PREFACE.

The principal object of this book, which, under its present increased and revised form, reaches the sixth edition, is to give American tourists reliable information about the beautiful Island of Cuba, so appropriately surnamed the Pearl of the Antilles. Spots having an historical interest are scrupulously depicted; ancient cities like Havana, Matanzas, Cárdenas, Cienfuegos, Santiago, etc., are the object of special and elaborate descriptions.

The author has thought fit and proper that in this memorable year, which marks the close of the fourth century of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, to add to this book a portrait with a brief historical sketch of the genius who has given, through perseverance and innumerable sufferings of all description, a continent to the human race During the last five years, the literary talent of our generation has done wonders to unearth from the ancient and dusty parchments hidden in the libraries and museums of the old world, everything of interest relating to the discovery of America. These combined literary efforts have been embodied in the present historical and biographical sketch of Christopher Columbus, and it may not be presumptuous on our part to hint that these pages will not only be read with pleasure by the present generation, but may eventually be of some help to those historians of the future who will recount the high deeds of Columbus on the occasion of the fifth century of the discovery of America, and recall the prowess of the imperishable Latin race for its unselfish spread of civilization.

In rearanging this work, and in order to make it accurate in all of its details and valuable to tourists, new illustrations have been added.

The Anglo-Spanish vocabulary has been carefully revised, and notable additions have been made to it; all of which leads me to think that the present edition will be of great assistance to those travelers who are unacquainted with the beautiful Spanish language.

Inquiries upon any subject treated in this work will be cheerfully answered by addressing

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS.

THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA.

According to the most reliable historians Columbus was born in Genoa, Italy. In his tenderest years he was bereft of both father and mother, and left to his own resources, having no friend, no guardian to advise him or to whom he could look for help and support.

Columbus passed his younger days in Genoa, a seaport surrounded by high mountains and bearing the same name as that of the city of his birth.

During his youth, he would pass at play many hours of the day on the sea shore, listening with the curiosity of his age to the stories of travels recounted by the sailors. Christopher Columbus was of fair complexion, with curly red hair and very bright, fiery eyes.

Oftentimes he would be found alone, walking silently on the beach, contemplating the infinite vastness of the ocean and listening to the murmur of the waves. Who can tell if at that very time Columbus did not entertain already the idea of circumnavigating the globe?

In his youth he made long sea voyages. His courage and agility gained for him the admiration of his superiors. It was at the beginning of his career as a sailor that he visited Greece, the shores of Africa, England, and that his inclination for adventures made him undertake a trip to Iceland, surrounded by the icy waters of the Arctic seas Old sailors entertained him of the stories of ancient mariners who had been carried by south-eastern winds and had seen immense stretches of rich lands, which they had named country of the vine, and which according to their narration were inhabitated

Those stories preoccupied his mind; they spurred his desires and aspirations, and he doubted sometimes whether they would be ever satisfied or realized. In his dreams he thought he saw an enchanted nymph, clad in brilliant garments, holding in her hand exotical flowers, and crowned with flowers no less beautiful and rare. He would bow to the charming apparition, who would tell him in soft musical tones: "Leave, and go far! Very far! beyond the seas! discover a New World!

When thou hast reached that strange land, preach the religion of Peace and not that of War!"

When he would awaken from those dreams, he would study with increased ardor the maps of the lands and the charts of the seas. He would refuse to take part in the amusements of his companions, in order to devote all his time to his studies.

In those days men in general believed that the earth was a flat disc. Few among the learned men believed in the Pythagorean doctrines, which had been enunciated before Jesus Christ. No more credence was given to Ptolemy who declared in Alexandria, one hundred and forty years after Christ, that the earth had the form of a ball.

Columbus who was studying incessantly this important question, finally mastered the trustworthiness of those assertions. He had by that time acquired a thorough knowledge of navigation, and moreover he was full of life and valor, and his anxiety to travel west was on the increase.

He believed that by following a westernward course he would reach India directly; but divers voyages undertaken in the western zones without any tangible success had finally dampened his ardor, inasmuch as he was short of resources for such costly undertakings.

After marrying in one of the most illustrious Italian families, he settled in the Portuguese island of Porto Santo. One day he accidentally discovered a few maps which had been left by his great grandfather. The study of those maps confirmed him in the correctness of his ideas while it endowed the stories he had heard about Iceland and the fabulous country of the vine, a certain degree of truthfulnes.

From that instant Columbus was persuaded of the possibility of finding his way to a new continent. The dreams of his youth, the desires and the ardor of the past were again awakened in the full grown man, and he could not remain any longer in the island of Porto Santo.

Accompanied by his wife and his son, he left for Lisbon, in order to ask from the King of Portugal the necessary means to carry out his gigantic undertaking. The King was loth to believe in his plans, and played false with the man's noble aspirations.

Upon the death of his wife, which occurred during his sojourn in Lisbon, Columbus undertook on foot the voyage to Spain. Here Providence, who had marked him for a glorious destiny, was manifestly instrumental in changing the course of the eventful life of the great discoverer.

After a day of fatiguing march on the highways, father and son came by a monastery. The son, feeble and footsore, asked his father with great persistency to knock at the door and beg for a night's hospitality from the monks. His son's condition, who was almost dying with the fatigue of the long march, had the better of his pride, and Columbus knocked at the door of the monastery.

The monks gave a friendly greeting to the man pale with hunger and fatigue and to the delicate and worn-out son. When both had been revived with food and rest, the Father Superior questioned them upon the object of their voyage. Columbus told his story, and was listened to attentively by the Superior, who was struck by his language and the magnitude of his ideas. Thereupon he called in his two friends, one, Hernandez, a learned doctor in medicine, and the other, Valazco, an intrepid and wise sailor. It was thus, in a small room of the monastery of La Rabida, that Columbus explained his plans to those learned men.

When he got through with his demonstration, Superior Pérez exclaimed with enthusiasm: "Your project will be realized, and Spain will share with you the honor and glory of this great enterprise!"

It was then decided that Columbus should go to the Court of King Ferdinand, with a letter of recommendation to the father-confessor of the Queen. At that epoch the King with his spouse, Dona Isabella, was in the camp before the city of Granada, where the Moors were intrenched in this their last foothold in Spain after an occupation of seven hundred years. The father-confessor, who was a friend of Superior Pérez, listened with interest to Columbus' plans; however, he could do no better than to advise him to be patient. Once the war ended, there would be some favorable chances to win the sovereigns to his project. Once more, the poor and weak had to wait for the rich and powerful.

Weak and discouraged he visited several states, and finally he had made up his mind to leave for France, where he had had promises of ships, when Superior Pérez decided to make a last effort. He saddled his mule and went to the camp in order to speak in person to the Queen, who was at last persuaded.

Columbus was called to the court, at the very time, thanks to good fortune, the war was ending. Boabdil, the last King of the Moors had to leave the beautiful castle of Alhambra, and with broken heart had to surrender to the victors the keys of Granada.

The Sovereigns where now in a position to grant Columbus the necessary means for the enterprise. This had for consequence to give him renewed energy, and the audacious mariner seeked an audience from the King and Queen. He unfolded his plans with great enthusiasm. The Queen was under the impression that Columbus intended to preach the christian faith; but the King, who was of a suspicious character, refused to accept the propositions of Columbus. "You want to be Admiral and Vice-Roy of the countries you discover," said the King angrily, "to this, assuredly, I shall never consent."

However, Columbus was inflexible in his just demands, and again left court with the intention of going to France. But the Queen who had finally succeeded to overcome the objections of her spouse prevented Columbus' departure. And at last the sun of good fortune shone radiantly upon the man who had passed through the bitter experience of a life of incessant disappointments.

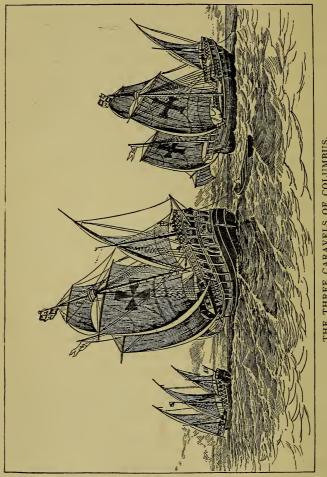

Ferdinand acceeded to all the demands of Columbus, and the Queen assuaged his paternal anxiety regarding his son, which he had to leave in Spain, by assuring him that she would create him a page in the suite of her own son. "I shall do all in my power to help you in this great undertaking," said the Queen, "and I will sell my jewels in order to equip the ships you need!"

It was on the 3d of August, 1492, that this extraordinary man sailed from the port of Palos with his small crafts, and directed the little squadron towards unknown lands. Columbus had waited eighteen years for this propitious event, sorrow and misery had already whitened his hair, but his energy and faith were still unshaken, while his heart was full of hope.

He sailed upon the caravel Santa Maria, while the Niña and Pinta were respectively commanded by the brothers Pinzon. When they had lost sight of the Canary islands, surrounded by the immensity of the Atlantic ocean, the enthusiasm of the sailors was somewhat dampened. A whole month had already passed, and the caravels were still in the midst of the ocean without the least sign of land. It was at that period of the voyage that his companions began to murmur, and wanted Columbus to return to Spain.

It was with humility that the Admiral prayed his rebellious companions to have patience, and exhorted them to perseverance. "Follow me a little while longer," said Columbus, "and we shall reach the end of our jour-"ney. Remember that plants from an unknown clime "as well as corpses of a strange race have been carried by the waves upon the shores of the Canary islands; "consequently, there must exist in the West, which

THE THREE CARAVELS OF COLUMBUS.

"is the course we follow, a land yet unknown to us. "Learned men, among them Martino de Behain, of Nur"emberg, and the Italian Toscanelli, are of opinion that
"in following a western course, unknown lands must be "discovered."

"Very well," answered the sailors, "we shall follow "thee for a few days longer; but if after that respite the desired land is not reached, we shall exact from thee to "return to Spain."

A few days passed away, and notwithstanding that Columbus was fully convinced the little squadron was nearing land, no sign of it was yet perceptible, and despair was hourly on the increase among the crews.

However, Columbus remained undaunted and firm as the rock before his mutinous companions.

The evening of the 11th of October was already clad in darkness, and the Admiral, who had consulted his maps all day, was then pacing the deck in a pensive mood and scrutinizing the horizon with anxiety. While thus engaged he saw a light which appeared and disappeared at intervals. Columbus communicated his discovery to two of his sailors, who also perceived the light, but did not attach any great importance to the fact.

This luminous apparition, however, filled the Admiral with new hopes; again concentrating his sight in the direction where the light had shone, his heart palpitated with stronger energy. He thought the morrow might reveal the land so much desired. Wakeful nights had exhausted his strength, and towards morning he succumbed to sleep. It was then that the goddess of his youth again appeared to him in his slumber. The beautiful fairy, crowned with exotic flowers as of yore, bent towards him, and while touching his forehead, exclaimed: "Thy golden and ideal dream, which thou hast pursued "over the deep sea is at last realized. Thou art near the "New World!"

At that very instant, the first rays of the rising sun were reflected upon the water, and the cry of "Land! Land!" was heard. The happy tiding came from the Pintu, from whose deck the sailor Rodrigo de Triana had first seen the land.

As if blinded by lightening, Columbus awoke from his sleep. There could not be any illusion about the discovery, for before him could be seen a beautiful green isle. The naked eye could already distinguish clusters of trees as well as human beings of a dark color. Later on, birds with brilliant plumage were flying and singing over the decks of the caravels, as if to bid "Welcome" to the visitors of the New World. Columbus fell upon his knees to thank the Almighty, while his sailors pressed around him to beg his pardon for their incredulity.

A short time afterwards, Columbus ordered the anchors to be thrown and the boats lowered. Dressed in his costume of Admiral, he stepped on the first boat, and in a few minutes he landed with his men upon the shore, which presented an admirable spectable on account of the beautiful plants which covered it in abundance.

When he landed, Columbus planted the Spanish flag, thus taking possession of the newly discovered landwhich he named San Salvador, and later on Guanahani — in the names of his sovereigns.

His companions, who had immediately followed him on shore, kissed the earth and cried with joy. They erected a cross as a sign that the christian faith was to be preached to the human beings who inhabitated this strange land. The Indians, who were of a copper color, with a mild physionomy and beautiful eyes, at first were timid and kept at a distance, while admiring apparently the white men, whom they saw for the first time. Gradually they lost their shyness and came nearer the Spaniards. Columbus received them with great amiableness, and ordered his companions to treat them with equal consideration.

In this manner, pleasant relations were established between the Indians and the Spaniards, and the sojourn of the worn-out sailors in the enchanted island was thus made agreeable while resting from the fatigue of a long sea voyage.

However, with Columbus' insatiable activity, their rest was of short duration. Shortly after this first landing, they set sail again on their mission of discovery. At the expiration of two months they had landed in several islands, and visited various savage tribes. Columbus was yet of the opinion that those islands formed part of the group of India. Having discovered them while sailing West, he called them the West Indies, a designation which they have borne to these days.

At Christmas of the year 1492, the expedition met with a great misfortune. At sundown, after having given the pilot his instructions and recommended him great carefulness, Columbus went to his cabin to take a much needed rest. The pilot disobeyed the precise orders of the Admiral, and the consequence was the loss of the caravel Santa Maria, who struck the rocks near the island of Cuba. In this circumstance, the presence of mind and the coolness of Columbus were remarkable; it was due to him that the lives of the whole crew were saved, but the caravel was a total wreck.

It was after this accident that Columbus, with a few of his companions—the majority remaining in the New World—sailed back to Spain in the Niña.

The return trip was full of hardships; heavy weather prevailed most of the time. Notwithstanding, they finally arrived safely in Spain, and on the 4th of March landed at the port of Palos, which had seen, seven months previously, the departure of the expedition amidst the mockeries of many.

The contrast between the reception and departure could not have been greater; for the ovation granted Columbus could not have been more enthusiastic. The Indians which the Admiral had taken along with him on his return trip to Europe had the effect of creating considerable curiosity. Their copper color, and their queerly painted face, the earrings which ornamented their nose and ears had the effect of astonishing the spectators. Following the Indians were men carrying birds of variegated plumage; these in turn were followed by sailors leading animals which had never been seen before in Europe, while others disembarked with rare plants from the New World. This part of the procession was closed by other sailors carrying large vases with rings of gold, which had been secured from the Indians in exchange for some trinkets. The profusion of the objects thus landed, gave an adequate idea of the richness of the foreign land just discovered.

Then came Christopher Columbus seated upon a magnificent steed. His stately and imposing bearing; the softness of his great blue eyes, into which determination was plainly readable, made of the famous discoverer a picture of intrepidity allied to greatness. Like a victorious king, he was worthy of being seen; and like a victorious king he was acclaimed.

Ferdinand and Isabella had a platform erected in one of the squares of Barcelona. It was there, seated upon a throne richly ornamented, that they awaited the arrival of the courageous sailor.

On his coming before the throne, the monarchs rose and came forward to meet him. Columbus made a movement as if to kneel, but he was prevented from doing so, and the sovereigns invited him to a seat at their side. This was a most extraordinary distinction, unknown to the etiquette of the Spanish court.

Columbus began by recounting the various incidents of his voyage. He was listened to with great interest by all, as he enumerated the great advantages the King and Spain would derive from the immense natural resources of the countries he had discovered.

All knelt, and with tears of joy, began to sing a hymn of thanks to the Almighty, who had chosen Columbus as the worthy instrument for the accomplishment of so great deeds.

Thereafter, King Ferdinand reaffirmed Columbus' privileges to the twelfth portion of all royal rights; he also conferred upon him and his descendants the perpetual title of Admiral for West Indies; he granted him an escutcheon bearing the royal arms of Castille and Leon with this inscription: "For Castille and Leon, Columbus discovered a New World!"

While the honors thus bestowed on Columbus were of a nature to gratify the pride of the mariner, he experienced great satisfaction on the other hand in finding that his son Diego had made marked progress both physically and mentally, and promised to be an object of just pride to his family.

In the meantime, the good fortune of Columbus began to excite envy among the courtiers, they were intriguing to deprive him of his laurels.

At a grand feast, given by the High Cardinal of Spain in honor of Colombus, some of the courtiers—secretly at first, but openly later on—began to make sport of the distinctions and honors showered upon the Admiral. "What has he accomplished that is so very marvelous?" said one of them, "if the King had given me the necessary ships with the same equipment, I could have discovered the New World easy enough!"

"Same with me! Same with me!" exclaimed the other envious courtiers.

Columbus remained quiet under these jealous taunts, and gave the order to a domestic to bring him an egg.

When the domestic had brought him the desired article, he said with great coolness: "Who, among of you, "gentlemen, can make this egg stand upon one of its "ends?" The courtiers, one after the other, tried the experiment unsuccessfully. Then Columbus took the egg, and by a gentle knock depressed one of its extremeties so as to make it stand upright, and in this manner solved the problem apparently so difficult.

Undaunted; the courtiers exclaimed: "But this we "also can do!"

"Undoubtedly, gentlemen!" answered Columbus, "but not before I showed you how to go to work at it. "The same thing with the discovery of the New World; "you know now how to proceed since I have shown you "how it was done!"

Columbus' second expedition.

On the 25th of September, 1493, Columbus set sails on his second expedition to what is now known as the West Indies. Howsoever brilliant and enthusiastic the reception that greeted Columbus at Barcelona on his return in the sunny resplendence of the spring of the year, the occasion of his second departure was made no less brilliant and enthusiastic, although it took place under an autumnal sun.

On this occasion the vessels did not leave from the little port of Palos, but from the grand bay of Cadiz. The expedition, as formerly, was not restricted to but three caravels; on the contrary, the Vice-Roy was at the head of a majestic fleet, fully equipped in order to strenghten the colonies already established and enable its commander to proceed to new discoveries.

The approaches to the port were crowded by the multitude that had come from all quarters. The spectacle presented by the variety of costumes of this great affluence was not less remarkable than the diversity of the contingent that forced its way through it to reach the vessels upon which they were assigned. Here could be seen a scion of a noble family, dressed in his most brilliant costume, winding his way through the great and cheering crowd, while a little further back, priests and monks, with ascetic faces and austere mien, wrapped in the sombre vestments of their orders, were no less anxious to reach the deck of their respective ships.

Then last, came Columbus. All eyes were set upon this hero of great physical stature, who, accompanied by his son Diego, trended his way to the shore amidst the acclamations of the multitude.

At last father and son parted; the latter to resume his functions at the court, the former to give the signal of departure for new perils and privations, more discoveries and glory.

In the course of this expedition, and of several others undertaken by Columbus, he discovered many more islands and founded numerous colonies. At last, entering the mouth of the Orinoco, he discovered the mainland of the new continent. The glory of this discovery is due to him; but he was shorn of the so well-earned honor of giving his name to the New World. This honor was bestowed upon an Italian named Americo Vespucci, who had explored the regions of Brazil.

The last years of Columbus were years of bitter suffering and great affliction. Death was already claiming this noble heart, who was bleeding at the spoliations to which the peaceable indigenous inhabitants of America were the victims on the part of the Spaniards. In their anxiety to accumulate gold, the Spaniards were forgetting they were dealing with human beings like themselves; consequently, the poor Indians were treated with the utmost cruelty when they manifested the least reluctance in parting with their riches. Even the priests, who had been specially sent to the West Indies to evangelize the aborigenes, behaved in the most rapacious manner. Far from preaching the religion of peace and good-will, they would resort to extreme measures of physical coercion to force the natives to receive the baptismal rites. Discontentment was on the increase. Repeated uprisings were the natural consequences of proceedings so unfair and inhuman.

Columbus suffered greatly because of so shameful conduct on the part of his companions. The very nobleness of his heart made him the natural protector of the persecuted. He punished the offenders severely, and without distinction. Birth or position could not shield the culprit or prevent Columbus from exercising impartially the attributes of justice. This had for effect to exasperate the rapacious nobles and the cruel priests. They conspired together and resolved the ruin of Columbus by all possible means. It was with this object in view that they secretly dispatched a vessel to Spain, with an emissary on board who had the mission of proffering before the King charges against Columbus.

Ferdinand, who had only as a last resort granted Columbus a twelfth of the royal rights upon the new domains, was rather well disposed to lend credence to the infamous charges made against his Vice-Roy.

He ordered a hidalgo by the name of Bobadilla—a man known for his unscrupulousness—to sail for the West Indies, with the special mission of bringing Columbus back to Europe. This miserable instrument of a cowardly conspiracy accepted the mission with alacrity and discharged it with infamy.

Once in West Indies, he ordered the great navigator to be placed in irons, and had him conveyed to the ship like a common malefactor.

What a fall for a man who so recently had had the greatest honors bestowed upon him; what humiliation for so illustrious a personage to be treated so contemptuously at a sudden. The thought that he was innocent and the victim of envy, and the consciousness of having discharged his duties with impartiality, sustained him in this great affliction.

The conduct of captain Andres Martin, to whom had been entrusted the command of the ship that brought Columbus back to Europe, was of great contrast with that of the miserable Bobadilla. The moment he raised anchor in the port of Santo Domingo, he approached the noble prisoner with great respect, and asked him to give him his hands in order to free him from the chains that were cutting his flesh.

"I thank you for your offer," answered Columbus, "the King has sent me word in writing to submit to all "the orders of Bobadilla; I will carry these chains until "Ferdinand relieves me of them, and even until death "if I should be called away sooner. They will bear testimony of Spain's ingratitude, and of the manner she "rewards the services of a man she recently raised so "proeminently."

When the vessel reached the port of Cadiz, Columbus was conveyed to the shore like a common criminal. The indignation of the people, who held Columbus in great esteem, knew no bounds. Every Spaniard, imbued with a sentiment of justice, felt for the noble man's ill-treatment, and murmurs of anger could be heard against the Regent who had allowed the consummation of so shameful an action.

Universal discontent and the influence of the Queen, who had never ceased to be friend the illustrious Admiral, finally convinced Ferdinand that he had been guilty of a great injustice. A letter of Columbus written to their Majesties, and in which he passed in review the accusations made against him, and where he exposed the malice and hatred of Bobadilla, dispelled all the doubts the Queen might have still entertained, and decided Ferdinand to immediately summon Columbus to Granada.

On his arrival, the Queen, with tears in her eyes, gave him her hand to kiss. For the first time the great Admiral, worned and demoralized, lost his nerve and presence of mind. He fell, crying, at the feet of Queen Isabella, and allowed her to take off his chains.

THE COLUMBUS TABLET IN THE CATHEDRAL OF HAVANA.

At all hazards it seemed as if Columbus was on the way to be reinstated in the King's favor; however, the appearances proved false, for his star was on the decline, and doomed to disappear altogether in a very short time.

King Ferdinand was unrelenting in his annoyances of every description, and at the death of the noble and generous Isabella the Catholic, the discoverer of a continent, the man who had been the instrument of refilling the coffers of the crown and create a hallow of glory around the Spanish name, was shorn of all his rights and despoiled of most all his property.

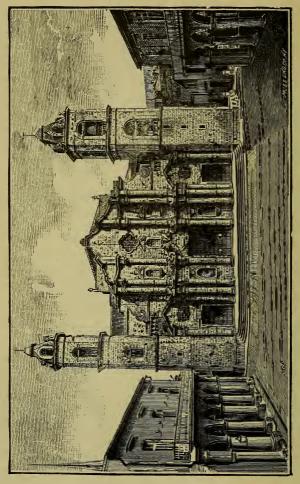

Ingratitude, bitter sufferings and abject privations were his lot. On the 21st of May, 1508, at the age of 70 years, he died of a broken heart, while uttering these last words:

"Father, I place my soul in thy hands!"

There is something strange in the fact that the remains of a man whose career had been so agitated, and who had known no repose in his life of adventurous travels, found a last resting place only many years after his death.

At first his body was buried in Valladolid, the city where he died. Thence in Seville, from which place, in 1536, it was transferred to Santo Domingo. When this island passed into the hands of France, his ashes were transferred to Havana, in the island of Cuba, where they are now interred, side by side, with those of his son Diego, to whom, as a tardy reparation for the injury done his father, was granted a dukedom with vast estates.

Fernando, second son of Columbus by his marriage to a Spanish lady, is buried in the cathedral of Seville.

The chains with which Columbus was shackled were, according to his desires, buried with him.

Tourists who visit Cuba will see, at the peristyle of the cathedral of Havana, the new monument which has been erected to Columbus on the occasion of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, and where his ashes are definitively laid.

Four hundred years have passed since Columbus discovered the American continent. Monuments in his honor have been erected in all parts of the world, and the people of the United States, the foremost nation of the New World, have held the grandest exposition yet known in commemoration of the grandest discovery yet made. These marks of honor, this era of general thankfulness towards a man like Columbus, whose chief characteristics were exalted perseverance and brilliant daring, toned down by nobleness of heart, are the natural tribute the whole human race owe this really great man.

MORRO CASTLE, HAVANA, CUBA. - ENTRANCE TO THE BAY.

CUBA.

THE finest and largest of the West India islands, was discovered by Columbus, on the 28th day of October, 1492, and was named by him Juana, in honor of Prince John, the son of Ferdinand and Isabella, the sovereigns of Aragon and Castille. Upon the death of Ferdinand, the island was called Fernandina, receiving afterwards the name of Santiago, as a mark of reverence for the patron saint of Spain; and still later, the inhabitants — to illustrate their piety — gave it that of Ave Maria, in honor of the Holy Virgin. Cuba extends from Cape Maizi, on the East, to Cape St. Antonio, on the West, in a curved line of 790 miles. It lies between 19° and 23° north latitude, and 74° and 85° west longitude. It is 117 miles wide in the broadest part, from Cape Maternillos on the north, to the western point of Mota Cove, on the south, 21 miles east of Cape Cruz.

The narrowest part of the island is 22 miles, from the mouth of Bahia del Mariel on the north to the Cove Mavana on the south. From Havana to Batabano, it is 28 miles; near the centre of the island, the breadth, north and south, is about 75 miles. The periphery of the island, following a line less tortuous, and cutting the bays, ports and coves at their mouth, is 1,719 miles, of which 816 are on the north and 903 on the south. Its area is about 55,000 square miles; and taking into the estimate the adjacent islands or keys which belong to it, it is 64,000 square miles. The form of the island is exceedingly irregular, resembling that of a long, narrow crescent, the convex portion of which looks toward the Arctic pole. Her situation in regard to said pole is nearly from east by south to west by northwest. It is the most westerly of the West India Islands, and her western part is advantageously situated at the mouth of the Gulf of Mexico, leaving two spacious entrances; the one of the northwest, 124 miles wide, between Point Hicacos, the most northerly of the island, and Point Tancha, or Cape Sable, the most southerly of East Florida. The other entrance into the Gulf to the southwest, is 97 miles in its narrowest part, between Cape St. Antonio de Cuba and Cape Catoche, the most salient extremity of the Peninsula of Yucatan; from Cape Mola, or St. Nicholas, in the Island of St. Domingo, the eastern extremity of Cuba, or Maizi Point, is separated by a channel 42 miles wide. From Maizi to Great Enagua, the nearest of the Lucayas, or Bahama Islands, the distance northeast is 45 miles. From Point Lucrecia, in Cuba, the most easterly point of the great banks of Bahama, is the old Bahama channel, called St. Domingo's Key, 34 miles. From Punta del Inglés, on the south of Cuba, to the nearest point of the northern coast of Jamaica, the distance is 75 miles.

Cuba contains the following ports, on the north, viz.: Guadiana, Bahia Honda, Cabañas, Mariel, Habana, Cogimar, Bacurana, Júcaro, Matanzas, Cárdenas, Sagua la Grande, San Juan de los Remedios, Guanaja, Nuevitas,* Nuevas Grandes, Manatí, Puerto del Padre, Puerto del Mangle, Jibara, Jururu, Bariai, Vita, Naranjo, Salma Banes, Nipe, Lebisa, Cabonico, Tanamo, Cebollas, Zaguaneque, Zaragua, Taco, Cuyaguaneque, Navas, Maravi, Baracoat and Mata. On the south: Batiqueri, Cienfuegos, Puerto Escondido, Guantánamo, Santiago de Cuba, Mota, Manzanillo, Santa Cruz, Vertientes, Masio, Casilda, Sagua, Ensenada de Cortés and Ensenada de Cochinos.

CLIMATE.

The climate of the Island is of the pleasantest, both in the spring and winter; in the latter season prevails what is called la seca, or dry weather. The rainy season begins in May and continues until November. The annexed tables, based upon the Fahrenheit thermometer, illustrate the almost even temperature of Cuba:

SOIL.

The soil of the island may be said to rest almost generally on a great mass of calcareous rock of a porous and diversified character (Seborucos or Mucara). Near the middle of the northern coast, a slaty formation is to be found, on which the calcareous rock seems to rest.

POPULATION AND FERTILITY OF THE SOIL.

According to the last official census, the population of Cuba is 1,521,684—the census of 1866 gave 1,359,238, which shows an increase during a period of 26 years of 162,446 inhabitants. The Island of Cuba is about six times larger than Jamaica Island, of which the English are so proud. Only one-sixth of the Island of Cuba is under cultivation, and there is now in full operation—

1,200 sugar plantations,

5,000 tobacco

160 coffee '

25 cocoa "

5,000 breeding farms,

17,000 small farms,

95,000 stores, workshops, factories and warehouses.

As to the fertility of the soil in Cuba, little can be said which may be new—it being so well known that it is almost proverbial. An area of 65,000 square miles, equivalent to nearly 34,560,000 acres, the greater part of which is of the first quality for cultivation, and a great portion of which still remains uncultivated, are circumstances which offer an industrious emigrant a vast field to exert his efforts in, with the prospect of a very brilliant reward.

Immense forests of precious woods are to be found in the Island, whose products enter into the finest art gems of the cabinet-makers of New York, Paris and London.

The principal products are sugar, tobacco, coffee, cocoa, corn, rice, yuca, yame, sweet potatoes, potatoes, vanilla, etc. Exquisite fruits, as the pine-apple, oranges, sapodillo, anon, cocoanut, caimitos, berries, guanábana (the strawberry of the Antilles), mamey, guava, bananas, marañón, etc.

The situation of Cuba, commanding the entrance of the Gulf of Mexico and the communication between North and South America, gives it a high commercial and political importance. Indeed, such designations as "The Queen of the Antilles," "The Key of the Gulf," "The Sentinel of the Mississippi," "The Beautiful Antille," "The Gem of the American Seas," indiscriminately bestowed upon this enchanting island, are sufficiently significant of its advantageous commercial position and its remarkable natural beauty and fertility.

GOVERNMENT.

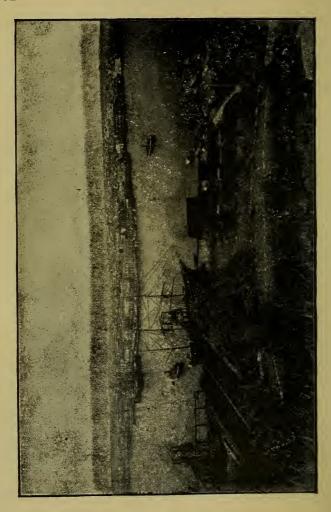

Politically, the island is composed of a single Province under the control of a Superior Governor, who is at the same time Captain-General. It is subdivided into four political governments (gobiernos politicos) or Lieutenancies, which are further divided into Gobiernos and Captaincies. There are thirty-one political districts, each of which has an Ayuntamiento or Town Council at the head of affairs. The military divisions likewise include the whole island, and constitutes a Captaincy-General. It is divided into two departments, with Havana for its capital in the west, and Santiago in the east; the former under the Command of the Captain-General, the latter under the Governor of Cuba. Each department consists of military districts (gobiernos) and districts of arms.

RELIGION.

The Roman Catholic is the religion of the country, and the ecclesiastical government consists of the Archbishopric of Cuba and the Bishopric of Havana—the two dioceses being separated as above. Other rites are also tolerated.

The house situated in Dragones and Zulueta Streets, fronting the Irijoa Theatre, has been recently purchased for a place of worship by the Baptists of Havana. Americans and all foreigners are cordially invited to attend the religious services which are held on Sundays, in English, at 11.30 A. M., and in Spanish at 7.30 P. M.

MARITIME DEPARTMENT.

The maritime division comprises five Provinces: Havana, Trinidad, San Juan de los Remedios, Nuevitas and Cuba; the whole under a General Commander. The public domain and public works are controlled by a General Superintendent. As Cuba is the most important of the Spanish colonies, its Captain-General can not be of a lower rank than a lieutenant-general in the army, and the post is one of great power.

A TRIP TO HAVANA.

Tourists desiring to escape the rigors of a northern winter, pleasure-seekers who wish to enjoy a mild and delicious climate, will surely be satisfied by going to Cuba. Every year the number of tourists increases from all parts of the United States, and if you meet in your travels southward some one coming from the Queen of the Antilles—which lies in the South Sea 80 miles from the United States (Key West)—you will surely feel anxious to enjoy the charms of its climate.

By enumerating the principal points of interest in the island, the compiler will have accomplished his duty. While leaving to every one its own appreciation of that delightful country, whose scenery is so rich and varied, allow me to indicate the different ways to reach Havana from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, New Orleans and Chicago, by the different lines of steamers and railroads.

FROM NEW YORK.

The palatial steamers of the Ward's Line, 113 Wall Street, New York, leave on Wednesdays for Havana, and every Saturday for Havana and Vera Cruz, at 3 P. M.; for Cienfuegos, calling at Nassau, twice a month, from Piers 16 and 17, East River. The distance by sea from New York to Havana is 1,200 miles, and the trip is generally made by these steamers in $4\frac{1}{2}$ days.

The Spanish steamers of the "Spanish Transatlantic Line," J. M. Ceballos & Co., Agents, No. 80 Wall Street, leave every ten days for Havana, from Pier 21, North River. These steamers have first-class passenger accommodations, European table-wine included.

The Mallory Line, Pier 20, East River, New York, in addition to the service between New York to Fernaudina, makes semi-weekly trips to Galveston, Texas; steamers leaving on Saturday stop at Key West, Florida; the time between New York and Key West is but 3½ days, and connection is made there for Tampa and all parts of South Florida, as well as for Havana, Cuba. This is a most convenient and cheap route to southern Florida, or to the West Indies; these beautiful steamers are of great speed, and have first-class accommodations for passengers.

The Clyde's New York, Charleston and Florida Steamship Line; the elegant steamers of this line are advertised to sail from Pier 29, East River, New York, every Tuesday and Friday at 3 P. M. Tuesday's ships stops at Fernandina, and Friday's ships at Jacksonville. Passengers' accommodations by this line are unsurpassed. Theo. G. Eger, Traffic Manager, 35 Broadway, New York.

The Ocean Steamship Company, Pier 35, North River, New York. The palace steamers of this line connect with the Savannah, Florida and Western Railway (Way Cross Short Line), and offer to tourists attractions surpassed by no other line.

FROM BOSTON.

Via New York by the New York, New Haven and Harlem Railroad to New York, and from New York by the Pennsylvania Railroad to Port Tampa (via Atlantic Coast Line). Also by the beautiful palace steamers of the Fall River Line which leave daily.

FROM PHILADELPHIA.

By the Pennsylvania Railroad to Port Tampa (via Atlantic Coast Line).

FROM WASHINGTON.

Pennsylvania Railroad and Atlantic Coast Line to Port Tampa.

FROM NEW ORLEANS.

Morgan Mail Steamship Line steamers leave New Orleans every Thursday to Havana direct. And also by the Southern Pacific Railroad ("Sun Set" route) to Jacksonville, Sanford and Port Tampa, connecting with the Plant Steamship Line.

FROM CHICAGO.

By the Pennsylvania Railroad to Savannah via Atlantic Coast Line, thence to Jacksonville by the Savannah, Florida and Western Railroad, thence to Sanford by the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railway; from Sanford to Port Tampa by the South Florida Railroad, and thence to Havana by the beautiful steamships Olivette and Mascotte, of the Plant Steamship Line.

As the steamers of the Plant Line stop at Key West, the most important city of Florida, a description of this city will be interesting to Americans.

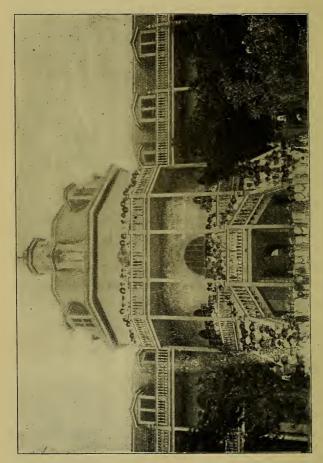

KEY WEST.

Key West is an island with 20,000 inhabitants, and celebrated for its manufactures of cigars made with Havana tobacco; next to Jacksonville she is the largest city in Florida. It is situated upon the island of the same name, off the southern extremity of the peninsula, and lying in the important part of the key facing the Gulf of Mexico. The island is about 6 miles long by 3 miles wide, and is 11 feet above the sea level. The temperature in the winter is delightful, the air is pure, and the climate healthy; the thermometer at mean temperature in the winter is about 70° and in the summer seldom rises above 90°. The public buildings are: the Custom-House, Naval Stores, Marine Hospital, County Court-House, County Jail, a Masonic Hall and an Opera House. A monument of dark-gray granite, erected in 1866 to the memory of the sailors and soldiers who died in service at this station during the civil war, is near the Naval Stores. The city contains Episcopal, Baptist, Methodist and Roman Catholic churches. Outside the manufacturing of cigars, the principal industries of Key West are turtling, diving for sponges and fishing for the Cuban Market. The drives are charming, and the fishing and boating unsurpassed.

Seven miles of railroad are now run daily by 14 cars. Key West claims the greatest permanent population of any city in Florida, and is the richest city of its size in this country. It is in importance the ninth port of entry in the United States, and the third naval strategic point. The city alone pays more import duty and internal revenue tax than all the rest of the State of Florida, and the vast States of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi combined.

The island enjoys several modern improvements: it is lighted by gas; it counts one of the finest fire departments in the State, under the command of Mr. B. F. H. Bowers, consisting of four first-class latest improved fire engines, one large hook-and-ladder truck, and four first-class hose-carriages. Three handsome Methodist churches and a Cuban Mission chapel; Episcopal, Baptist, Presbyterian and Catholic churches, one colored Baptist, two public schools, and several private schools, all under excellent management with large attendance. Besides these there is the finest Catholic convent to be found in the State, with pupils from nearly every State and foreign countries.

This institution is under the direction of the Sisters of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Maria. The convent is advantageously situated on the south beach of the island. The various (14) students' rooms are perfectly ventilated and well provided with modern school furniture; they all connect together, and when the partitions are thrown open the sight of 400 female students is charming. The curriculum embraces a thorough English education, the Latin, French and Spanish languages, drawing, painting and needlework. A visit to this institution will well repay tourists on their way to Havana.

From Key West to Havana the distance is about 90 miles. The steamer leaves Key West in the evening and arrives at Havana early in the morning.

ENTRANCE TO THE BAY OF HAVANA.

When nearing Morro Castle, a pilot comes aboard the steamer, and soon after it is visited by two government boats, having on board the Custom-House and the Board of Health officials, who alone are authorized to give a landing permit. The general aspect of the bay is wonderful; at the left rises the fort of Morro Castle and the heights of La Cabaña surmounted with flags; at the right is Fort La Punta. The port is full of steamships of every nationality and of all tonnage. The bay is three miles in circumference, and is one of the finest in the world. Steamers anchor at their respective buoys. (No ship except Spanish vessels or steamers of the Spanish Transatlantic Line are allowed to dock.) Immediately upon their arrival they are surrounded by small boats with hotel agents, who clamor for the privilege of taking tourists ashore. The health authorities having accomplished their work, you have then the Custom-House officers to please. Agents, interpreters for the hotels, will take passengers and baggage in charge, have boats ready to land and have baggage registered at the Custom-House. Expenses of landing and going to the hotel, including boat, carriage and express are $1.50 gold and upward, according to the number of pieces of baggage; the best way is to put yourself in the hands of the interpreters or agents of the hotels, who are reported to be the most reliable in the world, according to the statement of experienced tourists. You may find it a good way in Havana to live on the European plan; that is, room in one place and take your meals at the restaurants, which are the best in the world. It is well to have an understanding beforehand in order to avoid recriminations.

HAVANA.

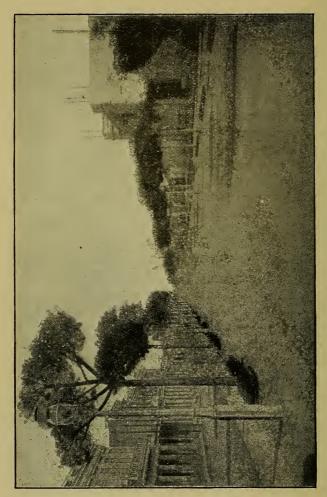

The city of Havana, advantageously situated, is built upon a tongue of land, the head of which is protected by the fort of Morro Castle and the heights of La Cabaña. The entrance to the port is protected: on one side by the fort of Santos Reyes del Morro, garrisoned by 800 soldiers, and an apparent battery, that of the Doce Apostoles, built at the level of the water, which gives shelter to the garrison; on the other side by fort La Punta. At the southeast of the Morro, rising above the city, is the fortress of San Carlos de la Cabaña, which can shelter 4,000 men. The batteries of La Cabaña and La Pastora are built at water level, as the Twelve Apostles, and armed with 245 guns. On the east, about one mile, is Fort No. 4, and on the southeast, about 4 miles, is the Tower of Cogimar. Both the fires of Morro and La Cabaña on the one side, and of the fort of Principe and Santo Domingo de Atarés on the other, are designed to put the city in ashes in a few hours, while the lower batteries of La Pastora and the Twelve Apostles command the sea. Besides these forts and batteries there are other important fortifications, among them the fort of San Nazario, the bulwark De la Plaza, the Santa Clara battery, the fort of La Chorrera and the Tower of Banes, representing in all about 650 guns. These fortifications have entailed the outlay of considerable sums of money.

The population of Havana is about 250,000 inhabitants; it is one of the finest and most important cities in the West India and South America, and is essentially cosmopolitan. Tourists will notice the carriages, entirely different from those seen in the United States; a few thousands of small victorias circulate in the streets of the ancient city for very low fares; some of them are very comfortable; the horses are about half the size of American horses, and according to an American writer: "Wonderful because they never fall down in the streets and never get tired." Driving through the city and passing the narrow streets of the old town, one will enjoy the sight of the stores with their employees, in shirt-sleeves behind the counters, smoking cigarettes in very good humor, and ready to show fine imported goods and curiosities. If you have never been in Spain, you may realize yourself to be there while in Havana, because Cuba represents Spain in many of its different characteristics. The picturesque aspect of the city, which is a vast museum of curiosities, excite your attention at every moment. The principal street for shopping is Calle del Obispo, or Bishop Street, where I recommend tourists to visit the stores La Habana, Las Ninfas, La Granada, first-class stores for dry goods and silks; La Especial and La Complaciente, fan stores; El Novator, tailors and fancy articles; Wilson's American book store; La Carolina, great depot for cigars and cigarettes. Oreilly Street, parallel with Obispo, is the street of the photographers the most fashionable gallery is that of S. A. Cohner. In Muralla or Ricla Street, parallel with Obispo Street, are the wholesale houses. By showing this Guide at any store or business house advertised in it, tourists will be attentively waited upon, and will obtain the lowest prices for their purchases.

EL PRADO.

With its walk of two miles in length, lined with Indian laurel trees and evergreen on each side, the Prado is enchanting at night.

INDIAN FOUNTAIN-PILA DE LA INDIA.

From the fountain of La India, as the illustration shows, to La Punta (entrance of the bay), the walk is very pleasant; going down the Prado is to be found, on the right side, the beautiful Hotel Pasaje, and the greatly renovated Payret Theatre; while on the left is the beautiful Tacon Theatre. In the centre of the Paseo is the celebrated Central Park, with the beautiful marble statue of Isabel Segunda, an artistic work of the great sculptor Vega. The military band plays almost every other evening in the Park. The general aspect at night is wonderful; the park, crowded with agreeable and pleasant people who enjoy themselves; the private carriages, here and there, with the charming señoritas, under the Indian laurel and palms, in their light and pretty dresses, surrounded by their friends, who deem it a duty to pay them compliments, chattering en plein air, is a tropical scene of the greatest interest. In the Park are the great Café Central, Café Tacon, the celebrated Helados de Paris, which attracts the leading society of Havana for their sorbets and famed ice-cream; and the Gran Hotel Telegrafo, the great favorite of the American tourists, the great Tacon Theatre, the popular circus of Pubillones, and the Albisn Theatre. The walk or drive on the Prado is always interesting. In the Prado, Nos. 67-69, is the hydrotherapic and bathing establishment of Dr. Belot, one of the most elegant of its kind in the world. Do not fail to visit Dr. Belot, who will take a special pleasure to show you his great establishment.

THE CASINO ESPAÑOL.

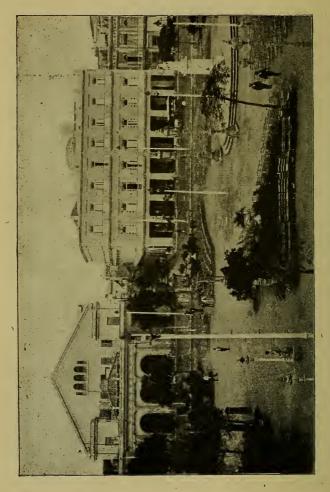

The Spanish Casino is one of the finest buildings and one of the principal attractions in Havana. This Club was founded in 1859; it averages 2,500 members. Almost every city in the Island has a club, corresponding with the main club of Havana. Tourists should not fail to visit the Casino, where they will always be welcomed. Its amiable and distinguished President, Mr. García Tuñón, and its members, take great pleasure to show tourists the interesting curiosities it contains. There is a fine collection of paintings, copies from celebrated Spanish artists, representing the history of the nation since the remotest epoch. Among the collection of oilpaintings, I call the attention of visitors to the beautiful group, full of expression and historical truth, representing Isabella the Catholic, when she gave the royal diamonds to help the expedition of Columbus. It is one of the greatest and most sublime episodes of the history of Spain. During the winter splendid balls are given there, as well as lyric and dramatic entertainments. The masquerade balls of the Casino during the carnival are justly noted to be the most gorgeous in the world. The Casino supports a free academy where the English and French languages, book-keeping, drawing, etc., are taught. The Casino Español, which was at first near the park, is now located in one of the finest buildings in Havana, on Zulueta Street. Tourists should not fail to visit the Casino, where they will be welcomed.

THEATRES.

GRAND TACON THEATRE,

The Grand Tacon Theatre was erected in 1837, in memory of Captain-General Don Miguel Tacon, who was then in command of the Island of Cuba. It was built by Mr. Francisco Marty, and Torrens estimated its cost at $400,000. It is situated in the better part of the city, between Prado and Consulado Streets, fronting on the celebrated Central Park. The Tacon Theatre occupies a superficial area of 6,176 square yards, it has three doors on the front, six on San Rafael Street, three on Consulado Street, and two on San José Street. At the other angle of the Theatre, formed by Prado and San Rafael Streets, is the Salon Brunet, the leading Café of Havana. The stage is 42.83 metres in length by 20.68 in width, and the entrance 17.63. The seating capacity is as follows: 56 boxes on first and second floors, 8 boxes on third floor, 4 grillés on first and second floors, 2 grillés on third floor, 112 butacas on third floor, 552 orchestra seats, 101 chairs in the tiers and front, 1,203 chairs front and back of tiers. Total number of seats, 2,287; therefore, 3,000 people can be seated very comfortably at the Tacon Theatre. The luminary consists of 1,034 gas jets; the decorations comprise 751 shifting scenes; the armory possesses 605 different sorts of arms; the wardrobe 13,787 costumes; the furniture and tools for the stage number 782; the archives contain about 1,200 partitions of opera, opera-bouffe, tragedies, dramas, comedies, etc., besides a large number of songs and piano and military band pieces. This Coliseum was inaugurated with the performance of the drama "Don Juan de Austria." Ten years ago $20,000 were expended in repairs; the busts of Tasso, Dante and Arioste were also added in the dome. The Tacon Theatre is a great public ornament, and indicates great love for the arts, and offers tourists to the capital of the Island of Cuba a matchless place of amusement.

PAYRET OPERA HOUSE.

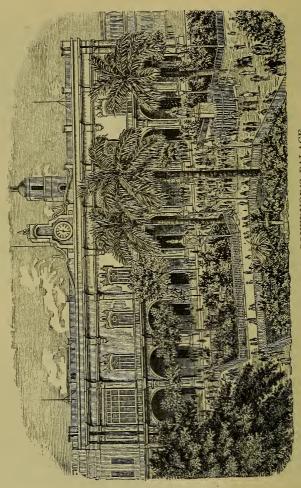

In Prado Street, fronting on Central Park, near the Grand Hotel Pasaje. It is a beautiful structure, fully equal to the Tacon Theatre as to architecture and seating capacity. The Payret was erected about fourteen years ago. In 1883 the theatre was partly destroyed by a terrible tornado, and was abandoned until 1890, when the edifice was entirely restored, and has again become the home of the great operatic school.

THE ALBISU THEATRE.

Is an elegant hall located in the building of the Centro Asturiano (Asturies Club), and has lately been restored; it is one of the prettiest theatres of its kind, where comedy, drama and opera are performed.

THE IRIJOA THEATRE.

Named in memory of the industrious and distinguished owner, Mr. Irijoa. It is a handsome, commodious and well ventilated theatre, lately built, and specially adapted for summer performances. Elegant balls are given there every season by the leading societies of Havana. A garden with fountains, in the main entrance, attracts the eye. Small tables are placed here and there to partake of refreshments, which gives it the appearance of the "Champs Elysées," or Paris cafés concerts. Mr. Irijoa has made his name very popular by the erection of his theatre.

PLAZA DE ARMAS.

Is situated at the lower extremity of Obispo Street. It is here that the winter residence of the Captain-General and the main official government buildings are. By consulting the illustration, the reader will notice a garden of tropical flowers, plants and palms. The statue in the centre, an artistic marble monument, is that of Ferdinand the Seventh. The illustration, el Templete, opposite the Captain-General's residence, represents a little chapel erected to the memory of Columbus. It was at this place that, in the year 1519, was celebrated the first mass in the Island, under a large ceiba, a beautiful tree known as the cotton-tree of the West Indies. Tourists will notice a bronze tablet at the frontispiece with the following inscription:

Reinando el Señor Don Fernando VII, siendo Presidente y Gobernador Don Francisco Dionisio Vives. La fidelísima Habana religiosa y pacífica erigió este sencillo monumento decorando el sitio donde el año 1519 se celebró la primera misa y cabildo; el Obispo Don Juan José Diaz de Espada solemnizó el mismo Augusto Sacrificio el día 9 de Marzo de 1598.

[Translation.]

"During the Reign of His Majesty Don Fernando VII, under the Presidency and Governorship of Don Francisco Dionisio Vives, the faithful, religious and pacific Havaneses erected this modest monument, consecrating the place where, in the year 1519, was celebrated the first mass and holy office by the bishop Don Juan José Diaz de Espada, solemnizing the Divine Sacrifice of the Mass on the 9th day of March, 1598."

THE LITTLE CHAPEL-EL TEMPLETE.

CARNIVAL.

During the Carnival, public masquerade balls are given every Sunday after the performances at the Tacon Theatre. Dancing commences at about 12 p. m., and continues until daylight. For that purpose the floor of the parquette is raised to a level with the boxes and the stage, converting it into a vast and commodious ballroom. The theatre is open to all, and access to the boxes and galleries is free to the public, who can thus enjoy the sight of the ball and listen at the same time to the peculiar Cuban dancing music. During the carnival the Paseos are very attractive. A drive to the Prado and Carlos Tercero, which are crowded with carriages and fantastic masqueraders is also very interesting.

BULL FIGHTS.

(La corrida de toros.)

This old Spanish entertainment and amusement has also its lovers in Havana, and offers every year an exceptional interest. The Captain-General being generally present at the corrida, it attracts the fashionable society of Cuba. Havana has been favored with the best matadores of Spain. Every season the best bulls are imported from Lerida at enormous prices. A few years ago Cuba was raging over the espada Luis Mazzantini. His engagement was made at a great expense—$30,000, and a benefit, for fourteen performances, all expenses paid to and from Madrid, as well as during his stay in Cuba for himself and company. The portrait and biography of Mazzantini may be interesting to Americans.

Luis Mazzantini was born in the Province of Guipuzcoa in Spain forty-two years ago. His father was an Italian, his mother a Spanish lady: he was educated at Rome, Italy, where he graduated and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Mazzantini was at one time the secretary of one of the confidential advisers of King Amadeus I., of Spain. Having learned telegraphy, he became an operator, was promoted chief of station, and for his efficiency was again promoted to a high position in the administration of a great railway company at Madrid, where he was protected by José Echegaray, the great Spanish writer and dramatist, who was at the time manager of the railway. Mazzantini said that he discovered there was but two ways by which a man might become eminent in Spain: either by singing or bull-fighting.

He failed as a singer and was left to do the other, or else remain a telegraph operator. His fondness for the amateur bull-ring was such as to take a great deal of his time from the office. This was noticed by the manager, who finally told him that he must choose between bull-fighting and railroading. "All right," said Mazzantini, "I'll give up the railroad." He left the office and went directly to the Plaza de Toros. He reported that he was ready to enter the arena as a professional; he was well and favorably known as an amateur, and his coming was hailed with delight; he was placed in the front rank as Primer Espada or Matador, and the next Sunday he appeared in the arena with the white satin costume of a débutant; though it rained he killed his three bulls like an old hand in the business, and became famous as the first bull-fighter in Spain.

The Plaza de Toros, where the sport takes place, is situated near the Paseo de Carlos III. From any part of the city a carriage will take you to the arena for 50 cents silver (same price for two). Tourists should arrive before the opening, in order to be present at the entry of the cuadrilla, when the President is saluted and gives the signal to commence the performance. It is a lively scene well worth seeing. Tickets can be had almost anywhere. Bull-fights take place every Sunday at 3 P. M.

are devoid of beauty, both externally and internally, as such edifices can be made.

The foundations of the Cathedral were laid in 1656, and the church finished in 1724. It is situated on Empedrado Street. The architecture is of the Latin Gothic style. The ceremonies on feast days are magnificent and solemn. High mass is celebrated every Sunday at 8 A. M. The ashes of Columbus lie in one of the vaults of the Cathedral. On the left side, in the rear, tourists will notice a slab, upon which is a bust in relief of Columbus, as the illustration shows (see page 20), with this inscription:

MAIN ALTAR IN THE MERCED CHURCH, HAVANA.

Oh! restos é imagen del grande Colon! Mil siglos durad guardados en la urna, Y en la remembranza de nuestra nacion.

[TRANSLATION.]

Oh! remains and image of the great Colon!
A thousand ages thou will be preserved in this urn,
And in the remembrance of our nation.

THE MERCED,

built in 1746, is on Cuba and Merced Streets. It is one of the wealthiest and most aristocratic churches of Havana. At its rear tourists will notice two chapels with fine and artistic cupolas. The oil paintings are very fine, one especially, "The Last Supper." The rear of the church has been remodeled during the last twenty years. High mass is celebrated on Sunday at 9 A. M.

SAN AGUSTIN,

corner of Cuba and Amargura Streets—built in 1608—formerly a monastery.

SANTA CLARA,

is a large nunnery, on Cuba Street, between Luz and Sol; it was founded in 1644, and is to-day the wealthiest nunnery in the city.

SANTA CATALINA,

on Oreilly Street, at the corner of Compostela Street, built in 1698, and dedicated in 1700. The bodies of the martyrs, Celestino and Lucida, were brought as relics from the City of Rome (Italy), and deposited here.

BELEN,

on Compostela Street, at the corner of Luz. This monastery was built in 1704 by Bishop Diego Evelino de Compostela, in his garden; he had in 1695 built a church called San Diego de Alcalá. These monks kept the only free-school up to the latter part of the last century. The school existed until 1854, when the whole building was given to the Jesuits for the establishment of the Royal College of Havana.

Tourists are welcomed visitors to the churches at any time.

FORTS.

MORRO CASTLE AND LA CABAÑA

can be visited every day. Tourists must first procure an application from the United States Consul to the Military Governor of the city, and they will receive in return a permit to visit the forts. Tourists will go down the wharf (muelle caballeria) and take a guadañero (boatman) and cross the bay; arriving at the fort the permit is presented to a soldier on guard, who gives the right to pass. The officers are very courteous. A soldier is detailed to accompany the tourists through the forts. At one end of Morro Castle, tourists will notice a wooden bridge uniting the two forts and built by the English during the occupation in the year 1762. They will also notice the light-house constructed when General O'Donnell was Commander of the Island, in the year 1844. The lighthouse is a revolving one, of the Fresnell model, with a minute flash-light that is seen at a distance of 25 miles.

MARKETS.

Are very attractive for the variety and abundance of fish, vegetables and tropical fruits; the best time to visit them is at early morning. The Tacon is the leading market, the largest and finest in Havana. It occupies an entire block, opened all around; it is surrounded by all kinds of stores with the greatest assortment of goods and novelties, where tourists can purchase, at a trifling cost, charming souvenirs. The Colon market, on Zulueta Street, has been recently completed, and the Cristina market, on the Plaza Vieja, is the oldest of Havana. Tourists should visit them in order to get acquainted with the richness of the products of the soil.

COCK-PITS.

Cock mains take place every Sunday afternoon. While bull fight lovers enjoy themselves at the Plaza de Toros, the excitement of cock-fights prevail at Manrique Street. The cock-pits of Cuba are the most famed in the world.

SUBURBS OF HAVANA.

A carriage drive to the Captain-General's summer residence, known as "Quinta de los Molinos," is very interesting. The route is picturesque, the garden profusely planted with various kinds of palms, fruit-trees of all kinds, flowers, and adorned with artificial waterfalls. From the garden-drive to the cemetery, upon the hill, the scenery of the northern coast of the Gulf of Mexico is one of the grandest sights. The portico of the cemetery, as the illustration shows, and the chapel within the gates, are two exquisite pieces of architecture. Returning, drive to the Vedado, where are willas and fine summer residences. Passing the Ancha del Norte, stop at the Campos Eliseos bathing-houses, which are worth seeing.

soirées, and lectures by celebrated speakers of the country.

The Marianao Railroad stops at the following stations: Tulipan, Cerro, Ceiba, Buenavista, Quemados, and Marianao. Marianao, about 15 miles from Havana, is a nice and pleasant town of 5,000 inhabitants. The railroad extends to the beach of Marianao, three miles from that place, where sea-bathing can be enjoyed. About three miles from the Marianao station lies one of the finest sugar plantations in Cuba—the Ingenio Toledo. A permit is required to visit the plantation; it can be obtained through a prominent person or a business house in Havana. Trains leave every hour from 6 A. M. Tourists will enjoy the trip very much and pass an agreeable morning. The round trip takes three hours.

Tourists will also enjoy a visit to Guanabacoa, one of the oldest cities in the Island, with a population of about 20,000 inhabitants. This city possesses excellent mineral waters, especially beneficial for disorders of the digestive organs. Trains leave every half hour, and run in connection with ferry-boats at the wharf Muelle de Luz.

EXCURSION TO THE CELEBRATED RESIDENCE "QUINTA DE PALATINOS," AT THE CERRO, HAVANA.

Tourists will enjoy a visit to this beautiful country residence, 12 miles from Havana. Trains leave the Bahia Railroad station, near the Mascotte Hotel, at 1 P. M. every day, returning to Havana at about 5.30 P. M. The name of this great property comes from the Count of

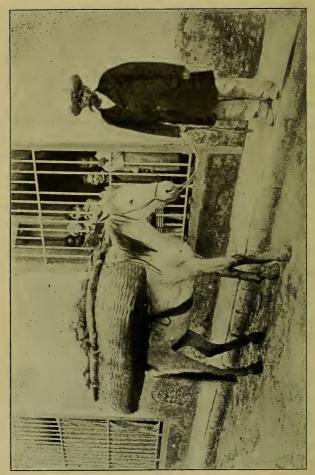

A COCOA-NUT TREE AT THE PALATINOS GARDENS.

Palatinos, who was formerly its owner. Mme. Rosa Abreu, Countess of Palatinos, who resides in Paris, is the present owner. The Countess is married to Dr. Granger, a prominent French physician, who is at the head of the celebrated Pasteur laboratory.

Mr. Betancourt, the gardener and keeper of the property, will kindly show tourists the great variety of tropical trees, comprising twelve species of mangoes, orange, cocoa-nut, etc. A fine collection of marble statuary, valued at $40,000, is an additional ornamentation to this beautiful place.

THE COCOA-NUT TREE.

The cocoa-nut tree shown in the accompanying illustration can be seen in its natural condition at the Palatinos gardens. The specimen shown in the engraving was planted six years ago, and consequently has entered in its second fruit-bearing year. The cocoa-nut tree bears fruit incessantly, as new nut formations are made with every change of the moon, and consequently once arrived at its fruit-bearing stage, the cocoa-nut tree is never devoid of nuts. When freshly plucked from the tree the nut is filled with a delicious milky water, which has certain medicinal properties. This water is quite cool and very refreshing in tropical climes, and can be drank without the least danger. The nut after a lapse of time, becomes dry and coated on the inside with a deposit from the milky water; it is generally in this condition that it reaches the United States, where this hard matter enters to a large extent in the manufacture of candies, pies, etc. The agriculturist finds in the cocoa-nut tree and its fruit, a source of income which day by day goes on increasing, as the fibre enters more largely into the channels of the industrial arts. From the ordinary door-mats, ropes, bagging, etc., the textile qualities of the plant have so appreciated that it enters in almost everything where strength, pliableness and durability are desired. It figures to-day into the construction of the modernized man-of-war. The French and American war navies use it as a filler between the hull and the armor of their most powerful vessels, as well as between decks. The fibre not only diminishes the concussion on board a manof-war firing a broadside, but it helps wonderfully in filling up holes made by the firing of the enemy, according to experiments lately made.

THE CHICKEN DEALER (El Pollero).

Among the characteristic types of Cuban peddlers the chicken dealer is one of the most interesting. He coines every day to the city, as he lives in the neighborhood of Havana. He goes on his rounds among his customers and sells live poultry. No one in Cuba would think of buying chickens as it is done in the United States, where the poultry is killed by steam and kept on ice. The Havana chicken dealer is well patronized, and can be seen every day around the town attending to his business. The accompanying illustration, taken from nature, cannot fail to interest American tourists

BASE BALL CLUBS.

The spacious and commodious building of the Almendares Club is situated opposite the Quinta de los Molinos, or Captain-General's summer residence.

The Havana Base Ball Club is at the Vedado, up the north shore. Games are played every Sunday afternoon, and many spectators are attracted to the sport on account of American clubs coming almost every season to play with the Cubans, who are great lovers of that athletic sport. The main floors of both club houses are also especially arranged for dancing. Very fine balls are given here during the season.

MATANZAS.

This beautiful city, situated 85 miles east of Havana, and called the city of the two rivers, was founded in the year 1693. The etymology of the name Matanzas is much disputed by antiquarians in Cuba. Some, ascribing it to the slaugther of Indians in 1511 at the time of the conquest of the Island, contend that the supposed Indian name Yumuri, which is also that of one of the two rivers between which the city stands, is synonymous, in poor Spanish, with the Indian name of the locality where the massacre took place. The story goes on that an Indian spy of the conquerors, when pursued by them, ran away shouting: "Yu-muri," which in poor Spanish means "I die." The rivers St. John and Yumuri divide the city in three parts. The northern part, on the Yumuri, is called Versailles; the central part, between the two rivers, is known as the old town; and the southern part, on the St. John, is called Pueblo Nuevo. Many beautiful squares, the San Carlos Church and the Esteban Theatre embellish the city. It has also numerous hospitals and benevolent societies. The principal attractions for tourists are the Yumuri Valley and the Caves of Bellamar. In the Plaza de Armas, as the illustration shows, are the interesting Spanish and Cuban Casino clubs.

The Bahia Railway connects Havana to Matanzas. The trains leave every day at 6.50 A. M. and arrive at Matanzas at 9.15 A. M. The beautiful valley of the Yumuri and the caves of Bellamar may be visited the same day. At the station, a carriage will take you to the hotel of your choice. The Hotel San Carlos is situated in the centre of the city and the Hotel Francés is near the Bahia Railway station. I take pleasure to inform American tourists that the beautiful caves of Bellamar have been purchased by Messrs. Garcia & Co., proprietors of the Hotel Francés, where tourists will find the best accommodation, polite attendance and the greatest comfort. While at breakfast the necessary arrangements for a volanta—the ancient and commodious vehicle of the Island—and guides, if necessary, should be retained to visit the caves and the Yumuri Valley.

First, visit the Yumuri Valley, about three miles northwest of Matanzas. Once upon the hill you are charmed by the beauty of the valley, with its grounds broken into sharp peaks and genteel undulations; its cane-fields, with their pea-green verdure, and the darkgreen foliage of the palms, naturally scattered over them; its orange groves and luxuriant plantations, with broad waving leaves; the cocoa, the cocoa-nut and almond trees and its coffee plantations, while here and there an enormous ceiba-tree spreads out its massive branches high in the air. The landscape has no rival even in the picturesque scenery of Switzerland. Visit the chapel of Monserrate, and drive to the caves of Bellamar, about three miles east of Matanzas. Guides provided with torches accompany visitors throughout these marvellous Speaking of the main chamber, Mr. Hazard says: "This temple, I should think, is quite 200 feet long by about 70 wide, and is about 150 feet from the entrance of the cave; and while it far surpasses in richness and splendor the temple of the same name in the Mammoth Cave, it does not equal it in size or solemn grandeur." *

The sparkling columns of crystal produce a most wonderful effect; their color changing, when a torch is held behind them, from white to amber, warmed up by lovely rose-tints, the effect is indeed magical and enchanting. Each of these caves have a name: one "The Mantle of Columbus," another "The Temple of Benediction," "The Guardian Spirits," and so on. The caves were accidently discovered some thirty years ago by a laborer losing a tool down a hole; a search for the tool revealed an opening into this fairy grotto. At the cave tourists are near the Bahia Railroad station, where the train leaves at 1.10 p. m. Magnificent plantations stretch away as far as the eye can reach, until your return to Havana, at about 3.40 p. m.

CARDENAS.

This new city, the youngest of note in Cuba, was founded in 1828, and has now more than 3,000 houses and establishments of all kinds. Its growth is unequaled in Cuban annals. It has a population of about 20,000 inhabitants. It is the first city which has erected a monument to Cristopher Columbus. Its prosperity is attributed to the great fertility of the surrounding country. It has fine sugar plantations and does a large export business with the United States. Two sugar refineries have been established a few years ago; they supply the whole Island and export some of their products besides. Society in Cárdenas is amiable and hospitable. The Hotel Leon de Oro, and the Hotel Isla de Cuba are the best in the city. The distance from Havana is about 180 miles. Trains leave Havana daily at 6.50 A. M. and arrive at Cárdenas at 1 p. M.

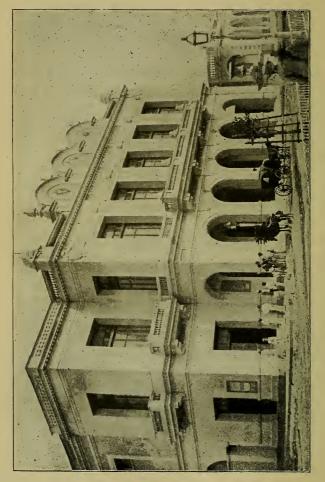

CIENFUEGOS.

The city lies on the south coast of the Island. It is famed among geographers as possessing one of the finest bays in the world. Cienfuegos is about 300 miles from Havana; it lies 22° 15' north latitude and 81° west longitude. It is connected by railways with the principal towns of the island, being the terminal point of the Bahia Railroad. The population numbers about 20,000; the city is built in the modern style, with wide streets, which are kept in fine condition. The Plaza de Armas is one of the most beautiful squares on the Island; on its front is the Cathedral, and on one of its lateral sides are the government buildings and the barracks, and on the other side stands a beautiful small theatre. On Santa Cruz Street are two social clubs which deserve a visit. The climate is both lovely and healthy. The mineral springs of Cienfuegos are renowned for their curative properties. Two hotels are to be found in Cienfuegos. The Grand Union Hotel, under the proprietorship of Mr. F. G. Roves, offers excellent accommodations and is the only first-class hotel in the city. In the immediate neighborhood of the city there are numerous lovely country residences and a large area of fertile lands yet uncultivated, although very important sugar plantations have already been established.

Cienfuegos is probably the locality which can boast of the most rapid progress of all the young cities of the Island of Cuba. Seventy-three years ago, the site upon which Cienfuegos now stands was merely a beautiful grove of tropical trees, washed by the waters of a magnificent natural safe harbor, into which Columbus anchored in 1494.

Columbus was so much pleased with the grandeur of the panorama and with the natural advantages of the bay that he constructed a fort to protect its entrance, and named it Nuestra Señora de los Angeles de Jagua. However, until 1819 Cienfuegos remained a mere harbor of safety for the coastwise and transatlantic trading. During that year a French colonel, M. de Clouet de Piette, undertook, with the help of General Cienfuegos, who was at the time Governor of the Island of Cuba, the colonization of this rich Province. On the 16th of April, 1819, forty-six sturdy Frenchmen from Bordeaux, France, landed at the port, and the development of the rich natural resources of this Eden of the Queen of the Antilles was for the first time attempted in a methodical and successful manner. It was from this first impulse that the city of Cienfuegos sprung to its present commercial importance.

THE TOMAS TERRY THEATRE

is to be found at the angle formed by San Carlos and San Luis Streets, and fronting the Plaza de Armas. This edifice was presented to the city of Cienfuegos by the heirs of the lamented capitalist, Sr. D. Tomás Terry. The construction covers an area of 1,792 square metres.

THE SUGAR ESTATE "CONSTANCIA," CIENFUEGOS.

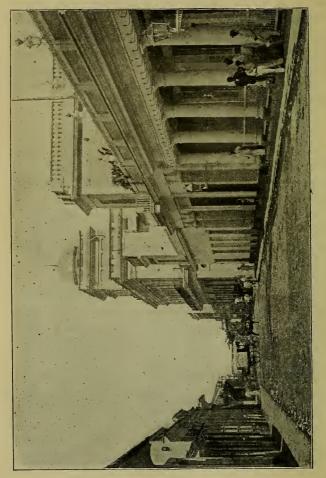

The form of the theatre is rectangular, with balcony over the main entrance. The main ceiling is embellished by paintings executed by the great artist Salaya. Twelve hundred people can be comfortably seated in the theatre, which has cost over $200,000. Its receipts support an art-school, and the balance is distributed to benevolent societies.

THE "CONSTANCIA" SUGAR ESTATE,

in the district of Cienfuegos, is one of the largest in the world. While en route from Nassau to Cienfuegos, American tourists should not fail to visit this immense plantation, where sugar is made from the syrup of the sugar-cane. The machinery is principally from France and Scotland, but there is twenty S. S. Hepworth's patent centrifugals of the West Point Foundry of New York State. The sugar-cane to feed this great central manufacture is gathered from the neighboring country, which furnishes from 100 to 120 millions pounds of sugar every year. This sugar estate, the property of Mr. Julio Apezteguia, is situated about 12 miles from Cienfuegos.

Steamers leave Cienfuegos at 6 A. M. and arrive at "Constancia" at 7.30. The trip on the beautiful bay of Cienfuegos is very agreeable and quite picturesque. On entering the river Damují, which is both narrow and shallow, tourists will naturally notice the beautiful and luxuriant vegetation, especially the queen palms which are so abundant in the Pearl of the Antilles. I advise tourists to secure the services of an interpreter in order to avoid any inconvenience while visiting this interesting place. At the Gran Union Hotel tourists will find attentive interpreters ready to give all the desired information about this excursion.

From Cienfuegos to Havana there is two means of communication, one by steamers and the other by rail. The steamers leave for Batabano twice a week, and the train leaves Cienfuegos for Havana every morning. Travellers will receive at the Gran Union Hotel all necessary information.

FORT CASTILLO.

An excursion to this fort, 10 miles distant from Cienfuegos, is well worth the short time it takes to complete it. The structure is centuries old and rests upon the solid rock. It is in charge of a military governor and garrisoned by a company of regular soldiers.

The steamer leaves every hour, and the sail is very pleasant. Stoppages are made on the way to various suburban residences, which are occupied principally in the summer months by the rich families of Cienfuegos.

The view from the summit of the fort is one not to be forgotten. The trip is ordinarily accomplished in three hours time, and the fare, 40 cents for the round trip, is very moderate.

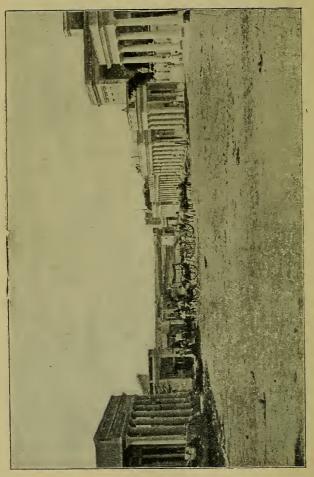

SAN FERNANDO STREET, CIENFUEGOS.

ISLE OF PINES.

This island lies in the Caribbean Sea, 33 miles off the coast of Cuba, and is under the jurisdiction of the polititical governor of Havana. It is 43 miles long and 35 miles wide in its widest part, with an area of 1,200 square miles and a population of about 2,000. The coast is deeply indented by bays and inlets, some of which afford commodious anchorage, though surrounded by innumerable rocky islets or keys. A mountain-chain, over 1,600 feet high, the Sierra de la Cañada, traverses the Island, and the country is well irrigated by several rivers. The centre is somewhat marshy, but the soil is otherwise very fertile. Timber and precious woods abound. Among the mineral productions are silver, quicksilver, iron, sulphur and rock crystal, while marble of various beautiful colors occur in large quantities. The climate is exceedingly mild and salubrious, and there is no place in the West Indies better adapted for invalids. Being sheltered on the north by Cuba, the thermometrical range is very small, and the winters are wonderfully mild and equable. The towns on the Island are Nueva Gerona (which in 1887 had a population of 1,000), Santa Fé and Jorobado. The Island was discovered by Columbus in 1494. It is reached from Havana twice a week. Trains leave Havana on Wednesdays and Sundays at 6 A. M.; arrive at Batabano at 8 A. M., connecting with the steamer El Nuevo Cubano, of Mr. Angel Ceballos, a beautiful steamer with all modern improvements, which reaches the Island of Pines at about 4 P. M.

San Diego de los Baños.

The sulphur springs and waters of San Diego are celebrated and known for their medicinal properties and wonderful effects. Reports by eminent chemists say that the springs are highly charged with sulphurated hydrogen, and contain sulphate of lime, hydro-chlorate of magnesia and carbonate. During the season a large number of visitors, pleasure-seekers and invalids, are attracted there. There is no case of rheumatism, paralysis, female complaints, ulcers, eruptions or tumors, which have not been relieved or cured by its use. Trains from Cristina station, Western Railway, leave daily at 6 A. M., arriving at Paso Real about 1 P. M. From Paso Real a volanta takes the traveller to San Diego in a few hours. The hotel recommended is the Gabancho.

Madruga, also very famous for its sulphur baths, is only second to San Diego, and is about 65 miles, midway between Havana and Matanzas, and is connected by rail to both places. The temperature of the water is little lower than at San Diego. Trains leave from Villanueva station daily.

PUERTO PRINCIPE.

Puerto Principe is the principal city of the interior, and in population nearly equals Matanzas. It is the capital of the Central Department, and lies about midway between the north and south coast, 305 miles east southeast of Havana. The city is irregularly built between two small streams, the Timima and the Jatibonico, in a rich agricultural district, the chief products of which are sugar and tobacco. Its trade is insignificant compared with its population. The principal buildings are several churches and monasteries, a hospital and two theatres. The town was threatened several times during the recent rebellion by the Cuban patriots, and two or three battles were fought in its neighborhood. The climate is hot and moist, but the winters are remarkably mild, and at that season the town is somewhat sought for by those invalids who dislike the proximity of the coast. Puerto Principe is connected by a railway, 56 miles long, with the port of Nuevitas, through which extend its exterior communication.

Santiago de Cuba.

Locally called Cuba, is situated almost at the other end of the Island, and on its south side. It was formerly the capital of Cuba, and is still the second city in rank and population, and contained in 1888 about 50,000 inhabitants. It lies on the river Santiago, six miles from its mouth, and has a port four miles long, which is deep enough for war vessels, and strongly fortified. The city is regularly laid out on a steep declivity, with wide streets, some very precipitous, and handsome houses, which are chiefly built of stone. The cathedral, completed in 1819, is the largest on the Island, and there are several other churches, a theatre, a custom-house, barracks, a college, and three hospitals. Santiago is an archbishop's see, and the residence of the Governor for the Eastern Department. Next to Havana, Santiago is the liveliest city in Cuba, and probably the oldest town in the West Indies. The finest coffee and sugar plantations are located in its surroundings. It is, furthermore, an important commercial town, and the principal centre of the copper mining district of Cuba. The winter climate is remarkably healthy. Santiago may be reached by railway from Havana to Batabano, connecting with steamers stopping at Cienfuegos, Trinidad, Santa Cruz and Manzanillo. The distance from Havana is about 500 miles.

USEFUL HINTS AND SUGGESTIONS.

There are certain things with which every traveller must supply himself before undertaking his journey, and certain facts, a knowledge of which will be useful to him while on his way. On this account, a little time devoted to the examination of the advertising pages will be profitably spent. It is advisable to telegraph in advance for rooms at hotels. A single room means a room for one person; a double room means a room for two persons; a double-bedded room means a room with two beds. The following notice has been published by the leading papers of New York:

"Americans in Cuba: No passport needed by those who wish to land or live on the Island. — Havana, "October 15th, 1887.—Some time ago the government published new regulations, according to which American citizens are now allowed to land at or depart from "Cuban ports without being obliged to present a pass- port or other document signed by a Spanish Consul at "the port of entry. A simple certificate from the American Consul will be sufficient for the identification of any citizen of the United States, and will enable him to travel all over Cuba, to remain on the Island as "long as he pleases, and leave whenever he wishes with out molestation."

I advise tourists going to Cuba to provide themselves with a certificate issued by a Notary Public, to avoid trouble.

A great many people exaggerate considerably when speaking about the climate of Cuba. From December to May the fever is almost unknown. There is no danger whatever for tourists. But while changing suddenly from winter to summer care should be taken; the clothing used North in midsummer will do in Cuba.

Tourists are respectfully invited to visit the stores advertised in this book. By presenting this Guide they will be specially waited upon and will receive the benefit of all discounts. While purchasing goods, ascertain if the amount asked is in gold or silver and thus avoid confusion. Cuba is like any other place in the world, and one who cannot speak the language may sometimes be imposed upon.

THE HOTELS OF HAVANA.

Hotel Pasaje—on the Prado, 110 rooms. Hotel Mascotte—Oficios Street, 100 rooms.

Hotel Inglaterra — fronting the Central Park, 80 rooms.

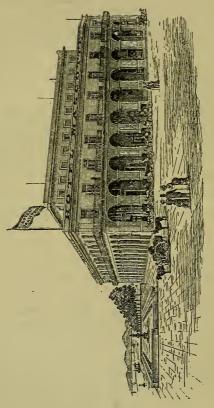

Hotel Roma Continental—on Zulueta and Teniente Rey Streets, 45 rooms.

Hotel Telegrafo—facing the Park, 40 rooms.

Hotel Saratoga—facing Campo Marte, 30 rooms.

Hotel Perla de Cuba—on Amistad Street, 60 rooms.

To properly visit the cities of Havana and Matanzas a week at least is necessary. Tourists will be most agreeably surprised when they find out the excellency of Havana hotels, they have almost all the modern improvements and are managed on both the European and American plans. The Hotel Mascotte, the palatial hotel of Havana, conducted by J. Carbonell & Co., has been newly furnished and renovated. It is located near the Bay, as the illustration shows, overlooking the harbor, the city, and the Gulf of Mexico. All the rooms are front rooms, and the accommodations are strictly first-class. The Pasaje Hotel, so named for the covered passage at the rear of the hotel-leading from the Prado to Zulueta Street—is beautifully located; it is under the management of Messrs. Manuel Linares and Son, so favorably known to American tourists. The Hotel Saratoga is situated on Principe Alfonso Street, fronting on Campo de Marte, and is under the management of Mrs. R. de Aliarte. The Telegrafo Hotel, so well-known among

HOTEL MASCOTTE.

American tourists, has been removed on the Prado, fronting the Central Park. It is always admirably managed by Messrs. F. Gonzalez & Co., under both the European and American plans.

The restaurants in Havána are equal to the best of New York and Paris. The restaurants "El Casino," "El Louvre," "Las Tullerias," "El Palacio de Cristal," "El Carabanchel," "El Suizo," in the new quarter of the city (up-town) are patronized by the best society of Havana. The Restaurant de Paris, down town, is the rendezvous of the leading merchants for breakfasting. If you desire to enjoy the coolness of the breeze of the Gulf of Mexico, you will surely be pleased by going to the Hotel and Restaurant Cosmopolitan, at "La Chorrera," about 5 miles from Havana. Street cars leave every half hour from Plaza San Juan de Dios and from "La Punta," at the end of the Prado; fare, 10 cents silver. The Hotel and Restaurant Chaix, under the direction of Mr. Chaix, is famous for its dinner parties; it is situated three miles distant from Havana, on the beautiful spot El Vedado, fronting the Gulf of Mexico. Tourists will please remember to recommend themselves with this Guide to the places advertised, as every one will be pleased to give them a heartier welcome on that account.

CIGAR FACTORY OF CALIXTO LOPEZ & CO., HAVANA.

CIGAR FACTORIES OF HAVANA.

It is conceded that the Havana tobacco has no equal in the world in flavor and quality. This is due to the climate and the nature of the soil, which, together with the purity of the water, makes the Havana cigars the most recherchés by all connoisseurs. Tourists are welcomed to visit all the tobacco factories advertised in this Guide.

The factory of Messrs. Calixto Lopez & Co. (brands "El Edén," "Lo Mejor," etc.), who use only the Vuelta Abajo tobacco, is situated, as the illustration shows, on Zulueta Street, Nos. 48-50. The building has all the modern improvements, is specially adapted for the manufacture of cigars, and is a credit to the firm, who are among the principal manufacturers of cigars on the Island of Cuba; they keep the best stock of Havana leaf tobacco, grown upon their own plantation in the Vuelta Abajo district. Cigar and tobacco dealers will be convinced of this fact by visiting their factory. The comfort of the workmen, 400 in number, has been studied, and in that respect the factory has no superior in the world, with its ventilators changing the air constantly. The building cost about $500,000, Spanish gold. No. 48 is the depot or warehouse for the tobacco leaf, and No. 50 is the factory. Tourists and tobacco dealers should not fail to visit this great Tobacco Exchange, as Messrs. Calixto Lopez & Co. will take pleasure in showing them their premises.

The cigar factory of LA CORONA, one of the oldest in Havana, was established in the year 1845 for the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes. It has a universal fame, and its products are highly esteemed by smokers the world over. The present proprietors, Mr. Segundo Alvarez and Mr. D. Perfecto F. Lopez, decided to make all the necessary outlays to place this factory on the highest industrial level by equipping it with all the necessary modern improvements. To attain this object they had to change their location, as the factory was too small for the growth of their business. They became the owners of the most beautiful and largest building in Havana, known as the Palacio de Aldama, situated in the most aristocratic quarter, and fronting on the great park Campo de Marte, as shown in the illustration. This immense building has been entirely refitted, at an expense of $50,000 gold, for the manufacture of cigars. The cigarette department has a large engine which furnishes power to a great number of machines of the most modern pattern; this factory has exclusive patents for their cigarettes, especially those known everywhere and called "Sport." Tourists visiting Cuba should visit the cigar and cigarette factory of La Corona, for they will be agreeably surprised at the ingenuity and progress developed in the manufacture of those goods. The finest Vuelta Abajo tobacco leaf is solely used in the manufacture of their cigars and cigarettes. Travelers are cordially invited to visit this beautiful building.

LA FLOR DE MORALES is situated on No. 127 Calzada Galiano, near the great town market. This factory was founded by the late José Morales, in the year 1845, and is continued under the same name by his son, Mr. José Morales. This factory has received the highest award at the Antwerp Exposition. The brands manufactured by José Morales & Co. are familiar to Americans, and are general favorites everywhere: "La Flor de Morales," "La Matilde," and "Cuba Industrial." H. R. H. the Count of Flanders has favored the proprietors with the appointment as purveyors to his household. Mr. José Morales speaks English; he will take special pleasure to show his factory to tourists, where they will always be welcomed.

Shopping in Havana.

American ladies can roam at their sweet will in Havana just as they do in their own country; they are admired for their independence and not criticised at all as many slanderous and exaggerated Cuban sketches might lead them to think. Among the first places they will want to see will be the store La Especial, in Obispo Street, No. 99 (the principal business street, and the finest in Havana). It has the greatest assortment of fans, bull-fight fans, silk fans, representing Cuban scenery; also satin and lace fans at all prices, from 10 cents to 300 dollars; there is to be found also the finest assortment of gloves, umbrellas and parasols, all made at their own factory. The proprietor, Mr. Manuel Carranza, speaks English, and is most courteous and hospitable. Tourists are cordially invited to visit his store.

Los Estados Unidos, San Rafael Street corner Galiano; La Habana, 95-97 Obispo Street, where the finest silks, Spanish mantillas and laces can be had at all prices; Las Ninfas, 71 Obispo Street; La Granada, 26 Obispo Street, are the names of the best Dry-Goods Stores. Laces, pine-apple cloth, Chinese goods, linens and all the light fabrics adapted to the climate, including silks, satins, etc., are to be found in a great variety, and the latest novelties are here received by steamers from Europe. The proprietors of these stores will be honored by the visit of American tourists.

No. 43 Obispo Street is the Wilson's American Book Store, where American and English newspapers, novels and periodicals are received by every mail. Photographs of Cuban scenery, guide books, stationery and drawing materials are kept on sale.

Belot's Hidrotherapic Establishment was founded in 1873, at a cost of $120,000, Spanish gold. It has the necessary apparatus known to science as the methodical hidrotherapic treatment, such as the various showers, the hypogastric perineales, etc., etc., the steambox or Russian baths, a great number of marble tanks for plain or artificially prepared mineral baths, either alkaline, sulphurous iodide of iron, etc. Pleasure seekers and tourists should not fail to visit Doctor Belot's establishment, where they will most assuredly be welcomed.

Tourists will be welcomed at all the establishments advertised in this Gume, whose proprietors will be glad to show them all the curios imported and made on the Island.

VOCABULARY.

A few moments of leisure, consecrated daily to the study of this vocabulary, will be of good profit to American travelers unacquainted with the Spanish language. It is principally composed of those words and short phrases which convey the expression for all immediate needs.

A (ah) in the Spanish language has but one sound, and is pronounced as the open English a in alarm.

E (a or ay) is pronounced in Spanish as the English words bed, fed, red, etc.

I in Spanish is sounded like the English e in even or i in idiotism.

0 (oh) is pronounced in Spanish like the English o in not, lot or got; O in sea-charts signifies West.

U (00) in Spanish is sounded like the English word 002e; it loses its sound after q and g, and becomes a liquid, except where it is followed by an a, as in guarismo, or when marked with a diæresis, as in agüero, ungüento, etc., when it retains is proper sound.

Y in the Castillian alphabet stands as a vowel and consonant; y, when alone, or after a vowel, and followed by a consonant or at the end of a word, is a vowel, and sounds like the English e or ee, as Hoy y mañana (To-day and to-morrow).
