You can confirm the conclusions of this section for yourself on the Internet. Section 9-4.139 of the Department of Justice, U.S. Attorneys' Manual (USAM) found on the DOJ website at:

http://www.usdoj.gov/usao/eousa/foia\_reading\_room/usam/title9/4mcrm.htm#9-4.139

has a listing of all of the statutes within the Internal Revenue code and the specific agency that has "investigative jurisdiction" for that statute. The agency with "investigative jurisdiction" is the agency responsible for enforcing a specific statute. All of the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code are found in sections 7201 through 7209 of the Internal Revenue Code. In order to have investigative jurisdiction, an agency must write an implementing regulation that then creates the authority and the procedure to enforce a specific criminal provision upon a specific tax under the Internal Revenue Code. For instance, if there were an implementing regulation written by the IRS for Willful Failure to File for Subtitle A income taxes, the regulation number would be 26 C.F.R. §1.7203, but there is no such regulation! As we said earlier in section 5.4.18, there are no implementing regulations for any tax crimes for Subtitle A income taxes. The consequence is that there is no agency with "investigative jurisdiction" to enforce the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. The org chart for the IRS also confirms that the IRS is NOT an enforcement agency because it does not fall under the Undersecretary for Enforcement within the Department of the Treasury, as shown below:

Below was the entry under 26 U.S.C. §7201-7209 found within section 9-4.139 of the USAM as of February 2002, showing who has investigative authority for tax crimes under the Internal Revenue Code, repeated here for your benefit:

Table 5-43: Agencies with investigative jurisdiction as of February 2002

Statute	Criminal Division Section	Telephone #	Agency with Investigative Jurisdiction
7201-7209	All		None

This is a tacit admission by our government that no agency may enforce the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, which is another way of saying that no one is liable to pay this tax because it is in fact a donation as we have said repeatedly throughout this chapter! If the IRS or the DOJ do investigate crimes related to the Internal Revenue Code without the above authority or an implementing regulation, then they are acting unlawfully and have exceeded the authority delegated to them by the U.S. codes and the regulations that implement them which are written by the Secretary of the Treasury. They can be prosecuted for libel and any number of crimes if their illegal action causes you any kind of injury or expense.

Subsequent to the writing and publication of this section, the Department of Justice rewrote the above entry in their table. Sometime between February 2002 and July 2005, the entry was changed to read:

Table 5-44: Agencies with investigative jurisdiction as of July 2005

Statute	Criminal Division Section	Telephone #	Agency with Investigative Jurisdiction
7201-7209	All		I.R.S.

The above entry is fraudulent, because:

- The same Department of Justice admitted that the IRS is NOT an agency of the federal government. See:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Evidence/USGovDeniesIRS/USGovDeniesIRS.htm>

The reason the IRS is not an agency of the federal government is that it isn't carrying out a constitutional function within the states and therefore is an independent creation of Congress that only has jurisdiction over matters INTERNAL to the federal zone, as is shown throughout the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008, Chapter 7. That is why they are called the INTERNAL Revenue Service to begin with. Even the IRS identifies itself NOT as an "agency", but a "bureau". See their document 7233 at the link below. Search for the word "bureau" and you will see what we mean:

- There are not implementing regulations published in the Federal Register authorizing enforcement of I.R.C., Subtitle A against private persons in states of the Union. The only people the IRS can enforce against are federal instrumentalities in the District of Columbia, according to 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\) and 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\), who are the only groups that can be the target of penalties absent said publication.

5.4.22 The Federal Courts Can't Sentence You to Federal Prison for Tax Crimes if You Are A statutory "U.S. citizen" and the Crime was Committed Outside the Federal Zone

Amazingly, even if you are stupid enough to claim you are a domiciliary of the federal zone, whether it be a "U.S. citizen" or "resident", and thereby subject yourself to the corrupt jurisdiction of a federal court, even under such circumstances, if you commit a "tax crime" outside the federal zone and inside one of the sovereign Union states, no federal court can lawfully imprison you. That's right! 18 U.S.C. §4001\(a\) states:

Sec. 4001. - Limitation on detention; control of prisons

(a) No citizen shall be imprisoned or otherwise detained by the United States except pursuant to an Act of Congress.

And in the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, Rule 54\(c\) prior to Dec. 2002, it states:

Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 54: Application and Exception

"Act of Congress" includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of Columbia, in Puerto Rico, in a territory or in an insular possession.

The U.S. attorney prosecuting you will try to fool you into thinking that you can be prosecuted for "Willful failure to file" under 26 U.S.C. §7203 or "Tax Evasion" 26 U.S.C. §7201 or Fraud under 26 U.S.C. §7206, but the fact of the matter is that unless you committed this crime inside the federal zone as per Rule 54(c) of the Rules of Criminal Procedure, then they can't legally sentence you.

Also, as you learned earlier in section 5.4.18, there are no implementing regulations for Willful Failure to File or Tax Evasion, which means these cannot be crimes for anyone but federal employees, even if you were residing inside the federal zone when you violated these statutes.

"...we think it important to note that the Act's civil and criminal penalties attach only upon violation of regulations promulgated by the Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone."
[California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz, 416 U.S. 21 (1974)]

So why do so many people get prosecuted for Willful Failure under 26 U.S.C. §7203 or File and Tax Evasion 26 U.S.C. §7201? Here are a few possible explanations:

1. They filed the wrong form, an IRS Form 1040, which says at the top that they are a "U.S. individual". This fooled the federal government into thinking that they were a "U.S. person" domiciled inside the territorial jurisdiction of the "United States", which is the federal zone. The more appropriate form should have been a 1040NR if they filed anything.
2. They hired an ignorant lawyer who didn't know the limited territorial jurisdiction of the federal laws and/or didn't know that there were no implementing regulations for Willful Failure to File or Tax Evasion.
3. Their lawyer was coerced by the judge, who may at one time or another threatened to pull his license to practice law in that court if he told the truth about the limited territorial jurisdiction of the court and submitted evidence into the record that the criminal defendant did not reside in the federal zone and did not commit a "crime" there.
4. They lied on their tax return, which you should NEVER do.
5. They were incompetent and defended themselves.
6. The judge wouldn't allow them to submit evidence into the record that the crime was not committed in the federal zone or that he was not a statutory "U.S. citizen" or subject to the jurisdiction of the federal court.
7. They could not challenge the jurisdiction of the court because they hired an attorney. See: <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/LawAndGovt/Articles/WhyYouDontWantAnAtty/WhyYouDon'tWantAnAttorney.htm>

5.4.23 You Don't Have to Provide a Social Security Number on Your Tax Return!

There is a presumption found in 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) that if you submit a tax return to the U.S. government, then you are by default a "U.S.** person". We repeat that section below, which is the only section of the regulations that talks about the requirement to furnish an identifying number on a tax return:

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b)

(b) Requirement to furnish one's own number--(1) U.S. persons. Every U.S. person who makes under this title a return, statement, or other document must furnish its own taxpayer identifying number as required by the forms and the accompanying instructions.

Notice the word "its". This should clue you into the fact that the tax code doesn't apply to flesh and blood people, who are called "natural persons" in laws like that above. If they had meant to refer to such a natural person, the word "it's" would have said "his" or "her". Consequently, the only type of "person", they can be referring to is a privileged corporation, as we pointed out at the beginning of this chapter.

According to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30), a "U.S. person" is either an alien or a federal statutory "U.S. citizen" under in 8 U.S.C. §1401. Here is the definition:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a)(30) United States person

The term "United States person" means -

(A) a [corporate] citizen or resident [alien] of the [federal] United States,

(B) a domestic partnership,

(C) a domestic corporation,

(D) any estate (other than a foreign estate, within the meaning of paragraph (31)), and

(E) any trust if -

(i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the trust, and

(ii) one or more United States persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust.

This means that if such the "person" is a "citizen" under the I.R.C., then they must have been domiciled or incorporated in the federal "United States**"/federal zone, which is limited only to the District of Columbia or U.S. territories. Don't let the word "citizen" above fool you either, because corporations within law are "citizens" as well and they are "born" at the instant when they are officially "incorporated" by the Secretary of State of the jurisdiction where they are domiciled. Congress wants to deceive you into believing that the term "citizen" also means a natural persons (people), but in the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, this term ONLY refers to corporations because "income", as you will learn later in section 5.6.5, is defined by our Constitution and by the Supreme court to be limited only to monies earned by federal corporations in the conduct of foreign commerce! This is also consistent with the use of the word "it's" as used above in 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b), where the only "U.S. persons" in the IRC who can have TINs are corporations. Here is some more proof of that to whet your appetite to read later sections:

19 C.J.S., Corporations §886 [Legal encyclopedia]

"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."

[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

The other very interesting result of the above regulation at 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) is the use of the word "Taxpayer Identification Number", which is called a "TIN" for short. This is a VERY important word, folks! Here is the meaning of that word from the Treasury regulations:

(3) IRS individual taxpayer identification number -- (i) Definition. The term IRS individual taxpayer identification number means a taxpayer identifying number issued to an alien individual by the Internal Revenue Service, upon application, for use in connection with filing requirements under this title. The term IRS individual taxpayer identification number does not refer to a social security number or an account number for use in employment for wages. For purposes of this section, the term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States.

So anyone who has or uses a TIN is an "alien", and a Social Security Number is NOT a Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) according to the regulations. We learned earlier in 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) that the only thing you are required to provide on a tax return is a "Taxpayer Identification Number" (TIN) and we learned above that a Social Security Number (SSN) is NOT a TIN. Further confirmation of these conclusions can be found by looking at the forms used to obtain "Taxpayer Identification Numbers". Form W-7 is used to get a TIN while a SSA Form SS-5 is used to obtain a Social Security Number: two totally different forms. Consequently, you can't be and aren't required to provide your SSN on a tax return! Amazing, isn't it? This is another way of saying that you aren't the proper subject of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A and aren't a "taxpayer" folks! The form W-7 even confirms that it is ONLY for aliens, when it says at the top:

"For use by individuals who are not 'U.S. citizens' or nationals."

The only thing you can be if you are neither a statutory "U.S. citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 nor a "national" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) is an "alien"! Duhhh! Don't believe us? Look at the W-7 form for yourself below:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormW7.pdf>

After you look at the W-7 form, go back and reread section 4.11.13, table 4-25 of this book and you will see that the only thing a person can be who is not a "U.S. citizen" or a "national" is an "alien". The IRS just doesn't have the courage to

1 directly state the truth on the W-7 form because then NO ONE would fill it out and everyone would drop out of the tax
2 system in droves!

3 Even more interestingly, under 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(g\), having a social security number creates a “presumption” that you
4 maintain a legal “domicile” within the federal zone. Here is what the regulation says about the requirement to provide a
5 social security number when furnishing returns:

6 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(g\)

7 (g) Special rules for taxpayer identifying numbers issued to foreign persons--(1) General rule--(i) Social
8 *Security number. A social security number is generally identified in the records and database of the Internal
9 Revenue Service as a number belonging to a U.S. citizen or resident alien individual. A person may establish*
10 a different status for the number by providing proof of foreign status with the Internal Revenue Service under 11 such procedures as the Internal Revenue Service shall prescribe, including the use of a form as the Internal 12 Revenue Service may specify. Upon accepting an individual as a nonresident alien individual, the Internal 13 Revenue Service will assign this status to the individual's social security number.

14 What both “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and “resident aliens” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) have in common is 15 that they both maintain a legal “domicile” within the federal zone. We proved this earlier in section 5.4.8. As a presumed 16 domiciliary of the federal zone or a “U.S.** person”, you have NO Constitutional rights according to the U.S. Supreme 17 Court in Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)! You must therefore rebut the false presumptions below that you are:

- 18 1. A domiciliary of the federal zone.
- 19 2. A statutory “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
- 20 3. A “resident alien under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
- 21 4. “U.S. person” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).

22 . . . whenever you correspond with the IRS and continually emphasize instead that you are a “national” and not a “citizen”
23 under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and a “non-resident non-person”. Only if you are lawfully and consensually engaged in a
24 public office can you claim to be a “nonresident alien” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B). The way to do this is by following
25 the regulation above and requesting a change in the status of your Social Security Number with the IRS!

26 We give you instructions in section 2.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 entitled
27 “IMPORTANT: Change Your U.S. Citizenship Status” on how to expatriate from 14th Amendment or U.S.** citizenship
28 and to obtain evidence proving your change in citizenship. This frees you from the legal obligation to complete income tax
29 returns. We can't guarantee that the IRS will never bother you again if you don't file beyond that point, but we do help to 30 minimize the risk that they will bother you or cause any trouble by showing you how to prove that you aren't a statutory
31 U.S.** citizen or aren't therefore liable for submitting returns or paying income tax.

32 Lastly, it may also interest you to know that there are only two places in the Bible where numbers are referred to in the 33 context of people, and both of them refer to the efforts of Satan himself. Here is the first one:

34 Now Satan stood up against Israel, and moved David to number Israel. So David said to Joab and to the* 35 leaders of the people, “Go, number Israel from Beersheba to Dan, and bring the number of them to me that I
36 may know it.”
37 [1 Chron. 21:1-2, Bible, NKJV]

38 The only other place numbering of people is referenced is throughout the book of Revelation in reference to the last days.
39 The mark is given by “the Beast”, which is defined to be the “Kings of the earth” who are at war with God as described in 40 Rev. 19:19:

41 “And I saw the beast, the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against Him
42 who sat on the horse and against His army.”
43 [Rev. 19:19, Bible, NKJV]

45 “He [the Beast, which is the political rulers of the earth] causes all, both small and great, rich and poor, free
46 and slave, to receive a mark on their right hand or on their foreheads, and that no one may buy or sell except* 47 one who has the mark or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

1 "Here is wisdom. Let him who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a
2 man: His number is 666."
3 [Rev. 13:16-18, Bible, NKJV]

4 Those who allow themselves to accept the mark of the beast shall be tormented by God himself and it would appear that he
5 shall receive the same punishment as all of Babylon and be part of Babylon:

6 "And another angel followed, saying, "Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she has made all
7 nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication." Then a third angel followed them, saying with a loud
8 voice, "If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives his mark on his forehead or on his hand, he 9 himself shall also drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out full strength into the cup of His 10 indignation. He shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the 11 presence of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment ascends forever and ever; and they have no rest day or 12 night, who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name."
13 [Rev. 14:8-11, Bible, NKJV]

14 The people who receive this mark will be among those who are victims of the first Bowl judgment of God's wrath:

15 "So the first [angel] went and poured out his bowl [of judgment] upon the earth, and a foul and loathsome 16 sore came upon the men who had the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image."
17 [Rev. 16:2, Bible, NKJV]

18 Only those who do not accept the mark will reign with Christ in Heaven:

19 "And I saw thrones, and they sat on them, and judgment was committed to them. Then I saw the souls of those 20 who had been beheaded for their witness to Jesus and for the word of God, who had not worshiped the beast or 21 his image, and had not received his mark on their foreheads or on their hands. And they lived and reigned
22 with Christ for a thousand years."
23 [Rev. 20:4, Bible, NKJV]

24 Is it therefore any surprise that the only status you can have which doesn't EXPRESSLY require a number is not associated 25 with the political rulers of the earth is that of a "nonresident alien" who has no income from the government, which is the 26 "beast" in the Bible? Accepting money from the government that you didn't earn is fornication with Babylon, and the mark
27 is the means of controlling how the stolen loot is distributed among the thieves. The victims of the theft are all the people
28 who did not want to participate in the system of usury and abuse and socialism called the "income tax". Anyone who 29 accepts this money is a "thief", and the Bible says when a thief is found, he shall pay double the amount stolen:

30 "If a man [the government, in this case] delivers to his neighbor [a citizen, in this case] money or articles to 31 keep, and it is stolen out of the man's house [our out of his paycheck], if the thief is found, he shall pay
32 double. If the thief is not found, then the master of the house shall be brought to the judges to see whether he 33 has put his hand into his neighbor's goods."
34 [Exodus 22:7-8, Bible, NKJV]

35 The tribulation described in the Bible book of Revelation is God's punishment and judgment to all those who became 36 thieves by accepting stolen loot from a corrupted socialist government.

37 "My son, if sinners [socialists, in this case] entice you,
38 Do not consent
39 If they say, "Come with us,
40 Let us lie in wait to shed blood [of innocent "nontaxpayers"];
41 Let us lurk secretly for the innocent without cause;
42 Let us swallow them alive like Sheol,
43 And whole, like those who go down to the Pit:
44 We shall fill our houses with spoil [plunder];
45 Cast in your lot among us,
46 Let us all have one purse [share the stolen LOOT]"--

47 My son, do not walk in the way with them [do not ASSOCIATE with them and don't let the government FORCE
48 you to associate with them either by forcing you to become a "taxpayer"/government whore or a "U.S.
49 person"].
50 Keep your foot from their path;
51 For their feet run to evil,
52 And they make haste to shed blood.
53 Surely, in vain the net is spread
54 In the sight of any bird;

1                   But they lie in wait for their own blood.
 2                   They lurk secretly for their own lives.
 3                   So are the ways of everyone who is greedy for gain [or unearned government benefits];
 4                   It takes away the life of its owners."
 5                   [Proverbs 1:10-19, Bible, NKJV]

6 The book of Revelation echoes the above by saying:

7                   "And I heard another voice from heaven [God] saying, 'Come out of her [Babylon the Great Harlot, a
 8                   democratic, rather than republican, state full of socialist non-believers], my people [Christians], lest you share
 9                   in her sins, and lest you receive of her plagues."
 10                  [Revelation 18:4, Bible, NKJV]

11 5.4.24 Your Private Employer Isn't Authorized by Law to Act as a Federal "withholding agent"

12 IRS Publication 15, Circular E: Employer's Tax Guide: Employer's Tax Guide indicates on page 6 what the definition of 13 "employer" is. It only lists federal agencies and "States" as employers. See for yourself:

14 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSPub15.pdf>

15 Remember that "States" in the Internal Revenue Code means territories and possessions of the United States as defined in 16 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §1101(d). Private employers do not appear anywhere in the booklet. One of our 17 readers did an FOIA request asking the IRS for the forms and publications that private employers should use. Guess what 18 the response said:

19                   "We have no documents responsive to your request."

20 Do you get it? The I.R.C., Subtitle A federal income tax and I.R.C., Subtitle C employment withholding taxes only apply 21 to:

- 22 1. "U.S. persons" with a domicile in the District of Columbia, most of whom work for the federal government. These 23 people are described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) .
- 24 2. Territories of the United States, which are classified as "States" in federal statutes and "acts of Congress".
- 25 3. Those engaged in a "trade or business" temporarily abroad as described in 26 U.S.C. §911.

26 States of the Union cannot and do not appear in the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A and if they did, they would appear as 27 "states" and not "States". This is further confirmed by the regulations below, which prove that there are no "employers"
 28 outside the "United States", which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) to include only the District of Columbia
 29 and nowhere defined to include states of the Union within I.R.C., Subtitle A:

30                   Title 26: Internal Revenue
 31                   PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
 32                   Subpart B—Federal Insurance Contributions Act \(Chapter 21, Internal Revenue Code of 1954\)
 33                   General Provisions
 34                   § 31.3121\(b\)-3 Employment; services performed after 1954.

 36 the provisions of section 3121(b).

37                   (b) Services performed within the United States [District of Columbia]. Services performed after 1954 within
 38 the United States (see §31.3121(e)-1) by an employee for his employer, unless specifically excepted by section
 39 3121(b), constitute employment. With respect to services performed within the United States, the place where 40 the contract of service is entered into is immaterial. The citizenship or residence of the employee or of the
 41 employer also is immaterial except to the extent provided in any specific exception from employment. Thus, the
 42 employee and the employer may be citizens and residents of a foreign country and the contract of service may
 43 be entered into in a foreign country, and yet, if the employee under such contract performs services within the
 44 United States, there may be to that extent employment.

45                   (c) Services performed outside the United States—(1) In general. Except as provided in paragraphs (c)(2) and 46 (3) of this section, services performed outside the United States (see §31.3121(e)-1) do not constitute 47 employment."

Note from the above that services performed outside the District of Columbia do not constitute “employment”. This is also consistent with:

1. 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(c)(ii), which says that “nonresident aliens” not engaged in a “trade or business” [public office in the U.S. government], even if they work in the “United States”, do not earn taxable income. You will note that 4 U.S.C. §72 says that all public offices shall be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere.
2. 26 U.S.C. §3401(a)(6) says that services of a “nonresident alien individual” (a person domiciled in a state of the Union and engaged in a public office) do not constitute “wages” that can be included on a W-2 form.
3. 26 C.F.R. §1.872-2(f) says that earnings from outside the “United States” (District of Columbia) does not constitute “gross income”.

Private employers aren't covered by the Internal Revenue Code, and the only reason that any of them think otherwise is because they never bothered to read the Internal Revenue Code or IRS Publication 15, Circular E: Employer's Tax Guide for themselves and simply were reacting to authority that the IRS in fact did not have.

The term “withholding agent” is defined as follows in the Internal Revenue Code:

Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a)(16) Withholding agent

The term "withholding agent" means any person required to deduct and withhold any tax under the provisions of section 1441, 1442, 1443, or 1461.

Now if you look up each of the above four statutes mentioned in the above definition, here is what you end up with:

26 U.S.C./ I.R.C. section	Title of section	Object of tax
1441	Withholding of tax on nonresident aliens	Nonresident aliens
1442	Withholding of tax on foreign corporations	Foreign corporations
1443	Foreign tax-exempt organizations	Tax-exempt organizations
1461	Liability for withheld tax	Nonresident aliens and foreign corporations (see title of Chapter 3 of Subtitle A).

So the question is: “Which one of the above are you as a person in a state of the Union who is working for a private, non-federal employer?”. The answer is “nonresident alien”. The trouble is, your private employer fits in the same category as you and is therefore outside of federal jurisdiction and not even subject to the Internal Revenue Code or to withholding. See paragraph (b) below:

Title 26
PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
§ 31.3401\(a\)\(6\)-1 Remuneration for services of nonresident alien individuals.

(a) In general. All remuneration paid after December 31, 1966, for services performed by a nonresident alien individual, if such remuneration otherwise constitutes wages within the meaning of §31.3401(a)-1 and if such remuneration is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is subject to withholding under section 3402 unless excepted from wages under this section. In regard to wages paid under this section after February 28, 1979, the term “nonresident alien individual” does not include a nonresident alien individual treated as a resident under section 6013 (g) or (h).

(b) Remuneration for services performed outside the United States. Remuneration paid to a nonresident alien individual (other than a resident of Puerto Rico) for services performed outside the United States is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

Keep in mind that the I.R.C is “legislation” as described by the Supreme Court below:

1                    *"It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247
3                    internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation."
4                    [Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]*

5 A person can ONLY be designated as a withholding agent using IRS Form 2678, which you can view below:

6 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSForm2678.pdf>

7 Does your private employer have one of these signed forms on file? Chances are he doesn't, and he is withholding
8 ILLEGALLY. That means he is STEALING.

9 So the question then becomes: "By what lawful authority does my private employer deduct and withhold "taxes" on my 10 personal earnings from labor (not "wages", but "earnings") and where is he even defined as an 'employer' in the Internal 11 Revenue Code?" We'll now answer that question.

12 The IRS' own Internal Revenue Manual (IRM) confirms the above, which says:

13                    Internal Revenue Manual
14                    5.14.10.2 (09-30-2004)
15                    Payroll Deduction Agreements

16                    2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction
17                    agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements
19                    [<http://www.irs.gov/irm/part5/ch14s10.html>]

20 The Internal Revenue Code provisions under Subtitle C, Employment Taxes, is based on the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939.
21 That act only lawfully taxed "Public Salaries", which is to say salaries of "public officers" of the United States Government
22 engaged in a "trade or business" only. Below is the definition of "employee" right from the code:

23                    26 U.S.C. Sec. 3401(c) Employee

24                    For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected
25                    official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any 26                    agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of 27                    a corporation.

29                    26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) Employee:

30                    "...the term [employee] includes[is limited to] officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the
31                    United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof, or the District of 32                    Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee' also 33                    includes an officer of a corporation."

34 And the only definition of "employee" that we are aware of that has ever been published in the Federal Register reads as

37                    Employee: "The term employee specifically includes officers and employees whether elected or appointed, of 38                    the United States, a state, territory, or political subdivision thereof or the District of Columbia or any agency or 39                    instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing."

40 Any way you slice it, Subtitle A income taxes are indirect excise taxes upon the "privileges" of "public office" within the 41 federal United States corporation as we pointed out in section 5.1.8. Keep in mind also that a "public office" includes more
42 than just an elected or appointed employment position. Any artificial entity can be a "public office", including a whole
43 company, if it is owned or controlled or under contract with the federal government. Even the U.S. Congress agrees with

1 this conclusion in their “Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the Federal Income Tax”, Congressional Research
2 Service Report 97-59A. See:

3 <http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/CRS/CRS-97-59A-rebuts.pdf>

4 In addition to all the above conclusions, even more important is the fact that Subtitle A income taxes only apply to persons
5 domiciled inside the federal zone, those receiving federal payments, or to those with contracts, agency, or employment with
6 the federal government as we thoroughly documented earlier in sections 5.2 through 5.2.19. This is a product of the fact
7 that the federal government has no police powers inside states of the Union and because the Sixteenth Amendment never
8 delegated the authority to collect direct, unapportioned taxes upon People within states of the Union. It authorizes
9 collection of a direct, unapportioned tax inside the federal zone or federal United States, but not within states of the Union.

10 Since in most cases, the company you work for is not a federal “employer”, then neither you nor that company are the 11 proper subject of either Subtitle A income taxes or Subtitle C employment taxes. But here is the clincher: Either one of 12 you can volunteer to be subject to and liable for these taxes under Subtitle C of the Internal Revenue Code! You, who a
13 “public official” of the United States Government can volunteer to withhold these “donations” to the federal government
14 and once you volunteer by signing a contract/agreement called a W-4, your private employer, if he is within the federal
15 zone, becomes liable to pay them to Uncle Sam under 26 U.S.C. §1461 because if he doesn't, he has defrauded the 16 government. But if you don't decide to donate or withhold, your private employer isn't liable to do anything. The only
17 thing that any private employer is liable to do is to deduct and withhold WHEN YOU ASK him to, and to pay monies
18 deducted to the federal government under 26 U.S.C. §1461. Even then, though, he must maintain a legal domicile in the 19 federal zone or represent a corporation that does under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) in order to be subject to 20 federal law. Businesses in states of the Union aren't within the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code. As a matter of 21 fact, our research in section 5.6.8 reveals that the IRS classifies all employment taxes deducted as gifts to the federal 22 government, which is what Tax Class 5 is! How can a private employer domiciled within states of the Union and outside of 23 federal jurisdiction be held “liable” for not sending gifts to the federal government? Furthermore, we will show in section
24 11 that it would be a serious violation of law for the IRS to coerce or force either you or the business you work for to 25 donate such gifts, because that would amount to solicitation of a bribe, which is just money that is extorted without the 26 authority of law.

27 Now let's look at whether private employers who are not part of the federal government and have no federal workers are 28 allowed to withhold. The U.S. Supreme Court said that the labor of a human being is “property” in a legal sense:

29 “Among these unalienable rights, as proclaimed in that great document [the Declaration of Independence] is 30 the right of men to pursue their happiness, by which is meant, the right any lawful business or vocation, in any
31 manner not inconsistent with the equal rights of others, which may increase their prosperity or develop their
32 faculties, so as to give them their highest enjoyment...It has been well said that, THE PROPERTY WHICH
33 EVERY MAN HAS IN HIS OWN LABOR, AS IT IS THE ORIGINAL FOUNDATION OF ALL OTHER
34 PROPERTY SO IT IS THE MOST SACRED AND INVIOABLE... to hinder his employing this strength and 35 dexterity in what manner he thinks proper without injury to his neighbor, is a plain violation of this most sacred 36 property.”

37 [Butchers' Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884)]

38 Anyone who withholds on earnings from labor that are not connected with a voluntary, excise taxable activity is effecting
39 slavery, because they are literally STEALING property. This is confirmed by examining the withholding regulations at 26
40 C.F.R. §1.1441-2 say that withholding may not be effected on the sale of “property”:

41 Title 26: Internal Revenue

42 PART 1—INCOME TAXES

43 Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Corporations and Tax-Free Covenant Bonds

44 § 1.1441-2 Amounts subject to withholding.

45 (b) Fixed or determinable annual or periodical income—

46 (1) In general—

47 (i) Definition. For purposes of chapter 3 of the Internal Revenue Code and the regulations thereunder, fixed or 48 determinable annual or periodical income includes all income included in gross income under section 61
49 (including original issue discount) except for the items specified in paragraph (b)(2) of this section. Items of 50 income that are excluded from gross income under a provision of law without regard to the U.S. or foreign 51 status of the owner of the income, such as interest excluded from gross income under section 103(a) or qualified scholarship income under section 117, shall not be treated as fixed or determinable annual or periodical income under chapter 3 of the Internal Revenue Code. Income excluded from gross income under section 892 (income of foreign governments) or section 115 (income of a U.S. possession) is fixed or determinable annual or periodical income since the exclusion from gross income under those sections is dependent on the foreign status of the owner of the income. See §1.306-3(h) for treating income from the disposition of section 306 stock as fixed or determinable annual or periodical income.

(2) Exceptions. For purposes of chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder, the items of income described in this paragraph (b)(2) are not fixed or determinable annual or periodical income—

(i) Gains derived from the sale of property (including market discount and option premiums), except for gains described in paragraph (b)(3) or (c) of this section; and

(ii) Any other income that the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) may determine, in published guidance (see §601.601(d)(2) of this chapter), is not fixed or determinable annual or periodical income.

Note that withholding is not authorized on gains derived from any kind of property other than that listed above, and since labor isn't included in the list, then there can be no withholding on "labor". Next, we examine I.R.C. Section 61 to determine whether "labor" is included in the definition of "gross income". We have highlighted and boldfaced and underlined the only portion of that section that relates to "labor" of a human being:

§ 61. Gross income defined \(a\) General definition

Except as otherwise provided in this subtitle, gross income means all income from whatever source derived, including (but not limited to) the following items:

- (1) Compensation for services, including fees, commissions, fringe benefits, and similar items;
- (2) Gross income derived from business;
- (3) Gains derived from dealings in property;
- (4) Interest;
- (5) Rents;
- (6) Royalties;
- (7) Dividends;
- (8) Alimony and separate maintenance payments;
- (9) Annuities;
- (10) Income from life insurance and endowment contracts;
- (11) Pensions;
- (12) Income from discharge of indebtedness;
- (13) Distributive share of partnership gross income;
- (14) Income in respect of a decedent; and
- (15) Income from an interest in an estate or trust.

The above definition uses several tricky "words of art: to deceive the reader about withholding on "labor", such as "compensation", "services", etc. These "words of art" are then defined in the Classification Act of 1923, 42 Stat. 1988 as follows:

1. "department": "the term 'department' means an executive department of the United States Government, a governmental establishment in the executive branch of the United States Government which is not a part of an executive department, the municipal government of the District of Columbia, the Botanic garden, Library of Congress, Library Building and Grounds, Government Printing Office (GPO), and the Smithsonian Institution."
2. "position": "means a specific civilian office or employment, whether occupied or vacant, in a department other than the following: Offices or employments in the Postal Service; teachers, librarians, school attendance officers, and employees of the community center department under the Board of Education of the District of Columbia; officers and members of the Metropolitan police, the fire department of the District of Columbia, and the United States park police; and the commissioned personnel of the Coast Guard, the public Health Service, and the Coast and Geodetic Survey."
3. "employee": "means any person temporarily or permanently in a position."
4. "service": "means the broadest division of related offices and employments."
5. "compensation": "means any salary, wage, fee, allowance, or other emolument paid to an employee for service in a position."

1 What the above definitions show, is that "labor", in the context of I.R.C., Subtitle A, is not the commodity being taxed.
 2 Rather, "compensation" for "services" performed in conduct of a "trade or business", which is defined in 26 U.S.C.
 3 §7701\(a\)\(26\) as "the functions of a public office" is the voluntary, excise taxable activity that is being taxed. Remember,
 4 Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax upon privileged, excise taxable activities, according to the U.S.
 5 Supreme Court. The "activity" is a "trade or business", which is basically privileged employment with the federal 6 government:

7 "..by the previous ruling it was settled that the provisions of the Sixteenth Amendment conferred no new
 8 power of taxation but simply prohibited the previous complete and plenary power of income taxation
 9 possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category of indirect [excise] taxation
 10 to which it inherently belonged and being placed in the category of direct taxation subject to apportionment
 11 by a consideration of the sources from which the income was derived, that is by testing the tax not by what it
 12 was -- a tax on income, but by a mistaken theory deduced from the origin or source of the income taxed. "
 13 [Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)]

14 The Supreme Court also said after Congress attempted to establish the first income tax in 1862 to fund the civil war that a
 15 "trade or business" cannot be licensed or taxed within the borders of a state of the Union:

16 "Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and
 17 with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to
 18 trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive
 19 power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the
 20 granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

21 But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this
 22 commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs
 23 exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is
 24 warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to
 25 the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of
 26 the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given
 27 in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it
 28 must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited,
 29 and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing
 30 subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
 31 [License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

32 You will also note that the Supreme Court has said that no one may withhold the wages of a worker against his will:

33 "Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can 34 rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will..."
 35 [The Antelope, 23 U.S. 66; 10 Wheat 66; 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

36 Even the statutes confirm that labor is not a commodity or article of commerce that therefore may be "taxed":

37 United States Code
 38 TITLE 15 - COMMERCE AND TRADE
 39 CHAPTER 1 - MONOPOLIES AND COMBINATIONS IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE
 40 Sec. 17. Antitrust laws not applicable to labor organizations

41 The labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce....

42 Now let's look at what the Bible says about the theft and fraud of holding back the wages of the laborer, and it's not pretty,
 43 Mr. Employer:

44 "The laborer is worthy of [ALL of ] his wages."
 45 [1 Tim. 5:18, Bible, NKJV]

46 "Woe to him who builds his house by unrighteousness
 47 And his chambers by injustice,
 48 Who [whether individual or government] uses his neighbor's service without wages
 49 And gives him nothing for his work,"
 50 [Jer. 22:13, Bible, NKJV]

51 "Come now, you rich, weep and howl for your miseries that are coming upon you! Your riches are corrupted,
 52 and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver are corroded, and their corrosion will be a witness

1 against you and will eat your flesh like fire. You have heaped up treasure in the last days. 4 Indeed the wages of
 2 the laborers who mowed your fields, which you kept back by fraud, cry out; and the cries of the reapers have
 3 reached the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth. 5 You [the business owner who controls the purse of the workers] have 4 lived on the earth in pleasure and luxury; you have fattened your hearts as <sup>b</sup> in a day of slaughter. You have 5 condemned, you have murdered the just; he does not resist you. "
 6 [James 5:1-6, Bible, NKJV]

7 "You shall not cheat your neighbor, nor rob him. The wages of him who is hired shall not remain with you all
 8 night until morning. "
 9 [Lev. 19:13, Bible, NKJV]

10 Any way you look at it, private employers who don't have privileged federal "employees" for workers cannot withhold
 11 against the wishes of the workers and if they do, they are STEALING and violating both man's law and God's law. There
 12 is nothing in federal law or state law that would indemnify them from such STEALING. They are no better than petty
 13 street criminals, and any payroll clerk who doesn't understand this is a sitting duck for any worker who is even mildly
 14 educated about the law and willing to defend his rights.

15 5.4.25 The money you pay to government is an illegal bribe to public officials

16 For those who deduct payroll taxes involuntarily and without consent, the money they pay either through Subtitle C
 17 withholding or through Subtitle A 1040 returns amounts to extortion under the color of law and a compelled bribe because 18 there is no liability statute and no Constitutional authority to collect inside states of the Union. The payments amount to 19 extortion because:

- 20 1. The IRS threatens and pressures private employers to withhold on their employees.
- 21 2. Private employers make payment of income taxes based on the above pressure a precondition of obtaining or keeping a 22 job.
- 23 3. The IRS and the Department of Injustice terrorize and legally harass employers who choose not to withhold. Case in 24 point is Arrow Plastics, whose proprietor Dick Simkanin was hounded for three straight years in what amounts to an
 25 abuse of the legal system and forced labor in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1589. The DOJ had to endlessly pester three 26 different grand juries and he appeared to testify in front of the first two but they didn't get an indictment until they 27 were able to keep him away from the third grand jury.

28 This illegally paid and collected money contributes to the corruption and delinquency of our elected or appointed officers,
 29 because it enhances their power and influence and causes them to commit treason against the republic by transforming it
 30 into a socialist democracy and starting up all kinds of government handout programs. Here is the law making this bribe
 31 illegal:

32 TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 11 > Sec. 201.
 33 Sec. 201. - Bribery of public officials and witnesses

34 (b) Whoever -

35 (1) directly or indirectly, corruptly gives, offers or promises anything of value to any public official or
 36 person who has been selected to be a public official, or offers or promises any public official or any person
 37 who has been selected to be a public official to give anything of value to any other person or entity, with 38 intent -

39 (A) to influence any official act; or

40 (B) to influence such public official or person who has been selected to be a public official to 41 commit or aid in committing, or collude in, or allow, any fraud, or make opportunity for the 42 commission of any fraud, on the United States; or

43 (C) to induce such public official or such person who has been selected to be a public official to do
 44 or omit to do any act in violation of the lawful duty of such official or person;

45 (2) being a public official or person selected to be a public official, directly or indirectly, corruptly
 46 demands, seeks, receives, accepts, or agrees to receive or accept anything of value personally or for any 47 other person or entity, in return for:

48 (A) being influenced in the performance of any official act;

(B) being influenced to commit or aid in committing, or to collude in, or allow, any fraud, or make opportunity for the commission of any fraud on the United States; or

(C) being induced to do or omit to do any act in violation of the official duty of such official or person;

(3) directly or indirectly, corruptly gives, offers, or promises anything of value to any person, or offers or promises such person to give anything of value to any other person or entity, with intent to influence the testimony under oath or affirmation of such first-mentioned person as a witness upon a trial, hearing, or other proceeding, before any court, any committee of either House or both Houses of Congress, or any agency, commission, or officer authorized by the laws of the United States to hear evidence or take testimony, or with intent to influence such person to absent himself therefrom;

(4) directly or indirectly, corruptly demands, seeks, receives, accepts, or agrees to receive or accept anything of value personally or for any other person or entity in return for being influenced in testimony under oath or affirmation as a witness upon any such trial, hearing, or other proceeding, or in return for absenting himself therefrom; shall be fined under this title or not more than three times the monetary equivalent of the thing of value, whichever is greater, or imprisoned for not more than fifteen years, or both, and may be disqualified from holding any office of honor, trust, or profit under the United States.

Since Article 4, Section 4, Clause 1 of the U.S. Constitution requires that the United States Government shall guarantee a republican form of government to each state in the union, then anyone who pays such bribes or accepts them is committing treason by doing so. They are also subsidizing the oppression of fellow Americans, treason, and conspiracy against the rights of their fellow Americans. Have you ever been to the zoo and seen the sign that says "Please don't feed the animals"? Well, I think we need one on every federal building and on every Internal Revenue Service form you fill out. The animals are your public dis-servants!

Since you must be a "public officers" of the U.S. government in order to be the proper subject of Subtitle C employment taxes as indicated above, your voluntary payment of employment taxes amounts to a bribe to procure public office!

Sec. 210. - Offer to procure appointive public office

Whoever pays or offers or promises any money or thing of value, to any person, firm, or corporation in consideration of the use or promise to use any influence to procure any appointive office or place under the United States for any person, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than one year, or both

That's right, you have made yourself into a criminal by volunteering to pay Subtitle C Employment Taxes and the judges and your Congressmen just look the other way because they are bought and paid for with your bribes, which you never would have paid if they had told you the truth to begin with.

That's not all folks. Recall from our investigation earlier in section 2.8.10 that the Federal Reserve is a private, for profit trust which is not part of the federal U.S. government. It is foreign to the U.S. government. It is not federal, there are no "reserves" and calling it this is a FRAUD! Even the federal courts agreed that the Federal Reserve is a private trust in Lewis v. U.S., 680 F.2d. 1238, 1241 (1982). Also recall that most of the income tax revenues go to the Federal Reserve to pay off the national debt to the private, foreign Federal Reserve. In that capacity, the U.S. Congress and the IRS are acting as collection agents for a foreign principal. Did your Congressman register as an agent of a foreign principal as required by law to indicate that he is a collection agent of that foreign principal?

Sec. 219. - Officers and employees acting as agents of foreign principals

(a) Whoever, being a public official, is or acts as an agent of a foreign principal required to register under the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938 or a lobbyist required to register under the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 in connection with the representation of a foreign entity, as defined in section 3(6) of that Act shall be fined under this title or imprisoned for not more than two years, or both.

(b) Nothing in this section shall apply to the employment of any agent of a foreign principal as a special Government employee in any case in which the head of the employing agency certifies that such employment is required in the national interest. A copy of any certification under this paragraph shall be forwarded by the head of such agency to the Attorney General who shall cause the same to be filed with the registration statement and other documents filed by such agent, and made available for public inspection in accordance with section 6 of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended.

(c) For the purpose of this section "public official" means Member of Congress, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner [IRS Commissioner!], either before or after he has qualified, or an officer or employee or person acting for or on behalf of the United States, or any department, agency, or branch of Government thereof, including the District of Columbia, in any official function, under or by authority of any such department, agency, or branch of Government

You might want to do a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request of your Congressman and ask him for his Foreign Agent Registration documents. What? He doesn't have them? Prosecute the criminal and have him thrown in jail for two years like the IRS mafia did to Congressman James Traficant! Your Congressmen and their henchmen at the IRS are traitors and criminals, and these laws prove it! Anyone who sends their hard-earned money to Washington, D.C. is subsidizing criminal activity and is involved in a financial crimes enterprise in violation of 18 U.S.C. §225, and they are subsidizing bank robbery under 18 U.S.C. §2113 and the monetary transactions derived from unlawful activity under 18 U.S.C. 1957. In short, they are traitors. You can't pay Subtitle C taxes, which are technically gifts, without being a criminal and in effect bribing your Congressman and the IRS. Remember, it is Congress who decides how the money you donate is spent.

What about your private employer? His federal Employer Identification Number is what identifies him as part of the Federal Corporation called the United States government identified in 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\). He is acting as a voluntary agent of the federal government under the "color of law". In order to act as such an agent, he has to fill out IRS Form 2678 in accordance with 26 U.S.C. §3504 and be designated as a "withholding agent" by the Secretary of the Treasury, which most private employers have never done. Here is that section:

Sec. 3504. - Acts to be performed by agents

In case a fiduciary, agent, or other person has the control, receipt, custody, or disposal of, or pays the wages of an employee or group of employees, employed by one or more employers, the Secretary, under regulations prescribed by him, is authorized to designate such fiduciary, agent, or other person to perform such acts as are required of employers under this title and as the Secretary may specify. Except as may be otherwise prescribed by the Secretary, all provisions of law (including penalties) applicable in respect of an employer shall be applicable to a fiduciary, agent, or other person so designated but, except as so provided, the employer for whom such fiduciary, agent, or other person acts shall remain subject to the provisions of law (including penalties) applicable in respect of employers

Congress, through the above statute, may not delegate to the Secretary an authority that they themselves do not have. Remember that the only "employees" they are referring to above are federal "employees" and the reason the Secretary has jurisdiction to appoint such agents is because he is exercising in rem jurisdiction over wages paid to "public officers" of the United States government, because part of those wages belong to the federal government and are a kickback that must be recovered, as we reveal later in section 5.6.10. At the point that your private employer submits IRS Form 2678 and "volunteers" to be a withholding agent, the form says the following about his obligations:

"It is understood that the agent and the employer or payer are subject to all provisions of law and regulations (including penalties) which apply to employers or payers."

However, even if your private, nonfederal employer tried to volunteer as a "withholding agent", the Constitution doesn't authorize the federal government or the Secretary of the Treasury to appoint private employers within states of the Union as "withholding agents" for Subtitle A taxes so they are acting illegally.

"Illegal. Against or not authorized by law."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 747]

"The Government of the United States, therefore, can claim no powers which are not [explicitly] granted to it by the Constitution, and the powers actually granted must be such as are expressly given, or given by necessary implication."
Buffington v. Day, 11 Wall. 113, [78 U.S. 122 (1871)]

You can confirm the above assertions by requesting a copy of his delegation order and seeing whether it says the Secretary can do this with private employers. You will find as we have in doing so that he doesn't have this authority. If he doesn't have that authority, then he can't delegate it to the IRS. That means your private employer is not operating with the authority of federal law and really has no lawful authority at all to act as a "withholding agent" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16). If his actions as a voluntary federal agent result in an oppression of your sacred Constitutional rights, then he is liable under equity jurisdiction in any state court for the injury or tort that he causes you. Plain and simple. Even if your

1 employer isn't being compensated for his acts as a federal agent, he can be prosecuted under the same standards as a
2 government employee! This opens a whole new realm of possibilities, folks.

3 As an agent of a foreign principal, the federal reserve, your private employer is part of this criminal conspiracy and treason
4 against the constitutional republic. He is a communist and a socialist, in fact, as we showed in the introduction to this
5 chapter. This is especially true if he forces you to pay payroll taxes by threatening to fire or discipline you if you don't file
6 a W-4 with him or her to initiate withholding. Since he has no lawful authority to deduct or withhold the taxes, being
7 outside the exclusive territorial jurisdiction of the United States government under Subtitles A or C of the I.R.C., then
8 coercing you to deduct or withhold or filing a W-4 without your consent is a clear violation of the Fifth Amendment, which 9 says that we can't be deprived of our property without due process of law or just compensation.

10 There aren't a lot of private employees who would resort to suing their employers, because this would amount to looking a
11 gift horse in the mouth, but this is what most ignorant employers deserve for their negligent and harmful administration of
12 payroll tax withholding. If your employer in effect discriminates against you because you refuse to volunteer, ignorantly
13 and wrongfully thinking that he has the authority by law to compel you to withhold, then you have a case with the Equal 14 Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC for employment discrimination based on your religious beliefs and based on 15 8 U.S.C. §1324(a)(3)(A). The same argument applies if they won't accept the government form you choose to submit to 16 stop withholding, which in most cases is the Amended W-8BEN form we have on our website. If they say they won't
17 accept the Amended W-8BEN and demand a W-4, then they are violating your First Amendment rights by telling you how 18 you can or must communicate with your government. Free speech implies the ability to either not communicate at all with 19 your government or to communicate on the forms that YOU choose. If you have a coercive or tyrannical employer, then
20 lodging a formal complaint with the EEOC might be an effective strategy to twist their arm. You'll have your employer
21 scurrying like cockroaches when the lights come on with such tactics, folks!

22 5.4.26 How a person can “volunteer” to become liable for paying income tax?

23 Even if a person is not liable for paying any federal taxes on their income, they can nevertheless “volunteer” to make
24 themselves liable to pay. This topic is also discussed in section 3.12.1.21, where we talk about “Taxpayer.” For instance, if 25 you have a large income but none of it is taxable as “gross income”, you can make yourself liable anyway simply by
26 misreporting nontaxable income as taxable on a 1040 form, signing it, and sending it in! That's called a donation. Do you
27 think the IRS will argue with or correct people who do this? Quite the contrary, they will prosecute such people if they can 28 get more money out of them! This was clearly stated in the case of Lyddon & Company v. U.S., 158 F.Supp. 951:

29 “When one files a tax return showing taxes due, he has, presumably, assessed himself and is content to become
30 liable for the tax, and to pay it either when it is due according to statute, or when he can get the money
31 together.”

32 There are other equally important choices we can make that will identify us as “volunteers who want to pay federal income
33 taxes” as far as the federal courts are concerned. Here are just a few:

- 34 1. Claiming we are a U.S.** citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401, which we should never do on any piece of paper we sign.
35 Instead, if we have to claim we are a U.S. citizen in order to vote, for instance, then we should always clarify exactly
36 what we mean, which is that we are a “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), but not a statutory “U.S.** citizen”
37 under 8 U.S.C. §1401. Once we are a statutory “U.S. person”/“U.S. citizen”/“U.S. resident”, we are completely 38 subject to federal jurisdiction, which is a BAD idea with federal court system as corrupt as the one we have.
- 39 2. Submitting a 1040, which tells the IRS we are electing to be a statutory “U.S. citizen”, statutory “resident alien”, or a 40 statutory “U.S. person” and a resident or domiciliary of the District of Columbia and the federal zone. The correct
41 form to submit is the W-8BEN and the 1040NR, which makes us a nonresident alien with respect to federal income
42 taxes.
- 43 3. Signing up for the Social Security program or receiving a Social Security Number and saying we are “U.S. citizens” on 44 the SSA Form SS-5. We instead need to specify on the SSA Form SS-5 that we are “nationals” under 8 U.S.C.
45 §1101(a)(21). We also need to change the status of our SSN by submitting a W-8BEN to the IRS and asking them to 46 register us as “nationals” and “nonresident aliens” rather than “U.S. citizens”, or else we by default become “U.S.** 47 citizens” who have no constitutional rights.
- 48 4. Signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4 or W-4 Exempt to the private company we work for. This identifies us as a 49 federal “employee” who has made an election to be treated as being involved in a “trade or business”, which is defined
50 in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a trade or business”.

5. When we use the postal system and put zip codes on our mail and use state abbreviations. We should instead use the full state name and put all postal zip codes in parentheses to emphasize that we are not subjecting ourselves to federal jurisdiction.

Below is how one of our readers succinctly described how we volunteer to become liable to pay federal income taxes:

"There seems to be two camps. One says the tax is illegal and doesn't apply to them...ie (Joe Banister) 16th amendment wasn't properly ratified, taxes aren't apportioned ...etc. All these and related arguments miss an important and critical point. Why is it that a 'patriot' finds himself in court.. makes a valid argument...and then loses the case? Why did Robert Clarkson spend five years in jail.. convicted of interfering with IRS operations. The judge would not allow any first amendment arguments. Everyone thought the judge was a communist pinko. The judge was right when he said no free speech arguments would be allowed because the constitution did not apply. Everyone missed the real issue including Robert who did five years. I reject the court's decision... but THE JUDGE WAS RIGHT."

"The citizenship issue is a huge issue or should I say nexus. I ran into a fella a while back that had the case cite where a judge said we become citizens of the corporate U.S. when we pay the first dollar into social security as an adult; and our use of the current postal system. The judge declined to elaborate but (here I'm being very optimistic) was trying to tell the litigant what he must do to beat the infidels back. I have expatriated / re-patriated, filed my UCC documents, and am making use of common law trusts. Appears that everything is working and soon I will find out in an up-coming court case.... The ex-patriating issue and KNOWING how the uniform commercial code and how we get into contracts with the corporate US seems to be the minimum we must know and defend. For nearly thirty years I have heard it all from sincere but wide-eyed 'patriots' who were eager to convince me how the income tax was illegal...blah, blah, blah. It never occurred to them that they are not SUBJECT TO the tax (even if it was legal). Several judges I see now and then are now avoiding me. I made the 'mistake' of asking them about jurisdiction and straw man and Uniform Commercial Code issues. Squirm and sweat describes their responses. Maybe we haven't found the "Magic-Bullet" yet but it seems that we are very close."

Therefore, all of our problems begin when we claim to be persons domiciled within exclusive federal jurisdiction, which includes "U.S. citizens" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or "residents" (aliens with a domicile) under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). This is what makes us slaves of the state in the pursuit of taxable government privileges and benefits, whether they be the right to vote, social security, driver's licenses, permits, etc. In a way, one could say that the effort by the government to fool American Nationals, who are "non-resident no9n-persons", into claiming they are domiciliaries of the federal zone constitutes the crime of "conspiracy against rights" in violation of 18 U.S.C. §241, because once we become domiciliaries of the federal zone, we lose all our rights and no one including the states may interfere. Once we declare ourselves (usually falsely) to be STATUTORY "U.S. citizens" or "residents", we become nonresidents in our own CONSTITUTIONAL state and divorce our state. We also now become privileged "franchisees" and "dependents" of the "parens patriae" federal government. We're slaves, and from that point on our government will call us "taxpayers", which is nothing but a polite way to say that we are federal whores! At that point, every visit we make to a federal court assumes that we have the burden of proving that we are not whores, I mean "taxpayers". Every case is litigated in equity rather than the Constitution, and the federal courts become administrative courts to enforce our voluntary "domicile contract", which amounts to indentured servanthood. But keep in mind that "U.S. citizenship" status is voluntary, according to the U.S. supreme Court as follows:

"The citizen cannot complain, because he has voluntarily submitted himself to such a form of government. He owes allegiance to the two departments, so to speak, and within their respective spheres must pay the penalties which each exacts for disobedience to its laws. In return, he can demand protection from each within its own jurisdiction."

If you don't want the "privileges" of being a domiciliary of the federal zone, then your government, in a free country, can't force you to accept them or pay for them through income taxes. Compelled receipt of and payment for a government benefit is not a benefit at all, but slavery disguised as government benevolence in plain violation of the Thirteenth Amendment. Period, end of discussion. It's ludicrous the way our government treats "taxpayers" to even claim in the first place that being a statutory "U.S. person" or "U.S. citizen" is a "privilege"! What a joke!

Remember the following important facts regarding the voluntary nature of "domicile". Also remember that under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), our "domicile" and any agency we are exercising is where federal courts get civil jurisdiction. The main purpose of the Federal District Courts is to facilitate "business" or "commerce" by enforcing the Social Security contract with otherwise sovereign Americans in the states. Also remember that:

1. "Domicile" is the origin of the government's tax jurisdiction.
2. The choice of "domicile" is voluntary and we aren't obligated to have ANY earthly domicile.
3. All "residents" are "aliens" with a domicile in the federal zone. See 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
4. All "U.S. citizens" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 are American Nationals with a domicile in the federal zone. They are automatically also "nationals" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22).
5. A "U.S. citizen" cannot renounce their "national" status while in the "United States" under 8 U.S.C. §1483(a).
6. The government cannot remove any aspect of your citizenship status without your voluntary consent and participation, because citizenship is a right and a contract, once granted by the government, and can only be revoked by the recipient, which is you. See Afroyim v. Rusk, 387 U.S. 253 (1967):

"Citizen has constitutional right to remain a citizen in a free country unless he voluntarily relinquishes that citizenship."

7. If you change your domicile to be outside the federal zone, you still retain your "national" status but lose your statutory "U.S. citizen" status under 8 U.S.C. §1401. The government can't take away your "national" status in the process, because they can't take away your citizenship without your consent.
8. 8 U.S.C. §1452 describes how to obtain evidence that you are a "non-citizen national" if you were born in a U.S. possession.
9. We have procedures on how to change your domicile and amend government records to remove any presumed statutory "U.S. citizen" status to become exclusively a "national" but not a "citizen" in section 2.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005.

5.4.27 Popular illegal government techniques for coercing "consent"

Now that we have firmly established that consent is required in the assessment and collection of income taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, it's reasonable to ask what devious and illegal means the government uses to coerce "consent" or what they popularly call "voluntary compliance" out of the populace. We covered such techniques generally earlier in section 4.3.16, but it is reasonable to particularize the techniques down so that we can be very aware of the tools of coercion, force, and fraud used directly against us in the case of income taxation. We will therefore itemize each technique into a very specific "MO", which is a "Method of Operation" used by criminal public servants for accomplishing their crime. The reason we put this section at the end of the treatment of the "voluntary" nature of income taxes is so that we can start from the point of knowing exactly what the lawful limits are upon the IRS' authority. The techniques in the following subsections will be listed in order of the frequency they occur.

5.4.27.1 Deceptive language and words of art

IRS makes false presumptions about the meaning of several important words in its publications and forms and website which it is unwilling to share with you and which prejudice your rights and sovereignty in most cases. In such a case, we must remind ourselves what the U.S. Supreme Court said about the abuse of "presumption" to exceed the authority of the Constitution:

"The power to create [false] presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions,"
[New York Times v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964)]

The purpose of these "words of art" is to deceive you into believing their false presumptions and thereby commit constructive fraud. The abused words include, but are not limited to:

1. "United States"
2. "State"
3. "state"
4. "foreign"
5. "nonresident alien"
6. "U.S. citizen"
7. "employee"
8. "income"
9. "gross income"
10. "trade or business"
11. "wages"

1 12. "individual"

2 The only way to overcome false presumptions about the meaning of the above words is to read the codes and laws for
3 oneself, which the IRS knows that few Americans will do. This constructive fraud counts on the following elements to be 4 successful:

- 5 1. A deficient public education system run by the government which dumbs-down Americans by not teaching them either 6 "law" or "constitutional law", in any grammar, junior high, or high school curricula.
- 7 2. College and university curricula in government-run universities that do not require the study of any aspect of law for 8 most majors.
- 9 3. IRS and government websites that do not define the meaning of these words. See section 3.12.1 and following earlier 10 for examples.
- 11 4. IRS publications that deliberately do not define the meaning of these words.
- 12 5. Legal dictionaries that have had these critical words removed so that they cannot be easily understood. For instance, 13 no legal dictionary published at this time that we could find has a definition of the term "United States" in it. See 14 section 6.10.1 later, for instance.
- 15 6. Federal courts that have become vehicles for political propaganda and terrorism rather than justice. See sections 2.8.13 16 through 2.8.13.8.1 earlier.
- 17 7. A refusal, upon submitting a Freedom of Information Act Request, to provide an unambiguous and honest definition of 18 these words that includes the WHOLE truth.

19 Those who try to educate the public about the legal meaning of the above words have been persecuted by the IRS, and this 20 includes us. If you would like to learn more about this fraud, consult:

- 21 • Subsections underneath section 3.12.1 earlier.
- 22 • Section 5.10 later about vague laws

23 5.4.27.2 Ignoring Responsive Correspondence to Collection Notices

24 When the IRS attempts illegal collection actions against Americans, they send out threatening correspondence, often via 25 certified mail. Many recipients respond faithfully to this correspondence, using research from this book, documenting that 26 the IRS is:

- 27 1. Violating enacted positive law.
- 28 2. Wrongfully enforcing against a "nontaxpayer".
- 29 3. Involved in racketeering and organized extortion.
- 30 4. Collecting without the consent of the target.

31 We call such responses to illegal enforcement actions "response letters". Any time a person sends a response letter to the 32 IRS, they are doing what is called "Petitioning their government for illegal and unconstitutional abuses." The First 33 Amendment to the U.S. Constitution makes petitioning the government a protected right, the exercise of which cannot 34 be penalized. Such a petition also requires an earnest response by the IRS and due respect for the legal issues raised in it.
35 Seldom are these response letters read or even responded to by the IRS. Instead, the IRS routinely penalizes those 36 submitting such correspondence by:

- 37 1. Instituting penalties illegally and in violation of the Constitutional prohibition against Bills of Attainder. A Bill of 38 Attainder is a penalty without a court trial, and it is prohibited by Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution against 39 natural persons.
- 40 2. Creating additional retaliatory assessments.
- 41 3. Falsifying the Individual Master File (IMF) of the respondent by indicating that they are involved in criminal activity.
42 When the respondent notices this in their record, then the IRS refuses to correct the computer fraud, which is actually a
43 violation of 18 U.S.C. §1030. See our Master File Decoder for how this fraud works:
44 <http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Programs/MFDecoder/MFDecoder.htm>

45 5.4.27.3 Fraudulent forms and publications

The IRS publications are constructively fraudulent. Their purpose is mainly as a government propaganda vehicle intended to encourage false presumption, because they exclude discussion of any of the below subjects, and therefore encourage incorrect conclusions about the tax liability of the reader:

1. The limits upon federal jurisdiction.
2. The implications of these limits upon the definition of terms such as "United States", "State", "employee", and "income"
3. The fact that the Internal Revenue Code is not "law" and therefore imposes no obligation upon anyone except those who consent to be subject to its provisions.
4. The fact that the Internal Revenue Code does not describe a lawful "tax" as defined by the Supreme Court
5. The dual nature of the Internal Revenue Code as a municipal tax upon all federal territories, possessions, and the District of Columbia as well as a "national" tax upon imports of corporations ONLY.

The IRS admits that its publications are not trustworthy, by saying in its Internal Revenue Manual (IRM) the following:

"IRS Publications, issued by the National Office, explain the law in plain language for taxpayers and their advisors... While a good source of general information, publications should not be cited to sustain a position."
 [Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8 (05-14-1999)]

If you would like to learn more detail about this subject, read:

- Section 3.12 earlier on "words of art"
- Section 5.5.9 about fraud in the use of the 1040 form

- Our website article describing how the courts refuse to hold the IRS responsible for the content of its publications, forms, and telephone advice at: <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm>

5.4.27.4 Political propaganda

There are five main sources of political propaganda designed to terrorize the American public into consenting to comply with the I.R.C. These sources are:

1. The IRS tax fraud alerts at: <http://www.irs.gov/compliance/enforcement/article/0,,id=121259,00.html>
2. The Department of Injustice press releases. See: <http://www.usdoj.gov/tax/TEN.htm>
3. Press releases leaked indirectly to the media.
4. Deliberately deceiving publications of the Congressional Research Service. This includes Congressional Research Service report 97-59A entitled "Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the Federal Income Tax. We publish a rebutted version of the pamphlet later in the book.
<http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/CRS/CRS-97-59A-rebuts.pdf>
5. Informal publications posted on the IRS website which the IRS refuses to take responsibility for. This includes the IRS pamphlet below:

The Truth About Frivolous Tax Arguments, Internal Revenue Service
http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/friv\_tax\_rebuts.pdf

6. Abuse of caselaw for political rather than legal purposes. The IRS will quote irrelevant federal caselaw from federal courts that have no jurisdiction over us because we do not live on federal property. They will do this in violation of their own Internal Revenue Manual, which says on the subject the following:

Internal Revenue Manual
4.10.7.2.9.8 \(05-14-1999\) Importance of Court Decisions

1. Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

2. Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same weight as the Code.

1                   3. Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the
 2                   Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not
 3                   require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers.

4 Because none of these sources portray the relevant, complete or most important truth about the limits upon federal taxing
 5 powers, the result is that they exploit ignorance to create fear of the government and the IRS in order to encourage 6 "voluntary compliance". We might add that any decision accomplished in the presence of fear, at least in the context of 7 rape, cannot be considered "consensual". The only way consent can lawfully be procured is when it is FULLY
 8 INFORMED, meaning that the decision maker is give the WHOLE truth upon which to make his decision, rather than only 9 that subset of the truth which benefits the government.

10                   "Waivers of constitutional rights not only must be voluntary but must be knowing, intelligent acts done with

13 5.4.27.5      Deception of private companies and financial institutions

14 Through a systematic campaign of dis-information, the IRS deceives private companies outside of its jurisdiction into 15 believing that they are required to comply with whatever IRS agents tell them on the telephone or whatever gets mailed to 16 them in the form of a Notice of Levy or a Notice of Lien. The most famous private company, No Time Delay Electronics,
 17 Nick Jesson, which challenged the IRS authority to use such tactics has been targeted for endless legal harassment and 18 terrorism by the IRS and the Franchise Tax Board. The owner of that establishment, Nick Jesson, was featured on the 19 movie on our website entitled "How to Keep 100% of Your Earnings" at:

20 <http://famguardian.org/Media/movie.htm>

21 Mr. Jesson eventually became the target of endless legal terrorism, the techniques of which are documented in the next
 22 section.

23 Private employers not within the jurisdiction of the federal government that don't ask any questions and comply with illegal
 24 requests by the IRS are left alone. However, those that request any of the following are harassed and terrorized:

- 25 1. Proof of the legal identity and service of process address of the person in the IRS who is making the request or sending
- 26 the illegal Notice of Lien or Notice of Levy.
- 27 2. The basis upon which to believe that the I.R.C. is "law".
- 28 3. Why the Notice of Levy form 668A-c(DO) is missing paragraph (a) of 26 U.S.C. §6331, which states that levies are
- 29 limited only to elected or appointed officers of the United States government or federal "instrumentalities" such as
- 30 "public officers".
- 31 4. An abstract of judgment signed by a judge authorizing the levy or lien of the property of the accused. The "Notice of
- 32 Levy" and "Notice Of Lien" must meet the requirements of the Fifth Amendment, which requires that all such takings
- 33 of property must be signed by a judge and be executed ONLY through judicial process.

34 In response to questions of the kind above, the IRS only offers threats, because it can't demonstrate legal authority.
 35 Disinformation of payroll people at private companies is effected mainly through the techniques documented later in 36 section 5.4.27.8. If you would like to learn how to fight such underhanded intimidation of private companies and financial 37 institutions in the context of withholding, please refer to our free pamphlet below:

38 5.4.27.6      Legal terrorism

39 Those people who expose the illegal and fraudulent dealings of the government relating to income taxes are frequently
 40 targeted for endless litigation and terrorism by the government. The nature of litigation is that it is expensive, very time-
 41 consuming, and complex. The government institutes what is called "malicious abuse of legal process" to essentially wear
 42 down, distract, and plunder their opponents of financial resources. Most Americans are unfamiliar with the legal process,
 43 and when falsely accused or litigated against by the government, must hire an expensive attorney. This attorney, who is 44 licensed by the government, becomes just another government prosecutor against them who essentially bilks their assets

1 while cooperating subtly with the government in ensuring a conviction. It doesn't take long to exhaust the financial
 2 resources of the falsely accused American, and so even if there is no money left for the IRS to collect at that point, they
 3 have still accomplished the financial punishment that they sought originally. As long as it really hurts financially to not
 4 "consent", then the government will win in the end.

5 We must remember, however, that such an abuse of legal process to effect the equivalent of slavery, is a crime if effected
 6 within federal jurisdiction. The government parties who cooperate in such legal terrorism become personally liable for this
 7 type of slavery:

8 TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 77 > Sec. 1589.
 9 Sec. 1589. - Forced labor

10 Whoever knowingly provides or obtains the labor or services of a person -

11 (3) by means of the abuse or threatened abuse of law or the legal process.

12 shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than 20 years, or both. If death results from the violation
 13 of this section, or if the violation includes kidnapping or an attempt to kidnap, aggravated sexual abuse or the 14 attempt to commit aggravated sexual abuse, or an attempt to kill, the defendant shall be fined under this title or 15 imprisoned for any term of years or life, or both

16 The slavery produced by this legal terrorism also violates the Thirteenth Amendment prohibition against involuntary

18 5.4.27.7 Coercion of federal judges

19 Since 1918, federal judges sitting in the District and Circuit courts have been subject to IRS extortion and coercion. Since
 20 1938, this extortion has enjoyed the blessing of no less than the U.S. Supreme Court. The Revenue Act of 1918, section
 21 213, 40 Stat. 1057, was the first federal law to impose income taxes on federal judges. That act was challenged by federal
 22 judges in the case of Miles v. Graham, 268 U.S. 501 (1924) and the judges won. Congress attempted again in the Revenue
 23 Act of 1932, section 22, to do the same thing by much more devious means. Federal judges again challenged the attempt in 24 the case of O'Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277 (1939), and lost. Since that time, the independence of the federal 25 judiciary on the subject of taxation has been completely compromised. No judge who is subject to IRS extortion can 26 possibly be objective when ruling on an income tax issue. He cannot faithfully and with integrity perform his job without
 27 violating 28 U.S.C. §144, 28 U.S.C. §455, and 18 U.S.C. §208. Consequently, the rulings of the federal district and circuit
 28 courts since that time have consistently favored the government, and thereby prejudiced the rights of the sovereign people.
 29 Every case involving a judge with this kind of conflict of interest can only be described as violation of due process of law,
 30 which requires both an impartial jury AND judge to preside over the trial. The very problem documented in the 31 Declaration of Independence that was the reason for creating this country to begin with has once again come back to haunt
 32 us:

33 "They have made Judges dependent on their will alone, for the tenure of their offices and the amount and 34 payment of their salaries."
 35 [Declaration of Independence]

36 An entire book has been written about the corruption of the federal judiciary and its nature as an Article IV, territorial court
 37 which enjoys no jurisdiction in states of the Union, if you wish to investigate further:

5.4.27.8 Manipulation, licensing, and coercion of CPA's, Payroll clerks, Tax Preparers, and Lawyers

The IRS maintains several "education programs" for tax preparers, tax professionals, payroll people, and CPAs, which have really become nothing but propaganda, disinformation, and terrorism mechanisms. Below are a few:

1. TaxTalk Today, Internal Revenue Service: A website devoted to "educating" tax attorneys, CPAs, and payroll people. See <http://www.taxtalktoday.tv/>
2. Tax Professionals Area: Area on their website devoted to propagandizing tax professionals. See: <http://www.irs.gov/taxpros/index.html>
3. Enrolled Agent Program: Described in Treasury Circular 230, this publication prescribes the requirements that tax professionals must meet in order to get "privileged", priority service from the IRS in the resolution of tax problems. Those who don't participate in the program and meet all the governments demands are put on hold forever on the telephone and ignored when they seek tax help in the resolution of problems for their clients. Undoubtedly, they must be "compliant" and not challenge the authority of the IRS, and when they don't, their "privilege" of participating is summarily revoked.

Can you see how insidious and devious this manipulation is? On top of the above, those tax professionals who reveal the truth are threatened to have their licenses and CPA credentials pulled. This happened to former IRS Criminal Investigator Joe Banister, who became the target of an attempt by the Secretary of the Treasury to suspend his CPA license because he was informing people about the government fraud documented in this book. This same kind of illegal duress of tax professionals also extends to those who left the IRS to speak out against the agency: They are persecuted and become the target of media slander campaigns. ## 5.5 Why We Aren't Liable to File Tax Returns or Keep Records

5.5.1 It's illegal and impossible to "file" your own tax return!

That's right: It is ILLEGAL to file your own tax return! The term "file" is nowhere defined in the Internal Revenue Code. If you ask the IRS at an audit exactly what it means to "file" a tax return and when that task is accomplished they will tell you the following as they told us:

1. A return is only considered "filed" after a Document Locator Number (DLN) is assigned to it in the upper right corner.
2. The only person who can assign a Document Locator Number (DLN) to any document filed with the IRS is the clerk processing a tax return that you have mailed in.
3. If you personally appeared at the processing center and asked to personally file the return yourself, they would tell you that:
  - 3.1. They can't let you inside their facility.
  - 3.2. You aren't allowed to enter into the processing area where a DLN could be assigned because you would then have access or display of sensitive Privacy Act information about other "taxpayers", which is illegal.
4. If you asked an IRS agent to give you the next "DLN" to assign to your return so you could write it on the return yourself, they would say they aren't authorized to.

Therefore, it is not only literally impossible for you to personally "file" a tax return document about yourself, but it is also ILLEGAL to file the return yourself because it would violate the privacy of other "taxpayers" in the process because you would have to be physically present inside the IRS processing facility, which is illegal. Consequently, the only person who can "file" a tax return is the clerk who processes it on behalf of someone else.

1 Knowing the above concept, one of our readers actually used this knowledge in his favor at an IRS audit. He has a certified
2 transcript under oath of two IRS agents admitting on the record that it is illegal to "file" a tax return! It's hilarious and he
3 has it on tape! The agents were totally embarrassed and we recommend that you use this approach as well.

4 The above reader also took the knowledge in this section one step further. He filed two blank returns to the IRS. The first
5 one had in big black letters "NOT LIABLE" written across the return as required by IRS regulations. Then he attached to it
6 a blank return along with an IRS Form 2848 Power of Attorney and a letter stating that he had authority to prepare and sign 7 the return on behalf of him if the agent would:

- 8 1. Provide the statute making him "liable" to pay.
- 9 2. Provide a signed copy of his delegation order authorizing him to "assess" a tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle
10 A against a person who doesn't volunteer to pay the tax.
- 11 3. Provide a photocopy of his Pocket Commission and his state driver's license.
- 12 4. Provide his real legal name and home address so he could be served with legal papers in the event that he didn't follow 13 directions.

14 Guess what the response of the IRS was to the above request? It took them almost two years to respond to the paperwork
15 they got and they never filed a return on behalf of the reader! Then the reader decided to prosecute the AGENT for 16 "Willful Failure to File" under 26 U.S.C. §7203! He decided to do this because it's literally impossible and illegal for him
17 to personally "file" a tax return so he thought he better let the agent do it, and the agent couldn't prove that he had the 18 lawful authority to do it even though he was given the responsibility to do it using the 2848 form. That made the IRS agent
19 criminally liable for Willful Failure to File. That's the same statute that the IRS tries to use to go after us, but we can use it
20 to turn the tables on them instead. Go get'em folks!

21 5.5.2 Why God says you can't file tax returns

22 The book of Isaiah 39 records the story of a Israelite King Hezekiah who had great riches and honor. Envoys from a
23 faraway land of Babylon sent him letters of condolence while he was sick, hoping to sweet talk him out of his wealth. In 24 response to the flattering letters, King Hezekiah invited them to visit and when they visited, he thought he would show off
25 and parade his wealth by showing them all that he had. Here is the story:

26 The Babylonian Envoys

27 Babylonian Captivity of Judah Foretold

28 <sup>1</sup> At that time Merodach-Baladan the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present to 29 Hezekiah, for he heard that he had been sick and had recovered. <sup>2</sup>And Hezekiah was pleased with 30 them, and showed them the house of his treasures--the silver and gold, the spices and precious
31 ointment, and all his armory--all that was found among his treasures. There was nothing in his 32 house or in all his dominion that Hezekiah did not show them.

33 <sup>3</sup>Then [prophet] Isaiah the prophet went to King Hezekiah, and said to him, "What did these men 34 say, and from where did they come to you?"

35 So Hezekiah said, "They came to me from a far country, from Babylon."

36 <sup>4</sup>And he said, "What have they seen in your house?"

37 So Hezekiah answered, "They have seen all that is in my house; there is nothing among my 38 treasures that I have not shown them."

39 <sup>5</sup>Then Isaiah said to [King] Hezekiah, "Hear the word of the LORD of hosts: <sup>6</sup>Behold, the days
40 are coming when all that is in your house, and what your fathers have accumulated until this 41 day, shall be carried to Babylon; nothing shall be left,' says the LORD. <sup>7</sup>'And they shall take 42 away some of your sons who will descend from you, whom you will beget; and they shall be
43 eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.'"

44 <sup>8</sup>So Hezekiah said to Isaiah, "The word of the LORD which you have spoken is good!" For he said,
45 "At least there will be peace and truth in my days."

1                    [Isaiah 39, Bible, NKJV]

2        Subsequently, the prophet Isaiah's predictions were fulfilled in 2 Chron. 36:1-17. The moral of the above story is that those
3        who are not discreet and who do not protect their privacy and information about their wealth will not keep it for long, and
4        will be plundered by covetous people, governments, and nations.

5        Now let's apply these principles to your situation. Tax returns record EVERY aspect of your wealth and earnings, and
6        report it to foreigners in a foreign state and a foreign jurisdiction called the District of Criminals. By reporting everything
7        on your tax return, you are inviting them to come and take it. You are "showing off" your wealth, which, according to the 8        prophet Isaiah, is a grievous sin that will invite strife and subjection. Below are some additional Bible cites that confirm 9        this conclusion:

10                    "A prudent man foresees evil and hides himself [and his assets],
11                    But the simple pass on and are punished [and plundered]."

50        Therefore, you CANNOT complete a tax return and send it to anyone in government, because it is against God's law. Such 51        an unwise act amounts to:

- 52        1. "boasting of your wealth" and invites strife and thievery by the government.
- 53        2. The perjury statement at the end of the return amounts to an oath of allegiance to your sovereign and protector, the 54        government. This is idolatry, because the government becomes your substitute God. Even the Supreme Court says
55        that the last oath you took determines who your real "sovereign" or false god is:

56                    "Citizenship is a political tie; allegiance is a territorial tenure. [. . .] The doctrine is, that allegiance [which is 57                    expressed by the taking of an oath on a tax return] cannot be due to two sovereigns [God v.
58                    mammon/government]; and taking an oath of allegiance to a new, is the strongest evidence of withdrawing
59                    allegiance from a previous, sovereign...."

Jesus, on the other hand, said that we cannot take oaths, which implies that we cannot sign the perjury oath at the end of the tax return:

"Again you have heard that it was said to those of old, 'You shall not swear falsely, but shall perform your oaths to the Lord.' But I say to you, do not swear at all; neither by heaven, for it is God's throne; nor by the earth, for it is His footstool; nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. Nor shall you swear by your head, because you cannot make one hair white or black. But let your 'Yes' be 'Yes,' and your 'No,' 'No.' For whatever is more than these is from the evil one."
[Matt. 5:33-37, Bible, NKJV]

If you do not heed these warnings in God's law, then the same fate that happened to the tribe of Judah in the Bible will happen to you. Instead of the plunderer being "Babylon", it will be the equivalent of Babylon, which is the District of Criminals, which is what the "D.C." means in "Washington, D.C.".

5.5.3 You're Not a "U.S. citizen" If You File Form 1040, You're a "Alien"!

The income tax is "imposed" in 26 U.S.C. §1 on statutory "U.S. citizens" (8 U.S.C. §1401), "residents" (who are only "aliens"), and "nonresident aliens". 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 explains this section as follows:

26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 Income tax on individuals

(a) General rule

(1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident alien individual...

The group of people called "citizens and residents" in the above regulation are called "U.S. persons" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). These people maintain a "domicile" within the District of Columbia. Later in the regulations, in section 26 C.F.R. §1.1441\(c\), we find that the definition of "individual" means an "alien" or "nonresident alien". Here's the definition of "individual":

26 C.F.R. 1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(i) Alien individual.

The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(c).

(ii) Nonresident alien individual.

The term nonresident alien individual means a person described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), an alien individual who is a resident of a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and Sec. 301.7701(b)-7(a)(1) of this chapter, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under Sec. 301.7701(b)-1(d) of this chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013 (g) or (h) to be treated as a resident of the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

By the way, don't be distracted by the title of the regulation above, because the titles mean nothing according to 26 U.S.C. Section 7806\(b\). The title says "foreign persons", and in fact that's exactly what you declare yourself to be when you file a form 1040! Based on the preceding discussion, if you are a "U.S. citizen", then there is only one occasion where you can also be an "individual", and that occasion is when you are overseas and domiciled in a foreign country that is not a state of the Union. These people are called "U.S. citizens living abroad" in the IRS publications and if they volunteer to file a

1 return, then they should file a 1040 with an attached 2555. What the code is really saying is that if you are in a foreign
2 country that is not a state of the Union, then:

- 3 1. You are outside the protections of the Bill of Rights. The Bill of Rights, which are the first ten amendments to the 4 Constitution, only applies inside states of the Union. See Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901).
- 5 2. It's perfectly constitutional to tax you while in a foreign country since rights to not apply and doing so would not 6 violate any of your Constitutional rights.
- 7 3. When you are in a foreign country, you are an "alien" relative to that foreign country and chances are that you come
8 under the provisions of an income tax treaty between the United States and that foreign country. Within the Internal
9 Revenue Code, under such circumstances, you would be referred to as an "alien" even if you in fact were also a 10 statutory "U.S. citizen"!
- 11 4. The reason that federal "citizens" can be taxed under the provisions of a treaty with a foreign country is because:
12 4.1. When "citizens" (under federal law, who are born in the District of Columbia and federal territories only) are 13 abroad and domiciled in a foreign country, they are subject to the laws of the federal United States. They have to 14 be subject in order to be under the protection of the government when traveling.
- 15 4.2. There is a cost to provide the protection that government provides to its citizens when overseas, and its reasonable 16 that they should pay for that cost.
- 17 5. In spite of all the above, since the Internal Revenue Code is not "positive law" and there is not liability statute for 18 anyone other than withholding agents in 26 U.S.C. §1461, then the payment of Subtitle A income taxes even by 19 statutory "U.S. citizens" or "residents" or "U.S. persons" temporarily abroad is still not compulsory or mandatory. The 20 "U.S. citizen" we are referring to here is a statutory citizen defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401, and that definition doesn't 21 include most Americans.

23 "The question in the case, and which was presented by the demurrer to the declaration is, as expressed by 24 plaintiff, whether Congress has power to impose a tax upon income received by a native citizen of the United
25 States who, at the time the income was received, was permanently resident and domiciled in the city of Mexico,
26 the income being from real and personal property located in Mexico.

27 "Plaintiff assigns against the power, not only his rights under the Constitution of the United States, but under
28 international law, and in support of the assignments cites many cases. It will be observed that the foundation of 29 the assignments is the fact that the citizen receiving the income and the property of which it is the product are
30 outside of the territorial limits of the United States. These two facts, the contention is, exclude the existence of 31 the power to tax. Or to put the contention another way, to the existence of the power and its exercise, the person
32 receiving the income and the property from which he receives it must both be within the territorial limits of the 33 United States to be within the taxing power of the United States. The contention is not justified, and that it is not
34 justified is the necessary deduction of recent cases. In United States v. Bennett, 232 U.S. 299, 34 Sup.Ct. 433,
35 the power of the United States to tax a foreign-built yacht owned and used during the taxing period outside of 36 the [265 U.S. 47, 55] United States by a citizen domiciled in the United States was sustained. The tax
37 passed on was imposed by a tariff act,<sup>2</sup> but necessarily the power does not depend upon the form by which it is 38 exerted.

39 "It will be observed that the case contained only one of the conditions of the present case, the property taxed
40 was outside of the United States. In United States v. Goelet, 232 U.S. 293, 34 Sup.Ct. 431, the yacht taxed was 41 outside of the United States, but owned by a citizen of the United States who was 'permanently resident and
42 domiciled in a foreign country.' It was decided that the yacht was not subject to the tax-but this was a matter of 43 construction. Pains were taken to say that the question of power was determined 'wholly irrespective' of the 44 owner's 'permanent domicile in a foreign country,' and the court put out of view the situs of the yacht. That the 45 court had no doubt of the power to tax was illustrated by reference to the income tax laws of prior years and 46 their express extension to those domiciled abroad. The illustration has pertinence to the case at bar, for the 47 case at bar is concerned with an income tax, and the power to impose it.

48 "We may make further exposition of the national power as the case depends upon it. It was illustrated at once
49 in United States v. Bennett by a contrast with the power of a state. It was pointed out that there were limitations
50 upon the latter that were not on the national power. The taxing power of a state, it was decided, encountered at
51 its borders the taxing power of other states and was limited by them. There was no such limitation, it was
52 pointed [265 U.S. 47, 56] out, upon the national power, and that the limitation upon the states affords, it was 53 said, no ground for constructing a barrier around the United States, 'shutting that government off from the 54 exertion of powers which inherently belong to it by virtue of its sovereignty.'

55 "The contention was rejected that a citizen's property without the limits of the United States derives no benefit
56 from the United States. The contention, it was said, came from the confusion of thought in 'mistaking the scope
57 and extent of the sovereign power of the United States as a nation and its relations to its citizens and their

1 relation to it.' And that power in its scope and extent, it was decided, is based on the presumption that
 2 government by its very nature benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and that opposition to it
 3 holds on to citizenship while it 'belittles and destroys its advantages and blessings by denying the possession by 4 government of an essential power required to make citizenship completely beneficial.' In other words, the 5 principle was declared that the government, by its very nature, benefits the citizen and his property wherever
 6 found, and therefore has the power to make the benefit complete. Or, to express it another way, the basis of the 7 power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out
 8 of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in 9 or out of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to 10 him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and 11 the property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal-the 12 government having power to impose the tax.

14 So the question is, how can the IRS claim you owe anything under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A if you claim to be a 15 "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401? The answer is that it can ONLY happen when all of the following constraints apply:

- 16 1. You are either domiciled in the federal zone or living abroad, but not while you are in a state of the Union.
- 17 2. You filed a 1040 in the past and gave the IRS the mistaken impression that you were a "U.S. person" living abroad. If 18 you did not attach a Form 2555 to the form 1040, then you basically admitted to them that you are an "alien" domiciled
 19 in the federal zone who has no constitutional rights, which you are perfectly entitled to do. Therefore, the IRS will 20 continue to think that you are a "alien" unless or until you notify them of your changed status by correcting all federal 21 paperwork that indicates your citizenship status, such as your passport application and SSA Form SS-5.
- 22 3. Even then, you must also volunteer to be a "taxpayer", because there is no liability statute requiring you to pay absent
 23 your consent.

24 When you fit the above constraints, you can be described as an "individual" under the Internal Revenue Code, which in
 25 most cases is a "U.S. person" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) living abroad and coming under the provisions of an
 26 income tax treaty with that foreign country pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911. That's why the IRS doesn't ask you on your 1040
 27 income tax return if you are a "U.S. citizen" but instead they put a title at the top of the form that says "U.S. Individual"!
 28 They are indirectly asking you if you are either an "alien" domiciled in the federal zone (which are the only kinds of 29 "residents" in the code) or a statutory but not constitutional "U.S. citizen" living abroad who comes under an income tax
 30 treaty and is therefore an "alien" under that treaty.

31 Those who declare themselves to be "U.S. individuals" by filing a form 1040 are declaring themselves to be either a
 32 "nonresident alien" or an "alien" based on the definition of "individual" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) above, which is 33 the ONLY definition of "individual" anywhere in the Treasury Regulations, 26 C.F.R.. Now since the form 1040NR is 34 filed by "nonresident aliens" and since we must either be an "alien" or a "nonresident alien" to be a "U.S. individual"
 35 subject to income taxes, the only thing we can be is an "Alien" under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) if we file a form 1040.
 36 Leave it to an IRS lawyer to figure out how to fool you into admitting that you are legally an alien in your own country so
 37 that you can be taxed. Outrageous, isn't it?

38 The definition for "individual" that the government wants you to incorrectly assume, however, is that found in 5 U.S.C.
 39 §552(a)(2):

40 (2) the term "individual" means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent
 41 residence;

42 But this definition of "individual" is superseded by the only definition of "individual" found in the Treasury Regulations
 43 found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 above. The whole purpose for providing a definition in a statute is to supersede the common 44 definition or other definitions.

45 The content of this section is confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1, which says the tax is "imposed" on "aliens" ONLY. Do you
 46 see "citizens" mentioned anywhere in the following section(?):

47 NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES
 48 DETERMINATION OF TAX LIABILITY
 49 Tax on Individuals
 50 Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

(a)(2)(ii) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970, the tax imposed by section 1(d), as amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1969, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by a married alien individual who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of the taxable year or by a foreign estate or trust. For such years the tax imposed by section 1(c), as amended by such Act, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by an unmarried alien individual (other than a surviving spouse) who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of the taxable year. See paragraph (b)(2) of section 1.871-8." [26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii)]

Here's a definition from Black's Law Dictionary that confirms the findings of this section:

Resident alien. "One, not yet a citizen of this country, who has come into the country from another with the intent to abandon his former citizenship and to reside here."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition][Underlines added]

If you are a "national" but not a statutory "citizen", then you are a "nonresident alien" and you DO NOT fit the description of being a "Resident alien" or an "alien" above because although you are not a statutory "U.S. citizen", you do not reside or maintain a domicile within the federal United States or federal zone, which is the area that the term "resident" is relative to.

Finally, the Internal Revenue Code further confirms the content of this section. 26 U.S.C. §6091 confirms that statutory "citizens of the United States" described in 8 U.S.C. §1401 who reside outside the federal United States are not allowed to file their returns in a local IRS District Office or Service Center:

Sec. 6091. - Place for filing returns or other documents

(a) General rule

When not otherwise provided for by this title, the Secretary shall by regulations prescribe the place for the filing of any return, declaration, statement, or other document, or copies thereof, required by this title or by regulations.

(b) Tax returns

In the case of returns of tax required under authority of part II of this subchapter -

(1) Persons other than corporations

(A) General rule

Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a return (other than a corporation return) shall be made to the Secretary -

(i) in the internal revenue district in which is located the legal residence or principal place of business of the person making the return, or

(ii) at a service center serving the internal revenue district referred to in clause (i), as the Secretary may by regulations designate.

(B) Exception

Returns of -

(i) persons who have no legal residence or principal place of business in any internal revenue district,

(ii) citizens of the United States whose principal place of abode for the period with respect to which the return is filed is outside the United States,

(iii) persons who claim the benefits of section 911 (relating to citizens or residents of the United States living abroad), section 931 (relating to income from sources within Guam, American Samoa, or the Northern Mariana Islands), or section 933 (relating to income from sources within Puerto Rico),

1 (iv) nonresident alien persons, and

2 (v) persons with respect to whom an assessment was made under section 6851(a) or 6852(a)
3 (relating to termination assessments) with respect to the taxable year,

4 shall be made at such place as the Secretary may by regulations designate.

5 The term "United States" above, means the federal zone, as we explained earlier in chapter 4. Consequently, if a "citizen of
6 the United States", who is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 (meaning a person born in a territory or possession of the United
7 States or the District of Columbia) is domiciled in a state of the Union, he can't file his tax return at a District Office, 8 because he:

- 9 1. Does not live within any Internal Revenue District.
10 2. Does not live in any federal judicial district either.
11 3. Does not live in the federal zone or federal "United States".

12 Where would he file his return then? He would file it with the International Branch of the Internal Revenue Service located
13 in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. That is the place where all 1040NR forms are sent by "nonresident aliens" and also where 14 all 1040 forms that have an attached form 2555 are sent. The 1040 form with the attached 2555 form are used by "U.S.
15 citizens" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 who are traveling overseas or who are within states of the Union and who choose to 16 volunteer to donate to the government under the authority of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.

17 5.5.4 You're NOT the "individual" mentioned at the top of the 1040 form if you are a "U.S. citizen" Domiciled in 18 the Federal "United States"***!

19 The term "individual" is never defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code but appears at the top of the 1040 form
20 "U.S. Individual Income Tax Return" and is mentioned also in 26 U.S.C. §1 and 26 U.S.C. §6012(a). 26 U.S.C. §6012(a)
21 is the section of the I.R.C. that most lawyers and the IRS will tell you creates an obligation to file a "return of income". So
22 who is this "individual"? Here is the only definition, hidden deep inside the Treasury regulations in a place you would 23 never think to look, which we only found after we bought the regulations in searchable electronic CD-ROM form and did a
24 search of the entire 20,000 pages of regulations:

25 26 C.F.R. 1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

26 (c) Definitions

27 (3) Individual.

28 (i) Alien individual.

29 The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See
30 Sec. 1.1-1(c).

31 (ii) Nonresident alien individual.

32 The term nonresident alien individual means a person described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), an alien individual
33 who is a resident of a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and Sec. 301.7701(b)-
34 7(a)(1) of this chapter, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of 35 Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under Sec. 301.7701(b)-
36 1(d) of this chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013 (g) or (h) to be treated as 37 a resident of the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of 38 withholding under chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

39 The above definition is the ONLY definition of the term "individual" found ANYWHERE in either the Internal Revenue
40 Code or the Regulations. The above definition ought to raise some BIG red flags! First of all, if you live in the [federal]
41 United States** as a "citizen of the United States" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, then you aren't an "individual" because the 42 definition of "individual" doesn't include citizens of the United States***! If you are an alien, that is a person who is
43 neither a citizen nor a national of the United States, who is domiciled in the federal United States**, then you are an 44 individual. That also makes you a "resident" because the terms "alien", "resident alien", and "resident" are all synonymous

1 in the Internal Revenue Code. For confirmation of this fact, examine 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) discussed in the previous
2 section.

3 Therefore, the tax code can't apply to you even if you claim to be a U.S.** citizen on a 1040 income tax return! That is
4 why they don't ask you if you are a "U.S. citizen" on the tax return and only say at the top "U.S. Individual"! This is
5 consistent with our findings elsewhere in this chapter. It also explains why a U.S. citizen is defined as someone who lives

7 26 C.F.R. §31.3121(e)-1 State, United States, and citizen.

8 (b)...The term 'citizen of the United States' includes a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico or the Virgin
9 Islands, and, effective January 1, 1961, a citizen of Guam or American Samoa.

10 You therefore can't be a "individual" who can be the subject of Subtitle A income taxes under 26 U.S.C. §1 unless you are:

- 11 1. A statutory "U.S. citizen" temporarily OUTSIDE the "United States*" (the country, which is called "abroad" in 12 IRS publications) under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)
- 13 2. A statutory "U.S. resident" (alien) as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) domiciled in the federal zone and 14 temporarily outside the "United States*" the country.
- 15 3. A statutory "U.S. person" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) temporarily outside the "United States*" the 16 country but domiciled in the federal zone.

17 That's why they created a definition of statutory "U.S. citizen" that means you are living outside the United States* (in the 18 Virgin Islands) so they can "pretend" that you are taxable! That way, even when you tell them you live in the "United
19 States" by giving them an address in the 50 Union states on your tax return, they can still claim that you live in Puerto Rico
20 or the Virgin Islands because of your status as a "U.S. citizen"! This whole scheme can be confirmed by ordering a copy of 21 your non-sanitized Individual Master File (IMF) from the IRS and looking at the transaction codes on the IMF. If you look
22 at your IMF and you have been filing 1040 forms for a while, chances are your record reflects that you reside in the Virgin
23 Islands, even if you really have a domicile in one of the 50 Union states outside the federal zone! That's why the IRS made
24 the Publication 6209, which is used for decoding the IMF file, "For Official Use Only", which is short for "Don't let 25 Citizen bastards get their hands on this at all costs!". They know they are committing fraud and they don't want you, the 26 Citizen, to know the horrible truth and expose that fraud, because then they lose their ability to claim "plausible 27 deniability".

28 Even more interesting is the fact that form 1040NR is intended for nonresident aliens. The only type of "individual" not 29 covered by the 1040NR is the "Alien". Therefore, the 1040 form is intended for "Aliens". How does it feel to be an 30 "alien" in your own country? Leave it to greedy lawyers to dream up this kind of scam using definitions to fool you into 31 paying taxes. The definition of Alien above excludes U.S. citizens or "nationals", so you have to in effect commit fraud by 32 declaring yourself to be a foreigner domiciled in the federal zone in order to be the subject of the income tax.

33 The next time you file a Form 1040 as the "national" that you rightfully are, consider that you are committing "fraud" by 34 claiming to be a "U.S. Individual". Your employer is also committing fraud on the W-2 he sends to you by claiming in 35 Block 2 that you earn "wages", which you will find out later in section 5.6.5 means that you are an elected or appointed
36 employee of the federal government and who comes under the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939! No kidding!

37 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If you don't believe an "individual" can only be defined as an "alien" or "nonresident
38 alien" as above or that the above definition is the only definition of "individual" anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code" or 39 26 C.F.R., then we challenge you to find a definition in either of these two titles (not IRS Publications, which we will find 40 out later are a fraud, but the statutes, which aren't "positive law" by the way) that defines the word "individual" as also
41 including "U.S. citizens" or "citizens of the United States". We searched the entire I.R.C. and 26 C.F.R. (20,000 pages)
42 electronically and found NO other definitions! Furthermore, we challenge you to explain why the 1040 income tax form
43 doesn't say "U.S. Citizen or Resident" instead of "U.S. Individual" at the top of the form!

44 5.5.5 No Law Requires You to Keep Records

45 26 U.S.C. §6001 states the following:

TITLE 26 - INTERNAL REVENUE CODE
 Subtitle F - Procedure and Administration
 CHAPTER 61 - INFORMATION AND RETURNS
 Subchapter A - Returns and Records
 PART 1 - RECORDS, STATEMENTS, AND SPECIAL RETURNS

Sec. 6001. Notice or regulations requiring records, statements, and special returns

Every person liable for any tax imposed by this title, or for the collection thereof, shall keep such records, render such statements, make such returns, and comply with such rules and regulations as the Secretary may from time to time prescribe. Whenever in the judgment of the Secretary it is necessary, he may require any person, by notice served upon such person or by regulations, to make such returns, render such statements, or keep such records, as the Secretary deems sufficient to show whether or not such person is liable for tax under this title. The only records which an employer shall be required to keep under this section in connection with charged tips shall be charge receipts, records necessary to comply with section 6053(c), and copies of statements furnished by employees under section 6053(a).

If you look through all of the regulations pertaining to Subtitles A and C income taxes in the Internal Revenue Code, you will not find a single regulation requiring you to keep records to comply with the requirements of the code. The only thing records are needed for is to justify exemptions claimed during an examination or audit. The purpose of examinations and audits by the IRS is to exclude exemptions and thereby increase the amount of tax owed by the person being audited. However, if you don't have any taxable income because your income does not fall in the category of corporate profits (as a corporation, because the income tax is only legal as an indirect excise tax) as identified later in section 5.6.1, then you don't have to worry about exemptions so you don't have to worry about records either, unless specifically notified personally by the Secretary of the Treasury or by someone who can show you a delegation of authority order authorizing him or her to act in their behalf! If an IRS agent asks you to bring your records to an examination, you can safely tell him you were never notified personally by the Secretary of the Treasury that you were required to keep records. For examples under the Internal Revenue Code that require the keeping of records, refer to the following:

- 26 U.S.C. §4403 Record Requirements (Taxes on Wagering)
- 26 U.S.C. §5114 Records (Excise taxes on alcohol)
- 26 U.S.C. §5124 Records (Records on all distilled spirits received)
- 26 U.S.C. §5741 Records to be maintained (Records required for manufacturers of tobacco products)

Another interesting fact, is that the 1040 form constitutes a record in and of itself, which then points to the assumption of the existence of other records or evidence you have documenting the numbers on the form. If you can't be required to maintain records, then why can you be required to file a tax return!

5.5.6 Federal courts have NO authority to enforce criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code to crimes committed outside the federal zone

26 U.S.C. §7402(f) is the only place that describes the jurisdiction of the federal district courts of the United States to enforce the Internal Revenue Code. It states:

For general jurisdiction of the district courts of the United States in civil actions involving internal revenue, see Section 1340 of Title 28 of the United States Code.

Thus it is plain that district courts were only given jurisdiction to hear "civil actions"—not criminal ones—as far as the Internal Revenue Code is concerned. Even for "civil actions," the Code refers to the jurisdiction contained in 28 U.S.C. §1340, the United States Code of Civil Procedure. This alone proves that all trials involving alleged criminal violations of the Code by persons domiciled outside the federal zone, including those under 26 U.S.C. §7201 (tax evasion) and 7203 (willful failure to file) were and are illegal, and that federal judges never had jurisdiction to conduct them!

It is well-established that in order for the U.S. government to prosecute a person for a crime, the crime must be committed on federal property subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the federal government under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution. The burden of proof belongs to the federal government to demonstrate using a preponderance of evidence that the crime was committed on federal property that was ceded to the U.S. government by the state. Proof must consist of the cession documents. You can find more information about this concept in 40 U.S.C. §3112:

(a) Exclusive Jurisdiction Not Required.— It is not required that the Federal Government obtain exclusive jurisdiction in the United States over land or an interest in land it acquires.

(b) Acquisition and Acceptance of Jurisdiction.— When the head of a department, agency, or independent establishment of the Government, or other authorized officer of the department, agency, or independent establishment, considers it desirable, that individual may accept or secure, from the State in which land or an interest in land that is under the immediate jurisdiction, custody, or control of the individual is situated, consent to, or cession of, any jurisdiction over the land or interest not previously obtained. The individual shall indicate acceptance of jurisdiction on behalf of the Government by filing a notice of acceptance with the Governor of the State or in another manner prescribed by the laws of the State where the land is situated.

(c) Presumption.— It is conclusively presumed that jurisdiction has not been accepted until the Government accepts jurisdiction over land as provided in this section.

To give you some examples, in United States v. Bateman, 34 F. 86 (N.D.Cal. 1888), it was determined that the United States did not have jurisdiction to prosecute for a murder committed at the Presidio because California had never ceded jurisdiction; see also United States v. Tully, 140 F. 899 (D.Mon. 1905). But later, California ceded jurisdiction for the Presidio to the United States, and it was held in United States v. Watkins, 22 F.2d. 437 (N.D.Cal. 1927), that this enabled the U.S. to maintain a murder prosecution; see also United States v. Holt, 168 F. 141 (W.D.Wash. 1909), United States v. Lewis, 253 F. 469 (S.D.Cal. 1918), and United States v. Wurtzbarger, 276 F. 753 (D.Or. 1921). Because the U.S. owned and had a state cession of jurisdiction for Fort Douglas in Utah, it was held that the U.S. had jurisdiction for a rape prosecution in Rogers v. Squier, 157 F.2d. 948 (9th Cir. 1946). But, without a cession, the U.S. has no jurisdiction; see Arizona v. Manypenny, 445 F.Supp. 1123 (D.Ariz. 1977).

It stands to reason then, that no federal tax crime can be prosecuted in a federal court which did not occur on federal property subject to the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of the United States under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17. The only exception to this rule with respect to taxes are those which come under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution dealing with foreign (overseas) commerce, since this is a specific power or subject matter delegated to the federal government in the constitution and it applies throughout the country and on nonfederal land within the 50 Union states:

Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3

The Congress shall have Power ...To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes;

It is precisely the above clause of the constitution that explains, later in this chapter, most of the taxable sources of income found in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f), when we discuss the 861 Position in section 5.6.10 and following.

Federal courts rightly say that federal tax crimes don't require implementing regulations to enforce. Here is an example:

"Federal income tax regulations governing filing of income tax returns do not require Office of Management and Budget control numbers because requirement to file tax return is mandated by statute, not by regulation."
[U.S. v. Bartrug, E.D.Va.1991, 777 F.Supp. 1290, affirmed 976 F.2d. 727, certiorari denied 113 S.Ct. 1659, 507 U.S. 1010, 123 L.Ed.2d. 278]

The reason the federal courts are completely correct in the above conclusion is because the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code found in 26 U.S.C. §6700 and 7201-7217 only apply to federal "employees" acting in their official capacity, which almost exclusively occurs on federal property under the requirements of 4 U.S.C. §§71 & 72. . Here is the main reason why this is true:

TITLE 44 > CHAPTER 15 > Sec. 1505.
Sec. 1505. - Documents to be published in Federal Register

There shall be published in the Federal Register -

(1) Presidential proclamations and Executive orders, except those not having general applicability and legal effect or effective only against Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof;

(2) documents or classes of documents that the President may determine from time to time have general applicability and legal effect; and

(3) documents or classes of documents that may be required so to be published by Act of Congress.

For the purposes of this chapter every document or order which prescribes a penalty has general applicability and legal effect.

When no implementing regulations are published in the Federal Register for any law that institutes a penalty that can adversely affect the Constitutional rights of a person domiciled in states of the Union and outside of federal territory, the law may not be enforced against anything but federal “employees”, “officers”, and “agents” acting in their official capacity on federal territory. The implementing regulations for Subtitle F of the Internal Revenue Code confirm this:

26 C.F.R. §601.702 Publication and public inspection

Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms of any matter referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph which is required to be published in the Federal Register, such person is not required in any manner to resort to, or be adversely affected by, such matter if it is not so published or is not incorporated by reference therein pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph. Thus, for example, any such matter which imposes an obligation and which is not so published or incorporated by reference will not adversely change or affect a person's rights.

When the Department of INjustice attempts to illegally and maliciously prosecute you for “Failure to File”, they will use your incorrectly submitted IRS Form W-4 as prima facie evidence that you are a federal “employee”, because it says “employee” in the upper left corner. When they do this, they have violated your due process rights because even though you swore under penalty of perjury that you were an “employee” on the incorrect IRS Form W-4, they still are not allowed to presume that it is true until they actually prove it, and if you are smart, you will submit an affidavit with your pleading which rescinds or revokes your signatures on any such forms whenever you send correspondence to the IRS and whenever you file any kind of motion as a criminal defendant in such an action. We also show in sections 3.5.3.14 and 3.5.4.13 and the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008 how to use the W-8 form instead of the IRS Form W-4 to stop withholding, and to use a version of the form that does not create any false presumptions about your true status as a “non-resident non-person” and a “nontaxpayer”.

Within the 50 Union states, the ONLY federal crimes which can be prosecuted in a federal court that occurred outside of the territorial jurisdiction of the federal government are the following, all of which require implementing regulations if prosecuted against persons who are not federal “employees”:

1. Federal government espionage.
2. Federal government sabotage.
3. Destruction of federal property.
4. Interference with the mail.
5. Frauds on the federal government.
6. Violations of Constitutional rights by either state or federal employees or officials.
7. Crimes involving federal insurance (such as FDIC).
8. Excise tax violations involving foreign commerce (Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution).
9. Slavery and enticement into slavery (Thirteenth Amendment).

For further details on the limits of the jurisdiction of the federal courts, refer to sections 7.4 through 7.4.10 in the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008.

5.5.7 Objections to Filing Based on Rights

The Bill of Rights is a series of amendments to the original U.S. Constitution that serve to constrain the authority of the federal government over citizens. They establish certain civil rights which may not be violated by the government. The

1 first ten amendments were ratified as part of the original Constitution, and subsequent amendments were added after the
2 union of the first Thirteen Colonies was formed. The First, Fourth, Fifth, and Tenth Amendments clearly eliminate any
3 possibility that the federal government can compel or force us to file tax returns. We summarize our findings here:

Table 5-46: Constitutional constraints on filing of income tax returns

Amendment	Content	Applicability to filing of tax returns
First	Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.	Freedom of speech includes one's right to NOT communicate with one's government, including on a tax return.
Fourth	The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.	Filing of tax returns violates our privacy and the security of our papers and effects, most notably our business records. It exposes them to undue and unwanted examination by the government. Compelled filing of tax returns creates a police state mentality in which we can get our own family members in criminal trouble for disclosing financial information about ourselves.
Fifth	No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.	The supreme Court ruled in Garner v. U.S. , 424 U.S. 648 (1976) that tax returns are the compelled testimony of a witness . Since the facts contained on them are submitted under penalty of perjury, they constitute evidence that can be used against a Citizen to prosecute him for criminal violation of the tax code. The Privacy Act warning in the 1040 booklet clearly states that the tax returns are provided to the Department of Justice, whose only function is criminal prosecution. Clearly then, the filing of tax returns cannot be compelled or it would violate the Fifth Amendment. Likewise, the withholding of one's income from one's pay, which is property, cannot occur without the consent of the Citizen or it would constitute deprivation of property without due process. That is why employers cannot withhold income from pay without receiving a W-4 "Withholding Allowance Certificate" form from the employee.
Tenth	The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.	Direct taxes on citizens can be used for any social purpose and "social engineering", to usurp the authority of the States. For instance, if a State passes a law permitting abortion and the federal government wants to outlaw abortion, then all the federal government has to do is establish a huge tax credit for people who don't have abortions. This clearly violates the Tenth Amendment.

In accordance with the U.S. Supreme Court Case of Garner v. U.S., 424 U.S. 648 (1976), income tax returns are submitted under duress and coercion and constitute the "compelled testimony of a witness". Therefore, by the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, tax returns are inadmissible as evidence in a court of law because they violate the right of non-self-incrimination and were therefore obtained illegally as per the supreme Court case of Weeks v. United States, 232 U.S. 383 (1914). Below is a list of some of the types of coercion applied to compel such witnesses to testify against themselves:

- 26 U.S.C. §7201: Attempt to evade or defeat tax (up to $100,000 fine or imprisonment not more than 5 years along with attorney fees).
- 26 U.S.C. §7203: Willful Failure to File (fine up to $25,000 or imprisonment for one year or both)
- Hundreds of different penalties for late filing or underpayment, as documented in Part 20 of the Internal Revenue Manual, available at: http://www.irs.gov/prod/bus\_info/tax\_pro/irm-part/part20.html

- 1 4. IRS Liens and levies being imposed for nonpayment of taxes.
- 2 5. Receipt of threatening mail communications from the IRS (e.g. CP-515 "Notice of Deficiency" and subsequent Notice
- 3 of Lien and Levy").
- 4 6. Constant anxiety from and harassment by IRS agents (by telephone and otherwise).

5 Remember that the essential aspect of being a "right" is that the free exercise of rights CANNOT be penalized, taxed, or
 6 regulated in any way by the government. The above laws, however, indeed do precisely that and are therefore to be
 7 regarded as unconstitutional, illegal, null, and void and they should immediately be declared as such by all federal courts.
 8 The U.S. Constitution is and always has been the Supreme Law of the land, and it supersedes all other law. The below
 9 supreme Court case emphasizes constraints on treatment of the rights of citizens by both the government and individuals in
 10 Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S. 528 at 540, 85 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965):

11 "It has long been established that a State may not impose a penalty upon those who exercise a right guaranteed
 12 by the Constitution." Frost & Frost Trucking Co. v. Railroad Comm'n of California, 271 U.S. 583.
 13 "Constitutional rights would be of little value if they could be indirectly denied," Smith v. Allwright, 321 U.S.
 14 649, 644, or manipulated out of existence,' Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339, 345."
 15 [Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S. 528 at 540, 85 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965)]

16 The only way to overcome Fifth Amendment restrictions on the filing of tax returns that are documented above absent a
 17 waiver of rights is for the IRS to sign an "Immunity from Prosecution Letter" under 26 U.S.C. §§6002-6003. In the event
 18 an authorized agent of the U.S. Government is willing to sign such an agreement for ALL future income tax returns having 19 to do with you, then you are encouraged to submit returns, if you owe tax of course, which is highly unlikely. If there is 20 some other way to avoid waiving rights without fear of criminal prosecution that is not documented here, then we invite 21 your help in showing us what that method is.

22 One of the most famous Fifth Amendment tax resistance proponents is William Conklin. For years, he has had a standing
 23 challenge, offering up to $100,000 to the first person who can show how a Citizen can file a tax return without waiving his 24 Fifth Amendment rights. He wrote a fascinating and excellent book about the subject called Why No One is Required to
 25 File Tax Returns, ISBN 1-891833-91-X, $21, copyright 1996, 2000. This book is available from Davidson Press, 21520

 30 Irrational Conspiracy to Violate Rights".

31 Similar arguments as those for the 1040 form above also apply to the filing of IRS Form W-4's by citizens. We discuss this 32 subject further in section 6.6.8 entitled "IRS Form W-4 Scandals".

33 5.5.8 We Don't Have to Sign Tax Returns Under Penalty of Perjury, Which Makes Them Worthless and 34 Useless!<sup>76</sup>

35 The premise of this section is that there is no law pursuant to the Constitution of the United States that requires an 36 individual to make and sign under penalties of perjury a Form 1040 tax return. Unless otherwise noted, the terms defined
 37 in this section are quoted from the Sixth Edition of Black's Law Dictionary. To readers who consider as unnecessary (or 38 perhaps even an affront to their intelligence) listing below the definitions of some simple legal terms, the writer extends his
 39 apologies and states that by including them here he merely wishes to preclude any effort on the part of potential gainsayers
 40 who think they can refute the logical and legal premise of this work.

41 5.5.8.1 Definitions

42 "Affiant. The person who makes and subscribes an affidavit."

1           "Affidavit. A written or printed declaration of facts, made voluntarily, and confirmed by the oath or affirmation
2 of the party making it, taken before a person having authority to administer such oath or affirmation. ....See
3 also Certification; Jurat; Verification." (The word "voluntarily" has been emphasized by the author.)

4           "Authority. Permission. Right to exercise powers; to implement and enforce laws; to exact obedience; to 5 command; to judge. Control over; jurisdiction. Often synonymous with power. The power delegated by a 6 principal to his agent."

7           "Belief. A conviction of the truth of a proposition, existing subjectively in the mind, and induced by argument,
8 persuasion, or proof addressed to the judgment." (Italics added.)

9           "Certification. The formal assertion in writing of some fact. The act of certifying or state of being certified."

10           "Confession. A voluntary statement made by a person charged with the commission of a crime or misdemeanor,
11 communicated to another person, wherein he acknowledges himself to be guilty of the offense charged, and
12 discloses the circumstances of the act or the share and participation which he had in it. See 18 U.S.C.A. §
13 3501." (Italics added for emphasis.)

14           "Confessions, admissibility of. Subsections (d) and (e) of Title 18 U.S.C.A. § 3501 read as follows: "(d) Nothing
15 contained in this section shall bar the admission of any confession made or given voluntarily by any person to
16 any other person without interrogation by anyone, or at any time the person who made or gave such confession
17 was not under arrest or other detention. (e) As used in this section, 'confession' means any confession of guilt of 18 any criminal offense or any self-incriminating statement made or given orally or in writing." (Italics added.)
19 Subsections (d) and (e) of the U.S. Code are quoted to show that the legal definition of "confession" is not
20 restricted or applied solely to persons "charged with the commission of a crime or misdemeanor."

21           "Fraud on court. A scheme to interfere with judicial machinery performing task of impartial adjudication, as by
22 preventing opposing party from fairly presenting his case or defense. ....It consists of conduct so egregious that 23 it undermines the integrity of the judicial process."

24           "Individual. As a noun, this term denotes a single person as distinguished from a group or class, and also, very 25 commonly, a private or natural person as distinguished from a partnership, corporation or association...."

26           "Intimidation. Unlawful coercion; extortion; duress; putting in fear. To take, or attempt to take, 'by 27 intimidation' means willfully to take, or attempt to take, by putting in fear of bodily harm. Such fear must arise
28 from the willful conduct of the accused, rather than from some mere temperamental timidity of the victim;
29 however, the fear of the victim need not be so great as to result in terror, panic, or hysteria."

30           "Involuntary confession. Confession is 'involuntary' if it is not the product of an essentially free and
31 unrestrained choice of its maker or where maker's will is overborne at the time of the confession. [Citation
32 omitted.] Term refers to confessions that are extracted by any threats of violence, or obtained by direct or 33 implied promises, or by exertion of improper influence. [Citation omitted.]"

34           "Jurat. Certificate of officer or person before whom writing was sworn to. In common use term is employed to 35 designate certificate of competent administering officer that writing was sworn to by person who signed it. The 36 clause written at the foot of an affidavit, stating when, where, and before whom such affidavit was sworn."

37           "Knowledge. Acquaintance with fact or truth."

38           "Perjury. In criminal law, the willful assertion as to a matter of fact, opinion, belief, or knowledge, made by a 39 witness in a judicial proceeding as part of his evidence, either upon oath or in any form allowed by law to be
40 substituted for an oath, whether such evidence is given in open court, or in an affidavit, or otherwise, such
41 assertion being material to the issue or point of inquiry and known to such witness to be false." (Italics added.)

42           "Prima facie evidence. Evidence good and sufficient on its face. Such evidence as, in the judgment of the law, is 43 sufficient to establish a given fact, or the group or chain of facts constituting the party's claim of defense, and 44 which if not rebutted or contradicted, will remain sufficient. Evidence which, if unexplained or uncontradicted,
45 is sufficient to sustain a judgment in favor of the issue which it supports, but which may be contradicted by 46 other evidence."

47           "Proceeding.....An act which is done by the authority or direction of the court, agency, or tribunal, express or 48 implied; an act necessary to be done in order to obtain a given end; a prescribed mode of action for carrying 49 into effect a legal right."

50           "Subpoena. A subpoena is a command to appear at a certain time and place to give testimony upon a certain 51 matter. A subpoena duces tecum requires production of books, papers and other things."

1           "Summons. Instrument used to commence a civil action or special proceeding and is the means of acquiring
 2           jurisdiction over a party. [Cite omitted.] Writ or process directed to the sheriff or other proper officer,
 3           requiring him to notify the person named that an action has been commenced against him in the court from
 4           where the process issues, and that he is required to appear, on a day named and answer the complaint in such
 5           action."

6           "Verification. Confirmation of correctness, truth, or authenticity, by affidavit, oath, or deposition." Affidavit of 7           truth of matter stated and object of verification is to assure good faith in averments or statements of party."

8           "Voluntary. Unconstrained by interference; unimpelled by another's influence, spontaneous; acting of one's 9           self. [Cites omitted.] Done by design or intention. Proceeding from the free and unrestrained will of the person.
 10           Produced in or by an act of choice. Resulting from free choice, without compulsion or solicitation."

11           "Willful. Proceeding from a conscious motion of the will; voluntary; knowingly; deliberate. Intending the result
 12           which actually comes to pass; designed; intentional; purposeful; not accidental or involuntary."

13           "Witness, n. In general, one who, being present, personally sees or perceives a thing; a beholder, spectator, or 14           eyewitness. ....A person whose declaration under oath (or affirmation) is received as evidence for any purpose,
 15           whether such declaration be made on oral examination or by deposition or affidavit. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. §
 16           1878. A person attesting genuineness of signature to document by adding his signature."

17           "Witness tampering. The Federal Victim and Witness Protection Act prohibits the intimidation and harassment
 18           of witnesses before they testify, as well as prohibiting retaliation, or threats of retaliation, against witnesses
 19           after they testify. 18 U.S.C.A. §1512-1515."

20   5.5.8.2    Exegesis

21   The jurat of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Form 1040 reads in relevant part:

22           "Under penalties of perjury, I declare that I have examined this return and accompanying schedules and
 23           statements, and to the best of my knowledge and belief, they are true, correct and complete." (Italics added.)

24   The U.S. Supreme Court in Garner v. United States, 424 U.S. 648 (1976) stated that:

25           "The information revealed in the preparation and filing of an income tax return is, for purposes of Fifth
 26           Amendment analysis, the testimony of a 'witness,' as that term is used herein."

27   Rule 603 of the Federal Rules of Evidence (Fed.R.Evid.) states:

28           "Before testifying, every witness shall be required to declare that he will testify truthfully, by oath or affirmation
 29           administered in a form calculated to awaken his conscience and impress his mind with his duty to do so."
 30           (Italics added.)

31   The jurat of Form 1040 establishes the premise here defended that the tax return to which the jurat refers is by law (26
 32   U.S.C. §7206) intended to be voluntarily completed and signed under the penalties of perjury. This is a simple observation
 33   derived from the text of the jurat and the legal terms herein defined. Clearly, the self-assessment of income taxes by making
 34   a Form 1040 return under penalties of perjury is voluntary because the act of signing any affidavit or document that
 35   subjects its affiant to the penalties of perjury must by law be willful. Obviously, a coerced statement though by signed jurat
 36   purports it was made under penalties of perjury is nevertheless a fraudulent statement. It is not the rule of law or the 37   payment of taxes that is here protested but a rule of intellectual tyranny invented by corrupt bureaucrats and judges who
 38   under color of law (such as 26 U.S.C. §§ 6702, 7203) penalize individuals when they fail or refuse--without being 39   subpoenaed--to testify on Form 1040 and sign its decreed jurat that falsely purports that the form was made and signed
 40   willfully (the word means voluntarily) under penalties of perjury.

41   Thus, it cannot be overly emphasized that the lawful signing of the Form 1040 jurat is premised upon the "knowledge and 42   belief" of the individual who willfully signs it and thereby certifies that he or she understands and agrees with the 43   governmentally prescribed information on the tax return to which the jurat refers. How many people can honestly state that 44   they have read even one page of the Internal Revenue Code upon which their completed 1040 form is presumably based?
 45   The author has studied the tax code for over ten years and has discovered nothing in it that requires any person acting in his 46   or her capacity as an individual to file a completed Form 1040 that must be signed under penalties of perjury. However, the 47   author did discover a statute that prohibits or stops him from making and validating under penalties of perjury the 48   information that the IRS commissioner states must appear on a Form 1040 tax return--that statute is 26 U.S.C. §7206.

1 Simply put, government is not free to dictate to individuals what "we the people" must believe in order to be able to make
2 and verify under penalties of perjury a governmentally prescribed document that is based upon the term "gross income," as
3 defined by Congress in § 61(a) of the tax code.

4 Moreover, the common law requires that an oath be meaningful to the witness who takes the oath and this principle
5 underpins Rule 603 of the Fed.R.Evid. See U.S. v. Ward 973 F.2d. 730 (9th Cir. 1992). This principle is applicable to
6 jurats as well, i.e., a jurat must be crafted so as to be meaningful to its potential affiant. Thus, an oath or jurat based upon a
7 religious belief in an Almighty God as a test of an atheist's honesty makes no sense at all. Likewise, it is absurd and a
8 corruption of law for the IRS and the courts to force individuals to declare "under penalties of perjury" that they owe taxes
9 which they do not know and believe they owe. It must be obvious to all but the most obtuse or predisposed minds that a
10 Form 1040 jurat that was signed under coercion but which purports it was signed under penalties of perjury is a fraudulent
11 document. A statement or Form 1040 jurat signed because of coercion by a federal agency (i.e., the IRS) is no more valid
12 than a confession that was beaten out of a person by the local police. Confessions and affidavits are defined as voluntary
13 documents, and therefore no person acting in his or her own natural capacity may be logically or legally required to make
14 or sign them, by whatever name they are called. The New York Times reported (July 5, 1995) that IRS Commissioner
15 Margaret Milner Richardson said that "in IRS usage, the term 'voluntary compliance' referred to filling out tax forms, not to 16 paying taxes." Having said that and if it reflects what Commissioner Richardson believes, why does she penalize
17 individuals or have them prosecuted as criminals for not filling out tax forms? After explaining to an IRS agent why my
18 knowledge and belief preclude me from conscientiously and legally signing the jurat of a 1988 Form 1040, the agent
19 replied (a promise?) that if I would sign the jurat anyway, the IRS would not prosecute me for perjury. Now that's one for 20 Ripley's Believe it or Not!

21 It is a rule of law that any doubt about the truth of a person's testimony given under oath or by affidavit is a question of fact
22 for a jury to decide. The Supreme Court in Cheek v. United States, 498 U.S. 192 (1991), stated:

23 "Knowledge and belief are characteristically questions for the factfinder, in this case the jury." (See also United 24 States v. Burton, 737 F.2d. 439 (5th Cir. 1984).

25 Thus, any question about whether testimony by affidavit is the truth is for a jury to decide unless the affiant waives this 26 right. Where testimony of a relevant affidavit is not questioned, it must be accepted in evidence as factually true.

27 There are only two lawful ways for a person to testify before governmental bodies or agencies such as grand juries, the 28 Internal Revenue Service, courts of law, etc. One way is by command, whether it be by subpoena, subpoena duces tecum or 29 by direct command (order) of a court after the court has gained jurisdiction over a party through the operation of a
30 summons. In all such cases the command must name or be directed to the specific person whose testimony is sought.
31 Subpoenas are authoritative, legal commands to persons requiring them to testify as witnesses and subpoenas duces tecum
32 are legal commands to persons requiring them to produce "books, papers and other things." The only other lawful way to 33 testify or to produce "books, papers and other things" is to do so voluntarily.

34 Justice Hugo Black declared in U.S. v. Kahriger, 345 U.S. 22 (1953) that, "The United States has a system of taxation by 35 confession." (Italics added). Of course compelled confessions are not legal under the Constitution which is why Congress
36 mandated the inclusion of the jurat on Form 1040, thus informing the jurat's potential affiant that unless he/she knows and 37 believes the governmentally defined and preordained answers to the form's prescribed questions are correct, complete and
38 true, then the individual acting in his/her personal capacity may not be required to sign the jurat under any statute or 39 regulation. Justice Black did not state the nature of the confession by which the self-assessment of income taxes is made but 40 any legal confession must be "voluntary," Bram v. United States, 168 U.S. 532 (1897), and "the product of a rational 41 intellect and a free will," Townsend v. Sain, 372 U.S. 293 (1963).

42 Moreover, the Supreme Court in Flora v. United States, 362 U.S. 145 (1960), admitted the nature of the tax return
43 confession when it ruled that:

45 These are not idle words as the Court ruled in United States v. Mason, 412 U.S. 391 (1973), that under the doctrine of stare
46 decisis

47 "the people have a right to rely upon the decisions of this Court and not be needlessly penalized for such

Clearly, the federal government's coercing of individuals--through the use of fear, intimidation, threats of prison sentences and heavy penalties--to get them to complete and sign tax forms that falsely purport they were made and signed under penalties of perjury is as unconstitutional if not quite as brutal as policemen beating signed, involuntary confessions out of people. How valid or credible is testimony when given involuntarily to satisfy public officials and when based upon the tyranny of mind and/or body? Remembering that the Supreme Court in Garner (supra) stated that:

"The information revealed in the preparation and filing of an income tax return is, for purposes of Fifth Amendment analysis, the testimony of a 'witness,'"

It is obvious that absent an individual's having been served a subpoena to testify on a Form 1040 or served a subpoena duces tecum to produce a Form 1040 tax return or ordered by a court to file one, the individual is under no legal compulsion or duty to do so. See also Wigmore on Evidence, McNaughton, rev., at 378, 379.

5.5.8.3 Conclusion

The making and signing under penalties of perjury of a Form 1040 return is dependent upon the "knowledge and belief" of its potential affiant and inasmuch as individuals under the First Amendment enjoy the rights to freedom of conscience, knowledge and belief and to the expression thereof, it is clear that the filing of a completed and legally validated Form 1040 tax return rests upon its voluntary subscription in "compliance with the tax code," of which § 7206 of the Internal Revenue Code is a part. The definition of perjury supports the proposition that the crime of perjury is based upon the willful assertion or affirmation--known to a witness to be false--of a fact, belief, or knowledge, made by the witness in a judicial proceeding such as an open court or by affidavit for potential presentation to courts as admissible evidence. The IRS coerces individuals by fear, intimidation, threats of penalties and criminal prosecution (and sometimes by implied promises not to prosecute them) to complete and sign prescribed, Form 1040 "taxation by confession" documents that euphemistically are called "self-assessed tax returns" under the ruse that they are voluntarily completed and signed and thereby subject their affiants to the penalties of perjury. This method of assessing and collecting taxes is a monumental fraud perpetrated upon the people under the guise of law; it is unconstitutional because it is fraudulent, if for no other reason. This deceptive practice is not the practice of law but of intellectual tyranny and witness tampering. When the government forces millions of individuals to file prescribed, Form 1040 testimony under a prescribed jurat that falsely purports that it was signed under penalties of perjury and such testimony is used against the individuals in courts of law that accept these coerced returns as certified evidence of what the individuals as witnesses "know and believe" (about a complex tax code that most of them have never read and about which even judges differ), can any reasonable person doubt the absurdity, the duplicity, the invalidity and the unconstitutionality of the Form 1040 involuntary confession of taxation?

5.5.9 1040 and Especially 1040NR Tax Forms Violate the Privacy Act and Therefore Need Not be Submitted

The Privacy Act of 1974 and subsequent amendments places stringent requirements on all paper forms that the federal government produces and distributes to the public. Among the laws regarding privacy is Public Law 96-511, which states the following relative to forms provided to the public by the federal government:

[It] "requires all information requests of the public to display a control number, an expiration date, and indicate why the information is needed, how it will be used, and whether it is a voluntary or mandatory request. Requests which do not reflect a current OMB control number or fail to state why not, are 'bootleg'<sup>77</sup> requests and may be ignored by the public".

If you examine the IRS Forms 1040 and 1040NR, they do NOT meet these criteria. Below is a summary of the problems with these forms as they relate to the Privacy Act of 1974:

5.5.9.1 IRS Form 1040

The Privacy Act statement on the 1040 Tax form is as follows:

Then on page 56 of the year 2000 1040 booklet, it says:

42           As we point out in section 5.6.1, if you examine the entire Internal Revenue Code, you will not find a single statute making
 43           anyone liable to pay a tax under Subtitle A, Income taxes. So why didn't the IRS in the Privacy Act notice above just come
 44           out and say you don't have to file the return because there is not statute making you liable? Instead, they say you must file
 45           the form for any tax "you are liable for", which is NONE! That means the form is voluntary and not mandatory, but they 46           couldn't say that, because then no one would ever pay their taxes. This is part of their crafty deception that perpetuates
 47           fraud on a massive scale against the American public..

48           The 1040 form itself that comes inside the booklet that contains the above statement does not have a valid expiration date.
 49           The IRS also doesn't state on this form:

- 50           1. What the definition of "person" is. Because the income tax, according to the Supreme Court and the Congressional 51           Research Service, is an indirect excise tax, then only those entities in receipt of U.S. government privileges are liable
 52           for the tax. In this case, these "persons" are Corporation or Partnership registered in the District of Columbia or 53           "public officers" of the United States Government.

2. That human beings who do not meet the above definition of "person" need not fill out the tax form! The government is so aware of this that they deleted the definition of person originally pointed to in 4 U.S.C. Sec. 110(a). This section of the code, even to this day, points to a nonexistent 26 U.S.C. §3797, which formerly defined the term "person"!
3. That human beings have a Fifth Amendment right to not provide any of the information requested and cannot be penalized for doing so in any way. One cannot be penalized, fined, or taxed for exercising rights guaranteed by the U.S. constitution.
4. That you do not have to provide an SSN if you are not liable for tax. Therefore, if you are applying for a refund of all amounts paid, you need not provide an SSN and can remove it from all the W-2's and 1099 forms you get so as not to incriminate yourself.

5.5.9.2 IRS Form 1040NR

Disclosure and Paperwork Reduction Act Notice

The IRS Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998 requires that we tell you the conditions under which return information may be disclosed to any party outside the Internal Revenue Service. We ask for the information on this form to carry out the Internal Revenue laws of the United States. You are required to give us the information. We need the information to ensure that you are complying with these laws and to allow us to figure and collect the right amount of tax.

This notice applies to all papers you file with us, including this tax return. It also applies to any questions we need to ask you so we can complete, correct, or process your return; figure your tax; and collect tax, interest, or penalties.

You are not required to provide the information requested on a form that is subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act unless the form displays a valid OMB control number. Books or records relating to a form or its instructions must be retained as long as their contents may become material in the administration of any Internal Revenue law.

Generally, tax returns and return information are confidential, as required by section 6103. However, section 6103 allows or requires the Internal Revenue Service to disclose or give the information you write on your tax return to others as described in the Code. For example, we may disclose your tax information to the Department of Justice, to enforce the tax laws, both civil and criminal, and to cities, states, the District of Columbia, U.S. commonwealths or possessions, and certain foreign governments to carry out their tax laws. We may disclose your tax information to the Department of Treasury and contractors for tax administration purposes; and to other persons as necessary to obtain information that we cannot get in any other way in order to determine the amount of or to collect the tax you owe. We may disclose your tax information to the Comptroller General of the United States to permit the Comptroller General to review the Internal Revenue Service. We may also disclose your tax information to Committees of Congress; Federal; state, and local child support agencies; and to other Federal agencies for purposes of determining entitlement for benefits or the eligibility for an the repayment of loans.

Keep this notice with your records. It may help you if we ask you for other information. If you have any questions about the rules for filing and giving information, call or visit any Internal Revenue Service office.

It's very obvious that the privacy notice on this booklet is far less complete than the 1040 form. Based on the above and the content of the 1040NR form itself, we conclude that:

1. 1040NR form:
  - 1.1. Does NOT have any kind of privacy act notice.
  - 1.2. Does NOT have an expiration date.
  - 1.3. Does NOT state whether the form is voluntary or mandatory.
2. Booklet:
  - 2.1. Does not even mention the Privacy Act of 1974. At least the 1040 booklet mentioned this act.

Clearly, this form violates the Privacy Act of 1974 and is "bogus" and may be ignored by the public because under the circumstances, the federal government has absolutely no jurisdiction. According to Public Law 96-511, this form may be disregarded. We have to ask ourselves based on these conclusions:

"Why would the IRS not want to state whether the form is voluntary or mandatory?"

1 The answer is that if they told the truth, the form would be indicated as voluntary and not mandatory for persons domiciled
 2 in the 50 Union states of the United States of America. If they did that, NO ONE would fill it out and their empire and
 3 house of cards would crumble! So instead, they blatantly violated the Privacy Act of 1974 and Public Law 96-511 and
 4 counted on the fact that most people filling out the form wouldn't notice the violation. Why? Because most of the people
 5 who fill out this form are foreigners from other countries who don't know our taxing statutes! Pretty sneaky, huh? That's 6 how the IRS operates and it's EVIL.

1 Based on analysis of the code sections cited by the IRS, here is a summary of our conclusions:

- 2 1. If you aren't liable to pay income tax, like most people, then:
  - 3 1.1. You don't have to submit a tax return.
  - 4 1.2. You aren't required to provide your SSN on your return. The only persons required to provide SSN's with their return are employers who are withholding, and not individuals, as indicated in 26 U.S.C. section 6011.
  - 5 1.3. You aren't required to keep records.
  - 6 1.4. You aren't required to use the forms prescribed by the IRS.
- 7 2. The 1040NR tax form totally violates the Privacy Act of 1974 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980 and is a bogus form that Public Law 96-511 says you can disregard and not file. For instance, the 1040NR form doesn't have a Privacy Act notice, doesn't have an expiration date, and the booklet doesn't even mention the Privacy Act.
- 8 3. The 1040 tax form violates Public Law 96-511 and is bogus and that law says we can disregard the form and not use it. For instance, it does not have a valid expiration date, which can be no more than three years from the date of publication.
- 9 4. If you want examples of U.S. Government forms that DO meet all the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, then you are encouraged to visit the Income Tax Freedom Forms and Instructions area of our website at <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/FormsInstr.htm> and click on "View Evidence" in the upper left corner of the screen and go down to the bottom of the left scroll area under sections 13 and 14.

18 In closing, what you need to understand is that you must be liable for tax in order for the requirement to file the return to be mandatory. However, the IRS Privacy Act Notice for form 1040 above does not say this. It tries to create an impression that everyone is liable with convoluted illogic, but doesn't specifically say every American is liable because that would be a lie. It also doesn't say what the definition of "person" is and this definition is pivotal to understanding whether you are a "person" who is liable. They want you to be fearful and confused about whether you are a person liable so they can extort money out of you. However, as we said before, "persons", in this case, are those entities and individuals who are in receipt of U.S. government privileges because the income tax is an indirect excise tax. Such persons include ONLY public officers of the U.S. government, U.S. registered corporations and partnerships, DISC (Domestic International Sales Corporations), and FSC (Foreign Sales Corporations). Even the Congressional Research Service, in its Report 97-59A (which Congressmen frequently quote and distribute to constituents in answer to their tax questions and concerns), admits that the income tax is an indirect excise tax, which means that it is a tax on government granted privileges against businesses and corporations and not individuals. This report appears on our website at:

20 Because of what we learned in this section, you now have some very powerful arguments you can make when you file your "statement" every year to satisfy the requirements of 26 U.S.C. 6011\(a\), which we recommend. We know that you aren't a person who is liable, but we also know that the IRS is incompetent and needs to be reminded regularly of our nonliability so they don't, in their ignorance, mount an assault on our person and property in their mistaken belief that we are liable. After you get out of the tax system and stop paying income taxes by following the recommendations in chapter 3 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008, we recommend filing an annual statement in order to stay out of trouble. That statement should mention that the form (1040 or 1040NR) that the IRS may mistakenly allege you are required to file is "bogus" in accordance with Public Law 96-511 and that you are therefore allowed to disregard it and submit a statement (indicated in 26 U.S.C. §6011\(a\)) attesting to that fact and that you are a person who is not liable for the income tax and documenting your good faith reasons for your belief, which probably will come out of this chapter of the book.

40 5.5.10 If You Don't File, the IRS Can't File a Substitute Return For You Under 26 U.S.C. §6020 (b)

41 26 U.S.C. §6020 says the following about returns prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury:

42 Subtitle F - Procedure and Administration

CHAPTER 61 - INFORMATION AND RETURNS
 Subchapter A - Returns and Records
 PART II - TAX RETURNS OR STATEMENTS
 Subpart D - Miscellaneous Provisions §6020 Returns prepared for or executed by Secretary

(a) Preparation of return by Secretary

If any person shall fail to make a return required by this title or by regulations prescribed thereunder, but shall consent to disclose all information necessary for the preparation thereof, then, and in that case, the Secretary may prepare such return, which, being signed by such person, may be received by the Secretary as the return of such person.

So you can see that once again, the IRS and the Secretary of the Treasury HAVE to rely on the tax payer's self-assessment in order to establish a tax liability. Agents do not have delegated authority to prepare a tax form on behalf of an American without the signature of the person. This is clearly shown on their Pocket Commission (see Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section [1.16.4] 3.1 through [1.16.4] 3.2). Their pocket commission must indicate that they have Enforcement commission (the last letter of the serial number of the pocket commission must be "E") in order to complete a 23C Assessment form, for instance, and none of the revenue officers associated with Subtitles A and C have such commissions. Revenue officer must also have a Delegation Order showing their authority specifically to sign the IRS Form 23C and/or the 1040. No revenue officers who administer Subtitles A and C have such delegation orders and are acting outside their lawful authority to sign such forms. You should demand a copy of their Delegation Order and their Pocket Commission if any agent tries to exceed their authority by signing a return for you or a 23C Assessment form.

A "Substitute for Return (SFR)" is a tax return prepared under the authority of law by the Internal Revenue Service on behalf of an Americans who refuse to file returns and which creates a tax liability. Section 5.1.11.6.8 of the Internal Revenue Manual describes the authority of the Internal Revenue Service to execute Substitute for Returns. Below is the content of that section:

IRC 6020(b) Authority

1. The following returns may be prepared, signed and assessed under the authority of IRC 6020(b):

- A. Form 940, Employer's Annual Federal Unemployment Tax Return
- B. Form 941, Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return
- C. Form 943, Employer's Annual Tax Return for Agricultural Employees
- D. Form 720, Quarterly Federal Excise Tax Return
- E. Form 2290, Heavy Vehicle Use Tax Return
- F. Form CT-1, Employer's Annual Railroad Retirement Tax Return
- G. Form 1065, U.S. Return of Partnership Income.

2. Pursuant to IRM 1.2.2.97, Delegations of Authority, Order Number 182 (rev. 7), dated 5/5/1997, revenue officers GS-09 and above, and Collection Support Function managers GS-09 and above, have the authority to prepare and execute returns under IRC 6020(b).

From the above, we can see that forms 1040, 1040A, 1040EZ, 1040NR, 1041, and 1120 do NOT appear, meaning that the Internal Revenue Service has no lawful delegated authority to execute SFR's against Americans under 26 U.S.C. §6020 of the Internal Revenue Code for personal income taxes found in Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. This means that if you don't complete and sign and submit an income tax form yourself and thereby assess yourself with a tax liability, no one in the government can do it without your consent or permission. Likewise, they can't AMEND an assessment that you do on yourself either. What they will do is PROPOSE an amendment and give you a time limit to respond, and then assume you agree if you fail to respond, but if you indicate on the original return that they may not amend it, then they are screwed and can't do anything except assume the liability you indicate, which hopefully will be zero! This very situation explains why even the government says our income tax system is based on "voluntary compliance".

The We the People Truth in Taxation Hearing held on 27-28 February 2002 featured an John Turner, Ex IRS Agent, who was a former collection officer for ten years, agreeing precisely with the above conclusions by answering a series of questions under oath related to his training as a revenue officer. He showed his actual IRS 6020(b) Training Course Materials as a revenue officer, which clearly showed that he did not have the authority to execute substitute for returns for IRS Forms 1040, 1040EZ, 1040A, 1040NR, 1041, or 1120. You can view the series of questions he answered and the evidence consisting of his revenue officer training materials on our website at:

In addition to the above significant conclusions, most revenue officers also have Delegation Orders that define which forms they are authorized to sign by law. The IRS simply does not issue delegation orders authorizing any revenue officer to sign or prepare SFRs for taxes associated with forms 1040, 1040A, 1040EZ, 1040NR, 1041, and 1120. When the IRS does prepare SFR's for an individual, they typically do not sign the form. It is well-established in the federal courts that a tax return that is not signed is not a valid tax return and does not satisfy the requirement to file a return.

Assessment authority of revenue officers to prepare SFRs are described in 26 U.S.C. §6201 and the regulation which implements this section says the following. Note that the regulation is an "interpretive" and not a "legislative" regulation, which means that it can't be applied to the income tax "imposed" by section 1 of the Internal Revenue Code. If you want to know about the different types of regulations, you can review section 3.15.2 earlier again:

[Code of Federal Regulations]
 [Title 26, Volume 17]
 [Revised as of April 1, 2001]
 From the U.S. Government Printing Office via GPO Access
 [CITE: 26CFR301.6201-1]

Sec. 301.6201-1 Assessment authority.

(a) IN GENERAL.

The district director is authorized and required to make all inquiries necessary to the determination and assessment of all taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or any prior internal revenue law. The district director is further authorized and required, and the director of the regional service center is authorized, to make the determinations and the assessments of such taxes. However, certain inquiries and determinations are, by direction of the Commissioner, made by other officials, such as assistant regional commissioners. The term "taxes" includes interest, additional amounts, additions to the taxes, and assessable penalties. The authority of the district director and the director of the regional service center to make assessments includes the following:

(1) TAXES SHOWN ON RETURN. The district director or the director of the regional service center shall assess all taxes determined by the taxpayer or by the district director or the director of the regional service center and disclosed on a return or list.

(2) UNPAID TAXES PAYABLE BY STAMP.

(i) If without the use of the proper stamp:

(a) Any article upon which a tax is required to be paid by means of a stamp is sold or removed for sale or use by the manufacturer thereof, or

(b) Any transaction or act upon which a tax is required to be paid by means of a stamp occurs; The district director, upon such information as he can obtain, must estimate the amount of the tax which has not been paid and the district director or the director of the regional service center must make assessment therefor upon the person the district director determines to be liable for the tax. However, the district director or the director of the regional service center may not assess any tax which is payable by stamp unless the taxpayer fails to pay such tax at the time and in the manner provided by law or regulations.

(ii) If a taxpayer gives a check or money order as a payment for stamps but the check or money order is not paid upon presentment, then the district director or the director of the regional service center shall assess the amount of the check or money order against the taxpayer as if it were a tax due at the time the check or money order was received by the district director.

As we covered earlier in section 5.4.15, the IRS has no legal authority to assess you with an income tax "liability". The reason is because the only form they can use to do so is the 1040, 1040NR, and/or 2555 under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §6020(b), and this section along with its implementing regulations found in 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-1(a)(2) clearly shows that the only thing the district director can do is make assessments of taxes collected by stamp but NOT for personal income taxes coming under Subtitles A and C. Notice that this regulation does NOT give the revenue officer authority to estimate tax nor sign a return or list on behalf of a person, or it would have said so. Subtitles A and C personal income taxes must

1 instead appear on a tax return, and the 1040, 2555, or 1040NR are the only things that qualify as legitimate returns upon
 2 which to base an assessment of Subtitle A and C personal income taxes. 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-1(a)(1) says the taxes
 3 assessed by the district director MUST be “disclosed on a return or list”. Even the title says that: “TAXES SHOWN ON
 4 RETURN”. If the agent has no Delegation Order or delegated authority to prepare such a return, then he is acting outside
 5 his lawful delegated authority and can be prosecuted for violation of 26 U.S.C. §7214! The Government Accountability
 6 Office (GAO) published a surprising audit report, report number GAO/GGD-00-60R on the IRS Substitute for Return
 7 program. This report confirms that Substitute For Returns are not really returns! The report says, and I quote:

8 “[IRS] Customer Service Division official commented on the phrase ‘Substitute for Return.’ They asked us to 9 emphasize that even though the program is commonly referred to as the SFR program, no actual tax return is 10 prepared.”

11 You know what that means, folks? If the IRS doesn't prepare an actual return as required above in order to create a valid
 12 self-assessment, then they pull it out of their ass and then falsify their IDRS computer system IMF records by putting the 13 system in manual override mode and creating a bogus backdated and fraudulent assessment so the assessment will occur
 14 before the expired Assessment Statute Expiration Date (ASED). You can confirm this if you FOIA your complete
 15 unsanitized master file for the years in question. It's financial terrorism and extortion, folks and these criminals should be 16 locked up in jail and have the key thrown away for doing it! Our politicians look the other way because they want your 17 money so bad that they condone extortion to get it. Below is a direct link to the GAO report if you would like to read it for 18 yourself on our website:

21 “GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCEMENT (Reuters, New York): The government announced today that it is 30 of the people.”

 31 [Adam Smith (1776), Wealth of Nations, pg. 532 (Prometheus Books, Amherst, New York 1991)]

32 This section will show clearly why we aren't liable to pay income taxes using only the I.R. codes themselves and not the 33 IRS Publications.

34 5.6.1 There's No Statute Making Anyone Liable to Pay Subtitle A Income Taxes!

35 The word “liable” or “liability” is the only term that establishes a legal “duty” to pay a tax. The first and only positive law
 36 federal taxing statute that has ever imposed such a legal “duty” was section 29 of the Revenue Act of 1894, which said in 37 pertinent part:

38 “Sec. 29. That it shall be the duty of all persons of lawful age having an income of more than three thousand
 39 five hundred dollars for the taxable year, computed on the basis herein prescribed, to make and render a list or
 40 return, on or before the day provided by law, in such form and manner as may be directed by the Commissioner
 41 of Internal Revenue with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to the collector or a deputy collector of 42 the district in which they reside, of the amount of their income, gains, and profits, as aforesaid; ...”

43 Notice the phrase “it shall be the duty of all persons of lawful age”. You can read this law direct from the Statutes at Large

The above positive law was declared unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895) because it attempted to institute a direct tax within states of the Union in stark violation of Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution. That case caught the Congress red-handed trying to violate the Constitution and slapped them on the wrist for putting their hands in the cookie jar. Since that time, the Congress has never since even attempted to institute any positive law federal taxing statute that included a "legal duty" or "liability" for natural persons (people) to pay a direct tax in states of the Union. The closest they have ever come was to create a "code" that "looks" like it is a law and "looks" like it creates a liability, but in fact does not because it cannot without violating the Constitution.

If you search the current edition of the Internal Revenue Code you will find that there is currently no section within the entire Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C, which makes most natural persons "liable" or establishes a legal "duty" for the payment of the taxes imposed under section 1! That section "imposes" a tax but never makes anyone liable. The only liability statute we could find pertaining to I.R.C., Subtitle A was 26 U.S.C. §1461, but this pertains to withholding agents, and not to the average American. Why? Because Subtitle A income taxes on all persons, natural or corporate, are voluntary and always have been since long before the Pollock case. The IRS Form 1040 confirms this. Look at the line that says what you owe the government. Note that it says "Amount you Owe" and not "amount you are liable for".

Liability is a crucial component of nearly everything that relates to income tax enforcement and every other area of law. Before any enforcement action may be undertaken, a legal "liability" must first be demonstrated by the moving party, which means that the government must first produce a valid assessment executed under the authority of a positive law, and we already said earlier in section 5.4.15 that IRS does not have the authority to do an assessment for Subtitle A income taxes because only you as the sovereign and the "volunteer" can do that on yourself. Here are a few legal aspects of enforcement that have "liability" as a prerequisite:

1. 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(14\) entitled "Definitions" prescribes that a "taxpayer" is anyone who is "subject to" any internal revenue tax. "Subject to" means "liable for". Since no one who does not work as a "public officers" of the United States government can be made "liable" for taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, then no private individual domiciled in a state of the Union who is not a "public officer" of the United States government can be a "taxpayer" unless they consensually volunteer to be. Being deceived into volunteering by using a repealed or obfuscated "code" or an abuse of legal process as a propaganda vehicle does not qualify as lawful informed consent, but instead amounts to duress.
2. 26 U.S.C. §6001 entitled "Records" only requires persons who are "liable" to keep records in order to properly comply with the provisions of the internal revenue code.
3. 26 U.S.C. §7601 entitled "Canvass of districts for taxable persons and objects" authorizes agents to canvass the "district" for persons "liable" for the tax. Without a liability demonstrated beforehand, they can't go looking for either you or your assets.
4. 26 U.S.C. §7602 entitled "Examination of books and witnesses" authorizes summons only for the purpose of "determining the liability of any person for any internal revenue tax". Without a demonstrated liability before the summons, they can't hold the summons!
5. 26 U.S.C. §6331\(a\) entitled "Levy and distraint" authorizes levies only upon persons who are "liable". Without a demonstrated liability, no levies may be made.
6. 26 U.S.C. §6700 entitled "Abusive tax shelters" makes it a crime to offer abusive tax shelters if these shelters are offered to "taxpayers" with an existing tax liability that they want to reduce by purchasing an investment that will give them a write-off. The government can't prove you are offering "abusive tax shelters" if they can't prove that the person you were offering them to was "liable" for the tax, and therefore a "taxpayer". Remember, a tax shelter is defined as follows:

tax shelter n(1952): a strategy, investment, or tax code provision that reduces one's tax liability.
[Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, ISBN 0-87779-510-X, 1983, p. 1209]

Anything that is "voluntary" simply can't be enforced, collected, or assessed. Not only this, but penalties for fraud or inaccurate returns cannot be instituted without an existing "liability", as revealed in 26 U.S.C. §6662(a) and 26 U.S.C. §6663(a).

Sec. 6662. - Imposition of accuracy-related penalty

(a) Imposition of penalty

If this section applies to any portion of an underpayment of tax required to be shown on a return, there shall be added to the tax an amount equal to 20 percent of the portion of the underpayment to which this section applies.

If you aren't legally "liable" for a tax to begin with and only file zero return or a one cent return, then you can't be penalized for doing so! That is why a natural person cannot be assessed by the IRS, cannot be penalized for nonpayment, and cannot legally have his property forcibly removed from him for nonpayment. Furthermore, subtitles A and C are the only "taxes" (really they are technically "donations", but the government calls them "taxes") in the I.R.C. which don't make the subjects "liable". All other types of taxes in the Internal Revenue Code specifically do the following in the Internal Revenue Code:

1. Make the individual specifically "liable" for the payment of taxes and state "shall be paid". Examples:
  - 1.1. 26 U.S.C. §4374
  - 1.2. 26 U.S.C. §4401\(c\)
  - 1.3. 26 U.S.C. §5005
  - 1.4. 26 U.S.C. §5043
  - 1.5. 26 U.S.C. §5703
2. Require the individual to keep records about his liability. Examples of other types of taxes that do require records:
  - 2.1. 26 U.S.C. §4403
  - 2.2. 26 U.S.C. §5114
  - 2.3. 26 U.S.C. §5124
  - 2.4. 26 U.S.C. §5741
3. Subject him or her to penalties for nonpayment. Examples:
  - 3.1. 26 U.S.C. Subtitle F, Sections 6671 through 6715 address assessable penalties.
  - 3.2. There are no implementing regulations or entries in any of the parallel tables of authorities (see http://www.access.gpo.gov/nara/cfr/parallel/parallel\_table.html) that map any of the penalties above to specific sections in 26 U.S.C. Subtitles A and C, nor are there any cross-references from Subtitles A and C that point to penalties in Subtitle F.

Without a legal liability, the IRS cannot institute collection, but they do so illegally anyway, and it's up to you to learn how they do it so you can fight it!

26 U.S.C. §1 is the section that the IRS says imposes the income tax. Here is an excerpt from that section:

United States Code
 TITLE 26 - INTERNAL REVENUE CODE
 Subtitle A - Income Taxes
 CHAPTER 1 - NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES
 Subchapter A - Determination of Tax Liability
 PART 1 - TAX ON INDIVIDUALS

Sec. 1. Tax imposed

(a) Married individuals filing joint returns and surviving spouses

There is hereby imposed on the taxable income of –

Does the word "imposed" mean "liable"?

Incidentally, did you notice we used "mean" instead of "include" above...because the government just loves to abuse this word to illegally expand their jurisdiction! Here is the definition of the word "impose" from Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition:

Impose: To levy or exact as by authority; to lay as a burden, tax, duty, or charge.
 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 755]

Exaction. The wrongful act of an officer or other person in compelling payment of a fee or reward for his services, under color of his official authority, where no payment is due.

3 Extortion. The obtaining of property from another induced by wrongful use of actual or threatened force,
4 violence, or fear, or under color of official right. 18 U.S.C.A. § 871 et seq.; § 1951.

5 A person is guilty of theft by extortion if he purposely obtains property of another by threatening to: (1) inflict
6 bodily injury on anyone or commit any other criminal offense; or (2) accuse anyone of a criminal offense; or 7 (3) expose any secret tending to subject any person to hatred, contempt or ridicule, or to impair his credit or
8 business repute; or (4) take or withhold action as an official, or cause an official to take or withhold action; or 9 (5) bring about or continue a strike, boycott or other collective unofficial action, if the property is not 10 demanded or received for the benefit of the group in whose interest the actor purports to act; or (6) testify or 11 provide information or withhold testimony or information with respect to another's legal claim or defense; or 12 (7) inflict any other harm which would not benefit the actor. Model Penal Code, §224.4.

13 See also Blackmail; Hobbs Act; Loan Sharking; Shakedown. With respect to Larceny by extortion, see Larceny.
14 Compare Coercion
15 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 585]

16 Amazing how brazen these lawyer criminals in the District of Criminals are, huh? Nothing in there about liability! And the 17 definition of the word "levy" out of that same legal dictionary on p. 907 says:

18 Levy, v.: To assess; raise; execute; exact; tax; collect; gather; take up; seize. Thus, to levy (assess, exact, raise, 19 or collect) a tax; to levy (raise or set up) a nuisance; to levy (acknowledge) a fine; to levy (inaugurate) war; to 20 levy an execution, i.e., to levy or collect a sum of money on an execution.

21 Here is what the federal courts say about the requirements to create a statutory liability before an obligation to pay can be 22 established:

24 [Higley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 69 F.2d. 160 (1934)]

25 "While Congress might have the power to place such a personal liability upon trust beneficiaries who did not
26 renounce the trust, yet it would require clear expression of such intent, and it cannot be spelled out from 27 language (as that here) which can be given an entirely natural and useful meaning and application excluding 28 such intent."
29 [Higley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 69 F.2d. 160 (1934)]

30 "A tax is a legal imposition, exclusively of statutory origin (37 Cyc. 724, 725), and, naturally, liability to 31 taxation must be read in statute, or it does not exist."
32 [Bente v. Bugbee, 137 A. 552, 103 N.J. Law. 608 (1927)]

33 "...the taxpayer must be liable for the tax. Tax liability is a condition precedent to the demand. Merely 34 demanding payment, even repeatedly, does not cause liability."
35 [Terry v. Bothke, 713 F.2d. 1405, at 1414 (1983)]

36 Can you collect a tax that no one is liable for? You certainly can, if you can find enough ignorant Americans and fool or 37 coerce them into believing that they are "taxpayers"! Do you see the words "liable" or "liability" used anywhere in the 38 above two definitions or anywhere in 26 U.S.C. §1? We don't...and if you aren't liable, then you don't have to pay!
39 When you search electronically through the entire 9,500 pages of the Internal Revenue Code like we did, you will indeed
40 find the word "liability" used for every kind of tax OTHER than personal income taxes, but not for any of the taxes on
41 individuals found in Subtitles A or C! When a person is made liable, the code explicitly says "shall be liable", "shall be 42 paid" and "shall keep records", etc, but nowhere is this stated for personal income taxes in Subtitles A or C. Here are just a 43 few examples where persons are explicitly made "liable" for payment of a tax that was also "imposed" elsewhere in the

45 26 U.S.C. §4374: Liability for tax: "...shall be paid..."

46
47 26 U.S.C. §4401\(c\) Persons liable for tax: "...wagers shall be liable for and shall pay"

1 26 U.S.C. §4403 Record requirements: "Each person liable for tax under this subchapter shall keep a daily

4 26 U.S.C. §5005 Persons liable for tax:

5 "(a) The distiller or importer of distilled spirits shall be liable for the taxes imposed..."

6 "(c) Proprietors of distilled spirits plants: "(1) Bonded storage. Every person operating bonded premises of 7 a distilled spirits plant shall be liable for internal revenue tax..."

8 "(e)(1)" Withdrawals without payment of tax: "...shall be liable"

9 ""(e)(2) Relief from liability: "All persons liable for the tax..."

11 26 U.S.C. §5043 Collection of taxes on wines

12 "(a) Persons liable for payment

13 The taxes on wine provided for in this subpart shall be paid--..."

14
15 26 U.S.C. §5054 Determination and collection of tax on beer

16 "(a) Time of determination

17 (1) Beer produced in the United States; certain imported beer....shall be paid by the brewer thereof in 18 accordance with section 5061."

20 26 U.S.C. §5703 Liability for tax and method of payment.

21 (a) Liability for tax

22 (1) Original liability....shall be liable for ...

23 (2) Transfer of liability...shall become liable..."

24 That's right: The personal income taxes mentioned in the following subtitles NOWHERE use the word "liable" or 25 "liability", so you can't be required to pay, which is why they also don't say "liable" or "shall pay" anywhere in the code 26 for these taxes on natural persons anywhere in:

- 27 • Subtitle A: Income Taxes
- 28 • Subtitle C: Employment Taxes

29 A favorite trick of the IRS when the above fact is pointed out is to cite 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 and show that the implementing 30 regulation for the statute uses the phrase "are liable to":

31 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1

32 (b) Citizens or residents of the United States liable to tax.

33 In general, all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are

34 liable to the income taxes imposed by the Code whether the income is received from sources within or 35 without the United States. Pursuant to section 876, a nonresident alien individual who is a bona fide resident of 36 Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year is, except as provided in section 933 with respect to Puerto Rican
37 source income, subject to taxation in the same manner as a resident alien individual. As to tax on nonresident
38 alien individuals, see sections 871 and 877.

39 Did you get that? 26 U.S.C. §1 didn't use the word "liable" but the implementing regulation did, which is clearly illegal
40 and violates the concept described in the Spreckles v. C.I.R. case below, which says:

41 "To the extent that regulations implement the statute, they have the force and effect of law...The regulation 42 implements the statute and cannot vitiate or change the statute..."
43 [Spreckles v. C.I.R., 119 F.2d, 667]

44 What the Treasury did to try to illegally expand their jurisdiction, in a clear demonstration of conflict of interest and a
45 violation of the Code of Ethics for Government employees we discussed in section 2.1, was create a bogus liability by 46 writing an illegal regulation in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1\(b\) to implement 26 U.S.C. §1 and use the word "liable" in the regulation!
47 Sneaky bastards! Remember that the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to write regulations that interpret and 48 implement the Internal Revenue Code under 26 U.S.C. §7805, but the Secretary has no delegated authority to expand or enlarge or modify the original language or jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code section he is implementing and enforcing! Why? Because the Congress is the only legislative body authorized by the Constitution, and no one in the Executive branch, including the Treasury, has any delegated authority to legislate.

*"When enacting §7206(1) Congress undoubtedly knew that the Secretary of the Treasury is empowered to prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of the internal revenue laws, so long as they carry into effect the will of Congress as expressed by the statutes. Such regulations have the force of law. The Secretary, however, does not have the power to make law. Dixon v. United States, supra."
[United States v. Levy, 533 F.2d. 969 (1976)]*

Therefore, 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) is a regulation that is null and void and fraudulent on its face insofar as its imposition of an otherwise nonexistent liability for the payment of Subtitle A income taxes. If you were to investigate this matter further, I'd be willing to bet money that the Secretary of Treasury who approved this regulations was a lame duck and knew he was on the way out of office and probably his last official act was to approve this regulation. That was the kind of scam that got the Sixteenth Amendment passed by the lame duck Secretary of State Philander Knox, who perjured himself by saying that the Sixteenth Amendment had been properly ratified by the required  $\frac{3}{4}$  of the states.

Family Guardian,

"The current 26 U.S.C. §1 comes from Section 11 of the 1939 code, without any significant change occurring (according to Congress). The old Section 11 said that the tax shall be "levied, collected, and PAID" upon the net income of individuals. While I think it was stupid of them to reword it without stating the liability there, the underlying law (the Statutes at Large) shows it, so 1.1-1 is correct. Congress also in Sections 6012 and 6151 show that one who receives "gross income" must file a return, and the one required to file the return "shall pay such tax." It's not in Subtitle A, but there's no requirement that it has to be, since the section says it applies "when a return of tax is required UNDER THIS TITLE" (not subtitle). Why do you not consider 6151 to be a liability clause?"

Larken Rose

<http://www.taxableincome.net/>

Here was part of our response to that claim:

Larken,

1. I looked up the implementing regulations applying 6151 to Subtitle A income taxes in Section 1. 26 C.F.R. §1.6151 clearly shows that "taxpayers" should pay the amount of tax shown on the return, but it doesn't say they are required to pay any tax that they didn't assess against themselves VOLUNTARILY. The only case they have to pay taxes they didn't voluntarily assess is under section 6014, which allows the TAXPAYER to ELECT to allow the IRS to compute his tax with his permission.

"Our system of taxation is based on voluntary assessment and payment, not on distraint", according to Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960)

That's why you can't be made liable to pay a tax that you didn't assess against yourself voluntarily. If you refuse to file a return or refuse to claim any gross income by filling in zeros on your return, then 26 USC §6201 clearly shows that the IRS may not involuntarily assess you a liability! If you look at the Parallel Table of Authorities, ALL of the taxes to which 6151 applies relate ONLY to Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms under Title 27. Look for yourself!:

<http://www4.law.cornell.edu/cgi-bin/usc-cfr.cgi/26/6151>

2. 26 U.S.C. §6151 and 26 U.S.C. §6012 are NOT liability statutes. 6151 says you shall pay any tax shown on a return (that you completed VOLUNTARILY) and 6012 says you must "make a return" for any subtitle A taxable gross income you have. Since the term "make a return" doesn't say "file a return" or even who to file it WITH, then one can satisfy this requirement by filling out a tax return (called "making a return") and filing it in one's file cabinet! One place that the word "file" is used is in the title of 26 U.S.C. §7203, and 26 U.S.C. §7806 says the title has no force or effect. The only other place "file" is used is in 6151, which only applies to Title 27 taxes. The code or regulations for Subtitle A income taxes therefore has to say WHO to file the return WITH and mention "liable to file with the Secretary of the Treasury", which it doesn't. It does for Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms taxes, but not for Subtitle A income taxes. See section 3.9.11 of my Great IRS Hoax book for further details on this. The code COULDN'T impose a requirement to file a return because it would violate the Fifth Amendment so they played games with words, as usual. I know this is picking nits, but that is what the code itself does and especially what Mr. Roginsky of the IRS did during his friendly interview with you!

Misunderstandings on your part about the issues discussed above is why you attract busy IRS bees to your honeypot. The IRS picks their battles carefully, and like the lion, hits the weakest parts of the herd, who are usually hobbling at the end of the procession with less than a full deck of cards. I'm not trying to criticize you, however, and simply want to help you by keeping you out of trouble.

Your friend,

Family Guardian

To give you just one example in real life that illustrates the lack of liability for Income Taxes, if employment taxes are indeed enforced "taxes" rather than "donations", then why:

1. Do you have to complete a W-4 giving the government permission to take your money under Subtitle C, Employment taxes? If it is a tax, they don't need your permission, do they!
2. Are Employment taxes classified by the IRS as gifts by assigning them to Tax Class 1? See section 5.6.8 later on this subject.

Something is fishy here, isn't it? And why do they call it a "tax" if you aren't "liable"? Shouldn't our dishonest government call it a "donation"? You be the judge!

The other question we should be asking ourselves is: "Who is the income tax imposed on?". 26 U.S.C. §1 uses the term "Individuals", but what does that mean? The answer is found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1\(a\):

26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

(1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident alien individual.

The tax is "imposed" on "citizens or residents of the United States" and "nonresident aliens" described in sections 871(b) and 877(b), but we know that "United States" as used here means the federal zone or the federal United States, so the tax doesn't apply to us. That is the only logical conclusion we can reach based on the constitutional limitations on direct taxation found in Article 1, Section 9 (1:9:4), Clause 4 and 1:2:3 of the U.S. Constitution!

"The right to tax and regulate the national citizenship is an inherent right under the rule of the Law of Nations, which is part of the law of the United States, as described in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17." The Luisitania, 251 F.715, 732.

"This jurisdiction extends to citizens of the United States, wherever resident, for the exercise of the privileges and immunities and protections of [federal] citizenship."
[Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47,44 S.Ct. 447, 11 Virginia Law Review, 607 (1924) ]

So once again, if we aren't "U.S.** citizens" or nonresident aliens with income associated with a "trade or business" in the federal United States, then we aren't liable for income taxes!

26 C.F.R. §31.3121\(e\)-1 State, United States, and citizen.

(b) ...The term 'citizen of the United States' includes a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, and, effective January 1, 1961, a citizen of Guam or American Samoa.

If we aren't statutory "U.S.** citizens" (8 U.S.C. §1401) but we were born in United States* the country on nonfederal land, then we are "nationals" and non-resident non-persons. As we will point out later, most of us are born as non-resident

1 non-persons and “nationals” (see 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21)) because we are born outside the federal zone but inside the 50
2 Union states. The legal profession has done their best to hide this fact over the years by redefining some key terms or
3 removing important definitions entirely from the legal dictionary. We talk about this later, in section 6.10.1.

4 Now when the IRS tries to do any enforcement action for income taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A and they
5 try to call someone in for an audit, they don't have a leg to stand on. All you have to do is show them the statute that gives
6 them the authority to call the audit, from 26 U.S.C. §7601:

7 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 78 > Subchapter A > Sec. 7601.
8 Sec. 7601. - Canvass of districts for taxable persons and objects

9 (a) General rule

10 The Secretary shall, to the extent he deems it practicable, cause officers or employees of the Treasury
11 Department to proceed, from time to time, through each internal revenue district and inquire after and 12 concerning all persons therein who may be liable to pay any internal revenue tax, and
13 all persons owning or having the care and management of any objects with respect to which any tax is imposed.

14 So the only thing the IRS can go looking for inside their “district”, which encompasses only areas within the federal zone
15 that are within the outer boundaries of their region, are “persons therein who may be liable to pay any internal revenue tax”.
16 Without a liability statute, the IRS agent has no authority to call you into his office to ask about taxes he thinks you owe.
17 Once again, “liability” is a prerequisite in order for enforcement action to be warranted, and since “liability” is nowhere
18 defined in the IRC for Subtitle A individual income taxes, then it isn't a tax but a “donation”. This is a very good fact to 19 bring up at your next IRS audit, folks! Now if you don't help him when he calls you in for an audit because you point out
20 that he can't prove you are liable, then he may try to illegally levy your pay. Once again, he's violating the “code” (not 21 “law”, but “code”) because look at what the levy statutes says, 26 U.S.C. §6331(a):

23 Sec. 6331. - Levy and distraint

24 (a) Authority of Secretary

25 If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10
26 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as 27 shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except 28 such property as is exempt under section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in 29 this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer,
30 employee, or elected official, of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of 31 the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 32 3401(d)) of such officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of 33 such tax is in jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary
34 and, upon failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-
35 day period provided in this section.

36 Once again, notice that the prerequisite for levy and distraint above is that the person must be liable, and so the frustrated
37 IRS agent can't legally levy your pay either, without subjecting himself to criminal liability under 26 U.S.C. §7433 and 26
38 U.S.C. §7214!

39 5.6.2 Your earnings aren't taxable because it is “notes” and “obligations” of the U.S. government

40 The power of Congress to coin money is found in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 5 of the U.S. Constitution:

41 U.S. Constitution
42 Article 1, Section 8, Clause 5

43 The Congress shall have Power To. . .

44 To coin Money, regulate the Value thereof, and of foreign Coin, and fix the Standard of Weights and Measures

45 The above power is not the origin for printing Federal Reserve Notes. Those notes are printed under the authority of 46 Article 1, Section 8, Clause 2 of the U.S. Constitution:

1 U.S. Constitution
2 Article 1, Section 8, Clause 2

3 The Congress shall have Power To . . .

4 To borrow Money on the credit of the United States;

5 The “money” you think you carry around in your pocket isn’t money at all, but a debt instrument or obligation borrowed
6 from a PRIVATE banking consortium deceptively called the “Federal Reserve” pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 2
7 of the Constitution. You will note that the top of each bill says “Federal Reserve Note”. The “Federal Reserve”, in fact, is 8 about as “federal” as “Federal Express”. Here is how Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth edition defines “money” on page 9 1005:

10 Money: In usual and ordinary acceptance it means coins and paper currency used as circulating medium of 11 exchange, and does not embrace notes, bonds, evidences of debt, or other personal or real
13 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1005]

14 Here is what the law says about this subject in 12 U.S.C. §411:

15 TITLE 12 > CHAPTER 3 > SUBCHAPTER XII > Sec. 411.
16 Sec. 411. - Issuance to reserve banks; nature of obligation; redemption

17 Federal reserve notes, to be issued at the discretion of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System
18 for the purpose of making advances to Federal reserve banks through the Federal reserve agents as hereinafter
19 set forth and for no other purpose, are authorized. The said notes shall be 20 obligations of the United States and shall be receivable by all national and member
21 *banks and Federal reserve banks and for all taxes, customs, and other public dues. They shall be
22 redeemed in lawful money on demand at the Treasury
23 Department of the United States, in the city of Washington,
24 District of Columbia, or at any Federal Reserve bank

25 You can search the entire U.S. Code as we have and NOWHERE will you find any place where Federal Reserve Notes are 26 defined or identified as “dollars” as used in the Constitution. Therefore, you cannot lawfully conclude that they are 27 equivalent. A Congressman wrote the Federal Reserve Board and they wrote back to admit that there is NOT definition for 28 what a “dollar” is! See the amazing truth for yourself:

29 But wait a minute! The law says that obligations of the U.S. government are not taxable in 31 U.S.C. §3124!

30 TITLE 31 > SUBTITLE III > CHAPTER 31 > SUBCHAPTER II > Sec. 3124.
31 Sec. 3124. - Exemption from taxation

32 (a) Stocks and obligations of the United States Government are exempt from taxation by a State or political 33 subdivision of a State. The exemption applies to each form of taxation that would require the obligation, the 34 interest on the obligation, or both, to be considered in computing a tax, except -

35 (1) a nondiscriminatory franchise tax or another nonproperty tax instead of a franchise tax, imposed on a

37 (2) an estate or inheritance tax.

38 (b) The tax status of interest on obligations and dividends, earnings, or other income from evidences of 39 ownership issued by the Government or an agency and the tax treatment of gain and loss from the disposition of 40 those obligations and evidences of ownership is decided under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 1 41 et seq.). An obligation that the Federal Housing Administration had agreed, under a contract made before

 2 District of Columbia, a territory or possession of the United States, or a department, agency, instrumentality, or
 3 political subdivision of the District, territory, or possession

4 Therefore, your Federal Reserve Notes (FRN's) are not taxable by federal State governments, because they aren't really
 5 lawful money, but debt obligations, or the equivalent of corporate government bonds! For more interesting reading, we

20 5.6.3 Constitutional Constraints on Federal Taxing Power

21 While the current I.R. code and implementing regulations document the limited application of the federal income tax, it is 22 important to explain the reason why such a limitation exists. Without an explanation of why the code is as it is, the 23 conclusion may be unbelievable to some (regardless of the actual evidence). Certainly the limitation was not due to 24 Congress not wanting to tax all income. Without some obstacle to Congress' power, the tax which most people now
 25 believe exists (a tax on the income of most Americans) would certainly have been imposed.

26 According to the Supreme Court, the broad and general wording which Congress used to define "gross income" was 27 intended to tax all income within their power to tax.

28 "This Court has frequently stated that this language [defining "gross income"] was used by Congress to exert 29 in this field 'the full measure of its taxing power.'"
 30 [\[Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co., 348 U.S. 426 \(1955\)\]](#)

31 This ruling is speaking specifically of Section 22(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, which is the predecessor to the 32 current 26 U.S.C. §61. Congress has stated that the scope of "gross income" did not change when the law was rearranged
 33 and reworded. (It should be mentioned that the current tax code is basically just the income tax of 1913, but with many 34 amendments over the years adding, removing, rewording, and renumbering various sections. The fundamental nature and 35 origin of the tax remains intact.)

36 The general language of the definition of "gross income" (past and present) may give an initial impression of an unlimited
 37 tax on the income of every individual. However, the meaning of a statute passed by Congress is limited to those matters
 38 which the Constitution puts under federal jurisdiction.

39 "It is elementary law that every statute is to be read in the light of the constitution. However broad and general
 40 its language, it cannot be interpreted as extending beyond those matters which it was within the constitutional 41 power of the legislature to reach."
 42 [\[McCullough v. Com. Of Virginia, 172 U.S. 102 \(1898\) \]](#)

43 (Notice that this is not some radical decision, but is considered "elementary law.")

44 In other words, a statute may be more restricted than its general wording suggests. The above case goes on to say that 45 Constitutional restrictions are to be assumed when reading a statute (state or federal), even though they are not stated.

46 "So, although general language was introduced into the statute of 1871, it is not to be read as reaching to 47 matters in respect to which the legislature had no constitutional power, but only as to those matters within its 48 control. And, if there were, as it seems there were, certain special taxes and dues, which, under the existing provisions of the state constitution, could not be affected by legislative action, the statute is to be read as though it in terms excluded them from its operation.”

So a federal statute is to be read as though it specifically excludes matters which the Constitution does not put under federal jurisdiction. So while, as the Supreme Court said, Congress intended to use the “full measure of its taxing power” by using such a generally-worded definition of “gross income,” the Supreme Court also admits that the income tax “cannot be applied to any income which Congress has no power to tax” [William E. Peck & Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 165 (1918)]. So the general wording must be interpreted in light of the Constitutional limits on Congress’ power. But this could pose a problem for the average American. How is he to know what the Constitutional limits are on Congress’ power (when even federal judges disagree with each other on the matter)?

As mentioned at the beginning of this report, the Secretary of the Treasury is empowered (by statute) to implement and interpret the law. When the Treasury regulations are published in the Federal Register, that becomes the official notice to the public of what the law requires. Therefore, while the statutes may use general language (which might at first glance seem to include matters outside of federal jurisdiction), the regulations must give specifics.

Though it is phrased somewhat differently than the current 26 U.S.C. §61, the definition of “gross income” found in Section 22(a) of the 1939 Code appears all-encompassing. The regulations under the 1939 Code, however, are very telling. (The term “net income” was used back then, which would later become “taxable income.”)

“Sec. 29.21-1. Meaning of net income. The tax imposed by chapter 1 is upon income. Neither income exempted by statute or fundamental law... enter into the computation of net income as defined by section 21.”

The term “fundamental law” refers to the Constitution (as countless court rulings show). While the general wording of the statutes makes no such reference, here the regulations imply that some income not exempted by statute is nonetheless exempt from taxation under the Constitution. Note the distinction between income exempted by statute, and income exempted by the Constitution. This occurs again later in the same section:

“(b) Gross income, meaning income (in the broad sense) less income which is by statutory provision or otherwise exempt from the tax imposed by chapter 1. (See section 22.)”

Again, the regulations are admitting that some things not exempted by statute are nonetheless exempt from federal taxation. The above citation refers us to Section 22 (of the 1939 Code) for the meaning of “gross income.” The regulations under that section begin as follows:

“Sec. 29.22(a)-1. What included in gross income. Gross income includes in general [items of income listed] derived from any source whatever, unless exempt from tax by law. (See section 22(b) and 116.)”

This refers the reader to Section 22(b) to learn what income is “exempt from tax.” After saying that certain items are specifically exempted by statute, the regulations under section 22(b) (referred to in the previous citation) state:

“No other items are exempt from gross income except (1) those items of income which are, under the Constitution, not taxable by the Federal Government; (2) those items of income which are exempt from tax on income under the provisions of any Act of Congress still in effect; and (3) the income exempted under the provisions of section 116.”

Again the regulations explicitly state that some income is not constitutionally taxable, even though it is not specifically exempted by any statute passed by Congress. The statutes need not mention this, because (as shown above), the Constitutional limitations are to be assumed when reading any statute. But because the regulations must give specifics, the fact that some income not exempt by statute is exempted by the Constitution is specifically stated in the regulations. (Many tax professionals are at a loss to explain this; they are unable to identify anything which is not taxable under the constitution, but which is not exempted by statute.)

5.6.4 Exempt Income

1 The above issue of Constitutional limits on Congress' taxing power is not intended to dispute the constitutionality of the
 2 income tax. In fact, the opinion of this author, the readers, and even the courts regarding the question of taxing jurisdiction
 3 ends up being irrelevant in this case. The statutes of Congress, together with the regulations of the Secretary of the 4 Treasury (which must also be approved by Congress), show that they believe their jurisdiction to tax incomes was limited
 5 to individuals involved in international and foreign commerce.

6 (“International commerce” means trade which crosses country borders, such as income from within the federal United
 7 States**/federal zone going to nonresident aliens. “Foreign commerce” means trade which happens entirely outside of the 8 United States of America, such as a U.S. citizen working and getting paid abroad, or in a federal possession.)

9 As discussed above, the regulations under 22(a) of the 1939 Code show that the meaning of “gross income” does not 10 include income which is exempt by statute, or other income which is “under the Constitution, not taxable by the Federal 11 Government.” But, as stated before, the regulations must specifically inform the public of what is required, rather than 12 leaving people to guess at what is Constitutionally taxable. The following is the first paragraph of the 1945 regulations
 13 under the section of statutes defining “gross income”:

14 “39.22(a)-1 What included in gross income (a) Gross income includes in general [items of income listed]
 15 derived from any source whatever, unless exempt from tax by law. See sections 22(b) and 116. [the 16 regulations under the cited section states that some income not exempted by statute is “under the Constitution,
 17 not taxable by the Federal Government”] In general, income [not “gross income”] is the gain derived from 18 capital, from labor, or from both combined, provided it be understood to include profit gained through a sale or 19 conversion of capital assets. Profits of citizens, residents, or domestic corporations derived from sales in 20 foreign commerce must be included in their gross income; but special provisions are made for nonresident
 21 aliens and foreign corporations by sections 211 to 238, inclusive, and, in certain cases, by section 251, for 22 citizens and domestic corporations deriving income from sources within possessions of the United States.
 23 Income may be in the form of cash or of property.”

24 Keeping in mind the matter of taxing jurisdiction, it becomes clear that the Secretary of the Treasury in these regulations
 25 was informing the public of which matters are constitutionally taxable by the federal government. This list of taxable
 26 activities is completely absent from 22(a) of the 1939 statutes. As the Supreme Court has stated, “the statute is to be read
 27 as though it in terms exclude[s]” matters not within the constitutional power of the government to tax. At the same time,
 28 the regulations must give specifics to the public of what the law requires, and here they do so. Not surprisingly, the list of 29 taxable activities in these regulations matches precisely those matters which the Constitution puts under federal jurisdiction
 30 (international and foreign commerce, and federal possessions).

31 Anyone claiming that this list of taxable activities is not exclusive (claiming instead that other types of income are also 32 taxable) encounters a logical problem. One must then claim that the regulations specifically say that some income not
 33 exempt by statute is exempt under the Constitution, but that those regulations never give any indication as to what income
 34 is meant. If this list is not the explanation of what is constitutionally taxable, then no further explanation seems to exist
 35 (which would violate the requirement that the regulations specifically state what the law requires).

36 In addition, one would be hard pressed to explain why these regulations bother to specifically point out these taxable
 37 activities (when the statutes do not), if this is not a complete list of what the Secretary believed to be constitutionally 38 taxable.

39 While the regulations specifically mention the Constitutional limitations, and the limits are to be assumed when reading the 40 statutes, this is not to say that the statutes give no indication of the limited nature of the tax. While the general statutory 41 definition of “gross income” by itself may be misleading, there is plenty of evidence in the statutes that shows that 42 Congress knew the limits of its power, and stayed within those bounds. Most notably, the entire structure and contents of 43 Subchapter N (“Tax based on income from sources within or without the United States”) indicates that it is about 44 international and foreign commerce.

45 5.6.5 The Definition of “income” for the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code

46 Have you ever closely examined block 1 of the W-2 form that your employer sends you at the end of every year? The 47 block is labeled “Wages, tips, other compensation”. Have you ever wondered why this block isn't labeled “income”? After 48 all, if you correspond with or talk with the revenue agents at the IRS, they will try to make you believe that everything you
 49 make is “income”, so why don't they just call it that on the form? Did you ever notice that they will NEVER put in writing
 50 with their signature on it that the amount in block 1 is “income” and wonder why? The answer to these intriguing questions

1 are found in this section and they will surprise you indeed! One of the reasons is that neither your employer nor the
 2 government can lawfully call what you make "income" without committing blatant fraud and making themselves criminally
 3 liable in the process!

4 Amazing as it may sound, the entire 9,500 page Internal Revenue Code also never defines the word "income" in the context
 5 of a person domiciled in a state of the Union! To wit:

- 6 1. 26 U.S.C. §643(b) defines the term "income", but only in the context of the estate of a deceased person domiciled
 7 within the federal zone under Subtitle B, but not in the context of any tax documented under Subtitle A. Below is that
 8 definition:

9 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter J > PART I > Subpart A > § 643
 10 § 643. Definitions applicable to subparts A, B, C, and D

11 (b) Income For purposes of this subpart and subparts B, C, and D, the term "income", when not preceded by 12 the words "taxable", "distributable net", "undistributed net", or "gross", means the amount of income of the 13 estate or trust for the taxable year determined under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable local 14 law. Items of gross income constituting extraordinary dividends or taxable stock dividends which the fiduciary,
 15 acting in good faith, determines to be allocable to corpus under the terms of the governing instrument and

17 As we learned earlier in section 5.1.11, the Internal Revenue Code serves a dual purpose. Subtitles A through C only
 18 apply to federal employees domiciliaries of the District of Columbia. Subtitles D and E apply throughout the states
 19 (mostly but not exclusively). From the very foundations of this country, the founders bestowed upon Congress no
 20 limitations as to the right to institute estate taxes within the District of Columbia and territories. This conclusion is 21 based on the ruling of the Supreme Court in the case of Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U.S. 41 (1900), which explains the 22 history of estate taxes very thoroughly.

- 23 2. Under Subtitle A, the IRS defines the phrase "gross income" in 26 U.S.C. §61 and 26 U.S.C. §872 but it never tells you
 24 that "gross income" must also meet the Constitutional definition of "income" defined by the Supreme Court to be 25 applied to the "items of gross income" appearing in that section. The older version of the codes and regulations used to 26 do that (see 26 C.F.R. §39.22(b)-1 (1956), for instance) but the new version was obfuscated to disguise it.

27 On many occasions, and especially during examinations or summons or depositions, IRS agents and DOJ lawyers will ask
 28 people "how much income did you have during taxable year ____?" As an American domiciled in the 50 Union states,
 29 the correct answer is "that depends how you define 'income'. I didn't have any 'GROSS income', and the true definition of 30 'income' in my case is that defined in I.R.C. section 901." If you look in that section, the title of the section is "Sec. 901.
 31 Taxes of foreign countries and of possessions of United States" As we described earlier in section 5.2.5, everything outside
 32 of federal territories and possessions of the United States**/federal zone is "foreign" with respect to the I.R.C., and
 33 therefore each of the 50 Union states are considered "foreign countries" with respect to the Internal Revenue Code, as we 34 talked about in section 5.3.5 earlier. This conclusion forms the basis for why the correct form to file for Americans born in 35 the federal zone and who are living overseas is IRS Form 2555. If you look over I.R.C. section 901, the income of 36 Americans domiciled in the nonfederal areas simply isn't listed as being taxable within that section! You can therefore 37 legitimately answer the auditor or revenue agent during the examination that your "gross income" and your "taxable
 38 income" are both a "big fat zero." One of our readers (Wayne Bentson) used this technique during a deposition against the 39 IRS and reported that afterward he overheard two IRS revenue agents whispering to each other "He knows!", after which 40 they promptly ended the deposition! Even more interesting is that the very same sources of "gross income" enumerated in 41 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) and applying to both sources within and sources without the "[federal] United States*" are 42 mentioned in this section 901 (FSC, DISC, etc).

43 There still remains the question as to what is constitutionally allowable as "income" which can be taxed, as Congress is not 44 constitutionally free to define "income" in any way it chooses (Simpson v. U.S., [D.C. Iowa 1976] 423 F.Supp. 720, 45 reversed on other grounds, Prescott v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, [C.A.] 561 F.2d. 1287). Further, the labels used 46 do not determine the extent of the taxing power (Simmons v. U.S., [C.A. Md. 1962] 308 F.2d. 160; Richardson v. U.S.,

48 To reiterate; the tax authorized under the original U.S. Constitution has not changed except as to separate the source of 49 "income" from the income itself permitting the collection of an indirect (excise) tax on income by leaving the source for 50 items of gross income for the recipient (wages, salaries, fees for service, and first time commissions) free of tax (Brushaber, 51 supra.) despite how some politicians misinterpret the 16th Amendment.

NOTE: The Brushaber court referred to an earlier case, Pollock v. Farmers' Loan and Trust Co., 158 U.S. 601 (1895) which declared the Income Tax Act of 1894 unconstitutional, as its effect would have been to leave the burden of the tax to be born by professions, trades, employments, or vocations; and in that way, what was intended as a tax on capital would remain, in substance, a tax on occupations and labor. This result, the court held, could NOT have been contemplated by Congress.

According to one federal court:

*"The general term "income" is not defined in the Internal Revenue Code."
[U.S. v. Ballard, 535 F.2d. 400(8th Cir, 1976)]*

Of course, we now know based on an examination of 26 U.S.C. §643(b) above that this conclusion is wrong based on the I.R.C. of today, but this may have been true when the ruling occurred in 1976. The U.S. Supreme Court has also ruled that Congress may not make its own definition of "income" in Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189, 207, 40 S.Ct. 189, 9 A.L.R. 1570 (1920):

*"In order, therefore, that the [apportionment] clauses cited from article I [§2, cl. 3 and §9, cl. 4] of the Constitution may have proper force and effect ...[I]t becomes essential to distinguish between what is an what is not 'income,' ...according to truth and substance, without regard to form. Congress cannot by any definition it may adopt conclude the matter, since it cannot by legislation alter the Constitution, from which alone, it derives its power to legislate, and within those limitations alone that power can be lawfully exercised... [pg. 207] ...After examining dictionaries in common use we find little to add to the succinct definition adopted in two cases arising under the Corporation Tax Act of 1909, Stratton's Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 415, 34 S.Sup.Ct. 136, 140 [58 L.Ed. 285] and Doyle v. Mitchell Bros. Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185, 38 S.Sup.Ct. 467, 469, 62 L.Ed. 1054..."*

It is important to point out that the above ruling was made in the context of the Constitution and the states of the Union. Congress has always had the authority to declare the meaning of "income" in the context of the federal zone, but must observe the limitations of the Constitution when attempting to collect taxes in states of the Union. So what is "income"? Here are some definitions direct from the U.S. Supreme Court as cited in one of the above-mentioned cases:

"...Whatever difficulty there may be about a precise scientific definition of 'income', it imports, as used here, something entirely distinct from principal or capital either as a subject of taxation or as a measure of the tax; conveying rather the idea of gain or increase arising from corporate activities."
[Doyle v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185, 38 S.Ct. 467 (1918)]

Has the IRS been treating you as a corporation all these years? When people see this, they say things like:

If you already read sections 4.1 and 5.1.1 earlier, you would understand why this is the case. For those of you who haven't, keep reading and we will clarify. Here is the other cite defining income mentioned in the Eisner ruling, from Stratton's Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 414, 58 L.Ed. 285, 34 Sup.Ct. 136 (1913):

*"This court had decided in the Pollock Case that the income tax law of 1894 amounted in effect to a direct tax upon property, and was invalid because not apportioned according to populations, as prescribed by the Constitution. The act of 1909 avoided this difficulty by imposing not an income tax, but an excise tax upon the conduct of business in a corporate capacity, measuring, however, the amount of tax by the income of the corporation...Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107, 55 L.Ed. 389, 31 Sup.Ct.Rep. 342, Ann. Cas."*

The case cited above in Stratton's, Flint v. Stone, is very enlightening on exactly what type of activity or source of income is being taxed and who has to pay the tax:

*"The Corporation Tax is not a direct tax within the enumeration provision of the Constitution, but is an impost or excise which Congress [220 U.S. 107] has power to impose under Art. I, §8, cl. 1, of the Constitution. Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601, distinguished.*

1 "Indirect taxation includes a tax on business done in a corporate capacity; the difference between it and direct
2 taxation imposed on property because of its ownership is substantial, and not merely nominal.

3 "Excises are taxes laid upon the manufacture, sale, or consumption of commodities within the country, upon
4 licenses to pursue certain occupations and upon corporate privileges; the requirement to pay such taxes
5 involves the exercise of the privilege, and if business is not done in the manner described, no tax is payable.

6 "The only limitations on the power of Congress to levy excise taxes are that they must be for the public welfare
7 and must be uniform throughout the United States; they do not have to be apportioned.

8 "Courts may not add any limitations on the power of Congress to impose excise taxes to that of uniformity,
9 which was deemed sufficient by those who framed and adopted the Constitution.

10 "The revenues of the United States must be obtained from the same territory, and the same people, and its 11 excise taxes collected from the same activities, as are also reached by the states to support their local 12 governments, and this fact must be considered in determining whether there are any implied limitations on 13 the federal power to tax because of the sovereignty of the states over matters within their exclusive 14 jurisdiction.

15 "Enactments of Congress levying taxes are, as are other laws of the federal government acting within 16 constitutional authority, the supreme law of the land.

17 "Business activities such as those enumerated in the Corporation Tax Law are not beyond the excise taxing 18 power of Congress because executed under franchises created by the states.

19 "The power of Congress to raise revenue is essential to national existence, and cannot be impaired or limited
20 by individuals incorporating and acting under state authority. The mere fact that business is transacted
21 pursuant to state authority creating private corporations does not exempt it from the power of Congress to 22 levy excise laws upon the privilege of so doing.

23 "The exemption from federal taxation of the means and instrumentalities employed in carrying on the 24 governmental operations of the states does not extend to state agencies and instrumentalities used for carrying
25 on business of a private character. South Carolina v. United States, 199 U.S. 437. 220 U.S. 111

26 "The constitutional limitation of uniformity in excise taxes does not require equal application of the tax to all 27 coming within its operation, but is limited to geographical uniformity throughout the United States. Knowlton v.
28 Moore, 178 U.S. 41."
29 [Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911)]

30 So what they are saying above in Flint is that in order to have "income" as Constitutionally defined, one must be a
31 corporation earning "profit" from a privileged activity or source that is subject to federal excise taxes. This applies equally
32 to both federal and state corporations, but only as provided by statute. The key is that the only taxable activities or sources
33 for federal income taxes are all related to foreign commerce, which is the only "privileged" type of commerce coming
34 under federal jurisdiction under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 and Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5 of the U.S. Constitution.
35 Foreign commerce is the "privileged" activity that is subject to the federal excise tax because foreign commerce is subject
36 only to federal regulation and not state regulation.

37 "The States, after they formed the Union, continued to have the same range of taxing power which they had
38 before, barring only duties affecting exports, imports, and on tonnage. 2 Congress, on the other hand, to lay
39 taxes in order 'to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States',
40 Art. 1, Sec. 8, U.S.C.A.Const., can reach every person and every dollar in the land with due regard to
41 Constitutional limitations as to the method of laying taxes."
42 [Graves v. People of State of New York, 306 U.S. 466 (1939)]

43 The legal definition of "duty" confirms that it is a an excise tax on imports:

44 "Duty....denotes a tax or impost due to the government upon the importation or exportation of goods. See 19
45 U.S.C.A. See also Customs; Customs duties; Tariff; Toll; Tonnage-duty."
46 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 505]

47 The fact that foreign commerce is a privileged activity that comes exclusively under federal jurisdiction is confirmed by 48 examining 26 U.S.C. §7001, which requires that all such foreign commerce activities of legal fictions called "persons"
49 [which in fact are corporations] be licensed by the federal government:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 72 > Subchapter A > Sec. 7001.
Sec. 7001. - Collection of foreign items

(a) License

All persons undertaking as a matter of business or for profit the collection of foreign payments of interest or dividends by means of coupons, checks, or bills of exchange shall obtain a license from the Secretary and shall be subject to such regulations enabling the Government to obtain the information required under subtitle A (relating to income taxes) as the Secretary shall prescribe.

(b) Penalty for failure to obtain license

For penalty for failure to obtain the license provided for in this section, see section 7231

Under the current Internal Revenue Code, excise taxes under Subtitles D and E are the only such foreign commerce activities subject to legitimate federal excise taxes on “income”. Under subtitles A and C, the only taxable activities are foreign commerce of corporations and the only persons subject to the jurisdiction of the code are corporate officers, but because there is no liability statute anywhere in these subtitles, then income taxes under Subtitle A and Employment taxes under Subtitle C are not really “taxes” as legally defined, but more properly “donations”, and are voluntary. We covered this subject more thoroughly earlier in section 5.1.8. The only biological persons who can define earnings or monies as taxable under the Internal Revenue Code are those who “volunteer” to call it so, because the federal government isn’t authorized in the Constitution to define it as other than “corporate profit” from foreign commerce, according to the Supreme Court in Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920). Incidentally, there are many who might be tempted to say that the ruling of the Supreme Court in Flint v. Stone Tracy above is irrelevant and overruled because it was made before the passage of the Sixteenth Amendment in 1913, which most contemporary politicians say is what authorized the income tax. However, this is a simply not true because the Supreme Court later ruled in Stanton v. Baltic Mining, 240 U.S. 103 (1916) that the Sixteenth Amendment “conferred no new powers of taxation.”

The above findings are completely consistent with our analysis found in section 5.1.8, where we concluded that Subtitle A Income taxes are indirect excise taxes on federal privileges. In the instant case above, the privilege is status as a corporation involved in foreign commerce:

United States Code
TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS
Sec. 3002. Definitions
(15) "United States" means -
(A) a Federal corporation;
(B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or
(C) an instrumentality of the United States.

As a matter of fact, the U.S. Supreme Court has admitted that ALL governments are corporations!:

"Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all persons,' ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals. 2 Inst. 46-7. 'No man shall be taken,' 'no man shall be disseised,' without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution."
[Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of Warren Bridge, 36 U.S. 420 (1837)]

The people in receipt of taxable federal corporate “privileges” are the officers of the corporation, who in this case are the “public officers” of the corporation working as Congressmen, the President, judges, and appointees of the President!

26 U.S.C. §7701

1 (a) DEFINITIONS

2 (26) The term "trade or business" includes the performance of the functions of a public office.

4 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\)\(2\)-GRADUATED RATE OF TAX...

5 "(2) DETERMINATION OF TAXABLE INCOME.—In determining taxable income...gross income includes
6 ONLY gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a TRADE OR BUSINESS within the 7 United States."

8 Following is a definition of "public office":

9 *Public Office, pursuant to Black's Law Dictionary, Abridged Sixth Edition, means:

10 "Essential characteristics of a 'public office' are:

- 11 (6) Authority conferred by law,
12 (7) Fixed tenure of office, and
13 (8) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.
14 (9) Key element of such test is that "officer is carrying out a sovereign function".
15 (10) Essential elements to establish public position as 'public office' are:
16 (a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by 17 legislature.
18 (b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,
19 (c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative 20 authority.
21 (d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
22 (e) Position must have some permanency."

24 officers" or instrumentalities of the federal corporation known as the U.S. government, who are in receipt of taxable
25 privileges:

26 26 U.S.C., Subchapter D - Seizure of Property for Collection of Taxes
27 Sec. 6331. Levy and distraint

28
29 (a) Authority of Secretary

31 If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand,
32 it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the
33 expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under
34 section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of
35 such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of
36 the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the
37 District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such 38 officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in
39 jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon
40 failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period
41 provided in this section.

42 (b) Seizure and sale of property

43 The term "levy" as used in this title includes the power of distraint and seizure by any means. Except as 44 otherwise provided in subsection (e), a levy shall extend only to property possessed and obligations existing at 45 the time thereof. In any case in which the Secretary may levy upon property or rights to property, he may seize 46 and sell such property or rights to property (whether real or personal, tangible or intangible).

47 And the definition of "employee" confirms that these people against whom collection can be instituted are really just 48 elected or appointed officers of the federal corporation known as the U.S. government:

49 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(c\) Employee: "...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or
50 appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof,
51 or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term
52 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation."

54 the income tax is really just an embodiment of the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939! Essentially, taxes under Subtitle A are 55 part of the terms of the federal employment agreement that public officers voluntarily accept as a condition of employment.

1 Section 5.6.10 expands upon this point. When you file a form 1040, you are in effect electing to treat your income as
2 “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” which is the equivalent of saying that you want to be
3 treated as a “public officer” of the U.S. government whose income is taxable under the indirect excise tax found in Internal 4 Revenue Code, Subtitle A!

5 To extend this federal corporation metaphor even further, the debt instruments or “stocks” issued by this federal corporation
6 known as the U.S. government are U.S. dollars! See the following cite right from the Supreme Court on this subject, where 7 someone challenged the constitutionality of paper money in preference to gold-backed currency:

8 “Under the power to borrow money on the credit of the United States, and to issue circulating notes for the 9 money borrowed, [Congress'] power to define the quality and force of those notes as currency is as broad as
10 the like power over a metallic currency under the power to coin money and to regulate the value thereof. Under 11 the two powers, taken together, Congress is authorized to establish a national currency, either in coin or in 12 paper, and to make that currency lawful money for all purposes, as regards the national government or private 13 individuals.” . . . (Emphasis added)
14 [Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421, 448, 4 S.Ct. 122, 130, 28 L.Ed. 204 (1884)]

15 There you have it. The paper money you carry around is “stock” in the federal corporation called the “U.S. government”
16 and that government wants to make you a “stockholder” and an officer of that corporation in receipt of federal privileges so
17 they can tax those privileges using the Subtitle A income tax! We know, however, that they can't legitimately do this 18 because the result would be unavoidable financial slavery:

19 “Legislature...cannot name something to be a taxable privilege unless it is first a privilege [Taxation West Key
20 53]...The Right to receive income or earnings is a right belonging to every person and realization and receipt
22 MacFarland, 337 S.W.2d. 453, Tenn.

23 “The obligation to pay an excise tax is based upon the voluntary action of the person taxed in performing the 24 act, enjoying the privilege, or engaging in the occupation which is the subject of the excise, and the element of 25 absolute and unavoidable demand is lacking.”
26 [People ex. rel. Atty Gen. v. Naglee, 1 Cal. 232, Bank of Commerce & T. Co. v. Senter, 149 Tenn. 441, 381
27 S.W. 144]

28 Thank God we live in a free country, because our greedy government certainly has pushed us as far in the direction of 29 socialism as they could since the income tax was introduced in 1913 and as it has been perfected over the last 70 or so
30 years, haven't they? To see this federal corporation metaphor for the U.S. government extended even further, we refer you
31 to section 4.7 for a fascinating look at the two faces of our federal government: democratic socialism vs. capitalist republic.
32 This section is well worth your time to read and study.

33 You don't, however, have to believe us that “income” can only be defined by the U.S. Constitution as federal corporate
34 profit. Look in section 3.11.11.1, which talks about the legislative intent of the Sixteenth Amendment. That section has the
35 entire speech of President Taft given before Congress on June 16, 1909 for the purpose of introducing the Sixteenth
36 Amendment for ratification. Here is an excerpt from that speech:

37 I therefore recommend to the Congress that both Houses, by a two-thirds vote, shall propose an amendment to
38 the Constitution conferring the power to levy an income tax upon the National Government without

42 accomplishes the same purpose as a corporation income tax and is free from certain objections urged to the 43 proposed income tax measure.

44 I therefore recommend an amendment to the tariff bill Imposing upon all corporations and joint stock
45 companies for profit, except national banks (otherwise taxed), savings banks, and building and loan
46 *associations, an excise tax measured by 2 per cent on the net income of such corporations. This is an excise
47 tax upon the privilege of doing business as an artificial entity and of freedom from a general partnership
48 liability enjoyed by those who own the stock. [Emphasis added] I am informed that a 2 per cent tax of this
49 character would bring into the Treasury of the United States not less than $25,000,000.

50 The decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Spreckels Sugar Refining Company against McClain (192 51 U.S., 397), seems clearly to establish the principle that such a tax as this is an excise tax upon privilege and

1 not a direct tax on property, and is within the federal power without apportionment according to population.
 2 The tax on net income is preferable to one proportionate to a percentage of the gross receipts, because it is a
 3 tax upon success and not failure. It imposes a burden at the source of the income at a time when the 4 corporation is well able to pay and when collection is easy.

5 Here are some additional U.S. Supreme Court cites further defining “income” that clarify our assertions:

 7 112) in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed.”
 8 [Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., 271 U.S. 170, 174 (1926)]

10 “As repeatedly pointed out by this court, the Corporation Tax Law of 1909. imposed an excise or privilege tax,
 11 and not in any sense, a tax upon property or upon income merely as income. It was enacted in view of the 12 decision of Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & T. Co., 157 U.S. 429, 29 L.Ed. 759, 15 Sup. St. Rep. 673, 158 U.S. 601, 13 39 L.Ed. 1108, 15 Sup.Ct.Rep. 912, which held the income tax provisions of a previous law to be 14 unconstitutional because amounting in effect to a direct tax upon property within the meaning of the 15 Constitution, and because not apportioned in the manner required by that instrument.”
 16 [U.S. v. Whiteridge, 231 U.S. 144, 34 S.Sup.Ct. 24 (1913)]

18 “The conclusion reached in the Pollock case.. recognized the fact that taxation on income was, in its nature, an 19 excise...”
 20 [Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1, 16-17 (1916)]

22 “We must reject in this case, as we have rejected in cases arising under the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909
 23 (Doyle, Collector, v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 38 Sup.Ct. 467, 62 L.Ed.--), the broad contention
 24 submitted on behalf of the government that all receipts—everything that comes in—are income within the proper
 25 definition of the term ‘gross income,’ and that the entire proceeds of a conversion of capital assets, in whatever
 26 form and under whatever circumstances accomplished, should be treated as gross income. Certainly the term
 27 ‘income’ has no broader meaning in the 1913 act than in that of 1909 (see Stratton’s Independence v. Howbert, 28 231 U.S. 399, 416, 417 S., 34 Sup.Ct. 136), and for the present purpose we assume there is not difference in its 29 meaning as used in the two acts.”
 30 [Southern Pacific Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335, 38 S.Ct. 540 (1918)]

32 “... the definition of income approved by the Court is:

33 ‘The gain derived from capital, from labor, or from both combined, provided it be understood to 34 include profits gained through sale or conversion of capital assets.’”

35 Eisner, supra.*

36 “Income within the meaning of the 16th Amendment and the Revenue Act means, gain ... and in such
 37 connection gain means profit ... proceeding from property severed from capital, however invested or employed
 38 and coming in, received or drawn by the taxpayer for his separate use, benefit and disposal”
 39 [Stapler v. U.S., 21 F.Supp. 737,U.S. Dist. Ct. EDPA, (1937)]

40 The Court ruled similarly in Goodrich v. Edwards, 255 U.S. 527 (1921) and in 1969, the Court ruled in Conner v. U.S., 303
 41 F.Supp. 1187, that:

42 “Whatever may constitute income, therefore must have the essential feature of gain to the recipient. This was 43 true when the 16th Amendment became effective, it was true at the time of Eisner v. Macomber, supra, it was 44 true under sect. 22(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1938, and it is likewise true under sect. 61(a) of the I.R.S.
 45 Code of 1954. If there is not gain, there is not income .... Congress has taxed INCOME and not compensation.”

46 And here is more evidence that earnings from labor are not “income”:

 48 [Edwards v. Keith, 231 F. 110 (1916)]

50 “There is a clear distinction between profit and wages or compensation for labor. Compensation for labor 51 cannot be regarded as profit within the meaning of the law.”
 52 [Oliver v. Halstead, 196 Va. 992, 86 S.E.2d. 858 (1955)]

1 and:

2 "Reasonable compensation for labor or services rendered is not profit."
3 [Laureldale Cemetery Assoc. v. Matthews, 345 Pa. 239, 47 A.2d. 277, 280 (1946)]

4 Clearly, then, we have firmly established based on the above cites from the Supreme Court that:

- 5 1. Congress has no authority to redefine the meaning of income. The Constitution is the only thing that can define it.
- 6 2. Any attempt by Congress to redefine the meaning of income in the Internal Revenue Code can safely be disregarded if
- 7 it is inconsistent with the above definitions by the Constitution and the U.S. Supreme Court.
- 8 3. Income taxes authorized by the Sixteenth Amendment starting in 1913 are and always have been indirect excise taxes
- 9 only on state or federal corporations involved in foreign commerce.
- 10 4. The tax is not on income, it is a tax on gain or profit derived from the sale or conversion of federal (not state) corporate
- 11 assets and the amount of tax is computed based on the amount of gain (income).
- 12 5. Because the income tax is an indirect excise tax and all excise taxes are taxes on privileges, the tax must be paid by the
- 13 federal corporation to the entity granting the privilege. A state-chartered corporation would also pay income tax to the
- 14 federal government, but only on profits derived from foreign commerce, which is the only aspect of commerce that the
- 15 federal government is granted with the jurisdiction to regulate and tax under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the U.S.
- 16 Constitution. A federally-chartered corporation would NOT pay income tax to a state unless it physically operates
- 17 within the state.
- 18 6. The U.S. government is classified as a federal corporation. This can be confirmed by examining 28 U.S.C. §3002, we
- 19 find:

20 United States Code
21 TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
22 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
23 CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
24 SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS

25 Sec. 3002. Definitions
26 (15) "United States" means -
27 (A) a Federal corporation;
28 (B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or
29 (C) an instrumentality of the United States.

- 30 7. Regardless of what any circuit court says about the meaning of income, the U.S. Supreme Court's rulings above
- 31 supersede all circuit courts. This finding agrees with the Internal Revenue Manual:

32 Internal Revenue Manual
33 4.10.7.2.9.8 (05-14-1999)
34 Importance of Court Decisions

35 1. "Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and 36 may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

37 2. Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court
38 becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue
39 Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same
40 weight as the Code.

41 3. Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the 42 Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not
43 require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers."
44 [Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 (05/14/99)]

45 The findings above are entirely consistent with the taxable sources listed as taxable in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f), which are all
46 either income earned by Americans living overseas or income from federally chartered corporate activities. How do we 47 apply what we have just learned? Let's apply it to the Treasury Regulations, the I.R.C. (Internal Revenue Code) and the 48 I.R.M. (Internal Revenue Manual).

49 Since the Rules contained in the Internal Revenue Manual, even if codified in the Code of Federal Regulations, do not
50 have the force and effect of law (U.S. v. Horne, [C.A. Me. 1983] 714 F.2d. 206) and the power to promulgate regulations

1 does not include the power to broaden or narrow the meaning of statutory provisions beyond what Congress intended
2 (Abbot, Procter & Paine v. U.S., [1965] 344 F.2d. 333, 170 Cl.Ct. 408) and regulations cannot do what Congress itself is
3 without power to do; they must conform to the Constitution (C.I.R. v. Van Vorst, [C.C.A. 1932] 59 F.2d. 677).

4 Since the above cases are the undisputable law with respect to what is or is not income, we find the word "income" does not
5 mean all monies that come into the possession of an individual, which is called "gross receipts", but rather profit or gain
6 FROM the money a [federal] corporate "person" (a legal fiction denoting a corporation) takes in, such as interest, stock
7 dividends, profit from an employee's labors. All of these constraints on the definition of "income" result from the
8 apportionment clauses found in Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution. None
9 of the income of most individuals falls in the category of "income" defined by the Supreme Court, and therefore such 10 "income" cannot be taxable "gross income" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §61. This means that a natural person's wages, which 11 are compensation for his labor, are not taxable because such a tax would amount to an unconstitutional direct tax on 12 property (labor). With no taxable "income", you are not liable to file a return. These conclusions are confirmed by the 13 Supreme Court, which said on the subject:

14 "Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can
16 [The Antelope, 23 U.S. 66, 10 Wheat 66, 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

17 Now let's look at the history behind this analysis to see if it corroborates our findings. In 1909, Congress enacted the 18 federal corporation excise tax and sent to the states for ratification the proposed income tax amendment. The measure of 19 that excise after a $5,000 deduction, on the privilege of doing business as a corporation, was income from whatever source
20 derived, including rents and interest on real and personal property. When the excise was upheld by the Supreme Court in 21 Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911), the court suggested a neat tax avoidance device: just don't operate as a
22 corporation.

23 You know what happened to the federal corporation excise tax? It was repealed after Flint. Do you suppose this was a
24 chance happening or a well orchestrated plan to force an income tax on Americans? Following Flint, Congress lost no time
25 in plugging this proffered loophole. The Tariff Act of 1913, also known as the Federal Income Tax Law, repealed the 26 corporate excise tax and imposed the individual income tax on corporations instead. This little ploy helped keep the 27 "what's income" controversy pot boiling for decades. Chief Justice White would effectively keep a lid on any "income
28 revelations" until his death in 1921. Recall that Chief Justice White was the dissenting opinion in Pollock v. Farmers' Loan
29 & Trust Co. which declared the first direct income tax unconstitutional. Chief Justice Taft, the former President who had 30 appointed White as Chief Justice, then took over after White. Taft was even more dedicated to expanding the income tax
31 than White, even though they were both in the same camp. Recall that Taft proposed the Sixteenth Amendment while 32 serving as President and also the one whose Secretary of State Philander(er) Knox fraudulently ratified it.

33 What value or purpose does the 16th Amendment have? The Sixteenth Amendment is a dodge, a subterfuge and it worked.
34 After its ratification, everyone in the country was poised to receive and accept an income tax from the Congress. There was 35 popular support for an income tax on the rich. Everyone knew it was coming and everyone who wasn't rich wanted it.
36 Practically, no one thought they would ever be lucky enough to have to pay an income tax. Even though the amendment
37 conferred no new taxing powers upon Congress according to the Supreme Court in Stanton v. Baltic Mining, Congress and
38 members of the executive branch have systematically been trying to deceive people into thinking that the Amendment
39 created a new type of tax on people, which is a blatant fraud. Write your Congressman or woman and ask them why you
40 have to pay income tax and this is the kind of LIES that they will tell you in their letter. We have a copy of such a response
41 from our Congressman.

42 Congress had passed a similar income tax during the Civil War. The Civil War taxing acts contained a section that imposed
43 a requirement to keep track of any money earned. What good does it do to fool people into believing that something called 44 "income" is being taxed if no one has any? The IRS is very open about their Civil War history. The IRS admits they sent
45 agents out to make up assessment lists of those who were believed to owe a tax. If a person didn't sign up for the tax right
46 away there was a 50% penalty. What I never expect them to admit is that these agents were outside their area of their 47 territorial jurisdiction and that the Constitution never empowered Congress to collect the equivalent of direct taxes within 48 the borders of states of the union on land that is not part of the federal zone.

49 The income tax they were collecting was one based on the exercise of general police powers which Congress only had in
50 the District of Columbia, federal enclaves inside the states, and the territories. Even in those areas it was a direct tax that

1 had to be apportioned. That problem was resolved by making the tax a "forced" voluntary tax. How such a tax could be
2 fully implemented will be the subject of this entire document.

3 The Sixteenth Amendment gives Congress the power to enact an excise tax, but Congress created an income tax that wasn't
4 an excise. Rather than name an excisable activity Congress created the magic words "taxable income". The Congress then
5 created a voluntary self-assessment taxation system based on "taxable income". Such a taxation system depended
6 completely on the power to exercise the police power. Congress had the police power in the seat of government and the 7 territories. The U.S. Supreme Court would then cite some old cases to seemingly find the new income tax to be
8 constitutional, with the aid of the chief advocate and creator of the Sixteenth Amendment, who was President Taft, who
9 also served in the Supreme Court as chief justice for 9 years after he had his hand-picked Secretary of State, Philander
10 (philanderer?) Knox fraudulently claim in 1913 that the Sixteenth Amendment had been properly ratified by the required  $\frac{3}{4}$
11 of the states.

12 If you would like to learn more about the definition of "income", we refer you to a very in depth study of the subject in an

14 <http://www.constitutionalincome.com/>

15 Phil provides both in his book and on his website an interesting summary of his research regarding the Constitutional
16 meaning of "income" which he calls "10 Key Facts", which we now repeat here for your benefit as follows:

- 17 • Fact #1: "In examining the history of the debate and ratification of the 16th Amendment, this book will show
18 that there is no evidence upon which the government can rely for their claim that the American People desired to 19 have their wages and salaries taxed. No evidence can be found in the law journals of the time, not in the journals
20 on political economy or economics, not in the Congressional Record nor other Congressional documents, nor in 21 any of the newspapers of record of the time. In other words, the government's position that wages and salaries
22 equals income within the meaning of the 16th Amendment is 'wholly without foundation.'" Phil Hart, 23 Constitutional Income: Do You Have Any? page 10, (Alpine Press, 2001).
- 24 • Fact #2: A tax on wages payable by the wage earner is a Capitation Tax. So says the premier authority on the 25 issue, Adam Smith author of the timeless work Wealth of Nations. See ibid. pp. 141-145.
- 26 • Fact #3: Capitation Taxes are direct taxes and are required by the Constitution to be apportioned among the 50
27 Union states. The 16th Amendment had nothing to do with Capitation Taxes. Ibid. pp. 250 - 253.
- 28 • Fact #4: In the few hours just prior to the Senate's passage of the 16th Amendment the morning of July 5, 1909,
29 the Senate twice by vote rejected two separate proposals to include direct taxes within the authority of the 16th
30 Amendment. Ibid. pages 193-200.
- 31 • Fact #5: In briefs and argument before the Supreme Court in the case of Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad, 32 both Brushaber and the Government claimed that the 16th Amendment provided for a direct tax exempted from the 33 Constitutional apportionment rule. The High Court called this claim an "erroneous assumption...wholly without 34 foundation." Ibid. pp. 204-210.
- 35 • Fact #6: Just weeks after the Brushaber Case was decided, Mr. Stanton, in the case of Stanton v. Baltic Mining
36 Co. again claimed (35 times) that the 16th Amendment created a new class of constitutional tax, that being a direct
37 tax exempted from the apportionment rule. The High Court said in this case that the 16th Amendment created "no
38 new tax." Ibid. pp. 212-220.
- 39 • Fact #7: In the Stanton and Brushaber Cases, the Supreme Court ruled correctly by excluding direct taxes from 40 the 16th Amendment. The intent of the American People and that of Congress was never to directly tax the 41 American People, but only to tax income severed from accumulated wealth. Ibid. pp. 244 - 270.

- 1 • Fact #8: When the Supreme Court stated in the Eisner, Stanton, and Doyle Cases that "Income may be derived
2 from capital, or labor or from both combined" all these cases dealt with corporations and had nothing to do with 3 the "Are wages income?" question. Ibid. pp. 239-244 and 272-274.
- 4 • Fact #9: The genesis of the 16th Amendment was the income tax plank of the Democrat Party's Presidential 5 Platform of 1908 which clearly reveals the intent of that Amendment:
- 6 "We favor an income tax as part of our revenue system, and we urge the submission of a constitutional
7 amendment specifically authorizing Congress to levy and collect a tax upon individual and corporate incomes,
8 to the end that wealth may bear its proportional share of the burdens of the federal government." Ibid. p. 48.
- 9 • Fact #10: There is not, and never has been, any delegation of authority from We the People to the government
10 for the collection of an unapportioned direct tax on the wages and salaries of the American People. It has been a 11 maxim of English Law since the Magna Carta of 1215, that the People must consent to all taxation. "We are 12 being taxed without our Consent!" Ibid. p. 278.

13 Here is a table adapted and expanded from page 120 of Phil's book which we believe is entirely accurate. It shows under 14 what circumstances Congress has the Constitutional authority to define the word "income" within the contexts of the 15 Statutes at Large or the U.S. Code:
16

#	Class	Subclass	Can Congress define the word "income"	Authorities
1	Statutory United States citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401 domiciled in a federal area aka "United States" or "federal zone"	President, Article III judge	No	Art. III, Sect. 1 of the Constitution
		All other "U.S. citizens"	Yes	Art. 4, Sect. 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution
2	"National" domiciled in the several union states aka "United States of America" (includes "nonresident aliens" if engaged in a public office)	Government "employee"	Yes	26 U.S.C. §6331 26 U.S.C. §3401(c)
		Federal Judge	No	Art. III, Sect. 1 of the Constitution; Separation of Powers Doctrine
		Natural person working in the private sector	No	Art. 1, Sect. 9, Clause 4 and Art. 1, Sect. 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution
		Natural person working in a federal area (e.g. a military base)	Yes	Art. 4, Sect. 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution
3	Alien	Resident alien	Yes
4	Artificial person	None	Yes	Art. 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 of the Constitution

NOTES:

- The word "income" as used above is defined in its constitutional sense.
- "Government employees" as used above include only "public officers" of the United States government.
- For the purposes of the above table, "nationals" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) who are domiciled in the 50 union states and "non-resident non-persons" if not engaged in a public office and "nonresident aliens" if engaged in a public office.

5.6.6 "Gross Income"

A detailed understanding of the meaning of the term "gross income" is crucial to understanding the income tax enforcement fraud. This section is devoted exclusively to that topic.

According to 26 U.S.C. §63, "taxable income" means "gross income" minus deductions:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter B > PART 1 > Sec. 63.
Sec. 63. - Taxable income defined

(a) In general

Except as provided in subsection (b), for purposes of this subtitle, the term "taxable income" means gross income minus the deductions allowed by this chapter (other than the standard deduction).

To have "taxable income", one must first have "gross income". "Gross income" is then defined as follows:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART II > Subpart A > Sec. 872.
Sec. 872. - Gross income

(a) General rule

In the case of a nonresident alien individual, except where the context clearly indicates otherwise, gross income includes only -

*(1) gross income which is derived from sources within the United States [** the federal zone] and which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States [** federal zone], and*

*(2) gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States [** federal zone].*

26 U.S.C. §61 defines "classes of gross income" but 26 U.S.C. §872 is the only section that actually defines which "individuals" can earn "gross income". Notice that this definition of "gross income" is found in Subpart A of the I.R.C., which is entitled "Nonresident aliens". This is consistent with the definition of "individual" as being either an "alien" or "nonresident alien" as we revealed later in section 5.5.4 and in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3). As we said in that section, the

1 1040 form is intended only for STATUTORY “resident aliens” and for STATUTORY “U.S. citizens”. The 1040NR form
 2 is intended for “nonresident aliens”. This is consistent with the definition of “withholding agent”, who is responsible for 3 withholding on:

- 4 1. “nonresident aliens” (26 U.S.C. §1441).
- 5 2. “foreign corporations” (26 U.S.C. §1442).
- 6 3. “foreign tax-exempt organizations” (26 U.S.C. §1443).

7 Another interesting fact is that the only “individuals” who are subject to withholding are “nonresident aliens”, from (26
 8 U.S.C. §1441). If you search the entire Internal Revenue Code, you will not find any definition of “gross income” that 9 applies to any type of “individual” other than a “nonresident alien”. This implies that “U.S. citizens” who do not work for 10 the federal government are incapable of earning “gross income” and confirms that they are not the specific and singular
 11 “individual” mentioned in 26 U.S.C. §1 upon whom Subtitle A personal income taxes are “imposed”. Yes, the regulations
 12 under 26 U.S.C. §1 at 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 do mention “citizens”, but if there is no definition of “gross income” anywhere in 13 the Internal Revenue Code that connects the earnings of these natural persons to the income tax by calling their earnings
 14 “gross income”, then it’s meaningless to even mention them. The reason they are mentioned at all in this regulations is 15 because corporations are legally “citizens”, and the Supreme Court has never defined “income” as meaning anything but
 16 corporate profit in the context of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. Furthermore, since the underlying statute that 26
 17 C.F.R. §1.1-1 implements doesn’t mention “citizens”, then neither can the regulation, so it’s illegal for the Secretary of the 18 Treasury to even mention “U.S. citizens” in this regulation!:

19 “When enacting §7206(1) Congress undoubtedly knew that the Secretary of the Treasury is empowered to 20 prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of the internal revenue laws, so long as they
 21 carry into effect the will of Congress as expressed by the statutes. Such regulations have the force of law. The 22 Secretary, however, does not have the power to make law. Dixon v. United States, supra.”
 23 [United States v. Levy, 533 F.2d. 969 (1976)]

24 If you look in the Social Security Program Operations Manual System (POMS) at the link below, you will find that the only
 25 persons they say are “U.S. nationals” are those persons domiciled in outlying territories of the United States government.
 26 Since we established in chapter 4 that “nationals” are “nonresident aliens” for the purposes of I.R.C., Subtitle A income
 27 taxes when engaged in a public office, then from the erroneous perception of the POM, the only people who are 28 “nonresident aliens” in the entire country (United States*) are domiciled in Swains Island and American Samoa!

29 RS 02001.010 United States Nationals

30 A. INTRODUCTION

31 Most of the agreements include one or more provisions that determine a worker's coverage based on his or her
 32 nationality.

33 B. DEFINITION

34 A U.S. national is a U.S. citizen or a person who, although not a U.S. citizen, owes permanent allegiance to the 35 United States. The only persons who are U.S. nationals but not U.S. citizens are American Samoans and natives

37 Anyone born in the 50 states of the Union can technically also be a “national” or “national of the United States***” if they 38 correct (not expatriate) government records describing their citizenship status to correctly reflect exactly what they already 39 are to become a non-privileged person. From the perspective of the above unofficial publication, however, our “silly”
 40 servants think that the only place that “non-residents”, and therefore “nonresident aliens” live is in U.S. territories and 41 possessions. We showed in section 4.8 that these “territories” are not covered by the Bill of Rights and therefore may be 42 subjected to direct taxes without apportionment, which is why the only natural persons who receive “gross income” as 43 defined in the I.R.C. are “nonresident aliens” domiciled in territories of the United States who are employed as “public
 44 officers” of the United States government. This is confirmed by examining the 1954 code version of 26 U.S.C. §931:

45 Sec. 931. INCOME FROM SOURCES WITHIN POSSESSIONS OF THE UNITED STATES [provided in part]

46 (a) General rule.

In the case of individual citizens of the United States, gross income means only gross income from sources within the [federal] United States if the conditions of both paragraph (1) and paragraph (2) are satisfied:

(1) 3-year period. If 80 percent or more of the gross income of such citizen...was derived from sources within a possession of the United States; and

(2) Trade or business[political office]. If 50 percent or more of his gross income was derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession of the United States either on his own account or as an employee or agent of another.

(h) Employees of the United States

For purposes of this section, amounts paid for services performed by a citizen of the United States as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof shall be deemed to be derived from sources within the United States.

Remember that “trade or business” above means the holding of a “public office” as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). In 1986, Congress obfuscated this section to conceal the truth, as revealed in the article below. Keep in mind that older versions of the code, however, remain in effect unless explicitly repealed:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/History/Congress/1986-26USC931Obfus.htm>

There are two types of “gross income”:

1. “Income” of corporations involved in foreign and international commerce, as described in the previous section. This “income” is defined as “corporate profit” by the U.S. supreme Court, as revealed later in section 5.6.5, which is the next section. The “sources” for this type of income are described in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) and include or mean only corporate profit from Foreign Sales Corporations (FSC’s) and Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISC’s), as revealed later in section 5.6.10.
2. Earnings of “public officers” of the United States government. These earnings come from the salaries of “public officers” of the United States government, which are called “personal services” (see section 3.12.1.16) and which are “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” (see section 3.12.1.22). “Trade or business” is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) also says that this type of income must be earned by a “nonresident alien” or else it is not “gross income”. Anyone else who earning monies that are not connected with political office in the United States government, according to 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1), it is not subject to Subtitle A income tax. 26 U.S.C. §872(a)(1) says this type of “gross income” can also come from other sources “within” the federal United States government. This type of “gross income” is described and detailed later in section 5.6.10, entitled “The Public Officer Kickback Position”. Recall that the President, Representatives, and Senators must all be “Citizens of the United States” under the Constitution. They are the ONLY people who indeed hold “public office” in the United States government, other than appointees of the president, and these are the people who are identified as “nonresident aliens” in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1). This reinforces our definition of “nonresident alien” and provides a nice prelude to the description of the Non-Resident Non-Person Position beginning later in section 5.6.13. For all of these public officers, declaring their earnings from political office as “gross income” is essentially considered an implied obligation of their employment agreement. It is an undocumented requirement to hold political office that all office holders, who are our “leaders” must maintain the fiction of the federal income tax by filing their income tax return every year and making it into a major media event. If they don’t, the Ponzi scheme will collapse and their federal pension will be adversely affected.

The previous section talks about the first type of “gross income”, which is what the Supreme Court calls “corporate profit” and which is earned by corporations. As we stated at the beginning of that section, you must earn “income” as legally defined before you can earn “gross income”, so technically, your compensation as a private person must meet both of the above requirements in order to be “gross income”. Because the Supreme Court has ruled repeatedly that the income tax is and always has been an indirect tax, then it can’t be on natural persons.<sup>78</sup> That is why there can’t be a liability statute in the context of natural persons under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. We’ll now therefore devote the remainder of this section to talking about the second type of “gross income” above, which is that in the context of the specific type of

1 “individual” mentioned in the Internal Revenue Code. This “individual” is a “public officer” of the United States
 2 government only. You can confirm this by looking at who levy and distraint may be instituted against in 26 U.S.C.
 3 §6331(a) for the collection of this tax, which is a “public officer” or instrumentality of the U.S. government:

4 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 64 > Subchapter D > PART II > Sec. 6331.
 5 Sec. 6331. Levy and distraint.

6 (a) Authority of Secretary.

7 If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand,
 8 it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the
 9 expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under
 10 section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of
 11 such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of
 12 the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District
 13 of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer,
 14 employee, or elected official.<sup>14</sup> If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy,
 15 notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or 16 refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided
 17 in this section. [Underscore added for emphasis]

18 The term “gross income” was first introduced and used in the Revenue Act of 1918. Here is the definition from that Act:

19 Sec. 213. That for the purposes of this title...the term "gross income"-

20 ( a ) Includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service
 21 (including the case of the President of the United States, the judges of the Supreme and inferior courts of 22 the United States, and all other officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States,
 23 Alaska, Hawaii, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, the compensation received as 24 such), of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses,
 25 commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of 26 or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business
 27 carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income derived from any source whatever....[emphasis
 28 added]

29 In the above, the term “personal service” is defined as labor in connection with a “trade or business”, which is then defined
 30 as the holding of a public office. See 26 C.F.R. §1.162-7, and pay special attention to the phrase “trade or business”, which 31 means “public office”.

 37 trade or business a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services
 38 actually rendered. The test of deductibility in the case of compensation payments is whether they are 39 reasonable and are in fact payments purely for services.

40 The I.R.C. only tells half the story on “gross income” and could easily deceive the average American into believing that the 41 money they make is “gross income”. The place where the fraud of the income tax becomes abundantly obvious is in the 42 implementing regulations found in 26 C.F.R.. The Federal Register Act, found in 44 U.S.C. Chapter 15, says in 44 U.S.C.
 43 §1505(a) that every document which has “general applicability and legal effect” must be published in the Federal Register.
 44 This means that anything which will apply to the public at large must be published in the Federal Register. This includes 45 any law which imposes a penalty or enforcement authority on the public at large.

 47 Sec. 1505. - Documents to be published in Federal Register

48 (a) *Proclamations and Executive Orders; Documents Having General Applicability and Legal Effect;
 49 Documents Required To Be Published by Congress.

50 There shall be published in the Federal Register -

(1) Presidential proclamations and Executive orders, except those not having general applicability and legal effect or effective only against Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof;

(2) documents or classes of documents that the President may determine from time to time have general applicability and legal effect; and

(3) documents or classes of documents that may be required so to be published by Act of Congress.

For the purposes of this chapter every document or order which prescribes a penalty has general applicability and legal effect.

Laws which impose penalties on the public at large are called "Public Laws" or "general laws". Laws which impose penalties on specific classes or groups of citizens only and not on everyone are referred to as "special law".

"special law. One relating to particular persons or things; one made for individual cases or for particular places or districts; one operating upon a selected class, rather than upon the public generally. A private law. A law is "special" when it is different from others of the same general kind or designed for a particular purpose, or limited in range or confined to a prescribed field of action or operation. A "special law" relates to either particular persons, places, or things or to persons, places, or things which, though not particularized, are separated by any method of selection from the whole class to which the law might, but not such legislation, be applied. Utah Farm Bureau Ins. Co. v. Utah Ins. Guaranty Ass'n, Utah, 564 P.2d. 751, 754. A special law applies only to an individual or a number of individuals out of a single class similarly situated and affected, or to a special locality. Board of County Com'rs of Lemhi County v. Swensen, Idaho, 80 Idaho 198, 327 P.2d. 361, 362. See also Private bill; Private law. Compare General law; Public law."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, pp. 1397-1398]

For instance, laws that only apply to federal "employees" are not required to be published in the Federal Register under the Federal Register Act. Refer to section 2.5.4.17 or the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005, where a table is provided of enforcement statutes and their corresponding implementing regulations and show that all enforcement authorities under the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A have no implementing regulations. This confirms that the I.R.C. is "special law" that only applies to federal "public officers" and "employees".

The Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A can therefore best be described as special law which applies only to federal "public officers" and corporations domiciled in or residing in the federal zone or who are receiving federal payments. Our deceitful government has done its best to disguise this fact over the years but the truth still remains in the Internal Revenue Code and 26 C.F.R. for those who want to see it, albeit in obfuscated form.

There are lots of ways to prove this as it pertains to "individuals". For instance, the definition of "person" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1) refers not to "all individuals", but to "an individual":

Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof -

(1) Person

The term "person" shall be construed to mean and include [throughout the Internal Revenue Code] an individual, a trust, estate, partnership, association, company or corporation.

This means that there is a very specific type of "individual" referred to in the I.R.C. which is further defined elsewhere and it is for us to determine what the characteristics of this "individual" are. This individual, as you will find out later, is a person contracted with or employed with the U.S. and holding "public office", which is the excise taxable activity one must be engaged in order to earn "gross income".

Another way to show that the Internal Revenue Code is "special law" is by referring to it as a "Act of Congress". All Acts of Congress are applicable only inside the federal zone by default.

1 "A canon of construction which teaches that of Congress, unless a contrary intent appears, is meant to apply
 2 only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States."*
 3 [U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222 (1949)]

4 And here is a very revealing definition of "territory" from the Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) legal encyclopedia:

5 86 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Territories (2003)

6 "§1. Definitions, Nature, and Distinctions

7 "The word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning
 8 under the political institutions of the United States, and does not necessarily include all the territorial
 9 possessions of the United States, but may include only the portions thereof which are organized and exercise
 10 governmental functions under act of congress."

11 "While the term 'territory' is often loosely used, and has even been construed to include municipal subdivisions
 12 of a territory, and 'territories of the' United States is sometimes used to refer to the entire domain over which 13 the United States exercises dominion, the word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization, has
 14 a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and the term
 15 'territory' or 'territories' does not necessarily include only a portion or the portions thereof which are organized
 16 and exercise government functions under acts of congress. The term 'territories' has been defined to be
 17 political subdivisions of the outlying dominion of the United States, and in this sense the term 'territory' is not a
 18 description of a definite area of land but of a political unit governing and being governed as such. The question
 19 whether a particular subdivision or entity is a territory is not determined by the particular form of government
 20 with which it is, more or less temporarily, invested.

21 "Territories' or 'territory' as including 'state' or 'states.'" While the term
 22 'territories of the' United States may, under certain circumstances, 23 include the states of the Union, as used in the federal Constitution and 24 in ordinary acts of congress "territory" does not include a foreign state.

25 "As used in this title, the term 'territories' generally refers to the political subdivisions created by congress, and 26 not within the boundaries of any of the several states."

27 [86 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Territories, §1 (2003)]

28 There are very few exceptions to this general rule and we list them all in section 5.6.9 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual,
 29 Form #06.008. Here is the definition of the limitation of Congress' criminal jurisdiction, for instance:

30 TITLE 18 > PART III > CHAPTER 301 > Sec. 4001.
 31 Sec. 4001. - Limitation on detention; control of prisons

32 (a) No citizen shall be imprisoned or otherwise detained by the United States except pursuant to an Act of 33 Congress.

34 The civil jurisdiction of the District Courts of the United States is the same as above in most cases. The older version of 35 Rule 54(c) of Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure reveals where Acts of Congress apply:

 37 Puerto Rico, in a territory or in an insular possession."

38 Therefore, "Acts of Congress" are only applicable inside the federal zone and nowhere else by default. Therefore, in order
 39 to be subject to any kind of penalty or collection or enforcement action, you must reside in the federal zone and there must
 40 be an implementing regulation found in 26 C.F.R. which authorizes the enforcement action per the Federal Register Act, 44
 41 U.S.C. Chapter 15. We devote a great deal of study to the need for implementing regulations in section 3.15 and later in 42 sections 5.4.17 and 5.4.18, so we won't repeat ourself here again.

43 Another way to show that the Internal Revenue Code is special law is to describe it as a type of "police power". Police
 44 powers are reserved entirely to the states under the Tenth Amendment. The only jurisdiction the feds have within states
 45 comes from the commerce clause of the Constitution found in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. The power of taxation directly
 46 on individuals is a police power. The purpose of "police powers" and the role of our state governments is to protect the

1 public health, safety, and morals of the people within their jurisdiction. To the extent that they allow the federal
 2 government to impose direct taxes on the general population, which amount to involuntary servitude and slavery in
 3 violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, is the extent to which they have abdicated their role to protect their respective
 4 citizens. It is precisely this conflict of interest that results from direct taxes which explains why virtually every country in 5 the world that implements an income tax follows the following simple model:

6 "Aliens at home, citizens abroad."

7 In the context of the above, the "aliens" are "residents" in the I.R.C. and are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). The 8 "citizens" are "U.S. citizens" born in the District of Columbia or a federal territory and excluding those born in states of the 9 Union. "Abroad" means in a country outside of one of the states of the Union. You can investigate this matter further 10 earlier in section 4.9.

11 So from many different angles, we have shown that the only "individuals" who earn "gross income" are "public officers" of 12 the United States government and that the income tax that most people falsely "believe" they are obligated to pay only 13 applies inside the federal zone and abroad. Even within the federal zone, the tax is still entirely voluntary because there is 14 no liability statute.

15 "Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not distraint."
 16 [Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960)]

17 Because the word "tax" excludes all "voluntarily" paid amounts, as we showed earlier in section 5.1.8, then technically it
 18 amounts to fraud to even call it a "tax" in the context of biological people, even if you are a "public officer" of the United 19 States government. The result of all this analysis is that all amounts you pay the federal government under Internal 20 Revenue Code, Subtitle A as an income "tax" amount to "donations", and therefore you can fill in any amount on your tax
 21 return for "income" and not commit fraud. All you are saying is that this is the amount you "elect" or "volunteer" or 22 "designate" to be subject to Subtitle A federal income "taxes". You have to qualify and explain what you are doing on your 23 return and its attachments for such a case, but this is a perfectly legal way to submit a tax return as a natural person. All
 24 you have to do is explain on an attachment to the return the following, and make sure the return reads "Not valid without 25 the attached statement, ___ pages, with my signature":

- 26 1. You are not a "public officer" or federal "employee".
- 27 2. You are not a "transferee" for government property under 26 U.S.C. §6091.
- 28 3. There are no implementing regulations authorizing any kind of "enforcement" action as it pertains to Subtitle A income 29 taxes, and this includes assessment, collection, record keeping, or penalties.
- 30 4. The IRS is not an enforcement agency but an administrative agency, because it does not fall under the authority of the 31 Undersecretary for Enforcement within the Treasury Department. This is confirmed by the pocket commission of the 32 agent processing your return, who has an administrative rather than enforcement pocket commission.
- 33 5. There is no liability statute so the "tax" is "voluntary". This agrees with the rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court in 34 Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960)

35 For further details on using this approach, refer to the following sections:

- 36 1. "The Public Officer Kickback Position" in section 5.6.10.
- 37 2. Section 5.3.1 entitled "'Taxpayer' v. 'Nontaxpayer'".
- 38 3. Our sample federal income tax filing attachment found in section 2.9.1 of the following:

Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 39 4. "Request Income Tax Refunds for the Current Year and the Past Two Years", section 2.5.4.12 of the Sovereignty
 40 Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005.

41 We have taken the time to summarize how to compute "gross income" and "taxable income" based on the statutes and 42 regulations discussed in this section and elsewhere. The results are summarized in the tables below. We have one table for 43 each type of entity:

- 44 1. Natural persons
- 45 2. Corporations

1 For each table below, we have given you the equivalent of a spreadsheet format and showed you how to compute “taxable
2 income”. The items in brackets “[ ]” indicate where to go in the law to learn what goes in that block. For instance, column
3 5, row 2 lists “[26 U.S.C. §61(a)(1)]” as the place to go to find out where “gross income” is defined for “public officers” of
4 the United States government. If you wanted to make a worksheet out of this for your reuse, just remove the bracketed
5 content of each cell under column 5, leaving an empty cell to fill in your amount and do computations. After this table, we
6 will give you an example and show you how to use this table. Note that these examples ONLY apply to Internal Revenue
7 Code, Subtitle A. Other types of taxes, such as excise taxes on imported oil or gasoline, are likely to be very different. The 8 fact that you earn “gross income” or “taxable income” doesn’t necessarily imply that you owe a tax, because as we pointed 9 out earlier in section 5.6.1, you must first be “liable” for the tax in order to be a “taxpayer” who has a legal duty to pay the 10 tax.

All pay of public officers of the United States government by definition originates from within the federal "United States".
3	Total "gross income"	None	(Line 1) + (Line 2)			Add "constitutional income" to "gross income". Since natural persons don't earn "constitutional income", then there is no addition to do.
4	Profit or earnings from sources without the federal "United States"	26 U.S.C. §861		[26 U.S.C. §861(a)(8)]	[26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)]	Social security benefits are explicitly defined as "gross income" originating from "within the United States" under 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(8).
5	Net "gross Income"	None	(Line 3) – (Line 4)			Net gross income is all pay as a public officers of the United States government earned from within the federal "United States" minus all gross income not from sources within the federal "United States" in line 4 above.
6	Deductions and expenses from sources within the federal "United States"	26 U.S.C. §863(a) 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)		[26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)]	[26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)]	Deductions can only be allocated to the same source from which they derived. For instance, deductions from sources without the federal "United States" cannot be allocated to an unrelated "trade or business" activity within the federal "United States".
8	Total taxable income		(Line 7 social security taxable income) + (Line 7 elected taxable income)

NOTES ON ABOVE TABLE:

- There is no "gross income" associated with activities occurring without the federal "United States". This is because 26 C.F.R. §1.862-1(b) states that all earnings or profit from without the federal "United States" must use 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) for computing gross income, and this section only deals with sources within the federal "United States". This means, effectively, that no income from sources without the federal "United States" can be classified as "gross income" because it does not originate from within the federal "United States".
- The earnings of "nonresident aliens" are not classified as "gross income" under 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C)(i) if they are not associated with a "trade or business" (public office) within the federal "United States". Most people who live in a state of the Union fall into this category, because they are "nationals" and they do not hold public office.
- According 26 U.S.C. §863(a) "taxable income" = "gross income" – "deductions".

1 Let's apply the above table to a specific situation. Let's say that you are a Congressman who decides to volunteer to pay income tax. There is not statute making you
 2 liable to pay the tax but you decide to volunteer to be a "taxpayer" because you'll never join the good-old boy club and be a Presidential Candidate unless you pretend
 3 like you have to pay income tax. Your salary is paid by the federal government, which originates from sources within the federal "United States" and it is
 4 $150,000/year. You also have investments in your home state from a business and profit from these amounts to $50,000 for the year and is from sources without the
 5 federal "United States". You also had $10,000 in business travel expenses from your job as a Congressman. You name is Strom Thurmond and you also collect Social
 6 Security in the amount of $1,500/month for a total of 18,000 per year. Here is the table above filled in with the data from this example.

9 Next we'll do the same thing for corporations, but this time we won't give you an example because it's very simple. Below is the table that tells you how to compute
 10 "gross income" for corporations, formatted the same way as table 5-17 above.

- 3 1. There is no "gross income" associated with activities occurring without the federal "United States". This is because 26 C.F.R. §1.862-1(b) states that all earnings or 4 profit from without the federal "United States" must use 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) for computing gross income, and this section only deals with sources within the
 5 federal "United States". This means, effectively, that no income from sources without the federal "United States" can be classified as "gross income" because it
 6 does not originate from within the federal "United States".
 7 2. According 26 U.S.C. §863(a) "taxable income" = "gross income" – "deductions".

5.6.7 You Don't Earn "Wages" Under Subtitle C Unless you Volunteer on a W-4

"Every man has a property in his own person. This nobody has any right to but himself. The labor of his body and the work of his hands are properly his."
[John Locke, 1690]

A very hot topic in the tax honesty movement is the concept of the taxability of "wages". Many people argue that "wages" received by natural persons (people) are not taxable. Like all legal issues, we must ensure in making such a statement that we know whether we mean "wages" as legally defined or wages in the more common and general sense because the two are not the same. On this subject of the taxability of the fruit of a man's labor, the Supreme Court has said:

"Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will..."

In common usage, the "fruit of a man's labor" and "wages" are thought to be equivalent. However, the definitions of terms used within the Internal Revenue Code are such that "wages" means something entirely different than common usage. It is strictly true that "wages" are taxable under subtitle C of the Internal Revenue Code, but "wages" as defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a) can be taxable only when received by those who volunteer by submitting an IRS Form W-4. We'll explain that later in this section.

Most people dig themselves a deep hole and literally jump into it by never bothering to distinguish between the layman's definition of "wages" and the legal definition, and we must be very careful in all our communications to distinguish which of these two definitions we are referring to. If you haven't figured this out by now, we emphasize repeatedly throughout this book that "presumptions" will get you into a heap of trouble in the legal field and that they are also a sin condemned in the Bible that you ought to avoid.<sup>79</sup> We therefore need to be VERY explicit in defining the terms we use in the legal realm in every context they are used or we will get into BIG trouble because our government opponents will try to use false "presumption" as a weapon against us during litigation. In this book, we keep the legal version of words in quotes and the layman's version without quotes so it is especially clear which of the two definitions we are using. If you try to claim that "wages" aren't taxable on your tax return and refuse to list them, however, your claim will most often be disallowed by the IRS because you argued the wrong point. Why is that? We'll explain.

The term "Wages" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401 as follows. Pay particular attention to the words "employee" and "trade or business":

(a) Wages

For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration (including benefits) paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid -
[ . . . ]

(4) for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed in any calendar quarter by an employee, unless the cash remuneration paid for such service is $50 or more and such service is performed by an individual who is regularly employed by such employer to perform such service. For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if -

(A) on each of some 24 days during such quarter such individual performs for such employer for some portion of the day service not in the course of the employer's trade or business; or

(B) such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (A)) by such employer in the performance of such service during the preceding calendar quarter; or

(5) for services by a citizen or resident of the United States for a foreign government or an international organization; or

(6) for such services, performed by a nonresident alien individual, as may be designated by regulations prescribed by the Secretary; or

(7) Repealed. Pub. L. 89-809, title I, Sec. 103(k), Nov. 13, 1966, 80 Stat. 1554)

- (A) for services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) -
 (i) performed by a citizen of the United States if, at the time of the payment of such remuneration, it is reasonable to believe that such remuneration will be excluded from gross income under section 911; or
 (ii) performed in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States by such a citizen if, at the time of the payment of such remuneration, the employer is required by the law of any foreign country or possession of the United States to withhold income tax upon such remuneration; or
 (B) for services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) performed by a citizen of the United States within a possession of the United States (other than Puerto Rico), if it is reasonable to believe that at least 80 percent of the remuneration to be paid to the employee by such employer during the calendar year will be for such services; or
 (C) for services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) performed by a citizen of the United States within Puerto Rico, if it is reasonable to believe that during the entire calendar year the employee will be a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico; or
 (D) for services for the United States (or any agency thereof) performed by a citizen of the United States within a possession of the United States to the extent the United States (or such agency) withholds taxes on such remuneration pursuant to an agreement with such possession; or
 (9) for services performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the exercise of his ministry or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order; or
 [ . . . ]
- (11) for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, to the extent paid in any medium other than cash; or
 (12) to, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary -
 (A) from or to a trust described in section 401(a) which is exempt from tax under section 501(a) at the time of such payment unless such payment is made to an employee of the trust as remuneration for services rendered as such employee and not as a beneficiary of the trust; or
 (B) under or to an annuity plan which, at the time of such payment, is a plan described in section 403(a); or
 (C) for a payment described in section 402(h)(1) and (2) if, at the time of such payment, it is reasonable to believe that the employee will be entitled to an exclusion under such section for payment; or
 (D) under an arrangement to which section 408(p) applies; or
 (13) pursuant to any provision of law other than section 5(c) or 6(1) of the Peace Corps Act, for service performed as a volunteer or volunteer leader within the meaning of such Act; or
 (14) in the form of group-term life insurance on the life of an employee; or
 (15) to or on behalf of an employee if (and to the extent that) at the time of the payment of such remuneration it is reasonable to believe that a corresponding deduction is allowable under section 217 (determined without regard to section 274(n)); or (16)
 (A) as tips in any medium other than cash;
 (B) as cash tips to an employee in any calendar month in the course of his employment by an employer unless the amount of such cash tips is $20 or more; [1]
 [ . . . ]

The first thing we notice about the above is that the “employee” cannot earn “wages” if he or she:

1. Is NOT a “public office” in the U.S. government as defined above. See 26 U.S.C. §3401(a) and 26 U.S.C. §6041.
2. Is working for a “employer” who is not engaged in a “trade or business” and remuneration is received in other than cash. A “trade or business” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office” in the U.S. government and not expanded elsewhere to include anything else. See 26 U.S.C. §3401(a)(11).
3. Is not regularly or permanently employed and is only a “temp”. See 26 U.S.C. §3401(a)(4) above.
4. A duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church. See 26 U.S.C. §3401(a)(9).
5. Receives the payment other than U.S. dollars. For instance, payments in gold bullion are not “wages”. See 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(11)-1(a).

The key to deciphering this lawyer speak above (does anyone trust lawyers?) is to realize the definition of “employee”, as follows:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) Employee: "...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof,

1 or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term
 2 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation.

3 Therefore, we can't be an "employee" unless we work for the U.S. government as a "public officer", and such government
 4 officers cannot earn "wages" under 26 U.S.C. §3401(a) UNLESS they are NOT elected or appointed "public officials".

5 If we work for a private, nonfederal employer outside of the federal zone, we therefore:

7 Internal Revenue Manual \(I.R.M.\), Section 5.14.10.2 \(09-30-2004\)
 8 Payroll Deduction Agreements

9 2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction
 10 agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements
 11 before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.
 12 [\[http://www.irs.gov/irm/part5/ch14s10.html\]](http://www.irs.gov/irm/part5/ch14s10.html)

13 2. Cannot be involved in "employment" as defined in the Internal Revenue Code:

14 26 C.F.R. §31.3121\(d\)-2 Who are employers

15 (c) Although a person may be an employer under this section, services performed in his employ may be of such 16 a nature, or performed under such circumstances, as not to constitute employment (see §31.3121(b)-3).

 18 Title 26: Internal Revenue
 19 PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
 20 Subpart B—Federal Insurance Contributions Act \(Chapter 21, Internal Revenue Code of 1954\)
 21 General Provisions
 22 § 31.3121\(b\)-3 Employment; services performed after 1954.

23 (a) In general. Whether services performed after 1954 constitute employment is determined in accordance with
 24 the provisions of section 3121(b).

25 (b) Services performed within the United States [District of Columbia]. Services performed after 1954 within
 26 the United States (see §31.3121(e)-1) by an employee for his employer, unless specifically excepted by section
 27 3121(b), constitute employment. With respect to services performed within the United States, the place where
 28 the contract of service is entered into is immaterial. The citizenship or residence of the employee or of the
 29 employer also is immaterial except to the extent provided in any specific exception from employment. Thus, the
 30 employee and the employer may be citizens and residents of a foreign country and the contract of service may
 31 be entered into in a foreign country, and yet, if the employee under such contract performs services within the
 32 United States, there may be to that extent employment.

33 "(c) Services performed outside the United States—(1) In general. Except as provided in paragraphs (c)(2) and
 34 (3) of this section, services performed outside the United States [District of Columbia] (see §31.3121(e)-1) do 35 not constitute employment."

36 3. Cannot earn "wages" as legally defined.

37 4. Cannot have anything reported in the "wages" block on a W-2 and that block must read "0" for "wages, tips, and other 38 compensation".

39 So how do our public dis-servants turn "compensation for labor" into something that fits the legal definition "wages" above
 40 so it can be taxed? Once again, you have to dig deep into the regulations to find the secret:

41 26 C.F.R. Sec. 31.3401\(a\)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements.

42 (a) IN GENERAL. Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and
 43 the regulations thereunder, the term "wages" includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this 44 section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p).
 45 References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also 46 to this section (Section 31.3401(a)-3).

(b) REMUNERATION FOR SERVICES.

(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the amounts referred to in paragraph (a) of this section include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for an employer which, without regard to this section, does not constitute wages under section 3401(a). For example, remuneration for services performed by an agricultural worker or a domestic worker in a private home (amounts which are specifically excluded from the definition of wages by section 3401(a)(2) and (3), respectively) are amounts with respect to which a voluntary withholding agreement may be entered into under section 3402(p). See Sections 31.3401(c)-1 and 31.3401(d)-1 for the definitions of "employee" and "employer".

So the bottom line is, if you fill out a W-4 and request voluntary withholding, even though you don't fit the legal definition of an "employee", then you consent to treat your earnings as "wages" as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401(a) which are subject to tax under the I.R.C., Subtitle C! That's why we also don't recommend filling out W-4 Exempts and instead prefer to use the W-8 form.

IMPORTANT: NEVER, EVER fill out and submit a W-4 to change your withholding with your private employer. It's the WRONG form! The Correct form is the W-8 or W-8BEN form. The following resource is helpful for directions on how to fill out this form:

<http://sedm.org/Forms/04-Tax/W-8BEN/AboutIRSFormW-8BEN.htm>

The W-8 or W-8BEN forms have the following advantages that the IRS Form W-4 does not enjoy:

1. You identify yourself as a "nonresident alien" by submitting the form. That means you are "nonresident" to the federal "United States" and therefore are outside of federal jurisdiction. Consequently, the form doesn't need to be sent to the IRS automatically like the Exempt W-4, so you aren't putting yourself on report by submitting it.
2. You do not identify yourself as a federal "employee" when you submit the form.
3. The IRS cannot penalize you for making tax deductions zero with this form. This is because once again, you are outside of their jurisdiction, and the IRS can't affect anything outside of federal jurisdiction.
4. The form is not sent to the IRS when you submit it. It says that right on the form.
5. Unlike the IRS Form W-4 Exempt, the form does not expire every February and have to be resubmitted annually. Instead, it is good for three years.

At law, labor is property. In fact, the Supreme Court in Butchers' Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884) has identified labor as man's most precious property. Therefore, the exchange of one's labor as a private employee (one who does not work for the federal government as a "public officer") for wages (not "wages" as defined in the I.R.C., but just wages in the conventional sense) or salary (which are also property) is considered by law to be an exchange of properties of equal value in which there is NO gain or profit for the person who performed the labor. Their employer can derive profit, but a natural person cannot profit from wages. Such a property exchange of equal value cannot therefore be taxed because there is no profit or gain. The below statute makes the above assertions very clear:

United States Code
 TITLE 15 - COMMERCE AND TRADE
 CHAPTER 1 - MONOPOLIES AND COMBINATIONS IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE
Sec. 17. Antitrust laws not applicable to labor organizations

Based on the above, it's reasonable to ask:

"The federal government derives most of its authority to reach into the states based on the so called 'commerce clause', which is found in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution. This is the section of the Constitution which empowers Congress to regulate and tax foreign commerce, and if labor and the wages (in a common sense and not in the context of the internal revenue code) or property that result from that labor inside the sovereign 50 Union states cannot be a commodity or article of commerce, then where does the federal government derive its power to tax earnings from labor?"

The answer is, they have no power to impose an involuntary or mandatory tax on the earnings of private, non-federal businesses inside the sovereign 50 Union states and never have! Read my lips again, and you can trust these lips, unlike those of lying politicians and the IRS who are on the take:

1                   “The federal government has no lawful authority delegated from the U.S. constitution to impose a
2 mandatory/involuntary tax on earnings outside of the federal United States and in the sovereign 50 Union
3 states. Doing so is clearly illegal, and that is why there is no statute anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code
4 making anyone liable to pay Subtitle A income taxes. As we explain in section 5.9, just about the whole
5 constitution would have to be destroyed in order to make direct taxes on labor legal. So that we aren't 6 misquoted, the term “wages” as used in this quotation is not that defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401, but rather the 7 wages of private, nonfederal employers.”

8 Therefore, one who works in an ordinary occupation for a private, non-federal employer is not a recipient of any “privilege”
9 granted by government and is therefore not involved in an excise taxable activity, because he is merely exercising his
10 constitutionally guaranteed right to work and earn a living. Under Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution, you have a 11 right to contract, and that right extends to exchanging your labor for money, and the government may not interfere with that
12 right to contract by stealing a portion of the monies exchanged because if they did, they would be violating that right.
13 Courts have repeatedly ruled that no tax may be placed upon the exercise of rights. The reasoning of the founders and our 14 courts was sensible. If the exercise of rights could be taxed, government could destroy them by excessive rates of taxation.
15 Only “corporate profit” from importation of goods from outside the country is subject to a mandatory/enforced tax as per 16 the U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 and natural people don't earn this kind of “profit”. This kind of 17 activity, by the way, is a privileged activity under 26 U.S.C. §7001 for which all corporations involved must be “licensed”.
18 It must be licensed because it is simultaneously subject to regulation and taxation by the federal government. The taxes
19 paid under this corporate “license” are used to fund the cost of regulation and may not be used for more than that purpose.

20 When we are thinking about income taxes, we need to think very clearly. The Subtitles A and C income tax is an indirect
21 excise tax. The Internal Revenue Code applies uniformly:

- 22       • Throughout the 50 Union states under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution for Subtitle D taxes (see 23 the Definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. Section 4612)
- 24       • Only within the federal zone and abroad for Subtitles A and C income taxes (see the Definition of “United States” 25 found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9)) under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the Constitution.

26 Consequently, we have to be very clear in our minds about the following three issues

"Income" as Constitutionally defined ONLY as coming from corporations involved in foreign commerce . See: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920)</li> <li>• 26 C.F.R. §6671-1(b) in section 5.4.16.</li> </ul> Natural persons and "individuals" can "volunteer" to make their income taxable but there is no law that requires them to. A natural person can only earn "gross income" if two criteria are met: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. They consent to be treated as a "taxpayer" who is therefore "subject to" the Internal Revenue Code AND</li> <li>2. They identify the earnings that they want to subject to taxation as "effectively connected with a trade or business" as required under 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii).</li> </ol>
WHAT is the definition of "income"?	The Supreme Court ruled in Eisner v. Macomber , 252 U.S. 189 (1920) that Congress nor the Internal Revenue Code itself CANNOT define "income", and it neither even tries to. Only the Constitution can define "income". Income is defined as " corporate profit " from corporations involved in the privilege of conducting foreign commerce. Before you can have "gross income" you must have "income" and it must derive from taxable sources identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f). See sections 5.6.5 and 5.7.6.5 for further details on this subject.

It took us almost a year to document and fully discover the implications of the above very simple table. Unless we are very clear in our thinking in answering the above questions, we will cloud the application of the tax code, confuse the IRS, and they will disallow our claim! Please therefore keep this table utmost in your mind in all your dealings with the IRS.

Many people also try to argue with the IRS that their wages are not taxable, without clarifying what they mean by "wages" or whether they fit the description of "person" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1) or "individual", which isn't defined in the code but is defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c). It is very common for the IRS to disallow claims for refund from people who try to argue that their wages aren't taxable, however, and it's the wrong point to argue with the IRS that will get you in trouble every time! You will get in trouble because your W-2 contains a lie in block 2 saying that you earned "wages" and you never refuted that evidence and clarified that you are not an "employee" and never consented or volunteered to participate in the revenue system. Have you ever wondered why 26 U.S.C. §61 does not list "wages" as a type of taxable income? Instead, they try to confuse the issue with the following statement in that section identified as taxable: "Compensation for services, including fees, commissions, fringe benefits, and similar items;". There is a very good reason why they didn't just come out and say "wages are taxable". This is a result of the following analysis and conclusions:

1. An agreement between a private employer and a private employee is a contract. Neither the states nor the federal government are allowed under the Constitution to interfere with the right to contract, or to directly reduce the compensation received by the private employee by the private employer except by a court order, which is a requirement of the Fifth Amendment. See Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution:

Article 1, Section 10

No State shall enter into any Treaty, Alliance, or Confederation; grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal; coin Money; emit Bills of Credit; make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts; pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or grant any Title of Nobility.

2. The Public Salary Tax Act of 1939 and the devious redefinition of “gross income”:<sup>80</sup>

When Congress revised the 1939 Internal Revenue Code came out with the 1954 code, they removed the specific mention of wages as being taxable. Why would Congress REMOVE wages from the list of items of gross income if they wanted it to be taxable? Here is the redefinition:

1.1 26 U.S.C. §22(a) entitled “Gross income(a) General definition” states:

1.2 26 U.S.C. Section 61(a)(1), entitled “Gross income defined”, says the following:

Except as otherwise provided in this subtitle, gross income means all income from whatever source derived, including (but not limited to) the following items:

(1) Compensation for services, including fees, commissions, fringe benefits, and similar items.

The above changes were based on the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939, which was passed after the 1939 code revision. The Act, which has never been repealed, was extremely significant because it amends and redefines the words “gross income” [not “income”] which is the basis for calculating “taxable income,” to include ONLY “compensation for services” (as public servants) earned by officers and employees of a State. As will be later documented, in statutory construction of the word “including” means “only” and cannot be expanded to add other elements not within the exact “meaning of the definition.” The meaning here is “government employees” and can’t be expanded to also include “private sector employees.”

*Public Salary Tax Act of 1939
TITLE I-

“§22(a) of the Internal Revenue Code relating to the definition of ‘gross income,’ is amended after the words ‘compensation for personal service’ the following: ‘including personal service as an officer or employee of a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing.’”

“Wages” and “Compensation for personal services” are ONLY earned by public employees. This is why the Government rightfully argues “Wages are Gross Income.” According to their definition of “wages”, they’re right, but also according to their definition of “employee”, you don’t earn “wages”! However, by such definition, compensation for labor in the private sector is not “wages” and is not “compensation for personal services” unless you fill out a voluntary withholding agreement (W-4). Here is the definition of “personal services”, and note that “trade or business” in that definition means the holding of a public office:

26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.469-9 Rules for certain rental real estate activities.

(b)(4) PERSONAL SERVICES.

Personal services means any work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business. However, personal services do not include any work performed by an individual in the individual's capacity as an investor as described in section 1.469-5T(f)(2)(ii).

Elected and appointed government employees are considered to be public servants, exercising “official privileges”, while employed. According to a Freedom of Information Act response in our possession, the income tax is applicable to those who chose to make themselves liable by entering into contracts with the U.S. Government. Also, such paychecks come from the District of Columbia, giving them compensation “effectively connected to” a federal area (from “within the United States” under 26 U.S.C. §861) under exclusive federal United States** jurisdiction.

3. Labor is property relative to natural persons, as ruled by the U.S. supreme Court in 1883 in the case of Butchers’ Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884). We repeat that ruling here for your benefit:

7            This is easy to see, because if labor had no value or wasn't property or something they could acquire, then people
 8 wouldn't be willing to pay for it!

- 9            4. Receipt of earnings in connection with personal labor by a natural person constitutes an equal exchange of one type of 10 property for another: Labor exchanged for money.
- 11            5. Since the income tax is a tax on profit, and since receipt of wages by natural persons who don't work for the federal 12 government is an equal exchange of property, there can be no "profit" involved, and therefore no tax on wages as 13 income. However, money received by corporations (involved in foreign commerce) in exchange for labor of their 14 employees is taxable after the cost of producing the labor is deducted to arrive at corporate profit. This conclusion is 15 supported by the following cites:

- 34 6. A tax on natural persons as a percentage of income (not "gross income", but "income") from labor earnings amounts
35 to slavery and violates the 13th Amendment, which outlawed slavery. For instance, if your marginal tax rate is 28%
36 and you erroneously treat your wages as income, then you are a slave for the first 28% of the year. There is no other
37 way to look at it. The only thing necessary to make you a complete slave would be for the combined sum of the State
38 and Federal taxes on income to consume 100% of your wages! That will happen someday, we predict, if somewhere
39 along the line people don't wake up and protest the unjust income tax we have now! Even the press agrees with this 40 view of income taxes, because the newspapers frequently talk about "tax freedom day", which is the first day of the 41 year in which the country as a whole quits working for the government and starts making money only for themselves.
42 The implication is that everything before that is "slavery." Every year, tax freedom day gets later, and right now, we
43 spend the first four months of the year as slaves to the government. This happens because the government raises tax
44 rates and will continue to do so because people don't protest. However, a tax on corporate profits derived from wages 45 is perfectly legal, ethical and moral.
- 46 7. It is not within the power of the government to impose a mandatory tax on the exercise of an occupation of common 47 right, or natural right, or on the receipt and/or realization of the earnings received from the exercise of such a right.
48 The Income Tax is an excise tax. To be legally required to pay an excise tax, a "person" must be involved in the 49 exercise of a taxable privilege*. Most citizens in the course of supporting themselves are exercising no privileges upon 50 which an excise tax could be imposed by law.

42                   We said earlier that the income tax is a tax on corporate profit. How come “employees” of the federal government can have
43                   their wages taxed? The reason is because the U.S. government is a federal corporation! That’s right. In 1871, the District
44                   of Columbia became a Municipal Corporation, which also made them a federal corporation. “Employees” of that
45                   corporation then were in receipt of “profit” from the federal corporation! We have an article on our website that explains
46                   this conclusion completely below:

47                   <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/16Amend/SpecialLaw/16thAmendIRCIrrelevant.htm>

48                   Let’s tie together what we have learned about taxability of “wages” with a couple of fictitious examples to make the 49                   application of this knowledge crystal clear in your mind:

50                    --- 51                   EXAMPLE 1: Kelly Girl (federal) Corporation

The Great  IRS Hoax: Why We Don't Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO)

Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship

Let's say the "person" in question is a federal corporation called "Kelley Girl", which is a "temp agency" that farms out its employees to third parties. In effect, they sell labor for profit. The third parties they sell the labor to are located outside the United States and these parties reimburse them with "wages" for that labor. Because Kelly Girl flies their employees outside the United States to service their clients, they are involved in foreign commerce that comes under federal jurisdiction. Kelly Girl, in turn, deducts the cost of the labor to pay their employees' wages and benefits. The difference between what third parties pay them for the labor and what they pay their employees is corporate profit derived from wages, or "compensation for services" as described in 26 U.S.C. §61(a)(1). That corporate profit is taxable under the Internal Revenue Code.

EXAMPLE 2: You

Now let's say the "person" in question is a natural person and not a corporation. It is you! You sell your labor to third parties and receive "wages" or "compensation for personal services" in return. That money does fit the description of "gross income" defined in 26 U.S.C. section 61(a)(1) but it does not meet the definition of "income" as corporate profit since you are not a corporation (see Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920)). Because the income tax is an excise or privilege tax and you are not an entity in receipt of taxable federal privileges, and because you do not have "income", then you cannot have "gross income". On your tax return, you would fill in "0" for your taxable income on your return and pay NO TAX on that income.

Now isn't that interesting? Can you believe you have been fooled for so long? Why don't they teach this stuff in our public schools? Could it be because the government funds them and they don't want you knowing that you don't have to pay taxes on wages? We think so! That is why we advocate getting your children out of the public schools as quickly as possible and why we advocate school vouchers.

If we try to claim on our tax return that "wages" are not taxable and identify ourselves as a "natural person", as we did, the IRS came back with the following nonsense on their form letter 105C:

"The claim is based on your view that wages and salary don't constitute taxable income. The U.S. Tax Court and other federal courts have rejected this argument repeatedly and have held that wages and salary are taxable income reportable at the full amount received."

Nonsense! Did you notice that:

1. They didn't cite any cases?
2. They didn't cite any laws?
3. They violated their own Internal Revenue Manual, which states that they cannot apply U.S. Tax Court cases or any cases other than the Supreme Court against more than one taxpayer?

"Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position."

*Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same weight as the Code.

Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers."*
[Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 (05/14/99)]

So what kind of nonsense is this? This is an abuse of case law and a fraud if we ever saw one, but that is the kind of double-speak you can expect from the deceitful beast and monster we the people have allowed to evolve in the form of the IRS.

1 What do the state taxing authorities say about the taxability of wages? Here is what the California Franchise Tax Board
 2 (FTB) said in their response to a past Affidavit Request for Refund which contained as the last element a claim that wages
 3 are not taxable. The letter number was FTB 4619MEO (NEW 8-1999):

4 Compensation received in whatever form, including wages for services, constitutes taxable income
 5 [Lonsdale v. Commissioner, 661 F.2d. 71 (5th Cir. 1981) ]

6 We then examined this case using VersusLaw (<http://www.versuslaw.com>). Here is what it said:

7 [12] As nearly as we can tell from their pro se brief, these arguments are two, or possibly three, in number.
 8 The first category of contentions may be summarized as that the United States Constitution forbids taxation

 15 Glenshaw Glass Co., 348 U.S. 426, 431, 75 S.Ct. 473, 477, 99 L.Ed. 483 (1955). This definition is clearly 16 within the power to tax "incomes" granted by the sixteenth amendment.

29 If you want more information on Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co. cited above, we refer you to sections 5.7.6.4 and 30 5.7.6.11.7, where we concluded that the case was shortsighted and ignored taxable sources in 26 U.S.C. §861 and 862. Did
 31 you notice that they cited the weakest possible case to establish the taxability of wages and did not repeat the foundation of 32 the appellants arguments? The appellant was a pro se litigant (defending himself without the aid of a lawyer) who probably 33 had a weak defense or explanation of the issues. This is a very common approach for the government: If the case is 34 appealed, the appellate court will pick the person with the weakest legal defense and poorest explanation of the issues, and
 35 make it into the equivalent of law without even examining all the issues in depth. Then they will cite that case in the future
 36 ad infinitum without ever in the future fully examining the foundational issues. In effect, one hasty person who can't afford
 37 legal counsel destroys a good argument for the rest of the tax freedom community because of corrupt judges like judges
 38 Gee, Garza, and Tate who heard this case. Not only that, but look at all the people who this poor pro se was fighting 39 against:

40 John F. Murray, Acting Asst. Atty. Gen., Richard Farber, Philip I. Brennan, Attys., Tax Div., U.S. Dept. of 41 Justice, Alfred C. Bishop, Jr., Chief, John Menzel, Director, Tax Litigation, I. R. S., Washington, D.C., for 42 respondent-appellee.

43 Do you detect that this was a battle of wits with an unarmed man? Other interesting conclusions in the above Lonsdale cite 44 are:

45 "This requirement [of apportionment of direct taxes] was eliminated by the Sixteenth Amendment."

46 This is an obvious fraud because the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916) that:

47 "..by the previous ruling it was settled that the provisions of the Sixteenth Amendment conferred no new
 48 power of taxation but simply prohibited the previous complete and plenary power of income taxation
 49 possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation to which
 50 it inherently belonged and being placed in the category of direct taxation subject to apportionment by a

1 consideration of the sources from which the income was derived, that is by testing the tax not by what it was -- a
2 tax on income, but by a mistaken theory deduced from the origin or source of the income taxed. "

3 This finding has never been overruled, and yet the Lonsdale case above completely ignored it. What kind of Alice in
4 Wonderland fairytale illogic is this? If the Sixteenth Amendment conferred "no new powers of taxation" then how could it
5 eliminate the apportionment requirement as cited above? That is why we say that more crime occurs in federal courtrooms
6 than anywhere else in the country! If you want more proof of this kind of judicial corruption, read section 6.6, where we
7 talk about the "judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax". It will really open your eyes.

8 5.6.8 Employment Withholding Taxes are Gifts to the U.S. Government!

9 That's right! If you examine a copy of IRS Publication 6209 available on our website, which shows you how to decode
10 your Individual Master File (IMF), you will find out that employment withholding taxes that you pay after you fill out a W-
11 4 with your employer are assigned to Tax Class 5, which is classified as "Estate and Gift Taxes". Income taxes, on the 12 other hand, are listed as tax class 2. Even more interesting, is that IRS Publication 6209, also called the "ADP/IDRS
13 Manual" on their website, used to indicate what the various Tax Classes were, but when people found out that employment
14 taxes were gifts and got outraged and litigated to get their money back, the IRS conveniently:

- 15 1. Removed the identification of Tax Classes from IRS Publication 6209, thus making it difficult to impossible for the 16 average individual to figure out or prove in court that employment taxes are gifts.
- 17 2. Classified Publication 6209 on every page at the bottom as "For Official Use Only", which is a code word for "Don't 18 Let This Get In The Hands of Those Taxpayer Bastards or They Will Sue us in Court!"
- 19 3. Eventually removed the document entirely from their website and classified the entire document as "For Official Use 20 Only" so that it cannot be disclosed to the public.

21 After all the difficulty raised by the embarrassing information exposed in this publication, the IRS subsequently restored the 22 list of tax classes to the beginning of Chapter 4 of the 6209 Document 6209 on about June of 2002. The above types of 23 shenanigans by the IRS are only the tip of the iceberg and provide compelling proof that getting the IRS to tell the WHOLE
24 truth is like trying to get someone into a dentist's office so you can pull their teeth out! Chapter 4 of this manual is 25 available on our website below and the tax class table is listed on pages 4-1 and 4-2:

26 <http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/6209Manual/toc.htm>

27 The IRS, by the way, used to offer this document on their website but after we started referring to it in this book, they 28 mysteriously removed it on March 17, 2003 to cover evidence of their wrongdoing. Below is a summary of that table, and 29 keep in mind that the Tax Class is the third digit of any Document Locator Number (DLN) that you can request from your 30 Individual Master File (IMF) using the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request:

Table 5-52: Tax Class as appearing in Section 4 of the 6209 or ADP/IDRS Manual

Tax Class (Third digit of Document Locator Number or DLN)	Tax Class
0	Employee Plans Master File (EPMF)
1	Withholding and Social Security
2	Individual Income Tax, Fiduciary Income Tax, Partnership return
3	Corporate Income Tax, 990C, 990T, 8083 Series, 8609, 8610
4	Excise Tax
5	Information Return Processing (IRP), Estate and Gift Tax
6	NMF
7	CT-1
8	FUTA
9	Mixed-Segregation by tax class not required

To help you further in associating tax classes listed above with specific taxes, we have prepared a listing of the Tax Classes and the associated tax and Subtitle of the Internal Revenue Code (I.R.C.) below for your benefit:

Table 5-53: Tax Classes Used for Various IRS Forms and filings

Tax or Topic	Subtitle	Tax Class (as used in your Individual Master File, or IMF)
Income Taxes	A	2
Estate and Gift Taxes	B	5
Employment Taxes	C	1
Miscellaneous Excises	D	4
Alcohol, Tobacco, and Certain Other Excises	E	4
Procedure Administration	F	NA
Joint Committee on Taxation	G	NA
Financing Presidential Election Campaigns	H	NA
Trust Fund Code	I	NA

If you don't believe this, examine Chapter 2 of IRS Publication 6209 for yourself, which is entitled "Tax Returns and Forms". You can view a current version of the IRS Publication 6209 on our website at:

<http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/6209Manual/toc.htm>

We have included a summary of the main forms below for your benefit derived directly from that chapter, which is very instructive:

1 Table 5-54: Tax Classes Used for Various IRS Forms and filings

IRS Form number	Tax Class (as used in your Individual Master File, or IMF)
1040	2, 6
1040NR	2, 6
1040X	2
1099	5
941-M	1, 6
SS-4	0, 9
W-2	5
W-4	5
W-4E	5

2 Doesn't this kind of sly treachery and deception make you even a tiny bit mad? If I.R.C., Subtitle A really were
3 mandatory, don't you think that the W-2 would be listed as tax class 2? Instead, the employment taxes you pay are gifts to
4 the government and then, in their guilt, they try to hide this fact from you by obfuscating Publication 6209 and classifying it
5 as "For Official Use Only" so it doesn't get into your hands! It is precisely this kind of treachery and deception that is the 6 reason we like to say:

7 "The U.S. Government is so protective of the truth about income taxes that they have to surround it with a
8 bodyguard of lies."
9 [S. Jackson]

10 Incidentally, if you want to get a copy of IRS Publication 6209, it doesn't appear on their Document 7130 which lists all of 11 their forms and publications. You may also not be able to obtain it under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) because 12 they simply do not want you to have it. Consequently, we have posted it on our website below:

13 <http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/6209Manual/toc.htm>

14 5.6.9 The Deficiency Notices the IRS Sends To Individuals are Actually Intended for Businesses!

15 The IRS Document 6209 describes how to decode both your IRS Individual Master File (IMF) as well as the notices sent 16 out by the IRS. You can obtain an electronic version of this manual from our website at the address below:

17 <http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/6209Manual/toc.htm>

18 Chapter 9, section .01, on page 9-1 of the 1998 version of the IRS Document 6209 is entitled "Notices and Notice Codes"
19 indicates the following:

20 Computer generated notices and letters of inquiry are mailed to taxpayers in connection with tax returns for 21 BMF, IMF, and IRAF. Computer paragraph (CP) numbers (3-digit number for BMF AND IRAF, 2-digit 22 number for IMF) are located in the upper left corner of the notices and letters.

23 By way of explanation, BMF means "Business Master File" and "IMF" means Individual Master File. Businesses should
24 therefore never get any CP notice with a two digit code and Individuals should never get any CP notice with a three digit
25 code, and if this requirement is violated, then this is a strong indication of one of the two likely problems, in descending 26 order of likelihood:

- 27 1. Your IMF has been deliberately falsified by the dishonest IRS agent or agents who have been handling your returns in 28 order to create a fraudulent tax liability by making you into a business rather than an individual. The type of business 29 they make you into is usually an excise taxable corporation.
- 30 2. There has been an accidental data entry error.

1 When an individual has either not filed a return or has not paid taxes or penalties that the IRS says they owe, they will
 2 typically receive a CP deficiency notice from the IRS with a three digit code. For instance, a series of four letters, CP-501
 3 through CP-504 are sent out prior to initiating collection activity against an alleged taxpayer. Notice that the number part
 4 of the form letter is a three digit code, which the above citation from the IRS Document 6209 says is for businesses and not
 5 individuals. Individuals should never receive such notices because we all know that the income tax is voluntary and cannot
 6 apply to individuals since there is no statute creating a liability in all of I.R.C., Subtitle A. The only reason it applies to 7 businesses is because the businesses are associated with taxes found in Title 27, which is for the Bureau of Alcohol,
 8 Tobacco, and Firearms. The IRS and the BATF share the same computer system and at one time were part of the same
 9 agency! BATF taxes are indeed mandatory and can be enforced with penalties and seizures and collection activity. Even 10 worse, the IRS itself, in the Treasury Organization Chart at the below web address from the Department of the Treasury, is 11 clearly shown as NOT being an enforcement agency, since it does not fall under the Under Secretary for Enforcement!

12 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Evidence/OrgAndDuties/TreasOrg2.pdf>

13 There are two types of commissions IRS employees can get: Enforcement and Non-enforcement (also called 14 Administrative). The type of commission they get is clearly shown on their Pocket Commission. See the following address 15 for more information about pocket commissions, which takes you to the Internal Revenue Manual Section [1.16.4] 3.7 (also 16 called section 1.16.4.3.7):

17 <http://www.irs.gov/taxpros/display/0..i1%3D5%26genericId%3D21267.00.html>

18 Only IRS employees who have Enforcement Pocket Commissions can institute enforcement activities, including
 19 assessment, collection, liens, levies, and summons. But guess what: none of the IRS employees who institute enforcement
 20 actions on individuals have enforcement commissions! They just pretend like they do and hope you won't notice or ask
 21 about their Pocket Commissions—it's a big bluff! That explains statements like the following

22 "In a recent conversation with an official at the Internal Revenue Service, I was amazed when he told me that 'If 23 the taxpayers of this country ever discover that the IRS operates on 90% bluff the entire system will collapse'".
 24 [Henry Bellmon, Senator (1969)]

25 We have a sample FOIA request in section 2.11.12 of the following, which allows you to find out what kind of commission
 26 they have if you want to find out.

27 Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005

28 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

29 What typically happens is that when a person sends in their first 1040 tax return assessing themselves with a liability they 30 really don't have and can't have under law, the IRS agent processing the return has to fabricate a liability. Otherwise, he 31 would have to send your return and your money back and politely tell you that you aren't liable for tax. What agent or 32 person from the government would be honest enough to do that?

33 The only way the corrupt IRS agent can fabricate such a liability is to lie to their AIMS computer by telling it that the 34 person indicated on the tax return is a business rather than an individual. Beyond that point and at any time in the future,
 35 that person is erroneously presumed by the IRS computers to be a business who is liable to pay tax and file returns. No kidding! The only way you can get the IRS off your back after you erroneously assess yourself with a liability is to point out to them that you are not a business and that you:

- 36 • Want any Business Master File (BMF) records they maintain on you expunged and amended to reflect your correct
 37 status as an individual. You will need to provide them with a notarized Affidavit in order to do this.
- 38 • Want them to provide proof that you are a business if they continue to insist that you are. You can refute their 39 evidence by providing them with a copy of your birth certificate.

40 Doing the above should hopefully stop the threatening collection and/or deficiency notices for taxes you were never liable 41 for.

42 5.6.10 Public Officer Kickback Position

As near as we can tell, this position was first articulated by Frank Kowalik in his marvelous book entitled IRS Humbug: Weapons of Enslavement, Frank Kowalik, ISBN 0-9626552-0-1, 1991, by Universalistic Publishers. This is an excellent book that is copiously and meticulously researched and which we highly recommend. It is the second most important book in our tax library, as a matter of fact, being second only to the book In Their Own Words listed in section 8.2 of this book. You don't hear much about his book in the tax freedom community but we believe it deserves a lot more acclaim than it gets. You can order this book from:

Frank builds his research on the content of section 5.4.1 earlier, in which we proved that taxes on labor amount to slavery. We could find no errors in the evidence or logic used in Frank's book and we agree 100% with everything that he says in his book. The book fills in a lot of holes in the research of other authors along with a rare glimpse at a real-life legal battle that he went through to show how the government maliciously prosecuted him for following the Internal Revenue Code and thereby violated his due process rights, his dignity, and committed treason against the Constitution.

What Frank Kowalik proves in his IRS Humbug book using his exhaustive legal research is the following, which is a terse summary of his almost 360 page book:

1. Subtitle A income taxes, insofar as natural persons, is not a "tax" at all, but what he calls a "kickback" program for "public officers" of the United States government only. That is to say it is part of an implied employment agreement they voluntarily consent to when they accept political office. In that sense, it is a voluntary excise tax based on the acceptance of political privileges associated with public office. The tax does not apply to any type of federal employee other than "public officers of the U.S. government. We covered this earlier in sections 3.12.1.4 and 5.2.18.
2. Those people who have entered into this voluntary employment agreement are described in the Internal Revenue Code as being "effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States". In this context, "United States" means the federal government. "trade or business" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the performance of the functions of a public office". The only people who can be involved in a "trade or business" are those holding public office, and all of these people are mandated by the Constitution to serve in the District of Columbia as congressmen, judges, the President, and his appointed help. He traces the history of 26 U.S.C. §931 and other sections to prove this.
3. Everyone who does not ALREADY have a labor contract with the federal government is therefore not involved in a "trade or business" under Subtitle A, and therefore is not in receipt of federal excise-taxable "privileges". As such, all of their assets are a "foreign estate" under the Internal Revenue Code as defined under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31)(A):

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
 Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) (31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

4. The very first kickback program began in 1862 as an outgrowth of desperation of Congress to fund the Civil War. He traces the enactments of Congress over more than a hundred years to show that the basic "kickback" approach started by Abraham Lincoln in 1862 has been perfected and expanded over the years to become extremely effective and very deceptive. The main method for expanding this illegal kickback program to apply to other than the "public officers" it was originally intended for has been the obfuscation of Title 26 of the U.S. Code and the willful, criminal, and treasonous participation of the federal judiciary in this scheme to expand federal jurisdiction beyond the clear limits of the Constitution.
5. Nothing we pay to the federal government is truly a "tax" as defined by the Supreme Court because taxes can only support the government and not the constituents. There are very few real "taxes" under the Internal Revenue Code, because most of the money is used for wealth transfer rather than to support only the government. In the context of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, the word "tax" really means "kickback", and only applies to federal corporations, trusts, and domestic partnerships, where "domestic" means within the federal government or the "federal zone". In fact, all of the entities listed under 26 U.S.C. §7701 fit the description of those connected to the federal government.

Under the rule of statutory construction known as “ejusdem generis”, all of the entities listed below are of the same class or kind, and are entities in receipt of the federal privileges:

5.1. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a): “citizens” and “residents” of the United States

5.2. 26 U.S.C. §7701(b): domestic partnerships

5.3. 26 U.S.C. §7701(c): domestic corporations

5.4. 26 U.S.C. §7701(b): gross income that can be called “domestic income”

5.5. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30): United States Person. These are the only entities that need identifying number.

6. The Social Security Number identifies a constructive trust. Your labor builds the assets in the trust. The federal government is the trustee. This is consistent with our document below:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Family Guardian Fellowship

7. The public officer “kickback” scheme works as follows:

7.1. The federal government pays its “public officers” an additional amount above and beyond the pay they are supposed to get. In fact, if you look at the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939 and various other revenue acts enacted over the years upon which Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A were derived, the only natural persons who earn either “wages” or “gross income” as legally defined are these federal employees. See 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a). These federal employees are, in actuality, the only natural persons who can reasonably be classified as “individuals” within Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.

7.2. The amount above the pay that these federal public officers are supposed to get is classified as “profit” or “income” of the United States government. We covered this earlier in sections 3.12.1.4, 3.12.1.22, and 5.2.18.

7.3. This “profit” or “income” is the income of a federal corporation, the United States (see 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)), and the public officers receiving this “profit” or “income” are the “fiduciaries” under 26 U.S.C. §6903 who have been temporarily entrusted with property that actually belongs to the United States government. These custodians of U.S. property are classified as a “transferee” as defined in earlier versions of the code in 26 U.S.C. §6901. The current version of the code no longer contains the definition of “transferee” in section 6901 and has replaced that with “fiduciary” in 26 U.S.C. §6903 since Frank first wrote his book. However, if you submit an affidavit to tax court claiming NOT to be a “transferee” or “fiduciary” of U.S. government property under 26 U.S.C. §6902(b), then you cannot lawfully litigate your case in that court for Subtitle A income taxes.

7.4. The “taxpayer” in this scheme is not the public official or appointee who is receiving the monies, but instead is the paymaster or withholding agent who is paying the public officer, and indeed, 26 U.S.C. §1461 is the only section anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code that makes anyone liable for subtitle A income taxes, and that person is the person who is withholding from the pay of these public officers.

7.5. The jurisdiction the United States government within this kickback scheme is “in rem” jurisdiction, which means jurisdiction over the property but not the person. The property is the means by which they obtain jurisdiction over the person. This jurisdiction arises under Article IV, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution. We covered this earlier in section 1.5.

7.6. If taxes are not paid on the “profit” or “income” by the public officer, then the U.S. government has a legal right to administratively levy the wages of the public officer to recover their monies because of their “in rem” jurisdiction over these monies, which always were the property of the U.S. government, both before and after their receipt by the public officer. This act is perfectly constitutional and does not violate the Fifth Amendment rights of the public officer because he consented to such withholding and to being a fiduciary custodian of these excess monies as an implied part of his employment agreement with the United States government. However, the administrative levy, effected with a Notice of Levy, may only constitutionally be implemented within a federal agency under the Federal Payment Levy Program (FPLP). It may not be instituted against private employers.

7.7. The definition of “employee” found in 26 U.S.C. §3401(c), 26 U.S.C. §6331(a), and 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 confirm that the only “employees” who are subject to Subtitles A or C income taxes are indeed elected or appointed officers of the United States government. In accordance with 4 U.S.C. §72, these officers can only reside in the District of Columbia, which is why the term “United States” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) means the District of Columbia only in the context of Subtitle A income taxes. We covered this earlier in section 5.2.12. It is also covered in section 2.5.4.21 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005.

7.8. The IRS’ administrative enforcement, including liens, levies, and assessments, become illegal if they are forced upon private citizens who are not public officers of the United States government, and especially if those private citizens are domiciled outside of the federal zone. In fact, if Subtitle A income taxes are enforced against private citizens, then they become a form of debt slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, 18 U.S.C. §1581, and 42 U.S.C. §1994.

7.9. The federal judiciary has become an accessory to this illegal kickback scheme, and he traces the history of at least three different Supreme Court rulings (Brushaber v. Union Pacific RR, 240 U.S. 1 (1916); Miles v. Graham, 268

U.S. 501 (1924); O'Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277 (1939)) to show how this kickback scheme has been expanded with the blessings and willing participation of no less than the U.S. Supreme Court, mainly through the error of omission rather than commission, to be misapplied by the IRS against private citizens who don't work as public officers for the federal government.

8. Title 26 of the U.S. Code is not positive law because it was never enacted by Congress. Instead it is only prima facie evidence of law. The only real and positive law is found in the Statutes at Large, which are the direct enactments of Congress. The U.S. Codes are simply "codified" versions of the Statutes at Large, modified to make them more general and universal.
9. The main mechanism for illegally expanding the Public Officer Kickback program has been the obfuscation of the Internal Revenue Code over the years by the Congress in order to confuse and mislead both the public and the IRS who administers the tax code written by Congress. The deliberate and systematic abuse of the word "includes" has been pivotal in effecting this criminal fraud. The obfuscation is easily illustrated and revealed by comparing the Statutes at Large with 26 U.S.C. to show the legislative intent of the various sections of the U.S.C. The most obvious example of this would be to search for all the definitions of "gross income" found in the Statutes at Large and compare them with 26 U.S.C. §61 and 26 U.S.C. §861.
10. Since the first "kickback" scheme started in 1862, there has been a systematic attempt by Congress to expand its jurisdiction by obfuscating the U.S. Codes to make them hide the truth found in the Statutes at Large. He cites several examples where the Office of Legislative Counsel has abused its authority in writing and rewriting Title 26 to hide the truth about the limited applicability of the Subtitle A income tax.
11. The biggest improvement in this "kickback" scheme came in the Revenue Act of 1918, in which Congress first defined the term "gross income". He shows several sections in the Statutes at Large that specifically define "gross income" to only mean the "wages" of public officers of the United States government. He shows that there has never been any statute in the Statutes at Large where "gross income" was ever defined to also encompass monies earned by private persons who don't work for the federal government as public officers. This is a hot issue worth a very serious and diligent look by the freedom community, folks. In the coming months, we will research this and post the evidence on our website for all to see proving this point. In the meantime, a good place to start is the following link on our website:

12. The objectivity of the Federal Judiciary has been compromised because judges are both paid by income taxes and are beholden to IRS extortion because they too participate in this "kickback" scheme. This has created a conflict of interest and a criminal class of judges in violation of 28 U.S.C. §455 and 28 U.S.C. §144. He says the stakes get higher every day for these corrupt judges because by exposing the fraud, they would bring terrible retribution upon their brethren in their own judiciary and in other branches of government. This makes them very reluctant to expose the fraud and leads them to prejudice the litigation of most tax freedom advocates. This also explains why so many cases these days go unpublished: they are part of a massive cover-up of judicial wrongdoing and violation of due process. This also explains why tape recording or video recording of tax trials is prohibited by law: It would increase the risk that these corrupt judges could be prosecuted for their fraud and violation of due process under the Constitution.
13. Those private Americans who choose to volunteer in this corrupt federal kickback program do not have a "tangible right" to force others to participate. The public is not injured or harmed in any way by the failure of certain individuals to "volunteer" to participate in this tax "scheme". This matter was settled by the Supreme Court in the case of McNally v. United States, 483 U.S. 350 (1987).
14. The purpose of Subtitle F of the Internal Revenue Code is to facilitate an action in "replevin" against federal "employees" who are in temporary custody of federal property as "fiduciaries" and "transferees".

"Replevin. An action whereby the owner or person entitled to repossession of goods or chattels may recover those goods or chattels from one who has wrongfully distrained or taken or who wrongfully detains such goods or chattels. Jim's Furniture Mart, Inc. v. Harris, 42 Ill.App.3d. 488, 1 Ill.Dec. 175, 176, 356 N.E.2d. 175, 176. Also refers to a provisional remedy that is an incident of a replevin action which allows the plaintiff at any time before judgment to take the disputed property from the defendant and hold the property pendent lite. Other names for replevin include Claim and Delivery, Detinue, Revendication, and Sequestration (q.v.)."
 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1299]

15. All funds conveyed to the federal government using tax withholding or a 1040 form are considered "gifts" and come under the provisions of 31 U.S.C. §321(d). All gifts are absolute, irrevocable transfers of property. As such, it doesn't make sense to try to recover them from the government. The more appropriate approach is to recover them in a state court personally from a revenue agent.
16. The IRS Form 1040 tax return is legally considered a "contract of bailment" and is a deed for a "gift" to the federal government. It is also identified as such by Williston's on Contracts, Vol. 9, Section 1040. The first edition of this book was published in 1933, right around the time that income taxes were first introduced, and the section number is strategic. When you fill out a form 1040, you as the bailee are conveying property back to the federal government that always was theirs. The implied contract under which the bailment is made is the employment agreement governing federal "employees".

17. Under 26 U.S.C. §4000 (1939 tax code), revenue agents are considered "entrepreneurs" and not employees.

*Title 26, Internal Revenue Code (1939 Code)
Sec. 4000. Appointment*

*The Commissioner may, whenever in his judgment the necessities of the service so require, employ competent agents, who shall be known and designated as internal revenue agents, and, except as provided for in this title, no general or special agent or inspector of the Treasury Department in connection with internal revenue, by whatever designation he may be known, shall be appointed, commissioned, or employed.

<http://www.famguardian.org/Disks/LawDVD/Federal/RevenueActs/Revenue%20Act%20of%201939.pdf>

IRS agents are nothing but "informers" and "consultants" who have no enforcement powers. The IRS Commissioner can hire anyone he wants as an IRS agent but they can't be considered employees. Therefore, they are independently and personally liable as "consultants" for everything they do, and that liability cannot be transferred to the U.S. government.

18. Involuntary servitude or peonage, which is debt slavery, is prohibited under the Thirteenth Amendment. It is prohibited to be done by:
- 18.1. Private individuals, as revealed by the Supreme Court in the Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905).
  - 18.2. Corporations, as revealed by the Supreme Court in Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U.S. 219 (1911).
19. The Internal Revenue Code doesn't apply at all to most Americans. Therefore, when we are tangling with the IRS, we should never rely on anything from that code because it doesn't apply to us. Only "taxpayers" are supposed to use the IRC and your average American is a "nontaxpayer".
20. Stay away from the declaring you are a "nonresident alien" because the government is good at using it for slandering people using in front of juries using presumption. Combs in N.C. used the "nonresident alien" approach and was slammed with it.
- 20.1. Citizenship has nothing to do with tax liability.
  - 20.2. The important thing is whether you have a labor contract with the federal government. If you do, then you have income "effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States" which is includable in "gross income".
  - 20.3. Frank Kowalik said he studied the "nonresident alien" position for six months trying to understand it, but he couldn't. He says it is too confusing and prejudices juries. Instead, he mistakenly thinks that anyone who works for the federal government falls into the category of "citizens or residents" of the United States. He wasn't aware of the definition of "nonresident alien" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), which identifies a "nonresident alien" as someone who is neither a "citizen" nor a "resident" of the United States. He also mistakenly thinks that "nonresident aliens" are also "U.S. persons" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).
  - 20.4. Don't debate the Non-Resident Non-Person Position with Frank, because he can't be rational about it and won't discuss the basis of his beliefs using the law. He says "That position won't work in court with juries and that's all I need to know about it to stay away from it." Then he turns around and contradicts himself by saying that everyone should write "Foreign estate as described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31)" on the back of every check they endorse and cash. This section identifies him as a nonresident alien, and yet he disagrees with those who use this position. This aspect of his position is clearly irrational.
21. Frank also says to stay away from the 861 Position because it is too confusing to present to juries. It should not be used as the core of a person's defense. He says "nontaxpayers" shouldn't be citing any part of the I.R.C. in their defense, and we agree.
22. As we investigated his claims, we were appalled that there was no online source for historical Statutes at Large provided by the government for dates after 1873. Only the last few five or so years are available online, and for others you have to go to a Federal Depository library or pay for an expensive online legal research service (such as Lexis-Nexis or Westlaw.com) costing $150/month or more in order to examine older Statutes at Large. We believe that this omission is deliberate because Congress doesn't want their fraud and conspiracy exposed by you reading the REAL code and thereby understanding their very limited jurisdiction. Frank implies but does not explicitly say that the term

“includes” is indeed used as a term of limitation and not enlargement. We will cover this issue later in section 5.10.1. See also the following for the evidence:

23. Frank Kowalik uses his own history of litigation to powerfully illustrate how Subtitle A income “taxes” are indeed “voluntary” for the average American and how the federal judiciary is colluding with the IRS in illegally enforcing what should be a voluntary federal donation program.

The big question arises under the Public Officer Kickback Position of how, precisely, the federal government has made us all at least “appear” as federal “employees” or “public officers”. Understanding how this is done is key to understanding how we become parties obligated to participate in the kickback scheme. The secret is as follows, which was related to us by a dedicated researcher who has been studying this specific subject for over 8 years as follows:

1. The IRS Form W-4 is what identifies you as a federal “employee” in the upper left corner. The term “employee” is defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 as only an elected or appointed officer of the United States government. Therefore, signing this form under penalty of perjury and submitting it provides admissible evidence that we are a federal “employee”.
2. Most federal benefit programs administered within the states and outside of federal jurisdiction can be lawfully and constitutionally administered if offered ONLY to federal “employees”. Such benefit programs may NOT be provided to private citizens, because there is no Constitutional authority for doing so. For instance, 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(13) says that all those who are “entitled” to receive federal benefits are considered “federal personnel”.

TITLE 5 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
§552a. Records maintained on individuals

(a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

(13) the term “Federal personnel” means officers and employees of the Government of the United States, members of the uniformed services (including members of the Reserve Components), individuals entitled to receive immediate or deferred retirement benefits under any retirement program [including Social Security] of the Government of the United States (including survivor benefits).

3. Social Security is described as an “entitlement” and fits the criteria above to make all those who participate into federal “employees” or “federal personnel”. The problem is that by law, Congress is only authorized to offer it those who maintain a domicile in the federal zone, which excludes persons domiciled in states of the Union. The Constitution does not authorize them to offer it to people in the states, so it cannot be an entitlement for anyone domiciled in the states. If you file the 1040NR and maintain your status as a nonresident alien and a “national” but not a “citizen”, then you therefore aren’t legally entitled to receive such a benefit by law. You therefore can’t lawfully be described as “federal personnel” nor have your rights adversely affected without the need for implementing regulations.
4. The First Annual Report of the Social Security Board of 1936 describes the activity upon which the Individual Income Tax is based. Page 20 says:

“Title VII of the Social Security Act imposes an income tax on the employees covered by the old-age benefits sections. . . .”

Therefore, those who participate in Social Security also become the proper subject for the federal income tax under Subtitle A.

5. Social Security is a welfare agreement, Steward Machine Co. v. Davis, 301 U.S. 548 (1937). Welfare is a grantor trust agreement. Trust agreements stay valid as long as they are agreed upon by voice (or written act) or action (use). Grantor trusts can be collapsed via revesting title by the grantor, Blackstone's Commentaries, Volume 1, Chapter 18. The Social Security “totalization agreement” makes you “Federal personnel” pursuant to 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(13), retirement benefits eligibility.
6. When you entered into a grantor trust agreement with the United States (Attorney General), 50 USC Appendix 12, paragraph 4, you exchanged those unalienable Rights for privileges just like Esau exchanged his birth right with Jacob for a bowl of pottage. The U.S. Attorney General is the trustee, 28 U.S.C. §§581 and 582, Assistant United States trustees (a) The Attorney General may appoint one or more assistant United States trustees in any region when the public interest so requires. (b) Each assistant United States trustee is subject to removal by the Attorney General. [As last amended Oct. 27, 1986, Pub.L. 99-554, Title I, § 111(d), 100 Stat. 3091.]

1 The weak point of the above techniques is that Congress may not enact a positive law within the states of the Union
2 because they have no legislative authority there.

3 *"It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247
4 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the
6 Carter v. Carter Coal Co., [298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

7 Consequently, the feds need our help to circumvent this limitation imposed by the Constitution. The way they did this was:

- 8 1. To write all the benefit program statutes so that they only apply to federal "employees" and to "U.S. persons", which 9 are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) as citizens or residents born in or residing within exclusive federal jurisdiction in 10 the federal zone.
- 11 2. Then they obfuscated the definition of "United States" on their forms and government publications to deceive us into 12 admitting that we live within exclusive federal jurisdiction in the federal zone and thereby admit that we are statutory 13 "U.S. persons".
- 14 3. To add in the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) that the W-4 is an agreement or contract. This makes you party
15 to the contract and therefore subject to federal jurisdiction no matter where you are. Both you and the federal
16 government have the right to contract and no state or court can interfere with your right to contract or the enforcement
17 of the rights resulting from the contract. This allowed them to exceed the boundaries of the territorial jurisdiction and 18 bring you within the jurisdiction of federal courts under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the contract. It also allowed
19 them to regulate your life without the need to pass implementing regulations, because 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2) says they 20 don't need implementing regulations in the case of either federal contracts or federal employees.

21 This is an obvious fraud in most cases that anyone with a minimal legal education would recognize that the federal
22 government willfully overlooks in order to obtain jurisdiction over you and transform you into a "taxpayer". Once we 23 know how this fraud works, all we have to do is correct our paperwork to remove their jurisdiction, and we document how 24 to do this in the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008.

25 We don't like to speculate and we avoid it like the plague throughout this book. However, on this occasion, we would like
26 to delve into some intriguing theorizing that may be useful to illustrate how to address an argument you are likely to hear
27 some misguided employee of the IRS or DOJ make some day. The argument goes something like this:

28 *"If the government is paying you money, even if they are paying you your own money back that you overpaid in 29 taxes, then don't you effectively become an 'employee' of that government? If you are receiving federal public
30 assistance such as Social Security, Welfare, AFDC, or the like, then can't you also be considered an 31 "employee" of the federal government for the same reason? What they expect you to do as an 'employee' is 32 pay your taxes and subject yourself to laws and jurisdiction that you wouldn't otherwise voluntarily subject
33 yourself to, right? Because of this, don't you think that the 'Public Officer Kickback Position' described in this 34 section may apply to all such Americans who are in the 'privileged' position of receiving federal payments?"*

35 We aren't making the above up, because we actually heard someone ask this question, so it's a realistic question! Here is a
36 summary of our response, which you can use as additional ammunition against the government if they try to argue that you
37 are an "employee" as defined in the I.R.C.:

- 38 1. Your position is frivolous.
- 39 2. The only "employees" that Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A income taxes apply to are public officers of the United 40 States government engaged in a "trade or business" as identified in 26 U.S.C. §6331(a), 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26), 26
41 U.S.C. §3401(c), and 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1.
- 42 3. When the federal government pays you money, in most cases they are paying money back to you that came from you
43 to begin with. Therefore you are the real employer and they are just the "bank", in effect, that is making the payment
44 as your indirect agent and under the authority of law. Remember that the government doesn't "produce" anything. All 45 they do is steal from productive members of society to fund their operations and thereby destroy the lives of the very 46 people they were put into existence to "protect".
- 47 4. Even if you were expecting to draw Social Security checks but had not yet drawn them, you can't be called an 48 "employee" in that instance either because the receipt of the benefits is a privilege and not a right. Not only that, but 49 we also showed earlier in section 4.3.14 that the U.S. Supreme Court in Helvering v. Davis, 301 U.S. 619 (1937) and
50 Flemming v. Nestor, 363 U.S. 603 (1960) declared that Social Security (and by implication all other government social 51 programs!) are NOT insurance and are NOT a contract. If the receipt of benefits is not contractual or a right of the recipient, then why should the receipt of taxes by the government from your wages in order to pay for such benefits be considered either a right by the government or contractual?

5. Even if none of the other arguments above applied, the U.S. government still wouldn't have lawful authority to collect taxes in the states of the Union because:

5.1. The federal government has no police powers inside states of the union.

5.2. The federal government has no territorial jurisdiction under the Internal Revenue Code or the Title 18 criminal code.

5.3. Remember that the Constitution establishes a federal government of limited and enumerated powers and under the Tenth Amendment, all powers not delegated by the Constitution are reserved to the states and the people. The Constitution does not explicitly or even indirectly authorize the federal government to treat you as "public officer" of the U.S. government or the money you make as "income" as constitutionally defined. Therefore, they simply can't do that which they have no delegated authority to do, even if you are willing to volunteer as their accomplice and help them by paying a tax you don't owe.

5.4. The federal government has no authority to exercise its power to contract in order to subvert or escape the limitations imposed by the federal Constitution. Therefore, it cannot form private contracts with people in the states to provide social insurance, because this authority is not conferred by the Constitution and it would be usurping authority and sovereignty from the people and the states and thereby violating the Ninth and Tenth Amendments:

"State officials [for private citizens, for that matter] thus cannot consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress beyond those enumerated in the Constitution."

Finally, if you would like to look at some of the historical milestones that show the development of the "Federal Employee Kickback" scheme, refer to the following sections in Chapter 6:

1. Section 6.5.21: 1862: First Tax on "officers" of the U.S. Government
2. Section 6.9.11: 1915: Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad, 240 U.S. 1
3. Section 6.5.16: 1918: "Gross income" first defined in the Revenue Act of 1918
4. Section 6.9.10: 1924: Miles v. Graham, 268 U.S. 501
5. Section 6.5.15: 1932: Revenue Act of 1932 imposes first excise tax on federal judges and public officers
6. Section 6.9.9: 1938: O'Malley v. Woodrough, 207 U.S. 277
7. Section 6.5.9: 1986: Cover-Up of 1986- Obfuscation of IRC Section 931

5.6.11 You don't have any taxable sources of income

As we pointed out at the beginning of this chapter in sections 5.1.6 through 5.1.8, the federal income tax under Subtitle A is and always has been an indirect excise tax upon privileged activities, according to both the Congress and the U.S. Supreme Court. There has never been a claim otherwise by these two source that we are aware of. The federal district courts appear confused about this issue and have contradicted the Supreme Court (and even themselves) several times, in violation of stare decisis, but their rulings are irrelevant to those not within federal jurisdiction anyway, which includes most Americans. Now if I.R.C., Subtitle A describes an indirect excise upon privileges, then it is a tax on privileged or licensed "activities", and not on "items of income" listed within 26 U.S.C. §§861 or 862. But the government has tried to confuse the issue and divert attention away from this aspect of the income tax by the following means:

1. Most of the sections within the current IRC deliberately don't even mention "taxable activities" because if people understood this, they wouldn't owe anything. Older versions of the code very clearly described the taxable activities but the current version is totally obfuscated to disguise this fact. Our public dis-servants have had over 80 years to perfect their willful fraud, and it has become harder and harder as they did their dirty work to discover the true nature of the federal income tax as an indirect excise tax.
2. The IRS has completely removed mention of the "taxable activities" and "subjects of taxation" from all of its publications.
3. The only remaining mention of excise "taxable activities" we could find is within an obfuscated section of the Treasury regulations found at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1). The IRS and DOJ have recently attacked and persecuted and harassed all those who relied on this list of "taxable activities" in order to determine whether their income is "gross income", in order to divert attention away from the nature of Subtitle A as an indirect excise tax.

As we read through the code to try to discover what is “taxable” and what is includible in “gross income”, we must narrow our search down to include only activities that are privileged and therefore excise taxable. Within I.R.C., Subtitle A, there are only two types of privileged, and therefore excise taxable, activities. These are:

1. “foreign commerce” within states of the Union. which is privileged and licensed under 26 U.S.C. §7001. Jurisdiction over foreign commerce within the states is bestowed by Constitution Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. This taxable activity is identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1).
2. “trade or business”. Defined under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) to mean “the functions of a public office” in a government entity under exclusive federal jurisdiction. The “license” is the oath that all office holders must take before they may serve. This is also called “effectively connected income” or simply “ECI”. See the next section for details on this.

It should also be pointed out here that jurisdiction of the federal government within the states, under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the Constitution is ONLY granted in the case of excise taxes relating to foreign commerce mentioned under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. The federal government has no jurisdiction over any other subject matter of taxation derived from the Constitution, because the Constitution only grants the federal government jurisdiction over affairs EXTERNAL to the states of the Union, including imports and interstate commerce. See section 5.2.3 earlier. If it ain't in the Constitution, then the feds can't do it in the states. Period. The Ninth and Tenth Amendments make that clear. All excise taxes are voluntary, because if you don't want to pay the tax, then you don't “volunteer” to engage in the privileged or licensed commercial activity that is the subject of the tax. If the IRS attempts to collect a tax from you, then the questions you must resolve with them are:

1. What activity is subject to tax? Show them the table in section 5.1.6 and ask them which type of tax they are trying to collect and ask them what is the “subject of” the tax. Neither 26 U.S.C. §61 nor 26 U.S.C. §861 describe or enumerate only “taxable activities” that are proper constitutional “subjects of tax” as shown in the table. Therefore, one must go to 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) to see the activities. If they don't want to use that section as the list of activities subject to tax, then ask them where else you can find the taxable activities, because I.R.C. sections 61 and 861 don't list of privileged taxable activities under the Constitution.
2. What admissible evidence do you have that I am engaged in such an activity? Reports of a payment documented on a form 1099 does not reveal any connection to a “taxable activity”. On what basis are you “presuming” that I am engaged in a “taxable activity”? Being a “citizen” isn't a privileged activity, so what privilege is being exercised so that I may know how to avoid this tax? Without the ability to avoid the tax and the activity that is taxed, you are instituting slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment and enforcing a Direct tax within states of the Union that is a violation of Constitution Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 and Article 1, Section 9. Clause 4.
3. What license or privilege did I apply for and receive from the government in order to justify being subject to this alleged “tax”?

The answer to the above questions in the case of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, which the IRS would give you if they could be honest without hurting the municipal donation program for the District of Columbia that they administer, is the following:

1. It is a “privilege” to live within exclusive/plenary federal jurisdiction. EVERYTHING inside the federal zone is a privilege because the area is not covered by the Bill of Rights and you have absolutely NO rights. The only sovereign inside the federal zone is Congress and the Executive branch, not the people who live there. There is no Constitution within the federal zone between its inhabitants and the national government, because the people don't have sovereignty. It is a dictatorship and oligarchy, not a Republic. You are entitled to nothing and you are living on the king's feudal plantation. Pay up and worship your new king, slave, or we'll plunder ALL your property!
2. All people who file an IRS Form W-4 are “assumed” to live within the District of Columbia and be federal “employees” who are public officers. It says that in the upper left corner of the W-4 and the definition of “employee” in 26 C.F.R. §1.3401(c)-1 confirms who these “employees” are. You signed this form under penalty of perjury so we have court-admissible evidence that you are a privileged public official and a federal “employee”. If you either filed an IRS Form 1040 or claimed itemized deductions on your return, then you also effectively admitted under penalty of perjury that your income is connected with a privileged public office in the U.S. government, which is what a “trade or business” is. Under these circumstances:
  - 2.1. You are in receipt of the “privilege” of deductions on your return and a lower, graduated rate of tax.
  - 2.2. We don't need implementing regulations to enforce against you, because you consented to be treated as a federal “employee” and 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) says no implementing regulations are required.

2.3. The federal government has jurisdiction over you no matter where you are, because you consented to be treated as one of its "employees". Governments have always had full jurisdiction over their own employees, even outside of their borders and territory.

3. If you have a federal ID number such as an SSN or TIN, then you are registered as being in receipt of a federal excise taxable privilege. That privilege is participation in the welfare program called Social Security. It is a privilege to not have to take responsibility for your own financial security when you get older, and you will pay DEARLY for that privilege. We are going to rape and pillage 50% of your income for that privilege. Even though the Social Security tax is only 7.5%, we do the collection and enforcement for the Social Security program and we are going to abuse the information we have about you as a way to plunder even more "loot" from your estate using our dastardly automated paper terrorism program called IDRS. Since the acceptance of an SSN creates a presumption that you are a statutory "U.S. person" and you never rebutted that presumption, then we're going to treat you like a federal resident (alien) whose living on the federal plantation who has no rights. Bend over and get used to being screwed, and don't expect us to give you any help with leaving the federal plantation or taking off those chains. We are going to make you and your property captive and make you a slave of your own apathy and ignorance.

"The hand of the diligent will rule, but the lazy man will be put to forced labor [slavery!]." [Prov. 12:24, Bible, NKJV]

4. Since you put an SSN on a tax return, you consented to use that number as a "substitute" TIN. There is no law requiring "nonresident aliens" who do not live or work in the District of Columbia and who are not engaged in a "trade or business"/public office to use an SSN in place of a TIN. 26 U.S.C. §6109(d) says that the SSN "shall" be used, but this statute doesn't apply to anything but public officers of the United States government working in the District of Columbia. When you as a "nonresident alien" and "nontaxpayer" not subject to federal jurisdiction provided that number, you consented to do that which no law requires you to do. You colluded with use to exceed the bounds of the Constitution, and so we are partners in crime. Therefore, you consented to be treated as an alien, since the IRS can only issue TINs to aliens under 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(d)(3), no matter what your real status is. You are on the same footing as people from other countries domiciled in the federal zone as far as tax purposes go. Such a person is referred to as a "resident" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). Since you didn't attach a form 2555 to the 1040 form that you mistakenly filed, then you agreed to be treated as an alien. "U.S. citizens" living abroad are also aliens in the context of treaties with foreign countries. Either way then, whether you file a 1040 as an alien or a 1040 plus a 2555 as a statutory "U.S. citizen" abroad, you are still treated by us as an "alien" with NO RIGHTS.

Now let's examine the IRS' own publications to see if we can confirm the above conclusions. IRS Publication 519 entitled Tax Guide for Aliens describes the tax status of "aliens" and "nonresident aliens". The year 2000 booklet available at:

has a very useful table describing taxable sources on page 11 entitled "Summary of Source Rules for Income of Nonresident Aliens". This table applies not only to "aliens" and "nonresident aliens", but also to "U.S. citizens" as well. The reason is because "U.S. citizens" living "abroad" in a foreign country come under the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code by virtue of the fact that they are treated as "aliens" under the provisions of an income tax treaty with a foreign country. Ordinarily, we don't trust any IRS publications because the IRS says in Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8 that you can't rely on them. However, we believe based on our own thorough research of the I.R.C. that the table is accurate. We therefore repeat it below for your benefit and to aid the discussion. Please be astutely aware of the definitions of important "words of art" used in the table below as you read such as the following:

- "United States" is defined earlier in section 5.2.12 to mean only the District of Columbia under the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.
- "foreign" is defined earlier in section 5.2.14 to mean outside the "United States" (federal zone). It is not defined in the I.R.C. because the government doesn't want you to know what it means.
- "wages" are defined earlier in section 5.6.7 as earnings from labor of a federal "employee" who has consented or volunteered to become a "taxpayer" under the provisions of 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3, by submitting a form W-4 authorizing withholding. Without submitting this form or submitting it under duress makes him a "nontaxpayer" who does not earn "wages". Since the term "employee" is defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 as a person holding public office, then "wages" are connected to the taxable activity called a "trade or business".

4. “personal services” is defined earlier in section 3.12.1.22 as work in connection with “the functions of a public office” in the United States government, which is called a “trade or business” throughout the I.R.C. This is confirmed by examining 26 C.F.R. §1.162-7(a), 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C)(i), and 26 C.F.R. §1.469-9(b)(4). See also: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/PersonalServices.htm>.

We have italicized and underlined the above “words of art” in the table below to help you in reading the table. We have also added a new column to the IRS’ table identifying exactly the excise “taxable activity” that must occur for the item of income to be taxable.

Table 5-55: Summary of Source Rules for Income of Nonresident Aliens

Item of income	Factor determining source	Taxable Activity
Salaries, wages , and other compensation	Where services performed	“Trade or business”
Business income:
Personal services	Where services performed	“Trade or business”

Sale of inventory-produced	Allocation	“Foreign commerce”
Interest	Residence of payer	“Trade or business”
Dividends	Whether a U.S. or foreign corporation?	“Trade or business”
Rents	Location of property	“Trade or business”
Royalties
Natural resources	Location of property	“Trade or business”
Patents, copyrights, etc	Where property is used	“Trade or business”
Sale of real property	Location of property	“Trade or business”
Sale of personal property	Seller’s tax home (but see Personal Property later, for exceptions)	“Trade or business”
Pensions	Where services were performed that earned the pension	“Trade or business”
Sale of natural resources	Allocation based on fair market value of product at export terminal. For more information, see section 1.863-1(b) of the regulations.	“Trade or business”

Exceptions include:

- Dividends paid by a U.S. corporation are foreign source if the corporation elects the Puerto Rico economic activity credit or possessions tax credit.
- Part of a dividend paid by a foreign corporation is U.S. source if at least 25% of the corporations gross income is effected connected with a U.S. trade or business for the 3 tax years before the year in which the dividends are declared.

Next, we will show you a table that summarizes the above rules and discussion geographically, to show taxable source rules and requirements based on the location where your source of income came from and your citizenship status. Some of the information appearing here comes from section 5.11, where we talk about income taxes within territories and possessions of the United States. We have broken the table down into three groups of rows relating to a particular citizenship status. The four columns on the right relate to the “situs” for imposing the tax, which is the combination of the excise taxable activity occurring within a specific region enumerated in the code. The top three rows of the table describe certain characteristics of each of the five “situs” identified across the top. This table is intended to help you compute your taxable income by adding up all the income from specific excise taxable activities in each of the five distinct types of jurisdictions within our society.

NOTE(S):

1. Territories and possessions typically have their own local income taxes that replace, not supplement, the federal income tax.
2. This table assumes that the "taxpayer" is not involved in a "trade or business" anywhere except in the District of Columbia.
3. The IRS is the tax collection agency exclusively for the District of Columbia. Treasury Order 150-02 reveals that the only remaining Internal Revenue District is in the District of Columbia.
4. Taxes on "foreign commerce" are taxes on imports but not exports coming under Constitution Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. The U.S. Constitution prohibits taxes on exports from states of the Union under Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5. These types of taxes are also called "excises, duties, and imposts". Most of these taxes are listed under Subtitle D of the Internal Revenue Code and are licensed under 26 U.S.C. §7001. An example is the tax on petroleum imported into the 50 states imposed under 26 U.S.C. §4611. Note that the term "United States", in the context of imported petroleum taxes is specifically defined in 26 U.S.C. §4612(a)(4)(A) as "The term 'United States' means the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, any possession of the United States, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. "

The most notable conclusion one can draw from the above table is that if you don't live in the District of Columbia and do not elect to connect your earnings to a "trade or business" within the "United States" (D.C.), then you can't earn "gross income". Without "gross income", you do not meet the minimum requirement for filing a return found in 26 U.S.C. §6012. Therefore, you are in effect:

1. A "nontaxpayer" and not a "taxpayer". This means every reference in the I.R.C. or the Internal Revenue Manual which imposes an obligation upon a "taxpayer" doesn't apply to you.
2. Not subject to any of the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code.
3. Are not subject to withholding on any payments you receive.
4. If any money was withheld from your pay by either a business or a financial institution, then you are due for a refund of all withholding.
5. Cannot file an IRS Form 1040, because EVERYTHING that goes on that form is treated as "effectively connected with a trade or business". That form is for "aliens", and not "nonresident aliens", as we showed in section 5.5.2 earlier.
6. Cannot lawfully have any CTR's, or Currency Transaction Reports, prepared against you by any financial institution. See 31 C.F.R. §103.30(d)(2), which excludes these reports for persons not engaged in a "trade or business".
7. Cannot have form 8300 filed against you by anyone. See IRS Publication 334: Tax Guide for Small Businesses (2002), p. 12.
8. Cannot have form 1099-MISC filed against you. See IRS Publication 583: Starting a Business and Keeping Records, p. 8.
9. "foreign" with respect to the Internal Revenue Code because you live outside the "United States" and do not have any earnings from within the "United States" that are connected with a "trade or business".

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > §7701
§7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the [federal] United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

10. Not liable for most state income taxes, because all of them usually have as a prerequisite that you must have reportable income on a federal return before you can be subject to state income tax.
11. An "individual" who does not earn "gross income" because earned outside the District of Columbia, which is called "sources without the United States" in the I.R.C.:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART 1 > § 864
§864. Definitions and special rules

(c) Effectively connected income, etc.

(4) Income from sources without United States

(A) Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), no income, gain, or loss from sources without the United States shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

IRS Publication 519 (2000) edition also has an enlightening section on p. 14 entitled "Services Performed for Foreign Employer" which confirms the above conclusions. Here is what it says. Once again, we have boldfaced and underlined the "words of art" to draw special attention to them:

Services Performed for Foreign Employer

If you were paid by a foreign employer, your U.S. source income may be exempt from U.S. tax, but only if you meet one of the situations discussed next.

1 Employees of foreign persons, organizations, or offices. If three conditions exist, income for personal services
 2 performed in the United States as a nonresident alien is not considered to be from U.S. sources and is tax
 3 exempt. If you do not meet all three conditions, your income from personal services performed in the United
 4 States is U.S. source income and is taxed according to the rules in chapter 4.

5 The three conditions are:

6 1) You perform personal services as an employee of or under a contract with a nonresident alien individual,
 7 foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in a trade or business in the United States; or you
 8 work for an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country or possession of the United States by a
 9 U.S. corporation, a U.S. partnership, or a U.S. citizen or resident.

10 2) You perform these services while you are a nonresident alien temporarily present in the United States for a 11 period or periods of not more than a total of 90 days during the tax year, and

12 3) Your pay for these services is not more than $3,000.

13 If your pay for these services is more than $3,000, the entire amount is income from a trade or business within 14 the United States. To find if your pay is more than $3,000, do not include any amounts you get from your 15 employer for advances or reimbursements of business travel expenses, if you were required to and did account
 16 to your employer for those expenses. If the advances or reimbursements are more than your expenses, include
 17 the excess in your pay for these services.

18 A day means a calendar day during any part of which you are physically present in the United States.

 20 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSPub519.pdf>]

21 Now, we will take the above deceptive excerpt from Publication 519 and translate it from legalese into common English
 22 using the I.R.C. definitions into something that really reveals the whole truth to make its meaning crystal clear and
 23 consistent with what we have learned throughout the rest of this chapter. We have taken the “words of art” and put their 24 definitions in brackets after the words. As you read the below, replace the item in brackets for the underlined word it
 25 precedes. This will blow your mind, folks!:

26 Services Performed for Foreign [outside the District of Columbia] Employer

27 If you were paid by a foreign employer [an employer outside the District of Columbia], your U.S. [District of 28 Columbia] source income may be exempt from U.S. [District of Columbia] tax, but only if you meet one of the 29 situations discussed next.

30 Employees of foreign persons [persons born outside the federal zone], organizations, or offices [in foreign
 31 countries or states of the Union]. If three conditions exist, income [federal payments] for personal services
 32 [labor in connection with a public office] performed in the United States [District of Columbia] as a
 33 nonresident alien is not considered to be from U.S. [District of Columbia] sources and is tax[donation] exempt.
 34 If you do not meet all three conditions, your income from personal services performed in the United States
 35 [District of Columbia] is U.S. [District of Columbia] source income [federal payments] and is taxed [subject to 36 donation] according to the rules in chapter 4.

37 The three conditions are:

38 1) You perform personal services as an employee of or under a contract with a nonresident alien individual,
 39 foreign [outside the District of Columbia] partnership, or foreign [outside the District of Columbia]
 40 corporation, not engaged in a trade or business [public office] in the United States [District of Columbia]; or 41 you work for an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country [including a state of the Union] or
 42 possession of the United States by a U.S. [District of Columbia registered] corporation [and excluding state
 43 registered corporations], a U.S. [District of Columbia] partnership, or a U.S. citizen [person born in the 44 District of Columbia or a territory] or resident [alien],

45 2) You perform these services while you are a nonresident alien temporarily present in the United States
 46 [District of Columbia] for a period or periods of not more than a total of 90 days during the tax [donation]
 47 year, and

48 3) Your pay for these services is not more than $3,000.

49 If your pay for these services is more than $3,000, the entire amount is income from a trade or business [public
 50 office] within the United States [District of Columbia]. To find if your pay is more than $3,000, do not include

1 any amounts you get from your employer for advances or reimbursements of business travel expenses, if you
2 were required to and did account to your employer for those expenses. If the advances or reimbursements are 3 more than your expenses, include the excess in your pay for these services.

4 A day means a calendar day during any part of which you are physically present in the United States [District
5 of Columbia].

6 Mind blowing, how deceptive the IRS publications are, isn't it? No wonder the IRS says you can't depend on them in
7 Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8!

8 This approach is pretty simple, huh? The simplicity of this approach, by the way, far exceeds that of the 861 Position
9 advocates described later in section 5.6.21, which is why we don't recommend using the 861 Position during litigation.
10 Those who argue the 861 Position live within and cite the I.R.C., which is irrelevant to the average American because they
11 are "nontaxpayers" not subject to the I.R.C. to begin with. Why? Because most Americans are "nationals" and not 12 "citizens" under federal law and "non-resident non-persons" with no income "effectively connected with a trade or business
13 in the United States" and all of whose sources of income are from outside the federal "United States":

14 Income Subject to Tax

15 Income from sources outside the United States that is not effectively connected with a trade or business in
16 the United States is not taxable if you receive it while you are a nonresident alien. The income is not taxable
17 even if you earned it while you were a resident alien or if you became a resident alien or a U.S. citizen after 18 receiving it and before the end of the year.
19 [IRS Publication 519 (2000), p. 26]

20 All that citing the I.R.C. does is help the government to demonstrate that you are subject to it and a party to it, and we 21 sincerely believe this is a VERY BIG MISTAKE! We showed earlier in sections 5.4.1 through 5.4.6.4 that the I.R.C. is 22 effectively a private contract and not a positive law, so citing it just proves you are party to the contract and consent to be
23 bound by it. It is precisely this kind of BIG oversight by proponents of the 861 Position such as Larken Rose that will
24 eventually be their downfall. This also explains why, for instance, the ONLY proponents of tax honesty who are still out
25 there to offer you materials and solutions are those who know what a "nontaxpayer" is and who only help "nontaxpayers".
26 This is no accident, folks. All the other tax honesty advocates who don't understand the "nontaxpayer" and "non-resident 27 non-person" issue have had injunctions placed against them and were shut down long ago as easy targets by the federal 28 mafia. If you want your freedom back, you're going to have to get educated and stick with simple, solid, arguments that are 29 supportable with lots of evidence that juries can understand and believe.

30 Instead of citing the code and using the complicated 861 Position, it's much better to stick to the simple issues of
31 jurisdiction and cite only the Supreme Court and the code as your authority and the whole house of cards will fall down
32 simply and easily. Both you and a jury can easily understand this approach without ever looking at the Treasury
33 regulations or talking about "positive law" or other complicated subjects. It's simple and easy to defend and it depends on 34 only a handful of very simple definitions that are not subject to misinterpretation by an informed jury. The only caveat with 35 using this approach is that the IRS will try to use the word "includes" as a way to stretch the meaning of the code to fit their 36 position, and we show how to fight this unscrupulous and dishonest tactic and deception later in chapter 8.

37 5.6.12 The "trade or business" scam

38 "The taxpayer-- that's someone who works for the federal government but doesn't have to take the civil service 39 examination."
40 [President Ronald W. Reagan]

41 "In the matter of taxation, every privilege is an injustice."
42 [Voltaire]

43 "The more you want [privileges], the more the world can hurt you."
44 [Confucius]

45 As we explained earlier in section 5.3.2 and the preceding section, one must be engaged in a "trade or business", which is 46 defined as "the functions of a public office", within the statutory but not constitutional "United States**", which is defined
47 as federal territory, in order to earn "gross income". This is because:

1. The income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax, as the Supreme Court pointed out repeatedly. See section 5.1.6 earlier for details. The "subject of" all indirect excise taxes are voluntary "taxable activities" that are privileged and in many cases licensed. The tax may only be instituted by the agency or government entity that issues the license or bestows the privilege to the person who volunteers to be the "licensee", and the tax is only enforceable within the legislative jurisdiction of the taxing entity. The "privileged activity" in this case of the federal income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is that of holding "public office" in the U.S. Government. A "public office" is therefore the only excise taxable activity that a biological person can involve themselves in that will make them the subject of the municipal donation program for the District of Columbia called the Internal Revenue Code.
2. According to 4 U.S.C. §72, all "public offices" may be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, except as "expressly provided by law". That is why the "United States" is defined in I.R.C., Subtitle A as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). There is also no provision of law which authorizes "public offices" outside the District of Columbia other than 48 U.S.C. §1612, and therefore, the I.R.C., Subtitle A Income tax upon "public offices" can apply nowhere outside the District of Columbia other than the Virgin Islands. This is also consistent with the definition of "U.S. sources" found in 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\), which identifies all earnings originating from the "United States" as "effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business".
3. "Income" has the meaning it was given in the Constitution, which is "gain and profit" in connection with an excise taxable activity. Congress is forbidden to define the word "income" because the Constitution defines it. This was pointed out by several rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court, including Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920); So. Pacific v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330 (1918); Merchant's Loan & Trust Co. v. Smietanka, 255 U.S. 509 (1921). Where there is no "taxable activity", there can be no "taxable income". We covered this earlier in section 5.6.5 if you want more detail.
4. Because all "taxpayers" under I.R.C., Subtitle A are "public officers" who work for a federal corporation called the "United States" (see 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)), then they are acting as an "officer or employee of a federal corporation" and they:
  - 4.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671(b). This is true even though the Constitution prohibits "Bills of Attainder" in Article 1, Section 10, because the penalty isn't on the natural person, but upon the "office" or "agency" he volunteered to maintain in the process of declaring that he has "taxable income".
  - 4.2. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) and 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2)
  - 4.3. Are the proper subject for the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, which identify officers of corporations as the only "persons" within 26 U.S.C. §7343.
5. Earnings not connected with a "trade or business" under 26 U.S.C. §871(b) and 26 U.S.C. §864 and not originating from the statutory "United States**" (federal territory), which is what "United States" is defined as:
  - 5.1. Are identified as part of a "foreign estate" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31). A foreign estate is outside the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code and not includible in gross income either, based on the definition of "foreign estate", BECAUSE it is not connected with a "trade or business".
  - 5.2. Are not includable as "gross income" if paid by a nonresident alien. See 26 U.S.C. §864(b)(1)(A). Remember: We showed earlier in sections 5.2.14 and 5.6.13 that states of the union are "foreign countries" with respect to the Internal Revenue Code and all of their inhabitants are "non-resident non-persons". The subset of these people who also occupy a public office in the national government are "nonresident aliens" rather than "non-resident non-persons".

This means one must be engaged in a "public office" in the District of Columbia in order to earn "gross income" as a human being. Statutory and not ordinary "gross income" that meets this criteria is described in the code simply as "income effectively connected with a trade or business from sources within the United States". This is confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\), which says that an estate that is in no way connected with a "trade or business" and whose sources of income are outside the statutory but not constitutional "United States**" (federal territory) may not have its earnings identified as statutory "gross income" and is a "foreign estate", which means it is not subject in any way to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code:

Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a)(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States [under 26 U.S.C. §871(a)] which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States [under 26 U.S.C. §871(b) and 26 U.S.C. §864], is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

These critical facts are very carefully concealed by the IRS in their publications to hide the true nature of the income tax and instead to make it appear as an "unapportioned direct tax" upon persons domiciled in states of the Union. If the American people understood on a large scale:

1. That the I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax was an "excise tax" upon privileged "taxable activities" only.
2. Exactly what activity was being taxed.
3. That the IRS has no jurisdiction within states of the Union against anyone who does not sign a private agreement with the government by submitting an IRS Form W-4 or an IRS Form 1040 tax return.

. . . then they would exit the tax system en masse by simply avoiding the activity. All excise taxes are "avoidable" by avoiding the taxed activity, and therefore they are completely "voluntary". Therefore, the IRS and our public dis-servants have a vested interest in hiding and concealing the true nature of the income tax as an "excise tax" in order to maintain revenues from the income tax. They sold the truth and your liberty to Satan for 20 pieces of silver. Some things never change, do they?

"For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, for which some have strayed from the faith in their greediness, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."
[1 Tim. 6:10, Bible, NKJV]

In this section, we will demonstrate all the evidence we can find that supports these conclusions, and also show you how the IRS, with the implicit approval and collusion of Congress and the Treasury Dept, has tried to do the following within their deceptive publications:

1. Taken great pains to hide and obfuscate the fact that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax upon licensed, privileged activities. They have done this by burying the sordid truth deep in regulations that they hope people will never read and which have been carefully obfuscated over the years to make them virtually unintelligible for the average American.
2. Confuse the meaning of the term "trade or business" in their publications so that everyone thinks they meet this criteria.
3. Create a false and unsupportable presumption that all people and all earnings within states of the Union are connected with a "trade or business in the United States".
4. Create the illusion and deception that IRC Subtitle A describes a direct, unapportioned tax upon natural persons that cannot be avoided or shifted. Once IRS can establish the false presumption Subtitle A as a direct unapportioned tax, then they:
  - 4.1. Can label those who choose not to volunteer as "frivolous" or worst yet, penalize them for filing an accurate return reflecting no "gross income" because not connected to a "trade or business".
  - 4.2. Have a way to exploit the false presumption and ignorance of juries to claim that those who avoid paying or filing are lawbreakers, even though they broke no laws and exercised their constitutionally protected choice not to volunteer to connect their earnings to a "trade or business".
  - 4.3. Have an excuse to ignore those who complain that private employers are forcing them to sign and submit IRS Form W-4 withholding agreements under duress, or be denied employment. Instead, they have a presumptuous and mistaken excuse to say that it isn't voluntary and that everyone must submit the form, when in fact, the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 clearly show otherwise.

If you read the IRS' Civil and Criminal Actions website at the address below, you will see that ALL of their propaganda in fact focuses on the above goals, as we predicted:

<http://www.irs.gov/compliance/enforcement/article/0,,id=119332,00.html>

The IRS warned us it was going to try to deceive us by stating in its own Internal Revenue Manual that you can't rely upon any of its own publications. The federal courts warned us that the IRS was going to do this by telling us that we can't rely upon the phone or oral advice of anyone in the IRS, even if they signed their recommendation under penalty of perjury! Why didn't we listen to any of these warnings? See the surprising truth for yourself:

We must, however, remember what the Supreme Court said about false presumptions:

"The power to create [false] presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions,"

5.6.12.1 Introduction

ne must be engaged in a "trade or business", which is defined as "the functions of a public office", within the statutory but not constitutional "United States**", which is defined as federal territory, in order to earn "gross income". The only exception to this is nonresident aliens with income from the statutory "United States**" (federal territory) under 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\). This is because:

1. The income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax, as the Supreme Court pointed out repeatedly. See section 5.1.6 for details. The "subject of" all indirect excise taxes are voluntary "taxable activities" that are privileged and in many cases licensed. The tax may only be instituted by the agency or government entity that issues the license or bestows the privilege to the person who volunteers to be the "licensee", and the tax is only enforceable within the legislative jurisdiction of the taxing entity. The "privileged activity" in this case of the federal income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is that of holding "public office" in the U.S. Government. A "public office" is therefore the only excise taxable activity that a biological person can involve themselves in that will make them the subject of the municipal donation program for the District of Columbia called the Internal Revenue Code.
2. According to 4 U.S.C. §72, all "public offices" may be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, except as "expressly provided by law". That is why the "United States" is defined in I.R.C., Subtitle A as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). There is also no provision of law which authorizes "public offices" outside the District of Columbia other than 48 U.S.C. §1612, and therefore, the I.R.C., Subtitle A Income tax upon "public offices" can apply nowhere outside the District of Columbia other than the Virgin Islands. This is also consistent with the definition of "U.S. sources" found in 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\), which identifies all earnings originating from the "United States" as "effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business".
3. "Income" has the meaning it was given in the Constitution, which is "gain and profit" in connection with an excise taxable activity. Congress is forbidden to define the word "income" because the Constitution defines it. This was pointed out by several rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court, including Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920); So. Pacific v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330 (1918); Merchant's Loan & Trust Co. v. Smietanka, 255 U.S. 509 (1921). Where there is no "taxable activity", there can be no "taxable income". This is covered in section 5.6.5 if you want more detail.
4. Because all "taxpayers" under I.R.C., Subtitle A are "public officers" who work for a federal corporation called the "United States" (see 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\)), then they are acting as an "officer or employee of a federal corporation" and they:
  - 4.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671(b). This is true even though the Constitution prohibits "Bills of Attainder" in Article 1, Section 10, because the penalty isn't on the natural person, but upon the "office" or "agency" he volunteered to maintain in the process of declaring that he has "taxable income".
  - 4.2. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\) and 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(2\)
  - 4.3. Are the proper subject for the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, which identify officers of corporations as the only "persons" within 26 U.S.C. §7343.
5. Earnings not connected with a "trade or business":
  - 5.1. Are identified as part of a "foreign estate" in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\). A foreign estate is outside the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code and not includible in gross income either, based on the definition of "foreign estate", BECAUSE it is not connected with a "trade or business".
  - 5.2. Are not includable as "gross income" if paid by a nonresident alien. See 26 U.S.C. §864\(b\)\(1\)\(A\). Remember: Sections 5.2.12.1.1 and 5.6.13 that states of the union are "foreign countries" with respect to the Internal Revenue Code and all of their inhabitants are "non-resident non-persons". The subset of state inhabitants who are also public officers are also "nonresident alien individuals".

This means one must be engaged in a “public office” in the District of Columbia in order to earn “gross income” as a human being. Statutory and not ordinary “gross income” that meets this criteria is described in the code simply as “income effectively connected with a trade or business from sources within the United States”. This is confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\), which says that an estate that is in no way connected with a “trade or business” and whose sources of income are outside the statutory but not constitutional “United States**” (federal territory) may not have its earnings identified as statutory “gross income” and is a “foreign estate”, which means it is not subject in any way to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code:

(A) Foreign estate

The term “foreign estate” means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

Why did Congress HAVE to place the tax upon an activity called a “public office” in the United States government? Because:

1. The government can only pass civil laws to regulate its own public officers, territory, franchises, and property. The ability to regulate the PRIVATE conduct of the public at large is “repugnant to the constitution”, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court. See the following for proof:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. The Thirteenth Amendment outlaws involuntary servitude EVERYWHERE, including on federal territory. It does not and cannot outlaw VOLUNTARY servitude. The only way they can tax your labor without instituting slavery is for you to volunteer for public office franchise in the government. See the following for proof:

How the Government Defrauds You Out of Legitimate Deductions for the Market Value of Your Labor, Form #05.026
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. Congress has no legislative jurisdiction within states of the Union, which are “foreign states” that are sovereign, but they have jurisdiction over anyone that contracts with them wherever they are. Hence, Congress instituted a franchise that functions as a contract that they can enforce anywhere the contractors are found. See the following for proof:

Debitum et contractus non sunt nullius loci.
Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

Locus contractus regit actum.
The place of the contract [franchise agreement, in this case] governs the act.

If you read the IRS' Civil and Criminal Actions website at the address below, you will see that ALL of their propaganda in fact focuses on the above goals, as we predicted:

<http://www.irs.gov/compliance/enforcement/article/0,,id=119332,00.html>

We must, however, remember what the Supreme Court said about false presumptions:

"The power to create [false] presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions,"
[New York Times v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964)]

5.6.12.2 Proof that IRC Subtitle A is an Excise tax on activities in connection with a "trade or business"

We'll start off with a definition of "trade or business":

26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\)

"The term 'trade or business' includes [is limited to] the performance of the functions of a public office."

We know that the IRS likes to point to the word "includes" in the above definition and state that it is an "expansive" definition that does not exclude the common meaning of the term. We must remember, however, that there is an important principle of statutory construction which states that anything not mentioned in a law, statute, code, or regulation is "excluded by implication", which means that all things not connected to a "public office" are excluded from the definition of "trade or business" by implication:

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, 'a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."
[Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

Therefore, the definition of the term "trade or business", says what it means and means what it says. The Supreme Court has said many times that words used in a law or statute are to be given their ordinary and plain meaning and are to be restricted to the clear language found in the code itself. If you would like an exhaustive analysis of the meaning of the word "includes" within the Internal Revenue Code, please refer to our free pamphlet available on the internet at:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/FalseRhetoric/Includess.pdf>

1 The only time in the I.R.C. where the term "trade or business" can mean anything other than what it is defined above to
 2 mean is in places where there a regional definition that overrides the general or default definition found in 26 U.S.C.
 3 §7701(a)(26) above. Below is the only example of that within the I.R.C., which is intended to be used only in the context of 4 "self employment":

5 26 U.S.C. §1402 Definitions

6 (c) Trade or business

7 The term "trade or business", when used with reference to self-employment income or net earnings from self-
 8 employment, shall have the same meaning as when used in section 162 (relating to trade or business expenses),
 9 except that such term shall not include -

10 (1) the performance of the functions of a public office, other than the functions of a public office of a State
 11 or a political subdivision thereof with respect to fees received in any period in which the functions are 12 performed in a position compensated solely on a fee basis and in which such functions are not covered under 13 an agreement entered into by such State and the Commissioner of Social Security pursuant to section 218 of 14 the Social Security Act;

15 (2) the performance of service by an individual as an employee, other than -

16 (A) service described in section 3121(b)(14)(B) performed by an individual who has attained the age of 17 18,

18 (B) service described in section 3121(b)(16),

19 (C) service described in section 3121(b)(11), (12), or (15) performed in the United States (as defined in 20 section 3121(e)(2)) by a citizen of the United States, except service which constitutes "employment" under 21 section 3121(y),

22 (D) service described in paragraph (4) of this subsection,

23 (E) service performed by an individual as an employee of a State or a political subdivision thereof in a 24 position compensated solely on a fee basis with respect to fees received in any period in which such 25 service is not covered under an agreement entered into by such State and the Commissioner of Social 26 Security pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act,

27 (F) service described in section 3121(b) (20), and

28 (G) service described in section 3121(b)(8)(B);

29 (3) the performance of service by an individual as an employee or employee representative as defined in section

31 (4) the performance of service by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the 32 exercise of his ministry or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order;

33 (5) the performance of service by an individual in the exercise of his profession as a Christian Science
 34 practitioner; or

35 (6) the performance of service by an individual during the period for which an exemption under subsection (g)
 36 is effective with respect to him. The provisions of paragraph (4) or (5) shall not apply to service (other than 37 service performed by a member of a religious order who has taken a vow of poverty as a member of such order)
 38 performed by an individual unless an exemption under subsection (e) is effective with respect to him.

39 So we look up the definition in 26 U.S.C. §162 and here is what it says:

40 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter B
 41 Part VI-Itemized deductions for Individuals and Corporations
 42 Sec. 162. - Trade or business expenses

43 (a) In general

1 There shall be allowed as a deduction all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the
2 taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including –

3 (1) a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered;

4 So in other words, in the context of “self employment” ONLY, the term “trade or business” excludes public offices in the
5 District of Columbia and only includes those of federal territories and possessions, which are called “States” within the
6 I.R.C. This is because the default definition in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) includes ALL public offices everywhere within
7 federal jurisdiction, whereas those public offices in the District of Columbia are specifically not mentioned by the above
8 definition. When the authors of U.S. Code in the Office of the Law Revision Counsel of the U.S. House of Representatives
9 wants to confuse and mislead the American people, they will write the code in such a way as to use a double-negative,
10 whereby they define what the new definition of “trade or business” excludes, and then don't include public offices in the 11 District of Columbia but include all other types of political offices under federal jurisdiction. Therefore, for self 12 employment context ONLY, “trade or business” has a different meaning than the default definition in 26 U.S.C.
13 §7701(a)(26) and has been overridden to exclude public offices in the District of Columbia but include all other types of 14 public offices otherwise within federal jurisdiction.

15 Government franchises and the excise taxes that implement them such as the “trade or business” franchise are commonly 16 called by any of the following names to disguise the nature of the transaction:

- 17 1. “public right”.
- 18 2. “publici juris”.
- 19 3. “privilege”.
- 20 4. “excise taxable privilege”.
- 21 5. “public office”.
- 22 6. “Congressionally created right”.

23 The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed that the income tax was an excise tax indirectly when they held the following:

24 “The distinction between public rights and private rights has not been definitively explained in our
25 precedents.<sup>83</sup> Nor is it necessary to do so in the present cases, for it suffices to observe that a matter of public
26 rights must at a minimum arise “between the government and others.” Ex parte Bakelite Corp., supra, at 451,
27 49 S.Ct., at 413.<sup>84</sup> In contrast, “the liability of one individual to another under the law as defined,” Crowell v.
28 Benson, supra, at 51, 52 S.Ct., at 292, is a matter of private rights. Our precedents clearly establish that only
29 controversies in the former category may be removed from Art. III courts and delegated to legislative courts
30 or administrative agencies for their determination. See Atlas Roofing Co. v. Occupational Safety and Health
31 Review Comm'n, 430 U.S. 442, 450, n. 7, 97 S.Ct. 1261, 1266, n. 7, 51 L.Ed.2d. 464 (1977); Crowell v.
32 Benson, supra, 285 U.S., at 50-51, 52 S.Ct., at 292. See also Katz, Federal Legislative Courts, 43 Harv.L.Rev.
33 894, 917-918 (1930).FN24 Private-rights disputes, on the other hand, lie at the core of the historically 34 recognized judicial power.”

35 [ . . . ]

36 Although Crowell and Raddatz do not explicitly distinguish between rights created by Congress and other
37 rights, such a distinction underlies in part Crowell's and Raddatz' recognition of a critical difference between 38 rights created by federal statute and rights recognized by the Constitution. Moreover, such a distinction seems 39 to us to be necessary in light of the delicate accommodations required by the principle of separation of powers
40 reflected in Art. III. The constitutional system of checks and balances is designed to guard against
41 “encroachment or aggrandizement” by Congress at the expense of the other branches of government. Buckley

“Familiar illustrations of administrative agencies created for the determination of such matters are found in connection with the exercise of the congressional power as to interstate and foreign commerce, taxation, immigration, the public lands, public health, the facilities of the post office, pensions and payments to veterans.” Id., at 51, 52 S.Ct., at 292 (footnote omitted).

<sup>84</sup> Congress cannot “withdraw from [Art. III] judicial cognizance any matter which, from its nature, is the subject of a suit at the common law, or in equity, or admiralty.” Murray's Lessee v. Hoboken Land & Improvement Co., 18 How. 272, 284 (1856) (emphasis added). It is thus clear that the presence of the United States as a proper party to the proceeding is a necessary but not sufficient means of distinguishing “private rights” from “public rights.” And it is also clear that even with respect to matters that arguably fall within the scope of the “public rights” doctrine, the presumption is in favor of Art. III courts. See Glidden Co. v. Zdanok, 370 U.S., at 548-549, and n. 21, 82 S.Ct., at 1471-1472, and n. 21 (opinion of Harlan, J.). See also Currie, The Federal Courts and the American Law Institute, Part 1, 36 U.Chi.L.Rev. 1, 13-14, n. 67 (1968). Moreover, when Congress assigns these matters to administrative agencies, or to legislative courts, it has generally provided, and we have suggested that it may be required to provide, for Art. III judicial review. See Atlas Roofing Co. v. Occupational Safety and Health Review Comm'n, 430 U.S., at 455, n. 13, 97 S.Ct., at 1269, n. 13.

v. Valeo, 424 U.S., at 122, 96 S.Ct., at 683. But when Congress creates a statutory right [a "privilege" in this case, such as a "trade or business"], it clearly has the discretion, in defining that right, to create presumptions, or assign burdens of proof, or prescribe remedies; it may also provide that persons seeking to vindicate that right must do so before particularized tribunals created to perform the specialized adjudicative tasks related to that right.FN35 Such provisions do, in a sense, affect the exercise of judicial power, but they are also incidental to Congress' power to define the right that it has created. No comparable justification exists, however, when the right being adjudicated is not of congressional creation. In such a situation, substantial inroads into functions that have traditionally been performed by the Judiciary cannot be characterized merely as incidental extensions of Congress' power to define rights that it has created. Rather, such inroads suggest unwarranted encroachments upon the judicial power of the United States, which our Constitution reserves for Art. III courts. [Northern Pipeline Const. Co. v. Marathon Pipe Line Co., 458 U.S. at 83-84, 102 S.Ct. 2858 (1983)]

To give you an example of the above phenomenon, the so-called "U.S. Tax Court" is identified in 26 U.S.C. §7441 as an Article I court, and hence NOT an Article III court as described above. It is therefore what the U.S. Supreme Court identified above as a "particularized" tribunal that officiates ONLY over "Congressionally created rights", which is a euphemism for "privileges" incident to a franchise.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 76 > Subchapter C > PART I > § 7441
§ 7441. Status

There is hereby established, under article I of the Constitution of the United States, a court of record to be known as the United States Tax Court. The members of the Tax Court shall be the chief judge and the judges of the Tax Court.

Only "public rights" exercised by "public officers" may be officiated in the U.S. Tax Court, which is a "legislative franchise court".

"franchise court. Hist. A privately held court that (usu.) exists by virtue of a royal grant [privilege], with jurisdiction over a variety of matters, depending on the grant and whatever powers the court acquires over time. In 1274, Edward I abolished many of these feudal courts by forcing the nobility to demonstrate by what authority (quo warranto) they held court. If a lord could not produce a charter reflecting the franchise, the court was abolished. - Also termed courts of the franchise.

*Dispensing justice was profitable. Much revenue could come from the fees and dues, fines and amercements. This explains the growth of the second class of feudal courts, the Franchise Courts. They too were private courts held by feudal lords. Sometimes their claim to jurisdiction was based on old pre-Conquest grants ... But many of them were, in reality, only wrongful usurpations of private jurisdiction by powerful lords. These were put down after the famous Quo Warranto enquiry in the reign of Edward I." W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 56-57 (2d ed. 1949)."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Seventh Edition, p. 668]*

Below are the legal mechanisms involved as described by the Annotated U.S. Constitution:

The Public Rights Distinction

"That is, "public" rights are, strictly speaking, those in which the cause of action inheres in or lies against the Federal Government in its sovereign capacity, the understanding since Murray's Lessee. However, to accommodate Crowell v. Benson, Atlas Roofing, and similar cases, seemingly private causes of action between private parties will also be deemed "public" rights, when Congress, acting for a valid legislative purpose pursuant to its Article I powers, fashions a cause of action that is analogous to a common-law claim and so closely integrates it into a public regulatory scheme that it becomes a matter appropriate for agency resolution with limited involvement by the Article III judiciary. (82)"

*[Footnote 82: Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. at 52-54. The Court reiterated that the Government need not be a party as a prerequisite to a matter being of "public right." Id. at 54. Concurring, Justice Scalia argued that public rights historically were and should remain only those matters to which the Federal Government is a party. Id. at 65.]
[Annotated Constitution, Year 2002, p. 640.

So the U.S. Tax Court is really nothing more than an administrative binding arbitration board for federal statutory "employees" and public officers in resolving disputes INTERNAL to the national government and among federal instrumentalities, officers, bureaus, and agencies. All these entities are identified in 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) as the ONLY proper subject of IRS enforcement activity, which the code calls "distrain". That, in fact, is why the INTERNAL Revenue Service begins with the word "INTERNAL". The "private causes of action" they are referring to are the exercise of

1 “private law”, which is a fancy term for contract law, where the franchise itself codified in I.R.C., Subtitles A through C is
2 the franchise contract. The U.S. Supreme Court called income taxes a “quasi contract”, in fact.<sup>85</sup>

3 “Private law. That portion of the law which defines, regulates, enforces, and administers relationships among
4 individuals, associations, and corporations. As used in contradistinction to public law, the term means all that
5 part of the law which is administered between citizen and citizen, or which is concerned with the definition,
6 regulation, and enforcement of rights in cases where both the person in whom the right inheres and the person
7 upon whom the obligation is incident are private individuals. See also Private bill; Special law. Compare
8 Public Law.”
9 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1196]

10 Private law such as the I.R.C., Subtitles A through C can only acquire the “force of law” through the consent of BOTH 11 parties to it. Contracts between private people are an example of private law. This is thoroughly established in:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003, Sections 10 through 13.7
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

12 Many people misrepresent the facts by claiming that the I.R.C. is not “law”. It IS law, but NOT for everyone. If someone
13 shoves a signed contract in front of you and you manifest actions that indicate consent to the provisions of the contract, then 14 it’s as good as if you signed it. This kind of consent is called “implied” consent or “tacit procuration”. This kind of 15 consent is manifested in several forms, including:

- 16 1. Filling out “taxpayer” forms. ALL IRS forms are ONLY for consenting statutory “taxpayers”.
  - 17 1.1. The IRS Mission Statement, Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 1.1.1.1 says that they can help ONLY 18 statutory “taxpayers” who consent to the franchise contract. That is the true meaning of the word “Service” in 19 their name. They are helping those who volunteer to “serve” uncle with their “donations”. 31 U.S.C. §321(d), in 20 fact, identifies all income taxes as “donations”. So whenever you see the word “tax”, it REALLY means a
21 donation paid under the authority of the federal public officer kickback program disguised to LOOK like a lawful 22 constitutional tax.
  - 23 1.2. If you want a nontaxpayer form, you will have to modify theirs to make one or make your own nontaxpayer form.
24 They don’t help and even interfere with the rights of “nontaxpayers”, which makes us wonder whether they can 25 even really be part of a government. REAL governments provide EQUAL protection to both “taxpayers” and 26 “nontaxpayers”, don’t discriminate, and are instituted to protect mainly PRIVATE rights, which means
27 constitutional rights of NONTAXPAYERS FIRST, before they can even take on the job of ALSO protecting 28 public rights of public officers. For a huge collection of “nontaxpayer forms”, see:

SEDM Forms and Publications Page
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 29 2. VOLUNTARILY signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4, which the treasury regulations identify as an “agreement”,
30 and hence contract. See 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) and 26 C.F.R. §34.3402(p)-1. The upper left corner of the form
31 says “EMPLOYEE’S WITHHOLDING ALLOWANCE CERTIFICATE”:
  - 32 2.1. YOU are the one doing the “allowing”.
  - 33 2.2. What you are consenting to is to become a public officer engaged in the “trade or business”, “social insurance”
34 and SOCIALISM franchise. You are trading RIGHTS for statutory privileges by signing up.
  - 35 2.3. The IRS Form W-4 is therefore a request to become a Kelly girl on loan to a formerly private employer and to 36 send kickbacks to the mother corporation and your “parens patriae” that loans out your services as a public 37 officer.
- 38 3. Quoting any provision of the I.R.C. and thereby “purposefully availing” yourself of its “benefits” and thereby:
  - 39 3.1. Waiving sovereign immunity under 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2).
  - 40 3.2. Changing your status from a statutory “non-resident non-person” to that of a resident alien under 26 U.S.C.
41 §7701(b)(1)(A).
- 42 4. Claiming earned income credits under 26 U.S.C. §32, or “trade or business” deductions under 26 U.S.C. §162.
- 43 5. Petitioning U.S. Tax Court. U.S. Tax Court Rule 13(a) says that only “taxpayers” who are party to the contract can 44 avail themselves of the “benefits” of this brand of administrative rather than judicial remedy.
- 45 6. Using a “Taxpayer Identification Number”, which 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) says is only mandatory in the case of 46 those engaged in a “trade or business” and therefore a public office in the U.S. government.

1 The IRS, judges, and government prosecutors don't want you to know this stuff and carefully hide the nature of the
 2 transaction to keep you in the dark. They love what we call "mushrooms", which are organisms that you keep in the dark
 3 and feed SHIT to. The SHIT is:

- 4 1. Disinformation.
- 5 2. Deceptive publications that refuse to disclose accurate definitions of key words.
- 6 3. Words of art in their void for vagueness franchise "codes" that are private law.
- 7 4. Concealing of the real names of the IRS agents (they don't use their REAL names)
- 8 5. False accusations to keep you on the defensive.
- 9 6. Filtering evidence from appearing in litigation to keep the jury from learning what is in this document and thereby
 10 unjustly enrich themselves at your expense. This is naked thievery.

11 Your public dis-servants play these games to disguise the consensual nature of what they are doing and let you practically
 12 convict and hang yourself. They sit back and watch by doing all the above, never once telling you that your consent is 13 required, or asking you whether you want to consent, or notifying you in their publications that they will protect your right
 14 to NOT consent. We call this the "Rig and bait the trap and hide the consent game". The trap is their own omission and the 15 legal ignorance they manufactured in you within the public/government school system that they use to HARVEST your 16 labor and property when you enter the work force. You live on a corporate farm and you are government livestock. See:

The REAL Matrix, Stefan Molyneux
http://famguardian1.org/Media/The\_REAL\_Matrix.wmv

17 Why do they need your consent? Because the Declaration of Independence says ALL JUST AUTHORITY of any civil 18 government derives from CONSENT of the governed, and they need that consent in a LOT of ways to govern. Another
 19 reason is that he who consents cannot complain of an injury accomplished during tax enforcement and in some cases

21 "These general rules are well settled:

22 (1) That the United States, when it creates rights in individuals against itself [a "public right", which is a
 23 euphemism for a "franchise" to help the court disguise the nature of the transaction], is under no obligation to 24 provide a remedy through the courts. United States ex rel. Dunlap v. Black, 128 U.S. 40, 9 Sup.Ct. 12, 32 L.Ed.

3 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

4 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

5 The important thing to remember, however, is that Congress is FORBIDDEN from creating franchises within states of the 6 Union. Why? Because:

- 7 1. The Declaration of Independence, which is organic law, says our constitutional rights are “unalienable”.
- 8 2. An “unalienable right” is one that you AREN'T ALLOWED BY LAW to consent to give away in relation to a real, de
9 jure government! Such a right cannot lawfully be sold, bargained away, or transferred through any commercial
10 process, INCLUDING A FRANCHISE. Hence, even if we consent, the forfeiture of such rights is unconstitutional, 11 unauthorized, and a violation of the fiduciary duty to the public officer we surrender them to.

12 “Unalienable. Inalienable; incapable of being aliened, that is, sold and transferred.”

13 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1693]

- 14 3. The only place you can lawfully give up constitutional rights is where they physically do not exist, which is among 15 those domiciled on AND physically present on federal territory not part of any state of the Union.

16 “Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and
17 uniform to the effect [182 U.S. 244, 279] that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase
18 or conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to 'guarantee to every

29 them, or to declare that the inhabitants should be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the 30 privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as other privileges of the bill of rights.”

31 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

- 32 4. All governments are created exclusively to protect PRIVATE RIGHTS. The way you protect them is to LEAVE
33 THEM ALONE and not burden their exercise in any way. A lawful de jure government cannot and does not protect 34 your rights by making a business out of destroying, regulating, and taxing their exercise, implement the business as a
35 franchise, and hide the nature of what they are doing as a franchise and an excise. This would cause and has caused the 36 money changers to take over the charitable public trust and “civic temple” and make it into a warehouse in violation
37 of the Constitutional trust indenture. This kind of money changing in fact, is the very reason that Jesus flipped tables
38 over in the temple out of anger: Turning the bride of Christ and God's minister for justice into a WHORE. The nuns
39 are now pimped out and the church is open for business for all the statutory “taxpayer” Johns who walk in.

40 That is why the geographical definitions within the I.R.C. limit themselves to federal territory exclusively and include no
41 part of any state of the Union.

42 If you want an exhaustive analysis of how franchises such as the I.R.C., Subtitles A through C operate, please see the

44 5.6.12.3 Public v. Private

45 A very important subject is the division of legal authority between PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights. On this subject the U.S.
46 Supreme Court held:

1 "A private person cannot make constitutions or laws, nor can he with authority construe them, nor can he
2 administer or execute them."
3 [United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 1 S.Ct. 601, 27 L.Ed. 290 (1883)]

4 If you can't "execute" them, then you ALSO can't enforce them against ANYONE else. Some people might be tempted to
5 say that we all construe them against the private person daily, but in fact we can't do that WITHOUT being a public officer
6 WITHIN the government. If we do enforce the law as a private person, we are criminally impersonating a public officer in 7 violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. Another U.S. Supreme Court cite also confirms why this must be:

8 "All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
9 carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made
10 with [private] individuals."
11 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

12
13 "...we are of the opinion that there is a clear distinction in this particular between an [PRIVATE] individual
14 and a [PUBLIC] corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an
15 examination at the suit of the state. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He
16 is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no
17 duty to the state or to his neighbors to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation, so far as
18 it may tend to criminate him. He owes no such duty to the state, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond
19 the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to
20 the organization of the state, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with
21 the Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his
22 property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as
23 he does not trespass upon their rights.

24 "Upon the other hand, the [PUBLIC] corporation is a creature of the state. It is presumed to be incorporated
25 for the benefit of the public. It receives certain special privileges and franchises, and holds them subject to
26 the laws of the state and the limitations of its charter. Its powers are limited by law. It can make no contract
27 not authorized by its charter. Its rights to [201 U.S. 43, 75] act as a corporation are only preserved to it so
28 long as it obeys the laws of its creation. There is a reserved right in the legislature to investigate its contracts
29 and find out whether it has exceeded its powers. It would be a strange anomaly to hold that a state, having 30 chartered a corporation to make use of certain franchises, could not, in the exercise of its sovereignty, inquire
31 how these franchises had been employed, and whether they had been abused, and demand the production of the 32 corporate books and papers for that purpose. The defense amounts to this: That an officer of a corporation
33 which is charged with a criminal violation of the statute, may plead the criminality of such corporation as a
34 refusal to produce its books. To state this proposition is to answer it. While an individual may lawfully refuse to 35 answer incriminating questions unless protected by an immunity statute, it does not follow that a corporation, 36 vested with special privileges and franchises, may refuse to show its hand when charged with an abuse of such
37 privileges. "
38 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

39 You MUST therefore be an agent of the government and therefore a PUBLIC officer in order to "make constitutions or 40 laws or administer, execute, or ENFORCE EITHER". Examples of "agents" or "public officers" of the government include 41 all the following:

- 42 1. "person" (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1)).
- 43 2. "individual" (26 C.F.R. §1441-1(c)(3)).
- 44 3. "taxpayer" (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14)).
- 45 4. "withholding agent" (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16)).

46 "The government thus lays a tax, through the [GOVERNMENT] instrumentality [PUBLIC OFFICE] of the 47 company [a FEDERAL and not STATE corporation], upon the income of a non-resident alien over whom it
48 cannot justly exercise any control, nor upon whom it can justly lay any burden."
49 [United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]

50 So how do you "OBEY" a law without "EXECUTING" it? We'll give you a hint: It CAN'T BE DONE!

51 Likewise, if ONLY public officers can "administer, execute, or enforce" the law, then the following additional 52 requirements of the law are unavoidable and also implied:

1. Congress cannot impose DUTIES against private persons through the civil law. Otherwise the Thirteenth Amendment would be violated and the party executing said duties would be criminally impersonating an agent or officer of the government in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
2. Congress can only impose DUTIES upon public officers through the civil statutory law.
3. The civil statutory law is law for GOVERNMENT, and not PRIVATE persons. See:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
4. Those who enforce any civil statutory duties against you are PRESUMING that you occupy a public office.
5. You cannot unilaterally “elect” yourself into a public office in the government by filling out a government form, even if you consent to volunteer.
6. Even if you ARE a public officer, you can only execute the office in a place EXPRESSLY authorized by Congress per 4 U.S.C. §72, which means ONLY the District of Columbia and “not elsewhere”.
7. If you are “construing, administering, or executing” the laws, then you are doing so as a public officer and the Public Records exception to the Hearsay Exceptions Rule, Federal Rule of Evidence 803(8) applies. EVERYTHING you produce in the process of “construing, administering, or executing” the laws is instantly admissible and cannot be excluded from the record by any judge. If a judge interferes with the admission of such evidence, he is:
  - 7.1. Interfering with the duties of a coordinate branch of the government in violation of the Separation of Powers.
  - 7.2. Criminally obstructing justice.

5.6.12.3.1 Introduction

In order to fully understand and comprehend the nature of franchises, it is essential to thoroughly understand the distinctions between PUBLIC and PRIVATE property. The following subsections will deal with this important subject extensively. In the following subsections, we will establish the following facts:

1. There are TWO types of property:
  - 1.1. Public property. This type of property is protected by the CIVIL law.
  - 1.2. Private property. This type of property is protected by the COMMON law.
2. Specific legal rights attach to EACH of the two types of property. These “rights” in turn, are ALSO property as legally defined.

*Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man's courtesy.*

*The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.*

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

3. Human beings can simultaneously be in possession of BOTH PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights. This gives rise to TWO legal “persons”: PUBLIC and PRIVATE.
  - 3.1. The CIVIL law attaches to the PUBLIC person.
  - 3.2. The COMMON law attaches to the PRIVATE person.
 This is consistent with the following maxim of law.

When two rights [public right v. private right] concur in one person, it is the same as if they were two separate persons. 4 Co. 118.

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouvierMaxims.htm>]

4. That the purpose of the Constitution and the establishment of government itself is to protect EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these [EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE, God-given] rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. -"
[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

The VERY FIRST step in protecting PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property is to prevent such property from being converted to PUBLIC property or PUBLIC rights without the consent of the owner. In other words, the VERY FIRST step in protecting PRIVATE rights is to protect you from the GOVERNMENT'S OWN theft. Obviously, if a government becomes corrupted and refuses to protect PRIVATE rights or recognize them, there is absolutely no reason you can or should want to hire them to protect you from ANYONE ELSE.

5. The main method for protecting PRIVATE rights is to impose the following burden of proof and presumption upon any entity or person claiming to be "government":

"All rights and property are PRESUMED to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and beyond the control of government or the CIVIL law unless and until the government meets the burden of proving, WITH EVIDENCE, on the record of the proceeding that:

1. A SPECIFIC formerly PRIVATE owner consented IN WRITING to convert said property to PUBLIC property.
2. The owner was domiciled on federal territory NOT protected by the Constitution and therefore had the legal capacity to ALIENATE a Constitutional right or relieve a public servant of the fiduciary obligation to respect and protect the right. Those domiciled in a constitutional but not statutory state and who are "citizens" or "residents" protected by the constitution cannot alienate rights to a real, de jure government.
3. If the government refuses to meet the above burden of proof, it shall be CONCLUSIVELY PRESUMED to be operating in a PRIVATE, corporate capacity on an EQUAL footing with every other private corporation and which is therefore NOT protected by official, judicial, or sovereign immunity.

6. That the ability to regulate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE conduct is repugnant to the constitution and therefore such conduct cannot lawfully become the subject of any civil statutory law.
7. That the terms "person", "persons", "individual", "individuals" as used within the civil statutory law by default imply PUBLIC "persons" and therefore public offices within the government and not PRIVATE human beings. All such offices are creations and franchises of the government and therefore property of the government subject to its exclusive control.
8. That if the government wants to call you a statutory "person" or "individual" under the civil law, then:
- 8.1. You must volunteer or consent at some point to occupy a public office in the government while situated physically in a place not protected by the USA Constitution and the Bill of Rights...namely, federal territory. In some cases, that public office is also called a "citizen" or "resident".
  - 8.2. If you don't volunteer, they are essentially exercising unconstitutional "eminent domain" over your PRIVATE property. Keep in mind that rights protected by the Constitution are PRIVATE PROPERTY.
9. That there are VERY SPECIFIC and well defined rules for converting PRIVATE property into PUBLIC PROPERTY and OFFICES, and that all such rules require your express consent except when a crime is involved.
10. That if a corrupted judge or public servant imposes upon you any civil statutory status, including that of "person" or "individual" without your consent, they are:
- 10.1. Violating due process of law.
  - 10.2. Imposing involuntary servitude.
  - 10.3. STEALING property from you. We call this "theft by presumption".
  - 10.4. Kidnapping your identity and moving it to federal territory.
  - 10.5. Instituting eminent domain over EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property.
11. That within the common law, the main mechanism for PREVENTING the conversion of PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property through government franchises are the following maxims of law. These maxims of law MANDATE that all governments must protect your right NOT to participate in franchises or be held accountable for the consequences of receiving a "benefit" you did not consent to receive and/or regarded as an INJURY rather than a "benefit":

2 No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be
 3 considered as assenting. Vide Assent.

4 Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se inducto.

5 Any one may renounce a law introduced for his own benefit. To this rule there are some exceptions. See 1 Bouv.
 6 Inst. n. 83.

7 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856,

8 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

9 For an example of how this phenomenon works in the case of the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C "trade or 10 business" franchise, see:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

11 As an example of why an understanding of this subject is EXTREMELY important, consider the following dialog at an IRS
 12 audit in which the FIRST question out of the mouth of the agent is ALWAYS "What is YOUR Social Security Number?":

13 _____
 14
 15 IRS AGENT: What is YOUR Social Security Number?

16
 17 YOU: 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d) says SSNs belong to the government. The only way it could be MY number is if I am
 18 appearing here today as a federal employee or officer on official business. If that is the case, no, I am here as a 19 private human being and not a government statutory "employee" in possession or use of "public property" such as 20 a number. Therefore, I don't HAVE a Social Security Number. Furthermore, I am not lawfully eligible and never 21 have been eligible to participate in Social Security and any records you have to the contrary are FALSE and 22 FRAUDULENT and should be DESTROYED.

23
 24 IRS AGENT: That's ridiculous. Everyone HAS a SSN.

25
 26 YOU: Well then EVERYONE is a STUPID whore for acting as a federal employee or agent without compensation THEY
 27 and not YOU determine. The charge for my services to act as a federal "employee" or officer or trustee in 28 possession of public property such as an SSN is ALL the tax and penalty liability that might result PLUS $1,000
 29 per hour. Will you agree in writing pay the compensation I demand to act essentially as your federal coworker,
 30 because if you don't, then it's not MY number?

 32 IRS AGENT: It's YOUR number, not the government's.

 34 YOU: Well why do the regulations at 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d) say it belongs to the Social Security Administration instead of 35 me? I am not appearing as a Social Security employee at this meeting and its unreasonable and prejudicial for you
 36 to assume that I am. I am also not appearing here as "federal personnel" as defined in 5 U.S.C. §552a\(a\)\(13\). I
 37 don't even qualify for Social Security and never have, and what you are asking me to do by providing an 38 INVALID and knowingly FALSE number is to VIOLATE THE LAW and commit fraud by providing that which I
 39 am not legally entitled to and thereby fraudulently procure the benefits of a federal franchise. Is that your 40 intention?

41
 42 IRS AGENT: Don't play word games with me. It's YOUR number.

43
 44 YOU: Well good. Then if it's MY number and MY property, then I have EXCLUSIVE control and use over it. That is 45 what the word "property" implies. That means I, and not you, may penalize people for abusing MY property. The 46 penalty for wrongful use or possession of MY property is all the tax and penalty liability that might result from 47 using said number for tax collection plus $1,000 per hour for educating you about your lawful duties because you
 48 obviously don't know what they are. If it's MY property, then your job is to protect me from abuses of MY
 49 property. If you can penalize me for misusing YOUR procedures and forms, which are YOUR property, then I am
 50 EQUALLY entitled to penalize you for misusing MY property. Are you willing to sign an agreement in writing to 51 pay for the ABUSE of what you call MY property, because if you aren't, you are depriving me of exclusive use
 52 and control over MY property and depriving me of the equal right to prevent abuses of my property??

2 IRS AGENT: OK, well it's OUR number. Sorry for deceiving you. Can you give us OUR number that WE assigned to 3 you?

5 YOU: You DIDN'T assign it to ME as a private person, which is what I am appearing here today as. You can't lawfully
6 issue public property such as an SSN to a private person. That's criminal embezzlement. The only way it could
7 have been assigned to me is if I'm acting as a "public officer" or federal employee at this moment, and I am NOT.
8 I am here as a private person and not a public employee. Therefore, it couldn't have been lawfully issued to me.
9 Keep this up, and I'm going to file a criminal complaint with the U.S. Attorney for embezzlement in violation of 10 18 U.S.C. §641 and impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. I'm not here as a public officer
11 and you are asking me to act like one without compensation and without legal authority. Where is the 12 compensation that I demand to act as a fiduciary and trustee over your STINKING number, which is public
13 property? I remind you that the very purpose why governments are created is to PROTECT and maintain the 14 separation between "public property" and "private property" in order to preserve my inalienable constitutional
15 rights that you took an oath to support and defend. Why do you continue to insist on co-mingling and confusing
16 them in order to STEAL my labor, property, and money without compensation in violation of the Fifth
17 Amendment takings clause?
18

19 Usually, after the above interchange, the IRS agent will realize he is digging a DEEP hole for himself and will abruptly end
20 that sort of inquiry, and many times will also end his collection efforts.

21 5.6.12.3.2 What is "Property"?

22 Property is legally defined as follows:

23 *Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict
24 legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. *Fulton Light, Heat
25 & Power Co. v. State*, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable
26 right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to 27 dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with 28 it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things
29 or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can 30 have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which 31 no way depends on another man's courtesy.*

32 *The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or
33 incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable
34 value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and 35 includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes
36 every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53
37 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.*

38 *Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or 39 whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis. TexCiv-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607, 611. Term includes 40 not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. *Hoffmann v.
41 Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

42 *Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical
43 thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 44 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.*

45 *Goodwill is property, Howell v. Bowden, TexCiv. App., 368 S.W.2d. 842, &18; as is an insurance policy and 46 rights incident thereto, including a right to the proceeds, Harris v. Harris, 83 N.M. 441,493 P.2d. 407, 408.*

47 *Criminal code. "Property" means anything of value. including real estate, tangible and intangible personal 48 property, contract rights, choses-in-action and other interests in or claims to wealth, admission or 49 transportation tickets, captured or domestic animals, food and drink, electric or other power. Model Penal
50 Code. Q 223.0. See also Property of another, infra. Dusts. Under definition in Restatement, Second, Trusts, Q
51 2(c), it denotes interest in things and not the things themselves.
52 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]*

53 Keep in mind the following critical facts about "property" as legally defined:

- 1 1. The essence of the “property” right, also called “ownership”, is the RIGHT TO EXCLUDE others from using or 2 benefitting from the use of the property.

3 “We have repeatedly held that, as to property reserved by its owner for private use, ‘the right to exclude
4 others is] one of the most essential sticks in the bundle of rights that are commonly characterized as
5 property.’” Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp., 458 U.S. 419, 433 (1982), quoting Kaiser Aetna
6 v. United States, 444 U.S. 164, 176 (1979). “
7 [Nollan v. California Coastal Comm’n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987)]

9 “In this case, we hold that the ‘right to exclude,’ so universally held to be a fundamental element of the 10 property right,<sup>[11]</sup> falls within this category of interests that the Government cannot take without 11 compensation.”
12 [Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979)]

13 [11] See, e. g., United States v. Pueblo of San Ildefonso, 206 Ct.Cl. 649, 669-670, 513 F.2d. 1383, 1394 (1975);
14 United States v. Lutz, 295 F.2d. 736, 740 (CA5 1961). As stated by Mr. Justice Brandeis, “[a]n essential
15 element of individual property is the legal right to exclude others from enjoying it.” International News Service
16 v. Associated Press, 248 U.S. 215, 250 (1918) (dissenting opinion).

- 17 2. It’s NOT your property if you can’t exclude the GOVERNMENT from using, benefitting from the use, or taxing the 18 specific property.
19 3. All constitutional rights and statutory privileges are property.
20 4. Anything that conveys a right or privilege is property.
21 5. Contracts convey rights or privileges and are therefore property.
22 6. All franchises are contracts between the grantor and the grantee and therefore property.

23 5.6.12.3.3 “Public” v. “Private” property ownership

24 Next, we would like to compare the two types of property: Public v. Private. There are two types of ownership of 25 “property”: Absolute and Qualified. The following definition describes and compares these two types of ownership:

26 Ownership. Collection of rights to use and enjoy property, including right to transmit it to others. Trustees of 27 Phillips Exeter Academy v. Exeter, 92 N.H. 473, 33 A.2d. 665, 673. The complete dominion, title, or proprietary

5.6.12.3.4 The purpose and foundation of de jure government: Protection of EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights

The main purpose for which all governments are established is the protection of EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights and property. This purpose is the foundation of all the just authority of any government as held by the Declaration of Independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, -"

[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

The fiduciary duty that a public officer who works for the government has is founded upon the requirement to protect PRIVATE property.

"As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer."<sup>87</sup> Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts.<sup>88</sup> That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves.<sup>89</sup> and owes a fiduciary duty to the public.<sup>90</sup> It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual.<sup>91</sup> Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.<sup>92</sup>

[63C American Jurisprudence 2d., Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

The VERY FIRST step that any lawful de jure government must take in protecting PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights is to protect it from being converted to PUBLIC/GOVERNMENT property. After all: If the people you hire to protect you won't even do the job of protecting you from THEM, why should you hire them to protect you from ANYONE ELSE?

The U.S. Supreme Court has also affirmed that the protection of PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property is "the foundation of the government" when it held the following. The case below was a challenge to the constitutionality of the first national income tax, and the U.S. government rightfully lost that challenge:

"Here I close my opinion. I could not say less in view of questions of such gravity that they go down to the very foundations of the government. If the provisions of the Constitution can be set aside by an act of Congress, where is the course of usurpation to end?"

The present assault upon capital [THEFT! and WEALTH TRANSFER by unconstitutional CONVERSION of PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property] is but the beginning. It will be but the stepping stone to others larger and more sweeping, until our political contest will become war of the poor against the rich; a war of growing intensity and bitterness."

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., [157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895), hearing the case against the first income tax passed by Congress that included people in states of the Union. They declared that first income tax UNCONSTITUTIONAL, by the way]

In the above landmark case, the lawyer for the petitioner, Mr. Choate, even referred to the income tax as COMMUNISM, and he was obviously right! Why? Because communism like socialism operates upon the following political premises:

1. All property is PUBLIC property and there IS no PRIVATE property.
2. The government owns and/or controls all property and said property is LOANED to the people.
3. The government and/or the collective has rights superior to those of the individual. There is and can be NO equality or equal protection under the law without the right of PRIVATE property. In that sense, the government or the "state" is a pagan idol with "supernatural powers" because human beings are "natural" and they are inferior to the collective.
4. Control is synonymous with ownership. If the government CONTROLS the property but the citizen "owns" it, then:
  - 4.1. The REAL owner is the government.
  - 4.2. The ownership of the property is QUALIFIED rather than ABSOLUTE.
  - 4.3. The person holding the property is a mere CUSTODIAN over GOVERNMENT property and has EQUITABLE rather than LEGAL ownership. Hence, their name in combination with the Social Security Number constitutes a PUBLIC office synonymous with the government itself.
5. Everyone in temporary use of said property is an officer and agent of the state. A "public officer", after all, is someone who is in charge of the PROPERTY of the public. It is otherwise a crime to use public property for a PRIVATE use or benefit. That crime is called theft or conversion:

*"Public office. The right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either fixed by law or enduring at the pleasure of the creating power, an individual is invested with some portion of the sovereign functions of government for the benefit of the public. Look at some of the planks of the Communist Manifesto, Karl Marx and confirm the above for yourself:

1. Abolition of property in land and application of all rents of land to public purposes.
2. A heavy progressive or graduated income tax.

The legal definition of "property" confirms that one who OWNS a thing has the EXCLUSIVE right to use and dispose of and CONTROL the use of his or her or its property and ALL the fruits and "benefits" associated with the use of such property . The implication is that you as the PRIVATE owner have a right to EXCLUDE ALL OTHERS including all governments from using, benefitting from, or controlling your property. Governments, after all, are simply legal "persons" and the constitution guarantees that ALL "persons" are equal. If your neighbor can't benefit from your property without your consent, then neither can any so-called "government".

Property. *That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. *The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man's courtesy.

*The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.*

*Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis. TexCiv-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607, 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.*

*Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.*

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

In a lawful de jure government under our constitution:

1. All "persons" are absolutely equal under the law. No government can have any more rights than a single human being, no matter how many people make up that government. If your neighbor can't take your property without your consent, then neither can the government. The only exception to this requirement of equality is that artificial persons do not have constitutional rights, but only such "privileges" as statutory law grants them. See:

Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 1 2. All property is CONCLUSIVELY presumed to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE until the GOVERNMENT meets the 2 burden of proof on the record of the legal proceeding that you EXPRESSLY consented IN WRITING to donate the 3 property or use of the property to the PUBLIC:

4 "Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights,- 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of
 5 happiness;' and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or
 6 income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that
 7 he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it
 8 for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and 9 every other public "benefit"]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the 10 public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it
 11 upon payment of due compensation."
 12 Budd v. People of State of New York, [143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

- 13 3. You have to knowingly and intentionally DONATE your PRIVATE property to a public use and a PUBLIC purpose
 14 before the government can lawfully REGULATE its use. In other words, you have to at least SHARE your ownership
 15 of otherwise private property with the government and become an EQUITABLE rather than ABSOLUTE owner of the 16 property before they can acquire the right to regulate its use or impose obligations or duties upon its original owner.
 17 4. That donation ordinarily occurs by applying for and/or using a license in connection with the use of SPECIFIC 18 otherwise PRIVATE property.
 19 5. The process of applying for or using a license and thereby converting PRIVATE into PUBLIC cannot be compelled. If 20 it is, the constitutional violation is called "eminent domain" without compensation or STEALING, in violation of the 21 Fifth Amendment takings clause.
 22 6. You have a PUBLIC persona (office) and a PRIVATE persona (human) at all times.
 23 6.1. That which you VOLUNTARILY attach a government license number to, such as a Social Security Number or 24 Taxpayer Identification Number, becomes PRIVATE property donated to a public use to procure the benefits of a
 25 PUBLIC franchise. That property, in turn, is effectively OWNED by the government grantor of your public 26 persona and the public office it represents.
 27 6.2. If you were compelled to use a government license number, such as an SSN or TIN, then a theft and taking 28 without compensation has occurred, because all property associated with such numbers was unlawfully converted
 29 and STOLEN.
 30 7. If the right to contract of the parties conducting any business transaction has any meaning at all, it implies the right to 31 EXCLUDE the government from participation in their relationship.
 32 7.1. You can write the contract such that neither party may use or invoke a license number, or complain to a licensing
 33 board, about the transaction, and thus the government is CONTRACTED OUT of the otherwise PRIVATE 34 relationship. Consequently, the transaction becomes EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and government may not tax or 35 regulate or arbitrate the relationship in any way under the terms of the license franchise.
 36 7.2. Every consumer of your services has a right to do business with those who are unlicensed. This right is a natural
 37 consequence of the right to CONTRACT and NOT CONTRACT. The thing they are NOT contracting with is the 38 GOVERNMENT, and the thing they are not contracting FOR is STATUTORY/FRANCHISE "protection".
 39 Therefore, even those who have applied for government license numbers are NOT obligated to use them in 40 connection with any specific transaction and may not have their licenses suspended or revoked for failure or 41 refusal to use them for a specific transaction.
 42 8. If the government invades the commercial relationship between you and those you do business with by forcing either
 43 party to use or invoke the license number or pursue remedies or "benefits" under the license, they are:
 44 8.1. Interfering with your UNALIENABLE right to contract.
 45 8.2. Compelling you to donate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property to a PUBLIC use.
 46 8.3. Exercising unconstitutional eminent domain over your otherwise PRIVATE property.
 47 8.4. Compelling you to accept a public "benefit", where the "protection" afforded by the license is the "benefit".

 49 usually on the part of the IRS and corrupted judges who want to STEAL from you, that the GOVERNMENT owns it and
 50 that you have to prove that they CONSENTED to let you keep the fruits of it. They can't and never have proven that they 51 have such a right, and all such presumptions are a violation of due process of law.

52 (1) [8:4993] Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests:

A conclusive presumption may be defeated where its application would impair a party's constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party's due process and equal protection rights. [Vlandis v. Kline (1973) 412 U.S. 441, 449, 93 S.Ct. 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. LaFleur (1974) 414 U.S. 632, 639-640, 94 S.Ct. 1208, 1215-presumption under Illinois law that unmarried fathers are unfit violates process] [Federal Civil Trials and Evidence (2006), Rutter Group, paragraph 8:4993, p. 8K-34]

In order to unconstitutionally and TREASONOUSLY circumvent the above limitation on their right to presume, corrupt governments and government actors will play "word games" with citizenship and key definitions in the ENCRYPTED "code" in order to KIDNAP your legal identity and place it OUTSIDE the above protections of the constitution by:

1. PRESUMING that you are a public officer and therefore, that everything held in your name is PUBLIC property of the GOVERNMENT and not YOUR PRIVATE PROPERTY. See:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/WhyThiefOrPubOfficer.pdf>
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Abusing fraudulent information returns to criminally and unlawfully "elect" you into public offices in the government:

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/04-Tax/CorrErrInfoRtns/CorrErrInfoRtns.pdf>
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. PRESUMING that because you did not rebut evidence connecting you to a public office, then you CONSENT to occupy the office.

4. PRESUMING that ALL of the four contexts for "United States" are equivalent.

5. PRESUME that CONSTITUTIONAL citizens and STATUTORY citizens are EQUIVALENT under federal law. They are NOT. A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen is a "non-resident" under federal civil law and NOT a STATUTORY "national and citizen of the United States** at birth" per 8 U.S.C. §1401. See the document below:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/WhyANational.pdf>
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. PRESUMING that "nationality" and "domicile" are equivalent. They are NOT. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Domicile.pdf>
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7. Using the word "citizenship" in place of "nationality" OR "domicile", and refusing to disclose WHICH of the two they mean in EVERY context.

8. Confusing the POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL meaning of words with the civil STATUTORY context. For instance, asking on government forms whether you are a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL citizen and then FALSELY PRESUMING that you are a STATUTORY citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401.

9. Confusing the words "domicile" and "residence" or impute either to you without satisfying the burden of proving that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to it and thereby illegally kidnap your civil legal identity against your will. One can have only one "domicile" but many "residences" and BOTH require your consent. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Domicile.pdf>
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

10. Adding things or classes of things to the meaning of statutory terms that do not EXPRESSLY appear in their definitions, in violation of the rules of statutory construction. See:

Meaning of the Words "includes" and "including", Form #05.014
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Includes.pdf>
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

11. Refusing to allow the jury to read the definitions in the law and then give them a definition that is in conflict with the statutory definition. This substitutes the JUDGES will for what the law expressly says and thereby substitutes PUBLIC POLICY for the written law.

12. Publishing deceptive government publications that are in deliberate conflict with what the statutes define "United States" as and then tell the public that they CANNOT rely on the publication. The IRS does this with ALL of their publications and it is FRAUD. See:

1 This kind of arbitrary discretion is PROHIBITED by the Constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court:

32 The key to preventing the unconstitutional abuse of presumption by the corrupted judiciary and IRS to STEAL from people
 33 is to completely understand the content of the following memorandum of law and consistently apply it in every interaction
 34 with the government:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

35 It ought to be very obvious to the reader that:

- 36 1. The rules for converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property ought to be consistently, completely, clearly, and 37 unambiguously defined by every government officer you come in contact with, and ESPECIALLY in court. These 38 rules ought to be DEMANDED to be declared EVEN BEFORE you enter a plea in a criminal case.
- 39 2. If the government asserts any right over your PRIVATE property, they are PRESUMING they are the LEGAL owner 40 and relegating you to EQUITABLE ownership. This presumption should be forcefully challenged.
- 41 3. If they won't expressly define the rules, or try to cloud the rules for converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC 42 property, then they are:
  - 43 3.1. Defeating the very purpose for which they were established as a "government". Hence, they are not a true
 44 "government" but a de facto private corporation PRETENDING to be a "government", which is a CRIME under
 45 18 U.S.C. §912.
  - 46 3.2. Exercising unconstitutional eminent domain over private property without the consent of the owner and without 47 compensation.
  - 48 3.3. Trying to STEAL from you.
  - 49 3.4. Violating their fiduciary duty to the public.

5.6.12.3.5 The Ability to Regulate Private Rights and Private Conduct is Repugnant to the Constitution

The following cite establishes that private rights and private property are entirely beyond the control of the government:

*When one becomes a member of society, he necessarily parts with some rights or privileges which, as an individual not affected by his relations to others, he might retain. "A body politic," as aptly defined in the preamble of the Constitution of Massachusetts, "is a social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good." This does not confer power upon the whole people to control rights which are purely and exclusively private, Thorpe v. R. & B. Railroad Co., 27 Vt. 143; but it does authorize the establishment of laws requiring each citizen to so conduct himself, and so use his own property, as not unnecessarily to injure another. This is the very essence of government, and 125*125 has found expression in the maxim sic utere tuo ut alienum non laedas. From this source come the police powers, which, as was said by Mr. Chief Justice Taney in the License Cases, 5 How. 583, "are nothing more or less than the powers of government inherent in every sovereignty, . . . that is to say, . . . the power to govern men and things." Under these powers the government regulates the conduct of its citizens one towards another, and the manner in which each shall use his own property, when such regulation becomes necessary for the public good. In their exercise it has never yet been customary in England from time immemorial, and in this country from its first colonization, to regulate ferries, common carriers, hackmen, bakers, millers, wharfingers, innkeepers, &c., and in so doing to fix a maximum of charge to be made for services rendered, accommodations furnished, and articles sold. To this day, statutes are to be found in many of the States upon some or all these subjects; and we think it has never yet been successfully contended that such legislation came within any of the constitutional prohibitions against interference with private property. With the Fifth Amendment in force, Congress, in 1820, conferred power upon the city of Washington "to regulate . . . the rates of wharfage at private wharves, . . . the sweeping of chimneys, and to fix the rates of fees therefor, . . . and the weight and quality of bread," 3 Stat. 587, sect. 7; and, in 1848, "to make all necessary regulations respecting hackney carriages and the rates of fare of the same, and the rates of hauling by cartmen, wagoners, carmen, and draymen, and the rates of commission of auctioneers," 9 id. 224, sect. 2.*

Notice that they say that the ONLY basis to regulate private rights is to prevent injury of one man to another by the use of said property. They say that this authority is the origin of the "police powers" of the state. What they hide, however, is that these same POLICE POWERS involve the CRIMINAL laws and EXCLUDE the CIVIL laws or even franchises. You can TELL they are trying to hide something because around this subject they invoke the Latin language that is unknown to most Americans to conceal the nature of what they are doing. Whenever anyone invokes Latin in a legal setting, a red flag ought to go up because you KNOW they are trying to hide a KEY fact. Here is the Latin they invoked:

The other phrase to notice in the Munn case above is the use of the word "social compact". A compact is legally defined as a contract.

"Compact, n. An agreement or contract between persons, nations, or states. Commonly applied to working agreements between and among states concerning matters of mutual concern. A contract between parties, which creates obligations and rights capable of being enforced and contemplated as such between the parties, in their distinct and independent characters. A mutual consent of parties concerned respecting some property or right that is the object of the stipulation, or something that is to be done or forborne. See also Compact clause; Confederacy; Interstate compact; Treaty."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 281]

Therefore, one cannot exercise their First Amendment right to legally associate with or contract with a SOCIETY and thereby become a party to the "social compact/contract" without ALSO becoming a STATUTORY "citizen". By statutory citizen, we really mean a domiciliary of a SPECIFIC municipal jurisdiction, and not someone who was born or naturalized in that place. Hence, by STATUTORY citizen we mean a person who:

1. Has voluntarily chosen a civil domicile within a specific municipal jurisdiction and thereby become a "citizen" or "resident" of said jurisdiction. "citizens" or "residents" collectively are called "inhabitants".
2. Has indicated their choice of domicile on government forms in the block called "residence" or "permanent address".
3. CONSENTS to be protected by the regional civil laws of a SPECIFIC municipal government.

A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen, on the other hand, is someone who cannot consent to choose the place of their birth. These people in statutes are called "non-residents". Neither BEING BORN nor being PHYSICALLY PRESENT in a place is an express exercise of one's discretion or an act of CONSENT, and therefore cannot make one a government contractor called

1 a statutory "U.S. citizen". That is why birth or naturalization determines nationality but not their status under the CIVIL
 2 laws. All civil jurisdiction is based on "consent of the governed", as the Declaration of Independence indicates. Those who
 3 do NOT consent to the civil laws that implement the social compact of the municipal government they are PHYSICALLY
 4 situated within are called "free inhabitants", "nonresidents", "transient foreigners", "non-resident", or "foreign sovereigns".
 5 These "free inhabitants" are mentioned in the Articles of Confederation, which continue to this day and they are NOT the 6 same and mutually exclusive to a statutory "U.S. citizen". These "free inhabitants" instead are CIVILLY governed by the 7 common law RATHER than the civil law.

8 Policemen are NOT allowed to involve themselves in CIVIL disputes and may ONLY intervene or arrest anyone when a
 9 CRIME has been committed. They CANNOT arrest for an "infraction", which is a word designed to hide the fact that the 10 statute being enforced is a CIVIL or FRANCHISE statute not involving the CRIMINAL "police powers". Hence, civil 11 jurisdiction over PRIVATE rights is NOT authorized among those who HAVE such rights. Only those who know those 12 rights and claim and enforce them, not through attorneys but in their proper person, have such rights. Nor can those 13 PRIVATE rights lawfully be surrendered to a REAL, de jure government, even WITH consent, if they are, in fact
 14 UNALIENABLE as the Declaration of Independence indicates.

15 "Unalienable. Inalienable; incapable of being aliened, that is, sold and transferred."
 16 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1693]

17 The only people who can consent to give away a right are those who HAVE no rights because domiciled on federal territory
 18 not protected by the Constitution or the Bill of Rights:

19 "Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and
 20 uniform to the effect [182 U.S. 244, 279] that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase
 21 or conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to 'guarantee to every
 22 state in this Union a republican form of government' (art. 4, 4), by which we understand, according to the
 23 definition of Webster, 'a government in which the supreme power resides in the whole body of the people,
 24 and is exercised by representatives elected by them.' Congress did not hesitate, in the original organization of
 25 the territories of Louisiana, Florida, the Northwest Territory, and its subdivisions of Ohio, Indiana,
 26 Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin and still more recently in the case of Alaska, to establish a form of
 27 government bearing a much greater analogy to a British Crown colony than a republican state of America,
 28 and to vest the legislative power either in a governor and council, or a governor and judges, to be appointed by
 29 the President. It was not until they had attained a certain population that power was given them to organize a
 30 legislature by vote of the people. In all these cases, as well as in territories subsequently organized west of the
 31 Mississippi, Congress thought it necessary either to extend to Constitution and laws of the United States over
 32 them, or to declare that the inhabitants should be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the 33 privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as other privileges of the bill of rights."
 34 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

35 To apply these concepts, the police enforce the "vehicle code", but most of the vehicle code is a civil franchise that they 36 may NOT enforce without ABUSING the police powers of the state. In recognition of these concepts, the civil provisions
 37 of the vehicle code are called "infractions" rather than "crimes". AND, before the civil provisions of the vehicle code may 38 lawfully be enforced against those using the public roadways, one must be a "resident" with a domicile not within the state,
 39 but on federal territory where rights don't exist. All civil law attaches to SPECIFIC territory. That is why by applying for a
 40 driver's license, most state vehicle codes require that the person must be a "resident" of the state, meaning a person with a
 41 domicile within the statutory but not Constitutional "United States", meaning federal territory.

42 So what the vehicle codes in most states do is mix CRIMINAL and CIVIL and even PRIVATE franchise law all into one
 43 title of code, call it the "Vehicle code", and make it extremely difficult for even the most law abiding "citizen" to 44 distinguish which provisions are CIVIL/FRANCHISES and which are CRIMINAL, because they want to put the police
 45 force to an UNLAWFUL use enforcing CIVIL rather than CRIMINAL law. This has the practical effect of making the 46 "CODE" not only a deception, but void for vagueness on its face, because it fails to give reasonable notice to the public at 47 large, WHICH specific provisions pertain to EACH subset of the population. That in fact, is why they have to call it "the 48 code", rather than simply "law": Because the truth is encrypted and hidden in order to unlawfully expand their otherwise
 49 extremely limited civil jurisdiction. The two subsets of the population who they want to confuse and mix together in order
 50 to undermine your sovereignty are:

- 51 1. Those who consent to the "social compact" by choosing a domicile or residence within a specific municipal
- 52 jurisdiction. These people are identified by the following statutory terms:
- 53 1.1. Individuals.
- 54 1.2. Residents.

- 1 1.3. Citizens.
- 2 1.4. Inhabitants.
- 3 1.5. PUBLIC officers serving as an instrumentality of the government.
- 4 2. Those who do NOT consent to the "social compact" and who therefore are called:
- 5 2.1. Free inhabitants.
- 6 2.2. Nonresidents.
- 7 2.3. Transient foreigners.
- 8 2.4. Sojourners.
- 9 2.5. EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE human beings beyond the reach of the civil statutes implementing the social
- 10 compact.

11 The way they get around the problem of only being able to enforce the CIVIL provisions of the vehicle code against 12 domiciliaries of the federal zone is to:

- 13 1. ONLY issue driver licenses to "residents" domiciled in the federal zone.
- 14 2. Confuse CONSTITUTIONAL "citizens" with STATUTORY "citizens", to make them appear the same even though 15 they are NOT.
- 16 3. Arrest people for driving WITHOUT a license, even though technically these provisions can only be enforceable
17 against those who are acting as a public officer WHILE driving AND who are STATUTORY but not 18 CONSTITUTIONAL "citizens".

19 The act of "governing" WITHOUT consent therefore implies CRIMINAL governing, not CIVIL governing. To procure
20 CIVIL jurisdiction over a private right requires the CONSENT of the owner of the right. That is why the U.S. Supreme 21 Court states in Munn the following:

22 "When one becomes a member of society, he necessarily parts with some rights or privileges which, as an 23 individual not affected by his relations to others, he might retain."
24 [Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876),
25 SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar\_case?case=6419197193322400931]

26 Therefore, if one DOES NOT consent to join a "society" as a statutory citizen, he RETAINS those SOVEREIGN rights that 27 would otherwise be lost through the enforcement of the civil law. Here is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes this 28 requirement of law:

29 "Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights,- 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of
30 happiness;' and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property for
31 income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations:

32 [1] First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he
33 must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY,
34 Medicare, and every other public "benefit"];

35 [2] second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and

36 [3] third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due
37 compensation."
38 Budd v. People of State of New York, [143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

39 A PRIVATE right that is unalienable cannot be given away by a citizen, even WITH consent, to a de jure government.
40 Hence, the only people that any government may CIVILLY govern are those without unalienable rights, all of whom 41 MUST therefore be domiciled on federal territory where CONSTITUTIONAL rights do not exist.

42 Notice that when they are talking about "regulating" conduct using CIVIL law, all of a sudden they mention "citizens"
43 instead of ALL PEOPLE. These "citizens" are those with a DOMICILE within federal territory not protected by the 44 Constitution:

45 "Under these powers the government regulates the conduct of its citizens one towards another, and the manner
46 in which each shall use his own property, when such regulation becomes necessary for the public good."

[Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876),
SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar\_case?case=6419197193322400931]

All "citizens" that they can regulate therefore must be WITHIN the government and be acting as public officers. Otherwise, they would continue to be PRIVATE parties beyond the CIVIL control of any government. Hence, in a Republican Form of Government where the People are sovereign:

1. The only "subjects" under the civil law are public officers in the government.
2. The government is counted as a STATUTORY "citizen" but not a CONSTITUTIONAL "citizen". All CONSTITUTIONAL citizens are human beings and CANNOT be artificial entities. All STATUTORY citizens, on the other hand, are artificial entities and franchises and NOT CONSTITUTIONAL citizens.

"A corporation [the U.S. government, and all those who represent it as public officers, is a federal corporation per 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A) ] is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

Citizens of the United States within the meaning of this Amendment must be natural and not artificial persons; a corporate body is not a citizen of the United States. 14

14 Insurance Co. v. New Orleans, 13 Fed.Cas. 67 (C.C.D.La. 1870). Not being citizens of the United States, corporations accordingly have been declared unable "to claim the protection of that clause of the Fourteenth Amendment which secures the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States against abridgment or impairment by the law of a State." Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U.S. 557, 561 (1869) . This conclusion was in harmony with the earlier holding in Paul v. Virginia, 75 U.S. (8 Wall.) 168 (1869), to the effect that corporations were not within the scope of the privileges and immunities clause of state citizenship set out in Article IV, Sec. 2. See also Selover, Bates & Co. v. Walsh, 226 U.S. 112, 126 (1912) ; Berea College v. Kentucky, 211 U.S. 45 (1908) ; Liberty Warehouse Co. v. Tobacco Growers, 276 U.S. 71, 89 (1928) ; Grosjean v. American Press Co., 297 U.S. 233, 244 (1936).

3. The only statutory "citizens" are public offices in the government.
4. By serving in a public office, one becomes the same type of "citizen" as the GOVERNMENT is.

These observations are consistent with the very word roots that form the word "republic". The following video says the word originally comes from "res publica", which means a collection of PUBLIC rights shared by the public. You must therefore JOIN "the public" and become a public officer before you can partake of said PUBLIC right.

Overview of America, SEDM Liberty University, Section 2.3
<http://sedm.org/LibertyU/LibertyU.htm>

This gives a WHOLE NEW MEANING to Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, in which he refers to American government as:

"A government of the people, by the people, and for the people."

You gotta volunteer as an uncompensated public officer for the government to CIVILLY govern you. Hence, the only thing they can CIVILLY GOVERN, is the GOVERNMENT! Pretty sneaky, huh? Here is a whole memorandum of law on this subject proving such a conclusion:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Form...StatLawGovt.pdf>

The other important point we wish to emphasize is that those who are EXCLUSIVELY private and therefore beyond the reach of the civil law are:

- 1 1. Free inhabitants.
- 2 2. Not a statutory "person" under the civil law or franchise statute in question.
- 3 3. Not "individuals" under the CIVIL law if they are human beings. All statutory "individuals", in fact, are identified as
- 4 "employees" under 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). This is the ONLY statute that describes HOW one becomes a statutory
- 5 "individual" that we have been able to find.
- 6 4. "foreign", a "transient foreigner", and sovereign in respect to government CIVIL but not CRIMINAL jurisdiction.
- 7 5. NOT "subject to" but also not necessarily statutorily "exempt" under the civil or franchise statute in question.

8 For a VERY interesting background on the subject of this section, we recommend reading the following case:

9 5.6.12.3.6 The Right to be left alone

10 The purpose of the Constitution of the United States of America is to confer the "right to be left alone", which is the 11 essence of being sovereign:

12 "The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They

13 recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a

14 part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect

15 *Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the

16 Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by

17 civilized men."*

18 [Olmstead v. United States, 277 U.S. 438, 478 (1928) (Brandeis, J., dissenting) ; see also Washington v.

19 Harper, 494 U.S. 210 (1990)]

21 PAULSEN, ETHICS (Thilly's translation), chap. 9.

22 "Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing

23 the lives and interests of others, and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This

24 virtue springs from the individual's respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co equals. The

25 different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended

26 individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally

27 freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one's life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres,

28 thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To

29 violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against

30 the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the

31 individual's own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong

32 yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and

33 protect the right."

34 [Readings on the History and System of the Common Law, Second Edition, Roscoe Pound, 1925, p. 2]

35 The Bible also states the foundation of justice by saying:

36 *"Do not strive with [or try to regulate or control or enslave] a man without cause, if he has done you no

37 harm."*

38 [Prov. 3:30, Bible, NKJV]

39 And finally, Thomas Jefferson agreed with the above by defining "justice" as follows in his First Inaugural Address:

40 "With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing

41 *more, fellow citizens--a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another,

42 shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not

43 take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is

44 necessary to close the circle of our felicities."*

45 [Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

46 Therefore, the word "injustice" means interference with the equal rights of others absent their consent and which constitutes

47 an injury NOT as any law defines it, but as the PERSON who is injured defines it. Under this conception of "justice", 48 anything done with your consent cannot be classified as "injustice" or an injury.

Those who are “private persons” fit in the category of people who must be left alone as a matter of law:

"There is a clear distinction in this particular case between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the State. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he does not trespass upon their rights."
[Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43, 74 (1906)]

Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 5.14.10.2 (09-30-2004)
Payroll Deduction Agreements

2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.

The U.S. Supreme Court has also held that the ability to regulate what it calls “private conduct” is repugnant to the constitution. It is the differentiation between PRIVATE rights and PUBLIC rights, in fact, that forms the basis for enforcing your right to be left alone:

"The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned."
[City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

Only by taking on a “public character” or engaging in “public conduct” rather than a “private” character may our actions become the proper or lawful subject of federal or state legislation or regulation.

"One great object of the Constitution is to permit citizens to structure their private relations as they choose subject only to the constraints of statutory or decisional law. [500 U.S. 614, 620]

To implement these principles, courts must consider from time to time where the governmental sphere [e.g. "public purpose" and "public office"] ends and the private sphere begins. Although the conduct of private parties lies beyond the Constitution's scope in most instances, governmental authority may dominate an activity to such an extent that its participants must be deemed to act with the authority of the government and, as a result, be subject to constitutional constraints. This is the jurisprudence of state action, which explores the "essential dichotomy" between the private sphere and the public sphere, with all its attendant constitutional obligations. Moose Lodge, supra, at 172. "

*Given that the statutory authorization for the challenges exercised in this case is clear, the remainder of our state action analysis centers around the second part of the Lugar test, whether a private litigant, in all fairness, must be deemed a government actor in the use of peremptory challenges. Although we have recognized that this aspect of the analysis is often a fact-bound inquiry, see Lugar, supra, 457 U.S. at 939, our cases disclose certain principles of general application. Our precedents establish that, in determining whether a particular action or course of conduct is governmental in character, it is relevant to examine the following: the extent to which the actor relies on governmental assistance and benefits, see Tulsa Professional Collection Services, Inc. v. Pope, 485 U.S. 478 (1988); Burton v. Wilmington Parking Authority, 365 U.S. 715 (1961); whether the actor is performing a traditional governmental function, see Terry v. Adams, 345 U.S. 461 (1953); Marsh v. Alabama, 326 U.S. 501 (1946); cf. San Francisco Arts & Athletics, Inc. v. United States Olympic [500 U.S. 614, 622] Committee, 483 U.S. 522, 544 -545 (1987); and whether the injury caused is aggravated in a unique way by the incidents of governmental authority, see Shelley v. Kraemer, 334 U.S. 1 (1948). Based on our application of these three principles to the circumstances here, we hold that the exercise of peremptory challenges by the defendant in the District Court was pursuant to a course of state action.
[Edmonson v. Leesville Concrete Company, 500 U.S. 614 (1991)]

The phrase “subject only to the constraints of statutory or decisional law” refers ONLY to statutes or court decisions that pertain to licensed or privileged activities or franchises, all of which:

1. Cause the licensee or franchisee to represent a “public office” and work for the government.
2. Cause the licensee or franchisee to act in a representative capacity as an officer of the government, which is a federal corporation and therefore he or she becomes an “officer or employee of a corporation” acting in a representative capacity. See 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7434, which both define a “person” within the I.R.C. criminal and penalty provisions as an officer or employee of a corporation.
3. Change the effective domicile of the “office” or “public office” of the licensee or franchisee to federal territory pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39), and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d).

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.

(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;

(2) for a corporation [or the officers or “public officers” of the corporation], by the law under which it was organized; and

(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

(A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and

(B) 28 U.S.C. §§754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

4. Creates a “res” or “office” which is the subject of federal legislation and a “person” or “individual” within federal statutes. For instance, the definition of “individual” within 5 U.S.C. §552(a)(2) reveals that it is a government employee with a domicile in the statutory “United States”, which is federal territory. Notice that the statute below is in Title 5, which is “Government Organization and Employees”, and that “citizens and residents of the United States” share in common a legal domicile on federal territory. An “individual” is a officer of the government, and not a natural man or woman. The office is the “individual”, and not the man or woman who fills it:

TITLE 5 > PART I > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
§ 552a. Records maintained on individuals

(a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

(2) the term “individual” means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence;

If you don't maintain a domicile on federal territory, which is called the “United States” in the U.S. Code, or you don't work for the government by participating in its franchises, then the government has NO AUTHORITY to even keep records on you under the authority of the Privacy Act and you would be committing perjury under penalty of perjury to call yourself an “individual” on a government form. Why? Because you are the sovereign and the sovereign is not the subject of the law, but the author of the law!

 [United States v. Cooper Corporation, 312 U.S. 600 (1941)]*

*“There is no such thing as a power of inherent Sovereignty in the government of the United States. In this country sovereignty resides in the People, and Congress can exercise no power which they have not, by their Constitution entrusted to it: All else is withheld.”
 [Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884)]*

*“Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law for it is the author and source of law;”
 [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886)]*

“Under our form of government, the legislature is NOT supreme. It is only one of the organs of that ABSOLUTE SOVEREIGNTY which resides in the whole body of the PEOPLE; like other bodies of the government, it can only exercise such powers as have been delegated to it, and when it steps beyond that boundary, its acts.. are utterly VOID.”

1 [Billings v. Hall, 7 CA. 1]

2 "In Europe, the executive is synonymous with the sovereign power of a state...where it is too commonly
3 acquired by force or fraud, or both...In America, however the case is widely different. Our government is 4 founded upon compact. Sovereignty was, and is, in the people.
5 [The Betsy, 3 Dall 6]

6 In summary, the only way the government can control you through civil law is to connect you to public conduct or a
7 "public office" within the government executed on federal territory. If they are asserting jurisdiction that you believe they 8 don't have, it is probably because:

- 9 1. You misrepresented your domicile as being on federal territory within the "United States" or the "State of ___" by 10 declaring yourself to be either a statutory "U.S. citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 or a statutory "resident" (alien)
11 pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). This made you subject to their laws and put you into a privileged state.
- 12 2. You filled out a government application for a franchise, which includes government benefits, professional licenses, 13 driver's licenses, marriage licenses, etc.
- 14 3. Someone else filed a document with the government which connected you to a franchise, even though you never 15 consented to participate in the franchise. For instance, IRS information returns such as W-2, 1042S, 1098, and 1099
16 presumptively connect you to a "trade or business" in the U.S. government pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041. A "trade or 17 business" is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the functions of a public office". The only way to prevent this 18 evidence from creating a liability under the franchise agreement provisions is to rebut it promptly. See:

19 5.6.12.3.7 The PUBLIC You (straw man) vs. the PRIVATE You (human)

20 It is extremely important to know the difference between PRIVATE and PUBLIC "persons", because we all have private 21 and public identities. This division of our identities is recognized in the following maxim of law:

23 *When two rights [public right v. private right] concur in one person, it is the same as if they were two separate
24 persons. 4 Co. 118.

25 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

26 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

27 The U.S. Supreme Court also recognizes the division of PUBLIC v. PRIVATE:

28 "A private person cannot make constitutions or laws, nor can he with authority construe them, nor can he 29 administer or execute them."

30 [United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 1 S.Ct. 601, 27 L.Ed. 290 (1883)]

31 "All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
32 carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made
33 with [private] individuals."

34 Osborn v. Bank of U.S., [22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

36 "...we are of the opinion that there is a clear distinction in this particular between an [PRIVATE] individual
37 and a [PUBLIC] corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an
38 examination at the suit of the state. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He
39 is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no
40 duty to the state or to his neighbors to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation, so far as
41 it may tend to criminate him. He owes no such duty to the state, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond
42 the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to
43 the organization of the state, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with
44 the Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his
45 property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as
46 he does not trespass upon their rights.

47 "Upon the other hand, the [PUBLIC] corporation is a creature of the state. It is presumed to be incorporated
48 for the benefit of the public. It receives certain special privileges and franchises, and holds them subject to
49 the laws of the state and the limitations of its charter. Its powers are limited by law. It can make no contract

not authorized by its charter. Its rights to [201 U.S. 43, 75] act as a corporation are only preserved to it so long as it obeys the laws of its creation. There is a reserved right in the legislature to investigate its contracts and find out whether it has exceeded its powers. It would be a strange anomaly to hold that a state, having chartered a corporation to make use of certain franchises, could not, in the exercise of its sovereignty, inquire how these franchises had been employed, and whether they had been abused, and demand the production of the corporate books and papers for that purpose. The defense amounts to this: That an officer of a corporation which is charged with a criminal violation of the statute, may plead the criminality of such corporation as a refusal to produce its books. To state this proposition is to answer it. While an individual may lawfully refuse to answer incriminating questions unless protected by an immunity statute, it does not follow that a corporation, vested with special privileges and franchises, may refuse to show its hand when charged with an abuse of such privileges. “

[Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

The next time you are in court as a PRIVATE person, here are some questions for the next jury, judge, or government prosecutor trying to enforce a civil obligation upon you as a PRESUMED public officer called a “citizen”, “resident”, “person”, or “taxpayer”:

1. How do you, a PRIVATE human, “OBEY” a law without “EXECUTING” it? We’ll give you a hint: It CAN’T BE DONE!
2. What “public office” or franchise does the government claim to have “created” and therefore have the right to control in the context of my otherwise exclusively PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights under the Constitution?
3. Does the national government claim the right to create franchises within a constitutional state in order to tax them? The Constitution says they CANNOT and that this is an “invasion” within the meaning of Article 4, Section 4 of the Constitution:

“Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”

[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

4. Isn't a judge compelling you to violate your religious beliefs by compelling you to serve in a public office or accept the DUTIES of the office? Isn't this a violation of the First Commandment NOT to serve “other gods”, which can and does mean civil rulers or governments?

But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us.” So Samuel prayed to the Lord. And the Lord said to Samuel, “Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have rejected Me [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day—with which they have forsaken Me and served other gods [Kings, in this case]—so they are doing to you also [government becoming idolatry]. Now therefore, heed their voice. However, you shall solemnly forewarn them, and show them the behavior of the king who will reign over them.”

[1 Sam. 8:6-9, Bible, NKJV]

5. How can one UNILATERALLY ELECT themselves into public office by filling out a government form? The form isn't even signed by anyone in the government, such as a tax form or social security application, and therefore couldn't POSSIBLE be a valid contract anyway? Isn't this a FRAUD upon the United States and criminal bribery, using illegal “withholdings” to bribe someone to TREAT you as a public officer? See 18 U.S.C. §211.
6. How can a judge enforce civil statutory law that only applies to public officers without requiring proof on the record that you are CONSENSUALLY and LAWFULLY engaged in a public office? In other words, that you waived sovereign immunity by entering into a contract with the government.

"It is true, that the person who accepts an office may be supposed to enter into a compact to be answerable to the government, which he serves, for any violation of his duty; and, having taken the oath of office, he would unquestionably be liable, in such case, to a prosecution for perjury in the Federal Courts. But because one man, by his own act [CONSENT], renders himself amenable to a particular jurisdiction, shall another man, who has not incurred a similar obligation, be implicated? If, in other words, it is sufficient to vest a jurisdiction in this court, that a Federal Officer is concerned; if it is a sufficient proof of a case arising under a law of the United States to affect other persons, that such officer is bound, by law, to discharge his duty with fidelity; a source of jurisdiction is opened, which must inevitably overflow and destroy all the barriers between the judicial authorities of the State and the general government. Anything which can prevent a Federal Officer from the punctual, as well as from an impartial, performance of his duty; an assault and battery; or the recovery of a debt, as well as the offer of a bribe, may be made a foundation of the jurisdiction of this court; and, considering the constant disposition of power to extend the sphere of its influence, fictions will be resorted to, when real cases cease to occur. A mere fiction, that the defendant is in the custody of the marshal, has rendered the jurisdiction of the King's Bench universal in all personal actions."

7. Isn't this involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment to serve in a public office if you DON'T consent and they won't let you TALK about the ABSENCE of your consent?
8. Isn't it a violation of due process of law to PRESUME that you are public officer WITHOUT EVIDENCE on the record from an unbiased witness who has no financial interest in the outcome?

"A presumption is an assumption of fact that the law requires to be made from another fact or group of facts found or otherwise established in the action. A presumption is not evidence."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1185]

"If any question of fact or liability be conclusively be presumed [rather than proven] against him, this is not due process of law. [ . . . ] the presumption of innocence under which guilt must be proven by legally obtained evidence and the verdict must be supported by the evidence presented; rights at the earliest stage of the criminal process; and the guarantee that an individual will not be tried more than once for the same offence (double jeopardy).

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 500]

"A presumption is neither evidence nor a substitute for evidence."<sup>93</sup>

[American Jurisprudence 2d, Evidence, §181 (1999)]

9. If the judge won't enforce the requirement that the government as moving party has the burden of proving WITH EVIDENCE that you were LAWFULLY "appointed or elected" to a public office, aren't you therefore PRESUMED to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and therefore beyond the reach of the civil statutory law?
10. Isn't the judge criminally obstructing justice to interfere with requiring evidence on the record that you lawfully occupy a public office? See 18 U.S.C. §1503, whereby the judge is criminally "influencing" the PUBLIC you.
11. Isn't an unsupported presumption that prejudices a PRIVATE right a violation of the Constitution and doesn't the rights that UNCONSTITUTIONAL presumption prejudicially conveys to the government constitute a taking of rights without just compensation in violation of the Fifth Amendment Takings Clause?
12. How can the judge permit federal civil jurisdiction within a state, a legislatively but not constitutionally foreign jurisdiction, be permitted absent proof under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) that the party was representing a public office in the government and therefore, that the civil statutory laws of the District of Columbia/federal zone apply rather than the state in question? See the Rules of Decision Act, 28 U.S.C. §1652.
13. Even if we ARE lawfully serving in a public office, don't we have the right to:
  - 13.1. Be off duty?
  - 13.2. Choose WHEN we want to be off duty?
  - 13.3. Choose WHAT financial transactions we want to connect to the office?
  - 13.4. Be protected in NOT volunteering to connect a specific activity to the public office? Governments LIE by calling something "voluntary" and yet refuse to protect those who do NOT consent to "volunteer", don't they?

<sup>93</sup> Levasseur v. Field (Me), 332 A.2d. 765; Hinds v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co., 155 Me 349, 155 A.2d. 721, 85 A.L.R.2d. 703 (superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Poitras v. R. E. Glidden Body Shop, Inc. (Me) 430 A.2d. 1113); Connizzo v. General American Life Ins. Co. (Mo App), 520 S.W.2d. 661.

1 13.5. Not be coerced to sign up for OTHER, unrelated public offices when we sign up for a single office? For instance,
2 do we have a right not become a FEDERAL officer when we sign up for a STATE "driver license" and "public
3 office" that ALSO requires us to have a Social Security Number to get the license, and therefore to ALSO 4 become a FEDERAL officer at the same time.

5 If the answer to all the above is NO, then there ARE no PRIVATE rights or PRIVATE property and there IS no
6 "government" because governments only protect PRIVATE rights and private property!

7 We'd love to hear a jury, judge, or prosecutor address this subject before they haul him away in a straight jacket to the 8 nuthouse because of a completely irrational and maybe even criminal answer.

9 The next time you end up in front of a judge or government attorney enforcing a civil statute against you, you might want to 10 insist on proof in the record during the process of challenging jurisdiction as a defendant or respondent:

- 11 1. WHICH of the two "persons" they are addressing or enforcing against.
- 12 2. How the two statuses, PUBLIC v. PRIVATE, became connected.
- 13 3. What specific act of EXPRESS consent connected the two. PRESUMPTION alone on the part of government can't. A 14 presumption that the two became connected WITHOUT consent is an unconstitutional eminent domain in violation of 15 the Fifth Amendment Takings Clause.

16 In a criminal trial, such a question would be called a "bill of particulars".

17 We can handle private and public affairs from the private, but we cannot handle private affairs from the public. The latter is 18 one of the biggest mistakes many people make when trying to handle their commercial and lawful (private) or legal (public)
19 affairs. Those who use PUBLIC property for PRIVATE gain in fact are STEALING and such stealing has always been a 20 crime.

21 In law, all rights attach to LAND, and all privileges attach to one's STATUS under voluntary civil franchises. An example
22 of privileged statuses include "taxpayer" (under the tax code), "person", "individual", "driver" (under the vehicle code),
23 "spouse" (under the family code). Rights are PRIVATE, PRIVILEGES are PUBLIC.

24 In our society, the PRIVATE "straw man" was created by the application for the birth certificate. It is a legal person under 25 contract law and under the Uniform Commercial Code (U.C.C.), with capacity to sue or be sued under the common law. It
26 is PRIVATE PROPERTY of the human being described in the birth certificate.

27 The PUBLIC officer "straw man" (e.g. statutory "taxpayer") was created by the Application for the Social Security Card,
28 SSA Form SS-5. It is a privileged STATUS under an unconstitutional national franchise of the de facto government. It is 29 PROPERTY of the national government. The PUBLIC "straw man" is thoroughly described in:

Proof that There Is a "Straw Man", Form #05.042
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

30 The PRIVATE "John Doe" is a statutory "non-resident alien non-individual" not engaged in the "trade or 31 business"/PUBLIC OFFICER franchise in relation to the PUBLIC. He exists in the republic and is a free inhabitant under 32 the Articles of Confederation. He has inalienable rights and unlimited liabilities. Those unlimited liabilities are described 33 in

The Unlimited Liability Universe
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Spirituality/Articles/UnlimitedLiabilityUniverse.htm>

34 The PUBLIC "JOHN DOE" is a public office in the government corporation and statutory "U.S. citizen" per 8 U.S.C.
35 §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c). He exists in the privileged socialist democracy. He has "benefits", 36 franchises, obligations, immunities, and limited liability.

37 In the PRIVATE, money is an ASSET and always in the form of something that has intrinsic value, i.e. gold or silver.
38 Payment for anything is in the form of commercial set off.

1 In the PUBLIC, money is a LIABILITY or debt and normally takes the form of a promissory note, i.e. an Federal Reserve
2 Note (FRN), a check, bond or note. Payment is in the form of discharge in the future.

3 The PRIVATE realm is the basis for all contract and commerce under the Uniform Commercial Code (U.C.C.). The 4 PUBLIC realm was created by the bankruptcy of the PRIVATE entity. Generally, creditors can operate from the
5 PRIVATE. PUBLIC entities are all debtors (or slaves). The exercise of the right to contract by the PRIVATE straw man
6 makes human beings into SURETY for the PUBLIC straw man.

7 Your judicious exercise of your right to contract and the requirement for consent that protects it is the main thing that keeps
8 the PUBLIC separate from the PRIVATE. See:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

9 Be careful how you use your right to contract! It is the most DANGEROUS right you have because it can destroy ALL
10 of your PRIVATE rights by converting them to PUBLIC rights and offices.

11 "These general rules are well settled:

12 (1) That the United States, when it creates rights in individuals against itself [a "public right", which is a

5 Governments become corrupt by:

- 6 1. Refusing to recognize the PRIVATE.
- 7 2. Undermining or interfering with the invocation of the common law in courts of justice.
- 8 3. Allowing false information returns to be abused to convert the PRIVATE into the PUBLIC without the consent of the 9 owner.
- 10 4. Destroying or undermining remedies for the protection of PRIVATE rights.
- 11 5. Replacing CONSTITUTIONAL courts with LEGISLATIVE FRANCHISE courts.
- 12 6. Making judges into statutory franchisees such as "taxpayers", through which they are compelled to have a conflict of 13 interest that ultimately destroys or undermines all private rights. This is a crime and a civil offense in violation of 18
 14 U.S.C. §208, 28 U.S.C. §144, and 28 U.S.C. §455.
- 15 7. Offering or enforcing government franchises to people not domiciled on federal territory. This breaks down the 16 separation of powers and enforces franchise law extraterritorially.
- 17 8. Abusing "words of art" to blur or confuse the separation between the PUBLIC and the PRIVATE. (deception)
- 18 9. Removing the domicile prerequisite for participation in government franchises through policy and not law, thus 19 converting them into essentially PRIVATE business ventures that operate entirely through the right to contract.
- 20 10. Abusing sovereign immunity to protect PRIVATE government business ventures, thus destroying competition and 21 implementing a state-sponsored monopoly.
- 22 11. Refusing to criminally prosecute those who compel participation in government franchises.
- 23 12. Turning citizenship into a statutory franchise, and thus causing people who claim citizen status to unwittingly become 24 PUBLIC officers.
- 25 13. Allowing presumption to be used as a substitute for evidence in any proceeding to enforce government franchises
 26 against an otherwise PRIVATE party. This violates due process of law, unfairly advantages the government, and 27 imputes to the government supernatural powers as an object of religious worship.

28 Therefore, it is important to learn how to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and a CREDITOR in all of our affairs. Freedom is 29 possible in the PRIVATE; it is not even a valid fantasy in the realm of the PUBLIC.

30 Below is a summary:

1 5.6.12.3.8 All PUBLIC/GOVERNMENT law attaches to government territory, all PRIVATE law attaches to
2 your right to contract

3 A very important consideration to understand is that:

- 4 1. All EXCLUSIVELY PUBLIC LAW attaches to the government's own territory. By "PUBLIC", we mean law that 5 runs the government and ONLY the government.
6 2. All EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE law attaches to one of the following:
7 2.1. The exercise of your right to contract with others.
8 2.2. The property you own and lend out to others based on specific conditions.

9 Item 2.2 needs further attention. Here is how that mechanism works:

10 "How, then, are purely equitable obligations created? For the most part, either by the acts of third persons or 11 by equity alone. But how can one person impose an obligation upon another? By giving property to the latter
12 on the terms of his assuming an obligation in respect to it. At law there are only two means by which the 13 object of the donor could be at all accomplished, consistently with the entire ownership of the property
14 passing to the donee, namely: first, by imposing a real obligation upon the property; secondly, by subjecting
15 the title of the donee to a condition subsequent. The first of these the law does not permit; the second is 16 entirely inadequate. Equity, however, can secure most of the objects of the doner, and yet avoid the mischiefs of 17 real obligations by imposing upon the donee (and upon all persons to whom the property shall afterwards come 18 without value or with notice) a personal obligation with respect to the property; and accordingly this is what 19 equity does. It is in this way that all trusts are created, and all equitable charges made (i.e., equitable 20 hypothecations or liens created) by testators in their wills. In this way, also, most trusts are created by acts
21 inter vivos, except in those cases in which the trustee incurs a legal as well as an equitable obligation. In short,
22 as property is the subject of every equitable obligation, so the owner of property is the only person whose act
23 or acts can be the means of creating an obligation in respect to that property. Moreover, the owner of 24 property can create an obligation in respect to it in only two ways: first, by incurring the obligation himself,
25 in which case he commonly also incurs a legal obligation; secondly, by imposing the obligation upon some 26 third person; and this he does in the way just explained."
27 [Readings on the History and System of the Common Law, Second Edition, Roscoe Pound, 1925, p. 543]

28 Next, we must describe exactly what we mean by "territory", and the three types of "territory" identified by the U.S.
29 Supreme Court in relation to the term "United States". Below is how the united States Supreme Court addressed the 30 question of the meaning of the term "United States" (see Black's Law Dictionary) in the famous case of Hooven & Allison
31 Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945). The Court ruled that the term United States has three uses:

32 "The term 'United States' may be used in any one of several senses. It may be merely the name of a sovereign
33 occupying the position analogous to that of other sovereigns in the family of nations. It may designate the 34 territory over which the sovereignty of the United States extends, or it may be the collective name of the states
35 which are united by and under the Constitution."
36 [Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 \(1945\)]

37 We will now break the above definition into its three contexts and show what each means.
38

Table 5-59: Meanings assigned to "United States" by the U.S. Supreme Court in Hooven & Allison v. Evatt

#	U.S. Supreme Court Definition of "United States" in Hooven	Context in which usually used	Referred to in this article as	Interpretation
1	"It may be merely the name of a sovereign occupying the position analogous to that of other sovereigns in the family of nations."	International law	"United States"	"These united States ," when traveling abroad, you come under the jurisdiction of the President through his agents in the U.S. State Department, where "U.S." refers to the sovereign society. You are a "Citizen of the United States" like someone is a Citizen of France, or England. We identify this version of "United States" with a single asterisk after its name: "United States*" throughout this article.
2	"It may designate the territory over which the sovereignty of the United States extends, or"	Federal law Federal forms	"United States"	"The United States (the District of Columbia, possessions and territories)". Here Congress has exclusive legislative jurisdiction. In this sense, the term "United States" is a singular noun. You are a person residing in the District of Columbia, one of its Territories or Federal areas (enclaves). Hence, even a person living in the one of the sovereign States could still be a member of the Federal area and therefore a "citizen of the United States." This is the definition used in most "Acts of Congress" and federal statutes. We identify this version of "United States" with two asterisks after its name: "United States" throughout this article. This definition is also synonymous with the "United States" corporation found in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A).
3	"...as the collective name for the states which are united by and under the Constitution."	Constitution of the United States	"United States"	"The several States which is the united States of America ." Referring to the 50 sovereign States , which are united under the Constitution of the United States of America . The federal areas within these states are not included in this definition because the Congress does not have exclusive legislative authority over any of the 50 sovereign States within the Union of States . Rights are retained by the States in the 9th and 10th Amendments, and you are a " Citizen of these united States ." This is the definition used in the Constitution for the United States of America. We identify this version of "United States" with a three asterisks after its name: "United States" throughout this article.

The way our present system functions, all PUBLIC rights are attached to federal territory. They cannot lawfully attach to EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property because the right to regulate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights is repugnant to the constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Lastly, when the government enters the realm of commerce and private business activity, it operates in equity and is treated as EQUAL in every respect to everyone else. ONLY in this capacity can it enact law that does NOT attach to its own territory and to those DOMICILED on its territory:

See also Clearfield Trust Co. v. United States, 318 U.S. 363, 369 (1943) ("The United States does business on business terms") (quoting United States v. National Exchange Bank of Baltimore, 270 U.S. 527, 534 (1926)); Perry v. United States, supra at 352 (1935) ("When the United States, with constitutional authority, makes contracts, it has rights and incurs responsibilities similar to those of individuals who are parties to such instruments. There is no difference . . . except that the United States cannot be sued without its consent") (citation omitted); United States v. Bostwick, 94 U.S. 53, 66 (1877) ("The United States, when they contract with their citizens, are controlled by the same laws that govern the citizen in that behalf"); Cooke v. United States, 91 U.S. 389, 398 (1875) (explaining that when the United States "comes down from its position of sovereignty, and enters the domain of commerce, it submits itself to the same laws that govern individuals there").

See Jones, 1 Cl.Ct. at 85 ("Wherever the public and private acts of the government seem to commingle, a citizen or corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place, and then the question be determined whether the action will lie against the supposed defendant"); O'Neill v. United States, 231 Ct.Cl. 823, 826 (1982) (sovereign acts doctrine applies where, "[w]ere [the] contracts exclusively between private parties, the party hurt by such governing action could not claim compensation from the other party for the governing action"). The dissent ignores these statements (including the statement from Jones, from which case Horowitz drew its reasoning literally verbatim), when it says, post at 931, that the sovereign acts cases do not emphasize the need to treat the government-as-contractor the same as a private party. [United States v. Winstar Corp., 518 U.S. 839 (1996)].

If a government wants to reach outside its territory and create PRIVATE law for those who have not consented to its jurisdiction by choosing a domicile on its territory, the ONLY method it has for doing this is to exercise its right to contract.

Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

1 Locus contractus regit actum.

2 The place of the contract [franchise agreement, in this case] governs the act.

3 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

5 The most important method by which governments exercise their PRIVATE right to contract and disassociate with the 6 territorial limitation upon their lawmaking powers is through the use or abuse of franchises, which are contracts.

7 *As a rule, franchises spring from contracts between the sovereign power and private citizens, made upon
8 valuable considerations, for purposes of individual advantage as well as public benefit,<sup>96</sup> and thus a franchise
9 partakes of a double nature and character. So far as it affects or concerns the public, it is publici juris and is 10 subject to governmental control. The legislature may prescribe the manner of granting it, to whom it may be 11 granted, the conditions and terms upon which it may be held, and the duty of the grantee to the public in 12 exercising it, and may also provide for its forfeiture upon the failure of the grantee to perform that duty. But 13 when granted, it becomes the property of the grantee, and is a private right, subject only to the governmental 14 control growing out of its other nature as publici juris.<sup>97</sup>*

16 5.6.12.3.9 “Political (PUBLIC) law” v. “civil (PRIVATE) law”

17 Within our republican government, the founding fathers recognized three classes of law:

- 18 1. Criminal law. Protects both PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights.
- 19 2. Civil law. Protects exclusively PRIVATE rights.
- 20 3. Political law. Protects exclusively PUBLIC rights of public officers and offices within the government.

21 The above three types of law were identified in the following document upon which the founding fathers wrote the 22 constitution and based the design of our republican form of government:

The Spirit of Laws, Charles de Montesquieu, 1758

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/SpiritOfLaws/sol.htm>

23 Montesquieu defines “political law” and “political liberty” as follows:

24 1. A general Idea.

25 I make a distinction between the laws that establish political liberty, as it relates to the constitution, and those 26 by which it is established, as it relates to the citizen. The former shall be the subject of this book; the latter I
27 shall examine in the next.

30 The Constitution in turn is a POLITICAL document which represents law EXCLUSIVELY for public officers within the 31 government. It does not obligate or abrogate any PRIVATE right. It defines what the courts call “public rights”, meaning
32 rights possessed and owned exclusively by the government ONLY.

33 “And the Constitution itself is in every real sense a law-the lawmakers being the people themselves, in whom 34 under our system all political power and sovereignty primarily resides, and through whom such power and

 2 the power, required to ascertain and apply the law to the facts in every case or proceeding properly brought for
 3 adjudication, must apply the supreme law and reject the inferior stat- [298 U.S. 238, 297] ute whenever the

 5 must be given great weight, Adkins v. Children's Hospital, 261 U.S. 525, 544, 43 S.Ct. 394, 24 A.L.R. 1238; but

10 The vast majority of laws passed by Congress are what Montesquieu calls "political law" that is intended exclusively for 11 the government and not the private citizen. The authority for implementing such political law is Article 4, Section 3,
 12 Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. To wit:

13 United States Constitution
 14 Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2

15 The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the 16 Territory or other Property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so
 17 construed as to Prejudice any Claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

18 The only areas where POLITICAL law and CIVIL law overlap is in the exercise of the political rights to vote and serve on 19 jury duty. Why? Because jurists are regarded as public officers in 18 U.S.C. §201(a)(1):

20 TITLE 18 > PART I > CHAPTER 11 > § 201
 21 § 201. Bribery of public officials and witnesses

22 (a) For the purpose of this section—

23 (1) the term "public official" means Member of Congress, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, either before
 24 or after such official has qualified, or an officer or employee or person acting for or on behalf of the United
 25 States, or any department, agency or branch of Government thereof, including the District of Columbia, in any 26 official function, under or by authority of any such department, agency, or branch of Government, or a
 27 juror;

28 However, it has also repeatedly been held by the courts that poll taxes are unconstitutional. Hence, voters technically are 29 NOT to be regarded as public officers or franchisees for any purpose OTHER than their role as a voter. Recall that all
 30 statutory "Taxpayers" are public offices in the government.

31 Tax laws, for instance, are "political law" exclusively for the government or public officer and not the private citizen.
 32 Why? Because:

- 33 1. The U.S. Supreme Court identified taxes as a "political matter". "Political law", "political questions", and "political 34 matters" cannot be heard by true constitutional courts and may ONLY be heard in legislative franchise courts officiated
 35 by the Executive and not Judicial branch:

36 "Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in
 37 transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the
 38 Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates
 39 universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter
 40 obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course,
 41 the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most
 42 obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."

43 Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

- 44 2. The U.S. Tax Court:

- 45 2.1. Is an Article I Court in the EXECUTIVE and not JUDICIAL branch, and hence, can only officiate over matters
 46 INTERNAL to the government. See 26 U.S.C. §7441.
 47 2.2. Is a POLITICAL court in the POLITICAL branch of the government. Namely, the Executive branch.
 48 2.3. Is limited to the District of Columbia because all public offices are limited to be exercised there per 4 U.S.C. §72.
 49 It travels all over the country, but this is done ILLEGALLY and in violation of the separation of powers.

3. The activity subject to excise taxation is limited exclusively to “public offices” in the government, which is what a “trade or business” is statutorily defined as in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).

26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701\(a\)\(26\)

“The term ‘trade or business’ includes the performance of the functions of a public office.”

In Book XXVI, Section 15 of the Spirit of Laws, Montesquieu says that POLITICAL laws should not be allowed to regulate CIVIL conduct, meaning that POLITICAL laws limited exclusively to the government should not be enforced upon the PRIVATE citizen or made to “appear” as though they are “civil law” that applies to everyone:

The Spirit of Laws, Book XXVI, Section 15

15. That we should not regulate by the Principles of political Law those Things which depend on the Principles of civil Law.

As men have given up their natural independence to live under political laws, they have given up the natural community of goods to live under civil laws.

By the first, they acquired [PUBLIC] liberty; by the second, [PRIVATE] property. We should not decide by the laws of [PUBLIC] liberty, which, as we have already said, is only the government of the community, what ought to be decided by the laws concerning [PRIVATE] property. It is a paralogism to say that the good of the individual should give way to that of the public; this can never take place, except when the government of the community, or, in other words, the liberty of the subject is concerned; this does not affect such cases as relate to private property, because the public good consists in every one's having his property, which was given him by the civil laws, invariably preserved.

Cicero maintains that the Agrarian laws were unjust; because the community was established with no other view than that every one might be able to preserve his property.

Let us, therefore, lay down a certain maxim, that whenever the public good happens to be the matter in question, it is not for the advantage of the public to deprive an individual of his property, or even to retrench the least part of it by a law, or a political regulation. In this case we should follow the rigour of the civil law, which is the Palladium of [PRIVATE] property.

Thus when the public has occasion for the estate of an individual, it ought never to act by the rigour of political law; it is here that the civil law ought to triumph, which, with the eyes of a mother, regards every individual as the whole community.

If the political magistrate would erect a public edifice, or make a new road, he must indemnify those who are injured by it; the public is in this respect like an individual who treats with an individual. It is fully enough that it can oblige a citizen to sell his inheritance, and that it can strip him of this great privilege which he holds from the civil law, the not being forced to alienate his possessions.

After the nations which subverted the Roman empire had abused their very conquests, the spirit of liberty called them back to that of equity. They exercised the most barbarous laws with moderation: and if any one should doubt the truth of this, he need only read Beaumanoir's admirable work on jurisprudence, written in the twelfth century.

They mended the highways in his time as we do at present. He says, that when a highway could not be repaired, they made a new one as near the old as possible; but indemnified the proprietors at the expense of those who reaped any advantage from the road.<sup>43</sup> They determined at that time by the civil law; in our days, we determine by the law of politics.

The Spirit of Laws, Charles de Montesquieu, 1758, Book XXVI, Section 15; SOURCE: [http://famguardian.org/Publications/SpiritOfLaws/sol\_11.htm#001]

What Montesquieu is implying is what we have been saying all along, and he said it in 1758, which was even before the Declaration of Independence was written:

1. The purpose of establishing government is exclusively to protect PRIVATE rights.
2. PRIVATE rights are protected by the CIVIL law. The civil law, in turn is based in EQUITY rather than PRIVILEGE:

"Thus when the public has occasion for the estate of an individual, it ought never to act by the rigour of political law; it is here that the civil law ought to triumph, which, with the eyes of a mother, regards every individual as the whole community."

3. PUBLIC or government rights are protected by the PUBLIC or POLITICAL or GOVERNMENT law and NOT the CIVIL law.
4. The first and most important role of government is to prevent the POLITICAL or GOVERNMENT law from being used or especially ABUSED as an excuse to confiscate or jeopardize PRIVATE property.

Unfortunately, it is precisely the above type of corruption that Montesquieu describes that is the foundation of the present de facto government, tax system, and money system. ALL of them treat every human being as a PUBLIC officer against their consent, and impose what he calls the "rigors of the political law" upon them, in what amounts to unconstitutional eminent domain and a THEFT and CONFISCATION of otherwise PRIVATE property by enforcing PUBLIC law against PRIVATE people.

5.6.12.3.10 Lawful methods for converting PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property

Next, we must carefully consider all the rules by which EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property is lawfully converted into PUBLIC property subject to government control or civil regulation. These rules are important, because the status of a particular type of property as either PRIVATE or PUBLIC determines whether either COMMON LAW or STATUTORY LAW apply respectively.

In general, only by either accepting physical property from the government or voluntarily applying for and claiming a status or right under a government franchise can one procure a PUBLIC status and be subject to STATUTORY civil law. If one wishes to be governed ONLY by the common law, then they must make their status very clear in every interaction with the government and on EVERY government form they fill out so as to avoid connecting them to any statutory franchise.

Below is a detailed list of the rules for converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property:

1. The purpose for establishing governments is mainly to protect private property. The Declaration of Independence affirms this:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, -"
[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

2. Government protects private rights by keeping "public [government] property" and "private property" separate and never allowing them to be joined together. This is the heart of the separation of powers doctrine: separation of what is private from what is public with the goal of protecting mainly what is private. See:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. All property BEGINS as private property. The only way to lawfully change it to public property is through the exercise of your unalienable constitutional right to contract. All franchises qualify as a type of contract, and therefore, franchises are one of many methods to lawfully convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property. The exercise of the right to contract, in turn, is an act of consent that eliminates any possibility of a legal remedy of the donor against the donee:

*"Voluntati non fit injuria.
He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; 4 T. R. 657; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.*

*Consensus tollit errorem.
Consent removes or obviates a mistake. Co. Litt. 126.*

It is better to suffer every wrong or ill, than to consent to it. 3 Co. Inst. 23.*

*Nemo videtur fraudare eos qui sciunt, et consentiunt.
One cannot complain of having been deceived when he knew the fact and gave his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 145."*

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

4. In law, all rights are "property".

Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man's courtesy.

The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis. TexCiv-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607, 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

By protecting your constitutional rights, the government is protecting your PRIVATE property. Your rights are private property because they came from God, not from the government. Only what the government creates can become public property. An example is corporations, which are a public franchise that makes officers of the corporation into public officers.

5. The process of taxation is the process of converting "private property" into a "public use" and a "public purpose". Below are definitions of these terms for your enlightenment.

Public use. Eminent domain. The constitutional and statutory basis for taking property by eminent domain. For condemnation purposes, "public use" is one which confers some benefit or advantage to the public; it is not confined to actual use by public. It is measured in terms of right of public to use proposed facilities for which condemnation is sought and, as long as public has right of use, whether exercised by one or many members of public, a "public advantage" or "public benefit" accrues sufficient to constitute a public use. Montana Power Co. v. Bokma, Mont., 457 P.2d. 769, 772, 773.

Public use, in constitutional provisions restricting the exercise of the right to take property in virtue of eminent domain, means a use concerning the whole community distinguished from particular individuals. But each and every member of society need not be equally interested in such use, or be personally and directly affected by it; if the object is to satisfy a great public want or exigency, that is sufficient. Ringe Co. v. Los Angeles County, 262 U.S. 700, 43 S.Ct. 689, 692, 67 L.Ed. 1186. The term may be said to mean public usefulness, utility, or advantage, or what is productive of general benefit. It may be limited to the inhabitants of a small or restricted locality, but must be in common, and not for a particular individual. The use must be a needful one for the public, which cannot be surrendered without obvious general loss and inconvenience. A "public use" for which land may be taken defies absolute definition for it changes with varying conditions of society, new appliances in the sciences, changing conceptions of scope and functions of government, and other differing circumstances brought about by an increase in population and new modes of communication and transportation. Katz v. Brandon, 156 Conn. 521, 245 A.2d. 579, 586.

See also Condemnation; Eminent domain.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1232]

"Public purpose. In the law of taxation, eminent domain, etc., this is a term of classification to distinguish the objects for which, according to settled usage, the government is to provide, from those which, by the like usage, are left to private interest, inclination, or liberality. The constitutional requirement that the purpose of any

tax, police regulation, or particular exertion of the power of eminent domain shall be the convenience, safety, or welfare of the entire community and not the welfare of a specific individual or class of persons [such as, for instance, federal benefit recipients as individuals]. "Public purpose" that will justify expenditure of public money generally means such an activity as will serve as benefit to community as a body and which at same time is directly related function of government. Pack v. Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 Tenn. 503, 387 S.W.2d. 789, 794 .

The term is synonymous with governmental purpose. As employed to denote the objects for which taxes may be levied, it has no relation to the urgency of the public need or to the extent of the public benefit which is to follow; the essential requisite being that a public service or use shall affect the inhabitants as a community, and not merely as individuals. A public purpose or public business has for its objective the promotion of the public health, safety, morals, general welfare, security, prosperity, and contentment of all the inhabitants or residents within a given political division, as, for example, a state, the sovereign powers of which are exercised to promote such public purpose or public business."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1231, Emphasis added]

6. The federal government has no power of eminent domain within states of the Union. This means that they cannot lawfully convert private property to a public use or a public purpose within the exclusive jurisdiction of states of the Union:

"The United States have no constitutional capacity to exercise municipal jurisdiction, sovereignty, or eminent domain, within the limits of a State or elsewhere, except in cases where it is delegated, and the court denies the faculty of the Federal Government to add to its powers by treaty or compact."
[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393, 508-509 (1856)]

7. The Fifth Amendment prohibits converting private property to a public use or a public purpose without just compensation if the owner does not consent, and this prohibition applies to the Federal government as well as states of the Union. It was made applicable to states of the Union by the Fourteenth Amendment in 1868.

Fifth Amendment - Rights of Persons

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

[United States Constitution, Fifth Amendment]

If the conversion of private property to public property is done without the express consent of the party affected by the conversion and without compensation, then the following violations have occurred:

7.1. Violation of the Fifth Amendment "takings clause" above.

7.3. Theft.

8. Because taxation involves converting private property to a public use, public purpose, and public office, then it involves eminent domain if the owner of the property did not expressly consent to the taking:

Eminent domain. The power to take private property for public use by the state, municipalities, and private persons or corporations authorized to exercise functions of public character. Housing Authority of Cherokee National of Oklahoma v. Langley, Okl., 555 P.2d. 1025, 1028. Fifth Amendment, U.S. Constitution.

In the United States, the power of eminent domain is founded in both the federal (Fifth Amend.) and state constitutions. However, the Constitution limits the power to taking for a public purpose and prohibits the exercise of the power of eminent domain without just compensation to the owners of the property which is taken. The process of exercising the power of eminent domain is commonly referred to as "condemnation", or, "expropriation".

The right of eminent domain is the right of the state, through its regular organization, to reassert, either temporarily or permanently, its dominion over any portion of the soil of the state on account of public exigency and for the public good. Thus, in time of war or insurrection, the proper authorities may possess and hold any part of the territory of the state for the common safety; and in time of peace the legislature may authorize the appropriation of the same to public purposes, such as the opening of roads, construction of defenses, or providing channels for trade or travel. Eminent domain is the highest and most exact idea of property

1 remaining in the government, or in the aggregate body of the people in their sovereign capacity. It gives a right
2 to resume the possession of the property in the manner directed by the constitution and the laws of the state,
3 whenever the public interest requires it.

4 See also Adequate compensation; Condemnation; Constructive taking; Damages; Expropriation; Fair market
5 value; Just compensation; Larger parcel; Public use; Take.
6 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 470]

- 7 9. The Fifth Amendment requires that any taking of private property without the consent of the owner must involve
8 compensation. The Constitution must be consistent with itself. The taxation clauses found in Article 1, Section 8,
9 Clauses 1 and 3 cannot conflict with the Fifth Amendment. The Fifth Amendment contains no exception to the 10 requirement for just compensation upon conversion of private property to a public use, even in the case of taxation.
11 This is why all taxes must be indirect excise taxes against people who provide their consent by applying for a license to 12 engage in the taxed activity: The application for the license constitutes constructive consent to donate the fruits of the 13 activity to a public use, public purpose, and public office.
- 14 10. There is only ONE condition in which the conversion of private property to public property does NOT require 15 compensation, which is when the owner donates the private property to a public use, public purpose, or public office.
16 To wit:

17 "Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;'
18 and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a
19 man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use
20 it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL
21 SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public "benefit"]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he
22 gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public
23 may take it upon payment of due compensation."
24 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892) ]

25 The above rules are summarized below:
26

Table 5-60: Rules for converting private property to a public use or a public office

1	The owner of property justly acquired enjoys full and exclusive use and control over the property. This right includes the right to exclude government uses or ownership of said property.	Yes
2	He may not use the property to injure the equal rights of his neighbor. For instance, when you murder someone, the government can take your liberty and labor from you by putting you in jail or your life from you by instituting the death penalty against you. Both your life and your labor are "property". Therefore, the basis for the "taking" was violation of the equal rights of a fellow sovereign "neighbor".	No
3	He cannot be compelled or required to use it to "benefit" his neighbor. That means he cannot be compelled to donate the property to any franchise that would "benefit" his neighbor such as Social Security, Medicare, etc.	Yes
4	If he donates it to a public use, he gives the public the right to control that use.	Yes
5	Whenever the public needs require, the public may take it without his consent upon payment of due compensation. E.g. "eminent domain".	No

11. The following two methods are the ONLY methods involving consent of the owner that may be LAWFULLY employed to convert PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property. Anything else is unlawful and THEFT:

11.1. DIRECT CONVERSION: Owner donates the property by conveying title or possession to the government.<sup>98</sup>

11.2. INDIRECT CONVERSION: Owner assumes a PUBLIC status as a PUBLIC officer in the HOLDING of title to the property.<sup>99</sup> All such statuses and the rights that attach to it are creations and property of the government, the use of which is a privilege. The status and all PUBLIC RIGHTS that attach to it conveys a "benefit" for which the status user must pay an excise tax. The tax acts as a rental or use fee for the status, which is government property.

12. You and ONLY you can authorize your private property to be donated to a public use, public purpose, and public office. No third party can lawfully convert or donate your private property to a public use, public purpose, or public office without your knowledge and express consent. If they do, they are guilty of theft and conversion, and especially if they are acting in a quasi-governmental capacity as a "withholding agent" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16).

12.1. A withholding agent cannot file an information return connecting your earnings to a "trade or business" without you actually occupying a "public office" in the government BEFORE you filled out any tax form.

12.2. A withholding agent cannot file IRS Form W-2 against your earnings if you didn't voluntarily sign an IRS Form W-4 contract and thereby consent to donate your private property to a public office in the U.S. government and therefore a "public use".

12.3. That donation process is accomplished by your own voluntary self-assessment and ONLY by that method. Before such a self-assessment, you are a "nontaxpayer" and a private person. After the assessment, you become a "taxpayer" and a public officer in the government engaged in the "trade or business" franchise.

12.4. In order to have an income tax liability, you must complete, sign, and "file" an income tax return and thereby assess yourself:

*"Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not distraint."
[Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960)]*

By assessing yourself, you implicitly give your consent to allow the public the right to control that use of the formerly PRIVATE property donated to a public use.

<sup>98</sup> An example of direct conversion would be the process of "registering" a vehicle with the Department of Motor Vehicles in your state. The act of registration constitutes consent by original ABSOLUTE owner to change the ownership of the property from ABSOLUTE to QUALIFIED and to convey legal title to the state and qualified title to himself.

1 A THEFT of property has occurred on behalf of the government if it attempts to do any of the following:

- 2 1. Circumvents any of the above rules.
- 3 2. Blurs, confuses, or obfuscates the distinction between PRIVATE property and PUBLIC property.
- 4 3. Refuses to identify EXACTLY which of the mechanisms identified in item 10 above was employed in EACH specific
- 5 case where it:
- 6 3.1. Asserts a right to regulate the use of private property.
- 7 3.2. Asserts a right to convert the character of property from PRIVATE to PUBLIC.
- 8 3.3. Asserts a right to TAX what you THOUGHT was PRIVATE property.

9 The next time someone from the government asserts a tax obligation, you might want to ask them the following very 10 insightful questions based on the content of this section:

- 11 1. Please describe at EXACTLY what point in the taxation process my earnings were LAWFULLY converted from 12 EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE to PUBLIC and thereby became SUBJECT to civil statutory law and government
13 jurisdiction. Check one or more. If none are checked, it shall CONCLUSIVELY be PRESUMED that no tax is owed:
- 14 1.1. ___ There is no private property. EVERYTHING belongs to us and we just "RENT" it to you through taxes.
15 Hence, we are NOT a "government" because there is not private property to protect. Everything is PUBLIC 16 property by default.
- 17 1.2. ___ When I was born?
- 18 1.3. ___ When I became a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen?
- 19 1.4. ___ When I changed my domicile to a CONSTITUTIONAL and not STATUTORY "State".
- 20 1.5. ___ When I indicated "U.S. citizen" or "U.S. resident" on a government form, and the agent accepting it
21 FALSELY PRESUMED that meant I was a STATUTORY "national and citizen of the United States" per 8
22 U.S.C. §1401 rather than a CONSTITUTIONAL "citizen of the United States".
- 23 1.6. ___ When I disclosed and used a Social Security Number or Taxpayer Identification Number to my otherwise 24 PRIVATE employer?
- 25 1.7. ___ When I submitted my withholding documents, such as IRS Forms W-4 or W-8?
- 26 1.8. ___ When the information return was filed against my otherwise PRIVATE earnings that connected my 27 otherwise PRIVATE earnings to a PUBLIC office in the national government?
- 28 1.9. ___ When I FAILED to rebut the false information return connecting my otherwise PRIVATE earnings to a 29 PUBLIC office in the national government?
- 30 1.10. ___ When I filed a "taxpayer" form, such as IRS Forms 1040 or 1040NR?
- 31 1.11. ___ When the IRS or state did an assessment under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §6020(b).
- 32 1.12. ___ When I failed to rebut a collection notice from the IRS?
- 33 1.13. ___ When the IRS levied monies from my EXCLUSIVELY private account, which must be held by a PUBLIC 34 OFFICER per 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) before it can lawfully be levied?
- 35 1.14. ___ When the government decided they wanted to STEAL my money and simply TOOK it, and were protected 36 from the THEFT by a complicit Department of Justice, who split the proceeds with them?
- 37 1.15. ___ When I demonstrated legal ignorance of the law to the government sufficient to overlook or not recognize 38 that it is impossible to convert PRIVATE to PUBLIC without my consent, as the Declaration of Independence 39 requires.
- 40 2. How can the conversion from PRIVATE to PUBLIC occur without my consent and without violating the Fifth 41 Amendment Takings Clause?
- 42 3. If you won't answer the previous questions, how the HELL am I supposed to receive constitutionally mandated 43 "reasonable notice" of the following:
- 44 3.1. EXACTLY what property I exclusively own and therefore what property is NOT subject to government taxation 45 or regulation?
- 46 3.2. EXACTLY what conduct is expected of me by the law?
- 47 4. EXACTLY where in your publications is the first question answered and why should I believe it if even you refuse to 48 take responsibility for the accuracy of said publications?
- 49 5. EXACTLY where in the statutes and regulations is the first question answered?
- 50 6. How can you refuse to answer the above questions if your own mission statement says you are required to help people 51 obey the law and comply with the law?

52 5.6.12.3.11 Unlawful methods abused by government to convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property

1 There are a LOT more ways to UNLAWFULLY convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property than there are ways to do
 2 it lawfully. This section will address the most prevalent methods abused by state actors so that you will immediately
 3 recognize them when you are victimized by them. For the purposes of this section CONTROL and OWNERSHIP are
 4 synonymous. Hence, if the TITLE of the property remains in your name but there is any aspect of control over the USE of
 5 said property that does not demonstrably injure others, then the property ceases to be absolutely owned and therefore is 6 owned by the government.

7 Based on the previous section, there is ONLY one condition in which PRIVATE property can be converted to PUBLIC
 8 property without the consent of the owner, which is when it is used to INJURE the rights of others. Any other type of 9 conversion is THEFT. The U.S. Supreme Court describes that process of illegally CONVERTING property from 10 PRIVATE to PUBLIC as follows. Notice that they only reference the “citizen” as being the object of regulation, which 11 implies that those who are “nonresidents”, “transient foreigners”, and “state nationals” are beyond the control of those 12 governments in whose territory they have not chosen a civil domicile:

13 “The doctrine that each one must so use his own as not to injure his neighbor — sic utere tuo ut alienum
 14 non laedas — is the rule by which every member of society must possess and enjoy his property; and all
 15 legislation essential to secure this common and equal enjoyment is a legitimate exercise of State authority.
 16 Except in cases where property may be destroyed to arrest a conflagration or the ravages of pestilence, or be
 17 taken under the pressure of an immediate and overwhelming necessity to prevent a public calamity, the 18 power of the State over the property of the citizen [NOT EVERYONE, but only those consent to become 19 citizens by choosing a domicile] does not extend beyond such limits.”
 20 [Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876)]

21 Below is a list of the more prevalent means abused by corrupt and covetous governments to illegally convert PRIVATE
 22 property to PUBLIC PROPERTY without the express consent of the owner. Many of these techniques are unrecognizable
 23 to the average American and therefore surreptitious, which is why they continue to be abused so regularly and chronically 24 by public dis-servants:

- 25 1. Deceptively label statutory PRIVILEGES as RIGHTS.
- 26 2. Confuse STATUTORY citizenship with CONSTITUTIONAL citizenship.
- 27 3. Refuse to admit that the court you are litigating in is a FRANCHISE court that has no jurisdiction over non-franchisees 28 or people who do not consent to the franchise.
- 29 4. Abuse the words “includes” and “including” to add anything they want to the definition of “person” or “individual”
 30 within the franchise. All such “persons” are public officers and not private human beings. See:

Meaning of the Words “includes” and “including”, Form #05.014
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 31 5. Refuse to impose the burden of proof upon the government to show that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to convert 32 PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property BEFORE they can claim jurisdiction over it.
- 33 6. Silently PRESUME that the property in question is PUBLIC property connected with the “trade or business” (public 34 office per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) franchise and force you to prove that it ISN'T by CHALLENGING false
 35 information returns filed against it, such as IRS Forms W-2, 1098, 1099, and K-1. See:

Correcting Erroneous Information Returns, Form #04.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 36 7. Presume that the STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts for geographical words are the same. They are 37 NOT, and in fact are mutually exclusive.
- 38 8. Presume that because you submitted an application for a franchise, that you:
 39 8.1. CONSENTED to the franchise and were not under duress.
 40 8.2. Were requesting a “benefit” and therefore agreed to the obligations associated with the “benefit”.

41 CALIFORNIA CIVIL CODE
 42 DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
 43 PART 2. CONTRACTS
 44 CHAPTER 3. CONSENT
 45 Section 1589

46
 47 1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations
 48 arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

- 49 8.3. Agree to accept the obligations associated with the status described on the application, such as “taxpayer”, 50 “driver”, “spouse”.

If you want to prevent the above, reserve all your rights on the application, indicate duress, and define all terms on the form as NOT connected with any government or statutory law.

9. PRESUME that the OWNER has a civil statutory status that he or she did not consent to, such as:
  - 9.1. "spouse" under the family code of your state, which is a franchise.
  - 9.2. "driver" under the vehicle code of your state, which is a franchise.
  - 9.3. "taxpayer" under the tax code of your state, which is a franchise.
10. PRESUME that physical PROPERTY that is situated on federal territory to which the general and exclusive jurisdiction of the national government applies, even though it is not. This is primarily done by playing word games with geographical "words of art" such as "State" and "United States".
11. Refuse to satisfy the burden of proving that the owner of the property expressly consented in a manner that he/she prescribed to change the status of either himself or the property over which they claim a public interest.
12. Judges will interfere with attempts to introduce evidence in the proceeding that challenges any of the above presumptions.
13. Unlawfully compel the use of Social Security Numbers or Taxpayer Identification Numbers in violation of 42 U.S.C. §408(a)(8) in connection with specific property as a precondition of rendering a usually essential service. It will be illegally compelled because:
  - 13.1. The party against whom it was compelled was not a statutory "Taxpayer" or "person" or "individual" or to whom a duty to furnish said number lawfully applies.
  - 13.2. The property was not located on territory subject to the territorial jurisdiction of that national government.
14. Use one franchise as a way to recruit franchisees under OTHER franchises that are completely unrelated. For instance, they will enact a vehicle code statute that allows for confiscation of REGISTERED vehicles only that are being operated by UNLICENSED drivers. That way, everyone who wants to protect their vehicle also indirectly has to ALSO become a statutory "driver" using the public road ways for commercial activity and thus subject to regulation by the state, even though they in fact ARE NOT intending to do so.
15. Issue a license and then refuse to recognize the authority and ability in court of those possessing said license to act in an EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE capacity. For instance:
  - 15.1. They may have a contractor's license but they are NOT allowed to operate as OTHER than a licensed contractor...OR are NOT allowed to operate in an exclusively PRIVATE capacity.
  - 15.2. They may have a vehicle registration but are NOT allowed to remove it or NOT use it during times when they are NOT using the public roadways for hire, which is most of the time. In other words, the vehicle is the equivalent to "off duty" at some times. They allow police officers, who are PUBLIC officers, to be off duty, but not anyone who DOESN'T work for the government.
16. Issue or demand GOVERNMENT ID and then presume that the applicant is a statutory "resident" for ALL purposes, rather than JUST the specific reason the ID was issued. Since a "resident" is a public officer, in effect they are PRESUMING that you are a public officer 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, and that you HAVE to assume this capacity without pay or "benefit" and without the ability to quit. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002, Section 13.4

What all of the above government abuses have in common is that they do one or more of the following:

1. Involve PRESUMPTIONS which violate due process of law and are therefore UNCONSTITUTIONAL. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
2. Refuse to RECOGNIZE the existence of PRIVATE property or PRIVATE rights.
3. Violate the very purpose of establishing government to begin with, which is to PROTECT PRIVATE property by LEAVING IT ALONE and not regulating or benefitting from its use or abuse until AFTER it has been used to injure the equal rights of anyone OTHER than the original owner.
4. Violate the Unconstitutional Conditions Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court.
5. Needlessly interfere with the ownership or control of otherwise PRIVATE property.
6. Often act upon property BEFORE it is used to institute an injury, instead of AFTER. Whenever the law acts to PREVENT future harm rather than CORRECT past harm, it requires the consent of the owner. The common law itself only provides remedies for PAST harm and cannot act on future conduct, except in the case of injunctions where PAST harm is already demonstrated.
7. Institute involuntary servitude against the owner in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
8. Represent an eminent domain over PRIVATE property in violation of the state constitution in most states.
9. Violate the takings clauses of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution.

10. Violate the maxim of law that the government has a duty to protect your right to NOT receive a "benefit" and NOT pay for "benefits" that you don't want or don't need.

No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.

It ought to be obvious to the reader that the basis for Socialism is public ownership of ALL property.

"socialism n (1839) 1: any of various economic and political theories advocating collective or governmental ownership and administration of the means of production and distribution of goods 2 a: a system of society or group living in which there is no private property b: a system or condition of society in which the means of production are owned and controlled by the state 3: a stage of society in Marxist theory transitional between capitalism and communism and distinguished by unequal distribution of goods and pay according to work done."

Any system of law that recognizes no absolute and inviolable constitutional boundary between PRIVATE property and PUBLIC property, or which regards ALL property as being subject to government taxation and/or regulation is a socialist or collectivist system. That socialist system is exhaustively described in the following:

Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876)

The question presented, therefore, is one of the greatest importance, — whether it is within the competency of a State to fix the compensation which an individual may receive for the use of his own property in his private business, and for his services in connection with it.

[. . .]

139*139 The validity of the legislation was, among other grounds, assailed in the State court as being in conflict with that provision of the State Constitution which declares that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, and with that provision of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution which imposes a similar restriction upon the action of the State. The State court held, in substance, that the constitutional provision was not violated so long as the owner was not deprived of the title and possession of his property; and that it did not deny to the legislature the power to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the use and enjoyment of the property, referring, in support of the position, to instances of its action in prescribing the interest on money, in establishing and regulating public ferries and public mills, and fixing the compensation in the shape of tolls, and in delegating power to municipal bodies to regulate the charges of hackmen and draymen, and the weight and price of bread. In this court the legislation was also assailed on the same ground, our jurisdiction arising upon the clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, ordaining that no State shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. But it would seem from its opinion that the court holds that property loses something of its private character when employed in such a way as to be generally useful. The doctrine declared is that property "becomes clothed with a public interest when used in a manner to make it of public consequence, and affect the community at large;" and from such clothing the right of the legislature is deduced to control the use of the property, and to determine the compensation which the owner may receive for it. When Sir Matthew Hale, and the sages of the law in his day, spoke of property as affected by a public interest, and ceasing from that cause to

1 be juris privati solely, that is, ceasing to be held merely in private right, they referred to property dedicated by the
 2 owner to public uses, or to property the use of which was granted by the government, or in connection with which
 3 special privileges were conferred. Unless the property was thus dedicated, or some right bestowed by the
 4 government was held with the property, either by specific grant or by prescription of so long a time as 140*140 to
 5 imply a grant originally, the property was not affected by any public interest so as to be taken out of the category of
 6 property held in private right. But it is not in any such sense that the terms "clothing property with a public interest" are
 7 used in this case. From the nature of the business under consideration — the storage of grain — which, in any sense in
 8 which the words can be used, is a private business, in which the public are interested only as they are interested in the 9 storage of other products of the soil, or in articles of manufacture, it is clear that the court intended to declare that,
 10 whenever one devotes his property to a business which is useful to the public, — "affects the community at large," — the
 11 legislature can regulate the compensation which the owner may receive for its use, and for his own services in connection
 12 with it. "When, therefore," says the court, "one devotes his property to a use in which the public has an interest, he, in 13 effect, grants to the public an interest in that use, and must submit to be controlled by the public for the common good, to
 14 the extent of the interest he has thus created. He may withdraw his grant by discontinuing the use; but, so long as he
 15 maintains the use, he must submit to the control." The building used by the defendants was for the storage of grain: in such 16 storage, says the court, the public has an interest; therefore the defendants, by devoting the building to that storage, have
 17 granted the public an interest in that use, and must submit to have their compensation regulated by the legislature.

18 If this be sound law, if there be no protection, either in the principles upon which our republican government is
 19 founded, or in the prohibitions of the Constitution against such invasion of private rights, all property and all
 20 business in the State are held at the mercy of a majority of its legislature. The public has no greater interest in the use
 21 of buildings for the storage of grain than it has in the use of buildings for the residences of families, nor, indeed, anything
 22 like so great an interest; and, according to the doctrine announced, the legislature may fix the rent of all tenements used for
 23 residences, without reference to the cost of their erection. If the owner does not like the rates prescribed, he may cease
 24 renting his houses. He has granted to the public, says the court, an interest in the use of the 141*141 buildings, and "he may 25 withdraw his grant by discontinuing the use; but, so long as he maintains the use, he must submit to the control." The public
 26 is interested in the manufacture of cotton, woollen, and silken fabrics, in the construction of machinery, in the printing and
 27 publication of books and periodicals, and in the making of utensils of every variety, useful and ornamental; indeed, there is
 28 hardly an enterprise or business engaging the attention and labor of any considerable portion of the community, in
 29 which the public has not an interest in the sense in which that term is used by the court in its opinion; and the 30 doctrine which allows the legislature to interfere with and regulate the charges which the owners of property thus
 31 employed shall make for its use, that is, the rates at which all these different kinds of business shall be carried on,
 32 has never before been asserted, so far as I am aware, by any judicial tribunal in the United States.

33 The doctrine of the State court, that no one is deprived of his property, within the meaning of the constitutional
 34 inhibition, so long as he retains its title and possession, and the doctrine of this court, that, whenever one's property
 35 is used in such a manner as to affect the community at large, it becomes by that fact clothed with a public interest,
 36 and ceases to be juris privati only, appear to me to destroy, for all useful purposes, the efficacy of the constitutional
 37 guaranty. All that is beneficial in property arises from its use, and the fruits of that use; and whatever deprives a
 38 person of them deprives him of all that is desirable or valuable in the title and possession. If the constitutional
 39 guaranty extends no further than to prevent a deprivation of title and possession, and allows a deprivation of use,
 40 and the fruits of that use, it does not merit the encomiums it has received. Unless I have misread the history of the 41 provision now incorporated into all our State constitutions, and by the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments into our Federal
 42 Constitution, and have misunderstood the interpretation it has received, it is not thus limited in its scope, and thus impotent
 43 for good. It has a much more extended operation than either court, State, or Federal has given to it. The provision, it
 44 is to be observed, places property under the same protection as life and liberty. Except by due process of law, no
 45 State can 142*142 deprive any person of either. The provision has been supposed to secure to every individual the 46 essential conditions for the pursuit of happiness; and for that reason has not been heretofore, and should never be,
 47 construed in any narrow or restricted sense.

48 No State "shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law," says the Fourteenth Amendment
 49 to the Constitution. By the term "life," as here used, something more is meant than mere animal existence. The inhibition
 50 against its deprivation extends to all those limbs and faculties by which life is enjoyed. The provision equally prohibits the 51 mutilation of the body by the amputation of an arm or leg, or the putting out of an eye, or the destruction of any other organ
 52 of the body through which the soul communicates with the outer world. The deprivation not only of life, but of whatever
 53 God has given to everyone with life, for its growth and enjoyment, is prohibited by the provision in question, if its efficacy
 54 be not frittered away by judicial decision.

1 By the term "liberty," as used in the provision, something more is meant than mere freedom from physical restraint or the
 2 bounds of a prison. It means freedom to go where one may choose, and to act in such manner, not inconsistent with the 3 equal rights of others, as his judgment may dictate for the promotion of his happiness; that is, to pursue such callings and
 4 avocations as may be most suitable to develop his capacities, and give to them their highest enjoyment.

5 The same liberal construction which is required for the protection of life and liberty, in all particulars in which life
 6 and liberty are of any value, should be applied to the protection of private property. If the legislature of a State,
 7 under pretence of providing for the public good, or for any other reason, can determine, against the consent of the
 8 owner, the uses to which private property shall be devoted, or the prices which the owner shall receive for its uses, it
 9 can deprive him of the property as completely as by a special act for its confiscation or destruction. If, for instance,
 10 the owner is prohibited from using his building for the purposes for which it was designed, it is of little consequence
 11 that he is permitted to retain the 143*143 title and possession; or, if he is compelled to take as compensation for its
 12 use less than the expenses to which he is subjected by its ownership, he is, for all practical purposes, deprived of the 13 property, as effectually as if the legislature had ordered his forcible dispossession. If it be admitted that the 14 legislature has any control over the compensation, the extent of that compensation becomes a mere matter of 15 legislative discretion. The amount fixed will operate as a partial destruction of the value of the property, if it fall
 16 below the amount which the owner would obtain by contract, and, practically, as a complete destruction, if it be less
 17 than the cost of retaining its possession. There is, indeed, no protection of any value under the constitutional
 18 provision, which does not extend to the use and income of the property, as well as to its title and possession.

19 This court has heretofore held in many instances that a constitutional provision intended for the protection of rights of 20 private property should be liberally construed. It has so held in the numerous cases where it has been called upon to give
 21 effect to the provision prohibiting the States from legislation impairing the obligation of contracts; the provision being
 22 construed to secure from direct attack not only the contract itself, but all the essential incidents which give it value and
 23 enable its owner to enforce it. Thus, in Bronson v. Kinzie, reported in the 1st of Howard, it was held that an act of the 24 legislature of Illinois, giving to a mortgagor twelve months within which to redeem his mortgaged property from a judicial
 25 sale, and prohibiting its sale for less than two-thirds of its appraised value, was void as applied to mortgages executed prior
 26 to its passage. It was contended, in support of the act, that it affected only the remedy of the mortgagee, and did not impair
 27 the contract; but the court replied that there was no substantial difference between a retrospective law declaring a particular
 28 contract to be abrogated and void, and one which took away all remedy to enforce it, or encumbered the remedy with 29 conditions that rendered it useless or impracticable to pursue it. And, referring to the constitutional provision, the court said,
 30 speaking through Mr. Chief Justice Taney, that

31 "it would be unjust to the memory of the distinguished men who framed it, to suppose that it was designed to 32 *protect a mere barren and 144*144 abstract right, without any practical operation upon the business of life. It*
 33 was undoubtedly adopted as a part of the Constitution for a great and useful purpose. It was to maintain the 34 integrity of contracts, and to secure their faithful execution throughout this Union, by placing them under the 35 protection of the Constitution of the United States. And it would but Ill. become this court, under any 36 circumstances, to depart from the plain meaning of the words used, and to sanction a distinction between the 37 right and the remedy, which would render this provision illusive and nugatory, mere words of form, affording
 38 no protection and producing no practical result."

39 And in Pumpelly v. Green Bay Company, 13 Wall. 177, the language of the court is equally emphatic. That case arose in 40 Wisconsin, the constitution of which declares, like the constitutions of nearly all the States, that private property shall not
 41 be taken for public use without just compensation; and this court held that the flooding of one's land by a dam constructed
 42 across a river under a law of the State was a taking within the prohibition, and required compensation to be made to the 43 owner of the land thus flooded. The court, speaking through Mr. Justice Miller, said: —

44 "It would be a very curious and unsatisfactory result, if, in construing a provision of constitutional law, always
 45 understood to have been adopted for protection and security to the rights of the individual as against the 46 government, and which has received the commendation of jurists, statesmen, and commentators, as placing the
 47 just principles of the common law on that subject beyond the power of ordinary legislation to change or control
 48 them, it shall be held that, if the government refrains from the absolute conversion of real property to the uses
 49 of the public, it can destroy its value entirely, can inflict irreparable and permanent injury to any extent, can, in
 50 effect, subject it to total destruction without making any compensation, because, in the narrowest sense of the 51 word, it is not taken for the public use. Such a construction would pervert the constitutional provision into a
 52 restriction on the rights of the citizen, as those rights stood at the common law, instead of the government,
 53 and make it an authority for invasion of private right under the pretext of the public good, which had no
 54 warrant in the laws or practices of our ancestors."

1 The views expressed in these citations, applied to this case, would render the constitutional provision invoked by the
2 defendants effectual to protect them in the uses, income, and revenues of their property, as well as in its title and
3 possession. The construction actually given by the State court and by this court makes the provision, in the language
4 of Taney, a protection to "a mere barren and abstract right, without any practical operation upon the business of
5 life," and renders it "illusiv and nugatory, mere words of form, affording no protection and producing no practical
6 result."

7 The power of the State over the property of the citizen under the constitutional guaranty is well defined. The State may take
8 his property for public uses, upon just compensation being made therefor. It may take a portion of his property by way of 9 taxation for the support of the government. It may control the use and possession of his property, so far as may be necessary
10 for the protection of the rights of others, and to secure to them the equal use and enjoyment of their property. The doctrine
11 that each one must so use his own as not to injure his neighbor — sic utere tuo ut alienum non lædas — is the rule
12 by which every member of society must possess and enjoy his property; and all legislation essential to secure this
13 common and equal enjoyment is a legitimate exercise of State authority. Except in cases where property may be
14 destroyed to arrest a conflagration or the ravages of pestilence, or be taken under the pressure of an immediate and
15 overwhelming necessity to prevent a public calamity, the power of the State over the property of the citizen does not 16 extend beyond such limits.

17 It is true that the legislation which secures to all protection in their rights, and the equal use and enjoyment of their
18 property, embraces an almost infinite variety of subjects. Whatever affects the peace, good order, morals, and health of the 19 community, comes within its scope; and every one must use and enjoy his property subject to the restrictions which such 20 legislation imposes. What is termed the police power of the State, which, from the language often used respecting it, one
21 would suppose to be an undefined and irresponsible element in government, can only interfere with the conduct of
22 individuals in their intercourse with each other, and in the use of their property, so far 146*146 as may be required to secure
23 these objects. The compensation which the owners of property, not having any special rights or privileges from the 24 government in connection with it, may demand for its use, or for their own services in union with it, forms no
25 element of consideration in prescribing regulations for that purpose. If one construct a building in a city, the State, or
26 the municipality exercising a delegated power from the State, may require its walls to be of sufficient thickness for the uses
27 intended; it may forbid the employment of inflammable materials in its construction, so as not to endanger the safety of his
28 neighbors; if designed as a theatre, church, or public hall, it may prescribe ample means of egress, so as to afford facility for 29 escape in case of accident; it may forbid the storage in it of powder, nitro-glycerine, or other explosive material; it may 30 require its occupants daily to remove decayed vegetable and animal matter, which would otherwise accumulate and
31 engender disease; it may exclude from it all occupations and business calculated to disturb the neighborhood or infect the 32 air. Indeed, there is no end of regulations with respect to the use of property which may not be legitimately prescribed,
33 having for their object the peace, good order, safety, and health of the community, thus securing to all the equal enjoyment
34 of their property; but in establishing these regulations it is evident that compensation to the owner for the use of his
35 property, or for his services in union with it, is not a matter of any importance: whether it be one sum or another does not
36 affect the regulation, either in respect to its utility or mode of enforcement. One may go, in like manner, through the whole
37 round of regulations authorized by legislation, State or municipal, under what is termed the police power, and in no instance
38 will he find that the compensation of the owner for the use of his property has any influence in establishing them. It is only
39 where some right or privilege is conferred by the government or municipality upon the owner, which he can use in
40 connection with his property, or by means of which the use of his property is rendered more valuable to him, or he
41 thereby enjoys an advantage over others, that the compensation to be received by him becomes a legitimate matter
42 of regulation. Submission to the regulation of compensation in such cases is an implied condition 147*147 of the 43 grant, and the State, in exercising its power of prescribing the compensation, only determines the conditions upon
44 which its concession shall be enjoyed. When the privilege ends, the power of regulation ceases.

45 Jurists and writers on public law find authority for the exercise of this police power of the State and the numerous
46 regulations which it prescribes in the doctrine already stated, that everyone must use and enjoy his property consistently
47 with the rights of others, and the equal use and enjoyment by them of their property. "The police power of the State," says
48 the Supreme Court of Vermont, "extends to the protection of the lives, limbs, health, comfort, and quiet of all persons, and
49 the protection of all property in the State. According to the maxim, sic utere tuo ut alienum non lædas, which, being of 50 universal application, it must, of course, be within the range of legislative action to define the mode and manner in which
51 every one may so use his own as not to injure others." Thorpe v. Rutland & Burlington Railroad Co., 27 Vt. 149. "We think 52 it a settled principle growing out of the nature of well-ordered civil society," says the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, 53 "that every holder of property, however absolute and unqualified may be his title, holds it under the implied liability that his
54 use of it shall not be injurious to the equal enjoyment of others having an equal right to the enjoyment of their property, nor

1 injurious to the rights of the community." Commonwealth v. Alger, 7 Cush. 84. In his Commentaries, after speaking of the
2 protection afforded by the Constitution to private property, Chancellor Kent says: —

3 "But though property be thus protected, it is still to be understood that the law-giver has the right to prescribe
4 the mode and manner of using it, so far as may be necessary to prevent the abuse of the right, to the injury or
5 annoyance of others, or of the public. The government may, by general regulations, interdict such uses of
6 property as would create nuisances and become dangerous to the lives, or health, or peace, or comfort of the 7 citizens. Unwholesome trades, slaughter-houses, operations offensive to the senses, the deposit of powder, the 8 application of steam-power to propel cars, the building with combustible materials, and the burial of the dead,
9 *may all be interdicted by law, in the-midst of dense masses of population, 148*148 on the general and rational*
10 principle that every person ought so to use his property as not to injure his neighbors, and that private interests
11 must be made subservient to the general interests of the community. 2 Kent, 340.

12 The Italics in these citations are mine. The citations show what I have already stated to be the case, that the regulations
13 which the State, in the exercise of its police power, authorizes with respect to the use of property are entirely independent of 14 any question of compensation for such use, or for the services of the owner in connection with it.

15 There is nothing in the character of the business of the defendants as warehousemen which called for the interference
16 complained of in this case. Their buildings are not nuisances; their occupation of receiving and storing grain infringes upon 17 no rights of others, disturbs no neighborhood, infects not the air, and in no respect prevents others from using and enjoying
18 their property as to them may seem best. The legislation in question is nothing less than a bold assertion of absolute
19 power by the State to control at its discretion the property and business of the citizen, and fix the compensation he
20 shall receive. The will of the legislature is made the condition upon which the owner shall receive the fruits of his 21 property and the just reward of his labor, industry, and enterprise. "That government," says Story, "can scarcely
22 be deemed to be free where the rights of property are left solely dependent upon the will of a legislative body
23 without any restraint. The fundamental maxims of a free government seem to require that the rights of personal
24 liberty and private property should be held sacred." Wilkeson v. Leland, 2 Pet. 657. The decision of the court in this 25 case gives unrestrained license to legislative will.

26 The several instances mentioned by counsel in the argument and by the court in its opinion, in which legislation has fixed
27 the compensation which parties may receive for the use of their property and services, do not militate against the views I
28 have expressed of the power of the State over the property of the citizen. They were mostly cases of public ferries, bridges,
29 and turnpikes, of wharfingers, hackmen, and draymen, and of interest on money. In all these cases, except that of interest on 30 money, which I shall presently notice there was some special 149*149 privilege granted by the State or municipality; and
31 no one, I suppose, has ever contended that the State had not a right to prescribe the conditions upon which such privilege
32 should be enjoyed. The State in such cases exercises no greater right than an individual may exercise over the use of 33 his own property when leased or loaned to others. The conditions upon which the privilege shall be enjoyed being 34 stated or implied in the legislation authorizing its grant, no right is, of course, impaired by their enforcement. The 35 recipient of the privilege, in effect, stipulates to comply with the conditions. It matters not how limited the privilege
36 conferred, its acceptance implies an assent to the regulation of its use and the compensation for it. The privilege
37 which the hackman and drayman have to the use of stands on the public streets, not allowed to the ordinary coachman or 38 laborer with teams, constitutes a sufficient warrant for the regulation of their fares. In the case of the warehousemen of 39 Chicago, no right or privilege is conferred by the government upon them; and hence no assent of theirs can be alleged to 40 justify any interference with their charges for the use of their property.

41 The quotations from the writings of Sir Matthew Hale, so far from supporting the positions of the court, do not recognize 42 the interference of the government, even to the extent which I have admitted to be legitimate. They state merely that the 43 franchise of a public ferry belongs to the king, and cannot be used by the subject except by license from him, or
44 prescription time out of mind; and that when the subject has a public wharf by license from the king, or from having
45 dedicated his private wharf to the public, as in the case of a street opened by him through his own land, he must allow the 46 use of the wharf for reasonable and moderate charges. Thus, in the first quotation which is taken from his treatise De Jure
47 Maris, Hale says that the king has

48 "a right of franchise or privilege, that no man may set up a common ferry for all passengers without a
49 prescription time out of mind or a charter from the king. He may make a ferry for his own use or the use of his
50 family, but not for the common use of all the king's subjects passing that way; because it doth in consequent
51 tend to a common charge, and is become a thing of public interest and use, and every man for his passage
52 *150*150 pays a toll, which is a common charge, and every ferry ought to be under a public regulation, viz., that* 53 it give attendance at due times, keep a boat in due order, and take but reasonable toll; for if he fail in these he is 54 finable."

1 Of course, one who obtains a license from the king to establish a public ferry, at which "every man for his passage pays a
2 toll," must take it on condition that he charge only reasonable toll, and, indeed, subject to such regulations as the king may 3 prescribe.

4 In the second quotation, which is taken from his treatise De Portibus Maris, Hale says: —

5 "A man, for his own private advantage, may, in a port or town, set up a wharf or crane, and may take what
6 rates he and his customers can agree for crantage, wharfage, housellage, pesage; for he doth no more than is
7 lawful for any man to do, viz., makes the most of his own. If the king or subject have a public wharf, unto which
8 all persons that come to that port must come and unlade or lade their goods as for the purpose, because they
9 are the wharves only licensed by the king, or because there is no other wharf in that port, as it may fall out
10 where a port is newly erected, in that case there cannot be taken arbitrary and excessive duties for crantage,
11 wharfage, pesage, &c.; neither can they be enhanced to an immoderate rate, but the duties must be reasonable
12 and moderate, though settled by the king's license or charter. For now the wharf and crane and other
13 conveniencies are affected with a public interest, and they cease to be juris privati only; as if a man set out a 14 street in new building on his own land, it is now no longer bare private interest, but is affected by the public
15 interest."

16 The purport of which is, that if one have a public wharf, by license from the government or his own dedication, he must 17 exact only reasonable compensation for its use. By its dedication to public use, a wharf is as much brought under the 18 common-law rule of subjection to reasonable charges as it would be if originally established or licensed by the crown. All
19 property dedicated to public use by an individual owner, as in the case of land for a park or street, falls at once, by force of 20 the dedication, under the law governing property appropriated by the government for similar purposes.

21 I do not doubt the justice of the encomiums passed upon Sir 151*151 Matthew Hale as a learned jurist of his day; but I am
22 unable to perceive the pertinency of his observations upon public ferries and public wharves, found in his treatises on "The 23 Rights of the Sea" and on "The Ports of the Sea," to the questions presented by the warehousing law of Illinois, undertaking
24 to regulate the compensation received by the owners of private property, when that property is used for private purposes.

25 The principal authority cited in support of the ruling of the court is that of Alnutt v. Inglis, decided by the King's Bench,
26 and reported in 12 East. But that case, so far from sustaining the ruling, establishes, in my judgment, the doctrine that 27 everyone has a right to charge for his property, or for its use, whatever he pleases, unless he enjoys in connection with it
28 some right or privilege from the government not accorded to others; and even then it only decides what is above stated in
29 the quotations from Sir Matthew Hale, that he must submit, so long as he retains the right or privilege, to reasonable rates.
30 In that case, the London Dock Company, under certain acts of Parliament, possessed the exclusive right of receiving
31 imported goods into their warehouses before the duties were paid; and the question was whether the company was bound to 32 receive them for a reasonable reward, or whether it could arbitrarily fix its compensation. In deciding the case, the Chief
33 Justice, Lord Ellenborough, said: —

34 "There is no doubt that the general principle is favored, both in law and justice, that every man may fix what
35 price he pleases upon his own property, or the use of it; but if, for a particular purpose, the public have a right
36 to resort to his premises and make use of them, and he have a monopoly in them for that purpose, if he will take
37 the benefit of that monopoly, he must, as an equivalent, perform the duty attached to it on reasonable terms."

38 And, coming to the conclusion that the company's warehouses were invested with "the monopoly of a public privilege," he
39 held that by law the company must confine itself to take reasonable rates; and added, that if the crown should thereafter
40 think it advisable to extend the privilege more generally to other persons and places, so that the public would not be
41 restrained from exercising a choice of warehouses for the purpose, the company might be enfranchised from the restriction
42 which 152*152 attached to a monopoly; but, so long as its warehouses were the only places which could be resorted to for 43 that purpose, the company was bound to let the trade have the use of them for a reasonable hire and reward. The other
44 judges of the court placed their concurrence in the decision upon the ground that the company possessed a legal monopoly
45 of the business, having the only warehouses where goods imported could be lawfully received without previous payment of 46 the duties. From this case it appears that it is only where some privilege in the bestowal of the government is enjoyed in 47 connection with the property, that it is affected with a public interest in any proper sense of the terms. It is the public
48 privilege conferred with the use of the property which creates the public interest in it.

49 In the case decided by the Supreme Court of Alabama, where a power granted to the city of Mobile to license bakers, and to
50 regulate the weight and price of bread, was sustained so far as regulating the weight of the bread was concerned, no
51 question was made as to the right to regulate the price. 3 Ala. 137. There is no doubt of the competency of the State to 52 prescribe the weight of a loaf of bread, as it may declare what weight shall constitute a pound or a ton. But I deny the power

1 of any legislature under our government to fix the price which one shall receive for his property of any kind. If the power
2 can be exercised as to one article, it may as to all articles, and the prices of everything, from a calico gown to a city
3 mansion, may be the subject of legislative direction.

4 Other instances of a similar character may, no doubt, be cited of attempted legislative interference with the rights of
5 property. The act of Congress of 1820, mentioned by the court, is one of them. There Congress undertook to confer upon
6 the city of Washington power to regulate the rates of wharfage at private wharves, and the fees for sweeping chimneys.
7 Until some authoritative adjudication is had upon these and similar provisions, I must adhere, notwithstanding the
8 legislation, to my opinion, that those who own property have the right to fix the compensation at which they will allow its
9 use, and that those who control services have a right to fix the compensation at which they will be rendered. The chimney-
10 sweeps may, I think, safely claim all the compensation which 153*153 they can obtain by bargain for their work. In the 11 absence of any contract for property or services, the law allows only a reasonable price or compensation; but what is a
12 reasonable price in any case will depend upon a variety of considerations, and is not a matter for legislative determination.

13 The practice of regulating by legislation the interest receivable for the use of money, when considered with reference
14 to its origin, is only the assertion of a right of the government to control the extent to which a privilege granted by it
15 may be exercised and enjoyed. By the ancient common law it was unlawful to take any money for the use of money;
16 all who did so were called usurers, a term of great reproach, and were exposed to the censure of the church; and if,
17 after the death of a person, it was discovered that he had been a usurer whilst living, his chattels were forfeited to 18 the king, and his lands escheated to the lord of the fee. No action could be maintained on any promise to pay for the 19 use of money, because of the unlawfulness of the contract. Whilst the common law thus condemned all usury,
20 Parliament interfered, and made it lawful to take a limited amount of interest. It was not upon the theory that the 21 legislature could arbitrarily fix the compensation which one could receive for the use of property, which, by the
22 general law, was the subject of hire for compensation, that Parliament acted, but in order to confer a privilege which
23 the common law denied. The reasons which led to this legislation originally have long since ceased to exist; and if the 24 legislation is still persisted in, it is because a long acquiescence in the exercise of a power, especially when it was 25 rightfully assumed in the first instance, is generally received as sufficient evidence of its continued lawfulness. 10
26 Bac. Abr. 264.*]

27 There were also recognized in England, by the ancient common law, certain privileges as belonging to the lord of the 28 manor, which grew out of the state of the country, the condition of the people, and the relation existing between him and
29 154*154 his tenants under the feudal system. Among these was the right of the lord to compel all the tenants within his 30 manor to grind their corn at his mill. No one, therefore, could set up a mill except by his license, or by the license of the 31 crown, unless he claimed the right by prescription, which presupposed a grant from the lord or crown, and, of course, with
32 such license went the right to regulate the tolls to be received. Woolrych on the Law of Waters, c. 6, of Mills. Hence
33 originated the doctrine which at one time obtained generally in this country, that there could be no mill to grind corn for the 34 public, without a grant or license from the public authorities. It is still, I believe, asserted in some States. This doctrine
35 being recognized, all the rest followed. The right to control the toll accompanied the right to control the establishment of 36 the mill.

37 It requires no comment to point out the radical differences between the cases of public mills and interest on money, and that 38 of the warehouses in Chicago. No prerogative or privilege of the crown to establish warehouses was ever asserted at the 39 common law. The business of a warehouseman was, at common law, a private business and is so in its nature. It has 40 no special privileges connected with it, nor did the law ever extend to it any greater protection than it extended to all
41 other private business. No reason can be assigned to justify legislation interfering with the legitimate profits of that 42 business, that would not equally justify an intermeddling with the business of every man in the community, so soon,
43 at least, as his business became generally useful.

44 5.6.12.3.12 The public office is a “fiction of law”

45 The fictitious public office and “trade or business” to which all the government’s enforcement rights attach is called a
46 “fiction of law” by some judges. Here is the definition:

47 “Fiction of law. An assumption or supposition of law that something which is or may be false is true, or that a state of facts exists which
48 has never really taken place. An assumption [PRESUMPTION], for purposes of justice, of a fact that does not or may not exist. A rule
49 of law which assumes as true, and will not allow to be disproved, something which is false, but not impossible. Ryan v. Motor Credit
50 Co., 30 N.J.Eq. 531, 23 A.2d. 607, 621. These assumptions are of an innocent or even beneficial character, and are made for the 51 advancement of the ends of justice. They secure this end chiefly by the extension of procedure from cases to which it is applicable to other cases to which it is not strictly applicable, the ground of inapplicability being some difference of an immaterial character. See also Legal fiction." [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 623]

The key elements of all fictions of law from the above are:

1. A PRESUMPTION of the existence or truth of an otherwise nonexistent thing.
2. The presumptions are of an INNOCENT or BENEFICIAL character.
3. The presumptions are made for the advancement of the ends of justice.
4. All of the above goals are satisfied against BOTH parties to the dispute, not just the government. Otherwise the constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal treatment has been transgressed.

The fictitious public office that forms the heart of the modern SCAM income tax clearly does not satisfy the elements for being a "fiction of law" because:

1. All presumptions that violate due process of law or result in an injury to EITHER party affected by the presumption are unconstitutional. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. The presumption does not benefit BOTH parties to a dispute that involves it. It ONLY benefits the government at the expense of innocent nontaxpayers and EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE parties.
3. The presumption of the existence of the BOGUS office does NOT advance justice for BOTH parties who to any dispute involving it. The legal definition of justice is the RIGHT TO BE LEFT ALONE. The presumption of the existence of the BOGUS office ensures that those who do not want to volunteer for the office but who are the subject of FALSE information returns are NEVER left alone and are continually harassed illegally by the IRS. Here is the legal definition of "justice" so you can see for yourself:

"PAULSEN, ETHICS (Thilly's translation), chap. 9.

Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the lives and interests of others [INCLUDING us], and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue springs from the individual's respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co equals. The different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one's life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual's own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right."

[Readings on the History and System of the Common Law, Second Edition, Roscoe Pound, 1925, p. 2]

Therefore it is clearly a CRUEL FRAUD for any judge to justify his PRESUMPTION of the existence of the BOGUS public office that is the subject of the excise tax by calling it a "fiction of law".

If you want to see an example of WHY this fiction of law was created as a way to usurp jurisdiction, read the following U.S. Supreme Court cite:

"It is true, that the person who accepts an office may be supposed to enter into a compact to be answerable to the government, which he serves, for any violation of his duty; and, having taken the oath of office, he would unquestionably be liable, in such case, to a prosecution for perjury in the Federal Courts. But because one man, by his own act, renders himself amenable to a particular jurisdiction, shall another man, who has not incurred a similar obligation, be implicated? If, in other words, it is sufficient to vest a jurisdiction in this court, that a Federal Officer is concerned; if it is a sufficient proof of a case arising under a law of the United States to affect other persons, that such officer is bound, by law, to discharge his duty with fidelity; a source of jurisdiction is opened, which must inevitably overflow and destroy all the barriers between the judicial authorities of the State and the general government. Anything which can prevent a Federal Officer from the punctual, as well as from an impartial, performance of his duty; an assault and battery; or the recovery of a debt, as well as the offer of a bribe, may be made a foundation of the jurisdiction of this court; and, considering the constant disposition of power to extend the sphere of its influence, fictions will be resorted to, when real cases cease to occur. A mere fiction, that the defendant is in the custody of the marshal, has rendered the jurisdiction of the King's Bench universal in all personal actions."

[United States v. Worrall, 2 U.S. 384 (1798)]

2 The reason for the controversy in the above case was that the bribe occurred on state land by a nonresident domiciled in the
3 state, and therefore that federal law did not apply. In the above case, the court admitted that a "fiction" was resorted to
4 usurp jurisdiction because no legal authority could be found. The fact that the defendant was in custody created the 5 jurisdiction. It didn't exist before they KIDNAPPED him. Notice also that they mention an implied "compact" or contract
6 related to the office being exercised, and that THAT compact was the source of their jurisdiction over the officer who was 7 bribed. This is the SAME contract to which all those who engage in a statutory "trade or business" are party to.

8 5.6.12.4 Synonyms for "trade or business"

9 Another important concept we need to be very aware of is that there are also synonyms for "trade or business" used within 10 the Internal Revenue Code.

11 5.6.12.4.1.1 "wages"

12 The term "wages" is synonymous with a "trade or business". Below is the proof from 26 U.S.C. §3401, where it says that 13 earnings not in the course of an employer's "trade or business" are exempted from "wages".

14 TITLE 26 > Subtitle C > CHAPTER 24 > § 3401
15 § 3401. Definitions

16 (a) Wages

17 For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public
18 official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration
19 *(including benefits) paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration
20 paid—

21 [. . .]

22 (4) for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed in any calendar quarter by an
23 employee, unless the cash remuneration paid for such service is $50 or more and such service is performed by 24 an individual who is regularly employed by such employer to perform such service. For purposes of this 25 paragraph, an individual shall be deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter 26 only if—

27 (A) on each of some 24 days during such quarter such individual performs for such employer for some portion 28 of the day service not in the course of the employer's trade or business; or

29 (B) such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (A)) by such employer in the 30 performance of such service during the preceding calendar quarter; or

31 (11) for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, to the extent paid in any medium other
32 than cash; or

33 The above is also completely consistent with the IRS Form W-2 itself, which is an information return that 26 U.S.C. §6041
34 says may ONLY be filed to document earnings in excess of $600 in the course of a "trade or business".

35 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 61 > Subchapter A > PART III > Subpart B > § 6041
36 § 6041. Information at source

37 (a) Payments of $600 or more

38 All persons engaged in a trade or business and making payment in the course of such trade or business to
39 another person, of rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or 40 other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments to which section 6042 (a)(1), 6044
41 (a)(1), 6047 (e), 6049 (a), or 6050N (a) applies, and other than payments with respect to which a statement is 42 required under the authority of section 6042 (a)(2), 6044 (a)(2), or 6045), of $600 or more in any taxable year,
43 or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States
44 having information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations
45 hereinafter provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Secretary, under such regulations and

in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains, profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

So if you aren't engaged in a "trade or business", then your private employer cannot lawfully or truthfully report "wages" on an IRS Form W-2 in connection with you. If they do, they are in criminal violation of 26 U.S.C. §7207, which provides for a $10,000 fine and imprisonment for up to one year for filing a false information return such as a W-2.

Those who do not serve in a "public office" therefore can only earn "wages" if they sign an agreement and stipulate to call their PRIVATE earnings wages. In the absence of such an agreement, it is false and fraudulent and a criminal offense to report any amount other than ZERO on an IRS Form W-2 in connection with a person who is not engaged in a "trade or business". These conclusions are confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1:

Title 26: Internal Revenue

PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE

Subpart E—Collection of Income Tax at Source

(a) In general. An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of §31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. See §31.3405(c)-1, Q&A-3 concerning agreements to have more than 20-percent Federal income tax withheld from eligible rollover distributions within the meaning of section 402.

(b) Form and duration of agreement

(2) An agreement under section 3402 (p) shall be effective for such period as the employer and employee mutually agree upon. However, either the employer or the employee may terminate the agreement prior to the end of such period by furnishing a signed written notice to the other. Unless the employer and employee agree to an earlier termination date, the notice shall be effective with respect to the first payment of an amount in respect of which the agreement is in effect which is made on or after the first "status determination date" (January 1, May 1, July 1, and October 1 of each year) that occurs at least 30 days after the date on which the notice is furnished. If the employee executes a new Form W-4, the request upon which an agreement under section 3402 (p) is based shall be attached to, and constitute a part of, such new Form W-4.

(a) In general. Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term "wages" includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3).

(b) Remuneration for services. (1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the amounts referred to in paragraph (a) of this section include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for an employer which, without regard to this section, does not constitute wages under section 3401(a). For example, remuneration for services performed by an agricultural worker or a domestic worker in a private home (amounts which are specifically excluded from the definition of wages by section 3401(a) (2) and (3), respectively) are amounts with respect to which a voluntary withholding agreement may be entered into under section 3402(p). See §§31.3401(c)-1 and 31.3401(d)-1 for the definitions of "employee" and "employer".

If you do not give your private employer an IRS Form W-4 or if it is signed under duress and indicates so, it is a criminal offense to report anything other than ZERO on any IRS Form W-2 that is sent to the IRS. Even if the IRS orders the private employer to withhold at single zero, he can STILL only withhold on "wages", which are ZERO for a person who never signed or submitted an IRS Form W-4. 100% of ZERO is still ZERO. Furthermore, nothing signed under any threat of duress, such as a threat to either fire you or not hire you for refusing to sign and submit an IRS Form W-4 can be described as a "voluntary agreement" pursuant to any of the above regulations and anyone who concludes otherwise is engaged in a criminal conspiracy against your rights. This is ESPECIALLY true if they are acting under the "color of law" as a voluntary officer of the government, such as an "employer"..

1 "An agreement [consent] obtained by duress, coercion, or intimidation is invalid, since the party coerced is not
 2 exercising his free will, and the test is not so much the means by which the party is compelled to execute the
 3 agreement as the state of mind induced.<sup>100</sup> Duress, like fraud, rarely becomes material, except where a contract
 4 or conveyance has been made which the maker wishes to avoid. As a general rule, duress renders the contract
 5 or conveyance voidable, not void, at the option of the person coerced,<sup>101</sup> and it is susceptible of ratification.
 6 Like other voidable contracts, it is valid until it is avoided by the person entitled to avoid it.<sup>102</sup> However, duress
 7 in the form of physical compulsion, in which a party is caused to appear to assent when he has no intention of 8 doing so, is generally deemed to render the resulting purported contract void.<sup>103</sup>"
 9 [American Jurisprudence 2d, Duress, §21 (1999)]

10 Yet another confirmation of the conclusions of this section is found in the Individual Master File (IMF) that the IRS uses to 11 maintain a record of your tax liability. The amount of "taxable income" is called NOT "income", but "wages" at the end of 12 the report! Quite telling. See for yourself:

Master File Decoder

<http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Programs/MFDecoder/MFDecoder.htm>

13 5.6.12.4.2 "personal services"

14 The term "personal services" in nearly all cases where it is used in the code means "work performed by an individual in 15 connection with a trade or business". Here is an example:

16 26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.469-9 Rules for certain rental real estate activities.

17 (b)(4) PERSONAL SERVICES.

18 Personal services means any work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business.
 19 However, personal services do not include any work performed by an individual in the individual's capacity as
 20 an investor as described in section 1.469-5T(f)(2)(ii).

21 The only place in the code where "personal services" is mentioned outside the context of a "trade or business" is the case
 22 where earnings from it are NOT taxable:

23 26 U.S.C. §861 Income from Sources Within the United States

24 (a)(3) "...Compensation for labor or personal services performed in the United States shall not be deemed to be 25 income from sources within the United States if-

26 (C) the compensation for labor or services performed as an employee of or under contract with--

27 (i) a nonresident alien...not engaged in a trade or business in the United States..."

28 Therefore, whenever you see the term "personal services", it means "work performed by an individual in connection with a
 29 'trade or business'" unless specifically defined otherwise. This will become very important when we are talking about 30 earnings of "U.S. citizens" who are abroad.

31 5.6.12.4.3 "United States"

32 The term "sources within the United States" is also a synonym for "trade or business" under the I.R.C. in most cases.

 2 §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) is also treated as “effectively connected with a trade or business”.

3 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART I > § 864
 4 §864. Definitions and special rules

5 (c) Effectively connected income, etc.

6 (3) Other income from sources within United States

7 All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which
 8 paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within
 9 the United States.

10 Therefore, whenever you see the phrase “sources within the United States” associated with any earnings, then indirectly, it
 11 is being associated with a “trade or business”. This is the case for 26 U.S.C. §871(a), which identifies income of 12 “nonresident aliens” only from within the statutory “United States**” (federal territory) that is not connected to a “trade or 13 business”. 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3) says that this income is ALSO connected with a trade or business if it was derived from 14 sources within the statutory but not constitutional “United States**” (federal territory). 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(2) identifies all
 15 sources of income not associated with a “trade or business” and they include ONLY:

- 16 1. 26 U.S.C. §871(a)(1): Income of nonresident aliens other than capital gains derived from patents, copyrights, sale of 17 original issue discounts, gains described in I.R.C. 631(b) or (c), interest, dividends, rents, salaries, premiums, annuities
 18 from sources within the statutory “United States” (federal territory).
- 19 2. 26 U.S.C. §871(h): Earnings of nonresident aliens from portfolio debt instruments
- 20 3. 26 U.S.C. §881(a): Earnings of foreign corporations from patents, copyrights, gains, and interest not connected with a 21 trade or business.

22 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) define the statutory “United States**” in a “geographical sense”
 23 only as being federal territories and possessions.

 35 CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES
 36 Sec. 110. Same; definitions

37 (d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

38 However, I.R.C. Section 864 above does not directly state or imply a "geographical sense", so it may have some other
 39 undefined meaning. We allege that the ONLY way that working for a living can be an excise taxable privilege or "trade or 40 business" is where the Constitution itself, in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 requires all "public offices" ("trades or 41 businesses"), to be exercised, which is the District of Columbia:

42 United States Constitution
 43 Article I: Legislative Department

Section 8: Powers of Congress
 Clause 17: Seat of Government

Congress shall have power * * * To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards, and other needful Buildings.

Since accepting a public office in the federal government is a voluntary act, then the tax is voluntary. If you don't want to pay it, you don't accept or run for the office. In furtherance of the above, 4 U.S.C. §72 requires all "public offices" that are the subject of the tax upon a "trade or business" to be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and NOT elsewhere, except as "expressly provided by law":

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
§ 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

Therefore, all persons engaged in public offices MUST serve ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, and there is no enactment of Congress authorizing them to serve in any state of the Union. Therefore, the term "United States" as used throughout Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A:

1. Does not imply a "geographical sense", because that phrase is never used in combination with the term "United States" anywhere we could find. Instead, this definition is a red herring.
2. Does not imply any state of the Union or any part of any state of the Union.

Federal Enforcement Authority Within States of the Union, Form #05.032
3. Implies the United States government or "national government" and not the "federal government" of the states of the Union. See Federalist Paper #39 for details.
4. Applies only to persons domiciled on federal territory called the "United States" and subject to the exclusive or general or plenary jurisdiction of Congress. 26 U.S.C. §911\(d\)\(3\) requires that a person cannot have a "tax home" unless their "abode", meaning "domicile" is within the "United States". The tax is applied against the "tax home" of the "individual", which individual is a "public officer" within the United States government. States of the Union are not "territory" as that word is correctly understood within American legal jurisprudence.

Consequently, "sources within the United States*****" really refers to payments to or from the U.S. government, all of which are enumerated and described and listed in 26 U.S.C. §871 in the context of "nonresident aliens". I.R.C., Subtitle A is therefore a "kickback program" for federal instrumentalities, domiciliaries, franchises, and employees, and the "profit and loss" statement for these instrumentalities is IRS Form 1040. The tax is on the "profit" of these instrumentalities, which the I.R.S. calls "income". 26 U.S.C. §643\(b\) confirms that "income" means the earnings of a trust or estate connected with a public office and NOT all earnings. That "trust" is the "public trust". Government is a "public trust" per Executive Order 12731 and 5 C.F.R. §2635.101(a). If you never received a payment from the government or accepted a payment on behalf of the government while acting in a representative capacity as a "public officer", then we allege that you cannot be a "taxpayer" or have a tax liability pursuant to I.R.C., Subtitle A This is also consistent with the holding of the U.S. Supreme Court on this subject:

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'"

Downes v. Bidwell, [182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

The conclusions of this section are also consistent with 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\) and 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\), which both effectively kidnap a "taxpayers" identity and move it to the District of Columbia for the purposes of I.R.C., Subtitle A. The "citizen" and "resident" they are talking about in these statutes are statutory and not constitutional "citizens" and "residents" which rely on the statutory term "United States", which means a person domiciled on federal territory and NOT domiciled within any state of the Union. Why would they need such a provision and why would they try to fool you into declaring yourself to be a "U.S. citizen" using their deceptive forms if they REALLY had jurisdiction within states of the Union? More about this later.

5.6.12.4.4 Statutory "citizen of the United States**" or "U.S.** citizen"

You may wonder as we have how it is that Congress can make it a crime to falsely claim to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" in 18 U.S.C. §911.

TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 43 > § 911
§ 911. Citizen of the United States

Whoever falsely and willfully represents himself to be a citizen of the United States[**] shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

The reason is that you cannot tax or regulate something until abusing it becomes harmful. A "license", after all, is legally defined as permission from the state to do that which is otherwise illegal or harmful or both. And of course, you can only tax or regulate things that are harmful and licensed. Hence, they had to:

1. Create yet another franchise.
2. Attach a "status" to the franchise called "citizen of the United States**", where "United States" implies the GOVERNMENT and not any geographical place.
3. Criminalize the abuse of the "status" and the rights that attach to the status.
4. Make adopting the status entirely discretionary on the part of those participating. Hence, invoking the "status" and the "benefits" and "privileges" associated with the status constitutes constructive consent to abide by all the statutes that regulate the status.

California Civil Code
DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
PART 2. CONTRACTS
TITLE 1. NATURE OF A CONTRACT
CHAPTER 3. CONSENT

1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

[SOURCE:

<http://www.leginfo.ca.gov/cgi-bin/displaycode?section=civ&group=01001-02000&file=1565-1590>]

5. Impose a tax or fine or "licensing fee" for those adopting or invoking the status. That tax, in fact, is the federal income tax codified in I.R.C., Subtitle A.

Every type of franchise works and is implemented exactly the same way, and the statutory "U.S. citizen" or "citizen of the United States**" franchise is no different. This section will prove that being a "citizen of the United States**" under the I.R.C. is, in fact, a franchise, that the franchise began in 1924 by judicial pronouncement, and that because the status is a franchise and all franchises are voluntary, you don't have to participate, accept the "benefits", or pay for the costs of the franchise if you don't consent.

As you will eventually learn, one becomes a "citizen" in a common law or constitutional sense by being born or naturalized in a country and exercising their First Amendment right of political association by voluntarily choosing a national and a municipal domicile in that country. How can Congress criminalize the exercise of the First Amendment right to politically associate with a "state" and thereby become a citizen? After all, the courts have routinely held that Congress cannot criminalize the exercise of a right protected by the Constitution.

"It is an unconstitutional deprivation of due process for the government to penalize a person merely because he has exercised a protected statutory or constitutional right. United States v. Goodwin, 457 U.S. 368, 372, 102 S.Ct. 2485, 2488, 73 L.Ed.2d. 74 (1982)."
[People of Territory of Guam v. Fegurgur, 800 F.2d. 1470 (9th Cir. 1986)]

Even the U.S. Code recognizes the protected First Amendment right to not associate during the passport application process. Being a statutory and not constitutional "citizen" is an example of type of membership, because domicile is civil membership in a territorial community usually called a county, and you cannot be a "citizen" without a domicile:

§ 2721. Impermissible basis for denial of passports

A passport may not be denied issuance, revoked, restricted, or otherwise limited because of any speech, activity, belief, affiliation, or membership, within or outside the United States, which, if held or conducted within the United States, would be protected by the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The answer to how Congress can criminalize the exercise of a First Amendment protected right of political association that is the foundation of becoming a "citizen" therefore lies in the fact that the statutory "U.S.** citizen" mentioned in 18 U.S.C. §911 is not a constitutional citizen protected by the Constitution, but rather is:

1. Not a human being or a private person but a statutory creation of Congress. The ability to regulate private conduct, according to the U.S. Supreme Court, is repugnant to the U.S. Constitution and therefore Congress can ONLY regulate public conduct and the public offices and franchises that it creates.

"The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned."
[City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

2. A statutory franchise and a federal corporation created on federal territory and domiciled there. Notice the key language "Whenever the public and private acts of the government seem to commingle [in this case, through the offering and enforcement of PRIVATE franchises to the public at large such as income taxes], a citizen or corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place..." What Congress did was perform this substitution in the franchise agreement itself (the I.R.C.) BEFORE the controversy ever even reached the court such that this judicial doctrine could be COVERTLY applied! They want to keep their secret weapon secret.

See also Clearfield Trust Co. v. United States, 318 U.S. 363, 369 (1943) ("The United States does business on business terms") (quoting United States v. National Exchange Bank of Baltimore, 270 U.S. 527, 534 (1926)); Perry v. United States, supra at 352 (1935) ("When the United States, with constitutional authority, makes contracts for franchises, it has rights and incurs responsibilities similar to those of individuals who are parties to such instruments. There is no difference . . . except that the United States cannot be sued without its consent") (citation omitted); United States v. Bostwick, 94 U.S. 53, 66 (1877) ("The United States, when they contract with their citizens, are controlled by the same laws that govern the citizen in that behalf"); Cooke v. United States, 91 U.S. 389, 398 (1875) (explaining that when the United States "comes down from its position of sovereignty, and enters the domain of commerce, it submits itself to the same laws that govern individuals there").

See Jones, 1 Cl.Ct. at 85 ("Wherever the public and private acts of the government seem to commingle, a citizen or corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place, and then the question be determined whether the action will lie against the supposed defendant");

O'Neill v. United States, 231 Ct.Cl. 823, 826 (1982) (sovereign acts doctrine applies where, "[w]here [the] contracts exclusively between private parties, the party hurt by such governing action could not claim compensation from the other party for the governing action"). The dissent ignores these statements (including the statement from Jones, from which case Horowitz drew its reasoning literally verbatim), when it says, post at 931, that the sovereign acts cases do not emphasize the need to treat the government-as-contractor the same as a private party.

[United States v. Winstar Corp., 518 U.S. 839 (1996)]

3. Property of the U.S. government. All franchises and statuses incurred under franchises are property of the government grantor. The government has always had the right to criminalize abuses of its property.
4. A public office in the government like all other franchise statuses.
5. An officer of a corporation, which is "U.S. Inc." and is described in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). All federal corporations are "citizens", and therefore a statutory "U.S. citizen" is really just the corporation that you are representing as a public officer.

"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."

[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

Ordinarily, and especially in the case of states of the Union, domicile within that state by the state "citizen" is the determining factor as to whether an income tax is owed to the state by that citizen:

"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

"Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."

[Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

We also establish the connection between domicile and tax liability in the following article.

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed that the statutory "citizen of the United States**" mentioned in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §911 and at 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) is not associated with either domicile OR with constitutional citizenship (nationality) of the human being who is the "taxpayer" in the following case. The party they mentioned, Cook, was domiciled within Mexico at the time, which meant he was NOT a statutory "citizen of the United States**" under the Internal Revenue Code but rather a "non-resident non-person". However, because he CLAIMED to be a statutory "citizen of the United States**" and the Supreme Court colluded with that FRAUD, they treated him as one ANYWAY.

*We may make further exposition of the national power as the case depends upon it. It was illustrated at once in United States v. Bennett by a contrast with the power of a state. It was pointed out that there were limitations upon the latter that were not on the national power. The taxing power of a state, it was decided, encountered at its borders the taxing power of other states and was limited by them. There was no such limitation, it was pointed out, upon the national power, and that the limitation upon the states affords, it was said, no ground for constructing a barrier around the United States, 'shutting that government off from the exertion of powers which inherently belong to it by virtue of its sovereignty.'

1 "The contention was rejected that a citizen's property without the limits of the United States derives no
 2 benefit from the United States. The contention, it was said, came from the confusion of thought in 'mistaking
 3 the scope and extent of the sovereign power of the United States as a nation and its relations to its citizens and
 4 their relation to it.' And that power in its scope and extent, it was decided, is based on the presumption
 5 that government by its very nature benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and that
 6 opposition to it holds on to citizenship while it 'belittles and destroys its advantages and blessings by denying
 7 the possession by government of an essential power required to make citizenship completely beneficial.' In other
 8 words, the principle was declared that the government, by its very nature, benefits the citizen and his property
 9 wherever found, and therefore has the power to make the benefit complete. Or, to express it another way, the
 10 basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it
 11 being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the
 12 citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the
 13 relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed
 14 may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and
 15 the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax."
 16 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

17 So the key thing to note about the above is that the tax liability attaches to the STATUS of BEING a statutory but not 18 constitutional "citizen of the United States" under the Internal Revenue Code, and NOT to domicile of the party, based on 19 the above case.

20 "Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the
 21 situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made
 22 dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as
 23 citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is
 24 that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may
 25 have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax."
 26 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

27 There are only two ways to reach a nonresident party through the civil law: Domicile and contract.<sup>104</sup> That status of being
 28 a statutory "U.S. citizen" under the Internal Revenue Code, in turn, can only be a franchise contract that establishes a
 29 "public office" in the U.S. government, which is the property of the U.S. Government that the creator of the franchise can 30 regulate or tax ANYWHERE under the franchise "protection" contract. All rights that attach to STATUS are, in fact,
 31 franchises, and the Cook case is no exception. This, in fact, is why falsely claiming to be a "U.S. citizen" is a crime under
 32 18 U.S.C. §911, because the status is "property" of the national government and abuse of said property or the public rights
 33 and "benefits" that attach to it is a crime. The use of the "Taxpayer Identification Number" then becomes a de facto
 34 "license" to exercise the privilege. You can't license something unless it is ILLEGAL to perform without a license, so they 35 had to make it illegal to claim to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" before they could license it and tax it.

36 How can they tax someone without a domicile in the "United States" and with no earnings from the United States in the 37 case of Cook, you might ask? Well, the REAL "taxpayer" is a public office in the U.S. government. That office
 38 REPRESENTS the United States federal corporation. All corporations are "citizens" of the place of their incorporation,
 39 and therefore under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), the effective domicile of the "taxpayer" is the District of 40 Columbia.<sup>105</sup> All taxes are a civil liability that are implemented with civil law. The only way they could have reached
 41 extraterritorially with civil law to tax Cook without him having a domicile or residence anywhere in the statutory "United 42 States**" was through a private law franchise contract in which he was a public officer. It is a maxim of law that debt and 43 contract know no place, meaning that they can be enforced anywhere.

45 Locus contractus regit actum.

46 The place of the contract [franchise agreement, in this case] governs the act.

49 The feds have jurisdiction over their own public officers wherever they are but the EFFECTIVE civil domicile of all such 50 offices and officers is the District of Columbia pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). Hence, the ONLY thing such a statutory “citizen of the United States**” could be within the I.R.C. is a statutory creation of Congress that is actually a public office which is domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional “United States**” in order for the ruling in Cook to be constitutional or even lawful. AND, according to the Cook case, having that status is a discretionary choice that has NOTHING to do with your circumstances, because Cook was NOT a statutory “citizen of the United States**” as someone not domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional “United States**”. Instead, he was a “non-resident non-person” because of his foreign domicile and the fact that he was not engaged in a public office in the national government. The court allowed him to accept the voluntary “benefit” of the statutory status and hence, it had nothing to do with his circumstances, but rather his CHOICE to nominate a “protector” and join a civil statutory franchise. Simply INVOKING the status of being a statutory “citizen of the United States**” on a government form is the only magic word needed to give one’s consent to become a “taxpayer” in that case. It is what the court called a “benefit”, and all “benefits” are voluntary and the product of a franchise contract. It was a quasi-contract as all taxes are, because the consent was implied rather than explicit, and it manifested itself by using property of the government, which in this case was the STATUS he claimed.

“Even if the judgment is deemed to be colored by the nature of the obligation whose validity it establishes, and we are free to re-examine it, and, if we find it to be based on an obligation penal in character, to refuse to enforce it outside the state where rendered, see Wisconsin v. Pelican Insurance Co., 127 U.S. 265, 292, et seq.

8 S.Ct. 1370, compare Fauntleroy v. Lum, 210 U.S. 230, 28 S.Ct. 641, still the obligation to pay taxes is not penal. It is a statutory liability, quasi contractual in nature, enforceable, if there is no exclusive statutory remedy, in the civil courts by the common-law action of debt or indebitatus assumpsit. United States v. Chamberlin, 219 U.S. 250, 31 S.Ct. 155; Price v. United States, 269 U.S. 492, 46 S.Ct. 180; Dollar Savings Bank v. United States, 19 Wall. 227; and see Stockwell v. White, 296 U.S. 268 (1935)]

You might reasonably ask of the Cook case, as we have, the following question:

“HOW did the government create the public office that they could tax and which Cook apparently occupied as a franchisee?”

Well, apparently the “citizen of the United States**” status he claimed is a franchise and an office in the U.S. government that carries with it the “public right” to make certain demands upon those who claim this status. Hence, it represents a “property interest” in the services of the United States federal corporation. In law, all rights are property, anything that conveys rights is property, contracts convey rights and are therefore property, and all franchises are contracts and therefore property. A “public officer” is legally defined as someone in charge of the property of the public, and the property Cook was in possession of was the public rights that attach to the status of being a statutory “citizen of the United States**”.

“Public office. The right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either fixed by law or enduring at the pleasure of the creating power, an individual is invested with some portion of the sovereign functions of government for the benefit of the public. Walker v. Rich, 79 Cal.App. 139, 249 P. 56, 58. An agency for the state, the duties of which involve in their performance the exercise of some portion of the sovereign power, either great or small. Yaselli v. Goff, C.C.A., 12 F.2d. 396, 403, 56 A.L.R. 1239; Lacey v. State, 13 Ala.App. 212, 68 So. 706, 710; Curtin v. State, 61 Cal.App. 377, 214 P. 1030, 1035; Shelmadine v. City of Elkhart, 75 Ind.App. 493, 129 N.E. 878. State ex rel. Colorado River Commission v. Frohmiller, 46 Ariz. 413, 52 P.2d. 483, 486. Where, by virtue of law, a person is clothed, not as an incidental or transient authority, but for such time as de- notes duration and continuance, with Independent power to control the property of the public, or with public functions to be exercised in the supposed interest of the people, the service to be compensated by a stated yearly salary, and the occupant having a designation or title, the position so created is a public office. State v. Brennan, 49 Ohio.St. 33, 29 N.E. 593. [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1235]

For Cook, the statutory status of being a “citizen of the United States**” was the “res” that “identified” him within the jurisdiction of the federal courts, and hence made him a “res-ident” or “resident” subject to the tax with standing to sue in a territorial franchise court, which is what all U.S. District Courts are. In effect, he waived sovereign immunity and became a statutory “resident alien” by invoking the services of the federal courts, and as such, he had to pay for their services by

1 paying the tax. Otherwise, he would have no standing to sue in the first place because he would be a “stateless person” and
2 they would have had to dismiss his case.

3 If you would like a much more thorough discussion of all of the nuances of the Cook case, we strongly recommend the
4 following:

Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.018, Section 6
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5 Here is another HUGE clue about what they think a “U.S. citizen” really is in federal statutes. Look at the definition below,
6 and then consider that you CAN'T own a human being as property. That's called slavery:

7 TITLE 46 > Subtitle V > Part A > CHAPTER 505 > § 50501
8 § 50501. Entities deemed citizens of the United States

9 (a) In General.—

10 *In this subtitle, a corporation, partnership, or association is deemed to be a citizen of the United States only if
11 the controlling interest is owned by citizens of the United States. However, if the corporation, partnership, or* 12 association is operating a vessel in the coastwise trade, at least 75 percent of the interest must be owned by 13 citizens of the United States.

14 Now look at what the U.S. Supreme Court said about “ownership” of human beings. You can't “own” a human being as 15 chattel. The Thirteenth Amendment prohibits that. Therefore, the statutory “U.S. citizen” they are talking about above is 16 an instrumentality and public office within the United States. They can only tax, regulate, and legislate for PUBLIC objects
17 and public offices of the United States under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2. The ability to regulate PRIVATE conduct of 18 human beings has repeatedly been held by the U.S. Supreme Court to be “repugnant to the constitution” and beyond the 19 jurisdiction of Congress.

20 “It [the contract] is, in substance and effect, a contract for servitude, with no limitation but that of time;
21 leaving the master to determine what the service should be, and the place where and the person to whom it
22 should be rendered. Such a contract, it is scarcely necessary to say, is against the policy of our institutions
23 and laws. If such a sale of service could be lawfully made for five years, it might, from the same reasons, for 24 ten, and so for the term of one's life. The door would thus be opened for a species of servitude inconsistent
25 with the first and fundamental article of our declaration of rights, which, proprio vigore, not only abolished
26 every vestige of slavery then existing in the commonwealth, but rendered every form of it thereafter legally
27 impossible. That article has always been regarded, not simply as the declaration of an abstract principle, but as
28 *having the active force and conclusive authority of law.’ Observing that one who voluntarily subjected himself
29 to the laws of the state must find in them the rule of restraint as well as the rule of action, the court
30 proceeded: ‘Under this contract the plaintiff had no claim for the labor of the servant for the term of five
31 years, or for any term whatever. She was under no legal obligation to remain in his service. There was no
32 time during which her service was due to the plaintiff, and during which she was kept from such service by 33 the acts of the defendants.’

34 [ . . . ]

35 Under the contract of service it was at the volition of the master to entail service upon these appellants for an
36 indefinite period. So far as the record discloses, it was an accident that the vessel came back to San Francisco
37 when it did. By the shipping articles, the appellants could not quit the vessel until it returned to a port of the 38 **296 United States, and such return depended absolutely upon the will of the master. He had only to land at 39 foreign ports, and keep the vessel away from the United States, in order to prevent the appellants from 40 leaving his service.

41 [ . . . ]

42 The supreme law of the land now declares that involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, of 43 which the party shall have been duly convicted, shall not exist any where within the United States.
44 [Robertson v. Baldwin, 165 U.S. 275, 17 S.Ct. 326 (U.S. 1897)]

45 Federal courts also frequently use the phrase “privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States”. Below is an 46 example:

"The privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States do not necessarily include all the rights protected by the first eight amendments to the Federal Constitution against the powers of the Federal Government."

The trial of a person accused as a criminal by a jury of only eight persons instead of twelve, and his subsequent imprisonment after conviction do not abridge his privileges and immunities under the Constitution as a citizen of the United States and do not deprive him of his liberty without due process of law."
[Maxwell v. Dow, 176 U.S. 581 (1900)]

Note that the "citizen of the United States**" described above is a statutory rather than constitutional citizen, which is why the court admits that the rights of such a person are inferior to those possessed by a "citizen" within the meaning of the United States Constitution. A constitutional but not statutory citizen is, in fact, NOT "privileged" in any way and none of the rights guaranteed by the Constitution can truthfully be called "privileges" without violating the law. It is a tort and a violation of due process, in fact, to convert rights protected by the Constitution and the common law into "privileges" or franchises or "public rights" under statutory law without at least your consent, which anyone in their right mind should NEVER give.

*"It has long been established that a State may not impose a penalty upon those who exercise a right guaranteed by the Constitution." Frost & Frost Trucking Co. v. Railroad Comm'n of California, 271 U.S. 583. "Constitutional rights would be of little value if they could be indirectly denied,' Smith v. Allwright, 321 U.S. 649, 644, or manipulated out of existence [by converting them into statutory "privileges"/franchises],' Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339, 345."
[Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S. 528 at 540, 85 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965)]*

It is furthermore proven in the following memorandum of law that civil statutory civil law pertains almost exclusively to government officers and employers and cannot and does not pertain to human beings or private persons not engaged in federal franchises/privileges:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Consequently, if a court refers to "privileges and immunities" in relation to you, chances are they are presuming, usually FALSELY, that you are a statutory "U.S. citizen" and NOT a constitutional citizen. If you want to prevent them from making such false presumptions, we recommend attaching the following forms at least to your initial complaint and/or response in any action in court:

5.6.12.5 I.R.C. requirements for the exercise of a "trade or business"

Next, we must search the code for the uses of the term "trade or business" to define how it applies by using the context. Below is a summary of our findings:

1. For "individuals", who are ALL "aliens" under the I.R.C., only income "effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States" is considered "gross income" or originating from the statutory but not constitutional "United States**" and earned by a nonresident alien under 26 U.S.C. §871(a). Statutory "U.S.** citizens" can only be taxable when they are living abroad, in which case they become "aliens" under the provisions of a treaty with a foreign country. ONLY in that condition are they the proper subject of the Internal Revenue Code:

*NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES
DETERMINATION OF TAX LIABILITY*

1 Tax on Individuals

2 Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

3 (a)(2)(ii) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970, the tax imposed by section 1(d) [married
 4 individuals filing separately], as amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1969, shall apply to the income
 5 effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by a married alien
 6 individual who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of the taxable year or by a foreign estate
 7 or trust. For such years the tax imposed by section 1(c) [unmarried individuals], as amended by such Act,
 8 shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by 9 an unmarried alien individual (other than a surviving spouse) who is a nonresident of the United States for 10 all or part of the taxable year. See paragraph (b)(2) of section 1.871-8." [26 C.F.R. §1.1-1]

- 11 2. Those who are "self employed" do not earn "gross income" unless it is connected to a "trade or business":

12 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 2 > §1402

13 §1402: Definitions

14 (a) Net earnings from self-employment

15 The term "net earnings from self-employment" means the gross income derived by an individual from any
 16 trade or business carried on by such individual, less the deductions allowed by this subtitle which are 17 attributable to such trade or business, plus his distributive share (whether or not distributed) of income or loss 18 described in section 702(a)(8) from any trade or business carried on by a partnership of which he is a member;
 19 ....

- 20 3. The only indirect excise taxable activity connected with a biological person and which is subject to Internal Revenue
 21 Code, Subtitle A is identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) as "income effectively connected with a trade or
 22 business" of a "nonresident alien". Therefore, the only earnings of a "nonresident alien" that can be included in "gross 23 income" are those "effectively connected with a trade or business" (e.g. performance of a public office domiciled in the 24 District of Columbia):

 39 determined in most instances by initially determining, under section 864(c), the amount of gross income which 40 is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States. Pursuant to sections
 41 873 and 882(c), this section is applicable for purposes of determining the deductions from such gross income
 42 (other than the deduction for interest expense allowed to foreign corporations (see section 1.882-5)) which are 43 to be taken into account in determining taxable income. See example (21) of paragraph (g) of this section.

- 47 4. Statutory but not constitutional "U.S. Citizens" abroad whose earnings are subject to tax include only those with 48 income "effectively connected with a trade or business". By statutory "U.S. Citizen" (8 U.S.C. §1401), we mean those 49 born anywhere in the country and domiciled on federal territory within the District of Columbia or the territories of the 50 United States, as discussed in chapter 4 starting in section 4.11 and NOT within any state of the Union:

(a) Exclusion from gross income

At the election of a qualified individual (made separately with respect to paragraphs (1) and (2)), there shall be excluded from the gross income of such individual, and exempt from taxation under this subtitle, for any taxable year -

- (1) the foreign earned income of such individual, and
- (2) the housing cost amount of such individual. (d) Definitions and special rules

(b) Foreign earned income

(1) Definition

For purposes of this section -

(A) In general

The term "foreign earned income" with respect to any individual means the amount received by such individual from sources within a foreign country or countries which constitute earned income attributable to services performed by such individual during the period described in subparagraph (A) or

(B) of subsection (d)(1), whichever is applicable. (B) Certain amounts not included in foreign earned income

The foreign earned income for an individual shall not include amounts -

- (i) received as a pension or annuity,
- (ii) paid by the United States or an agency thereof to an employee of the United States or an agency thereof,
- (iii) included in gross income by reason of section 402(b) (relating to taxability of beneficiary of nonexempt trust) or section 403(c) (relating to taxability of beneficiary under a nonqualified annuity), or
- (iv) received after the close of the taxable year following the taxable year in which the services to which the amounts are attributable are performed.

[ . . . ]

(d) Definitions and special rules

For purposes of this section -

[ . . . ]

(2) Earned income

(A) In general

The term "earned income" means wages, salaries, or professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include that part of the compensation derived by the taxpayer for personal services rendered by him to a corporation which represents a distribution of earnings or profits rather than a reasonable allowance as compensation for the personal services actually rendered.

(B) Taxpayer engaged in trade or business

In the case of a taxpayer engaged in a trade or business in which both personal services and capital are material income-producing factors, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, a reasonable allowance as compensation for the personal services rendered by the taxpayer, not in excess of 30 percent of his share of the net profits of such trade or business, shall be considered as earned income.

The key “word of art” above is the term “personal services” which 26 C.F.R. §1.469-9 says means “work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business”. Therefore, “U.S. citizens” abroad who are not involved in a “trade or business” do not earn “taxable income” because they are not engaged in an excise taxable activity. Notice also that the term “abroad” is never defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code AND that the 50 states of the Union are NOT “domestic” as domestic is used in the Code. They instead are “foreign” for the purposes of legislative jurisdiction, as we emphasize throughout this chapter. Also notice that there is no mention anywhere within the entire I.R.C. of the status of taxability of earnings of statutory “U.S. citizens” situated outside the statutory “United States**” (federal territory) within the code but NOT abroad. That is because they ARE NOT subject to the Internal Revenue Code, and can't even volunteer to be subject to a prima facie statute that they are not even within the territorial jurisdiction of.

5. Earnings from labor rendered by a “nonresident alien”, even if within the “United States” (federal zone), to a foreign corporation or foreign partnership that is not involved in a “trade or business in the United States” (public office) is not includible as “gross income”. Ditto for earnings from a “foreign country”, which includes states of the Union, as we pointed out earlier in section 5.2.14. Here is the proof:

§864. Definitions and special rules

(b) Trade or business within the United States

For purposes of this part, part II, and chapter 3, the term “trade or business within the United States” includes the performance of personal services within the United States at any time within the taxable year, but does not include—

(1) Performance of personal services for foreign employer

The performance of personal services—

(A) for a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States, or

(B) for an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States by an individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States or by a domestic partnership or a domestic corporation,

6. Whether a legal “person” is considered “resident” or “nonresident” has nothing to do with where it was organized, incorporated or where it has a physical presence. Instead, it is determined by whether the organization is engaged in a “trade or business”. Therefore, if you aren't engaged in a “trade or business”, even if you are domiciled on federal territory within the statutory but not constitutional “United States**”, then you are a “nonresident”. Here is the proof:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

*A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

[Amended by T.D. 8813, Federal Register: February 2, 1999 (Volume 64, Number 21), Page 4967-4975]

If you examine the above list, there are only four statuses or conditions throughout the I.R.C. that don't specifically mention that they must be connected to a “trade or business” in order to qualify as “gross income”, which are:

1. “Married individuals” under 26 U.S.C. §1(a). Not mentioned in item 1 above.
2. “Heads of household” under 26 U.S.C. §1(b). Not mentioned in item 1 above.
3. Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISC) involved in foreign commerce.

4. Foreign Sales Corporations (FSC) involved in foreign commerce.

We know that the first two are ALSO involved in a “trade or business” because in the only place they are mentioned in the I.R.C., which is 26 U.S.C. §1\(a\) and 1(b), a graduated rate of tax appears there. There is no way to elect a flat 30% tax rate as a “Married individual” or “Head of household” without declaring oneself as a “nonresident alien” and coming under the provisions of 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\) INSTEAD of these two provisions. Furthermore, the requirement for “equal protection of the laws”, found in Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment and in 42 U.S.C. §1981\(a\), mandates that “Heads of Household” and “Married individuals” shall be subjected to the same burdens, taxes, and penalties as “Married individuals filing separately” or “Unmarried individuals” or they would be discriminated against. Therefore, they too must be engaged in a “trade or business” in order to earn “taxable income” as well. We also know that the graduated rate of tax cannot be implemented in states of the Union, because they are not “uniform”, meaning that everyone doesn't pay the same percentage, as required by the U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1, which says:

*U.S. Constitution
Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3*

The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform [same percentage] throughout the United States [and upon all “persons”];

The reason all excise taxes within states of the Union must be uniform throughout the states and have the same percentage on all persons is that if they weren't, then the federal government would be depriving sovereign American Nationals in the states of "equal protection of the laws". However, the Constitutional requirement for "equal protection" does not apply within areas under exclusive federal jurisdiction, such as the District of Columbia, under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17, and under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution. There have been at least two state supreme Court rulings consistent with this conclusion, which declared that graduated rate income taxes are unconstitutional within states of the Union. See Culliton v. Chase, 25 P.2d. 81 (1933) and Jensen v. Henneford, 53 P.2d. 607 (1936). You will learn later in this section that those who elect for a graduated rate of tax are “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” under 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\).

We'll now provide a table summarizing our findings to show the excise taxable activity for each type of entity to make the results of this survey of the I.R.C. crystal clear. Note that all the taxable activities must occur within exclusive federal jurisdiction under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution, or else they become “extortion under the color of law”. The federal government cannot collect or assess taxes in areas where it has no legislative jurisdiction. If you aren't listed in the table below, then you are a “nontaxpayer”:

Table 5-61: Taxable activity under I.R.C. by type of entity

#	Entitle name	Entity type	Citizenship status	Excise taxable Activity	I.R.C. Section	Regulation	Notes

5.6.12.6 What kind of tax is it?: Direct or Indirect, Constitutional or Unconstitutional?

We already proved in section 5.1.2 that the I.R.C., Subtitles A and C income tax is an excise or franchise tax upon public offices within the national but not state government. The next important questions we must answer are the following, which we frequently hear from our readers:

1. Is it DIRECT or INDIRECT as described in the U.S. Constitution?
2. Is it a CONSTITUTIONAL or UNCONSTITUTIONAL tax?

Of I.R.C., Subtitle A income taxes, the U.S. Supreme Court has said:

*"...the requirement to pay [excise] taxes involves the exercise of privilege."
[Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911)]*

"We are of opinion, however, that the confusion is not inherent, but rather arises from the conclusion that the 16th Amendment provides for a hitherto unknown power of taxation; that is, a power to levy an income tax which, although direct, should not be subject to the regulation of apportionment applicable to all other direct taxes. And the far-reaching effect of this erroneous assumption will be made clear by generalizing the many contentions advanced in argument to support it..."

*"[Taxation of "income" is] in its nature an excise entitled to be enforced as such unless and until it was concluded that to enforce it would amount to accomplishing the result which the requirement as to apportionment of direct taxation was adopted to prevent, in which case the duty would arise to disregard form and consider substance alone, and hence subject the tax to the regulation as to apportionment which otherwise as an excise would not apply to it" (That is, if the "income" tax ever comes to be administered as something other than an excise, or on something unsuited to an excise, the rule of apportionment must be applied.)
[Brushaber v. Union Pacific R. Co., 240 U.S. 1 (1916)]*

*"The provisions of the Sixteenth Amendment conferred no new power of taxation . . ."
[Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)]*

*"The Sixteenth Amendment, although referred to in argument, has no real bearing and may be put out of view. As pointed out in recent decisions, it does not extend the taxing power to new or excepted subjects..."
[Peck v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 165 (1918)]*

*"We must reject... ..the broad contention submitted in behalf of the government that all receipts-- everything that comes in-- are income..."
[So. Pacific v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330 (1918)]*

Therefore, I.R.C., Subtitle A describes an excise tax upon "privileges". If it ain't a privilege, then they can't tax it. Neither can the government lawfully tax the exercise of a right, such as the right to work and support yourself, unless that right is exercised coincident with a "privilege" of federal employment, agency, or benefits.

*"PRIVILEGE: A particular benefit or advantage enjoyed by a person, company, or class beyond the common advantages of others citizens. An exceptional or extraordinary power of exemption. A particular right, advantage, exemption, power, franchise, or immunity held by a person or class, not generally possessed by others."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1197]*

*"It has been well said that 'the property which every man has in his own labor, as it is the original foundation of all other property, so it is the most sacred and inviolable. The patrimony of the poor man lies in the strength and dexterity of his own hands, and to hinder his employing this strength and dexterity in what manner he thinks proper, without injury to his neighbor, is a plain violation of this most sacred property'."
[Butchers' Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884)]*

1                    "Included in the right of personal liberty and the right of private property- partaking of the nature of each- is
2                    the right to make contracts for the acquisition of property. Chief among such contracts is that of personal
3                    employment, by which labor and other services are exchanged for money or other forms of property"
4                    Coppage v. Kansas, [236 U.S. 1 (1915)]

5                    "Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can
6                    rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will..."
7                    The Antelope, [23 U.S. 66; 10 Wheat 66; 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

8                    Now that we have thoroughly analyzed why Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A describes an "excise" tax on a taxable
9                    activity called a "trade or business", we are now ready to address how this tax functions. We have prepared a table to 10                    clarify these mechanisms:

Table 5-62: What makes IRC Subtitle A an Excise Tax

#	Characteristics of indirect excise taxes	Description
1	Taxable privilege	Exercising a "public office" in the United States government, which is called a "trade or business" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).
2	"License" that identifies us as engaging in the privilege	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Filing a W-4 with your private employer. When you file a W-4, you signed an "agreement"/contract (see 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3). This agreement made you into a recipient, "transferee", and "fiduciary" over payments to the federal government under 26 U.S.C. §6901. It also constituted an agreement under 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 to include all of your earnings from the employer receiving the W-4 on a tax "return" as "gross income". Your private employer is no longer paying you directly and you effectively become a "subcontractor" to the U.S. government, who is your intermediary and real "employer". Instead, your private employer is paying a "straw man" or artificial entity called a federal "employee" acting on behalf of the government as a "transferee" and "fiduciary". The all caps name on the W-4 and the SSN associated with the all caps name is the "res" or artificial entity that describes the federal subcontractor that you are representing. The SSN or TIN and the all caps "straw man" name on the pay stub that your private employer gives you is evidence that the payment is a payment to the federal government which is federal property because this number can only be used for keeping track of federal payments and "receipts". The money your private employer pays you are "earnings" of a U.S. government subcontractor. Recall that "income", within the meaning of the Constitution is "corporate profit". The U.S. government is described as a "federal corporation" in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). The "profit" of this federal corporation is the "tax" deducted from the payment and "returned" to the corporation using a tax "return". The SSN is a vehicle the government uses to keep track of federal payments and federal subcontractors called "employees" who are managing these payments and returning "taxes", which are "corporate profit" payments, to their rightful owner.</li> <li>1. Filing a form 1040 rather than the correct 1040NR. The IRS Published Products catalog says this form can only be filed by "citizens or residents of the United States", all of whom are domiciled ONLY in the statutory "United States*" (federal territory) (see 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d)). Under 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3), all earnings within the statutory "United States*" (federal territory) are "effectively connected with a trade or business", so you must be engaged in a "trade or business", so you must be engaged in a "trade or business" whether you realize it or not if you file form 1040 instead of the proper form 1040NR.</li> </ol>
3	License number	Taxpayer Identification Number(TIN) or Social Security Number (SSN)
4	How privilege is exercised	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Receiving payments destined for the federal government from private parties, like employers and financial institutions. These payments are public property that can only be handled by "public officers".</li> <li>2. Ability to claim deductions on tax return.</li> <li>3. Ability to apply graduated rate rather than fixed rate.</li> <li>4. Ability to claim exemptions and earned income credit on a tax return.</li> <li>5. Domiciled in the District of Columbia</li> </ol>
5	Effect of accepting privilege	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Acting as a "transferee", "fiduciary", and "trustee" over payments made to the federal government.</li> <li>2. Lose control over earnings. They don't become yours until the federal overpayment is returned in the form of a "tax"/"kickback".</li> <li>3. Subject to federal jurisdiction because in custody of federal overpayment. Jurisdiction is "in rem" under Article 4, Section 3. Clause 2 of the Constitution.</li> <li>4. IRS can enforce I.R.C. without implementing regulations. See 44 U.S.C. §1501(a)(1), 5 U.S.C. §552(a)(1), 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2).</li> </ol>
6	Why tax is an excise tax	The tax is on an activity that can be avoided and therefore is not direct. If you don't want to pay the tax, then don't exercise any of the "privileges" associated with a "trade or business" listed in item 2 above.
7	Tax measured by	Taxable income, which is "gross income" minus deductions and exemptions.

A picture is worth a thousand words. Below is a diagram showing the condition of those who are employed by private employers and who have consented to participate in the federal tax system by completing an IRS Form W-4. This diagram shows graphically the relationships described in the table above.

1 Figure 5-5: Employment arrangement of those involved in a "trade or business"

4 NOTES ON ABOVE DIAGRAM:

1. The I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax is NOT implemented through public law or positive law, but primarily through private law. Private law always supersedes enacted positive law because no court or government can interfere with your right to contract. See Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution for the proof. The IRS Form W-4 is a contract or agreement, and the United States has jurisdiction over its own property and employees under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2, wherever they may reside, including in places where it has no legislative jurisdiction. The IRS Form W-4 you signed is a private contract that makes you into a federal employee, and neither the state nor the federal government may interfere with the private right to contract. 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 identifies the W-4 as an "agreement", which is a contract. It doesn't say that on the form, because your covetous government doesn't want you to know you are signing a contract by submitting an IRS Form W-4.
2. The "tax" is not paid by you, but by your "straw man", who is a federal "public officer" engaged in a "trade or business" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). His workplace is the "District of Columbia" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d). That "public officer" you have volunteered to represent is working as a federal "employee" who is part of the United States government, which is defined as a federal corporation in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). In that sense, the "tax" is indirect, because you don't pay it, but your straw man, who is a "public officer", pays it to your "employer", the federal government, which is a federal corporation.
3. Because you are presumed by the IRS to be a federal "employee" and you work for an unspecified and unidentified federal corporation, then you are acting as an "officer or employee of a federal corporation" and you:
  - 3.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671(b).
  - 3.2. Are the proper subject of the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code found in 26 U.S.C. §7343.
  - 3.3. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) and 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2)
4. The "activity" of performing a "trade or business" is only "taxable" when executed on federal territory, which is what the statutory "United States**" is defined as in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). See 26 U.S.C. §864 and this section for evidence.
5. Those who file form 1040 instead of the proper form 1040NR provide evidence under penalty of perjury that they are "U.S. persons" (see 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\) ) who are domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional "United States**" (federal territory). The IRS Published Products Catalog, Document 7130 (2003) says the form can only be used for "citizens or residents" of the "United States", which is defined as federal territory in the I.R.C.

The words you use to describe this tax can get you into trouble in court and attract insincere and covetous judges and prosecutors to call you frivolous and try to penalize you to evade addressing the issues raised in this memorandum. We would now like to clarify the following important facts about the nature of the I.R.C., Subtitles A and C income tax to ensure that our readers stay out of harm's way:

1. Is NOT an Article 1, Section 8 tax. The states are not expressly included within the definition of "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and therefore are purposefully excluded per the rules of statutory construction.

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. 'The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'"
 Downes v. Bidwell, [182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

2. It is only applicable to those consensually and contractually engaging in business WITH the U.S. Inc. as public officers.
3. Extends ONLY where the GOVERNMENT extends.

"It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States."
 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

Sources WITHIN the government, in fact, are defined in the at 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3) as "sources within the United States".

4. It functions as what we call a "public officer kickback program" disguised to LOOK like a lawful national tax. That perspective is thoroughly explained in:
  - 4.1. IRS Humbug: Weapons of Enslavement, Frank Kowalik, ISBN 0-9626552-0-1, 1991.
  - 4.2. Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.6.10
<http://famguardian.org/Publications/GreatIRSHoax/GreatIRSHoax.htm>
5. It is neither CONSTITUTIONAL nor UNCONSTITUTIONAL, but rather EXTRA-CONSTITUTIONAL. It is an EXTRA-constitutional tax because the Constitution doesn't protect what happens by consent to PUBLIC officers within the government. All those serving in public offices do so by consent and it is a maxim of law that you cannot complain of an injury for things you consent to.
6. While it is NOT a constitutional but an EXTRA-constitutional tax, if tax terms such as "direct, indirect, excise" used within the constitution WERE used to describe it, then it would have to be described as follows:
  - 6.1. It is a direct, unapportioned tax on INCOME as property. All direct taxes are on property. Note also that the ONLY place it can be administered as a "DIRECT TAX" is the District of Columbia, which is why the terms "United States" and "State" are both defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) as the District of Columbia and no part of any state of the Union. This is also why the ONLY remaining "internal revenue district" within which the I.R.S. can lawfully enforce pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7601 is the District of Columbia.

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. 'The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'"
 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

- 6.2. It is a DIRECT TAX because it involves both real estate and personal property or the "benefits" of such property. This definition of "direct" derives from Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1894).
- 6.3. It is a direct tax upon PROPERTY owned BY THE GOVERNMENT because in POSSESSION of the government at the time of payment.
- 6.4. The earnings of public offices are property of the government, because the OFFICE is owned by the government and was created by the government. The creator of a thing is always the owner.
- 6.5. The "income" subject to the tax is payments FROM the government.
- 6.6. It is an excise on the SOURCE of income.
- 6.7. The SOURCE is the specific place the activity was accomplished, which is ALWAYS the government or a "U.S. source". A "U.S. source" means an activity WITHIN the government. Hence "INTERNAL revenue code". See:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/source.htm>

Source of Earned Income

The source of your earned income is the place where you perform the services for which you received the income. Foreign earned income is income you receive for performing personal services in a foreign country. Where or how you are paid has no effect on the source of the income. For example, income you receive for work done in France is income from a foreign source even if the income is paid directly to your bank account in the United States and your employer is located in New York City.

If you receive a specific amount for work done in the United States, you must report that amount as U.S. source income. If you cannot determine how much is for work done in the United States, or for work done partly in the United States and partly in a foreign country, determine the amount of U.S. source income using the method that most correctly shows the proper source of your income.

In most cases you can make this determination on a time basis. U.S. source income is the amount that results from multiplying your total pay (including allowances, re-imbursments other than for foreign moves, and noncash fringe benefits) by a fraction. The numerator (top number) is the number of days you worked within the United States. The denominator is the total number of days of work for which you were paid.

[IRS Publication 54 (2000), p. 4]

6.8. It is INDIRECT in the sense that all indirect taxes are excise taxes upon activities that can be avoided by avoiding the activity. However, it becomes DIRECT, a THEFT, and slavery/involuntary servitude if the government:

- 6.8.1. Refuses to recognize or protect your right to NOT volunteer and not become a public officer.
- 6.8.2. Refuses to acknowledge the nature of the activity being taxed, or PRESUMES that it is NOT a public office.
- 6.8.3. Refuses to correct false information returns against those NOT engaging in the activity, and thereby through omission causes EVERYONE who is the subject of such false reports to essentially be elected into a public office through a criminally false and fraudulent information return.
- 6.8.4. Enforces it outside of the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress or against those who are not public officers and officers of a corporation as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).

6.9. The reason that direct and indirect can BOTH describe it, is that the constitution doesn't apply in the only place the activity can lawfully be exercised (per 4 U.S.C. §72), which is federal territory. It doesn't fit the constitution because it doesn't apply to the PRIVATE people who are the only proper subject of the constitution.

7. Civil choice of law rules found in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 and 28 U.S.C. §1652 dictate that the LOCAL state law governs the activity by default and that foreign law (under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 44.1) only becomes applicable if the party is acting as an officer of a foreign corporation. Hence, only by being lawfully engaged in a public office within the U.S. Government, which is a federal corporation and legislatively foreign corporation in respect to constitutional states of the Union, can the municipal laws of the District of Columbia be made applicable to the activity. Otherwise, there is no federal jurisdiction over the activity subject to tax.

"A foreign corporation is one that derives its existence solely from the laws of another state, government, or country, and the term is used indiscriminately, sometimes in statutes, to designate either a corporation created by or under the laws of another state or a corporation created by or under the laws of a foreign country."

*"A federal corporation operating within a state is considered a domestic corporation rather than a foreign corporation. The United States government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state."
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §883 (2003)]*

8. It is PRIVATE law and SPECIAL law, rather than PUBLIC law, that only applies to specific persons and things CONSENSUALLY engaged in activities on federal territory as AGENTS of the government ONLY. That is why the entire Title 26 of the U.S. Code is identified as NOT being "positive law" in 1 U.S.C. §204: Because it doesn't acquire the "force of law" or become legal evidence of an obligation until AFTER you consent to it. It is a maxim of law that anything done to you with your consent cannot form the basis for an injury or a remedy in a court of law. On the OTHER hand, if everyone fills out IRS Form W-4's and ACTS like a government statutory "employee", then for all intents and purposes it applies to EVERYONE and at least LOOKS like it is public law, even though it isn't.
9. Because it is PRIVATE and SPECIAL LAW, it is what the United States Supreme Court called "class legislation" in Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1894). The specific "class" to which is applies is that SUBSET of all "citizens" who are lawfully serving in an elected or appointed public office.
10. The activities SUBJECT to the tax must also occur on federal territory in order to be the lawful subject of any congressional civil enactment.

1 10.1. All civil law is prima facie territorial.

2 10.2. The separation of powers doctrine, 40 U.S.C. §3112, 28 U.S.C. §1652, and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 all
3 forbid the enforcement of federal civil law outside the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress or within a
4 constitutional state of the Union.

5 10.3. If territory is divorced from the activity and the tax is enforced outside of federal territory, then the activity
6 subject to tax becomes an act of private contract governed by the local CIVIL laws of the jurisdiction in which the 7 activity occurred. And because it is private business activity, then there is a waiver of sovereign immunity AND it
8 must be heard in a LOCAL state court having jurisdiction over the domicile of the public officer and NOT in a
9 federal court. These facts are plainly stated in 40 U.S.C. §3112.

10 11. If it is enforced or offered in a constitutional state, then:

11 11.1. An "invasion" has occurred under Article 4, Section 4. By "enforced", we mean that the ACTIVITY subject to the 12 tax occurs within a constitutional state of the Union. Hence, "INTERNAL" in the phrase "INTERNAL Revenue
13 Service", meaning INTERNAL to the government and INTERNAL to federal territory.

14 11.2. The franchise is being illegally enforced:

15 *"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and
16 with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to
17 trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive
18 power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the 19 granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.*

20 *But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this
21 commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs
22 exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is
23 warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to
24 the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of
25 the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given
26 in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it
27 must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited,
28 and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing 29 subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in 30 order to tax it."*

31 [License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

32 We would therefore strongly suggest that in describing this tax in court pleadings or to juries and in front of malicious
33 judges, you:

- 34 1. Never describe it as either direct or indirect. It's irrelevant and could truthfully be described as either. The U.S.
35 Supreme Court, for instance, calls it a "direct unapportioned tax" applicable only to the District of Columbia, while the 36 Congressional Research Service calls it an INDIRECT tax. They are BOTH right! This is a red herring.
- 37 2. NOT argue about whether the Internal Revenue Code is constitutional or unconstitutional. It is entirely constitutional.
38 What is unconstitutional is how it is wilfully and maliciously MISREPRESENTED and illegally enforced by both the 39 Department of Justice and the Internal Revenue Service. 18 U.S.C. §912.
- 40 3. Demand written proof of your consent to occupy or be held accountable for the duties associated with the illegally 41 created public office that is the subject of the tax.
- 42 4. Pay SPECIAL focus on the CONTEXT for terms: STATUTORY v. CONSTITUTIONAL. These two contexts are 43 mutually exclusive and non-overlapping for the purpose of the income tax. They will attempt many different "fallacies 44 by equivocation" in order to mislead the jury and undermine your defense. We talk about this at length in:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

45 5. Instead focus on:

- 46 5.1. The activity that is the subject of the tax and how you, as a private nonresident in a legislatively foreign state can 47 lawfully engage in the activity.
- 48 5.2. How the choice of law rules documented herein do not permit the enforcement of the tax under federal law, and 49 therefore, that there is no jurisdiction to enforce or collect the tax.
- 50 5.3. WHERE the activity may be lawfully exercised and that you are NOT located in that place, which is the District 51 of Columbia and no part of any state of the Union.
- 52 5.4. The fact that it is a crime to impersonate a public office, even with your consent.

1 5.5. The fact that compelled withholding causes the crime of bribery to solicit you to be treated illegally as a public
2 officer. 18 U.S.C. §211.

3 5.6.12.7 Who's "trade or business": The PAYER, the PAYEE, or BOTH?

4 Every transaction must involve the de facto government and therefore public rights and franchises in order to qualify as an
5 excise taxable event. The income tax under I.R.C., Subtitle A, as we all well know, is a franchise/excise tax. The only
6 context in which the statutory definition of "United States" makes any sense at all is in fact to treat it as an excise/franchise
7 tax. The "United States" in the I.R.C. then becomes the franchisor in a virtual and not a physical or geographical sense. The 8 ability to regulate, tax, or burden private conduct is beyond the reach of the Constitution, and therefore the activity must 9 involve publici juris and public rights to be taxable.

10 "The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes

18 Every transaction involving the government has two parties: The payer and the payee. That is why the tax is upon both
19 "trade or business" earnings and "U.S. source" earnings: The payer is always a public office in the government and the 20 recipient is either a "resident alien individual" or a "nonresident alien individual" receiving payments from this "U.S.
21 source" if the transaction is taxable to EITHER party. This is made clear by 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31), which says that the
22 transaction is not "gross income" and is "foreign" and beyond the jurisdiction of the I.R.C. if it does not involve one of 23 these two aspects, meaning if it does not involve a public officer payer OR an "individual" recipient:

25 § 7701. Definitions

26 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
27 thereof—

28 (31) Foreign estate or trust

29 (A) Foreign estate The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the 30 United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States,
31 is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

32 (B) Foreign trust The term "foreign trust" means any trust other than a trust described in subparagraph (E) of 33 paragraph (30).

34 Whenever a taxable payment occurs, an information return is filed usually by the payer, who in law must always be treated
35 as a public officer in the government, meaning a "source within the United States" (government, not geographical USA).
36 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) says that the information return can only be filed in connection with a "trade or business", meaning that 37 at least one end of the transaction must involve a public officer in the government.

38 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 61 > Subchapter A > PART III > Subpart B > § 6041

40 (a) Payments of $600 or more

41 All persons engaged in a trade or business and making payment in the course of such trade or business to
42 another person, of rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments,
43 or other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments to which section 6042 (a)(1),
44 6044 (a)(1), 6047 (e), 6049 (a), or 6050N (a) applies, and other than payments with respect to which a 45 statement is required under the authority of section 6042 (a)(2), 6044 (a)(2), or 6045), of $600 or more in any 46 taxable year, or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the 47 United States having information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the 48 regulations hereinafter provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Secretary, under such
49 regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary, setting
50 forth the amount of such gains, profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such 51 payment.

1 Our job is to figure out WHICH end of the transaction is a public officer, because that is the only one subject to the code
 2 and therefore a "taxpayer". The PAYOR can be a public officer and therefore a "taxpayer" as defined in 26 U.S.C.
 3 §7701(a)(14) while the PAYEE can be a nonresident and a "nontaxpayer". It makes no sense to report a transaction or 4 withhold, in fact, if the PAYEE is not a "taxpayer".

5 26 U.S.C. §6041 gives us a clue to the puzzle: it says the PAYER must file the information return and is engaged in a "trade
 6 or business", but it doesn't say that the PAYEE ALSO is involved in a "trade or business" as a public officer. Therefore, as
 7 a bare minimum every transaction involves a PAYER who is a public officer and therefore a "taxpayer" engaged in a "trade
 8 or business". We still don't yet know how the PAYEE would be treated in such a transaction, but as a bare minimum, we 9 know that it is in receipt of "U.S. source" income from a public office within the "United States" government. Some clues, 10 though:

- 11
- 12 1. Congress only has jurisdiction over PUBLIC activity. The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate 13 private conduct is "repugnant to the Constitution". The constitution exists, in fact, to keep private conduct beyond the 14 reach of the government. Consequently, BOTH parties to the transaction must be acting in a public capacity as public 15 officers and therefore "taxpayers".
- 16 2. If the PAYER was a public office and a "taxpayer" but the PAYEE was not, then the I.R.C. would be injuring private 17 parties and interfering with the right to contract of both parties by imposing duties above and beyond the contract
 18 between them. The Constitution was created to protect your right to contract, and therefore they can't tax or withhold
 19 within such a transaction. Frank Kowalik in his wonderful book IRS Humbug: Weapons of Enslavement, Frank 20 Kowalik, ISBN 0-9626552-0-1, 1991 analyzes this aspect of all such payments and agrees with us on this point.
- 21 3. 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) uses the phrase "another person" to refer to the payee. so the PAYEE obviously must also be a
 22 "taxpayer" and a "person" subject to the code in order for the reporting to occur. Furthermore, if the recipient were 23 NOT such a "person", they would have no liability and therefore would also not be subject to withholding.
 24 Withholding is only required for "taxpayers".

25 An example of payment that would not be taxable or reportable is one made to a nonresident who is not an alien or an
 26 "individual". We call these people "non-resident non-persons" throughout this book. This would be the case with those in 27 the military who file nonresident alien withholding paperwork such as the IRS Form W-8BEN, who modify block 3 of the 28 form to indicate that they are "nonresident" but not "individuals", and who are enlisted rather than commissioned officers.
 29 When the transaction involves only one "taxpayer", the code does NOT create a liability to report against the withholding
 30 agent because the recipient is not a "person" (or "another person" as referred to in 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) and 26 U.S.C. §1461)
 31 as a nonresident. The code is civil law that is not enforceable against nonresidents. All civil law attaches to the choice of 32 domicile of the parties and cannot operate beyond the territory of the law making power unless:

- 33
- 34 1. A contract or franchise extends its reach beyond the territory of the sovereign. That franchise or contract, if it is a
 35 GOVERNMENT contract, however, CANNOT operate within a state of the Union protected by the Constitution
 36 because the rights of those domiciled there are "unalienable", which means that they can't be sold, transferred, or 37 bargained away through any commercial process. Franchises such as a "trade or business" are commercial processes
 38 and contracts.

39 "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator
 40 with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to 41 secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the

 43 [Declaration of Independence]

44 "Unalienable. Inalienable; incapable of being aliened, that is, sold and transferred."
 45 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1693]

- 46 2. It operates on a domiciliary temporarily abroad but not within a state of the Union under 26 U.S.C. §911.

47 26 U.S.C. §1461 makes the PAYER liable to deduct and withhold payment to another "person" but a nonresident cannot be
 48 a "person" within the meaning of this civil provision because all civil law attaches to one's choice of domicile:

49 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 3 > Subchapter B > § 1461
 50 § 1461. Liability for withheld tax

Every person required to deduct and withhold any tax under this chapter is hereby made liable for such tax and is hereby indemnified against the claims and demands of any person for the amount of any payments made in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

The foregoing considerations would lead, in case of doubt, to a construction of any statute as intended to be confined in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the lawmaker has general and legitimate power. 'All legislation is prima facie territorial.' Ex parte Blain, L. R. 12 Ch. Div. 522, 528; State v. Carter, 27 N. J. L. 499; People v. Merrill, 2 Park. Crim. Rep. 590, 596. Words having universal scope, such as 'every contract in restraint of trade,' 'every person who shall monopolize,' etc., will be taken, as a matter of course, to mean only everyone subject to such legislation, not all that the legislator subsequently may be able to catch. In the case of the present statute, the improbability of the United States attempting to make acts done in Panama or Costa Rica criminal is obvious, yet the law begins by making criminal the acts for which it gives a right to sue. We think it entirely plain that what the defendant did in Panama or Costa Rica is not within the scope of the statute so far as the present suit is concerned. Other objections of a serious nature are urged, but need not be discussed.
[American Banana Co. v. U.S. Fruit, 213 U.S. 347 at 357-358]

The phrase "general or legitimate power" imply "general and exclusive jurisdiction", not subject matter jurisdiction. The feds only have general jurisdiction within federal territory. In a state, they have limited and subject matter jurisdiction ONLY and NOT general jurisdiction. That is not to say that they don't have jurisdiction over ALL PEOPLE within a state. They always have jurisdiction over those domiciled on federal territory, regardless of where they are situated, including in a state, but they don't have such jurisdiction within a state of those domiciled outside of federal territory and who therefore are not statutory "U.S. citizens", "U.S. residents", and "U.S. persons". The following article emphasizes this point, but is FLAT OUT WRONG in concluding that District Courts in the States of the Union are Article III courts. They have NEVER been given this power. The only thing they can or do is officiate over are Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 franchises such as income taxes, Social Security, etc. and crimes committed on federal territory where they enjoy general jurisdiction. The What Happened to Justice?, Form #06.012 proves this with thousands of pages of evidence.

Conflicts in a Nutshell
§22 Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Because of our federal system, in which more than 50 sovereigns function within the framework of a national sovereign, the federal court structure is unique in that its principal trial court, the U.S. District Court, is a court of limited rather than general jurisdiction. The state is left to supply the "general" court. The federal constitution permits Congress to confer on federal courts of its creation only such jurisdiction as is outlined in section 2 of Article III. Hence the source of these federal limitations is the constitution itself.

Even within the federal system, however, one can find courts of general jurisdiction. Areas within the jurisdiction of the United States that lack their own sovereignty, and thus a court system of their own, must depend on the federal legislature for a complete court system: the District of Columbia and the few remaining territories of the United States are in this category. For them, Congress has the power (from Article I of the constitution for the District and from Article IV of the constitution for the territories) to create courts of general jurisdiction. But Congress has no such power with respect to the states, for which reason all of the federal courts sitting within the states, including the district courts, must trace their powers to those within the limits of Article III and are hence courts of "limited" jurisdiction.

This is one reason why issues of subject matter jurisdiction arise more frequently in the federal system than in state courts. Another is that for a variety of reasons, federal jurisdiction is often preferred by a plaintiff who has a choice of forums. Taken together, this means that more cases near the subject matter jurisdiction borderline appear in the federal than in the state courts.

One of the major sources of federal subject matter jurisdiction is the diversity of citizenship of the parties. It authorizes federal suit even though the dispute involves no issues of federal law. The statute that authorizes this jurisdiction, however (28 U.S.C.A. 1332), requires that there be more than $75,000 in controversy. A plaintiff near that figure and who wants federal jurisdiction will try for it, while a defendant who prefers that the state courts hear the case may try to get it dismissed from federal court on the ground that it can't support a judgment for more than $75,000.

A major source of federal jurisdiction is that the case "arises under" federal law, the phrase the constitution itself uses (Article III, §2). Unless it so arises, there is no subject matter jurisdiction under this caption, and whether it does or does not is often the subject of a dispute between the parties to a federal action.

For these and other reasons, the study of "subject matter" jurisdiction is a more extensive one in federal than in state practice. Indeed, a law school course on federal courts is likely to be devoted in the main to subject matter

 [Conflicts in a Nutshell, Third Edition, David D. Siegel and Patrick J. Borchers, ISBN 0-314-160669-3, West Publishing, pp. 39-41]

So there are two criteria: The PAYER and the PAYEE must BOTH be "persons" and therefore "taxpayers" within the I.R.C., which is civil law that attaches to their mutual domiciles, in order for either reporting or withholding to lawfully occur. If only the PAYER is a "person" but the payee is NOT, then the transaction is not "gross income" TO THE PAYEE. The term "person" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(c) to include "individuals", but "individual" in turn does not include statutory or constitutional "citizens" per 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3). Therefore, both the PAYER and the PAYEE MUST be aliens and not citizens engaged in privileged activities. See:

Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Online, Form #10.004, Cites by Topic: Individual
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/individual.htm>

All of these games with "words of art" relating to Effectively Connected Income (ECI) are designed to disguise and confuse WHICH end of the transaction is a "taxpayer": the PAYER, the PAYEE, or BOTH. Statutes such as 26 U.S.C. §881(a), for instance, refer to the "recipient", meaning the PAYEE:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART II > Subpart B > § 881
§ 881. Tax on income of foreign corporations not connected with United States business

(a) Imposition of tax

Except as provided in subsection (c), there is hereby imposed for each taxable year a tax of 30 percent of the amount received from sources within the United States by a foreign corporation as—

(1) interest (other than original issue discount as defined in section 1273), dividends, rents, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, and other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits, and income,

(2) gains described in section 631 (b) or (c),

(3) in the case of—

(A) a sale or exchange of an original issue discount obligation, the amount of the original issue discount accruing while such obligation was held by the foreign corporation (to the extent such discount was not theretofore taken into account under subparagraph (B)), and

(B) a payment on an original issue discount obligation, an amount equal to the original issue discount accruing while such obligation was held by the foreign corporation (except that such original issue discount shall be taken into account under this subparagraph only to the extent such discount was not theretofore taken into account under this subparagraph and only to the extent that the tax thereon does not exceed the payment less the tax imposed by paragraph (1) thereon), and

(4) gains from the sale or exchange after October 4, 1966, of patents, copyrights, secret processes and formulas, good will, trademarks, trade brands, franchises, and other like property, or of any interest in any such property, to the extent such gains are from payments which are contingent on the productivity, use, or disposition of the property or interest sold or exchanged,

but only to the extent the amount so received is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

An amount can only be "received" by a PAYEE.

- We already know the PAYER is a public officer and a "taxpayer" and therefore a "person" under the I.R.C. because 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) admitted he/she/it had to be engaged in a "trade or business" in order to report the transaction.
- 26 U.S.C. §1461 also said that the PAYER is only liable if BOTH ends of the transaction are "persons" and therefore "taxpayers". A "nonresident" would NOT be subject to the code and therefore NOT a "person", "individual", or "taxpayer". See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) also says that when NEITHER the PAYER nor the PAYEE are engaged in public office ("trade or business") and the payment does not originate from "sources within the United States", meaning the de facto government, then the transaction isn't taxable.

26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3) at first glance might appear to confuse this explanation, but in fact it doesn't. It implies that "sources within the United States" and "trade or business" are synonymous when in fact they aren't the same for BOTH parties to the transaction:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART I > § 864
§ 864. Definitions and special rules

(c) Effectively connected income, etc.

(3) Other income from sources within United States

All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

There is no contradiction because the PAYER is ALWAYS a public officer and therefore a "U.S. source" and a "taxpayer" on one side of the coin while the PAYEE can be a nonresident and yet also not a "taxpayer", "individual", or "person" on the other side of the same coin. Everyone serving in a public office within the U.S. government is, by definition, a "source within the United States" if they are making a payment to someone else in their official capacity. Once again: EVERY TRANSACTION has two ends, and it depends which end you are looking at. You need to be VERY clear from the language which end it is and what you are looking for, because the language will try to confuse the ends to make it look like EVERYONE is a "taxpayer", "individual", and therefore "person". Clues to which end of the transaction they are talking about:

1. PAYER: Words used would be "paid", "making payment".
2. PAYEE: Words used would be "received", "amount received".

Another fact is also important that people like Pete Hendrickson chronically overlook. Yes, an information return always involves a "trade or business" because 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) says so. However, does it ALSO imply or require or impute that the PAYEE is engaged in a "trade or business"? A worthy exercise would be to go through all the instruction forms for information returns and the IRS publications to see what they say about WHICH ends of the transaction must be engaged in a "trade or business". We did a cursory look and they almost always talk to the FILER of the information return and use the phrase "YOUR trade or business", as though they are implying that the PAYER is the ONLY one engaged in the public office.

How then, does the PAYEE become involved in a "trade or business" if the information return doesn't imply it? Below are the MAIN techniques":

1. Taking deductions under 26 U.S.C. §162, all of which require those taking them to be engaged in a "trade or business". See section 5.6.12.9.1 later
2. Using a RESIDENT tax form, the 1040. The "United States" that a person is a "resident" (alien) in relation to is the GOVERNMENT, and not the geographical USA. The "United States" one is a "resident" of is the government, and the "person" who is the resident is the public office within the government, and not the human being filling the office. See section 5.6.12.9.4 later
3. Using government de facto license numbers such as SSNs and TINs. 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) says that these numbers are only required by those engaged in a "trade or business" and who are "U.S. persons", meaning people domiciled on federal territory that is no part of any state of the Union. See section 5.6.12.9.3 later and also the following:

To summarize the findings of this section:

1. The language within the I.R.C. surrounding the use of the word "trade or business" is very deliberately and cunningly trying to confuse you about which end of the transaction is the public officer and therefore the "taxpayer" because they want you to assume EVERYONE is a "taxpayer", "person", and "individual". If they were more honest, they would have referred directly to the words "PAYER" and "PAYEE".
2. Every transaction has TWO parties, a PAYER, and a PAYEE.
  - 2.1. The PAYER is always a public officer and a "taxpayer", and therefore a "person" and "U.S. person" (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) ) subject to federal law. A "public office" making payments to a nonresident, for instance, is a "U.S. source" and the PAYER is a "trade or business" but the payee is NOT. Some PAYERS unlawfully compel the nonresident to "elect" themself into public office by compelling them to procure and use an identifying numbers before they will make the payment. This is a criminal violation of 42 U.S.C. §408(a)(8) and 18 U.S.C. §912 and causes perjury on the Forms SS-5, W-7, and W-9 in the case of a nonresident domiciled in a state of the union who does not ALREADY occupy a public office BEFORE they made application for the number.
  - 2.2. The PAYEE most often is, in reality, a nonresident who is neither a "person", "individual", nor "taxpayer" but who wrongfully thinks they are because of the deliberate and calculated confusion in the code you point out.
3. Everything the PAYEE receives from the PAYER is, by definition, "U.S. source income" because the "U.S." means the government, and not the geographical sense. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) is a red herring, because it uses the phrase "geographical sense", but nowhere is the "geographical sense" of the word ever expressly invoked throughout the entire 9500 page Internal Revenue Code.
  - 3.1. The payment is ECI IN RELATION TO THE PAYER while also being. . .
  - 3.2. "U.S. source" and NOT ECI in relation to a PAYEE who is NOT engaged in a "trade or business" or who is nonresident.
  - 3.3. It is only taxable, reportable, or subject to withholding if BOTH the PAYER and the PAYEE are "persons", "U.S. persons", and "taxpayers" domiciled on federal territory. It isn't taxable if either end of the transaction is a nonresident and therefore not a "person", "individual", or "taxpayer". Domicile is the origin of the liability for tax. That is why there are so many statutes mentioned in the Non-Resident Non-Person Position booklet that say that nonresidents don't earn reportable income. This is made clear below:

5.6.12.8 Public office generally

5.6.12.8.1 Legal requirements for holding a "public office"?

The subject of exactly what constitutes a "public office" within the meaning described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) is not defined in any IRS publication we could find. The reason is quite clear: the "trade or business" scam is the Achilles heel of the IRS fraud and both the IRS and the Courts are loath to even talk about it because there is nothing they can defend themselves with other than unsubstantiated presumption created by the abuse of the word "includes" and certain key "words of art". In the face of such overwhelming evidence of their own illegal and criminal mis-enforcement of the tax codes, silence or omission in either admitting it or prosecuting it can only be characterized as FRAUD on a massive scale, in fact:

"Silence can only be equated with fraud where there is a legal or moral duty to speak or where an inquiry left unanswered would be intentionally misleading."
 [U.S. v. Prudden, 424 F.2d. 1021 (5th Cir. 1970)]

"Silence can be equated with fraud where there is a legal or moral duty to speak, or where an inquiry left unanswered would be intentionally misleading. . . We cannot condone this shocking behavior by the IRS. Our revenue system is based on the good faith of the taxpayer and the taxpayers should be able to expect the same from the government in its enforcement and collection activities."
 [U.S. v. Tweel, 550 F.2d. 297, 299 (5th Cir. 1977)]

"Silence is a species of conduct, and constitutes an implied representation of the existence of the state of facts in question, and the estoppel is accordingly a species of estoppel by misrepresentation. When silence is of such a character and under such circumstances that it would become a fraud upon the other party to permit the party who has kept silent to deny what his silence has induced the other to believe and act upon, it will operate as an estoppel."
 [Carmine v. Bowen, 64 A. 932 (1906)]

1 The “duty” the courts are talking about above is the fiduciary duty of all those serving in public offices in the government,
 2 and that fiduciary duty was created by the oath of office they took before they entered the office. Therefore, those who
 3 want to know how they could lawfully be classified as a “public office” will have to answer that question completely on 4 their own, which is what we will attempt to do in this section.

5 We begin our search with a definition of “public office” from Black’s Dictionary:

6 “Public office. The right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either
 7 fixed by law or enduring at the pleasure of the creating power, an individual is invested with some portion of

 18 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1235]

19 Black’s Law Dictionary Sixth Edition further clarifies the meaning of a “public office” below:

20 “Essential characteristics of a ‘public office’ are:

- 21 (1) Authority conferred by law,
 22 (2) Fixed tenure of office, and
 23 (3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.

24
 25 Key element of such test is that “officer is carrying out a sovereign function. Spring v. Constantino, 168 Conn.
 26 563, 362 A.2d. 871, 875. Essential elements to establish public position as ‘public office’ are:

27 Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.
 28 Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,
 29 Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.
 30 Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
 31 Position must have some permanency.”

32 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

33 American Jurisprudence Legal Encyclopedia further clarifies what a “public office” is as follows:

34 “As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be
 35 exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. <sup>106</sup>

[63C American Jurisprudence 2d., Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

Ordinary or common-law employees of the government also do not qualify as “public officers”:

Treatise on the Law of Public Offices and Officers
Book 1: Of the Office and the Officer: How Officer Chosen and Qualified
Chapter I: Definitions and Divisions

§2 How Office Differs from Employment.-A public office differs in material particulars from a public employment, for, as was said by Chief Justice MARSHALL, "although an office is an employment, it does not follow that every employment is an office. A man may certainly be employed under a contract, express or implied, to perform a service without becoming an officer."<sup>112</sup>

"We apprehend that the term 'office,'" said the judges of the supreme court of Maine, "implies a delegation of a portion of the sovereign power to, and the possession of it by, the person filling the office; and the exercise of such power within legal limits constitutes the correct discharge of the duties of such office. The power thus delegated and possessed may be a portion belonging sometimes to one of the three great departments and sometimes to another; still it is a legal power which may be rightfully exercised, and in its effects it will bind the rights of others and be subject to revision and correction only according to the standing laws of the state. An employment merely has none of these distinguishing features. A public agent acts only on behalf of his principal, the public, whose sanction is generally considered as necessary to give the acts performed the authority and power of a public act or law. And if the act be such as not to require subsequent sanction, still it is only a species of service performed under the public authority and for the public good, but not in the exercise of any standing laws which are considered as roles of action and guardians of rights."<sup>113</sup>

"The officer is distinguished from the employee," says Judge COOLEY, "in the greater importance, dignity and independence of his position; in being required to take an official oath, and perhaps to give an official bond; in the liability to be called to account as a public offender for misfeasance or non-feasance in office, and usually, though not necessarily, in the tenure of his position. In particular cases, other distinctions will appear which are not general."<sup>114</sup>

Based on the foregoing, one cannot be a “public officer” if:

1. There is not a statute or constitutional authority that specifically creates the office. All “public offices” can only be created through legislative authority.
2. Their duties are not specifically and exactly enumerated in some Act of Congress.
3. They have a boss or immediate supervisor. All duties must be performed INDEPENDENTLY.
4. They have anyone but the law and the courts to immediately supervise their activities.
5. They are serving as a “public officer” in a location NOT specifically authorized by the law. The law must create the office and specify exactly where it is to be exercised. 4 U.S.C. §72 says ALL public offices of the federal and national government MUST be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, except as expressly provided by law.
6. Their position does not carry with it some kind of fiduciary duty to the “public” which in turn is documented in and enforced by enacted law itself.
7. The beneficiary of their fiduciary duty is other than the “public”. Public service is a public trust, and the beneficiary of the trust is the public at large and not any one specific individual or group of individuals. See 5 C.F.R. §2635.101(b) and Executive Order 12731.

All public officers must take an oath. The oath, in fact, is what creates the fiduciary duty that attaches to the office. This is confirmed by the definition of "public official" in Black's Law Dictionary:

“Public official. A person who, upon being issued a commission, taking required oath, enters upon, for a fixed tenure, a position called an office where he or she exercises in his or her own right some of the attributes of sovereign he or she serves for benefit of public. Macy v. Heverin, 44 Md.App. 358, 408 A.2d. 1067, 1069. The holder of a public office though

Langdon, 40 Mich. 678, 682; “An office is a public position created by the constitution or law, continuing during the pleasure of the appointing power or for a fixed term with a successor elected or appointed. An employment is an agency for a temporary purpose which ceases when that purpose is accomplished. “ Cons. Ill., 1870, Art. 5, §24.

1 not all persons in public employment are public officials, because public official's position requires the exercise of some
 2 portion of the sovereign power, whether great or small. Town of Arlington v. Bds. of Conciliation and Arbitration, Mass.,

5 The oath for United States federal and state officials was prescribed in the very first enactment of Congress on March 4,
 6 1789 as follows:

7 Statutes at Large, March 4, 1789
 8 1 Stat. 23-24

9 SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and [Home of] Representatives of the United States of America in Congress
 10 assembled, That the oath or affirmation required by the sixth article of the Constitution of the United States,
 11 shall be administered in the form following, to wit : " I, A, B. do solemnly swear or affirm (as the case may be)
 12 that I will support the Constitution of the United States." The said oath or affirmation shall be administered
 13 within three days after the passing of this act, by any one member of the Senate, to the President of the Senate,
 14 and by him to all the members and to the secretary; and by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, to all
 15 the members who have not taken a similar oath, by virtue of a particular resolution of the said House, and to 16 the clerk: and in case of the absence of any member from the service of either House, at the time prescribed for 17 taking the said oath or affirmation, the same shall be administered to such member, when he shall appear to 18 take his seat.

19 SEC. 2. And he it further enacted, That at the first session of Congress after every general election of 20 Representatives, the oath or affirmation aforesaid, shall be administered by any one member of the House of 21 Representatives to the Speaker; and by him to all the members present, and to the clerk, previous to entering
 22 on any other business; and to the members who shall afterwards appear, previous to taking their seats. The 23 President of the Senate for the time being, shall also administer the said oath or affirmation to each Senator
 24 who shall hereafter be elected, previous to his taking his seat: and in any future case of a President of the 25 Senate, who shall not have taken the said oath or affirmation, the same shall be administered to him by any one
 26 of the members of the Senate.

27 SEC. 3. And be it further enacted. That the members of the several State legislatures, at the next sessions of the 28 said legislatures, respectively, and all executive and judicial officers of the several States, who have been 29 heretofore chosen or appointed, or who shall be chosen or appointed before the first day of August next, and
 30 who shall then be in office, shall, within one month thereafter, take the same oath or affirmation, except where
 31 they shall have taken it before; which may be administered by any person authorized by the law of the State, in 32 which such office shall be holden, to administer oaths. And the members of the several State legislatures, and
 33 all executive and judicial officers of the several States, who shall be chosen or appointed after the said first
 34 day of August, shall, before they proceed to execute the duties of their respective offices, take the foregoing oath
 35 or affirmation, which shall be administered by the person or persons, who by the law of the State shall be
 36 authorized to administer the oath of office; and the person or persons so administering the oath hereby required
 37 to be taken, shall cause a re- cord or certificate thereof to be made, in the same manner, as, by the law of the 38 State, he or they shall be directed to record or certify the oath of office.

39 SEC. 4. And he it further enacted, That all officers appointed, or hereafter to be appointed under the authority
 40 of the United States, shall, before they act in their respective offices, take the same oath or affirmation, which
 41 shall be administered by the person or persons who shall be authorized by law to administer to such officers
 42 their respective oaths of office; and such officers shall incur the same penalties in case of failure, as shall be
 43 imposed by law in case of failure in taking their respective oaths of office.

44 SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That the secretary of the Senate, and the clerk of the House of 45 Representatives for the time being, shall, at the time of taking the oath or affirmation aforesaid, each take an 46 oath or affirmation in the words following, to wit : "I, A. B. secretary of the Senate, or clerk of the House of 47 Representatives (as the case may be) of the United States of America, do solemnly swear or affirm, that I will 48 truly and faithfully discharge the duties of my said office, to the best of my knowledge and abilities."

49 Based on the above, the following persons within the government are "public officers":

- 50 1. Federal Officers:
- 51 1.1. The President of the United States.
  - 52 1.2. Members of the House of Representatives.
  - 53 1.3. Members of the Senate.
  - 54 1.4. All appointed by the President of the United States.
  - 55 1.5. The secretary of the Senate.
  - 56 1.6. The clerk of the House of Representatives.
  - 57 1.7. All district, circuit, and supreme court justices.

2. State Officers:
  - 2.1. The governor of the state.
  - 2.2. Members of the House of Representatives.
  - 2.3. Members of the Senate.
  - 2.4. All district, circuit, and supreme court justices of the state.

At the federal level, all those engaged in the above “public offices” are statutorily identified in 5 U.S.C. §2105. Consistent with this section, what most people would regard as ordinary common law employees are not included in the definition. Note the phrase “an officer AND an individual”:

TITLE 5 > PART III > Subpart A > CHAPTER 21 > § 2105
§ 2105. Employee

(a) For the purpose of this title, “employee”, except as otherwise provided by this section or when specifically modified, means an officer and an individual who is—

(1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity—

- (A) the President;
- (B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;
- (C) a member of a uniformed service;
- (D) an individual who is an employee under this section;
- (E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or
- (F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709 (c) of title 32;

(2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act; and

(3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection while engaged in the performance of the duties of his position.

Within the military, only commissioned officers are “public officers”. Enlisted or NCOs (Non-Commissioned Officers) are not.

Those holding Federal or State public office, county or municipal office, under the Legislative, Executive or Judicial branch, including Court Officials, Judges, Prosecutors, Law Enforcement Department employees, Officers of the Court, and etc., before entering into these public offices, are required by the U.S. Constitution and statutory law to comply with 5 U.S.C. §3331, “Oath of office.” State Officials are also required to meet this same obligation, according to State Constitutions and State statutory law.

All oaths of office come under 22 C.F.R., Foreign Relations, Sections §§92.12 - 92.30, and all who hold public office come under 8 U.S.C. §1481 “Loss of nationality by native-born or naturalized citizen; voluntary action; burden of proof; presumptions.”

Under Title 22 U.S.C., Foreign Relations and Intercourse, Section §611, a Public Official is considered a foreign agent. In order to hold public office, the candidate must file a true and complete registration statement with the State Attorney General as a foreign principle.

The Oath of Office requires the public officials in his/her foreign state capacity to uphold the constitutional form of government or face consequences, according to 10 U.S.C. §333, “Interference with State and Federal law”

The President, by using the militia or the armed forces, or both, or by any other means, shall take such measures as he considers necessary to suppress, in a State, any insurrection, domestic violence, unlawful combination, or conspiracy, if it—

(1) so hinders the execution of the laws of that State, and of the United States within the State, that any part or class of its people is deprived of a right, privilege, immunity, or protection named in the Constitution and secured by law, and the constituted authorities of that State are unable, fail, or refuse to protect that right, privilege, or immunity, or to give that protection; or

(2) opposes or obstructs the execution of the laws of the United States or impedes the course of justice under those laws.

In any situation covered by clause (1), the State shall be considered to have denied the equal protection of the laws secured by the Constitution.

Willful refusal action while serving in official capacity violates 18 U.S.C. §1918, "Disloyalty and asserting the right to strike against the Government"

Whoever violates the provision of 7311 of title 5 that an individual may not accept or hold a position in the Government of the United States or the government of the District of Columbia if he—

(1) advocates the overthrow of our constitutional form of government;

(2) is a member of an organization that he knows advocates the overthrow of our constitutional form of government; shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than one year and a day, or both.

AND violates 18 U.S.C. §1346:

TITLE 18 > PART I > CHAPTER 63 § 1346. Definition of "scheme or artifice to defraud"

" For the purposes of this chapter, the term "scheme or artifice to defraud" includes a scheme or artifice to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services.

The "public offices" described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) within the definition of "trade or business" are ONLY public offices located in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere. To wit:

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
§ 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

The only provision of any act of Congress that we have been able to find which authorizes "public offices" outside the District of Columbia as expressly required by law above, is 48 U.S.C. §1612, which authorizes enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code within the U.S. Virgin Islands. To wit:

TITLE 48 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER V > § 1612
§ 1612. Jurisdiction of District Court

(a) Jurisdiction

The District Court of the Virgin Islands shall have the jurisdiction of a District Court of the United States, including, but not limited to, the diversity jurisdiction provided for in section 1332 of title 28 and that of a bankruptcy court of the United States. The District Court of the Virgin Islands shall have exclusive jurisdiction over all criminal and civil proceedings in the Virgin Islands with respect to the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands, regardless of the degree of the offense or of the amount involved, except the ancillary laws relating to the income tax enacted by the legislature of the Virgin Islands. Any act or failure to act with respect to the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands which would constitute a criminal offense described in chapter 75 of subtitle F of title 26 shall constitute an offense against the government of the Virgin Islands and may be prosecuted in the name of the government of the Virgin Islands by the appropriate officers thereof in the District Court of the Virgin Islands without the request or the consent of the United States attorney for the Virgin Islands, notwithstanding the provisions of section 1617 of this title.

There is NO PROVISION OF LAW which would similarly extend public offices or jurisdiction to enforce any provision of the Internal Revenue Code to any place within the exclusive jurisdiction of any state of the Union, because Congress enjoys NO LEGISLATIVE JURISDICTION THERE.

"It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation."

1           "The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions
 2 *concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court
 3 has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or

 6 [Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

7 By law then, no "public office" may therefore be exercised OUTSIDE the District of Columbia except as "expressly
 8 provided by law", including privileged or licensed activities such as a "trade or business". This was also confirmed by the 9 U.S. Supreme Court in the License Tax Cases, when they said:

10           "Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and
 11 with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to
 12 trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive
 13 power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the
 14 granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

15           But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this
 16 commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs
 17 exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is

 19 the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of*
 20 the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given
 21 in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it
 22 must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited,
 23 and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing
 24 *subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business
 25 within a State in order to tax it."*

26 [License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

27 Since I.R.C., Subtitle A is a tax on "public offices", which is called a "trade or business", then the tax can only apply to 28 those domiciled within the statutory but not constitutional "United States**" (federal territory), wherever they are 29 physically located to include states of the Union, but only if they are serving under oath in their official capacity as "public 30 officers".

31           *"Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in
 32 transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the*
 33 *Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates
 34 universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter
 35 obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course,*

 37 obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
 38 [Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

39 Another important point needs to be emphasized, which is that those working for the federal government, while on official
 40 duty, are representing a federal corporation called the "United States", which is domiciled in the District of Columbia.

13 Government employees, including "public officers", while on official duty representing the federal corporation called the

14 "United States", maintain the character of the entity they represent and therefore have a legal domicile in the statutory but

15 not constitutional "United States**" (federal territory) within the context of their official duties. The Internal Revenue

16 Code also reflects this fact in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d):

34 Kidnapping and transporting the legal identity of a person domiciled outside the District of Columbia in a foreign state,

35 which includes states of the Union, is illegal pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §1201. Therefore, the only people who can be legally

36 and involuntarily "kidnapped" by the courts based on the above two provisions of statutory law are those who individually

37 consent through private contract to act as "public officers" in the execution of their official duties. The fiduciary duty of

38 these "public officers" is further defined in the I.R.C. as follows, and it is only by an oath of "public office" that this

39 fiduciary duty can lawfully be created:

42 (b) Person defined

43 The term "person", as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member

44 or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in

45 respect of which the violation occurs.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 75 > Subchapter D > § 7343
 § 7343. Definition of term "person"

The term "person" as used in this chapter includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.

We remind our readers that there is no liability statute within I.R.C., Subtitle A that would create the duty documented above, and therefore the ONLY way it can be created is by the oath of office of the "public officers" who are the subject of the tax in question. This was thoroughly described in the following article:

There's No Statute Making Anyone Liable to Pay IRC Subtitle A Income Taxes, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/NoStatuteLiable.htm>

The existence of fiduciary duty of "public officers" is therefore the ONLY lawful method by which anyone can be prosecuted for an "omission", which is a thing they didn't do that the law required them to do. It is otherwise illegal and unlawful to prosecute anyone under either common law or statutory law for a FAILURE to do something, such as a FAILURE TO FILE a tax return pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7203. Below is an example of where the government gets its authority to prosecute "taxpayers" for failure to file a tax return, in fact:

"I: DUTY TO ACCOUNT FOR PUBLIC FUNDS

§ 909. In general. -It is the duty of the public officer, like any other agent or trustee, although not declared by express statute, to faithfully account for and pay over to the proper authorities all moneys which may come into his hands upon the public account, and the performance of this duty may be enforced by proper actions against the officer himself, or against those who have become sureties for the faithful discharge of his duties.

In addition to the above, every attorney admitted to practice law in any state or federal court is described as an "officer of the court", and therefore ALSO is a "public officer":

Attorney at law. An advocate, counsel, or official agent employed in preparing, managing, and trying cases in the courts. An officer in a court of justice, who is employed by a party in a cause to manage it for him. In re Bergeron, 220 Mass. 472, 107 N.E. 1007, 1008, Ann.Cas.1917A, 549.

An attorney was almost invariably also a solicitor. It is now provided by the judicature act. 1873, § 87. that solicitors. Attorneys, or proctors of, or by law empowered to practice in, any court the jurisdiction of which is by that act transferred to the high court of justice or the court of appeal, shall be called "solicitors of the supreme court." Executive Order 12731 and 5 C.F.R. §2635.101(a) furthermore both indicate that "public service is a public trust":

Executive Order 12731
 "Part 1 -- PRINCIPLES OF ETHICAL CONDUCT

"Section 101. Principles of Ethical Conduct. To ensure that every citizen can have complete confidence in the integrity of the Federal Government, each Federal employee shall respect and adhere to the fundamental principles of ethical service as implemented in regulations promulgated under sections 201 and 301 of this order:

"(a) Public service is a public trust, requiring employees to place loyalty to the Constitution, the laws, and ethical principles above private gain.

TITLE 5--ADMINISTRATIVE PERSONNEL
CHAPTER XVI--OFFICE OF GOVERNMENT ETHICS
PART 2635--STANDARDS OF ETHICAL CONDUCT FOR EMPLOYEES OF THE EXECUTIVE
BRANCH--Table of Contents
Subpart A--General Provisions
Sec. 2635.101 Basic obligation of public service.

(a) Public service is a public trust. Each employee has a responsibility to the United States Government and its citizens to place loyalty to the Constitution, laws and ethical principles above private gain. To ensure that every citizen can have complete confidence in the integrity of the Federal Government, each employee shall respect and adhere to the principles of ethical conduct set forth in this section, as well as the implementing standards contained in this part and in supplemental agency regulations.

The above provisions of law imply that everyone who works for the government is a "trustee" of "We the People", who are the sovereigns they serve in the public. In law, EVERY "trustee" is a "fiduciary" of the Beneficiary of the trust within which he serves:

"TRUSTEE. The person appointed, or required by law, to execute a trust; one in whom an estate, interest, or power is vested, under an express or implied agreement [e.g. PRIVATE LAW or CONTRACT] to administer or exercise it for the benefit or to the use of another called the cestui que trust. Pioneer Mining Co. v. Tyberg, C.C.A.Alaska, 215 F. 501, 506, L.R.A.1915B, 442; Kaehn v. St. Paul Co-op. Ass'n, 156 Minn. 113, 194 N.W. 112; Catlett v. Hawthorne, 157 Va. 372, 161 S.E. 47, 48. Person who holds title to res and administers it for others' benefit. Reinecke v. Smith, Ill., 53 S.Ct. 570, 289 U.S. 172, 77 L.Ed. 1109. In a strict sense, a "trustee" is one 'who holds the legal title to property for the benefit of another, while, in a broad sense, the term is sometimes applied to anyone standing in a fiduciary or confidential relation to another, such as agent, attorney, bailee, etc. State ex rel. Lee v. Sartorius, 344 Mo. 912, 130 S.W.2d. 547, 549, 550. "Trustee" is also used in a wide and perhaps inaccurate sense, to denote that a person has the duty of carrying out a transaction, in which he and another person are interested, in such manner as will be most for the benefit of the latter, and not in such a way that he himself might be tempted, for the sake of his personal advantage, to neglect the interests of the other. In this sense, directors of companies are said to be "trustees for the shareholders." Sweet. [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1684]

The fact that public service is a "public trust" was also confirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court, when it said:

"Whatever these Constitutions and laws validly determine to be property, it is the duty of the Federal Government, through the domain of jurisdiction merely Federal, to recognize to be property.

"And this principle follows from the structure of the respective Governments, State and Federal, and their reciprocal relations. They are different agents and trustees of the people of the several States, appointed with different powers and with distinct purposes, but whose acts, within the scope of their respective jurisdictions, are mutually obligatory."
 [Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393 (1856)]

An example of someone who is NOT a "public officer" is a federal worker on duty and who is not required to take an oath. These people may think of themselves as employees in an ordinary and not statutory sense and even be called employees by their supervisor or employer, but in fact NOT be the statutory "employee" defined in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). Remember that 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) defines a STATUTORY "employee" as "an officer and an individual" and you don't become an "officer" in a statutory sense unless and until you take a Constitutional oath. Almost invariably, such workers also have some kind of immediate supervisor who manages and oversees and evaluates his activities pursuant to the position description drafted for the position he fills. He may be a "trustee" and he may have a "fiduciary duty" to the public as a "public servant", but he isn't an "officer" or "public officer" unless and until he takes an oath of office prescribed by law. A federal worker, however, can become a "public office" by virtue of any one or more of the following purposes that we are aware of so far:

1. Be elected to political office.
2. Being appointed to political office by the President or the governor of a state of the Union.

A "public office" is not limited to a human being. It can also extend to an entire entity such as a corporation. An example of an entity that is a "public office" in its entirety is a federally chartered bank, such as the original Bank of the United States described in Osborn v. United States, in which the U.S. Supreme Court identified the original and first Bank of the United States, a federally chartered bank corporation created by Congress, as a "public office":

All the powers of the government must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made with individuals. Can any public office be created, or does one exist, the performance of which may, with propriety, be assigned to this association [or trust], when incorporated? If such office exist, or can be created, then the company may be incorporated, that they may be appointed to execute such office. Is there any portion of the public business performed by individuals upon contracts, that this association could be employed to perform, with greater advantage and more safety to the public, than an individual contractor? If there be an employment of this nature, then may this company be incorporated to undertake it.

There is an employment of this nature. Nothing can be more essential to the fiscal concerns of the nation, than an agent of undoubted integrity and established credit, with whom the public moneys can, at all times, be safely deposited. Nothing can be of more importance to a government, than that there should be some capitalist in the country, who possesses the means of making advances of money to the government upon any exigency, and who is under a legal obligation to make such advances. For these purposes the association would be an agent peculiarly suitable and appropriate. [ . . . ]

The mere creation of a corporation, does not confer political power or political character. So this Court decided in Dartmouth College v. Woodward, already referred to. If I may be allowed to paraphrase the language of the Chief Justice, I would say, a bank incorporated, is no more a State instrument, than a natural person performing the same business would be. If, then, a natural person, engaged in the trade of banking, should contract with the government to receive the public money upon deposit, to transmit it from place to place, without charging for commission or difference of exchange, and to perform, when called upon, the duties of commissioner of loans, would not thereby become a public officer, how is it that this artificial being, created by law for the purpose of being employed by the government for the same purposes, should become a part of the civil government of the country? Is it because its existence, its capacities, its powers, are given by law? because the government has given it power to take and hold property in a particular form, and to employ that property for particular purposes, and in the disposition of it to use a particular name? because the government has sold it a privilege [22 U.S. 738, 774] for a large sum of money, and has bargained with it to do certain things; is it, therefore, a part of the very government with which the contract is made?

If the Bank be constituted a public office, by the connexion between it and the government, it cannot be the mere legal franchise in which the office is vested; the individual stockholders must be the officers. Their character is not merged in the charter. This is the strong point of the Mayor and Commonalty v. Wood, upon which this Court ground their decision in the Bank v. Deveaux, and from which they say, that cause could not be distinguished. Thus, aliens may become public officers, and public duties are confided to those who owe no allegiance to the government, and who are even beyond its territorial limits.

With the privileges and perquisites of office, all individuals holding offices, ought to be subject to the disabilities of office. But if the Bank be a public office, and the individual stockholders public officers, this principle does not have a fair and just operation. The disabilities of office do not attach to the stockholders; for we find them every where holding public offices, even in the national Legislature, from which, if they be public officers, they are excluded by the constitution in express terms.

If the Bank be a public institution of such character as to be justly assimilated to the mint and the post office, then its charter may be amended, altered, or even abolished, at the discretion of the National Legislature. All public offices are created [22 U.S. 738, 775] purely for public purposes, and may, at any time, be modified in such manner as the public interest may require. Public corporations partake of the same character. So it is distinctly adjudged in Dartmouth College v. Woodward. In this point, each Judge who delivered an opinion concurred. By one of the Judges it is said, that 'public corporations are generally esteemed such as exist for public political purposes only, such as towns, cities, parishes and counties; and in many respects they are so, although they involve some private interests; but, strictly speaking, public corporations are such only as are founded by the government for public purposes, where the whole interest belongs also to the government. If, therefore, the foundation be private, though under the charter of the government, the corporation is private, however extensive the uses may be to which it is devoted, either by the bounty of the founder, or the nature and objects of the institution. For instance, a bank, created by the government for its own uses, whose stock is exclusively owned by the government, is, in the strictest sense, a public corporation. So, a hospital created and endowed by the government for general charity. But a bank, whose stock is owned by private persons, is a private corporation, although it is erected by the government, and its objects and operations partake of a public nature. The same doctrine may be affirmed of insurance, canal, bridge, and turnpike companies. In all these cases, the uses may, in a certain sense, be called public, but the corporations are private; as much [22 U.S. 738, 776] so, indeed, as if the franchises were vested in a single person.[ . . . ]

In what sense is it an instrument of the government? and in what character is it employed as such? Do the government employ the faculty, the legal franchise, or do they employ the individuals upon whom it is conferred? and what is the nature of that employment? does it resemble the post office, or the mint, or the custom house, or the process of the federal Courts?

The post office is established by the general government. It is a public institution. The persons who perform its duties are public officers. No individual has, or can acquire, any property in it. For all the services performed,

1 a compensation is paid out of the national treasury; and all the money received upon account of its operations,
2 is public property. Surely there is no similitude between this institution, and an association who trade upon
3 their own capital, for their own profit, and who have paid the government a million and a half of dollars for a
4 legal character and name, in which to conduct their trade.

5 Again: the business conducted through the agency of the post office, is not in its nature a private business. It is
6 of a public character, and the [22 U.S. 738, 786] charge of it is expressly conferred upon Congress by the 7 constitution. The business is created by law, and is annihilated when the law is repealed. But the trade of 8 banking is strictly a private concern. It exists and can be carried on without the aid of the national Legislature.
9 Nay, it is only under very special circumstances, that the national Legislature can so far interfere with it, as to 10 facilitate its operations.

11 The post office executes the various duties assigned to it, by means of subordinate agents. The mails are opened
12 and closed by persons invested with the character of public officers. But they are transported by individuals
13 employed for that purpose, in their individual character, which employment is created by and founded in 14 contract. To such contractors no official character is attached. These contractors supply horses, carriages, and 15 whatever else is necessary for the transportation of the mails, upon their own account. The whole is engaged in 16 the public service. The contractor, his horses, his carriage, his driver, are all in public employ. But this does
17 not change their character. All that was private property before the contract was made, and before they were 18 engaged in public employ, remain private property still. The horses and the carriages are liable to be taxed as 19 other property, for every purpose for which property of the same character is taxed in the place where they are 20 employed. The reason is plain: the contractor is employing his own means to promote his own private profit,
21 and the tax collected is from the individual, though assessed upon the [22 U.S. 738, 787] means he uses to 22 perform the public service. To tax the transportation of the mails, as such, would be taxing the operations of the 23 government, which could not be allowed. But to tax the means by which this transportation is effected, so far as 24 those means are private property, is allowable; because it abstracts nothing from the government; and because,
25 the fact that an individual employs his private means in the service of the government, attaches to them no
26 immunity whatever."
27 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

28 The record of the House of Representatives after the enactment of the first income tax during the Civil War in 1862,
29 confirmed that the income tax was upon a "public office" and that even IRS agents, who are not "public officers" and who
30 are not required to take an oath, are therefore exempt from the requirements of the revenue acts in place at the time. Read
31 the amazing truth for yourself:

32 Below is an excerpt from that report proving our point. The Secretary of the Treasury at the time is comparing the federal 33 tax liabilities of postal clerks to those of internal revenue clerks. At that time, the IRS was called the Bureau of Internal 34 Revenue. The office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue was established in 1862 as an emergency measure to fund the 35 Civil War, which ended shortly thereafter, but the illegal enforcement of the revenue laws continued and expanded into the 36 states over succeeding years:

39 Salary Tax Upon Clerks to Postmasters

40 Letter form the Secretary of the Treasury in answer to A resolution of the House of the 12th of February,
41 relative to salary tax upon clerks to postmasters, with the regulations of the department

42 Postmasters' clerks are appointed by postmasters, and take the oaths of office prescribed in the 2d section of 43 the act of July 2, 1862, and in the 2d section of the act of March 3, 1863.

44 Their salaries are not fixed in amount bylaw, but from time to time the Post master General fixes the amount',
45 allotted to each postmaster for clerk hire, under the authority conferred upon him by tile ninth section of the act
46 of June 5, 1836, and then the postmaster, as an agent for and in behalf of the United States, determines the 47 salary to be paid to each of his clerks. These salaries are paid by the postmasters, acting as disbursing agents,
48 from United States moneys advanced to them for this purpose, either directly from the Post Office Department
49 in pursuance of appropriations made by law, or from the accruing revenues of their offices, under the 50 instructions of the Postmaster General. The receipt of such clerks constitute vouchers in the accounts of the 51 postmasters acting as disbursing agents in the settlements made with them by the Sixth Auditor. In the 52 foregoing transactions the postmaster acts not as a principal, but as an agent of the United States, and the 53 clerks are not in his private employment, but in the public employment of the United States. Such being the 54 facts, these clerks are subjected to and required to account for and pay the salary tax, imposed by the one

1 hundred and twenty-third section of the internal revenue act of June 30, 1864, as amended by the ninth section
2 of the internal revenue act of July 13, 1866, upon payments for services to persons in the civil employment or
3 service of the United States.

4 Copies of the regulations under which such salary taxes are withheld and paid into the treasury to the credit of 5 internal revenue collection account are herewith transmitted, marked A, b, and C. Clerks to assessors of 6 internal revenue [IRS agents] are appointed by the assessors. Neither law nor regulations require them to
7 take an oath of office, because, as the law at present stands, they are not in the public service of the United
8 States, through the agency of the assessor, but are in the private service of the assessor, as a principal, who 9 employs them.

10 The salaries of such clerks are neither fixed in amount by law, nor are they regulated by any officer of the 11 Treasury Department over the clerk hire of assessors is to prescribe a necessary and reasonable amount which 12 shall not be exceeded in reimbursing the assessors for this item of their expenses.

13 No money is advanced by the United States for the payment of such salaries, nor do the assessors perform the 14 duties of disbursing agents of the United States in paying their clerks. The entire amount allowed is paid
15 directly to the assessor, and he is not accountable to the United States for its payment to his clerks, for the 16 reason that he has paid them in advance, out of his own funds, and this is a reimbursement to him of such 17 amount as the department decides to be reasonable. No salary tax is therefore collected, or required by the 18 Treasury Department to be accounted for, or paid, on account of payments to the assessors' clerks, as the 19 United States pays no such clerks nor has them in its employ or service, and they do not come within the 20 provisions of existing laws imposing such a tax.

21 Perhaps no better illustration of the difference between the status of postmasters' clerks and that of assessors'
22 clerks can be given than the following: A postmaster became a defaulter, without paying his clerks; his 23 successor received from the Postmaster General a new remittance for paying them; and if at any time, the 24 clerks in a post office do not receive their salaries, by reason of the death, resignation or removal of a
25 postmaster, the new appointee is authorized by the regulations of the Post Office Department to pay them out of 26 the proceeds of the office; and should there be no funds in his hands belonging to the department, a draft is 27 issued to place money in his hands for that purpose.

28 If an assessor had not paid his clerks, they would have no legal claim upon the treasury for their salaries. A 29 discrimination is made between postmasters' clerks and assessor's clerks to the extent and for the reasons
30 hereinbefore set forth.

31 I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

32 H. McCulloch, Secretary of the Treasury
33 [House of Representatives, Ex. Doc. 99, 1867, pp. 1-2]

34 Notice based on the above that revenue officers don't take an oath, so they don't have to pay the tax, while postal clerks
35 take an oath, so they do. Therefore, the oath that creates the "public office" is the method by which the government
36 manufactures "public officers", "taxpayers", and "sponsors" for its wasteful use or abuse of public monies. If you would 37 like a whole BOOK full of reasons why the only "taxpayers" under the I.R.C., Subtitle A are "public officers", please see 38 the following exhaustive analysis:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

39 5.6.12.8.2 De Facto Public Officers

40 Based on the previous section, we are now thoroughly familiar with all the legal requirements for:

- 41 1. How public offices are lawfully created.
- 42 2. The only places where they can lawfully be exercised.
- 43 3. The duties that attach to the public office.
- 44 4. The type of agency exercised by the public officer.
- 45 5. The relationship between the public office and the public officer.

46 What we didn't cover in the previous section is what are all the legal consequences when someone performs the duties of a
47 public office without satisfying all the legal requirements for lawfully occupying the office? In law, such a person is called

1 a “de facto officer” and books have been written about the subject of the “de facto officer doctrine”. Below is what the
 2 U.S. Supreme Court held on the subject of “de facto officers”:

3 “None of the cases cited militates against the doctrine that, for the existence of a de facto officer, there must
 4 be an office de jure, although there may be loose expressions in some of the opinions, not called for by the
 5 facts, seemingly against this view. Where no office legally exists, the pretended officer is merely a usurper, to
 6 whose acts no validity can be attached; and such, in our judgment, was the position of the commissioners of
 7 Shelby county, who undertook to act as the county court, which could be constitutionally held only by justices of
 8 the peace. Their right to discharge the duties of justices of the peace was never recognized by the justices, but 9 from the outset was resisted by legal proceedings, which terminated in an adjudication that they were usurpers,
 10 clothed with no authority or official function. “
 11 [Norton v. Shelby Co State of Tennessee, 118 U.S. 425, 6 S.Ct. 1121, 30 L.Ed. 178 (1886)]

12 As we have already established, all statutory “taxpayers” are public officers in the U.S. and not state government. This is 13 exhaustively proven with evidence in:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a “Public Officer” for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

14 A person who fulfills the DUTIES of a statutory “taxpayer” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) without lawfully occupying a
 15 public office in the U.S. government BEFORE becoming a “taxpayer” would be a good example of a de facto public
 16 officer. Those who exercise the duties of a public officer without meeting all the requirements, from a legal perspective,
 17 are in fact committing the crime of impersonating a public officer.

18 TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 43 > § 912
 19 § 912. Officer or employee of the United States

20 Whoever falsely assumes or pretends to be an officer or employee acting under the authority of the United
 21 States or any department, agency or officer thereof, and acts as such, or in such pretended character demands
 22 or obtains any money, paper, document, or thing of value, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more
 23 than three years, or both.

24 What are some examples where a person would be impersonating a public officer unlawfully? Here are a few:

- 25 1. You elect or appoint yourself into public office by filling out a tax form without occupying said office BEFORE being
- 26 a statutory “taxpayer”.
- 27 2. You serve in the office in a geographic place NOT expressly authorized by law. For instance, 4 U.S.C. §72 requires
- 28 that ALL federal public offices MUST be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and NOT ELSEWHERE,
- 29 unless expressly authorized by law.
- 30 3. A third party unilaterally ELECTS you into a public office by submitting an information return linking you to such a
- 31 BOGUS office under the alleged but not actual authority of 26 U.S.C. §6041(a).
- 32 4. You occupy the public office without either expressly consenting to it IN WRITING or without even knowing you
- 33 occupy such an office.

34 If a so-called “GOVERNMENT” is established in which:

- 35 1. The only kind of “citizens” or “residents” allowed are STATUTORY citizens and residents. CONSTITUTIONAL
- 36 citizens or residents are either not recognized or allowed as a matter of policy and not law. . . .OR
- 37 2. All “citizens” and “residents” are compelled under duress to accept the duties of a public office or ANY kind of duties
- 38 imposed by the government upon them. Remember, the Thirteenth Amendment forbids “involuntary servitude”, so if
- 39 the government imposes any kind of duty or requires you to surrender private property of any kind by law, then they
- 40 can only do so through the medium of a public office. . .OR
- 41 3. Everyone is compelled to obey government statutory law. Remember, nearly all laws passed by government can and
- 42 do regulate ONLY the government and not private people. See:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

43 . . .then you end up not only with a LOT of public officers, but a de facto GOVERNMENT as well. That government is 44 thoroughly described in:

De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.043

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

1 Even at the state level, it is a crime in every state of the Union to pretend to be a public officer of the state government who
2 does not satisfy ALL of the legal requirements for occupying the public office. Below is an itemized list by jurisdiction of
3 constitutional and statutory requirements that are violated by those who either impersonate a state public officer OR who
4 serve simultaneously serve in BOTH a FEDERAL public office and a STATE public office AT THE SAME TIME. That's
5 right: When you either impersonate a state public officer OR serve in BOTH a FEDERAL public office and STATE public
6 office AT THE SAME TIME, then you are committing a crime and have a financial conflict of interest and conflict of 7 allegiance that can and should disqualify you from exercising or accepting the duties of the office:

5.6.12.8.3 How do ordinary government workers not holding “public office” become “taxpayers”?

A question we are asked frequently is whether ordinary government workers not otherwise engaged in a “public office” are “taxpayers” and how they become “taxpayers”.

Chapter XVIII: Public Agents and Officers
 § 488. Definitions and classifications.-

Public agents are those persons who are chosen to perform the duties of the public,-that is, the government or municipality. They may be divided into two principal classes; namely, employes and officers. It is true the term "employe," in a sense, applies also to officers, for it may be said that every officer is an employe; but, on the other hand, a public employe is not necessarily a public officer; thus, a mere janitor of county or state buildings, a county physician, and other employes who do not take an official oath nor file an official bond, are not officers but employes.<sup>115</sup> An employe of the government usually owes his position to some officer whose duty it is to make the employment, and it is based entirely upon contract.<sup>116</sup> On the other hand, an officer owes his selection to a source fixed by the constitution or statute<sup>117</sup>, and not by contract.<sup>118</sup> Moreover, the term "public office" embraces the idea of tenure and duration, while a mere public employment may involve only transient or incidental duties.<sup>119</sup> An office is an entity which may continue even after the death or withdrawal of the incumbent.<sup>120</sup> A public office involves the delegation to the incumbent of a portion of the sovereign power of the state, either to make, administer, or execute the laws; and it signifies that the incumbent is to exercise some functions of that nature, and take the fees and emoluments belonging to the position.<sup>121</sup> On the other hand, there may be and are many employments by the national, state, city or town government which do not constitute the employe a public officer. "The work of the commonwealth," said the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts, "and of the cities and towns must be done by agents or servants, and much of it is of the nature of an employment. It is sometimes difficult to make the distinction between a public office and an employment, yet the title of 'public officer' is one well known to the law, and it is often necessary to determine what constitutes a public office. Every copying-clerk or janitor of a building is not necessarily a public officer."<sup>122</sup> A mere employe may, of course, be engaged by the appointing power for a definite time, or to accomplish a definite purpose, and in that sense his position may involve the nature of duration also; while, on the other hand, his employment may be altogether for an indefinite period, and he be subject to removal at any time. An employe under contract may be discharged without cause, unless the statute or constitution directs otherwise, but a public officer cannot generally be removed without cause, although the power of removal is inherent in the appointing power: the reason being that the power of removal is generally restricted by constitutional or statutory provisions.<sup>123</sup> The English notion that an office is hereditary does not obtain in this country, though it is true that the rights and privileges of an officer are the rights and privileges of the incumbent; in this country both the power of appointment and that of removal inhere in the people and are subject to their control by constitutions and statutes.<sup>124</sup> An office not being the creature of a contract, but

3 [A Treatise on the Law of Agency in Contract and Tort, George L. Rienhard, The Bowen-Merrill Company,
4 1902, pp. 538-539]

5 The answer is they aren't. The reason is that the above treatise explains that the office CANNOT be a product of contract.
6 They may file a false and fraudulent IRS Form W-4 AGREEMENT and therefore CONTRACT to be TREATED as if they
7 are public officers, but it constitutes the crime of impersonating a public officer per 18 U.S.C. §912 to do so. The 8 remainder of this section will explain why this is.

9 The previous section discussed the differences between a "public office" and "public employment" and clearly proved that 10 they are NOT equivalent. Consequently, ordinary government workers or civil service employees are NOT "public 11 officers" nor are they therefore engaged in the "trade or business" franchise and contract by default.

12 So how did sneaky Congress get around the road block that "public offices" and "public employments" are NOT equivalent 13 in law? Here is how they did it:

14 1. They defined all STATUTORY "employees" as "officers" in 5 U.S.C. §2105.

15 TITLE 5 > PART III > Subpart A > CHAPTER 21 > § 2105. Employee
16

17 (a) For the purpose of this title, "employee", except as otherwise provided by this section or when specifically
18 modified, means an officer and an individual who is—

19 (1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity—

20 (A) the President;

21 (B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;

22 (C) a member of a uniformed service;

23 (D) an individual who is an employee under this section;

24 (E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or

25 (F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709 (c) of title 32;

26 (2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act; and

27 (3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection while engaged in the 28 performance of the duties of his position.

29 2. They PRESUMED that since this "OFFICER" works for the public, he is a statutory "PUBLIC OFFICER", even 30 though this is not strictly true. One can be an AGENT or OFFICER of the government WITHOUT also being a
31 PUBLIC OFFICER.

32 3. They falsely told both the public and all government workers that:

33 3.1. "employee" in the ORDINARY sense and "employee" in the STATUTORY sense were equivalent.

34 3.2. Everyone in the public who works for a living is an "employee" subject to federal law. In fact, only PUBLIC
35 OFFICERS are subject to federal law.

36 3.3. "employee" under the Internal Revenue Code Section 3401 and "employee" under 5 U.S.C. §2105 are equivalent.
37 In fact, "employee" under the I.R.C. includes only public officers or officials, but not "employees" under 5
38 U.S.C. §2105.

39 The above deception is called a "fallacy by equivocation". It appeals to the legal ignorance of the public to STEAL
40 from them. It does so by confusing contexts for key "words of art". In this case, the ORDINARY context was 41 deliberately confused with the STAUTUTORY context in order to STEAL PRIVATE property from people the 42 government was supposed to be protecting from such theft.

43 Earnings not connected to the "trade or business" and public office franchise are described in 26 U.S.C. §871(a) in the case
44 of "nonresident aliens". The following article proves that nonresident aliens not engaged in the "trade or business"
45 franchise cannot earn "wages" unless they consent to do so by signing a contract called IRS Form W-4:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 3.5

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

I.R.C., Subtitle A is a franchise tax on public offices, which the I.R.C. calls a “trade or business”. “Public office” and “public employment” are NOT equivalent in law. Even for government workers, they don't earn “wages” as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401 unless they are ALREADY public officers in the government BEFORE they sign the IRS Form W-4. This is because:

1. If a government worker not engaged in a public office refuses to sign the IRS Form W-4 and is not otherwise engaged in a “public office”, then they can't lawfully become the subject of W-2 information returns and if they are filed with nonzero “wages”, they are FALSE in violation of 26 U.S.C. §7207 and 26 U.S.C. §7434.
2. It is “wages” which appear on IRS Form W-2 in block 1. This form connects the term “wages” to the “trade or business” franchise pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041(a).
3. 26 U.S.C. §871(a)(1) mentions “wages” as being taxable when not connected to the “trade or business” franchise and one can only earn “wages” if they consent under the IRS Form W-4 contract/agreement.

PART 31 EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE--Table of Contents

Subpart E_Collection of Income Tax at Source

26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements

(a) In general.

Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term “wages” includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3).

(b) Remuneration for services.

(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the amounts referred to in paragraph (a) of this section include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for an employer which, without regard to this section, does not constitute wages under section 3401(a). For example, remuneration for services performed by an agricultural worker or a domestic worker in a private home (amounts which are specifically excluded from the definition of wages by section 3401(a) (2) and (3), respectively) are amounts with respect to which a voluntary withholding agreement may be entered into under section 3402(p). See §§31.3401(c)-1 and 31.3401(d)-1 for the definitions of “employee” and “employer”.

4. It is “wages” and NOT “all earnings”, “income”, or even “gross income” that appear in the IRS Individual Master File (IMF) as being taxable.
5. The income tax is upon “wages” but not even “public officers” earn “wages”.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle C > CHAPTER 24 > § 3401
§ 3401. Definitions

(a) Wages

For purposes of this chapter, the term “wages” means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration (including benefits) paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

6. It is “wages” which are the subject of I.R.C., Subtitle C withholding and constitute I.R.C., Subtitle A “gross income” because “wages” is the code word for earnings of those who elect to become “public officers” and thereby donate their private property earnings to a “public office”, a “public use”, and a “public purpose” and thereby subject them to taxation by signing the IRS Form W-4 “public officer” job application and contract.
7. It is “wages” that 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(p)-1 says become “gross income” and therefore “trade or business” income ONLY AFTER one signs the IRS Form W-4.

TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE

§31.3402\(p\)-1\_Voluntary withholding agreements.

(a) In general. An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of §31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. See §31.3405(c)-1, Q&A-3 concerning agreements to have more than 20-percent Federal income tax withheld from eligible rollover distributions within the meaning of section 402.

8. It is for claiming that “wages” are not taxable that many tax protesters are properly sanctioned. See:

Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid, Form #08.004, Section 6.2
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The IRS Form W-4 is being used to connect private earnings to “wages” as legally defined and the “trade or business”/“public office” franchise by all of the following mechanisms:

1. As a federal “election” form where you can elect yourself into public office within the government. You are the only voter in this “election”. Now do you know why the IRS calls it an “election” whenever you consent to something in the I.R.C. They aren't lying!
2. As a permission form authorizing the filing of information returns connecting otherwise private persons to a public office and a “trade or business” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041(a). If the IRS Form W-2 is filed against a person who did NOT make such an election, then election fraud is occurring and the employer is committing the crime of impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. Any withholdings against a person who did not submit the IRS Form W-4 is a bribe to procure a public office in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §211.
<http://www.law.cornell.edu/uscode/html/uscode...11----000-.html>
3. To CREATE public offices in the U.S. government unlawfully rather than tax those already in existence.
4. As a way to create a franchise that turns private labor into public property by donating it to a public use and a public office.

“Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;’ and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.”
 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892) ]

5. As a way to make private workers into a Kelly Girls and contractors for the government engaged in a “public office”.
6. As a way to make you party to the franchise agreement codified in I.R.C., Subtitles A and C.
7. The SSN or TIN on the IRS Form W-4 is being used as a de facto “license” to act as a “public officer” in the U.S. government called a “taxpayer”. The IRS Form 1042-S Instructions say the SSN is only required for those engaged in a “trade or business”, which means a public office. The tax is on the office, not on the private person. The office is the “res” that is the subject of the tax and the use of the number is prima facie evidence of the existence of the “res”. All tax proceedings are “in rem” against the office, which is the only real “citizen”, “resident”, and “taxpayer”. The human being filling the office is not the “taxpayer”, but he is surety for the “taxpayer”. They don't call the SSN or TIN a “license number” even though it is for all intents and purposes, because they don't want to admit that they have no authority to license ANYTHING within a state of the Union:

“But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize [e.g. LICENSE] a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”

[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

Please show us a case where the License Tax cases was overruled? It's still in force. The feds can't license ANYTHING within a state, including "public offices" and the "trade or business" franchise that is being ILLEGALLY enforced within states of the Union at this time. To admit otherwise is to sanction a destruction of the separation of powers between the states and the federal government. There is NO PLACE within the I.R.C. that authorizes the CREATION of public offices using any tax form, and yet that is what the IRS is unlawfully using IRS Forms W-2, W-4, and 1040 for. 4 U.S.C. §72 says there MUST be a statute that authorizes the creation and exercise of such offices within a state in order for such public offices to be valid. Essentially what is happening is that the forms constitute an election to make you into a "resident agent" for an office that exists in the District of Columbia.

The existence of 26 U.S.C. §871(a) is a deception, because 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) says the property of those not engaged in the "trade or business" franchise is a foreign estate not subject to the I.R.C. One's earnings are part of that "foreign estate".

26 U.S.C. §3401(a)(6) excludes earnings of "nonresident aliens" from statutory "wages", if regulations exist. Government workers who aren't public officers therefore have the same protections as ordinary private industry workers who are nonresident aliens not engaged in the "trade or business" franchise. The only way a nonresident alien not otherwise engaged in the "trade or business" franchise can become subject is to sign the IRS Form W-4 contract to:

1. Become engaged in the franchise and be eligible for "benefits" under the franchise agreement.
2. Waive sovereign immunity pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605.
3. Make an election to become a "resident alien".

Where within 26 U.S.C. §3401 is the term "wages" treated any differently for government workers who AREN'T "public officers"? It AIN'T, friend.

Remember: Information returns are the only way the IRS could find out about the earnings of a government employee, and these returns can ONLY be filed against those engaged in the "trade or business" franchise or who elect to be using the IRS Form W-4 agreement/contract. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a), 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1. How would the IRS find out about 871(a) income that is NOT connected with the "trade or business"? There is no information return that is NOT connected to a "trade or business" and it is a CRIME for a person not ALREADY engaged in a public office in the government BEFORE they signed the IRS Form W-4 to impersonate a public officer or engage in the activities of a public office. 18 U.S.C. §912.

The income tax is upon the COINCIDENCE of DOMICILE within the jurisdiction AND being engaged in the "trade or business" franchise. The VOLUNTARY use of an identifying number connects you to BOTH of these prerequisites:

1. SSNs and TINs can only be issued to "U.S. persons". 26 U.S.C. §6109(g), 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(g), and 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d).
2. The number is only MANDATORY for persons engaged in franchises. See IRS form 1042-s instructions AND section 10 of the following:

About SSNs and TINs on Government Forms and Correspondence, Form #05.012
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

You can STILL be a government worker as a "non-resident non-person" not engaged in a "trade or business", not have a domicile on federal territory, and therefore STILL be a "foreigner" who is free and sovereign. The domicile and the protection it pays for is where the government's authority comes from to collect the tax in the first place. It is a CIVIL liability and you aren't subject to their CIVIL statutory law without a domicile on federal territory, unless you contract with them to procure an identity or "res", and thereby become a "res-ident". When you contract with them, you create a "public office" in the government and become surety for the office you created using your signature. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), 26 U.S.C. §7408(d), and 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) then changes the choice of law to the District of Columbia for all functions of the "public office" because now you are acting in a representative capacity on behalf of the federal corporation as such public officer.

On the subject of contracting with the government, the Bible forbids Christians from nominating a King or Protector above them, or from contracting with the pagan government:

1                   "Do not walk in the [civil] statutes of your fathers [the heathens, by selecting a domicile or "residence" in their
 2 jurisdiction], nor observe their judgments, nor defile yourselves with their idols. I am the LORD your God:
 3 Walk in My statutes, keep My judgments, and do them; hallow My Sabbaths, and they will be a sign between Me
 4 and you, that you may know that I am the LORD your God."
 5 [Ezekiel 20:10-20, Bible, NKJV]

6                   "You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan

 17 [Rom. 7:4-6, Bible, NKJV]

18                   "The wicked shall be turned into (censored), And all the nations [and peoples] that forget [or disobey] God [or

 20 [Psalm 9:17, Bible, NKJV]

21                   "Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend
 22 ["citizen", "resident", "taxpayer", "inhabitant", or "subject" under a king or political ruler] of the world [or 23 any man-made kingdom other than God's Kingdom] makes himself an enemy of God. "
 24 [James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

25                   "Above all, you must live as citizens of heaven [INSTEAD of citizens of earth. You can only be a citizen of ONE

 30 [Philippians 1:27, Bible, NLT]

31 The government can't lawfully force you to choose a domicile in their jurisdiction or to nominate a protector or become a
 32 "resident" if you are a "national" who was born in this country. They can force an alien born in another country to become 33 a privileged "resident", but they can't force a "national" who is born here to become a "resident", because they can't 34 lawfully compel a "citizen" under the constitution to suffer any of the disabilities of alienage without engaging in
 35 involuntary servitude and violation of constitutional rights. This is also confirmed by the definition of "residence" at 26
 36 C.F.R. §1.871-2, which only includes aliens and not "nonresident aliens" or even "non-resident non-persons". If they did
 37 force you to choose a domicile or residence and thereby become a "taxpayer", it would be a violation of the First
 38 Amendment prohibition against compelled association and the Thirteenth Amendment prohibition against involuntary
 39 servitude. It has always been lawful to refuse protection and refuse to be a domiciliary called a statutory "U.S. citizen",
 40 "U.S. person", or statutory "U.S. resident", and to refuse to contract with them or accept any "benefits" that might give rise
 41 to a "quasi-contractual" obligation to pay for "social insurance". See:

46 As Frank Kowalik points out in his wonderful book, IRS Humbug: Weapons of Enslavement, Frank Kowalik, the income
 47 tax is a public officer kickback program disguised to "look" like a legitimate income tax. It's smoke and mirrors. To make it
 48 look like an income tax, they had to throw the "domicile" stuff into it, but the public officer status is still the foundation.
 49 That is why 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) says everything in the code is "foreign" that is not connected to the public office
 50 ("trade or business") franchise. To be "foreign" means it is outside the jurisdiction of the franchise agreement because not 51 consensually connected to it.

52 5.6.12.9      Methods for Connecting You to the Franchise

The following subsections describe the main methods by which entities and persons are connected to the “trade or business” franchise agreement codified in I.R.C., Subtitle A.

5.6.12.9.1 Reductions in Liability: Graduated Rate of Tax, Deductions, and Earned Income Credits

All attempts to reduce one’s assumed tax liability require the person filing the tax return to be engaged in the “trade or business” excise taxable franchise. This includes:

1. Applying the graduated rate of tax found in 26 U.S.C. §1. Without the graduated rate of tax, the flat 30% tax applies to “nonresident alien individuals” found in 26 U.S.C. §871(a). The Section 1 rate usually starts lower than 30%.
2. Applying for earned income credits in 26 U.S.C. §32.
3. Taking “trade or business” deductions found in 26 U.S.C. §162:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter B
Part VI-Itemized deductions for Individuals and Corporations
Sec. 162. - Trade or business expenses

(a) In general

There shall be allowed as a deduction all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including –

(1) a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered;

Why must you be engaged in a “trade or business” in order to reduce your liability as a “taxpayer”? Because this is a commercial “benefit” and only those who work for the government can receive any commercial benefit from the government. Otherwise, the government is abusing its taxing power to transfer wealth among private individuals:

To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.

Nor is it taxation. ‘A tax,’ says Webster’s Dictionary, ‘is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State.’ ‘Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.’ Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.

Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John’s Church, 13 Pa.St., 104 says, very forcibly, ‘I think the common mind has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the government for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are imposed for a public purpose.’ See, also Pray v. Northern Liberties, 31 Pa.St., 69; Matter of Mayor of N.Y., 11 Johns., 77; Camden v. Allen, 2 Dutch., 398; Sharpless v. Mayor, supra; Hanson v. Vernon, 27 Ia., 47; Whiting v. Fond du Lac, supra.”
[Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

IRS Publication 519 confirms the above by saying the following:

Nonresident Aliens

You can claim deductions to figure your effectively connected taxable income. You generally cannot claim deductions related to income that is not connected with your U.S. business activities. Except for personal exemptions, and certain itemized deductions, discussed later, you can claim deductions only to the extent they are connected with your effectively connected income.

[IRS Publication 519 (2005), p. 24]

5.6.12.9.2 Information Returns

Information returns include but are not limited to IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, 1099, and 8300. Receipt of “trade or business” earnings is the basis for nearly all Information Returns processed by the IRS, which are reports documenting financial payments made to government entities or officers. The requirement to file these reports is found at 26 U.S.C. §6041. The “person” they are referring to in the article is none other than a “public officer” in the government:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 61 > Subchapter A > PART III > Subpart B > § 6041 § 6041. Information at source

(a) Payments of $600 or more

All persons engaged in a trade or business and making payment in the course of such trade or business to another person, of rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments to which section 6042 (a)(1), 6044 (a)(1), 6047 (e), 6049 (a), or 6050N (a) applies, and other than payments with respect to which a statement is required under the authority of section 6042 (a)(2), 6044 (a)(2), or 6045), of $600 or more in any taxable year, or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States having information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Secretary, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains, profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

In most cases, these reports are not only false, but fraudulent. Section 5.6.14 later documents how the IRS structures the handling of these reports in order to encourage the filing of false reports so as to maximize their revenues from unlawful activities. That section also appears on our website below:

The Information Return Scam, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/InformationReturnScam.htm>

This “trade or business” scam is found in other titles of the U.S. Code as well. For instance, in Title 31, which is the Money and Finance title, we did a search for the word “trade or business” and were very surprised by what we found there. You may know that when you try to withdraw $10,000 or more from a bank account, banks will insist on preparing what is called a “Currency Transaction Report”, or “CTR” documenting the withdrawal. This report is sent to the United States Treasury and inputted into the FINCEN computers at the Treasury. The report is used to catch money launderers and tax evaders who are handling large amounts of cash. Well, the only circumstance under which this report can lawfully be prepared is when the subject is engaged in a “trade or business”! Here is the section:

The “trade or business” they are talking about is exactly the same one that appears in the Internal Revenue Code, folks!

(c) Meaning of terms. The following definitions apply for purposes of this section--

(11) Trade or business. The term trade or business has the same meaning as under section 162 of title 26, United States Code.

Quite a scam, huh? The following memorandum of law describes this scam in detail:

The Money Laundering Enforcement SCAM, Form #05.044

The "trade or business" scam in Title 31 in the context of CTR's explains why financial institutions can demand federal ID numbers from depositors, why the federal government needs to be able to track these deposits, and many other considerations. Banks and financial institutions are simply volunteering to help the federal government keep track of its "employees" and "subcontractors". The Slave Surveillance Numbers (SSN) is the license number used to track federal subcontractors and is used by the federal government to track their "corporate" assets. If you think Microsoft as a corporation is too big for its britches, then what about the mother corporation for all other corporations, the United States government? All of the assets owned by a person engaged in a "trade or business" become "effectively connected" with the U.S. government by virtue of the fact that if a federal employee fails to deduct and withhold the proper "kickback" for which they are liable under 26 U.S.C. §1461, then their assets must be tracked so the kickback can be recovered through administrative process without the need to litigate. Being "effectively connected" means they are administratively attachable without the need for litigation by using an automated "Notice of Levy" form that isn't even signed. If you are going to engage in "commerce" or business with the government, then you have to help them make it "efficient", right? Doesn't that come with the territory: Never look a gift horse in the mouth? Well, "Uncle" is your new "gift horse", your Master, and you are the slave. The assets of a federal subcontractor only cease to be administratively attachable at the point when the subcontractor fulfills their fiduciary duty as a "transferee" under 26 U.S.C. §§6901 and 6903 and deducts the correct amount of "tax", or "kickback" to send to their new "employer", the federal government. In effect, they are "Kelly Girls" for the federal government who handle their own payroll and send payments back to the mother corporation. The compensation they receive for doing their own payroll comes in the form of a reduced tax liability, procured by taking itemized deductions, earned income credit, and applying a graduated rate of tax. Those not engaged in a "trade or business" are not allowed to avail themselves of any such "privileges". If you don't want to continue to be treated inhumanely like a "taxpayer", then quit acting like one, quit sucking on the government tit, and quit asking for "Uncle" to take care of you by volunteering to engage in privileged activities in order to procure special incentives and favors you don't need anyway.

The "trade or business" requirement also extends to nearly all other types of payment reporting within the I.R.C. Here are just a few examples:

1. IRS Publication 334 entitled Tax Guide for Small Businesses, Year 2002, p. 12 says:

Form 8300. You must file form 8300, Report of Cash Payments Over $10,000 Received in a Trade or Business, if you receive more than $10,000 in cash in one transaction, or two or more related business transactions. Cash includes U.S. and foreign coin and currency. It also includes certain monetary instruments such as cashier's and traveler's checks and money orders. Cash does not include a check drawn on an individual's personal account (personal check). 2. IRS Publication 583 entitled Starting a Business and Keeping Records, Rev. May 2002, p. 8 says:

3. IRS Form 1099-MISC Instructions (2005), p. 1 says:

Trade or business reporting only. Report on Form 1099-MISC only when payments are mad in the course of your trade or business. Personal payments are not reportable. You are engaged in a trade or business if you operate for gain or profit. However, nonprofit organizations are considered to be engaged in a trade or business and are subject to these reporting requirements. Nonprofit organizations subject to these reporting requirements include trusts of qualified pension or profit-sharing plans of employers, certain organizations exempt from tax under section 501(c) or (d), and farmers' cooperatives that are exempt from tax under section 521. Payments by federal, state, or local government agencies are also reportable."

4. Treasury Regulation 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(11\)-1\(a\) says that those who are not engaged in a "trade or business" can earn no reportable income on a W-2:

Title 26: Internal Revenue

(a) Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

Cash remuneration includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business does not constitute wages. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for other types of services does not come within this exception from wages. For provisions relating to cash remuneration for service not in the course of employer's trade or business, see §31.3401(a)(4)-1.

5. Treasury Regulation 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(6)-1(b) says that remuneration earned outside the statutory “United States**” (federal territory) is exempted from wages and not subject to withholding.

Subpart E—Collection of Income Tax at Source

§ 31.3401(a)(6)-1 Remuneration for services of nonresident alien individuals.

(b) Remuneration for services performed outside the United States.

Remuneration paid to a nonresident alien individual (other than a resident of Puerto Rico) for services performed outside the United States is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

How does the IRS trap “nontaxpayers” who are “non-resident non-persons” or “nonresident aliens” who refuse to get identifying numbers or fill out an IRS Form W-4? IRS Publication 515 shows how they do it, which is entitled Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities. That publication capitalizes on the confusion of private employers about the meaning of “United States” and “trade or business” by saying the following:

Income Not Effectively Connected

This section discusses the specific types of income that are subject to NRA withholding. The income codes contained in this section correspond to the income codes used on Form 1042-S (discussed later), and in most cases on Tables 1 and 2 found at the end of this publication.

You must withhold tax at the statutory rates shown in Chart C unless a reduced rate of exemption under a tax treaty applies. For U.S. source gross income that is not effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business, the rate is usually 30%. Generally, you must withhold the tax at the time you pay the income to the foreign person. See “When to withhold under Withholding Agent, earlier.”
[IRS Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities (2002), p. 14]

Three “words of art” are used above that we must pay particular attention to:

1. “U.S. source”: Originating from within the “United States” federal corporation or federal territory.
2. “gross income”: Payment qualifies as “gross income” within the meaning of 26 U.S.C. §61. The only payment not connected with a “trade or business” that are explicitly identified in the code as “gross income” is Social Security payments, under 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(8).
3. “U.S. trade or business”: the functions of a public office in the District of Columbia. “U.S.” =federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d).

So what they are really saying is that if you are a “nonresident alien” not engaged in the “trade or business” franchise who is receiving payments from the U.S. government in the form of Social Security, then these payments are subject to withholding of 30%, but ONLY if the party doing the withholding has explicitly been designated as a “withholding agent” by the Secretary as required under 26 U.S.C. §3501. We also know that private employers are NOT required to act as withholding agents, by the admission of the IRS' own Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.):

Internal Revenue Manual 5.14.10.2 (09-30-2004)
Payroll Deduction Agreements

2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction [withholding] agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.

5.6.12.9.3 Government Identifying Numbers: SSN and TIN

Whenever you put a government issued identifying number on any document, you are implicitly establishing that you are engaged in the “trade or business” franchise. This fact is easily discerned by examining the following:

1. 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) indicates that in the case of a foreign person, identifying numbers are only required if that person is engaged in a “trade or business” or if they made an election to be a “U.S. person”, meaning public officer in the government.

TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
CHAPTER I--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
PART 301_PROCEDURE AND ADMINISTRATION--Table of Contents
Information and Returns
Sec. 301.6109-1 Identifying numbers.

(b) Requirement to furnish one's own number—

(1) U.S. [GOVERNMENT] persons.

Every U.S. [federal government public officer] person who makes under this title a return, statement, or other document must furnish its own taxpayer identifying number as required by the forms and the accompanying instructions. A U.S. person whose number must be included on a document filed by another person must give the taxpayer identifying number so required to the other person on request.

For penalties for failure to supply taxpayer identifying numbers, see sections 6721 through 6724. For provisions dealing specifically with the duty of employees with respect to their social security numbers, see Sec. 31.6011(b)-2 (a) and (b) of this chapter (Employment Tax Regulations). For provisions dealing specifically with the duty of employers with respect to employer identification numbers, see Sec. 31.6011(b)-1 of this chapter (Employment Tax Regulations).

(2) Foreign persons.

The provisions of paragraph (b)(1) of this section regarding the furnishing of one's own number shall apply to the following foreign persons--

(i) A foreign person that has income effectively connected with the conduct of a U.S. trade or business at any time during the taxable year;

(ii) A foreign person that has a U.S. office or place of business or a U.S. fiscal or paying agent at any time during the taxable year;

(iii) A nonresident alien treated as a resident under section 6013(g) or (h);

(iv) A foreign person that makes a return of tax (including income, estate, and gift tax returns), an amended return, or a refund claim under this title but excluding information returns, statements, or documents;

(v) A foreign person that makes an election under Sec. 301.7701-3(c);

(vi) A foreign person that furnishes a withholding certificate described in Sec. 1.1441-1(e)(2) or (3) of this chapter or Sec. 1.1441-5(c)(2)(iv) or (3)(iii) of this chapter to the extent required under Sec. 1.1441-1(e)(4)(vii) of this chapter;

(vii) A foreign person whose taxpayer identifying number is required to be furnished on any return, statement, or other document as required by the income tax regulations under section 897 or 1445. This paragraph (b)(2)(vii) applies as of November 3, 2003; and

(viii) A foreign person that furnishes a withholding certificate described in Sec. 1.1446-1(c)(2) or (3) of this chapter or whose taxpayer identification number is required to be furnished on any return, statement, or other document as required by the income tax regulations under section 1446. This paragraph (b)(2)(viii) shall apply to partnership taxable years beginning after May 18, 2005, or such earlier time as the regulations under Sec. 1.1446-1 through 1.1446-5 of this chapter apply by reason of an election under Sec. 1.1446-7 of this chapter.

- 1.1. The “U.S. person” they are describing in above is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) and it means a person in the “U.S.” defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), which means a government public officer. Everything that public officer makes that originates from the government is “trade or business” earnings. This is also confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3), which says that everything originating from the "U.S." described is "trade or business" earnings.

1.2. Notice also that the "foreign person" described above is only required to provide the number if they are engaged in the "trade or business" franchise or if they made an election under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) or (h) to be treated as a resident alien. Such an election would be ILLEGAL for those who are nationals but not aliens, such as those domiciled in a state of the Union. Only foreign nationals can make such an election.

2. IRS Form 1042-S Instructions (2006), p. 14. What all of the circumstances below have in common is that they involve a "benefit" that is usually financial or tangible to the recipient, and therefore require a franchisee license number called a Taxpayer Identification Number:

Box 14, Recipient's U.S. Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN)

You must obtain a U.S. taxpayer identification number (TIN) for:

- Any recipient whose income is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States.
Note. For these recipients, exemption code 01 should be entered in box 6.
- Any foreign person claiming a reduced rate of, or exemption from, tax under a tax treaty between a foreign country and the United States, unless the income is an unexpected payment (as described in Regulations section 1.1441-6(g)) or consists of dividends and interest from stocks and debt obligations that are actively traded; dividends from any redeemable security issued by an investment company registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940 (mutual fund); dividends, interest, or royalties from units of beneficial interest in a unit investment trust that are (or were, upon issuance) publicly offered and are registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities Act of 1933; and amounts paid with respect to loans of any of the above securities.
- Any nonresident alien individual claiming exemption from tax under section 871(f) for certain annuities received under qualified plans.
- A foreign organization claiming an exemption from tax solely because of its status as a tax-exempt organization under section 501(c ) or as a private foundation.
- Any QI.
- Any WP or WT.
- Any nonresident alien individual claiming exemption from withholding on compensation for independent personal services [services connected with a "trade or business"].
- Any foreign grantor trust with five or fewer grantors.
- Any branch of a foreign bank or foreign insurance company that is treated as a U.S. person.

If a foreign person provides a TIN on a Form W-8, but is not required to do so, the withholding agent must include the TIN on Form 1042-S.

3. IRS Form 1040NR Instruction Booklet (2007), p. 9. You can't avail yourself of the "benefits" of the franchise without providing your franchisee license number.

Line 7c, Column (2)

You must enter each dependent's identifying number (SSN, ITIN, or adoption taxpayer identification number (ATIN)). If you do not enter the correct identifying number, at the time we process your return we may disallow the exemption claimed (such as the child tax credit) based on the dependent.

5.6.12.9.4 Domicile, residence, and Resident Tax Returns such as IRS Form 1040

The requirement to pay an income tax originates from the coincidence of one's domicile along with the excise taxable activities they engage in within the place of domicile:

"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

1 The above requirement of domicile is then found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a) and is hidden within the words “citizen” and 2 “resident”:

3 TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
4 CHAPTER I--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
5 PART 1 _INCOME TAXES--Table of Contents
6 Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

7 (a) General rule.

8 (1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident
9 of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident
10 alien individual. For optional tax in the case of taxpayers with adjusted gross income of less than $10,000 (less 11 than $5,000 for taxable years beginning before January 1, 1970) see section 3. The tax imposed is upon taxable
12 income (determined by subtracting the allowable deductions from gross income). The tax is determined in 13 accordance with the table contained in section 1. See subparagraph (2) of this paragraph for reference guides
14 to the appropriate table for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1964, and before January 1, 1965,
15 taxable years beginning after December 31, 1964, and before January 1, 1971, and taxable years beginning
16 after December 31, 1970. In certain cases credits are allowed against the amount of the tax. See part IV
17 (section 31 and following), subchapter A, chapter 1 of the Code. In general, the tax is payable upon the basis of 18 returns rendered by persons liable therefor (subchapter A (sections 6001 and following), chapter 61 of the 19 Code) or at the source of the income by withholding. For the computation of tax in the case of a joint return of a 20 husband and wife, or a return of a surviving spouse, for taxable years beginning before January 1, 1971, see
21 section 2. The computation of tax in such a case for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970, is 22 determined in accordance with the table contained in section 1(a) as amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1969.
23 For other rates of tax on individuals, see section 5(a). For the imposition of an additional tax for the calendar
24 years 1968, 1969, and 1970, see section 51(a).

25 What “citizens” and “residents” have in common is a legal domicile in the “United States”. Collectively, persons with a
26 legal domicile within a jurisdiction are called “inhabitants” and “U.S. persons”:

NOTES:

- “United States” is defined as federal territory within 26 U.S.C. §§7701\(a\)\(9\) and \(a\)\(10\), 7701\(a\)\(39\), and 7408\(d\), and 4 U.S.C. §110\(d\). It does not include any portion of a Constitutional state of the Union.
- The “District of Columbia” is defined as a federal corporation but not a physical place, a “body politic”, or a de jure “government” within the District of Columbia Act of 1871, 16 Stat. 419, 426, Sec. 34. See: Corporatization and Privatization of the Government, Form #05.024; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.
- “nationals” of the United States of America who are domiciled outside of federal jurisdiction, either in a state of the Union or a foreign country, are “nationals” but not “citizens” under federal law. They are by default “non-resident non-persons”. They also qualify as “nonresident aliens” under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) if and only if they are engaged in a public office. See sections 4.11.2 of the Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302 for details.
- Temporary domicile in the middle column on the right must meet the requirements of the “Presence test” documented in IRS publications.

- 1 5. "FEDERAL ZONE"=District of Columbia and territories of the United States in the above table
 2 6. The term "individual" as used on the IRS Form 1040 means an "alien" engaged in a "trade or business". All
 3 "taxpayers" are "aliens" engaged in a "trade or business". This is confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3), 26 C.F.R.
 4 §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii), and 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2). Statutory "U.S. citizens" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 are not "individuals"
 5 unless temporarily abroad pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911 and subject to an income tax treaty with a foreign country. In
 6 that capacity, statutory "U.S. citizens" interface to the I.R.C. as "aliens" rather than "U.S. citizens" through the tax
 7 treaty.

8 The term "United States" is then defined as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and
 9 nowhere expressly extended to include states of the Union. This is the same "United States" within which EVERYTHING
 10 is presumed to be "trade or business" earnings, which implies that what they are really referring to is the "United States"
 11 federal corporation or government, and not the geographical United States:

12 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART 1 > § 864
 13 §864. Definitions and special rules

14 (c) Effectively connected income, etc.
 15 (3) Other income from sources within United States

16 All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which 17 paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within
 18 the United States.

19 A person who therefore is a "citizen" or "resident" within the I.R.C. and who therefore has a legal domicile in the "United 20 States" is equivalent to either the government or a public officer representing the government. This is established in the 21 memorandum of law below:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

22 Therefore, whenever you file a "resident" tax form, such as form 1040, then you are indirectly admitting a legal domicile
 23 within the "United States" and all of your earnings are therefore presumed to be connected with the "trade or business"
 24 franchise pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3).

32 This is also confirmed by the IRS Form 1040 itself, because everything on the form is subject to "trade or business"
 33 deductions under 26 U.S.C. §162. Those not engaged in the "trade or business" franchise cannot lawfully take such 34 deductions. Everything listed in the deduction against which a deduction is taken therefore effectively becomes "private 35 property donated to a public use to procure the benefits of the trade or business franchise". The deductions are the 36 "benefit" or "privilege" of participating in the franchise and act essentially as employment compensation associated with 37 the "public office".

38 The only way you can avoid participating in the "trade or business" franchise is to file a nonresident tax return, such as IRS
 39 Form 1040NR. Of this form, IRS Publication 519 says the following:

40 Income

41 All income for your period of residence and all income that is effectively connected with a trade or business in
 42 the United States for your period of nonresidence, after allowable deductions, is added and taxed at the rates
 43 that apply to U.S. citizens and residents. Income that is not connected with a trade or business in the United 44 States for your period of nonresidence is subject to the flat 30% rate or lower treaty rate. You cannot take 45 any deductions against this income.

1 [IRS Publication 519 (2005), p. 30]

2 In fact, it is participation in the franchise that effectively makes you a "resident" under the I.R.C. Whether a "person" is a
3 "resident" or "nonresident" has NOTHING to do with the nationality or residence, but with whether it is engaged in a "trade
4 or business":

5 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

6 *A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during
7 the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the
8 law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A
9 domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the 10 United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in 11 the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in 12 trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in 13 trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident
14 partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident
15 partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the 16 nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

19 The legal mechanism for becoming a "resident" by engaging in a commercial franchise with the government originates
20 from the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2), which makes the person into a "resident"
21 when they consensually engage in "commerce" within the exclusive jurisdiction of the sovereign within its own territory:

22 TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > § 1605
23 § 1605. General exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state

24 (a) A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any

26 (2) in which the action is based upon a commercial activity carried on in the United States by the foreign state;
27 or upon an act performed in the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state
28 elsewhere; or upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of 29 the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States;

30 Once you engage in commerce within the jurisdiction of the sovereign and consent to the franchise agreement:

31 1. You are deemed "resident" and "present" within the jurisdiction of the sovereign.

32 In International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945), the Supreme Court held that a court may

- 42 (1) The non-resident defendant must purposefully direct his activities or consummate some transaction with 43 the forum or resident thereof; or perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege
44 of conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws;
45 (2) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant's forum-related activities; and
46 (3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be reasonable.

10 The laws of the United States make it a crime to use an IRS Form W-4 to in effect “elect” yourself into the public office
11 that is the subject of the I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax:

- 12 1. 18 U.S.C. §912: Impersonating a public officer. Assuming the rights or obligations of a public officer such as a 13 “taxpayer”.
- 14 2. 18 U.S.C. §1512: Tampering with a witness. Workers are criminally threatened by ignorant payroll clerks to sign the 15 IRS Form W-4 under penalty of perjury that is knowingly false and fraudulent and criminal.
- 16 3. 18 U.S.C. §210: Offer to procure appointive public office. The withholdings paid in under the IRS Form W-4 are the 17 BRIBE to procure and to be treated illegally “as if” one is a public officer engaged in the trade or business franchise.

18 If the person submitting the form is NOT a public officer but a private human, then by signing and submitting the form,
19 they are identifying themselves as THE statutory “employee” identified in the upper left corner of the form AND legally
20 defined in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) as a public officer and indirectly, electing themselves into office AND bribing the person
21 receiving the form to TREAT them AS IF they are public officers. Earlier versions of the IRS Internal Revenue Manual
22 recognized the difference between a PRIVATE worker and a PUBLIC statutory “employee” with the following language in 23 order to PREVENT the commission of the above crimes by uninformed withholding agents:

24 Internal Revenue Manual \(I.R.M.\), Section 5.14.10.2 \(09-30-2004\)
25 Payroll Deduction Agreements

26 2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction
27 agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements
28 before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.

29 [<http://www.irs.gov/irm/part5/ch14s10.html>]

30 After we pointed out the above IRM section, the IRS mysteriously deleted the above section from their website, even 31 though technically it is still true and absolutely necessary in order to prevent the crimes indicated above.

32 Absent public notice in IRS publications and the IRM above, ignorant private companies hiring those who are NOT
33 statutory public “employees” frequently coerce their workers to commit the above crimes. The IRS Form W-4 is frequently
34 and illegally abused by private employers to recruit otherwise PRIVATE people into appointive public office. The 35 following treatise on public officers says that all attempts to procure such appointments are immoral and illegal:

36 § 28. Services in procuring Appointment to Office.

37 Contracts [such as IRS W-4's] to procure the appointment of a person to public office fall within the same
38 principles. These offices are trusts, held solely for the public good, and should be conferred from considerations
39 of the ability, integrity, fidelity and fitness for the position of the appointee. No other considerations can 40 properly be regarded by the appointing power. Whatever introduces other elements to control this power must 41 necessarily lower the character of the appointments to the great detriment of the public good. Agreements for 42 compensation to procure these appointments tend directly and necessarily to introduce such elements. The law,
43 therefore, from this tendency alone, adjudges these agreements inconsistent with sound morals and public
44 policy.<sup>126</sup>

5.6.12.10 Government propaganda and deception about the scam*5.6.12.10.1 Wilful government deception in connection with a "trade or business"

It's pretty obvious that your public servants don't want you to know about this "trade or business" scam, because then the gravy train of plunder and their welfare check would have to stop and they would have to get a REAL job. What steps have they taken to obfuscate the truth about this very important issue? Here is a brief summary of their dishonest techniques:

1. They made it "appear" in 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\) that income not connected with a "trade or business" from within the "United States" was subject to mandatory 30% tax. However:
  - 1.1. 26 C.F.R. §1.871-7\(d\)\(2\)\(ii\) says that the nonresident alien must be present in the United States for 183 days out of the year or more in order to be subject to the taxes on sale or exchange of capital assets, in which case he isn't a nonresident alien anymore by the "presence test". Quite a scam, huh?
  - 1.2. 26 C.F.R. §1.871-7\(b\)\(1\) says that the following types of income from within the District of Columbia are taxable to "nonresident alien individuals" not engaged in a "trade or business": interest, dividends, rents, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, and emoluments, but other items of fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits, or income are also subject to the tax, as, for instance, royalties, including royalties for the use of patents, copyrights, secret processes and formulas, and other like property". The Classification Act of 1923, 42 Stat. 1988, then defines all these types of income as being from the federal government only. See our article on this fraud: The Classification Act of 1923, section 6.5.16 later.
2. They never explicitly state the simple truth anywhere in any IRS publication that we could find that if you aren't involved in a "trade or business" within the "United States" as a "person" who has a domicile there (such as a statutory "U.S. citizen" or "resident alien"), then you don't earn "gross income" and are a "nontaxpayer" not subject to the I.R.C. 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\), 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1\(a\)\(2\)\(ii\), and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8\(f\)\(1\)\(iv\) are the only places that make this fact very clear, but it isn't simply and explicitly explained anywhere else in the code or regulations, and these sections are something that could easily be overlooked by the average American.
3. They did not directly state the excise taxable activities subject to tax in a single, simple list anywhere within the Internal Revenue Code. Instead, they left that statement to be made by the Secretary of the Treasury, which he did in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8\(f\)\(1\). This section of regulations is one that few people read or refer to, and therefore they have kept the truth out of plain view of most tax professionals.
4. Those who have read and understand 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8\(f\)\(1\) and who raise it in litigation have been persecuted and slandered by the IRS and corrupted federal judges and falsely called "frivolous" without justifying why it is frivolous. However, they are the frivolous ones because no federal judge that we know of has ever or would ever deal in their ruling directly with the issue of the "excise taxable activities" identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8\(f\)\(1\) because they would have to admit that:
  - 4.1. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax.
  - 4.2. People and property within states of the Union are not the proper subject of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.
  - 4.3. The only "taxable activities" under the I.R.C. are either public offices in the United States government or "foreign commerce" of federally registered corporations.
  - 4.4. Natural persons can only be involved in a "taxable activity" if they hold a public office in the United States government or a federal territory or possession, or are acting in the capacity as an officer of a federally chartered corporation that is involved in foreign commerce licensed under 26 U.S.C. §7001. Remember: The way an activity becomes excise taxable is the issuance of a "license". Requesting a "license" or accepting a government "privilege" is the essence of how a person volunteers to pay an excise tax.

Now, let's look at some of the devious ways that the IRS creates false presumptions to deceive people domiciled in the states of the Union into admitting under penalty of perjury on the wrong tax return, the 1040, that they are involved in a "trade or business" and that they are subject to exclusive federal jurisdiction, even though we know that neither is true. We refer you to IRS Publication 519 (2000) version, which says starting on p. 17:

The 30% Tax

Tax at a 30% (or lower treaty) rate applies to certain items of income or gains from U.S. sources but only if the items are not effectively connected with your U.S. trade or business.

Fixed or Determinable Income

The 30% (or lower treaty) rate applies to the gross amount of U.S. source fixed or determinable annual or periodic gains, profits, or income

Social Security Benefits

A nonresident alien must include 85% of any U.S. social security benefit (and the social security equivalent part of a tier 1 railroad retirement benefit) in U.S. source fixed or determinable annual or periodic income. This income is exempt under some tax treaties. See Table 1 in Publication 901, U.S. Tax Treaties, for a list of tax treaties that exempt U.S. social security benefits from U.S. tax.
[IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens (2000), p. 17]

Well, first of all, the above statement is misleading, because they never defined the word “income” and the Supreme Court said in Eisner v. Macomber that the Congress can't define it and that ONLY the Constitution can define it, so they can't write any law authorizing the IRS to define it either! So what “income” are they talking about here? The only thing the Supreme Court has ever defined “income” to mean was profit from a corporation involved in foreign commerce, as we pointed out earlier in section 5.6.5. Why didn't they mention this? Because they don't want you to know!

Secondly, the only thing that it can be talking about is earnings not connected with a “trade or business” described in 26 U.S.C. §871(a), which is the only place the 30% tax rate appears. Those earnings can only relate to payments originating from “sources within the United States****” earned by “nonresident alien individuals”, because that is what 26 U.S.C. §871 says. What are the items of income” that is subject to this 30% tax? These “items of income” are listed in 26 U.S.C. §§862(a) and 863(a). Most of these “items of income” are then elsewhere excluded, as we showed earlier in this section. We showed, for instance that:

1. Those who are “non-resident non-persons” and not “nonresident aliens” or “nonresident alien individuals” are nowhere mentioned as having any liability at all. This includes those domiciled in states of the Union who are not “aliens” and therefore not “individuals”. The liability to file a tax return described in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b) only applies to “nonresident alien individuals”, not “non-resident non-persons”. For further details, see the following:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31)(A) says that earnings not connected with a “trade or business” and not originating from the “United States” are a “foreign estate” not includible in “gross income”. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) defines this “United States” to mean the District of Columbia or federal statutory “State” (4 U.S.C. §110(d)) but not a state of the Union. Such an estate, including the earnings of people who are part of such an estate, would be “not subject” to the tax but at the same time not “exempt”.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term “foreign estate” means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

3. 26 U.S.C. §864(b)(1)(A) excludes earnings of “nonresident alien individuals” who are working for nonresident aliens, even though 26 U.S.C. §862(a)(3) would appear to create the false impression that such earnings are includible in “gross income”.
4. Self-employment income is not counted as “gross income” under 26 U.S.C. §1402 if it does not involve a “trade or business”.
5. Under 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv), only income “effectively connected with a trade or business” is includible in gross income for biological people.

So what is left after one excludes the earnings indicated in the above requirements because the party being taxed is a “national” and a “non-resident non-person” who is not a “nonresident alien”, “nonresident alien individual”, or an alien and all of whose earnings are not “effectively connected with a trade or business” and originate outside the statutory “United States**” (federal territory)? CORPORATE PROFIT OF A FEDERAL AND NOT STATE CORPORATION INVOLVED IN FOREIGN COMMERCE! That’s what we already showed the Supreme Court said constituted “income” within the meaning of the Sixteenth Amendment:

“Income [corporate profit from foreign commerce, in the context of taxes upon states of the Union] has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (36 Stat. 112) in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed.”
 Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., [271 U.S. 170 174, (1926)]

“The grant of the power to lay and collect taxes [on foreign commerce within the states ONLY] is, like the power to regulate commerce, made in general terms, and has never been understood to interfere with the exercise of the same power by the State; and hence has been drawn an argument which has been applied to the question under consideration. But the two grants are not, it is conceived, similar in their terms or their nature. Although many of the powers formerly [22 U.S. 1, 199] exercised by the States, are transferred to the government of the Union, yet the State governments remain, and constitute a most important part of our system. The power of taxation is indispensable to their existence, and is a power which, in its own nature, is capable of residing in, and being exercised by, different authorities at the same time. We are accustomed to see it placed, for different purposes, in different hands. Taxation is the simple operation of taking small portions from a perpetually accumulating mass, susceptible of almost infinite division; and a power in one to take what is necessary for certain purposes, is not, in its nature, incompatible with a power in another to take what is necessary for other purposes. Congress is authorized to lay and collect taxes [on foreign commerce ONLY within the states], and to pay the debts, and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States. This does not interfere with the power of the States to tax [internally] for the support of their own governments; nor is the exercise of that power by the States [to tax INTERNALLY], an exercise of any portion of the power that is granted to the United States [to tax EXTERNALLY]. In imposing taxes for State purposes, they are not doing what Congress is empowered to do. Congress is not empowered to tax for those purposes which are within the exclusive province of the States. When, then, each government exercises the power of taxation, neither is exercising the power of the other. But, when a State proceeds to regulate commerce with foreign nations, or among the several States, it is exercising the very power that is granted to Congress, [22 U.S. 1, 200] and is doing the very thing which Congress is authorized to do. There is no analogy, then, between the power of taxation and the power of regulating commerce.”
 [Gibbons v. Ogden, 22 U.S. 1 (1824)]

26 C.F.R. §1.861-8\(f\)\(1\) lists all these taxable activities involving foreign commerce, and they all come under treaties or are connected with what is called a Domestic International Sales Corporation (DISC) or a Foreign Sales Corporation (FSC): These weasels are slippery, aren't they? What they are trying to do is make an exclusively municipal excise tax that only applies to federal territory “look” like it applies to everyone in the country by encrypting and hiding the truth using “words of art”. They contradict themselves in their own publication, because elsewhere, they admit that those who have income from outside the statutory but not constitutional “United States**” (federal territory) that is not connected with “trade or business” don't earn “gross income”:

Income Subject to Tax

Income from sources outside the United States that is not effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States is not taxable if you receive it while you are a nonresident alien. The income is not taxable even if you earned it while you were a resident alien or if you became a resident alien or a U.S. citizen after receiving it and before the end of the year.
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSPub519.pdf>]

The above claim within IRS Publication 519 originates from 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31), which we cited at the beginning of this article. What they are saying is that only earnings from within the statutory “United States**” (federal territory) and which are not connected with a “trade or business” are subject to the 30% tax rate, and that the income must be earned by “nonresident alien individuals” who are aliens and not “nationals”, because citizens can't be taxed at home and aliens and nonresident aliens are excluded. The only thing left is foreign “persons”, such as foreign corporations. If they simply commute daily to work there, they are "nonresident aliens" and therefore don't earn "gross income". Anything not connected with a “trade or business” that is earned outside of the statutory “United States**” (federal territory) is therefore not includible as “gross income” at all. Anything earned inside the statutory “United States**” (federal territory) in

1 connection with a public office is includible in “gross income” at the graduated, instead of 30% rate. Even then, one must
 2 consent voluntarily to be a “taxpayer” because there is no statute making anyone liable in either the D.C. Code or the I.R.C.
 3 That process is done by submitting a form and assessing oneself with a liability even though there is none. Once they
 4 “volunteer” by filling out and submitting the WRONG form, the 1040 form, and become “subject to” the I.R.C., they
 5 become virtual inhabitants of the District of Columbia under the provisions of 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C.
 6 §7408(d):

7 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
 8 Sec. 7701. – Definitions

9 (a)(39) Persons residing outside [the federal] United States

10 If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial
 11 district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any 12 provision of this title relating to -

13 (A) jurisdiction of courts, or
 14 (B) enforcement of summons.

16 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 76 > Subchapter A > § 7408
 17 §7408. Action to enjoin promoters of abusive tax shelters, etc.

18 (d) Citizens and residents outside the United States If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside
 19 in, and does not have his principal place of business in, any United States judicial district, such citizen or 20 resident shall be treated for purposes of this section as residing in the District of Columbia.

21 If they REALLY had jurisdiction in a state of the Union to tax, do you think they would need provisions like those above?
 22 Note also that what statutory “citizens and residents” have in common is a legal “domicile” in the statutory but not
 23 constitutional “United States**” (federal territory) pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(3) . When a human domiciled in a state
 24 of the Union who is rightfully a “non-resident non-person” fills out and sends in a 1040 form, rather than the correct
 25 1040NR form, they are assumed to be a “citizen or resident of the United States” and an “individual”, meaning a “resident 26 alien” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). The “United States” in the context of I.R.C., Subtitle A means federal 27 territory that is not part of the exclusive jurisdiction of any constitutional state of the Union. It is redefined in other titles to
 28 include the 50 states, but in Subtitle A, it’s definition is limited to that found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4
 29 U.S.C. §110(d). Therefore, they are claiming that they are domiciled on federal territory within the statutory but not
 30 constitutional “United States**”. Did you know that by submitting an IRS Form 1040, you were making a “voluntary
 31 election” to be treated as a domiciliary of the federal zone? They didn't tell you THAT in the IRS publications, now did
 32 they? Why not? Because they want to manufacture your legal ignorance in the public schools and then use their 33 incomplete and deceptive publications to “harvest” the fruits of your ignorance. The Soviets called these people “Useful
 34 Idiots”. A fool and his money are soon parted. The public schools are the fool factory and the 1040 is the indenture that
 35 makes you into their willing, voluntary indentured slave. Below is what the IRS Published Products Catalog (2003) says
 36 about the purpose of the form 1040:

37 1040A 11327A Each
 38 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return

39 Annual income tax return filed by citizens and residents of the United States. There are separate instructions
 40 available for this item. The catalog number for the instructions is 12088U.

 43 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSDoc7130.pdf/>]

44 Under I.R.C. §7701(a)(39) above, they then become the equivalent of “virtual inhabitants” of the District of Columbia. If
 45 we then look in the District of Columbia Code, we find that there isn't a liability statute in that code either so the IRS still 46 requires our consent to call us a “taxpayer” no matter which way you look at it. This is covered in much more detail in the 47 Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008, Chapter 3, section 3.5.3 if you want to investigate further. We also know
 48 that kidnapping is highly illegal under 18 U.S.C. §1201, and that making us into a “virtual inhabitant” of anything is the 49 equivalent of kidnapping if done without our consent. Therefore, indirectly we must conclude that anyone who does not

1 have a domicile on federal territory in the statutory but not constitutional “United States**” must volunteer or consent to be
 2 a “taxpayer” before their “res” or legal identity can be transported to the federal zone. That process of volunteering is done
 3 using the IRS Form 1040 and is done under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §6013\(g\) for those who file as “nonresident aliens”.

4 It gets worse, folks. Let’s look at some of the deceit in IRS Publication 519 that tries to convince people falsely that they
 5 are involved in a “trade or business”, or tricks them into admitting they are in the process of pursuing the “privilege” of 6 having additional deductions. Below is what they say about how you can increase your deductions by claiming you are
 7 engaged in a “trade or business”, from p. 23 of the Year 2000 edition of IRS Publication 519:

8 Itemized Deductions

9 Nonresident aliens can claim some of the same itemized deductions that resident aliens can claim. However,
 10 nonresident aliens can claim itemized deductions only if they have income effectively connected with their 11 U.S. trade or business.

12 Nonresident Aliens

13 You can deduct certain itemized deductions if you receive income effectively connected with your U.S. trade
 14 or business. These deductions include state and local income taxes, charitable contributions to U.S.
 15 organizations, casualty and theft losses, and miscellaneous deductions. Use Schedule A of Form 1040NR to 16 claim itemized deductions.

17 If you are filing Form 1040NR-EZ, you can only claim a deduction for state or local income taxes. If you are 18 claiming any other deduction, you must file Form 1040NR.
 19 [IRS Publication 519 (2000), p. 23]

20 Why do they do the above? Well, those who know they have no effectively connected income and therefore have a zero tax
 21 liability don't need deductions because they don't owe anything! The only reason to pursue a deduction is because one has 22 “gross income”, and few Americans we have ever met domiciled in the states even have “gross income”.

23 Later on, in this same IRS Publication 519, we see that the IRS tries to create a false “presumption” in their favor by trying
 24 to convince people they are usually involved in a “trade or business”. Notice that they never explicitly define what it means
 25 from the I.R.C, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. As a matter of fact, if they
 26 DID explain this definition in their publication, boy would they ever have a LOT of explaining to do on their phone support
 27 line, so they conveniently leave it out. They don't mention its real definition because that would render everything listed
 28 below as basically irrelevant and moot. The reader would simply throw Pub 519 in the trash at that point and conclude he 29 is a “nontaxpayer”, so they instead tip toe around the definition and give examples without relating them to the legal 30 definition in the I.R.C. Below is the IRS Publication 519 (2000) definition of “trade or Business in the United States” from 31 pp. 15-16:

32 Trade or Business in the United States

33 Generally, you must be engaged in a trade or business during the tax year to be able to treat income received in
 34 that year as effectively connected with that trade or business. Whether you are engaged in a trade or business in 35 the United States depends on the nature of your activities. The discussions that follow will help you determine 36 whether you are engaged in a trade or business in the United States.

37 Personal Services

38 If you perform personal services in the United States [federal territory] at any time during the tax year, you
 39 usually are considered engaged in a trade or business in the United States.

40 TIP: Certain compensation paid to a nonresident alien by a foreign employer is not included in gross income.
 41 For more information, see Services Performed for Foreign Employer in chapter 3.

42 Other Trade or Business Activities

43 Other examples of being engaged in a trade or business in the United States follow.

44 Students and trainees. You are considered engaged in a trade or business in the United States if you are
 45 temporarily present in the United States as a nonimmigrant under a “F,” “J,” “M,” or “Q” visa. A
 46 nonresident alien temporarily present in the United States under a “J” visa includes a nonresident alien

1 individual admitted to the United States as an exchange visitor under the Mutual Educational and Cultural
2 Exchange Act of 1961. The taxable part of any scholarship or fellowship grant that is U.S. source income is 3 treated as effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States.

4 Business operations. If you own and operate a business in the United States selling services, products, or
5 merchandise, you are, with certain exceptions [not mentioned], engaged in a trade or business in the United 6 States.

7 Partnerships. If you are a member of a partnership that at any time during the tax year is engaged in a trade or
8 business in the United States, you are considered to be engaged in a trade or business in the United States.

9 Beneficiary of an estate or trust. If you are the beneficiary of an estate or trust that is engaged in a trade or 10 business in the United States, you are treated as being engaged in the same trade or business.

11 Trading in stocks, securities, and commodities.

12 If your only U.S. business activity is trading in stocks, securities, or commodities (including hedging
13 transactions) through a U.S. resident [alien] broker or other agent, you are not engaged in a trade or business
14 in the United States.

15 For transactions in stocks or securities, this applies to any nonresident alien, including a dealer or broker in 16 stocks and securities.

17 For transactions in commodities, this applies to commodities that are usually traded on an organized
18 commodity exchange and to transactions that are usually carried out at such an exchange.

19 U.S. office or other fixed place of business at any time during the tax year through which, or by the direction of 20 which, you carry out your transactions in stocks, securities, or commodities.

21 Trading for a nonresident alien's own account. You are not engaged in a trade or business in the United 22 States if trading for your own account in stocks, securities, or commodities is your only U.S. business activity.

23 This applies even if the trading takes place while you are present in the United States or is done by your 24 employee or your broker or other agent.

25 This does not apply to trading for your own account if you are a dealer in stocks, securities, or commodities.
26 This does not necessarily mean, however, that as a dealer you are considered to be engaged in a trade or 27 business in the United States. Determine that based on the facts and circumstances in each case or under the 28 rules given above in Trading in stocks, securities, and commodities.

29 Effectively Connected Income

30 If you are engaged in a U.S. trade or business, all income, gain, or loss for the tax year that you get from 31 sources within the United

32 States (other than certain investment income) is treated as effectively connected income. This applies whether 33 or not there is any connection between the income and the trade or business being carried on in the United 34 States during the tax year.

35 Two tests, described under Investment Income, determine whether certain items of investment income (such as 36 interest, dividends, and royalties) are treated as effectively connected with that business.

37 In limited circumstances, some kinds of foreign source income may be treated as effectively connected with a
38 trade or business in the United States. For a discussion of these rules, see Foreign Income, later.
39 [IRS Publication 519 (2000), pp. 15-16]

40 The first thing you notice is the statement: "Whether you are engaged in a trade or business in the United States depends 41 on the nature of your activities". That statement is a tacit admission that the income tax is in fact an indirect excise tax on 42 activities. They also said:

43 "If you perform personal services in the United States [federal territory] at any time during the tax year, you
44 usually are considered engaged in a trade or business in the United States."

45 Well, let's look at the definition of "personal services" used above to see what these weasels are up to:

1 26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.469-9 Rules for certain rental real estate activities.

2 (b)(4) PERSONAL SERVICES.

3 Personal services means any work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business.
 4 However, personal services do not include any work performed by an individual in the individual's capacity as
 5 an investor as described in section 1.469-5T(f)(2)(ii).

6 Notice that they used the word "means" instead of "includes" in the above definition and DID NOT confine the definition
 7 by stating "for the purposes of this section" or "for the purposes of this chapter". Instead, they provided an unambiguous
 8 universal definition of "personal services" which applies throughout the ENTIRE Internal Revenue Code and they indicated
 9 effectively that you aren't performing "personal services" UNLESS you are engaged in a "trade or business". So what they
 10 are doing when they say "*If you perform personal services in the United States [federal territory] at any time during the tax
 11 year, you usually are considered engaged in a trade or business in the United States.*" is effectively making a circular
 12 statement that confirms itself. This is called a "tautology", which is a word that is defined using itself. It's only purpose is 13 self-serving deception. Can you see how insidious this deception and double-speak is? It's all designed to take attention
 14 away from the nature of the taxed activity so that people will think the tax is on the money instead of the activity, isn't it?
 15 If they admitted that the income tax was an indirect excise tax on activities, they would dig a DEEP hole for themselves
 16 that would start an avalanche of people leaving the tax rolls. That is why they never come out and say EXACTLY what a
 17 "trade or business" is or how their explanation relates to the definition of a "trade or business" found in 26 U.S.C.
 18 §7701(a)(26), which describes it as a "public office". Since when do people holding "public office" have time to do any of 19 the above things in addition to fulfilling their office? Furthermore, under federal law, it is a conflict of interest to maintain 20 any private business activities outside the workplace that might jeopardize one's objectivity. But then later on p. 26 of the 21 same publication, under "Dual Status Tax Year", they finally admit the truth:

22 Income Subject to Tax

23 Income from sources outside the United States [federal territory] that is not effectively connected with a trade
 24 or business in the United States is not taxable if you receive it while you are a nonresident alien. The income
 25 is not taxable even if you earned it while you were a resident alien or if you became a resident alien or a U.S.
 26 citizen after receiving it and before the end of the year.
 27 [IRS Publication 519 (2000), p. 26]

28 An excellent way to confirm the conclusions of this section is to read the publications of the Joint Committee on Taxation.
 29 We would like to quote from JCT document 85-199 entitled "Explanation of Proposed Income Tax Treaty Between The 30 United States and the United Kingdom". You can get this publication at:

31 <http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/JointComteeOnTax/85199-US-GB-TreatyExplan.pdf>

32 Now the excerpt, from pp. 4-5 is VERY revealing. We boldface and underline the important portions to bring attention to 33 them. We have also added bracketed material to amplify exactly what they mean based on discussion earlier in this chapter
 34 and based on the definitions of terms found in the Internal Revenue Code:

35 A. U.S. Tax Rules

36 The United States taxes U.S. citizens [people born anywhere in the country but domiciled on federal territory in 37 the District of Columbia or territories but excluding those domiciled in constitutional states of the Union],
 38 residents [who are all "aliens"], and corporations [registered ONLY in the District of Columbia and 39 EXCLUDING state-only corporations] on their worldwide income [connected with a "trade or business"],
 40 *whether derived in the United States [federal territory] or abroad [outside the states of the Union]. The United
 41 States generally taxes nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations on all their income that is 42 effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States (sometimes referred to as 43 "effectively connected income"). The United States also taxes nonresident alien individuals and foreign* 44 corporations on certain U.S.-source income that is not effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business.

45 Income of a nonresident alien individual or foreign corporation that is effectively connected with the conduct of 46 a trade or business in the United States generally is subject to U.S. tax in the same manner and at the same
 47 rates as income of a U.S. person. Deductions are allowed to the extent that they are related to effectively
 48 connected income. A foreign corporation also is subject to a flat 30-percent branch profits tax on its "dividend
 49 equivalent amount," which is a measure of the effectively connected earnings and profits of the corporation
 50 that are removed in any year from the conduct of its U.S. trade or business. In addition, a foreign corporation is 51 subject to a flat 30-percent branch-level excess interest tax on the excess of the amount of interest that is deducted by the foreign corporation in computing its effectively connected income over the amount of interest that is paid by its U.S. trade or business. U.S.-source fixed or determinable annual or periodical income of a nonresident alien individual or foreign corporation (including, for example, interest, dividends, rents, royalties, salaries, and annuities) that is not effectively connected with the conduct of a U.S. trade or business is subject to U.S. tax at a rate of 30 percent of the gross amount paid. Certain insurance premiums earned by a nonresident alien individual or foreign corporation are subject to U.S. tax at a rate of 1 or 4 percent of the premiums. These taxes generally are collected by means of withholding.

Specific statutory exemptions from the 30-percent withholding tax are provided. For example, certain original issue discount and certain interest on deposits with banks or savings institutions are exempt from the 30-percent withholding tax. An exemption also is provided for certain interest paid on portfolio debt obligations. In addition, income of a foreign government or international organization from investments in U.S. securities is exempt from U.S. tax.

U.S.-source capital gains of a nonresident alien individual or a foreign corporation that are not effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business generally are exempt from U.S. tax, with two exceptions: (1) gains realized by a nonresident alien individual who is present in the United States [federal territory] for at least 183 days during the taxable year, and (2) certain gains from the disposition of interests in U.S. real property.

Rules are provided for the determination of the source of income. For example, interest and dividends paid by a U.S. citizen or resident or by a U.S. corporation generally are considered U.S.-source income. Conversely, dividends and interest paid by a foreign corporation generally are treated as foreign-source income. Special rules apply to treat as foreign-source income (in whole or in part) interest paid by certain U.S. corporations with foreign businesses and to treat as U.S.-source income (in whole or in part) dividends paid by certain foreign corporations with U.S. businesses. Rents and royalties paid for the use of property in the United States are considered U.S.-source income.

They basically admitted everything we just got through saying throughout the preceding discussion, folks! They are very cleverly hiding the taxable activity by referring to it as a “trade or business”, which is a “word of art”, and not defining which “U.S.” they are talking about or the fact that it only includes the District of Columbia. They also admitted the circumstances under which the 30% tax in 26 U.S.C. §871(a) applies. Recall that this section identified a 30% tax on nonresident alien income from sources inside the District of Columbia which is not connected with a “trade or business”/public office. Well, they just explained that the tax is only paid by foreign corporations as an indirect tax upon income derived from a “trade or business”. Therefore, ALL income that is taxable under the I.R.C., Subtitle A derives exclusively from a “trade or business” and a “public office” in one way or another.

The first sentence of the above also tries to deceive the reader by saying that "U.S. citizens", "residents", and "corporations" are taxed on their "worldwide income" WITHOUT mentioning the requirement for being engaged in a "trade or business". We know based on our earlier analysis, however, that under I.R.C., Subtitle A, all natural persons who are "taxpayers" under the code, whether married, unmarried, heads of Household, etc. MUST be engaged in a "trade or business" in order to earn "taxable income". The taxable activity for international corporations is "foreign commerce" rather than the "trade or business" under other subtitles of the code, and the above tries to lump all of them together and thereby create an absolutely false presumption in the mind of the reader. Therefore, such a claim can ONLY apply to artificial entities engaged in foreign commerce under Subtitle D of the I.R.C. The only thing we didn't cover earlier was the difference in treatment between corporations and natural persons. In that scenario, under I.R.C., Subtitle D, these corporations are taxed on their worldwide income that derives from imports, which counts as "foreign commerce" under the constitution. These conclusions are supported by the Supreme Court, which said:

"The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."
[Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

*But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”

5.6.12.10.2 Proving the government deception yourself

Another way to confirm the conclusions of this section is to look at older versions of the U.S. Code or Statutes at Large that show the definition of "gross income". Politicians of old were much more honest and direct than the weasels and thieves and traitors we have in office today, so their laws told the truth plainly. It wasn't until the socialists began to take over starting in 1913 and peaking with Franklin Roosevelt in 1930's that the I.R.C. really started to show signs of willful deceit. Below are two very old definitions of "gross income" that show the truth plainly to prove our point. These versions did not use the "trade or business" trick so they had to state the truth plainly:

5.6.12.10.3 False IRS presumptions that must be rebutted

How can we know if the IRS “thinks” or “presumes” we are involved in a “trade or business”? Here is how within the context of I.R.C., Subtitle A:

1. Only people who are engaged in a “trade or business” are subject to the graduated rate of tax of tax. See 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\).
2. All income from within federal territory, which is the “United States” under the I.R.C. section 7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d), must be treated as “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States”, according to 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\). That’s right: it is a “privilege” under 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\) to simply “live” and earn “income” on federal territory. Here is what it says:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART 1 > § 864
 §864. Definitions and special rules

(c) Effectively connected income, etc.

(3) Other income from sources within United States

All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

3. Only people who are engaged in a “trade or business” can claim deductions on their “return”. Otherwise, they can't. See 26 U.S.C. §162 for proof.
4. Only people who are engaged in a “trade or business” can owe a tax and therefore be the target of a Substitute For Return (SFR), which is an assessment that in most cases is illegally executed by the IRS.
5. Only "Citizens" or "residents" who file a 1040 and put a nonzero amount for income can be connected to a "trade or business within the United States".
6. Only "Nonresident aliens" who file a 1040NR form and put a nonzero amount for “trade or business” income can be connected to a "trade or business within the United States".

- 1 7. Only people who complete, voluntarily sign, and submit a W-4 and thereby identify themselves as federal "employees"
 2 can be connected to a "trade or business". 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 identifies all federal "employees" as "public
 3 officers". All "public officers" are by definition engaged in a "trade or business".
 4 8. Those who receive Social Security Benefits. 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(8) says that Social Security benefits received must be
 5 included in "gross income" from "sources within the United States". Indirectly, they must also be saying that such
 6 earnings are to be treated as "effectively connected with a trade or business", because 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) says that
 7 if these earnings were not connected with a "trade or business", then they cannot be reported as "gross income" and are
 8 part of a "foreign estate" not subject to the code. 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\)\(3\), on the other hand, associates Social Security
 9 benefits received by "nonresident aliens" with OTHER than a "trade or business" and also makes them reportable and 10 taxable as "gross income".

11 Those who avail themselves of any of the above government "privileges" are presumed to be "taxpayers" in the context of 12 the activities above as far as the IRS is concerned. This doesn't mean they are "taxpayers" for ALL their earnings, but only
 13 for those in which the above activities are undertaken. It's a "privilege" to have deductions and pay a usually lower
 14 graduated rate of tax on earnings that are otherwise "taxable". In effect, the government is exploiting people's ignorance
 15 and greed in the pursuit of exemptions or tax reductions they don't need in order to transform "nontaxpayers" into 16 "taxpayers". Here is how one Congressman described this kind of very devious exploitation:

17 "Objections to its [the income tax] renewal are long, loud, and general throughout the country. Those who pay
 18 are the exception, those who do not pay are millions; the whole moral force of the law is a dead letter. The 19 honest man makes a true return; the dishonest hides and covers all he can to avoid this obnoxious tax. It has no
 20 moral force. This tax is unequal, perjury-provoking and crime encouraging, because it is a war with the right
 21 of a person to keep private and regulate his business affairs and financial matters. Deception, fraud, and
 22 falsehood mark its progress everywhere in the process of collection. It creates curiosity, jealousy, and
 23 prejudice among the people. It makes the tax-gatherer a spy...The people demand that it shall not be renewed,
 24 but left to die a natural death and pass away into the future as pass away all the evils growing out of the Civil 25 War."

26 [Congressional Globe, 41st Congress, 2d Session, 3993 (1870)]

27 Those "taxpayers" in receipt of taxable privileges or "nontaxpayers" who are too stupid to know that they don't need to 28 become a "taxpayer" in order to receive a "privilege" they don't need should definitely pay for the "privilege" they are
 29 taking advantage of. Therefore, if you are a "non-resident non-person" not engaged in a "trade or business" and any one of 30 the above conditions applies to you, then the IRS is ASSUMING, usually wrongfully, that you are engaged in a "trade or 31 business" or have income under 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\) originating from the statutory but not constitutional "United States**"
 32 (federal territory) that is not connected with a "trade or business". The great irony of this whole fraudulent federal 33 "scheme" is that those who were otherwise "nontaxpayers" and never had any "gross income" to begin with, in effect were 34 fooled by deceptive IRS publications and phone advice into:

- 35 1. Falsely believing that their income was "taxable" and that they were "taxpayers".
 36 2. Falsely believing that because they were "taxpayers" with "taxable income", then they needed deductions to reduce 37 their liability.
 38 3. Volunteering to make themselves into "taxpayers" to procure federal "privileges" called "deductions" that they never 39 needed to begin with, but which the IRS was too dishonest to remind them that they didn't need. Once they took these 40 deductions, they became "taxpayers" even if they weren't before.

41 The Bible describes this GREAT deception and fraud as follows:

42 For thus says the LORD:
 43 "You have sold yourselves for nothing,
 44 And you shall be redeemed without money."
 45 [Isaiah 52:3, Bible, NKJV]

46 We call the above "government instituted slavery using privileges" or simply "privilege-induced slavery" earlier in section
 47 4.3.12. Those with liberal arts degrees in business from prestigious but amoral or immoral universities might 48 euphemistically refer to this devious brand of exploitation simply as "clever marketing", but in the end, it amounts to deceit
 49 in commerce, which the Bible says is the gravest of sins which God hates most of all sins:

50 "As religion towards God is a branch of universal righteousness (he is not an honest man that is not devout), so
 51 righteousness towards men is a branch of true religion, for he is not a godly man that is not honest, nor can 52 he expect that his devotion should be accepted; for,

1 1. Nothing is more offensive to God than deceit in commerce. A false balance is here put for all manner of
 2 unjust and fraudulent practices [of our public dis-servants] in dealing with any person [within the public],
 3 which are all an abomination to the Lord, and render those abominable [hated] to him that allow themselves
 4 in the use of such accursed arts of thriving. It is an affront to justice, which God is the patron of, as well as a
 5 wrong to our neighbour, whom God is the protector of. Men [in the IRS and the Congress] make light of 6 such frauds, and think there is no sin in that which there is money to be got by, and, while it passes
 7 undiscovered, they cannot blame themselves for it; a blot is no blot till it is hit, Hos. 12:7, 8. But they are not
 8 the less an abomination to God, who will be the avenger of those that are defrauded by their brethren.

9 2. Nothing is more pleasing to God than fair and honest dealing, nor more necessary to make us and our
 10 devotions acceptable to him: A just weight is his delight. He himself goes by a just weight, and holds the scale
 11 of judgment with an even hand, and therefore is pleased with those that are herein followers of him.

12 A [false] balance, [whether it be in the federal courtroom or at the IRS or in the 13 marketplace,] cheats, under pretence of doing right most exactly, and therefore is the greater abomination
 14 to God."

15 [Matthew Henry's Commentary on the Whole Bible; Henry, M., 1996, c1991, under Prov. 11:1]

16 5.6.12.10.4 Why the IRS and the Courts WON'T Talk About what a "trade or business" or "Public office" is 17 and Collude to Cover Up the Scam

18 "The 'Truth' about income taxes is so precious to the U.S. government that it must be surrounded by a
 19 bodyguard of lies."
 20 [Family Guardian Fellowship]

21 The government perpetuates the "trade or business" FRAUD and scam by the following means:

- 22 1. Refusing to discuss the meaning of a "trade or business" in their publications or their phone support.
- 23 2. Refusing to discuss the meaning of a "public office" in their publications or their phone support.
- 24 3. Calling those who raise the issues documented here as "frivolous" or "preposterous" without citing any relevant legal 25 authority justifying such a conclusion that is consistent with the following pamphlet:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 26 4. Trying to cover up their fraud using the word "includes" scam documented below:

Meaning of the Words "includes" and "including", Form #05.014

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

27 There are many very good reasons why they try to deflect attention away from the scam. Some of the reasons are as 28 follows:

- 29 1. The IRS would have to admit that they aren't part of the government and are a private corporation, which in fact they 30 are. Remember: A "public officer" is someone who has no supervisor other than the law and the courts and who 31 exercises a sovereign functions of the government INDEPENDENTLY of oversight other than the law and the courts:

32 "Essential characteristics of a 'public office' are:

33 (1) Authority conferred by law,

34 (2) Fixed tenure of office, and

35 (3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.

36
 37 Key element of such test is that "officer is carrying out a sovereign function. Spring v. Constantino, 168 Conn.
 38 563, 362 A.2d. 871, 875. Essential elements to establish public position as 'public office' are:

39 Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.

40 Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,

41 Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.

42 Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and

43 Position must have some permanency."

44 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

45 If the IRS was an administrative part of the government and ESPECIALLY if it were in the Executive Branch as they 46 want to deceive you into believing, then they couldn't have any enforcement authority at all without admitting that the 47 people they are enforcing against in fact ARE NOT "public officers" as legally defined because they are being 48 supervised by other than ONLY the courts and the law alone. These considerations explain why:

49 1.1. No statute authorizes or ever has authorized the creation of the IRS. See:

Letter from Congressman Pat Danner, Sept. 12, 1996

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Evidence/Jurisdiction/IRSnotGov.pdf>

1.2. Historical Treasury Organization Charts do not show the IRS as being in the Dept. of the Treasury. See:

SEDM Exhibit #05.010

<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

1.3. Title 31 of the U.S. Code does not list the Internal Revenue Service as being within the Dept. of the Treasury, even though their letterhead FRAUDULENTLY says they are. See:

SEDM Exhibit #08.001

<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

1.4. The Dept. of Justice has admitted under oath during legal discovery that the IRS is not an agency of the Federal Government. See:

SEDM Exhibit #08.004

2. All "public officers" have a fiduciary duty to the people they serve, which means they have a fiduciary duty to YOU to act in YOUR best interest as a human being protected by the Constitution. If you can prove your oppressors are "taxpayers" and therefore "public officers", then their omissions that injure you would become actionable and a tort in court.

"As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer."<sup>127</sup> Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts.<sup>128</sup> That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves,<sup>129</sup> and owes a fiduciary duty to the public.<sup>130</sup> It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual.<sup>131</sup> Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.<sup>132</sup>"
[63C American Jurisprudence 2d., Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

3. Any officer of the state government, including a state judge, who is also a federal "taxpayer" would have to admit that he is violating the Constitution of his state by simultaneously being a "public officer" in the federal government and a public officer in the state government at the same time. Most state constitutions and/or state statutes forbid public officers within the state government from also being public officers in the federal government. This is done to prevent a violation of the separation of powers doctrine between the state and federal governments as well as to prevent conflicts of interest and allegiance by public servants. Why, then, do state courts have federal Employer Identification Numbers (EINs)? Shouldn't they be exempt from such requirement to preserve the separation of powers? Here is an example within the California Constitution:

CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION
ARTICLE 7 PUBLIC OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

SEC. 7. A person holding a lucrative office under the United States or other power may not hold a civil office of profit [within the state government]. A local officer or postmaster whose compensation does not exceed 500 dollars per year or an officer in the militia or a member of a reserve component of the armed forces of the United States except where on active federal duty for more than 30 days in any year is not a holder of a lucrative office, nor is the holding of a civil office of profit affected by this military service.

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. "Taxpayer" attorneys representing clients in state court would have to recuse themselves from the practice of law for violating the state constitutional prohibition against serving simultaneously in both a public office in the federal government and a public office in the state government. All attorneys are officers of the court they are licensed to practice in. If that court is a state court, they are public officers of the state government and therefore cannot also serve as public officers of the federal government called "taxpayers":

Attorneys at Law
§3 Nature of Attorneys Office

An attorney is more than a mere agent or servant of his or her client; within the attorney's sphere, he or she is as independent as a judge, has duties and obligations to the court as well as to his or her client, and has powers entirely different from and superior to those of an ordinary agent.<sup>133</sup> In a limited sense an attorney is a public officer.<sup>134</sup> although an attorney is not generally considered a "public officer," "civil officer," or the like, as used in statutory or constitutional provisions.<sup>135</sup> The attorney occupies what may be termed a "quasi-judicial office"<sup>136</sup> and is, in fact, an officer of the court.<sup>137</sup>
[American Jurisprudence 2d, Attorneys At Law, §3 Nature of Office (1999)]

5. You as a "taxpayer" and a "public officer" could assert sovereign immunity against other agencies of the government on the basis that it violates the separation of powers doctrine for any agency of the federal government to interfere with the activities of any other agency or office. Taxation is a "legislative" and not a judicial function.<sup>138</sup> This situation is precisely the reason, for instance, why:
- 5.1. The Anti-Injunction Act, 26 U.S.C. §7421, prohibits courts from interfering with the LAWFUL assessment or collection of income taxes from "public officers" in the Legislative Branch who consent.
- 5.2. The Declaratory Judgments Act, 28 U.S.C. §2201(a) prohibits courts from making declaratory judgments in the case of federal "taxes". This prohibition also precludes the courts from identifying anyone as a "taxpayer" who says under penalty of perjury that they aren't.

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. It is ILLEGAL for an “alien” to be a “public officer” and you aren't an alien if you were born in this country. The I.R.C., Subtitle A tax is an excise tax upon a “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. All “taxpayers” in the I.R.C. are aliens engaged in a public office and it is ILLEGAL for aliens to hold public office! See 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) for proof that all “individuals” and “taxpayers” are aliens engaged in a “trade or business”/public office.

4. Lack of Citizenship

§74. Aliens can not hold Office. - - It is a general principle that an alien can not hold a public office. In all independent popular governments, as is said by Chief Justice Dixon of Wisconsin, “it is an acknowledged principle, which lies at the very foundation, and the enforcement of which needs neither the aid of statutory nor constitutional enactments or restrictions, that the government is instituted by the citizens for their liberty and protection, and that it is to be administered, and its powers and functions exercised only by them and through their agency.”

In accordance with this principle it is held that an alien can not hold the office of sheriff.<sup>139</sup>

[A Treatise on the Law of Public Offices and Officers, Floyd Russell Mechem, 1890, p. 27, §74;

SOURCE: <http://books.google.com/books?id=g-I9AAAAIAAJ&printsec=titlepage>]

7. Courts would have to admit your evidence just as readily as that of any other government officer or employee involved in the action, or else they would be guilty of denying you equal protection of the law and all the “benefits” of the very office that they MUST impute to you in order to treat you as a “taxpayer”. This would make them look hypocritical and juries would throw the book at the government for doing this. The Federal Rules of Evidence permit those engaged in a “public office” to receive preferential treatment in getting their evidence admitted in federal court, including evidence without signature and without foundational testimony. The government doesn't want to confer this advantage upon pro per litigants or those opposing the government tax scam. Federal Rule of Evidence 803(8) permits a “public records” exception to the Hearsay Rule, which means that any tax record, any evidence you gathered in the course of complying with your alleged “duties” as a “public officer” would not be excludible by the judges of federal district courts, which would severely undermine the government's civil or criminal tax case against you. The IRS and DOJ win in federal court primarily by getting federal judges to unlawfully exclude evidence of persons who are litigating against them in order to prejudice the case in favor of the government. Below is what the appropriate section of the Hearsay Exceptions Rule, Federal Rule of Evidence 803 says on this subject, noting that “activities of the office or agency”, such as a “public office” fall within the protections of this rule:

Rule 803. Hearsay Exceptions: Availability of Declarant Immaterial

The following are not excluded by the hearsay rule, even though the declarant is available as a witness:

(8) Public records and reports. Records, reports, statements, or data compilations, in any form, of public offices or agencies, setting forth (A) the activities of the office or agency, or (B) matters observed pursuant to duty imposed by law as to which matters there was a duty to report, excluding, however, in criminal cases matters observed by police officers and other law enforcement personnel, or (C) in civil actions and proceedings and against the Government in criminal cases, factual findings resulting from an investigation made pursuant to authority granted by law, unless the sources of information or other circumstances indicate lack of trustworthiness.

8. Once the government truthfully admits that the income tax is an “excise tax” upon “public offices” within the United States government, those facing IRS enforcement actions would naturally introduce some very compromising questions that would put the IRS into a very tight spot that they could never get out of:
- 8.1. How can you force me to act as a “public officer” without my consent? Where is the evidence that I consented to act in this capacity?
  - 8.2. Where is the constitutionally required oath of office for me to act as a “public officer”? This requirement is described earlier in section 5.6.12.8.
  - 8.3. Where is the act of Congress that authorizes the specific “public office” that you allege that I am engaged in as required by 4 U.S.C. §72?

<sup>139</sup> State v. Smith, 14 Sw. 497; State v. Murray, 28 Wis. 96, 9 Am.Rep. 489.

- 1 8.4. Where is the compensation to act as a “public officer”, because I don’t work for free and the Thirteenth
2 Amendment prohibits involuntary servitude?
- 3 8.5. What if I don’t think the compensation to act as a “public office” offered by I.R.C. Sections 1, 32, and 162 is 4 adequate? How can I quit this form of federal agency and/or employment? Show me the forms to do this 5 permanently.
- 6 8.6. How can people who submit false information returns that connect me to a “public office” have any lawful 7 authority at all to donate or convert my private labor and property to a “public use” and a “public office” without 8 my express written consent? If disinterested third parties can do that, it never was my property to begin with,
9 now was it?

10 *“That property which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations:
11 First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his 12 neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that 13 use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due 14 compensation.”*

15 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

- 16 8.7. Shouldn't my word as a “public officer” be taken over that of the private third parties who submit the false
17 information returns that connect me to the alleged “office” to begin with, based on the Hearsay Exceptions Rule,
18 Federal Rule of Evidence 803(8)? Why are you not granting to an alleged fellow “public officer” such as 19 yourself this privilege or benefit of the office?
- 20 8.8. Are information returns filed against those not lawfully engaged in public offices being used as “federal election 21 forms” to in effect “vote” people into public office, and is this a lawful use for such a form? Does withholding
22 connected with these information returns then become bribery to procure an appointed or elected public office in 23 the case of a person who was not otherwise lawfully engaged in such an office, in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C.
24 §201?

25 On the subject of the Hearsay Exceptions Rule, Federal Rule of Evidence 803(8) above, below is what the Federal Civil 26 Trials and Evidence, Rutter Group says on the Public Records exception to the Hearsay Rule:

27 7. [8:2780] Public Records and Reports (FRE 803(8)): The following are not inadmissible under the hearsay
28 rule:

29 “Records, reports, statements, or data compilations, in any form, of public offices or agencies, setting forth:

30 “(A) the activities of the office or agency, or

31 “(B) matters observed pursuant to duty to report, excluding, however, in criminal cases matters observed by 32 police officers and other law enforcement personnel, or

33 “(C) in civil actions and proceedings and against the Government in criminal cases, factual findings resulting 34 “from an investigation made pursuant to authority granted by law,

35 “unless the sources of information or other circumstances indicate lack of trustworthiness.” [FRE 803(8)
36 (emphasis added)]

37 a. [8:2781] Compare—business records exception: The public records exception is much easier to invoke than 38 the Rule 803(6) business records exception: the public records exception does not require the testimony of a
39 custodian and often requires no foundation witness because the self-authentication provisions of FRE 902 will 40 suffice (see ¶8:2905ff).

41 b. [8:2782] Rationale: This hearsay exception is justified both by considerations of trustworthiness and
42 necessity: Trustworthiness rests on the assumption that public officials perform their duties properly; necessity,
43 on the assumption that they are unlikely to remember details independently of the record. [See Rule 803(8),
44 Adv. Comm. Notes; Coleman v. Home Depot, Inc. (3rd Cir. 2002) 306 F.3d. 1333, 1341; Espinoza v. INS (9th Cir.
45 1995) 45 F.3d. 308, 310].

46 The special provision for self-authentication of public records (FRE 902, see ¶8:2907 ff. ) also eliminates the 47 disruptive effect of bringing public officials to court. [Williams v. Tri-County Growers, Inc. (3rd Cir. 1984) 747 48 F.2d. 121, 133 (disapproved on another ground in Martin v. Cooper Elec. Supply Co. (3rd Cir. 1991) 940 F.2d.
49 896, 908, fn. 11)].

50 c. [8:2783] Any form of record: The hearsay exception covers “[r]ecords, reports, statements or data
51 compilations, in any form. . .” [FRE 803(8) (emphasis added)]

52 d. [8:2784] Any government: The Rule applies to the records or reports of any “public office or agency”
53 (FRE 803(*8)). No distinction is made between federal and nonfederal offices and agencies.

Thus, records of state or local government agencies may be admissible under this exception; likewise as to records of foreign governments. [See Hill v. Marshall (6th Cir. 1992) 962 F.2d. 1209, 1212—report by committee of state legislature; Matter of Oil Spill by Amoco Cadiz Off Coast of France on March 16, 1978 (7th Cir. 1992) 954 F.2d. 1279, 1308—records of French Commune]

e. [8:2785] Types of records admissible: Rule 803(8) creates a hearsay exception for three separate categories of public record:

- Records of a public agency's own activities (FRE 803(8)(A), see ¶8:2786 ff.);
- Records of matters observed pursuant to duty imposed by law (FRE 803(8)(B); see ¶8:2810 ff.); and
- Factual findings based on authorized investigative reports (FRE 803(8)(C); See ¶8:2835 ff.).

5.6.12.11 Defenses

5.6.12.11.1 How nonresidents in states of the Union are deceived and coerced to enlist in the scam

What about those who are smart enough to avoid the “trade or business” scam by properly declaring their status as:

1. “non-resident non-persons”
2. No income “effectively connected with a trade or business”
3. No sources of income inside the “United States” (federal government as a legal person)?

How does the IRS trap them? The IRS tricks them into volunteering into their jurisdiction using the IRS Form W-4. The regulations say that those who submit an IRS Form W-4:

1. MUST include all earnings listed on the W-2 as “gross income” on their tax return under 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1.
2. Are consenting to be bound by a private legal “contract” between you and the government under 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1. It doesn't say that on the form, but the regulations tell the truth plainly. The form itself simply identifies itself as an “Employee Withholding Allowance Certificate” and nowhere uses the word “agreement” or “contract”. The reason it doesn't is because the government doesn't want you to know that you are signing a binding contract or that you have the choice NOT to sign or consent to it. This is obviously entrapment and does not constitute informed consent, but fraud.

Here is the regulation that proves this:

Title 26
CHAPTER I
SUBCHAPTER C
PART 31
Subpart E

(a) In general. An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of Sec. 31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. (b) Form and duration of agreement. (1)(i) Except as provided in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph, an employee who desires to enter into an agreement under section 3402(p) shall furnish his employer with Form W-4 (withholding exemption certificate) executed in accordance with the provisions of section 3402(f) and the regulations thereunder. The furnishing of such Form W-4 shall constitute a request for withholding.

Remember, however, that no law or court or government has the power to interfere with your right to contract. Here is what the U.S. Supreme Court says on this subject:

“Independent of these views, there are many considerations which lead to the conclusion that the power to impair contracts [either the Constitution or the Holy Bible], by direct action to that end, does not exist with the general [federal] government. In the first place, one of the objects of the Constitution, expressed in its preamble, was the establishment of justice, and what that meant in its relations to contracts is not left, as was justly said by the late Chief Justice, in Hepburn v. Griswold, to inference or conjecture. As he observes, at the time the Constitution was undergoing discussion in the convention, the Congress of the Confederation was engaged in framing the ordinance for the government of the Northwestern Territory, in which certain articles of compact were established between the people of the original States and the people of the Territory, for the purpose, as expressed in the instrument, of extending the fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty, upon which the States, their laws and constitutions, were erected. By that ordinance it was declared, that, in the just preservation of rights and property, 'no law ought ever to be made, or have force in the said Territory, that shall, in any manner, interfere with or affect private contracts or engagements bona fide and without fraud previously formed.' The same provision, adds the Chief Justice, found more condensed expression in the prohibition upon the States [in Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution] against impairing the obligation of contracts, which has ever been recognized as an efficient safeguard against injustice; and though the prohibition is not applied in terms to the government of the United States, he expressed the opinion, speaking for himself and the majority of the court at the time, that it was clear 'that those who framed and those who adopted the Constitution intended that the spirit of this prohibition should pervade the entire body of legislation, and that the justice which the Constitution was ordained to establish was not thought by them to be compatible with legislation [or judicial precedent] of an opposite tendency.' 8 Wall. 623. [99 U.S. 700, 765] Similar views are found expressed in the opinions of other judges of this court." [Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 (1878)]

"A state can no more impair the obligation of a contract by her organic law [constitution] than by legislative enactment; for her constitution is a law within the meaning of the contract clause of the national constitution. Railroad Co. v. [115 U.S. 650, 673] McClure, 10 Wall. 511; Ohio Life Ins. & T. Co. v. Debolt, 16 How. 429; Sedg. St. & Const. Law, 637 And the obligation of her contracts is as fully protected by that instrument against impairment by legislation as are contracts between individuals exclusively. State v. Wilson, 7 Cranch, 164; Providence Bank v. Billings, 4 Pet. 514; Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1; Woodruff v. Trapnall, 10 How. 190; Wolff v. New Orleans, 103 U.S. 358." [New Orleans Gas Company v. Louisiana Light Company, 115 U.S. 650 (1885)]

Neither states of the Union nor the federal government can therefore use their jurisdiction to protect you if you abuse your power to contract by signing a W-4 that gives away all your rights or sovereignty. Under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution, the federal government has jurisdiction over its own employees and property wherever they may be found, including in places where it otherwise has no legislative jurisdiction. Consequently, it has exclusive jurisdiction over all those who sign a W-4 wherever they may be found. The jurisdiction is "in rem" over all such "property".

In law, all rights are property. Anything that conveys rights is also property. Contracts convey rights and therefore are property. All franchises are contracts and therefore also are "property". A "trade or business"/"public office" is a franchise and therefore is also "property" within the meaning of Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. These facts are the ONLY reason why the United States District Courts, which were established pursuant to Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution are even able to hear income tax cases: because they relate to federal franchises.

Sneaky, huh? That is why we repeatedly say DO NOT file form W-4's to stop withholding with your private employer: because you are signing a contract to elect yourself into a public office ILLEGALLY. God also warned us not to submit the W-4 agreement or contract when He said:

"You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you." [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

Instead of submitting the form W-4, use ONLY the modified form W-8BEN, or you are asking for BIG trouble and walking right into their trap, folks! Below is a link that will show you how to fill out the W-8BEN properly, if you choose to use it.

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Additional information beyond that above about how to handle tax withholding paperwork is also available in the following free book:

Federal and State Tax Withholding Options for Private Employers, Form #09.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

A human domiciled in a state of the Union who has identified him or herself properly with their private employer as a “non-resident non-person” by filing the amended W-8BEN as we suggest, and who has had his earnings involuntarily withheld by his private employer is put into the unfortunate position of having to file a return to get the wrongfully withheld earnings back. Usually, they will incorrectly file the wrong form, the 1040, instead of the proper form 1040NR, and thereby make themselves effectively into a “resident alien”. This gives the IRS jurisdiction over them because they are then treated as maintaining a domicile in the statutory but not constitutional “United States**” (federal territory). The IRS will then drag their feet refunding the wrongfully withhold earnings, forcing the NRA to take deductions and apply a graduated rate to reduce the withholding, which effectively forces them into perjuring themselves on a tax form just to get back the earnings that always were theirs to begin with.

5.6.12.11.2 How to prevent being involuntarily or fraudulently connected to the “trade or business” franchise

Based on all the foregoing, if you are a “non-resident non-person” or even a “nonresident alien” not engaged the “trade or business”/public office franchise under 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\) with no income from the U.S. Government or federal territory under 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\), then you aren't even mentioned in the I.R.C. as a subject for any Internal Revenue tax and your estate is a “foreign estate” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\). Section 4.11 proves that nearly all Americans living in states of the Union are “non-resident non-persons”, and so the above provision must apply to you, folks. Therefore, you are a “non-resident non-person” with no “sources of income” connected with a public office in the District of Columbia. If you want to prevent being involuntarily connected with the “trade or business” franchise, then you:

1. Must refuse to sign IRS Form W-4 and instead use one of the following two forms:

1.1. Amended version of IRS Form W-8BEN. See:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

1.2. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Must claim that you are not engaged in an excise taxable activity under the I.R.C., Subtitle A.

3. Must claim that you don't earn any “gross income”.

4. Must claim that you have no taxable “sources of income” identified in 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(4\)\(A\).

5. Must claim that you are a “nontaxpayer” not subject to the I.R.C. All portions within the I.R.C., IRS publications, and the Internal Revenue Manual that refer to “taxpayers” don't refer to you and can safely be disregarded and disobeyed.

6. Must claim that you are not subject to withholding on any payments you receive if you earn no statutory “income” from federal territory in the statutory “United States**” or are not engaged in a “trade or business”.

7. If any money was withheld from your pay by either a business or a financial institution, then you are due for a refund of all withholding and can lawfully ask for it back using the following form WITHOUT becoming a “taxpayer”:

Federal Nonresident Nonstatutory Claim for Return of Funds Unlawfully Paid to the Government, Form #15.001

8. Cannot lawfully file an IRS Form 1040, because EVERYTHING that goes on that form is treated as “effectively connected with a trade or business”. All entries on the form are subject to deductions and exemptions under 26 U.S.C. §162, which means EVERYTHING on the form is “trade or business” income. If you sign and submit this form, you are committing perjury under penalty of perjury. This is confirmed by examining 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\)\(1\), which says that all taxes imposed in I.R.C. Section 1 are connected with a “trade or business”, and IRS Form 1040 is intended for those subject to this tax. The 1040 form is also for “aliens”, and not “nonresident aliens”, as was shown in section 5.5.3 of the Great IRS Hoax.

9. Cannot lawfully have Currency Transaction Reports (CTR's), IRS Form 8300 filed against you by financial institutions, such as IRS Form 8300. If anyone mistakenly attempts to file these fraudulent reports against you, then use the remedy below. See IRS Publication 334: Tax Guide for Small Businesses (2002), p. 12 above:

Demand for Verified Evidence of “Trade or Business” Activity: Currency Transaction Report (CTR),

Form #04.008

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

10. Cannot lawfully allow IRS Form 1042-S to be filed against you because this form is ONLY for persons engaged in a "trade or business". If a company does erroneously file this form, you can lawfully correct it using the article below:

Correcting Erroneous IRS Form 1042's, Form #04.003

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

11. Cannot lawfully allow IRS Form 1098 to be filed against you because this form is ONLY for persons engaged in a "trade or business". If a company does erroneously file this form, you can lawfully correct it using the article below:

Correcting Erroneous IRS Form 1098's, Form #04.004

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

12. Cannot lawfully allow IRS Form 1099 to be filed against you because this form is ONLY for persons engaged in a "trade or business". See IRS Publication 583: Starting a Business and Keeping Records, p. 8 above. If a company does erroneously file this form, you can lawfully correct it using the article below:

Correcting Erroneous IRS Form 1099's, Form #04.005

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

13. Cannot lawfully allow having any earnings reported on a W-2. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(11\)-1\(a\) says that those not engaged in a "trade or business" cannot earn reportable "wages". If wages are incorrectly reported by an ignorant private employer, you can and should correct them using the IRS Form 4852, as shown in the article at:

Correcting Erroneous IRS Form W-2's, Form #04.006

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Keep all of the above fresh in your mind at all times as you decide how you are going to file in order to get all your ILLEGALLY STOLEN, I mean "withheld", money back from an ignorant employer or financial institution who refuses to read and obey the "code" (not "law", but "code"). Also keep in mind that most of this section is entirely "academic masturbation", as tax attorney Donald MacPherson colorfully calls it, because the Internal Revenue Code isn't law for "nontaxpayers" anyway and can't become law unless and until it is enacted into positive law. Therefore, the only people it pertains to are those who volunteer, and all these people are directly associated with the government as a federal "instrumentality" in some way.

5.6.12.12 Rebutted Arguments Against this Memorandum

5.6.12.12.1 Argument is "frivolous"

ARGUMENT:

The argument is "frivolous".

REBUTTAL:

Stating that our arguments are "frivolous" without justifying such a determination with:

1. Legally admissible evidence signed under penalty of perjury or verified with an oath (as required by 26 U.S.C. §6065).
2. Deriving the evidence ONLY from the civil domicile of the accused party as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). This means state law and NOT federal law.

. . . amounts to little more than accusing us of being "heretics" because we refuse to participate in the state-sponsored civil religion being run out of churches called "courts". Similar arguments apply to any other pejorative adjective label the courts might attempt to use that do not deal directly and completely with ALL the facts and arguments made herein on any given subject, such as:

1. "Ridiculous".
2. "Preposterous".
3. "Soundly rejected".
4. "Malicious".
5. "Irresponsible".
6. "Makes him/her a leech because he/she refuses to pay their 'fair share'".
7. "Manifestly erroneous".

1 All such adjectives do is prove that the judge is not acting in a judicial capacity as a neutral finder of facts and who reveals
2 only facts, but who rather is:

- 3 1. Acting in a political rather than judicial capacity as a member of the Executive rather than Judicial branch. Article 1,
4 Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 of the United States Constitution empower Congress and ONLY Congress to lay AND
5 collect taxes. By undermining and interfering with attempts to stop unlawful collection enforcement, the judge is:
  - 6 1.1. Acting as a tax collector in the Executive Branch. Congress CANNOT lawfully delegate any function, including 7 the tax collection function, to any other branch of the government, including the Judicial Branch.
  - 8 1.2. Violating the separation of powers doctrine by exercising Executive Branch functions.

9 “. . . a power definitely assigned by the Constitution to one department can neither be surrendered nor 10 delegated by that department, nor vested by statute in another department or agency. Compare Springer v.
11 Philippine Islands, 277 U.S. 189, 201, 202, 48 S.Ct. 480, 72 L.Ed. 845.”
12 [Williams v. U.S., 289 U.S. 553, 53 S.Ct. 751 (1933)]

13 “It may be stated then, as a general rule inherent in the American constitutional system, that, unless otherwise
14 expressly provided or incidental to the powers conferred, the Legislature cannot exercise either executive or 15 judicial power; the executive cannot exercise either legislative or [277 U.S. 189, 202] judicial power; the 16 judiciary cannot exercise either executive or legislative power. The existence in the various Constitutions of 17 occasional provisions expressly giving to one of the departments powers which by their nature otherwise would 18 fall within the general scope of the authority of another department emphasizes, rather than casts doubt upon,
19 the generally inviolate character of this basic rule.”
20 [Springer v. Government of the Philippines, 277 U.S. 189 (1928)]

- 21 1.3. Acting as a federal employment recruiter by illegally compelling private parties protected by the Constitution to 22 become “public officers” within the government without compensation and often without their consent or even 23 knowledge.
- 24 1.4. Engaging in conversion in violation of 18 U.S.C. §654, whereby he is converting private property to a public use,
25 a public purpose, and a public office without the consent of the owner and in violation of the Fifth Amendment
26 takings clause.

27 “Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;'
28 and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a
29 man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use
30 it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL
31 SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public “benefit”]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he
32 gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public
33 may take it upon payment of due compensation.”
34 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892) ]

35 The above rules are summarized below:
36

Table 5-65: Rules for converting private property to a public use or a public office

1	The owner of property justly acquired enjoys full and exclusive use and control over the property. This right includes the right to exclude government uses or ownership of said property.	Yes
2	He may not use the property to injure the equal rights of his neighbor. For instance, when you murder someone, the government can take your liberty and labor from you by putting you in jail or your life from you by instituting the death penalty against you. Both your life and your labor are "property". Therefore, the basis for the "taking" was violation of the equal rights of a fellow sovereign "neighbor".	No
3	He cannot be compelled or required to use it to "benefit" his neighbor. That means he cannot be compelled to donate the property to any franchise that would "benefit" his neighbor such as Social Security, Medicare, etc.	Yes
4	If he donates it to a public use, he gives the public the right to control that use.	Yes
5	Whenever the public needs require, the public may take it without his consent upon payment of due compensation. E.g. "eminent domain".	No

2. Entertaining "political questions" in violation of the separation of powers doctrine.
3. Abusing legal process to terrorize, discredit, and enslave the litigant in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1589(3).

TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 77 > § 1589
§ 1589. Forced labor

Whoever knowingly provides or obtains the labor or [litigation] services of a person—

(1) by threats of serious harm to, or physical restraint against, that person or another person;

(2) by means of any scheme, plan, or pattern intended to cause the person to believe that, if the person did not perform such labor or services, that person or another person would suffer serious harm or physical restraint; or

(3) by means of the abuse or threatened abuse of law or the legal process [against an innocent "nontaxpayer"].

shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than 20 years, or both. If death results from the violation of this section, or if the violation includes kidnapping or an attempt to kidnap, aggravated sexual abuse or the attempt to commit aggravated sexual abuse, or an attempt to kill, the defendant shall be fined under this title or imprisoned for any term of years or life, or both.

4. Obstructing justice due to people under the court's care and protection.
5. Not dealing directly with the issues at hand because doing so would jeopardize the CRIMINAL flow of plunder into his checking account.

Thank you for telling us that our arguments are truthful, accurate, and consistent with prevailing law and that we are right.

1. The courts have consistently held that you can't rely on anything the IRS says. See: <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm>
2. The IRS website says you can't rely on anything they print, including any publication or form. See Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8:

*"IRS Publications, issued by the National Office, explain the law in plain language for taxpayers and their advisors... While a good source of general information, publications should not be cited to sustain a position."
 [Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8 (05-14-1999)]*

3. The entire Internal Revenue Code is identified in 1 U.S.C. §204 as nothing more than simply a statutory “presumption”. “prima facie evidence” means presumption. Presumptions are NOT evidence, nor may they lawfully be used as a SUBSTITUTE for evidence in a court of law:

(1) [8:4993] Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests:

A conclusive presumption may be defeated where its application would impair a party's constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party's due process and equal protection rights. [Vlandis v. Kline (1973) 412 U.S. 441, 449, 93 S.Ct. 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. LaFleur (1974) 414 US 632, 639-640, 94 S.Ct. 1208, 1215-presumption under Illinois law that unmarried fathers are unfit violates process] [Federal Civil Trials and Evidence, Rutter Group, paragraph 8:4993, p. 8K-34]

“If any question of fact or liability be conclusively presumed [rather than proven] against him, this is not due process of law.”

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 500]

This court has never treated a presumption as any form of evidence. See, e.g., A.C. Aukerman Co. v. R.L. Chaides Constr. Co., 960 F.2d. 1020, 1037 (Fed.Cir.1992) (“[A] presumption is not evidence.”); see also Del Vecchio v. Bowers, 296 U.S. 280, 286, 56 S.Ct. 190, 193, 80 L.Ed. 229 (1935) (“[A presumption] cannot acquire the attribute of evidence in the claimant's favor.”); New York Life Ins. Co. v. Gamer, 303 U.S. 161, 171, 58 S.Ct. 500, 503, 82 L.Ed. 726 (1938) (“[A] presumption is not evidence and may not be given weight as evidence.”). Although a decision of this court, Jensen v. Brown, 19 F.3d. 1413, 1415 (Fed.Cir.1994), dealing with presumptions in VA law is cited for the contrary proposition, the Jensen court did not so decide. [Routen v. West, 142 F.3d. 1434 C.A.Fed.,1998]

4. The Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §6065 requires everything prepared under the authority of the code to be signed under penalty of perjury. Nothing coming from the IRS ever is, and therefore it is UNTRUSTWORTHY.
5. The Bible forbids Christians to presume anything and by implication, to treat presumptions as a basis for any kind of belief or inference.

“But the person who does anything presumptuously, whether he is native-born or a stranger, that one brings reproach on the LORD, and he shall be cut off from among his people.”
[Numbers 15:30, Bible, NKJV]

For more information on what DOES constitute a reasonable belief about one's tax liabilities, see:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Even if the government tried to define what the word “frivolous” means, we aren't allowed by their own statements and publications to trust their definition. Consequently, we are compelled to provide a definition for every word we hear from the government in order to avoid the Christian sin of presumption, and our definition is that the word “frivolous” means truthful, accurate, and consistent with prevailing law. Our definition is required to appear in all of the following forms of communication with the government as a mandatory part of the SEDM Member Agreement, Form #01.001:

- All pleadings filed in federal court. See Section Federal Pleading/Motion/Petition Attachment, Litigation Tool #01.002
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>
- All discovery in court:
Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status Options, Form #10.003
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>
- All tax forms filed with the IRS. See Section 4 of the following:
Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The very purpose of law is to give reasonable notice to all parties concerned the conduct expected of them. Simply calling something “frivolous” without defining why it is defective using civil law deriving ONLY from the domicile of the accused party per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b):

- 1 1. Fails to give reasonable notice of the conduct expected and therefore falls short of the purpose of law and causes a 2 violation of due process of law. See:

Requirement for Reasonable Notice, Form #05.022
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 3 2. Unconstitutionally involves the courts in political matters. The abuse of the word by courts by refusing to identify 4 reasons simply amounts to little more than a political statement and labels the speaker as a “heretic” who refuses to join
5 the state-sponsored religion of socialism described below:

Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 6 3. Proves that if a federal court makes this assertion, that it is not a true Article III constitutional court, but a franchise
7 court established under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. They are administering the 8 “trade or business” franchise and do not fulfill the main purpose for the establishment of government, which is the 9 protection of private rights. Instead, they have made a lucrative PRIVATE business out of DESTROYING your 10 PRIVATE rights, and protecting and expanding federal property by converting private property into public property by 11 illegally abusing presumption and word games. This is exhaustively proven with thousands of pages of evidence in 12 the following document:

What Happened to Justice?, Form #06.012
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

13 5.6.12.12.2 “trade or business” includes lots of activities other than simply a public office

14 ARGUMENT:

15 “Trade or business” includes lots of activities OTHER than simply a “public office”. Look at U.S. v. American Bar
16 Endowment, 477 U.S. 105, 106 S.Ct. 2426 (1986).

17 In the Tax Reform Act of 1969, Pub.L. 91-172, 83 Stat. 487, Congress defined a “trade or business” as “any 18 activity which is carried on for the production of income from the sale of goods or the performance of 19 services,” § 513(c). The Secretary of the Treasury has provided further clarification of that definition in 20 Treas.Reg. § 1.513-1(b) (1985), which provides: “in general, any activity of [an exempt] organization which is 21 carried on for the production of income and which otherwise possesses the characteristics required to 22 constitute ‘trade or business’ within the meaning of section 162” is a trade or business for purposes of 26
23 U.S.C. §§ 511-513.FN1

24 FN1. Section 162 permits a taxpayer to deduct “all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred
25 during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business.” Undoubtedly due to the desirability of tax
26 deductions, § 162 has spawned a rich and voluminous jurisprudence. The standard test for the existence of a 27 trade or business for purposes of § 162 is whether the activity “was entered into with the dominant hope and 28 intent of realizing a profit.” Brannen v. Commissioner, 722 F.2d. 695, 704 (CA11 1984) (citation omitted).
29 Thus several Courts of Appeals have adopted the “profit motive” test to determine whether an activity
30 constitutes a trade or business for purposes of the unrelated business income tax. See Professional Insurance
31 Agents of Michigan v. Commissioner, 726 F.2d. 1097 (CA6 1984); Carolinas Farm & Power Equipment
32 Dealers v. United States, 699 F.2d. 167 (CA4 1983); Louisiana Credit Union League v. United States, 693 F.2d.
33 525 (CA5 1982).

34 \*2430 ABE's insurance program falls within the literal language of these definitions. ABE's activity is both*
35 *“the sale of goods” and “the performance of services,” and possesses the *111 general characteristics of a*
36 trade or business. Certainly the assembling of a group of better-than-average insurance risks, negotiating on 37 their behalf with insurance companies, and administering a group policy are activities that can be-and are-
38 provided by private commercial entities in order to make a profit. ABE itself earns considerable income from its 39 program. Nevertheless, the Claims Court and Court of Appeals concluded that ABE does not carry out its 40 insurance program in order to make a profit. The Claims Court relied on the former Court of Claims holding,
41 in Disabled American Veterans v. United States, 650 F.2d. 1178, 1187 (1981), that an activity is a trade or 42 business only if “operated in a competitive, commercial manner.” See 4 Cl.Ct., at 409. Because ABE does not
43 operate its insurance program in a competitive, commercial manner, the Claims Court decided, that program
44 is not a trade or business. The Court of Appeals adopted this reasoning. 761 F.2d, at 1577.

45 [U.S. v. American Bar Endowment, 477 U.S. 105, 106 S.Ct. 2426 (U.S.,1986)]

46 REBUTTAL:

1 There is no limit to the NUMBER of activities or actions that a lawfully serving "public officer" can execute ON BEHALF
 2 of the government as an AGENT or INSTRUMENTALITY of the government, and the actions described above are
 3 certainly included. HOWEVER, none of those actions can or do fall within the purview of a statutory "trade or business"
 4 (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) or are subject to the government jurisdiction unless and until:

- 5 1. The actions are executed by a public officer lawfully elected or appointed into public office.
- 6 2. There is evidence on the record of a lawful appointment or election of the officer INTO office.
- 7 3. The public officer EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to lawfully occupy said office. Third party false information returns 8 cannot unilaterally "elect" anyone to a public office.
- 9 4. There is proof of the record that the public officer is serving in the only place they are EXPRESSLY authorized by 10 statute to serve per 4 U.S.C. §72.
- 11 5. There is evidence on the record of the proceeding that the owner of the property subject to tax CONSENTED to 12 convert his otherwise PRIVATE property into a public use, public purpose, and/or public office BEFORE it can be 13 taxed or regulated by the government. Otherwise, it is CONCLUSIVELY PRESUMED to be private property not 14 subject to government since it was not used to injure anyone with.

15 *"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;'
 16 and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a
 17 man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use
 18 it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL
 19 SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public "benefit"]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he
 20 gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public
 21 may take it upon payment of due compensation."*

22 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

- 23 6. There is evidence on the record that the rules of statutory construction have been EXPRESSLY waived in the case of 24 the definition of "trade or business" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).

25 *"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that
 26 term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory 27 definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n.
 28 10 ("As a rule, 'a definition which declares what a term "means" . . . excludes any meaning that is not 29 stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J.,
 30 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory 31 Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a
 32 whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition
 33 does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial 34 portion," indicate the contrary.*

35 [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

36 *"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
 37 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
 38 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons
 39 or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
 40 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
 41 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."*

42 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

43 The American Bar Endowment consented to be a public officer and therefore "taxpayer" by invoking the Internal Revenue
 44 Code, Subtitles A through C franchise and availing themselves of its "benefits", or by being a federal and not state
 45 corporation and creation and instrumentality of the national government.

46 To simply PRESUME that otherwise PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights are connected with a PUBLIC OFFICE
 47 without the consent of the owner and without just compensation is an unconstitutional taking in violation of the Fifth 48 Amendment.

49 5.6.12.13 Other important implications of the scam

50 Now that we completely understand how Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A works as an excise tax upon a voluntary and 51 avoidable taxable activity called a "trade or business" within the statutory but not constitutional "United States**" (federal 52 territory), this explains the reason why proponents of the 861 Position described in section 5.7.5 later have been so vehemently hated and attacked by the government and the IRS. What they are doing, in most cases without even realizing it, is using the regulation at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8\(f\)\(1\) to draw attention to the fact that the federal income tax is in fact an excise tax, and that the "taxable activities" are all enumerated individually in this regulation and nowhere else in either the I.R.C. or the Treasury Regulations. This regulation also happens to be the only regulation that describes exactly how to apply earnings from each enumerated excise "taxable activity" to the process of computing one's tax liability. Is it any surprise that the government doesn't want evidence like this in the hands of people? This interferes with their "voluntary compliance" efforts and exposes their willful and malicious fraud for what it is, and this is why they don't like it. This observation is the reason why most of the helpful examples contained within this regulation have been systematically removed over the years: to prevent people from correctly concluding that they aren't engaged in foreign commerce or public office and therefore don't owe the government any money.

Unfortunately, proponents of the 861 Position such as Larken Rose and those before him such as Thurston Bell fail to fully comprehend how they fit into this carefully crafted legal deception, fail to understand the nature of federal jurisdiction, and fail to fully understand that a "code" which only applies to those who volunteer to become engaged in a "trade or business" doesn't apply to them if they choose not to volunteer. They have spent so much time looking at the trees that they forgot about the forest and are being maliciously persecuted by the IRS mainly because of this monumental oversight. They don't understand that the I.R.C. was not enacted into positive law and in fact constitutes essentially a voluntary contract. This is not intended as a personal criticism by any means, but simply a realistic observation intended to help keep you out of trouble. Those who choose not to "sign" or consent to the contract by submitting the W-4 or filing a 1040 form with a nonzero "income" can have no legal liabilities under the code and cannot be described as "taxpayers" who are subject to it. Larken Rose thinks the "code" is "law" or "public law" for everyone, but in fact it is "private law" that is only "law" for "taxpayers", all of whom have consented to it in one way or another at some point in time. See the following free memorandum of law which proves this point:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.6.12.14 Conclusions and summary

This section summarizes everything we learned in this article and also ties this information in with everything else found on this website:

1. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A describes an excise tax upon a privileged activity called a "trade or business". All excise taxes involve franchises of one form or another and all franchises make those who participate into officers, agents, and instrumentalities of the government that granted the franchise. See:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030

2. A "trade or business" is statutorily defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as "the functions of a public office". A "public office" consists of employment or agency of the federal government in carrying out the sovereign and lawfully authorized functions of the government.
3. Those engaged in a "trade or business" are acting in a representative capacity as "public officers", and as such, take on the legal character of the U.S. government, who they represent in accordance with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17\(b\). All corporations are "citizens" under the laws they were created. The U.S. government is statutorily defined as a "federal corporation" in 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\). Therefore, those engaged in a "trade or business", while on official duty, become statutory "U.S. citizens", regardless of what they started out as.
4. 4 U.S.C. §72 requires that all public offices shall be exercised in the District of Columbia and NOT elsewhere except as expressly provided by law.

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
§ 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

5. All income taxes are based on domicile. Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954). Therefore, Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A may only lawfully be imposed or enforced against persons domiciled in the District of Columbia. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/DomicileBasisForTaxation.htm>

6. Since Congress has not created and cannot lawfully create "public offices" within any state of the Union, then it cannot impose or enforce Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A there.

"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee. But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

7. All federal identifying numbers, such as SSN's, TINs, and EINs, are government property. 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d). As such, anything you connect them with, including your labor, becomes "private property donated to a public use to procure the benefits of a federal franchise" and connects said property to a "trade or business". If you don't want to connect your labor or your property to a "public use" and a "public office", then you must rescind and remove all federal identifying numbers from it in accordance with:

7.1. Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.2. Following the withholding procedures in the following book:

Federal and State Tax Withholding Options for Private Employers, Form #09.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

8. No one can lawfully connect your private property, such as your labor or financial assets, to a "public office" or a "public use" without your consent. The very nature of the word "property" implies exclusive use and control, which implies the right to exclude control over it by anyone but you. Therefore, any third party who files a false information return that connects your earnings or your labor to a "public office" or a "public use" without your explicit consent is violating the following laws and others not mentioned:

8.1. 26 U.S.C. §7434: Civil damages for fraudulent filing of information returns

8.2. 26 U.S.C. §7206: Fraud and false statements

8.3. 26 U.S.C. §7207: Fraudulent returns, statements, or other documents

8.4. 18 U.S.C. §912: Impersonating a public officer.

8.6. 18 U.S.C. §654: Officer or employee of the United States converting property of another.

9. Everything that goes on an IRS Form 1040 represents government revenue in connection with a "trade or business" because:

9.1. The IRS Form 1040 is for the tax imposed in 26 U.S.C. §1.

9.2. Everything on the IRS Form 1040 is subject to deductions authorized under 26 U.S.C. §162 and the only income subject to such deductions, according to 26 U.S.C. §162 is "trade or business" income.

9.3. 26 U.S.C. §871(b)(2) says that all taxes imposed in section 1 are connected with a "trade or business".

10. Those not engaged in a "trade or business" cannot truthfully file an IRS Form 1040. The only proper form for them to file is the IRS Form 1040NR, because this is the only form that includes a block for earnings not connected with a "trade or business".

11. Pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041, all information returns, such as IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, 1099, K-1, etc have the effect of connecting the revenue in question to a taxable activity and creating a "prima facie presumption" that the target of the information return is engaged in a "trade or business". Those who are not engaged in a "trade or business" need to rebut this false information return by filing corrected information returns so that they are not incorrectly compelled to associate with federal employment, agency, and contracts in violation of the First Amendment prohibition of compelled association.

12. A "public office" can only be created through the operation of private/special/contract law and your voluntary consent. If you don't consent to act as a public officer and do all the following, then you can't earn "gross income". The process of refusing to consent to engage in contacts and "public office" with the government is effected by:
- 12.1. Not taking any deductions or credits on a tax return. Only those engaged in a "trade or business" may take deductions and credits, pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §§1, 32, and 162.
- 12.2. Not signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4 to your private employer. Since the W-4 causes a W-2 to be filed and the W-2 is an information return, only those engaged in a "trade or business" can fill out and sign the W-4. Private employers cannot lawfully compel signing or submitting of a W-4 for a person who is not engaged in a "trade or business" and if they do, they are engaged in theft and extortion. See:
Federal and State Tax Withholding Options for Private Employers
<http://famguardian.org/Publications/FedStateWHOOptions/FedStateWHOOptions.pdf>

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202, Section 7
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 12.6. Terminating Social Security participation. The Social Security Act of 1935, Title 8, section 801 says that you agree to participate in payroll withholding for the income tax if you also participate in Social Security. See the following for the process of doing this:
Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/SSTrustIndenture.pdf>
- 12.7. Properly declaring your citizenship status on government forms as a constitutional citizen but not a statutory citizen. This will ensure that your domicile is not presumed to be in the "United States" federal government. See:
- 12.7.1. Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

13. Even people who are domiciled in the District of Columbia, unless they work or have contracts with the national government and thereby are engaged in a "public office", do not earn "gross income" under I.R.C., Subtitle A. The only exception to this is found in 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\).
14. Pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\), all earnings from within the "United States", which means "sources within the United States" are presumed to be connected with a "trade or business". Consequently, the term "United States" within the Internal Revenue Code, Section 7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) really implies employment, agency, or contracts within the United States national government, and does not mean or imply a geographical area.
15. The use of a Taxpayer Identification Number creates a prima facie presumption that the person using it is engaged in a "trade or business". You can't use a TIN unless you are engaged in a "trade or business".
16. Pursuant to 31 C.F.R. §103.30\(d\)\(2\), Currency Transaction Reports (CTRs), such as IRS Form 8300, Treasury form 8300, may only be filled out against persons engaged in a "trade or business". It is unlawful to fill out these forms against persons who are not engaged in a "trade or business". If you are not engaged in a "trade or business" and someone tries to incorrectly fill out this form against you, present the following form:

Demand for Verified Evidence of "Trade or Business" Activity: Information Return, Form #04.007

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

17. Nonresident aliens not engaged in a "trade or business" as defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(i) cannot earn:
- 17.1. "Self-employment income", in accordance with 26 U.S.C. §1402.
- 17.2. "personal services" income, in accordance with 26 C.F.R. §1.469-9 and 26 U.S.C. §861\(a\)\(3\)\(C\)\(i\). Note that "compensation for personal services" is the only type of labor taxable under 26 U.S.C. §61\(a\)\(1\).
- 17.3. "wages" in connection with any work performed outside the "United States" (government), in accordance with 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(6\)-1
- 17.4. "gross income" in connection with all compensation not paid in cash, in accordance with 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(11\)-1. In other words, if you are paid in goods and not cash, such as in gold or silver, you can't earn "gross income" even if you are engaged in a "trade or business".
18. The IRS wants to deceive you into thinking that I.R.C., Subtitle A describes a direct, unapportioned tax instead of an indirect excise tax upon avoidable privileges connected with a "public office". They willfully perpetuate this illusion in order to keep you from searching for ways to avoid the activity and the taxes associated with the privileged activity. That is why:
- 18.1. None of their publications precisely define what a "trade or business" is. The one that comes closest is Publication 54, but even it doesn't do the subject justice.
- 18.2. When you ask them about what a "trade or business" is, they won't tell you.
- 18.3. When you show them the definition of "trade or business" from 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\), they will try to argue that the word doesn't mean what it says there and that the use of the word "includes" causes the word to mean not what the law says, but whatever they WANT it to mean. This is NOT how law works, folks! See:

Meaning of the Words "includes" and "including", Form #05.014

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

19. The federal courts are helping the IRS in the above cover-up. We have been unable to locate a single court case that discusses the information contained in this article. The federal courts are making cases that bring it up "unpublished" so that slaves living on the federal plantation will not be able to remove their chains and go free. They are "accessories after the fact" to Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organization crimes against humanity, in violation of Title 18, Part 1, Chapter 5 and 18 U.S.C. §3. See: <http://nonpublication.com>. In this regard, the courts have become "predators" rather than "protectors".
20. Most IRS Forms illegally create false presumptions about your status that compel you to associate with the "trade or business" activity and become a "taxpayer". See the following article about this SCAM:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- IRS very deliberately DOES NOT provide any forms or instructions that help "nontaxpayers" protect their status or prevent becoming the target of unlawful enforcement actions. The best way to avoid these false presumptions is to do the following, in descending order of preference:
- 20.1. Use standard IRS Forms and attach the following form to the IRS Form according to the instructions included with the form:
- Tax Form Attachment*, Form #04.201
- <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 20.2. Use AMENDED IRS Forms found on the following page.
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormsPubs.htm>
- 20.3. Modify existing IRS Forms yourself either electronically or using a pen before you sign it, according to the instruction in the link above, section 1.
21. Anyone who presumes or assumes you are a "taxpayer" under I.R.C., Subtitle A absent authenticated, court-admissible evidence is:
- 21.1. Assuming you work for the government as an agent, officer, contractor, or employee engaged in a "public office".
- 21.2. Asserting "eminent domain" over your private labor and property, which is illegal unless you receive "just compensation" pursuant to the requirements of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution.
- 21.3. Engaging in slavery and involuntary servitude in criminal violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, 42 U.S.C. §1994, and 18 U.S.C. §1581 if you do not explicitly and voluntarily personally consent to work for the government without compensation.
- 21.4. Depriving you of life, liberty, and property in the process of making the presumption, which is unconstitutional.

(1) [8:4993] *Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests: A conclusive presumption may be defeated where its application would impair a party's constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. #### 5.6.12.15 Further study

Understanding the "trade or business" scam fits together all the pieces of the puzzle scattered throughout this chapter and explains them in such a cohesive way that it is impossible to argue with. It is far more than simply a "theory", but a fact you can verify yourself by reading the IRS Publications, the code, the Constitution, and the Treasury Regulations. All of them agree with the content of this section. If you would like to learn more about the "trade of business" scam, a whole very interesting and well-researched book has been written on this subject that we highly recommend. It's a short book being only 232 pages, so it is sure to keep your attention:

5.6.13 The Non-Resident Non-Person Position

The Non-Resident Non-Person Position is easier and simpler to defend than the 861 source position. It revolves around the following simple concept:

1. The "United States" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) to mean ONLY the District of Columbia. "U.S." in all IRS publications therefore means the "District of Columbia". We also say that this area, the District of Columbia, is part of the "federal United States" or the "federal zone" throughout this book.
2. States of the Union are "foreign" with respect to federal legislative jurisdiction for the vast majority of subject matters, including taxation.
3. The Internal Revenue Code describes actually two separate excise taxes for two mutually exclusive legislative jurisdictions (see section 5.1.11 earlier):
  - 3.1. A municipal tax upon citizens and residents (aliens) of the District of Columbia under Subtitles A, B, and C.
  - 3.2. An income tax upon foreign commerce within states of the Union under Subtitle D.
4. Anyone who is neither a statutory "U.S. citizen" (person born in the District of Columbia or a U.S. territory) or a resident (alien) domiciled in the District of Columbia is a "nonresident alien" under the I.R.C. if physically present on federal territory. If not physically present, they are "non-resident non-persons".
5. Those who are "non-resident non-persons" or "nonresident aliens" are "nonresident" and therefore not within the legislative jurisdiction of most federal laws and are "nontaxpayers" under the I.R.C. in most cases. Pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §871, the only thing they have to pay income taxes on are earnings from the District of Columbia, such as:
  - 5.1. Social security benefits.
  - 5.2. Distributions from Foreign Sales Corporations (FSCs) registered within the District of Columbia.
  - 5.3. Earnings from investments and real property in the District of Columbia.
6. "Nonresident aliens" are not the equivalent of "aliens" because "nationals" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) are "nonresident aliens" but not "aliens".

Americans domiciled in nonfederal areas of the 50 Union states meet the above requirements and are either "non-resident non-persons" or "nonresident aliens" with respect to the Internal Revenue Code and the [federal] "United States" and therefore have no "U.S." source income unless they work for the U.S. government as public officers or have passive investments in the District of Columbia.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If you disagree and think that "United States" includes places other than the District of Columbia, then please explain why 26 C.F.R. §1.932-1(a)(1) says the following, which contradicts such a conclusion. Why would people who live in a "U.S. possession" be treated as "nonresident aliens" instead of residents, if they lived in the "United States*"? Why would this section even be necessary because if you were right, they would be "residents" instead of "nonresident aliens"?:

26 C.F.R. §1.932-1 Status of citizens of U.S. possessions

"(a)(1) A citizen of a possession of the United States (except Puerto Rico and, for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1972, Guam), who is not otherwise a citizen or resident of the United States, including only the States and the District of Columbia, is treated for the purpose of the taxes imposed by Subtitle A of the Code (relating to income taxes) as if he were a nonresident alien individual."

Also explain why after we posted the above on our website in 2005, this regulation mysteriously disappeared from the Government Printing Office (GPO) website and was replaced with a temporary regulation that didn't tell the truth so plainly. The current version of the above regulation does not contain this language because the government wants to hide the truth from you about your true status.

The term "nonresident alien" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), which says:

26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) Nonresident alien

An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of the United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

We proved earlier in section 5.2.19 that Americans born in states of the Union and domiciled there are not "citizens" under the Internal Revenue Code or any federal law. We also showed earlier in sections 4.10 and 5.5.2 that they aren't "residents" either, because the only "residents" are "aliens" in the Internal Revenue Code. Consequently, the only other status that most Americans can have is that of a "nonresident alien" under the Internal Revenue Code.

Within the Internal Revenue Code, the term "nonresident alien" is a "word of art", which means a term that has a special use different from what common sense and common usage might dictate. This situation is similar to the definition of the term "employee" in the Internal Revenue Code, which means an elected or appointed political official of the U.S. government (see 26 U.S.C. 3401(c) and 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)). The terms "alien" and "nonresident alien" are also defined in the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3):

26 C.F.R. 1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(i) Alien individual.

The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(c).

(ii) Nonresident alien individual.

The term nonresident alien individual means a person described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), an alien individual who is a resident of a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and Sec. 301.7701(b)-7(a)(1) of this chapter, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under Sec. 301.7701(b)-1(d) of this chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013 (g) or (h) to be treated as a resident of the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

If you look at the above two definitions carefully, which incidentally are the only definitions of "individual", "alien", and "nonresident alien" found in 26 C.F.R., you will notice that a natural person who lives inside the 50 states of the Union and outside of the federal zone can be a "nonresident alien" without being an "alien", which at first glance would appear to be a contradiction. How can a person be a "nonresident alien" without being an "alien"? Because "nonresident alien" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) as someone who is not a "U.S. citizen" or a "resident" (alien), which is exactly what a "national but not citizen" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) is!<sup>140</sup> Because of the definition of "alien" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) above, that same "national" can't be a "alien", because "aliens" cannot be "nationals" or "U.S. citizens"! The chart below reveals the relationship, which we introduced earlier in section 4.11.13:

1 An examination of IRS Form 1040NR confirms that “U.S. nationals” are indeed nonresident aliens. A “state national” and
 2 a “national” are the equivalent of a “U.S. national” in that context. Check the following page on our website for 3 confirmation:

4 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/IRSForm1040nr-USNational.pdf>

5 Our deceitful federal government has once again tried to confuse sovereign Americans so they would discount being one
 6 based on a statement something like the following:

7 “A reasonable person would conclude that they can't be an alien in their own country, and therefore I can't be
 8 a nonresident alien. It's ludicrous to even think that I could.”

9 The term “nonresident alien” is a contradiction deliberately designed by deceitful lawyers to confuse you and invoke
 10 “cognitive dissonance”. Recall from section 4.10 earlier that all “residents” can only be “aliens” under the Internal 11 Revenue Code. When we call someone a “nonresident”, we are saying he is not an “alien”. “non” means “not”. Therefore,
 12 when we call someone a “nonresident alien”, we are calling them a “non-alien alien”. How's that for cognitive dissonance!
 13 Since lawyers know that people will avoid cognitive dissonance, that is why they named the term the way they did. If 14 Congress had been completely honest about their definitions, they would have used the term “nonresident national or 15 foreign national” instead of “nonresident alien” in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) and explained that this status is the one that
 16 applies to people born in states of the Union under the Internal Revenue Code. However, then they would have given away
 17 their ruse and showed the average American that they aren't liable for income tax unless they have gross income from 18 sources within the federal United States that falls under 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f), which most people don't!

19 Pivotal to the Non-Resident Non-Person Position is the definition of the “income” (see section 5.6.5 earlier) and our
 20 identity as “human beings” and not privileged statutory franchisees called “persons”, “individuals”, corporations. The term
 21 “nonresident alien” in the context of federal income taxes can also encompass those who are state but not federal citizens or
 22 people who are foreigners domiciled in a state of the Union. However, one can be a “natural born sovereign state citizen”
 23 and still be a national of their country while not being a federal or “U.S. citizen” under “acts of Congress”. These people
 24 are correctly referred to as “nationals” or “state nationals”. Johnny Liberty (<http://www.icresource.com>) also calls them
 25 “American nationals” in his Global Sovereigns Handbook.

26 It might also surprise you that the Treasury Department has actually already admitted in its publications that people who
 27 are “state nationals” are indeed “nonresident aliens”. The famous Supreme Court Case called Brushaber v. Union Pacific
 28 Railroad, 240 U.S. 1 (1916) involved a French immigrant who was a citizen of New York state but not a “citizen” under 29 Federal Law. Therefore, he was a Constitutional but not Statutory “citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). He bought stock
 30 in the Union Pacific Railroad, which was a federal corporation chartered in the District of Columbia and operating in a
 31 federal territory of the United States (Utah). He brought suit against the Union Pacific Railroad to enjoin them from paying 32 income taxes to the federal government on the excuse that it was reducing the earnings of shareholders located in the states
 33 of the Union and therefore constituted a direct tax. The supreme Court held that it would not interfere with the decision by 34 a corporation to pay income taxes, even if the law didn't require it. Shortly after that finding by the Supreme Court, the 35 Treasury Department published Treasury Decision 2313, in which they identified Mr. Brushaber as a “nonresident alien”.
 36 You can read about this fascinating case at:

37 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/CourtCases/BrushaberVUnionPacRR240US1.htm>

38 We hear a lot of questions along the following lines:

39 “Well why does it matter whether I'm a STATUTORY 'U.S. citizen' or a 'nonresident alien' anyway? Either
 40 way I'm not liable for income tax because there is no liability statute or implementing regulations permitting
 41 enforcement of Subtitle A income taxes imposed in 26 U.S.C. Section 1.”

42 Very good question! We respond to this prudent observation by stating that there is absolutely no advantage to being a
 43 U.S.** citizen and a BIG disadvantage because once we volunteer to become statutory “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C.
 44 §1401, we volunteer to be completely subject to the jurisdiction of the U.S. government and the federal courts! If you
 45 have read this far, you have realized that our federal government is corrupt and covetous of getting into our pocket and
 46 plundering as much of our assets as it can get it's paws on using deceit and fraud. Why open the door wide enough to

1 invite these criminals into our lives by giving them jurisdiction so they can destroy our lives and our liberties if we don't
2 have to? Prudence demands that we provide as many protections and safeguards as we possibly can for our liberties by
3 staying as far away from federal and any kind of government jurisdiction or influence as we can! Any other approach is 4 pure stupidity and a big mistake! Crosse v. Bd. of Supervisors, 221 A.2d. 431 (1966) says about this subject:

5 "Both before and after the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal Constitution, it has not been necessary for a
6 person to be a citizen of the United States in order to be a citizen of his state." Citing U.S. v. Cruikshank, 7 supra.

8 A "national", a "state national", a Natural Born Sovereign, and a "non-resident non-person" are therefore the best things we
9 can be because this will give our liberties the most protections from the encroachments of greedy Congressmen,
10 unscrupulous IRS agents, and corrupt federal judges, all of which are the "sinners" that Jesus came down to earth to call to 11 repentance. This fits very nicely in with the scripture quoted in section 2.5.3 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions
12 Manual, Form #10.005 under "Making Yourself Judgment Proof", which states:

13 "A prudent man foresees evil and hides himself, but the simple pass on and are punished. By humility and fear
14 of the Lord are riches and honor and life. Thorns and snares are in the way of the perverse; he who guards his 15 soul will be far from them."
16 [Prov. 22:3]

NOTES:

1. Domicile is a prerequisite to having any civil status per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17. One therefore cannot be a statutory "alien" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) without a domicile on federal territory. Without such a domicile, you are a transient foreigner and neither an "alien" nor a "nonresident alien".
2. A "nonresident alien individual" who has made an election under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) to be treated as a "resident alien" is treated as a "nonresident alien" for the purposes of withholding under I.R.C. Subtitle C but retains their status as a "resident alien" under I.R.C. Subtitle A. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(ii).
3. A "non-person" is really just a transient foreigner who is not "purposefully availing themselves" of commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the United States on federal territory under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97. The real transition from a "NON-person" to an "individual" occurs when one:
  - 3.1. "Purposefully avails himself" of commerce on federal territory and thus waives sovereign immunity. Examples of such purposeful availment are the next three items.
  - 3.2. Lawfully and consensually occupying a public office in the U.S. government and thereby being an "officer and individual" as identified in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). Otherwise, you are PRIVATE and therefore beyond the civil legislative jurisdiction of the national government.
  - 3.3. Voluntarily files an IRS Form 1040 as a citizen or resident abroad and takes the foreign tax deduction under 26 U.S.C. §911. This too is essentially an act of "purposeful availment". Nonresidents are not mentioned in section 911. The upper left corner of the form identifies the filer as a "U.S. individual". You cannot be an "U.S. individual" without ALSO being an "individual". All the "trade or business" deductions on the form presume the applicant is a public officer, and therefore the "individual" on the form is REALLY a public officer in the government and would be committing FRAUD if he or she was NOT.
  - 3.4. VOLUNTARILY fills out an IRS Form W-7 ITIN Application (IRS identifies the applicant as an "individual") AND only uses the assigned number in

- 1 connection with their compensation as an elected or appointed public officer. Using it in connection with PRIVATE earnings is FRAUD.
- 2 4. What turns a "non-resident no-person" into a "nonresident alien individual" is meeting one or more of the following two criteria found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-
- 3 1(c)(3)(ii):
- 4 4.1. Residence/domicile in a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1).
- 5 4.2. Residence/domicile as an alien in Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as
- 6 determined under 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-1(d).
- 7 5. All "taxpayers" are STATUTORY "aliens" or "nonresident aliens". The definition of "individual" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) does NOT include
- 8 "citizens". The only occasion where a "citizen" can also be an "individual" is when they are abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911 and interface to the I.R.C. under a tax
- 9 treaty with a foreign country as an alien pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1)

12 Peter said to Him, "From strangers [aliens]/"residents" ONLY. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1\(a\)\(2\)\(ii\) and 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(d\)\(3\)."

13 Jesus said to him, "Then the sons [citizens" of the Republic, who are all sovereign "nationals" and "non-resident non-persons" under federal law] are free [sovereign

15 [Matt. 17:24-27, Bible, NKJV]

1 Based on the above, a human being born anywhere in America and domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state of
 2 the Union is a “non-resident non-person” if not engaged in a public office and a “nonresident alien” if engaged in a public
 3 office. This is also confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §877, which describes a person who abandons their “national” status as a
 4 “nonresident alien” both BEFORE and AFTER they abandon it. If the “nonresident alien” described below was NOT also
 5 a “nonresident alien” BEFORE he expatriated, then the statute would not make sense and would have to be rewritten.

6 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART II > Subpart A > § 877
 7 §877. Expatriation to avoid tax

8 (a) Treatment of expatriates

9 (1) In general

10 Every nonresident alien individual to whom this section applies and who, within the 10-year period
 11 immediately preceding the close of the taxable year, lost United States citizenship shall be taxable for such 12 taxable year in the manner provided in subsection (b) if the tax imposed pursuant to such subsection (after any 13 reduction in such tax under the last sentence of such subsection) exceeds the tax which, without regard to this 14 section, is imposed pursuant to section 871.

15 The term “expatriation” is then defined as “the abandonment of nationality and allegiance”, hence, “national” status.

16 “Expatriation is the voluntary renunciation or abandonment of nationality and allegiance.”
 17 [Perkins v. Elg., 1939, 307 U.S. 325, 59 S.Ct. 884, 83 L.Ed. 1320]

18 The only way that a person could be both a “national” before expatriation and an “alien” afterward and still be a
 19 “nonresident alien” in both circumstances is if BOTH statuses are included within the definition of “nonresident alien”.
 20 Otherwise, they would have had to say the following, where the underlined values are added or changed:

21 “Every nonresident alien individual. . .who. . .BECAME a nonresident alien individual by losing United States 22 citizenship”.

23 For more on the relationship between citizenship status and tax status, see:

Why You are a “national”, “state national”, and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

24 The term “nonresident alien” is a combination of two words:

- 25 1. “nonresident”: Means that the entity has not nominated the specific government in question as their protector by 26 choosing a domicile or residence within the territory protected by that government. Therefore, the entity is not
 27 protected by the civil laws of that place or government. For details on “domicile” and “residence”, see :

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 28 2. “alien”: Means “foreign” in relation to the jurisdiction in question. The term “alien” in the context of a human being 29 can mean that the human being was not born within the country that encompasses the jurisdiction in question. The 30 term “alien” in relation to an artificial entity such as a corporation or trust could mean that the entity was not created or 31 registered under the laws of the jurisdiction in question.

32 The term “nonresident alien” is statutorily defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), which says:

33 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\)

34 An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of
 35 the United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

36 The first thing we notice about the above definition is that the term “nonresident alien” is defined in the context of ONLY 37 an “individual” as legally defined. Upon investigating this matter further, we find that:

1. Nowhere other than in the above definition does the term “nonresident alien” appear without the term “individual”, and it appears only in the title of 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) above.
2. 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) defines what a “nonresident alien individual” is but not a “nonresident alien”. Based on comparing the definition of “nonresident alien individual” in that section and the term “nonresident alien” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), we find that:
  - 2.1. You can be a “nonresident alien” without being a “nonresident alien individual”.
  - 2.2. The only difference between a “nonresident alien” and a “nonresident alien individual” is that the entity:
    - 2.2.1. Is an alien and NOT a “national” AND
    - 2.2.2. Meets one or more of the following two criteria found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(ii):
      - 2.2.2.1. Residence/domicile in a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1).
      - 2.2.2.2. Residence/domicile as an alien in Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-1(d).

Therefore, a human being who is a non-resident non-person” cannot be a “nonresident alien individual” regardless of their domicile. Compare 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
3. The above definition describes what a “nonresident alien” IS NOT, but not what it IS. They are hiding something, aren't they? They obviously don't want you to know what it is because then they would have to admit that nearly everyone in states of the Union are nonresident alien NON-individuals for which there are NO tax forms they can sign unmodified without committing perjury under penalty of perjury.
4. The above definition tries to create the presumption that only human beings can be “individuals”, but this is in fact false. An artificial entity that is not a human being, for instance, can also satisfy the following criteria for being a “nonresident alien”:

“neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of the United States”

The reason they do this is that they don't want you to know that businesses can ALSO be “nonresident aliens”. If every business out there declared itself to be a “nonresident alien”, the government wouldn't have a way to regulate or tax them or accomplish its main goal of regulating commerce! Block 3 of the IRS W-8BEN form confirms that entities other than “individuals” listed in the definition of “nonresident alien” can also be “nonresident aliens”. The form in block 3 lists grantor trusts, complex corporations, estates, etc. as being also “nonresident aliens”, but all the entities listed are statutory “public” and not “private” entities domiciled on federal territory or doing business there, and engaged in a “public office” in the U.S. government. The government has no jurisdiction to regulate the affairs of entities neither domiciled nor resident outside its jurisdiction nor engaged in private and not public activities.

“Although the conduct of private parties lies beyond the Constitution's scope in most instances, governmental authority may dominate an activity to such an extent that its participants must be deemed to act with the authority of the government and, as a result, be subject to constitutional constraints.”
[Edmonson v. Leesville Concrete Company, 500 U.S. 614 (1991)]

5. Nearly every place that the term “nonresident alien” is described in the Internal Revenue Code and the Treasury Regulations and in which a duty is prescribed, the phrase “individual” is added to the end so that it reads “nonresident alien individual”.
6. Nowhere do the I.R.C. or the Treasury Regulations impose a duty or obligation upon “nonresident aliens” who are NOT “individuals”. For instance, the obligation to file income tax returns is described in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b) in the context of “nonresident alien individuals”, but nowhere in the context of those who are “nonresident aliens” but NOT “individuals”.
7. IRS Form 1040 is entitled “U.S. Individual Income Tax Return”. Those who are not “individuals” cannot have an obligation to file this form.

Based on the above, if you want to avoid being subject to the I.R.C. or having any sort of obligation under it, you must therefore describe yourself as a “nonresident alien” who is NOT a “nonresident alien individual”. This, in fact, is what the AMENDED version of the IRS Form W-8BEN that we provide does at the link below: It adds two new statuses to the IRS Form W-8BEN, which are “transient foreigner” and “Union State Citizen” as an alternative to the word “individual”.

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Those who describe themselves as “non-resident non-persons” who are NOT “individuals” and who are not engaged in the “trade or business” excise taxable franchise sometimes erroneously identify themselves as the type of “individual” described in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i). This type of “nonresident alien” is also an “individual”, which means the entity described is actually a “nonresident alien” who made an election pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) to be treated as a “resident alien” and who is therefore subject to the I.R.C.. Don't EVER make this huge mistake by invoking this regulation to identify yourself without also clarifying somewhere on the form or correspondence that you are not an “individual”. The AMENDED W-8BEN above takes this into account:

TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
CHAPTER I--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
PART 1 _INCOME TAXES--Table of Contents
Sec. 1.871-1 Classification and manner of taxing alien individuals.

For purposes of the income tax, alien individuals are divided generally into two classes, namely, resident aliens and nonresident aliens. Resident alien individuals are, in general, taxable the same as citizens of the United States; that is, a resident alien is taxable on income derived from all sources, including sources without the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(b). Nonresident alien individuals are taxable only on certain income from sources within the United States and on the income described in section 864(c)(4) from sources without the United States which is effectively connected for the taxable year with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States. However, nonresident alien individuals may elect, under section 6013 (g) or (h), to be treated as U.S. residents for purposes of determining their income tax liability under Chapters 1, 5, and 24 of the code. Accordingly, any reference in Sec. Sec. 1.1-1 through 1.1388-1 and Sec. Sec. 1.1491-1 through 1.1494-1 of this part to non-resident alien individuals does not include those with respect to whom an election under section 6013 (g) or (h) is in effect, unless otherwise specifically provided. Similarly, any reference to resident aliens or U.S. residents includes those with respect to whom an election is in effect, unless otherwise specifically provided.

(b) Classes of nonresident aliens—

(I) In general.

For purposes of the income tax, nonresident alien individuals are divided into the following three classes:

(i) Nonresident alien individuals who at no time during the taxable year are engaged in a trade or business [public office] in the United States,

(ii) Nonresident alien individuals who at any time during the taxable year are, or are deemed under Sec. 1.871-9 to be, engaged in a trade or business in the United States, and

(iii) Nonresident alien individuals who are bona fide residents of Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year.

An individual described in subdivision (i) or (ii) of this subparagraph is subject to tax pursuant to the provisions of subpart A (section 871 and following), part II, subchapter N, chapter 1 of the Code, and the regulations thereunder. See Sec. Sec. 1.871-7 and 1.871-8. The provisions of subpart A do not apply to individuals described in subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph, but such individuals, except as provided in section 933 with respect to Puerto Rican source income, are subject to the tax imposed by section 1 or section 1201(b). See Sec. 1.876-1.

The reasons you want to avoid being an “individual” are many, and include:

1. The term “individual” is not defined in the I.R.C. It is dangerous and presumptuous to describe yourself as anything that is not defined. It is defined in the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3), but the regulation exceeds the scope of the statute and therefore is void, which leaves us guessing what the term really means.

“Finally, the Government points to the fact that the Treasury Regulations relating to the statute purport to include the pick-up man among those subject to the s 3290 tax, <sup>ENL</sup> and argues (a) that this constitutes an administrative interpretation to which we should give weight in construing the statute, particularly because (b) section 3290 was carried over in haec verba into s 4411 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, 26 U.S.C.A. s 4411. We find neither argument persuasive. In light of the above discussion, *359 we cannot but regard this

Treasury Regulation as no more than an attempted addition to the statute of something which is not there.

2. We allege that using the term “individual” can only mean that you are an officer or employee of the U.S. Government, as we will show later.
3. You cannot be “sovereign” and yet contradict yourself by describing yourself as anything defined in government statutes or codes, which we know can only regulate the conduct of their own employees and officers but not private individuals. See:
  - 3.1. Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037

“Since in common usage, the term person does not include the sovereign, statutes not employing the phrase are ordinarily construed to exclude it.”

“Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law for it is the author and source of law:”
 [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886) ]

“There is no such thing as a power of inherent Sovereignty in the government of the United States. In this country sovereignty resides in the People, and Congress can exercise no power which they have not, by their Constitution entrusted to it: All else is withheld.”
 [Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884)]

“The words ‘people of the United States’ and ‘citizens,’ are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call the ‘sovereign people,’ and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty. ...”
 [Boyd v. State of Nebraska, 143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

If you would like to know more about the “individual” scam, see the next section.

Within the Internal Revenue Code, the term “nonresident alien” is a “word of art”, which means a term that has a special use different from what common sense and common usage might dictate. The terms “alien” and “nonresident alien” are also defined in the regulations at 26 C.F.R. § 1.1441-1(c)(3):

26 C.F.R. 1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(i) Alien individual.

The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(c).

(ii) Nonresident alien individual.

The term nonresident alien individual means a person described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), an alien individual who is a resident of a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and Sec. 301.7701(b)-7(a)(1) of this chapter, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under Sec. 301.7701(b)-1(d) of this chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013 (g) or

(h) to be treated as a resident of the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

Notice that based on the above, the term “individual” DOES NOT include STATUTORY “citizens” and that you can't be a “nonresident alien individual” without first being an “alien individual”. Based on the above, only TWO things can change a “non-resident non-person” into a “nonresident alien individual”:

1. You are an alien and NOT a “national” AND
2. Meet one or more of the following two criteria found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(ii):
  - 2.1. Residence/domicile in a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1).
  - 2.2. Residence/domicile as an alien in Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-1(d).

If you look at the above two definitions carefully, which incidentally are the only definitions of “individual”, “alien”, and “nonresident alien” found in 26 C.F.R., you will notice that a human being domiciled inside the 50 states of the Union and outside of the federal zone can be a “nonresident alien” without being an “alien”, which at first glance would appear to be a contradiction. How can a person be a “nonresident alien” without being an “alien”? Because “nonresident alien” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) as someone who is not a “U.S. citizen” or a “resident” (alien), which is exactly what a “national but not citizen” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) or 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(22\)\(B\) is!<sup>141</sup> Because of the definition of “alien” found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) above, that same “national” can't be a “alien”, because “aliens” cannot be “nationals” or “U.S. citizens”! These conclusions are also consistent with the following maxim of law:

What is like is not the same, for nothing similar is the same. 4 Co. 18.

5 U.S.C. §552a defines the term “individual” as a statutory but not constitutional “citizen of the United States” or a statutory but not constitutional “resident” (alien), both of whom have in common a domicile on federal territory that is no part of any state of the Union.

TITLE 5 - GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION AND EMPLOYEES

PART 1 - THE AGENCIES GENERALLY

CHAPTER 5 - ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE

SUBCHAPTER II - ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE

§ 552a. Records maintained on individuals

(a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

(2) the term “individual” means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence;

Consequently, we allege that the only time that a “nonresident alien” can ALSO be an “individual” is when they satisfy ALL of the following criteria:

1. They are an “alien” who was not born in the country.
2. They are NOT a “national” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). You cannot be a statutory “U.S. citizen” and a “resident” (alien) at the same time. A “national” who changes his domicile to the “United States” (federal zone) becomes a statutory “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 but not a “resident” alien pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
3. They are married to a statutory but not constitutional “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401.
4. They have made an election to be treated as a “resident alien” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B) and 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h).
5. No one forced them to make such an election and it was entirely voluntary. An example of forcing such an election would be an unlawful substitute for return filed using IRS Form 1040, which is only for use by “U.S. persons” with a domicile on federal territory and may not be used against “nonresident aliens” who do not consent to a voluntary election to be treated as resident aliens. See the following for details:

Why the Government Can't Lawfully Assess Human Beings With an Income Tax Liability Without Their Consent,
Form #05.011
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

An examination of IRS Form 1040NR confirms that “U.S. nationals” are indeed “nonresident aliens”. A “state national” and a “national” are the equivalent of a “U.S. national” in that context. Check the following page on the following website for confirmation:

IRS Form 1040NR
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/IRSForm1040nr-USNational.pdf>

Your deceitful federal government has once again tried to confuse sovereign Americans so they would discount being “nonresident aliens” based on a statement something like the following:

“A reasonable person would conclude that they can't be an alien in their own country, and therefore I can't be a nonresident alien. It's ludicrous to even think that I could.”

The term “nonresident alien” is a contradiction deliberately designed by deceitful lawyers to confuse you. All “residents” can only be “aliens” under the Internal Revenue Code. When we call someone a “nonresident”, we are saying he is not an “alien”. “non” means “not”. Therefore, when we call someone a “nonresident alien”, we are calling them a “non-alien alien”. How's that for cognitive dissonance! Since lawyers know that people will avoid cognitive dissonance, that is why they named the term the way they did. If Congress had been completely honest about their definitions, they would have used the term “nonresident national or foreign national” instead of “nonresident alien” in 26 C.F.R. § 1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) and explained that this status is the one that applies to people born in states of the Union under the Internal Revenue Code. However, then they would have given away their ruse and showed the average American that they aren't liable for income tax unless they have gross income from sources within the federal United States that falls under 26 C.F.R. § 1.861-8(f), which most people don't!

Pivotal to the Non-Resident Non-Person Position is our status as “human beings” and not privileged statutory creations of Congress such as corporations, “persons”, or “individuals”. Congress can only tax what it creates and it didn't create human beings. Therefore, the government cannot destroy human beings unless they consensually and voluntarily surrender their rights, their sovereignty, or their sovereign immunity by engaging in federal franchises such as the protection franchise called “domicile” or the public office franchise called a “trade or business”:

“The power to tax involves the power to destroy; the power to destroy may defeat and render useless the power to create; and there is a plain repugnance in conferring on one government [THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT] a power to control the constitutional measures of another [WE THE PEOPLE], which other, with respect to those very measures, is declared to be supreme over that which exerts the control.”
Van Brocklin v. State of Tennessee, [117 U.S. 151 (1886)]

“The great principle is this: because the constitution will not permit a state to destroy, it will not permit a law [including a tax law] involving the power to destroy.”
Providence Bank v. Billings, [29 U.S. 514 (1830)]

*“Having thus avowed my disapprobation of the purposes, for which the terms, State and sovereign, are frequently used, and of the object, to which the application of the last of them is almost universally made; it is now proper that I should disclose the meaning, which I assign to both, and the application, [2 U.S. 419, 455] which I make of the latter. In doing this, I shall have occasion incidentally to evince, how true it is, that States and Governments were made for [and BY] man; and, at the same time, how true it is, that his creatures and servants have first deceived, next vilified, and, at last, oppressed their master and maker.”
Justice Wilson, [Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (2 U.S.) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440, 455 (1793)]

The term “nonresident alien” in the context of federal income taxes can also encompass those who are state but not statutory federal citizens or people who are foreigners living in a state of the Union. However, one can be a citizen of a state of the Union and still be a national of their country while not being a statutory “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or any other “act of Congress”. These people are correctly referred to as “nationals” or “state nationals”. Johnny Liberty (<http://www.icresource.com>) also calls them “American nationals” in his book available on our website below:

Global Sovereign Handbook, Form #10.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

It might also surprise you that the Treasury Department has actually already admitted in its publications that people who are “state nationals” and who invest (as government contractors, stockholders, and therefore public officers) in federal corporations are indeed “nonresident aliens”. The famous Supreme Court Case called Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad, 240 U.S. 1 (1916) involved a French immigrant who was a citizen of New York state but not a “citizen” under Federal Law. Therefore, he was a Constitutional but not Statutory “citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). He bought stock in the Union Pacific Railroad, which was a federal corporation chartered in the District of Columbia and operating in a federal territory of the United States (Utah). He brought suit against the Union Pacific Railroad to enjoin them from paying income taxes to the federal government on the excuse that it was reducing the earnings of shareholders located in the states of the Union and therefore constituted a direct tax. The supreme Court said that it would not interfere with the decision by a corporation to pay income taxes, even if the law didn't require it. Shortly after that finding by the Supreme Court, the Treasury Department published Treasury Decision 2313, in which they identified Mr. Brushaber as a nonresident alien. He was a “nonresident alien” because he was a stockholder in a federal corporation and the U.S. Supreme Court identified all such stockholders as CONTRACTORS of the government. See Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of Warren Bridge, 36 U.S. 421 (1837). You can read about this fascinating case at:

1. Significance of Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad, 240 U.S. 1 (1916)
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/CourtCases/BrushaberVUnionPacRR240US1.htm>
2. An Investigation Into the Meaning of the Term “United States”
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/ChallJurisdiction/Definitions/freemaninvestigation.htm>

We hear a lot of questions along the following lines:

“Well why does it matter whether I'm a statutory ‘U.S. citizen’ or a ‘nonresident alien’ anyway? Either way I'm not liable for income tax because there is no liability statute or implementing regulations permitting enforcement of Subtitle A income taxes imposed in 26 U.S.C. Section 1.”

Very good question! We respond to this prudent observation by stating that there is absolutely no advantage to being a U.S.** citizen and a BIG disadvantage because once we volunteer to become statutory “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401, we volunteer to be completely subject to the jurisdiction of the U.S. government and the federal courts! If you have read this far, you have realized that our federal government is corrupt and covetous of getting into our pocket and plundering as much of our assets as it can get it's paws on using deceit and fraud. Why open the door wide enough to invite these criminals into our lives by giving them jurisdiction so they can destroy our lives and our liberties if we don't have to? Prudence demands that we provide as many protections and safeguards as we possibly can for our liberties by staying as far away from federal and any kind of government jurisdiction or influence as we can! Any other approach is pure stupidity and a big mistake! Crosse v. Bd. of Supervisors, 221 A.2d. 431 (1966) says about this subject:

“Both before and after the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal Constitution, it has not been necessary for a person to be a citizen of the United States in order to be a citizen of his state.” Citing U.S. v. Cruikshank, supra.
 [Crosse v. Bd. of Supervisors, 221 A.2d. 431 (1966)]

A “national”, a “state national”, a Natural Born Sovereign, and a “non-resident non-person” are therefore the best things we can be because this will give our liberties the most protections from the encroachments of greedy Congressmen, unscrupulous IRS agents, and corrupt federal judges, all of which are the “sinners” that Jesus came down to earth to call to repentance. This fits very nicely in with the scripture quoted in section 3.5.3 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008 under “Making Yourself Judgment Proof”, which states:

“A prudent man foresees evil and hides himself, but the simple pass on and are punished. By humility and fear of the Lord are riches and honor and life. Thorns and snares are in the way of the perverse; he who guards his soul will be far from them.”
 [Prov. 22:3]

If you would like to learn more about the Non-Resident Non-Person Position and if you would like a simple way to explain it to your friends and loved ones, there is a nice and simple pamphlet that addresses this important subject below at:

Legal Basis for the Term “Nonresident Alien”, Form #05.036

If you seek tools for applying the Non-Resident Non-Person Position to your employment, finance, or business tax withholding or reporting, see section 5.6.13.4 later.

5.6.13.2 When are those domiciled in states of the Union “nonresident aliens” under I.R.C., Subtitle A?

We explained earlier in section 4.11 that people born in states of the Union are “nationals” or “state nationals” under U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). For tax purposes, “nationals” are classified as “nonresident aliens” if they are lawfully occupying a public office. If they are not lawfully and consensually engaged in a public office, these people are non-resident non-persons. A “nonresident alien” is defined as follows:

26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) Nonresident alien

An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the [federal] United States nor a resident of the [federal] United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

Note that the above definition is not really a definition, because it describes what a “nonresident alien” IS NOT, not what it IS or what it expressly includes.

Those domiciled and born in states of the Union who are NOT serving in public offices are classified as statutory “non-resident non-persons” rather than “nonresident aliens”. Why do we say this? Because the ability to regulate PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights is repugnant to the Constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court. You must therefore be involved in a public franchise before they can lawfully regulate your otherwise PRIVATE conduct:

“The power to “legislate generally upon” life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the “power to provide modes of redress” against offensive state action, was “repugnant” to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress’ §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned.”
[City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

“When Sir Matthew Hale, and the sages of the law in his day, spoke of property as affected by a public interest, and ceasing from that cause to be juris privati solely, that is, ceasing to be held merely in private right, they referred to [1] property dedicated [DONATED] by the owner to public uses, or
[2] to property the use of which was granted by the government [e.g. Social Security Card], or
[3] in connection with which special privileges were conferred [licenses].

Unless the property was thus dedicated [by one of the above three mechanisms], or some right bestowed by the government was held with the property, either by specific grant or by prescription of so long a time as to imply a grant originally, the property was not affected by any public interest so as to be taken out of the category of property held in private right.”
[Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113, 139-140 (1876)]

“It is only where some right or privilege [which are GOVERNMENT PROPERTY] is conferred by the government or municipality upon the owner, which he can use in connection with his property, or by means of which the use of his property is rendered more valuable to him, or he thereby enjoys an advantage over others, that the compensation to be received by him becomes a legitimate matter of regulation. Submission to the regulation of compensation in such cases is an implied condition of the grant, and the State, in exercising its power of prescribing the compensation, only determines the conditions upon which its concession shall be enjoyed. When the privilege ends, the power of regulation ceases.”
[Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876)]

The term “United States” as used in the above definition of “nonresident alien” means the following:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a)(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(a)(10) State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

A "nonresident alien" is "nonresident" to the STATUTORY and geographical "United States**" as defined in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), which simply means that they do not live in the District of Columbia. We call this area the "federal United States" or the "federal zone" for short, in this book. Some payroll people and accountants will try to tell you that it is nonsense to expect that the words mean what they say in the Internal Revenue Code, but you can see that there is no way to interpret the definition of "United States" any way other than meaning the District of Columbia for the purposes of Subtitle A federal income taxes. The reason why this also must be the case is that the Constitution and federal law both confine all persons holding public office to reside in the District of Columbia:

U.S. Constitution, Article I, Section 8, Clause 17

To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of Particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the Same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards and other needful Buildings;--And

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > Sec. 72.
Sec. 72. - Public offices: at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law

As you will learn in detail from next section, a "non-resident non-person" who does not hold a public office in the United States government is not responsible for income tax withholding under Subtitle C of the Internal Revenue Code or for federal income taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. People not holding public office also cannot be levied upon under 26 U.S.C. §6331(a).

To verify the conclusions of this section, we investigated a prominent payroll compliance education book and found the following comments in the book about "nonresident alien" tax withholding:

"In general, if an employer pays wages to nonresident aliens, it must withhold income tax (unless excepted by regulations), Social Security, and Medicare taxes as it would for a U.S. citizen. A Form W-2 must be delivered to the nonresident alien and filed with the Social Security Administration. Nonresident aliens' wages are subject to FUTA tax as well."
[2002 Quick Reference Guide to Payroll Compliance, Payroll Technical Support Services, Panel Publishers, a Division of Aspen Publishers, Inc, p. IV-54. Available at: <http://panelpublishers.com/>]

The above is true, but very misleading. The above advice says "unless excepted by regulations", and doesn't mention what those regulations might be. The facts below clarify the comments above and the applicable regulations so that their meaning is crystal clear to the reader:

1. There are regulations that DO expressly exempt income of "nonresident aliens". All income not "effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States" and earned from labor outside the federal zone or federal United States is not included in the definition as "gross income" by regulation and exempt from withholding, but of course the above book conveniently didn't mention that:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(6)-1 Remuneration for services of nonresident alien individuals.

(a) In general. All remuneration paid after December 31, 1966, for services performed by a nonresident alien individual, if such remuneration otherwise constitutes wages within the meaning of §31.3401(a)-1 and if such remuneration is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is subject to withholding under section 3402 unless excepted from wages under this section. In regard to wages paid under this section after February 28, 1979, the term "nonresident alien individual" does not include a nonresident alien individual treated as a resident under section 6013 (g) or (h).

(b) Remuneration for services performed outside the [federal] United States. Remuneration paid to a nonresident alien individual (other than a resident of Puerto Rico) for services performed outside the [federal] United States is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

A portion of the regulation above is also confirmed by the statutory rules for computing taxable income found in 26 U.S.C. §861:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART I > Sec. 861.
Sec. 861. - Income from sources within the United States

(a) Gross income from sources within United States

The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources within the United States:

(3) Personal services

Compensation for labor or personal services performed in the United States; except that compensation for labor or services performed in the United States shall not be deemed to be income from sources within the United States if-

(A) the labor or services are performed by a nonresident alien individual temporarily present in the United States for a period or periods not exceeding a total of 90 days during the taxable year,

(B) such compensation does not exceed $3,000 in the aggregate, and

(C) the compensation is for labor or services performed as an employee of or under a contract with -

(i) a nonresident alien, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States, or

2. That word “trade or business” above is defined in the Internal Revenue Code as the “functions of a public office”. This public office is usually an elected or appointed office in the United States government but can also be a federal instrumentality. These observations confirm once again that the only proper subject of the income tax are government contractors, agencies, and public officers.

26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701(a)(26) : Definitions

“The term ‘trade or business’ includes the performance of the functions of a public office.”

Public Office:

“Essential characteristics of a ‘public office’ are:

- (1) Authority conferred by law,
- (2) Fixed tenure of office, and
- (3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.
- (4) Key element of such test is that “officer is carrying out a sovereign function”.
- (5) Essential elements to establish public position as ‘public office’ are:
  - (a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.
  - (b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,
  - (c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.
  - (d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
  - (e) Position must have some permanency.”

[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

3. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-1 mentioned above also says that a person can only earn “wages” if they are an “employee”, which is an “elected or appointed officer of the United States government” under 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1.

26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(c\)-1

1 "...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a
2 [[federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof, or the District of Columbia, or 3 any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee' also includes an 4 officer of a corporation."

6 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-1 Wages.

7 (a) In general. (1) The term "wages" means all remuneration for services performed by an employee for his 8 employer unless specifically excepted under section 3401(a) or excepted under section 3402(e).

- 9 4. Absent a person literally being a public officer or instrumentality of the United States government, then the only other 10 way they can earn "wages" is to have a voluntary withholding agreement in place called a W-4. If they never 11 volunteered, then they don't earn "wages".

12 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements.

13 (a) In general.

14 Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations
15 thereunder, the term "wages" includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect
16 to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this
17 chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section
18 (§31.3401(a)-3).

- 19 5. If the private employer coerces the employee to sign a W-4, that doesn't count as "volunteering", because in that 20 instance, they had a choice of either starving to death or committing perjury under penalty of perjury on an IRS Form
21 W-4. They would be committing perjury because they would be submitting a W-4 that misrepresented their status as a
22 federal "employee" and also misrepresented the fact that they "volunteered", when in fact they were simply coerced
23 under threat of being fired or not being hired by their employer. Here is what Alexander Hamilton said on this subject:

24 "In the general course of human nature, A POWER OVER A MAN'S SUBSISTENCE AMOUNTS TO A POWER
25 OVER HIS WILL."
26 [Alexander Hamilton, Federalist Paper No. 79]

27 The tendency of employers to coerce their employees essentially into becoming liars just so they can feed their face
28 may explain the following comment by Will Rogers:

29 "Income tax has made more liars out of the American people than golf."
30 [Will Rogers]

- 31 6. The regulations for computing income from "sources within the United States" under 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) also 32 confirm that the only taxable source of income for "nonresident aliens" is income "effectively connected with a trade or 33 business in the United States", which is identified below:

34 Title 26: Internal Revenue
35 PART 1—INCOME TAXES
36 Determination of Sources of Income
37 § 1.861-8 Computation of taxable income from sources within the United States and from other sources and 38 activities.

39 (f)(1)(iv) Effectively connected taxable income.

40 Nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations engaged in trade or business within the United
41 States, under sections 871(b)(1) and 882(a)(1), on taxable income which is effectively connected with the 42 conduct of a trade or business within the United States. Such taxable income is determined in most instances by 43 initially determining, under section 864(c), the amount of gross income which is effectively connected with the 44 conduct of a trade or business within the United States. Pursuant to sections 873 and 882(c), this section is 45 applicable for purposes of determining the deductions from such gross income (other than the deduction for 46 interest expense allowed to foreign corporations (see §1.882-5)) which are to be taken into account in 47 determining taxable income. See example 21 of paragraph (g) of this section.

48 Examining the above 2002 Quick Reference to Payroll Compliance book once again, we find the following comments:

1 "In some cases, an Internal Revenue Code (IRC) section or a U.S. tax treaty provision will exclude payments to
2 a nonresident alien from wages. Such payments are not subject to the regular income tax withholding, so a
3 Form W-2 is not required. Instead, the payments are subject to withholding at a flat 30 percent or lower treaty
4 rate, unless exempt from tax because of a Code or treaty provision."

5 [2002 Quick Reference Guide to Payroll Compliance, Payroll Technical Support Services, Panel Publishers, a
6 Division of Aspen Publishers, Inc, p. IV-54. Available at: <http://panelpublishers.com/>]

7 The above comment is based on the content of 26 U.S.C. §871(a), which "appears" to impose a 30% flat rate on the 8 "taxable income" of nonresident aliens not "effectively connected with a trade or business" in the United States, which we
9 said means that the person holds a public office in the United States government. As we said above, however, the 10 underlying regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) used for computing taxable income does not include anything but
11 income "effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States", so in effect, such income is excluded by law
12 from being included in taxable income from sources within the federal United States. The provisions of 26 U.S.C. §871(a)
13 are in effect nullified and rendered inoperative by the implementing regulations found at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv).
14 Sources other than income "effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States" are therefore excluded by 15 law, because they are not explicitly included in any implementing regulation. This is a requirement of statutory 16 construction within the legal field, which says:

17 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
18 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
19 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons
20 or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
21 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
22 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
23 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

24 Furthermore, without a regulation to implement the provisions of 26 U.S.C. §871(a) that has been published in the federal 25 register, then there is no basis to conclude that income not derived from sources "effectively connected with a trade or
26 business in the United States" is taxable income for persons who are not federal "employees". In fact, 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)
27 confirms that anything that is not published in the Federal Register may not apply to anything but federal employees!
28 Below are just a few examples of why no statute within the Internal Revenue Code is enforceable unless it also has 29 implementing regulations. These provisions also explain why the above rather nebulous quote from the 2002 Quick
30 Reference Guide to Payroll Compliance manual said "unless excepted by regulations".

31 Here the statute is not complete by itself, since it merely declares the range of its operation and leaves to its 32 progeny the means to be utilized in the effectuation of its command. But it is the statute which creates the 33 offense of the willful removal of the labels of origin and provides the punishment for violations. The regulations,
34 on the other hand, prescribe the identifying language of the label itself, and assign the resulting tags to their
35 respective geographical areas. Once promulgated, [361 U.S. 431, 438] these regulations, called for by the 36 statute itself, have the force of law, and violations thereof incur criminal prosecutions, just as if all the details
37 had been incorporated into the congressional language. The result is that neither the statute nor the 38 regulations are complete without the other, and only together do they have any force. In effect, therefore,
39 the construction of one necessarily involves the construction of the other.
40 [U.S. v. Mersky, 361 U.S. 431 (1960)]

41 "...the Act's civil and criminal penalties attach only upon violation of the regulation promulgated by the 42 Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone...The 43 Government urges that since only those who violate these regulations [not the Code] may incur civil or 44 criminal penalties, it is the actual regulations issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, and not the broad
45 authorizing language of the statute, which are to be tested against the standards of the Fourth Amendment; and 46 that when so tested they are valid."
47 [Calif. Bankers Assoc. v. Shultz, 416 U.S. 21, 44, 39 L.Ed.2d. 812, 94 S.Ct. 1494]

48 "Failure to adhere to agency regulations [by the IRS or other agency] may amount to denial of due process if 49 regulations are required by constitution or statute..."
50 [Curley v. United States, 791 F.Supp. 52]

51 "Although the relevant statute authorized the Secretary to impose such a duty, his implementing regulations did 52 not do so. Therefore we held that there was no duty to disclose..."
53 [United States v. Murphy, 809 F.2d. 142, 1431]

54 Therefore, those non-resident non-persons who do not hold public office in the United States government do not earn
55 taxable income, need not withhold, and need not file any federal tax return. Some people hear the word "nonresident alien"

1 and assume that it means only “foreigners”. But we must ask the question how a foreigner from another country can serve
 2 in a public office of the United States government when the Constitution requires that the President can only be a “Natural
 3 Born Citizen” and senators and representatives must be “Citizens of the United States”?

4 U.S. Constitution, Article II, Section 1, Clause 5

5 No Person except a natural born Citizen, or a Citizen of the United States, at the time of the Adoption of this
 6 Constitution, shall be eligible to the Office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that Office who
 7 shall not have attained to the Age of thirty five Years, and been fourteen Years a Resident within the United
 8 States.

10 U.S. Constitution, Article I, Section 3, Clause 3

11 No Person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty Years, and been nine Years a 12 Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State for which he shall 13 be chosen.

15 U.S. Constitution, Article I, Section 2, Clause 2

16 No Person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty five Years, and been
 17 seven Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State in 18 which he shall be chosen.

19 The “Natural Born Citizens” and “Citizens of the United States” they are talking about above who are holding “public
 20 office” are people born in states of the Union! These people are “nonresident aliens” in Subtitle A of the tax code because 21 it only has affect against federal payments and persons domiciled in the federal zone, which is limited to the District of 22 Columbia, the territories and possessions of the United States, and the federal areas or enclaves within states of the Union.
 23 The office they occupy is domiciled in the District of Columbia and therefore taxable, even if the OFFICE HOLDER is not.
 24 These, in fact, are the only natural people that the income tax really applies to, based on 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv)!

25 Based on the foregoing discussion, the income taxes collected under the authority of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A are 26 simply a federal employee kickback program disguised to “look” like a tax. But in fact, the legislative intent of the 27 Sixteenth Amendment revealed by President Taft’s speech before Congress clearly shows the purpose of Internal Revenue
 28 Code, Subtitle A as simply a tax on federal government “employees” and nothing more. This federal employee kickback
 29 program disguised as a legitimate “income tax” on everyone was begin in 1862 during the exigencies of the Civil War and 30 has continued with us since that day:

 38 *the National Government of a power which, by reason of previous decisions of the court, it was generally
 39 supposed that government had. It is undoubtedly a power the National Government ought to have. It might be 40 indispensable to the Nation’s life in great crises. Although I have not considered a constitutional amendment as 41 necessary to the exercise of certain phases of this power, a mature consideration has satisfied me that an 42 amendment is the only proper course for its establishment to its full extent.

43 *I therefore recommend to the Congress that both Houses, by a two-thirds vote, shall propose an amendment to

5 The Pharisees who wrote the rather deceptive 2002 Quick Reference Guide to Payroll Compliance manual above weren't 6 telling a lie, but they also certainly left the most important points about tax liability of nonresident aliens undisclosed, and
7 did not explain that people born in states of the Union are non-resident non-persons or that they become "nonresident
8 aliens" only by occupying a public office. This results in a constructive fraud and leaves the average reader, who is a "non-
9 resident non-person" and who was born in a state of the Union, with the incorrect presumption that he has a legal obligation
10 to "volunteer" to participate in a corrupt and usurious federal "employee" kickback program. I would also be willing to bet
11 that if you called up the author of the above article and asked him why he didn't mention all the other details in this section,
12 he would tell you that if he told the truth, he would have his license to practice law or his CPA certification pulled by the 13 IRS or by a federal judge whose retirement benefits depend on maintaining the fraudulent and oppressive tax system we 14 live under.

15 5.6.13.3 Tax Liability and Responsibilities of Nonresident Aliens

16 We assembled the table below to succinctly summarize the tax situation of nonresident aliens to help you better understand 17 the benefits of becoming a nonresident alien. It is important to point out that:

- 18 1. The duty to file returns is found in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b) and is imposed on "nonresident alien individuals" but NOT 19 upon "non-resident non-persons". Therefore, those who are state nationals but not aliens pursuant to 8 U.S.C.
20 §1101(a)(21), which includes Americans born within states of the Union and domiciled there, do not have a 21 requirement to file a return.
- 22 2. ALL of these duties pertain ONLY to those who are "nonresident alien individuals".
- 23 3. The term "nonresident alien" is used instead of "nonresident alien individual" when they are trying to exclude or 24 exempt something.
- 25 4. Those places where "nonresident alien individuals" exclude "nonresident aliens" who are not "individuals", meaning 26 aliens as defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3):

27 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
28 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
29 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
30 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be

32 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."

Later versions of IRC section 6012 deliberately add more indirection and confusion to the explanation of the requirement to file by saying that those having "gross income" not exceeding the exemption amount plus the standard deduction don't need to file. Congress used the term "gross income" instead of "taxable income" to make the situation even more difficult for the average person to figure out. Earlier versions of the code were much clearer and much more honest.

3	Only “nonresident alien individuals” have to file returns. Those who are “nonresident aliens” but not individuals, such as those born within and domiciled within a state of the Union, do not have to file returns.	26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b)	(b) Return of nonresident alien individual — (1) Requirement of return— (i) In general. Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, every nonresident alien individual (other than one treated as a resident under section 6013 (g) or (h)) who is engaged in trade or business in the United States at any time during the taxable year or who has income which is subject to taxation under subtitle A of the Code shall make a return on Form 1040NR . For this purpose it is immaterial that the gross income for the taxable year is less than the minimum amount specified in section 6012(a) for making a return. Thus, a nonresident alien individual who is engaged in a trade or business in the United States at any time during the taxable year is required to file a return on Form 1040 NR even though (a) he has no income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States, (b) he has no income from sources within the United States, or (c) his income is exempt from income tax by reason of an income tax convention or any section of the Code. However, if the nonresident alien individual has no gross income for the taxable year, he is not required to complete the return schedules but must attach a statement to the return indicating the nature of any exclusions claimed and the amount of such exclusions to the extent such amounts are readily determinable.	“Nonresident aliens” who are not “individuals” (aliens) are do not have a requirement, based on the regulation to the left. Expressio unius est exclusio alterius.

The W-8 or W-8BEN form should also be used to open a bank account. Since nonresident aliens don't have to file returns or pay taxes, then admitting to being a "beneficial owner" admits to being a citizen who is a taxpayer who has to file and pay tax, which most nonresident aliens are not . Instead, you should create your own substitute W-8BEN that redefines "beneficial owner" or use the older W-8 form as we describe in section 6.4.9. 5.6.13.4 How “Non-resident Non-Person Nontaxpayers” are deceived or compelled into becoming “Taxpayers”*5.6.13.4.1 Introduction

In order to reach nonresident parties or enforce civil law against them, any government must satisfy the criteria documented in the following:

1. Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605, in the case of the federal government.
2. The Longarm Statutes of a specific state, in the case of state governments. These statutes may be found in:

SEDM Jurisdictions Database Online, Litigation Tool #09.004
<http://sedm.org/GIS/JurisdictionDB.aspx>

3. The Minimum Contacts Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court. See International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945).
4. Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003, Section 14.3
 FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
 DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Consent.pdf>

The only way the above criteria can be satisfied is by one of the following means:

1. Describing themselves as a statutory “individual”, “person”, “resident”, or “taxpayer” on a government form. Such forms are usually required by the business associates of people doing business with the nonresident, such as tax withholding documents.
2. Having a usually false information return filed against them connecting them to “trade or business” franchise earnings.

The following subsections will show how the above two criteria are satisfied in order that the federal or state governments can reach nonresident parties such as “non-resident non-persons” or “nonresident aliens. Most of the methods documents involve some kind of fraud or crime, and you must understand these mechanisms before you can successfully prevent and prosecute them as injuries in a court of law.

5.6.13.4.2 Kidnapping and transporting your identity to a foreign jurisdiction by abusing “words of art”, the rules of statutory construction, and unconstitutional presumptions

“Old age and treachery will always overcome youth and skill.”
 [Federal judge]

Other famous and very frequent tactics of corrupt judges and administrative personnel is to:

1. Abuse the word “includes” as a way to essentially to turn a specific statutory “definitions” into NON-definition that can mean anything they want it to mean. For instance, they will say that “includes” is not used as a term of LIMITATION and that they can “include” anything they want in the definition, such as the definition of “includes” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(c).

26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701\(c\) INCLUDES AND INCLUDING.

The terms ‘include’ and ‘including’ when used in a definition contained in this title shall not be deemed to exclude other things otherwise within the meaning of the term defined.”

The purpose for providing a statutory definition is to SUPERSEDE the common or ordinary meaning of a word, not ENLARGE it. The only other use for the word “includes” is in an additive sense, but this application is a method of ADDING to EXISTING statutory definitions, not adding the ORDINARY meaning to the STATUTORY meaning. This constructive fraud is the most common method of unlawfully enlarging federal jurisdiction and is exhaustively rebutted in:

Meaning of the Words “includes” and “including”, Form #05.014
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Abuse the rules of statutory construction to add things or classes of things that do not expressly appear in statutory

1 definitions of especially geographical “words of art”, such as “State” and “United States”. This violates the following
2 rules of statutory construction:

3 “When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that
4 term’s ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) (“It is axiomatic that the statutory
5 definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term”); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n.
6 10 (“As a rule, ‘a definition which declares what a term ‘means’ . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated”);
7 Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S.
8 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction §
9 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read “as a whole,” post at
10 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include
11 the Attorney General’s restriction -- “the child up to the head.” Its words, “substantial portion,” indicate the 12 contrary.”
13 [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

14 “Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
15 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
16 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
17 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
18 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
19 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”
20 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

- 21 3. Make conclusive presumptions about your status that are not substantiated with evidence and which cannot be used as 22 a substitute for evidence without violating due process of law and rendering the final judgment void:

23 This court has never treated a presumption as any form of evidence. See, e.g., A.C. Aukerman Co. v. R.L.
24 Chaides Constr. Co., 960 F.2d. 1020, 1037 (Fed.Cir.1992) (“[A] presumption is not evidence.”); see also Del
25 Vecchio v. Bowers, 296 U.S. 280, 286, 56 S.Ct. 190, 193, 80 L.Ed. 229 (1935) (“[A presumption] cannot 26 acquire the attribute of evidence in the claimant’s favor.”); New York Life Ins. Co. v. Gamer, 303 U.S. 161, 171, 27 58 S.Ct. 500, 503, 82 L.Ed. 726 (1938) (“[A] presumption is not evidence and may not be given weight as 28 evidence.”). Although a decision of this court, Jensen v. Brown, 19 F.3d. 1413, 1415 (Fed.Cir.1994), dealing 29 with presumptions in VA law is cited for the contrary proposition, the Jensen court did not so decide.
30 [Routen v. West, 142 F.3d. 1434 C.A.Fed.,1998]

31 (1) [8:4993] Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests: A conclusive presumption may be defeated
32 where its application would impair a party’s constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such 33 cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party’s due process and equal protection rights.
34 Vlandis v. Kline (1973) [412 U.S. 441, 449, 93 S.Ct. 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. LaFleur (1974) 414

36 process]
37 [Federal Civil Trials and Evidence, Rutter Group, paragraph 8:4993, p. 8K-34]

38 Examples of unconstitutional presumptions that violate due process of law and render a void judgment include:

- 39 3.1. Presume that CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY contexts of geographical terms are equivalent. They are 40 not and in fact are MUTUALLY exclusive. See section 5.1.4.2 earlier.
41 3.2. Presume that the STATUTORY definition and the COMMON definition are equivalent. For instance, an
42 “employee” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) and 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) is a public officer in the U.S. government
43 and is NOT equivalent to a PRIVATE employee because the ability to regulate PRIVATE conduct is repugnant to 44 the Constitution. Governments are instituted to PROTECT private rights and you protect them by not burdening
45 or regulating or punishing their exercise.

46 “The power to “legislate generally upon” life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the “power to provide modes
47 of redress” against offensive state action, was “repugnant” to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States
48 v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190
49 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or 50 modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest,
51 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress’ §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not 52 been questioned.”
53 [City of Boerne v. Florez, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

54 Of course all of the above methods are abused to unlawfully extend federal jurisdiction into legislatively foreign
55 jurisdictions such as states of the Union, and to unconstitutionally break down the separation of powers between the states
56 and the national government that is the foundation of the constitution. This constitutes a conspiracy against rights protected
57 by the Constitution and is exhaustively described in:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.6.13.4.3 Deliberately Confusing “Nonresident Aliens” with “Aliens”

A popular technique promoted and encouraged by the IRS is to:

1. Deliberately confuse “nonresident aliens” with “aliens”. “nonresident aliens” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) are NOT a subset of “aliens” defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
2. Deliberately confuse CONSTITUTIONAL “non-resident aliens” with STATUTORY “nonresident aliens” under the I.R.C. They are NOT the same. One can be a CONSTITUTIONAL “non-resident alien” as the U.S. Supreme Court calls it while NOT being an “nonresident alien” under the I.R.C. because the two contexts rely on DIFFERENT definitions and contexts for the terms.
3. Falsely tell you or imply that “nonresident aliens” include only those aliens that are not resident within the jurisdiction of the United States.
4. Deceive you into believing that “nonresident aliens” and “nonresident alien individuals” are equivalent. They are not. It is a maxim of law that things that are similar are NOT the same:

What is like is not the same, for nothing similar is the same. 4 Co. 18.

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouvierMaxims.htm>]

5. Refuse to define what a “nonresident alien” is and what is included in the definition within 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
6. Define what it ISN'T, and absolutely refuse to define what it IS.
7. Refuse to acknowledge that “nationals” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22) are “nonresident aliens” if they are engaged in a public office in the national government and “non-resident non-persons” if not engaged in a public office.

All of the confusion and deception surrounding “nonresident alien” status is introduced and perpetuated mainly in the IRS Publications and the Treasury Regulations. It is not found in the Internal Revenue Code. “Nonresident aliens” and “aliens” are not equivalent in law, and confusing them has the following direct injurious consequences against those who are state nationals:

1. Prejudicing their ability to claim “nonresident alien” status at financial institutions and employers. This occurs because without either a Treasury Regulation or IRS publication they can point to which proves that they are a “nonresident alien”, they will not have anything they can show these institutions in order that their status will be recognized when they open accounts or pursue employment. This compels them in violation of the law because of the ignorance of bank clerks and employers into declaring that they are “U.S. persons” and enumerating themselves just in order to obtain the services or employment that they seek.
2. Unlawfully preventing state nationals from being able to change their domicile if they mistakenly claim to be “residents” of the United States. 26 C.F.R. §1.871-5 says that an intention of an “alien” to change his domicile/residence is insufficient to change it whereas a similar intention on the part of a state national is sufficient.

The above injuries to the rights of state nationals is very important, because we prove in the following document and elsewhere on our website that all humans born within and domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state of the Union are state nationals pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), and so this injury is widespread and vast in its consequences:

Why You are a “national”, “state national”, and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Let's show some of the IRS deception to disguise the availability of “nonresident alien” status to state nationals so that they don't use it. Below is the definition of “nonresident alien”:

8 (c) Definitions

9 (3) Individual.

10 (i) Alien individual.

11 The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec.

13 _____
 14 TITLE 8 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER I > § 1101
 15 § 1101. Definitions

16 (a) As used in this chapter—

17 (3) The term “alien” means any person not a citizen or national of the United States.

18 Notice based on the above definitions that:

- 19 1. They define what “alien” and “nonresident alien” are NOT, but not what they ARE.
 20 2. The definition of “nonresident alien” is NOT a equivalent to “alien”. The two overlap, but neither is a subset of the 21 other. Otherwise, why have two definitions?
 22 3. There are three classes of entities that are “nonresident aliens”, which include:
 23 3.1. “Aliens” with no domicile or residence within the STATUTORY “United States**”, meaning federal territory.
 24 3.2. State nationals born within and domiciled within Constitutional states of the Union and defined in 8 U.S.C.
 25 §1101(a)(21).
 26 3.3. “non-citizen nationals of the United States**” born in possessions and defined in 8 U.S.C. §1408. These areas
 27 include American Samoa and Swains Island.

28 NOTE that Items 3.2 and 3.3 above are not “ALIENS” OF any kind. Under Title 8, you cannot simultaneously be an 29 “alien” in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) and a “national of the United States**” in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22). Item 3.3 above is 30 corroborated by:

- 31 1. The content of IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens, which obtusely mentions what it calls “U.S.
 32 nationals”, which it then defines as persons domiciled in American Samoa and Swains Island who do not elect to 33 become statutory “U.S. citizens”.

34 “A U.S. national is an alien who, although not a U.S. citizen, owes his or her allegiance to the United States.
 35 U.S. nationals include American Samoans, and Northern Mariana Islanders who choose to become U.S.
 36 nationals instead of U.S. citizens”
 37 [IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens (2007), p. 43]

38 The above statement is partially false. A statutory “U.S. national” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22) is NOT an 39 “alien”, because aliens exclude “nationals of the United States**” based on the definition of “alien” found in 26 C.F.R.
 40 §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3). The “U.S. national” to which they refer also very deliberately is neither
 41 mentioned nor defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code or the Treasury Regulations as being “nonresident aliens”, even though they in fact are and IRS Publication 519 admits that they are. The only statutory definition of “U.S. national” is found in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) and 8 U.S.C. §1408. However, the existence of this person is also found on IRS Form 1040NR itself, which mentions it as a status as being a “nonresident alien”. By the way, don’t let the government fool you by using the above as evidence in a legal proceeding because it ISN’T competent evidence and cannot form the basis for a reasonable belief or willfulness. The IRS itself says you cannot and should not rely on anything in any of their publications. The IRS, in fact, routinely deceives and lies in their publications and their forms and does so with the blessings and even protection of the federal district courts, even though they hypocritically sue the rest of us for “abusive tax shelters” if we offer the public equally misleading information. For details on this subject, see:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007

2. 26 U.S.C. §877(a), which describes a “nonresident alien” who lost citizenship to avoid taxes and therefore is subject to a special assessment as a punishment for that act of political dis-association. Notice the statute doesn’t say a “citizen of the United States” losing citizenship, but a “nonresident alien”. The “citizenship” they are referring to is the “nationality” described in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and NOT the statutory “U.S. citizen” status found in 8 U.S.C. §1401.

§ 877. Expatriation to avoid tax

(a) Treatment of expatriates

(1) In general

Every nonresident alien individual to whom this section applies and who, within the 10-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year, lost United States citizenship shall be taxable for such taxable year in the manner provided in subsection (b) if the tax imposed pursuant to such subsection (after any reduction in such tax under the last sentence of such subsection) exceeds the tax which, without regard to this section, is imposed pursuant to section 871.

So let’s get this straight: 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) both say that you cannot be an “alien” if you are a “national” and yet, the IRS Publications such as IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens and the Treasury Regulations frequently identify these same “nationals” as “aliens”. Earth calling IRS. Hello? Anybody home? The IRS knows that the key to being sovereign as an American National born in a state of the Union and domiciled there is being a “non-resident non-person” not engaged in the “trade or business”/public office franchise. So what do they do to prevent people from achieving this status? They surround the status with cognitive dissonance, lies, falsehoods, and misdirections. Hence one of our favorite sayings:

“The truth about the income tax is so precious to the government that it must be surrounded by a bodyguard of lies.”

[SEDM]

Nowhere within the Internal Revenue Code, the Treasury Regulations, or IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens will you find a definition of the term “national” which is mentioned in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), and which describes a person born within and domiciled within a state of the Union. However, these people are treated the same as “U.S. nationals”, which means they are “nonresident aliens” and not “aliens” if they are engaged in a public office. Consequently, unlike aliens, those who are “nationals”:

1. Are not bound by any of the regulations pertaining to “aliens”, because they are NOT “aliens” as legally defined..
2. Do not have to file IRS Form 8840 in order to associate with the “foreign state” they are domiciled within in order to be automatically exempt from Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A taxes.
3. Are forbidden to file a “Declaration of Intention” to become “U.S. residents” pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4 and IRS Form 1078.

If you are still confused at this point about state nationals and who they are, you may want to go back to section 5.6.13.1 earlier and examine the tables and diagrams there until the relationships become clear in your mind.

Moving on, why does the IRS play this devious sleight of hand? Remember: everything happens for a reason, and here are the reasons:

1. IRS has a vested interest to maximize the number of “taxpayers” contributing to their scam. Taxation is based on legal domicile.

“Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.”
 Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

Therefore, IRS has an interest in compelling persons domiciled in states of the Union into falsely declaring their domicile within the statutory “United States**”. The status that implies domicile is “U.S. persons” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). “U.S. persons” include either statutory “nationals and citizens of the United States**” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 or “resident aliens” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) and both have in common a legal domicile in the “United States”.

2. IRS does not want people born within and domiciled within states of the Union, who are “nationals” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) to know that “nationals” are included in the definition of “nonresident alien”. This would cause a mass exodus from the tax system and severely limit the number of “taxpayers” that they may collect from.
3. IRS wants to prevent state nationals from using the nonresident alien status so as to force them, via presumption, into falsely declaring their status to be that of a “U.S. person” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). This will create a false presumption that they maintain a domicile on federal territory and are therefore subject to federal jurisdiction and “taxpayers”.
4. By refusing to define EXACTLY what is included in the definition of “nonresident alien” in both Treasury Regulations and IRS Publications or acknowledging that “nationals” are included in the definition, those opening bank accounts at financial institutions and starting employment will be deprived of evidence which they can affirmatively use to establish their status with these entities, which in effect compels presumption by financial institutions and employers within states of the Union that they are “U.S. persons” who MUST have an identifying number, such as a Social Security Number or a Taxpayer Identification Number. This forces them to participate in a tax system that they can't lawfully participate in without unknowingly making false statements about their legal status by mis-declaring themselves to be statutory “U.S. persons”.

Below are several examples of this deliberate, malicious IRS confusion between “aliens” and “nonresident aliens” found within the IRS Publications and Treasury Regulations, where “nonresident aliens” are referred to as “aliens” that we have found so far. All of these examples are the result of a false presumption that “nonresident aliens” are a subset of all “aliens”, which is NOT the case. We were able to find no such confusion within the I.R.C., but it is rampant within the Treasury Regulations.

1. IRS Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities. This confusion is found throughout this IRS publication.
2. IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens. This publication should not even be discussion “nonresident aliens”, because they aren't a subset of “aliens” unless the word “nonresident alien” is followed with the word “individual”.

 PART 1_INCOME TAXES--Table of Contents
 Sec. 1.864-7 Definition of office or other fixed place of business.

(b) Fixed facilities--

(2) Use of another person's office or other fixed place of business. A nonresident alien individual or a foreign corporation shall not be considered to have an office or other fixed place of business merely because such alien individual or foreign corporation uses another person's office or other fixed place of business, whether or not the office or place of business of a related person, through which to transact a trade or business, if the

1 trade or business activities of the alien individual or foreign corporation in that office or other fixed place of
 2 business are relatively sporadic or infrequent, taking into account the overall needs and conduct of that trade
 3 or business.

 12 Sec. 1.864-7 Definition of office or other fixed place of business.

13 (d) Agent activity.

14 (1) Dependent agents.

15 (i) In general.

16 In determining whether a nonresident alien individual or a foreign corporation has an office or other fixed
 17 place of business, the office or other fixed place of business of an agent who is not an independent agent, as 18 defined in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph, shall be disregarded unless such agent
 19

20 (a) has the authority to negotiate and conclude contracts in the name of the nonresident alien individual or 21 foreign corporation, and regularly exercises that authority, or

22 (b) has a stock of merchandise belonging to the nonresident alien individual or foreign corporation from which 23 orders are regularly filed on behalf of such alien individual or foreign corporation.

24 A person who purchases goods from a nonresident alien individual or a foreign corporation shall not be
 25 considered to be an agent for such alien individual or foreign corporation for purposes of this paragraph 26 where such person is carrying on such purchasing activities in the ordinary course of its own business, even 27 though such person is related in some manner to the nonresident alien individual or foreign corporation. For 28 example, a wholly owned domestic subsidiary corporation of a foreign corporation shall not be treated as an 29 agent of the foreign parent corporation merely because the subsidiary corporation purchases goods from the 30 foreign parent corporation and resells them in its own name. However, if the domestic subsidiary corporation
 31 regularly negotiates and concludes contracts in the name of its foreign parent corporation or maintains a stock
 32 of merchandise from which it regularly fills orders on behalf of the foreign parent corporation, the office or 33 other fixed place of business of the domestic subsidiary corporation shall be treated as the office or other fixed 34 place of business of the foreign parent corporation unless the domestic subsidiary corporation is an 35 independent agent within the meaning of subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

 45 PART 1 _INCOME TAXES--Table of Contents
 46 Sec. 1.872-2 Exclusions from gross income of nonresident alien
 47 individuals.

48 (b) Compensation paid by foreign employer to participants in certain exchange or training programs.

49 (1) Exclusion from income.

50 Compensation paid to a nonresident alien individual for the period that the nonresident alien individual is 51 temporarily present in the United States as a nonimmigrant under subparagraph (F) (relating to the admission
 52 of students into the United States) or subparagraph (J) (relating to the admission of teachers, trainees, specialists, etc., into the United States) of section 101(a)(15) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15) (F) or (J)) shall be excluded from gross income if the compensation is paid to such alien by his foreign employer. Compensation paid to a nonresident alien individual by the U.S. office of a domestic bank which is acting as paymaster on behalf of a foreign employer constitutes compensation paid by a foreign employer for purposes of this paragraph if the domestic bank is reimbursed by the foreign employer for such payment. A nonresident alien individual who is temporarily present in the United States as a nonimmigrant under such subparagraph (J) includes a nonresident alien individual admitted to the United States as an "exchange visitor" under section 201 of the U.S. Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948 (22 U.S.C. 1446), which section was repealed by section 111 of the Mutual Education and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 538).
 53

6. 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-3(b)(2)(i).
7. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(6)-1A(c).
8. 26 C.F.R. §509.103(b)(3).
9. 26 C.F.R. §509.108(a)(1)

"Nonresident aliens" are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B). Aliens are defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3). "Resident aliens" are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B). The relationship between these three entities are as follows, in the context of income taxes:

1. "non-resident non-person": Those with no domicile on federal territory and who are born either in a foreign country, a state of the Union, or within the federal zone. Also called a "nonresident", "stateless person", or "transient foreigner". They are exclusively PRIVATE and beyond the reach of the civil statutory law because:
  - 1.1. They are not a "person" or "individual" because not engaged in an elected or appointed office.
  - 1.2. They have not waived sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97.
  - 1.3. They have not "purposefully" or "consensually" availed themselves of commerce within the exclusive or general jurisdiction of the national government within federal territory.
  - 1.4. They waived the "benefit" of any and all licenses or permits in the context of a specific transaction or agreement.
  - 1.5. In the context of a specific business dealing, they have not invoked any statutory status under federal civil law that might connect them with a government franchise, such as "U.S. citizen", "U.S. resident", "person", "individual", "taxpayer", etc.
  - 1.6. If they are demanded to produce an identifying number, they say they don't consent and attach the following form to every application or withholding document:

Why It is Illegal for Me to Request or Use a "Taxpayer Identification Number", Form #04.205
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. "Aliens" or "alien individuals": Those born in a foreign country and not within any state of the Union or within any federal territory.
  - 2.1. "Alien" is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) as a person who is neither a citizen nor a national.
  - 2.2. "Alien individual" is defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i).
  - 2.3. An alien is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) as a person who is neither a statutory "U.S.** citizen" per 8 U.S.C. §1401 nor a "national of the United States**" per 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22).
  - 2.4. An alien with no domicile in the "United States**" is presumed to be a "nonresident alien" pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4(b).
3. "Residents" or "resident aliens": An "alien" or "alien individual" with a legal domicile on federal territory.
  - 3.1. "Resident aliens" are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
  - 3.2. A "resident alien" is an alien as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) who has a legal domicile on federal territory that is no part of the exclusive jurisdiction of any state of the Union.
  - 3.3. An "alien" becomes a "resident alien" by filing IRS Form 1078 pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4(c)(ii) and thereby electing to have a domicile on federal territory.
4. "Nonresident aliens": Those with no domicile on federal territory and who are born either in a foreign country, a state of the Union, or within the federal zone. They serve in a public office in the national but not state government.
  - 4.1. Defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
  - 4.2. A "nonresident alien" is defined as a person who is neither a statutory "citizen" pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) nor a statutory "resident" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
  - 4.3. A person who is a "non-citizen national" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1452 and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) is a "nonresident alien", but only if they are lawfully engaged in a public office of the national government.
5. "Nonresident alien individuals": Those who are aliens and who do not have a domicile on federal territory.
  - 5.1. Defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(ii).
  - 5.2. Status is indicated in block 3 of the IRS Form W-8BEN under the term "Individual".

5.3. Includes only nonresidents not domiciled on federal territory but serving in public offices of the national government. "person" and "individual" are synonymous with said office in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343.

6. Convertibility between "aliens", "resident aliens", and "nonresident aliens", and "nonresident alien individuals":

6.1. A "nonresident alien" is not the legal equivalent of an "alien" in law nor is it a subset of "alien".

6.2. IRS Form W-8BEN, Block 3 has no block to check for those who are "non-resident non-persons" but not "nonresident aliens" or "nonresident alien individuals". Thus, the submitter of this form who is a statutory "non-resident non-person" but not a "nonresident alien" or "nonresident alien individual" is effectively compelled to make an illegal and fraudulent election to become an alien and an "individual" if they do not add a block for "transient foreigner" or "Union State Citizen" to the form. See section 5.3 of the following:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6.3. 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) and 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B) authorize a "nonresident alien" who is married to a statutory "U.S. citizen" as defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) to make an "election" to become a "resident alien".

6.4. It is unlawful for an unmarried "state national" pursuant to either 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) or 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) to become a "resident alien". This can only happen by either fraud or mistake.

6.5. An alien may overcome the presumption that he is a "nonresident alien" and change his status to that of a "resident alien" by filing IRS Form 1078 pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4(c)(ii) while he is in the "United States".

6.6. The term "residence" can only lawfully be used to describe the domicile of an "alien". Nowhere is this term used to describe the domicile of a "state national" or a "nonresident alien". See 26 C.F.R. §1.871-2.

6.7. The only way a statutory "alien" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) can become both a "state national" and a "nonresident alien" at the same time is to be naturalized pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1421 and to have a domicile in either a U.S. possession or a state of the Union.

7. Sources of confusion on these issues:

7.1. One can be a "non-resident non-person" without being an "individual" or a "nonresident alien individual" under the Internal Revenue Code. An example would be a human being born within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state of the Union who is therefore a "state national" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) who does not participate in Social Security or use a Taxpayer Identification Number.

7.2. The term "United States" is defined in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).

7.3. The term "United States" for the purposes of citizenship is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38).

7.4. Any "U.S. Person" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) who is not found in the "United States" (District of Columbia pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10)) shall be treated as having an effective domicile within the District of Columbia pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d).

7.5. The term "United States" is equivalent for the purposes of statutory "citizens" pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) and "citizens" as used in the Internal Revenue Code. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c).

7.6. The term "United States" as used in the Constitution of the United States is NOT equivalent to the statutory definition of the term used in:

7.6.1. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).

7.6.2. 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38).

The "United States" as used in the Constitution means the states of the Union and excludes federal territory, while the term "United States" as used in federal statutory law means federal territory and excludes states of the Union.

7.7. A constitutional "citizen of the United States" as mentioned in the Fourteenth Amendment is NOT equivalent to a statutory "national and citizen of the United States" as used in 8 U.S.C. §1401. See:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.8. In the case of jurisdiction over CONSTITUTIONAL aliens only (meaning foreign NATIONALS), the term "United States" implies all 50 states and the federal zone, and is not restricted only to the federal zone. See:

7.8.1. Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020

7.8.2. Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753 (1972)

In accord with ancient principles of the international law of nation-states, the Court in The Chinese Exclusion Case, 130 U.S. 581, 609 (1889), and in Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893), held broadly, as the Government describes it, Brief for Appellants 20, that the power to exclude aliens is "inherent in sovereignty, necessary for maintaining normal international relations and defending the country against foreign encroachments and dangers - a power to be exercised exclusively by the political branches of government . . . ." Since that time, the Court's general reaffirmations of this principle have [408 U.S. 753, 766] been legion. 6 The Court without exception has sustained Congress' "plenary power to make rules for the admission of aliens and to exclude those who possess those characteristics which Congress has

1 forbidden." Boutilier v. Immigration and Naturalization Service, 387 U.S. 118, 123 (1967). "[O]ver no
 2 conceivable subject is the legislative power of Congress more complete than it is over" the admission of 3 aliens. Oceanic Navigation Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U.S. 320, 339 (1909).
 4 [Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753 (1972)]

5 7.8.3. Chae Chan Ping v. U.S., 130 U.S. 581 (1889)

6 While under our constitution and form of government the great mass of local matters is controlled by local
 7 authorities, the United States, in their relation to foreign countries and their subjects or citizens, are one
 8 nation, invested with powers which belong to independent nations, the exercise of which can be invoked for 9 the maintenance of its absolute independence and security throughout its entire territory. The powers to 10 declare war, make treaties, suppress insurrection, repel invasion, regulate foreign commerce, secure
 11 republican governments to the states, and admit subjects of other nations to citizenship, are all sovereign
 12 powers, restricted in their exercise only by the constitution itself and considerations of public policy and justice
 13 which control, more or less, the conduct of all civilized nations. As said by this court in the case of Cohens v.
 14 Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 413, speaking by the same great chief justice: "That the United States form, for many,
 15 and for most important purposes, a single nation, has not yet been denied. In war, we are one people. In 16 making peace, we are one people. In all commercial regulations, we are one and the same people. In many 17 other respects, the American people are one; and the government which is alone capable of controlling and 18 managing their interests in all these respects is the government of the Union. It is their government, and in 19 that character they have no other. America has chosen to [130 U.S. 581, 605] be in many respects, and to 20 many purposes, a nation; and for all these purposes her government is complete; to all these objects, it is 21 competent. The people have declared that in the exercise of all powers given for these objects it is supreme. It
 22 can, then, in effecting these objects, legitimately control all individuals or governments within the American 23 territory."

24 [...]

25

 27 "The power of exclusion of foreigners being an incident of sovereignty belonging to the government of the 28 United States as a part of those sovereign powers delegated by the constitution, the right to its exercise at any 29 time when, in the judgment of the government, the interests of the country require it, cannot be granted away or 30 restrained on behalf of any one. The powers of government are delegated in trust to the United States, and are 31 incapable of transfer to any other parties. They cannot be abandoned or surrendered. Nor can their exercise
 32 be hampered, when needed for the public good, by any considerations of private interest. The exercise of 33 these public trusts is not the subject of barter or contract."
 34 [Chae Chan Ping v. U.S., 130 U.S. 581 (1889)]

NOTES:

1. Domicile is a prerequisite to having any civil status per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17. One therefore cannot be a statutory "alien" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) without a domicile on federal territory. Without such a domicile, you are a transient foreigner and neither an "alien" nor a "nonresident alien".
2. "United States" is described in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38), (a)(36) and 8 C.F.R. §215.1(f) and includes only federal territory and possessions and excludes all Constitutional Union states. This is a product of the separation of powers doctrine that is the heart of the United States Constitution.
3. A "nonresident alien individual" who has made an election under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) to be treated as a "resident alien" is treated as a "nonresident alien" for the purposes of withholding under I.R.C. Subtitle C but retains their status as a "resident alien" under I.R.C. Subtitle A. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(ii).
4. A "non-person" is really just a transient foreigner who is not "purposefully availing themselves" of commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the United States on federal territory under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97. The real transition from a "NON-person" to an "individual" occurs when one:
  - 4.1. "Purposefully avails himself" of commerce on federal territory and thus waives sovereign immunity. Examples of such purposeful availment are the next three items.
  - 4.2. Lawfully and consensually occupying a public office in the U.S. government and thereby being an "officer and individual" as identified in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). Otherwise, you are PRIVATE and therefore beyond the civil legislative jurisdiction of the national government.
  - 4.3. Voluntarily files an IRS Form 1040 as a citizen or resident abroad and takes the foreign tax deduction under 26 U.S.C. §911. This too is essentially an act of "purposeful availment". Nonresidents are not mentioned in section 911. The upper left corner of the form identifies the filer as a "U.S. individual". You cannot be an "U.S. individual" without ALSO being an "individual". All the "trade or business" deductions on the form presume the applicant is a public

- 1 officer, and therefore the "individual" on the form is REALLY a public officer in the government and would be committing FRAUD if he or she was NOT.
- 2 4.4. VOLUNTARILY fills out an IRS Form W-7 ITIN Application (IRS identifies the applicant as an "individual") AND only uses the assigned number in
- 3 connection with their compensation as an elected or appointed public officer. Using it in connection with PRIVATE earnings is FRAUD.
- 4 5. What turns a "non-resident NON-person" into a "nonresident alien individual" is meeting one or more of the following two criteria found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-
- 5 1(c)(3)(ii):
- 6 5.1. Residence/domicile in a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1).
- 7 5.2. Residence/domicile as an alien in Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as
- 8 determined under 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-1(d).
- 9 6. All "taxpayers" are STATUTORY "aliens" or "nonresident aliens". The definition of "individual" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) does NOT include

20 It is a self-serving, malicious attempt to STEAL from the average American for the IRS to confuse a state national who is a
21 "nonresident alien" and a "nontaxpayer" with a "resident alien taxpayer". This sort of abuse MUST be stopped
22 IMMEDIATELY. These sort of underhanded and malicious tactics:

23 5.6.13.4.4 Deliberately confusing CONSTITUTIONAL "non-resident aliens" (foreign nationals) with 24 STATUTORY "nonresident aliens" (foreign nationals AND state nationals)

25 This section builds on the previous section to show how the confusion between "nonresident alien" and "alien" is exploited
26 by financial institutions to illegally and FRAUDULENTLY make people into "taxpayers" and/or "U.S. persons" under 26
27 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). A frequent tactic employed especially by the I.R.S. and financial institutions is to falsely presume the 28 following:

- 29 1. That CONSTITUTIONAL "non-resident aliens" are the same as STATUTORY "nonresident aliens". They are NOT.
  - 30 1.1. By Constitutional we mean those born or naturalized in a foreign COUNTRY.
  - 31 1.2. By STATUTORY "nonresident alien" we mean those defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
- 32 2. That "nonresident aliens" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) are a SUBSET of ALL "aliens" under 26 U.S.C.
33 §7701(b)(1)(A).
- 34 3. That because "nonresident aliens" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) are a subset of "aliens" 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A), 35 then an state citizen not domiciled on federal territory CANNOT possibly be a "nonresident alien" as defined in 26
36 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).

37 The above false presumptions are reinforced by the fact that both STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL "aliens" (8 38 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3)) DO IN FACT imply the SAME thing, and that thing is a human being born or naturalized in a foreign
39 country. People therefore try to mistakenly apply the same rules to the term "nonresident alien". These types of false
40 presumptions are extremely damaging to your constitutional rights and the purpose of making them, in fact, is to
41 DESTROY your rights. Most of the time, such presumptions go unnoticed by the average American, which is why they are 42 so frequently employed by covetous and crafty lawyers in the government who want to STEAL from you by deceiving you.

43 In the legal field CONTEXT is everything. There are two main contexts for legal "terms":

- 44 1. Statutory.
- 45 2. Constitutional.

1 These two contexts are completely different and oftentimes mutually exclusive and have a profound effect on the meaning
 2 of the citizenship terms used in federal law and more importantly, in the Internal Revenue Code itself. This is especially
 3 true with geographic terms such as "citizen", "national", "resident", and "alien", "United States", etc.

4 Those opening financial accounts are frequently victimized by such DELIBERATELY false presumptions and must be
 5 especially sensitive to them. The best place to start in learning about this deception is to read the following memorandum
 6 on this website:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7 The best way to deal with this sort of malicious presumptions by ignorant financial institutions is to:

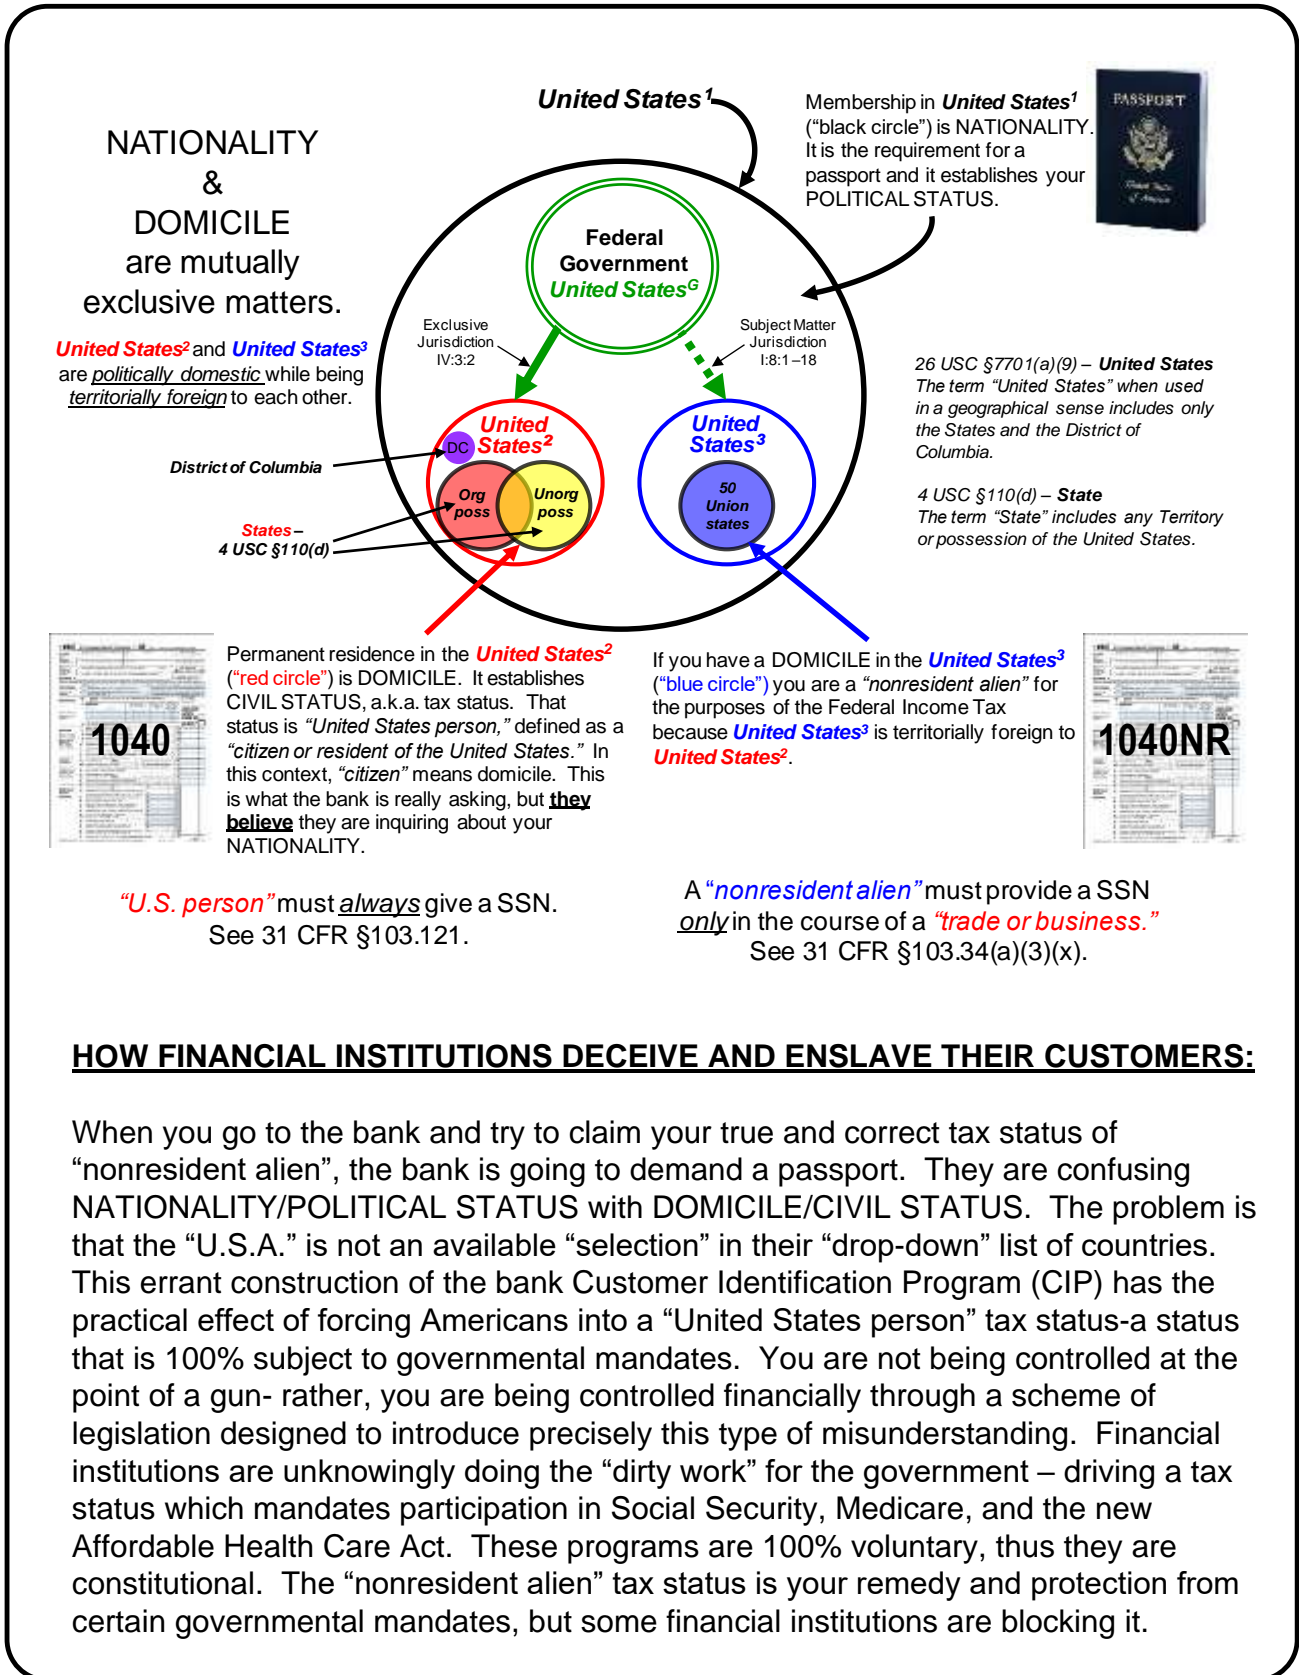

- 8 1. Show them the definitions of "State" and "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and that 9 CONSTITUTIONAL states are NOT listed and therefore purposefully excluded.

10 "When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's
 11 ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition
 12 of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a 13 rule, `a definition which declares what a term "means" . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western
 14 Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96
 15 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152,
 16 and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S.
 17 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney
 18 General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."
 19 [\[Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 \(2000\)\]](#)

- 20 2. Ask them for a definition of "United States" in the Internal Revenue Code that EXPRESSLY includes the 21 GEOGRAPHICAL states of the Union. This will reinforce that the CONSTITUTIONAL "United States****" (states of 22 the Union) is NOT the same as the STATUTORY "United States**" (federal territory).
- 23 3. Ask them for proof that there are any Internal Revenue Districts within the state you are in. Absent such proof, the IRS
 24 is limited to the only remaining Internal Revenue District in the District of Columbia per 26 U.S.C. §7601.
- 25 4. Show them the IRS Form 1040NR, which lists "U.S. nationals" as being "nonresident aliens". Then show that these 26 people identified in 8 U.S.C. §1408 and 8 U.S.C. §1452 are NOT "aliens" as defined in either 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) or 27 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(a)(A). This will prove to them that "aliens" are NOT the ONLY thing included in the term
 28 "nonresident alien".
- 29 5. Show them the definition of the term "person" found in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343 and ask them to 30 prove that you are included in the definition. And if you aren't included, than you are PURPOSEFULLY EXCLUDED
 31 and therefore neither an "individual" nor a "person". Explain to them that both of these things are PUBLIC
 32 OFFICERS in the government engaged in the "trade or business" franchise (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) as an 33 instrumentality and agent of the national government.
- 34 6. Explain that it is a CRIME to impersonate a public officer under 18 U.S.C. §912 and that all "persons" are public
 35 officers. Explain that for them to TREAT you as a "person" or "individual" and therefore a public officer is such a
 36 crime, and that the only people who can use government numbers (which are government PUBLIC property) are such 37 officers. The reason is that the ability to regulate PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property is repugnant to the 38 constitution as held by the U.S. Supreme Court.

39 One of our members who has studied the citizenship issue carefully and was attempting to document how this deception is 40 perpetrated by financial institutions against those opening financial account crafted a diagram to simply explaining it to
 41 bank personnel. This member also approached a retired justice of the none other than the United States Supreme Court and
 42 had it reviewed by this justice for accuracy. The result of the review was that the justice indicated that it was entirely
 43 correct, but that few people understand or can explain why. Below is the diagram for your edification. The member also 44 asked that their identity be protected, so please don't ask us either who this member is or the name of the supreme court
 45 justice, because we are not allowed to tell you.

1 Figure 5-6: Comparison of Nationality with Domicile

HOW FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS DECEIVE AND ENSLAVE THEIR CUSTOMERS:

When you go to the bank and try to claim your true and correct tax status of "nonresident alien", the bank is going to demand a passport. They are confusing NATIONALITY/POLITICAL STATUS with DOMICILE/CIVIL STATUS. The problem is that the "U.S.A." is not an available "selection" in their "drop-down" list of countries. This errant construction of the bank Customer Identification Program (CIP) has the practical effect of forcing Americans into a "United States person" tax status—a status that is 100% subject to governmental mandates. You are not being controlled at the point of a gun—rather, you are being controlled financially through a scheme of legislation designed to introduce precisely this type of misunderstanding. Financial institutions are unknowingly doing the "dirty work" for the government – driving a tax status which mandates participation in Social Security, Medicare, and the new Affordable Health Care Act. These programs are 100% voluntary, thus they are constitutional. The "nonresident alien" tax status is your remedy and protection from certain governmental mandates, but some financial institutions are blocking it.

5.6.13.4.5 Compelled Use of Taxpayer Identification Numbers (TINs)

The use of a Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) in connection with any financial transaction creates a legal presumption that the party using it is a person with a domicile on federal territory. This is confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(g)(1)(i), in which “nonresident aliens” are not listed:

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(g\)

(g) Special rules for taxpayer identifying numbers issued to foreign persons—

(1) General rule—

(i) Social security number.

A social security number is generally identified in the records and database of the Internal Revenue Service as a number belonging to a U.S. citizen or resident alien individual. A person may establish a different status for the number by providing proof of foreign status with the Internal Revenue Service under such procedures as the Internal Revenue Service shall prescribe, including the use of a form as the Internal Revenue Service may specify. Upon accepting an individual as a nonresident alien individual, the Internal Revenue Service will assign this status to the individual's social security number.

The only legal requirement to use taxpayer identification numbers is found in the following regulation at 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b)(1):

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(b\)

(b) Requirement to furnish one's own number—

(1) U.S. persons.

Every U.S. person who makes under this title a return, statement, or other document must furnish its own taxpayer identifying number as required by the forms and the accompanying instructions.

The above regulation only imposes such a requirement upon a “U.S. person”. That “person” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) as an entity with a domicile on federal territory. Note that “citizens” and “residents” and federal corporations and all other entities listed below have in common a domicile in the “United States”, which is federal territory:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(30) United States person

The term “United States person” means -

- (A) a [corporate] citizen or resident [alien] of the [federal] United States,
- (B) a domestic partnership,
- (C) a domestic corporation,
- (D) any estate (other than a foreign estate, within the meaning of paragraph (31)), and
- (E) any trust if -

- 1 (i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the
 2 trust, and
 3 (ii) one or more United States persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust.

4 If you look on the following:

IRS Form SS-4 Application for an Employer Identification Number (EIN)
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormSS4.pdf>

5 ... the form allows you to fill it out in such a way that you are NOT an “employer” or a “taxpayer”, but if you don’t do so,
 6 then the implication is that you are in fact a “U.S. person”.

7 Both SSNs and TINs are made equivalent by the following authorities: 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(41), 26 U.S.C. §6109(d), and
 8 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-1. The following statute makes it a crime to compel use of Social Security Numbers, and by 9 implication, Taxpayer Identification Numbers.

10 TITLE 42 - THE PUBLIC HEALTH AND WELFARE
 11 CHAPTER 7 - SOCIAL SECURITY
 12 SUBCHAPTER II - FEDERAL OLD-AGE, SURVIVORS, AND DISABILITY INSURANCE BENEFITS
 13 Sec. 408. Penalties

14 (a) In general
 15 Whoever -...

16 (8) discloses, uses, or compels the disclosure of the social security number of any person in violation of the
 17 laws of the United States; shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined under title 18
 18 or imprisoned for not more than five years, or both.

19 Consequently, the use of a government identifying number is presumed to be voluntary and not compelled, unless you, the 20 person being compelled, state otherwise in correspondence to them and the people you do business with. Therefore,
 21 providing such a number in the context of any transaction constitutes consent and a voluntary “election” to be treated as a
 22 “U.S. person” and a person with a domicile on federal territory. If you started out as a nonresident alien, that election is 23 authorized by 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h), but ONLY if are an alien and NOT a national or non-citizen national.

24 Those who start out as “non-resident non-persons” and who open a financial account at banks as human beings by default:

- 25 1. Are required to provide a Social Security Number (SSN) or Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) when opening the 26 account.
 27 1. Open all such accounts as statutory “U.S. persons” with a domicile on federal territory because they provided a 28 government identifying number.

29 Banks in implementing the above policies, are acting as agents of the national government in a quasi-governmental capacity
 30 and also become the equivalent of federal employment recruiters. 31 C.F.R. §202.2 confirms that all banks who participate
 31 in FDIC insurance are agents of the national government. 12 U.S.C. §90 also makes all national banks into agents of the 32 U.S. Government. It would be more advantageous to open an international bank account to avoid this issue. In their 33 capacity as agents of the national government, you can be sure that banks subject to federal regulation are going to want to 34 recruit more “employee” and “public officers” engaged in the “trade or business” franchise.

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

35 Even for those people smart enough to know about the IRS form W-8BEN and how to properly fill it out, most banks
 36 opening business accounts even in the case of businesses that are “non-resident non-persons” refuse to open such accounts
 37 without an Employer Identification Number (EIN) as a matter of policy and not law.

- 38 1. If you ask them what law authorizes such a policy, typically they:
 39 1.1. Can't produce the law and are operating on policy rather than law.
 40 1.2. May often say that the USA Patriot Act “requires it”, but this act doesn't apply outside of federal territory and 41 there is no such provision contained within it anyway. They are lying.

2. If you attempt to offer them forms that correctly describe your status as a "foreigner", a "non-resident non-person", but not a "foreign person" who therefore has no requirement to supply a number, they may just say that their policy is not to accept such forms and to refuse you an account. Therefore, you have to commit perjury to even get an account with them.
3. If they won't accept your forms correctly describing your status and you modify their forms to correctly reflect your status, they may also tell you that they have a policy not to open an account for you and they may even refuse to explain why.

In practical terms then, the law doesn't require businesses who properly identify themselves as "non-resident Non-persons not engaged in a trade or business" to have or use identifying numbers but most are compelled by adherence contracts of banking monopolies into having one anyway. As a matter of fact, 26 C.F.R. §306.10, Footnote 2, as well as 31 C.F.R. §103.34(a)(3)(x) both expressly exclude "nonresident aliens" who are not engaged in the "trade or business"/"public office" franchise from the requirement to furnish identifying numbers. In that sense, most banks are acting as the equivalent of federal employment recruiters and compelling their customers to commit perjury on their applications by stating indirectly that they are "resident aliens" with a domicile on federal territory who are lawfully engaged in a public office within the U.S. government. This is a huge scam that is the main source of jurisdiction of the IRS over otherwise private companies.

5.6.13.4.6 Not offering an option on the W-8BEN form to accurately describe the status of state nationals who are "nonresidents" but not "individuals"

"The foregoing considerations would lead, in case of doubt, to a construction of any statute as intended to be confined in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the lawmaker has general and legitimate power. 'All legislation is prima facie territorial.' Ex parte Blain, L. R. 12 Ch.Div. 522, 528; State v. Carter, 27 N.J.L. 499; People v. Merrill, 2 Park.Crim.Rep. 590, 596. Words having universal scope, such as 'every contract in restraint of trade,' 'every person who shall monopolize,' etc., will be taken, as a matter of course, to mean only everyone subject to such legislation [e.g. "individuals" with a domicile on federal territory who are therefore subject to the civil laws of Congress], not all that the legislator subsequently may be able to catch. In the case of the present statute, the improbability of the United States attempting to make acts done in Panama or Costa Rica criminal is obvious, yet the law begins by making criminal the acts for which it gives a right to sue. We think it entirely plain that what the defendant did in Panama or Costa Rica is not within the scope of the statute so far as the present suit is concerned. Other objections of a serious nature are urged, but need not be discussed."
[American Banana Co. v. U.S. Fruit, 213 U.S. 347 at 357-358]

The term "individual" is provided in Block 3 of the Standard IRS Form W-8BEN. Like the "beneficial owner" scam above, it too has a malicious intent/aspect:

1. Like the term "beneficial owner", it is associated with statutory creations of Congress engaged in federal privileges, "public rights", and "public offices." The only way you can be subject to the code is to engage in a franchise. Those who are not privileged cannot refer to themselves as anything described in any government statute, which is reserved only for government officers, agencies, and instrumentalities and not private persons. See:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037

2. The term "individual" appears in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b), where "nonresident alien individuals" are made liable to file tax returns. However, "nonresident aliens" who are NOT "individuals" are nowhere mentioned as having any duty to do anything. We call these people "non-resident non-persons" throughout this book. Consequently, YOU DON'T WANT TO DESCRIBE YOURSELF AS AN "INDIVIDUAL" BECAUSE THEN THEY CAN PROSECUTE YOU FOR FAILURE TO FILE A RETURN! Some ways you can create a usually false presumption that you are an "individual" include:

- 2.1. Filing IRS Form 1040, which says "U.S. INDIVIDUAL Income Tax Return" in the upper left corner.
- 2.2. Applying for a "INDIVIDUAL Taxpayer Identification Number" (ITIN) using IRS Forms W-7 or W-9. Only "aliens" can lawfully apply for such a number pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(d\)\(3\). If you were born in a state of the Union or on federal territory, you AREN'T an "alien". See:

Why It is Illegal for Me to Request or Use a "Taxpayer Identification Number", Form #04.205
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 2.3. Filling out the IRS Form W-8BEN and checking the box for "individual" in block 3.
- 2.4. Filling out any other government form and identifying yourself as an "Individual". If they don't have "Union state Citizen" or "transient foreigner" as an option, then ADD IT and CHECK IT!

Our Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201, prevents the presumption from being created that you are an "individual" with any form you submit, even using standard IRS forms, by redefining the word "individual" so that it doesn't refer to the same word as used in any federal law, but instead refers ONLY to the common and NOT the legal definition. This, in effect, prevents what the courts call "compelled association". That is why our Member Agreement, Form #01.001 specifies that you MUST attach the Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201 to any standard tax form you are compelled to submit: To protect you from being prosecuted for tax crimes under the I.R.C. by preventing you from being connected to any federal franchise or obligation.

3. The term "individual", like that of "beneficial owner", is nowhere defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code and it is EXTREMELY dangerous to describe yourself as anything that isn't defined statutorily, because you just invite people to make prejudicial presumptions about your status. The term "individual" is only defined in the treasury regulations. The definition in the regulations is found at 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i):

26 C.F.R. 1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(i) Alien individual.

The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(c).

(ii) Nonresident alien individual.

The term nonresident alien individual means a person described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), an alien individual who is a resident of a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and Sec. 301.7701(b)-7(a)(1) of this chapter, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under Sec. 301.7701(b)-1(d) of this chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013 (g) or (h) to be treated as a resident of the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

Do you see statutory "U.S. citizens" (which are defined under 8 U.S.C. §1401) mentioned above under the definition of "individual" in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)? They aren't there, which means the only way they can become "taxpayers" is to visit a foreign country and become an "alien" under the terms of a tax treaty with a foreign country under the provisions of 26 U.S.C. §911. When they do this, they attach IRS form 2555 to the IRS Form 1040 that they file. Remember: The 1040 form is for "U.S. persons", which includes statutory "U.S. citizens" and "residents", both of whom have a domicile on federal territory, which is what the term "United States" is defines as in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d).

In fact, the only place that the term "individual" is statutorily defined that we have found is in 5 U.S.C. §552a\(a\)\(2\), which means:

TITLE 5 - GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION AND EMPLOYEES
PART 1 > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
§ 552a. Records maintained on individuals

1 (a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

2 (2) the term "individual" means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent
3 residence;

4 The above statute is the Privacy Act, which regulates IRS use and protection of your tax information. Notice that:

- 5 2. "nonresident aliens" don't appear there and therefore are implicitly excluded. This is a result of a legal maxim called 6 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius".
- 7 3. The "individual" they are referring to must meet the definitions found in BOTH 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) and 26 C.F.R.
8 §1.1441-1(c)(3) because the Privacy Act is also the authority for protecting tax records, which means he or she or it can
9 ONLY be a "resident", meaning an alien with a domicile on federal territory called the "United States**". Therefore,
10 those who claim to be "individuals" indirectly are making a usually invisible election to be treated as a "resident",
11 which is an alien with a domicile in "United States**" federal territory. Nonresident aliens are nowhere mentioned in 12 the Privacy Act.
- 13 4. The code section is under Title 5 of the U.S. Code, which is called "GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION AND 14 EMPLOYEES". They are treating you as part of the government, even though you aren't. The reason is that unless 15 you have a domicile on federal territory (which is what "United States" is defined as under I.R.C. Subtitle A in 26
16 U.S.C. §§7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d)) or have income connected with a "trade or business", which is 17 defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the functions of a public office", you can't be a "taxpayer" without at least 18 volunteering by submitting an IRS form W-4, which effectively amounts to an "election" to become a "public officer"
19 and a "Kelly Girl" on loan to your private employer from Uncle Sam.

20 What the IRS Form W-8BEN is doing is fooling you into admitting that you are an "individual" as defined above, which
21 means that you just made an UNLAWFUL election or choice to become a "resident alien" instead of a "nonresident alien".
22 They don't have any lawful authority to maintain records on "nonresident aliens" under the Privacy Act, so you have to 23 become a "resident" by filling out one of their forms and lying about your status by calling yourself an "individual" so they 24 have permission from you to do so. Instead, what you really are is a "transient foreigner"

25 "Transient foreigner. One who visits the country, without the intention of remaining."
26 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1498]

27 Our Amended IRS Form W-8BEN solves this problem by adding an additional option indicating "Union State Citizen"
28 under Block 3 of the form and by putting the phrase "(public officer)" after the word "individual". As an alternative, you
29 could make your own Substitute form as authorized by [IRS Form W-8 Instructions for Requester of Forms W-8BEN, W-
30 8ECL, W-8Exp, and W-8IMF, Catalog 26698G](#) and add an option for Block 3 called "transient foreigner". Either way, you
31 have deprived the IRS of the ability to keep records about you because you do not fit the definition of "individual", as 32 required by the Privacy Act above. If you don't want to be subject to the code, you can't be submitting government
33 paperwork and signing it under penalty of perjury that indicates that you fit the description of anyone or anything that they 34 have jurisdiction over.

35 For more information about how they have to make you into a "resident" (alien) and an "individual" and a "public officer"

47 5.6.13.4.7 Excluding "Not subject" from Government Forms and offering only "Exempt"

Another devious technique frequently used on government forms to trick “nonresident aliens” into making an unwitting election to become “resident aliens” is:

1. Omit the “not subject” option.
2. Present the “exempt” option as the only method for avoiding the liability described.
3. Do one of the following:
  - 3.1. Statutorily define the term “exempt” to exclude persons who are “not subject”.
  - 3.2. PRESUME that the word “exempt” excludes persons who are “not subject” and hope you don’t challenge the presumption.

This form of abuse exploits the common false presumption among most Americans, which is the following:

1. That the ONLY options available are STATUTORY. The CONSTITUTION does not provide a way to make one’s earnings CONSTITUTIONALLY exempt but not STATUTORILY exempt.
2. Government form presents ALL of the lawful options available to avoid the liability described. In fact, government is famous for limiting options in order to advantage or benefit them. In fact, they only present the STATUTORY options, but deliberately omit CONSTITUTIONAL options and argue that there are not CONSTITUTIONAL options.

In effect, they are constraining your options to compel you to select the lesser of evils and remove the ability to avoid all evil. This devious technique is also called an “adhesion contract”. In summary, they are violating the First Amendment by instituting compelled association in which you are coerced to engage in commercial activity with them and become subject to their pagan laws.

On the subject of “exempt”, the U.S. Supreme Court has held the following:

*In imposing a tax, says Mr. Chief Justice Marshall, the legislature acts upon its constituents. "All subjects," he adds, "over which the power of a State extends are objects of taxation, but those over which it does not extend are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. This proposition *334 may almost be pronounced self-evident." McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428.
[United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]*

From the above, we can see that:

1. The civil laws enacted by the legislature act ONLY upon “constituents” and “subjects”. They DO NOT act upon “all people”, but only on “constituents” and “subjects”.
2. You have to VOLUNTEER to become a “constituent” or “subject”. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
3. “Constituents” and “subjects” include STATUTORY “citizens” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(e) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) and exclude CONSTITUTIONAL citizens, who are “non-residents” under federal statutory law. If you are not a STATUTORY citizen, which the court calls a “SUBJECT” or “constituent”, then you can’t be taxed. The court refers to those who can’t be taxed as “aliens”, and they can only mean STATUTORY aliens, not CONSTITUTIONAL aliens.
4. Federal tax liability is a CIVIL liability, and therefore, those who are not STATUTORY citizens domiciled on federal territory cannot have such a CIVIL liability.
5. Like most other legal “words of art”, there are TWO contexts in which the word “exempt” can be used:
  - 5.1. Statutory law. This includes people who are “subjects” or “constituents”, but who otherwise are granted a privilege or exemption by virtue of their circumstances. An example would be the “exempt individual” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(5).
  - 5.2. Common law. This implies people who never consented to be and therefore are NOT “subjects” or “constituents”. Those who are NOT “subjects”, are “not subject”.

5.6.13.4.7.1 Earnings “not taxable by the Federal Government under the Constitution”

The present treasury regulations RECOGNIZE that earnings can be “not taxable by the Federal Government under the Constitution” WITHOUT being “exempt” under the Internal Revenue Code. Earlier versions the Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulations refer to this type of exemption as “fundamental law. Earnings “Not taxable by the Federal Government under the Constitution” are recognized in 26 C.F.R. §1.312-6:

The Great  IRS Hoax: Why We Don't Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO)

Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship

<http://famguardian.org/>

1 Title 21
2 Part 1-Income Taxes
3 § 1.312-6 Earnings and profits.

4 (b) Among the items entering into the computation of corporate earnings and profits for a particular period
5 are all income exempted by statute, income not taxable by the Federal Government under the Constitution,
6 as well as all items includible in gross income under section 61 or corresponding provisions of prior revenue
7 acts. Gains and losses within the purview of section 1002 or corresponding provisions of prior revenue acts are 8 brought into the earnings and profits at the time and to the extent such gains and losses are recognized under 9 that section. Interest on State bonds and certain other obligations, although not taxable when received by a 10 corporation, is taxable to the same extent as other dividends when distributed to shareholders in the form of 11 dividends.

12 This omission is designed to make you believe that the ONLY way to avoid a tax liability is to find a STATUTORY
13 “exemption” or to be a statutory “exempt individual” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(5). This is clearly a ruse designed 14 to DECEIVE and ENSLAVE YOU.

15 The early U.S. Supreme Court recognized CONSTITUTIONAL but not statutory exemptions when it held:

16 "All subjects," he adds, "over which the power of a State extends are objects of taxation, but those over
17 which it does not extend are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. This proposition *334 may 18 almost be pronounced self-evident." McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428.

19 There are limitations upon the powers of all governments, without any express designation of them in their
20 organic law; limitations which inhere in their very nature and structure, and this is one of them, — that no
21 rightful authority can be exercised by them over alien subjects, or citizens resident abroad or over their
22 property there situated. This doctrine may be said to be axiomatic. . ."

23 [United States v. Erie R. Co. 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]

24 The Internal Revenue Code very deliberately does NOT define what is “not taxable by the Federal Government under 25 the Constitution”. If they did, they probably would lose MOST of their income tax revenues! The U.S. Supreme Court
26 calls the Constitution “fundamental law” in Marbury v. Madison.

27 "Certainly all those who have framed written constitutions contemplate them as forming the fundamental and
28 paramount law of the nation, and, consequently, the theory of every such government must be, that an act of 29 the legislature, repugnant to the constitution, is void."
30 [Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137 (1803)]

31 The Founding Fathers in the Federalist Papers also recognized the U.S.A. Constitution as fundamental law:

32 "No legislative act [including a statutory presumption] contrary to the Constitution can be valid. To deny this 33 would be to affirm that the deputy (agent) is greater than his principal; that the servant is above the master;
34 that the representatives of the people are superior to the people; that men, acting by virtue of powers may do
35 not only what their powers do not authorize, but what they forbid...[text omitted] It is not otherwise to be 36 supposed that the Constitution could intend to enable the representatives of the people to substitute their will 37 to that of their constituents. It is far more rational to suppose, that the courts were designed to be an 38 intermediate body between the people and the legislature, in order, among other things, to keep the latter within 39 the limits assigned to their authority. The interpretation of the laws is the proper and peculiar province of the 40 courts. A Constitution is, in fact, and must be regarded by judges, as fundamental law. If there should 41 happen to be an irreconcilable variance between the two, the Constitution is to be preferred to the statute."
42 [Alexander Hamilton, Federalist Paper # 78]

43 Earlier versions of the Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulations recognized in the statutes themselves exemptions
44 under “fundamental law”:

45 Treasury Regulations of (1939)

46 “Sec. 29.21-1. Meaning of net income. The tax imposed by chapter 1 is upon income. Neither income 47 exempted by statute or fundamental law... enter into the computation of net income as defined by section 21.”

48 _____
49 Internal Revenue Code (1939)

1 “Sec 22(b). No other items are exempt from gross income except

- 2 (1) those items of income which are, under the Constitution, not taxable by the Federal Government;
 3 (2) those items of income which are exempt from tax on income under the provisions of any Act of Congress
 4 still in effect; and (3) the income exempted under the provisions of section 116.”

5 Not surprisingly, the IRS also does NOT provide a line or box on any tax form we have seen to deduct “income exempt by 6 fundamental law”. They do this in order to create the false PRESUMPTION that everything you earn is taxable. The U.S.
 7 Supreme Court, however, recognized that not EVERYTHING you earn is “income” or falls into the category of “gross
 8 income”.

9 “We must reject in this case, as we have rejected in cases arising under the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 10 1909 (Doyle, Collector, v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 38 Sup.Ct. 467, 62 L.Ed.--), the broad 11 contention submitted on behalf of the government that all receipts—everything that comes in—are income
 12 within the proper definition of the term ‘gross income,’ and that the entire proceeds of a conversion of 13 capital assets, in whatever form and under whatever circumstances accomplished, should be treated as gross
 14 income. Certainly the term “income” has no broader meaning in the 1913 act than in that of 1909 (see 15 Stratton’s Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 416, 417 S., 34 Sup.Ct. 136), and for the present purpose we 16 assume there is not difference in its meaning as used in the two acts.”
 17 [Southern Pacific Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335, 38 S.Ct. 540 (1918)]

18 What the U.S. Supreme Court is recognizing indirectly above is that the income tax is an excise tax on the “trade or 19 business” (public office) activity, and that only earnings connected to that activity constitute “income” or “gross income”.
 20 Such earnings, in turn, are the only earnings reportable on an information return under 26 U.S.C. §6041(a). The statutory 21 definition of “income” itself in the I.R.C. also recognizes that not everything one makes is “income”:

22 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter J > PART I > Subpart A > § 643
 23 § 643. Definitions applicable to subparts A, B, C, and D

24 (b) Income

25 For purposes of this subpart and subparts B, C, and D, the term “income”, when not preceded by the words
 26 “taxable”, “distributable net”, “undistributed net”, or “gross”, means the amount of income of the estate or 27 trust for the taxable year determined under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable local law.
 28 Items of gross income constituting extraordinary dividends or taxable stock dividends which the fiduciary,
 29 acting in good faith, determines to be allocable to corpus under the terms of the governing instrument and
 30 applicable local law shall not be considered income.

31 The “trust” they are talking about above is the PUBLIC trust, meaning the national government. PRIVATE trusts are not
 32 engaged in the “trade or business” excise taxable activity because the ability to regulate or tax PRIVATE activity or 33 PRIVATE rights is repugnant to the constitution. The “estate” they are talking about is that of a deceased public officer 34 and not private human being.

35 5.6.13.4.7.2 Avoiding deception on government tax forms

36 There are two ways that one can use to describe oneself on government forms:

- 37 1. “Exempt”. This is a person who is otherwise subject to the provision of law administering the form because they are 38 an “individual” or “person” and yet who is expressly made exempt by a particular provision of the statutes forming the 39 franchise agreement. This option appears on most government forms.
 40 2. “Not subject”. This would be equivalent to a nonresident “nontaxpayer” who is not a “person” or franchisee within the 41 meaning of the statute in question. You almost never see this option on government forms.

42 There is a world of difference between these two statuses and we MUST understand the difference before we can know
 43 whether or how to fill out a specific government form describing our status. In this section we will show you how to 44 choose the correct status above and all the affects that this status has on how we fill out government forms.

45 We will begin our explanation with an illustration. If you are domiciled in California, you would describe yourself as 46 “subject” to the laws in California. However, in relation to the laws of every other civil jurisdiction outside of California, 47 you would describe yourself as:

- 1 1. "Not subject" to the civil laws of that place unless you are physically visiting that place.
- 2 2. Not ANYTHING described in the civil law that the government has jurisdiction over or may impose a "duty" upon,
- 3 such as a "person", "individual", "taxpayer", etc.
- 4 3. Not a "foreign person" because not a "person" under the civil law.
- 5 4. "foreign".
- 6 5. A "nonresident".
- 7 6. A "transient foreigner".

8 A human being who is domiciled in California, for instance, would not be subject to the civil laws of China unless he was
 9 either visiting China or engaged in commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of China with people who were domiciled
 10 there and therefore protected by the civil laws there. He would not describe himself as being "exempt" from the laws of 11 China, because one cannot be "exempt" without FIRST also being "subject" by having a domicile or residence within that 12 foreign jurisdiction. Another way of stating this is that he would not be a "person" under the civil laws of China and would 13 be "foreign" unless and until he either physically moved there or changed his domicile or residence to that place and
 14 thereby became a "protected person" subject to the civil jurisdiction of the Chinese government.

15 All income taxation within the United States of America takes the form of an excise tax upon an "activity" implemented by 16 the civil law. In the case of the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, that activity is called a "trade or business". This fact
 17 exhaustively proven in the following amazing article:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

18 A "trade or business" is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as follows:

19 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
 20 § 7701. Definitions

21 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
 22 thereof—

23 (26) "The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions [activities] of a public office."

24 Those who therefore lawfully engage in a public office in the U.S. government BEFORE they sign or submit any tax form
 25 are then described as a "franchisee" called a "taxpayer" under the terms of the excise tax or franchise agreement codified in 26 Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. Those who are not "public officers" also cannot lawfully "elect" themselves into 27 "public office" by signing or submitting a tax form either, because this would constitute impersonating an officer or 28 employee of the government in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. This is confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) , which 29 describes all those who are nonresident within the "United States" (federal territory not within any state of the Union) and 30 not engaged in the "trade or business"/"public office" activity as being a "foreign estate", which simply means "not 31 subject", to the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A franchise or excise tax:

32 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
 33 § 7701. Definitions

34 (31) Foreign estate or trust

35 (A) Foreign estate

36 The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is 37 not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in 38 gross income under subtitle A.

39 The entity or "person" described above would NOT be "exempt", but rather simply "not subject". The reason is that the 40 term "exempt" has a specific legal definition that does not include the situation above. Notice that the term "exempt" is 41 used along with the word "individual", meaning that you must be a "person" and an "individual" BEFORE you can call
 42 yourself "exempt":

43 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.

1 Sec. 7701. - Definitions

2 (b)(5) Exempt individual defined

3 For purposes of this subsection -

4 (A) In general

5 An individual is an exempt individual for any day if, for such day, such individual is -

6 (i) a foreign government-related individual,

7 (ii) a teacher or trainee,

8 (iii) a student, or

9 (iv) a professional athlete who is temporarily in the United States to compete in a charitable sports event
10 described in section 274(l)(1)(B).

11 (B) Foreign government-related individual

12 The term "foreign government-related individual" means any individual temporarily present in the United 13 States by reason of -

14 (i) diplomatic status, or a visa which the Secretary (after consultation with the Secretary of State) determines 15 represents full-time diplomatic or consular status for purposes of this subsection,

16 (ii) being a full-time employee of an international organization, or

17 (iii) being a member of the immediate family of an individual described in clause (i) or (ii).

18 (C) Teacher or trainee

19 The term "teacher or trainee" means any individual -

20 (i) who is temporarily present in the United States under subparagraph (J) or (Q) of section 101(15) of the 21 Immigration and Nationality Act (other than as a student), and

22 (ii) who substantially complies with the requirements for being so present.

23 (D) Student

24 The term "student" means any individual -

25 (i) who is temporarily present in the United States -

26 (I) under subparagraph (F) or (M) of section 101(15) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, or

27 (II) as a student under subparagraph (J) or (Q) of such section 101(15), and (ii) who substantially complies
28 with the requirements for being so present.

29 (E) Special rules for teachers, trainees, and students

30 (i) Limitation on teachers and trainees

31 An individual shall not be treated as an exempt individual by reason of clause (ii) of subparagraph (A) for the 32 current year if, for any 2 calendar years during the preceding 6 calendar years, such person was an exempt
33 person under clause (ii) or (iii) of subparagraph (A). In the case of an individual all of whose compensation is 34 described in section 872(b)(3), the preceding sentence shall be applied by substituting "4 calendar years" for "2 35 calendar years".

36 (ii) Limitation on students

1 For any calendar year after the 5th calendar year for which an individual was an exempt individual under
 2 clause (ii) or (iii) of subparagraph (A), such individual shall not be treated as an exempt individual by reason of
 3 clause (iii) of subparagraph (A), unless such individual establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that such
 4 individual does not intend to permanently reside in the United States and that such individual meets the 5 requirements of subparagraph (D)(ii).

6 The Internal Revenue Code itself does not and cannot regulate the conduct of those who are not “taxpayers”.

7 “Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and
 8 not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the 9 Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and
 10 no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law. With them [non-taxpayers]
 11 Congress does not assume to deal and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of federal revenue laws.”
 12 [Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

13 Consequently, all tax forms you (a human being) fill out PRESUPPOSE that the applicant filling it out is a franchisee
 14 called a “taxpayer” who occupies a public office within the U.S. government and who is therefore a statutory “person”,
 15 “individual”, “employee”, and public officer under 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). Since the Internal Revenue Code is civil law, it also 16 must presuppose that all “persons” or “individuals” described within it are domiciled on federal territory that is no part of a
 17 state of the Union. This is confirmed by the definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4
 18 U.S.C. §110(d), which is defined as federal territory and not part of any state of the Union. If you do not lawfully occupy
 19 such a public office, it would therefore constitute fraud and impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912 to 20 even fill such a form out. If a company hands a “nontaxpayer” a tax form to fill out, the only proper response is ALL of the 21 following, and any other response will result in the commission of a crime:

- 22 1. To not complete or sign any provision of the form.
- 23 2. To line out the entire form.
- 24 3. To write above the line “Not Applicable”.
- 25 4. To NOT select the “exempt” option within the form or select any status at all on the form. If you aren't subject to the 26 Internal Revenue Code because you don't have a domicile on federal territory and don't engage in taxable activities,
 27 then you can't be described as a “person”, “individual”, “taxpayer”, or anything else who might be subject to the I.R.C.

28 “The foregoing considerations would lead, in case of doubt, to a construction of any statute as intended to be
 29 confined in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the lawmaker has general and 30 legitimate power. 'All legislation is prima facie territorial.' Ex parte Blain, L. R. 12 Ch.Div. 522, 528; State v.
 31 Carter, 27 N.J.L. 499; People v. Merrill, 2 Park.Crim.Rep. 590, 596. Words having universal scope, such as 32 'every contract in restraint of trade,' 'every person who shall monopolize,' etc., will be taken, as a matter of 33 course, to mean only everyone subject to such legislation, not all that the legislator subsequently may be able
 34 to catch. In the case of the present statute, the improbability of the United States attempting to make acts done
 35 in Panama or Costa Rica criminal is obvious, yet the law begins by making criminal the acts for which it gives 36 a right to sue. We think it entirely plain that what the defendant did in Panama or Costa Rica is not within the 37 scope of the statute so far as the present suit is concerned. Other objections of a serious nature are urged, but 38 need not be discussed.”

- 40 5. To either not return the form to the person who asked for it or to return it with the modifications above.
- 41 6. If you return the form to the person who asked for it, to clarify on the form why you are not “exempt”, but rather “not 42 subject”.
- 43 7. To attach the following form to the tax form:

44 Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201
 45 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

46 Another alternative to all the above would be to simply add a “Not subject by fundamental law” option or to select 47 “Exempt” and then redefine the word to add the “not subject by fundamental law” option to the definition. Then you could
 48 attach the Tax Form Attachment mentioned above, which also redefines words on the government form to immunize
 49 yourself from government jurisdiction.

50 If we had an honorable government that loved the people under its care and protection more than it loved deceiving you out
 51 of and stealing your money, then they would indicate at the top of the form in big bold letters EXACTLY what laws are 52 being enforced and who the intended audience is so that those who are not required to fill it out would not do so. However, if they did that, hardly anyone would ever pay taxes again. Of this SCAM, the Bible and a famous bible commentary says the following:

19 [Matthew Henry's Commentary on the Whole Bible; Henry, M., 1996, c1991, under Prov. 11:1]

20 In the case of income tax forms, for instance, the warning described above would say the following:

21 2. This form is only intended for those who satisfy all the following conditions:

22 2.1. "taxpayer" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14):

23 "Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and
24 not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the
25 Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and
26 no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law. With them[non-taxpayers]
27 Congress does not assume to deal and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of federal revenue laws."
28 [Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

29 2.2. Lawfully engaged in a "public office" in the U.S. government, which is called a "trade or business" in the 30 Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).

31 2.3. Exercising the public office ONLY within the District of Columbia as required by 4 U.S.C. §72, which is within 32 the only remaining internal revenue district, as confirmed by Treasury Order 150-02.

33 5. If you do not satisfy all the requirements indicated above, then you DO NOT need to fill out this form, nor can you
34 claim the status of "exempt".

35 6. This form is ONLY for use by "taxpayers". If you are a "nontaxpayer", then we don't have a form you can use to 36 document your status. This is because our mission statement only allows us to help "taxpayers". It is self-defeating to 37 help "nontaxpayers" because it only undermines our revenue and importance. We are a business and we only focus our 38 energies on things that make money for us, such as deceiving "nontaxpayers" into thinking they are "taxpayers". That 39 is why we don't put a "nontaxpayer" or "not subject" option on our forms: Because we want to self-servingly and 40 prejudicially presume that EVERYONE is engaged in our franchise and subject to our plunder and control.

41 Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.) 1.1.1.1 (02-26-1999)

43 The IRS Mission: Provide America's taxpayers top quality service by helping them understand and meet their 44 tax responsibilities and by applying the tax law with integrity and fairness to all.

45 We hope that you have learned from this section that:

- 46 1. He who makes the rules or the forms always wins the game. The power to create includes the power to define.
47 2. All government forms are snares or traps designed to trap the innocent and ignorant into servitude to the whims of 48 corrupted politicians and lawyers.

49 "*The Lord is well pleased for His righteousness' sake; He will exalt the law and make it honorable. But this
50 is a people robbed and plundered! [by the IRS] All of them are snared in [legal] holes [by the sophistry of 51 greedy IRS lawyers], and they are hidden in prison houses; they are for prey, and no one delivers; for 52 plunder, and no one says, "Restore!""

Who among you will give ear to this? Who will listen and hear for the time to come? Who gave Jacob for plunder, and Israel to the robbers? [IRS] Was it not the Lord, He against whom we have sinned? For they would not walk in His ways, nor were they obedient to His law, therefore He has poured on him the fury of His anger and the strength of battle; it has set him on fire all around, yet he did not know; and it burned him, yet he did not take it to heart.
 [Isaiah 42:21-25, Bible, NKJV]a

3. The snare is the presumptions which they deliberately do not disclose on the forms and which are buried in the “words of art” contained in their void for vagueness codes. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. The main reason for reading and learning the law is to reveal all the presumptions and deceptive “words of art” that are hidden on government forms so that you can avoid them.

“My [God's] people are destroyed [and enslaved] for lack of knowledge [of God's Laws and the lack of education that produces it].”
 [Hosea 4:6, Bible, NKJV]

“And thou shalt teach them ordinances and laws [of both God and man], and shalt shew them the way wherein they must walk, and the work [of obedience to God] that they must do.”
 [Exodus 18:20, Bible, NKJV]

“This Book of the Law shall not depart from your mouth, but you shall meditate in it day and night, that you may observe to do according to all that is written in it. For then you will make your way prosperous, and then you will have good success. Have I not commanded you? Be strong and of good courage; do not be afraid, nor be dismayed, for the LORD your God is with you wherever you go.”
 [Joshua 1:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

5. Government forms deliberately do not disclose the presumptions that are being made about the proper audience for the form in order to maximize the possibility that they can exploit your legal ignorance to induce you to make a “tithe” to their state-sponsored civil religion and church of socialism. That religion is exhaustively described below:

Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. All government forms are designed to encourage you to waive sovereign immunity and engage in commerce with the government. Government does not make forms for those who refuse to do business with them such as “nontaxpayers”, “nonresidents”, or “transient foreigners”. If you want a form that accurately describes your status as a “nontaxpayer” and which preserves your sovereignty and sovereign immunity, you will have to design your own. Government is never going to make it easy to reduce their own revenues, importance, power, or control over you. Everyone in the government is there because they want the largest possible audience of “customers” for their services. Another way of saying this is that they are going to do everything within their power to rig things so that it is impossible to avoid contracting with or doing business with them. This approach has the effect of compelling you to contract with them in violation of Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution, which is supposed to protect your right to NOT contract with the government.
7. The Thirteenth Amendment prohibits involuntary servitude. Consequently, the government cannot lawfully impose any duty, including the duty to fill out or submit a government form. Therefore, you should view every opportunity that presents itself to fill out a government form as an act of contracting away your rights.
8. In the case of government tax forms, the purpose of all government tax forms is to ask the following presumptuous and prejudicial question:

“What kind of ‘taxpayer’ are you?”

. . .rather than the question:

“Are you a ‘taxpayer’?”

The above approach results in what the legal profession refers to as a “leading question”, which is a question contaminated by a prejudicial presumption and therefore inadmissible as evidence. Federal Rule of Evidence 611(c) expressly forbids such leading questions to be used as evidence, which is also why no IRS form can really qualify as evidence that can be used against anyone: It doesn't offer a “nontaxpayer” or a “foreigner” option. An example of such a question is the following:

1 "Have you always beat your wife?"

2 The presumption hidden within the above leading question is that you are a "wife beater". Replace the word "wife
3 beater" with "taxpayer" and you know the main method by which the IRS stays in business.

4 9. If none of the above traps, or "springs" as the U.S. Supreme Court calls them, work against you, the last line of 5 defense the IRS uses is to FORCE you to admit you are a "taxpayer" by:

6 9.1. Telling you that you MUST have a "Taxpayer Identification Number".

7 9.2. Telling you that BECAUSE you have such a number, you MUST be a "taxpayer".

8 9.3. Refusing to talk to you on the phone until you disclose a "Taxpayer Identification Number" to them. We tell
9 them that it is a NONTAXPAYER Identification Number (NIN), and make them promise to treat us as a
10 NONTAXPAYER before it will be disclosed. We also send them an update to the original TIN application
11 making it a NONTAXPAYER number and establishing an anti-franchise franchise that makes THEM liable if 12 they use the number for any commercial purpose that benefits them. See, for instance:

13 5.6.13.4.8 "Nonresident alien individuals" v. "Non-resident NON-Persons"

14 Another devious technique frequently used on government forms to trick "nonresident aliens" into become "resident aliens"
15 subject to federal jurisdiction is add the word "individual" to the term "nonresident alien" and to define an "individual" as a
16 person subject to federal jurisdiction and engaged in the "trade or business" franchise. There are two types of "nonresident 17 aliens":

- 18 1. "Nonresident alien individuals". These persons are described as subject to federal law and having a requirement to file 19 a tax return found in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b).
- 20 2. "Nonresident aliens" who are NOT "persons" or "individuals". These entities are not "individuals" and therefore not 21 "persons" subject to any provision of federal law.

22 One cannot be an "individual" without also being a "person", pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(c). One can also be a
23 "nonresident alien" without being a "nonresident alien individual" and this is the only status that is truly sovereign and
24 foreign in respect to federal jurisdiction. The only way you are going to be free and sovereign is to have a status that is not
25 completely defined in the I.R.C., which is private law and a franchise agreement relating only to "taxpayers". If you are not
26 a franchisee called a "taxpayer" and are therefore not subject to the franchise agreement, then it cannot describe you or 27 impose any duty upon you.

28 "Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and
29 not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the 30 Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and
31 no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law. With them[non-taxpayers]
32 Congress does not assume to deal and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of federal revenue laws."
33 [Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

34 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) defines a "nonresident alien individual" as a person who is neither a citizen or a resident. The 35 title of the section, however, indicates "nonresident alien" and not "nonresident alien individual".

36 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) Nonresident alien

37 An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of
38 the United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

39 They very conveniently don't address those who are not "individuals" because they are "nontaxpayers" and yet who also 40 meet the criteria of being "neither a citizen nor resident of the United States".

41 This "individual" scam is also found on the IRS Form W-8BEN, which only offers "Individual" as an option for those who 42 are human beings and does not offer simply "Transient foreigner", or "Union State Citizen", all of whom would NOT be 43 subject to the I.R.C. We prove this in the following article:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

If you want to avoid labeling yourself as a “individual” who is therefore a “person” subject to the I.R.C. and a “taxpayer”, you will need to use an Amended IRS Form W-8BEN or modify the form yourself. The AMENDED version of the form is available in the article above. The two options it adds are “Transient foreigner” and “Union State Citizen” to block 3 of the form.

This section also brings up a bigger issue that relates to domicile. If you are a “nonresident” because you do not have a domicile within a jurisdiction, then you aren't subject to the civil laws of that jurisdiction unless you engage in commerce with that jurisdiction and therefore surrender sovereign immunity pursuant to the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605.

In International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945), the Supreme Court held that a court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant consistent with due process only if he or she has "certain minimum contacts" with the relevant forum "such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend 'traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.' " Id. at 316 (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 463 (1940)). Unless a defendant's contacts with a forum are so substantial, continuous, and systematic that the defendant can be deemed to be "present" in that forum for all purposes, a forum may exercise only "specific" jurisdiction - that is, jurisdiction based on the relationship between the defendant's forum contacts and the plaintiff's claim.

In this circuit, we analyze specific jurisdiction according to a three-prong test:

- (1) The non-resident defendant must purposefully direct his activities or consummate some transaction with the forum or resident thereof; or perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege of conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws;
- (2) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant's forum-related activities; and
- (3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be reasonable.

Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d. 797, 802 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting Lake v. Lake, 817 F.2d. 1416, 1421 (9th Cir. 1987)). The first prong is determinative in this case. We have sometimes referred to it, in shorthand fashion, as the "purposeful availment" prong. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. Despite its label, this prong includes both purposeful availment and purposeful direction. It may be satisfied by purposeful availment of the privilege of doing business in the forum; by purposeful direction of activities at the forum; or by some combination thereof. [Yahoo! Inc. v. La Ligue Contre Le Racisme Et L'Antisemitisme, 433 F.3d. 1199 (9th Cir. 01/12/2006)].

A “nonresident alien” becomes a “nonresident alien individual” and thereby makes an “election” to be treated as a “person” and therefore an “individual” and a “resident alien” at the point that they engage in commerce with the United States government by participating in the “trade or business” franchise as a public officer in the U.S. government.

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized. [Amended by T.D. 8813, Federal Register: February 2, 1999 (Volume 64, Number 21), Page 4967-4975] [SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Resident-26cfr301.7701-5.pdf>]

Without said participation, they are not an “individual” and retain their sovereign and “foreign” status. Only at that point when they waive sovereign immunity can they be subject to the laws of the sovereignty, a “resident” (alien), and a “person” subject to the civil law of that sovereign. If you refuse to engage in the commerce, which Black's Law Dictionary defines as “intercourse”, with what the Bible refers to as “the Beast”, which is the government, you retain your sovereignty and sovereign immunity and cannot be described as an “Individual” or a “person” subject to the I.R.C.

1           “Commerce. ...Intercourse by way of trade and traffic between different peoples or states and the citizens or
2 inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the
3 instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it
4 is carried on...”
5 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 269]

6 The specific “commerce” and fornication which causes the surrender of sovereign immunity to “the beast” is the “trade or 7 business” franchise, which we also call the “socialism franchise”.

8 5.6.13.4.9           Illegally and FRAUDULENTLY Filing the WRONG return, the IRS 1040

9 Only persons with a domicile in the statutory “United States**”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 10 4 U.S.C. §110(d) as federal territory not within any constitutional State of the Union, may lawfully file IRS Form 1040.
11 This is confirmed by IRS Published Products Catalog, Document 7130 (2003), the IRS Published Products Catalog, which 12 says the following:

13           1040A 11327A Each

18 [IRS Published Products Catalog, Year 2003, p. F-15]

19 The above is also confirmed by the IRS 1040 Instruction Booklet itself, which says at the top of the page describing the 20 filing requirement the following:

21           Filing Requirements

22           These rules apply to all U.S. citizens, regardless of where they live, and resident aliens.

23           [IRS 1040 Instruction Booklet (2001), p. 15;
24 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IncomeTaxRtn/Federal/IRSForm1040Instr.pdf>]

25 What the above deceptive publication very conveniently and deliberately doesn't tell you are the following very important 26 facts:

- 27 1. The “U.S. citizen” they are referring to above is a statutory “U.S. citizen” defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401.
- 28 2. You cannot be either a statutory “U.S. citizen” or a “resident” (alien) unless you have a domicile on federal territory
29 within the “United States”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) as the District
30 of Columbia and territories and possessions of the United States and nowhere “expressly extended” to include any 31 other place.
- 32 3. People born within and domiciled within states of the Union do not have a domicile in the “United States” and 33 therefore cannot lawfully be statutory “U.S. citizens” or “residents” (aliens), but rather are non-residents. They are 34 also “nonresident aliens” per 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) but only if they are engaged in a public office. If they claim to 35 be a “U.S. citizen” on a federal form, they are committing a crime in violation of 18 U.S.C. §911.
- 36 4. The only way that the place where you physically live is irrelevant as mentioned above is under Federal Rule of Civil 37 Procedure 17, which says that if you are acting in a representative capacity as a “public officer” within the federal 38 corporation called the “United States”, the laws of the place of incorporation of the corporation apply, regardless of 39 where you physically are. THE OFFICE has a domicile in the District of Columbia and while you fill it, your effective
40 domicile is also there, regardless of where you live. ONLY in this condition is the place you live irrelevant. It is 41 furthermore a criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §912 for a private person not lawfully elected into public office
42 consistent with federal law to serve in a public office or “pretend” to be a public officer engaged in the “trade or 43 business” franchise.

44 The group of persons that includes statutory “U.S. citizens” and “residents” (aliens) who collectively are the only ones who
45 can lawfully file IRS Form 1040 above are called “U.S. persons”, and they are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\). A
46 nonresident alien is NOT a “U.S. person” and may NOT lawfully elect to be treated as one if he is NOT married to one.
47 The only authority for making an election as a nonresident alien to be treated as a “resident alien” is if he is married to one

1 and wants to file jointly pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) and 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B) . This option is discussed in 2 the next section.

3 People born with and/or domiciled within states of the Union are nonresident aliens, and most of them are ILLEGALLY
4 filing IRS Form 1040 and thereby:

- 5 1. Making an ILLEGAL election to be treated as “resident aliens” when no statute authorizes it.
- 6 2. Impersonating a “U.S. citizen” in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §911.
- 7 3. Impersonating an officer or employee of the federal government in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
- 8 4. Needlessly subjecting themselves to the jurisdiction of federal district courts that would otherwise be “foreign” in 9 relation to them if they had properly described their status as nonresident aliens.

10 The above is a HUGE mistake on their part and a FRAUD on the IRS’ part. The IRS looks the other way and permits this,
11 because this is how they ILLEGALLY manufacture nearly all of the “taxpayers” who they illegally terrorize, uhhh, I mean
12 “service”. Any refunds paid out to nonresident aliens who filed IRS Form 1040 and who have not made a lawful election
13 as a person married to a “U.S. person” are unauthorized and unlawful, and would be cognizable under the following I.R.C.
14 provisions:

- 15 1. 26 U.S.C. §7405: Action for recovery of erroneous refunds.
- 16 2. 26 U.S.C. §7206: Fraud and false statements
- 17 3. 26 U.S.C. §7207: Fraudulent returns, statements, or other documents.

18 Those who would argue otherwise are asked to produce the statute AND implementing regulation specifically authorizing
19 nonresident aliens who are NOT married to “U.S. persons” to make an election to be treated as “resident aliens”. It doesn’t 20 exist!

21 5.6.13.4.10 Making a lawful election on a government form to become a “resident”

22 The government has a vested interest to maximize the number of “taxpayers”. Their authority to impose an income tax has
23 as a prerequisite a “domicile” within the “United States”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4
24 U.S.C. §110(d) to include only federal territory not within any Constitutional state of the Union and is not expanded
25 elsewhere under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A to include states of the Union:

26 “Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in
27 transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the
28 Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates
29 universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter
30 obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course,
31 the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most
32 obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.”
33 Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

34 If you would like to learn more about the relationship of domicile to income taxation, please read the following free article:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

35 As we pointed out throughout this book, people born in and domiciled within states of the Union are “nationals” or “state
36 nationals” and not statutory “U.S. citizens”. They are “Citizens” under the Fourteenth Amendment but NOT statutory 37 “nationals and citizens of the United States** at birth” under 8 U.S.C. §1401. We also showed in section 5.2.4 that the only
38 real “taxpayers” on an IRS Form 1040 are “aliens” of one kind or another. IRS Published Products Catalog, Document
39 7130 (2003), in fact, says that the only people who can use IRS Form 1040 are “citizens and residents of the United States”,
40 both of whom have in common a domicile within the statutory “United States”, meaning federal territory. Collectively,
41 “citizens and residents of the United States” having a domicile on federal territory within the statutory “United States” are
42 called “U.S. persons” and are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). Therefore, the corrupt and covetous government has a
43 vested interest in making “non-resident non-persons” born and domiciled in states of the Union into “resident aliens”. They 44 do this primarily by encouraging non-resident non-persons to volunteer to engage in privileged, excise taxable activities.
45 Under subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code, the only such taxable activity is a “trade or business” or a public office.

In order to learn how the federal government manufactures “taxpayers” out of “nontaxpayers”, we therefore should be looking for ways in which “nonresident aliens” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) and domiciled in the states of the Union are turned into “resident aliens” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\). From a high level view, it would appear simple, because the only way nonresident alien can become a resident is by:

1. Changing his domicile and declaring that change on government forms.
2. Representing a federal office domiciled on federal territory and thereby changing the choice of law to the District of Columbia (the seat of the corporation) under the authority of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.

As our research reveals, this process is a lot more devious and indirect than that. It is so subtle that most people miss it. Once we found out how it was accomplished and identified it in our publications, they immediately hid the evidence!

This ingenious process our corrupted politicians invented to manufacture more “taxpayers” out of people in the states of the Union who started out as nonresident alien “nontaxpayers” is essentially the mechanism by which our public dis-servants destroy the separation of powers that is at the heart of the United States Constitution and thereby assault and destroy our rights and liberties. That separation of powers is insightfully described in the article below:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/LawAndGovt/Articles/SeparationOfPowersDoctrine.htm>

A breakdown of the separation of taxing authority can only occur by the voluntary consent of the people themselves. The states cannot facilitate that breakdown of the separation of powers:

New York v. United States, [505 U.S. 142; 112 S.Ct. 2408; 120 L.Ed.2d. 120 (1992)]

That consent to allow federal income taxation within states of the Union requires a voluntary personal exercise of our private right to contract. Our right to contract is the most dangerous right we have, because the exercise of that right can destroy ALL of our other rights, folks! The most dangerous thing about this right is that if we use it unwisely, the government cannot come to our aid. The purpose of the United States Constitution, in fact, is to protect its exercise and it forbids any state, in Article 1, Section 10, to pass any law that would impair the obligation of any contract we sign. The abuse of your right to contract is as dangerous as the abuse of your pecker can be to your marriage, your family, and the lives of generations of people yet unborn!

A person domiciled in a state of the Union, who starts out as a “nonresident alien”, can become a “resident”, a “taxpayer”, and an “individual” under the Internal Revenue Code by making the necessary “elections” in order to be treated as a “resident” engaged in a “trade or business” instead of a “nonresident alien” not engaged in a “trade or business”. That election is made as follows:

1. If the “nonresident alien” voluntarily signs and submits Social Security Administration Form SS-5, he becomes a “resident alien”. 20 C.F.R. §422.104 says that only “citizens and permanent residents” are eligible to join the program. “nonresident aliens are NOT eligible, so they must voluntarily consent or “elect” to become a “resident” by private law/agreement in order to join.

(1) A United States citizen; or

(2) An alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence or under other authority of law permitting you to work in the United States (§422.105 describes how we determine if a nonimmigrant alien is permitted to work in the United States); or

Note also that the “nonresident alien” must ALSO become a federal “employee” or “public officer” in order to join, because the above regulation appears in C.F.R. Title 20, which is entitled “Employee benefits”. Congress cannot legislate for private employees, but only its own “public employees” or “public officers”, and those officers must be engaged in a taxable “trade or business” in order to pay for the employment privileges that they are availing themselves of:

“The power to “legislate generally upon” life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the “power to provide modes of redress” against offensive state action, was “repugnant” to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress’ §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned.”

[City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

By becoming a “public officer”, you agree to act as a trustee and officer of the “U.S. Inc.” corporation defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A), which has a domicile in the District of Columbia. Therefore, your domicile assumes that of the corporation you represent pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). The exact mechanisms for how the Social Security System transforms a “nonresident alien” into a “resident alien federal employee” are described in detail in the following informative pamphlet:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a), a “nonresident alien” may submit an IRS Form W-4 to his private employer and thereby elect to call his earnings “wages”, which makes him “effectively connected with a trade or business”. This means, according to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) that he is engaged in a “public office”.

26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements

Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term “wages” includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3.

Once you begin earning “wages”, your compensation is documented and reported on a W-2 pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041, which says that only “trade or business” earnings can be reported on a W-2. This means, according to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) that the worker is engaged in a “public office”. 4 U.S.C. §72 says that all public offices exist ONLY in the District of Columbia, and therefore, you consented to be treated as a “resident” of the District of Columbia for the purposes of the income tax, because you are representing a federal corporation in the District of Columbia as a “public officer” and your effective domicile is the domicile of the corporation pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b):

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

3. Pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4) and 26 U.S.C. §6013(g), he can decide to file an IRS Form 1040, and thereby become a “resident alien”. IRS Published Products Catalog, Document 7130 (2003) identifies the IRS Form 1040 as being only suitable for use by “citizens and residents of the United States”. The “individual” in the title “U.S. Individual Income Tax Return” means a “resident alien” in that scenario. This is explained in the following sources:
  - 3.1. Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.5.3: You’re Not a U.S. citizen if you file a 1040 form, You’re an alien
  - 3.2. Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.5.4 entitled: “You’re not the U.S. citizen mentioned at the top of the 1040 form if you are a U.S. citizen domiciled in the federal United States”
4. After making the above elections, if the IRS then writes us some friendly “dear taxpayer” letters, and we respond and don't deny that we are "taxpayers" or provide exculpatory proof that we are not, then we are admitting that:

4.1. We are subject to the IRC.

4.2. We are "taxpayers".

The bottom line is that if you act like a duck and quack like one, then the IRS is going to think you are one! That deception usually occurs because we deceived the government about our true status by either filling out the wrong form, or filing the right form out incorrectly and in a way that does not represent our true status. This is covered in our article below:

"Taxpayer" v. "Nontaxpayer": Which one are You?, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/TaxpayerVNontaxpayer.htm>

Through the elections made by the nonresident alien above, it contractually agreed to become a representative of a legal fiction that is a "resident" or "resident alien" or "permanent resident", all of which are equivalent and are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\). Think of such person as a "resident agent" for the "U.S. Inc" federal corporation. A "resident" is within the legislative jurisdiction of the of "United States". A "domicile" or "residence" is what puts them within the legislative jurisdiction of the "United States". The "nonresident alien" therefore became a "resident alien" not because they have a physical presence there, but because the SS-5 federal employment contract they signed made them into "representatives" and "public officers" for the federal corporation called the "United States". Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17\(b\), their effective domicile or residence is that of the federal corporation they represent, which is the "United States", as indicated in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). That corporation, like all corporations, is a "citizen" of the place of its incorporation, which in this case is the District of Columbia:

*"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."
 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]*

The above mechanisms for DESTROYING the sovereignty of We the People and breaking down the separation of Powers between the state and federal governments are consistent with the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. §1602 to 1611. 28 U.S.C. §1605\(a\)\(2\) says that a foreign sovereign, such as a "non-resident non-person", surrenders their sovereign immunity by PURPOSEFULLY and CONSENSUALLY conducting "commerce" within the legislative jurisdiction of the "United States". A non-resident non-person who has accomplished one or more of the above steps meets the criteria for the surrender of sovereign immunity because:

1. He is conducting "commerce" within the legislative jurisdiction of the United States pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2) as a public officer or a representative of a Social Security Trust that is a "public officer".

TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > § 1605
§ 1605. General exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state

(a) A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any case—

(2) in which the action is based upon a commercial activity carried on in the United States by the foreign state; or upon an act performed in the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere; or upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States;

Through the SS-5 federal job or contract application, the non-resident non-person contractually agreed to become a federal "employee" or "public officer" engaged in a "trade or business" who is conducting "commerce" with the government. The Social Security Act and the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A are the "employment contract" or "franchise agreement" that they must observe while acting in a representative capacity as a "public officer". That "franchise agreement" governs choice of law should any of the terms of the contract need to be litigated. 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\) and 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\) say that all litigation over the terms of the contract must occur in a federal court under the laws of the District of Columbia.

§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

1 (39) Persons residing outside United States

2 If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States
 3 judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes
 4 of any provision of this title relating to—

- 5 (A) jurisdiction of courts, or
 6 (B) enforcement of summons.

7 Another way of saying this is that you can't become a federal "employee" or contractor unless you agree to obey what
 8 your new boss tells you to do, and the only way that boss, the government, can direct your activities is through "law".
 9 This is what we call a "roach trap statute", which is a statute whose benefits entice you into a trap that causes you to 10 acquire the equivalent of a new land-lord. Since kidnapping and identity theft are illegal, then they need your consent
 11 or permission to kidnap your legal identity or "res" and move it to the District of Columbia so that it can be 12 "identified" there. See 18 U.S.C. §1201. This is how you became a "res"+"ident", or a "resident" of the District of 13 Columbia. Therefore, you must also agree to be subject to federal law as a "resident" before you can become a "public
 14 officer", federal benefit recipient, or contractor. Once you become any one of these three types of entities, 44 U.S.C.
 15 §1505(a) and 5 U.S.C. §553(a) say that you also agreed to obey all commands of your new boss, which is Congress,
 16 without the need for implementing regulations published in the federal register. The Legislative Branch is the boss,
 17 and the Executive Branch works for the Legislative Branch to implement and enforce the will of the sovereign people.
 18 In the process of becoming a federal "employee" or "public officer", you also implicitly surrendered ALL of your 19 constitutional rights in the context of your official duties:

20 "The restrictions that the Constitution places upon the government in its capacity as lawmaker, i.e., as the 21 regulator of private conduct, are not the same as the restrictions that it places upon the government in its

- 36 2. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1332(c) and (d), the non-resident non-person, by making the necessary elections, has lost his 37 sovereign immunity as a "foreign sovereign" because he became a "resident" or "citizen" of that foreign state for the 38 purposes of federal law. This is what 28 U.S.C. §1603(b)(3) below says:

39 TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > § 1603
 40 § 1603. Definitions

41 For purposes of this chapter—

42 (a) A "foreign state", except as used in section 1608 of this title, includes a political subdivision of a foreign 43 state or an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state as defined in subsection (b).

44 (b) An "agency or instrumentality of a foreign state" means any entity—

45 (1) which is a separate legal person, corporate or otherwise, and

46 (2) which is an organ of a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, or a majority of whose shares or other
 47 ownership interest is owned by a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, and

48 (3) which is neither a citizen of a State of the United States as defined in section 1332 (c) and (d) of this title,
 49 nor created under the laws of any third country.

50 Only AFTER the above "elections" or consent have been voluntarily procured completely absent any duress can the party
 51 become the object of involuntary IRS enforcement, and NOT before.

52 "Waivers of constitutional rights not only must be voluntary but must be knowing, intelligent acts done with 53 sufficient awareness of the relevant circumstances and likely consequences."
 54 [Brady v. U.S., 397 U.S. at 749, 90 S.Ct. 1463 at 1i469 (1970)]

"The question of a waiver of a federally guaranteed constitutional right is, of course, a federal question controlled by federal law. There is a presumption against the waiver of constitutional rights, see, e.g. Glasser v. United States, 315 U.S. 60, 70-71, 86 L.Ed. 680, 699, 62 S.Ct. 457, and for a waiver to be effective it must be clearly established that there was "an intentional relinquishment or abandonment of a known right or privilege." Johnson v. Zerbst, 304 U.S. 458, 464, 82 L.Ed. 1461, 1466, 58 S.Ct. 1019, 146 A.L.R. 357." Brookhart v. Janis, [384 U.S. 1; 86 S.Ct. 1245; 16 L.Ed.2d. 314 (1966)]

If no consent was ever explicitly (in writing) or implicitly (by conduct) given or if consent was procured through deceit, fraud, or duress, or was procured without full disclosure and "reasonable notice" ON THE AGREEMENT ITSELF of all rights being surrendered, the contract is voidable at the option of the person subject to the duress but not automatically void:

"An agreement [consent] obtained by duress, coercion, or intimidation is invalid, since the party coerced is not exercising his free will, and the test is not so much the means by which the party is compelled to execute the agreement as the state of mind induced.<sup>142</sup> Duress, like fraud, rarely becomes material, except where a contract or conveyance has been made which the maker wishes to avoid. As a general rule, duress renders the contract or conveyance voidable, not void, at the option of the person coerced,<sup>143</sup> and it is susceptible of ratification. Like other voidable contracts, it is valid until it is avoided by the person entitled to avoid it.<sup>144</sup> However, duress in the form of physical compulsion, in which a party is caused to appear to assent when he has no intention of doing so, is generally deemed to render the resulting purported contract void.<sup>145</sup> [American Jurisprudence 2d, Duress, §21 (1999)]

AFTER a non-resident non-person domiciled in a state of the Union has made the elections necessary to be treated as though he is "effectively connected with a trade or business" by voluntarily signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4, the code says he becomes a "resident alien". In fact, we allege that the term "effectively connected" is a code word for "contracted" or "consented" to procure "social insurance" as a federal "employee". The act of engaging in a "trade or business" makes non-resident non-persons subject to the code, and under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\) and 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\), their "effective domicile" shifts to the District of Columbia. Beyond that point, they become parties to federal law and whenever they walk into a federal district court, the courts are obligated to treat them as though they effectively reside in the District of Columbia. The older versions of the Treasury Regulations demonstrate EXACTLY how this election process works to transform "non-resident non-persons" or even "nonresident aliens" into "residents" who are then "taxpayers":

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized. [Amended by T.D. 8813, Federal Register: February 2, 1999 (Volume 64, Number 21), Page 4967-4975]

Shortly after we posted the information contained in this article on our website, the Treasury deleted the above regulation and replaced it on the Government Printing Office website with a temporary regulation that doesn't tell the truth quite so plainly. They don't want you to know how they made you into a "resident". This is their secret weapon, folks. If you want

1 to know how to undo the effects of this secret weapon, please read Section 5.6.13.10 later, entitled "How to Correct
2 Government Records to Reflect your True Status as a Nonresident Alien".

3 The trouble and inherent corruption associated with this deceitful manufacturing process is that:

- 4 1. The government won't admit on its website or its publications or its phone support that your voluntary consent is 5 necessary as a nonresident alien nontaxpayer in order to become a resident alien taxpayer.
- 6 2. The IRS Publications don't contain either legal definitions that would help you understand the full extent of your tax
7 obligation and they won't talk with you about the law on the phone, because then you would instantly realize that they 8 have no authority.
- 9 3. The courts refuse to hold the IRS responsible for telling the truth. See:

*Federal Courts and the IRS' Own IRM Say IRS is NOT RESPONSIBLE for Its Actions or Its Words or For Following
Its Own Written Procedures*, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm>

- 10 4. The IRS won't tell you how to "unvolunteer" or how your consent was procured, because they want everyone to be 11 indentured government slaves in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
- 12 5. The IRS deceives you on their website by omitting key truths contained in this pamphlet from their website and by 13 refusing to address completely in their propaganda literature, such as the following:

Rebutted Version of the IRS "The Truth About Frivolous Tax Arguments", Form #08.005
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 14 6. If you confront them with the truth, they are silent and won't respond, because if they did, their Ponzi scheme would 15 cave in and people would leave the system in droves.
- 16 7. Those who expose these truths are often persecuted by the IRS for reminding people that you can unvolunteer using the 17 techniques described in section 5.6.13.10 later.
- 18 8. Private companies and financial institutions who file false information returns (e.g. W-2, 1099) that connect you to a 19 "trade or business" (pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041) or who compel you to sign or submit either an SS-5 to get an
20 identifying number or W-4 to procure a job and who threaten to either not hire you or fire you if they don't are engaged
21 in extortion, money laundering, and racketeering for which the government should be prosecuting them. However, the 22 Dept. of Justice looks the other way because they want the plunder to continue flowing into their checking account.

23 The sin and corruption that keeps our tax system going is therefore mainly a sin of "omission", rather than "commission".
24 Silence by the IRS and failure to act properly or in the best interests of all Americans, in fulfillment of the fiduciary duty
25 that public servants have, by informing Americans of exactly what the law says and requires is what allows the fraud to 26 continue.

27 Lastly, THE MOST IMPORTANT thing you can have in your administrative record with the government is evidence of 28 duress being instituted against you as described above. An affidavit of duress should be maintained at all times
29 documenting the unlawful and coerced nature of all information returns filed against you, all W-4's, SS-5 forms, etc. that
30 were instituted against you, so that you have legal recourse to recover taxes or penalties unlawfully or illegally collected
31 against you using Form #04.001. Treasury Decision 3445 says that if you pay a tax or have it levied or deducted from your 32 pay, the MOST important thing you can do is establish proof on the record of the company that did it of duress and that it is 33 being collected "under protest", or else you forfeit your right to recover it in court:

The principle that taxes voluntarily paid can not be recovered back is thoroughly established. It has been so 34 declared in the following cases in the Supreme Court: United States v. New York & Cuba Mail Steamship Co.
35 (200 U.S. 488, 493, 494); Chesebrough v. United States (192 U.S. 253); Little v. Bowers (134 U.S. 547, 554);
36 Wright v. Blakeslee (101 U.S. 174, 178); Railroad Co. v. Commissioner (98 U.S. 541, 543); Lamborn v. County
37 Commissioners (97 U.S. 181); Elliott v. Swartwout (10 Pet. 137). And there are numerous like cases in other 38 Federal courts: Procter & Gamble Co. v. United States (281 Fed. 1014); Vaughan v. Riordan (280 Fed. 742, 39 745); Beer v. Moffatt (192 Fed. 984, affirmed 209 Fed. 779); Newhall v. Jordan (160 Fed. 661); Christie Street
40 Commission Co. v. United States (126 Fed. 991); Kentucky Bank v. Stone (88 Fed. 383); Corkie v. Maxwell (7 41 Fed.Cas. 3231).

And the rule of the Federal courts is not at all peculiar to them. It is the settled general rule of the State courts as well that no matter what may be the ground of the objection to the tax or assessment if it has been paid voluntarily and without compulsion it can not be recovered back in an action at law, unless there is some constitutional or statutory provision which gives to one so paying such a right notwithstanding the payment was made without compulsion.--Adams v. New Bedford (155 Mass. 317); McCue v. Monroe County
43 (162 N.Y. 235); Taylor v. Philadelphia Board of Health (31 P. St. 73); Williams v. Merritt (152 Mich. 621); 44 Gould v. Hennepin County (76 Minn. 379); Martin v. Kearney County (62 Minn. 538); Gar v. Hurd (92 Ill.
45 46 47 48 49

And it has been many times held, in the absence of a statute on the subject, that mere payment under protest does not save a payment from being voluntary, in the sense which forbids a recovery back of the tax paid, if it was not made under any duress, compulsion, or threats, or under the pressure of process immediately available for the forcible collection of the tax.--Dexter v. Boston (176 Mass. 247); Flower v. Lance (59 N.Y. 603); Williams v. Merritt (152 Mich. 621); Oakland Cemetery Association v. Ramsey County (98 Minn. 404); Robins v. Latham (134 No. 466); Whitbeck v. Minch (48 Ohio.St. 210); Peebles v. Pittsburgh.(101 Pa.St. 304); Montgomery v. Cowlitz County (14 Wash. 230); Cincinnati & C. R. Co. v. Hamilton County (120 Tenn. 1).

The principle that a tax or an assessment voluntarily paid can not be recovered back is an ancient one in the common law and is of general application. See Cooley on Taxation (vol. 2, 3d ed. p. 1495). That eminent authority also points out that every man is supposed to know the law, and if he voluntarily makes a payment which the law would not compel him to make he can not afterwards assign his ignorance of the law as a reason why the State should furnish him with legal remedies to recover it back. And he adds:

5.6.13.4.11 Jurat/Perjury statement on IRS Forms

Signing a perjury statement not only constitutes the taking of an oath, but also constitutes the conveying of consent to be held accountable for the accuracy and truthfulness of what appears on the form. It therefore constitutes an act of contracting that conveys consent and rights to the government to hold you accountable for the accuracy of what is on the form. Governments are created to protect your right to contract and the Constitution forbids them from interfering with or impairing the exercise of that inalienable right. Governments are created to ensure that every occasion you give consent or contract is not coerced.

"Independent of these views, there are many considerations which lead to the conclusion that the power to impair contracts, by direct action to that end, does not exist with the general [federal] government. In the first place, one of the objects of the Constitution, expressed in its preamble, was the establishment of justice, and what that meant in its relations to contracts is not left, as was justly said by the late Chief Justice, in Hepburn v. Griswold, to inference or conjecture. As he observes, at the time the Constitution was undergoing discussion in the convention, the Congress of the Confederation was engaged in framing the ordinance for the government of the Northwestern Territory, in which certain articles of compact were established between the people of the original States and the people of the Territory, for the purpose, as expressed in the instrument, of extending the fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty, upon which the States, their laws and constitutions, were erected. By that ordinance it was declared, that, in the just preservation of rights and property, 'no law ought ever to be made, or have force in the said Territory, that shall, in any manner, interfere with or affect private contracts or engagements bona fide and without fraud previously formed.' The same provision, adds the Chief Justice, found more condensed expression in the prohibition upon the States [in Article I, Section 10 of the Constitution] against impairing the obligation of contracts, which has ever been recognized as an efficient safeguard against injustice; and though the prohibition is not applied in terms to the government of the United States, he expressed the opinion, speaking for himself and the majority of the court at the time, that it was clear 'that those who framed and those who adopted the Constitution intended that the spirit of this prohibition should pervade the entire body of legislation, and that the justice which the Constitution was ordained to establish was not thought by them to be compatible with legislation [or judicial precedent] of an opposite tendency.' 8 Wall. 623. [99 U.S. 700, 765] Similar views are found expressed in the opinions of other judges of this court."
[Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 (1878)]

The presence of coercion, penalties, or duress of any kind in the process of giving consent renders the contract unenforceable and void.

"An agreement [consensual contract] obtained by duress, coercion, or intimidation is invalid, since the party coerced is not exercising his free will, and the test is not so much the means by which the party is compelled to execute the agreement as the state of mind induced.<sup>146</sup> Duress, like fraud, rarely becomes material, except where a contract or conveyance has been made which the maker wishes to avoid. As a general rule, duress renders the contract or conveyance voidable, not void, at the option of the person coerced,<sup>147</sup> and it is susceptible of ratification. Like other voidable contracts, it is valid until it is avoided by the person entitled to avoid it.<sup>148</sup> However, duress in the form of physical compulsion, in which a party is caused to appear to assent when he has no intention of doing so, is generally deemed to render the resulting purported contract void.<sup>149</sup>”

[American Jurisprudence 2d, Duress, §21 (1999)]

Any instance where you are required to give consent cannot be coerced or subject to penalty and must therefore be voluntary. Any penalty or threat of penalty in specifying the terms under which you provide your consent is an interference or impairment with your right to contract. This sort of unlawful interference with your right to contract happens all the time when the IRS illegally penalizes people for specifying the terms under which they consent to be held accountable on a tax form.

The perjury statement found at the end of nearly every IRS Form is based on the content of 28 U.S.C. §1746:

TITLE 28 > PART V > CHAPTER 115 > § 1746
§1746. Unsworn declarations under penalty of perjury

Wherever, under any law of the United States or under any rule, regulation, order, or requirement made pursuant to law, any matter is required or permitted to be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the sworn declaration, verification, certificate, statement, oath, or affidavit, in writing of the person making the same (other than a deposition, or an oath of office, or an oath required to be taken before a specified official other than a notary public), such matter may, with like force and effect, be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the unsworn declaration, certificate, verification, or statement, in writing of such person which is subscribed by him, as true under penalty of perjury, and dated, in substantially the following form:

(1) If executed without the United States: “I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date). (Signature)”.

(2) If executed within the United States, its territories, possessions, or commonwealths: “I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date). (Signature)”.

The term “United States” as used above means the territories and possessions of the United States and the District of Columbia and excludes states of the Union mentioned in the Constitution. Below is the perjury statement found on the IRS Form 1040 and 1040NR:

“Under penalties of perjury, I declare that I have examined this return and accompanying schedules and statements, and to the best of my knowledge and belief, they are true, correct, and complete. Declaration of preparer (other than taxpayer) is based on all information of which preparer has any knowledge.”
[IRS Forms 1040 and 1040NR jurat/perjury statement]

Notice, based on the above perjury statement, that:

- You are a “taxpayer”. Notice it uses the words “(other than taxpayer)”. The implication is that you can’t use any standard IRS Form WITHOUT being a “nontaxpayer”. As a consequence, signing any standard IRS Form makes you a “taxpayer” and a “resident alien”. See:

Who are “Taxpayers” and Who Needs a “Taxpayer Identification Number”?, Form #05.013 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
- The perjury statement indicated in 28 U.S.C. §1746\(2\) is assumed and established, which means that you are creating a presumption that you maintain a domicile on federal territory.

Those who want to avoid committing perjury under penalty of perjury by correcting the IRS form to reflect the fact that they are not a “taxpayer” and are not within the “United States” face an even bigger hurdle. If they try to modify the perjury statement to conform with 28 U.S.C. §1746\(1\), frequently the IRS or government entity receiving the form will try to penalize them for modifying the form. The penalty is usually $500 for modifying the jurat. This leaves them with the unpleasant prospect of choosing the lesser of the following two evils:

<sup>149</sup> Restatement 2d, Contracts § 174, stating that if conduct that appears to be a manifestation of assent by a party who does not intend to engage in that conduct is physically compelled by duress, the conduct is not effective as a manifestation of assent.

1. Committing perjury under penalty of perjury by misrepresenting themselves as a resident of the federal zone and destroying their sovereignty immunity in the process pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1603\(b\).
2. Changing the jurat statement, being the object of a $500 penalty, and then risking having them reject the form.

How do we work around the above perjury statement at the end of most IRS Forms in order to avoid either becoming a “resident” of the federal “United States” or a presumed “taxpayer”? Below are a few examples of how to do this:

1. You can write a statement above the signature stating “signature not valid without the attached signed STATEMENT and all enclosures” and then on the attachment, redefine the ENTIRE perjury statement:

“IRS frequently and illegally penalizes parties not subject to their jurisdiction such as ‘nontaxpayers’ who attempt to physically modify language on their forms. They may only lawfully administer penalties to public officers and not private persons, because the U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate private conduct is ‘repugnant to the constitution’. I, as a private human and not statutory ‘person’ and a ‘nontaxpayer’ not subject to IRS penalties, am forced to create this attachment because I would be committing perjury if I signed the form as it is without making the perjury statement consistent with my circumstances as indicated in 28 U.S.C. §1746. Therefore, regardless of what the perjury statement says on your form, here is what I define the words in your perjury statement paragraph to mean:

“Under penalties of perjury from without the ‘United States’ pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1746(1), I declare that I have examined this return and accompanying schedules and statements, and to the best of my knowledge and belief, they are true, correct, and complete. I declare that I am a ‘nontaxpayer’ not subject to the Internal Revenue Code, not domiciled in the ‘United States’, and not participating in a ‘trade or business’ and that it is a Constitutional tort to enforce the I.R.C. against me. I also declare that any attempt to use the content of this form to enforce any provision of the I.R.C. against me shall render everything on this form as religious and political statements and beliefs rather than facts which are not admissible as evidence pursuant to Fed.Rul.Ev. 610.

If you attempt to penalize me, you will be penalizing a person for refusing to commit perjury and will become an accessory to a conspiracy to commit perjury.”

2. You can write a statement above the signature stating “signature not valid without the attached signed STATEMENT and all enclosures” and then attach the following form:

Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. You can make your own form or tax return and use whatever you want on the form. They can only penalize persons who use THEIR forms. If you make your own form, you can penalize THEM for misusing YOUR forms or the information on those forms. This is the approach taken by the following form. Pay particular attention to section 1 of the form:

Federal Nonresident Nonstatutory Claim for Return of Funds Unlawfully Paid to the Government-Long, Form #15.001

5.6.13.4.12 Social Security Administration HIDES your citizenship status in their NUMIDENT records

Your citizenship status is represented in the Social Security NUMIDENT record maintained by the Social Security Administration. The field called “CSP” within NUMIDENT contains a one character code that represents your citizenship status. This information is DELIBERATELY concealed and obfuscated from public view by the following Social Security policies:

1. The meaning of the CSP codes is NOT listed in the Social Security Administration, Program Operations Manual System (POMS) online so you can't find out.
<https://s044a90.ssa.gov/apps10/poms.nsf/partlist!OpenView>
2. Employees at the SSA offices are NOT allowed to know and typically DO NOT know what the code means.
3. If you submit a Freedom Of Information Act (FOIA) request to SSA asking them what the CSP code means, they will respond that the values of the codes are CLASSIFIED and therefore UNKNOWABLE by the public. You ARE NOT allowed to know WHAT citizenship status they associate with you. See the following negative response:

Social Security Admin. FOIA for CSP Code Values, Exhibit #01.011
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

4. The ONLY option they give you in block 5 entitled "CITIZENSHIP" are the following. They REFUSE to distinguish WHICH "United States" is implied in the term "U.S. citizen", and if they told the truth, the ONLY citizen they could lawfully mean is a STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" per 8 U.S.C. §1401 and NOT a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen, who is a STATUTORY nonresident and alien in relation to the national government with a foreign domicile:

4.1. "U.S. citizen"

4.2. "Legal Alien Allowed to Work"

4.3. "Legal Alien NOT allowed to Work" (See Instructions on Page 1)

4.4. "Other" (See instructions on page 1)

See:

Social Security Administration Form SS-5

<http://www.famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/ss-5.pdf>

Those who are domiciled outside the statutory "United States*" or in a constitutional state of the Union and who want to correct the citizenship records of the SSA must submit a new SSA Form SS-5 to the Social Security Administration (SSA) and check "Other" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) in Block 5. This changes the CSP code in their record from "A" to "D". If you go into the Social Security Office and try to do this, the local offices often will try to give you a run-around with the following abusive and CRIMINAL tactics:

1. When you ask them about the meaning of Block 5, they will refuse to indicate whether the citizenship indicated is a CIVIL/STATUTORY status or a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL status. It can't be both. It must indicate NATIONALITY or DOMICILE, but not BOTH.
2. They will first try to call the national office to ask about your status in Block 5.
3. They will ABSOLUTELY REFUSE to involve you in the call or to hear what is said, because they want to protect the perpetrators of crime on the other end. Remember, terrorists always operate anonymously and they are terrorists. You should bring your MP3 voice record, insist on being present, and put the phone on speaker phone, and do EXACTLY the same thing they do when you call them directly by saying the following:

"This call is being monitored for quality assurance purposes, just like you do to me without my consent ALL THE TIME."

4. After they get off the phone, they will refuse to tell you the full legal name of the person on the other end of the call to protect those who are perpetuating the fraud.
5. They will tell you that they want to send your SSA Form SS-5 to the national office in Baltimore, Maryland, but refuse to identify EXACTLY WHO they are sending it to, because they don't want this person sued personally as they should be.
6. The national office will sit on the form forever and refuse to make the change requested, and yet never justify with the law by what authority they:
  - 6.1. Perpetuate the criminal computer fraud that results from NOT changing it.
  - 6.2. Perpetuate the criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §911 by NOT changing it.
7. They will allow you to change ANYTHING ELSE on the form without their permission, but if you want to change your CITIZENSHIP, they essentially interfere with it illegally and criminally.

The reason they play all the above obfuscation GAMES and hide or classify information to conceal the GAMES is because they want to protect what they certainly know are the following CRIMES on their part and that of their employees:

1. They can't offer federal benefits to CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY citizens with a domicile outside of federal territory. If they do, they would be criminally violating 18 U.S.C. §911.
2. They can't pay public monies to PRIVATE parties, and therefore you CANNOT apply with the SS-5 for a "benefit" unless you are a public officer ALREADY employed with the government. If they let PRIVATE people apply they are conspiring to commit the crime of impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
3. They aren't allowed to offer or enforce any government franchise within the borders of a Constitutional but not STATUTORY state of the Union, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court, so they have to make you LOOK like a STATUTORY citizen, even though you aren't, in order to expand their Ponzi Scheme outside their GENERAL jurisdiction and into legislatively foreign states.

"Congress cannot authorize [LICENSE, using a de facto license number called a "Social Security Number"] a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

The only status a state domiciled CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY citizen can put on the form is "Other" or "Legal [STATUTORY] Alien Allowed to Work". The instructions say following about "Other" option:

"If you check "Other", you need to provide proof that you are entitled to a federally-funded benefit for which Social Security number is required as a condition for you to receive payment."

In answer to the above query in connection with the "Other" option, we suggest:

"DO NOT seek any federally funded benefit. I want a NONtaxpayer number that entitles me to ABSOLUTELY NOTHING as a NONRESIDENT not subject to federal law and NOT qualified to receive benefits of any kind. I am only applying because:

1. I am being illegally compelled to use a number I know I am not qualified to ask for.

2. The number was required as a precondition condition of PRIVATE employment or opening an PRIVATE financial account by a NON-RESIDENT NON-PERSON who is NOT a statutory "U.S. citizen" or "U.S. person" and who is NOT required to have or use such a number by 31 C.F.R. §306.10, 31 C.F.R. §103.34(a)(3)(x), and IRS Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities.

I ask that you criminally prosecute them for doing so AND provide a statement on SSA letterhead indicating that I am NOT eligible that I can show them. Furthermore, if you do have any numbers on file connected with my name, I ask that they be rescinded permanently from your records."

Then you may want to attach the following forms to the application to ENSURE that they reject your application and TELL you that you are NOT eligible so you can show it to the person who is COMPELLING you to use a number:

1. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
2. Why It is Illegal for Me to Request or Use a "Taxpayer Identification Number", Form #04.205

5.6.13.4.13 Federal courts refusing to recognize sovereignty of litigant

A nonresident is an entity with no domicile within the venue or forum. This means that they are:

1. Not a "taxpayer" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) or 26 U.S.C. §1313.

"Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law. With them[non-taxpayers] Congress does not assume to deal and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of federal revenue laws." [Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

2. Not a "person" or "individual" under the civil law of the forum. See our article on domicile:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

3. Protected by the Minimum Contacts Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court. See section 5.6.13.5.4 later.
4. Protected by the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part 4, Chapter 97. The government as the moving party asserting a liability has the burden of showing that you expressly waived sovereign immunity by either:
  - 4.1. Mistakenly declaring yourself a "citizen" or "resident" pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1603(b)(3) who therefore has domicile (nationals) or a residence (aliens) within federal territory.
  - 4.2. Consensually conducting commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the sovereign pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605.
5. "foreign" and a "foreigner" in relation to the forum.
6. NOT a "foreign person" because not a "person".

In order to compel federal courts to recognize all the requirements of the above, we have prepared the following, which you should attach to all your pleadings in federal court:

Federal Pleading/Motion/Petition Attachment, Litigation Tool #01.002
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>

Even after the above is attached and even after sovereign immunity is properly invoked by a “non-resident non-person” who is NOT an “individual” or “person”, even then some federal courts will further interfere with the sovereign immunity of people litigating before them by creating a “presumption” that the litigants are domiciliaries of the forum through the following means:

1. Refusing to recognize that:
  - 1.1. You, the litigant are a “nontaxpayer”.
  - 1.2. “Nontaxpayers” even exist. The result is that EVERYONE is “presumed” to be a “taxpayer”, which means they are PRESUMED guilty until proven innocent. This turns the foundation of American Jurisprudence upside down, which is the presumption of innocent until proven guilty.

“The presumption of innocence, although not articulated in the Constitution, is a basic component of a fair trial under our system of criminal justice. Long ago this Court stated:

The principle that there is a presumption of innocence in favor of the accused is the undoubted law, axiomatic and elementary, and its enforcement lies at the foundation of the administration of our criminal law.”
[Coffin v. United States, 156 U.S. 432, 453 (1895)]

“In Calder v. Bull, which was here in 1798, Mr. Justice Chase said, that there were acts which the Federal and State legislatures could not do without exceeding their authority, and among them he mentioned a law which punished a citizen for an innocent act; a law that destroyed or impaired the lawful private [labor] contracts [and labor compensation, e.g. earnings from employment through compelled W-4 withholding] of citizens; a law that made a man judge in his own case; and a law that took the property from A [the worker], and gave it to B [the government or another citizen, such as through social welfare programs]. ‘It is against all reason and justice,’ he added, ‘for a people to intrust a legislature with such powers, and therefore it cannot be presumed that they have done it. They may command what is right and prohibit what is wrong; but they cannot change innocence [a “nontaxpayer”] into guilt [a “taxpayer”, by presumption or otherwise], or punish innocence as a crime, or violate the right of an antecedent lawful private [employment] contract [by compelling W-4 withholding, for instance], or the right of private property. To maintain that a Federal or State legislature possesses such powers [of THEFT!] if they had not been expressly restrained, would, in my opinion, be a political heresy altogether inadmissible in all free republican governments.’ 3 Dall. 388.”

- 1.4. That the Declaratory Judgments Act, 28 U.S.C. §2201(a) does not apply to “nontaxpayers”. See section 5.9 of the Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid document above for details.

2. Refusing to require your government opponent to justify why the Minimum Contacts Doctrine invoked by you is satisfied and why the court therefore has jurisdiction to hear the civil case.
3. Refusing to require your government opponent to justify why the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part 4, Chapter 97, invoked by you is satisfied and why the court therefore has jurisdiction to hear the civil case.
4. Citing irrelevant cases litigated by “citizens” or “residents” against you. All such case law amounts to little more than political propaganda which is IRRELEVANT to the circumstances of a nonresident, who never consented to be protected by the laws of the forum and who shouldn't have and hopefully didn't invoke them in his defense.
5. Calling attempts to identify yourself as other than a “person” or an “individual” to be “frivolous” without explaining why. This tactic is described in section 6.15 of the document below:

5.6.13.4.14 Obfuscation of the word “citizen” by the U.S. Supreme Court to make POLITICAL and CIVIL citizens FRAUDULENTLY appear equivalent<sup>150</sup>

1 The U.S. Supreme Court has participated in the illegal extension of the federal income tax to EXTRATERRITORIAL
2 jurisdictions both abroad and within states of the Union. In the following subsections, we discuss their devious tactics for 3 implementing this FRAUD.

4 5.6.13.4.14.1 Extraterritorial Tax Jurisdiction of the National Government

5 We wish to elaborate on the case of Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924) as it relates to extraterritorial taxing jurisdiction. That
6 case is important because it is frequently cited as authority by federal courts as the origin of their extraterritorial jurisdiction
7 to tax. Ordinarily, and especially in the case of states of the Union, domicile within that state by the state "citizen" is the 8 determining factor as to whether an income tax is owed to the state by that citizen:

9 "domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and
10 principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith,
11 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's 12 home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place
13 to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one
14 residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual 15 residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may 16 exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges.
17 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

18 "Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in
19 transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the
20 Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates
21 universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter
22 obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course,
23 the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most
24 obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
25 Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

26 We also establish the connection between domicile and tax liability in the following article.

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

27 Only in the case of the national government for statutory but not constitutional "U.S. citizens" abroad are factors OTHER
28 than domicile even relevant, as pointed out in Cook v. Tait. What "OTHER" matters might those be? Well, in the case of 29 Cook, the thing taxed is a voluntary franchise, and that status of being a statutory but not constitutional "U.S. citizen"
30 abroad exercising what the courts call "privileges and immunities" of the national (rather than FEDERAL) government is 31 the franchise. Note the language in Cook v. Tait, which attempted to connect the American located and domiciled "abroad"
32 in Mexico with receipt of a government "benefit" and therefore excise taxable "privilege" and franchise/contract.

33 "We may make further exposition of the national power as the case depends upon it. It was illustrated at once
34 in United States v. Bennett by a contrast with the power of a state. It was pointed out that there were limitations
35 upon the latter that were not on the national power. The taxing power of a state, it was decided, encountered
36 at its borders the taxing power of other states and was limited by them. There was no such limitation, it was 37 pointed out, upon the national power, and that the limitation upon the states affords, it was said, no ground
38 for constructing a barrier around the United States, 'shutting that government off from the exertion of 39 powers which inherently belong to it by virtue of its sovereignty.'

40 "The contention was rejected that a citizen's property without the limits of the United States derives no
41 benefit from the United States. The contention, it was said, came from the confusion of thought in 'mistaking
42 the scope and extent of the sovereign power of the United States as a nation and its relations to its citizens and
43 their relation to it.' And that power in its scope and extent, it was decided, is based on the presumption
44 that government by its very nature benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and that
45 opposition to it holds on to citizenship while it 'belittles and destroys its advantages and blessings by denying
46 the possession by government of an essential power required to make citizenship completely beneficial.' In other
47 words, the principle was declared that the government, by its very nature, benefits the citizen and his property
48 wherever found, and therefore has the power to make the benefit complete. Or, to express it another way, the
49 basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it
50 being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the
51 citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the
52 relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed
53 may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and
54 the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax."

1 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

2 So the key thing to note about the above is that the tax liability attaches to the STATUS of BEING or REPRESENTING a
3 statutory but not constitutional "citizen of the United States" under the Internal Revenue Code, and NOT to domicile of the 4 human being, based on the above case.

5 "Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the
6 situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made
7 dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as
8 citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is
9 that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may
10 have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax."
11 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

12 There are only two ways to reach a nonresident party through the civil law: Domicile and contract.<sup>151</sup>

13 "All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
14 carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made
15 with [private] individuals."
16 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

17 The voluntary choice of electing to be treated as a statutory "U.S. citizen" under the Internal Revenue Code, in turn, can 18 only be a franchise contract/agreement that implements a "public office" in the U.S. government. The office, in turn, is 19 chattel property of the U.S. Government that the creator of the franchise can regulate or tax ANYWHERE under the 20 franchise "protection" contract. All rights that attach to STATUS are, in fact, franchises, and the Cook case is no
21 exception. This, in fact, is why falsely claiming to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" is a crime under 18 U.S.C. §911: Because 22 the franchise status is a creation of and therefore "property" of the national government and abuse of said property or the 23 public rights and "benefits" that attach to it is a crime.

24 The government can only tax what it creates, and it created the PUBLIC OFFICE but not the OFFICER filling the office.
25 The "Taxpayer Identification Number" functions as a de facto "license" to exercise the privilege/franchise. A license is 26 permission from the state to do that which is otherwise illegal. You can't license something unless it is FIRST ILLEGAL
27 to perform WITHOUT a license, so they had to make it illegal to claim to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" per 18 U.S.C. §911
28 before they could license it and tax it. Hence:

- 29 1. The statutory "taxpayer" (self-proclaimed statutory "U.S. citizen") at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) is a public office in the 30 U.S. Government.
- 31 2. The U.S. government, in turn, is a federal corporation.
- 32 3. All federal corporations are domiciled in the District of Columbia per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
- 33 4. The term "citizen of the United States**" is a synonym for the "taxpayer" status and also a public office in the 34 corporation.
- 35 5. All corporations are franchises and all those serving in offices within the corporation are acting in a representative
36 capacity as "officers of a corporation" and therefore "persons" as statutorily defined in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26
37 U.S.C. §7343.
- 38 6. The human being is:
  - 39 6.1. Filling the public office of statutory "taxpayer" and statutory self-proclaimed "citizen of the United States**"
  - 40 6.2. Representing the federal corporation as an officers of said corporation.
  - 41 6.3. Representing the office, which is the real statutory "person" defined in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343 42 because acting as a public officer.
  - 43 6.4. Surety for public office he fills but he/she is NOT the office.
  - 44 6.5. Availing himself of the "benefits" and "protections" and "privileges" of a federal franchise.
- 45 7. Because the human being consented to act as an officer and accept the franchise "benefits" of the public office, he must 46 ALSO accept all the statutory franchise obligations that GO with the office. You can't take the "goodies" of the office
47 and refuse to also accept the obligations that go with those goodies. Here is how the California Civil Code describes 48 this:

<sup>151</sup> See Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.2.4: The Two Sources of Federal Civil Jurisdiction: "Domicile" and "Contract";

- 18 8. Invoking the franchise status causes a waiver of sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28
 19 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2). This waiver of sovereign immunity is also called "purposeful availment" by the courts, which 20 simply means that you consensually and purposefully directed your activities towards instigating commerce with the 21 Beast (government, Rev. 19:19). Hence by voluntarily calling yourself a statutory "U.S. citizen", you are fornicating
 22 with the Beast and you are among the "seas of people nations and tongues" who are part of Babylon the Great Harlot
 23 mentioned in the Bible Book of Revelations. Black's Law Dictionary, in fact, defines "commerce" as "intercourse".
 24 This makes all those who engage in such commerce with government instead of God into fornicators and harlots.

25 "Commerce. ...Intercourse by way of trade and traffic between different peoples or states and the citizens or
 26 inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the
 27 instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it
 28 is carried on..."
 29 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 269]

- 30 9. Domicile is still important even within the Internal Revenue Code. The domicile at issue in the I.R.C., however, is the 31 domicile of the OFFICE and NOT the PERSON FILLING said office. The OFFICE can have a different domicile than 32 the OFFICER. The statutory "taxpayer" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) is a public office. The human being filling
 33 the office is NOT the "taxpayer", but a PARTNER with the office and surety for the office. That partnership is 34 mentioned in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343.

35 5.6.13.4.14.2 International Terrorism and legislating from the bench by Ex-President Taft and the U.S. Supreme
 36 Court in Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)

37 The severe problems with the U.S. Supreme Court's interpretation in Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924) are that:

- 38 1. They say that state taxing authority stops at the state's borders because it collides with adjacent states, and yet they 39 don't apply the same extraterritorial limitation upon United States taxing jurisdiction, even though it:
 40 1.1. Similarly collides with and interferes with neighboring countries
 41 1.2. Violates the sovereignty and EQUALITY of adjacent nations under the law of nations.
 42 2. Americans domiciled abroad ought to be able to decide when or if they want to be protected by the United States
 43 government while abroad and that method ought to be DIRECT and explicit, by expressly asking in writing to be 44 protected and receiving a BILL for the cost of the protection. Instead, based on the outcome in Cook, the Supreme
 45 Court made the request for protection and INDIRECT RUSE by associating it with the voluntary choice of calling
 46 oneself a statutory "U.S. citizen" under national law. This caused the commission of a crime under current law and 47 additional confusion because:
 48 2.1. 18 U.S.C. §911 makes it is a crime to claim to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
 49 2.2. Under current law, you cannot be a statutory "citizen" without a domicile in a place and you can only have a
 50 domicile in one place at a time. Cook had a domicile in Mexico and therefore was a statutory "resident" or 51 "citizen" of Mexico AND NOWHERE ELSE. You can only be a statutory "citizen" in one place at a time

1 because you can only have a DOMICILE in one place at a time. Therefore, Cook COULD NOT be a statutory
2 "citizen of the "United States**" at the same time and was LYING to claim that he was.

- 3 3. If an American domiciled abroad doesn't want to be protected and says so in writing, they shouldn't be forced to be 4 protected or to pay for said protection through "taxation".
- 5 4. The U.S. government cannot and should not have the right to FORCE you to both be protected and to pay for such 6 protection, because that is THEFT and SLAVERY, and especially if you regard their protection as an injury or a 7 "protection racket".
- 8 5. YOU and not THEY should have the right to define whether what they offer constitutes "PROTECTION" because 9 YOU are the "customer" for protection services and the customer is ALWAYS right. You can't be sovereign if they
10 can define their mere existence as "protection" or a so-called "benefit", force you to pay for that "protection" or 11 "benefit", and charge whatever they want for said protection. After all, they could injure you and as long as they are the 12 only ones who can define words in a dispute, then they can call it a "benefit" and even charge you for it!

13 *"Society in every state is a blessing, but government even in its best state is but a necessary evil; in its worst
14 state an intolerable one; for when we suffer, or are exposed to the same miseries by a government, which we 15 might expect in a country without government, our calamity is heightened by reflecting that we furnish the 16 means by which we suffer."*

17 [Thomas Paine, "Common Sense" Feb 1776]

- 18 6. If the government is going to enforce their right to force you to accept their "protection" and/or franchise "benefits" 19 and pay for them, then by doing so they are:
  - 20 6.1. "Purposefully availing themselves" of commerce within your life and your private jurisdiction.
  - 21 6.2. Conferring upon you the same EQUAL right to tax THEM and regulate THEM that they claim they have the right 22 to do to you under the concept of equal rights and equal protection.
  - 23 6.3. Conferring upon you the right to decide how much YOU get to charge THEM for invading your life, stealing 24 your resources, time, and property, and enslaving you.

25 The above are an unavoidable consequence of the requirements of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C.
26 Chapter 97. That act applies equally to ALL governments, not just to foreign governments, under the concept of equal 27 protection. YOU are your own "government" for your own "person", family, and property. According to the U.S.
28 Supreme Court, ALL the power of the U.S. government is delegated to them from YOU and "We the People".
29 Therefore, whatever rights they claim you must ALSO have, including the right to enforce YOUR franchises against 30 them without THEIR consent. Hence, the same rules they apply to you HAVE to apply to them or they are nothing but 31 terrorists and extortionists. The U.S. Supreme Court affirmed that when they tax nonresidents without their consent, it 32 is more akin to crime and extortion than a lawful government function.

33 "The power of taxation, indispensable to the existence of every civilized government, is exercised upon the 34 assumption of an equivalent rendered to the taxpayer in the protection of his person and property, in adding
35 to the value of such property, or in the creation and maintenance of public conveniences in which he shares --
36 such, for instance, as roads, bridges, sidewalks, pavements, and schools for the education of his children. If the 37 taxing power be in no position to render these services, or otherwise to benefit the person or property taxed,
38 and such property be wholly within the taxing power of another state, to which it may be said to owe an
39 allegiance, and to which it looks for protection, the taxation of such property within the domicile of the owner
40 partakes rather of the nature of an extortion than a tax, and has been repeatedly held by this Court to be 41 beyond the power of the legislature, and a taking of property without due process of law. Railroad Company v.
42 Jackson, 7 Wall. 262; State Tax on Foreign-Held Bonds, 15 Wall. 300; Tappan v. Merchants' National Bank, 19

44 166 U.S. 226, it was held, after full consideration, that the taking of private property [199 U.S. 203] without 45 compensation was a denial of due process within the Fourteenth Amendment. See also Davidson v. New 46 Orleans, 96 U.S. 97, 102; Missouri Pacific Railway v. Nebraska, 164 U.S. 403, 417; Mt. Hope Cemetery v.
47 Boston, 158 Mass. 509, 519."

48 [Union Refrigerator Transit Company v. Kentucky, 199 U.S. 194 \(1905\)]

49 Of course, the U.S. Supreme Court in Cook v. Tait DID NOT address any of the problems or "cognitive dissonance"
50 deliberately created above by their hypocritical double standard and self-serving word games, and if they had reconciled the 51 problems described, they would have had to expose the FALSE, injurious, and prejudicial presumptions they were making
52 and the deliberate conflict of law and logic those presumptions created, and thereby reconcile them.

53 As you will eventually learn, most cases in federal court essentially boil down to a criminal conspiracy by the judge and the 54 government prosecutor to "hide their presumptions" and "hide the consent of the governed" in order to advantage the
55 government and conceal or protect their criminal conspiracy to steal from you and enslave you. This game is done by 56 quoting words out of context, confusing the statutory and constitutional contexts, and abusing "words of art" to deceive and

1 presume in a way that "benefits" them RATHER than the people they are supposed to be protecting. Their "presumptions"
 2 serve as the equivalent of religious faith, and the false god they worship in their religion is SATAN himself and the money
 3 and power he tempts them with. They know that:

- 4 1. They can't govern you civilly without your consent as the Declaration of Independence requires.
- 5 2. The statutory "person", "individual", "citizen", "resident", and "inhabitant" they civilly govern is created by your 6 consent.
- 7 3. When you call them on it and say you aren't a "person", "citizen", "individual", or "resident" under the civil law
 8 because you never consented to be governed, and instead are a nonresident, then instead of proving your consent to be
 9 governed as the Declaration of Independence requires, the criminals on the bench call you frivolous to cover up their 10 FRAUD and THEFT of your property.

11 Likewise, corrupt governments frequently try to hide the prejudicial and injurious presumptions they are making because 12 having to justify and defend them would expose the cognitive conflicts, irrationality, and deception in their reasoning.
 13 They know that all presumptions that prejudice rights protected by the Constitution are a violation of due process of law
 14 and render a void judgment so they try to hide them. For instance, in the Cook case, the presumption the Supreme Court
 15 made was that the term "citizen of the United States" made by Plaintiff Cook meant a STATUTORY citizen pursuant to 8
 16 U.S.C. §1401, and NOT a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen. However, the only thing the Plaintiff reasonably could have been
 17 was a CONSTITUTIONAL and NOT STATUTORY citizen by virtue of being domiciled abroad. It is a fact that you can 18 only have a domicile in one place at a time, that your statutory status as a "citizen" comes from that choice of domicile, and
 19 that you can therefore only be a statutory "citizen" of ONE place at a time. The Plaintiff in Cook was a citizen or resident
 20 of Mexico and NOT of the statutory "United States**" (federal territory). Hence, he was not a "taxpayer" because not the 21 statutory "citizen of the United States" that they fraudulently acquiesced to allow him to claim that he was. Allowing him
 22 to claim that status was FRAUD, but because it padded their pockets they tolerated it and went along with it, and used it to 23 deceive even more people with a vague ruling describing their ruse.

24 If the Supreme Court had exposed all of their presumptions in the Cook case and were honest, they would have held that:

- 25 1. Cook was NOT a statutory "citizen of the United States**" under the federal revenue laws at that time. The Internal 26 Revenue Code was not in existence at that time and wasn't introduced until 1939.
- 27 2. Cook could not truthfully claim to be a statutory "citizen of the United States" if he was domiciled in Mexico as he 28 claimed and as they accepted. He didn't have a domicile on federal territory called the "United States" therefore his 29 claim that he was such a statutory "citizen" was FRAUD that they could not condone, even if it profited them.
 30 Compare Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 \(1989\), in which a foreign domiciled American was 31 declared "stateless" and therefore beyond the jurisdiction of the federal courts.
- 32 3. Cook was a "non-resident non-person" and "stateless person" in relation to federal jurisdiction by virtue of his foreign 33 domicile in Mexico. Hence, he was beyond the reach of the federal courts:

34 The tax which is sustained is, in my judgment, a tax upon the income of non-resident aliens and nothing else.

35 [ . . . ]

36 The government thus lays a tax, through the instrumentality of the company [PUBLIC
 37 OFFICE/WITHHOLDING AGENT], upon the income of a non-resident alien over whom it cannot justly

[United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]

4. As a private human being, Cook did not lawfully occupy a public office in the federal government as that term is legally defined. Hence, he could not lawfully be a statutory “individual” or “person”. All “persons” and “individuals” within the Internal Revenue Code are public offices and/or instrumentalities of the national and not state government. Hence, Cook was a “non-resident non-person”. The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE conduct is repugnant to the constitution. Hence, only activities of public officers and agents may be regulated or taxed without violating the USA Constitution. Any other approach results in slavery and involuntary servitude. See the following for proof that all statutory “taxpayers” are public officers engaged in the “trade or business” and public officer franchise defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26):

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a “Public Officer” for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5. Since all public offices must be executed in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, and since Cook wasn't in the District of Columbia, then the I.R.C. could not be used to CREATE that public office and the “taxpayer” status that attaches to it in Mexico where he was.

In order to sidestep the SIGNFICANT issues raised by the above considerations, the U.S. Supreme Court:

1. Made their ruling far too ambiguous and short.
2. Refused to address:
  - 2.1. All the implications described above and generated more rather than less confusion.
  - 2.2. The holding in United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882) above.
3. Cited NO statutory authority or legal authority for their decision to create the statutory “citizen of the United States***” franchise that exists INDEPENDENT of the domicile of a domestic national. It was created entirely by judicial fiat and “legislating from the bench”. The reason they had to do this is that Congress cannot write law that operates extraterritorially outside the country without the party who is subject to it consenting to it or to a status under it.
4. The entire exercise was based on prejudicial “presumption” that injured the rights and property of Cook, who was the party they allegedly were “protecting”.
  - 4.1. The injury to Cook's rights and property came by having to pay a tax based on a civil law statute that did not and could not apply in a foreign country.
  - 4.2. The only rationale given by the U.S. Supreme Court was their unsubstantiated “presumption” that because they were a “government” or part of a government, then their very EXISTENCE as a government was a so-called “benefit”, even though they never proved with evidence that there was any “benefit” or protection directly to Cook in that case. In fact, he was INJURED by having to pay the tax, rather than protected, and got NOTHING in return for it.
  - 4.3. They made this presumption in SPITE of the fact that the very same court said that all presumptions that prejudice or injure rights are unconstitutional. The only defense they could rationally have for inflicting such an injury is that the Bill of Rights does NOT protect Americans in foreign countries and only operates within states of the Union. Hence, when not restrained by the Constitution, its' OK to STEAL from anyone without any statutory authority using nothing but judicial fiat:

"The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional [or territorial] restrictions,"
[New York Times v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964) ]

5. Left everyone speculating and afraid about what it meant, and how someone could owe a tax without a domicile in the statutory “United States***” (federal territory), even though in every other case domicile is the only reason that people owe an income tax.
6. Used the fear and speculation and presumption that uncertainty creates and compels to force people to believe things that are simply not supportable by evidence nor true about tax liability, such as that EVERYONE IN THE WORLD, regardless of where they physically are or where they are domiciled, owe a tax to the place of their birth, if that place of birth is the United States of America.

The above factors, when combined, amount to acts of INTERNATIONAL TERRORISM against nonresident parties. Terrorists, after all, engage primarily in kidnapping and extortion. Their self-serving presumptions about your status and their abuse of “words of art”<sup>152</sup> are the means of kidnapping you without your consent or knowledge, and the result of the kidnapping is that they get to treat you as a “virtual resident” of what Mark Twain calls “the District of Criminals” who has to bend over for King Congress on a daily basis as a compelled public officer of the national government. And they have the GALL to call this kind of abuse a “benefit” and charge you for it! If you want to know how these international terrorists describe THEMSELVES, see:

Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Online, Form #10.004, Cites by Topic: Terrorism
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/terrorism.htm>

The judicial fiat that created this extraterritorial PLUNDER, ahem, I mean “tax” is completely hypocritical, because the United States, even to this day, is the ONLY major industrialized country that in fact invokes an income tax on “citizens of the United States**” ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD, and thus interferes with the EQUAL taxing powers of other countries and causes Americans to falsely believe that they are subject to DOUBLE taxation of their foreign earnings.

What a SCAM these shysters pulled with this ruling. And why did they do it? Because the Federal Reserve printing presses were running full speed starting in 1913, and yet paper money was still redeemable in gold, so they had to have a way to sop up all the excess currency they were printing. And WHO issued this ruling? None other than the person responsible for:

1. Introducing the Sixteenth Amendment, which was the Income Tax Amendment and getting it fraudulently ratified in 1913.
2. Starting the Federal Reserve in 1913.

President William Howard Taft, the only President of the United States to ever serve as a U.S. Supreme Court Justice, assumed the role of Chief Justice in 1921, and this landmark ruling of Cook v. Tait was his method to expand the implementation of that tax to have worldwide scope. It wouldn't surprise us if Cook was an insider government minion commissioned secretly to undertake this critical case. He probably even setup this case to make sure it would come before him and secretly HIRED Cook to bring it all the way up to the Supreme Court on his watch. That's how DEVIOUS these bastards are. Is it any wonder that in 1929, Congress handed Taft a marble palace to conduct his job in? That's right: The current U.S. Supreme Court building and marble palace of the civil religion of socialism was authorized during his tenure as a reward for his monumental exploits as both a President of the United States and a U.S. Supreme Court justice.<sup>153</sup> They didn't finish that palace until 1933, shortly after he died on March 30, 1930. That was his prize for creating a scam of worldwide scope by:

1. Learning the tax ropes as a collector of internal revenue from 1882-1884. See:

Biography of William Howard Taft, SEDM Exhibit 11.003
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

2. Being elected President of the United States in 1909.
3. Introducing the current Sixteenth Amendment in 1909. This was one of his first official acts as President. See:

Congressional Record, June 16, 1909, pp. 3344-3345, SEDM Exhibit #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

4. Getting the Sixteenth Amendment fraudulently ratified in 1913 after he was voted out of office but while he still occupied said office as a lame duck President.
5. Passing the Federal Reserve Act in 1913 during the Christmas recess when only five congressmen were present to vote.
6. Being appointed U.S. Supreme Court Justice in 1921.
7. Giving the new income tax he created a worldwide scope with the Cook v. Tait ruling.
8. Introducing and passing the Writ of Certiorari Act of 1925, in which Congress consented to allow the U.S. Supreme Court to turn the appeal process into a franchise in which they had the discretion NOT to rule on cases before them and thereby INTERFERE with the rights of the litigants. The cases they would then refuse to rule on would be those in

<sup>153</sup> Maybe we should have used the phrase “heavy duty” instead of “monumental”. After all, President William Howard Taft was literally the fattest person to ever serve as president, weighing in at over 300 pounds. Maybe the phrase “It ain't over till the fat lady sings” should be changed to “It ain't over till the fat man talks.”

1 which income tax laws were unlawfully enforced. Thus, they denied justice to the people who were abused by the 2 unlawful enforcement of the revenue laws and FRAUDS that protect it.

3 It also shouldn't surprise you to learn that Taft was the ONLY president to ALSO serve as a collector of internal revenue.
4 Even as President and later as a Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, he apparently continued in that role. Here is what
5 Wikipedia says on this subject:

21 The bottom line is that any entity that can FORCE you to accept protection you don't want, call it a "benefit" even though
22 you call it an injury and a crime, and force you to pay for it is a protection racket and a mafia, not a government. And such
23 crooks will always resort to smoke and mirrors like that of Taft above to steal from you to subsidize their protection racket.

24 Prior to implementing the Taft international terrorism SCAM, a dissenting opinion of the same U.S. Supreme Court earlier
25 described it for what it is, and the court was naturally completely silent in opposing the objections made, and therefore
26 AGREED to ALL OF THEM under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). The issue was withholding of a tax upon
27 English citizens by an American company situated abroad. The English citizens were aliens in relation to both the United 28 States and the corporation doing the withholding, and therefore non-resident non-persons. Field basically said that 29 withholding on them was theft and violated the law of nations. You aren't surprised that Taft very conveniently omitted to 30 address the issues raised in this dissenting opinion, are you? He was a THIEF, a LIAR, and a charlatan intent on 31 SUPPRESSING the truth and effectively legislating from the bench INTERNATIONALLY, which is a thing that not even 32 Congress can do. Here is the text of that marvelous dissenting opinion by Justice Field:

1 I am not able to agree with the majority of the court in the decision of this case. The tax which is sustained is, in
 2 my judgment, a tax upon the income of non-resident aliens and nothing else. The 122d section of the act of June
 3 30, 1864, c. 173, as amended by that of July 13, 1866, c. 184, subjects the interest on the bonds of the company
 4 to a tax of five per cent, *331 and authorizes the company to deduct it from the amount payable to the coupon-
 5 holder, whether he be a non-resident alien or a citizen of the United States. The company is thus made the 6 agent of the government [PUBLIC OFFICER!] for the collection of the tax. It pays nothing itself; the tax is
 7 exactd from the creditor, the party who holds the coupons for interest. No collocation of words can change
 8 this fact. And so it was expressly adjudged with reference to a similar tax in the case of United States v.
 9 Railroad Company, reported in the 17th of Wallace. There a tax, under the same statute, was claimed upon the 10 interest of bonds held by the city of Baltimore. And it was decided that the tax was upon the bondholder and not 11 upon the corporation which had issued the bonds; that the corporation was only a convenient means of 12 collecting it; and that no pecuniary burden was cast upon the corporation. This was the precise question upon 13 which the decision of that case turned.

14 A paragraph from the opinion of the court will show this beyond controversy. "It is not taxation," said the 15 court, "that government should take from one the profits and gains of another. That is taxation which 16 compels one to pay for the support of the government from his own gains and of his own property. In the 17 cases we are considering, the corporation parts not with a farthing of its own property. Whatever sum it pays 18 to the government is the property of another. Whether the tax is five per cent on the dividend or interest, or 19 whether it be fifty per cent, the corporation is neither richer nor poorer. Whatever it thus pays to the 20 government, it by law withholds from the creditor. If no tax exists, it pays seven per cent, or whatever be its 21 rate of interest, to its creditor in one unbroken sum. If there be a tax, it pays exactly the same sum to its 22 creditor, less five per cent thereof, and this five per cent it pays to the government. The receivers may be two,
 23 or the receiver may be one, but the payer pays the same amount in either event. It is no pecuniary burden
 24 upon the corporation, and no taxation of the corporation. The burden falls on the creditor. He is the party
 25 taxed. In the case before us, this question controls its decision. If the tax were upon the railroad, there is no
 26 defence; it must be paid. But we hold that the tax imposed by the 122d section is in substance and in law a tax
 27 upon the *332 income of the creditor or stockholder, and not a tax upon the corporation." See also Haight v.
 28 Railroad Company, 6 Wall. 15, and Railroad Company v. Jackson, 7 id. 262, 269.

29 The bonds, upon the interest of which the tax in this case was laid, are held in Europe, principally in England;
 30 they were negotiated there; the principal and interest are payable there; they are held by aliens there, and the 31 interest on them has always been paid there. The money which paid the interest was, until paid, the property of 32 the company; when it became the property of the bondholders it was outside of the jurisdiction of the United 33 States.

34 Where is the authority for this tax? It was said by counsel on the argument of the case — somewhat facetiously,
 35 I thought at the time — that Congress might impose a tax upon property anywhere in the world, and this court
 36 could not question the validity of the law, though the collection of the tax might be impossible, unless,
 37 perchance, the owner of the property should at some time visit this country or have means in it which could be
 38 reached. This court will, of course, never, in terms, announce or accept any such doctrine as this. And yet it is 39 not perceived wherein the substantial difference lies between that doctrine and the one which asserts a power to 40 tax, in any case, aliens who are beyond the limits of the country. The debts of the company, owing for interest,
 41 are not property of the company, although counsel contended they were, and would thus make the wealth of the 42 country increase by the augmentation of the debts of its corporations. Debts being obligations of the debtors are 43 the property of the creditors, so far as they have any commercial value, and it is a misuse of terms to call them
 44 anything else; they accompany the creditors wherever the latter go; their situs is with the latter. I have 45 supposed heretofore that this was common learning, requiring no argument for its support, being, in fact, a self-
 46 evident truth, a recognition of which followed its statement. Nor is this the less so because the interest may be 47 called in the statute a part of the gains and profits of the company. Words cannot change the fact, though they 48 may mislead and bewilder. The thing remains through all disguises of terms. If the company makes no gains or 49 profits on its business and borrows the money to *333 meet its interest, though it be in the markets abroad, it is
 50 still required under the statute to withhold from it the amount of the taxes. If it pays the interest, though it be 51 with funds which were never in the United States, it must deduct the taxes. The government thus lays a tax,
 52 through the instrumentality of the company [PUBLIC OFFICE/WITHHOLDING AGENT], upon the 53 income of a non-resident alien over whom it cannot justly exercise any control, nor upon whom it can justly
 54 lay any burden.

55 The Chief Justice, in his opinion in this case, when affirming the judgment of the District Court, happily
 56 condensed the whole matter into a few words. "The tax," he says, "for which the suit was brought, was the tax
 57 upon the owner of the bond, and not upon the defendant. It was not a tax in the nature of a tax in rem upon the 58 bond itself, but upon the income of the owner of the bond, derived from that particular piece of property. The 59 foreign owner of these bonds was not in any respect subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, neither was 60 this portion of his income. His debtor was, and so was the money of his debtor; but the money of his debtor did
 61 not become a part of his income until it was paid to him, and in this case the payment was outside of the United
 62 States, in accordance with the obligations of the contract which he held. The power of the United States to tax
 63 is limited to persons, property, and business within their jurisdiction, as much as that of a State is limited to 64 the same subjects within its jurisdiction. State Tax on Foreign-Held Bonds, 15 Wall. 300."

1 "A personal tax," says the Supreme Court of New Jersey, "is the burden imposed by government on its own
 2 citizens for the benefits which that government affords by its protection and its laws, and any government
 3 which should attempt to impose such a tax on citizens of other States would justly incur the rebuke of the
 4 intelligent sentiment of the civilized world." State v. Ross, 23 N.J.L. 517, 521.

5 In imposing a tax, says Mr. Chief Justice Marshall, the legislature acts upon its constituents. "All subjects," he
 6 adds, "over which the power of a State extends are objects of taxation, but those over which it does not
 7 extend are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. This proposition *334 may almost be 8 pronounced self-evident." McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428.

9 There are limitations upon the powers of all governments, without any express designation of them in their
 10 organic law; limitations which inhere in their very nature and structure, and this is one of them, — that no
 11 rightful authority can be exercised by them over alien subjects, or citizens resident abroad or over their
 12 property there situated. This doctrine may be said to be axiomatic, and courts in England have felt it so
 13 obligatory upon them, that where general terms, used in acts of Parliament, seem to contravene it, they have 14 narrowed the construction to avoid that conclusion. In a memorable case decided by Lord Stowell, which 15 involved the legality of the seizure and condemnation of a French vessel engaged in the slave trade, which was,
 16 in terms, within an act of Parliament, that distinguished judge said: "That neither this British act of 17 Parliament nor any commission founded on it can affect any right or interest of foreigners unless they are 18 founded upon principles and impose regulations that are consistent with the law of nations. That is the only
 19 law which Great Britain can apply to them, and the generality of any terms employed in an act of Parliament
 20 must be narrowed in construction by a religious adherence thereto." The Le Louis, 2 Dod. 210, 239.

21 Similar language was used by Mr. Justice Bailey of the King's Bench, where the question was whether the 22 act of Parliament, which declared the slave trade and all dealings therewith unlawful, justified the seizure of 23 a Spanish vessel, with a cargo of slaves on board, by the captain of an English naval vessel, and it was held
 24 that it did not. The odiousness of the trade would have carried the justice to another conclusion if the public
 25 law would have permitted it, but he said, "That, although the language used by the legislature in the statute
 26 referred to is undoubtedly very strong, yet it can only apply to British subjects, and can only render the slave
 27 trade unlawful if carried on by them; it cannot apply in any way to a foreigner. It is true that if this were a
 28 trade contrary to the law of nations a foreigner could not maintain this action. But it is not; and as a
 29 Spaniard could not be considered as bound by the acts of the British legislature prohibiting this trade, it 30 would be unjust to deprive *335 him of a remedy for the heavy damage he has sustained." Madrazo v. Willes,
 31 3 Barn. & Ald. 353.

32 In The Apollon, a libel was filed against the collector of the District of St. Mary's for damages occasioned by 33 the seizure of the ship and cargo whilst lying in a river within the territory of the King of Spain, and Mr. Justice
 34 Story said, speaking for the court, that "The laws of no nation can justly extend beyond its own jurisdiction,
 35 except so far as regards its own citizens. They can have no force to control the sovereignty or rights of any 36 other nation within its own jurisdiction. And however general and comprehensive the phraseology used in 37 our municipal laws may be, they must always be restricted in construction to places and persons upon whom 38 the legislatures have authority and jurisdiction." 9 Wheat. 362.

39 When the United States became a separate and independent nation, they became, as said by Chancellor Kent,
 40 "subject to that system of rules which reason, morality, and custom had established among the enlightened
 41 nations of Europe as their public law," and by the light of that law must their dealings with persons of a foreign
 42 jurisdiction be considered; and according to that law there could be no debatable question, that the jurisdiction
 43 of the United States over persons and property ends where the foreign jurisdiction begins.

44 What urgent reasons press upon us to hold that this doctrine of public law may be set aside, and that the 45 United States, in disregard of it, may lawfully treat as subject to their taxing power the income of non-
 46 resident aliens, derived from the interest received abroad on bonds of corporations of this country negotiable
 47 and payable there? If, in the form of taxes, the United States may authorize the withholding of a portion of 48 such interest, the amount will be a matter in their discretion; they may authorize the whole to be withheld.
 49 And if they can do this, why may not the States do the same thing with reference to the bonds issued by
 50 corporations created under their laws. They will not be slow to act upon the example set. If such a tax may be
 51 levied by the United States in the rightful exercise of their taxing power, why may not a similar tax be levied
 52 upon the interest on bonds of the same corporations by the States within their respective jurisdictions in the 53 rightful *336 exercise of their taxing power? What is sound law for one sovereignty ought to be sound law 54 for another.

55 It is said, in answer to these views, that the governments of Europe — or at least some of them, where a tax is 56 laid on incomes — deduct from the interest on their public debts the tax due on the amount as income, whether 57 payable to a non-resident alien or a subject of the country. This is true in some instances, and it has been 58 suggested in justification of it that the interest, being payable at their treasuries, is under their control, the 59 money designated for it being within their jurisdiction when set apart for the debtor, who must in person or by 60 agent enter the country to receive it. That presents a case different from the one before us in this, — that here
 61 the interest is payable abroad, and the money never becomes the property of the debtor until actually paid to
 62 him there. So, whether we speak of the obligation of the company to the holder of the coupons, or the money
 63 paid in its fulfilment, it is held abroad, not being, in either case, within the jurisdiction of the United States.

1 And with reference to the taxation of the interest on public debts, Mr. Phillimore, in his Treatise on
2 International Laws, says: "It may be quite right that a person having an income accruing from money lent to a
3 foreign State should be taxed by his own country on his income derived from this source; and if his own country
4 impose an income tax, it is, of course, a convenience to all parties that the government which is to receive the
5 tax should deduct it from the debt which, in this instance, that government owes to the payer of the tax, and thus
6 avoid a double process; but a foreigner, not resident in the State, is not liable to be taxed by the State; and it
7 seems unjust to a foreign creditor to make use of the machinery which, on the ground of convenience, is applied
8 in the cases of domestic creditors, in order to subject him to a tax to which he is not on principle liable." Vol. ii.
9 pp. 14, 15.

10 Here, also, is a further difference: the tax here is laid upon the interest due on private contracts. As observed
11 by counsel, no other government has ever undertaken to tax the income of subjects of another nation
12 accruing to them at their own domicile upon property held there, and arising out of ordinary business, or 13 contracts between individuals.

14 *337 This case is decided upon the authority of Railroad Company v. Collector, reported in 100 U.S., and the 15 doctrines from which I dissent necessarily flow from that decision. When that decision was announced I was 16 apprehensive that the conclusions would follow which I now see to be inevitable. It matters not what the interest
17 may be called, whether classed among gains and profits, or covered up by other forms of expression, the fact
18 remains, the tax is laid upon it, and that is a tax which comes from the party entitled to the interest, — here, a
19 non-resident alien in England, who is not, and never has been, subject to the jurisdiction of this country.

20 In that case the tax is called an excise on the business of the class of corporations mentioned, and is held to 21 be laid, not on the bondholder who receives the interest, but upon the earnings of the corporations which pay
22 it. How can a tax on the interest to be paid be called a tax on the earnings of the corporation if it earns
23 nothing — if it borrows the money to pay the interest? How can it be said not to be a tax upon the income of 24 the bondholder when out of his interest the tax is deducted?

25 That case was not treated as one, the disposition of which was considered important, as settling a rule of action.
26 The opening language of the opinion is: "As the sum involved in this suit is small, and the law under which the 27 tax in question was collected has long since been repealed, the case is of little consequence as regards any 28 principle involved in it as a rule of future action." But now it is invoked in a case of great magnitude, and many 29 other similar cases, as we are informed, are likely soon to be before us; and though it overrules repeated and 30 solemn adjudications rendered after full argument and mature deliberation, though it is opposed to one of the 31 most important and salutary principles of public law, it is to be received as conclusive, and no further word
32 from the court, either in explanation or justification of it, is to be heard. I cannot believe that a principle so
33 important as the one announced here, and so injurious in its tendencies, so well calculated to elicit
34 unfavorable comment from the enlightened sentiment of the civilized world, will be allowed to pass
35 unchallenged, though the court is silent upon it.

36 I think the judgment should be affirmed.

37 [United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]

38 Note some key points from the above dissenting opinion of Justice Field:

- 39 1. The tax imposed is an EXCISE and FRANCHISE tax upon the "benefits" of the protection of a specific municipal 40 government. Those who DON'T WANT or NEED and DO NOT CONSENT to such protection are NOT the lawful
41 subjects of the tax. Those who consent call themselves statutory "citizens". Those who don't call themselves statutory 42 "non-residents".

43 "A personal tax," says the Supreme Court of New Jersey, "is the burden imposed by government on its own
44 citizens for the benefits which that government affords by its protection and its laws, and any government
45 which should attempt to impose such a tax on citizens of other States would justly incur the rebuke of the 46 intelligent sentiment of the civilized world." State v. Ross, 23 N.J.L. 517, 521.

- 47 2. The United States has no jurisdiction outside its own borders or outside its own TERRITORY, meaning federal 48 territory. Constitutional states of the Union are NOT federal territory.

49 ". . . the jurisdiction of the United States over persons and property ends where the foreign jurisdiction 50 begins."

- 51 3. The only way that any legal PERSON, including a government, can reach outside its own territory is by exercising its 52 right to contract, which means that it can ONLY act upon those who EXPRESSLY consent and thereby contract with 53 the sovereign. That consent is manifested by calling oneself a STATUTORY "citizen". Those who don't consent to

1 the franchise protection contract call themselves statutory "non-resident non-persons".

2 Debitum et contractus non sunt nullius loci.

3 Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

4 Locus contractus regit actum.

6 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

7 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouvierMaxims.htm>]

- 9 4. The tax is upon the RECIPIENT, not the company making the payment. The "taxpayer" is the recipient of the payment, and hence, the company paying the recipient is NOT the "taxpayer". The company, in turn, is identified as an "agent of the government", meaning a withholding agent and therefore PUBLIC OFFICER. WHY? Because the Erie railroad is a FEDERAL and not STATE corporation. They hid this from their ruling. If they had been a PRIVATE company that was NOT a FEDERAL corporation, they could not lawfully act as agents of the government.

14 *"It is not taxation," said the court, "that government should take from one the profits and gains of another. That is taxation which compels one to pay for the support of the government from his own gains and of his own property. In the cases we are considering, the corporation parts not with a farthing of its own property. Whatever sum it pays to the government is the property of another. Whether the tax is five per cent on the dividend or interest, or whether it be fifty per cent, the corporation is neither richer nor poorer. Whatever it thus pays to the government, it by law withholds from the creditor. If no tax exists, it pays seven per cent, or whatever be its rate of interest, to its creditor in one unbroken sum. If there be a tax, it pays exactly the same sum to its creditor, less five per cent thereof, and this five per cent it pays to the government. The receivers may be two, or the receiver may be one, but the payer pays the same amount in either event. It is no pecuniary burden upon the corporation, and no taxation of the corporation. The burden falls on the creditor. He is the party taxed. In the case before us, this question controls its decision. If the tax were upon the railroad, there is no defence; it must be paid. But we hold that the tax imposed by the 122d section is in substance and in law a tax upon the *332 income of the creditor or stockholder, and not a tax upon the corporation." See also Haight v. Railroad Company, 6 Wall. 15, and Railroad Company v. Jackson, 7 id. 262, 269.*

- 28 5. The recipient is a non-resident alien BECAUSE he has a legislatively FOREIGN DOMICILE. NOT because he has a FOREIGN NATIONALITY.
- 30 6. The FOREIGN DOMICILE makes the target of the tax a STATUTORY "alien" but not necessarily a CONSTITUTIONAL alien.

32 "Here, also, is a further difference: the tax here is laid upon the interest due on private contracts. As observed by counsel, no other government has ever undertaken to tax the income of subjects of another nation accruing to them at their own domicile upon property held there, and arising out of ordinary business, or contracts between individuals."

- 36 7. The "non-resident alien" is COMPLETELY outside the jurisdiction of the United States. Hence, it is LEGALLY IMPOSSIBLE for such a person to become a statutory "taxpayer". The only way to CRIMINALLY force him to become a taxpayer is to:
- 37 7.1. Let the company illegally withhold earnings of a nontaxpayer.
- 38 7.2. Make getting a refund of amounts withheld a "privilege" in which he has to request a "INDIVIDUAL Taxpayer Identification Number" (ITIN) that makes him a statutory "individual".
- 39 7.3. After he gets the number ILLEGALLY, force him to file "taxpayer" tax return. If he refuses to do that, then they refuse to refund the amount withheld. That's international terrorism and extortion.

44 "The government thus lays a tax, through the instrumentality [PUBLIC OFFICE] of the company, upon the income of a non-resident alien over whom it cannot justly exercise any control, nor upon whom it can justly lay any burden."

- 47 8. The laws of a nation ONLY apply to its own STATUTORY "citizens" who have a domicile on FEDERAL TERRITORY. They do NOT apply to STATUTORY aliens with a legislatively FOREIGN DOMICILE. These statutory "citizens" can ONLY become statutory citizens by SELECTING and CONSENTING to a domicile on federal territory AND physically being on said territory.

51 "The laws of no nation can justly extend beyond its own jurisdiction, except so far as regards its own citizens. They can have no force to control the sovereignty or rights of any other nation within its own jurisdiction. And however general and comprehensive the phraseology used in our municipal laws may be, they must always be restricted in construction to places and persons upon whom the legislatures have authority and jurisdiction." 9 Wheat. 362.

9. If you are not a STATUTORY citizen (per 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(d) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c)), which Justice Field calls a "SUBJECT", then you can't be taxed. Field refers to those who can't be taxed as "aliens", and he can only mean STATUTORY aliens, not CONSTITUTIONAL aliens:

*"All subjects," he adds, "over which the power of a State extends are objects of taxation, but those over which it does not extend are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. This proposition *334 may almost be pronounced self-evident." McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428.*

10. The court KNEW they were pulling a FRAUD on the people, because they were SILENT on so many important issues that Field pointed out. Per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(b)(6), they AGREED with his conclusions because they did not EXPRESSLY DISAGREE or disprove ANY of his arguments.

"though it is opposed to one of the most important and salutary principles of public law, it is to be received as conclusive, and no further word from the court, either in explanation or justification of it, is to be heard. I cannot believe that a principle so important as the one announced here, and so injurious in its tendencies, so well calculated to elicit unfavorable comment from the enlightened sentiment of the civilized world, will be allowed to pass unchallenged, though the court is silent upon it."

11. Justice Field says the abuse of "words of art" mask the nature of the above criminal extortion:

"Words [of art] cannot change the fact, though they may [DELIBERATELY] mislead and bewilder. The thing remains through all disguises of terms."

12. If you want to search for cases on "nonresident aliens" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), the Supreme Court spells them differently than the code itself. You have to search for "non-resident alien" instead.

5.6.13.4.14.3 Supporting evidence for doubters

Those skeptical readers who doubt the conclusions of the previous section or who challenge the significance of the Cook v. Tait ruling to federal jurisdiction are invited to compare the following two cases and try to explain the differences between them:

1. Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924).
2. Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 (1989).

In BOTH of the above cases, the parties:

1. Were domiciled in a legislatively foreign state AND a foreign country. Cook was domiciled in Mexico while Bettison was domiciled in Venezuela.
2. Were statutory nonresidents and "non-resident non-persons" under the Internal Revenue Code based on their chosen domicile.
3. Became the party to a controversy with someone domiciled in the statutory "United States", meaning federal territory.
4. Because of their legislatively foreign domicile, were technically "stateless persons" and therefore not statutory "persons" under federal law.
5. Were born in America (the COUNTRY) and therefore an American national and Constitutional citizen.

The only difference between the two cases is the DECLARED STATUS of the litigant and the CONTEXT in which that status is interpreted or applied or MIS-applied by the court. Recall that there are TWO main contexts in which legal terms can be used: CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY.

In Newman-Green, Bettison was presumed by the court to be a CONSTITUTIONAL "U.S. citizen" by virtue of his foreign domicile. Here is what the court said about him:

Petitioner Newman-Green, Inc., an Illinois corporation, brought this state law contract action in District Court against a Venezuelan corporation, four Venezuelan citizens, and William L. Bettison, a United States citizen domiciled in Caracas, Venezuela. Newman-Green's complaint alleged that the Venezuelan corporation had breached a licensing agreement, and that the individual defendants, joint and several guarantors of royalty payments due under the agreement, owed money to Newman-Green. Several years of discovery and pretrial motions followed. The District Court ultimately granted partial summary judgment for the guarantors and

1 partial summary judgment for Newman-Green. 590 F.Supp. 1083 (ND Ill.1984). Only Newman-Green
2 appealed.

3 At oral argument before a panel of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals, Judge Easterbrook inquired as to the 4 statutory basis for diversity jurisdiction, an issue which had not been previously raised either by counsel or by
5 the District Court Judge. In its complaint, Newman-Green had invoked 28 U.S.C. §1332(a)(3), which confers
6 jurisdiction in the District Court when a citizen of one State sues both aliens and citizens of a State (or States)
7 different from the plaintiffs. In order to be a citizen of a State within the meaning of the diversity statute, a
8 natural person must both be a citizen of the United States and be domiciled within the State. See Robertson v.
9 Cease, 97 U.S. 646, 648-649 (1878); Brown v. Keene, 8 Pet. 112, 115 (1834). The problem in this case is that 10 Bettison, although a United States citizen, has no domicile in any State. He is therefore "stateless" for 11 purposes of § 1332(a)(3). Subsection 1332(a)(2), which confers jurisdiction in the District Court when a
12 citizen of a State sues aliens only, also could not be satisfied because Bettison is a United States citizen. [490
13 U.S. 829]
14 [Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 \(1989\)]

15 In the above context, the phrase “United States citizen” was used in its CONSTITUTIONAL sense. Bettison could not 16 have been a STATUTORY “United States citizen” without a domicile a statutory “State”. He was therefore a
17 CONSTITUTIONAL “United States citizen”.

18 “The problem in this case is that Bettison, although a United States citizen, has no domicile in any State. He 19 is therefore "stateless" for purposes of § 1332(a)(3).”
20 [Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 \(1989\)]

21 Comparing the Cook v. Tait case, the phrase “citizen of the United States” was interpreted in its STATUTORY sense.

22 “Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the
23 situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made
24 dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as
25 citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is
26 that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may
27 have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax.”
28 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 \(1924\)]

29 Because Bettison in the Newman-Green case was a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen but not a STATUTORY citizen with a
30 legislatively foreign domicile, he had to be dismissed from the class action and be treated as BEYOND the jurisdiction of 31 the court and OUTSIDE the class of involved in the CLASS action.

32 Cook, on the other hand, personally petitioned the court for protection and they heard his case, even though he technically 33 had the SAME CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY “U.S. citizen” status as Bettison. The U.S. Supreme Court,
34 however, instead of claiming he was ALSO a “stateless person” and dismissing either him or the case the as they did with 35 Bettison, rather claimed they HAD jurisdiction and ruled on the matter in the government’s favor and AGAINST Cook.
36 The U.S. Supreme Court did so based on the UNSUBSTANTIATED PRESUMPTION that the “U.S. citizen” he claimed to 37 be was a STATUTORY rather than CONSTITUTIONAL “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401. SCAM!

38 5.6.13.4.14.4 Summary and conclusion

39 What the U.S. Supreme Court has done to extend federal taxing jurisdiction both unconstitutionally and in violation of 40 international law is summarized below:

41 1. Meaning of the term “citizen” or “citizen of the United States” within various statutory contexts:

- 42 1.1. Every reference to “citizen” and “national” within Title 8 of the U.S. Code is a POLITICAL citizen and not a 43 CIVIL citizen.

44 8. Citizen defined

45 Citizenship implies membership in a political society, the relation of allegiance and protection, identification
46 with the state, and a participation in its functions, and while a temporary absence may suspend the relation 47 between a state and its citizen, his identification with the state remains where he intends to return. Pannill v.
48 Roanoke Times Co., W.D.Va.1918, 252 F. 910. Aliens, Immigration, And Citizenship 678

Mere residence [meaning also DOMICILE] in a foreign country, even by a naturalized American, has no effect upon such person's citizenship. U.S. v. Howe, S.D.N.Y.1916, 231 F. 546. Aliens, Immigration, And Citizenship 683(1)

Citizenship is membership in a political society and imposes a duty of allegiance on the part of a member and a duty of protection on the part of society. U.S. v. Polzin, D.C.Md. 1942, 48 F.Supp. 476. Aliens, Immigration, And Citizenship 650; Aliens, Immigration, And Citizenship 672

Distinction between citizenship and electorship pervades the public law of the United States. 1857, 8 Op.Atty.Gen. 300.

9. Classes of citizens--Generally

In regard to the protection of our citizens in their rights at home and abroad, we have in the United States no law which divides them into classes or makes any difference whatever between them. 1859, 9 Op.Atty.Gen. 357. [8 U.S.C.A. §1401, Westlaw, 2009]

- 1.2. "citizen of the United States" as used in Title 8 means a POLITICAL status and not a CIVIL status.
- 1.3. "citizen" as used in every OTHER title of the U.S. Code, INCLUDING and especially the Internal Revenue Code, means a CIVIL status and NOT a POLITICAL status.
- 1.4. "POLITICAL"/CONSTITUTIONAL status does not change with changes in CIVIL domicile, but CIVIL status DOES. The only thing that can change political status is either BIRTH or NATURALIZATION.
- 1.5. Domicile on federal territory is ALWAYS the origin of any and every civil liability, INCLUDING tax liability. Domicile, in turn is ALWAYS voluntary and discretionary. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.
- 1.6. One may be a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL member of a society WITHOUT be a CIVIL/STATUTORY member subject to the CIVIL statutory laws of that society. DOMICILE is the only method by which they can ALSO be subject to the CIVIL statutory laws of that society per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.
- 1.7. Since DOMICILE is and must be voluntary, then being a CIVIL/STATUTORY citizen with a "civil status" under the tax code MUST be voluntary.

"The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two distinct legal states or conditions: one, by virtue of which he becomes the subject of some particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status; another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status. And then, while maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle of domicil, domicilium, the criterion established by international law for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which the personal rights of the party, that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy or intestacy, must depend, he yet distinctly recognized that a man's political status, his country, patria, and his "nationality, that is, natural allegiance," may depend on different laws in different countries." Pp. 457, 460. He evidently used the word "citizen" not as equivalent to "subject," but rather to "inhabitant," and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British dominion are natural-born subjects."

[United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649 (1898)]

- 1.8. For further background on how POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL status and CIVIL/STATUTORY status interact but are NOT equal in any respect, see:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. How the FRAUD is perpetuated and protected by the corrupt courts:
  - 2.1. The FRAUD of extraterritorially extending Internal Revenue Taxes outside of federal territory is perpetuated by:
    - 2.1.1. A usually MALICIOUS failure or absolute refusal to distinguish a POLITICAL status from a CIVIL status. The "citizen" mentioned in the Internal Revenue Code is a STATUTORY citizen domiciled on federal territory, not a POLITICAL citizen under the constitution.
    - 2.1.2. Confusing DOMICILE with NATIONALITY, or PRESUMING that they are EQUAL or synonymous.
    - 2.1.3. Interfering with attempts by victims of the false presumptions to challenge said presumptions.
  - 2.2. In Cook v. Tate, 265 U.S. 47 (1924), former President William Howard Taft acting then as a Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court ADDED to the confusion between CIVIL and POLITICAL status by deliberately REFUSING to distinguish WHICH "citizen of the United States" that Cook was.
3. Consequences of the fraud of deliberately confusing CIVIL and POLITICAL status of the word "citizen".
  - 3.1. ILLEGALLY extends income taxes to POLITICAL citizens everywhere.

- 3.2. Perpetuates the FALSE presumption that CIVIL and POLITICAL citizens are equivalent.
- 3.3. Creates a WORLDWIDE TAX and made every American into essentially a dog on a leash until they expatriate. Being a "national" was the leash according to Cook v. Tate, but that simply can't be the case because DOMICILE and not NATIONALITY is the only proper origin of tax liability.
- 3.4. Removed DISCRETION and CONSENT from the taxation process, because being a CIVIL citizen is discretionary, whereas being a POLITICAL citizen is not.
4. To remove the confusion, government MUST at all times:
  - 4.1. Distinguish between POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL "citizens" and CIVIL/STATUTORY citizens throughout all their statutes and forms.
  - 4.2. Restore DISCRETION and CHOICE to the "protection" services they offer by allowing people to be ONLY POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL citizens.
  - 4.3. Allow people to determine whether they want to be protected when abroad or in a state of the Union, and telling them that if they choose NO, then they don't have to pay income taxes when abroad or in a state of the Union. Otherwise, an "adhesion contract" and SLAVERY and THEFT results.

Our attempts to become a "non-resident " represent an attempt to prevent the false presumption that the CIVIL and POLITICAL status of "citizen" are equivalent, and thus to draw attention to the FRAUD of confusing them.

5.6.13.5 Advantages of Being a Nonresident Alien

Being a nonresident alien not engaged in any commercial activity with the government under 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i) has distinct advantages over that of being a "U.S. person" under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\). It means that:

1. You are not subject to federal jurisdiction and are "nonresident" with respect to the forum or court.
2. May not be prosecuted for any tax crime. For instance, 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1 establishes who is liable to "file" a tax return and nonresident aliens are not listed there!
3. May invoke the protection of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act \(F.S.I.A.\), 28 U.S.C. §1602-1611 without being subject to federal jurisdiction.
4. You have the option to pursue cases less than the $75,000 minimum amount in controversy under 28 U.S.C. §1332\(a\) if you waive your right to a jury trial.

The following subsections will describe all the nuances of these advantages so that they can be properly invoked to your advantage.

5.6.13.5.1 Nonresident aliens not engaged in a "trade or business" are not required to have an SSN or TIN

Nonresident aliens not engaged in the "trade or business"/public office franchise are not required to have or to provide any kind of federal identifying number on tax forms or to open financial accounts. These persons are defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i). The IRS knows this, which is why it positively refuses to provide any IRS Form that allows you to identify yourself as a "non-resident non-person" or even "nonresident alien" not engaged in a "trade or business". They obviously don't want to hand the slaves the key to their chains of "privilege" in order to lawfully avoid the federal numbering and taxing requirement. Instead, they exploit the confusion created by the absence of such a field on their forms to create false presumptions that you instead are engaged in a "trade or business", even when you are not, in order to manufacture more "taxpayer" slaves out of innocent "nontaxpayers". For instance, IRS Form W-8BEN does not provide a check box allowing you to designate WHICH of the three types of nonresident aliens that you are as defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b). For more details on this SCAM, see the following article:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

A "trade or business" is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as "the functions of a public office", which means a person who has contracts or employment with the federal government and is therefore partaking of federal "privileges" and/or benefits. Americans domiciled in states of the Union are not lawfully allowed to engage in a "trade or business" because 4 U.S.C. §72 says that all "public offices" may only lawfully be exercised in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere. For more details on this subject, see:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

1 The only provision within the I.R.C. or Treasury Regulations that imposes a duty to provide an identifying number on
 2 federal forms relates to "U.S. persons".

3 26 C.F.R. § 301.6109-1\(b\)

4 (b) Requirement to furnish one's own number—

5 (1) U.S. persons.

6 Every U.S. person who makes under this title a return, statement, or other document must furnish its own
 7 taxpayer identifying number as required by the forms and the accompanying instructions.

8 Notice the use of the word "its" instead of the word "his or her" in the above regulation. They are talking about a federal
 9 public office or instrumentality, which are creations of Congress. They are not talking about a human being, which is 10 God's creation. Congress can only lawfully tax what it creates, and it didn't create humans. The above regulation also 11 appears in 26 C.F.R. Part 301, which means that it is published under the authority of 5 U.S.C. §301 instead of 26 U.S.C.
 12 §7805. Therefore, it pertains ONLY to IRS employees and not to the general public. If it pertained to the general public
 13 and to the income tax imposed in I.R.C. Section 1, it would be published under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §7805 and would 14 appear under Part 1 of 26 C.F.R..

15 Nonresident aliens are NOT "U.S. persons" but rather "foreigners". They don't even become "persons" or "individals"
 16 until they engage in a public office or franchise, and therefore they are NOT required to provide identifying numbers on any 17 tax form. These people, in fact, are protected from the requirement to use Social Security Numbers by 42 U.S.C.
 18 §408(a)(8):

19 TITLE 42 - THE PUBLIC HEALTH AND WELFARE
 20 CHAPTER 7 - SOCIAL SECURITY
 21 SUBCHAPTER II - FEDERAL OLD-AGE, SURVIVORS, AND DISABILITY INSURANCE BENEFITS
 22 Sec. 408. Penalties

23 (a) In general
 24 Whoever -...

25 (8) discloses, uses, or compels the disclosure of the social security number of any person in violation of the
 26 laws of the United States; shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined under title 18
 27 or imprisoned for not more than five years, or both.

28 "U.S. person", in turn, is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) as follows.

29 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
 30 Sec. 7701. - Definitions

31 (a)(30) United States person
 32 The term "United States person" means -

- 33 (A) a [corporate] citizen or resident [alien] of the [federal] United States,
 34 (B) a domestic partnership,
 35 (C) a domestic corporation,
 36 (D) any estate (other than a foreign estate, within the meaning of paragraph (31)), and
 37 (E) any trust if -
 38 (i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the
 39 trust, and
 40 (ii) one or more United States persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust.
 41
 42

43 The "U.S. person" mentioned above is a public office within the government domiciled on federal territory and is NOT a
 44 human being or a "citizen" within the meaning of the Constitution, as is proven below:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Similarly, pursuant to 20 C.F.R. §422.104, Social Security Numbers may only lawfully be issued to “U.S. persons”, who are persons domiciled on federal territory. “U.S. persons” include statutory “U.S. citizens” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 as well as “residents” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\) but exclude “citizens” and “residents” within the meaning of the Constitution:

TITLE 20--EMPLOYEES' BENEFITS
CHAPTER III--SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION
PART 422_ORGANIZATION AND PROCEDURES--Table of Contents
Subpart B_General Procedures
Sec. 422.104 Who can be assigned a social security number.

(a) Persons eligible for SSN assignment. We can assign you a social security number if you meet the evidence requirements in Sec. 422.107 and you are:

(1) A United States citizen; or
(2) An alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence or under other authority of law permitting you to work in the United States (Sec. 422.105 describes how we determine if a nonimmigrant alien is permitted to work in the United States); or

Therefore, it is ILLEGAL for a “nonresident alien” to be issued a Social Security Number, because they are not indicated in the above regulation. IRS skirts this issue by issuing them an “International Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN)”. The above is also confirmed by the Social Security Administration, Program Operations Manual System (POMS):

<https://s044a90.ssa.gov/apps10/poms.nsf/partlist!OpenView>

Citizenship requirements for issuing Social Security Numbers are found in section GN003, and the POMS system conveniently REMOVES and OMITTS the citizenship requirements found in GN00303 from the table of contents so you can't find them, but they are there if you search for them using the search function. They do this in order to HIDE the requirements from you. You can find this section at:

<https://s044a90.ssa.gov/apps10/poms.nsf/lx/0200303000!opendocument>

The search function reveals that Social Security Administration, Program Operations Manual System (POMS), Section GN 00303.700 establishes that residency on federal territory is a requirement to be eligible for SS benefits or the issuance of an SS Card or SSN:

If you write the Social Security Administration about who they are authorized to issue SSN's to, they will FLAT OUT LIE by telling you that ANYONE can get a number, in direct violation of 20 C.F.R. §422.104(a) above. Therefore, you should not trust ANYTHING they say unless they back it up with a statute AND an implementing regulation and a court cite

1 proving their point. We have never seen any correspondence from the government that offered any legitimate legal
 2 authority behind the proposition that the Social Security Administration can lawfully issue a Social Security Number to a
 3 nonresident alien because there isn't any such authority.

4 In addition, the Treasury Regulations say that nonresident aliens not engaged in the "trade or business"/public office
 5 franchise are NOT required to have an identifying number. They are the ONLY entities, in fact, who are expressly 6 exempted from the requirement for using governing identifying numbers:

 43 other attaches of foreign embassies and legations, and for the members of their immediate families;
- 44 (iv) aliens who are accredited representatives of international organizations which are entitled to enjoy

(x) non-resident aliens who are not engaged in a trade or business in the United States. In instances described in paragraphs (a)(3), (viii) and (ix) of this section, the bank shall, within 15 days following the end of any calendar year in which the interest accrued in that year is $10 or more use its best effort to secure and maintain the appropriate taxpayer identification number or application form therefor.

The above is again repeated on the IRS Form 1042-S Instructions, which say that nonresident aliens are only required to provide an identifying number if they are engaged in a “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as “the functions of a public office”.

Box 14, Recipient's U.S. Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN)

You must obtain and enter a U.S. taxpayer identification number (TIN) for:

- Any recipient whose income is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States.

[IRS Form 1042-S Instructions, p. 14]

Any way you look at it then, unless you are contractually bound to the U.S. government as a “public officer” in some form, and thereby have availed yourself of “privileges” offered by the U.S. Government, then you are not required to either have or to use either a Social Security Number or a Taxpayer Identification Number, and these numbers cannot lawfully even be issued to you.

5.6.13.5.2 Federal government cannot lawfully prosecute you for tax crimes

The Internal Revenue Code is primarily civil law that applies only to those with a legal domicile on federal territory. All of the government’s authority to impose income taxes, in fact, originates from the coincidence of one’s choice of legal domicile and the taxable activities they engage in:

“Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.”
Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

A person with a legal domicile on federal territory called the “United States” is called a “U.S. person” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\), an “inhabitant”, a “citizen”, or a “resident”. All civil jurisdiction, in fact, originates from one’s voluntary choice of legal domicile. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Nonresidents, such as nonresident aliens, who are not engaged in a “trade or business” cannot lawfully be civilly prosecuted under the I.R.C. because:

1. They are statutorily “stateless persons” immune from the jurisdiction of federal courts pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1332, because they do not reside in a federal “State” as defined in 28 U.S.C. §1332\(d\). See Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 (1989).

2. They are not a “stateless person” pursuant to United States Constitution, Article 2, Section 2, because they are within one of the “States” mentioned in the Constitution, which are not the same as the federal “States” described in 28 U.S.C. §1332\(d\).
3. They do not reside in any United States judicial district, which is limited to federal territory within the exterior limits of the district. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 4(k), service of process cannot be effected within the district and therefore the action cannot be commenced.
4. Since they are not a statutory “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 nor a “U.S. resident” (alien) pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\), it is unlawful to kidnap their legal identity and move it to the District of Columbia pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\) and 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\) and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).

The above requirement is confirmed by the regulation that identifies WHO is liable to file tax returns. Here are the liable parties, and they include only “individuals”, all of whom have identifying numbers. Nonresident aliens are mentioned, but they are “nonresident alien individuals” described in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b), which is a person with a government identifying number. If you don’t have or don’t qualify to have a government identifying number or have rescinded the number, then you can’t lawfully be an “individual” who has a liability to file.

TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
CHAPTER I--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
Returns and Records--Table of Contents
Sec. 1.6012-1 Individuals required to make returns of income.

(a) Individual citizen or resident—

(1) In general.

*Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, an income tax return must be filed by every individual for each taxable year beginning before January 1, 1973, during which he receives $600 or more of gross income, and for each taxable year beginning after December 31, 1972, during which he receives $750 or more of gross income, if such individual is:

- (i) A citizen of the United States, whether residing at home or abroad,
- (ii) A resident of the United States even though not a citizen thereof, or
- (iii) An alien bona fide resident of Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year.

(b) Return of nonresident alien individual.

(1) Requirement of return.

(i) In general.

*Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, every nonresident alien individual (other than one treated as a resident under section 6013 (g) or (h)) who is engaged in trade or business in the United States at any time during the taxable year or who has income which is subject to taxation under Subtitle A of the Code shall make a return on Form 1040NR. For this purpose it is immaterial that the gross income for the taxable year is less than the minimum amount specified in section 6012(a) for making a return. Thus, a nonresident alien individual who is engaged in a trade or business in the United States at any time during the taxable year is required to file a return on Form 1040 NR even though

(a) he has no income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States,

(b) he has no income from sources within the United States, or

(c) his income is exempt from income tax by reason of an income tax convention or any section of the Code.

However, if the nonresident alien individual has no gross income for the taxable year, he is not required to complete the return schedules but must attach a statement to the return indicating the nature of any exclusions claimed and the amount of such exclusions to the extent such amounts are readily determinable.

(ii) Treaty income.

If the gross income of a nonresident alien individual includes treaty income, as defined in paragraph (b)(1) of Sec. 1.871-12, a statement shall be attached to the return on Form 1040NR showing with respect to that income:

1 (a) The amounts of tax withheld,

2 (b) The names and post office addresses of withholding agents, and

3 (c) Such other information as may be required by the return form, or by the instructions issued with respect
4 to the form, to show the taxpayer's entitlement to the reduced rate of tax under the tax convention.

5 (2) Exceptions.

6 (i) Return not required when tax is fully paid at source.

7 A nonresident alien individual (other than one treated as a resident under section 6013 (g) or (h)) who at 8 no time during the taxable year is engaged in a trade or business in the United States is not required to 9 make a return for the taxable year if his tax liability for the taxable year is fully satisfied by the 10 withholding of tax at source under Chapter 3 of the Code. This subdivision does not apply to a 11 nonresident alien individual who has income for the taxable year which is treated under section 871 (c)
12 or (d) and Sec. 1.871-9 (relating to students or trainees) or Sec. 1.871-10 (relating to real property 13 income) as income which is effectively connected for the taxable year with the conduct of a trade or 14 business in the United States by that individual, or to a nonresident alien individual making a claim
15 under Sec. 301.6402-3 of this chapter (Procedure and Administration Regulations) for the refund of an
16 overpayment of tax for the taxable year. In addition, this subdivision does not apply to a nonresident alien
17 individual who has income for the taxable year that is treated under section 871(b)(1) as effectively
18 connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States by reason of the operation of 19 section 897. For purposes of this subdivision, some of the items of income from sources within the United 20 States upon which the tax liability will not have been fully satisfied by the withholding of tax at source under 21 Chapter 3 of the Code are:

22 (a) Interest upon so-called tax-free covenant bonds upon which, in accordance with section 1451 and Sec.
23 1.1451-1, a tax of only 2 percent is required to be withheld at the source,

24 (b) In the case of bonds or other evidences of indebtedness issued after September 28, 1965, amounts
25 described in section 871(a)(1)(C),

26 (c) Capital gains described in section 871(a)(2) and paragraph (d) of Sec. 1.871- 7, and

27 (d) Accrued interest received in connection with the sale of bonds between interest dates, which, in 28 accordance with paragraph (h) of Sec. 1.1441-4, is not subject to withholding of tax at the source.

29 (ii) Return of individual for taxable year of change of U.S. citizenship or residence.

30 (a) If an alien individual becomes a citizen or resident of the United States during the taxable year and is a
31 citizen or resident of the United States on the last day of such year, he must make a return on Form 1040 for 32 the taxable year. However, a separate schedule is required to be attached to this return to show the income
33 tax computation for the part of the taxable year during which the alien was neither a citizen nor resident of 34 the United States, unless an election under section 6013 (g) or (h) is in effect for the alien. A Form 1040NR,
35 clearly marked 'Statement' across the top, may be used as such a separate schedule.

36 (b) If an individual abandons his U.S. citizenship or residence during the taxable year and is not a citizen or 37 resident of the United States on the last day of such year, he must make a return on Form 1040NR for the 38 taxable year, even if an election under section 6013(g) was in effect for the taxable year preceding the year
39 of abandonment. However, a separate schedule is required to be attached to this return to show the income
40 tax computation for the part of the taxable year during which the individual was a citizen or resident of the 41 United States. A Form 1040, clearly marked 'Statement' across the top, may be used as such a separate 42 schedule.

43 (c) A return is required under this subdivision (ii) only if the individual is otherwise required to make a 44 return for the taxable year.

45 (iii) Beneficiaries of estates or trusts.

46 A nonresident alien individual who is a beneficiary of an estate or trust which is engaged in trade or 47 business in the United States is not required to make a return for the taxable year merely because he is 48 deemed to be engaged in trade or business within the United States under section 875(2). However, such 49 nonresident alien beneficiary will be required to make a return if he otherwise satisfies the conditions of 50 subparagraph (1)(i) of this paragraph for making a return.

51 (iv) Certain alien residents of Puerto Rico.

This paragraph does not apply to a nonresident alien individual who is a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico during the taxable year. See section 876 and paragraph (a)(1)(iii) of this section.

(3) Representative or agent for nonresident alien individual.

(i) Cases where power of attorney is not required.

The responsible representative or agent within the United States of a nonresident alien individual shall make on behalf of his nonresident alien principal a return of, and shall pay the tax on, all income coming within his control as representative or agent which is subject to the income tax under Subtitle A of the Code. The agency appointment will determine how completely the agent is substituted for the principal for tax purposes. Any person who collects interest or dividends on deposited securities of a nonresident alien individual, executes ownership certificates in connection therewith, or sells such securities under special instructions shall not be deemed merely by reason of such acts to be the responsible representative or agent of the nonresident alien individual. If the responsible representative or agent does not have a specific power of attorney from the nonresident alien individual to file a return in his behalf, the return shall be accompanied by a statement to the effect that the representative or agent does not possess specific power of attorney to file a return for such individual but that the return is being filed in accordance with the provisions of this subdivision.

(ii) Cases where power of attorney is required.

Whenever a return of income of a nonresident alien individual is made by an agent acting under a duly authorized power of attorney for that purpose, the return shall be accompanied by the power of attorney in proper form, or a copy thereof, specifically authorizing him to represent his principal in making, executing, and filing the income tax return. Form 2848 may be used for this purpose. The agent, as well as the taxpayer, may incur liability for the penalties provided for erroneous, false, or fraudulent returns. For the requirements regarding signing of returns, see Sec. 1.6061-1. The rules of paragraph (e) of Sec. 601.504 of this chapter (Statement of Procedural Rules) shall apply under this subparagraph in determining whether a copy of a power of attorney must be certified.

(iii) Limitation.

A return of income shall be required under this subparagraph only if the nonresident alien individual is otherwise required to make a return in accordance with this paragraph.
[SOURCE: SEDM Exhibit #05.041; <http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>]

Notice in the above regulation that:

1. The above regulation only deals with various types of individuals.
2. You can be a “nonresident alien” without also being a STATUTORY “individual” or “person”, which is the status that our Members must claim. We call these people “non-resident non-persons”. That person has NO liability because he/she is not mentioned anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code or the Treasury Regulations.
3. The standard IRS Form W-8BEN has a block to check which causes you to declare you are an “individual”.
4. Our Amended IRS Form W-8BEN has an additional block to check called “Union State Citizen” so that you don’t declare yourself to be an “individual”. See:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5. The nonresident alien individual only becomes liable to file a return if he/she meets one of the following:
  - 5.1. Engaged in the “trade or business” franchise.
  - 5.2. Had earnings described in 26 U.S.C. §871(c): Participants in certain exchange or training programs. See also 26 C.F.R. §1.871-9.
  - 5.3. Had earnings described in 26 U.S.C. §871(d): Election to treat real property income as income connected with “United States**” (federal territory) business.

The instructions for IRS Form 1040 also echo the above requirement and deliberately omit “nonresident aliens”. The implications is that you can’t be a “nonresident” by filing the form, which means that it must be a form for “residents” (aliens) ONLY:

Filing Requirements

These rules apply to all U.S. citizens, regardless of where they live, and resident aliens.

Who is the “individual” they are talking about above? It is a government “employee”, public officer, agent, or contractor, because this is the same “individual” described in 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) who:

1. Is identified as a “citizen” or “resident” with a domicile on federal territory called the “United States”.
2. Is a government employee because this section is in Title 5 of the U.S. Code and regulates the conduct of only employees and agents of the government. This statute is also the authority used to protect the records of these “individuals” under the authority of the Privacy Act.

Since nonresident aliens who are NOT “individuals”, meaning government officers and agents and benefit recipients, are not listed as being liable to file in either the regulations or the IRS Form 1040 Instruction Booklet, they are purposefully excluded from the requirement, according to the rules of statutory construction:

“When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term’s ordinary meaning.” Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) (“It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term”); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 (“As a rule, a definition which declares what a term “means” . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated”); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read “as a whole,” post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General’s restriction -- “the child up to the head.” Its words, “substantial portion,” indicate the contrary.”*

[Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 \(2000\) ]

“Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”*

[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

Consequently, a nonresident alien who is not a statutory “individual”, also called a “non-resident non-person” in this book, is civilly immune from the jurisdiction of the federal courts. They also cannot be compelled to appear as a witness in federal court. See:

Internal Revenue Manual
9.13.1.5 (09-17-2002)
Witnesses In Foreign Countries

1. Nonresident aliens physically present in a foreign country cannot be compelled to appear as witnesses in a United States District Court since they are beyond jurisdiction of United States officials. Since the Constitution requires confrontation of adverse witnesses in criminal prosecutions, the testimony of such aliens may not be admissible until the witness appears at trial. However, certain testimony for the admissibility of documents may be obtained under 18 USC §3491 et seq. without a “personnel” appearance in the United States. Additionally, 28 USC §1783 et seq. provides limited powers to induce the appearance of United States citizens physically present in a foreign country.

[SOURCE: <http://www.irs.gov/irm/part9/ch13s01.html>]

18 U.S.C. §4001 and Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 54(c) before December 2002 also establish that the government enjoys no criminal jurisdiction against non-resident non-persons and “nonresident aliens” either:

TITLE 18 > PART III > CHAPTER 301 > Sec. 4001.
Sec. 4001. - Limitation on detention; control of prisons

(a) No citizen shall be imprisoned or otherwise detained by the United States except pursuant to an Act of Congress.

Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 54(c) prior to Dec. 2002

"Act of Congress" includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of Columbia, in Puerto Rico, in a territory or in an insular possession."

In conclusion, if you are an average American who doesn't participate in public office in the government and is not a constitutional or statutory "alien", then you can't be the "individual" mentioned above as confirmed by section 5.2.4 earlier. Furthermore, you can avoid criminal liability under the I.R.C. as a "non-resident non-person" using the following strategy:

1. Do NOT claim to be an "individual" by:
  - 1.1. Filing IRS Form 1040. The form says "U.S. INDIVIDUAL Income Tax Return" in the upper left corner.
  - 1.2. Asking for an "INDIVIDUAL Taxpayer Identification Number" on IRS Form W-7 or W-9.
  - 1.3. Filling out any form in which you declare yourself to be an "individual".

All of the above implicitly make you a federal entity or instrumentality against whom the government has legislative power.
2. Claim to be an "individual" and don't engage in any of the following activities:
  - 2.1. Engaged in the "trade or business" franchise pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).
  - 2.2. Had earnings described in 26 U.S.C. §871(c): Participants in certain exchange or training programs. See also 26 C.F.R. §1.871-9.
  - 2.3. Had earnings described in 26 U.S.C. §871(d): Election to treat real property income as income connected with United States (federal government/territory) business.

5.6.13.5.3 IRS cannot file a lien against you

The Federal Tax Lien Act requires that all federal tax liens must be filed in the county of the last known domicile of the "taxpayer". See:

1. Federal Tax Lien Act, Pub. L. 89-719, 80 Stat. 1144
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Lien-FedTaxLienAct-P.L.-89-719.pdf>
2. Senate Report 89-1708
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Lien-SenReport-89-1708-highlighted.pdf>
3. Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 5.17.2.3.2, which says:

Internal Revenue Manual
5.17.2.3.2 (10-31-2000)
Place of Filing

The filing of the notice of federal tax lien is governed by both federal and state law. It is important to determine the place of the filing of the NFTL in order to preserve the Service's lien status with respect to certain types of property and with respect to certain types of taxpayers.

Generally speaking, different filing rules apply for real property and personal property. IRC 6323(f) provides that states may designate the place for filing the NFTL. As against real property, the NFTL is filed in the one office designated by the State where the property is physically located. As against personal property, the situs of both tangible or intangible property is the residence of the taxpayer at the time the notice of lien is filed. A notice of federal tax lien is therefore to be filed in the one office designated by the State where the taxpayer resides at the time the notice of lien is filed. Most states require the NFTL be filed where other encumbrances on property are filed, e.g., in the real and/or personal property records in the office of the county recorder or the clerk of the county where the real property is located or where the taxpayer resides.

The domicile, in turn, is described on IRS forms as "permanent address". See IRS Form W-8BEN, block 4, for instance. See:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Those who are “nonresident aliens” and who provide to the IRS an address in a foreign country on an IRS Form 8822 Change of Address form have a distinct advantage over a statutory “U.S. person”, in that the IRS cannot lawfully file the tax lien in the foreign country. For instance, if the IRS is provided a foreign address in Mexico or Canada on IRS Form 8822, these places do not accept, do not file, and will not enforce foreign liens of any kind against nonresident parties.

5.6.13.5.4 Minimum amount in controversy is eliminated under 28 U.S.C. §1332(a)

Nonresident aliens file cases in federal court using Constitutional diversity of citizenship, as found in Article III of the Constitution. They do NOT file using statutory diversity found in 28 U.S.C. §1332 because the definition of “State found in 28 U.S.C. §1332(d) does not include states of the Union. Under statutory but not constitutional diversity of citizenship, the minimum amount in controversy must exceed the sum of $75,000. However:

1. Those filing with constitutional but not statutory diversity of citizenship are not subject to this minimum because they are not subject to federal jurisdiction on this subject.
2. Non-resident non-persons and “nonresident aliens” who are an instrumentality of a “foreign state” are exempt from this minimum limit of $75,000 in the case of nonjury trials where they do not enjoy immunity under 28 U.S.C. §§1605-1607:

TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 85 > § 1330
§ 1330. Actions against foreign states

(a) The district courts shall have original jurisdiction without regard to amount in controversy of any nonjury civil action against a foreign state as defined in section 1603 (a) of this title as to any claim for relief in personam with respect to which the foreign state is not entitled to immunity either under sections 1605–1607 of this title or under any applicable international agreement.

We'll now spend the remainder of this section addressing item 2 above. A state of the Union is a “foreign state” with respect to federal jurisdiction. This is confirmed by the legal encyclopedia:

“Generally, the states of the Union sustain toward each other the relationship of independent sovereigns or independent foreign states, except in so far as the United States is paramount as the dominating government, and in so far as the states are bound to recognize the fraternity among sovereignties established by the federal Constitution, as by the provision requiring each state to give full faith and credit to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of the other states...”
 [81A Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), United States, §29 (2003)]

“Territories' or 'territory' as including 'state' or 'states.” While the term 'territories of the' United States may, under certain circumstances, include the states of the Union, as used in the federal Constitution and in ordinary acts of congress "territory" does not include a foreign state.

“As used in this title, the term 'territories' generally refers to the political subdivisions created by congress, and not within the boundaries of any of the several states.”
 [86 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Territories, §1 (2003)]

A person who has a domicile in a state of the Union and who participates as a citizen in the affairs of the state as a jurist or a voter is:

1. An instrumentality of a foreign state.

“It is again to antagonize Chief Justice Marshall, when he said: ‘The government of the Union, then (whatever may be the influence of this fact on the case), is emphatically and truly a government of the people. In form and in substance it emanates from them. Its powers are granted by them, and are to be exercised directly on them and for their benefit. This government is acknowledged by all to be one of enumerated powers.’ 4 Wheat. 404, 4 L.Ed. 601.”
 Downes v. Bidwell, [182 U.S. 244 (1901) ]

“The words 'people of the United States' and 'citizens,' are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call the 'sovereign people,' and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty. ...”
 Boyd v. State of Nebraska, [143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

2. Not a statutory “citizen of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401, and as required by 28 U.S.C. §1603(b)(3). See:

Why You are a “national”, “state national”, and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Alternatively, a person who has formed his own “state”, such as a religious or social group that has its own territory, domicile, and court system, is also eligible under this requirement to be classified as a “foreign state”. The only problem with the above requirement is that you must forfeit sovereign immunity in order to take advantage of this benefit. In most cases, the reason you would go into a federal court to begin with is to defend your sovereign immunity, and you can't protect it if you have to surrender it in order to litigate to defend it in a federal court. Another way of saying this is that the federal government will not respect your sovereignty as a “non-resident non-person” by allowing you to defend it in a federal court using the Constitution or common law as your ONLY legitimate defense. They simply can't stand the idea that there is ANYONE who they can't civilly reach or control with their legall terrorist network.

5.6.13.5.5 Protected from federal jurisdiction by the Minimum Contacts Doctrine

A nonresident alien not engaged in a “trade or business”, as defined under 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i) is exempt from the jurisdiction of federal courts for federal tax purposes. When a nonresident alien engages in a “trade or business”, which is a public office, he loses that exemption from federal jurisdiction and is treated effectively as a “resident” under the authority of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

*A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.
 [Amended by T.D. 8813, Federal Register: February 2, 1999 (Volume 64, Number 21), Page 4967-4975]

This surrender of sovereign immunity by engaging in privileged activities with the government, a “public office” in this case, is documented in the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. §1605\(a\)\(2\).

TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > § 1605
§ 1605. General exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state

(a) A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any case—

(2) in which the action is based upon a commercial activity carried on in the United States by the foreign state; or upon an act performed in the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere; or upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States;

If you wish to invoke the protection of the Minimum Contacts Doctrine, you cannot be a statutory “citizen of the United States”, as indicated by 28 U.S.C. §1603\(b\)\(3\). The “citizen of the United States” they are talking about is a statutory citizen of the United States under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and excludes a constitutional “citizen of the United States” mentioned in section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment. The reason is because this is a statute and nearly all statutes presume the term “United States” means the federal zone and exclude states of the Union:

*“It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation.”
 Carter v. Carter Coal Co., [298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]*

You can use the above knowledge as a non-resident non-person in your favor in any court to invoke the protection of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act and get your case dismissed. You would do this by demanding evidence from the

1 government that you are engaged in commerce within the federal zone and by presenting as evidence a rebuttal of their
2 evidence. This commerce would include Social Security Benefits or "trade or business" activity:

- 3 1. The techniques for rebutting false "trade or business" reports are found in the link below, in section 4.2:

4 <http://sedm.org/SampleLetters/Federal/FedLetterAndNoticeIndex.htm>

- 5 2. The technique for quitting social security is found below as form #6.2:

6 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7 Once all the evidence connecting you to a "trade or business" and all other "commercial activity" has been rebutted, then
8 the government now has to meet all the criteria required by the Minimum Contacts Doctrine. This criteria is described by 9 the Ninth Circuit Appeals Court below:

10 In this circuit, we analyze specific jurisdiction according to a three-prong test:

11 (1) The non-resident defendant must purposefully direct his activities or consummate some transaction with the 12 forum or resident thereof; or perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege of 13 conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws;

14 (2) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant's forum-related activities; and

15 (3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be reasonable.

17 1416, 1421 (9th Cir. 1987)). The first prong is determinative in this case. We have sometimes referred to it, in 18 shorthand fashion, as the "purposeful availment" prong. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. Despite its label,
19 this prong includes both purposeful availment and purposeful direction. It may be satisfied by purposeful
20 availment of the privilege of doing business in the forum; by purposeful direction of activities at the forum; or 21 by some combination thereof.

22 [\[Yahoo! Inc. v. La Ligue Contre Le Racisme Et L'Antisemitisme, 433 F.3d. 1199 \(9th Cir. 01/12/2006\) \]](#)

23 If the government doesn't demonstrate "purposeful availment" by the defendant of forum related commerce that would 24 produce a waiver of sovereign immunity, then they must dismiss the case against you. Furthermore, if they don't honor the 25 limitations imposed by the Minimum Contacts Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court, then they have violated due process of law:

26 "In International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945), the Supreme Court held that a court may 27 exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant consistent with due process only if he or she has "certain
28 minimum contacts" with the relevant forum "such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend
29 'traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.'" Id. at 316 (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 30 463 (1940)). Unless a defendant's contacts with a forum are so substantial, continuous, and systematic that the 31 defendant can be deemed to be "present" in that forum for all purposes, a forum may exercise only "specific 32 jurisdiction - that is, jurisdiction based on the relationship between the defendant's forum contacts and the 33 plaintiff's claim."

34 [\[Yahoo! Inc. v. La Ligue Contre Le Racisme Et L'Antisemitisme, 433 F.3d. 1199 \(9th Cir. 01/12/2006\) \]](#)

35 A judgment rendered in violation of due process of law is a void judgment that you need not obey:

36 "A judgment rendered in violation of due process is void in the rendering State and is not entitled to full faith
37 and credit elsewhere.

38 [Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714, 732-733 (1878)]If the federal court does not , and if they don't, they are 39 violating due process and issuing a void judgment that you need not obey

40 If you want to avail yourself of the protections of the Minimum Contacts Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court as a non-resident 41 non-person, then it is therefore important to:

- 42 1. Declare yourself as a "non-resident non-person" or "nonresident" litigant in your affidavit of material facts submitted
43 to the court. You may want to go back and review the content of section 5.6.13.4 to ensure that you have not 44 unwittingly surrendered your nonresident status by engaging in any privileged or commercial activity with the "United 45 States" federal corporation.

2. Not engage in any commercial activity with the federal government that would cause a surrender of sovereign immunity under 28 U.S.C. §1605\(a\)\(2\) and to point this out to the court in your pleadings.
3. Not engage in a “trade or business”, which is a type of privileged activity related to a public office in the United States government. Instead, we must promptly rebut all information returns which might accomplish this using the information available in section 4.2 below:
<http://sedm.org/SampleLetters/Federal/FedLetterAndNoticeIndex.htm>
4. To properly declare your status before the court as a nonresident alien not engaged in a trade or business who is not a statutory “citizen of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401. This can be accomplished by submitting the Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status form below:
<http://sedm.org/Forms/02-Affidavits/AffCitDomTax.pdf>
5. Change all government forms and documentation to ensure that it says you are not a statutory “citizen of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and instead are a “national” but not “citizen”. This will prevent you from surrendering sovereign immunity under 28 U.S.C. §1603\(b\)\(3\). See form 5.6 below:
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.6.13.5.6 Non-resident NON-persons have no requirement to file tax returns

The requirement to file tax returns for nonresident aliens is found in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b)(1)(i) below:

*TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
CHAPTER 1--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
Returns and Records--Table of Contents
Sec. 1.6012-1 Individuals required to make returns of income.*

(b) Return of nonresident alien individual—

(1) Requirement of return—

(i) In general.

Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, every nonresident alien individual (other than one treated as a resident under section 6013 (g) or (h)) who is engaged in trade or business in the United States at any time during the taxable year or who has income which is subject to taxation under subtitle A of the Code shall make a return on Form 1040NR. For this purpose it is immaterial that the gross income for the taxable year is less than the minimum amount specified in section 6012(a) for making a return. Thus, a nonresident alien individual who is engaged in a trade or business in the United States at any time during the taxable year is required to file a return on Form 1040 NR even though (a) he has no income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States, (b) he has no income from sources within the United States, or (c) his income is exempt from income tax by reason of an income tax convention or any section of the Code. However, if the nonresident alien individual has no gross income for the taxable year, he is not required to complete the return schedules but must attach a statement to the return indicating the nature of any exclusions claimed and the amount of such exclusions to the extent such amounts are readily determinable.

The only parties made liable are “nonresident alien individuals”. Those who are “non-resident non-persons” do not have a requirement. Recall from section 5.6.13.4.8 earlier that a “nonresident alien individual” is:

1. An alien individual AND.
2. Who meets one of the following:
  - 2.1. Residence/domicile in a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1).
  - 2.2. Residence/domicile as an alien in Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-1(d).

Therefore, a “non-resident” human being born anywhere in America who has a domicile in a state of the Union:

1. Is a “nonresident alien” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) if engaged in a public office in the national government or a “non-resident NON-person” if not engaged in a public office.
2. Is NOT a “nonresident alien individual” because not an “alien”.
3. Has no block he or she can check in Block 3 of the IRS Form W-8BEN, because the only option that approximates a human being is "individual" and you can't be an individual without being an alien. See:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. Has no requirement to file an income tax return pursuant to the above or any other provision of the Internal Revenue Code.
5. Does not become an "individual" until they make an election under an income tax treaty as indicated above and interface to the IRS through the treaty as an "alien". They are an alien in relation to the foreign country they are in and therefore an "alien" through the tax treaty under 26 U.S.C. §911.
6. As long as they avoid accepting tax treaty benefits, they can retain their status as a "non-resident NON-person" who is a nontaxpayer with no requirement to file a tax return.

5.6.13.6 Tax Withholding and Reporting on Nonresident aliens

The following subsections deal with tax withholding and reporting for Nonresident Aliens, abbreviated "NRAs". For further details, see the following additional resources:

5.6.13.6.1 General constraints upon all withholding and reporting

This section covers some general constraints upon withholding useful in educating private employers of their obligations:

1. The Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C only applies to federal government instrumentalities, agents, contractors, and benefit recipients. This is exhaustively described in the pamphlet below:
Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
2. The I.R.C. Subtitle C, Employment Taxes, only addresses the conduct of "public employers" within the United States government. It cannot and does not regulate the conduct of private employers, and especially not those in states of the Union.

Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.) 5.14.10.2 (09-30-2004)
Payroll Deduction Agreements

2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.
 [SOURCE: <http://www.irs.gov/irm/part5/ch14s10.html>]

"The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property [of PRIVATE citizens], as opposed to the "power to provide modes of redress" against offensive state[PUBLIC] action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. 3. Withholding and reporting only applies to earnings connected to a “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as “the functions of a public office” in the United States government. See:

The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001

4. All IRS information returns, including IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, 1099, and K-1 can ONLY lawfully be used to report earnings connected with a public office in the United States government pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041. They may NOT be used to report PRIVATE earnings. If they are completed against PRIVATE persons who are NOT engaged in a public office or the “trade or business” franchise, the filer of these false reports then assumes the following legal liabilities:
- 4.1. They are civilly liable for damages under 26 U.S.C. §7434 for all the taxes that are illegally withheld or collected plus attorney’s fees.
  - 4.2. They are criminally liable for false or fraudulent reports under 26 U.S.C. §§7206 and 7207 for up to ten years in jail.
5. A nonresident alien not engaged in a “trade or business” as defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i) who does not work for the U.S. government and receives no payments from the U.S. government under 26 U.S.C. §871 can have no tax liability and need not withhold. This is confirmed by:
- 5.1. 26 C.F.R. §1.872-2(f)
  - 5.2. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(6)-1(b)
  - 5.3. 26 U.S.C. §861\(a\)\(3\)\(C\)\(i\)
  - 5.4. 26 U.S.C. §3401\(a\)\(6\)
  - 5.5. 26 U.S.C. §1402\(b\)
  - 5.6. 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\)
6. Backup withholding under 26 U.S.C. §3406 is only done on “resident aliens” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\) and not “nonresident aliens” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\).

5.6.13.6.2 IRS propaganda on NRA withholding

Nonresident alien tax withholding is described in IRS Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities, available at:

IRS Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSPub515.pdf>

The IRS website contains propaganda intended to deceive private employers in the states of the Union into withholding earnings of nonresident aliens who have “income from sources within the United States” at:

NRA Withholding

<http://www.irs.gov/businesses/small/international/article/0,,id=104997,00.html>

This propaganda advises “withholding agents” to withhold 30% of the payments made to nonresident aliens from “sources within the United States” and to file an IRS Form 1042 documenting the amount of earnings and withholding. The information provided is deceptive and constructively fraudulent, because:

1. The term “U.S.” is deliberately not defined in the article and in fact is NOWHERE defined on the IRS website! It is defined ONLY as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and nowhere are the states mentioned in the Constitution expressly included in the definition. Therefore, what is not expressly included is excluded under the rules of statutory construction

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 581]

This is the only logical conclusion one can reach after reading the rulings of the Supreme Court on the issue of federal jurisdiction within states of the Union such as the following:

"It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation. Carter v. Carter Coal Co., [298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

"The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra." [Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

2. There are no "employers" as legally defined outside the "United States" (defined as federal territory). This is confirmed by the regulation below:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
Subpart B—Federal Insurance Contributions Act \(Chapter 21, Internal Revenue Code of 1954\)
General Provisions
§ 31.3121\(b\)-3 Employment; services performed after 1954.

(a) In general. Whether services performed after 1954 constitute employment is determined in accordance with the provisions of section 3121(b).

(b) Services performed within the United States [federal government/territory].

Services performed after 1954 within the United States (see §31.3121(e)-1) by an employee for his employer, unless specifically excepted by section 3121(b), constitute employment. With respect to services performed within the United States, the place where the contract of service is entered into is immaterial. The citizenship or residence of the employee or of the employer also is immaterial except to the extent provided in any specific exception from employment. Thus, the employee and the employer may be citizens and residents of a foreign country and the contract of service may be entered into in a foreign country, and yet, if the employee under such contract performs services within the United States, there may be to that extent employment.

"(c) Services performed outside the United States—(1) In general. Except as provided in paragraphs (c)(2) and (3) of this section, services performed outside the United States (see §31.3121(e)-1) do not constitute employment."

Note from the above that services performed outside the statutory "United States**", meaning federal territory do not constitute "employment". This is also consistent with:

- 2.1. 26 U.S.C. §861\(a\)\(3\)\(C\)\(i\), which says that "nonresident aliens" not engaged in a "trade or business" [public office in the U.S. government], even if they work in the "United States", do not earn taxable income. You will note that 4 U.S.C. §72 says that all public offices shall be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere.
  - 2.2. 26 U.S.C. §3401\(a\)\(6\) says that services of a nonresident alien individual (a person domiciled in a state of the Union) do not constitute "wages" that can be included on a W-2 form.
  - 2.3. 26 C.F.R. §1.872-2(f) says that earnings from outside the "United States" (federal territory) does not constitute "gross income".
3. The Internal Revenue Code is NOT positive law or public law, but private law and religion which obligates no one in a state of the Union to do anything who doesn't first volunteer to be subject to its provisions by signing a contract called a W-4 or an SS-5. See our memorandum of law on this subject:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. Even if the Internal Revenue Code was positive law or public law, private employers in states of the Union are not subject to federal jurisdiction and applying for an Employer Identification Number doesn't make them subject either.

Internal Revenue Manual \(I.R.M.\) 5.14.10.2 \(09-30-2004\)
Payroll Deduction Agreements

2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.
[SOURCE: <http://www.irs.gov/irm/part5/ch14s10.html>]

5. Private employers exclusively within states of the Union are NOT the subject of the article, because they do not qualify as “withholding agents” as we pointed out in section 1 of the following:

Federal Tax Withholding, Form #04.102
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. Only “public officers” can act as federal “employers” in the I.R.C., who are all instrumentalities of the federal government. The government can only lawfully impose “duties” upon “public employers”, not “private employers” because doing otherwise would constitute involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment. 4 U.S.C. §72 says all “public offices” shall be conducted within the District of Columbia and NOT elsewhere except as expressly provided by law. Well, Congress has never extended the “public offices” that are the subject of the tax upon a “trade or business” or the public offices that are needed to conduct enforcement under 26 U.S.C. §7601 to any state of the Union. Therefore, the tax is limited to instrumentalities of the U.S. government domiciled on federal territory “and not elsewhere”.
7. The federal income tax described under I.R.C. Subtitle A is measured by the receipt of “income” in connection with a “trade or business”. This is the privileged activity being “taxed”, and it is an avoidable activity that few private employees are engaged in, because they do not in deed and in fact hold a privileged “public office” as required by 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\).

The IRS website admits some of the truths above, but you really have to dig for it. In the International Taxpayer Glossary, it says the following about withholding of those who have no income from the “United States**” federal territory:

Services performed outside the U.S

Compensation paid to a nonresident alien (other than a resident of Puerto Rico) for services performed outside the United States [federal government/territory] is not considered wages and is not subject to graduated withholding or 30% withholding.
[SOURCE: <http://www.irs.gov/businesses/small/international/article/0,,id=96594,00.html>]

IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens (2000) agrees with the above, by saying the following:

Income Subject to Tax

Income from sources outside the United States that is not effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States is not taxable if you receive it while you are a nonresident alien. The income is not taxable even if you earned it while you were a resident alien or if you became a resident alien or a U.S. citizen after receiving it and before the end of the year.
[IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens (2000), p. 26]

A person who meets the requirement above of being a nonresident alien with no income from the “United States****” federal territory, whether connected to a trade or business or not under 26 U.S.C. §871, is described in the regulations as follows, under 26 C.F.R. §871-1(b)(i):

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 1—INCOME TAXES
nonresident alien individuals
§ 1.871-1. Classification and manner of taxing alien individuals.

(a) Classes of aliens. For purposes of the income tax, alien individuals are divided generally into two classes, namely, resident aliens and nonresident aliens. Resident alien individuals are, in general, taxable the same as citizens of the United States; that is, a resident alien is taxable on income derived from all sources, including sources without the United States. See §1.1-1(b). Nonresident alien individuals are taxable only on certain income from sources within the United States and on the income described in section 864(c)(4) from sources without the United States which is effectively connected for the taxable year with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States. However, nonresident alien individuals may elect, under section 6013 (g) or (h), to be treated as U.S. residents for purposes of determining their income tax liability under Chapters 1, 5, and 24 of the code. Accordingly, any reference in §§1.1-1 through 1.1388-1 and §§1.1491-1 through 1.1494-1 of

1 this part to non-resident alien individuals does not include those with respect to whom an election under section
2 6013 (g) or (h) is in effect, unless otherwise specifically provided. Similarly, any reference to resident aliens or
3 U.S. residents includes those with respect to whom an election is in effect, unless otherwise specifically 4 provided.

5 (b) Classes of nonresident aliens—(1) In general. For purposes of the income tax, nonresident alien
6 individuals are divided into the following three classes:

7 (i) Nonresident alien individuals who at no time during the taxable year are engaged in a trade or business in
8 the United States.

9 (ii) Nonresident alien individuals who at any time during the taxable year are, or are deemed under §1.871-9 to 10 be, engaged in a trade or business in the United States, and

11 (iii) Nonresident alien individuals who are bona fide residents of Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year.

12 An individual described in subdivision (i) or (ii) of this subparagraph is subject to tax pursuant to the 13 provisions of subpart A (section 871 and following), part II, subchapter N, chapter 1 of the Code, and the 14 regulations thereunder. See §§1.871-7 and 1.871-8. The provisions of subpart A do not apply to individuals
15 described in subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph, but such individuals, except as provided in section 933 with 16 respect to Puerto Rican source income, are subject to the tax imposed by section 1 or section 1201(b). See 17 §1.876-1.

18 Some important things to note at this point are:

- 19 1. There is no IRS withholding form that accurately states and reflects the fact that a nonresident alien whose earnings
20 originate outside the “U.S.**” [federal territory] is not subject to withholding, even though the IRS states this in IRS
21 Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities and on their website as well. This is
22 no accident, but simply proof that the IRS wants to make it as difficult as possible for non-resident non-persons to obey
23 the law by not withholding in cases where they aren't required to. This ensures that such protected persons have to 24 surrender their rights and privacy by engaging in the indignity of filing a return, disclosing all their personal
25 information, and begging for money back that never should have been withheld or reported in the first place.

26 Services performed outside the U.S

27 Compensation paid to a nonresident alien (other than a resident of Puerto Rico) for services performed outside
28 the United States [federal government/territory] is not considered wages and is not subject to graduated
29 withholding or 30% withholding.

30 [SOURCE: <http://www.irs.gov/businesses/small/international/article/0,,id=96594,00.html>]

- 31 2. IRS does not want to recognize the fact that one can be a nonresident alien without being an “individual” or an “alien”, 32 even though this is in fact the case. The reason is that they don't want to recognize that the average American is 33 beyond their reach and not subject to their jurisdiction. None of the withholding or reporting forms available from the 34 IRS on the subject of nonresident aliens are intended for use or available for use by the average American who is NOT:
35 2.1. A “beneficial owner”
36 2.2. A “U.S. person”
37 2.3. An “individual”
38 2.4. An “alien”

39 When you try to add an option to the form, some recipients balk and just wrongfully PRESUME that there couldn't be
40 any status OTHER than the options appearing on the form. This too is a deliberate attempt to interfere with the rights
41 of persons not subject to federal jurisdiction by removing remedies from them to document and protect their status.
42 This is documented in our article at:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 43 3. The only IRS form that American Nationals who are non-resident non-persons can use to stop withholding is the W-44 8BEN.
45 4. The standard IRS Form W-8BEN provides no way to avoid:
46 4.1. Disclosing the Beneficial Owner, even though there is no requirement in the I.R.C. itself to do so. Older versions
47 of the W-8 form did not require disclosing the Beneficial Owner.
48 4.2. Becoming a statutory “individual”. Block 3 has no status for “non-person non-taxpayer”.
49 5. The standard IRS Form W-8BEN does not provide a block to indicate which of the above three types of nonresident aliens the submitter is as documented in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b), and this determination is very important because it affects whether withholding is or is not necessary. Those who are not “effectively connected to a trade or business” mentioned in paragraph (b)(1) above and all of whose earnings originate outside of the “United States**” federal territory would not need withholding. The IRS doesn't want to provide a form for nonresident aliens that shows how they can satisfy the class (b)(i) condition above and thereby avoid the requirement for withholding. This forces private employers to have to read the IRS Publications to find out, which few will do, or call up the IRS to ask, in which case they are sure to get LIES. The reason they will get LIES is because the courts refuse to hold the IRS responsible for anything they say, print, or do. This is discussed at:

Federal Courts and the IRS' Own IRM Say IRS is NOT RESPONSIBLE for Its Actions or Its Words or For Following Its Own Written Procedures, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm>

The combination of all the above factors combine to introduce just enough ambiguity and uncertainty for private employers that they just roll over and screw their workers rather than obey what the law actually says. This also explains why, if you use the W-8BEN form to stop withholding, you should use the amended form we provide in order to avoid this trap. The article which explains how to lawfully and truthfully and properly complete the IRS Form W-8BEN is:

5.6.13.6.3 Specific withholding requirements in the I.R.C.

Below are the withholding requirements applicable to nonresident aliens, right from the I.R.C. and implementing regulations:

1. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(6\)-1\(b\) says that nonresident aliens whose earnings originate from outside the “United States**” federal territory or which are not connected with a “trade or business” are not subject to withholding:

Title 26
PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
Subpart E—Collection of Income Tax at Source
§ 31.3401\(a\)\(6\)-1 Remuneration for services of nonresident alien individuals.

(a) In general.

All remuneration paid after December 31, 1966, for services performed by a nonresident alien individual, if such remuneration otherwise constitutes wages within the meaning of §31.3401(a)-1 and if such remuneration is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is subject to withholding under section 3402 unless excepted from wages under this section. In regard to wages paid under this section after February 28, 1979, the term “nonresident alien individual” does not include a nonresident alien individual treated as a resident under section 6013 (g) or (h).

(b) Remuneration for services performed outside the United States.

Remuneration paid to a nonresident alien individual (other than a resident of Puerto Rico) for services performed outside the United States is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle C > CHAPTER 24 > § 3401
§ 3401. Definitions

(a) Wages

For purposes of this chapter, the term “wages” means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration (including benefits) paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

(6) for such services, performed by a nonresident alien individual, as may be designated by regulations prescribed by the Secretary; or

3. 26 U.S.C. §3406\(g\) and 26 C.F.R. §31.3406\(g\)-1\(e\) both say that foreign persons (which includes "nonresident aliens") are not subject to backup withholding or information reporting

TITLE 26 > Subtitle C > CHAPTER 24 > § 3406
§ 3406. Backup withholding

(g) Exceptions

(1) Payments to certain payees Subsection (a) shall not apply to any payment made to— (A) any organization or governmental unit described in subparagraph (B), (C), (D), (E), or (F) of section 6049 (b)(4), or (B) any other person specified in regulations.

(2) Amounts for which withholding otherwise required Subsection (a) shall not apply to any amount for which withholding is otherwise required by this title.

Title 26: Internal Revenue

PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
§ 31.3406\(g\)-1 Exception for payments to certain payees and certain other payments.

(e) Certain reportable payments made outside the United States by foreign persons, foreign offices of United States banks and brokers, and others. For reportable payments made after December 31, 2000, a payor is not required to backup withhold under section 3406 on a reportable payment that qualifies for the documentary evidence rule described in §1.6049-5\(c\)\(1\) or (4) of this chapter, whether or not documentary evidence is actually provided to the payor, unless the payor has actual knowledge that the payee is a United States person. Further, no backup withholding is required for payments upon which a 30-percent amount was withheld by another payor in accordance with the withholding provisions under chapter 3 of the Internal Revenue Code and the regulations under that chapter. For rules applicable to notional principal contracts, see §1.6041-1\(d\)\(5\) of this chapter.

§ 1.872-2 Exclusions from gross income of nonresident alien individuals.

(f) Other exclusions.

Income which is from sources without [outside] the United States [federal territory per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10)], as determined under the provisions of sections 861 through 863, and the regulations thereunder, is not included in the gross income of a nonresident alien individual unless such income is effectively connected for the taxable year with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by that individual. To determine specific exclusions in the case of other items which are from sources within the United States, see the applicable sections of the Code. For special rules under a tax convention for determining the sources of income and for excluding, from gross income, income from sources without the United States which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States, see the applicable tax convention. For determining which income from sources without the United States is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States, see section 864(c)(4) and §1.864-5.

3. How much tax will be withheld on payments from the TSP?

The amount withheld depends upon your status, as described below. Participant. If you are a nonresident alien, your payment will not be subject to withholding for U.S. income taxes. (See Question 2.) If you are a U.S. citizen or a resident alien, your payment will be subject to withholding for U.S. income taxes. If you are a U.S. citizen or resident alien when you separate, you will receive from your employing agency the tax notice "Important Tax Information About Payments From Your TSP Account," which explains the withholding rules that apply to your various withdrawal options.
[Federal Thrift Savings Program (TSP) Pamphlet OC-96-21, <http://tsp.gov/forms/index.html>, p. 3]

Tax Treatment of TSP Payments:

[. . .]

- A nonresident alien participant who never worked for the U.S. Government in the United States will not be liable for U.S. income tax.
- A nonresident alien beneficiary of a nonresident alien participant will not be liable for U.S. income tax if the participant never worked for the U.S. Government in the United States

Federal Thrift Savings Program (TSP) Pamphlet OC-96-21, <http://tsp.gov/forms/index.html>, p. 2. Keep in mind that "[United States" above is defined as federal territory and "worked for the U.S. government" is defined as a "trade or business" in 26 U.S.C. 7701\(a\)\(26\), which is then described as "the functions of a public office"]

Beyond the above list, there is very little else that a private employer needs to know about withholding on non-resident non-persons. The above firmly establishes that non-resident non-persons with no income from the "United States" government:

1. Are "nontaxpayers".
2. Are NOT "nonresident aliens" or "nonresident alien INDIVIDUALS".
3. Do not need an identifying number.
4. Do not need any withholding.
5. Do not need any earnings reported. Only earnings from federal territory called the "United States**" or the U.S. Government that are connected with a "trade or business", which is a "public office", must be reported pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041. This is what "U.S. sources" means in the Internal Revenue Code.

5.6.13.6.4 Backup withholding

Those who claim to be "non-resident non-persons" not engaged in the "trade or business/public office franchise are sometimes subjected to unlawful backup withholding by ignorant financial institutions and private employers who refuse to read and obey the law as written. This section will provide tools and procedures to fight such forms of involuntary servitude and THEFT under the color of law.

"The laborer is worthy of [ALL of ] his wages."
[1 Tim. 5:18, Bible, NKJV]

"Woe to him who builds his house by unrighteousness
And his chambers by injustice,
Who [whether individual or government] uses his neighbor's service without wages
And gives him nothing for his work,"
[Jer. 22:13, Bible, NKJV]

"Come now, you rich, weep and howl for your miseries that are coming upon you! Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver are corroded, and their corrosion will be a witness against you and will eat your flesh like fire. You have heaped up treasure in the last days. Indeed the wages of the laborers who mowed your fields, which you kept back by fraud, cry out; and the cries of the reapers have reached the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth. <sup>3</sup>You [the business owner who controls the purse of the workers] have lived on the earth in pleasure and luxury; you have fattened your hearts as<sup>b</sup> in a day of slaughter. You have condemned, you have murdered the just; he does not resist you."
[James 5:1-6, Bible, NKJV]

"You shall not cheat your neighbor, nor rob him. The wages of him who is hired shall not remain with you all night until morning."

[Lev. 19:13, Bible, NKJV]

Any way you look at it, private employers who don't have privileged federal "employees" for workers cannot withhold against the wishes of the workers and if they do, they are STEALING and violating both man's law and God's law. There is nothing in federal law or state law that would indemnify them from such STEALING. They are no better than petty street criminals, and any payroll clerk who doesn't understand this is a sitting duck for any worker who is even mildly educated about the law and willing to defend his rights in court.

The IRS website confirms that backup withholding of 30% on nonresident aliens is not authorized:

Backup Withholding

Generally, backup withholding applies only to resident aliens and not to nonresident aliens. The payer who neglects or refuses to do backup withholding when required will himself be held liable for the amount of the backup withholding which should have been withheld from any payments. Under regulations which took effect on January 1, 2001, generally, if the status of the payee as a foreign person or a U.S. person cannot be determined, then the payee may be assumed to be a U.S. person subject to backup withholding. For additional information on the documentation to determine the status of a foreign payee refer to NRA Withholding. [SOURCE: <http://www.irs.gov/businesses/small/international/article0,,id=104910,00.html>]

Below is a summary of the requirements for backup withholding:

1. Required by:
  - 1.1. 26 U.S.C. §3406.
  - 1.2. 26 C.F.R. §31.3406-0 through 26 C.F.R. §31.3406\(j\)-1.
2. Withholding set at 31% of "reportable payments". See 26 C.F.R. §31.3406\(a\)-1\(a\).
3. "reportable payments". are payments "effectively connected with a trade or business", which means a public office in the government, pursuant to:
  - 3.1. 26 U.S.C. §6041. All information returns filed or reported must be connected with a "trade or business" as required by paragraph (a) of this section.
  - 3.2. 26 U.S.C. §3406\(b\).
  - 3.3. 26 U.S.C. §6049 in the case of interest payments
  - 3.4. 26 U.S.C. §6042 in the case of dividend payments
  - 3.5. 26 U.S.C. §6044 in the case of patronage dividends
4. None of the regulations talk about the "trade or business" requirement. It is ONLY found in 26 U.S.C. §6041\(a\), which is where the obligation to report is established.
5. Backup withholding is specifically prohibited:
  - 5.1. On reportable payments that qualify for the documentary evidence rule found in 26 C.F.R. §1.6049-5\(c\)\(1\) or (4).
  - 5.2. For amounts already subject to withholding of 30%.

"Non-resident non-persons" who are not engaged in a "trade or business" cannot lawfully become the subject of backup withholding per item 3 above. If a financial institution or private employer indicates that they want to do it anyway we suggest:

1. 26 U.S.C. §3406 also authorizes backup withholding in the case of those who refuse to provide a TIN. The requirement to FURNISH a TIN is described in 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b). Those who are "non-resident non-persons" as identified in that section are not listed as having a requirement. Neither are "nonresident aliens" or "nonresident alien individuals" who are NOT engaged in a "trade or business". Therefore, by the rules of statutory construction, they are not required to deduct, withhold, or report.

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded." [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

2. If the payer gives you guff when you say you don't have to provide a TIN and are not eligible, give them the following:

Why It is Illegal for Me to Request or Use a "Taxpayer Identification Number", Form #04.205

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. If the payer gives you guff about whether you are or can choose to be a "non-resident non-person":
  - 3.1. Show them section 5.6.13.6.3 earlier, which proves that you are a "nontaxpayer" who doesn't need to withhold or deduct because you earn no "gross income" and your estate is a "foreign estate" as described in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\).
  - 3.2. Show them the definition of "individual" in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1\(c\)\(3\) and ask them to prove that you meet the definition of "nonresident alien individual". They won't be able to prove it so they can't impose a requirement to provide either a number or withhold.
  - 3.3. Show them 26 U.S.C. §871, which only taxes earnings of "nonresident alien individuals", not "nonresident aliens" who are NOT "individuals".
  - 3.4. Show them the following, which proves that you have an unalienable right to declare and establish any civil status you want and that a failure to respect that status constitutes a violation of your First Amendment right of freedom from compelled association:

Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 3.5. Remind them that all franchises are contracts and that contracts are unenforceable in the presence of duress. Insist on your right to not be compelled to contract with the government by being forced to engage in federal franchises such as the "trade or business" franchise. This is covered further in the following:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. Showing them the legal authorities described above.
5. Submitting an Amended IRS Form W-8BEN to a withholding agent. This causes them to not be able to withhold:

"Foreign persons who provide Form W-8BEN, Form W-8ECI, or Form W-8EXP (or applicable documentary evidence) are exempt from backup withholding and Form 1099 reporting."

[\[IRS Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities \(2000\), p. 3\]](#)

The phrase "(or applicable documentary evidence)" above also covers the following form we prefer over the Standard IRS Form W-8BEN:

Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. Using the following forms to educate them above what a "trade or business" and to prove that you aren't engaged in one:
  - 6.1. Demand for Verified Evidence of "Trade or Business" Activity: Information Return, Form #04.007
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
  - 6.2. The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

If you are a "non-resident non-person" or "foreigner", DO NOT use the Standard IRS Form W-8BEN because it contains "words of art" that will prejudice your status and make you look like a "taxpayer" as described in section 5 of the following:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Instead use either of the following:

1. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
2. Amended IRS Form W-8BEN

7 5.6.13.7 Overcoming deliberate roadblocks to using the Non-Resident Non-Person Position

8 5.6.13.7.1 The deception that scares people away from claiming nonresident alien status

9 How does the government trick us into losing our true sovereign non-resident non-person civil status? Because the U.S.
10 government knows that all Americans born in the 50 Union states living on nonfederal land are non-resident non-persons
11 with respect to the Internal Revenue Code over which they have no jurisdiction to assess Subtitles A, B, and C income
12 taxes, they have devised an ingenious scheme to scare all these sheep, I mean people, into their jurisdiction so they can be 13 abused if they don't pay income taxes they otherwise wouldn't owe. Here's their trick:

- 14 1. They define a flat 30 percent for income from "within the United States" (the federal zone). See 26 U.S.C. Section 15 871\(a\) for the place where this 30 percent tax is defined.
- 16 2. They fool everyone into thinking that they are living in the "United States" by never defining the term on their website 17 or in any of their publications, and denying the proper definition when people question them about it.
- 18 3. They define a lower, graduated tax rate for people who file an IRS Form 1040 which is less for most human beings
19 than the flat 30% you would pay if you continued claiming your true status as a nonresident alien and filing the form
20 1040NR. See 26 U.S.C. Section 1\(b\) for the definition of this graduated tax rate.
- 21 4. They then fill the post office with 1040 forms and don't provide the more correct 1040NR forms and booklets, which is 22 the correct form for most Americans IF AND ONLY IF they are lawfully engaged in a public office.
- 23 5. They then go around, hand in hand with the American Bar Association, to all the public schools, waving their fists with 24 a lawyer by their side and telling innocent teenagers who are just starting in the workforce that they MUST pay taxes
25 and that they HAVE to file a form 1040 like everyone else. See section 1.11.3 for a description of how they do this,
26 right off the IRS website. They don't tell these innocent kids what filing this form means, which is that once they file
27 this form and get a Socialist Security Number, they are transformed into SLAVES of their own government because 28 they are making an election to treat their income as "effectively connected with a trade or business in the United 29 States", which is a code word for saying that they are a U.S. Congressman domiciled in the District of Columbia!
30 Once the kids achieve that substandard status, there is no way to deny that the federal courts have jurisdiction over
31 these formerly private citizens, and they are trapped until they revoke their election. Cleverly, the IRS and no one in 32 the government tells them in the IRS 1040 Booklet or in anything else they would be likely to read how to revoke that 33 election. Does this sound like the pied piper? Sure does to us!
- 34 6. Because people want to save money and pay the lowest tax rate, they file the wrong tax form (the 1040 form instead of 35 the 1040NR) and thereby volunteer into the jurisdiction of the federal government by filing their first 1040 form. The 36 top of the form says they are a "U.S. Individual", which implies that they are a resident of "United States**" federal 37 territory. This means their goose is cooked because now they come under the territorial jurisdiction of the federal 38 courts. Once you sign that 1040 form under penalty of perjury, you become a witness against yourself in violation of 39 your Fifth Amendment rights. You also become a substandard statutory "U.S. citizen" and ward of the federal 40 government, which is a status reserved for SLAVES following the civil war, but not something anyone else wants to be
41 or needs to be. To make things worse, in the process of writing off your children as tax deductions for a tax you don't 42 owe, you also in effect have to sell your children into slavery too by giving them Social Security Numbers and 43 claiming they are U.S. citizens! Look at the 1040, and you will find that you can't write off your children unless they 44 have SSN's and you claim them as "U.S. citizens" under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
- 45 7. Since the Fifth Amendment allows us to not be compelled to incriminate ourselves by filling out things we don't want 46 to put on a tax return, the IRS sets the withholding rate so that most people will get refunds at the end of the year. This 47 provides an incentive for people to file returns and complete them when they otherwise would not. In effect, they have 48 made it into a "privilege" to get our money back which requires us to surrender our privacy and waive our Fifth
49 Amendment rights to get the money owed to us in the refund.

8. After these people are transformed into federal serfs by becoming unwitting "U.S. citizens" (in what we refer to as a conspiracy against rights), if they get out of line, IRS computers harass and intimidate them, treating them in most cases as businesses (look in your IMF file to verify this for yourself) and making up bogus liabilities to fill their IMF file. The IRS also keeps them in line by threatening penalties that only corporations and partnerships, technically, are liable to pay, but they don't tell you that (see 26 C.F.R. §301.6671-1\(b\) if you don't believe us) at:

<http://squid.law.cornell.edu/cgi-bin/get-cfr.cgi?TITLE=26&PART=301&SECTION=6671-1&TYPE=TEXT>

Doesn't this make you mad? It's a fraud and it's downright EVIL! It's all done because the government loves your money more than they respect your constitutional rights. It amounts to a "conspiracy against rights", which is a crime under 18 U.S.C. §241. We believe it is this very scheme that explains why Congress has put the IRS at arm's length by not having any federal statute or documented legal delegated authority that traces the activities of the IRS directly back to them. We assert that they do this to evade liability or being prosecuted if the lid ever blows on this organized crime and extortion (RICO) ring. You will learn later in section 7.1.4 that the IRS is actually headquartered out of Puerto Rico. Now do you understand why they call it RICO: The IRS were the first ones to implement this and they became the model for the laws against such extortion.

5.6.13.7.2 Tricks Congress Pulled to Undermine the Non-Resident Non-Person Position

The Non-Resident Non-Person Position can be a losing position in federal court if you don't know what you are doing. Congress knows that the Non-Resident Non-Person Position is a good and legal way to avoid Subtitle A income taxes, so they put two statutory roadblocks in front of patriots who try to use it. We'll now discuss each of these two roadblocks individually.

26 U.S.C. §871(a) imposes a tax of 30% on income from within the federal United States that is not connected with United States business, which means connected with a "trade or business" in the United States. Most people don't look any further than that in reading this law. But the more astute readers will look up the definition of "trade or business" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) and find out that it means "public office", which means the tax only applies to Congressmen! Throughout section 871, it is emphasized that the 30% tax is imposed on identified activities associated with "sources within the United States" (see 26 U.S.C. §871(a)(1) and (a)(2), which use the term "sources within the United States", for example). The place we must go in the code to find out about "sources within the United States" is 26 U.S.C. §861. We look there and find the following about income of nonresident aliens from "sources within the United States":

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART 1 > Sec. 861.
Sec. 861. - Income from sources within the United States

(a) Gross income from sources within United States

The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources within the United States:

(3) Personal services

Compensation for labor or personal services performed in the United States; except that compensation for labor or services performed in the United States shall not be deemed to be income from sources within the United States if-

(A) the labor or services are performed by a nonresident alien individual temporarily present in the United States for a period or periods not exceeding a total of 90 days during the taxable year,

(B) such compensation does not exceed $3,000 in the aggregate, and

(C) the compensation is for labor or services performed as an employee of or under a contract with -

(i) a nonresident alien, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States, or

(ii) an individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States, a domestic partnership, or a domestic corporation, if such labor or services are performed for an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States by such individual, partnership, or corporation.

In addition, compensation for labor or services performed in the United States shall not be deemed to be income from sources within the United States if the labor or services are performed by a nonresident alien individual in connection with the individual's temporary presence in the United States as a regular member of the crew of a foreign vessel engaged in transportation between the United States and a foreign country or a possession of the United States.

So if you are a non-resident non-person American national working in the federal United States for another nonresident alien, then you don't earn "gross income" from "sources within the United States", which means you can't earn "taxable income". You see how Congress twists things in the code to deceive or mislead so as to maximize their revenues? On the one hand they say in section 871 that nonresident aliens owe 30% tax if they are not associated with a "trade or business in the United States" but on the other hand, they say in section 861 that this same person doesn't owe the tax if they are working for another nonresident alien or are not engaged in a "trade or business in the United States". Most of the tricks are hidden in section 861. This is yet one more trick played by that section, and they use this trick hoping you won't know the proper source rules for allocating income and will just assume that "everything" you make is "gross income" and "taxable income". Most of your earnings as a "national" of the United States of America pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and a "non-resident non-person", however, won't in fact be statutory "gross income" if you really analyze things using the law.

The second roadblock that Congress put in the way of non-resident non-persons guarantees that those who don't know what they are doing will lose in federal court. That roadblock is 28 U.S.C. §2201 as follows, and it prevents federal courts from deciding on state and federal citizenship, rights, or status related to these in regards to taxes when cases are heard in federal courts!:

United States Code
TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
CHAPTER 151 - DECLARATORY JUDGMENTS
Sec. 2201. Creation of remedy

(a) In a case of actual controversy within its jurisdiction, EXCEPT with respect to Federal taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, a proceeding under section 505 or 1146 of title 11, or in any civil action involving an antidumping or countervailing duty proceeding regarding a class or kind of merchandise of a free trade area country (as defined in section 516A(f)(10) of the Tariff Act of 1930), as determined by the administering authority, any court of the United States, upon the filing of an appropriate pleading, may declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party seeking such declaration, whether or not further relief is or could be sought. Any such declaration shall have the force and effect of a final judgment or decree and shall be reviewable as such.

(b) For limitations on actions brought with respect to drug patents see section 505 or 512 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

So in other words, courts are prohibited from declaring your status or rights in the context of federal "taxes". Below is an example of one court's response to a request by a person to be declared a "nontaxpayer". His request was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction!

Specifically, Rowen seeks a declaratory judgment against the United States of America with respect to "whether or not the plaintiff is a taxpayer pursuant to, and/or under 26 U.S.C. § 7701(a)(14)." (See Compl. at 2.) This Court lacks jurisdiction to issue a declaratory judgment "with respect to Federal taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986," a code section that is not at issue in the instant action. See 28 U.S.C. § 2201; see also Hughes v. United States, 953 F.2d. 531, 536-537 (9th Cir. 1991) (affirming dismissal of claim for declaratory relief under § 2201 where claim concerned question of tax liability). Accordingly, defendant's motion to dismiss is hereby GRANTED, and the instant action is hereby DISMISSED.
[\[Rowen v. U.S., 05-3766MMC. \(N.D.Cal. 11/02/2005\)\]](#)

This means that if you claim to be a "non-resident non-person" for the purposes of the income tax, you are not subject to the income tax "franchise code" and the judge can't argue with you and they have to accept what is on your (hopefully "1040NR" and not "1040" !) tax return, even if the IRS challenges that status! It also means that claims based on constitutional rights cannot be claimed in federal court if they are done in the context of "taxes" only! We know from

1 reading the case of Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) that there is only one place where Congress can by legislation
 2 suspend the enforcement of the Bill of Rights or the Constitution, and that is only within the federal zone against persons
 3 domiciled AND PHYSICALLY PRESENT there at the time. This provides a clue to us where the Internal Revenue Code
 4 applies, and it isn't inside states of the Union if the land isn't owned by the federal government!

5 So how do we get a court to rule on our status as a "non-resident non-person" in such a way that the federal court has to 6 accept this status? Well:

- 7 1. We know that the above act can really only apply to franchisees called "taxpayers" and that to apply it against a person
 8 who is NOT a franchisee called a "taxpayer" would be a tort by the judge. Therefore, WE declare that we are a 9 "nontaxpayer" and then asked the judge to remain silent or dismiss the case if he agrees with us or offer proof on the 10 record if he thinks we are NOT. This is the approach that we take with the following form on our website:

Federal Pleading/Motion/Petition Attachment, Litigation Tool #01.002
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>

- 11 2. We know that the above act can only apply to persons domiciled on federal territory and if you are not domiciled on 12 federal territory as a nonresident alien, then it doesn't apply to you. Federal law does not apply inside a state of the 13 Union to anything other than federal property. Therefore, when we ask, we emphasize that we are nonresidents to 14 which the act does not apply and that we are protected by the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act. If he dismisses our 15 case, he will have then have to find some other ground to dismiss.
- 16 3. It is best done preferably in a state court or in a federal court but not in the context of taxes. For instance, if we petition
 17 the court for a declaratory judgment regarding our citizenship status and don't mention taxes in the pleading and do it
 18 before and separate from the tax trial, then the judge hearing your tax trial has to accept the findings. Don't be 19 discouraged, however. There is a way around this statutory trap. Below is the way around the roadblock:

20 While income tax arguments are barred under this rule - actions proving lack of citizenship, domicile, and residence are 21 specifically allowed. The issue is not income tax but jurisdiction over the person. Lack of jurisdiction is proved by Federal 22 Rule of Civil Procedure 44 and 44.1 - You go to the proper jurisdiction to resolve the matter by taking the following steps:

- 23 1. Acquire domicile and residence in a common law jurisdiction.
- 24 2. File notice in the clerk's office in state and federal courts.
- 25 3. Argue this in Federal court using as evidence the filings filed at common law, state court and federal courts.
- 26 4. Appeal at common law under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 60 last line "by independent action".

27 You are then not arguing jurisdiction in front of that court - you are using evidence to prove that jurisdiction already exists
 28 in another court. Read 28 U.S.C. §2201 and it states that it must be argued in the proper manner - and that is by not letting
 29 the U.S. court decide that issue - go to common law and plead condition precedent under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure
 30 8.(The citizenship was already decided before the action began).

31 This argument is in agreement with all of the cites herein and the argument that dual citizenship can exist. State law tells 32 you the procedure for noticing the state courts that you have acquired a new residence and domicile.

33 5.6.13.7.3 How to Avoid Jeopardizing Your Nonresident Citizen or Nonresident Alien Status

34 If you are going to claim "nonresident alien" status, then you must do the following to ensure that you NEVER jeopardize 35 that status, or you could incur unwanted additional income tax liability:

- 36 1. If you live in the United States** (the "federal zone"), you should always vote by absentee ballot in all national 37 elections. IRS Publication 54 for the year 2000 states on page 13 that:

38 "Effect of voting by absentee ballot.

39 If you are a U.S. citizen living abroad, you can vote by absentee ballot in any election held in the United States
 40 without risking your status as a bona fide resident of a foreign country. However, if you give information to the 41 local election officials about the nature and length of your stay abroad that does not match the information you
 42 give for the bona fide residence test, the information given in connection with absentee voting will be
 43 considered in determining your status, but will not necessarily be conclusive."

- 44 2. When or if you register to vote, you must be VERY careful not to sacrifice or confuse your citizenship status. Some states make it mandatory on the voter registration form that you claim to be a “U.S. citizen”. They want to pull you into the federal zone so they can tax you and if they litigate against you for income tax evasion, they will use your voter registration form as proof that you are a “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 born in the federal zone. California does this (see the California Revenue and Taxation Code section 6017 for a definition of the term “This State” and “State of” for further details). Therefore, when you register to vote and must claim to be a “U.S. citizen” to get the “privilege” to vote (this is a scandal, if you ask me!), clarify which of the three “United States” you are claiming to be a citizen of as follows:

- 2.1. Change the term “United States” to add the word “of America” throughout the voter registration form.
- 2.2. Mention in an area on the form the supreme Court case of Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945), and the three definitions of “United States”.
- 2.3. Mention that of the three definitions, when you say you are a “U.S. citizen”, it means that you are a citizen of “United States the country” or the “50 several states” and not the federal zone area of the United States.
- 2.4. If they won't accept your changes above, then withdraw your voter registration. You should do all three of the above immediately after or preferably before you file your AMENDED W-8 form to become a non-resident non-person so that you have legal certified proof that you put the state on notice that you were NOT a federal U.S.** citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
- 2.5. If you have to defend yourself in court because you claimed to be a “U.S. citizen” on your voter registration and there is confusion or misinterpretation over the use of the term “United States”, explain which of the three definitions you meant (i.e. U.S.* or U.S.*** but NOT U.S.** citizen) and quote the case of Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904) as proof that the dispute should be resolved in your favor:

“Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid.”
[Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

3. While you are living abroad, or outside the federal United States** (the “federal zone”), you must be consistent in stating to the foreign country, or state of the 50 states of the Union that you are domiciled in that foreign state but are not a “resident” under the Internal Revenue Code. Remember from section 4.10 earlier that the only people who are “residents” are “aliens” under the Internal Revenue Code! If you claim not to be domiciled in that “foreign state” and if the authorities of that nonfederal zone entity exclude you from their income taxes, then you will lose your tax-exempt status. IRS Publication 54 says the following in that regard on page 13 of the year 2000 version:

“Statement to foreign authorities.

You are not considered a bona fide resident of a foreign country if you make a statement to the authorities of that country that you are not a resident of that country and the authorities hold that you are not subject to their income tax laws as a resident.

If you have made such a statement and the authorities have not made a final decision on your status, you are not considered to be a bona fide resident of that foreign country. To keep your status as a bona fide resident of a foreign country, you must have a clear intention of returning from such trips, without unreasonable delay, to your foreign residence or to a new bona fide residence in another foreign country.”

5.6.13.7.4 “Will I Lose My Military Security Clearance or Passport or Social Security Benefits by Becoming a Nonresident Alien or a ‘national’?”

The answer to this question is emphatically no to all three. The term “non-resident non-person” or “nonresident alien” on the IRS Form W-8BEN (called a “Certificate of Foreign Status”) is a “word of art” that only has meaning within the context of the Internal Revenue Code and nowhere else. You can still get a U.S.A. Passport, maintain your military security clearance, serve in the military, and collect social security benefits based on what you paid in because you were born in the United States of America and are a “national”, and Constitutional but not statutory citizen under federal law. Your birth certificate proves that. The only thing that filing a W-8 or W-8BEN and amended SS-5 form and becoming a “non-resident non-person” do in the eyes of the IRS is notify the IRS that you don't have a domicile in the federal zone, aren't a statutory "U.S.** citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, don't occupy a public office in the national government, and aren't liable for federal income taxes under 26 U.S.C. §1 (and the implementing regulations in 26 C.F.R. § 1.1-1).

To further investigate this matter, we looked at the U.S. Navy's directives on this subject. SECNAVINST 5510.30A, Department of the Navy (Secretary of the Navy Instruction 5510.30A) entitled Department of the Navy Personnel Security Program, talks about the citizenship requirements for getting a U.S. government security clearance. Here is what it says on page I-1 of Appendix I:

1. Only United States citizens are eligible for a security clearance, assignment to sensitive duties or access to classified information. When compelling reasons exist, in furtherance of the DON mission, including special expertise, a non-U.S. citizen may be assigned to sensitive duties (see chapter 5) or granted a Limited Access Authorization (see chapter 9) under special procedures.

When this instruction refers to U.S. citizens, it makes no distinction between those who are U.S. citizens by birth, those who are U.S. nationals, those who have derived U.S. citizenship or those who acquired it through naturalization. For the purpose of issuance of a security clearance, citizens of the Federated States of Micronesia (FSM) and the Republic of the Marshall Islands are considered U.S. citizens.
[emphasis added]

<http://neds.nebt.daps.mil/551030.htm>

We also searched the Social Security Administration (SSA) website (<http://www.ssa.gov>) for information about whether a distinction is made between the treatment of "U.S. nationals" and "U.S. citizens". The Program Operation Manual System (POMS) maintained by the SSA contains the following on this subject, in section GN 00303.001 entitled "Requirement of U.S. Citizenship or Appropriate Alien Status":

GN 00303.001 Requirement of U.S. Citizenship or Appropriate Alien Status

A. Policy Principle

An individual must be a U.S. citizen or have the appropriate alien status to be eligible for the following benefits:

- Benefits at age 72 for uninsured individuals;
- Supplemental Security Income; and
- Health Insurance or Supplemental Medical Insurance for uninsured individuals.

C. Operating Policy - Citizenship

"U.S. Nationals are treated as U.S. citizens for SSA purposes"
(see <http://policy.ssa.gov/poms.nsf/lnx/0200303001>)

The IRS Form W-7, "Application for IRS Individual Taxpayer Identification Number" confirms the above conclusions. If you examine this form at:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormW7.pdf>

you will see that the top of the form says:

"For use by individuals who are not U.S. citizens or nationals".

The only way you can therefore get a Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) to replace a Social Security Number is if you don't otherwise qualify for Social Security as a "U.S. citizen" or "national". This form, however, could be used for artificial entities, like businesses or corporations. For instance, if your children didn't want SSN's, then when they reach age 18, they could apply for a fictitious business name with the name of the business being their real name but in all caps, and then apply for a TIN for the business and use that instead of a real SSN. They could then discontinue the business after they get what they want by giving the number, or they could terminate the business and the number, and renew the next

1 year with a different number. This is a sneaky way to avoid getting permanently branded or “dog-tagged” by our dishonest
2 and covetous government.

3 The SSA website also defines “U.S. nationals” in section RS 02001.010 as follows:

4 “RS 02001.010 United States Nationals

5 ...

6 B. DEFINITION

7 A U.S. national is a U.S. citizen or a person who, although not a U.S. citizen, owes permanent allegiance to the
8 United States. The only persons who are U.S. nationals but not U.S.
9 citizens are American Samoans and natives of Swains Island.

11 [Social Security Administration, Program Operations Manual System (POMS), Section RS 02001.010,
12 emphasis added]

13 Before you get carried away with the above contradiction, consider the following facts:

- 14 1. The Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302 shows in section 4.11.6 earlier that there are actually two types of “nationals”:
15 “nationals but not citizens of the United States at birth” under 8 U.S.C. §1408, and another called a “state
16 national”/“national” defined under 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(21\). Only one of these two types of “nationals of the United 17 States” are subject to federal jurisdiction. The other one, the person born in and domiciled in a state of the Union, is 18 not subject to federal jurisdiction but is formally recognized in 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(21\). The “national” or “state
19 national” can’t be subject to federal civil law, because the Constitution doesn’t confer to the federal government the 20 authority to determine the citizenship status of persons born in states of the Union, which are outside its jurisdiction 21 and “foreign” with respect to federal jurisdiction.
- 22 2. The IRS code supersedes the SSA manual as it pertains to the collection of taxes, as confirmed in POMS section
23 entitled “RS 01801.020 Responsibilities of IRS and SSA” located at:
24 [http://policy.ssa.gov/poms.nsf/36f3b2ee954f0075852568c100630558/e7fe4ff1331e2ccb85256a5c004e6120?OpenDoc
25 ument](http://policy.ssa.gov/poms.nsf/36f3b2ee954f0075852568c100630558/e7fe4ff1331e2ccb85256a5c004e6120?OpenDocument)
- 26 3. The Social Security Administration’s POMS manual above is NOT LAW, but only guidance which cannot be enforced
27 in court. The SSA can lie through their teeth on this manual and never be held accountable for that lie, because the 28 manual is only directory in nature. The same is true of the IRS regarding their publications, including their Internal 29 Revenue Manual (I.R.M.). Here is the way one court put it:

30 “Rules contained in the Internal Revenue Manual, even if they were codified in Code of Federal Regulations, did not have the 31 force and effect of law, and therefore, district court, in Government’s action to collect assessment, correctly precluded defendant
32 from introducing evidence concerned these provisions.”
33 [United States v. Horne, 714 F.2d. 206 (1983)]

- 34 4. The only thing you can or should rely on is the actual law itself (the statutes and their implementing regulations) and 35 the rulings of the Supreme Court.

36 It is very important to update your “U.S. citizenship” status as outlined in:

- 37 1. Legal Notice of Change in Domicile/Citizenship Records and Divorce from the United States, Form #10.001
38 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 39 2. Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005, section 2.5.3.13
40 <http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Ebooks/SovFormsInstr/SovFormsInstr.htm>

41 . . . before you begin your administrative battle with the government, because this will significantly bolster your legal
42 position and provide important and irrefutable evidence of your position by establishing evidence to prove their lack of 43 jurisdiction over you. We also suggest getting a notarized copy of your birth certificate from the county recorder or area
44 where you were born. If the IRS wants to challenge you on your “non-resident non-person” or citizenship status, you will
45 need proof of that status. Examine your birth certificate, security clearance, etc carefully to ensure that they don’t say you
46 were born in the federal zone. If you were born in a military hospital, a federal base, or a federal territory or possession, or

1 in the District of Columbia (because, for instance, you were in a military family), and your birth certificate says so, you
 2 may need to abandon ties to the federal zone by renounce statutory 8 U.S.C. §1401 citizenship to become a “national”
 3 under 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(21\). We emphasize here as was also done in section 4.11.10 the Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302:
 4 You DON'T need to expatriate your constitutional citizenship or “nationality” in order to become a statutory “non-resident
 5 non-person” or even “nonresident alien”. You already are one. Please don't expatriate your nationality in order to achieve
 6 “nonresident alien” status because the government will slander you and make you look like a traitor against your country in 7 front of a jury! For further information on expatriation, we refer you to the following:

<http://famguardian.org/subjects/legalgovref/citizenship/usa.htm>

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/LegalGovRef/Citizenship/Expatriation.htm>

8 Lastly, please DO NOT ask us how to collect any socialist benefit and ALSO be either a “non-resident non-person” or a
 9 member of SEDM, because, although it is legally possible, our policy is not to allow our members to employ either our 10 information or our services in doing this. The reason is because we think they in effect are STEALING. Anyone who 11 violates this requirement becomes a Member in Bad Standing. We're not saying you CANNOT do it, but that IF you do it,
 12 you can't use our forms or services to do it. Please don't ask us WHY this is our policy. It just IS. This is covered in:

13 5.6.13.8 Tax Returns of Non-resident NON-person NON-taxpayers

14 5.6.13.8.1 Options for filling out return forms

15 Non-resident non-person nontaxpayers have to be very careful how they file their tax returns. IRS tax forms are a 16 deliberate trap because:

- 17 1. IRS only makes “taxpayer” forms. The IRS Mission Statement in Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 1.1.1.1
 18 says they only help “taxpayers”. If you are a “nontaxpayer”, they:
 19 1.1. Don't have any forms to use for your status.
 20 1.2. Deliberately ignore and terrorize you, not help you.
- 21 2. If you send them a tax return, they will assume that you are an “individual” and therefore an “alien individual”. We 22 now know after reading this memorandum of law that this presumption is FALSE in your case if you are a state
 23 national, because you are neither a “nonresident alien individual” nor an “alien individual”, but simply a “non-resident 24 non-person”, meaning simply that you are neither:
 25 2.1. A statutory “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 nor 26 2.2. A statutory “resident alien” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
- 27 3. The only return form IRS has for human beings who are state nationals is the 1040NR, but even that is the wrong form 28 for those not engaged in the “trade or business”/public office franchise.
- 29 4. The current version of the 1040NR form indicates that it is for use by “U.S. nationals” in blocks 1 and 3, BUT:
 30 4.1. The “U.S. national” status is statutorily defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22) and 8 U.S.C. §1408.
 31 4.2. If you are domiciled in a state of the Union, you are not a statutory “U.S. national” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1408
 32 and 8 U.S.C. §1452, but rather simply a “national” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
 33 4.3. The “U.S. national” status appears in the exemption block of the form, but non-resident non-persons and who 34 have no “trade or business” earnings can't take any exemptions or reductions in their liability because they aren't 35 subject to the code and therefore can't accept privileges. See:
 36 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/IRSForm1040nr-USNational.pdf>
 37 4.4. There is no way to describe your citizenship, domicile, and tax status on these forms WITHOUT taking an 38 exemption. This is deliberate, so that:
 39 4.4.1. They can force you into a privileged state.
 40 4.4.2. Cause you to engage in commerce with the government by accepting a “benefit” and thereby surrender
 41 sovereign immunity pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605(a).
 42 4.4.3. Help the IRS perpetuate false presumptions about you and illegally enforce the Internal Revenue Code
 43 against those who are not subject.
- 44 5. The perjury statement in the signature block on the 1040NR form, like all other IRS forms, places you in the federal 45 zone, as we explained in section 5.6.13.4.11 earlier. To make things worse, if you try to physically modify the perjury statement to correctly place you outside the federal zone so that you DON'T commit perjury, the IRS tries to penalize you.

Members of this ministry are constrained by our Member Agreement, Form #01.001 in how to fill out tax return forms. To both conform with our Member Agreement, Form #01.001 and also avoid all the pitfalls of the standard IRS tax return forms, we suggest the following techniques that we use for preparing tax return forms for ourselves:

1. Use the standard IRS form to file the return.
2. Answer the questions on the form consistent with the content of the next section.
3. Attach the following form to ensure that all the words on the form are defined to place you outside their jurisdiction and to prevent false presumptions about the meaning of "words of art". This is also required by our Member Agreement, Form #01.001:

Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. Attach the following form so that your tax status is clearly documented so that you don't become a victim of frequent and false IRS presumptions about your status:

Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5. You may not avail yourself of any commercial "privileges" of the I.R.C. because this causes a surrender of sovereign immunity pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605(a) and causes you to become subject to their jurisdiction:
  - 5.1. You may not indicate "trade or business" earnings in blocks 8 through 23. All these blocks must be ZERO. A "trade or business" is an excise taxable privilege. See:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 5.2. You may not take any "exemptions" by checking any of the exemption blocks, blocks 1 through 7.
- 5.3. Attach corrected information returns to the return zeroing out the false "trade or business" reports so that you are not connected to a "public office" in the government. See the following on how to correct erroneous information returns:

Correcting Erroneous Information Returns, Form #04.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. At the bottom of every page of the standard IRS 1040NR form write "Not valid without all enclosures attached and signed, quantity ____". This will prevent them from excluding any of the enclosures as evidence if your tax return ever becomes the subject of litigation.
7. In the signature block on the signature line, put "See attached Tax Form Attachment for signature". Then sign the Tax Form Attachment, which contains a redefinition of the perjury statement.
8. You should emphasize that:
  - 8.1. This is not a request for a refund pursuant to any provision of the I.R.C.
  - 8.2. You are not subject to the I.R.C. and do not claim any of the benefits or protections of the I.R.C.
  - 8.3. If you are asking for a refund, emphasize that this is a NON-STATUTORY refund request not pursuant to the I.R.C. Subtitle A franchise agreement, but rather subject to equity and not law:

"A claim against the United States is a right to demand money from the United States. <sup>164</sup> Such claims are sometimes spoken of as gratuitous in that they cannot be enforced by suit without statutory consent. <sup>165</sup> The general rule of non-liability of the United States does not mean that a citizen cannot be protected against the wrongful governmental acts that affect the citizen or his or her property. <sup>166</sup> If, for example, money or property of an innocent person goes into the federal treasury by fraud to which a government agent was a party, the United States cannot [lawfully] hold the money or property against the claim of the injured party. <sup>167</sup>"

22                   8.4. As a person who is not subject to their jurisdiction and a "nontaxpayer", you may not lawfully be penalized for 23                   any aspect of the submission. The Tax Form Attachment above already has this language to save you time.

24                   9. REMEMBER: The shorter your submission is, the better off you are and the more likely you are to have the return
 25                   processed rather than ignored.

 30                   resident alien. IRS Publication 504 (2007), p. 3 says the following on this subject:

31                   Married Filing Jointly

32                   "Nonresident alien. To file a joint return, at least one of you must be a U.S. citizen or resident alien at the end
 33 of the tax year. If either of you was a nonresident alien at any time during the tax year, you can file a joint 34 return only if you agree to treat the nonresident spouse as a resident of the United States. This means that your 35 combined worldwide incomes are subject to U.S. income tax. These rules are explained in Publication 519, US.
 36 Tax Guide for Aliens."

37                   [IRS Publication 504 (2007), p. 3]

38                   A non-resident non-person who is not an "alien" cannot lawfully make an election to become a "resident alien" under 26
 39                   U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h). A state national who declares a residence on federal territory becomes a statutory "U.S. citizen"
 40                   pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 rather than a resident alien pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). This is clarified by 26 C.F.R.
 41                   §1.871-2(b), which is the only definition of "residence" and which associates it with an "alien" but not a state national or 42                   "national" :

43                   Title 26: Internal Revenue
 44                   PART 1—INCOME TAXES
 45                   nonresident alien individuals
 46                   § 1.871-2 Determining residence of alien individuals.

47                   (b) Residence defined.

An alien actually present in the United States who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the United States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with regard to the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another country is not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite intention as to his stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its nature may be promptly accomplished is a transient; but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended stay may be necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the United States, he becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad when the purpose for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United States is limited to a definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the meaning of this section, in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

Therefore:

1. It is legally impossible and fraudulent for a state national to make an election to become a "resident alien" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) so that they can file jointly with a "taxpayer" spouse.
2. It is equally fraudulent for the "taxpayer" spouse to file a Form 1040, since they are not an alien and are not domiciled on federal territory, which are the two prerequisites for filing Form 1040.
3. For the same reason, it is unlawful and fraudulent for the IRS to do a Substitute For Return (SFR) or involuntary assessment on a state national, who is a non-resident non-person and not an alien. SFR's are done on IRS Form 1040 rather than 1040NR. No one but the subject of the return can consent to make an election to become a "resident" and thereby use Form 1040. The IRS cannot compel you to make an election to be a resident and it is fraudulent to do so if you are not an alien. See:

5.6.13.8.3 Answers to Questions on IRS Form 1040NR Consistent with this pamphlet

Several people have asked us how to answer the questionnaire at the end of IRS Form 1040NR consistent with their status as described in this document. The form to which we refer is that indicated below:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSForm1040nr.pdf>

The questions at the end of the above STANDARD IRS Form are designed to create an opportunity for the IRS to create a controversy that will open an opportunity for them to involuntarily or unlawfully assess you with a liability that you in fact DO NOT have or to penalize you unlawfully. Therefore, you must be very careful how you answer these questions. We also attach corrected information returns for all the years in question from the links below, along with a letter of detailed explanation to avoid any confusion or controversy:

1. Correcting Erroneous Information Returns, Form #04.001: Incorporates the following four documents into one PDR with added information.

2. Correcting Erroneous IRS Form W-2's, Form #04.006

If you want to investigate these matters beyond that described in this section, see the following authorities:

1. Federal Nonresident Nonstatutory Claim for Return of Funds Unlawfully Paid to the Government-Long, Form #15.001. Preferred over the standard IRS Form 1040NR.

3 We caution that it is a BAD idea to use STANDARD IRS Forms off the IRS website without attaching the following form
4 because they create opportunities for false presumptions by ignorant clerks that are unwarranted and also invite the IRS to 5 get into a pissing contest with you because they leave so many things unexplained.

6 Because of this, we send in the Federal Nonresident Non-statutory Claim for Return of Funds Unlawfully Paid to the 7 Government-Long, Form #15.001, Item 1 above instead of the standard IRS Form 1040NR, and it completely avoids any
8 disputes with the IRS or involuntary assessments that might result from them. All we get back is silence in response,
9 because there is no "wiggle room" to create a controversy and anything they say will incriminate them beyond that point so
10 they just shut up.

11 Below are the answers we use on our own standard IRS Form 1040NR, along with a detailed explanation of the answers.
12 This description does NOT constitute legal advice and is not intended for use by anything but the author. Tailoring these 13 answers to your specific situation is your choice and exclusive responsibility. These answers assume that the person filling
14 out the form is born or naturalized in the United States OF AMERICA and therefore is a citizen under the Constitution of 15 the United States, but does not maintain a domicile anywhere on federal territory and therefore is not a statutory "U.S.
16 citizen" as described in 8 U.S.C. §1401.

17
18 A. What country issued your passport?

19 ANSWER: United States OF AMERICA, NOT the "United States" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).

20 B. Were you ever a "U.S. citizen"?  Yes  No

21 ANSWER: The answer is NO, because this is a tax question and I'm not a statutory "national and citizen of the 22 United States**", where "United States" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) to
23 expressly include federal territories, possessions, and the District of Columbia and no other place. See the following
24 and rebut the questions at the end within 30 days if you disagree. I am a state national as described in 8 U.S.C.
25 §1101(a)(21). I am a constitutional "citizen" as described in the Fourteenth Amendment but not a statutory "citizen of 26 the United States" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 or 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).

27 Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
28 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

29 C. Give the purpose of your visit to the United States:

30 ANSWER: That depends on which of the three "United States" you mean as described by the Supreme Court in
31 Hooven and Allison v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945). The only "United States" you can legislate for in the context of a
32 non-alien is federal territory and I'm not visiting that "United States", which is defined as federal territory in 26 U.S.C.
33 §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and nowhere expressly extended to include States of the Union.

34 "When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that
35 term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory
36 definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n.
37 10 ("As a rule, "a definition which declares what a term "means" . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated");
38 Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S.
39 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction §
40 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at
41 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include
42 the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the 43 contrary."
44 [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

1 D. Type of entry visa.

2 ANSWER: None.

3 E. Date you entered the United States.

4 ANSWER: Never entered the “United States” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10).

5 F. Did you give up your permanent residence as an immigrant in the United States this year?  Yes  No

6 ANSWER: Not an “resident alien” in relation to the “United States” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\). Rather,
7 I am a constitutional citizen but not the statutory citizen described in 8 U.S.C. §1401. See and rebut the following
8 within 30 days or you agree:

9 Why You are a “national”, “state national”, and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
10 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

11 G. Dates you entered and left the United States during the year. Residents of Canada or Mexico entering and leaving the 12 United States at frequent intervals, give name of country only.

13 ANSWER: Never entered the federal “United States” during the year.

14 H. Give number of days (including vacation and non-workdays) you were present in the United States.

15 ANSWER: Never physically present or domiciled anywhere within the “United States” as defined in 26 U.S.C.
16 §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10).

17 I. If you are a resident of Canada, Mexico, the Republic of Korea (South Korea), or Japan ( and you elect to have the old 18 U.S.-Japan income tax treaty apply in its entirety for ____ ) or a U.S. national, did your spouse contribute to the support of 19 any child claimed on Form 1040NR, line 7c?

20 ANSWER: Not a resident alien of Canada, Mexico, Republic of Korea, or Japan. All “residents” are aliens, pursuant 21 to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\).

22 J. Did you file a U.S. income tax return for any year before ____?

23 [Skip question. Only you know the answer to that question]

24 K. To which Internal Revenue office did you pay any amounts claimed on Form 1040NR, lines 60, 63, and 65?

25 ANSWER: The branch which handles nonresident tax returns, which is the International Branch in Texas.

26 L. Have you excluded any gross income other than foreign source income not effectively connected with a U.S. trade or
27 business?  Yes  No

28 ANSWER: Don't earn “gross income” because no earnings connected with a “trade or business”, which is defined in 29 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as “the functions of a public office”. Authorities for not earning “gross income” include 26
30 C.F.R. §1.872-2(f), 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(6)-1(b), 26 U.S.C. §861\(a\)\(3\)\(C\)\(i\), 26 U.S.C. §3401\(a\)\(6\), 26 U.S.C.
31 §1402\(b\), and 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31).

32 M. If you are claiming the benefits of a U.S. income tax treaty with a foreign country, give the following information:

33 ANSWER: Not claiming benefits of a tax treaty. Don't need treaty benefits or deductions if no “gross income” and 34 no earnings from the “United States”.

35 • Country:

- 1 • Type and amount of effectively connected income exempt from tax. Also identify the applicable tax treaty article.
2 Do not enter exempt income on lines 8, 9a, 10a, 11-15, 16b, or 17b-21 of form 1040NR
- 3 • Type and amount of income not effectively connected that is exempt from or subject to a reduced rate of tax.
4 Also, identify the applicable tax treaty article.
- 5 • Were you subject to tax in that country on any of the income you claim is entitled to the treaty benefits?  Yes
6 No
- 7 • Did you have a permanent establishment or fixed base (as defined by the tax treaty) in the United States at any 8 time during ____?

9 N. If you file this return to report community income, give your spouse's name, address, and identifying number.

10 ANSWER: First Amendment (right to NOT communicate) and Fifth Amendment. No "gross income" so none of 11 your business.

12 O. If you file this return for a trust, does the trust have a U.S. business?  Yes  No

13 ANSWER: Neither submitter nor any business entities he is connected to have a domicile in the "United States" nor 14 are engaged in excise taxable activities such as a "trade or business" that might create a duty to withhold or pay income
15 taxes.

16 P. Is this an "expatriation return"

17 ANSWER: No. I never voluntarily surrendered my nationality, but remain a state national as described in 8 U.S.C.
18 §1101\(a\)\(21\). I am NOT a statutory "U.S. national" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1408 or 8 U.S.C. §1452 or 8 U.S.C.
19 §1101\(a\)\(22\)\(B\).

20 Q. During ____, did you apply for, or take other affirmative steps to apply for, lawful permanent resident status in the 21 United States or have an application pending to adjust your status to that of a lawful permanent resident of the United 22 States?  Yes  No

23 ANSWER: No.

5.6.13.8.5 History of tax return form obfuscation to fool state domiciled parties into giving up their nonresident alien tax status

We have compiled a study of the various tax return forms from the inception of the income tax in 1913 to the present to show how non-resident non-persons domiciled in states of the Union were fooled into surrendering their sovereign non-resident non-person civil and tax status and unconstitutionally and fraudulently being treated as STATUTORY citizens and public officers in the process. You can view this chronological history at:

Tax Return Evolution, Exhibit #09.036
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

5.6.13.9 Rebutted objections to the Non-Resident Non-Person Position

5.6.13.9.1 Introduction

We would like to introduce our approach to defending the Non-Resident Non-Person Position against attack with a definition of “nonresident alien” from the Internal Revenue Code:

26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) Nonresident alien

An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of the United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

Notice the following about the above definition:

1. It defines what a “nonresident alien” IS NOT, but not what it IS.
2. It does not define what a “nonresident alien” is which is NOT an “individual”.
3. It does not define how one BECOMES an “individual”, which is by occupying an office with the national but not state government.

Why did they do the above? Because you cannot even DEFINE a status that you have NO JURISDICTION OVER! By default, nonresidents are immune from the jurisdiction of a legislatively foreign jurisdiction outside of their civil domicile per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17, the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part 4, Chapter 97, and the Minimum Contacts Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court. The only way they BECOME subject is by CONSENSUALLY and PURPOSEFULLY engaging in commerce within that otherwise foreign jurisdiction and thereby waiving sovereign immunity.

Based on the discussion, we have some questions for our detractors to deal with BEFORE they start throwing rocks at us:

1. Can a person who does not consent to the status of “resident” within a foreign jurisdiction and who contracts the choice of law with those they do business there to NOT become a “resident” NOT waive sovereign immunity and thereby retain their sovereign immunity?
2. By what lawful authority can any civil status be attached to a human being which carries obligations without exercising eminent domain and slavery? It ought to be obvious that whatever civil status, INCLUDING “individual” or even “nonresident alien” one adopts, would need to be voluntary or else a theft has occurred. This is proven in:

Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. What evidence do you have to prove that someone is a “nonresident alien” if they do not consent to the statutory obligations of such “individual”? Would that be involuntary servitude and theft?
4. What evidence do you have to prove that someone is NOT a thing that isn't even fully defined?
5. What evidence do you have to prove that the terms used in the above definition are POLITICAL terms? There are two contexts for every type of legal term: CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY. They are NOT equivalent and it is prejudicial and presumptive to PRESUME that they are. All such presumptions are a violation of due process of law and therefore a tort.
6. By what authority does government even define or designate the civil status of those it has no jurisdiction over such as nonresidents not consensually engaged in the “trade or business” and public office franchise and not consensually conducting commerce within federal territory?

- 1 7. Isn't the national government subject to the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part 4, Chapter 97,
 2 when IT tries to invade MY private life and jurisdiction and compel me to engage in commerce with IT absent my
 3 consent?
 4 7.1. Doesn't this "purposeful availment"?
 5 7.2. Aren't PRESUMPTIONS about my status that subject me to a commercial relationship with any government an 6 example of such "purposeful availment"?
- 7 8. Isn't it a violation of equal protection and the equivalent of a title of nobility to the "United States" as a legal person to 8 subject ME involuntarily to the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.) and yet to NOT subject the government to 9 the SAME act when it purposefully avails itself of my otherwise PRIVATE property without my consent? The 10 Supreme Court has held that EQUALITY OF RIGHTS of ALL is the FOUNDATION of all freedom. I can't be free if 11 you play by different rules.

12 To give the reader some idea of just how absurd and irrational the thinking of people in the legal profession really is on the 13 subject of taxation or jurisdiction, consider the following question posed by one of our readers to a judge in a tax case:

14 "Your honor, by what authority do you exercise jurisdiction over those who are not statutory 'taxpayer' 15 franchisees?"

16 You know what the judge's answer was?

17 "I've got jurisdiction over taxpayers, and nontaxpayers..."

18 And the response to the judge was:

19 *"Oh really? How the HELL did you get jurisdiction over that which is LEGALLY defined as that which you
 20 have no jurisdiction over? Even the U.S. Supreme Court recognizes that there is such a thing as a 21 'nontaxpayer'. Earth calling the bench."*

22 After that interchange, the judge dismissed the motion against the litigant who said the above. Members of the legal 23 profession have been drinking propaganda Kool-Aid disguised to LOOK like "law" for so long that they don't even have 24 the ability to think for themselves.

25 *"The most dangerous man, to any government, is the man who is able to think things out for himself...Almost 26 inevitably, he comes to the conclusion that the government he lives under is dishonest, insane, and intolerable."
 27 [Henry Louis Mencken]*

28 5.6.13.9.2 IRS Objections

29 5.6.13.9.2.1 Word "includes"

30 The most frequent objection to the content of this document relates to the employment of the word "includes" within the 31 Internal Revenue Code. Proponents of this objection often state arguments like the following:

32 *"Your interpretation of the term 'United States' as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) is incorrect. The definition
 33 uses the word 'includes'. 26 U.S.C. §7701\(c\) identifies the word 'includes' as a term of enlargement and not 34 limitation. This means that it is being used as the equivalent of 'in addition to'. The thing that it is adding to is 35 the commonly understood meaning of the term, which interprets its meaning as including the 50 states of the 36 Union."*

37 The definition of "includes" they are referring to in the above is the following:

38 26 U.S.C. § 7701\(c\) Include and Including

39 The terms 'include' and 'including' when used in a definition contained in this title shall not be deemed to 40 exclude other things otherwise within the meaning of the term defined."

41 What the above devious approach is trying to do is to abuse the rules of statutory construction in order to encourage or 42 promote false presumption about the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code. They are trying to hoodwink you into 43 believing that the IRS has more jurisdiction than they actually have. The rules of statutory construction state that the 44 purpose for defining a term in a law is to supersede, not enlarge, the common definition of the term. The purpose of law is to eliminate, not introduce, uncertainty, confusion, or presumption about what is required. If it adds to confusion or presumption, the due process is violated. Such a malicious approach is also the equivalent of “false commercial speech” which can and should be subject to injunction by the federal courts, but seldom is. In effect, whoever makes this false claim is trying to imply that I.R.C. §7701\(c\) gives them carte blanche authority to include whatever they subjectively want to add into the definition of the term being controverted. This approach obviously:

1. Violates the whole purpose behind why law exists to begin with, explained earlier, which is to define and limit government power so as to protect the citizen from abuse by his government.
2. Gives arbitrary authority to a single individual to determine what the law “includes” and what it does not.

“When we consider the nature and the theory of our institutions of government, the principles on which they are supposed to rest, and review the history of their development, we are constrained to conclude that they do not mean to leave room for the play and action of purely personal and arbitrary power. Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law, for it is the author and source of law; but in our system, while sovereign powers are delegated to the agencies of government, sovereignty itself remains with the people, by whom and for whom all government exists and acts. And the law is the definition and limitation of power. It is, indeed, quite true that there must always be lodged somewhere, and in some person or body, the authority of final decision; and in many cases of mere administration, the responsibility is purely political, no appeal lying except to the ultimate tribunal of the public judgment, exercised either in the pressure of opinion, or by means of the suffrage. But the fundamental rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, considered as individual possessions, are secured by those maxims of constitutional law which are the monuments showing the victorious progress of the race in securing to men the blessings of civilization under the reign of just and equal laws, so that, in the famous language of the Massachusetts bill of rights, the government of the commonwealth ‘may be a government of laws and not of men.’ For the very idea that one man may be compelled to hold his life, or the means of living, or any material right essential to the enjoyment of life, at the mere will of another, seems to be intolerable in any country where freedom prevails, as being the essence of slavery itself.”
 Yick Wo v. Hopkins, [118 U.S. 356 (1886)]

3. Creates a society of men and not law, in violation of Marbury v. Madison cited earlier.
4. Is a recipe for tyranny and oppression.
5. Creates slavery and involuntary servitude of citizens toward their government, in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
6. Creates a “dulocracy”, where our public servants unjustly domineer over their us as their masters:

“Dulocracy. A government where servants and slaves have so much license and privilege that they domineer.”
 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 501]

7. Compels “presumption” and therefore violates due process of law.
8. Injures the Constitutional rights of the interested party.

Black’s Law Dictionary provides two possible definitions for the word “includes”. It can be used as a term of limitation or enlargement:

“Include. (Lat. Includere, to shut in. keep within.) To confine within, hold as an inclosure. Take in, attain, shut up, contain, inclose, comprise, comprehend, embrace, involve. Term may, according to context, express an enlargement and have the meaning of and or in addition to, or merely specify a particular thing already included within general words theretofore used. “Including” within statute is interpreted as a word of enlargement or of illustrative application as well as a word of limitation. Premier Products Co. v. Cameron, 240 Or. 123, 400 P.2d. 227, 228.”
 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 763 (1990)]

Based on the above, the only reasonable interpretation of any statute or code is to include only that which is explicitly spelled out. There are only three ways to define a term in a law:

1. To define every use and application of a term within a single section of a code or statute. Such a definition could be relied upon as a universal rule for interpreting the word defined, to the exclusion, even, of the common definition of the word. Remember that according to the Rules of Statutory Construction, the purpose for defining a word in a statute is to exclude all other uses, and even the common use, from being used by the reader. This is the case with the word “includes” within the Internal Revenue Code, which is only defined in one place in the entire Title 26, which is found

- 1 in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(c\) . For this type of definition, the word “includes” would be used ONLY as a term of “limitation”.
- 2 2. To break the definition across multiple sections of code, where each additional section is a regional definition that is
- 3 limited to a specific range of sections within the code. For this context, the term “includes” is used mainly as a word of
- 4 “limitation” and it means “is limited to”. For instance, the term “United States” is defined in three places within the
- 5 Internal Revenue Code, and each definition is different:
- 6 2.1. 26 U.S.C. §3121
- 7 2.2. 26 U.S.C. §4612
- 8 2.3. 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10).
- 9 3. To break the definition across multiple sections of code, where each additional section ADDS to the definition. For
- 10 this context, the term “includes” is used mainly as a word of “enlargement”, and functions essentially as meaning “in
- 11 addition to”. For instance:
- 12 3.1. Code section 1 provides the following definition:

13 Chapter 1 Definitions
14 Section 1: Definition of “fruit”

15 For the purposes of this chapter, the term “fruit” shall include apples, oranges and bananas.

- 16 3.2. Code section 10 expands the definition of “fruit” as follows. Watch how the “includes” word adds and expands
- 17 the original definition, and therefore is used as a term of “enlargement” and “extension”:

18 Chapter 2 Definitions
19 Section 10 Definition of “fruit”

20 For the purposes of this Chapter, the term “fruit” shall include, in addition to those items identified in section
21 1, the following: Tangerines and watermelons.

23 Marotta, 287 U.S. 513 (1933):

24 “In definitive provisions of statutes and other writings, ‘include’ is frequently, if not generally, used as a
25 word of extension or enlargement [meaning “in addition to”] rather than as one of limitation or 26 enumeration. Fraser v. Bentel, 161 Cal. 390, 394, 119 P. 509, Ann.Cas. 1913B, 1062; People ex rel. Estate of 27 Woolworth v. S.T. Comm., 200 App.Div. 287, 289, 192 N.Y.S. 772; Matter of Goetz, 71 App.Div. 272, 275, 75
28 N.Y.S. 750; Calhoun v. Memphis & P.R. Co., Fed.Cas. No. 2,309; Cooper v. Stinson, 5 Minn. 522 (Gil. 416).
29 Subject to the effect properly to be given to context, section 1 (11 USCA 1) prescribes the constructions to be 30 put upon various words and phrases used in the act. Some of the definitive clauses commence with ‘shall 31 include,’ others with ‘shall mean.’ The former is used in eighteen instances and the latter in nine instances, and
32 in two both are used. When the section as a whole is regarded, it is evident that these verbs are not used
33 synonymously or loosely, but with discrimination and a purpose to give to each a meaning not attributable to 34 the other. It is obvious that, in some instances at least, ‘shall include’ is used without implication that any 35 exclusion is intended. Subsections (6) and (7), in each of which both verbs are employed, illustrate the use of 36 ‘shall mean’ to enumerate and restrict and of ‘shall include’ to enlarge and extend. Subsection (17) declares
37 ‘oath’ shall include affirmation, Subsection (19) declares ‘persons’ shall include corporations, officers,
38 partnerships, and women. Men are not mentioned. In these instances the verb is used to expand, not to restrict.
39 It is plain that ‘shall include,’ as used in subsection (9) when taken in connection with other parts of the section,
40 cannot reasonably be read to be the equivalent of ‘shall mean’ or ‘shall include only.’ [287 U.S. 513, 518]
41 There being nothing to indicate any other purpose, Congress must be deemed to have intended that in section
42 3a(1) ‘creditors’ should be given the meaning usually attributed to it when used in the common-law definition of 43 fraudulent conveyances. See Coder v. Arts, 213 U.S. 223, 242, 29 S.Ct. 436, 16 Ann.Cas. 1008; Lansing Boiler
44 & Engine Works v. Joseph T. Ryerson & Son (C.C.A.) 128 F. 701, 703; Githens v. Shiffler (D.C.), 112 F. 505.
45 Under the common-law rule a creditor having only a contingent claim, such as was that of the petitioner at the 46 time respondent made the transfer in question, is protected against fraudulent conveyance. And petitioner, from 47 the time that it became surety on Mogliani’s bond, was entitled as a creditor under the agreement to invoke that
48 rule. Yeend v. Weeks, 104 Ala. 331, 341, 16 So. 165, 53 Am.St.Rep. 50; Whitehouse v. Bolster, 95 Me. 458, 50
49 A. 240; Mowry v. Reed, 187 Mass. 174, 177, 72 N.E. 936; Stone v. Myers, 9 Minn. 303 (Gil. 287, 294), 86
50 Am.Dec. 104; Cook v. Johnson, 12 N.J.Eq. 51, 72 Am.Dec. 381; American Surety Co. v. Hattrem, 138 Or. 358,
51 364, 3 P.(2d) 1109, 6 P.(2d) 1087; U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Centropolis Bank (C.C.A.) 17 F.(2d) 913,
52 916, 53 A.L.R. 295; Thomson v. Crane (C.C.) 73 F. 327, 331.”
53 American Surety Co. of New York v. Marotta, [287 U.S. 513 (1933)]

54 The only way to eliminate the above types of abuses in the interpretation of law and to oppose such an abuse of authority
55 by a public servant is to demand that the misbehaving “servant” produce a definition of the word somewhere within the code that clearly establishes the thing which he is attempting to "include". If what is included isn't explicitly and unambiguously included in an enacted positive law, then it violates the exclusio rule and due process: To wit:

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."

5.6.13.9.2.2 Deception in IRS Publication 519 relating to definition of "United States"

IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens (2005), uses the following language to infer that the term "United States" as used in the Internal Revenue Code, includes the 50 states of the Union for the purposes of jurisdiction to tax under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code:

Substantial Presence Test

Example. You were physically present in the United States on 120 days in each of the years 2003, 2004, and 2006. To determine if you meet the substantial presence test for 2005, count the full 120 days of presence in 2006, 40 days in 2004 (1/3 of 130), and 20 days in 2003 (1/6 of 120). Because the total for the 30 year period is 180 days, you are not considered a resident under the substantial presence test for 2005.

"The term United States includes the following areas.

- "All 50 states and the District of Columbia."
- "The territorial waters of the United States"

[...]

"The term does not include U.S. possessions and territories or U.S. airspace."

[IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens (2005), p. 4

We have several points to make about the above reference:

1. The above cite was added to the publication in about 2004 in an apparent response to the content of this book, as a way to deceive the readers and stop the spread of the Non-Resident Non-Person Position.
2. The definition comes from an IRS Publication, which the IRS Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.) admits is UNTRUSTWORTHY and not guaranteed to be accurate:

"IRS Publications, issued by the National Office, explain the law in plain language for taxpayers and their advisors... While a good source of general information, publications should not be cited to sustain a position."

3. The text above is an EXAMPLE which does not infer or imply or specify the context in which it may suitably be used. There are actually THREE and not ONE context in which the term "United States" could be referring to or implied and only one of them is used in the above example, which is the third one listed below:
  - 3.1. The meaning of the term "United States" within the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.
  - 3.2. The meaning of the term "United States" within ordinary speech, which most people associate with the COUNTRY to include states of the Union.

- 3.3. The meaning of “United States” in the context of jurisdiction over aliens (not “citizens” or “nationals”) temporarily present in the country “United States”, which in this context includes all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

In the context of item 3.3 above, the U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly affirmed the plenary power of Congress over aliens in this country, wherever they are located to include areas within the exclusive jurisdiction of states of the Union:

In accord with ancient principles of the international law of nation-states, the Court in The Chinese Exclusion Case, 130 U.S. 581, 609 (1889), and in Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893), held broadly, as the Government describes it, Brief for Appellants 20, that the power to exclude aliens is "inherent in sovereignty, necessary for maintaining normal international relations and defending the country against foreign encroachments and dangers - a power to be exercised exclusively by the political branches of government . . . ." Since that time, the Court's general reaffirmations of this principle have [408 U.S. 753, 766] been legion. 6 The Court without exception has sustained Congress' "plenary power to make rules for the admission of aliens and to exclude those who possess those characteristics which Congress has forbidden." Boutilier v. Immigration and Naturalization Service, 387 U.S. 118, 123 (1967). "[O]ver no conceivable subject is the legislative power of Congress more complete than it is over" the admission of aliens. Oceanic Navigation Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U.S. 320, 339 (1909). [Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753 (1972)]

While under our constitution and form of government the great mass of local matters is controlled by local authorities, the United States, in their relation to foreign countries and their subjects or citizens, are one nation, invested with powers which belong to independent nations, the exercise of which can be invoked for the maintenance of its absolute independence and security throughout its entire territory. The powers to declare war, make treaties, suppress insurrection, repel invasion, regulate foreign commerce, secure republican governments to the states, and admit subjects of other nations to citizenship, are all sovereign powers, restricted in their exercise only by the constitution itself and considerations of public policy and justice which control, more or less, the conduct of all civilized nations. As said by this court in the case of Cohens v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 413, speaking by the same great chief justice: "That the United States form, for many, and for most important purposes, a single nation, has not yet been denied. In war, we are one people. In making peace, we are one people. In all commercial regulations, we are one and the same people. In many other respects, the American people are one; and the government which is alone capable of controlling and managing their interests in all these respects is the government of the Union. It is their government, and in that character they have no other. America has chosen to [130 U.S. 581, 605] be in many respects, and to many purposes, a nation; and for all these purposes her government is complete; to all these objects, it is competent. The people have declared that in the exercise of all powers given for these objects it is supreme. It can, then, in effecting these objects, legitimately control all individuals or governments within the American territory."

[. . .]

"The power of exclusion of foreigners being an incident of sovereignty belonging to the government of the United States as a part of those sovereign powers delegated by the constitution, the right to its exercise at any time when, in the judgment of the government, the interests of the country require it, cannot be granted away or restrained on behalf of any one. The powers of government are delegated in trust to the United States, and are incapable of transfer to any other parties. They cannot be abandoned or surrendered. Nor can their exercise be hampered, when needed for the public good, by any considerations of private interest. The exercise of these public trusts is not the subject of barter or contract."
 [Chae Chan Ping v. U.S., 130 U.S. 581 (1889)]

Therefore, in regard to control over aliens present anywhere within the American confederation, the general government legislates over all the territory of the American Union, including those of the states. Consequently, for the purposes of determining “permanent residence” of aliens ONLY, the term “United States” as used in item 3 above must be interpreted to include the 50 states of the Union as the IRS indicates above. HOWEVER:

1. The Presence Test indicated does not refer to “citizens” or “nationals”. The Presence Test is found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(3) and references ONLY “aliens” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) and not “nonresident aliens” defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) or “citizens” defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c). Therefore, an alien domiciled in a state of the Union could be a “resident” within the meaning of the presence test while neither a “citizen” nor a “national” would be considered a “resident” under the SAME test when located in the SAME place. Under the I.R.C., one cannot be a “resident” (which is an alien with a domicile) and either a “citizen” or a “national” at the same time. This is confirmed by the Law of Nations, which the Founding Fathers used to write the Constitution:

"Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their dwelling in it, they are subject to its law so long as they

1 remain there, and being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizens.
 2 They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who
 3 have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizens of a less privileged character, and
 4 are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the 5 right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children.”

6 [Law of Nations, Vattel, p. 87

7 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Resident-LawOfNations.pdf>

- 8 2. Remember that the only context in which “residence” is defined or described anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code is 9 in the context of “aliens”, and not in the context of either “citizens” or “nationals”. See 26 C.F.R. §1.871-2 and section
 10 4 of the article below:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

11 Therefore, those who are “nationals” but not statutory “citizens” and a also “non-resident non-persons” can NOT have 12 a “residence” as defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code.

- 13 3. For the purposes of determining tax liability and not residency of all persons, we must defer to the definition of 14 “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10), which is limited to federal territory and nowhere expanded
 15 in the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A to include any other place.

16 Based on the foregoing, we must conclude that the IRS’ statement above is a deception and a ruse intended to compel false
 17 presumption under the influence of CONSTRUCTIVE FRAUD that will maximize the illegal flow of PLUNDER to the 18 federal government. It is provided as an example and cannot mean the legal definition of “United States” used in the 19 Internal Revenue Code. If they wish to imply that ALL THREE of the contexts in which the term “United States” could be 20 used are the same, then they should say so and provide statutory and regulatory authority for saying so. Until then, we must 21 defer to the definition of “United States” found within 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10). This is a consequence of the 22 following doctrine of the Supreme Court:

23 “Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by
 24 clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be 25 resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid.”

26 Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, [192 U.S. 297 (1904)]

27 5.6.13.9.2.3 You can't be a “nonresident alien” without also being an “individual” based on 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1

28 Contention: Based on reading 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3), it appears that one cannot be a “nonresident alien” without also 29 being an “individual. That definition appears below:

30 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

31 (c ) Definitions

32 (3) Individual.

33 (i) Alien individual.

34 The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec.
 35 1.1-1(c).

36 (ii) Nonresident alien individual.

37 The term nonresident alien individual means

38 [1] a person described in section 7701(b)(1)(B),

39 [2] an alien individual who is a resident of a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty
 40 and Sec. 301.7701(b)-7(a)(1) of this chapter, or

41 [3] an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana 42 Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under Sec. 301.7701(b)-1(d) of this chapter.
 43 An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013 (g) or (h) to be treated as a resident of the 44 United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under 45 chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

1 Now, based on paragraph (ii) above, there are 3 options for being a “Nonresident alien individual”.

- 2 1. A person described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
- 3 2. An alien individual who is a resident of a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and 26
- 4 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1) of this chapter.
- 5 3. An alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S.
- 6 Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-1(d) of this chapter.

7 If we then look at the definition of “Nonresident alien” referenced in item 1 above and found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B),
8 the definition appears:

9 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) Nonresident alien

10 An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of
11 the United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

12 Based on the above, it appears that one cannot be a “nonresident alien” as defined above without also being an
13 “individual”.

14 We can find no evidence to suggest that the words "person" or "individual" have any sinister function or “word of art”
15 operation in Title 26, apart from what it could be construed as. We agree that the definition of “individual” found in the 16 Privacy Act at 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) is something totally different.

17 Rebuttal: The term "nonresident alien" WITHOUT the word "individual" does not in fact appear in 26 U.S.C.
18 §7701(b)(1)(B) . It only appears in the title but not the body of that section. According to 26 U.S.C. §7806(b), the title of a 19 section is NOT considered part of the section.

- 20 1. The essence of what it means to be a “nonresident alien” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) is that one is neither a 21 citizen nor a resident. “individuals” are one type of status one can have which could be neither a “citizen” nor a 22 “resident”, but so are the following:
  - 23 1.1. “transient foreigner”.
  - 24 1.2. “stateless person”.
  - 25 1.3. “nonresident”.
  - 26 1.4. “foreign corporation”.
- 27 2. The “nonresident alien” referenced in the body of 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) is obviously an “individual” because they 28 are called an individual. Nowhere in the code, however, does it imply or infer that “individuals” are the ONLY types 29 of “nonresident aliens” and you may not presume that this is our case without prejudicing my rights.
- 30 3. Even the I.R.S. Form W-8 in Block 3 recognizes that there are entities OTHER than “individuals” who are 31 “nonresident aliens”.
- 32 4. We claim the status in the TITLE but not the BODY of 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
- 33 5. We claim to be a nonresident but not an "individual" or a "person". Only by having a domicile on federal territory and 34 by engaging in public offices can we be a “person” or “individual” under federal civil law, in fact.
  - 35 5.1. Being a public officer is the only way we can be subject to federal statutory civil law, because the Constitution
36 protects private conduct from regulation or legislation. See:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a “Public Officer” for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 37 5.2. Having a civil domicile on federal territory is the only thing that can subject a human being to exclusive federal 38 civil jurisdiction, and there is no subject matter jurisdiction within a state over any federal franchise, including the 39 “trade or business” franchise:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 40 5.3. An example of a “nonresident” but not an “individual” is someone who lives in China and does not maintain a 41 domicile or residence in the “United States**”, which is defined as federal territory and no part of any state of the 42 Union within 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). Someone who has never physically been 43 to the “United States**” federal territory, furthermore cannot have a domicile or residence there and therefore 44 cannot be a “person” or “individual”.

- 1 6. The only way one can be a nonresident and still be "subject" to that code section is to make a voluntary,
 2 CONSENSUAL election to engage in commerce with the sovereign and thereby:
 3 6.1. Consensually waive sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C.
 4 §1605(a)(2).
 5 6.2. Become an "individual" and a "person".
 6 6.3. Become a "subject", "citizen", or "resident" under the civil law.
 7 7. One can't lawfully become a "person" or "individual" under the I.R.C. unless they:
 8 a. Started out as an alien. All "individuals" are aliens...AND 9 b. Voluntarily consented to engage in commerce with the government... .AND 10 c. CONSENSUALLY applied for AND VOLUNTARILY USE a license to occupy a public office called a
 11 "Taxpayer Identification Number" in connection with their otherwise PRIVATE affairs. If they didn't consent,
 12 then they can't be an "individual" because CONSENT is the only thing that can give private law such as a 13 franchise the "force of law".

14 Consensus facit legem.

15 Consent makes the law. A contract is a law between the parties, which can acquire force only by consent.

16 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

17 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

- 18 8. Only by consent under the civil law can one become a "person" or an "individual", because:
 19 8.1. We can't lawfully be compelled to contract with the government by engaging in commerce or participating in 20 franchises such as the "trade or business" franchise. Governments are established, in fact, to protect your right to 21 both contract and NOT contract. See Article 1, Section 10 of the U.S. Constitution, for instance. Therefore, they 22 can't force me to contract with them by forcing me to participate in a protection franchise that I don't consent to 23 participate in or accept the "benefits" of.
 24 8.2. The First Amendment guarantees us a right of freedom from compelled association. How I describe and define
 25 MY OWN status is the mechanism by which I choose to associate or disassociate with any political group,
 26 including a "state" or a "government", and I can't be compelled to associate.

- 28 9. Since we do all the following, then we can't be anything directly addressed or defined in the code.
 29 9.1. Do not waive sovereign immunity.
 30 9.2. Do not consensually engage in commerce or accept any government "benefit" and thereby become a "public
 31 officer". All "public officers" are people responsible for managing GOVERNMENT property and those in receipt 32 of government "benefits" are in receipt of government property.
 33 9.3. Do not have a domicile on federal territory.
 34 9.4. Identify every commercial benefit they bestow as a gift that creates no obligation. This is the same thing they do
 35 to "taxpayers". Everything you pay to them under employment withholding is a gift. See Great IRS Hoax, Form
 36 #11.302, Section 5.6.8.
 37 9.5. Notify them that my consent must ONLY be procured in writing in order for me to waive sovereign immunity.
 38 See Legal Notice of Change in Domicile/Citizenship Records and Divorce from the United States, Form #10.001.
 39 This is the same thing they do to you: when you want to sue them, you have to produce a statute authorizing a
 40 waiver of sovereign immunity. If our government is one of delegated powers, then I must be able to demand the 41 same dignity from them under the concept of equal protection of the law.
 42 10. A "nonresident alien" who isn't an "individual" is not defined in the I.R.C. but is referenced in the I.R.C. Therefore,
 43 that is the status we claim, which is that of an entity that isn't directly defined in the code and therefore not subject to it.

44 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
 45 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
 46 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
 47 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
 48 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
 49 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."

50 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

- 51 11. If you want to avoid all the word games, just call oneself a nonresident and a "foreigner" but not a "foreign person",

"person", "individual", "nonresident alien individual", "alien individual", or any other entity described in the code as either having a liability or accepting a "benefit", or engaging in commerce. To be "sovereign" simply means you don't appear in the code and therefore are "foreign" and not subject to it or the jurisdiction of the government. This is covered in:

Path to Freedom, Form #09.015, Section 5

It's all about commerce and the purpose of the code is to facilitate commerce with The Beast, which the Bible says in Rev. 19:19 is the government. The only thing the code can or does talk about are those who consent to contract with the Beast and thereby become "individuals", "subjects", "citizens", and "residents" under the civil law by virtue of that fornication. The sovereign isn't subject to the law but foreign to it. If you don't consent to fornicate with or contract with The Beast, then you don't appear in the code and don't have any of the statuses in the code, but rather are a "foreign estate" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31). All franchises are contracts and "private law" that can only affect the consenting parties, including the "trade or business" franchise that is the heart of the income tax. Contracts and the consent they represent are the ONLY lawful way the government can acquire ANY right to your private property. Otherwise, the property is private property and governments are established to protect private property. The main method they protect such property is to protect you from being compelled to convert it into public property or other people's property. In tax law, this conversion is called converting private property to a public use, public purpose, and a public office. The process of taxation accomplishes this conversion, but only by the consent of the owner in applying for a license to engage in a franchise.

We can be the thing described in the TITLE of a section without being the thing described in the BODY, and the two are not considered subsets of each other per 26 U.S.C. §7806. The fact that something is not defined in the code does not mean that it doesn't exist, but rather means that it isn't subject and therefore is sovereign and foreign in respect to that body of PRIVATE law. The "sovereign" they are referring to below is a "non-resident non-person" in this case because he is not the subject of the law in question:

*"Since in common usage the term 'person' does not include the sovereign, statutes employing that term are ordinarily construed to exclude it."
 [U.S. v. Cooper, 312 U.S. 600, 604, 61 S.Ct. 742 (1941)]*

Everything we just said is already covered in sections 5.6.13.1 and 5.2.4 of this document.

5.6.13.9.3 Tax and accounting profession objections

"A government which robs Peter to pay Paul can always depend on the support of Paul."

The tax preparation, accounting, financial planning, payroll, government, and legal professions absolutely HATE the Non-Resident Non-Person Position with a vengeance and will try to steer you away from it. They will also try to make sure you don't know why they don't like it and will go out of their way not to admit why they don't like it. There are many reasons for this that have absolutely nothing with the validity of the position and have far more to do with "bringing home the bacon" and avoiding "cognitive dissonance" for these so-called "professionals". As you have already learned, those who use the Non-Resident Non-Person Position:

1. May not claim ANY deductions or include a Schedule C with their return.
2. May not file a 1040 form and instead must file the 1040NR form.
3. Do not file at an IRS service center in their District Office, but instead file at the International Branch in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.
4. May not apply for Earned Income Credit.
5. May not apply a graduated rate of tax to their earnings.
6. Must pay a flat 30% tax upon earnings originating from within federal territory or the U.S. government if they have passive income.
7. Do not have to file W-4 or W-4 Exempt forms, but instead file W-8BEN forms to prevent payroll withholding.
8. Do not and should not get W-2 forms at the end of the year, because they earn no reportable "wages" or "trade or business" earnings.
9. Should not receive 1099 forms at the end of the year, unless they work for the federal government within exclusive federal jurisdiction and are engaged in a "trade or business".

1 The thing that tax, accounting, and legal professionals absolutely hate about the Non-Resident Non-Person Position is that:

- 2 1. Since there is no payroll withholding, then payroll clerks feel useless and we need far fewer of them.
- 3 2. Since there are no deductions or creative ways to reduce “taxable income”, then tax and financial planners feel useless
- 4 and we need far fewer of them.
- 5 3. Since it is VERY simple, then you don't need a lawyer to figure it out. Therefore, all those smart people who make a
- 6 living trying to outsmart the lawyers in Washington would have to find more productive things to do.
- 7 4. It would cause both state and federal government revenues to go down, so employees in the government, and especially
- 8 judges whose retirement would be adversely affected, don't like it. Who wants their federal pension reduced?
- 9 5. Implementing it fully would drastically reduce the number of “taxpayers”. Therefore the IRS isn't going to buy off on
- 10 it because most Revenue Officers would be laid off if it was fully implemented.

11 What the above list clearly shows is that there are a lot of people in the financial, tax, accounting, payroll, and government
12 arenas who benefit HUGELY from keeping things the way they are and expanding the operation of the de facto unjust and 13 fraudulent system we have now. Just the government alone collects hundreds of billions of dollars a year from “donations”
14 that it deceitfully calls “taxes” through this fraud. That's called a conflict of interest and it's against the law. 18 U.S.C.
15 §208 makes such a conflict of interest a crime in the case of a federal employee, and 18 U.S.C. §201(b)(3) makes it a
16 federal crime to bribe a witness or testify as a bribed witness in a federal court. Anyone who is called as a witness in a
17 federal trial who is involved in any one of these professions and is asked to comment on the Non-Resident Non-Person
18 Position in court would therefore have to recuse themselves because of severe conflict of interest. The only people who
19 would make suitable witnesses are those who don't benefit from the fraudulent system we have now. We would venture to 20 say that it is precisely this kind of conflict of interest that has not only protected, but expanded the illegal operation of the 21 Internal Revenue Code within our society.

22 In short, if the Non-Resident Non-Person Position were widely understood and implemented, then most of the people who 23 presently work as payroll clerks, tax preparers, accounting professionals, financial planners, tax lawyers, or do financial
24 services would simply find themselves out of work! In effect, they would be punishing themselves for being honest and
25 honorable by telling the truth about the fraud or by recognizing or helping those who spread the truth. Who in their right
26 mind who has one of these jobs would want to encourage employees, investors, clients, or loyal but ignorant “taxpayers” to 27 help them get fired or laid off?

28 We have spoken with several people who work in the financial services and legal professions and who stumbled on our 29 website and this free pamphlet. Many of them have spent their whole life learning how to teach “taxpayers” to reduce their
30 presumed “liability”, never once questioning whether there really was a legal “liability” or whether the Internal Revenue
31 Code was even a “law” they had to follow! After they have read and studied our research and learned the truth for 32 themselves, they find themselves in a very conflicted position. People who work in these professions frequently must 33 maintain a fiduciary relationship with their clients which causes them to feel a strong sense of moral duty to do what is best
34 for their clients. This leads them to want to share the truths in this book with their clients, coworkers, friends, and family,
35 as we recommend that they should do. The result is a serious mental conflict, summarized with the questions below:

- 36 1. How can I admit to all my clients that I have been doing something illegal and morally wrong for my whole life that
- 37 has seriously hurt ALL of my clients?
- 38 2. How can I claim to be an “expert” to my clients after having just learned that I have overlooked something so simple
- 39 and obvious for so many years?
- 40 3. How can I educate my clients about the truth and not look like a psycho who is off his rocker? Will my boss ask me to
- 41 see a psychologist?
- 42 4. How can I continue to pretend that my clients are “taxpayers” who need my help when I know they aren't? I can't
- 43 sleep at night telling them they are “taxpayers” who need my help while knowing full well that it isn't true.
- 44 5. Will I lose my CPA license, or my Certified Financial Planner certificate, or my license to practice law by
- 45 implementing these truths in my profession on a large scale?
- 46 6. Would my income or employability be adversely affected if I decided to tell the truth to my clients about this fraud?
- 47 How can I pay my bills and support my family and still earn an honest living?
- 48 7. Would my friends and professional colleagues think less of me because I have different opinions and ideas about
- 49 important matters?
- 50 8. Will the knowledge that I have cause conflicts in the office with my coworkers and eventually cause me to have to be
- 51 terminated?
- 52 9. What are the appropriate circumstances in which I can discuss this with my coworkers and friends while still avoiding

1 conflict and controversy?

2 Frequently, when loyal readers of our materials have learned the truths in this book and attempted to fully implement them
3 in their personal lives, they are often treated with skepticism and mistrust by friends, family, coworkers, government, and
4 clients, all of whom have been so brainwashed by the public schools, the government, and a government-controlled media
5 to believe what amounts to a monumental LIE. In some cases, their whole world is turned upside down, because they
6 realize they have been part of a lie for the better part of their whole life. No doubt, this prospect can be quite disturbing.
7 Nevertheless, we have a great commission from God as His followers and servants to love our neighbor, and those who
8 love want to educate and share the truth with those they love, as we do here. Education is how we protect and empower 9 both our children, our friends, family, and business associates, and it MUST be done, no matter the consequences or cost.

10 "Love suffers long and is kind; love does not envy; love does not parade itself; is not puffed up; does not
11 behave rudely, does not seek its own, is not provoked, thinks no evil; does not rejoice in iniquity, but rejoices
12 in the truth; bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things."
13 [1 Cor. 13:4-7, Bible, NKJV]

14 In the above passage, "rejoice in truth" means to share it with everyone. Jesus confirmed this by His example, when he 15 said:

16 "What I tell you now in the darkness, shout [from websites like this one] abroad when daybreak comes. What
17 I whisper in your ears, shout from the housetops for all to hear [and on websites like ours one that are 18 outside of government jurisdiction]!"

19 "Don't be afraid of those who want to kill you [because you do this]. They can only kill your body; they cannot 20 touch your soul. Fear [and obey] only God [and His laws, not the government's unless they are consistent
21 with God's laws], who can destroy both soul and body in hell. Not even a sparrow, worth only half a penny,
22 can fall to the ground without your Father knowing it. And the very hairs on your head are all numbered. So 23 don't be afraid; you are more valuable to him than a whole flock of sparrows."
24 Jesus in [Matt. 10:16-31, Bible, New Living Translation]

25 Along these lines, someone sent us the following very pertinent joke that we repeat here:

26 One Sunday morning during service, a 2,000 member congregation was surprised to see two men enter, both
27 covered from head to toe in black and carrying submachine guns. One of the men proclaimed, "Anyone willing 28 to take a bullet for Christ remain where you are."

29 Immediately, the choir fled, the deacons fled, and most of the congregation fled. Out of the 2,000 there only 30 remained around 20.

31 The man who had spoken took off his hood, looked at the preacher and said "Okay Pastor, I got rid of all the 32 hypocrites. Now you may begin your service. Have a nice day!" And the two men turned and walked out.

33 While reading newspaper editorials urging the elimination of the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT), we were struck by the 34 ease with which many Americans, including financial planners and editors of newspapers, embrace the idea that the country
35 has become utterly corrupt as a consequence of the way our income tax system is administered by the IRS. The regimen of 36 the AMT-- which requires some to use harsher rules than others when calculating their 'contribution'-- would obviously be
37 unconstitutional if it were imposed as part of a compulsory tax system. Still, it is clear that a majority of the population still 38 falsely believe that it is so imposed. A diligently cultivated fear of the IRS has successfully torn the fabric of reason in 39 many minds, allowing these two contradictory concepts-- a compulsory legal duty imposing unequal legal obligations-- to 40 co-exist.

41 Clearly, one or the other of these two things-- the Constitutional requirement of equal treatment by the law; or that the 42 progressive rate tax system (of which the AMT is a part) is compulsory-- must be untrue. Just as clearly, the one that must 43 be untrue is that the tax "scheme" of which the AMT is a part is compulsory. There can be no question about the 44 unconstitutionality of unequal treatment by the law. Little, if anything, could be more offensive to our most fundamental 45 principles than unequal treatment.

46 In fact-- despite the apparent willingness of the general public to entertain the contradiction without objection-- what must 47 be so, is indeed so. The U.S. Supreme Court has routinely and definitively declared the income tax to apply solely to the 48 receipts from a very limited list of wholly optional activities, all of which involve either a "trade or business" or foreign
49 commerce. It is only those who choose to engage in those avoidable taxable activities-- all connected with, and involving

1 payments by the federal government-- who are potentially subject to what would otherwise be an illegal tax scheme. The
2 words of the tax code themselves acknowledge this limited scope.

3 Nonetheless, this conformity to reality is carefully concealed from casual view by tax, accounting, financial, payroll, legal
4 professionals, and the IRS. The relevant rulings by the high court were issued long ago. In the meantime, there has been a
5 dedicated campaign conducted by the beneficiaries of ignorance-- such as CPA's, tax attorneys, IRS agents, and politicians--
6 - to consign those rulings to the memory hole and to discourage open-eyed public consideration of the subject in general.
7 Despite the natural American skepticism toward assertions issuing from such clearly self-interested parties, it has been a
8 successful campaign. The fear factor alluded to above, whereby any contemplation of the income tax is compromised with 9 irrationality and an instinctive urge to move on, is an important contributor to that success.

10 Another is the fragmenting of the actual taxing statutes in the Internal Revenue Code into near incoherence in the 'code' by 11 which they are now exclusively presented to the public. While those statutes plainly acknowledge the limitations of their 12 scope, they have been cleverly disassembled, scattered, and intermingled in that code-- even to the point of extracting
13 individual sentences from certain sections and placing them thousands of words away into the company of language from 14 other sections. As a consequence, portions of the code-- when carefully excerpted and presented out of context-- appear to 15 claim for the law a scope which it clearly cannot have. In fact, the I.R.C. DOES NOT have such a scope because the code
16 itself not only is not PUBLIC law, but cannot be law precisely because of the unequal treatment that it produces. These 17 excerpts are waved under the noses of the rare souls who overcome the fear to the point of questioning the beneficiaries of 18 the misunderstanding. They serve to provide some inquirers (who are really looking for no more) with an excuse to claim
19 satisfaction and scamper away with relief. More purposeful doubters are also often dissuaded thereby: Faced with the 20 labyrinth of baffling nonsense which such I.R.C. excerpts reflect, many conclude that to sort through to the truth would be 21 more expensive than simple surrender.

22 It can be hoped that the errors defended by such dolus and cheap tricks-- and the depressing loss of civic self-respect to
23 which they lead-- will not long survive the American predisposition to straight talk and simple truth now that we have 24 entered the information age. However, the newspaper editorials which stimulated this commentary appeared in one of the 25 nation's major daily newspapers, and, though critical of the unfairness of the AMT, clearly took for granted that it is 26 compulsory. Thus, even though the road back might be a digital superhighway, it will be climbing a hill.

27 The absurd argument used to defend the AMT-- and progressivity in general, for that matter-- reveals the illegitimacy of its 28 client concept. In a nutshell, that argument is: Since the same unequal treatment is applied to every target who reaches the 29 same special circumstances, the treatment actually IS equal. This is like declaring that if a law dictates that EVERY 45-
30 year-old redhead named Joe Smith in Cheyenne, Wyoming, is to be taxed at a 99% rate (unlike everyone else, who will 31 simply be subsidized thereby), red-headed 45-year-old Mr. Smith of Cheyenne is thus afforded equal treatment under the 32 law. After all, any other red-headed 45-year-old of the same name who moves to Cheyenne will also be so taxed. Mr.
33 Smith simply loses 'life's lottery', so to speak. At least it will only be one year of outrage for Mr. Smith, because next year
34 he will be 46. Unless the "law" is changed, of course...

35 The reality of the AMT-- or any other form of progressivity including that associated with a "trade or business"-- is that 36 citizen 'A' is taxed $15 per $100 taken in, while citizen 'B' is charged $20 (to pick numbers solely for purposes of 37 illustration). All the nonsense about the first, as opposed to the second, increment of earnings; margins; rates-on-the-next-
38 dollar-earned, etc.; is nothing but an effort by the beneficiaries of the status quo to obscure this raw reality, and what would
39 otherwise be the obvious fact that the tax thus imposed is not, and cannot be, compulsory because unequal. That is, while 40 the tax IS compulsory in regard to the highly specialized activities upon which it is actually imposed, those highly 41 specialized activities are entirely optional to any American. Unequal imposition of a tax on optional, voluntary activities is 42 perfectly lawful-- if you don't like it, you don't have to participate in the activities. But such a tax cannot be (and is not)
43 imposed on the routine-- and unavoidable-- exercise of the (untaxable-in-any-case) right to earn money, engage in 44 contracts, etc..

45 It is by taking advantage of nuances of this sort that beneficiaries of the "income" tax scheme in the government, tax,
46 accounting, payroll, and legal professions are able to innocently but disingenuously declare that,

47 "Of course the income tax is compulsory!"

1 ...while still concealing the truth by failing to explain words of art legal definitions of the term "income" and "United
2 States" within federal revenue law. An example will serve to illustrate: If Congress were to pass legislation which included
3 sections specifying that,

4 "For purposes of this act, "breathing" means selling hot-dogs from the steps of the capital building", and,

5 "There is hereby imposed a $10 annual tax on breathing"

6 ...it could then be said with a straight face that there is a compulsory tax on breathing, but it still wouldn't mean that every
7 American is thus involuntarily obliged to pony up $10 every year for the taking in of air. The construction and the 8 presentation of the "income" tax is of precisely this character. The square peg actually has a square hole to match, and the 9 law as written is not in irreconcilable conflict with the Constitution. But don't rely on the beneficiaries of misunderstanding
10 in the government, tax, legal, payroll, or financial industries to make this clear.

11 5.6.13.9.4 Objections of Friends

12 5.6.13.9.4.1 General objections

13 *"Prejudices, it is well known, are most difficult to eradicate from the heart whose soil has never been loosened 14 or fertilized by education; they grow there, firm as weeds among stones. "
15 [Charlotte Bronte]*

16 Friends or family members may, in their legal ignorance, try to convince you that the Non-Resident Non-Person Position
17 described in this pamphlet is simply wrong. This reaction will usually be the result of

- 18 1. The "cognitive dissonance" created by describing yourself as a type of "alien" in your own country.
- 19 2. Their ignorance about the Separation of Powers Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court, or the fact that the states of the Union 20 are "foreign" and the equivalent of foreign countries for the purposes of most federal jurisdiction.
- 21 3. The lack of Constitutional training in the public schools system.
- 22 4. The complete lack of any teaching about law in the public schools.

23 This knee-jerk argument comes up quite a bit in reference to the Non-Resident Non-Person Position as a way to discourage 24 people from using it. It has a lot of variations and is usually based on a simplistic and inadequate understanding of the 25 applicable law relating to non-residents and "nonresident aliens". For instance, some people will say that filing as a
26 nonresident alien carries more potential for "liabilities", as shown in 26 U.S.C. §1461, which makes persons who are 27 deducting and withholding on nonresident aliens liable as follows:

28 26 U.S.C. §1461 Liability for withheld tax

29 Every person required to deduct and withhold any tax under this chapter is hereby made liable for such tax...

31 But the fact of the matter is, the persons who are paying, and therefore withholding, such income in most cases under
32 Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A work for the U.S. government, and of course the federal government can make its own
33 employees liable for not following federal law! Not only that, but under the provisions of 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\), the 34 federal government doesn't even need implementing regulations to govern its own employees. No one who works for a
35 private employer outside of the federal zone would ever be in the position of paying "U.S. source income" (a code word for 36 government payments) to a nonresident alien so no one else would need to worry about liability for deducting and 37 withholding of such income.

38 Just like any other activity in life, ignorance will hurt you, and this is especially true of Internal Revenue Code. The Non-
39 Resident Non-Person Position (NRNP), like virtually anything, can and probably will mean trouble if you don't know what
40 you are doing or you haven't taken the time to do your homework, and there is more homework to do with this position
41 because it is more unfamiliar to most people and because most people don't like to study the law. That's why we took the 42 time to include section 5.6.13.3, which describes the legal responsibilities of nonresident aliens. The underlying legal 43 issues of the Non-Resident Non-Person Position, however, are very simple. A fairly small amount of legal research is 44 necessary to understand the Non-Resident Non-Person Position, but most people never conquer their fear of the law or the 45 IRS Publications long enough to learn that it's actually the better position.

1 Criticism of the Non-Resident Non-Person Position usually falls into the following three categories:

- 2 1. There is a knee jerk reaction to the use of the word “alien” to describe them, because they incorrectly think they
3 are “U.S. citizens” who couldn’t possibly be “aliens”. As explained in section 5.6.13.4.1, you can be a “nonresident
4 alien” and not an “alien” as the terms are defined in the tax code, and this circumstance was created deliberately by the
5 Congress who wrote our tax code to steer people away from using the “non-resident non-person” position, since in
6 most cases it completely eliminates their federal tax liability. A more correct and accurate name for “nonresident
7 alien” in the tax code would have been “Nonresident domestic or foreign national” and then to describe “domestic or 8 foreign nationals” as foreigners in the tax code. This use of terms, however, would have required the government to 9 define the meaning of “foreign”, which would have exposed the fraud that perpetuates the whole system and keeps
10 people paying, so they must have decided not to name it honestly. That is why nowhere in the Internal Revenue Code
11 is the term “foreign” defined: they simply don’t want you to know what it means. The closest thing we have to a
12 definition of “foreign” is found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(5\), which defines a “foreign corporation”, but not the word
13 “foreign”.
- 14 2. If they are low income, people think that by filing as nonresident aliens, they will end up paying a higher tax rate
15 as a percentage, and they don’t like that. Nonresident aliens use the 1040NR form and IRS Publications falsely say
16 to pay a flat rate of 30% for income from without the United States as defined in 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\), while those who
17 file a 1040 form as “U.S.** citizens” and/or residents pay a graduated rate that is usually lower than 30% unless they
18 are high income earners and which is described in 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\). They overlook the fact that 26 C.F.R. §1.861-
19 8(f)(1)(iv) limits federal income taxes to only commerce “effectively connected with a trade or business”, which is to 20 say that it is income from a public office. Therefore, because people have not taken the time to research what the 21 franchise tax code says it means to be a nonresident alien and rely on the misleading (at best, fraudulent at worst) IRS
22 Publications never learn that being a nonresident alien means they no longer owe any tax in most cases! Isn’t that the 23 result everyone wants?
- 24 3. Confusion over the definition of the term “United States” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and “employee” in 26 U.S.C.
25 §3401(c). Since most people never take the time to understand that “United States” means the federal zone in the 26 context of the Internal Revenue Code, they don’t realize that being a nonresident alien is actually a good thing, because 27 it only taxes “U.S.” (federal zone) source income connected with a “trade or business”, which means income from
28 federal government public office ONLY that falls under 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f), and most people don’t have any income
29 from sources in this regulation, but they think they do because they never take the time to understand the 861 position.
30 Since most people do not realize that 26 U.S.C. §3401\(c\) and 26 C.F.R. § 31.3401(c)-1 define “employee” to mean a
31 person holding “public office” in the United States government, then they don’t realize that the only employer is Uncle
32 Sam in the Internal Revenue Code, so they mistakenly reach the conclusion that they are federal employers who are 33 liable to withhold taxes on nonresident aliens under 26 U.S.C. §1461!

34 Quite to the contrary, the Non-Resident Non-Person Position is the best position to be in, and is far better than being a 35 “U.S. Individual” indicated in the upper left corner of the 1040 form because:

- 36 1. You are not a statutory “U.S. citizen” with a domicile on federal territory, so you are no longer subject to the territorial 37 or subject matter jurisdiction of the federal courts under the Internal Revenue Code. This immunizes you against legal 38 actions by the IRS to extort, levy, lien, or seize taxes out of you that you aren’t liable for.
- 39 2. Although the tax rate looks like it is supposed to be a flat 30% as indicated in 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\), most people do not 40 hold public office (“trade or business”) and therefore have no taxable [federal] U.S.** source income.
- 41 3. The IRS Form W-8 or W-8BEN allows you to get away without using SSN’s. You therefore don’t need to use social 42 security numbers on any of your financial accounts, which improves your privacy and financial security and also 43 makes it harder for the IRS and creditors to locate your assets. There is no lawful way for Congress to require
44 nonresident aliens who are domiciled outside of their jurisdiction to have federal ID numbers, because federal law does 45 not reach outside of the federal zone.
- 46 4. You can file a W-8 or W-8BEN form to stop employment tax withholding instead of a W-4 form, and because there are 47 no penalties for false W-8’s like there are for W-4’s ($500), then the IRS can’t do a damn thing to fine or punish you if 48 they find out you stopped withholding because you are outside of their territorial jurisdiction.
- 49 5. The W-8 and W-8BEN form, as well as the 1040NR forms that you file as a nonresident alien violate the Paperwork
50 Reduction Act and the Privacy Act, as was pointed out in section 5.5.9 of the Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, which 51 provides a strong argument and defense against even being obligated to complete these forms and submit them to the 52 IRS. These forms violate the Privacy Act because they do not tell whether they are “voluntary” or “mandatory” and 53 they don’t say so because the IRS doesn’t want you to know they are “voluntary” so they don’t tell you anything!
- 54 6. The clerks who process the 1040NR forms are far more familiar with the taxable source rules under 26 U.S.C. §861

and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) than those who process the 1040 forms, and are therefore far more likely to believe you when you say you have no taxable "U.S. source" income on your 1040NR form.

WARNING: Use of the new IRS W-8BEN form is hazardous to your financial health if you aren't very careful about how you fill it out! IRS has made this new form, which replaces the W-8, very tricky to fill out without creating false presumptions that might incriminate you. Family Guardian Fellowship has therefore included detailed warnings and instructions for filling it out in section 1.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 that will hopefully keep you out of trouble.

5.6.13.9.4.2 The NRA position is inconsistent with the definitions in Title 8 and Title 26

ARGUMENT:

I had studied your NRA analysis years ago... it's fairly persuasive to people with zero to very little understanding of federal tax law. Once I put his theory to the acid test, it failed miserably. But at least one thing came out of the test... He has it perfectly 100% backwards. Having it 100% backwards is not having it right until you hold his and your copy-cat theory up to a mirror...

Honestly, I don't have a lot of time to get into federal income tax discussions with people these days. However, with the below nonsense finding its way into my inbox promoting probably one of the most inane arguments I have ever heard, I felt compelled to point out a thing or two--that may not ever penetrate your brain to reach your cognitive processes, but should at least give you something to ponder the daftest tax argument I have ever heard.

First, territorial jurisdiction is paramount. Read Kleppe v. New Mexico for a beginner's look at the subject matter. Keep that in mind as you romp through 200 years of well-settled precedent on the point. The fact that you mix territorial jurisdiction with complete and utter nonresident nonsense suggesting that a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen is a STATUTORY non-resident non-person ("NRNP") is baffling. Why? Because Congress has absolute exclusive legislative jurisdiction over nonresident aliens (foreign persons). Read Title 8 U.S.C. and your contention that a citizen is a NRNP is debunked by the entire title. If that's not good enough for you, consider looking into the constitutional instances where Congress has absolute jurisdiction over FOREIGN trade and TRADE with FOREIGNERS within the several states as well as the Art. 1 §8 Cl. 17 jurisdiction--known as 28 U.S.C. §7 in certain tax protester (guru gaga) circles.

Second, you may stumble across 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) and (B) someday to find that missing link that escapes your baseless argument disguised as amazing reasoning.

Next, NRA's are taxed federally... no matter if they are inside the "federal zones" OR in states on state land, e.g., the non-federal land in a state. The case law supporting that statement numbers in the thousands.

Fourth, there are at least three separate classifications of nonresident aliens. Care to tell me what they are in your mind? Yes, the three classifications (of NRAs) are in the Code and none of the classifications include citizens as described at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30)(A) .

Finally, read Cook v. Tait and see what happens to a STATUTORY "citizen" outside the USA... which would be in your outrageous theory a NRA in a foreign country (Hint: Mexico is a foreign country)-- yet under the federal tax law, Mr. Cook (a STATUTORY but not CONSTITUTIONAL citizen) was taxed as a citizen should be taxed... Would Cook be a double-non-resident citizen non-resident alien in your theory? Where's that definition? By the way, that case by itself destroys your entire NRA theory. If you believe that the Supreme Court got it wrong... well, what else could anybody say to you to awaken your senses?

REBUTTAL:

1. CONTENTION 1: He makes the PRESUMPTION that "United States" and "citizen of the United States" are the same thing within Title 8 and Title 26. They are NOT because the definition of "United States" found in Title 26 at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) are NOT the same. See:

28 U.S.C. §7 doesn't even exist anymore!

3. CONTENTION 3: Second, you may stumble across 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) and (B) someday to find that missing link that escapes your baseless argument disguised as amazing reasoning.

REBUTTAL 3:

Those are definitions of Resident Alien and Nonresident Alien respectively. We have looked at those and our treatment of the NRA position is completely consistent with them. See:

Citizenship Status v. Tax Status, Form #10.011

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

DIRECT LINK: <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/CitizenshipVTaxStatus.htm>

26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) defines what a nonresident alien ISN'T, not what it IS. Do you smell a rat? This is covered in section 5.6.13.1 of this document.

4. STATEMENT 4: Next, NRA's are taxed federally... no matter if they are inside the "federal zones" OR in states on state land, e.g., the non-federal land in a state. The case law supporting that statement numbers in the thousands.

REBUTTAL 4:

None of the case law we have ever read reconciles the GEOGRAPHIC definition of "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) with WHERE the entity is nonresident TO. The rules of statutory construction FORBID adding ANYTHING to those definitions. Every court we have read refuses to reconcile that MAJOR oversight and then tries to CONFUSE domicile or residence with nationality using the FRAUDULENT techniques documented in:

Citizenship Status v. Tax Status, Form #10.011, Section 1

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

DIRECT LINK: <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/CitizenshipVTaxStatus.htm>

The fact that judges have to resort to such deception is proof they are hiding and protecting a fraudulent plunder program.

Nonresident alien INDIVIDUALS are only taxed upon income from "sources within the United States" per 26 U.S.C. §871, not on EVERYTHING they earn ANYWHERE. "sources within the United States" essentially is GOVERNMENT PAYMENTS, not payments between PRIVATE parties not engaged in public offices within the national government. This is covered earlier in section 5.6.13.3. That liability is associated ONLY "nonresident alien INDIVIDUALS" and therefore "persons" (26 U.S.C. §7701(c)) who are taxed, not "non-resident NON-PERSONS". "Individual" is then defined as a PUBLIC OFFICE in the government, as proven earlier in section 5.6.13.4.8. The "withholding agents" are made liable to deduct and withhold on nonresident aliens per 26 U.S.C. §1441(a), but Congress would be violating the Thirteenth

Amendment if these "withholding agents" described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16) were PRIVATE parties protected by the U.S.A. Constitution. Therefore, they are GOVERNMENT WORKERS and public officers WITHIN the national government. Congress can ONLY impose "duties" or "liabilities" upon its own agents, and not PRIVATE people protected by the constitution.

"The power to 'legislate generally upon' life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the 'power to provide modes of redress' against offensive state action, was 'repugnant' to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned."
[City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

Those agents, in turn, are public officers and they had to VOLUNTEER to become such agents before they could be held accountable to the DUTIES of their office. This is covered in:

5. CONTENTION 5: There are at least three separate classifications of nonresident aliens. Care to tell me what they are in your mind? Yes, the three classifications (of NRAs) are in the Code and none of the classifications include citizens as described at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30)(A).

REBUTTAL 5:

5.1. He makes presumptions he refuses to prove and which CANNOT be proven. He PRESUMES that a statutory "citizen" mentioned in 8 U.S.C. §1401 and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) and the Constitution are the same. They are NOT. Even the U.S. Supreme Court recognizes this. See:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006, Section 2
 FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
 DIRECT LINK: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/WhyANational/WhyANational.pdf>

5.2. The Classifications of NRAs are found at 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c), which are the REGULATIONS and NOT the "code". "citizens" are not included because the only way they can become "taxpayers" is to be aliens in a foreign country under 26 U.S.C. §911 as he points out in Cook v. Tait. Cook was a Statutory citizen AND a constitutional citizen, so he had to be "rent" (called income tax) on the use of that status, which is property and a franchise of congress.

5.3. If this guy is filing IRS Form 1040's, he's already classified by statute as an "alien" per 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3). That's what a statutory "individual" identified at the top of the 1040 form is: An alien. So he contradicts himself. NOWHERE is the term "individual" EVER defined to EXPRESSLY include "citizens" and ONLY include "aliens" or "nonresident aliens". The authority for a tax on aliens is international treaties, not the Constitution. The authority for a tax on "nonresident alien INDIVIDUALS" is Congress' authority over its own statutory "employees" in states of the Union, NOT the constitution.

6. CONTENTION 6: Finally, read Cook v. Tait and see what happens to a "citizen" outside the USA... which would be in your outrageous theory a NRA in a foreign country (Hint: Mexico is a foreign country)-- yet under the federal tax law, Mr. Cook (a citizen) was taxed as a citizen should be taxed... Would Cook be a double-non-resident citizen non-resident alien in your theory? Where's that definition? By the way, that case by itself destroys your entire NRA theory. If you believe that the Supreme Court got it wrong... well, what else could anybody say to you to awaken your senses?

REBUTTAL 6: Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924) is dealt with in the following treatise. Cook called himself a statutory citizen and therefore had to pay "rent" (income tax) on the status, even though he was NOT. If he had pleaded properly, he never would have been able to even have his case heard by the U.S. Supreme Court, because he was a stateless person:

IN CONCLUSION:

This guy is lazy so he operates on presumptions rather than facts. He is a prisoner of his laziness and presumptions. It also appears that he hasn't kept up with our research. He read far enough to find an excuse to stop studying and stop questioning. He wasn't interested in the truth, but in an excuse to not expend the effort to completely understand the massive FRAUD that has been foisted upon the American people. The price of freedom is eternal vigilance and he only went as far as it took to close his mind. But minds are like parachutes: They only work when they REMAIN OPEN. His parachute appears to have closed years ago either because of:

1. Laziness. He would rather escape with drugs, TV, porn, sports, etc. than have to give up these idols and exercise his continuing due diligence.
2. Conflicting financial interest. He is a tax professional or guru or more likely wants to protect and maintain his eligibility for government benefits. Those benefits will quickly dry up when Uncle soon goes bankrupt because of the enormous and unconstitutional load they place on the public fisc.
3. Simple fear. He wants to avoid social responsibility for fixing the problem or fighting it.

The major factor he overlooks is how legislatively FOREIGN people such as those domiciled in states of the Union become DOMESTIC and subject to federal jurisdiction. That "laundering" of their status happens by either misrepresenting their citizenship status on government forms as either a STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" or as a "person" or "individual" engaged in a public office. This "Laundering" and "identity theft" of foreign domiciliaries is documented in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) and the mechanism is described earlier in sections 4.5.7 and 5.6.13.4.

Like the Stockholm Syndrome, our detractor sympathizes with his legal kidnappers using the following FALSE and carefully crafted presumptions designed to enslave him.

1. A "RESIDENT" is someone of foreign nationality under most franchise, including the income tax described in I.R.C. Subtitles A and C. Instead it is someone who is engaged in a statutory "trade or business" per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26), which is a public office in the U.S. government. In effect, it is a government contractor, not a human. See section 5.2.15 earlier.
2. CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY "citizens" or "aliens" are equivalent. They are not. See section 5.2.15 earlier.
3. NATIONALITY is what makes a person an alien. Instead it is DOMICILE. See section 5.4.8 and following earlier.
4. "United States" in Title 8 and "United States" in Title 26 are equivalent. See section 5.2.4 earlier.
5. "Nonresident aliens" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) are a SUBSET of "Aliens" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). People in American Samoa and Swain's Island are "nonresident aliens" but they are domestic. See section 5.4.8 earlier.
6. "income" means what PRIVATE people earn. Instead it is earnings connected to a public office. See:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7. That statutory civil law can or does regulate NONRESIDENT, non-consenting parties. It does NOT. See:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

8. The average American domiciled and physically present in a state of the Union is subject to the civil laws passed by congress. They are NOT. The only way they CAN become subject is to misrepresent their citizenship as being

1 STATUTORY citizenship or to engage in federal contracts or franchises. See:

Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.018
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2 Since our detractor bought the LIE hook line and sinker, he LEGALLY lives in the District of Criminals with his fellow
 3 public servants, whether he likes it or not, per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).

4 "For among My people are found wicked men [the IRS, federal reserve, bankers, lawyers, and politicians];
 5 They lie in wait as one who sets snares;
 6 They set a trap;

 8 As a cage is full of birds,
 9 So their houses are full of deceit [IRS Publications and law books and government propaganda].

 15 Yet they prosper,
 16 And the right of the needy they do not defend.
 17 'Shall I not punish them for these things?' says the LORD.
 18 'Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?'

 24 But what will you do in the end?"

25 [Jeremiah 5, Bible, NKJV, Emphasis added]

26 5.6.13.9.5 Legal Profession Objections: Dual sovereignty

27 The most frequent argument AGAINST the content of this document from people in the legal profession relates to the 28 concept of "dual sovereignty", whereby lawyers will say that people domiciled in a state of the Union are subject to TWO
 29 legislative jurisdictions, and not one. Then they will quote the following:

30 "The laws of the United States are laws in the several States, and just as much binding on the citizens and
 31 courts thereof as the State laws are. The United States is not a foreign sovereignty as regards the several States,
 32 but is a concurrent, and, within its jurisdiction, paramount sovereignty. Every citizen of a State is a subject of 33 two distinct sovereignties, having concurrent jurisdiction in the State,-concurrent as to place and persons,
 34 though distinct as to subject-matter."
 35 [Clafin v. Houseman, 93 U.S. 130, 136 (1876)]

36 "And the powers of the General Government, and of the State, although both exist and are exercised within the 37 same territorial limits, are yet separate and distinct sovereignties, acting separately and independently of each
 38 other, within their respective spheres."
 39 [Ableman v. Booth, 62 U.S. 506, 516 (1858)]

40 Can two entities be simultaneously sovereign over a single geographic region and the same subject matter? Let's 41 investigate this intriguing matter further, keeping in mind that such controversies result from a fundamental 42 misunderstanding of what "sovereignty" really means.

43 We like to think of the word "sovereignty" in the context of government as the combination of "exclusive authority" with
 44 "exclusive responsibility". The Constitution in effect very clearly divides authority and responsibility for specific matters
 45 between the states and federal government based on the specific subject matter, and ensures that the functions of each will 46 never overlap or conflict. It delegates certain powers to each of the two sovereigns and keeps the two sovereigns from 47 competing with each other so that public peace, tranquility, security, and political harmony have the most ideal
 48 environment in which to flourish.

49 If we therefore examine the U.S. Constitution and the U.S. Supreme Court cases interpreting it, we find that the complex
 50 division of authority that it makes between the states and the federal government accomplishes the following objectives:

4 powers reserved to them they are supreme-‘as independent of the general government as that government within
5 its sphere is independent of the States.’ The Collector v. Day, 11 Wall. 113, 124. And since every addition to the 6 national legislative power to some extent detracts from or invades the power of the states, it is of vital moment
7 that, in order to preserve the fixed balance intended by the Constitution, the powers of the general government
8 [298 U.S. 238, 295] be not so extended as to embrace any not within the express terms of the several grants or 9 the implications necessarily to be drawn therefrom. It is no longer open to question that the general

26 exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is
27 warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to
28 the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of
29 the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given
30 in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it
31 must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited,
32 and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing
33 subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”

- 35 2. Delegates primarily external matters to the federal government, including diplomatic and military and postal and 36 commerce matters. These include such things as:
37 2.1. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the constitution authorizes the feds to tax and regulate foreign commerce and
38 interstate commerce, but not intrastate commerce.
39 2.2. Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 11-16 authorize the establishment of a military and the authority to make war.
40 2.3. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 4 allows the fed to determine uniform rules for naturalization and immigration from
41 outside the country. However, it does not take away the authority of states to naturalize as well.
42 3. Ensures that the same criminal offense is never prosecuted or punished twice or simultaneously under two sets of laws.

43 “Consequently no State court will undertake to enforce the criminal law of the Union, except as regards the
44 arrest of persons charged under such law. It is therefore clear, that the same power cannot be exercised by a
45 State court as is exercised by the courts of the United States, in giving effect to their criminal laws...”

46 “There is no principle better established by the common law, none more fully recognized in the federal and
47 State constitutions, than that an individual shall not be put in jeopardy twice for the same offense. This, it is
48 true, applies to the respective governments; but its spirit applies with equal force against a double punishment,
49 for the same act, by a State and the federal government.....

50 Nothing can be more repugnant or contradictory than two punishments for the same act. It would be a
51 mockery of justice and a reproach to civilization. It would bring our system of government into merited
52 contempt.”
53 [Fox v. The State of Ohio, 46 U.S. 410, 5 Howard 410, 12 L.Ed. 213 (1847)]

- 54 4. Ensures that the two sovereigns never tax the same objects or activities, because then they would be competing for 55 revenues.

56 “Two governments acting independently of each other cannot exercise the same power for the same object.”
57 [Fox v. The State of Ohio, 46 U.S. 410, 5 Howard 410, 12 L.Ed. 213 (1847)]

As far as the last item above goes, which is that of taxation, however, the U.S. Supreme Court has held:

"The States, after they formed the Union, continued to have the same range of taxing power which they had before, barring only duties affecting exports, imports, and on tonnage. 2 Congress, on the other hand, to lay taxes in order 'to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States', Art. 1, Sec. 8, U.S.C.A.Const., can reach every person and every dollar in the land with due regard to Constitutional limitations as to the method of laying taxes."
Graves v. People of State of New York, [306 U.S. 466 (1939)]

"The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."
Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, [298 U.S. 513; 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

"The grant of the power to lay and collect taxes is, like the power to regulate commerce, made in general terms, and has never been understood to interfere with the exercise of the same power by the State; and hence has been drawn an argument which has been applied to the question under consideration. But the two grants are not, it is conceived, similar in their terms or their nature. Although many of the powers formerly [22 U.S. 1, 199] exercised by the States, are transferred to the government of the Union, yet the State governments remain, and constitute a most important part of our system. The power of taxation is indispensable to their existence, and is a power which, in its own nature, is capable of residing in, and being exercised by, different authorities at the same time. We are accustomed to see it placed, for different purposes, in different hands. Taxation is the simple operation of taking small portions from a perpetually accumulating mass, susceptible of almost infinite division; and a power in one to take what is necessary for certain purposes, is not, in its nature, incompatible with a power in another to take what is necessary for other purposes. Congress is authorized to lay and collect taxes, and to pay the debts, and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States. This does not interfere with the power of the States to tax [internally] for the support of their own governments; nor is the exercise of that power by the States [to tax INTERNALLY], an exercise of any portion of the power that is granted to the United States [to tax EXTERNALLY]. In imposing taxes for State purposes, they are not doing what Congress is empowered to do. Congress is not empowered to tax for those purposes which are within the exclusive province of the States. When, then, each government exercises the power of taxation, neither is exercising the power of the other. But, when a State proceeds to regulate commerce with foreign nations, or among the several States, it is exercising the very power that is granted to Congress, [22 U.S. 1, 200] and is doing the very thing which Congress is authorized to do. There is no analogy, then, between the power of taxation and the power of regulating commerce. "*
Gibbons v. Ogden, [22 U.S. 21 (1824)]

*"In Slaughter-house Cases, 16 Wall. 62, it was said that the police power is, from its nature, incapable of any exact definition or limitation; and in Stone v. Mississippi, 101 U.S. 818, that it is 'easier to determine whether particular cases come within the general scope of the power than to give an abstract definition of the power itself, which will be in all respects accurate.' That there is a power, sometimes called the police power, which has never been surrendered by the states, in virtue of which they may, within certain limits, control everything within their respective territories, and upon the proper exercise of which, under some circumstances, may depend the public health, the public morals, or the public safety, is conceded in all the cases. Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 203. In its broadest sense, as sometimes defined, it includes all legislation and almost every function of civil government. Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U.S. 31; S.C. 5 Sup.Ct.Rep. 357. [ . . . ] Definitions of the police power must, however, be taken subject to the condition that the state cannot, in its exercise, for any purpose whatever, encroach upon the powers of the general [federal] government, or rights granted or secured by the supreme law of the land.

"Illustrations of interference with the rightful authority of the general government by state legislation-which was defended upon the ground that it was enacted under the police power-are found in cases where enactments concerning the introduction of foreign paupers, convicts, and diseased persons were held to be unconstitutional as conflicting, by their necessary operation and effect, with the paramount authority of congress to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states. In Henderson v. Mayor of New York, 92 U.S. 263, the court, speaking by Mr. Justice MILLER, while declining to*

 2 legislation protect themselves against actual paupers, vagrants, criminals, [115 U.S. 650, 662] and diseased
 3 persons, arriving from foreign countries, said, that no definition of the police power, and 'no urgency for its 4 use, can authorize a state to exercise it in regard to a subject-matter which has been confided exclusively to the 5 discretion of congress by the constitution.' Chy Lung v. Freeman, 92 U.S. 276. And in *Railroad Co.

 10 the expense of the protection afforded by the federal constitution.' “
 11 [New Orleans Gas Company v. Louisiana Light Company, 115 U.S. 650 (1885)]

12 And the Federalist Paper # 45 confirms this view in regards to taxation:

13 “It is true, that the Confederacy is to possess, and may exercise, the power of collecting internal as well as
 14 external taxes throughout the States; but it is probable that this power will not be resorted to, except for
 15 supplemental purposes of revenue; that an option will then be given to the States to supply their quotas by 16 previous collections of their own; and that the eventual collection, under the immediate authority of the 17 Union, will generally be made by the officers, and according to 18 the rules, appointed by the several States. Indeed it is 19 extremely probable, that in other instances, particularly in the 20 organization of the judicial power, the officers of the States
 21 will be clothed with the correspondent authority of the Union.

23 “Should it happen, however, that separate collectors of internal revenue should be appointed under the federal
 24 government, the influence of the whole number would not bear a comparison with that of the multitude of State
 25 officers in the opposite scale. “

26 “Within every district to which a federal collector would be allotted, there would not be less than thirty or forty,
 27 or even more, officers of different descriptions, and many of them persons of character and weight, whose
 28 influence would lie on the side of the State. The powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal
 29 government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and
 30 indefinite. The former will be exercised principally on external objects, as war, peace, negotiation, and
 31 foreign commerce; with which last the power of taxation will, for the most part, be connected. The powers
 32 reserved to the several States will extend to all the objects which, in the ordinary course of affairs, concern
 33 the lives, liberties, and properties of the people, and the internal order, improvement, and prosperity of the 34 State. The operations of the federal government will be most extensive and important in times of war and
 35 danger; those of the State governments, in times of peace and security. As the former periods will probably
 36 bear a small proportion to the latter, the State governments will here enjoy another advantage over the
 37 federal government. The more adequate, indeed, the federal powers may be rendered to the national defense,
 38 the less frequent will be those scenes of danger which might favor their ascendancy over the governments of
 39 the particular States.”
 40 [Federalist Paper No. 45 (Jan. 1788), James Madison]

41 The introduction of the Sixteenth Amendment did not change any of the above, because Subtitle A income taxes only apply
 42 within the federal United States, or federal zone. Even the Supreme Court agreed in the case of Stanton v. Baltic Mining
 43 that the Sixteenth Amendment “conferred no new powers of taxation”, and they wouldn't have said it and repeated it if they 44 didn't mean it. This is explained more thoroughly in Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.2.6. Whether or not the 45 Sixteenth Amendment was properly ratified is inconsequential and a nullity, because of the limited applicability of Subtitle
 46 A of the Internal Revenue Code to the federal zone. The Sixteenth Amendment authorized that:

47 Sixteenth Amendment

48 The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without
 49 apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

50 And in fact, the above described amendment is exactly what an income tax under Subtitle A that only operates inside the
 51 federal zone does: collect taxes on incomes without apportionment. Furthermore, because the federal zone is not protected
 52 by the Constitution or the Bill of Rights (see Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)), then there can be no violation of

1 constitutional rights from the enforcement of the I.R.C. there. As a matter of fact, since due process of law is a requirement
2 only of the Bill of Rights, and the Bill of Rights doesn't apply in the federal zone, then technically, Congress doesn't even
3 need a law to legitimately collect taxes in these areas! The federal zone, recall, is a totalitarian socialist democracy, not a
4 republic, and the legislature and the courts can do anything they like there without violating the Bill of Rights or our
5 Constitutional rights.

6 The question of whether the federal government has lawful authority to institute direct taxes inside the Union states and
7 outside the federal zone is a rather simple one. Every power that it claims in respect to the internal affairs of states must 8 have a Constitutional origin:

9 "The Government of the United States, therefore, can claim no powers which are not [explicitly] granted to it
10 by the Constitution, and the powers actually granted must be such as are expressly given, or given by necessary
11 implication."
12 [Buffington v. Day, 11 Wall. 113, 78 U.S. 122 (1871)]

13 Under what circumstances the federal government can collect Subtitle A income taxes is a simple question of where, in the
14 Constitution is the power explicitly granted to institute indirect excise taxes on natural "persons" living inside the 50 union
15 states who are not living in federal enclaves? All excise taxes are taxes on privileges and ordinarily can only be enforced
16 against artificial corporations and not human beings. All such taxes against human beings must be voluntary because
17 consent is required in a free country and all just powers derive from consent. The Sixteenth Amendment, by the repeated
18 admission of the Supreme court, didn't authorize enforcement actions against other than corporations and before we had a
19 Sixteenth Amendment, the Supreme Court said that the federal government didn't have that authority in the case of Pollock
20 v. Farmers Loan and Trust, 157 U.S. 429 (1895) to enforce income taxes on human beings. It's a simple question of where 21 in the Constitution does the authority come from if the Supreme Court said it didn't come from the Sixteenth Amendment?
22 Absent an answer, any act by the federal government to collect an indirect excise tax is unlawful and illegal, because not
23 explicitly authorized by the Constitution:

24 Unlawful. That which is contrary to, prohibited, or unauthorized by law. That which is not lawful. The acting
25 contrary to, or in defiance of the law; disobeying or disregarding the law. Term is equivalent to "without 26 excuse or justification." State v. Noble, 90 N.M. 360, 563 P.2d. 1153, 1157. While necessarily not implying the 27 element of criminality, it is broad enough to include it.
28 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1536]

29 "Illegal. Against or not authorized by law."
30 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 747]

31 Without constitutional authority directly from the states somewhere in the Constitution, it cannot be claimed that taxes laid
32 on activities or individuals inside the union states are consensual or voluntary, and if they aren't consensual, then the 33 people in the states are a conquered people and the federal government is at war with them by means of financial terrorism
34 instituted at the hands of the IRS. In that scenario, the District of Columbia becomes a haven for financial terrorists and a
35 "federal mafia", who are protected from legal accountability for their abuses by sovereign immunity and the complicity of a
36 corrupted and treasonous federal judiciary!

37 Let's summarize what we have learned so far by breaking down all the various taxes by state and federal sovereignties and 38 allocating them between internal and external classifications. A picture is worth a thousand words to reveal our research:
39

Table 5-70: Apportionment of various taxes between state and federal jurisdictions

#	Tax	Legal Authority	States: Internal	Federal government: Internal	Federal government: External
1	Excise taxes on foreign commerce	Const. 1:8:1 Const. 1:8:3 Sixteenth Amend. 26 U.S.C. Subtitle D, Chapt. 38, Subchapter A. 26 U.S.C. §4612(a)(4) 26 U.S.C. Subtitle A (Personal income taxes)	No authority	On corporations involved in foreign commerce anywhere in the country. Currently only includes petroleum products under 26 U.S.C. §§4611-4612. All other "persons" and activities are "voluntary" and not mandatory.	On corporations involved in foreign commerce anywhere in the country. Currently only includes petroleum products under 26 U.S.C. §§4611-4612 and on Foreign Sales Corporations (FSC's) and Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISC's) under Subtitle A of 26 U.S.C.
2	Excise taxes on interstate commerce	Const 1:8:1 Const. 1:8:3 Sixteenth Amend. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10)	No authority	None instituted, but have authority.	Not applicable
3	Excise taxes on intrastate commerce (NOTE: "the STATE in INTRASTATE in this case means federal State and not states of the union.)	Const. 1:8:17 26 U.S.C. Subtitle E 26 U.S.C. Subtitle C, Chapt. 21	On privileged activities involving state-chartered corporations.	1. Misc. excise taxes under 26 U.S.C. Subtitle D inside of federal United States only and not in union states. 2. Alcohol, tobacco, and firearms under 26 U.S.C. Subtitle E inside of federal United States only and not in union states. 3. FICA taxes inside of federal U.S. only and not in union states.	No authority
4	Direct income taxes	Const. 1:2:3 Const. 1:9:4 26 U.S.C. Subtitle A Buck Act, 4 U.S.C. §§ 105-114 Cook v. Tait , 265 U.S. 47 (1924) Loughborough v. Blake , 18 U.S. 317, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98 (1820)	State statutes. Most state income tax statutes rely entirely on the Buck Act. For their authority and only apply in federal enclaves within the state.	Federal United States only and not union states. Voluntary (no liability statute). None currently implemented, since Subtitle A income taxes are indirect excise taxes.	U.S. citizens (but not "nationals" or "state nationals") living abroad.
5	Inheritance taxes	26 U.S.C. Subtitle B Knowlton v. Moore , 178 U.S. 41 (1900) 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10)	State statutes.	In federal U.S. and U.S. territories, but not union states.	On federal/"U.S. citizens" (but not "nationals" or "state nationals") living abroad who have estates in the federal U.S. and U.S. territories, but not union states.

The location where a crime is committed controls. If it is committed on state property, then the state prosecutes. When a crime is committed inside a federal area within a Union state, however, the crime can be tried under either state or federal jurisdiction in many cases because of a thing called the Assimilated Crimes Act found in 18 U.S.C. §13. You cannot be tried under both jurisdictions because that would be double-jeopardy, which is prohibited by the Constitution. However, if the federal government fails to convict you in a federal court for a crime in a federal area situated inside a state, then sometimes the state will then try to prosecute you under federal law in a state court instead.

With all the above in mind, let's return to the original Supreme Court cites we referred to at the beginning of the section. The Constitution and the Bill of Rights, which are the "laws" of the United States, apply equally to both the union states AND the federal government, as the cites explain. That is why either state or federal officers both have to take an oath to support and defend the Constitution before they take office. However, the statutes or legislation passed by Congress, which are called "Acts of Congress" have much more limited jurisdiction inside the Union states, and in most cases, do not apply at all. For example:

TITLE 18 > PART III > CHAPTER 301 > Sec. 4001.
Sec. 4001. - Limitation on detention; control of prisons

(a) No citizen shall be imprisoned or otherwise detained by the United States except pursuant to an Act of Congress.

The reason for the above is because the federal government has no police powers inside the states because these are reserved by the Tenth Amendment to the state governments. Likewise, the feds have no territorial jurisdiction for most subject matters inside the states either. See U.S. v. Bevans, 16 U.S. 336 (1818).

Now if we look at the meaning of "Act of Congress", we find such a definition in Rule 54\(c\) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure prior to Dec. 2002, wherein is defined "Act of Congress." Rule 54(c) states:

Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 54(c) prior to Dec. 2002

"Act of Congress" includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of Columbia, in Puerto Rico, in a territory or in an insular possession."

Keep in mind, the Internal Revenue Code is an "Act of Congress." The reason such "Acts of Congress" cannot apply within the sovereign states is because the federal government lacks what is called "police powers" inside the union states, and the Internal Revenue Code requires police powers to implement and enforce. THEREFORE, THE QUESTION IS, ON WHICH OF THE FOUR LOCATIONS NAMED IN RULE 54(c) IS THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT ASSERTING JURISDICTION WHEN THE U.S. ATTORNEY HAULS YOUR ASS IN COURT ON AN INCOME TAX CRIME? Hint, everyone knows what and where the District of Columbia is, and everyone knows where Puerto Rico is, and territories and insular possessions are defined in Title 48 United States Code, happy hunting!

The preceding discussion within this section is also confirmed by the content of 4 U.S.C. §72. Subtitle A is primarily a "privilege" tax upon a "trade or business", as you will learn by reading or free pamphlet below:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

A "trade or business" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as "the functions of a public office":

26 U.S.C. §7701 Definitions

(a)(26) Trade or business

"The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

Title 4 of the U.S. Code then says that all "public offices" MUST be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and no place else, except as expressly provided by law:

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
§ 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

If the we then search all the titles of the U.S. Code electronically, we find only one instance where "public offices" are "expressly provided" by law to a place other than the seat of government in connection with the Internal Revenue Code. That reference is found in 48 U.S.C. §1612, which expressly provides that public offices for the U.S. Attorney are extended to the Virgin Islands to enforce the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code.

Moving on, we find in 26 U.S.C. §7601 that the IRS has enforcement authority for the Internal Revenue Code only within what is called "internal revenue districts". 26 U.S.C. §7621 authorizes the President to establish these districts. Under

1 Executive Order 10289, the President delegated the authority to define these districts to the Secretary of the Treasury in
2 1952. We then search the Treasury Department website for Treasury Orders documenting the establishment of these
3 internal revenue districts:

4 <http://www.ustreas.gov/regs/>

5 The only orders documenting the existence of “internal revenue districts” is Treasury Orders 150-01 and 150-02. Treasury
6 Order 150-01 established internal revenue districts that included federal land within states of the Union, but it was repealed
7 in 1998 as an aftermath of the IRS Restructuring and Reform Act and replaced with Treasury Order 150-02. Treasury
8 Order 150-02 says that all IRS administration must be conducted in the District of Columbia. Therefore, pursuant to 26
9 U.S.C. §7601, the IRS is only authorized to enforce the I.R.C. within the District of Columbia, which is the only remaining
10 internal revenue district. This leads us full circle right back to our initial premise, which is:

- 11 1. The definition of the term “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), which is defined as federal 12 territory that is not part of any state, means what it says and says what it means.
- 13 2. Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code may only be enforced within the only remaining internal revenue district, 14 which is the District of Columbia.
- 15 3. There is no provision of law which “expressly extends” the enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code to any land 16 under exclusive state jurisdiction.
- 17 4. The Separation of Powers Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court therefore does not allow anyone in a state of the Union to 18 partake of the federal “privilege” known as a “trade or business”, which is the main subject of tax under Internal 19 Revenue Code, Subtitle A This must be so because it involves a public office and all public offices must be exercised 20 ONLY in the District of Columbia.
- 21 5. The only source of federal jurisdiction to tax is foreign commerce because the Constitution does not authorize any 22 other type of tax internal to a state of the Union other than a direct, apportioned tax. Since the Internal Revenue Code,
23 Subtitle A tax is not apportioned and since it is upon a privileged “trade or business” activity, then it is indirect and 24 therefore need not be apportioned.

25 Q.E.D.-Quod Erod Demonstrandum (proven beyond a shadow of a doubt)

26 We will now provide an all-inclusive list of subject matters for which the federal government definitely does have 27 jurisdiction within a state, and the Constitutional origin of that power:

- 28 1. Foreign commerce pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the United States Constitution. This jurisdiction is 29 described within 9 U.S.C. §1 et seq.
- 30 2. Counterfeiting pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 5 of the United States Constitution.
- 31 3. Postal matters pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 7 of the United States Constitution.
- 32 4. Treason pursuant to Article 4, Section 2, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution.
- 33 5. Federal contracts, franchises, and property pursuant to Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution.
34 This includes federal employment, which is a type of contract or franchise, wherever conducted, including in a state of 35 the Union.

36 In relation to that last item above, which is federal contracts and franchises, Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code fits
37 into that category, because it is a franchise and not a “tax”, which relates primarily to federal employment and contracts.
38 The alleged “tax” in fact is a kickback scheme that can only lawfully affect federal contractors and employers, but not
39 private persons. Those who are party to this contract or franchise are called “effectively connected with a trade or 40 business”. Saying a person is “effectively connected” really means that they consented to the contract explicitly in writing
41 or implicitly by their conduct. To enforce the “trade or business” franchise as a contract in a place where the federal 42 government has no territorial jurisdiction requires informed, voluntary consent in some form from the party who is the 43 object of the enforcement of the contract. The courts call this kind of consent “comity”. To wit:

44 "Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflicts of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the 45 *law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First 'that every nation possesses an exclusive
46 sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory'; secondly, 'that no state or nation can by its laws directly
47 affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural
48 born subjects or others.' The learned judge then adds: 'From these two maxims or propositions there follows a*
49 third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon

1           the laws and municipal regulation of the latter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and polity, and
2           upon its own express or tacit consent." Story on Conflict of Laws §23."
3           [Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. v. Chambers, 73 Ohio.St. 16, 76 N.E. 91, 11 L.R.A., N.S., 1012 (1905)]

4           When the federal government wishes to enforce one of its contracts or franchises in a place where it has no territorial
5           jurisdiction, such as in China, it would need to litigate in the courts in China just like a private person. However, if the 6           contract is within a state of the Union, the Separation of Powers Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court requires that all "federal 7           questions", including federal contracts, which are "property" of the United States, must be litigated in a federal court. This
8           requirement was eloquently explained by the U.S. Supreme Court in Alden v. Maine, 527 U.S. 706 (1999). Consequently,
9           even though the federal government enjoys no territorial jurisdiction within a state of the Union for other than the above
10          subject matters explicitly authorized by the Constitution itself, it still has subject matter jurisdiction within federal court
11          over federal property, contracts and franchises, which are synonymous. Since the Internal Revenue Code is a federal 12          contract or franchise, then the federal courts have jurisdiction over this issue with persons who participate in the "trade or 13          business" franchise. This concept is further explained later in the following pamphlet:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

14          Finally, below is a very enlightening U.S. Supreme Court case that concisely explains the constitutional relationship
15          between the exclusive and plenary internal sovereignty of the states or the Union and the exclusive external sovereignty of
16          the federal government:

17               "It will contribute to the elucidation of the question if we first consider the differences between the powers of
18               the federal government in respect of foreign or external affairs and those in respect of domestic or internal
19               affairs. That there are differences between them, and that these differences are fundamental, may not be
20               doubted.

21               The two classes of powers are different, both in respect of their origin and their nature. The broad statement
22               that the federal government can exercise no powers except [299 U.S. 304, 316] those specifically
23               enumerated in the Constitution, and such implied powers as are necessary and proper to carry into effect the
24               enumerated powers, is categorically true only in respect of our internal affairs. In that field, the primary
25               purpose of the Constitution was to carve from the general mass of legislative powers then possessed by the
26               states such portions as it was thought desirable to vest in the federal government, leaving those not included
27               in the enumeration still in the states. Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 294, 56 S.Ct. 855, 865. That
28               this doctrine applies only to powers which the states had is self-evident. And since the states severally never
29               possessed international powers, such powers could not have been carved from the mass of state powers but
30               obviously were transmitted to the United States from some other source. During the Colonial period, those
31               powers were possessed exclusively by and were entirely under the control of the Crown. By the Declaration of
32               Independence, 'the Representatives of the United States of America' declared the United (not the several)
33               Colonies to be free and independent states, and as such to have 'full Power to levy War, conclude Peace,
34               contract Alliances, establish Commerce and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of 35               right do.'

36               As a result of the separation from Great Britain by the colonies, acting as a unit, the powers of external
37               sovereignty passed from the Crown not to the colonies severally, but to the colonies in their collective and
38               corporate capacity as the United States of America. Even before the Declaration, the colonies were a unit in
39               foreign affairs, acting through a common agency-namely, the Continental Congress, composed of delegates
40               from the thirteen colonies. That agency exercised the powers of war and peace, raised an army, created a
41               navy, and finally adopted the Declaration of Independence. Rulers come and go; governments end and forms of
42               government change; but sovereignty survives. A political society cannot endure [299 U.S. 304, 317] without a
43               supreme will somewhere. Sovereignty is never held in suspense. When, therefore, the external sovereignty of
44               Great Britain in respect of the colonies ceased, it immediately passed to the Union. See Penhallow v. Doane, 3
45               Dall. 54, 80, 81, Fed.Cas. No. 10925. That fact was given practical application almost at once. The treaty of
46               peace, made on September 3, 1783, was concluded between his Britannic Majesty and the 'United States of
47               America.' 8 Stat., European Treaties, 80.

48               The Union existed before the Constitution, which was ordained and established among other things to form 'a
49               more perfect Union.' Prior to that event, it is clear that the Union, declared by the Articles of Confederation to
50               be 'perpetual,' was the sole possessor of external sovereignty, and in the Union it remained without change
51               save in so far as the Constitution in express terms qualified its exercise. The Framers' Convention was called
52               and exerted its powers upon the irrefutable postulate that though the states were several their people in
53               respect of foreign affairs were one. Compare The Chinese Exclusion Case, 130 U.S. 581, 604, 606 S., 9 S.Ct.
54               623. In that convention, the entire absence of state power to deal with those affairs was thus forcefully stated by
55               Rufus King:

'The states were not 'sovereigns' in the sense contended for by some. They did not possess the peculiar features of [external] sovereignty,-they could not make war, nor peace, nor alliances, nor treaties. Considering them as political beings, they were dumb, for they could not speak to any foreign sovereign whatever. They were deaf, for they could not hear any propositions from such sovereign. They had not even the organs or faculties of defence or offence, for they could not of themselves raise troops, or equip vessels, for war.' 5 Elliot's Debates, 212.1 [299 U.S. 304, 318] It results that the investment of the federal government with the powers of external sovereignty did not depend upon the affirmative grants of the Constitution. The powers to declare and wage war, to conclude peace, to make treaties, to maintain diplomatic relations with other sovereignties, if they had never been mentioned in the Constitution, would have vested in the federal government as necessary concomitants of nationality. Neither the Constitution nor the laws passed in pursuance of it have any force in foreign territory unless in respect of our own citizens (see American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U.S. 347, 356, 29 S.Ct. 511, 16 Ann.Cas. 1047); and operations of the nation in such territory must be governed by treaties, international understandings and compacts, and the principles of international law. As a member of the family of nations, the right and power of the United States in that field are equal to the right and power of the other members of the international family. Otherwise, the United States is not completely sovereign. The power to acquire territory by discovery and occupation ( Jones v. United States, 137 U.S. 202, 212, 11 S.Ct. 80), the power to expel undesirable aliens (Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698, 705 et seq., 13 S.Ct. 1016), the power to make such international agreements as do not constitute treaties in the constitutional sense (Altman & Co. v. United States, 224 U.S. 583, 600, 601 S., 32 S.Ct. 593; Crandall, Treaties, Their Making and Enforcement (2d Ed.) p. 102 and note 1), none of which is expressly affirmed by the Constitution, nevertheless exist as inherently inseparable from the conception of nationality. This the court recognized, and in each of the cases cited found the warrant for its conclusions not in the provisions of the Constitution, but in the law of nations.

In Burnet v. Brooks, 288 U.S. 378, 396, 53 S.Ct. 457, 461, 86 A.L.R. 747, we said, 'As a nation with all the attributes of sovereignty, the United States is vested with all the powers of government necessary to maintain an effective control of international relations.' Cf. Carter Coal Co., supra, 298 U.S. 238, at page 295, 56 S.Ct. 855, 865. [299 U.S. 304, 319] Not only, as we have shown, is the federal power over external affairs in origin and essential character different from that over internal affairs, but participation in the exercise of the power is significantly limited. In this vast external realm, with its important, complicated, delicate and manifold problems, the President alone has the power to speak or listen as a representative of the nation. He makes treaties with the advice and consent of the Senate; but he alone negotiates. Into the field of negotiation the Senate cannot intrude; and Congress itself is powerless to invade it. As Marshall said in his great argument of March 7, 1800, in the House of Representatives, 'The President is the sole organ of the nation in its external relations, and its sole representative with foreign nations.' Annals, 6th Cong., col. 613. The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations at a very early day in our history ( February 15, 1816), reported to the Senate, among other things, as follows:

'The President is the constitutional representative of the United States with regard to foreign nations. He manages our concerns with foreign nations and must necessarily be most competent to determine when, how, and upon what subjects negotiation may be urged with the greatest prospect of success. For his conduct he is responsible to the Constitution. The committee considers this responsibility the surest pledge for the faithful discharge of his duty. They think the interference of the Senate in the direction of foreign negotiations calculated to diminish that responsibility and thereby to impair the best security for the national safety. The nature of transactions with foreign nations, moreover, requires caution and unity of design, and their success frequently depends on secrecy and dispatch.' 8 U.S.Sen.Reports Comm. on Foreign Relations, p. 24.

It is important to bear in mind that we are here dealing not alone with an authority vested in the President by an [299 U.S. 304, 320] exertion of legislative power, but with such an authority plus the very delicate, plenary and exclusive power of the President as the sole organ of the federal government in the field of international relations-a power which does not require as a basis for its exercise an act of Congress, but which, of course, like every other governmental power, must be exercised in subordination to the applicable provisions of the Constitution. It is quite apparent that if, in the maintenance of our international relations, embarrassment-perhaps serious embarrassment-is to be avoided and success for our aims achieved, congressional legislation which is to be made effective through negotiation and inquiry within the international field must often accord to the President a degree of discretion and freedom from statutory restriction which would not be admissible were domestic affairs alone involved. Moreover, he, not Congress, has the better opportunity of knowing the conditions which prevail in foreign countries, and especially is this true in time of war. He has his confidential sources of information. He has his agents in the form of diplomatic, consular and other officials. Secrecy in respect of information gathered by them may be highly necessary, and the premature disclosure of it productive of harmful results. Indeed, so clearly is this true that the first President refused to accede to a request to lay before the House of Representatives the instructions, correspondence and documents relating to the negotiation of the Jay Treaty-a refusal the wisdom of which was recognized by the House itself and has never since been doubted. In his reply to the request, President Washington said:

'The nature of foreign negotiations requires caution, and their success must often depend on secrecy; and even when brought to a conclusion a full disclosure of all the measures, demands, or eventual concessions which may have been proposed or contemplated would be extremely [299 U.S. 304, 321] impolitic; for this might have a pernicious influence on future negotiations, or produce immediate inconveniences, perhaps danger and mischief, in relation to other powers. The necessity of such caution and secrecy was one cogent reason for vesting the power of making treaties in the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, the principle on which that body was formed confining it to a small number of members. To admit, then, a right in the House of Representatives to demand and to have as a matter of course all the papers respecting a negotiation with a foreign power would be to establish a dangerous precedent.' 1 Messages and Papers of the Presidents, p. 194.

The marked difference between foreign affairs and domestic affairs in this respect is recognized by both houses of Congress in the very form of their requisitions for information from the executive departments. In the case of every department except the Department of State, the resolution directs the official to furnish the information. In the case of the State Department, dealing with foreign affairs, the President is requested to furnish the information 'if not incompatible with the public interest.' A statement that to furnish the information is not compatible with the public interest rarely, if ever, is questioned. "

5.6.13.9.6 Federal Court Objections

Below is how one U.S. Attorney tried to attack the Non-Resident Non-Person Position in an actual legal brief filed in Federal District Court, along with an analysis of the case law he cited which disproves his arguments.

The power of Congress to impose a federal income tax system on citizens and residents of the United States derives from the Sixteenth Amendment.<sup>168</sup> The Fourteenth Amendment controls the definition of citizenship. The Amendment states that "all persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States and of the States wherein they reside." Defendant's statements that federal income taxes do not apply to his "nonresident alien" customers, who are actually American citizens, are not supported by law. Federal income tax law applies not only to all citizens of this country, but also to residents of this country. I.R.C. § 7701(a)(14) defines "taxpayer" as any person subject to any internal revenue tax. As courts have stated, "All individuals, natural or unnatural, must pay federal income tax on their wages."<sup>169</sup> The Internal Revenue Code imposes a duty on individuals to file tax returns and pay the appropriate amount of tax. I.R.C. §6012 states that an individual shall file a tax return if taxable income exceeds a given amount.<sup>170</sup>

[. . .]

In addition, Defendant's representation that the internal revenue laws have no application outside the District of Columbia and other federal property is wrong. As the Supreme Court stated long ago, "The people of the United States resident within any State are subject to two governments: one State, and the other National. ..."<sup>171</sup> In fact, the Internal Revenue Code's definition of "United States" includes "the States and the District of Columbia."<sup>172</sup> The I.R.C. was enacted by Congress pursuant to the Sixteenth Amendment and imposes an income tax on citizens and residents of the 50 states and the District of Columbia. Taxation is not limited to just

6 5.6.13.9.6.1 States of the Union are NOT Legislatively "foreign" or "alien" in relation to the "national"
7 government<sup>174</sup>

False Argument: States of the Union are NOT legislatively "foreign" and alien in relation to the "national" government. Instead, they are domestic.

Corrected Alternative Argument: States of the Union are legislatively "foreign" and "alien" in relation to the national government because of the Separation of Powers Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court that is the foundation of the United States Constitution. That separation of powers was put there exclusively for the protection of your sacred constitutional rights. Anyone who claims otherwise is a tyrant, a communist, and intends to commit a criminal conspiracy against your private rights.

8 A favorite tactic abused by covetous judges and prosecutors is to claim that the states of the Union are not legislatively
9 "foreign" or "alien" in relation to the national government. The motivation for this FRAUD is to unlawfully and 10 unconstitutionally expand the jurisdiction and importance of judges and bureaucrats. It is most frequently used in courts
11 across the land and Thomas Jefferson predicted it would be attempted, when he said:

12 "Contrary to all correct example, [the Federal judiciary] are in the habit of going out of the question before
13 *them, to throw an anchor ahead and grapple further hold for future advances of power. They are then in fact
14 the corps of sappers and miners, steadily working to undermine the independent rights of the States and to 15 consolidate all power in the hands of that government in which they have so important a freehold estate."*
16 [Thomas Jefferson: Autobiography, 1821. ME 1:121 ]

17 "The [federal] judiciary branch is the instrument which, working like gravity, without intermission, is to press
18 us at last into one consolidated mass."
19 [Thomas Jefferson to Archibald Thweat, 1821. ME 15:307 ]

20 "There is no danger I apprehend so much as the consolidation of our government by the noiseless and therefore
21 unalarming instrumentality of the Supreme Court."
22 [Thomas Jefferson to William Johnson, 1823. ME 15:421

23 "When all government, domestic and foreign, in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the
24 center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become
25 as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated."
26 [Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:332 ]

27 This FRAUDULENT argument also takes the following additional forms:

1. There is no civil legislative separation between the states of the Union and the national government.
2. A "citizen" or "resident" under federal law has the same meaning as that under state of the Union law.
3. Statutory words have the same meaning under federal law as they have under state law.
4. The context in which geographical or political "words of art" are used is unimportant. For instance, there is no difference in meaning between the STATUTORY and the CONSTITUTIONAL meaning of words.

Like every other type of deception perpetrated on a legally ignorant American public, this fraudulent claim relies on a deliberate confusion about the CONTEXT in which specific geographical and political "words of art" are used. What they are doing is confusing the STATUTORY and the CONSTITUTIONAL contexts, and trying to deceive the hearer into believing the false presumption that they are equivalent.

The following subsections dissect this argument and expose it as a MASSIVE fraud upon the American public.

5.6.13.9.6.1.1 The two contexts: Constitutional v. Statutory

The terms "foreign" and "domestic" are opposites. There are two contexts in which these terms may be used:

1. Constitutional: The U.S. Constitution is political document, and therefore this context is also sometimes called "political jurisdiction".
2. Statutory: Congress writes statutes or "acts of Congress" to manage property dedicated to their care. This context is also called "legislative jurisdiction" or "civil jurisdiction".

Any discussion of the terms "foreign" and "domestic" therefore must start by identifying ONE of the two above contexts. Any attempt to avoid discussing which context is intended should be perceived as an attempt to confuse, deceive, and enslave you by corrupt politicians and lawyers:

*"For where envy and self-seeking exist, confusion and every evil thing are there."
[James 3:16, Bible, NKJV]*

The separation of powers makes states of the Union STATUTORILY/LEGISLATIVELY FOREIGN and sovereign in relation to the national government but CONSTITUTIONALLY/POLITICALLY DOMESTIC for nearly all subject matters of legislation. Every occasion by any court or legal authority to say that the states and the federal government are not foreign relates to the CONSTITUTIONAL and not STATUTORY context. Below is an example of this phenomenon, where "sovereignty" refers to the CONSTITUTIONAL/POLITICAL context rather than the STATUTORY/LEGISLATIVE context:

*"The United States is not a foreign sovereignty as regards the several states, but is a concurrent, and, within its jurisdiction, paramount sovereignty."
[Claflin v. Houseman, 93 U.S. 130, 136 (1876)]*

5.6.13.9.6.1.2 Evidence in support

Thomas Jefferson, our most revered founding father, had the following to say about the relationship between the states of the Union and the national government:

*The extent of our country was so great, and its former division into distinct States so established, that we thought it better to confederate [U.S. government] as to foreign affairs only. Every State retained its self-government in domestic matters, as better qualified to direct them to the good and satisfaction of their citizens, than a general government so distant from its remoter citizens and so little familiar with the local peculiarities of the different parts.
[Thomas Jefferson to A. Coray, 1823. ME 15:483 ]*

*"I believe the States can best govern our home concerns, and the General Government our foreign ones."
[Thomas Jefferson to William Johnson, 1823. ME 15:450 ]*

*"My general plan [for the federal government] would be, to make the States one as to everything connected with foreign nations, and several as to everything purely domestic."
[Thomas Jefferson to Edward Carrington, 1787. ME 6:227 ]*

"Distinct States, amalgamated into one as to their foreign concerns, but single and independent as to their internal administration, regularly organized with a legislature and governor resting on the choice of the people and enlightened by a free press, can never be so fascinated by the arts of one man as to submit voluntarily to his usurpation. Nor can they be constrained to it by any force he can possess. While that may paralyze the single State in which it happens to be encamped, [the] others, spread over a country of two thousand miles diameter, rise up on every side, ready organized for deliberation by a constitutional legislature and for action by their governor, constitutionally the commander of the militia of the State, that is to say, of every man in it able to bear arms."

[Thomas Jefferson to A. L. C. Destutt de Tracy, 1811. ME 13:19 ]

"With respect to our State and federal governments, I do not think their relations are correctly understood by foreigners. They generally suppose the former subordinate to the latter. But this is not the case. They are co-ordinate departments of one simple and integral whole. To the State governments are reserved all legislative and administration, in affairs which concern their own citizens only, and to the federal government is given whatever concerns foreigners, or the citizens of the other States; these functions alone being made federal. The one is domestic, the other the foreign branch of the same government; neither having control over the other, but within its own department."

[Thomas Jefferson, "Writing of Thomas Jefferson" pub by Taylor & Maury, Washington DC, 1854, quote number VII 355-61, from correspondence to Major John Cartwright, June 5, 1824.]

The several states of the Union of states, collectively referred to as the United States of America or the "freely associated compact states", are considered to be STATUTORILY/LEGISLATIVELY "foreign countries" and "foreign states" with respect to the federal government. An example of this is found in the Corpus Juris Secundum legal encyclopedia, in which federal territory is described as being a "foreign state" in relation to states of the Union:

"§1. Definitions, Nature, and Distinctions

"The word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and does not necessarily include all the territorial possessions of the United States, but may include only the portions thereof which are organized and exercise governmental functions under act of congress."

"While the term 'territory' is often loosely used, and has even been construed to include municipal subdivisions of a territory, and 'territories of the' United States is sometimes used to refer to the entire domain over which the United States exercises dominion, the word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization, has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and the term 'territory' or 'territories' does not necessarily include only a portion or the portions thereof which are organized and exercise government functions under acts of congress. The term 'territories' has been defined to be political subdivisions of the outlying dominion of the United States, and in this sense the term 'territory' is not a description of a definite area of land but of a political unit governing and being governed as such. The question whether a particular subdivision or entity is a territory is not determined by the particular form of government with which it is, more or less temporarily, invested.

"Territories' or 'territory' as including 'state' or 'states.'" While the term 'territories of the' United States may, under certain circumstances, include the states of the Union, as used in the federal Constitution and in ordinary acts of congress "territory" does not include a foreign state.

"As used in this title, the term 'territories' generally refers to the political subdivisions created by congress, and not within the boundaries of any of the several states."
[86 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Territories, §1 (2003)]

Here is the definition of the term "foreign country" right from the Treasury Regulations:

26 C.F.R. §1.911-2(h): The term "foreign country" when used in a geographical sense includes any territory under the sovereignty of a government other than that of the United States**. It includes the territorial waters of the foreign country (determined in accordance with the laws of the United States**), the air space over the foreign country, and the seabed and subsoil of those submarine areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters of the foreign country and over which the foreign country has exclusive rights, in accordance with international law, with respect to the exploration and exploitation of natural resources.

Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 498 helps make the distinction clear that the 50 Union states are foreign countries:

Dual citizenship. Citizenship in two different countries. Status of citizens of United States who reside within a state; i.e., person who are born or naturalized in the U.S. are citizens of the U.S. and the state wherein they reside.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 498]

Positive law from Title 28 of the U.S. Code agrees that states of the Union are foreign with respect to federal jurisdiction:

TITLE 28 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 13 > Sec. 297.

Sec. 297. - Assignment of judges to courts of the freely associated compact states

(a) The Chief Justice or the chief judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit may assign any circuit or district judge of the Ninth Circuit, with the consent of the judge so assigned, to serve temporarily as a judge of any duly constituted court of the freely associated compact states whenever an official duly authorized by the laws of the respective compact state requests such assignment and such assignment is necessary for the proper dispatch of the business of the respective court.

(b) The Congress consents to the acceptance and retention by any judge so authorized of reimbursement from the countries referred to in subsection (a) of all necessary travel expenses, including transportation, and of subsistence, or of a reasonable per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence. The judge shall report to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts any amount received pursuant to this subsection

Definitions from Black's Law Dictionary:

Foreign States: "Nations outside of the United States...Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state. The term 'foreign nations', ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the action is brought; and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 648]

Foreign Laws: "The laws of a foreign country or sister state."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 647]

Dual citizenship. Citizenship in two different countries. Status of citizens of United States who reside within a state; i.e., person who are born or naturalized in the U.S. are citizens of the U.S. and the state wherein they reside.
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 498]

The legal encyclopedia Corpus Juris Secundum says on this subject:

"Generally, the states of the Union sustain toward each other the relationship of independent sovereigns or independent foreign states, except in so far as the United States is paramount as the dominating government, and in so far as the states are bound to recognize the fraternity among sovereignties established by the federal Constitution, as by the provision requiring each state to give full faith and credit to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of the other states..."
[81A Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), United States, §29 (2003), legal encyclopedia]

The phrase "except in so far as the United States is paramount" refers to subject matters delegated to the national government under the United States Constitution. For all such subject matters ONLY, "acts of Congress" are NOT foreign and therefore are regarded as "domestic". All such subject matters are summarized below. Every other subject matter is legislatively "foreign" and therefore "alien":

- Excise taxes upon imports from foreign countries. See Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the U.S. Constitution. Congress may NOT, however, tax any article exported from a state pursuant to Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5 of the Constitution. Other than these subject matters, NO national taxes are authorized:

"The States, after they formed the Union, continued to have the same range of taxing power which they had before, barring only duties affecting exports, imports, and on tonnage. 2. Congress, on the other hand, to lay taxes in order 'to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States', Art. 1, Sec. 8, U.S.C.A.Const., can reach every person and every dollar in the land with due regard to Constitutional limitations as to the method of laying taxes."
Graves v. People of State of New York, [306 U.S. 466 (1939)]

"The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."

Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, [298 U.S. 513; 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."

2. Postal fraud. See Article 1, Section 8, Clause 7 of the U.S. Constitution.
3. Counterfeiting under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 6 of the U.S. Constitution.
4. Treason under Article 4, Section 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.
5. Interstate commercial crimes under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.
6. Jurisdiction over naturalization and exportation of Constitutional aliens.
7. Slavery, involuntary servitude, or peonage under the Thirteenth Amendment, 42 U.S.C. §1994, 18 U.S.C. §1581. and 18 U.S.C. §1589(3).

"Other authorities to the same effect might be cited. It is not open to doubt that Congress may enforce the Thirteenth Amendment by direct legislation, punishing the holding of a person in slavery or in involuntary servitude except as a punishment for a crime. In the exercise of that power Congress has enacted these sections denouncing peonage, and punishing one who holds another in that condition of involuntary servitude. This legislation is not limited to the territories or other parts of the strictly national domain, but is operative in the states and wherever the sovereignty of the United States extends. We entertain no doubt of the validity of this legislation, or of its applicability to the case of any person holding another in a state of peonage, and this whether there be municipal ordinance or state law sanctioning such holding. It operates directly on every citizen of the Republic, wherever his residence may be."

[Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905)]

The Courts also agrees with this interpretation:

"It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation."

Carter v. Carter Coal Co., [298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

"The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."

Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, [298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

"The States between each other are sovereign and independent. They are distinct and separate sovereignties, except so far as they have parted with some of the attributes of sovereignty by the Constitution. They continue to be nations, with all their rights, and under all their national obligations, and with all the rights of nations in every particular; except in the surrender by each to the common purposes and objects of the Union, under the Constitution. The rights of each State, when not so yielded up, remain absolute."

[Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 38 U.S. (13 Pet.) 519, 10 L.Ed. 274 (1839)]

1           "In determining the boundaries of apparently conflicting powers between states and the general government,
 2 the proper question is, not so much what has been, in terms, reserved to the states, as what has been, expressly
 3 or by necessary implication, granted by the people to the national government; for each state possess all the
 4 powers of an independent and sovereign nation, except so far as they have been ceded away by the
 5 constitution. The federal government is but a creature of the people of the states, and, like an agent appointed
 6 for definite and specific purposes, must show an express or necessarily implied authority in the charter of its 7 appointment, to give validity to its acts."

8 [People ex re. Atty. Gen. v. Naglee, 1 Cal. 234 (1850)]

9 The motivation behind this distinct separation of powers between the state and federal government was described by the 10 Supreme Court. Its ONLY purpose for existence is to protect our precious liberties and freedoms. Hence, anyone who tries
 11 to confuse the CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY contexts for legal terms is trying to STEAL your rights.

12           "We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S.
 13 Const., Art. I, 8. As James Madison wrote, "[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal
 14 government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and 15 indefinite." The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally mandated division
 16 of authority "was adopted by the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v.
 17 Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and
 18 independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of 19 excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal 20 Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Ibid.
 21 [U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

22 We therefore have no choice to conclude, based on the definitions above that the sovereign 50 Union states of the United 23 States of America are considered "foreign states", which means they are outside the legislative jurisdiction of the federal 24 courts in most cases. This conclusion is the inescapable result of the fact that the Tenth Amendment to the U.S.
 25 Constitution reserves what is called "police powers" to the states and these police powers include most criminal laws and
 26 every aspect of public health, morals, and welfare. See section 4.9 for further details. There are exceptions to this general
 27 rule, but most of these exceptions occur when the parties involved reside in two different "foreign states" or in a territory
 28 (referred to as a "State") of the federal United States and wish to voluntarily grant the federal courts jurisdiction over their 29 issues to simplify the litigation. The other interesting outcome of the above analysis is that We the People are 30 "instrumentalities" of those foreign states, because we fit the description above as:

- 31 1. A separate legal person.
- 32 2. An organ of the foreign state, because we:
  - 33 2.1. Fund and sustain its operations with our taxes.
  - 34 2.2. Select and oversee its officers with our votes.
  - 35 2.3. Change its laws through the political process, including petitions and referendums.
  - 36 2.4. Control and limit its power with our jury and grand jury service.
  - 37 2.5. Protect its operation with our military service.

38 The people govern themselves through their elected agents, who are called public servants. Without the involvement of 39 every citizen of every "foreign state" in the above process of self-government, the state governments would disintegrate and
 40 cease to exist, based on the way our system is structured now. The people, are the sovereigns, according to the Supreme
 41 Court: Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884); Perry v. U.S., 294 U.S. 330 (1935); Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356
 42 (1886). Because the people are the sovereigns, then the government is there to serve them and without people to serve, then
 43 we wouldn't need a government! How much more of an "instrumentality" can you be as a natural person of the body
 44 politic of your state? We refer you back to section 4.1 to reread that section to find out just how very important a role you
 45 play in your state government. By the way, here is the definition of "instrumentality" right from Black's Law Dictionary,
 46 Sixth Edition, page 801:

47 Instrumentality: Something by which an end is achieved; a means, medium, agency. Perkins v. State, 61
 48 Wis.2d. 341, 212 N.W.2d. 141, 146.
 49 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 801]

50 Another section in that same Chapter 97 above says these foreign states have judicial immunity:

51 TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > Sec. 1602.
 52 Sec. 1602. - Findings and declaration of purpose

The Congress finds that the determination by United States courts of the claims of foreign states to immunity from the jurisdiction of such courts would serve the interests of justice and would protect the rights of both foreign states and litigants in United States courts. Under international law, states are not immune from the jurisdiction of foreign courts insofar as their commercial activities are concerned, and their commercial property may be levied upon for the satisfaction of judgments rendered against them in connection with their commercial activities. Claims of foreign states to immunity should henceforth be decided by courts of the United States and of the States in conformity with the principles set forth in this chapter

5.6.13.9.6.1.3 Rebutted arguments against our position

A favorite tactic of members of the legal profession in arguing against the conclusions of this section is to cite the following U.S. Supreme Court cites and then to say that the federal and state government enjoy concurrent jurisdiction within states of the Union.

"The laws of the United States are laws in the several States, and just as much binding on the citizens and courts thereof as the State laws are. The United States is not a foreign sovereignty as regards the several States, but is a concurrent, and, within its jurisdiction, paramount sovereignty. Every citizen of a State is a subject of two distinct sovereignties, having concurrent jurisdiction in the State, -concurrent as to place and persons, though distinct as to subject-matter."
[Claflin v. Houseman, 93 U.S. 130, 136 (1876)]

"And the powers of the General Government, and of the State, although both exist and are exercised within the same territorial limits, are yet separate and distinct sovereignties, acting separately and independently of each other, within their respective spheres."
[Ableman v. Booth, 62 U.S. 506, 516 (1858)]

The issue raised above relates to the concept of what we call "dual sovereignty". Can two entities be simultaneously sovereign over a single geographic region and the same subject matter? Let's investigate this intriguing matter further, keeping in mind that such controversies result from a fundamental misunderstanding of what "sovereignty" really means.

We allege and a book on Constitutional government also alleges that it is a legal impossibility for two sovereign bodies to enjoy concurrent jurisdiction over the same subject, and especially when it comes to jurisdiction to tax.

"§79. This sovereignty pertains to the people of the United States as national citizens only, and not as citizens of any other government. There cannot be two separate and independent sovereignties within the same limits or jurisdiction: nor can there be two distinct and separate sources of sovereign authority within the same jurisdiction. The right of commanding in the last resort can be possessed only by one body of people inhabiting the same territory, and can be executed only by those intrusted with the execution of such authority."
[Treatise on Government, Joel Tiffany, p. 49, Section 78;

What detractors are trying to do is deceive you, because they are confusing federal "States" described in federal statutes with states of the Union mentioned in the Constitution. These two types of entities are mutually exclusive and "foreign" with respect to each other.

"The earliest case is that of Hepburn v. Ellzey, 2 Cranch, 445, 2 L.Ed. 332, in which this court held that, under that clause of the Constitution limiting the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States to controversies between citizens of different states, a citizen of the District of Columbia could not maintain an action in the circuit court of the United States. It was argued that the word 'state,' in that connection, was used simply to denote a distinct political society. 'But,' said the Chief Justice, 'as the act of Congress obviously used the word 'state' in reference to that term as used in the Constitution, it becomes necessary to inquire whether Columbia is a state in the sense of that instrument. The result of that examination is a conviction that the members of the American confederacy only are the states contemplated in the Constitution, . . . and excludes from the term the signification attached to it by writers on the law of nations.' This case was followed in Barney v. Baltimore, 6 Wall. 280, 18 L.Ed. 825, and quite recently in Hooe v. Jamieson, 166 U.S. 395, 41 L.Ed. 1049, 17 Sup.Ct.Rep. 596. The same rule was applied to citizens of territories in New Orleans v. Winter, 1 Wheat. 91, 4 L.Ed. 44, in which an attempt was made to distinguish a territory from the District of Columbia. But it was said that 'neither of them is a state in the sense in which that term is used in the Constitution.' In Scott v. Jones, 5 How. 343, 12 L.Ed. 181, and in Miners' Bank v. Iowa ex rel. District Prosecuting Attorney, 12 How. 1, 13 L.Ed. 867, it was held that under the judiciary act, permitting writs of error to the supreme court of a state in cases where the validity of a state statute is drawn in question, an act of a territorial legislature was not within the contemplation of Congress."
[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) ]

The definition of "State" for the purposes of federal income taxes confirms that states of the Union are NOT included within the definitions used in the Internal Revenue Code, and that only federal territories are. This is no accident, but proof that there really is a separation of powers and of legislative jurisdiction between states of the Union and the Federal government:

TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES
Sec. 110. Same; definitions

(d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) Definitions

(10)State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

We like to think of the word "sovereignty" in the context of government as the combination of "exclusive authority" with "exclusive responsibility". The U.S. Constitution in effect very clearly divides authority and responsibility for specific matters between the states and federal government based on the specific subject matter, and ensures that the functions of each will never overlap or conflict. It delegates certain powers to each of the two sovereigns and keeps the two sovereigns from competing with each other so that public peace, tranquility, security, and political harmony have the most ideal environment in which to flourish.

If we therefore examine the Constitution and the Supreme court cases interpreting it, we find that the complex division of authority that it makes between the states and the federal government accomplishes the following objectives:

1. Delegates primarily internal matters to the states. These matters involve mainly public health, morals, and welfare and require exclusive legislative authority within the state.

"While the states are not sovereign in the true sense of that term, but only quasi sovereign, yet in respect of all powers reserved to them they are supreme-'as independent of the general government as that government within its sphere is independent of the States.' The Collector v. Day, 11 Wall. 113, 124. And since every addition to the national legislative power to some extent detracts from or invades the power of the states, it is of vital moment that, in order to preserve the fixed balance intended by the Constitution, the powers of the general government [298 U.S. 238, 295] be not so extended as to embrace any not within the express terms of the several grants or the implications necessarily to be drawn therefrom. It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation. The question in respect of the inherent power of that government as to the external affairs of the Nation and in the field of international law is a wholly different matter which it is not necessary now to consider. See, however, Jones v. United States, 137 U.S. 202, 212, 11 S.Ct. 80; Nishimur Ekiu v. United States, 142 U.S. 651, 659, 12 S.Ct. 336; Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698, 705 et seq., 13 S.Ct. 1016; Burnet v. Brooks, 288 U.S. 378, 396, 53 S.Ct. 457, 86 A.L.R. 747."
[Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it

1 must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited,
2 and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing
3 subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
4 License Tax Cases, [72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

- 5 2. Delegates primarily external matters to the federal government, including diplomatic and military and postal and
6 commerce matters. These include such things as:
7 2.1. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the constitution authorizes the feds to tax and regulate foreign commerce and
8 interstate commerce, but not intrastate commerce.
9 2.2. Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 11-16 authorize the establishment of a military and the authority to make war.
10 2.3. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 4 allows the fed to determine uniform rules for naturalization and immigration from 11 outside the country. However, it does not take away the authority of states to naturalize as well.
12 2.4. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17: Exclusive authority over community property of the states called federal 13 "territory".
14 3. Ensures that the same criminal offense is never prosecuted or punished twice or simultaneously under two sets of laws.

15 "Consequently no State court will undertake to enforce the criminal law of the Union, except as regards the
16 arrest of persons charged under such law. It is therefore clear, that the same power cannot be exercised by a
17 State court as is exercised by the courts of the United States, in giving effect to their criminal laws..."

18 "There is no principle better established by the common law, none more fully recognized in the federal and
19 State constitutions, than that an individual shall not be put in jeopardy twice for the same offense. This, it is
20 true, applies to the respective governments; but its spirit applies with equal force against a double punishment,
21 for the same act, by a State and the federal government.....

22 "Nothing can be more repugnant or contradictory than two punishments for the same act. It would be a
23 mockery of justice and a reproach to civilization. It would bring our system of government into merited
24 contempt."
25 [Fox v. The State of Ohio, 46 U.S. 410, 5 Howard 410, 12 L.Ed. 213 (1847)]

- 26 4. Ensures that the two sovereigns never tax the same objects or activities, because then they would be competing for 27 revenues.

28 "Two governments acting independently of each other cannot exercise the same power for the same object."
29 [Fox v. The State of Ohio, 46 U.S. 410, 5 Howard 410, 12 L.Ed. 213 (1847)]

30 As far as the last item above goes, which is that of taxation, however, the U.S. Supreme Court has stated:

31 "The States, after they formed the Union, continued to have the same range of taxing power which they had
32 before, barring only duties affecting exports, imports, and on tonnage. Congress, on the other hand, to lay
33 taxes in order 'to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States',
34 Art. 1, Sec. 8, U.S.C.A.Const., can reach every person and every dollar in the land with due regard to
35 Constitutional limitations as to the method of laying taxes."
36 Graves v. People of State of New York, [306 U.S. 466 (1939)]
37

38 "The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions
39 *concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court
40 has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or
41 their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like 42 limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."
43 Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, [298 U.S. 513; 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]
44

45 "The grant of the power to lay and collect taxes is, like the power to regulate commerce, made in general
46 terms, and has never been understood to interfere with the exercise of the same power by the State; and 47 hence has been drawn an argument which has been applied to the question under consideration. But the two
48 grants are not, it is conceived, similar in their terms or their nature. Although many of the powers formerly
49 [22 U.S. 1, 199] exercised by the States, are transferred to the government of the Union, yet the State
50 governments remain, and constitute a most important part of our system. The power of taxation is indispensable
51 to their existence, and is a power which, in its own nature, is capable of residing in, and being exercised by,
52 different authorities at the same time. We are accustomed to see it placed, for different purposes, in different
53 hands. Taxation is the simple operation of taking small portions from a perpetually accumulating mass,
54 susceptible of almost infinite division; and a power in one to take what is necessary for certain purposes, is not,
55 *in its nature, incompatible with a power in another to take what is necessary for other purposes. Congress is
56 authorized to lay and collect taxes, and to pay the debts, and provide for the common defence and general

1 welfare of the United States. This does not interfere with the power of the States to tax [internally] for the 2 support of their own governments; nor is the exercise of that power by the States [to tax INTERNALLY], an
 3 exercise of any portion of the power that is granted to the United States [to tax EXTERNALLY]. In imposing
 4 taxes for State purposes, they are not doing what Congress is empowered to do. Congress is not empowered
 5 to tax for those purposes which are within the exclusive province of the States. When, then, each 6 government exercises the power of taxation, neither is 7 exercising the power of the other. But, when a State proceeds to regulate commerce
 8 with foreign nations, or among the several States, it is exercising the very power that is granted to Congress,
 9 [22 U.S. 1, 200] and is doing the very thing which Congress is authorized to do. There is no analogy, then,
 10 between the power of taxation and the power of regulating commerce. "
 11 [Gibbons v. Ogden, 22 U.S. 21 (1824)]

13 "In Slaughter-house Cases, 16 Wall. 62, it was said that the police power is, from its nature, incapable of any 14 exact definition or limitation; and in Stone v. Mississippi, 101 U.S. 818, that it is 'easier to determine whether 15 particular cases come within the general scope of the power than to give an abstract definition of the power
 16 itself, which will be in all respects accurate.' That there is a power, sometimes called the police power, which 17 has never been surrendered by the states, in virtue of which they may, within certain limits, control
 18 everything within their respective territories, and upon the proper exercise of which, under some 19 circumstances, may depend the public health, the public morals, or the public safety, is conceded in all the 20 cases. Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 203. In its broadest sense, as sometimes defined, it includes all legislation
 21 and almost every function of civil government. Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U.S. 31; S. C. 5 Sup.Ct.Rep. 357. [. .
 22 .] Definitions of the police power must, however, be taken subject to the condition that 23 the state cannot, in its exercise, for any purpose whatever, encroach upon the powers 24 of the general [federal] government, or rights granted or secured by the supreme law of 25 the land.

26 "Illustrations of interference with the rightful authority of the general government by 27 state legislation-which was defended upon the ground that it was enacted under the 28 police power-are found in cases where enactments concerning the introduction of 29 foreign paupers, convicts, and diseased persons were held to be unconstitutional as 30 conflicting, by their necessary operation and effect, with the paramount authority of 31 congress to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states. In 32 Henderson v. Mayor of New York, 92 U.S. 263, the court, speaking by Mr. Justice MILLER, while declining to 33 decide whether in the absence of congressional action the states can, or how far they may, by appropriate
 34 legislation protect themselves against actual paupers, vagrants, criminals, [115 U.S. 650, 662] and
 35 diseased persons, arriving from foreign countries, said, that no definition of the police power, and 'no urgency
 36 for its use, can authorize a state to exercise it in regard to a subject-matter which has been confided exclusively
 37 to the discretion of congress by the constitution.' Chy Lung v. Freeman, 92 U.S. 276. And in Railroad
 38 Co. v. Husen, 95 U.S. 474, Mr. Justice STRONG, delivering the opinion
 39 of the court, said that 'the police power of a state cannot obstruct foreign 40 commerce or interstate commerce beyond the necessity for its exercise;
 41 and, under color of it, objects not within its scope cannot be secured at 42 the expense of the protection afforded by the federal constitution.' "
 43 [New Orleans Gas Company v. Louisiana Light Company, 115 U.S. 650 (1885)]

44 And the Federalist Paper # 45 confirms this view in regards to taxation:

45 "It is true, that the Confederacy is to possess, and may exercise, the power of collecting internal as well as
 46 external taxes throughout the States; but it is probable that this power will not be resorted to, except for
 47 supplemental purposes of revenue; that an option will then be given to the States to supply their quotas by
 48 previous collections of their own; and that the eventual collection, under the immediate authority of the
 49 Union, will generally be made by the officers, and according to
 50 the rules, appointed by the several States. Indeed it is
 51 extremely probable, that in other instances, particularly in the 52 organization of the judicial power, the officers of the States
 53 will be clothed with the correspondent authority of the Union.

1 "Should it happen, however, that separate collectors of internal revenue should be appointed under the federal
2 government, the influence of the whole number would not bear a comparison with that of the multitude of State
3 officers in the opposite scale. "

4 "Within every district to which a federal collector would be allotted, there would not be less than thirty or forty,
5 or even more, officers of different descriptions, and many of them persons of character and weight, whose
6 influence would lie on the side of the State. The powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal
7 government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and
8 indefinite. The former will be exercised principally on external objects, as war, peace, negotiation, and
9 foreign commerce; with which last the power of taxation will, for the most part, be connected. The powers
10 reserved to the several States will extend to all the objects which, in the ordinary course of affairs, concern
11 the lives, liberties, and properties of the people, and the internal order, improvement, and prosperity of the 12 State. The operations of the federal government will be most extensive and important in times of war and
13 danger; those of the State governments, in times of peace and security. As the former periods will probably
14 bear a small proportion to the latter, the State governments will here enjoy another advantage over the
15 federal government. The more adequate, indeed, the federal powers may be rendered to the national defense,
16 the less frequent will be those scenes of danger which might favor their ascendancy over the governments of
17 the particular States. "

18 [Federalist Paper No. 45 (Jan. 1788), James Madison]

19 The introduction of the Sixteenth Amendment did not change any of the above, because Subtitle A income taxes only apply
20 to persons domiciled within the federal United States, or federal zone, including persons temporarily abroad per 26 U.S.C.
21 §911. Even the Supreme Court agreed in the case of Stanton v. Baltic Mining that the Sixteenth Amendment "conferred no
22 new powers of taxation", and they wouldn't have said it and repeated it if they didn't mean it. Whether or not the Sixteenth
23 Amendment was properly ratified is inconsequential and a nullity, because of the limited applicability of Subtitle A of the 24 Internal Revenue Code primarily to persons domiciled in the federal zone no matter where resident. The Sixteenth
25 Amendment authorized that:

26 Sixteenth Amendment

27 The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without
28 apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

29 And in fact, the above described amendment is exactly what an income tax under Subtitle A that only operates against
30 persons domiciled within the federal zone does: collect taxes on incomes without apportionment. Furthermore, because the 31 federal zone is not protected by the Constitution or the Bill of Rights (see Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)), then
32 there can be no violation of constitutional rights from the enforcement of the I.R.C. there. As a matter of fact, since due
33 process of law is a requirement only of the Bill of Rights, and the Bill of Rights doesn't apply in the federal zone, then
34 technically, Congress doesn't even need a law to legitimately collect taxes in these areas! The federal zone, recall, is a 35 totalitarian socialist democracy, not a republic, and the legislature and the courts can do anything they like there without 36 violating the Bill of Rights or our Constitutional rights.

37 With all the above in mind, let's return to the original Supreme Court cites we referred to at the beginning of the section.
38 The Constitution and the Bill of Rights, which are the "laws" of the United States, apply equally to both the union states
39 AND the federal government, as the cites explain. That is why either state or federal officers both have to take an oath to 40 support and defend the Constitution before they take office. However, the statutes or legislation passed by Congress, which
41 are called "Acts of Congress" have much more limited jurisdiction inside the Union states, and in most cases, do not apply
42 at all. For example:

43 TITLE 18 > PART III > CHAPTER 301 > Sec. 4001.
44 Sec. 4001. - Limitation on detention; control of prisons

45 (a) No citizen shall be imprisoned or otherwise detained by the United States except pursuant to an Act of
46 Congress.

47 The reason for the above is because the federal government has no police powers inside the states because these are 48 reserved by the Tenth Amendment to the state governments. Likewise, the feds have no territorial jurisdiction for most 49 subject matters inside the states either. See U.S. v. Bevans, 16 U.S. 336 (1818).

50 Now if we look at the meaning of "Act of Congress", we find such a definition in Rule 54\(c\) of the Federal Rules of
51 Criminal Procedure prior to Dec. 2002, wherein is defined "Act of Congress." Rule 54(c) states:

1 Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 54(c) prior to Dec. 2002

2 "Act of Congress" includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of Columbia, in
3 Puerto Rico, in a territory or in an insular possession."

4 Keep in mind, the Internal Revenue Code is an "Act of Congress." The reason such "Acts of Congress" cannot apply
5 within the sovereign states is because the federal government lacks what is called "police powers" inside the union states,
6 and the Internal Revenue Code requires police powers to implement and enforce. THEREFORE, THE QUESTION IS, ON
7 WHICH OF THE FOUR LOCATIONS NAMED IN RULE 54(c) IS THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
8 ASSERTING JURISDICTION WHEN THE U.S. ATTORNEY HAULS YOUR ASS IN COURT ON AN INCOME TAX
9 CRIME? Hint, everyone knows what and where the District of Columbia is, and everyone knows where Puerto Rico is, and 10 territories and insular possessions are defined in Title 48 United States Code, happy hunting!

11 The preceding discussion within this section is also confirmed by the content of 4 U.S.C. §72. Subtitle A is primarily a 12 "privilege" tax upon a "trade or business". A "trade or business" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as "the functions of 13 a public office":

14 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
15 § 7701. Definitions

16 (a) Definitions

17 (26) Trade or business

18 "The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

19 Title 4 of the U.S. Code then says that all "public offices" MUST exist ONLY in the District of Columbia and no place
20 else, except as expressly provided by law:

21 TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
22 § 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

23 All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere,
24 except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

25 If the we then search all the titles of the U.S. Code electronically, we find only one instance where "public offices" are
26 "expressly provided" by law to a place other than the seat of government in connection with the Internal Revenue Code.
27 That reference is found in 48 U.S.C. §1612, which expressly provides that public offices for the U.S. Attorney are extended
28 to the Virgin Islands to enforce the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code.

29 Moving on, we find in 26 U.S.C. §7601 that the IRS has enforcement authority for the Internal Revenue Code only within 30 what is called "internal revenue districts". 26 U.S.C. §7621 authorizes the President to establish these districts. Under
31 Executive Order 10289, the President delegated the authority to define these districts to the Secretary of the Treasury in
32 1952. We then search the Treasury Department website for Treasury Orders documenting the establishment of these
33 internal revenue districts:

34 <http://www.ustreas.gov/regs/>

35 The only orders documenting the existence of "internal revenue districts" is Treasury Orders 150-01 and 150-02. Treasury
36 Order 150-01 established internal revenue districts that included federal land within states of the Union, but it was repealed
37 in 1998 as an aftermath of the IRS Restructuring and Reform Act and replaced with Treasury Order 150-02. Treasury
38 Order 150-02 used to say that all IRS administration must be conducted in the District of Columbia. Therefore, pursuant to
39 26 U.S.C. §7601, the IRS is only authorized to enforce the I.R.C. within the District of Columbia, which is the only
40 remaining internal revenue district. That treasury order was eventually repealed but there is still only one remaining
41 internal revenue district in the District of Columbia. This leads us full circle right back to our initial premise, which is:

42 1. The definition of the term "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d), which is 43 defined as the federal zone, means what it says and says what it means.

2. Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code may only be enforced within the only remaining internal revenue district, which is the District of Columbia.
3. There is no provision of law which "expressly extends" the enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code to any land under exclusive state jurisdiction.
4. The Separation of Powers Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court therefore does not allow anyone in a state of the Union to partake of the federal "privilege" known as a "trade or business", which is the main subject of tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. This must be so because it involves a public office and all public offices must exist ONLY in the District of Columbia.
5. The only source of federal jurisdiction to tax is foreign commerce because the Constitution does not authorize any other type of tax internal to a state of the Union other than a direct, apportioned tax. Since the I.R.C. Subtitle A tax is not apportioned and since it is upon a privileged "trade or business" activity, then it is indirect and therefore need not be apportioned.

Q.E.D.-Quod Erod Demonstrandum (proven beyond a shadow of a doubt)

We will now provide an all-inclusive list of subject matters for which the federal government definitely does have jurisdiction within a state, and the Constitutional origin of that power. For all subjects of federal legislation other than these, the states of the Union and the federal government are FOREIGN COUNTRIES and FOREIGN STATES with respect to each other:

1. Foreign commerce pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the United States Constitution. This jurisdiction is described within 9 U.S.C. §1 et seq.
2. Counterfeiting pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 5 of the United States Constitution.
3. Postal matters pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 7 of the United States Constitution.
4. Treason pursuant to Article 4, Section 2, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution.
5. Federal contracts, franchises, and property pursuant to Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. This includes federal employment, which is a type of contract or franchise, wherever conducted, including in a state of the Union.

In relation to that last item above, which is federal contracts and franchises, Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code fits into that category, because it is a franchise and not a "tax", which relates primarily to federal employment and contracts. The alleged "tax" in fact is a kickback scheme that can only lawfully affect federal contractors and employers, but not private persons. Those who are party to this contract or franchise are called "effectively connected with a trade or business". Saying a person is "effectively connected" really means that they consented to the contract explicitly in writing or implicitly by their conduct. To enforce the "trade or business" franchise as a contract in a place where the federal government has no territorial jurisdiction requires informed, voluntary consent in some form from the party who is the object of the enforcement of the contract. The courts call this kind of consent "comity". To wit:

"Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflicts of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First 'that every nation possesses an exclusive sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory'; secondly, 'that no state or nation can by its laws directly affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural born subjects or others.' The learned judge then adds: 'From these two maxims or propositions there follows a third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon the laws and municipal regulation of the latter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and polity, and upon its own express or tacit consent.'" Story on Conflict of Laws §23.
 [Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. v. Chambers, 73 Ohio.St. 16, 76 N.E. 91, 11 L.R.A., N.S., 1012 (1905)]

When the federal government wishes to enforce one of its contracts or franchises in a place where it has no territorial jurisdiction, such as in China, it would need to litigate in the courts in China just like a private person. However, if the contract is within a state of the Union, the Separation of Powers Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court requires that all "federal questions", including federal contracts, which are "property" of the United States, must be litigated in a federal court. This requirement was eloquently explained by the U.S. Supreme Court in Alden v. Maine, 527 U.S. 706 (1999). Consequently, even though the federal government enjoys no territorial jurisdiction within a state of the Union for other than the above subject matters explicitly authorized by the Constitution itself, it still has subject matter jurisdiction within federal court over federal property, contracts and franchises, which are synonymous. Since the Internal Revenue Code is a federal contract or franchise, then the federal courts have jurisdiction over this issue with persons who participate in the "trade or business" franchise.

1 Finally, below is a very enlightening U.S. Supreme Court case that concisely explains the constitutional relationship
 2 between the exclusive and plenary internal sovereignty of the states or the Union and the exclusive external sovereignty of
 3 the federal government:

4 "It will contribute to the elucidation of the question if we first consider the differences between the powers of
 5 the federal government in respect of foreign or external affairs and those in respect of domestic or internal
 6 affairs. That there are differences between them, and that these differences are fundamental, may not be
 7 doubted.

8 The two classes of powers are different, both in respect of their origin and their nature. The broad statement
 9 that the federal government can exercise no powers except [299 U.S. 304, 316] those specifically
 10 enumerated in the Constitution, and such implied powers as are necessary and proper to carry into effect the
 11 enumerated powers, is categorically true only in respect of our internal affairs. In that field, the primary
 12 purpose of the Constitution was to carve from the general mass of legislative powers then possessed by the
 13 states such portions as it was thought desirable to vest in the federal government, leaving those not included
 14 in the enumeration still in the states. Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 294, 56 S.Ct. 855, 865. That
 15 this doctrine applies only to powers which the states had is self-evident. And since the states severally never
 16 possessed international powers, such powers could not have been carved from the mass of state powers but
 17 obviously were transmitted to the United States from some other source. During the Colonial period, those
 18 powers were possessed exclusively by and were entirely under the control of the Crown. By the Declaration of
 19 Independence, 'the Representatives of the United States of America' declared the United (not the several)
 20 Colonies to be free and independent states, and as such to have 'full Power to levy War, conclude Peace,
 21 contract Alliances, establish Commerce and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of
 22 right do.'

23 As a result of the separation from Great Britain by the colonies, acting as a unit, the powers of external
 24 sovereignty passed from the Crown not to the colonies severally, but to the colonies in their collective and
 25 corporate capacity as the United States of America. Even before the Declaration, the colonies were a unit in
 26 foreign affairs, acting through a common agency-namely, the Continental Congress, composed of delegates
 27 from the thirteen colonies. That agency exercised the powers of war and peace, raised an army, created a
 28 navy, and finally adopted the Declaration of Independence. Rulers come and go; governments end and forms of
 29 government change; but sovereignty survives. A political society cannot endure [299 U.S. 304, 317] without a
 30 supreme will somewhere. Sovereignty is never held in suspense. When, therefore, the external sovereignty of
 31 Great Britain in respect of the colonies ceased, it immediately passed to the Union. See Penhallow v. Doane, 3
 32 Dall. 54, 80, 81, Fed.Cas. No. 10925. That fact was given practical application almost at once. The treaty of
 33 peace, made on September 3, 1783, was concluded between his Britannic Majesty and the 'United States of
 34 America.' 8 Stat., European Treaties, 80.

35 The Union existed before the Constitution, which was ordained and established among other things to form 'a
 36 more perfect Union.' Prior to that event, it is clear that the Union, declared by the Articles of Confederation to
 37 be 'perpetual,' was the sole possessor of external sovereignty, and in the Union it remained without change
 38 save in so far as the Constitution in express terms qualified its exercise. The Framers' Convention was called
 39 and exerted its powers upon the irrefutable postulate that though the states were several their people in
 40 respect of foreign affairs were one. Compare The Chinese Exclusion Case, 130 U.S. 581, 604, 606 S., 9 S.Ct.
 41 623. In that convention, the entire absence of state power to deal with those affairs was thus forcefully stated by
 42 Rufus King:

43 'The states were not 'sovereigns' in the sense contended for by some. They did not possess the 44 peculiar features of [external] sovereignty,-they could not make war, nor peace, nor alliances,
 45 nor treaties. Considering them as political beings, they were dumb, for they could not speak to 46 any foreign sovereign whatever. They were deaf, for they could not hear any propositions from 47 such sovereign. They had not even the organs or faculties of defence or offence, for they could 48 not of themselves raise troops, or equip vessels, for war.' 5 Elliot's Debates, 212.1 [299 U.S.
 49 304, 318] It results that the investment of the federal government with the powers of external
 50 sovereignty did not depend upon the affirmative grants of the Constitution. The powers to 51 declare and wage war, to conclude peace, to make treaties, to maintain diplomatic relations
 52 with other sovereignties, if they had never been mentioned in the Constitution, would have 53 vested in the federal government as necessary concomitants of nationality. Neither the 54 Constitution nor the laws passed in pursuance of it have any force in foreign territory unless in 55 respect of our own citizens (see American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U.S. 347, 356, 56 29 S.Ct. 511, 16 Ann.Cas. 1047); and operations of the nation in such territory must be 57 governed by treaties, international understandings and compacts, and the principles of 58 international law. As a member of the family of nations, the right and power of the United 59 States in that field are equal to the right and power of the other members of the international
 60 family. Otherwise, the United States is not completely sovereign. The power to acquire 61 territory by discovery and occupation ( Jones v. United States, 137 U.S. 202, 212, 11 S.Ct.
 62 80), the power to expel undesirable aliens (Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698, 705
 63 et seq., 13 S.Ct. 1016), the power to make such international agreements as do not constitute 64 treaties in the constitutional sense (Altman & Co. v. United States, 224 U.S. 583, 600, 601 S., 65 32 S.Ct. 593; Crandall, Treaties, Their Making and Enforcement (2d Ed.) p. 102 and note 1),

1 none of which is expressly affirmed by the Constitution, nevertheless exist as inherently
2 inseparable from the conception of nationality. This the court recognized, and in each of the 3 cases cited found the warrant for its conclusions not in the provisions of the Constitution, but 4 in the law of nations.

5 In Burnet v. Brooks, 288 U.S. 378, 396, 53 S.Ct. 457, 461, 86 A.L.R. 747, we said, 'As a nation with all the 6 attributes of sovereignty, the United States is vested with all the powers of government necessary to maintain an
7 effective control of international relations.' Cf. Carter v. Carter Coal Co., supra, 298 U.S. 238, at page 295, 56
8 S.Ct. 855, 865. [299 U.S. 304, 319] Not only, as we have shown, is the federal power over external affairs in 9 origin and essential character different from that over internal affairs, but participation in the exercise of the 10 power is significantly limited. In this vast external realm, with its important, complicated, delicate and 11 manifold problems, the President alone has the power to speak or listen as a representative of the nation. He 12 makes treaties with the advice and consent of the Senate; but he alone negotiates. Into the field of negotiation
13 the Senate cannot intrude; and Congress itself is powerless to invade it. As Marshall said in his great argument
14 of March 7, 1800, in the House of Representatives, 'The President is the sole organ of the nation in its
15 external relations, and its sole representative with foreign nations.' Annals, 6th Cong., col. 613. The Senate
16 Committee on Foreign Relations at a very early day in our history (February 15, 1816), reported to the Senate,
17 among other things, as follows:

18 'The President is the constitutional representative of the United States with regard to foreign 19 nations. He manages our concerns with foreign nations and must necessarily be most 20 competent to determine when, how, and upon what subjects negotiation may be urged with 21 the greatest prospect of success. For his conduct he is responsible to the Constitution. The 22 committee considers this responsibility the surest pledge for the faithful discharge of his duty.
23 They think the interference of the Senate in the direction of foreign negotiations calculated to 24 diminish that responsibility and thereby to impair the best security for the national safety. The 25 nature of transactions with foreign nations, moreover, requires caution and unity of design,
26 and their success frequently depends on secrecy and dispatch.' 8 U.S.Sen.Reports Comm. on 27 Foreign Relations, p. 24.

28 It is important to bear in mind that we are here dealing not alone with an authority vested in the President by
29 an [299 U.S. 304, 320] exertion of legislative power, but with such an authority plus the very delicate, plenary
30 and exclusive power of the President as the sole organ of the federal government in the field of international
31 relations—a power which does not require as a basis for its exercise an act of Congress, but which, of course,
32 like every other governmental power, must be exercised in subordination to the applicable provisions of the 33 Constitution. It is quite apparent that if, in the maintenance of our international relations, embarrassment—
34 perhaps serious embarrassment—is to be avoided and success for our aims achieved, congressional legislation
35 which is to be made effective through negotiation and inquiry within the international field must often accord to 36 the President a degree of discretion and freedom from statutory restriction which would not be admissible were 37 domestic affairs alone involved. Moreover, he, not Congress, has the better opportunity of knowing the 38 conditions which prevail in foreign countries, and especially is this true in time of war. He has his confidential
39 sources of information. He has his agents in the form of diplomatic, consular and other officials. Secrecy in 40 respect of information gathered by them may be highly necessary, and the premature disclosure of it productive
41 of harmful results. Indeed, so clearly is this true that the first President refused to accede to a request to lay
42 before the House of Representatives the instructions, correspondence and documents relating to the negotiation
43 of the Jay Treaty—a refusal the wisdom of which was recognized by the House itself and has never since been 44 doubted. In his reply to the request, President Washington said:

45 'The nature of foreign negotiations requires caution, and their success must often depend on 46 secrecy; and even when brought to a conclusion a full disclosure of all the measures, demands, 47 or eventual concessions which may have been proposed or contemplated would be extremely 48 [299 U.S. 304, 321] impolitic; for this might have a pernicious influence on future
49 negotiations, or produce immediate inconveniences, perhaps danger and mischief, in relation
50 to other powers. The necessity of such caution and secrecy was one cogent reason for vesting
51 the power of making treaties in the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, the 52 principle on which that body was formed confining it to a small number of members. To admit,
53 then, a right in the House of Representatives to demand and to have as a matter of course all
54 the papers respecting a negotiation with a foreign power would be to establish a dangerous
55 precedent.' 1 Messages and Papers of the Presidents, p. 194.

56 The marked difference between foreign affairs and domestic affairs in this respect is recognized by both
57 houses of Congress in the very form of their requisitions for information from the executive departments. In 58 the case of every department except the Department of State, the resolution directs the official to furnish the 59 information. In the case of the State Department, dealing with foreign affairs, the President is requested to 60 furnish the information 'if not incompatible with the public interest.' A statement that to furnish the information
61 is not compatible with the public interest rarely, if ever, is questioned. "

5.6.13.9.6.2 Statutory and Constitutional Citizens are Equivalent<sup>175</sup>

False Argument: Constitutional citizens born within states of the Union and domiciled there are statutory “citizens of the United States” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), 26 U.S.C. §911, and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c).

Corrected Alternative Argument: This confusion results from a misunderstanding about the meaning of the word “United States”, which, like most other words, changes meaning based on the context in which it is used. The term “United States” within the Constitution includes states of the Union and excludes federal territory, while the term “United States” within federal statutory law includes federal territory and excludes states of the Union. People born within states of the Union are constitutional “citizens of the “United States” under the Fourteenth Amendment but not statutory “citizens of the United States” under any federal statute, including 8 U.S.C. §1401 because the term “United States” has an entirely different meaning within these two contexts.

The most important aspect of tax liability is whether you are a member of “the club” called a “citizen” who is therefore liable to pay “club dues” called “taxes”. The Constitution, in fact, establishes TWO separate “clubs” or political and legal communities, each of which is separated from the other by what is called the Separation of Powers Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court. One can only have a domicile in ONE of these two jurisdictions at a time, and therefore can be a “taxpayer” in only one of the two jurisdictions at a time. The U.S. Supreme Court admitted this when it held the following:

“It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to its objects, but extending all over the Union: the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities was the law in question passed?”

The main purpose of this separation of powers is to protect your constitutional rights from covetous government prosecutors and judges who want to get into your back pocket or enlarge their retirement check:

“We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S. Const., Art. I, 8. As James Madison wrote, “[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and indefinite.” The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally mandated division of authority “was adopted by the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties.” Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). “Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front.” Ibid. [U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

This separation is necessary because people domiciled on federal territory HAVE NO RIGHTS, but only Congressionally granted statutory “privileges” as tenants on the king’s land. That “king” or “emperor” is the President, who is the Julius Caesar for federal territory:

1 "Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and
 2 uniform to the effect [182 U.S. 244, 279] that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase
 3 or conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to 'guarantee to every
 4 state in this Union a republican form of government' (art. 4, 4), by which we understand, according to the
 5 definition of Webster, 'a government in which the supreme power resides in the whole body of the people,
 6 and is exercised by representatives elected by them.' Congress did not hesitate, in the original organization of
 7 the territories of Louisiana, Florida, the Northwest Territory, and its subdivisions of Ohio, Indiana,
 8 Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin and still more recently in the case of Alaska, to establish a form of
 9 government bearing a much greater analogy to a British Crown colony than a republican state of America,
 10 and to vest the legislative power either in a governor and council, or a governor and judges, to be appointed by
 11 the President. It was not until they had attained a certain population that power was given them to organize a
 12 legislature by vote of the people. In all these cases, as well as in territories subsequently organized west of the 13 Mississippi, Congress thought it necessary either to extend to Constitution and laws of the United States over
 14 them, or to declare that the inhabitants should be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the 15 privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as other privileges of the bill of rights."
 16 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

17 We'll give you a hint: States of the Union are NOT "federal territory", and therefore "Caesar" has no jurisdiction there.
 18 Caesar is nothing more than a glorified facility or property manager for the community property of the states of the Union,
 19 not the pagan deity he pretends to be. As an emperor, he has no clothes after you point out the truth to him:

20 "Territories' or 'territory' as including 'state' or 'states.' While the term 'territories of the' United States may,
 21 under certain circumstances, include the states of the Union, as used in the federal Constitution and in 22 ordinary acts of congress "territory" does not include a foreign state.

23 "As used in this title, the term 'territories' generally refers to the political subdivisions created by congress, and 24 not within the boundaries of any of the several states."
 25 [86 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Territories, §1 (2003)]

27 Foreign States: "Nations outside of the United States...Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state.
 28 The term 'foreign nations', ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the 29 action is brought; and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense."
 30 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 648]

31 Foreign Laws: "The laws of a foreign country or sister state. In conflicts of law, the legal principles of 32 jurisprudence which are part of the law of a sister state or nation. Foreign laws are additions to our own laws,
 33 and in that respect are called 'jus receptum'."
 34 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 647]

35 This flawed argument of confusing constitutional citizens with statutory citizens is self-servingly perpetuated mainly by the 36 federal courts and government prosecutors in order to unlawfully enlarge their jurisdiction and importance by destroying
 37 the separation of powers between these two political communities and thereby compressing us into one mass as Thomas
 38 Jefferson warned they would try to do:

39 "When all government, domestic and foreign, in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the
 40 center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become
 41 as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated."
 42 [Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:332]

43 "Our government is now taking so steady a course as to show by what road it will pass to destruction; to wit: by 44 consolidation first and then corruption, its necessary consequence. The engine of consolidation will be the 45 Federal judiciary; the two other branches the corrupting and corrupted instruments."
 46 [Thomas Jefferson to Nathaniel Macon, 1821. ME 15:341]

47 "The [federal] judiciary branch is the instrument which, working like gravity, without intermission, is to press
 48 us at last into one consolidated mass."
 49 [Thomas Jefferson to Archibald Thweat, 1821. ME 15:307]

50 "There is no danger I apprehend so much as the consolidation of our government by the noiseless and therefore
 51 unalarming instrumentality of the Supreme Court."
 52 [Thomas Jefferson to William Johnson, 1823. ME 15:421]

53 "I wish... to see maintained that wholesome distribution of powers established by the Constitution for the 54 limitation of both [the State and General governments], and never to see all offices transferred to Washington
 55 where, further withdrawn from the eyes of the people, they may more secretly be bought and sold as at market."
 56 [Thomas Jefferson to William Johnson, 1823. ME 15:450]

1 "What an augmentation of the field for jobbing, speculating, plundering, office-building and office-hunting
2 would be produced by an assumption of all the State powers into the hands of the General Government!"
3 [Thomas Jefferson to Gideon Granger, 1800. ME 10:168]

4 "I see,... and with the deepest affliction, the rapid strides with which the federal branch of our government is
5 advancing towards the usurpation of all the rights reserved to the States, and the consolidation in itself of all
6 powers, foreign and domestic; and that, too, by constructions which, if legitimate, leave no limits to their
7 power... It is but too evident that the three ruling branches of [the Federal government] are in combination to 8 strip their colleagues, the State authorities, of the powers reserved by them, and to exercise themselves all 9 functions foreign and domestic."
10 [Thomas Jefferson to William Branch Giles, 1825. ME 16:146 ]

11 "We already see the [judiciary] power, installed for life, responsible to no authority (for impeachment is not 12 even a scare-crow), advancing with a noiseless and steady pace to the great object of consolidation. The 13 foundations are already deeply laid by their decisions for the annihilation of constitutional State rights and the 14 removal of every check, every counterpoise to the engulfing power of which themselves are to make a sovereign
15 part."
16 [Thomas Jefferson to William T. Barry, 1822. ME 15:388 ]

17 If you would like to know more about all the devious word games that this emperor with no clothes and his henchmen in 18 the courts have pulled over the years to destroy the separation of powers that is the main protection of your rights, please
19 read the following fascinating analysis:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

20 The Bible warned us that the corruption of man would lead us to destroy this separation of power and that confusion and 21 delusion by the courts and legal profession would be the vehicle when God said:

22 "Who is wise and understanding among you? Let him show by good conduct that his works are done in the 23 meekness of wisdom. But if you have bitter envy and self-seeking in your hearts, do not boast and lie against 24 the truth. This wisdom does not descend from above, but is earthly, sensual, demonic. For where envy and
25 self-seeking exist, confusion and every evil thing are there. But the wisdom that is from above is first pure,
26 then peaceable, gentle, willing to yield, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy.
27 18 Now the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace by those who make peace."
28 [James 3:13-18, Bible, NKJV]

29 Some examples of this phenomenon of deliberate confusion of citizenship terms by the judiciary and the government
30 appear in the following statements, which create unnecessary complexity and confusion about citizenship and domicile in 31 order to purposefully complicate and obfuscate challenges to the government's or the court's jurisdiction.

32 "The term 'citizen', as used in the Judiciary Act with reference to the jurisdiction of the federal courts, is 33 substantially synonymous with the term 'domicile'. Delaware. L. & W.R. Co. v. Petrowsky, 2 Cir., 250 F. 554, 34 557."
35 [Earley v. Hershey Transit Co., 55 F.Supp. 981, D.C.PA. (1944)]

36 "Citizenship and domicile are substantially synonymous. Residency and inhabitation are too often confused
37 with the terms and have not the same significance. Citizenship implies more than residence. It carries with it
38 the idea of identification with the state and a participation in its functions. As a citizen, one sustains social,
39 political, and moral obligation to the state and possesses social and political rights under the Constitution and 40 laws thereof. [Harding v. Standard Oil Co. et al. \(C.C.\) 182 F. 421; Baldwin v. Franks, 120 U.S. 678, 7 S.Ct.
41 763, 32 L.Ed. 766; Scott v. Sandford, 19 How. 393, 476, 15 L.Ed. 691.](#)"
42 [Baker v. Keck, 13 F.Supp. 486 (1936)]

43 "Domicile and citizen are synonymous in federal courts, [Earley v. Hershey Transit Co., D.C. Pa., 55 F.Supp.
44 981, 982; inhabitant, resident and citizen are synonymous, Standard Stoker Co. v. Lower, D.C.Md., 46 F.2d.
45 678, 683.](#)"
46 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 311]

47 "While the Privileges and Immunities Clause cites the term "Citizens," for analytic purposes citizenship and 48 residency are essentially interchangeable. See United Building & Construction Trades Council v. Mayor and 49 Council of Camden, 465 U.S. 208, 216, 104 S.Ct. 1020, 1026, 79 L.Ed.2d. 249 \(1984\)."
50 [Supreme Court of Virginia v. Friedman, 487 U.S. 59, 108 S.Ct. 2260 (U.S.Va.,1988)]

“. . . it is now established that the terms “citizen” and “resident” are “essentially interchangeable,” Austin v. New Hampshire, 420 U.S. 656, 662, n. 8, 95 S.Ct. 1191, 1195, n. 8, 43 L.Ed.2d. 530 (1975), for purposes of analysis of most cases under the Privileges and Immunities Clause.”
 [United Bldg. and Const. Trades Council of Camden County and Vicinity v. Mayor and Council of City of Camden, 465 U.S. 208, 104 S.Ct. 1020 (U.S.N.J.,1984)]

Based on the above:

1. “Domicile”, “residence”, “citizenship”, “inhabitation”, and “residency” are all synonymous in federal courts.
2. “Citizens”, “residents”, and “inhabitants” in the context of federal court have in common a domicile in the “United States” as used in federal statutory law. That “United States”, in turn, includes federal territory and excludes states of the Union or the “United States” mentioned in the constitution in every case we have been able to identify.

This matter is easy to clarify if we start with the definition of the “United States” provided by the U.S. Supreme Court in Hooven and Allison v. Evatt. In that case, the Court admitted that there are at least three definitions of the term “United States”.

“The term ‘United States’ may be used in any one of several senses. It may be merely the name of a sovereign occupying the position analogous to that of other sovereigns in the family of nations. It may designate the territory over which the sovereignty of the United States extends, or it may be the collective name of the states which are united by and under the Constitution.”
 [Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945)]

We will now break the above definition into its three contexts and show what each means.

Table 5-71: Meanings assigned to "United States" by the U.S. Supreme Court in *Hooven & Allison v. Evatt

#	U.S. Supreme Court Definition of “United States” in Hooven	Context in which usually used	Referred to in this article as	Interpretation
1	“It may be merely the name of a sovereign occupying the position analogous to that of other sovereigns in the family of nations.”	International law	“United States*”	“These united States ,” when traveling abroad, you come under the jurisdiction of the President through his agents in the U.S. State Department, where “U.S.” refers to the sovereign society. You are a “Citizen of the United States” like someone is a Citizen of France, or England. We identify this version of “United States” with a single asterisk after its name: “United States*” throughout this article.
2	“It may designate the territory over which the sovereignty of the United States extends, or”	“National government” Federal law Federal forms Federal territory ONLY and no part of any state of the Union	“United States”	“The United States (the District of Columbia, possessions and territories)”. Here Congress has exclusive legislative jurisdiction. In this sense, the term “United States” is a singular noun. You are a person residing in the District of Columbia, one of its Territories or Federal areas (enclaves). Hence, even a person living in the one of the sovereign States could still be a member of the Federal area and therefore a “citizen of the United States.” This is the definition used in most “Acts of Congress” and federal statutes. We identify this version of “United States” with two asterisks after its name: “United States” throughout this article. This definition is also synonymous with the “United States” corporation found in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A).
3	“...as the collective name for the states which are united by and under the Constitution.”	“Federal government” States of the Union and NO PART of federal territory Constitution of the United States	“United States”	“The several States which is the united States of America .” Referring to the 50 sovereign States , which are united under the Constitution of the United States of America . The federal areas within these states are not included in this definition because the Congress does not have exclusive legislative authority over any of the 50 sovereign States within the Union of States . Rights are retained by the States in the 9th and 10th Amendments, and you are a “ Citizen of these united States .” This is the definition used in the Constitution for the United States of America. We identify this version of “United States” with a three asterisks after its name: “United States” throughout this article.

The U.S. Supreme Court helped to clarify which of the three definitions above is the one used in the U.S. Constitution, when it ruled the following. Note they are implying the THIRD definition above and not the other two:

“The earliest case is that of Hepburn v. Ellzey, 2 Cranch, 445, 2 L.Ed. 332, in which this court held that, under that clause of the Constitution limiting the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States to controversies between citizens of different states, a citizen of the District of Columbia could not maintain an action in the circuit court of the United States. It was argued that the word ‘state.’ in that connection, was used simply to denote a distinct political society. ‘But,’ said the Chief Justice, ‘as the act of Congress obviously used the word ‘state’ in reference to that term as used in the Constitution, it becomes necessary to inquire whether Columbia is a state in the sense of that instrument. The result of that examination is a conviction that the members of the American confederacy only are the states contemplated in the Constitution . . . and excludes from the term the signification attached to it by writers on the law of nations.' This case was followed in Barney v. Baltimore, 6 Wall. 280, 18 L.Ed. 825, and quite recently in Hooe v. Jamieson, 166 U.S. 395, 41 L.Ed. 1049, 17 Sup.Ct.Rep. 596. The same rule was applied to citizens of territories in New Orleans v. Winter, 1 Wheat. 91, 4 L.Ed. 44, in which an attempt was made to distinguish a territory from the District of Columbia. But it was said that 'neither of them is a state in the sense in which that term is used in the Constitution.' In Scott v. Jones, 5 How. 343, 12 L.Ed. 181, and in Miners' Bank v. Iowa ex rel. District Prosecuting Attorney, 12 How. 1, 13 L.Ed. 867, it was held that under the judiciary act, permitting writs of error to the supreme court of a state in cases where the validity of a state statute is drawn in question, an act of a territorial legislature was not within the contemplation of Congress."

[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) ]

The U.S. Supreme Court further clarified that the Constitution implies the third definition above, which is the United States*** when they ruled the following. Notice that they say "not part of the United States within the meaning of the Constitution" and that the word "the" implies only ONE rather than multiple meanings:

"As the only judicial power vested in Congress is to create courts whose judges shall hold their offices during good behavior, it necessarily follows that, if Congress authorizes the creation of courts and the appointment of judges for limited time, it must act independently of the Constitution upon territory which is not part of the United States within the meaning of the Constitution."

[O'Donoghue v. United States, 289 U.S. 516, 53 S.Ct. 740 (1933)]

Another important distinction needs to be made. Definition 1 above refers to the country "United States", but this country is not a "nation", in the sense of international law. This very important point was made clear by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1794 in the case of Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793), when it said:

This is a case of uncommon magnitude. One of the parties to it is a State; certainly respectable, claiming to be sovereign. The question to be determined is, whether this State, so respectable, and whose claim soars so high, is amenable to the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States? This question, important in itself, will depend on others, more important still; and, may, perhaps, be ultimately resolved into one, no less radical than this 'do the people of the United States form a Nation?'

A cause so conspicuous and interesting, should be carefully and accurately viewed from every possible point of sight. I shall examine it; 1st. By the principles of general jurisprudence. 2nd. By the laws and practice of particular States and Kingdoms. From the law of nations little or no illustration of this subject can be expected. By that law the several States and Governments spread over our globe, are considered as forming a society, not a NATION. It has only been by a very few comprehensive minds, such as those of Elizabeth and the Fourth Henry, that this last great idea has been even contemplated. 3rdly. and chiefly, I shall examine the important question before us, by the Constitution of the United States, and the legitimate result of that valuable instrument.

[Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793)]

Black's Law Dictionary further clarifies the distinction between a "nation" and a "society" by clarifying the differences between a national government and a federal government, and keep in mind that the government in this country is called "federal government":

"NATIONAL GOVERNMENT. The government of a whole nation, as distinguished from that of a local or territorial division of the nation, and also as distinguished from that of a league or confederation.

"A national government is a government of the people of a single state or nation, united as a community by what is termed the 'social compact,' and possessing complete and perfect supremacy over persons and things, so far as they can be made the lawful objects of civil government. A federal government is distinguished from a national government by its being the government of a community of independent and sovereign states, united by compact." Piqua Branch Bank v. Knoup, 6 Ohio.St. 393."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Revised Fourth Edition, 1968, p. 1176]

"FEDERAL GOVERNMENT. The system of government administered in a state formed by the union or confederation of several independent or quasi independent states; also the composite state so formed.

*In strict usage, there is a distinction between a confederation and a federal government. The former term denotes a league or permanent alliance between several states, each of which is fully sovereign and

1 independent, and each of which retains its full dignity, organization, and sovereignty, though yielding to the 2 central authority a controlling power for a few limited purposes, such as external and diplomatic relations.
 3 In this case, the component states are the units, with respect to the confederation, and the central
 4 government acts upon them, not upon the individual citizens. In a federal government, on the other hand, the 5 allied states form a union,-not, indeed, to such an extent as to destroy their separate organization or deprive
 6 them of quasi sovereignty with respect to the administration of their purely local concerns, but so that the
 7 central power is erected into a true state or nation, possessing sovereignty both external and internal,-while
 8 the administration of national affairs is directed, and its effects felt, not by the separate states deliberating as 9 units, but by the people of all. in their collective capacity, as citizens of the nation. The distinction is 10 expressed, by the German writers, by the use of the two words "Staatenbund" and "Bundesstaat;" the former 11 denoting a league or confederation of states, and the latter a federal government, or state formed by means of a 12 league or confederation."
 13 [Black's Law Dictionary, Revised Fourth Edition, 1968, p. 740]

14 We would like to clarify that last quote above from Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 740. They use the phrase
 15 "possessing sovereignty both external and internal". The phrase "internal", in reference to a constitutional state of the 16 Union, means that federal jurisdiction is limited to the following subject matters and NO OTHERS:

- 17 1. Postal fraud. See Article 1, Section 8, Clause 7 of the U.S. Constitution..
- 18 2. Counterfeiting under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 6 of the U.S. Constitution.
- 19 3. Treason under Article 4, Section 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.
- 20 4. Interstate commercial crimes under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.
- 21 5. Jurisdiction over naturalization and exportation of Constitutional aliens.
- 22 6. Slavery, involuntary servitude, or peonage under the Thirteenth Amendment, 42 U.S.C. §1994, 18 U.S.C. §1581. and
 23 18 U.S.C. §1589(3).

24 "Other authorities to the same effect might be cited. It is not open to doubt that Congress may enforce the
 25 Thirteenth Amendment by direct legislation, punishing the holding of a person in slavery or in involuntary
 26 servitude except as a punishment for a crime. In the exercise of that power Congress has enacted these 27 sections denouncing peonage, and punishing one who holds another in that condition of involuntary
 28 servitude. This legislation is not limited to the territories or other parts of the strictly national domain,
 29 but is operative in the states and wherever the sovereignty of the United States extends. We entertain no
 30 doubt of the validity of this legislation, or of its applicability to the case of any person holding another in 31 a state of peonage, and this whether there be municipal ordinance or state law sanctioning such holding.
 32 It operates directly on every citizen of the Republic, wherever his residence may be."
 33 [Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905)]

34 So the "United States*" the country is a "society" and a "sovereignty" but not a "nation" under the law of nations, by the 35 Supreme Court's own admission. Because the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, it is now incumbent upon each
 36 of us to always remember it and to apply it in all of our dealings with the Federal Government. If not, we lose our 37 individual Sovereignty by default and the Federal Government assumes jurisdiction over us. So, while a sovereign man or 38 woman will want to be the third type of Citizen, which is a "Citizen of the United States**" and on occasion a "citizen of 39 the United States*", he would never want to be the second, which is a "citizen of the United States**". A person who is a
 40 "citizen" of the second is called a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, and he is treated in law as occupying a
 41 place not protected by the Bill of Rights, which is the first ten amendments of the United States Constitution. Below is how 42 the U.S. Supreme Court, in a dissenting opinion, described this "other" United States, which we call the "federal zone":

43 "The idea prevails with some, indeed it has found expression in arguments at the bar, that we have in this
 44 country substantially two national governments; one to be maintained under the Constitution, with all of its 45 restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside the independently of that instrument, by
 46 exercising such powers [of absolutism] as other nations of the earth are accustomed to.. I take leave to say
 47 that, if the principles thus announced should ever receive the sanction of a majority of this court, a radical
 48 and mischievous change in our system of government will result. We will, in that event, pass from the era of 49 constitutional liberty guarded and protected by a written constitution into an era of legislative absolutism.. It
 50 will be an evil day for American liberty if the theory of a government outside the supreme law of the land
 51 finds lodgment in our constitutional jurisprudence. No higher duty rests upon this court than to exert its full 52 authority to prevent all violation of the principles of the Constitution."
 53 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

54 The second definition of "United States**" above is also a federal corporation. This corporation was formed in 1871. It is 55 described in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A):

56 TITLE 28 > PART VI > CHAPTER 176 > SUBCHAPTER A > Sec. 3002.
 57 TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE

PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 3002. Definitions

(15) "United States" means -

(A) a Federal corporation;

(B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or

(C) an instrumentality of the United States.

The above corporation was a creation of Congress in which the District of Columbia was incorporated for the first time. It is this corporation, in fact, that the Uniform Commercial Code (U.C.C.) recognizes as the "United States" in the context of the above statute:

CHAP. LXII. – An Act to provide a Government for the District of Columbia
