for another hour or two while everyone gradually left. I think they were just about ready to fall over from exhaustion by this stage - I know I was!

So there it is! It was pretty good fun really. I hope that helps you with your assignment! At least your teacher should like your research!

Jangan lupa...nyantai aja dong!
Sekian dulu, ya?

Temanmu,

Hendri.

WADUH! DAPUR KOTOR LAGI!

Pada akhir minggu. Hendri dan temannya bercakap-cakap di rumah Hendri.

Anu, teman-teman, orangtua saya tidak ada di rumah nanti malam. Ayo kita memasak untuk makan malam!

Mmm – ide bagus!

He, Yeyen – kamu ingat waktu Imam memasak dulu?

Ya, waktu itu lucu sekali!

Itu tidak benar!

Kalau Imam memasak, selalu ada yang pecah!

Yeyen dan Hendri pergi ke pasar, untuk membeli bahan-bahan.

Baiklah, untuk memasak nasi goreng kita perlu cabe, beras...

Ya, jangan lupa kita harus membelikan Imam telur supaya dia bisa membuat kue!

Waduh!
Kalau Imam memasak selalu berantakan sehingga dapur harus dibersihkan dengan keras!

Yeyen membeli tiga buah tomat dan dua buah wortel dari penjual.

Terima kasih, Nak.

6 Lalu Yeyen membeli dua buah ketimun.

Yeyen dan Hendri membeli sepotong tahu...

Berapa harganya sepotong tahu ini, Bu?

8 ...lalu, mereka ke penjual cabe.

Selanjutnya, di rumah Hendri. Hendri dan Yeyen mulai memasak nasi goreng di dapur.

Yeyen menambahkan kecap secukupnya supaya rasanya enak.

10

Yeyen mencicipi nasi goreng itu.

Bagaimana rasanya, Yen?

Enak...tetapi sedikit kurang pedas...

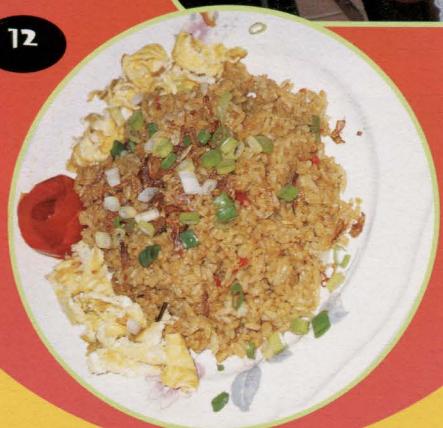

Baiklah. Saya tambahkan sedikit cabe, ya?

Boleh – tetapi hati-hati!

Nasi goreng sudah siap, tetapi mereka harus menunggu agak lama...karena Imam harus memasak kue.

12

Hebat! Kelihatannya enak sekali! Baunya juga harum!

Mmm...pas!

Aduh, saya lapar! – tetapi masih harus tunggu sampai Imam selesai.

13

Sekarang, Imam mulai memasak di dapur.

Nah – pertama saya campurkan telur dan tepung. Lalu diaduk selama sepuluh menit supaya adonan menjadi rata! Waduh! Panas sekali dapur ini! Saya sudah cape!

Sial!
Telurnya pecah!
Mudah-mudahan teman-teman tidak melihat!
Oke-oke – tetapi saya masih pemasak terbaik di dunia!

Imam menjatuhkan telur, sehingga dia harus mencari satu telur lagi!

Akhirnya, Imam memasukkan adonan ke dalam oven selama satu jam.

16

Dia memasak kue supaya temannya senang, tetapi...sesudah satu jam, mereka tidak begitu senang!!

Diamlah, Imam, kita sudah tunggu kamu lama sekali.

Ya! Dan kalau Imam memasak di dapur, dapur itu pasti kotor lagi! Tadi, dapur itu rapi sekali!

TIDAK BEGITU SUSAH!

1 To buy something for me: membelikan saya...

Look out for the verb membeliakan in the photo-story! It's where Yeyen reminds Hendri to buy ingredients for Imam:

Ya, jangan lupa kita harus membeliakan Imam telur!

Yeah, don't forget we've got to buy Imam some eggs!

Membeliakan actually means 'to buy for' (someone else). The person you are buying for must immediately follow membeliakan. You always need to use membeliakan + (someone else) in this strict order.

There is more information about these me-kan type verbs later in this chapter!

Ya, jangan lupa kita harus membelikan Imam telur supaya dia bisa membuat kue!

1 Membuat iklan TV!

Making a TV advertisement – small group

Your team wants a job advertising a new product and an opportunity to present a 'pitch' comes up.

This is the brief:

Advertise one of your favourite foods – be lively and imaginative in your choice of words and presentation style. Make sure the product name frequently comes at the beginning of your sentences so it is emphasised!

You need to work in a small group to find out the best things to say, and how you will audition. Your pitch will be much more impressive if you can use sentences like the example below. Present your advertisement to the class. The best presentation gets the job!

Mmm...Mie Remez ini rasanya enak sekali. Lezat dan gurih!

Mie Remez ini bisa dibeli di mana saja, di toko, di pasar atau di warung. Mie ini mudah sekali untuk dimasak, hanya 2 menit saja! Hebat, ya?

Mie Remez ini adalah mie yang paling enak, dan murah sekali. Belilah Mie Remez ini karena semua keluarga dan teman-temanmu pasti suka!

2 Of course not! Tentu saja tidak!

To emphasise that something won't happen we say Tentu saja tidak! This means 'Of course not!'. Here's an example from the photo-story:

Penjual: Hati-hati! Cabe merah ini pedas sekali! Jangan habiskan cabe itu semuanya.

Be careful! These red chillies are very hot! Don't use all of them!

Hendri: Tentu saja tidak, Bu.

Of course not, Bu.

3 Recipe instructions using base verbs, -kan and -lah

There are three ways of giving instructions for recipes: base verb, -kan and -lah.

base verb You will see recipe instructions that use the base verb only. This is a very direct way of giving instructions, and not used in polite speech.

aduk	stir, beat
potong	cut tambah	add
goreng	fry

aduk

-kan The suffix -kan is often seen in recipe instructions. It shows that the base word is acting on something.

panaskan	heat it
hancurkan	crush it
masukkan	put it in...
tambahkan	add it

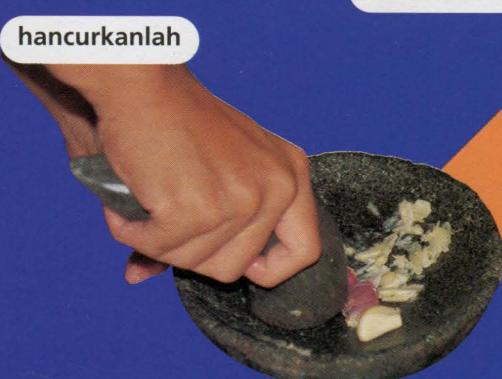

-lah Many recipe instructions also use the suffix -lah which makes the instruction more obvious.

kupaslah	peel it
hiaslah	decorate it
aduklah	stir it

Note: Sometimes you will even see both -kan and -lah used together.
hancurkanlah crush it

kupaslah

hancurkanlah

masukkan

TIDAK BEGiTU SUSAH!

4 Terms of address: Murah sekali, Nak!

In frame 7 of the photo-story the tofu seller calls Hendri and Yeyen Nak (short for anak). She is not trying to put down Yeyen and Hendri by calling them children, but using an acceptable term for speaking to younger people. It's like calling older people Pak and Bu – it's not misunderstood as 'dad' and 'mum'. Indonesians commonly use family terms to address one another. This shows respect and means you don't always have to worry about finding out people's names!

5 Active vs passive

When we look at the structure of sentences closely they usually fall into two categories. There are:

Active sentences where the actor (person or thing doing the action) comes first

Passive sentences where the object (the thing having the action done to it) comes first

Look at this active sentence:

Imam memasak kue itu.

Imam is cooking that cake.

Now ask yourself:

1. Who is doing the action (cooking)? That's the actor (Imam).
2. What action is taking place? That's the verb (memasak).
3. What thing is being made? That's the object (kue itu).
4. Does the actor come first? Yes? Then it's an active sentence. No? Then it's a passive sentence

Now look at this passive sentence. It means the same as the active one but looks different.

Kue itu dimasak (oleh) Imam.

That cake was cooked by Imam.

Imam is still cooking the cake, but the position of the actor (Imam) and the object (that cake) have swapped places. Now the cake, or object, is the focus of the sentence because it comes first, rather than Imam.

What other changes have taken place?

The verb now has a di-prefix instead of a me-prefix. It's often useful to imagine that a di-verb is a reversal of a me-verb. The word oleh can be used to fill the place of 'by'. Oleh isn't essential so it has been left in brackets.

It's helpful to visualise the movement of the sentence. Does the sentence move forward from left to right? Then it's an active sentence.

Imam → memasak → kue itu.

Or does the sentence seem a bit backwards, with the action moving from the back? This is a passive sentence.

Kue itu ← dimasak ← (oleh) Imam.

Note Passive sentences are also often called 'object-focus' or 'object construction' sentences because they focus the attention of the sentence on the object. Active sentences can also be called subject-focussed.

TIDAK BEGiTU SUSAH!

6 Me-kan verbs!! me- + base verb + -kan

You're already familiar with me-verbs words like memasak and melihat. Now here are some me-kan verbs which you will have seen a lot in this chapter, like membersihkan (to clean something), which is used in the photo-story. The me-kan verb form is used a lot in Indonesian and it has a few functions.

Causative Some me-kan verbs have a causative effect on the object in the sentence, which means they make it, or cause it, to undergo the action.

verb	me + verb + kan
membesarkan	me(m) + besar + kan	to make it bigger, enlarge membersihkan	me(m) + bersih + kan	to make it clean menjatuhkan	me(n) + jatuh + kan	to drop something (make it fall)
menambahkan	me(n) + (t)ambah + kan	to add something

Kamu dan Hadi harus membersihkan dapur!

You and Hadi have to clean the kitchen!

Saya harus
membelikan
Imam telur ini.

Benefactive Another common result from adding me-kan to a word is that the action benefits someone else, this is called benefactive effect. In these cases the person who benefits follows right after the verb.

memasakkan	me + masak + kan	to cook for someone else
membelikan	me + beli + kan	to buy for someone else

Ya, jangan lupa kita harus membelikan Imam telur!

Yeah, don't forget we have to buy Imam some eggs!

Other me-kan verbs Some me-kan verbs are just the best way to say that action.

mengadakan	meng + ada + kan	to arrange, to hold (a party)
mengerjakan	meng + (k)erja + kan	to do, to work
melakukan	me + laku + kan	to do, carry out

Note Notice that most verbs keep a similar meaning to the base verb when they go through the me- and me-kan process. But hati-hati! Sometimes there are tricky words which actually change their meanings almost completely. Good verbs just to be aware of are the following:

base verb	me-verb	me-kan verb
bangun	membangun	membangunkan
tinggal	meninggal	meninggalkan to wake up to build to wake someone up to live to die to leave somewhere

You can use the me-verb table on page xi to help you.

7 ...and then that happened!! Sehingga and supaya

Sehingga is used to explain that one thing happened as the result of another thing occurring. It has a sense that the action wasn't deliberately designed to get the result.

Here are two examples:

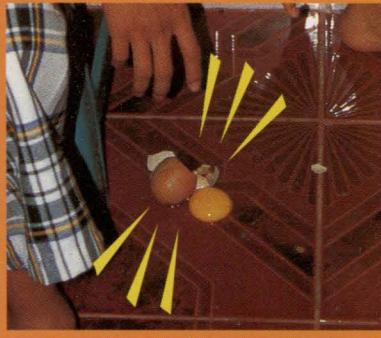

Imam menjatuhkan telur, sehingga dia harus mencari satu telur lagi!

Imam dropped the egg so (as a result) he had to look for another one!

Kalau Imam memasak selalu berantakan, sehingga dapur harus dibersihkan dengan keras!

When Imam cooks it's always a mess, so the kitchen has to be really well cleaned!

Imam menjatuhkan telur sehingga dia harus mencari satu telur lagi.

Supaya is used when an action is deliberately done to achieve an intended result.

You can see these examples in the photo-story:

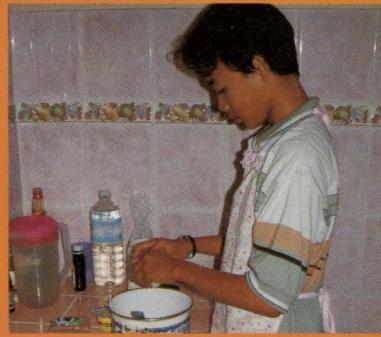

Yeyen menambahkan kecap secukupnya supaya rasanya enak.

Yeyen added just enough soy sauce, so that it would taste better.

...campurkan telur dan tepung. Lalu diaduk selama sepuluh menit supaya adonan menjadi rata!

...mix the eggs and flour. Then beat for ten minutes so that the batter is smooth.

Imam mau memasak kue supaya temannya senang.

8 Just one? Sebuah, sebungkus, sepotong, sebatang, sebiji, sebutir

When you go shopping and are using measurable quantities, it's important to know how to ask for things. These words help you be specific about how much you want to buy.

sebungkus	a packet	used when things come in packets
sepotong	a slice	used for slices of things like cake
sebatang	one (thing)	used for cylindrical objects like bamboo or spring onions
sebiji	one (thing)	used for small round objects like garlic cloves or lollies
sebutir	one (thing)	used for round things like eggs
sebuah	one (thing)	used widely for objects like fruit, chocolate bars, books etc.

Note: sebuah is often left out of casual speech, as when shopping at the market.

Permisi, Bu, berapa harganya satu ketimun?

Excuse me, how much is one cucumber?

Can you work out what this person is buying at the warung?

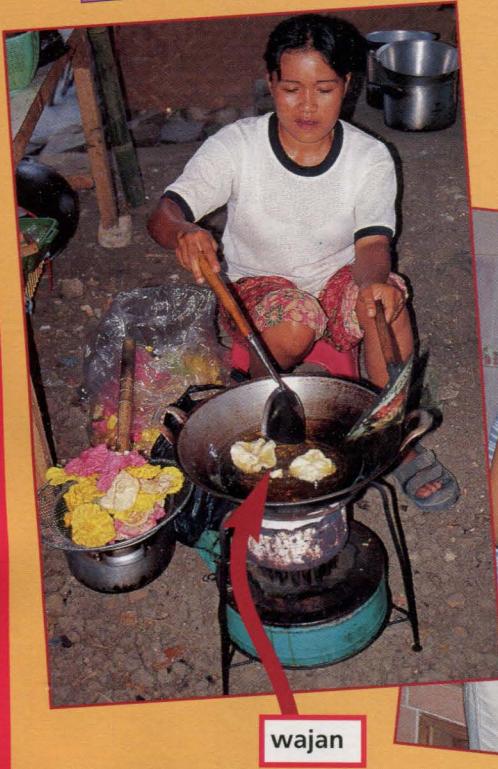

Yacinta membeli sebuah mangga, sepotong kue, sebungkus permen dan sebutir telur.

HATI-HATI!
Remember that se- means one of something so dua bungkus would be 2 packets, dua potong would be 2 slices and so on.

LANGKAH

INDONESIA ASYIK!

1 Di dapur Indonesia

Indonesian kitchens are often much simpler than the average Australian one. Most kitchens have an oil or gas burner over which sits a large wajan used for frying and cooking. The oven is not a common piece of equipment as traditional dishes tend not to be baked. However you will always find a cobek dan alu which are essential for grinding together the spices that make Indonesian food so tasty.

Indonesians prefer to use fresh ingredients in their cooking. For the best choice and freshest food, most Indonesian ibu, or the pembantu, rise before dawn and go to the markets in the cool part of the day to buy meat and vegetables that will be used in cooking that day.

cobek dan alu

2 Red hot chilli peppers!

Indonesians love spicy food, so they usually add a bit of zing to their cooking with lots of herbs and spices, such as garlic, ginger, lemon grass, shallots and of course – chilli!

It's helpful when reading menus, food labels etc. to know what to look out for. All these words have some 'chilli' in them: cabe, cabai, lombok and sambal.

Awas! This is definitely a case of 'less is more' – the smaller the chilli the hotter they are. Small chillies are called cabe rawit. The main difference between the green and the red chillies is the taste. The green chillies are actually unripened red chillies, but usually a combination of the two are used in most dishes. Both are pedas sekali!

Sambal – hot chilli sauce – is usually a permanent fixture of an Indonesian table setting and is made from a selection of freshly ground chillies and herbs. Don't underestimate its strength, just try sedikit sambal at first. Otherwise you might feel like calling the fire brigade!

If you do eat something that is terlalu pedas for you, good remedies are either eating more nasi putih or ketimun, or eating something manis like fruit, rather than drinking a glass of water.

Masakan padang (traditional dishes originating in West Sumatra) is famous for being pedas sekali!

INDONESIA ASYIK!

3 Hey, where are the chopsticks??!

Did you know that traditionally Indonesian meals were eaten with the fingertips of the right hand, not chopsticks? Chopsticks aren't common in Indonesia, though you will find them in Chinese restaurants (or served with noodle soup where they are particularly useful!).

Now, in modern Indonesian households, the table is usually set with a fork and spoon, placed at the top or sides of a shallow bowl/plate (piring). Knives are not set on the table as most food is already prepared in bite-sized pieces. Boiled water is often served in glasses with the meal.

The right hand is still the preferred hand to use for eating, as the left hand is considered unclean. You use the fork to push food onto your spoon, which of course is in your right hand. You shouldn't pass anything at the table with your left hand either!

At the end of a meal it is polite to turn your fork and spoon over in the middle of the plate. This looks neat and also indicates that you are sudah kenyang!

4 Eating etiquette

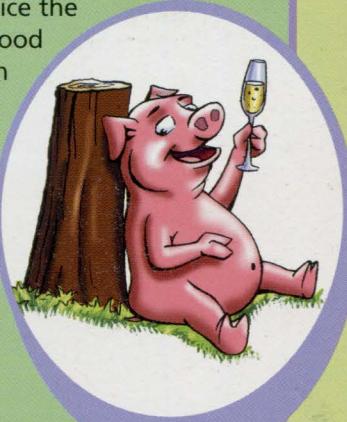

A typical Indonesian meal consists of lots of rice and a variety of tasty dishes which can be vegetables, soy products or meat. Eating every part of an animal is not uncommon in Indonesia. Things like heart, lungs, liver, feet, heads, intestines etc. are often served.

A good general rule of eating is to take a large helping of rice and little samples of all the dishes until you decide on the ones you like! Your host will appreciate your enthusiasm!

Sometimes if you're eating something and enjoying the flavour but can't identify what it is, maybe it's best not to know and not spoil the experience!

5 No pork, please!

Most Indonesians (about 90%) are Muslims, so they are not allowed to eat any pork product according to religious law. Strict Muslims only eat food which has been prepared in a special way called Halal. You will notice the word Halal on some menus, food packages and in advertising in Indonesia. This is a guarantee that the food has been prepared according to Islamic religious law, and would definitely not have any pork in it. In Bali, by contrast, babi panggang (roast pork) is a popular dish. Balinese are mainly Hindus, who are allowed to eat pork.

WAH! ITU JUGA BAGUS, YA?

Yeyen dan Nurita berjalan ke toko untuk mencari hadiah.

Aduh, panas ya!
Masih jauh, Yen?

Imam, Hendri dan Hadi sedang jalan-jalan. Tiba-tiba...

Saya mau ke toko seni. Toko seni yang mana?

Mereka sudah sampai di Toko Tjokrosuharto.

5 Kamu mau mencari apa, Yen?

Saya mau mencari hadiah
untuk ulang tahun ibu saya.

Saya belum pasti!

Hadiah apa?

Saya
lapar! Saya belum makan.

Waduh!
Cewek ini selalu berbelanja.

Imam, Nurita, Hendri dan Hadi coba membantu Yeyen memilih hadiah, tetapi Yeyen masih bingung...

Aduh...wayang kulit ini asyik sekali!

Lihat batik ini, Yen, ditulis dengan halus!

Batik ini berkualitas No. 1.

10

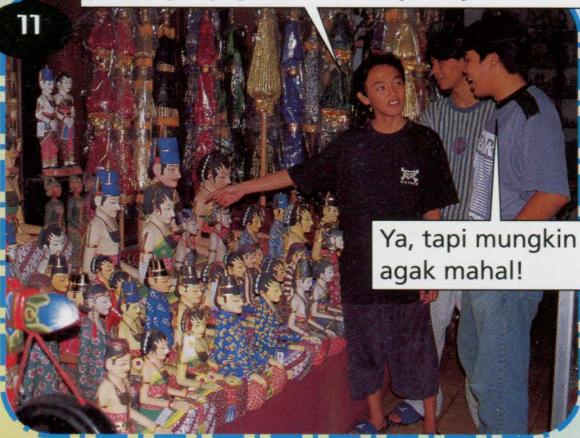

Ya, bagus, tapi saya
bingung, semuanya bagus.

Atau kamu mau cincin yang tadi?

Hadi, patung kayu ini diukir dengan baik,
ya? Bagus juga untuk ibunya Yeyen.

Ya, tapi mungkin
agak mahal!

12

Oh, kalau patung ini, kamu pasti suka!

Hai, cewek keren! Mau ikut ke mal dengan saya?

Tentu saja tidak!
Kamu terlalu pendek untuk
saya.

Satu jam kemudian. Hendri, Imam dan
Hadi sudah bosan dan duduk di luar toko.

Aduh,
Yeyen lama sekali!

Wah! Saya lapar sekali! Makan bakso atau makan
apa, ya?

Yeyen masih mencari
hadiyah yang cocok...

14

Aduh,
saya bingung
sekali. Beli
apa, ya?

Hadi, Imam dan Hendri tidak sabar lagi. Mereka masuk lagi ke dalam toko.

Selendang ini bagus sekali, Yen! Ibu kamu pasti suka!

15

Anu...saya masih bingung!

Sudah ini saja!

16

Ya, saya lapar sekali!

Ya, baiklah! Mudah-mudahan ibu saya suka selendang ini.

Akhirnya!

17

Bu, saya mau membeli selendang ini. Berapa harganya?

18

Nurita, ini bagus atau tidak?

Pilihan yang bagus! Selendang ini indah sekali dan berkualitas tinggi. Harganya cukup murah. Hanya Rp75.000.

Baiklah.

HATI-HATI!

Often in casual conversation Indonesians drop the prefix of the verb. Here are some examples from the two photo-stories in this chapter:

Beli apa, ya?

Imam, boleh saya tanya, mengapa kamu suka musik klasik?

...saya punya banyak koleksi Mozart di rumah.

JANGAN LUPA!

Tadi means 'just before' and is used twice in the photo-story:

Tadi saya menelepon...

I just telephoned...

...cincin yang tadi

...that ring (we saw) just before

Beli (membeli), tanya (bertanya) and punya (mempunyai) are examples of ber- and me-verbs that have been shortened to make them sound more casual. This is appropriate for casual conversations between friends.

TIDAK BEGiTU SUSAH!

1 She'll definitely like it! Pasti dia suka!

Pasti is the word you need to say you're sure. When used with tidak and belum it means unsure or not at all sure. It also means 'definitely'. Here are the common ways it is used:

Ibu kamu pasti suka.

Your mum will definitely like it.

Pasti dia suka.

She will definitely like it.

Saya kurang pasti.

I'm not so sure.

Saya belum pasti.

I'm not sure yet.

Dia tidak pasti.

He's not sure (at all).

Dia pasti akan datang!

He will definitely come!

Kalian pasti akan suka, percayalah!

You (all) will definitely like it, believe me!

Here are some other ways of expressing certainty or agreement:

Boleh juga.

Yeah, all right.

Sudah ini saja!

Just (get) this one!

Baiklah!

Okay!

Saya suka yang ini

I like this one

And some more ways of expressing hesitation or doubt:

anu...

umm...

Kamu main-main saja!

You're just being silly!

mudah-mudahan

hopefully

hmm...ini juga bagus

hmm...this one's good as well

Mungkin dia suka yang ini...

Maybe she'll like this one...

Saya bingung!

Ya, bagus, tapi mungkin...

Yeah, it's good, but maybe...

Yang ini lebih baik

2 Passive sentences with di-verbs

Here's an example of a passive sentence:

Lukisan itu dilukis oleh Tuti.

That painting was painted by Tuti.

You'll notice this type of sentence quite often in Indonesian. This is the 'passive' way of expressing yourself, where the object of the sentence comes first rather than the person, or actor. These sentences are really useful in situations like: praising someone's achievements or creations, correcting someone's mistakes, commenting on someone's new outfit or purchase, looking for a present in a gift shop, or practically any time you particularly want to discuss an object (like a book, CD, painting, an assignment etc.).

There are three main reasons for using a passive sentence like this:

- 1 You might be already talking about the object.
- 2 You don't want to embarrass the person, who might be shy, by drawing attention to them immediately.
- 3 There isn't an actor mentioned at all.

There are 2 types of passive sentences. We will look at passives using a di-verb now, and passive type 2 in Langkah 8.

Passive sentences using di-verbs:

A di-verb is used when there is no actor mentioned in the sentence.

A di-verb is used when the actor is a 3rd person.

3rd person means the person is not you or me! It's someone else! Use the pictures on the side to help you with the concept of 1st, 2nd and 3rd person.

To see how an active sentence becomes a passive one follow these steps:

- 1 Move the object to the front.
- 2 Make the actor come after the verb.
- 3 Change the me-verb to a di-verb. (This reverses the direction of the verb).
- 4 Add in oleh if you like.

Active sentence
Tuti melukis lukisan itu.
(actor) (verb) (object)

Tuti melukis lukisan itu.
(object)
Lukisan itu Tuti melukis.
(actor) di?

Lukisan itu melukis Tuti.
(verb)

Passive sentence
Lukisan itu dilukis oleh Tuti.
(by)

1st person
I, me, we, us

saya, aku, kami, kita

2nd person you

kamu, engkau, anda kalian

3rd person
he, she, they, someone else

dia, Bapak kamu, anjing saya
mereka, anak-anak

The actual meaning of the sentence hasn't changed, but the emphasis of the sentence has!

A bit like 'sister'. Good for addressing shop assistants, waitresses etc.

Mas

A bit like calling someone 'brother' or 'mate', but still polite.

MUSIK DAN KESENIAN DI INDONESIA!!

YOU'LL LEARN

- ◆ about new and traditional Indonesian music
- ◆ about some new bands in Indonesia today
- ◆ how to talk about your favourite bands and top ten songs
- ◆ how to make batik step by step
- ◆ some interesting information about how batik came about
- ◆ what some of the other art forms are in Indonesia

THE ARTS IN INDONESIA

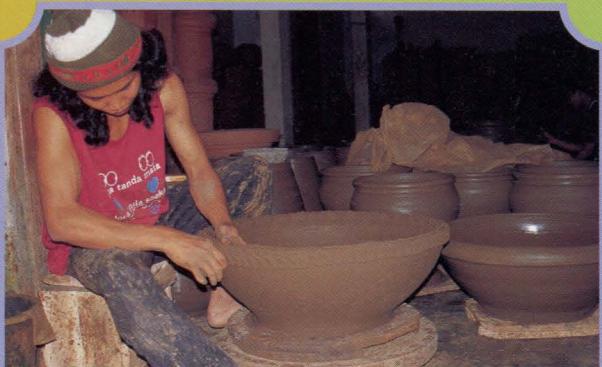

It is often said that everyone in Indonesia is an artist of some sort. This is probably due to the fact that arts and crafts, music and performances were a natural inclusion in most events that occur within an Indonesian village. Here are some of the typical arts you might encounter.

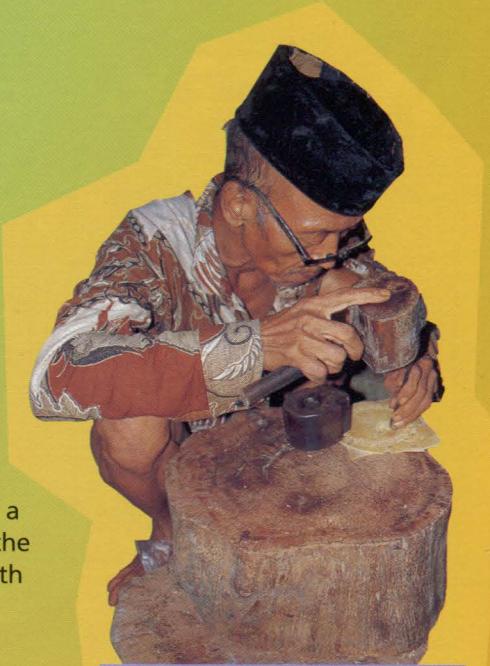

Batik making (membuat batik)
Dyeing of cloth using wax to make patterns

Wayang golek making (membuat wayang golek)
Wooden puppet making

Pottery (membuat tembikar)
Pots handbuilt or thrown on a wheel

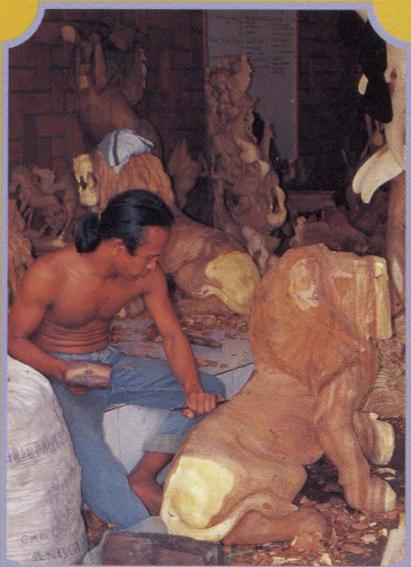

Wayang kulit making (membuat Wayang kulit)
Flat painted buffalo-hide shadow puppets

Practically everywhere you look, and with everything you use in Indonesia, there is evidence of artwork: from batik cloth sarongs and tablecloths to wooden carved rice spoons; decorated doorways and picture frames; woven chair seats; streets with offerings left out for the gods; the distant sound of a gamelan performance; the traditional family keris on the wall; the beautiful silver jewellery decorating someone's hair; the ikat cloth couch cushions you are sitting on – and so on and so on!

References

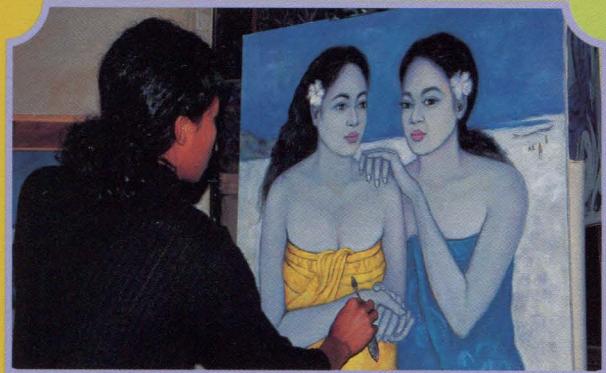

If you want to investigate these art forms some more, there are lots of resource books you can use. Two good ones which have some great information are Arts and Crafts of Indonesia by Anne Richter, and The Art of Indonesia by Kate Hart, which has a more hands-on approach.

Wood carving (mengukir kayu)
Making furniture, house decorations, statues

Mask making (membuat topeng)
Carved, painted masks for dancing and ritual

Painting (melukis)

Offering making (membuat sesajen)
Special patterns of fruit, rice or flowers

Other Indonesian art forms include:

- ☛ Stone sculpture (mengukir batu)
Making statues for temples and homes
- ☛ Ikat cloth weaving (menenun kain ikat)
A loom cloth with woven patterns
- ☛ Traditional dances (menari)
Dances which tell traditional stories
- ☛ Keris making (membuat keris)
Traditional long wavy dagger, with mystical powers
- ☛ Basket weaving (menganyam keranjang)
Baskets and homewares woven from reeds

- ☛ Silversmithing (membuat perhiasan perak)
Making jewellery and ornate objects
- ☛ Dramatic performance (wayang orang)
Plays with traditional stories performed live
- ☛ Wayang kulit performance (wayang kulit)
The puppeteer moving the shadow puppets
- ☛ Angklung playing (bermain angklung)
Bamboo instruments, played in a group
- ☛ Gamelan playing (bermain gamelan)
An Indonesian percussion orchestra

And so the list goes on!

BATIK!

When you hear the word batik you might think of cheap souvenir sarongs, or the tacky shirts your uncle used to bring back from holidays, right? Well, think again! Batik is actually an ancient art of Java, where beautiful designs are drawn or stamped onto a cloth in hot wax and then an elaborate cycle of dyeing and waxing continues until a complex pattern of rich colours emerges. The word batik comes from the Javanese word tik, meaning 'dots'.

Batik material was traditionally made by women of royalty as a leisure-time activity. Some pieces could take months to complete! Early batik designs were thought to have magical powers and would give protection to those who wore them.

Batik is now an important export industry of Java as many Western countries are appreciating batik's decorative qualities for soft furnishings, wall hangings and fabric for clothes and accessories. You have to check your batik carefully, however, as the exported cloth is sometimes mass-produced with the patterns of batik printed on it.

The two methods of applying wax in batik-making

In the making of batik, there are two tools which are used to apply the wax to the cloth. One is a stamp – or cap (pronounced 'chup') – which already has a design made from metal on it.

The other tool is the wax writing tool or canting (pronounced 'chunn-ting'). This is made from bamboo and has a small copper or brass bowl and spout at one end for the hot wax to flow through.

cap

Which tool you use depends on what type of pattern you want on your batik.

The cap keeps the same pattern each time it is dipped into the hot wax, so it is good for a repetitive overall pattern, and is much quicker to apply to the cloth.

The canting is far more time-consuming to use as each pattern is drawn on by hand, but it allows the designer more freedom and creativity with their pattern.

The hand-drawn work where a canting has been used is considered more refined (halus) and is also more expensive!

Which method would you prefer to try?

Panaskan malam di atas kompor dan tulislah dengan canting di atas bagian yang tidak akan diwarnai.

4 Yang keempat

Masukkan kain ke dalam tempat celup dan tunggu beberapa menit, supaya kain itu berubah warnanya.

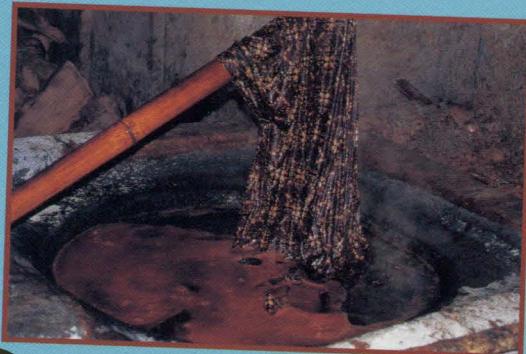

5 Yang kelima

Angkatlah kain dari tempat celup dan keringkan.

6 Lalu

Ulangi langkah 3 dan 4 sampai seluruh pola selesai!

Akhirnya

Lepaskan malam dengan air panas, atau disetrika dengan kertas di atasnya.

If you don't have a canting or cap you can use a thin paintbrush to draw in your hot wax design – just make sure it's not one that will ever be needed again!!

It is up to you to decide the colours of dye you would like to see on your piece of batik, but always work from the lightest colours first through to the darkest colours last. Don't forget to use wax to cover the parts you want to keep a certain colour, as all the other uncovered parts will change colour at every dying stage.

To speed up the drying process at each step, you can use a hair dryer – but be careful! If you make it too hot the wax will start to melt off!

MUSIK DI INDONESIA

Music seems to be ever present wherever you go in Indonesia. If you get on a train, there are often video clips of the latest pop music being shown on the screens in the first-class carriages. You can walk into a city shop and hear music blaring out; stroll past a restaurant or hotel foyer and the tinkling sounds of traditional music catch your attention and stimulate your imagination; walk home late one day and hear guitars being played from somewhere behind the walls. Music is a big part of Indonesian life!

Although Indonesian music varies from island to island, there are two traditional forms of Indonesian music that are very well known. They are the gamelan orchestra and the angklung.

Traditional music: the gamelan

The gamelan orchestra is a percussion orchestra which consists of a range of drums, gongs, xylophones and other percussion instruments which are hit with different sized hammers. The sounds produced are clangy and gong-like, and can sound unusual or even discordant to someone who hasn't heard them before. The singers sound haunting and operatic but the notes are quite different from Western classical or rock music.

The gamelan instruments are usually made from brass and are presented in beautifully carved wooden frames. To play them you sit cross-legged behind them. A basic orchestra consists of about 12 people, but larger ones of 50 or more are quite common. Both males and females play the instruments, and going to gamelan practice is a typical Indonesian pastime, as well as a common school subject.

Traditional music: angklung

The music made with an angklung is softer than the gamelan, and sounds a bit like wooden wind chimes, as the angklung instruments are made from bamboo. Each angklung has two or three bamboo tubes set on a light frame and are held in the hand and shaken/rattled. The tubes of each instrument are cut so they only produce one note.

Eight angklung on a stand

The angklung are played in groups as you need enough people to play each different note in the song or piece of music. Sometimes a stand is used to allow one person to play a couple or more angklung at once.

Modern music trends

Just like traditional music in Indonesia, modern music comes in many forms. Modern pop and rock are common, but more alternative music like dangdut, thrash and ska are also gaining popularity, especially with urban teenagers. Indonesia's modern music industry is growing at a rapid rate, with new bands and new songs appearing daily! Bands like Tipe-X, Sheila on 7, Gigi and Funky Kopral are the types of bands which are carving the new path for the Indonesian music movement. Many reflect a grunge influence from popular American, Australian and English bands.

Ska

Ska music originated in Jamaica and is often called the root of reggae, although its beat is much faster. It became popular in England in the 1960s, and has since spread throughout many places in the world, including Indonesia. It is now very popular with teenagers in Indonesia and recently has been one of the biggest influences on music trends there, with bands like Tipe-X adopting the rhythms and style of ska music.

Tipe-X

Dangdut

Dangdut is the sort of music you hear coming out of the kampung, the buses, the warung, the impromptu parties on the street and out of many other kinds of celebrations in Jakarta and other big cities in Indonesia. Dangdut is a popular modern Indonesian music which is an alternative to the house and techno music now dominant in Indonesian cities.

Dangdut music has had a lot of influences, including traditional Malay rhythms, Islamic Arab beats and kroncong (an Indonesian music influenced by Portuguese melodies). Most prominent though, are the funky and jerky rhythms influenced by Indian film music. The term dangdut was inspired by the sound of the tabla drum – a 'dang' sound followed by a 'dut' sound – which is the special characteristic of dangdut music. In the 1990s there was another transition within this style of music with new mixes such as dangdut house, dangdut techno, dangdut disco and dangdut reggae becoming popular in many clubs.

A dangdut group typically includes an electric guitar, bass, percussion, bamboo flute, synthesiser and a singer. Typical song lyrics usually deal with moral issues such as family matters, being poor, getting rich, staying honest and of course, falling in and out of love!

The infectious beat and smooth movements of dangdut make it excellent dance music. Dancing the dangdut way is called joget and it's lots of fun. To joget you dance as though you are a snake being charmed out of its basket. You wiggle your hips and rotate your arms and wrists in time to the beat!

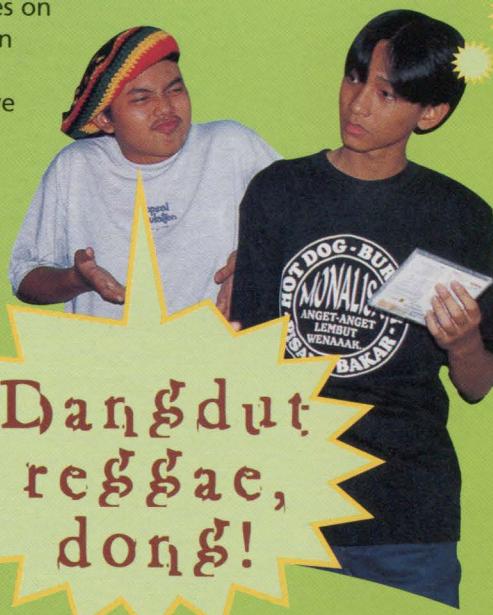

The sense of festivity that is so central to dangdut is only really felt when the music is played live and even better when there are thousands in the audience. The best time to go to a large concert is on a national public holiday when everyone is off work and in the mood to celebrate. So for a new dance experience, you need to get those hips swinging and do the dangdut thing!

Sheila on 7

Sheila on 7 is one of the most popular new bands to emerge in Indonesia today. The band originates from Yogyakarta in Central Java and are really the 'new kids on the block' in the music industry. However they have already sold 600 thousand copies of their first album and their live concerts are sold out for the whole year – an indication that they are heading to the top!

The group's members – Duta (vocals), Eross (guitar), Sakti (guitar), Adam (bass) and Anton (drums) all come from Yogyakarta and have just released three new promotional video clips: 'Kita' ('Us'), 'Dan' ('And') and 'Anugerah terindah yang pernah kumiliki' ('The most beautiful gift I've ever had'). The clips have been a huge success and as a result the group are beginning to enjoy international attention. See the song 'Pe-de' by Sheila on 7 in Langkah 8.

Wah! Nurita ada di sini!...tapi mungkin dia tidak ingat sama saya? Aduh, hati saya deg-degan!

Saya ingin menonton film horor ini.

Saya tidak suka film horor, saya lebih suka film aksi atau drama.

Kamu takut, ya?

Bukan itu, tapi saya tidak suka saja. Jadi kamu pemberani, ya?

10 Tiba-tiba Nurita melihat Wahyu...

Ah, Wahyu, apa kabar? Kenalkan, ini teman saya Hendri.

Kita mau menonton video yang mana?

Which video do we want to see? – group work

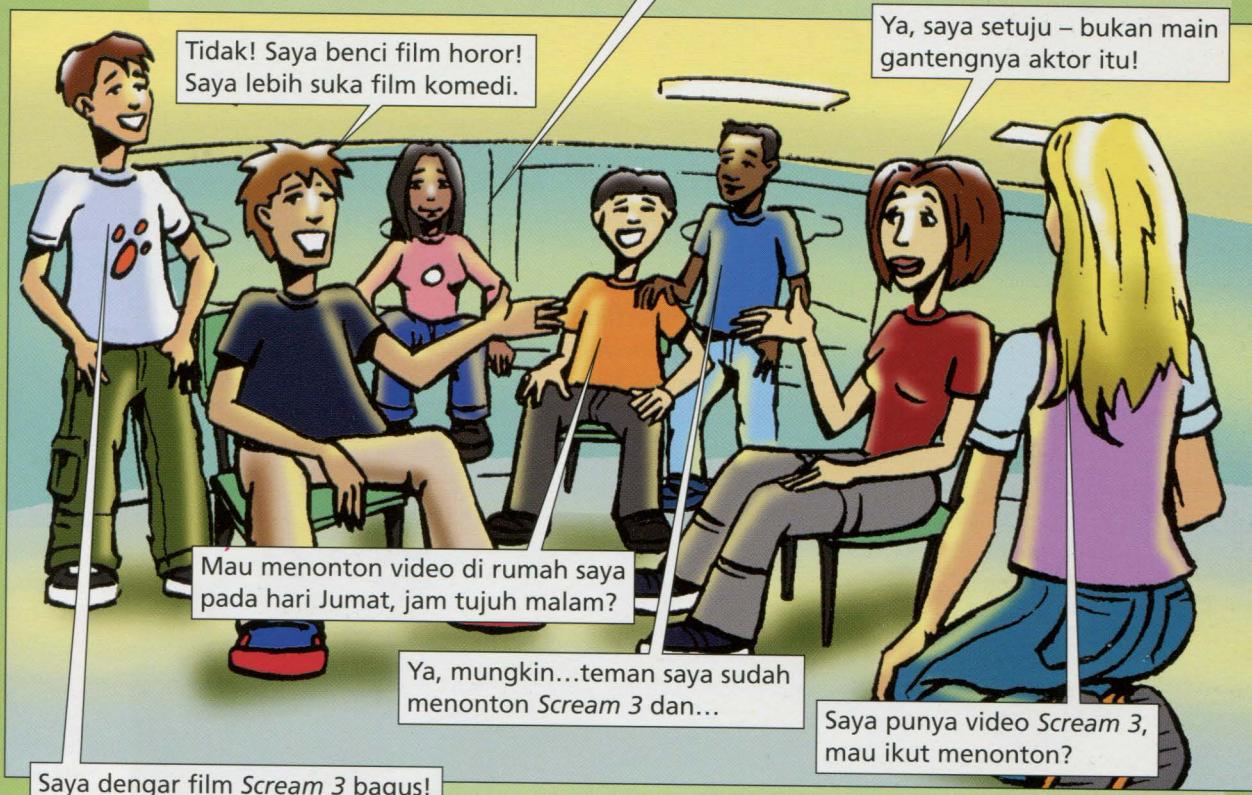

GROUP ACTIVITY

You and your group are going to hire a video to watch on the weekend. Using a film guide, website or your own knowledge, discuss with your friends which video you will hire. You all have to agree and decide on:

- what sort of film and which video in particular
- when you want to watch it
- at whose house you will watch it

Try to persuade your friends to watch the video you want to watch, when you want to and where you want to! When your group has made its decision, one person can then report back to the whole class, explaining what the final arrangements are.

Bagaimana kalau kita menonton film Scream 3?

USEFUL PHRASES

Kamu mau menonton video yang mana?
Saya tidak bisa ikut pada hari...karena saya harus...
Menurut pendapat saya lebih baik kalau kita...
Wah! Bukan main (gantengnya/cantiknya/lucunya) aktor itu!
Percayalah! Film ini bagus/jelek sekali!
Saya benci film romantis/aski!

BERANI COBA?

If your group didn't decide to watch what you wanted you could now negotiate with another group to join them.

TIDAK BEGITU SUSAH!

2 To want: mau and ingin

You already know that mau and ingin both mean to want something, but it's good to remember the subtle difference between them.

mau used when you want something (and it's very likely that you'll get it)

ingin used when you wish for something (but you're not sure if you can have it)

Hendri: Saya mau menonton film nanti malam, mau ikut?

Hendri: Saya ingin membintangi film seperti ini.

Can you see the difference? In the first sentence, Hendri is pretty sure he is going to the movies, whereas in the second sentence he wishes he could star in a great movie like The Matrix, but it might not happen!

3 The -i suffix: me- + base word + -i

You already know that in Indonesian you can often add a prefix or a suffix to a base word to change its meaning slightly. You can add me-i to some base adjectives, verbs and nouns in Indonesian to make new verbs.

base word	me-i verbs
bintang	a star (noun)
punya	to have (verb)
dekat	near (adjective)
	membintangi to star in...
	mempunyai to have something mendekati to approach something

These me-i verbs can't stand alone, they need an object to follow them. You can think of them doing the action 'in, on or to' the object that immediately follows them in the sentence. This type of verb is called transitive, i.e., they affect something else or they transfer onto something else).

Here are some examples:

Tuti tidak bisa melengkapi ceritanya.

Tuti could not finish her story.

Saya menyukai film itu.

I like that film.

Dia sangat menghargai aktor itu.

She really respected that actor.

Nurita ingin membintangi film Titanic.

It's also interesting to know that in a few cases the -i suffix can make something repeat. For example:

Pelayan bioskop melayani para penonton.

The cinema employee was (continually) serving the cinema's audience.

Pekerjaan dia menjual karcis.

His job is selling the tickets. (He does it over and over).

HATI-HATI!

4 Finding out someone's opinion: Bagaimana pendapatmu?

Learning how to give an opinion is an important part of communication. These phrases will help you lead in to your ideas without seeming to be too forward and over-confident.

Bagaimana pendapatmu?
Menurut pendapat saya...

What's your opinion?
In my opinion...

Saya kira film The Matrix bagus. Bagaimana pendapatmu?

You can use these expressions when negotiating as Hendri does in frame 2:

Saya kira film The Matrix bagus. Bagaimana pendapatmu?

I think the film The Matrix is good. What's your opinion?

To be more persuasive, you can quote someone else's opinion, as Wahyu does in frame 9:

...menurut pendapat dia film itu penuh dengan aksi dan bagus sekali!

...in his opinion the film is full of action and really good!

5 The ter-prefix

You already know that di-verbs can be used in passive sentences, often without an actor. The ter-prefix can be used in a similar way, to indicate that an action has already happened or has been accomplished.

Using ter- in this way is a bit like saying sudah di-. The difference is:

di- focuses on the action

ter- indicates that the action has been fully completed

Some common examples are:

terkenal well known/famous tersebut was mentioned

tertutup (is) shut
terjadi has happened

base verb	me-verb	di-verb	ter-word
tulis	write	menulis to write	ditulis written (by) buka	open	membuka to open	dibuka opened (by) buat	make/do	membuat to make	dibuat made (by)

Jangan lupa! There are other uses for the ter-prefix which you have already come across.

ter- = the most

terbaik the best tercinta the most loved	tertinggi the tallest terbagus the greatest
---	--

ter- = accidental or by surprise

terjatuh to fall accidentally terbangun to wake up by surprise	tertidur to accidentally fall asleep terlambat to be accidentally late
---	---

JIFFest: Jakarta International Film Festival

The Indonesian film industry is currently undergoing a major revival, based in the cosmopolitan capital city of Jakarta. Now Jakarta hosts its own International film festival. The annual festival, which was first held in November 1999, is a showcase opportunity for internationally acclaimed independent and amateur films, as well as regionally produced and directed ones. You can access more information about the festival from www.jiffest.com.

Films included in the festival come from many different countries. The program contains a mixture of new, alternative and original pieces, as well as featuring classics such as Langitku Rumahku.

LANGITKU RUMAHKU MY SKY, MY HOME is the winner of many Indonesian awards, and is perhaps director Slamet Rahardjo's best film so far. It is a drama based on the friendship between a boy who sells recycled paper on the streets and the son of a wealthy family, each envying the other's life!

New films released recently in Indonesia include: Daun di atas bantal, Telegram, Sri and Kuldesak.

KULDESAK CUL DE SAC is a film based on the lives and problems of 4 young people living in urban Jakarta, struggling to achieve their dreams, forced by circumstance to make hard choices in a world of changing values. It is a mix of comedy, drama and action. A film, three years in the making and released just after Suharto's resignation, by 4 of Indonesia's up-and-coming young directors.

JANGAN LUPA!

Menonton is a word specifically used for watching entertainment so you can menonton film, menonton video, menonton televisi, menonton tarian (a traditional dance) or menonton pertandingan olahraga (a sports match)! You don't use the word melihat!

Television in Indonesia

Currently in Indonesia there is one national television station called TVRI (Televisi Republik Indonesia) and about five commercial television stations. TVRI was previously under strict governmental control but has recently become a more independent body, similar to the ABC in Australia.

The most popular television programs are soap operas, with every commercial station having at least one leading series competing for national audiences. The stories show typical Indonesian families dealing with the ups and downs of life. Topics like love, jealousy, broken hearts, family problems, and other relevant social issues like unemployment and drug use regularly crop up in the story lines.

Censorship in Indonesia

As you are probably aware, different countries have different issues that they feel need to be censored or avoided in film and television, particularly at prime viewing time. Do you know what sort of censorship rules are in place in Australia?

The amount of violence shown on Indonesian TV is a lot higher than in Australia. There are no restrictions on the amount of violence shown at prime-time, unlike in Australia, where strict controls on violence shown operate until 9.30 pm. By contrast, there are many more restrictions on love and sex scenes on Indonesian TV than on Australian TV. The sort of love scenes that are regularly shown in Western movies are simply cut out on Indonesian TV.

However, in the film industry it is starting to become more fashionable for movies to use as many love and sex scenes as in Western movies.

MASALAH LINGKUNGAN

1 Menjaga orang hutan

Protecting the orang-utan

Orang-utan (in Indonesian orang hutan, 'people of the jungle') are only found on the islands of Sumatra and Borneo (which include the regions of Kalimantan, Sarawak, Sabah and Brunei). They are one of the largest primates in the world, second only to the gorilla in size. Orang-utan live mostly in the canopy of dense rainforest, swinging from tree-to-tree, eating fruits and plants. They are quite shy creatures.

Out of the approximate 27,000–30,000 orang-utan which are left in the wild today, an estimated 15,000 orang-utan live in Kalimantan and about 7,000 in Sumatra. The remaining orang-utan live in Sarawak and Sabah (areas at the top of Borneo which are part of Malaysia).

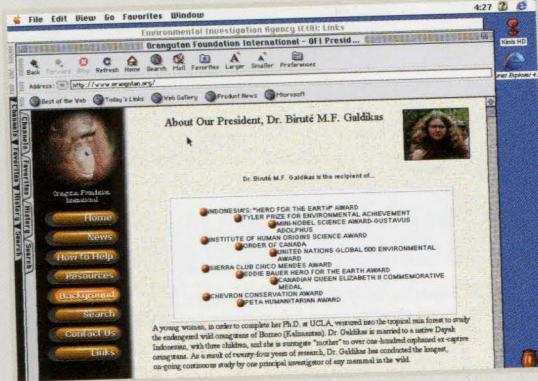

The total number of orang-utan are drastically decreasing every year, as either the habitat areas they live in are cut down or destroyed (Indonesia continues to lose around one million hectares of forest a year!), they are hunted as game animals for their meat, or sold in the international blackmarket pet trade.

Scientists have warned that 'orang-utan in the wild could disappear in 10 years' (AFP 22 March 2000) and, although laws exist in Indonesia to protect the orang-utan itself, the destruction of the jungle where they live means their numbers are dropping rapidly. According to The Orang-utan Foundation International:

The most obvious threat now facing orang-utan populations is the loss of habitat...In Kalimantan and Sumatra human encroachment...combined with a major logging industry has...the greatest impact.

On the positive side, there are two major rehabilitation centres for orang-utan in Indonesia. One is in the Bukit Lawang Reserve in northern Sumatra near Medan while the other, known as Camp Leakey, is in the Tanjung Puting National Park, Kalimantan, near the city of Balikpapan. These rehabilitation centres are vital for the survival of the orang-utan!

Camp Leakey is known around the world for its work. A Canadian scientist, Dr Biruté Galdikas, established the research centre. Dr Galdikas was one of three female researchers recruited by Louis Leakey to study the great apes and their close parallels with humans. While Diane Fossey went to Rwanda to study gorillas and Jane Goodall travelled to Tanzania to research chimpanzees, Dr Galdikas chose to go to Tanjung Puting to study the mysterious orang-utan – Asia's only great ape.

Today Tanjung Puting has about 2,000 orang-utans and has the longest running scientific study by one person of any mammal in the wild. Dr Galdikas has received many environmental awards for her work. She lives in Kalimantan with her husband, who is a native Dayak Indonesian, and three children, and is extremely devoted to the maintenance of the magnificent rainforest and its ecosystem.

As Dr Galdikas has said:

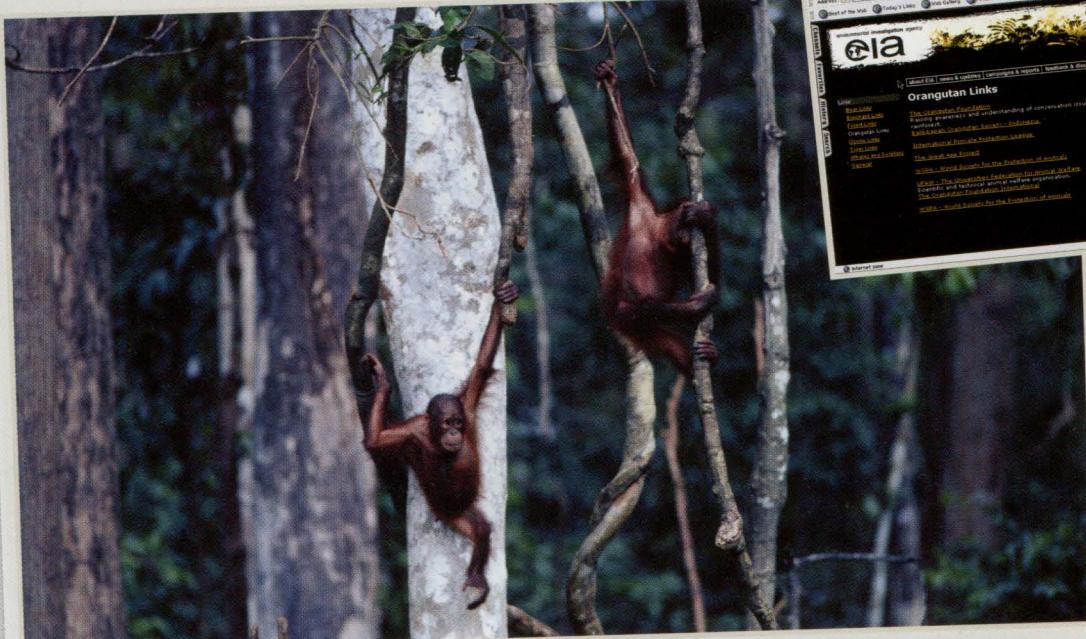

If forests such as this can be preserved, then the orang-utan species has a future as a species in the wild. If forests such as this are cut down or converted into other uses then the orang-utan species as a species has no hope.

Orang-utan are not the only endangered ones! There is a growing awareness and concern both within Indonesia, and in the rest of the world, about endangered animals. Many animals in Indonesia face extinction if steps are not urgently taken to protect them.

Species that are endangered include the Sumatran tiger, the Asian elephant, the silvery gibbon, the Sumatran rhino, the one-horned Javan rhino, the Komodo dragon, the giant sea turtle, the kancil (or mouse deer), the sun bear, and the tapir, as well as a range of exotic tropical birds such as the Borean peacock, the paradise kingfisher, the hornbill, the Bali starling and the bird of paradise.

Care for the environment!

This is a letter sent to KaWanku, a popular teenage magazine, by an Indonesian teenager, Delia, who was concerned about the environment. Read her letter and KaWanku's reply, taking note of the slang Delia uses.

Kepada sohib yang baik dan funky,

Di rumah saya, kita sekeluarga minum air mineral. Bukan dari dispenser, tapi dari gelas plastik. Ibu belinya satu dus. Yang jadi masalah sekarang adalah, sesudah airnya diminum, kemasannya dibuang ke mana? Padahal kemasannya terbuat dari plastik.

Sedangkan plastik itu kurang bersahabat dengan alam. Jadi saya (dan keluarga) ikut andil merusak alam, dong? Aduh, gimana nih? Tolong saya dong!

Segini saja dulu. Seneng punya temen seperti kamu.

Delia yang baik,

Memang kalau kita selalu membuang kemasan plastik air mineral, berarti kita ikut mencemari lingkungan. Salah satu jalan keluarnya adalah dengan membeli air mineral dalam dispenser. Apabila kita menggunakan gelas sendiri, gelas itu bisa dicuci. Seluruh gelas plastik itu bisa kita manfaatkan untuk keperluan lain. Bisa juga gelas-gelas itu dikembalikan ke pabriknya supaya bisa didaur-ulang.

*Delia, tetap jaga kepedulian seperti ini, ya.
Seneng juga punya teman seperti kamu.*

Salam kompak,

KaWanku

MASALAH LINGKUNGAN

2 Penduduk padat

Population density

One of Indonesia's main problems is its huge population, which is now over 209 million. This is more than 10 times that of Australia in a land mass not even one third the size. Over 60% of Indonesians live on the island of Java, with about 600 people per square kilometer! Land for housing and agriculture is therefore extremely scarce, sometimes forcing 2 or more families to share two small rooms.

The Indonesian government has long recognised this problem and has introduced schemes to help overcome population pressure. Two schemes are transmigasi (transmigration) and dua anak cukup (two children are enough).

Transmigrasi involves moving families to less populated areas, such as the outer islands. However, often the transmigrants are not skilled in the type of farming practised in their new location, have few facilities, and are not accepted socially by local people. Transmigrants often return to their original home.

Dua anak cukup is a family planning program to reduce birth rates through education and contraception. However, Indonesia does not have any unemployment benefits or welfare system, so many people have a big family as an insurance against sickness and misfortune. The members of a big family can support each other and share the workload in difficult times.

The population pressure in Indonesia also threatens the natural environment, as living-space and resources are required to house and feed its ever-increasing population.

TIDAK BEGiTU SUSAH!

3 Saying what you think! Saya kira bahwa...

You can express your opinions and thoughts by using the following phrases:

Saya percaya bahwa...	I believe that...
Saya pikir bahwa...	I think that...
Saya kira bahwa...	I reckon that...
Saya tahu bahwa...	I know that...

You'll notice the word bahwa is used in these expressions to mean 'that'. You'll see it used mostly when people are reporting official information of some kind. Although you don't have to use bahwa, it gives emphasis to what you are saying.

For example:

Saya pikir bahwa orang hutan akan kelaparan!
I think that the orang-utan will starve!

Hati-hati! Be careful not to confuse bahwa with itu or yang which can mean 'that' in different contexts!

Mobil itu merah.

That car is red.

Gadis yang di bis tadi pagi adik saya.

The girl that was on the bus this morning is my sister.

TIDAK BEGiTU SUSAH!

4 Accidental ke-an!

One function of adding ke-an to a word in Indonesian is to imply that the base word has accidentally happened to someone or something. In these cases it usually shows that a misfortune took place.

base verb	ke-an word
banjir	a flood haus	thirst
lapar	hungry
hilang	lose
	ke + base verb + an to be flooded to become really thirsty to be starving to lose (by accident)

You'll notice them in the photo-story where the future of the orang-utan is being discussed. Hendri explains:

...akibatnya orang hutan kehilangan tempat tinggal. Dan akhirnya mereka kelaparan dan mati.

...the consequence is that orang-utan lose their habitat. Eventually they starve to death.

Other common examples are:

kedinginan	to be freezing cold kepanasan	to get too hot kehabisan	to accidentally run out of something

Selamat sore, sakit apa?

Selamat sore, Pak Dokter. Saya tidak enak badan – tidak bisa makan sedikitpun...

Hmm...sudah berapa lama kamu tidak bisa makan?

Kira-kira seminggu...dan saya merasa bingung dan tidak bisa tidur.

11

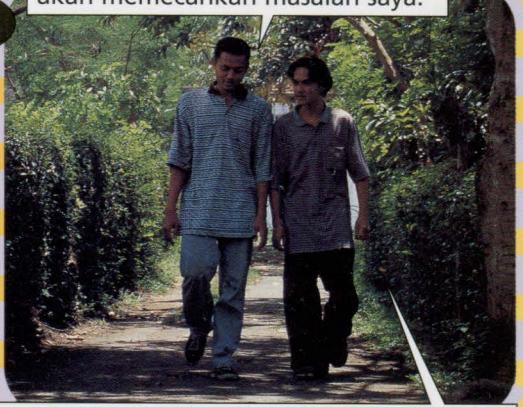

Walaupun kamu merasa sakit, badanmu tidak ada masalah. Tapi kalau tidak bisa makan badan kamu menjadi lemah. Oleh karena itu kamu harus makan banyak, minum vitamin B dua kali sehari, selama dua minggu, dan beristirahat.

Mmm...baik, Pak.

Meskipun dokter memberi saya vitamin, saya kira vitamin ini tidak akan memecahkan masalah saya.

13

Wahyu dan Ipul pergi ke dukun. Untung mereka tidak harus menunggu.

Kenalkan. Paman, ini teman saya, Wahyu.

Nah...Wahyu, ada apa?
Kelihatannya kamu sakit hati.

14

Betul! Tetapi badan kamu akan lebih sehat. Mungkin kita bisa mengunjungi paman saya. Dia seorang dukun. Kadang-kadang dalam keadaan seperti ini, obat dari dukun lebih efektif!

Ya, benar, Pak. Saya tidak bisa makan, tidak bisa tidur, dan merasa sedih.

Hmm...sudah berapa lama kamu tidak bisa makan?

Sudah seminggu?
Wah, ini parah.

Kira-kira seminggu.

15

Kemudian Pak Dukun menaburkan bunga kepada Wahyu.

Hmm...demam cinta!

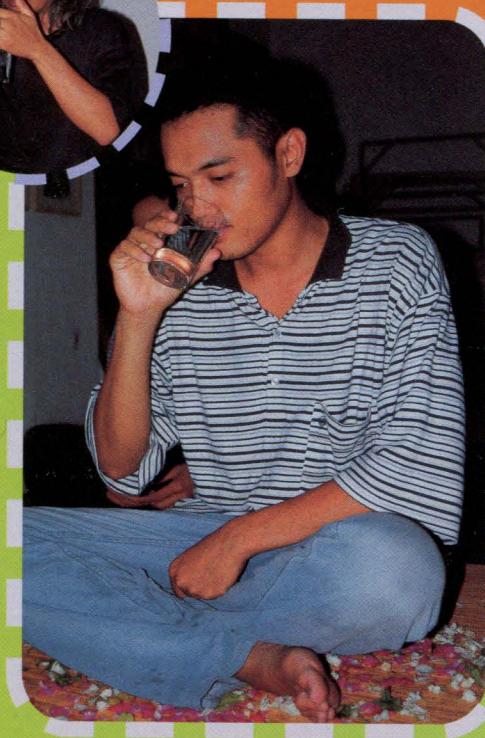

16

Lalu Pak Dukun membaca mantra ke dalam segelas air supaya diminum oleh Wahyu. Kemudian Wahyu langsung minum obat itu.

17

Nah...kamu harus meletakkan bunga ini di bawah bantalmu sepanjang malam! Malam ini kamu akan tidur dengan pulas dan bermimpi tentang pacarmu.

Terima kasih banyak, Pak!

TIDAK BEGiTU SUSAH!

1 The more time goes on the more it happens!

Makin lama makin...

Makan lama makin is a common expression in Indonesia and is used to emphasise the nature of something – often to the point of exaggeration. It is good for gossiping, warning or advising someone. Ipul warns Wahyu in frame 7:

Badanmu makin lama makin lemah kalau kamu tidak makan!

Your body will get weaker and weaker if you don't eat!

Here are some other typical examples you might hear:

Kamu makin lama makin kurus!

You're just getting thinner and thinner!

Dia makin lama makin cantik/ganteng.

He/she just keeps getting better looking!

Keadaan ini makin lama makin parah!

This situation just gets worse and worse!

2 Why are you like this? Mengapa kamu sampai begini?

This phrase is used when you are concerned about a friend. You can tell by looking at them that something is up, and you want to know the cause of the problem. Often the problem looks like it could be serious, as Ipul says to Wahyu in frame 2:

Oh, kasihan kamu! Mengapa kamu sampai begini?

Oh, you poor thing! Why are you like this? (What's happened to you?)

PAIR ACTIVITY

Refer to: p 131 What should I do?
p 132 Being sick...
p 133 How many times...?

1 Langsung ke dokter!

Go straight to the doctor! – pair work

Develop a role-play in pairs. One of you is the doctor and the other is the patient. The patient must explain to the doctor what is wrong, and answer questions about how they are feeling. The doctor must assess the patient and give them a prescription for their illness.

Nah, minum obat ini 3 kali sehari selama seminggu, dan kembali lagi ke sini 2 minggu yang akan datang!

USEFUL PHRASES (FOR THE DOCTOR)

Sudah berapa lama kamu sakit?
Sudah berapa lama kamu tidak bisa makan/minum/tidur/belajar/berjalan kaki?
Wah, badanmu lemah!
Mukamu pucat.
Kamu perlu beristirahat.
Walaupun kamu merasa sehat, kamu harus beristirahat.
Meskipun kamu sakit perut, kamu harus tetap makan dan minum!
Kamu harus minum obat ini 2 kali sehari.
Minum obat ini setiap hari selama 3 minggu.
Badanmu makin lama makin sehat.
Kamu bisa membeli obat ini di apotek.

USEFUL PHRASES (FOR THE PATIENT)

Saya lemah/sakit perut/pusing/sedih/cape
Oleh karena itu saya tidak bisa...makan/minum/tidur/belajar/berjalan kaki?
Sudah lama saya sakit.
Makin lama makin parah/sakit.
Saya harus bagaimana?
Di mana saya bisa membeli obat ini?

2 Bisa saya bantu?

Can I help? – pair work

Good friends often help each other out and give advice. Write down a problem you have. It might be to do with your health or your feelings, and it can be real, or imaginary. Now explain it to a friend. They should listen carefully and then offer some advice!

Now swap roles – this time you listen to the problem and give your opinion about what to do!

USEFUL PHRASES (IF YOU'RE GIVING ADVICE)

Jangan kuatir!
Kasihan, mungkin kamu bisa...
Ada apa?
Yang benar?
Meskipun kamu sedih...
Kamu harus langsung pergi ke dokter/dukun.

Saya suka sekali sama dia!
Bukan main gantengnya!
Saya harus bagaimana?

Mungkin kamu bisa membeli jamu kecantikan!

Eh, jangan kuatir!
Saya sudah minum.

USEFUL PHRASES (IF YOU'VE GOT A PROBLEM)

Masalah saya adalah...
Saya harus bagaimana?
Bukan...tetapi...
Kita kan teman baik!

MARI BERMAIN!

Kamu ada masalah?

Have you got a problem? – board game (2–4 players)

Players take it in turns to roll the dice and move their counters around the board.

Players use the number on the dice to tell them how many squares they may move at a time.

When you land on a square with an instruction on it, you need to follow the instruction given. If a square does not have anything on it, the player is free to stay there until their next turn.

Kotak masalah

Your teacher will give you some Kotak masalah cards from the Teacher's Electronic Resource.

If you land on the Kotak masalah (problem box) square, the player next to you picks up a Kotak masalah card and will ask you the problem which is written on it. You must choose the best solution for that problem. You will then be given a score from the card:

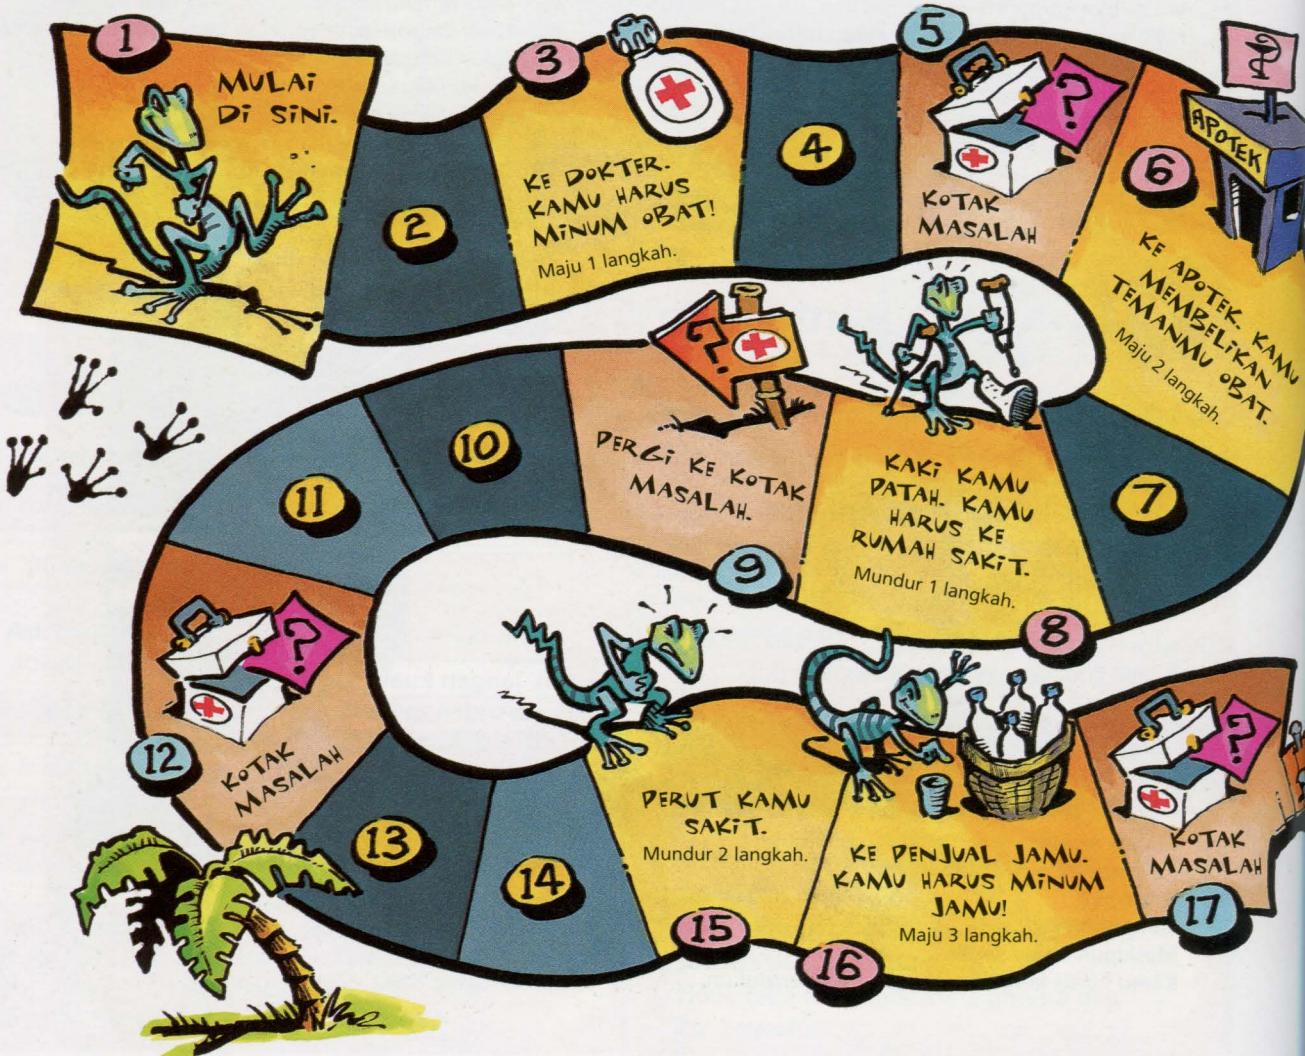

+2 means you move forward 2 squares

+1 means you move forward 1 square

-1 means you move backwards 1 square

Hint: an Indonesian dictionary might help you out if you have forgotten a word or two!

The aim of the game is to try to be the first to the finish line!

BACALAH INI!

Saya harus bagaimana?

What should I do?

Read these letters written by Indonesian teenagers to their favourite magazine. See if you agree with the advice given!

1 Hai! Saya peduli lingkungan dan pantai dekat rumah saya makin lama makin kotor karena banyak sampah yang dibuang di sana. Saya harus bagaimana?

Dari Febi

Yang benar? Ini parah sekali. Mungkin kamu bisa menjaga lingkungan bersama teman-temanmu, dan membersihkan pantai itu akhir minggu depan?

Semoga sukses, ya!

Hai – saya sedih sekali karena saya tidak punya pakaian baru untuk pesta! Saya harus bagaimana?

Dari Mia

Jangan kuatir! Mungkin kamu bisa pinjam dari kakakmu.

3 Waduh! Ujian matematika saya gagal! Saya ingin lulus tetapi bagaimana caranya?

Dari Jono

Belajar yang rajin! Makin lama makin pandai, atau minta tolong temanmu yang pandai!

4 Wah! Sohib saya harus pindah ke kota lain dengan keluarganya! Saya harus bagaimana?

Dari Oki

Tidak apa-apa! Mungkin kamu bisa mengunjungi dia pada liburan yang akan datang!

5 Masalah saya adalah: Saya tidak boleh ikut teman-teman saya ke bioskop, pada malam hari. Saya ingin sekali ikut mereka. Saya harus bagaimana?

Dari Bima

Hmm – masalah ini susah. Mungkin kamu bisa bicara dengan orangtuamu, atau mungkin kakakmu juga bisa ikut? Coba saja, ya!

You are the talk-back host on a teenage radio program. Teenagers will ring in with specific problems and you can suggest some advice. Use the magazine letters to help you!

● Halo, Mia, selamat siang. Ada apa?

▲ Halo. Masalah saya adalah saya tidak punya pakaian baru untuk pesta. Saya harus bagaimana?

● Hmm. Jangan kuatir! Mungkin kamu bisa pinjam dari kakakmu.

▲ Oh, itu ide bagus! Trims, ya!

BERANI COBA?

Now you could write a short problem and/or solution of your own. Ring up your radio host partner to discuss it.

TIDAK BEGiTU SUSAH!

3 What should I do? Saya harus bagaimana?

When learning a new language, it is very important not to translate word for word. You should translate phrases as a whole, instead.

A good example is Saya harus bagaimana? which means 'What should I do?'

It appears in frame 6 when Wahyu complains that he's had no reply from Nurita to his love letter. He says:

Aduh, Ipu! Saya harus bagaimana?

Oh no, Ipu! What should I do?

Aduh, Ipu! Saya harus bagaimana? Saya rindu! Sampai saat ini Nurita belum membalas e-mail itu!

4 We really are best friends! Kita kan teman baik!

Here are some handy friendship terms you can use with your best friends!

rindu	to miss someone/something memang	truly
sahabat	best friend
teman baik	good friend

You can use these two expressions with your friends:

Kamu memang teman saya!

You really are my friend!

Kita kan teman baik!

We really are best friends!

Kan is short for bukan – which in this case is being used to emphasise the expression, similar to 'really' or 'aren't we!'.

5 So because of that... Oleh karena itu...

Often when explaining things we need to emphasise why something is the way it is, so we need phrases like this one:

oleh karena itu... because of that, for that reason

It is a handy one to remember because it can be used to start a sentence or join two together. Here are two examples.

Oleh karena itu saya senang sekali.

Because of that I was really happy.

Dia merasa kurang sehat dan oleh karena itu dia tidak bisa ikut.

She was feeling unwell and because of that she couldn't come.

TIDAK BEGITU SUSAH!

6 On the other hand... Walaupun, meskipun, namun, bukan...melainkan..., bukan hanya...tetapi juga...

When discussing something in detail in Indonesian it is often necessary to be able to express more complex opinions. This can involve comparing two issues. These phrases will help you compare ideas and situations.

walaupun	although
meskipun	in spite of that...
...namun	...however
meskipun...namun...	although...
bukan...melainkan...	it's not that...it's... (when discussing opposites)
bukan hanya...tetapi juga	not only...but also...(when discussing similar things)

Sometimes these words will also be used in the same sentence as each other. Here are some examples:

Walaupun dia pemalas, dia terus berhasil!

Although he's lazy, he continues to succeed!

Meskipun Tuti pemalu, namun dia punya banyak teman.

Although Tuti is shy, she has a lot of friends.

Bukan dia nakal, melainkan dia bosan.

It's not that she's naughty, it's that she's bored.

Bukan hanya dia cantik tetapi juga pandai!

Not only is she beautiful but she's also smart!

7 Being sick! Sakit, mual, muntah, pusing, masuk angin dll.

sick, nauseous, to vomit, to be dizzy, to feel run-down etc.

There are different expressions for being sick in Indonesia. You have to think about what you are trying to describe carefully so your information is correct and you get the right sort of help. Here are some useful phrases:

saya sakit	I'm feeling sick/unwell/a bit off-colour (very general)
badan saya tidak enak	I'm not feeling well, my body's aching
saya mual	I'm nauseous/sick in the stomach
saya muntah	I vomited
saya sakit perut	I have a stomachache
perut saya sakit	my stomach hurts
saya sakit kepala	I have a headache
kepala saya sakit	I've hurt my head
saya masuk angin	I've caught a chill, I feel run down (literally: the wind has got into me)

There is a difference in the way 'hurt' and 'an ache' are expressed!

Kepala saya sakit! My head hurts. (I've injured it in some way.)

Saya sakit kepala! I've got a headache!

Kepala saya sakit!

Saya sakit kepala!

8 How many times a week do you do that? Berapa kali seminggu kamu melakukan itu?

When you want to talk about how often something happens or how often something needs to be done, we use this phrase:

...kali se...(hari, minggu, tahun, etc.) ...number of times per...(day, week, year etc.)

Here are some examples:

Obat ini harus diminum 4 kali sehari, selama 3 hari!

This medicine must be taken 4 times a day, for 3 days!

Saya bermain tenis 3 kali seminggu.

I play tennis 3 times a week.

Keluarga saya mengunjungi kakek saya 2 kali setahun.

My family visit my grandfather twice a year.

Setiap is also another good word to remember in this group because it says something happens 'every' time. For example:

Saya bersilancar setiap hari!

I go surfing every day.

Kira-kira, which means approximately, is helpful too because it means you don't have to be so precise. For example:

Saya menonton video kira-kira sekali seminggu.

I watch videos about once a week.

9 Pe-an nouns

In this chapter you have seen the word perasaan, meaning 'feelings', used when Ipul thinks that:

...lebih baik dia bertemu dengan Nurita dan menjelaskan perasaannya.

...it would be better if he met with Nurita and told her about his feelings.

When a me-verb like merasa ('to feel') changes into the noun perasaan ('feelings') it takes the affixes pe-an. Other examples are:

me-verb	pe-an noun
menjelaskan	penjelasan
memandang	an explanation the view, scenery

10 Per-an nouns

Per-an nouns on the other hand tend to be formed from ber-verbs.

ber-verb	per-an noun
bercakap-cakap	percakapan
berjalan	perjalanan
bertanya	pertanyaan
bekerja	pekerjaan

Note: although bekerja and pekerjaan start with be- and pe-, they are still classed with ber-verbs and per-an nouns.

INDONESIA ASYIK!

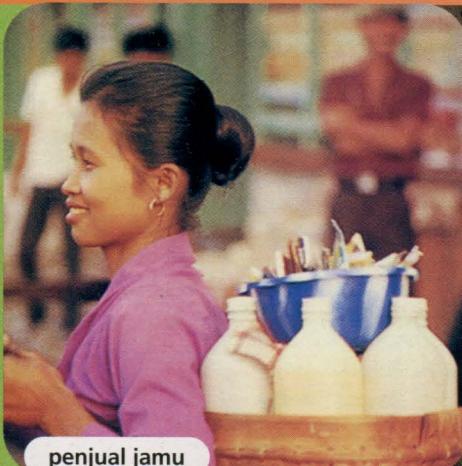

1 Jamu

Traditional herbal remedies called jamu are very popular with Indonesians. Using this traditional form of medicine is a bit like going to a herbalist or naturopath in Australia. The jamu, or herbal medicine, is made according to age-old recipes, and can be in the form of powders, pastes, creams and capsules. The most common type of jamu is the powder type which you mix with hot water and honey, and sometimes even an egg! There are jamu remedies to treat all sorts of different illnesses and to generally improve your physical condition.

Jamu was first made in the royal courts of Yogyakarta and Solo. In these courts the ladies of nobility perfected the art of making jamu from flowers, barks, nuts, herbs and spices which they used to maintain their health and beauty.

Today these ancient recipes are commercially manufactured all over Indonesia. Semarang is known for its two big jamu factories: Jamu Jago and Jamu Nyonya Meneer.

You buy jamu in the street from a penjual jamu or jamu seller. The sellers are often women, and either carry the jamu remedies in bottles on their shoulders or push them in a little cart. There are lots of jamu sellers in Java, so you won't have to go far before you find one!

penjual jamu

bahan-bahan untuk membuat jamu

2 Masuk angin

Masuk angin actually means that 'the wind has got into you'. It's a bit like saying in English that you've caught a chill or you feel a bit feverish. It is a common cause of illness in Indonesia and is wrapped up in traditional beliefs about the power of external forces. It can mean that you are either physically sick or emotionally vulnerable and is nearly always given as a possible cause if you mention that you are unwell. You might see some Indonesians, particularly in Java, rubbing their skin with a coin to help combat masuk angin. This remedy seems to work on the idea of increasing the bloodflow and stimulating the immune system, and its benefits are firmly believed in.

3 Dukun

A dukun is a type of traditional healer or witchdoctor that can be found in many villages all over Indonesia. The powers of a dukun vary. Some dukun can predict the future, while others can influence fate, identify thieves or heal the sick.

A dukun can be male or female and each dukun has his/her own special techniques of healing people. The powers are often passed down from within the family and are regarded as a gift from God, which will be taken away if abused or used in the wrong way.

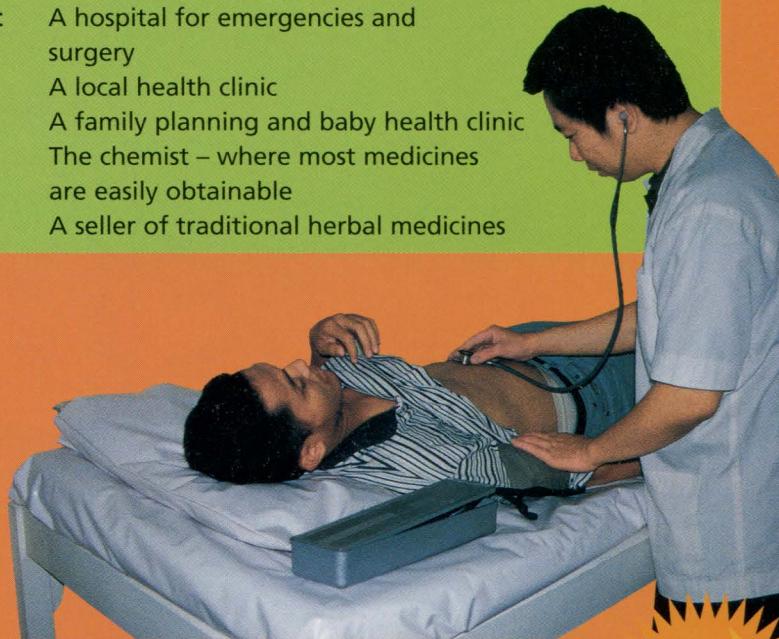

As you saw in the photo-story, sometimes a dukun will read a mantra (a special blessing/prayer) into a glass of water, turning the water into holy water which can then heal a person. Sometimes a dukun also uses a mixture of herbs and natural ingredients which they chew to make a paste, putting the paste onto the person's body to heal it. Sprinkling flowers over the person is another important healing ritual.

4 Langsung ke dokter!

In most Indonesian towns there are a number of health centres you can visit if you are sakit:

Dokter	A general doctor like in Australia
Dokter gigi	A dentist – usually private practices
Dukun	A traditional medicine person who also deals with personal problems. Believed to have magical powers
Rumah sakit	A hospital for emergencies and surgery
Puskesmas	A local health clinic
Posyandu	A family planning and baby health clinic
Apotek	The chemist – where most medicines are easily obtainable
Jamu seller	A seller of traditional herbal medicines

Generally in Indonesia you don't make an appointment to see a dokter. You just turn up, take a number and wait your turn on a first-come-first-served basis!

DIA TEMAN ATAU PACAR?

TANGGAL
8
DESEMBER

Hari Minggu Nurita dan teman-temannya pergi ke taman yang terdekat.

Aku is used instead of saya throughout this photo-story as the friends are close and know each other well.

HATI-HATI!

Aku bingung! Bagaimana kalau anak catur ini aku taruh di sini?

Jangan! Lebih baik di sebelah kanan.

Kalau kamu kalah, kamu harus membelikan kita es krim!

Nah! Kamu kalah! Ayo belikan kita es krim sekarang... dan untuk aku – dua!

Hati-hati, ya! Kalau kamu terlalu serakah, siapa yang mau menjadi pacarmu?

Hen, kamu main-main saja!

Tapi aku tidak mirip orang hutan, seperti kamu!

Aduh! Tertawa terus! Pipi aku sakit!

Aduh!

Ada semut di dalam celana aku!

Aku pikir kamu pandai bermain catur.

Tetapi aku pandai sekali taekwondo!

Oh ya? Boleh aku menonton kamu bertanding kapan-kapan?

Tentu saja! Aku akan senang sekali!

Mudah-mudahan mereka pergi untuk membeli es krim!

Mereka ke mana?

5

Tidak apa-apa. Kita bisa main catur dengan tenang.

Aku pasti menang! Awas, ya! Aku pandai sekali bermain catur!

Yang benar! Jangan terlalu pasti!

Yeyen, kamu mau ke Java Kafe hari Sabtu sore? Kita bisa ngobrol-ngobrol sambil minum kopi?

Mau juga, tetapi ibuku harus aku tanya dulu, ya!

Wah, bunga itu indah sekali, ya?

Aku harus bilang apa, ya?
Aku grogi!

Aku suka sekali tempat ini! Tenang dan banyak bunga dimana-mana, ya?

Ya, betul. Mungkin kapan-kapan, kita bisa kembali ke sini lagi, tapi berdua saja!

8

Yeyen, ah... (Waduh! Ini susah sekali!)... boleh aku terus terang?

Tentu saja. Ada apa, Hen?

Oke-oke, aku harus berani!

Sudah lama aku suka kamu!

Asyik! Dia suka sama aku!!!

Oh..., yang benar?

Ya, mungkin!

Ada kemungkinan besar!

Ada kemungkinan kita bisa pacaran?

10

Anu...apakah kamu tahu aku yang menulis e-mail yang kamu terima, minggu lalu!

Wah! Kata-katanya indah sekali!

Aduh! Aku malu!

11

Astaga! Dia mau mengajak pacaran!

Belum. Punya teman baik saja, seperti Hendri, Imam dan Hadi.

Nurita, mau menjadi pacarku?

Aduh! Hatiku deg-degan!

Hmm...boleh.

12

Wahyu dan Nurita duduk bersama-sama dengan Yeyen dan Hendri.

Wah! Mungkin Hendri sudah jatuh cinta sama Yeyen!

Asyik! Yeyen akan senang sekali!

Tidak ada apa-apanya!

Ada apa, Hendri?

Mengapa kamu tersenyum terus, Yeyen?

Eh! Kamu juga!

Mereka benar-benar beli es krim, atau...? Oh, itu mereka di sana!

Kelihatannya mereka sedang pacaran – bukan beli es krim!!

14

Nahhhh – ketahuan!
Sedang pacaran, ya?

He, di mana es krim
aku? Aku lapar!

Oh, ya! Mana es krim kita, Hendri?

Oh, maaf, aku lupa, dompet aku ketinggalan di rumah!

INDONESIA ASYIK!

1 Types of love

In Indonesian there are a few different words for 'love'. The two most commonly used are sayang and cinta.

Sayang is usually used with parents, close friends and relatives and has a sense of unconditional love. It also indicates respect, caring and loyalty.

Cinta is more of a romantic type of love, used when speaking about your pacar, or other things you might feel passionate about – like your football team!

2 Affection

Traditionally in Indonesia it is not polite to hug and kiss people of the opposite sex in public, except for family members. Affection between couples is usually shown in private.

Girls and boys in Indonesia are traditionally shy with the opposite sex, even if they are going out together. They do not hold hands or kiss, and will introduce a girlfriend/boyfriend to others as 'just a friend' to avoid embarrassment. Even married couples do not show affection towards each other in public.

This is changing slightly because of Western influence, especially in the big cities where you may see boys and girls or men and women openly showing affection to each other. However you can still expect to receive some disapproving stares if you kiss someone you're going out with in the street!

On the other hand, holding hands, hugging and showing affection to members of the same sex, e.g.: to your friends, is considered very normal in Indonesia, even between boys! These are just considered gestures of friendship, and don't get misunderstood, or indicate any sexual intent.

BACALAH INI!

Nyantai aja dong!

Just chill out!

Ever had the feeling that you've been learning Indonesian for years and yet when you pick up a magazine it still looks like a completely alien language? Nyantai aja dong! It's probably just a case of Omong Jakarte (Jakartan slang).

It is becoming more and more common all over Indonesia to see the influence of Jakartan slang words and expressions, particularly among teenagers, and in teenage magazines like KaWanku and Hai! Popular slang is good to recognise, but be careful to use it only around your friends.

Read Nurita's diary entries, which are written in omong Jakarte. Then have a look at the version of the 8 Desember diary entry which is in bahasa baku (standard Indonesian). Notice the differences between the slang and the standard Indonesian. Can you see any regular patterns?

Hint: Indonesian slang often looks like the Indonesian you already know, but a few letters have changed or dropped off!

BUKU HARIAN KURITA
AWAS!
DILARANG MEMBAGI!!!

Hari Minggu, tanggal 24 November

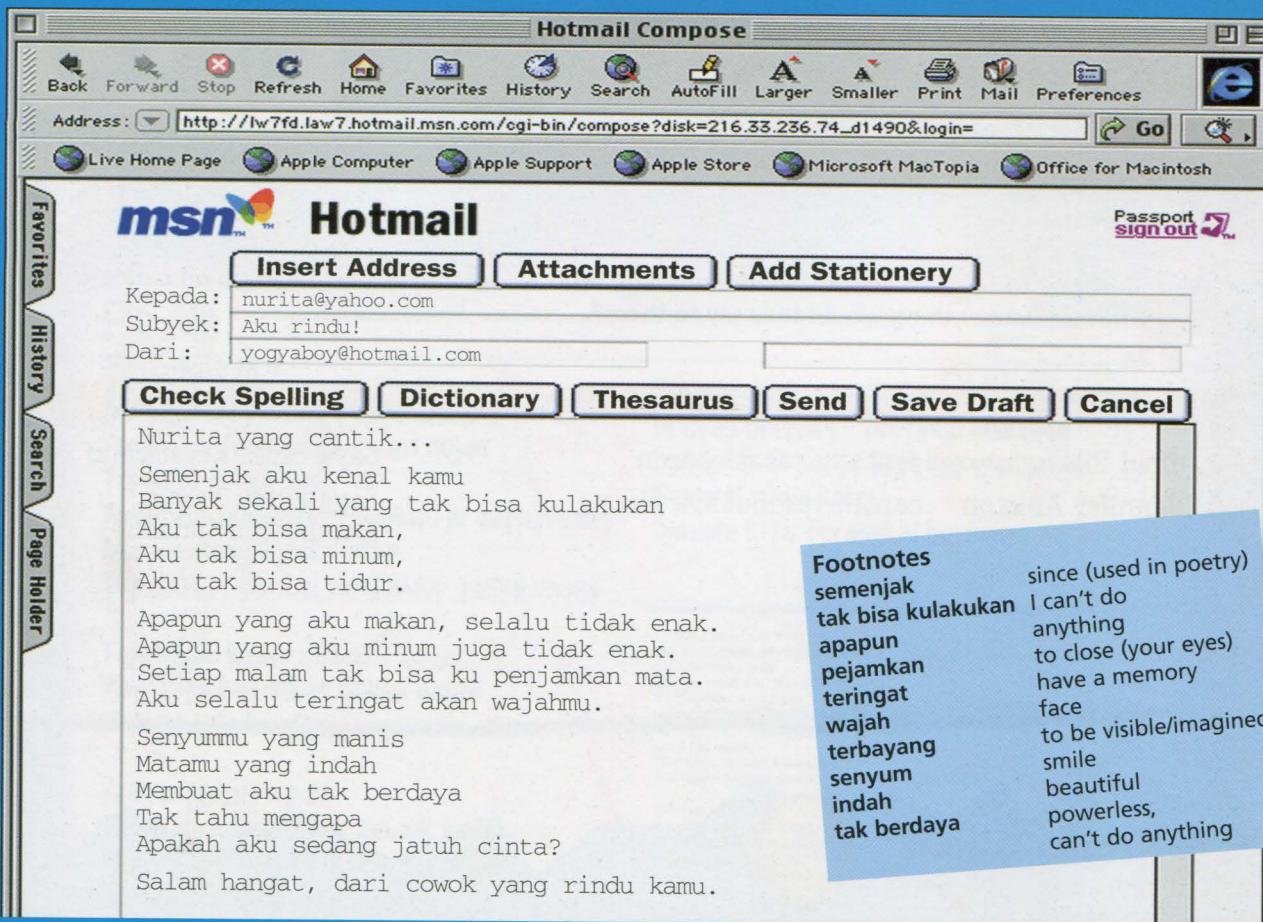

Udah lama gue nggak nulis!

Hari Jumat hari yang bagus banget. Ketemu sama temen-temen gue, Hendri dan Yeyen di bioskop Mataram. Gue seneng banget karena Wahyu juga ada di sana! Asyik, deh!

Dan hari ini gue terima surat lewat email yang isinya romantis banget! Tapi gue belom tau cowok mana yang nulis surat itu! Bingung gue!

Ini rahasia gue: Gue suka sama Wahyu! sebenarnya doi belom tau lho! Emang doi lucu, cakep dan keren!

Mungkin doi juga suka sama gue? Kalo gue lihat doi, hati gue deg-degan!

Hari Minggu, tanggal 8 Desember

Udah banyak yang terjadi sejak gue terakhir nulis!

Wahyu bilang 'kamu cantik, Nurita'.
Aduuuuh!!! Lalu doi bilang bahwa, doi yang emailin surat cinta itu. Doi nggak bisa makan, nggak tidur selama seminggu setelah doi nulis sama gue!! Katanya juga doi udah suka banget sama gue selama
2 taon! Astaga!! Bukan main romantisnya doi!

Hendri dan Yeyen tambah deket!
Mungkin mereka akan pacaran juga.
Asyik! Hari ini gue hepi sekali!

Bahasa resmi

Hari Minggu, tanggal 8 Desember
Sudah banyak yang terjadi sejak aku terakhir menulis!

Wahyu bilang 'kamu cantik, Nurita'.
Aduuuuh!!! Lalu dia berkata bahwa dia yang kirim e-mail surat cinta itu. Dia tidak bisa makan, tidak bisa tidur selama seminggu setelah dia menulis kepada saya! Katanya juga dia sudah suka sekali sama aku selama 2 tahun!
Astaga!! Bukan main romantisnya dia!

Hendri dan Yeyen tambah dekat!
Mungkin mereka akan pacaran juga.

Asyik! Hari ini aku senang sekali!

MARI BERMAIN!

Think of a few phrases that you use a lot in Indonesian and try to write them using Jakartan slang. Be as imaginative as you like, using phrases from any chapter! Don't let anyone else see what your expressions are. Now play hangman with your friends using the slang versions. The first person to figure it out your sentence then gets to try out their own slang expression!

BICARA BEBAS!

1 Pacar fantasi

Dream date – group activity

Interview 6 friends to find out about their dream date. Who would they really like to go on a date with, why and what (romantic) thing would they say to them?

Namanya

Mengapa kamu suka doi? Karena doi...

Kamu mau bilang apa?

1 Brad Pitt

ganteng sekali keren

Saya cinta kepadamu!

2 Jennifer Aniston

cantik rambutnya pirang

Saya rindu kamu.

Rambutmu indah!

2 Radio Cinta

Radio love – pair work

In pairs, role-play the Radio Cinta show. You are the caller and your partner is the announcer. Call Radio Cinta with an anonymous love message for a boy or girl you like. Talk about their appearance, what they are like, their star sign and how you feel about them! When you have finished swap your roles. Below are some phrases to help you get started.

USEFUL PHRASES

Note that you can use either aku or saya.

aku cinta kepadamu

I love you

you're my sweetheart

aku suka sekali sama kamu

I really like you

I'm love-sick

aku sayang sama kamu

I love/care about you a lot

I'm love-sick

aku rindu sama kamu

I long for you/miss you

I'm drunk on love

aku jatuh cinta kepadamu

I've fallen in love with you

LAGU

Work with a partner to read the lyrics of this song written by the Indonesian group Sheila on 7.

Pe-de

oleh Sheila on 7

Aku memang belum punya mobil
Yang bisa teduhkanmu dari hujan
Tapi aku punya lagu
Yang bisa menghangatkanmu di setiap saat
Aku memang nggak funky
Tapi bukan gembel yang hidup tanpa usaha

Tapi kalau kamu sadar
Yang kita butuhkan bukan hanya funky style/materi

Yang kita butuhkan
Tapi kalo kamu benar cewek baik
Kamu pasti falling in love with me
Karena aku bisa membawaimu
Terbang melayang ke saña kemari
Wow

Pegaing erat piëggangku saat kita melaju
Di atas biñfang - biñfang/dua roda
Deñdañgkai serta lagu kesayainganmu
Seperti sedia kala
Dimana kita teraingkai bersama

It's true I don't have a car yet that could shelter you from the rain but I do have a song that can warm you up in every moment
It's true that I'm not funky
but I'm not a poor man who lives without the will to work

But if you realise
That what we need is not just a funky lifestyle (1st chorus)/material things (2nd chorus)

What we need...
if you really are a great girl you are sure to fall in love with me because I can soothe you, flying and floating here and there
wow...

Hold on tight around my waist when we take off above the stars (1st chorus) on two wheels (2nd chorus) singing your favorite songs with you just like when we started in a place where we were meant to be together.

TIDAK BEGITU SUSAH!

1 More about saying 'no'.

There are different ways to say 'no' in Indonesian depending upon the situation. In frame 9, where Wahyu asks Nurita sudah punya pacar?, notice that she answers with belum. Tidak would be too definite, almost indicating that she would never want a pacar.

Bukan is often used to say that a whole situation is not true. For example, in frame 11 Imam says:

Kelihatannya mereka sedang pacaran – bukan beli es krim!!
It looks like they are getting friendly – not buying ice cream!!

The use of bukan rather than tidak here gives this sentence a different sense. If Imam had said tidak beli es krim, it would suggest that the others still might be buying something, even if not es krim. By using bukan, Imam stresses the point that the others haven't in fact been doing any buying at all!

TIDAK BEGiTU SUSAH!

3rd person

2 Passive type 2 sentences: when the actor is you or me!

You have already been using the passive sentence structure where the object comes at the beginning of the sentence, and the verb is in the di-form. Now there is another type of passive sentence to look at. This one is used when the actor is me or you, i.e. the actor is the 1st or 2nd person.

Look at these passive type 2 sentences from the photo-story and notice where the actor, verb and object are:

- Yeyen: Mau juga, tetapi ibuku harus aku tanya dulu, ya!
I want to, too, but I have to ask my mum first, OK!

Hendri: Bagaimana kalau anak catur ini aku taruh di sini?
What if I move the chess piece here?

This is the passive type 2 pattern:

object (+ extras) + actor + base verb (with any suffixes still attached)

Here is an active sentence:

Saya akan membaca surat cinta itu.
I will read that love letter.

Check that you know the different parts of the sentence.

- | | |
|------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1. Who is the actor? | saya = I |
| 2. What is the verb? | membaca = to read |
| 3. What is the object? | surat cinta itu = that love letter |

This is the above sentence in the passive type 2 form.

Surat cinta itu akan saya baca.

That love letter, I will read.

Follow these steps to rewrite active sentences into passive type 2 ones!

- 1 Double-check that the actor is you, us or me (1st or 2nd person).
↓
 - 2 Move the object to the front of the phrase or sentence.
↓
 - 3 Make the actor come just before the verb, without anything else in-between.
↓
 - 4 Place any extras like: harus, mau, akan, yang before the actor.
↓
 - 5 Now chop off any prefix from the verb (but leave the suffixes!).
↓

Active sentence

Saya akan membaca surat cinta itu.
(actor) (verb) (object)

Saya = me (1st person).

Surat cinta itu saya akan membaca.

akan

Passive sentence

Surat cinta itu akan saya baca

3 You, me, him or her? Kamu, aku, dia or doi?

Doi is a popular new word for he/she, when talking about a pacar or close friend of a similar age. You will see doi used a lot in modern teenage magazines and it's quite trendy – just don't use it when you're talking to your grandpa!

In Indonesian there are a lot of different words used for 'you', 'me', and 'he/she', depending upon the situation. It's important for you to know which one should be used in which situation. Here's a summary.

I, me, my	saya aku (-ku) gue	for general use used among very close friends and family and your pacar slang use only
you, your	saudara anda kamu (-mu) engkau (-kau) lu	used in very formal situations for general use, especially when you don't know someone commonly used among close friends, your pacar etc. but not to someone older rarely used now, only with people you know really well slang use only
he/she, his/her	dia (-nya) doi	for general use when talking specifically about a pacar or close friend

4 Making abstract nouns: Ke-an nouns

You may have noticed the word kemungkinan meaning 'a possibility' in frame 9 of the photo-story. You can probably see it comes from the base word mungkin meaning 'possible'. Ke-an nouns can have base words that are nouns, adjectives or verbs. With these words the trick is to look for the base word.

Ke-an can make words into abstract nouns.

Others you already know are:

ke-an word	base word (meaning)	ke-an meaning
kebaikan	baik (good)	kindness
keadaan	ada (to exist)	a situation
kelihatan	lihat (to see)	appearance

Hati-hati! Ketahuan in this chapter is not an abstract noun but shows the accidental ke-an function, so ketahuan means to accidentally find out.

5 Doubling up! Jalan-jalan dan ngobrol-ngobrol

Often in Indonesian there is doubling up of words. This can mean that the original concept or word has a more casual feel to it. Look at these examples. The first three are from the photo-story:

jalan-jalan	to go for a walk (not to anywhere in particular) ngobrol-ngobrol	to have a chat (not about anything in particular) kapan-kapan	whenever (no time in particular) duduk-duduk	to sit around melihat-lihat	to look about, to browse
