A GREAT TIMER OF WATCHES IN NEW YORK.

ONE of the interesting sights of New York is the crowds that gather at noon daily along the east side of Broadway from Park Row to Maiden Lane to watch the time-ball drop on the tower of the Western Union Building. Every day during the year these crowds are to be seen gazing skyward, while the thermometer strives to reach the 100 degree point, or the cold blasts of winter sweep around the corners. The largest gathering is at the corner of John St., opposite THE CIRCULAR office. This is the best situated point of vantage. It is of this crowd that from the window of THE CIRCULAR office the photograph was taken which is here reproduced.

CROWD OPPOSITE THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR OFFICE, TIMING THEIR WATCHES.

The man who possesses a watch and has not implicit faith in its time-keeping qualities is as rare as a flawless emerald; possibly the best place to view this trait in human nature is among this crowd. Here is one man whose watch is two Barthman's stores, but still thinks they must be wrong, and his own timepiece correct.

He stops at the corner with a confident expression on his face and holds his watch proudly in his left hand. When the ball falls and he moves along with the rest he wonders how his watch became slow and still concludes that something may have possibly been wrong with the time-ball.

Many downtown business men make it a practice to compare their watches with the time-ball every day, and as they often meet in the same spot there exists a sort of sympathy among them.

Numerous jewelers throughout the country have time-balls in their establishments connected with the Western Union service or their regulators are timed by this minutes slow. He has consulted the chronometers at Benedict Bros., and William service. Upon application, a fine proof of the cut on this page will be sent to any jeweler.

TO THE TRADE:

The temporary stagnation in the manufacturing districts throughout Europe for the past six months has been productive in our securing remarkable values for the Fall and Holiday Season. Many of the vast and extensive potteries preferred orders rather than close down their shops, while the smaller manufacturers strained their inventive genius to the utmost and have made their prices to suit American demands.

Our Art department is full of original, quaint, choice and inexpensive objects of Art. The Standard Royal Wares are fully represented in our Bric-a-Brac department. Considerable attention has been devoted in getting up novelties to retail at popular prices, and we shall show this season exceptionally good values in this particular line. We propose to give you the benefit of the advantages obtained, and trust you will favor us with a call when in the city.

PART IX. TOWLE MANUFACTURING CO.

THE Towle Manufacturing Co., Newburyport, Mass., is an indirect outgrowth of efforts of individuals and co-operative industries established as early as the seventeenth century. In the vicinity of the loveliest city of the Merrimac valley, Newburyport, the art of the silversmith has been practiced for over 200 years, the culmination of these efforts being found in the great factory of the Towle Manufacturing Co., an illustration of which is here given.

To delve into the past, we find that the pioneer colonial silversmith of New England was William Moulton 2d, whose first silver shoe-buckles appeared about 1690. The first goldsmith in New England whose successors in a direct line have continued to the present time was Joseph Moulton, son of William Moulton 2d. This enterprising father and his son may be considered the forerunners of the grand army of craftsmen who two centuries later are turning out an infinite variety of wares in the precious metals, embodying many of the requirements of modern art. From the rude "Blacksmith and Whitesmith Shop" of the Moultons in 1690 has been evolved one of the most complete silverware factories in the world, that of the company under consideration. The stately and extensive works of the Towle Manufacturing Co., whose goods are known throughout America, is the fruition of the first plant established on the banks of the Merrimac river, near Moulton Hill, Newbury, and which has been perpetuated by many generations of good and true workmen in gold and silver. Seeking for the origin of this well-known and reputable concern, we find other names prominent among the early Newburyport silversmiths.

Jacobs Perkins, born in 1766, assumed the management of the business of his deceased master, Davis, at the age of 15 years. He made shoe-buckles in a superior manner and invented a new method of plating the same. He introduced the first mill used for the rolling of silver, and at the age of 21 years made dies for the Massachusetts mint, being the inventor of the soft steel dies now universally used in the engraving of English bank notes. He afterward removed to London. Many of his inventions were rewarded by the medals of the Society of Arts, of that city.

Bradbury & Bro., manufacturing silversmiths, thrived about the year 1800. They were the first wholesale dealers in sterling silverware in New England. They invented and introduced the first cutting shears used again. The culmination of these efforts is the business of the Towle Manufacturing Co., as before stated.

The Towle Manufacturing Co. incorporated in 1880 with a capital of $20,000. Their growth has been continuous and remarkable, until to-day it ranks among the first houses in America engaged in the manufacture of silverware. Their capital has been doubled and doubled again until now the capital stock is $372,000, and the amount of money invested is upward of three-quarters of a million dollars. The expansion of trade has been the result of systematic effort and enterprise. The wares manufactured are mainly sterling silver and embrace everything known to the trade as "table flatware." The work turned out has been its own sponsor and the trade has recognized its integrity. The English sterling standard, 925 fine, is never questioned in the goods of this company. The principal building of the company is a handsome brick structure, 184 feet in length by 40 feet in depth and has four stories. This building with the wings and smaller buildings gives a floor space of about 35,000 square feet. The structures are substantially built of brick and are equipped with new steel boilers, Harris-Corliss engines, the Grinnell automatic sprinkler system, and are thoroughly supplied with the most modern machinery and tools for the business.

The processes of manufacture are conducted on an elaborate scale, but with the economy of material rendered feasible by the use of the most approved machinery instead of the old-time methods of making by hand, which even now sometimes obtains. Wares produced by hand but too often lack the grace, durability and perfect proportions obtainable by machine processes. The use in the silverware business, and also invented the first cutting dies used in the manufacture of silver spoons. About 1820 Nathaniel and Thomas Foster manufactured and retailed solid silverware. In 1824 John W. Davis manufactured and introduced silver hollowware, principally porringers, cups and napkin rings. Apprenticed to Davis had been Frank Titcomb and Alfred Osgood, who afterward conducted a business of their own. George Greenleaf, another silversmith of this period, manufactured and retailed small articles of silverware. Wm. P. Jones, formerly apprenticed to Joseph Moulton, started in business in 1855. A few years after this date various causes led to a decline in the silverware industry of Newburyport, which threatened its extinction. New blood and money were needed to build it up of machinery, perhaps more than any other medium, has been the means of bringing the goods of the Towle Co. to their present high standard of excellence, and of placing the company to-day among the first houses in this country engaged in the manufacture of silverware.

A feature of the business of the Towle Manufacturing Co. is the manufacture of superior electro-plated ware which is produced with the same care and attention to detail that have given the company's sterling silverware so enviable a reputation.

The attractiveness and consequent desirability of wares so largely used for presentation, such as those of silver, depends greatly upon their being properly encased. This feature has received special attention from the Towle Co., and the manufacture of chests of wood and cases of various kinds of leather, silk and plush has in itself become a business of no small proportions. In the company's own machine shop connected with the factory are made the smaller tools and the finishing lathes. Many of these are of their own design. There are about 250 employes at the factory, among whom are skilled designers and die cutters.

Few men are better known or more popular with the trade than James A. Todd, who is in charge of the western salesrooms at the Towle Manufacturing Co., at 149 and 151 State St., Chicago. The large business done through this Chicago branch is the result of the energy, perseverance and tact for which

Mr. Todd is noted. The company employ a large force of able traveling salesmen. The officers of the corporation are as follows: President, Eben Sumner; treasurer, Wm. H. Swasey; vice-president and manager, L. D. Cole. The trademark of the company is illustrated at the beginning of this article.

Wm. Ponton Again Becomes Conspicuous by Disappearing.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 30.—William Ponton, a jeweler at 2934 Cottage Grove Ave., disappeared the night of July 26, leaving numerous creditors and an empty store. A number of watches left for repairs cannot be traced. One creditor summoned workmen and captured a sign which he had consigned to the jeweler, and attempts have been made to seize the safe, these being the only articles of value left behind.

Ponton acquired considerable notoriety about a year ago in connection with a diamond smuggling case, and additional prominence a few months ago by attempting suicide at a South Side hotel.

Once a Prosperous Jeweler, Now a Criminal.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 28.—James H. Hays has been arrested on two charges—grand larceny and arson. Hays appeared at the police station Friday morning and said he had been robbed during the night of fourteen gold watches, the property of R. B. Jerusalem, engaged in selling goods on the installment plan on Massachusetts Ave. He also told the officers that an attempt had been made to burn his house at 158 Buchanan St. The officers found the shelves of a closet smeared with coal oil, and could see that an attempt had been made to fire the place. It was claimed that the watches were in a case with some other jewelry. Only a portion of the goods alleged to be in the case were taken, and the officers accused Hays of having robbed himself.

He was placed under arrest, and the officers claim that he admitted his guilt to them, and said that he had been unable to make a living at his business and had run deeply into debt. Hays came to this city about six years ago from Iowa. For several years he had a jewelry store on S. Meridian St., and seemed to do a paying business. He sold out his store and began selling jewelry for installment houses. His arrest upon the charges preferred was a great surprise to his friends.

Regarding the Will of the Late Harrison Robbins.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 1.—Harrison Robbins, the well-known Chestnut St. jeweler, who died on June 11, left properly in this commonwealth valued at about $15,000, but owing to caveats against the validity of the will the document was never admitted to probate. Register of Wills Shields on the 29th ult., however, granted letters of admin-

Mr. Robbins died in Merchantville, N. J., where the bulk of the estate is located, and a will was filed with the surrogate of Camden, but was protested by the widow, Charlotte B. Robbins, and a son, Edmund P. Robbins.

A Burglar Captured in the Canadian Provinces.

SARNIA, Ont., July 30.—This week E. P. Batley's store was broken into. Charles Norman, 50 years of age, was suspected of the burglary. A search of his trunk at the Germania House disclosed goods which were at once identified as those stolen. Burglar tools were also found in his trunk.

A watch was placed on the hotel and when Norman came home he was placed under arrest. He was remanded to jail until such time as the Circuit Court is in session, when he will be tried.

Desperate Canadian Burglars Captured in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 27.—The police have arrested a pair of desperate Canadian burglars and highwaymen. Sergeant Lambrecht was going his rounds Thursday night when he saw three men having a rough-and-tumble fight. Lambrecht caught one of them, who said he was John Milton, but refused to tell where he was from or who his partners were. The police have learned, however, that he and his companions were fighting over the division of property they stole from a jewelry store in Woodstock, Ont.

Later on in the evening another one of the gang, who gave his name as John Smith, was arrested. On him was found a quantity of jewelry, razors and other stuff. A telegram was received from the police at Woodstock saying Milton and Smith were wanted in Canada.

William Wilson, alias Sir Edward Cook, in the Toils of the Police.

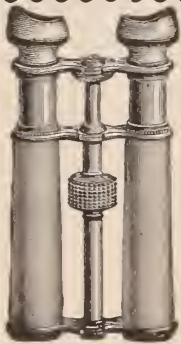

There is at present awaiting trial in the Tombs, New York, a clever rough who under the names of William Wilson, Henry Cook, Sir Edward Cook and Cecil H. Cook, has swindled jewelers all over the country. Through the efforts of H. N. Squire & Son, 18 John St., N. Y., who were among his victims, he was arrested last week and fully identified by Lindo Bros., 1205 Broadway and Samuel Hammond, 62 Wall St., as the man who had obtained jewelry from them on forged checks.

The man's method was to forge a letter of introduction from some prominent broker to a stationer or other tradesman, buy a few things from the latter and then get introduced to some jeweler of their acquaintance, whom he would fleece by forged checks drawn in the name of William Wilson. In this manner he obtained a watch worth $150 from H. N. Squire & Son, one valued at $250 from Lindo Bros., and another worth $300 from Samuel Hammond. THE CIRCULAR several weeks ago recorded the swindling of Mr. Hammond by the prisoner and cautioned the trade against him.

Wilson speaks with a pronounced English accent. He is of medium build, has dark complexion and is about 45 years of age. He is not the man who swindled John R. Keim, of 21 E. 17th St., as has been claimed by another paper.

Jeweler Alford's Serious Experience with a Pair of Kicking Colts.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., July 27.—Floyd H. Alford, the East Side jeweler, received serious injuries by being kicked by a team of horses on Saturday night. With a friend he was out driving when the team became frightened at the cars and began backing, nearly overturning the buggy. Mr. Alford in an attempt to save himself, was thrown over the dashboard, fairly upon the heels of the frightened animals, which immediately began kicking furiously.

When he was extricated from his dangerous position it was found that he was seriously hurt, and he was removed to his home. His limbs and body are cut in several places, and it will be a long time before he fully recovers from his experience.

The Future Probabilities of Attleboro.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., July 30.—If all reports and answers to inquiries made by THE CIRCULAR correspondent be true, there is likely to be quite an exodus of North Attleboro jewelers to Attleboro. There have been many inquiries for shop-room here, and although certain parties concerned are reticent about the matter, it is assumed that R. F. Simmons & Co.'s new shop will be occupied by present North Attleboro firms. Attleboro is on the main line of the railroad and has better postal facilities. However, since the opening of the new road, North Attleboro has gained much.

The opening of the Interstate Electric Railroad between North Attleboro and Pawtucket will have a tendency to boom things. By it F. H. Sadler & Co. and White & Shaw, located at South Attleboro, are greatly benefited. Heretofore they have been isolated. Now the cars almost pass the door. It is understood that on account of the cheapness of land several smaller concerns will start there.

Annual Picnic of the Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.'s Employees.

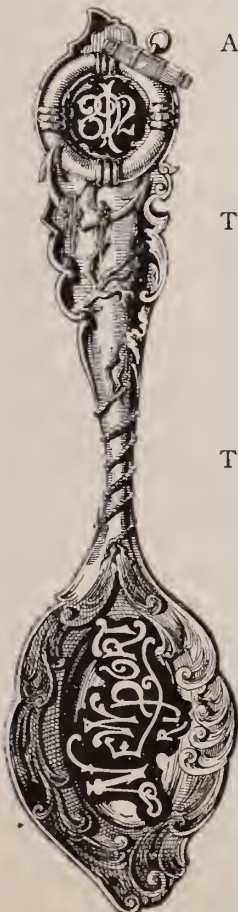

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 28.—The employees of the Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. held their thirteenth annual outing Monday at Sea Breeze. The occasion was one of the most largely attended of its kind ever held by them, there being about nine hundred persons in attendance. The employes formed in line on North St., and were accompanied by three bands, one of which was made up of employes in the machine and tool department.

The festivities included a game of baseball, a number of races and a shooting contest. The day was J. J. Bausch's sixty-second birthday and in remembrance of it he was presented a very finely executed wood model representing a microscope. The presentation speech was made by F. F. Teute. The piece has the appearance of a microscope four feet high, every detail being accurately represented and the mountings being coated with bronze. Mr. Bausch was also presented with an elegant silk umbrella with a heavy gold head bearing the inscription "Presented to J. J. Bausch on his 62d birthday, July 25, 1892, by his employes." This was given him with an appropriate speech by J. B. Klinger. The recipient of these gifts was almost overcome with emotion, but accepted the tokens of friendship with expressions of thanks. A short address was also given by Rev. Mr. Henckell of the German Evangelical Trinity Church.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO
THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

The South Pacific Represented at the Fair.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 1.—Recent letters and cable dispatches received from Leigh S. Lynch, who is cruising in the South Pacific in search of features for the World's Fair, convey the information that jewelers will find much of interest in the displays from that little-known quarter of the world. It is likely that a fine collection of Siamese gems and curios will be displayed in the space of the Oceanic Trading Co. on the Midway Plaisance.

Mr. Lynch writes from Kioto, Japan: "Nishimura also shows me some marvelous gold lacquer work and wood carving, which you can all see at the Exposition. Then Mickaway, the cloisonné ware man has some wonderful pieces. This man never puts his name on his work. He says each piece speaks for itself and tells that no other man could make it but himself. Of course you all know how cloisonné is made; how the silver wire is fashioned out and soldered on the copper base of the article to be constructed, and that then into each interstice enamel is placed forming a figure, and it is then baked and ground down and polished. The task seems endless, but they are very patient."

Exposition Notes.

Daoud Sifco, a wealthy Algerian merchant, has made arrangements for an Algerian village. Mr. Sifco is a large dealer in fancy goods, jewelry and bric-a-brac, and the display in these lines will cost approximately $150,000. There will be three large bazaars for the sale of jewelry, embroideries, etc., presided over by natives. Fifty people will be brought on from Algeria, among them two Arabian jewelers and two Kabyle jewelers.

Archæological research has discovered many curious and antique specimens illustrative of the work of the gold and silver smiths of old Peru. A collection of these, including gold and silver ornaments found in the tombs of the dead, is expected in the Peruvian display.

The Hon. Thomas B. Keogh, one of the World's Fair National Commissioners for North Carolina, says that more than 180 varieties of minerals have been discovered in that State and will be fully represented at the Fair. More than twenty classes of gems have been discovered there, including the diamond, ruby, beryl, sapphire, emerald, lazulite, amethyst, garnet, agate, zircon, and hiddenite.

Agents in Chicago of the leading watch-case manufacturers of the United States can not yet give definite information as to the intentions of their houses in regard to a World's Fair display but it is universally conceded that each company will be very fully represented. Concerted action as to a collective exhibit is strongly urged by the Fair authorities.

Jeweler Shryock Dies in an Omaha Hotel.

OMAHA, Neb., July 30.—Wm. Shryock was recently found dead in his room at the Murray Hotel, this city. Mr. Shryock had a drug and jewelry store at Louisville, Neb., where he had lived for fifteen years or more. He was a member of the last Democratic session of the State legislature. Some time last winter Mr. Shryock broke his leg; shortly after his recovery he slipped and hurt the leg quite severely and had been quite lame in consequence since. While in the city he again slipped on a banana peel and severely wrenched the lame leg; the pain was very intense, and Mr. Shryock, who had intended going home, was obliged instead to go to his room and lay down.

Supposing he had gone home, no attention was paid to him until the evening of the next day, when the chambermaid reported his room locked. Investigation found him lying dead on his bed. The doctors stated that he had a disease of the heart, and the excessive pain caused faintness, from which his weak heart had not strength to rally. He left his affairs in good shape and his life was largely insured.

J. Augustus Robbins Killed in an Avalanche.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 1.—J. Augustus Robbins, for years a prominent jeweler in this city and Boston, was killed by the fall of an avalanche at Grindilwald, Switzerland, last Friday. Mr. Robbins was making a tour of Europe in a party with his sister and nephew when the accident occurred.

Mr. Robbins was born at Calais, Me., about fifty years ago and has been a resident of this city since 1874. Previous to his residence here he lived in Boston, where for years he was connected with Bigelow, Kennard & Co. Coming to this city he bought a jewelry store and ran it until five years ago, when he sold out. He then went into the firm of O. W. Bullock & Co., manufacturers of jewelers' tools, and has since been connected with the company. He was unmarried and leaves two brothers and a sister.

C. F. Rudolph's Store Visited by Fire.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 31.—Fire in C. F. Rudolph's store this morning caused about $15,000 damages. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been due to an electric light wire. The flames were confined to the first and second floors of the big building.

The stock on the second floor comprised paintings and etchings, and a large line of onyx goods. Among the paintings was one by Salvador Rosa. It was valued at $3,000 and was destroyed. The total insurance on building, stock, tools, material and fixtures is $35,000.

Sam Lowenstein, receiver for Herman Lange, is asking the creditors to sign a 25 per cent. settlement. Mr. Lange is anxious to clear his books and open up again in his own name.

The friends of Peter Henry will be sorry to learn of his bereavement, in the drowning of his oldest son, last Saturday evening, while bathing in the river. He was his father's bookkeeper and general accountant. He has been associated with his father in business for the past four years and could carry it on in his absence with the assurance of older heads.

Gustave Fox is now the proud possessor of Plinlinin, Jr., the champion rough-coated St. Bernard of the world. He came from the Wyoming Kennels at Melrose, Mass. He has won about forty prizes in this country and Europe. Mr. Fox, besides being a diamond merchant, is also a fancier of both dogs and horses. It is said he paid a very handsome price for this dog.

Herman Keck brought back from Europe on this trip some very unique gems, among them a red diamond. Mr. Keck says while at Antwerp he saw the famous Belgian Star, said to be the largest diamond extant, weighing 210 karats. The H. Keck Manufacturing Co., are getting up a very elaborate diamond catalogue in colors, something out of the ordinary and very expensive. It will show the colored gold and the gems combined.

O. W. Hawkins, foreman for W. & S Blackinton, gave about 30 of the employes a day's cruise on his yacht White Wings last week.

One of the neatest campaign buttons issued here is of silver, on which is an enamel four-leaf clover. In the leaves are the letters forming the word Grover. It is quite suggestive and the manufacturers, R. F. Simmons & Co., are having an exceedingly large sale.

H. H. Curtis & Co. are making many changes in their factory. They are enlarging the office and centralizing as much as possible on the lower floor.

There are many employes and a few employers who lose hundreds in the Order of the Iron Hall, for which a receiver has just been appointed.

Harrison Brothers have applied for an injunction against W. E. Sanford to restrain him from making the "Grandfather's Hat" campaign design.

The firm name of C. E. Sandland & Co. has been changed to Sandland, Palmer & Co. The new partner is James R. Palmer, for a long time representative for Sandland, Capron & Co.

Thursday evening a meeting of the North Attleboro fire district was held, and it was voted to sell the property to the town. The effect of this will be that the shops at the Falls will soon have protection against fire which they have in a great measure heretofore lacked. S. E. Fisher, G. K. Webster, E. D. Sturtevant, E. I. Franklin and E. R. Price were chosen a committee to make the transfer.

Canada and the Provinces.

TO THE TRADE:

The undersigned desire to call your attention to a "NEW IDEA," which is a new idea of constructing a spectacle called the

"NEW ERA,"

(patented April 9, 1889), and which possesses the following advantages:

- First.—It is constructed with less pieces, thereby doing away with soldering at the bridge (always a source of weakness).
- Second.—It enables you to insert lenses without danger of breaking the frames at the temple joint or clipping the lenses, and avoids the possibility of losing screws and temples.
- Third.—The frame is made of one continuous piece of metal and has the one-piece temple joint soldered to the frame, making it the strongest frame made.
- Fourth.—The lens can be inserted by simply unscrewing the thumb nut at bridge with thumb and finger. The nut is countersunk and is so constructed that it cannot come off and get lost.

The construction of this Spectacle must recommend itself to you as possessing strength, simplicity and durability, as well as being the most practical ever introduced.

We have placed them in the hands of GUSTAVE WALTER, of the Gustave Walter Optical Co. (Limited), as our only Selling Agent. All previous offerings of these goods by others than MR. WALTER or his representatives were unwarranted, and the undersigned are not responsible for any promises made and not fulfilled.

BOSTON, Mass., July 31.—Yesterday the Jewelry Travelers' Association of New England had their midsummer outing and enjoyed a trip to Nantasket Beach and a banquet at the Hotel Nantasket. By invitation of Commodore Chas. F. Morrill of the South Boston Yacht Club, former president of the Bay State Watch Case Co., the traveling men were conveyed to the beach from City Point on the initial trip of the Navarch, Mr. Morrill's new steam yacht.

President John L. Shepherd sat at the head of the table, and beside him were Harry F. Hayes and Charles W. Finlay, of this city, who were on the committee of arrangements. The other gentlemen present were H. W. Patterson, Mark B. Flanders, Chas. B. Houghton, John J. Hawes, Harry A. Flinn, H. Elliott, Charles H. Buxton, Henry Barber, Jr., Charles T. Derry, Thos. B. He was born in Virginia in 1843 and served in the army three years, ending his military career in Libby Prison, from which he escaped in 1864. He subsequently located at various times in southern Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania and St. Louis, where he published newspapers with varied success and enjoyed all the good things that accompany a country editor's life. In 1878 he left the newspaper business and started on the road for the Keystone Watch Case Co. as missionary, visiting every town in the United States of over 1,500 inhabitants, and even going to Europe to introduce the Keystone Co.'s products to the retail jewelers. During the five years he occupied this position he became acquainted with thousands of jewelers all over the country. In 1883 he was appointed manager of the New York office of the concern. He still continues to visit the trade of New York and New England, and his smiling face and hearty manner secure him a welcome everywhere. He is

VOL. XXV. AUG. 3, 1892. NO. 1.

A HANDSOME reprint of the illustration forming the frontispiece of this number will be forwarded to any jeweler upon application. The picture will prove an attractive feature in a show-window, especially if the establishment employs the Western Union Telegraph Co.'s time service.

AS an example of manly forgiveness, the recent incident of the shooting of a Rockaway, N. Y., jeweler by his wife has probably never been equaled. The jeweler did not only not appear against the would-be murderess, but he bought her a new dress to smooth matters over. If she had killed him, some one else might have bought her the dress, but this consideration did not influence the forgiving husband.

The Watch-Making Exhibit. IT is a rather discouraging circumstance to those who believe in the purposes and benefits of the World's Columbian Exposition, that the principal watch companies of America do not intend to make displays. Watch manufacturing is an industry of which all loyal Americans feel proud as being essentially theirs. The American-made watch is an article familiar to the people of all civilized nations. Perhaps there is no native industry that, it would seem to one imbued with love and admiration of America, should be more thoroughly represented than watchmaking. THE CIRCULAR sincerely hopes that when the doors of the great fair are opened, a complete exposition of the marvelous progress that has been made in this industry in America will greet the eyes of the thousands of visitors.

THE salient event in the trade last week was the filing of two suits for heavy damages by the Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. against the members of the Co-operative Manufacturers' Association. THE CIRCULAR publishes complete reprints of the text of the complaints in both actions, and endeavors to present both sides of the matter, by interviews with W. A. Moore, of the Dueber Co., and Mr. Avery, president of the Elgin National Watch Co., one of the defendants. The fullness of this report is in line with the policy of THE CIRCULAR, which is to publish the news complete without bias and without discrimination of persons and interests.

Another Onyx Discovery.

THE Revista Financiera Mexicana reports the discovery of a mountain of onyx thirty miles south of El Paso, Mexico. Through the influence of Mexican officials the owners of the land "succeeded in getting a five years' lease from the government on 86,000 acres of land covering the onyx bed. This onyx is of a superior quality, finely grained and beautifully marked with streaks of variegated colors blended across the face of the ledge." The report further states that the find is only fourteen miles off the Mexican Central Railroad, and could easily be reached by a spur from that road, and that the cost of quarrying would be small, as the face of the mountain is solid onyx, and scales off in large slabs, thus making it possible to place it in El Paso as cheap as common building stone. The reports of finds of onyx are almost of too frequent occurrence to warrant full credence. The principal cause of these frequent discoveries resides in the fact that there is at present but comparatively little fine onyx obtainable for the manufacture of large decorative articles.

A Big Failure in Toronto.

TORONTO, Can., July 30.—The Charles Stark Co., jobbers, have assigned, with liabilities placed at $143,000 and nominal assets of $147,000. The failure has caused general surprise, as the firm less than a year ago was credited with a surplus of $80,000.

The principal creditors are the Bank of Hamilton, in $49,000, and the Union Bank in $15,000. There are others in Montreal, Great Britain, Belgium and the United States. Keen competition and reckless cutting in rates are given as causes of the failure.

Jeweler Owens Hacked the Man He Quarreled With.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., July 30.—Charles Owens, a Waynetown jeweler, quarreled with Dora Scott, a farmer, in a store at Waynetown last night, and, drawing a knife, cut him almost to pieces, hacking off an ear, his nose, and planting twelve deep stabs in his face and breast. Scott is still alive, but is dying. Owens is at large.

An attachment against a Watchcase Factory.

The sheriff Friday received an attachment for $7,861 in favor of N. J. Felix against the property in New York of Haege & Butz watchcase manufacturers, of Union, N. J. The claim of Mr. Felix is on assigned judgments obtained by the Newark Watch Case Material Co. and Glorieux & Woolsey. On Aug. 6, 1891, the former firm obtained a judgment for $4,000 against Haege & Butz and the latter also entered a judgment for $6,200 against them. Execution was not issued owing to the defendants claiming that if they were given sufficient time they would be able to meet the claim in full. Since that time they paid $900 on account of the first-named judgment and $2,200 on the second, and the plaintiffs, fearing that they would not secure the remainder of their claims, secured an attachment against any goods of Haege & Butz that could be found in New York. Last Monday the sheriff had been unable to discover any property.

The defendants' business was established in New York by Adolph Haege who moved to Union six years ago.

The Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. File Two Suits for Heavy Damages Against the Co-operative Manufacturers' Association.

The troubles which have threatened the existence of the National Association of Jobbers in American Watches during the past two weeks were last week eclipsed by two suits for damages of $950,000 brought by the Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co., Canton, O., against the following defendants, constituting the members of the Co-Operative Manufacturers' Association:

American Waltham Watch Co., Bay State Watch Case Co., Brooklyn Watch Case Co., Cheshire Watch Co., Courvoisier-Wilcox Manufacturing Co., Elgin National Watch Co., E. Howard Watch and Clock Co., Illinois Watch Co., Keystone Watch Case Co., Seth Thomas Clock Co., James H. Noyes; Joseph Fahys, Henry F. Cook and George E. Fahys, composing the firm of Joseph Fahys & Co.; George M. Bacon and Joseph M. Bates, formerly composing the firm of Bates & Bacon; Jacob Muhr and Simon Muhr, composing the firm of H. Muhr's Sons; Frank Duhme, Charles Duhme and Robert H. Galbreath ("Robert" being fictitious, his Christian name not being known), formerly composing the firm of Duhme & Co.

One suit is brought under the New York State laws in the New York Supreme Court and the other in the United States Circuit Court under the Interstate law. The complaint in the latter suit reads as follows:

The plaintiff above named complains of the defendants above named and of each of them, and shows to the Court

I.—That at all the times hereinafter mentioned, the plaintiff was and still is a corporation duly created, organized and existing under the laws of the State of Ohio, and engaged in business of manufacturing solid gold, gold filled, coin silver and silverine watch cases throughout all the States of the United States and in foreign countries.

II.—That plaintiff in the above alleged behalf did at such times own and operate an extensive factory at Newport, Kentucky, and subsequently at Canton, Ohio, and maintained and maintains its said concern at great expense in the employment of costly machinery, skilled artists, artisans and workmen, and having the capacity to manufacture and offer for sale in open market 25,000 watch cases per month, on which it could and did, prior to November 16, 1887, as hereinafter set forth, realize a net annual profit of over one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars.

III.—That prior to November 16, 1887, plaintiff had a ready market throughout the United States and Canada for all the goods it could manufacture, and in fact sold all of said goods to a greater number of dealers therein throughout said territory, and thereby fully earned and realized to itself a substantial legitimate profit.

XVIII.—That after the passage of the Act of Congress entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies," approved July 2, 1890, the said defendants entered into an unlawful conspiracy and combination and have ever since continued the same, in restraint of commerce among the several States and with foreign nations and for the purpose of fixing the price of the goods in which they were engaged in the manufacture aforesaid and to make a monopoly on their part of the trade and commerce among the several States and with foreign nations with respect to said watch cases and watch movements, agreed that they would not sell their said commodities to the plaintiff or to any person who purchased the plaintiff's goods.

XIX.—That the said defendants deal with jewelers throughout the whole of the United States and Canada, and their goods are needed by such jewelers and dealers in watches; and that the refusal upon the part of the defendants to furnish to the said jewelers throughout the United States the goods which they manufacture coerced and forced the said jewelers, and the public generally engaged in the business of buying and selling watch cases and watches, into refusing to deal with the plaintiff, and refusing to purchase the watches and watch cases made by the plaintiff and offered by the plaintiff for sale in the several States of the Union and Canada; and that the said acts were done contrary to public policy and in violation of the Act of Congress aforesaid.

XX.—The plaintiff further shows and alleges that the said acts of the defendant were done and performed by them for the purpose of establishing a monopoly in the supply of watches to the public, contrary to the policy of the law and in violation of the statutes of this State and of the United States, and to cut off this plaintiff from any participation in such business, unless this plaintiff would join in said illegal conspiracy, and that the acts of the defendants thereunder and in furtherance thereof were intended to crush competition and to enable the defendants to maintain the prices fixed as they pleased for their commodities with regard only to their private emolument, and contrary to the benefit of the public, and maliciously intending to injure the plaintiff, and to drive it out of business and prevent it from selling its watch cases, and deprive it of any profit therefrom, and with the intention of impoverishing the plaintiff and all its artists, artisans, workmen and employes and their families, who would of necessity be reduced to idleness and beggary.

XXI.—That in consequence of the extended influence and power acquired by the defendants by their combination and conspiracy aforesaid over the trade and over the persons who naturally would buy the plaintiff's watch cases, the defendants forced and prevented such persons from dealing with the plaintiff or purchasing its goods under the threat that if any of the said persons did purchase the plaintiff's goods the said defendants and all others affiliated with them and under their influence would refuse to deal with such offenders, and refuse to give them credit for any goods which they might desire to buy from the persons, firms and corporations composing such combination.

XXIII.—The plaintiff further shows that said combination and conspiracy were effectual, and did prevent a great number of persons who otherwise would have purchased large quantities of plaintiff's goods from purchasing the same, and did effect in fact against the plaintiff a complete boycott and ostracism from the trade supplying watch cases to persons in the several States of the United States of America in foreign nations, and did prevent the lawful and ordinary competition in business which the plaintiff had a right to enjoy.

XXIV.—Whereby the said defendants illegally and maliciously damaged the plaintiff in the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000).

XV.—Wherefore the plaintiff demands judgment under and by virtue of the statute of the United States hereinbefore referred to, for three times the amount of the damages so sustained by it in the premises, to wit, for the sum of four hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Paragraphs 4 to 17 inclusive which are omitted from the above, refer to each of the defendants as being organized under the laws of their various States and amenable under the laws of New York.

The complaint in the action in the New York Supreme Court reads:

I.—That at all the times hereinafter mentioned, the plaintiff was and still is a corporation duly created, organized and existing under the laws of the State of Ohio, and engaged in business of manufacturing solid gold, gold filled, coin silver and silverine watch cases throughout all the States of the United States and in foreign countries.

II.—That plaintiff in the above alleged behalf did at such times own and operate an extensive factory at Newport, Kentucky, and subsequently at Canton, Ohio, and maintained and maintains its said concern at great expense in the employment of costly machinery, skilled artists, artisans and workmen, and having the capacity to manufacture and offer for sale in open market 25,000 watch cases per month, on which it could and did, prior to November 16, 1887, as hereinafter set forth, realize a net annual profit of over one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars.

III.—That prior to November 16, 1887, plaintiff had a ready market throughout the United States and Canada for all the goods it could manufacture, and, in fact, sold all of said goods to a great number of dealers therein throughout said territory, and thereby fully earned and realized to itself a substantial, legitimate profit. * * *

XIX.—That they (the defendant) would not thereafter sell any goods manufactured by them to any person, firm, association whatsoever, who thereafter should buy or sell any goods manufactured by this plaintiff.

Plaintiff is further informed that said defendant, through their agents and servants duly authorized and by said defendants directed, and among which agents and servants was the defendant herein, James H. Noyes, in the city, county and State of New York and elsewhere caused notice of their said agreement or compact to be given to many dealers in watches watch cases and watch movements.

XX.—On information and belief alleges that defendants gave said notices to many of the then and theretofore purchasers and dealers in plaintiff's goods manufactured as aforesaid.

XXI.—That upon receipt of such notice or notices given to them as aforesaid by the defendants, a large number of the then and theretofore purchasers of and dealers in the watch cases manufactured as aforesaid by plaintiff, withdrew their patronage and ceased thereupon entirely to purchase or deal in anywise in plaintiff's goods.

XXII.—And plaintiff alleges on information and belief that after said November 16, 1887, the said defendants did in fact refuse to sell their goods to many of the then purchasers of and dealers in plaintiff's watch cases, and who had offered to buy the goods of the defendants, needed them in their said business of dealing in watches generally, were ready to buy and pay therefor the purchase price thereof, and said defendants stated the reason for their said refusal to sell to be the fact that said dealers also bought and sold and dealt in plaintiff's watches, and furthermore notified them that if they would promise and agree not to buy or sell, or in anywise deal in the goods manufactured by plaintiff, that then, and in that case, and so long as these dealers kept and fulfilled their said promise, they could purchase the goods of defendants or either of them, otherwise not.

XXIII.—Plaintiff now shows and alleges on information and belief that the defendants mentioned in the foregoing allegation of this complaint had, prior to the agreement alleged to have been made on November 16th, 1887, agreed among themselves, and which said agreement has been in operation and effect between them ever since, that they would agree upon and agree to maintain an arbitrary fixed price to the public for all the goods manufactured by them, and in pursuance of said agreement the said defendants had agreed upon an arbitrary price and fixed the same for all the goods manufactured by them.

XXIV.—And plaintiff now shows and alleges that the compact entered into by them on November 16th, 1887, as hereinbefore alleged, was in addition to and furtherance of said prior agreement and was made and entered into for the sole purpose of coercing and compelling this plaintiff to join with them in said first-named agreement.

XXV.—Plaintiff now shows and alleges, on information and belief, that all the acts of defendants hereinbefore mentioned and charged to have been done and performed by them were so done and performed for the purpose of establishing a monopoly in the supply of watches to the public contrary to the policy of the law and in violation of the statutes of this State and of the United States, and to cut off this plaintiff from any participation in such business unless it joined in said illegal and vicious conspiracy and the acts of defendants thereunder in furtherance thereof, as alleged, and to crush competition and enable the defendants to maintain the prices fixed as they pleased by them as aforesaid for their commodities, with regard only to their private emolument and profit, contrary to the benefit of the public; the said defendants, by the said combination, conspiracy and agreements and acts thereunder, maliciously intending to injure this plaintiff and drive it out of business and prevent it from selling its watch cases and deprive it of any profit therefrom and impoverish plaintiff and all its artists, artisans, workmen and employes and their families, who would of necessity be reduced to idleness and beggary.

And that by the extended influence and power acquired by the combination over the trade and over the persons who naturally would buy the plaintiff's watch cases, the defendants forced and prevented such persons from dealing with the plaintiff or purchasing its goods under the threat that if any of the said persons did purchase the plaintiff's goods, the said defendants and all others affiliated with them and under their influence would refuse to deal with such offenders or give them credit for any goods which they might desire to buy from the persons, firms and corporations composing such combination.

XXVI.—Plaintiff now shows that said threats were effectual and did prevent a great number of persons who otherwise would have purchased large quantities of the goods of plaintiff from purchasing the same, and did effect in fact against the plaintiff a complete boycott and ostracism from the trade and did prevent, the lawful and ordinary competition in business which the plaintiff had a right to enjoy.

Whereby said defendants illegally and maliciously damaged the plaintiff in and by the premises in the sum of five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000).

Wherefore plaintiff demands judgment against the above named defendants jointly and severally for the sum of five hundred thousand dollars damages, besides the costs and disbursements of this action.

Paragraphs 4 to 19 omitted from the above complaint referred to each of the defendants being organized under the law of the various States and amenable to the laws of New York.

Col. Winthrop A. Moore, secretary and treasurer of the Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co., was at the Fifth Ave. Hotel, New York, last week, where a CIRCULAR reporter saw him. In speaking of the cause that lead to the present suit he said: "In 1887 the manufacturers held a convention at which an agreement was signed to advance the price of cases 7½ per cent. This agreement lasted until 1885, when the association was formed. Mr. Dueber declined to become a member, saying that it was impossible to enforce the contracts, as too many manufacturers were also jobbers and they would be the only members to reap any advantages. He was finally, however, induced to join. A short time after we discovered that a certain manufacturer was delivering goods in New York at the Canadian prices which were 5 per cent. lower than those agreed upon, and we immediately preferred charges against him. He was tried before the Association, but the matter was smoothed over, the offending manufacturer receiving a coat of whitewash. We at once saw that under the circumstances we had no possibility of meeting competition, and when we received an order for $40,000 worth of cases at less than Association prices from the Rockford Watch Co., we sold them, knowing full well that if the order was taken to New York some other member of the Association would quickly take it. This soon after became known and we were expelled from the organization.

"A few days later we found we were unable to dispose of any of our goods, as a boycott of the most outrageous kind had been placed on our products. Notices had been sent out to the jobbers threatening them with expulsion from the Association if they purchased any Dueber cases. We then had to build up an entirely new trade, opening offices in the various cities, starting drummers on the road and selling direct to the retail trade, which placed us under an enormous expense. It is for damages for this loss of trade, etc., that we are now suing.

"To show that the retail trade support us in our fight against the Association, it may be stated that in 1888 the latter passed a rule forbidding jobbers to sell an Elgin or Waltham movement in any other than an Association case. This of course was aimed at our product, but the retailers refused to submit to this and the order was subsequently rescinded. The Association has always been torn by internal trouble, and at the last meeting I attended, two concerns who are now fighting in the courts over contested patents quarreled with each other until the chairman advised them to leave the room and settle their grievances, which I believe they did in the hall."

Wilber & Oldham, the attorneys for the Dueber Co., have been unable to serve all the defendants, as many of them are out of the city. One New York firm, representing a corporation organized under the laws of another State, refused to accept the summons, on the ground that they were not officially connected with the concern, but on being told that under the circumstances all the goods belonging to the company in this State would be placed in the hands of the sheriff on an attachment, they decided to accept service. Secretary Noyes of the National Association is out of town, as are Jos. Fahys and both members of the firm of Robbins & Appleton. Among the papers that will be submitted for the plaintiff in the suit are all the circulars sent out by Mr. Noyes referring to the expulsion of the Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. from the Association, and a list of the fines inflicted on members who have violated the rules.

Robbins & Appleton who are one of the few firms that have been served with papers in the suit, have placed the matter in the hands of Lawyer Legherd, 58 Wall St., who when seen by a CIRCULAR reporter Monday stated that he had not had time to familiarize himself with the case and could make no statement as to its merits. Another lawyer who was seen stated that in his opinion the plaintiffs had no case to take into court as it was impossible to fix damages.

INTERVIEW WITH PRESIDENT AVERY.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 30.—President Avery, of the Elgin National Watch Co., was called upon by a CIRCULAR correspondent and in answer to inquiries made the following statement: "The trouble with the Dueber Co. began from the date of their violation of their contract with the Jobbers' and the Manufacturers' Associations. Mr. Dueber belonged to an association that co-operated with the Jobbers' Association. He violated a rule of the association regarding uniform discounts and was expelled. Later he was received back, but was again expelled for violation of the same rule,—a rule that governed all members.

"A telegram has been received by us stating that papers have been served on our agent in New York, but beyond this we have no information except such as is contained in the daily press. I have never heard of any threats being made, and there is absolutely no foundation whatever for the charge of conspiracy. If there was a conspiracy the Dueber Co. was a party to it, having been a member of the Manufacturers' Association. The first year the Manufacturers' Association consisted of movement manufacturers and case makers. Members of the Jobbers' Association were to purchase goods only of the Manufacturers' Association, and the manufacturers were to supply goods only to members of the Jobbers' Association. At the expiration of the first year the movement makers withdrew and the case makers organized the Watch Case Makers' Association. The Elgin National Watch Co. co-operates with both associations."

Last Week's Arrivals.

THE CIRCULAR has perfected arrangements for obtaining the names and hotel addresses of all the latest buyers visiting New York, and each day posts in its office, 189 Broadway, a bulletin which every member of the trade is cordially invited to copy.

Handsome improvements have just been completed at the store of W. S. & E. H. Rowe, 91 Grand Ave., New Haven.

Gen. Geo. H. Ford and wife and party of friends sailed Wednesday for Europe on the Majestic. They will be away two months.

C. A. Honold, jeweler, of Waterbury, who has leased the store in Winsted formerly occupied by J. R. Benjamin, jeweler, is expected to take possession in a few days.

R. Ballerstein is building a handsome eight-story building at the corner of Main and Temple Sts., Hartford, and intends to increase his jewelry department one-half.

James J. Grace, head clerk at David Mayer's store, Hartford, is the chairman of the race committee for the big Hartford Wheel Club tournament to take place in September.

Fears are entertained that S. T. Bartram, New Haven, will not recover. His improvement last week was but temporary, and he is now very ill with typhoid malarial fever at Redding, Conn.

Fred W. Mayer, a son of David Mayer, Hartford, is the designer of the handsome club pin adopted by the Columbia Cycle Club. Young Mayer has designed quite a number of handsome pins.

Upon his taking possession of his new store, referred to in the last issue of THE CIRCULAR, Henry Kohn, Hartford, will take into partnership his two sons, Albert M. and Oscar W., the firm being known as Henry Kohn & Sons.

The Seth Thomas Clock Co. sincerely regret the death of a valuable employe, Deacon James M. Miner, who had worked for the company continuously about 44 years. Deacon Miner was a highly respected man, and his funeral was one of the most largely attended of any in Thomaston in years.

The stockholders of the Breckinridge Mfg. Co., Meriden, manufacturers of fine art metal novelties and other goods, met last week and the capital stock was reduced from $40,000 to $10,000 and afterward increased to $30,000.

Hon. Hiram Camp, New Haven, is recovering from the severe prostration following his sudden attack of illness last week. His son-in-law, Col. Geo. M. Harmount, late of Chicago who is at Mr. Camp's home is in a very feeble condition.

O. Z. Pelton, of Pelton Bros. & Co., St. Louis, was the guest of W. J. Miller, Derby, July 28, 29 and 30. Mr. Pelton is one of the pioneers of the silver-plating business in this country, having been engaged in the manufacture of silver-plated goods since 1854.

W. E. Pleadwell and J. E. Camp, of East Bridgeport, have recently taken a part of the old Monumental Bronze factory on Barnum ave., Bridgeport, and will do all kinds of gold, silver and nickel plating. Mr. Pleadwell went to this city in 1880, and has since had charge of the plating in the Holmes & Edwards Silver Co.'s factory. He is a man of wide experience in this line.

The family of ex-secretary F. E. Morgan, of the New Haven Clock Co., are summering at their handsome seaside cottage at Savin Rock. Mr. Morgan's trip to Europe this summer was partly with reference to a new invention nearly perfected pertaining to the clock business in which he is financially interested—an automatic machine for turning clock pinions, the invention of ex-superintendent Lane, of the New Haven Clock Co.

FOSTER & BAILEY.

Trade Gossip.

H. F. Hahn & Co., Chicago are actively engaged mounting diamonds for the fall trade and report their line will be the largest west of New York.

A most attractive line of Swiss watches of various grades is being shown by Sam Stern & Co., successors to S. Eichberg, 39 Maiden Lane, New York. Jewelers desiring this class of goods will find it advantageous to write the firm for prices, etc.

J. J. Cohn, manufacturing jeweler, 31 Maiden Lane, New York, is continually introducing new bargains in silver and gold. Among the most recent is a line of sterling silver match boxes of exclusive design and admirable workmanship, which he sells from $2 each and upward.

Wm. C. Finck, Elizabeth, N. J., official manufacturer of the King's Daughters and other society emblems and badges, illustrates in his advertisement on another page four new souvenir spoons which will undoubtedly enjoy a heavy sale. They are unique and artistic in appearance, excellent in workmanship, and as they are not confined to any particular locality, they are susceptible of universal appreciation.

H. B. Peters, 37 Maiden Lane, New York, is agent for the Republican League U. S., the Four-Leaf Clover, the Blue Hard Enamel regular Harrison button, the horseshoe Cleveland button, Harrison's Grandfather's hat in the tureen, and many other new and taking designs in campaign buttons. These goods are now ready for delivery in any quantity. Look for his advertisement in the next issue of THE CIRCULAR.

On another page John Oscar Ball, assignee of John Mason, New York, invites bids for the entire stock of goods, machinery, fixtures, fittings and furniture of the premises 262 Fifth Ave., New York, which were recently occupied by Mr. Mason. The stock is all new and well selected and the machinery is of the latest construction. This is an exceptional opportunity for a person desiring to enter upon a high-class business.

In these days of progressive advertising when jobbers are vying with each other to issue the most complete catalogues ever distributed, a publication that deserves special mention is that just issued by Benj. Allen & Co., Chicago. As a tool and material catalogue it has no superior. It is a thoroughly revised edition, and illustrates not only the standard tools and watch materials, but also contains a complete list of the newest tools on the market. Months of untiring labor have been spent in its compilation, and no expense has been spared to make it a publication that every jeweler will be glad to receive. Typographically it is perfect. Its 300 pages of fine enamel paper are replete with bright, clearly defined illustrations. The book is handsomely bound in stiff covers of red cloth and will be mailed to any jeweler who sends his business card to Benj. Allen & Co., Chicago, Ill.

When finished the Autumn catalogue of the Gorham Mfg. Co., the beautiful cover of which is illustrated elsewhere in this issue, will be the most complete silverware catalogue ever issued. It will contain over 300 pages 10½x15 inches in dimensions. Being too heavy to be delivered by mail, it will be forwarded to the trade by express. In the production of the volume over 16 tons of fine paper will be utilized. The illustrations, of which there will be about 800 will be in the highest style of engraving including woodcuts, reproductions of pen-and-ink drawings, half tones, photogravures, heliotypes and chromo and plain lithographs. The volume will comprehend a more complete line of silverware than ever before published. The intention of the Gorham Mfg. Co. has been to illustrate not all of the salable goods carried in stock, but a selection of patterns in the different lines of articles produced, so as to give a customer, as far as possible, an idea of the range of styles and prices. The price list is a separate book that will be mailed to the trade, and upon application only. This course has been decided upon to prevent the price list getting into the hands of individuals or firms not entitled to it, as it is the desire of the company to confine the sale of their wares within the legitimate channels of the jewelry and silverware trade. The catalogue will be bound with a heavy paper cover, the front design being printed in chocolate brown color. The preparation of this work has extended over a period of six months. The catalogue, which will be forwarded to the trade only, will be ready for delivery Sept. 1. As advanced copies have not yet been received, a detailed description of the book is deferred.

Jonas, Dorst & Co., Cincinnati, O., are making a specialty of fancy rings; the mountings are all new and pretty.

M. A. Eiseman & Bro., Chicago, have been busy with selections for the Fall trade in preparation for placing men on the road early in August. Mr. Eiseman reports an encouraging increase in better grades of goods.

E. R. Stockwell, manufacturer of badges and medals, 19 John St., New York, is furnishing many designs for athletic badges and buttons, of which he has for years made a specialty. He is prepared to offer suggestions and submit new and original ideas to any one wishing work of this class.

Since the U. S. Government awarded the Elgin Watch Spring Co., Elgin, Ill., the contract for furnishing chronometer springs, that company have been in receipt of a large number of orders from people who reason that a spring able to bear a government test must be perfect in every particular, and consequently the only spring to be used. The springs made by the Elgin Watch Spring Co. are tempered so perfectly that very few of them ever break. F. Sedgwick, president and manager of the company, will be pleased to communicate with the jewelers of the United States.

All jewelers who are not equipped with a complete outfit of rolling mills, lathes, etc., will find that the catalogue published by W. W. Oliver, Buffalo, N. Y., will be of material aid in enabling them to make a selection of the tools and machines that are best adapted for their business. Mr. Oliver's success has been remarkable, and it was for the sole purpose of supplying the large demand, that his new factory at 1483-1485 Niagara St., was erected. Mr. Oliver's lathes and tools have always been sought after by jewelers, by reason of their high standard and their intrinsic worth.

What seems to be an indispensable adjunct of an optician's or jeweler's business is a book of prescription forms which has just been devised and copyrighted by B. H. Blank, who has charge of the optical department of Hammel, Riglander & Co., 35 Maiden Lane, New York. The book contains 250 pages, comprising 750 prescription blanks and duplicates. A portion of the book is set apart for indexing the names of the optical patients. The blanks are provided with abbreviations of all the items entering into a full prescription, and the index and duplicates provide for the prompt filling of future orders. Every optician and every jeweler doing an optical business should have one of these books. They will find the investment of $2.50 a profitable one.

For many years the retail jewelers throughout the country have been confronted with the question, "Will you take old gold and silver in part payment for goods purchased from you?" While it is a source of no small inconvenience to the jeweler to effect a sale in this manner, yet, rather than miss the opportunity of making a sale, his answer is invariably in the affirmative. The consequence is that after a number of such sales are effected the jeweler has a quantity of precious metal on hand that he wishes to convert into cash. Where to dispose of it is an important question. He desires to send it to a house that he feels satisfied will give him full, prompt and accurate returns. The Chicago & Aurora Smelting & Refining Co., Chicago, Ill., capital $2,000,000, have a special department devoted to the refining of gold and silver, and jewelers who have not sent them a trial consignment will find it to their advantage to do so.

An understanding of the art of engraving in connection with watch repairing is looked upon as very important, and the progressive watchmaker of to-day, in fitting himself for the exigencies of his trade, finds it desirable to obtain a practical education in this line. The Chicago Watchmakers' Institute, 1534 and 1535 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill., was established to meet the demand for a general education in the details of watchmaking, engraving and ophthalmology. The instructors having these branches in charge are skilful men and possess the rare faculty of readily imparting their knowledge to others. The art of engraving is beginning to receive the attention of women, as it opens a field which makes them very desirable assistants in a jewelry store, where they can act as saleswoman and engraver. The Institute is growing in size every day, and those who contemplate taking a course are invited to send for a prospectus.

Notes from the French Capital.

THE 14TH OF JULY CELEBRATION, AND ITS ACCOMPANYING JEWELRY—THE JEWELLED ADORNMENTS OF LADIES'HATS—NEW STYLES IN JEWELLED PURSES—KNIFE HANDLES AND FACE-À-MAINS.

PARIS, France, July 21.—In spite of threatening weather, the National Fête has been very brilliant. Jewelry of a revolutionist style has been worn as extensively as on previous anniversaries of the fall of the Bastille. Phrygian caps, tricolored cockades, lanterns, etc., in enameled silver have met with their usual success. Hair-combs worn by patriotic females on the 14th of July were topped with three crescents overlapping each other, each one of these crescents being formed of three rows of imitation stone, rubies, strass and sapphires. Young females with a Franco-Russian turn of mind replaced the top tricolored crescent by the Muscovite arms formed of a gathering of imitation topazes and black diamonds. The combhead, moving on a hinge, could be placed in any position, according to the style of hairdressing adopted by the wearer.

Ladies' hats, with brims partly rolled up, are adorned in front with a large butterfly, which is formed of thin wires, either gilt or deeply oxidized, worked like fine tulle, exhibiting here and there gatherings of colored stones on the displayed wings. The body of the insect consists of well-opposed striae of colored stones and imitation diamonds. The wings are bordered with small fancy stones of a bluish color, apparently sprinkled with diamond-dust. The antennae are made of a succession of imitation brilliants.

Some purses, consisting of woven gold or platina, are adorned with lozenges of tiny pearls and turquoises. Rather long fringes, strung with turquoises and pearls, hang gracefully from these purses, worn in a chatelaine style. The milky blue stone is associated with pearls in all kinds of ways, chiefly in close gatherings, being then placed alternately. Watch cases, puff-boxes, scent bottle lids, umbrella tops, etc., are prettily decorated with these apparently white and blue seeds. In some instances the turquoises form a monogram on a ground of pearls, and vice versa.

Knife handles in the shape of a toyish pistol handle are decorated in enamel, showing flowers, insects, ornaments and figures in pretty and delicate colors on an opaque white ground. Sets of 12, 18 and 24 pieces exhibit as many different motifs. The steel or silver blades are adorned with gold inlayings of a very light and graceful character.

Face-à-mains are more fashionable than ever. Ladies who think that they have fine, aristocratic hands are convinced rightly that the best way to attract attention to them is to handle an elegant face-à-main. Some of these articles are handsomely decorated. I have seen one the handle of which is in pierced chased gold with dainty cameos set wide apart in it and precious stones glittering here and there. JASEUR.

Fashions in Summer Jewelry.

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

Iridescent single petaled roses are among the new brooches.

Large turquoise brooches in shape like fleur-de-lis are new.

"The Baby's Friend" is a little silver box to hold baby's safety pins.

Frosted silver has taken a fresh impetus, probably because it looks cool.

Silver bracelets in heavy links and corresponding to popular styles in gold are produced in numbers.

Smoking sets of frosted silver are ornamented with flowers in enamel. The fancy is for such delicate blossoms as the May flower.

Rings have scroll work set obliquely in small diamonds, with a large colored pearl in the center. This is a new and very pretty fashion.

Conch shell hearts, double and single, mingled with pearls, make the prettiest of new summer pins, and are by no means expensive.

Large oval sleevebuttons of white lusterless enamel are powdered with tiny gold disks. This is one of the handsomest of the new designs.

Oblong brooches containing the name of Jeanne, Ida, Lucie and the like, in a lot of ornamental wreathing, is an English fancy that has come in.

There is some pretty new gold jewelry. It is floral with a fine rough finish, if the term may be allowed, and rich in color. There is an attractive lightness about it.

Men's loosely-worn watch chains in some instances have the different sections treated so as to give coppery tints, yellow, steel, blue, and as a novelty are very pretty.

Silver bead necklaces are in demand for summer wear. They are in single strands; but prettier and more desirable are collarets of three or more strands and small in size.

The moonstone is in abeyance, but several pretty new fancies are found in this stone. One is a flower brooch in which moonstones are shaped into the petals. The same form appears in red semi-precious stones.

One of the prettiest new silver hairpins has an enameled pansy as its ornament. The petals of the flower are raised and charmingly suggest the natural flower, but only in form. Otherwise the petals are of pale blue enamel with ornamental silver tracery.

Brooches consisting of sprays of fine enamel flowers variously tinted and with a jeweled center are seen. That is to say the different flowers on one stem shaped like a forget-me-not, shade into pinks, blues and purples. They are prettier than solid sprays of one color. ELSIE BEE.

Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man, but for one man who can stand prosperity there are a hundred who will stand adversity.—Jane Carlyle.

IDEA XXXV.

AN appropriate companion piece to the design given last week is shown by C. F. Gillman & Co., Chicago, in another window, entitled "In Ruth's Cradle." The win-aside, disclosing a beautiful life-size wax doll reposing in a handsome cradle, with a picture of ex-President Cleveland suspended at the rear. The cradle is kept rocking by

COMPANION DESIGN TO THE GRANDFATHER'S HAT.

dow is handsomely draped with United States flags, the curtains at the front being drawn means of a cord passing into the store. The display is chiefly of babies' articles and silverware. Either of these designs, or both together as companion pieces, will prove exceedingly attractive and be timely and appropriate.

"An attractive window display doubles trade," says Mr. Gillman.

In an uptown jeweler's window is attached to each article the description and name of its stones as well as the price. The passers-by stand at the window until they have read all of these cards. It evidently is a good way to attract attention to one's wares.

The Iron Pen.

Made from a fetter of Bonnavard, the Prisoner of Chillon, the handle of wood from the Frigate Constitution, and bound with a circlet of gold, inset with three precious stones from Siberia, Ceylon and Maine.

I thought the Pen would arise
From the casket where it lies—
Of itself would arise and write
My thanks and my surprise.

When you gave it me under the pines,
I dreamed these gems from the mines
Of Siberia, Ceylon and Maine
Would glimmer as thoughts in the lines.

That this iron link from the chain
Of Bonnavard might retain
Some verse of the Poet who sang,
Of the prisoner and his pain;

That this wood from the frigate's mast
Might write me a rhyme at last,
As it used to write on the sky
The song of the sea and the blast.

But motionless as I wait
Like a bishop lying in state
Lies the Pen with its mitre of gold
And its jewels inviolate.

Then must I speak, and say
That the light of that summer day
In the garden under the pines
Shall not fade and pass away.

I shall see you standing there
Caressed by the fragrant air,
With the shadow on your face,
And the sunshine on your hair.

I shall hear the sweet low tone
Of a voice before unknown,
Saying, "This is from me to you—
From me, and to you alone."

And in words not idle and vain
I shall answer and thank you again
For the gift, and the grace of the gift,
O beautiful Helen of Maine!

And forever this gift will be
As a blessing from you to me,
As a drop of the dew of your youth
On the leaves of an aged tree.

—Long fellow.

Workshop Notes.

To Tighten a Cannon Pinion.—The best way to tighten a cannon pinion is to take the pinion and place it between two files of medium fine cut, placing one file on the edge of the bench and the other in the hand. Place the center pinion between the files and run the file in the hand in a parallel direction with the stationary file over the pinion. This raises a little burr on the pinion, and does not bind it, and is sufficient to hold the cannon. Cutting around with the cutting pliers is apt to bend, if not break the pinion, beside spoiling both pinion and cannon in a little while if the watch is set often.

Cylinder Half-shell Foul of Wheel.—In the repair of Swiss watches, the cylinder half-shell will sometimes be found foul of the wheel. In this case, it will sometimes be found possible to raise the cylinder sufficiently by stoning down the brass setting of the lower cylinder end piece, where there is much space between it and the jewel holes; at the same time it should not touch it, as in that case the oil would be prevented from entering the reservoir, and the pivot would run dry speedily. If this method is not available, the cylinder notch can be lowered by either a ruby file or steel polisher and oilstone chest, resting the balance on either a piece of pitch or cork while doing so.

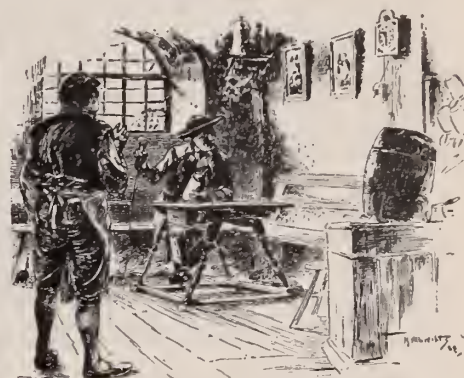

New Joints on Locket and Bracelets.—Among the large variety of repairs which a jeweler is called upon to make, there is one that is often done in a most slovenly and unworkmanlike manner to wit, repairing a broken joint to a soft-solder back plated locket or bracelet. A very presentable job, however, may be done in cases where hard soldering a new joint is entirely out of the question, and a description may be interesting to some of the readers of these Workshop Notes. File a slot in the rim of the locket or end of the bracelet directly over the broken section of joint, a trifle wider than the old joint, and parallel with the end of the remaining piece, and undercut it; then take a wide pin tongue, joint and seat and level the rest or plate, so that it will just slide into the undercut slot and be tight and firm when in position and in line. In place of a pin tongue, a piece of joint wire may be hard-soldered to a plate; blow a little soft solder under the plate, and finish on outside with burnisher and buff. This makes a joint as strong as though hard-soldered, and if care is taken, the soft solder will not be detected. It is well to have the plate to which the joint is soldered a little wider than the rim of the locket, and then cut it out on the inside with the graver. So many articles have been written, justly condemning the indiscriminate use of soft solder, and holding such work up to ridicule, that we are apt to consider all soft solders as botchwork; but such is not the case. Every workman knows that there are cases where the use of this much-despised material is indispensable, and although the "rejected stone" may not become "the head of the corner," still it occupies an important place and it is possible to do a fine job with soft solder.

Poor cupid thinks the times are hard.
He's glum as glum can be.
I saw the boy not long ago,— Lamenting loud was he.
He says his darts are costing more
Than e'er they did of old;
For, now, to make them kill he has
To have them tipped with gold.

Compensated Pendulum of Pine Wood and Zinc.

It is well known that ordinary regulators, the pendulum rod of which consists for its greatest length of pine wood, are very correct in their rate, although they do not have a compensation device. This is due to the small linear expansion of pine wood, its coefficient being only 0.004. But the humidity of the air is a far greater factor in the employment of pine wood pendulum rods, as it extends them to an under extent, while dryness contracts them. In order to counteract the influence of this latter factor, the rods are for a while boiled in linseed oil, and after this, only the extremely small influence of the temperature is to be contended with. To neutralize even this small deviation, a French watchmaker devised a compensated pendulum the rod of which is of pine wood as far down as the bob, and is compensated by short zinc rods. The pendulum was shown at the Paris Exposition and is gotten up as follows:

The pendulum rod P, Fig. 1, was first immersed in linseed oil for six months, and then boiled in it for a time. This treatment fills the innermost pores of the wood with oil, and makes it thoroughly insensible against any influence of the humidity of the air. The experiments made with such wood result in showing that also the coefficient of linear expansion has become less, now being only 0.008, therefore equal to that of glass or platinum. A piece of zinc, weighing 5 kilogrammes (11 pounds) serves as bob. It is of a rhomboidal shape, as shown in Fig. 2. This pendulum bob L is firmly united with two zinc rods aa' , which are secured by nuts $m m', n n'$ to a brass plate M of similar rhomboidal shape. The lower part S of the pendulum rod passes freely through the pendulum bob L but is firmly united to the brass plate M by means of two nuts, which at the same time serve for timing the clock. The length of the zinc rods a, a' , is calculated according to the coefficient of linear expansion, and is naturally very small. The manner of operating this compensation is very simple, as by increasing temperature the center of gravity of the bob L is raised just as much by the extension of the zinc rods aa' , as it is depressed by the extension of the wooden pendulum rod P.

According to the statement of the inventor, the daily variation of the clock with such a pendulum did not go beyond 0.12 second, although the clock movement for which it was used was a very inferior kind. Further experiments with precisely worked seconds regulators might be instituted to decide on the practical value of the invention.

New Saw Frame.

THE hitherto customary saw frames for watchmakers, jewelers, engravers, etc., are open to the objection that the cut in straight line corresponds only to the width of the frame, and when this is reached the sawing must be stopped. The matter is aggravated if it is necessary to saw in an oblique direction into a broad sheet. This objection becomes almost a nuisance if the operator is compelled to saw several long strips. If he uses a larger saw frame he is not able to direct the saw with that steadiness required on account of the greater weight of the frame.

A German inventor has devised and obtained in Germany a patent whose object is to correct these objections. The inventor describes the instrument as follows: As will be seen from accompanying cut, I attained my purpose simply by making the two points of fastening $B B'$ so that they can be revolved around their axes. The other two opposite ends $A A'$ of the saw frame are perforated and the fastenings furnished with pivots, of which the upper one is visible at C. By a small washer, laid under the pin the clamp B is fastened in such a manner in A, that it will revolve around the pivot C. To have the similar arrangement at the lower end of the bow, it is furnished with a square hole D, into which the end of the clamp pivot reaches, so that the washer and cross pin may be introduced.

It is hardly necessary for THE CIRCULAR to point out to its readers the practical part of this saw frame. By simply turning the clamps B B the saw may be turned into any desired direction to suit all kinds of cuts, straight, oblique, circular, etc.

TWO JOKES.

The following witticism appeared in Judge of July 30:

"Isn't Mrs. Cabbage troubled with strabismus?"

"Not that I know of, but she is awfully cross-eyed."

And the following appeared in THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR of June 22:

"That's a pretty bad case of convergent strabismus, over yonder."

"I think its rather a bad case of squint."

They are more or less alike.

Gems in the High Priest's Breastplate.*

TWELVE stones, supposed to be cut either in cylinders or half-cylinders, with the names of the children of Israel engraved upon them, filled the breastplate of the High Priest. If arranged according to age, the names would occur in the following order :

Ruben, Simeon, Levi,
Judah, Dan, Naphtali,
Gad, Asher, Issachar, Zebulon, Joseph, Benjamin.
Four in each row, and three rows, the gems were :

Sardius, Topaz, Carbuncle,
Emerald, Sapphire, Diamond,
Ligure, Agate, Amethyst,
Beryl, Onyx, Jasper.

In John's vision of the New Jerusalem, surrounded by a wall with twelve foundations, having in them the names of the apostles, the foundations were of jasper, chalcedony, emerald, sardonyx, sardius, chrysolite, beryl, topaz, chrysoprasus, jacinth and amethyst; somewhat different in order and names from those of the breastplate. The first stone in the breastplate, sardius, or sard, was supposed to be first discovered at Sardis, capital of Lydia, a place made famous by Cræsus and by Solon.

The word sard is used in Ezekiel 28, in reference to the prince of Tyrus: "Every precious stone was thy covering, the sardius, topaz, and the diamond, the beryl, the onyx, and the jasper, the sapphire, the emerald, and the carbuncle, and gold," the same kind of stones as the breastplate, excepting the third row.

The locality of the topaz was an island in the Red Sea that had the characteristic of being almost always covered with fog, and consequently hard to find. Our topaz is supposed to have been unknown to the ancients, and this was presumably chrysolite or peridot. * * * The word topaz is used more frequently in the Bible than chrysolite, which is used perhaps only once. "The topaz of Ethiopia shall not equal" wisdom.

The word carbuncle is now applied to a garnet of any shade of red, when cut en cabochon, with a smooth, convex surface and a back either flat or hollowed. Whether the gem used in the breastplate was garnet or not, it evidently was a "flashing stone" or, as in Isaiah, "gates of carbuncles;" literally, "glowing of fire." Pliny, doubtless, applied the name carbunculus to all deep red colored stones, and he also describes a vessel holding a pint, made of carbuncle, the garnet of India.

The ancients used the sapphire mounted in a partially rough state, the surface being polished but not cut. Sapphire of the Old Testament is supposed to be the lapis-lazuli, which was a favorite stone with the ancients.

Many ornaments from the time of the Pharaohs, and inscribed cylinders, now in the British Museum, are made from this mineral. Moses saw a pavement of sapphire when the Lord gave him the tables of stone. And in Lamentations, Zion bewailing her pitiful state, said: "their polishing was of sapphire" Ezekiel 1: "The likeness of a throne, as the appearance of a sapphire stone." Isaiah 54: "O, thou afflicted, tossed with tempest, and not comforted, behold I will lay thy stones with fair colors, and lay thy foundations with sapphires." Not lapis-lazuli? Why not? It is blue.

The diamond not only occurred in the breastplate, but Jeremiah tells us, "The sin of Judah is written with a pen of iron, and the point of a diamond." The jahalon was regarded as something precious by the old Jewish doctors. Pliny mentions the adamas stone as occurring in six varieties, the most remarkable being the Indian and Arabian. The mode of cutting and polishing the diamond was not discovered until 1476. Owing to its great hardness, it was supposed that no method was known of polishing, much less engraving letters upon it when the breastplate was made, yet each stone bore the name of one of the tribes. How could the name of Naphtali be engraved on the diamond? If not the diamond, could it have been the Cingalese variety of zircon, called matura diamond? Was it quartz crystal? Zircon of the present day is bleached and sold for diamonds. If the word is properly translated, the Lord having given directions to Moses concerning the garments of the High Priest, would have instructed him as to the means of engraving. Diamonds set in gold and unpolished have been handed down from the middle ages. Just what stone in modern times is or was the ligure, I am unable to say. It was, however, a hard, transparent gem, and not mentioned anywhere in the Bible except as occurring in Aaron's breastplate. A variegated chalcedony of the quartz family was found on the banks of the river Achates, in Sicily, hence the name of agate, which occurs in rounded nodules lying loose on the ground or in veins in trap rocks. Isaiah mentions "windows of agate;" Ezekiel, of "coral and agate," in the wares of the merchant of Syria.

The chemical symbol, Si O₂, silicon and oxygen, stands for the composition of the large family of quartz, of which amethyst is a member. The varieties known are aquamarine and golden beryl. The finest gem engraving of the ancient Greeks and Romans was on the beryl. Daniel in his vision saw a man with a body of beryl standing beside a river. Onyx, so called from the fancied resemblance to the finger nail, white at the root and flesh-colored above it, is a kind of agate, having the colors arranged in horizontal layers instead of curving bands. The typical colors are brown and white. Should the colors be red or brown with white, it is a sardonyx. The black in onyx is commonly produced by an artificial stain of carbonized matter. According to Job, wisdom can not be compared with precious onyx. The last and twelfth stone is the jasper. The wall and first foundation of the new Jerusalem, as seen by John, was made of it. "And he that sat upon the throne was, to look upon, like a jasper and sardius stone" (Revelation 4). "Having the glory of God and her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone clear as crystal" (Revelation 21).

Many of the arrow heads made by our Indians are of jasper—a dull, opaque variety of quartz, colored by iron red, yellow and brown, more rarely green. There is a striped variety; in another the colors are arranged in concentric zones; in another pictured ruins may be imagined; while porcelain jasper is simply baked clay. It is clearly evident that the jasper of the ancients was a different mineral from that known by that name: "clear as crystal," or according to classical writers, translucent. This cannot be said of jasper. Theirs may probably have been a green chalcedony, now known as chrysoptase. The breast-plate of judgment was made like the ephod, of cunning work of gold, and purple and scarlet fine twined linen. The stones were set in gold and the chains at the ends of pure gold. In the second chapter of Genesis we read of the creation of man, the garden of Eden, and of a river flowing out of the garden which parted, forming four streams, one of which flowed through a land of much gold. Comparing this with the placer gold mines in the pliocene rivers of California, we say surely geology and the Bible agree.

Vase Presented to the Queen.

THREE weeks ago the Venetian vase here illustrated was presented to Queen Victoria by Dr. Salvati and the Italian artists of London. The work of art was made by the doctor's artists at Olympia. The vase is two feet, six inches high, and is a perfect marvel in the art of fashioning and coloring glass. Top and base are of opal color graduating to nearly white. The gilt crown terminates in opal points, the band being studded with imitation precious stones in their natural colors. The winged sea-horses are of pale ruby color, decreasing in shade toward the tails to nearly white, while the manes, tails and hoofs are slightly gilt.

Pale green glass is the mode. It is of every sort. Large flower-shaped bowls are mounted on brass and are drawn wheelbarrow style. Between the handles of the barrow is a branching glass design for flowers.

Mosaic Work.

MOSAIC work is a species of inlaid work, by which a design is produced by joining together small surfaces of variously-colored substances. Work of this kind is of great antiquity, and it is believed to have had its origin in Asia. In the book of Esther mention is made of a "pavement of red and blue, and white and black marble" in the court of the garden of King Ahasuerus; this was without doubt a pavement of mosaic work. In Greece, during the time of Alexander, mosaic pavements made with variously-colored marble were among the sumptuous decorations of the period. These were for the most part geometric in design; but Pliny mentions a celebrated work of Sosos of Pergamos—the "Unswept Hall." This was a pavement of inlaid work, representing the crumbs and fragments left on the floor after the banquet. The art was carried from Greece by workmen to Rome, where it was called opus musivum and acquired universal popularity, and soon came to be applied, not only to floors, but also to wall and ceilings. In Italy, and in most of the countries occupied by the Romans, many floors ornamented with mosaic work have been found among old ruins. They consist generally of a centre-piece, frequently of human beings or animals, with a border or frame of a regular pattern. The different parts of which the mosaic is formed consist of cubes of different colored stones or earthenware, cemented together.

Some exquisite specimens of this kind of mosaic work have been found at Pompeii. One of the finest examples found is supposed to represent the battle of Issus, and was found in 1831 in the Casa del Fauno. In the fifth century, when the arts and sciences were driven from Italy, the art of mosaic work was preserved by the Byzantine Greeks, and was restored to Greece in the thirteenth century. It attained its highest perfection at the beginning of the 17th century, when Clement VIII. had the whole of the interior of the dome of St. Peter's ornamented with mosaic work. Giambattista Calandra improved mosaic by the introduction of a new cement. He and other artists who followed after him employed the art for copying original paintings by celebrated artists. One of the great advantages of this kind of work is its wonderful powers of preservation, by which many of these paintings are represented in all their original freshness and beauty. Guerrino's "Martyrdom of St. Petronilla" and Domenichino's "Communion of the Dying St. Jerome" were thus preserved.

A school for mosaic was founded at the beginning of the 18th century in Rome, by Peter Paul, of Christopheris, and many of his pupils carried the art to a high degree of excellence. In modern times two kinds of mosaic are particularly famous—the Roman and the Florentine. In Roman mosaic, the pictures are formed by joining very small pieces of stone, which gives greater variety, and facilitates the representation of large paintings. In the Florentine style, the mosaic is made of large pieces of stone, and is consequently more troublesome, and only adapted for small paintings. The Italians call mosaic work in wood lanzia or tarsia; the French marqueterie. In the most costly mosaics, precious stones have been cut to furnish materials; but in common works of this art, enamels of different colors, manufactured for the purpose, are the materials employed.

The Rambler's Notes.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

THE showrooms of Hinrichs & Co., 29 Park Place, New York, are rapidly being filled with imported specialties from the various art centers of Europe which are especially adapted to the jewelry trade, and the prices quoted leave no reason why every jeweler should not have this class of goods represented in his stock.

Pink teas continue to be very popular among society circles all over the country. Lazarus & Rozenfeld, 60-62 Murray St., New York, have in stock a most varied assortment of cups and saucers of new designs which were imported to meet the demand occasioned by this fad.

The danger of ruining table cloths and furniture while filling a lamp has been obviated by an invention just introduced by Craighead & Wilcox, 33 Barclay St., New York. It consists of a patent optical indicator which notifies one the moment the font is full. The indicator is simple in construction, cannot get out of order and is always reliable. The company will supply lamps with this valuable attachment at an additional cost of $1.50 per dozen.

Present indications show that green is going to be a fashionable color this season, and to meet the demand that will naturally arise, L. J. Glaenger & Co., 80 Chambers St., New York, have imported an extensive line of green-tinted glass bouquet holders and ornaments having bright gold flowers applied to their exterior surfaces. The ornaments are shown in many odd and original shapes, and will undoubtedly enjoy a large sale.

THE RAMBLER.

In France it is chiefly at Sainte-Genevieve, Audeville, Corbeil-Cerf, Dèluge, Coudray and in the outskirts of Beauvais and Mèru that the first preparations are given to the fan; at Ste. Genevieve the bone pearl and ivory are cut; at Petit-Fercourt and Andecourte, pearl and wood of the isles; at Deluge and Corbeil-Cerf, pear, apple and beam tree wood; at Bossière, bone; at Paris, shell. The leaf is nearly always made at Paris, and the mounting of the fan operated. Fans have only been made in Spain for the last sixty or seventy years, chiefly at Madrid, Barcelona, Valencia Malaga, Cadiz. We know how cleverly the Spaniards handle this toy, and what grace it gives to those who use it with judgment.

In China, Canton and E-Moui make most fans, but they are made and sold in every country, as this trinket is part of the national costume.

Diamond Mining at Bloemhof.

AT BLOEMHOF, in the Transvaal, the ruins of what appears to have been an extensive diamond mine have been accidentally discovered. The natives around have no traditions regarding the spot, and it appears to have been worked at a period and by a people of whom we have no record. As is the case of other old mines I have mentioned, work seems to have been stopped suddenly, the shaft filled with debris and other means taken to hide the site. From the fact that almost perfect skeletons have been found in the workings, the supposition has been excited that the shaft was hurriedly filled while the miners were at work beneath. The tools and implements found are primitive enough, but the iron is of excellent quality and well-tempered. A good many small diamonds have been found in this debris with which the shaft was filled.

before the expiration of his expectancy will not affect the validity of the policy, or the right to recover the whole amount thereof. A firm insured their debtor, a healthy man of forty-two years, in the sum of $3,000 to protect a debt of about $100. His expectancy of life, according to the Carlisle tables, was twenty-six years and the assessments and annual dues during such time would have amounted, together with interest to $4,336.31. This was not a gambling transaction, and the creditors were entitled to the full amount of the policy, though the assured died within a few years.—Ulrich v. Reinoehl, Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

S. F. Merritt, manufacturer of eye-glass chains, Springfield, Mass., is just now engaged in taking account of stock. He expects a good Fall trade, especially in his new Japanese chains, and also in his regular line of rolled plate vest chains, which are steadily gaining the confidence of the trade.

A CHARACTERISTIC WHIST TROPHY.

THE Hamilton Club Whist Trophy manufactured by Bailey, Banks & Biddle, of Philadelphia, and recently on exhibition in the store of the Whiting Mfg. Co., New York, is entirely original in design and shows the versatility of the modern chaser to advantage. The cup is eleven and one half inches in height and has a diameter across the top of twelve inches. The decorations which are singularly appropriate, were all chased by hand and are of an exceedingly artistic order.

Rising from a base about eight inches in diameter is a column or stem, the ornamentation of which gives the key to the motive of its use. Here, gathered around the stem, are the four kings of a pack of playing cards. Above them in floriated scrolls, which, like the remainder of the decoration, are in low relief, the characters which give the same to the four suits, diamonds, hearts, spades and clubs, ingeniously introduced in place of flowers and leaves.

The cup may also be used as a receptacle for flowers or fruits, or as a center-piece for the banquet table.

amid all those picturesque surroundings of eastern royal life, would be, I think, the various Toshakhanas or treasure chambers of the Indian courts.

Some of the finest gems in the world are still to be seen in these Toshakhanas of the peninsula, where they are greatly prized and carefully guarded. Many of the best pearls from Ormuz or Ceylon, and the choicest pigeon blood rubies from Burmah; emeralds of extraordinary size, carved with long inscriptions in Persian, Arabic and Sanskrit, with delicate and costly enamels, after the style of the master art of Jeypore, were stored in that royal collection which I inspected at Baroda of Guzarat. There were swords, three whose hilts alone were worth a large estate, so richly were they crusted with costly stones, and the

TO THE TRADE:

The temporary stagnation in the manufacturing districts throughout Europe for the past six months has been productive in our securing remarkable values for the Fall and Holiday Season. Many of the vast and extensive potteries preferred orders rather than close down their shops, while the smaller manufacturers strained their inventive genius to the utmost and have made their prices to suit American demands.

Our Art department is full of original, quaint, choice and inexpensive objects of Art. The Standard Royal Wares are fully represented in our Bric-a-Brac department. Considerable attention has been devoted in getting up novelties to retail at popular prices, and we shall show this season exceptionally good values in this particular line. We propose to give you the benefit of the advantages obtained, and trust you will favor us with a call when in the city.

Silverware in America

PART X. FRANK W. SMITH; J. F. FRADLEY & CO.; LUDWIG, REDLICH & CO.

TRADE MARK.
STERLING $\frac{925}{1000}$

THE pretty little town of Gardner, Mass., embraces among its industries, in addition to the great chair factories of the Heywoods and others, a thriving silverware manufactory, of which Frank W. Smith is the proprietor. Mr. Smith commenced business in Gardner about six years ago, having had a previous experience of nearly twenty years in the silverware line. He constructed a handsome and substantial brick building 40x60 feet, three stories in height, put in the latest improved machinery, and secured the services of some of the best artisans in the country. His productions immediately took rank among the finest in point of design and finish, and a rapid growth in business was the result. Mr. Smith's factory turned out its full share of designs in souvenir spoons, adding to its reputation as a producer of artistic flat-ware.

In hollow-ware a very large assortment is made, from the smallest tray or bon-bon, up to the large prize or presentation pieces, the finest hand-work of this class being produced. Mr. Smith has produced twenty-one different patterns in flat-ware, of which the best known are the "Baronial," "Lotus," "Cellini," "Earl" and "Bizarre."

His aim has been to produce original designs unsurpassed in finish. His success has been such that he has found it necessary to enlarge his factory and he has nearly completed an addition of brick, 40x60 feet, which will give him a building 40x120 feet, three stories in height. New machinery will be put in, and by the Fall he will have one of the finest and best equipped factories of its class in the country, and it is expected that the output will be nearly doubled. Mr. Smith uses only Government assay silver and makes but one quality of goods, which he is particular to have up to the standard for sterling, namely, $\frac{925}{1000}$ fine.

In 1868, J. F. Fradley, then a young man, who had completed his apprenticeship as chaser in the silverware factory of Wood & Hughes, opened a small workshop in the Gilsey Building corner of Broadway, and Cortlandt St., and began doing chasing for the trade. At first his only help consisted of one small boy, but as his ability became known and his business increased he kept adding to his staff until between twenty-five and thirty chasers were employed.

In 1870 Mr. Fradley decided that if his work was so attractive for others it would be more so on goods manufactured by himself, and he accordingly opened a small factory at 68 Nassau St., for the production of gold-headed canes which at that time were very popular. The venture proved a success from the start, and in 1873 he moved his office and factory to 18 John St., and added all kinds of silver novelties to his productions. The next move a few years later was to 21 John St. Subsequently the office was moved to 23 John St., and the factory to the southwest corner of Pearl and Frankfort Sts., where it is now located. The whole top floor, which receives light from three sides and several skylights, is occupied by the firm, together with the basement, where the rollers and heavy stamping machinery are operated. The firm has always been quick to adopt any practical improvements in machinery which would lower the prices of goods to the retailer, and as a result the factory is one of the best equipped of its kind in the city.

The silverware produced by the firm shows the result of artistic workmanship, and to secure the latest novelties, Mr. Fradley takes annual trips to Europe. The mounted cane branch of the firm's business is still one of the largest in the city and the cane factory at 78 Centre St., where all the sticks are turned and prepared for the mountings, has a most complete equipment of machinery. The office of the firm was moved to Silversmiths' Hall, Union Square, New York, last May. Some years ago Mr. Fradley admitted into partnership D. P. Mygatt, a young man who had been in his employ several years, and two years ago F. M. Matthews, John Blackwell and George Fradley were also admitted to the firm.

One year and seven months ago the firm of Ludwig, Redlich & Co. was organized and a small office and factory opened at 247 Centre

TRADE MARK

St., New York, where, with a force of eight men, the entire business of the concern was transacted. The members of the firm were well known in trade, both having been identified with it for many years. Adolph Ludwig had for nine years previous been an expert designer of silverware for Geo. W. Shiebler, now the Geo. W. Shiebler Co., and his products had commanded admiration wherever shown. A. Alec. Redlich, his partner, had spent the greater portion of his life in the diamond business, and had an extended acquaintance in the retail trade. A few months after the firm started, an office was opened at 45 Maiden Lane, where the goods were shown. Last May, the rapidly increasing business necessitated larger show rooms, and the office now occupied by the firm in Silversmiths' Hall, Union Square, New York, was taken and fitted in an attractive manner. A month later the factory was moved from Centre St. to 351 and 353 Jay St., Brooklyn, where 6,250 square feet of space is now occupied by the machinery of the concern, and in the busy season 100 hands are employed.

The trade mark of the firm,—a ferocious appearing swimming lion—was recently adopted and will hereafter be seen on all their goods. Among the products that the firm has introduced with much success during its short existence is the Rusticana line of spoons, made to represent various flowers, the handles being the branches and twigs, and the bowls the leaves. The ornamentations of the table ware of the house consists principally of applied work and is exceed Arrested for Fraud.

ROCHESTER N. Y., Aug. 3.—Ernst Vahl, a watch repairer and jeweler, who kept a small shop at 356 Joseph St. has been arrested on a warrant sworn out by Morris Samuels, the pawnbroker. Mr. Samuels alleged that Vahl had appropriated six watches which had been left with him to repair by Mr. Samuels. Vahl was arraigned in the police court and released on his own recognizance and immediately left the city. Vahl is said to be the son of a very wealthy German jeweler in Berlin. He has been a resident of Rochester for about three years. Whether he took the watches and jewelry of other people as well as the chronometers which Mr. Samuels is mourning the loss of, is not known. The police have notified other cities and will endeavor to bring back Mr. Vahl. He received a large remittance from his father on the last day he was seen in Rochester.

Suspected Diamond Thieves Arrested.

NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 3.—Two middle-aged men were arrested here this week on the charge of being diamond thieves. They had many thousand dollars' worth of precious stones in their possession, which they were endeavoring to sell to local jewelers. The men protested their innocence and gave their names as Jacob and Barnard Scheer, jewelers, at 225 Madison St., New York.

They claimed to be visiting relatives in the Jewish colony at Chesterfield, seven miles south of here. They were released and left town.

A Jeweler Burned Out.

DARDANELLE, Ark., Aug. 5.—F. V. Whittlesey, jeweler, of this place, was burned out this week, causing a loss of $2,000 on stock and building with an insurance of $1,000. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

Arrested for Trying to Evade the Custom Laws.

Ignatius Wieder, 28 years of age, was for a few months and up to six weeks ago a jeweler in Piccadilly Circus, London. He secured a quantity of diamonds from large firms on memorandum, pawned them and fled to this country. Two weeks ago New York police received word that Wieder had cabled to England under the name of Blumenthal directing that his baggage be sent here in care of a Wall St. custom-house broker. In the mean time Wieder had been traced to 632 E. 9th St., and when he left there last Tuesday and went to the custom-house to see about his goods he was arrested.

He Wanted to be a Blood.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 2.—Charles Findley, 19 years old, son of the late Thomas Findley, once State Treasurer of California, was arrested this morning upon two charges of obtaining goods under false pretenses. He secured diamonds valued at $220 from Hammersmith & Field by representing that he was Clement Tobin, son of Robert Tobin, of the Hibernia Bank. The young man freely confesses his guilt and says his desire to be a "blood" impelled him to commit crime.

The Seth Thomas Clock Co. Under a New Management.

THOMASTON, Conn., Aug. 4.—The Seth Thomas Clock Co. started up Monday, after a two weeks' shut down, under the new management. The concern is now under control of Seth E. Thomas, of New York, a grandson of the original Seth Thomas, Aaron Thomas, for years past at the head of the company, having been retired. The new management will pay particular attention to the making of watch movements. During the past few years the company has experimented with watch movements at a cost of $300,000, and the new management thinks it is now in shape to carry on this branch of the business. The old management, it is understood, was hostile to the watch-making innovation.

A Notorious Crook in the Toils.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. Aug. 4.—William Stetson, a notorious burglar and sneak thief, alias "English Bill," "Bill the Brute" and other names, was brought to this city from Saratoga, N. Y., this morning, having been extradited for a diamond robbery committed here several months ago. Numerous other charges are hanging over him.

Stetson enjoys an international reputation as a criminal, having robbed a Paris bank of 20,000 francs three years ago in company with Edward Guerron. In dividing the proceeds in a cemetery after the robbery the thieves fell out and Stetson shot Guerron, dangerously wounding him. He repented, however, and assisted his pal to London, where he nursed him nine months in a hospital. The men again quarreled before Guerron had recovered, and Stetson fled to Boston, after betraying his partner in crime to the police. Guerron was taken to France, where he is serving a ten-years sentence for the bank robbery.

Stetson's last performance in this city was the adroit substitution of a paste stone for a diamond which he was examining in William Smith's jewelry store.

A Suit for Damages.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 4.—The Voigt Manufacturing Jewelry Co., by F. T. Browning, to-day filed a suit for $10,000 damages for slander against Carl Kettelman. The complainant sets out that it is a good, true, honest, just and faithful corporation of good name, fame and credit, and has never been suspected to have been guilty of the offenses and misconduct charged and imputed by the defendant, etc., yet he, contriving and wickedly and maliciously, on the 22d day of July spoke of and concerning a solid gold watch, sold on the 21st, the following: "That is a filled watch. That is not a gold watch, and I do not sell a thing like that," intending to and creating an impression that said watch was not a gold one, but a spurious article of no value, and by reason of the grievance the plaintiff's fame, good name and credit has suffered," etc.

Threatening Letters to Tiffany & Co.

Two weeks ago R. M. Hyde, manager of Tiffany & Co.'s Union Square store, received a letter from a man who signed himself Albert Delaurens, in which he stated that he was poor and had searched for work in vain. He demanded five dollars to pay his fare to Boston, where he had friends, and swore that if the money was not sent to him he would come to the store on the morrow and blow out his brains. The letter was placed in the hands of the police who endeavored to capture Delaurens by a decoy letter, but without success. Last week Baring, Magoun & Co., the Wall St. bankers, received a similar letter, and after a close watch on the Brooklyn Post-Office, where the writer directed the answer to be sent, and late on last Monday afternoon, he was captured. He was taken to the Tombs and held for trial. Delaurens is a tall man, having the appearance of being half-shaved, and does not look the desperado his letters would make him out.

S. W. Gould & Co. Assign.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 4.—On the 2d inst. John M. Fisher sent the trade a circular stating that the firm of S. W. Gould & Co. had made an assignment to him. Wednesday afternoon the creditors held a meeting. J. M. Bates was chairman and W. E. Sanford clerk. The assignors had no proposition to make, and wanted the creditors to dispose of the assets to their best interest. The meeting was harmonious, and it was the sense of the meeting that the firm be released and allowed to hold the name of S. W. Gould & Co. Mr. Fisher was instructed to dispose of the affairs of the firm, and he will endeavor to sell the plant in a manner that will keep the business in town.

No thorough inventory has been made, so a statement of the liabilities and assets cannot be made.

A Bloodthirsty Jeweler.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Aug. 2.—Charles Owens, a jeweler of Waynetown, quarreled with Dora Scott, a farmer, last night, and drawing a knife cut him almost to pieces, hacking off an ear, his nose, and planting twelve deep stabs in his face and breast. Scott is still alive, but is dying. Owens was being brought to the Crawfordsville jail today, when he overcame the constable having him in charge and escaped. He is still at large, with the country full of men searching for him. Owens, although wealthy and well connected, is a desperate character and carries in his body several bullets as reminders of former encounters. He came to Waynetown two years ago from Cincinnati and married into one of the best families in the county. Scott was a peaceful and respectable man.

Victimized by a Bogus Draft.

NORWALK, O., Aug. 3.—A. H. Barnes, who claims to be secretary at the Treaty Manufacturing Company of Danbury, Conn., has been arrested here, and is now in jail charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

He gave a draft for $100 on that company, getting a $30 gold watch and $75 in money from L. C. Bradley, the jeweler of this city. A telegram from Danbury says no such man is employed by the company he claims to be connected with.

Arrested on Suspicion.

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 3.—The leading jewelers of this city were alarmed Tuesday afternoon by the antics of a stranger, who visited the stores and asked to be shown diamonds. A telephone message was sent to police headquarters and a special officer was started to investigate the case. The officer found the man in the store of J. W. Cusack, on Broadway. He was looking at some diamonds and was taken to headquarters. Upon arriving there the stranger was questioned closely. He declared that he was a resident of the Salt Lake City, and had come east to spend the summer at Williamstown. He was a diamond expert, he said, and only desired to obtain the price on some stones. In his pocket he carried a diamond valued at $100 and $300 in money. He exhibited papers proving his identity and the police released him.

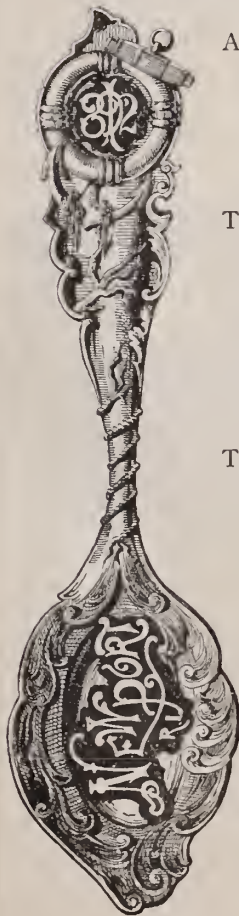

A Toronto Jobbing House Assigns.

TORONTO, July 30.—Chas. Stark Co., a heavy jobbing firm, handling watches and sporting goods, assigned, with liabilities placed at $143,000 and nominal assets of $147,000. The failure caused general surprise, as the firm less than a year ago was credited with a surplus of eighty thousand dollars. The principal creditors are the Bank of Hamilton, $49,000; Union Bank, $15,000, and others in Montreal, Britain, Belgium and the States. Keen competition and reckless cutting in rates are given as the cause of the failure.

Burglars at Work.

ATHENS, Texas, Aug. 4.—The jewelry department of J. Powers' drug store was burglarized some time during last night of some $800 or $1,000 worth of watches and jewelry and about $1 which had been left in the cash drawer. Entrance was effected through the front door. As yet there is no clue to the thief. As the numbers of all the watches are known, there is little doubt that the thief will be detected should he attempt to dispose of any of the goods.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO
THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

A Fine Exhibit from India.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug 4.—The best Indian exhibit is likely to develop with a large and attractive display. United States Consul General Ballantine, at Bombay, in a recent communication to Director General Davis, shows that interest in the exhibition is becoming very general in the large cities and at some of the native courts of India. The native princes as well as the merchants and manufacturers are now fully awakened to the importance of a representation.

The official jeweler to His Highness, the Maharajah of Cutch, has decided to send rare specimens of filigree gold and silver work. The Brahma Samaj of India in Calcutta has chosen Babu P. C. Mozoomdar, and the Arya Samaj of India has selected Swami Bhaskaranand as representatives of their Hindoo sects to the world's religious congress to be held at Chicago in connection with the exposition.

Exposition Notes.

Among the historical objects that will be exhibited will be clocks of Benjamin Franklin, William Penn and Oliver Cromwell, all running and keeping time, the necklace of Pocahontas, the silver inkstand used on the occasion of the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the punch bowl used by General Washington and other officers of the Revolutionary army.

An English journal advises British exhibitors to send none but goods of the best quality, as America, can undersell them in everything of the cheaper manufactures. Among the goods, it claims, that will find customers, are jewelry, fine silver metal and gold and silver work.

A clockmaker of Warsaw has been six years working on a clock which he intends to exhibit at the World's Fair in Chicago. It represents a complete railway station, with moving trains, telegraphers, porters, passengers and a ticket office. Every quarter hour all these wake to life. A bell rings, the engine whistles and the train moves off after the passengers have gone aboard, and all subsides into stillness until the next quarter hour.

There is some complaint in the trade, and it is understood the Gorham Mfg. Co. have withdrawn their application for space by reason of lack of time for preparation, but the officials in charge are putting forth their best endeavors, and censure for delay should rest where it belongs: On the Congress of the United States.

A number of foreign manufacturers have not been able to find space by reason of the overcrowding of the department. The floor space of the Manufacturers' Building is four times that of the Paris Exposition, and four times the amount of space has been applied for that the authorities have to grant. As stated, should the appropriation pass, the facilities for exhibiting manufactured goods will be largely increased.

"MAMMOTH WHOLESALE JEWELERS OF AMERICA,"

5TH AND VINE STREETS,

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

The Gorham Mfg. Co. to Purchase the Stock of John Mason.

The creditors of John Mason, New York, met Thursday at the office of the assignee J. O. Ball, 58 Wall St., to receive reports from possible purchasers of the assets. Mr. Ball stated that he had been informed that the best newspapers in which to place advertisements asking for bids for the property were THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR and several of the daily papers, and that in answer to his advertisement he had received several enquiries and one offer, the latter being from the Gorham Mfg. Co., who agreed to buy the stock at a value to be decided by three expert appraisers, in each of the three branches, silver, watches and jewelry, one expert in each branch to be selected by the Gorham Mfg. Co., one by the assignee and a third, if necessary in each case, by the other two, whose decision is to be final. It was stated that Mr. Ball had full authority to accept this offer without consulting the creditors, but he took this step to secure a harmonious settlement.

The creditors accepted the offer, and the agreement between the assignee and the company will be signed as soon as the signatures of all the creditors have been obtained. The other property, consisting of machinery, fixtures, etc., Mr. Ball will sell as he thinks most advantageous.

Two Providence Jewelers Fail.

PROVIDENCE, I. R., Aug. 8.—The failure of two manufacturing jewelers in this city in ten days' time is a somewhat unusual occurrence, which, coupled with the dull business and poor collections, is destined to make the pessimistic manufacturers to shake their heads and prophesy dire results and consequences. While the trouble attending the business of J. W. Henry & Co. cannot be actually called a failure, yet to all intents and purposes such is the nature of the affair.

This concern was sold out at mortgagee's sale on July 29, the sale realizing about $400 on the tools and machinery and $100 on the finished and unfinished stock. The property was bid in by the mortgagee, who holds a mortgage for $4,500 given in 1876 and renewed in 1884. In addition to this mortgage the firm owes about $3,200. The assets include, beside the plant, book accounts to the amount of $1,500 that are considered good and about $1,500 that are practically worthless.

Late in the afternoon of the 4th inst. the firm of Fairbrother & Scott, of 25 Calender St., made an assignment to G. S. Whitman, for the benefit of their creditors. It is estimated that the liabilities are from $5,000 to $10,000, with nominal assets. This concern consisted of Nathaniel Fairbrother and Walter E. Scott, two young men who had learned the silversmiths' trade at the works of the Gorham Manufacturing Co., for the purpose of manufacturing silverware and silver novelties and trinkets. They began business about March 1, 1892, with a limited capital. This, with a dull season, an uneasy market and an unknown name, forced them to the wall and they were obliged to assign.

The Name of a Maiden Lane Jeweler Forged.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 5.—J. W. Flowers, a jeweler, on Adams St., recently received, through the First National Bank, a draft for collection made by Adolph Goldsmith, wholesale jeweler on Maiden Lane, New York. Mr. Flowers paid the amount, $77.85, and took the canceled draft as receipt. Yesterday morning he received a letter from Adolph Goldsmith requesting him to send a copy of the draft, stating that they had never received the amount, though he had been properly credited on his account. The letter further states that the draft is a forgery committed by a certain employe of Mr. Goldsmith who was responsible and would have to settle.

Roulet & Baker, jewelers on Summit St., had a similar transaction with this house about two months ago, and this morning received a similar letter. The latter draft amounted to about $50. Certified copies of both papers were made and sent to New York this morning.

S. Goldner Silently Steals Away.

Several creditors of S. Goldner, a manufacturing jeweler of 96 Fulton St., New York, have been seeking his whereabouts during the past week, but without success. On July 30 a truckman, accompanied by a brother of Goldner, carried away the contents of the workshop refusing to tell where he was going to. The truckman claimed that he was hired to go to 78th St., but whether East or West he was not to be informed until he reached the neighborhood.

Mourning in Attleboro.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, MASS., Aug. 5.—The death of Mrs. E. I. Richards and Mrs. George Demarest threw a shadow of gloom over the Attleboros this week. Their deaths are mourned by the entire district. The funerals were the largest held here for some time. Wednesday afternoon that of Mrs. Demarest occurred at Plainville. It was largely attended by the trade and the numerous floral tributes were handsome. The pall bearers were John P. Bonnett, D. H. Robinson, John Maintren, W. E. Lull, and Laburton Warren.

Thursday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Richards took place. Many of the shops suspended business for the day and the services were attended largely by nearly all the manufacturers. The employes of E. I. Richards & Co. attended in a body, and their floral tribute was a large, magnificent pillow. The pall bearers were T. G. Sandland, W. G. Clark, A. M. Sperry and John Stanley.

Mr. Gatzert Claims the Charges Against Him are Entirely False.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 8.—Abraham N. Gatzert of the wholesale jewelry firm of Katlinsky & Gatzert, 96 State St., was arrested by Detective McDonald, of the Central Detail, Monday night, on a warrant sworn out by a Mrs. Ruffle, on the charge of being connected with a swindling concern known as the People's Investment Co. Mrs. Ruffle claims to be a victim of the company. Your correspondent has made a thorough investigation of the matter, and the facts do not warrant the charges.

Mr. Gatzert was interviewed and in the course of the conversation said: "I desire to state most emphatically that I have had nothing whatever to do with the People's Investment Co. or any other company or interest outside of my legitimate jewelry business. I am entirely innocent of the charge and the person making it is a complete stranger to me. I know nothing about what is called the first series of the Haymarket Supply Co., and, though a younger brother some months ago was a bookkeeper for the company, he had nothing to do with the company outside of keeping the books, and I was never sufficiently interested to inquire as to the aim of the company. The statement that I originated the first series and left the business in disgust is unqualifiedly false. Mrs. Ruffle claims to have met me in the office of the company in the Unity Building, while I have never been inside the building in my life, and I have never met the woman in question that I know of. The matter of my arrest was an unfortunate blunder over which I had no control, and knowing my innocence I accepted service without protest. If there is any recourse at law, I will prosecute the parties, but desire no publicity in the matter. My idea of publicity is not that of notoriety. I regret that my name should have been brought into the case without a particle of justification and the firm of which I am a member paraded in such a light in the public prints. I most positively state that I know nothing of the charge made, nor can I assign any reason for the action brought against me."

Mr. Gatzert was released on bond of $600 given by Lem Katlinsky and Lazer Katlinsky. On the case being brought before Justice Glennon, Wednesday, a continuance was taken until Aug. 9 in bonds of $300. The firm of Katlinsky & Gatzert have been in business since a year ago last January. They were successful from the start, and have had a steady growth with every indication of still greater success the present year. They are regarded in the trade as straightforward, honorable men, above suspicion of any connection with methods other than legitimate.

The Happy Lovers Went to Get a Ring.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 6.—This afternoon between the hours of 3 and 4 o'clock, a couple of shrewd operators, in the guise of youthful lovers, entered the jewelry store of George E. Homer, 112 Tremont St., and asked that some rings be shown to them. When a tray was placed before them the attention of the clerk was attracted to another part of the store.

The young couple did not make any purchase but soon afterward took their departure. They had made good their escape by the time the clerk noticed the exchange of a cheap moonstone ring for a valuable opal ring. The police were notified, but all trace of the pair was lost in the passing crowd.

E. F. Wilson Released and Acquitted of the Criminal Charges.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 6.—Edward F. Wilson, the Boston jeweler, is a free man once more. Early in the week his bail had been reduced from $10,000 to $4,000, and this amount being more readily obtained, he was allowed to depart on the filing of the sureties to that amount. In conversation soon after his return to this city he informed THE CIRCULAR correspondent that he had no doubt of his acquittal on the criminal warrants, which, he then anticipated, would be served upon him. To-day his prediction was verified.

During the week the Suffolk County grand jury has considered the evidence in his case, and this morning reported that he had not been guilty of criminal acts, and that they failed to find any bill against him. It is probable that his affairs will be promptly settled up, and it is also rumored that he will return to his old position as traveling salesman.

In a recent interview with the writer, Mr. Wilson stated that he acted upon the impulse of the moment when he left Boston so suddenly, and he did not consider himself accountable for the flight which occasioned so much surprise to everybody who knew him. His mind was so overwrought with worry and business cares that he did not realize what he was about until he had placed the Atlantic ocean between himself and his business.

Continued Reverses Unsettle Charles Magnus' Mind.

The friends of Charles Magnus, 18 John St., New York, will regret to hear that the troubles which he has undergone of late have resulted in the collapse of his mental powers and necessitated his removal to an institution. It is thought that his trouble is caused by the many reverses that he has experienced during the past two years.

He assigned in 1890, but compromised satisfactorily with his creditors and continued business. When John Mason started in business on Fifth ave., Mr. Magnus sold him goods to the amount of $15,000. Mason subsequently refused to pay the amount, claiming that the goods were not what they were represented to be, and Mr. Mason brought suit through another party to whom he assigned his claim, and obtained a judgment. Mason, however, appealed to the higher courts and the matter is still pending.

This litigation preyed considerably on

Mr. Magnus' mind, and resulted in his becoming insane. Mr. Magnus was formerly a partner in the firm of Philip Bissinger & Co.

Havana Jewelers Claim to be Unable to Pay the New Duty.

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 5.—The jewelers and silversmiths of this city at a meeting to-day passed a resolution declaring that it would be impossible for them to pay the high duty imposed by the new tariff. They decided to communicate their reasons to the Minister of the Colonies, to make a pacific but imposing demonstration as a protest against the extra burdens placed on their trade, and to close their establishments if a reduction of the duty was not granted.

They also decided that they would send to the press and the Chamber of Commerce copies of these resolutions in order that their grievances and the difficulties under which they would labor might be made fully known, and that they might obtain support in defense of public interests.

The Burglar of Parrish & Evans' Store Captured.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 3.—The police of this city captured and have returned to Nevada, Mo., George Henderson, a noted burglar, who robbed the jewelry store of Parrish & Evans, at Nevada, as before told in THE CIRCULAR.

Jewelry and silverware to the amount of $1,500, was recovered at an express office where it had been billed for Quincy as tools. The "swag" was packed in a big valise. Henderson fired two shots at Sergeant Henry, who captured him while trying to commit burglary in this city.

The J. C. Herkner Jewelry Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000, to deal in jewelry. The organizers are J. C. Herkner, C. H. Annin, Dan McCoy, W. J. Stuart, all of Grand Rapids.

VOL. XXV. AUG. 10, 1892. No. 2.

THE action of Tiffany & Co., in the case of the man Delaurens, who sent a letter to that firm demanding money, threatening to commit suicide in their establishment unless the demand was acceded to, points a lesson that all should profit by. Delaurens' case was undoubtedly a pitiful one, but his method of making it known brought punishment upon him instead of aid. The reception of a threatening begging letter is no uncommon experience among prominent business men. Such letters should be unhesitatingly handed over to the police.

Gold and Silver FROM the Mint report of gold and silver produced during 1891, it is stated that the quantity of precious metals used in the arts during the year was, of gold $19,700,000, of silver $9,630,000, of which $10,697,679 gold and $7,289,073 silver were in the form of new bullion. This is a noticeable increase over the estimate of 1890, which was $18,105,901 gold. The total amount of gold produced was: $33,175,000, silver $57,630,040. The Mint statement is confessedly an estimate. The report for 1890 was arrived at by adding to $14,605,901 gold bars furnished for use in manufacturers an estimate of $3,500,000 for the melting down of gold coin for industrial uses by jewelers and others. The estimate is the result of four inquiries in different years, the latest 1885, in which several thousand manufacturers and dealers were asked to state the amount and kind of gold used, and part of them did so, while the consumption of the rest was estimated. The statement of consumption of gold and silver in the arts has been mischievously used by advocates of increased circulation of money. The figures above given are susceptible to qualification, and when several corrections are made, it will be found that a larger amount of gold and silver is left for monetary use than might be inferred. Included in the $14,605,901 gold bars furnished for industrial uses in 1890, there were $3,076,426 made from "old material," not coin nor bullion, but plate, jewelry and other manufactured articles. This amount clearly is not to be deducted from the new supply of bullion, nor yet from the amount of gold coin in the country. Several millions' worth of plate and jewelry might thus be melted down repeatedly, year after year. Deducting this sum, the amount taken from domestic and foreign coin and bullion would be only $1-529,475, besides the somewhat uncertain meltings of coin by jewelers and others.

Browning, for slander—William Stetson, a notorious crook, was captured in Philadelphia.

Defendants Discuss the Case Brought Against Them by the Dueber Co.

The co-operating watch manufacturers of the National Association of Jobbers in American Watches held a meeting Thursday and discussed the suit brought against the association by the Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. in all its details. There was a full attendance and considerable confidence was expressed as to the outcome of the suit. It was decided to retain Mr. Carter, of Carter & Ledyard, as counsel in the case on behalf of the organization, and each member to employ his own attorney. Sullivan & Cromwell will appear for the E. Howard Watch & Clock Co.; Geo. C. Comstock, for the Keystone Watch Case Co., and Sanford & Steel, for the Courvoisier-Wilcox Mfg. Co.

Mr. Sullivan, when seen by a CIRCULAR reporter, said that the defendants would put in their answers within a few weeks. It is probable that the suit will not be tried for at least twelve months. Mr. Sullivan says that nothing is to be gained by contesting the legality of the service of the complaints, on which so much importance was placed by several trade papers.

John A. Riley & Sloan Co. Robbed by Sneak Thieves.

Capt. McLaughlin, of the 19th Precinct, New York was walking on Broadway near 18th St., Saturday when he saw two men, one with a cigar box under his arm, who acted suspiciously. He took them to the station, where the box was found to contain 57 gold and diamond mounted scarf holders, 16 small combs, 11 large combs, 23 plain gold combs and 16 silver buttons valued at $1,100. From the tags the captain thought they had been stolen from Tiffany & Co., but at the latter's store the goods were identified as being the property of the John A. Riley & Sloan Co., 860 Broadway. The men gave the names of William F. Smith and Wm. Goodman. Justice White held them in $2,500 bail for trial.

Between 12 and 2 o'clock of the same day Mr. Riley was in his office alone, engaged at his desk with his back to the safe, near which on a table was a sample case filled with goods. Mr. Riley thinks that the thief came into the office, passed under the table that serves as a counter, and abstracted the trays containing the jewelry from a sample case.

The N. Y. Jewelers' Board of Trade in the Case of I. J. Levene.

In October, 1891, I. J. Levene, Susquehanna, Pa., confessed judgments to E. Wolf and a party named Manson for $3,848.48; and also to M. S. Rosene, his father-in-law, for $1,946. Execution was issued thereon, and immediately upon the New York Jewelers' Board of Trade hearing of the same, its secretary got together a number of Levene's creditors, who formed a combination to investigate the matter and if necessary prosecute. The claims of the creditors who entered into the combination aggregated about $2,100, and the secretary immediately proceeded to Susquehanna, and through the board's attorney, Eugene O'Neill, got out an injunction temporarily stopping the sheriff's sale, and filed a bill in equity to test the validity of the confessions of judgment. The injunction could not be sustained and was afterward dismissed, and the equity suit is still pending.

The greater part of the judgments were paid off from the proceeds of the sheriff's sale, and the judgment creditors about a month ago concluded to sell the entire balance of the stock of I. J. Levene under their executions, claiming they had made levy upon it all, which was estimated worth about $5,000, but inventoried afterwards for much less. Mr. Levene objected to this, and claimed that execution had not been issued upon all the property; and desiring to assist the merchandise creditors the board represented in making their claims, he called upon the board's attorney and confessed judgment for its clients. The board immediately issued execution, and took possession of that stock which was not covered by the executions, and about the 1st of August sold the same for $2,332, which will thus enable the board to nearly pay its claims in full as soon as that portion of the stock, about $1000 worth, that the board bought in at the sale can be disposed of to advantage.

HARRY WALTON, secretary of the Wadsworth Watch Case Co., Newport, Ky., is one of the best known and most popular general travelers east or west. He was born in Newport, Ky., in 1854. For some years he was engaged in the drug business in Cincinnati, owning and operating a drug store for a long time, when his health becoming precarious he gave it up to travel for a jewelry house. Two years ago in May he connected himself with the Wadsworth Co., that had formed in May 1890. He entered into the field of competition with the now justly celebrated case, with great ardo, determined that he would cut a wide swath in the arena. He was confident there was no better case in the market, and being a man of strong convictions he held to this theory and by arduous and constant work has been happy to see the case triumph.

Pacific Coast Notes.

Franlin Bros. have opened a new jewelry store at 29½ W. Santa Clara St., San Jose, Cal.

H. W. Rietow's jewelry store, Los Angeles, Cal., was badly damaged by fire last week. Loss, $2,000; insurance, $1,200.

The store of Asher Bros., Main St., Susanville, Cal., was robbed last week of several thousand dollars worth of jewelry.

Andrew Westley, the well-known jeweler of Auburn, Cal., died last week. He formerly owned a jewelry store in Elgin, Ill. His sister Miss Christina Westley will take charge of the Auburn store.

E. Schultz, the young jewelry drummer who created something of a sensation in Sacramento, Cal., some time ago by attempting to blow out his brains, after losing all his own and his employer's money at faro, was tried last week and acquitted of the charge of embezzlement after telling his experience with the "tiger."

Fred Greenwood of the "Casket" Norfolk, Va., will lead the order of Knights Templars of that city to Denver, Col., where the annual conclave takes place.

Last Tuesday morning Grimes & Venable, Lexington, Mo., began removing their jewelry stock, safes, counters, cases, etc., preparatory to remodeling the room in which they have so long been doing business.

Trade Gossip.

The Chicago office of the Pairpoint Mfg. Co. has sent to its customers a pamphlet containing illustrations and prices of several novelties recently produced by the company.

H. B. Peters, 37 Maiden Lane, New York, illustrates in his advertisement in another column a new Democratic campaign badge which shows the famous grandfathers' hat floating in the soup tureen.

M. Zineman & Bro., manufacturers of optical goods, 130 S. 9th St., Philadelphia, Pa., have issued an interesting descriptive illustrated catalogue of their products. It contains a chapter on "When Spectacles should be Worn" and several other facts of interest to the jeweler and optician.

Oskamp, Nolting & Co. Cincinnati have in press another mammoth catalogue that is the most expensively and elaborately engraved book ever yet issued to the trade. It will contain 600 pages of the most valuable information to the retailer. It will be a veritable encyclopedia of the jewelry industry. Mr. Nolting and E. P. Marum, his assistant, have been weeks on the work and have been indefatigable in their endeavors to make it of a superior grade, and the means of direct communication with the trade. They expect to do away with travelers, giving their customers the benefit of the expense thus incurred. It is intended for jewelers only, and every legitimate dealer who sends his card will receive it.

Lapp & Flershem, Chicago, Ill., have issued a circular illustrating the many designs in campaign buttons which they have in stock and also several bargains in watches, among which is a good timer which they sell at $16 per dozen.

Charles L. Uhry & Co., 336 Mulberry St., Newark, N. J., are showing a most attractive line of green enamel wreath brooches, which will be very popular this Fall. They are also manufacturing many new designs in scarf pins, charms, chatelaines, etc.

The Spencer Optical Mfg. Co. are exhibiting a most extensive line of Audemair opera glasses at their salesrooms, 15 Maiden Lane, New York. The demands for these glasses will in a few weeks be resumed and jewelers should be prepared to meet it.

The Jos. W. Gibson Co., publishers of The Haberdasher and The Clothing Gazette have issued a directory of the importers and manufacturers of clothing and gents' furnishings in New York. The book is gotten up in a neat and attractive manner and one page is devoted to the jewelers who supply the dry-goods trade.

The eighth edition of the Watch and Clock-makers' Handbook, by F. J. Britten which has just been published by E. & F. N. Spon, 12 Cortlandt St., New York, and contains among other additions the examination and repair of repeating watches, date letters used by the Birmingham assay office, a drawing and description of the great clock in the London Houses of Parliament and engravings of many new tools used by the craft.

John W. Sanborn & Co., wholesale optician, 463 Washington St., Boston, Mass., have found it necessary to enlarge their quarters to meet their rapidly increasing trade, which they have accomplished by placing galleries around three sides of their store. This firm deals exclusively in optical goods for the trade and has recently issued a very complete illustrated catalogue of the best American made goods.

The "New Era" spectacle frame, introduced by the Gustave Walter Optical Co., 33 Maiden Lane, New York, and illustrated in their advertisement on another page, is meeting with a gratifying reception from the trade. The many advantages which it possesses over the ordinary spectacle frame recommend it to all.

A late production from the Meriden Britannia Co. is a handsome prize cup in silver competed for by tug-of-war teams at the Scottish annual picnic and games July 30. The cup stands 24 inches high on a base 9 by 14 inches. On a plain 1½-inch band around the body of the cup are engraved two teams engaged in a tug-of-war, and at either side of the bowl a silver statue of an athlete holding in his hand an end of rope from a coil resting on the base at his feet. The whole is richly ornamented and the designs are artistic and appropriate.

The new campaign buttons just introduced by the Richards Mfg. Co., Attleboro, Mass., will undoubtedly rank among the quickest sellers in this class of goods. They consist of portraits of the presidential candidates, heavily plated with silver. The Cleveland badges represent a bust of the ex-President, oxidized to show to advantage the various lines on his well-known countenance. The Harrison badges show the President wearing the historical grandfather's hat, which is of bright silver, while the face is oxidized.

To one accustomed to visit factories where business is carried on in a slipshod manner and where system counts for naught, it is refreshing to inspect the establishment of the Elgin National Watch Case Co., at Elgin, Ill., presided over by T. W. Duncan. The factory is an imposing three-story brick structure 30x200 feet, with a centre wing 40x150 feet. The latter contains a 120 horse-power boiler and a 65 horse-power Corliss engine of the most improved type. The factory is situated in a 16 acre piece of property owned by the company and has light on all sides. In the basement are the machinery, melting and turning departments. Every piece of machinery used in this factory is made on the premises. On the second floor are the jointing, finishing, springing and polishing rooms. The top floor is devoted to the engraving and engineering departments. In the manufacture of gold-filled watch cases the Elgin National Watch Case Co. stand very high, the quality of their work being such as to elicit nothing but praise from discriminating jewelers. The new designs now being made are strikingly original.

ENDEAVORS TO PRODUCE RADICALLY NEW DESIGNS IN STUDS—FASHIONABLE TUR-QUOISE RINGS—SILVER-MOUNTED FLOWER
 VASES—A REMARKABLE JEWEL CASKET—A BROOCH OF QUIANT DESIGN.

PARIS, France, July 28.—The efforts made by some jewelers at innovation in the line of studs are more and more worthy of notice.
 Considering how very limited this field is,
 since a stud, besides being very small, must always be enclosed within a circular, square or elliptic line, really existing or simply understood, we may well be surprised to see the innumerable variations played by our artistic jewelers on such a commonplace theme. Let us mention among the most attractive patterns: a curled lizard biting its own tail; a doubled cable knot; a shield paved with diamonds, piked side upward, with a large colored stone more pointed than the others, showing in the center; a niello design; an elaborate damaskeened motif; a pale yellow circular piece, vermiculated (worm-eaten); a Greek or Roman coin with the portrait of a warrior or of a goddess; a mediæval scene in translucent enamel, framed with brilliants or pearls; an imitation tapestry work, exhibiting a monogram formed of colored stones on a gold net ground, etc.

Fashionable rings exhibit on the bezel a very large turquoise with a fine dented setting almost hidden underneath the stone.
 These turquoises are generally irregular in shape.

Some of the flower vases in crystal, with silver mountings, are very original. They are gracefully curved like fruits, with no angular line. The crystal, slightly ruffled or grained, is covered with sprays of flowers or fruits. The stalks and leaves showing in very low relief, are faintly tinted, whereas the flowers and fruits are more deeply colored.

A remarkable jewel-casket which is the center piece of a handsome display at a well-known jewelry store in the Palais Royal is made of precious stones and semi-precious substances well arranged and harmoniously opposed. It is square in shape with moldings in a free Renaissance style. It consists chiefly of slabs of agate, malachite, and lapis-lazuli, variously cut, showing different reliefs and yet forming a symmetrical ensemble. These slabs, lined with pale gold, are divided with rubies, sapphires and emeralds in cabochon. Four medallions (one on each face) exhibit mythological scenes in enamel, genre grisaille. On the cover there is another scene which represents Venus lying in a graceful shell from which sea-weeds hang. The sea and the skies, reproduced with translucent enamel, have a changing, iridescent appearance of a charming effect.

A brooch in a quaint style, called Saint Esprit, shows a dove with displayed wings, head downward, holding in its beak an olive tree branch, which curls in a fantastic manner at the back of the bird, spreading above its upturned tail.

Fashions in Jewelry and Silver.

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

Small pearls are recovering a lost popularity.

A carnation of colored enamel is a chatelaine pin.

Liquor sets of ruby glass with gilt filigree mountings are new.

Colored pearls are very fashionable, but they must be large.

Perforated silver boxes are for everything but cigars and cigarettes.

Chafing and fruit dishes of silver mounted on tripod-shaped legs richly chased are elegant in design.

A new smoking set is of highly polished silver, perfectly simple in form and with a raised silver edge.

Feathers and aigrettes for the hair are worn more than ever for full dress and are mounted on gold hairpins.

There is a fancy for large semi precious stones, such as fine colored topazes and aquamarines as pendants.

A calendar and cord counters shaped like an egg with a gilded head breaking through the top seems to be a favorite design.

Hoop earrings, alternate diamonds and sapphires or emeralds, keep their hold with people who like considerable accent in dress.

A new watch chatelaine pin is a griffin or other mediæval bird with wings outspread as in brass candlesticks. It holds a sword with a jeweled head.

The silver sleeve buttons of summer show a tendency toward plaids of enamel. Scotch plaids in all things are showing new signs of conquest.

Collar and cuff boxes of silver are in pretty new designs. These have round polished bodies and chased borders. Within they are lined with colored silks.

Bottles for salt have come to be indispensable, or so regarded. They are glass with metal tops. There is scarcely any limit to the luxury expended on these.

There has been a disposition to introduce flowers as chatelaine pins, but with poor success. The conventionalized fleur-de-lis is popular, but bow-knots and twisted gold wires prevail.

An old treatment is revived in jeweled designs set in amethysts and turquoise. A necklace seen was a fine gold thread with pendants of amethysts enclosing tiny sprig-like designs.

The V-shaped gown has led to the introduction of a new gold necklace. This is a net-work of gold, each of the outer intersections having a tiny round bead pendant. It is three-cornered, the point falling into the opening of the gown. The net-work lies against the neck, and the effect is charming.

IDEA XXXVI.

THE local regiment of Chambersburg, Pa. was among the N. G. P. summoned to Homestead. Two days after their departure the corner window of Geo. W. Ludwig, of that town, was dressed as to represent the Eye." A tent reared its head in the center and near it hung the quartermaster's caldron, which was daily filled with various kinds of jewelry, the water dipper and other accessories of camp life. It attracted the the camp life now experienced by the company at Homestead. The bottom of the window was entirely covered with sod. A post and rail fence formed the background, and upon one of the rails was painted "Geo. W. Ludwig, Specialist in Lenses for attention of everybody. The designer, Wm. H. Ludwig, deserves special praise for his achievement.

The above is an excellent representation of the window as it appears complete, taken from a photograph.

That Girl's Watch.

Though Og or Methuselah I outlive,
Or both combined,
I never again my trust will put
In womankind.

I sat on the porch of the gay hotel
Beside the main,
Awaiting the time when I must take
My townward train.

In front of me sat a maiden fair,
And at her waist,
Attached to her belt, a wee little watch
Was deftly placed.

And I looked at that watch and I said,
"Ho! ho!
Much time have I."
Small heed I gave to the moments swift
As they went by.

And finally, when the hour had come
My train to take,
I started betimes, as I had that day
Great things at stake.

But woe to me! to the town that day
I did not go;
For the beautiful watch of the maiden fair
Was two hours slow.

The Age of a Watch.—If an old watch has a balance spaing, it is not older than 1660; if it has a minute hand, its age is not greater than since 1770; if it should have an enameled dial, it was made in the XVIIth century.

Magnetism in a Watch.—A good way to try the polarity of many steel pieces in a watch is to suspend the article by means of a particle of wax to a piece of the finest silk; steel filings or fragments should on no account be used for testing; for if not magnetic to begin with, they speedily become so by contact with the article under treatment. Even with soft iron it is well to occasionally change the fragment you are testing.

Cement to Fasten a Ruby Pin.—Many watchmakers use a thick gum made of shellac in alcohol, but that has the fault that it boils up when heated. The best material is made by melting together three parts best shellac and 1 part gum myrrh. While soft, draw it out into threads and let them cool. Put a small piece of one of these filaments in the hole, warm the metal, and insert the ruby pin, which is then trued up while the cement is soft.

Cleaning Agents.—In cleaning a watch I never use benzine or potash, or any potent article. Benzine leaves a greasy look which it is impossible to get off, and it destroys the oil, while the potash makes spots on the plates, if in moist places. Pure alcohol for the bath and the chalk compound does the best work and gives the best results. The chalk compound is unequaled for cleaning the case. With a stiff brush it is also excellent for cleaning jewelry.

Broken Pivot.—If a job comes in with only one pivot gone on the balance, put the balance in a split chuck and proceed to stone off the end of the staff squares. Then take a graver with a fine point and center it nicely for drilling. If possible, always make your own drills. A correspondent makes them of Sharp's best needles, which he considers better than wire. He draws the temper, files down to size and hammers the end flat, shapes and sharpens it, and then tempers it. Rosin is used for tempering, but we have all our own way for that. The drill being ready, the lathe is run at a slow speed and the operation commences. When you have drilled twice the length of the pivot, stop and clean out the hole thoroughly with a piece of pegwood. Then select a nice piece of Stubb's steel wire, and, getting the right temper, file down to size, making sure at the same time that you do not get it tapering. When you have it down to size, take a hammer and tap the end gently until you get it down to the bottom, then turning down the pivot to size to fit the jewel, and then finishing it, the job is complete. In finishing first use a small oilstone slip to get a gray finish, and then use lime and crocus mixed on a square piece of boxwood, which leaves a fine finish on it.

Duplex Watch.—If in a duplex watch the balance holes are too large and the balance is brought into such a position as to bring it into close proximity with the scape wheel, the long vibrations are sure to be quicker than the smaller, for two reasons: first, on account of increased friction on the roller; and second, in consequence of the greater drop in the escapement. The difference caused by the greater or less drop will be the same, whether the momentum of the balance is great or small, while that caused by the change of friction on the roller will be considerably influenced by the momentum of the balance. We also find if the balance holes are large, a considerable difference arises in the rate of going in the four vertical positions. The pressure of the wheel against the roller is never directed to the center of the pallet, but acts obliquely, and if according to the position the balance is in, it becomes more or less so and causes a variation of friction in the pivots in the different positions, though it is less in amount than that on the roller, it is extremely inconvenient, as its variable effect can never be entirely compensated for. It is therefore of great importance in a duplex watch that the holes should fit exactly. When the escapement is set out of beat, the point where the vibrations are quickest does not correspond with the center of the arc of escape; and therefore such a change will have influence on isochronism, but of course this cannot or ought not to be done, as it would make the escapement imperfect.

Practical Optics.

AS APPLIED TO THE CORRECTION OF VISUAL DEFECT.

NOTE.—The purpose of this department is to give to the student, without his having had any previous technical education, a clear and practical course of instruction on optics, with its application to the correction of visual defects. The Correspondence Column is open to all readers of THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR.

ASTHENOPIA.—(Continued.)

WHENEVER for any reason we suspect muscular weakness, or if while testing for the patient's error of refraction we discover double vision (diplopia), it is our duty to prove to ourselves whether or not there is muscular weakness; therefore the following popular method should be carried out.

To test the superior and inferior recti, horizontal diplopia is produced by placing a prism of sufficient power, say eight or ten degrees base, towards the nose. If two images are produced on a perfect horizontal level, we have demonstrated the fact that there is no weakness of the muscles in the vertical meridian; for if there was, a deviation from a perfect horizontal level would take place.

The internal and external muscles are tested in a similar manner. Vertical diplopia is produced by placing a prism of five degrees base up, and if the apparent images are exactly vertical, there can be no muscular weakness of the internal or external recti; for if such were demonstrated the images would deviate from a perfect vertical plane. Now should there be a deviation in this latter test, we would continue our experiments to discover which of the two muscles, the internal or the external recti, was at fault.

The patient all of this time has been placed 20 feet away from a lighted candle, and the phorometer, an instrument employed for holding the prisms while making the above tests, is removed. The instrument consists of a standard supported by a tripod. The standard is freely extensible, permitting a perfect adjustment to the height of the patient. An arm at right angles with a groove for the purpose of sliding along the prisms, is placed in front of the eye. A perfect horizontal plane is established by a spirit level. Of the two prism carriers, one carries two prisms placed horizontally with their bases joined, of sufficient strength to produce homonymous diplopia; the other carrier takes a prism of five degrees base down and is used for determining lateral displacements. Now, having discovered a deviation of the internal and external recti, we place the base of another prism in or out as the case may be, of sufficient power to fuse the apparent images.

In homonymous diplopia the external rectus is the weakened muscle and in crossed diplopia the internal muscle is the one at fault; for a proof of this, the red disk is employed over the right eye of the patient, who is placed 20 feet away from the candle flame. Now if the red flame is seen at the right of the apparent white flame, the external rectus is the muscle that is weakened, and we place the base of a prism of sufficient power over the muscle in order to fuse the two images of the candle flame. If, on the other hand, the red light appears to the left of the white light, then the internal rectus is the weakened muscle and the base of a prism of sufficient power is placed over the weakened muscle until the two apparent flames are fused. Should it take a prism of eight degrees to fuse the two apparent flames, we divide this number by two, and then we equally distribute the result with the bases of the prisms over the weakened muscles of both eyes. That is, we place the base of a prism of two degrees over weakened muscles.

It is better to make this test several times before prescribing prisms, for if we are obliged to employ prisms of over three degrees, an operation is necessary, and if the patient is under thirty years of age, a few months of patient waiting before we prescribe prisms or resort to tenotomy or extension, or to both, with the error of refraction corrected, may result in the eyes straightening of themselves, that is, if asthenopia is due to some error of refraction.

For the convenience of study asthenopia is divided into three forms, namely:

1. Accommodation.
2. Muscular.
3. Retinal or nervous.

Accommodation asthenopia is due to hyperopia, astigmatism, or a combination of the two producing a strain of the ciliary muscle.

At first Donders supposed that muscular weakness was due in every case to hyperopia and that if this error was removed the symptom of muscular weakness would proportionately disappear; but this has been proven to be attributable to the causes, where there is inability to maintain accommodation, and, as a weak ciliary or over use, as in hyperopia; or from unequal demand, as in astigmatism; and an inemetropia, and from inelasticity of the crystalline lens in presbyopia. Whenever asthenopia becomes established, it is apt to remain even after the cause has been removed, and it is well for the patient to wait several weeks before continuing further treatment, if further treatment is required. The reason of this is owing to the fact that in some patients habit is so strong that the accommodation is used in excess of convergence and thus a little patient waiting will reward our efforts, provided of course, we have given them the proper correction, if the condition is due to some error of refraction; and if the lenses do not give the desired relief, prisms of two degrees bases inward are required.

Muscular Asthenopia is due to weakness of the muscle controlling the movements of the eye, generally the internal rectus. In accommodation asthenopia, the error of refraction most commonly met with is hyperopia, but in muscular asthenopia myopia is commonly the cause of this difficulty, and it is characterized by a want of ability to maintaining convergence for any length of time. The eye becomes tired, there is pain in or about the eye, there is headache, everything becomes blurred and diplopia is more common than in any other form. By correcting the myopia, and if a prism is required, a weak prism with the base over the internal recti of both eyes will relieve the difficulty at once.

Retinal or Nervous Asthenopia is a rare variety, and is caused by an over-sensitive or insensible retina or other abnormality, or by general nervous affections. This variety is sometimes spoken of as Reflex Asthenopia. In this variety there is no error of refraction. It is very troublesome and is found in persons of a highly neurotic temperament. The symptoms complained of are those of headache, pain, and in addition to these an itching of the lids. Some remote disease may be the cause, such as dyspepsia, piles, or even bad teeth. To ascertain the cause of this trouble, and then removing it, together with rest for the eyes, is all that can be done for this very troublesome and intractable difficulty (To be continued.)

PERPETUAL CALENDARS FOR WATCH CHARMS.

THREE patents for different devices issued to Lieut. Roe, U. S. Army, in the past six months, are in the hands of Charles F. Irons, Providence, R. I., and will soon be on the market with promise of excellent success. One is an acorn (No. 1) in gold, to be worn as a watch charm, and is a shape is the acorn of the American white oak, in gold; the figures indicating the days of the month run circularly around the top of the bulb, and two weeks of each month are disclosed and screened by projections from the cap, which is made to turn, and on the lower part of the bulb, which is thus left clear of figures, are engraved, running around it, the words "Oct. 12, 1492—Oct. 21, 1892." The figures and words are in delicate colored enamel. No. 3 represents the same mechanism and arrangement of words and figures as No. 2, but is strawberry shape, which is one of the numerous forms perpetual calendar, having abbreviations of the days of the week on the cap and numerals indicating the days of month in vertical columns on the bulb, both letters and figures being in colored enamel; black for mourning. The calendar is set on the beginning of each month by simply turning the cap of the acorn in the bulb, and it is then good for the month.

Another is also a perpetual calendar of different mechanism, and is designed as a souvenir for the World's Fair (No. 2). Its covered by the patents. A third patent becomes a part of the case of a watch, and is also a perpetual calendar, a circular plate of gold pivoted centrally to the interior of lid with apertures covering and disclosing by a push of a finger the days of the month corresponding to the proper week days. The days of the month are stamped on the interior of the lid, and days of week engraved on the circular plate. It is set either weekly, or once a month, depending on a slight difference of construction.

Among the African Diamond Mines.

THE OUTPUT FOR THE FIRST HALF OF THE YEAR — PRODUCTIONS OF THE VARIOUS MINES—THE DIAMOND MARKET—REPORTS OF NEW DIAMOND DISCOVERIES—AN I. D. B. CASE.

KIMBERLEY, June 14, 1892.—There has been no official return published lately of the output of diamonds, but from private sources I learn the output during the first half of this year has been about up to the average of the last three previous half-years. The production at the Jagersfontein mine during May was 15,516½ karats, of a total declared value of £29,765. Little or no work is being done at the Dutoitspan or Bultfontein mines, the principal portions of which are held by the de Beers Company. At present it will not pay to work these famous mines, although there is an almost inexhaustible supply of diamonds to be got from them. The Dutoitspan mine is half filled with water and some adjacent claims have been flooded. The owners have sued de Beers Company to compel them to keep their mine free from water, but they have lost their suit. Koffyfontein, a valuable small mine in the Free State, is shut down, as the owners say they cannot work it at a profit until the price of diamonds improves. De Beers and Kimberley mines are not being worked to their full producing capacity. The directors apparently find they cannot at their present prices dispose of all the diamonds they could place on the market. The last dividend of the de Beers Company, just declared, is at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum. London and Continental cables are re-assuring and there is renewed confidence among diamond exporters.

During the past week reports of new diamond discoveries have come from several quarters. It is evident that the whole or this district is diamondiferous, and it is purely a matter of cost of working and market prices whether the starting of diamond mines is worth the candle. From present appearances there are diamonds easily unearthed sufficient to meet the probable demands of the whole world during this and the next century.

The exhibition to be opened in September is absorbing much attention, and there is clearly a strong desire to make it the biggest and best affair of the kind ever witnessed on the African Continent. From what I gather the promoters are pretty certain to achieve this object.

LATE NEWS SUPPLEMENT TO THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR.

VOL. XXV.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1892.

No. 2.

Boston.

C. W. Loring, the Howard Sterling Co.'s Boston representative, and his family are enjoying an outing in Maine.

The Howard Watch & Clock Co. have just erected an immense clock at Worcester. It stands 17 feet from the sidewalk and has two illuminated dials three feet in diameter. The movement is self-regulating and has an automatic gas connection.

President C. E. Fitch, of the American Waltham Watch Co., has been fishing on the Romaine river, for which he pays $1,000 a year. Usually it affords fine sport, and many salmon are the reward for the hours which he and his friends spend there.

H. W. Patterson, of Smith & Patterson, has joined the Hull Yacht Club. Another enthusiast, in sailing and fishing both, in the Boston trade is D. C. Percival, of D. C. Percival & Co., who whiles away many an hour of leisure in recreation with reel and rod.

An overheated boiler was the cause of nearly $1,000 damage to the steam yacht Navarch last week. The many friends of Commodore Charles F. Morrill, including especially the New England traveling men who went to Nantasket Beach on the Navarch, will regret to learn of this mishap to the beautiful craft so soon after her trial trip. New Fall Bric-a-Brac.

THE extensive show rooms of Lazarus & Rosenfeld, 60-62 Murray St., New York always contain many complete lines of fine pottery, but at this time of the year their contents are especially interesting. The accompanying illustration shows a few of the lines which the firm have at present in great variety. The centre piece is a Vienna vase about twenty-two inches in height with a hand-painted picture on the front, circled with artistic decorations in blue and gold. Surmounting the vase are floral scrolls wrought in metal and covered with rich gold. The vase in the background of the picture is of Sèvres ware and is ornamented with the popular cupid decoration.

Bisque forms a prominent part in the stock of Lazarus & Rosenfeld, and the two lovers shown in the picture, which are a sample of many equally attractive pieces the firm have on exhibition, are decorated in harmonious and artistic colors, their costumes and general appearance being such as to inspire admiration wherever shown.

This ware has an exceedingly rich appearance and is rapidly gaining in favor in the jewelry trade. Prominent Young Men of the Jewelry Trade.

XIV.

ONE of the most energetic men in the optical business is Leo Wormser, the New York manager of the Julius King Optical Co. Mr. Wormser was born in Cleveland, O., in 1859, and after receiving an ordinary public school education, and when thirteen years of age, entered the employ of M. Burt & Co., of his native city, to learn the jewelry business. In 1877 the firm went out of business, and Mr. Wormser at once secured a position with the Julius King Optical Co., who at that time had quarters in the store of his former employers. He started as an office boy, and after a few years was promoted to manager of the order department. Subsequently one of the travelers was taken sick, and he was sent out on the road in his stead. He proved so successful that he was made a regular traveler and was given the principal cities in the United States from the Pacific coast to Bangor, Me., as his territory.

In January, 1885, through his persistent efforts with Mr. King, the New York office was opened. He was placed in charge of the entire business, which now ranks among the largest in New York. The office then consisted of little more than desk room and but one traveler was necessary. To-day its dimensions are large, and five representatives are continually on the road. In 1888 Mr. Wormser secured the full control of the Judge Mack patent opera-glass holder for the company.

Clover-leaf shaped boxes with rich chasing in relief and clover leaf pincushions in the center of the covers are intended as jewel boxes. They are lined with colored silks gathered full.

Nursery pins made of plain gold are a new fad among the gilded youth of London. They are used for holding the Ascot scarf together.

ANCIENT GOLD-WORK.

BY CYRIL HUMPHREYS-DAVENPORT, F. S. A.

At a period in history when the greater part of Europe was still in an almost savage state, a small tract of land in Italy, lying between the Tyrrhenian Sea, the Apennines, and the Tiber in the south, and corresponding nearly to the modern Tuscany, was inhabited by a strange and highly civil-

FIG. 1. ETRUSCAN SAFETY-PIN (B. C. 600)
FOUND AT CÆRE.

All this we may safely leave on one side, and content ourselves with the undisputed facts that the best part of the early civilization of ancient Rome was of Etruscan origin, and that for several centuries before 474 B. C., when, with their defeat by Hiero of Syracuse, the decline of their power set in, they were the chief nation of ancient Italy, lived in much luxury, and possessed, besides a literature which has wholly disappeared, a wealth of art treasures, the discovered remains of which may now be called considerable. These art treasures, it is needless to say, have all been found in tombs. The Egyptians made much of their dead, but the Etruscans seem to have made almost more, since we hear of cemeteries sixteen square miles in extent, while in their provision for the comfort of the dead in the matter of chairs and tables, pictorial adornment of walls, and ample supply of all useful implements for daily life, they fell no whit behind.

These tombs seem to have become larger and more used as treasure-houses as the race increased in prosperity and riches. In the earliest form of sepulture the cremated body was placed in an earthen vase, sometimes simple in form and sometimes shaped like a little hut, decorated with simple arabesque designs, and this was buried in a pitlike excavation, generally lined with tiles, and having above it no sign or mark of its exist-gilt. The urns containing the cremated dead were gradually superseded by larger coffins, and the bodies were no longer burned. In these coffins finer specimens of work of all kinds are found, and gold jewelry becomes more and more frequent; but it is the latest form of burial, when the richer persons were ized people. These people, the Etruscans, or as they called themselves, Rasena, are variously supposed to have come from Greece, Egypt, or Lydia, a maritime province in the west of Asia Minor, but there is nothing certain known as to their origin, except that they are surely not the original inhabitants of Etruria.

The tradition of their Lydian origin is of venerable antiquity, since it is mentioned by Herodotus, and in itself not improbable, despite the difficulty of imagining how any large body of invaders could have made their way across the sea. For their language, philologists have variously proclaimed it ence. In their earliest burying-places many small objects of clay and bronze are found, generally toys or small articles of toilet, knives, helmets, etc., and in a few rare cases the better made of the bronze articles are laid to rest in large chambers highly decorated, and containing many vases and much treasure of gold and silver, that has yielded up the richest harvest of black and red vases of exquisite workmanship, gold jewelry so finely wrought that it is quite beyond the powers of modern experts to guess in what manner it was made, and much other treasure. Naturally, the most beautiful specimens of art recovered from the old burial-grounds have been preserved in Italy, and in the Museo Gregoriano and the Museo Campana in Rome are splendid collections. Nearer home, however, is to be seen some fine representative work of the Etruscans, both at the Louvre in Paris and the British Museum in London; and at the old Hermitage Palace at St. Petersburg is a large and splendid collection of gold-work of Etruscan origin, that was discovered mostly in the catacombs of Kertch and in the scattered graves of the

TO THE TRADE:

The temporary stagnation in the manufacturing districts throughout Europe for the past six months has been productive in our securing remarkable values for the Fall and Holiday Season. Many of the vast and extensive potteries preferred orders rather than close down their shops, while the smaller manufacturers strained their inventive genius to the utmost and have made their prices to suit American demands.

Our Art department is full of original, quaint, choice and inexpensive objects of Art. The Standard Royal Wares are fully represented in our Bric-a-Brac department. Considerable attention has been devoted in getting up novelties to retail at popular prices, and we shall show this season exceptionally good values in this particular line. We propose to give you the benefit of the advantages obtained, and trust you will favor us with a call when in the city.

Crimean peninsula, and in tombs on the shores of the Cimmerian Bosphorus.

The discoveries of these depositories have been generally of recent date, but nevertheless the explorations have been so carefully organized and well conducted that probably we are already in possession of specimens of all the best of the many kinds of work done by the Etruscans, although doubtless there is much more yet to be discovered. M. Castellani, a jeweler of Rome, became one of the most ardent seekers and collectors among these old storehouses, and he made great efforts to produce work resembling the granulated work he found on the finer pieces of gold-work. He found that there existed at St. Angelo, in Vado, a remote district in FIG. 4. EARRING FOUND the Apennines, a AT CORFU. B. C. 350 (?). traditional knowledge of this particular art, necklaces, earrings, and other ornaments known as "navicelle" made there closely resembling the old work both in design and workmanship. Neither M. Castellani, however, nor his workmen succeeded in producing the grains of gold as small as the older work, and how it was done remains a secret to this day. Many other antiquarians have devoted themselves to the exploration of these old Italian tombs, notably Campanari at Toscanella, the Marquis Campana at Caere, Prince Torlovia and M. des Vergers and Alessandro Francois at Vulci, and to these gentlemen and many others we owe a great debt of gratitude, not only for their indefatigable energy in the face of difficulties of all kinds, but also for their success in revealing to us a glimpse of the luxurious lives the art-loving race of Etruria must have led, as shown by the treasures that have been preserved side by side with the bones of their quondam owners.

To the collectors whom we have already mentioned we must add the name of Pierre Jean Louis Casimir, Duke de Blacas, who died in exile at Prague in 1839. He was at one time ambassador of France at the court Naples, and in many respects a typical French Royalist. When the Revolution broke out he was still only a boy, and had the good luck to make his escape from France in 1789. Then he attached himself to the suite of "Monsieur," afterward Louis XVIII., followed him to St. Petersburg and to England, and on the Restoration was sent to Naples to arrange the marriage of the Duc de Berri, with the Princess Caroline. In 1817 he was at Rome negotiating the Concordat, and from 1823-30 acted as ambassador at Naples. After the fall of Charles X. he once more became an exile, dying, as we have said, at Prague, three years after the king himself. The Duke used his wealth and opportunities at Rome and Naples to some purpose, be-

Jacob Lipsker Rises from the Dead.

Jacob Lipsker, the missing member of Lipsker, Munk & Crohn, 44½ Maiden Lane, New York, was seen around the New York jewelry district last week, and it is said he is living with his father in Jersey City. Lipsker was the traveler for his firm, and about four months ago he disappeared, taking with him a sample case containing several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry.

Soon after his disappearance a dead body was found floating in the Hudson River, and it was believed to be that of Lipsker, who it was supposed committed suicide. Several people identified the remains as those of the missing jeweler, and when they were buried the matter was forgotten. The jewelry was never found. Last week a member of the firm, which is now Crohn & Munk, saw Lipsker on Maiden Lane, and legal steps are to be taken to recover the jewelry he had with him at the time of his disappearance.

The Gold Dust Swindlers Captured in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 12.—Detectives Bond and Crawford, of the local police bureau, on Tuesday arrested Solomon L. Rheinberg and Charles Leopold upon the charge of grand larceny of $3,100. On November 24th of last year, the two men called upon jeweler Ephraim Grinspan, 384 Grand St., New York, claiming to be runners from Siberia, and offered him some gold dust for sale. Grinspan accompanied the men to rooms at 32 Essex st., and sampled the dust, which he found to be 14k. pure. He then contracted with the men to buy the gold for $200 per pound. The bag containing the gold was sealed with a private seal by Grinspan, who then left for his bank to draw the money, $3,100, necessary to purchase the gold. He subsequently found the bag to be filled with brass shavings.

The two men had left the seal intact, but are said to have opened the bottom of the bag, abstracted the gold and then substituted brass. They were traced to Montreal, but escaped just before requisition papers arrived. A clue was found, and the men were located at 1041 S. 9th st., this city, where they were caught. On the day after the arrest they were given a hearing before magistrate Clement, at the City Hall Police Court, and by him were committed to prison to await a requisition from New York.

Ephraim Grinspan applied Friday to Judge Cowing, of New York, for an order to compel the district attorney to extradite the swindlers from Philadelphia. The judge refused to grant the order. Soon after the swindle was perpetrated the men were caught in Montreal. Their extradition was about to be appealed for, when Mr. Grinspan said he would go to Montreal and try and recover his money by suing the men civilly. He went there, but did not press the charge, and the men were discharged. Last week

Mr. Grinspan appealed to the police to arrest the men, who he said were in Philadelphia. A detective was sent there and the men were arrested. The district attorney was about to apply for extradition papers when the fact of the first arrest was recalled to him, and he found that Mr. Grinspan had once before caused the extradition of a thief and then compromised the matter. The district attorney said that he thought the jeweler wanted to get the men back in New York to effect some settlement, and Judge Cowing refused to order the lawyer to apply for the extradition of the men.

The False Charges Against Mr. Gatzert Dismissed.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 11.—The hearing of A. M. Gatzert, of the wholesale jewelry firm of Katlinsky & Gatzert, on the charge of being connected with the People's Investment Co., came up before Justice Glennon Tuesday, but the complainant's witnesses failed to appear. The judge refused to grant a further continuance and the case was dismissed.

Mr. Gatzert expressed disappointment that the case was not brought to trial, there being no ground whatever for bringing the charges against him. Attorney Lewinsohn, representing the prosecution said he was convinced Mr. Gatzert had no connection whatever with the People's Investment Co.

A Bold Window Smasher Operates in Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 10.—A man with a black mask last evening threw a granite paving block through the window of L. Ohman's store, 303 Washington Ave., and drew $600 worth of diamonds out of the hole that it made.

About 8.30 o'clock a street car conductor named L. Wigdale who was walking down the street noticed a man step into a dark hallway and emerge a minute later with a black silk handkerchief over his face. Wigdale watched him as he turned into the street and picked up a big piece of granite.

For an instant he held the rock above his head, and the next it crashed through the lighted window, and a thousand fragments clattered to the pavement. With an alacrity that bespoke long familiarity with such operations, the burglar hastily scooped up two large handfuls of jewelry and escaped.

His Bold Attempt at Burglary Failed Disastrously.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Aug. 10.—A bold attempt was made here Sunday night to rob F. D. Johnson & Sons' jewelry store. Frank Cole entered the hardware store of Shafer & Roberts, adjoining Messrs. Johnsons' store, late Saturday evening, and, concealing himself, was locked in the store. With the use of an auger and other instruments he attempted on Sunday night to enter the jewelry store, but by the noise the falling brick made he was detected and arrested.

Jeweler Johnston Sued for $5,000 for Defamation of Character.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 12.—Edgar Russell Purvis has begun a suit for $5,000 damages against J. H. Johnston, a jeweler of Grimsby, Ont. Johnston's story is that last winter he and Purvis were at the Mansion House, Grimsby, and that gentleman asked him to lend him $50. Johnston rather demurred at this request, and Purvis said: "Well, let us have a word of prayer." This prayer evidently had the desired effect, as Johnston immediately loaned him the $50. Up to date there is $25 unpaid, and on Monday Johnston sued Purvis in the court in Beausville for the amount. This version of the affair has angered Purvis, and hence his suit for defamation of character.

By the new order of things the salesmen board an electric car at Pawtucket, can stop off at South Attleboro and make a few calls, take the next car here, transact business, and go thence to Attleboro, a saving of over a half day.

Discouraging Outlook for the Creditors of J. Stern & Co.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 13.—The failure of J. Stern & Co. has aroused much comment. Greifenhagen & Bisson established the business several years ago, Greifenhagen owning two-thirds and Bisson one third. Two years ago Jose and Daniel Stern, brothers, bought out Greifenhagen's interest for $15,000, paying in notes, and the firm name was changed to Stern Bros. & Bisson. About six months ago Bisson sold out his interest, the firm becoming Stern Bros., and shortly afterward was changed to J. Stern & Co.

March 7 J. Stern gave a judgment note to Jacob Franks, a pawnbroker at 163 Clark St., for $5,000 for cash paid in hand, the note being made payable in six months. March 28 J. Stern gave a judgment note in favor of Daniel Stern, his brother, for $4,685.90, payable one day after date. August 2 J. Stern gave a judgment note to Michael S. Hyland for $2,587.50, payable one day after date. August 3 judgment was entered on the notes to his brother and Hyland, and the sheriff took possession. August 4 judgment was entered in Franks' note and August 5 Franks brought suit against Daniel Stern upon his guaranty of the note for $5,000, dated March 7. August 4 the City National Bank of Sreator, Ill., brought suit for $2,500. This claim is based on a bill of exchange for $2,200, dated April 12, drawn by Max Teller and delivered to himself, requesting that J. Stern & Co. pay the amount in ninety days, which bill was accepted by J. Stern & Co. This bill was protested July 14.

The first and subsequent payments to Greifenhagen came out of the business until the last $5,000. It seems the business couldn't stand this, so Stern applied to Franks and received from him a loan of $5,000 on a judgment note. Although, as stated in last week's CIRCULAR, Mr. Stern had ten days previously stated he had $18,000 stock and $2,500 accounts, estimates placing the amount to be derived from the sale on Aug. 15 at $3,000 or so remain unchanged. This sum is the only apparent assets. The liabilities are about $25,000.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO
THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

Preparations for Rhode Island's Jewelry Display at the World's Fair.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 10.—At the annual meeting of the N. E. Manufacturing Jewelers' Association held in July it was voted that the secretary, John A. McCloy, constitute a committee to call upon the manufacturers of this city and Attleboro and interest them in making a creditable exhibition. A few days ago Mr. McCloy gave the following information in relation to the progress made in the matter.

"The combined exhibit has been taken hold of by the best concerns in the business. Their purpose is to make a creditable display of the industry in the east. The idea of their patterns being copied by other manufacturers has been dispelled, and they are entering into the exhibit with all their heart and soul. This display is to be made from the sample lines which the different firms are to show to the trade for the Fall orders of 1893. It is on this plan that so many of the representative manufacturing concerns took hold of it, because on the other hand, if one firm was to outdo another and thus run into an immense expense, they did not care to have anything to do with it. This method will give to the visitors at the Exposition a good and substantial idea of what is made in this important branch of New England industry. Executive Commissioner Wyman applied for and obtained 400 running feet of space to be devoted exclusively to Rhode Island jewelry exhibits. By another week all of this available space will have been subscribed for, and the delinquents will be left out in the cold."

The names of the firms in this city and State who intend to make exhibits are Joseph H. Fanning & Co., Foster & Bailey, E. H. Dunham & Co., Arnold & Steere, Hancock, Becker & Co., Charles F. Irons, W. E. Webster & Co., O. C. Devereux & Co., F. T. Pearce & Co., Flint, Blood & Co., E. L. Spencer & Co., E. L. Logee & Co., M. L. Read, B. A. Ballou & Co., George H. Fuller & Son, G. H. Cahoon & Co., R. L. Griffith & Son, Payton & Kelley, Seery Manufacturing Co., R. L. Moorhead & Co., S. & B. Lederer, J. W. Grant & Co., Providence Stock Co., Samuel Moore & Co., Clark & Coombs.

In addition one or two of these firms above named will also make individual exhibits. The value of the smallest exhibit to be made by any manufacturing concern in this collective display will be at least $1,000. From that the display will increase to as high as $10,000, or even more. In all there will be a combined exhibit of about sixty manufacturing concerns. The different exhibits are to be in Chicago by the middle of next April, so as to be in readiness by the first of May, when the Exposition opens. They will remain until the middle of November.

Exposition Notes.

The Chicago Commercial Co. have received a large number of applications for information from foreign exhibitors regarding the installation of goods. The foreign in-

The original of the famous Ramage portrait of Washington, painted from life in 1789, is offered for exhibition in the Woman's building. The miniature is set as a locket, with hair and monogram at the back.

Those who visit the Woman's building during the exposition that are prohibitionally inclined, will have beautiful silver cups to drink their Waukesha spring water from, as the World's Fair Association of Lewis and Clark counties, Montana, has offered to donate a drinking fountain with handsome silver cups.

Pope's Island Manufacturing Co. will Increase its Capital.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 12.—The Pope's Island Manufacturing Co. has decided to increase its capital stock from $50,000 to $65,000. The reason for the increase is to promote the field of the Howard metal's utility by enlarging the works and adding new machinery. The estimated value of the process is $25,000, and the plant at $43,000. The company has recently commenced the manufacture of knives and forks.

Watch case manufacturers are said to be successfully trying the metal as a filling for watch cases, because when the plating wears off the difference is not detected, making the metal preferable to any other filling. Large quantities are now being used in Providence. The enterprise bids fair to be one of the most successful industries New Bedford has had for years.

Annual Meeting of the British Horological Institute.

LONDON, England, Aug. 1.—The annual meeting of British Horological Institute was held on the 20th ult., Thomas Hewitt, vice-president, occupying the chair. The balance-sheet, read by the secretary, F. J. Britten, showed the income for the past year to have been £1,516 14s. 1d., and the expenditures £1,382 8s. 3d. The practical teaching undertaken twelve years ago at the suggestion and co-operation of the City and Guilds of London Institute had been brought to a close at Christmas by the termination of the City and Guilds grant. The council trusted, however, that ere long a fresh scheme might be formulated for the assistance of those young watchmakers who stood in need of workshop instruction. In the mean time the institute had reverted to the course for imparting a knowledge of mechanical drawing and the principles underlying the construction of horological mechanisms.

By correspondence Mr. Wright has been able to give valuable instruction in theoretical horology to many living at a distance, who would otherwise be unable to avail themselves of the institute. Another branch of work undertaken recently—the granting of certificates to those watch and clock repairers who satisfied the institute examiners of their competency—had made a rapid stride during the year. Formerly the examinations in theory had been confined to students of the institute, but the restriction had been withdrawn, and watchmakers throughout the country made eligible. There are now on the books a total of 401 members and fourteen associates.

Hewitt, John Jones, F.R.G.S., and Julian Tripplin, F.R.A.S., were elected vice-presidents. Thomas Mercer was selected as treasurer, and a number of other gentlemen were chosen to form the council for the ensuing year.

Lord Bros., of Butte, Make an Assignment.

BUTTE, Mon., Aug. 10.—Lord Brothers, jewelers, 114 North Main St., have made an assignment of their stock and accounts, furniture, etc., to Thomas C. Gray. The preferred creditors are Sarah M. Driggs, note, $1,000; Hattie C. Lord, $600; First National Bank of Butte, note, $150; M. A. Mead & Co., Chicago, account, $1,717.49.

Monthly Meeting of the Jewelers' Security Alliance.

The regular monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Jewelers' Security Alliance was held at the Alliance office on Wednesday, the 10th inst. There were present, A. K. Sloan, president; J. B. Bowden and David Untermeyer, vice-presidents, and Messrs. Abbott and Day.

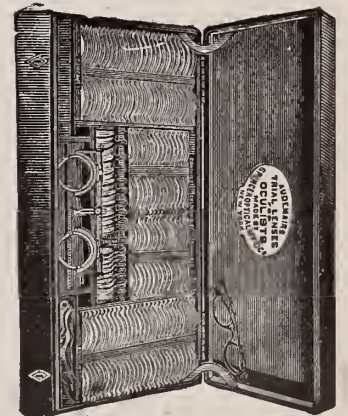

The following applicants were admitted to membership: E. H. Carpenter, Burlington, Ia.; Dunnington & Newlon, Buckhannon, W. Va.; Greenleaf & Crosby, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.; J. Warner Hutchins, 13 S. 8th St., Philadelphia, Pa., and W. Luther LaRue, Pittsfield, Mass.

Col. Moore Interviewed by The Circular's Chicago Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 12.—Col. W. A. Moore, of the Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co., was at the Palmer House during this week. Regarding the pendent set case, he said: "The Elgin and Waltham Cos. charged royalty on the pendent set used in cases. They gave us to understand that when Mr. Church had received $5,000 all royalties would be abolished. After we had paid in about $2,500 or so we believed if others had paid their proportion the amount required should have been received. Our request to have the royalty discontinued was ignored. The Dueber Co. then began making a pendant set under their own patent and suit was brought by the Elgin and Waltham Cos. by an injunction, they claiming our patent was an infringement of their rights. They closed their case last May, but we think no case has been made. I have secured considerable evidence since my arrival here, and do not think their injunction will be allowed.

"The suit for $950,000 for boycott," continued Col. Moore, "has already been commenced in New York, and I am here to consult with our attorneys, Messrs. Flower, Smith, & Musgrave, regarding the Illinois law. As independent manufacturers we think we have a right to market our product as we see fit, independent of any association. We think we unquestionably have a clear case, but the amount of damages is a question to be settled by the courts. Should the Illinois laws prove favorable, we will bring suit in the courts here. It is only a question as to whether the boycotting feature will hold in this State."

Col. Moore left last night for Canton.

Jewelers Who Want the Democratic Presidential Ticket Elected.

New York jewelers who desire to see Cleveland and Stevenson elected next November met in the Astor House last Tuesday and organized the New York Jewelers' Cleveland and Stevenson Club. The meeting was opened by the appointment of D. W. Granbery, temporary chairman, and Chas. E. F. Lewis, secretary. After some discussion the following permanent officers were elected: Henry Hayes, president; David Keller, A. H. Smith, Gilbert T. Woglom, A. G. H. Hodenpyl, Henry Ginnel, H. B. Dominick and Alfred T. Cross, vice-presidents; Chas. F. F. Lewis, secretary and E. Untermeyer, treasurer.

Mr. Hayes being absent, Mr. Keller was escorted to the chair, and after he had expressed his thanks, the following conference committee was appointed to confer with other business men's campaign clubs: D. W. Granbery, Wm. L. Sexton, Geo. H. Hodenpyl, Chas. E. F. Lewis, C. E. Settle, C. A. Boynton and H. B. Dominick. The president was empowered to appoint an executive committee, and the names will be announced at the next meeting.

A Case for the Hartford Jewelers' Protective Association.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 11.—About two months ago the Hartford Jewelers' Protective Association was formed in this city for the purpose of compelling peddlers engaged in selling goods to pay a license, and also to prosecute all persons engaged in running lottery watch clubs, and to compel them to do business in a lawful manner.

There was a case in the police court yesterday morning that the association was directly interested in. John H. Dailey was fined $50 and costs for acting as agent for the Springfield Co-operative Watch Association.

Demise of Henry C. Lesquereux.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 15.—Henry C. Lesquereux, of Smith, Lesquereux & Co., died of apoplexy Friday night and his body was sent to Columbus, O., for burial.

Henry C. Lesquereux was born in Switzerland in 1837. He lived there until he was twelve years old, when his father moved to this country. Here his first residence was in Boston, where he attended school for about two years. At the end of that time he returned to Switzerland to learn the trade of a watchmaker. When he was 18 years of age he came back and soon went to Nashville, Tenn., where he engaged in the jewelry business. There he remained until the breaking out of the Civil war, when he moved to Columbus, O., and joined his father and his brother in the business of importing Swiss watches and watch materials.

After some three years spent there the ill health of his wife made a change of residence imperative. Accordingly he moved east and became connected with the Burbank Mfg. Co., of this city. He stayed with them for nearly twenty years, until, in 1884, in company with some other gentlemen, he bought out the business, the name of the firm thereafter being Smith, Lesquereux & Co. It is a curious coincidence that the day of his death should be the anniversary of this purchase. He spent most of his time traveling for the firm, being away from home some eight months of the year.

Mr. Lesquereux was one of the best known and most capable travelers in the business, and made friends wherever he went. He had a genial, courteous and warm-hearted disposition, and was withal thoroughly and pre-eminently a business man. He leaves a host of friends in this city, who sympathize heartily with his widow in her sudden and deep bereavement. Mr. Lesquereux was the son of Leo Lesquereux, celebrated for his researches and publications in botany and bryology. He was a classmate of Guyot and Agassiz in Switzerland and was associated with the latter in scientific work in this country.

Last Sunday afternoon the Retail Jewelers' Association of Missouri, held a meeting at Wenzel's Hall, St. Louis, Mo., and completed arrangements for their anniversary and reunion to be held at Meramec Highlands on Sunday, Aug. 21.

The Report that Fritzie Dhein is near Cincinnati Causes Alarm.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 11.—Local police circles are agitated over the report from up the State that Fritzie Dhein, the noted diamond thief, who was arrested for the Keck diamond robbery at Dayton last winter, was in hiding in this city. The Dayton authorities have been notified and make the following reply:

DAYTON, O., Aug. 9.—Chief Farrel takes no stock in the story that Fritzie Dhein is in the vicinity of Cincinnati, or even in the State of Ohio. In an interview with the Chief to-night, your correspondent was informed that Dhein is not in the State, and that the chief is posted in regard to his whereabouts. The story from Springfield in regard to Dhein is wrong. The police and detectives here have positive knowledge that he was never dressed in woman's attire, and that the woman and her husband at Springfield who claim to know where Dhein is really know nothing about him. Both of the Springfield parties have been run out of Dayton and warned not to return. Dhein will give Dayton and Ohio a wide berth, as not only the authorities here want him for jumping his bond, but the Jewelers' Security Alliance want him for the $20,000 Keck diamond robbery. His bondsmen here have not paid the bond yet, thinking that he can be shown up, but the police department here, which is well posted on Dhein, and knows how he loves liberty, does not expect to see "Fritzie" very soon.

Courtesies to the American Microscopical Society.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. gave a reception this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, at 541 N. St. Paul St., to the delegates of the American Microscopical Society. In the evening the Rochester Academy of Science gave a reception and entertainment to the members of the society and friends, at the Arsenal, from 8 to 10 o'clock. It was a very successful and enjoyable event.

The George W. Shiebler Co., 179 Broadway, New York, are the patentees and manufacturers of an Ecclesiastical or St. John's souvenir spoon which will undoubtedly become very popular. It is illustrated and described in their advertisement on another page. The salient features of the spoon are a full-length figure of St. John in high relief which adorns the front of the handle, a fine etching of the Cathedral of St. John the Beloved Disciple, which is now in course of erection in New York, and which will cost when completed over $4,000,000; and the cross of the King's Daughters which ornaments the back of the bowl. The decorations of the spoon are extremely artistic, and the general appearance of the spoon inspires admiration even among the most phlegmatic. The spoon is adapted for a King's Daughters souvenir, and as such it will undoubtedly find a ready sale.

The replevin suit of Emma M. A. Crane to recover a diamond necklace valued at $200 has been decided against her. Some months Stephen D. Crane, jeweler, sold the necklace to a young man, through E. Bruce. The young man presented the necklace to a third party. When the necklace was not paid for, S. D. Crane brought suit to replevin it. The suit was lost. Soon after Crane made an assignment, his wife, Emma M. A. Crane, bought in some of the assets, among them the claim to the diamond necklace; hence this second suit which was also lost. The defence was that there was an understanding between Bruce and Crane whereby the latter was to share in the profits.

The foreman who had been out to lunch subsequently returned, and the examination that followed showed that three dozen silver spoons had been stolen from the second floor. A description of the men did not tally with any of the foreman's friends and the robbery was reported to the police.

A young fellow named Asa Cozine, who recently burglarized Plank's jewelry store at Iowa City, Ia., has been lodged in the reform school at Eldora, that State.

VOL. XXV. AUG. 17, 1892. No. 3.

THE interesting and instructive article on ANCIENT GOLD-WORK is copyrighted by Harper & Bros., and published in THE CIRCULAR by the courtesy of this celebrated concern.

NATURE sometimes works remarkable though sad coincidences. From the last assessment list of the Jewelers' League, we glean that on June 7, 1878, Frank M. Whiting and Willard W. Albee, members of Holbrook, Whiting & Albee, North Attleboro, Mass., became members of the Jewelers' League, their numbers being respectively 178 and 179. Both gentlemen died within three days of each other, the former on May 28, 1892, and the latter on May 25.

Credit to Married Women. NO question arises in the conduction of a retail business that involves more phases of delicacy than the sale of goods to a married woman on the credit of her husband. A large share of the purchasing falls to the wife, while the paying devolves upon the husband; and it is where the buying capacity of the former exceeds the paying ability of the latter that the retail dealer finds himself between two perplexing problems, namely: the offense to the wife by refusing to sell her goods, and the husband by selling them to her. A general knowledge of the legal principles involved in such a case may tend to determine the question. Where a man and his wife are living together in wedlock, there can be no question but that he is liable for her support and that of her children, and that she has a right to purchase such things as are necessary and have them charged to him. The scope and meaning of the word "necessary" in this connection is the source of the difficulties incident to this question. The courts take into account incidentally the circumstances of the man, but more particularly the circumstances in which he has placed his family. The circumstances of the family determine what are the necessities rather than the financial condition of the husband. The reason of this is obvious. While the general standing of a man may be known in his community, his actual financial condition is not subject to public inspection. Thus the unauthorized extension of credit to a wife will not be binding upon the husband, if it is for goods which are plainly disproportionate to the style of living in which he has established his household, while it will be binding upon him within those general lines. This question presents two phases to the practical business man: one as to what he can do, and the other as to what he ought to do. In the absence of any express notice to the contrary, he may accept as the measure of a man's appropriation for his family from his means the circumstances in which voluntarily maintains them, and he has a right to assume that sales made to his wife in consonance with these circumstances are binding upon him. The husband cannot, after allowing his wife to trade upon his credit, complain of the result. While it is true that the question by no means arises as frequently as many others involved in the extension of credit, it is well that all retail jewelers should have a knowledge of the general legal principles that determine it.

The Young Man Burglarized His Former Employer's Store.

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The jewelry store of J. H. Van Slyke, at Carthage, was entered yesterday morning and jewelry worth $400 taken, including a number of gold and silver watches, watch cases, and movements, rings, cuff and collar buttons, opera glasses, etc. The Utica authorities were notified, and last evening, within fifteen hours of the burglary, the man was bagged here through the exceedingly clever work of Detectives Cleveland and Barry.

The burglar, Mortimer Murray, had formerly worked for Mr. Van Slyke, and entered the store by a key.

He came directly to Utica and was caught in the freight yards. He had a satchel full of goods. He is 23 years of age.

The latest arrest for I. D. B. is that of a governess who had the ill luck to be caught in her first enterprise. She had conceived the stupid idea of enclosing a diamond in a newspaper and posting it to an address in Europe. It is a pity to see young and cultured ladies consigned to the convict gang and forced to live among the vilest of the earth. But the law is inexorable and there are many reasons why in this relation it should be no respecter of persons.

The re-bonded replevied stock, estimated to be worth $13,000, was sold to the same party for $5,250. Charged with Robbing His Employer.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 13.—Abram Edelstein, a young man employed in Benj. W. Moser's jewelry store, was charged in the police court yesterday with robbing his employer. On Sunday afternoon Mr. Moser started for New York, intending to remain away several days. He left the store in charge of Edelstein and locked the safe, but did not put on the combination, in order that the clerk could store away jewelry and customers' watches. On Monday afternoon the proprietor of the store returned unexpectedly and found missing a quantity of goods.

The clerk declared that the place had been robbed. Investigation disclosed no evidence of thieves having entered the place, and the combination of the safe had not been tampered with. Suspicion rested upon the clerk, and he was arrested. He denied his guilt and was committed in default of $1,000 bail.

The United States, more than any other country, rewards a man of great ability no matter in what line his talents run.

The public in general is benefited by his inventions to save labor and thus cheapen the product. This statement is proved in Martin Brunor's case, who as an electroplater has invented several new processes well known to the trade. His new method of removing the green from the gold, his unparalleled dip-gilding and superior work in oxidizing are everyday talk among the leading jewelers of the United States.

To learn if he intended to place anything new on the market, THE CIRCULAR representative interviewed Mr. Brunor at his office, 17 John St., New York, but like all scientific men, he would not talk much about future things, admitting however, that after his return from Providence, where he is going this week, he will surely surprise and interest the trade in a new invention.

Some novel fire escapes have recently been added to the Narragansett Hotel. They form a spiral curving about a stand pipe that is five inches in diameter. This stand pipe is so adjusted as readily to connect with the street hydrants, and at each story can be connected with hose, thus adding another precaution against fire.

Louis Homan, of Homan & Co., says their output this year will exceed that of any previous year, in addition to the number of novelties they are introducing. It is the attractive and unique designs of their wares that have made them so popular with the trade. Large orders come in from the extreme western States as well as from the east.

The attorney of several large manufacturing jewelers of this city has advised his clients to observe the fifty-five-hour-a-week law as far as it relates to minors and women, but to pay no attention to it with workmen who have attained their majority and are now working as journeymen jewelers. This is a new law passed by the last legislature, making fifty-five hours a legal week's work, and its strict enforcement is causing some anxiety in the jewelry trade, where it is found necessary, at certain seasons of the year, to do considerable night work.

An Important Arrest of a Swindler in New York.

Harry T. Howard, a good-looking, well-dressed young man, was arrested Friday and held for trial on complaint of Tiffany & Co., New York, and, from what the police say, he was an important capture. It is said that a few months ago Howard and another man named De Baquier began a series of swindles by hiring apartments in good neighborhoods, De Baquier pretending to be a doctor and introducing Howard as his assistant. The rent was usually paid in advance with a worthless check. The pair would occupy the rooms immediately, and De Baquier would hang out his shingle. The same day Howard would visit a jeweler's store, select an article and have it sent C. O. D. to the "doctor's" office. The latter would meet the messenger give him a check and disappear.

On March 15 the couple obtained a bracelet valued at $75 from T. B. Starr and a gold watch from Tiffany & Co. On April 1st Charles Casper lost a $125 diamond ring in the same manner. In the first two cases De Baquier was "Dr. Storms," 210 E. 17th St., and Mr. Casper's ring was paid for by a check of "Dr. Bull," 26 W. 19th St. De Baquier was arrested two months ago and sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment, and the police had been looking for Howard since.

They are one of the oldest firms in Rome, and most excellent men. Everybody in Rome regrets their financial trouble.

C. L. Erickson Succumbs to His Illness.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 13.—C. L. Erickson, of whose illness we wrote last week, died Wednesday. His disease was hemorrhage of the lungs. Mr. Erickson has lived in Omaha since boyhood and has been most of his working years in the jewelry business. He was for a time with Edholm & Akin; later he became a member of the firm of Edholm & Erickson, and then started in business for himself. For a time he was very prosperous, but in the recent hard times some of his creditors, notably Chas. Ford, cashier of the Union National Bank, closed him out and for a time he was engaged in no business.

Later he formed the C. L. Erickson Jewelry Co., the company being chiefly, if not entirely, his wife, she being possessed of considerable property in her own name. He reopened business, but he was not so successful as he hoped to be, and his health soon failing, about two weeks before his death the store was closed and the stock stored. What final disposition will be made of the stock is not yet known.

What We are All Talking About.

"I have received advices from my partner, Mr. Blank, who is now in Europe purchasing diamonds," said Julius Heilbronn, of Heilbronn & Blank,

New York, last week, "that the markets are crowded with foreign buyers, especially those representing American houses, who are flitting about from London to Paris, and from Paris to Amsterdam, seeking the most desirable goods for their trade. There are more buyers on the other side now than in any previous year, and as a natural result good diamonds are scarce and command high prices. The American buyers want stones of the best quality, and they are finding that to secure them they must pay big prices. Buyers who purchased goods in the spring are finding a difference in the prices between then and now, the rise having been more apparent during the past six weeks."

Said Manager R. M. Kettle, of the American Waltham Watch Co., last week in reference to the World's Fair; "We applied for space a year ago and have not withdrawn the application. To prepare such an exhibit as we want would require a full year, and probably eighteen months. We are lukewarm because we are in doubt as to whether we can make a proper display of our products in the limited time afforded us. We are yet undecided as to whether we will or will not exhibit. We have no apprehension whatever that the Swiss makers will in any way encroach on our American business. The watchmaking industry in the greatest artisan industry in the United States to-day, and we object to being treated by the Fair people as though we were chair manufacturers but a year in business."

"Solid facts are often in very direct antagonism with popular notions of existing conditions of things. This is especially true in regard to retail jewelers.

Many of the jewelers of this country have an idea that an auction is or ought to be the last thing to resort to as a relief from financial embarrassment. There is no odium attached to a properly conducted sale of this kind.

Many jewelers in good standing and doing a flourishing business have called upon me to make the third sale for them, having found out by experience that these sales have increased their business instead of proving detrimental to them. There is certainly no way by which a jeweler in embarrassed circumstances can so readily relieve himself; an accumulation of old, antique stock can be turned into ready cash; goods that would not bring 25 cents on the dollar disposed of in any other way, will often bring as much as fresh, modern style goods. Why? Because your sale has assembled people of various tastes and fancies, many of whom have never been in your store before, and who will now become the most liberal buyers, for your sale has created a demand for goods that did not exist."

Pacific Coast Notes.

J. F. Muth, Los Banos, Cal., has opened a branch store in Volta, Cal.

C. H. Wright, Eureka, Cal., will fit up his new store in handsome style.

B. A. Bell, a jeweler of Chattanooga, Tenn., was in Tacoma, Wash., some days ago on a pleasure trip.

Traveling salesmen report trade dull on the Pacific coast, and do not look for an improvement until after the World's Fair.

Daniel Barber, formerly a jeweler of Tacoma, Wash., has gone to Minneapolis, Minn., where he will open a jewelry store.

J. Enscoe's jewelry store, Loyalton, Cal., was robbed last week. Nearly $900 worth of goods were taken. There is no clue to the identity of the robbers.

A gentleman of Baker City, Ore., reports the discovery of a ruby mine near that place. He bought over 100 specimens of octangular shape, ranging in size from a pin's head to a pea. A company will be formed to develop the find.

Charles N. Steen and Mrs. Martha, mind readers and general fakirs, left San Francisco rather suddenly last week for Honolulu, leaving behind many creditors, among whom are S. H. Collins, the Kearny St. jeweler.

Montesano, Wash., was visited by fire on the night of July 30th. The fire started in a building occupied by E. Kellerman, jeweler, and owing to lack of water the damage done amounted to $22,400. Mr. Kellerman lost $6,000, covered by an insurance of $4,500. Seven buildings were destroyed.

A very daring robbery was recently committed at Centralia, Wash. The jewelry store of A. P. Ross was entered and 30 gold and silver watches and a lot of chains and rings were carried off. Entrance was effected by the back door while the clerk was gone to dinner. The loss is estimated at about $1,000. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the deed.

T. J. Dantzler has moved from Collinsville, Ala., to Attala, Ala.

Trade Gossip.

Crouch & Fitzgerald, jewelry case and trunk manufacturers, 161 Broadway, 688 Broadway and 701 6th Ave., New York, are the introducers of many novelties and improvements in travelers' sample trunks which they are now showing at their various stores in great variety. This is the time of the year when travelers are seeking trunks for their Fall trips, and before purchasing elsewhere they will do well to examine the trunks manufactured by Crouch & Fitzgerald.

Larter, Elcox & Co., 21 and 23 Maiden Lane, New York, are meeting with much success with their patent spring link for link buttons. The link is so simple in construction and effective in operation that the trade has been quick to appreciate its many advantages over the old style link, which is always associated with soiled cuffs and broken finger nails. The firm will sell the link separately for the benefit of those jewelers having a large stock of cuff link buttons on hand.

One would think by the activity and rush in the salesroom of the Spencer Optical Mfg. Co. that we were in the mid-winter trade. It is truly a busy house, and the trade would be surprised to learn the full volume of business done by this company. This is merited success, as the Spencer brothers take a personal interest in their patrons, especially the beginners and graduates from their school of optics. The free course of instruction and much valuable advice given in a commercial way show this.

William C. A. Westphal, 41 and 43 Maiden Lane, New York, has added to his facilities for fine watch and chronometer work by having fitted in his workshop an improved apparatus for the adjusting of chronometers, etc., to various temperatures. In fact, his establishment is one of the very few where the most expensive and complicated timepieces are repaired and put in perfect order for manufacturers of watches, as well as for wholesale and retail dealers. Mr. Westphal is known in the trade as an expert workman and a reliable man.

The Long Beach Breaker to the extent of a column, bewails the fact that there is no jewelry store in that thriving town. It is one of the best patronized beaches during the summer, contiguous to Los Angeles, and has a settled population of over 1500 inhabitants.

There is on exhibition in the window of Montgomery Bros. a leather belt with solid silver mountings, which was made in China for Ex-U. S. Minister G. Wiley Wells. Some years ago he got a belt with oxidized silver mountings, from Tiffany & Co., New York, and liked the design so well that when the silver wore off he decided to have fac-simile mountings made, and being in China, thought he would try the skill of the Chinese jewelers. These jewelers used the old oxidized mountings as dies from which negatives were made. The images in relief secured from this process were not fine in their lines and the mountings will have to pass through the hands of the chaser.

THE JEWELERS' AND SILVERSMITHS' CHAMBRE SYNDICALE TO BE EXTENDED, AND ITS POLICY MODIFIED—PRIZES TO THE PUPILS OF THE PARIS HOROLOGICAL SCHOOL—STUDS AND EARRINGS—AN ATTRACTIVE BROOCH—A FINE SPECIMEN OF GOLDSMITHING.

PARIS, France, Aug. 4.—For a long time past the active members of the Jewelers' and Silversmiths' Chambre Syndicale have repeatedly insisted on the necessity of obtaining a larger place for the jewelers' art school, of doing the utmost to obtain more pupils, and of adding technical and practical teaching to the artistic features of the course of instruction so as to prepare proficient apprentices to rapidly become high-class artisans. Mr. Falize made recently a clear and persuasive report on the subject, and at last all members of the Jewelers' Chambre were moved to understand that they had a real interest in supporting the scheme in question. In consequence, its promoters opened a subscription, which, headed by Boucheron with 1,500 francs, reached within a few days 120,000 francs. This list only includes contributions from prominent Parisian jewelers and silversmiths; therefore it may be expected that a much larger sum will be at the disposal of the art and technical school committee when all Parisian and provincial jewelers will have forwarded their contributions.

The distribution of prizes awarded to the cleverest pupils of the Paris Horological School, took place a few days ago at the large Trocadero Hall. The attendance was much greater than in previous years. This was the eighteenth annual competition. Mr. Rodanet, still sur la brèche, was pleased to state that the school was constantly progressing; 266 pupils have received there a practical teaching and applications are becoming more and more numerous.

An attractive brooch consists of a round, flat piece of gold, showing in translucent enamel in low relief, Phaeton driving the car of the Sun. It is bordered by a dented run of brilliants surrounded by a narrow gold circle.

A large opal sparingly accompanied with diamonds will always look well, whether as a brooch, or on the clasp of a pale gold bracelet. I have seen a handsome brooch formed of an oval flat gold ring, decorated with a few diamonds; a large opal, gloriously iridescent, was raised above the open space of this ring, being held on light tiny claws placed wide apart. Thus mounted, the opal gave its full effect.

A fine specimen of the goldsmith's art is a necklace consisting of gold lamellæ in satin finish, hanging from a narrow corded neckband so as to form a graceful fringe. At the end of each of these flat pieces is a conventional daisy in very low relief. A laurel branch in chased green gold is thrown across those lamellæ, holding them together.

GUSTAVE FOX.

GUSTAVE FOX of the firm of Gustave Fox & Co., 148 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O., whose portrait is here depicted, is considered one of the brightest lights in the jewelry trade of the Queen City.

He was born in Vienna in 1855. He went to Cincinnati with his parents at the age of 8 years. After receiving some school education and at 13 years of age he entered upon his career as a diamond setter, for which trade he had a natural taste. He worked in the large stores of the city, receiving the highest wages of a first-class diamond setter and designer of jewelry. At the age of 21 years he started in business for himself at his present quarters in the rear of L. M. Prince's optical store. His business grew and he began to receive work from all over the country. Three years later, not having enough room in the rear of the store, he rented a large room upstairs. In 1888 he took in business with him Lee Kaufman, his present partner, who had been in business for himself in Cincinnati. Gustave Fox & Co. are importers of diamonds and manufacturers of diamond settings, of which they carry a large stock. They make anything ordered in the way of gold jewelry, and are also the makers of the celebrated Elk jewelry, of which they are the originators. Gustave Fox & Co. have made many friends in business, and stand high as diamond merchants and manufacturers of diamond settings.

Fashions in England.

WATCH bracelets are again being asked for. This is to be, after all, an institution. There have been more inquiries for bangles, too. The favorites are the quite plain tubes with knots on the head or hearts. Hearts are very favorite ornaments altogether at the moment. They are made with diamond or colored stone centers and hung upon very fine machine necklets. They look very nice, and sell in large quantities—and the large quantities come to the price of one single good old necklet of the good old school. The flexible cut bracelets are fastened now with heart-shaped padlocks, or heart-pendants are attached to them. Heart-shaped brooches are also much worn.

The turquoise is still being asked for in brooches and such like. But dry color gilding with pearls appears to be the style most in demand. London-made goods still command the market. The better the thing is made, irrespective of price, the more evidence there is of good workmanship and originality of style, the better it sells. That is very nice. There are some very nice goods in fancy knots and wet-colored bar fichu brooches on the market. Few expensive rings are selling, but the tasty things of medium low price go very easily. Little scrolls rings, and cross over, fancy cluster head rings are the style now being made up. The ordinary curb pattern is still selling very well, as well as the novelties in dry color wire rings of different kinds, fluted bands, and snakes. This ring is taking the place of the ordinary keeper. The curb or knot ring is a prettier conception than the old-fashioned chipped-out pattern keeper. Diamond ornaments of all kinds are very quiet. Hardly anything expensive has been sold for some time.—The Horological Journal (London).

Pearling in Tahiti.

THE British Consul at Papé-été, the capital of Tahiti, A. G. Howes, states in a recent report that since the introduction of the diver's dress and apparatus at the pearl fisheries in 1890 a considerable increase in the export of shell has been maintained over the previous years. A strong feeling has, however, been exhibited by the natives, who adhere to their own system of diving, against this means of taking the shell, and has resulted in a communication being made by the Director of the Interior of the Colony to the Chamber of Commerce at Papé-été, recommending the gradual abolition of the diving dress and apparatus, and the stoppage of further issue of patents for the same, from Jan. 1, 1893.

The Chamber of Commerce have expressed their approval of the suggestion, but consider that an entire and not gradual abolition of the diving dress and apparatus should take place, and they have decided to lay this proposal before the Conseil-Général when it assembles in August.

The reasons set forth by the Chamber of Commerce for adopting this course are that the regulations for the use of the diving dress and apparatus have been abused. They state that French citizens, contrary to rule, have under their name employed diving dress and apparatus owned by foreigners; that the law prohibiting pearl fishing by this means in a depth of less than 10 fathoms had not been adhered to, and they also give as their opinion that the shells found in a greater depth than 10 fathoms are those mostly important for reproduction, and to destroy them will ruin the fisheries and bring distress upon the natives who depend upon the pearl-shell diving for their livelihood.

New Detached Clock Escapement.

THE detached pendulum escapement described in the following is the invention of the French watchmaker, Delasalle, of St. Etienne, Loire, and is taken from the Revue Chronometrique. This construction has the freedom of oscillation similar to the pendulum escapement of F. W. Ruffert, some time ago described in THE CIRCULAR; still it differs essentially from the latter, in that the locking of the scape teeth is more easily regulated, as well as in the kind of unlocking.

Of the accompanying illustrations, Fig. 1 represents a side view, Fig. 2 a front view of the escapement, while in Fig. 3 the device for locking and unlocking of the scape wheel is shown on an enlarged scale. The teeth of the escape wheel R are ratchet form, and only serve for the locking; the lifting is affected by the pins standing vertically to the plane of the wheel R and which can be seen best in Fig. 1. The lever A has at its left pallet the lifting plane a, and at its right a small bridge b. Between the bridge b and at the shoulder of the lever A, projecting at the same place, is the unlocking finger c, Fig. 2, which revolves on pivots; on account of its own weight it always resumes its position of rest; above, however, it can give way freely, when it meets with resistance at the left oscillation of the pendulum.

Between the back plate and a bridge K screwed upon it is the locking arm D, which easily revolves on pivots; it is furnished with a locking pallet r and an unlocking pallet d, Fig. 3. Upon the latter near its upper edge strikes the point of the unlocking finger c, on the pendulum's journey to the right. The locking arm D can by a set screw n be regulated at will and is retained in its position of rest by a delicate spring i.

The performance of the escapement-next is as follows: The lever in Fig. 2 is in its journey to the right and the point of the unlocking finger c has just now encountered the unlocking pallet d, while the left pallet of the lever passes with the lifting plane a perfectly free between two pins of the scape wheel R. In the further course of the journey to the right, the locking pallet r is liberated from the wheel tooth e, and the scape wheel moves forward in the direction of the arrow, whereby the pin f strikes upon the lifting plane a, passes over it throughout the entire length and thereby imparts to the pendulum an impulsion to the right.

When the pin f has passed about one-half over the lifting plane a, the point of the unlocking finger c becomes detached from the unlocking pallet d, and the locking arm D returns into its position of rest under the gentle pressure of the spring i, so that, after the lifting at a has been ended, the scape tooth next following upon the tooth e is detained by the locking pallet r . In the now ensuing return journey to the left the unlocking finger e evades above the pallet d , and drops to the left of it back again into its position of rest, as soon as the pendulum has oscillated back into its middle position. The remainder of the journey to the left is accomplished perfectly free, as is also the oscillation to the right perfectly free up to the moment in which the unlocking takes place. The impulse is here only on one side, and takes place in the journey to the right; toward the left side, however, there is a so-called dead beat during which the scape-wheel remains immovable. The inventor says that by the use of a bob of $1\frac{1}{2}$ kilograms ($3\frac{1}{2}$ lbs.) he required only very little impelling force, and obtained an exceedingly close rate. The oscillations are only 3° .

Workshop Notes.

To Polish Nickel Plate.—To brighten and polish nickel plating and prevent rust, apply rouge with a little fresh lard or lard oil on a wash leather or piece of buckskin. Rub the bright parts, using as little of the rouge and oil as possible, and wipe off with a clean rag slightly oiled. Repeat the wiping every day and the polishing as often as needed.

To Solder Tortoise Shell.—Bring the edges of the pieces of shell to fit together, observing to give the same inclination of grain to each; then secure them in a piece of paper and place them between hot irons or pincers; apply pressure and let them cool. The heat must not be so great as to burn the shell; therefore try it at first on a piece of white paper.

To Finish Gold Work.—There are now made for the market articles containing so exquisitely small an amount of gold that in the process of manufacture they have to be supported underneath with iron wire. When the piece is finished, this iron is removed by dissolving it in some acid, for which it has a great chemical affinity. Sulphuric acid is the best for this purpose; it is sold under the name of oil of vitriol.

Good Silver-Plating Solution.—A person may obtain a good silver-plating solution by dissolving one ounce of cyanide of silver in $1\frac{1}{2}$ ounces of cyanide of potassium, which has previously been dissolved in as little water as possible, then diluting the whole with distilled water to make one quart of solution. This should be placed in a glass vessel—a quart battery jar will answer. Use a strip of sheet silver one or two ounces in weight for an anode attaching the same by a silver wire. Suspend the cleansed article from copper wire. Two rods of clean brass or copper laid across the top of the jar will serve for making the attachment and the battery connections. This bath will only serve for silvering small articles. For a bath for large articles use cyanide of potassium, 6 ounces; silver (in cyanide), 4 ounces; water, 1 gallon.

Ancient Gold Work.

coming a great collector of every kind of antique, and filling the office of president of an archaeological society at Rome. At his death his treasures passed to his son, who proved himself worthy to possess them by making some additions, and collecting materials for an illustrated catalogue. At the son's death, however, the collection came into the market, at Paris, and was bought en bloc by the trustees of the British Museum in 1866. Of the treasures thus acquired by the British nation we are only concerned here with a very small portion. They comprised Greek and Latin inscriptions, many splendid gems, coins, terra-cottas, vases, and some exquisite specimens of ancient gold ornaments. These last especially came from ancient Etruria, and it is at these that we desire to look. The chief characteristics of the gold work in question are the thinness of the metal, its being pressed or beaten out in designs in low relief, and its further decoration by the superficial application of filigree and small granules of gold. Several molds of stone have been discovered, and it is probable that the thin gold was pressed into the mold by means of a metal or agate style, and whenever necessary solder was used to fix the separate pieces of gold together. How the granulated work was produced is still unknown; some of it is so fine that without a magnifying-glass it is almost impossible to believe that the patterns are actually laid on with an infinite number of minute spherical grains. The larger work of this kind has been wonderfully imitated by M. Castellani, mentioned above, as it has also by M. Giuliano, a jeweler in London. Several very beautiful specimens of early Etruscan jewelry are further adorned with fine enamel-work, engraved gems, and gems roughly cut, glass and amber, but the pieces illustrated with this paper are entirely made in gold.

To the Blacas collection belongs the beautiful pair of earrings in the form of winged angels, with a circular ornament above their heads, having a rosette in the centre on a long stalk, and edged with a twisted wire. The angels are made each of two pieces of gold; the front piece has been pressed into a mold, and cut close round at the edges of the figure, and then a flat piece soldered on at the back. The wings are separate, and have lines showing the general disposition of the feathers. Though these earrings look massive, they are in reality very light. They belong to the finest period of Etruscan art, and were probably made about the fifth century before Christ. Unfortunately, the place of their discovery is not recorded. There is another similar pair in the same collection, much smaller, and the winged figures, perhaps symbolic of Victory, are holding up dishes on which is a design of the full face of the sun, with rays in low relief.

The very curious armlet found at Cære, in Etruria, by M. Castellani is one of the most remarkable pieces of work in his collection. It consists of one long strip of gold having two cross-pieces, one at each end, all decorated in low relief, and enriched with rows of delicate grains of gold along the lines of the design, and in the Greek fret used as a supplementary framing. The design of three symbolic figures, perhaps of Venus, holding conventional lilies, is repeated four times. On the end pieces is a spirited design of men struggling with lions. The granulated work on this armlet is very delicate, but on a safety-pin in the same collection, of a simple design in itself, is a running pattern drawn so accurately and closely with separate grains of gold that it is hardly possible to realize it is not traced out in wire.

Another very delicate specimen indeed is the head of a satyr used as a pendant for a necklace. These two specimens are too fine to lend themselves well to illustration, but with the exception of the smallness, the work is identical with that shown on the armlet.

The safety-pin in the form of a lion (Fig. 1) is early Etruscan work. The lion is finely modeled, and finished with a little chased work on his mane and head. He is made of thin gold molded and soldered at the edges, and is very light. The socket for the pin is ornamented with a design in delicate filigree work. It was found at Cære, the modern Cervetri.

The beautiful gold necklace with pendants (Fig. 3) forms part of the Castellani collec tion in the British Museum. It consists of a circlet of roses bearing alternate pendants of vases and female heads exquisitely modelled. The roses are each composed of three rosettes of diminishing sizes superimposed, each petal edged with a minute twisted wire, with a little head in the center. In the center part of the necklace, where it is thickest, these roses are divided from each other by a piece of gold cut into a design of two crescents back to back, with patterns traced in filigree and a tiny rosette in the center, and from each of these divisions hangs a little female head in low relief.

Of the pendants, the center head is simply that of a beautiful girl, and the two side ones next to it, that of cows' horns and ears, represent the goddess Io, who was changed into a cow by Jupiter. The remaining heads are the same as that of Io, only without the horns and ears. All these heads are made of thin gold pressed into deep molds, backed with a flat piece, and then finished with a chasing tool; each has a filigree necklace and a loop for a pendant. Possibly at one time they all had similar pendants to that still remaining on the center head. The vases are made in a similar way, of two pieces of gold finished with a little chasing. The heads, and drops at each end, are adorned with filigree tracery. This necklace, which is Etruscan work of the finest period—about 600 B.C.—was discovered at Tarentum.

The curious earrings in the form of a snake with a goat's head bridled (Fig. 4) are very quaint in design; they are of similar work to the Etruscan work, but were found at Corfu. They are part of the "Woodhouse" collection, and are of thin gold ornamented with filigree-work.

The beautiful fibula, or safety-pin (Fig. 2), with the ram's head is a representative of a very large class; safety-pins of a similar construction have been made in all kinds of metals, and apparently by many nations. They have been largely found in Sardinia, at Camirus in Rhodes, and in France; in fact, they almost always are represented in some form or another whenever discoveries of small domestic articles have been made. This particular one is a very fine specimen. It is simple in form, but in perfect taste. The bow of the pin is decorated with a design in large granulated work, as is also the bar ending in the admirably modelled ram's head, which is solid, and in that particular different from any of the work we have hitherto described. It is delicately finished with the graving tool, and is, moreover, adorned with some very delicate granulated work. It was found at Vulci, in Etruria, and is part of the bequest of the late Sir William Temple to the British Museum.

Henry Zimmern, of Odenheimer & Zimmern, 46 Maiden Lane, New York, arrived last week on the Lahn from an extended trip to the diamond markets of Europe. Mr. Zimmern secured many novelties and is now showing them to his trade.

Marbles at L. Straus & Sons.

ONE of the most expert connoisseurs of art bric-a-brac in New York is Isidore Straus, of L. Straus & Sons, 42 to 48 Warren St. Last Spring Mr. Straus was traveling through Italy with his family for pleasure, when he was induced to visit the studios of several of the prominent sculptors in Castellina and Carrara marble. As a result he made extensive purchases of the most artistic works that were shown him, and they are now on exhibition in the salerooms of the firm. THE CIRCULAR here presents three of the many pieces that can be seen. The first is of Castellina marble and represents Cupid being disdained by Psyche. The figures are clear cut and the expressions on the countenances, one scornful, the other pleading, are depicted with admirable faithfulness.

The center figure is of Carrara marble and is entitled the "Flower of Life." It shows a young girl of the Italian type of beauty, about to remove a beautiful butterfly from her shapely shoulder. One hand is poised to lightly touch the insect while the other is represented as being held rigid so as not to disturb it. The third figure is one of a set of four representing the seasons, and, as the buds in the basket indicate, is christened "Spring." It is of Castellina marble. The stock of figures of which these are specimens range in price from $50 to $500, and were especially imported for the jewelry trade.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

BAWO & DOTTER, 30 Barclay St., New York, are showing many new goods that are adapted to the jewelry trade. They include Parisian novelties of more than ordinary attractiveness, which will undoubtedly become very popular. Among them is a fluted crystal bouquet holder having violets and pansies of enamel attached to the exterior with bright imitation diamonds in their centers. Artistically decorated card receivers with gold metal mountings are also among the new goods.

Hinrichs & Co., 31 Park Place, New York, have just received an exceedingly attractive line of Teplitz ware shaped and decorated after the Italian faience. It consists of figures, busts and groups in original designs, and decorated in colors that are harmonious and pleasing to the eye. Another line which will no doubt receive attention from the jewelry trade is Dresden ware representing beautiful woodbine arbors with roses and bright-colored flowers entwined in the lace-work of branches. The firm are also showing many new designs in pedestals of dark woods with small hand-painted Dresden panels.

Thomas Le Boutillier, of Le Boutillier & Co., 17 Murray St., New York arrived from Europe on the Umbria last week, after making extensive purchases of many original designs in English wares. It is understood that this firm will in a short time resume the importation of Parisian goods, which they abandoned six years ago.

*

A large figure of Columbus dressed in the picturesque costume of his native country and resting his hand on a globe while he looks thoughtfully into space, forms the stand for a beautiful piano lamp in the stock of the Bradley & Hubbard Mfg. Co., 21 Barclay St., New York.

Among the new figures produced by the New Jersey Lamp & Bronze Works, 44 Murray St., New York, are two representing juvenile baseball players. One is standing with upraised bat to receive the ball which the other is in the act of throwing. Card receivers of bright gold resting on onyx pillars are always seen among the new goods.

Fashion decrees that the spoon receptacle of the future shall be a richly decorated dish of some imported ware instead of the upright vessel of old. P. H. Leonard, 76 Reade St., New York, have just received a large consignment of these dishes in Limoges ware bearing hand-painted Oriental scenes on their surfaces. Another novelty introduced by the same firm is the Kosik afternoon tea cup, which is shaped exactly like an ordinary egg cup.

THE RAMBLER.

That the West in the needs and desires of its culture and refinement is rapidly widening its field is plainly evidenced by the remarkable success of the western branch, at 66 E. Lake St., of Lazarus & Rosenfeld, the well-known manufacturers and importers of china, glass, etc. Starting modestly but nine months ago they now require for the proper display of their lines a salesroom 25 x 80 feet filled with the choicest productions of their factories at Carlsbad and in Bohemia. E. H. Lyons, the Chicago manager, returned from New York, Wednesday. The firm is offering this season a very fine line of musical boxes in addition to the already miscellaneous variety of goods in art pottery and bric-a-brac.

Round and oval studs and earrings consisting of tiny brilliants almost closely sunk in a ground of blue, green, yellow or red enamel are selling well this season. A pretty variation on this theme exhibits a medium sized ruby, sapphire, topaz or emerald coming out on a ground of tiny brilliants.

The Cheerful Givers.

ON the wedding night the last silken train had swept the rice from the marble steps and the carriages had rolled away through the gathering darkness. In the library, where all was quiet, the wedding gifts were whispering together.

"How beastly dull it seems now all is over!" said the chafing dish crossly.

"No wonder I am blue," gurgled the punch bowl. "You should have heard Captain Goldby when he read the invitation. He said it meant just seventy-five dollars, and he'd be blankety blanked glad when all his friends' daughters were married."

"Ethel told her mother that I was real skimpy, but hers was the thirteenth invitation young Harding had received, and he will go without his lunch a week to pay for me," sighed the cream ladle.

"Never mind, creamy," said the souvenir spoons, "Hunter sent us and hoped we'd choke Tom some day, for he has cut him out five times this season, and Ethel was his last chance."

"Joe Lefther was engaged to Ethel," tittered the ormolu clock. "He said there was really no use in sending me, for they'd have a regular time of their own when he discovered her temper."

And the presents subsided with a faint giggle, for they thought they heard the maid coming, but it was only a little mouse securing cake for his own wedding.

Ulysse and Paul D. Nardin.

IN continuation of the series of articles instituted by THE CIRCULAR some time ago, on the celebrated horologists of Europe, a series which included Jules Jurgensen and Adolph Lange, it is but proper to devote space to the consideration of the founder and manufacturer of the justly famous Nardin watch. The manufacture of this watch was established by Ulysse Nardin in Locle, in 1846. Mr. Nardin was born in that city in 1823, and started to learn watchmaking, when very young. By conscientiousness and industry he soon became a watchmaker whose skill was in great demand. He started to manufacture a few watches on his own account in 1846. His knowledge was technical as well as practical, and he was thoroughly versed in all parts of the watch, whether simple or complicated. He studied to have the minutest part of the mechanism perfect in all its details, and by close attention to his work, by inquiry and study, his chronometers were classed among the productions of astronomical horology.

In 1862 he participated at the London Universal Exposition, at which he studied the merits of English chronometers. His watches were awarded with the prize medal. He employed only skilled, talented watchmakers whom he consulted in his work, and whom he treated as his friends. The demand for his productions increased until it became impossible for him to examine each piece himself, and he therefore, in 1866, employed Henry Rosat, whose talent and skill as a watchmaker were unquestioned.

In 1868 the authorities of the canton of Neuchatel started an annual competition at the astronomical observatory and Ulysse Nardin's chronometers won the first prizes. The director of the observatory, Dr. A. I. Hirsch, secretary of the international committee of weights and measures, expressed himself as follows in the 1868 Observatory Official Report:

"In the first rank of the list, there are two lever chronometers with flat hairspring and final curve of Philipps, both of M. Ulysse Nardin, Locle. With a mean variation of train from one day to another of only two tenths of a second, these watches are compensated almost perfectly, and between the horizontal position and the vertical one, the one varied of 0s,7, the other of 1s,35; in short, the greatest digression during the month of trial has been for the one, 1s,5, and for the other 1s,9. These are real time-keepers that would render great services even to astronomers and seamen."

The two prizes were awarded on the above report. Ulysse Nardin continued obtaining annual prizes, as follows from the Neuchatel Observatory until his death:

1868, 1st and second prize.	1873, 4th prize.
1869, 1st	1874, 2d, 3d, 4th prizes.
1870, 5th	1875, 1st, 2d prizes.
1872, 2d and 3d

In 1867 he also received a silver medal from the Paris Exhibition, and from Vienna a medal of progress in 1873. In February, ULYSSE NARDIN.

1876, Ulysse Nardin died, his son Paul D. Nardin (born in 1855), his pupil and a graduate of the horological school of Locle, succeeding him.

Paul D. Nardin did not leave the reputation of the watch remain where it was, but was successful in obtaining a prix d'honneur in Geneva, at the international rating observatory, in a competition of twelve manufacturers. The prize was accompanied by a grand gold medal. The watch that won this prize had been adjusted by Paul D. Nardin. After having been successful with his pocket chronometer and complicated watches, he added to his product a marine chronometer, and chronometers with an auxiliary electric movement, which gave excellent result, and for which he received first prize in 1883, with the following official report:

"At first, the three marine chronometers of M. Ulysse Nardin, Locle, fulfil very largely the conditions of the competition and are real models of timing. In conformity with the prescriptions of Art. 8 of the regulations, it is $n^{\circ} \frac{6}{544}$ which has to get the prize, because it presented the smallest diurnal variation (0s,16) but also for the two others this variation does not exceed 0s,2.

"The merit of the two first pieces of the table is so much more remarkable that they present an exceptional intricacy, being provided with an auxiliary electric movement destined to be of some use for the chronographic registration. Not only did the maker succeed in spite of this intricacy to secure to them a train of a regularity that can be compared to that of clocks, but what is remarkable, he succeeded in keeping this steady train whether the electric movement works or not. One really sees in the table that the difference of the diurnal rate in these two conditions, is for the one of the pieces of 0s.34 and for the other of 0s.28 only. As the astronomers use the registration only a few hours daily, one sees that the variation proceeding from the electric movement performance, will be only of some hundredths of a second, and that they can consequently with perfect security use such chronometers to carry the time of stars observation, for instance, to that of the exchange of the signals in the telegraphic determination of longitude, for which these instruments, according to the experiment we made in Switzerland, are preferable to the clocks of a second rank which are so difficultly removed and fixed in the observatories of the country. It is only after several years of great exertions that M. Ulysse Nardin obtained this fine result and we are happy to ascertain his

SOUVENIR SPOON.

The striking feature of this attractive spoon is the allegorical design at the top of the handle representing Victory, trumpet and laurel in hand, seated on the globe—a very poetical treatment of the event to be commemorated.

The handle shows also an architectural column, festooned with floral garlands, typical of the festive character of the occasion.

The bowl can be ordered either with the bird's-eye view of the Exposition buildings and grounds as shown, or plain.

and perplex the shopmen by his questions and remarks.

One evening he had taken a good deal of wine, when he went into a little watchmaker's shop, and, assuming the accent and air of a countryman, said:

"Sir, what do you call those little machines hanging there?"

"Watches," replied the shopkeeper.

"What are they for?"

"To indicate the time."

"Really? I have heard of them. How much do they cost?"

"Here is one for two hundred francs, and one for a hundred francs; and here are some for fifty and twenty-five francs."

"Are there printed directions about making them go?"

"No; they have to be wound up every day with a key."

"Will you show me how, sir?"

"This way. You see it is not difficult."

"And must one wind it in the evening or in the morning?"

"You must wind yours in the morning."

"Why in the morning?"

"Because in the evening you are drunk, M. Romieu, and might break it."

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 24, 1892.

No. 4.

AN EXCELLENT EXAMPLE OF ETCHING ON SILVER.

A FITTING tribute to the excellence of American silversmithing has been paid by a shooting club of Havana, Cuba, to the Alvin Mfg. Co., New York. The concern has manufactured for this club a magnificent shooting trophy, the order having been placed with the company by a representative of the organization while he was temporarily stopping in New York.

The trophy is in the shape of a loving cup, eight inches in height. It has on the front an etching representing a sportsman aiming at a bird on the wing, with trees and grass forming a background. The reverse side of the cup contains the following inscription within a laurel wreath tied by a bowknot: "El Ferro Carril de Marianao al Vencedor del Tiro de Pichon en 1892" (The Shooting Club of Marianao to the Winner of the Pigeon Shooting in 1892.)

Rising upward from the sides of the trophy in graceful curves are the handles, which extend several inches above the rim and are connected with the body of the vessel by brackets. A smiling satyr's face ornaments each handle. The rim is ornamented with heavy applied scroll work, and the general outline, workmanship and other details of the cup reflect considerable credit on the manufacturers.

Mary Stuart's Casket.

AN object of great interest in the Magniac collection, recently sold, was the casket of ivory, 6 inches long, 4 1/4 inches high, which formerly belonged to Mary Stuart, and was bid in on the third day of the sale for £1,900. The casket, from its armorial bearings, evidently made for an English prince or princess, is probably the work of a French artist, it having every characteristic of the style of ivory sculpture executed in France in the fourteenth century. The casket remained in the possession of the Stuarts to the end, Cardinal York calling it the "Royal Stuart coffer." At his death at Rome in 1807, when it contained nine letters of the Queen of Scots, it was purchased by the Dowager Duchess of Cleveland, and from her collection Hollingsworth Magniac secured it.

This beautiful object is carved in high relief with the legend of St. Eustace, which is represented in sixteen sunken panels, eight being on the lid, three at the front and back and two at the ends. The mounting is silver gilt and enameled. The hinges, clamps, lock and handle are diapered with champlevé fleurs-de-lis and passant lions semblé on a ground of translucent blue enamel, while on the lock plate, enameled in gold, is embla-

TO THE TRADE:

The temporary stagnation in the manufacturing districts throughout Europe for the past six months has been productive in our securing remarkable values for the Fall and Holiday Season. Many of the vast and extensive potteries preferred orders rather than close down their shops, while the smaller manufacturers strained their inventive genius to the utmost and have made their prices to suit American demands.

Our Art department is full of original, quaint, choice and inexpensive objects of Art. The Standard Royal Wares are fully represented in our Bric-a-Brac department. Considerable attention has been devoted in getting up novelties to retail at popular prices, and we shall show this season exceptionally good values in this particular line. We propose to give you the benefit of the advantages obtained, and trust you will favor us with a call when in the city.

The Man Who Swindled Pennsylvania Jewelers Captured.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Aug. 17.—Fred A. Rahn, the young man who secured gold watches from a number of jewelers in this city and in Bethlehem, as reported in THE CIRCULAR two weeks ago, has been captured in Philadelphia. He has been brought to Allentown and taken before Alderman Jones on the charge of obtaining musical merchandise from Miller & Hutchinson, this city, under false pretenses.

The alderman committed Rahn to jail in default of bail for trial at the next term of court.

Two Burglaries in Chester in Three Days.

CHESTER, PA., Aug. 17.—A thief on Sunday night cut out a hole in the window of Herbert Ziegler's jewelry store, and took a dozen knives and a pocket lamp.

An attempt was made to burglarize the jewelry store of S. G. Massey, last night. A hole was made in the window by breaking the small glass panel at the side of the bulk window, and the burglar then scooped three jewelry boxes toward the hole with a thin stick. He was evidently frightened off by some one, as the stick used was in the window this morning and the boxes were still there when Mr. Massey opened the store.

Mining for Opals in Washington.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 17.—Washington has an opal mine that promises within a few years to astonish the world. A few years ago a prospector found a bed of opals in Whitman county four and a half miles west of Moscow, Idaho. He sold his find to George F. Glaser, dealer in precious stones, Denver, Col. Mr. Glaser organized the North American Gem Opal Mining Co., with a capital stock of $250,000 and with officers as follows: Simon Frankel, New York, president; E. C. Hall, Marcus, Idaho, vice-president and manager; George F. Glaser, Denver, secretary, and Henry Bohm, Denver, treasurer.

The opals are found in a basaltic rock and clay formation, the rock being somewhat softer than usual for that character, and very porous and full of cavities. These holes or cavities are usually filled with a peculiar clay, the composition of which is supposed to be silica and iron. The opals are found in these holes or pockets, but sometimes in the hard rock, or in the seams between the layers of rock.

The company are now working nine men beside the superintendent. This force will be increased shortly.

E. Ingraham, the Widely Known Clock Manufacturer, Expires.

BRISTOL, Conn., Aug. 16.—Edward Ingraham, president of the E. Ingraham Co., died early this morning at his home in this city, after an illness of about two days duration. Mr. Ingraham's health had not been good for some ten years, and all his efforts by counsel with the best physicians, by careful living and travel in Europe, the south and other sections, had not availed to restore it. The immediate cause of death was the culmination of these disorders attacking the heart and kidneys.

Mr. Ingraham was born April 10, 1830, in Bristol, and, with the exception of a few years, had passed his lifetime manufacturing clocks and in other enterprises at home and abroad. From comparatively small beginnings the E. Ingraham Co. has grown to be one of the largest manufacturers of clocks in the country. It was a business Mr. Ingraham understood thoroughly in all its details, and, in the diligent pursuit of which he spent the best years of his life. For the past few years he had not been active in its prosecution except as an adviser, the general management being in the hands of his sons.

The deceased's tastes were refined and his fund of information concerned many branches of business activity, literature, scientific developments, and all things pertaining to nature and nature's workings.

Mr. Ingraham was the kindest of fathers, the most loyal of friends, the wisest of counselors. His hand was always open to those who needed aid. He was possessed of an acute discernment, his conclusions were formed immediately, and his plans were executed smoothly but quickly. So quiet was his manner that very few appreciated the great executive ability which was one of his marked characteristics. His inclinations were not toward public life, and he never sought political preferment, but his influence in public affairs was of great weight. Always a consistent Republican, he was called to represent Bristol in the Legislature when that town was strongly Democratic, and he filled numerous local offices on the board of selectmen, the board of school visitors and the board of fire commissioners.

The high character and reputation for responsibility and solidity of the employes of the E. Ingraham Co. have often been remarked, and his influence, with his foresight and helpful planning, no doubt, had much to do with the accomplishment of this result, with the fact that they so generally are owners of their own homes. The deceased leaves a wife, three sons and two daughters.

THE FUNERAL SERVICES.

BRISTOL, Conn., Aug. 18.—The funeral services of the late Edward Ingraham were held this afternoon at the Congregational Church. The edifice was packed with relatives and friends. The bearers were Messrs. Henry Hutchinson, A. D. Webster, G. B. Chapin, Thomas Harrigan, Henry Hungerford and Seth Barnes, all employes of the factory.

The front seats in the church were reserved for relatives, the sides being occupied by workmen from the factories. After the close of the service, the body was taken to the West Cemetery. Nearly 300 workmen followed their beloved employer to his final resting place.

He Wanted Cat Poison, but he was Sat-

BUTTE, Mon., Aug. 17.—Last Wednesday evening Leys & Co. were visited by a cool and clever sneak thief. The man ostensibly wanted to purchase some poison at Galogally's drug store, which occupies a portion of the store. The clerk informed the man that he would have to see Mr. Galogally, who was at that time engaged in conversation in the front portion of the store. The man said he would wait, and walked around the store for a few minutes.

Mr. Christie, of the jewelry store, was at this time removing the jewelry and valuables from the show window, and had deposited a tray of rings and scarf pins on the safe in the rear of the store. Unobserved the man coolly walked to the rear of the store and appropriated about half the contents of the tray. When he secured all he wanted he walked out the door, and he had a good start when the theft was discovered. The jewelry stolen is valued at about $200.

Thomas Totten Surprised on his Return from the Country.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 19.—James Totten, of Totten Bros., has returned from Cottage City, where he has been ill for a week. On his arrival at his residence, he found the house open and every drawer ransacked.

An investigation showed that the place had been entered twice during his absence. To THE CIRCULAR representative Mr. Totten stated his loss amounted to $115.

Two Regretted Deaths in the Attleboros.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 20.—Two deaths occurred in the Attleboros this week that were sincerely regretted. Monday evening August Greve, for many years one of F. M. Whiting & Co.'s leading silversmiths and a prominent society man and musician dropped dead while singing at the rehearsal of the Society Frohsinn. The shop was closed during the afternoon of the day of the funeral.

Wednesday morning, Mrs. Charles E. Hayward, widow of the late E. C. Hayward, manufacturing jeweler, and mother of Walter E. Hayward, of Hayward & Sweet, died quite suddenly. The funeral Friday afternoon was attended by many members of the trade.

St. John's Spoon.

The front handle of this spoon is a rich Gothic design, with a full-length figure of St. John, bearing a chalice. At his feet is his emblem, an eagle. The handle represents a tapering shaft, ending with a cross, which is partially encircled by Easter lilies. In the bowl appears a fac-simile design of the new Cathedral of St. John, the Beloved Disciple.

On the reverse side of the bowl is the original Greek text, "God is Love," while above the motto is the cross of the King's Daughters.

A Creditor's Bill Filed Against J. Stern & Co.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 18.—On Aug. 15 Jacob Franks, who holds a note for $5,000 against J. Stern & Co., filed a creditor's bill in the Superior Court for $5,345. In his bill Franks claims unlawful conspiracy and agreement between Daniel Stern and M. S. Hyland, in which they corruptly agreed and combined to fraudulently obtain and dispose of the assets of J. Stern & Co., and to cheat and defraud the creditors out of their just demands. The bill avers the fact to be that Jose Stern was not in any manner indebted to Daniel Stern; that the judgment was entered without any consideration whatever, and that there is no sum due upon the judgment. The same is charged against the judgment note given Hyland.

The bill states the fact of Stern representing to Franks that he had $18,000 stock and $2,500 accounts. Franks claims Stern removed from his (Stern's) workrooms a large amount of stock, and that D. Stern and Hyland hold in secret trust, stock worth far in excess of their judgments, and that such property should be applied to satisfy his judgment. Franks asks the court to appoint pendente lite a receiver and that the sheriff be restrained from disposing of the proceeds of the sale. He also asks that defendants be directed to appear September 1 to make answer. The injunction was granted.

It is now said there are very few accounts, and at the sheriff's sale Monday, August 15, with a number of manufacturing jewelers present, Daniel Stern bought in the assets for $3,000. He paid but $200 down, however, and the sale has been declared forfeited and a new sale ordered for August 20.

Two Brothers Die Under Peculiar Circumstances.

EUTAW, Ala., Aug. 17.—Adolf Gantzhorn, recently died under peculiar circumstances. More than a year ago he and several friends were bathing in the Tombigbee river when Mr. Gantzhorn was bit on the tongue by some insect, supposed to be a spider. He suffered but little at first, but six months afterward he was forced to go to New York for treatment, the wound having become so severe.

Soon after he returned a cancer set in on the tongue, and he died by inches. A strange feature of this affair is that just before Mr. Gantzhorn's death, his brother, Carl Gantzhorn, a Birmingham watchmaker, was summoned to his bedside. He left Birmingham for Eutaw, but fell asleep and was taken beyond his destination. He got off at Livingston, thirty miles below Eutaw, and so anxious was he to see his dying brother, that he set out walking in the night. He never reached Eutaw. Search parties have been at work for a week, and the missing man's body has just been found in the river near the spot where his brother, little more than a year ago, was bit by a spider.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO
THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

Silver and Silver-plated Wares at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 22.—A display of remarkable attractiveness, and one which will interest every visitor to the Fair, will be the gold and silverware exhibit in the Manufactures Department. Besides silver ware the display will include plated ware on hard or nickel silver foundations and on soft metal alloys, also nickel, nickel-silver, aluminum, and aluminum-silver ware, and many varieties of wares of mixed metals, such as Mokumé ware, inlaid and incrustated wares and niello work. Indications point to a display of such goods at the World's Columbian Exposition which will be far superior to any ever before given. The majority of the Chicago representatives of eastern houses have recently visited the factories and discussed the question of Fair exhibits, and while somewhat reserved in giving expression to the details of their intentions, they have no hesitancy in speaking of their general plans.

A. L. Sercomb, manager for the Meriden Britannia Co., was absent from the city. J. W. Meacham, speaking for the company, said: "We will make a large and elegant exhibit, and orders for cases are now in the hands of the makers. We will have some very handsome special pieces, but the details are left to our designers. A number of departures from the ordinary will be features of our display. Our exhibit will go far ahead of anything we have ever before attempted."

Said W. W. Thacher, western manager for Simpson, Hall, Miller & Co.: "We went so far as to draw plans, but the Fair authorities could not tell us about space, and besides, the time is too short and the expense considerable. We couldn't make a respectable showing for less than $50,000 or $60,000, and we withdrew our application."

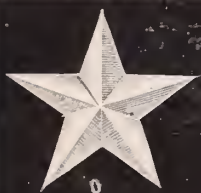

In the absence of Mr Prentiss, of the Gorham Mfg. Co., Walter V. Ghislin, in charge of the Chicago office, did not feel justified in speaking for publication. It is understood the Gorham people could not be assured of the space required to properly represent their house, and withdrew their application.

H. H. Walton, Chicago manager for the Meriden Silver Plate Co., said his people had so much trouble with the Centennial, and were placed at such great expense compared to benefits derived, that they decided to keep hands off in the present instance. No application was made.

R. C. Demarest, Chicago manager for the Barbour Silver Co., is not informed of the intentions of his company.

"The Rogers & Hamilton Co. will make a fine exhibit," said manager M. N. Burchard. "We will make a special effort in a display of the Crown Hamilton ware."

"Our application was the first in," said manager G. J. Corey, of the Pairpoint Mfg. Co. "I also made application for the Mt. Washington Glass Co., and the cases for both exhibits are now under construction. The Pairpoint Mfg. Co. exhibited at the Boston Mechanics' Exposition in 1887, at the Minneapolis Exposition in 1890, and last Fall at the Chicago Interstate Exposition. Our display at the World's Fair will be ten times as fine as any we have ever before attempted. We have some beautiful goods to show."

George M. Wallace, of R. Wallace & Sons Mfg. Co., said: "We will make no exhibit. We do not manufacture britannia hollow ware, confining ourselves to flat ware, in all kinds of metals, and flat ware being not remarkable for showiness, we concluded to leave the field for others."

Reed & Barton have not fully decided, so it is said.

The Holmes & Edwards Silver Co., and the Manhattan Silver Plate Co., represented by T. H. Purple, will be fully represented, as will the Wm. Rogers Mfg. Co., Hartford.

The Towle Mfg. Co. have not applied for space and will make no exhibit. Said manager J. A. Todd: "We prefer to keep our best artisans on work for regular customers rather than on special exhibits for the Fair. The expense of an exhibit would also be considerable."

The Nebraska Hammer to Drive the Montana Nail.

OMAHA, Neb. Aug. 20.—The Nebraska Hammer is to be furnished by Nebraska women to Mrs. Potter Palmer, president of the board of lady managers of the Columbian Commission, to drive the last nail in the Woman's Building. Mrs. E. C. Langworthy, one of the lady managers for Nebraska, obtained this privilege for her State, and addressing 400 women, asked them to obtain dollar collections toward defraying the cost of the hammer, and also advertised for designs. Twenty-seven were submitted, from which the one herewith was selected. It was the design of Mrs. Mary F. Ragan, of Sydney, Neb.

It represents a typical claw hammer with the national flag draped in graceful folds around it, wrought in gold, the staff of pearl being surmounted by the American eagle, the bird of liberty. The stars are to be set with diamonds; the head of the hammer is to be of silver, upon the face of which will appear in gold relief the seal of Nebraska. The handle is to be composed of the various woods indigenous to the soil of the State, several of historic interest, having already been furnished notably one from old Fort Phil Kearny, a piece of cedar, arranged in alternating light and dark, upon which will be wrought in high relief miniature designs emblematical of the State. A broad band of gold will encircle the handle, upon one side of which will be engraved "The Women of Nebraska."

The nail which this hammer is to drive will be donated by Montana, and will be equally handsome. The metals used in its construction are gold, silver and copper, arranged as a brooch in the shape of the State seal. The nail rests on a slide back of the pin. The top of the shield is set with a Montana sapphire, said to be but little inferior to the one recently purchased by Baroness Burdett-Coutts for $500. The nail will be presented to Mrs. Potter Palmer. The hammer will be furnished by Max Meyer & Bro. Co., Omaha, Neb.

"Marshall's gold nugget" will be exhibited at the World's Fair by California. This is the identical nugget which Marshall picked up in the American River, Feb. 16, 1848, when selecting a site for Sutter's mill, and which constituted the first discovery of gold in California. The nugget is about the size of a lima bean.

A gang of thieves followed the circus to Racine, Wis., last week. At the jewelry store of Jorgen Frederickson, 804 State st., twenty gold watches and twenty gold rings, valued at $600, were stolen. Mr. Frederickson went up town to see the parade. When he returned, the door of his store was open and the property gone.

A young man employed by F. Simon, Lonaconing, Md., was engaged in cleaning up the store one day last week, when he happened to find Mr. Simon's loaded revolver. He claims he was moving it from one place to another, when it was accidentally discharged, the ball going through the front window and ruining it.

A sad accident occurred at Shelton, Wash., on Aug. 7th. B. S. Barger, a jeweler, and John Rodenbuger, a 14-year-old boy, were hunting near that place and had become separated. The boy in jumping over a log in a thicket was mistaken for a deer by Barger, who shot, killing him instantly. Barger, who is nearly insane over the affair, was acquitted at the coroner's inquest.

Jeweler Carlson Cleverly Planned to Capture a Thief.

PITTSBURGH, PA., Aug. 20.—Henry Robinson tried last week the flim-flam game on A. Carlson, 109 Carson St. S. S. The man had been loafing around Carlson's jewelry store lately and the stock had gradually begun to mysteriously disappear, but it was impossible to locate the culprit. Suspicion rested upon Robinson, and on Wednesday, when he came into the store, presumably to have a watch repaired, the proprietor kept an eye upon him.

After giving instructions about the watch, he asked to see some rings. A tray of rings that had been previously counted, was placed before him for inspection, while Mr. Carlson pretended to busy himself in another part of the store. Robinson toyed with the rings for some time, when he claimed he wanted to see something better. Mr. Carlson counted the rings and found one missing, but said nothing and placed two more bunches of rings before the pseudo-customer, when the same proceedings were gone through with.

Robinson pretended that the goods did not suit him, when Mr. Carlson discovered two more rings missing. Telling his wife in German to get an officer, he then engaged Robinson in conversation until the officer arrived, when the accused was taken to the station house. When searched, the missing rings were found on his person and he was placed in a cell. Mr. Carlson then was served a search warrant for the man's room where four other rings, a pair of spectacles and a quantity of jewelry were found in his trunk.

B. H. Broer Transfers his Stock to Secure a Claim.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 22.—B. H. Broer, 606 St. Clair St., has turned his stock over to John Ketcham to secure a claim of about $6,600 held by the Ketcham National Bank. The stock which is valued at $10,000, is being invoiced. Robert Nelson & Co., wholesale jewelers of this city, and other concerns have claims against Mr. Broer which will be presented and undoubtedly recognized.

The Firm of Durand & Co. Dissolved.

Durand, who will start in another branch of the trade at 49 Franklin St. The business, however, will continue under the old name, Wallace Durand and Joseph G. Ward, who has been superintendent of the factory for nearly twenty years, conducting the firm. The retiring member is the eldest son of James M. Durand, who established the business about sixty years ago.

The Stock of H. E. Heacock Attached.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Aug. 17.—The stock of H. E. Heacock, 415 4th St., was taken possession of by the sheriff yesterday afternoon under a writ of attachment sued out by C. H. Knights & Co., Chicago, to secure a claim against Heacock for $7,495.75. Representatives of the creditors gave as a reason for making the attachment that Heacock did not meet his obligations to them when they became due, and allege in the petition they filed with the clerk of courts that they have reason to believe that Heacock was disposing of his goods for the purpose of defrauding his creditors.

Competent judges say that the stock attached is worth nearly twice as much as the claim. Mr. Heacock started in business in this city about six months ago. It is understood that he will try to regain possession of the stock by giving a bond to secure the claim of Knights & Co., as he thinks that with a little time he will be able to adjust his matters to the satisfaction of all creditors.

A Defaulting Sheriff Returns Jewelry he Absconded with.

ANNISTON, Ala., Aug. 18.—Sheriff L. T. Grant, who absconded from Shelby county last May, leaving several people mourning, has been heard from. Just before leaving he came to this city and bought of Deering & Robinson, jewelers, a diamond ring and shirt buttons valued at over $200, promising to pay for them in a few days, but he never did so. This week Deering & Robinson received a neat package by mail and the missing jewelry was found to be contained therein.

The American Horological Society.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 17.—The third meeting of the American Horological Society was held in the club rooms of the Sherman House, Tuesday evening, Aug. 9. The society was called to order by President Gribi. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Eight applications for membership were presented. Messrs. Bryant, Parsons and Walker were appointed a committee on applications by the chair. They reported favorably on the applications of James Dangerfield, Elgin, Ill.; J. L. Schweitzer, Selma, Ala.; Thos. J. Juzek, Elgin, Ill.; Kitt Gould, Kensington, Ill.; C. S. Perry, Chicago; Robert Hallex, Chicago; Franz Lorens, Chicago, and Timothy Dailey, Chicago. On a rising vote they were declared elected unanimously to membership.

The committee on order of business then reported and their report was adopted. C. S. Perry then explained the workings of the new Dulaney self-winding and synchronizing clock, one of the clocks being erected in the club room. The explanation proved very interesting and profitable to the watchmakers present. At the end of the lecture a vote of thanks was accorded to Messrs. C. S. Perry and C. M. Crook for their kindness. A paper on "Art in Watch Work," by J. L. Finn, Elyria, O., a member, was then read.

After an informal discussion of business the meeting adjourned until the second Tuesday in September.

Charles H. Perkins is erecting a three-story brick building at the corner of Sprague and Harrison Sts., this city, which is to be devoted to the purposes of manufacturing jewelers, and will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. Optician W. K. Millar Drowned while Endeavoring to Save his Wife.

BOSTON, Mass.—While bathing in the surf at the foot of Atlantic Hill, Nantasket Beach, at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, Wm. K. Millar, of Millar & Welch, opticians, was drowned. He came from his summer cottage, the Haselmere, on Center Hill, with his wife, and after procuring bathing suits at the Atlantic House bath house, the two entered the surf. Mrs. Millar got beyond her depth and called for her husband to come to her assistance. In his exertions to reach her it is supposed that he received a shock of paralysis or a stroke of apoplexy, as he was seen to fall over into the surf. Men rushed to his assistance and brought him ashore. Dr. Carter and several other physicians worked over the body for some time attempting to resuscitate him, but were unsuccessful. Mrs. Millar was assisted ashore by several bathers.

Mr. Millar was a son of John L. Millar, optician for many years at the corner of Mark and Washington sts. He entered the employ of his father at an early age and succeeded him in business some years ago. He was about 46 years of age. He was twice married. Mr. Millar leaves one son by his first wife, a lad of 13 years. Deceased was a prominent member of the First Corps of Cadets and had many friends in the trade.

Hugh Oppenheimer last week moved his store from 620 Wyandotte St. to the Mercantile building at the southeast corner of 6th and Wyandotte Sts. His new room is twice the size of the old one and has light from two sides. Much new furniture has been put in.

The crowds which passed through this city last week to and from the Knights Templar conclave in Denver, and those now coming here for the Knights of Pythias encampment here this week, have done much to enliven a dull season for the jewelers. The city is now decorated in blue, gold and red for the Pythians, and the jewelers have all made pretty show windows. The Jaccard Watch & Jewelry Co. will establish stands in the hotels and depots for the sale of the official badge. All the jewelers have designed spoons of the encampment.

Henry E. Beguelin Unexpectedly Passes Away.

Henry Eugene Beguelin, of Cross & Beguelin, 17 Maiden Lane, New York, died early Saturday morning at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where he had gone in search of health. Mr. Beguelin had been a sufferer from gout for many years, and on July 15 he went to Saratoga for rest and recreation. At that time he was suffering acutely, and it was expected that the change of air and scenery would have a beneficial effect. At first these expectations were realized, and Mr. Beguelin began rapidly to regain health and vigor. Soon after his arrival in Saratoga he was seen by his partner, Mr. Cross, and he then appeared to have entirely recovered his health. Ten days ago, however, the old trouble again made its appearance, and Mr. Beguelin was obliged to take to his bed. He became rapidly worse and the complaint finally reached the heart.

Thursday evening Mr. Cross was telegraphed for, and immediately went to Saratoga. Mr. Beguelin died at a quarter past twelve Saturday morning. The remains were taken to the deceased's late residence, 44 8th Ave., Brooklyn, on the same day. The funeral services took place yesterday afternoon at the residence, and were attended by all the employes of the deceased and many friends in the jewelry trade. The interment was in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Beguelin was born in Locle, Switzerland, in 1840, his father being Henry Beguelin, a well-known manufacturer of watches, whose products were sent all over the world. Although Henry Beguelin died some years ago, the Beguelin watch, owing to the son, is still on the market and enjoys a wide reputation. Mr. Beguelin received his education in his native country and when twenty years of age came to America and entered the office of his uncle, Henry Ginnel. He remained there but one year and then returned to Switzerland. In 1862 he again came to America and entered into partnership with Mr. Cross, forming the firm of Cross & Beguelin, which imported a general line of Swiss watches. An office was opened at 21 Maiden Lane, where for twenty-eight years the firm continued business. In February, 1891, the business was removed to 17 Maiden Lane.

Mr. Beguelin was a business man of rare attainments, being cool and deliberate under the most trying circumstances. He possessed a nature that endeared him to every one with whom he was brought in contact. During the many years of his business relationship with Mr. Cross, the partners never had a misunderstanding, and his death is a severe blow to the latter, who in explaining Mr. Beguelin's nature to a CIRCULAR reporter, said, "We were more like brothers than partners in business." Mr. Beguelin was a trustee of the South Congregational Church of Brooklyn and a member of the Montauk Club and the Riding and Driving Club of that city.

The Boldest Robbery Chronicled in Tacoma's History.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 18.—The boldest robbery chronicled in the history of Tacoma took place Monday noon, when the store of Adolph Mierow was entered and $2,000 worth of goods stolen. Mr. Mierow's store is in the heart of the business portion of the city. It was his custom to close at 12 o'clock to go to luncheon. Monday he left a few minutes before his accustomed time, on account of the illness of his wife. When he returned, 45 minutes later, he found three trays of watches and two dozen gold rings missing from the window. Investigating, he found that the back door had been forced by a jimmy. Passers-by previous to this had noticed two men in shirt sleeves busily removing trays from the window and emptying the show case of its contents, but thought nothing of it.

Geo. W. Shiebler's House Ransacked of Valuable Silver and Jewelry.

George W. Shiebler, of the Geo. W. Shiebler Co., 179 Broadway, New York, lives with his family at 483 Washington Ave., Brooklyn. Last Monday evening he returned from Brentwood, L. I., where he had been spending the hot months. He retired early but enjoyed very little sleep.

Early the next morning a servant knocked at his room door and asked if the silver had been removed from the dining-room. He answered in the negative and at once started an investigation. It was found that during the night burglars had ransacked the house. The family silver, which included many rare pieces, especially made for Mr. Shiebler, had been taken, but the plated ware was untouched. The goods stolen amount to over $1,000 in value and include many pieces of jewelry that were especially valuable for their originality of design.

Among the African Diamond Mines.

THE SEPTEMBER EXHIBITION AN ASSURED SUCCESS—THE DEMAND FOR DIAMONDS HEAVIER AND STEADIER—TWENTY-FOUR HOURS A DAY AT DE BEERS—GOOD FINDS AT THE RIVER DIGGINGS—DIAMOND WINNING A TKLIPDAM—KOFFYFONTEIN ABANDONED.

KIMBERLEY, July 11, 1892.—There are many indications that the Exhibition period will be a busy and interesting one. The applications for space have exceeded all calculations, and additional annexes have to be provided. The diamonds and gold to be exhibited aggregate nearly a million pounds in value. As excursions have been arranged from Europe, we expect a good number of visitors from that quarter. Readers of THE CIRCULAR who can spare the time have now before them a grand opportunity of combining business with pleasure and improving their health by an excursion in this direction.

A heavy demand for diamonds has set in during the past fortnight and prices are much steadier. Cables to-day from Europe, America and India are ore satisfactory than for a long time past.

Work at the great De Beers mine goes merrily on throughout the whole of the twenty-four hours of the day. There is a partial cessation on Sunday, but it is not made a day of rest. An immense number of electric lights are in use at night, both in the mine and at the surface. I do not think it has been previously stated that the Rothschilds, the famous European financiers, are interested in the De Beers and Kimberley mines to the extent of two million pounds.

There have been some unusually good finds at the river diggings around Herbon and Barkly West, the last few weeks. One lucky old digger, Jameson, has found near the latter place 1,750 karats in a fortnight, and most of it is valuable stuff. As showing the uncertainties of diamond digging, it should nevertheless be stated that Jameson has been at work for seven years in the district and has never previously been able to more than eke out a poor living. An old German the other day unearthed a diamond worth £170 before he had been at work three hours. In the very next claim an experienced digger has been toiling for over six months and has found nothing. At the present moment there are between two and three thousand white men engaged in diamond seeking on the banks and in the bed of the Baal River. Cattle returns show that during the first half of the present year 61,532 karats of diamonds have been won of an estimated value of £14,600. The stones are usually of a better quality than those obtained from the Kimberley and De Beers mines.

At Klipdam several fine stones have been found this week. One is a little beauty of 38½ karats. Other sizable gems have been found of 38 and 29 karats respectively, while many pretty green stones of from 2½ to 9 karats have rewarded the fortunate finders.

Koffyfontein mine in the Free State has been abandoned for the present. Until diamonds increase in value, it will not pay a man to work his mine, which is known to be a costly one. Where any great depth has to be reached the quest for diamonds becomes a most expensive process. Were this not the case, fully a score new mines could be opened in this district and the production of diamonds greatly increased. ST. GEORGE'S.

THE subject of this sketch was born in London England, in 1853, and very soon after this event the family emigrated to America, establishing their new home in Boston. Young Strickland had an education in the public schools until 1871, when he embarked upon a business career by obtaining a situation with the American Baptist Publication Society. In 1874, he opened a fancy goods store in Boston. Later he removed to Milwaukee, Wis., where, in 1876, he opened a large fancy goods store, which proved successful until the disastrous effects of the great panic were felt in every important city of the Union, and Mr. Strickland's new store was closed out. Soon after he went to Chicago and almost immediately obtained a situation with Col. G. A. Harmount, who had then only recently opened a western agency for the New Haven Clock Co., in Chicago.

to the present time, or for over thirteen years, he has been a loyal, energetic and successful representative, and it is not strange that such service won for him the esteem and confidence of the officials at the

New Haven factories, and that upon the changes taking place incident to the prolonged and serious illness of Col. Harmount, the management of the western affairs of the company were confided to him. Although born in England, he is, to use his own expression, intensely American in everything, believing in even a greater destiny for America, her people, her institutions, and particularly her clocks. It is one of Mr. Strickland's hobbies to collect autographs of celebrated persons.

VOL. XXV. AUG. 24, 1892. No. 4.

It is to be regretted that the time given for preparation of displays for the World's Columbian Exposition is necessarily so short as to curtail somewhat the elaborate exhibits of the most noted silverware manufacturers and force others to forego making exhibits; but it is understood that first-class artisans are now steadily employed on masterpieces in some of the leading houses. When one reflects that it takes a single workman many months to complete a single piece, and that several years should be given the silver houses to produce the maximum of art in their product, the perseverance of American manufacturers in overcoming obstacles cannot fail to be recognized.

A Week of Sadness. THE characteristic of the news of the past week is a sad one. In the death of Henry Eugene Beguelin the trade loses one of its most complete business men. Through his efforts, to a large extent, one of the most extensive concerns in the trade was built up; yet he was still a comparatively young man, and the numerous persons who will picture to their minds the large, healthful appearance of Mr. Beguelin will be shocked to learn of his sudden demise. Edward Ingraham, whose death also occurred last week, was a master of every detail of the clock business, in the diligent pursuit of which he spent the best years of his life. Many members of the trade will also be grieved to learn of the decease of Henry A. Monroe.

Our Trade with Canada. WHATEVER may be the sequel of the desire for closer commercial relations with Canada, it is evident that some, if not the most of our manufactures find favor in the markets of our northern neighbor. Among the principal imports into Canada from the United States, watch and clock movements prominently figure, while of gold and silver jewelry the United States furnish Canada four times more than do all the other countries combined. It is to be hoped that a reciprocity treaty which will prove of benefit to the two countries will before long be consummated.

General Reasons for a National Bankruptcy Law. AMONG the subjects upon which Congress failed to pass at its last session one of the most important was that of a national bankruptcy law. The measure got no further than a report by the House Judiciary Committee, a majority of which declared in favor of the enactment of the Torrey Bankruptcy bill. Owing to the prominence of other measures at the close of the session, the report recommending the passage of the bill has not received the attention it deserved. The report is a strong one, and it sets forth in a convincing way the reasons why the passage of such a measure is desirable. The report opens by saying that in the absence of a national bankruptcy law, most of the States have legislated in response to the needs of their respective citizens as far as their powers upon the subject extended, but that these powers under the Constitution are incomplete, and that many of the laws thus enacted have proved to be rather a protection to rogues than a benefit to honest people. The passage of these laws by the several State Legislatures is regarded as constituting conclusive proof of the necessity for a bankruptcy law. It is contended that the several State insolvency laws should be superseded by a single one embodying the wisdom of all of them and adequately protecting the property rights of all citizens. The substitution of such a law for the many State laws will, it is urged, among other things reduce the aggregate expense of bankruptcy administration.

Henry A. Monroe Expires After a Long Illness.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 18.—Henry A. Monroe died at his summer residence at Nayatt yesterday after a long illness. Mr. Monroe was a member of the firm of J. B. Mathewson & Co., manufacturing jewelers, and was quite prominent in banking circles, being a director in the Phoenix and Globe Banks.

Henry Bohm, of the Henry Bohm Co. (inc.), Denver, Col., sails for Europe to-morrow on the Fuerst Bismarck to buy diamonds, novelties, etc.

The Week in Brief.

THE death occurred of Henry E. Beguelin, of Cross & Beguelin, New York.—B. H. Broer, Toledo, O., transferred his stock to secure a creditor—Durand & Co., New York and Newark, N. S. Goodman, Philadelphia, Pa., was robbed—James Wolf was arrested in Toledo, O., on suspicion of being a jewelry thief—The Crescent Watch Case Co. will open offices in Chicago—Assignee Kern, of O. F. Zimmerman, Jeffersonville, Ind., filed his schedules—Hewitt & Co., Salem, Mass., filed a petition in insolvency—The funeral of E. Ingraham, of the E. Ingraham Co., Bristol, Conn., took place—Fred A. Hayward, Attleboro, Mass., expired—A creditors' bill was filed against J. Stern & Co., Chicago—Adolph Gantzhorn, Eutaw, Ala., died under peculiar circumstances—The San Jose Watch Co.'s factory has reverted to its original owner—A. C. Greenfield, San Jose, Cal., filed a petition to be declared insolvent—Henry A. Monroe, of J. B. Mathewson & Co., Providence, R. I., expired after a long illness—The Hart Jewelry Co., St. Louis, Mo., assigned—Wm. K. Millar, Boston, Mass., was drowned—The store of Adolph Mierow, Tacoma, Wash., was robbed—The residence of Geo. W. Shiebler, New York, was ransacked of valuable silverware and jewelry—John B. Honer, an old jeweler of Cincinnati, O., died—The appraisal of the stock of John Mason, New York, is to be completed to-day—The bankrupt stock and tools of Fairbrother & Scott, Providence R. I., were sold—The annual picnic of the Retail Jeweler's Association of Missouri was held.

It seems to be not generally understood among manufacturing jewelers that exhibits made in the Machinery Department are to show the capabilities of the machine itself and not the process of manufacture. Makers of the machinery must apply for space, and then they can appoint others to take charge of the machinery and run it. If the parties handling the machine desire to sell the product, they must apply to the Committee on Ways and Means for a concession or privilege.

WHAT THE PRESS SAYS:

Every City Represented.

THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR Publishing Company issued a hand-book called "The Souvenir Spoons of America." One hundred and eighty-nine spoons are described and illustrated in this hand-book. Every prominent city is represented by its souvenir spoon or spoon.—Camden, N. J., News.

It Appeals to a Large Circle of Readers

Souvenir Spoons of America: Being an account of the Prevailing Fashions in this Country of Collecting Souvenir Spoons, with Description of the Principal Designs—A compilation, with numerous additions of a series of articles on Souvenir Spoons published in the JEWELERS' CIRCULAR from March 25th to July 29th of the current year. The volume is artistically printed and illustrated, and appeals to a much wider circle of readers than that made up by the members of the jewelry trade. Its superior press-work, paper and decorations make this one of the few books that are actually worth their price.—Book Chat.

Propounder of Information.

The publishers of "Souvenir Spoons of America" are setting forth the encyclopedic value of the work as an addition to art libraries, and say that they could be "profitably used in the schools as propounders of general information." To this we respectfully except. There are too many spoons in the schools now, and some of them profess to be "propounders of general information," calling themselves, and paid as, "teachers"—New York Daily Advertiser.

An Able Account of the Fad.

Our sanctum has been enlivened with a copy of the JEWELERS' CIRCULAR's book on "Souvenir Spoons of America." It is an able account of this present "fad" with a description of the principal designs now prevalent. It is well written, and gotten up in good shape, the press-work being unusually good, and altogether is a book well worth the price to any jeweler who carries in stock souvenir spoons.—National Retail Jeweler.

A Curious and Interesting Book.

The collecting of souvenir spoons has become the greatest fad of such a nature that the American public has ever indulged in. Every city and town of any prominence or containing any romantic episode in its history is now represented by a spoon, and it is safe to say that $500,000 is invested in the manufacture of these souvenirs. One hundred and eighty-nine spoons are described and illustrated in a book published by the JEWELERS' CIRCULAR Publishing Co., of New York, the descriptive portions giving the significance of each design, with a relation of the various events commemorated. The volume is a curious work, for besides being a complete guide to the fad it is an encyclopedia of interesting events, briefly and pointedly written. The letter press, illustrations and ornamental features are in complete consonance with the artistic nature of the subject treated. The volume is interesting to others besides souvenir spoon collectors.—Huntingdon Globe, Pa.

E. P. Reichhelm & Co., 80 Nassau St., New York, have added to the lines handled by them a complete stock of Boraxine and have a few sample bottles which they will give free to manufacturers who desire to give the new flux a trial. Les Arts de la Femme.

THE OPENING OF LES ARTS DE LA FEMME EXHIBITION—BRATEAU'S DISPLAY OF TIN WORKS—AN ORIGINAL BONBON BOX—ELEGANT ARTICLES IN THE WAY OF GOLD AND SILVER INKSTANDS.

PARIS, France, Aug. 11.—Under the name of Les Arts de la Femme, an exhibition organized by George Berger, who was the Director of the Universal Exposition of 1889, has just been opened at the Palais del'Industrie. All kind of works made for or by the weaker sex in ancient and modern times, are there gathered, and the effect of the displays is one of the most striking seen for some time. Without mentioning the retrospective part of the exhibition, there are in our lines alone, no end of pretty articles. All the best French jewelers and silversmiths have a booth; Boucheron, Vever, Bourdier, etc., exhibit a great variety of costly diadems and necklaces, light or elaborate brooches and bracelets; sprays of flowers formed of gold, precious stones, worked colored glass and enamel; butterflies and dragon-flies with wings made of ruffled changing glass set as cloisonné enamel; statuettes made of lapis-lazuli and smoked topaz adorned with gold and gems; jewel caskets introducing almost all known precious substances; beside innumerable bibelots of a very feuille workmanship.

Silversmiths exhibit a great many fruit dishes and jardinières in glass, ceramic and even onyx of various shapes with light and elegant silver mountings. Figures of infants or females stretch forward on some of them in graceful or desperate attitudes.

Brateau has an interesting display of tin works daintily chased, such as ewers, basins, plates, etc., with elaborate Persian ornaments or a conventional foliage framing scenes of free mythological style. Some of these pieces are gilt on the plain part, which enhances the soft and delicate effect of the worked tin.

An original bon-bon box in yellow glass is a perfect imitation of fair tortoise shell. Sunk in the cover is a pretty rosacæ, with curved rays, some of which are made of vari-colored enamel, the others being formed of brilliants.

Inkstands in gold are made rather small and in reperé, they are finally chased, their shape is generally regular, the body being divided into several panels exhibiting scenes worked in low relief or painted in enamel. Inkstands in silver are made in all sizes. A handsome one is in a fancy Regence style. The ground is rugged so as to imitate ruffled water. A large head of Neptune, crowned with sea-weeds emerges at the back; little tritons climb over the head, one on each side holding a clock that looks like an odd round shell. The two portions of the inkstands and two candlesticks flanking the clock have the shape of fantastic sea flowers. JASEUR.

New silver combs have the ornament very sharply cut with lustrous surfaces; the effect is as sparkling as that of steel.

Fashions in Jewelry and Silver Novelties.

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

The double spiral hair-pin is ingenious. Enamel butterflies, profile view, are heads for stick pins.

The bow-knot is now a cravat tie with ornamental ends.

Every woman now thinks she should have a pair of silver-handled scissors

The bow-knot now affixes itself to spectacle cases, where it looks very well.

Rings have pretty devices for sets worked out in colored stones, and usually with a larger single stone of color set so as to project above or below.

Knit purses are almost matters of the toilette, and will retain favor. They are easily carried, can be twisted in the button-hole, and are charmingly feminine.

The English walnut finish is one of the prettiest of the later manipulations of surfaces. The alligator finish is too suggestive of boots and bags for adaptation in silver.

The new dragon and griffin chatelains that were noticed before in these columns, now appear in enamel and stones. A gorgeous blue dragon with diamond wings is one of the latest transformations.

Silver match boxes have opaline oval centers, and on these are insignia, as the cherry diamond and the winged heel, as they may be desired by the New York Yacht Club, the Manhattan Athletic Club or the cycle men.

It is interesting to note from week to week the changes of color observed in the same forms. Thus the fleur-de-lis which is popular in every way has a ground of enamel, brilliant red being the favorite tint with the form overlaid in gold ornament.

Whoever conceived the new silver curling tongs deserves the thanks of all women. There is a handle to which is attached the main leg of the tongs. The other leg is manipulated by a button and spring. The thumb rests on the button and easily manipulates the minor leg. The pressure moreover, which under the old fashion required two hands, is here given with one.

CHAS. A. NOLTING.

CHAS. A. NOLTING, whose portrait is here given, was born in Cincinnati, O., Sept. 4, 1850. He was orphaned at an early age and was thrown on his own resources for a livelihood. He began his career as errand boy for Duhme & Co., in 1864, working for $2 per week and living upon two meals a day for four years. Realizing that his services were becoming valuable, he sought recognition, and he gradually rose in position and salary. During his 18 years' service with them he occupied every position until he reached nearly the top.

In 1882 he formed a co-partnership with Frank Lodwick, also an old employe of Duhme & Co., and they became favorably known under the name of Lodwick & Nolting. The ill-health of Mr. Lodwick compelled him to withdraw, and during the next few years Mr. Nolting continued the business under his own name. The firm of Oskamp, Nolting & Co. was founded in 1887, when Wm. Oskamp, son of that old and well-known jeweler, Clemens Oskamp, allied himself with Mr. Nolting. The new alliance with the increase of capital gave them an impetus that has made them known throughout the commercial world.

A Valuable Optical Treatise.

THE second edition of "Handbook for Opticians," by W. Bohne, which has just come from the press, will fill the want of a thorough instructor in the science of optics. The reception of the first edition was so favorable that the writer was induced to extend the usefulness of the volume by adding considerable information which was purposely omitted before. This second edition treats of all technical matters in an entertaining and readable style, which will persuade any optician to read the whole book with pleasure and profit. It achieves its main object, which is to infuse the reader with the conception of his prominent position among the trades, to induce young opticians to employ their leisure time in making for themselves independent experiments, and to instigate them to further studies. The volume, which contains 251 pages, is divided into 29 chapters beside an index, and is handsomely bound in cloth. This valuable book is obtainable from The Jewelers' Circular Publishing Co.; price $2.50.

The oxidized silver belts are in better style than those more glittering. The flexible wire girdles have proved more convenient, as well as better suited to quieter tastes than the medallions and other sectional belts.

Novel Improved Index.

THE watch manufacturers, Ernest Francillon & Co., of St. Imier, have obtained an Imperial German patent for the very ingenious index represented in the illustrations on next page. Its purpose is to regulate very small differences in watches of precision. For this purpose the balance cock C contains a recess, in which by means of a screw is fastened a flat, partially toothed steel wheel A in such a manner that neither the wheel nor the screw holding it stands above the surface of C, so that, therefore, the index R moves freely above them. The end of the index is bifurcated, and holds within its prongs the pin H fastened in the steel wheel A; if the wheel A is revolved, then, of course the index R must follow this motion.

A second, much smaller steel wheel B is in the same manner located in a recess of the balance cock, at the same height with the wheel A, and depths into the toothed part of the latter. The wheel B is screwed together with index F by means of T, which is shown in cross section in Fig. 2. The staff T has above a square to fit a watch key used in regulating: below it ends in a long pivot, which with full friction passes almost through the balance cock C and serves the wheel B as axis. The graduation for the index F is upon the center wheel bridge or else three-quarter plate M.

The to-and-fro motion of the index F is limited by the length of the toothed part of A, since the former will naturally move only as far as the teeth permit.

As the pronged end of the index R stands three times as far as the curb-pins from the rotation point of the index, and the pin H is located about two-thirds of the distance from the rotation point to the circumference of A, and, again, as the wheel B is only half as large as A, and the index F is three and one-half as long as the radius of B, a simple calculation will show that the motion of the index point to that of the curb-pin, stands as 63:2 that is, the curb-pins move only the $\frac{2}{63}$ of the quantity of the index F on the scale. This, of course presumes that the depthing of A with B has no shake; this complied with, the device is capable of regulating exceedingly small differences.

HAD CONFIDENCE IN HIS WATCH.

"There is something wrong with the sun," said Mawson. "I believe the whole solar system is out of gear."

"Why so?" queried Hicks.

"Why, by my watch the sun was three-quarters of an hour late rising this morning."—Judge.

In England a double spoon has been introduced for the purpose of tea-making while on journeys. The tea is enclosed in the spoon which is perforated. The device serves as a tea ball, while performing the office of a spoon.

Workshop Notes.

To Bend a Glass Tube.—Fill the tube with finely sifted sand, close both ends, and heat it over the flame of a Bunsen burner. It may in this manner be bent readily without losing its roundness at the elbow.

Care of Oil-Stove.—Keep an oil-stove covered, when not in use. Clean it often with benzine, turpentine, or soap and water. Invariably use a good quality of oil—fine sperm oil is the best. If this oil is not liquid enough, add a little clock oil. Do not put too much oil on the stove, as the addition does not make the latter cut faster.

Soldering Britannia.—For soldering britannia, use the usual chloride of zinc soldering fluid, with a little sal-ammonia in it. An easy-flowing solder can be made of tin, one part; bismuth, one-half part; lead, one part; carefully melted together at low heat.

Fly-Cutters.—The usual form of fly-cutters has a single cutting edge, used for cutting the teeth of brass wheels.

Fly-cutters are at present often made double. A piece of steel fitted to the cutter holder, so as to project equally on each side, is turned to the form the cutter is to be. The steel is thinned on opposite sides till the faces are just coincident with the center of the holder, and after being filed back from the edge, to give requisite clearance, is hardened and tempered.

Stoning a Graver.—In stoning the belly of a graver the blade should be held as lightly as possible between the thumb and second finger, the tool being barely touched by them, they being used simply as checks on either side of the tool to keep it in position. The only pressure that should be applied to the tool is that steady power supplied by the tip of the forefinger to its point, holding it down firmly upon the stone. Pressure applied to any other portion of a graver blade while stoning its belly only hinders the work in hand as to speed, and also diminishes the average certainty of securing for it a surface that shall be perfectly flat.

The Indian Diamond Fields.*

SO great has been public interest in the South African diamond mines at Kimberley, that the famous fields of India have dropped almost out of sight. In a recent contribution to the Engineering and Mining Journal, A. Meroy Smith, a mining engineer well known in connection with this subject, presents some interesting information. Mr. Smith has identified three of the present diamond fields worked at the present time as having been described in the sacred books of India, namely—those of Mantanga (Kistna and Godavery); Paunda (Chota Nagpur); Vena Gunga (Wairagarh). According to his report, the diamondiferous area in India, so far as is known, is perhaps more extensive than that of the rest of the world put together, and nine-tenths of the famous jewels of the world are certainly Indian stones. The Koh-i-Noor, Nizam, Great Mogul, Regent, Great Table and Austrian Yellow are historic gems of Indian origin. Worthy of ranking with these we have only the Matan, from Borneo; Star of the South from Brazil, and Porter-Rhodes, from the cape. That the Indian mines still produce stones of large size and of the purest water we have evidence in the fine gem known as the Gor-do-Noor (Gordon Orr) recently brought to London by the Madras firm of jewelers, Messrs. Orr & Sons. This stone weighs $213\frac{1}{3}$ grains, and is remarkable for its brilliancy and fine limpid color; it is said to have been discovered in the Kistna diamond fields (Matanga of the Puranas.)

In India, diamonds are found in alluvial workings, and in the original gangue or bed rock. So far, diamonds have been found in situ, both in the upper and lower Vindhyan rocks (Silurian). These consist of a series of shales, limestones and sandstones, cut up and much mixed with intrusions of trap. A species of conglomerate, made up of what looks like felted hornblende (Kimberlite†), with imbedded pebbles of jasper, serpentine, quartz, and sandstone, is the matrix in which the diamond is found. When exposed to the action of the weather, as in shallow workings, this conglomerate is of a rusty brown color and very friable, so that it can be readily broken up and the gangue washed away, leaving the pebbles, which are of a white, red, blue, and green color. A load of gangue yields about a quart of pebbles, and if from this a carat ($3\frac{1}{4}$ grains) weight of diamonds is recovered, the mine is considered worth working.

Overlying the diamond conglomerate are beds of hard sandstones and shales, which have to be cut through before the diamond gangue is met. In the deep mines the gangue is extremely hard and tough, and of a green-blue color. It requires months of exposure to the atmosphere and frequent sprinklings with water before the matrix becomes sufficiently friable to allow of the pebbles being extracted without breaking them. All attempts to crush up the matrix without destroying the included diamonds have hitherto failed, and, owing to the long delay before results are known, the natives seldom work the conglomerate in the rock workings unless it is somewhat decomposed and softened by the weather. The pebbles are as large as hazel nuts and are generally opaque. The presence of green pebbles—serpentine—is considered a good sign by native miners. The alluvial workings are generally on river banks, where the ground is made up of detrital matter from the Vindhyan rocks. During the dry months of the year the water is diverted from shallow reaches of the Kiswa river in localities where diamonds are known to occur, and the gravel lying on the exposed bed-rock collected and carefully examined by the young women and children. The gravel is first screened so as to remove the large and the very small particles, the remnant is then spread on mats and carefully examined in the sunlight (the light of the sun at nine in the morning and three in the afternoon is considered best), and from long training the children are at once able to detect the gems, even though they are covered, as the Indian diamonds are, with a ground-glass tint. Indian diamonds are noted for their beauty and whiteness. Most of the stones found are white; a few yellow and dusky stones are also met with. Blue and red stones are very rare. Bort (half-crystallized diamonds), carbonado (black opaque, amorphous diamonds) have not been met with on the Indian fields.

The Hindoos distinguish diamonds according to their color. The white rank first and are called Brahmins; the yellow are known as Kshatris; the dusky as Vaishyas, and the flawed stones as Sudras. The diamond dealers are chiefly Marwarees—a race who are the chief bankers and money lenders in India. These men are perfectly acquainted with the phosphorescent and electric qualities of the diamond, and they are also aware of the extreme uniformity of its specific gravity. A boiling solution of some salt of zinc, called by the natives, "Tutenagum Baspam," which solution has a specific gravity of 3.5, is used for the weight test. Into this solution the stones submitted for examination are thrown. All such as float are rejected as not being diamonds, the Marwarees knowing that the diamond has a specific gravity of 3.52.

The stones that sink are then examined, the larger pieces are rubbed with a silk handkerchief to excite their electric properties, and held near to light substances, as small pieces of tissue paper. Diamonds thus rubbed readily attract light substances. The phosphorescent qualities are brought out by exposure of the stones to sunlight and then taking them into a dark room, where the diamonds give off a gleaming light. The most usual test is that of hardness, the diamond being the hardest of all stones. Cut stones which have been tested as above are then examined by boys especially trained, who sort them according to their color and flaws, and it is very seldom that these youngsters make a mistake, so sharp are their eyes in detecting flaws and shades of color. The appraisalment according to size is finally made by the seniors.

Although the diamond fields in India are the most extensive known, and the majority of the great diamonds of the world are the produce of these fields, yet no continued attempt has been made to work them on a large scale by Europeans. Many reasons may be assigned for this seeming want of enterprise on the part of the British, who are the paramount power in India.

The Feast of Good People.

THE Royal manufactory of French porcelain, established at Vincennes in 1742, was transferred to Sèvres in 1756. Remarkable pieces had already been produced in the manufactory, yet in one branch it remained behind that of Saxony, perhaps through a want of organization, or rather on account of the difficulty of applying on small tender porcelain pieces an enamel as limpid and as pure as that put on the Meissen hard porcelain. The branch in question included statuettes, groups, toilet articles, and bibelots, which more than other works had won a high reputation for the Meissen manufactory.

After numerous experiments at Vincennes and subsequently at Sèvres, artistic pieces were at last produced in this special line, with unglazed porcelain. These bisques turned out to be so pretty and so perfect, that nothing has been done since which can be compared to them.

An exhibition of works from the French Royal manufactory was held every year in the salons, at Versailles, from December 25 to January 10 at which the king and noblemen were accustomed to buy a great many articles to be offered as presents to ladies of the court. The first time bisques appeared at their annual exhibition, they excited an unbounded admiration. All the papers of the times praised the statuettes and medallions, remarking that this unglazed porcelain, with its demi-polish and demi-transparency, looked exactly like fine white marble, besides having the advantage of being easily cleaned with aqua secunda (diluted aqua fortis.)

Humble yet careful artists had been at first employed in copying in alto-relievo pretty scenes drawn by Boucher and other prominent painters of the time; when bisque became the rage, well-known sculptors such as Boizot, Falconet, Cafféri, La Rue, etc., modeled groups which were reproduced in of the Count d'Artois, the King's brother, Boizot executed an allegorical group in bisque. During the following year, Louis XVI., anxious to persuade his sister-in-law to nurse her own child, ordered four groups to be made at Sèvres. One group showed a woman with a child at her breast; in the second she was rocking it to sleep; in the third she had the child in her arms; and in the last scene the mother was helping the child to walk with leading strings.

But the most successful groups were those that reproduced rustic fêtes "in which still reigned the blessed innocence of former days." Philosophers and sentimentalists had promoted fêtes of this kind all over France. Le Pelletier de Morfontaine, commissary at Soissons, not only revived, at a little village called Salency, the Fête of the Rosière, which had been founded at the beginning of the sixth century by the Bishop Saint Medard, but he also instituted at Pernaut, near Soissons, the musical Fête of the Shepherds. At the same period (1778) Eliede Beaumont, a celebrated barrister, established in his land, at Canon the Fêtes des Bonnes gens.

Of all these fêtes, reproduced in bisque, that] of the rosière, of Salency and that of des Bonnes gens, here illustrated were the most successful, although these groups were sold at a rather high price, 480 livres.

The illustration is sufficiently clear without description. The meaning of the words pointed out by the graceful female who stands at the left holding with her right hand a wreath over the head of the good old man is: "Wisdom and virtue are valued the same here as at Salency."

porcelain. To enumerate the scenes, statuettes, and groups which have thus been produced at Sèvres would carry us too far. Let us simply mention those which were meant to commemorate important or interesting events.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

A. KLINGENBERG, 35 Park Place, New York, are showing several pretty shapes and decorations in various makes of pottery that are receiving much attention from jewelers who are in the city purchasing Fall goods.

F. W. Büning & Co., of 58 Murray St., New York, have received a consignment of French china chocolate pots and dishes with the violet decoration, which is one of the prettiest in the market. It consists of small artistically tinted violets scattered over a white field with the edges of the ornament finished in bright gold.

A representation of flowers worked in silk on perforated cardboard is the decoration of several Lorraine ware table tops seen in the stock of C. Ahrenfeldt & Co., 50 to 54 Murray St., New York. The tops are framed in ebony and the legs of the table are of the same wood. Another pretty line shown by the same firm consists of odd-shaped pen trays of Imperial Austrian ware with a line of bright roses extending along their plain white surfaces.

J. Pouyat, 56 Murray St., New York, is at present showing many very desirable designs in rich bric-à-brac which should be examined by buyers seeking salable goods.

Craighead & Wilcox, 33 Barclay St., New York, show an immense line of fancy metal goods. Among them is a line of crumb trays and scrapers that do honor to the designer and producer. The line of silver-plated mirrors shown by them is remarkable for extent, variety and finish. In lamps and lamp shades they show beautiful goods in a great variety.

THE RAMBLER.

Latest Triumph in Horology.

RECENTLY a clever person in St. Petersburg arranged and placed on exhibition a clock with a phonograph attached that will repeat at any hour set, according to the possessor's desire, such orders or announcements as may be committed to it. This is a boon to the tired housemother. It would be well that in the nursery the solemn time-piece could be made to say: "Children, it is time to get up; dress quickly and do not dawdle." In the kitchen at an early hour it should be ready with: "Breakfast at 8 sharp, Mary; don't forget;" and in the breakfast-room, "You must start in ten minutes or you will lose your train." The dial of this clock of the future is, we are told, a human face, from whose uncanny mouth comes the announcement of the hours as well as any directions that may be left with it.—Chicago Herald.

Because Jinglepop has pawned his diamond stud it doesn't follow that diamonds are going up.

Didn't Like the Brand.

HE shuffled his cowskin boots along under himself into a jewelry store on Woodward avenue and leaned up against the showcase.

"Got any finger rings?" he inquired of the clerk.

"Plenty of them," said the clerk. "What kind do you want?"

"Somethin' fittin' fer a gal."

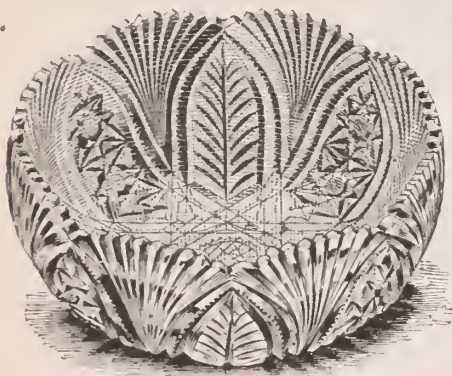

"Oh, a young lady in the case, eh?" queried the clerk.

"No; she's a widder," explained the customer; "but the same sort of a ring will do, won't it?"

"I presume so; what kind do you want?"

"One of them sign rings."

"That's it, mister. What's the tax?"

"Want something pretty nice, don't you?"

"You ain't got nothin' in your shop too nice fer that gal, mister. What's the figgers on your best?"

"One thousand dollars," said the clerk as easily and coolly as if it had been one thousand cents.

The customer fell up against the case.

"A thousand dollars!" he fairly yelled.

"Why the widow's farm ain't wuth that much."

"I suppose not," admitted the clerk; "diamonds cost more than dirt, you know."

"Is it a diamond?" inquired the customer, catching on.

"Certainly it is," said the clerk; "what did you think it was?"

"Well, I didn't know but what it was a house and lot on Wood'ard Avenoo."

"It isn't; it's a solitaire diamond."

"Oh, its a solitaire diamond is it?" giggled the man. "Well that brand grows too big for me. I suppose the dang thing's as big as a pumpkin, and I don't want it. Say, hain't you got something as big as a gooseberry for four dollars and a half?"

The clerk couldn't accommodate him and a half hour later he was seen making a deal with a street fakir.—Detroit Free Press.

THE window herewith depicted represents a shore scene, comprising summer cottages, bay, lighthouse, sailing vessels and similar details. The houses were made of cardboard, painted with water colors; the second toward the left was painted to simulate a store with signs proclaiming "Fresh Fish," "Post Office," etc. The first one toward the left was placed upon

IDIOSYNCRATIC OBSERVATIONS.

Lovers laugh at locksmiths, while goldsmiths often laugh at lovers.

It is those persons who possess a colonial clock that have a high old time.

The best time to wear a fine, pure five-karat diamond is when you have one.

An actress's diamonds are like kisses; when they are stolen they are usually returned.

The biggest spectacle in the world is doubtlessly the island of that name near Boston.

It takes 425,600 minutes to make a year, except when we "wait a year for the train." Then it takes about five minutes.

Space writers in newspapers often designate jewelry as "relics of barbarism." We've always thought that hotel clerks are greater wearers of jewelry than barbers.

The diamond is the hardest substance. To prove this place your diamond on an anvil, and give it a straight blow with a sledge hammer. If the diamond is smashed, then it is proved that the diamond can be smashed with a sledge hammer. A five-karat diamond is preferable in this experiment.

THE DIAMOND INDUSTRY AT KIMBERLEY.*

BY LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL.

THE diamondiferous resources of Kimberley are now known to be practically inexhaustible, but the amalgamation of the mines has restricted employment and checked immigration, and the town still preserves, and probably will always preserve, its transitory and rough-and-ready appearance. There are, however, a number of testify to the thoroughly English character of the settlement. At Kimberley the diamond is everything, and the source and method of its production claim more than a passing mention. My first visit was to the offices of the De Beers Company, which company represents the amalgamated interests of the De Beers, Kimberley, Bultfontein, Du Toits

Africa that it possessed a public man of the first order. The scale of the company's operations is stupendous. On a capital of nearly £3,000,000 of debenture and share stock it has paid, since its formation in 1888 up to March, 1890, interest at the rate of 5½ per cent and an annual dividend of 20 per cent. The amalgamation was the work of Mr. Cecil Rhodes, and it was this great work, accomplished in the teeth of unheard-of difficulties and almost insurmountable opposition, representing the conciliation and unification of almost innumerable rival jarring and conflicting interests which revealed to South smooth as possible. These 'floors' are about 600 acres in extent. They are covered to the depth of about a foot with the blue ground which for a time remains on them without much manipulation. The heat of the sun and moisture soon have a wonderful effect upon it. Large pieces which were as hard as ordinary sandstone when taken from the mine soon commence to crumble. At this stage of the work, the winning of the diamonds assumes more the nature of farming than of mining; the ground is continually harrowed to assist pulverization by exposing the larger pieces to the action of the sun and rain. The blue ground from Kimberley mine becomes quite well pulverized in three months, while that from De Beers requires double that time. The longer the ground remains exposed, the better it is for washing."

IN THE EIGHT-HUNDRED-FOOT LEVEL OF THE DE BEERS DIAMOND MINE.

The De Beers and Kimberley mines are probably the two biggest holes which greedy man has ever dug into the earth, the area of the former at the surface being thirteen acres, with a depth of 450 feet, the area and

The process of exposure being completed, the blue ground is then carried to very large, elaborate and costly washing machines, in which, by means of the action of running water, the diamonds are separated from the diamonds to the quantity the world can easily absorb, to maintain the price of the diamonds at a fair level from $28s.$ to $32s.$ per carat, and, in order the better to carry out this policy, to accumulate a very large cash reserve. I believe that the reserve already accumulated amounts to nearly $$1,000,000$, and that this amount is to be doubled in the course of the next year or two, when the board will feel that they have occupied for their shareholders a position unassailable by any of the changes and chances of commerce.

depth of the latter being even greater. These mines are no longer worked from the surface, but from shafts sunk at some distance from the original holes, and penetrating to the blue ground by transverse drivings at depths varying from 500 to 1,200 feet. The blue ground, when extracted, is carried in small iron trucks to the "floors."

SORTING GRAVEL FOR DIAMONDS AT KIMBERLEY.

In the working of the mine there are employed about 1,300 Europeans and 5,700 natives. The wages paid range high, and figures concerning them may interest the English artisan. Mechanics and engine-drivers receive from $\pounds 6$ to $\pounds 7$ per week, miners from $\pounds 5$ to $\pounds 6$, guards and tally-men from $\pounds 4$ to $\pounds 5$; natives in the underground works are paid from $4s.$ to $5s.$ per day. In the work on the "floors," which is all surface work, overseers receive from $\pounds 3$ $12s.$ to $\pounds 4$ $2s.$, machine-men and assorters from $\pounds 5$ to $\pounds 6$, and ordinary native laborers from $17s.$ $6d.$ to $21s.$ per week. ground are concentrated into one load of diamondiferous stuff. Another machine, the "pulsator," then separates this latter stuff, which appears to be a mass of blue and dark pebbles of all shapes, into four different sizes, which then pass on to the assorters. "The assorting is done on tables, first while wet by white men, and then dry by natives." The assorters work with a kind of trowel, and their accuracy in detecting and separating the diamond from the eight different kinds of mineral formations which reach them is almost unerring.

"After assorting, the diamonds are sent daily to the general office under an armed escort and delivered to the valuator in charge of the diamond department. The first operation is to clean the diamonds of any extraneous matter by boiling them in a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acids. When cleaned they are carefully assorted again in respect of size, color, and purity." The room in the De Beers office where they are then displayed offers a most striking sight. It is lighted by large windows, underneath which runs a broad counter covered with white sheets of paper, on which are laid out innumerable glistening heaps of precious stones of indescribable variety. In this room are concentrated some 60,000 karats, the daily production of the Consolidated Mine being about 5,500 karats. "When the diamonds have been valued they are sold in parcels to local buyers, who represent the leading diamond merchants of Europe.

The size of a parcel varies from a few thousands to tens of thousands of karats; in one instance, two years ago, nearly a quarter of a million of karats were sold in one lot to one buyer."

The company sustain a considerable loss annually, estimated now at from 10 to 15 per cent., by diamonds being stolen from the mines. To check this loss, extraordinary precautions have been resorted to. The natives are engaged for a period of three months, during which time they are confined in a compound surrounded by a high wall. On returning from their day's work, they have to strip off all their clothes, which they hang on pegs in a shed. Stark naked, they then proceed to the searching-room where their mouths, their hair, their toes, their armpits, and every portion of their bodies are subjected to an elaborate examination. White men would never submit to such a process, but the native sustains the indignity with cheerful equanimity, considering only the high wages which he earns. After passing through the searching-room, they pass, still in a state of nudity, to their apartments in the compound, where they find blankets in which to wrap themselves for the night. During the evening the clothes which they had left behind them are carefully and minutely searched, and are restored to their owners in the morning.

The De Beers directors manage their immense concern with great liberality. A model village, called Kenilworth, within the precincts of the mines, affords most comfortable and healthy accommodation for many of the European employes. Gardens are attached to cottages, and the planting of eucalyptus, cypress, pine and oak, as well as a variety of fruit trees, has been carried to a considerable extent. A very excellent club-house has also been built, which includes, besides the mess-room and kitchen, a reading-room, where many of the monthly papers and magazines are kept, together with six hundred volumes from the Kimberley Public Library. There is also a billiard-room with two good tables given by two of the directors. A large recreation ground is in course of construction. Within the compound where the native laborers are confined is a store where they can procure cheaply all the necessaries of life. Wood and water are supplied free of charge, and a large swimming-bath is also provided, but I did not learn if the natives made much use of it. All sick natives are taken care of in a hospital connected with the compound, where medical attendance, nurses, and food are supplied gratuitously by the company. I should not omit to mention that the entire mine, above and under ground, is lighted by electricity. There are ten circuits of electric lamps for De Beers and Kimberley mines. They consist of fifty-two arc lamps of 1,000 candle-power each, and 691 glow lamps of sixteen and sixty-four candle-power each, or a total illuminating power of 63,696 candles. There are, moreover, thirty telephones connecting the different centers of work together, and over eighty electric bells are used for signaling in shafts and on haulages. WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

Chief Smith, of the Transportation Department of the World's Columbian Exposition, has written the British Commission requesting them to secure if possible the collection of models loaned by the Duke of Edinburgh to the Naval Exposition held recently at Liverpool. The collection consists of models, in silver plate, of boats of all ages and types.

The Crown Pen Co. have entered into a special contract with the World's Fair authorities and have been allotted space in Machinery Hall for the manufacture and sale of "fountain pens, gold pens, and all other kinds and varieties of pens," with suitable penholders and packing boxes. The company will also make a fine exhibit of manufactured goods in the Manufactures Building. The complete process of making gold pens from $20 gold pieces will be shown in detail, and fountain holders will be fashioned from the crude vulcanized forms.

Nicaragua is to erect a small but artistic building, and its exhibits will be unique. Civilization existed in Nicaragua and Mexico in prehistoric times, and in the former republic many traces of it have been found. Recently, near Lake Nicaragua, old stone statues have been found, and other relics, the handiwork of the ancient dwellers in Nicaragua. But the greatest discovery of all was a statuette of gold fashioned by the goldsmiths of those times. This little figure shows that the prehistoric race knew perhaps as much about working gold and silver as the silversmiths of to-day.

Mortimer Murray, the young man who burglarized the store of J. H. Van Slyke, Carthage, N. Y., and who was arrested in Utica, as reported in THE CIRCULAR two weeks ago, waived examination last week and was taken to Watertown and lodged in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

THE

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION
SOUVENIR SPOON.

The striking feature of this attractive spoon is the allegorical design at the top of the handle representing Victory, trumpet and laurel in hand, seated on the globe—a very poetical treatment of the event to be commemorated.

The handle shows also an architectural column, festooned with floral garlands, typical of the festive character of the occasion.

The bowl can be ordered either with the bird's-eye view of the Exposition buildings and grounds as shown, or plain.

Probably the Man who Robbed President Goodman's Store.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Aug. 26.—Peter Ostroski went into pawnbroker Morris Meyerhoff's office at 2d and Bainbridge Sts., this afternoon. He wanted to pawn a lot of eye glasses, chains, lockets, etc., valued altogether at about $50. M. Meyerhoff glanced at the police list of stolen articles, and found that the goods answered the description of the articles stolen from Arthur S. Goodman's store, on the previous Monday.

The pawnbroker summoned an officer and gave Ostroski into custody. When taken before Magistrate Clement, he said he had got the articles in New York, but refused to say anything further. He was held for a further hearing and will unquestionably be committed for trial.

The Peoria Watch Co.'s Suit Against Howard and Weill.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 26.—The Peoria Watch Co. have filed their declaration in their suit against C. M. Howard and Henry Weill. It recites that an agreement was entered into between the parties Aug. 18, 1890, in which the watch company agreed to sell Howard and Weill, of Buffalo, N. Y., all the watch movements on hand and in course of construction for 45 per cent off the list price. The defendants agreed to pay for the movements as follows: A draft for $5,500 due Sept. 4, at 10 days sight, and $5,000 per month thereafter, to be drawn for in the same manner, and for all amounts in excess of said sums so paid to give their joint notes on sixty days time. All the movements were to be taken within six months. The schedule accompanying the declaration covers 9,927 movements listed at from $8.75 to $25 each.

From Sept 12, 1890, to Jan. 5, 1891, the defendants ordered 3,362 movements at a net contract price of $2,317.63, of which $1,000 remains unpaid. The plaintiffs demanded that Howard and Weill order and receive and pay for the goods contracted for, but they replied that they would not receive or pay for any more movements. May 1, the Peoria Co. sold to the First National Bank of Peoria, the articles of agreement with all their rights therein, and turned over to the bank all movements not already sent to be delivered by the bank, and so notified defendants. The watch company state that at the time of making the contract they were greatly crippled and embarrassed in their finances and could not redeem movements hypothecated. It was for the purpose of enabling the company to complete and dispose of all its remaining movements and to redeem the hypothecated goods and close up the business that the contract was entered into. The greater part of the hypothecated movements were sold by the bank. For failure of Howard and Weill to perform contract the Peoria Watch Co. brought suit in the United States Circuit Court, placing damages at $40,000. Howard was a former officer of the company.

A Peculiar Episode in the Failure of B. H. Broer.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 26.—The fact that B. H. Broer has failed was published in THE CIRCULAR last week. Since that time very little has been said as to his assets and liabilities. However, to-day, several facts came to light. Soon after Mr. Broer sold his stock of goods to John Ketcham, of the Ketcham National Bank, there were half a dozen creditors in the city after their claims; of these creditors Jos. W. Weiss and Henry E. Oppenheimer & Co., New York, filed suits in the Common Pleas Court in amounts on notes not yet due.

These were not the claims that bothered Messrs. Weiss and Oppenheimer, however. About two weeks ago agents of the above firms met Mr. Broer and sold him $3,300 worth of diamonds. They are here to get their diamonds. They have been selling Mr. Broer for years and were loath to believe him guilty of trying to defraud them. Messrs. Weiss and Oppenheimer learned that Mr. Broer had recently traded some diamonds for land in Kentucky. Broer finally acknowledged that about ten days ago he did trade $3,300 worth of diamonds to certain parties for notes and mortgages on 200 acres of land in Clayton county, Ky. It looks as if Mr. Broer had been duped, as the securities are thought to be worthless.

Trade Gossip and News from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 26.—The lethargy which pervades Washington life during the heated term affords the tradesmen ample time and opportunity to overlook stock and make improvements. Several of the jewelry stores are in the hands of painters and decorators while other establishments are undergoing extensive alterations and enlargements. Most notable of those improvements are those being made by M. W. Galt, Bro. & Co., 1107 Pennsylvania Ave.

While temporarily located at Pennsylvania Ave. and 15th St., they are having erected, on the site of the old store, a structure for the exclusive use of their business. The building will be 35 x 135 feet and five stories high, the three first of which will be used for the retail salesrooms, while the two upper floors will be finely equipped for repairing and manufacturing. Every precaution against fire and theft, and every convenience which could be suggested, will be employed. The electric elevator running from cellar to roof will be a marvel of its kind, the most modern and improved in use, and electricity will be used exclusively for lighting the building. Carved rosewood mahogany and walnut will be used in furnishing the salesrooms, while every other feature of decoration will be correspondingly rich and costly.

Of other firms making improvements Harris & Shafer are enlarging and re-finishng their handsome and extensive store by a considerable addition to their building and by the conversion of the second floor into a richly decorated salesroom. An Otis elevator of the most improved design is being put in to add to many other conveniences. Mr. Shafer is now in Europe purchasing fancy goods and novelties in jewelry. Small scarf and lace pins are all the rage, and the little silver hat markers are being sold by the hundred. The latest novelty in souvenirs are plaques of silver or fine china appropriately decorated. J. Kerr has one of Mt. Vernon, which is one of the newest.

The jewelers as well as most other tradesmen, are looking forward to a good harvest during the G. A. R. encampment in September, and are preparing all sorts of mementoes to catch the soldiers and their friends.

The Thief Who Wanted Cat Poison in the Toils.

BUTTE, Mon., Aug. 20.—The man who stole a tray filled with earrings and ring mountings from Leys & Co.'s store one night last week has been captured and is now in jail. He was arrested at Helena last Saturday night by the police of that city on a description furnished the Butte officers by a man to whom he had sold one of the stolen rings.

The prisoner gives his name as Charles Conner, and is one of the gang of crooks who are following the races. Conner refuses to divulge where the rest of the jewelry is cached.

Was this a Quarrel or an Intended Burglary?

DAYTON, O., Aug. 24.—Some unscrupulous scamp wrought several hundred dollars damage to A. Newsalt, early Sunday morning. Officers discovered a hole in one of the large plate glasses inclosing the display window. Investigation did not develop the loss of any jewelry or diamonds, but police headquarters and Mr. Newsalt were notified. A good-sized boulder was found in the store. It was the supposition that two men engaged in a brawl in front of the store and that one of them in his rage hurled the stone at his adversary, missing him and passing through the display window. The stone was thrown with force, as it crashed through two plate glasses. Mr. Newsalt discovered the theft of several valuable opera glasses.

To Develop a Valuable Onyx Mine.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 24.—The sale of an onyx mine in Lower California has been consummated to an eastern syndicate for $50,000. The mine is considered one of the most valuable of its kind in the country, and at the time of the transfer was the property of the estate of C. Murrillo, A. Villavicencio, P. Espinoza and J. L. Clark.

The mine is located about 170 miles south of the line. The new owners will proceed at once to develop the property on a large scale.

Annual Installation of Officers of the Mutual Aid Society.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 22.—The Jewelers' Mutual Aid Society at its recent meeting installed its officers for the ensuing year and also received the semi-annual report. The treasurer's report shows that the sum of $560 was paid to the sick members during the previous six months. The trustees reported that they have in bank, to the credit of the society, $3,875.

The installation ceremonies were conducted by Past-President Charles Moncivias, Joseph Sparrow and James Higgins, who duly installed the following officers: Gustave Pohlman, president; William Donahue, vice-president; Henry Blimdel, secretary; Charles Rudolph, financial secretary; Ferdinand Heiduska, treasurer; Charles Peterson, marshal; Edward Schmidt, guard; Charles Moncivias, Otto Klump and C. E. Peterson, trustees; C. Schulte, Tony Kerdell and C. Hinderer, financial committee.

After the installation all joined in doing justice to a bountiful repast at which speeches were made by the officers, including an able and interesting address by President Gus Pohlmann, who referred to the progress the society had made during the six years he had been its presiding officer.

A Lively Rencounter Between Employer and Salesman.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 25.—W. G. McDavitt, a traveling salesman for A. S. Aloe & Co., attempted to shoot Lew Aloe about 4:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The gentlemen had had some business difficulty and a fight ensued, Mr. McDavitt being forcibly ejected from the store. McDavitt sauntered into the store about an hour later, and going upstairs approached Mr. Aloe, who told him to leave as he did not want anything more to do with him, and threatened to eject him as he had done before if he attempted to remain. McDavitt then drew his pistol from his belt, but before he could use it Mr. Aloe had seized him and pinioned his arms. Messrs. Dave and Alfred Aloe had followed McDavitt upstairs and quickly came to the assistance of their brother. McDavitt broke away, however, and rushing down stairs ran through the back door into the alley, where he was arrested.

At the station McDavitt gave the name of W. G. Hines, but letters found on his person revealed his identity. McDavitt claims that he did not go to the store to shoot Aloe, but to get a pair of eye-glasses, which, he says, he left there. He alleges that Aloe attacked him and that he drew the weapon in self-defense. He was locked up on charges of attempt to kill and carrying concealed weapons.

Demanded the Contents of the Safe at the Point of a Revolver.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 27—While W. M. Maynard, proprietor of the jewelry store at 16 Brattle Square, was at lunch shortly after 1 o'clock to-day, leaving his brother, G. H. Maynard alone in the place, a bold robbery took place, the thief being even more daring than the nerry burglars who went through the same establishment a few years ago, while the proprietor was at dinner, entering it in the guise of white washers.

To-day's performance was as unique as it was successful. The robber had asked to have some watches shown him. While examining the lot set before him, he suddenly pulled a revolver from his pocket and demanded the contents of the safe. Instead of complying with the demand Mr. Maynard reached across the counter and grabbed the barrel of the revolver turning it away from himself.

A struggle for possession of the weapon ensued, and the thief wrenched it from Mr. Maynard's grasp. Deeming it prudent not to prolong his stay, he then made for the door, putting the revolver in his pocket, and seizing one of the watches which he had been examining. Mr. Maynard followed a short distance, but did not dare to pursue the fugitive very far, for fear that a confederate might be awaiting the opportunity to still further rob the premises. The thief had too much the start to be overtaken, however, and was soon lost in the crowded thoroughfare. Mr. Maynard reported his loss at police headquarters, and describes the thief as a man about 25 years old, above the medium height and of dark complexion.

Failure in the Monumental City.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 29.—William G. Strauss, 1128 Light St., made a deed of trust for the benefit of his creditors on Friday to Henry J. Broering, trustee, who gave bond in $4,000. The bond indicates assets of about $2,000, and the trustee states in absence of Mr. Strauss, who went on the Knights of Pythias trip to Kansas City, that he is unable to give the amount of liabilities.

The assignment was forced by an attachment obtained against Mr. Strauss by a creditor. Mr. Strauss is now in St. Louis, and the authority to make the assignment was given through correspondence. The creditors are mostly home people, among whom Strauss bears a good reputation.

Last Rites to Henry A. Monroe.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 26.—The funeral of the late Henry A. Monroe, of J. B. Mathewson & Co., was solemnized from his late residence at Nayatt, R. I., on Monday at 5 o'clock, a large number of friends and business associates attending by special train. The floral tributes were numerous and handsome, noticeable among them being a large piece, the "Gates Ajar" from the employes of J. B. Mathewson & Co. The interment was at Swan Point Cemetery, Providence.

Mr. Monroe was a director of the Phoenix National Bank and Globe National Bank, and at a meeting of the latter held Tuesday afternoon the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Henry A. Monroe, a director in this bank since April 28, 1890, died at his residence in Nayatt, R. I., Aug. 17.

Resolved, That it is the unanimous desire of his associates to place on record a testimony of their affection and appreciation of his manly worth and character.

Resolved, That in his death this institution mourns the loss of a true friend and counselor, and one whose invariable kindness and courtesy of manner endeared him to his associates and all others having business relations with him.

Resolved, That we hereby tender to his family our sincere sympathy, in their great affliction, and that these resolutions be entered on the records of the bank and a copy of the same signed by president and cashier be communicated to the family and published in the Providence daily papers.

A Heavy Haul of Watches in an Iowa town.

HUMESTON, Ia., Aug. 26.—Last night burglars entered the store of W. E. Dennis and stole between fifty and sixty watches, all more or less valuable, many of them being brought for repair. The value of the haul is about $700.

A. L. Saltzstein, Jr. Accused of Grand Larceny.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 26.—A. L. Saltzstein, Jr., jeweler, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with the grand larceny of certain promissory notes aggregating $200 he had given to C. S. Champion, and he gave bonds in $500 to appear on Tuesday next. Mr. Champion is the patentee of a souvenir spoon and assigned the patent to Mr. Saltzstein for $200, represented by four notes. He says he asked Mr. Saltzstein for the money or a good indorser, but he refused to comply. Desiring a settlement he notified Mr. Saltzstein that if he did not settle he would take steps to prevent the manufacture. On Aug. 5, Champion alleges, a man named Jackson called on him to purchase the notes, and he sent to Saltzstein to get the signatures acknowledged, when he alleges Saltzstein put them in his pocket and refused to return them.

On Wednesday Mr. Saltzstein's store was attached in a suit of Saxton, Moser & Co., New York, for $403.38. The attachment was raised, but yesterday, on a suit of Pauline Gunsburg for $480, the premises were attached, and N. H. White & Co., New York, are waiting to attach should the second attachment be relieved.

A Much-Wanted Burglar said to be Captured.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 24.—James Lands has been arrested. Seventy-three gold and silver watches, seventy gold rings, four breastpins, two pairs of ear-rings and a number of diamond studs and rings were found in his possession. Lands is supposed to be the same man who robbed Adolph Mierow's store in Tacoma, Wash., of jewelry valued at $2,000 in broad daylight a few days ago, and Butt, Leander & Co.'s jewelry store at Centralia, Wash., three years ago, and Ross' store at the same place about three weeks ago.

Detectives say he is the smoothest burglar that has operated in this section for years.

S. N. Jacobs Anxiously Wanted by the Chicago Police.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 28.—S. N. Jacobs is wanted by the Chicago police. A warrant for his arrest is about to be issued, charging him with obtaining money and goods under false pretenses. Six weeks ago he came to Chicago, and being well known he succeeded in victimizing hotel keepers and jewelers to the extent of several thousand dollars.

He is a brother of the members of the firm of Jacob Brothers, Washington, D. C., diamond importers, and was connected with that house for many years. The police have been unable to find any trace of him for several days.

Oscar Heyer Leaves his Property to his Wife and Departs.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 27.—Two weeks ago Oscar Heyer, who lately conducted business at the corner of W. Market and Franklin Sts., left Wilkesbarre for good. Mrs. Heyer confirmed the story of his departure under circumstances that make it altogether improbable that he will ever return. Mrs. Heyer states that there had been a disagreement between herself and husband, and he made up his mind to go to New York, prob-

At Legal War Regarding a Watch Protector.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 29.—The Newark Watch Case Material Co., Newark, N. J., have filed a bill of complaint in equity against the Wilmot & Hobbs Mfg. Co., of Bridgeport in the United States Circuit Court.

The bill alleges certain infringement of a patented improvement in watch protectors, owned by the complainants, who pray for an injunction and an accounting. Arthur L. Shipman, of this city, is local attorney for the complainants.

Eastern Jewelers Interested in Failures.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 29 —The month of August has been attended with an unusually large number of financial difficulties and several firms have been obliged to succumb to the strain. The stock, tools and fixtures of the silverware concern of Fairbrother & Scott were sold at assignee's sale the past week, the entire plant realizing but about $300.

The liabilities of the concern were about $1,600.

By the recent assignment of the Hart Jewelry Co. of St. Louis, Mo., the eastern jewelers were not heavily involved. The firm was incorporated in the fall of 1891 by members who were previously interested in the defunct corporation known as the Standard Jewelry Co.

The plant, tools, fixtures, etc., of A. C. Stone, agent, at 111 Richmond St., were sold last week at auction, bringing about $500. Mr. Stone has started in business again as A. C. Stone & Co., at 363 Eddy St., where they will continue to produce the same line as the old concern with the addition of new novelties and designs.

Maurice Rosen, retailer of dry goods and jewelry at Newport, has made an assignment. Liabilities and assets are small.

Our Traveling Representatives.

HENRY J. FINK, of Keller, Ettinger & Fink, can be classed as one of the most successful traveling men that has carried the grip and booked orders for a jewelry house. Mr. Fink was born in New York in 1852 and received his education in the public schools of that city. When he was thirteen years old he entered upon his business career as office boy, at a salary of $1.50 per week, for Freund & Keller, now Max Freund & Co. He left the firm in 1869 and entered a retail dry goods house as bookkeeper and cashier. He remained in that position only one year, when he re-entered the jewelry business, this time with Pforzheimer, Dreyfus & Keller, which was subsequently changed to Pforzheimer & Keller.

He started with the firm as office assistant, but his abilities as a salesman soon attracted the attention of the heads of the house, and in 1870 he was sent on the road as traveling representative. He soon had an extensive acquaintance with the retail jewelers all over the country, and became one of the popular men on the road. In 1880 he was admitted into partnership, and the firm name became Pforzheimer, Keller & Co.

In 1890 the partners bought out Mr. Pforzheimer's interest and the name was changed to its present style, Keller, Ettinger & Fink. Mr. Fink is a member of the Progress Club and of the Masonic order, and is a liberal supporter of the many charitable institutions of New York.

Ed. Frye, northwestern traveler for Glickauf & Newhouse, Chicago, packed his cases with full lines and departed thence Monday.

Gilbert M. Steese, an old-time traveler for Benj. Allen & Co., Chicago, returned from his trip to replenish samples last week and left Wednesday for Michigan.

G. Rosenberg, with S. & B. Lederer, is reported as improving rapidly and will be in Chicago this week. Mr. Rosenberg fell from an electric car at Cleveland two weeks ago and sprained his ankle.

The regular monthly "Smoker Entertainment" of the Commercial Travelers' Club, which was held at the clubhouse, 15 W. 31st St., New York, Friday evening, was one of the most successful ever held. There were over 400 members and guests present when G. Proctor Knott took the chair. Letters of regret were read from Benjamin Harrison, Grover Cleveland, Gen. Porter, R. G. Ingersoll, T. C. Platt, Richard Croker, and others. The smoke began at 9 o'clock and it was 2 A. M. before the entertainment concluded. There were many prominent members of the theatrical profession present, who sang or made addresses, and the punch that Brother McGonigal concocted, with the assistance of a young man from Riker's, was only equaled by the appetizing lunch that was provided. There were many jewelers present, conspicuous among whom was John L. Shepherd, of the Keystone Watch Case Co.

Not the least among the consolations which God sends through human channels are your silently eloquent tributes to the life and character of Edward Ingraham, coming as they do from those associated for years with him in the development of this industry.

While the beautiful flowers which sprang from your generosity have had their day, the great esteem in which you held him and your sympathy for us—of which these flowers were but one of many expressions—have deeply touched our hearts and will always remain embalmed there.

MRS. EDWARD INGRAHAM AND FAMILY.

Many Willimantic people were swindled last week by an impostor, who palmed off bogus gold watches upon them. He pretended to be "dead broke," and sold the watches very cheap in order to get back to New York. He got from $5 to $10 apiece for the watches. The Willimantic jewelers soon exposed the rascal, and the fleeced customers of the scamp complained to the authorities, who fined him $12 for selling without a license. He paid and skipped to Hartford, where on Thursday complaints were made to the police by duped patrons of his there.

By the prompt action and coolness of D. C. Winans, New Haven, a burglar was arrested by the police there last Tuesday. The burglar, Harry W. Brooks is a stylish young man who moved in some of New Haven's best society circles, and his arrest caused a great sensation in the city. He had robbed the handsome home of Major Bromley of $600 worth of valuables, and his booty in all footed up to $2,500. The young man offered some of the stolen jewelry for sale to Mr. Winans, who, suspecting something wrong, deferred purchasing, asking the young man to call again when he would be disengaged. The young man called at the appointed time, again produced the jewelry for sale and was promptly seized by two detectives.

VOL. XXV. AUG. 31, 1892. No. 5.

THE article "The Diamond Industry at Kimberley, is reproduced from the Popular Science Monthly, which adapted it from an interesting work, "Men, Mines and Animals of South Africa," by Lord Randolph Churchill, copyrighted and published by D. Appleton & Co. The frontispiece furnishes, perhaps, the most complete view of the great Kimberley mines ever presented in print, while the article contains many points that should be retained in the reader's store of knowledge.

THE Legislature of the Hawaiian Islands has followed in the footsteps of the United States by imposing duties on many articles and increasing the duties on others. As far as the jewelry and cognate lines are concerned, the tariff imposed by the law just enacted is as follows: Silver plate, plated ware or gilt ware, 25 per cent; bronzes, 10 per cent; watches and clocks, in whole or in part, 10 per cent; britannia ware and fancy metal ware, 25 per cent.

THE "enterprising burglar went a burgling" during the past week on many occasions, and in most cases with safety and remuneration to himself. If this condition of things continues, we will be apt to differ with William Swerik Gilbert, and conclude that the jewelers' lot rather than the policeman's "is not a happy one."

The Amsterdam Diamond Trade. IF the last report of the British Consul in Amsterdam, as published in the London Times, be worthy of full credence, we must conclude that the past year was not a satisfactory one either for the diamond trade or for the diamond-cutting industry. The South American republics and Russia were, for obvious reasons, nearly out of the market. On the other hand, the United States bought extensively diamonds of the highest finish. The restricted importation into London from the Cape, and the diamond syndicate there, caused the price of the raw article to be kept disproportionately high as compared with that for the finished diamond. On the other hand, great fluctuations in value can no longer take place, and the trade is generally steadier.

Clock and Watch Making and Wages.

ACCORDING to the report for 1891, of Commissioner Peck, of the New York State Bureau of Labor Statistics, there has been a net increase in wages during 1891 of $6,377,925 over those of 1890, and a net increase in products of $31,315,130. The wages of 285,000 men have been raised as a result of the McKinley Tariff bill. In his report Commissioner Peck says: "With the exception of a limited number of the great industries carried on in our country, no State in the Union offers a field so varied or extensive within which the statistician can carry on his work with greater assurances of intelligent success than is presented by the State of New York. * * * So that whatever the statistical data collected and tabulated may prove, relative to the effects of 'Protection' on labor and wages in New York, it may justly be taken as fairly representative of the conditions throughout the whole country." Of the sixty-eight industries included in the report, 75 per cent. of them show an increased average yearly earnings in the year 1891, while the total average increase of yearly earnings of the 285,000 employes was $23.11. "The average increase of yearly earnings of the employes in fifty-one trades was $43.96. Among the minority of decreases appears clocks, watches, etc., the total decrease in wages being $24,089, and in product, $351,771. If this last statement is to be taken as a standard of this industry throughout the country it would emphasize an impression prevailing for some time past that the watch and clock manufacturing industry is in any but a prosperous condition. However, New York is not a representative State as far as the industry is concerned; perhaps similar statistics regarding Connecticut, Massachusetts and Illinois might show more encouraging results.

The collector of customs at New York has been informed by the Treasury Department that in the case of watch springs imported in boxes the provisions of Section 6 of the act of October 1, 1890, will be complied with if the boxes bear the name of the country of origin provided the springs themselves do not belong to the class of articles which are "usually or ordinarily marked," as is presumed to be the case.

Four Hundred Dollars will be paid for the recovery of a Diamond, in spiral stud setting, weighing 1 1/10 of karats, lost in New York on July 1, 1892, between the intersection of Howard St. and Broadway and Elizabeth Police Station. Address J. H. S., Care Jewelers' Circular Pub. Co.

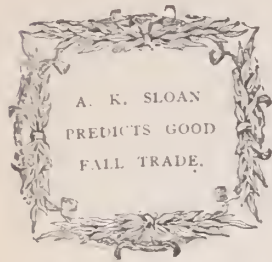

BROTHER JEWELERS:

If you wish to have the exclusive right in your city to the best advertising scheme out, send 25c. in stamps and get a full description. It will cost you but little and will repay you a thousand fold. It has the advantage of being useful as well as new and novel. Write, and you will never regret it.

GLENN HILTON, HUNTINGTON, W. VA.

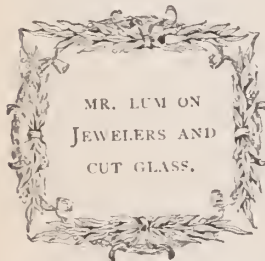

What We Are All Talking About.

"Notwithstanding that we will this year experience all the political enthusiasm that usually accompanies a Presidential campaign," said A. K. Sloan, of Carter, Sloan & Co., "I think that jewelers will enjoy a prosperous season. Trade with us during the past few weeks has been much better than was expected and considerably in advance of the same period last year. There are several reasons why business should be better during the coming months than it was last Fall. Money is not as tight and the changes in the tariff are beginning to find their level. Of course, when the enthusiasm reaches its height about three weeks before election, trade will be affected, but that will soon be over and jewelers can settle down to a good Winter's business."

"Every year the demand for cut glass from the jewelry trade increases," said W. H. Lum, of the Mt. Washington Glass Co., "especially among jewelers of towns of say from 3,000 to 5,000 inhabitants. We are continually receiving letters from jewelers who have never handled cut glass and know very little of this branch of the business, asking us to send $60 or $75 worth of salable patterns. They leave the selection of the goods to our judgment, and we send such articles as we think most appropriate to their trade. In small towns people naturally go to the jewelers for holiday gifts, birthday presents, etc., and nothing is so appropriate, outside of jewelry, as articles of fine cut glass, which at once satisfy the demand for the beautiful and the useful."

Trade Gossip.

A. G. Schwab & Bro., Cincinnati, O., are booming the "Pasha" diamond. The firm say it is the finest white stone gem in the market.

E. & J. Swigart, jobbers of jewelers' supplies, Cincinnati, O., will have their catalogue ready by October. Every dealer throughout the country should have a copy, as the contents will be valuable to them.

Oskamp, Nolting & Co., Cincinnati, O., will devote about 60 pages of their catalogue to chains. The variety is wonderful, nearly everything manufactured this year in this line having been selected for this exhibit.

Jules Laurentot & Co., 49 Maiden Lane, New York, on Aug. 15 completed arrangements with Williams, Brown & Earle, of Philadelphia, Pa., for the exclusive right to manufacture and sell the "Marvel" tilting spring eyeglass and are now prepared to show samples of these goods and take orders for future delivery.

Martin Brunor, 17 John St., New York, who has spent twenty-two years in the electro-plating business, is preparing a book on the subject, which will contain much information which has never been published. The book will be handsomely bound and will contain many colored illustrative plates. Mr. Brunor has limited the number of copies to 500, and he has already nearly the entire number subscribed for. Mr. Brunor has introduced his system for removing green from gold in fifty-two factories of this country.

The first clock catalogue to be issued in a form which permits its being carried in the vest pocket has been published by William H. Atwater, selling agent for the Boston Clock Co., and the E. N. Welch Mfg. Co., 13 Maiden Lane, New York. The catalogue contains many illustrations and descriptions of the latest patterns in handsome clocks, and by its use retail jewelers are enabled to show a complete line of clocks without carrying them in stock. The clocks of the Boston Clock Co. have all eight day movements, jeweled and fitted with fine watch escapement and they are unequalled in finish and workmanship. If you have not received the catalogue, send your business card to Mr. Atwater.

"Spectacles and Eyeglasses," by R. J. Phillips, M. D., a celebrated ophthalmologist of Philadelphia, is intended to supplement studies in refraction and to give the student that knowledge of the correct placing of the glasses before the eyes, without which the most painstaking measurement of the refraction will frequently fail of practical result. The volume contains 95 pages besides index, and is abundantly illustrated with clear and pertinent cuts. It is divided into four chapters, as follows: General Considerations; The Principles of Spectacle Fitting; Prescription of Frames; and Inspection and Adjustment of Spectacles and Eyeglasses. These chapters are subdivided into many topics. "Spectacles and Eyeglasses" is for sale by The Jewelers' Circular Publishing Co.; price $1.

Reed & Barton, Taunton, Mass., have met with unusual success in their sales of "Trajan" sets of knives, forks and spoons. They show a very handsome line of 5 o'clock teas in wild rose, myrtle, forget-me-not, golden rod, bachelor button and crysanthemum decorations.

D. Schroeder & Co., Cincinnati, O., are busy filling orders this week. They bought more and finer goods than ever before and are giving their patrons regular surprises. They are prepared to sell watches now in any quantity and will not keep the dealer waiting, but give prompt attention to orders.

O. E. Bell & Co., Cincinnati, O., are following up their ring tray offer to the trade with a chain tray on equally favorable terms. The prettiest thing they have out this season is the jewel case and manicure combination. The manicure set is in the bottom and the watch and other jewelry are in the top compartment. These come in different colored pushes.

L. H. Keller & Co., 64 Nassau St., New York, have had the sole agency in the United States for the Charles Robert mainspring for the last thirty-eight years, and they are justified in claiming it to be among the best in the market. Every spring of this make has the trade mark, the letters C. R. crossed with an arrow, and the firm caution the trade against being induced to buy imitations.

H. F. Barrows & Co., 1 1/2 Maiden Lane, New York, have sent to the retail trade a circular illustrating many of their new designs in vest chains, victorias and necklaces which show the high standard of manufacture that has always characterized the products of the firm. The circular also contains particulars of a special offer which the firm is making to the retail trade. If you have not received a copy, send your business card to the above name and address.

William H. Atwater, selling agent for the Boston Clock Co., and the E. N. Welch Mfg. Co., 13 Maiden Lane, New York, has just issued a compact, illustrated catalogue of many of the handsome timepieces which he has placed on the market for the season of 1892-93. All the movements in the clocks shown are eight-day, jeweled and fitted with a fine watch escapement, and have cases of handsome porcelain, onyx and marble decorated in the most artistic manner.

The R. Wallace & Sons Mfg. Co., Wallingford, Conn., and 3 Park Place, New York, have introduced a new design in silverware that promises to have a very successful career. It is called "The Waverly" and is of the fashionable rococo style of decoration. The scrolls and curves are remarkably artistic and inspire general admiration. The R. Wallace & Sons Mfg. Co. have always been known for the high character of the ornamentation of their ware, but in the "Waverly" they have out-Heroded Herod.

J. N. Provenzano, 39 Union Sq., New York, illustrates in his advertisement on another page several of the silver filigree spoons which he is now manufacturing in great numbers. These spoons are of exquisite workmanship, being formed into many beautiful designs with the most delicate threads of silver. They sell at a remarkably low price, and should be in the stock of every jeweler. Since the fashion of long trains on women's dresses has been the vogue the demand for skirt lifters, which were very fashionable many years ago, has been revived. Mr. Provenzano is producing a varied line of skirt lifters in fine pierced silver work, which are finding a very ready sale.

The Gorham Mfg. Co. have issued an elegant folio, 5 x 6 in. in dimensions containing 22 plates showing views of the factory at Providence, R. I., in photogravure work. The plates are inclosed in a dainty cover of Japanese paper. Under each view is a caption explaining the same. On the cover is seen a perspective view of the extensive works and the company's grounds. The folio is undoubtedly a very beautiful little work. It will be sent to the trade upon application, which must be made to the main office of the company, at 19th St., and Broadway, New York, setting forth the title as follows: "Views exterior and interior of the works of the Gorham Mfg. Co., at Providence, R. I."

The exhibit of opera glasses in Queen & Co.'s show room in Philadelphia, Pa., is simply wonderful. The glasses are in exquisite and varied forms, contain splendid optical qualities, while an air of exclusiveness about the line renders them very tempting. Queen & Co. have entire control of a number of styles, among which are the following: the "Le Clair," "Rectilinear,"

PARIS, FRANCE, Aug. 18.—To have an extensive and varied display in the line of hair-combs seems to be the chief object of some of our best jewelers. A large exhibit of hair-combs of various shapes, sizes, and patterns is really a pretty sight. The side prongs of some are bent so as to sketch a horseshoe, a heart, or an escutcheon. Prongs in gold, silver, platina or tortoise shell are twisted, faceted or flattened. The decoration consists of flowers or ornaments in open work thrown across the head of the comb; a few are topped with a coronet or fashioned into a tiara; many are in perforated gold, finely chased, showing Moorish motifs or mysterious mottoes in curled Oriental letters. A pretty fashion consists in having applied on a fair tortoise-shell comb-head a single flower in bright-colored enamel with a curled stem in green gold. This style is also very taking on wide-headed hairpins in tortoise shell or pale gold.

Pretty brooches have the outlines of a pansy flattened with the division of petals slightly marked. They are of an old-ivory color, with the portrait of an ancient queen or king painted on it in enamel, the crowns and necklaces being formed of incrustated diamonds. The ground is also made to imitate the changing hues of fancy stones, or the iridescence of certain shells. Some brooches are adorned with the portrait of a bewitching beauty framed with entwined snakes of diamonds; others show the face of a woman with a noble and thoughtful countenance, surrounded with a wreath of laurel leaves in green gold.

Fanholders worn at Casino balls or parties at Trouville, Dieppe, etc., are very elegant. Many are handsome chatelaines made of chased gold and colored stones. Here is a pretty one: From a diamond brooch resembling a fancy coronet, fastened at the waist on the side, hang a succession of flat pieces of a graceful, elongated shape, decorated in a Byzantine style, and diminishing in size down to the fan receptacle.

Elegant photo frames have their border covered with blue or pink satin, on which diamonds are gracefully arranged.

An original clock consists of a truncated column in Parian marble with a dial surrounded with ivy leaves in relief. A modern Bacchante sits carelessly on the column with her feet hanging on the side near the dial. This good-humored female is laughing at a plump little Bacchus who climbs over her, and tries to pull the wreath of vine leaves and grapes that crowns her head. This is one of the best works of Carrier-Beleuze, the well-known sculptor. JASEUR.

SAMUEL C. SCOTT.

SAMUEL C. SCOTT was born in 1852 in Huntington, Pa., his father, James T. Scott, being a retail jeweler of that place. In 1854 the family moved to Wheeling, W. Va., where after remaining in the jewelry trade thirteen years Mr. Scott's father changed his residence to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he carried on a wholesale trade exclusively. At that time S. C. Scott was 15 years of age. Three years later he completed his education and entered the office of his father as bookkeeper, and two years later went on the road as traveling salesman, in which capacity he was very successful. About 1870 the firm, which was then, as now, styled J. T. Scott & Co., moved to New York, where Mr. Scott assisted his father in the management of the office until 1883, when the father died. In February of the following year S. C. Scott and his brother, James T. Scott, formed the present firm.

Mr. Scott is the inventor and sole owner of the well-known "Anti-Swear" cuff button, of which many thousands have been sold; he is also the originator of the diamond chart employed by his firm, by the use of which retailers are greatly assisted in ordering diamonds. Mr. Scott has been a director and member of the executive committee of the Jewelers' Safety Fund Society since its organization, in 1884, and was one of its incorporators. He was also a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Jobbers in American Watches for two years.

A Matrimonial Clock.

MANY a man fails to act simply because nothing suggests the right thing at the right time. Alonzo Stubbs was a poor but worthy man with seven grown-up daughters. He tried to dress them well, but despite the fact that they made over their dresses and retrimmed their hats, he felt that he could, without any special sacrifice on his part, spare a few of them as wives for promising but seemingly hesitating young men. One time Alonzo saw an advertising clock that presented a new placard to the observer every five minutes.

It struck Alonzo with a forceful suggestiveness. He bought one, and on the next Sunday evening had it placed against the parlor wall opposite to the place where the sofa stood. Reginald was just seating himself beside Roxana, when a tiny bell rang and the following flashed into view:

Let those love now who never love before,
And those who always loved now love the more.

The young people laughed at the happy arrangement which the father's mind had devised, and drew nearer together. Presently the bell rang again, and "Gas bills are getting higher" met their gaze. They tried to laugh again, but it was almost a failure. However, they looked into each other's eyes with a seriousness they had never exhibited before. The next placard pleased them much more. It read as follows:

A sorrow shared is half a trouble,
But a joy that's shared is a joy made double.

The next motto that came into view was less poetic, but more to the point: "Long Courtships Cost Money and are a Great Waste of Time." Again the bell rang, and the following appeared:

Let us then be up and doing
With a heart for any fate;
Let's have done with endless wooing
And propose or emigrate.

In five minutes more the pledge had been made, and Roxana led her accepted lover from the room to make way for her next younger sister and her beau. At the end of two weeks the seven daughters were all engaged.—The Million.

That typical Chicago girl, "I Will," whose artistic merit won the Chicago Inter-Ocean prize, has once more been apotheosized. This time she has been made to adorn the latest design in a Chicago souvenir spoon. The Wendell Mfg. Co., 67 and 69 Washington St., Chicago, have just brought forward a very pretty souvenir spoon in which "I will" is the principal figure on the face of the embossed handle.

Practical Optics.

NOTE.—The purpose of this department is to give to the student, without his having had any previous technical education, a clear and practical course of instruction on optics, with its application to the correction of visual defects. The Correspondence Column is open to all readers of THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR.

AMBLYOPIA.

T HIS term is derived from two Greek words meaning dulled eye, and is a condition in which we have impairment of vision in a part or the whole of the field, without any disease or anomaly to account for it. The use of the term is generally restricted to cases of defective acuteness of sight short of blindness. Amaurosis is a term indicating a more advanced condition of dulness of sight, and formerly these terms were synonymous.

As this condition is one with which the optician will constantly come in contact, it is necessary that we should know something more about it than merely to diagnose all cases amblyopic which are difficult to correct by means of properly adjusted lenses. For the convenience of study, Amblyopia has been classified into eleven divisions, namely :

1. Congenital.
2. Exanopsia.
3. Toxic.
4. Traumatic.
5. Hysterical.
6. Nyctalopia.
7. Hemeralopia.
8. Entoptic Phenomenon.
9. Hemianopsia.
10. Chromatopsia.
11. Anæsthesia.

Congenital Amblyopia.—It is well understood that children having convergent squint always see badly with the squinting eye. Some authorities ascribe this amblyopia due to an error of refraction either hyperopia or astigmatism, or both ; others, again, believe that this trouble is due to the fact that the squinting eye is one that was amblyopic at first, and as no image was formed upon the retina, this eye became useless, and thus in time the eye turned in a direction in which it meets the least resistance. This condition is irremediable.

Amblyopia Exanopsia is a term used more frequently by the oculist than any other form, and means simply a dulness of vision from disuse; it might properly come under the other divisions, but as it is one very commonly spoken of, it is here employed in this place.

Toxic Amblyopia.—Dulness of sight under this division is caused by the various poisonous influences such as are commonly met with every now and then. Tobacco is the most common cause of dulled sight ; alcohol comes next. Patients suffering from amblyopia caused by the excessive use of tobacco or alcohol, or both, should stop all indulgences in either. Plenty of sleep should be secured, and if there are gastric disturbances these should be rectified. In recent cases of persons who fully abstain from these poisons as well as from other poisons which make up the different causes of Toxic Amblyopia, the prospect of complete restoration of vision is very good. The other poisons spoken of in this connection are all of the drugs which produce, by a continual use, a poisonous or deleterious effect, and if the case is recent a total abstinence from the drug will probably effect a complete restoration of sight.

Traumatic Amblyopia.—Dulness of vision may result in consequence of a blow made upon the orbits, by those who are pugnaciously inclined. This condition is more frequently discovered in prize fighters and those who, for reasons best known to themselves, come under this head. It is often spoken of as the "game eye," and eyes which are so difficult to fit may have been injured at school by a glove or a hand-to-hand contest.

Hysterical Amblyopia.—This variety takes various forms, and the real defect may be mixed with feigning. This condition is found chiefly among women, but men sometimes are affected with the same difficulty. The eyes water, there is fear of the light and spasm of accommodation, the pupils being well dilated. Recovery may be slow but the chance for a complete restoration of sight is always good. The causes of Hysterical Amblyopia are many, chief among which is intense application to needlework or reading, bright colors, exposure to a bright fire, injury or shock ; and in some cases in childbirth women will suddenly and unaccountably suffer from diminished eyesight.

Amblyopia-a-Nyctalopia.—These terms combined simply mean that we have a dul-

ness of vision from day blindness. Nyctalopia is a word derivatively meaning a night eye, that is, an eye which appreciates an object at night-time and is blind only during the day, or in a strong light. This condition is due to a too prolonged exposure to strong light; it is due also to malnutrition. Sleeping with the face exposed to the moonlight is also supposed to be a cause. In sailors who have been subject to long exposure, especially after a long tropical voyage, and where there is a deficiency in certain kinds of diet, as vegetables, and when this deprivation produces scurvy, we find that this condition co exists with this disease. This condition is often met with during the season of Lent, because meat is prohibited. Snow blindness is essentially the same thing as the condition under consideration. Protection to the eyes during the day, together with tonics, especially cod-liver oil, is to be prescribed.

The Limitation of the Fork Motion,

THE style of banking most generally employed in watches is open to the objection of being impractical, because it cannot be regulated.

Alterations and repairs subsequently made will often cause serious difficulties in this regard. The best banking is still that effected by pins inserted eccentrically in screw threads, and which can be displaced by turning the latter; but this disposition is unhappily too seldom met with.

The watch factory of S. Jaccard du Gros, of Sainte Croix, has recently obtained an Imperial German patent for a practical device, looking to the remedying of the objection spoken of above, and it is claimed that the banking can be regulated easily and with great precision.

Accompanying illustration shows the device. Into each of the foot-pins of the cock A is inserted laterally a screw a, the thread of which also forms its head, as shown separately in Fig. 2. These screws end in front in a smoothly-turned pivot which serves the fork B as banking. These banking screws are at first put in by means of the slit in their heads. If in the timing of the escapement a further turning of the banking screws is necessary, it may be done by means of the holes a' in the projecting ends, by inserting the point of a round broach, or other tool, into one of them and turning in the required direction. The two holes a' of each screw stand at right angles to each other, so that one of them is always in a position of usefulness. The screws are of anti-magnetic metal, to prevent the adherence of the fork to the banking pin. Watchmakers will see that the correction at this place becomes one of ease; the run and the shake of the guard at the impulse roller can be regulated very precisely, and every filing or stretching at the banking place is dispensed with.

To Solder Metals at Low Temperature.

ACCORDING to La Metallurgie, an alloy useful when metals are to soldered together at a low temperature can be made as follows: Copper in a fine state of division is obtained by precipitation with zinc from a solution of sulphate of copper. From 20 to 30 parts of this, according to the hardness required, are mixed in a cast-iron or porcelain mortar with concentrated sulphuric acid, to which is finally added 70 parts of mercury, and the whole triturated with the pestle. The amalgam thus formed is thoroughly washed with water to remove the sulphuric acid, after which it is left untouched from ten to twelve hours, at the end of which it is hard enough to scratch lead. To use the alloy for soldering, it is warmed till it has about the consistency of wax, and in this state it is applied to the joint, to which it adheres very firmly on cooling.

New Goods at A. Klingenberg's.

A DECIDED novelty among this season's importations are card trays of beautifully tinted and decorated Bohemian glass, with roses, lilies or forget-me-nots of wax, with leaves of the same material resting across one side of the receptacle. The flowers simulate nature perfectly. These card trays are among the novelties introduced by A. Klingenberg, 35 Park Place, New York, and are shown in the accompanying picture.

Among the other lines displayed by this house are German bisque, Royal Hanover and George Jones crescent china. The bisque figure in the illustration depicts a pretty maiden holding on her head a receptacle for flowers, and forms an epergne of rare beauty. The Hanover vase stands about 26 inches in height, and shows a collection of many colored flowers circled with gold scrolls. The neck and base represent tapestry and show workmanship of a high order. The English vase is exceeding unique in shape, the neck, which diverges into three separate curved stems, being an original idea.

There is a novelty on the London boards, a piece called "Dresden China," described as a fantasy. In this the two characters are vivified mantel shelf ornaments, china figures, male and female, who are supposed to have taken human shape, while retaining the consciousness that they are only china figures after all. They indulge in flirtation and a dance, and then, the demon of jealousy being aroused, the female throws part of a china "god" at the male, cracks him, and thereby kills him. She herself stumbles over his body, and is in like manner broken and destroyed.

dish to the tall flower receptacle, over three feet in height, can be seen arranged in a manner that is picturesque and attractive. The glass-cutting works of this firm, which are among the largest in the east, employing over 100 men, are continually producing new designs. The firm have always made it an object to depart from conventional ideas, and their prolificacy in producing new shapes, cuttings, etc., has gained for them a wide reputation.

The quality of the glass used is the finest and the sharpness of detail and beauty of the designs are such as to inspire admiration among connoisseurs. Among the latest cuttings are the "Gothic" and "Imperial." The firm patents many of their productions, which are in consequence seen only in their show rooms, and jewelers who handle them enjoy a reputation for exclusiveness.

Broken-edged china with a rough finish in dead gold takes precedence over all other styles. Dou'ton, Royal Worcester, Crown Derby, and all the varieties of French porcelains show this style of ornamentation in one way or another.

It is the intention of the Colorado World's Fair managers to distribute to visitors to the Colorado building some souvenir which may be a valued reminder of the State. Among them will probably be a specimen of mineral quartz, topaz or stone from some historic spot

The Rambler's Notes.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

JEWEL boxes of thick ruby colored Venetian glass are among the novelties imported for this season's trade by A. De Riesthal & Co., 55 Murray St., New York. The receptacles are shown in various sizes and are bound along the edges with heavily gold-plated metal, of which also the four short legs are formed. The sides and tops of the boxes are decorated with inlaid gold flowers, which have a very beautiful effect. The firm ate also showing many new designs in vases and bouquet holders of the same material.

A pretty gold-plated lamp shown by the Meriden Bronze Co., 30 Park Place, New York, has above a short circular onyx base, a Pegasus on the back of which a cupid is blowing through a shell. The company are also showing a full line of onyx tables with gold-plated trimmings and side bars. The latter rise considerably above the level of the table, and besides being a great convenience, they can be ornamented very artistically with variegated silk ribbons.

The Mt. Washington Glass Co., 46 Murray St., New York have introduced two very pretty new cuttings, entitled the "Westminster" and the "Corinthian."

Among the Parisian novelties recently received by Hinrichs & Co., 31 Park Place, New York, are floral receptacles of satin-finished silver, with bands of vari-colored ribbons of enamel. Several of them are egg-shaped, and the ribbons are twisted in graceful folds around their edges and end in bow-knots on their fronts.

The glass-cutting works of C. Dorflinger & Sons at White Mills, Wayne Co., Pa., which have been destroyed by fire several months ago, have been rebuilt and are now running to their full capacity employing about 300 men. Several improvements have been made and the firm are now producing many new designs for the Fall trade, which will be described in these columns as they appear.

THE RAMBLER.

The pudding bowl and platter of porcelain is a novelty. The most elaborate pieces are produced usually with a cream surface. Others have Dresden forms, and the chintz styles of ornamentation.

Club-Toothed Scape Wheel.—A club toothed escape wheel allows of a closer action than a ratchet tooth. Grossman, in his essay, chapter 7, gives three degrees for drop with a ratchet tooth; but that is more than sufficient. If the wheel is a good one, with a fine tooth, two degrees are enough and leave one-half degree of shake, though pallets are more often made with three degrees of drop than they are with two degrees.

IMPROVED ALARM CAM.

Charles D. Brown, of Ames, Ia., was recently granted a patent on an improvement in clock manufacture, the object of which is to provide an alarm mechanism for eight-day clocks which shall be so constructed as to require winding but once in that period, and which will operate but once in twenty-four hours.

Figure 1 is a front elevation showing a clock movement and an alarm mechanism, a portion of the clock-dial being broken away to show the improved alarm-cam. Fig. 2 is side elevation of the cam. Fig. 3 is a perspective view of the same, showing the drop lever in engagement with the cam.

C designates an alarm-dial, to the sleeve of which is secured the improved alarm-cam D. This alarm-cam is constructed, preferably, in this instance of a piece of wire bent to form two tracks $d d^2$, forming what may be termed a "figure-8" cam. The track d is circular and forms a bearing for the end of the drop-lever E during the period between the sounding of alarms, and the track or cam portion d^2 is formed with a shoulder d^3 for releasing the drop-lever at the proper time to sound the alarm. It will be observed by reference to Fig. 2 that the track d is so bent at the shoulder d^3 as to cause it to extend in rear of the latter, and that the free end cuts diagonally across the track d^2 and terminates over and in alignment with the free end of the cam portion, at which point a slot or passway d^4 is formed. The object of this construction is such as to cause the drop-lever to be lifted up and out of the base of the shoulder d^3 , and at the same time carry the lever rearward onto the track d^2 by means of the hook or toe e on the end of the lateral arm e^2 of the drop-lever, and the arm e^2 bears upon the said track until the shoulder d^3 again releases the said lever to sound the alarm. As the sleeve of the dial C is secured on the hour-sleeve of the main shaft of the clock, it follows that the dial will make two complete revolutions in twenty-four hours, and with the ordinary alarm-cam the alarm would sound twice in that time. By constructing the alarm-cam with a double track, as described, the dial C has to make two complete revolutions before the drop-lever will be brought to the cam-shoulder d^3 , so that the alarm will only sound once in twenty-four hours.

FIGS. 2 AND 3.

In describing the operation of the improved alarm-cam let it be supposed that the alarm has just sounded. The arm *d*² of the drop-lever is now resting at the base of the shoulder *d*³. As the dial C revolves, the said arm travels up the inclined portion *d*⁵ of the cam portion and on the track d, being held in position by the toe e and passes through the passway *d*⁴, thus locking the alarm mechanism against operation. The arm bears upon this track until the dial has revolved sufficiently to bring the passway directly under the arm, when the latter will be shifted to track *d*², on which it bears until released by the shoulder *d*³, thus releasing the alarm mechanism and sounding an alarm. The same operation is repeated every twenty-four hours for eight days, when the alarm is rewound.

RESTORING ROMAN FINISH.

LYONS, N. Y., Aug. 13 1892.

Editor of The Jewelers' Circular.

How can I restore Roman finish to gold jewelry after hard soldering. Kindly give me a few pointers on monogram engraving, outlining before cutting, etc. P. W. N.

ANSWER.—It is not possible to restore the Roman finish on gold jewelry after it has passed through the fire, as the finish is destroyed. The article must be recolored in the usual manner. In "Workshop Notes for Jewelers and Watchmakers," published by The Jewelers' Circular Pub. Co., are several articles on engraving which lack of space will not permit us to reproduce here. Whelpley's "Art of Letter Engraving" is a good book on this subject.

A HARMONIOUS COMBINATION OF STYLES.

THE vase represented on this page was made by Howard Sterling Co., Providence, R. I., for the Overland Park Club, Denver, Col., for their race for the Gentlemen's Cup, in October, 1891. The race and trophy were won by L. M. Cuthbert, a leading light in the legal firmament of Denver, who rode his own horse "Adam."

The cup is the first important work made by Howard Sterling Co., and while intrinsically a worthy example, deserves special credit as a first essay in the direction of absolute art creation. The model is a well-balanced and graceful exponent of Greek antique, while a part of the decoration, notably the representation of the race, is thoroughly modern, and much tact and skill are shown in the harmonious result in combining elements of art in periods centuries apart.

The base of the urn is chased in an antique pattern expressive of motion, and from it rises the gracefully curved body bearing the simple but appropriate decoration of festooned laurel caught up with a flowing ribbon bow, from which also depends the world-beloved emblem of fortune, the horse-shoe. The vase is without handles, their space being reserved for the principal emblematic motif of the decoration, the Race.

On each side of the body above an antique escutcheon is seen a thoroughbred mounted by a jockey; the horse at the right faces the front of the cup and represents the winner, fully extended but running gamely with the reverse of the cup and in hot pursuit of the leader, urged on by all the skill, persuasion and punishment of which a premier jockey is capable. This portion of the cup's ornamentation is full of spirit and makes the trophy thoroughly typical.

A line from one of the Georgics encircles the neck of the vase and expresses the courage of both rider and horse: "Primus et ire viam, et fluvior tentare minacer audet et ignoto sese committere ponti."

Flutings in purely antique style complete the decoration and relieve the severity of the body of the cup. Saving the inscriptions which are etched, all the decorations are raised by hand in repoussé. The horses and jockeys were modeled by an artist of keen sensibility and certain touch. The figures betray a knowledge of the physiology of the thoroughbred racer, and are full of life, even to the pose of the earnest but cool-headed rider.

Connoisseurs, both in the east and in Denver, have pronounced these figures perfect in detail and exquisite in their expression of action and supreme excitement. The company have been overwhelmed with compliments and congratulations, which do not seem undeserved after one has critically viewed the representation of their first cup.

Oskosky Wanted for More Than One Crime.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 3.—Peter Oskosky, who robbed Arthur S. Goodman's store, some time ago, has been committed by Magistrate Clement in default of $2,000 bail, for trial. The detectives made a search among Oskosky's effects and found a large quantity of miscellaneous goods, all of which had evidently been stolen. Among them were a lot of articles which Mr. Goodman identified as having been stolen from him.

There were also a number of opera-glasses which were identified by Queen & Co. Some weeks ago these had been stolen and the thief would probably have escaped had it not been for Oskosky's capture while endeavoring to pawn the jewelry which was part of the plunder taken from Mr. Goodman's store.

Third Meeting of the Illinois Jewelers' Association.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 3.—The third regular monthly meeting of the Retail Watchmakers' and Jewelers' Association of Illinois will be held Sept. 8, at which matters of special interest to members will be considered. "Our success is assured," said President Bryant to your correspondent. "Though but an infant, we number eighty members at present, and are receiving a large number of applications not only from the city and State, but also from other States which have no association. Secretary Correll reports good success on a recent trip through Illinois in the interest of the society, and its growth has exceeded the expectations of its founders. We are negotiating for permanent headquarters now, and have under consideration rooms in the Masonic Temple."

The Illinois State Society was organized May 24, 1892, upon the same lines as the State societies of Pennsylvania, Missouri, Ohio and Alabama, the objects being to promote good fellowship and advance the general interests of the retailer.

While A. P. Wilder, Eau Claire, Wis., was at dinner one day last week thieves broke into his store and carried away a number of watches, jewelry and cash. Barnum's circus was in town, which probably accounted for the presence of the robbers.

A Hitch in the Settlement of John Mason's Affairs.

As exclusively published in the last issue of THE CIRCULAR, the transfer of John Mason's stock of diamonds, jewelry and silverware to the Gorham Mfg. Co. was completed last week. The appraisers appointed by the creditors of Mr. Mason, and the Gorham Co. worked in harmony and without any necessity of calling upon third parties as provided, and the entire purchase price paid was $28,000. This amount was a great surprise to the creditors, who believed that the stock would bring considerably more. It is explained, however, that the jewelry consisted of patterns that are now out of style and that many of the diamonds had flaws. The machinery, fixtures and lease of the building, 246 Fifth Ave., were sold at private sale by the assignee for $4,000, which makes a total of $32,000 in his hands against liabilities of $159,573.67.

Last week James Byrne, acting as counsel for Mrs. Edith Faxon, a sister of John Mason, to whom he is indebted for $80,000 for borrowed money, brought suit in the Supreme Court to set aside the assignment, on the ground that it was made with intent to defraud the creditors. A representative of Mr. Byrne, when seen by a CIRCULAR reporter refused to give any particular allegations that would be produced, but intimated that they might prove that Mason has not turned over all his property to the assignee. This suit will delay any settlement of the matter for some months. It will be remembered that it was Mr. Byrne who was so eager for a settlement at the creditors' meeting, and who made the motion for the stock to be sold at private sale, claiming that his client had been made penniless by Mason and was willing to take anything she could get from the estate.

Anent that Larceny Case Against A. L. Saltzstein, Jr.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 31.—The case of A. L. Saltzstein, Jr., was called up for trial in Judge Mills' court Tuesday. Mr. Champion, the plaintiff, detailed his transaction with Mr. Saltzstein. On cross-examination Mr. Champion admitted that he offered to sell the notes without recourse to the indorser for $150, their face value being $200.

Arthur H. Erb testified that he was in Mr. Champion's office when the man calling himself Jackson, claiming to be a note broker, came in and entered into negotiations to buy the note. Neal Sutherland, a notary public, testified that at the request of Mr. Champion he went to Mr. Saltzstein's place with Jackson to get Saltzstein to identify the notes and acknowledge his signature. Witness handed the notes to Jackson, and Saltzstein seized them and ran behind the counter.

"There is a prima facie case made out," said the judge, "but I do not believe that when the case is heard in the court that has jurisdiction the Government will be able to make out their case. As I am sitting here only as an examining magistrate, I have merely got to carry out the law, and in order to show my belief in the ultimate responsibility of Mr. Saltzstein I am not going to require him to give real estate security. The case will have to go to the grand jury, and Mr. Saltzstein's personal bond will be taken for his appearance."

Mr. Saltzstein claims that his troubles are the result of enmity, intrigue and ill-will. He says that Champion sold him the patent, taking his notes in payment, and that the following day Champion sent him a note stating that the assignment of the patent was worthless.

The 6,000,000 Point Passed by The American Waltham Watch Co.

Last Tuesday the American Waltham Watch Co. completed their 6,000,000th watch. It is a fine nickel movement of the 16 size and has all the latest improvements, with gold wheels and ruby jewels in gold settings. Altogether the timepiece is one of the most beautiful, in point of finish, ever put out by the company.

The 6,000,000 watches made by the company have taken thirty-five years for their manufacture, but the first million took twenty years of this time, while the last took only about eighteen months. Work on watch No. 6,500,000 is even now already started. Watch No. 5,000,000 was made for treasurer R. E. Robbins, and was finished last year.

Judge Goldfogle Ingeniously Solves a Knotty Problem.

Judge Goldfogle had recourse Wednesday to an ingenious subterfuge in deciding a knotty case that came before him in the Fifth District Court, New York. A few weeks ago Mandel Newman, a jeweler, of 125 Division St., New York, sent his son with a $200 diamond to a customer for examination. The stone was stolen from the boy by a companion named Goldberg and the matter was reported to the police. Two weeks ago Henry Rose, a barkeeper, of Jersey City reported that he had also lost a large diamond. A few days after the theft of Mr. Newman's stone, Goldberg, becoming conscience-stricken, gave the diamond to Property Clerk Harriot, saying that he had found it. Both Newman and Rose were at once notified and both identified the stone as his own.

The matter came up before Judge Goldfogle Wednesday, the jeweler suing to regain the diamond. Both parties swore that the diamond in question was owned by him and each swore he could not be mistaken. While Rose was on the stand the judge handed the diamond to him and he said he knew the gem was his by the size, setting, etc. He was followed on the stand by the jeweler, who was also shown the stone. He at once said the stone shown him was not the one he wanted. It then appeared that the judge had taken his diamond stud from his bosom and shown it to the litigants. A decision was at once given in favor of the jeweler.

An Appraisal Committee for the Proposed Brass Combination.

WATERBURY, CONN., Sept. 5.—The manufacturers interested in the proposed brass trust of Waterbury and Naugatuck valley manufacturers, have held two meetings in this city. At the latter it was decided to appoint a committee of capable and disinterested parties, men who have had long experience in such matters, to appraise the value of the different plants with a view to their importance in the make-up of the consolidation, should it become a reality.

It is not yet assured that the men selected for this committee will consent to give their time to it, and it is probable that the manufacturers will hold another meeting very shortly, when information will be given on this point. None of the appraisal committee will be Naugatuck valley manufacturers.

Jeweler Fred H. Wheeler Dies Away from His Home.

RUTLAND, Vt., Sept. 1.—News has been received that Fred H. Wheeler, the jeweler, of 25 Merchants' Row, this city, died suddenly Monday at Great Neck Hospital, Long Island. He left home Friday night for Long Island accompanied by his brother, who lives in Philadelphia.

The deceased was born in Leominster, N. H., Nov. 10, 1844. He had been in the jewelry business in Rutland since 1877. His wife and two daughters survive him.

The late ex-jeweler S. R. Tomlinson, Bridgeport, Conn., father of jeweler S. R. Tomlinson, of Tomlinson & Coxeter that city, left no will. His estate foots up to $60,000 and will be divided among his family according to law. Stephen R. Tomlinson, Jr. has made application to the Probate Court to have papers of administration drawn up. The widow of Mr. Tomlinson will in all probability be appointed executrix.

WE STRIVE TO MAKE THE BEST

The Affairs of B. H. Broer Become More and More Complicated.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 1.—The failure of B. H. Broer is developing sensational features besides those already reported in THE CIRCULAR. When the stock was assigned to J. B. Ketcham, an invoice of the stock showed about $14,000 worth of goods on hand. Early this week attorneys here began receiving claims from New York firms for diamonds purchased since the first of the year, and which were unpaid for.

There was only about $200 worth of diamonds in stock, and the claims will figure $25,000 for diamonds alone. Aside from the $3,300 invested in what is said to be spurious mortgages upon land in Kentucky, there was about $23,000 worth of diamonds not accounted for until yesterday. It now comes out that Mr. Broer invested $21,000 in three patent rights; one on a cuff-holder, purchased of a St. Louis man through Toledo parties; another on a sheet deliverer to be attached to a cylinder printing press, and the third on a bicycle, known as the West patent. The value of these patents is uncertain. The sheet deliverer is in use and is considered a fair invention. The cuff-holder is also a very good thing and may be worth something. The value of the bicycle patent remains to be seen. Nothing has been heard from the mortgages as yet.

The stock has been sold to W. H. Broer, Fred Broer, brothers of B. H. Broer, and George Schluter, Henry Aufderherdie and Frederick Witker. All of Mr. Broer's property has been attached, and these securities have also been hypothecated by creditors.

The Goods Stolen from W. E. Dennis' Store.

HUMESTON, Ia., Sept. 1.—W. E. Dennis, whose store was robbed recently, as reported in THE CIRCULAR, offers a reward for the capture of the thief or the return of the goods. He has issued the following list of some of the goods stolen, which consists of about 60 watches:

Silver case, key wind watch, with Waltham movement, named Appleton, Howard & Dennison, No. of movement not known.

Wm. Ellery Waltham, Mass., No. 2,085,379, Silver filled, dust proof, case worn at edges.

No. 205,905, 1 size, 14k, Waltham, with F movement. A part of silver case No. 22,443, convertible into open face or hunting case, without crown or inside part of case.

Silver case, stem wind, 4 oz., open face, with Elgin National Watch Co. movement, No. 1,415,162, 7 jewel. Case had name Wm. Mattox scratched on outside of back.

One 6 size, Dueber, gold filled, top and bottom engraved case, with 6 size Nassau movement, nickle, 11 jewel, fancy dial, gold hands, with minute hand gone.

A good joke was played on a Hartford (Conn.) jeweler a few days ago. A man entered the store and asked to see a plain gold ring, and was shown several costing $3 and $4. These he considered too expensive and finally bought one for 75 cents, with the understanding that he could change it or get his money back. Two days after he returned with a young woman and wanted to return the ring, as it had served its purpose. They had just been married.

Among the African Diamond Mines.

NO RETURNS AVAILABLE REGARDING MONTHLY EXPORTS OF DIAMONDS—DIAMOND PROSPECTING AT DRIEKOP—JOHANNESBURG'S GOLD OUTPUT.

KIMBERLEY, July 27, 1892.—No returns have been available for some months regarding the monthly exports of diamonds.

I have just had an opportunity of visiting the locality of Driekop, in the Free State, where for about two years a syndicate has been exploring for diamonds. A prospecting party was started and a deal of work done, but though a large number of diamonds were found on the surface the mine from which they had come could not be located. The diamondiferous deposit was found in a kind of shallow gully and had evidently been deposited there by some flow or stream of water. The stuff had all the appearance of the soil in which diamonds were found in the early days of Kimberley and neighboring mines, and the usual concomitants in the way of garnets and bits of carbon were found in profusion. I cannot say how many diamonds were found, but I saw at one time a parcel of nearly a thousand gems which had come from the spot, most of which were small, ill-shapen or off-colored.

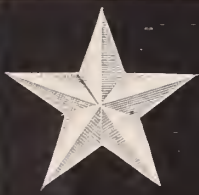

Under the deposit the prospectors found a hard rocky mass, very much like the hard diamondiferous soil solidified by heat or pressure, or both. The theory of men who profess to be authorities is that the hard mass is really diamondiferous and has once been of a softer and more pliable nature, but through exposure to certain influences has become metamorphosed. Their conclusions are that under this hard mass the mine will be found.

Official returns show that the total production of gold at Johannesburg during the past five years has been 2,429,694 ounces of a local value of £8,500,000. The average yield is 12 dwts. per ton of ore. The greatest rate of progress has been made within the last six months. There can now be no doubt that the regular production at Johannesburg will materially affect the gold supplies of the world.
ST. GEORGE.

Clever Swindlers Operate in the City of Brotherly Love.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 31.—Detectives are searching for W. J. Hazzard, better known as "Blind" Hazzard, and Cameron Spear, for a series of systematic and clever swindles which they have been working for the past five weeks on various business houses in this city. The full extent of their hauls here is not yet known, but they secured among other things a diamond stud valued at $250 and a split second gold watch worth $150. The swindlers are supposed to be members of a gang who work all over the country.

A few days ago the two men walked into the City Trust, Safe Deposit and Surety Co.'s office and wished to make a deposit for the purpose of opening an account with the bank. One of them presented two New York drafts to the amount of $1,280 and was given a check book, but was told not to draw on the deposit until the bank collected the draft in New York. The account was in the name of Cameron Spear. Shortly after a check came to the bank for $150, signed by Spear in favor of Grace Brothers, jewelers. In the meantime the New York drafts were found to be worthless, so the check was protested. It seems that after opening their bogus draft account at the bank. Spear went to the establishment of the Grace Brothers and purchased a fine watch. On Friday a week ago Spear bought a racing watch, tendering in payment a check on the City Trust Co. Mr. Grace saw on the stub of the check book a record of a deposit of $1,240 and thought it was all right, so he accepted it. Hazzard, about the same time, dropped into another jewelry store on 10th St., near Chestnut, and became enamored of a beautiful diamond stud valued at $250. He had been an occasional purchaser at the store, and had always paid cash for what he got.

Hazzard is a tall man, over six feet in height, well built, and has a blond moustache. He is very near-sighted, and whenever he reads or writes holds the paper close to his face. Spear is short and stout.

How Jeweler Gardner Came to be Arrested for Theft and Assault.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 31.—A transaction between jeweler W. T. Gardner, and a lady shopper was brought to light Monday in Justice Cocker's Court. The jeweler was arrested and required to give bail upon the charge of stealing a watch and also on the charge of assault and battery. Mr. Gardner's version of the story is that some time ago he purchased a gold watch from Mrs. Elizabeth Holt for $10. On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Holt entered the store and asked to see the watch she had previously sold to the proprietor. The request was granted, and she began to strike a bargain for her former timepiece. Finally Mrs. Holt made a break for the door with the watch in her possession. The proprietor followed and caught her just as she was emerging from his place. He took the timepiece away from her and returned it to his showcase. Monday afternoon Mrs. Holt swore out two warrants against the jeweler, one for the theft of the watch and the other for assault and battery.

Exhibitors at the Palais de l'Industrie Paris, Robbed.

Dispatches from Paris, France, received in New York last Wednesday announced that diamonds and other jewelry valued at 250,000 francs has been stolen from exhibitors at the Woman's Art Exhibition in the Palais de l'Industrie. It was discovered the previous morning that the valuables had disappeared from one of the safes.

The thief, one of the employes, named Louis Lecomte, has disappeared too, but the police are on his track and have sent a description of him to all the principal seaports of France.

Robbery a Jewelry Store at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 1.—The jewelry store of Herman Schmidt, 641 Cookman Ave., was entered by burglars some time during Monday night and robbed of several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry. The burglars managed to open the safe which contained the property which was stolen.

The burglars got away with their booty without being seen and left no clue behind them. The robbery was not discovered until the proprietor opened the store at the usual time the next morning.

Jose Stern's Answer to the Creditor's Bill of Jacob Franks.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 3.—Jose Stern, whose assets as J. Stern & Co. are in the hands of the sheriff, has filed his answer to the creditors' bill of Jacob Franks, in which Franks seeks to set aside Stern's confession of judgment in favor of his brother and Michael S. Hyland on the ground of fraud. In his bill he denies that on Aug. 2, he told complainant that he had $18,000 worth of property. He may have told him that he considered his plant worth $18,000, and believes it was at that time, notwithstanding at the recent sheriff's sale but $3,000 was bid. He further states that he does not feel that he owes Franks one dollar. He regards the judgment as unjust and inequitable, for the reason that he delivered to Franks, as collateral security for an indebtedness, diamonds which he (Stern) purchased at wholesale for over $20,000, and from which Franks might realize at least $10,000, enough to wipe out all indebtedness to him.

He states that as he has kept his interest paid, his judgment should have been $5,000, in addition to which he owes Franks $5,000, but that the diamonds will bring enough to pay his total indebtedness to Franks. In conclusion he repeats that he does not think either he or Daniel Stern is honestly indebted to Franks one dollar.

The sheriff's sale has not yet been brought about. Franks secured an injunction ordering the sheriff to sell for cash only. The first sale to Daniel Stern for $3,000 was forfeited by non-payment of the money and the sale has been postponed repeatedly since then.

A Splash Was All That Told of John J. Sheridan's Death.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 2.—The mystery surrounding the drowning of John J. Sheridan, jeweler, 1225 Watkins St., was not dispelled at the inquest yesterday before Coroner Ashbridge. Friends of the dead man are expressing great surprise at the manner in which Sheridan met his death.

The testimony at the inquest was to the effect that Mr. Sheridan, with a number of friends, went out sailing from Cooper's Point. They went down as far as Gloucester, and while passing Kaighn's Point on the return trip a splash was heard. The witnesses stated that they heard no cry of alarm and Sheridan was not seen to fall into the water and that he never came to the surface again.

The body was found floating off League Island Wednesday. The jury rendered a verdict of drowning. Mr. Sheridan, who was 31 years old, leaves a wife and four children.

The little four-year-old son of J. H. Bundy, a colored jeweler, 2028 Brightwood Ave., Washington, D. C., narrowly escaped being smothered to death in his father's safe last Monday morning, having been placed upon the inside and the door locked by his little brothers and sisters while playing. He was unconscious when taken out.

By a peculiar misuse of the types the caption under the illustration in B. & W. B. Smith's advertisement last week, was made to read "Sharpley & Co., Philadelphia, Pa." The caption should have read "Spaulding & Co., Chicago, Ill.," the illustration being reproduced from a photograph of the great Chicago jewelry establishment which has recently been magnificently fitted by B. & W. B. Smith.

Mr. Lunt, coast traveler for the Towle Mfg. Co., took an order recently under peculiar circumstances. The buyer, H. C. Zapf, Grass Valley, Cal., was unable to leave his bed and the samples were spread on the bedroom floor. When Mr. Zapf had selected his line his wife remarked that two children playing on the floor were just recovering from scarlet fever. Mr. Lunt stood not on the order of his going.

The Business of Fred. I. Marcy & Co. to be Closed Out.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—The advertisement published in the local papers that the plant of Fred. I. Marcy & Co. would be sold at mortgagee's sale at public auction at 12 o'clock, Thursday, Sept. 8, produced but very little surprise in this city.

The firm of Fred I. Marcy & Co., which was established in 1867, was an important and leading factor in the jewelry trade of Providence. The original style of the firm was Sturdy & Marcy, and as such continued for ten years, when Mr. Sturdy retired and Mr. Marcy continued alone about a year, when Charles H. Smith, who had been salesman for the concern for several seasons, was given a quarter interest in the profits of the business. In 1882 Mr. Smith died, and since then Mr. Marcy has conducted the business under the present style. On Nov. 1, 1882, Mr. Marcy made an assignment to William C. Greene, the well-known manufacturing jeweler of this city. At that time the liabilities of the concern were estimated at $112,000 to $115,000, while the assets were placed at between $30,000 and $35,000. An offer of 20 cents cash was accepted and a settlement made. In order to meet this payment, however, Mr. Marcy was forced to place a chattel mortgage upon his entire plant. This mortgage was recorded April 6, 1889, to a syndicate consisting of John M. Buffinton, Dutee Wilcox, Israel B. Mason, John McAuslan, John E. Troop, Lloyd Tillinghast, Stillman White, W. R. Richards, Albert W. Smith, Daniel E. Day, with Dutee Wilcox, John M. Buffinton and Israel B. Mason as trustees. The amount of the mortgage was $15,000 and was to bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. June 28, 1890, this mortgage was renewed.

Under the syndicate's management the business of the concern was continued with varying success until July 16, 1892, when a meeting of the syndicate was held, and it was mutually agreed to appoint James M. Scott, the insurance agent, of this city, trustee for three years. This move did not, however, tide the firm over, and as bills of considerable size were about to mature, it was decided to close out the business to the best advantage, and the syndicate accordingly foreclosed. What the assets and liabilities are it is impossible to tell at the present time.

The shop occupied by the concern was one of the largest in the city, furnishing employment to 75 to 100 skilled jewelers, and when it is stated that one girl engaged in putting the shoes on the famous Acme sleeve buttons, which this firm made a specialty of, can turn out 2,500 buttons each day, some idea may be formed of the enormous quantities of these buttons which have been annually produced since their introduction in 1887.

The Death of Louis G. Goodspeed.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 2.—We learn of the death recently at Colorado Springs, Col., of Louis G. Goodspeed. Mr. Goodspeed had been ill with typhoid fever for two weeks.

About five years ago he went to Colorado Springs from this city and purchased the Davis stock of jewelry and was building up a fine business. A few years since he conducted a material business in Chicago under the firm name of L. G. Goodspeed & Co. This he sold to C. H. Knights & Co., for whom he traveled for two years. His father, A. G. Goodspeed, conducts a jewelry business at Minonk, Ill.

Further Tributes To the Memory of the Late Henry A. Monroe.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 5.—During the past week tributes have been published in the local papers in memory of the late Henry A. Monroe.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Phenix National Bank, held Aug. 30th, it was Resolved, That the death of Henry A. Monroe is an occasion of profound sorrow to his associates, who deeply mourn the loss of a true and faithful friend of genial, unassuming manners and a personal worth that had won their highest regard.

Resolved, That by his removal the bank has lost an esteemed director, whose firmness and strict integrity were highly valued in the counsels of the board.

Resolved, That the cashier be instructed to enter these resolutions upon the records of the bank and to send a copy to the bereaved family.

A Watch Thief at Large.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 2.—Last Wednesday a stranger called at H. F. Vergey's jewelry store in Columbia and left several watches to be repaired. The repairer noticed that they all had engraved on the inside case the names of different people.

Suspicion was aroused, but before it could be verified the man procured the watches and left. It was subsequently ascertained that there had been a series of robberies in Ardmore, this State, and the man was evidently the thief. He was arrested the next day, but escaped from the officer and is yet at large.

George Finck, representing Stein & Ellbogen, Chicago, in Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and parts of Illinois, came in from the road last Tuesday and reports prospects for the Fall as fine.

I. G. Adler, looking after the interests of Swartchild & Co., Chicago, in nearby States returned Aug. 22 and left Aug. 29 for Michigan. Hugo Schmidt, who looks after the central west, returned Aug. 28 and left Monday on an Illinois trip.

A. L. Saltzstein Arrested on a New Charge of Larceny.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1.—The troubles of A. L. Saltzstein, Jr., were multiplied yesterday by a warrant sworn out by B. H. Davis, of B. H. Davis & Co., 24 Maiden Lane, New York, charging him with the embezzlement of three sets of diamond earrings, valued at $477. The warrant was placed in the hands of Detective Trammell, and Saltzstein was arrested and released on $500 bail for his appearance before the police court to-day.

The plaintiff claims that about May 14 his firm received a letter from Saltzstein requesting that three pair of diamond earrings be sent to him for a customer, and if they suited he would remit the amount immediately. The diamonds were sent, but repeated communications with Saltzstein brought no financial response. Later Mr. Saltzstein appeared in New York and informed the plaintiff that the diamonds were with a customer at Atlantic City and he would go and get them.

On Aug. 14 Mr. Saltzstein addressed him a letter dated from the Astor House in New York, in which he stated that the diamonds could not be obtained until Sept. 5. This caused Mr. Davis to come to this city. The case was immediately reported to police headquarters and Detective Trammell assigned to work it up. One pair of the earrings were finally located in Fulton's Loan Office, where the number, 18347, agreed with Mr. Davis' memorandum. They were taken to Harris & Shafer's and weighed, and were found to be the exact property named in the memorandum.

The attachment suits of Pauline Ginsberg and Saxton, Mason & Co. were called up on motion in Chambers yesterday. A motion was made to quash the writs, on the ground of the insufficiency of the affidavits. After argument Judge Bradley quashed the writs in both cases and the costs were imposed on the plaintiffs.

NEW YORK.

We have prepared for the approaching season a great range of new patterns, in a variety of articles, styles and finishes, and invite the attention of the trade to the special display of these goods in the New York warerooms, and also at the WORKS, PROVIDENCE, R. I.

It has been proved by the assurances of our customers that a visit to our works is of great benefit to them in sales of silverware to their trade, as it gives them a clear insight into many of the processes and necessary methods employed, and the difficulties in the way of quick production of many articles; they are thus not likely to make promises to their customers impossible to comply with.

OUR AUTUMN CATALOGUE, 1892, will be delivered by Express about September first. Price list sent, upon application, to the trade only.

VOL. XXV. SEPT. 7, 1892. No. 6.

SOME months ago THE CIRCULAR published a peculiar epitaph that appeared upon a Welshman's tombstone. As it was all a joke, THE CIRCULAR, to give force to the paragraph, gave a fictitious location of the grave, combining a lot of l's and w's, characteristic of the Welsh language, and forming a word impossible to pronounce. Last week a trade contemporary republished the article quite seriously, retaining the same impossible word composed of the same letters. One naturally asks himself if the other serious matter in the publication is as reliable as the article referred to.

MAJOR SINGERLY'S Record last week published the following epigram: "THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR—a ring." The primary definition of the word, ring, is a circle which is the most perfect of all geometrical devices. The rules that govern the theorems and problems respecting the circle are positive and unyielding. In both these qualities the verisemblance of a circle and THE CIRCULAR are evident. Besides, it is known the circle cannot be squared; that is a square cannot be made of the exact area of a given circle. Thus THE CIRCULAR, being a circle, admits of no exact representation, and baffles its competitors in their efforts to imitate it. We thank our Philadelphia contemporary for their graceful compliment.

CHOLERA is and has been for the past week the chief subject of public interest. While the chances of its introduction have to be looked in the face, there is nothing like a panicky feeling among the people, who seem to feel confidence in the ability of the sanitary authorities to check the progress of the disease if it should make its appearance here. However, there are some outsiders who have been staring at the Narrows as if Grim Death were about to stalk in through that noble waterway. No individual in New York, or on his way to New York, or intending to go to New York, has any reasons for apprehension at the present time as to his personal safety. He has no reasons to change his plans, or to depart in any particular from his ordinary manner of life. The entrance to the port of New York is guarded by one of the most efficient, vigilant and intelligent quarantines ever established anywhere on the face of the earth. There has not been a case of cholera or cholera, or any disease resembling it, in the Metropolis; there has not been a case on this side of the quarantine. If one will but reason within his own mind, that first, the disease must make its appearance in the city; second, it must achieve headway; third, that he must be taken down with the pest, and fourth, that he might recover, after all, he will come to the conclusion that he is no more likely to depart immediately from this life because of cholera than from any other of the "thousand natural shocks that flesh is heir to." It is to be sincerely hoped that the writings in several sensational newspapers outside of New York will not bear fruit in the shape of depressed business.

A. M. Hartwyck Forced Into an Assignment.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 1.—A. M. Hartwyck, 205 Main St., to-day made an assignment to Richard Randall. Last week there was a fire in the store and some of the creditors then made demands on him and Joseph Ruchell began suit in the District Court for $165. Mr. Hartwyck asked his creditors for an extension until the holiday trade began.

Mr. Ruchell alone refused, and the suit entered by him was called this forenoon in the District Court. An effort was made to have it postponed, but Mr. Ruchell refused, and judgment was entered. Before any levy was made the deed of assignment was filed at the Surrogate's office. Mr. Hartwyck says he has enough in stock to pay all his creditors if the goods are sold at market value.

A Clerk's Suit Against His Employer Falls to the Ground.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 2.—In August, 1890, Max Rosenberg, until then an employe of S. L. Ettenheimer, commenced an action against that jeweler to recover $20,000 damages for alleged malicious prosecution and false imprisonment. Rosenberg removed to Chicago, and, as he was out of the State, the defendant's attorney moved last year for an order directing plaintiff to give security for costs. This he failed to do, but an order was granted at the July Special Term, giving twenty days in which to comply with the first order. Nothing has been done since then and Judge Adams, on motion of William De Graff, this week dismissed the complaint with costs.

Just previous to his death Joseph Beck, of R. & J. A judgment for $54,880 was entered Thursday against the Metropolitan Watch Co., formerly of 30 E. 14th St., in favor of the Holland Trust Co., which was trustee for the bonds issued by the company. Augustus C. Brown was appointed receiver of the watch company in June, 1891, and, as reported in THE CIRCULAR at the time, found assets worth only about $100.

D. E. De Burg-Burke, who was arrested three weeks ago on his arrival from Europe on a charge of bringing stolen jewelry into the country, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Alexander on last Tuesday. As it was found difficult to hold him under the original complaint, an amended complaint was filed charging him with the larceny of three diamond studs valued at £30 from Edmond Johnson, of Dublin, who is at present in this city. The defendant was remanded for one week.

A meeting of his creditors will be called in a few days.

The factory on Lewis St. was closed by the Sheriff and the sale of the machinery, etc. is advertised to take place this morning.

The Watch Instalment Business not a Success in this Case.

The sheriff's officers have since Wednesday been endeavoring to make a levy on the office of the Mutual Watch Co., 205 Broadway, New York, but they have been unable to get it, as the office has been closed, and Thomas F. Costello, president of the concern, is said to be in Saratoga. B. Veit has obtained a judgment against the company for $518 for goods sold, and other creditors are waiting to serve papers on Mr. Costello. A lawyer named Bach has seen several of the creditors and made an offer to compromise on Mr. Costello's behalf at twenty cents on the dollar. This offer some creditors have accepted. The liabilities of the concern are said to be $10,000. The company was incorporated in March, 1888, with a capital stock of $10,000 and sold watches on the instalment plan.

Much Ado About Very Little.

A man rushed up Maiden Lane Saturday morning followed by a large crowd crying "Stop thief!" He ran across Broadway into the arms of a policeman and was taken to the Church St. police station, where a charge of robbery was preferred against him. The report immediately spread around the wholesale district that a man had entered a Maiden Lane store, taken a "box of diamonds worth $10,000" and covered his retreat by flourishing a big navy revolver. In a few minutes the district was crowded with reporters and detectives.

Meantime the robber, a tramp, was languishing in a cell charged with stealing a $20 lens from McAllister & Co., 49 Nassau St. He had entered the office and hid the lens under his coat when he thought no one was looking. A clerk saw him, followed him up Maiden Lane and caused his arrest. He was taken to the Tombs and held for examination.

Horse Racing the Cause of Bookkeeper Morris' Downfall.

William Morris, 48 years of age, of 377 Macon St., Brooklyn, who has been bookkeeper for Adolph Goldsmith, 38 Maiden Lane, New York, for the past two years, was arrested and held for examination in the Tombs Friday on the charge of forgery.

Morris's stealings amount to $1,000, which was taken at various times in small amounts. His scheme was to open letters which he believed to contain checks, abstract the latter and forge Mr. Goldsmith's endorsement and then give them to his wife to pass on tradespeople from whom she bought her supplies. The letters he would destroy and credit the sender with the amount on the books. Recently Mr. Goldsmith announced his intention of making an examination of the books, and Morris, becoming frightened, failed to go to the office the next day, but sent a letter admitting his guilt. Horse racing is said to have been the cause of his downfall. Before entering Mr. Goldsmith's employ he was in the office of Henry Clews & Co., the bankers.

The friends of S. N. Jacobs have made a satisfactory settlement with the diamond houses that were so anxiously searching for him.

The Stern Jewelry Co., of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000 by W. A. Glass, F. F. Fish and C. B. Darling.

Frank H. Wells, Syracuse, N. Y., general selling agent in the United States for the Franco-German ring, wants agents in every city and town in the country. The Franco-German ring is a positive cure for rheumatism and kindred diseases, and is recommended by many physicians and public men of note. Jewelers can handle this ring with profit. Address all communications to Mr. Wells.

Trade Gossip.

R. Brettner, 64 Nassau St., New York, calls the attention of manufacturers and dealers to his new patented process for setting diamonds in rich jewelry, which is considerably cheaper and more uniform than handwork.

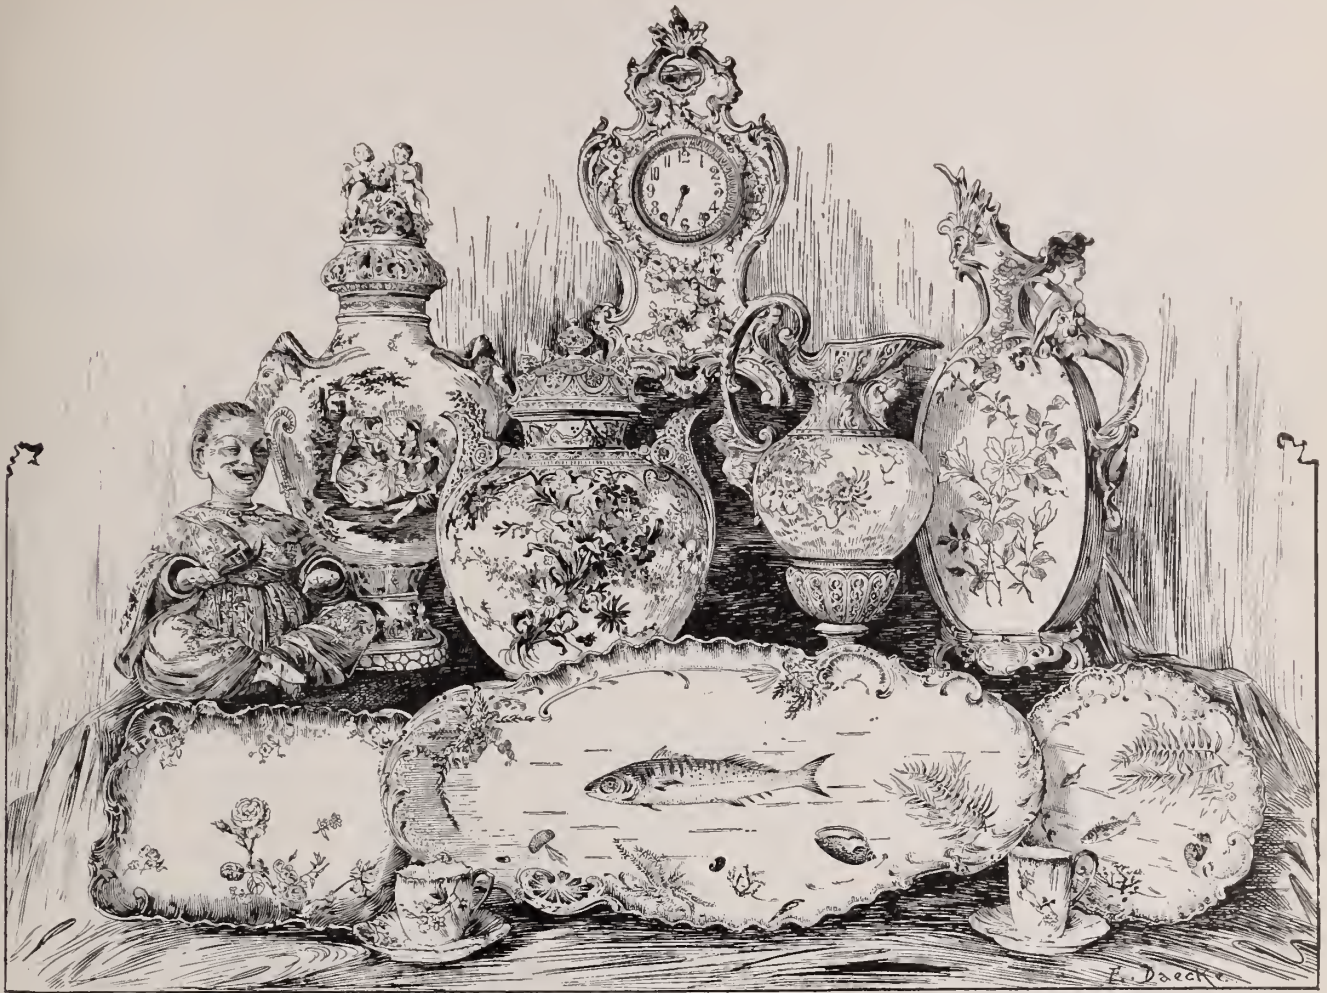

Bachrach & Freedman, 1 and 3 Union Square, New York, have a large variety of cups and saucers in all the latest colors and shapes, exquisitely decorated with sterling silver. These articles are particularly appropriate for engagement presents.

Henry Froehlich & Co., 40 Maiden Lane, New York, manufacturers of rolled plate jewelry, have one of the most complete lines in the city. They are constantly producing new and taking designs in brooches, lace pins, scarf pins, lockets, etc., and have a large assortment of white stone and emblem goods, both in gold and rolled plate.

THE CIRCULAR is in receipt of a very interesting pamphlet issued by Baker & Co., refiners, assayers and smelters, Newark, N. J., entitled "Data Concerning Platinum, etc." The book contains a table showing the approximate weight and capacity of platinum crucibles, dishes, etc.; tables giving the weight per foot of platinum wire in Troy and French weights, tables of weight per square inch of platinum sheet or foil, and several other tables pertinent to the subject. This pamphlet, which will be mailed to the address of any jeweler upon the receipt of his business card, will prove very serviceable to all consumers of platinum.

Charles J. Jacobs, of Homan & Co., Cincinnati, O., who during the past month has had his samples on exhibition at the Astor House, New York, reports that business has been beyond all expectations. This is the third year that Mr. Jacobs has shown his goods in New York, and the sales this year have been far in advance over the two previous years. Homan & Co.'s silver-plated hollow ware is justly celebrated for its superior quality and moderate price. During the time their goods were displayed in New York they have been examined by a great number of the trade, whose liberal orders testified to their appreciation of the quality of the ware.

There is no necessity this year to place import orders for opera-glasses, that is, orders given in March and April for delivery in September. It is inconvenient to order so far ahead, and often styles so ordered are superseded by cheaper and better ones later in the season, and there is thus no saving in price on those which are so ordered. The advantage claimed is that the dealer's name may be placed upon the opera-glass. Queen & Co., of 1010 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, will engrave on any order for opera-glasses the name of the dealer, the time required being not over twenty-four hours. If he sends his order for this Fall's stock of goods to Queen's, he will obtain a line of opera-glasses of the very latest designs bearing his name and prices.

Fashions in Jewelry and Silver Novelties.

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

White combs have the outer edges bound with perforated silver.

The prettiest novelties are shown in funnels of silver and silver gilt.

Cologne bottles bordered in Italian designs of wreaths and lattice work have been introduced.

Silver spectacle trays have been introduced. They are oblong with a lustrous surface and a raised and broken edge.

Plain silver salvers with broken edge and a set of small silver cups ornamented in the same manner are intended for Roman punch. Small spoons accompany them.

Gold bracelets in square sections linked together, covered with daisy-like forms and small stones of different colors sunk one each in the different sections are new.

The endeavor to make receptacles for playing cards look like prayer-books succeeds. Small volumes of velvet with silver ornaments applied could be carried to church without fear of discovery.

A silver salver for visiting cards noticed had a border of Italian work, perforated, and combining heavy raised and thin latticed open work. This border was in silver gilt and was a remarkably beautiful piece of work.

The fancy for flower-shaped spoons has grown. These are so pretty that they would make as equally interesting as the souvenir spoons. The water lily, the morning glory, the rose, a grape leaf, the lily-of-the-valley have all been observed. ELSIE BEE.

It is seldom that such a bargain is offered to the retail trade as that presented in the advertisement of Ernest Adler, 21 Maiden Lane, New York, in another part of THE CIRCULAR. Mr. Alder illustrates several samples of a line of solid 10k. gold, diamond mounted link cuff-buttons which he is selling at $5 per pair. These buttons are equal in finish and workmanship to those of thrice their price, and the brilliants, two of which are in each set, were carefully selected. Mr. Adler, with commendable enterprise, has produced many bargains, but none that offers such inducements to the retailer as these buttons.

Wood & Hughes, 16 John St., New York, have introduced a new design in sterling silver flatware called the "Louis XV," which takes rank among the foremost patterns of the year. It is rococo in style and consists of a series of scrolls intermingled with curves and leaves along the edge of the handles, with a plain polished surface between. The design commends itself to all lovers of the artistic, and it will undoubtedly become one of the most popular patterns on the market. Wood & Hughes have also produced many new and desirable pieces in hollow ware, which they invite the trade to inspect.

Prominent Young Men of the Jewelry Trade.

XVIII.

THE attractive portrait here presented is of Jos. Homan, who was born in Cincinnati, O., in 1864. He graduated from St. Xavier's, in Cincinnati, and also from Notre Dame University, at South Bend, Ind. He subsequently entered a wholesale cloth house as entry clerk, remaining there a year, when in 1884 he formed a partnership with his brother Louis, to conduct the Homan Silver Plate Co., which was established by their father in 1847, and which had been carried on in the same place for 40 years. At that time the factory turned out only staple lines. The reorganization of the firm brought new ideas and capital, and the partners, though both young, determined to make the Homan silver plate a popular ware with the trade. Introducing new machinery and increasing the capacity of the plant, the firm have succeeded in their undertaking beyond even their hopes.

THE FIELD FOR DESIGN IN BRACELETS—MANY ATTRACTIVE AND UNIQUE PATTERNS IN BRACELETS—AN ORIGINAL SCENT BOTTLE
 —ASH TRAYS AND CANE HANDLES—SUN-SHADES AT THE SEASHORE.

PARIS, France, Aug. 25.—Of all classes of jewelry, bracelets by far admit of the most unlimited variety. Among the prettiest patterns which I have seen lately in this line
 I remarked especially one consisting of rectangular gold pieces closely linked together with an Egyptian course formed of lotus flowers uninterruptedly following each other around the bracelet. These flowers are made in green cloisonné enamel slightly shaded;
 the partitions in fine filigree gold are somewhat salient. The divisions of the links are hardly noticeable. On another bracelet of the same style a garland of roses in enamel is applied on a granulated gold ground. A ribbon appears to run around the garland.
 The underneath part of this ribbon shows in blue enamel and the upper one exhibits a very fine course of tiny brilliants.

A rather simple bracelet, yet a very attractive one, consists of a band of pale gold entirely pricked with close needle holes. Three stars of diamonds of different sizes are applied in well modeled relief on the top part of the piece. Another graceful bracelet is formed of a succession of corded rings in yellow gold, resting flat on the arm, each ring surrounding a trefoil in green gold with a tiny ruby in the center.

An original scent bottle has the shape of a gunpowder flask. It hangs from a chain the links of which resemble owl's eyes. It is fastened at the waist by crossed pieces of rugged bamboo, bent like pistol handles and arranged as a trophy.

A rather uncommon ash-tray consists of a recipient in crystal in the shape of a violin.
 The strings, the handle, the keys, etc., are arranged so as to give the effects of a real violin in crystal.

Fashionable cane handles in rugged precious wood are adorned with a dog or a rabbit in chased silver, thrust through the handle at a little distance from the top. The animal with its head peeping out on one side, and his hind legs hanging on the other, thus pitifully entrapped, has an attitude at once queer and natural.

Elegant sunshades used at fashionable seaside resorts have long carved ivory handles, in the style of the last century. The top is provided with the Lilliputian watch de rigueur, and from the big moving ring hang several gold trinkets such as tiny fans, opera-glasses, scent bottles etc. JASEUR.

The use of small pearls is noticeable. The designs are a great improvement on those of former days when seed pearls were in use.
 The gold gives them relief and increases the value of the pearls in effect, even though they be small. A very interesting instance was seen in a necklace, which was a slender thread of gold with small pearls strung alternately on each side.

I. D. B. in South Africa.

NOTWITHSTANDING all that has been written as to the condition of the diamond industry, very few people outside of Southern Africa appear to have realized all that the mystic letters I. D. B. import to the South African. Thoroughly to understand the position, it is necessary to go back to the early days of the diggings, now more than twenty years ago. No sooner were the fields established than the crime of diamond stealing began to show itself; for the diamond is at the same time the most valuable and the most portable of all human property. In most articles of illegitimate commerce there is some trouble at least in stowing away the spoil. In the early days of the individual digger and the tent, vengeance on the diamond thief was quick and decisive. If a man was known to be tampering with the "niggers" or "boys" of a fellow digger, it was not long before his tent and all therein were burned over his head, and he might consider himself lucky if he were not hounded out of the community.

So much for the thefts that were discovered, but for every theft that was thus found out it soon became apparent that there were a dozen undiscovered, and the evil romance of the Fields has always been to speculate upon the extent to which the most highly placed citizens were engaged in this unholy traffic. It is different from all other forms of theft in the world. It has a fascination of its own, owing to the enormous gains which accrue to it, and more than one novel of South African life has owed its most exciting passage to the accounts of I. D. B., which mystic initials simply mean "Illicit Diamond Buying." As in coarser forms of crime so in diamond stealing, the thief would be perfectly helpless without the receiver, and it is the peculiar degradation of this trade that the original thief as a rule must be the hitherto untutored native who works in the claims. The white rascal teaches the native to steal, enjoys the proceeds of the plunder and in too many cases leaves the wretched Kafir to bear the brunt of the discovery and punishment of guilt, himself retiring to London or Paris, there to enjoy the proceeds of his illicit operation.

In what are now regarded as the palmy days of Kimberley, before the amalgamation of claims had taken place, to be followed by the still more sweeping amalgamation of companies, it is computed that at the very least one-fourth of the diamonds that were produced in the mines was stolen. The customs returns for the last twenty years show that the diamond exports from South Africa revealed an extraordinary gap which can only be accounted for by the supposition that great stores of wealth were leaving the country, and imports were pouring in for consumption by the illicit diamond buyers. To some extent the public conscience was deadened by reason of the fact that the I. D. B. was a liberal liver and spent his gains on the spot, thereby undoubtedly enriching the colony, while the legitimate digger, or still more the diamond mining companies, conserved their gains for the purpose of remittances to supporting capitalists in Europe. Before the Province of Grigualand West was annexed to the Cape Colony some attempts were made by legislation to cope with the evil, but they were all futile, or nearly so, by reason of the difficulty of bringing home the offenses to the criminal.

The most romantic tales are told of the dodges resorted to by I. D. B.'s in order to escape the clutches of the law. When concealment about the person was considered dangerous—and it must be remembered that valuable diamonds might be concealed in a decayed tooth—strange devices were resorted to. There is an old story of a horse being fed on diamonds with his oats, in the territory of Grigualand West, driven out a few hundred yards across the Free State border, where the diamond laws did not operate, and there slain and dissected for his mineral treasures. In another case there was a corpse, and the friends of the deceased expressed a desire that the body should be buried at some spot in the Free State for which the deceased had a sentimental regard. There the funeral took place, but after the coffin had been lowered into the grave the relatives returned at night to open it to extract from it the magnificent haul which had thus been conveyed beyond the clutches of the police. Such anecdotes might be multiplied ad infinitum. Some of them possibly owe their existence to the fertility of the writer's imagination, but the records of the law courts show that if some cases were invented, they do not exceed in the revelation of misplaced human ingenuity, the real cases recounted in sober daylight.

The one central feature of the legislation of 1882 was that it placed the burden of proof of honest possession upon the possessor of a rough or uncut diamond. The trade in the precious stones of the jeweler is as free in South Africa as in London or New York. It is the rough and uncut diamond only that is the subject of the most stringent legislation to be found in the world. Under the Act of 1882, amended, without alteration of its cardinal principle by the Act passed in 1885, it is obvious that a man may be subjected to the fearful penalties of the Act, seven years' penal servitude being a very common sentence by reason of a diamond being dropped into his jacket pocket by an enemy. This is a kind of case that has been made only too much of by the I. D. B. Most sober men admit that there may have been in the last twenty years one or possibly two cases out of hundreds of convictions for I. D. B. in which the possession of a diamond has been due to the malignity of an enemy; but the agitation against the Acts which has been kept up on such grounds as these is wholly factitious. It is a moral certainty that in ninety-nine out of a hundred cases a man who possesses rough and uncut diamonds for which he is unable to account richly deserves his seven years.

The colony of Natal, I may state, has never consented to second the efforts of the Cape by passing diamond legislation, and as a consequence that colony at the present moment enjoys such gains as come to it from the illicit traffic. But even the existence of the severe laws of which I have written does not seem to have prevented the continuance of the traffic through the Cape ports, and it is to be feared there are many other people there who if justice were done might to-day find themselves on the Breakwater in company with I. D. B. convicts of every nationality.

Precious Stones Found in 1889 and 1890.

BY GEORGE F. KUNZ.

DURING 1890 work was carried on at the tourmaline locality at Mount Mica, Paris, Maine. The work was more or less successful and over $2,000 worth of fine gems was obtained. For the first time in the history of America, turquoise of fine color, in many respects equal to the Persian, was mined at the Castilian mine between Los Cerrillos and Sante Fé, New Mexico, of which found in searching for gold under conditions almost identical with the finding of diamonds in North Carolina. The option was obtained on a tract of 4,000 acres on the Missouri river near Helena, Montana, for the purpose of mining sapphires. A preliminary examination made at the sapphire locality in Montana reveals the fact that sapphires exist in large quantities in the gold glacial gravels that lie immediately on the bed rock, a green slate. From present appearances extensive workings will be carried on for these fancy colored stones, which are not over $10,000 worth was sold in 1890. These stones are well received by the gem trade, as the Persian mines have proved less and less prolific for many years past. Turquoise has also been discovered in the Burro mountains, Grant County, New Mexico, and Saguache county, Colorado. Of especial interest among newer discoveries was the finding of a few crystals of diamonds on Plum Creek, Pierce County, Wisconsin, where they were

As in former years, large quantities of garnets have been found in the vicinity of Gallup and Fort Wingate, New Mexico, and Fort Defiance, Arizona, whereas the search that is still being carried on at Ison's Mills, Elliott county, Kentucky, with the hope of finding diamonds there, has brought to light the fact that immense quantities of ruby red garnets—pyrope—exist in that vicinity.

With the exception of a single pebble of fire opal described in a former report, no true gem opal had been found in the United States. During 1890, however, near Whelan, southwest of Colfax, Washington, almost on the Idaho and Washington line, a brilliant fire and noble opal has been found filling the cavities of amygdaloidal basaltic rock, the cavities of which vary in size from that of a pea to a large walnut. Some of these opals have sold for almost the price of fine noble opals from Hungary.

The Manufacture of Gold Pens.

By JOHN HOLLAND.

THERE have been great advances in the manufacture of gold pens since their origin in this country. The first gold pen was made in the United States by G. W. Sheppard, of Detroit, Mich., in 1840. He conceived the idea from seeing one belonging to an English clergyman named Hawkins, and he immediately set about to make samples. In 1841 Sheppard went to Cincinnati, where he started a small factory. About this time Levi Brown also began making gold pens in New York. Gold pens sold at that time at $5 apiece.

The manufacture of gold pens of the present day is very interesting to the observer. The progressive manufacturer observes several leading principles that insure not only the excellence of the goods, but a large output. To manufacture all the dies, repair and keep them in order, to have all sizes of sand crucibles for the melting of gold, to have the maximum of machinery and to have the different departments independent of each other are among these controlling principles.

The first operation in making gold pens is the melting of the gold, after which it is rolled into long strips or ribbons, which are cut into blanks about the size of the pens desired. 16k. gold is used as 14k. gold is too brittle. These blanks are then taken to the bench where young men put on the iridium points. This is done with a camel's-hair brush on an asbestos block; they are then submitted to the flame of a blow pipe, which melts the gold and forms a solid attachment of the iridium, thus giving hardness to the point of the pen. The blanks are then taken to a rolling mill and drawn to the proper thinness. Next they go to the punching press and are shaped; while still flat the name and number are stamped on them. Then they are placed in the die and pressed to the proper curve. Then they go to a row of benches, where by means of a small copper saw one man cuts through the iridium points; the next man saws the slit; the next grinds the points to the proper fineness.

The next process is the polishing of the insides and outsides on separate machines. The last operation is performed by a young woman, who cleans the work with alcohol. The foreman then tests the pens after which they are sent to stock.

It is estimated that the output of gold pens in the United States in 1891 was about 370,000, representing in sales a half million dollars. The increase over the previous year was 10 per cent.

Gold, silver and rubber enter largely into the manufacture of pen-holders, the use of rubber becoming a leading branch of the industry. The processes whereby the articles are wrought into their perfect forms, such as rolling, drawing, boring, turning, planing, cutting, polishing and engraving, require about 18 hands in their separate capacities. The articles require a second polishing after they leave the engraver. They are then put together.

A Remarkable Clock of Breguet.

THE family of the celebrated French watchmaker, Abraham Louis Breguet, possesses a very interesting pendulum clock made by this artist, and which has remained unknown up to the present until it was recently described by G. Anquetin in the Journal Suisse d'Horlogerie. The interest awakened by the thoroughly original construction of the timepiece is increased by the circumstance that this renowned master never mentioned having constructed or having possessed it, which was contrary to his custom, although he had it in his personal use up to the day of his death. It may be assumed from this that Breguet devoted more than ordinary attention to its execution, and this supposition is fully confirmed by the exceedingly elegant forms of all the parts composing the clock.

Accompanying illustrations, naturally of a greatly diminished size, show the remarkable movement, of which Fig. 1 is the front view, and Fig. 2 the side view. The movement consists of only three wheels. The largest, the barrel wheel A, is connected in the ordinary manner with the click-work and the barrel B. Upon the latter coil two steel chronometer chains, which pass over two pulleys R R at the upper end of the movement, each of which carries a weight P. The two weights remain stationary at the same height one with the other, and designate by their upper surface the week day, if they are wound Sundays to their full height. In the position shown in Fig. 1, the weights show Saturday (Samedy).

The barrel wheel carries upon its front surface a dial ring containing twice the hours from 1 to 12, each divided into 15 parts, so that every dividing line corresponds to 4 minutes. This ring can be revolved with friction upon the wheel A, and set to the correct time by the hand. At T are two small hands, one of which points to mean time, the other to solar time. For the sake of distinction, the latter is furnished with a small sun, and is corrected automatically according to the season by means of the lever arm d, Fig. 2, and the eccentric upon the arbor of the date dial J, while the hand for the mean time is fastened immovably to the bridge.

The date dial J is advanced one day by the large wheel A in each 24 hours—that is, therefore, at each revolution. It is furnished with two different divisions: First, on the outer circumference the division into 365 days, together with the names of the months; second, on the inner circumference the names of the twelve months according to the French Republican calendar, each one divided into thirty days, together with the five complementary days, the division of which is introduced between the designations of the ordinary and the Republican months. As hand serves here a thin silk thread, kept stretched by the little weight. The latter hangs with its point immediately over that of an index, and in this manner also acts as a plummet for placing the clock straight. The warning wheel C makes two revolutions per hour, and carries upon its prolonged front pivot a triple-armed hand D, which points out the minutes from 1 to 10 upon an arched scale. From the position of this hand together with the hour hand is ascertained the time, which, therefore, in Fig. 1 is 3:2. The seconds also can be ascertained from the division upon the front of the vertical wheel E, pointed out by the hand e, Fig. 1, fastened to the plate.

The clock is actuated by a pin escapement. The pendulum is suspended in a peculiar manner, as shown in Fig. 2. It is fastened to a cross arm, the front end of which with a steel point a lies in bearing in the flat recess of a sapphire; its hind end rests with a steel knife b in a groove also of a hard jewel. Above this cross arm, and with it firmly connected at the back end, is the compensation device. It consists of a rod composed of steel and brass, upon which is located a slidable counter weight K, which consequently oscillates together with the pendulum, and essentially retards the latter's oscillations in a normal condition. According to the temperature, this retarding effect is increased or lessened by the compensation rods, and thereby, together with the sliding of the weight K at a more or less effective place on the compensation rod, causes the compensation. A small hand points out upon the dial F, Fig. 1, the position of the compensating device.

The foot is of marble. At the two sides of the date dial J is a small shield with the engraved inscription, "Breguet et fils. No. 3583." It may be supposed this timepiece, which is remarkable in every respect, is kept in high honor by the family.

Workshop Notes.

To Mend Celluloid.—Celluloid may be mended, it is said, by wetting the edges with glacial acetic acid and forcing them together for a short time.

Quickening Solution for Silver Platers.—Silver platers use sometimes nitrate of mercury, which they call "quickening solution." Articles of copper, brass or German silver, after having been properly cleansed, are sometimes plunged for a moment into this solution before being placed in the silvering bath, for the purpose of obtaining on the surface active amalgam of mercury on which the silver deposits more readily than on the clear surface. The nitrate should be dissolved in as little water as possible, with the addition of enough acid (nitrate or sulphuric) to dissolve any precipitate of basic salt, and then strongly diluted with distilled water. The proportions: are Nitrate of mercury, 1 ounce; acid (nitric or sulphuric), 2 ounces; water, 1,000 ounces.

Good Advice.—THE CIRCULAR finds in a horological exchange the following sound advice to persons learning the art of engraving: "There is no greater hindrance to progress, in learning to engrave, than in trying to cut with a badly set or a half-sharp graver. Such a practice speedily engenders some of the worst evils—'constraint' and 'restraint' in the use of the graver, by which is meant that the wrist becomes stiffened, the easy motion of the hand impaired, and the ability to hold a graver lightly materially crippled, and thus the power to cut strokes clean, true and free is largely destroyed."

Famous Irish Jewelry and Silver.

THE Servia on her last trip from Queens-town brought to America, Edmond Johnson, of Dublin, jeweler to the Irish court, his family having held that distinction for the past 130 years, as well as that of Master of the Goldsmiths' Guild. He is the proprietor of the leading of the old jewelry establishments in Dublin, and is in every sense a typical Irish gentleman. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Antiquarians, and was crack shot of the Irish team that visited the United States at the International Rifle Contest eighteen years ago. Mr. Johnson is frequently called upon to furnish a cup for a race or shooting match which he himself proves to be the winner of.

During the past two years, since the Chicago Exhibition was proposed, he has devoted considerable attention to the reproduction of the famous Celtic gold and silver pieces possessing Irish historical interest which belong to the Royal Irish Academy. These are highly interesting and remarkable objects and require high class gold work to reproduce. The originals are in the Science and Art Museum of Ireland, in Dublin, Trinity College, the British Museum, beside numerous private collections throughout Ireland, more notably that of the famous Irish antiquary, George Day. These copies he has made with great care and expense, for the purpose of sending them with the British exhibit to the World's Columbian Exposition. They will be unique from the fact that none of the foregoing institutions will allow their art treasures to be touched; but as most of these articles when found have been through the hands of Mr. Johnson or his ancestors, models and molds have been retained of all the most celebrated pieces, thus insuring perfect fac-similes.

The collection will contain copies of all the celebrated shrines, including those of St. Manchan, St. Molaise, St. Patrick, the celebrated Domnach Airgid, or shrine of St. Patrick's gospels, the Cumach of St. Molaise and shrine of St. Lachan's Arm and the copy of the original iron bell of "St. Patrick;" the ancient crowns of gold or Irish minns, the chalices including the "Ardagh," of which Petric says: "Nothing so lovely as this chalice has been found in Celtic art, or perhaps in any continental art, so early as the eleventh century, and in its great antiquity. In its archaic form, it stands before us as a link between the Primitive Church, with its ancient and simple sacramental customs, and the Mediaeval customs with riches and pomp."

The ancient Croziers, including those of Lismore and Clonmacuise, the gold fibulae and lunulae, the diadems, gorgets and necklaces, the breastpins and armillae, the waist and neck torques, and finger rings, and the ancient brooches including the celebrated "Tara" brooch, which is the finest specimen of the Celtic art ever found, will be represented. These art treasures and historic pieces will prove most interesting not only to the archæologist and antiquarian, but to many Irish families whose ancient lineage reaches back to the weavers of the diadems and other insignia of regal office. Of the larger pieces the great Precessional Cross of Cong of the O'Conors, and the Brian Boru harp form the most important pieces.

Mr. Johnson, with his wife and daughters live at Nullamore, Milltown, near Dublin. He is 52 years of age, tall, and possesses a frankness that one rarely finds in the business world.

Hinrichs & Co.'s Fall Display.

THE various lines for the Fall trade that are being shown by Hinrichs & Co., 31 Park Place, New York, should be seen by every jeweler visiting the city, as they contain many novelties that were especially imported for the jewelry trade. The firm were among the first to anticipate the wants of jewelers, and every year their stock is replete with various wares in beautiful and desirable shapes and designs, that appeal particularly to the retail trade.

In the accompanying picture are shown samples of the wares seen in Hinrichs & Co.'s extensive showrooms. Royal Dresden, a sample of which forms the prominent piece in the illustration, is one of the most striking wares on the market, depicting as it does, flowers and fruits with remarkable faithfulness to nature. On several of the vases of this ware shown by Hinrichs & Co. are wreaths of leaves, roses and apples in relief against a beautifully decorated background. Italian faience has always been an extremely expensive luxury but this year this firm have a line of Bohemian ware that is modeled, decorated and finished to simulate the most choice pieces of Italian faience, but sells at a considerably less price. The pieces are mostly courtiers, ladies, etc., and the colors and subjects are taken from only the most desirable patterns. Royal Bonn in new and beautiful shapes with the popular soft matt finish and Hungarian wares in odd and grotesque shapes are also shown in great variety by the firm.

and flowers, appliqué, with water in relief. Above this, from a rock-work base, rises the shaft of the vase, which is encircled by a spiritedly modeled dragon. The shaft is covered with representations of ancient coins and with tortoises in relief. The body of the vase has elephant-headed handles, finely finished with the graver. On the front is a reserved panel, with a representation in relief of a boat sailing up Yeddo Bay, the sail being decorated with characters of Japan in a circle. On the back is a similar panel, upon which is a scene from early Japanese history. The other portions of the body of the vase are covered with figures of tortoises and clouds in relief.

The cover, or upper section, is decorated with cranes and clouds in relief, surmounted by rock-work, on which stands a spirited figure of Shoki, the demon expeller, driving the imps of sickness from him. The height of this exquisite piece of modern decorative bronze is 9 feet 3 inches, and the diameter at base 8 feet 4 inches. The price is $2,500.

Another attractive line shown by the same firm consists of jeweled Bohemian glass vases and mantel ornaments with the decorations of gold and soft tints in full relief.

Many pretty designs in electric light globes in cut and fancy glass are on exhibition in the showrooms of the Phoenix Glass Co., 42 Murray St., New York, where their beauty is shown to advantage on the electric light

T. B. Clark & Co., 53 Park Place, New York, are enjoying a gratifying demand for their "Bradstreet" pattern, which is one of the most attractive on the market this season.

Geo. Borgfeldt & Co., 425 Broome St., New York, are selling out at a considerable reduction from import prices all their samples of fine art pottery, Dresden, Sèvres, Royal Bonn, famous English wares, etc., owing to the necessity of reducing their stock before their removal into their new building at the corner of Washington Place and Green St. This is an exceptional opportunity for jewelers to obtain pieces of well-known wares at low prices.

Round glass salt-cellars on gilded legs and glass spoons with gilded handles are noticed.

In some of the new Austrian liquor sets, and tall claret jugs and glasses, the cutting is vertical in narrow broken lines. These are at intervals and are gilded.

The finest pitcher ever seen in glass by this observer was very large and the upper part of the body and lip were cut in broken parallel bars in imitation of old English work.

Some superb new forms are introduced in glass. The chrysanthemum is a new design introduced in the centers of bowls and berry dishes. It resembles the fine old work of our grandmothers' glass.

COMPENSATION OF DIRECTORS OF CORPORATION.

Directors of a corporation are not entitled to compensation for their services as directors, unless such compensation is provided for or expressly sanctioned by the charter. If a director renders services to the corporation clearly outside of his duties as a director, in pursuance of an express contract entered into in good faith, and the services be such as the company may legally contract for, he may recover compensation therefor.

Brown v. Republican Mountain Silver Mines, Supreme Court of Colorado.

EFFECT UPON INSURANCE OF LEVY ON PROPERTY

A levy under execution on a stock of goods merely creates a lien thereon, and does not vest either the officer or the creditor any title or interest, within a clause of the policy which declares that it shall be void "if any change  takes place in the interest, title, or possession of the subject of the insurance (except change of occupants, without increase of hazard,) whether by legal process or judgment  or otherwise." The words "change of occupants", as used in such policy, does not relate exclusively to real estate but apply to personalty as well, and the question whether the possession of the officer under the levy was an "increase of hazard" was properly submitted to the jury.

A CHARACTERISTIC SPECIMEN OF VENETIAN ART.

THE most characteristic and conspicuous of the public ceremonies peculiar to Venice during the reign of the Doges was the annual fête attending the "Espousal of the Adriatic." In 1177 Venice gained a great victory in defense of Pope Alexander III. over the fleet commanded by Otho, son of barked on floating palaces bright with gold and decorated with rich arras and hangings. The most famous and beautiful of all the state barges was the Bucentaur.

On St. Mark's Day, to the sound of bells and the noise of trumpets and guns, the Doge took his place in the saloon in the its wake. When the point of the Lido was doubled the Bucentaur was headed for the Adriatic. When in the open sea the Patriarch blessed the ring and presented it to the Doge. A priest poured holy water from a vase into the sea and in the ripples the Doge dropped the marriage ring with the words

MODEL OF THE BUCENTAUR, USED IN THE ESPOUSAL OF THE ADRIATIC.

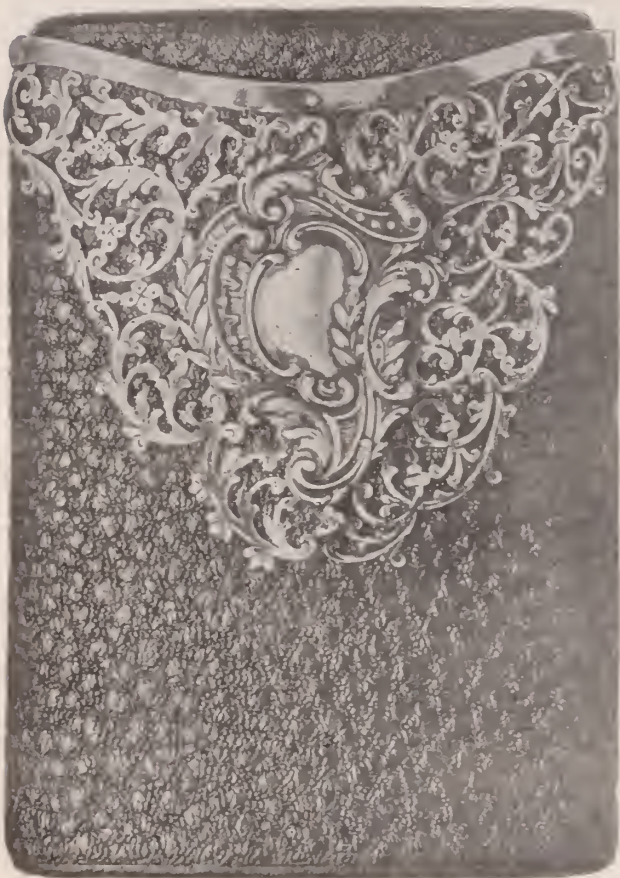

Frederick Barbarossa, and in gratitude for this victory the Pope gave the Doge, Sebastiano Ziani, a gold signet ring of onyx, lapis-lazuli, and malachite, and instituted the ceremony of marrying the Adriatic. On such occasions all the dignitaries of state in their robes of office and foreign ambassadors repaired to the Quay of the Piazzetta and em-stern with the Patriarch of Venice at his side. Twenty boats were used to tow the Bucentaur, which was itself impelled forward also by forty-two jeweled oars each manned by four men. The shapely gilded keel moved slowly toward the channel of the Lido guided by the High Admiral, the myriad small boats of Venice following in

"Sea, we espouse thee, in sign of true and everlasting dominion."

The ring was a symbol of the domination the Republic had acquired over the Adriatic, and was thrown into the sea to show that as the wife was subject to her husband so was the Adriatic Sea to the Republic of Venice.

SILVERSMITHING IN AMERICA

PART XI. GEORGE W. SHIEBLER CO.

THE adaptability of silver to the manufacture of wares that combine the essentials of beauty with the elements of utility is evidenced by the practically unlimited range of articles which are variously known as small wares, trinkets, novelties, etc., produced. Innumerable articles, heretofore composed of wood, steel and other common materials, are now made of silver. The house to whom much credit is due for bringing about this state of affairs, a state which has been the source of considerable profit to the silversmiths of this country, is the George W. Shiebler Co., New York.

George W. Shiebler entered the employ of Jahne, Smith & Co., 170 Broadway, New York, in 1867, as traveling salesman. The firm then manufactured gold chains. Mr. Shiebler remained with them until the death of both Mr. Jahne and Mr. Smith, in the year 1870 or 1871, when the firm was succeeded by Hodynpyl, Tunison & Shiebler, who continued the business as theretofore, that of manufacturing gold chains. Mr. Shiebler still represented the firm on the road, looking after their interests in the larger cities of the country. He thus gained an acquaintance with the trade, which was of inestimable value to him in later years. The firm, like numerous others, was affected by the stringent times that followed the panic of '73, and in 1874 Mr. Shiebler withdrew, remaining out of business for a year, during which time he was on the outlook for a favorable opening. This opening apparently lay in the purchasing of the business of Coles & Reynolds, who were manufacturers of silver spoons, with a factory at 6 Liberty Place.

Mr. Shiebler commenced business on March 4, 1876, with a force of five men. A few months later he bought out the business of John Polhemus, an old and recognized silversmith, whose plant was located at Centre and Howard Sts. He merged this plant with his own, and continued thus for a short time, when he purchased the factory of M. Morgan, who had succeeded Albert Coles, at 6 Liberty Place. This plant he also merged with the others, on the fifth floor of 6 Liberty Place. Mr. Shiebler's facilities were now quite extensive, and his business was progressing with rapid strides. His many friends and customers traveled up the well-known spiral iron stairs of the building until 1880, when he had an opportunity to lease the factory will be given further on. On Jan. 1, 1892, the firm incorporated as the George W. Shiebler Co., with a capital stock of $300,000. George W. Shiebler is president and William F. Shiebler treasurer of the company.

Mr. Shiebler at the beginning made only spoons and forks, but the product gradually increased until the firm produced the largest line of novelties in silver extant at that time. The success of the house was based upon the happy introduction of the manufacture of silver novelties, for which Mr. Shiebler may claim to have been responsible. When he started out he felt, with the competition that faced him, that the governing principles of his business must be entirely different from those that actuated other manufacturers. He was convinced that in order to succeed he would have to depend upon originality of design; that his products would have to be out of the beaten track. This principle has wrought its influence from the beginning till the present time, and will continue to do so.

One of the most successful innovations of Mr. Shiebler was the curio medallion work, which looked as though it had been unearthed at Pompeii and Herculanaeum. The sale of store which John Cook had occupied for many years. A few years subsequently he moved his showrooms to 8 Liberty Place and his factory to the Ketchum Building, at York and Washington Sts., Brooklyn, N. Y., in which the factories of J. B. Bowden & Co. and the Roy Watch Case Co. are located. At this time Mr. Shiebler's factory gave employment to 50 to 60 people. Anon, the space becoming too crowded, Mr. Shiebler purchased property at St. Mark's and Underhill Aves., Brooklyn, and erected a finely equipped factory building, of which the firm occupy at the present time three spacious floors, giving employment to 160 to 170 individuals. A fuller description of this articles of this character was unprecedented perhaps in the history of the trade. Raised Greek mottoes appeared on the articles and altogether the atmosphere of the antique which pervaded them was complete. The curio medallion work was applied to brooches, sleeve-buttons and bangles, and was extended into forks, spoons and hollow ware. Oxidized silver had until then been a failure on the market, but the introduction of the curio medallion work effected a revolution. When these goods were first placed on the market, friends of Mr. Shiebler almost questioned the stability of his mind. But soon they swerved about, for his factory could not accommodate the demand. character of the articles appealed to the tastes of cultivated persons, and for this reason, the manufacturers of cheap goods did not imitate the idea for some time, though in France and England several manufacturers pirated it and made money. The Birmingham manufacturers termed the work the Homeric style.

Another innovation of Mr. Shiebler's was what he terms leave work, consisting of silver formed into leaves and tinted in all the rich Autumn colors. This work was applied to spoons, berry bowls, pitchers, etc., and is still in demand. Mr. Shiebler also introduced the Renaissance open-work style in jewelry, bonbonieres, dishes, trays, spoons, etc., which like all his other innovations was extensively copied. Little spoons with a leaf stores of New York was located as far back as 1832. At one time Marquand & Tiffany were located in the store adjoining. The new store of Geo. W. Shiebler Co. is 25 x 100 feet in dimensions; the decorations of the side walls are in old rose, with a deep frieze of shaded old ivory and gold; the ceiling is ivory-tinted. The furniture and wall cases are of natural mahogany, while the center cases are of rosewood. There are eleven cases, including the horse-shoe case. Each sash of the wall cases, of which there are ten, is 73 inches wide. B. & W. B. Smith, the celebrated manufacturers of artistic fixtures, are responsible for the architectural woodwork of this store, and it is but justice to say that no store in the country can show finer work in this line. The gas fixtures were furnished by Oxley, Giddings & Enos, and are a beautiful combination of gold artistic designs, made especially for the company. The store has three fine windows facing Broadway, which are attractively dressed, the black silk, forming the background, enhancing the rich display of silver which each window contains. The store is lighted by electricity, and when the numerous incandescent lamps are alight, the store from a block away is in a blaze of glory.

The "Flora," a product of this firm and one of the most successful spoon patterns ever conceived, has been sold in large quantities. In this pattern the handles of the different size spoons have each a different floral design in bold relief entirely oxidized. The "Louvre," a chaste and unusual design in bright finish in the style of the Louis XV., has also proved a favorite. Such are a few of this firm's productions, all of which bear evidence of originality and taste in the designing and expertness and carefulness in the executing.

The factory of the George W. Shiebler Co. is in as clean and attractive building as a factory building possibly can be. The concern occupies three floors 64 x 85 feet in dimensions. Making our way to the ground floor, we come to the melting room, in which silver is melted every day. The silver is formed into plates and ingots, for hollow-ware and flatware respectively. The rolling mill used on this floor for breaking down the metal for use is one of the largest in the country, being 28½ inches wide by 14 inches in diameter. Upon this floor also is the large annealing muffer and a hydraulic press of 5,000 pounds pressure. A three-cornered apartment forming a small extension to the building is the stamping room, in which are four drops of various sizes, the hammer of the largest weighing 800 pounds. The isolation of the room prevents all jar to the building that might be caused by the drops.

Adjoining this room is another for the dies and rolls, which is locked every night. On the first floor also are seen several rolling mills made by G. W. Wicks for stamping the patterns on spoons; they are still used for old designs which are in demand. An old-style hammer worked by hand for shaping the bowls of spoons is also here. In a separate room off from this floor, and down a short flight of steps, is the engine-room, containing a Watson-Campbell 135 H. P. engine. The boiler-room is off from this room, while the coal cellar is under the street. By a private stairway we ascend from the spoon-makers' room to the second floor, on which are located the offices, the designing room, the die-sinking room, the chasing department, the gilding department and the finishers. At the rear are the finishers, divided into spoon finishers, plate finishers,

Here the dies are shaped up to be in good condition for the drops, besides general machine and tool-making work being performed. Nearly a girl operates a delicate drilling machine, which pierces the articles in preparation for the sawing out of spaces. The spinning is done by the ordinary method of split chucks. From the spinners the work goes to the silversmiths, who apply the ornamentations and the mountings. Girls are employed to do the saw-piercing. There are about 75 persons employed on the third floor. On each of the three floors is a vault for the safe preservation of the goods finished and unfinished. polishers and men for finishing off work before it goes to the office. On this floor are also three stoning benches at which from three to four men work standing. Pumice stone and water are used in this process, which gives a smoother surface to the articles, taking out all scratches. In the gilding room, only women are employed, often as many as 25 being at work during the busy season. Twenty-four karat gold is used in the gilding process. In this room also the oxidizing is done. The women can burnish as well as gild and oxidize. About twelve men are in the chasing department, while four to six men are employed in the die-sinkers' room.

On the third floor are the silversmiths, jewelers, spinners and machinists. Here also is the dynamo, which is in connection with the gilding room. In the machinists' department, which is separated from the remainder of the floor, three men are employed. Here the dies are shaped up to be in good condition for the drops, besides general machine and tool-making work being performed. WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO
THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

Clocks, Etc., at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 10.—A striking feature of the Fair will be the clock exhibit. A thorough canvass of the interests included in clockmaking has disclosed remarkable unanimity of feeling as regards making a fine exhibit of the products of the different factories. The system of classification separates the exhibit into horology—watches, clocks, etc., in the department of manufactures—and instruments of provision, to be shown in the department of liberal arts.

The clock exhibit in the department of manufactures includes commercial clocks of all kinds, clock movements, clock-making machinery and watchmen's time registers; in the liberal arts it includes all chronometric apparatus—chronometers, watches of precision, astronomical clocks, church and metropolitan clocks, clepsydras, hour glasses, sun dials, chronographs, electrical clocks and metronomes.

E. F. Strickland, of the New Haven Clock Co., returned from New Haven, Aug. 29. "We thoroughly discussed the subject of an exhibit at the fair," said he. "Our application was the first one presented for clocks. We are interested in being properly represented and propose to give the finest display ever shown in our lines. Our former exhibits were at the Centennial, the New Orleans Cotton Exposition and the Mexican Exposition. Our people are very busy now making up choice things for the exposition, including several souvenirs of the exposition itself, the exact nature of which we are not at liberty to divulge at present. I am preparing a very elegant booklet illustrating the famous Chicago figure, and also have in preparation an illustrated history of the New Haven Clock Co., including biographical sketches of its president and of Chauncey Jerome, the inventor and first manufacturer of brass clock movements, samples of whose work will be shown at the exposition alongside the modern works of the New Haven Clock Co."

Manager A. M. Church, of the Seth Thomas Clock Co. said: "We have applied for space but can take no definite action till space is allotted. Our exhibit will include watch movements of various sizes and grades for ordinary service, all kinds of clocks, commercial, astronomical and electric; watchmen's time registers, and clock works for recording time, distance, quantity, and temperature."

Manager Barnum, of the Ansonia Clock Co., said: "We intend to exhibit largely providing the board of management does not reduce the space applied for. We will show a very elegant line of enameled iron and bronze clocks and novelties in bronze and silver."

Grove Sackett, manager for the Wm. L. Gilbert Clock Co.: "We are anxious to exhibit our lines of commercial clocks, but nothing definite can be decided upon until we know the space at our disposal."

C. J. Dodgshun, manager for the Waterbury Clock Co., says the authorities seem slow in allotting space, but that the Waterbury company will exhibit. "Mantel, hanging and hall clocks, clocks for the home and the office and jewelers' regulators will be presented in great variety," said he. "Our different manufactures will be very fully represented."

Mr. Howard, western manager of the E. Howard Watch & Clock Co., says: "We intend to go in, but cannot state expressly what we will do until we know the space at our disposal. The exhibit will be a full exposition of all the goods made by us."

F. E. Morse, of Morse, Mitchell & Williams, sole agents in the west for the E. N. Welch Mfg. Co., states he has made application for space and it will be used to properly present fine lines of house, mantel and hanging clocks and regulators.

Exposition Notes.

The tower of the Pennsylvania State building at the World's Fair will be a reproduction of that on Independence Hall, Philadelphia. The Seth Thomas Clock Co. have signed a contract to place in the tower a striking clock with large bell and four nine-foot sectional glass dials.

Persia will make an interesting display, which will include rare specimens of art industrial work. Elaborately worked gold and silver will constitute an attractive feature. There will also be found in this Persian exhibit a department for manufactured articles such as arms, curios and richly wrought armor, tiles and tile work, mosaics, objects of art, antiquities, musical instruments, etc.

A Characteristic Specimen of Venetian Art.

During the ceremony the great guns of the forts thundered their salvos, the bells of the city rung out, the bands on the holiday boats added their melody and the high and the humble of all the populace stood with uncovered heads. After a formal return the Doge gave a banquet in the hall of the great Council, which was followed by dancing in the Ducal Palace.

These were the scenes of yearly festivities in which the Bucentaur was the most prominent figure. The barge was 37 meters long and 7 meters wide, with hull overlaid with gold and studded with jewels. The sides were a mass of exquisite carvings in wood and gold, and the maroon velvet canopy was supported by statuary and carvings executed by the greatest masters of the time. The double decks were of inlaid marqueterie and the interior finishings were hand-carved and gilded. The prow was ornamented with magnificent statuary and heavily jeweled carvings. When Napoleon invaded Venice he burned the Bucentaur to secure the gold that covered her hull, and thus by an act of vandalism destroyed the most remarkable work of naval architecture.

Relics of the original barge, consisting of pieces of iron work and timbers and small portions of the wood carvings, are in the Arsenal at Venice. There is also at the Arsenal a 12-foot model of the original. It was the intention of Chief Smith of the Transportation Department of the World's Fair at Chicago, to reproduce the model, but the Venetian estimate of $5,000 for the work has deterred him. It is now proposed that a smaller model be constructed in silver.

The Plant of Fred. I. Marcy & Co. Sold at Mortgagee's Sale.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 9.—The entire plant of Fred. I. Marcy & Co. was sold at public auction to-day noon by Benjamin Gallup, auctioneer, under foreclosure of the mortgage held by a syndicate of ten prominent manufacturing jewelers of this city, as stated in these columns last week. Fully fifty firms of this city and the Attleboros were represented, among the auditors being ex-Mayors Charles Sidney Smith and William S. Hayward of this city, and Albert Krower, of New York, representing Albert Lorsch & Co. Every firm of stone dealers in Providence was represented, a large majority being interested as creditors. This plant is estimated to have been worth fully $25,000 in tools, machinery and designs and about $3,000 additional in office furniture. By the terms of the sale the entire contents of the large shop, including all tools, machinery, designs and patents, were contained in the first lot, and the office furniture was disposed of in small amounts to suit purchasers. The machinery was offered first, and $55 was the amount of the starting bid. Almost before it had been announced by the auctioneer, E. C. Case, for many years book-keeper for Fred. I. Marcy & Co., raised the bid to $4,000, which was immediately advanced to $4,100 by Benjamin B. Lederer, of S. & B. Lederer. Then by $50 bids the price was slowly raised, the only bidders being Mr. Case and Mr. Lederer. For some time previous to the sale it was known that there was a private offer of $4,800 for the plant, so that it was evident from the beginning that it would not be struck off for less than that figure. After $5,000 was reached the bidding became less spirited and the lot was finally knocked down to Mr. Lederer.

Attention was next turned to the office furniture, which was sold at piecemeal and aggregated $1,242.36 in bids ranging from twenty-five cents for a feather duster to $136 for a large safe. The principal buyers here were A. A. Greene, of Smith & Greene; George H. Holmes, of George H. Holmes & Co.; Benjamin Lederer, of S. & B. Lederer; Adams Bros. (machinists), and Edward T. George (hardware), of this city, the latter purchasing the three safes for $29, $71 and $136 respectively. It was about 3:30 o'clock when the sale concluded, the total amount of bids received being $6,542.36.

The sale did not include any of the stock, either finished or unfinished, of which there is probably several hundred dollars' worth. It was estimated at the sale that the liabilities of the firm would amount to about $30,000, including the mortgage held by the syndicate. Benjamin Lederer said that his firm would at once remove all of the tools and machinery on Stewart St., and, as they had acquired all the patent rights, tools, dies and designs for the production of the famous Acme Lever sleeve-buttons, that they would in all probability add that specialty to their line of goods.

Several Claims Filed Against B. H. Broer.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 10.—W. H. Reed, representing the New York Jewelers' Board of Trade, has filed the following claims against B. H. Broer: For J. M. Weil & Bros., $23; L.

Sauter & Co., $62; Levy, Dreyfus & Co., $68; Odenheimer & Zimmern, $567; Seckels & Oppenheimer, $368; Ketcham & McDougall, $63; The Hartford Silver Plate Co., $62. Broer's examination is pending.

Albert Eddy & Co., Providence, Attached for $20,000.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 8.—According to the records in the Recorder of Deeds' office at the city hall, an attachment was placed upon the property of Albert Eddy & Co., 109 Orange St., late Tuesday afternoon, by Attorney Richard B. Comstock, at the instance of Oscar M. Draper, of North Attleboro. The amount of the writ of attachment is $20,000.

Mr. Eddy was for a number of years in the employ of Potter & Buffinton, of this city but on May 1, 1882, he entered into partnership with Daniel Cooke, the firm being Cooke & Eddy. At that time, it is understood, Mr. Draper furnished capital to the new concern, and has never regained the amount invested; hence the action of attachment now pending. Mr. Cooke retired from the concern in January, 1888, since which time Mr. Eddy has continued the business alone. Ill-health, little trade and poor collections have made such material inroads upon the business that Mr. Draper felt that it was for the best interests of all to place an attachment upon the manufacturing plant and real estate belonging to Mr. Eddy, both in this city and Westerly, R. I.

Thirty days are allowed by the laws of Rhode Island to make an assignment after an attachment has been recorded.

Exit "Mysterious Jimmy" Wilmot Crook.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 8.—"Mysterious Jimmy" Wilmot, a notorious crook, whom jewelers of this city have occasion to remember, died here this week. One Sunday afternoon he got away with $20,000 worth of jewelry from the store of Wm. E. Dickson, on 8th St., above Chestnut. Mr. Dickson died two years afterward of sheer worry and despair caused by his failure to get the city detectives then in office to make an honest effort to recover his property or capture the thief.

John Brennan's jewelry store, further up 8th St., was robbed by Wilmot and other thieves in 1874, and $50,000 worth of jewelry taken. In this case the police tried to prove that Mr. Brennan robbed himself. After eight years continuous labor, during which he had six fences closed in New York, Mr. Brennan obtained possession of $1,800 worth of his goods, which he distributed among his friends as souvenirs. Wilmot and his friends and the detectives, it is charged, kept the remainder, valued at $48,200.

An Eccentric Jeweler Ends his Life.

PUTNAM, Conn., Sept. 7.—The citizens of Brooklyn, this State, have once again been shocked by a suicide committed near what seems a fated spot for that purpose. On last Thursday, Merrick Bemis, a watchmaker by profession and a man about 60 years age, shot himself through the head, and expired a few minutes afterward. For years he has been recognized as an eccentric character. The week previous to his fatal act he came over to this place dressed in underwear, with a blanket wrapped about him and had himself photographed in this rig.

On last Thursday, it seems, he was taken ill and two physicians were called in to attend the case. The persons in the room were requested by him to leave under the claim that the sight of them distressed him exceedingly. As soon as the men who were in the room had gone out, he seized a pistol, and placing its muzzle to his head, fired and fell.

The Attleboros.

E. L. Witherell was kicked in the face by a horse on Tuesday and badly injured.

Among those who participated and finished in the first 100 mile cycle run ever started from North Attleboro, was T. G. Frothingham and Joseph Henings.

The framework of R. F. Simmons & Co.'s new factory is all in place and the visiting trade is enabled to get an idea of the immensity of the building when finished.

It is probable that a new jewelry shop will be built on Hazel St. on land owned by E. B. Bulloch, and it is understood that plans are now in the hands of an architect.

On the night of the 3d inst. fully three tons of jewelry left Attleboro, bound for New York and the west. This is considered by the posted ones as the largest shipment for a single night on record.

T. G. Frothingham and wife and J. E. Tweedy, of E. Ira Richards & Co., are members of the Raymond excursion through Canada and the west. At Montreal they will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Franklin.

J. L. Sweet, of R. F. Simmons & Co., and Philipp E. Brady have been appointed chairman and secretary respectively on the committee to make preparations for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the settlement of Attleboro.

The World's Fair souvenir coins, some of them it is now expected, will be issued in November or probably by the middle of the month. Orders for them are already being sent in at the rate of $5,000 to $10,000 a day.

Death of St. Louis' Oldest Jeweler, Jas. Home Looke.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 7.—Jas. Home Looke, the oldest jeweler in St. Louis, died last week at the Memorial Home, where he and his wife have been for some months past, and his remains were interred in Bellefontaine Cemetery, although he had requested to be cremated.

Mr. Looke was a remarkable character. Although he was over 90 years of age, he was active and energetic, and until a few months ago when he sold out his little shop on the Manchester road, he did all his own clock mending. At one time Mr. Looke was the most fashionable jeweler in this city, and his fund of anecdotes of early St. Louisans was remarkable. He remembered seeing Queen Victoria, when a little child, in a white frock, playing in the gardens of Buckingham Palace, where he was employed at the time in resetting jewels.

The Flim-flam Game Worked in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 9.—A rogue secured $70 on Thursday from E. Gray, a clerk at Hennegen, Bates & Co.'s, by the flim-flam game. After inspecting several watches, he selected a gold watch and two chains, for which he gave in payment one $50 note, one $20 note and ten $1 notes. Mr. Gray placed the money on a shelf while he wrapped up the jewelry. After receiving the package the purchaser asked permission to count the money again. After he had counted it, he apparently returned the full amount and walked out with his purchase. When he had gone Mr. Gray discovered that the man had returned the one dollar notes only. The police are looking for the crook.

Jones, of this city, and James Pervere and Alfred Jones, of Chicopee. Mr. Brouillard is a practical machinist of experience who has been employed for the last five years by the Merritt Mfg. Co. of this city, and worked at one time for the Elgin National Watch Co.

Mr. Jones has been connected with the Ames Co. at Chicopee for some time. The company intends to make a specialty of fine tools, such as surgical instruments, jewelers' tools, etc.

An Erroneous Statement Causes Excitement in San Bernardino.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 7.—A furore has been created during the past week in San Bernardino, by an announcement made by

N. B. Norfolk, traveling agent for C. E. & F. H. Moore to the effect that N. B. Hale had sold out his stock to the Moores and had gone out of business. Mr. Hale came out in the local papers with an angry card denying the report and averring that the same had been started to injure him and his business. This was responded to by a card from Norfolk denying any intention to injure Hale, and saying that the statement was in accordance with negotiations then going on and which he thought had been consummated. The affair has resulted in the sale being declared off.

THE six feet, several inches of masculinity of which Wm. W. Middlebrook is the possessor is familiar to innumerable jewelers, especially to members of the jobbing trade. Mr. Middlebrook was born in New York in November, 1856. At fourteen years of age he left school to devote his abilities to the patent medicine business, at which he remained four months. In July, 1870, he entered the employ of Hayward & Briggs, jewelers, 191 Broadway, New York, where he remained until the firm dissolved in July, 1885, continuing with the successors, C. E. Gould & Co., Attleboro, Mass., to represent them in New York, with an office at 10 Maiden Lane, which they had never had before, and to travel west. During the 22 years he has been connected with the jewelry trade he has gradually and constantly advanced. Mr. Middlebrook is not married, though he is very good looking and very popular. Suit to Oust Alderman J. Niles Kimball from Office.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 10.—Charles L. Dunham has instituted quo warranto proceedings in the circuit court to oust Jeweler J. Niles Kimball from the upper house of the city council and to have himself substituted as a member of that body. The matter was brought up before Special Judge Morrow and a writ issued made returnable at the first day of the October term of court.

Dunham and Kimball were both elected members of the upper house in April 1, 1890, the city at that time being supposed to comprise fourteen wards. It was understood that one-half the members receiving the highest number of votes should hold their seats for four years and the other half should sit for two years. In January, 1890, on a test case, the State Supreme Court decided that the extension of the city's limits was absolutely void from the beginning, and that the Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth wards formed no part of the municipality. Both Kimball and Dunham were residents of the original ten wards, and the question arose between them which was entitled to the four-year term and which to the two-year term in the council. Kimball claimed the long term because he had received more votes in the fourteen wards than Dunham.

Meeting of the Illinois Jewelers' Association.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 10.—The board of directors of the Association of Retail Jewelers and Watchmakers of Illinois, met Thursday in Parlor I, Tremont House, President Bryant in the chair. In view of the rapidly increasing membership from all sections of the State and the anticipated influx of visitors during the Fair period, the association considered the advisability of securing commodious and centrally located rooms for permanent headquarters.

A proposition was received by the board from the secretary of the American Horological Society that the two bodies co-operate in securing rooms to be used jointly, and the proposition was taken under advisement. Pending concerted action the subject was deferred. After a general discussion of subjects promotive of the interests of the retail trade the board adjourned till Oct. 13.

GORHAM MFG. CO.,

SILVERSMITHS,

BROADWAY & 19TH STREET,

NEW YORK.

We have prepared for this season a great range of new patterns in a variety of articles, styles and finishes, and invite the attention of the trade to the special display of these goods in the New York warerooms, and also at the WORKS, PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Many jewelers when receiving orders from their customers for silverware are liable to make promises that are impossible for the manufacturer to fulfill. To obviate this, the jeweler should possess a knowledge of the processes and necessary methods employed in silverware making, and appreciate the difficulties in the way of quick production. It has been proved by the assurances of our customers that a visit to our works is of great benefit to them in this regard.

OUR AUTUMN CATALOGUE, 1892, will be delivered by express. Price List will be mailed upon application.

VOL. XXV. SEPT. 14, 1892. No. 7.

IT is a source of satisfaction that at least one industry allied to the jewelry trade will be thoroughly represented at the World's Columbian Exposition. From THE CIRCULAR'S Chicago representative's interviews with all the western managers of the clock companies, published in this issue, it is certain that all these concerns will have a display, and that the conglomerate exhibit will be a feature of the Fair of which the United States may feel justly proud.

THE department of THE CIRCULAR "Our Traveling Representatives" has aroused an interest greater than we even hoped for. Not only are the items therein published interesting and pleasing to the travelers, but they are of commercial importance to all retailers and wholesalers of the country, as they keep the former on the qui vive for such salesmen as they desire to see, and the latter posted on the movements of their competitors' travelers.

To Revise the THE parliament of Cape Colony last session had a long debate on I. D. B. Laws, B. and the trapping system.

A party in the House desired the abolition of the latter and the old arguments were trotted out. The principal one was the danger of an innocent man being convicted on the evidence of a spiteful detective. The Attorney General and others, however, testified that since 1884 when the present stringent law came fully into operation, only two mistakes have been made. It is almost impossible for an honest man to be convicted at Kimberley of I. D. B. Nothing less than a general conspiracy of detectives, police and judges could effect it. The judges to their credit are especially painstaking and impartial, and if anything err on the side of leniency where there is a trifling flaw in the evidence. There is far more chance of a rascal evading the law than of an innocent man being convicted on the Fields.

"Dom Fuss."
A CHARACTERISTIC remark of James Gordon Bennett, the elder, founder of the New York Herald, was "First get the news, and then make a dom fuss about it." Perhaps it is hardly more reasonable for a newspaper whose raison d'être is to gather news to crow over its achievements, than it is for a manufacturer of sausage covers to laud himself because he manufactures sausage covers. However, this right has become indisputable in journalism. THE CIRCULAR gathers all the news bearing upon the jewelry and cognate trades from every quarter of the country, as may be seen from this issue, but it is not addicted to making a "dom fuss" about anything it does in the line of duty. One cannot but remark the tactics of THE CIRCULAR'S trade contemporaries, who do a great deal of dom fussing without fulfilling the first part of Mr. Bennett's maxim.

The Souvenir Coins.
THE director of the mint has received final instructions as to the design of the Columbian souvenir coins. The Madrid portrait of Columbus is to be impressed on the obverse side of the token, and a cut of the western hemisphere on the reverse. This is an improvement on the design first mentioned, in which a cut of the Administration building was to take the place now more properly assigned to that division of the world forever associated with the name and fame of Columbus. The Madrid portrait was painted by Don Antonio Moro, in 1542, from two miniatures, and the original is now in the possession of Mr. Gunther, of Chicago. The work portrays a fine, sturdy face in which character, determination, courage and enterprise are plainly written.

Tiffany & Co. Building Works for the Manufacture of Cutlery.

Tiffany & Co. are building a new factory for the manufacture of fine cutlery. To the McKinley law the firm gives credit for the step which they are taking to destroy the monopoly in this line of goods now held by English manufacturers.

The new factory is being built at Forest Hill, N. J. It will be 270 feet long and 140 feet wide, and it is expected 350 hands will be employed. The firm will make some plated-ware there and attempt to establish the high-grade cutlery industry. They have for some time past been experimenting with new methods and machinery for hardening and tempering the blades, and are satisfied that they can produce a finer blade than the English.

During the past week Emile Klaber has obtained an attachment against the Cycle Clock Co. for $2,500, and Patterson, Gottfried & Hunter have entered a judgment against the same concern for $132.61. The sale of the company's effects, which was to have occurred Wednesday, has been postponed indefinitely by a stay of proceedings obtained by the company's attorneys from Judge Paterson, of the Supreme Court. It is said that steps will be taken within a few days to have the company dissolved and its affairs placed in the hands of a receiver.

Spaulding & Co. Narrowly Escape Destruction by Fire.

CHICAGO, Ill.—Sept. 12.—The store of Spaulding & Co. narrowly escaped destruction by fire yesterday morning. At 2.30 flames were discovered on the sixth floor of the Jackson Building, of which Spaulding & Co. occupy the four lower floors. The fire broke through the roof and went through to the floor below, before the fire department could get it under control. By hard work the fire was confined to two upper floors.

The loss to the firm was caused by water and smoke and the cutting through of walls. Tons of water swept down the stairways and elevators but the elaborate decorations were saved. "I can at present give no estimate of damage," said Mr. Spaulding to THE CIRCULAR representative. "It will require a careful examination of stock to determine that. But the fire will not interfere in the least with our business."

Failure in a Virginia Town.

STAUNTON, Va., Sept. 7.—James Frank Kingan, jeweler of this city, assigned this evening, naming George H. Hutcheson trustee. All goods and fixtures and choses in action are assigned. The liabilities are $3,600; assets, $1,500.

He Took the Jewelry Because it Looked Nice.

Albert Addert, 16 years of age, who for over two years was employed by J. H. Johnston & Co., 17 Union Square, New York, was arrested Saturday and held for examination on a charge of robbing the firm of over $3,000 worth of jewelry. Two weeks ago Addert, who enjoyed the full confidence of his employers, went on a vacation to West Colang, Pa., and on his return a bill was discovered in the office for a bracelet worth four dollars which had not been received by the firm. An investigation followed, and Addert admitted he had obtained the bracelet and offered to pay for it. He was at once discharged and returned to West Colang, where he was very attentive to a young girl.

Mr. Johnston subsequently heard that he was spending money very freely at the resort, and went there and investigated on his own account. Among the boy's effects were discovered rings and other jewelry valued at about $1,000 and he had over $800 in cash on his person. He was brought back to New York, and in his room in Brooklyn was discovered rings, watches and other jewelry estimated to be worth $1,000. The timepieces bore the name of the firm. It is not known what the exact amount of his stealings are, but it is presumed to be considerable. When taxed with the robbery he coolly said that "the jewelry looked pretty and he took it."

Mr. Walter Farrington, Brewer, Me., who for several years was in the employ of W. A. Blacar, Bangor, Me., has returned to the latter's employ.

At 2 o'clock Thursday morning an alarm of fire was sent out for a blaze discovered in the jewelry store of M. E. Linnehan, Birmingham, Ala. The fire was quickly extinguished before much damage had been done. On investigation the rear door was found to be broken in and the bar broken. The supposition is that robbery and incendiarism were the cause of the blaze. The damage was fully covered by insurance.

Wm. H. Ball & Co., 15 John St., New York, are showing many attractive novelties in gold bracelets which for fine workmanship and originality of design are unsurpassed. The firm's patent guard for bracelets, which prevents them dropping from the wrist in the event of the bracelet becoming unfastened, should be in the stock of every jeweler.

The Non-Magnetic Watch Co. invite the attention of the trade to the four new grades of 16-size movements they have lately placed on the market, containing the celebrated Paillard improvements. These movements are calculated to meet the demand for lower-priced movements and to stimulate sales in Paillard Non-Magnetic watches. In the new movements, dealers will have an excellent opportunity of becoming acquainted with their advantages at very little cost.

R. & L. Friedlander Admit Their Brother into the Firm.

Martin Friedlander, youngest brother of R. & L. Friedlander, 67 and 69 Nassau St., New York has been admitted as a member of the firm, the firm name now being R., L. & M. Friedlander. This business has been a most successful one. No one could have started in a more humble way than did Louis Friedlander a dozen years ago. Then he traveled about New York city with his stock, and through hard work, energy and upright dealing he gradually increased his business and took into partnership his brother Richard, who gave up his position with Baldwin, Sexton & Peterson.

They were induced after being established for a few years at 264 Bowery to open a place downtown, which they did about 10 years ago. They first occupied a small room at 67 Nassau St., then through increasing business they were obliged to tear down the dividing wall, which gave them use of the entire first floor. Their business continued to increase, and they were obliged to rent more rooms on the third and fourth floors. In December of last year they secured the premises formerly occupied by L. Tannenbaum & Co. They occupy now an establishment having a frontage of 50 feet and also have use of the third and fourth floors for storage and packers' rooms.

Martin Friedlander was born Aug. 1st, 1862. After receiving a good education, he entered the employ of Mr. Ulman, who at that time was one of New York's most prominent horologists. Here he studied for several years and then entered the employ of his father. For the past eight years he has had charge of the uptown branch of R. & L.

Friedlander. This branch has, however, been discontinued, owing to the increase in business in Nassau St., and the desire to concentrate all their efforts to meet the growing trade. He has assumed control of their material department.

Trade Gossip.

Chatelaine watches set as it were in a block of wood with gold cord and tackle is a new watch for a sailor's wife.

C. H. Knights & Co., Chicago, received Wednesday the stocks purchased by Mr. Knights while abroad. They include $56,000 worth of diamonds, among them a few rare canary and brown diamonds of unusual shades. Lines of fined decorated porcelain mounted in French gilt and enamel on copper novelties are being received.

"We are putting up entirely new buildings at the Geneva factory," said President A. L. Smith, of the Geneva Optical Co. "The main building with its wings will give us twice the working space now in the six old buildings. It is now under cover and will be ready Jan. 1. No delay will be caused by the removal, as the men will simply step from the old quarters to the new ones. Our present factories were altogether too small and we couldn't make goods fast enough to fill our orders."

The American Watch Tool Co., Waltham, Mass., have made slight reductions in prices of lathes and chucks, to take effect immediately. The development of machinery and increased product have reduced the cost of the work so that they are again enabled to give the benefit of these reductions to the watch repairer. They do very little business with the retail trade, preferring to supply their products principally through the jobbers, though they fill orders from the retailer on the "cash with order" or C. O. D. plan.

Rogers & Bro., 16 Cortlandt St., New York, are enjoying a gratifying demand for their "Savoy" design of flatware. During the past few weeks the sale of this popular pattern has been so great that the company were behind in their orders. They have, however, added new facilities to meet the demand and are now filling orders as soon as received. The "Tuxedo," another very salable design of flatware manufactured by Rogers & Bro., is also much sought after, and deservedly so, as it is one of the most attractive patterns produced.

Aurora, Ill., is one of the latest cities to be represented by a souvenir spoon. The spoon is controlled by Trask & Plain, of that city. The spoon shows Aurora, the Goddess of Dawn, floating in the air, bearing in one hand a flaming torch, in token of the coming day, and in the other an urn, half inverted, from which she is pouring dewdrops on the thirsty earth. The design shows the most artistic treatment and carries out the ideas of the firm, embodied in a pamphlet published by them, that "the time has now gone by when the simple representation of some public building or historical monument of merely local interest incorporated in a spoon will touch the tastes of the connoisseur. The spoon of the future must have artistic merit in order to hold a permanent place in the affections of the public." The spoon was made by the Howard Sterling Co.

C. Hellebush, Cincinnati, O., has received a large importation of turfmen's timekeepers, which are guaranteed to keep absolutely correct time to a split second.

Chicago manager Barnum, of the Ansonia Clock Co., remarks that business in clocks has been good all the year. Mr. Barnum has recently returned from Europe and says it has been thought the proper thing to look to Europe for styles, but that it is a false idea, the American being superior to the foreign styles.

"Our chimes clock is now in stock, in Chicago," said Manager Strickland of the New Haven Clock Co., "and inside of a month the trade will have full descriptive matter in their hands. It is the first cheap clock of this character ever produced in this country giving the famous Westminster chimes on eight bells."

Benj. Allen & Co., Chicago, are making a strong card of loose and mounted diamonds, and while abroad Mr. Allen proposes to establish a buying agency at Amsterdam. The large quantities handled annually by this well-known house, and their rapidly increasing diamond trade, warrant the firm in taking this step, thereby saving to their customers the middleman's profit.

The F. Kroeber Clock Co., 360 Broadway, New York, are showing several very pretty designs in window ornaments that are proving very popular among jewelers who desire to make their show windows attractive. They are of various sizes and consist of a gold or silver bronze vase, representing a sportive Cupid holding on high a torch from which spreads a silk fan containing gilded hooks on which watches, rings, etc. may be suspended. The ornaments are moderate in price.

The extensive showrooms of the Chas. Jacques Clock Co., 22 Cortlandt St., New York, are filled with a large assortment of richly ornamented hall clocks which Mr. Jacques secured during his recent European tour. Many of these clocks have carved cases modeled after famous timepieces of the Empire period, and others are of new and exclusive design. They range in prices so as to meet the requirements of all classes of trade.

Necklaces with pendants of aquamarine and other crystalline stones of color are fashionable.

PARIS, France, Sept. 2.—Pearls are profusely employed by some jewelers. I have seen very remarkable displays, chiefly consisting of pearls of different sizes, tastefully arranged, and forming a great variety of patterns. Bracelets and necklaces having six, eight, and even twelve rows of pearls held together by buckle-shaped ornaments in jeweled gold are very fashionable. Rosaceæ made of pearls with diamond spars dropping from them like a fringe are very pretty as brooches or hair-comb heads. A handsome shoulder-piece consists of a large circular motif formed of small white pearls with a big gray pearl in the center. From this brooch hangs a tassel, which is really a bunch of different-sized pearls strung together, with a large pear-shaped black pearl dropping underneath.

Elegant waist-bands are also decorated with pearl ornaments of an Oriental character. Pale blue satin shoes exhibit a graceful buckle bordered with pearls, and ruffled velvet caps of a fancy Persian shape, for evening garden parties, are partly embroidered with pearls.

Fair tortoise shell very fine, looking like clear yellow glass, is extensively used to make bonbon or puff boxes, carnets de bal and fan handles. It is soberly adorned with delicate sprigs of diamond flowers and tiny insects lightly applied on the tortoise shell, thus appearing to rest on the surface of a transparent amber-colored water.

A brooch of a neat and refreshing appearance consists of a very large aquamarine set flat with scarcely marked facets. It is surrounded with sea-weeds in yellow and green gold sprinkled with brilliants.

Scent bottles are made in all shapes, classical, artistic and original. They are chiefly in white or colored crystal, with a gold stopper on which is a large stone in cabochon. A curious scent bottle is in pale green glass with a large drawn stain, giving the effect of a thin piece of vari-colored agate winding through it like a spiral ribbon.

Bonbon boxes for pocket use also admit of a great variety of shapes; all substances, precious and semi-precious, are employed in the making of them. A fine one of an oval shape is in pale gold, studded with jewels that look like tiny pieces of green, red, yellow and blue bonbons stuck on the box. On the lid is a laughing mask of a female cut out of an heliotrope which seems powdered with sugar and appears to have been fashioned out of a rare fruit.

Fashions in Jewelry and Silver-ware.

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

Old-fashioned soap dishes with covers are revived in silver.

Silver candle extinguishers are the prettiest of trifles, and the snuffer trays things of beauty.

Two white enamel buttons with silver fleur-de-lis for their ornament have been observed as bracelet clasps.

Shell designs are prominent in silver. A new bowl for cracked ice, and in large sizes for fruit, has its surface composed of shell-like flutes.

The new molasses jugs are mounted on pretty little platters, either square or round. The square jug seems to be preferred to the round jug.

The clover is one of the prettiest designs in the new enameled spoons. The red, corn-like bloom finishes the tips, with the stalk and folded leaves for the stem.

Necklaces of tiny beads of different colors separated by a large gold bead have shell-like forms of gold closely attached at intervals instead of pendants.

A new spoon has a heart-shaped bowl. The handle is a silver arrow on which perches a winged Cupid. These would make suitable gifts to bridesmaids.

Small silver individual dishes for entrees are prominent. The new gilt-lined scallop shells are very pretty, and likewise interesting are the quaint little covered dishes shaped like old-fashioned skillets.

Olive dishes are to the fore in three styles. These are either square or oblong with fluted edges, and the slightly concave centers in lusterless gilt, or perforated, or surrounded by heavy repoussé work. These latter are in long oval shapes, slightly mounted.

A set of after dinner coffees has a slim jug-like silver pot and three cups and saucers, each of shell pink and white. These are modeled with deflected flutes, and the most delicate silver tracery in garlands follow the concave lines. Nothing could be prettier than this combination of silver and porcelain.

Ribbon effects are followed in diamond jewelry. The most prominent of the new styles consists of long, slender lines of diamonds thickly set, doubled and gathered into loops. A diamond tiara simulates a ribbon tied here and there in a slight bow-knot. Brooches are several loops tied in a bow, one set of loops being much longer than the other.

The Fall sees no diminution in the popularity of the bow-knot. On the contrary, as chatelaine pins they are in greater vogue than ever, and the preparations for the coming season are made on a more sumptuous scale. They are adapted in many instances to some particular watch. The knot is of slender enameled loops, pink, blue, black, sprinkled with diamonds, and the tiny watch repeats the color in enamel.

HENRY A. WADSWORTH.

H. A. WADSWORTH, of the Wadsworth Watch Case Co., Newport, Ky, is the son of the widely-known inventor, Arthur Wadsworth, who was renowned for making the first stem-winding watch in this country, and for patenting many devices used in the watchmaking business. Arthur Wadsworth died in December, 1883. With such an illustrious father it was not surprising that Henry A. Wadsworth, who was born in Birmingham, England, in 1849, should inherit a mechanical knowledge of watchmaking. The Wadsworth family came to America when Henry was 9 years old. At his father's request he entered the watch business, at the age of 17 years, beginning with John P. Clemens in New York, who afterward sold out to the American Watch Co.

In 1869, Henry went west and entered the factory of J. C. Dueber, working there three years at the end of which time he entered Duhme & Co.'s service and learned gold case making. He remained with Duhme & Co. eight years, having become an expert in the trade. He was then engaged by John C. Dueber to take charge of his watch case making department, which position he held until he went into business for himself in the latter part of 1889. In 1890 the first Wadsworth case was turned out and exhibited to the trade; the new samples following gave such satisfaction that the business was established on a firmer basis and the capital increased until now the case can compete with any filled case in the market.

Going Down a Diamond Mine.

Is going down a diamond mine a pleasant experience? Scarcely. A diamond mine is about as dark, dirty and repulsive as a coal pit, and not a hall of dazzling light, as seems to run in the popular imagination. At the mouth of the shaft, which is usually inclined, not perpendicular, there is a "cage" which to the stranger looks like a wooden coffin. Into this casket you step and you are launched into darkness with awful and perplexing speed. After you have dropped about six hundred feet you are brought to a full stop, much, probably, to your satisfaction. The sensation of descent as you lie in the coffin is not calculated to make one sing hilariously. I have known men very plucky on the surface howl dismally as if they thought they were bound for some pitiless Inferno.

Arrived at the bottom, or perhaps only the first level, the visitor will probably be confounded with the noise and vapor and lurid gleams of hundreds of candles and lamps, and the uncouth, unnatural appearance of the natives who move about like so many demons. He will see dirty trucks into which dirty men shovel dirty earth, which is drawn to the surface in the same fashion as coal is from a mine. The visitor will probably see nothing to even remind him of a diamond. The precious gems are encased in the dirty earth he sees sent to the surface in quantities of thousands of tons per day. The sight is somewhat disappointing and removes much of the sentimentality about a diamond mine.

SHE SUSPECTED THE ANGEL.

The pilgrim was enjoying the lunch the lady had served him in the kitchen, and he was correspondingly grateful.

"I am sure, ma'am," he said between bites, "that you will be rewarded for this kindness."

"That's all right," she replied, sympathetically.

"Yes, ma'am, nobody can tell just how much little attentions to the needy and suffering will bring back again to the donors."

"Oh, I never think of that."

"Of course you don't, lady; and even now you may be entertaining an angel un-awares."

"Yes, I thought of that," she smiled, sweetly, "and I'm staying out here in the kitchen now to see that it wasn't tempted to fly away with the spoons."—Detroit Free Press.

Practical Optics.

NOTE.—The purpose of this department is to give to the student, without his having had any previous technical education, a clear and practical course of instruction on optics, with its application to the correction of visual defects. The Correspondence Column is open to all readers of THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR.

AMBLYOPIA.

AMBLYOPIA a Hemeralopia. These terms together simply mean a dulness of vision from night-blindness. Hemeralopia derivatively means a day-eye, and this condition is one in which we have very good sight during the day in a good, strong light, but during the night and in the dark we have a diminution of vision, and even blindness. Hemeralopia and Nyctalopia are interchangeable terms.

Amblyopia a Hemeralopia occurs in cases of those who are born with dulness of vision; there is no remedy known to benefit the same. Patients come to us who complain that the lenses which they are wearing give them good vision during the daytime, but that in the night, by gas light, vision is very poor. These may properly be classified in this division of the subject under consideration.

Amblyopia a Entoptic Phenomenon. This variety of dulled vision is due to visual phenomena caused by peculiarities or imperfections of the eye itself, such as floating bodies called muscae volitantes, which are understood to be small dots, rings, threads, etc., which are found in the vitreous humor; these do not interfere with vision. These floating bodies seem to be seen at a distance and may or may not be of any importance.

Patients who complain that objects appear smaller than they really are suffer from an inflammation of the outer layers of the retina, thus causing the image to appear small; the word Micropsia defines this condition. Micropsia, Megalopsia and Metamorphopsia are all Entoptic Phenomena due to an inflammation of the outer layers of the retina, especially at that point where the cell bodies, rods and cones are situated, namely in the macula lutea. Because of this inflammation adhesive bands of lymph are thrown out and constrict and render smaller these rods and cones, thereby causing the impression in the brain to be correspondingly smaller (micropsia), larger (megalopsia), or changed in form (metamorphopsia).

Amblyopia a Hemianopsia denotes a condition of a contracted field of vision in which there is a loss of one-half the field. This state of affairs may be brought about by a hemorrhage of a retinal vessel, by paralysis or by a disease of the optic nerve. Little or nothing can be done for this condition.

Amblyopia a Chromatopsia. This variety of dulled vision is due to an abnormal sensation of color and is spoken of as color blindness. There is a condition yet spoken of as colored vision, red being the color usually noticed. Red vision (Erythopsia) usually appears after cataract operation, in which everything looks rosy; this is usually associated with fatigue. Nervous children who are overworked complain that everything looks red or red and blue, but the condition of which we are writing is generally congenital, although there are cases in which it is acquired; but when it is acquired, then it is a disease of the optic nerve.

From 3 per cent. to 5 per cent. of males are color blind. The detection of color blindness is very easy. Many persons, however, appear to be color blind because they do not know the names of the different colors, and thus the method has been adopted of taking forty different shades of colors and to ask the patient to select the skeins of yarn of similar colors; then if there is color blindness the lighter shade of green or red will be selected for the same color. In congenital color blindness red and green blindness is the most common form. In acquired color blindness in which we have a wasting (atrophy) of the optic nerve, green and red are the colors first to fade and blue is the last color to remain.

Amblyopia a Anesthesia. This variety of dulled vision is due to an insensibility of the retina and may properly be classified with some of the other varieties of amblyopia. In this condition the eye may be perfectly emmetropic, and yet the retina being unable to appreciate the image because of insensibility the brain does not receive the impression.

Having considered the different varieties of Amblyopia we will take up next in order that condition of the eye in which there is an absence of the crystalline lens, namely Aphakia.

Aphakia is derived from two Greek words meaning lacking the lens, and is that condition in which from a loss of the crystalline lens we have a diminution of sight. The crystalline lens has a focal strength of four and one-half diopters, and we have to add lenses of greater power to this for Presbyopia, according to the rule Donder has given, in order to give good vision.

Aphakia has been divided into four varieties, which are to it as cause is to effect.

1. Congenital.
2. Traumatic.
3. Luxation.
4. Cataract Operation by maceration.

Congenital Aphakia sometimes occurs. In one family in Urbana, Ohio, the children were all born without the crystalline lens.

Traumatic Aphakia is brought about by a blow upon the eye causing the lens to disappear.

Aphakia by Luxation. This condition is one in which the lens is dislodged from its proper place, and is found either to the one side or the other of the pupil.

Aphakia by Cataract Operation. This is by far the most common variety. After the lens has been removed everything looks rosy, but this soon disappears and a convex spherical lens of sufficient power is adjusted and the eye which for a time was blind again appreciates the blessing of sight.

We have now covered the ground of the technique of optics. It will be our purpose in our next and subsequent issues to consider some of the mechanical devices employed for the study of the eye, namely:

1. The Keratoscope or Placido's Disc.
2. The Ophthalmometer of Jveal and Schiötz.
3. The Ophthalmoscope.
4. The Retinoscope.
5. Other Instruments.
6. The Trial Case.

The most ingenious ruses are resorted to by the illicit dealers for conveying the stolen diamonds out of Kimberley. They are considerably assisted by the fact that the boundaries of the Transvaal and of the Free State approach within a few miles of Kimberley, and once across the border they are comparatively safe. Recently, so I was informed, a notorious diamond thief was seen leaving Kimberley on horseback for the Transvaal. Convinced of his iniquitous designs, he was seized by the police on the border, and thoroughly searched. Nothing was found on him, and he was perforce allowed to proceed. No sooner was he well across the border, then he, under the eyes of the detective, deliberately shot and cut open his horse, extracting from its intestines a large parcel of diamonds,

A Pivoted Detent Escapement with Vertical Balance Axis.

A FRENCH watchmaker, Mr. Boulat, publishes in the Revue horlogère de Besançon, the description of a new escapement which appears so interesting to THE CIRCULAR that it translates it for its readers, remarking at the same time that it has completed the very meager description given by the author so far as it was possible according to the cuts.

Fig. 1 represents the somewhat enlarged side view of this new escapement, of which only a part of the tooth rim of the scape-wheel R turned away from the observer, with a single cross arm, is sketched, as the many pins of the wheel would have confused the figure, and the pinion together with the corresponding two bridges would cover up the largest part of the balance axis A and the pivoted detent B. Fig. 2 gives on a rather larger scale a prospective view of the latter two parts; on account of greater plainness the two projections C and D upon the balance axis A are moved further apart in the cut than is the case in reality.

The inventor furnishes the scape wheel R, Fig. 1, with from 12 to 15 pins a a in place of teeth; 13 such pins are assumed in the accompanying cut. In Fig. 1 the escapement is locked, whereby one of the pins *a*¹, Fig. 1, lies on the projection b (see also Fig. 2) of the detent B; the scape wheel remains thereby in locking until the detent B is unlocked, which takes place when the balance axis A strikes with the unlocking finger D, in the direction of the arrow Fig. 2 upon the point *e*¹ of the detent spring e, consequently at every excursion to the left of the balance.

During the excursion of the balance, to which it imparts an impulse at the same time.

Shortly after the pin *a*² has dropped upon the lifting plane e, the detent spring *e*¹ drops from the finger D, and the pivoted detent B returns into its locking position. The pin *a*², which has arrived at the end of the lifting plane e and then drops, therefore finds again the projection b of the pivoted detent ready for receiving it, the scape wheel is locked thereby and the return excursion to the right of the balance takes place entirely detached, with the exception of the very small angle, during which the unlocking finger D comes in contact with the evading, very delicate detent spring *e*¹. In the excursion to the left the unlocking is then repeated with the impulse taking place immediately after.

No close experiments as to rate have been tried with this escapement. The inventor has a patent in France for the novel construction.

After the unlocking has taken place and the spring *e e*¹ dropped from the point of the finger D, the pivoted detent B is again returned to its locking position by the spring f, Fig. 2, in which it applies itself on the banking pin d. At the return excursion of the balance the detent spring *e e*¹ then evades the finger D in the known manner.

Above the unlocking finger D is upon the balance axis located a lifting finger C, sufficiently thick that it fairly fills the space between two pins of the scape wheel, although in a locking position of the scape wheel it vibrates freely past between these pins (*a*¹ and *a*², Fig. 1). The lifting plane e of the lifting finger stands at an angle of about 50° to the balance axis, and the two fingers are placed one to the other in such a manner that at the moment when, in the excursion to the left of the balance the pin *a*¹, Fig. 1, becomes free from the projection b of the pivoted detent, the pin *a*² drops upon the commencement of the lifting plane e and passes through during the con-

Ancient Japanese Pottery.

THE Guimet's museum, which was open a few years ago in the neighborhood of the Trocadero, Paris, is called the Musée des Religieuses. It contains chiefly statues of gods and goddesses, and religious articles which have belonged to temples of the farthest Orient (Extrême Orient). Japanese works of a different character are also exhibited there.

The following statuettes of a primitive workmanship are believed to have been made in Corea at a very remote period. One shows a man on horseback (Fig. 1, No. 11); the other one is a woman in a crouching attitude with a peculiar head-covering from which hangs a long veil (Fig. 1, No. 9). The colors are chiefly brown and black on a whitish ground. Here are two remarkable pieces of hard pottery. One of them (Fig. 2), with a tinted glaze, shows a man standing; his eyes are drawn sidewise; his left hand is resting on his hip and the right one holds a sword. He is full of life. This piece was made in the style invented in the thirteenth century, at Seto (Owari province), by Toshiro, on his return from China. The other piece (Fig. 1, No. 10), showing a man, crouching with a terrible look, is covered with a bronze patina of a perfect metallic appearance. This man is Shoki, whetting his sword, previous to a fight against demons (according to a Chinese legend). The piece is signed Ghissabero Teikan.

The collection of cups is most interesting. The one in open work (Fig. 1, No. 4), formed with leaves and flowers entwined, is a fruit vessel in faience, rather old, signed Ken-Zan, made at Imado, Tokio. Another one (Fig. 1, No. 3), very simple, is a small hard vase from Soma, of the seventeenth century; it

A cup exhibiting bamboo leaves coming out on a somber ground (Fig. 1, No. 6) bears the mark, in the shape of a shell, of Dohachi, who lived at Kioto in the 18th century. Another (Fig. 1, No. 2) by the same is ornamented with apple-tree flowers, painted by a very light hand.

A vase with a handle (Fig. 1, No. 7) is adorned with white chrysanthema on a gold ground. This style was invented in 1525 by Chojiro. On account of his talent, the son of the inventor was allowed to mark his works "Rakou," which means prosperity.

The following are curious specimens of works from Kouhain, Kaga province. One is a round dish, made by Shiozo (Fig. 1, No. 13), on which there are two pheasants, the colors of which are magnificent, and pretty chrysanthema on a flecked ground. Another dish (Fig. 1, No. 8) has the appearance of a chrysanthemum of a very singular shape. A third one, strikingly original (Fig. 1, No. 12), resembles a cobweb with leaves showing on it. These works are marked Foukou.

Fig. 1, No. 1, merely indicates a most remarkable piece of which, unfortunately, no illustration can give a complete idea. It is a vase about 15 centimeters high, signed Tanzan, of Tokio. The scene painted on it is a night watch with rats instead of Japanese soldiers. Trees like ghosts are profiled on the moon, and clouds fantastically run in the sky.

The Guimet's Museum contains a great variety of Japanese works in the ceramic line, from the ancient pottery called Kaisukadoki, and the hard ware

The Rambler's Notes.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

ONE of the most artistic productions that have been introduced by Craighead & Wilcox, 33 Barclay St., New York, this season is an oyster plate formed of real oyster shells covered with silver. The insides of the shells are highly polished while the exterior are covered by a thin film of bright silver that distinctly shows every ridge and depression of their unseen surfaces. The shells are arranged in a circle with one raised above the other in the center. Another interesting novelty shown by the same firm is cups of Haviland china covered with silver gilt with flowers cut into the surfaces. These are exceedingly interesting ornaments and are especially suited for the cabinet or bric-à-brac table.

Levy, Dreyfus & Co., 9 and 11 Maiden Lane, New York, who recently added another store to their establishment, to be devoted exclusively to their fine bric-à-brac trade, are showing several new figures and busts in Carrara and Castellina marble, that were imported for the jewelry trade.

One of the most varied stocks of inlaid curio tables and cabinets in New York can be seen in the showrooms of Ferdinand Bing &

Co., 106 Grand St. The tables are modeled after fashions prevailing during the Empire period and are finished in a manner that considerably enhances the appearance of articles shown on them; for this purpose alone they are very appropriate in a jewelry store.

A new finish in Doulton ware consisting of a polished shell-like surface is seen on many new patterns in the stock of Bawo & Dotter, 28 to 32 Barclay St., New York. The soft, ivory finish is still high in popular favor, and shows to advantage with a decoration consisting of pinks and variegated roses against a plain background.

THE RAMBLER.

"You can take this ring," said the obliging jeweler, "and I will give you time on it."

"Thank you," said the young man coolly; "I had a friend who took a diamond ring, and he is doing time for it yet. I guess I'll wait," and he refused to be tempted.

SHIPPEN CLARKE—Why do you give so expensive jewelry to your fiancée?

CASHIN HAND—I do it from economical motives.

SHIPPEN CLARKE—How's that?

CASHIN HAND—If I spent money on theaters, oyster suppers, candy and the like, it would be sunken capital; but after we are married, I shall be able to raise money on that jewelry.—Puck.

Gem Making in Scotland.

WHAT promises to be a most important discovery has been made by one of our Glasgow scientists, says the Herald, of Glasgow, Scotland. Although imitation gems are obtainable in any required quantity, the production of crystals having the hardness, durability and other qualities, both physical and chemical, of natural stones has been one of the unsolved problems of applied chemistry. The most advanced efforts up to now have been made in Paris, and the French specialists have at least proved the possibility of producing sapphires, rubies and other stones by artificial means, their products being real gems, and not glasses. It is doubtful, however, if the originators of the French methods themselves claim that theirs are the methods of nature, and it is reasonable to suppose that the most natural method will be the most practically successful one. Although no geologist or chemist can declare the new process to be the process of nature, yet many analogies point that way.

Experimenters in this field may have been partly discouraged by the thought that the gems of nature were produced under conditions of enormous pressure, to which might have been added very high temperatures, and that they were in some cases the products of long periods of time. It is possible, however, that too much weight has been given to that point. In the process now under notice so much, discouraging conditions are present and the method is wonderfully simple. Even working on the laboratory scale, using small vessels, stones have been obtained over one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter, and very large numbers have been found approaching that size. There is no reason to doubt that working on a larger scale will yield stones of any size likely to be required. The noble nature of the products is beyond doubt, as they are very hard infusible at all ordinarily attainable temperatures and insoluble in any acid. The bulk of the gems are white or rather colorless sapphires. They are compact and transparent crystals, and many specimens have a splendid luster. By subsequent treatment some of them have taken on the sapphire blue.

Some of the specimens seem to contain a small amount of carbon. This element is sometimes present in small quantity in natural emeralds—a fact not generally stated in books on the subject. In a few specimens the proportion of carbon seems to be considerable, and there are present individual crystals having physical properties more nearly allied to the diamond than to the sapphire. In nature diamonds are often found associated with other gems. In any case the products contain little or no silica, this compound being the characteristic ingredient in all kinds of glass. Apart from the possibilities of the process in the direction of producing the diamond, the chief point already established is that of having found an easy method of crystallizing alumina.

A YACHTING TROPHY WORTH THE WINNING.

It is seldom that a yachting trophy possesses more thoroughly characteristic features than that won at the New York Yacht Club regatta last June by the schooner Viator, Class D, and reproduced on this page. The trophy is in the form of a solid silver urn, about twelve inches in height and about the same in circumference. The base is of conventional shape, the sea shells and marine plants that are represented in repoussé heightening the effect. The decorations of the body of the urn are, however, a complete departure from all former productions of a like character. From a symmetrically formed shell the urn rises and swells outward until the shoulder is reached, where the neck supports a gracefully formed and artistically chased shell, which acts as the spout and neck of the trophy. On the front of the urn is an etching copied from a photograph of the victorious yacht, circled with a wreath of York Yacht Club, 1892." The handle which rises from the top and curves around to the center of the urn represents an elongated dolphin with a double-twisted tail. Resting as if it had been placed over the neck of the urn is a laurel wreath. The workmanship of the trophy, which was manufactured by the Gorham Mfg. Co., is of a very high order, the chasing and applied work being among the finest produced by the firm. The urn was designed by the Gorham Co., and elicited the highest praise from the officers and members of the New York Yacht Club.

Crashed Through a Skylight upon Valuable Bric-a-brac and Porcelain.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 16.—Yesterday afternoon there was a terrible crash of breaking glass and china on the second floor of the George H. Ford Co.'s store. General Ford, rushing upstairs, saw a man wounded and bleeding partly covered with debris of fine porcelain and china. The man gave his name as Joshua Smith and said that he was an engineer of the N. Y., N. H. & H. road. He, it seems, was on the top floor of the building and was about to descend when he tripped and fell headlong over the balustrade down three flights into the store.

On the third floor a dead light of tempered glass is set directly over the finest exhibit of Ford Co.'s choicest wares. In falling Smith passed through the dead light, taking out every bit of glass as completely as possible. The damages cannot be accurately stated, but can fairly be estimated at $1,000. Smith when he had fully regained his senses, surveyed the mass of debris with amazement, and with profuse apologies agreed to settle for the damage done. He was in custody until he had made satisfactory arrangements with General Ford.

Discovery of Buried Jewelry that was Stolen Eighteen Months Ago.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 15.—This week a boy named Lee Honn was playing on the Evans place, when he was attracted by an eye-glass partly buried with one end sticking from the earth. He dug it out, and in so doing found a lot of the jewelry that was stolen from B. C. Wells' store in February, 1891. The details of the mysterious robbery were published in THE CIRCULAR at the time.

The find consisted of ten gold watches, a gold locket, bracelet, and some articles of minor value. Deputy Gunnells took charge of the property.

Details of the Failure of S. S. Hayden.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., Sept. 17.—The failure of Samuel S. Hayden is still the subject of much talk, and people are wondering as to how he could possibly get so deep into difficulty as his schedule of creditors shows him to be. Mr. Hayden is still ill at Easthampton and the causes of his troubles cannot be learned directly. He has many friends, who sympathize with him in his trouble.

His total liabilities are $9,366.21, with assets that now are practically nominal. Mr. Hayden told his lawyer that he thought he could pay 33½ per cent. at first, but a move on the part of one of his creditors a few days ago seems to kill such a proceeding, he thinks. He claims that C. G. Alford & Co., one of his heaviest creditors, upon hearing of his financial troubles and while he was still sick, appeared in the store and carried off their goods, which comprised a large part of the stock. A young brother of Mr. Hayden who was in the store at the time claims to have protested against this proceeding, but without avail. The first hearing of the creditors is set down for next Friday, when an assignee will be appointed, after which Mr. Hayden's lawyer will seek to recover the goods.

The creditors among the trade, as shown by the schedules filed, are given below:

C. G. Alford & Co., New York, $1,964; N. E. Whiteside, Newark, N. J., $29; Bioren Bros., Newark, N. J., $26; N. H. Brown & Co., Boston, $54; Kent & Stanley Co., Providence, $250; Dennison Mfg. Co., Boston, $16; Hills & Whitbeck, New York, $71; L. H. Keller & Co., New York, $22; Henry Kohn, Hartford, $616; Reeves & Sillcocks, New York, $21; J. W. Henry, & Co., Providence, $9; J. R. Wood & Son, New York, $59; J. F. Angell, New York, $50; E. A. Whitney, Boston, $30; Stone Brothers, New York, $90; Manhattan Watch Co., New York, $50; W. J. Ormsby, Springfield, $45; L. B. Coe, $40; H. J. Davison, $70. Other heavy creditors are: Mr. Hayden's father-in-law, John A. Spaulding, of Nashua, N. H., $2,200; and the Agawam National Bank of Springfield, $675.

Two Jewelry Stores of Chester, Pa., Robbed in Succession.

CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 15.—The store of the Cross Optical and Jewelry Co., was entered through the transom over the front door by burglars during last Thursday night, and relieved of about $50 worth of valuables. Among the missing articles was Dr. Cross' medical case. John Dutton on Saturday found the medicine chest. It was open, but the contents were gone.

The next night, in South Chester, the window of H. Weisman's store was smashed by burglars and five watches and four revolvers taken.

An Old Offender Gets Two Years for Stealing a Ring.

READING, PA., Sept. 14.—William Lerch, a professional thief, was sentenced yesterday morning to two years' imprisonment for the larceny of a diamond ring from Charles M. Evans, jeweler, 351 Penn St.

Lerch was arrested after a year's absence from Reading upon calling at Mr. Evans' jewelry store and requesting to be shown some diamonds, when the proprietor recognized him and sent for an officer.

James S. Kelley's Sixty Years' Experience at the Bench.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 17.—This week James S. Kelley & Son moved to a larger store on William St. This move was necessitated by the fact that their old store has been leased to other parties. James S. Kelley is the oldest jeweler in this city, having been actively in the business for over sixty years. Three generations of the Kelleys have taken part in the management of this particular business.

James S. Kelley, the present head of the firm, was born in Provincetown, Mass., in January, 1822, and from earliest childhood took naturally to the jewelers' business. As young as eight years of age he helped his father, Allen Kelley, then a chronometer maker, in cutting out by hand the brass cogs he used in his product, thus employing all his spare moments out of school. He had two brothers, Henry A. and Edward G., in the general clock, jewelry and chronometer business at Nantucket, and at twelve years of age was apprenticed to them. Toward 1856 Mr. Kelley came to this city, where he combined with his brother Zeno Kelley, under the name of Kelley Brothers, and carried on the manufacture of chronometers. So prosperous was their business that six men were employed in keeping the chronometers of New Bedford's three hundred and over whale ships in repair.

In 1865 the Messrs. Kelley moved to a store next to the Mansion House, remaining there till 1875. Meantime Zeno Kelley had died, but James S. continued the business. In 1884 he removed to Purchase St., associating with him at the same time his son, James S. Kelley, Jr.

Mr. Kelley, Sr. has long been an acknowledged expert in all kinds of horological work.

Anent the Case of the Weber Co. against the C., St. P., M. & O. R.R.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 17.—In the case of The Weber Co. vs. The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railroad, an appeal to the Iowa Supreme Court has been taken by the railroad company. The case is one of particular interest to the jewelry trade, being a discussion on the responsibility of railroads for baggage consigned to their care. One of the travelers for the Weber Co., in August, 1891, checked a trunk containing $1,870 worth of jewelry, at Lemars, Ia., over the above-named road, the check being given on a local ticket and excess baggage paid.

The trunk was stolen from the depot platform and the thief sent to the penitentiary for eighteen months by the railway people. The contents of the trunk were not found and the railway disclaimed responsibility above $50. The Circuit Court at Pringhar, Ia., last May decided in the Chicago firm's favor for the full amount sued for, $2,000.

The appeal will come before the Iowa Supreme Court at Des Moines at either the November or January term. Mr. Weber has requested that the case be pushed for the November term if possible.

Death of John H. Daughaday.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 16.—The grim reaper has removed one of the older members of the guild, John H. Daughaday, who was a locket maker of the old school, entering upon his apprenticeship in 1852 with the old-time firm of L. & D. S. Carr. His apprenticeship finished, he spent several years at the bench as a journeyman until after the close of the war. Some nine months ago he accepted a position with Albert Lorsch & Co., as manager of the Providence office, which position he occupied at the time of his death on the 12th inst.

The deceased was born in Newburgh, N. Y., in the early thirties, and after a district school education removed to this city in 1851. He was married to Miss Florence Peckham, of this city about thirty years ago, and had four children, three sons and one daughter, all of whom survive him, the eldest son, Frank P., being at present a salesman for Albert Lorsch & Co. Mr. Daughaday contracted a severe cold about ten days ago, which rapidly developed into typhoid pneumonia, from which he died.

L. P. Chambers' store, Pullman, Wash., was entered by burglars some days ago and several hundred dollars worth of goods carried away. There is no clue to the thieves.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

Rhode Island Jewelers and the World's Fair.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 15.—Some time ago THE CIRCULAR published a complete account, up to date, of the details of the proposed jewelry exhibit by the Rhode Island manufacturers at the Columbian Exposition, giving the names of the firms who were to participate, etc. The following new facts of interest have been ascertained from headquarters.

At the beginning of the consideration for the combined exhibit under the auspices of the New England Manufacturing Jewelers' Association it was not thought that the matter would receive the substantial backing which it has obtained. The regret now is that more space has not been secured. Four hundred continuous feet of floor space has been arranged for, but it would be an easy matter to secure patrons for at least 200 feet more. Now, however, it is impossible to obtain any more room.

Those who have taken space have, during the trips of their representatives in the west, taken the pains to ascertain from firms in the jobbing trade their opinion in regard to such an exhibit. They report that every one spoke enthusiastically of it, and all were glad to know that the manufacturers had taken hold of the matter in good earnest. The display to be made will be most creditable, and will show the value of the industry as it is worked in every day life. From its novelty, its value and the beautiful character of the stocks, it is destined to attract a great deal of attention.

Had it been possible for the manufacturers outside the Association to have entered into the display also, it would have pleased a great many located in the Attleboros; but as these towns are cared for by the State of Massachusetts, there was no possible way of having them make their exhibit under the auspices of the New England Manufacturing Jewelers' Association. The manufacturers in the Attleboros and vicinity have taken no steps toward a display.

Overtures were made to individual parties as long ago as February, 1891, to solicit among the manufacturers and enlist their support in making a combined exhibit. In such a case, however, as it would have been only an individual matter, there would have been an utter lack of sufficient responsibility. Hence it is that the taking of the matter in hand by an association gives the exhibit stability and character.

The revival of business in the jewelry trade here during the past two weeks has created good feeling in the trade in general and more particularly among those who have space at the Columbian Exposition. Many of these firms are engaged on their Spring samples, in order to get them out of the way early, and start in on their samples for the Fall trade, from which the display of individual exhibitors will be made. Another Find of Gems Reported from Montana.

ANACONDA, Mon., Sept. 17.—M. H. Bryan, of Philipsburgh, went out prospecting about two or three weeks ago and by chance he wandered up the west fork of Rock Creek and began prospecting for placer gold near the surveyed line of the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific Railway. In the bottom of each pan of dirt it is reported the old gentleman noticed several bright little stones, and, having several little grandchildren, he concluded to save a few of the largest and prettiest of them for the little ones to play with. He saved a small bottle full, and when he returned home he handed the bottle to one of his sons with the remark that the stones were Montana sapphires, with a few rubies and diamonds mixed in for good measure. Jeweler J. C. Wahlen was called upon, and after a close examination he pronounced them just what Mr. Bryan had innocently said they were. Mr. Bryan located several acres of placer ground, and says that he can find fine colors from the glass roots, but has not yet prospected bed rock, where he expects much greater things.

A Daring Robbery and an Active Interchange of Bullets.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 14.—E. Hallett's jewelry store located in the heart of the business part of the city was the scene of a daring robbery Saturday night. It was about 9 o'clock and the street was crowded with promenaders when a fairly well dressed stranger, who has been attending the races, walked briskly up to the show window, smashed the heavy plate glass with a brick in his hand, grabbed a tray of diamond rings and sped quickly up a neighboring alley.

A clerk started in pursuit, but turned back when the fleeing robber sent back two bullets as a warning. An officer took up the chase and fired three shots at the fugitive, which were returned. The policeman followed him for several blocks, but was finally distanced. The rings are valued at several hundred dollars.

The Rockford Watch Co. Honored by the Tasmania Industrial Exhibition.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 13.—Secretary Geo. E. Knight, of the Rockford Watch Co., this week received a telephone message from the post-office to the effect that a registered package addressed to the Rockford Watch Co. was at the post-office, and as it came from Australia, it would have to be opened in the presence of the postmaster. The secretary, on opening it, found that it contained a gold medal, the prize which the company had won by their exhibit at the Tasmania Industrial Exhibition of 1891-92.

The prize is a handsome 18-karat gold medal about the size of a half dollar. On one side was the head of Queen Victoria in bas-relief, and on the other was engraved the following: "Awarded to the Rockford Watch Co., Illinois, U. S. A., special first best commercial exhibit of watches."

The Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. Reorganized.

CANTON, O., Sept. 16.—$300,000 bonds issued in 1891 by the Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co., to secure their entire indebtedness, were to-day taken out into the boiler-room of the big case factory, and in the presence of the company's officials burned to ashes. After the trustees had declared their mission filled, and turned over all their securities to the Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co., a meeting of the directors of the company was held.

The resignations of Messrs. Champion, Bourne and Lynch as directors were given to the board. Joseph C. Dueber, Joseph Daller and Mary A. Dueber were elected in their place, and, with John C. Dueber and Col. W. A. Moore, make up the new board. The new board is the same as the originally constituted board when the factory came to Canton from Newport. The Dueber company it is said is better shaped than at any time in its history in every way. The entire bonded indebtedness was paid in advance of maturity, dollar for dollar, with interest. The trust mortgages were paid and canceled in the Recorder's office this afternoon. This leaves the big Dueber Watch Case Co.'s plant, valued at a million and a half dollars, free from all incumbrances.

A. L. Saltzstein, Jr. now has Salesman Morris Grinsberg Arrested.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 15—Morris Grinsberg, a New York jewelry salesman, was arrested yesterday upon a warrant sworn out by A. L. Saltzstein, Jr., charging Grinsberg with the larceny of three gold watches on Aug. 22.

Mr. Grinsberg, who is one of the men that swore out an attachment on Saltzstein's stock during the recent trouble between that gentleman and his creditors, stated that the whole affair was simply a move upon Saltzstein's part to get even with him for trying to save his house from loss. He was taken to detective headquarters, where Carl Petersen, a 7th St. jeweler, signed a bond for his appearance in court to-day in the sum of $300. It is also understood that papers were served upon Mr. Grinsberg, making him a defendant in a suit brought by Saltzstein, to recover damages to the extent of $50,000, incurred through the former's attachment and the closing up for a short period of Saltzstein's business.

Frank D. Enney Gives a Bill of Sale to his Wife.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 17.—There was filed to-day in the County Clerk's office a bill of sale from Frank D. Enney, to his wife, Ida May Enney, in the sum of $13,150. The document bears the date of Sept. 16th. The bill of sale covers the stock of jewelry, book accounts amounting to $2,711,84, and fixtures valued at $1 804. It also includes all of Mr. Enney's personal property. The Bank of Syracuse has a chattel mortgage on the fixtures.

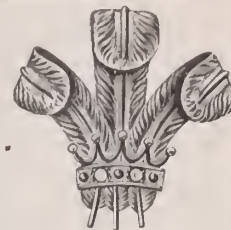

This is Mr. Enney's second financial embarrassment and is no surprise. He made an assignment in 1891 and finally compromised with his creditors at 25 per cent. Last June he gave a chattel mortgage to the Bank of Syracuse. It is claimed that an agency in Providence sent out a report that Mr. Enney had given a mortgage for several thousand dollars more than his stock was worth, and the result was that several suits were brought against the jeweler. Mrs. Enney owns a house and lot on Kellogg St., and it is said that she is responsible for Mr. Enney's commercial paper and that he actually owes her the amount for which the sale has been made. Mr. Enney's liabilities are not large.

Charles E. Van Norman, president of the Waltham Watch Tool Co., Springfield, Mass., is slowly recovering from an attack of intermittent fever which has confined him to his bed for seven weeks. Fred D. Van Norman, his brother, has been similarly afflicted, but is again able to attend to business.

Assignee Saxton's Case Against Broker Stetson in Court

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 17.—The case of Edward H. Saxton, assignee of the concern of E. F. Wilson & Co., vs. John Stetson, the broker, came up for a hearing yesterday in the Superior Civil Court before Judge Allen.

Mr. Saxton seeks an accounting. He alleges in his bill of complaint that Wilson pledged certain diamonds with Stetson as security for loans amounting to $1,600, and that Stetson has refused to deal in the matter with the complainant. The court took the case under advisement.

Among The Jewelers' Circular's Visitors.

Beck, Braidwood and Gardner, Ill., who is east with his wife. They went from New York to Burlington, Vt., on a visit—V. B. Thayer, Memphis, Tenn., who left for home Sunday—O. B. Marsh, Binghamton, N. Death of the President of the Wadsworth Watch Case Co.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 17.—The death of J. H. Stegeman, president of the Wadsworth Watch Case Co., occurred this morning. He was identified with every leading interest in Newport, and his death is a public calamity to that city. He was largely interested in many Cincinnati concerns, while his business and social acquaintance is widespread throughout the west.

Mr. Stegeman went to Europe last year for his health and returned somewhat benefited, but his trouble, cancer of the stomach, seemed to defy the best remedies. He was in his prime and wanted to live to accomplish many projects he had in mind. The Wadsworth Watch Case Co.'s works will be closed until after the funeral, arrangements for which have not yet been made.

Sept. 16 the Straus-Grob Jewelry Co., of Belleville, Ill., were granted a certificate of incorporation. The capital stock is $12,000, and the organizers are Simon Straus, Walter I. Grob and Caroline Straus.

Henry C. Luther and Theodore W. Foster left here Thursday morning en route to the National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Washington, D. C. They will visit the battle-field of Gettysburg and be present at the Naval Review at Baltimore.

Our Traveling Representatives.

THE R. F. S. & Co. chain has had an able and energetic sponsor in the person of William A. Wightman, and a degree of its marvelous success may be accredited to this well-known representative. William A. Wightman was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in February, 1858.

After receiving a liberal education in the City of Churches, he at the age of eighteen years secured a position as bookkeeper in a dry goods house. He subsequently filled the same position with a grocery firm, and later in a bank. In 1879 the confinement necessary in his work, induced him to seek a position where he would enjoy more exercise. This he found with William C. Greene & Co., Providence, who appointed him salesman for New York city.

WM. A. WIGHTMAN.

In January, 1881, he left the firm and was given the management of the New York office of R. F. Simmons & Co., which he has held ever since. Mr. Wightman makes frequent trips to the jobbing trade as far west as Omaha, and is known as a salesman of much ability. He is a member of the Brotherhood of Traveling Jewelers' and of the Lincoln Club, of Brooklyn. He resides, with his wife and family, in Montclair, N. J.

Harry A. Scofield, of Lincoln, Bacon & Co., was in Chicago last week.

Martin S. Fanning has started on a western trip in the interest of Joseph H. Fanning & Co.

E. Untermeyer, Keller & Untermeyer, spent last week in Chicago and left Saturday for the east.

Elias Grass has gone to Nebraska and South Dakota for Herman Oppenheimer & Co., Kansas City.

F. M. Sproehle & Co. will shortly add to their travelers on the road. The firm is now represented by F. A. Boergershausen.

Horace N. Bradley, who has traveled west for E. Aug. Neresheimer & Co., New York, has taken charge of the New York city trade with success.

John Jagers, who was formerly a salesman for Ray Pollak, Kansas City, Mo., has gone on the road for Herman Oppenheimer & Co., of that city.

Mr. Fessenden, of T. F. Fessenden & Co., is in the west, and Silas H. Manchester, of the same firm, is in the east among the customers of that concern.

James T. Hunt, formerly salesman for John T. Cuddy & Co., is now employed as salesman in the watch department of Wilson Bros.' store, Boston, Mass.

J. W. Cook, representing Otto Young & Co. in lower Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan, was in Chicago Wednesday, but left Thursday with a still more complete line.

O. Schneider, with Hammel, Riglander & Co., New York, is suffering in Chicago from sciatic rheumatism in the leg, but refuses to give up and still looks after the interests of the firm.

For the first time since May C. R. Downs, traveler for the New Haven Clock Co. in Michigan, returned from his territory to be refitted, and left the latter part of the week for Michigan.

Larry Edwards, an experienced traveler for many years previous to 1886 with the Ansonia Clock Co., has accepted a position with the New Haven Clock Co. to represent them in Illinois and Wisconsin.

A. H. Pike and E. C. Pike, of Pike, Willson & Ternedt, Chicago, are on the road, the former leaving Sept. 8 for Wisconsin, Minnesota and north Iowa; the latter on Sept. 12 for central and southern Iowa. This is E. C. Pike's first trip for the house, he having been formerly with W. M. Fisher & Co., Providence.

In the mean time Mr. Reed came up and was present when the money was counted out. The purchaser placed on the counter a $100 bill, a $20 bill and 25 one dollar bills in one pack. When he was ready to take his departure with the watch he directed Mr. Reed's attention to some article in the show- case. Then he deftly took the $100 bill and the $20 bill from the bottom of the pile. Mr. Reed did not notice any difference, as the $1 bills were on top. VOL. XXV. SEPT. 21, 1892. NO. 8.

THE Columbian Edition of the Dry Goods Economist is a great achievement in the field of trade journalism and an illustration of the high position that this profession has attained in the affairs of the times. We claim that the representative trade journal combines in its make-up the essentials of the magazine, the newspaper and the scientific work, which a thorough examination of the edition of the Dry Goods Economist will potently substantiate.

PERHAPS no branch of industry has seen so great advance within the past decade as architectural decoration. As each new hotel is erected it surpasses all those previously existing in richness and gorgeousness of decoration exterior and interior. This tendency affects every class of establishment, it being particularly evident in the jewelers' store of the country. One marvels in his own mind what in the progress of things, will or can supersede the marble, onyx, mosaics, bronze, beveled glass, mahogany, tapestries, etc., that are how being embodied in the decorations of our jewelry stores.

Flim-Flam Games.

A WEEK ago THE CIRCULAR contained an account of the operations of a swindler in Baltimore, Md., who worked what is known as the flim-flam game upon a clerk in a jewelry house. In this issue is an account of another flim flim game successfully operated in Pittsburgh, Pa. The methods in both cases were identical, in fact the methods in all such cases are practically the same, and thus it is somewhat surprising that the game can be worked with success. When a strange customer gives in exchange for an expensive article one or two unusually large bills and a number of small bills, such as in the case reported in this issue, in which the swindler gave a $100 bill, a $20 bill and twenty-five $1 bills, the jeweler, no matter how firm his belief in human honesty may be, has a right to be suspicious of the party he is dealing with and should retain a tight hold on the money.

TWO weeks ago THE CIRCULAR endeavored to prove the unreasonableness of the incipient cholera scare caused among a small number of persons outside New York by the sensational and untrue statements in some newspapers whose principles are antagonistic to the progress of the city of New York. Perhaps their case was an isolated one, but it is nevertheless characteristic: an intelligent out-of-town customer ordering a bill of watches from a Maiden Lane house, wrote that if it was necessary to fumigate them, the timepieces need not be sent, as the fumigation could not be done without injuring the movements. The following quotation from The American Druggist, an authority on the subject, ought to dispel any vestiges of fear that may remain in the reader's mind: "A great many people are giving themselves unnecessary trouble about cholera. The disease is only formidable where inadequate means exist for grappling with it, and we are fully prepared in this country for it. Deficient and impure water supply is the primary cause of its origin in Asia. Dirt, ignorance and warm weather are the principal transmitters of the disease. In Madras and Calcutta, India, the writer has seen a large mortality from cholera among the poorer classes where unsanitary conditions prevailed, while immediately around them Europeans and natives who observed ordinary precautions in food and drink were wholly free from the disease. * * * Consumption, diphtheria and typhoid fever are all likely to slay their thousands while cholera is slaying hundreds, but because we are familiar with these diseases we are not afraid of them. Hundreds of children die in New York every week from cholera infantum superinduced by bad milk, but little thought is given to it. No person need fear the cholera if he exercises ordinary care in diet, cleanliness, and proper sanitary surroundings." At this writing there has been no new case, either in the city or in Quarantine, and it is generally felt the little cholera that existed is now past. Out-of-town jewelers visiting New York last week were more numerous than for the corresponding week for many years past, as the reader may see from the list of arrivals published in this issue.

Joel Sadler, for several years a jeweler at Windsor Locks, Conn., died there last week after an illness of several years. He leaves a widow.

Chicago.

E. J. Peck, Braidwood, Ill., passed through the city bound east for pleasure.

Jacob Muhr, of H. Muhr's Sons, spent last week in the city at the Richelieu.

A. L. Sercomb, manager for the Meriden Britannia Co., Chicago, left Saturday for a two weeks' visit at the factory.

Mr. Alister, of B. F. Norris, Alister & Co., has returned from Hailey Springs, Idaho, after a visit there of ten weeks.

Manager Farwell, with J. B. Chambers & Co., is in New York to meet his wife, who was a passenger on the ill-fated Normannia.

W. J. Buckley, of the Seth Thomas Clock Co., returned Saturday from Galesburg, Ill., having set up an hour striking 2,500-pound bell tower clock in the court house there.

The E. Howard Watch Clock Co. are preparing to put a large timepiece in the new city hall at Cincinnati. It will be hour strike with four ten-foot dials and a 4,500-pound bell.

The Chicago National Watch Case Co., of this city, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000. The incorporators are James Rosenthal, Louis Henry, and Herman Till.

No further action has been taken in the failure of J. Stern & Co. The sale was again postponed pending injunction proceedings, and efforts are being made to have the first sale declared valid. Daniel Stern has transferred his judgment to his attorney.

Sam Swartchild has returned from a nine weeks' visit abroad. When he left he was in poor health from catarrh of the bladder, but a course at the mineral springs at Wildungen added fifteen pounds to his weight, and he returns looking well and feeling first class.

The Diamantslypery, of 124-126 Gerard-Doustraat, Amsterdam, Holland, has opened an office for western trade on the fourth floor of 126-132 Market St., this city, and are represented here by S. J. Son. Mr. Son cannot speak English, and is accompanied by an interpreter.

M. N. Burchard, western agent for Rogers & Hamilton Co., left last Tuesday night for St. Louis by reason of the serious illness of his mother in that city. Mr. Burchard had just returned from the funeral of his wife's mother at Milwaukee when summoned to his mother's bedside.

A. E. Bentley, western agent for the United States Watch Co., says he is unable to get movements enough, on account of the wonderful growth of trade. He has returned from Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, finishing up at St. Louis, and reports trade good and the future promising.

The following direct imports were received at the Chicago custom-house Sept. 1 to 15: Benj. Allen & Co., 1 case diamonds; Spaulding & Co., 1 case silverware, 1 case clocks, 4 cases earthenware; L. Manasse, 1 case opera-glasses, 1 case optical goods; Otto Young & Co., 3 cases clocks; F. A. Hardy & Co., 2 cases optical goods; M. K. Babcock, 2 cases clocks; C. H. Knights & Co., 1 case diamonds.

The drawings for the magnificent jewelry store to be fitted up for Hyman, Berg & Co., in the Columbus Building, now in process of erection, have been submitted to the firm by the builder and have been accepted. H. J. Furber, the builder, declares it will be the finest finished store in the world, bar none.

Marshall Field & Co. will devote 2,000 square feet of space with 200 linear feet of show cases to their retail jewelry department in the new $1,000,000 building in course of erection at Wabash Ave., and Washington St. "The room in which the jewelry department is to be will be devoted entirely to small wares such as bronzes, fine porcelains and articles in keeping with the jewelry lines," remarked Manager Selfridge.

A further examination shows that the damage at the recent fire at Spaulding & Co.'s was caused entirely by water and that the loss will be nominal. The insurance companies have instructed the firm to put things in their original condition at the insurance companies' expense. No stock was injured. The elevator service for the upper floor of the salesrooms was destroyed, and this has caused the firm considerable inconvenience, but repairs will be completed the middle of the week. It is believed the fire was caused by the building being struck by lightning.

The judgment was obtained on a note for borrowed money which the firm were unable to meet.

The firm have only been established a short time and did not enjoy a good credit. They have been financially embarrassed during the past two months, one wholesale firm being obliged a few weeks ago to place an account for less than $100 in the hands of the New York Jeweler's association before it was collected.

On Saturday Richard Woolf, a brother of one of the firm, obtained a judgment for $2,554.78 against them for borrowed money. It is said that on Thursday, when the firm knew that they were in difficulties, and that the executions were imminent, they made a statement to a Maiden Lane house in which they said they were perfectly solvent. Woolf was at one time a clerk in the employ of S. F. Myers & Co.

At the store of R. N. Johnquest & Co., in Ansonia, is to be seen a collection of badges which are unique. There are seventy-five in all, divided about equally between ribbon and metal. The ribbon badges are to be made into a banner, and properly arranged as to colors will make a handsome souvenir of Mr. and Mrs. Johnquest's trip through the west.

A magnificent testimonial made by Tiffany & Co., New York, was presented to Col. A. C. Hendrick, ex-Chief of New Haven's fire department, Sept. 16, by 400 of New Haven's leading citizens in honor of his 25 years' successful service at the head of the city's fire department. The testimonial is in book form, with heavy Russia leather cover mounted in gold, and contains beautifully engraved on illuminated pages and text on heavy vellum the record of Col. Hendrick's official services and the signatures of all the city officials, bank cashiers, etc. On the front cover is an elegant badge of solid gold.

J. P. Becker, Berkeley, Cal., locked up his place September 5th, while he went to lunch. When he returned at 1 o'clock he found his establishment had been entered by robbers. The day-light robbers stole nine gold watches, eight or ten gold rings and a number of ladies' fob chains. The value of the missing goods is about $500. The robbers must have secured an entrance by unlocking the door and locked it again on their departure.

George C. Shreve & Co. have just opened their new store in the Crocker building, at the gore formed by Market and Post Sts., San Francisco. The finest marbles, the costliest materials, the handsomest woods have been collected to make the interior as beautiful as the art of man can make it. Ingenuity has almost exhausted itself in designing things which will at once be attractive to the eye and useful in displaying the goods. Entering through doors of heavy mahogany and beveled plate glass, a vestibule of green Vermont marble, soft in tone, glistening with its high polish and relieved by trimmings of the pink marbles of Tennessee, the dome lighted through the softened colors of specially designed cathedral glass, the visitor finds himself upon the floor of marble mosaic, strewn with heavy rugs from the far lands of Iran. The wainscot of the walls, higher than a tall man can reach, is of soft-toned green Vermont marble, restful to the eye and blending harmoniously with the polished mahogany of showcases and office finishing. The green of the marble merges into still softer green of the upper panels and the ceiling, and on this in relief is a singularly beautiful design in cream color. It is said that almost $100,000 has been spent to fit up this place.

Trade Gossip.

A. Serewicz, representing the Dueber-Hampden Co. in Chicago, reports a wonderful demand in 17-jeweled movements and that the factory is now behind on both cases and movements.

Many handsome combinations in colored gems set in mountings in new designs are among the attractive samples shown by Ludwig Nissen & Co., 18 John St., New York, who have long enjoyed an enviable reputation as manufacturers of high grade goods only.

At this season of the year, when jewelers are purchasing their Fall and holiday stocks, it behooves them to remember that tortoiseshell goods have been for the past year, and will continue to be very popular among the fair sex. H. Trenkman, 241 Centre St., New York is showing a line of these goods that is extremely attractive. Har ornaments and lorgnettes in exclusive designs are produced by this house in great variety and should be seen to be appreciated.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS SPOON

Appeals to 60,000,000 people who will be interested during October in the celebration of the anniversary of his discovery of America.

It will command attention on account of its superb workmanship and true merits.

The portrait of Columbus is a reproduction of the exceptionally fine Mosaic presented by Venice to the city of Genoa.

The ship on the reverse of the handle is the Santa Maria, Columbus' flagship, flying the Admiral's pennant. The design on the bowl represents the great discoverer sighting the shore of the New World—familiar to every one by its use upon our national bank notes.

TILDEN-THURBER CO.,
PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Wiggers & Froelick, 60 Nassau St., New York, manufacturers of jewelry cases and trays, are making many new styles for the Fall season. Jewelry shown in cases that are attractive to the eye is considerably enhanced in appearance, and enterprising jewelers devote much thought to this branch of their business.

E. P. Reichhelm & Co., 80 Nassau St., New York, are having a big demand for Boraxine, the new liquid flux manufactured by the Richard Mfg. Co., Attleboro, Mass. Boraxine is said to work better than either borax or boram junk and is more economical. Reichhelm & Co. will send a small bottle of the flux to manufacturers who desire to test its efficacy.

The rapid growth of the business of the Roy Watch Case Co. has necessitated the opening of a western branch in the Venetian Building, 34 and 36 E. Washington St., Chicago, Ill., which has been placed in charge of R. De F. Bayley, who for several years has represented the firm on the road. The office, which has been fitted in a handsome and attractive manner, is in the same building as those of the E. Howard Watch & Clock Co., Reed & Barton, and the United States Watch Co. The Roy Watch Case Co. now have offices in New York, San Francisco and Chicago, and are continually increasing their productive facilities.

In another column is explained in a simple and comprehensive manner the fitting of glasses with a test case. Opticians have long recognized the importance of having a test case for the proper examination of the eyes, and in the Audemair test case, manufactured by the Spencer Optical Mfg. Co., 15 Maiden Lane, New York, are found all the improved instruments that expert opticians have decided are necessary in such an outfit. The Spencer Optical Mfg. Co. have always been among the first to adopt improvements for the advancement of the optical business, and their Audemair test case ranks among the highest of their many productions.

An illustration of the "Rouen" pattern in flatware, which the Gorham Mfg. Co., 19th St. and Broadway, New York, have just produced is given in their advertisement. The "ouen" is entirely new in all its features and is thoroughly in keeping with the more advanced styles in art now popular abroad. It is of medium weight, tasteful and attractive in its effect, and its merits will warrant a popularity with the general trade throughout the country. It is not an expensive pattern and is made in all the sizes of spoons and forks, and in all the fancy spoons, forks, ladles, tongs and other pieces, and also in cutlery. It has a pearlsh finish—a finish which is used largely in France on spoons and forks. The outline of the pattern is especially graceful and is relieved by appropriate decoration. The bowls and blades of the fancy pieces are an entire departure in outline from to anything heretofore embodied in these articles.

THE POPULARITY OF MINIATURES—AN OLD-TIMER GRUMBLES ABOUT THE CLASS OF ARTISTS WHO PAINT MINIATURES—A REMARKABLE TIARA—BROOCHES TO FASTEN FICHUS—AN ELEGANT ORNAMENT FOR THE BOUDOIR TABLE.

PARIS, France, Sept. 9.—Miniature painters seem to be well employed by jewelers. All important stores exhibit miniature portraits framed with chased gold or stamped silver, with or without precious stones. Yet an old miniaturist whom I met the other day, and who, I am afraid, never believed that quick work may also prove to be good work, told me that a true artist could not easily earn a crust of bread now-a-days. According to his statement, most miniature portraits are painted by young girls who just understand how to draw a head, and who could never be expected to give an expression to a face. Dozens of these girls are gathered in a room on the fifth floor of a house in a cheap neighborhood, and each copies over and over again the portrait of a king, a queen, or a person of fame. They are poorly paid, but they are pleased to do gentle work. I admit, with my old grumbler, that miniature portraits made to be framed with stamped silver and sold in the way of cheap brooches, and camelote chatelaines, must be painted by somewhat inartistic hands; but I have seen in our best Palais Royal and Rue de la Paix stores many lovely miniature paintings made by true artists, and sold at a very high price. They are framed with finely chased gold and decorated with small gatherings of pearls or precious stones. A handsome bracelet consists of fourteen portraits, surrounded with pearls, divided with hexagonal ornaments showing a colored stone with brilliants all round. On the clasp is a larger miniature exhibiting a love-scene.

Brooches or elaborate pins to fasten fichus are made in shapes at once elegant, varied and original. They are formed into different names or mottoes, the letters of which are fantastically entwined.

An artistic necklace consists of a floral course in cloisonné enamel with a piked ornament repeated all round, pointing from it. A diamond oval motif mounted in open work hangs between the projecting ornaments.

A remarkable diamond tiara is formed of a band in a florid Renaissance style, with fleur-de-lis shooting up at regular intervals, and, between them, stars held rather high on a fine wire caught at the back of the band; a diamond held also on wire, stands apparently isolated between the rays of the stars.

A pretty article in oxidized silver for a boudoir table is the following. Two infants having each the body of a dolphin, are in a curling attitude; one holds a candlestick, the other supports an inkstand. A screen dividing them is fixed between the two entwined tails. This screen consists of azure tinted glass, rather thin, with three cupids seen like in a vision, gracefully flying about among loose clouds.

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

The standards for soap of narrow raised work bars are very pretty.

The new candlesticks for tapers are as pretty as baby toys and look like them.

Transparent colored stones are sleeve buttons with no more gold showing than necessary.

New bottles for salts have silver covers with square box-like tops for their easy manipulation.

A large flaring fruit dish has a smooth surface and the ornamentation is formed by the perforations.

Some fruit bowls are basin-shaped with raised flutes half way up, and a plain lustrous border above.

Oblong salvers narrow rather than long curve gracefully on the sides and have a light festooned edge.

Artistic leaf spoons grow in numbers every day. A specimen is a lily leaf for the bowl and two twisted tendrils with buds for the handle.

There are decided novelties in silver fruit dishes. One is a low, round bowl with raised and perforated work. The ornamentation is very rich. The same designs have low standards, and round knob-like feet.

A fruit dish intended for an apple or two, a few peaches and a bunch of grapes and suitable for only a very small dinner is plate-like and mounted on a central standard. The edge of the receptacle is a rich band of raised work with perforations, and the dish has a distinct stamp of elegance.

Single sleeve-buttons are larger than ever. They are worn chiefly by men, and women who affect masculine dress. They prevail in dead gold. The more elaborate have a section in repoussé work. A new style has a vertical border of raised work, and is altogether commendable.

Smaller buttons of twisted cords and folded tapes are square, and usually in different metals or tints, which is not a new but a persistent style. The still smaller buttons with bars show the same mingling of lusterless gold and repoussé work. In one style the bar has flaring raised ends and a plain band in the middle, which seems to be suggested by a paper ready for the mail. ELSIE BEE.

Tammany has bought sixty thousand campaign buttons. The design is to introduce the old game on election-day—"Button, button! who's got the button?"

Jewelers, etc., in Chicago.

ACCORDING to a table of labor statistics compiled by Joseph Gruenhut, a prominent Chicago labor leader, as published in the Official Labor Gazette for 1892, there are in Chicago 350 retail jewelers, employing 825 males, and 29 opticians, employing 95 males and 10 females. The wholesalers and manufacturers of jewelry and cognate lines are as follows:

Jewelry, watches, etc.....	96 firms, employing	1,120
Engravers.....	120 " "	410
Platers.....	23 " "	410
Watch case makers.....	14 " "	100
Gold and silver leaf beaters...	5 " "	80
Total	258 firms employing	2,120
Add retail.....	379 " "	930

Grand total.....637 firms employing 3,050
 This is probably a low estimate for the industry at present, but serves to show the magnitude of the jewelry interests in a city known principally as a distributing point. The item regarding platers evidently includes nickel platers, and that of engravers embraces card and stationery workers.

The Exact Time.

POMPEY is a bright negro boy, employed to do light work and run errands in a boarding-house. He has learned a good many things in the course of his eight years of life, but the art of reading a clock-face is not as yet completely under his control.

The expedients to which he resorts to conceal his ignorance on this and other points are many and amusing.

"What time is it, Pomp?" asked a young man into whose room the boy had brought a hodful of coal, and who had not yet got out of bed.

Pompey studied the clock-face anxiously for some seconds, and then said, in an ingratiating tone:

"It's one o' dem times dat I can' jes precisely mak' out what time it am, Mist' Wilkins, sah. But one ob de hands is pintin' todes you, sah, an' de udder is pintin' todes me, sah, an' I reckon you know 'zackly what time dat am."—Youths' Companion.

Illicit Diamond Trade.

IN order to prevent illicit traffic, the quantities of diamonds produced by the mines are reported to the detection department both by the producers and the exporters. All diamonds, except those which pass through illicit channels, are sent to England by registered post, the weekly shipments averaging from 40,000 to 50,000 karats. The greatest outlet for stolen diamonds is through the Transvaal to Natal, where they are shipped by respectable merchants, who turn a deaf ear to any information from the diamond fields to the effect that they are aiding the sale of stolen property.

AMONG the comparatively new houses that have been notably successful must be mentioned Gunzburger Bros., 35 Maiden Lane, New York.

DAVID GUNZBURGER.

David Gunzburger, a member of this firm, was born in Freiberg, Baden, Germany, in 1865. He received his education in that town, and when 15 years of age, came to America and settled in Buffalo, N. Y. The following year he connected himself with a jewelry house in that city, for whom he made frequent trips about the country. He subsequently started in business for himself, making a specialty of gold rings. In 1886 he went to New York and became a member of Henry E. Oppenheimer & Co. That firm was reorganized in 1889, and he and his brother, Norbert Gunzburger, established the present house of Gunzburger Bros.

Mr. Gunzburger has an extensive acquaintance among the retail trade of the country, having started on the road when only 17 years of age. He makes frequent trips to Europe, and is a member of the Freundschaft Club, of New York.

Chronograph With Long Acting Minute Hand.

THE watch manufacturer, Albin Ernest, of Bessire-Marie in Pexy, Switzerland, has devised a new style of chronograph, which counts up to 60 minutes. It is distinguished especially for its peculiar arrangement of the winding parts, motion work and counting hand. Accompanying Fig. 1 represents the dial with its several hands. The outer graduated circle is divided into 60 parts or seconds, and besides this it also has the 300 one-fifth seconds for the chronograph hand. Of the two smaller dials, that to the left is the division into minutes, while the one to the right is the customary watch dial for the hours and minutes. Fig. 2 shows the movement with dial removed, showing the mechanism for the chronograph. The unlocking, stopping and returning to zero of the two chronograph hands is effected in the customary manner, each by a pressure upon the pressure button, 1, passing through the winding button.

25, and the watch is wound; when turning the button to the left, however, the wheel 25 remains stationary and the parts 19 and 29 act as maintaining power.

When pressing upon the small button 34, the longer arm of the pivoted detent 28 turns; the two wheels 29 and 25 are placed out of depth, and in place of it the wheel 27 gears into the small intermediate wheel 26, which stands in direct depth with the cannon pinion 23. When, now, the stem-winding button is turned, the hands can be set. The motion work consisting of the minute wheel 20 with pinion 21 and lower wheel 22 is of the ordinary style and arrangement. The fourth wheel is placed in the center of the movement, and carries upon its prolonged upper pivot a pipe resembling a cannon pinion, with a fine tooth rim standing vertically in the style of a contrate

The movement is a three-quarter plate, and has a single barrel, which on two sides depths in each a center-wheel pinion. These two pinions, therefore, are in constant motion, that to the right bearing the center-staff with the cannon pinion for the usual indication of time, while the pinion to the left effects the forward motion of the minute counter. The winding is arranged in the following manner: Upon the square of the rocking bar is the pinion 30, Fig. 2, which stands in constant depth with the intermediate wheel 31. This wheel depths into the transposition wheel 29, and this into the large winding wheel 25, which serves at the same time as ratchet wheel, which is located upon a collet, where it is retained by the nut 24, screwed upon a pin passing through the collet.

The two small intermediate wheels, 29 and 31, as well as the hands-setting wheel 27 sit upon collets on the under side of the pivoted detent 28. The rotary point of this pivoted detent, which is by the spring 19 kept in its position of locking, is formed by a shoulder screw passing through the axis of the wheel 31. By turning the winding button to the right, the rotation of the wheels 31 and 29 is transported to the winding wheel wheel. Upon this pipe sits a brake disk 11, which is furnished with a similar tothing below, while above it carries the heart piece 10. The last named two parts are retained in their place by the delicate spring 13, which gears into a groove of the heart pipe, and pressed upon the lower tothing of the pipe.

The minute counting mechanism is contrived in a similar manner. Upon the staff, passing through the center wheel pinion to the left, sits also a pipe with a flat shoulder, finely toothed above, upon which is located the brake disk 9 connected with a heart piece 8. The two parts 8 and 9 revolve upon the above mentioned pipe when they are raised up so that the fine tooting upon the lower side of the brake disk 9 is placed out of depthing with the tooting of the pipe turned upward; ordinarily, however, the brake disk 9 with the heart piece 8 is pressed downward by the weak spring 7 whereby the parts 8 and 9 together with the minute-counting hand upon their pipe are kept in rotation so long as the movement keeps going.

The unlocking and brake mechanism is effected by the large double lever 2, upon the upper arm of which actuates the end of the pressure button 1. At the lower arm of the double lever 2 is located like a joint the pawl 6 controlled by the pressure of the spring 3; the hook of the pawl gears into the ratchet teeth of the vertical tooth wheel 17, and pushes the latter forward one tooth at each pressure exerted upon the button 1. The vertical tooth wheel is retained in each position by a spring 15, while the double lever 2 is by the strong push spring 4 brought back into its locking position as soon as the pressure upon the button 1 ceases. The vertical wheel of the wheel 17 operates upon corresponding projections on the two levers 12 and 14, the first of which serves for unlocking and stopping the two chronograph hands, while the latter effects their return to zero.

In Fig. 2 the two hands are stopped. This is recognized by the circumstance that the two broad projections of the lever 12 seize under the brake disks 9 and 11, while a vertical tooth of the wheel 17 has lifted the lever 12. The two projections of the latter are beveled, so that they can easily slide under the brake disks. The lever 14 also is in a raised position in Fig. 2, but falls at the next pressure upon the button 1 by the pressure of the spring 5 with its fork-like parted ends upon the two heart pieces 8 and 10, and thereby places the two chronograph hands upon zero. The brake lever 12, however, still continues in a raised position.

The projection of the zero lever 14, lying upon the vertical teeth, and which by the last imagined pressure upon button 1 snapped between two spaces is so broad that it is already raised again by the next succeeding pressure whereby the two heart pieces 8 and 10 are liberated. Under the pressure of the spring 16, the brake lever 12 snaps now at the same time into a space between two vertical teeth and liberates the two brake disks 9 and 11. The latter are by their springs 7 and 13 at once placed into depthing with the tooting below them, and the two chronograph hands move instantaneously and keep in motion until they are stopped by another pressure upon button 1, and while all the parts again return into the position shown in Fig. 2.

"Why?"

"It is so illegible it gives a man sore eyes to read it."

"Well, isn't that good for the eye-wash?"

Workshop Notes.

To Flatten an Ordinary Balance Spring.

—Remove the collet and stud, and clamp the spring by a central screw between two plates, which are then placed on a bluing tray and gently heated. A small piece of whitened steel is laid on the plate, in order to see that the heat does not exceed what is needed to give a blue temper. Allow the plates to cool and separate them. Ordinary springs, being made of rolled steel and subsequently coiled, always open out on heating; it is therefore necessary, before resorting to the above method, to coil up the spring, as otherwise the outer turn will be found to have opened beyond the stud.

The Use of Benzine.—We frequently see benzine recommended for cleaning watches and, frankly speaking, do not hesitate to recommend it. But it should be remembered that only the purest should be used, as the ordinary contains a number of hydro-carbons that do not evaporate easily, but remain on the metal, soak into it and combine with the oil subsequently applied, making it thick and gummy. Pure benzine should evaporate completely. If the slightest smell can be detected on a piece of brass dipped into it, after the exposure of some minutes to the air of the room, it is entirely unfit to be used for a timepiece. It is always well to warm the articles cleaned in benzine to insure its complete evaporation, and afterward to thoroughly clean out the holes with soft pegwood.

To Purify Mercury.—Mercury often becomes contaminated with alloys and other impurities, which may be removed by simple filtration. This may be done in simple glass funnels, the stems of which are drawn out to a fine capillary tube. But this often becomes clogged after a short time, and then ceases to act; besides, it acts very slowly. A chemist recommends a method which has long been practiced in Bunsen's laboratory. A filter is made of writing paper and numerous fine holes are punched into it. Instead of making these round with a needle, it is better to use the point of a pen knife, which causes the little holes to be oblongly triangular. The holes should be pricked both vertically in the direction of the radius of the filter and horizontally at right angles with the former; part of the holes should be pricked from the outside inward, and the others in the opposite direction. A still better way to purify mercury by filtration, according to the same author, is the following: Select a glass tube of about the thickness of a lead-pencil, and about a yard long. Expand one end to the shape of a funnel, and the other to a tulip-shaped bulb, or expand this end to a wave-like form such as is customary when rubber tubing is to be stretched and tied over the end of a tube. A piece of linen or chamois is firmly tied over the latter end, and the tube is then suspended. On pouring the mercury into the funnel, it will be pressed through the pores of the filtering medium with a pressure considerably exceeding that of the atmosphere.

SUGGESTIONS FOR WINDOW DECORATION.

Members of the trade who think they have an attractive window are invited to send us a photograph, or a pen and ink or pencil sketch of the same, which will be published if we consider the window contains any originality or lesson.

IDEA XXXVIII.

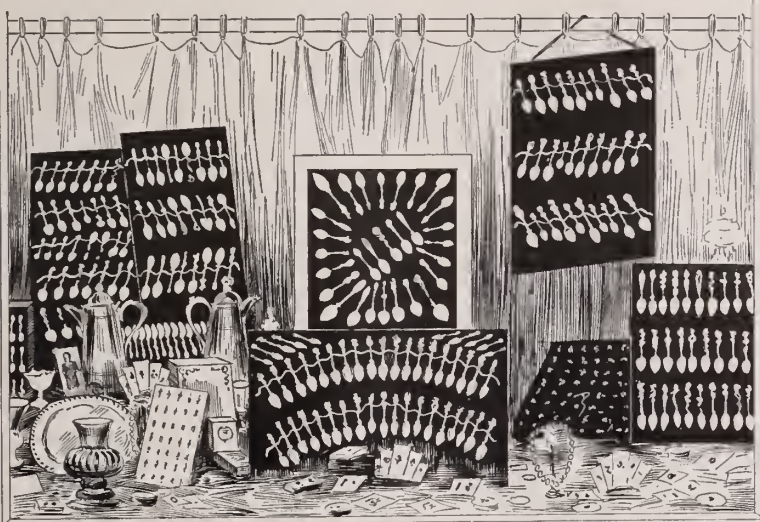

THE accompanying illustration, while not a perfect reproduction of the photograph of the store window of Penrose Myers, Gettysburg, Pa., nevertheless shows the salient feature of the window decoration, namely the display of souvenir spoons, which Mr. Myers claims is as large and as fine as will be found anywhere in the country.

Myers, in connection with his souvenir spoons, has published a neat little pamphlet of eight pages giving tables and statistics regarding the civil war. He will mail the book to any jeweler who sends him stamps for same.

NOTES

of plush and show the spoons up well. A prominent feature of the display is the Gettysburg souvenir spoons which Mr. Myers controls. The arrangement of this window requires no detail description. Mr.

China silk is caught here and there by dainty bit of jewelry, card cases and fans, all in the prevailing tone. The black enamel and rich gold that are the greater part of the exhibit make an artistic and elegant effect.

Use of the Test Case.

ON receiving the test case, with the accompanying test cards, hang those of the latter intended for long distance in a good light, about twenty feet from the operating table on which the case should rest.

It is essential to have an easy and comfortable chair for the patient and one a little higher for the operator. Never try to treat a patient who is standing, as all arrangements must be conducive to ease and comfort. Never keep a patient seated more than fifteen minutes.

After seating the patient at the case enter in your register his or her full name and address. Good opticians keep a full record of all examinations and prescriptions, whether simple or compound, as the glasses are naturally fragile and a duplicate is sure to be subsequently wanted. Now direct the patient's vision to the distant chart and record the percentage of vision without any aid of glasses. If normal for distance it will be within $\frac{20}{20}$ or $\frac{20}{20}$; if not normal $\frac{20}{40}$, $\frac{20}{70}$ or $\frac{20}{200}$. Place blank disk over left eye and proceed to correct the right for distance. When you get $\frac{20}{20}$, or the best, you can insert the stenopaic slit over the correcting lens, trying both vertical, horizontal and intermediate positions. If the patient can see any better through the slit in any angle or position, note the axis of the slit and place a minus cylinder if the axis is horizontal or near it, or a plus cylinder if the axis nearly vertical. During this test the patient should look at a chart with lines radiating from the center.

A Marvelous Stock of Clocks.

THE great advances that have been made in American clockmaking is evidenced by the Fall samples shown by William H. Atwater, selling agent for the Boston Clock Co. and the E. N. Welch Mfg. Co., 13 Maiden Lane, New York, some of which are here illustrated, with suitable side ornaments. The Louis XVI. clock shown in the picture is of heavily gold-plated bronze with a porcelain panel in front, having a hand-painted representation of the famous Cupid decoration which has enjoyed such marked success on the high-class imported wares. The metal work on this timepiece is exceedingly artistic, being superior to many of the imported clocks. The candelabrum illustrated is one of a set modeled after the same design, having a decorated porcelain in the center of the stem. The onyx clock shown in the rear of the cut has gold-plated bronze ornaments and is a very imposing piece, as are also the bronze and onyx candle-sticks which accompany it. The small traveling clock is one of a full line of these fashionable timepieces that Mr. Atwater has on exhibition. All these clocks have dials of artistically decorated porcelain and the movements are eight day, jeweled and fitted with a fine watch escapement. The striking movements are arranged for the removal of the springs without taking the movements apart, and, by a simple device, the winding is effected with the key placed on a single arbor for both the time and the springs.

Majolica of the Mediaeval Ages.

THIS remarkably beautiful class of ceramic production is generally supposed to have derived its name from the Mediterranean island of Majorca, where the Hispano Moors had practiced the art of applying a peculiar lustrous enamel to pottery. It may be divided into the productions of four periods:

have their outlines traced in blue or black on a white ground, with faintly tinted draperies. The drawing, on the whole, though tolerably correct, is harsh and hard, the figures having a flat and lifeless appearance.

2. The second period comprehends the ten years included within 1530 and 1540. At this era, instead of arabesque and foliage patterns, with busts and armorial bearings, the majolica artists began to introduce groups of figures into their compositions.

3. The third period, extending from 1540 to 1560, saw the art in its greatest phase of perfection. The works of this epoch display not only artistic ability, but also coloring and design of exquisite beauty.

4. The fourth period extends to about the year 1620, and may be considered to show signs of a gradual decline of the true art, culminating in the year named, when majolica may be said to cease to exist. At the same time, a species of imitation was continued to be made at Venice and Naples, as well as other places, until about the middle of the eighteenth century.

The decline of the true majolica may be attributed in a great measure to the introduction of oriental porcelain into Italy. In addition to dishes, plates, and bowls of various sizes, the manufacturers produced statuettes, bas-reliefs, vases, candlesticks, inkstands, water-coolers, and even cisterns made of this beautiful ware. Artists of the widest celebrity were engaged to furnish designs for its decoration, and these designs were executed by men of great ability.

CLOCKS AND CLOCK ORNAMENTS AT WM. H. ATWATER'S.

1. From about A.D. 1450 to 1530. The works corresponding to this period are commonly distinguished as "Mezza Majolica." The earlier examples display ornamental devices of a Mooresque character, associated with busts of various mythological figures, and in some cases there are brief inscriptions explanatory of the ornamentation. The figures represented on the Mezza Majolica

The Rambler's Notes.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

SEVERAL transatlantic steamships which, owing to the prevalence of cholera in Europe, have been held in quarantine by the health officers were released last week and their cargoes of English, French and German pottery have been delivered to the importers after fumigation, and are now on exhibition in the various showrooms.

There have been many new ornaments for the mantel or curio table imported this season, but few that are as attractive as the miniature cabinets, pianos, chiffoniers, chairs, etc., of Dresden ware, with forget-me-nots in raised work, which are shown by Hinrichs & Co., 31 Park Place, New York. These little novelties are formed in a very complete manner, and several of them are made so that the top can be raised, revealing receptacles for bonbons or the many knick-knacks which ladies delight in.

An odd match case for the smoking table that is enjoying a big demand represents an elephant attired in man's clothes, standing on his hind legs with the fore feet in the trousers pockets, while the head is poised sidewise in an interrogating manner. Upon one of the buttons of the coat being pressed, the head flies back and discloses a receptacle for matches. The ornament is of bronze with a silver finish, and is produced by the New Jersey Lamp & Bronze Works, 44 Murray St., New York.

Several new and handsome patterns in Royal Milano ware are seen in the showrooms of the Mount Washington Glass Co., 46 Murray St., New York. This ware is purely American, and the shapes and decorations show an individuality of design that compares very favorably with the best imported wares. Royal Milano possesses the advantage of being much cheaper than foreign products, and is rapidly growing in public favor.

The jeweler who cannot satisfy his requirements in the way of clock ornaments and banquet lamps from the showrooms of the Bradley & Hubbard Mfg. Co., 21 Barclay St., New York, must indeed be hard to please. This company have an entire floor extending from Barclay St. to Park Place stocked with these and other lines especially adapted to the jewelry trade.

F. W. Büning & Co. have on exhibition in their show rooms, 58 Murray St., New York full lines of French china goods that were imported with the special view of supplying the requirements of retail jewelers. Among them are fancy comb and brush trays, which are very fashionable just now, pen trays, candelabra and lace figures of the latest shapes and decorations. THE RAMBLER.

THAT PHONOGRAPH CLOCK.

A phonographic talking clock has been invented and promises to be a great boon to suffering humanity. When the brute of the family is likely to be out late his better-half can make her little speech to the clock and go to sleep. The clock will tick silently along until the man comes home and then rip out at him.—New York Herald.

The present style of alarm clock will soon go into disuse if there is any truth in the story that a Swiss clockmaker has invented an alarm clock with a phonographic attachment. In place of the unmeaning clatter of the present clock, a man can have himself waked up by the repetition of one of his favorite poems, or by strains of dulcet music. In fact, the possibilities of the thing are unbounded.—New York Tribune.

THE LARCHMONT CUP FOR 1892.

ALLOWING that all productions of man are susceptible to criticism, that no true artist is fully satisfied with his handiwork, that no fruition can realize the ideal, yet from time to time our attention is drawn to some human work which combines all the essentials that art dictates and fulfils all the laws which make Nature's works beautiful and perfect. A superficial glance at the illustration here given will satisfy the reader that the silver original potently proves this truism; a critical examination of the silver work itself will evolve proof of the same truth.

The illustration depicts the Larchmont Cup of 1892, made by the Whiting Mfg. Co., New York, for the Larchmont Yacht Club, to be awarded as a prize to the winner in the winding-up event, which occurred on Sept. 13, and which was won by the 82.24 feet schooner Iroquois, owned by Ralph N. Ellis.

The trophy is a two-handle loving cup, 12½ inches in height without the ebony pedestal, 19 inches in height including to the manner in which it could be invested with a new idea. It was especially desired that the design of the handles be a complete departure from anything that had been embodied in a loving cup.

The Larchmont Cup of 1892 is not only a masterpiece in handicraft, but a marvel in originality and consistency of design. The design in ensemble gives a vivid impression of the motion of water. The outline of the cup itself is a water movement. From the three feet composed of shells and seaweed up to rim the details are thoroughly marine in treatment. The outline swells prominently toward the base to allow of profuse ornamentation; the wild twining, floating seaweed which forms the ground of the decoration is full of life and excites the same curiosity in the pedestal, and 14 inches in width at the broadest part. When the order was placed for the trophy, the question arose as the mind as when we see it in nature. The decoration, though profuse, does not destroy the exquisite outlines. This seaweed effect is a fine example of chasing. The main feature of the decoration is the sea nymph riding the mythical dolphin, a combination thoroughly significant of the yacht race. The monster plows swiftly through the water far in the van of competitors, and the nymph exulting deliriously, jeers and shouts at those in her wake, wildly waving her signal, which represents that of the Larchmont Yacht Club. The figure is perfectly modeled, each detail of limb and lineament being faithful to nature, while the drapery clings to her, wet from the sea water, and the hair, long and wild, waves in the sea breezes. The dolphin, whose tail and eyes are decorated so that the monster will maintain the poetry of the other details of the decoration, is partly applied, the remainder being chased. Toward the right of the front is the seal of the club, in chased and applied work, while above the figure is the name of the trophy in beautiful etched letters, The Larchmont Cup of 1892.

The beauty and originality of the handles are striking. The saw-pierced work, a combination of water movements, is artistic and rich in effect. The fibers of the handle are bound with seaweed, which spreading out at the juncture merges harmoniously into the body of the cup. The temptation was to oxidize the entire decoration, but then the realistic water effect produced by the bright silver would have been lost. As it is, the nymph and the monster are light oxidized, producing a shadow on the water, such as a passing yacht would cast.

At a special meeting of the Larchmont Yacht Club, where it was exhibited for the first time, many connoisseurs present pronounced it to be the finest loving cup that they had ever seen.

A Daring Burglary Nipped in the Bud.

A daring attempt was made to rob the store of Nathan Solomon, 75 Allen St., New York, Thursday night. It was about 10 o'clock when a barber who has a shop adjoining the jewelry store heard a noise and saw a light flickering in the hallway. He called the police, and when two detectives entered they found two men crouching in a corner.

The men were arrested, and a subsequent investigation showed that eight holes had been bored in the panel of the wall of the jewelry store. The men gave the names of Henry Vantelt and William Brown, and were both recognized as ex-convicts. They were arraigned in the Essex Market Police Court Friday and held to await the action of the grand jury.

Financial Troubles Once More Overwhelm a New York Jeweler.

The store of Julia Raduziner, 332 Grand St., was on Thursday closed by the sheriff under execution in favor of Arnold Kohn for $600 and Alois Kohn & Co. for $2,020.90. Previous to that she had given chattel mortgages to the German Exchange Bank for $208 on silverware; the United States Bank for $200 on machinery, and the State Bank, $895 and F. Kaffeman, $700 on jewelry.

Julia Raduziner is the wife of Adolph Raduziner, who has been in trouble with his creditors several times, and who conducted the business. The latter was originally a peddler and started in business about seven years ago as a jobber and retailer. His principal trade was among peddlers. In December, 1887, he assigned, but settled at 50 cents on the dollar and continued in business. In July, 1891, his store was attached on several executions, and since that time he has conducted the business in his wife's name.

On Friday the coroner replevied several lots of goods from the sheriff on claims of Charles M. Levy for $1,095, Jacob Marks $500 and S. F. Myers & Co., $420.

Probably the most brilliant displays made at the Connecticut State Fair, which closed Sept. 24th, were those made by the Edward Miller Co., and Bradley & Hubbard Mfg. Co. The finest features of the Miller Co.'s exhibit were the elegant banquet lamps with brass and onyx tables and the articles in etched glass, together with a bewildering array of Rochester lamps. Bradley & Hubbard Mfg. Co.'s display included, besides a great array of costly lamps, French clocks in silver and bronze, jewel cases, and pitchers, with gold finish.

Demise of a Well-Known and Respected Traveler.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 23.—Edward J. Hart, for the past eight years a traveler for F. A. Hardy & Co., died suddenly at Louisville, Sept. 20th, of acute inflammation of the kidneys. "Mr. Hart was a good traveler," said Mr. Hardy, "and was universally liked. He secured the respect of his customers, even more so than the ordinary traveler, and was well thought of by our firm. I regard his loss as that of a friend rather than of an employe."

Several years ago Mr. Hart was a spectacle manufacturer at Detroit, and was the business man of the Detroit Optical Co. In 1834 he moved the whole plant to Germany, but the venture was not successful, and in 1886 he returned to the United States and accepted a position with F. A. Hardy & Co., with whom he had since remained. Mr. Hart had made arrangements to devote his time after Jan. 1 to his retail interests, being a partner in the recently organized firm of Weaver & Hart, lately mentioned in THE CIRCULAR. Mr. Hart was 42 years of age and unmarried.

Suit to Recover for Sample Jewelry Delivered.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 22.—In the court of common pleas, yesterday morning, before Justice Wilbur, the case of Read & Lincoln vs. Costello Seamless Bead Co. came up. It is an action to recover $97.04 for sample jewelry delivered in 1891 to Robert C. Corbett, co-partner with John Costello, as the Costello Seamless Bead Co. The plaintiffs claim that Mr. Costello agreed that the delivery to Mr. Corbett was all right for the firm.

Mr. Costello denies that Mr. Corbett was a co-partner, and that the firm as sued ever existed, or that any statements of the claim as sued for were sent him until long after the transaction; Mr. Costello avers that he

GROVER CLEVELAND.

These Spoons have already a wider reputation than any similar article ever placed before the public, and have received the highest praise from all sources.

The demand for them will not be affected by the election, for in any event, one will represent the PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES and the other a POPULAR EX-PRESIDENT.

Changes in the Chicago Wholesale Jewelry Trade

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 24.—The number of changes in location under consideration and the several leases already signed indicate a general shaking up of the wholesale jewelers of this city in the way of removals on May 1, earlier. The agents of two of the leading or sky-scrapers here are actively canvassing the jewelry trade. Members of the trade look favorably upon the idea of concentrating forces for mutual benefit.

Two notable changes in location have become an assured fact. C. H. Knights & Co., Wednesday, signed a lease for the third floor, Washington St front, of the Columbus Building, now in course of construction at the southeast corner of State and Washington Sts. The lease is to run ten years from May 1, 1893, and the price paid is $10,000 a year. The space to be occupied is 4,000 square feet, being a large increase over the 2,800 square feet of their present quarters. The salesrooms will have a frontage of 56 feet on State St. by 90 feet on Washington St., the rear part being 37½ feet in width. "We will put in entirely new fixtures," said Mr. Knights, "and will introduce many novelties in arrangement and design."

Stein & Ellbogen, who have been located for the past fifteen years at the northeast corner of State and Madison Sts., have signed a lease for salesrooms 50x50 feet, on the fourth floor of the Columbus Building, and will move May 1.

Untimely Death of a Promising Young Man.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 20.—Robert S. Hubbel died, much regretted, Sept. 9 at Highland, Ill., after a lingering illness of many months. He was buried in that city on Sunday, and a large number of St. Louis jewelers attended the funeral. The pall-bearers were: Morris Eisenstadt, Samuel Eisenstadt, Henry Kotthoff, John Poe, Harvey Hollister, and E. J. Helmericks.

In the beginning of the year he became connected with the M. Eisenstadt Jewelry Co., and was vice-president of the company at the time of his death. Mr. Hubbel was born in Hillsboro, Ill., in 1859, and began work at the watchmaking trade in 1875. In 1879 he went into business for himself at Fredonia, Kan. A year later he took a position with J. Floersheim & Co., at Chicago. Two years later he went to Litchfield, Ill., and subsequently connected himself with the Non-Magnetic Watch Co., as missionary. In 1890 he took the agency for the Dueber Watch Case M'fg. Co., in St. Louis, which he held until January, 1892, when he connected himself with the M. Eisenstadt Jewelry Co.

H. J. Webb is erecting a building in Chehalis, Wash., and will conduct a jewelry store within a couple of weeks.

Mrs. R. H. Galbreath has Another Adventure with a Runaway Horse.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 21.—While Mrs. R. H. Galbreath was out driving Friday morning her horse took fright and ran away. The animal reared and plunged and kicked over the shaft, which complication of its limbs added to its fright. In this hobbled condition it dashed down the descent, dragging the carriage from one side of the avenue to the other and threatening it with destruction.

The coachman had lost control of the animal and could do nothing. At a critical moment two young men who were walking along the avenue ran from the sidewalk into the street, one of them seizing the horse by the head and bringing him to a standstill. The other helped Mrs. Galbreath to alight. She concluded to walk home, directing the coachman to bring the horse and carriage at his leisure.

Wm. Wise & Son Open Their New Jewelry Emporium.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 22.—William Wise & Son opened to day in their new store at the corner of Fulton St. and Flatbush Ave., where they have about twice as much room to display their goods as in the old building. The exterior of the new store is highly attractive and the big plate glass windows are set in handsome style. The interior of the building is very pleasing to the eye, a combination of light blue and silver being observed throughout, giving the light a tone of color that brings out the finest points in the diamonds and silver wares.

What the firm claim is the finest diamond display ever seen in Brooklyn is located in the center of the store, in horseshoe cases. Nothing but diamonds and diamond goods will be kept in this division. Along one side of the store the cases containing the solid silverware are arranged. The firm have abandoned plated ware entirely. On the opposite side of the store the watch show-cases are placed, while in the rear the collection of clocks is presented. The establishment contains a stationery counter.

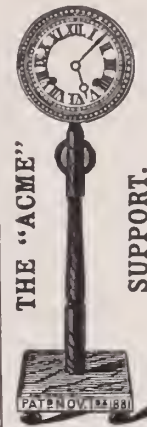

The Sabbath in Worcester Disturbed by a Burglary.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 21.—The jewelry store of I. Fay, 218 Front St., was entered Sunday forenoon by boys, who raised a window of a tinshop in the rear and climbed over a board partition, getting into the back room of the store. From there they reached the front part of the store by breaking a light of glass in the back room door and turning the key. They then tried hard to open the money drawer, breaking off a piece of it, but failed to get it open.

They must have been frightened away, as they did not take anything in the front part of the store, and left, securing only a revolver, which was on a shelf in a back room. No arrests have yet been made.

Capture of a Sneak Thief in the Monument City.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 23.—The penny-weight game has been worked in this city again, the goods, however, being of small value and the perpetrator having been arrested. In each case Charles Clark walked into the jewelry stores of Adolph Braun, 102 E. Pratt St., and B. Weinkrantz & Son, 1147 E. Pratt St., and asked to look at some rings. When he was shown a tray, he deftly placed a ring in his pocket, and after remarking that he would call again slipped out before the theft could be discovered.

The matter was brought before the police and Detective Pouteir was detailed to work up the case. On Wednesday he arrested Clark, who was arraigned before Magistrate Hobbs and committed to jail pending trial by jury before the criminal court. The rings were recovered.

A Forger and Swindler Operating in Ohio and Indiana Towns.

LIMA, O., Sept. 23.—A smooth forger is traveling from town to town in Ohio and Indiana, defrauding business men by the use of certificates of deposit. His mode of operation is to go into a town, visit a bank, leave $5 or $10 and get a certificate of deposit. The fellow raises the amount, and after banking hours visits some store, makes a purchase, and has the certificate cashed and pockets the balance.

The fellow appeared in Lima a few days ago, stepped into Daller & Hall's jewelry store and made a purchase, tendering a certificate of deposit on the First National Bank. The amount was $50, the firm paying the stranger the difference in cash. It now transpires that the certificate had been raised from $5 to $50. The same fellow has worked many towns. When last heard from he was in Sidney.

Tampered with the Pay Roll, and Made False Entries.

SHELTON, Conn., Sept. 21.—John J. Hadlow, bookkeeper for the Derby Silver Co., is under arrest for misappropriating the funds of the company. He was arrested last night and as yet has found no bondsman. There are two charges, one of tampering with the pay rolls and the other with making false entries on the books to cover up his crime.

The arrest of Hadlow was a great surprise in Shelton, where he has been popular and well-known. No suspicion had heretofore been entertained against him. He has been an active and efficient employe of the company, with whom he has been six or seven years.

Clockmakers Organize A Republican Campaign Club.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 21.—The employes of the Ansonia Clock Co.'s factory held a meeting Monday evening at the corner of Fifth Ave. and 8th St., for the purpose of organizing a Republican campaign club. The Ansonia clock factory, at the corner of Seventh Ave. and 12th St., gives steady employment to about 1,100 hands, all of whom are enjoying good wages. From the indications of the meeting it would seem that the major portion of the employes of this factory will vote for the party of protection.

H. Schmieding has closed out business at Tombstone, Ariz., and has opened at Bisbee, Ariz., with a new line of goods. Mr. Schmieding was the first jeweler in Tombstone.

The stock of J. D. Quick & Co., Oberlin, O., which was advertised to be sold by virtue of a chattel mortgage given to C. T. Beckwith, has not been sold. Other creditors interfered and had a receiver appointed. Mr. Beckwith is the receiver, and will dispose of it under orders from the court.

Wm. Benerd left a gold watch at Wm. Coel's jewelry store, St. Louis, Mo., the other day, and when he called for it learned that it had been given to a man who represented that he had been sent for it by Mr. Benerd. The fellow was well dressed in a suit of blue, and was about 28 years old.

Demise of William D. Fisher.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., Sept. 22.—William D. Fisher, well-known to the jewelry trade, as the head of W. D. Fisher & Co., died last evening at Washington, D. C., after an illness of about four days.

Mr. Fisher was born in Franklin, Mass., in until 1870, when he started in business at Falls Village. In 1882 his son, William N. Fisher, and M. B. Mackreth, were admitted to copartnership and the firm became W. D. Fisher & Co. Recently both the deceased and Mr. Mackreth announced their retirement, and the business is now carried on under the name of W. N. Fisher & Co.

About two years ago Mr. Fisher began to notice his failing health. Among the physicians consulted was one at Washington, D. C. who advised him to live there for treatment. He went to Washington in June, and last week contracted a fever which resulted in his death. The deceased was noted for his modest, home-loving disposition and kindness to his employes.

Fred Kaufman Quickly Satisfies a Judgment Levied Against Him.

The Sheriff was last week placed in possession of the office of Fred Kaufman, 41 Maiden Lane, New York on a judgment for $7,717 in favor of J. J. Cohn, 31 Maiden Lane. Mr. Kaufman was traveling on the road at the time and at once came home. On Friday the judgment was satisfied and the sheriff was withdrawn.

Mr. Kaufman was formerly in the employ of Mr. Cohn and about eighteen months ago started in business for himself. Mr. Cohn advanced him $5,000 in cash and gave him goods to the value of $2,500, on the whole of which he took a confession of judgment, which was subject to be entered at the will of the holder. Last week Mr. Cohn believed his claim was in jeopardy and foreclosed an Mr. Kaufman's stock.

Mr. Kaufman has issued a statement to his customers, in which after stating the above facts he thanks several houses in the trade that volunteered their aid and sympathy, and says he is still in business and hopes to continue without interruption for many years to come.

Progress in the Proposed Consolidation of Brass Companies.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 26.—The preliminary steps toward forming a consolidation of the brass and copper companies of Waterbury are going steadily on. The committee appointed to appraise the different plants are making considerable headway and are given every facility. Besides the large Waterbury companies, the Coe Brass Co., of Torrington will be a member of the proposed consolidation.

The representatives of the different concerns will be called together when the committee is ready to report, and the project may then be said to be fairly under way. It is understood that some who strongly opposed the project at first are now looking on it more kindly.

Movement and Case Manufacturers Issuing their Licenses to Jobbers.

According to the arrangement decided upon at the last annual meeting of the National Association of Jobbers in American Watches and the Co-operating Manufacturers Association, the movement and watchcase companies are now issuing individual licenses to the jobbers for the sale of their products. The licenses are in the nature of a contract, in which the jobber agrees to maintain the prices and not indulge in ruinous cutting of rates. All the jobbers who were members of the association will receive licenses except one or two firms on the Pacific slope.

The Elgin National Watch Co. issued their licenses Saturday, and Jos. Fahys & Co. delivered theirs on Monday. The remaining manufacturers will follow suit in a few days.

A Young Salesman Takes His Own Life.

Philip Hackindorn, a salesman for L. H. Keller & Co., 64 Nassau St., New York, shot himself through the heart Wednesday night, at 721 E. 145th St., New York, where he lived happily with his young wife and two-year-old daughter. No cause is assigned for the act other than temporary insanity.

He complained of feeling tired soon after supper and retired to his room to sleep. A few minutes after, his wife was startled by a pistol shot and when she entered the room her husband was lying on the bed dead with a bullet wound in the breast.

Now that Nova Scotia is becoming a popular summer resort, the ingenuity of the jeweler is severely taxed to provide suitable souvenirs for the many tourists who wish to take home dainty and suggestive keepsakes. Walter F. Robbins, Skowhegan, Me., W. F. Studley, Rockland, Mass., and G. C. Jewell, Haverhill, were among the boys in blue who revisited Washington with the New England G. A. R. men last week.

Wednesday morning it was discovered that sometime during the night burglars had attempted to enter the store of Frank L. Brown, Kingston, Pa. They had cut a pane of glass nearly out with a diamond, but had evidently left in a hurry upon finding that the big dog always locked inside was waiting anxiously for them.

The improvements at the old-established jewelry house of Carrington, Thomas & Co., Charleston, Va., attract much attention. The handsome store has been entirely refinished in the interior and presents a handsome appearance. The finishings are in carved rosewood, mahogany and cherry, and are fashioned in a dainty manner. The wall faces are of plate glass and show the silver ware and other articles of value in the stock. A handsome horseshoe show counter with glass cases is used for the display of diamonds and jewelry. The woodwork is elaborately and artistically carved. The store has also been furnished with very elegant combination chandeliers of wrought iron, arranged for both gas and electric lights.

Our Traveling Representatives.

THOUGH he who has Kremenz & Co.'s goods to sell is twice blessed, yet with the stringent competition and the tactics of the army of travelers that precede and follow him to battle against, William H. Thornton's record of success has been remarkable. It is often expressed that traveling wears upon a man. We know different. Mr. Thornton is potent evidence that the reverse is the case. When he started on the road for Rogers & Bro., then at 690 Broadway, New York, 13 years ago, his weight was 132 pounds; he now tips the scale at least, at 190 pounds.

William H. Thornton was born near Louisville, Ky., of English parents, on April 14, 1859. After graduating from Notre Dame College, Notre Dame, Ind.:

at about 19 years of age, he engaged with a retail jeweler in Louisville, acting as salesman and manager. Subsequently he went to New York and became house salesman for J. T. Scott & Co. At the end of two years he accepted the position of traveling salesman for Rogers & Bro., covering territory for them for five years. He left this house to go with Kremenz & Co., for whom he has traveled eight years, going west as far as San Francisco and south to New Orleans. He makes two trips a year to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Thornton is unmarried, and can thus accept all the advantages of the Manhattan Athletic Club, of which he is a member. Without desiring to be a record-breaker, he is a good all-round athlete, being especially fond of yachting.

R. DeF. Bayley, Chicago agent for the Roy Watch Case Co., left Thursday for a circuit of the leading western cities.

Gus Rodenberg, of S. & B. Lederer, is in Cincinnati again, looking none the worse for his late accident in Cleveland, except that he carries a cane.

H. M. Tenney, with Lapp & Flershem, Chicago, has returned from Indiana and Illinois with success satisfactory to both salesman and firm.

A. G. Schwab & Bro., Cincinnati, have engaged the services of Wm. G. Smith, formerly a representative of John M. Bonnet, Columbus, to travel for them.

Eugene Frohman, Ohio and Indiana traveler for D. Schroder & Co., Cincinnati, made a three weeks' trip count for good sales to the house. A. Herman will make a short trip this week.

James Brown, who has been connected with G. B. Barrett & Co., Pittsburgh, for eight years, leaves that firm Oct 1. to act as traveling representative for Max Nathan & Co., New York.

H. E. Vincent, with Simpson, Hall, Miller & Co., came in from the road Wednesday, and W. F. Adams returned from the central west Monday. Both left the latter part of the week to finish their trips.

Chas. W. Hempel, with Sandland, Capron & Co., North Attleboro, is in Chicago on his western trip. E. MacDonald, formerly with T. Quayle & Co., Providence, will start west the first week in October for Sandland, Capron & Co.

The following traveling men were in Los Angeles, Cal. recently: Hugo Low, of Low, Weinberg & Hyman, New York; E. C. Marlowe, of Phelps & Miller, San Francisco; W. P. Morgan, Pacific coast manager of the Meriden Britannia Co., Meriden, Conn., and Alfred Nathan, of Max Nathan & Co., New York.

George W. Payson, representing the Seth Thomas Clock Co., is in from Michigan, and says there are no apples and but a half crop of peaches. Cherries were not half a crop; nothing but hay a full yield. Mr. Payson left Monday for Wisconsin, the upper peninsula of Michigan and Minnesota, his "hundred town" trip.

Among the traveling representatives who have been in Omaha recently are Mr. Willis, of the Gorham Mfg. Co.; E. A. Reed, of Reed & Barton; F. H. Carpenter, of Taylor & Bro.; Edwin Isaacs, of Ernest Adler; Max Noel of Stein & Ellbogen; Norbert Gunsburger; Fred England, with H. & Z. Oppenheimer; Z. Cohen with Levy, Dreyfus & Co., all of New York.

The following representatives of leading houses last week joined the already large besieging force in its attack on the Chicago trade: E. I. Rogers, Parks Bros. & Rogers; G. Cheever Hudson, H. F. Barrows & Co.; C. E. Settle, S. E. Fisher & Co.; John Lamb, E. L. Logee & Co.; W. R. Shute, Day & Clark; Geo. W. Birnbaum, the W. C. Edge Co.; F. J. Foster, Unger Bros.

Traveling men who visited Indianapolis last week were: M. E. O'Donald, with Wilson Mfg. Co.; F. W. Trewin, with Keystone Watch Case Co.; Jas. Underwood, with Champenois & Co.; G. B. Angell, with F. T. Pearce & Co.; B. B. Brady, of Demarest & Brady; Richard Robinson, with T. G. Frothingham & Co.; Ernest Block, with W. & S. Blackinton, and Mr. Keene with Ostby & Barton.

Among the traveling men in Lancaster, Pa., the past week were: H. C. Schwartz, Kremenz & Co.; Arthur Bradshaw, Meriden Britannia Co.; Fred L. Baker, Hayden W. Wheeler & Co.; W. J. Barber, Simpson, Hall, Miller & Co.; Wm. Link; W. O. Wallace, Max Freund & Co.; Mr. Reynolds, J. B.

Bowden & Co.; Fred Wheeler, S. R. Kamp & Co.; Charles Knapp; Col. Stevens, Brooklyn Watch Case Co.

Charles Wilfong, for twenty-one years with Simons, Bro. & Co., the past fifteen years as traveler, is seriously ill with typhoid fever at his home in Jenkintown, Pa. Mr. Wilfong had high hopes of a successful coast trip, and his anticipations were fully realized up to the time of reaching San Francisco, whence he was ordered by his physician to return home immediately by reason of alarming typhoid symptoms.

Among the knights of the grip who visited the Columbus, O., jewelers were: G. H. Linton, F. M. Whiting & Co.; J. Geo. Schwartzkopf, Bippart & Co.; Wm. Stewart, Mabie, Todd & Bard; Wm. Solomon, with J. J. Cohn; Fred Kaufman; S. Sichels, Eichberg & Co.; M. Gattle, Falkenau, Oppenheimer & Co., New York; and Mr. Schwab, New Haven Clock Co.; Lou. Smith, of James W. Smith, Newark, N. J.; Burton Fox, Fox Bros. & Co., Cincinnati, and representatives of Jos. Noterman & Co., Cincinnati, and the Acme Silver Plate Co., Boston.

Traveling men in Louisville, Ky., last week were: Mr. Odenheimer, of Odenheimer & Zimmern; Will Solomon, with J. J. Cohn; H. C. Barker, J. W. Reddall & Co.; Mr. Tinker, with Wm. B. Durgin; Robt. VOL. XXV. SEPT. 28, 1892. No. 9.

THE fraternity of crooks seem to operate in Chester, Pa., with impunity, although three burglaries are laid at the feet of two boys, who are still in their teens. A few weeks ago THE CIRCULAR had occasion to report the robbery of two jewelry establishments in that town, while last week and this week similar opportunities have been afforded us. Five robberies of jewelry stores in one month in a town that contains hardly twice that number of jewelry stores is a fair record.

The Catalogue A CONSPICUOUS Season.

feature of the preparations for this Fall's business is the unusually large number of catalogues about to be issued to the trade. Many houses that have heretofore not participated in this species of advertising are receiving from the printers' hands thousands of copies of catalogues, which they will distribute to the trade in general. The firms that have for years been known as catalogue houses have increased the size of their volumes, while numerous manufacturers of special lines have prepared neat handybooks descriptive and illustrative of their products. Enormous sums have been expended in the publishing of these works, and their full tangible return is not a surety. However, the issuing of a complete illustrated catalogue shows commendable enterprise, and is undoubtedly of benefit to the general trade if the volume is kept within its legitimate channel, the retail jewelry trade. THE CIRCULAR within the past year has received several complaints from retail jewelers throughout the country of the distribution of jobbers' catalogues among outside individuals, as postmasters, factory foremen, etc., besides their being issued to such establishments as racket and variety stores, fancy goods and department stores, and in other fields where their existence is disadvantageous to the interests of the retail jeweler. We sincerely hope that due care will be exercised by the jobbers and manufacturers in the filling of applications for their catalogue, and that no copy will be forwarded to a person or firm unless he or they is a member of the jewelry trade.

An Exposition of Art in Industry.

THE borderlands of art and industry will receive illustration in one department of the World's Fair at Chicago, the Bureau of Applied Arts. It is intended to include among the exhibits of this bureau examples of every important application of art to industry. Art manufactures in the metals, wood, glass, pottery, the textiles, leather and paper will be gathered together in the space set apart for the bureau. House decoration and the application of the principles of design to furniture will form a noteworthy part of the exhibit, which will not be confined to contemporary examples, but will include specimens of interest from a historic point of view. This should be one of the most interesting features of the World's Fair. The progress made in the application of art to industry in the interval which has elapsed since the holding of the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia has been conspicuous, and an adequate illustration of it cannot fail to give a new impetus to the movement.

Jeweler Dobbelaar's Customers Would Like to Meet that Gentleman.

For upward of ten years M. J. Dobbelaar has kept a jewelry store at 110 W. 125th St., New York. He did business under his wife's name, although she left him because of his unfaithfulness two years ago. The store has been closed since Thursday. Dobbelaar employed a young jeweler named Herrman Cramer until two weeks ago, when Cramer left him because he owed him $60 for wages. On Thursday of last week Dobbelaar told Cramer he wanted him to return to work, as he had hired a store on Amsterdam Ave. That day Dobbelaar sent away the safe and a truck load of stock and fixtures, and at night he removed a lot more stuff which the police have not been able to locate yet.

Tuesday there were several people at the Harlem Police Court and at Police Headquarters invoking the aid of the law and police in securing watches and jewelry left with the missing jeweler for repairs. The police figure that Dobbelaar has about $10,000 worth of valuables somewhere, and that most of the stuff belongs to other people. Detectives Mulholland and Robinson searched the jeweler's store Monday and found $1,300 worth of jewelry and time-pieces hidden in the cellar.

Notable removals of the near future will be those of the Weber Co. and Swartchild & Co. These firms Friday leased for five years the fifth floor of the State St. corner of the Masonic Temple, taking in the entire Randolph St. frontage. The combined salesrooms contain 4,400 square feet, of which 2,000 will be occupied by the Weber Co. and 2,000 by Swartchild & Co. The two firms will have separate salesrooms, with means for easy communication. Special vaults will be put in for the Weber Co. The details of the construction of the Masonic Temple are known the world over, and it is a fact that Swartchild & Co. will have the finest material rooms in the world. The removals will take place Nov. 1.

Judge Beach, of the Supreme Court, has appointed Cora L. Magnus, committee of the person and property of her husband, Charles Magnus, who was formerly in business at 18 John St. but who is now confined in Bloomingdale Lunatic Asylum.

The New York Jewelers' Association has received notice from Herbert W. Richards, administrator of the estate of his father, the late George H. Richards, Jr., Boston, that he has paid 15 per cent. of the latter's liabilities and has received from the majority of his father's creditors the extension of time asked by him to pay the liabilities in full.

The trade is cautioned against a smooth-faced man with red complexion, about five feet nine inches in height, who is endeavoring to swindle firms by means of forged orders. Last week he presented an order signed "Koch & Dreyfus, per K.," for a gold watch on a Maiden Lane house, but he was unsuccessful in obtaining the timepiece.

The Nassau Watch Co. has filed papers of incorporation with the Secretary of State. The capital stock is $2,500 in shares of $25 each. The business of the concern is the selling of watches, precious stones etc., and the incorporators are Wm. J. Smith, 142 E. 97th St., John Smith, 150 E. 97th St., New York and Robert M. Morton, Manasquan, N. J.

Benjamin Eisemann, 17 years of age who occasionally sells jewelry on his own account, was arrested last Wednesday on a charge of swindling Horowitz & Herchfield, 61 Nassau St., to the extent of $350. He gave checks for payment of goods obtained by him and then withdrew his money from the bank. On Friday he was discharged from custody, having made restitution to the firm.

Over $1,000 worth of diamonds were seized by the San Francisco customs authorities last week from Samuel Sondheim of Bruhl Bros. & Co., of this city, who was a passenger on the steamship China from Yokohama. After Mr. Sondheim had proven that the goods had originally been sent to him from this country, and had proven unsalable in Japan, where the firm has a branch office, the goods were released.

The stock and fixtures of Tobias & Woolf, 51 Maiden Lane, were on Monday sold at auction by the sheriff on judgments amounting to $5,168.12 in favor of Herman Fredericks, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Tobias, and Richard Woolf, a brother of Mr. Woolf. There was a fair attendance but the bidding was not very spirited, and Mr. Fredericks bought in the majority of the stock. It is said that the creditors of the firm who alleged that the firm made statements in which they claimed they were perfectly solvent a few days before the filing of the judgments, intend taking legal steps to protect their interests.

A judgment for $1,759.03 was entered against Tobias & Woolf, Monday, by H. Fredricks.

Auctioneer M. F. Hatch on Monday began the sale of the stock, fixtures and machinery of Adolph Bernhard, 2 Maiden Lane. There was a slim attendance and the prices realized were very low. Gold lace pins worth $9 per dozen were sold at 25 cents each, and several lots of plated jewelry went at ridiculously low prices. The safes and machinery were sold on Tuesday.

Jeannot & Shiebler, 21 and 23 Maiden Lane, caution the trade against being deceived by monogram trademarks resembling theirs in general appearance. All this firm's products are marked with a "J" and "S" combined with the karat stamp, and gold watch cases so marked are well-known to the trade for their uniform quality and merit. Their goods have long enjoyed an enviable reputation for their high standard, and it is important that members of the trade should familiarize themselves with this monogram trademark.

Roberts & Sons, together with the silver novelties in other windows, are happy foils. De Roy Bros. have a unique window display in a theater interior made of jewelry.

THE VICTORY DESIGN.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION SOUVENIR SPOON.

The striking feature of this attractive spoon is the allegorical design at the top of the handle representing Victory, trumpet and laurel in hand, seated on the globe—a very poetical treatment of the event to be commemorated.

The handle shows also an architectural column, festooned with floral garlands, typical of the festive character of the occasion.

The bowl can be ordered either with the bird's-eye view of the Exposition buildings and grounds as shown, or plain.

Trade Gossip.

The new method of setting diamonds which has been invented by R. Brettner, 64 Nassau St., New York, should be examined by every manufacturer desiring cheap and uniform work. Mr. Brettner is a diamond setter of long experience, and the work that he is now producing is eloquent testimony of the success of his new process.

Moseley & Co., manufacturers of the well-known Moseley lathe, Elgin, Ill., have made several large reductions in lathe combinations since Sept. 1st, and jewelers and watchmakers about to purchase outfits should write for the firm's revised price-list. Moseley & Co. believe that quality is the standard of value, and claim that their products are "equal to any and superior to many."

On another page of this number Rogers & Bro., 16 Cortlandt St., New York, illustrate several pieces of their latest production in flatware, the "Savoy," which is meeting with great success wherever shown. The "Savoy" embodies all the elements of taste and beauty required in this class of table ware. The firm manufacture a full line in this pattern, and jewelers should send in their orders early, as it is enjoying an extensive sale.

The Prince of Wales crest, three feathers springing from a crown, is very fashionable in jewelry in Paris, and is being produced in various articles in this country by Adolph Goldsmith, 38 Maiden Lane, New York. The design, which permits of many artistic combinations in fancy gems, is shown to advantage in scarfpins, the plume of the crest being of Roman gold with the crown studded with rose diamonds or doublets. The design is also produced in sterling silver and will undoubtedly prove as successful here as in Europe.

Since the improvements made in Paillard non-magnetic watches and the adoption of the new escapement the popularity of these watches has increased very rapidly. When the new company took hold of the watch, every watch on which rested any doubt was cast aside and only the newest goods placed on the market. The work done in the way of bringing these watches directly before the retailer and the assistance afforded for advertising them to the public have proven very successful, as the increasing demand for Paillard non-magnetic watches proves.

A spoon that is distinctively a souvenir of the World's Columbian Exposition has been produced by the National Premium Co., 58 Warren St., New York, and its many features commemorating the Fair will undoubtedly secure for it a ready sale. The top of the handle is formed by a bust of Christopher Columbus over a representation of the Santa Maria enclosed in a circle formed by two scrolls under which the date, 1492, surmounts an eagle and shield bearing the date 1892. The shank has in raised letters the words Columbian Exposition, while the bowl contains a representation of one of the Exposition buildings in raised work. The spoon is symmetrical in outline, and shows the result of artistic die work.

Sterling silver and gold mounted leather goods are in great demand for tasteful gifts among people of refinement. The great variety of novelties that are now shown allow for individual discrimination in making selections, both as to the silver decoration and tints of leather. The latter are being produced in shades to match almost any costume of ladies' wear. In this connection the house of Deitsch Brothers, 416 Broome St., New York have taken the initiative step, and that the orders they now have necessitate over-time work at their factory is the best illustration of the appreciation of the jewelry trade of their efforts. The range of novelties they are showing this season far exceeds anything heretofore exhibited—and the out-of-town trade will find a visit to their salesroom time well spent.

Another big deal is reported on Maiden Lane. S. F. Myers & Co. have purchased the entire stock on hand of the Prentiss Calendar and Time Co. The Prentiss clocks are favorably known in the market, having been introduced several years ago and being used by numerous leading hotels and business houses of New York. The company have heretofore rented them out, but have lately entered into an arrangement with the Electric Time Clock Co., controlled by the Western Union Telegraph Co., who will use the Prentiss calendar on a royalty. The latter company have agreed not to rent any more clocks, but to dispose at once of the entire stock on hand. S. F. Myers & Co., with their usual energy, came at once to the front and purchased the entire lot and will control the disposing of the same. The clocks in question are three feet high, run three months, have a straight line lever movement with a noiseless motion and a perpetual calendar. They will be offered for a sale at specially low figures. All further particulars may be had by writing to S. F. Myers & Co., 48-50 Maiden Lane New York, for their special circular on Prentiss Calendar Clocks.

A CIRCULAR reporter was last week permitted to glance over the manuscript of Martin Brunor's coming book, entitled "The Practical Electroplater," which is soon to be placed in the hands of the printer. The work is written in a clear and concise manner, and one need not be an electrician to understand it, as no terms nor phrases pertaining to electricity are used without first being fully explained. Mr. Brunor who is well known in the trade by reason of the success of his process for removing green from gold, and gilding and oxidizing, has been identified with the electro-plating industry for twenty-one years, and the results of his experience are told in an entertaining manner. The book will contain about 500 pages and be profusely illustrated. It will be ready for distribution about Jan. 1, and several hundred copies are already subscribed for. The book has been delayed somewhat, owing to Mr. Brunor's work on a new dynamo, embodying all his principles, which is now perfected and is called Brunor's Electroplating Machine. Those desiring information on the work, address Martin Brunor, 17 John St., New York.

HOWARD STERLING CO.

PART XII. HOWARD STERLING CO.

THE industry of the jeweler and silversmith is among the foremost in the city of Providence. Its growth and development and its agencies and accessories form one of the most interesting chapters of the business history of that city. During the past decade one of the most important branches of this industry—that of silversmithing—has developed rapidly, and to-day Providence, with four representative firms, stands first in this art in the world. One of the youngest, and at the same time one of the foremost in the high standard of its products, is the Howard Sterling Co. Within the brief period of six years this concern has developed by indomitable energy, enterprise and business sagacity from a comparatively small beginning into magnificent proportions.

The firm started in 1878 as H. Howard & Co. in a humble way, in a room used as a factory and office, covering a space of 1,200 square feet, in the Dyer Street Land Co.'s building, and employed 15 operatives. At the outset they devoted themselves to the manufacture of plated jewelry, but in 1880 they commenced the manufacture of the American Lever sleeve-button as a specialty, which met with instant and substantial success.

The business rapidly increased and necessitated the enlargement of the factory by the addition of 6,800 square feet of floor space, and the number of employes was augmented to 175. In July 1886 a department was established for the manufacture of wares in sterling silver. This department was conducted under the title of The Sterling Co. The firm desired to reach, with their productions in silver, the retail trade direct.

At this time the trademark, now famous because of the uniform high character of the company's work, was adopted. The trademark device, as shown in the margin of this page, consists of the word "Sterling" arranged in horseshoe form about a four-leaf clover.

During the Fall of 1888 the firm discovered that their combined industries had outgrown the limited accommodations in the Dyer Street Land Co.'s building, and on Jan. 1, 1889, they removed to the Enterprise and Allen Green buildings on Eddy, Fountain and Worcester Sts. The third floors of both of these buildings and the fourth floor of the Allen Green building were converted into a model factory in all that constitutes systematic and convenient arrangement, and that modern inventive genius has devised in perfect machinery. The frontage of the works on Eddy St. is 125 feet, and the two buildings extend in the aggregate 150 feet on Fountain and Worcester Sts., the full space occupied being about 22,500 square feet, nearly all of it on one level.

The entrance to the main office of the firm is at No. 7 Eddy St., while side entrances are provided for the operatives on Fountain and Worcester Sts. On entering the premises the first room encountered is the principal business office, a spacious room, finished in natural cherry, with desks, counters and general office furniture in harmony with the tints of this beautiful wood. At the rear of this office is the large shipping room, getting its air and light from the shaft in the center of the Enterprise building. This room is furnished with all conveniences and facilities for packing and shipping goods, and is finished in light tints. Opening out of the main office in the center of the front of the building is the private office of the members of the firm; adjoining this is the order room, which is also reached from the main office by a separate passage. The office of the superintendent is the first room opening on the right or north side of the main office. It will thus be seen that the arrangement of the factory is very advantageous in many respects, not the least advantage consisting in having the offices and workshops practically all on one level, commanded by the main office from a central position.

At the session of the Rhode Island Legislature in January, 1891, the concern was granted an act of incorporation as the Howard & Son Co. and continued under that title until December, 1891, when they disposed of the plated goods branch of the business to another firm, and at the same time the name of the corporation was altered to that of Howard Sterling Co. From that time the entire attention of the concern has been devoted to the development of the silver department. New and special machinery has been added and the scope of the business has broadened. In consequence of the many acquisitions in the form of improved machinery, and the addition of a large number of skilful artisans, the products of Howard Sterling Co. are now recognized as being not only of the highest standard of purity, but of the best workmanship and most artistic design.

Up to the middle of 1891 the firm made in silver a line which was confined almost exclusively to jewelry and a few novelties. From time to time a line of specialties in toilet goods was added. Gradually the latter line has been greatly increased and developed, until now the assortment of toilet goods displayed by this firm stands second to none that is offered to the fashionable retail trade of the country.

About a year ago the company began the manufacture of souvenir spoons, and among the more celebrated of the spoons emanating from their works may be mentioned five which have been accorded as much prominence by collectors as any yet presented to the public. The "Christopher Columbus," manufactured for Tilden, Thurber & Co., Providence, R. I., is of a very original pattern. On the upper part of the handle is a panel, within which is a portrait of Columbus. Below this panel is a smaller one in which is seen a globe, sextant and other insignia of navigation. Along the shank of the handle are the date 1492 and the words Christopher Columbus, in antique letters. The bowl depicts the great discoverer sighting shore. In the top panel, on the reverse side of the handle, is stamped a representation of the Santa Maria, Columbus flagship and in the smaller panel is an anchor.

An equally artistic spoon is the "National," made for R. Harris & Co., Washington, D. C. The "Joseph Jefferson" and the "Capital" are also praiseworthy examples of the silversmith's art. The former was made for W. H. Williams & Son, Albany, N. Y., and the latter for J. A. Goldstein, Washington, D. C. The last and greatest of the company's spoon successes has become celebrated as the "All America." The design is typical of the early history of this country, and is purely and distinctively American in its every feature. Almost every dealer in the United States is familiar with this spoon, but for the benefit of the few who have not seen it we will devote a few lines to its description. The handle is of a simple but attractive outline; on the upper portion of the obverse side is a fine relief model of the bust of the characteristic Indian. Below the figure is a representation of Indian corn, which so many believe should be the national plant. On the reverse side of the handle is seen a group composed of a tomahawk, bow and quiver of arrows, above which are two pipes of peace. The esteem in which the "All America" is held by the trade and public has alone been sufficient to give the company a high reputation for artistic skill in exquisite die cutting.

In addition to the five examples mentioned, the company have executed a myriad of excellent designs for many dealers throughout the country. All of these would have reflected great credit on the designers and artisans employed by the company, but those we have briefly described have been sufficient to create a reputation for perfect taste and highest class execution in workmanship.

After the disposal of the plated branch, the officers of the company were left free to devote themselves entirely to the development of the business of silversmithing, and the result has been that they are enabled to offer to their customers for the present season three beautiful patterns of flatware, each in complete sets, which have been named the perfect utility until it becomes elegance, to produce forms which are novel and charming, to devise ornaments which shall truly harmonize with the object which they are intended to adorn, to keep a little in advance of the public taste, and to introduce as rapidly as their facilities will admit many novel beautiful and artistic designs, all within the domain of legitimate silversmithing, have been the constant aims of the Howard Sterling Company, with what success is best shown by the fame of the company, whose name is rapidly becoming a familiar household word throughout the length and breadth of the land, wherever art and culture are known.

Much of the success of an extensive establishment like this is dependent upon the skill, experience and fidelity of its executive staff, as well as upon the expertness of its artisans, and the Howard Sterling Company have exercised their best judgment and discrimination in the employment of none but competent and devoted assistants in the responsible positions, whereby the reputation of the concern in the business world has been honorably and firmly established. The officers of the company at present are as follows: President, Hiram Howard; treasurer, Stephen C. Howard; secretary, W. Edward Fiske; superintendent, Charles C. Wientge. A corps of four salesmen represents the interest of the house upon the market, and a New York office is operated at 860 Broadway.

FACTORY OF HOWARD STERLING CO., PROVIDENCE, R. I.

"First Empire," the "Lorraine" and the "Dauphin." These designs are all protected by letters patent and are meeting with the hearty approval of the best retail trade throughout the country. Besides this flatware the company have introduced a number of exquisite designs in hollow-ware, which, while not ambitious in size or price, are nevertheless artistic and meritorious in workmanship.

It is almost unnecessary to add anything regarding the reputation that this company have acquired as to business integrity and commercial probity. It is too widely known to require either praise or comment. To

Among the African Diamond Mines.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE SEPTEMBER EXPOSITION COMPLETED—A NEW PROCESS IN OPERATION AT THE GORDON DIAMOND MINING CO.'S MINE THAT PROMISES GREAT RESULTS.

KIMBERLEY, Aug. 15, 1892.—The preparations for our exhibition are nearly completed and the most sanguine expectations have been realized as to the applications for space.

There has been a large gathering this week at the works of the Gordon Diamond Mining Co. to witness the exhibition of a patent process likely to revolutionize diamond mining on these fields. Hitherto, after the blue ground had been brought from the mine it has had to remain on the "floors" for weeks, sometimes months, to partially pulverize under the action of the atmosphere before it was ready for washing. The disadvantages were numerous, not the least being the temptations to steal offered to the natives engaged in breaking it up with a sort of hammer, and of course occasionally exposing a gem to their reach. Many attempts have been made to obviate this system, but without success, until Mr. McClelland, manager of the Gordon Co., set to work and so far as I can see solved the problem.

By the new process the diamondiferous ground is brought direct from the mine and placed in regulated quantities in powerful crushing machines capable of treating thirty loads per hour. These machines crush and deliver the ground into a cylindrical screen, where it is sorted into sizes before passing to the pulsators. Through the pulsators a current of water is forced, by means of plungers, which receive a reciprocal motion, raising the lighter portions sufficiently high to be discharged by overflow spouts, while the gems and other matter, in consequence of their greater specific gravity, fall to the bottom and are detained. The stuff from the overflow spouts, having been deprived of its slime and muddy water, is fed by means of conveyors and elevators to separate sets of massive crushing rolls of iron, which reduce it to a second stage of fineness. Passing from these rolls, the stuff is carried to another pulsator and finally discharged as mere waste tailings.

This is very briefly an idea of the new patent which seems to have solved difficulties hitherto insurmountable. Yet now that we see the thing accomplished, one wonders where the difficulty ever came in, and why it was not done long ago. There is no complicated machinery or working parts, nothing to easily get out of order, and no questionable principle involved. Necessarily everything is very massive, strong and fit for large quantities. Another point which has baffled the creativeness of inventors up to the present is the production of a machine capable of discriminating between diamonds and stones, and this is really the most vital point of all.

Fashions in Jewelry and Silver-ware.

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

A gold "grandfather's hat" has been mounted as a scarf pin.

White enamel is conspicuously present in jewelry. Blue enamel, light in tint, has the next prominence.

The tendency of design toward floral forms is so prominent that it seems there is a vast field now for things beautiful.

The jeweled griffin that has been observed among new chatelaines is now used on shell combs, and on the bonnet fixture worn in the back hair.

The perforated dishes of silver gilt are charming. One represents all sorts of flowers springing from a common center, and blossoming around the upturned edge.

Iridescent gold jewelry appears in the prettiest of forms, chiefly floral. Flower brooches, with fine gold stamens sparkling and quivering in the center, are very attractive.

The fine hand-sawed pierced work is popular. Some pretty, light ornaments have been observed on portmonnaies and card cases. It has the advantage of not rubbing or catching, as the raised work is more likely to do.

The new gold bracelets are extremely pretty. They are sectional but closely fitting. Some of these are covered with raised work and have the appearance of a continuous band; others have the folded tape designs seen in sleeve buttons; others, knots of gold and platinum. An altogether new design is a scale-like arrangement of oval coins.

JOSEPH GOSLING.

YOUNG, studious, yet of a lively temperament, Joseph Gosling, junior member of the firm of Joseph Noterman & Co., Cincinnati, O., is admired and liked by all who know him. He was born on East Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, in 1859. A graduate of the School of Design, of that city, he also took a course of designing at the Mechanics' Institute. In 1884 he opened an office for engraving and the selling of diamonds. He continued in business for himself until 1887 when he entered the house of Noterman & Jonas as designer and engraver. His talent brought that house into popular favor all over the country. Daily contact with diamond work developed a quick perception of the value of gems. This special knowledge soon made him very valuable to the house, upon the dissolution of which four years ago Mr. Noterman, recognizing his peculiar fitness, formed a partnership with him, and they opened a new house further up Race St. During the past few years Mr. Gosling has designed or superintended the designing of all the goods for the house. The firm's name is known far and wide for their many beautiful novelties and unique mountings, also badge and medal work. Mr. Gosling takes occasional trips to Europe to whet his genius. His late trip was of much benefit to him and the firm. As a diamond expert there are few to compete with him.

My Mother's Wedding Ring.

I REMEMBER when that circlet
Was a heavy golden band,
And how chastely rich it shone upon
Her plump and pretty hand.
As boy and man, I've often seen
Pure gems, serene and rare,
Gleam brightly on the same dear hand,
So tender, dear and fair.

Those jewels, like the fleeting joys
That come, and glow, and go,
With all Fortune's transient gifts,
And many a weighing woe,
Have gone, as go all friends and days,
With every hope or care;
But still the plain gold wedding ring
Shines true and faithful there.

Those dear old hands are trembling now
Beneath the weight of years,
And fragile, thin, has grown the band
That linked her joys and tears;
But to a loving, grateful son
There is no blessed thing,
In all the world so holy as His mother's wedding ring.

Practical Optics.

AS APPLIED TO THE CORRECTION OF VISUAL DEFECT.

NOTE.—The purpose of this department is to give to the student, without his having had any previous technical education, a clear and practical course of instruction on optics, with its application to the correction of visual defects. PLACEDO'S KERATOSCOPE.

THIS is an instrument for examining the cornea, and testing the symmetry of its various meridians of curvature. To Placido, of Porti we are indebted for this valuable aid in verifying astigmatism objectively; for this reason the keratoscope is sometimes called Placido's disk.

This instrument is made of wood, zinc or celluloid and consists of a central aperture with a tube containing a magnifying lens, on the opposite side and around which are a number of concentric circles arranged alternately in black and white. The instrument is an interesting and simple device for examining objectively for astigmatism, whenever we suspect this error of refraction. We cannot rely in every case upon the answers given by the patient; we therefore have an aid in this instrument for finding out for ourselves whether or not we have a case of this visual defect.

The method employed for an examination is as follows: Place the patient in a chair with his back to the light; adjust one eye to the tube containing the magnifying lens. The light reflects a series of concentric circles upon the patient's cornea. We should get sufficiently near the instrument and adjust examination, that if the reflected circles hold the same relations and shape on the cornea as upon the disk, we cannot make out a diagnosis of astigmatism; but if, on the other hand, the rings are oval instead of perfectly round, or if some portion of the circles are lost or disappear, we have either a regular or an irregular astigmatism. If it is a corneal or regular astigmatism, the circles will be oval and the meridian of the longest axis will correspond with the meridian of least curvature. If it is a lenticular or irregular astigmatism, the circles may be irregular in formation and the circles disappear at some point, as though there were depressions on the cornea, the result of an old ulcer or scar, or the circles appear distorted and irregular in outline. The simplicity of this instrument is such that any one can manipulate it the first time it is brought into use.

Trained powers of observation are just as much of value in the use of the keratoscope as in the employment of any one of the various instruments of precision which we are called upon to use for the detection and correction of errors of refraction. Therefore the value of Placedo's keratoscope increases in proportion to the number of times it is employed.

The same principle for objectively studying astigmatism applied to this Disk is carried out on a grander scale in the use of Javel and Schiötz Ophthalmometer.

JAVEL AND SCHIÖTZ OPHTHALMOMETER.

This is an instrument the purpose of which is to measure the refraction of the cornea, and the principle is the same in many respects, as that applied to the use of the keratoscope.

This instrument was introduced in the year 1889 from a model adopted by Javel and Schiötz. This is an instrument of precision second to none but the ophthalmoscope, although there are specialists and others who look upon it more in the light of an ornament whose chief service is to produce a moral effect upon the patient, rather than an instrument of precision of great value which in the hands of one whose observation has been trained accurately measures the error, and saves time. The ophthalmometer not only determines the presence of astigmatism, but measures the full amount. We can differentiate corneal from lenticular astigmatism, by the pphthalmometer, which alone would make the instrument of great value.

The ophthalmometer has become quite popular of late, so that a number of instrument dealers are making them. The instrument requires scientific accuracy in its construction; therefore, some of the imitations are worthless because made by unscientific mechanics. The price of the model adopted by Javel and Schiötz is $125, but a good instrument can be obtained for $75. It is more on account of the price of this valuable instrument that it was feared at one time that it would not come into general use. The demand for it is growing, and before long it is hoped the price will place it within the reach of all.

The ophthalmometer is similar in construction to the keratoscope. We have a larger disk, however, with a number of concentric circles, on the circumference of which are figures corresponding to the degrees of a circle. We have also a telescope, in the center of which is a Nicol's prism of Iceland spar. Attached to the telescope is a metal arc with two slides or wires, one of which is movable; this arc is attached to that part of the telescope which lies in front of the large disk with the concentric circles marked upon it.

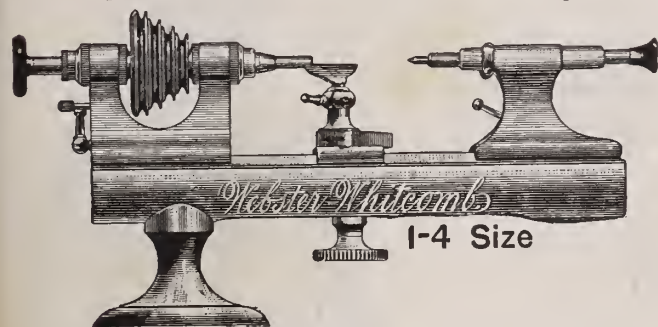

We seat the patient in front of the instrument, covering one eye with a metal shade, and direct the other eye toward the opening in the telescope. A strong light is directed toward the disk with concentric rings. We turn the objective until the crossed spider's web comes into view; then by moving the instrument back and forth until the reflected image of the disk upon the cornea comes into the field, four images and two circles the instrument near enough to the patient's eye, in order to obtain a perfect reflection of the rings upon the cornea.

It will be seen from the foregoing description of this instrument and of the method of making the excursion in the various meridians, it is evident that the cornea is normal in shape; but if on the other hand the quadrilateral mire overlaps or becomes separated from the mire with the steps, we have astigmatism objectively demonstrated. In overlapping we have hyperopic astigmatism with the rule. If the mires separate we have myopic astigmatism with the rule, although we have exceptions in either case. The mire with the steps indicates the number of diopters; so that we really have an exact scientific instrument in Javel and Schiötz's ophthalmometer.

Points of Law.

SALE OF GOODS ON APPROVAL.

Where goods are sold on approval it amounts to a sale conditional upon their not giving satisfaction, and in order to escape liability therefor the buyer must show that he gave notice of disapproval.

REMEDY FOR FRAUDULENT PARTNERSHIP CONTRACT.

If a person is induced by fraudulent representations, followed up by fraudulent transactions, to invest his money in a partnership enterprise, he is not limited to a mere accounting and settlement; but, if he acts promptly upon discovering the fraud, he has a right to rescind the contract, and as between himself and his partners, have returned to him his capital investment unimpaired, irrespective of the gains or losses of the partnership. If there is no fraud, however, and merely mismanagement amounting to a violation of the contract, he is entitled only to an accounting, and a decree for his proportionate share of what remains.

WATCHCASE SPRING.

JULES and Armand Menegay, Brooklyn, N. Y., were recently granted a patent (No. 479,292) on a watchcase spring for which they claim ease and facility by which the same may be inserted in and fastened to the case, and efficiency in use, whereby the spring may be lengthened or shortened and its tension regulated.

Figure 1 is a perspective view of a watchcase with the improved spring applied. Fig. 2 is a perspective view of the spring and holder. The numeral 2 denotes the spring, consisting of an arc-shaped strip of metal having a blade 3 with a head 4. Located upon the outer or convex side of the spring is a holder 5, consisting of a metal plate corresponding in curvature to the spring and provided with a groove 6, running from end to end thereof, in which is seated a metal strip 7, secured at each end by means of rivets or screws to the spring. The holder is provided with a series of screw-holes 8 to receive the securing-screws, by which it is attached to the case.

In practice the holder is adjusted upon the spring until the blade is of the desired length, and is then inserted in the recess in the case and secured therein by the retaining-screw passing through one of the holes therein, as will be readily understood by those skilled in the art. From the above it will be seen that the holder can be readily secured to any ordinary watchcase, and by sliding the same back and forth upon the spring the length of the blade may be increased or diminished and the tension regulated.

ROLL FOR ORNAMENTING RING STOCK.

A roll for ornamenting ring stock, invented and patented by Charles R. Smith, Providence, R. I., is said to be a valuable improvement in this class of metalism. The former practice was to pass the plated or gold wires used by the manufacturers of finger rings through rolls, one of which had engraved on its face a series of designs which were repeated at regular distances round its circumference. These engraved rolls were generally of small diameter, the circumference being equal to a length of wire which when severed, rolled and united would make three rings just alike in size. To produce stock for nine rings three revolutions of the roll were required. It was common, however, to first cut the plain wire into a length of several feet, and this wire, after passing through the rolls described, presented an engraved surface, having the designs repeated at regular intervals throughout its length. One objection to this method of preparing ring wire was that considerable waste stock was produced, as about nine standard sizes were generally kept in stock. Additional sizes were, as a rule, made to order. The whole piece of wire was cut into equal lengths or $8\frac{1}{2}$ sizes: usually a part of the engraved figure being plain, forming what is called a table on which letters could be cut by an engraver if desired. Practically when the piece was bent to form the abutting ends, the joint was at the center of the "table." To produce a small-sized ring, part of the wire must be cut off from each end of the piece to get it to the proper length, the "table" being correspondingly shortened.

The object of Mr. Smith's invention is to so prepare the ring stock that the waste referred to is avoided. To that end the engraved pattern formed on the circumference of the roll is repeated in a gradually varying ratio; that is, assuming that the distance round the roll corresponds with the nine finished sizes of rings, one revolution of the roll will ornament an amount of wire equal to nine rings of different sizes; or, in other words, a piece of wire after passing through the rolls, and having then a length just equal to the circumference of the figured roll, can be cut into nine shorter pieces which when bent and jointed will produce a corresponding number of rings of the different sizes.

J. Pouyat China for the Fall Season.

THE display of French china in the show-rooms of the Société La Ceramique, J. Pouyat, 56 Murray St., New York, should be examined by every jeweler interested in this ware, as it includes many shapes and decorations rich with novel effects. On this page is shown several of the latest importations of this house. Pouyat china has always enjoyed an honored place in the estimation of connoisseurs, and the products introduced for the coming season have elicited the most gratifying expressions of admiration. One of the most striking designs is a tête-à-tête set of blue with gold ornaments, the sugar-bowl of which is shown in the cut. This pattern is entitled the "Aïda," and its attraction resides in the handles which are formed by projections that give the various pieces the appearance of having odd-shaped sheets of china springing from their sides. Another pretty effect is produced in the Florence chocolate set, having a bright yellow surface with small fleur-de-lis of gold.

The "Fragonard" fish set is another pattern, the shape and decoration of which are exclusive with this house, as also the "Dosay" dinner set, the ice-cream dish of which is here illustrated. Pouyat china is not by any means confined to table ware, as the beautiful designs in vases shown in the picture amply testify. It will prove advantageous to jewelers visiting New York with the object of purchasing artistic pottery for the holiday trade to visit these show-rooms and personally inspect the many attractions shown by J. Pouyat.

Japanese Ceramic Industry.

DURING the last years the ceramic industry of Japan has been constantly progressing. In 1884 there were only 3,581 manufacturers of these wares, employing 19,020 artisans, producing 73,442,408 articles worth 1,203,759 piasters. In 1886 there were 4,347 manufacturers producing articles to the to 1,245,946 piasters in 1890, and reached 1,287,026 piasters in 1891.

In 1885 England purchased 203,946 piasters' worth of these goods; France, 124,335; the United States, 127,471; China, 170,427; Germany 27,724. England bought 348,178 piasters' worth of these articles in 1889, and 309,785 in 1890; the figures for France were 212,079 in 1889, and 118,430 in 1890; for Germany, 102,075 in 1889, and 74,410 in 1890; 400,114 piasters worth of these goods have been sent in one year to the United States, which country is by far the best market for these wares.

Unfortunately, Japanese manufacturers, as the Nichi-Nichi-Shimbun rightly observes, have been spoilt by the growing demand for their goods. They no longer use Japanese colors and gold for decorating the Koutani porcelain. In painting they often replace hand-work with rough reproduction patterns. As regards processes, they ought to follow the advices given them by Hosoki, the eminent professor at the Asa-amount of 1,606,354 piasters. In 1888, 4,788 manufacturers employed 26,762 artisans, who produced 126,064,401 articles worth 2,396,000 piasters. We have not the corresponding figures for the other years up to 1891; but the following export figures are very significant.

In 1884 ceramic goods were exported from Japan to the amount of 525,933 piasters, increased from 695,269 piasters in 1885 to 1,002,384 piasters in 1886, to 1,311,901 piasters in 1887, and 1,449,888 in 1889. It fell kusa School of technology. They still use for varnishing, wood ash from the isu tree, an inferior and expensive substance; they ought to employ instead, limestone which contains the useful element, carbonate of calcium, and being found in a natural state would cost less. They ought, also, to burn coal instead of firwood or baking.

The productive power of the Japanese artisan is only 89.55 piasters a year. It was but 63.29 in 1884. It will greatly increase when machines are used.

The Rambler's Notes.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

THE excavations in the ancient city of Pompeii have brought to light many articles that have been fruitful of suggestions for modern potters, the results of whose labor in this direction have been seen in the American market from time to time. In the show rooms of Charles Ahrenfeldt & Son, 50 to 54 Murray St., New York, however, there is at present a line of Copenhagen ware, which, modeled and decorated after ornaments discovered in the buried city, takes precedence over the majority of all other products of this character, shown in recent years. The ware is of a terra-cotta color and the various ewers, vases, etc., have on their surfaces, in black, figures of Pompeians engaged at various sports. The shapes are exact copies of ancient pottery and possess a great attraction to lovers of the unique.

T. B. Clark & Co., 53 Park Place, New York, have introduced a novelty in the form of cut-glass ornaments with silver mountings, which have become very popular. In the accompanying illustration is shown a bon-bon dish of their celebrated "Croton" cutting with a sterling silver handle. The brightly chased silver charmingly enhances the beauty of the brilliant stars and roses that form the cutting.

Coalport after-dinner and tea sets decorated in representation of jewels such as turquoise and pearls on backgrounds of pale blue, pale pink, gold and ivory are among the many novelties shown for the jewelry trade by Le Boutillier & Co. in their showrooms, 17 Murray St., New York. The firm have also an extensive line of Crown Derby which is meeting with a rapid sale.

The changes which have transpired in the styles of French furniture during the past three centuries are nowhere better shown than in the salesrooms of Leon J. Glaenger & Co., 80 Chambers St., New York, where there are at present cabinets representing all the art periods from the Renaissance to the present day. Side by side stand the substantial armoire of 1560 with the delicate and fanciful cabinets of Louis XV. and the more solid bric-à-brac receptacles of the First Empire, while at a short distance are the gilded cane chairs of modern times.

To Correct the End Shake of a Barrel Arbor.

THE beveling of the barrel teeth will sometimes not free the center wheel; when this is the case, we must look for other cures, or perhaps, I should rather say, we should look for other causes. In most cases, the cause is in the end shake of the barrel arbor. There is more than one way to correct this. We will suppose the excessive end shake will allow the barrel to get too high and foul with the center wheel when the inside shoulder is in contact with the top shoulder of the barrel arbor; yet we find that if we press the barrel down so that the shoulder on the barrel lid is in contact with the bottom shoulder on the arbor, there is then sufficient freedom for the center wheel. Some would cure this by simply striking the center of the barrel a sharp blow on a large round-headed punch, which would lessen the end shake of the barrel arbor and most likely correct the fault. But suppose this blow also puts the barrel out of truth, so that the workman will very likely have produced a greater evil than before, and one which is corrected with much greater difficulty. It is better, therefore, to try some other method than to run the risk of ruining the barrel.

Suppose we plant a small collet upon the barrel arbor. In this case at the top shoulder this will have the required effect. Of course we must have the collet a little smaller in diameter than the barrel arbor, while the hole in the collet must be only just large enough to fit on the shoulder; the thickness will vary according to the acquired amount in order to correct the end shake. I may say here that a barrel end shake should never be more than just free. Just notice the detrimental effects in some cases of even the least amount of end shake, where the fusee and chain are used. I have no doubt that most of the readers of THE CIRCULAR have at some time or other had a little trouble in this particular. With a very flat fusee watch, the least thing in end shake, either in the barrel or fusee, will cause the chain to run out of the fusee grooves. We then know what follows.

Now, there are many who try to remedy this defect by closing the holes in the plate, which is in many cases done with a punch; this simply means that the next man who sees the job will be liable to ask if there was a blacksmith at work. Yes, there are times when it is a shame to see it. Why hammer and bruise the plate, when the job can be done without any such methods? There is nothing that looks so bad to a practical man as a plate smashed about with a punch. It may be excusable to use a punch for closing a hole in an old thirty-hour clock, but even in this case it is doubtful in these days of bouchons. It is not only the appearance of the botchery, but just see what kind of a surface the hole has for the pivot to work in. Take, for instance, the fusee: it will always be neat toward the barrel; hence, if the hole is closed, it has to be done on the side nearest to the barrel, in order to bring the fusee upright to its original position. But when it is punched on this side, in all probability, there is only just one part of the hole in contact with the fusee top pivot, and most likely this prominent part will very soon become worn down again.

SILVER AT THE COLUMBIAN FOOD EXHIBITION.

THE United States Food Exposition in commemoration of the discovery of America, which opened in the Madison Square Garden, New York, on Saturday evening, far exceeds in extent and magnificence any previous affair of its kind. The interior of the building is further enhanced in beauty by the abundant floral decorations, while the numerous booths, dainty in structure and ornamentation produce in the beholder the sensation that might be aroused were he gazing upon a fairy scene. The Exposition is one of the ephemeral sensations of the Metropolis. While there is little that directly concerns the jewelry dealer, one of the specially interesting features of the Exposition is the Keystone Cup, offered as a prize by the great preserving and pickling house of H. J. Heinz Co. to that branch of their extensive business that is conducted most successfully during 1892, and to be contested for annually thereafter by the several branches.

cup made by Tiffany & Co., and in its decorative treatment represents most of the vegetables and fruit found in our markets, especially those employed in the pickling Cup," for competition among their various branches. The inscription on front explains it, and reads: "Keystone Cup, awarded by H. J. H. Co. to the branch conducted the most successfully during 1892. To be contested for annually thereafter by the several branches."

Above the inscription and circling around the cup, is a vine of cucumbers, each bearing the name of a city where a branch of the house is established, among which are New York, Buffalo, Albany, Brooklyn, Boston, Chicago, Newark, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati, St. Paul, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Louisville, Columbus, Chattanooga, etc. Below the inscription tomato-vines twine around this garden of choice products, while bunches of large leaves spread out among them with room enough upon each to bear the name of a winner, the year, and the committee of award. On the reverse side of the cup is the trademark of the Heinz Co., while the remaining space is strewn with pickles, gherkins, tomatoes,

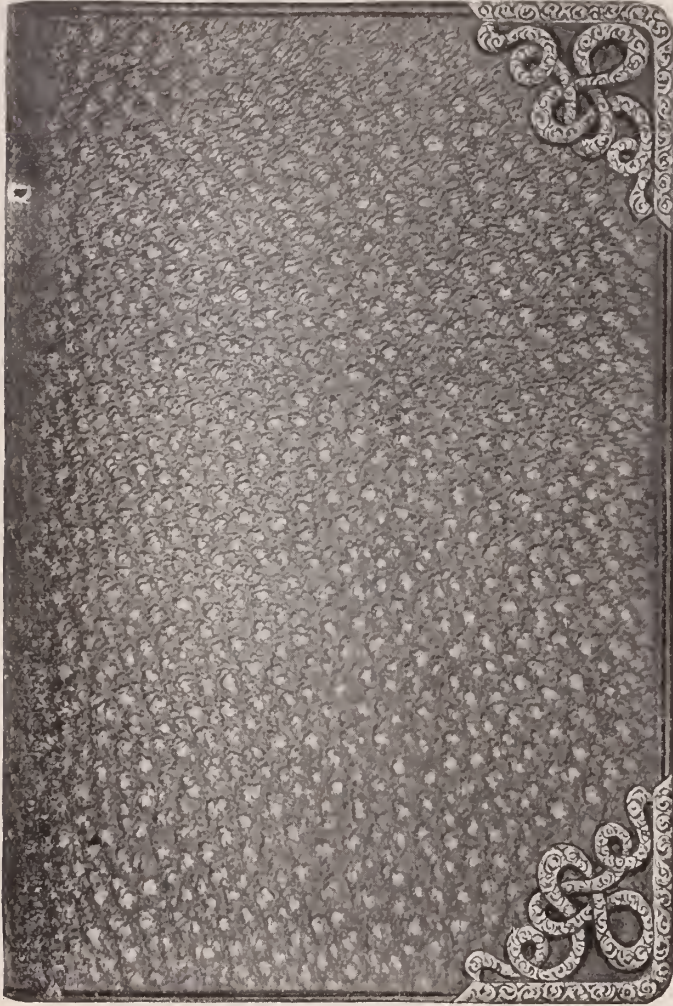

THE KEYSTONE CUP—A CHARACTERISTIC WORK IN SILVER.

One of the most interesting things to be seen at the Food Exposition is, not an article of food, but a vessel for liquid food to "drive dull care away." It is in the form of a sterling silver loving-and preserving business. The cup was made for the H. J. Heinz Co., producers of pickles, preserves, etc., of Pittsburgh, Pa., as a trophy, to be known as the "Keystone horse-radish, onions, apples, pears, peaches, currants, grapes, etc., all in a hapless yet artistically effective confusion. The body of the cup springs from a cabbage leaf.

The Licenses of the Watch Movement and Case Manufacturers.

A move has been made by the leading watch movement and case makers looking to a better control of their goods. It is a law of the country that the owner of a patented article can control its sale. Every watch made by the leading factories is covered by patents, in part or in its entirety. Heretofore the companies have always contracted the selling of the product, but hereafter the special license to be used will enable them to more surely enforce legitimate dealing in watches.

Following is the license issued by the Elgin National Watch Co.:

LICENSE.

WHEREAS, the Elgin National Watch Company, of Chicago, Illinois, is engaged in the business of manufacturing Watch-Movements under the following-named letters patent, to wit:

- No. 173,011, C. S. Moseley and Geo. Hunter, February 1, 1876;
- No. 185,867, C. S. Moseley, January 2, 1877;

AND, WHEREAS, the Elgin National Watch Company is desirous of placing its goods upon the market upon equal terms to all purchasers, and the said.....

.....willing to cooperate faithfully with it in carrying out this purpose;

NOW, THEREFORE, the undersigned, the Elgin National Watch Company, reposing full confidence in the integrity and faithfulness of the said.....
.....in carrying out any agreement.....may make, hereby licenses said.....
to sell said patented watch-movements, upon the following terms and conditions, to wit:

1. Said licensee shall obtain said watch-movements only from the Elgin National Watch Co., or from a jobber having a written license from the Elgin National Watch Company licensing him to sell the same.
2. Said licensor shall furnish to said licensee, from time to time, correct printed lists of all the jobbers who hold its written license to deal in said watch-movements. Whenever any list is thus furnished, it shall supersede all former lists.
3. Said licensee shall not sell said watch-movements at a lower rate than the four months' credit prices stated in the then current price-list published by said licensor, nor upon any better terms than a discount from said price-list of six (6) per cent. for cash within ten (10) days from date of invoice, or five (5) per cent. for cash within thirty (30) days, or three (3) per cent. for cash within sixty (60) days. The licensor may at any time increase or reduce the rate or discount hereinabove indicated, upon giving notice of such change to its licensees.
4. The licensor shall have the right to terminate this license at any time, at its own pleasure.

Settling Business Affairs with the Aid of a Revolver.

INDEPENDENCE, Ia., Sept. 28.—An exciting shooting affair took place on Monday afternoon. The participants were A. L. Moore and his late business partner, Frank Carter. They did a jewelry business under the name of Moore & Carter but dissolved partnership two weeks ago, Carter retiring. Monday they were engaged in settling their affairs, when a dispute arose. Moore drew his revolver and commenced firing at Carter. The ball struck the door and pierced a hole through it. Carter turned and ran out on the street with Moore closely pursuing and firing as rapidly as he could. Three more shots were fired before Moore was seized. Two of the shots struck Carter, inflicting slight wounds in the shoulder and leg.

Moore alleged that Carter had attempted to blackmail him, but Carter said the trouble arose from the fact that he had learned more of Moore's life than the latter was willing any man should know and live. On the other hand, Carter's wife, who was with them when the trouble commenced, says the cause was a business disagreement. Moore came from Boston and Carter from the west.

The Elgin Watch Factory Band Likely to Dissolve.

ELGIN, Ill., Sept. 28.—The First Regiment band, otherwise known as the Elgin National Watch Factory Military Band, will probably cease to exist, as the resignation of Director Joseph Hecker has taken effect. The band formerly was an independent organization, but the Elgin National Watch Co. adopted it and conducted it as an advertising scheme. The band is widely known from its extended tours and fine performances.

Director Hecker, who received a salary of about $2,000 a year, resigned to travel with his talented musical children, though Elgin will be their home. It is hoped that the band will continue under a new organization, but probably it will not, unless backed by people of wealth.

Wilson Bros.' Employes Pay Honor to those Popular Jewelers.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 29.—The banquet hall of Young's Hotel presented a scene of rare enjoyment Wednesday evening, the occasion being a spontaneous tribute of the employes of Wilson Bros. to those popular jewelers. The tribute took the form of a complimentary dinner, the fifth anniversary of the establishment of the business being selected as the date of the event.

"It is," said J. Edward Wilson, after the ovation that followed his introduction by manager S. J. Byrne had subsided, "the first time, so far as my knowledge goes, that such a demonstration has been made. Business men frequently entertain their employes; but never before have the rank and file of any extensive establishment played the role of hosts and entertainers. It is an evidence of that cordial good feeling and mutual respect which I hope may always exist between Wilson Bros. and the gentlemen and ladies who have united in honoring them in so handsome and enjoyable a manner." John W. Wilson also made a brief and pointed speech,

All genuine Moseley No. 1x2 and No. 2 Hard Lathes are now Listed at same price, $42.00 each,

WHICH will include as heretofore, 1 Screw Chuck and 6 quarter-inch Cement Chucks, 1 Taper Chuck with Steel Center and Belting. In addition to this we add Chuck Block and Box, and 5 Wire Chucks worth at new list $6.75. So you are now virtually getting a high-grade Hard Lathe for $35.00, with chuck capacity large as the larges.. A Lathe is of no use to a watch repairer without Chucks; and a good Lathe is not reliable without good Chucks—and who wants imitation chucks at any price, when they can get the genuine for $1.25? WHO??

We have been waiting for some time for our competitors to get ready to reduce the price of chucks. We now make the GRAND DROP, and trust "the good time coming is almost here," when the watch repairers will take courage from the signs of the times and order one of THE BEST OF THE VERY BEST Lathes at the very best bargain he ever knew. If good crops, good weather, good trade and good tools won't make good watchmakers and repairers feel good, what will?

WE ARE NOW PREPARING STOCK FOR OUR 9999TH LATHE. NO. 1 2 AND NO. 2 HARD LATHES NOW LISTED AT SAME PRICE.

while entertaining remarks were made by Messrs. Babbitt, Cook, Griswold, Martin, Labelle, Garneau, Venter, Lyons, Springer, Brown, Muzzey, Haney, Byrne, and others. A toast to "The Big Clock" was offered by Mr. Babbitt, and Mr. Hollister gracefully responded for "The Ladies."

The plates were laid for 80 persons, of whom 20 were invited guests and newspaper representatives. Conspicuously placed near the head of the table was a massive silver water cooler which bore the inscription, "Made expressly for and presented to Wilson Bros. by the Hartford Silver Plate Co."

The Burglar of Hammersmith & Field's Store Captured.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 25.—The police have in their custody a man who confesses to the burglary of Hammersmith & Field's establishment, as reported in THE CIRCULAR two weeks ago. Thirty of the gold rings stolen from the store were found in his possession. A few of the rings he had sold. Three of the four opera-glasses stolen were found where the culprit told the officers to look for them—in a 3d St. pawnshop.

The fellow was arrested as the result of a drunken quarrel. On searching him, the thirty rings all bearing the tags of Hammersmith & Field, were found. The prisoner then confessed everything. He gave the name of Peter Hays, and claims to be a recent arrival from Chicago. He is a young man, about 30 years of age, bright and intelligent and is well dressed. Hayes insists that this is his first experience as a burglar. According to his story he was alone in the city, friendless and without a cent of money. Becoming desperate, he resolved to take the chance and smash in the store window with a piece of gaspipe.

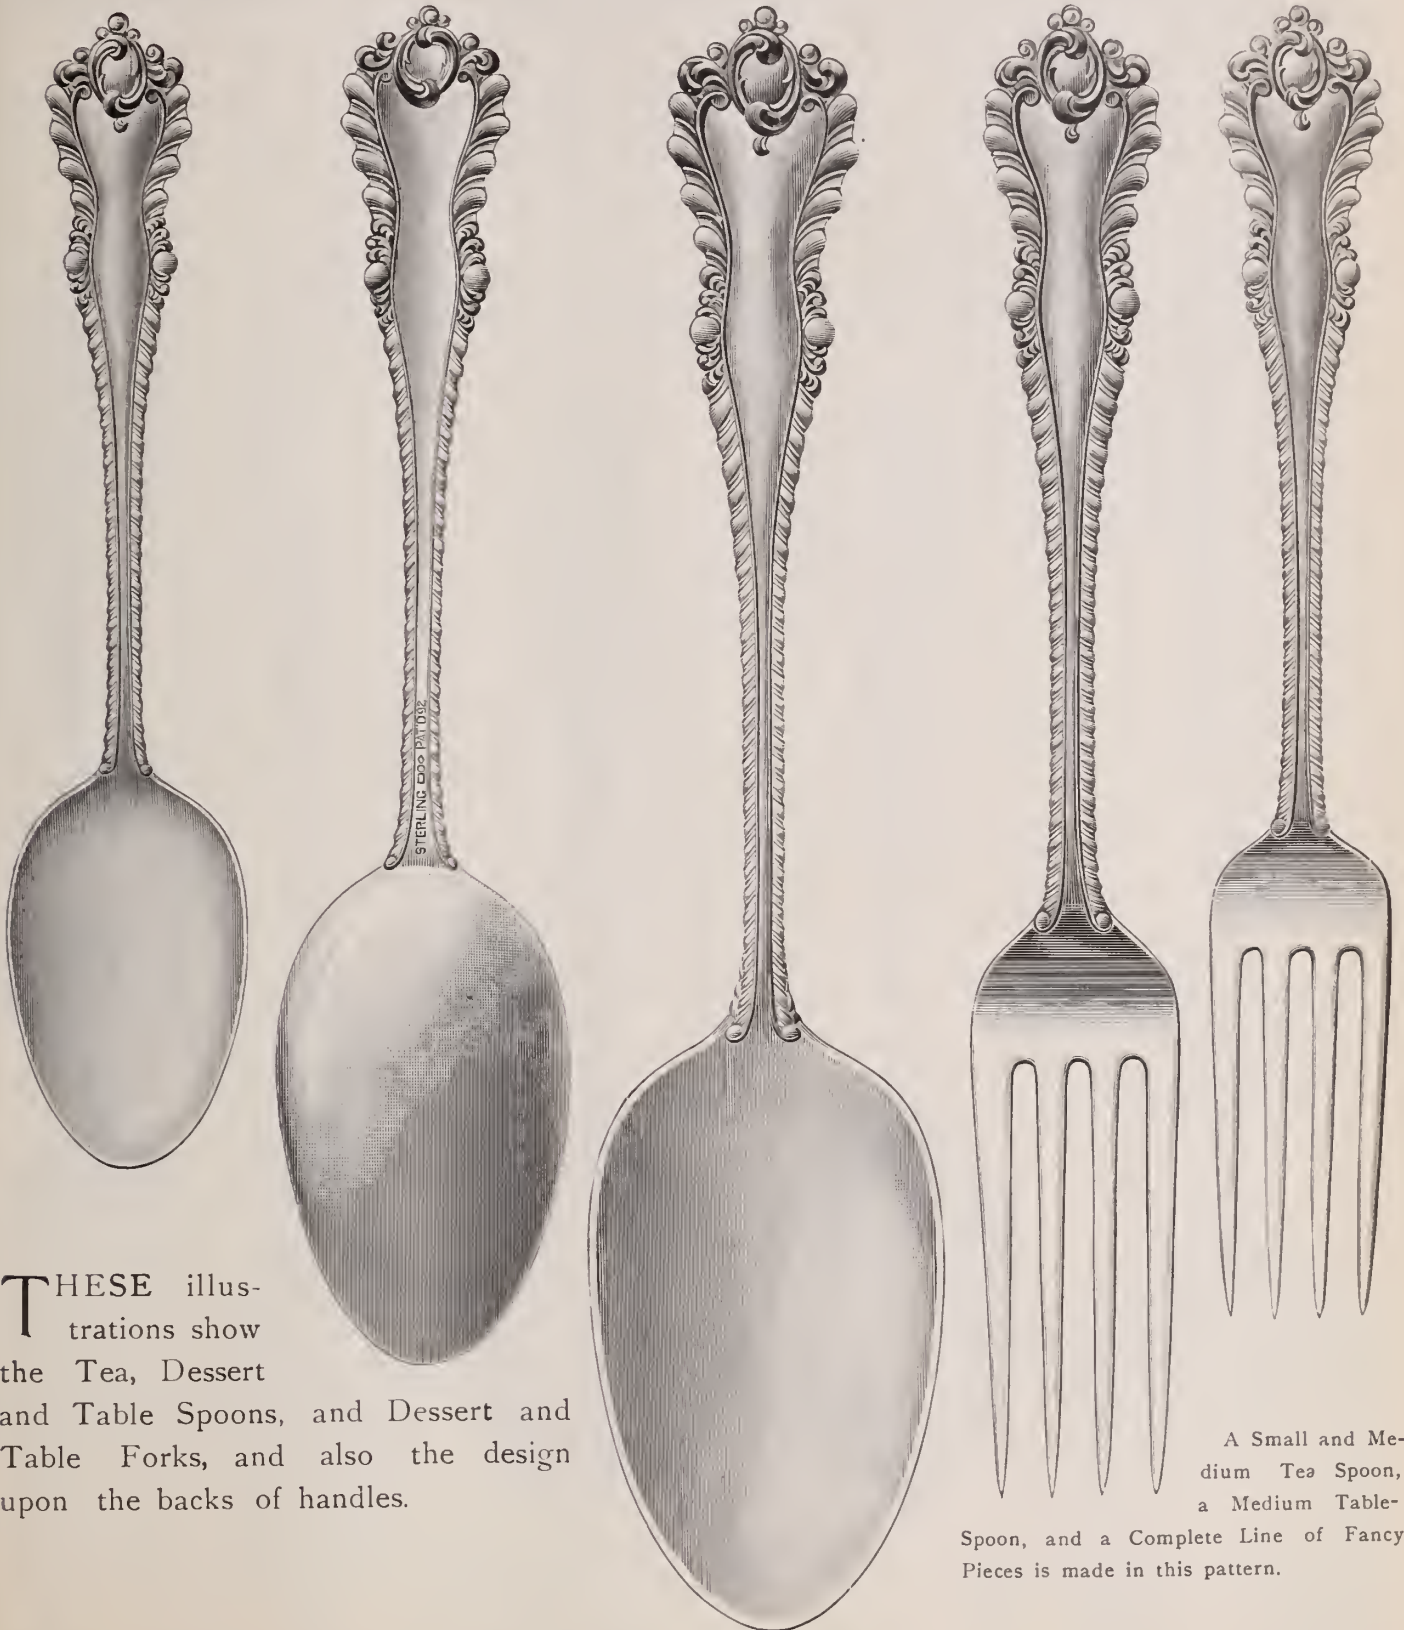

A Supposed Clever Bogus Diamond Dealer Arrested.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 1.—Harry Camp, who has been living at the Palmer House, applied to W. C. Kenney & Co., 105 Dearborn St., for a loan of $2,000 on some diamonds. Wednesday morning he brought over the jewels for inspection. The police were present, and two officers took Camp to the station and locked the stones up in the safe. Camp is said by the police to be an expert in painting off-colored stones to look like gems of the first water. If the diamonds sequestered prove to be all right, there is no case against him, but the Detroit police have been notified. He is wanted there.

The police claim that Camp has been in the bogus diamond business for years, and that he is the husband of Mrs. Alice Griffin, alias Evans, who a few months ago swindled Dr. McChesney, dentist, out of $600 by giving him a pair of painted diamond ear-rings as security for a loan for that amount. This case was reported in THE CIRCULAR at the time.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO
THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

Chicago Optical Houses at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—The exhibits in the Optical Department of the World's Columbian Exposition should prove of more than usual interest to every jeweler. Each line displayed will be in charge of an expert, that the new inventions and the improvements on old ones may be fully explained. Many of the instruments will be now for the first time shown the public. For self-evident reasons, no published details can be made at present, but it will be the aim of THE CIRCULAR to keep its readers fully informed in matters of general interest in this as in other lines as soon as is consistent with the private interests engaged. Said President A. L. Smith, of the Geneva Optical Co: "It is a little too early to say positively what we will do. We have as yet received no definite information as to our allotment of space, but have applied for space in both the Machinery Hall and the Manufactures Building, and will do the very best possible with the space at our command. Our exhibit will show a complete line of optical goods, photographic cameras, spectacles, eyeglasses, instruments for testing eyes, instruments for testing lenses, and trial cases. The best products of the factory will be represented."

F. A. Hardy & Co. will make no exhibit of their own goods. "We shall have charge of the exhibits of a number of Parisian manufacturers," said Mr. Hardy, "and the display will include every variety of optical goods made in Paris."

Dr. Sheardown, in charge of the stereopticon department of the McIntosh Battery & Optical Co., is enthusiastic over the opportunity the Fair affords manufacturers. "We will take the choicest things we have for our exhibit," said he. "Stereopticons will be shown ranging in value from $50 to $1,000. A special feature of this display will be a triple dissolving stereopticon made of aluminum. Another feature of the lantern line will be a powerful arc light stereopticon with 1,000 feet range projection. Microscopes will be fully represented in a line ranging from $1 to $500."

These will be but a part of the optical exhibit, but serve to show to what magnitude the whole will attain.

The American Waltham Watch Co. Will Probably Exhibit.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 30.—"If the desired space is allotted us and the conditions are favorable, we will probably make an exhibit," said Manager Kettle, of the Chicago office of the American Waltham Watch Co., when interviewed by THE CIRCULAR correspondent as to what action the company had decided on regarding the World's Fair. "Commissioner Hovey, chairman of the Massachusetts World's Fair Committee," continued Mr. Kettle, "was much put out over the delayed action of the company. Mr. Fitch does not favor an exhibit by the company, for several reasons, but representing but one voice in seven, he yields to majority rule and is willing the exhibit shall be made. And yet it is not positively decided we will make a display of our goods and processes. Our exhibit will be made in the horological department of the Manufactures Building, and we trust will be a satisfactory exposition of the watchmaking industry—satisfactory alike to ourselves and to the public."

"Our company has not changed in its former expressed determination, and will not," said President Avery, of the Elgin National Watch Co.

How Mrs. W. S. Haynes Works Her Little Dodge.

An ingenious swindle was perpetrated on a member of the New York Jewelers' Association last week. A woman of respectable appearance called upon the firm and selected a $750 pair of diamond earrings. She gave her name as Mrs. W. S. Haynes, and directed that the ear-rings be sent to her apartments in the Clinton, 253 W. 42d St., two days afterward when the money would be ready. She then left the office, but returned in about twenty minutes to ask of any of the clerks had seen her pocket-book, which she had lost. Nobody had seen it and the woman exhibited great distress, as all the money she had with her, $50, was in the pocket-book and she did not have car fare to reach home.

A member of the firm, having the sale in mind, handed her a two-dollar bill, which she thankfully accepted saying she would return it in the morning. The money not forthcoming the next day, the firm became suspicious. A detective was sent with the clerk to deliver the jewelry, and it transpired that Mrs. Haynes was in the habit of ordering goods and then losing her pocket-book to obtain a small advancement. The janitress of the house said that at various times packages came to the house, and, in the absence of Mrs. Haynes, were returned.

Last Rites in Honor of Wm. D. Fisher.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., Sept. 26.—The funeral of the late William D. Fisher took place yesterday afternoon. The homestead on Towne St. was thronged with people who wished to take a last view of the popular jeweler. Among these were many members of the trade from Boston, Providence and New York.

The employes of W. N. Fisher & Co. attended in a body and escorted the cortege to Mount Hope Cemetery. Stephen Stanley, T. S. Stanley, John Ricketts and W. H. Wilmarth were the bearers. Among the profusion of floral tributes was a large broken column from the employes of the deceased.

A Negro in Jail at Cheyenne Thought to be Mrs. Taylor's Assailant.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 28.—A report from Cheyenne Wells, this State, says that Sheriff Farnsworth has arrested a negro, giving his name as Noah Anderson, who was supposed to be an escaped prisoner from the Hugo (Col.) Jail. Sheriff Tompkins, of Lincoln County, was telegraphed for, and he did not find Anderson to be the man wanted.

Upon examination the negro was found to tally with the description given of Davis, the Sedalia rape fiend who assaulted Mrs. Taylor, and for whose arrest there is offered $1,800.

He has all of Davis' marks, including the scar on the scalp, wound above the forehead and the gunshot wound on the left knee. He is 25 or 26 years old. The sheriff has sent a photograph to the Sedalia police for identification.

Jewelers Not Well Represented at the Rhode Island State Fair.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 28.—The 72d annual fair of the Rhode Island State Fair Society was held at Narragansett Park last week and was one of the most successful in the history of the venture. Every line of business was well represented by tasty exhibits, with the exception of the jewelry industry. Several concerns made creditable displays, while other jewelers received prizes on horses and other animals on exhibition.

Charles F. Irons had an exhibit that was one of the most attractive and at the same time one of the most valuable in the entire fair. It occupied a space 12½ feet long and consisted of society charms, badges, emblems, buttons and pins, including the official souvenir emblems of the last three triennial conclaves of the Masonic fraternity. This concern provided the official souvenir medals of the State Fair, which were very pretty and met with a ready sale.

Himalayan rabbits and Guinea pigs. H. C. Lindol's yearling stallion Modesto was awarded a first premium.

B. Baxter, optician, had a fine display of all kinds of glasses, lenses, bows, frames and other optical supplies. Mrs. Cocciola, Salem, Mass., made a novel exhibit of fish-scale jewelry, made from the scales of the southern bass.

Plimpton & Smith, East Douglas, Mass., showed handsome articles of jewelry, tableware and novelties of pure aluminum that attracted considerable attention. Hope Plating Works, D. A. Follett, proprietor, 25 Calender St., had on exhibition specimens of replated table ware, composition cutlery, plating and other of their specialties.

Oscar M. Draper's bay mare Gretchen won first money in the 2.25 class on Friday, taking the first, second and sixth heats in 2:19½, 2:20¼ and 2:19½.

The Goldentine Mining & Manufacturing Co., 100 Broadway, New York, inveigled visitors out of a considerable amount by the sale of rings made of "goldentine," "so called on account of its close resemblance to gold—a composition of platinum, orioide block tin and bell metal, having all the durability and service of solid gold."

Indictment Found Against Her Notwithstanding Her Unsettled Mind.

LA GRANGE, Mo., Sept. 28.—Mrs. Ellery, of this city, who was arrested about a month ago in Quincy, Ill., for shoplifting at August Jacobs' jewelry store, has been indicted by the Grand Jury of Adams County. She has not been in good mental condition for years, and at a recent session of the Lewis County Court she was adjudged insane. Despite this, however, the indictment was found and her friends are indignant. She occupies a high social position.

Jeweler Righter Thought to be Suffering from Rabies.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Sept. 28.—Jeweler Fred. K. Righter, Conshohocken, is confined to his home suffering from the results of a peculiar accident. On last Thursday he was putting a tin roof on a dog kennel in his yard when he pinched two of the fingers of his right hand, raising a blister. After completing the work he returned to the store and opened the blister with a knife.

Late that evening a beagle hound was attacked by rabies, and before it could be killed a quantity of saliva dropped from his mouth to the grass. While Mr. Righter was engaged in cutting the grass next morning some of this saliva penetrated the cut made in the removal of the blister. He thought nothing of it until Sunday morning, when his hand began to swell. He immediately went to a specialist, who treated the wound. She visited her patient Monday morning, and finding him unimproved, ordered him to be shut in a dark room and the customary remedies for the prevention of hydrophobia applied.

Ferdinand Kraft, 336 Court St., Brooklyn N. Y., reported to the police last week that his store had been entered and a $30 watch stolen.

Two tramps last week stole about 50 watches from the store of Frank J. Williams, Mandan, N. Dak. One of the thieves was captured and the watches restored.

M. W. Galt, Washington, D. C., on Sept. 27 transferred to his sons, Walter A. Galt and Norman Galt, who have formed a co-partnership under the firm name of Galt & Brother, the jewelry business heretofore conducted under the name of M. W. Galt, Bro. & Co.

The stock of N. B. Donley, Missoula, Mont., will be sold at sheriff's sale Oct. 8. An invoice by the sheriff shows goods to the value of $29,000. Last Fall a local bank foreclosed a chattel mortgage for $13,000 and took possession. The stock is now turned over to the sheriff for disposal.

John Armstrong, an ex-convict, was sent to the penitentiary for one year last week for stealing a pocket-book from Mrs. Mary Kelly, 150 Norman Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. Armstrong has been identified as one of the men who stole two dozen silver spoons from A. A. Webster & Co., Brooklyn, and he will be tried on that charge at the expiration of his present term.

Montague & Co. Forced into an Assignment.

DULUTH, Minn., Sep. 28.—Montague & Co. made an assignment yesterday to W. E. Richardson. Creditors were made anxious by the Marine National Bank securing a judgment for $1,600 against the firm, and forced the suspension. The assets are estimated at $6,000, with liabilities of $5,000.

Haulers of Mail Packages Arrested for Thievery.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 3.—John Hooper, James Hirst, Charles Seboch, Richard Dixon, John McGarvey and Charles Kane, drivers for the express company that hauls the mail from the post-office to the various railroad stations, have been committed for trial by U. S. Commissioner Craig for stealing packages while in transit. The bulk of these packages contained eye-glasses and jewelry, and the principal losers are Queen & Co., John Wanamaker, M. Zineman & Bro., Bailey, Banks & Biddle, John L. Borsch; Wall, Ox & Co., S. S. White Dental Co., G. E. Jacobs and Simons, Bro. & Co.

It was shown by the testimony that the pilferers sold the stolen articles to jeweler F. W. Dedlow, 10th and Race Sts. M. Zineman & Bro. are the heaviest sufferers by the men's peculations, their loss amounting to about $800. The others lost packages valued altogether at between $100 and $300 each.

Failed Because of the Demoralization of His Bicycle Business.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 3.—George E. Wheelhouse, manufacturing jeweler and bicycle dealer, on Friday failed for about $11,000. The assets are about $8,000. A judgment for $2,500 is confessed to his wife.

A large bicycle firm here failed recently, and put machines on sale at ruinous prices. Mr. Wheelhouse is a popular young man, and his friends will undoubtedly come to his assistance and put him on his feet again in the jewelry business.

The Safe Blown Open and Robbed of Money.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 1.—The jewelry store of G. P. Gaines & Co. at Corona was entered by burglars last night and the safe robbed of $600 in cash. The robbers effected an entrance by breaking open a rear window. The safe was drilled and then blown open.

Two strangers who had been in town for a day exhibiting a novelty known as "Sullivan's puncher" are suspected, and they are known to have purchased tickets for Birmingham on the night of the robbery. All efforts to apprehend them have failed up to date.

A Case Capable of More Than One Interpretation.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 28.—The story of how J. Knudson, a jeweler, of Perth Amboy, was swindled by a New York bunco man, who was apparently assisted by a woman who had recently established a residence at Carteret, came to light yesterday. For several weeks past a man who gave his name as J. M. Dewitt has boarded in Perth Amboy, and also acted as assistant freight agent at the Carteret station of the Jersey Central Railroad. Tuesday evening a week ago Dewitt went to Perth Amboy with a man named Cox.

In passing by Mr. Knudson's store Cox remarked that he knew Mr. Knudson. They went into the store, and Dewitt told Mr. Knudson that if he would take a certain watch to Carteret he could sell it to a lady named Mrs. J. Ray. Next day Mr. Knudson took the watch to Carteret, in company with Dewitt. Mrs. Ray purchased the watch, paying cash for it. Mrs. Ray then told Mr. Knudson that she would like to buy some diamonds, and he went to New York and selected the jewelry.

The next morning, according to appointment, he appeared at the Central depot and Dewitt was there waiting. Mr. Knudson was about to buy a ticket to Carteret. Dewitt said: "No. Unless you are willing to take a note for the diamonds, you had better buy a ticket to New York, as Mrs. Ray will have to get the money from the bank there." Mr.

Knudson did not want a note, and bought the ticket to New York. Mrs. Ray was at the depot in Carteret waiting for the train. On arriving at New York they went to the United States Hotel. Mrs. Ray examined the diamonds, and said she would buy them if Mr. Knudson would consent to go to a jeweler and get his opinion on them. They went to the Fifth Avenue Hotel. It was raining. Dewitt handed his umbrella to Mr. Knudson and went into Sandifer's store to have the stones examined. Mrs. Ray engaged Mr. Knudson in conversation, and after looking at the show window for a moment Mr. Knudson glanced into the store and missed Dewitt. He had slipped out through the side door of the store and made good his escape with the diamonds.

Mrs. Ray seemed to be overcome with surprise and insisted upon going home at once. Mr. Knudson detained her and, on the advice of a policeman, went in company with Mrs. Ray to Superintendent Byrnes' office, where they met Detective Hulsizer, to whom Knudson told how he had been robbed. While he was so engaged Mrs. Ray left the room and he has not seen her since. Detective Hulsizer told him that the woman had told him that Dewitt had also taken the money with which she intended to pay for the diamonds, and he had allowed her to depart.

There is no detective named Hulsizer on Inspector Steers' staff, and the latter says he has not heard of the alleged swindle.

Decision in the Infringement Suit Against the Illinois Watch Co. Affirmed.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 4.—The United States Court of Appeals on Saturday affirmed the decree of the United States Circuit Court in the suit of Messrs. Robbins and Avery against the Illinois Watch Co. for infringement of patent on stem-setting watches. The decision in the lower court held that the patent of Messrs. Robbins and Avery, trustees, was good and valid; that defendants' movements infringe the same, and an injunction was issued restraining further infringement. Suit for damages will be commenced by the American Waltham and Elgin National Watch Companies.

The Right Machine at Last.

I recently decided that before publishing my forthcoming Book

"THE PRACTICAL ELECTRO PLATER,"

I would, if possible, find or produce a dynamo capable of efficiently fulfilling all the requirements of the numerous original processes I shall describe in the volume.

I have, after diligent investigation and earnest study, succeeded in producing and am having manufactured the

Brunor Dynamo Electro Plating Machine, which will soon be placed in the market.

Among the advantages of the new machine will be an efficient current at a low rate of speed, self-oiling bearings, a new system of brush holders and an improved commutator.

My book, in addition to the formulas and instructions for using my numerous secret processes for coloring, gilding, silvering, oxidizing, etc., will contain a description of this machine and its several parts, together with minute instructions for its use.

"The Practical Electro Plater" will be sold by subscription only. I am convinced that its merits will be recognized by the American trade. The large number of subscriptions already received is a substantial proof of the confidence of those who know the character of my processes.

Subscription blanks mailed on request.

SOUVENIR SPOONS OF AMERICA.

The Most Interesting Book for Jewelers ever Published.

PRICE, 25 CENTS.

DISCOUNT FOR QUANTITIES.

WHAT THE PRESS SAYS:

Every City Represented.

THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR Publishing Company issued a hand-book called "The Souvenir Spoons of America." One hundred and eighty-nine spoons are described and illustrated in this hand-book. Every prominent city is represented by its souvenir spoon or spoon.—Camden, N. J., News.

It Appeals to a Large Circle of Readers

Souvenir Spoons of America: Being an account of the Prevailing Fashions in this Country of Collecting Souvenir Spoons, with Description of the Principal Designs—A compilation, with numerous additions of a series of articles on Souvenir Spoons published in the JEWELERS' CIRCULAR from March 25th to July 29th of the current year. The volume is artistically printed and illustrated, and appeals to a much wider circle of readers than that made up by the members of the jewelry trade. Its superior press-work, paper and decorations make this one of the few books that are actually worth their price.—Book Chat.

Propounder of Information.

The publishers of "Souvenir Spoons of America" are setting forth the encyclopedic value of the work as an addition to art libraries, and say that they could be "profitably used in the schools as propounders of general information." To this we respectfully except. There are too many spoons in the schools now, and some of them profess to be "propounders of general information," calling themselves, and paid as, "teachers"—New York Daily Advertiser.

An Able Account of the Fad.

Our sanctum has been enlivened with a copy of the JEWELERS' CIRCULAR's book on "Souvenir Spoons of America." It is an able account of this present "fad" with a description of the principal designs now prevalent. It is well written, and gotten up in good shape, the press-work being unusually good, and altogether is a book well worth the price to any jeweler who carries in stock souvenir spoons.—National Retail Jeweler.

A Curious and Interesting Book.

The collecting of souvenir spoons has become the greatest fad of such a nature that the American public has ever indulged in. Every city and town of any prominence or containing any romantic episode in its history is now represented by a spoon, and it is safe to say that $500,000 is invested in the manufacture of these souvenirs. One hundred and eighty-nine spoons are described and illustrated in a book published by the JEWELERS' CIRCULAR Publishing Co., of New York, the descriptive portions giving the significance of each design, with a relation of the various events commemorated. The volume is a curious work, for besides being a complete guide to the fad it is an encyclopedia of interesting events, briefly and pointedly written. The letter press, illustrations and ornamental features are in complete consonance with the artistic nature of the subject treated. The volume is interesting to others besides souvenir spoon collectors.—Huntingdon Globe, Pa.

The Meriden Silver Plate Co. have decided to shut down the glass department of their business. This decision was reached after a conference between the company and a com-

The assignment of C. Williscraft, Smith's Falls, Ont., was precipitated by a creditor who had obtained judgment against him, and was about to make a seizure of the stock. He claims to have $3,000 in assets, and that his liabilities do not amount to one half of that sum. Under the circumstances his creditors are likely to grant him a settlement, although there is, perhaps, too much competition in his line in that locality.

Our Traveling Representatives.

THE fine personality of Christopher Morgan, or, as his numerous friends like to call him, Chris. Morgan, removes him as far from the popular conception of the conventional traveling salesman as the popular conception of any fact always is from the reality. His tall, imposing, well-formed figure is thoroughly familiar to the jobbing trade throughout the country, while his genial, high-bred manners, and sincere, sterling qualities have produced for him a popularity among men that many aspire to but few attain.

On the 11th of this month Chris. Morgan will be 40 years of age. He was born among the rugged hills of Connecticut, the village of Ledyard being his birthplace. The Morgans were among the earliest settlers in America, the original family having cast their lot among the pioneers in New London in 1620. When Chris. was eight years of age his father and mother died and he was left on his own resources. He worked upon a farm during the Summer months, and during the Winter gathered such learning as the East Greenwich Seminary afforded. He subsequently for a couple of years taught in the public schools of Norwich, and thence attended the State Normal School of New Britain, which was a teachers' preparatory institute. But his intention of becoming a proficient pedagogue was never realized; for instead of devoting his abilities to the dissemination of knowledge regarding verbs and square roots among the rising generation, he applied himself to the dissemination of knowledge concerning silver-plated ware among the merchants of the country. In 1875 he became a traveling salesman for Hall, Elton & Co., Wallingford, Conn., with whom he remained until 1886, when he engaged with Rogers & Bro., Waterbury, whom he still represents. He has charge of the large jobbing trade from Boston to the west, and disposes of all the famous ★ Rogers & Bro. goods from the factory. Mr. Morgan has a pretty homestead in Mystic, Conn., where he lives with his wife and two handsome children. He is a Knight Templar and Mystic Shriner.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 23.—John Green, son of jeweler Thomas Green, attempted to commit suicide in the street Monday night by taking an ounce of chloroform. It seems that young Green and Tom Cushing are rivals for the affections of a Miss Curtis. Both are young, both apple-cheeked and rosy, but somehow young Cushing got off in the lead, and on Sunday night the race ended with Green distanced.

The youth was taken to a police station, where by the administration of a strong emetic, his life was saved.

VOL. XXV. OCT. 5, 1892. NO. 10.

THE CIRCULAR this week contains another report of the capture of a negro supposed to have been the fiend who assaulted Mrs. Taylor, of Sedalia, Mo. This case bids fair to equal that of the murderer Tascott, or of the abductors of Charlie Ross. Mrs. Taylor's assailant is caught once a week.

THE impression has been general that the American Waltham Watch Co. would not make an exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition, and much surprise has been expressed in the trade that the company should fail to be in hearty accord with so grand an opportunity of displaying their products to the hundreds of thousands of persons who will visit the Fair. It would seem that the action now taken by the company, as reported in this issue of THE CIRCULAR, must inure to their advantage.

The Per Se Value Must be Set Forth. IN a circular recently issued, the Treasury Department directs attention to the fact that there is a lack of uniformity in the enforcement by collectors at the several ports of certain provisions of the Customs Administrative Law of 1890 relating to the invoice value of imported goods. These sections provide that each invoice shall clearly exhibit the actual cost of the goods per se, and shall specify the value of all packages and coverings, and all other costs incident to preparing goods for shipment. The circular condemns the practice which has grown up of permitting importers to declare the gross price of the goods, with a statement that certain non-dutiable elements are included in such price. The basis of fresh litigation is thus established. The Department instructs the collectors to reject on entry all invoices which do not distinctly set forth the per se value of the goods, and not to permit a deduction from the price so declared of any so-called non-dutiable items.

Antient those Licenses. THE form of license issued by the Elgin National Watch Co., reprinted in this number of THE CIRCULAR, will prove interesting reading matter. The form issued by the American Waltham Watch Co. is essentially the same, the difference residing in the specification of patents under which the company's products are made. The advantage of the license over the contract heretofore employed lies in the fact that the licensor can more surely enforce legitimate dealing in watches, as it is a law of the country that the owner of a patented article can control its sale.

Jewel Parties. FOR a Winter evening's amusement for companies of young people, a jewel party is suggested by an æsthetic exchange. The directions for such a party are as follows: Request the guests to wear as many different varieties of jewels and precious stones as possible, and to be able to tell where and how each is obtained, describe the processes through which it passes and give any other interesting facts concerning it that he or she may be able to gather. Any old legend or superstition connected with a precious stone would prove interesting, and it would not be amiss to mention the owners and history of some of the noted jewels of the same kind. Undoubtedly such an affair would prove instructive as well as entertaining, for history and legend provide numerous stories regarding diamonds, pearls, opals and other precious stones, while altogether, none of man's handiwork is of such universal interest as jewels and jewelry. Retail dealers when possible should encourage the holding of these parties, as they would tend to increase their business.

A Jeweler Tries to Kill his Parents, Desperado Fashion.

FRENCHTOWN, N. J., Sept. 30.—Wilson Lundy, jeweler, attempted to murder his parents early yesterday morning. He procured a revolver, chased them through the house and fired several shots at them, none of which took effect. He has been a reader of dime novels all his life, and, it is thought became suddenly insane, when he attempted to commit the rash deed. He will be taken to the Morris Plains Asylum to-day.

Two men entered the jewelry store of Morris Immergluck, 228 Chrystie St., last Tuesday evening and asked to be shown diamond studs. When a tray of jewelry was placed before them, one of the men attracted Mr. Immergluck's attention to another part of the store, while the other seized a handful of jewelry and ran out. When the jeweler attempted to give chase, the thief's companion seized him by the throat. His cries for help attracted the attention of a policeman, who caught the man with the jewelry. The other escaped. The prisoner who gave the name of Henry Talbot, was held for trial. He had thrown the jewelry away.

Missing Jeweler Horne Shows Up Under Criminal Circumstances.

He is held on a charge of attempted murder, he having fired, it is alleged, four shots at his partner, intending to kill him.

It appears that when Horne left Nashua he went to Toronto, Ont., and remained there a short time, afterward going to Independence, Ia., and under the name of A. L. Moore, entered into partnership with the man whom he is now charged with having attempted to kill.

[A full account of this shooting affray is published elsewhere in this number of THE CIRCULAR.—ED.]

Walked in and Squirted Ammonia Into the Jeweler's Eyes.

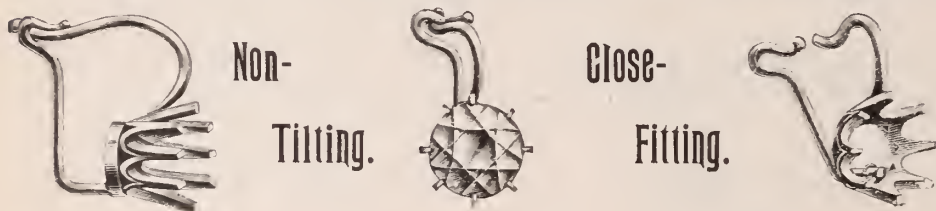

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Shortly before noon to-day a well-dressed man entered the jewelry store of Peter Fredericks, 1171 Broadway, Williamsburgh, and said that he wanted to see some gold watches. Mr. Fredericks, who was behind the counter at the time, complied with the request and handed over a tray containing four gold watches. The stranger began to examine them carefully, picking one up at a time. After a few minutes' examination of the watches he told Mr. Fredericks that he would take one, shoving one of the watches aside. He then put his hand into his pocket as though for the purpose of taking out the money to pay for it.

Instead of the money, he pulled out a syringe filled with ammonia which he squirted into Frederick's eyes. The jeweler yelled with pain, and the thief, seeing his chance, picked up two watches and started for the door. Mr. Fredericks cried at the top of his voice, and a young man, John McNeary, who was passing the store at the time, hastened in to see what was the matter. He ran straight into the thief as he was coming out.

Acting on the impulse of the moment, and thinking that the stranger was the cause of the trouble, he put out his hands and caught the stranger around the neck.

The man was arrested. At the station house the prisoner gave his name as John Collins, 27 years old. When searched, the two gold watches were found in the pocket of his overcoat. A physician who was called to attend Mr. Fredericks says that, although his eyes are badly burned, yet he will not lose his sight.

SOUVENIR SPOONS, COMMEMORATING COLUMBUS, WORLD'S FAIR AND CHICAGO.

PART I.

THE next two weeks or so will see great times in numerous cities of the Union. Everything and everybody are Columbus-crazy and as far as the Metropolis is concerned no matter seems to actuate the mind of the public other than the great Columbian Celebration to be inaugurated Saturday. The preparations for the enormous occasion have been under way for several weeks past, and this is the last week for work before the music begins.

The Committee of One Hundred of the Columbus Celebration, the Naval Parade Committee, the Committee on Military Parade and on Civic Parade, and on School Parade, the thousand and one sub-committees and that you discovered for us before you got to be a shade, and old Father Knickerbocker will start the ball a-rolling with credit to you and to himself and to all of us.

Celebrations, on undoubtedly a minor scale, will take place generally throughout the country, and everything Columbian will boom to fever heat. The sale of Columbus, World's Fair and Chicago souvenir spoons sents the Victory design, World's Columbian Exposition souvenir spoon produced by the Alvin Mfg. Co., 860 Broadway, New York. The spoon is an unusually attractive one, the allegorical design at the top of the handle being especially striking. It is a very poetical treatment of the event to be commemorated, representing as it does Victory with trumpet and laurel in hand, seated on the earth. The handle shows also an architectural column festooned with floral garlands, typical of the character of the occasion, while the bowl contains a bird's-eye view of the Exposition buildings and grounds. The die-work of this spoon is of a high character, and altogether, the spoon is a thoroughly commend-executive committees and special committees are at it tooth and nail, and before the next Sabbath dawns every big feature and every little detail of the grandest manifestation of popular enthusiasm that New York has 'seen in many a long year will have been cared for. All hail the shade of Columbus! There are going to be some great doings on this glorious continent will undoubtedly be very extensive, and as jewelers generally will desire to know exactly what articles in this line are on the market, it is the purpose of THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR to set aside in its issues for the next fortnight such space as is necessary to allow of illustrations and descriptions of these dainty works in silver.

Referring to the illustrations, No. 1 repre-able piece of work. It is made in tea and orange sizes, and can be ordered with the bowl containing the view or plain. The back of the spoon is plain and bright-finished.

spoons, 58 Warren St., New York. The multiplicity of details in the design of the former is admirably proportioned, and the whole is symmetrical, comprehensive and attractive. The likeness of the discoverer of America, which forms the top of the handle, is reproduced from the famous painting that was accepted as an authentic portrait by the Spanish Government. Under this likeness, within a panel bearing the words "Christ. Columbus, Santa Maria," is a pretty representation of that vessel. Along the stem of the handle is the date, 1492, the coat of arms of the United States, and the words "Columbian Exposition," tastefully arranged and decorated. The bowl contains a view of one of the Exposition buildings with the words, "Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1892-3." The workmanship embodied in this spoon is of a superior character and is a beautiful specimen of the designer's and engraver's art. The spoon is made in sterling silver, triple plate, or aluminum. No. 3 is essentially a souvenir of Columbus, containing on the handle a portrait of the discoverer, a picture of his craft, the Santa Maria, handsomely embellished with floral decorations, the name, Columbus, dates 1492 and 1892, and the United States coat of arms. The spoon is made in triple plate only, oxidized, and with gold-lined bowl and sells at a low figure.

Anent the Christopher Columbus spoon, obverse and reverse views of which are shown in illustrations No. 4 and 4a. it may be said that the Tilden-Thurber Co., Providence, R. I., have produced a souvenir that appeals to the 60,000,000 people, the population of the United States. We quote from "Souvenir Spoons of America":

"Of Columbus spoons, the one placed on the market by Tilden-Thurber Co., Providence, R. I., will command much attention by reason of its exquisite workmanship and intrinsic merits. As seen from the illustration, the outline of the handle is of a very original pattern. On the upper part of the handle is a panel with a frame of rococo style, within which is a portrait of Columbus reproduced from the fine mosaic presented by the city of Venice to the city of Genoa. Below this panel is a smaller one in which is seen a globe, sextant and other emblemata of navigation. Along the shank of the handle are the date, 1492, and the words Christopher Columbus, in antique letters. The bowl depicts the great discoverer sighting the shore, a picture that is familiar to every one by reason of its use on our national bank note. In the top panel, on the reverse side of the handle, is stamped a representation of the Santa Maria, Columbus' flagship, flying the Admiral's pennant. In the smaller panel is an anchor. Altogether, the spoon is thoroughly emblematical of the sailing of Columbus and discovery of America." This spoon is made in tea and orange sizes, with plain or decorated bowls.

Odds and Ends of News.

E. Adelstein has moved from Smithfield, Va., to Newport News, Va.

Francis Enos, Dennis Port, Mass., has deeded real estate for $900.

J. C. Gray, Cortlandt, N. Y., has given a chattel mortgage for $1,300.

The Duluth (Minn.) Board of Education has awarded the contract for the new central high school clock to F. D. Day, a jeweler of that city. The contract calls for a full-chime clock of the largest size. Mr. Day has consented to have the chime in operation in time for "Columbus Day." The new timepiece will be made by the E. Howard Watch & Clock Co., of Boston.

A number of firms have been obliged to add new machinery and increase their force of help on account of the requirements of the fifty-five hour factory law, which forbids girls and all boys under 18 years of age working more than fifty-five hours a week.

Newark is said to lead all other cities in the manufacture of campaign badges. One firm has just received an order from an eastern house for 15,000 Columbus badges, and the New York State Democratic Committee have ordered 10,000 buttons of Jefferson in colors.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A PARTNERSHIP.

A partnership is based upon a mutuality of loss and profit to some extent and in some degree, and where one, with no intention of entering into a copartnership, agrees to allow another a share in the profits of a business as compensation for his services as an employe, and the latter is not to share in the losses, there is no copartnership.

Trade Gossip.

J. M. Van Slyke, of John Larson & Co., Madison, Wis., was in Chicago last week, and said the firm were having a large demand for the Cleveland and Harrison souvenir spoons lately put on the market by them. The sales exceed expectations.

Jonas, Dorst & Co., Cincinnati, O., continue to supply the diamond trade. They have enjoyed the patronage of a very large section of the United States this season, and are likely to continue busy the rest of the year.

If you have not already taken advantage of the offer of J. N. Provenzano, 39 Union Sq., New York, specified in his advertisement on another page, you should do so at once as the demand for silver spoons of pierced and filagree work will undoubtedly be very great during the Fall season. These spoons are of exquisite workmanship.

Robert Stoll, 19 John St., New York, manufacturer of badges, medals, etc., is working on a gold medal that is to be presented to the bicycle rider having the best decorated machine on the night parade of the Columbus Celebration. Mr. Stoll produces many handsome medals for athletic contests and has gained a wide reputation for the beauty of his work.

Lévy, Dreyfus & Co., 9 and 11 Maiden Lane, New York, have established an optical school in connection with their wholesale optical department, in which the course is free to jewelers and opticians. The firm having recently acquired the store 9, Maiden Lane, are enabled to devote more space and greater facilities to the conducting of a school than perhaps any other similar establishment.

The Spencer Optical Mfg. Co., 15 Maiden Lane, New York, report the present season's business to be the largest since their incorporation. Forty clerks are kept busy, and the firm have added facilities by which they are enabled to ship goods promptly on receipt of orders. The stock of Audemair opera-glasses shown by the house is enormous. Many new improvements in spectacles and eye-glasses have been recently produced, which are becoming very popular.

The new catalogue for 1893, of electro-plated ware issued by Simpson, Hall, Miller & Co., Wallingford, Conn., is one of the handsomest publications of its kind ever produced in the trade. It consists of sixty-one profusely illustrated 11 x 9 pages, bound in a cover that is an eloquent exposition of the possibilities of the binder's art. It consists of thick pasteboard tinted to admirably represent ivory. One half of the cover shows daisies and roses in embossed work, while the remaining half is devoted to the title presented in raised gold letters. The many illustrations in the catalogue are printed in chocolate-color ink on heavy paper. Jewelers desiring a copy of the work should send their business card to the house.

A remarkably attractive piece of work is the 432 pp. catalogue of F. M. Sproehle & Co., Chicago, to be out in October.

The Wm. L. Gilbert Clock Co. expect shortly to place on the market a full line of onyx goods with new movements. They have never previously carried a complete line of these goods.

The F. Kroeber Clock Co., 360 Broadway, New York, have issued revised price-lists of French onyx and marble clocks with French and American movements, which should be in the hands of every jeweler.

The New Haven Clock Co. are issuing a supplementary World's Fair catalogue to their catalogue of 1891, it being specially designed for holiday trade. This should not be confounded with their 1893 catalogue, which is now in course of preparation.

The Barbour Silver Co., Hartford, Conn., show a handsome line of solid silver hollow ware and are now prepared to attend the wants of customers throughout the country. For this purpose a full line of samples is to be found at the Chicago branch house.

The Safety Spectacle and Eye-Glass Case is the name of a new case for spectacles and eye-glasses recently brought out by Queen & Co., 1010 Chestnut St., Philadelphia. Send for descriptive circular. Queen & Co.'s lens grinding outfit has attracted much attention, because of its simplicity and comprehensiveness and its low price.

The Nicholson File Co., Providence, R. I., have issued a circular in which they explain the arrangement of the teeth in the increment cut files manufactured exclusively by them. Files of this make can cut more smoothly and more rapidly, and possess greater endurance as tools for dressing metal than files made on other principles.

C. Hellebush, Cincinnati, O., is having great success in watches this season. The firm has entered the arena to win, and has stocked up in every salable line. Chronographs from finest imported makes to the Jockey Club horse-timers at such low figures as to place them within the reach of all the sporting fraternity, are contained in this stock.

Duhme & Co., Cincinnati, O., are maintaining their commercial importance this season by the distribution of an immense stock contracted for by Chas. Ankeny early in the season. The Fall stock will embrace a large line of imported novelties bought by R. H. Galbreath, who spent the Summer abroad selecting art pieces and rare novelties for the holiday trade.

The engagements made during the hot months of the Summer will soon be followed by the more serious events, which involve visits to jewelry stores for plain gold rings. The Hildreth Mfg. Co., 53 Maiden Lane, New York, are manufacturing exclusively a line of plain rings which have the finest possible finish that good workmanship, good metal and long experience can produce.

Flower cups for individual salt-cellars are among the new table articles of service.

The old-fashioned double sleeve-buttons of equal size and importance have reappeared.

Heart-shaped candlesticks of tortoise shell mounted in silver gilt with heart-shaped lips are among the prettiest of novelties.

A charming necklace has a number of colored stones swinging from it at different lengths. They have the air of attractive irregularity.

The more beautiful clear crystal vases are shaped like the cornucopias of a Christmas tree, and wreathed with silver flowers which terminate in a standard.

Champagne holders have spiral flutes curiously depicted which makes them look weird. The handle is split, and opens midway to receive the contents.

Liquor sets are prominent either in Russian enamel or repoussé work. The decanters are very low-bodied. The glasses are set in perforated silver, enameled or raised.

New salt-flasks of crystal mounted in silver and silver-gilt have separate compartments with perforated bands. Through these interstices the inspiring scent may perfume a room.

The tendency toward floral forms is seen everywhere. While novelty is always pleasing, flowers as a motif for ornament and decoration are more appealing than insects, toads and snakes.

One of the prettiest of the new round brooches has a diamond center, with colored stones radiating on spiky stems. The last circle has these stones set round and in tulip-shaped forms, alternating, or as one might say, set as roses and tulips.

Silver vegetable dishes and their platters and salvers generally have plain surfaces, excepting the edges, that are in high rich raised work. The covers of vegetable dishes have on their highest curve a narrow band of this raised work.

Library sets seem to indicate that this is to be an epistolary season. At least they furnish every temptation to make it one. The latest form has a raised tray fenced in on three sides by a perforated railing. The tray is covered with white blotting paper, and on it are the silver-mounted implements.

Enamel flower pins for the hair have a new lease of life. These are in silver and mounted on silver pins with an interposing spiral spring that gives them movement. One of the prettiest instances is a morningg-lory, not in positive tints, but in silvery tints gently shading into pink and blue.

What We are all Talking About.

"A perfect sapphire is as difficult to find as a perfect ruby, or, indeed, as a perfect any other gem. When perfect, however, it is a 'find' to be guarded and treasured with care and tenderness. The sapphire was dedicated to the Sun God, and even as St. Jerome declared that it softened the ire of Jehovah, so did it procure good influences for the offerer from Phœbus the Far Darter. Sapphire signifies hope, and, because of its calming and chastening properties, a sapphire is held as the best stone which an ecclesiastic can wear."

"When platinum was higher than gold it was practically impossible to sell goods combining gold and platinum," said Wm. H.

Ball, of Wm. H. Ball & Co. "Take a chain like this," gesturing to the one he wears, "the gold and platinum links are of exactly the same size, but we had to charge more for the chain than if it had been all gold, for the platinum weighs more than the gold. I tried to prove this to a customer by giving the specific gravity of the two metals, still he was not convinced; so I took a piece of gold and a piece of platinum, rolled through the same roll, and cut them into pieces of exact size. When they were put into a balance the end with the platinum went down."

"There is a perfect craze for old silver ornaments just now in London," said a tourist recently returned from Europe. "Shoe buckles of curious workmanship and bearing the very first Hall marks are greatly cherished. A lady was given as a wedding present a pair of these, a belt buckle, a velvet net bag set in silver, a lovely old fob watch chain and set of seals, all of exactly the same period and bearing the same marks. A silver fancier told her the other day how valuable, rare and fashionable they were. She has promptly sent off to have shoes made for the buckles, a dress specially designed for the belt and bag, and a fob watch-pocket introduced somehow. One of the smartest adornments for a dark Autumn hat will be a genuine old silver buckle. Of course, these things will have imitated Hall marks, and be all in modern silver, but there are signs and tokens by which the genuine things can always be known, and the triumph lies in knowing this."

Clockless Countries.

LIBERIA, in Africa, has neither clock nor timepiece of any sort. The reckoning of time is made entirely by the movement and position of the sun, which rises at 6 A.M. and sets at 6 P.M., almost to the minute, the year round, and at noon it is vertically overhead. The islanders of the South Pacific have no clocks, but make a curious time-marker of their own. They take the kernels from the nuts of the candle tree and wash and string them on the rib of a palm leaf. The first or top kernel is then lighted. All of the kernels are of the same size and substance, and each will burn a certain number of minutes and then set fire to the next one below.

Among the natives of Singar, in the Malay Archipelago, another peculiar device is used. Two bottles are placed neck to neck, and sand is placed in one of them, which pours itself into the other one every half hour, when the bottles are reversed. There is a line near by also, on which are hung twelve rods marked with notches from one to twelve. A regularly appointed keeper attends to the bottles and rods and sounds the hours upon a gong.—New York Herald.

VARIETY IN THE STYLE OF BRACELET CLASPS—CORSAGES TO BE GEM-ORNAMENTED THE COMING WINTER—LADIES' WATCHES STILL WORN IN THE MANNER OF BADGES—OLD IVORY GOODS AT BOUCHERON'S—THE USE OF LARGE SINGLE COLORED STONES—FANCY BROOCHES AND FICHU PINS—A REMARKABLE TRAY FOR VISITING CARDS.

PARIS, France, September 23.—A very interesting study consists in examining the various patterns of bracelet clasps. Not only have our jewelers endeavored to greatly vary bracelet bands, but they constantly imagine new designs for clasps. Some bracelets have a band in plain gold with a very elaborate ornament made of gathered stones on the clasp; others have a band sparkling with jewels, and a clasp formed of two elongated cat's eyes tipped with gold balls held together by a tight chain, which an invisible spring when touched causes to drop. A bracelet resembling a garter shows a ribbon in rippling blue enameled gold like water silk, with an oval diamond ring caught by a hook closely studded with brilliants. I need not mention the numerous patterns introducing snakes, fleur-de-lis, stars, horseshoes, trefoils, pansies, birds and insects. Some bracelets have on the clasp a miniature portrait or a love scene framed with pearls; others show an artistic fancy coin or medal in translucent enamel in relief. A curious bracelet has a band consisting of a haughty motto in gothic letters made of chased red gold with oak leaves in green gold tastefully scattered among them. The clasp is formed by a lion's mask, in very high relief, holding in its mouth a masculine hand. To take the bracelet off, the wearer must release the hand.

It is reported that this winter corsages will have the plastrons (fronts) decorated with fancy stones. There is evidently a great field in this line, and numerous patterns of embroidery introducing fancy gems of various tints can be devised by dressmakers with the help of jewelers. If harmony of colors be observed, remarkable effects can be obtained. Among fancy stones some are semi-opaque and of a quiet luster; others are sparkling with changing colors reminding us of peculiar liquors which, being served in glasses of a special shape, have a strange yet beautiful glow when sunlight plays on them. If this fashion does succeed, let us hope that ladies of wealth will have their corsages embroidered with precious stones, instead of imitation ones. Let us further hope that dresses will be so designed that a part of the skirt shall also require jeweled embroidery. There might be, as well, a slight rappel of the style on the bonnet, and on the shoes or boots.

Ladies' watches are still worn like badges, fastened on the left side of the bodice. They hang from a short chain caught with a fancy brooch, rather small, but very elegant or unique. One of these brooches reproduces the head of a tropical bird in chased gold, covered with vari-colored enamel; another is a kind of Renaissance masaron in the shape of a cat's head, made of curled pieces of silver closely adorned with brilliants. The watch is decorated in the same style as the brooch.

I have seen at Boucheron's several articles in old-looking ivory with enameled gold mountings. The ivory, beautifully carved, reproduces naive gothic scenes or spirited Clodion scenes. The enameled parts give the effect of old Limoges champlevé. I noticed in this style a jewel casket, a mug, a cigar case, a matchbox and several bon bon boxes.

A large gem, a ruby, a sapphire, or an emerald cut in cabochon, is used as a center stone in a great many articles of jewelry. The cabochon is in very high relief, and is almost of a conical shape, well rounded at the top. The stone thus fashioned is of a deep color. Cabochons are also set on stoppers of scent bottles, on bonbon box covers, umbrella tops, etc.

Fancy brooches or fichus pins, sold at a reasonable price, generally exhibit enameled wreaths of flowers, musical instruments, familiar implements of every kind, fans of all known shapes, or a grinning pirot head cut out of a moonstone; also flies resting on the top of a gate, mice running on a pole, a fowl picking at a pearl, etc. I must add to this list a quartette played by two cats and two dogs of different sizes in jeweled enamel.

A remarkable tray for visiting cards is in oxidized perforated silver. It is square in shape with the rim raised up and gracefully bent in and out. The work, showing an elegant foliage, is as delicate as lace and is entirely done with fine saws. A medallion, exhibiting a love scene painted in enamel genre grisaille on a clouded blue ground, is set in the center of the tray. JASEUR.

New Escapement for Marine Chronometers.

THE well-known chronometer maker W. G. Schoof, of London, England, some time ago constructed a new escapement for marine chronometers and other timepieces of precision. A glance at the accompanying illustration will tell the readers of THE CIRCULAR that the escape wheel has only six teeth or pins, while in other respects the escapement is similar to the detached lever. The inventor describes his escapement as follows, the illustrations being taken from the Deutsche Uhrmacher Zeitung:

The scape wheel r has six pins bb, either of ruby or steel; one of them is represented at c. The original escapement as constructed first by the inventor had five pins, but for various reasons he added another. Among the reasons, he states that in this case the pallets need not be furnished with jewels; as will be seen at a, Fig. 1, they may be of thin sheet steel, not heavier than the coil of a watch mainspring, and all the parts of the escapement, with the exception of the ruby pins, to be obtained in a material store may be made with the tools generally kept on the repairer's bench. The repairer living at a distance from a material store will most readily appreciate this simplicity, because in case of necessity steel pins may be put in in place of the ruby, and wear as long as the parts of a cylinder escapement, in which, as is known, both the wheel and cylinder are of steel. Since the engaging faces are rounded off, tempered and highly polished the friction is reduced to the lowest. No power is lost by drop, as is the case in an ordinary chronometer escapement, and, as will be seen from the illustrations, the impulse begins at full length of lever, and gently sliding. For marine chronometers and watches, Fig. 2 has perhaps an unnecessarily large, but at any rate, uncommon angle of lift, so that, if these proportions were taken, a very large roller and very short fork would be required, which, however, are not by any means a disadvantage, because the jamming of the guard on the safety roller is prevented thereby. THE CIRCULAR, however, will not attempt to "schoolmaster" its readers; the watchmaker is left at will to make the best of the proportions at disposal.

The inventor says that if the locking planes of the pallets are made circular, therefore without draw, the escapement is well suited for astronomical clocks and regulators, in which the impulse is imparted at the extreme end of the pendulum. He also says: "Should one of my brother watchmakers desire to alter a traveling clock with 18,000 vibrations per hour and 15 tooth scape wheel into one with a 6-tooth, he need not fear that he will not obtain a precise rate, even if the clock will then only make 7,200 vibrations, which would be the case if no alterations were made in the running work, although the balance would have to be twice as heavy and the mainspring only half as thick as before the alteration. It is a great error, but one universally entertained, that for traveling clocks and other stationary clocks with balances, quick vibrations are necessary; exactly the opposite is correct. I have obtained excellent results with 9,000 vibrations per hour, even with watches worn every day, and at present I am making one with only 7,200 vibrations. It is perhaps necessary to give a few directions to young workmen, although the experienced workman will consider them superfluous. The depthing tool used for marking and dividing the circle for the pins must be left truly vertical, and the division of the line is to be made with a pointed and well sharpened chamfer. The holes should be drilled with the same unaltered drill—that is, a drill which has not been re-sharpened during the work and of the exact size of the pins and truly vertical, for which purpose an uprighting tool is adapted best. After the holes have been drilled they should not be chamfered or altered in any manner. If the workman observes these rules, and if the pinion is drilled in exactly round, he need not fear that he will not obtain a perfect scape wheel. Concerning the pallets, I must refer my young brother watchmakers to the many articles and dissertations written on the subject, and more especially to Grossman's dissertation on the detached lever escapement. The skill and capacity of the inventor is known to every watchmaker. THE CIRCULAR thinks, however, that in the present instance he has constructed a new type of escapement and one which possesses two decided merits: First, an exceedingly small friction; secondly, any watch repairer can construct either the whole or part of it himself without having recourse to the material store.

Novelty in Watch Cases.

THE watch case manufacturer F. Borgel, of Geneva, Switzerland, is introducing a new case, which, our authority states, is finding favor. The case is of one piece, has no joints, and cannot be opened from the back. The movement is secured in it by being screwed from the front into the middle part.

Fig. 1 represents such a case, while Fig. 2 is the movement belonging to it. The latter is surrounded by a suitably broad and strong dust ring s, which is furnished with a screw thread g of the kind of screws generally found on the object glasses of telescopes and microscopes. In the middle part of the case, open in front, is a nut-screw thread a, fitting to the screw g. The glass bezel is fastened tightly upon the dust rim, and held stationary by foot pins. The movement can readily be screwed into the case, and is placed in such a manner that the figures XII stand immediately underneath the bow, when the movement is screwed "home." The crystal bezel is milled for facilitating the screwing in and out. The dome being entirely dispensed with, the watch is not so thick as it ordinarily is with one, and its appearance is indeed very elegant, which fact is still increased by the absence of the ungainly points. The screwing in and out of the movement is easily effected by any watchmaker. The winding button is first to be taken out. For thin cases, a complete capsula may be used in place of the dust rim, which increases the strength of the case.

SIMON BLUMAUEER.

SIMON BLUMAUEER, whose portrait many jewelers will recognize in the accompanying picture, is distinctively a New Yorker. Born in the old 11th Ward in 1854, he attended Grammar School No. 15 until he was 13 years old, having among his school-mates, Leonard Giegerich, now Judge of the Common Pleas Court, and a host of boys who have since become prominent in local and State politics. In 1867 he entered the employ of A. T. Stewart & Co., as stock clerk, and one year later was promoted to salesman, enjoying the reputation of being the youngest salesman in the establishment.

When 19 years of age, enthused by stories of wealth to be acquired in Central America and South America, he started thither as agent for a dozen New York houses in different lines of business. He knew nothing of the Spanish language, and his first year's experience in traveling was fraught with dangers and adversities. His native enterprise soon triumphed, however, and in a few years he worked up a large business. In 1886 he returned to New York, and became a member of the firm of S. F. Myers & Co., where he assumed the management of the diamond department. Mr. Blumauer is a man of genial and entertaining characteristics, and has a large circle of friends in the trade.

A Marvelous Display of Art Goods.

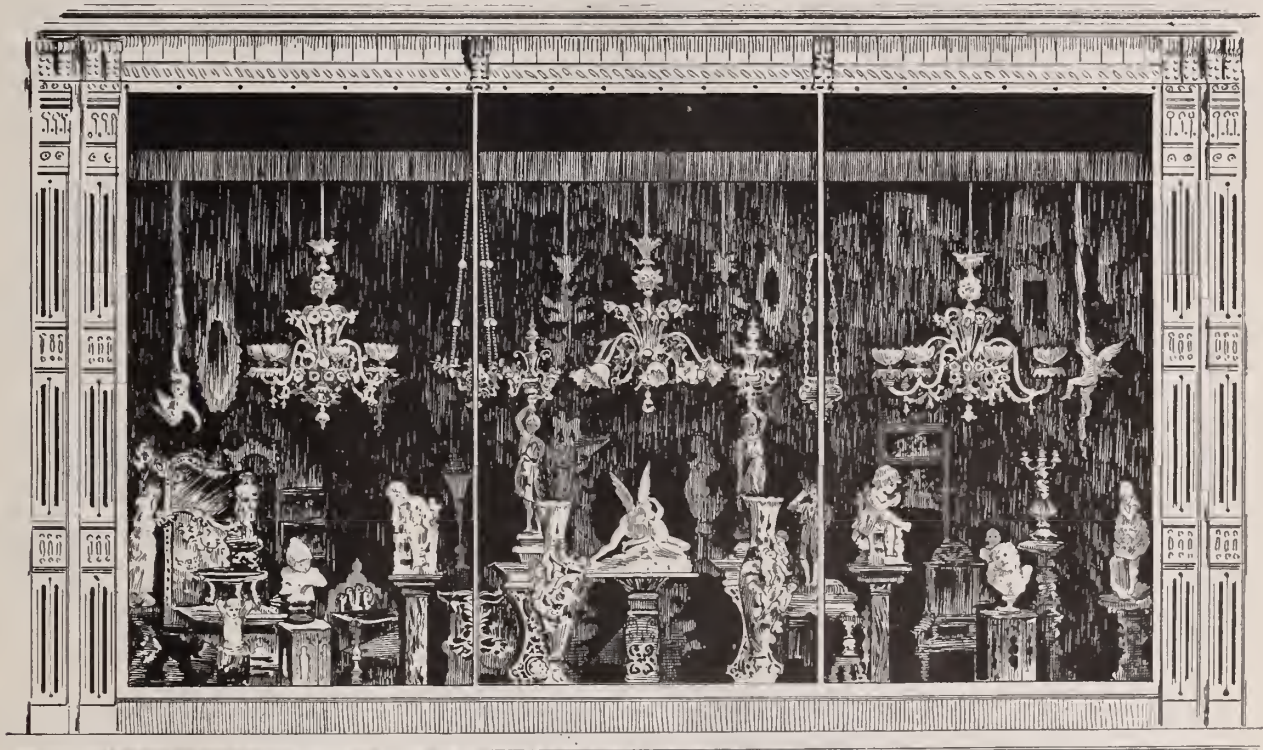

PROBABLY there is no establishment in this country where such an extensive variety of decorative art furniture and bric-à-brac can be seen as in the building occupied by Errico Bros., 862 Broadway, New York. Errico Bros. show the products of almost every pottery and art center, from the faience of Italy to the Royal Worcester displayed. At the rear of the store are the French jewelry, Venetian glass and tortoise-shell goods. Regarding the latter, the firm take pride in the fact that the various designs are secured in Naples by their agents and placed on sale in this country before the average American buyer is enabled to procure them from the wholesale houses of Paris.

The entire front of the second floor of the building is of plate glass, and it is this dis-of England. Their magnificent show windows, which occupy the first and second floors of their building, are undeniably the finest in New York, being situated in the recognized center of the city and containing all that is attractive to the eye in the way of bric-à-brac and art goods. The first floor contains the double show windows of the store, where the most recent importations of pottery, ornamental lamps and fixtures are play that is reproduced in the accompanying picture. Here are seen the products of the noted sculptors in Castellina and Carrara marbles; also chairs and settees of the Louis XVI. and Empire periods, tables and cabinets in arabesque, marqueterie and Vernis Martin decoration, artistic conceptions in chandeliers of Venetian glass, and many other lines that are in demand among the ultra-fashionable.

apple green are conspicuous. Handsome dinner plates, banded with color bordered with gold, and golden fleur-de-lis scattered over the colored band are the most attractive specimens exhibited in that line. A distinctive appearance is given to the new porcelain by the use of two shades of gold, produced by silver and copper alloys. Bright yellow Etruscan gold is thus used in contrast with pale, almost greenish gold.

The Rambler's Notes.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

RETTY Dresden lace figures, which for many years have inspired so much admiration among lovers of artistic pottery, have heretofore been almost exclusively confined to cavaliers, court ladies, etc., of the Louis XIV. and Louis XV. periods.

Now, however, Lazarus & Rosenfeld, 60 Murray St., New York, are showing many pretty sets in which ballet dancers and other figurantes of modern times are represented. The dancers are arranged in the conventional abbreviated skirts of lace, and the effect is very attractive, the china having the appearance of being of the material it represents.

Several handsome vases of Royal Bonn ware, with dull white bodies on which flowers are painted with glazed surfaces, are among the recent importations of Ferdinand Bing & Co., 106 Grand St., New York. The same firm are also showing a large variety of Pointon ware which includes several new and attractive shapes.

*

The priest represented as laughing at the story of his friend, in the celebrated painting "A Good Joke" has been reproduced in bronze for the central ornament of a smoker's set introduced by the New Jersey Lamp & Bronze Works, 44 Murray St., New York, and is attracting considerable attention. The table at which the figures set serves as a cigar-holder, while around it are the various receptacles necessary for a smoker's outfit.

*

Many jewelers are taking advantage of the bargain offered by Geo. Borgfeldt & Co., 425 Broome St., New York, preparatory to their removal into their new building at the corner of Washington Place and Green St. All the goods are samples and include several fine pieces of Dresden, Sevres, Royal Bonn and other salable wares.

THE RAMBLER.

Thackeray's New Service.

MRS. ANNE THACKERAY RITCHIE says that her father's house was more or less like a bachelor establishment, with cracked cups and shabby tablecloths.

One morning, however, a hamper was brought in which contained a lovely breakfast array. There was a china bowl for the master's tea, ornamented by his initials in gold amid a trellis of roses; there were beautiful cups for the young ladies, lovely gilt milk-jugs, and a copy of verses, not written by hand but put together out of printed letters from the London Times. It ran:

Of esteem as a token—

Fate preserve it unbroken—

A friend sends this tea-dish of porcelain rare,

And with truth and sincerity

Wishes health and prosperity

To the famed M. A. Titmarsh of "Vanity Fair!"

No one could guess who the mysterious donor might be, and for many mornings the problem was agitated while the family took their breakfast from the fine new china. Years after, when Jeames was about to sail for Australia, where he had obtained a responsible position, he said reproachfully to his old employer:

"I sent you the breakfast things. You guessed a great many people, but you never guessed they came from me."

Venetian glass is imported in large quantities this season and in pieces ranging in size from tiny crystal to chandeliers. The prevailing texture is the fine white-ribbed glass on grounds of all hues. The opaline and pearl shades prevail, but there are the most beautiful pinks, greens and blues.

Editor of The Jewelers' Circular :

I have in my possession a very curious clock. It looks somewhat like the old wall sweep. It has no case around it, the works being simply boxed in the making; it is about 8x8 inches square; the pendulum hangs at the back of the clock. Two weights are in front without anything to protect them. The pendulum is about three feet long. The clock strikes half hours; the frame is of hickory and the wheels of brass. On the

No. 11.

A DISTINCTIVELY NAUTICAL WORK IN SILVER.

AMONG the more interesting events during the 250th anniversary celebration of the city of Gloucester, Mass., was the Fisherman's Race, in which the remarkably characteristic trophy here illustrated was competed for. The cup was made at the order of the Shreve, Crump & Low Co., Boston, Mass., by Howard Sterling Co., Providence, R. I. The feature of this trophy that forces its salience upon the mind of the observer is the thorough appositeness of the ensemble of the details of the design with the purpose which the cup served and the harmony of the details themselves.

For the body of the cup the graceful, beautiful lines of the Greek antique style have been followed. Around the lower part of the base are seen shells and seaweed in alternate arrangement, while the upper portion of the base displays a succession of starfish, a somewhat new decorative detail in such trophies, but pertinent and attractive. About the lower part of the body of the vase some seaweed in wild confusion has been applied, while on each side, flanking the han-

The neck of the cup which is unusually graceful in lines, is decorated with an applied representation of seaweed. But the really distinctive detail of the entire trophy is the handles which are formed by two gracefully posed codfish, emblematic of the trade followed by the owners of the competing boats. These representations of fish are specimens of the highest achievements in modeling and will bear close examination, both from an artistic and from an anatomical or physical point of view.

On the front of the cup is a nautical scene depicting in etching the finish of the race, above which is the appropriate inscription "City of Gloucester, 250th Anniversary Fisherman's Race" in fancifully designed letters.

On the reverse of the body of the trophy is seen the seal of the city of Gloucester, executed with the most minute attention to detail.

In the city of Gloucester and in dles, is an application of palm branches, fastened by ribbons, symbolizing victory.

Meeting of the New York Jewelers' Association—Wm. L. Sexton the New President.

The eighteenth annual meeting of the New York Jewelers' Association was held last Tuesday in the rooms of the organization, 146 Broadway, New York. Aaron Carter, Wm. L. Sexton and Ludwig Nissen were next nominated for the office of president, and on a vote being taken, Mr. Sexton received a majority and was elected. On taking the seat, Mr. Sexton said he would devote his whole attention to the Association and would look to the members for assistance. He had no doubt that their combined efforts would, during the coming year, result in augmenting the prosperity of the organization.

W. H. Atwater was next elected vice-president, and the secretary was directed to cast one vote for the re-election of Ludwig Nissen as treasurer. The following were the directors elected: O. G. Fessenden, John C. Day, Ludwig Nissen, F. H. Larter, E. F. Sanford, Henry E. Ide, J. B. Bowden, S. Cottle, J. E. Spencer, F. S. Douglas and H. D. Sherrill.

It was decided to have an annual dinner, and the matter will be arranged at a meeting of the executive committee to be held Friday.

for many years, and owing to his rare executive ability and thorough knowledge of the trade his counsel and co-operation have always been eagerly sought. He was born in New York in 1845, his father being A. W. Sexton, of the old firm of Baldwin, Sexton & Peterson. When about 18 years of age he entered the employ of Charles E. Hale, predecessor of the present house of Hayden W. Wheeler & Co., as office assistant. A few years later he joined the forces of Churchill, Dana & Co., and was sent on the road to represent the firm. He remained with them three years and then accepted a position with Cox & Sedgwick, for whom he made short trips through New England and attended to office work.

In 1873 he entered into partnership with Isaac Cole and established the firm of Sexton & Cole, at 61 Nassau St. A few years later Mr. Cole withdrew from the firm and Geo. W. Washburn became his partner. In 1887 Mr. Sexton's father died, and his brother, A. W. Sexton, who had been in the business with his father, joined Mr. Sexton, and the present firm name was adopted—Sexton Bros. & Washburn.

Mr. Sexton was one of the organizers of the Jewelers' League and has been secretary of that organization for thirteen years. For the past two years he has filled the office of vice-president of the New York Jewelers' Association.

 We have been waiting for some time for our competitors to get ready to reduce the price ground. Next is the stand occupied by D. E. Rogers with crockery and silver-plated ware. A pyramid of lamps rises above a base of silverware.

The display of Rider, Bryant & Co. is quite an attraction. The jewels and silver are shown with pretty effect upon pure white decorations. One of the firm's novelties is the Danbury Fair souvenir spoon. Charles Lamb exhibits a machine used for making clock wheels over 100 years ago. It was used by John Blackman, father of F. S. Blackman, of Danbury.

The Companies Comprised in the Brass Combination.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—The companies included in the proposed brass combination are the Scovill Mfg. Co., Benedict & Burnham Mfg. Co., Plume & Atwood Mfg. Co., Holmes, Booth & Haydens, Waterbury Brass Co., and the Coe Brass Co. So far as can be learned this concern is in no sense a "trust" as the word is commonly used. It is rather a consolidation, formed for the purpose of reducing running expenses and consequently lessening prices. These companies do not include all the big brass concerns in the valley.

A Diamond Find Excitement in Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 6.—There is excitement in Gainesville by reason of the reported discovery of diamonds within the borders of the town.

Prof. E. S. Whatley, assistant State geologist, discovered, it is reported, a few days ago, upon the farm of J. W. Marchbanks, about three miles from Gainesville, a vein of itacelunite vermiculite dunite and steatite containing crystals of garnet and magnetite which is a sign of diamonds.

The C. S. Hook Co., Memphis, Tenn., have a new system of advertising which they say brings them more trade in a month than the old system did in a year. Instead of a standing card, changes are made 365 times a year. Very little reference is made to the goods offered for sale, the five-inch space being nearly all occupied with miscellaneous reading matter. Here is a sample :

The Lick Observatory, California, has the largest telescope in the world. Corbett, of California is said to be a graduate of Lick University. This accounts for the ease with which he licked Sullivan. Success is sometimes accidental, but the reason we are always busy is because our entire stock is bright and new.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO
THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

The Badge to be Worn by the Board of Lady Managers.

Several weeks ago, a committee of women was appointed by the National Board of the World's Fair to secure an appropriate design for a badge to be worn by the Board of Lady Managers. A circular was issued offering a prize of $50 for the best design and motto made by an American woman. The interest taken in the matter can be judged when it is said that 247 sketches were received, all of which showed that the American girl is not lacking in artistic talent or versatility. Of the sketches received the committee selected the ten most desirable and sent them to Augustus St. Gaudens, the New York sculptor. The design shown in the illustration was the one selected by him as the winner of the prize.

The design was made by Miss Martha D.
Bessey, 549 E. 86th St., New York, who is on the regular staff of designers of Tiffany & Co., and enjoys the distinction of being the only woman so engaged in the firm's employ. Miss Bessey took her first drawing lesson in a New York grammar school and graduated from the Cooper institute. Two hundred and thirty of the badges will be made, and the committee is now receiving estimates from badge manufacturers. The badge will be of gold or silver just as the owner wishes. It is suggested that the three bars be of red, white and blue enamel, with the owner's name on the first bar, the word
"Commissioner" on the second, and the name of the State on the third.

George H. Hulbert, president of the Middletown Plate Co., was in New Haven last week under a physician's care.

Henry Kohn & Son, Hartford, had a grand opening inspection day of their new store, 360 Main St., on Oct. 6, 7 and 8.

Ex-President Hiram Camp, of the New Haven Clock Co., has again been bereaved, this time in the death of his sister Mrs. Darrow.

A sneak thief endeavored to operate in the store of J. G. Griswold, Meriden, on Thursday morning. Clerk Brown gave chase, but the would-be thief escaped.

Ernest Schall, the Hartford jeweler, sent last week to the agent of the Hamburg Relief Committee in New York $610.50, the amount collected in that city.

B. J. Banks who has been managing the Greenwich branch of Ryan, Barrows & Parker, Middletown, has entered into partnership with his brother, W. S. Banks, of White Plains, N. Y., and will continue the Greenwich store under the name of Banks & Banks. They will also have stores in White Plains and New York.

The Meriden Silver Plate Co. remain firm in their position, announced in THE CIRCULAR last week, and nearly all their late employes of the glass department have gone elsewhere to obtain work. Had their demands been reasonable, the company would have retained them and all their present trouble would have been obviated.

A Newark jeweler of this city is engaged upon a marvelous mechanism in the shape of a clock which he proposes to exhibit at the World's Fair. The clock represents the map of the United States with the principal cities being designated by a small dial which records the exact time of day or night at each. The movement is perfect, every connection working with marvelous accuracy.

The newest ash sets are highly polished, with the ever-popular raised edges and bands.

It is reported from Elmira, N. Y., that Chester Warfield, traveling salesman for the Ithaca Calendar Clock Co., Ithaca, N. Y., was run over by a train last week and mangled to death.

New Bedford Evidently in the Hands of Burglars.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 5.—This city seems to have been in the hands of burglars Monday evening. Lately the Waterbury Watch Co. have had an exhibition in several show windows of jewelry stores in this city display boards of their watches. One of the largest of these displays was in the window of Wm. L. Kelley's store, and at night, under two brilliant gas lights, they created a great deal of attention.

Early yesterday morning, about 1 o'clock, a man passing the store noticed a big pane of glass broken and discovered that a burglary had been committed. The police were notified, but as yet have no clue. About seventy-five watches were taken by the thieves, aggregating in value perhaps $400.

The loss will devolve on the Waterbury Watch Co., as nothing was taken belonging to Mr. Kelley. The plate glass was insured.

About the same hour at the store of B. Otheman, jeweler and clockmaker, 28 Pleasant St., a pane of glass in the front door was smashed but nothing was stolen.

Other stores not in the trade were similarly treated.

A Failure in the Dominion of Canada.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 7.—Robert Stackhouse, who recently assigned, is offering to compromise at 25 cents on the dollar, at four, eight and twelve months. A trust deed has been executed in the name of J. A. Sharp, of St. John, for the benefit of his creditors, who will secure his offer by endorsement. The liabilities are $2,000 and the nominal assets $900.

The insolvent commenced business in October, 1873, with a cash capital of $300. Recently he has suffered losses by bad debts and incurred considerable expense in removing his stands. He has also devoted considerable time to winding up his father's estate and endeavoring to pay his debts. In his neighborhood he is regarded as perfectly honest. He is a hard-working and fair mechanic.

Quick Capture of a Window Smasher in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 5.—A few nights ago a large pane of glass in the show window of the jewelry store of Otto Bauler was broken and a tray of gold rings, valued at $150, stolen. The robbery was reported, and Detectives Burke and Cavan were placed on the case. They learned that the stolen rings had been sold to Adolph Gouldan, at 808 N. 8th St. The detectives arrested Frank Weigman on suspicion of having burglarized Bauler's store. He was identified by Gouldan as the boy who had sold them. The rings were recovered.

The Sixth Fire Within Thirteen Months.

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 4.—At 12.45 Thursday flames and smoke were seen to be issuing from the jewelry store of A. Picken. The three fire companies responded promptly and were soon on the ground. This makes the sixth time, within thirteen months that this house has been on fire. The flames burst out of the upper story of the building, almost totally destroying it.

THESE words mean much, but to see “the new Paillard Non-Magnetic Movements” in grades 71, 72 and 73 will impress the truth more forcibly. The choicest selections of the most renowned makers reveal nothing finer. In delicacy of workmanship, excellence of finish and intrinsic merit, they are unsurpassed. Accurately adjusted to temperatures, isochronism and positions. Guaranteed as fine time-keepers as any watches made and to hold their rate. For fine trade or wherever accuracy of time is required, nothing in the market compares with these movements for the price. Try them, and you will be convinced of the fact.

All leading jobbers carry “Paillard Non-Magnetic Watches” and represent them in their Catalogues and Price Lists. If your Jobber doesn't carry them, write us and we will give you the names of Jobbers who do. No watch stock is complete without them.

ESTABLISHED 1821.

WESTPORT, Conn., Oct. 6.—Charles S. Perry has been missing for two weeks, and the prevailing opinion is that he has appropriated thirty watches which were left with him for repairs. Perry came to Westport from New York, where he had been working in a 14th St. jewelry establishment, several weeks ago, and bought out Richard H. Taylor, who had conducted a jewelry store here for a number of years. He styled the new firm Charles S. Perry & Co.

Perry carried a small stock of jewelry, and an examination of the premises showed that these goods, as well as all the watches left with him for repairs, are gone. At the time of his departure no suspicion was aroused, but Perry's continued absence finally caused apprehension among those who had left their watches with him to be repaired, and the result of the investigation verifies their fears.

Bookkeeper J. J. Hadlow Committed to Jail.

ANSONIA, Conn., Oct. 7.—J. J. Hadlow was brought before Judge Tomlinson, in Shelton, Wednesday afternoon, to answer charges brought against him of embezzlement, etc., by the Derby Silver Co. His counsel, A. W. Paige, entered a demurrer, which the judge overruled, and Mr. Hadlow, waiving examination, was bound over in the sum of $4,000 to appear before the superior court at the next term, which is held in Danbury the third Tuesday in this month.

Mr. Hadlow was unable to secure bail and was taken to Bridgeport jail. The case has aroused more sympathy than any similar one ever known here. Mr. Hadlow was a general favorite.

Paillard non-magnetic watches are becoming more popular in the trade every year. The higher grades of these timepieces especially recommend themselves to jewelers who have fine trade. They also fill the demand when close and accurate time is required. Dealers interested should read the advertisement of the Non-Magnetic Watch Co., on another page.

Last Week's Arrivals.

THE CIRCULAR has perfected arrangements for obtaining the names and hotel addresses of all the latest buyers visiting New York, and each day posts in its office, 189 Broadway, a bulletin which every member of the trade is cordially invited to copy.

A Carbuncle the Cause of Jeweler Hoover's Death

Du Bois, Pa., Oct. 7.—W. W. Hoover, of Penfield, who recently established a jewelry business at Falls Creek, died Monday morning at 9 o'clock at Penfield. He became afflicted several days ago with a carbuncle on his neck, the effects of which caused his death.

Mr. Hoover came to this section of the country about ten years ago from Centre county and for a time was one of the woods bosses for Hoover, Hughes & Co. Later he went to the Putnam mill, at Caledonia and lastly engaged in the jewelry business.

Our Traveling Representatives.

SIR JOHN MANDEVILLE, Marco Polo. Charles Darwin and Capt. Cook were rather famous travelers in their way, but it is a matter of doubt whether any one of them covered as many miles as Edward A. Sweet, who has represented one house on the road for almost three decades. "Edward A. Sweet, representing L. H. Keller & Co., 64 Nassau St., New York," is a well-known legend in the trade. Mr. Sweet is descended from an old Yankee family whose scions fought in the Revolution and in the War of 1812. He was born in Montpelier, Vt., March 23, 1837. After receiving a high-school education he went to Chillicothe, O. as an apprentice to his uncle, Edward P. Pratt, jeweler, who had been in business on one spot for 50 years. Here he stayed until the death of Mr. Pratt, Jan. 3, 1865. His next move was to travel for L. H. Keller, who then did a wholesale and retail business at the corner of St. Paul and Main Sts., Rochester, N. Y., with headquarters in the office of G. A. Huguenin, 64 Nassau St., New York; the retail branch was known as Keller & Waldorf, and the wholesale branch as L. H. Keller.

EDWARD A. SWEET.

In 1867 Mr. Sweet went to Boston, Mass., to travel for S. & J. Myers, with whom he remained one year. From there he peregrinated to Portsmouth, O., where he worked as a watchmaker on his own account for a year and a half, at the end of which time he saw himself again a traveler for L. H. Keller. He has remained with this house since then, and has booked orders in every locality of this broad country. He knows every one in the trade, and every one in the trade knows him. During his long career as a traveling salesman he has never met with any accident, though he has been in several railroad disasters, and has visited many cities which though now civilized were then populated with individuals whose favorite target was a specimen of the genus homo from a strange town. Mr. Sweet's hobby is to collect rare watches, and he is known as the possessor of one of the rarest collections in the world. Mr. Sweet is married and has two children, the youngest of whom is 18 years of age. He abides in Brooklyn, N. Y.

E. B. Frank, of the Pairpoint Mfg. Co., has returned to Chicago from a very successful Iowa trip. All the Iowa trade are talking good business with bright prospects for a prosperous season.

R. W. Barlow and C. H. Garlock representing C. H. Knights & Co., Chicago in the south and west respectively, left on their trips last Tuesday.

Geo. W. Fairchild, with E. Aug. Neresheimer & Co., had very fair trade in Pittsburgh and Cleveland, his only stopping point between New York and Chicago.

It was stated last week under this department that Wm. W. Middlebrook will represent the new Attleboro firm of Gould, Watkins & Co. This was an error, as that well-known salesman will continue to represent B. A. Ballou & Co.

John Platt representing Foster & Bailey, reports from Chicago good business in his entire line and can see no reason why we should not have the best Fall trade we ever had. "It is between seasons for us now, and yet trade is good," said he.

A. Kanouse, formerly a jeweler of Denver, Col., is now doing missionary work for the Columbus Watch Co., in Chicago, after which he will make a tour of the Western States. Mr. Kanouse makes the third missionary the Columbus Co. have recently sent out.

Among the traveling men in Lancaster, Pa. the past week were: H. Grabowski, of Dattelbaum & Friedman; Fred H. England, of H. Z. & H. Oppenheimer; John J. Kramer, with John T. Mauran; J. S. Carroll, with James W. Tufts; Ira Barrows, of H. F. Barrows & Co.

John Haigh has been committed for burglary by Magistrate Smith. On Sunday evening last the jewelry store and residence of John Van Osten, 2000 Orthodox St., was entered, and the thief secured a quantity of jewelry. He was observed by a citizen leaving the place, and from the description given by him Haigh was arrested.

The other day a street cleaner, while hauling deposits from a sewer at 7th and Filbert Sts., discovered a package containing a quantity of jewelry, among which were several gold watches, bracelets and rings. He disappeared with his booty. The jewelry is supposed to have been the plunder of some thief, who threw it into the inlet when hard pressed to escape detection.

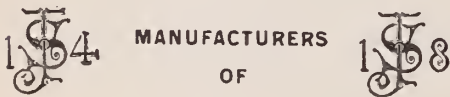

Wm. Jeneker, who says he belongs to New York, has been arrested here charged with being a fugitive from New Jersey. Morris May, a Trenton jeweler, appeared against him at the City Hall on the 6th inst., and stated that on Sept. 28, Jeneker purchased from him three diamond rings one worth $400, one worth $150 and the other worth $50. He gave a check in payment, and Mr. May gave him as change a check for $229, which Jeneker cashed. Jeneker's check turned out to be bogus. Magistrate Clement held him to await a requisition from New Jersey.

On the 4th inst., a well-dressed man entered the store of James G. Maree, Manayunk, and asked to see some ladies' gold watches. He finally concluded not to purchase a watch just then, saying he would bring his wife in a day or two, and let her select for herself. He had no sooner left the store than Mr. Maree discovered that a $35 watch was missing. He rushed out crying "Stop thief!" and the man into the arms of Robinson Dawson, who arrested him. He gave the name of Michael Yavik. Several hundred dollars were found on him when he was searched at the station-house. On the following day he was given a hearing by Magistrate Roney, and held in $600 bail for court.

THE "ROUEN."

This pattern, offered as a new and original design, is made in Sterling Silver, with carefully studied effects in outline and decoration.

We would call special attention to the features of rounded and softly curved outline so desirable in any pattern intended for actual use, and contrasting favorably with recent patterns placed on the market, where Outré and Genré effects have been sought, at the expense of grace and beauty. We feel that the better class of dealers will accept the "ROUEN" as a relief from the prevalent sameness that has characterized some of the late productions in spoons and forks.

The "ROUEN" also has this advantage, that while not a heavy-weight pattern, there is an entire absence of the Concave Back that has the tendency of giving any design the appearance of extreme lightness so objectionable to many persons of refined taste

THE COLUMBIAN CELEBRATION.

DECORATIONS AMONG THE JEWELRY TRADE OF NEW YORK.

New York is in Columbian dress. Its miles of massive buildings are resplendent in gay flags and flying emblems of patriotic celebration. The structures are radiant in the national colors, and on many of them are mammoth pictures, gracefully draped with flags, giving scenes from Columbus' life. The holiday attire is distinctly cosmopolitan. Spain's yellow and red, Italy's red, white and green, mingle with the colors of every nation on the globe; while the red, white and blue of the United States is seen everywhere. The jewelers of the city express their patriotism potently, as the following descriptions which of course are not thoroughly complete, will show.

Extending along the front of the Benedict Building, 171 Broadway, is a painting on which are the faces of Columbus and Harrison shown on watch cases on each side of an eagle with outstretched wings. The Discoverer and the Protector, the Republicans claim this arrangement represents. On either side of the painting is a representation of the Santa Maria and a modern ocean racer, showing the progress from 1492 to 1892. From every window in the building American, Spanish and Italian flags flutter, and the structure presents a very gay appearance.

The windows of E. A. Thrall are most artistically dressed. They are draped with American flags and on the floor of the windows are the words, 1492—Columbus—1892 in white cotton circling shields of the same material, on which the stars are represented by diamond-mounted star lace pins, while other jewelry occupy the stripes.

Crossed American flags grace the windows of William Barthman. Red, white and blue bunting drape the window of Oliver M. Farrand. Hamann & Koch show their patriotism by draping their windows with the Stars and Stripes. William H. Atwater is nothing if not patriotic, and the American, Spanish and Italian flags that draw attention to his show window emphasize this fact. A picture of Columbus surrounded with an abundance of American bunting artistically arranged meets the spectators' sight in the windows of the Spencer Optical Mfg. Co.

Hanging from the top of Cross & Beguelin's window is a large American flag, while the jewelry below is displayed on a tasteful arrangement of pleated red, white and blue tissue paper. The colors of America, Spain and Italy are shown in the window of Aikin. Lambert & Co., draping a Rocky Mountain eagle, whose head just shows from under the silk flags. The floor and rear of the Gorham Mfg. Co.'s window is draped by the American flag. William H. Einhaus displays his stock on an American flag as do E. S. Johnson & Co. and the Pairpoint Mfg. Co.

E. G. Webster & Son show a profusion of American flags tastefully arranged, and John W. Wentworth's window displays the Spanish, American and Italian colors.

A shield having diamond jewelry surrounded with small flags adds to the appearance of Lissauer & Sondheim's display.

Strips of red and white bunting on a background of green velvet ornaments one window of the Wilcox Silver Plate Co., while in the other an eagle supports several silk flags.

Crossed flags are to be seen in John E. Shepard & Co.'s window and a similar display is shown in that of Edwin Want. Several handsome silk flags draw attention to C. W. Schumann's Sons' display.

The building 182 Broadway, in which are located Alfred H. Smith & Co., Krementz & Co., and E. E. Kipling is gorgeously decorated. In the center of the building is a painting of Columbus while from every floor hang the colors of Spain and America. Three streamers hang from the top of the building to the first floor, and American shields, on each side of which are flags are suspended in various places over the front of the building.

The Dennison Mfg. Co.'s window shows a pretty arrangement of red, white and blue paper and the building, 200 Broadway, attracts considerable attention. Large American flags float from every story, while between the windows on the first floor, are representations of old bronze shields topped with busts of Columbus. The discoverer's head simulated in bronze is also shown holding American flags below the windows of the same floor.

The uptown jewelers also show their patriotism by decorating their stores in an appropriate manner. The windows of the Meriden Britannia Co., 46 E. 14th St., are decorated with silk streamers, red, white and blue in color, while American flags form the draping for the rear of the windows.

The jewelry in the window of Charles Casper, 36 E. 14th St. is shown on red and yellow silk. Tiffany & Co.'s building is very tastefully decorated. The pillars are covered with yellow and green bunting, while over the figure of Atlas bearing the clock is a group of Spanish, Italian and American flags. American shields circled with flags are also shown on other parts of the building.

Silversmiths' Hall, 860 Broadway, is another building that attracts considerable attention. Streamers of red, white and blue are hung around the entire front, while between the windows are shields and half-circles of small flags. On the first floor a gold eagle holds the streamers in place, while pictures of Columbus, Washington and the Santa Maria occupy the corner of the building.

Red and blue leather pocket-books shown on white silk, form part of the decoration of Benj. S. Wise & Co.'s show window, 861 Broadway. In the center of the window is the word "Columbus" formed of rubies, diamonds and sapphires, and surrounded by a puffed silk American flag. The entire store front of Theo. Kohn & Son, 56 W. 23d St., is covered with bunting. In one of the windows is a copy of Van Der Lyn's celebrated picture, the Landing of Columbus etched on sterling silver and appropriately decorated. A silk American flag adds to the appearance of the goods in the window of Alexander Newburger, 1245 Broadway.

The F. Kroeber Clock Co., 360 Broadway, are showing numerous flags, and on the first floor is a painting depicting the landing of Columbus. The Geo. W. Shiebler Co. are making a similar display. Among other firms whose offices are decorated are Jos. Fahys & Co., Stern Bros. & Co. and E. P. Reichhelm & Co.

Death of a Well-Known Metal Goods Manufacturer.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 10.—John M. Riley, of the Riley-Klotz Mfg. Co., aged 77 years, died on Friday morning at his residence, 336 Cleveland Ave., Harrison. Mr. Riley was one of the best known manufacturers in Newark, and for many years his firm, Riley & Lynch, did the heaviest business in metal goods of any concern in the country.

Mr. Riley was born in Great Britain and came to this country at an early age. In his youth he displayed inventive genius and many patents of useful and ornamental articles in metal have been secured by him. Many years ago he started, on Mulberry St., this city, a factory known as the Novelty Works, for the manufacture of various articles in brass. Later on a partnership was formed under the firm name of Riley & Lynch. On the death of Mr. Lynch, J. K. Osborn was admitted as a partner and the firm was changed to Riley & Osborn, which later became the Riley-Klotz Mfg. Co.

Death of L. G. Jahnke.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 10.—L. G. Jahnke, one of the wealthiest citizens of Lexington, Va., who has been in the jewelry business since 1866, died suddenly at his home on Main St. yesterday morning after a half day's indisposition. He was 50 years of age.

The Jewelers' Mercantile Agency last week obtained an injunction restraining The Jewelers' Weekly Publishing Co. from issuing their directory. On Friday the defendants obtained a modification of the injunction so as to allow them to complete the binding of the book. The argument in the case will be heard in Supreme Court Chambers, Thursday.

VOL. XXV. OCT. 12, 1892. NO. 11.

THE jewelers of New York are taking an active part in politics, and the rival campaign clubs are working vigorously to elect their respective candidates. The cooperation of keen and clear-sighted men of business in active political work is in every way desirable. The contest between the rival factions in our trade will be watched with interest and, whatever the result of the election may show on the morning of Nov. 16, the hearty, whole-souled good humor that obtains among the members of the jewelry trade will in no manner be disturbed.

A Great Celebration and Business.

EXACTLY 400 years ago, through the wisdom and courage of Christopher Columbus, was made known to the then existing world, a new land which was to be the home to welcome the stranger—a land where freedom was to find its sturdiest growth. In honor of the discoverer of this new land, a celebration unequaled in history is this week occupying the public attention, particularly in and about New York city. The date of this issue of THE CIRCULAR is a legal holiday in New York, and the two preceding days have been taken up, for the most part, with preparations for the culmination of the celebration on that day. Though a celebration like the Columbus parade, the Washington Centennial, and similar commemorations seems to be only a gala time, such an occasion has a commercial value which must not be overlooked. A cheap railroad excursion rate, and a public attraction in New York which will bring people here, is equivalent to more than doubling the buying population of New York for the time being, without increasing at all the number of places at which things can be bought. Even were the prices for goods higher in New York than in the average country town, the difference in fashions, styles, newness and general appearance would induce a large majority of the visitors to buy their articles in New York instead of obtaining them from their local merchants. During a monster celebration like the current one, there is doubtless an enormous expenditure of money among the general public, but aside from the sale of souvenirs and small articles of low or medium prices, the volume of business done in the jewelry trade is not notably increased. Jewelry and its kindred lines is an after-thought with the majority of people, and while numerous visitors to New York may resolve during their stay in the metropolis to purchase clothing, dry-goods and other prime necessities, they scarcely think of purchasing jewelry, beyond such cheap articles as they may retain as souvenirs or give as presents. However, from an economic stand point, a big excursion to New York is a good thing for everybody in the city. It ramifies everywhere and brings increased knowledge alike to people who go to and to people who live in the city.

Things That Should be Advertised.

A WRITER in that clever little periodical Printers' Ink, dealing with "Things that ought to be advertised," makes the following remarks: "Only the other day I was reading in a trade journal that the United States is fast crowding Switzerland out of the watch market, and the statement was made that there is no part of the world, no matter how remote, where the tick of the American watch cannot be heard. As a patriotic American citizen I rejoice in this bit of information, while, as an advertising man, I lament the fact that we Americans are so woefully ignorant of our own productions. For my part, if I went to my jeweler's to buy a watch—outside an Elgin, Waltham or Waterbury—and he told me that a particular one made in the Fiji Islands was the best, I would be bound to believe his statement." These remarks are pertinent and should be considered by the manufacturers of the numerous other watches on the market, many of which possess superior time-keeping qualities. The watch companies have not been as extensive advertisers as the character of their products would lead one to expect. Our advice is, first, advertise to the trade and to the public; second, advertise liberally; third, advertise courageously.

The Price of Platinum.

IT is reported that the recent fear as to the scarcity of platinum was aroused for a purpose, and that the increase in price was due to a combination between the handlers of the ore and a broker in St. Petersburg, who together controlled the production and got up a "corner" in this article. The increase in price has, however, provoked competition, and several new mines have been opened, which have increased the production considerably. There are now at least forty mines at work along one river. The yield of crude platinum for the year 1891 from the Ural provinces exceeded 9,000 pounds, or 50 per cent. more than the returns for the previous year.

The Circus Brings Thieves in its Trail.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 6.—C. L. Taylor & Son were robbed of several hundred dollars worth of diamond rings Monday afternoon while Barnum & Bailey's circus was exhibiting here. Two young men, one of whom had only one arm, entered the store and inquired about a piece of jewelry they alleged had been left earlier in the day to be repaired.

C. L. Taylor was alone in the store and had stepped to the rear to secure the repaired piece. While his back was turned one of the men walked behind the counter and removed a tray containing twenty-four diamond rings from the show case, after which both thieves disappeared. Telegrams have been sent in all directions describing the robbers, but no clew has been obtained as to their whereabouts.

The latter was indicted and the matter hung fire until last Tuesday, when the indictment was dismissed, owing to the death of Kidd the principal witness against him.

SOUVENIR SPOONS, COMMEMORATING COLUMBUS, WORLD'S FAIR, CHICAGO.

PART II.

THE festivities in commemoration of Columbus which are agitating the country generally are at their height. Country villages and towns are emptied of their denizens, who have been attracted to the large cities where the celebrations hold sway. Considerable money is being expended by these numerous visitors in the purchase of mementoes, and the sale of the beautiful souvenir spoons commemorating Columbus, and all that pertains to him is extensive. Some of these spoons were described and illustrated in these pages last week. In continuation of the same topic, three other designs are here presented.

The "America" and "Columbus" spoons have just been produced by the Alvin Mfg. Co., 860 Broadway, New York. The former contains as its salient feature the miniature reproduction of the statue of Christopher Columbus at Colon. This statue is acknowledged by authorities to be one of the best representations of the great discoverer extant. The miniature in the spoon is a perfect piece of work, the excellent modeling accurately bringing out the many details of the original. Around the stem of the hand winds a wreath of immortelles, while within the bowl are the words, "Columbian World's Exposition, 1893, Chicago." The "America" spoon is a very attractive article graceful and symmetrical in outlines and proportions. The bowl contains in slight relief a fine depiction of Horticultural Hall, one of the departments of the great Fair, with the words "Columbian Exposition, 1893, Horticultural Hall," surrounding it. The details of the handle, as may be seen in the illustration, are appropriate and interesting, and altogether the spoon is a comprehensive souvenir of the World's Fair and Chicago as well as of America.

Regarding the Landing of Columbus souvenir spoon, produced by the Towle Mfg. Co., Newburyport, Mass., the following is quoted from "Souvenir Spoons of America:" "In itself the spoon is a thing of beauty and will recommend itself as such to the beholder. It is made in after-dinner tea size, and its slightly oxidized finish enhances its effect. The outline, though simple, is delicate and graceful. In the upper part of the handle is a full figure of Columbus as he is often represented, planting the standard of Spain on the newly-discovered land. Below this are two ribbons containing the words, Landing of Columbus, and 1492. In the bowl is a relief depiction of the Santa Maria, one of the three vessels which conveyed Columbus and his crew to the new land. On the reverse of the handle is a longitudinal view of the old convent of La Rabida at Palos. The convent stands to-day. It was through the interest and influence of those connected with the convent that Columbus received from Queen Isabella the commission to sail under the support of the Spanish government."

The Gorham Mfg. Co.'s Marvelous Catalogue.

THE catalogue of the Gorham Mfg. Co., always an attractive publication and a valuable help to the dealer, is unusually so in the issue for the present season, which is now ready for distribution. In comparison with those of former years, it is larger in size and in number of pages. The exquisite design of its cover page arrests attention, and invites inspection of its contents. One important feature wherein it differs from its predecessors, is the space devoted to and the method adopted in illustrating the several patterns of spoon work. Instead of selecting a few of the leading pieces, the full line is shown in the "Regent" and "Versailles." Regarding the new pattern, "The Rouen," as it is in process of manufacture, only a selection of a few of the leading pieces could be completed in time for publication.

The title page is printed in blue and silver from stone, and is backed by an illustration of the bronze statue of Farragut, modeled by the sculptor Kittson, and made for the city of Boston. The index, to which three pages are devoted, is laid out in a manner which will be appreciated by the dealer. The illustrations of tea sets open with a fine specimen of polychromatic printing. A rich chocolate background blends beautifully with three printings in gray from stone. Seventeen pages are given to silver tea sets, ten of which are in two printings, brown and blue. The methods of illustration adopted in this catalogue are varied and add materially to the general effect, and sustain the company's reputation for the skilful and artistic handling of their printed matter.

The experience of a dozen years, on the part of a single individual specially fitted for the work, shows marked results, as may be readily seen by even a hasty glance at the periodical issues from 1882 to the present time. The improvement in the present volume over that of 1890 is very apparent. Commencing with an increase in size of page to 10½ x 13½ inches, to enable better representation of such subjects as tea sets in one-half scale, and of full lines of spoon ware in actual sizes, and the introduction of new methods of illustration, including excellent examples of pen-and-ink drawing, which in its best results is more brilliant in touch and color than engraving on stone, much space is given to subjects illustrated by a new process of stone printing, known technically as "grain process."

To produce the best results by this process, the photographic negatives must be made with that object in view, and "timed" accordingly. It is not equally adapted to all subjects. The condition of the articles when photographed must be right. Some of the best examples are shown in the toilet ware, and the section devoted to spoon ware, especially to that of the "Regent" and "Versailles" patterns, and also the Apostle and Evangelist spoons. Other good examples are seen in some of the pages of cutlery, especially the illustration of twenty-four silver-handle scissors.

Groups of dinner-ware in sterling silver are effectively shown by engravings on stone. By wood-cut and half-tone plates are illustrated such subjects as children's cups, napkin rings, tea and coffee spoons, singly and in sets of a dozen each. Wood-cut printing in two colors is excellently well done in the double page of silver tea spoons, displaying seventeen patterns, the spoons being printed in black on a blue background tastefully bordered. "The Cluny" and "Kings III." are also examples of wood-cut printing in color.

The classification of the various subjects is thoughtfully done, and is an index in itself. To the department of Silverware are given 184 pages; to Gorham Plated Ware, 90 pages; to Silver Mounted Leather Goods, 20 pages. The concluding pages refer to the Ecclesiastical Department. In all we see a volume of 300 pages, so profusely illustrated, and by such varied and uncommon processes, as to lead one to question the possibility of completing the task within the short space of time in which it must all be done. It would indeed be an interesting article if the history of the undertaking were written for publication. It would not simply satisfy the curiosity of some bibliophile. Many a dealer wrestles semi-occasionally with the perplexing problem of catalogue-making, and here and there one appeals to the Gorham Co. for help. This catalogue has taken eight months of as close application as could possibly be given to it. There are seventeen hundred illustrations, many of which are groups of from three to a dozen or more articles, which actually make a showing of well-nigh twenty two hundred articles. The paper consumed in the edition of 7,000 books weighed over fifteen tons, which as it finally centered in the bindery, presented a formidable problem for the binder to solve.

Each book weighing four and a quarter pounds in its wrapper, how is it to be forwarded? By mail or express? They are to go to every State. Postal rates make no distinction; express does. Mail may or may not reach the right party; express requires seven thousand distinct packages, and a receipt given for each. The cost by express is about $2,000. They will be forwarded by express exclusively to the trade, and for the proper protection of the dealers. Price lists will not be forwarded with the catalogues, but to the trade only upon application. In conclusion to this description of a wonderful achievement in catalogue publishing, we quote a few well-chosen words from the introduction to the volume:

"Necessarily the most elaborate and costly pieces; those which would inure to our credit as works of the highest merit, are not here shown, for the obvious reason that the compass of a catalogue, restricted to a single volume, confines us to the illustration of goods strictly within the category of commercial work. It must be apparent, however, even to the casual observer, that the efforts expended in the production of articles of exceptional merit have been the means of elevating the standard of all. * * * The volume, which comprises 300 pages, carefully classified and indexed, conveys an excellent idea of the choice and extensive stock which we have prepared, or have in process of preparation, for the holiday season of 1892."

David Marks, jeweler, 334 Bowery, was arrested Thursday on the charge of receiving goods worth $900 that had been stolen from a Chicago firm.

Trade Gossip.

The Reed & de Mars Jewelry Mfg. Co., Minneapolis, Minn., have issued circulars to the retail trade announcing that they are the Northwestern sole agents of the Derby Silver Co., having purchased a large stock from the company.

Many novelties in silver-plated ware that should be examined by jewelers purchasing Fall goods are being shown in the extensive salesrooms of Craighead & Wilcox, selling agents for the Hartford Silver Plate Co., 33 Barclay St., New York. The stock includes several articles that have never before been produced in plated-ware, which will undoubtedly prove good sellers during the holiday season.

Aluminum was never put to better use than it is in the thimbles manufactured by Ketcham & McDougall, 193 Broadway, New York. This firm were the first to realize the advantages of thimbles made of this metal, and the success that they have enjoyed is a gratifying recognition of the firm's enterprise. Aluminum thimbles are light, extremely durable, and, while possessing the appearance of silver, sell at half the cost of those in that metal.

The striking feature of this attractive spoon is the allegorical design at the top of the handle representing Victory, trumpet and laurel in hand, seated on the globe—a very poetical treatment of the event to be commemorated.

The bowl can be ordered either with the bird's-eye view of the Exposition buildings and grounds as shown, or plain.

D. Schroder & Co., Cincinnati, O., will begin sending out their new catalogue this week. It is profusely illustrated and makes a valuable and interesting book for the trade.

H. C. Lavette, with I. B. Miller, Chicago, is the inventor of a photograph envelope which effectually protects a photograph from breakage while in transit through the mails. It has a large sale.

Homan & Co., Cincinnati, O., have had a considerable boom this week in orders, most of them amounting to over $500 and some reaching $2,000. The firm are steadily gaining favor all over the country.

The Richards Mfg. Co., Attleboro, Mass., will send to reputable jewelers samples of their specialties, express prepaid. Among the most recent novelties introduced by this house are twelve designs in solid gold scarfpins, each set with a real diamond which jewelers are able to sell at less than $2.50 each.

Herzog, Goldsmith & Frank, 52 Maiden Lane, New York, are the manufacturers of a patented swivel earring that ranks among the best of the many patented earrings on the market. The earring in question fits close to the ear and cannot tilt. It is easily adjusted and is absolutely secure. It presents to view very little of the setting, and thus gives the stone greater prominence and brilliancy.

The New York Jeweler for September. S. F. Myers & Co.'s monthly catalogue, is now being mailed. Through a break-down in the presses the sheet has been delayed several weeks; this is the reason that the September Jeweler is mailed in October. The sheet is full of striking inducements, and new articles for the Fall trade. Those jewelers who do not receive a copy should write to the firm for the same.

Peter Henry, 55 Longworth St., Cincinnati, O., still continues to receive patients at his watchcase hospital. He recently received a very battered case from Duluth, Minn., which is beginning to assume its original beauty. He has also a very old and peculiar movement, an inch in thickness, 10 size, which strikes the hours, for which he intends to make a case. When completed the watch will be 1 1/4 inches in thickness.

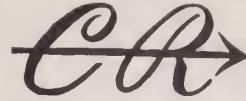

Some new silver buttons are enameled and striped with bars.

Back combs with Italian mounts, enclosing lattice work with rich raised ornaments, have the intersections set with stones.

Tiny gold rings for children and for the little finger are in Italian raised work, the gold being deep-tinted and with a small emerald or other colored stone in the center and set high.

The new chatelaine watches look like emasculated kegs. The dial plates of these are features. They are generally in colors and are ornamental. A striking design is of yellow enamel with the hours set in round disks of dark brown or black enamel.

Among the African Diamond Mines.

FURTHER DISCOVERIES OF DIAMONDS NEAR CHRISTIANIA—THE SEPTEMBER EXHIBITION—VIEW OF THE BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS.

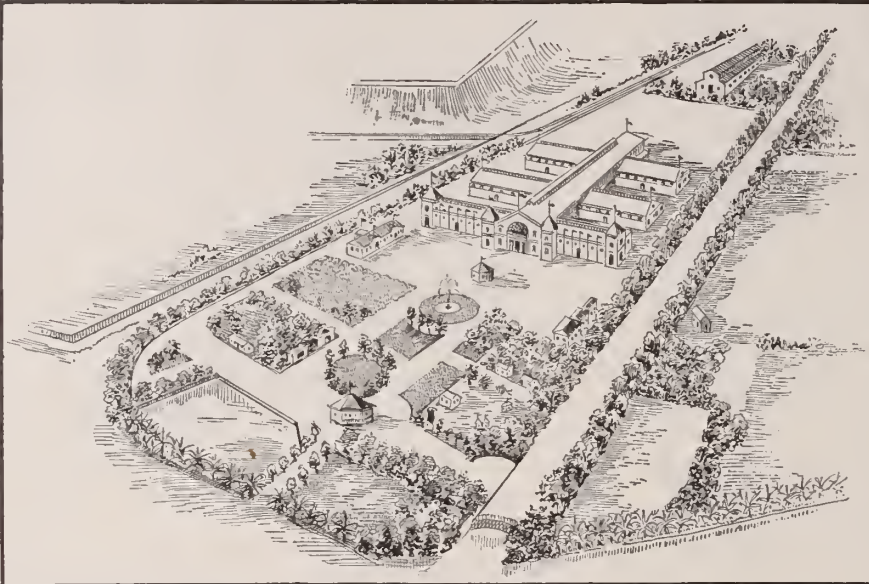

KIMBERLEY, Aug. 29, 1892.—The excitement of the week has been caused by further discoveries of diamonds near Christiania, about 30 miles from Kimberley, and within Transvaal territory. The place where the discovery has been made is a hole which had been scratched out by some wild animal. One of the gems thus revealed weighs 20 karats.

There are numerous arrivals from Europe and America for the exhibition which is to be opened on the 8th prox. and close on Nov. 30. No doubt many of these gentlemen purpose combining pleasure with business. To the ordinary visitor the diamond mines must necessarily be of supreme interest.

Between the years 1872 and 1891 the fields of Griqualand West have produced £58,110,023 worth of diamonds, and, if expert evidence is to be believed, there is no reason why a similar record cannot be made every twenty years for the next century. When these enormous figures are considered, one is struck with wonder at the consequences which have followed the finding of that famous glittering pebble by O'Reilley in the hand of a Dutch child on an isolated farm.

diamonds must soon be satisfied. It was argued, and is indeed still argued, that the diamond is an article of luxury, which is only within reach of a very limited number, that it is imperishable, and it was always feared that in a short time diamonds would be a drug in the market. But facts have hitherto contradicted theory; and now, after producing diamonds to the value of £58,110,023, plus several millions illicitly sold, the world's demands still remain unsatisfied, and the price is not only maintained but enhanced.

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF THE KIMBERLEY EXPOSITION.

Ever since 1870 it has been predicted by the diamond fields people themselves, by the colonists in other districts and the wise men throughout the world that the demand for Four-leaf clovers, forget-me-nots, horse-shoes, and wishbones are always in great demand, and the Good Luck souvenir spoon manufactured by Ludwig, Redlich & Co., 860 Broadway, New York, in which are embodied all those emblems of friendship, love and good wishes, is in consequence finding a ready sale all over the county. The spoon is symmetrical in design and artistic in appearance. It is made in coffee size only, and can be had with plain, oxidized or gilt bowls.

Practical Optics.

AS APPLIED TO THE CORRECTION OF VISUAL OBJECT.

NOTE.—The purpose of this department is to give to the student, without his having had any previous technical education, a clear and practical course of instruction on optics, with its application to the correction of visual defects. The Correspondence Column is open to all readers of THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR.

THE OPHTHALMOSCOPE.

DERIVATIVELY the ophthalmoscope means, to see the eye, and is an instrument invented by Helmholtz in 1851 for examining the fundus or interior of the eye. Few and indeed we may say no instruments that surpass the ophthalmoscope in value for diagnosis in diseases of the eye; and for verifying objectively errors of refraction, we have in it a most valuable aid.

With this instrument we are enabled, as it were, to walk into nature's laboratory and investigate, with a charming degree of freedom, life's forces at work; on the one hand we see the throbbing arteries carrying in their steady current those elements so full of mystery because they contain the very essence of life itself, that is, the blood; on the other hand, the optic nerve lies open to investigation, and it is the only nerve which can be seen and studied under perfect physiological conditions.

We can discover, by the aid of this device, the first warnings of the most distressing organic diseases long before any other symptom appears, and by this means we can ward off the enemy before a complete invasion has taken place in those delicate structures. Diseases such as Albuminuria (Bright's Disease), some of the diseases of the liver and spleen; together with serious brain lesion, are all laid bare at once by this wonderful and grand triumph of human ingenuity. Before the ophthalmoscope came into use diseases of the fundus of the eye were not understood, but now by its aid ophthalmology has made such progress as to place this department of medical science far in advance of any other.

When the ophthalmoscope was first employed by Helmholtz, in 1851, it was a very simple affair, consisting simply of plain glass of three plates. A little later the mirror with aperture came into use, so that the return rays of light could be intercepted and seen by the observer; there was in addition a holder for the spherical lenses. The case in which these were held contained in addition four concave and two convex spherical lenses. At the present writing there are many patterns, differing in size, thickness and materials used in their make. The various styles of the cheaper grade contain a lens-bearing disk carrying twenty or more lenses, one half of which are convex and the other half concave. In the more expensive instrument the powers are greatly augmented by combination, so that we are enabled to gain a strength from sixteen to fifty dioptries. The English and American instruments are considered better than the French, but the competition has become so great in this country that many of the instruments purporting to be of the Loring Improved and the better patterns are made at so low prices, that it is a question whether such an instrument can be made at these prices, and be of perfect construction.

In the better instruments, the distance through the aperture should be as thin as possible, and the mirror should incline in such a way as to receive the light while the disc remains at right angles to the examiner's line of light. The Morton ophthalmoscope contains in addition to these requirements a plain, large and a small concave mirror, and instead of the lenses being placed in a revolving wheel, such as the Loring Improved Ophthalmoscope, a series of lenses which may be combined to as high as fifty dioptries, in metal rings fastened to an endless chain and arranged in such a manner that each ring can be brought in front of the aperture by means of a driving wheel. In the case with the better instruments there are two condensing lenses of two and four focal inches which can be used for the purposes of oblique illumination for discovering opacities of the cornea, the crystalline lens, and any changes which may be discovered in the vitreous.

Having described the requirements of a good ophthalmoscope, we will consider, for the convenience of study, the various methods of examination by means this device.

1. Method of examination.
2. Focal illumination.
3. Indirect examination.
4. Direct examination.

Method of Examination.—For the purpose of examination, a gas argand burner having a bracket with an up-and-down and lateral movement, in a room with walls painted black, should be employed. The patient should be seated in a chair with his or her back to the light, and the burner so adjusted as to be upon a level and a little behind and to one side of the patient. The examiner should take a position to one side and never in front of the patient, as it is not only a very awkward position, but very embarrassing sometimes. The right eye should be employed for examining the patient's right eye, and the observer's left eye should examine the patient's left eye.

Several difficulties which may take time to surmount suggest themselves to the writer, one of which lies with the observer, and depends upon his own accommodation and fruitless attempt to direct the return rays of light, which provokingly are reflected anywhere but in the eye of the patient. The first experience with the ophthalmoscope is generally very unsatisfactory, and even if the observer can direct the rays of light toward the eye, a white reflection upon the cornea, and at best a red reflex resembling a ball of fire is the only result obtained after many trials, and many give up the ophthalmoscope as something beyond their capacity; but success here as in faith depends upon importunity, until at last a glorious experience of a revelation of the fundus of the eye with optic disk and the vessels burst upon the inquirer's vision. The joy of such a triumph more than repays the weary watcher as he patiently and hopefully tries again and again.

A simple device for overcoming the accommodation in the examiner's eye is to take a pasteboard tube of the diameter of a spherical lens in the trial case and cut slits along its length an inch apart; then by placing a spherical lens of three focal inches, into one end of the tube, and then placing the smaller reading type, or Jaeger No. 1, as it is called into the slit three inches away from the lens, we have what would correspond to the normal eye. Now by directing the rays of light reflected upon the mirror into this tube and then looking through the aperture, the observer ought to be enabled to read the type without interposing a spherical lens. Now by placing Jaeger No. 1 two inches away from the convex sphere of three focal inches, we have what would correspond to an hyperopic eye; and if the same type should be placed in the slit four inches away, we would have what would correspond to a myopic eye, and the same should be read with one dioptré plus in the first instance and one dioptré minus lens in the second. A little patience after repeated trials will demonstrate to the inquirer his ability to use the ophthalmoscope successfully. It is well to state in passing that the observer will accommodate a little, and it is a rule in myopic eyes to make an allowance of one dioptré for overcorrection.

The second difficulty which suggests itself to the writer lies in the accommodation of the patient, and this is overcome by means of a mydriatic—a drug which will dilate the pupil. Atropia sulphate, four grains to the ounce of distilled water, a few drops three times daily for three days will paralyze the accommodation completely, but the effect lasts for about a week and this drug should never be employed in patients over forty-five years of age, as it is liable to precipitate a disease called glaucoma. Hydrochlorate of cocaine, ten grains to the ounce of distilled water will dilate the pupil sufficiently in a very short space of time, and the effect passes away very quickly comparatively.

A good combination is as follows :

℞ Homatropial Hydrobromatis, grs. iv. (4).
Cocainis Hydrochloratis grs. x (10).
Aquæ distil. q. s., ad., fl. ℥ i. (1).

M Sig. One to three drops in the eyes will quickly dilate the pupils, and the effect passes away in a few hours. This formula is very expensive, although it is the best mydriatic that can be used. In the hands of an ignorant and careless man, very serious injury may be done to the patient, so that great responsibility rests upon the judgment of the specialist.

John Woolman as a Clockmaker

JOHN WOOLMAN was one of the numerous Philadelphians who achieved fame everywhere but in Philadelphia. A resident of this city owns a clock case made by the world-famous Quaker. His diary in manuscript is in the possession of Major Samuel Comfort, who refused an offer of $2,000 for it from an English society. Woolman's diary was pronounced by Charles Lamb the most potent book, so far as its direct influence over the intellect is concerned, that ever was written. Woolman was a friend of Wilberforce, and the memoirs of every celebrated man of the latter part of the eighteenth century mention him more or less. The clock case is the only relic of him now in Philadelphia.

Early Fall Fashions.

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

Columbus and everything pertaining to him is in metal.

World's Fair souvenirs are turned out in every practicable shape.

Chatelaine bars of iridescent gold in triple oak leaves are introduced.

Marquise rings with rows of colored pearls set in diamonds are strikingly pretty.

Dresden china handles for cutlery and fancy spoons and forks are especially prominent.

A setting for a large octagonal pin has a turquoise at intervals between three or four diamonds.

The mingling of silver, silver gilt and porcelain is carried very far, and results in works of beauty.

Large chatelaine pins of repoussé gold shaped, as fleur-de-lis with splashes of red enamel, are new.

Very dark lustrous red enamel is a feature in Fall jewelry. The bow-knots of this tint lightly edged with gold are charming.

Large bow-knots of repoussé silver with plain borders of gold make sumptuous chatelaine pins. These bows have the movement as if they were of ribbon.

The gold match-boxes with enamel centers and insignia of sporting clubs inscribed thereon seem to indicate that there are plenty of rich men as buyers.

Cologne bottles in silver filigree standards are set so as to enclose photographs. Cleveland and Stevenson, Harrison and Reid, are seen here and there backed up against sweetwaters.

Coffee-pots of latest design have low bodies, long slender stems, slender spouts and handles. The after-dinner cups that accompany these are silver-mounted, and the equipage is altogether elegant.

Thin, slim, oval, double sleeve-buttons are very pretty and very refined. Those in white enamel with bars and a small heraldic device in gold, or in gilded dots on white surrounded with twisted rims of gold, are new and pretty.

The most artistic as well as the most refined style that has appeared in silver is seen this Fall in the plain surfaces and broken raised edges. The contrast of surfaces and the small proportion of ornament thrown into such fine relief by the plain lustrous ground is attracting admiration on every side.

Opaline quartz is used a good deal in jewelry. An unique necklace was seen made of irregular layers of this quartz set in gold, with around them single leaf-like forms of hammered gold, bright yellow in tint. These were set at intervals of different sizes, as if an occasional petal was wanting, yet preserving the symmetry in general.

O. E. BELL.

O. E. BELL is a native Buckeye, and was born on June 9 1862. His business career commenced with the John Shillito Co., Cincinnati. In 1880 he went into business for himself as a retail jeweler. In 1882 he sold out his store and became a traveler for Lodwick & Nolting, his territory being the south and west. He continued with Mr. Nolting after Mr. Lodwick's withdrawal, and also for one year represented Oskamp, Nolting & Co. His traveling experience made him well-known throughout a large territory and he was a popular and successful salesman.

In 1888 the Elgin Jewelry Co. was organized in Cincinnati, and he became the manager. He conducted a successful business for two years, when he opened a jobbing house for himself under the style of O. E. Bell & Co., occupying the old quarters of Oskamp, Nolting & Co., and following the success of the old house.

The Sacro Caltino is of Glass.

THE Sacred Cup, the traditional "Sacro Caltino," belonging to the cathedral of Genoa, which for centuries has been supposed to have been carved from a perfect emerald, has lately been thoroughly inspected by a jeweler, who pronounces it simply green glass. The cup, which is more pan than cup-shaped, is 14 inches wide and five inches deep, and is by many believed to be the identical cup used by Jesus at the institution of the Lord's Supper. After the crucifixion it is said to have fallen into the hands of King Herod, who used it in a triumphant way at many wild banquets. According to tradition, it came into the hands of the officers of the Genoese Republic in the year 1101, having been given as an equivalent for money due from the Crusaders, who had captured the relic during their famous expeditions to the East.

At the beginning of the 14th century the Genoese government pawned the cup for £200,000, and afterward redeemed it. Had the officials known what now seems to be the fact, that the cup was simply an extraordinary specimen of the glassworker's art, the £200,000 would, no doubt, have been slow in forthcoming. When the French captured Genoa, the Sacro Caltino was a part of the spoils. Their chemists, jewelers, glassworkers and others tested the sacred cup, the majority of the experimenters concurring in the belief that it had been fashioned from a genuine emerald of great size and extraordinary fineness.

Improved Pivoted Detent Escapement.

THE chronometer escapement with pivoted detent described in the following has two great advantages over those found in market, one of which is that the injurious movement, while in this condition, may provoke the untimely unlocking of the scape wheel, which then begins to revolve with great velocity, injuring the tooth points, and frequently breaking them. This running away of the scape wheel is prevented in the escapement under debate by the introduction of a small light safety arm on the pivoted detent. Accompanying figure represents the escapement invented by Louis Phil. Robert, of Neuchâtel, on an enlarged scale.

The arm A is located near the point of rotation of the pivoted detent B. The arm has a shoulder, by which it is screwed with the same screw b which connects the gold spring d with the pivoted detent B, as is also shown separately for better understanding in the sketch on the left. This arm A ends in an inclined plane c (similar to the exit pallet of a detached lever watch), the point of which in a state of locking of the escapement stands close behind a tooth point of the scape wheel R, as seen in the cut. It is evident now that at each unlocking of a wheel tooth from the detent pallet r the point of c will enter slightly into the circumference of the wheel. This is of no moment during the going of the watch, as in this case another wheel tooth drops at once after the unlocking upon the lifting plane e of the large impulse roller P, and immediately thereafter the detent returns into its locking position; consequently, until the next wheel tooth comes within reach of the plane c, this has withdrawn again and permits the corresponding tooth to pass by freely.

It is otherwise, however, when the balance is taken out, and when an unlocking of the wheel tooth from the locking pallet takes place. The lifting plane e, which previously stopped the wheel, is wanting in this case, and the latter begins to move with great speed. But since the point of c entered, by reason of the even though small motion of the detent in the unlocking, into the circumference of the wheel, the next following wheel tooth strikes upon the plane c and forces the detent B instantly back into its locking position, so that the next locking tooth again applies itself without great concussion on the locking pallet r. The position of the arm A effects that not a single tooth can pass through, but that at once after the untimely unlocking the next following tooth is again stopped by the locking pallet.

A second improvement of this escapement consists in the altered arrangement of the small impulse roller p. As is known, the impulse pin is generally located in a notch of and at the same height with the impulse roller. Mr. Robert places the small impulse roller p somewhat lower than the gold spring d, and uses as impulse pin a semi-circular ruby a, which he cements in place vertically. This is not only a great facilitation in the manufacture, but also permits that the lifting plane of the jewel can be changed at option by turning it. This noteworthy invention is patented in Switzerland.

running away is prevented. Watchmakers know that it is very dangerous to take out the balance without previously letting down the mainspring; the least concussion of the Art Goods for the Jewelry Trade.

EVERY year the demand among American lovers of bric-à-brac for the products of the famous potteries of Europe increases, and enterprising importers are in consequence constantly on the alert to secure goods that will meet with the approval of the connoisseurs of this country who have the reputation of being exceedingly exacting and not prone to go into ecstasies over every fancy piece of ornamental work because it is imported. No firm have been more successful in this direction than Ferdinand Bing & Co., and an inspection of the stock at their extensive sales-rooms, 106 Grand St., New York will prove as interesting as a visit to an art museum. The four floors occupied by the house are stocked with the most recent productions in artistic pottery, Renaissance furniture, bronzes, and marbles that prevail in the fashionable cities of Europe, and are, owing to their high character, especially adapted to the retail jewelry trade. On this page are illustrated three samples of as many lines the firm are at present making specialties of. The center piece is a Dresden lamp, the body of which is china of the First Empire shape, glazed in white with rich decorations consisting of flowers and Watteau subjects. Gathered around the lamp are wreaths of roses set in full relief. The vase on the left of the picture is an exceedingly fine piece of Royal Hungarian ware mounted in gold and silver. The other piece is one of the best specimens of the celebrated Nove pottery of Italy. It is Chinese Little Devils.

AN odd art industry in Amoy, China, is the making of tiny images, which are variously known as "figuresses" or "little devils." They are statuettes ranging from a half-inch to three inches in length, and are molded from a paste whose composition is a trade secret. Among the ingredients employed are hard wax, insect wax, glue, vegetable gum, linseed gum, papier maché, burned umber, sepia, kaolin, ultramarine, yellow ochre, chrome yellow, vermilion, white of egg and pulverized egg shells.

The figuresses are divided into two classes, toys and art objects. The former are built upon long sticks, like "jumpy jacks." The wired arms are jointed loosely to the body, so that when the stick is whirled, they gyrate in a very amusing manner. The workmanship is coarse and the cost a mere trifle, ranging from 1 cent to 2 a figure, or from 10 to 20 a dozen. The other kind mounted in gold and silver bronze, and the sides depict Night and Morning respectively in bas-relief. Night is represented by a Cupid lying asleep in the lap of a shapely Venus, while morning shows the goddess sending the babe on his mission of love.

are built upon short sticks, which are fastened into small wooden platforms so as to stand upright. Their workmanship varies, some being rude and clumsy and others very fine. Their variety is infinite. One set of 100 represents all the characters in a great classic drama.

The Rambler's Notes.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

IT is seldom that The Rambler has the pleasure of examining such a varied and attractive assortment of bouquet holders as he had last week in the showrooms of Hinrichs & Co., 31 Park Place, New York. They consist of French and Bohemian glass and are of the tints that are now exceedingly fashionable, rose, green and heliotrope.

Clear cut crystal with bow and lovers' knots of enameled metal representing bright silk also forms a prominent feature of the samples shown by this house. The shapes of the receptacles are wonderful specimens of the glassblower's art, the graceful curves and lines of their spreading tops being highly artistic.

Among the goods placed on exhibition in the pottery department of L. Straus & Sons, 48 Warren St., New York, last week, was a line of French faience that includes everything from a small two-inch ornament up to a vase three feet in height and a jardiniere three feet in diameter. The decoration of the ware consists of small white fleur-de-lis surrounded by thin gold lines and shown on a background of red or dark blue. The same firm are also showing several beautiful Sèvres vases of the Louis XV. period, that range widely in prices.

C. G. Rathgen, of Ferdinand Bing & Co., New York, will sail for Europe on the Aller, Saturday. He will return early in January.

Holmes, Booth & Haydens, 25 Park Place, New York, are at present pushing an attractive line of library lamps with decorated fronts to which the shades match. Lamps with bronze bases and onyx pillars also form a prominent place among their samples.

The silversmith and the potter of the future will work in concert, if the beautiful silver-mounted ornaments shown by Bachrach & Freedman, 1 Union Square, New York, are to be taken as a standard. The fashion of these goods is of recent origin, and it promises to enjoy a protracted existence. The work is shown to advantage in a French china plate, having a white center, on which are represented several Cupids at play, and a border of dark blue. Around the edge of the plate and spreading like twining ivy over the blue surface is a network of artistically engraved silver, which is thus thrown out in strong relief. This class of work is not confined to plates, however, as the line shown by Bachrach & Freedman includes bouquet-holders, bonbonieres, menu-holders, after-dinner coffees, engagement cups, etc.

The Bradley & Hubbard Mfg. Co., 21 Barclay St., New York, show many new and beautiful designs in banquet and piano lamps. The line is larger, more comprehensive and more beautiful than ever.

THE RAMBLER.

Artistic Tunisian Pottery.

TUNIS is hardly the country we should look to for artistic productions, but as regards pottery it is well to the front. The island of Djerba and the town of Nabant in the north contain some important potteries. The latter place is especially distinguished for the fineness of its wares, and has lately succeeded in reproducing exact fac-similes of ancient Phœnician, Roman and Berber designs of pottery for domestic use. Notwithstanding the existence of these industries in Tunisia, a large quantity of ordinary red enameled pottery is imported from Naples, as well as tiles for the pavement and decoration of houses.

FINE MODELING IN MEDAL-WORK.

A MEDAL that has aroused considerable admiration among medalists and artists generally, is here depicted. It was made to commemorate the Columbian quattro-centennial. The design was conceived by L. Pogliagli and the dies were cut by A. Cappuccio, of Milan, Italy. Owing to its unusual diameter, 104 millimetres, it is being struck in that city, there being no portrait. Above is a hemisphere bearing maps of America and part of Europe. At the left side a beautifully modeled Indian princess extends her hand and grasps that of Europa at the right. The Indian tramples a serpent near an idol, while the emblems of literature and art are at Europa's feet. In the back-ground above are branches of olive and willow.

mands a view from the Brooklyn Bridge to the Capitol at Washington, behind which the sun forms a halo of splendor signifying the dawn. A band around the border supports the shields of arms of the countries of North, Central and South America, with stars alternating. Tablets at top and bottom bear the dates MDCCCXCII—MCCCXCII.

presses large enough in this country to stamp it. The medal is a little over four inches in diameter and is made in bronze, silver and white metal.

On the obverse side is a three-quarter face bust of Columbus in a concave disk on the outer surface of which is inscribed the name Cristoforo Colombo. The bust is supported below by an eagle with extended wings, its head looking upward toward the

The reverse shows an angel, typifying America, flying over the eastern coast toward Europe, accompanied by four cherubs who bear a torch, a cornucopia of fruits and the caducens, Mercury's wand; laurel wreaths fall to the right. Below, a group of Indians, consisting of a chief, squaw and papoose, with two warriors, behold the flying procession with surprised admiration from a height in the foreground, which com-

Ebenezer Russell Whittlesey, who died in Danbury, Conn., last week of heart disease, was in the early portion of his business life a jeweler. He learned the jeweler's trade in New York city and followed the business there for ten years, abandoning it on account of failing health.

Death of a Prominent Hartford Jeweler and Public Official.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 14th.—A very sad event in this city yesterday was the sudden death, from heart failure, of the well-known jeweler Louis Gundlach, one of the prominent town officers of Hartford. He was one of the best known of Hartford's citizens. Mr. Gundlach had started for his place of business, and while crossing the Laurel St. bridge was suddenly stricken. He beckoned to a gentleman on the street for assistance. Mr. Gundlach was carried to his home and a physician was summoned. Before the doctor arrived Mr. Gundlach died.

Mr. Gundlach was born in Coburg, Germany, in 1828, and learned the business of watch-making in Germany. In 1850 he came to Hartford. From 1859 to 1888 he was associated with Henry A. Deming, in the firm of Deming & Gundlach, jewelers. In 1888 he bought out Mr. Deming's interest and took with him his son, Louis Gundlach, Jr., as partner. Mr. Gundlach was an expert jeweler and was in the best sense of the term a self-made man. He early earned a place among the Germans as a man competent to look after their interests. In 1876 he was elected selectman after being nominated by both parties. A year ago he was again elected selectman and was re-elected at this year's town election.

Mr. Gundlach was a member of the Saengerbund, the Maennerchor and the Musurgia club. For nearly twenty-five years he was a member of the Hartford Male Quartette, and he also sang for a number of years in Christ Church. As a musician he was a splendid player on the hautboy and clarinet. Mr. Gundlach leaves, beside his wife, two daughters and a son.

Two Burglars Caught in Flagrante Delicto.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 12.—Two men were captured in the act of robbing Lund's jewelry store at 239 Milwaukee Ave., at 4 o'clock the morning of October 8. The men first stole several tools from a blacksmith shop near by and with these forced an entrance to the room in the back of the store used as a coal room.

A policeman watched the proceedings until one of the men had entered the store and begun collecting goods to pass to his confederate on the outside, when he called up the patrol and bagged both men. Lund carries a heavy stock.

Chas. F. Perry's Father Thinks his Son has not Skipped.

who owns the Westport store, has heard nothing from his son since he left home.

Mr. Perry, Sr. thinks some accident has befallen his son, as he has not heard from him since he left. He does not believe his son has "skipped."

A Large Quantity of Silverware Stolen from J. J. Freeman.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 14.—The store of J. J. Freeman, 313 Summit St., was burglarized one night this week, and several hundred dollars' worth of solid silverware was stolen. The burglars entered from the alley in the rear by sawing through a shed door and removing two iron bars from the transom over the door leading to the store proper.

The property stolen consisted entirely of sterling forks and spoons. The thieves were evidently frightened away, as they left a bag of plunder on the store floor in their hasty departure. The silverware was kept in the show cases over night. No clue to the burglars has been discovered.

The trunk owned by R. Leubusher & Co., Milwaukee, Wis., containing $1,800 worth of jewelry, lost recently on the railroad, as reported in THE CIRCULAR last week, turned up at Stillwater, Minn., where it was found among the baggage of "The Operator" theatrical company, having been placed in their special baggage car by mistake.

Demands $10,000 for Being Ejected from His Store.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 12.—Abraham Goldmann, a dealer in jewelry at 281 Reed St. until a short time ago, has brought suit against Leopold Hammel, Under Sheriff Daniel H. Armour and David Gunzburger and Norbert Gunzburger, composing the firm of Gunzburger Bros., New York, demanding $10,000 damages for being forcibly ejected from his store and deprived of his stock of goods.

Goldmann alleges that Attorney Hammel executed a false affidavit, in consequence of which his goods were seized by Armour, who then ejected him from the store. Goldmann alleges that he sustained several bruises and contusions through the rough treatment at the hands of the sheriff.

The Sabbath Disturbed by a Burglary

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 12.—Burglars Sunday night broke the heavy plate-glass show window of J. M. Shaffer's store, at Ephrata, and secured $300 worth of jewelry, including nine gold watches. One of the burglars must have been cut by the glass, as the window was very bloody, and a stolen ring case, found near the town, evidently thrown away, was covered with blood.

A Burglary in the Hoosier State's Capital.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. Oct., 13.—The store of R. B. Jerusalem, 70 and 72 Massachusetts Ave. was robbed on the night of October 7 of a quantity of jewelry. A rear shutter was pried open and a window forced up with a jimmy.

The articles taken were nine watches, forty-nine lenthal rings, forty-nine band rings, twenty-six set rings, five gold penholders, twenty-four baby band rings, twelve gents' chains and twelve ladies chains. The value of the booty is about $400. There is no clue to the identity of the burglars.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE GREAT FAIR, INTERESTING TO THE JEWELRY AND COGNATE TRADES.

The Gorham Mfg. Co Will Exhibit at the World's Fair.

The Gorham Mfg. Co. will exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition. The withdrawal of their application for space has been reconsidered and their best efforts will be directed to a proper representation of their various lines. Regrets have been freely expressed that the Gorham Co. should have felt compelled to withdraw from so grand an exposition of the products of American skill. and probably no announcement could be made that would be received by the trade with greater gratification than the fact that they have reconsidered their former declaration.

The display will consist of full lines of sterling silver wares, hotel plated wares, ecclesiastical goods and statuary. The company's masterpieces at former exhibitions have been centers of attraction, and it is not exceeding probability to say their reputation insures the greatest representation of the silver industry ever gathered under one roof. The exhibit will secure the central location such a display merits. As previously stated respecting other lines, the publication of details of the exhibit must be subordinated to individual interests.

The Horological Exhibit, and the Collections of Gems and Precious Stones.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 17.—“We are playing checkers with the different groups,” said Chief Allison, of the Department of Manufactures, “and the pieces are continually on the move. No pieces are removed from the board, however, and the crisis nearly has been reached where a stop will be put to further charges. Frankly, we are not in position to-day to speak definitely. The character of the horological exhibit would of itself indicate a prominent, central location, but to-day the matter is not settled as regards the exhibits in that line. Our first stop now is to make the various allotments; the exhibitor notifies us of his acceptance, and then a permit is sent out authorizing the use of the space allotted. Until the entire formulæ is gone through with there will be little for us to give to the public.”

Chief F. J. V. Skiff, of the Department of Mines and Mining, was seen by THE CIRCULAR correspondent at his new office in the World's Fair grounds, Jackson Park, and is enthusiastic over the display of rough, uncut and unmounted gems and crystals to be shown in his department. “I have good prospects of securing the exhibit of tourmaline owned by Dr. Hamline, of Maine,” said he. “This exhibit is world-renowned and is thought to be the finest in existence. Prof. Bruner, of North Carolina, writes me the collection from that State will be superb. Prof. Bickford reports a special exhibit of gems and semi-gems from his State and that the sapphire exhibit will be very fine.

“We will also have the noted private collections of James B. Dexter, of Colorado, consisting of miscellaneous gems and crystals, worth $150,000. We will be able to furnish all the room necessary for this group. It will be a prominent and attractive feature of the mining display, and will be brought out as it never was brought out before. You may state positively that the exhibit will be very interesting and valuable.”

But a few traveling men were in Indianapolis last week. They were: Benj. Clemens, Byron L. Strasburger & Co., Geo. D. Munson, Wm. Rogers Mfg. Co.; F. W. Trewin, Keystone Watch Case Co.; E. A. Crawford, T. I. Smith & Co.; J. Fuller, Fuller & Meyer; Mr. Harting, Sussfeld, Lorsch & Co. and A. Marshuetz, Spencer Optical Mfg. Co.

Baltimore.

The Baltimore Telegram on Oct. 8 contained a portrait and biographical sketch of Robert M. Lockwood, 11 E. Fayette St.

J. W. Putts has recently returned from New York with an immense line of fancy goods, jewelry, silverware and cut glass.

S. Lubin, manufacturer of optical goods, will make an elaborate and very interesting display at the World's Columbian Exposition. In the window of his store on Lexington St. is a working model of his latest improved machine for cutting, grinding and polishing 400 lenses at one time, which will be shown in Chicago.

Since the 1st of September trade has been exceptionally good with the Baltimore jewelers. The city has been crowded with visitors, nearly all bent on shopping. The sale of diamonds particularly has been unusually large and promises so well to continue brisk all Winter that the larger firms are adding considerably to their stock. Fine fancy lamps are still in good demand. In fact, nearly all kinds of jewelers' goods are selling well. The jewelers' stocks have been depleted somewhat by the wives and daughters of the wealthy delegates to the Episcopal Church Convention.

The Attleboros.

J. M. Fisher addressed a Prohibition rally at Holmes Hall last Thursday evening.

W. E. Sanford, the well-known enameler, is the Prohibition nominee for representative to the general court.

Again John P. Bonnett is enlarging his place. Mr. Bonnett now has, without doubt, the finest private office of any firm in the Attleboros.

Edwin Whitney was elected a delegate to the Bristol Republican convention Thursday. At a caucus he came within a few votes of being North Attleboro's choice for the candidate for State representative.

Edward Tennant has withdrawn from the firm of John T. Healey & Co., and, for reasons best known to himself, has published a notice forbidding all persons from trusting the firm on his account. Mr. Healey now carries on the business.

Eastern jobbers and manufacturers represented in the Twin Cities the past week were: The Acme Silver Plate Co., Boston, Mass., by T. H. Pope; W. S. & J. B. Wilkinson, Chicago, by P. H. Danner; Joseph Fahys & Co., Chicago, by Mr. Savory; the Waterbury Clock Co., Chicago, by C. G. Dodgshun.

An Informal Spread of the Boston Jewelers' Club.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—The Boston Jewelers' Club dined this evening at the Parker House, the occasion being the regular quarterly meeting and informal spread of the association. In the absence of President Percival, Charles Harwood, of Harwood Bros., presided.

The guest of the evening was treasurer Howard L. Roberts, of the Keystone Watch Case Co., who occupied the position of honor at Mr. Harwood's right. The other gentlemen present were: Secretary James S. Blake, of Kettell & Blake; Commodore Charles F. Morrill; W. H. N. Pratt, of Floyd, Pratt & Co.; M. N. Smith, of Smith & Patterson; W. A. Thompson; Arthur H. Pray; Henry W. Patterson, of Smith & Patterson; A. T. Sylvester, of H. T. Spear & Son; E. A. Whitney; L. S. Stowe, Springfield and Ambrose Webster, Waltham.

This Flim-Flam Game Worked like a Charm.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 14.—A well-dressed man, about 35 years of age, entered the jewelry store of P. W. Taylor, 521 Fulton St., Tuesday and purchased two diamond rings valued at $145. He handed the jeweler a roll of bills containing $148, which was returned to him with the remark that he had paid too much.

The stranger took the money, counted it, and agreed that there was $148; but he handed the money back to the jeweler and told him to keep it as he would return in a short time and get something for the surplus. When the jeweler again counted the bills he found he had only $18.

Charles G. Norling Loses a Leg by a Peculiar Accident.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 13.—Early in October Charles G. Norling, of Norling & Bloom, manufacturing jewelers, 386 Washington St., met with a singular accident, which has resulted in the loss of one of his legs. He dropped a pearl from a ring in which it was about to be set, and stooped to pick it up. In bending, he ruptured an artery in the leg.

The true cause of the pain which followed was not suspected at the time, but in a day or two the consequences became so serious that a physician was consulted, and it was decided that amputation of the limb would be necessary to prevent fatal blood poisoning. Mr. Norling was taken to a private hospital, and the operation was performed. It was then discovered that a second amputation higher up on the leg would have to follow, as the diseased condition of the leg rendered recovery of the patient very doubtful. Yesterday the leg was again operated upon, and it is now hoped that all danger of fatal results has been averted.

Quarterly Meeting of the Illinois Retail Jewelers' Association.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 15.—The regular quarterly meeting of the Retail Watchmakers' and Jewelers' Association of Illinois, was held on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 13, with President O. G. Bryant in the chair. There was a good attendance. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The following gentlemen were accepted as members: Fred Scholer, John S. Swanson, E. G. Osborn and Rukgaber & Crane.

On motion it was decided to send Secretary Frederick Correll, Jr., through the State to solicit membership for the association.

Moses Kusworm is a Very Much Wanted Man.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 17.—A much wanted man is Moses Kusworm. A leading wholesale jewelry house on State St., six detectives, a deputy sheriff, a national bank and an insurance company are seeking him. It all came about in this wise: Kusworm went to the jewelry firm and by means of misrepresentations and a bogus draft secured three gold watches with Howard movements, valued at $260. These he took to Tom Donnelly, with his bill of sale, and left them as collateral for a $200 loan. When the firm found Kusworm had departed, detectives were employed and the watches located, the firm paying over $200 to recover the property.

"He has the worst face to run away with ever seen," say the police. He is a peculiar-looking man, short and heavy, with hairlip, slight moustache. He was a "broker" with an office in room 602, Stock Exchange Building. A capias is out for his arrest.

Columbus.

G. H. Dickenson was called to Ashtabula last week by the illness of his wife.

D. Gruen has returned from a visit to Chicago, where he spent a week visiting the jobbing trade.

Thos. Powell, jeweler, Fort Scott, Kan., visited Columbus a few days ago on his return from Washington. Mr. Powell was the guest of Wm. Savage, of the Columbus Watch Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Savage will be in Chicago this week to attend the dedicatory exercises of the World's Fair buildings. They will go in response to an invitation extended by President Higgenbotham.

The copartnership heretofore existing between Albert H. Bonnet and John M. Bonnet, Jr., under the firm name of John M. Bonnet, was on Oct. 15th, dissolved by mutual consent. The affairs of the firm in this city will be settled by Albert H. Bonnet; the affairs of the firm in Zanesville by John M. Bonnet, Jr. Albert H. Bonnet will continue the business at 24 E. Spring St., this city, as heretofore, under his own name.

A visit to the Columbus Watch factory found it running ten hours a day and trade good. It is expected the company will be making nearly 300 watches a day by the end of the year. They have established a department for dial manufacturing and have solved the problem of printing dials with one operation. Next month the factory will have on the market a new pendant set watch. The factory is at present sending to customers a plate glass window sign, with gilt letters on a black background. These signs can be obtained on application.

The Parker & Whipple Co., Meriden, Conn., have just fitted in their factory a new Green's improved 100 H. P. engine, of which they are justly proud. The factory is running to its full capacity, 600 of the company's clock specialties being produced daily. The company have several new specialties in preparation which will be produced in time for the early Spring trade.

ONE of the most proficient men on the road respecting the silver-plated ware trade is Charles J. Jacobs, who for the past twenty-two years has been identified with that trade. He was born in New York, in 1856, and when 14 years of age entered the employ of James A. Babcock & Co., as office boy. Three years later he started on the road for the firm, covering the Eastern States. In 1876, he left the firm and traveled through the west for the New York Silver Plate Co. He worked up an extensive business for that concern, and in 1884 was given an interest in the company. Three years later he left the firm and organized the house of Charles J. Jacobs & Co., with an office and factory at 41 John St. His venture was launched at an unpropitious time, as in that year, 1887, a French syndicate secured control of the entire product of block tin, the prices of which advanced from 17 cents to 41 cents per pound. Unaware of the approach of the increase, Mr. Jacobs had made extensive contracts, and his firm was forced to suspend business with a loss of many thousands of dollars. After he had settled his affairs he again joined the forces of James A. Babcock & Co., and traveled for them two years. In January, 1890, he was appointed manager of the Chicago office of Homan & Co., Cincinnati, O., and in that capacity he has secured considerable new business for his firm. Mr. Jacobs visits New York four times every year with a large line of samples. He is a member of the Jewelers' Council, National Union, of Chicago and the Garden City Council, Royal Arcanum, and is well known to retail jewelers all over the country.

THE "ROUEN."

This pattern, offered as a new and original design, is made in Sterling Silver, with carefully studied effects in outline and decoration.

We would call special attention to the features of rounded and softly curved outline so desirable in any pattern intended for actual use, and contrasting favorably with recent patterns placed on the market, where Outré and Genre effects have been sought, at the expense of grace and beauty. We feel that the better class of dealers will accept the "ROUEN" as a relief from the prevalent sameness that has characterized some of the late productions in spoons and forks.

The "ROUEN" also has this advantage, that while not a heavy-weight pattern, there is an entire absence of the Concave Back that has the tendency of giving any design the appearance of extreme lightness so objectionable to many persons of refined taste.

FANCY PIECES.

The bowls for fancy pieces are always an important factor in the success of any pattern in SOLID SILVER. In these our aim has been to produce a style that should be in harmony with, and supplement the most marked characteristics of the general design. While we always try to secure this effect of completeness, we feel that in the "ROUEN" we have been more than usually successful in our efforts.

Member of the American Trade Press Association.

VOL. XXV. OCT. 19, 1892. NO. 12.

IT is now said that the portrait of Columbus which the World's Fair Commission has selected for the souvenir silver coins is not authentic. Well, the commission have enough likenesses to select from, if they pass in review the numerous portraits that have recently come to light in the newspapers and in the decorations during the New York Columbian Celebration.

Business a-booming. BUSINESS generally has made satisfactory progress for the season, and it is noteworthy that the political campaign is causing no appreciable disturbance of trade. Clearing-house returns to the close of last week showed substantial gains even over those of last year, when Fall business began to feel the impulse of the big crops and the unusual exports. The increased tonnage of coal, grain, live stock, provisions and manufactured goods has more than compensated the carrying companies for the decline in cotton shipments, and it is not surprising that aggregate earnings, in spite of losses on some systems, should continue to show satisfactory gains in comparison with those of last season. Manufacturers are well supplied with orders in nearly all branches of trade. The South appears to be recovering sharply from its prolonged period of extreme dullness of trade and poor collections. Telegrams from its principal supply centers report increased business and bright prospects. Regarding the jewelry industry, THE CIRCULAR'S numerous correspondents report unanimously a satisfactory condition of trade, and in some special cases, salesmen have been called home by reason of the incapability of their firms to accommodate the influx of orders.

How to Run a Jewelry Store.

THE accompanying title formed the subject of a long leader in the Troy (N. Y.) Press last week. Though we suspect the article was written by a member of the craft, the occupation of the jeweler was selected, it was stated, merely to illustrate intelligibly the way to win success in business; any other calling might have been taken, but the writer adopted the above heading, and therefore resolved to confine his comments to the best methods of administering a jewelry establishment. In the realm of trade, proceeded the editorial, system is an essential ingredient, and this is pre-eminently true of the jewelry business. Upon the attractive arrangement and classification of the stock in show cases and the street window display much depends. THE CIRCULAR has ever impressed this truth upon the minds of its readers, as its numerous articles and suggestions in window dressing and store decoration attest. No article should ever be exhibited for sale until the selling price has been attached, so that the salesman can readily name it to a customer without inquiry, investigation or hesitancy. Let not guesswork come into play, as guesswork saps the strength of business. "There is no use of showing high-priced goods to customers who expect to buy at one-tenth of their value." This statement may contain many grains of truth, but it cannot be universally adhered to, for more than one reason. It seems to be an accepted law in business to offer to customers the higher rather than the lower priced goods. The writer proceeds to say that untidy salesmen soon get the stock woefully mixed, to the decided detriment of the store. He must indeed be a careless proprietor to allow this state of affairs to come about. "Integrity is peculiarly a requisite to a jeweler's success. We say peculiarly, because in many lines of goods buyers no less than sellers are expected to be fair judges, but the average customer is a very indifferent judge of the relative value of watches and jewelry. He must in a great measure rely upon the honor of the salesman." Every jeweler appreciates the force of this truth, and knows it is to his own disadvantage to misrepresent the quality of his goods. "Uniformity in price is the best in the long run." The temptation to vary is sometimes beyond the power of resistance; nevertheless if the dealer desires, as he should desire, to have every purchaser renew his visit and become a regular customer, the policy of one price must be followed. The most successful establishments are those that hold their custom. Thoroughly competent workmen should be employed in the repairing department, even if it is necessary to make the charges correspondingly higher, thus urges our mentor. Work should be ready when promised, and always within a reasonable time. Regarding the buying of stock, he claims it is more important to buy with good judgment than to buy close, although both these things should be done. This argument is axiomatic. There should be a minimum of dead stock on the shelves, and unmarketable goods should be marked down low, so that the prices might sell them. "It is only by experience that a merchant learns what class of goods best meets the demands of his trade, and he should not hesitate to sacrifice a few dollars in gaining that knowledge." The writer concludes his thesis by stating that thorough bookkeeping, liberal advertising, conservatism in asking and care in giving credit, and limiting living expenses well within one's income, are factors of success in the jewelry, no less than in other lines of trade.

The defendant caused the arrest of Wernberg on a charge of stealing a gold watch, and it was shown that he was allowed to take the watch home and that he had paid $10 on it. Grinspan failed to appear at the trial of the suit, and Judge Pratt gave the plaintiff judgment for $1,000.

It is not generally known that Henry W. Jaehne, the vice-president of the Board of Aldermen of 1884, who last week completed his imprisonment for bribery was at one time in the jewelry business in this city. He was apprenticed to a jeweler at the age of 14 years, and later opened a store with his brother, Frederick Jaehne. The brother mysteriously disappeared in 1879 and was supposed to have been drowned. Jaehne married his widow and continued in business until 1885, when he sold out to George W. Alter, one of his clerks.

A Decision in the Stern & Stern Failure Case Affirmed.

The New York Court of Appeals has affirmed the decision of the lower court in refusing to vacate the judgments confessed by Stern & Stern at the time of their failure several years ago. The attaching creditors and several other creditors brought suit against the judgment creditors on the ground that there was fraud in the confession of judgment, and wanted the $15,000 realized at the sale of the firm's effects divided pro rata among the creditors.

The plaintiffs in the suit were the Columbus Watch Co., W. H. Black, D. H. Wickham & Co., Engelfried, Braum & Weidman, Ira Barrows, D. R. Corbin and M. W. Morton. Death of a Well-known Southern Traveler.

George F. Peacock, one of best known southern travelers from New York, died Sunday night after a brief illness. Mr. Peacock last Wednesday remained in New York until a late hour watching the Columbian parade. About 12 o'clock he, with a friend, hurried to catch the New Jersey ferry, and in doing so severely ruptured himself. He was taken to his friend's house and the next morning an operation was performed.

Mr. Peacock represented Keller, Ettinger & Fink in the South and possessed a large circle of friends. He was formerly in the employ of Durfey & Shiebler, but later started in business for himself. In 1886 he entered the employ of Keller, Ettinger & Fink. He was thirty-six years of age, unmarried and a member of the Jewelers' League.

SOUVENIR SPOONS, COMMEMORATING COLUMBUS, WORLD'S FAIR, CHICAGO.

PART III.

DIGNITY, impressiveness, and splendor will characterize the ceremonies of dedication of the buildings of the World's Columbian Exposition, at Chicago, this week. Never before in the history of the United States has such a distinguished company assembled for any purpose as will grace the occasion when the palatial edifices of the Fair will be dedicated by the President of the United States. Acceptances to the invitations sent out give assurance that there will be present President Harrison and his Cabinet, Vice-President Morton, the Supreme Court of the United States, the foreign diplomatic corps, almost the entire Senate and House of Representatives, ex-Presidents Hayes and Cleveland, the Governors of nearly all the States and Territories, with their official staffs, many specially commissioned representatives of foreign countries, the high officers of the army and navy, and thousands of the most distinguished citizens of the several States of the Union.

Thousands of persons will visit the western Metropolis, and many of them will take away with them souvenirs of their visit, among which undoubtedly spoons will prominently figure. The designs herewith illustrated are peculiarly adapted to this occasion.

An unusually graceful and attractive spoon is the Chicago, manufactured by the Whiting Mfg. Co., Union Square and 16th St., New York. It is a fine example of appropriate designing and clear die-work. The flame motif that is incorporated in the design is peculiarly pertinent and artistic.

Regarding the Fort Dearborn spoon. "Souvenir Spoons of America" says, after narrating some historic facts regarding Fort Dearborn: "Perhaps no design for a souvenir spoon to commemorate the Garden City would prove more interesting than one embodying a representation of this historic spot. This conception has been adopted by the R. Wallace & Sons Mfg. Co., Wallingford, Conn, whose spoon is unexcelled for excellence of die work and consistency of design. In the bowl is an accurate reproduction of the Fort, with the words Fort Dearborn below. On the handle, which is of graceful outline, is the word Chicago, in fanciful letters, surrounded by representations of flame, suggestive of the great conflagration of 1871."

Anent the other spoon illustrated here, little need be said, as it explains itself. Its uniqueness and chic will recommend it to numerous persons. It is controlled by Geo. E. Homer, 112 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

Connecticut.

Henry R. Woodward, Norwich, has just returned after a two weeks' hunting trip.

Sig. Kronholtz, jeweler, Norwalk, has his show windows prettily decorated for Stamford's 250th anniversary celebration.

Most of the time was spent at Denver, and side trips were made to Pueblo, Colorado Springs, Manitou, and the various mining camps around the State. His health is benefited by the bracing air of Colorado. Mr. Plaut bought the Silver Bell mine of Cripple Creek, and also some real estate.

Trade Gossip.

Jewelers requiring a fountain pen that will prove satisfactory to their customers and will prove profitable to handle should write to H. M. Smith & Co., 83 Nassau St., New York, for samples and prices of their Black Diamond pen.

The Leroy W. Fairchild Co., 189 Broadway, New York, are showing a line of razor stropps that are receiving considerable attention from the trade. They are mounted in sterling silver in many pretty designs, and meet with a large demand from jewelers having a high-class trade.

A. Pinover & Co., 42 and 44 E. Houston St., New York, are producing a line of diamond-mounted novelties that reflect much credit on the firm by reason of their originality of conception, and excellence of workmanship. They are high-class in every particular and should be examined by jewelers visiting the metropolis.

At no time in the history of the jewelry trade has the demand for traveling clocks been so great as at present, and William H. Atwater, 13 Maiden Lane, New York, selling agent for the Boston Clock Co. and the E.

N. Welch Mfg Co., is showing a line of these timepieces that are among the best made, and quotes prices that cannot fail to meet with satisfaction from the trade.

Charles L. Uhry & Co., Newark, N. J., have produced an unusually handsome line of fancy enameled jewelry, for the Fall and holiday season. This house make a specialty of this style of jewelry, which is made in brooches, scarf-pins, charms, neck chains, novelty fobs, etc., for which they have a high reputation in the trade. One of their newest productions is a line of Autumn leaf brooches, which are extremely dainty.

The R. Wallace & Sons Mfg. Co., Wallingford, Conn., have just issued a highly attractive book of over 80 pages containing illustrations of the patterns of flatware produced by the company. The book, which is not intended as a catalogue but simply to show the trade the various designs manufactured by the company, illustrates nearly ninety different patterns of flatware, which is eloquent testimony of the company's enterprise and extensive business. Jewelers who have not received a copy of this volume should send their business card to the company for the same.

THE VICTORY.

The striking feature of this attractive spoon is the allegorical design at the top of the handle representing Victory, trumpet and laurel in hand, seated on the globe—a very poetical treatment of the event to be commemorated.

The handle shows also an architectural column, festooned with floral garlands, typical of the festive character of the occasion.

The bowl can be ordered either with the bird's-eye view of the Exposition buildings and grounds as shown, or plain.

Some Conceits in Advertising.

A FIRM of advertisers in Chicago, who conduct what they term "The World's Fair Bulletins," publish in their advertisement in an exchange a representation of one of these bulletins, which contains the announcement of jeweler Geo. E. Marshall, 195 Wabash Ave., Chicago. The announcement is unique in arrangement, the salient feature being the name as follows:

GEO. E MARSHALL.

The proper variation of this idea may prove effective with other jewelers.

A "Watch-case Calendar." It is made of paper and is so arranged that it can be fastened securely on the inside of one's watch-case, where it may be conveniently referred to at any time. A patent has been applied for it.

Heading a local concerning the business of Marx Dorenfeld, Corsicana, Tex., recently appeared the following:

Either plain or fancy jewelry,
Or ornaments so fine;
With watches, clocks and silverware,
You'll find them in his line.

A PRETTY good advertisement recently put out by a jeweler was headed: "A Quarrel Between Partners." It described a conversation between "Price" and "Quality," each of whom claim the credit for the excellence of the time-pieces advertised.

Under the picture of a spindle-legged messenger boy holding a Brobdingnagian watch with one hand and pointing to the rising sun with the other hand, appears in a country newspaper the following:

New Calendar Work for Watches and Clocks.

THE readers of THE CIRCULAR are aware that several Swiss watch manufacturers have of late constructed their calendar mechanisms in such a manner that the parts of the latter are located upon a special auxiliary plate; they went even further by making these calendar parts suitable not only for a special kind, but the parts can be used for all those watch movements that are most generally in use—that is, of course, of the same caliber. This is indeed a practical improvement. Such an auxiliary plate of 19" size can, for instance, be introduced underneath the dial of nearly all 19-line watches, and it is only necessary to make the motion work a little higher. The advantage accruing from this arrangement is easily understood by the watchmaker, when such an addition is to be made, say, to a complicated watch, a repeater or a chronograph, upon the main plate of which there is no room whatever for a calendar work. English invention is of a humble kind, by which the tally of the day as well as that of every new month must be done by hand.

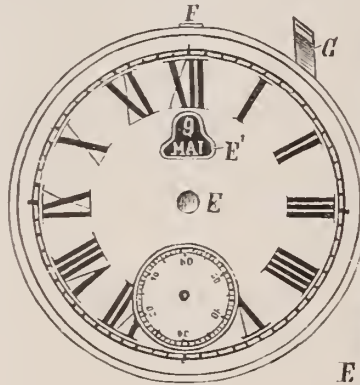

FIG. 1.

Fig. 1 shows the dial E with the date plainly visible through a hole in the dial; Fig. 2 shows the auxiliary plate under the dial; Fig. 3 shows the back of the plate, and

Fig. 4 the whole watch with dial taken down, whereby the parts of the calendar work upon the auxiliary plate A are visible. As foundation for the calendar parts serves the auxiliary plate A, Figs. 2 and 3, which is fastened with two pillars N N upon the main plate B, Fig. 4. This plate A is turned out sufficiently deep upon its front side to permit all the parts of the calendar work being accommodated in the recess without projecting beyond the surface of A.

The month circle D with the 12-tooth month star D¹ is concentric within the date circle C with the 31-tooth date star C¹, in such a manner that the former serves the latter at the same time as axis. The auxiliary plate A, as will be seen by the back view in Fig. 3, contains a large recess A¹, and the month star is furnished with a projecting ring D², which fits into the recess A¹, and this again is turned out so far that the two holes in the dial plate E for the hour canon and the seconds hand remain perfectly free. (In Fig. 4 the date circle C is sketched as partially broken, so as to make the teeth of the month star visible.)

The dial E, Figs. 1, 2 and 3, covers the parts of the calendar mechanism, and is fastened in the ordinary manner either to the auxiliary plate A or direct to the main plate B, in which latter case the pillars must naturally be made longer to allow for the auxiliary plate. The plate is visible through the cut E, Fig. 1, in the dial. The date star is propelled forward daily one tooth by a pressure upon the winding button, at the time when winding the watch. For this purpose serves the lever F revolving around a stop screw f, Figs. 3 and 4. On its under face it has a projection F², Fig. 3, upon which strikes a shoulder F¹, Fig. 4, of the winding staff. By means of a second stop screw a pawl H, which is pressed by the spring S, is connected joint-like with the lever F, while another spring R keeps this lever F in its position of rest, or after a pressure upon the winding button returns it again into its initial position. The star spring T holds the date star in its incidental position.

The month star is actuated at the beginning of every month by once drawing out and then pushing in again the bolt G, Fig. 4. It runs in a wedge-shaped groove A² in the rim of the auxiliary plate A, and is by a stop screw g joint-like connected with the pawl L, which depths by the pressure of a spring K into the teeth D¹ of the month star. The head of the screw g, Fig. 3, runs in a chamfered slot g¹ of the plate A, imparting thereby the necessary guidance to the bolt G, and prevents at the same time the dropping out of the bolt G as well as of the pawl L. The star spring M, Fig. 4, secures the firm position of the month star. If the bolt F is drawn out, after having previously opened the bezel of the watch, the month star is propelled forward one tooth; when pushing the bolt back again, however, the month star remains stationary, because the star spring M prevents the return of the ratchet teeth of C¹, while pawl K at this direction of motion of the bolt slides without interference above the next tooth of C¹.

This calendar mechanism may also be introduced in wall and mantel clocks, by using nearly all the above described parts; the unlocking and motion of the two date stars might in this case be best effected by means of a cord.

To Polish Straight Pivots.—Straight pivots with square shoulders are polished with a steel polisher, slightly curved along the edge that acts against the shoulder of the pivot. This edge is also dovetailed a little, so as to form rather less than a right angle with the bottom of the polisher. The operator will find by experience the amount the polisher requires to be curved. It is rarely that one man can use another's polisher as well as his own; if the edge of the polisher is too much dovetailed, it will produce a wavy shoulder to the pivot. The pivot must be turned nearly to the right size, and the shoulder quite square. During polishing, the end of the pivot must rest on the end of the runner. A piece of paper may be placed underneath the pivot to reflect the light. The light so reflected must be divided equally on either side of the shoulder during the process of polishing and uniform pressure exerted along the pivot. The polisher must be used with a backward and forward motion and with a slightly lateral motion also, to prevent ridges being cut in the pivot.

PARIS, France, Oct. 7th.—If we pass in review the rings exhibited in our best jewelry stores, we remark that they almost all reproduce the patterns devised for bracelets. The ring itself consists either of a band of pale gold studded with tiny colored stones, or of a close net-work in gold or platina with a spray of flowers made of diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds gracefully thrown over it. Some are in cable work made of gold, silver and platina wires, with gems set in at regular intervals; others are in gold jonc covered with black enamel, through which breaks a spreading motif showing yellow, red and green gold. One is formed of two chimeras, whose tails are tied at the back and whose heads meet on a large pearl. Another shows the letters of a name or a motto placed on two wires bent circularly, etc. On rings of a serious character we still observe two stones of different colors placed obliquely, or three stones placed side by side or triangularly.

Cravat pin heads are extremely varied and full of fancy. One formed of gathered black pearls of a minuscule size imitates a bunch of grapes, a familiar pattern in brooches; another has the shape of a Greek urn in frosted gold studded with almost invisible gems. Some show a frog or a curled lizard made of peridots, with rubies for the eyes. Several exhibit Lilliputian trophies which are supposed to betray the ruling passion of the wearer. There are shooting, fishing, horse-riding, gambling, musical and garden trophies. Some pin heads show a fan, a lace handkerchief gracefully folded, a hand holding a heart, a bilboquet, etc.

Noticed in the Rue de la Paix was a vase in green ruffled glass with silver mountings perfectly white, as though they had been dipped in a pure silver bath and left untouched. The glass is decorated with flowers shooting up on high stalks. It also exhibits a spider working at a cobweb.

The present fashion in dress requires that the skirt should be fastened over the interior part of the bodice; this is usually done by means of hooks. I remarked a woman who had a handsome diamond brooch looking like a short sword, with a very elaborate hilt, fastening her skirt at the back.

Fleur-de-lis will ever be a favorite motif. A very handsome one in diamonds has each one of the three branches gracefully parted in the center, making room for a shooting spray of pearls diminishing in size from the base upward. It may be worn as a brooch, or as a head piece, the latter as the top piece of a diadem, the band of which might also be used as a tight necklace.

Portrait-brooches in translucent vari-colored enamel on chased gold are circled with finely cut diamonds set very low; the artistic portrait is thus placed much above its valuable frame. A fashionable brooch consists of a heart-shaped ruby, or sapphire, an emerald or topaz, with light wings made of brilliants. Another brooch is in lapis-lazuli with a sprig of mignonettes made of topazes and silver incrustated in the blue stone; the border, the outline of which is very irregular, has the appearance of a spray of water.

I have seen in one of the best Rue de la Paix stores a fine ladies' gold chain introducing a dozen miniature portraits set at regular intervals.

A silver tea-pot belonging to a set the pieces of which are made to imitate wicker baskets, has a handle showing two infants playing together, one standing on the side of the tea-pot and lifting his arms toward the other who bends over him from the rim of the vessel.

JASEUR.

The charm surrounding the Vienna coffee spoons manufactured by the Geo. W. Shiebler Co., 179 Broadway, New York, lies in their complete department from all conventional designs. They are original, artistic and exclusive, and will undoubtedly enjoy a big demand. They are sold in assorted dozens, or all of one pattern as desired.

What We Are All Talking About.

"It seems particularly dull in England" said Benj. Allen, of Benj. Allen & Co., Chicago. "The Baring failure made such an enormous shrinkage in securities and upset business to such an extent that confidence in business ability was destroyed and every one was distrustful. The diamond men at Hatton Garden and Holborn said their business was very much depressed so far as England was concerned, but those with foreign connections were doing their usual business. The American market was the best they had. In Amsterdam diamond cutters claim business is up to the best it has ever been, but the buyers are mostly Americans, with the French next. While I was there the largest dealer having foreign connections, a Hamburg merchant, was buying largely. My books here show a most satisfactory trade during my absence. We are ahead of last year in both August and September. Past elections have had a tendency to unsettle trade somewhat, but there seems to be little excitement this Fall, and trade is strong."

"We are selecting a great many diamonds this year," said Paul Altemann, traveling representative, recently to THE CIRCULAR'S St. Louis correspondent. "This argues prosperity. As a rule expensive jewelry is the last thing people buy. People who desire to make a display beyond their means generally invest in hand-made diamonds. I can almost tell whether a woman's diamonds are real or imitation by the way she wears them. There is a conscious pride in possessing the real article. Many sports, when flush, buy real diamonds of considerable value. They are splendid collateral in case of a reverse of fortune. Very few real diamonds are worn on the stage. Actresses like Patti, who possess a fortune in precious stones, seldom care to risk them on the road, but have imitations made that answer every purpose of display, while the real gems are locked up in some safe deposit vault."

Early Fall Fashions.

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

Silver brooches are having a great vogue.

Swinging kettles of silver show that the season of teas is beginning.

Silver-mounted glass loving cups with double handles are used for flowers.

Large silver spoons have their bowls ornamented with incised work in floral designs.

White kid card cases with the monogram in gold raised work and sewn with colored stones are made to order.

Glass jardinières with heavy raised silver borders take the place of silver jardinières. They are lined with moss, and are charming.

Pins of white enamel, round and with screw-like forms, have an interior decoration of gold or silver. The same forms are seen in blue enamel.

Low candelabra with twisted branching arms covered with the foliations of Renaissance ornaments are among the prettiest of the new styles.

Montana sapphires excite enthusiasm in many breasts. There are few prettier combinations than those of Montana sapphires and garnets.

The mounting of cut-glass pitchers, colored and clear shows a sumptuousness seen nowhere else. Many of these have lids; frequently they are silver gilt.

Diamonds are set detached, and get their full value. An attractive brooch was seen which had one large diamond in the center and fine waving gold rays about it.

Chicago souvenirs are prominent. Its sky-scrapers are photographed and fixed, with a charming iridescence obtained by an application of mother-of-pearl. These form the bottoms of ornamental trays with silver sides. ELSIE BEE.

Prominent Young Men of the Jewelry Trade.

XXIV.

EVERETT L. ROGERS.

E. I. ROGERS, of the firm of Parks Bros. & Rogers, was born May 25, 1859. He entered the jewelry business Aug. 1873 as office boy for the Ray Mfg. Co., 179 Broadway, New York. He worked his way from this position to salesman for the firm, and made his first trip while in their employ. He resigned his position with the above firm at the end of seven years to accept one of greater responsibility with Barstow & Luther taking charge of their New York office and attending to the selling of the goods. Under his steady and careful management, the business was greatly increased, and it was with much regret that they were obliged to allow him to withdraw at the end of three years, when he entered the employ of the well-known firm of Howard & Son, makers of the American Lever sleeve and collar-buttons. He soon attracted numerous new customers, many of whom were personal friends, even when the competition in this line of goods was at its height. His success soon resulted in his being put in charge of the largest and most important customers of the firm, while other salesmen under his management attended to the wants of the smaller trade.

About this time one of his present partners, G. W. Parks, joined forces with Howard & Son, as manager of a new department in their business, known as the Sterling Co., devoted to the manufacture of solid silver goods. On the first of the present year, the Messrs. Howard concluded to devote their entire interest to the silver business, provided they could sell the Howard & Son plant, which was one of the largest and most complete in the trade. It was at this time that the present firm of Parks Bros. & Rogers was formed for the purpose of buying out the above plant.

Mr. Rogers, though still quite young, is considered one of the best posted men in the trade, and his judgment is eagerly sought concerning those whom he comes in contact with. He is liberal and generous in all his dealings, and it is often said by his friends that he possesses the charm of getting closer to, and making more friends among those he meets than any man in the trade. Mr. Rogers continues to look after the interests of his firm in the larger cities of the west, while his partners, W. C. Parks, and G. W. Parks attend to the New York office and trade, and the manufacturing respectively. Mr. Rogers has a beautiful home in Brooklyn, and is the father of two very interesting sons, aged respectively two and seven years.

An Hydraulic Clock.

THE illustration herewith is that of a very simple clock worked by hydraulic power. On the axis of the escape-plied through a pipe HJ by a reservoir placed near that point. The pallet wheel being thus moved by the weight of the drops of water, keeps the escapement in constant motion. An eccentric pin fixed on the escapement wheel at each turn of the wheel lifts up a detent lever, which, in dropping, pushes by means of the rod F the hands on dial B to a distance calculated for one minute, this being the time during which the wheel turns round.

A is a sketch of the suspension holder; C indicates the rod of the balance and G the bob. The water which has been used falls into the small basin D, and runs out through the pipe I. Mr. Boulat, Constances, France, the inventor, says the consumption does not exceed a litre (about two pints) in twenty hours.

Chinese Fruit Stone Jewelry

NOTHING is wasted in China. The stones of various fruits and the shells of nuts are cleaned, dried and carved into ornaments of the most graceful kind. Among the stones used are the olive, plum, peach, lai-chee and cherry; and of the shells, the walnut and cocoanut. The stones are selected with care; each must exceed a certain standard of size proportion, hardness and weight. They are dried slowly, and at such a heat as not to crack or sprout, and are then ready for the carver.

The designer makes a rough outline of the future group or picture and hands it over to his boys or apprentices. These work with great rapidity and soon block out the design, cutting through the hard ligneous tissue and then extract the kernel. A second treatment now takes place to dry the interior of the stone, as well as to prevent the fine lining of the interior from undergoing decomposition. This completed, the designer sketches a second outline and also indicates by his pencil or brush where the surface is to be lowered, fretted, made into leaf work or arabesquery, or be cut altogether away. The work is performed by the subordinates, as at first. The designer then does the finishing touches, after which the assistants clean, polish and oil or wax the perfected carving.

The stones are sold in this shape to quite a large extent, but more largely in other forms. Among these may be mentioned buttons, watch charms, sleeve links, ear-rings, and brooches, and when strung together, bracelets, anklets, necklaces, watch-chains, rosaries and official ornaments. The price of a stone varies greatly with the workmanship and the fame of the carver. Some may be bought as low as ten cents apiece.

A Fine, Salable Line of Bric-à-brac.

IT is scarcely two months since the growing demand in the jewelry trade for art pottery and bric-à-brac induced Levy, Dreyfus & Co., 11 Maiden Lane, New York, to rent the adjoining store No. 9, and devote it entirely to this line. During this brief period the firm have received so much encouragement, both from their regular customers and from those who have been attracted to the choice goods, that the success of their step is already assured. One of the more potent factors in this spontaneous endorsement is that the goods, shown by them have all been chosen with a special view to the requirements of the retail jeweler. None but the most salable patterns have been imported. As is known, many jewelers hesitate to handle this class of goods, owing to a fear of being burdened with unsalable patterns. Levy, Dreyfus & Co. have exerted every endeavor to obviate this prejudice by showing only designs that meet with popular favor. On this page are illustrated a few of the samples now on exhibition in their sales-rooms.

The combination clock and lamp is an extremely fine piece of French ware. The decoration consists of gold figures on a dark blue background while gold birds circle the lamp globe. The metal work at the base is of gilt bronze, as are the side and top ornaments. The vase showing an eagle struggling with a venomous snake is of Austrian ware. The eagle has a white polished finish, while the snake is of gold and has ruby eyes. The artistic curves in the reptile's body gives symmetry and grace to the ornament.

The Royal Worcester chocolate pot is a sample of a very extensive line of this desirable ware that the firm are showing. It has ple of a class of goods that promises to be very salable this fall, and its odd shape together with its decorations, which consist of blue flowers on a solid gold background, make it a pattern that will elicit praise wherever shown.

the new pearl finish in combination with the popular old ivory, and its shape is one of the most recent creations. The Royal Bonn jardiniere is another piece that will sell well among jewelers. The Rambler's Notes.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

IN the advertisement of P. H. Leonard, 76 and 78 Reade St., New York, published on another page, is illustrated several samples of the firm's recent importation of Thuringian ware. The picture, however, gives but a faint idea of the beauty and attractiveness of the ware, which can only be appreciated upon an examination of the various pieces. The ware is shaped after patterns which prevailed in the Henry II. period, and possesses an originality that classes it among the most desirable pottery for the jewelry trade. The tops and ornaments of the pieces are fashioned after the cactus plant, the body being of white with an olive finish, while the edges are of bright gold. The ware is shown in ewers, trays, vases, etc., and will undoubtedly prove a big success.

A very pretty effect in blue is produced in a line of Austrian ware on exhibition in the show rooms of Charles Ahrenfeldt & Son, 50 to 54 Murray St., New York. The ware has a matted body of dark blue with fanciful designs in gold, while a lighter shade forms the decoration of the sides and tops.

*

An odd-shaped, elongated tray, at one end of which rests a pretty ink receptacle, is a novelty in Royal Bonn that can be seen in the salesrooms of Leon J. Glaenger & Co., 80 and 82 Chambers St., New York. The tray is intended to receive pens, and is decorated with soft-colored flowers and plants.

*

The gold monogram of Louis Philippe, circled with a wreath of laurel and having on each side a flying Cupid, forms the decoration of a set of Delinières china shown by F. W. Büning & Co., 58 Murray St., New York. A novelty shown by the same house that should interest jewelers is a rococo photograph frame of Delinières china with the scrolls forming the edge, of gold, while violets are scattered over the surface of the frame.

The Dresden china articles of vertu are exquisite. In London there has been a mania for china wheelbarrows as jardinières for the table. There is a prosaic look about these that is not to be found in the tiny sleighs apparently lined with quilted satin decorated with garlands, a tiny dove perched on before and runners terminating in long curving shafts.

A new shape in cups is exceedingly broad at the top and narrow at the base, with straight sides which have not the swell seen in the ordinary patterns now in use. A fanciful French style, called the "collaretté cup," is made in somewhat the effect of a child's collar, drawn together in a bow and band of ribbon. There are also new patterns of the Marie Antoinette cups and plates.

*

The body of a rococo-ornamented palm exhibited in the showroom of the Meriden Bronze Co., 30 Park Place, New York, is formed of a dull-finished silver sphere on which a gold bird rests with outstretched wings, presenting the appearance of having been injured while attempting to reach the flame.

*

Craighead & Wilcox, 33 Barclay St., New York, show for the holiday trade a most varied and attractive time of lamps, onyx tables and other metal art goods that are especially in demand as gifts during that season.

Another Wonderful Clock.

AN Englishman claims to have acquired from a Black Forest maker, for the sum of 16,000 marks, the most wonderful timepiece that has yet been made. This ingenious mechanism, it is averred, contains every thing that is to be found on other clocks and on calendars; and, in addition, it indicates Berlin, St. Petersburg, Madeira, Shanghai, Calcutta, Montreal, San Francisco, Melbourne and Greenwich time.

Every evening at 8 o'clock a handsome young campanologist invites hearers, in bewitching tones, to vespers in an electrically illumined chapel, where a devout-looking damsel is dreamily playing the familiar "Maiden's Prayer." On New Year's Eve two trumpeters announce the flight of the old and the advent of the new year. In May the cuckoo makes a welcome appearance; in June the quail comes forth; and on October 1 a magnificent pheasant is ushered in, only, alas, to be ruthlessly shot down by a typical British sportsman, who proceeds to bag his game in the orthodox style.

At day-break a golden sun rises, bells the while merrily tinkling an appropriate German air, "Phœbus Awakes." At full moon the strains of another favorite Teutonic melody, "Sweet and Tranquil Luna," are ravishingly discoursed. Chanticleers, angels, Death with his rattling bones, gray-beards, youths and children of both sexes, and other allegorical figures crowd the metaphorical stage of this wonderful clock, which, prior to its purchase by a wealthy Englishman had extorted the almost awe-stricken admiration of the 4,000 residents of the little town of Furtwangen, in Baden, in whose Industrial Hall it had been temporarily exposed to public view.

SUGGESTIONS FOR WINDOW DECORATION.

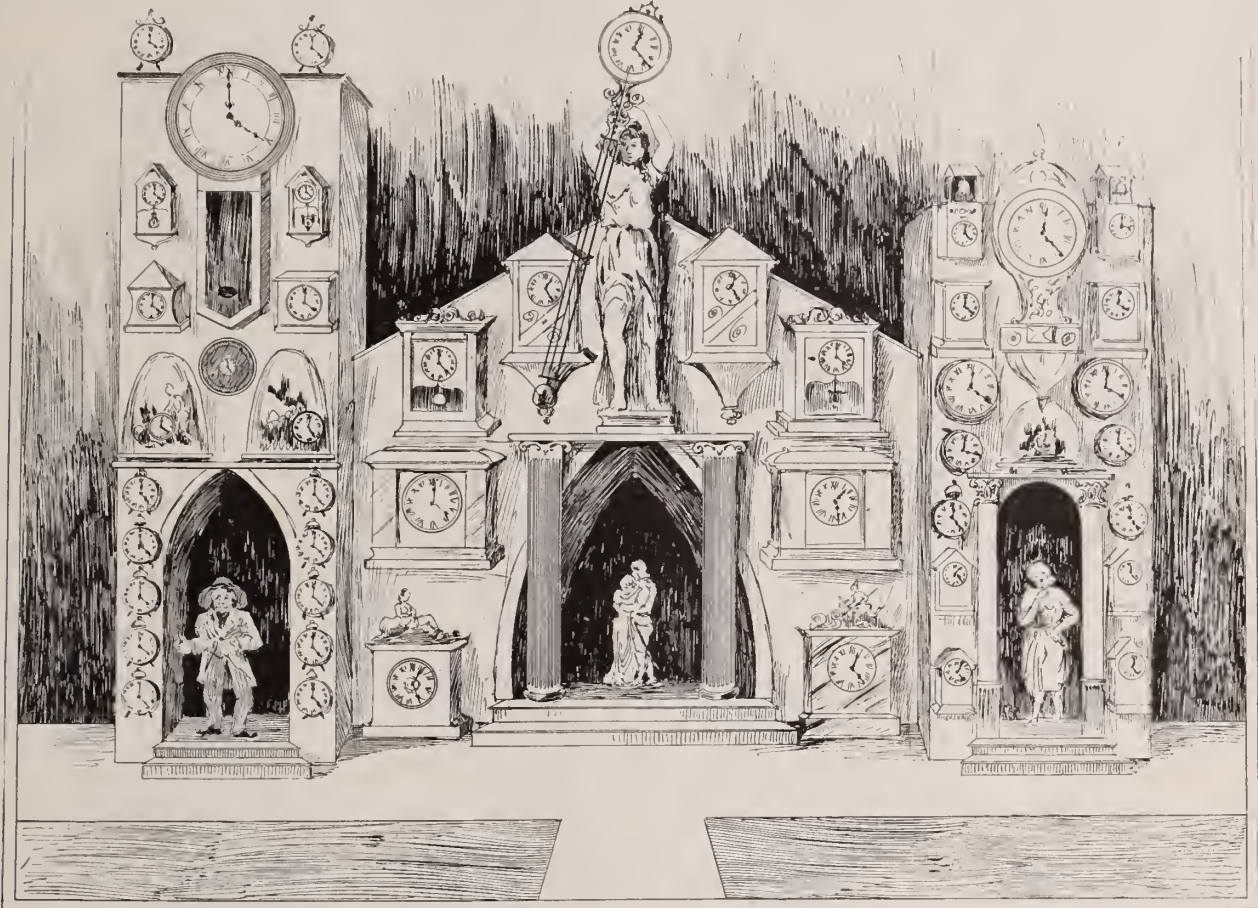

Members of the trade who think they have an attractive window are invited to send us a photograph, or a pen and ink or pencil sketch of the same, which will be published if we consider the window contains any originality or lesson.

IDEA XXXIX.

THE illustration herewith depicts an unusually unique display of clocks recently seen in the window of Geo. C. Allis, Birmingham, Conn. It was called "The Castle of Clocks," and represented a miniature castle covered with an arrangement of clocks. The castle was formed of empty boxes covered with white or light brown cloth, and the clocks were held to the structure by means of screw eyes. Doors were cut in the lower part of the boxes and pieces of statuary were arranged in the apertures. In front of the castle were other pieces of statuary which made an appropriate foreground. Considerable credit is due Charles I. Freeman for the conception and execution of this attractive and odd window decoration.

REGAL JEWELRY AT THE WOMEN'S EXPOSITION.

DO not mean to make a thorough review of the portraits showing jewelry, exhibited at the Arts de la Femme Exposition. Neither do I intend to write a complete history of jewelry in costume. My object is to place before the eyes of THE CIRCULAR'S readers the most remarkable arrangements of jewels ever devised to adorn costly dresses, as shown in the portraits on view at the Exposition. I will also mention necklaces and hair jewelry. From this point of view, there are no interesting portraits of ancient queens, or of mediæval females of a high rank, at the Exposition. Let us therefore start with the sixteenth century.

One portrait of Claude, first wife of Francis I. of France, shows very clearly how jewelry was worn on dresses at the beginning of the sixteenth century. It consists of different chains tastefully arranged so as to give an effect at once symmetrical and soberly elegant. A chain formed of diamonds with a square or dented oval bezel alternating is thrown over the shoulders and gracefully caught up at the top of the low-neck bodice, in front by a brooch with three pearl drops as a pendant. Another chain arranged so as to form an oval design hangs from the brooch. A girdle consisting of diamonds, which alternate with groups of five pearls, loosely encircles the waist, and from the front piece of the girdle, formed of eleven pearls, a long chain patenôtre (because it was worn like a rosary) runs straight down to the bottom of the dress, ending with a large motif from which hangs a group of three pearl drops, with another pearl on each side. On some portraits, of an earlier period, we remark patenôtres in chased gold ending with a worked ball called a ferret.

In the inventory of the French crown jewels for 1530 there is mentioned a necklace consisting of eleven diamonds which is believed to have been worn by Queen Claude of France, and also by Eleanor of Austria, second wife of Francis I. This necklace was formed of ten knots of gold cord, every one of which was adorned with fourteen pearls. The ten knots were divided by eleven festoons made of twisted gold cord, with a diamond placed on each of them. The diamonds were of different shapes, triangular, table, oval and heart-shaped. One of them, finer than the others and well faceted, was called the Eye, or Fusle de Bretagne; it was worth 108,240 écus soleil (gold coins), viz., 1,461,240 francs, not taking into account the difference, as to the value of money, between that period and our own.

Figure 1 reproduces Halnech's portrait of Marie de Médicis, wife of Henri IV. of France. It is, as far as jewelry is concerned, the most interesting portrait of that queen. The pretty little crown placed slightly on the back of her curling hair is made of diamonds, rubies and pearls, with a large diamond well faceted and finely set rising on the top in front. The coltoire is formed of groups of five pearls, alternating with diamonds flanked with four pearls. Two chains of the same style, one on each side, are caught at the base of the corsage in a very large bow-knot, called a cusquière, the ends of which, forming an oval loop, spread out beyond the waist over the top of the puffing skirt. The pendant of the coltoire is a cross consisting of six diamonds, the setting of which is very light, with a triangular diamond at the end of each branch of the cross. A large pearl drop hanging at the base of the pendant extends its vertical line, while two other pear-shaped pearls, hung underneath the horizontal branch, break the rigidity of the effect. The intervals between the crevés on the sleeves are adorned with diamonds surrounded with pearls.

There are a great many portraits of Catherine de Médicis, wife of Henri II., King of France; but the most faithful is believed to be the one in enamel by Leonard Limosin, which belongs to Baron Gustave de Rothschild's collection. As shown in Fig. 2, Queen

The Aurora and Lancaster Watch Companies Consolidated.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 20.—On Tuesday afternoon, at a meeting in this city the consolidation of the Aurora Watch Co. and the Lancaster Watch Co. was formally consummated, after several months' negotiations. When the Lancaster watch factory was sold at sheriff's sale, it was purchased by Hugh M. North. Negotiations were at once opened for the formation of a new company, the present consolidation with the Aurora plant being the outcome.

The new company will be known as the Columbian Watch Co. and will have a paid-in capital of $350,000. At Tuesday's meeting an organization was effected as follows: President Charles D. Rood, late of the Aurora Company; Treasurer, Frank P. Coho, Lancaster; Directors, Charles D. Rood, P. T. Watt, George M. Franklin, John F. Brimmer. A building committee, composed of Frank P. Coho, H. S. Williamson and Henry J. Cain was appointed and directed to proceed immediately with the erection of a large annex to the present plant, the addition of the Aurora plant necessitating a large increase in boiler and engine power. H. M. North was elected solicitor, and directed to apply immediately for a charter.

The removal of the machinery from the Aurora factory was directed to commence at once. Nearly all the machinery there is packed, ready for shipment, and the only delay that will be encountered will be in the adjusting department. It is probable that the unfinished watches will be shipped here and finished. Henry J. Cain will be the manager of the factory and will have entire charge of all the details. It is probable that work will be begun on a small scale within a month or six weeks.

The new company has ample capital back of it, and for the first time in its history it looks as if the Lancaster factory was destined for a successful run.

The American Horological Society.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 20.—The regular monthly meeting of the society was held in room 1535 Masonic Temple, Tuesday evening Oct. 11, 1892.

The president read a letter from the publishers of The American Jeweler in which they tendered the society a Webster-Whitcomb lathe with the suggestion that it might be used as one of three prizes to be offered to the trade at large for the best essay on a practical subject. They also presented the society 40 bound and unbound volumes as a nucleus of a library. The Horological Tool Co., of Chicago, presented a full set of staffing chucks, from No. 3 to No. 10, in full and half sizes, to be used, like the lathe, for a prize. The Chicago Watch Tool Co. presented a 40 lb. foot wheel for the same purpose. The president appointed Chas. Bieling, C. E. Hart and O. G. Bryant a committee to select a subject for the essays, with instructions to report at next meeting.

The secretary then read a letter from Mr. Aaron L. Dennison, of Birmingham, Eng., better known as the "Father of American Horology," in which he made application for membership and inclosed an American dollar as initiation fee. The other applications received were from Julius Heineman, W. A. Strohm and J. H. Purdy, Chicago, and N. C. Fulton, Aledo, Ill. These gentlemen were duly elected to membership, and on motion, duly seconded, L. Strasser, Glashütte, Saxony, elected at the last regular meeting, and A. L. Dennison were enrolled as honorary members. Various committees reported and new ones were appointed and the meeting adjourned to the second Tuesday evening in November.

The Last Rites in Honor of Louis Gundlach.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 19.—The funeral of Louis Gundlach took place Sunday afternoon, attended by a large number of sorrowing friends. Many of the city officials of Hartford attended and all of the various societies of which the deceased was so long an influential member were largely represented; also the jewelry fraternity of the city, with which deceased had for so many years been identified.

Fine selections were beautifully sung by the Musurgia club. The services took place at Christ Church, which was filled to overflowing. The interment was in Spring Grove Cemetery, this city.

The Obsequies of Col. George A Harmount.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 21.—There was a large attendance of sorrowing friends at the funeral of Col. George A. Harmount, which was held yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of Hon. Hiram Camp, his father-in-law. Many prominently interested in the New Haven Clock Co., and many influential business men of the city and vicinity were among the assemblage.

The honorary bearers were president Pierce M. Welch, who is a director in the clock company; Benjamin R. English, ex-postmaster of New Haven, who is a nephew of the late ex-Governor J. E. English, and two other prominent business men of this city, Enos S. Kimberly and Sterman F. Foote. The interment, which was private, was in New Haven's beautiful Evergreen Cemetery.

Bold Capture of a Window Smasher.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 21.—Frank Coyle, 24 years of age, made a daring attempt to burglarize Mrs. E. Miller's jewelry store at 1006 Franklin Ave., on Tuesday afternoon. He smashed the window with a brick, and was making away with a load of valuables, when Abe Miller shot at him. The noise attracted John H. Hubbard, who was aboard a Franklin Ave. cable car, and jumping off he chased Coyle.

The latter drew a knife, but Hubbard drew his revolver and covered him with it until two detectives arrested him.

A Clever Diamond Thief Captured in Chicago.

land Loan Co., of that city. He was arrested while in company with Mrs. Annie E. Graham, whose peculiar diamond transactions in this city have given her an unenviable reputation.

G. A. Stevens, of the Midland Loan Co., was in the city, and stated that Thistle stole the diamonds from a showcase. When the two were brought face to face Thistle admitted his guilt and made overtures looking to a settlement, but Stevens insisted on his man being taken back to Kansas City.

Burglars Make a Heavy Haul in an Indiana Town.

ELKHART, Ind., Oct. 18.—Burglars broke into H. McClachlan's store last night and stole about $1,200 worth of jewelry and other goods.

The thieves were evidently frightened away, as several large packages containing silverware were found where they had been left in shape for removal.

Jeweler Comfort Unknowingly Prevents a Burglary.

OWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 9.—At about two A. M. Sunday, M. L. Comfort, who sleeps in the rear of his store, was awakened by the crash of glass. He saw a man standing by the front door and called out to him, when the man ran. Mr. Comfort thought it was only a drunken man and went back to bed.

A few minutes later an officer passed through Lake St., where he met a baggagemaster of the D. L. & W., who said that a man wearing "sneaks" ran quickly over the bridge preceded by two men who walked far in advance. Investigation showed that a diamond had been used to cut a hole in the window of Ball & Stevens' store. The thief entered through the broken window and stole from the show case gold rings, silver chains, mouth organs, etc.

An Old Swindling Dodge Worked Successfully Once More.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Oct. 17.—A few days ago a well-dressed stranger, giving the name of John Somers, entered the Santa Clara Bank and deposited a check for $200 on a San Francisco bank. The day following the young man entered the jewelry store of Serighelli & Draghicevich, this city, and purchased a gold watch and chain and a locket valued at $34. In payment he presented a check for the amount on the Santa Clara Bank.

On Saturday Mr. Draghicevich presented the check at the bank and received the $34. The bank telegraphed to the San Francisco bank, and received a reply that the check was worthless. The matter has been placed in the hands of the police.

William T. Eaves, who formerly conducted a jewelry store on J St., Sacramento, Cal., is, with his wife, reported in destitute circumstances. Eaves was for several years Mayor of Virginia City, Nev., and is 70 years of age.

A Writer's Suit Against the Keystone Watch Case Co.

A decision in the law of contracts was rendered on Wednesday, by Judge Wallace, in the U. S. District Court, New York. The suit of C. E. Fritts against the Keystone Watch Case Co., Philadelphia, which was begun in August, 1891, came to trial on that day. The plaintiff sued for a balance of several hundred dollars, which he claimed was due him under a contract, and also for damages for breach of contract by the defendant.

The evidence showed that in November, 1890, the plaintiff wrote to The Keystone Watch Case Co. about contributing technical articles for its paper, The Keystone. This letter was answered on the company's stationery, using the word "we" in stating what they required, and was signed: "Benj. Thorpe, Business Manager." Thorpe, who for several years has had charge of the company's advertising and paper, afterward came to New York and made a written contract with Fritts, in which he is described as "Business Manager of the The Keystone," but he signed it as "Benj. Thorpe."

This contract was to run till May 1, 1891. "with the privilege of continuing on same terms till January 1, 1892." Under the contract Fritts furnished articles and was paid a considerable sum of money by the Company, during the following eight months. In April Fritts and Thorpe had a dispute about the construction of the contract, because Thorpe had rejected an article. Fritts claimed that the agreement between them was that Thorpe was bound to pay for every article sent in precisely as the contract read, while Thorpe claimed the right of rejection. The contract itself recited that "said Thorpe shall pay for said articles within ten days after their receipt by him." This did not prevent them from going on under it as before, till August, 9, 1891, when Fritts claimed that the defendant had broken the contract, and brought suit as already stated.

John C. Lowery, president of the Keystone Watch Case Co., put in an answer, on affirmation, admitting that the company owned The Keystone, and that Thorpe was its business manager, but denying that Thorpe was the agent of the company, or that Fritts had furnished any articles to it, or that the company was responsible for articles furnished to The Keystone by Fritts under his contract with Thorpe.

On the trial, Geo. C. Comstock, counsel for the defendant, admitted that Thorpe was the agent of the company, but claimed that the company was not liable on the contract, which, he argued was the individual act of Thorpe. The court ruled that Thorpe acted as the agent of the company, that it was bound by his contract with Fritts, and that it was the proper party to be sued. The case was finally dismissed, however, on a legal technicality, the court holding that the contract had expired on May 1, 1891.

Another important ruling was on what constitutes a "payment in full." On August 9, 1891, Thorpe sent Fritts checks for $470, saying that it was in full satisfaction for all that he owed Fritts, and added: "If you are not satisfied to accept this as payment in full, I will leave our differences to a referee, to be settled by arbitration," etc. This was less than one half of the amount that Fritts claimed from Thorpe, and he accordingly cashed the checks and sent Thorpe a receipt for the amount "on account for articles contributed to The Keystone." Judge Wallace held that the payment, coupled with the statement that it was in full, and that, if Fritts was not satisfied with that, he could do something else, made it a payment in full.

THE VICTORY DESIGN.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION SOUVENIR SPOON.

The striking feature of this attractive spoon is the allegorical design at the top of the handle representing Victory, trumpet and laurel in hand, seated on the globe—a very poetical treatment of the event to be commemorated.

The handle shows also an architectural column, festooned with floral garlands, typical of the festive character of the occasion.

The bowl can be ordered either with the bird's-eye view of the Exposition buildings and grounds as shown, or plain.

Jeweler Taylor Wants Possession of His Two Little Girls.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 19.—H. C. Taylor, jeweler and optician, 408 Harrison Ave., Leadville, came to town this week and told a tale concerning how his two children, in the hands of his divorced wife, were being brought up in the paths of vice. An officer was sent to the house of the sometime Mrs. Taylor, who is now Mrs. Thomas B. Watson, and with an officer of the Humane Society took the two little girls of five and nine years to police headquarters. Shortly afterward the mother came in and told her story.

She is married again since her divorce. She alleges that the children are having the best possible care, and it is a wicked scheme of her first husband to get the babies away from her. She will go into court and ask for an order compelling her husband that was to leave her undisputed possession of the children.

The Body of a Salesman Supposed to have been Murdered, Found.

PELLA, Ia., Oct. 19.—The dead body of W. A. Akerly, an elderly resident of Lisbon, was found in a cornfield about a mile west of Stanwood. He was a jewelry salesman who had been visiting friends near there, and left them Sept. 13, saying he would return to town. As he had over $100 on his person at the time, and nothing can be found of it, it is supposed he was murdered for his money.

When found the body was so badly decayed that it could only be identified by the papers in the clothing. The community is greatly wrought up over the killing, and many wild rumors are afloat. Sensational developments are promised in the near future.

Demise of a Highly Respected Salesman.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—E. N. Leonard died suddenly at his residence, 1217 K St. N. W., of paralysis of the heart, some days since. Mr. Leonard has been for many years a trusted salesman at the jewelry establishment of J. Karr, 945 Pennsylvania Ave. N. W., and was well and favorably known to the best citizens of Washington, enjoying the thorough confidence of those who had dealings with him.

He was nearly sixty years of age, having been born at Richburg, N. Y., March 11, 1832, but had resided in Washington for the past thirty-five or forty years. He leaves a widow and two sons.

Good finds continue at Christiana, the new diamond field in the Transvaal, and at Barkly West on the Vaal River. On Sept. 9, a 14 karat stone from the former place was disposed of in Kimberley for £100.

THE EXPOSITION A SUCCESS—THE KEY WHICH OFFICIALLY OPENED THE EXPOSITION—JAGERSFONTEIN'S AUGUST OUTPUT—THE DIAMOND MARKET.

KIMBERLEY, Sept. 10, 1892.—Our exhibition has been duly opened, and the present is a period of unwonted festivity in this arid region. There is every prospect that the exposition will prove a great success. The key with which Sir Henry Loch performed the official opening ceremony was of Transvaal gold, ornamented with Kimberley diamonds. It was manufactured by the Messrs. Chubb, the London safe makers, and is a beautiful piece of workmanship. The diamond court is attracting many interested visitors, and the gold trophies from Johannesburg command much attention. The scene is a brilliant one, but a trifle too bewildering yet to justify me dwelling in detail upon those exhibits in which THE CIRCULAR'S readers are likely to possess a special interest.

During August the output of diamonds at Jagersfontein was 14,375 karats, of an estimated value of £27,050. For some reason, which the officials decline to explain, there has not for several months been a return of the diamond production at Kimberley.

Cable advices indicate a slight downward tendency in the price of diamonds, the demand for the rough produce having experienced a momentary decline. Most of the local buyers are however looking forward to an October market as a set-off against the temporary suspension of business. In one or two instances this impression has already been acted upon, and transactions with the De Beers Co. have taken place during the current week and are likely to continue during next, thus demonstrating that the basis of price at present ruling with the diamond pool is not absolutely too high, though here and there a murmur is being directed against the rapid advance of rates. So far, however, as market calculations can be guided by existent facts, there is every reason to anticipate that a favorable reaction is impending, and that the trade will soon receive a fresh impetus.

That the De Beers Co. continue to practically regulate the market is one of the greatest sources of confidence to the trade, who otherwise would be at the mercy of one or two of the large operators, as formerly. A ring in the market was no uncommon event at the slightest sign of an apparent decline, and diamonds were depreciated on the one side in order to make cheaper purchases on the other. To-day the pool is as well advised as the trade, and though a fair margin of profit is invariably allowed to the buyer, the control of the output is so arranged as not only not to press unduly upon the merchant, but actually to facilitate his transactions. The commoner classes of diamonds still continue to be regarded unfavorably.

A Larceny Case with More than One Aspect.

During the past week much has been published in the daily newspapers anent the charge of larceny brought by Mordecai Kaufman, a diamond dealer having desk room at 25 John St., New York, against Mrs. Minnie Gomez and her husband, Senor Jose Gomez, a Brazilian. This couple occupy a high position in New York, and some months ago, being pressed for money, the woman made an arrangement with Kaufman whereby she was to sell jewelry to her fashionable acquaintances at 6 per cent. commission.

Kaufman says that she began swindling him about three months ago, and obtained in all about $10,000 of diamonds from him. Two weeks ago her husband gave him pawn tickets for jewelry pawned for $3,100. The arrest of both followed. When arraigned in court Mrs. Gomez claimed that she pawned the jewelry with Kaufman's knowledge, and advertised in the papers that "A lady temporarily embarrassed would sell her jewelry cheap." The prisoners have been held in $5,000 bail for trial.

The following pawnbrokers have given up jewelry pledged with them by Mrs. Gomez: Joseph Blau, 45 6th ave.; D. Silberstein, 10 6th ave.; Levi & Cook, 610 Hudson St., and H. Stern, 56 W. 31st St. Those who refused to surrender were Louis Dreyer, 6th ave. and 28th St.; William Simpson, corner Bowery and Delancy St.; John Stitch, corner 3d Ave. and 114th St.; William Glover, 102 W. 38th St., and Benjamin Fox, 72 8th Ave. Geo. C. Comstock has been retained by the latter to contest the surrender of the jewelry with payment.

Clerk Radebaugh's Encounter With a Murderous Thief.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—An unusually bold attempt to rob the store of Baldwin Bros. was made early this morning. William Radebaugh, the clerk in charge, had just opened the store and was lifting a tray of watches and jewelry from the safe to a show case when a stranger entered. He inquired whether there was a toilet-room in the rear of the store.

Radebaugh left the tray on the counter while he kindly showed the stranger to the back room. As soon as this room was entered the would-be thief dealt Radebaugh a heavy blow with a bowlder wrapped in a handkerchief, forming a weapon similar to a sand-bag. Although staggered by the blow, Radebaugh managed to overpower his assailant and held him while an officer was sent for. Before the officer arrived the fellow broke away and escaped through a back door. In the scuffle a show case was demolished. The thief did not succeed in getting any booty.

A Slick Stranger Works all the Stores of Scranton.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 21.—For some time past a slick-looking stranger has been in the habit of visiting the jewelry stores of the city and examining diamond pins, rings, etc. After his visits many of these articles were missing.

This led to an investigation and it was found that the stranger had visited and committed theft in every jewelry store in the city. Many of the articles stolen were traced to the pawn shops of the city. The thefts will amount to several hundred dollars. It is thought the thief has disappeared from the city.

A Heavy Failure in the Modern Athens.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 24.—Jacob Lewis, who removed a few weeks ago from Tremont Row to a new and elegant store on Washington St., corner of Winter St., has assigned to Raymond R. Gilman, attorney, of this city. He owes about $70,000, most of the indebtedness being to Boston and New York houses. The assets consist of his stock, comprising an assortment of jewelry, silverware and diamonds, also leases, and some interest in outside investments.

The cause of the failure is supposed to be dulness of trade in his new location, especially during the repairs on Washington St., combined with heavy expenses and losses through outside ventures. It is stated that Mr. Lewis is only temporarily embarrassed, and if granted an extension of time can probably pay all claims in full.

Here is Another Sapphire Company in Montana.

Our Traveling Representatives

Traveling representatives may consider these columns open for the publication of any news or items of interest regarding themselves or their confreres.

EVERYBODY in the trade is acquainted with Samuel A. Baldwin, though the majority know him as simple, ordinary everyday "Sam" Baldwin. Few men on the road have had as long or as diversified experience as the subject of this sketch. Mr. Baldwin entered upon this mundane sphere on that part designated as Manchester, N. H., on June 26, 1838. In 1853 he started to learn the jewelry business in his native town, and was engaged for three years with B. F. Edmunds, at the following munificent yearly stipends: First year, $25; second, $50; third, $75. He had to pay his own board, and his hours of duty were from 5.30 A.M., to 10.30 P.M., Saturdays to 12 P.M. In 1856 he went to Boston and engaged with James A. Shedd, for whom he worked one year in the factory, at the end of which time he started out on the road in New England. In September, 1857, Mr. Shedd removed to Racine, Wis., to open a manufacturing and jobbing business. Young Baldwin went with him. They stopped there until the panic of 1857-58 wiped out Mr. Shedd's business. Sam returned to Boston, and during the winter of 1859-60 worked at his trade for his board only.

In 1861 Mr. Baldwin went with Sackett, Davis & Co., traveling first in New England and then west until 1871, when he went with S. M. Lewis & Co., taking charge of the New York end of their business. He remained with this house until 1881, when he engaged with W. E. White & Co., whom he still represents. It will be seen from this outline of Mr. Baldwin's career that with the exception of three years he has traveled throughout the country in the jewelry interests since 1857 and he still does so. Undoubtedly no traveler in the trade is more universally liked than Sam Baldwin, for his jovial, honest, straightforward manners and bearing win the good will of all who come in contact with him.

J. C. Miller, of Duhme & Co., Cincinnati, and E. Jacobson, of Jacobson Bros., New York, were traveling men in Canton, O., during the past week.

F. A. Browne has been engaged by the Waterbury Watch Co. to display their new style watches in Philadelphia, and later through the large western cities.

John L. Nudd, formerly traveling salesman for E. A. Whitney, Boston, covering the northern New England section, has started in business for himself in Manchester, N. H., as an engraver.

Mr. Vincent, representing Simpson, Hall, Miller & Co., Chicago, has returned from Milwaukee with favorable reports of trade conditions there. Mr. Vincent left the first of the week with a fine line of new samples for the Indiana trade.

Tom Anderson, with M. A. Mead & Co., returned last week from Texas by way of Iowa, and left Wednesday for Nebraska, Colorado, Oregon and California. Mr. Anderson thinks California has been boomed until people are now land poor, and consequently cash poor.

Charles Langhaar representing Potter & Buffinton, Providence, writes from San Francisco that he will return to Chicago via Kansas City, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Cleveland. Mr. Langhaar is the first arrival from San Francisco to Chicago by way of Pittsburg.

Among the traveling salesmen in Wilmington, Del., last week were: George S. Melville, of the Acme Silver Plate Co.; Mr. Hoover of Simons, Bro. & Co.; Mr. Vogel; James Hughes, of Louis A. Scherr & Co.; Geo. H. Rubenstein, of Rubenstein Bros.; Samuel C. Martin; Mr. Odenheimer, of Odenheimer & Zimmern; E. H. Proudman.

Traveling men visiting Davenport, Ia., the past week were: Irving Alsberg, Max Freund & Co.; V. L. Burgess, Kremetz & Co.; J. F. Coan, Rockford Silver Plate Co.; C. M. Davis, New Haven Clock Co.; M. Schmidt, Swartzchild & Co.; C. H. Pixley, F. A. Hardy & Co.; C. A. Barnum, Meriden Britannia Co.; S. Guggenheim, Guggenheim & Alkan; J. B. Osthoff, Jos. Noterman & Co.

Charles J. Jacobs, Chicago manager for Homan & Co., is back from an extended trip, including Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City and St. Louis, and reports exceedingly good trade in St. Paul and Minneapolis. St. Louis was the dullest town on the circuit. Mr. Jacobs will leave for New York the first of the month, covering Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Boston, returning to Chicago Nov. 21.

The following traveling men were in Los Angeles, Cal., during the past week: Harry Nordman, of Nordman Bros., San Francisco; Reuben Krauss, of Falkenau, Oppenheimer & Co., New York; Albert Kahn, of Weis & Oppenheimer, New York; M. Wunsch, of M. Wunsch & Co., San Francisco; A. H. Hudson, of Shoemaker, Pickering & Co., Newark, N. J.; M. D. Fielding, of A. Wittnauer, New York; M. Bradley, of M. B. Bryant & Co., New York; Mr. Jones, of the Whiting Mfg. Co., New York.

Traveling men in the Falls City last week: H. Heinrich; H. Grabowski, with Dattelbaum & Friedman; Robt. M. Wilcox, with Rogers, Smith & Co.; S. A. Burt, with R. Wallace & Sons Mfg. Co.; Geo. Nelson Fenn with C. Sydney Smith; Geo. W. Mabie, with Mabie, Todd & Bard; W. Kriel, with L. Sauter & Co.; Bert. Sinauer and Gus. F. Veith, both with Oppenheimer Bros. & Veith; Fred H. England, with H. Z. & H. Oppenheimer; E. Cohen, with Newwitter & Rosenheim; Mr. Hopkins, with Meriden Silver Plate Co.; Louis Bernheim, with Leopold Weil & Co.

Mysterious disappearances of cases and money during the past week have agitated G. B. Barrett & Co., and it is evident that some light-fingered individual is the cause thereof. Just who the person is is now veiled in obscurity.

Oskamp, Nolting & Co. made the entire background of their six large windows, red, white and blue, while the Stars and Stripes served as curtains and drapery. O. E. THE "ROUEN."

This pattern is having a remarkable sale with the class of trade desiring a change from the light, unsubstantial effect so common to many of the new designs of spoons and forks.

While not of extraordinary weight, the "ROUEN" has the appearance of solidity and strength necessary to give the pattern character. The design has no sharp or ragged edges, but has the rounded surface and softly curved outline so desirable in a pattern intended for actual service.

FANCY PIECES.

The bowls for Fancy Pieces were studied to carry out the idea of the principal characteristics of the pattern, and the effect produced is a complete harmony of the most important features of the decoration and design.

VOL. XXV. OCT. 26, 1892. No. 13.

ONCE more the epigrammatist has been juggling with the magical name THE JEWELERS' CIRCULAR, this time in Col. McClure's beautiful newspaper, the Philadelphia Times. Under a picture of a diamond-set engagement ring appeared the name of this journal. This is indeed a flattering compliment, for what work of man is more graceful than this token of love, formed of a circle of the purest metal, and embellished with a gem that is the very concentration of purest rays serene.

Profitable Fall Lines. AS is well known, there is a growing disposition on the part of jewelers generally to handle bric-à-brac, cut glass, pottery and kindred classes of goods. Time was when these lines were carried exclusively by art goods, crockery and queensware stores, but of late years they have occupied a distinguished place in the stocks of jewelers. At the present time all progressive jewelers find it profitable to carry choice pieces in these lines. This state of affairs has been brought about primarily by the establishment of department houses who handle jewelry and cognate lines, and thus enter into violent competition with the regular jewelry dealers. There is no business quite safe from the intrusion of other lines apparently foreign to it, and it seems that a time is near at hand when a business entirely dependent upon the sale of jewelry, watches and silverware will not prove successful. What THE CIRCULAR designates as kindred lines—pottery, cut-glass, bric-à-brac and the like—are especially profitable wares for the jeweler to handle at this season of the year.

A Period of Holidays. THE center of national interest last week shifted to Chicago, where the quatuor-celebration of the discovery of the New World by the great Genoese navigator was held.

The residents of the Garden City entered upon the commemorative ceremonies with their usual energy, and the celebration was an impressive and memorable one. The commemoration was not confined to Chicago, however, though that was the chief point of interest; throughout the country the work of Columbus was celebrated with observances of one kind or another. Some doubt as to whether Friday was a legal holiday in New York State was occasioned by a published statement of the opinion of the State Attorney-General to the effect that under the general provisions of the laws of the State Columbus Day, as described in the enactments of Congress, was not a legal holiday. The banks and exchanges, however, decided to close on Friday, as the New York Clearing House had decided to do some time ago. Commercial business in New York was suspended to a great extent, numerous jewelry firms closing at least the last half of the day. Though business still continues satisfactory, dealers generally feel happy that the unusually prolonged period of holidays this year is nearly over.

The Week in Brief.

THE Aurora Watch Co. and the Lancaster Watch Co. consolidated into the Columbian Watch Co.—E. U. Leonard, salesman for J. Karr, Washington, D. C., died—The body of W. A. Akerly, a jewelry salesman, supposed to have been murdered, was found near Stanwood, Ia.—H. C. Taylor, Leadville, Col., is having a legal fight with his divorced wife regarding the possession of their children—The store of B. Guinand, Santa Barbara, Cal., was damaged by fire—J. W. Vaughn, Tacoma, Wash., assigned—Several firms were admitted to membership in the N. Y. Jewelers' Board of Trade—Burglars attempted to rob the store of Jenssen Bros., Chicago—The watch fakirs of Minneapolis, Minn., again became unpleasantly prominent—The American Horological Society held a meeting—Burglars made a heavy haul from H. McClachlan's store, Elkhart, Ind.—Seriaghelli & Draghicevich, San Jose, Cal., were swindled by an old dodge—The store of M. L. Comfort, Owego, N. Y., narrowly escaped being burglarized—William Radebaugh, clerk for Baldwin Bros., Columbus, O., had an encounter with a murderous thief—Another sapphire company is to be organized in Montana—The suit of C. E. Fritts against the Keystone Watch Case Co. was tried—Jewelers generally throughout the country decorated their establishments during the Columbus Day celebrations—The show window of A. G. Graul, Sharpburg, Pa., was smashed—The store of Arthur Christen, Toledo, O., was seized under chattel mortgages—A peculiar larceny case was entered in the courts of New York—The death of Charles G. Norling, Boston, Mass., occurred—Jacob Lewis, Boston, Mass., assigned—L. M. Frey, Weatherford, Texas., filed a trust deed.

Chicago Jewelers Decorate During the World's Fair Dedicatory Ceremonies.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 22.—The artistic taste shown in the decorations of their buildings by Chicago's leading jewelers during the dedicatory ceremonies of the World's Fair has been the subject of much admiration. Notable among the embellishments were those of the Peacock Building, consisting of a huge full-length picture of Columbus framed in the yellow and red of Old Castile; rosettes of American colors at second and fourth floors, Chicago's municipal colors at third, Spain's at fifth, and other decorations.

The building at southwest corner State and Washington Sts., largely occupied by watch and watch-case houses, was decorated at the roof with U.S. coat of arms 10 x 30 feet, gracefully draped below with the national colors; a large picture of Columbus with electric light glowing on the breast, surrounded with colors.

Benj. Allen & Co.: A huge hour-glass ex, tending from fourth floor to ledge of first floor of longitudinal stripes of red, white, blue, and yellow, alternately gathered midway to a "liver and lard" shield—as Chicago's proposed municipal colors, terra-cotta and white, are facetiously called—the shield surmounted by American flags; all window divisions barber-poled with red, white and blue.

Northwest corner State and Madison, occupied by Hyman, Berg & Co., C. H. Knights & Co., Stein & Ellbogen and Juergens & Andersen: Streamers of national flags diagonally across front; first floor draped in broad bands of red, white and blue and rosettes on third floor, of our favorite colors.

America, Chicago, Spain; America, Chicago, Spain, was the order of color in rosettes from the first floor to roof of the Meriden Britannia Co., the whole surmounted by waving U. S. flag.

The Towle Mfg. Co., Seth Thomas Clock Co., and Otto Young & Co. displayed rosettes of American colors separated by U. S. shields surmounted by silk flags at all window ledges.

It were, perhaps, invidious to draw distinctions where all were so elaborate. Other distinctive features were presented by B. F. Norris Alister & Co., Glickauf & Newhouse, C. F. Happel & Co., Pfeil & Bredt; the Waterbury, Ansonia and New Haven Clock Cos., the Pairpoint Mfg. Co., R. Wallace & Sons Mfg. Co., and the building at 78 State St., occupied largely by jewelry houses.

The entire jewelry district on State St. and Wabash Ave., reaching from Lake to Jackson St., is profusely decorated, an estimate placing the cost of many of the blocks at $2,000 each.

McNair & Burlingame, Providence, R. I. have dissolved.

Chicago.

A. Hazy, Durango, Col., visited here last week on his return home from New York.

President Jacob Bunn, of the Illinois Watch Co., was in this city last Tuesday on business.

W. J. Savage, secretary and treasurer of the Columbus Watch Co., viewed the pageant of Thursday.

Simon Muhr, of H. Muhr's Sons, enjoyed a week's festivities with the commissioners from Philadelphia.

R. De F. Bayley, Chicago manager for the Roy Watch Case Co., returned Monday from a tour of the principal western cities.

The rumors on the street that Lapp & Flershem and other firms are to remove to one of the large office buildings are positively denied by the heads of the firms interested.

John M. Bredt, of Pfeil & Bredt, has sold to Charles Kuehne all his interests in the firm of Charles Kuehne & Co. Mr. Kuehne, as sole owner, will continue the business under the old firm name.

The Chicago National Watch Case Co. was granted a certificate of incorporation on Oct. 17. The capital stock is $100,000, and the incorporators are James Rosenthal, Louis Henry and Herbert Tile.

In a hunting trip of twelve days in the wilds of Northern Michigan the unerring marksmanship of W. S. Sparrow, Chicago manager for Stern Bros. & Co., caused the untimely decease of two deer and a wild-cat.

Homan & Co. for the past year have subleased their large room adjoining their Chicago salesrooms, 155 State St., but the first of the year the partitions will be taken out and the whole front thrown into one large silverware showroom.

Link & Dame is the firm name of a new partnership entered into at Baraboo, Wis. Mr. Link has been in business in that city for some time. F. S. Dame has been a traveler for the Towle Mfg. Co. for a number of years, and more recently with the R. Wallace & Sons Mfg. Co. Both partners spent last week here selecting goods.

Burglars forced a transom from its fastenings over the front door of the store of Jenssen Bros., 334 Milwaukee Ave., and, effecting an entrance, began tampering with the safe, but were evidently frightened off before their object of robbery was accomplished. A number of attempted burglaries have been frustrated in this district recently.

The larger houses report good business, but the smaller ones state trade is not what it should be. Up to Thursday there were few buyers in town, those having business in Chicago delaying until the latter part of the week, to take advantage of the Columbian celebration. Thursday being a holiday for the city and Friday a national holiday, the trade was badly crippled, but many of the visitors remained over Sunday and business for the present week opened up well.

Among the outside dealers who returned home enthusiastic advocates of Chicago and the World's Fair were noticed: King & Helmer, Paxton, Ill.; Longwell Bros., Paw-Paw, Mich.; Mrs. Brown, Pana, Ill.; Mr. Sherman, Ludington, Mich.; N. A. Osgood, Battle Creek, Mich.; T. M. Cox, Vermont, Ill.; D. A. Curtis, Knoxville, Ia.; H. W. Swem, West Liberty, Ia.; T. G. Gill, Marengo, Ill.; T. G. Burkhart, Jefferson City, Mo.; Mr. Flower, Fond du Lac, Wis.; R. L. Lightfoot, Bolivar, Tenn.; J. J. Pool, Earlville, Ill.; A. W. Clark, Delmar, Ia.; C. J. Pool, Anthony, Kan.; J. W. Davidson, Monticello, Ill.; W. B. George, Billings, Mon.; Wm. O. Nelson, Neenah, Wis.; A. Kibler, Wellsville, Kan.; Mr. Klein, Fort Smith, Ark.; I. Jacobs, Winterset, Ia.; J. B. Hayden, Topeka, Kan.; M. J. Hoppack, Frankfort, Mich.; Mr. Clopper, Polo, Ill.; E. Lines, Mt. Pleasant, Ia.; Mr. Buysse, South Bend, Ind.; P. F. O'Connell, Atlanta, Ia.; Charles Price, Jacksonville, Ill.; Mr. Boelte, Jr., Columbus, Wis.; M. T. Torsen, Decorah, Ia.; A. W. Ford, Freeport, Ill.; A. K. Camp, Milwaukee, Wis.; H. D. Beaumont, Almont, Mich.; J. C. Horrie, Morris, Ill.; Theodore Dieckmann, Sheboygan, Wis.; G. F. Blakeslee, Anamosa, Ia.; Wm. Sawyer, Belvidere, Ill.; B. P. Richmond, Lansing, Mich.; E. J. Born, Ashland, Wis.; J. De Lorenzi, Mishawaka, Ind.; E. J. Peck, Braidwood, Ill.; C. A. Anderson, Oregon, Ill.; J. E. Davison, Monticello, Ill.; H. F. Lushbaugh, Mt. Pulaske, Ill.; K. E. Daly, Necedah, Wis.; Capt. Barnes, St. Jo., Mich.

Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Mr. Jones, general agent for the Jewelers' League and the Jewelers' Security Alliance, was among the Twin Cities jewelers last week, and obtained a number of new members.

S. V. Warren, Barnesville, Minn.; John Brandell, Anoka, Minn. and E. C. Bennett, Red Wing, Minn., were the out-of-town jewelers visiting the Twin Cities the past week.

Eastern jobbers and manufactures represented in the Twin Cities the past week were: Lapp & Flershem, Chicago by E. E. Spaulding; Meriden Britannia Co., Meriden; Conn. by W. C. Wood; S. & A. Borgzinner, New York, by M. Stein; Bliss Bros., Attleboro, Mass., by E. B. Bliss; the Wm. Rogers Mfg. Co., Hartford, Conn., by Ferguson Mead.

The watch auction fakirs are doing a thriving business, the visitors from out of town furnishing the capital. Last Saturday there were several victims. One man was fleeced out of $24, without receiving a thing in return. He immediately started for police headquarters across the street. This alarmed the fakirs, who chased after him and caught him on the steps of the city hall. They induced him to return to the auction room, where they refunded $21, thereby clearing $3.

S. Jonasen, Omaha, Neb., has given a real estate mortgage for $5,000.

New York Notes.

N. Glauber of N. Glauber & Co., returned Friday from a trip through the west.

The Jewelers' Building and Loan Association will hold a meeting Nov. 14 for the sale of $10,000.

The sheriff has sold out the machinery and fixtures of the Cyclo Clock Co., 182 Lewis St., under the various executions that were filed against the concern.

Tickets for the eighteenth annual dinner of the New York Jewelers' Association are now ready for distribution, and a diagram of the arrangement of the tables can be seen in the Association rooms.

G. H. Leonhardt has resigned the presidency of the Leonhardt Mfg. Co., Newark, N. J., and has associated himself with James Curran, formerly salesman for that concern. The new firm will manufacture fine diamond mountings and fancy rings under the firm name of Leonhardt & Curran, at 44½ Maiden Lane.

All members of the jewelry trade, both employers and employes, who are in favor of the election of Cleveland and Stevenson are invited by the New York Jewelers' Cleveland & Stevenson Club to join the big parade which will be held Saturday afternoon, Nov. 5. There is no expense, and all that is necessary is to send one's name to C. A. Boynton, marshal, 22 Maiden Lane.

Geo. Rosenblatt, 202 Broadway has received information that Henry Arnstein, who disappeared from his office at the corner of Broadway and Bond St. last Spring, has located in the jewelry business in Birmingham, Ala. He desires that all jewelers who have claims against Arnstein to confer with him, that some concerted action may be taken to recover their money.

Hayden W. Wheeler, of Hayden W. Wheeler & Co., has written a pamphlet on the American watch industry and its relation to the tariff, which has been published and is being circulated under the auspices of the Jewelers' Republican Club. The club is making extensive preparations for the big business men's parade Saturday, and those desiring to be captains of companies should send to the club, 173 Broadway, their own and twelve other names of persons desiring to march and the necessary blank will be forwarded to them.

The board of directors of the New York Jewelers' Board of Trade held a special meeting Wednesday and elected the following firms to membership: Hills & Whitbeck, Reed & Barton, Wm. I. Rosenfeld, Ed. Todd & Co., and Ephraim Bass, New York; E. H. Dunham & Co.; Flint, Blood & Co., and R. L. Griffith & Son, Providence, R. I.; John R. Stadlinger, Buffalo N. Y.; Wm. Link, Newark N. J., and F. L. Shepardson & Co., North Attleboro, Mass. The following committee was appointed to make arrangements for the Board's annual dinner: Geo. E. Fahys, Max J. Lissauer, F. R. Simmons, E. V. Clergue, T. K. Benton, S. F. Myers and A. J. G. Hodenpyl.

READ the Jewelers' Circular—the only paper containing news pertinent to the trade from all parts of the United States.

A. Kahn, New York, sailed for Europe last week on La Bourgogne; M. J. Lasar left on the Etruria.

Irving Vandegrift has left the employ of the Spencer Optical Mfg. Co. and has connected himself with Arthur Pratt, 75 Nassau St.

James Edwards was Wednesday sentenced to the penitentiary to two years and ten months for stealing a diamond ring from Joseph T. Ladd.

Samuel Mitchell, a salesman, was last week held for trial for passing a forged check for $250 for goods sold to him last June by Frank Kaufman, 21 John St.

Henry W. Harriott, the engraver who, while employed by William Moir, disappeared with jewelry valued at $390, has been sentenced to two years and six months imprisonment.

The sheriff's sale of the effects of Louis Simon, 41 Maiden Lane, was adjourned Thursday. The office is still closed and a card on the door refers inquirers to Theo. Stern, in the same building.

When the Columbus Celebration in this city was in preparation, a committee was appointed to award prizes to the business houses, hotels and private residences for the most artistic decorations. Last week the committee awarded the first prize, consisting of a gold medal, for the best decoration among the business houses, to Tiffany & Co.

R. W. Tirrell, the well-known jewelers' auctioneer, yesterday began a reduction sale for J. A. Seely, Ogdensburg, N. Y.

David Greenberg was Thursday sentenced to three months' imprisonment for stealing ring molds and filings from Stern & Frank.

Louis Diamond was held for examination in the Jefferson Market Police Court Sunday charged with the larceny of several hundred dollars worth of jewelry from Mrs. Rachal Jacores, a jeweler, of 60 Henry St.

Henry Tyler, with Tiffany & Co., and a son of the late John H. Tyler, a jeweler of Richmond, Va., died Friday at the age of 45 years of Bright's disease. He was a veteran of the war and leaves a wife, but no children.

It is said that Henry W. Jaehne, the convict-alderman, who was recently released from Sing Sing, is about to re-enter the jewelry business. He is at present living at 27 Hooker Ave., Jersey City, and declines to affirm or deny the report.

Judge Patterson of the Supreme Court Chambers, last week denied a motion of John Mason and his assignee John Oscar Ball, for a bill of particulars in the suit brought against them by Mrs. Edith Faxon to set aside Mason's assignment. Mrs. Faxon's lawyer said Mason had, during the past two years, disposed of $200,000 and he thought from the fact of his alleged gifts to his wife of his horses, library etc., and his wanting his sister to sell her house to supply him with money, he had no moral sense and would use any information that would be given him to invent falsehoods to explain frauds.

Arguments in the Suit of Judge Mack vs. the Spencer Optical Mfg. Co.

Judge Coxe, of the U. S. Circuit Court, last Wednesday began to hear the arguments in the patent suit of William Mack against the Spencer Optical Mfg. Co. The arguments occupied the attention of the court until yesterday, when the judge took the briefs and reserved his decision. The suit was brought by William Mack for a permanent injunction restraining the defendants from manufacturing an opera-glass holder which he claimed was an infringement of a holder patented by him Nov. 28, 1882, and known as a detachable telescopic opera glass-holder.

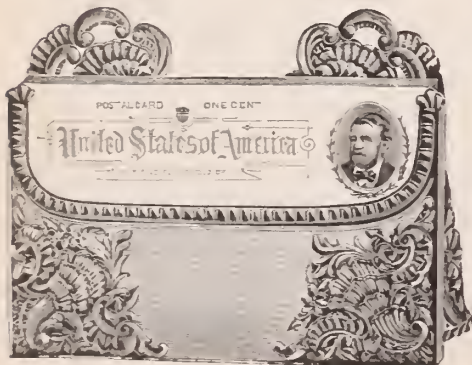

The defendants claimed that their holder was not an infringement of the plaintiff's patent, as the art prior to complainant's patent gives the defendants a legal right to make the handles complained of. A decision in the case will probably not be given for at least one month.

J. T. Metcalf, for R. Blackinton & Co.; Jos. Becker, for Jos. Fahys & Co.; Mr. Roe, for the Ingraham Clock Co.; Ray Randall, for G. W. Cheever & Co.; George E. Tinker, for Wm. B. Durgin, and G. Rodenburg and J. Solinger, for S. & B. Lederer, called on the Indianapolis jobbers last week.

Detroit.

F. Rolshoven is in New York city to buy his Fall stock.

M. L. Bonner, the popular manager for Adolph Enggass, is on the sick list.

Adolph Enggass has added a new department, consisting of art pottery, both imported and domestic.

Mr. Langsbury of L. Black & Co., and wife, have returned from a two weeks' visit in New York city.

The plate glass window of J. F. Stein, optician, 58 Michigan Ave., was demolished last Friday night with a stone, presumably thrown by a drunken man.

R. J. F. Roehm has returned from his eastern trip, during which he purchased his Fall stock. His son, Ed Roehm, left last Sunday night for New York city, and will be gone two or three weeks.

The following buyers were in the city last week: Walter Ware, Bayne City, Mich.; F. H. Bentley, Mt. Clemens, Mich., and George D. Hamilton, South Lyons, Mich.

Elmer E. Vincent, formerly of Flint, Mich., has opened up a new store at 330 Grand River Ave. He will carry a full line of stationery and will do repairing. He will put in a stock of jewelry later.

Connecticut.

Frank A. Hutter has opened a small store at 118 George St., New Haven.

Gurdon W. Hull, Wallingford, has resigned his position as a member of the Connecticut Democratic State Central Committee.

Business with the Waterbury Clock Co. is a-booming and a large part of the force of employes is working evenings as well as in the daytime.

The Middletown Plate Co. flung to the breeze Wednesday a Harrison and Reid banner over their manufactory. Similar Republican banners were simultaneously raised over the many large manufactories in Middletown excepting three.

In a forcible campaign speech at the Opera House, Hartford, last Monday night, Hon. Joseph L. Barbour read extracts from letters he had received from various Hartford manufacturers. Among them was one from the Wm. Rogers Mfg. Co., whose business has more than doubled in two years.

The Holmes & Edwards Silver Co., Bridgeport, had one of the very finest display floats among the 100 or more floats which adorned Bridgeport's big parade in the Columbus Day celebration. Their exhibit of silver goods on the float was beautiful and a fine adjunct to the allegorical representation. The float was in the historical and industrial department. It represented Columbus on his return from his first voyage to the New World, presenting King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella with the Indians he had captured and the silver and other products that he found.

Rushmer & Gortin have just commenced business in Pueblo, Col.

Trade Gossip.

Duhme & Co.'s celebrated solid gold cases are more popular than ever this season. This firm's fertility in producing new designs is wonderful. Keep an eye on their corrugated styles. There are no handsomer in the market.

An interesting page of the Fall catalogue of Smith & Patterson, Boston, Mass., shows an assortment of gold pens and holders that are a particularly desirable combination for retail jewelers. The handles are all of pearl, of the most approved patterns, and the mountings are of gold and silver. Every jeweler should have near at hand for reference a copy of the New England Jeweler Catalogue. The firm will send the book to any reputable jewelers on receipt of his business card.

Debate and controversy regarding the advisability of having an optician in a jewelry store might go on forever, yet the question must remain open and unsettled until the vote is polled and the result announced. The question is being asked by the people and unless the jeweler is in a position to answer it satisfactorily, his business will suffer either directly or indirectly; directly, in not having what is wanted; indirectly, in the loss of sales of other articles. Don't allow possible customers to go elsewhere because you sell glasses in the old guess way of choose and pay. They choose wrong and pay a mere fraction of what they would be willing to pay for the right thing and for the professional services of one who knows. The better method consists of the jeweler choosing and the customer paying. Have you an optician? If you have, and he is qualified, you will remember instances of selling a fine watch, a diamond ring or other article, to a party who had heard of your reputation as an optician. He had called to have his eyes fitted, but you were on the alert and sold him other goods as well. They are others who are not so fortunate. They are not opticians, and are wondering why trade is so quiet. They do not realize that their competitor is doing a good business on account of his optical reputation bringing so many people to his store. So much for indirect results. As to the direct results, you, as an optician, give your patrons skill and accuracy, and gain a liberal price and their good-will and are popular. The other party, who is not an optician, gets up grudgingly from a dollar watch job to sell a dollar spec on which he makes over half. The glasses don't suit; next day they are exchanged; the following day there is dissatisfaction. The next time the customer goes to the competitor who is an optician. You should at once apply the remedy of taking a full course of instruction and lectures in the Spencer Optical Institute. See their Audemair trial case, and earn a diploma by study and application if you are not an optician. This receipt is worth thousands of dollars to you.

WHAT IS SAID OF IT.

"WORKSHOP NOTES" is the title of a valuable reference work which has been received with the compliments of the publishers, The Jewelers' Circular Publishing Company, New York. It is a compilation from the columns of the CIRCULAR of the best short articles, practical receipts and hints which appeared in that excellent journal during the last twelve years. It is a book that no progressive watchmaker or jeweler can afford to be without. Neatly printed on first-class paper and bound in the highest style of the art, it reflects great credit on the publishers. Cloth binding, price $2.50.—American Jeweler.

"WORKSHOP NOTES FOR JEWELERS AND WATCHMAKERS" is the apt, though somewhat modest title of a very valuable recipe book just published by the Jewelers' Circular Publishing Co., New York. The volume is systematically compiled, neatly printed and handsomely bound, and is pregnant with information of much practical value to every member of the craft.—Keystone.

"WORKSHOP NOTES FOR JEWELERS AND WATCHMAKERS," New York; Jewelers' Circular Publishing Co., 189 Broadway. This book is something out of the ordinary run of the books. It is a collection of the latest practical receipts connected with almost every branch of the Watchmaking, Jewelry and kindred trades which have appeared in that excellent publication, the JEWELERS' CIRCULAR. The greater part are original contributions, and many are valuable. The work is roughly divided into two parts, one dealing with Horology and the other with the treatment of gold and silver. * * * * We have no hesitation in recommending this book to our readers as one of the most useful of its kind that has been brought out.—Watchmaker, Jeweler and Silversmith, London, Eng., Sept., 1892.

The Jewelers' Circular Publishing Co. have kindly presented us a copy of their premium book. It is entitled "WORKSHOP NOTES," being a collection of valuable receipts appertaining to the various departments of practical uses for the watchmaker and jeweler. The book itself is elegantly bound, printed on good paper, indexed, and contains about two hundred pages of invaluable information—an accumulation of the many good things published in the CIRCULAR for the past twelve years.—National Retail Jeweler.

Before us is a book bearing the title "WORKSHOP NOTES" and which according to its title-page announcement is a collection of practical receipts, treating of the manufacture and repairing of watches, clocks and jewelry; including coloring, polishing, annealing, enameling, oxidizing, etc. This is a work which should be in the hands of every jeweler and journeyman in the country. That it is invaluable goes without saying, and we have no hesitancy in recommending its purchase to every one who works at a jeweler's bench. It is issued by the Jewelers' Circular Publishing Company at 189 Broadway, New York City. The price, $2.50, is merely nominal compared with the fund of valuable information which it contains.—The Waterbury.

"WORKSHOP NOTES FOR JEWELERS AND WATCHMAKERS," New York; Jewelers' Circular Publishing Co., 189 Broadway; 26 Avenue de l'Opéra à Paris. This is a very interesting volume for the horological industry, and it might well be translated into French. It contains the latest practical receipts for making a number of parts of both watches and clocks, and the manner of repairing and keeping them in order. * * * * As regards the watchmakers, they may profitably acquire from this volume all that is necessary for them to know of the latest improvements in their art. They will find in it numerous and useful details on the manufacture of certain pieces, and we may in all candor counsel those who are engaged in the vast horological industry that they will learn much by the perusal of the book, and we do indeed not hesitate in earnestly recommending it for their benefit.—L'Industrie Parisienne, Paris.

"WORKSHOP NOTES," a collection of the latest practical receipts on the manufacture and repairing of watches and clocks, etc., Jewelers' Circular Publishing Co., 189 Broadway, New York. The JEWELERS' CIRCULAR of New York, one of the most important horological publications in the United States, has published a most valuable addition to its weekly publication, for the benefit of its subscribers; being a stately volume of 200 pages quarto, in elegant binding. It contains, as its title indicates, a collection of the most recent practical receipts for the manufacture and repair of watches and clocks, as well as points on the most varying number of jobs in the domain of jewelry and gold and silver smithing, such as acid-coloring, polishing, enameling, oxidizing, soldering, and alloying of gold and silver. * * * * For those of our subscribers capable of the English language, either "on the other side of the channel," or the Atlantic Ocean, this volume of "WORKSHOP NOTES" contains a mine of useful and practical information. The price of the book is $2.50, for which every purchaser becomes at the same time a yearly subscriber to the weekly JEWELERS' CIRCULAR.—Deutsche Uhrmacher Zeitung.

Jonas, Dorst & Co., Cincinnati, O., are busy with orders for fine diamond work. Their pearl pendants in new designs are fine.

C. Hellebush, Cincinnati, O., has received another importation of diamonds, which he says are on the market at extremely low prices.

D. Schroder & Co., Cincinnati, O., have received their catalogue from the printer and are mailing it to the trade. It is a very handsome representation of staple lines.

Homan & Co., Cincinnati, O., are raking in the orders this season. Excellent goods in salable patterns are always ready sellers, and the trade are not slow to appreciate this fact.

Jos. Noterman & Co., Cincinnati, O., are turning out very elegantly chased ring mountings in bright and Roman finishes. They have also made up in stock a large amount of diamond and pearl pendants and pins.

The Wadsworth Watch Case Co., Newport, Ky., are having a run on their new patterns. New customers send in orders every day for these attractive goods. Mr. Walton made a very successful trip east this month.

Queen & Co.'s interchangeable lenses for spectacles at $1.00 a dozen pairs cut to size are attracting much attention. They are perhaps the best line for the price on the market. No optician, jeweler or other person who sells glasses should be without Queen & Co.'s little work, "How to Fit Glasses."

M. Zineman & Bro., Philadelphia, Pa., are receiving many congratulations on the improvements which were recently made in their establishment. The store has been enlarged and artistically decorated. The walls of the retail department are covered with embossed leather, the prevailing colors being salmon and old rose. The salesroom is separated from the business offices by a fretwork partition of Moorish pattern, while vases, plaques and other art objects are arranged in various places.

Dr. T. P. Thompson, ophthalmologist, reports satisfactory patronage from the start at his new offices, suite 201-202 Inter-Ocean Building, Chicago. Dr. Thompson was manager of the optical department of the Chicago Optical and Electrical Co., for five years and has devoted a lifetime to the study of ophthalmology. For the past two years the Doctor has been experimenting on a new prisoptometer, which he has now perfected, the advantages of which are that it is held in an ordinary trial frame and can be used without changing position, thereby effecting a great saving in time required for a diagnosis of errors of refraction.

In 1887 the American Watch Tool Co. moved into their new building, and made this resolve:

"We will equip this factory with the best tools, secure the best talent, retain our skilled workmen for life, and exert ourselves to make the best watchmakers' lathes at the lowest possible price."

The price of the best Whitcomb lathe at that time was $85.

In 1878 the No. 1½ Whitcomb was introduced. Note the following reductions in its price:

1878, $60.00;	1886, $50.00;
1884, $55.00;	1888, 45.00;
	1892, $30.00.

In 1889, the Webster-Whitcomb was introduced. Note the following reductions in its price:

1889, $40.00
1892, 38.00

By looking over these figures, you will note that in 1887 the watchmaker was obliged to pay $85 for a first-class lathe. He now gets a far better lathe for $38.

Aristotle's Daughter's Earrings.

A GLANCE into the window of a fashionable jeweler shows that now the fashion is changing once again, and many are the exquisite trifles which attest the skill of modern goldsmiths. Few will be found, however, surpassing in taste and delicate finish a pair of earrings recently described. They were ornaments for a young girl, and represented doves swinging in golden hoops. The miniature birds were marvelously wrought the feathers of granulated gold, the wings and breasts enriched with bands of color lent by inserted gems.

Precious stones gleamed like tiny sparks for the eyes. Daintiest device of all, the tail-feathers were so finely made and curiously adjusted as to move at the slightest motion of the pendant hoop, so that whenever the proud wearer should toss or shake her head, her two attendant doves would seem to balance themselves upon their perches as live birds do in swinging on a bough. What girl of to-day would not like to own such a pair of earrings? But the owner of these is dead. She died more than twenty centuries ago, and they were found last year in her grave on the Island of Eubœa by exploring archæologists.

Her name is on her tomb: Biote, daughter of Aristotle; and there is good reason to suppose that her father was in reality the great philosopher Aristotle, who is known to have died in the town of Chalcis, near the ancient burying-place where her grave was found. His daughter's trinkets have survived as long as the fame of his philosophy!

Platinum Mines of Russia.

THE platinum beds of the Ural Mountains, according to the Journal de la Chambre de Commerce de Constantinople, are the only ones in the world in which this metal is found in grains. Platinum is found in Brazil and in the Cordilleras in the hard serpentine rocks, but never in the form of grains. The platinum beds of the Ural Mountains are found in various districts. In the north, at Besserski, in the government of Peru, in the district of Khotourski, and in the state properties of Goroblagodatski, where sixty-six mining concessions have been granted.

All the beds of the northern region are situated in the basin of the river Touri, in that of the tributary stream of Taghil, and in other tributaries higher up. On the western declivity of the Ural mountains there is another platinum bed near the river Outka, a tributary of the Tchousova, and the basins of the higher tributaries of the Outka, near the Ural River. The platinum found in these places is in the form of grains, in sand frequently containing gold. The weight of these grains is from 17 to 21 grams to every 1,640 kilograms of sand.

Independent Center-Seconds Watch.

THE ordinary style of independent center-seconds hands does not generally perform with great exactness, and, as compared to the small eccentric seconds hands, is preferable simply because it is easier with it to ascertain more readily the time in seconds. Arthur Didisheim, Chaux-de-Fords, Switzerland, has gotten up a construction for which fore the points d, d^1, d^6 , etc., are chamfered one-half from above down, as is also shown in Fig. 2, while the points d^1, d^2, d^3 , etc., were left the full thickness of the star. The head e of the star spring E, which fixes the star s and permits it to spring forward, is sufficiently broad that it will depth as well into the full as also in the partially chamfered teeth of the latter; on the other hand, the arm g of the pivoted detent w , which turns around the screw G, seizes only those points of the star that are full of thickness (see Fig. 2). The pivoted detent w stands under the pressure of the spring P, and serves for throwing in and out of gear of that mechanism, which effects the starting and stopping of the large seconds hand. For this purpose is located upon the detent w a small wheel R with 90 very fine teeth, the arbor H which prolongs itself underneath the detent as far as a recess in the plate, and there carries a second wheel R¹ with 30 teeth. The two wheels R and R¹ are firmly united one to the other by their arbor H which freely revolves in the detent w , and the lower wheel R¹ depths constantly into the fourth wheel F of the watch shown in dotted line in Fig. 1. he received a patent in Switzerland, which, he avers, corrects the defect spoken of above and works with the precision of a chronograph; it is also provided with a starting and stopping mechanism.

Fig. 1 shows the front plate of the watch with dial removed and the entire mechanism for the transport to the concentric seconds-hand, together with the stopping and starting arrangement. Both the unlocking and stoppage of the large seconds hand are each effected by a simple pressure upon the winding button. A pipe around the winding staff braces with its inner end upon the arm a of the double lever $a a^1$, which revolves around a screw A, and with its lower arm a^1 acts upon the upper end of a second double lever $b b^1$. The latter revolves around the screw B and is by the spring C kept in locking or returned into it as soon as the pressure upon the winding button ceases. Also the double lever $a a^1$, constantly lying against b , is therefore brought into a locking position by the pressure of the spring C.

The lower end $b b^1$ acts upon the teeth of the star s , which turns around the screw D; this star takes the place of the commonly used vertical tooth wheel. Of the twelve points of this star, every second one, there-wheels R and R¹ is shown in Fig. 3, which represents a cross cut through the line S T marked in Fig. 1.

Upon the plate is also located a large bridge K which carries concentrically to the axis of the center wheel a steel pipe i , Fig. 3, upon which revolves the wheel L with 180 fine teeth. The pipe of this carries the large second hand. In Fig. 1, the seconds hand or its wheel L is shown in locking, because the arm g of the detent w is raised by the point d^3 of the star whereby the wheel R is brought out of depth with the wheel L. When now a pressure is exerted with the winding button upon the arm a of the double lever *a*¹ the arm *b*¹ strikes upon the point *d*² of the star s, and pushes it one tooth further along. The arm g of the detent w enters thereby, under the pressure of the spring P, into the chamfered space between *a*³ and *d*⁵ and the wheel R comes into depthing with wheel L, therefore transports the rotation of the fourth wheel F upon the large seconds hand.

By the next pressure upon a, the point *d*⁵ places itself into the place of *d*³ in Fig. 1, and the seconds hand remains standing at once because a small friction spring O presses laterally on the pipe of the wheel L and thereby prevents further motion of the wheel L.

The fourth wheel F has 60 teeth, and the wheel *R*¹, standing in depthing with it and only half as large, has 30; the latter consequently revolves twice per minute. In like manner the wheel R connected with the wheel *R*¹, is only half as large as the wheel L, and has only one-half as many teeth. The revolutions of the wheel L, therefore, are accomplished, when the depthing R L is geared in, again exactly in one minute, like those of the fourth wheel F. The concentric seconds hand points exact seconds and fractions of them upon the minute division of the dial, provided the dial is divided correctly. The simple mechanism as may readily be inferred complies perfectly with the purpose for which it was constructed.

large diamond and pearl necklace is thrown over the shoulders; a large pearl drop hangs from its pendant. Catherine de Médicis was known to possess the finest pearls in the world.

The portrait (by Clouet) of Elizabeth of Austria, wife of Charles IX., King of France, gives us the most exact idea of the way jewelry was worn in the middle of the sixteenth century. On the hair (Fig. 3) we see in front a diadem called cordure de touret and spreading at the back a pearl head-band the name of which was cordure à oreillettes. Underneath the ruff there is a carcan necklace in black velvet on which are applied groups of five pearls alternating with motifs in chased gold showing a table diamond in the center, with a star-shaped ornament between them. The stomacher is covered with a pearl net work. In front of the corsage is a cottoire, in the same style as the necklace, from the center piece of which hangs an elegant pendant held by two chains running one from the right and the other from the left side of the cottoire. A large pear-shaped pearl drops at the base of the pendant, between two chains running further down. The queen had several sets in this style; emeralds, rubies and sapphires taking the place of diamonds. There was also in the set a girde without the patenôtre.

Two portraits of Marguerite de Valois, Queen of Navarre, deserve to be mentioned. In one of them her head is adorned with a run of pearls whose line is broken into a close succession of sharp angles, bordering the front part of the hair, which is raised up.

Another portrait Queen Marguerite has her head covered with a pretty cap slightly bent over the forehead, and pinched on the sides in the shape of a helmet. It is decorated with two floral courses in chased gold; one bordering the cap, and the other, placed higher up, exhibiting in the center a motif radiating about a large round pearl.

FIG. 4. INFANTA ISABELLA.

A portrait of Queen Elizabeth of England shows her adorned with a pearl necklace of several rows, and with a double chain of pearls gracefully arranged on the dress. Pearl and diamond-headed pins, some in the shape of a star, are stuck in her waving hair surmounted with the royal crown, from which hangs a pendant consisting of table diamonds with a pearl drop.

The portrait, by Sanchez Coello, of the Infanta Isabella, daughter of King Philip II. of Spain (Fig. 4), demands our attention. Her hair is partly covered with pearls. She wears, slightly on the side, a bonnet adorned not only with rows of pearls, but also with feathers, above which a pretty aigrette shoots up. Her necklace and girdle pointing downward, which consists of precious stones and pearls, are of a graceful pattern; the jeweled buttons, or rather the gems set in large bezels which run along the corsage on both sides and right down the dress in front, complete the effect of the very elegant traveling costume worn by the Infanta.

Practical Optics.

AS APPLIED TO THE CORRECTION OF VISUAL DEFECTS

THE OPHTHALMOSCOPE.—(Continued.)

FOCAL ILLUMINATION:—The method for examination by this means is the same as that of oblique examinations, of which so much is written, and the method is about as follows: Place the patient in the chair in such a way that the light of the argand burner is somewhat in front and to one side; then by means of one of the condensing lenses found in the case with the ophthalmoscope, the light strongly illuminates upon the eye. The lens is held by the thumb and forefinger in such a way that the light may be condensed and focused upon the cornea.

It will readily be seen that any opacity or ulceration or depression will be discovered by this means. The patient should be directed to look forward first, then inward, outward, downward, and finally upward. After the cornea is thoroughly inspected, notice the iris and note whether it appears perfectly round or whether there are irregularities such as are found in iritis. Then inspect the lens; see if it appears perfectly clear, or if there is an opacity or an apparent opacity.

Sometimes this apparent opacity is confounded with cataract, and the specialist should be guarded in making such an error. This apparent opacity is due to a hardened lens, which takes place in patients over forty-five years of age, and the apparent opacity is nothing more nor less than a white reflection from the hardened lens. With the ophthalmoscope, the question may be readily decided as to the nature of the lens, if one is in doubt; but a little caution is required before making a statement as to the exact nature of the case. Then by directing the stronger lens found in the case with the ophthalmoscope (which should be of thirteen and sixteen dioptries), directly into the eye, the vitreous may be studied and any floating bodies or broken-down cell bodies of the vitreous may be discovered.

Focal or Oblique Illumination should always be employed before using the ophthalmoscope; and if every detail is carried out as directed above, very little in the way of disease or foreign bodies, or whatever there may be to obstruct good vision, will escape the observer's attention. No matter how simple the above method may appear, much time and patience may be saved by employing it.

With the Motion ophthalmoscope there are three mirrors—a plain, a large and a small concave mirror. The plain mirror can sometimes be used in retinoscopy. The large concave mirror is used for the indirect methods in ophthalmoscopy, but before we come to this, the large concave mirror is next employed in order after we have exhausted the resources usually found in focal illumination. The lamp is now adjusted to one side, on a level with and behind the patient. The observer either stands or is seated at about two feet away. The opacities on the cornea or in the crystalline lens will appear as black specks, the fundus of the eye being red. Opacities of the vitreous are due to floating bodies resembling débris or sticks. The vitreous in such cases is usually very limpid like water, and these floating bodies will be easily set in motion by the bowing of the patient's head. The plain mirror with a four focal inch lens in the Morton ophthalmoscope may be employed further for the closer inspection of these floating bodies, to see whether they are blood corpuscles or broken-down cells of the vitreous. If the fundus of the eye is easily seen, the vessels appear clear and distinct. If, by moving or tilting the mirror, the vessels move with the mirror, the eye is hyperopic. If the vessels appear to move against the observer, the case is one of myopia.

THE INDIRECT METHOD.

The patient is seated as in the examination with the large concave and plain mirror, and now with the large concave mirror we interpose a lens of four focal inches, placed between the thumb and forefinger, the little finger resting upon the forehead of the patient. The observer is seated about two feet away from the patient and in the ophthalmoscope with the large concave mirror we employ a lens of three dioptries. Now by moving the lens in the hand the fundus with the optic disc and vessels come clearly into view. The image, of course, with these methods, is inverted. We examine the optic disc first, taking note of its relative size, the form and the outline. The arteries should be inspected next in order, and if there are pulsations of the vessels, we have a condition or disease known as glaucoma.

The patient may be directed to look up or down, in or out, but usually the observer can bend the rays of light so that all the interior of the eye may be seen without the patient being disturbed; finally the sensitive area known as the macula region may be examined. This is not such an easy matter, as the macula region is very sensitive, but it may be recognized, as this part is usually very rosy or red, as there are many little vessels at this particular spot. In some instances a small crescent or circle may be seen.

Now a simple test will enable us by this method to discover whether the eye under examination is normal, hyperopic, myopic or astigmatic. If the eye is normal, by withdrawing the condensing lens of four focal inch, the optic disc will remain of the same size; if hyperopic, the disc appears smaller than it did. If the disc appears larger, the eye is myopic, and if the disk appears oval instead of round, the eye is astigmatic. The image, of course, in all these cases is inverted.

Prominent Young Men of the Jewelry Trade.

XXV.

CHARLES L. DEPOLLIER.

LOCLE, Switzerland, has produced many men who are prominent in the watch industry of this country, and among the younger men, one whose future is bright and promising is Charles L. Depollier, of the Dubois Watch Case

Co. Born in that city of watches, he came to America in 1878, being then eight years of age. He received his education in Brooklyn, N. Y., where his family took up their residence. When sixteen years old he entered the factory of the Dubois Watch Case Co. as bookkeeper, attending school at night to perfect his knowledge of accounting. He did not confine himself to the office, however, as on every opportunity he took advantage of his surroundings to acquaint himself thoroughly with the various stages of watch-case making.

At that time the products of the firm were sold through an agent, and in 1888 it was decided to open an office at 2 John St., New York, and deal direct with the retailers. Young Depollier was placed in charge of this office and achieved success from the start. Being familiar with all the details of the manufacture of watch cases, he was able to introduce his goods in an intelligent manner, which resulted in increased sales, necessitating constant additions to the company's facilities. Last April he was appointed general manager of the company. Although not an artist, he has suggested many designs that have proven successful in the trade, among which is the World's Fair watch-case which shows true artistic instinct.

The Youth Wanted to Wake Up.

A STORY is told of a young Tacoma man who lost his position on account of getting into an inebriated state too often. Being unable to obtain another position, he drowned his sorrows in various intoxicants, and at length found himself in a gambling saloon. With extraordinary bad judgment he placed his money on the right numbers, and after a few minutes he had won over $100. This meant more liquor for himself and friends until he got into a state of intoxication that was fruitful of humor.

Passing by a jewelry store he saw some alarm clocks in the window, and the sight started his imagination. "Fired from my job, eh!" he said to himself, and entered the store. "Got any alarm clocks?" he said to the clerk. "I want to wake up."

The clerk replied that he had, and asked what kind was wanted.

"Don't care; give me twenty." The clerk was thrifty, produced the clocks, took the money, and asked where they were to be sent.

"Wind 'em all up and give them to me."

This was done, and the youth stowed about ten of them about his person and strung the rest on a cord and started down the street. He was arrested twice in one block for stealing the clocks, and it was only after taking a carriage that he reached home. He is now sober and out of a job still, and the clocks are gradually disappearing.

Patterns of girdles worn by ladies in the sixteenth and at the beginning of the seventeenth century were very much alike. Some girdles were formed of gems set with a large bezel covered with white, red or black enamel. Chains hanging down the skirt held a mirror, a purse, or a fan. If we were to judge from the works of designers such as Hans Collaert, Woeriot, Vovert and Ducerceau, we would believe that pendants worn during that period were much varied in shape. Yet on portraits we only see besides jeweled letters, crosses and oval cameos, elongated motifs exhibiting the same general outlines. We remark nowhere pendants showing figures sitting in a bower made of jewels, fantastic waves, watches surrounded with allegorical figures and surmounted with spheres, etc. Architectural pendants made by Cellini were no doubt perfect works of art.

Early Fall Fashions

A LADY'S RAMBLES AMONG THE JEWELERS.

Flat-bodied pepper boxes are new.

Inkstands are concealed in World's Fair souvenir coins.

There is a fancy for amber shell combs with silver tops.

A hand of silver mounted on a standard is a paper weight.

An antique silver key supported by a chain is used to hang keys on.

These are days of souvenirs, those of Columbus predominating.

Oblong forms seem to be superseding round forms, even in tea sets.

A new bow of enamel has two loops on one side, two ends on the other.

Pierced silver is found everywhere. Candlesticks have pierced silver bases.

Smoked ivory is combined in a most artistic manner with large fancy spoons in silver gilt.

A bracelet of forms beaten out of dead gold in the shape of a Maltese cross, or four-petaled flowers with a stem in the center, is a new design.

A round brooch composed of a black enameled ribbon covered with fine lines of gilt tracery, the ends crossing, is a pretty pin for half mourning.

Slender gold sords in sheath with olivine or turquoise set in the hilt are charming and inexpensive pins.

Two slender ewers of glass covered with pierced silver, and slender glasses likewise covered, are a new liquor set.

Tiny chains fastened with a large jewel a pearl preferred, and with a couple of pendant, holding another large jewel in kind is a favorite bracelet.

Cheese scoops, ice-cream knives and special implements of this sort have perforated ornaments carried into the body of the metal from the upper side.

The three legs of the iron pot, a phrase which most people will understand, is seen under some of the handsomest pieces of silver and in most elegant forms.

Candlesticks after French models with square bases and tops are good style. The latest candlesticks are in rich Italian styles, and higher.

Spiral and parallel flutes hold their own in ornamentation. Gold-lined bread, cake and berry dishes with flutes curving shell-wise and in parallel lines are charming.

There is the largest variety in coasters. The newer ones have open spreading rims. These are in repoussé or in pierced work. One may express a certain preference for the upright coasters, pierced in parallel lines, that have a certain attractive business look.

Points of Law.

ASSUMPTION OF DEBTS BY INCOMING PARTNER.

The transfer of a retiring partner's interest to a person and the latter's being permitted to form a co-partnership with the remaining partner or partners, and the receipt of the assets of the old firm, was a sufficient consideration to support a promise of the assumption of the debts of the old firm, and it is not necessary that this agreement should be put in writing.

Wright v. Carman, City Court of New York.

EFFECT OF NOTICE TO AGENT.

Where an assertion in regard to certain property of a person was made by him to an agent employed by another to buy the property and the agent afterward abandoned the negotiation, such party is not affected with knowledge of the assertion made to his agent in litigation arising from subsequent purchase of the property through another, when no advantage has been taken of the first agent's acts. But when a principal has consummated a transaction in whole or in part through an agent, it is contrary to equity and good conscience that he should be permitted to avail himself of the benefits of his agent's participation without becoming responsible as well for his agent's knowledge as for his agent's acts.

F. Kroeber Clock Co.'s Uptown Store.

THAT the business center of New York is gradually advancing further uptown is generally conceded. Among the firms that appreciate the importance of being in the recognized center of the city is the F. Kroeber Clock Co., 360 Broadway, who last May opened a branch showroom at the corner of Union Square and 17th St., and have since had cause to congratulate themselves on their increased business and the convenience to out-of-town buyers that the store has proved.

Since the opening of the establishment, Henry Stauf, who for six years traveled through the west for the house, has had the management, and his wide acquaintance with buyers secures for the new store a large clientele. On the retail jewelry trade. In the rear of the store is an art room, where the finer pieces are shown amid surroundings that furnish the buyers with an idea of their appearance in the home.

The company import fancy clocks and art wares that our bound to sell. They rec-

Eli Perkins on Japanese Pottery.

THE first pottery I visited, says Eli Perkins in the New York Sun, was that of the old Kioto potter, Kinkozan. His pottery covers about half an acre. It consists of one-story buildings in the midst of gardens lakes, flowers, picturesque rocks and miniature brooks. These backyards are miniature parks and one of the beauties of Japan. The poorest workmen always have them.

Mr. Kinkozan tells me that they have about ceased to make the old Kioto ware.

"The Americans," he said, "demand something more showy and brilliant. So the new ware called Awata has taken its place. It is not porcelain, but simply white clay, baked, glazed, painted and gilded. It is a cheap, gaudy ware, but the people want it, and America is taking ship-this page is an illustration of the window display that has possibly had much to do with the success of the store. The window has a frontage on Union Square of seventeen feet, and contains rich pieces of bric-à-brac especially imported with a view to the requirements of loads of it." The gaudy cheap vases seen in every porcelain seller's window in America is this cheap Awata ware. It is made from similar clay to that used by the Rookwood pottery, of Cincinnati, only it is white. It is as porous as terra-cotta until glazed.

The Connoisseur.

Here were hundreds of men, girls and boys squatted in little rooms decorating the big vases which they held in their laps. They worked in teams, Yankee style. One man would cut in trees or faces, another paint clouds, and another gild. It was all quick work and cheap, the decorators getting about 15 cents per day. They all sang or hummed sweet symphonies while they worked. The room they sat in was like a pagoda open to the garden all around. And such a garden! The shrubbery had been growing 200 years—all drafted and trimmed into fantastic shapes. "This old pine tree," said the potter, pointing to a gnarled pine tree about ten feet high, "was planted by my ancestors 300 years ago. My grandfather planted this palm and made this little pebbly brook, and my father trimmed this Wisteria vine and copied it on to his vases."

Among a large collection of Old Leeds pottery viewed recently was a half-gallon jug of a pretty shape, bearing on one side a tastefully printed design representing a sailor's young wife standing on the rocky coast waving her hand to her departing husband, supposed to be in one of the fleet of ships in the offing, bearing away under full sail. Below is the line in script characters:—"Adieu, she cry'd, and waved her lily hand."

The Rambler's Notes.

WHAT THE RAMBLER SAW AND HEARD AMONG THE DEALERS IN ART POTTERY, CUT GLASS, BRONZES, ETC.

THE extensive show rooms of Bawo & Dotter, 30 Barclay St., New York, are now seen to their greatest advantage, crowded as they are with endless varieties of art pottery, representing all the prominent makes of Europe. None but the most recent productions are shown, and an examination of the firm's stock is a revelation of the possibilities of the modern potter. Dresden lace figures in charming groups, ornamented crystal flower receptacles, artistically decorated bisque statuettes and other lines especially adapted to the jewelry trade, greet the eye everywhere on the six floors of the firm's building and deeply impress the visitor.

*

The "Eldorado" is a new design in Ch. Field Haviland china, shown by Haviland & Abbot, 29 Barclay St., New York, and it is as rich in character and appearance as its name suggests. This firm have adopted several improvements in their show rooms, among others being the placing of incandescent lamps under the shelves in such a manner as to throw a soft light on all the samples, and thus bring out their richness and beauty.

Boudoir Desks of various woods made in the styles prevailing in the Renaissance and Empire periods and having the Boule, Marqueterie and Vernis Martin decorations are now enjoying an unprecedented demand, as in fact is all furniture of those periods, and the many patterns seen in the show rooms of Ferdinand Bing & Co., 106 Grand St., New York, are among the most attractive on the market. These goods are being extensively handled by jewelers having a high-class trade.

A decided bargain is being offered by the Campbell-Metcalf Silver Co., Providence, R. I., in the shape of sterling silver match and stamp boxes, at $10.50 per dozen. The boxes are made in twelve different styles, and are quick-selling novelties that are especially suitable for the holiday trade.

The diamond-cutting department that Herzog, Goldsmith & Frank, 52 Maiden Lane, New York, have added to their establishment enables them to cut, polish and match diamonds in a manner that is being appreciated by the trade. They have none but expert workmen. The firm make a specialty of matching fine stores.

Simpson, Hall, Miller & Co., Wallingford, Conn., are meeting with remarkable success with their new patterns of flatware, "The Harvard," in which they make a full line. This design is very rich in character and shows the most artistic treatment. "The Harvard" will be supplied stamped with the name of the manufacturers or that of the retail jeweler, as may be desired.

IDEA XL.

THE Japanese display here illustrated attracted a great deal of notice recently in the window of Geo. C. Allis, Birmingham, Conn. The decoration was designed by Charles I. Freeman, who has at various times evinced great ability in this direction.

bills; another was ornamented with small parasols, Japanese bronze pin trays, lacquered trays with set rings; and numerous small spiders, etc., were scattered over the entire window. At the back of the window was a large bamboo screen and numerous

A JAPANESE WINDOW.

The bottom of the window was composed of strips of plush of different colors which harmonized well. The strips were decorated with small Japanese figures; one strip had a row of chickens with finger rings in their fans and banners. Japanese lanterns were placed in suitable places, while the gas fixture was covered with bamboo. Ensemble, the window decoration was unique and lent itself admirably to the display of goods.

Some Conceits in Advertising.

THE following sign is displayed in a country jewelry store:
Silver watches
All grades,
10 dollars each
And all prices.

Over the store of a Southern jeweler is the mystical legend

THE CAN.

While this name is hardly in consonance with the character of a jeweler's business, it contains an advertising idea worthy of consideration. By the christening of a store by such a name, a distinctiveness is obtained. Get the eye and the ear of the public first, then disclose what you have in the store.

A use of the automatic box or penny-in-the-slot craze has been made by a London optician. He keeps a stand at railway stations and other public places, so constructed that a penny dropped in lights up the inside of a sort of stereoscope-like arrangement where a page of type can be read through various numbered glasses, which are changed by turning a knob. When one strikes a glass that enables him to read the type comfortably he notes the number, which corresponds to the sort of spectacles he wants. At the side of the machine hang a number of order-blanks, in which he only needs to fill in that number, with his name and address, and to send a 2s. 6d.—60 cents—postal note, to get a pair of glasses by return of post. The order-blank can be posted or dropped in a locked receptacle on the machine. More people get their sight tested than order glasses, no doubt. But they pay their pennies for that privilege, and the light is covered up just as soon as they step off the platform; consequently the machine pays its way, besides being a good advertisement for the proprietor's wares.

The Other Side of Life.

SHE (waiting in the hall)—Did you see father, George?

He (excitedly)—I did, but I must go. Good-bye.

SHE—What's the matter? Stop and tell me all. You asked him for my hand. What did he say?

HE (taking out his watch and glancing at it)—He gave me just two minutes to get out of the house.—New York Press.

MR. POTTER—Do you not think it is a man's highest duty to treat a woman as though she were some rare and priceless bit of Sèvres?

MISS MAY JOLLIKER.—Why, of course, I do!

MR. POTTER—Then, dear; I have quite a lot of Sèvres; may I add you to my collection.—Puck.

JEWELER—These mourning earrings are very durable and will last a long time.

WIDOW—Then I don't think I really want them, unless you are willing to exchange them for some other jewelry later on.—Texas Siftings.

A QUICK LUNCH FIEND.

"My dear fellow, how in the world can you read when you're eating? It's enough to ruin your eyesight."

"Oh, I read with one eye and eat with the other."—London Globe.

A Ninth Street pawnbroker was awakened early yesterday by a great rapping at his door. On putting his head out of the window he recognized a customer of the day before.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"Whv," said the stranger, "I want to know the time, and you've got my watch."—Philadelphia Record.

LADY—Bridget. I suppose you know how to take care of cut glass, don't you.

BRIDGET—Indade, ma'am, an' I do. I'm always perticular to put all the broken glass in the ash-bin.—Inter-Ocean.

VERY NEAR-SIGHTED.

NEAR-SIGHTED BLIVINS—Say, Mike, lend me a pair of eye-glasses till I see what the papers say about the cholera?

MIKE (bartender)—Ah, go on! If yez can't git any colry news out of thot shticky fly-paper ye better use beer-glasses.—Judge.
