P R E F A C E

THE MS., dating from the third century A. D., which is here edited for the first time in a single whole, has long been known to scholars. Its subject-matter—magic and medicine—is not destitute of interest. It is closely connected with the Greek magical papyri from Egypt of the same period, but, being written in demotic, naturally does not reproduce the Greek hymns which are so important a feature of those papyri. The influence of purely Greek mythology also is here by comparison very slight—hardly greater than that of the Alexandrian Judaism which has supplied a number of names of Hellenistic form to the demotic magician. Mithraism has apparently contributed nothing at all: Christianity probably only a deformed reference to the Father in Heaven. On the other hand, as might have been expected, Egyptian mythology has an overwhelmingly strong position, and whereas the Greek papyri scarcely go beyond Hermes, Anubis, and the Osiris legend, the demotic magician introduces Khons, Amon, and many other Egyptian gods. Also, whereas the former assume a knowledge of the modus operandi in divination by the lamp and bowl, the latter describes it in great detail.

But the papyrus is especially interesting for the language in which it is written. It is probably the latest Egyptian MS. which we possess written in the demotic script, and it presents us with the form of the language as written—almost as spoken—by the pagans at the time when the Greek alphabet was being adopted by the Christians. It must not be forgotten, too, that this is the document which contributed perhaps more than any other to the decipherment of demotic, partly through its numerous Greek glosses.

We have therefore thought that a complete edition, with special reference to its philological importance, would be useful. The vocabulary is extensive, comprising about a thousand words. The present volume, containing the introduction, the transliteration, translation, and notes, will be followed by a complete glossary, with separate indices of Greek words, invocation names, names of animals, plants, and minerals, and a list of the glosses, &c., besides a chapter dealing with the principal grammatical forms met with in the MS., and a hand-copy of the text; the photographic reproduction by Hess of the pages in the British Museum and Leemans' facsimile of those at Leiden will of course preserve their independent value for reference, as, for instance, in judging the condition of the MS. and the precise forms of the signs in particular passages.

There is considerable inconsistency in the spelling of words in the papyrus itself. So much having to be rendered more or less conventionally, while fresh light is thrown daily on the intricacies of demotic, it is probable that there are a good many inconsistencies in our transliterations, translations, and notes, in spite of the watchfulness of the excellent reader at the Clarendon Press. Those, however, who have dealt with the subject at all will probably not judge these too hardly.

In conclusion, we have to record our gratitude, first, to our predecessors in publication and decipherment of the papyrus—to Reuvens, Leemans, and Hess, to Brugsch, Maspero, Revillout, and W. Max Müller—but for whose varied contributions our task would have been infinitely more laborious even in the present advanced state of the study: and secondly, to the authorities of the Egyptian department in the British Museum, and of the Rijksmuseum in Leiden, for their courtesy in affording every facility for studying the original MS., and more especially to Dr. Boeser of the Leiden Museum for much kindness and assistance.

INTRODUCTION

I. HISTORY OF THE MS.

THE demotic magical papyrus of London and Leiden was discovered at Thebes with other papyri, principally Greek but dealing with subjects of a like nature, in the early part of the last century, and was bought by Anastasi, who was at that time Swedish consul at Alexandria, and made a large collection of Egyptian MSS. When Anastasi obtained the MS. it must already have been torn into two parts, and it is even probable that he obtained the two parts at different times, since he sold his Egyptian collections, including the Leiden MS., to the Dutch government in 1828, while the London portion was bought at the sale of his later collections at Paris in 1857 for the British Museum (No. 1072 in Lenormant's Catalogue).

The Leiden fragment was made known to the world much earlier than that in the British Museum. Its importance for the deciphering of the demotic script by the help of the numerous glosses in Graeco-Coptic characters was at once perceived by the distinguished scholar Reuvens, at that time Director of the Leiden Museum of Antiquities, who proceeded to study it carefully, and in 1830 published an admirable essay¹ in which he sketched the principal contents of the MS. and indicated its value for the progress of demotic studies. He then took in hand its reproduction, and the MS. was lithographed in facsimile under his direction, and he had corrected the proofs of the first plate when he was cut off by a premature death in 1835; his work was carried to completion and published by his successor in the Directorship of the Museum, Leemans, in 1839¹. Heinrich Brugsch studied it closely, and drew from it most of the examples quoted in his Demotic Grammar published in 1855; but, although later scholars have frequently quoted from it and translated fragments of it, the MS. has hitherto remained without complete translation, commentary, or glossary.

The London MS., however, lay from 1857 onwards almost unnoticed in the British Museum. To the late Dr. Pleyte, Leemans' successor at Leiden, belongs the credit of discovering that the two MSS. originally formed one. He had studied the Leiden portion, and at once recognized the handwriting of its fellow in London. Without publishing the fact, he communicated it to Professor Hess of Freiburg, when the latter was working in Leiden on the MS. there. Professor Hess went on to London, and, having fully confirmed Dr. Pleyte's statement, published in 1892 a reproduction of the British Museum MS. with an introduction, including the translation of one column, and a glossary².

Reuvens in his essay dwelt at some length on the 'gnostic' character of the MS. He devoted his attention mainly to the parts which contain the glosses, and those are almost exclusively magical invocations, among which occur the names of gods, spirits, and demons, Egyptian, Syrian, Jewish, &c., strung together in a manner similar to those found in gnostic writings and on gnostic gems. He even went so far as to associate them with the name of a particular gnostic leader, Marcus, of the second century, chiefly on the ground of his recorded use of Hebrew and Syriac names in his invocations and the combinations of vowels. In consequence the MS. has acquired the name of the 'Leiden Gnostic,' and the term 'Gnostic' has been passed on to the London MS. But as will be seen from the complete translation here published, there is nothing in the work relating to the gnostic systems—it deals with magic and medicine, and it seems a misnomer to call the MS. gnostic merely because part of the stock-in-trade of the magician and medicine-man were a number of invocation names which he either picked up from the gnostics or derived from sources common to him and them. Hence it has been thought desirable to abandon the epithet 'gnostic,' and to call the work the 'Magical papyrus of London and Leiden' (Pap. mag. LL.).

II. CONDITION OF THE MS.

The London portion is in far better condition than the Leiden portion. The papyrus is pale in colour and the ink very black; consequently where the MS. has not suffered material damage it is easy to read, as the scribe wrote a beautiful and regular hand.

The Leiden papyrus, on the other hand, has unfortunately suffered much, as Leemans, with a view to protecting the surface, covered both recto and verso with 'vegetable' paper, which probably could not be removed now without serious injury to the MS.; but either the paper or the adhesive matter employed with it has darkened and decayed, rendering the writing illegible in places.

In 1829, while the MS. was still in charge of Reuvens and before it had been subjected to the operation above described, he took a tracing of it which has been preserved, and which, though of little assistance in points of minute detail, may be relied on for filling up with certainty many groups which are now wholly lost in the original.

The main body of the writing is on the recto (horizontal fibres) of the papyrus, while on the verso are written memoranda, medical prescriptions, and short invocations.

The London MS. is Pap. No. 10070 of the British Museum (formerly Anast. 1072).

The Leiden MS. is known as I. 383 (reckoned among the Anastasi MSS. as A. 65).

The London portion forms the initial part of the MS. and joins on to the Leiden portion without a break, the tenth and last column of the London MS. and the first of the Leiden forming one column.

The first London column is imperfect, and it is not possible to say with certainty whether the MS. began with it or whether there was an anterior part now lost. It is quite possible that it began here. On the other hand, it is certain that the MS. is imperfect at the end, since the broken edge of the papyrus at Leiden shows traces of a column of writing succeeding the present final column.

It is impossible to estimate how much is lost, as the MS. is not an original composition on a definite plan, but a compilation of heterogeneous material collected together without any logical order.

The two portions, if joined together, would measure, roughly speaking, some 5 m. (about $16\frac{1}{2}$ feet) in length. In height it averages nearly 25 cm. (10 in.). The writing is in columns, of which there are twenty-nine on the recto, while on the verso are thirty-three small columns or portions of columns; but these are not marked off, as are the recto columns, by vertical and horizontal framing lines¹, nor are they written continuously, but they seem to have been jotted down there on account of their brevity and discontinuous character.

The recto columns vary somewhat in size, but average 20 × 20 cm. (8 in. square). The writing is frequently carried beyond the framing lines.

In each column of the recto the number of lines is on the average about thirty to thirty-three; but the number is very irregular, ranging from forty-three in one column to five in another.

III. CONTENTS.

As has been stated above, the MS. is a compilation. An analysis of the contents will be found on page 14. From this it will be seen to consist mainly of directions for divination processes involving numerous invocations, together with erotica and medical prescriptions, in which, however, magic plays as large a part as medicine.

The MS. is far from being unique in regard to its contents. Fragments of similar works in demotic exist at Paris (Louvre, No. 3229, published by Maspero, Quelques papyrus du Louvre, 1875), and at Leiden (I. 384 verso, Anast. 75, published by Leemans, Mons. du musée de Leide, 1842, pl. ccxxvi-vii) a MS. partly demotic and partly Greek, the latter portion being published by Leemans in Pap. graeci mus. lugd. bat. 1885, ii. Pap. V, and re-edited by Dieterich, Pap. Mag. Mus. Lugd. Bat. The Greek papyri containing similar texts are numerous, many examples having been published from the museums of Berlin, Leiden, London, and Paris by Goodwin, Parthey, Leemans, Wessely, and Kenyon.

The well-known codex of the Bibliothèque Nationale published by Wessely, Denkschr. Kais. Ak. Wiss. Wien, xxxvi. 1888, contains a few invocations in Old Coptic along with the Greek (cf. Griffith, A. Z. 1901, p. 85, and bibliography, ibid. p. 72).

Magic was from the earliest times largely developed by the Egyptians in relation both to the dead and the living. Under the former head fall both the pyramid texts and other texts found in the tombs, including most of the Book of the Dead, which consists mainly of magical invocations intended to make smooth the path of the deceased in the next world.

Magical texts for the use of the living are found in the Harris magical papyrus (ed. Chabas, 1860), the Metternich stela (ed. Golenischeff, 1877) and kindred stones, the Berlin papyrus edited by Erman (Zaubersprüche für Mutter u. Kind, 1901), &c. Reference may be made to the volume on Egyptian magic by Dr. Wallis Budge, 1899, and to a special study on vessel-divination by E. Lefébure, 'Le vase divinatoire,' in Sphinx, 1902, VI. 61 seq. Cf. also Dieterich, 'Abraxas'; Kenyon in Cat. Greek Pap. in B. M., I. 62 seq.; Miss Macdonald in P. S. B. A., xiii. 160 seq.; Wünsch, Sethianische Verfluchungstafeln aus Rom, &c.

In the closely allied department of medicine, it is sufficient to refer to the Ebers papyrus, the Kahun papyri, and the Berlin medical papyrus (ed. Brugsch, Rec. Mon. pl. 87-107), which offer many parallels. Among the Greek medical writers it is noticeable that Alexander of Tralles seems much more closely allied to the Egyptian school, if that be represented by our MS., than Galen.

But though the subject-matter of the MS. is not without its interest for the history of magic and medicine, its chief claim to publication lies in its philological interest. From the first its numerous glosses have attracted the attention of scholars, and have been the means of fixing the value of a large number of demotic groups. Further it is in date probably the latest known papyrus written in the demotic script; most of the glosses are really Coptic transcriptions, and under this head may likewise be included all the Egyptian words written in cipher; so that the MS. in these furnishes us with a series of very early Coptic words, including several grammatical forms of great interest. Possibly too the text may be of importance in relation to the question of dialects in pagan Egypt; but that is a subject too little worked out at present to allow of definite statements. The vocabulary is very extensive, and includes a number of Greek words, the names of over 100 plants, besides numerous animals and minerals.

As the London portion of the MS., which in the order of contents is the first part, was published fifty years later than the second part at Leiden, it follows that each publication has an independent numbering of the columns, starting from I. In view of the fact that there are many references in demotic literature already to the columns by their numbers as established by the publications of Leemans and Hess, it would have been desirable to retain the existing numbering if possible. But, as will be seen by comparison of the hand copy of the whole MS. which accompanies this edition with the former publications, the changes in the way of consolidation of the columns, and in some cases necessary re-numbering of the lines, have made it compulsory to introduce a new and continuous numbering of the columns. For instance, Hess col. X and Leemans col. I form a single column, and the same is the case with Leemans cols. II and III and cols. IV and V, and with verso, cols. XVI and XVII, XXII and XXIII. A comparative table of the old and new numbers will be found at the end.

V. THE GLOSSES.

There are about 640 words with transcriptions in Coptic characters in addition to a few inserted in the text.

Besides all the letters of the Greek alphabet we find the following used:—

ff (=R 26/15).	6 (=z: w 9/11).
z (=R 7/33, 25/34).	y (=c 2/10, 9/14).
h (=λ 25/34, 35 text).	^ (=e 9/14, 25/34).
⚡ (=ω 2/13, 5/23, 8/8).	9 (=e 2/4).
3 (=w 1/25, 8/9, 13, V. 5/9).	5 (=s 9/6, 29/10).
λ (=w 2/18).	♯ (=z 2/26, 29/10).

The glosses were undoubtedly written by the same scribe who wrote the demotic text. And it seems that he wrote the glosses before he filled in the rubrics. For the handwriting of the demotic text and of the rubrics is unquestionably the same; and in filling up in red the empty spaces he had left for rubrication, the scribe took occasion to fill in with his red ink occasional lapses in the black writing. In the text this can be observed in e.g. 24/1, the omitted σ of the second str (?) has been filled up in red, and also the omitted determinative in the last word of 28/8, an omitted letter in phr 29/11, an omitted word sn interlineated in 29/12, and a plural sign in 25/26; and so too the gloss ewε in 28/8, overlooked when the glosses were originally inserted in black ink.

It is a fact that there is often a considerable difference between the Greek letters in the passages written in Greek and in the glosses (e.g. παπιπετου in 15/25 and 15/29), but this may be accounted for by the fact that the former are written in a cursive hand with ligatures, while the glosses are carefully written with separately formed letters without ligatures for distinctness' sake in the narrow space between the lines.

The above considerations, however, only show that the text and glosses were written by the same hand in our existing MS. It does not follow that they were written by the original compiler. Max Müller has argued (Rec. tr., viii. 175) that they must be due to another individual since they are mostly in the Fayumic dialect, while the dialect of the demotic text is 'Untersahidisch' (i. e. Achmimic, so called by Stern). In Rec. tr., xiii. 152 n., he replaces the latter term by a more precise definition: 'Die Mundart steht zwischen Fayumisch u. dem Mittel-ägyptischen von Akhmim, letzterem näher.' But it is very doubtful whether this distinction between the text and the glosses can be maintained. The only example quoted by Max Müller that distinctly suggests Fayumic is the gloss $\lambda\omega$ and λ over a group in $16/5$ and $25/34$, which he reads as = $(\epsilon)\rho\sigma\sigma$, regarding the interchange of ρ and λ as evidence of Fayumic dialect. But the demotic group in question does not read er-w, but mr as in mr-³h ($1/17$, $2/7$, $14/6$, 28), and the gloss $\lambda\omega$ represents the absolute form of the late Egyptian word which we see in its construct form in Sahidic $\lambda\epsilon\omega\eta\eta\sigma\epsilon$ and in $\lambda\epsilon\sigma\omega\nu\iota\varsigma$. From the detailed examination of the dialect (in vol. ii) it appears probable that the dialect of the text does not show any distinction from that of the glosses, and it is not necessary to go behind the scribe of the present MS. and place the compiler earlier. He may well have been one and the same.

VI. DATE.

Reuvens (u. s. p. 151) placed the date of the MS. in the first half of the third century A. D., and this was repeated by Leemans.

Groff and Hess attributed it on palaeographical grounds to the second century; but in the light of recent additions to the knowledge of Greek palaeography, and the opinions based on them of Kenyon, Grenfell, and Hunt (see A. Z., xxxix. (1901) p. 78), the third century must be accepted as the date of the MS. But this, of course, is the date at which the papyrus was written, and merely furnishes a terminus ad quem for deciding as to the date of the contents.

That the whole of the papyrus, in its present state, was written by one and the same scribe—with the possible exception of verso XXVIII—can scarcely be a matter of doubt to any one who has studied closely the handwriting of the original MSS. It must be stated, however, that Reuvens and Leemans were of opinion that the glosses were written by a later hand than that of the body of the text: but this question has been discussed above (p. 9), and apart from the identity of ink, and the material proof given there, it may be added that the hieratic glosses in 27/8 are certainly written by the same hand as the numerous hieratic passages scattered through the text.

The date of the contents is a much more complicated question. Written partly in hieratic, partly in demotic, and partly in Greek, they wear the aspect of a compilation, which is borne out by the varied and disconnected nature of the subject-matter.

It has been suggested that the work is a translation into demotic of a Greek original, and perhaps this is the first question demanding discussion. Prima facie it may be said to be likely, as so many similar works exist in Greek. The introduction of three invocations of considerable length written in Greek characters almost compels us to accept that origin for those particular sections, viz. 4/1-19, 15/24-31, 23/7-20. It seems probable that the translator felt he could transfer to Egyptian the prescriptions and preparations, while the formula of incantation had to be left in the original language. Had these sections been written in Egyptian originally, it is not likely that an incantation in a foreign tongue would be inserted in the place presumably of an Egyptian one.

And in the first named instance there is the additional evidence of two true Greek glosses, i. e. not Coptic transcriptions of the demotic words, but Greek equivalents of the two words 'table' and 'goose,' which seem to be inserted clearly to prevent a misunderstanding of the original terms. In the second instance 15/24-31, the original Greek lines 25-28 are immediately followed by a demotic translation of the same passage (ll. 29-31), which points in the same direction. Translation from the Greek is rendered probable, outside the passages already referred to, by the transcription of Greek prescriptions and substances in 24/1-25, and verso I, II, VIII, IX. According to an ingenious suggestion of Max Müller, in verso II the otherwise unintelligible phrase m^{nes} n rm is almost certainly a mistranslation of μαγνησία ἀνδρεία. Max Müller has also (Rec. tr., viii. 175-6) given strong reasons for regarding the passage 25/23-37 as being translated from a Greek original. However, even where there are reasons for believing that the demotic is a translation from the Greek, the original source, in relation to magic at any rate, was probably Egyptian—certainly so in the case of the Greek passage in 15/25-28, which has itself clearly an Egyptian origin.

On the other hand, some of the chief sections of the MS. show no traces of Greek influence, e. g. cols. VI and XV. 1-20; but it would be rash to say that they are older; they may well represent only a purer Egyptian source. Max Müller (Rec. tr., viii. 172) has suggested that some of the magic formulae go back to the period from the Eighteenth to the Twentieth Dynasty. This cannot be true of more than a few phrases. The language indeed is not entirely uniform, but throughout the papyrus the vocabulary and grammar are distinctly not 'Late Egyptian'; they are 'demotic,' and that too of a kind which approaches Coptic much more closely than in any other known papyrus. Certain passages, such as the spell in 13/1-10, show more or less archaism, but in all cases it is mixed with late forms.

The use of hieratic might be thought to indicate some antiquity where it occurs. But the writing is a strange jumble; the hieratic is inextricably though sparingly mixed with the demotic, a single word being often written partly in hieratic, partly in demotic. Where hieratic signs occur the language is not generally more archaic than when the demotic is pure. In 23/24 the word Abrasax is written in hieratic. Now Abrasax is usually regarded as a typical gnostic invocation name, Irenaeus having stated that it was invented by Basilides (fl. 125 A. D.). This statement is now generally regarded as an error, and the name may be earlier; but there is no authority for placing it in pre-Christian times (cf. Hort, s. v. Abrasax, in Smith, Dict. Christ. Biog.; Dieterich, Abrasax, p. 46; C. Schmidt, Gnostische Schriften in Kopt. Spr., 1892, p. 562).

Not many documents written in hieratic have been ascertained to be later than the first century A. D.; but they were plentiful at Tanis amongst the burnt papyri found by Professor Petrie in the house of 'Bakakhuu' (Asychis), the destruction of which Mr. Petrie was disposed to date to 174 A. D. (Tanis, i. p. 41); and Clemens Alexandrinus (Strom. v. 237) mentions hieratic as still taught in the schools (circa A. D. 160-220). Hieroglyphic inscriptions, with the name of Decius (249-251), are found in the temple of Esneh, and the existence of hieroglyphic almost implies that of hieratic.

Judging by the language, it is difficult to believe that any part of the work in its present redaction is more than a century or two older than the papyrus itself.

The contents of the papyrus may be classified as follows :—

1. Divination—

- (a) by the vessel of oil I-III, IX-X. 22, XIV, XVIII. 7-33, XXI. 1-9, XXII (?), XXVIII, verso XXII, verso XXVI.
- (b) by a lamp V, VI-VII, VIII. 1-12, XVI, XVII-XVIII. 6, XXV. 1-22, XXVII. 13-36, verso XVIII, verso XXIV, verso XXXI.
- (c) by the sun X. 22-end, XXVII. 1-12, XXIX.
- (d) by moon XXIII. 21-31.
- (e) by the Foreleg constellation (Great Bear) verso XVIII.
- (f) by stars ? IV. 23-4.
- (g) through the priest Psash (?) VIII. 12-end.
- (h) through Imuthes IV. 1-22.
- (i) by dreams verso XVII, eye-paint XXI, invocation XXVII ? XXVIII.
- (k) for thief-catching III. 29, or shipwreck (?) verso XV.

2. to obtain favour and respect XI, verso XXXII.
to avert anger of superior XV. 24-31.

EXPLANATION OF SIGNS

TRANSLATION.

RESTORATIONS are placed in square brackets []. Lacunae in the original, for which no restoration is suggested, are represented by dots. Words in round brackets () are not in the original, but are added by the translators; those between angular brackets < > are intended to be omitted.

The second person singular has been rendered by 'thou, thee' in invocations, by 'you' elsewhere. In the very few instances in which the second person plural occurs, it is indicated by the use of 'ye' or 'you' (plur.); (bis) following a word indicates that the word is followed in the original by the sign sp sn, implying that the word or phrase is to be repeated.

An accurate transcription of the magic names is given in the transliteration; in the translation we have rendered the sound approximately without strict adherence to any one system, generally following the glosses where they exist, as it was thought that this would be the most useful course for such readers as are not Egyptian scholars.

TRANSLITERATION.

For the system, see note preceding the demotic glossary. Words transliterated with Coptic letters between asterisks are written in cipher in the original.

REFERENCES.

In referring to the plates of the papyrus in vol. ii, Col. I. l. 1 is quoted as 1/1 and verso, Col. II. l. 3 as V. 2/3, &c.

1. 1. Restore from 18/7. The parallel text to ll. 13-17 shows that more than half of the page is lost, but the heading line was probably not of full length. Pr-mze is πρωζε (Oxyrhynchus), capital of the nineteenth nome of Upper Egypt.

1. 2. Pr- . . . e (?). The group suggests a reading Pr-ʾr-ʾmn for πρωμοϣν (Pelusium), but the ʾr (?) sign is perhaps too upright, and it is more likely that the two signs following Pr are a special group for some divine name. Nothing is known of the religious importance of Pelusium, or even of its name in Egyptian, but the city is mentioned in a Greek invocation quoted below at l. 12.

1. 3. sḥ (?). This group, here in the plural, may represent  sḥ, 'toes' (LANGE, A. Z., 1896, 76). Cf. LEPSIUS, Todtenb., c. 42, l. 9 iw sb·w-l sḥ·w-l m ʿr·w (sic) ʿnh·w, 'my fingers and toes are as rearing serpents.' But the same group recurs in 7/2 as a masc. sing. subst. where the context rather suggests the meaning 'testicles.'

ʿnh·t, of a serpent, cf. 12/17; in Egyptian ΠΛΕΥΤΕ, Pap. Tur., cxxxii. 4 and (very late) Mar. Pap. Boul., I. Pl. 9, ll. 5-6. It seems to mean 'darting forward for attack.' Similar meanings, 'rise,' &c., are common, esp. in late texts, BR., Wtb., 198-9; cf. also 9/16, 10/7. But in GRIFFITH, Tell el Yahudiyeh, xxv. 15, an enraged serpent ʿnh nf·w-f 'breathed its vapour' at a god, ʿnh being there a transitive verb surviving in Sah. אַנַח-תַּחַ 'breathe,' BSCIAI, Rec. tr., vii. 25 (Job ix. 18).

p nwn. It is a question whether this is the hieroglyphic . The latter occurs only twice in this papyrus, but in one of the instances it is clearly parallel to nwn. Cf. xxi. 33 nte-k py k km hwt yr pyr n  with ix. 15 'nk p hf 'r pyr n p nwn.

1. 6. 'rg-hh. BRUSCH, Dict. Geog., 130, 1121 = [a]λχα 15/27, O. C. Pap. ΔΛΧΔΔ (A. Z., 1883, 104), the necropolis at Abydos where the head of Osiris was preserved. It is spelt with l, 'lg-hh only once in 15/30, cf. the converse in gh'kter = χαρακτηρ 5/5.

'm-n. ΔΑΩΝΗ, cf. MÜLLER, A. Z., 1893, 50, who suggests that it is cohortative 1st plur. 'let us come,' or for 'm-w n-y, 'come ye unto me,' with the n-y unaccented being reduced to an enclitic, but cf. 11/16 'm-n n-y.

l. 12. z ὲnk. For the essentially Egyptian identification of the utterer of the spell with his god see DIETERICH, Abrahas, p. 136 note, and cf. Iambl. de Myst. vi. 6.

sr-my-srpt. The same signs recur grouped together in varying order as a divine appellative in 9/6 and 11/8. The knife  and hide  are the zodiacal signs of Leo and Aries (BRUGSCH, Nouv. Rech., p. 22); the flower or seed-head is the peculiar determinative of the σαρπוט throughout this papyrus. The same divine name, composed of a lotus bud (?)  with lion and spelt-out name of ram (sriw), occurs in LEPS., Todt., cap. 162, l. 5, variants giving srd for the lotus bud (?) (BR., Wtb., 1265) and m'y for the lion (Leyd. Lijkpap., No. 16). Cf. also PLEYTE, Chapitres Suppl., Pl. 14 and 131. The group of a lotus leaf, lion, and ram is figured on several hypocephali, the best example being in BUDGE, Lady Meux Cat., 2nd ed., Pl. VI. Cf. PLEYTE, ib. text, Pl. opp. p. 60. Probably none of these instances are earlier than the Persian invasion. Outside our papyrus the normal order is evidently lotus-lion-ram, and Greek versions agree with this: Brit. Mus. Pap. CXXI. l. 499 εγω εμι ο εν τω Πηλουσιω καθιδρυμενος Σερφουθ: μουισρω: (so facs.), similarly l. 557; in Leyd. Pap. V. col. 3 a, l. 6, the spelling is varied and corrupt. In each case σερφουθ is marked off from μουισρω, the latter appearing as one word. On a gnostic gem in the Wilson Collection belonging to Aberdeen University is the legend:—σερφουθ μουισρω λαϊλαμ δος μοι χαριν πραξιν νεικην. In this combination the lotus (σαρπוט, see below, 2/17), the lion (ΛΟΤΙ, see below, 5/11), and the ram (ρο, see below, 11/8 and 14/13, and decan names in BR., Wtb. Suppl., 995) probably all represent solar attributes.

rn-yt. This abnormal spelling apparently arises from a combination (oil); cause to succeed (9) for this vessel-divination is the vessel-divination of Isis, when she sought (10) come in to me, O my compeller (?), for everything (11) and cause the eyes of this child to be opened to them all, (12) for I am the Pharaoh Lion-ram; Ram-lion-lotus is my name (13) to thee here to-day, for I am Sit-ta-ko, Setem is my name, Setem (14) [is my true name, &c.] Hrenoute, Lapptotha, Laxantha, Sa-(15)[risa, &c.] Bolbouel (bis), Louteri, (Klo-)Kasantra, Iaho (16) [is my name, &c., Balkam the] dread (?) one of heaven, Ablanathanalba, the gryphon (17) [of the shrine of God, &c.]. of the earlier rn-y and the later form found in O. C. Par. $\epsilon\rho\epsilon\eta\tau$ (A. Z., 1900, 89, cf. Boh. $\epsilon\rho\epsilon\eta\kappa$ Hrv. Actes, 108). Cf. 14/2 yrt-yt.

l. 13. Lines 13-17 are repeated with the missing passages complete in verso XXVII, which is written on the back of this and the following column.

sy-l-p-k. The first element is written as the 'serpent' $\epsilon\tau\tau$ in the parallel text and k is bull ($\kappa\theta$, 7/33), but p seems meaningless. It may possibly be 'the impregnator of the cow,' cf. BUDGE, Nesiamsu, iii. 6, p^s k^s sty m k^s-wt. In PARTHEY, Zwei gr. Zauberpap., i. 252, we have practically the same phrase introduced into an O. C. context which gives an entirely different meaning, 'I am Osiris whom Set destroyed,' ΠΕΝΤΑΣΤΗ ΤΑΡΟ(ϣ); see ERMAN, A. Z., 1883, 109 note.

stm, i. e. 'hearing,' or perhaps 'hearer,' but the personal determinative is absent.

l. 15. Kasantra alone without $\kappa\lambda\theta$ appears in the demotic of both texts, suggesting a reminiscence of the prophetess Cassandra.

l. 16. srrf the hieroglyphic sfr of II Beni Hasan, Pl. IV, a winged quadruped with raptorial beak. The srrf is described in Kufi, xv. 1 seq., as 'the image (?) of god (?), the king (?) of all that is in the world, the avenger-that cannot (himself) be punished; his beak is that of the falcon, his eyes those of a man, his limbs of a lion, his ears of a . . . , his scales of a water- . . . , his tail a serpent's.' Further, he is the mightiest of beings next to God, has authority over everything on earth like Death, and is the instrument of God's vengeance.

l. 17. sq, cf. 6/19 for the complete phrase. The meaning 'drawl' is not quite certain. It must be some artificial way of speaking, such as whining or muttering, cf. 7/32 and Leyd. Pap. Gr. W. col. 1, l. 38, col. 3. l. 2, and $\phi\theta\gamma\gamma\theta\varsigma$ αναγκαστικός, &c., U. M. Mus. Gr. Pap. CXXI. 765 seq.

p-mr-'ḥ pronounced p-le-ehē, produces the common Ptolemaic proper name Πελαιας, as is proved by a bilingual (SPIEGELBERG, Strassb. Pap. No. 21, text, pp. 21-2, the reading P-ers to be corrected to p-mr-'ḥ; the Greek nominative shown in GRENF. Amh. Pap. LI. 5). The religious significance of this appellation, 'the good oxherd,' is not clear, nor has it been traced in early texts; from 2/7 it is clearly applied to Anubis, and perhaps dogs were used for herding cattle in Ancient Egypt? It is probably equivalent to Gk. ποιμην, for which see GOODWIN, Cambridge Essays, 1852, p. 26, B. M. Gr. Pap. XLVI, l. 31. If the Good Shepherd is the meaning, we may note the Χριστος Ανουβις of Leyd. Pap. Gr. V. vi. 17.

Ptolemaic proper names commencing with $\Phi\rho\iota$ - 'sheikh' = p-hry-. The pronunciation here would be ħri-to rather than $\rho\epsilon\tau$, unless the spelling is

l. 21. Hor-Amon is known in figures of glazed pottery (LANZONE, Diz.

1. 4. a·l-k. The a is an addition above the line. l-k would be $\alpha\lambda\kappa$, but the a prefixed suggests * $\alpha\lambda\iota\kappa$ on the analogy of $\alpha\lambda\iota$, hardly $\alpha\lambda\omicron\kappa$ 'cease,' cf. Str., § 384. The gloss may of course be incomplete, like some others.

l. 14. aph-ʿo-b-ʿo-s, &c. As the glosses show this is merely a transcription of the Greek words ἀφώβως ἀψεύστως ἐπ' ἀληθεία, and to mark this the determinative of that which is foreign is placed at the end of each word. It is interesting to find the initial letter /, here and in 10/30, representing the Gk. α, and so indicating that that was its normal pronunciation. In Achm. it corresponds to α, rarely ε, in Sah. and Boh. to ε, rarely α. ε is probably a wearing down or shortening of the earlier α.

* The group for ʿny is that which spells ne-ʿne (נַּנְעֻנְע) in ordinary texts, but here the ne is superfluous, and in this papyrus a false ne is always written before ʿne, so that נַּנְעֻנְע has to be written out ne(-ne)-ʿne. In other texts as well as this we find ne-nfr with a false ne-, probably due to the initial sound of nfr, and this may have led to the otiose ne before ʿne in the present text.

sln, srpt, see LORET, Rec. trav., i. 190, for a useful but by no means final discussion of the Egyptian names of the lotus. srpt (see 1/12) is a name apparently of late introduction, sln is very ancient, and both words are to be paralleled, with varied meaning, in Semitic languages. From this passage one may conjecture that srpt is the lotus bud and sln the flower.

l. 18. wr syn, 'chief physician,' an old Egyptian official title (O. K. in P. S. B. A., xi. 306, Persian period BRUGSCH., Thes., 639), but amongst the gods most applicable to Thoth. Apparently Thoth and Anubis are here united, cf. the name Hermanubis and l. 21. hry-sst, 'chief over the mysteries,' is another old title appropriate enough for either Thoth or Anubis.

l. 20. 'For they all live by thee.' Apparently Anubis was responsible for the provision of food and attendance on the souls.

l. 21. p yt·w sp-sn is intended to be read p yt yt·w as 8/2. Cf. the common appellation προπατωρ in the Gk. papyri. 'Father of the fathers of all the gods' occurs perhaps as early as the N. K. in Boul. Pap. No. 17, p. 7, l. 6 (Hymn to Amon-Re).

l. 22. nle-k z n-y wh. For this formula cf. O. C. Par. ἡσεςι οτω και αφωη επιχποτ αλλοοτ εροτ (sic) (A. Z., 1900, 89). εισελθε και χρηματισσον B. M. Pap. XLVI. 445. šn, lit. 'inquire,' is used vaguely, both of the inquiry and of the answer in this papyrus, as χρηματιζειν in Greek. ϣῆπῖ ša in Copt. is 'beg for,' not 'ask a question'; possibly it has such a meaning here.

l. 24. ḥr n ntr·w ʾy, &c. = *(ϩ)αἰπῆτηρ εἰ . . . *(ϩ)ατ εἰ (see chapter on grammar in vol. ii).

l. 25. 'And you see them' is an addition above the line which does not seem appropriate, as the boy, not the magician, is to see them.

nhe-k . . . nhs-t-k: the defective spelling nhe is found again in the papyrus, leaving no doubt that it represents nhsē, 'waken,' 'raise.' The verb is 'iv^{tao} infirmae' according to SETHE, and the suffix form, lost in Coptic, shows here a curious uncertainty as to the retention of the t.

l. 26. wr-ty. Originally the title of the high priest of Thoth at Hermopolis Magna (Khmun), it was perhaps applied later to the ibis-god himself (e. g. LEGRAIN, Livre des transf., iv. 5). Evidently in connexion with this, Thoth is called 'the god five times great (ʿo), the mighty (wr) lord of Khmun' (II MAHAFFY, Petrie Pap. Pl. 13, II Khm.

5, 7). The common Ptolemaic name Πορτις (cf. GRENPELL, Gk. Pap. I, II; Amherst Pap.; WILCKEN, Gr. Ostr.) in the witnesses of the Grey antigraph (Brit. Mus. Gr. Pap. I. Pl. 27) is P-wr-ty in the corresponding Berlin demotic Pap. 3119 verso (Berl. Dem. Pap. Pl. 16). Πορτις is no doubt founded on an abbreviated pronunciation of the name which we have here with its full value P-wer-tiu. In V. 33/2 we have the normal orthography of the title, varied here and in 22/1.

my 're qme. Meaning very uncertain; if the dot after qme be taken as closing the phrase, the r must be regarded as passive in meaning 'let a creation (?) be made,' cf. 5/22 my wn yr-t and GRIFF., High Priests, p. 87, n. to l. 6, and SETHE, Verb., ii. § 247, and mḥ following the dot suggests an imperative. Perhaps Mareqom (?) is to be taken as a magical name.

l. 27. 'q r ḥt, perhaps may be participial rather than imperative. 'q r ḥt, lit. 'enter the heart,' is common in early demotic in the sense of 'please.' Cf. ΔΡΩΤΗΡ (SPIEGELB., Rec. trav., xxiii. 201) ΩΚ Π ΖΗΤ (BSCIALI, ib., vii. 27).

Pap. Rain, Miith. ii. 266); gbyr may possibly be connected with εβοτρ and with the demotic ligature here; or hmr may be the reading of the latter.

l. 22. tp. Two portions of the body are written tp in the demotic of this papyrus. One has the det. of bone as well as that of flesh, and is undoubtedly ταν, 'horn,' Eg. . Without the det. of bone we have the tp of an ass or a hoopoe, which presumably means the head or skull; in other cases, e.g. 19/26, one may doubt whether horn ταν is not intended by the same group.

l. 23. sq, written with the crocodile, presumably = εικε; see the verb in BRUGSCH, Rec., iv. Pl. 97, l. 16, and as a participle attached to a word meaning incense, ib., Pl. 85 A, ll. 3, 7, and 11; Pl. 96, l. 6.

εαιε suggests εαιε : αιε, i. e. 'anise,' or according to some MSS. 'mint,' LORET, Flore Phar., 2nd ed. pp. 53, 71; and it seems possible that the tall dry stalks of the anise (as opposed to the commonly prescribed seeds) should be denoted by h, lit. 'wood.'

l. 24. g'lg'ntsy with gloss καλακαποι suggests κολοκίνθις; but as the determinative here indicates a mineral and not a plant, it must be intended for χαλκάνθη, 'sulphate of copper,' which is written χαλκάνθον in Leyd. Pap. X. 1, 3.

l. 25. 'yh, 'spirit' of a dead person, or a 'demon': the Gk. δαίμων, which may be good or bad (Pap. Bibl. Nat. passim). On the Bentresh Stela the demon possessing the princess is 'h.'

the gods enter and tell (21) you answer truthfully. You put the shell of a crocodile's egg, or that which is inside it, on the flame; it will be enchanted instantly.

Prescription to make them (22) speak: you put a frog's head on the brazier, then they speak.

Prescription for bringing the gods in by force: you put the bile (23) of a crocodile with pounded frankincense on the brazier.

If you wish to make them come in quickly again, you put stalks (?) of anise (?) on the brazier together with the (24) egg-shell as above, then the charm works at once.

If you wish to bring in a living man, you put sulphate of copper on the brazier, then he comes in.

(25) If you wish to bring in a spirit, you put sa-wr stone with stone of ilkh on the brazier, then the spirit comes in. You put the heart (26) of a hyaena or a hare, excellent (bis).

If you wish to bring in a drowned man, you put sea-karab-stone (?) on the brazier.

(27) If you wish to bring in a murdered (?) man, you put ass's dung with an amulet of Nephthys on the brazier, then he comes in.

If you (28) wish to make (them) all depart, you put ape's dung on the brazier, then they all depart to their place, and you utter their spell of dismissal also.

ylh. The h is written by a sign common enough in other texts, but in this MS. found only here, and in 6/20 hln at l 23/29 hly.

l. 26. hsy, 'approved,' 'deified,' as an expression for one drowned or devoured by a crocodile (19/24), cf. Hdt. ii. 90, and note to l. 31.

g^εrb n y^εm, 'sea-karab,' determined as a mineral can scarcely be κάραβος = 'palinurus vulgaris,' unless its shell be treated as such. Cf. καρκινός ποταμός in Pap. Bibl. Nat. 2458, 2687. In favour of the sense 'crab' or 'crayfish' we might suppose that it was called 'sea-karab' to distinguish it from the καράβος, 'beetle.'

l. 27. rm ε-f mwt, ρεμωστ, but perhaps meaning 'murdered man,' not merely a 'dead' man.

Similarly in I Kham. iv. 9, 14, 20 drowning is expressed by ʾr-f ḥs·t p Rʿ, 'He did that which pleased Re (the sun god).' ḥsy has det. of sun and in some cases the divine det. ʿ prefixed to the word-sign, cf. 15/12. In Gk. our expression is rendered by ἐκθέωσον, 'deify,' or possibly 'consecrate,' which proves that the meaning 'blessed dead,' i.e. 'divinised,' was not yet forgotten: λαβων μυγαλον εκθewσον πηγαιω υδατι, και λαβων καθαρους σεληριακους δυο εκθewσον υδατι ποταμω Pap. Applied to Osiris, also, the word 'drowned' is quite appropriate, see 6/12.

In this case we should again have γ and ο confused (as in αρουρεας = αργυρεας?). This leaves φωξ unaccounted for, but a nominative (and from its termination it could be nothing else) is out of place here, so that the corruption must in any case be rather extensive. I do not think anything but επιταγαιην can be read in l. 19. Probably επιταγῆ is meant.' The word ψυγαγωγου is probably to be taken as associated with the idea of necromancy.

1. 1. There seem to be traces of writing above this line, at least towards the left end: compare the top line in Col. VIII. Lines 1 and 2 are probably to be read in l. 3, before 'thou goest to a dark niche,' the phrase with which l. 2 ends.

Read e-ḥr-k (or e zz-k as in l. 32?) st e mḥty.

mḥty, a word occurring as early as the time of Darius, possibly arising from a confusion of the words mḥt, 'north,' and ḥty, 'go north.' An instance of careless confusion of ḥ and ḥ by our scribe, due to both being 𐤀, e. g. in Sah., occurs in 21/12, but is on a different footing.

ḥpš, lit. the 'foreleg' = the Great Bear. 𐤀𐤁𐤁𐤀 : 𐤀𐤁𐤁𐤀 corresponds to ἀρκτοῦρος in Job ix. 9 (cf. also ZOEΓA, 650). But in the astronomical texts ḥpš as consisting of seven stars evidently is ἀρκτος itself (BRUGSCH, Thes., 123, Aegyptol., 343).

l. 5. rw hl, 'myrrh ink,' συμυρομελαν, probably somewhat after the recipe given in PARTHEΥ, u. s. II. 34^b.

gh'lgter = χαρακτήρες, a term. techn. for mystic symbols: cf. WÜNSCH, Sethian. Verfluchungstafeln, p. 98; SCHMIDT, Gnostische Schriften, p. 54 seq.

l. 6. ne-zz-k. It seems probable that \wp $\overset{|}{\underset{Q}{\curvearrowright}}$ reads zz, for apart from any other correspondences we have this compound preposition written out as ne-zz- in 14/6 and Louvre Dem. Mag. iv. 19. 22.

lhwnt, ΑΛΗΘΗΟΤΗΤ 22/17, evidently = λιβανωτός.

l. 8. ἑδχτχτσιχτχ looks like 'Soul of Khukh, son of Khukh.' The magic-name compounds with χουχ, χυχ, χωωχ are very numerous; cf. P. Sophia, § 361, ἑδπηχωωχ and elsewhere often βαιχυχ. SETHE, Verbum, i. § 417, suggests that the χστχ is the elemental god KK, 'darkness.'

gm-k-ysw, an extraordinary form; but, it is to be feared, no guide to the real pronunciation, which was probably gemyoks or gemyoksu; the written y is thus superfluous, cf. 3/9 note, or at least misplaced.

s-qlm, see note in glossary. 'The place of the garland-seller': does this mean his shop or his garden?

ly-sw: the regular form in this papyrus, as it were, *ΤΗΣΩΤ. In gm-k-ysw, above, the sw = Eg. st, plur. of the absolute object-pronoun. Here, after the infinitive, it is abnormal, the s being inserted before the proper suffix -w on false analogy. In Coptic (St., § 342, p. 169, and PIEHL, A. Z., 95. 42) the only clear instance of this false form seems to be Sah. ϣῤῡϣΩΤ. The similar ΤΕΠΠΟΥΤΣΕ, ΤΕΠΠΟΥΤΣΩΤ, &c., are also etymologically wrong, but they seem to be helped by the causative with stm-f: see GRIFF., High Priests, p. 85.

l. 26. yl: ιαλ : ειαλ probably to be connected with ιαλος.

The ointment which you put on your eyes when you are about to inquire of the lamp in any lamp-divination: you take some flowers (25) of the Greek bean; you find them in the place of the garland-seller, otherwise said of the lupin-seller; you take them fresh and put them (26) in a lok-vessel of glass and stop its mouth very well for twenty days in a secret dark place. After twenty days, if you (27) take it out and open it, you find a pair (?) of testicles in it with a phallus. You leave it for forty days and when you take it out (28) and open it, you find that it has become bloody; then you put it on a glass thing and put the glass thing into a pottery thing (29) in a place hidden at all times. When you desire to make inquiry of the lamp with it at any time if you fill your eyes with this (30) blood aforesaid, and if you go in to pronounce a spell over the lamp you see a figure of a god standing behind (?) the lamp, and he speaks (31) with you concerning the question which you wish; or you lie down and he comes to you. You put pure frankincense on the brazier. You put your finger on the boy's head, his eyes being closed. (6) When you have finished you make him open his eyes towards the lamp; then he sees the shadow of the god about the lamp, and he inquires for you (7) concerning that which you desire. You must do it at midday in a place without light. If it be that you are inquiring for a spirit damned, a wick of sail-cloth (?) (8) is what you put in the lamp and you fill it with clean butter. 'Approved,' 'praised' would be a rather unexpected term to apply to Osiris himself, though it could be explained as equivalent to m' hrrw and 'deified.' The sense 'drowned' is quite applicable, as Osiris' body was at least sunk in the waters, cf. the text of Ptah published by BREASTED, A. Z., 1901, Pl. II, ll. 19, 62; and this sense is implied in Brit. Mus. Pap. XLVI. 259-63 οοτα Εοιγους . . . τον Εοιη (Ζασιε) τον ενεχθευρα εν τω ρειματι του ποταμου for three days and three nights. (In margin) The spells that you write on the lamp, Bakhukhsikhukh (and figures) (26) 'whose name is hidden in my heart; Bibiou (Soul of souls) is his name.' Formula, seven times. If it is a direct (?) inquiry, (27) these things alone are what you recite. If it is an inquiry by the boy that you are about, you recite these aforesaid to the lamp (28) before calling down into the head of the boy, you turn round (?), you recite this other invocation to the lamp also. Formula: 'O Osiris, O lamp (29) that giveth vision

'magnate,' ꜥw, 'old.' It is no doubt a solar name (here for Osiris?), and it occurs in ch. 162 of the Book of the Dead, but unfortunately without variants (PLEYTE, Chap. Suppl., Pl. 21, 130)*.

l. 29. hw-w. This has evidently been written by mistake for hy-w, which has been inserted above. The mistake is important as indicating that the r of hrw, hw, 'day,' was retained in the plural (sing. ꜥꜥꜥ).

* Cf. perhaps the inscription on a hypocephalus at Cairo

The snake as word-sign has six loops here and in 21/4, four loops in l. 16. This agrees with the snake determinative of šy which has usually four loops, once (19/12) six loops, and twice (3/3, 5/9) two loops, and Shoi is said to be 'in Nun' 2/5. It is thus the snake of Shay. But the sign, meaning distinctly a (sacred) snake, cannot read šy, which always means distinctly a divinity. Hfe is perhaps the most probable reading, see esp. 21/4; the det. of that word in 9/20 has only two loops, but in Louvre dem. Mag. iii. 9 five or six loops. Syt 14/3, V. 27/1 has four loops, but the head seems to be raised high; syt is derived from Eg. sʾ-ʾ which is represented by  in late texts, BR., Dict. Geogr., 762.

l. 16. bre: cf. ḥwpe, 'intumescere,' ḥope, 'fastuose se gerere,' or better ḥepi, 'juvenis.'

nh is evidently the serpent word met with in 1/3. Possibly both bre and nh are adjectives, and the construction may resemble the familiar Coptic construction with adjectives, St., § 187.

l. 23. a mr-t in the Khamuas stories means 'on board ship' (High Priests, p. 98), but εμνρ in Coptic is 'across,' 'to the other side,' 'beyond.' a mr n may be 'beyond' as a preposition; the same word is used in 15/12 in the same connexion (with the tomb of Osiris at Abydos).

l. 24. e-r-k. The gloss is certainly ερ, and must be a correction. swt is difficult to understand. The idea must be founded on the use of knots in magic, Lat. 'ligatura.'

z^cl-mt-t probably = 'word-seeking,' from Eg. z^cr, preserved also in χνρ, &c. Were all these used at once, or were they alternatives?

The Good House is the place of embalming, GRIFF., High Priests, p. 25; but the presence of a plant det. no doubt indicates that it is a plant-name here. Ḥt might then be εγκαρδιον, as a botanical term 'core.' More probably the whole expression 'heart of the Good House' is to be taken as the name of a symbolical plant, such as the 'resurrection' plant, Anastatica hierochuntina, or something similar. Cf. the story of the flower enclosing the heart of Bata put in a cup of

This passage to the end of the column is repeated in 27/1-12.

l. 23. hty hm[ʿ]. The parallel 27/2 gives in hieratic ht followed by the nose hnt and the det. of a boat. ht means 'float down the river,' 'go north,' and hnt, 'sail up the river,' 'go south.' With this clue it is easy to read in LEEEMANS' facsimile the verb hty in demotic, written as in the word mhly, V. 1, with its proper det. of water, and following it the verb hnt, also in demotic, with its proper det. the boat. Thus, though LEEEMANS' facsimile cannot be confirmed owing to the wear of the papyrus, it is clear that we have a compound expression hty-hnt, 'go down and up.' This is the proper order for the two verbs, as is shown by hn m hd m hnt, 'rowing to and fro,' in the Westcar Papyrus, V. 4. It of course refers to the sinking to the horizon and rising to the zenith of the sun-boat.

The 7 kings are not elsewhere mentioned. '4 Môm̄ts in their cities' occurs in the text, 'Que mon nom fleurisse' (LIEBLEIN, x. 3, and parallel passages), and 7 is a number associated with Hermonthis, the city of Môm̄t (BRUGSCH, Relig., 164, 7 Hathors and 7 Horus, L. D., iv. 63 c).

This must be the shrew-mouse. Here it appears connected with Letopolis, where the shrew-mouse was sacred to the blind Horus (RENOUF, P. S. B. A., viii. 155). In 13/11 the animal is prescribed to produce blindness, and in 13/12 and 24/34 it produces death in a man, and in V. 32/2 erotic feeling in a woman. The ʿmʿm, with determinative of an animal, is prescribed in Pap. Eb. 91/10; and in Pap. Kah. 7/9 the remains of a determinative will suit very well the picture of a mouse.
It is curious that the cipher writing yielding εεηη (which is certainly identical with Sah. εεηη, which in Sap. 12/8 corresponds to σφῆκες of LXX. In Coptic, however, the shrew-mouse is εεηη : εεηη (PEYR., Lex. and Gramm.). The μυγᾶλος (sic) is prescribed several times in Pap.
Bibl. Nat. in ἀγῶγαι.

Šḥym (Βοῦ-σημα) and ʿyt are both names of Letopolis in the Delta.
The last group in the line looks like ʿi, but is probably intended for wʿi.

1. 26. The pa is for πα-. περο in O. C. Par. corresponds to p pr-ʿo in 21/2. So also we have in B. M. Pap. XLVI, l. 113 εγω ειμι αγγελος του φαρω οσοροννοφρις, 'of Pharaoh Osoronno-phris,' where φαρω = our pa p pr-ʿo. Undoubtedly the initial letter of pr-ʿo had already been lost by assimilation to the article. The tautology of του φα- is precisely the same as in Αμενωφισ του Πααπιος, 'Amenophis, son of Hapis,' in JOSEPHUS, Contra Ap. i. 26.

. . . . 3. The only kings whose names end in š are Darius, Xerxes, Artaxerxes, and the native Khebbesh. Of these Darius is doubtless the name to be restored here; cf. Diod. Sic. i. 95, and for his reputation as a magician in particular, μαγικων διδασκαλος, PORPHYRY, de Abstin., iv. 16. That kings, as well as aspirants to the throne, used these arts is suggested by the spell 'of Rameses III' being given to the herdsman Penhuyban in order to give him 'valour and respect.' See note to l. 17 above.

Aromata, p. 33, and LEMM., Kopt. Apocr. Apostelacten (Mél. Asiat. t. x. p. 351). It occurs in magic prescriptions, Leyden Pap. W. i. 16, ix. 10. The demotic group hb . . . corresponding to it is strange in form and difficult to read: there seems to be a gap between the r and the measure.

Graphically \odot , \ominus (fem.) are hieroglyphic equivalents of the demotic for $\kappa\iota\tau\epsilon$, 'didrachma,' but from 24/15, 18 the former should be a small multiple of the latter. $\sigma\tau\alpha\tau\eta\rho$ (Copt. $\sigma\alpha\tau\epsilon\rho\rho\epsilon$, fem.) is common as a weight = 'tetrachma,' in Ptolemaic and Roman papyri.

It seems characteristically female, the gender of the pronoun changing to fem. ungrammatically immediately after the masculine šbt, in l. 9, and no doubt it was sacred to some goddess. l. 9. ꜥꜣꜣ is probably the true native pronunciation of the word for gum, unaffected by the Greek.

l. 10. twt (?). The determinative of a star must mean that the planet form Hr-p-k, a bull-headed man standing with was-sceptre, is intended, Br., Thes., p. 68. With regard to the reading, the sign is the det. of twt in Bul. Pap. I. Pl. 37, l. 14, and in l. 15 stands for twt. Twt, 'figure,' seems to be the reading here, and wherever it occurs with the det. of divinity (15/10, &c.); but without det. (16/22, &c.) it means 'style,' 'method,' and is probably to be read ky. Max Müller, however (Rec. trav. ix. 26), shows reason for reading it qte, comparing Louvre dem. Mag. v. I, vi. 19; qte, though apparently masc., may be the origin of the fem. ꜣꜣꜣ.

l. 11. hyn-w ꜣꜣꜣ, some water: cf. 21/13 hyn-w ʿrt-t.

l. 15. The word for bath is determined with the sign of fire: its name in Coptic is εισουηε: σειωουηι with variations; in the demotic there is no trace of the η, and it evidently means 'place of washings,' σε-εισουε.

'You gild and embalm its tail' is perhaps the meaning.

l. 18. s'ḥryn. The finger is always thus elaborately described in the pap., the blood being used in erotica as here 15/4, 22, V. 32/7. It is evidently the Boh. ceλoyn الخنصر 'middle finger' in KIRCHER. But Sah. ceλeyn is 'heart,' also ὑποχόνδρια (cf. 21/25, 33); and that a nerve connected the third (ring-) finger of the left hand with the heart is said put it in a gold ring (?), (16) you put it on your finger after reciting these charms to it, and walk with it to any place, and any woman whom you shall take hold of, she [giveth herself(?)] unto you. (17) You do it when the moon is full. If you do it to make a woman mad after a man, you take its body, dried, you pound [it, you] take (18) a little of it with a little blood of your second finger, (that) of the heart (?), of your left hand; you mix it with it, you put it (19) in a cup of wine; you give it to the woman and she drinks it; then she has a passion for you. You put its gall into a (measure of) wine (20) and the man drinks it; then he dies at once; or (you) put it into any piece [of food]. You put its heart (?) into a seal-ring (?) (21) of gold; you put it on your hand, and go anywhere; then it brings you [favour, love, and] reverence. You drown a hawk in (22) a (measure of) wine; you make the man drink it, then he dies. You put the gall of an Alexandrian [weasel] into any food, (23) then he dies. You put a two-tailed lizard into the oil and [cook] it, and anoint the man with it; then [he dies(?)]. (24) You wish to produce a skin-disease on a man and that it shall not be healed, a hantous-lizard [and(?)] a hafseele-lizard, you cook them with [oil(?)], (25) you wash the man with them. If you wish to make it troublesome (?), you put, then it is troublesome(?). You put beer (?) (26) to the eye of a man, then he is blinded.

l. 20. hr ⲁⲧⲉϥ. It is very interesting to obtain the stm-f form following hr; but whether it would be ⲁⲧⲟϥ or ⲁⲧⲁϥ in Sah. may be a little doubtful. The vowel seems however to represent ε, not ⲁ, and should therefore correspond to ⲁ, not ⲟ, in Sah.; but a Sah. form ⲁⲧⲉϥ, or even ⲁⲧⲏϥ, would be conceivable.

l. 21. t over the line seems to be a correction of hr.

1. 2. The mark over sp occurs also in 29/22 and V. 9/8. In 29/22 it is placed over sp without any number following, in the other instance over a blank space where a numeral would be expected. Here a number has been written under sp, but below the line, as if inserted later, and the inference may be drawn that the sign in question indicates that a number is wanting.

1. 3. Ham-o might mean 'great carpenter,' but many Egyptian words in these magic names are no doubt almost meaningless, and it is difficult in translating to decide whether to give English equivalents or to transcribe them phonetically.

nta would mean 'that I may,' the demotic equivalent of which is usually written nte-y, though the y was not pronounced. Here we have nte alone written, unless the group be read nte-w 3rd pl., which would give the meaning 'that the god may be seen.'

'That I may see the god every time I open my eyes (?).' e³r-y is only past relative in ordinary demotic, but in early demotic is often future. Possibly it retains this meaning here, but if so it is a very exceptional usage.

Arian is repeated three times, each time with a different epithet, but the reading of the second is uncertain : it might mean 'this bringer of prosperity.'

l. 12. ḥsy: inserted after the ḥ seems to be a kind of determinative, also in 19/24. The reference here is, of course, to Osiris.

a mr: the geographical significance of this is difficult to grasp, but cf. 9/23.

l. 13. t a ḥry ḥn, 'pour into,' of liquids: cf. 19/29.

nt a seems to be the form for the relative before stm-f in this papyrus when used instead of the old relative form a-stm-f. Cf. l. 17, &c.

l. 14. my nʾm-f: above this is a letter resembling a erased by two lines; the following words are very difficult to understand. Te-f may be intended for the past relative a-te-f, 'which he gave.'

figure of a Captain of the host, very valiant, this (11) Sword (?), this Overthrower (?), the Great Flame is my name. I am this figure of Horus, this Fortress (?), this Sword (?), this (12) Overthrower (?) is my name. I am this figure of One Drowned, that testifieth by writing, that resteth on the other side (?) here under (13) the great offering-table (?) of Abydos; as to which the blood of Osiris bore witness to her (?) name of Isis when it (the blood) was poured into (14) this cup, this wine. Give it, blood of Osiris (that?) he (?) gave to Isis to make her feel love in her heart for him (15) night and day at any time, there not being time of deficiency. Give it, the blood of N. born of N. to give it (16) to N. born of N. in this cup, this bowl of wine to-day, to cause her to feel a love for him in her heart, (17) the love that Isis felt for Osiris, when she was seeking after him everywhere, let N. the daughter of N. feel it, (18) she seeking after N. the son of N. everywhere; the longing that Isis felt for Horus of Edfu, (19) let N. born of N. feel it, she loving him, mad after him, inflamed by him, seeking him (20) everywhere, there being a flame of fire in her heart in her moment of not seeing him.'

(21) Another method of doing it again. The paring(?) of your nail's point (?) from an apple-fruit (?), and blood (22) of your finger aforesaid again; you pound the apple and put blood on it, and put it in the cup of wine (23) and invoke it seven times, and make the woman drink it at the moment named.

l. 21. znf: an obscure word; cf. 25/32, V. 7/1. It occurs also in a Philae inscription (Br., Thes., 1017), perhaps with the meaning of a 'small portion.'

pr-w: cf. perhaps Sah. εἴρα, pl. εἴρανε. It is not clear whether the fruit or the pips are intended.

l. 22. a hry. The MS. appears to have the a, but it must be a mistake of the scribe.

l. 24. ħry probably means 'Sovereign,' 'king,' but may perhaps only mean a 'superior officer.' sre-w would seem to mean 'range soldiers,' 'array battle.'

l. 25. The Greek formula, ll. 25-28, is translated into demotic in ll. 29-31.

ανοχ, &c. This passage invites interpretation as Old Coptic, but if it really meant anything it must be corrupt, and the demotic version in l. 29 renders it phonetically as if it consisted of magic names. One may perhaps suggest 'nk pe pa p nt 'o my t w'eb n-s, 'I am the servant of him that is great; give discharge (ⲙⲁⲧⲟⲩⲏⲟ) (of the fault or the liability) to her' (sic for 'to me'?).

l. 26. ταφην. At this time ταφή in Egypt = 'mummy,' as is seen by the mummy tickets (Pap. Rainer Mith. V. 14).

(24) [A spell] of going to meet a sovereign(?) when he fights with you and will not parley(?) with you. (25) 'Do not pursue me, thou! I am Papipetou Metoubanes. I am carrying (26) the mummy of Osiris and I am proceeding to take it to Abydos, (27) to take [it] to Tastai(?) and to deposit it in Alkhai; if N. deal blows at me, (28) I will cast it at him.' Its invocation in Egyptian also is this as below: (29) 'Do not pursue me, N., I am Papipetu Metubanes. I am carrying the mummy of Osiris, (30) I am proceeding to take it to Abydos, to cause it to rest in Alkhah. If N. fight with me to-day, (31) I will cast it away.' Say seven times.

1. 27. ταστας: an unknown name. This phrase is not translated in the demotic.

[α]λχας: the λ is sufficiently recognizable in the facs.; see the note on 1/16. The ς of κοπους is likewise seen in the facs.

εαν μοι, &c. WÜNSCH, in the Supplement on magic tablets to the Corp. inscript. Attic., quotes in his preface an inscription from the Collections du mus. Alaoui I. p. 57 (publ. also MASPERO, Et. myth. arch. ii. 297), a Latin erotic of the 2nd cent. A.D. from Hadrumetum written in Greek characters: 'Si minus descendo in adytus Osyris et dissolvam τῆν ταφήν et mittam ut a flumine feratur. Ego enim sum magnus decanus magni dei Achrammachalala,' i. e. as WÜNSCH says, a sepulcro Osiridis arcam illius eripiet et in Nilum coniciet, idem quod olim Typho fecerat.

1. 1. This is only a gloss on the second line.

1. 2. The apparent n at the beginning before n ml-wt is probably false.

1. 4. ἤν. In this papyrus this word is often used in such a way as to suggest the meaning 'answer' rather than 'inquire.' Perhaps it may mean both 'to inquire' and 'to be inquired of.'

l. 7. καρπε: the aspiration of the second ρ is interesting. Cf. note to 1/20.

l. 11. εφωβ: the lamp must be pure as described in ll. 22 et seqq. αωυ, sometimes perhaps written ωυ, is αω-, απεις, ST., § 384, and is synonymous with αωυ: cf. 17/10, &c.

t has been omitted by the scribe at the end of the line.

l. 28. f is omitted after r and pr is incomplete before ybt. The scribe has moreover been confused in describing the positions of the lamp and the boy.

l. 29. Thus the middle finger of the right hand must have had a different name from that of the left, see 13/18 and cf. 29/5 with this passage. ḥyne(?) has the det. of flesh and should be some part of the body.

You take a new lamp in which no minium has been put and you (put) (23) a clean wick in it, and you fill it with pure genuine oil and lay it in a place cleansed with natron water and concealed, (24) and you lay it on a new brick, and you take a boy and seat him upon another new brick, his face being (25) turned to the lamp, and you close his eyes and recite these things that are (written) above down into the boy's head seven times. You make him (26) open his eyes. You say to him, 'Do you see the light?' When he says to you 'I see the light in the flame of the lamp,' you cry at that moment saying (27) 'Heoue' nine times. You ask him concerning everything that you wish after reciting the invocation that you made previously before Phre in the morning. (28) You do it in a place with (its) entrance open to the East, and put the face of the lamp turned (blank). You put the face of the boy (29) turned (blank) facing the lamp, you being on his left hand. You cry down into his head, you strike his head with your second finger, (that) of the, of your (30) right hand.

You recite these things down into the head of the boy, he looking (16) towards the lamp. Do not let him look towards another place except the lamp only; if he does not look towards it, then he is afraid. (17) You do all these things, you cease from your inquiry, you return, you make him close his eyes, you speak down into his head this other (18) invocation which is below, that is, if the gods go away and the boy ceases to see them: 'Arkhe-khem-phai, Zeou, (19) Hele, Satrapemet, watch this boy, do not let him be frightened, terrified, or scared, and make (20) him return to his original path. Open Tei (the Underworld), open Tai (Here).' I say it that this vessel-inquiry of the lamp is better (21) than the beginning. This is the method again; its form: you take a new lamp in which no minium has been put and you put a wick of (22) clean linen in it; you fill it with genuine clean oil; you place it on a new brick, you make the boy sit on another brick (23) opposite the lamp; you make him shut his eyes, you recite down into his head according to the other method also.

Another invocation which (24) you recite towards Phre in the morning three times or seven times. Formula: 'Iotabao, Sokh-ommoa, Okh-(25)-okh-Khan, Bouzanau, Aniesi, Ekomphto, Ketho, Sethori, (26) Thmilaalouapokhri may everything succeed that I shall do to-day,' and they will(?) succeed. If it be that you do not apply (?) purity to it, it does not succeed; its chief matter is purity.

Another (27) invocation like the one above again. Formula: 'Boel,' (thrice), 'I, I, I, A, I, I, I, A, Tat (thrice), he who giveth the light exceedingly, the companion of the flame, he of the flame which does not (28) perish, the god who liveth, who dieth not, he who sitteth in the flame, who is in the midst of the flame who is in the lake of heaven, in whose hand is the greatness and might (29) of the god, reveal thyself to CXXI, l. 193, &c., but also of bites and stings of venomous animals in general, Diosc., Περι Ιοβολ. 19, and of wounds in general. Except that it bleeds (l. 14) there is little here to show what is meant by plege so long as ll. 7-8 remain unintelligible.

l. 2. According to this Anubis was the eldest son of Osiris (l. 5), and his mother was Sekhmet-Isis, called in l. 9 Isis. The liaison of Osiris with Nephthys (cf. PLUTARCH) is referred to in the O. C. of Pap. Bibl. Nat. nte-s(?)y is a possible reading, a·r-s is not possible.

l. 3. wm-rm: there were Anthropophagi and Cynamolgi caninis capitibus (cf. 21/7) associated in Africa, apparently on the Upper Nile, Plin.,

(1) [Spell] spoken to the sting: (2) 'I am the King's son, eldest and first, Anubis. My mother Sekhmet-Isis (?), she came (?) after me (3) forth to the land of Syria, to the hill of the land of Heh, to the nome of those cannibals, saying, (4) "Haste (bis), quick (bis) my child, King's son, eldest and first, Anubis," saying, "Arise and come (5) to Egypt, for thy father Osiris is King of Egypt, he is ruler over (6) the whole land; all the gods of Egypt are assembled to receive the crown from his hand." (7) The moment of saying those things she brought me a blow (?),

H. N., 6. 35 ad fin. Northward, Anthropophagi were placed in Syria, ib. 7. 2, or in Parthia (ROBINSON, Apocr. Gosp., p. 23, and Preface): cf. Rec. tr., xxv. 41. The land of Hah (Millions) is not known.

l. 5. a n Kmy . . . a p t must be for n Kmy . . . n p t. Possibly the Faiyumic pronunciation ε for π has produced this exceptional writing.

l. 7. The following may be suggested as an alternative translation for this difficult passage: 'At the moment when she said this, a wasp (?) flew to me, my spittle (?) fell down upon me (from fright); it (the wasp) drew near (or gathered itself together) to me, coming unto me with a sting.' Here a're-s is taken as a relative attached to s as regularly in other demotic texts (I Kham. v. 1, &c.); the n before fks-t is omitted. fy is taken in the sense of 'fly' (see GRIFF., H. Priests, p. 178, note to l. 19), and fks-t as possibly an Egyptian rendering of σφήξ. The Coptic Ⲅⲟⲩⲗⲁⲥⲓ, meaning an aquatic (?) animal of some kind, can hardly be the same word for phonetic reasons; for the form of the f see l. 21. The word recurs in 21/7.

nmlt as 'power' = ⲛⲟⲱⲗⲧ: this makes no sense. Cf. Kufi, xii. 30, 'he swallowed his nmy-t' (of the monkey when terrified).

1. 10. ls·t-k. This form seems due to a confusion in endeavouring to write in archaic style. The t is quite unwarranted by Egyptian. We may compare the t added before the object pronouns following stm-f: cf. also note to l. 20. We have here a passage in which very modern forms ⲙⲡⲁⲗⲉⲧⲟ ⲉⲃⲟⲗ are mixed with older forms ḥms ʔS·t (past stm-f) and this ls·t-k.

l. 12. nmte·t: if this means 'tail' we may compare Pist. Sophia, p. 323 ⲧⲧⲁⲡⲣⲟ ⲙⲡⲉⲁⲧ , 'the point of the tail of the dragon.'

bn pʕy: the Achmimic vetitive $\text{ⲙⲡ} = \text{ⲙⲡⲣ}$, cf. 21/23, probably derived from the old vetitive m. It occurs in Eg. as bn, Pap. Mag. Harris 8/7.

fell my tail (?) upon me. (8) It (?) gathered together (?), it (?) coming to me with a sting (?): I sat down and (9) wept. Isis, my mother, sat before me, saying to me, " Do not (10) weep (his), my child, King's son, eldest and first, Anubis; lick with thy tongue on thy heart, repeatedly (?) What thou wilt lick up, thou swallowest it; do not spit it out on the ground; for thy (13) tongue is the tongue of the Agathodaemon, thy tongue (?) is that of Atum."

(14) And you lick it with your tongue, while it is bleeding, immediately; thereafter, you recite to a little (15) oil and you recite to it seven times, you put it on the sting daily; you (16) soak a strip of linen, you put it on it.

It is Isis who (22) makes invocation to the oil. O true oil, O drop of

l. 17. p^hge: the word has been extensively corrected; p, originally ϕ, and g and e being written above the line—see the facsimile.

l. 18. tyt = τωετ, plangere. The songs at funerals both in ancient and modern Egypt are in praise of the deceased, so the word may really mean, or at least imply, 'pronounce eulogy.'

l. 19. hys-t-k, and in l. 20 hys-k. It seems as if in one case the t was preserved and in the other lost. Compare the fact that this τ of verbs iii^{ae} inf. is often preserved in Sah. when lost in Boh.

l. 21. n^he n sym = ηεξ ησια, i. e. ραφάνων, Diosc. i. 45 and Peyr. Lex. f^hy, cf. 21/16, is the reading = εωτε, not š^hy, ϣ^hϕ. For the form of š in this papyrus see š^hy in 19/7, 8; f over another sign has the tail very short.

pr-zm. This, though usually written without the pr, must be the ⲭⲏⲙⲉ, situated on the west bank of the Nile at Thebes, and well known in Coptic literature. The name zm may be written with the figure of a crocodile.

rain, O water-drawing of the planet Jupiter (23) which cometh down from the sun-boat at dawn, thou wilt make the healing effect(?) of the dew of dawn which heaven hath cast (24) on to the earth upon every tree, thou wilt heal the limb which is paralysed(?), thou wilt make a remedy (25) for him that liveth; for I will employ thee for the sting of the King's son, eldest and first, Anubis, my child, (26) that thou mayest fill it; wilt thou not make it well? For I will employ thee for (the?) sting of N. the son of N., (27) that thou mayest fill it; wilt thou not make it well?" Seven times.

1. 1. The first lines of this column have been made the subject of special study in connexion with the Old Coptic texts of Paris (written on the first pages of the Pap. Bibl. Nat., edited by WESSELY), which contain a variant version of them: ERMAN, A. Z., 1883, 89; GRIFFITH, A. Z., 1900, 85; 1901, 86.

1. 2. Parallel to this line the O. C. (A. Z., 1883, Pl. 3) gives εορωτη οσσιρε. перойти пниѣ ꙗткансе петꙗприсѣити ет+ιστωω ꙗεεωτ петза зѢа ппотоѣс. ꙗпероѣе. ете пец. εοοτ ꙗ па ѡαλωα. The notes to the foregoing in A. Z., 1900, 86 seq., may be consulted by those who wish to study its connexion with the demotic text.

1. 26. sḥn-t-t looks like a compound with sḥ, 'the toes' collectively, or 'a toe.' sḥn-t-t may therefore mean the toes, or the fingers (collectively) of Shu, referring perhaps to his hands which support the sky. The eyes of Ra and Atum were the most important instruments of their rule.

be left out of the question, the fact that both in 21/27 and 21/41 š is written over ne, as if by an afterthought, suggests that ne, which is identical in spelling with na the auxiliary of the future, must be the verb na, 'go' (attaching itself to nos: nosī, 'futurus esse'), as opposed to nnos, 'come' (which is qualitative of ei; see KABIS, A. Z., 75. 107). na is practically the qualitative of ue (STERN, § 348). The correction of ne to š in both passages would therefore be particularly remarkable. Although, according to STEINDORFF, § 251, the qualitative is admissible in the conjunctive it seems difficult after шante-: hence no doubt the correction; but if it be possible, the meaning would be 'until she be going,' while š expresses 'until she go.' It would seem that the scribe was puzzled by the ne, hence the mistakes and corrections. The following table of forms of the verbs 'come' and 'go' may be useful:—

But more probably it is the μελίκρητον, 'honey and water,' of Hipp., Aph. v. 41 &c.; cf. also γλυκὴ κρητικόν, GALEN, de Antid. i. 12, &c., 'liquorice.'

l. 9. Hyoscyamus, henbane, Diosc. iii. 69, used as hypnotic, &c., Brit. Pharm.

l. 10. κισσος, Diosc. ii. 210.

mt·t rm-rḥ: cf. l Kham. iv. 37.

l. 12. The meaning may be that you take each of the four ingredients separately and soak it in wine. Perhaps the four uteh of wine make the lok.

1 ounce, (9) hyoscyamus, 1 ounce, (10) ivy, 1 ounce; (11) you pound them like (sic) a lok-measure of wine. If you wish to do it cleverly (?) (12) you take four portions to each one of them with an uteh of wine, (13) you moisten them from morning to evening; you clarify them, (14) you make them drink it; very good.

Another, the fourth (?) :—pips (?) [of?] (15) apple, 1 stater (?), 1 kite, pound with flour. (16) You make it into a cake (?); you make the man eat it, whom you wish.

(17) A medicament for making a man sleep; very good :—(18) pips (?) of apple, 1 stater (?), 1 drachma, mandragora root, 4 drachmas, (19) ivy, 4 drachmas; pound together; you put fifteen (20) uteh of wine to it; you put it into a glass glyt; (21) you keep it. If you wish to give it, you put a little into a cup of wine, (22) you give it to the man.

Ivy: it grows in gardens; (23) its leaf is like the leaf of shekam, being divided into three lobes (24) like a vine-leaf; it (the leaf) is one palm in measurement; its blossom (25) is like silver—another says gold.

Another: gall of an Alexandrian weasel, (26) you add it to any food.

Another: a two-tailed lizard.

(27) A medicament for catalepsy (?): gall of cerastes, pips (?) of western apples, herb of klo, (28) pound them together; make into a pill, put (it) into the food (?).

l. 14. t swr-w-s, 'let them absorb it,' or 'let the patient (?) drink it.'

l. 18. $\frac{1}{2}$ gt-t. This group of the kite, written with the sign for $\frac{1}{2}$ either over it, as twice in this line, or preceding it, as in l. 19 and V. 7/5, 9/3, doubtless represents the Coptic ⲉⲩⲉⲕⲓⲧⲉ: ⲭⲉⲩⲉⲕⲓⲧⲉ, which is also a fem. word, meaning half a didrachma, or drachma.

l. 26. nle-k seems superfluous, see note on plate.

ll. 27-28. A parallel passage, V. 3/1-3.

l. 27. ⲕⲗⲟ: LEMM., Kl. Kopt. Stud. x. (Bull. St. Pet. xiii. 12) has shown that ⲕⲗⲟ was the name of a vegetable arrow poison.

You do it in a dark place, the door of it (17) opening to the East or the South, and no cellar being underneath it. (18) You do not allow the light to come into the place aforesaid; you purify the said place beforehand. (19) You push the boy's back to the opening of the niche. When you have finished, you recite a charm, (20) bringing your hand over his eyes. A boy who has not yet gone with a woman, (21) is he] whom you make come before you (?); you question him, saying, 'What do you see?' (22) then he tells you about everything that you ask him.

11. 24-29 are a repetition of 5/24-30; see notes there.

1. 24. whe(?). šn stands in the parallel. It seems that whe(?) is used of μαντεία αὐτοπικῆ (cf. note to 10/22), and šn-hne, when opposed to it (l. 34), means divination with a medium.

his eyes; you ask him, saying, 'What are the things which you have seen?' (17) If he says, 'I have seen the gods about the lamp,' then they tell him answer concerning that which they will be asked. If you wish to do it by yourself alone, (18) you fill your eyes with the ointment aforesaid; you stand up opposite the lamp when alight; you recite to it seven times with your eyes shut; when you have finished, you open (19) your eyes; then you see the gods behind(?) you; you speak with them concerning that which you desire; you ought to do it in a dark place. The invocation which you recite, (20) formula: 'I am Manebai, Ghethethoni, Khabakhel, let me worship thee, the child of Arpithnapira, (21) Pileasa, Gnuriph-arisa, Teni-irissa, Psi, Psi, Irissa, (22) Gimituru-phas-sa, Okmatsisa, Oreobazagra, Pertaomekh, (23) Peragomekh, Sakmeph, come in to me, and inquire for me about the inquiry which I am inquiring about, truthfully without (24) falsehood.' Its spirit-gathering: the ointment which you put on your eyes, when you are about to make any divination by the lamp. (25) You take some flowers of the Greek bean; you find them in the place of the lupin-seller; you take them fresh, (26) and put them into a lok of glass; you close its mouth very carefully for twenty days in a hidden dark place; after (27) twenty days you take it forth, you open it; then you find a pair (?) of testicles and a phallus inside it; you leave it for forty days; and you take it (28) forth; you open it; then you find that it has become bloody; you must put it into some thing of glass, and you put the glass thing into a pottery (thing) (29) in a place hidden at all times. When you wish to make a divination (?) by the lamp with it, you

1. 32. Manebai is the leading word in the invocation, l. 20.

1. 33. Muribai is a leading word in the invocation in the parallel 5/10 to which this evidently refers.

fill your eyes with this blood aforesaid, you proceed to lie down, (30) or you stand opposite the lamp; you recite this invocation aforesaid; then you see the god behind (?) you, while you are standing up or lying down. Excellent (bis) and tried (?). (31) You write this name on the strip of the wick of the lamp in myrrh ink, 'Bakhukhsikhukh,' or, as says another book, 'Kimeithoro Phosse'; (32) this method which is written above is the method of the divination of Manebai. If you wish to do it (33) by inquiry of the lamp, this also is the form, it is also profitable for (?) the divination of Muribai. If you do it (34) by vessel-inquiry of the lamp, you fill the lamp aforesaid on a new brick; you make the boy stand upright (35) before the lamp, he having his face covered; you recite to his head, standing over him, this Greek invocation; when you have finished, you uncover (36) his face, then he answers you truthfully.

Its spirit-gathering: you go to a clean place, you take a vessel of bronze, you wash it with water of natron, you put a lok-measure (5) of oil to it; you place it on the ground; you light a bronze lamp; you put it on the ground by the bronze vessel; (6) you cover yourself with a clean

1. 1. epysghes emmyme: MAX MÜLLER, Rec. trav., viii. 178, reads here episkhes epimme, and regards it as a transcription of ἐπίσχεσ ἐπί με, 'come to me.' The reading is probably emymme, but it may still be a corruption of the Greek phrase he has suggested.

1. 5. σεληνογονον: the name given by προφήται to the παιονία (the modern paeonia) according to the synonyms in Diosc. iii. 147. The plant-names ascribed to the προφήται are naturally connected with deities, heavenly bodies and the like. SPRENGEL (Praefat., p. xvi) identifies the προφήται with those of Egypt, but this is perhaps too precise.
1. 9. The grammatical construction seems confused: one would expect εψαϛ or ετεψαϛ, St., §§ 426, 427. The writer has given the form of the relative ετσωτεα, but has inserted hr, which seems to be an anomaly.

COL. XXVIII.

1. 1. This short column appears to be the only part of the papyrus written in a different hand from the rest. It is very obscure, and the words seem much abbreviated. The group elsewhere reading nk (ⲛⲕⲁ) is conspicuous, but is without the determinative, and perhaps has another meaning here.

1. 2. Cf. V. 10/12. The zodiacal sign ⲃⲠⲗ ⲥ stands for Scorpio (BRUGSCH, Nouv. Rech., p. 22). For the reading zlt (?), cf. O. L. Z., 1902, V. col. 6, 223.

Balkham, the mighty (?) one of heaven, (8) Ablanathanalba, gryphon of the shrine of the god which stands to-day (?).'

VERSO COL. XXVIII.

(1) You shall cause a star (?) to go . . . place (?) under the earth (?) (2) when the moon is in the constellation of Scorpio.

VERSO COL. XXIX.

(1) [Spell to] make mad any man or any woman.

(2) You take the hair of the man whom you wish, together with the hair (3) of a dead (murdered?) man; and you tie them to each other, (4) and tie them to the body of a hawk, and you release (?) it (5) alive. If you wish to do it for some days, (6) you put the hawk in a place and you feed it in your house.

VERSO COL. XXX.

(1) If you dung of a smoune-goose, (2) then her body falls.

(3) Another: you anoint your phallus with dung of (4) a kel, and you lie with (the) woman, then she feels thy love (i.e. for thee). (5) You pound dung of with honey, (6) and you anoint your phallus with it as above again.

(7) Another: dung of hyaena (?) with ointment of (8) roses as above again.

(9) Another: you fumigate a woman with ichneumon's dung (10) when the menstruation is on her; then she is cured.

(11) Ass's dung also—this method (of treatment).

VERSO COL. XXXI.

(1) 'Sisihoout (2) otherwise Armioth, (3) the god who liveth, the lamp which is (4) lighted, come within (5) before me, and give me answer (6) concerning that which I ask about here (7) to-day.'

VERSO COL. XXXII.

(1) To make rave for a man. (2) You take a live shrew-mouse (?), (3) and take out its gall and put it in one place, (4) and take its heart and put it in another place. You (5) take its whole body, you pound it very much; (6) when it is dry, you take a little of the pounded stuff with a (7) little blood of your second finger, (that) of the heart, (8) of your left hand, and put it in a cup of wine (9) and you make the woman drink it. Then she has a passion for you.

(10) You put its gall into a cup of wine, then she dies (11) instantly; or put it in meat or some food.

(12) You put its heart in a ring of gold and put it (13) on your hand; then it gives you great praise, love, and respect.

VERSO COL. XXXIII.

(1) Horus he was going up a hill at midday in the verdure season, mounted on a white horse on a black horse, (2) the papyrus rolls [of . . .] being on (?) him, those of the Great of Five in his bosom. He found all the gods seated at the place of judgement (3) eating [of the produce ?] of the Nile (?), my (?) Chief.

THE LEYDEN PAPYRUS

An Egyptian Magical Book

Edited by
F. Ll. Griffith & Herbert Thompson

How to invoke Anubis and release the dead . . . how to divine with a lamp . . . how to conjure up a damned spirit . . . how to have dream visions . . . how to make magic ointments . . . how to blind or kill your enemies . . . how to use the charm of the ring . . . how to make a woman mad after a man . . . how to invoke Thoth and bring good fortune . . .

These are among the many topics of practical magic contained in the so-called Leyden Papyrus, an Ancient Egyptian manuscript that dates from around the beginning of the Christian era. Probably the textbook of a practicing sorcerer in Egypt, this remarkable work contains scores of spells which the writer firmly believes will work: sex magic of various sorts, occult information, evoking visions, working evil, healing, removing evil magic—and all the other tasks that a sorcerer might have to undertake.

Discovered at Thebes in the middle 19th century, assembled from fragments at Leyden and London, this fifteen-foot strip of papyrus is still one of the most important documents for revealing the potions, spells, incantations and other forms of magic worked in Egypt. In addition to purely native elements involving the gods, the manuscript shows the influence of Gnostic beliefs, Greek magic, and other magical traditions.

A transliteration of the demotic script is printed on facing pages with a complete translation, which is copiously supplied with explanatory footnotes. The editors supply an informative introduction and a classification of the types of magic involved. As a result this publication is of great importance to the Egyptologist, student of magic, and the reader who wishes to judge the efficacy of Egyptian magic for himself.

Unabridged republication of the 1904 edition, originally titled The Demotic Magical Papyrus of London and Leiden. Preface. Introduction. xii + 207pp. 5¾ x 8½. 22994-7 Paperbound

A DOVER EDITION DESIGNED FOR YEARS OF USE!

We have made every effort to make this the best book possible. Our paper is opaque, with minimal show-through; it will not discolor or become brittle with age. Pages are sewn in signatures, in the method traditionally used for the best books, and will not drop out, as often happens with paperbacks held together with glue. Books open flat for easy reference. The binding will not crack or split. This is a permanent book.
