CRESCENT AND DOVE

Peace and Conflict Resolution in Islam

Qamar-ul Huda, editor

Preface by HRH Prince Ghazi bin Muhammad bin Talal

"Crescent and Dove, a groundbreaking book edited by Qamar-ul Huda, is a 'must read' for policymakers, scholars, and students of international affairs in a world that too often fails to distinguish between the acts of a tiny minority of extremists and the religion of Islam."

—John Esposito, Georgetown University

In the face of overwhelming attention to extremist movements and the fundamentalist Islam they often espouse, exploration of peacemaking and conflict resolution in Muslim communities is especially timely. Crescent and Dove looks at the relationship between contemporary Islam and peacemaking by tackling the diverse interpretations, concepts, and problems in the field of Islamic peacemaking.

Although Islamic law requires followers to preserve and protect life, and peacemaking efforts arise in Muslim communities everywhere, those who advocate for Islamic principles of nonviolence and peacebuilding, as well as traditional methods of conflict resolution, face serious challenges. Writing from their perspective as Muslim scholars and peacebuilding practitioners, the contributors offer critical perspectives on what works, what opportunities exist, and what areas are fertile for effective peacebuilding efforts. Their experience and analysis demonstrate that fostering a culture of peace in Muslim communities and building effective conflict resolution practices must occur within an Islamic framework and must engage Muslim leaders.

Crescent and Dove addresses both theory and practice by delving into the intellectual heritage of Islam to discuss historical examples of addressing conflict in Islam and exploring the practical challenges of contemporary peacemaking in Arab countries, Turkey, Iran, Pakistan, and Indonesia. These groundbreaking essays offer possibilities for nonviolent interventions, peacemaking, the implementation of human rights, the reinterpretation of texts, peace education instruction, and employing successful mediation, negotiation, and conflict resolution skills in an Islamic context.

QAMAR-UL HUDA is a senior program officer in the Religion and Peacemaking Program and a scholar of Islam at United States Institute of Peace. His area of expertise is Islamic theology, comparative ethics, the language of violence, interfaith studies, conflict resolution and nonviolence in contemporary Islam. He is an adjunct faculty member of Georgetown University's Conflict Resolution Program and has taught at Boston College, Brandeis University, and the College of Holy Cross.

LIGHT INTERVENTION

Lessons from Bougainville

Anthony Regan

"Regan's analysis is profound, his assessments well established, and his recommendations highly original. This book shows what a thorough case study analysis of a specific, successful, peacebuilding process can contribute to the scholarly and political debate on the problems of international peacebuilding interventions." —Volker Boege, research fellow, University of Queensland

This volume analyzes the remarkably successful Bougainville peace process, which ended an apparently intractable, violent, and deeply divisive separatist conflict that for much of the period from 1988 to 1997 destabilized both Papua New Guinea and the wider Pacific islands region. International intervention in Bougainville achieved the much-desired light footprint, marked by less activist international involvement and a high degree of control by parties to the process. Anthony Regan contends that the success of this process makes it an important case for examining the advantages and ideal conditions for a light international intervention.

Regan outlines the origins, features, and impacts of the conflict; examines the key dynamics of the peace process that enabled local actors to initiate and largely control it; and focuses on why a light intervention was possible in this case. He also assesses the limitations of this approach. In particular he provides twenty-five lessons highlighting the dynamics contributing to the outcomes in Bougainville and insights and points of reference for those planning interventions in other contexts.

A constitutional lawyer who specializes in constitutional development as part of conflict resolution, ANTHONY REGAN has lived in Papua New Guinea (PNG) for seventeen years and in Uganda for more than three years, and has advised the PNG government on decentralization policy and law, and been a full-time adviser on post-conflict constitutional development in Uganda. He has advised Bougainville parties in the peace process since 1994 and been involved in the Solomon Islands and Sri Lanka peace processes, the constitution-making process in East Timor, and advised Nagaland parties in their conflict with India. He was a senior fellow at the U.S. Institute of Peace from 2004 to 2005.

THE GO BETWEEN

Jan Eliasson and the Styles of Mediation

Isak Svensson and Peter Wallensteen Preface by Kofi Annan

"A valuable contribution to the literature on mediation and conflict resolution. The authors successfully bridge the gap between theory and practice, drawing heavily on Ambassador Eliasson's diaries and on their own academic and more theoretical background in relating the exercises to one another."

—Teresita C. Schaffer, director, South Asia Program, Center for Strategic and International Studies, and former U.S. ambassador to Sri Lanka

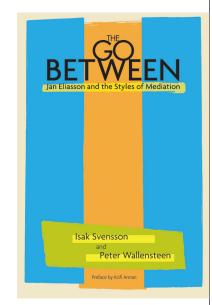

Success in international mediation hinges on the skill, style, and methods of the mediator. This volume explores international mediation through the lens of Ambassador Jan Eliasson, an international go-between with a remarkable track record.

Authors Svensson and Wallensteen contend that international mediators' styles vary in four dimensions—scope, method, mode, and focus—and that the mandate mediators receive strongly determines the style they adopt. The authors draw lessons for the peacemaking process from their examination of how Eliasson entered, prepared, pursued, and finally ended his mediation efforts.

Svensson and Wallensteen evaluate Eliasson's role in six cases: two missions on the Iran-Iraq conflict; two cases of humanitarian diplomacy, in Burma/Myanmar and in Sudan; and two cases of internal armed conflicts, in Nagorno-Karabakh and in Darfur. Analyzing the role of the mediator in each of these instances offers insight into the constraints mediators face and outcomes they may achieve in other scenarios. The authors conclude with ten implications for mediation research and practice.

As a special feature of this volume, the authors incorporate excerpts from extensive interviews and diary entries from Jan Eliasson on his mediation experiences.

PETER WALLENSTEEN is the Dag Hammarskjöld Professor of Peace and Conflict Research at Sweden's Uppsala University and on the faculty of the University of Notre Dame's Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies. He is author of many titles, including Understanding Conflict Resolution: Peace, War, and the Global System. ISAK SVENSSON is an associate professor in the department of Peace and Conflict Research at Sweden's Uppsala University and the author of many publications on mediation and peace negotiations.

AMERICAN NEGOTIATING BEHAVIOR

Wheeler-Dealers, Legal Eagles, Bullies, and Preachers

Richard H. Solomon and Nigel Quinney Forewords by Madeleine Albright and Condoleezza Rice

"A goldmine of useful information and ideas that can help make American negotiators—and their counterparts—more effective and the process of negotiations better understood." —George P. Shultz, U.S. Secretary of State, 1982–89

This landmark study offers a rich and detailed portrait of the negotiating practices of American officials. It assesses the multiple influences—cultural, institutional, historical, and political—that shape how American policymakers and diplomats approach negotiations with foreign counterparts and highlights behavioral patterns that transcend the actions of individual negotiators and administrations.

Informed by discussions and interviews with more than fifty seasoned foreign and American negotiators, Richard H. Solomon and Nigel Quinney argue that four distinctive mind-sets have combined to shape U.S. negotiating practice: a businessperson's pragmatic quest for concrete results, a lawyer's attention to detail, a superpower's inclination to dictate terms, and a moralizer's sense of mission. The authors examine how Americans employ time, language, enticements, and pressure tactics at the negotiating table, and how they use (or neglect) the media, back channel communications, and hospitality outside the formal negotiating arena. They also explore the intense interagency rivalries and congressional second-guessing that limit U.S. negotiators' freedom to maneuver.

A chapter by the eminent historian Robert Schulzinger charts the evolving relationship between U.S. presidents and their negotiators, and the volume presents a set of eight remarkably candid foreign perspectives on particular aspects of American negotiating behavior. These chapters are written by a distinguished cast of ambassadors and foreign ministers, some from countries allied to the United States, others from rivals or adversaries, and all with illuminating stories to tell.

In the concluding chapter, Solomon and Quinney propose a variety of measures to enhance America's negotiating capacities to deal with the new and emerging challenges to effective diplomacy in the 21st century.

RICHARD H. SOLOMON is president of the United States Institute of Peace. He previously served as director of the State Department's Policy Planning Staff, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, ambassador to the Philippines, head of the political science department of the RAND Corporation, member of the National Security Council staff, and professor of political science at the University of Michigan. NIGEL QUINNEY is president of The Editorial Group and a consultant to European and American think tanks, academic institutions, and multinational corporations.

YOUTH AND POST-CONFLICT RECONSTRUCTION

Agents of Change

Stephanie Schwartz Foreword by Betty Bigombe

"Timely and very well written, Schwartz has successfully synthesized a number of different variables, theories, cases, and policy areas into a compelling and useful analysis. This book will be of interest to students, scholars, NGO personnel, and policymakers worldwide." —Siobhan McEvoy-Levy, Director, Peace Studies Program at Butler University

This volume uses three cases of post-conflict reconstruction—Mozambique, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and Kosovo—to explore how youth affect the postconflict reconstruction process, and how domestic policy, NGO programming, international interventions, and cultural contexts may change that role. The hypotheses drawn from these comparisons will be useful both in guiding future research on youth's role in post-conflict reconstruction and in helping reconstruction actors facilitate the youth population's transition from war to peace.

STEPHANIE SCHWARTZ is a senior program assistant at the United States Institute of Peace's Center for Mediation and Conflict Resolution and heads USIP's Youth and Peacebuilding Working Group.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES FOR STABILIZATION AND RECONSTRUCTION

United States Institute of Peace and United States Army Peacekeeping and Stability Operations Institute

"This book will have an incredible impact on the future of civil-military integration. Together with the Army's revolutionary Stability Operations doctrine, these complementary manuals will influence our national security for generations. No civilian should deploy without them." —Lt. Gen. William B. Caldwell, Commanding General of the U.S. Army's Combined

Arms Center

"Ad hoc, disorganized campaigns for peace have been the hallmark of past missions. This two-year investigation into thousands of pages of documents written by dozens of agencies may help to mitigate the chaotic nature of these missions by finally putting into one place what we know. This manual is the bible for S&R missions."

-Amb. John Herbst, U.S. Department of State Coordinator for Reconstruction and Stabilization

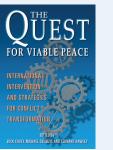

A product of the collaboration between the United States Institute of Peace and the Peacekeeping and Stability Operations Institute, this manual presents the first-ever, comprehensive set of shared principles for building sustainable peace in societies emerging from violent conflict.

ABOUT THE

CROSS-CULTURAL NEGOTIATION SERIES

In the early 1990s the United States Institute of Peace initiated a series of conceptual and country-specific assessments on the theme of cross-cultural negotiating (CCN) behavior. In addition to the most recent volume in the series, American Negotiating Behavior, previous volumes have explored Iranian, Chinese, Russian, North Korean, Japanese, French, German, and Israeli and Palestinian negotiating behavior. The basic assumptions that underlie the studies in the CCN series are that negotiating is the usual, if not always the preferred, technique of international problem solving, and that greater understanding of the dynamics of negotiating, greater appreciation of the cultural and institutional influences of a counterpart's behavior, and greater self-awareness will help make specific negotiating encounters more productive. This objective of making negotiations more fruitful—and thus preventing, reducing, or eliminating the use of violence to settle political disputes—conforms with the Institute's congressional mandate to promote the peaceful management and resolution of international conflicts.

NEGOTIATING ACROSS CULTURES

International Communication in an Interdependent World, Revised Edition

Raymond Cohen

"Cohen demonstrates the dissonance that cultural differences can create in each stage of international negotiations.... He provides examples of miscommunication and misunderstanding between the United States (a low-context culture) and Mexico, Egypt, India, and Japan, all of which he labels high-context cultures." — Peace & Change

1997 • 320 pp. • 6 x 9 $19.95 (paper) • 978-1-87837-972-6

CULTURE AND CONFLICT RESOLUTION

Kevin Avruch

"A lucid work in simple and clear English... Avruch succeeds in drawing the attention of the reader to the importance of culture as a 'tool' in the resolution of conflict.... A welcome addition to the growing body of literature on peace studies."

—International Journal on World Peace

"Avruch lays out a most convincing argument for the inclusion of culture as a primary element of the study of deep rooted communal conflicts."

CHINESE NEGOTIATING BEHAVIOR

Pursuing Interests through 'Old Friends'

HOW ISRAELIS AND PALESTINIANS NEGOTIATE

A Cross-Cultural Analysis of the Oslo Peace Process

Tamara Cofman Wittes, editor

"This slender book deserves a robust reading. By honing in on the ideas and assumptions that the parties bring to the table, the authors have transcended the blame game. It is refreshing to find the most telling critique of the Palestinian performance penned by Dajani, and of the Israeli one by Klieman. All the contributors illuminate how a nation's history, imagined history, self-image, and image of the Other create a distinctive approach to negotiations." — Foreign Affairs

NEGOTIATING ON THE EDGE

North Korean Negotiating Behavior

Scott Snyder

"Outstanding Academic Book" —CHOICE

"Snyder aims to show what makes the country [North Korea] tick, not by direct study of life on the ground, but rather by charting and analysing the seemingly capricious and whimsical behaviour of the senior North Korean apparatchiks who are sent to negotiate with the west." — Financial Times

Charles Cogan

Winner of the Prix Ernest Lémonon (L'académie des Sciences Morales et Politiques), 2006

"No American diplomat or official should henceforth be allowed to set foot on the European continent without having read, swallowed, and inwardly digested Cogan's book. Thoughtful American tourists are also strongly advised to read this distillation of a long career's wisdom and to ponder Cogan's three case studies of French diplomacy in action." — National Interest

NEGOTIATING WITH IRAN

Wrestling the Ghosts of History

John W. Limbert Foreword by Mark Bowden

"Using four crises spread over four decades, from just after World War II to the 1980s, Limbert appraises the negotiating style of Iran and of those it confronts. Now serving as a senior official on Iran in the State Department, Limbert was one of those held hostage in Tehran from 1979 to 1981. Yet as this splendid study of U.S.-Iranian relations demonstrates, he emerged from that bitter experience with an ability to bring to his appraisal a rare combination of insight, dispassion, and empathy." —Foreign Affairs

2009 • 200 pp. • 6 x 9 $16.95 (paper) • 978-1-60127-043-6 $40.00 (cloth) • 978-1-60127-044-3

"International negotiations are often regarded as the province of diplomats and official trade representatives, but they can also engage military officers. Like other negotiators, those in uniform will benefit from the growing body of scholarship being published by the U.S. Institute of Peace in its cross-cultural negotiation project."

— Joint Force Quarterly

HOW GERMANS NEGOTIATE

Logical Goals, Practical Solutions

W. R. Smyser

THE PEACE PROCESS AND PALESTINIAN REFUGEE CLAIMS

Addressing Claims for Property Compensation and Restitution

Michael R. Fischbach

"Fischbach, the foremost scholar of this subject has spent years mining archives in the Middle East and elsewhere, interviewing the various parties involved. His study underscores the vast differences of opinion between those who might offer compensation (presumably, Israel) and the Palestinians who would receive it. The author also discusses the diverse ideas of third parties on this subject, such as the U.S., the UN, and various Arab governments. Fischbach includes discussion of comparable situations during the 20th century, and offers practical ideas for settling refugee claims in the 21st century." - CHOICE

Critically Acclaimed By: The New York Times • The Economist • Jerusalem Post • Washington Times

"Gabriel Weimann is one of a handful of people who began tracking terrorist Web sites almost a decade ago, long before most analysts were aware of the problem. MANUFACTURING HUMAN BOMBS

The Making of Palestinian Suicide Bombers

Mohammed M. Hafez

"This book's importance lies in its rationalization, from a Palestinian perspective, of why suicide bombings receive such overwhelming support in Palestinian society. Manufacturing Human Bombs paints a grim and depressing picture of how a 'culture of death' has taken root within Palestinian society to the detriment of moderate leaders, such as President Abu Mazen, who believe that political compromise is possible with the Israeli state." — Washington Times

HOW WE MISSED THE STORY

Osama bin Laden, the Taliban, and the Hijacking of Afghanistan

Roy Gutman

"One of the strengths of the book is Gutman's unwrapping in graphic, yet highly readable, detail the progression of key events and U.S. miscalculations in Afghanistan from 1989 to September 10, 2001. Ultimately this book is about an array of mistakes, misperceptions, and false assumptions. Gutman effectively supports his view that the 9/11 attack was an American 'strategic foreign policy failure' rather than one of intelligence or military shortcomings."

Teresa Whitfield

"Whitfield explains the role of friendly groups of nations that have been involved in international peace and security within the framework of the UN. This superb volume uses six regional case studies—El Salvador, Guatemala, Haiti, Georgia, Western Sahara, and East Timor—as well as eight other regional conflicts to analyze the successes and failures that these friendly groups of nations experienced in these regional conflicts of the 1990s and 2000s." — CHOICE

AMERICA'S STRATEGIC POSTURE

The Final Report of the Congressional Commission on the Strategic Posture of the United States

The Strategic Posture Commission

"A bipartisan Congressional commission on U.S. nuclear strategy released its report last week, and it deserved more attention than it got. It delivered a candid message that not many want to hear: We're a long way from a nuclear-free world.... The commission's recommendations provide a welcome dose of nuclear realism. The Administration and Congress ignore them at the nation's peril."
